Tax Rate Reduction Recommended

$5,286,284 Budget For City

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

For the fiscal year coming up, the proposed 1973-74 Budget and Capital Improvements Program for the City of Greenville totals a whopping $5,286,284. This is an increase of 67.1 per cent, or a dollar increase of $2,123,989 over the durrent 1972-73 budget.

Despite the 13.5 per cent basic budget increase, a recommendation is being made to reduce the tax rate by 33 cents per $100 property valuation to a $1.21 tax rate.

Basically, the increase in the total budget and the decrease in the reduction of the tax does not amount to a drastic change in the current tax picture. Most taxpayers will be paying about the same amount of taxes, and in some instances, higher taxes; while the increase in local revenue gained will amount to less than half a million dollars.

Speaking about the increase figures, City Manager William Carstarphen points out. .."These figures alone could be misleading as the increase is a result of two factors.

"The first and principal reason," he notes, "is the advent of Federal Revenue Sharing. This alone will add approximately $1,350,000 to the recommended 1973-74 budget.

"The second, " Carstarphen writes, "is the recently revised North Carolina Local Government Finance Act which requires for the first time appropriation in the City Budget of the full amount of all City debt service including the General Obligation Debt of the Utiltites Commission."

Carstarphen sums up the net results after considering these factors with an explanation. "If these two unusual factors are filtered out, the result is a more accurate picture of proposed increases."

The "more accurate picture" Carstarphen refers to amounts to a 1973-74 proposed local revenue budget of $3,589,672. This figure in itself is a 13.5 per cent increase, or $427,377 in dollars, over the 1972-73 local revenue budget of $3,162,295.

Similarly, commenting on the recommended reduction from $1.54 to $1.21 in the tax rate, Carstarphen notes this recommended reduction is possible because of two factors. "The first," he states, "is the availability of Federal Shared Revenue.

"Second is the general property reevaluation completed this year by Pitt County."

In the reevaluation completed by Pitt County on which the tax rate is based for next year, the taxable value of real and personal property jumps from $90,069,642 for the current year to a revised taxable value of $119,196,287.

This results in a significant increase of $29,126,645 for the tax base on two types of property, real and personal. Assessed valuations for corporate property has not increased, but remains at the same level. .$5,776,362.

This year for the first time, valuations on real and personal property are reflected in one figure instead of in a separate figure each for real and and for personal property.

The recommended $427,377 in actual local revenue dollars increase in the 1973-74 budget is projected primarily to cover the rising costs of operating the City Government.

Some of the more important factors entering the increased costs picture are:

—An increase averaging about 7.5 per cent in salary increases for the city's 275 employees as outlined in the city's pay plan; with each employee to receive at least a five per cent increase.

—Providing for an additional 31 positions in the citys five public service areas to meet the community needs;

—A minimum increase of from five to seven per cent more next year for materials and services required to operate the City Government; and

—Making provisions for funds in excess of one quarter of a million dollars in General Fund capital improvement to finance the city's share of the Urban Renewal program;

In the city's Capital Improvement Program, a total of $1,100,000 is being recommended. Of this amount, $258,000 is proposed to come from General Fund current revenue sources; $834,008 from Shared Revenue Funds; and $15,000 from the Special Paving Fund.

Major capital improvement items recommended for 1973-74 are CBD renewal, $100,000; City Hall renovation, $275,000; main fire station renovation, $75,000; street resurfacing $80,000; and improvements on the Town Common, $75,000.

In accordance with the requirements of state law, the Preliminary Budget for the City of Greenville for Fiscal Year 1973-74 is now available to any member of the public.

The spiral bound 132 page document was placed on display beginning 8:00 a.m. Tuesday in the office of City Clerk William N. Moore, where it will be available through July 15.

Copies of the proposed budget were also on Tuesday delivered by messenger to each member of the Greenville City Council.

On Wednesday, July 11, a special call meeting of the City Council will take place at 8:00

Cambodia Fund Cutoff Is Vetoed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has vetoed a bill containing the amendment cutting off funds for U.S. bombing of Cambodia, congressional sources said today.

The sources said Nixon decided to veto the measure Tuesday night, shortly after it cleared the Senate by a vote of 81 to 11, and that the action would be announced shortly.

The veto would send the measure, a $3.4-billion supplementary money bill, back to the House where Republican leaders are confident they can muster enough support to prevent the two-thirds vote needed to override.

That would prevent the bill from ever returning to the Senate, where the two-thirds vote seemed assured.

The amendment, first Indochina fund cutoff ever to clear both houses of Congress, applied to U.S. military activity in or over both Laos and Cambodia bit was directed primarily at the continuing U.S. bombing of the latter country.

Another effort to cut off bombing funds, on a continuing resolution to fund federal agencies after next Sunday, cleared the House Tuesday and is expected to be approved by the Senate later in the week.

Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield warned that a Nixon veto of that measure could precipitate "a constitutional crisis" between a Congress demanding that funds for the bombing be cut off and an executive refusing to do so.

"It would be most unwise," Mansfield said of a possible veto. "The intent of Congress is crystal clear."

After Tuesday's Senate vote, one top Senate Republican leader, Sen. John G. Tower of Texas, had said he thought Nixon would accept the bill.

Tower, chairman of the Senate Republican Policy Committee, said he was "inclined to think" Nixon will sign the $3.4-billion supplementary money bill containing the cutoff provision.

It bars already-appropriated funds for "combat activities in, over or from off the shores of Cambodia, or in or over Laos by U.S. forces."

Meanwhile, another amendment barring the use of any new funds for the bombing of Cambodia was approved 232 to 181 by the House, after an effort to delay its effect for 60 days was beaten. It now goes to the Senate.

In talking with reporters, Tower was asked if he thought Nixon would order a halt to the Cambodia bombing, which began a few davs after the Jan. 27 Indochina peace agreement was signed.

"I think he will do what the law requires him to do," Tower said.

Only 11 of 42 Republicans sided with the administration on the vote formally accepting the supplementary-appropriation bill that the House passed Monday. They were led by GOP Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania and Assistant GOP Leader Robert P. Griffin of Michigan.

Nuclear Device Tested

BOMBAY, India (AP) — China detonated a small nuclear device today in the atmosphere over Sinkiang province in the far southwestern part of the country, Indian scientists reported.

A spokesman for the Bhabha Atomic Research Center near Bombay said the blast occurred in the Lop Nor region of Sinkiang, China's main nuclear test area. He said the device had power equivalent to one or two million tons of TNT.

The spokesman said the microbarograph network of the Indian Department of Atomic Energy picked up indications of the test at about 9:25 a.m., or 11:55 p.m. EDT Tuesday.

The Indian experts said the explosion indicated a developing sophistication in the Chinese nuclear capability toward more compact nuclear blasts.

Peking's first atmospheric test was Oct. 16, 1964. Including today's bomb, it has set off 14 others, only one underground.

The last reported nuclear explosion in China occurred in the same vicinity of western China on Oct. 14, 1970. It had a yield of about 20,000 tons of TNT, about the same size as the A-bomb dropped on Hiroshima by the United States in 1945.

Dean Continues Before Committee

Cites White House 'Enemies'

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ousted presidential counsel John W. Dean III today read documents to support his charges that the White House kept an "enemies list" of politicians, newsmen, union officials and businessmen.

The White House challenged Dean to say whether he leaked secret testimony about Watergate as part of a strategy seeking immunity from prosecution for his own role in the case.

That question was not put to Dean immediately.

Dean gave the Senate's Watergate committee one memorandum, dated June 12, 1972, in which then presidential counselor Charles W. Colson said a tax audit should be ordered against Harold J. Gibbons, a vice president of the Teamsters Union whom Colson considered an all-out Nixon enemy.

Others marked by the White House as enemies, Dean said, included columnist Jack Anderson, former NBC newsman Chet Huntley, Democratic party chairman Robert Strauss, who was then party treasurer, and Columbus, Ind., businessman J. Erwin Miller, a liberal Republican campaign donor.

In one of the memoranda, dated Nov. 17, 1972, Colson said he had information from an informer that Anderson had been in a room with wiretap equipment in connection with the columnist's investigations of the late Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.

In his third day of televised testimony, Dean was asked questions aimed at testing the truthfulness of his accusations that President Nixon lied about Watergate and collaborated with his top aides in covering up the bugging plot.

Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., probed with a series of questions about the extent of Dean's own involvement in the planning of the Watergate wiretapping.

Gurney asked why Dean hadn't reported to the President when G. Gordon Liddy first proposed a $1-million scheme to use wiretapping, prostitution, kidnaping and mugging as part of the President's re-election campaign.

Dean said he had objected to the plan, assumed it would die a natural death because it was so outlandish, and reported the whole affair to Nixon's chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman. He said he didn't have access to the President, and his "reporting channel" was through Haldeman.

There was some confusion on the part of Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-Nc., the committee chairman, about the question submitted by the White House. Ervin thought initially the questions were for the committee, not Dean. The matter was straightened out without Dean being asked to respond.

The questions, drawn up by White House special counsel Fred Buzhardt, asked whether Dean had a strategy for escaping federal prosecution for his own part in the affair, and whether this strategy had involved calculated leaks of information to news media.

Much of Dean's testimony had dribbled out in various forms before he appeared before the committee.

As it stands, Dean's requests for trial immunity have been rejected and he may be prosecuted, although his Senate testimony, or leads developed from it, cannot be used as evidence against him.

Committee rules permit White House or other officials to submit questions seeking answers from a witness.

Dean offered Tuesday to take a lie detector test, as he stuck to his televised testimony before the Senate Watergate committee that the President and his top aides collaborated in a plot to cover up the bugging conspiracy.

He added some new accusations, saying the White House used the FBI and Internal Revenue Service to investigate persons named on a so-called "enemies list" that was routinely updated with new names. And he said the Secret Service once spied on Sen. George McGovern, the 1972 Democratic presidential candidate.

Officials of the Senate committee said Dean would be asked today a series of questions submitted by Leonard Garment, who replaced Dean as White House counsel. Dean was fired April 30.

"It would appear they would like to prove that Mr. Dean was the brains of it all, and that he gave bad advice," said Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii.

Inouye said he saw no reason why Dean shouldn't be asked the questions, that Dean's truthfulness must be tested.

Vast Expansion

PLYMOUTH, N.C. (AP)—The Wayerhaeuser Co. said today it has scheduled a three-year major expansion of its North Carolina manufacturing facilities that will cost more than $100 million.

Keith L. Lamb, the company's regional vice president, said the expansion would be in addition to facilities costing $26 million announced earlier this year.

Lamb said the new projects would include a second paper machine for the company's Plymouth manufacturing complex, a new wood fiber insulation board plant, several sawmills and a plant to manufacture fireplace logs.

In addition to the Plymouth complex, Wayerhaeuser's existing facilities in North Carolina include a plywood plant at Jacksonville, a kraft pulp mill at New Bern, a sawmill at Lewiston and a shipping container plant at Charlotte.

He'll Command Cherry Point

Brown, whose last assignment was commanding general of the First Marine Aircraft Wing, Iwakuni, Japan, will relieve Maj. Gen. Paul J. Fontana, who is retiring after some 37 years of service.

Fontana, a World War II flying ace, became the first general to return for a second tour as commanding general of the air station when he assumed command in March of 1970. His previous tour at Cherry Point had been during 1962-63.

Brown has been a Marine for 33 years, an officer for 31, and an aviator since 1945. In Korea he became the first Marine to fly a jet in combat, while flying in a U. S. Air Force exchange billet.

The general participated in the first night helicopter assault in Vietnam, flew more than 100 fixed wing aircraft combat missions, and became the first to earn combat awards in both jets and helicopters concurrently.

He will also become commander, Marine Corps Bases Eastern Area (COMCABEAST) during Friday's change of command ceremonies.

Fair Trade Rule Ended By Milk Commission

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Milk Commission has cleared the way for greater competition in the sale of milk by suspending its fair trade order.

In a surprise move, the commission voted 4-1 Tuesday to suspend the order. The action is effective immediately.

The action means dairy companies can alter their prices at will without filing the changes 10 days in advance with the milk commission.

The fair trade order permitted the milk distributors to set their own schedules or rebates of discouts to volume purchasers, but required them to administer schedules on a standard basis and to file any changes at least 10 days in advance.

At a hearing May 22, consumer spokesmen had charged that the commission's use of fair trade regulation had stifled competition in milk marketing and this had resulted in some of the highest milk prices in the United States.

The commission suspended the fair trade order at the suggestion of Chairman F. Rockwell Poisson of Charlotte. Only William E. Younts Jr., of Durham, a dairy industry representative on the commission, voted against it.

Poisson said the milk industry "continues to want to amend fair trade orders as they run into problems" with them. "Let's suspend the order and see what the industry comes up with," he urged.

Because the commission action was described as temporary, some consumer spokesmen expressed concern that competitive milk marketing in North Carolina may not be given a fair test.

Staff attorney Ruth Bell of Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan's office said there should be greater competition in milk marketing with the fair trade order suspended.

"But if the suspension is for a brief period only, this will not be a fair test," Mrs. Bell said.

Greenville School Special Tutoring Program Qualifies For Grant

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The STAR, or Special Tutoring in Arithmetic and Reading program, has been approved through the Regional Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) in Atlanta for the Greenville City Schools for the school year 1973-74.

An Emergency School Assistance Act (ESAA) project, final approval for $116,620 in federal fund grants follwed notification by the Regional Civil Rights Director on June 20 that Greenville City Schools had met the requirements of assurances and was therby eligible for funding on the merits of the project.

Dr. Cleet C. Cleetwood, Superintendent of the Greenville City Schools and Charles Dickens, Coordinator of Federal Programs for the city schools, traveled to Atlanta recently to negotiate final approval of the ESEA project.

In expressing pleasure in approval of the project, Dr. Cleetwood notes the $116,620 "is a budget reduction from an original request of $240,000.

"The major goal is to provide concentrated individualized instruction to students who require additional and remedial work in reading and in arithmetic," Dr. Cleetwood said.

Among assurances stipulated and given before commitment of the funds is that the project activities will be above that normally carried out by the applicant school system.

"In essence that means these activities and the attendant personnel are not to supplant local and state effort," Dr. Cleetwood explained. "Any reduction in local support or any suggestion of using the personnel or activities of this project as a substitute for normal programs," Dr. Cleetwood said, "will jeopardize funding of the approved project."

Dr. Cleetwood further commented: "We are most pleased with approval of this project which can be so meaningful to our ecucational program. I take great personal satisfaction on the eve of my termination of duties with Greenville City Schools in being assured that these supplementary resources will be available to enhance the educational opportunites for the boys and girls of Greenville."

For the coming school year, many school systems failed to meet the criteria and assurances necessary to receive the ESEA funds for STAR or similar projects.

The Greenville STAR project will provide for six teachers and six teacher aides to work with students at Sadie Saulter, South Greenville and Third Street Elementary Schools, as well as the Aycock Junior High and Rose Senior High Schools.

Can father's name be hidden from the law?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I desperately need advice. I can't consult a lawyer because I can't afford it. I am a 38-year-old expectant mother. The baby's father is married and has no intentions of divorcing his wife or acting as father to my child.

I have never been married. I know that what I have done was wrong, but I was so emotionally involved with this man that I wasn't thinking straight.

My baby is due in three weeks. I plan to keep it, but I don't know what to do about the birth certificate. The baby's father is urging me to leave his name off. He says he will be ruined if I use his name. He has suggested that I make up a name.

Please tell me what to do, Abby. If I make up a name I'm afraid the baby's father will be relieved of all responsibility for the support of his child, and that is not fair because he is well able to help me. [He hasn't paid for even a diaper pin so far.]

I am so alone and troubled. Please help me.

NAME WITHHELD

DEAR NAME: Get in touch with your local Legal Aid Society. They will guide you. Make no decisions until you speak with them.

DEAR ABBY: What is my responsibility in the following situations? Mind my own business? Or stick my nose in and look for a punch?

Example: Tots [2 years to 6] are climbing on top of a convertible sports car and sliding down the back. Owner of car working, mother busy inside, the kids having the time of their lives.

Example: Three new homes being built and a sign posted, "Parents! Keep your children away from construction site," but the 2- to 6-year-olds are exploring the half-finished floors and calling to each other from the empty window frames.

Fun is fun, but danger is danger. I have youngsters, but I know where mine are all the time. Do I say something to the children or walk away? I've done both. The mothers shrug and the kids return. MRS. N.C.B.

DEAR MRS. B.: You can't be a full-time self-appointed policewoman, but you can continue to warn the children when they endanger themselves and urge their mothers to be more watchful. Structures in various stages of construction are considered "attractive nuisances" and every effort should be made [by the builder] to keep children out. Signs do not necessarily relieve the builder of responsibility.

DEAR ABBY: Last night my wife threw a tantrum because I wouldn't take her on a business trip with me. She smashed cups and plates against the wall, so I took her across my knee and gave her a good, sound spanking.

Now she claims I "beat" her, and she's suing me for divorce. Abby, she acted like a child so I treated her like one. Was I wrong?

How do you feel about husbands spanking their wives when they have it coming? HURT AND ANGRY

DEAR HURT: I disapprove of physical punishment in any form. A "good, sound spanking" serves only one good purpose: It gives the spanker an opportunity to vent his anger. But I recommended a punching bag—not another person.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going to a psychiatrist of late, with moderate success, and then one day my mother made an appointment with him [for what reason I do not know] and went to see him, too.

Since then I have been totally unable to relate to him. Doesn't this seem to you like a divorce lawyer trying to represent both sides in a divorce?

WONDERING IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR WONDERING: Quit wondering and ask your psychiatrist.

Divorcees Don't Want New Mates

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

VENICE, Calf. (UPI) — When a woman divorces, well-meaning family and friends often console her with the hope she'll soon find a new mate—especially if there are children.

Not all women agree with that idea.

A group of divorced women in this Los Angeles community contend that with the spiraling divorce rate, there is nothing a bit abnormal about a single woman — divorced, separated, widowed or unwed—struggling to rear her children alone.

Looked on as outcasts

But society isn't geared for them. As women, they usually make half as much as men. They have difficulty establishing credit. They have trouble finding daycare for their children. And they are looked on as somewhat of outcasts.

The problems are staggering, and Momma, the Organization for Single Mothers, was founded a little more than a year ago to help women confront the challenges of single parenthood.

So far there are about 600 active members in Los Angeles and New York and 85 fledgling chapters around the country. A monthly newspaper reaches some 10,000 women.

Another way

"There is another way of looking at divorce or separation besides, Quick, get yourself another man," says Karol Hope, 30, who has been the single parent of nine-year-old Brandace since divorcing eight years ago.

"The single parent experience is untapped, unseen, unknown about. We are attempting to deal realistically with how to run a single parent home without remarrying.

"It is essentially a self-help trip. We want to present ourselves to society as another lifestyle which has to be recognized," she said.

"We're not opposed to remarrying or to men entering our lives, but we feel that there have got to be other ways of expanding familes besides what we've already tried and found lacking.

"We just don't think the nuclear family is a reality anymore. It is an isolated segment which feeds on itself, with the male over the female and them both over the little ones," Mrs. Hope said.

In parent re-education courses, Momma members are trying to learn non-authoritarian problem solving methods of child-rearing.

Mediation centers

Other goals include setting up mediation centers for former mates, where they can "put out on the table their own feelings of betrayal and despair and anger."

"We'd like to work on the hostility that is the outgrowth of divorce," says Lisa Connolly, eight years' divorced and the mother of Meghan.

"We'd like to get over that terrible discounting ... acting like you can't trust the kids for one day with someone you lived with for ten years.

"No matter how we feel toward each other, we're still Mom and Dad to our kids."

Co-parenting

Ideally, Momma's goal is for divorced couples to reach the state of co-parenting, where they each take equal responsibility for the children.

Realistically, most divorced women carry the full burden of child care, with their former husbands picking up the youngsters for a Saturday at the park or the zoo.

Survival tips

In the tabloid-style newspaper, the women relate their personal traumas of being alone, and share ideas for child-rearing, ranging from the very practical to the frivolous.

A sampling:

—"Do housework in teams. Get your friends together and clean houses once a week. Saves time.

—"The Salvation Army as-is toy department. Kids get a lot for a small allowance.

—"Designate yourself as single on your driver's license. An auto insurance man sees divorced or separated and your rates go up.

—"Kids can learn coordination and staying within the lines by spreading peanut butter as well as by coloring the square red."

Slice red onion and separate into rings. Alternate with slices of ripe tomato and add an oil-and-vinegar dressing. Add a little prepared or dry mustard to the dressing.

Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Leggett request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Joan Hazel, to Joseph Harper Manning Sunday, July 1, at 3:00 p.m. in Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church.

Marriage Announed

Mr. and Mrs. Willie B. Wilson of Greenville announce the marriage of their daughter, Judy Coleen to Wilbur Glenn Baysworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Baysworth of Tarboro June 15 in Emporia, Va. The couple will live in Tarboro.

Homemakers Met

The Sweet Gum Grove Homemakers Extension Club Thursday afternoon heard a program by Mrs. Sam Alexander entitled, "What is Your Personal Environment?"

Mrs. Alexander also gave a leader report on landscaping and gardening and timely tips on growing fruits and vegetables.

Margaret Briley reported on "Found Myself." She gave the devotional entitled, "Don't Let Me Stop Growing, God."

After the business session, conducted by Mrs. Mayo Rogers, president, refreshments were served by Mrs. Mary B. Whichard.

Sign Of Democratic Stirrings

It has been difficult to determine whether the Democratic Party has been in a state of shock since last year's election, or whether the traditional lull had set in following the big election.

It had to be a blow to traditional Democrats that North Carolina elected a GOP governor and U.S. senator in the 1972 elections and the Democratic party faithful have been exceedingly quiet since the results became known.

Nobody expected the Democrats to roll over and play dead after the set-back; however, and the grass roots work seem to be starting to get the party back on the winning track.

Last week Pitt Democratic Chairman Henry Oglesby called a meeting of precinct and party officials, along with elected officers.

"We didn't even go to bat" last year, Oglesby said of the 1972 elections. "We had people who left our party because the Republicans nominated McGovern for us."

Oglesby expressed unhappiness because 12 precincts were not represented at the meeting and told those present they should obtain people who will "get out and work."

State Democratic Chairman Jim Sugg of New Bern was on hand for a pep talk and he told the Democrats they should point to the things that the Democratic Pary has stood for over the years.

It was not quite the kind of rally one sees when candidates who are running for governor or senator come down, but then this is the point of lowest interest in politics—just after the presidential election, and a year from the off-year elections.

It did represent a sign of stirring for the Democratic Party however. In the past the Democrats have argued among themselves with no great concern about facing the Republicans in the general elections.

Now the GOP has become a major factor in the state, and also in Pitt County, which has long been a bastion of the Democratic Pary.

Last week's meeting showed that local leaders are beginning to realize there is lots of rebuilding to be done. The job has already started at the grass roots, as the Democrats return to a political scene which has been changed forever by last year's elections.

Assistance To Local Schools

By DR. CRAIG PHILLIPS
State Superintendent of Public Instruction

RALEIGH — Within the framework of North Carolina's system of public schools the responsibility of providing and maintaining school facilities belongs to the local board of education; but on three occasions, beginning in 1949, the General Assembly has taken steps to assist the local school units in providing needed buildings, additional classrooms, and the necessary plant facilities.

In 1973 the citizens of North Carolina will have another opportunity to decide whether or not the state should continue as a partner in assisting the 152 local schools systems by providing a total of $300 million for additional space needs. The General Assembly, in a far-reaching step, authorized the special election.

If the bond issue is approved, allocations will be made to each of the state's 152 schools systems on the basis of its 1971-72 average daily membership. The allocations will range from $182,393 for Tryon to $20,507,886 in Charlotte-Mecklenburg. In short, the money will go where the students are.

Most of the school buildings now in use were built some 45 years ago, when local school boards authorized a major school building program following World War I. But during the depression very little construction was possible. Those buildings built as PWA or WPA projects were of minimum quality. Many of these buildings are still in use today across the state. You will recall that during World War II all non-military construction was curtailed, since all efforts were directed toward the war.

School Needs Backlog

The backlog of school building needs, coupled with the growth all over the state, along with the beginning of the "baby boom" resulted in a critical condition. Many of our children tried to learn in unsafe and unsanitary facilities.

As a result, the 1949 General Assembly recognized the need, and in a precedent setting move, appropriated $25 million from the surplus accumulated during the war years and authorized a bond referendum for another $25 million.

While this $50 million, plus what individual systems could also appropriate, the then 174 local systems were able to abandon some of the quonset huts and get out of basement areas, auditoriums and store rooms.

The 1952 General Assembly recognized the continued need, especially with the influx of school children, following the war. This Legislature authorized, and the people voted $50 million to the local systems for construction of school facilities.

Locals Tripled Funds

During the 120 years between 1953 and 1973 the local school systems through their county commissioners and other sources provided local funds for needed school construction at the rate of more than $3 in local funds for each of the state dollars spent.

But the need continued and in 1963 the General Assembly authorized a referendum, which was approved in 1964, to provide $100 million in grants for public school construction. During the past 10 years while these funds were being used, the 100 counties have provided approximately 3½ dollars for each dollar spent from state funds for school buildings.

Although there has been some slight reduction in public school population in the last few years, the urgent need for new construction continues and is accelerating because of many changes including: (1) tremendous shift in population; (2) reorganization of schools and school systems due to intergration; (3) considerable expansion of program offerings including occupational education and (4) reduction in pupil-teacher ratio.

Survey Showed Need

To determine the state's school facilities a survey was conducted last fall to provide information concerning "instruction spaces which are physically and educationally adequate for each student and each staff member in the unit taking into accountthe effect of desirable organization." In addition all local boards were asked to estimate needs anticipated between January, 1973, and January, 1978.

The evidence was conclusive. The summary shows that to satisfy the urgent needs of the state's million and a quarter youngsters would require 9,042 classrooms, 461 libraries, 302 lunchrooms, 292 gymnasiums and 201 miscellaneous items.

With these figures in hand, the State Board of Education in February of this year requested the General Assembly to respond to these needs, which they did in approving the calling of the special $300 million school bond election.

North Carolina voters will make a momentous decision on the future of their public schools this fall. Their decision will have a direct influence on Tar Heel children for generations to come.

If approved, each school unit would submit plans for their building projects to the State Board of Education for approval. The schools would receive technical assistance in surveying their needs and planning the improvements from the Department of Public Instuction's Division of School Planning.

The decision on whether or not the state will respond to filling these urgent needs will be decided at the polls in just a few months.

Reversing The Flow Of Power

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — At a long and very private dinner in Paul Young's restaurant here last June 19, outgoing White House consultant John B. Connally told incoming White House domestic czar Melvin R. Laird about some of his frustrations, then warned: move in fast and take complete charge.

Laird agreed that his first target must be to end the internal power struggles which still threaten the post-Watergate White House. The vacuums created by the forced departure of H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman are far from filled.

But an even more challenging problem, Laird and Connally agreed, is to reverse what they both regard as the incredible and dangerous flow of power from the departments and agencies and its concentration in the White House.

That power flow was engineered by Haldeman and Ehrlichman over four years with the obvious consent of President Nixon. Thus Laird's determination to reverse the flow of power, difficult enough anyway, may be made more so by the President himself. But even if Mr. Nixon resists, Laird's intimates say he is committed to returning power to the departments and ending what he and other politicians consider the most dangerous accumulation of raw and unsupervised power within the White House ever in peacetime.

Laird has now counted 68 White House aides who, at the start of Mr. Nixon's second term, were working directly under Ehrlichman and responsible only to him. It was that huge staff which gave Ehrlichman sole control over the entire domestic side of the federal government. He ruled it, both Connally and Laird discovered, with an iron hand.

Thus, Connally intimates have told Laird that Ehrlichman's ouster of James E. Akins as top White House staffer on the energy crisis was dictated by Ehrlichman's fear that Akins knew too much — that is, far more than Ehrlichman — about the coming oil-and-gas shortage.

"Ehrlichman saw Akins as a threat," one Connally insider told us. "Ehrlichman wanted to run the whole show, and the President apparently wanted him to run the whole show." The result: a dangerously weak energy policy.

Trimming that swollen staff back to a maximum of 30 aides is one side of the coin of Laird's problem in reversing the flow of power into the White House. The other side of the coin — convincing cabinet members that they must now start running their own affairs for the first time in the Nixon administration — is going to be harder.

Laird is now quietly visiting each cabinet department, spreading this alien doctrine to cabinet members and their top staffs: Don't send your problems over to the White House anymore; handle them yourselves. For some of the passive, obsequious yes men of the cabinet who were turned into limousine puppets by the Ehrlichman-Haldeman White House on June 18, Laird has been pounding hard on this theme: Stop shunting hard decisions off to the White House.

If Laird's scheme to reverse the power flow works, each department will gain influence over such matters as presidential vetoes of departmental bills, appointments to high office in each department and development of administration policy.

It means, in short, a power revolution within the Nixon administration, requiring almost as much change and perhaps as much time as normally occurs when one

ASKING GOD A QUESTION

The great American physicist, Joseph Henry, who discovered some of the key principles of electromagnetism in the early nineteenth century, was a very pious man. Often, at crucial points in his experiments he would suddenly bow his head and force his assistants to do likewise, saying, "This is a very solemn moment. I am about to ask God a question."

Note the veneration and spiritual simplicity of this great man. When he conducted a purely scientific experiement the whole proceeding had about it the atomosphere of a religious service. Dr. Henry regarded science as a means whereby man could understand not only the material world, but the God who made this world and now rules it. A scientific experiement was an episode wherein a humble man asked God a question. Joseph Henry was never made less scientific by being religious, which is something for the modern mind to ponder thoughtfully.

Big John Was In Town

WASHINGTON—The town of Gemstone was all in a tizzy. Big John Connally was riding in on his palomino horse, sitting straight in the saddle, his eyes shaded by a large white hat.

He tied up his horse and walked into the saloon.

"Whatcha doing in town, Big John?" the bartender inquired.

"Come in to help Sheriff Dick Milhous," Big John said. "Understand he's been having a little trouble in these here parts."

"Nothing serious," one of the men at the bar said. "his deputies have been accused of cattle rustling, horse stealing, bank robbery, swearing and lying. Kind of tough on the sheriff 'cause he did so well in the last election."

"Ah'll straighten the whole mess out. All we gotta do is clean house and everyone will forget what the deputies did. Guess ah'll wander over and see Dick now. Ah sorta would like to look over the place anyway, just in case ah want to run for sheriff sometime myself."

Big John walked across the street to the sheriff's office and knocked on the door.

"Sheriff, it's me, Big John. Ah came to help you out of your troubles...Sheriff, you in there?"

There was no reply. Everyone was watching to see what Big John would do. He looked at them. "Is he in there?"

"Yup," one of the men said.

Big John went around to one of the windows and tapped on it. "Dick, it's okay to open up the door. Ah'm here to help you save Gemstone."

There was still no reply.

Big John turned to crowd. "You sure he's really in there?"

"Yup, he comes out once in a while and tells us he didn't know nothing about his deputies' cattle rustling, horse stealing, bank robbery, swearing and lying. And then he goes back in and locks the door."

There was a commotion at the courthouse next to the saloon. "What's going on there?" Big John asked.

"That's the deputies. They keep being called into the court to testify against each other. Lot of stuff went on in this town in the last year nobody knew anything about," a cowboy said. "They would have stole the town square if it hadn't been nailed down."

"There's got to be some way ah can get in to see the sheriff," Big John said. He climbed up to the second-floor balcony and peered in. Then he shouted, "Now look here, Dick, ah rode all the way in from Houston to give you a helping hand. You jes' open up that door and let me in!"

Dead silence.

"He ain't coming out," a man said. "You're wasting your breath. He's mad at everyone, especially the Gemstone Post for writing all

To the editor:

The U.S. Supreme Court's June 21st ruling giving localities more freedom to censor their own conception of obscenity will no doubt vastly cut into the hard core porno business. The High Court's 5-4 decision will also cut into the purity of our First Amendment!

Using tax dollars for the purpose of keeping materials distasteful to some out of the reach of all, is wasteful and, more importantly, is an assault on our civil liberties. I though WNCT-TV's attitude toward CBS's formerly "R" and "X" rated movies was sick, but this recent Supreme Court move reminds me that 1984 approaches.

In my opinion, Greenville's City Council should uphold its duty to protect the U.S. Constitution by enacting a statute prohibiting our Police Department from enforcing North Carolina or federal obscenity laws. Following the Berkeley (Calif.) City Council's precedent against the enforcement of marijuana laws, our City Council would be showing the kind of community decision-making urged by Nixon's Supreme Court appointees.

Even John Wayne himself went on television in opposition when he learned that the anti-obscenity proposition in California's November election would have affected True Grit and Patton. Hopefully, even the members of the City Council will act if they too understand the implications— this time to the Constitution ("Congress shall make no law...abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press").

Swallowing a watermelon seed as a child and wondering if it will turn the inside of your stomach into a watermelon patch.

Passing a note to your girl friend in grammar school when the teacher turned her back to write on the blackboard.

Stepping on wet sidewalk cement and wondering if your footprints would remain there for later generations to marvel at.

Delivering a paper route the first day and wondering just how it was going to help make you famous later in life. Hadn't all great men delivered newspapers in their youth?

Having the postman finally bring the letter for which you've been haunting the mailbox for for months.

The smell of a good bakery shop on a wintry day.

The Bargain In Your Club Dues

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe some of you country clubbers wouldn't complain so loudly about your dues if you knew how much it costs to maintain that lush golf course you so casually abuse.

The typical course that could be maintained for $3,162 a hole in 1958 now costs $6,243 a hole, and like most things in life the increase is accelerating.

Expenses last year rose 5.3 per cent, which really isn't so bad as to make you spill your drink. Your household expenses probably rose more than that.

An accounting firm, Harris, Kerr, Forster & Co., broke down the costs of operating 100 clubs coast to coast, and now you have some dollar signs to think about every time you make a divot with your five iron.

The biggest item, as it always has been, is labor, which averaged out in the survey to $3,833 a hole, to which must be added $437 in payroll taxes and employe benefits.

Course supplies and contracts added another $919; repairs to equipment, buildings, water and drainage systems tacked on $597, and "all other expenses" put $457 on the tab, bringing the total to $6,243.

But this is an average, and in a country so large and diverse as the United States, averages lie. The operator of a Pacific Coast club might give a consultant free golf privileges if he told him how to reduce his costs to that of a Midwest club.

Here's the breakdown: East $5,852, South $6,901, Midwest $5,166, and Far West $8,150. The accounting firm didn't specify the reasons for the spread, but topographical and climatic conditions, and life styles, clearly played a role.

There is one more cost factor that isn't included on the line called "total golf course maintenance." It is called "golf shop, caddy and committee expenses, and it adds $1,216, making total golf expenses $7,459.

But then there is another side to the ledger that puts all these figures into reverse. The accountants put it on a line called "income from golf fees, golf carts, driving range, etc." and subtact it from total golf expenses.

While the average of such income was $3,016, the regional differences again were great: $1,980 in the East, $3,280 South, $2,747 Midwest and $5,394 in the Far West.

Because this income was highest in areas where expenses were also highest, net golf expenses throughout the country were surprisingly near the $4,443 average in all geographical divisions.

Country clubs do, of course, have income other than from golf. Members pay dues, for example, which averaged $657 last year, an increase of $40 in one year, and about double the dues of 1958.

And they eat and drink at the clubs. Food and beverage sales averaged $611 per club last year, which might convince certain indulgent members that they are contributing by their presence at the bar, until they realize that many clubs lose money on such operations.

Miss Della Susan Brown Was Married To James Carl Murray Sunday

MRS. JAMES CARL MURRAY

BURGAW—Wedding vows were said at Burgaw Presbyterian Church Sunday at 3:00 p.m. by Miss Della Susan Brown of Burgaw and James Carl Murray of Raleigh.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Alderman Brown of Burgaw and Mr. and Mrs. Carl Murray of Wilson.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white silk organza and venise lace styled with a ruffled mandarin neckline and bouffant sleeves. The bodice, sleeves, and A-line skirt were embroidered with lace motifs. The skirt featured a ruffled hemline and fell into a chapel train. She wore a Camelot headpiece trimmed in matching lace and attached to a fingertip veil of silk illusion. She carried a traditional bouquet of white carnations and roses centered with a yellow-throated orchid.

The bride's sister, Miss Thelma Ann Brown of Greenville, was maid of honor and Mrs. Herbert Ray Loftis of Burgaw was matron of honor. The two wore identical floor-length dresses of yellow organdy with scooped necklines, butterfly sleeves, and empire waistlines, with yellow ribbon sashes. They wore white ripple-brimmed hats with yellow ribbon streamers and white sandals. Each carried a white old-fashioned basket filled with spring flowers.

The bridesmaids, Miss Gloria Jean Herring of Goldsboro, Miss Margaret Cheryle Brown of Burgaw, and Miss Dollie Jo Jackson of Rocky Mount, wore dresses like those of the maid and matron of honor.

Ushers were Michael Vollis Simpson of Lucama; Joseph Arnold Murray of Wilson, brother of the bridegroom; Thomas Sidney Brown of Burgaw, brother of the bride; and Brice Hane Ficken of Mount Olive.

Mrs. Robert R. Brown of Wilmington, cousin of the bride, was the organist and Eddie Patram of Burgaw was the soloist.

The bride is a student at Atlantic Christian College and the bridegroom is a graduate of Atlantic Christian College and is now a teacher at Millbrook Senior High School in Wake County.

After a wedding trip to Florida and Georgia, the couple will live in Raleigh.

DanceGiven MissMinges, Mr. Taylor

Jacqueline Lavonne Minges and Thomas Donald Taylor, who will be married June 30th, were entertained at a dance Friday evening at the Greenville Country Club.

Friends of the couple and of their parents were hosts for the occasion.

Guests were greeted in the foyer of the Club, decorated with pink snapdragons and greenery.

The refreshment table, spanning the width of the ballroom, glowed at each end with burning white tapers amid talisman roses of varied hues, interspersed with baby's breath, in silver and crystal epergnes.

Large crystal jardinieres of magnolias graced the bandstand. Tables encircling the dance floor were centered with white burning tapers entewined with English ivy.

FISH FILLETS WITH GRAPES

A delectable way to treat fish.

- 4 fish fillets, about 1¾ pounds
- Salt and White pepper
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons minced onion
- ¼ cup dry white vermouth
- 1 tablespoon flour
- ½ cup light cream
- 1½ cups seedless green grapes

Sprinkle fish with salt and pepper; roll each fillet. In a 10-inch skillet melt 1 tablespoon of the butter; add onion and cook gently until softened and yellowed. Add rolled fillets, lapped edge down, and vermouth. Cover and simmer until fish looks opaque — 8 to 10 minutes. With slotted spoon or pancake turner, lift fish rolls to a hot heat-resistant platter and keep warm in a warm oven. Blend reminaing 1 tablespoon of butter with the flour; add to liquid and onion in skillet; stir over moderately low heat for a minute or so, then add cream and grapes; continue cooking and stirring until saucethickens and grapes lose their bright color. "Better Fashions Are Always Your Best Buys"

Solitude Chosen By Ex-Matador

By HUGH E. PERALTA

CORDOBA, Spain (UPI) — Millions of aficionados saw Manuel "El Cordobes" Benitez perform in the bullrings of Spain while he was their biggest idol and one of the world's highest-paid entertainers.

Today, a year after his retirement at the age of 35, the ex-matador lives a life of near-solitude. Few are the guests who visit the double-walled estate near his native Cordoba.

There, El Cordobes keeps the souvenirs of his 13 years as a torero. They range from a poster-size photo showing him with an admiring Generalissimo Francisco Franco to the stuffed head of a bull who gave El Cordobes one of his 22 gorings.

The former slum kid and chicken thief who became history's most publicized bullfighter and grossed an estimated $3 million a year lives a gentleman-farmer's life. He shares it with his French-born companion, Martine (known as "La Pantera") and their two small children.

"It's a good life, even though in my heart I will never stop being a bullfighter," El Cordobes said recently.

Burned Out

When El Cordobes retired—because he felt burned out after an average 120 performances a year—he told his fans he wanted "to read, to write, to learn" to make up for the fact that he grew up an illiterate.

He has been doing all that—and more. He has learned passable English. He has learned to play the piano. He flies his own two-engined plane to visit friends, to inspect his bull-breeding ranches or to meet with business associates.

Nobody knows how much his investments are worth including, apparently, El Cordobes.

"I owe the taxman a few million," he recently said in his only public reference to his wealth.

Does he sometimes think of returning to the arena?

All He Needs

"What for?" El Cordobes replied with a sweeping gesture of his hand toward his mansion, pool, private bullring and the land stretching to the horizon.

"I have all I need."

But he said he may make one exception.

Angelita Hernandez, a 25-year-old blonde who aspires to become Spain's first female torero in more than 40 years, has asked El Cordobes to assist at her "alternativa" (graduation as a full-fledged matador). The old showman cannot resist the temptation of sharing the limelight when Spain's "fiesta national" enters a new stage.

"I'll be there," El Cordobes said. "She deserves it."

Tuna May Test Temperatures

HONOLULU (AP) — The discovery that captive tuna can detect variations of as little as a fifth of a degree in water temperature has given rise to speculation that temperature charts may enable commercial fishermen to zero in on the best areas for catching these fish.

Experiments along this line have been conducted at the Honolulu laboratory of the Southwest Fisheries Center, National Marine Fisheries Service. Scientists determine that 75 degrees Fahrenheit seems to be ideal for some tunas, but that they can live in waters as cold as 57 degrees and as warm as 93 degrees.

In addition, Laird plans other changes which could transform the White House from a dictatorial palace to a place where the President lives and the cabinet meets to help him make decisions. One such change: ending near total authority over middle-level personnel by a single office in the White House. To supervise the more loosely structured, decentralized personnel policy he has in mind, say Laird intimates, Laird will put newly returned presidential aide Bryce Harlow in charge of post-Watergate personnel policy.

If Laird is able to make these changes, the result will be a profoundly new and improved tone throughout the second Nixon administration. If he cannot, Laird's tenure as domestic White House chief may be distressingly short.

about it."

"Sheriff!" Big John shouted again. "What in tarnation did you have me come up here for if you won't listen to what ah got to say?"

The crowd started laughing. "Big John, how you ever going to become sheriff of this place if the present sheriff won't even talk to you?"

Suddenly the window opened a crack and Sheriff Milhous poked his nose out. He talked to Big John for about three minutes and then shut the window again.

Red-faced, Big John climbed down from the balcony.

"What'd he say?" someone in the crowd asked.

"We had a nice friendly chat and ah think it did up both a lot of good."

Then Big John untied his horse and got back into the saddle and started riding out of town.

"Ain't you staying around, Big John?" a voice shouted.

Big John didn't reply. He just rode off into the sunset.

GOLDEN FIND—John Betty displays the 8.5 ounce gold nugget he accidentally found in the Middle Fork of the American River east of Placerville, California. Betty said he and a friend were skindiving in the river when he found something shiny in the shallows. Much to his surprise it was a nugget about three inches long and two inches wide. Betty said he was told the nugget would draw about $3,600 as a collector's item. (AP Wirephoto)

Lion's Share

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — North Carolina Jaycees took a lion's share of honors at the annual national Jaycee Convention in Minneapolis, Minn.

The North Carolina Jaycees won a national award in the field of crime and corrections for its prison inmate chapters.

In addition, State Rep. Lawrence Davis, D-Forsyth, was named one of five National Freedom Guard Award winners. It was the third time in three years a North Carolinian has won the award. Gov. Jim Holshouser was a winner in 1971 and Kinston attorney P. C. Barwick was a winner last year.

The Greensboro Jaycee Club won eight national awards, the Spencer chapter took three and the tiny Rose Hill chapter won awards in two categories.

Nat'l Week For Autistic

National Autistic Children's Week is being observed in Greenville, according to a proclamation by Mayor S. Eugene West.

The proclamation called autism, "one of the most cruel and difficult to understand of all childhood mental disorders."

It explained that the autistic child often does not develop normal speech, make full contact with the world abouthim, or learn in the usual way from those who seek to reach him. Four in every 10,000 children are autistic, it said, and without special education and care nearly all are faced with a life of confinement at home in an institution for the mentally ill.

Autistic children first received medical recognition as a special group in 1943. Now, 30 years later, the underlying causes still are unknown and there is not specific treament. Almost all autistic children continue to be excluded from existing school systems.

North Carolina is the only state in the nation which has a public education program for the autistic, but many more classrooms are needed.

Mayor West urged the people of Greenville to support "agressive research efforts to discover the causes and cure of childhood autism and thus alleviate the suffering of the children and their families struck by this tragic disorder."

Had Narcotics Inside Bread

SAN YSIDRO, Calif. (AP) — Customs inspectors thought the man walking into the United States looked a bit too nervous for someone carrying only a few loaves of bread.

So Inspector B.A. Krussel told his men to take a look at the bread. Officers crushed the loaves and inside found 80 ounces of high-grade heroin and cocaine.

Customs agents said Tuesday they arrested a man who identified himself as Pablo Carlos Villagran, 30, of Tijuana, Mexico, in the incident late Monday. He was booked into San Diego County jail for investigation of smuggling drugs.

'Provocations' Charged Seoul

TOKYO (AP) — North Korea accused South Korea today of stepping up propaganda and other "provocative acts" along the demilitarized zone.

Pyongyang's official news agency declared that the South in recent days had used loudspeakers along the DMZ to make "slanderous propaganda." It also charged that the Seoul regime had infiltrated two groups of more than 20 men each "to perpetrate provocative acts."

The agency said such acts are in violation of last year's agreement calling for an end to propaganda warfare between the North and the South as part of an easing of tension aimed at reunification.

First Week Behind Them

The 3398th Reception Station, with headquarters in Greenville and detachments in Wilson, Goldsboro and New Bern, has completed its first week of annual training at Ft. Jackson, S.C.

LTC Howard G. Ling, commanding officer of the 193-man unit, said the the 3398th is trained and qualified to assume the mission of an Army Reception Station.

Even though the unit receives training throughout the year at its home station, working at the Ft. Jackson station during summer training provides invaluable experience, he asserted. Summer training, it was pointed out, affords the only opportunity the reservists have to perform their main function, the administration of reception processing to enlisted male personnel entering the Army from civilian life.

In the event of mobilization, the 3398th would move to a military installation, establish a reception station, and begin processing procedures, the commanding officer explained.

Large Turnout At 'Lost Colony'

MANTEO — A near-capacity audience filled "The Lost Colony's" 2,000-seat Waterside Theatre last Friday evening to view the opening performance of the 33rd production season of Paul Green's first symphonic drama.

Threatening weekend rain held off until Saturday and barely a drop fell during the performance. Saturday rains quieted by 8:30 p.m. curtain time, although many reservations were not kept for fear the show would be called.

Following Friday's performance "The Lost Colony's" producer, Mrs. Fred W. Morrison, hosted a reception in "The Lost Colony" Building for the 1973 company and staff and friends of the Ronaoke Island Historical Association, the producers of the outdoor drama.

Among those attending the opening night and reception were Mrs. William C. Friday, chairman of the Roanoke Island Historical Association; Mrs. Grace J. Rohrer, Secretary of the State Department of Art, Culture and History; actor Andy Griffith, a veteran member of "The Lost Colony" cast; N.C. Representative John E. Davenport; and Mrs. Mabel Evans Jones, a native Roanoke Islander who wrote, produced and starred in the 1921 silent film version of the Lost Colony story.

This is the tenth year for the Joe Layton production of the "The Lost Colony," the first American outdoor historical drama which has since influenced the creation of almost 40 similar outdoor productions.

This season there are 58 performances scheduled and the show will run through August 25. There is a special performance Sunday July 1; otherwise the play is presented nightly, except Sunday.

Expect More Than 8,000 Students At ECU Summer Term

More than 8,000 students are expected to attend East Carolina University this summer.

University officials said enrollment for the first summer school term totals some 4,250 individuals—including 3,900 regular students and some 350 persons enrolled in workshops.

The regular enrollment for the first session is down slightly spokesmen said from the first session last year when some 4,000 students were on campus, however more persons are enrolled in workshops.

Spokesmen said the drop in enrollment is probably due primarily to the fact that public schools closed later this spring due to winter snow storms. Other factors affecting summer school enrollment they said, students are generally making higher average and are not having to make up work in summer sessions; students are not having to maintain draft deferrments; and teachers are able to renew certificates through in-service work in addition to academic studies.

Enrollment for the second summer session, which begins in two weeks is expected to be higher.

Gasoline Allocation Plan Seen

By RANDY SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government sources say a mandatory allocation system for gasoline appears in the offing, although a survey by the American Automobile Association has indicated that the fuel shortage may be stabilizing.

A presidential message on energy policy is expected later this week, and a decision on mandatory controls could be announced at that time.

However, one source indicated that mandatory controls could be delayed until the appointment of an energy policy coordinator in the White House.

Plans to convert the current voluntary fuel allocation program to mandatory controls have been approved by the Office of Oil and Gas of the Interior Department, and by Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon, head of an interdepartmental policy committee, sources said.

The sources indicated that Colorado Gov. John A. Love has been chosen to serve as energy policy coordinator. The job was turned down by former Pennsylvania Gov. William W. Scranton.

Essentially the mandatory program is expected to follow the guidelines proposed for voluntary compliance in May. Under those, suppliers were requested to provide their customers with fuel this year in the same proportion that they received it last year.

Meanwhile, in its latest nationwide survey on the shortage of gasoline, the AAA said the number of service stations closing early and on Sunday grew from 43 per cent to 47 per cent from a week earlier. The group surveyed 3,417 stations along main travel routes.

However, AAA spokesman Donald Strickland said the shortage "appears to be bottoming out." He did not elaborate.

The AAA said only 46 per cent of the stations surveyed were found to be continuing normal operations, compared with 53 per cent last week, 64 per cent two weeks ago and 75 per cent three weeks ago.

The report also indicated that 2 per cent of the stations were closed for lack of fuel, another 2 per cent were temporarily out of fuel, and 10 per cent were limiting the amount a customer could buy at a single stop.

The AAA said the Northwest appeared to be hardest hit, although the situation was improving there. The club said 32 per cent of the stations in the area were operating normally, up from 27 per cent a week ago.

Urge Merchants Heed Directive

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Merchants Association called on its members Tuesday to comply with federal requirements that signs be posted advising customers where price ceiling information can be found.

Thompson Greenwood, executive vice president of the association, told the merchants the Cost of Living Council has called for the signs to be posted during the 60-day price freeze that began June 13.

He said the Internal Revenue Service is making spot checks to see if retail businesses have posted the signs.

Win Delay On Refunds Order

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Duke Power Co. has won at least a temporary delay in orders to refund $3.3 million plus interest to its electricity customers in North Carolina.

The North Carolina Court of Appeals ordered a temporary stay Tuesday of the a Duke Power rate decision handed down last week by the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

The stay, which is in effect until Sept. 1, postpones the effect of the commission ruling until Duke Power's appeal can be heard. Meanwhile, the utility can continue collecting the full amount of the rate increase it put into effect on Jan. 1.

In its ruling the utilities commission granted Duke Power approximately 72 per cent of the increase the utility had requested.

The utility was ordered to revise its rate schedules to produce only $21.1 million a year in new revenues instead of the $29.3 million it sought.

Under the commission order, Duke Power was directed to begin refunding, with interest, the additional revenue it has collected since putting the increase into effect.

A Duke Power spokesman estimated the refund for the first five months of this year would amount to about $3.3 million.

If the court rules in Duke Power's favor, no refund will be made. If the utilities commission wins on appeal, the utility will have to refund the overcollection along with 6 per cent interest.

All parties to the original rate request will have until July 10 to file further contentions in the matter. The Court of Appeals will decide the matter in conference without briefs.

Bobby Darin Is Honeymooning

WALNUT GROVE, Calif. (AP) — Singer Bobby Darin is reported honeymooning aboard a rented houseboat in the scenic river delta region between San Francisco and Sacramento.

The 37-year-old entertainer has married a 32-year-old Beverly Hills legal secretary, Andrea Joy Yeager. It was the second marriage for both.

Judge James A. Gualco said Tuesday he officiated at the Monday afternoon ceremony.

Tax Lien In Background

CHARLOTTE (AP)—A federal tax lien of $32,070 had been filed against a missing Gastonia gas company executive, according to a news report.

The Charlotte Observer said in a Gastonia dispatch that records in the Gaston County clerk of court's office Tuesday showed that the lien was filed April 12 against Branson Zeigler by the Internal Revenue Service.

Zeigler, president and chief executive officer of Public Service Co. Inc. of North Carolina, has been missing since last Thursday.

Investigating officers said Zeigler, 56, disappeared after letting his 14-year-old son out of his car at the family's Gastonia home about 9:30 a.m. Thursday.

Officers said Zeigler and his son had spent the night at the family's Tega Cay home on Lake Wylie. Officers said Zeigler had an early morning appointment in Gastonia Thursday but did not keep it.

OFF-SHORE HOPES

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Petroleum industry officials say the 825 million barrels of oil and 1.75 trillion cubic feet of gas expected to be realized from recent offshore lease sales in the Golf of Mexico will supply the United States with only enough fuel for about two months.

Prewett Resigning As ECU Dept. Chairman

Dr. Clinton R. Prewett is resigning as chairman of the Department of Psychology at East Carolina University, a post he has held for 16 years.

Dr. Prewett will remain on the ECU faculty as a professor with full-time teaching duties. No successor as chairman of the department has been named, university officials said.

Dr. Robert L. Holt, dean of the University, said, "While developing an outstanding Department of Psychology at East Carolina, Dr. Prewett has also established a regional and national reputation in his field. I regret we shall no longer have his services as an able administrator but appreciate his decision to remain within the department as senior professor and that he will be available to the administration as advisor and friend."

Dr. Prewett is immediate past president of the North Carolina Psychological Association and has been a member of the North Carolina Board of Licensure for Psychologists for the past five years. He is a member of the Southeastern Psychological Assn. and the American Psychological Assn.

A native of Dallas, Ga., Prewitt received his bachelor's degree in chemistry from the University of Georgia in 1941 and served in the chemical warfare section, U. S. Army, in the North Pacific during World War II. He received his master's degree from the University of Oklahoma in 1948 and his Ph.D from the University of North Carolina in 1951.

He joined the East Carolina staff in September, 1951, and became dean of students in 1952. In 1957 he became a professor and chairman of the department of Psychology.

Won't Let Work Spoil Pleasure

NEW YORK (AP) — Showman Bing Crosby says he doesn't let work interfere with pleasure.

"Last year I figured I only worked 85 days out of 365," Crosby said Tuesday while here to promote a multiple screen entertainment venture. "A little television, two or three specials a year, a sports show, some golf commentary, charities, radio commercials — it gives me time to go traveling every year to Africa, Scotland, England."

Cites Action On Gas Shortage

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ike Andrews, D-N.C., said Tuesday steps are being taken to alleviate the shortage of gasoline and other fuels on North Carolina farms.

The North Carolina congressman said he has received assurances that the federal voluntary petroleum allocation program "will zero in on solving the fuel shortage problems" faced by farmers.

Andrews said that Robert Plett, program administrator, is seeking to determine the amounts of fuel North Carolina farmers need to make up the shortage.

New Director Named To Raleigh News Bureau

RALEIGH — William T. Noblitt has been named to direct Raleigh bureau operations for the North Carolina Association of Afternoon Dailies of which The Daily Reflector is a member. He will take charge of the bureau on July 16.

Announcement of his selection was made today by Carl E. Worsley, publisher of The Rocky Mount Telegram and president of the newspaper group.

Noblitt, now managing editor of The Asheboro Courier-Tribune, succeeds Z. Bryan Haislip, who has held the post for the past three years and who resigned to take another newspaper position.

The new capital correspondent for The Daily Reflector and 34 other newspapers across North Carolina is a native of Shelby. Following graduation from Appalachian State University in 1959, he began his news career as a reporter for The Shelby Daily Star. Following a stint in public relations with the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, he joined The Charlotte News in 1965, as a general assignment reporter and columnist. He became city editor of The News in 1969, leaving in February of this year to take the Asheboro Courier-Tribune post.

Noblitt is married and the father of one child. He was a Korean linguist with U.S. Air Force Intelligence before completing his education.

TV Network Will Tell How News Shows Made

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — There's a lively media show you might want to catch Thursday night on CBS-TV, particularly if you're among those who think network news departments are filled with rascals, buffoons and poltroons.

The show, "Anatomy of a News Story," doesn't spill any beans in that respect, but it does offer a reasonably thorough, behind-the-lines look at the way a major network covers a major story.

The story was the 1972 GOP National Convention in Miami Beach. CBS News sent a documentary team, headed by producer-reporter John Sharnick, to cover the way CBS' newsmen handled the proceedings.

Special emphasis was put on the way they reported demonstrations; as you'll recall, the networks came under heavy criticism for the way they covered the violent street battles that accompanied the 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

CBS correspondent Dan Rather notes at the start of "Anatomy" that the 1972 conventions and the threat of similar incidents provided "a good chance for a case study of television news in action—not by way of trying to debate the charges, but simply to give you some basis on which to make your judgements."

He calls the program "a form of self-examination," which is partly correct. CBS newsmen, a field producer and cameramen are asked about their coverage of the scenes outside the convention hall, about what they saw and how they reacted to it.

'Anatomy" is a good primer for viewers who never before have seen the actual pressures and workings of a network news department as it covers a constantly changing story.

It's at its best in capturing the organized pandemonium of the control room, where CBS News executives facing banks of flickering screens must make fast, intelligent decisions while talking with and hearing from two, three or more people simultaneously.

They've got to sort it all out from a wall of television images—Walter Cronkite awaiting his cue; prosperous delegates praising Vice President Spiro T. Agnew; demonstrators in blue jeans and Army fatigues marching toward what could become a bloody street fight with police; Dan Rather standing by to interview John Ehrlichman.

A Synthetic Reed Helps Woodwinds

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Dr. John Backus, a nuclear physicist at the University of Southern California, can blow a tune on a garden hose that sounds like clarinet music.

Backus, who has been doing research for the past 15 years on the acoustics of woodwind instruments, has developed a synthetic reed for clarinets and has applied for a patent in the hope of marketing it. He says the reed takes the uncertainty out of the capricious instrument.

"The woodwinds have been developed over the years by cut-and-try methods," he explained in an interview at his laboratory.

"People experimented with where to put the holes and how big to make them. It's a good design, because they work reasonably well, but there's no reason why they couldn't work better.

"The bassoon particularly—which I play—has a number of deficiencies. Every note is somewhat out of tune and has to be pulled into tune by the way you play it.

"Every so often you blow notes that don't come out the way you expect. It's not too reliable."

Backus says what comes out of a woodwind instrument is the product of a complicated relationship between the vibrations of the reed and the air column.

"The usual cane reed, like all wood things, is a very unpredictable thing," he said. "I have developed a synthetic reed that works as well. It uses metal as the elastic material and light plastic to fill it out so it has the same characteristics as the cane reed. But of course it is much more reliable because it can be mass produced."

Backus insists that with a good reed, almost any air column will do. To prove his point, he made a garden hose into a clarinet.

"I took soft plastic tubing about five eighths of an inch in diameter—about the same as a clarinet—and put on an aluminum adapter that takes a mouthpiece," he said.

"I punched holes along the side, and with my reed, I can get a tone very much like a clarinet. It's so limber you can't get a good grip on it, but I have fooled people playing it.

"My point is that if the wood made any difference, you'd be able to tell the difference between a fine clarinet and this silly thing. And you can't."

TV Upstaging Mother Nature

STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Upstaging multimillion-year-old formations at the Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here is closed-circuit television. Tourists enjoy seeing themselves on the tube.

"More of them are taking pictures in front of the TV set than in front of the formations," says cave owner Lester B. Dill.

"I don't mind Mother Nature being upstaged," Dill claims, "the customer is always right.

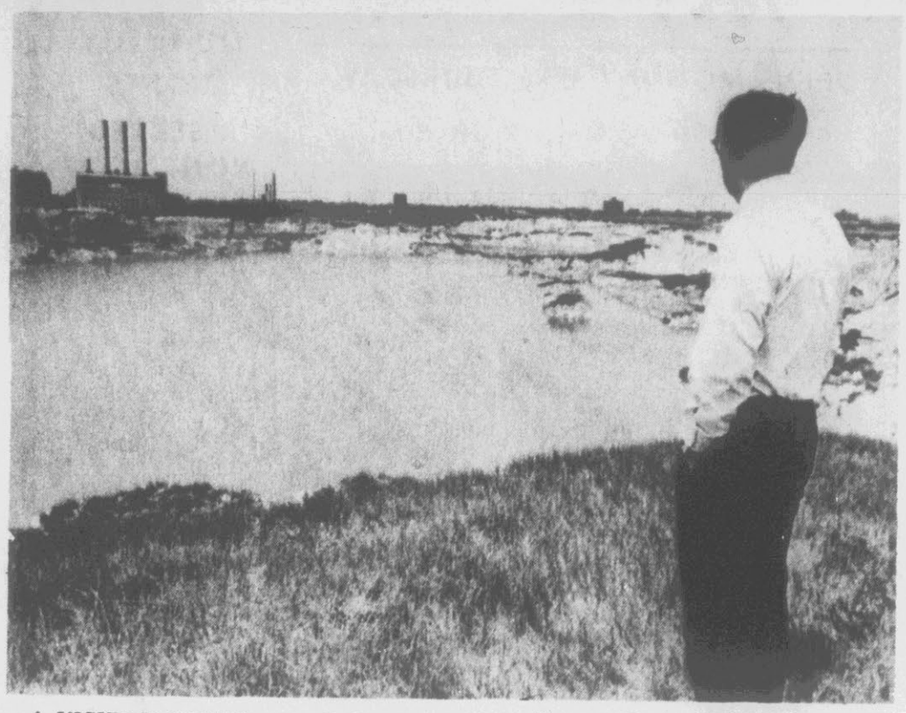
Near-Panic When Two Sinkholes Marrred An Island



A VISITOR VIEWS one of the two sinkholes spawned by a salt drilling operation on the unihabited northern tip of Grosse Ile. (UPI Telephoto)

By PAUL VARIAN

GROSSE ILE, Mich. (UPI) — Though the smokestacks of Detroit's auto plants loom on the mainland and industrial forces throb from within, this island community possesses a rural identity cherished by its 8,500 recreation-minded residents.

Maintaining this peaceful coexistence, however, has not always been easy.

Two years ago two large sinkholes spawned by a salt mining operation formed on the uninhabited northern tip of the island of the island and near panic ensued.

Newspaper headlines carried such advice as "Experts Urge Calm" and "Detroit Won't Sink", but for weeks nobody had any answers. The company responsible for the geological mishap wasn't talking, and state officials had to determine exactly what had happened.

The immediate fear among island residents was that the sinkholes would eventually spread to their property and undermine the foundations of their homes. Environmentalists were concerned that the land cave-ins would cause further pollution of the Detroit River and nearby Lake Erie.

Company Accepts Blame

Neither eventuality has been realized and BASF Wyandotte, the company conducting the drilling operation, has modernized its technology to prevent a recurrence. Company officials accept the blame for what happened, but feel the furor that followed was largely unwarranted.

"This is a mining operation and, as you know, at some point in time there has got to be some kind of manifestation with nature," Tom Piper, BASF Wyandotte geologist, told a recent visitor who came to view the sinkholes.

"Everyone's pores were open at that time" to matters of ecological concern, Piper said, recalling the unfavorable publicity the company received. He said that a study taken later to assess the ecological impact of the cave-ins showed that, "in effect, there wasn't any."

The first indication of ground subsidence or cave-ins came in November, 1970, when long cracks began appearing on some Point Hennepin roads. The cracks widened progressively and by the following January a sinkhole 30 feet wide and 25 feet deep had taken shape. In the months ahead another sinkhole—this one 200 feet across and even deeper—had formed a half-mile from the first.

Both sinkholes have since enlarged to about twice their original size, but with the exception of minor adjustments, have stabilized, Piper said. The sinkholes resemble steepwalled lunar lakes, with water levels of 80 to 100 feet. The water is greenish in color, with a sulfurous odor picked up in underground bedrock formations. Ecologists had initially feared that this sulphur-tainted water would seep into the Detroit River and cause large fish kills.

Sinkholes Fenced

Point Hennepin, which is separated from the rest of the island by a shallow lagoon, has been used over the years as a deposit for the waste tailings from the salt brine pumped out of the earth. Large, spongy, white cliffs have formed, capable of supporting a limited amount of vegetation.

The sinkholes are surrounded by barbed-wire fences. The company first tried to scale down the cliffs bordering the sinkholes to minimize the danger and unfavorable aesthetic impact, but this proved too costly.

The sinkholes formed on Point Hennepin as the result of extensive solution mining operations in a limited area. The operations involved pumping fresh water 1,100 to 1,300 feet underground into the salt beds through input wells and removing the brine through production wells. The method results in cavities in the salt beds and when conducted "blindly" can result in cave-ins.

Piper said BASF Wyandotte no longer pumps brine from these areas and, in the areas where it is pumping, uses a more modern technique to determine beforehand when the salt supply is being exhausted. The methods used at the time the sinkholes were formed, Piper said, were "developed back in the Dark Ages."

The Michigan Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is still keeping tabs on the company, making spot checks on Point Hennepin and requiring periodic subsidence reports.

Touchy Situation

"We're kind of touchy on the situation down there," said Robert Ives, chief of the DNR's Mineral Wells Section.

"With something like this you don't know what can happen over a period of time. You have to keep pretty close tabs."

The situation now facing company and Grosse Ile Township officials is what is to be done with Point Hennepin—all 200 acres of it—when BASF Wyandotte has completed its operation there.

Township Supervisor Dewitt J. Henry wonders "if it isn't their responsibility (the company's) to bring that land up to the level where it can be developed. Right now, it's just a wasteland."

Although the company owns, pays taxes on, and can do whatever it wants with the land, it has gone as far as sponsoring a feasibility study on possible future uses.

No Commitment

A BASF Wyandotte spokesman emphasized that ts with the land, it has gone as far as sponsoring a feasibility study on possible future use.

The study suggested that once the land is developed it would be best put to use for residential or recreational purposes. Costs, however, were considered "excessive," and unjustified at current land market values.

Regarding what should be done about the sinkholes, the study, formulated by an outside consultant firm, recommended:

"Without further detailed engineering and cost studies, it appears that the most appropriate solution would be back filling, using materials and methods that would establish a stabilized land surface.

"This would alleviate the public concern for further subsidence and eliminate the sinkholes as hazards. Furthermore, the recovered land can be utilized more productively as well as adding to the use efficiency of adjacent land areas."

Two Samoas Are Divided By New 'Tradition' And The Old

EDITOR's Note — Since being split at the end of the last century, the two Samoas have gone in different directions until they are now worlds apart. Islanders of American Samoa talk of their material benefits and call their cousins to the west-poor. Westerners reply that they've maintained their Polynesian tradition and haven't sold out to the United States. "It's just like the Berlin Wall."

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (AP) — "Hamburgers are an American institution — It's your duty to eat them," reads a red, white and blue sign in a waterfront stand here.

Next door, in the undeveloped country of Western Samoa, people still prefer simple three-hour feasts of suckling pig, lobster, taro and yams.

The United States and Germany split up these Polynesian islands at the end of the last century, and the two sides headed off in separate directions.

One has remained American ever since, first as a Navy coaling station and, since 1951, as an incorporated territory. The other was governed by New Zealand after World War I and granted independence in 1962.

Now they are worlds apart.

"It's just like the Berlin Wall," says one Samoan here with roots on both sides. "We're the same people, the same families even, but we're completely different.

"Here we feel we're where it's at and think, 'Oh those poor cats, no cars, no money.' And they're saying, 'Those guys have lost their heritage and sold out ... we're poor but we call our own shots.'"

The Americans spend $32 million a year for 28,000 people on 76 square miles. Western Samoa's budget is less than a third of that for 150,000 people on 1,133 square miles.

"The Samoans here have money to buy things that will improve their quality of life," says Gov. John M. Haydon. "I don't believe we should go back to making soap from bear fat and living in log cabins."

Western Samoa Prime Minister Fiame Mataafa, a high chief, asserts: "We must maintain our traditional way of life." His country has refused aid to build new roads, saying they might unbalance the society.

The results of the two philosophies are obvious to casual observers and confirmed by those who know Samoa well:

The Great American Dream is possible for the American Samoan, but if he doesn't earn some money, he is in trouble. His family will feed him, but others on the block have more than food.

Western Samoans live much like their ancestors did a thousand years ago. Youths can choose the modern way, but they have to do without frozen orange juice.

As a rule, American Samoans smile less. But the kids seem brighter because more things stimulate their minds. But they aren't necessarily happier.

The Western Samoan knows who he is and where he fits. The American Samoan often isn't sure of either, but then he isn't held back by custom and habit.

Outsiders with experience on both sides generally say the people have a more meaningful and richer life on the Western side, even if they don't have the material advantages.

Until recently, the United States put a lot less effort into the colony than did Germany, or New Zealand, on the other side. Now money pours in at a pace and a pattern many call scandalous.

So many Samoans have government and construction jobs that the scarce agricultural land available is under-used, and the territory imports basic foodstuffs from Western Samoa.

The territory is run by the Interior Department. Gov. Haydon, an energetic magazine publisher from Seattle, is widely known as a shrewd administrator with a consuming concern for the job. But he is hamstrung by past neglect, heavy bureaucracy and an unclear policy on the cultural status of Samoans.

The American who might know all Samoa best is Rob Shaeffer, one of the few foreigners ever made a legitimate "talking chief." he lived with Samoans at home in Oceanside, Calif., spent two years on the pristine Western Samoa island of Savaii as a Peace Corps volunteer and then joined the Peace Corps staff in Apia, the capital.

Now he teaches high school in American Samoa where he is widely known among Americans and Samoans.

"America," Shaeffer says, "has totally ruined the pride and dignity in being Samoan. They have lost what is best, everything that is really good, in their culture and they adopted much of what is bad in ours."

So many Samoans went to Hawaii, California, the East Coast and Vietnam that there are more Samoans in the United States than in American Somoa. Many have good jobs, and many others are on welfare.

"You simply cannot underestimate the change that a Samoan undergoes when he visits the States," Shaeffer says.

To a certain extent, a similar thing happens when Western Samoans go to New Zealand. But there the traditional chiefs make sure youths with foreign ideas don't step out of line.

In fact, Western Samoa has only 158 policemen on all nine islands. Their major concern is stopping villagers from practicing the treasured Samoan custom of throwing rocks at strangers.

On the American side, many Samoans argue that they are not losing their culture at all — it's merely changing with the times. After all, said one, those picturesque thatch roof houses with open sides are a drag in a rainstorm.

Good or bad, the lines appear to be drawn. Western Samoa is still keeping out international airlines in order to have a thin stream of visitors via its own regional carrier. Its development is centering on health and schools, not tourist facilities.

It hasn't yet found the money to join the United Nations, and it accepts more than a million dollars a year from New Zealand, but it is progressing slowly at its chosen pace.

American Samoa is rapidly expanding its economy and its basic services, adding new industries to the two big tuna packers on cannery row. The idea is to bring samoans onto a cash-economy level that interlocks, at least partially, with the rest of America.

A committee on future status decided on more of the same with a little more voice in the government, and Samoans will elect their own governor in 1976.

There seems to be little serious talk of reunification under any auspices.

On-The-Job Spending Up

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. industry will spend $3.16 billion to improve on-the-job health and safety in 1973, 26 per cent more than in 1972, McGraw-Hill Publications Co. reports.

According to its first health and safety spending survey, the company also noted that preliminary plans for 1976 call for $3.56 billion to be spent in this area.

Business investment for employe health and safety in 1972 totaled $2.5 billion, or 2.5 per cent of all capital investment. This will rise to 3 per cent of total capital spending in 1973 and continue at that level through 1976.

"The heavy gain in health and safety spending is obviously a direct reflection of how the 1970 Occupational Safety and Health Act is affecting business," says Douglas Greenwald, McGraw-Hill chief economist. Greenwald called the act "perhaps the most spectacular issue to be faced by American industry since the pollution problem hit the front page."

Charge Card Changes Set

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. announced today it is inaugurating a new system in North Carolina to reduce the fraudulent use of the bank's Master Charge cards.

Instead of giving Master Charge customers the original copy of the sales slip, the merchant will retain the original copy and give the customer the carbon.

Bill H. Hayes, director of Master Charge security, said the system will enable Wachovia to obtain more complete evidence in the prosecution of fraud cases. He said the original can be used to obtain fingerprints and palm prints admissable as evidence in court. Hayes also said handwriting on the original copy can be more easily analyzed than on a carbon.

Hayes said Wachovia is the first bank in North Carolina to adopt the new sales slips, but that all banks are expected to adopt them soon. He said Wachovia tested the system in Winston-Salem and that is in use in scattered locations across the nation.

Population Put At 210,157,000

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau has reported the U.S. population at about 210,157,000 on May 1, an increase of approximately 1,595,000 over the estimate for May 1972.

The new total includes armed forces overseas, and is an increase of 122,000 over April, the bureau said Tuesday.

Crew Ejected As Jet Crashed

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — A U.S. Air Force F4 jet fighter-bomber crashed while making a landing approach at Udorn Air Base in northeast Thailand Tuesday night, a U.S. military command spokesman reported.

He said both crewmen ejected safely and were immediately picked up. He said the aircraft was on a routine flight when the accident occurred about 5 miles southeast of the base. The cause of the crash is under investigation.

Harris

Funeral services for Mr. John Edward Harris, 57, will be conducted Thursday at 3:30 p.m. at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by Wilbur Bowen, Jehovah's Witness minister of Zebulon. Burial will be in the Bowen Family Cemetery.

Harris died Monday afternoon in Edgecombe General Hospital. A Pitt County native, he had lived in Greene County before entering the Guardian Care Nursing Home in Tarboro. He was one of Jehovah's Witnesses and was the widower of Mrs. Beatrice Baker Harris, who died in 1970.

Proper Insulation Said Key Factor In Energy Economies

The single most important factor in reducing the amount of energy needed to heat and cool a home is proper insulation, according to George Reel, customer service representative, of Greenville Utilities Commission.

Reel said that the Greenville Utilities Commission is distributing at no cost a mini-primer on home insulation. The leaflet explains the importance of good insulation for homeowners and prospective home buyers and builders, and offers easy-to-follow tips on how to get full insulation, where to insulate, and how to cut corners on heating and cooling bills with simple materials.

"Now, during the home buying and building season, is a good time to think about proper insulation," Reel said. "Insisting on full insulation now can cut your heating and cooling costs significantly later. Now is also a good time for homeowners to improve their existing insulation."

The folder also contains a graphic chart which pinpoints key spots for insulation, and a guide which explains how to figure insulation needs.

"By using less energy to heat and cool a home, a homeowner will not only save money, but he will also be doing this part to help conserve the nation's energy supply," Reel said.

The folder is available as a public service at the Greenville Utilities commission office.

End Congress

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Prodded by the armed forces, the government dissolved Congress today, ending representative rule in this former stronghold of Latin-American democracy.

President Juan D. Bordaberry will rule by decree according to a government broadcast. His government has been under heavy influence of military leaders for months.

In place of Congress, a Council of State was formed to oversee Bordaberry's activities, the broadcast said.

Military officials said the decision to abolish the Congress was taken because the elected body had blocked the armed forces' campaign to end "leftwing subversion" and failed to take steps to provide efficient government.

The Occupational Education Plan for the Greenville City Schools, reviewed by Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Elementary Education, was approved by the Greenville City School Board at a special call meeting Monday night.

Monday's presentation was a follow-up on a full presentation made by Mrs. Whitehurst at the regular school board meeting on June 18.

The overall occupational education plan, which is submitted to the State Department of Public Instruction each year for state funding aid, this year incorporates a six-year projection plan. Mrs. Whitehurst emphasized that the application for state aid was applicable only for the coming school year, and that the six year plan was a means of providing for long-range projection of needs in the field of occupational education.

One of the major assurances required at state level is one showing involvement of local agri-business, agriculture, business and industrial leaders in the community.

The school board reached an concensus that a cover letter from the school board would be prepared to submit with the application. This letter will assure state planners that action will be taken to form and advisory committee of local business leaders to provide input into the city school vocational education program.

Currently, basic needs of the vocational education program are projected annually by a Standing Working Comittee composed of vocational teachers, the high school principal and other knowlegeable members of the school system.

Mrs. Whitehurst said the six year approach is one that will provide for a direction the program will take in the future, and give a means to evolve long range projection into yearly plans.

The second item taken up at the special call school board meeting was that of developing Education Specification related to the proposed new middle junior high school.

At the June 18 meeting, determination of grade placement within the proposed new school was an unresolved element in the planning stages for educational specifications.

No action was taken at the special call meeting to resolve this planning element. Associate Superintendent Glenn Cox was asked to determine the latest date that the board can reach a decision and still not interrupt the time frame of the already established long-range planning (PERT) chart for the proposed school.

This factor will be the subject of further discussion at the regular July meeting scheduled for July 16.

Re-Elected Ass'n Prexy

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, V. Va. — Charles Howard, Jr. of Greenville, N.C. was re-elected president of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association here yesterday.

Others officers are: Kerrington Bidgood, Danville, Va., vice president; Thomas Harvey, Jr., Greenville, N.C., treasurer and Stuart Christian, Jr., Richmond, Va., chairman of the executive committee.

Carroll G. Brunthaver, assistant secretary of agriculture for export expansion work, addressed the 32nd annual convention of the Leaf Tobacco Exporters Association.

He said mounting labor costs are causing problems in the nation's tobacco industry.

Brunthaver also said the tobacco allotment system is hurting the small farmer because "many tobacco allotments are too small to provide a good living for a tobacco farmer and his family."

Fishing Boat 'Exploded'

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP)—The Coast Guard said today a fishing vessel with three men aboard sank after an apparent explosion Tuesday night in the Core Creek, N. C., section of the Intracoastal Waterway.

No survivors from the 40-foot boat, Peggy Ann, have been found by a rescue boat or by divers at the scene, about five miles north of Morehead City, the Coast Guard said.

A spokesman for 5th Coast Guard District headquarters here said the vessel was believed to have been operated by James Gray and that his brothers-in-law, Clennie Simmons and Dial Simmons, also were aboard.

The Coast Guard said its rescue coordination center here received a call at 6 p.m. Tuesday from the bridge attendant at Core Creek, who said a shrimp trawler had reported sighting a fuel slick and debris in the water about a mile south of the bridge.

A 30-foot Coast Guard utility boat was dispatched to search the area and located the submerged boat, identified as the Peggy Ann.

ATTENTION TOBACCO FARMERS

ASCS has mailed out a letter that asks for growers to designate the market on which they would prefer to sell their tobacco. This is voluntary and not binding on any grower, but if the results of this poll are put into effect this season, it will determine how much selling time each market and consequently each warehouse will receive.

It is urgent that you designate Greenville and urge others to do so. Greenville has five sets of buyers and every major export and domestic company in the world is represented on the Greenville Market.

Do not let this matter slip your attention; it is very important. Be sure to go to your county ASCS office and file this report not later than Thursday, June 28.

Pirates Rally To Nip Campbell, 4-3

THE ONE THAT GOT AWAY — East Carolina University's Bobby Harrison ducks away from a high, inside fast ball that goes past the outstretched mitt of Campbell catcher John Whitehurst (arrow) last night. The umpire is Claude Kennedy. The Bucs rallied on a homer by Harrison in the bottom of the eighth to tie the game at 3-3, then win it later in the frame, 4-3. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

East Carolina University and Campbell College used the double play-route to get themselves out of repeated jams before the Bucs finally rallied to pull out a 4-3 victory over the Camels last night.

The win was the third straight for the Pirates and boosted their record to 4-6 within the North Carolina Summer Collegiate League.

Each team recorded three double plays during the evening, helping to prevent more scoring. Two of East Carolina's however came at more crucial times, while Campbell had only one to come until tight conditions.

The two Pirate pitchers, starter Dave LaRussa, and reliever Russ Smith who came on to get the win, had some control problems, but came through when it counted. LaRussa scattered seven hits in just over six innings. He walked six and struck out four. Smith, in less that three frames, walked three, hit one and struck out only one. He allowed just one hit, but gave up two runs.

Campbell put on a number of threats, leaving a total of 13 men stranded during the game.

In the first, Campbell loaded the bases on LaRussa without a hit. Frank Floyd led off with a walk and with two away, he had reached third. LaRussa then walked John Whitehurst and Donnie Hatcher to load the bases, then fanned Mark Little with a full count, to retire the side.

East Carolina then pushed into the lead in the first inning, pushing starter Jerry Taylor off the mound quickly. Jimmy Paige led off with a line drive single to left. Carl Summerell followed with another base hit and Bobby Harrison cracked one to center, driving in Paige. With one down, Troy Eason walked to load them up, and Taylor went to the showers.

The next batter, however, hit into an inning-ending double play to keep the Bucs from scoring more.

Wes Grout, who came in in relief, held the Bucs in check until the eighth inning, allowing only one hit from the bottom of the first when he made his first appearance until the eighth when he allowed two more hits, one a homer.

During that period, the Bucs were not able to put a man beyond first base. Two double plays helped to keep it that way, however.

Campbell, meanwhile, was keeping the pressure on the Buc defenses. In the second, Butch Sigmon singled and moved up on a hit by Floyd, but the Bucs held there. A double play kept men off second in the fourth, and one was cut down stealing in the fifth.

A freak play helped to lead Campbell to their first run in the seventh. Hatcher led off with a double down the left field line, and with one away, Sigmon hit back to LaRussa. Hatcher had come off second and LaRussa chased him down and put the tag on him near third. Sigmon had kept going around first, and slid into second just ahead of the relay that could have gotten another double play. LaRussa then wild pitched him to third, and after walking Dave Adorno, Grout got a hit to score Sigmon to tie it at 1-1.

In the seventh, Townie Townsend singled with one down and John Whitehurst walked, sending LaRussa out of the game. Smith, coming in, hit Hatcher to load them up, but the Bucs came up with another twin-killing to ease the threat.

But in the eighth, Campbell pushed over two to take the lead. With one down, Adorno walked and Grout got a hit. Hank Small came on to run for him. Floyd also walked, loading them up, and Smith then walked Al McMillen to force in Adorno. Townsend hit a sacrifice fly to score Small, but Floyd was doubled up going to third to end the inning with the Camels in charge, 3-1.

The Bucs rallied for three in the bottom of the eighth, however, and pulled it out. With one down, Summerell reached on an error. Harrison then slammed his third homer of the season, driving in Summerell ahead of himself to tie the game 3-3.

After another out, Eason walked as did Ron Leggett. Greg Fulghum hit a single to left, and Eason scored on the play as the relay was cut off, giving the Bucs the winning run.

The Bucs are idle tonight, but play host to Louisburg on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at Harrington Field. The game will be sponsored by Larry's Shoe Store and free tickets are available there.

Moose Defeat Pepsi By 11-1

The Moose handed Pepsi-Cola only its second loss of the season yesterday as the two wound up regular season play in the Tar Heel Little League, 11-1.

The win left the Moose with a 6-9 record and gave them sole possession of fourth place. Pepsi, which has already clinched the title, finished 13-2.

The results of today's game between the Graniteers and Integon will complete the pairings for the league tournament, which begins Thursday. Decker Looked For An Extra Edge

By FRANK BROWN
Associated Press Sports Writer

The curveball and the fastball are a pitcher's most effective weapons. But then, it never hurts to look elsewhere for an extra edge.

Minnesota's Joe Decker looked...up.

"Before the game," said Decker after his 15-strikeout effort defeated the Chicago White Sox 4-0 Tuesday night, "I prayed that I would have a decent performance. One that would get me started—get me going this season."

To say that Decker's prayer was answered is an understatement. The strikeout total became the new American League high this season and nearly doubled the total the 26-year-old right-hander had accumulated going into the game.

In other American League games, the New York Yankees pummeled the Cleveland Indians 10-2, the Baltimore Orioles blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 6-0, the Detroit Tigers topped the Boston Red Sox 4-1, the Oakland Athletics beat the Texas Rangers 6-2 and the California Angels edged the Kansas City Royals 6-5.

At Fenway Park in Boston, Mike Strahler pitched 8 2-3 innings of seven-hit ball to help defeat the Red Sox and break the Tigers' eight-game losing streak. Gates Brown supplied the power with a run-scoring triple and two singles and Strahler did the rest, except for the final out, which was handled by John Hiller.

For many of the Oakland A's, the highlight of their victory was was not the long-ball hitting of Bill North and Joe Rudi, but the appearance at bat of relief pitcher Rollie Fingers. Fingers, who batted .316 last year before the inception of the designated hitter, batted for Deron Johnson in the ninth inning of the triumph.

The result might explain why the AL doesn't allow its pitchers to swing bats. Fingers fanned, becoming the second pitcher to have a strikeout recorded next to his name. Chicago's Cy Acosta was the first.

The Cleveland pitching staff couldn't keep from getting hit—and hit hard—by the New York Yankees, who piled up 17 hits on the way to their victory. Graig Nettles and Roy White hit home runs as the Yankees won their ninth game in 10 starts.

Boog Powell's two-run double and and Bobby Grich's two-run single backed Jim Palmer's four-hitter in Milwaukee. Palmer cruised to his eighth victory in 12 decisions and stopped the five-game win streak of Brewers' ace Jim Colborn.

Kansas City's Dick Drago was coasting into the eighth inning on a two-hitter in California when the Angels, behind Vada Pinson's home run, erupted for four runs, then scored two more in the ninth to overcome a 5-0 Royals lead.

In the National League Tuesday, the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Mets 5-1; the Montreal Expos topped the Pittsburgh Pirates 10-3; the Philadelphia Phillies took the St. Louis Cardinals 10-3 in the first game, then lost 5-4 in 11 innings in the nightcap of a twi-night doubleheader; Cincinnati defeated Houston 5-1; Los Angeles blanked San Diego 7-0 and Atlanta crushed San Francisco 92.

Coca-Cola Rips Optimists Nine

Coca-Cola assured itself of no worse than a tie for second place in the North State Little League, downing the Optimists, 14-2.

The win left Coke with a 10-5 mark for the year, tieing the Lions for second. A loss by R.C. Cola today to the Jaycees would knot the three for first. The Optimists, 6-9, assured themselves for fourth.

Should R.C. win today, they would gain the title, while the Lions and Coke would have to toss a coin for second seeding in the playoff, which starts Thursday. That would also tie the Kiwanis and Jaycees for fifth, bringing on another coin toss.

The playoffs, will begin Thursday at 4 p.m. at Guy Smith, with the third seeded team meeting the fifth. The winner meets the second place team Friday at 4 p.m. The Optimists will meet the sixth place team at 6 p.m. Thursday, with the winner meeting the first seed at 6 p.m. Friday. The finals will be Saturday at 4 p.m. at Elm Street, with the winner moving into the City Finals.

The Optimists opened the scoring with a run in the third. Mac Stokes singled and advanced on a passed ball. Billy Dough and Jim Kernon both walked to load them up and a passed ball scored Stokes.

Coke came back with six in their half of the inning. Rusty Lilley reached on a fielder's choice and Lee Hardee doubled. Mark Jones singled to score Lilley, and David Lowe triple in Hardee and Jones. Walter Gurganus walked and stole second. Billy Brannigan also walked and Ronnie Chapman doubled in both Lowe and Gurganus. Brannigan came around on Marshall Crumpler's hit.

In the fourth, Coke came through with eight more to complete the scoring. Lilley opened it with a home run and Hardee got a single. Jones doubled and Lowe singled in Hardee. Brannigan walked and Chapman doubled over Jones and Lowe. Will Sanderson doubled in Brannigan and Chapman and Crumpler singled, then stole second. Lilley walked to load them up and Hardee walked to force in Sanderson. Jones hit a sacrifice fly to score Crumpler with the final run of the game.

Del Unser Showing That He Has Earned His Job With Phillies

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

A Washington paper is responsible, in recent weeks, for a lot of people in Washington losing their jobs.

Del Unser is not one of them.

In fact, the Philadelphia outfielder, who had five hits, including two homers in Tuesday's twi-night doubleheader split with the St. Louis Cardinals, recognizes that a Washington paper may have helped his career.

Unser's three-run blast in the first game powered the Phils to a 10-3 victory and his two-out ninth-inning homer tied the second game before the Cards won it in the 11th.

Last winter, Unser opened a Washington paper only to find he'd be reading a different sports page this summer. The story said he'd be trading his fifth-place letters in Cleveland for Philadelphia's last-place letters.

But that didn't bother Unser. Reading on, Unser found out that his job in Philadelphia wasn't going to be fulltime. Now that irked Unser.

The article said that he was slated for pinch-hitting, pinch-running and defensive work, all part-time stuff. So the first act he did as a Philadelphia Phillie was call his manager.

"I'm going to be a starter," Unser said from his end of the phone. "Just give me a chance."

From the other end of the line Phils' Manager Danny Ozark claimed he was misquoted and assured Unser he'd get his chance.

Elsewhere in the National League, Los Angeles shut out San Diego 7-0; Atlanta blasted San Francisco 9-2; Chicago defeated New York 5-1; Cincinnati beat Houston 5-1 and Montreal stunned Pittsburgh 10-3.

The Giants lost No. 14 of their last 18 games Tuesday night at the hands of Atlanta. Substitute starter Ron Scheuler pitched a six-hitter and Darrell Evans and John Oates clouted homers in the Braves' victory.

The loss dropped the Giants 6½ games behind the pace-setting Dodgers in the NL West.

The Dodgers, behind Don Sutton's two-hit pitching, blanked the Padres for their 11th victory in their last 12 games.

The Mets are damaging New York's dream of a subway series. While the Yankees are first in the American League East, the Mets have dropped into last place in the NL East. Burt Hooton pitched a four-hitter and Jose Cardenal keyed a three-run third inning rally for Chicago's victory.

The Cubs now lead second-place Montreal by 6½ games.

In Houston, Joe Morgan's two-run double and the combined pitching of Ross Grimsley and Clay Carroll gave Cincinnati the victory and halted the Astros' four-game winning streak.

In the American League it was: New York 10, Cleveland 2; Baltimore 6, Milwaukee 0; Detroit 4, Boston 1; Oakland 6, Texas 2; California 6, Kansas City 5 and Minnesota 4, Chicago 0.

Trevino Returns In Western Golf

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Jack Nicklaus and Tom Weiskopf are taking a break, but Lee Trevino returns to action this week in the $175,000 Western Open Golf Tournament.

The flamboyant Trevino, who has slipped to fourth on the money-winning list after a couple of early-season victories in Florida, skipped last week's American Golf Classic because, he said, the 7,180 yard Firestone Country Club course was too long for him.

Although he rarely plays well after an absence from competition, Trevino may find the compact Midlothian Country Club layout, only 6,654 yards and par 71, more to his liking as he makes his last American start prior to defense of his British Open crown.

Nicklaus and Weiskopf, along with U.S. Open Champion Johnny Miller, simply are taking time off.

Another $100,000 winner, Lanny Wadkins, was one of three men to withdraw. Wadkins became ill on the flight to Chicago and left for North Carolina immediately. Gene Borek and Australian David Graham also withdrew.

The field for this old tournament — this is the 70th Western Open — is a strong one, however.

Topping the list is Bruce Crampton of Australia, who scored his fourth victory of the season and took over the lead in the money race in the American Golf Classic.

Also on hand in the 147-man field are Arnold Palmer and Billy

Other standouts include defending titleholder Jimmy Jamieson, veteran Doug Sanders, Master King Tommy Aaron and 53-year-old Julius Boros.

Portions of the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday will be televised nationally by Hughes Sports Network.

Court Begins 2nd Slam Bid

LONDON (AP) — With her debacle at the hands of Bobby Riggs behind her, Margaret Court begins her bid for a second Grand Slam today at Wimbledon.

The top-seeded Mrs. Court, who won the Australian, French, Wimbledon and Forest Hills titles two years ago takes on fellow Australian Karen Krantzcke.

Billie Jean King, who beat Mrs. Court here last year, had an easy time in her first match Tuesday, polishing off Lucia Bassia of Italy, 6-0, 6-2.

The 29-year-old star from Long Beach, Calif., had the first set of her second round match over in 12 minutes and lost only six points.

Chris Evert from Fort Lauderdale, Fla. defeated Fiorella Bonicelli of Uruguay 6-3, 6-3, while Rosemary Casals of San Francisco raced past Brenda Kirk 6-0, 6-1.

Virginia Wade, Britain's No. 1 player, had a scare from 16-year-old Australian lefthander Dianne Fromskholtz in the first set, but righted herself to win 3-6, 6-2, 6-1.

Evonne Goolagong of Australia, seeded No. 3, volleyed well to beat Betty Stove of the Netherlands 6-3, 6-3.

First round American women winners included Judy Heldman of New York, Tory Ann Fretz of Los Angeles, Valerie Ziegenfuss of San Diego, Marita Redondo of National City, Calif of National City, Calif., and Pam Teegarden of Los Angeles.

In the men's circuit, torn by the boycott of the Association of Tennis Professionals, Roger Taylor, who was not among the 70 players who did not play, beat Harold Ensenbroich of West Germany in a second round match 6-3, 6-2, 6-2.

Jan Kodes of Czechoslavakia, seeded No. 2 behind Ilie Nastase, eliminated Pietro Marzano of Italy 6-0, 6-4, 6-3.

Bob McKinley of St. Ann, Mo., brother of 1963 champion Chuck McKinley, defeated Jun Kuki of Japan 6-4, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 in a second round match.

In a first round match, Pancho Walthall of San Antonio Tex. beat Tadeusz Nowicki of Poland 6-4, 3-6, 6-8, 6-3, 6-2.

Plastic Bottle Use Is Growing

NEW YORK (UPI) — American consumers will use a record 7 billion plastic bottles this year, The Society of the Plastics Industry (SPI) forecasts.

Most of plastic bottle packaging is of household chemicals such as bleaches, detergents, cleansers, window cleaners and soaps. Toiletries, cosmetics, health care products and food products also are being packaged in plastic bottles in record numbers, SPI says.

New Era Of 'Summitry' Is Indicated

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The windup communique of President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev bolsters the theory that the age of summitry has just begun.

Already we know that Nixon will make a second visit to Moscow. Henry A. Kissinger, his chief foreign policy adviser, has suggested it will be in 12 to 14 months.

This would call for a second visit to the United States by Brezhnev, provided the warming relationship between the two countries does not suddenly chill.

The general secretary of the Soviet Communist party has virtually invited himself back by declaring publicly he would like another chance to see more of the United States and the American people.

In their last three hours together in San Clemente, Calif., Nixon and Brezhnev laid the groundwork for the third summit. It could be timed to climax a new agreement to limit and reduce nuclear offensive weapons. This, of course, will depend largely on the kind of progress that is made at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in Geneva.

The communique, meanwhile, hinted at an eventual all-European summit.

Nixon and Brezhnev promised to do what they can to contribute to a successful European security conference. The foreign ministers of 32 European nations plus the United States and Canada convene in Helsinki beginning July 3.

The communique said both Washington and Moscow "proceed from the assumption that progress in the work of the conference will produce possibilities for completing it at the highest level."

The major goal is a general easing of Cold War frictions. Secretary of State William P. Rogers will attend the first week or 10 days of sessions for the United States. The conference may last for months.

Kissinger said it is not up to Nixon and Brezhnev to settle whether there should be a grand East-West summit in Europe to follow up the Helsinki talks. But the communique implies that the two leaders are pushing in that direction.

In his U.S. radio-television address Sunday, Brezhnev invited all the nations of the world to join in the trend toward "peaceful cooperation" set by him and Nixon.

W.C. Monk Is Officer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) — William E. Michaels of Danville, Va., has been elected president of the Tobacco Association of United States at the group's 73rd annual convention here.

Michaels, who is senior vice president and a director of Dibrell Brothers Inc., of Danville, succeeds E.J. O'Brien III of Louisville.

Other new officers include: William C. Monk of Farmville, N.C., first vice president; William A. Goodson Jr., of Winston-Salem, N.C., second vice president; and Hendricks Shelton of Richmond, Va., third vice president.

The board of governors also named Charles Albert Carr of Danville, retired chairman of the board of Debrill Brothers, as governor emeritus.

More Reliance On Computers

NEW YORK (UPI) — Business and government in 1972 spent an estimated $700 million to buy computer time and services, up from $485 million the previous year. In 1973 expenditures should rise to $1 billion and could reach $2 billion by 1966, according to an industry source.

"Remote computer terminals are proliferating so fast, in a few years they could be as common as postage meters, and just about as easy to use," says John Luke, president of INFONET, the remote computing network of Computer Sciences Corporation.

Daily News Summary For Nixon Is Meaty But Dry

By JULES LOH
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's most exclusive news publication is put together every day by a staff of five for one key reader: the President of the United States.

Titled simply "News Summary," it arrives at his desk at 8 a.m. each morning in a blue loose-leaf binder. If the President is out of town it reaches him by wire.

The summary, meaty but dry, contains the essence of news and commentary from nearly 50 daily newspapers, about as many magazines and journals, plus the major news services and the three major television networks.

A sample:

"2 US News pages on 'Biggest WH Banquet Ever' w 7 photos on the 'day of high patriotism'—'like a breath of fresh air for scandal-ridden DC' and 'a much-need lift for a beleaguered RN...'."

The item, from a May 28 summary, condenses a U.S. News & World Report story on the White House (WH) banquet for returning war prisoners. Well-known names, including Richard Nixon's, are in the form of initials.

The summary generally runs about 30 pages with the news these days divided into categories: Watergate, Indochina, Economy and so forth. In recent months Watergate has commanded most of the digest's space.

Patrick J. Buchanan, a White House speechwriter and former editorial writer for the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, began the summary when President Nixon took office and still supervises its production.

The main editing, however, is done by Lyndon (Mort) Allin, a 32-year-old former history teacher who says he has always been interested in the media.

A review of some summaries for the past year shows that the digests are indeed thorough and generally objective, if usually bone dry.

The same summary that contained the favorable U.S. News & World Report comment on the POW banquet, for example, also gave Time magazine's assessment that his "speech to the POWs 'carried RN's new theme to illogical lengths...He was flirting w demagoguery...at an occasion of deep nat'l appreciation used by RN for a self-serving purpose."

Allin and his staff of four scan about 30 newspapers each day page by page and an additional 15 or more for major news and editorial comment.

They also videotape all TV news shows, and keep a running summary throughout the day of the output of the main wires of The Associated Press and United Press International.

By 11 p.m. the summary is ready for final typing by the White House secretarial pool. It is then copied, stapled together and distributed.

"The summary is written for the President and originally had a circulation of five," Allin said. "Gradually the list grew, and when it got to about 30 so many people saw it we began getting requests for more to be included. Now it goes to about 130 people."

Columns and interpretive stories that appear in the morning papers go into the following day's summary.

The only major papers left out of the summary are The Washington Post and The New York Times. Instead, both are slipped under the President's door each morning by his valet, Manolo Sanchez.

"If we summarized those two, it would not only make the summary twice as long but redundant," Buchanan said.

In a "Weekend News Review," which Allin edits, he does include the opinion sections of The Post and The Times.

Among journals, the summaries focus not only on the news weeklies but on publications ranging from Foreign Affairs to Playboy and the Village Voice.

Daily digests, however, give prominence to television reports.

In the print media, special watch is kept for "a new trend of thought. People like Lisagor or Sidey can set some trends and get things popping," Allin said, referring to Peter Lisagor of the Chicago Daily News and Hugh Sidey of Time.

Fertile Egg Not More Nutritious

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Dr. David B. Mellor, poultry marketing specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says fertile eggs are no more nutritious than nonfertile eggs.

"Clean, sound-shelled, graded eggs maintained under refrigeration and purchased from a store where movement is rapid are still the best choice," he says.

Added Perils In Rainy Driving

NEW YORK (AP) — Driving too fast in rain can put your car out of commission in other ways in addition to the obvious danger of skidding, the Clark Equipment Trailer Division says professional truck drivers report.

First, the deluge from large puddles of water can soak wiring and other vital parts, causing your car to stall. Second, wet brake linings will cause uneven braking and maybe complete loss of stopping power. Third, mist droplets thrown off by vehicle wheels can become hazardous at 35 mph and positively blinding at 55 mph to following and passing vehicles.

Just Pull Over If Car Overheats

NEW YORK (AP) — If your car's temperature gauge warns of overheating this summer, pull over to the side of the road and let the engine cool, suggests the Modine Manufacturing company, maker of automotive cooling system components. Lift the hood, and check for broken hoses or radiator leaks. A snappity-snap sound warns of a broken fan belt.

Old Fortress Is Seat Of Govm't

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — Puerto Rico's seat of government is La Fortaleza (The Fortress). It was begun in 1533 to help guard the entrance of San Juan from raiding British and Dutch fleets, but proved badly located for a fort and was turned into a governor's mansion.

Its residents have included most of the 100 governors appointed by Spain, three military governors for the United States and, since 1948, three governors elected by the people of Puerto Rico.

North Ireland Election Entering Final Stretch

By COLIN FROST
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST (AP) — Northern Ireland's bloodstained election campaign hit the final stretch today with tight security planned against the threat of bombing and assassination.

One million persons are expected to vote Thursday for a provincial assembly intended to help end the province's guerrilla war between Protestants and Roman Catholics.

The three-week campaign has produced 25 violent deaths and more than 70 bombings.

Paddy Wilson, a founder of the Catholic-based Social Democratic and Labor party, was stabbed to death Tuesday along with a Protestant girl clerk he was driving home.

The autopsy showed that Wilson, 42, married and the father of a 14-year-old son, had been stabbed at least 30 times. The girl, Irene Andrews, had been stabbed at least 20 times.

Their bodies lay beside Wilson's car at the gates of a quarry on the outskirts of Belfast.

A group calling itself the Ulster Freedom Fighters claimed to have killed them. This organization has emerged only in the past two weeks.

It is generally presumed to be a small group of fanatical Protestants. In calls to Belfast newspapers it warned that similar killings would be staged.

Seven people have died in little more than 24 hours.

The province's four-year death toll stood at 837, including 156 fatalities this year.

William Whitelaw, the British administrtor in Norther Ireland, called in military and police chiefs to plan closer security for politicians engaged in Thursday's voting.

Most Northern Ireland politicians, however, have already been under close protection. Most know that by simple engagement in politics they make themselves targets.

Few politicians in this troubled province move in public without a gun or go to sleep without a pistol near at hand.

Thursday's voting is for a 78-seat assembly to supplant the former parliament which had given Northern Ireland's Protestant majority control of the province for more than half a century.

Ponder Demo Wiretap Probes

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate special prosecutor's office is debating whether to use John W. Dean III's testimony as a springboard into an investigation of political surveillance during Democratic administrations, according to informed sources.

A spokesman for the prosecutor said Tuesday that he could not "comment on testimony in progress or on what matters might become the subject of investigation."

But sources close to the prosecutor's office said the staff was closely monitoring Dean's testimony, examining references to purported FBI political activity in previous administrations and debating whether they fall within the mandate given prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Dean told the Senate Watergate committee Monday that William C. Sullivan, former associate director of the FBI, had told him the bureau had been used "for political purposes by past administrations."

The former White House counsel quoted President Nixon as telling him "he was convinced that he had been wiretapped in 1968."

Dean testified that he pressed Sullivan for examples of FBI political activity and Sullivan sent him a memorandum. The Washington Star-News said the memorandum described an investigation conducted after the 1968 election of Vice President-elect Apiro T. Agnew.

Sullivan said the investigation was ordered by President Lyndon B. Johnson and nothing adverse was found, according to the newspaper.

Guidelines given Cox by Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson authorize him to investigate and prosecute all offenses arising out of the 1972 election, including "all allegations involving the President, members of the White House staff or presidential appointees."

The sources said that, if Cox's office looks into political use of the FBI or other government investigative and law enforcement agencies, such as the Internal Revenue Service, the probe probably would not be directed toward criminal prosecution.

An investigation more likely would be aimed at disclosure with the results included in one of the periodic reports Cox has said he might issue, the sources said.

Dean told the committee that the matter of FBI surveillance came up during a discussion with the President at the time of the Senate hearings on the nomination of L. Patrick Gray III to be director of the FBI.

"The President told me he was reading a book at that time called 'The 13 Mistakes of Kennedy,' and he told me that I should read the chapter regarding Kennedy's use of the FBI.

"He also told me I should gather any material I could regarding the uses and abuses of the FBI by previous administrations so that we could show we had not abused the FBI for political purposes."

Kleindienst's Son To Seminary

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst's son plans to enter a Episcopal divinity school here this fall.

Arthur Kleindienst, 23, is working at the U.S. consulate in Hong Kong but is scheduled to return to this country when summer's over.

"We knew he was interested in theology and church history, from his majoring in European history at Harvard," his mother was quoted as saying. "But we had no inkling he was intending to enter a seminary."

Twice As Many New Aussies

CANBERRA (UPI) — Twice as many migrants are becoming Australian citizens as a year ago, Immigration Minister Al Grassby said in a report to parliament. Grassby said 3,152 aliens became citizens in January, 1973, compared with 1,525 last year. Former Greek citizens led the way to Australian citizenship, followed by Italians and Yugoslavs, he said.

MORE WINE

SANFRANCISCO (UPI) — Grape production and crush in California are expected to double in this decade if the state is to hold the 75 per cent share of the domestic wine market it now has.

Not Entirely Indoctrination

Heed Arnold's questions! For Women's Libbers are demanding a change in school books (plus a needless waste of time by 38 state legislatures) to try to make women the same as men. They seem to think God was wront! Basic sex differences are inborn!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE X-543: Arnold T., aged 29, is a school principal.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "the advocates of Women's Lib have even attacked our school textbooks.

"For they claim that little girls are taught to seek secondary positions in life, even by the time they enter kindergarten.

"So they want our textbooks to stop directing a girl's thinking along the usual feminine channels.

"Indeed, they believe a boy should be trained to consider cooking and household chores as much his goal in life as they are the aims of the girls in class.

"Dr. Crane, are sex differences innate or are they chiefly a result of indoctrination after birth?"

Comparative Psychology

In most species of birds, the female builds the nest, hatches the eggs and feeds the fledglings.

However, in some cases the male sits on the eggs.

He may even build the nest.

And the males often assist in feeding the young.

But we assume it is instinctive for the usual female to be a nest builder and caretaker of her young.

When a sow is about ready to deliver her pigs, she also makes a nest, using sticks and straw, while the boar is a spectator.

And among the other domesticated animals, you will find that male dogs and cats seldom fight with a female of their own species.

At feeding time, a male dog may growl and snarl at the female, just to drive her away from the food pan.

But the real dog fights occur between 2 male canines!

And when a mother dog has had a little of puppies, the males keep their distance.

If they snoop too close to her young, the mother dog growls and the males drift away.

For they seem to have either a sense of gallantry at such times, or know that a mother animal will fight like a male when it comes to protecting her young.

For by injecting female hormones into a male dog, we can make him more submissive and docile.

The reverse is true when male hormones are injected into females.

Farmers are now injecting female hormones into chickens and cattle to increase the fat content of their muscle tissue, therby producting more tender chickens and steak.

The government has even recently demanded a reduction in their practice, lest those hormones adversely affect the human males that eat such meat.

So Women's Libbers better leave the textbooks alone, since the basic sex differences between human boys and girls and chiefly innate.

Send for my booklet "Sex Differences Between Men and Women," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

For divorces are needlessly caused by lack of a thorough understanind of the different sex outlook of men vs. women! (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Salt Crumbles Ancient Tower

LONDON (AP) — Salt is corroding part of the ancient Tower of London, and scientists are battling to prevent the collapse of the section.

The stonework in the 700-year-old Salt Tower is crumbling slowly because of the salt it absorbed 500 years ago. The tower was built in 1240 for defense purposes. During the Middle Ages, it was used for storage of salt, a monopoly of the English sovereigns, who charged a tax on it.

East and West were made to work for their bread in today's hand taken from a recent tournament. Deprived of the privilege of playing five hearts by sacrifice-minded opponents, they had to defend with imagination as well as accuracy to obtain adequate recompense.

A slam can be made in either hearts or diamonds, but no East-West pair reached that far on the deal. A 500 point bonus is awarded for a vulnerable game in duplicate bridge, so that the score for a game contract in hearts, making six, is 680 points. South reasoned that if his loss at five spades could be confined to 500 points, a three-trick set, the result would beat all those North-South pairs who defended against a game. Had the opponents made the slightest slip, his judgment would have been vindicated.

West opened the king of diamonds and continued with the ace, to which all hands followed and declarer dropped the queen. West was aware that a heart shift might be expected to produce the setting trick. However, unless several additional tricks were forthcoming, his side would not receive sufficient compensation for the vulnerable game which South had denied them by taking his sacrifice.

The club suit offered the only reasonable hope for additional revenue, so despite dummy's somewhat impressive holding in that suit, West shifted to the three of clubs. East cashed his honors by playing first the ace and then the king—which is the conventional method for showing a doubleton consisting of the top two honors. He then boldly underled the ace, king, queen of hearts in a desperate attempt to put his partner back in. Fortunately for East, West won the trick with the nine and returned a third club which East ruffed for the sixth defensive trick.

This was the trick that hurt, because it spelled a 700 point set for the declarer—more than the value of the game bid by his opponents—and resulted in a top score on the deal for this particular East-West pair.

BreedingGround For Lung Mold

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Home air conditioners and humidifiers sometimes are breeding grounds for mold that can cause serious lung diseases, a Stanford University researcher says.

The warm, moist environment inside air conditioners is an "excellent incubation box for certain kinds of fungi," said immunologist pediatrician Dr. Vincent A. Marinkovich.

He warned that if the cooler's filter is not changed regularly, it may become contaiminated with fungus and spray tiny spores into the room.

Also Attending 1973 Session

Two Pitt County students are also attending the 1973 session of Governor's School in Winston-Salem. Milton Tucker and Gwendolyn Jones were ommitted from the previously published list of participants.

Miss Jones is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny M. Jones of Bethel. A student at North Pitt High School, she is attending in the field of math.

Tucker is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Tucker of Rt.1, Winterville. He attends D.H. Conley High School and is studying in the area of math also.

MAPPING IT OUT FROM ABOVE

PTI Plans Charge Fee

Pitt Technical Institute will begin charging a $2.00 extension fee for all non-credit courses, starting after July 1, and financed primarily from state funds.

The charge will not apply to courses for volunteer firemen, local law enforcement officers, and prison inmates.

According to Pitt Tech President, Dr. William E. Fulford, "The $2.00 fee per courses was recently adopted by the North Carolina State Board of Education, and applies to all technical institutes and community colleges. We have received word that there will be no charge to students enrolled on our Learning Labs or Adult Basic Education courses."

Any recreational courses offered by technical institutes and community colleges must be self-supporting; that is, make no use of state funds for instruction and supplies. Such courses will include but are not limited to, boating, body exercises, Karate, and sailing.

For these recreational courses to be offered at Pitt Tech, the students enrolled will have to pay for all costs involved—instruction and supplies.

Drop Charges Against Debbie

NEW YORK (AP) — "I'm glad it's all over," said actress Debbie Reynolds as she signed autographs following an appearance in Manhattan criminal court during which charges of illegal possession of a weapon were dropped against her.

The charges stemed from an incident last April 8 in her apartment here. Her 15-year-old son, Todd Fisher, wounded himself in the leg with a blank. He was playing with a six-shooter owned by Miss Reynolds' husband, Harry Karl. She said she thought it was a stage prop and not a real pistol.

The charges against Miss Reynolds were dropped Tuesday because the state said it couldn't prove she was in actual possession of the gun.
