Kissinger, Le Duc Tho Okay Peace Plan

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho met today for the second in their latest round of talks on reinforcing the Vietnam peace agreement.

The two negotiators met in Gif sur Yvette, 20 miles southwest of Paris. Tho, host in the villa owned by the French Communist party, welcomed Kissinger and there were the usual smiles on both sides.

After a lengthy handshake, the North Vietnamese politburo member took Kissinger by the arm to lead him into the building.

There was no comment on the progress of the talks from either delegation. It was not immediately clear whether Kissinger and Tho hoped to sign their accord today.

The signature of the proposed accord by the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government was postponed Saturday and again Tuesday because of reported objections by the Saigon government to the draft.

Earlier in the day, Kissinger conferred for 45 minutes with Chinese Foreign Minister Chi Peng-fei at the residence of the Chinese ambassador to France.

PARIS (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger and Le Duc Tho of North Vietnam today initiated an agreement intended to tighten enforcement of the Vietnam peace agreement, Kissinger reported.

Kissinger, speaking to newsmen after a negotiating session with Tho, said a formal signing ceremony will be held later this afternoon.

The final communique, winding up a week-long round of negotiations, will be signed by the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Provisional Revolutionary Government of the Viet Cong.

South Vietnamese objections to the new accord had apparently delayed a final agreement. Kissinger had hoped to finish the negotiating and signing ceremony by last Saturday but had to put it off.

The four-party signing ceremony was scheduled at the International Conference Center, where the Vietnamese peace talks dragged on for four years before Kissinger and Tho in parallel secret talks agreed on last winter's cease-fire pact.

The United States and North Vietnam will have another separate signing after the four-party ceremony.

Today's sessions between Kissinger and Tho was the second since Kissinger arrived from Washington on Tuesday.

Act To Avoid Possible Wage-Freeze

New City Pay Plan Approved Tuesday Night

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

An ordinance to continue the merit pay plan for 275 city government employees; a resolution to approve funding of such pay; and a resolution providing for longevity pay arrangements for this year were all approved Tuesday night at a special call meeting of the Greenville City Council.

City Manager William Carstarphen, in presenting the proposed pay plan covered in the ordinance for merit pay, noted the plan has been in preparation for several months, with assistance given by staff members of the State Personnel

Office. The new pay plan approved is effective at 8:00 a.m. today, a change from the originally proposed effective date of June 28.

Under the new plan, entitled "Assignment of Classes to Salary Grades and Ranges — June 13, 1973," every position within the city government is individually classified by range and includes steps within ranges. For the first time too, a job description covers each position within the city government employee structure.

As an example, salary grade number six covers five individual class title jobs — Brick Mason I; Clerk-cashier; Foreman; Painter II; and Police Records Officer, with a salary scale ranging from a minimum of $5,378 to a maximum of $6,864. Within this salary grade (and within all salary grades) six pay steps are built in. For grade six, cited above, the basic salary for steps one through six will be (1) $5,378; (2) $5,647; (3) $5,929; (4) $6,228; (5) $6,537; and (6) $6,864.

The complete salary range, both in pay range and steps within each range, provides for a minimum step 1, pay range 1 salary of $4,214 to a maximum step 6, pay range 33 salary of $25,626.

Essentially, this system of six steps within a total of 33 pay ranges makes the pay system, as explained by Carstarphen, much more flexible. It is a system with built in expansion possibilities for promotion and awarding merit pay without the limitations of the old pay system.

Carstarphen emphasized that in the process of changing workers from old to new classifications, all workers would in effect be guaranteed a minimum raise of at least five percent. This assurance was a point council members asked for before taking action on adopting the new pay ordinance.

Another motivating factor in establishing a new pay scale, the city manager pointed out, is Greenville's "excessive" percentages relative to longevity pay.

"The current 15 percent for longevity after 30 years service for the City of Greenville is the highest in the state," Carstarphen said. "The highest in any other city is 7.5 per cent."

Carstarphen said the new pay plan will "serve to bring a reduction in this excessive amount to levels comparable to other North Carolina cities." Presently, no worker qualifies for the 15 percent. Six employees qualify for a 12.5 percent longevity rate.

He stressed, however, that the excess percentage in longevity did not mean that Greenville's basic pay scale was higher than other cities — that excess applies only to longevity. The new pay system, Carstarphen explained, is one designed to bring the pay scale into line with competitive salaries of other municipalities and with comparable local private industry, wage scales.

Overall, the adopted pay scale in actual percentage and dollar amounts (based on the original June 28 projected effective date) works out to approximately 7.13 per cent increase, for a total payroll increase of about $117,000. (The figure will be slightly higher due to the council's moving the effective date up to June 13).

The adoption of an added resolution, called for by Councilman Percy Cox, provides that longevity pay for the current year be based on the old scale beginning with the June 13 adoption date of the new pay plan.

City government finances are based on the fiscal year, July 1 through the following June 30. Longevity pay, however, is computed on a December 1 to November 30 calendar year. Adoption of this added resolution avoids penalizing personnel on the amounts of longevity they would have received under the old pay plan.

Mayor S. Eugene West noted that one reason the City Council was anxious to adopt the new plan at an early date was the possibility that the President

Rowan Deputies 'Sick'

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP)—Most of Rowan County's sheriff's deputies called in sick today to protest the terms of a pay raise spelled out in a meeting with the county commission Tuesday.

Sheriff John F. Stirewalt said 36 of the 40 deputies were out. He said four men came in to man the essential posts.

Stirewalt said the deputies asked for a 15 per cent pay raise, which he said would bring the scale up to that in surrounding counties and cities.

The deputies also requested nine extra men to form a narcotics squad and to organize a platoon system for scheduling shifts.

Stirewalt said the deputies asked him Saturday to arrange a meeting with the county commissioners. In the meeting Tuesday the commissioners announced a ten per cent raise and one extra deputy.

Eugene McCombs, chairman of the board of county commissioners, said two commissioners were appointed to meet with the deputies again Thursday. He said the deputies had given no indication they planned to stay off the job to protest the terms.

Flamethrower Mishap Fatal

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—Officials at Fort Bragg said today that an 82nd Airborne Division soldier burned last week by a flamethrower has died from burns received in the accident.

Pvt. Charles J. Colby, 21, of Woodstock, Vt., died Tuesday night at the Brooke Army Medical Center at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex. He was transferred there after the accident, June 6.

The Bard Knew

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin quoted Shakespeare Tuesday to define the circumstances in which former Nixon campaign aide Herbert L. Porter found himself after the Watergate burglary.

The chairman of the Senate Watergate committee noted during the hearing that Porter was persuaded to lie to investigators and at the trial of the original Watergate defendants out of loyalty to President Nixon.

Noting that Porter then had trouble getting a government job, Ervin quoted Cardinal Wolsey, cast out in his old age by King Henry VIII, who said:

"Had I but served my God with half the zeal I served my King, He would not in mine old age have left me naked to mine enemies."

Safety Measure

NEW DANGER SIGNS . . . The Motor Boat and Water Safety Division of the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission Tuesday installed two white and orange "DANGER" signs in the Tar River, just above the Greene Street bridge in Greenville, to mark submerged pilings hazardous to boats, according to Wildlife Protector Kay J. Dunn. The pilings are all that remains of a bridge that once spanned the river at that point. One of the "DANGER" bouys is located about 25 yards up river from the pilings while the other sign is 25 yards down-river from the obstructions. Dunn suggested boaters "slow down" then "just glide through the area" to avoid damage that could be caused by colliding with one of the old pilings. The Wildlife Protector said water in the area now is about three feet deep, with "just a few inches" of water covering the pilings. The river, he noted, "is in a good stage to tear a boat up now, at the level that it is right now." (Reflector Photo By Stuart Savage)

Utilities Commission Ups Pay Scales

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor
Utilities commissioners approved a new position classification pay plan, embracing salary adjustments with a minimum five percent pay increase for all its employees last night.

The increases were made effective June 13.

The commission acted in a resolution that the salary ranges as set out in the new pay plan were "consistent with the current cost-of-living, new minimum wage standards, private industry wages and competitive with municipalities operating systems similar to the commission's."

The resolution said the salary increases were estimated to cost approximately 7.2 percent of the current annual salary expenses. The Utilities director was also instructed to include approximately 2.5 per cent of current salaries in the 1973-74 budget to be used for merit salary increases during the fiscal year 1973-74.

The pay plan provides an annual salary range of $4,214 to $5,378 for laborers, watchmen and custodians; $4,646 to $5,929 for clerk-typists and receptionists and $5,378 to $6,864 for manhole masons, machine operators and electric mechanics.

Some other ranges include:

$6,226 to $7,946, secretary II, draftsman, lineman, third class: $7,567 to $9,650, pipewelder: $8,760 to $11,180, pipe foreman II, supervisor of billing, supervisor of collections: $9,198 to $11,739, lineman, first class: $10,648 to $13,590, supervisor of engineering; $11,739 to $14,983, supervisor of electric installation, distribution engineer, assistant business manager.

Director Charles Horne reported to the commissioners that he had conferred with representatives of Olson and Associates and it had been agreed that the firm would begin studies for a new sewage treatment plant north of the river. The action was authorized by the commission last month.

Horne also reported that negotiations are continuing concerning the amount of overbilling by North Carolina Natural Gas in January and it appeared the amount would be $55,000 to $60,000. Horne said the utilities has not paid the bill pending settlement of the matter.

Horne also reported that NCGC had told Greenville Utilities representatives that it would provide no more interruptable gas to industries on its system. Interruptable customers switch to another power source when natural gas supplies are not available.

Horne also reported that the State Board of Health had recommended against a water tie-in between Greenville and Winterville because of differences in the method of treating water. A tie-in for fire fighting water reserve purposes had been suggested by Winterville.

Commissioners approved a low bid of $90,375 by Hendrix-Barnhill for construction of a sewer line to Lake Ellsworth subdivision. The acceptance was made subject to the deposit of $50,000 by W. E. Dansey, the developer, representing 50 percent of the line cost.

Will Wed Nov. 14

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne, daughter of Queen Elizabeth II, will marry Lt. Mark Phillips in Westminster Abbey Nov. 14, Buckingham Palace announced today.

The marriage will be performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey.

The wedding day coincides with the 25th birthday of Anne's brother, Prince Charles, heir to the British throne.

Anne's wedding will also come six days before the 28th anniversary of the queen's marriage to Prince Philip. That wedding also took place at the ancient abbey, crowning place of British monarchs for almost 1,000 years.

The 22-year-old blonde princess became engaged at Easter, but the palace did not make the announcement until May 29.

Phillips, 24, is serving with the Queen's Dragoon Guards in West Germany, where the young couple have seen each other twice in the past two weeks.

President Believed To Announce New Program For Fighting Inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon plans to unveil in a nationally broadcast address tonight a major new program to fight the nation's worst outbreak of inflation in more than 20 years, sources said today.

The President plans to make his announcement at 8:30 p.m. EDT, it was said. There were reports that embassies abroad had been told that Nixon planned to go on the air. Also, a briefing of congressional leaders was set for this afternoon.

Details of the new plan, described variously by administration sources as a "major operation," a "firm but moderate approach," and "more than cosmetic this time," were hard to come by. Most sources expected a significant tightening of wage-price controls along with several other anti-inflation measures.

Although there was no confirmation, some officials said the possibility of price ceilings in selective industries where inflation has been a particular problem could not be ruled out. But an across-the-board freeze of wages and prices was considered unlikely.

The new program is expected to feature a get-tough enforcement policy of present, largely voluntary Phase 3 wage-price controls.

During several days of intensive debate with his economic advisers, Nixon has gone over almost every conceivable option to tackle the price surge that has swept the nation in the past few months, administration sources said. He met for 90 minutes with advisers Tuesday.

Until Tuesday, the congressional pressure for tougher controls was coming from Senate Democrats. But then Republican senators voted 22 to 8 at a luncheon meeting in favor of some kind of selective controls or a freeze.

Meanwhile, Republicans won a delay, at least until today, on a vote on Sen. William Proxmire's proposal to require a 90-day freeze on wages, prices, consumer interest rates, profits and rents.

Officials expected the President to move against recently posted price boosts in the steel and copper industries in an attempt to create more credibility for the price-control program.

Nixon also has seriously considered flexible export controls, sources said. The idea would be to try to increase the supplies of commodities at home and pull down prices, even though the world market prices may be higher.

Maurice Stans Relates Campaign Money Role

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans said today he was told six weeks ago that "a man named Tony" relayed $75,000 from President Nixon's political organization to the seven original Watergate defendants to provide for their legal fees.

Stans reviewed before the Senate's televised Watergate hearing the June 29, 1972, arrangement under which he said he gave the money to Herbert Kalmbach, then Nixon's personal attorney.

"I asked him why he wanted the money and he said it was on high authority for a White House project not related to the election and I would have to trust him," Stans said.

Stans, chief fund-raiser for the Nixon re-election campaign, said he gave the money to kalmbach without checking further.

He said that only this year did he learn the money was destined for the men arrested in the Watergate wiretapping burglary. Stans said that was six weeks ago, and the information came from an attorney for Kalmbach.

"In that conversation, Mr. Kalmbach's attorney told me that Mr. Kalmbach had raised the money for the purpose of giving it to a man named Tony," Stans said. "He did not give me his last name or any other details, but he said it was for the purpose of paying legal fees for the defendants in the Watergate case."

"I do not know who Tony was," Stans said. Stans returned to the witness stand to deny anew that he had any advance knowledge of Watergate.

Hes said he received a "pep talk" from Nixon in August of last year, two months after the break-in at Democratic offices, but that Nixon didn't discuss the matter with him beyond that.

Stans said Nixon said he was aware Stans was taking "considerable punishment in the press" for refusing to answer questions about the wiretapping, that he appreciated Stans's sacrifice, and hoped Stans "could continue to take it."

He said he had absolutely no information from any source to indicate the President knew about the wiretapping ahead of time, or had anything to do with the cover-up.

Stans faced further questioning about a document that indicates he set up a $1-million fund in the Commerce Department for "activities that will be beneficial to the President's re-election."

Chemist Cooks Goo In Her Home Kitchen

WHITE BEAR LAKE, Minn. (AP) — When Dolores Ethier puts on an apron, she not only takes over the kitchen but is apt to do her measuring and mixing in the breeze.

She's not cooking goodies for the family as a rule, but putting her talent to work as a consulting chemist with a nationwide clientele.

When interviewed, she was preparing a blue goo that smelled like raspberry jam. Actually, it's a spread to help remove wallpaper.

Mrs. Ethier, a slim, auburn-haired woman, lines up a row of jars on her kitchen table, along with blender, scale, pitchers and pans. If she lacks space, she'll concoct her mixtures or store chemicals elsewhere in her home in the White Bear Lake suburbs north of St. Paul.

She calls her understanding husband, George, "a great guy. Besides, I let him have the garage."

Mrs. Ethier worked 23 years as a chemist with a large St.

Paul firm, then went with a smaller company for four years.

"The biggest things I gave were not patents but findings that are still trade secrets," she said.

"For the past 2½ years she's been her own employer, and she says she has more than enough commissions from contacts around the nation.

She turns out water-soluble products but says she is careful of potential blowups.

"A lot of people have more gas on hand for boats and cars than I ever have around," she said.

Mrs. Ethier studied at the University of Minnesota and received a bachelor of science degree from St. Cloud State College.

Some Sort Of Peace Possible

Sunday it was reported that Henry Kissinger and Le Duc Tho had broken off talks in Paris efforts to improve on the Vietnam peace agreement.

This came just as observers expected the signing of a new agreement. No one knows exactly what happened but there had been reports that South Vietnam refused to sign any new agreement.

Then Monday a U.S. Senate staff report said the prospects were bleak for maintaining the cease-fire in Vietnam.

"If the United States thought that the leaders in Hanoi would abandon their lifelong objectives or that President Thieu would be willing to risk the tenuous security won for him by the United States, we may have miscalculated badly, the report stated.

Continued U.S. involvement in Southeast Asia was predicted and the report pointed out the United States is still involved in aid for Southeast Asia.

Neither of these developments seems very hopeful, but they do not preclude some sort of permanent peace arrangement in Southeast Asia. There were many who did not believe that peace would work in Korea following U.S. involvement, but the fighting there has been stopped for 20 years now.

The cease-fire arrangements are complicated in Vietnam and we supposed anyone viewing the situation without bias would have to be rather gloomy. Still this does not mean that a permanent peace is not possible in Southeast Asia and certainly does not mean that the United States should fail to do everything possible to maintain the peace thee.

We should continue our negotiations and we should also make it clear to President Thieu that he will have to abide by the agreements that are made in the negotiations. We owe it not only to ourselves, but to the people of Vietnam, who have suffered so long, to do everything possible to maintain and strengthen the peace agreement.

Foreign Policy Hits Dead End

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK WASHINGTON — The feeding and pampering of the Greek military dictatorship by the Nixon administration, while the exiled monarchy and the old parliamentary leadership were virtually ignored, have now brought a predictable result: weakened American influence at an internationally critical moment in the Greek "revolution."

The reason the present moment is so critical is the loss of authority within the Greek military by the one-time army colonel, George Papadopoulos, who led the military coup d'etat against the parliamentarians in April 1967.

That loss of authority has gravely compromised Greece's critical role as the southern anchor of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) and further undermined Greece's already shaky political position within the Western alliance.

True, the navy-led revolt against Papadopoulos's one-man dictatorship late last month was quickly aborted. But beneath its failure (resulting from the stupidity of the commander of a single defecting navy vessel) is a spreading disenchantment throughout the entire military, not just the navy.

One-half of the air force, for example, was prepared to act against Papadopoulos if the occasion proved right. The army, too, is shot through with anti-Papadopoulos disaffection.

Papadopoulos, whose peasant shrewdness has withstood all challenges thus far, seized the opportunity of his quick victory over the navy to dissolve the monarchy, thus cutting all ties between Greece and King Constantine. If the Nixon administration had given the unfortunate King Constantine the special standing and prestige that he deserved as exiled monarch, Papadopoulos might never have dared to attack him, thus preserving the King as one possible avenue of return to democratic rule.

Likewise, by treating the parliamentary leaders of pre-Papadopoulos Greece as political vagrants, the U.S. has lost immense prestige among moderate and conservative democratic elements who have managed to stay out of Papadopoulos's political jabs.

Most important, the Nixon administration has been blind to the hopes of Constantine Caramanlis, the conservative leader now in exile in Paris (who served as elected prime minister from 1955 to 1963). When Caramanlis, in his major statement of April 22, formally proposed the return of the King to Athens, to serve as focal point for restoring parliamentary government, the Nixon administration blew its chance to give him a powerful assist. Instead, the U.S. did and said nothing.

Naturally, then, Papadopoulos felt secure, following the aborted navy mutiny, in the ruthless way he has dealt with these two conservative pillars of potential opposition: the King and the politicians. To him, the Nixon administration has been looking the other way in a manner calculated to help himself.

In the new and most dangerous phase of Papadopoulos's dictatorship that lies just ahead, the U.S. is still perceived as his potent champion. Holland, Norway, Italy and other NATO countries, on the other hand, are prepared to punish Papadopoulos (Holland wishing to kick Greece out of NATO).

Administration diplomats are far more concerned about the gravity of military dissidence against the regime than they are saying publicly. At a closed-door, no-transcript session of a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee last week, for example, deputy assistant secretary of State Rogert Davies admitted that Papadopoulos faces his greatest threat right now.

Likewise, U.S. NATO officials are trying to persuade Holland, Norway and other enemies of the dictatorship not to raise ugly questions about Greece's future in NATO at the NATO meeting this month in Copenhagen.

Worse yet, the U.S. is now more closely identified than ever with Papadopoulos. It is cursed and vilified by the center and right political traditionalists who have been denied all aid from Washington. It has no new policy to try, not even the hint of one. As of today, the Nixon administration has reached a dead end in its shortsighted dalliance with Greek dictatorship, and its chickens are coming home to roost.

Strength For Today

A NEW WORD Robert Browning says in one of his poems, "How soon a smile of God can change the world."

People try everything in the world as a way out of their difficulties before they try religion. The endless cults and "isms" which now flourish bespeak the conflict with which the souls of the multitudes are torn. Many people seek escape in pleasure. Others stay busy all the time in an effort to keep despair at a distance.

God will indeed smile on us, but we must look inward in order to see that smile. Only the inner things of the heart really matter at the long last, and only God can make the heart right and keep it so. — Earl Douglas

Some Want To 'Get You'

WASHINGTON — The only way to understand the issue of national security which Richard Nixon recently raised as his reason for employing his own super spies is to put yourself in his place.

Pretend for a moment that you are President of the United States. Despite all your dreams and hopes for this country there are still people "out there" who are trying to "get" you. They could be students, blacks, congressmen, senators, newspapermen, labor leaders or just misguided souls who are trying to destroy the American way of life.

It is essential, if you are to be elected for a second term, to find out who your enemies are and what they're up to.

Unfortunately, the Constitution of the United States with its archaic Bill of Rights does not provide the President with the weapons he needs to find out who is trying to keep him from being re-elected. Yet as President of the United States, it is your duty to find out if there is a conspiracy to keep you from serving four more years and to discover who is behind it. If some other political party took over the government, God knows what would happen to the country we all know and love.

So you do what any strong leader would do. You set up a unit in the White House to devote itself full time to finding out who the traitors are.

The group would involve itself in wiretapping, bugging, reading mail and breaking and entering the offices and homes of those people who are seeking to take away your rightful place in history. It may be against the law, but as President you have to deal with realities.

At first you authorize the CIA, FBI, Secret Service, National Security Agency and Justice Department to take over this illegal work. But when J. Edgar Hoover refuses to go along with the plan, you become angry and frustrated.

Here you are President of 200 million people, architect of a generation of peace, leader of the richest, most well-fed country that has ever walked the face of the earth and they won't even let you do a little bugging and burglary on the side.

So you say "Nuts to Hoover. I'll hire my own plumbers to do the job."

You tell your staff to set it up, but keep your name out of it. You also instruct them not to tell you what they're doing in case the plan goes awry. But at the same time you want to know the names of those who are out to get you.

Once the plumbers go into operation you discover your wildest fears about national (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Space Is Useful

(Jacksonville Daily News)

If they had planned it that way, space agency officials could not have come up with a drama better calculated to rekindle popular interest in, if not enthusiastic support for, the country's ongoing space program.

Fortunately no human lives were jeopardized by the trouble the Skylab ran into a mere 63 seconds after its launch — loss of a micrometeoroid shield and damage to the laboratory's main solar power arrays, with its consequent overheating in orbit — but a nationwide groan went up at the prospect of the $2-billion-venture going down the drain.

It is a tribute to the flexibility and skill of NASA engineers that so much of the original program has been salvaged.

It now appears that Skylab's first occupants, astronauts Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz, will be able to complete their scheduled 28 days in orbit and accomplish the bulk of the scientific, technical and biomedical experiments that had been planned for them. If all continues to go well with them, two more three-man crews will be sent up to Skylab later this year, each for 56-day stays.

Skylab is of a fundamentally different nature from the tremendously more expensive Apollo moon exploration program. It is the first man-in-space effort whose primary purpose is of an applications nature—the acquisition of knowledge that will be of practical and direct benefit to man-on-earth.

For example, a number of the experiments deal with the remote sensing of earth resources like crops, water, mineral deposits, sea life. In a world of expanding population and shrinking resources, the knowledge gained by Skylab could be of incalculable importance in the future.

Skylab has already proved that man can function in space, even under the most adverse circumstances. If it also shows that astronauts do not suffer untoward physiological effects after prolonged periods of weightlessness of as much as two months, it will have proved that man belongs in space as well.

Watergate Impact Hits GOP

PRINCETON, N.J. — The impact of Watergate on party strength comes to light in a Gallup Poll designed to measure the political appeal of the two major parties in the coming congressional races of 1974.

Results show that Watergate is having an adverse effect on GOP fortunes and, if the next national election were being held at this time, Republican loss of House seats would go far beyond the normal loss that an administration suffers in off-year elections.

The present standing of the two major parties is revealed in the following figures which represent the likely division of the total popular vote cast for all 435 members of the House if the election were being held at this time:

Democrats	55%
Republicans	35
Undecided	10

After allocating the undecided vote on an equal basis to both major parties, the current vote is as follows:

1972 ELECTION TODAY CHANGE
Republicans	47	40 -7
Democrats	53	60 +7

While the American electorate in 1972 was giving Richard Nixon one of the greatest majorities a President has received in this century, the Democrats succeeded in electing a sizable majority of members of the House. Interestingly, in nations with a parliamentary form of government this situation would be impossible, because the majority party in the legislative branch chooses the nation's leader.

The division of seats in the House—all of whose members come up for election every two years—as a result of the 1972 election was:

Democrats	255
Republicans	179
Independent	1

Percentages of the popular vote cannot be translated directly into seats, but the division of the popular vote in the present survey indicates a House division resembling that of 1964 when the Democrats won 57 per cent of the popular vote to 43 per cent for the Republicans and carried 295 seats to the GOP's 140.

It should be pointed out, however, the party occupying the White House normally loses seats in an off-year election, and this loss, during the last two decades, has averaged 29 seats.

Only once in this century, 1934, has the administration in office gained seats in the off-year races for the House.

Results are based on personal interviews with 2,356 registered voters in the periods April 6-9 and May 4-7.

Other survey findings indicate further evidence of the difficulties facing the Republican party.

1. The Democratic party currently has a wide lead over the (Continued On Page 5)

Republican party, 57 to 43 per cent, as the party voters see as better able to deal with the nation's top problems. This barometer has proved to reflect political sentiment accurately in congressional elections going back to 1952.

2. Three persons in ten in a recent survey said that because of the Watergate affair they are less likely to vote for a Republican candidate in the midterm congressional elections in 1974. Among Republicans the figure is 13 per cent, while among independents—a crucial group for the GOP in many elections—the percentage is 27 per cent.

3. Despite Nixon's landslide victory last November and the Vietnam peace settlement in late January, the Republican party has failed to make gains in terms of party affiliation. The GOP continues to be the minority party in American politics, as it has been for more than three decades. The latest surveys show 27 per cent of citizens, 18 and over, describing themselves as Republicans, compared to 42 per cent who call themselves Democrats and 31 per cent who classify themselves as independents.

You have no choice but to get the plumbers to step up their activities.

Everything is going swell, but then through rank stupidity which you have nothing to do with, some of your plumbers are caught at the Watergate. Now you have a real problem. You can either reveal to the nation why you set up the plumbers unit in the first place, or you can tell your staff to keep the White House out of it.

For national security reasons you choose the latter, hoping for the good of the country Watergate will go away. But because of a prying judge and an irresponsible press the story come out. It really gets you mad. With new revelations coming out every day you are faced with three choices: A) Resign; B) Wait for impeachment; C) Tough it out.

Forty rising seniors from the five high schools in Pitt County will be involved in an indepth study of vocational education at Pitt Technical Institute during the next four weeks.

A continuation of a similar project conducted last year, the research project aims to determine the changes that occur in attitudes and view of high school students regarding vocation education after exposure to the program.

Each student will be involved in pre-tests and post-tests to determine attitude changes. The compiled data will be shared with all educational agencies. Beginning Tuesday, the week's activities will consist of speakers, films, field trips, and Pitt Tech curriculum personnel. The students will select, on Thursday, two curriculums for indepth study for the last three weeks.

Speakers scheduled for the week include Dr. Charles Holloman, vice-president of the N.C. Department of Community Colleges; Bob Martin, Pitt County Commissioner; Jack Edwards, assistant superintendent, Pitt County Schools; Fuller Molsinger, Union Carbide; and Senator Vernon White. Pitt Tech department heads will also present an overview of their respective programs.

High schools represented by the students are D.H. Conley, Ayden-Grifton, Farmville Central, North Pitt, and J.H. Rose.

Holshouser Seeks Best Approaches For Poverty

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser says he wants the state to find "the best approaches possible" for dealing with poverty in North Carolina and is requesting $661,000 in federal funds to finance the project.

"Poverty is a serious problem in North Carolina," Holshouser said Tuesday as he outlined plans for a major, three-part operation.

A Governor's Management Task Force on Human Progress will seek the best approaches to the poverty problem. Another part of the plan will be a two-year demonstration project in Robeson County as a "test tube" for trying out new programs.

The U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity is being asked to provide $281,000 to finance the operations of the Task Force, $300,000 to implement the Robeson project and $80,000 for a one-year Special Technical Assistance Program.

Holshouser said Robeson County was chosen because of its unusual racial composition of whites, blacks and Indians in near-equal proportions; its high level of poverty; and the initiative taken by leaders of all three races to seek a concerted attack on poverty in the county.

The Task Force, which will operate one year, will study and monitor what all agencies of state government and other organizations are doing and could do to help people escape poverty, Holshouser said.

"We are committed to an orderly and deliberate approach to alleviating poverty," he added.

The governor said, "There is much uncertainty in Washington currently over the future of anti-poverty efforts. But it is clear that the trend is toward some form of New Federalism.

"This decentralization of authority to state and local governments will mean that the states will have increased power and responsibility for making the kinds of decisions that have been left to the Congress and the President."

Three Cars In Tuesday Wreck

An estimated $1,000 damage resulted yesterday when three cars collided about 9:30 a.m. on Fifth Street 10 feet East of the Holly Street intersection.

Police identified the drivers involved as Donald Cecil McLane II, 20 of 1607 Oaklawn Ave.; J.Z. Garris, 45 of 1909 East Ninth St.; and Danny Arthur Harrington, 16 of 1603 Brownlea Dr.

Police, who made no charges, set damage at $250 each to the McLane and Harrington cars and estimated damage to the Garris car at $500.

No injuries were reported.

A Complaint?

RALEIGH (AP) — A former official of the Coastal Plains Regional Commission has charged that North Carolina is getting more federal money from the federal agency now that the state has a Republican governor than it did when the governor was a Democrat.

The charge came from Dr. Leigh H. Hammond, an assistant vice chancellor of North Carolina State University who served as a field director of the commission under former Gov. Bob Scott.

Hammond said that under Scott "We suffered ridiculous delays" from the federal agency but that "the projects have moved through much faster" since the new Republican state administration came in.

However, the commission's Republican co-chairman, Fred G. Steele, denied politics had anything to do with the speed of the commission's actions.

One reason, he said, is that Republicans are turning in their applications much faster than the Democrats.

Set Transcendental Meditation Talks

Ken and Christine Leavitt will give introductory lectures on Transcendental Meditation tonight and tomorrow at 8:00 p.m. in the Biology building, room 102, at ECU.

The Chapel Hill couple have been active in teaching TM throughout eastern N. C. After studying for eight months with Marharishi Mahesh Yogi in Europe last year, they are trained and qualified to teach TM.

Neither a religion nor a philosophy, Transcendental Meditation is an "effortless natural technique to provide deep rest and relaxation to the mind and body while unfolding the full value of individual creativity."

From a beginning of 221 meditators in 1965, there are now some 250,000 persons meditating across the country. Much of its early growth occurred on college campuses; however, many businessmen have recently adopted TM as a way of releasing stress and tension.

Miss Robbins, of Travers City, Mich., won the preliminary talent competition by singing "My Hero" from "The Chocolate Soldier" by Richard Strauss. Miss Robbins, 5-5 with blue eyes and brown hair, is a student at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

Preliminary competition also was held in evening gowns, but the results of the judging won't be made public until Saturday night when the televised finals are held beginning at 8:30 p.m.

The 62 contestants for the title were broken into four groups for preliminary judging which continues through Friday night. The winner goes on to the Miss America Pageant at Atlantic City, N.J., in early September.

Helms Is Told Leaf Farmers Will Get Fuel

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., says Nixon administration officials have assured him that tobacco farmers will be given top priority, along with other farm producers, in any allocation of gasoline and other fuels.

There had been discussion that tobacco, since it is not a food, should not receive the same fuel allocation priority that food producing farmers should get for harvesting and processing.

Helms said in a statement Tuesday that he enlisted the help of Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz in the matter and that they contacted William Simon, chairman of the Nixon administration's Oil Policy Committee.

Helms said Simon assured him and Butz that tobacco farmers would get top priority in any fuel allocation plan.

Pitt Red Cross Meets Tonight

More Young Men Fail To Register For Draft

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the draft is ending, registering with Selective Service still is required for 18-year-olds but an increasing number are failing to sign up.

Just how many men are not registering was not known by Selective Service Director Byron V. Pepitone. But, he said, "we know it's higher than last year." Then the nationwide average was put at between 9 and 12 per cent, and was as high as 20 per cent in Chicago.

An Associated Press spot check of state draft directors showed that for this year the percentages of nonregistrants ranged from a reported zero in Minnesota to 30 per cent in Illinois. In Kentucky, 6 per cent of the eligible young men were reported not having registered, and North Carolina's figure was put at 25 to 30 per cent.

Pepitone said the failure to register stems mainly from the mistaken belief that the draft law expires June 30. But the only portion of the law expiring is one sentence that gives the president the authority to draft men.

The law setting up the draft machinery remains on the books and requires eligible young men to continue to register.

"Most of the 18-year-olds are saying they thought the draft was over so they didn't have to register," said the Illinois state draft director, Capt. Thomas Hornada. "Some say they thought that, when they registered to vote, they automatically registered for the draft at the same time. We're getting all kinds of crazy ideas."

The most widespread failure to register was found in the West and New England, with the best compliance in the Midwest, despite Illinois. There was more neglect in urban than in rural areas, Pepitone said.

"It's unfortunate the men are not registering," because they are violating the law, he told a reporter.

In an effort to reverse the figures, his headquarters is gearing up a nationwide publicity campaign, expected to start next month. Pepitone plans to use such devices as posters in schools and radio and TV spots.

Also, Selective Service is making it easier to register by allowing the young men to sign up with such people as barbers, teachers and neighborhood businessmen, appointed as unpaid registrars. Others, including ministers and police of-

Miller Decries Books Of Today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Author Henry Miller made a rare public appearance at the national booksellers' convention here and remarked, "I'm telling people they should read less and less."

Miller said books published today do not measure up to those of a few years ago, and he predicted that within 100 years books will be completely displaced by such things as television and movies.

Despite Miller's contentions, the president of the American Booksellers Association said Americans are reading more and more.

Miller, pioneering author of erotic books such as "The Tropic of Cancer" and "Sexus," is one of a number of authors in attendance this week at the booksellers association's annual convention. Others include Norman Mailer, Garson Kanin, Ray Bradbury, Jacqueline Susann, Duke Ellington and Lillian Gish.

A bit deaf but otherwise alert and provocative at 81, Miller told a news conference Tuesday what the booksellers wanted least to hear:

"I don't see any books existing in 100 years, maybe sooner. It seems to me that we are going to be able to acquire all the information we need through other media.

"I think the taste for reading has diminished a great deal. There are more books being published, but less that mean anything. Today's books don't seem to carry the weight of those of 25 years ago. The cinema and television have taken over the public's attention.

Claude R. Moore Jr., Cubmaster for Cub Pack 200 sponsored by the Moose Lodge, announced that a district wide "Cub Scout Summer Olympics" will be held in Greenville on June 23.

The event, hosted by Pack 200, will be conducted from 1-4 p.m. at Eastern Elementary School on Cedar Lane, Moore pointed out. The Summer Olympics are sponsored by the East Carolina Council, Boy Scouts of America.

Moore, urging all Cubs in Pitt County and their families to attend the activities, said that Cubs must register with the registrar at the Olympics to be eligible for events.

Competitive events include the 100-yard walk, and obstacle course. The registration fee for all Cubs participating will be 50 cents each to cover trophies and other expenses, Moore said. Trophies and medals will be presented to first, second, and third place winners in each event.

Cubs participating in the Olympics have a choice of wearing shorts and t-shirts or the Cub uniform. All must register with the appointed registrar, Owen Kingsberry, at the Olympics. Moore suggested that all leaders have each choose two or three events to participate in and train for these events only.

The Cubmaster explained that during the competition, there will be no separation of Cubs and Webelos as all Cubs compete together for trophies.

All Cubmasters should notify Ray Moore by June 15 to give the number of Cubs expected to participate from each pack.

Small Bronzes Feature Show

A MAN LOOKS AT A WOMAN. . . In this small bronze from the Carolyn Charles show at The Mushroom, the artists says she has "tried to express the impression of a male looking at a sensuous female." (Reflector Staff Photo)

"This series arose from my becoming interested in the human form," Carolyn Charles said about half a dozen small bronzes in her senior thesis show on view this week at The Mushroom Gallery in the Georgetown Shopping Center.

"In this group I've been influenced by Picasso's drawings of the 1930's," Carolyn added. "Something about them excited me, and I began making sketches and from the sketches I cast these pieces in the lost wax process."

Like Picasso's drawings, the small bronzes combine angular and rounded surfaces. Areas are scooped out in some, giving hollows that catch and hold deep masses of shadow. In three of the small sculptures, Carolyn has balanced the figures on one leg. "This is for visual effects," she explained, "for the type of balance I wanted to create."

In this study," Carolyn indicated a standing male and a seated female figure, "I tried to express the impression of a male looking at a sensuous female."

In her senior thesis show, East Carolina University art student Carolyn also has several sculptures of cut and welded plate steel, with areas of open space. "In these, I attempted to give a spatial effect, one of

Will Investigate Some Schools For Retarded

RALEIGH (AP) — The U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare plans to investigate some North Carolina school systems to determine why there is a disproportionate number of minority group students in classes for retarded children.

This was reported Tuesday by Dr. Gary Hoover, a state department consultant in school psychology. He told a meeting of school guidance directors HEW is especially interested in whether achievement tests used to detect retarded children are racially biased against minority groups.

HEW planned to hold a hearing in Washington today with officials from the Duplin County schools and the state Department of Public Instruction to investigate alleged segregation in Duplin's special education classes for the retarded.

Hunt Says N.C. Schools Will Be Closely Watched

ASHEVILLE (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt says the people of North Carolina will be watching the public schools and classrooms "to see if the improvements really occur" under the appropriations approved by the 1973 General Assembly.

"It took a lot of courage for the General Assembly to provide the large increases that it did for improved public education, especially in the face of demands for tax repeals," Hunt said Tuesday.

He spoke at a meeting of the Asheville-Buncombe County Citizens Committee for Better Schools.

Hunt challenged "every teacher, principal, and local school board to show the taxpayers of our state that the legislature acted wisely and to prove it in every classroom in North Carolina. The eyes of North Carolina are literally on them today."

Pembroke Nips Bucs In Tenth By 2-1

By WOODY PEELE
 Reflector Sports Editor
 Pembroke State University got out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the 10th inning to preserve a 2-1 victory and move out of the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League cellar last night.

The loss dumped the Pirates into the basement with a 1-4 record, while Pembroke climbed up above them with a 1-2 mark.

Twice the Pirates were victims of odd innings on the way to the loss. In one other frame, they led off with two hits, but sent only three men to the plate in the entire inning.

Russ Smith was tagged with the loss, giving up nine hits in the 10 innings. He walked only one and struck out seven along the way.

Randy Ledford got the victory, going only two innings after coming in the eighth for starter

David Rudd. And Lefford, after knocking in the winning run in the 10th, needed help himself as Ronnie Rudd came on to get the last three outs.

The Bucs, who were playing their second home game, also had their other home stand go an extra frame, and they lost that one too.

Pembroke got off a threat in the first inning, but the Bucs' alert fielding kept them from scoring. Paul Dunlap led off with a walk, the only one off Smith, and Rick Rickman singled through the middle, moving Dunlap all the way to third. Dave Callahan then grounded back to Carl Summerell at second, who looked Dunlap back, then initiated a double play putting two out. The next batter grounded out to end the inning.

But Pembroke came up with a run to take the lead in the second. That came on a one-out home run to deep left center, some 375 feet from home off the bat of Fred McDaniel, giving the Braves a temporary 1-0 lead.

East Carolina, after threatening in the first two innings, scored the tying run in the third. Jimmy Paige had reached on a bunt single in the first, and been wild pitched to second, only to die there. Summerell led off the second with a walk and moved up on a long fly out but also didn't advance.

Smith led off the third with a single to center, and Jack Elkins came on as a courtesy runner for him. Ron Leggett singled to right, moving Elkins to third, and Paige hit a sacrifice fly to center, bringing in the runner with the tying tally. Leggett advanced to second on the throw-in, and then took third on another long fly, but the Bucs couldn't get him in.

Pembroke then set the Bucs down in order until the eighth inning, including the seventh, when the Pirates got their first two men on base. Summerell led off with a single and Bobby Harrison followed with a hit. With Rick McMahon batting, the ball got away from the catcher, and Summerell raced to third. Mike Johnson, the Braves' catcher, found the ball, however, and fired to third, getting Summerell in a controversial play. But despite arguments, the out held. McMahon then hit into a double play, ending the Pirate hopes of that frame.

In the eighth, Danny Car-enter led off with a walk and Smith sacrificed him up. With two away, Paige got an intentional walk, but that ended it as a fly out cut the Bucs down again.

Pembroke, meanwhile, had not had too much success against Smith, and the Bucs. Although they put men on, three double plays during the game, kept the bases fairly free.

In the fifth, Johnson reached on an infield single and moved up on an error on the play, then moved to third on an out, but didn't score.

In the sixth, Callahan and Wayne Pyrtle both got two out singles, but again the Pirates retired them safely.

But in the 10th, Pembroke pushed over the go-ahead run. Johnson singled with one away, and Fred Beasley came on to run for him. With two down, Ledford laced a ball up the alley in right center, easily scoring Beasley scoring Beasley for the 2-1 lead.

East Carolina then tried to struggle back. McMahon led off the bottom of the 10th with a walk and Carpenter, attempting to sacrifice, reached on an error. Smith also walked, loading the bases with none out. But a popout, a controversial strikeout, which saw what appeared to be a pitchout called a strike, and another popout got the Braves out of the jam and gave them their first win of the season.

East Carolina travels to North Carolina on Thursday, goes to

Ali: Keep Mouth Shut

By JACK STEVENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Former world heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali, voicing determination and remorse, says he'll keep his mouth shut when he fights Ken Norton in their rematch, a guaranteed big money maker.

"If he does keep his mouth shut, I'll knock his whole head off," solemnly promised the 28-year-old Norton, who broke Ali's jaw when they first fought last March 31 and won a 12-round split decision. It changed the economic status of his life, and he'll be going another scheduled 12 against Ali at the Forum on Sept. 10.

Promoter Don Fraser envisions a California record gate of $700,000 at the indoor arena. And Bob Arum, president of Top Rank, Inc., of New York, expects more than a million to watch the international closed circuit telecast.

Ali, now 31, used a new line of talk, criticizing himself, at Tuesday's official signing ceremony for the fight.

"This may come as a shock to you, but I've never really trained for none of the fights that you've seen. I've never actually stopped doing many of the things that a fighter is not supposed to do.

"I finally caught up with me. I have to say to Mr. Norton that he put up a great fight. But like I told Joe Frazier once, 'You have to beat me twice. So what I'm saying to Mr. Norton, and I'm not making any excuses, but he has got to whip me twice before he is recognized.'"

So far, Norton has been recognized enough to be guaranteed $200,000 for the rematch against 30 per cent of the net proceeds. He collected $50,000 for the first fight, and before that $8,000 was his largest purse.

Ali gets a $275,000 guarantee, but another defeat would severely damage his career that started in 1960 and brought him the world championship in 1964 when he stopped Sonny Liston.

Ladies Leader Wins Another

The Little Mint continued to roll along in the Ladies Softball League last night, downing Greenville Nursing, Beltone and Piggly Wiggly also picked up victories.

In the opener, Beltone nipped Dixie Sales, 9-7. Beltone pushed over six in the first inning, but Dixie Sales came back with three in their half of the frame. Then, in the second, Beltone scored three more to take a 9-3 lead. Vickie Davenport reached on a fielder's choice and Debra Pfeil doubled. Evelyn Jenkins also doubled and scored on a hit by Julie Gurganus with the third run of the frame. Dixie Sales came up with four more in the fourth as Beth Harrington homered, but couldn't catch up.

Leading Little Mint had little trouble with Greenville Nursing, rolling to a 39-1 victory. The Nurses got one in the first, but Little Mint came back with five in their half of the frame. Bobbie Jones led off with a homer and Connie Pearce and J.J. Wainwright both singled. Linda Tripp also homered. Wink Phillips singled and scored on a hit by Laura Kilpatrick for 5-1 lead.

Little Mint added four in the second, four more in the third, then exploded for 26 runs in the fourth inning, including homers by Jones, Tripp and Doris Garrish.

In the final contest, Piggly Wiggly beat Azalea Mobile Homes, 8-1. They got all they needed with three in the first. Faye Nichols reached on a fielder's choice and Linda Fowler tripled. Peggy Rogerson singled and scored when Tillie Mae Smith reached on an error.

Piggly Wiggly scored three more in the second and two in the fourth while Azalea's only run came in the seventh.

New Problems In Drug Probe

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League, which has had to contend with four of its players being arrested for drug possession, is facing a new crisis: charges by narcotics agents that at least four stars are dealing heavily in drugs.

The NFL denied any knowledge of Tuesday's reports that several players are under surveillance for trafficking in drugs, but said it is "ready and willing to cooperate" in uncovering such activities.

A New York Times story said that, according to federal, state and local narcotics agents, two teammates are believed to be dealing in a multimillion-dollar cocaine operation, another player is suspected of having helped finance a cocaine dealer's operation and the fourth player, reportedly a heavy smoker of hashish, is believed to be involved with large amounts of it. None of the four was named.

In the past two years, there have been cases of drugs involving Lance Rentzel, Don Parish, Duane Thomas and, most recently, John Reaves. And a suit against the San Diego Chargers filed by former defensive lineman Houston Ridge, who claimed drugs provided by the team wrecked his career, resulted in reports of widespread drug abuse.

The NFL insists its security program, headed by former FBI agent Jack Danahy, has been used as a model by other professional leagues. "We spend upwards of $300,000 a year on the program, and that amounts to one of our largest expenditures," the league spokesman said.

A review of the NFL program is expected later this month at the league's annual owners meeting, perhaps prompted in part by a May 11 statement by Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., who spoke with more than 100 coaches, players, trainers and team physicians, then called for greater self-regulation by pro sports.

Staggers, chairman of the House Commerce Committee and its investigation subcommittee, reiterated his statement Tuesday.

"I debated whether to call hearings and bring the athletes up here. But I didn't see the purpose of hearings if we get the problem solved another way."

He said Rozelle, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn and National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy promised they would take action.

"They know what the situation is. They gave me their word in good faith and I expect good faith from all concerned."

Staggers said, though, his committee is keeping an eye on their activities and would hold hearings if they don't take the necessary action.

Howard's Homer Palmer Hopes To Win Spoils 15th Bid In His Home Country

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer
Wilbur Wood says he's out of his groove; Frank Howard just hopes he's finally out of the outhouse.

Howard got hold of a Wood knuckleball in the eighth inning Tuesday night and deposited it 20 rows deep in the upper left field stands for a two-run homer that gave the Detroit Tigers a 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox—and spoiled Wood's try for victory No. 15.

"It was a good pitch, a knuckler that broke fairly well," said Wood, now 14-6. "He just hit it."

"Every time I get a hit I ask myself, 'Is this it? Am I breaking out of my slump?'" said Howard, who is batting just .197. The homer was his first of the season.

"Then," he added, "it seems like the next day I'm back in the outhouse."

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore beat Kansas City 6-4, Cleveland edged Texas 5-4, Milwaukee defeated Minnesota 6-3, Oakland topped New York 4-2 and Boston beat California 6-5.

In the National League, it was New York 5, San Francisco 4; Montreal 7, San Diego 3; Los Angeles 8, Philadelphia 6; Atlanta 4, Pittsburgh 2; St. Louis 11, Cincinnati 5, and Chicago 3, Houston 0. Earl Williams slugged a two-run homer in the ninth inning to break a 4-4 tie for the Orioles, although he's batting only .209. Williams leads the Orioles with eight home runs and 25 runs batted in.

Two-run homers by Walt Williams and John Ellis powered the young Cleveland Indians to victory.

"We needed a man like Ellis to bring us out of our slump," said Manager Ken Aspromonte, whose Indians had lost 10 in a row before winning their last two.

The Brewers posted their fifth consecutive victory and 10th in their last 11 thanks to a five-run outburst in the seventh inning. Don Money's two-run triple was the big hit.

Vida Blue, 5-3, held the Yankees to five hits over seven innings, then watched as Darold Knowles pitched the final two. Blue, in and out of trouble throughout the game, had a season-high seven strikeouts. The Yanks' runs were both unearned.

Carl Yastrzemski hit a three-run homer and Orlando Cepeda had a solo shot for the Red Sox. They combined for what proved to be the winning run, too, when Yaz doubled in the eighth inning, stole third base and scored on a sacrifice fly.

OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — The lockers of Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer—Nos. 226 and 216—are just across from each other in the red-carpeted, fan-cooled upstairs locker room of the aged Oakmont Club.

As Jack and Arnie lace on their spiked shoes for the 73rd U.S. Open Golf Championship, they look up and find themselves eyeball-to-eyeball.

"We're so close we can whisper sweet nothings in each other's ear," Palmer said. It was a big joke. But it's not a big joke to either of these golfing giants—the idol of an earlier decade, and the strong, young dude who replaced him—as the biggest of all golf tournaments returns to one of its hallowed grounds for four days of high-pressure competition, starting Thursday.

"Ever since I lost in 1962, I've been waiting for the Open to come back to Oakmont," Palmer said today. "This is my country. I am very eager to redeem myself."

"Winning here in 1962 was one of the greatest things that ever happened to me," said Nicklaus. "Naturally, there is tremendous feeling on my part about the course and the people."

One hundred and fifty of the world's best players—137 pros and 13 amateurs—comprise the field teeing off at 7:30 a.m. EDT Thursday. But one would have to be completely devoid of sentiment not to recognize the drama of a new Nicklaus-Palmer confrontation.

It's quite different from 11 years ago. At that time, Nicklaus was a chubby, crew-cut rookie professional of 21 without a pro victory. Palmer was the idol of the game—a bull-shouldered, charismatic charger who captivated golfing fans with his final round comebacks.

The upstart Nicklaus tied Palmer for the 72-hole lead at 283, then beat him by three strokes, 71 to 74, in an 18-hole playoff.

Eleven years have brought a complete turnaround. Now, Nicklaus is thinned-down and long-haired, with credentials that mark him as the best golfer in the world and a 4-1 favorite here. The underdog is Palmer. At 43, he is 10 years Jack's senior, balding and frustrated, struggling to regain his lost putting magic.

Nicklaus, bidding for his 14th major golfing victory and a chance to overtake the record of the late Bob Jones, is the overwhelming favorite.

A stringy, long-hitting fellow townsman from Columbus, Ohio, Tom Weiskopf, winner of three of his last four tour events, is rated the chief challenger.

Steady, unspectacular Bruce Crampton of Australia, with three tour victories and second to Nicklaus in this year's money list, also is rated a threat, as are Lee Trevino, two-time Open champion; Gary Player of South Africa, recovering from stomach surgery; 61-year-old Sam Snead, with 84 tour victories in a 36-year career but never an Open, and 21-year-old Ben Crenshaw of Austin, Tex., two-time college champion and the best of the amateurs. The Open hasn't had an amateur winner since Johnny Goodman in 1933.

Niekro Goes After Two; Gets A Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Phil Niekro is getting more work on a baseball field, which means he's doing less work in his backyard. His wife doesn't mind, though, as long as he continues to win games.

"I hired a couple of the neighborhood boys to mow the grass on my days off...I have to take it easy now," says the Atlanta Braves' pitcher who is working—and thriving—under a new system of only two days' rest between assignments.

The knuckleballer made his second appearance under his personal three-day rotation system and never looked better, pitching a six-hitter to beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 Tuesday night.

Niekro has pitched three games in seven days and won them all. Last Wednesday, he beat the Montreal Expos 5-3 with relief help and last Saturday, whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 8-2 with help.

In the other National League games, the New York Mets beat the San Francisco giants 5-4; the Montreal Expos downed the San Diego Padres 7-4; the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the Philadelphia Phillies 8-6; the St. Louis Cardinals tripped the Cincinnati Reds 11-5 and the Chicago Cubs blanked the Houston Astros 3-0.

American League results: Oakland 3, New York 2; Cleveland 5, Texas 4; Boston 6, California 5; Milwaukee 6, Minnesota 3; Detroit 6, Chicago 5 and Baltimore 6, Kansas City 4.

Ed Kranepool hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning, helping New York beat San Francisco. Kranepool connected on the first pitch from Juan Marichal after John Milner had opened the inning with a single.

Bob Bailey's two-run homer climaxed a four-run fifth that carried Montreal's hot Expos over San Diego. The victory was the fourth straight and ninth in 13 games for Montreal.

Pinch-hitter Steve Garvey hit a two-out, bases-loaded triple in the eighth, capping a four-run rally that gave Los Angeles its triumph over Philadelphia.

Ted Simmons hit a three-run homer to key a five-run rally in the third inning, leading St.

Louis over Cincinnati. Joe Torre had four hits and three RBI for the Cardinals.

Rick Reuschel pitched a three-hitter and Billy Williams hit a two-run homer, pacing Chicago over Houston. Reuschel had a no-hitter until César Cedeno singled to lead off the seventh.

Southern Cal Rallies To Win

By DAN EVEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Minnesota's baseball team learned the hard way Tuesday night—never provoke a Trojan.

The result: an eight-run, ninth-inning rally by Southern California for a 8-7 College World Series victory and an almost unbelievable loss and ouster for Minnesota.

Defending three-time champion USC can wrap up its fifth collegiate title in six years Wednesday night with a victory over top-rated Arizona State.

Arizona State, 59-7, earned another shot at the Trojans by ousting Texas 6-5 on Clint Myers' two-out, ninth inning single.

USC beat the Sun Devils 3-1 Monday night in the double-elimination tournament. An Arizona State victory would send the tournament to the climactic 15th game Thursday night.

"They probably made us a little mad," said USC Coach Rod Dedeaux, referring to Minnesota, which bunted late in the ball game apparently to score more runs when already leading 7-0.

"That started a lot of bantering back and forth," continued Dedeaux. "Nothing serious—just clean fun, but our players got mad and that might of helped."

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Russ McCurdy, a defenseman on the 1959-62 Boston University hockey teams, has been named an assistant hockey coach at Yale, university officials said Tuesday.

McCurdy played hockey in 1963 with the U.S. National team and from 1966 to 1970 was on the St. Nicholas Hockey Club with Paul Lufkin, the current Yale coach.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Norm Kalkhoff has been named head tennis coach at Austin Peay State University, succeeding Bernie Marrero.

Kalkhoff was a basketball and tennis player at Belmont College in Nashville the past two years. He attended Martin Junior College in Pulaski.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Memphis State University Sports Information Director Bill Grogan announced Tuesday that he is resigning, effective June 30.

He said announcement of his new plans and of a replacement for him at Memphis State will be made within the next few weeks.

Grogan, a 1967 Memphis State graduate, assumed the post at Memphis State in July of 1970 after serving briefly as an Air Force captain assigned to the Air Force information office at the Pentagon.

This Could Be Longshot Open

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — This could be the Longshot Open.

During the course of this week, the press assembled here will write millions of words about Jack Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Tony Jacklin, Lee Trevino and Bruce Crampton, Tom Weiskopf and Tommy Aaron.

Very little will be written about Forrest Fezler and Lee Elder, John Schlee and Larry Ziegler, Dave Stockton and Ray Floyd, Hale Irwin and Lou Graham.

And yet the winner of the 73rd United States Open Golf Championship could come from that list of longshots.

Though the odds are against a longshot, this tournament has a history of defying logic. From Francis Ouimet in 1913 to Orville Moody in 1969, the list of U.S. Open champions is dotted with the names of upset winners.

Many feel the time is ripe for another longshot. Fezler, Elder, Schlee, Ziegler, Stockton, Floyd, Irwin and Graham all have credentials that make them prime candidates for the role.

Fezler and Elder have yet to win. But that's no criterion. Four of the last 21 Open champions—Nicklaus, Trevino, Moody and Julius Boros—scored their first professional victory in this, perhaps the world's most prestigious golf event.

Fezler, a stocky 23-year-old tour sophomore, came to national attention early this year when he lost a nationally-televised heart breaker to Trevino in the rich Jackie Gleason Classic.

Elder, one of the few blacks on the pro tour, has been threatening all year. He was the early leader at both New Orleans and Greensboro, was fourth in the Colonial, fifth in the Crosby, seventh at Atlanta.

Floyd and Stockton both are former PGA Champions, and, as such, may not fit in a list of longshots. But neither is high on the money list this year, although both have shown steady improvement in recent weeks and appear to be bringing their games to a peak.

Ziegler, a hockey nut and sometimes stickboy for the St. Louis Blues, has played strongly in his last three starts while the veteran Schlee is enjoying his best season in almost a decade on the tour.

Irwin, a former collegiate football star at Colorado, has been in title contention several times this year and has finished sixth or better four times. He's demonstrated he can win on a tough course, having won the Heritage Classic on the treacherous Harbour Town Golf Links.

Graham, a Nashville, Tenn. native who has won up to two titles in his 10 years on the tour, has done just about everything but win this season and is a real "sleeper" for this one.

"Even without a yield increase, I could justify using Kylar..."

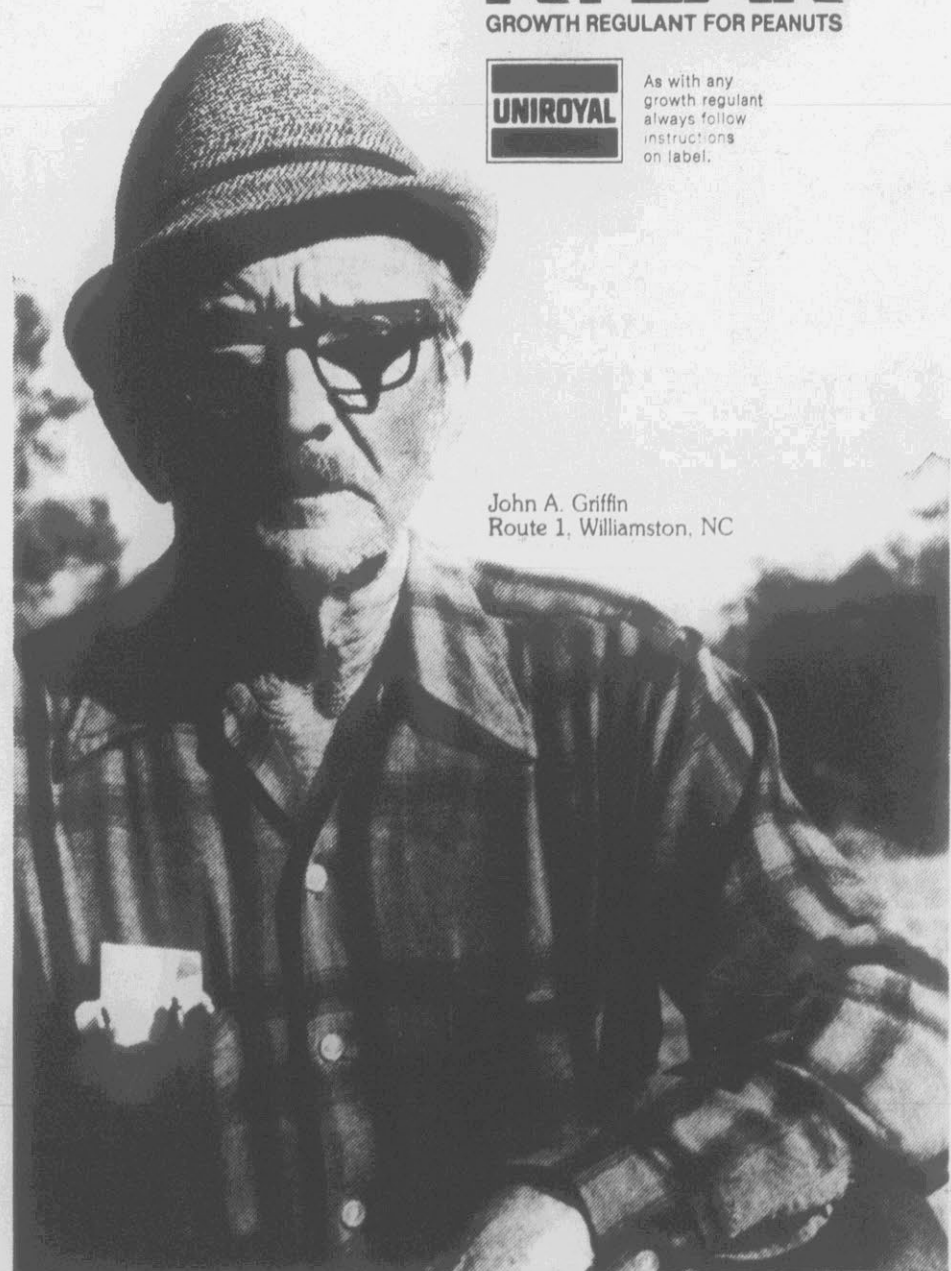

"I first tried Kylar® as part of a 3 acre test in 1969, and have been using it ever since. We use it at the 1 lb. rate, and apply it just about the time the vines meet in the middle of a 36' row. The vines turn greener and grow straighter."

"One of my neighbors and I ran a test where he left 4 rows untreated just to see the difference. As near as we could figure it, he made more pounds per acre from Kylar treated. I've also noticed we don't lose near as many peanuts as we used to during harvest, because the nuts seem to grow much closer to the tap root."

"I'm definitely getting more peanuts per acre, but even without a yield increase, I could justify using Kylar, just in the time and bother I save at harvest."

Kylar is the new and better way to grow peanuts. Helps you produce crops that are healthier, easier to care for, and in most cases, yield higher and grade better. Ask your dealer about Kylar today. Uniroyal Chemical, Division of Uniroyal, Inc., Naugatuck, CT 06770.

Act To Block Sales Restraint

By BRIAN B. KING
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department has moved to block what it says are illegal agreements between the nation's No. 1 petroleum refiner and its No. 1 independent source of gasoline and heating oil.

An agreement between Texaco Inc. and Coastal States Gas Producing Co. of Corpus Christi, Tex., restrains the sale of gasoline to independents, Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Kauper said Tuesday in announcing a civil antitrust suit against the two corporations.

Announcement of the suit came a few hours after release of a national survey of major and independent gasoline service stations showed an increasing number were reducing operating hours for personnel reasons or short gasoline supplies.

Several congressmen have asserted that some 2,000 stations, mostly independents, have closed because of inadequate gasoline supplies.

Elsewhere in Washington Tuesday, two hearings on a reported gasoline shortage progressed as the White House announced that it expected to have the government's plans to conserve energy ready within a week or 10 days.

The survey was the second in a weekly series conducted by the American Automobile Association following what it says are conflicting "scare stories" about the amount of fuel available to motorists.

This week's survey of 1,989 stations along major travel routes in all states except Alabama and Alaska showed that 32 per cent of them are open fewer hours during the week and on weekends, when many are closing one or both days.

Seven per cent of stations checked are limiting gasoline purchases, matching the first week's survey of 1,439 stations.

The AAA said 64 per cent of the stations checked by local AAA branches were operating normally. That was down from the 75 per cent last week.

Less than half of one per cent were closed, the AAA said.

Texaco, the suit said, "with one exception, maintains a policy not to sell gasoline to independent marketers." Texaco's purchase of the Coastal refinery and the other agreements, the complaint alleges, would cut off a substantial source of supply, primarily to independents; eliminate competition between the two in making and selling No. 2 oil; lessen independents' price competition; eliminate Coastal as a substantial factor in refining and selling gasoline and No. 2 oil; erect barriers to newcomers to the oil industry and substantially increase the concentration of the refining and marketing business.

In New York, a spokesman for Texaco issued a statement defending the agreements and saying they were entered into "to make available to the consuming public additional supplies of petroleum products." Texaco said that under the agreements it buys only 11 per cent of Coastal States' capacity, and that this will increase to 37 per cent by the end of the year.

A spokesman for Coastal States said in Houston: "The company views the contract with Texaco as fully valid and proper ...."

house on Arlington Boulevard (west of Hooker Road) goes to the high bidder, Jesse Harris who entered a $21,100 bid at the public auction held on May 31.

"Were very pleased with this bid," Glenn Cox, Associate Superintendent of the Greenville City said. "This will allow us means to continue the project in the future."

Cox added that the City School Board will take action Monday night on a decision whether or not to continue the project as an annual training program for members of Rose High's vocational education classes.

Closed Door Meet Set On Milk Pricing Action

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Milk Commission plans to hold a closed meeting June 25 to discuss possible action on setting minimum wholesale and retail milk prices and then decide the issue at a public session the next day.

This was agreed upon Tuesday at the suggestion of Chairman F. Rockwell Poisson.

William C. Lassiter of Raleigh, attorney for the North Carolina Press Association, said that in his opinion the commission has no right to hold an executive session for such a purpose.

Lassiter said closed hearings, deliberations and actions by state boards and commissions are forbidden under North Carolina's open meetings law.

The commission agreed to conduct public hearings July 10 on whether the minimum price paid to farmers for Class I or bottling milk should be increased.

The hearings were requested by the State Grange, the North Carolina Farm Bureau, the North Carolina Milk Producers Federation and Dairymen Inc.

The four organizations said previous Class I price increases

Singer Cleared On Technicality

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Singer Jaye P. Morgan has been cleared of marijuana possession charges on grounds the drug was found through an illegal search.

Miss Morgan and her manager, Peter A. Donald, were arrested March 14, 1972, after an airport search turned up marijuana in their luggage. Marijuana was found in Donald's luggage first, and a subsequent search turned up marijuana in Miss Morgan's bags.

Judge E. Charles Gaudin of the 24th Judicial District ruled Tuesday that evidence found in Miss Morgan's luggage was inadmissible since it stemmed from a search without a warrant or probable cause.

to farmers had been more than offset by sharply rising production costs, particularly for feed.

The commission held a lengthy hearing May 22 on three issues: (1) what to do about Fair Trade Order No. 12, which is now in force; (2) whether to begin fixing wholesale and retail minimum prices; and (3) if so, what price levels should be set.

The fair trade order requires distributors to file price changes with the commission at least 10 days in advance of the effective date, and it permits each distributor to set his own schedule of rebates and discounts to volume purchasers.

Members of the industry proposed a new fair trade order which would set a uniform schedule of maximum discounts and rebates for all distributors. The permitted rebates would range from 2 per cent for average monthly fluid milk purchases of $300 to $500, to a high of 15 per cent for monthly purchases of $10,000 and over.

The commission declined to accept a motion Tuesday by William E. Younts Jr., of Long Meadow Farms, Durham, that the new fair trade order be adopted.

No motion was offered to begin setting wholesale and retail minimum prices.

Instead, Grady Cooper Jr., the commission's executive secretary, and attorney W. C. (Buck) Harris were instructed to gather information on various alternative proposals available to the agency and to present it at the June 25 meeting. The information presumably will include the suggested levels at which wholesale and retail prices might be fixed if the commission decides this course of action.

Cooper told the commission milk was still being sold in the Charlotte area at 99 cents a gallon.

Four Died When Car Hit Tree

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP) — Four persons died when their automobile hit a tree near Wilmington early today.

The late-model car left rain-slick North Carolina 117, four miles north of the Port City.

There was one survivor. The accident occurred at 5:45 a.m.

Names will be released when it has been made certain that relatives have been notified.

"We believe those sales are below cost," he said. Below-cost milk sales for the purpose of injuring or harassing competition are prohibited under state law and commission regulations. The use of milk as a "loss leader" to attract customers also is prohibited.

Cooper was instructed by the commission to enforce the regulations.

Servant, Actor Shared Estate

LONDON (AP) — The late Sir Noel Coward provided in his will for the bulk of his fortune to be divided between his valet and the leading man in some of his greatest hits.

Cole Lesley, Coward's manservant for 37 years, and South African actor Graham Payne were to divide an undisclosed sum of money according to the terms of a will made public Tuesday.

Coward, who gained fame as a playwright, author, actor, director, producer, composer and singer, died last March at the age of 73.

Hunt Ghosts As Way To Earn Living

By ERLINDA VILLAMOR
MONROE, Conn. (UPI) — Ed and Lorraine Warren have an out-of-this-world way of making a living. They stalk the dead and sleuth for ghosts for free, and tell about them for a fee.

The Warrens, a couple in their mid-40s, are Connecticut's professional ghost hunters with 28 years of "experience".

To keep the wolf—or were-wolf—away from the door, the Warrens line up lecture engagements in New York and California as well as Connecticut.

In between lectures, however, the ghost hunters are on call for free and will investigate reports of objects levitating around creaky old houses or possession by dangerous or even harmless spirits.

"It's part of our research," said Warren, a jolly type who believes the supernatural character of his work.

Warren, who is working on a book detailing the couple's years of sleuthing, takes a serious but dispassionate attitude toward his work.

"We are not superstitious," he said.

However, in cases involving "possession by the devil," the Warrens invariably prescribe exorcism—a religious rite used to drive away evil spirits. The ceremony itself is administered by someone else at the choosing of the person supposedly afflicted.

Talking with the dead is another matter.

"We don't condone seances, or any attempt by laymen to communicate with the supernatural," said the couple, who are Roman Catholics.

"Calling the supernatural is a serious thing, and if a person is not spiritually strong enough, it can be dangerous," said Mrs. Warren, whose fragile figure and doll-like features make her a virtual apparition herself.

The Warrens said they have investigated at least 2,000 haunted houses across the nation, 300 of them in New England. As they tell it, a haunted house is an abode where supernatural activities take place which cannot be explained rationally.

In many of the homes, a tragic or emotion-tearing event has taken place, preventing the spirit of their dead occupants from "passing over" into the next world.

Warren, who said he spent his childhood in a haunted house in nearby Bridgeport, lives in a modern version of one—an unpainted ranch style house with an intentionally dank basement.

When he was a youngster he said he had encounters with the ghost which inhabited their house—the ghost of the original owner. But his father, a state trooper, never believed his accounts of the experience.

"There are two types of ghosts—the good and the bad," he said.

"The good ghosts remain on earth because they want to communicate something," he said. "The bad ones are dangerous because all they want to do is create fear in people to make them do something for the dead."

One case of a bad ghost involves an old house in North Woodstock, the Warrens said.

It seems that the ghosts harassed five successive families who tried to live in the house.

Members of the five families told the Warrens of their experiences with poltergeists, dishes mysteriously flying around and doors and windows opening on their own volition.

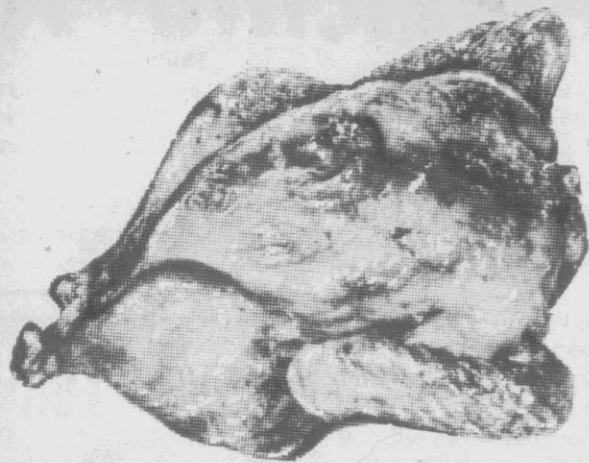

Once the Warrens determined a house is inhabited by ghosts, they go about ridding it of the unwanted presence. A blessing is passed on the house to ward off a bad spirit.

If the ghost is a good one, though, the Warrens try to establish contact to find out what troubles the spirit and how it can be helped on its way to the next world.

Warren and his wife consider themselves clairvoyant—that is, able to call up a spirit and communicate with it. Mrs. Warren, however, refused to go into the necessary trance except in her husband's presence.

The Warrens' home boasts of a barn-studio containing a collection of witchcraft paraphernalia, photos of their investigations of haunted houses and their own oil paintings of blood-curdling scenes out of horror films.

The basement is dimly lit and heatless.

Each Parent A Potential Child Abuser

By ROBERT STRAND BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The parent who fears uncontrollable anger may lead to beating up his or her own child can get help in Berkeley by dialing a telephone aid service.

It is the Parental Stress Service, a group recently formed to help battered children and their parents. You can discuss the crisis, and perhaps be put in touch with a sympathetic volunteer.

The service is an experiment aimed not only at the problem of battered children—some experts believe 50,000 annually die at their parents' hands—but at a vast number of parents whose wallpings end just short of real physical damage.

"To me, abuse runs the gamut from psychological neglect and verbal assaults to actual battering," said Carol Johnston, founder-director of the service. "If people are honest, they will admit they sometimes abuse their children."

"Every parent is a potential abuser. What can stop him is seeing the child as a person with his own rights."

Abusers Are Normal
Mrs. Johnston believes 90 per cent of people who abuse their children are normal. Only 10 per cent of seriously abused children have parents who are mentally ill, she said.

Abusing parents, she added, aren't monsters but basically good people under great stress who finally crack, often because of some trivial incident.

"I consider myself an abusing parent, and that's how I got into this," she said. "I do not trust myself. Sometimes I have no empathy to stop me from hurting Danny."

"Now I can say, Danny, get out of here, and he will leave. He knows what is coming."

Danny is eight, and Mrs. Johnston confesses to an occasional, sudden desire "to ram him through something," "to kill him."

Mrs. Johnston, 34, is a divorcee who quit teaching at Moses Lake, Wash., to take a masters degree at the University of California.

After work at the San Francisco Youth Guidance Center, she obtained a state grant of $15,000 to set up the Parental Stress Service. Additional money has been contributed by churches, and the state grant has been renewed for a second year.

The service takes calls seven days a week, 24 hours a day. Calls are handled by Mrs. Johnston, the only full-time worker, and 19 volunteers.

About a third of callers don't give their names, but the same voices keep calling back. Volunteers, who have taken a training course, take calls and often visit homes, when invited.

Some parents phone after having let loose all their frustrations by trouncing their child. Others learn to call when they feel violence coming on.

Women Feel Isolated
Half the cases involve children under five, and 90 per cent of the callers are women.

A common factor is isolation, and women are more likely to feel isolated. Another common factor is that the parent herself was abused as a child, and knows no other mode of child raising.

"The abusing parent never really had his or her own needs met," Mrs. Johnston said. "The parent is not really striking out at the child. A role reversal takes place, and he is actually striking out at his own parents."

National studies show that of children actually injured, most are three or under. The most severely injured are under six months.

"It would be a great benefit for the country if we had family life and positive parenting classes in the schools, starting with kindergarten," Mrs. Johnston said. "It's more important than sex education."

Parenting Hard Job
"A lot of people, especially teen-agers, aren't prepared to be parents. Girls pull their doll by the leg, or throw it on the floor, and think it's okay."

The women's liberation movement, she said, is spreading the realization that parenting is no bed of roses, and making it easier to say, "I hate this damn kid today."

"That doesn't make you a bad mother. And it's easier now to find alternatives for mothers who are fed up."

Mrs. Johnston regards as the service's failures those people who don't call back. Typical successes are mothers who find in a volunteer a friend, somebody who carps for her.

The 'Worry Clinic' Women Enjoy Varied Recipes

At our Crane family dinners there are as many as 23 of the immediate family (grandchildren included) so all sorts of debates arise, like those concerning women's mania for new recipes. But the booklet below offers the best recipe for preventing your mate from straying!

The Only Sub To 'Sink' A Train

BALTIMORE (UPI) — The U.S.S. Torsk, the only submarine known to have sunk a train, is now on display in the Inner Harbor here.

The boat, given to Maryland Naval Militia after its decommissioning last fall, also is on record as being the sub that sank the last two Japanese ships of World War II.

While in Tokyo Bay the Torsk maneuvered to fire her rear torpedoes to sink a Japanese tanker docked for unloading. The torpedoes missed the tanker but struck a railroad bridge. An ammunition-laden train was crossing the bridge at the time and fell into the Bay, lighting the sky with explosives.

The rainbow trout is the Utah state fish.

"Dennis the Menace" showed this same masculine desire for standard menus.

As his mother was carefully slicing off some turkey, Dennis looked on.

"If it's all the same with you," Dennis finally broke in, "I'd just as soon have a peanut butter and jelly sandwich."

Our dinner table debate suggest that women may be more scientific than men! Why? Because a true scientist is open-minded and willing to pick up new ideas.

Men, as a rule, soon get set in their standard food habits and resent being forced to change. The typical wife, however, is always on the alert for new recipes.

Thus, women clip them from the newspaper or buy one or more books on cooking.

Mrs. Crane does exactly this, though I have also told her repeatedly that I prefer steak, pie and coffee, with maybe some French fries and a salad.

When men grow older and begin to exclaim about exotic dishes or drive 50 miles to some fancy restaurant for dinner, it suggests they are thus becoming more neuter or emuchoid in their erotic life.

For it is women who delight in dining room variations. Alas, if they'd show 10 percent of that initiative regarding boudoir menus, they'd rarely need worry about an outside siren wooing their husband away!

Repeatedly, I have warned you wives that it is the siren's cheesecake in the boudoir, not roast beef or fancy food recipes in the dining room, that make good husbands stray.

In earlier days, before we had refrigeration, meat was difficult to keep from spoiling.

So it was customary to cover it with catsup, mustard or tobacco sauce, to disguise the tainted flavor. This habit has now persisted for generations.

All my children thus drown their hot dogs and hamburgers in catsup so they miss the real meat flavor. Thus, they were inconsistent in criticizing the pineappled sweet potatoes!

Personally, I don't like a dozen "herbs" to mask the delicious flavor of fried chicken, though others think the herbs make the chicken more delicious.

Wives, send for my booklet "Sex Problems in Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

It's an ideal recipe book for boudoir cheesecake. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, adressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

"It's a new recipe I just discovered!"

"Well, I don't like pineapple flavor on my sweet potatoes," her husband grumbled.

"When I take a helping of potatoes, I want to taste sweet potatoes!"

"So why did you spoil them with all that pineapple?"

"Because I like to try new recipes," his wife pertly answered.

At which another son grumbled:

"The trouble with you women is you always want to concoct NEW dishes!"

"But men are content with a few standard foods, so why don't you save yourself time and effort by ignoring all these fancy recipes?"

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The American Printing House for the Blind, the world center for Braille preparation, is the oldest national, non-profit agency for the blind in the nation.

Founded in 1858, the Printing House has developed numerous activities centering around the publication of literature for the blind, including textbooks and other educational materials. It uses four specialized media—Braille, oversized print, records and magnetic tapes. The Printing House produces between 140,000 and 150,000 bound Braille volumes and 75,000-80,000 pamphlets annually. More than 60 Braille magazines are printed on schedule.

U.S. Business Gets Lift Due To Devaluation

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Two devaluations of the dollar since December 1971 are beginning to pay off in the sales of American goods abroad, an Associated Press survey of Europe and Japan shows.

Americans are beginning to compete once again in world markets against the West Germans and the Japanese, their toughest competitors.

The potential seems even greater than the result so far. But progress has been slow and experts predict it will take another two years for the United States to wipe out its 1972 trade deficit of about $6.5 billion.

Devaluation by 8.58 per cent in December 1971 and another 10 per cent last February meant cheaper prices for U.S. goods overseas, but not necessarily higher sales immediately.

The survey showed that if America wanted to be No. 1 in world trade, its businessmen would have to try harder. "I could have doubled my turnover this year if U.S. supplies were available," a British importer of American fabrics complained in London.

A consumer boom in the United States has sharply cut back the flow of goods available for export to many European industries. Anyone in Britain ordering U.S. machine tools, for example, faces delays up to 18 months in delivery.

But selling in Europe is not always easy. Many U.S. manufacturers would have to retool their products for Europe where screw threads, for example, are different. Most electrical equipment has to be for 220 volts rather than 110. Adaptation costs money.

In Tokyo, another problem arises. Design can be more important than price. Japanese imports of U.S. consumer goods are growing, but no one predicts an American sales bonanza.

U.S. goods, like clothing and furniture, are simply not being made in sizes that suit the Japanese.

"When Japanese department stores buy imported goods, design and quality are the most important considerations," says Tetsutaro Iida, a Tokyo chain store executive. "Price comes last."

"American products are generally too practical or pragmatic, having less elegance and missing the fragrance of European products."

In Brussels, headquarters of the nine-nation European Common Market, officials say the United States is now selling more, but prospects are limited. This is partly because price has little effect on the sales of some key American exports to Europe. In these categories devaluation offers virtually no benefits.

"Nobody else makes Boeing 747s," a Common Market expert explained. "The price doesn't make all that much difference. If they cost 20 per cent more instead of 20 per cent less, the airlines would still buy them."

In this field, American sales to Europe depend more on developing new technology than in lowering prices. In Rome, trade officials suggested U.S. prospects may be clouded by cutbacks in the space program, limiting developments in some high technology areas.

Farm products are another important U.S. export to Europe, but again, price has little influence, this time because of trade barriers.

When devaluation of the dollar last February reduced U.S. farm prices by 10 per cent, the Common Market duties on farm produce went up by exactly the same amount.

Surveys in Britain and West Germany showed that relatively few U.S. firms have lowered their prices because of devaluation. Some appeared to consider informing distributors, and changing price lists more of a bother than the potential competitive advantage was worth.

Others said increased costs of U.S. supplies, high shipping rates or added costs of operating in inflationary European economies have eaten away the benefits from devaluation and kept prices steady. Whatever the reason, some advantages offered by devaluation were lost.

These reasons help explain why price cuts from a devaluation don't automatically expand overseas trade. Yet all the evidence suggests that the U.S. trade picture is improving slowly. In April, the United States made a profit on its trade with the rest of the world of $196.4 million, according to U.S. official figures. It was the first U.S. trade surplus for any month since September 1971. Devaluation was said to be an important factor.

About two-thirds of the 1972 U.S. trade deficit was with Japan, and the picture there is bright. Finance Minister Kiichi Aichi expects the United States will show its first monthly trade profit with Japan since February 1971 when the May figures come out.

Often U.S. goods cannot compete abroad against locally produced rivals. In Britain, for example, Americans cannot out-sell British goods. But U.S. businessmen are doing better against other foreigners like the Germans and the Japanese. Much of this is due to the devaluations.

The various currency adjustments of the past two years have now raised the price of the German mark by 20 per cent against the dollar and the Japanese yen by 16 per cent.

In the long run, however, devaluation may not be the most important factor in improving the U.S. trade picture.

Inflation is now a worse problem in many European countries than it is in the United States. Some economists think this will eventually prove a bigger help to the U.S. foreign trade effort than the benefits from devaluation.

Because economists generally have found that it takes about 18 months before the results of a devaluation become apparent, there are few hard figures to back up the reports of businessmen except for the April trade figures.

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal court has demanded an immediate study of environmental hazards of developing fast-breeder atomic power, which President Nixon has called the energy source of the future.

The three-judge U.S. Appeals Court for the District of Columbia said Tuesday "it is evident that the program presents unique and unprecedented environmental hazards."

Citing the problems of handling some 600,000 cubic feet of concentrated radioactive wastes that would be generated by the year 2000 under the fast-breeder plan, the court said: "These wastes will pose an admitted hazard to human health for hundreds of years, and will have to be maintained in special repositories."

Reversing a district court decision, the appeals court said the Atomic Energy Commission must prepare a study of environmental impacts of the breeder-reactor development program.

The AEC had argued that an impact study was not needed until the breeder reactor program moved out of the research stage and was on the verge of commercial construction, estimated around 1980.

The Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC), a citizens' environmental organization, which had sued the AEC, claimed the law requires an environmental-impact study early in the entire program. A fast-breeder power plant operates by generating plutonium-239, which is used as reactor fuel instead of uranium 235, a scarce natural element used in present nuclear power plants.

The problem is no atomic reactor uses up its fuel completely. Highly radioactive waste materials must periodically be removed and disposed of. And plutonium wastes would remain highly radioactive for hundreds of thousands of years, posing potential long-range hazards.

DALLAS (UPI) — There are more horses in the Dallas-Fort Worth area than anywhere else in the world, says state livestock expert Dr. Richard McDonald. He says there are 50,000 horses in a 10-mile radius of the Dallas-Fort Worth area.
