Dayan Accuses Terrorists Of Killing Attache In U.S.

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Defense Minister Moshe Dayan today accused Palestinian terrorists of slaying Israeli air attache Yosef Alon in suburban Washington. He pledged that Israel will try to liquidate the terrorist groups.

Alon's body arrived home aboard a U.S. Air Force jet escorted by Israeli fighters, one day after he was shot outside his Chevy Chase, Md., home.

"It must be one of them, I don't see a possibility of anyone else," Dayan said at Lod Airport, where the flag-draped casket arrived, accompanied by Alon's sobbing widow and three children.

The defense minister told newsmen that the Palestinian guerrilla movement had announced over Cairo radio that one of its men had slain Alon.

Maryland Medical Examiner Ronald Kornblum said Alon died of five gunshot wounds in his chest. Kornblum said his autopsy revealed no other marks or bruises on the body and that he could not tell whether the bullets were from a machine gun or a handgun.

Local police and the FBI said they had no suspects in the case, although military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said Arab terrorists may have plotted Alon's assassination.

President Nixon arranged for the aircraft that returned the body of Alon and his family to Israel. Nixon asked his top military adviser, Gen. Brent Scowcroft, to convey his condolences to the Israeli ambassador over the shooting.

The President also ordered the Secret Service to step up protective measures for Washington's diplomatic community.

Simcha Dinitz, the Israeli ambassador, told some 200

American and Israelis at Andrews Air Force Base, "The frontiers of Israel are everywhere." He was referring to the recent shootings of Israelis in various parts of the world, including the massacre last summer of a group of athletes at the Munich Olympic games.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers, who left the same airport about an hour later to attend a European security conference in Helsinki, told newsmen it was "too early to tell" whether Alon's death was a product of international terrorism.

N.C. May Be Required To Refund Portion Of Underachievers' Sum

RALEIGH (AP)—The Department of Public Instruction said today it has been notified that North Carolina may be required to refund $3.2 million in federal funds allocated for underachieving youngsters.

A spokesman for the department said a continuing federal audit for the period from July 1965 through February 1970 had turned up challenges to the manner in which some of the money was used in North Carolina. The state received $203 million under Title 1 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 during the period covered by the audit.

Neotiations between the state and the federal government have resulted in the reduction of the possible refund by $1 million, the state spokesman said.

In a letter to state School Supt. Craig Phillips, the U.S. Office of Education said there was no suggestion of fraud or misconduct on the part of anyone.

"We shall explore every avenue of misunderstanding between the HEW Audit Agency, the Office of Education and the state Department of Public Instruction concerning interpretation and clarification of the Title 1 ESEA Program regulations," Phillips said.

The Office of Education invited Phillips to submit any additional information or comments and to arrange a meeting with federal officials within the next 30 days.

Title 1 funds are allocated to states by county, on the basis of the number of poor children in that county. The compensatory education programs are planned and carried out by local school districts under supervision of state education agencies.

Harold Webb, state administrator for ESEA funds, said the challenge "simply means the auditors are critiquing." North Carolina programs to determine if they fell within federal guidelines.

Webb said several program changes were made during the ing with federal officials within the next 30 days.

Webb said several program changes were made during the 1965-70 program, without audit or formal interpretation.

"I feel like, based on my knowledge of the program, that the Office of Education and the state will be able to arrive at an agreement," Webb said.

The 0.5 per cent increase in reserve requirements means that the nation's banks must hold an estimated additional $800 million in reserve against the claims of demand depositors. This has the effect of making money "scarcer" in the country's banking network.

The Fed said it was taking the two steps in an effort "to restrain continued expansion in money and credit."

Expects To Run

RALEIGH (AP)—Associate Justice Susie Sharp says she expects to run for election as chief justice of North Carolina's Supreme Court.

"It's entirely too early to be making an announcement, but I expect to run," she said in an interview Sunday.

Justice Sharp is the third ranking member of the court in length of service. The court's senior members, Chief Justice William H. Bobbitt and Associate Justice Carlisle Higgins, are expected to retire next year.

Justice Sharp said she attached no significance to the possibility that she might become the first woman chief justice.

"I have tried not to be a 'woman judge' as such. I don't think sex ought to enter it at all," she said.

Driver Dies Of Racing Injuries

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — California race driver Swede Savage died in Methodist Hospital today of injuries suffered in the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race May 30.

Savage had been in critical condition since his flaming crash during the 59th lap of the rain-plagued race. He suffered fractures of both legs and burns on his face, arms and right hand.

New Mental Health Board Is Appointed

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners, at their regular monthly meeting this morning, opened bids for two pieces of heavy equipment for use at the county landfill site and reorganized the Pitt County Mental Health Authority by naming — at the authorities request — a new 15-member Pitt County Area Mental Health Board.

Bids for a wheel-type compactor for landfill use included a low net delivery price of $35,828.55 from R.W. Moore Equipment Co. of Greenville and a bid of $53,125.34 from Gregory Poole Equipment Co. of Washington. Bids for a tracked front end loader totaled $34,875.80 from N.C. Equipment Co., $35,741 from E.F. Craven Co. (both in Greenville), and $42,141.42 from Gregory Poole.

Commissioners took the bids under consideration and were expected to award contracts for the equipment later today.

Commissioners named 15 persons — including a number of individuals currently serving on the authority — to a new Pitt County Area Mental Health Board and in addition, voiced commitment for $105,000 in county money to help fund construction of a new comprehensive mental health center for the county.

Members named to the Pitt area mental health group included: Reginald Gray and Robert Martin (both ex-official); for four-year terms, Mrs. Myree Hayes (chairman), Dr. Malene Irons, Dr. Edwin Monroe, Jack Richardson and Miss Dorothy Bolton; for three year terms Charles Ross, Russ Cotten and Larry Graham; for two year terms H.R. Reeves and Dr. Jack Wilkerson; and for one-year appointments William Sneed, Raymond Reddick and Bill McDonald.

Commissioners also pledged to appropriate $105,000 in county funds if a $600,000 grant from the N. C. Department of Human Resources can be secured, to help fund an ex-mental health facility.

In other business this morning, Commissioners were given a proposed ordinance regarding solid waste disposal in the county for their study and were told by Pitt Memorial Hospital administrator Jack Richardson that the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals "has approved Pitt Memorial for two-year accreditation."

Commissioners also presented a "Resolution of Congratulations" to County attorney W.W. Speight. The resolution congratulated Speight for being selected by the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association as Greenville Citizen of the Year for 1973 and termed the honor "well deserved recognition for the outstanding service he has rendered to the citizens of Pitt County and City of Greenville."

The board also announced the retirement of R.S. Moyer as county tax supervisor and the appointment of Phillip Michaels — former county planner — as Moyer's replacement.

Increase Prime Rates

NEW YORK (AP) — Major banks in New York and Chicago, following the lead of Philadelphia's Girard National Bank, posted ¼ per cent increases to 8 per cent today in their prime lending rates.

It appeared to be the start of the eighth general ¼ per cent increase this year in the prime, toe minimum lending fee charged by banks on loans to large corporate customers.

The actions were announced this morning by New York's Chase Manhattan, the nation's third largest bank, and by First National Bank of Chicago.

Bankers said the moves would not affect rates on loans to smaller businesses or on consumer borrowings, including mortgages.

Girard's announcement of an increase in its prime came Friday night, shortly after the Federal Reserve Board raised its discount rate from 6½ per cent to 7 per cent and increased reserve requirements for its member banks.

The discount rate is the interest charged by the Fed on loans to member banks. Recent increases in it have raised the cost banks must pay in tapping one of their primary sources of funds with which to do business.

Short Freeze?

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Attempting to reassure both businessmen and housewives, President Nixon promises a "short as possible" price freeze and foresees relief against high food prices.

Although complaints of grocery buyers have been claiming the greatest public attention, many businessmen say they are barred from making future plans because of continuing uncertainty over Phase 4 wage-price controls.

In a radio address broadcast Sunday, Nixon said, "We have been determined from the outset to keep the freeze as short as possible" — an indication he may disclose his new economic game plan before the 60-day price freeze expires on Aug. 13.

Nixon said a temporary freeze on all except raw food prices at the farm level was necessary because it is "vital that we have genuine consultations with a wide range of interested parties before launching Phase 4." He said these consultations have begun.

As for supermarket prices, Nixon said: "The many measures we have taken to increase the supply of farm commodities — including the release of more than 40 million additional acres for farm production — will eventually bring more farm products to the market and will provide relief against high food prices."

Acknowledging that the freeze has led to inequities, Nixon said it also can create inflationary scarcity.

Approximately 45 per cent of the county's tobacco growers chose to designate their choice of markets for the 1973 season under a voluntary system implemented by the Secretary of Agriculture, according to Stacy Evans, manager of the U. S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service here.

Evans, noting that the figure is higher than expected considering the short length of time farmers were given to make their choices, said that out of approximately 1,850 farms producing tobacco in Pitt County, some 863 growers designated particular markets for leaf sales.

The effective quota on the 863 farms designating markets was established at 24,251,571 pounds, Evans reported, and of that quota, some 20,862,210 was actually designated.

An effective quota of 42,170,828 was set for all of the tobacco growing farms in Pitt County and the designated quota of 20,862,210 represented approximately 45 per cent of the total, it was pointed out.

Evans said that 658 out of the 863 farms that designated markets in Pitt listed Greenville as their choices, indicating that they desire to sell their crops as close to home as possible. Farmville was designated by 123 farms and was the only other market in the area to receive more than a handful of designations.

Others, in order of number of farms designating, included: Williamston, 21; Tarboro, 17, Wilson, 16; Robersonville, 12; Kinston, nine; Rocky Mount, four; Washington, two; and Windsor, one choice.

According to Sidney Mallory of the ASCS office in Martin County, some 40 per cent of the farms there responded to the opportunity to make a choice of markets for this season. Mallory said that there are roughly 1,250 farms growing tobacco in Martin County and about 500 of those listed a designated market.

The manager reported that 300 farms listed Williamston as their choice, 100 designated Robersonville, 50 chose Greenville, and 20 picked Windsor markets. In addition, 16 listed Rocky Mount for sales and a very small number designated Wilson, A "little over a half million pounds was designated for Greenville," Mallory said.

He asserted that the voluntary designation system would have very little effect on the 33-man Flue Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee's system of allocations for the various markets. It has been recommended that sales opportunity for the "designated" portion of the tobacco crop be allocated to the markets in each belt on the

Two Boys Drown In Farm Pond Mishap

WILLIAMSTON — Sixteen year old Johnny Roberson and his 12 year old half-brother, Reginald Everett, drowned in the Popular Point Community of Martin County Saturday afternoon.

Bucky Holloman of the Williamston Rescue Squad, said that according to an eye-witness report from a third young boy fishing with the two victims, Roberson waded into deeper water in an effort to recover a drifting fishing pole. Reportedly, Roberson went under and the Everett boy attempted to help and also went under.

The boys were fishing in a farm pond on the Harold Everett Farm, about one mile off N. C. Highway 125, approximately seven miles northwest of Williamston.

The Williamston Rescue Squad received a call for help at 7:20 p.m. The first body was recovered, Holloman said, at 8:16 p.m. and the second boy was recovered at 8:45 p.m.

Holloman said the depth of the pond at the point of drowning was about six feet.

The two boys were the children of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Louis Roberson.

Larger Social Security Benefits Offered In Bill

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Workers who earn at least $12,600 will have to pay $35.10 more annually to fund an increase in Social Security benefits next year.

A bill giving 30 million Social Security recipients the 5.6 per cent increase in benefits was signed Sunday by President Nixon. It was passed by Congress Saturday and flown here for Nixon's signature.

The Social Security raises, included in legislation extending the national debt ceiling of $465 billion to Nov. 30, take effect next July 1.

Under the bill, average benefits will increase from $161 to $170 a month for single persons and from $277 to $293 for couples.

Guaranteed federal minimums under special programs for the aged, blind and disabled also will be upped July 1, 1974, from $130 to $140 a month for single persons and from $195 to $210 for couples.

At the present time, the 5.85 per cent Social Security payroll tax is applied to a maximum wage base of $10,800. Under previous legislation, the base was to have increased to $12,000 on Jan. 1, 1974. Under the bill signed by Nixon on Sunday, the maximum wage base will now jump to $12,600 on Jan. 1.

Black Family Income Failing Keep Pace

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says the median family income in America has risen to more than $11,000-a-year for the first time, but that black families are apparently not sharing in the increased affluence.

The bureau said the median family income of America's 54.5 million families climbed 8.1 per cent to $11,120 last year.

But the report said that for black families the median income was only $6,860, compared to a $11,550 median for white families.

A median income means that there are as many families earning above this figure as below it. It is not an average.

The Census Bureau said that black families made little gain in closing the gap of income with whites.

While, over-all, there were one million fewer families earning "less than the 'poverty level,'" the bureau said there was an increase in the number of blacks, from 7.4 million to 7.7 million, living in poverty.

The poverty threshold for a non-farm family of four has been established at $4,275.

The poverty figures were taken from a population survey that the Census Bureau conducted last March. About 50,000 families were surveyed.

The report said that the number of white people living in poverty dropped about 9 per cent in 1972—mostly among those 65 and over.

It also said that, while the over-all median income climbed 8.1 per cent, price increases shaved this gain to a net rise of 4.6 per cent.

For men working the year around full-time, the median income was $10,540, while the bureau reported the median income for full-time women workers was only $6,050.

In another report the bureau indicated that households made up of people living alone or with non-relatives are growing nearly three times as fast as family households.

Since 1970, the survey showed, family households increased by 6 per cent, but those in which the head of the household either lived alone or with non-relatives grew by 17 per cent.

Miss Joan Leggett Weds Casey-Bright Vows Exchanged Joseph Harper Manning

BELVOIR — Miss Joan Hazel Leggett and Joseph Harper Manning were joined in marriage Sunday at 3 p.m. in the Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Leggett of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Manning of Fountain.

The Rev. Dave Nobles performed the double-ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by Miss Teresa Thomas, pianist, and Mrs. Patsy Manning who sang "A Time," "Twelfth of Never," and "Wedding Prayer."

Mrs. Dave Nobles directed the wedding. Mrs. Lynda Carson presided over the guest register.

The church was decorated with mixed summer flowers. Vows were spoken before the altar which was enhanced with a 15-branch arch of candles. Fifteen branch spiral candelabra flanked each side. The family pews were marked with white satin ribbons.

One three-branch candelabrum was used during the ceremony with the bride and bridegroom lighting the two outside candles as they entered the chancel. After the bridal couple had spoken their vows, they extinguished the outside candles after lighting the center one together.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length white organza gown designed with a high neckline encircled with crocheted lace. Matching bands of lace extended down the long sheer sleeves and trimmed the cuffs. Panels of lace extended from the neckline and shoulders down the gown front to the hemline which featured rows of lace edged mantilla.

The bride wore a cluster pin which belonged to her late grandmother. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses centered with a white cattleya orchid.

Miss Sue Lewis of Greenville was maid of honor. Mrs. Peggy Gaynor and Mrs. Vickie Manning of Greenville sisters of the bride were matrons of honor.

They wore formal-length blue organza gowns designed with tucked bib bodices outlined in cluny lace and centered with miniature covered buttons. Matching lace was featured on the shoulders and cuffs of the long full sleeves and the empire bodices. They wore garden hats trimmed in blue satin ribbon and carried colonial bouquets of rainbow colored miniature carnations enhanced with white baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Linda Leggett, sister-in-law of the bride; Mrs. Dennie Harris, Mrs. Sherry Grant, Miss Tyresia Pollard, all of Greenville; Miss Wanda Dixon and Mrs. Beth Thompson, of Plymouth; and Mrs. Tonda Jeffcoat, and Mrs. Jan Humphrey, of Wilson.

The bridesmaids gowns were identical to the honor attendants in rainbow pastel shades of pink, lavender, yellow, green, and apricot. They wore garden hats trimmed to match their gowns.

Miss Dianne Leggett of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. She wore a dress identical to those of the honor attendants and a satin ribbon with long streamers in her hair.

Flower girl was Tracey Vandiford of Greenville. Her gown and headpiece was designed like that of the junior bridesmaid. She carried a small nosegat identical to that of the bridesmaids.

Dan Leggett, cousin of the bride, served as ringbearer. He carried a heart-shaped pillow covered with white lace and satin streamers.

J. H. Manning served as his

son's best man. Ushers were Buddy Leggett, brother of the bride, Robert Leggett, uncle of the bride, and Bobby Gaynor and Glenn Manning, brothers-in-law of the bride, all of Greenville; George Burnette and Charles Purvis of Fountain; David Baker of Farmville; Eddie Morris, Mac Grant, and Tracy Coggins of Greenville; and Joe Jeffcoat of Wilson.

The mother of the bride chose a dress of petal pink chiana crepe with matching coat. She wore matching pink accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Manning selected a deep rose polyester dress of princess design. She wore matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Both mothers were presented with long stemmed red roses after the couple left the altar.

Grandparents of the groom are Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Manning of Fountain and Mrs. Pearl Harper of Tarboro. The grandmothers were remembered with white orchids.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a multi-colored polyester dress with matching green accessories. She wore an orchid corsage lifted from her bouquet.

The bride is a graduate of Belvoir-Falkland High School and is a rising senior at Atlantic Christian College. The groom is a graduate of Farmville High School and is in Quality Controls at Martin-Marietta Aggregates.

Immediately following the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception at the home of the bride.

The house was decorated with floral arrangements of colored snapdragons, miniature carnations, epergne, and baby's breath. Green garland and white wedding bells were hung from the rails beside the descending dining room stairs.

Hostesses for the reception were Mrs. M. G. Lewis, Mrs. Jessie B. Bullock, Mrs. Sylvester Morris, and Mrs. Ervin Leggett.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hobgood, uncle and aunt of the bride greeted the guests.

Mrs. Buck Crisp, aunt of the bride, served the wedding cake after the bride and groom cut the traditional first slice.

Mrs. Noah Barefoot, aunt of the groom, poured punch.

Good-byes were said by Mr. and Mrs. Dallas Leggett, uncle and aunt of the bride.

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Manning honored the bridal couple at an after-rehearsal party at their home in Greenville. Guests were members of the wedding party, their families, and out-of-town guests.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth and a rainbow colored arrangement of mixed summer flowers was the centerpiece.

Miss Bonnie Lou Bright became the bride of Norman Ray Casey Sunday at 4:00 p.m. in the Red Oak Christian Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Bright of Winterville and the bridegroom is the son of Joseph E. Casey and Mrs. Thelma H. Casey, both of Farmville.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ronald Nichols, pastor of the bride. Mrs. Barbara Canady, organist, presented a program of wedding music. "We've Only Just Begun," "The Twelfth of Never," and "The Wedding Prayer" was sung by Mrs. Donna Manning.

The chancel of the church was arranged with a background of greenery. Two 15-branch spiral candelabra were used on each side of the altar with baskets of white gladioli and chrysanthemus.

The couple knelt on a white prie-dieu for the blessing and benediction. At the close of the ceremony, the couple lit a single candle together, symbolic of their union.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal-length white taffeta gown designed with a high neckline and long lantern sleeves trimmed in chantilly lace. The empire bodice and modified A-line skirt were also enhanced by Chantilly lace. The hemline featured a ruffled flounce of matching lace.

Her formal-length mantilla edged in Chantilly lace was attached to a tiara headpiece also styled with lace. She wore an heirloom lavalier that belonged to her great-grandmother and carried a cascade bouquet of miniature white carnations and baby's breath.

Mrs. Charles White, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a formal-length gown of floral crepe designed with an empire waist accented with kelly green ribbon. Her white picture hat was trimmed with kelly green streamers and she carried a colonial bouquet of miniature carnations.

Miss Leigh Ann Harrison, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. Her gown was identical to the matron's of honor. Her headpiece was a bow of kelly green ribbon and she carried a basket of carnations and baby's breath.

Joseph Casey served his son as best man. Ushers were Charles White, brother-in-law of the bride, and Reed Moore, nephew of the groom.

The mother of the bride wore a sea mist green dress of polyester knit with matching accessories. The mother of the groom chose a pink dress of polyester knit with matching accessories. Both wore corsages of white carnations.

The grandmothers wore carnation corsages also.

Mrs. Dot Dail directed the wedding.

After a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S.C., the couple will reside in Ayden.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is presently enrolled in a secretarial course at Pitt Technical Institute.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville High School and has served two years in the Navy. He is presently enrolled in a police science course at Pitt Tech.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Hostesses for the reception were Mrs. Clarissa May, Mrs. Earl Rozell, and Mrs. Jennie Bright. The bride's table was centered with a three-tier wedding cake.

Good-byes were said by the bride and groom and their parents.

DEAR ABBY: A high school girl wrote that she was pregnant and she and her boy friend wanted to be married by a clergyman in a church, but neither one of them belonged to a church and they were having difficulty finding a clergyman to marry them.

You replied, "I am sure I can find a clergyman who will perform the ceremony."

Abby, the old "accommodating" view is diminishing. If a church wedding is desired, one or both parties must be active members in the church. People who refuse to support or help maintain a church should not expect to use it for a "show." A Christian wedding ceremony is an act of worship which is based on faith.

The attitude of more and more people is to call on the clergy and use the church facilities for "hatch, match, and dispatch" [baptism, marriage, and funerals]—but the clergy and lay leaderships of our churches are not going to play games with nonmembers, nonbelievers and inactive members. After all, there are other places where people can marry, and other persons who are qualified under the law to perform marriage ceremonies.

WILLIAM W. J. ENNIS, Pastor
St. Mark's Lutheran Church
Bethlehem, Penn.

DEAR ABBY: A high school senior is pregnant, and can't find a minister to marry her, tho she is very much in love with the baby's father and would like a church wedding.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints [Mormons] takes a very strong stand against premarital sex, but we try to remember the words of the Saviour, "He that is without sin among you, let him first cast a stone" and, "Neither do I condemn thee: go, and sin no more."

We believe that the proper thing to do under the above circumstances is to get married so that child can have a name, and I am sure any L.D.S. Bishop would be very happy to perform the ceremony and give them a lovely wedding and his blessings.

LEONARD R. TOLMAN,
Barstow, Cal.

DEAR ABBY: I feel that I must write to defend those three ministers who refused to marry that pregnant high school girl.

After nearly 40 years as a minister's wife I know something about people who don't want to contribute anything to a church, but they expect the minister and church to help them out when they need something.

Of course, the church does not belong to the minister; neither does it belong to these two immature individuals to use for their own selfish reasons.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA

DEAR ABBY: My heart ached for those youngsters who wanted to be married by a minister but couldn't find one who would marry them because they didn't belong to his church.

With so many of our young people turning away from religion, you would think a minister would jump at the chance to bring them into the fold.

If they can't find a minister to marry them, they should consider a judge. At least it would be legal. Also, a sea captain has the authority to legalize a union. Have they considered that?

LOVES CHILDREN

DEAR LOVES: After having been told to go jump in the lake by so many ministers, they might indeed find a sea captain the ideal one to tie the knot.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69760, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Mayor Sworn In At Los Angeles

By BILL GARDNER

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Bradley has taken office as the first black mayor of the nation's third largest city, pledging concentration on the problems of rapid transit, urban blight, unchecked growth and air pollution.

"A bigger city is not necessarily a better city or a healthier city," the 55-year-old son of a Texas sharecropper said as he was sworn in Sunday. "We must have a rational growth policy."

Former Chief Justice Earl Warren administered the oath of office before a crowd estimated at some 10,000 persons. Bradley said that in moving to Los Angeles 48 years ago his family had found a "place where you would be measured by what you did, not the color of your skin or place where you worshipped."

"The chance you have given me today, I believe, says more about this city's decency and its sense of fairness than a hundred declarations from a platform or a thousand proclamations."

"I intend to repay the chance you have given me by giving this city a chance, a chance to become the kind of city that we might leave to our children with pride instead of apologies."

The new mayor and his wife, Ethel, have two grown daughters.

Bradley, a former lieutenant in the Los Angeles police department, served 10 years as city councilman before defeating incumbent Sam Yorty in a nonpartisan runoff election May 29. Both Bradley and Yorty are Democrats.

Yorty left on an Alaskan cruise June 22 and did not attend the inauguration.

Annual Cia Inquiry Is Launched Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Armed Services Committee launches an unusual public inquiry of the Central Intelligence Agency today, expected to cover efforts to involve it in the Watergate scandal and other proposed domestic operations.

The occasion for the session is the committee's consideration of William E. Colby, nominated to be the CIA's new director.

Acting Chairman Stuart Symington, D-Mo., made clear in his opening statement that the hearing would go beyond Colby's qualifications, saying the panel "will also review a number of policies relating to the Central Intelligence Agency itself."

The Missouri Democrat also alluded to the controversy revolving around the alleged effort of top Nixon administration officials to involve the CIA in the cover-up of the Watergate case and to use it for other domestic operations.

Several congressional committees have been holding closed door hearings on relations between the CIA and the Watergate case, as well as the 1971 break-in by convicted Watergate defendants G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt into the safe of Dr. Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Gen. Robert A. Cushman, former CIA deputy director, has contended that former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman asked him to let Hunt use CIA equipment. Ehrlichman has denied it.

Won Too Many Free Vacations

BUSHEY, England (AP) — Housewife Ann Compton has a winning streak she can't afford. She has won too many free vacations in competitions.

The snag is, every time she wins a trip for two, she and husband Bob have to pay for their two children to go along. Ann's fourth win this year is a trip to Canada — but this time, she says, the kids will have to stay home with grandma.

Daytime TV Actor Will Challenge Any Performer

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In this corner, weighing 185 pounds, wearing hospital whites, the challenger, John Berardino of "General Hospital."

And in this corner ... well, as yet no actor—Emmy winners included—has accepted Berardino's $5,000 challenge to an "acting bout."

Berardino, star of the ABC soap opera and a highly competitive former major league second baseman, has been doing a slow burn for several years because the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences has no separate Emmy awards category for daytime dramatic performers.

This past week Berardino flew to New York to accept an award from Afternoon TV Magazine for "his leadership in the fight to gain recognition for daytime actors."

The handsome former athlete took his cue for the challenge from another aging athlete.

"After fruitless years of trying to get recognition, I think this stemmed from what Bobby Riggs did," he said, referring to Riggs' tennis challenge to Billie Jean King that was accepted by Margaret Court. "I wanted to bring this out into the open."

Kansas City Feeling Pinch

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Motorists couldn't afford to be casual about the gasoline shortage in the Kansas City metropolitan area. Those who were often wound up out of gas Sunday.

At one suburban service station, cars lined up for 11 hours for the privilege of buying 10 gallons. When the gasoline supply ran out there were still 50 cars in line.

The Missouri Highway Patrol and Kansas City police reported numerous calls from stranded motorists. One dispatcher said a few motorists stranded after midnight Saturday were taken to stations believed to be open Sunday morning.

But there weren't many. The Auto Club of Missouri said it knew of only five stations open in Kansas City. The suburbs had only an occasional station open.

Police dispatchers told callers it was impossible to know which stations were open because operating hours had become erratic. They suggested drivers find a phone book and start calling. A reporter for the Kansas City Star tried that. He said he called 50 stations and found none.

Greenville Goals, Priorities?

By W. H. Carstarphen
Greenville City Manager
Guest Editor

Any one who has ever tried to list a few basic objectives toward which he is willing to commit himself during the next decade knows what a difficult and sometimes agonizing process goal setting is. Even so, in today's fast pace, often non-directed world, many individuals, business, and even cities have concluded that setting objectives and sticking to them is the only way to achieve those goals which they consider to be important.

Greenville is fortunate to be expanding and changing. Even with the problems growth brings, it is a far more desirable condition than stagnation. The pattern of growth that has been established by Greenville over the past decade gives every in-

A Community College Effort

By Pres. Ben E. Fountain, Jr.
North Carolina Department
Of Community Colleges

RALEIGH — When the history of our time is written, 1973 may well stand out as the year in which North Carolina rededicated itself to the concept of community college education.

As the new year dawned, bringing with it a new General Assembly session, the North Carolina Department of Community Colleges was truly at a crossroads.

It has fulfilled in every respect the basic expectations expressed at the time of its establishment by the 1963 General Assembly. From modest beginnings, the department steadily bridged the gap between secondary and higher education, taking educational opportunity to the people. Growing, moving forward on a rising curve, the effort produced during its first 10 years a system of 56 community colleges and technical institutes spanning the State.

However, during this process of establishment and development, demand for educational service began to inch ahead of the supply of State funding. Slowly, State funds began to dribble off, particularly in the area of physical facilities. After 10 years, many institutions were still housed in cast-off motel buildings, old schoolhouses, old prisons. With the arrival of 1973, there was a real danger that the "open door," symbolic of the system's bedrock principle of educational opportunity for all, would have to start swinging closed.

New Commitment

The community colleges and technical institutes took their case to the 1973 General Assembly. The Assembly responded with understanding and generosity. The level of funding was increased substantially. Community college education in North Carolina was propelled into its second decade with a renewed sense of commitment.

Total State appropriations to the system for the fiscal year beginning July 1 will be $123.2 million, virtually double the $63.9 million for the current fiscal year.

The grand total of $123.2 million breaks down like this: $83.6 million for operations, compared to $56.9 million for the current year; $14.2 million for equipment, compared to $3.7 million for the current year; and $25.4 million for construction of new facilities, compared to $3.1 million for the current year. Practically all of the system's major budget requests were fulfilled to a substantial degree.

Time To Catch-Up

The Assembly's investment in total education for the people demonstrates a commendable concern and will help immeasurably. But I would emphasize that this was a crossroads situation, a catch-up time following a sustained dry spell. I hope and believe that the General Assembly will continue to provide adequate nourishment for this vital program.

Otherwise, the "open door" may begin to ease shut and North Carolina will not be amply supporting universal education beyond the high school on an educationally sound and economically feasible basis.

It should be noted that the recently adjourned General Assembly session produced two disturbing developments. I refer, first, to the imposition of a requirement that a uniform fee be charged for all community college-technical institute extension courses which are supported primarily by State funds. To comply with this legislative mandate, the State Board of Education has established the fee at $2. Secondly, the General Assembly directed that, in the case of recreational or avocational courses, the students must bear the full costs. These actions of the Assembly could have the effect of discouraging many persons from taking courses they otherwise would have taken.

Constitutional Mandate

In considering the wisdom and the effect of this legislative action, we start with this premise contained in the Constitution of the State of North Carolina: "The people have a right to the privilege of education, and it is the duty of the State to guard and maintain that right." The Constitution does not say that our people have a right only to those areas of learning that could be described as "ordinary" or "traditional." This constitutional provision does not deny us access to any useful knowledge which the age itself, and the economy itself, make necessary.

To quote a recent editorial in The High Point Enterprise: "There are understandable arguments against the State's financing frivolous hobbies. But couch it in different language — as personal enrichment — and then go see these classes in action, and one may get an entirely new perspective. We'll cast our vote for moving out of the ordinary."

Or, in the words of Dr. Dallas Herring, chairman of the State Board of Education: "I do not know what course the State may now take on this basic question of the right of our children and our adults to know, but do not count me among those who would close the door of knowledge in the face of anyone who genuinely wants to know."

dication of continuing, perhaps even accelerating. Growth and change have occurred, not only in the physical side of the community but in the social arena, the fields of education and recreation, and in community values. The strong evidence that change and growth will continue begs a question. What are our objectives as a community? What kind of city do we really want to be?

Communities are different. They are different largely because of what their citizens, both individual and corporate, do to make them different. It is time Greenville gave some serious thought on an organized, community-wide basis to the establishment of goals and priorities.

We are fortunate to have many of the tools required for such an effort. We have a sound program of land use control. We have a representative and concerned City Council and County Commission. We have a growing level of interest and desire for participation on the part of all segments of the community. We have, within East Carolina University, resources for research, analysis, and projection far in excess of that available to most cities. Most important, we have an interest and desire to maintain and protect those pleasant and exciting qualities which Greenville now has and to insure that our future development is not only orderly and controlled, but that is is harnessed to achieve those objectives of good community life which we all desire. What better time to begin that as we approach the 200th anniversary of the City's birth?

Justice Made Late Recovery

ROWLAND EVANS
and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Before the Watergate scandal broke open this spring, the Justice Department's investigation of Nixon campaign "dirty tricks" in the 1972 Florida presidential primary either ignored or suppressed a key FBI report—possibilities under study by forthcoming Senate and federal probes of Nixon administration prosecution, or lack of it, of illegal political espionage.

On March 5, 1973, U.S. Atty. John L. Briggs of Jacksonville, Fla., wrote Sen. Henry M. Jackson that an investigation of a scurrilous letter about him had been completed without success. Yet, according to high FBI officials, a Feb. 6, 1973, FBI report provided enough information to lead to indictments. Indeed, once the Watergate scandal cracked, Nixon political espionage chief Donald Segretti was indicted in Florida May 5.

The Feb. 6 FBI report is now in the hands of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox. Moreover, Sen. Sam Ervin's Watergate committee plans autumn hearings into the Segretti operation. Inevitably, both inquiries will judge political slanting of law enforcement.

The Florida case involves a spurious March 1972 letter on the campaign letter head of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, falsely accusing two Florida primary opponents, Jackson and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, of illicit sexual acts. A Florida Jackson supporter promptly supplied a copy to the U.S. Attorney's office.

But Briggs, an ardent Republican, did not request an FBI investigation until last October when a column by Jack Anderson revealed Jackson's request. Even then, Briggs declared it "absurd" to connect the letter with Republicans or the Nixon administration (a judgment he now admits was based on no facts).

On Feb. 8, Jackson wrote Briggs jogging him about the investigation. Briggs' original reply was so insulting, according to Justice Department sources, that it was "cleaned up" in Washington before delivery to the Senator. The sanitized version, dated March 5, informed Jackson the investigation "has now been completed and we have been unable to establish the identities of" who wrote the letter.

An enclosed eight-paragraph investigative summary dealt mostly with Briggs' inability to pin the letter on a right-wing extremist. After disposing of this red herring in seven paragraphs, Briggs' eighth paragraph asserted that Patricia Griffin, a Muskie headquarters employee, was questioned and "denied any knowledge" of the letter.

But strangely, as Watergate unraveled, Briggs' office stepped up prosecution of the Florida case so successfully that on May 5 a grand jury indicted Segretti and another man. Two Nixon operatives directly involved, Miss Griffin and Young Republican leader Robert Benz of Tampa, testified before the grand jury (Benz under immunity) and were not indicted.

Why so fruitful in May when the investigation was so barren in March? Briggs told us he received unspecified new information.

In fact, high FBI officials have informed us their investigation, begun Oct. 21, 1972, was essentially completed in late January. The "final" report was dated Feb. 26, 1973, although there were later supplementary reports. According to these sources, the report by itself did not provide sufficient evidence for indictments but did give any self-respecting prosecuting attorney obvious paths to follow.

The FBI report contained much material about Benz and Miss Griffin. The implication, according to FBI sources, was that if these two young people were summoned before a grand jury, they probably would tell all. Indeed, most details of the case were reported in newspapers the previous October—duly noted in the FBI report. But none of this was in Briggs' report to Jackson. Nor did Briggs reveal that Miss Griffin, on advice of counsel, refused to answer FBI agents' questions.

Justice Department sources told us they "believe" the FBI sent its report to Briggs. However, FBI sources told us the Bureau sent it to the Justice Department's criminal division, headed by Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen, but not to Briggs. A source close to Briggs denied that

Strength For Today

FOLLY OF CONCEIT

Someone has said that self-conceit is harder to cure than cancer. St. Paul writing to the Romans, urged them not to be wise in their own conceits. Unless they were aware of their own conceit they would sit on the edge of the perennial spring of knowledge and never have sense enough to turn around and take a drink. They would be forever fascinated by the sound of their own voices.

Conceit is selfishness operating in the realm of opinion. The conceited man puts himself in the center of his own world and believes that everything exists for him. "Seest thou a man wise in his own conceit?" asked the writer of the book of Proverbs. "There is more hope of a fool than of a man." The conceited person has lost his chance to get an education, and has made himself ridiculous as well. As Benjamin Franklin once said, "He who falls in love with himself will find no rival."

Demos For Ehrlichman?

WASHINGTON — My friend Cotswald, who was a "Democrat for Nixon," seemed very depressed when I found him in a bar the other day.

I asked him what the problem was. "I've been watching the Watergate hearings all week," he said, "and it's got me down."

"Don't worry," I said, trying to cheer him up "it's John Dean's word against the President's. It's still quite possible that Nixon had nothing to do with Watergate or the cover up."

"That's just the point," Cotswald said. "Suppose Nixon didn't have anything to do with Watergate? The White House defense is that Nixon didn't know anything about anything. The whole country was being run by Haldeman and Ehrlichman. Wouldn't that depress you?"

"Well, it wouldn't make me happy," I admitted. "I didn't vote for Haldeman and Ehrlichman," Cotswald said bitterly, "I voted for Nixon. If I had known he was going to turn over the Presidency of the country to two flunkies, I sure as hell would have thought twice about it."

"But President Nixon had the final say on all their decision," I pointed out.

"We don't know that. From what we've heard, Ehrlichman and Haldeman gave orders to the Justice Department, the FBI, the CIA, the State Department and everybody else."

Other Editors Say Maybe Competition

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)

The State Milk Commission's suspension of its "Fair Trade Order," a misnomer if ever there was one, raises a faint hope of restoring competition to the milk industry and maybe even bringing about lower prices for dairy products. Anyone who interprets the Commission's action as anything more than the raising of a faint hope might be in for a rude awakening.

The Fair Trade Order required dairy firms to post notices of price changes ten days in advance. This usually signaled other firms to follow suit and competition for business was effectively stifled.

Suspension of the order will enable firms to lower prices without advance notice in an effort to stimulate notice in an effort to stimulate business. In theory, competition can now thrive in the industry and lower milk prices conceivably could result. That depends entirely on those in the industry and their eagerness to enter into open competition. You can entertain a very large doubt here.

Still hanging in the balance is the exercise of the Milk Commission's authority to fix minimum and maximum prices statewide. So long as the President's retail price-freeze is in effect, the question of fixing prices is academic. Once the price-freeze has been lifted, the Milk Commission will then decide whether to fix minimum and maximum prices. That decision, much more so than suspension of the Fair Trade Order, will determine whether wide-open competition will be restored and the price of milk will seek levels determined by supply and demand rather than the artificial level fixed by arbitrary ruling.

Suspension of the Fair Trade Order might very well be the first stroke in a move to bring North Carolina's milk prices down to the national average. We hope it is. At the same time, it might amount to nothing more than temporary or illusory relief. Please withhold your applause pending further developments.

A Vast Absence Of Foresight

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The most frightening aspect of the growing food dilemma is probably not so much that of soaring prices as it is the failure to anticipate the size of the problem, and the failure to coordinate national

There is no discounting the horror of prices: Soybeans are more than triple their price of a year ago; farm prices in general are 38 per cent higher in one year; retail food prices are expected to be 12 per cent higher for the year.

But underlying these rising prices is confusion, even contradiction, in U.S. farm and food policies. They suggest that the solution to the food supply and price problems must first await understanding of the problems.

For example, it had been assumed that when meat prices reached record highs shoppers would restrain their appetites and switch to cheaper cuts or to nonmeat products.

But consumers — their pocketbooks stuffed with bigger paychecks, and to some extent feeling that prices weren't going to be any lower in the future — went right on buying. There was a boycott, but that was only a brief, futile expression of naive and anger.

And who could have foreseen a change of habit on the part of those creatures further down the evolutionary scale, the anchovies of South America, who went swimming elsewhere and left the fishermen to find out where?

Anchovies are rich in protein and are one of the one ingredients of cattle feed. With supplies cut off, livestock feeders were forced to rely on soybeans and other products. And with soybean prices soaring on the new demand, meat prices could go nowhere but up.

Who could have foreseen the widespread bad weather than reduced crops in many areas?

But there has also been an absence of foresight and insight. And there has been some contradictory behavior. Here are some points to ponder:

— While the government was actively engaged in controlling prices, the secretary of agriculture, Earl Butz, was vigorously arguing

Japan's Crisis In Fish

By JOHN RODERICK
Associated Press Writer

TOKYO (AP) — The spectre of widespread pollution has frightened many Japanese into dropping fish from their diet. Meat and other alternatives are beginning to take its place.

Hardly a day passes without some new horror story about bays, streams, rivers, fish and humans poisoned by chemical discharges from Japan's burgeoning industry.

Fish sales in recent weeks have plunged by as much as 30 per cent. Thousands of fishermen, dealers and fish restaurants say they are threatened with bankruptcy.

Fish is the source of 23 per cent of the protein consumed by Japan's 105 million people.

The situation is so serious that Prime Minister Kakuei Tanka has ordered his Cabinet ministers to go on a daily fish diet — to restore confidence among shaken consumers.

With the slump in fish consumption, meat sales have soared 25 per cent, possibly presaging a drastic change in the fish-oriented diet if the pollution menace continues.

The Agriculture-Forestry Ministry is meeting the trend by increasing the number of shops eligible to sell inexpensive imported beef.

The Health and Welfare Ministry last week published a list of a dozen fish which could safely be eaten, together with recommended weekly limits.

The gesture did nothing to ease the anxieties of millions of Japanese. Sales plummeted.

Later the ministry said fish from deep ocean and nonpolluted areas can be eaten safely in normal amounts.

Whether these moves will allay what the Japanese are calling "Mercury shock" remains to be seen.

Deputy Premier Takeo Miki, director general of the environmental agency, said he will ask for a billion yen — $3.77 million — for a nationwide project to restore clean water, skies and land. The damage already done runs into the billions of dollars.

Fish, and humans who eat their meat, also have been found to be suffering from the crippling effects of PCB and PCT, chemicals which remain permanently in the body. All three attack the nervous system and death sometimes results.

The Japanese not only eat fish broiled, fried, baked and salted. They also eat it raw.

Fishermen by the thousands, angered by delays in cleaning up pollution, have struck against offending plants, blocking their waste discharge outlets, dumping tons of fish encased in concrete on their premises.

Against these onslaughts, four companies in west Japan already have closed their doors. Their action followed a five-hour blockade of the port of Mizushima by 6,000 fishermen aboard 1,500 fishing boats.

Sees Difficult Job In Restoring Confidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Outgoing acting FBI Director William D. Ruckelshaus says restoring public confidence in government will be "an incredible job" because of the Watergate scandal.

The government could regain the public's confidence only by working openly and honestly, he said in an interview.

"Just saying what you're going to do is just a waste of time. It's got to be proven. That takes time and it takes performance," he said.

Ruckelshaus said he is not sure he wants to stay in the administration after he is replaced by Clarence M. Kelley, Kansas City police chief confirmed last week as permanent director.

He said he would remain only if he could convince himself that he could help maintain "continuity," and disclosed he has been offered several new government jobs.

Asked if he was disillusioned with the Nixon administration, Ruckelshaus said, "The administration is too broad a term; but it is clear that a lot of things have gone on that are bound to disillusion anybody."

Ruckelshaus served as an assistant attorney general when the Justice Department was headed by John N. Mitchell, then became the first administrator of the new Environmental Protection Agency upon its creation in December 1971.

He became acting director of the FBI April 30 at the personal request of President Nixon, after Nixon's original choice for director, L. Patrick Gray III, admitted destroying documents linked with the Watergate political espionage case.

He took over an FBI whose morale was shaken, its reputation tarnished.

The testimony and documents presented to a special Senate investigating committee seemed to indicate that the FBI may have been used to harass political "enemies" of the Nixon administration.

Amid this turmoil, the FBI itself was investigating the White House's involvement in the Watergate affair for special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Ruckelshaus refused to discuss any of his findings so far concerning Watergate or the extent to which the FBI had been used as a political weapon. But he defended the agency's staff.

"To the extent that there is any compromise of the FBI, it is not because of any lack of

This leaves two possibilities: Briggs saw the Feb. 6 report and ignored it until Watergate erupted; or he never saw it at all. In either event, the Justice Department, which deleted rough language from Briggs's March 5 letter, went along with his barren investigative summary, omitting vital information developed by the FBI.

This one aspect of the Justice Department's investigation of Segretti's nationwide operations suggests many things: blind partisanship, stunning incompetence, a possible cover-up. The story of how the Nixon administration enforced the law is still unfolding.

Snag Awaits Helsinki Meeting

By EDWIN SHANKE
Associated Press Writer
HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — The European Conference on Security and Cooperation headed for a snag today even before all the delegates had assembled.

While the meeting of foreign ministers beginning Tuesday is to be generally open, informed sources said the little Mediterranean island of Malta was making demands which might require delegates to meet in a closed session some time early in the week-long talks.

The informants said Malta attached a note to its acceptance of the official invitation to attend which insisted that the question of participation by North African Arab states should be re-examined.

Malta delayed conclusion of a conference agenda in early June by raising a similar demand during the six-month-long preparatory talks at an ambassadorial level. The Maltese proposal to find some formula permitting the Arab states to have their say finally was rejected.

But Malta is insisting that the issue was left unclear at the time. It was said to be asking not for full participation by North African states such as Algeria, Libya, Tunisia and Egypt, but at least a chance formally to present their views on security in the course of the conference.

While some participating nations such as Italy, Spain and Yugoslavia claim that Mediteranean security is linked with European security, they have not supported Malta on the issue.

Countries opposing the idea, particularly the big powers, fear that a favorable decision could mean that Israel also would ask for the right to be brought into the talks and with it the whole issue of the Middle East.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and at least five of his Western counterparts were stopping over in London today to help celebrate the 70th birthday of Foreign Secretary Alec Douglas-Home. They will arrive together Tuesday just in time for the formal opening of the conference by Finnish President Urho Kekkonen.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko will be the lead-off speaker at the first working session, and observers are anxious to hear what he will have to say on the agenda point of expanding "human contacts" between East and West.

The Soviet Union fought in vain to keep this off the agenda. Issues are involved, such as reunification of families separated by the cold war, regular contacts on the basis of family ties and marriage between nationals of different states. Freer movement of newsmen in communist countries also falls under this point.

The conference of foreign ministers is only the first phase of a three-stage process.

Tells Of Beatings In South Vietnam Jails

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — "I was beaten on the chest until I vomited blood," says Nguyen Thi Phuong Thao. "They put sandbags on my body and beat me with a hammer, walked on me with boots."

The slender Vietnamese girl occasionally pounded her fist into her palm to illustrate the force of the beatings she said she suffered during 149 days in South Vietnamese jails. She used her hands to cover her flat, girlish chest while describing the pain.

Thao said she is 14, but a government source said records list her as 34.

Although she was released less than two weeks ago, Thao bears no visible marks or scars from her confinement. She said there are none because the guards placed the sandbags on her body before hitting her, and that their pinches caused superficial wounds that have long since healed.

Government officials refused to comment on Thao's tales of beatings and torture. Requests were turned down for interviews with officials charged with overseeing government prisons and police stations.

A government source said she was arrested Jan 23 because she belonged to a Saigon student union which he identified as a Viet Cong youth organization. The source said she worked as a sort of liaison for various Viet Cong groups.

Thao denied she was a Viet Cong supporter. She claimed she was jailed because she opposes the regime of President Nguyen van Thieu.

A government official said that among stacks of books at her home police found words to songs extolling peace. He said some of the songs may have been played on the national television station, but that they were banned at the time Thao was arrested.

In a move to counter the increased criticism on the handling of civilian prisoners, the Saigon government charged today that there is an international Communist campaign afoot to discredit it.

In a position paper on prisoners, the government accused its critics of distorting the truth about the prisoner issue because they seek "to foment a campaign of denigration and pressure aimed at forcing the government...to release their comrades."

The paper was released a day after Amnesty International appealed for urgent and concerted international pressure to secure the release of 100,000 civilians the organization claims are being held by the Saigon government.

Alternatives To Abortion Will Be Pointed Out

The Greenville Ministerial Association has recorded its approval of a plan to make residents aware of means other than abortion for dealing with unwanted pregnancies.

It was asked the Pitt County Medical Society to endorse the plan. The action was brought about by the increasing number of abortions being sought at hospitals in this area. This plan asks that women with unwanted pregnancies consider putting the children up for adoption.

The Rev. Dan Earnhardt, president of the Association, said that this action should not be viewed as a blanket disapproval of abortion. He pointed out that many local physicians, as well as ministers, have been disturbed by the rapidly rising incidence of requests for abortions over the past year. Several of them feel that more women would consider alternatives to abortion if they were more fully aware of them, he said.

Dollar Weakens Again In Europe

LONDON (AP) — The dollar weakened again in Europe today, despite moves late last week that were supposed to help the U.S. currency.

The dollar dropped sharply in Frankfurt, Zurich and Paris. It inched ahead in London.

Dealers said, however, that trading was slow at the outset. There were no early signs of monetary crisis. Gold, which often moves erratically higher in times of monetary uncertainty, was unchanged in London and Zurich, the two biggest markets, in early trading.

In Frankfurt, the dollar opened at 2.4175 German marks, down from 2.4250.

The mark was revalued upward by 5.5 per cent against seven other European currencies last week, and interest rates in the United States were raised. Both moves should have helped the dollar today, but instead the decline continued.

In Zurich, the U.S. currency sagged to 2.910 Swiss francs, down from 2.935 Friday. Dealers there said there were signs speculators were moving into Swiss francs as a result of the mark revaluation.

The mark and the Swiss franc are probably the two strongest currencies in Western Europe. Now that the mark has been adjusted upward, pressure could build up for a similar move by the Swiss currency.

In Paris, the dollar dropped to 4.125 commercial French francs at the opening, down two centimes from Friday's close.

The British pound, which has been weakening against some of the stronger European currencies, opened a small fraction down at $2.5820.

Gold opened in Zurich at $123.25 an ounce. The early quote in London was $123.50 an ounce. Both figures were unchanged from Friday's close.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Prices steady today. Supplies barely adequate, demand good and weights desirable to light.

North Carolina hens: Trading very limited. Most contacts closed for the July 4 week and too few prices to report.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices opened lower and then strengthened a bit as investor concern continued over rising interest rates and tighter money.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was off 8.51 to 883.20. A half hour earlier, it was down over 10 points.

Declines led advances on the New York Stock Exchange by 2 to 1.

The banks boosted their prime lending rate—the minimum fee they charge large corporate borrowers—from 7 3/4 per cent to 8 per cent, making it more costly for large borrowers to obtain funds.

Big Board prices included Benguet, up 3/4 to 4 3/4; International Telephone, off 1/4 to 30; UAL, off 1/2 to 15 3/4; General Food, off 1/2 to 24 3/4; and General Motors, down 1/4 to 66 3/4.

basis of the designations. Mallory contended that the farmers did not have ample opportunity to make their market choices, noting that they were only notified of the program one week before their designations had to be turned. "This doesn't give the committee a true picture," he added. "If the farmers had known about this in May . . . we would have probably gotten 95 per cent of the farmers to respond."

A letter mailed to tobacco growers in Pitt County from the Pitt ASC Committee of the ASCS, informed them that, "On March 2, Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz directed that a tobacco marketing system study committee be established to recommend improvements in the present system of marketing U. S. produced tobacco. The committee, which represented all parts of the tobacco industry, recently made its recommendations to Secretary Butz." The letter stated that growers would "have the opportunity to voluntarily designate a market down where they will agree to market a portion or all of their crop. The market designated must be within the 'Belt' where the farm is located," it pointed out.

The industrywide marketing committee is expected to take up the matter of applying the designated plan to the various belts when it meets in Raleigh on July 11. The initial sales allocations to the various markets will be made at the meeting. As the designating system now stands, farmers are not bound legally to sell their tobacco at markets they listed. Mallory acknowledged that many farmers were hesitant to make a choice unless they were assured that the commitments were not binding legally.

Minor Damage In Sitka Tremor

PALMER, Alaska (AP) — Minor damage was reported from an earthquake and a mild aftershock which rattled the Southeast Alaska town of Sitka. Residents of Juneau, about 150 miles northeast of Sitka, also reported feeling the quake on Sunday, a spokesman for the federal seismic observatory said. The quake registered 6.8 Richter magnitude. The tremor originated about 100 miles northwest of Sitka at about 6:44 p.m. PDT, the spokesman said. It was followed by an aftershock measuring 5.5 Richter magnitude.

Fled And Fell In Among Bears

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Spasos Vitas fled from a woman who was attacking him with a pair of scissors and fell 50 feet into a cage full of hungry bears who mauled him badly, the newspaper Vecernje Novosti reports.

It said the 26-year-old shop assistant and the woman got into an argument while dining Friday evening at a cliffside restaurant overlooking the zoo in Belgrade's Kalemegdan Fortress Park. She pulled out the scissors, he jumped over the restaurant's fence and fell into the darkened bear cage. The scissor-wielding woman was given 15 days in jail for creating a disturbance. She told the judge she was drunk, the paper said.

Sudden Death Due Aneurism

A Rt. 1, Greenville boy, Johnny Ray Freeman, died Friday afternoon in Pitt Memorial Hospital of a massive hemorrhage caused by a ruptured intracranial aneurism, his physician, Dr. Ira Hardy said.

The 14-year-old was picking cucumbers on the Carl Crawford farm when he felt sick about 9 a.m. and went to the shelter where he subsequently passed out and was taken to the hospital, his father said.

Dr. Hardy said an autopsy revealed the aneurism and that the boy's activities had no relation to his death. "It was purely coincidental. The same thing could have happened if Johnny Ray had been home in bed," the neurosurgeon said.

The rising eighth grader at A. G. Cox School in Winterville was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Freeman of Rt. 1, Greenville.

Fell Into Path Of Subway Train

NEW YORK (AP) — Beverly Giller told police who rescued her that dizziness caused her to fall in the path of a subway train in Times Square.

The train passed over the 31-year-old woman lying between the rails Sunday and she suffered only leg abrasions.

She was released after treatment at a hospital but less than three hours later her body was pulled from the tracks at a nearby station after another train struck and killed her.

She had been reported missing over the weekend and her sister and father were at a midtown police department stationhouse when the fatal plunge occurred.

Nixon Insists A Stable Cambodia Is Necessary

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has signed legislation to halt all U.S. military action in Indochina by Aug. 15.

He served notice he will seek new war-making powers if he thinks they are needed to win an Indochina peace.

In signing the compromise measure on Sunday, the President said:

"The last remaining element of the peace in Southeast Asia is a stable Cambodian settlement. . . . I will continue to take the responsible action necessary to win that peace. Should further actions be required to that end later in the year, I shall request the Congress to help us achieve our objectives."

The first law aimed directly at ending U.S. combat activity in Indochina reached Nixon's desk in the form of amendments to two vital measures — a $3.4 billion supplemental appropriation for fiscal 1973 and a Senate-House resolution to finance federal agencies pending enactment of appropriations for fiscal 1974. The President signed both.

Nixon, his aides and congressional leaders worked out the Aug. 15 fund cut-off compromise in order to avoid a major confrontation that could have tied the federal government in knots for lack of money.

The President had vetoed on Thursday an identical supplemental appropriation that would have cut off all military funds for Indochina immediately.

ly. The House sustained the veto, but Nixon supporters lacked the votes to block further cut-off amendments.

For the first time in the eight years of America's combat role in Southeast Asia, antiwar forces in both the senate and House could claim clear majorities, thus prompting the compromise.

In his statement, Nixon said an immediate bombing halt "would not have brought us the lasting peace that we all desire" but rather would have "crippled or destroyed the chances for achieving a negotiated settlement."

Melvin R. Laird, a Nixon aide and former secretary of defense, was asked by newsmen Saturday for signs of progress in arranging a Cambodian settlement. He limited himself to declaring that "the negotiation track is not closed."

Hunt Problem At WITN-TV

Television Station WITN-TV, Channel 7, of Washington, remains off the air at mid-morning Monday as a result of unresolved technical difficulties.

Roy Hardee, the station's News Director, said the difficulty was in the transmission facility at Grifton "of yet undetermined nature. We have station engineers on the tower seeking to pinpoint the problem," Hardee said, "and hope to find and correct the problem soon."

WITN signed off the air Sunday night because of the transmission facility technical problem.

Billy Casper Learns Anew The Thrill And Smile Of Winning

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The old thrill and smile of winning a tournament returned to Billy Casper, who did a little dance Sunday on the 72nd hole after dropping a six-foot par putt to clinch the Western Open title.

It was Casper's first tournament victory since taking the Kaiser International in 1971 as he stepped back into the limelight that he once held in winning 48 championships and earning nearly $1.4 million.

Buffalo Bill joined early century Willie Anderson as the only players to win the Western Open four times. He captured it previously in 1965, 1966, and 1969.

"I call it the Casper stomp," he said in describing his footwork on the last hole that brought laughs from some 22,000 fans.

The last two holes were critical for him. On the 71st he saved par with a 12-foot putt after coming out a bunker.

On the 72nd, his approach was short and he pitched six feet away. He needed the putt for a par, a finishing 69, and a 10-under-par 272 over the trampled Midlothian course.

He got it, avoiding a sudden-death playoff with Larry Hinson and Hale Irwin, who tied for second at 273.

Casper's victory was worth $35,000 while Hinson and Irwin each pocketed $16,187.

Sharing fourth place money of $7,233 at 274 were Bruce Crampton, the third-round leader who tailed off to a 73; Hubert Green with a blazing 65 and J.C. Snead with 66. Art

Wall and Arnold Palmer were next at 276 and John Mahaffey followed with 277.

Seldom have losers been so happy.

"I didn't win my fifth tournament of the season, but I achieved my most important milestone," said Crampton. "I got into the million dollar bracket."

The Australian boosted his career earnings to $1,003,103 to join Jack Nicklaus, Palmer, Casper and Lee Trevino as golf's millionaires.

Here are the final scores and money winnings:

Billy Casper $35,000
Hale Irwin 67-69-67-69-272
$4,025

$16,187 67-66-71-69-273

Atlanta (AP) — Mary Mills two-putted from 22 feet away on the final green Sunday and was prepared for a sudden death playoff which never came.

"I really thought I needed it to tie Sharon Miller," the Gulfport, Miss., golfer said after claiming the $30,000 Lady Tara Open with a three-under-par 70 for a 54-hole total of 217, two under par.

She had watched as Miss Meller sank a 10-foot putt, but wasn't aware it was for a bogey which dropped her into a four-way tie for second place with veterans Sandra Haynie and Judy Rankin and popular newcomer Laura Baugh, the teen-age blonde beauty who had led after each of the first two rounds.

Bonnie Bryant, only left-hander on the tour, shared the lead after 15 holes but went bogey, bogey on the final two holes and was alone in sixth place with a 74 for 219.

The victory was worth $4,500 for Miss Mills while the runners-up earned $2,480. Miss Miller closed with a 72, Mrs. Rankin and Miss Haynie had 73s and Miss Baugh 75.

Texan Wins In Invitational

RUMFORD, R.I. (AP) — Ben Crenshaw, a 21-year-old hot shooting amateur from Austin, Tex., fired a blistering four-under-par 65 Sunday for a seven-stroke victory in the 12th Northeast Amateur Invitational Golf Tournament.

The 65 by the three-time NCAA champion bettered by one stroke the competitive record at the difficult Wampanoag Country Club course. The score also broke the tournament 18-hole record and his 72-hole total of 275 bettered the tournament record of 280 posted by Alan Miller in 1970.

Atlanta Bullpen Hangs On To Split Twin Bill With San Francisco

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON Associated Press Sports Writer

The Atlanta Braves apparently have learned that even their wobbly bullpen can't blow a lead in the top of the 10th inning.

"Thank the Lord we didn't have to go back out there and face them another inning," a numb Manager Eddie Mathews gasped Sunday after the Braves rallied in the eighth inning...and again in the ninth...to nip the San Francisco Giants 8-7 and split a double-header.

The Braves blew a 6-5 lead in the opener when the Giants tattooed four Atlanta pitchers for nine runs on six hits and three walks and a 14-6 victory.

"Our relief pitching has become a joke," sobbed Mathews. "That second game was an instant replay of the first one. It was the same guys pitching to the same guys and they just can't get anybody out."

This time, it turned out okay when Frank Tepedino singled home the tying run in the bottom of the ninth and scored the winner on a bases-loaded sacrifice fly by Jackson, who also had a run-scoring single in the sixth.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Cincinnati Reds swept a twin bill from the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3 and 3-2 in 10 innings, the Houston Astros shaded the San Diego Padres 6-4, the Chicago Cubs dropped their opener to the New York Mets 6-5 and took the nightcap by the same score, the Philadelphia Phillies edged the St. Louis Cardinals 1-0 and the Pittsburgh Pirates took two from the Montreal Expos 6-2 and 8-4.

Tony Perez drilled a long single with two out in the 10th inning to give the Reds their sweep over Los Angeles after Hal King slammed a pinch three-run homer off the right field foul pole with two out in the bottom of the ninth to win the opener.

Bob Watson's two-run homer and pitcher Don Wilson's two-run double led the Astros over the Padres. Fred Kendall drove in three San Diego runs with a double and a homer.

Randy Hundley's three-run homer off Tug McGraw with two out in the bottom of the ninth of the second game lifted the Cubs to a split with the Mets. McGraw had saved the opener for Jerry Koonsman when left fielder George Theodore backed against the wall to grab Jim Hickman's ninth-inning drive with two runners aboard.

Philadelphia rookie Dick Ruthven hurled a two-hitter for his first major league shutout and the Phillies edged Bob Gibson of St. Louis on Greg Luzinski's run-scoring single in the eighth inning.

Jim Rooker and Dave Giusti combined for a six-hitter, Al Oliver homered and Fernando Gonzales whacked a two-run triple in the Pirates' second-game victory over the Expos. Luke Walker and Bob Johnson spaced six hits in the opener while Oliver delivered three singles and a run-scoring triple. Ken Singleton homered in each game for the Expos.

In the American League, New York won a doubleheader from Cleveland 5-2 and 11-3. Detroit swept Baltimore 5-3 and 1-0, Milwaukee beat Boston 9-5 but dropped the nightcap 4-2. Oakland won a pair from Chicago 6-4 and 3-0, Texas trimmed Kansas City 8-3 and Minnesota nipped California 2-1.

Joe Frazier Puts It On Line Again

By NOEL HUGHES Associated Press Sports Writer

LONDON (AP) — The talking is over now, and Joe Frazier and Joe Bugner are set to fight tonight, under the burning floodlights at London's Earl's Court Arena.

Frazier, the former world champion, and Bugner, European heavyweight titleholder, both have said they can't lose. In fact, both are looking ahead toward a possible meeting with world champion George Foreman, which the winner could receive.

So how will the fight go? It might not be a good fight to watch, because the styles of the two fighters are vastly different.

Frazier has said he aimed to be "more mobile" than when he lost his crown to Foreman last January in Jamaica.

Frazier, however, didn't appear more mobile in his training. He waded in, threw vicious hooks to the head and body, virtually ignoring what was thrown back at him. That style took him to 29 consecutive victories, before he was thrashed by Foreman.

Frazier's weight has been the subject of considerable speculation. He scaled 205½ pounds when he beat Muhammad Ali in 1971. But against Foreman he was 8½ pounds heavier.

At 6-foot-4, Hungarian-born Bugner will have over four inches in height advantage, a much longer reach, and at 23, is six years Frazier's junior.

Bugner's gradual buildup in 49 fights with five losses has fashioned him into an effective fighter, if not a spectacular one. He should be able to use his height and reach, and jab down as Frazier rushes in.

If Bugner fails against Frazier, it will not necessarily be the end of the road for him.

For Frazier there is a lot at stake. It is his first chance to prove the Foreman fight was a mistake. If he loses, his credibility will suffer greatly. So Frazier will be fighting for boxing survival and that will make him doubly dangerous.

Young Pitcher Struck Out 23

STURGEON BAY, Wis. (AP) — Mark Woerfel, 18, struck out 23 batters Saturday and tossed a no-hitter in Sturgeon Bay's 7-0 American Legion baseball victory over Clintonville.

His 23 strikeouts represented all but four outs in the nine-inning game.

Woerfel now shows 80 strikeouts in 35 innings pitched this summer.

Easy Winner In N.C. Amateur

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — David Canipe, a 19-year-old University of Georgia student from Fayetteville, N.C., swept to an easy 10-stroke victory Sunday in the North Carolina Amateur golf championship. He led every round.

Canipe coasted home in the final round with a one-under par 71 that equaled the day's best round and doubled his third round lead. His eight-under 280 total for the 72-hole event was the only subpar score.

The final two rounds of the tournament were played over the 6,800 yard, par 72 Country Club of North Carolina course.

Bob Bryant of Charlotte also shot a final round 71 to move ahead of former champion Bill Harvey of Greensboro into second place with 290.

Harvey, who began the last day five strokes behind young Canipe, had trouble putting and slipped to a 78 Sunday for a 292 total that tied him for third with Jay Hoover of Greensboro and David Strawn of Charlotte.

The defending champion, Steve Forrest of Mount Airy, had a 75 Sunday to finish at 298 along with two-time champion Dale Morey of High Point.

Bobby Allison Captures Pole Slot For Daytona's Firecracker 400

By JOHN SKINNER
Associated Press Sports Writer
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Bobby Allison turned a pokey 179.619 miles per hour Sunday in qualifying for the Firecracker 400 stock car race, and nobody was more surprised than Allison to learn it was good enough to take the pole.

"I'm looking for 180 to 181 miles per hour to win it (the pole)," said the Hueytown, Ala., driver after touring the 2.5-mile trioval in his 1973 Chevrolet to qualify for Wednesday's race.

But the closest anyone got to Allison, who finished third last year, was Cale Yarborough of Timmonsville, S.C., at 178.837 m.p.h.

Three weeks ago, the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing announced that new carburetor throttle bore restrictions would be used in the Firecracker. NASCAR officials were concerned about safety as cars neared 200 m.p.h. speeds on the supertracks.

Saturday's times showed the restrictions worked.

Seven drivers broke 180 m.p.h. qualifying for the race last year, topped by Bobby Isaacs of Catawba, N.C., at 186.277 m.p.h., and six drivers bettered 180 m.p.h. in February as Buddy Baker of Charlotte, N.C., won the pole for the Daytona 500 at 185.662 m.p.h.

Most drivers said they were happy to see the slowdown take effect, but they said they didn't have time to make necessary mechanical changes after their last race at Irish Hills, Mich., June 24.

"It's choking us to death," said Bill Champion of Norfolk, Va., as mechanics applied finishing touches to his 1971 Mercury before his qualifying attempt. "We've gone back to where we were 15 years ago in speed."

He failed to gain one of the 15 spots awarded Sunday, running no faster than 168.020 m.p.h. The race will start with a field of 40.

"I think NASCAR's right in trying to cut the speed down," said Champion, but he added, "It's hard to make all these changes on short notice."

Swede Wins Grand Prix

By PAUL TREUTHARDT
Associated Press Writer
LE CASTELLET, France (AP) — Sweden's Ronnie Peterson won the world championship French Grand Prix Sunday and it was a popular win, but the hero of the race was a young driver who didn't even finish.

Jody Scheckter, a 23-year-old from East London, South Africa who currently calls Watkins Glen, N.Y., "my home race-track," confirmed the promise experts have seen in him by leading the world's best drivers for three-quarters of the race.

But a controversial accident eliminated Scheckter and world champion Emerson Fittipaldi, giving Peterson the race.

"I was in the lead so it was my corner," Scheckter said. "I was balked by a slower car and had to change my line. Emerson tried to pass inside me, but we locked wheels and crashed."

Fittipaldi saw it differently, and the two drivers had an angry exchange in the pits over the crash. The accident cost Fittipaldi his driving world championship lead to Scotland's Jackie Stewart, who is bidding for his third world crown. at the half-way mark of the 1973 title race, Stewart now has one point over Fittipaldi, 42 to 41.

Stewart, 34, is likely to retire if he gets his third title to cap one of the greatest careers of modern racing. He needs only one more victory in his Tyrrell-Ford to hold an all-time record of 26 Grand Prix victories.

His friend, the late Jim Clark, scored 25.

Peterson's win was his first ever in four years of Formula One and 42 races.

Langley of Charlotte, saw the restrictions as a boost for drivers who use Ford engines.

"We've been out of the ball game," said Langley, who sat 15th at a speed of 171.021 m.p.h. in a '72 model. The only other Ford to qualify was a '73 driven by Isaacs, who was third at 178.334 m.p.h.

Four-time national champion Richard Petty of Randeman, N.C., who has never won this race, qualified alongside Isaacs in the second row with a speed of 178.126 m.p.h. in a '73 Dodge.

Petty was second in 1972, less than a length behind David Pearson.

Qualifying continued today for the Firecracker and the Paul Revere 250-mile sports car road race, which begins at midnight Tuesday.

Others who qualified Sunday were:

Coo Coo Marlin, Columbia, Tenn., 177.728, '73 Chevrolet; Pearson, Spartanburg, S.C., 177.203, '71 Mercury; Benny Parsons, Detroit, 174.523, '72 Chevrolet; Jim Vandiver, Charlotte, 174.394, '72 Dodge; Darrell Waltrip, Franklin, Tenn., 173.587, '71 Mercury; Donnie Allison, Hueytown, Ala., 173.413, '73 Chevrolet; Walter Ballard, Houston, 172.443, '71 Mercury; Cecil Gordon, Horse Shoe, N.C., 172.397, '72 Chevrolet; David Sisco, Nashville, Tenn., 172.097, '72 Chevrolet, and Richard Childress, Winston-Salem, N.C., 171.677, '73 Chevrolet.

A.J. Foyt Rides His Luck To Shaefer 500 Victory

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
MOUNT POCONO, Pa. (AP) — A.J. Foyt, a sports immortal if there ever was one, cradled his luck in his strong driving arms Sunday and won his first 500 mile championship auto race in six lean years.

He got it at the expense of luckless Roger McCluskey, who ran out of gas on the 199th lap of the 200-lap race.

The Texan, auto racing's most prolific winner of prize money—almost $3 million in 16 years—and more recently named driver of the decade, had led only 11 laps of the race. McCluskey had been in front 62 laps—more than any of the other seven drivers who set the pace.

Only eight of the original 33 starters finished the wreck-marred grind around the 2½ mile triangle-shaped course. The mishaps, one of which sent 1970 and 1971 Indianapolis winner Al Unser to a hospital, slowed the action for more than 50 miles.

In spite of the slowdowns, however, Foyt's elapsed time was only 2 hours, 26 minutes and 58.57 seconds for a speed of 144.944 miles per hour.

Third place went to 45-year-old Lloyd Ruby of Wichita Falls, Tex., fourth to Mike Mosley of Clermont, Ind., and fifth to Johnny Rutherford of Ft. Worth, Tex., who drove grimly on after brushing the first turn guard rail seconds after the race started.

Foyt, who left the speedway immediately to fly to Daytona Beach, Fla., where he hopes to drive a Chevrolet in the July 4 firecracker 400, earned about $90,000 from the purse that almost reached $400,000. He and McCluskey were the only strong drivers remaining at the end. In addition to Al Unser, early leaders Bobby Unser, Jimmy Caruthers, Mario Andretti, Gary Bettenhausen, Mark Donohue and recent Indianapolis winner Gordon Johncock either went out with mechanical problems, wrecked or were slowed by failing engines.

Took Ryder Cup Slots

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Casper and J.C. Snead came out of the pack and won spots on the 12-man American Ryder Cup team with high finishes Sunday in the Western Open golf tournament.

Casper won the event—the last one in which points are awarded for positions on the team that will oppose Britain's best in the biennial matches in Scotland this fall—and Snead tied for fourth.

They bumped Frank Beard and Rod Funseth from the squad.

The American team will be made up of Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf, Gay Brewer, Lou Graham, Dave Hill, Tommy Aaron, Chi Chi Rodriguez, Homero Blancas, Arnold Palmer, Casper and Snead.

It was the seventh consecutive time that Casper has made the squad. He was 16th on the list—with only 12 to be chosen—going into the final selection tournament and had to finish fourth or better to make it.

Snead, a raw-boned nephew of Sam Snead and the man who clinched the American victory in the 1969 matches in St. Louis, made the squad by the thinnest of margins.

He edged Funseth for the last spot 138.667 points to 138.168.

Placed First In Archery Tourney

GRAYLING, Mich. (AP) — Ed Eliason of Seattle won the men's division of the International Federation of Target Archers Tournament here Sunday, posting a score of 1,251.

John Williams, of Fort Myers, Va., was second with 1,214 and Steve Lieberman, of Reading, Pa., was third with 1,203.

Vicki Cook of Minneapolis took top honors in the women's division with 1,099 points.

Upset Handed To Little Mint

Morris Body Shop handed the Little Mint a 1-0 upset and closed the gap between first and second place in the Senior Babe Ruth League Saturday night. Taft Office Equipment rolled to a 9-1 win over Moore-King-Sullivan in the other game.

Little Mint continues to lead the league with a 9-3 record, but is closer to second place Kinston, 6-3, now. Taft is 9-4.

In the opener, Taft jumped into the lead, scoring six runs. David Clifton singled and moved up on an out. Pete Cullop doubled to score him, then came around to score the second run when Tom Craft reached on an error. Cleve Averette walked as did Greg Nelson and Donald Cannon, forcing in Craft. Willie Streeter also walked to score Nelson. Wesley Deal singled in Nelson, and a walk to Clifton scored Cannon.

Moore-King-Sullivan scored its only run in the third. Doug Causey walked and moved up on Greg McLawhorn's single. Wayne Bailey reached on a fielder's choice, and a sacrifice fly to Mike Wallace scored Causey.

In the fourth, Taft scored one more. Craft walked, and Averette was hit by a pitch. A double play put Craft on third, and after Cannon walked, the two pulled a double steal for the score.

The other two scored in the sixth. Averette reached on an error and stole second. Cannon singled him in and also stole second. Jack Jones singled and an error on the play let Cannon score.

Playoff

The Greenville American Legion baseball team opens its playoff schedule tonight at 8 p.m. at Harrington Field.

Greenville will host Fuqua in the first game of the best-of-three series. The second game will be played Tuesday night in Fuqua with a third game, if necessary, back in Greenville on Wednesday night.

Associated Press Writer
WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Alex Mayer, a 21-year-old American student playing Wimbledon "just for experience," has beaten top-seeded Ilie Nastase of Romania but now faces what he considers an equally tough task: a quarter-final match against Juergen Fassbender.

Fassbender, of West Germany, the eighth seed, made short work of the young American in their only previous encounter earlier this year, beating him 61, 6-1 at Charleston, W. Va.

Mayer ousted a slightly limp Nastase in four sensational sets Saturday. But he refused comment on his chances against Fassbender in Tuesday's men's singles quarter-finals.

In today's women's singles, all eight seeds are through to the quarter-finals, with 1972 winner Billie Jean King going for her fifth Wimbledon triumph. A victory this year would make her the first woman to notch five singles titles here, since America's Helen Wills Moody did it between the two World Wars.

But second-seeded Mrs. King has a problem—her old rival, Australia's Margaret Court.

Mrs. Court, back at Wimbledon after a year's absence for the birth of a son, is fighting for her second Grand Slam. She already has won the French and Australian titles, and now needs only Wimbledon and Forest Hills. Maureen "Little Mo" Connelly is the only only woman to win the Grand slam, 20 years ago.

In the quarter-finals, Mrs. Court, the top seed, faces eighth-seeded Olga Morozova of Russia and Mrs. King meets seventh seeded Kerry Melville of Australia. Chris Evert, from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., fourth seed, faces Rosie Casals of San Francisco while Britain's sixth seed, Virginia Wade, battles third-seeded Evonne Goolagong of Australia.

The only other American joining Mayer in the men's quarter-finals is 20-year-old Jimmy Connors, the fifth seed from Belleville, Ill. He is paired against No. 4 seed Alex Metreveli of Russia.

Second-seeded Jan Kodes of Czechoslovakia will play India's unseeded Vijar Amritraj, who surprised Australia's Owen Davidson, No. 7 seed Saturday. Britain's last hope, third-seeded Roger Taylor, meets Swedish wonder boy Bjorn Borg, the sixth seed.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Make your long-range plans that are of importance to you now, and let those who are older or more experienced than you know the specific plan of action by which you feel you can be a bigger success in all departments of your life. Communicate with those with whom you have ideas you want to put across now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A partner expects much of you and you should follow through so you can get back into this person's good graces. Once your work is done, get into the amusements that most delight you. Avoid troublemakers.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Place your finest thought on own home and talk over money plans with kin in a wise fashion, and you get excellent results. Curb that tendency to impatience. Show others you have good judgment.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You can accomplish a good deal in any sphere of your endeavor, so come to right decisions and keep busy at them. If you are in doubt about anything, get advice from experts. Do nothing foolish tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Talk over with an expert or an associate who has to have a better financial structure in the future. Make sure you are serious since there are important affairs for you to handle. Have fun with mate in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Keep busy at whatever will make you a more charming, prosperous and happy person. Get into those social affairs that can help you be very popular. You can make contacts that are most valuable, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study your newspaper, other periodicals for the data you need where new outlets are concerned that you are interested in. Make sure you help a friend in trouble or later you suffer pangs of remorse. Wisen up.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A good friend willingly does what you wish so your personal life improves. Out to some social event that can bring fine results. Make the new contacts that are most worthwhile. Do nothing to hurt another.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get into the career or civic matters with enthusiasm and make real progress via the good auspices of higher-ups. A higher-up recognizes your finest talents and grants your wishes. Avoid one who is troublesome.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Out to the activities that you like and in which you are proficient; get an early start. Find more intelligent allies to assist you to get ahead very much faster. Don't follow what you don't really like.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have responsibilities to handle before you go out to recreations you like, so do so. If you follow your intuition, you can expand very easily. Do nothing of a destructive nature.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Sit down with sensible partners and talk over how to advance mutually in the future. Certain changes are necessary and should be made. State your views clearly and cleverly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make your surroundings more attractive and then get to work with enthusiasm with co-workers. Step out and buy new clothes you need to round out your wardrobe. Think along very constructive lines.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those fascinating youngsters who has fine, creative ideas and needs much encouragement if they are to be expressed properly, both during youth and later in life, also in marriage, since this offspring cannot do much if made to look ridiculous, because others do not understand this New Era individual. Give good spiritual training early and music lessons that could be most worthwhile as a sideline later in life.

No Relief For The Shiftless

Rev. Winger is a dynamic pastor who employs a lot of Christ's "Horse Sense." Note how Jesus divided the poor into two groups — the chronic shiftless vs. the temporary but ambitious! Christ didn't go out of his way to help the shiftless!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE X-548: Rev. Dorman Winger is a dynamic pastor of the rural Union Christian Church west of Indianapolis.

He had invited me to occupy his pulpit and deliver my usual address entitled "Jesus — the World's Greatest Applied Psychologist."

Therein I had mentioned that Jesus apparently believed in selective philanthropy; not indiscriminate welfare (See Luke 4:23-27).

For I showed that after Christ gave the 5,000 a big picnic, he quit furnishing such free food.

And though he healed 10 lepers plus a number of deaf, blind, crippled and feverish patients, he didn't go around making medical house calls!

Jesus ignored probably a minimum of 25,000 other sick and diseased people within sound of his voice as he spent 3 years traveling throughout Judea.

So why didn't Jesus cure them, too?

If you faithful members of Christian Churches admit that Christ had the divine power to turn stones into bread and also cure cancer, leprosy, the deaf and blind, why did he let thousands starve and other thousands die of medical ailments?

Was it because he divided the poor and sick into two definite classes?

One might have been the shiftless poor, greedy, selfish and content to remain on relief forever.

The other class of poor might be those with ambition, selfishness, faith and the "elbow grease" necessary to come to the Great Physician.

That second type would include Abraham Lincoln and probably most of you faithful readers of this daily "Worry Clinic" column.

My own family was made up of low paid school teachers, preachers and farmers, where we often didn't know where our next meal was coming from.

But we had ambition and willingness to work, plus a belief in God.

And that class of poor people Jesus enjoyed helping!

But he apparently ignored tens of thousands of other starving and sick folks who belonged to the first class of poor outlined above.

Woodrow Wilson once distinguished between these two types of poor when he said:

"All any American should desire is a free field and no favors!"

Alas, millions of shiftless American poor want a lifelong continuation of favors!

And they apparently have little feeling for any less fortunate than themselves, so if welfare offers them food, would they share it with some other down-and-out?

It is high time clergymen began to show that Christ made a sharp distinction between human beings.

"One shall be taken and the other left," Christ stated as he showed that a definite line of

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C., Monday, July 2, 1973—9 demarcation separates human beings!

"The poor ye have with you always," he again stated (perhaps tartly), as he doubtless referred to the shiftless poor, lacking faith and elbow grease.

So it is high time our churches began to use more "Horse Sense" and a keener understanding of Christ's psychological outlook.

"Come unto me," he said, but those who don't come, are apparently to be ignored! (Always write to Dr. Crane in

Traffic Took 21 N.C. Lives

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Traffic accidents took at least 21 lives in North Carolina during the weekend, according to the Highway Patrol.

The deaths bring the state's toll for the year to 874, compared to 906 for the corresponding period last year.

The latest reported victims died late Sunday night in a head-on collision on a rural paved road in Wake County, two miles west of Fuquay Varina.

Police identified the victims of that crash as Carnell Haywood, 16, of Holly Springs; David Haywood, 38, of Fuquay Varina; and Leroy Nicholson, 38, of New York City. The patrol said Carnell Haywood was driving on the wrong side of the road when he struck the car in which Nicholson was a passenger.

Durwood Swinson, 28, of Hampstead died Sunday night on N.C. 210 in Pender County one and a half miles west of his hometown. The patrol said he was a passenger in a speeding car that ran off the road and overturned.

Police said 28-year-old James H. Felts of Winston-Salem died one mile east of Winston-Salem when the truck he was driving overturned into a ditch.

Ronnell Smith, 39, of Ash, died when his car ran off a Brunswick County road and hit several trees near Shallotte.

Four persons died in a two-car collision on a rural paved road near Carboro. The patrol identified them as Franklin Bowman, 19, James Bowman, 16, and Roy Lee Merritt, 39, all of Carboro; and Carl Jones of Chapel Hill. All of the victims were riding in the same car, which the patrol said hit a tree after the collision.

Other weekend traffic victims included:

—Andrew Junior Ingram, 24, of Gaston.

—C.W. Sherill, 29, of Denver, N.C.

—John Wesley Hinton, 34, of Rocky Mount.

—David Lewis McLucas, 15, of Sanford.

—John Joseph Smith, 24, of Torrington, Conn.

—Simon Hatcher, 5, of Winston-Salem.

—Gurnie Singletary, 59, of Bladenboro.

—Archie A. Walters, 77, of Raeford.

—Joel G. Hamilton of Raleigh.

—James J. Lawson, 18, of Mebane.

—And Thomas J. McNeely, 72, of Morganton.

Move Oil Hunt Into The Arctic

NEW YORK (UPI) — Man is pushing his search for sorely needed oil reserves into the ice-infested Arctic Ocean. Now joining the exploration effort is a new type of specially designed seismic surveying vessel adapted for Arctic operations by Seiscom Delta, Inc., of Houston, Tex.

The 180-foot craft has a reinforced hull, satellite-based navigation system and other equipment for operating under the foulest weather conditions. Value of its surveying gear alone is more than $1,250,000, say officials of Seiscom.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

The confining life of a dairy farmer and the increasing demands on his ability to manage a high investment business are taking a heavy toll on North Carolina dairy farms.

For the first time in modern history, the state has fewer than 2,000 Grade A dairies — the kind that produce milk for the table and the baby's bottle. The rate of loss is accelerating.

Why? A big part of the answer can be found in these to-the-point comments by a Montgomery County father-son farming team that has switched from dairying to crops, beef and pork production:

"I'm just too old to get under a cow anymore," said Floyd Williamson, the father.

"If I had to milk cows, milk would cost $50 a gallon," son Bobby said half in jest but making clear his distaste for the confining life of a dairyman.

Bobby is a young man who believes his future on the farm is more in the area of large scale grain production, marketing part of that grain through beef cattle and hogs, and growing a sizeable cotton acreage.

Income isn't the key factor. Young farmers like Bobby Williamson probably could make more money as dairymen than they could selling grain or livestock on erratic markets. But the confinement of dairying, the seven-day work week, the thorny problems of labor, the taxing demands on one's management skills — these are realities that must be faced by young dairymen.

Many obviously are turning in other directions.

Marvin Senger, specialist in charge of extension dairy husbandry at North Carolina State University, explains that North Carolina has been losing dairy farms since a high of 5,192 was reached in 1954.

"We lost a total of over 300 dairy farms in 1967 and 1968," Senger said. "Then the rate of loss seemed to level off at about 100 a year from 1969 and 1970. Now it's picking up again."

Senger said 144 dairy farms went out of milk production in a recent 12-month period. As of last July, there were only 1,982 Grade A dairies left.

Despite farm losses, total milk production is increasing gradually. "We're increasing herd size slightly and the average production per cow is going up," the N.C. State University specialist said. "But there is a limit to just how long we can lose dairy farms and maintain our level of total milk production."

Labor, management and age of operator are three key causes of the continuing decline of dairy farm numbers, Senger believes.

The days of a one-man dairy are all but gone. Herds of 100 cows or more are commonplace. Value of assets and money received and spent is counted in hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The average value of total assets on dairy farms enrolled in the N.C. State University electronic records program is over a quarter of a million dollars. The average size of the dairy herd is 72 cows, and the average per farm acreage is 329.

Running the enlarged operation requires a level of labor and financial management that is new to the older operators. Many of them don't feel equal to the task and often their heirs have no taste for it either.

The result is fewer dairy farms.

By BARRI DUNCAN
Kentucky State News Bureau
FRANKFORT, Ky.

Sitting on an aluminum tub outside the four-bent tobacco barn, a man wove soft leaves of dried tobacco into various shapes and twists.

A small, curious group had gathered to watch. One observer, a man in seersucker, picked up a piece of tobacco and asked the man twisting the leaves, if, as a Kentuckian, he could vouch for the superstition that spitting chewed tobacco on a fish hook insured a catch.

The man looked up, and nodded yes.

"81," yelled someone in the barn.

"One, one. Who'll gimme two?" rang a second voice from within.

The observer and several others from the group wandered to the door of the barn and saw a tall, black-haired man wiping his forehead with a towel chanting something indistinguishable over a row of baskets piled high with tobacco.

"Ay. Ay. Seven-ate. Gimme nine..." sang the auctioneer. Moving from one pile to another, he pulled out a handful of tobacco from the middle, slapped it against his arm so that the leaves spread and threw it back on the pile. "82!" yelled the sales leader.

"Two! Two!" the auctioneer began his song.

The sights and sounds of a tobacco auction like this one will be part of the fun when Kentucky goes on display at the American Folklife Festival in early July.

The July 4-8 event will be held by the reflecting pool near the Lincoln Memorial in Washington, D. C. The festival is sponsored by the Smithsonian, the National Park Service, and the Kentucky 1973 Festival of American Folklife Inc. Each year the festival features the folklife of one of the 50 states, and this year Kentucky is the "showcase" state.

Howard Whitaker, the tall, black-haired tobacco auctioneer, will be among those representing the tobacco industry. He should feel right at home because there will be a four-bent tobacco barn accompanying him in Washington. Not only will there be a barn, but a one-fourth to one-half acre patch of tobacco growing beside the barn as well. An authentic, white four-rail fence will enclose the patch serving to make the exhibit all the more realistic.

Tobacco auctioneering strongly captures the imagination of those viewing the art for the first time.

"The first thing people ask me," said Howard Whitaker, "is 'What are you saying? And I'm not doing anything in the world but calling numbers. But it sounds like mumbo-jumbo to other people.'"

A Lexington real estate agent during the spring, Whitaker calls auctions at all but one warehouse in his hometown of Cynthiana during the late fall and early winter; sells flue-cured tobacco in his own warehouses in Lake City, Florida during the summer; and completes the circuit in Greenville, North Carolina during the late summer and early fall.

"I guess I sell something like 25 million pounds of tobacco every year," Whitaker said. "You know, one auctioneer, during a one-hour period, will sell approximately 300,000 pounds of tobacco worth from $240,000-$300,000."

The price tag on tobacco is determined by a government grader. Government standards exist by which a grader rates the tobacco according to location on the stalk, color and quality.

Each tobacco pile is graded before the sale and the sale leader starts the bidding at the dollar equivalent of that grade. From there, it is up to the individual buyer, with coaxing from the auctioneer, to settle on a mutually satisfying price. High bid takes it.

"The price of tobacco goes up three to four percent each year (last year's average price per 100 pounds in Kentucky was $82), not because the quality has necessarily improved, but because of general rising prices," Whitaker pointed out.

One handful of tobacco leaves would probably be worth $1.50, according to Whitaker.

A one-time tobacco farmer as well as auctioneer and warehouseman, he will not only conduct simulated auctions at the Festival, but will also be available (along with other tobacco representatives) to answer questions about the tobacco industry.

"One other question that I get asked all the time," Whitaker said, "is 'What's the process involved? How did it get from here (the tobacco pile) into a cigarette?'"

"The process is one of shredding, aging and blending tobaccos. Blends are usually something like 35 percent burley, 60 percent flue-cured and the other 5 percent, Maryland or Turkish tobacco. But the exact blend, I don't know—that's the company's secret."

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY

Blackshank Causing Problems

Several tobacco farmers in Pitt County have had an unexpected plant disease problem this year. Blackshank, thought to be under control, with resistant varieties, has been identified in many fields. It's the same old fungus but working a little differently than usual.

Furney Todd, Extension Professor of Plant Pathology, is calling it Stem blackshank because it enters the stalk above the root system. Infected plants (wilting and dying) may have a healthy root system but the stalk just above it may be rotting and showing the distinct characteristics of the disease. Highly resistant varieties have been affected. According to Todd, the tobacco plant carries blackshank resistance in the root system but all varieties are susceptible to the disease if it enters the stem. He suspects that the disease has entered the plant in an injured place, either a bruise or scrape, or possibly where another fungus has weakened the plant. The disease, he said, should have run its course and will not likely cause much more damage.

Professor Todd pointed out that this outbreak of blackshank points out our need for continued efforts to do the best job possible in our management programs. Our soils, he stated, are loaded with the blackshank fungus and each farmer needs to know his field and follow the system control plan that will give him the best chance for growing a profitable crop.

Extension Research on Wheels Tour

The 1973 Extension Research on Wheels tour will be held July 17, 18 and 19. This extensive on-the-farm disease research and testing program involves more than 60 plots throughout North Carolina's tobacco areas. Growers, dealers, warehousemen and others are invited to participate in the tour.

The schedule of stops is not complete at this time but mechanization of tests and a visit to the Oxford Tobacco Research Station will be highlights. A tobacco "pow-wow" will feature a beef earth dinner—free to all tour participants.

Blossom End Rot of Tomatoes

My tomatoes are beautiful. The plants are over six feet tall (staked, of course) and every bloom has produced fruit. Now that it's about time for them to get ripe I go check them often. Last night I got excited by one turning pink, but it turned out to be one that was rotting with Blossom end rot. The disease starts where the blossom has fallen off the fruit.

According to A. A. Banadyga, In Charge Extension Horticulture, this problem is caused by a lack of calcium available to the plant. He recommends that gardens where this is a problem should be tested and limed before the next season. You might try, where the problem is severe now, working in a big handful of agricultural lime around the plant. Another treatment that may give good results would be to spray the plant with a solution of calcium chloride (a chemical used as anti-freeze in tractor tires). Use 4 tablespoonsful per gallon of water. Spray three times at one week intervals.

Tell The IRS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council Special Freeze Group has called on consumers to help it police the price freeze by notifying the Internal Revenue Service of suspected violations.

"Since the freeze was announced, more than 68,000 inquiries have been received in the 58 IRS district offices," Freeze Group director James W. McLane said.

"More than 2,000 IRS agents covering the U.S. are assigned to the freeze operation and it is their activity coupled with consumer concern that has prompted more than 4,000 investigations of price freeze violations," McLane said in a statement released by the Freeze Group office.

Debt-Paying Help Cited

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina highway contractors have helped pay off Gov. Jim Holshouser's campaign debts, the News and Observer said Sunday.

The paper said the contractors had put up at least $25,000 while officers of banks and other lending institutions had raised $10,000 for the Holshouser campaign kitty.

According to the News and Observer, the Holshouser campaign incurred a debt of more than $100,000 by the Nov. 8 election day. It raised a total of $210,583.

George Little, Holshouser's finance chairman, said a little over $300,000 has been raised since the election, most of it coming from people who had not previously supported the Holshouser cause.

The paper said it compiled a list of 125 persons who gave $1,000 or more and more than one-fourth of the post-election $1,000 contributors were officials of highway construction firms.

Tokyo Price Of Sirloin Soaring

WASHINGTON (AP) — The price of sirloin steak rose to $12.92 a pound in Tokyo last month but dipped to 56 cents in Buenos Aires, according to U.S. price watchers abroad.

A survey of retail food prices in foreign capitals published today by the agriculture Department showed that the price of meat, eggs and chicken increased in most of the 14 countries surveyed.

Sirloin steak cost a median price of $2.66 per pound in the capital cities, up from $2.56 in the May report. In Washington, D.C., it was reported at $1.99 per pound in June, compared with $1.79 in May.

The price in Tokyo, where sirloin was the most expensive, represented an increase of six cents a pound over the May price.

The sharpest rise for sirloin was in Ottawa, where Foreign Agricultural Service attaches reported it at $2.79 per pound in June, up from $1.82 in May.

Median prices per pound (except eggs) of other products surveyed in the 14 capitals, compared with Washington, D.C., prices in early June, included:

Boneless chuck roast, a world median of $1.48 per pound and in Washington, D.C., $1.49; pork chops, $1.77 and $1.69; bacon, $1.79 and $1.15; cheese, $1.18 and $1.23; butter, $1.20 and 75 cents; broiler chicken, 70 cents and 45 cents; tomatoes, 50 cents and 49 cents; bread, 29 cents and 29 cents; and eggs, 96 cents per dozen and 73 cents.

Poultrymen Talk Plight

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Poultry men from several states decided at a meeting this weekend to press their case for better price conditions in Washington.

Members of the National Independent Poultry and Food Distributors Assn. met Saturday to discuss their economic condition in the wake of the 60-day price freeze. Many were frantic about their situation.

About 60 members attended. They decided to saturate members of Congress with information about the price squeeze in which they find themselves. And they decided to look into whether the administration's economic actions could be challenged as unconstitutional.

Some members favored a demonstration in Washington, but the group scotched the idea as one member said, "You're going to get the same results as the kids did when they protested."

The NIPFDA staff, based in Jackson, Miss., was instructed to try to arrange a meeting this week with Donald Paarlberg, head of the agriculture department's freeze policy group.

The organization consists of 105 poultry distributors nationwide. The group says its members handle about 60 per cent of the nation's poultry.
