

Pitt Budget Hearing Set

Pitt County Commissioners yesterday afternoon voted to hold a public hearing—as required under the new machinery act—on the proposed 1973-1974 county budget June 21 at 10 a.m.

Commissioners should get their first look at the budget requests of the various county departments and agencies next week and set the June 21 hearing date in order to give board members an opportunity to review the requests for funds prior to the hearing. Any persons wishing to be heard on the question of the budget may appear at the session in the District Court Room.

The budget for the coming fiscal year must be adopted on or before July 15 this year.

Commissioners approved a request by the Greenville Jaycees for permission to stage a fireworks display on July 4 in connection with the second annual July 4 Celebration planned by the civic club. The celebration and fireworks display will take place in the Shore Drive Redevelopment area.

County Manager Reginald Gray told commissioners that Pitt County has received $381,829 in federal revenue sharing funds since the first of the year, bringing the total monies received by the county since the program began last year to $854,542. Gray said the county should receive a check for an additional $190,000 before the end of the fiscal year.

Commissioners have ear-marked the revenue sharing funds for construction of a parking lot on the North side of the court house, renovation of the ABC offices at the intersection of Second and Cotanche Streets, for the purchase of land and equipment for a landfill operation, and as contingency funds for hospital construction.

Senate Watergate Hearings Resumed

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate's Watergate committee today refused to delay its televised hearings, then heard a former Nixon campaign secretary testify that she typed wiretap logs, intelligence memoranda and a phony Democratic document.

The secretary, Sally J. Harmony, denied under questioning that she had told friends that she lied to the Watergate grand jury last year, or that she had been given a trip to Florida as a reward.

The committee's hearings resumed after it unanimously rejected a former request by the new special prosecutor, Archibald Cox, for a three-month delay.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., the chairman, said the committee decided in executive session that "duty requires it to decline" the Cox request for a delay.

He cited the Senate resolution ordering the investigation, and said the panel does not share the fear expressed by Cox that the courts might permit the guilty to go free because of the public inquiry.

Furthermore, Ervin said, the committee believes there is a greater likelihood that other people indicted in the Watergate case can receive fair trials in "an atmosphere of judicial calm" after the Senate investigators have completed their task.

And so, after an executive session that lasted more than an hour, the Watergate panel began questioning its 12th witness, Mrs. Sally Harmony, secretary to Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy when he was counsel at the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Mrs. Harmony, an attractive blonde in her early 40s, testified that she had typed intelligence memoranda and logs of telephone conversations for Liddy.

She said the name of R. Spencer Oliver, a Democratic official whose telephone was bugged by the Watergate crew, appeared on some of these logs. But she didn't disclose what was said in the bugged conversations because that would violate wiretapping laws.

Mrs. Harmony said the telephone logs were typed on special colored stationery that bore the word "Gemstone" across the top.

On other occasions, she recalled, she transcribed tape-recorded conversations, apparently between E. Howard Hunt and a spy he had planted inside Sen. George S. McGovern's presidential campaign headquarters. She said the question-and-answer interview dealt with goods and services for the Democratic national convention.

Robert Reiser, a GOP aide who worked under Jeb Stuart Magruder, once the No. 2 man in the Nixon campaign organization, also was scheduled to testify.

The committee, which has faced pressure to speed the appearances of major figures in the affair, canceled the scheduled appearance of H. A. Post, owner of the Washington printing firm that prepared "Gemstone" stationery.

The committee, which has faced pressure to speed the appearances of major figures in the affair, canceled the scheduled appearance of H. A. Post, owner of the Washington printing firm that prepared "Gemstone" stationery.

The nature of the message typed on it, she said, was: "To whom it may concern. This will authorize the bearer to enter the premises."

She added: "I was asked to put the initials GH-JP and the signature was signed Gary Hart with the initials like a secretary had typed it."

Mrs. Harmony said she was told the following week that Hunt, one of the seven Watergate conspirators, had the letter in his possession.

She also said that the day Liddy was interviewed by the FBI, sometime after the break-in, she shredded her shorthand notebooks.

Q. On whose instructions?
A. On Mr. Liddy's instructions.

"He had asked me to check through the files and if I found anything with his handwriting on it, would I please destroy it," Mrs. Harmony said.

Mrs. Harmony said that Magruder contacted her in March, or perhaps April, 1973 to tell her that he had told former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell that Mitchell "has no reason to be concerned about any of your testimony."

This call from Magruder to Mitchell came after Mrs. Harmony had indicated she would be talking with Senate Watergate investigators.

Magruder had been deputy campaign director, and then later worked with Mrs. Harmony at the presidential Inaugural Committee, where both are still employed.

When Mrs. Harmony was questioned further about the conversation with Magruder, she said it probably occurred after March 31, when she was interviewed by Senate investigators.

She said she did not know how Mitchell's name was first broached.

Favorable Weather Helps Newtown Project Work

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

Favorable weather is helping to keep construction progress in the Newtown housing area well ahead of schedule, according to project site inspector Ralph Hall.

Hall told Housing Authority commissioners last night that very little time has been lost due to rains although a few wet nights have hindered early morning pouring of concrete.

The inspector reported that all concrete footings have been poured for the units and concrete floor slabs are down for several buildings. All parking lots have been laid out in the project, he noted.

The framing of 24-one bedroom units on the west side of 14th Street has begun and contractors are still aiming for a completion date of Sept. 1 on the first section of four buildings. First section completion by the target date hinges on favorable weather and availability of materials, it was noted.

Commissioners voted to include two sidewalk networks in the project that had been taken out of the plans initially in an effort to shave costs. A $9,000 contingency fund that had been set aside to cover the cost of replacing unsatisfactory soil materials on the site has not been used and money from that source could be used to fund the sidewalks.

Hall told commissioners that so far none of the contingency funds, known as muck money, have been used and since it was allocated for soil replacement or site improvements, he feels the money could be used for the sidewalks.

Commissioners decided that it will be more desirable to have the sidewalks included in the project plans. The motion to put them back in the format was passed subject to approval by HUD and the architect.

The project is continuing some six per cent ahead of schedule.

According to the tenant occupancy report submitted by Mrs. Sallye C. Streeter, director of tenant affairs, all 453 housing units operated by the Authority were occupied during May.

In N.C. 22-1 (Meadowbrook), the 65 units were filled and average rent there was $35.60. In N.C. 22-2 (Kearney Park), all 160 apartments were rented and residents paid an average of $33.46 in rent for the month.

All 188 units in N.C. 22-3 (Moyewood) were rented, she reported, and residents paid an average of $38.99 in rent. Rent averaged $33.13 in N.C. 22-4 (Moyewood) and all 40 units were occupied.

Unit inspections have been completed, the director reported, and staff members are now making follow up visits to families who need to work on improving their units.

Commissioners authorized expenses for commissioner Dr. Charles Price at a Southeast Regional Council meeting of the National Association of Housing and Redevelopment Officials this month in Louisville, Ky. The attendance of one staff member had been authorized earlier.

Crops Suffered In Heavy Rains

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Crop Reporting Service said today torrential rains last week in mountainous western North Carolina gouged holes in many fields down to subsoil levels.

The rains washed away both seeds and growing plants, the agency said. Silage corn suffered the worst and replanting will be extensive in some counties.

Hay acreage that was cut and curing when hit by the rains was severely damaged. The cabbage crop suffered heavy damage, the agency reported. Potatoes and other vegetable crops also were damaged.

Skylab Crewmen Study Plans For Station Repair

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Skylab's astronauts today studied the complex details of a daring two-man space walk to try to free a jammed solar panel on the side of their orbiting space station.

Success of the unprecedented attempt would nearly double the electricity in the giant Skylab vehicle. A power shortage is restricting experiments.

Mission Control radioed recommendations on the space walk, expected Thursday morning, to the astronauts on a teletypewriter circuit during the night.

Space agency officials decided on Monday that there were no unusual safety hazards. They gave the green light for the effort that will send two of the astronauts outside the station, probably Thursday morning.

"Very good," Skylab commander Charles "Pete" Conrad Jr. remarked when told of the decision. "We'll be ready."

Skylab program director William C. Schneider told newsmen Monday night that Conrad will decide who will take the excursion.

He felt, however, the commander would choose to do the most difficult job, scrambling some 25 feet down the side of the barrel-shaped workshop to attempt to free the panel, with Dr. Joseph K. Kerwin remaining near the open airlock hatch to assist.

The third crewman, Pail J. Weitz, would stay inside the station, radioing procedures to Conrad and Kerwin.

Asked about possible dangers, Schneider replied: "Pete's a smooth and cool cat who won't do anything unreasonable. If he got out there and saw he couldn't do it, he'd come back in."

Astronaut Russell Schweickart, the backup Skylab commander, has been practicing the space walk procedures in a huge water tank which provided some sensation of weightlessness. He briefed Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz by radio Monday night.

Schweickart told them to review the plans today and a lengthy conference would be held tonight between the astronauts and mission control.

Diploma-Time

Pitt County high school seniors will receive their diplomas in commencement exercises scheduled at each of the county's four high school tonight.

Some 775 seniors will receive diplomas during the 8 p.m. graduation exercises at North Pitt, D.H. Conley, Ayden-Grifton and Farmville Central high school completing 12 years of study.

U.S. Proposes World Ocean Pollution Curbs

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today proposed creation of a new international committee to administer conventions against pollution of the oceans.

The proposal was made by Russell E. Train, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, in a speech prepared for delivery in London to the Council of the Inter-Governmental Maritime Consultative Organization (IMCO).

The speech was released here and Train briefed newsmen on it before leaving for London.

Train proposed that IMCO create a new committee called the "Marine Environment Protection Committee," open to all nations participating in IMCO itself.

He said the new committee would administer the 1954 Convention for the Prevention of Pollution of the Sea by Oil; the 1972 Convention on Ocean Dumping; and a new Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships, to be developed at a conference next October.

The proposed new convention is expected to broaden international control over discharges from vessels at sea to include all types of harmful substances as well as oil.

"The marine environment is increasingly threatened with grave damage from seaborne commerce in polluting substances," Train warned.

Tanker transport of oil has tripled since 1960, he pointed out.

Fletcher of Raleigh, N.C. Mr. Fletcher, a well-known Eastern North Carolina businessman, has long been a friend of music in this area.

He founded, and continues to support, the National Opera Company (Grass Roots Opera), which has brought opera to more than a million public school students. His funding of the A.J. Fletcher Music Scholarships at the East Carolina University School of Music is another facet of his continued support to young musicians.

The Fletcher Scholarships are presented for excellence in musicianship to performers of orchestral instruments, and are awarded only to students who have financial need. The scholarship recipients are chosen by Dean Everett Pittman of the School of Music from recommendations made by a faculty scholarship committee. # Damage To Five Autos

An estimated $3,380 property damage resulted from a mishap at the intersection of Fourth and Evans Streets yesterday which involved five cars — three of them parked and unattended.

Investigators reported a car driven by Bruce Ray Tripp, 49, of Route 5, Greenville collided with a car operated by Willie Mason Evans, 65, of Route 1, Grimesland to set off the resulting chain reaction.

In turn, the Evans car collided with a parked car owned by Simon Joseph Waters of 206 Williamsburg Rd., which in turn struck a parked car owned by Larry Rook Stox of 1102 South Cotanche St.

The Stox car then collided with a car owned by James Gray Owens of Walstonburg which was also parked in line along Evans Street with the other cars.

Police estimated damage at $100 to the Tripp car, $500 to the Evans aut., $2,600 to the Waters car, $150 to the Stox vehicle and $30 to the Owens car.

Evans was charged by investigators with speeding and failing to stop for a stop light.

Summer School

The six week session of summer school at Rose High will begin at 8:00 a.m., Monday, June 11, according to principal Robert Alligood. Alligood said all students planning to attend summer school are to report to the gymnasium at 8:00 a.m. to sign up, select courses to be taken, and to be assigned classrooms.

Because of the relatively late beginning date, Alligood said the session would run straight through; with no holiday for July 4.

The six weeks of summer school will end on July 20.

Three Died In Highway Crash

MURFREESBORO, N.C. (AP)—Three persons were killed Monday when their car collided with a tanker truck just north of Murfreesboro.

The police department in Murfreesboro, Hertford County, said it understood they were from Northampton, an adjoining county in northeastern North Carolina, but did not have identities immediately.

It said the accident occurred on U.S. 258.

Monday.

About 15 children were riding the train at the time, part of a group of primary students from Belvoir Primary School on a field trip.

Vincent said the teachers with the students took the students who were injured to the emergency room at Pitt Memorial Hospital, and that Richard Stevens, principal of the school, later confirmed that injuries were minor.

"The train will be out of action for an indefinite period," Vincent said. "We don't know what caused the engine to jump the track and will make a full study to try to determine what the problem is." He said the tracks were not damaged, and that the engine jumped the track while pulling out of a curve.

DEAR ABBY: If you never do another thing for humanity as long as you live, you should go down in history for taking a stand against prolonging the life of the terminally ill by means of gadgets and tubes. The "Living Will" which permits a person to express his wishes concerning his own fate should he become helpless beyond recovery was never more needed than it is today.

It is a shame that some of these doctors can't see those patients each day after they are transferred from the hospital to nursing homes to die slowly, and also see the families day by day as they sit helplessly by and watch their loved ones go thru the painful slow dying process. Sometimes the patient is reduced to a vegetable, while the physical, emotional, and financial strain on the family is devastating. I just can't believe that God ever intended that anyone should be put thru this kind of ordeal, or that doctors should practice this type of medicine.

I write this letter after watching a long drawn out death in my own family, and I want to say that your letter could do untold good in the prevention of such tragedies. Bless you for publishing information that may start people thinking about the plight of these pitiful old people whose lives are prolonged by tubes, and the families who become destitute during the process.

DEAR ABBY: Dying with dignity is important, but there are greater values. One of our sisters is dying a slow and painful death from cancer. I picked up her Bible to read to her and it fell open to Paul's letter to Colossians where she had marked the passage: "It makes me happy to suffer for you, as I am suffering now, and in my own body to do what I can to make up all that has still to be undergone by Christ for the sake of his body, the Church."

Abby, that sister is doing more for us now by patient suffering than she did even as an outstanding superior and administrator. Suffering can be redemptive. God will give us the strength to bear whatever He permits to happen to us, if we but trust Him.

AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Marijane Meaker tells stories for a living.

She uses several names and different styles, but the fortyish blonde author says she doesn't rely on gimmicks. She regards writing as a profession, just like bricklaying.

"I like to tell stories. I don't think about changing gears to different kinds of writing audiences," said the author of suspense thrillers, children's books and a favorably reviewed novel.

A native of upstate New York, Marijane always wanted to be a writer. She went to journalism school at the University of Missouri because "I always believed you had to earn your living." But she didn't pass economics, and switched her major to English. Then she came to New York to make her fortune and promptly lost, according to her count, nine jobs in a row.

"Then I sold my first pocket book. I wrote mysteries because that was the only thing that got reviewed in pocket book. And I didn't use my real name because Marijane was considered good for gothic romances, but not gutsy enough for mysteries," she said.

As Vin Packer, she wrote "why-done-its," not who-done-its. She analyzed famous cases. "I could never do clues or blood and guts. Suspense is my field," she added.

Always a prolific writer, Marijane says it is hard to find new fields "in my old age." But she has written a nonfiction book on suicide.

"Businessmen, writers and artists commit suicide," she said, "but not musicians or sports stars or renown. Then I started a novel about my home town, everyone does. Then finally I wrote "Shockproof Sidney Skate," a very today look at a young man with a homosexual parent.

"I thought kids raised by homosexuals were no more hung up than other kids. I believe homosexuality is usually a reaction against a very straight upbringing. I just don't think it matters." "Shockproof" was favorably reviewed and is now on the soft cover best seller list.

Marijane is also the author of three successful children's books about contemporary living.

"I got involved in that because of dope addicts in the neighborhood. I felt victimized.

And a woman close by was involved in rehabilitation work, although her own daughter had obesity problems and was getting fatter and fatter. It was putting out the fire in the house across the street, symptomatic of America," she said.

"I've always thought as a journalist, I write about the subtleties of money and women. I've never written a good sex scene. I always steal from other writers. Other people are more talented in that area."

Marijane writes four hours a day, in the afternoon.

"I've always been disappointed that I couldn't get up in the morning but I've always been insomniac. I listen to all-night radio and then can't get up in the morning. And when I'm not writing, I read," she said, "just like the busman's holiday."

She reads everything from seed catalogues to novels to the suspense novels of Georges Simenon "because his one sentence paragraphs interest me.

"It's hard to find interesting novels, very hard. Someone once said all writers were alcoholics and hypochondriacs and perhaps it's so."

She said her conservative parents were upset about the language in her novel "Shockproof." "They hated it because they don't like dirty words," she said. "They don't mind violence in the mysteries."

Now that the author is pretty much a success in several fields, she only wants to write novels. "And I'm only just learning to write them," she added.

"We're so oversaturated with sex that I think the new area for writers to study is lifestyles. But I'll always add a bit of social awareness. I still think as a journalist, and I'll do what I want to do."

Traditional Ideas Go Into High-Style Fashion

By AP NEWSFEATURES
SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — Take five Indian students, give them synthetic fabrics, a sewing machine and a smattering of traditional design, and voila: there's a new fashion look.

That's what happened at the Institute of American Indian Arts.

Students in the costume design class of Josephine Wapp, herself a Comanche, participated in a contest.

"Only about five entered because the time was limited," Mrs. Wapp said.

The students, aged 17 to 22, were presented with knit fabrics — striped, checked, brown, orange, white and rust, from Phillips Fibers Corp.

They sketched their ideas, adapting traditional Indian costumes to modern times. Then they sent the sketches, accompanied by swatches of materials they had chosen, to new York for final judging. Fashion designer Clovis and editors of three fashion magazines participated in judging. Then the three winners had four more weeks to create their ideas in fabric.

Slides, lectures, demonstrations and films combined with the ethnic heritage of each student to help them learn about traditional Indian costumes. Mrs. Wapp said they had no other help.

Denise Ellis, an Oneida, created a blouse, pants and skirt outfit. Both blouse and skirt were shorter than traditional Indian garb. "If you cut the pants from the knee down, you have a leggin — part of the traditional costume worn on the lower part of the knee for warmth and decoration," Mrs. Wapp added. "The skirt is also trimmed in this manner."

Another student from the Sioux nation, Imogene Goodshot, designed a cape.

"She used a cotton braid to improvise the orange woodland-style beadwork. She purchased it herself, because material was all that had been provided," the teacher added.

Bonnie Osuna, a iqueno, copied a traditional, long-waisted silver dress using knit material and silver buttons.

There are 300 students at the Institute of American Indian Arts, dedicated to retaining American Indian heritage and culture. In order to participate in the government-sponsored institute, students must be at least one-quarter Indian.

America's Way Of Wedding Changes Little Through Years

By JOY STILLEY
AP NEWSFEATURES Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — What's dreamed of for years, planned for months, remembered forever — and over in half an hour?

A wedding.

Eighty per cent of all first marriages in this country are formal, says Marcia Seligson, who attended some 200 ceremonies, formal and otherwise, while gathering material for "The Eternal Bliss Machine," her new book on America's way of wedding.

"The basic thing I learned in my travels is how little has changed," she says. "Most kids want exactly what their parents had. It's as though there were never such things as riots on campus, a sexual revolution, drugs. It's really startling.

"The kids getting married barefoot on the rocks are an infinitesimal number," she adds. "Girls are programmed from the time they are infants to be traditional brides. It's an ingrained part of our culture."

As a result, the bridal industry takes in $7 billion annually from over two million weddings, notes Miss Seligson, who got interested in the subject when she was a bridesmaid six times in one summer.

"I always knew there was something ridiculous about superweddings, but when I found out one of my friends was having her gown 'embalmed' to preserve it, I knew there was something hilarious that was worth investigating," recalls the vivacious young author.

During two years of research she talked to such wedding-oriented entrepreneurs as banquet managers, caterers, florists, band leaders, cake makers, store bridal consultants, ice sculptors, honeymoon resort people, wedding ring manufacturers, apparel designers, people who rent tents and who plank over swimming pools, clergymen of all faiths and ladies who rent doves. Sometimes she pretended to be a prospective bride and sometimes she admitted to being a reporter.

Among the weddings Miss Seligson attended was a Beverly Hills bash where the mashed potatoes and family poodle were dyed pink to match the bridesmaids' dresses, a Texas affair where the parties went on for so many weeks that the ceremony was an anticlimax, and an underwater wedding where the bride wore a white wet suit covered in soggy lace and the minister had taken scuba diving lessons in order to tie the damp knot.

"I went to one wedding where the couple, all the wedding party, the minister and the guests were nude," reports Miss Seligson, who joined them "because I didn't want to stick out like a sore thumb."

She says in today's "new" weddings, usually held outdoors, there's a tremendous involvement in the vows, which the couple often writes themselves.

"In traditional weddings the guests are usually more interested in whether the chopped liver will be beef or chicken than in what the kids are saying to each other," she declares.

Some of the credit — or the blame — for the all-out wedding goes to the industry that trumpets the message it's a once-in-a-lifetime thing.

"That implies foreverness. The bridal industry tries to tell you that a formal wedding fosters marriage stability, but that's absolute nonsense," Miss Seligson scoffs.

However, she concedes that everybody must want a wedding or the tradition wouldn't continue and grow.

"Poor people start saving from the day the daughter is born," she says. "The wedding becomes a sort of panacea for all our fears, a status symbol that says we made it big and daddy can send his daughter off in materialistic style, America's term for success."

Despite such excesses as a huge ice sculpture of a dolphin with black caviar spewing out of its gullet, Miss Seligson thinks there is a basic need for "rites of passage" when moving from one state in life to another.

"Every civilization in history has had some kind of marriage ceremony," she points out. "I think ritual is a crucial, fundamental human need, but when humanness gets lost then it becomes ridiculous."

And what kind of a wedding would Miss Seligson, who is still single, like for herself?

"I want to get married nude, on a hilltop," she says.

Human Needs Must Be 'First'

We read where a sports and business group from Raleigh, Chapel Hill and Durham is considering a $20 million 25,000 seat sports area to serve the Triangle area.

And where would the money come from? A prime suggestion was from the state treasury. The group was told that the project would be feasible only if financed in advance by private contributions and possible legislative appropriations.

One thought was that if half the money could be raised the state might appropriate the other half as a memorial to North Carolinians killed in all wars.

Well, we don't think the idea of a sports arena is a bad one at all for the Raleigh-Chapel Hill and Durham area, and we don't blame the planners to try for a state appropriation.

We would, however, have words of advice for those in state government who would have to decide on appropriation for this or any other sports palace: forget it.

North Carolina has gotten along very well with a policy of not financing football stadiums and major sports arenas on its university campuses. The test of putting state funds in a gymnasium has been whether the facility was to be used primarily for instructional programs.

It has been a good policy and one which should be continued by our Legislature. North Carolina has human needs which come well ahead of the construction of sports palaces. They needs should be met before the state takes on the financing of multi-million dollar sports arenas, and we don't see North Carolina catching up on its human needs in the foreseeable future.

We think the proposed sports arena for the Raleigh-Chapel Hill-Durham would be a fine thing. No doubt people from our area would drive up to see sports and entertainment events there. But in no way should the tax payers of North Carolina be asked to help pay for it. It should be financed by the municipalities involved.

Jenkins Found A Kaleidoscope

By BRYAN HAISLIP
Look into the kaleidoscope of America: myriad refractions from a varied landscape and a mixed people blend into the grand design of a nation vibrant and unfulfilled.

Scenic beauty and urban sprawl, junky advertising and earthy folk wisdom, the loneliness of age and exuberance of youth — those are among the impressions Dr. Leo W. Jenkins brought back from a 12,500-mile American odyssey.

Singly, each sight along the way seemed unimportant. Taken together, he said, "they represent a power and a beauty that transcend the ordinary and commonplace and take on the form and shape of limitless grandeur."

"America is grand, and to know America for what she really is to see her and experience her."

Dr. Jenkins, East Carolina University chancellor, and his wife made a three-month tour of the United States under a Danforth Foundation grant. They traveled, mostly by automobile, to famous cities and out-of-the-way communities, talked to people in fine hotels and in country stores, and listened closely for the heartbeat of a nation and its citizenry.

Never The Same Again
"I can truthfully say that I can never be the same. Before, I did not possess the vision — the vision of America's greatness and her potential to become even greater," he said.

Dr. Jenkins collected his observations and reactions in a report titled, "America: A Kaleidoscopic View."

Adjectives are inadequate to describe the conglomerate of America, he wrote.

"It is a hodge-podge of everything. It is sick and it is robust and healthy. It has immense wealth and pockets of grinding poverty. It is a land in which one can travel in all directions and be in the immediate neighborhood of multi-million dollar college or university and yet be surrounded by illiteracy and ignorance."

"It is a blend of the old and the new, a mixture of deep-rooted customs and traditions and fresh, startling newness. It is a land of confidence and brash liberalism, of caution, confusion and doubt, filled with both courage and fear. It is a land of the young and old with a backbone of middle age."

Random Observations
A sampling from the log of the journey:

"It is refreshing to see the way drivers in Texas will let other drivers pass them and wave at each other. This is not observed in any other state."

Reading bumper stickers is a pastime for motorists. Those Dr. Jenkins recorded: "Only a damn fool takes himself seriously."

"If you love the Lord, toot your horn."

"If you are horny toot your horn twice."

And one of the best — "Fight pollution. Gag a politician."

Doctor Shortage Everywhere
Dr. Jenkins, advocate of an ECU medical school, carried his "health concern with him."

"It was interesting to observe in a small Texas town a large queue of Mexican-Americans lined up to see the local doctor. It seems the doctor shortage exists everywhere," he noted.

"Disillusionment and disappointment in the newspapers and the courts seem to be rather prevalent everywhere."

"It is interesting to watch obviously wealthy people pull up at the laundromat in their long Cadillacs with bundles of dirty clothes in the back seat. And to see these people sit around in the steamy, noisy laundromat feeding dimes into the dryer and waiting for a chance to chat with somebody."

"For these people it is not a matter of getting their clothes washed. It is a matter of loneliness, of finding a place to meet people and talk."

"...the California highway system is like someone throwing a bunch of spaghetti onto a piece of paper and letting it dry. This is the map of the roads they are going to build. Now whether this wet spaghetti story is true or not we don't know, but it seems logical after driving on some of the highways there."

"I believe that colleges and universities must address themselves more seriously to the matter of transportation and all the problems associated with it. Also, to recreation and security and all the corrective sciences."

America, Dr. Jenkins concluded, is the sum of its disparate parts. "It is a land of contrasts which, upon reflection, merge harmoniously and positively. To see it is to now."

British Mirror Views In U.S.

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N.J. — Awareness of the Watergate case is nearly as widespread in Great Britain as in the United States, with 90 per cent in the United Kingdom saying they have heard or read about Watergate compared to 96 per cent in the U.S. In addition, the views of the British public regarding President Nixon's involvement in the Watergate situation closely mirror the views of the American people.

Nearly half of the British interviewed (48 per cent) say they think President Nixon knew in advance about the Watergate bugging, while 20 per cent feel he did not; 32 per cent have no opinion.

A comparable proportion of Americans (46 per cent) share the British view that Nixon had prior awareness of the bugging. A somewhat greater proportion of Americans than British say he did not know, but it should be borne in mind that the "no opinion" percentage is approximately twice as large in Great Britain as here.

Comparable majorities in both nations (56 per cent) hold the view that Nixon participated in a cover-up of the Watergate situation. Again, the proportion holding the opposite view is higher in the U.S. than in Great Britain. About three in ten (28 per cent) of Americans say the President did not participate in a cover-up, compared to 16 per cent in Great Britain. As in the case of the previous question, the "no opinion" category is about twice as high among the British as among the American public.

NIXON GETS STRONG BACKING FROM REPUBLICAN RANK-AND-FILE

While the U.S. public as a whole thinks Nixon was involved in the Watergate situation, Republican voters lean heavily to the view that he was not. Only one Republican in five (22 per cent) feels that Nixon had prior knowledge of last June's bugging incident and only about one-third (34 per cent) think he had participated in a cover-up.

Evidence that the issue is taking on still greater political overtones is seen in the fact that the spread between the views of Republicans and Democrats is growing increasingly wide.

Following are the questions asked in both nations and the comparison:

"Have you heard or read about Watergate?" (In Great Britain "Have you heard or read about the so-called 'Watergate affair' in the United States?")

YES—HAVE HEARD OR READ ABOUT WATERGATE

Great Britain 90
U.S. 96

Awareness of Watergate in the U.S. has risen dramatically over the last several weeks, with the latest figure (96 per cent) representing one of the all-time high awareness scores recorded for a major news development. Following is the trend in awareness among Americans, starting with an early measurement during last fall's presidential campaign:

Sept. 22-25, 52 per cent; April 6-9, 83 per cent; April 27-30, 91 per cent; and May 11-14, 96 per cent

All persons in both nations who say they had heard or read about Watergate were asked the following questions:

"Do you think President Nixon knew in advance about the Watergate bugging of last June, or not?"

In Great Britain, 48 per cent said yes, he knew; 20 per cent said no, he did not; and 32 per cent had no opinion.

In the U.S., 46 per cent said the president knew, 36 per cent said he did not, and 18 per cent had no opinion.

"Do you think President Nixon has participated in a cover-up of the Watergate situation, or not?"

In Great Britain, 56 per cent said "yes", 16 per cent said he has not, and 28 per cent had no opinion.

In the U.S. 56 per cent said he had participated in a cover-up, 28 per cent said he has not, and 16 per cent had no opinion.

DUPLIX DOG HOUSE!

By J.J. KILPATRICK

On With That Pipeline

A group of Midwestern legislators, pressing for regional advantage at the expense of national needs, has managed once more to delay construction of the trans-Alaskan pipeline. The project is bogged down in committee, and faces a bruising fight when it reaches the floor.

The story is one long chronicle of frustration. If construction of this pipeline had been started three years ago, when its prospective builders were ready to go, the nation might now be benefiting from one to two million barrels of oil per day.

We would be significantly less dependent upon supplies from the Middle East. Our balance of payments would not be quite so dangerously out of kilter. At least two billion dollars could have been saved in construction costs.

All this is what might have been. Much of the exasperating delay has resulted from the opposition of the eco-freaks, those conservationist zealots whose frenzy carries them, like the Jesus freaks, beyond faith to fanaticism, beyond dedication to obsession. Their spokesmen have conjured up damage to the migratory habits of the caribou; they have expounded pathetically upon the harm that a four-foot pipeline would do to hundreds of thousands of square miles of tundra; they have raised vague fears of earthquakes, melting ice, oil spills, and harm to polar bears, fish, and to 320 species of arctic birds.

I do not mean to challenge the sincerity of these conservationists. It is their judgment and their sense of priorities that compel a blunt rejoinder: The United States urgently needs Alaska's North Slope oil. We have to have it. Further delays cannot be condoned.

Yet further delays are in prospect. On February 9, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia enjoined construction of the pipeline on a single point: The Mineral Leasing Act of 1920 limits rights-of-way on Federal lands to 25 feet on either side of a pipeline. The proposed line from the North Slope to Valdez would have required 70 to 75 feet on either side at certain points. It is puzzling, in retrospect, that this obstacle was not comprehended and resolved long ago.

On February 21, less than two weeks after the court ruling, Alaska's Senators Mike Gravel and Ted Stevens introduced a bill to overcome the objection. They proposed to cut all the red tape in a single blow, by declaring that the bulky environmental impact statement, long ago supplied by the Department of the Interior, filled all requirements of law. Similar legislation was offered in the House.

We are now into June, and nothing has happened. Instead, the old alternative of a trans-Canadian route has been revived. Senators Walter Mondale of Minnesota, Adlai Stevenson of Illinois, and Birch Bayh of Indiana are insisting that the Canada plan be studied anew.

Snatches down the years from Greenville's history.

In 1774 an act was passed providing for a town by the name of Martinborough. The Assembly of 1784 passed an act which made Martinborough a place for the inspection of tobacco. The two most important events of 1786 to Pitt were the incorporation of the Pitt Academy to be established at Martinborough and the changing of the name of Martinborough to that of "Greenville" said to have been in honor of General Nathaniel Greene, the hero of Guilford Court House. On April 19, 1791 George Washington's southern tour took him through "Greenville" where he dined. About 1835 the first newspaper ever published in Greenville or Pitt County was printed. It was called the Greenville Gazette and was published by John Brown. The legislature of 1850 chartered the Greenville and Raleigh plank road. During the past years there have been many newspaper ventures in Greenville. The Express, established by L. Thomas and Company in 1877 and bought in February of the next year by J.R. Whichard, was the only one with prospects of long life. Thomas J. Jarvis, Governor of North Carolina from 1879 to 1885, made his home in Greenville and is buried in Cherry Hill Cemetery. The Norfolk and Southern Railroad, from Raleigh to Greenville, was completed in 1907, and it carried its first passengers to the State Fair to hear William Jennings Bryan speak. October 5th, 1909, the East Carolina Teachers' Training School was opened for the reception of students.

Other Editors Say Bipartisan Support

(The Wilson Times)
Education received bipartisan support in the General Assembly. The money appropriated for the public schools, and the institutions of higher learning should provide quality education from kindergarten to the highest degrees.

It is now up to the school administrators as the public generally will be watching to see how well the money is spent in the quest for improved education opportunities. More than $688 million will go to operate the public schools next year. And the lawmakers go back in January and further appropriations will be made for the next session.

Of the $134 million requested for new and improved services, the legislators granted $123 million. And the friends of education in the General Assembly came from both parties, so neither can claim all the credit. It was a cooperative effort. It has been said the commitment to the kindergarten system is one of the outstanding achievements.

Governor Holshouser said the success for education gives a reading of the public mood. Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt gives much credit to the initiative of the Democratic solons for the forward thrust in public school appropriations.

The teachers will be employed for 10 months at the cost of $33.4 million. The students receive 180 instructional days and the teachers the extra days needed for planning, evaluation and in-service, training.

Classes will be reduced, teachers receive a 5 per cent wage increase and with the extended time, the raise amounts to a near 7 percent increase.

The private colleges and universities receive $200 per pupil for each North Carolina student enrolled. There is money for buses, occupational education, new teachers to work with the gifted and mentally retarded and children with physical handicaps.

The budget left nothing out, all are provided for. What remains is the use to which the money is put. Here is where the real progress speaks out and here is where the largest education budget in the state's history will prove its worth.

Gold Demand Is Unexplainable

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

Through the years, gold seems to have held mankind in a trance. Once, it was worshipped as having come from the sun, or the heavens. Today it is worshipped by many as the only real financial security.

Because of this, the twice-devalued dollar is in trouble again. Dollars are being sold for gold; so, following the law of supply and demand, the dollar's price is being pressed down; the price of gold, pushed up.

Last week, it reached a price of more than $120 an ounce, up 25 per cent in just a month, as financial assets that were maintained in dollars were switched into gold. And, because of inflation, a lot of dollars are floating around.

Why this should be done isn't altogether explainable, but nothing about gold and its adherents ever is.

For example, there is plenty of evidence that gold buyers are speculating on an increased role for gold in the monetary system of the future, even though its relationship to currencies is officially severed. There are those who cannot believe that man can rid himself of ties to gold, and they may be right. Gold as a medium of exchange may be considered primitive, but it remains universally acceptable.

The current interpretation of the rising gold price is that the United States' economy continues to suffer from inflation, notwithstanding promises from Washington about the future. And the country still imports more than it exports.

This is bad news for those who traditionally have held dollars for security. All over the world, the dollar was thought to be the safest, untainted by the erosion that ruined other currencies.

But dollar erosion today is very serious. And gold never erodes. No government or industry or institution can do anything to diminish the amount of gold somebody has cached away. And it is almost impervious to nature.

Talk among economists now is of an upcoming recession following the current boom. William McChesney Martin Jr., former head of the Federal Reserve Board, is among the latest to express this opinion.

Moreover, Martin fed additional fears with his statement to the Senate Finance Committee that "the nation is floating on a sea of debt" and that he was worried about the banking system.

Martin is highly respected in world monetary and financial circles, and his comments are bound to be used abroad as reinforcement of their own concerns. And among those concerns about America is its current government.

In the view of some Europeans, President Nixon's ability to govern has been impaired seriously at the very time that the price and payments balance situations need close supervision from Washington.

And so they switch to gold, hoping that somehow the new international monetary order or growing industrial demand will continue to push up its price. It might not pay any interest, they know, but they feel safe with it. Man always has.

Strength For Today

ACREED FOR COWARDS?
Historically, Christianity has often been considered to be a religion for weak and defeated people. Individuals with aggressive and demanding personalities have sometimes been contemptuous of the Christian gospel, maintaining that it takes the virility and effectiveness out of human nature.

Chesterton has said that Christianity has not been tried and failed, but that it has been found inconvenient and so not tried. In other words, its demands are so great that few people try to meet the test which they impose.

It is a cross, stark, grim, and demanding, which stands at the center of our faith. Christianity is not a Sunday school picnic, but a crusade. In one sense Christianity is a creed for cowards because it turns cowards into heroes.

The truth of the matter is, however, that nothing calls for so much courage as genuine Christianity. Gilbert

On the House side, John B. Anderson of Illinois is blandly urging that an Alaskan route not be "cannonaded" into law — cannonaded, mind you, after five years of discussion. Lew Aspin of Wisconsin, leader of the opposition, finds the environmental and economic advantages of a Canadian pipeline "so obvious" that no other route can be justified.

William E. Simon, deputy secretary of the Treasury, demolished these arguments in a recent statement. Building a Canadian line, he said, "would delay receipt of vitally needed Alaska crude oil by from three to five years." The Canadian line would be much longer; it would have to cross twelve major rivers; it would cost twice as much; it could not be built without prolonged negotiations with Ottawa, in which the Canadians understandably would insist upon protecting their own domestic concerns.

The Nixon administration many times has cited the "urgent necessity" for building the trans-Alaskan line. The state's spokesmen in Congress, who know and love their wilderness area, have pleaded for prompt action. Every national interest, it seems to me, demands that we get on with this job — and get on with it now.

The growing shortage of gasoline and oil may force a revival of one of America's most popular forms of transportation in the past — the trolley car. While streetcars are still common in a number of cities, they remain in only six in the United States — San Francisco, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburgh and Newark, N.J. Probably no more than 500 trolley cars remain.

During its meeting in Raleigh, the board said procedures to assure fairness for the selection of students will be handled by

Quits Canoe Voyage Try

SCOTT'S HILL, N.C. (AP)—A 40-year-old woman has given up her second attempt to sail a 16-foot canoe across the Atlantic.

Mrs. Shirley Haycock of Spring Glen, Utah, a teacher and widowed mother of two children, abandoned the latest try last weekend. She said she was unable to make progress and drifted at the mercy of the current off the North Carolina. She was reported back ashore in Scott's Hill, 12 miles up the coast from Wilmington and 30 miles northeast of where she had set sail last Thursday.

She said she had not been able to get far enough off shore to reach the Gulf Stream, a powerful current which would have given her a strong push on her way.

She reportedly is planning to return to Utah in a few days, but said she would like to try the canoe voyage again sometime.

In her first attempt two weeks ago she was accompanied by a friend, Robert Geedy, 38, of Manti, Utah. That trip ended in their asking for a tow to shore after they had made 30 miles up the coast and one mile into the Atlantic. Geedy then left for his parents' home in Pennsylvania. Mrs. Haycock said she would pick him up there and they would return to Utah with the canoe.

Will Resume Interstate

RALEIGH (AP)—Work will resume this fall on the final leg of Interstate 26 in Polk County. North Carolina highway administrator Billy Rose said engineers have found a way to stabilize shifting mountain soil in the area in order to complete the six-mile stretch between Columbus, N.C. and Saluda, N.C.

Grading work began up the side of the mountain overlooking Tryon, N.C. in 1968. It was nearly complete when lengthy rains in the fall of 1969 caused massive land slides on the newly graded land.

Rose said soil engineers have now perfected a drainage plan for stabilizing the soil. He said miles of two-inch perforated pipe will be drilled into the sides of the mountain to continuously drain water from trouble spots.

The highway should be open in 1975, four years behind schedule.

When the link is finished I-26 will be complete from Charleston, S.C. to Asheville, N.C. and will be the gentlest lift ever constructed from the flatlands of South Carolina to the Appalachian plateau.

Parish Picnic Held Sunday

Plan Change In Parking

Persons traveling between Fourth and Fifth Street from Holly Street Eastward to Maple may find things changed a bit come tomorrow morning.

According to Chief of Police Glenn Cannon, parking on most of these side streets between Fourth and Fifth will be changed from the East side to the West tonight.

According to Cannon, parking on those streets is alternated from one side to the other each year in order to give residents an equal break...or equal trouble.

The chief said parking on Holly Street and on Summit Street will not be changed, but indicated parking on the other streets from Holly to Maple will be changed during the night, from the East side to the West side.

Persons parking on the East side of the streets tomorrow will be in violation of the law, he explained.

Fire Losses Top $34,000

An estimated total of $34,100 in property value was lost to fires in Pitt County during the month of May.

Bobby Joyner, Pitt County Fire Marshal, in his monthly report, shows that only 14 alarms were reported during the month. Of this number, three were mutual aid assistance alarms, resulting in just 11 fires occurring during May.

There were four house fires, one building other than houses, one commercial, and two other types of fires, involving property valued at $749,000, with an additional property value of $306,000 exposed to the fires.

The Grifton Fire Department handled the most fires during May, responding to three alarms.

Five Executed By Death Squad

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Five persons were killed here during the weekend in an apparent resurgence of the death squad.

Police said all the victims died in typical death squad fashion. They were shot dozens of times, finished off with a bullet in the head, tied up and dumped on lonely roads.

Death squads are bands of off-duty policemen who execute suspected criminals in efforts to "clean up" crime. Following a much-delayed crackdown, policemen in several cities recently have been jailed for such activities.

Since they first appeared in 1958, death squads are said to have killed more than 1,500 persons.

Pepsi-Cola Begins To Eliminate Opposition

Pepsi-Cola began the countdown for the championship of the Babe Ruth League last night, eliminating nearly half of the league from a chance with a 7-5 victory over College View. In the other game, North Carolina National Bank took a 15-5 win over Home Builders.

The combination of Pepsi's win and the loss by Home Builders eliminated them and Planters from the race and cut the magic number for Carolina Dairy to one. College View and NCNB remain as the only others to have a chance to beat Pepsi.

In the opener, NCNB broke the game open in the third, scoring seven runs. Jeff Smith led off, reaching on an error. He stole second and Jimmy Radford walked. Kelly Heath also walked, loading the bases. David Middleton, attempting to sacrifice, reached when his ball was errored, scoring both Smith and Radford. Joel Clark followed with a triple, scoring both Heath and Middleton. A passed ball then let Clark score. Robert Bellesheim got it going again with a walk, and Doug Selby also walked. Smith singled and Jerome Ross reached on an error, scoring both Bellesheim and Selby for the 7-0 lead.

Home Builders came up with a run in the bottom of the inning. Lance Weatherington walked and took second on a wild pitch. Mark Conway reached on a third strike error and Wright Hooks singled in Weatherington.

The fourth saw three more NCNB runners cross the plate. Middleton singled and stole second. Clark walked and Bellesheim singled to load them up. Joey Cherry walked to force in Middleton, and Selby grounded out, scoring Clark. A wild pitch brought Bellesheim in to make it 10-1.

The Builders came up with three more in their half of the inning. Gary Allen walked and was wild pitched up a base. Carlton Walls also got a free ticket and advanced on another wild pitch. Billy Glidewell was safe on an error, scoring both Allen and Walls. He moved to third on an out and scored on an error.

The final Home Builders run came in the sixth. Thomas Bunch walked and moved up on a wild pitch. Mike Belton singled to drive him in.

NCNB picked up five more runs in the seventh to close out their scoring.

In the second game, College View grabbed the initial lead with a run in the first. Jimmy Averette walked and stole second, then scored on a hit by Jay Chener.

Pepsi came right back with three in their half of the frame, scoring three runs. David Dixon walked and stole second. Greg Lee walked, and passed ball advanced him and scored Dixon. Curtis Keys was hit by a pitch and Macon Moyer reached on an error on his grounder, loading the bases. Mike Brewington then doubled to score both Lee and Keys.

College View pushed back ahead in the second, scoring four runs. Ross Hawkins singled and Gerg Sasser got a hit. Jeff Aldridge singled, loading them up. Keith Jones walked, forcing in Hawkins and a walk to Averette brought in Sasser. Chener grounded out, scoring Aldridge for a 5-3 College View lead.

Pepsi cut that by one with a run in the bottom of the second. Dixon walked and Lee reached on a fielder's choice. They advanced on a wild pitch and Keys was safe on an error, scoring Dixon.

The third saw Pepsi tie it up with another run. Brewington singled and stole both second and third, scoring on an error.

Then, in the fifth, Pepsi pushed over the last two runs, getting the victory. Henry Baker walked and Billy Ellington singled. Both moved up on a wild pitch and a passed ball let Baker score. Dixon and Lee both walked to load them up, and Keys hit a sacrifice fly to score Ellington with the insurance run.

Would you like to have Willie Mays in center field, Cleon Jones in left, John Milner at first base, Bud Harrelson at shortstop and Jerry Grote behind the plate?

So would the New York Mets. The New Yorkers' incredible run of injuries continued Monday with their recent slide Monday night when Harrelson suffered a fractured bone in his left hand during a 5-0 loss to the Cincinnati Reds and became the latest candidate for the disabled list.

Jones and Grote are currently on the list while Milner and Mays are recent removals, although Mays has yet to see action since coming off.

It was the fifth consecutive defeat for Jon Matlack, 2-8. The Rookie of the Year in 1972 hasn't won since April 28. Nor has he escaped the injury bugaboo. He suffered a hairline skull fracture when hit by a line drive last month and missed a couple of starts.

Elsewhere in the National League, the San Francisco Giants whipped the Pittsburgh Pirates 7-2 and the Houston Astros blanked the Philadelphia Phillies 7-0.

In the only American League action, the Milwaukee Brewers edged the Oakland A's 2-0 and the Boston Red Sox pounded the Kansas City Royals 9-3.

Tito Fuentes and Garry Maddox drove in three runs apiece while Tom Bradley hurled the Giants past the Pirates, stretching their winning streak to five games and increasing their lead in the West Division to three games over Los Angeles.

Bradley, 5-2, blanked the Pirates until the bottom of the ninth when they scored on a triple by Dave Cash, an infielder out and Willie Stargell's 16th home run.

Dave Roberts fired a six-hitter and Jim Wynn hit his 12th home run as the Astros drubbed the Phillies and ended a losing streak at four games while extending Philadelphia's to seven.

Jim Colborn pitched a five-hitter and Bob Coluccio hit a homer to lead the Brewers over Ken Holtzman and the Oakland A's for their fourth straight win.

Carlton Fisk drove in four runs with a homer and bases-loaded walk to pace the Red Sox to a nationally televised victory over Kansas City.

Slump Is Continuing

ROME (AP) — Stan Smith's slump in the French Open last week continued through the first set of his $135,000 Italian Tennis Championship match with Australian Phil Dent before the top-seeded American star got back on the winning track.

Smith beat Dent 4-6, 6-3, 6-4 in a second round match after losing his service in the first game of the match. He bounced back with a service break in the fourth game to tie 2-2, but had his service broken again in the ninth which cost him the first set.

Smith overcame trouble in both the second and third sets. In the third set, the Pasadena, Calif., native rallied when behind 2-2 and then broke Dent's service in the ninth game before mastering his big serve in the 10th game to end the match.

Smith, seeded first in the French Open last week, lost to Tom Okker of the Netherlands. In women's singles play, Evonne Goolagong of Australia took a second-round victory over Lucia Bassi of Italy 6-1, 6-2.

Chinese Perform

SEATTLE (AP) — A gymnastics team from the People's Republic of China has finished a goodwill mission across the United States by receiving a standing ovation from more than 5,000 fans after a performance at Hec Edmundson Pavilion.

The exhibition Monday night, featuring China's top gymnasts and a group of Seattle-area performers, was capped by a musical conclusion as the Chinese sang and danced to the accompaniment of Chou Chia-sheng, the visitors' pianist.

The eight men and eight women began their tour last month in New York and visited three other U.S. cities before arriving in Seattle last Saturday.

"It was a vivid expression of deep friendship," said one of the Chinese coaches, Hsu Jen-chieh, through an interpreter. "We are also looking forward to gymnasts of the United States and other sportsmen to visit China."

The Chinese will remain in Seattle until Thursday, when they leave for Vancouver, B.C., and the final stop of their North American tour.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — George Foreman's first pay day as heavyweight champion of the world is scheduled Sept. 1 in Tokyo when he meets little-known Joe "King" Roman of Puerto Rico.

The undefeated 24-year-old boxer from nearby Hayward received $375,000 on Jan. 22 when he upset Joe Frazier with a second round knockout to claim the title. His next purse probably will be double that amount, his trainer and manager, Dick Sadler indicated Monday.

Sadler and Foreman will probably go to Japan next month to sign final contracts and settle the amount of the purse. Sponsors have put up $2 million, which includes money for a second title fight on the same program, but have given no breakdown of how it will be split.

Texas Set To Make 1st Draft

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball's talent scouts dipped into the free agent market today for the annual summer draft of graduating high school and college players.

The Texas Rangers were scheduled to make the first choice, and by the time the two days of drafting end, between 850 and 1,000 players were expected to be chosen.

The Rangers earned the first pick in the draft's regular phase by finishing last in the American League last season. Philadelphia, the National League's 1972 cellar team, had the No. 1 choice in the winter draft and selected infielder Alan Bannister, who is playing at Eugene of the Pacific Coast League. The Phillies own the No. 2 choice in today's regular draft.

In the secondary phase, covering players previously drafted but not signed, Oakland had the first choice. The order of selection in the secondary phase was determined by a pre-draft drawing among the 24 major league teams.

Even though it was designed primarily as a source for future talent, the summer draft has produced several instant big leaguers. There are 10 current major league players who were chosen in the last two June free agent selections.

Teams have been especially fortunate with No. 1 draft choices. In the last three years, Texas pitchers Steve Dunning and Pete Broberg and San Diego infielder Dave Roberts have all been No. 1 selections in either the regular or secondary draft rounds and moved directly into major league uniforms.

To Name New Head?

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—Southern Conference athletic directors and faculty chairmen are holding their annual summer gathering at Myrtle Beach amid speculation, a new conference commissioner will be named.

Lloyd Jordan's term as commissioner expires Dec. 31. He has held the post since 1960.

A three-man committee headed by conference president Dr. Francis W. Bonner of Furman University has been seeking a successor for months.

While no report from Bonner's committee was on the agenda, athletic directors and the faculty chairmen could meet jointly during the week to hear of its progress.

The athletic directors were to discuss scheduling matters and conclude business by midday Thursday.

Legion In Two Losses

Greenville's American Legion baseball team dropped a pair of games over the weekend.

Saturday night, they bowed to Wilmington's Post 10, 9-0, in a game played at Harrington Field. Then, on Sunday, they fell to Oxford, 5-1, in a road contest. Their next outing will be Saturday when they travel to Wilmington to met Post 10 in a doubleheader.

Details of the two games were not made available to The Daily Reflector.

A Practical Success Test

Norine thinks she is smarter than her mother! But Mamma scored far higher in practical understanding of people. So Norine, a major in college psychology, is not as deft at dealing with people as is Mamma! Measure yourself on the "Psychology Test" below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.
CASEX-526: Norine J., aged 20, is a college senior. "Dr. Crane," her mother began, "Norine is majoring in psychology at our state university."

"Alas, I had to drop out of high school in my junior year, for mother died, leaving 7 children and I was the oldest. "So I stayed home to help rear my younger brothers and sisters."

"As a result, I have always felt somewhat inferior to people with college educations. "Now, however, I have overcome much of that earlier inferiority complex. And it is largely due to your newspaper columns. "For Norine knows a lot of 5-syllable psychology terms and can impress people by talking over their heads.

"But she lacks what you call 'horse sense' or gumption."

"Recently, I sent for your newspaper booklet on 'Advertising Psychology.'"

"And she rated only 'Poor' on your 'Motivation Test' therein while I got a 'Superior' score."

A strong final round enabled a Washington area foursome to nose out three other teams in a photo-finish in the National Women's Team-of-Four Championships held in St. Louis in March. The winners were Terry Michaels, Washington, D.C. and Jo Morse, Silver Spring, Nancy Gruver, Ellicott City and Helen Utegaard, Bethesda, Maryland.

Patience and fortitude were essential ingredients for a successful defense against South's three no trump contract in today's hand—dealt in a qualifying round of this event.

West opened the six of spades, East put up the ace and returned the five. West played the king to capture dummy's queen and paused to assess her prospects. It was obvious from the fall of the cards in the suit, that South retained the ten-eight of spades; had East held either of those cards, it would have been proper to return

The payoff in life isn't based on how many college degrees you hold!

In fact, many clergyment with 7 years of college and seminary training still empty the pews by stodgy sermonizing.

Yet you could pick almost any member of Toastmaster's Clubs and he'd far excel those dry, essay sermonizers.

And such Toastmaster's Clubbers may not have even one year of college!

The practical test of you they do, they don't play the success while you are spending the game of marriage according to the rules, so they get a divorce. Earth's Classroom of God's Millions also flunk No. 3, for they are merely "consumers" of the freedoms and lush living standards made possible by the blood and sacrifice of our dedicated forefathers.

(1) Being financially self-sufficient via honest work, elbow grease and intelligent planning.

(2) Winning a mate and remaining happily married.

(3) Implanting idealism, patriotism and support of our "free enterprise" system via personal tutelage of your own children, or youngsters in the Scouts, Sunday Schools and Grammar Schools.

(4) "Planting roses where thistles grew before," as Abraham Lincoln said he hoped his biographers could say of him after his death.

Horace Mann, Father of our Public Schools, gave us a similar warning when he urged:

"Be ashamed to die until you've won some victory for humanity."

Just glance back over the 4-fold yardstick for success and you will be shocked to find that many college graduates, plus some with even a doctor's degree, fail on one or more points.

A lot of college graduates still rely on papa's checkbook and thus are a coddled type of "welfare" group, no financially self-sufficient.

Thousands of campus hippies, rioters and loafers thus fail at No. 1 above.

Others can't win a mate or, if

Survival To Be Science?

CHICAGO (AP) — A new science may be emerging, to be known as "The Science of survival."

The prediction was made by Richard I. Cheney, a consultant to the Glass Container Manufacturers Institute, in a recent talk accepting the glass industry's annual Phoenix Award for outstanding service. The new science, he said, "will draw on all disciplines of modern knowledge to preserve a meaningful existence for man on the planet Earth."

He predicted that scientists will find glass a key instrumentality in preserving the earthy environment and stretching the resources on which the future of people and the quality of life will depend.

Cheney explained that glass is made of raw materials that are in unlimited supply and its manufacture, use and disposal produce virtually no pollution.

LONDON (AP) — Britain had 5,375,000 foreign visitors in 1972, excluding citizens of the British Commonwealth and visitors from the Irish Republic.

A report from the Department of Trade and Industry and the British Tourist Authority said this was an increase of about 8 per cent over 1971. The number of visitors from the United States, at 1.6 million, showed an increase.

Parkland Funds Use Will Follow Studies

RALEIGH (AP) — Natural and Economic Resources Secretary James Harrington says $11.5 million appropriated by the 1973 General Assembly for state park land purchases will be spent on expanding existing parks and for developing new sites as recommended by a four-year-old study.

He told a news conference the funds are not primarily intended to carry out a new policy of his department to locate parks in North Carolina's urban regions.

The question of how the park money will be spent came up Monday at a joint news conference Harrington held with State Sen. William D. Staton, D-Staton, D-Lee, and Rep. Willis Whichard, D-Durham, who reviewed actions of the General Assembly on the environmental legislation front.

The major actions they listed included the parks money, the four-year extension of the state's Environmental Policy Act, giving the Board of Water and Air Resources power to establish and enforce water pollution control standards, floodway regulation, the creation of Sedimentation Control Commission and new septic tank regulation.

But they also pointed out that legislation for coastal zone management and state land use policy were not passed.

Staton and Whichard agreed that the coastal, mountain, and state land use bills will come up again next year. Meanwhile,

Worked On Nature Trail

FALKLAND — By constructing a bridge and locating a nature trail, students at Falkland School have become involved in the outdoor study of the environment.

The nature trail had provided the students with new ideas for future exploration and research, allowing them to study the phenomenon of crooked and diseased trees and tree rings.

"By observing and interpreting nature, these children are gaining essential learning skills and also an idea of how they relate to the natural world," said principal William Moore. "As they acquire knowledge and understanding about the environment they also develop some competence in evaluating alternatives for using and managing resources."

The woods used by the school is on loan from William Wooten. The Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service assisted in the development of the site.

A Free Press Protects Your Free Speech...

Judges are jailing reporters with increasing frequency, because they refuse to reveal news sources. The result can only be a drying up of these sources of information and impede your right to know what's happening in your government.

Free speech and a free press are guaranteed by the Constitution to the people generally — not to any individual or business.

Everyone also has the right to know what's being offered in the Marketplace. The right of choice in all goods and services keeps the system of competition working for everyone's progress.

Consequently, when our freedom of the press is restricted, your free speech is also restricted.

Your free speech depends on a free press.

Here's What Hugo Black

Justice of the U.S. Supreme Court said about the importance of a Free Press:

"In the First Amendment the founding fathers gave the press the protection it must have to fulfill its essential role in our democracy. The press was to serve the governed, not the governors. The government's power to censor the press was abolished so that the press would remain forever free to censure the government. The press was protected so that it could bare the secrets of government and inform the people."

Here's What John F. Kennedy

35th President of The United States said about the importance of a Free Press:

"It is never pleasant to read things that are not agreeable news, but I would say that it is an invaluable arm of the Presidency—to check really on what is going on in the administration. And more things came to my attention that cause me concern or give me information. So I think that . . . there is a terrific disadvantage not to have the abrasive quality of the press applied to you daily, to an administration, even though we never like it, and even though we wish they didn't write it and even though we disapprove, there isn't any doubt that we could not do the job at all in a free society without a very, very active press."

The next time you get mad at a news story, remember that a free press provides you with the information that keeps our country free.

CAROWINDS

17 SOUTH CHARLOTTE

The name is new,
but the things of long ago are still there.
Well, some things
are new, some are old,
but the magic is still there. A magic place, a magic place with magic in every corner.

A magic place.
An enchanting place where legends are every sounds in song and dance. An enchanting place where children and adults smile. And animals are every sounds in song and dance. A magic place with magic in every corner.

don't be misled.
Carowinds is today and tomorrow
too. A place that spans the centuries, blending the old and the new. A place of experience beyond compare.
Come to this place,
and you'll be part of the magic.
Carowinds is today and tomorrow
too.

Carowinds was really born many years ago—in the mind of a man named Pat Hall.

There are stories upon stories about the man and his rise to prominence from his childhood days on the farm.

Most are true. Some have the ring of legend about them.

But one stands out above the rest. It tells of a dream he nurtured through the years.

A man who always loved a party, Pat Hall had visions of a place where he could entertain on a much grander scale.

A place of fun where the proud heritage of his native land could be forever remembered.

Most men would still be dreaming, Pat Hall made his come true.

And this is why—only a short ride down the road from the farm where he was born—there is Carowinds.

Carowinds is a reality.

A $30 million reality that's taken three years to build.

It's a 73-acre oasis of excitement. Ready to open in March of 1973. The first family theme park ever built in two states. Just ten miles from Charlotte, right on the North Carolina-South Carolina state line.

Carowinds is the largest family theme park in five states. It was designed by Randall Duell and Associates of California. The firm that designed many major theme parks including Busch Gardens, Six Flags and Astroworld.

During the first year, over 1-1/2 million people will come to Carowinds.

The completed park will include more than 250,000 square feet of new structures. There'll be 2,500 new trees. 3,000,000 square feet of paving. And 10,000,000 gallons of water in man-made rivers and lakes.

There'll be 50 acres of camping ground. And 900 more acres of growing room adjacent to the park, which will be an office complex called Carolina Center.

From the old-time railroad depot near the main entrance, to the creaking, colorful pirate ship at the other end of the park, Carowinds has been built to authentically recreate the most exciting periods in Carolina history.

Beautifully landscaped "green areas" act as buffer zones between each section of the park. Somehow adding a touch of quiet and peaceful calm to the whirling, headlong excitement of the rides and attractions in each of the seven theme areas.

In other words, Carowinds is designed to show you the time of your life. And let you relax.

Both at the same time.

Hold onto your scalps.

You're in Indian territory. Right in the middle of an authentically reconstructed Catawba Indian village.

You're not a prisoner. But you'll be staying for a while. Especially once you get a taste of the canoe ride. An adventure you can tell your grandchildren about.

Stop by the trading post and do some shrewd dealing. Watch the ceremonial dances outside. And find hair-raising excitement on the witchdoctor ride.

It's good medicine.

Bear to starboard.

To the Carolina Coast, in the days of pirates, buccaneers and the Jolly Roger.

The cannonfire is heavy on the high seas, as you swashbuckle your way through the times of Bluebeard and Long John Silver.

Pirate ships, a suspension bridge, candle shops and a shooting gallery are just some of the adventures you'll sail into here.

Not to mention the lighthouse slide. And a "Shrimp House" restaurant overlooking the Flying Dutchman.

...time you know you're a real live settler and trappers

Pan for gold. Ride a thundering mine train through whipping turns and blinding straightaways. Ride "Melodia." An authentic narrow-gauge steam locomotive that circles the park.

This Frontier Outpost section of Carowinds features everything from a sheriff's office, to a real blacksmith shop. A leather shop, furniture maker—even a silversmith.

And right in the middle of it all stands an Elizabethan theatre.

Where travelling troubadours, folk groups, bluegrass jug bands and old-time fiddlers keep time to the music of early America.

ack to today.
 The Contemporary Carolinas section. Where sport car rides, rock music and a sleek monorail carry you headlong toward tomorrow. Ride the Kaleidoscope. Everything's possible here.

If you don't believe it, drop in on the magic show in this section. It's the most extravagant of its kind ever held in a family theme park.

Or anywhere else.

Next, you're in Queen's Colony. Showcasing the era of British rule in the Carolinas. Ride the Oaken Bucket, whirling in a bottomless tub.

Then swoosh through flumes of rushing water on the powder keg run. At last, plunging over a waterfall to escape the Redcoats.

Once you've made your getaway, stop and see the old time puppet show. Visit Carolina Heritage. And the little British shops, selling everything from ice cream to notions.

On to Country Crossroads. That's your next stop. For a taste of rural life in Carolina, just as it was—and still is. Complete with general store, covered bridge and farmhouse. Crops and all.

Here, you may find yourself on a real hayride. Or zooming down the chute of an old-fashioned tree slide.

You can stop and have some watermelon. Take a tractor ride. Watch a cane crusher in action. Visit the petting zoo. Or just sit under a tree and "join in" the music coming from the Gospel Sing Chapel atop the hill.

Better yet, you can stop by Harmony Hall where some of the finest musical productions you'll ever see are put on by the most talented young entertainers in these parts.

arowinds hosts and hostesses are pure, shining examples of courteous, clean-minded American youth.

In fact, the only thing neater than the hosts and hostesses is the park itself.

And great pride is taken in the quality of the merchandise sold in craft and specialty shops.

Special areas are set aside for picnics and private parties. And camping grounds adjoin the park.

All rides, shows and exhibits and attractions are included in the price of a Carowinds ticket.

You can ride all day, as often as you like. And enjoy the park without having to keep paying for it.

Only refreshments and souvenirs are extra. All at reasonable prices. Adults, $5.75; children 12 and under, $4.50. Mono-rail tours, 75¢.
