

Locate Missing Records

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A widely sought list believed to be the only surviving records of the still-unnamed contributors to President Nixon's re-election campaign has been located in the White House.

Court and Senate authorities investigating the Watergate scandal had been looking for it. Sources say it contains coded entries of more than $1 million in currency contributions.

The White House confirmed Thursday the list had been held since last June by Rose Mary Woods, Nixon's long-time personal secretary. Deputy press secretary Gerald Warren said the list was "never shown to the President," and was turned over to lawyers for Common Cause, a citizens' group seeking disclosure of campaign finances.

Other sources had confirmed that the list, a copy of a now-lost original, had been sent to the White House shortly after it was prepared by Hugh W. Sloan, former treasurer of Nixon's campaign finance committee.

Sources said the list contained details in dollar amounts of contributions given before April 7, 1972, starting date of a new law requiring disclosure of donations.

The list names individuals and groups making contributions. Some are identified by the companies for which they work, including some defense contractors, the sources said.

Several cash funds, drawn from these gifts of so-far untraceable currency and checks converted to cash, have been identified as the source of financing for the Watergate break-in and other sabotage and espionage in last year's presidential election.

Figures from the list indicate that more than $14 million was collected in the 27-day, still-unreported period before April 7, sources said.

Maurice Stans, Nixon's chief fund raiser, has testified that the flood of last minute contributions came from donors who wish to remain anonymous.

He told the Senate Watergate hearings Wednesday that complete records of donors had been destroyed.

Magruder Recalls A Frustrating Period

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jeb Stuart Magruder says his sense of lawfulness was undermined when he was helping to plan the Watergate wiretapping because some antiwar activists, including people he knew, were breaking the law.

The former Nixon campaign deputy testified Thursday that he also feared attacks on the Republican nominating convention by radical groups, knew of death threats against Martha Mitchell, and believed some Democrats had planted spies inside the Nixon campaign, "doing to us, in effect, what we were doing to them."

"That again doesn't make it right. But we were fearful ..."

Watergate committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., said this "atmosphere of fear" reminded him of the days in the 1950s when Sen. Joseph McCarthy, R-Wis., was hunting Communists in government.

And the Republican leader of the committee, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said, "There are countless clichés that come to mind that I could use to try to describe that state of mind or that attitude—fighting fire with fire, two wrongs don't make a right, and all the rest. But they seem inadequate."

"They certainly were, and I have no justification for them, nor will I make any today," Magruder replied.

At the time, Magruder said, he recalled "a feeling of resentment and frustration at being unable to deal with the issues on a legal basis."

This first arose at a time when Magruder was working inside the White House, when he believed President Nixon was doing all he could to bring the Vietnam war to an end. At the same time, Magruder felt that those who opposed Nixon's war policies were prolonging the war, and committing illegal acts.

Although no Democratic spies were found inside the Nixon campaign, Magruder said, spying was suspected at the time. There had been bombings of Nixon campaign centers outside Washington, continuing demonstrations outside the campaign headquarters, and evidence that demonstrations were planned for the Republican convention.

Entire ECU Med School Class Promoted In Exams

Chancellor Leo W. Jenkins today announced that all 20 students of the first class of the East Carolina School of Medicine have been promoted to the second-year class of the UNC Medical School.

Announcing the action taken by the Joint Promotions Committee, composed of seven members of the ECU Medical School faculty and three Medical School faculty members from UNC, and concurred with by the Joint Promotions Review Committee, consisting of three senior faculty from each School, Jenkins congratulated the students and the ECU faculty.

"These students obviously are well-taught and well-prepared to join their counterparts at Chapel Hill," he said.

ECU Medical School Wallace R. Woods explained that the ECU students took three examinations in common with the first-year class at UNC. Two of these examinations, in neurobiology and in microbiology, were prepared by the National Board of Medical Examiners and one examination, in pathology, was prepared by the Departments of Pathology of both schools.

In the pathology exam, the main performance of the UNC students.

New Satellite In Moon Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Explorer 49 radio astronomy satellite went into orbit around the moon today on a mission to record deep space radio signals that could extend man's knowledge of the universe.

Launched from Cape Kennedy Sunday, the 442-pound satellite is expected to relay information to earth for at least a year. It is the last planned U.S. moon shot for the foreseeable future.

In the pathology exam, the mean performance of the ECU students was within two percentage points of the mean performance of the UNC students.

In microbiology, the mean performance of the ECU students was somewhat below that of the UNC students. However, all the ECU students fell well within the distribution curve of the UNC students.

In neurobiology, the ECU students scored higher than their counterparts at UNC. In this examination as in the other two, all the ECU students fell well within the distribution curve of the UNC ones.

"We are proud of the performance of our students and wish them well in their future medical education," Dr. Jenkins said. "It is our fervent hope that all of them will practice not only within North Carolina but, particularly, in areas that desperately need physicians."

Jenkins also commended the ECU medical faculty and the clinical faculty for their dedication and teaching performance throughout the past year. "The proof of the pudding is in the eating," he said, in answer to widely publicized criticisms of the adequacy and quality of the one-year program at ECU. "Our medical faculty and their operating budget represent only 60 percent of our requests made two years ago to begin this program. Yet with this handicap they quietly proceeded to get the job done. Their performance and that of these 20 highly motivated North Carolina students is a credit to our University and to the State."

Killers' Trial Is Delayed

CAIRO (AP) — A magistrate's hearing for eight defendants in the Black September killing of the American ambassador to Khartoum and two other diplomats has been postponed indefinitely, informed sources said today.

The hearing was scheduled to begin this weekend in Khartoum, the Sudanese capital. The delay was granted to permit selection of a team of defense attorneys, sources in the Sudanese capital said.

The postponement caught diplomats and newsmen by surprise.

On Thursday night a senior Sudanese official in Khartoum said the hearings—to determine whether a trial should be held—were to begin Sunday.

The Cairo press reported today that 22 Sudanese lawyers would defend the eight accused.

Lawyers from other Arab bar associations had previously expressed a desire to defend the men, but Sudanese law requires that members of the Sudanese bar association plead cases before Sudanese courts.

Foreigners may be permitted to act as advisers to the defense.

It is known that the Khartoum government has been under considerable pressure to delay the trial indefinitely because of its potentially explosive political nature.

The eight Palestinians are accused of killing U.S. Ambassador Cleo Noel; Noel's charge d'affaires, G. Curtis Moore; and Belgian charge Guy Eid in the basement of the Asudi Arabian Embassy in Khartoum.

Typical Cost Of Living

WASHINGTON (AP)—A typical American city family of four requires $11,446 annually to maintain a moderate standard of living, the Labor Department says.

The same family can live at an austere level for $7,386 or at a level allowing some luxuries for $16,558, the department said Thursday.

The costs, calculated for fall 1972, rose 4 per cent for the moderate and higher budgets and 2.4 per cent for the austerity budget over the previous year. The smaller increase in the austerity budget resulted from a reduction in federal income taxes for that wage bracket.

Consumer prices have jumped another 3 per cent since last fall.

The budget is based on a family with a 38-year-old father who is an experienced worker, his nonworking wife, their 13-year-old son and 8-year-old daughter.

The cheapest living was in Southern towns with populations ranging from 2,500 to 5,000 where the average was 83 per cent of the norm.

Cities that matched the national average included Portland, Maine; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Detroit, Mich.; Indianapolis, Ind.; San Diego, Calif., and the Seattle-Everett, Wash., area. The study did not cover rural areas.

More Bloodshed Than Peace In New Vietnam Ceasefire Declaration

SAIGON (AP) — A new cease-fire was declared across South Vietnam at noon today after a 4½ month truce that brought more bloodshed than peace. Over 60,000 casualties were reported on both sides during the period.

It was far too soon to tell whether the new truce would be effective, although only a few scattered incidents were reported in the first few hours. Saigon sources, however, were pessimistic that it would work over the long run.

The Saigon command reported an upsurge in fighting in the six hours preceding the cease-fire, claiming 58 violations by the Communist side, half of them in the Mekong Delta.

Lt Col. Le Trung Hien, chief spokesman for the command, said this was the highest number for a similar period since the original cease-fire went into effect Jan. 28.

Hien said it appeared that the Communist side made a last ditch effort to consolidate its positions just prior to the second cease-fire, at least in the rice growing delta where about one-third of South Vietnam's 18 million people live.

Vietnam's second cease-fire was written into a 14-point joint communique restating the principles of the original agreement. The communique was worked out between Henry A. Kissinger and Hanoi's Le Duc Tho and signed in Paris Wednesday by the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam and the Viet Cong.

Critics say it falls short of safeguarding the peace since it is as vague as the original agreement, and fails to spell out a solution for ending the fighting in Cambodia, where there never has been a truce.

In Cambodia itself there was speculation that antigovernment forces may be making a final, all-out push to force Phnom Penh's military downfall, or to gain as much territory as possible before the monsoons set in and curtail offensive operations.

President Hails Dirksen Example

PEKIN, Ill. (AP) — President Nixon today recalled the example of the late Sen. Everett Dirksen, saying there should be "a spirit of responsible partnership" between the presidency and Congress.

In a statement issued with the laying of a cornerstone of a public library and research center named for Dirksen, Nixon said that the late Illinois Republican "believed in both a strong Congress and a strong President."

"He knew the risk if they became rivals," Nixon said. "But he also knew the potential if they became partners. Both that risk and that potential still exist today—on one crucial issue after another."

Nixon also said that Dirksen's example can help create better understanding of America's role in the world.

Noting that Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev will be arriving in a few days, Nixon said the summit meeting with him should lead to more agreements with the Soviet Union.

"As we look at the world scene, there are powerful reasons for encouragement," the President said. "As Mr. Brezhnev himself said recently the world is closer to a lasting peace today than ever before in history."

Turning to the economy, Nixon said his 60-day price freeze is designed to guard against throwing the economy into a "disastrous skid."

And he repeated his pledge that the mandatory wage-price controls that will follow the freeze will be set up to get the nation "out of a controlled economy, not pull us further into one."

Helplessly Looked On As Man Took Own Life

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

A Greenville police officer stood by helplessly this morning as a 37-year-old man shot himself in the chest with a .410 gauge shotgun, at a Willow Street residence.

The dead man was identified as Earl Ormond, 37 of 1508 North Pitt St. and Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E.W. Harvey ruled the death a suicide.

Officers were called to 1403 Willow St. about 4:20 a.m. by Mrs. Janice Ormond, Chief Glenn Cannon said, who reported that her estranged husband had forced his way into her apartment and was armed with a gun.

Responding policemen, who found Ormond inside the apartment and Mrs. Ormond outside on the lawn when they arrived, said Ormond had broken through a glass door to gain entrance to the dwelling and in the process, suffered cuts to his right arm and leg and was bleeding.

An Officer Wayne Mills talked to Ormond through a door way — asking him to put down the weapon and leave the house — the man pointed the shotgun at his chest and pulled the trigger.

Ormond died instantly and Mrs. Ormond was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of shock.

France Agrees To Study New NATO Declaration

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — France has agreed with the United States and their allies to undertake a study of a possible new declaration of principles for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, an informed source said today.

The study, urged by the Nixon administration, would be made by the permanent NATO council in Brussels.

The agreement was said to have been sealed in private talks between U.S. and French officials attending the semi-annual session of the 15 NATO foreign ministers ending today.

On Thursday, Foreign Minister Michel Jobert of France had questioned the value of any new statement of principles. U.S. officials had been seeking a final statement that would declare a need for what Henry A. Kissinger has called a "new Atlantic charter."

Informed sources said the last-minute U.S.-French agreement caused some surprise when it was brought into a drafting committee working on the final statement of the two-day meeting. All countries accepted the draft, the sources added.

Officials were also reported to have agreed that all 15 NATO nations will be represented July 3 at Helsinki for the first meeting of the conference on European security and cooperation. It will bring together ministers from 34 countries — East, West and neutral. Some of the NATO countries had hesitated because the Soviet Union has not yet been pinned down to a date for a conference on force reductions in Western Europe.

It was hoped that this will be settled during the visit to Washington next week by Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev. The West has been pressing for a date no later than Oct. 30. The Soviets want to hold off longer.

It was understood U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers met Jobert after a lunch Thursday given by foreign Minister K.B. Andersen.

The result was an accord for a common effort to look again at the relations among allies. U.S. officials expressed "solid satisfaction" with the accord.

Nomadic O'Learys And Boat Finally Evicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nomadic O'Leary clan has been evicted from the Washington marina.

But it took three police boats, a fireboat, a tug, an ambulance, a dozen policemen, five U.S. marshals and one arrest to oust the family's 85-foot cast-off boat, the Chicago, on Thursday.

The Chicago has been home to James O'Leary Sr., his wife and some of his 17 children since last year.

The O'Learys, who had been barred previously from the ports of Hanoi, Guam and Gladstone, Australia, took over the Chicago by putting $1,000 down. Before that, the boat reportedly had listed unoccupied in the water for 33 years.

Relations with the marina admittedly were not cordial.

Robert J. Stickell, marina president, said the family has antagonized other boat owners, argued with school and welfare officials and earned a wide reputation along the Potomac.

Superior Court Judge W. Byron Sorrell ordered the eviction Friday for failure to pay $60 a month in mooring fees.

The O'Learys say the marina failed to provide adequate bathing and toilet facilities.

The Chicago, which police Lt. R.M. Pierson described as "looking like it had been the target ship for both world wars," was towed away by a tugging tugboat.

Left behind was son James Jr., 31, who was charged with simple assault for allegedly striking

The Chicago, which sports the legend, "This is my ship and I'll do as I damn please," was pushed down river by a small boat equipped with a 20-horsepower outboard motor.

When the motor stalled, the senior O'Leary said, the boat drifted into a berth at the Washington Navy Yard. He announced to startled sailors: "We are mariners in distress and claim sanctuary here."

Don't Mention Dress Color

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am getting married soon and everything is going smoothly except for one thing. My grandmother is going to wear a white dress! From what I understand from knowledgeable friends, it is an unwritten rule of etiquette that only the bride may wear white. Have you ever heard of this rule? And where did it come from?

My grandmother is getting on in years and I don't want to upset her or hurt her feelings, so how do you suggest I approach her — if at all?

GETTING MARRIED

DEAR GETTING: That rule originated years ago to discourage anyone who might try to upstage the bride. It's passe now. But it's not likely that your grandmother has that in mind, so simmer down and don't mention it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in disagreement about something. He wants my two well-developed teen-age daughters (his stepdaughters) to come into the bathroom and wash his back while he is in the tub.

I would be happy to wash his back, but Dad prefers that they do it. They reluctantly have done so in the past but I have told them that they don't have to do it anymore. This has caused ill-feelings on my husband's part. He thinks that because he has provided them with a lovely home they should show their appreciation by washing his back when he requests it.

Your answer will decide.

AGAINST IT

DEAR AGAINST: I'm against it, too. The girls can show their appreciation to Dad on Father's Day, by providing him with a lovely long-handled brush with which to wash his own back.

DEAR ABBY: After my mother died 15 years ago, my oldest sister got all the family pictures. Among them was my mother's wedding picture which was in a beautiful antique frame. I always loved that picture.

Six months ago my sister died and left everything to her daughter. I asked this daughter for my mother's wedding picture and she refused to give it up. Abby, this girl hardly KNEW my mother. [I think she just wanted to keep it because of the frame.]

She offered to have a duplicate made for me, but I want the original.

Who do you think the picture rightfully belongs to? And how should I get it?

FAMILY FIGHT

DEAR FIGHT: Since the daughter inherited all of her mother's possessions, and the picture was among them, it belongs to her. Quit fighting, and ask that the duplicate be made by an expert. It could be every bit as good [or better] than the original.

DEAR ABBY: I sent 32 "R. S. V. P." invitations and received only 6 responses!

Obviously a hostess has to know how many guests to prepare for. After waiting two weeks, would it be appropriate for me to telephone those from whom I have not heard and ask if they are coming or not?

This strikes me as being somewhat pushy and I am reluctant to do it.

FRUSTRATED HOSTESS

DEAR FRUSTRATED: On the outside chance that some of them did not receive your invitation, telephone them.

Taste Treats Come From Korea

By TOM HOGE

AP Newsfeatures Writer

Ancient Korea, bounded on the north by Manchuria and Siberia and flanked by the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan, has a cuisine that has been understandably affected by those of several nations.

But despite this broad international influence, Korean cookery has a definite identity of its own. It features pork as does the Chinese and goes in for fish like the Japanese. But the Koreans have a greater fondness for vegetables, both wild and cultivated, than either of their Asian neighbors.

There are other differences. The Chinese have a liking for rich sauces, and the Japanese prefer much of their food raw or deep fried. But Korean dishes are for the most part grilled.

Korean restaurants have been springing up in New York in recent years, and one of the newest and most elaborate is Hahn Kook Palace in midtown Manhattan. Tastefully decorated and staffed by pretty little Korean waitresses in a native dress, the place features many national specialties, from Keem, thin, crisp squares of broiled seaweed, to Kim Chee, the fiery, fermented, pickled cabbage which is the national relish.

Kung Yong Lee, manager and part owner of Hahn Kook, has drawn up a menu offering a wide choice of meat and fish dishes. They include Gwe Chim or king crab morsels coated with a light egg batter, then grilled, and Bulgoki, a dish of marinated sirloin beef strips, charcoal broiled.

Food has always played an important role in Korea's culture. Interestingly, close association with the West since World War II has had virtually no effect on the traditional Korean cuisine. About the only sign of western influence is the recent custom of some people in the cities to take coffee and toast for breakfast.

Steamed rice is about as popular in Korea as bread is in America and is served with virtually every dish. Like the Chinese, the Koreans cook their vegetables and many seafood dishes as briefly as possible so that the ingredients retain their crispness and original colors.

A pleasant aperitif is a gin-seng cocktail made of vodka and lemon juice, plus Ginseng, the spicy bittersweet root to which Koreans attribute a number of curative and restorative properties.

Restaurateur Kung Yong Lee, who managed the Korean Pavilion at the 1964-65 World's Fair in Flushing, N.Y., reportedly believes in making his native specialties a little less fiery than those back home for the most part, to adjust to western palates. But there is nothing diluted about the Kim Chee with which Koreans accompany virtually all their dishes. Here is his recipe:

One two-pound head of cabbage
2 teaspoons salt

Half a white turnip shredded
2 teaspoons ground red hot pepper
2 teaspoons freshly chopped garlic
1 teaspoon chopped fresh ginger
1 teaspoon paprika
1 soup spoon fresh cooked shrimps finely chopped
1 scallion cut up
Place cabbage overnight in cold water to which 1 teaspoon salt has been added. Next morning wash cabbage in cold water and separate leaves. Add shredded turnip, hot pepper, garlic, ginger, paprika, chopped shrimps, scallion and 1 teaspoon salt.
Mix all this with the cabbage leaves and keep in refrigerator four days. Serve as is.

valid complaint five years ago, he added, but not today.

He added that there is a lot of publicity about women executives, but that the pool of talent is small.

"It's slow going," he added, "but more people are realizing that women are the great unused resource of this country. We just have to wait for the business community to catch up."

Check gutters and downspouts. Branches and twigs from trees broken in heavy rains, winds and snowfalls often lodge in gutters and downspouts.

Check caulking around doors and windows. Look for cracks or small missing pieces. Test it here and there with a screwdriver. If it is brittle and falls out scrape it away. Apply new.

New Fields Beginning To Open For Women

By AP Newsfeatures

NEW YORK (AP) — Newly-named women executives are mostly mythical, according to the president of a leading executive search firm.

Lester Korn, president of Korn-Ferry International, says there are four or five areas where women executives have a chance of success in today's business world, "but she's not there yet."

The categories he finds most open to women are consumer product areas, entertainment, the professions and government.

"Only in the last two years is there any acceptance of women as executives to fill executive needs. It was lip service until recently. Even today, a woman has to be qualified. Otherwise, no one wants to talk to her," Korn added.

The executive-finder added that the major stumbling block for women in positions of responsibility is their capability. They often do not have specific practical experience for a job. Men do.

"Five out of every hundred middle management executives have a chance of being a woman. That only 5 in 20.

"In the next three to five years, candidates for top offices will be limited because of the population there is to draw from. If women are at mid-level already, they have a chance. Some — in academic, political and professional fields — are ready now. But the percentage is small. The growth of women executives is not as large as most people project," Korn added.

Areas in which Korn finds hope for future female executives — areas with profit and loss responsibility, which is his term for authority — include toiletries, food companies, entertainment, accounting and research, legal profession, public relations and education.

He says women are rising slowly in banking, financial relations, brokerage houses, institutions and insurance. He says they have a measure of success in retail and garment industries.

Korn believes that petrochemical and energy fields, along with most engineering areas, will never have women executives. "It isn't just prejudice," he said. "It's technical and educational background. The pool of female talent among mechanical engineers is small, let's face it."

Korn says women need to package and merchandise themselves as men do in order to be hired as executives in large companies.

"Women are afraid to move. They always ask about the possibility of transfers. It gets back to packaging. A man always says he'll move anywhere."

Korn added that most personnel holding masters of business administration degrees enter a firm at an average salary of $14,400 — for both men and women.

"But there are more men than women at the top of the range. I think this is because there are fewer women in higher positions. If a woman starts at a low salary, at the bottom end of the scale, and is raised in fixed increments of 5 or 10 per cent, she is usually making less than a man. He started rising earlier.

"And there is some inherent prejudice against paying women equal salaries. Business will have to get over it. Some parts of the country are more receptive than others to the idea of women executives — New York, Los Angeles and Atlanta. That, too, may change slowly.

Korn says it is a "lot of baloney" that women are underpaid. That might have been a

Presbyterians Concur Can Do Little About Pullout

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — The 113th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the U.S. ended its week-long meeting by concluding there was little members could do about churches that have left the denomination, the major issue faced by the group.

The strongest resolution on the division question passed by the assembly ordered a pastoral counseling group to advise churches considering such withdrawal that the book of church order makes no provision for such pullouts.

The resolution also said churches should be advised of the Presbyterian connectional system of government.

Dr. Billy Graham told the assembly Thursday, "If there is any country you can call Presbyterian country it is Korea." Graham recently returned from a Korean crusade. The Presbyterian Church has long had missionary interests in that country.

The evangelist told the group the Korean Church is successful because of emphasis on the Bible, prayer, evangelism, persecution and praise within the church.

He said he felt the "gravitational center of Christianity in this century would be in the Orient."

Graham told youth delegates to the assembly later that President Nixon had never discussed Watergate with him.

"My mission to the White House has simply been as a friend," he said.

"I am not privy to his (Nixon's) counsels in areas such as that."

Graham said he had been out of the country and had not heard all the testimony about Watergate. He said he would reserve comment until all the facts were in.

"It would be foolish to comment any further," he said.

Earlier in the day, the delegates named evangelism the No. 1 priority for the 1975 General Assembly.

It was a victory for the conservatives, some of whom feel social work has been upmost in the church's mind.

Lack of emphasis on evangelism is one of the sources of inner conflict.

The assembly elected four new members to the 12-member permanent judicial commission: Charles Bagley of the West Virginia synod, the Rev. R. Matthew Lynn of the Texas synod and Joseph T. Stukes of the South Carolina synod and the Rev. David H. Edington Jr. of the Alabama synod.

Earlier in the week, the assembly elected the Rev. Charles E. S. Kraemer of Richmond, Va., moderator. He succeeded the Rev. L. Nelson Bell of Montreat, N.C.

Kraemer's humor relieved mounting tension in the sessions more than once.

The assembly said in its paper on faith and patriotism, accepted earlier in the week, true patriotism "requires us to be self-critical of our national life."

The group also defeated efforts to slow or stop its merger with the United Presbyterian Church of the U.S.A. A recommendation was approved urging members to "commit themselves anew to search for union."

After much debate, the assembly voted to retain portions of a resolution on withdrawing churches which critics said stood in judgement of the church.

The assembly approved the resolution following a section which said the group would go on record as "expressing grief over the separation of our brethren who have felt they must leave the denomination and constant love for them across the bounds of the division."

The resolution also asked those "remaining and those departing" to pray, examine themselves and repent for sins which brought about "this misunderstanding."

Moving A Flood-Prone Town Said Too Costly

CLINCHPORT, Va. (AP)—This flood-prone town of 286 residents will have to remain along Clinch River and Stock Creek because the cost of moving it wouldn't balance out on the benefit side, the Tennessee Valley Authority says.

The TVA Thursday announced that a feasibility study on proposed relocation of the Scott County town to higher ground showed the project can't be justified economically.

Residents of this tiny southwest Virginia town, tired of living under the threat of flooding, petitioned the federal government in 1972 to provide funds and assistance in moving the town.

The TVA said there are no federal programs which would provide funds or assistance to moved the town, which frequently finds itself in deep water when the river and creek flood.

The governmental agency said that the economics of the proposed relocation just would not justify a move.

Governmental agencies use a cost-benefits ratio to ascertain the worth of projects, such as channel widenings and dams.

TVA officials said it would cost $1.9 million to buy the land and buildings and then relocate the town on higher ground. The benefits, according to the TVA report, would be under $250,000.

The officials said that while there is an absence of any programs now, "this may not always be the case."

It said federal flood control programs are revised continually and "it is possible that some future program will enable the people of Clinchport to move to a safer location."

The TVA suggested that in the meantime a "flood-free access road" be built to replace low-lying Virginia 65, so residents can move freely during flood periods.

It also recommended refinement of a temporary evacuation plan already developed by county officials; floodproofing buildings in the flood plain area, and that the town qualify for federally subsidized lowcost flood insurance.

Aged 110, And She'll 'Get By'

DETROIT (AP) — Ida Helms celebrated her 110th birthday Thursday, but the former slave's only comment was, "I'll get by."

Mrs. Helms, who celebrated her birthday by smoking a cigarette, was born in Pike County, Ala., in 1863, during the Civil War.

Robert Helms, 66, one of her 15 children—she had her first child when she was 15—recently took her out of a nursing home and brought her to his own home to live because the nursing home's staff wouldn't let her smoke her pipe.

"It just wasn't right to keep her there," he added. Mrs. Helms said she started smoking a pipe when she was 7.

At last count, Mrs. Helms, now confined to a wheelchair, had 40 grandchildren, 47 great-grandchildren and eight great-great-grandchildren.

Gas Find Keeps Hopes Alive

Natural gas in Carteret County?
A New York oil and gas corporation has reported finding significant amounts of natural gas in a well near Newport.
The well was promising enough so that the firm planned to spend an additional $20,000 to "set pipe" in the well for further exploration.
It could be that this well has located the long sought natural gas in North Carolina. There are experts who believe the coastal area is such that there could be reserves of oil and natural gas.

That for years, has kept oil exploration companies at work drilling wells in search of this natural resource which is now so vitally needed.
There have been previous reports of gas traces being found in various areas of the east. Always in the past, however, what has been found has turned out to be swamp gas or natural gas traces too minute to be commercially feasible.
The search goes on, however, and there are many who believe that someday, somewhere in Eastern North Carolina a test well will tap a rich pool of oil or natural gas. When and if it happens it will change our coastal are as it has never been changed before.

No Tests For Being Parent

By BRYAN HAISLIP
RALEIGH.— "Parenting is an important profession, but no test of fitness is ever imposed in the interest of children."

The late George Bernard Shaw, Irish wit and playwright, said it years ago. The trenchant truth remains just as valid today.

Unfit parents exact a toll of child abuse and neglect that makes newspaper headlines in extreme instances, but also causes silent suffering and lasting damage in countless cases never brought to light.

North Carolina has made a significant start in mobilizing its resources to remedy the disastrous effects of parental inadequacies. Though creation of a state Advocacy Commission on Children and Youth and a mandatory reporting law for cases of child abuse and neglect, both enacted by the 1971 General Assembly, the state has accepted a role in defending the interests of its junior citizens.

No other state has so comprehensive a child advocacy movement as North Carolina, said Dr. James R. Tompkins, diector of the state commission

Goals For All Children
"Our goal is to improve the total resources and delivery of services for the emotional, social and educational development of all children and the environmental and administrative systems presenting programs for children," he said.

Dr. Tompkins and staff members recently held a series of meetings around the state with local groups as a step to stimulate development of community advocacy programs.

The first 20 months of the mandatory reporting law brought 13,739 cases of suspected abuse or neglect to the central registry kept by the state department of social services. Of this number, 8,521 children were confirmed to be either neglected or abused. Forty-six were killed.

The law requires that every citizen, with particular responsibility on professionals in the field, report cases of suspected child abuse or neglect to the county department of social services. The police also should be notified if the child is in immediate danger.

Each report is investigated by county social services personnel to take action for the child's protection, including removal from the home if necessary. Last January, 5,966 children were living in foster homes. They included 2,091 placed there because of neglect, 198 who were abandoned, and 68 abuse victims.

All Groups Touched
The phenomenon of child abuse and neglect occurs through all socio-economic groups, said Mrs. Janice G. Wells, supervisor of the Protective Services unit of the state social services department.

Statistics collected in North Carolina, as well as a national study, show that the overwhelming majority of children found neglected or abused are from low-income families, she added.

"The children are children that don't have enough—they don't have enough food, clothing, shelter, medical care or emotional support. They are never given a chance from birth," she said.

The community must take upon itself corrective measures, not through punishing the parents but through direct services that compensate for the family's inability to provide the basic human all children have, Mrs. Wells said.

Money Is Not Enough
"Money — and more of it — will not alone alter the incidence of child abuse and neglect in low-income families," she continued. "Money alone can never substitute for parental inadequacies. Rather, we must, as a community, provide those services which make up for, or correct, parental inadequacies that can be attributed to decades of want. We cannot expect parents to all of a sudden become good parents themselves when given additional sums of money."

At the upper end of the economic scale, parrents become more sophisticated in the neglect of their children, she said.

"Their children may be clean, well-fed, have adequate shelter— outwardly appear to come from a decent, respectable family. A closer look at such a family, however, may reveal serious emotional neglect," Mrs. Wells explained.

The poor and the affluent share some of the same problems which cause child neglect or abuse — an alcoholic parent, marital instability, parent-child conflict. "A child from such a family may run away from home, get pregnant, begin using drugs. The parents, unable emotionally to handle such problems, disown the child," Mrs. Wells said.

"We have the knowledge now, but I am not sure we really have the will to prevent this disease which takes thousands of children's lives each year and which results in irreparable harm to hundreds of thousands of children."

Markers Call To Mind Old Tar River Bridge

Danger signs erected on the Tar River will mark a hazard for boaters, but will bring back memories for those old enough to remember the old Pitt Street bridge.

The markers show where underwater pilings are located which once supported the bridge across the river at Pitt Street.

The bridge came down when the Greene Street bridge was constructed.

There are plans for the eventual construction of another Pitt Street bridge to be coupled with the Greene Street bridge. Until then, however, only the markers show where the old bridge was located.

Anti-Politician Aiming Higher?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
SPRINGFIELD, Ill.

Gov. Dan Walker, whose first hundred days in office have been a failure by any conventional standard, is still reaching the people over the heads of the political establishment in a populist appeal his lieutenants hope will reach the White House in 1976.

Walker's deliberately chosen enemy is the entire political establishment: the leadership of both parties in the state legislature; Mayor Richard Daley's Chicago Democratic machine and his downstate allies; the state bureaucracy; the education lobby; segments of organized labor, an, most of all, the press. Yet his most bitter enemies agree with the governor's private polls that Walker is more popular today than last November when he ran a million votes ahead of the state Democratic ticket.

The reason stems from the utter simplicity of Walker's two-point platform: (1) I am honest; (2) I will cut taxes. Since the legislature seems sure to adopt some tax cut, the governor is likely to get credit. Moreover, he benefits from the fact that his critics in the establishment, particularly the media, are viewed by the voters as common enemies.

The potential defect of Walkerism is the difficulty of maintaining absolute purity. Right now, for example, his foes are blowing up a mini-scandal, tiny by Illinois traditions, to colosall size—deeply worrying Walker's image-conscious inner circle, particularly in light of Watergate.

The Walker camp's hopes to go national with his anti-government, anti-tax, anti-establishment populism are scarcely disguised. Walker himself, facetiously or not, recently told highly popular Republican state Atty. Gen. William Scott he would have a clear shot for governor in 1976 because Walker would not be seeking reelection.

Superficially, Walker's governor should nurture no presidential hopes. An unprecedented five appointments have died in the state Senate. His dependable supporters in the legislature do not exceed a dozen. He has offered no real legislative program. His credibility and popularity with the press are near zero. In particular, Illinois liberals are distraught.

But Walker, while enlisting nationwide liberal support with his seemingly quixotic crusade against the Daley machine last year, is not now and never has been a conventional liberal. In a recent interview with us, he referred critically on several occasions to liberals, labeling demands for a full legislative program as "liberal dogma."

Indeed, what we called "white-collar Wallaceism" last fall has blossomed into genuine "Walkerism." He has thrust the budgetary knife into two liberal sacred cows: mental health and higher education. He is planning wholesale removal of cheaters from the welfare rolls. Aides of conservative Gov. Ronald Regan of California, arch-enemy of welfare recipients, are coming to Springfield to help out.

"The people want government to stop doing all these things for them," Walker told us. The legislature might well meet every other year just to repeal laws now on the books, he added.

To deliver this message despite media hostility, Walker has devised the "fly-around"—landing without warning in half a dozen spots around the state and then attacking the distant establishment. The process has intensified Walker's support among downstate low-income voters and disillusioned his upper-income liberal backers from the Chicago area.

This liberal attrition can be partially traced directly to apprehension over the power of Victor de Grazia, Walker's campaign manager now in the new post of deputy governor. Crafty, hot-tempered and Machiavellian, de Grazia has wielded a sharp axe purging state officials and confronting state legislators. Staunch Walker men, including some of his state appointments, privately whisper fears that de Grazia will prove the governor's

Strength For Today

THE PROBLEM OF TEMPER

Frederick William IV of Germany once lost his temper because of a servant's negligence. While the king raved and ranted at the unfortunate man, the Queen, who was standing by, merely gazed quietly about the room in one direction after another. When the king paused in his tirade long enough to ask the Queen what she was looking for, she replied, "I am looking for the king."

We don't need queens standing at our side to make it plain to us that when we lose our tempers we lose all the better qualities of our character and personality. The worst passion in the world can be mastered if we set about to do so with the help of God. Those people who think that a bad temper is a characteristic which cannot be changed are deceiving themselves. History gives us many outstanding examples of men who in their youth had not, ungovernable tempers, but who conquered these tempers in their mature years. St. Paul declared that he could do all things "through Him that strengtheneth me."

Secretariat Is The One

WASHINGTON — One thing that everyone in this country seems to agree on is that we must restore faith in the executive branch of the government. Although President Nixon has appointed new people to the White House, most of them are old faces that just have been moved around from one post to another.

What the nation needs desperately is someone in the White House who has the complete and unequivocal backing of all the American people — someone who has never been touched by scandal of any kind; whose credibility is unquestioned and who is a symbol of everything Americans believe their leaders should be.

The only one on the American scene to do this is Secretariat, the triple-crown winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes.

If President Nixon would appoint Secretariat to an important position in the White House, he would be going a long way toward his promise of cleaning house and restoring the image of the Presidency. Mr. Nixon would be saying to the American people, "You want new faces in the White House. I'm giving you a winner."

Now before you scoff at my suggestion I would like to point out there is a precedent for such an appointment. The Roman Emperor Caligula appointed his own horse as a proconsul to Rome. It's true Caligula did this to show his contempt for the Senate, but I don't think any self-respecting person believes that Mr. Nixon would appoint Secretariat for the same reason.

As a special assistant to the President, Secretariat could accompany the President to Camp David and San Clemente. Mr. Nixon could confide in him without fear that his conversation would be leaked to the press. And when the President gets tired and weary from all the affairs of state, he could ride Secretariat around the White House lawn.

The 3-year-old stallion could also fulfill other functions in the White House. When Press Secretary Ron Ziegler, or his assistant Gerald Warren, receive a particularly tough question they could say, "we'll check that out with Secretariat and get back to you later." Or if Secretariat can't answer it, they can always replay "That's a horse of a different color."

Secretariat could show up for political fund-raising dinners and at congressional hearings. He could get involved in the energy crisis and go to Paris with Henry Kissinger.

But his most important function would be that when the President's enemies call for his resignation or impeachment, Secretariat could warn the country that you don't change horses in midstream.

As President Nixon has said many times he would go to any lengths to clear up Watergate, Secretariat could supply him with 31 lengths to start with.

I have given reasons why President Nixon would want Secretariat in his Cabinet. But why would Secretariat take the job at this time?

The answer is that Secretariat is being retired from racing this year and therefore would have no conflict of interest. Also, America has been good to Secretariat and he would like to pay it back with some public service. At three years old, he feels he still has a lot to give to this country.

When I suggested my idea to friends in the White House press corps, they were quite skeptical that Secretariat could restore faith in the Presidency. One said,

Summit Hopes Strong

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House says the U.S.-Soviet summit will not produce a sweeping new arms-limitation agreement, but is hoping the two nations can achieve a breakthrough toward permanent nuclear curbs.

At a news conference Thursday, presidential assistant Henry A. Kissinger said flatly there "will not be an agreement on the substance" of strategic-arms-limitation (SALT) negotiations during the week-long summit.

But Kissinger said he does expect extensive discussion "which might open the way to more harmonious, more compatible instructions" to U.S. and Soviet negotiators who are seeking in Geneva to reach permanent arms limitation accords.

The talks between President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev, at the White House, at Camp David and in San Clemente, Calif., could bring a turning point in negotiations and accelerate the pace toward eventual agreement, Kissinger said.

At about the same time that Nixon's chief foreign-affairs adviser was holding his news conference, Brezhnev was holding an unprecedented meeting with American correspondents in Moscow.

The general chairman of Soviet Communist party brushed aside suggestions that the Watergate scandal might influence his talks with Nixon, saying "it does not enter my mind to think of whether Mr. Nixon has lost or gained any influence because of the affair."

Brezhnev added "it would be completely indecent for me to refer to it" and said "my attitude toward Mr. Nixon is one of very great respect."

Brezhnev, returning a visit Nixon paid to the Soviet capital in May 1972, plans to arrive in the United States Saturday and spend the rest of the weekend at Nixon's Camp David retreat in the Maryland mountains 75 miles northwest of Washington.

Monday he will be welcomed to the White House by Nixon and the two leaders will begin their talks. There will be a White House dinner Monday night and talks will continue Tuesday.

Then, Wednesday and Thursday, Nixon and Brezhnev will confer in the rustic seclusion of Camp David before attending a Thursday night dinner at the Soviet Embassy.

They will fly to the President's ocean-side estate in San Clemente Friday, from where Brezhnev is to deliver a nationwide television address, probably

Trade With Soviet Is Natural

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — After three days of meetings with bank and government officials in Moscow, A.W. "Tom" Clausen, Bank of America president, is greatly encouraged about the future of trade with the Soviet Union.

Moreover, he said, he is optimistic about the prospects for world peace and higher living standards, which he believes are logical consequences of nations cooperating to supply needs rather than threatening and restraining.

Clausen led a delegation from the $41-billion San Francisco-based bank, the nation's largest financial institution, to the Soviet capital to discuss approaches to financing the expected trade surge between the countries.

While few specifics were nailed down during the late May sessions with Gosbank, the state bank; Gosplan, the state committee for planning; and various other institutions, Clausen was able to state unequivocally at a Moscow news conference:

"The private financial institutions of the West will facilitate financing on reasonable terms for any project or arrangement which is of mutual benefit. We are eager to take part."

In some respects, he noted, the economies of the Soviet Union and the United States are complementary. The United States needs energy and the Soviets have it. The Soviets need agricultural products, which the United States has.

Ideological differences, he decided, might be a short-run obstacle, but nothing that cannot be accommodated by two peoples who put man into space and who now are cooperating on space technology. He conceded, in an apparent reference to capitalist and Socialist approaches, that "politics compromises the economics and always will."

The Soviets, he said, "are very intelligent, tough negotiators."

They seek tariff adjustments, such as are afforded "most favored nations." They want fixed interest rates, although Clausen feels "it's our obligation to our shareholders to have a fair markup and not have loss leaders."

But the area of cooperation is growing, Clausen said.

Pain-Killer Makers Deny FTC Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three manufacturers of pain-killing nonprescription drugs have denied the Federal Trade Commission's charges that their advertising was misleading and that they have no proof for some claims. Although the manufacturers denied the FTC charges in briefs filed with the commission, they offered no evidence to back up their assertions. Denials of five advertising agencies were also released by the FTC Thursday.

The claims challenged by the FTC involve Bristol-Myers Co.'s Bufferin, Excedrin and Excedrin PM; American Home Products Corp.'s Anacin and Arthritis Pain Formula Anacin, and Sterling Drug Co.'s Bayer Aspirin, Bayer Children's Aspirin, Cope, Vanquish and Midol.

The claims the FTC had attacked included: Bufferin works twice as fast as aspirin; Bayer aspirin is better than plain aspirin, and Anacin is more effective than plain aspirin.

Sterling said in its brief filed with the FTC that Bayer had been tested against 220 other brands of aspirins, but did not offer the results of the tests.

Bristol Myers said that the FTC complaint would censor truthful advertising. American Home Products said the FTC's proposal to require corrective advertising was inappropriate.

Preparing To Fly Home

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With a week left in their record space mission, Skylab's astronauts today made some preliminary plans to come home.

Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz adjusted their sleep cycle to an earlier wakeup time and checked systems in the Apollo spacecraft that they'll detach for the ride back to earth. Mission Control alerted them at 4:30 a.m. EDT and planned to get them up an hour earlier than that Saturday. The space-men began accustoming themselves to the earlier work hours to get ready for splashdown.

While Kerwin studied the sun with an array of telescopes, Conrad and Weitz boarded the Apollo, linked to one end of the 118-foot-long space station, and gave its guidance, navigation, control and communications systems a thorough test.

On Saturday all three astronauts will be in the Apollo ship for a full simulation of undocking, re-entry and landing procedures.

The present mini-scandal plaguing Walker, called "Walkergate" by his enemies, supports those fears. De Grazia is clearly behind the abrupt firing of the state liquor control commission chairman, who claims de Grazia suppressed his investigation of a Walker campaign contributor. De Grazia's denials, perhaps unfairly, are given little credence by Walker's enemies, who are desperately trying to build their own Watergate scandal.

In this crisis some key liberal Democrats stand by Walker despite his anti-government ideology, despite de Grazia's power politics and despite their distaste for Walker's presidential ambition. The reason: whatever his shortcomings, they view Walker as a genuine threat to the hated Daley machine—a subject for another column from Illinois.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market nose-dived again today, and analysts pinned the blame on President Nixon's new economic plan.

They said there was confusion in the United States over the effects the price freeze would have on the economy and disappointment in Europe over the limited scope of the program.

Europeans' lack of enthusiasm for the plan brought the dollar under heavy selling pressure abroad and boosted the price of gold. This also depressed the stock market, analysts said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which fell more than 12 points Thursday after Nixon announced the freeze, was off 13.85 points more to 889.07 at 11:30 a.m.

Declines overpowered advances by 9 to 2 in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The broad-based NYSE index of some 1,500 common stocks had fallen .61 points to 55.44 at 11 a.m., while the price-change index on the American Stock Exchange was off .05 to 22.59.

Colin Kelly's Dollar Declines Widow Dies On Money Mart

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mrs. J. Watson Pedlow, widow of World War II flier hero Colin P. Kelly Jr., died in Sault St. Marie, Canada Thursday while on vacation, a family spokesman said.

Her first husband, an Army captain, died on the third day of the war when his bomber was downed after crippling a Japanese cruiser.

Capt. Kelly posthumously received the Distinguished Service Cross. President Franklin D. Roosevelt addressed a letter to whomever would be president in 1956, asking that Capt. Kelly's son be appointed to the U.S. Military Academy at West Point.

Colin P. Kelly III was a year old at the time of his father's death. He attended West Point and today is an Army chaplain holding the rank of major.

Mrs. Pedlow had been married almost 30 years to her second husband, who was vacationing with her. The couple lived in suburban Philadelphia.

In addition to Pedlow, she is survived by her mother, a brother, a daughter and three sons.

LONDON (AP) — Disquiet over Watergate and disappointment over President Nixon's steps to curb U.S. inflation sent the dollar into a decline on European money markets today.

Dollar prices of gold rose to $120 an ounce in London and $121 in Zurich, up from Thursday's $117.75 in both markets.

Despite newly-announced British trade deficits, the pound gained against the dollar in London, up .63 of a cent to $2.5838.

In Amsterdam, the dollar brought only 2.7412 guilders, compared with 2.766 on Thursday. A Dutch currency dealer termed the dollar slump "the result of President Nixon's anti-inflationary measures—if you could call them that."

Comparable dollar declines were registered in other major markets, and similar explanations were heard.

London dealers blamed the slump on the Watergate affair and the possibility the President would lack strength to pull the United States through its economic troubles.

In Paris, banks criticized the Nixon move for omitting specific measures in support of the dollar. The French government has been arguing for steps in this direction.

Dealers in Frankfurt attributed the dollar drop to disappointment over the Nixon initiative. But on the London market, it was suggested that the Watergate scandal remains the prime cause of the dollar's decline because of fear that it may weaken Nixon's ability to solve the country's economic problems.

Patronage Issue Stirs Quarrel In N.C. GOP Ranks

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Local Republican leaders in North Carolina's Third District are seeking gubernatorial aide Gene Anderson's ouster for what they interpret as an attempt to bypass regular party channels in dispensing patronage.

The oust-Anderson move started in Clinton Monday night after Anderson conducted a locked-door meeting with county party chairmen and former campaign leaders for Gov. Jim Holshouser.

Some of the local leaders said Anderson told them he would name one person in each congressional district to control appointments and other types of patronage. Anderson said Thursday the matter was mentioned "only in a broader context that we were going to ask a Republican state employee in his spare and off-duty time to assist in any way he could."

After Anderson's meeting was concluded, some of the leaders gathered again and rewrote a petition asking Holshouser to fire Anderson. Submission of the petition reportedly was delayed to give one local leader time to make a personal appeal to Holshouser, possibly today.

The Clinton meeting was the first of 11 ordered by Holshouser.

Holshouser's news secretary, Jack Childs, said Anderson and several other state employees who accompanied him were "representing the governor" at the meetings.

"They're doing this on their own time. The state is not paying for this. It's political business," Childs said.

Two county leaders who attended the Clinton meeting said the patronage plan and the method employed by Anderson in conducting the meeting could ruin the party, which elected its first governor and U.S. senator in 70 years last fall.

"They seemed to be Greeks bearing gifts, telling us, 'we've got the pie and we're going to give you a slice, but you've got to take the slice we want you to have,'" said Larry Parker, Republican chairman in Harnett County.

"They did it under the pretext of helping the party, but the party organization was left out. It's still Gene Anderson's organization," he said.

Parker added, "The Republican party in North Carolina is not going to have a thing to do or say about any kind of patronage that's coming out of Raleigh. The people that are going to have it is what used to be known as the 'Holshouser for governor' people."

John D. Johnson, chairman in Johnston County, said Anderson "came down here like a king to hand out patronage. He gave us a list of the people such as Clyde Cook, Hugh Barnes, Bruce Lentz or Ballard Everett, names and titles and telephone numbers, people that we were supposed to contact in Raleigh."

"I raised one question and liked to get killed," Johnson said. "I asked why this couldn't be mimeographed and sent out through the Republican party. He (Anderson) said, 'This is confidential information and we don't want it in the hands of the press.'"

Anderson said Thursday afternoon there were a "multitude of inaccuracies in the information" supplied by those who attended the meeting.

"However, I was brought up to believe in the premise 'thou shalt not speak ill of another republican.' I intend to continue to follow this course of action and try to help build a Republican party," Anderson said.

Parker and Johnson contended that the district patronage man would bypass existing party channels, leaving local and state GOP leaders no control over political favors.

Anderson and party chairman Frank Rouse, who campaigned actively for Holshouser opponent Jim Gardner in last spring's primaries, have been at odds for months. Anderson reportedly has attempted to have Rouse replaced as state chairman.

Parker and Johnson said they had been warned not to talk about the Clinton meeting.

"I was told that if this got to the press somebody's going to get the blocks knocked out from under us. There ain't no blocks under me," Parker said in an interview.

Johnson said it was "the damndest meeting I've ever been to and I've been in politics, actively, for almost 10 years. They even had a bouncer at the door and wouldn't let anybody in except those of their own choosing."

Parker said it was "the first locked-out meeting I've ever attended. You were locked in when you went in and you were locked out when you left."

Admission was by invitation only. All others were turned away.

Mrs. Jack Daniels of Goldsboro, who attended the meeting, was among those who declined to discuss the matters taken up at the meeting. "We were asked not to talk about it," she said.

Mrs. Daniels, however, said, "I don't see why people are making such a fuss about this."

Brezhnev Gives Press View Of His Quarters

By DAVID MASON
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Like a proud homeowner, Leonid I. Brezhnev took 11 American newsmen on a tour of his quarters Thursday in an effort to dispel "the mysterious unknown wafting above the Kremlin."

He said this was how the Western press often referred to the seat of supreme power in the Soviet Union.

Holding his first news conference as general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, Brezhnev summoned the reporters because of his June 18-26 summit meeting with President Nixon.

Brezhnev took the newsmen first into a large salon where the Politburo meets weekly, on into his private office and back through a false bookcase wall to a hideaway where he takes catnaps.

He gave some "insider information" on how he runs Politburo meetings, checked out his Kremlin inter-communications system while reporters watched and showed off pictures and other mementos.

Newsmen got a glimpse of a small white spittoon near Brezhnev's desk, a bed in his private hideaway, a refrigerator and a well stocked medicine cabinet.

The three-hour meeting with newsmen was an obvious attempt by the bushy-browed, often forbidding Kremlin leader to cast himself in a new image as he prepares for his first trip to the United States.

Brezhnev even got into his family affairs—about which little is ever disclosed—saying his wife "is not too well, she's in bed."

He said she won't be accompanying him to the United States, and neither will his son. His son's boy, Brezhnev said, is coming up to exam time. He laughed and said, "You know what the feelings of a father are at a time like that, as if he could help by staying here with him."

Brezhnev, wearing a summer weight blue-gray suit and a blue and red tie, juggled pencils and a matchbox as he chatted—first tensely, then more easily—with the newsmen.

He puffed about one filter tipped cigarette every half-hour, a cutback from his chain-smoking days. He appeared fit, despite past rumors about bad health, but his eyes showed strain.

When did he last use his "hot line" with Nixon, one reporter asked.

"Long time ago. I can't remember. But we have very good relations with Mr. Rogers and so there is little need for it."

With obvious pleasure, Brezhnev showed newsmen pictures taken with Nixon during their first summit in May 1972 and another showing West German Chancellor Willy Brandt and Brezhnev motorboating in the Crimea in September 1971.

As he led the reporters out of the room, he said, "You see there are no bombs, no explosives here."

Agricultural Tour Will Be Held On Wednesday

The annual agricultural tour sponsored by the Coastal Plain Development Association's Agricultural Committee is scheduled for Wednesday, according to county extension chairman Edwin L. Yancey.

The day-long tour, Yancey said, will feature several stops both in and out of the county that will be of interest to area farmers and agribusiness leaders.

He said that stops are scheduled at Bruce Foods Inc. in Wilson where a sweet potato processing plant will be seen in operation; the Wayne Stokes farm near Greenville where approximately 100 acres of tobacco is being grown with complete mechanization; the Texas Gulf Sulfur Company's Lee Creek phosphate mining and manufacturing plant; a mechanized forestry stop showing the harvesting of a 14-year-old pine stand and some of the latest equipment used for harvesting forest products; and Texas Gulf's beef herd of over 1,000 brood cows, recognized as the largest herd in the state.

Yancey, pointing out that ladies are invited to participate in this year's activities, said that the tour will travel by buses which will load at the Pitt County Fairgrounds. He added that the buses will leave around 8 a.m. Wednesday and the tour should return to Greenville around 5:30 p.m.

The cost of tour, he said, will be $7 and the fee includes both transportation and lunch. Yancey urged persons interested in taking the tour to call the Pitt Extension office here at 758-1196 as soon as possible for information or reservations.

Brochure Of Facts For Voters Published Here

Facts For Voters, a black and white brochure to inform area people about registration and voting that also includes a roster of public officials, has been published by the Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters

In the registration section, information is outlined in easy to understand columnar form on the topics such as: qualifications of a voter; where to register; when a transfer of registration is required; when it's necessary to re-register; and information on party affiliation and absentee ballots.

Another section gives useful information on the proper address and salutation forms to use in letters to federal and state officials. On the same page, an election calendar gives dates for primary and general elections at state and county levels; and dates for municipal and special elections.

One page is devoted to a complete listing, with year of expiration of term, of state, county and municipal elections, including the Pitt and Greenville School Boards. Appointed rather than elected officials are so indicated.

The final block of information in this handy folder sets forth the schedule of public meetings, giving times, locations, and phone numbers.

Mrs. Carol Collins and Mrs. Kay Clyde, who co-chair the Publicity Committee of the local League of Women Voters chapter, have reported that a limited number of copies are available to interested persons. These have been distributed to the Welcome Wagon for newcomers; others may pick up a copy from the Chamber Merchants Association, the Board of Elections, or from any of the three libraries in Greenville.

Plans call for reprinting Facts

Wilson Rallies In Late Innings To Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Wilson's American Legion baseball team came up with five unearned runs in the eighth inning last night to pull back from a 7-2 deficit and tie Greenville. Then, in the ninth, they outscored the locals, 3-2, to pull out the victory and hand Greenville its second straight Area I loss.

The win boosted the Wilson record to 4-1 in the league, good enough for second place. Greenville fell off to a 2-2 mark with the loss.

William Woolard appeared to be cruising along, as he had a no-hitter going for four innings. He was tagged for a run in the fifth and another in the seventh. Then, in the eighth, after two were out and another reached on an error, he was tagged for four straight hits and a walk, one of the hits a three-run triple, and that spelled the end for him.

Vic Corey was then hit for four hits by the first five batters in the ninth as he gave up three runs.

Greenville came back to push over two, and had the tying run at third and the winning at second with two away, when a called third strike ended the game.

Woolard, strong in the early innings, did get into trouble in the first when he walked the leadoff batter, Doug Dickens, and wild pitched him to second. Dickens took third on an infield out, but Woolard struck out the next batter and got another infield out to save the inning.

Wilson didn't threaten again until the fifth when they finally scored their first run.

Greenville, meanwhile, had been busy with its own scoring. They put a man on second in the first as Duncan Charlton reached on an error and stole second. Bill Lee walked with two away, but an infield out ended the threat.

The locals then came up with a run in the second. Griff Garner reached on an error with one down. Dickie Johnson sacrificed him up and Woolard aided his cause with a ringing double to right center, easily scoring Garner for a 1-0 lead.

Greenville then came up with three more, again unearned, in the third. Robert Brinkley walked and with one down, so did Lee. Brinkley stole third and while Wilson's catcher was trying to decide whether to throw to that base, Lee moved on to second completing the double theft. Rodney Perry, who got new life when his foul fly was dropped, singled to center to score both Brinkley and Lee, advancing to second on the relay home. Garner followed with a single to center, scoring Perry for a 4-0 lead.

Three more crossed in the fourth. With one down, Charlton dribbled a ball through the middle and Brinkley got a blooper over the third-baseman's head. Then, with two down, Lee lashed a line drive down the left field stripe, scoring Charlton. Perry beat out a slow roller to third, and that brought in Brinkley and moved Lee to third. Greenville then completed its second double steal, scoring Lee as Perry took second.

Wilson came up with its first run in the fifth. Frankie Williamson singled and advanced on an error on the play. Keith Stutts walked and Joe Murray hit back to short. Stutts was cut down on the play at second, but the ball was thrown away in the attempt to complete the double play, allowing Williamson to come all the way from second to score.

In the sixth, a walk and a high bouncing single put two on for Wilson, but nothing came of it.

They pushed in another run in the seventh. Stutts walked and Murray doubled him to third. He then scored on an infield out by Jimmy Bryant to cut the lead to

In the eighth, Wilson rallied for five, all unearned, to tie it up. With one down, Jay Morris reached on an error. After another out, Williamson started the hit parade with a single to right. Stutts beat out a slow roller to second, loading the bases. Murray then cracked a triple off the left field fence, easily scoring all three runners. Bryant walked and stole second. The ball was thrown away on the attempt to get him, and Murray raced home. Dickens then singled in Bryant with the tying run.

In the ninth, Wilson struck for three more to win it. Ricky Bass singled and Morris doubled. Billy Davis grounded out, but it brought in Bass. Williamson singled in Morris and Stutts got a hit. Bryant added another hit, scoring Williamson with the 10th Wilson run.

Greenville came back to pull within one in the bottom of the frame. With one away, Stanley Cobb singled and Lee got a hit. Both advanced on a wild pitch and scored on a single by Perry. John Barwick singled, but was caught at second on Garner's fielder's choice. Garner stole second, but with two outs, the next batter watched the third strike and that was it.

Another key incident occurred in the sixth, when Brinkley singled and moved to third on Cobb's single. The two attempted the double steal, but Brinkley was called out at home in a play that resulted in the ejection of one of the Greenville coaches in the furor that followed.

Greenville travels to Tarboro tonight, seeking to break its two-game losing streak.

Little Mint In 1st Defeat

Quadrant handed the Little Mint its first loss of the season last night in the Senior Babe Ruth League, 5-1. And Kinston pulled into a tie for the lead with a 9-7 win over Taff Office Equipment.

The Little Mint and Kinston both have 5-1 records on the season. Quadrant is now 3-5, while Taff is 4-4.

In the opener, Little Mint took the lead in the second inning when they got their only run. That came on a homer by Barry Johnson. It was one of only three hits Little Mint got off Belton Wiggins of Quadrant.

Quadrant struck for the lead in the fifth inning, pushing over two runs. Terry Bell led off with a walk and Doug Young walked. Doug Amerson singled, driving in Bell. An error allowed Young to come around for a 2-1 lead.

They added another run in the sixth. Wiggins singled and Dennis West reached on an error. Jimmy Heatherly singled to center, driving in Wiggins to make it 3-1.

The final two came over in the seventh. Larry Young singled and Dennis Stilley got a hit. Wiggins got an infield hit, loading the bases. An error on the play let Young come across. West then reached on a fielder's choice, scoring Stilley with the fifth Quadrant run.

Taff grabbed the initial lead in the second game. David Clifton led off the first, reaching on a two-base error. He stole third and came home on an error on the play.

Taff added another run in the second. Wesley Deal singled and took second on a passed ball. Clifton slammed a triple, bringing Deal home for a 2-0 lead.

In the top of the third, however, Kinston rallied for three runs to take the lead. Bruce Reese led off with a home run, starting the rally. Greg Novicki singled and Rob Jones got a hit. Both advanced on Colin McDuffy's hit and Franklin Blackwell hit into a fielder's choice, scoring Novicki. Jeff Joyner then singled in Jones for the 3-2 lead.

Kinston came up with two more in the fifth inning. Jones walked and McDuffy reached on an infield hit. Blackwell doubled in Jones and Cliff Sullivan sacrificed over McDuffy.

They got two more in the sixth to take a 7-2 lead. Reese and Novicki both walked and moved up on a wild pitch. Another scored Reese, and a passed ball let Novicki cross.

Taff rallied to tie it up with five runs in the bottom of the sixth. Jack Jones doubled and scored on Gene Forrest's double. An error let Forrest come the rest of the way. Jimmy Wilson singled and Clifton walked. Pete Cullop also walked, loading them up, and Willie Streeter doubled to drive in all three runners, tying the game at 7-7.

But Kinston came back with two in the top of the seventh to eek out the victory. Clarence Hardison singled and was sacrificed up. Novicki reached on an error, scoring Hardison, and three wild pitches brought Novicki around with the insurance run.

Carolina Captures 6-4 Victory Over Bucs

CHAPEL HILL — The University of North Carolina jumped quickly into the lead, scoring three runs in the first inning and went on to record a 6-4 victory over East Carolina University.

It was the fifth loss in six games for the Pirates, who have only been beaten badly in one of those losses. The rest have all come by one or two runs, two in extra innings.

East Carolina tried to rally in the eighth inning, taking advantage of four walks to help score three runs, but Carolina broke it before they could catch up.

The Bucs got only five hits off three Carolina pitchers, while the Tar Heel collected nine of their own, as East Carolina used four pitchers.

The Pirates offered the first threat, but it was Carolina that pushed over the first runs. The Bucs got a man into scoring position in the top of the first when Ron Leggett led off with a walk and stole second. But three fly balls left him stranded.

The Tar Heels then came back to score three runs off starter Steve Herring in the first inning. Early Jones led off, working up a 3-2 count, then cracked a homer over the scoreboard in left field, giving the Heels a 1-0 lead.

Chuck Moore kept it going, getting a single to center. Then, with one away, Jimmy Barwin walked. Both runners moved up on a ground out, and an infield single by Tom Kennedy scored Moore. Dale Lydecker then singled to right to drive in Barwin and give North Carolina a 3-0 lead.

East Carolina came back to score a run in the second. Carl Summerell led off the frame with a double up the alley in left center. Bobby Harrison followed that with a single to center, driving in Summerell. Harrison moved up on the first out of the inning, but got no further than second.

North Carolina countered that with another run in the second. With two down, Moore singled to left and Bobby Guthrie smashed a triple to right center, easily scoring Moore for a 4-1 edge by the Tar Heels.

What proved to be the difference came in the fourth, when North Carolina added two more runs. Randy McNeal led off with a single to left and after one was out, Jones walked. Moore also walked. Moore also walked, loading the bases. Guthrie hit a fly to center, scoring McNeal after the catch Barwin followed with a single, scoring Jones. Dickie Witt reached on an error, loading the bases again, but the Bucs finally got out of it.

Carolina offered only one more threat the rest of the way, in the sixthinning. With one down, Moore walked and Guthrie doubled, but two infield outs ended that.

East Carolina had another chance in the third when Leggett again walked and with one down, Troy Eason singled and John Narron followed with another hit. Leggett, trying to score on the play, was cut down at home. Summerell followed with a walk, loading the bases, but a fly ball got the Heels out of the jam without a run.

Another threat came in the fourth when Danny Carpenter reached on an error and was sacrificed up, but never reached third.

In the sixth, a pair of walks, to Summerell and Greg Fulghum put men in scoring position, but to no avail.

Finally, in the eighth, the Bucs got something going, but it didn't produce quite enough. Harrison, Fulghum and Carpenter all drew walks, loading the bases. Joe Heavner singled to score Harrison and Leggett got his third walk of the evening, bringing in Fulghum. Jimmy Paige grounded out, but that also scored Carpenter. The rally ended there, however, still two runs short.

East Carolina travels to Wilmington tonight for its next game, then returns home on Saturday to face Campbell.

Pirates Tell Cage Schedule

The 1973-74 East Carolina basketball team will participate in the Presidential Classic and face a list of nonconference opponents which include some of the top teams in the nation. The Pirates' schedule for next season was announced today by Clarence Stasavich, ECU athletic director.

In addition to the always bitterly fought 14-game Southern Conference slate, the Pirates will face such formidable opposition as North Carolina State, Duke and Marshall, all on the road, and will have first-time meetings with Fairleigh Dickinson and Buffalo State, both at home.

The Pirates will battle American University, Lehigh and George Washington, January 4-5, for the Presidential Classic title. The tournament is held in Washington, D. C.

Putting Tourney

The first of a series of bi-weekly putting tournaments was held this week at the Greenville Putt-Putt. It was the first of 12 to be held during June and July.

Eight teams make up the local Junior Putters of America League, all sponsored by local businesses.

In the first of the matches, WPXY defeated Stan's Sport Center, Pizza Chef beat Wheelless & Moore, Jefferson Standard downed North Carolina National Bank, and Dwight's beat Louis Clark Agency.

The tournament will eventually result in a City Championship for one team, which will then advance to the Regional Playoffs.

Tom Quinn, East Carolina head coach, foresees a stiff challenge for his Pirates next season.

"Only one of our top ten players from the Southern Conference championship team of two years ago remains," he said. "With an almost entirely new team this will make our task even tougher."

"N. C. State will be number one or two in the nation, and Duke and Marshall are always tough," Quinn added. "And the Southern Conference will be the strongest from top to bottom it has been in years."

The Pirates play 12 games at home and 12 on the road.

Integon Keeps Slim Hope Alive

Integon rolled to a 13-5 victory over the Exchange in the Tar Heel Little League yesterday. The win kept alive Integon's slim hopes of catching league-leading Pepsi-Cola.

Pepsi, however, can clinch the title with a victory today.

The Exchange pushed over three in the first to take the lead. Bart Greene walked as did Pep Cox. Cliff Fearington singled and an error let Greene score. Another error, on Garland Lancaster, let Cox come around, but Fearington was cut down when John Williams reached on a fielder's choice. Eric Deal also reached on a fielder's choice and Mark Douglas singled in Lancaster for the 3-0 lead.

Integon came back with one in the bottom of the first. Bobby Wiggins singled and stole second. Mark Barbar reached on an error and William Barrett grounded out, but scored Wiggins.

Integon got another in the second. Todd Galloway walked and took second on a wild pitch.

He gained third on an out and was wild pitched home.

Exchange added two more in the third. Lancaster walked and Williams singled. Both moved up when Deal reached on a fielder's choice and Douglas hit a sacrifice fly to score Lancaster. Williams then scored on an error.

In the bottom of the third, Integon got three to tie it at 5-5. Lathan Mills walked as did Barbar. Barrett singled in Mills and Mike Walker walked. Blair Smith walked to force in Barbar and a wild pitch brought in Barrett.

Integon then pushed over four in the fourth to take the lead for good. Howard Tucker singled and moved up on an out. Wiggins doubled him in, then scored on Barrett's single. Barrett moved up on a wild pitch and scored on Walker's single. Galloway walked and two wild pitched brought in Walker, while a fielder's choice scored Galloway.

Integon added three more in the fifth to wrap it up.

Rose Six Away From 2,000th

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati's Pete Rose, the kid who was cut from his high school baseball team, because he was too small, expects to join "the big boys" this weekend.

Rose is six hits short of scaling the 2,000-hit plateau, and he figures it will come this weekend against the Pittsburgh pirates.

The 32-year-old Cincinnati native says 2,000 hits is nothing to get excited about.

"It's the next 1,000 hits I'm concerned about," said Rose, who plans to move past 113 of baseball's greats by 1978.

"Three thousand hits are within range," said Rose, who trails only Willie Mays among active National League leaders in total hits. Mays had 3,178 going into this season.

Ty Cobb owns the record of 4,191. "That's impossible," said Rose.

"I'd like to get Frankie Frisch's record of 2,880 for a switch-hitter," said Rose.

He was cut from an American Legion baseball team at age 16. He signed with the Reds in 1960 after his uncle, a scout for Cincinnati, talked the team into taking a chance on the slightly built teen-ager.

"Members of our family always matured later than others," said Rose, now 5-foot-10, 200 pounds.

Rose, with an average of 192 hits in the past 10 years, has 71 hits after 58 games for a .308 average. He's going after his ninth consecutive .300 season.

The stocky outfielder has four games, weather permitting, to collect the necessary six hits at home before the Reds leave on a road trip.

How does he view the possibility of someday being used as a designated hitter?

"I wouldn't like that. I want to play the game—all of it."

Rupp Feels ABA Should Give Up

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Retired University of Kentucky Basketball Coach Adolph Rupp is back home after a year in professional basketball.

Charles O. Finley hired Rupp as president of the Memphis Tams when he acquired the American Basketball Association franchise last summer. Last week Finley sold the franchise.

In an interview with the Sports Editor of the Louisville Times, Dick Fenlon, Rupp contended there is little chance of the ABA surviving. He argued that the league should throw in the towel, with the top clubs becoming part of the established National Basketball Association.

Muhammed Ali Scoffs At Reports He May Be Under Death Sentence

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali scoffs at reports a murder contract has been issued on him and says the only contract he knows of is the pact for his return bout with Ken Norton.

"No one is after me and I'm not hiding," said the former heavyweight champion at a news conference Thursday at the office of his attorney, Robert Arum.

Ali rejected newspaper reports his life was in danger to beat Boston 5-3 and Oakland blanked the New York Yankees 3-0.

The Expos have won nine of their 12 games this month and have taken a firm grip on second place in the NL East. They got six-hit pitching from Steve Renko against the Padres, who dropped their sixth straight game and ninth in the last 10. It was Renko's, fifth victory, which is four more than he won all of last season.

Billy Williams delivered three runs for Chicago with a single and a home run, celebrating his 35th birthday and the Cubs defeated Houston for Ferguson Jenkins' seventh victory of the season.

"You have good years...lead the league in hitting...play in the all star game...be named rookie of the year...all of that," said Williams. "But what you really want is to play in a World Series. I'd trade all of this for that."

Baltimore roared from behind with seven runs in the eighth inning to wipe out a 3-1 Kansas City lead and defeat the Royals. Bobby Grich's leadoff triple strated the rally and Paul Blair's bases-loaded triple put the Birds in charge for keeps.

John Mayberry homered for the Royals and Tommy Davis connected for the Orioles.

Davis also had a pair of singles, extending his hitting streak to 16 games.

Frank Robinson and Ken Berry drove in two runs apiece in California's victory over Boston. Robinson had a two-run homer and Carl Yastrzemski accounted for all the Red Sox runs with his 11th homer.

Sal Bando and Reggie Jackson tagged consecutive pitch homers, moving Oakland past the New York Yankees. Dave Hamilton scattered seven hits and earned his first major league shutout with last-out help from Rolie Fingers.

Floyd Believes He Can Win It

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
Associated Press Sports Writer
OAKMONT, Pa. (AP) — Can a playboy win the U.S. Open Golf Championship?

Ray Floyd admits he likes champagne and women. He accepts the playboy tag, although he thinks it's overrated. He also believes he can win the Open.

The 30-year-old Floyd, a good looking, brown-haired six-footer from Lake Havasu, Ariz., shot a one under par 70 in the first round of the Open over the Oakmont Country Club course Thursday. He trails leader Gary Player in this 73rd Open by three strokes.

Floyd was the early leader before Player chewed up the course. Immediately, his image as a swinger became the topic of conversation.

"Sure, I haven't lived the straightest life, but I think the playboy thing is overrated," said Floyd. "When you're a bachelor you're seen different places with different girls, so right away everybody assumes you're a playboy. That's normal life for a bachelor."

Floyd, who might be considered in golf the same swinging type Bo Belinsky was to baseball, Joe Namath to pro football and Derek Sanderson to hockey, admits he hasn't got the dedication of a Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer or Gary Player.

"Winning isn't everything to me," says Floyd, who hasn't won a tournament since he captured the Professional Golf Association title in 1969. "There is more to life than golf. I'm just not going to sweat it."

Floyd doesn't want to leave the impression that he doesn't give his all when he competes. He simply doesn't take it home with him.

Support For National Guard, Reserves Urged

Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West has called for support of the National Guard and Reserve and urged the "cooperation of American employers in facilitating the participation of their eligible employees in Guard and Reserve programs, without impediment or penalty."

In a statement of support, West said, "We recognize the National Guard and Reserve as essential to the strength of our nation and the maintenance of world peace. They require and deserve the interest and support of the American business community, as well as every segment of our society."

He continued, "In the highest American tradition, these Guard and Reserve forces are manned by civilians. Their voluntary service takes them from their homes, their families and their occupations."

The mayor said that a border public understanding is necessary "if these volunteer forces are to continue to serve our nation."

In urging employer cooperation, West said, "We ... join members of the American Business Community in agreement that: Our employees' job and career opportunities will not be limited or reduced because of their service in the Guard or Reserve; and, our employees will be granted leave of absence for military training in the Guard or Reserve without sacrifice or vacation time."

Discretion On Drunk Drivers

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico law enforcement officers have discretion beginning Friday to give "moderately" drunk drivers a ride home instead of jailing them.

Under the state's new Detoxification Act, if the driver is so drunk he seems unable to take care of himself, officers can take him to the "nearest health care center" for treatment.

But if the officer believes the person to be a danger to himself or others or if there is no readily accessible health center, he can take him to jail where he can be confined for not longer than 12 hours.

Lansky Is Given Jail Sentence

MIAMI (AP) — Reputed underworld figure Meyer Lansky has been sentenced to a year and a day in jail for dodging a grand jury summons.

The 72-year-old Lansky insisted before the Thursday sentencing in federal district court here that he had been unable to respond to the summons because he was ill in Israel.

U.S. District Court Judge James L. King recommended that in consideration of Lansky's "serious medical problems," including open heart surgery last March,

Bob Hope Speaks For Flag Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bob Hope was the principal speaker at the annual Flag Day ceremony in the House Chamber and the comedian proved to be his typical scene-stealer.

Hope said he did not know why he was chosen for the honor unless it was because of the taxes he pays or the time he spends out of the country.

"This is a great moment for me," he said. "This is about the highest a comedian can go."

Following the 45-minute ceremony Thursday, Hope autographed a program for Speaker Carl Albert of Oklahoma. Albert gave Hope an autographed gavel in return.

Certificates

Forrest H. Teague, program director of the Goldsboro vocational rehabilitation facility, and James L. Herring, assistant program director, have received Certificates of Completion in Rehabilitation Administration from East Carolina University.

The certificate program is sponsored by the Department of Rehabilitation Counseling of the ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions.

Interim Committees Are Named By Holshouser

RALEIGH (AP) — Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt says he believes the success of annual legislative sessions in North Carolina depends on the interim committees completing action on bills before the 1974 General Assembly convenes.

Hunt made the statement Thursday as he announced the appointment of 10 Senate committees which will serve between now and Jan. 16 when the next session begins.

Hunt, presiding officer of the Senate, said in a memorandum to the senators that he feels the 1973 General Assembly "was an exceptionally productive session. I do not feel that the full scope and importance of our work has been fully realized yet by the people, but I find them becoming more aware of it each day."

Sens. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, chairman of the 1973 Senate Appropriations Committee, and Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, will head these two interim committees. Sen. Tom Strickland, D-Wayne, will be vice chairman of appropriations, and Sen. Marshall Rauch, D-Gaston, vice chairman of finance.

Other committees and their heads include:

Commerce: Sen. John Henley, D-Cumberland, chairman; vice chairmen—Sens. Phil Godwin, D-Gates; William P. Saunders, D-Moore; Wesley Webster, D-Rockingham; Arthur Williamson, D-Columbus.

Courts and Law Enforcement: Sen. Eddie Knox, D-Mecklenburg, chairman; vice chairmen—Sens. Dallas Alford, D-Nash; Joe Raynor, D-Cumberland; Kenneth Royall, D-Durham.

Judiciary I: Sen. Julian Allbrook, D-Halifax, chairman; Sen. Fred Folger, D-Surry, vice chairman.

Judiciary II: Sen. Luther Britt, D-Robeson, chairman; vice chairmen—Sens. Gordon Allen, D-Person; Herman Moore, D-Mecklenburg; McNeill Smith, D-Guilford.

Natural and Economic Resources: Sen. William W. Stanton, D-Lee, chairman; vice chairmen—Sens. Jack Rhyne, D-Gaston; Sen. Vernon White, D-Pitt.

State and local government: Sen. Rauch, chairman; vice chairmen—Sens. James B. Garrison, D-Stanly; William Mauney, D-Cleveland; Livingstone Stallins, D-Craven.

Transportation: Sen. J. J. Harrington, D-Bertie; Sen. Moore, vice chairman.

Steel Firms See Penalty

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Three of the nation's leading steel firms say they will comply fully with President Nixon's 60-day price freeze but officials of two expressed disappointment with the move.

Following the lead of No. 1-ranked U.S. Steel, the industry had scheduled increases averaging 4.8 per cent on widely used sheet steel that would have been effective today.

The price hike, now suspended because of the price freeze, would have affected hundreds of consumer items, including automobiles, appliances and packaged products.

U.S. Steel vice chairman R. Heath Larry said Thursday the firm shares the President's concern about the present rate of inflation, but added that the most important thing is to determine the next steps to be taken to control the economy.

The strongest reaction came from Frederick G. Jaicks, chairman of the Chicago-based Inland Steel Corp., the nation's fifth largest producer.

Jaicks said, "It is unfortunate that this action will penalize a basic industry with a moderate price performance during the current inflation, and the lowest net return of investment of any major industry in this country."

None of the firms had any comment on the possibility of reinstituting price increases once the 60-day freeze is lifted. Other companies in the "Big 10" had no immediate comment on the freeze.

Little Help For Farmers

RALEIGH (AP) — Two North Carolina agriculture officials say the freezing of consumer prices will have the effect of putting a ceiling on farm product prices.

This was the conclusion reached by Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham and Dr. Fred Sobering, extension economist at North Carolina State University.

Graham said most Tar Heel farmers will benefit very little, if any, from the exemption of raw agricultural products from the 60-day freeze on prices.

Sobering said retailers and processors aren't likely to pay more for raw products if they cannot raise the prices they charge. He added, however, that President Nixon's program will allow for some raw product price changes caused by seasonal variations in supply and demand.

"I hope the President realizes," Graham said, "that the farmer will no longer produce food and fiber in large quantities unless he stands some chance of receiving sufficient prices to assure some margin of profit."

Dies In Lumber Truck's Wreck

FANCY GAP, Va. (AP)—Robert Elmore Setzer, 46, of Hickory, N. C., was killed Thursday when his lumber truck apparently ran out of control as he was descending Fancy Gap Mountain.

The truck turned over and burst into flames before coming to rest. Investigating authorities said it appeared sparks from the sliding truck might have ignited the fuel tank.

Poland Leaning To Prohibition

By NICHOLAS LILLITOS
Associated Press Writer
WARSAW (AP) — There is a growing movement here to bring total prohibition to Poland, one of the heaviest vodka drinking countries in the world and currently suffering from a kingsize, national hangover.

The prohibitionists are being led by an eminent group of Polish psychiatrists and doctors who hope lawmakers will soon turn their "ban alcohol" demands into legislation.

The Alcoholism Research Institute in Warsaw says there are more than a million hardcore drinkers who are close to requiring medical aid in this nation of 33 million. In addition there are 400,000 alcoholics needing treatment.

Poland is a major producer of the world's best vodka, and the clear 45 per cent alcohol portion is certainly part of the everyday scene.

Most Poles toss it down in one glass-emptying gulp.

Walk into any restaurant, day or night, and you'll see a bottle of vodka instead of wine gracing most tables.

And in Polish homes it's as common as a loaf of bread.

Now Prof. Tadeusz Bilikiewicz, a psychiatrist working in the Baltic city of Gdansk and leader of the prohibitionists, hopes to reverse this trend.

Backed by colleagues in his profession, Bilikiewicz has received wide publicity in state newspapers. But he appears to have more critics than supporters and many who oppose prohibition cite the massive problems that arose when America last tried it.

"I don't agree prohibition failed in the U.S.," Bilikiewicz said in an interview. "True, it caused a wave of crime, but the general public was cut off from alcohol.... The number of alcoholics admitted to mental institutions in the U.S. dwindled almost to zero and this was a great achievement."

"Frankly, prohibition would not be necessary in Poland if authorities fully utilized existing laws. But they don't, particularly in small localities where a policeman has problems running in friends or relatives."

Like the neighboring Soviet Union, Poland's drinking problems have been around for years. The ruling Communist party openly admits alcoholism is gravely hindering the country's economy because of the tens of thousands who absent themselves from work.

In 1971 Poles spent an equivalent of more than $2 billion on liquor, or $17 for each man, woman and child in this country, equal to 339 zlotys or nearly three times the daily wage in Poland.

Budget To Be Adopted

WINTERVILLE—Following a public hearing on the 1973-74 budget, the monthly town board meeting was held June 4.

The budget is set at $357,280, carrying a tax rate of $1.16 per $100 valuation and the budget will be adopted at the next meeting July 2. Copies are available in the town clerk office.

Several appointments were made at the meeting. Thirty members were assigned to a new recreation commission. Rommie Mallison, J. H. Mopley, and Pearl Gardner were named to the town board of elections for two-year terms.

Three representatives were appointed to the Mid-East commission: Elwood Nobles, municipal representative; E. C. Hines, governmental representative; and W. E. Whitehurst, law enforcement representative.

The 1974 town automobile license plates were purchased—they will carry the same slogan as those this year.

A non-federal contract with the N. C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources was approved in the sum of $2,000.

Conductor And Wife Divorced

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — Kenneth D. Schermerhorn, conductor of the Milwaukee Symphony Orchestra, and his ballerina wife have been granted a Circuit Court divorce.

The divorce was granted Thursday on grounds that the couple had been voluntarily separated for at least a year. Schermerhorn, a former New York conductor, and his wife were married in 1957 in Mexico.

Mrs. Schermerhorn, known professionally as Lupe Serrano, has not performed for about two years. She was awarded custody of the couple's daughters, aged 9 and 5.

Male Superiority Has Southern Baptist Okay

By ALLEN NACHEMAN
Associated Press Writer
PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A resolution espousing male superiority was approved overwhelmingly by the 8,600-delegate Southern Baptist Convention on the last day of its 116th annual meeting.

Another resolution passed Thursday by the convention called for dismissal and prosecution of public officials of any party involved in the Watergate affair and expressed confidence in congressmen investigating the scandal.

The male-female resolution read, in part: "Man was not made for the woman but the woman for the man.... Woman is the glory of man.... Woman would not have existed without man."

Jessie Sappington of Houston, Tex., had introduced the resolution in roughly the form in which it was passed. But, after passing through the resolutions committee, it represented almost the opposite view.

The committee's version called for giving "full recognition to women in leadership roles in church and denominational life."

Mrs. Sappington reintroduced her version before a vote could be taken on the committee's.

In the ensuing debate, Anne Rossen of Richmond, Va., contended: "God didn't make one sex to lead over the other."

Mrs. Sappington, waving an open Bible at Mrs. Rossen, said: "Honey, you're misinterpreting the Scriptures."

The vote on the Watergate resolution followed a debate in which the Rev. Richard Leubert of Gretna, La., called for deletion of the demand for dismissal and prosecution.

But Preston Callison, a Columbia, S.C., lawyer, argued: "If Christian people back off, we would be saying to the politicians that we did not really expect integrity from them after all."

Another resolution passed by the convention calls for stiff new federal controls on alcohol, drugs and tobacco.

Three Collisions In City Yesterday

An estimated $2,150 property damage was caused here yesterday in three collisions investigated by local police.

Officers reported heaviest damage occurred when two cars collided about 10:30 p.m. on Memorial Drive 200 feet South of the Pine Street intersection.

Drivers of the vehicles were identified as Sandra Stocks Singleton, 20 of Lawson's Trailer Court and Myra Kay Jefferson, 23 of Route 3, Greenville, and damage was set at $150 to the Singleton car and $1,100 to the Jefferson car.

Mrs. Jefferson was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

No charges were reported in a collision on Evans Street 40 feet North of the U. S. 264 intersection which involved cars driven by Myra Bradley Green of 101 Ford St. and Warren Brent Cade of 1207 North Overlook Dr.

Police estimated damage to the Green car at $500 and let damage to the Cade vehicle at $100.

Beatrice VanWagenen Carlisle of Fayetteville was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 10:30 a.m. mishap on 14th Street 70 feet East of the Evans Street intersection.

Alleviating A Shortage

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina School Supt. Craig Phillips says there are "definite indications" that the shortage of public school teachers is being alleviated.

"In fact, recent studies point out that the aggregate supply of trained teachers is expected to significantly exceed demand if recent patterns continue," Phillips said Thursday.

The Department of Public Instruction's Division of Teacher Education said a survey showed the anticipated production of new teachers by North Carolina colleges and universities for 1972-73 is 5,320. This is an increase of more than 500 over 1971-72.

According to the survey, Appalachian State University was the largest producer of teachers in the state during 1972-73 with 1,039.

East Carolina University was second with 842 and the University of North Carolina at Greensboro next with 582. UNC at Chapel Hill produced 420 and Western Carolina University 403.

Cherry Pie Formula Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — Culminating a seven-year controversy, the Food and Drug Administration has published frozen-cherry-pie standards, which are effective Dec. 31.

The regulation requires that cherries constitute no less than 25 per cent of the weight of such pies and that no more than 15 per cent are blemished.

"I for one am happy that we've cleared our shelves of this one," said Harold Salwin, food technologist in the FDA's Bureau of Foods.

The issue arose in 1966, he said, when some manufacturers accused their competitors of scrimping on the number of cherries in their pies.

In following years, the FDA published several proposed or final standards stayed enforcement every time because of industry objections.

The new rule deletes minimum weight of cherries in pie pans of different diameters. Stalwin said, to permit firms to market "economy" products in shallow pans.

How small a man seems — walking down a lonely road on a rainy day, with gaunt trees towering over him.

How small man is, and how frail in body. The trees in the picture and even the chimneys on the old house will probably long outlive the man.

Yet how big man is — in the things that are not of the body, but are of the mind and soul. God has not made man mammoth. But He has made him potentially great — if he will but accept the blessings given him, and use the tools of Christian teachings.

tially great — if he will but accept the blessings given him, and use the tools of Christian teachings.

Man finds in the Church, the encouragement and the instruction to enable him to make from his God-given divine spark something great and enduring — and of benefit to all human-kind.

CASE X-535: Rex P., aged 28, is a teacher.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I want to follow your advice and schedule a high school class in 'Practical Medicine.'"

"Have you any suggestions about what I should cover?"

"And are there any simple experiments or classroom demonstrations that would appeal to students and yet be relevant?"

Practical Medicine
Parents, as well as the students, will relish such a course, which may include these among other innovations:

(1) Ask students to come to the front and strike a safety match.

Most of them violate the safety rule of the Japanese and thus pull the match TOWARD them as they strike it.

You can later let a student try to whittle with a pocket knife, using a small stick of wood.

Again, be sure sure he pushed the knife AWAY from himself.

(2) Employ the "Dieting

LONDON (UPI) — A spokesman for Lloyd's of London, the insurance combine, said thefts from yachts berthed at British marinas have grown so much that, "we are paying more for theft and vandalism than for accidents at sea." The insurance expert said "there is a certain amount of organized crime removing expensive equipment from yachts" and "there is just not enough security" at most marinas. They said rates would have to go up.

Opening lead: Five of ♠
Altho a nearly valueless dummy did not offer much comfort to South, the declarer at three no trump, he did — in fact — have a legitimate play for his contract.

West opened the five of spades and South put up the jack from dummy. When this card held the first trick, declarer realized that he was in the North hand for the last time, and he led a small club. East followed with the nine and South played the jack.

Observe that if West takes his ace, he can establish the spades with one more lead; however, he has no card of reentry left to run the suit. In the meantime, South can clear the clubs by playing the king and another club. East is in with the queen, but he is unable to reach his partner and declarer has nine tricks — two spades, four hearts, one diamond and two clubs.

When South played the jack of clubs from his hand, West realized that it would not be profitable to release his only entry too soon, so he followed to the trick with the deuce of clubs.
West's play was made without undue hesitation so as not to alert the declarer, and South reasoned, therefore, that the outstanding strength in the suit was held by East. Declarer accordingly continued with a small club and East was in with the ten. A spade return enabled West to clear that suit, and when he subsequently gained the lead with the ace of clubs, West cashed enough spade tricks to defeat the contract.

South could have circumvented his opponent's shrewd holdup in clubs, by continuing with the king instead of a low club after his jack held. West is obliged to release his ace on the second round and his spades never come into play as declarer still has a stopper in that suit. When the queen of clubs is driven out subsequently, South has nine tricks.

While there was no way for South to suspect that West held the ace of clubs, he had nothing to lose by continuing with the king. It is a moral certainty that East has the queen of clubs, so it must be right first to dislodge the ace of clubs, which might be an entry to the danger hand.

hearts need fresh protein every day!
There is plenty of sugar, fat and starches in the body, even when you are quite slender.
(4) Demonstrate artificial respiration techniques, including both mouth-to-mouth resuscitation as well as the Schaefer method.
The latter, if you place a folded coat or pillow under the abdomen, is still an excellent method.
(5) Explain that oxygen is the main remedy for heart attacks, so victims should breathe deeply, to avail themselves of the 20 percent oxygen in the air.

(6) Invite local physicians to explain in simple language the mechanics of cataract removal from the eye, as well as other standard surgical operations.
An articulate doctor, with some appropriate charts or blackboard diagrams, can clarify surgery even better than if you were an eye witness at the operating table!
(7) Borrow a microscope from the botany department and let students see red blood corpuscles, as well as the various kinds of white blood corpuscles.

If you are near a hospital, its pathologist would gladly give you a superb demonstration with stained slides.
(8) Let the students take each other's blood pressure, using a borrowed stethoscope and blood pressure cuff.
(9) Invite a dental surgeon to explain the "drifting" of teeth, plus the methods for straightening of crooked teeth, etc.
(10) Ask a local obstetrician to explain the mechanics of birth and the dangers from venereal infection, abortion, etc.

Local dental surgeons, physicians and other experts will gladly donate an hour or more to help you pioneering teachers thus practice medicine!
But don't let your study of physiology and medicine become "high-brow" or academic. Instead, keep it PRACTICAL with many demonstrations!
Send for booklet "How to Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

FOR FAMILY,

Public TV Coverage Is Pinching Its Pocketbook

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Public television's gavel-to-gavel broadcasts of the Watergate hearings may be a boon for local stations. But they're causing a financial pinch for the outfit actually covering the hearings — the National Public Affairs Center for Television.

James Karayn, president of the organization says it is hunting for more money and "we'll take it from anybody. We'll even take it from the Committee for the Re-election of the President."

Center officials say it costs the center about $12,000 each day to televise the hearings live and to tape them for rebroadcast at night.

They say the coverage has produced a tremendous viewer response — more than 70,000 letters, most of them approving — but it also has cut sharply into the center's budget for its own programming.

They say there's just enough money in the till to continue the coverage through June. After that, they'll have to dip into funds they otherwise would use for series or special events programs next fall.

They say that money would come from $800,000 the Corporation for Public Broadcasting has promised the center for the fiscal year starting July 1, as well as from $1.5 million they hope to get from the Ford Foundation.

Karayn says that, without additional funds, the center will have to cancel one of four series it has planned for next fall.

His organization produces the coverage of the hearings for the Public Broadcasting Service but cannot seek public donations for itself.

Its videotape of each day's hearings, complete with summaries and support-your-local-station appeals, is broadcast at night over the "interconnection" linking the 234 public television stations served by PBS.

PBS officials say the evening broadcasts are shown on an average of 90 per cent of those stations. And scores of them use the pauses in the center's hearing coverage to ask viewers for donations.

As of Monday, the response — either by phone-in pledges or contributions by mail — had netted WNET here $45,000 in cash since the May 17 start of the hearings, according to station officials.

PBS, which like the center says viewer reaction to coverage of the hearings has been excellent, says it has no figures on how much cash viewers have sent in throughout the United States. Karayn estimates it at $750,000.

Center officials say despite their money problems they'll continue covering the Watergate hearings to the end. But they hope for additional funds — possibly from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting — that will let them avoid cutbacks in their own programs for the fall TV season.

WindpowerGetting Further Attention

WASHINGTON (AP) — An almost forgotten energy source is beginning to attract attention from scientists looking for non-polluting ways to power America's growing industries.

That source—the wind—could supply all the energy needed by the six New England states in the year 2000 if the United States were willing to commit the resources to do the job, advocates say.

It could supply almost 10 per cent of the energy needed in the United States by the year 1990, they add.

And it already is powering the home of an aeronautical engineer who lives in an isolated area of northern Maine.

More than 40 scientists and engineers concluded a three-day conference on ways to harness the wind's power, held in conjunction with the National Science Foundation and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

The conferees agreed it is unlikely that any contribution to the energy problems could be made by windpower in the next three years, but they believe windpower can play an increasingly important role in the years after that.

The National Science Foundation has budgeted a little more than $1 million to study windpower during the fiscal year 1974 beginning July 1.

Patrolwomen Can't Fill Strength Needs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A San Francisco experiment with patrolwomen may be discontinued soon because they just can't handle the physical aspects of the job, a police official says.

The alternative is a change in the Civil Service entrance requirements "to give us bigger, stronger patrolwomen," said George Elmil, the city's police personnel director.

"When things get down to the nitty gritty, where physical strength is required, men officers feel a man officer is needed," Capt. Jeremiah Taylor said Wednesday. "They believe a patrolwoman just can't hold up her end."

Taylor, who supervises the uniformed patrol force, said patrolwomen are "unable to perform physically like a male officer in physical encounters, making arrests where there is resistance, or lifting drunks."

Four women were assigned to prowls cars under an experimental program begun late last year.

"The purpose was to put them on the street to see if they could do police work there," said Elmil. He added that evaluation reports on three of the four women have been completed.

"They show—and the three women agree—that women officers can perform certain police functions just like men," he said. "But where strength was required, the women were the weaker sex and couldn't perform."

He said that, when one man and woman officer team came upon a drunk, "the woman officer physically was unable to assist the man officer in lifting him. So they had to call in for another radio car to help."

Policewomen must weigh at least 115 pounds and stand 5 feet 5, while policemen must be a minimum of 138 pounds and 5 feet 7.

Tips For A Tiny Garden

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — An apartment garden can produce luscious tomatoes if they're planted and cared for properly.

Dr. Walt Virgin, manager of plant pathological research for Del Monte Corp., gives the following tips for growing tomatoes in a kitchen, living room or den:

—Buy nursery soil, it's inexpensive and disease-free. Put the dirt in an eight-inch clay pot, water it well and let it set two days before planting.

—Choose seeds suited to reduced sunlight conditions. Five recommended varieties are Tiny Tim, Small Fry, Patio, Ace and Manapal.

—Place one seed each in three or four holes about three fourths of an inch deep, cover and water. After the seedlings are three inches tall, thin the crop to one plant per pot.

—To help the pollination process in lieu of bees and wind, flick the vines after the flowers are fully developed.

Virgin said persons who smoke should wash their hands before handling plants because tobacco transmits a virus which can harm them. Finally, don't overwater —keep the soil damp, not wet.

Edible Spoons In Scandinavia

ROSEMONT, Ill. (UPI) — Edible spoons and aerating straws are in the wind. The Dairy Research Digest says the spoons were developed in an unnamed Scandinavian country. Only the bowls are edible—the handles are plastic. The bowls made of a milk sugar are colored light blue and the milk-only variety are yellow. They dissolve while they sweeten and lighten coffee or tea. The Digest described the aerating straws as devices that convert flavored milk to milk shakes and flat beverages to carbonated ones as the straws are used.
