See Foreign Trade Move Near Balance

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. foreign trade almost was in balance during June and there also was a sharp improvement during the second quarter of the year, the Commerce Department reported today.

The administration has said a favorable trade picture is vital to helping stabilize the U.S. dollar in world financial centers.

The trade deficit for June was $15.5 million, a big improvement over the May deficit of $157.9 million.

For the second quarter, the Census Bureau said its seasonally adjusted figures show a surplus for the April, May and June of $22.9 million of exports over imports, the first quarterly surplus since the first quarter of 1971.

But by another measurement, the so-called U.S. merchandise trade balance, the U.S. recorded a second quarter deficit of $300 million, which also was a substantial improvement over the first quarter deficit of $1 billion.

The trade figures reflect the value of all trade, while the merchandise trade balance is computed on a balance of payments basis and excludes military trade of defense agencies.

The Commerce Department said imports during June totaled $5,793.6 million and exports totaled $5,778.1 million. It was the second month in a row that the country set new records both for exports and for imports.

During May, exports totaled $5,602.8 million and imports $5,760.7 million. The United States had recorded a trade surplus in April of $196.3 million, the first monthly surplus since September of 1971.

The Commerce Department said the bulk of improvement in U.S. trade during the second quarter was with Japan.

It said Japan accounted for about $400 million of the overall $700 million in trade improvements in the quarter and said Japanese stockpiling purchases of U.S. products was a major factor.

"In addition, exports may also be deriving some benefit from the two official dollar devaluations and the most recent decline of the dollar in foreign exchange markets vis a vis a number of foreign, mainly European currencies," the department said.

It said the cumulative trade deficit for the first half of 1973 totaled about $2.5 billion at a seasonally adjusted annual rate compared with a deficit of $6.9 billion for all of 1972.

Three Gunmen Take $18,000 From Brothers

BOONE, N.C. (AP)—Three masked gunmen robbed two bachelor brother farmers of more than $18,000 at their home in a remote section of Watauga County near the Blue Ridge Parkway Wednesday night, authorities report.

The sheriff's department at Boone said $12,740 was taken from Phil Hartley and $5,635 from Roy Hartley, who are in their 60s and live in a frame home without a telephone or electric lights.

The department reported that the Hartleys, distrustful of banks, carried the money with them, and were tied up and robbed.

Planning Zoning Body Handles Heavy Agenda At Wednesday Meet

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended approval of a rezoning request for property on 14th Street Extension on which developers plan to build a medical clinic for use by general practitioners.

Rezoning of the W.D. Tyson property located in the northeast intersection of the Norfolk Southern Railroad and State Road 1704 (14th Street Extension) would call for a change from R-9 to O and/or office and institutional use.

The quadrant consists of approximately 1.1 acres and adjoins property that has been zoned Neighborhood Commercial. The facility would be constructed north of the railroad, it was pointed out.

Board member, Mrs. Ruth Trevathan questioned the rezoning from R-9 to O and I rather than to MA, a medically oriented zoning regulation. Chairman Louis Clark said the MA designation would completely restrict the building to medical usage and if, at a later time the practitioners decided to move, the facility could not be used for other purposes.

Preliminary plans indicate that the clinic would be used by two general practitioners.

Two Probes En Route To Mars

MOSCOW (AP) — Two unmanned Soviet space probes are speeding toward Mars to study the red planet and space conditions around it.

Tass said the second unmanned interplanetary station, called Mars 5, was launched Wednesday from a satellite orbiting the earth. The first ship, Mars 4, took off last Saturday.

The Soviet news agency said equipment was working normally on both spacecraft and that the space stations would reach the vicinity of Mars in mid-February.

Kenneth Gatland, president of the British Interplanetary Society, predicted the vehicles would try to drop television cameras and scientific instruments into the planet's cratered deserts. But Tass said only that "by means of the scientific equipment installed on board the station, Mars and its environs are to be explored and the characteristics of the interplanetary medium along the flight path are to be measured."

The news agency said at 7 p.m. EDT Wednesday the two space ships were 907,200 and 41,010 miles from the earth.

The Soviets achieved the world's only soft landing on Mars in 1971 when Mars 3 dropped an instrument package into a Martian dust storm. Television signals from the surface were received on earth for only 20 seconds, but the Russians said the package sent radio signals for three days.

In another space venture Wednesday, the Soviets launched the 57th earth satellite in their top-secret Cosmos series. Cosmos vehicles have had assignments ranging from weather observation to aerial spying and the testing of orbital bombs.

with Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz and officials of the Cost of Living Council in an attempt to dissuade the administration from continuing the beef ceiling to Sept. 12 as announced last week by President Nixon.

Most of the representatives argued that consumers are uninformed about the problems of raising, processing and retailing beef and are naive when they claim they would rather see empty shelves than higher prices.

"All the women's groups saying they would like to see empty shelves don't remember what it was like when there were empty shelves in groceries," said Frank Riccio of New York City.

Riccio, who spent the early part of the week in the Midwest trying to buy beef, added, "I had the money ready but I couldn't find beef anywhere. If I can't get supplied by Monday, eight meatcutters and 16 luggers will be laid off. What do they do?"

The packers and wholesalers said they fear that cattle producers will not ship steers to slaughterhouses until the Sept. 12 termination date of the ceiling, creating a shortage before that date and skyrocketing prices afterward.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Watergate committee voted unanimously today to challenge in court President Nixon's refusal to supply tape, recordings and documents sought for its inquiry.

"The chair recognizes that there is no precedent for litigation of this nature," Committee Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C. said. "I think this litigation is essential if we are to determine whether the President is above the law, and whether the President is immune from the duties and responsibilities of this kind that evolve upon all the other mortals that dwell in this land."

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., vice chairman of the committee, made the motion, after holding out the hope that there could yet be a compromise to avoid a constitutional showdown in court.

Ervin had read to the morning session of the Watergate committee Nixon's letter which refused to comply with two committee subpoenas demanding that he turn over the tapes and documents. But Nixon said he might turn over some documents if the committee could be specific about what it wants.

Ervin immediately rejected the Nixon response as impossible to live with.

"We are not clairvoyant," Ervin said as he opened today's committee session. "You can't identify a document you've never seen."

Ervin reiterated his call for both the tapes and all Watergate-related White House documents which Nixon previously has refused to supply on grounds that to do so would violate the doctrine of separation of powers.

"The Constitution wouldn't collapse and the heavens wouldn't fall in," if Nixon turned over the material, Ervin said.

As for the tapes, he added, "here the President of the United States has informed us that some of these recordings do have reference to the matters that we are investigating, but he can't furnish them to us because we might misconstrue them."

Nixon's letter said in response to a subpoena demanding five specific conversations with former counsel John W. Dean III that, "I must respectfully refuse to produce the recordings" for reasons cited in previous presidential statements.

"It is quite possible," Nixon added, "that there are other records in my custody that would be within the ambit of that subpoena and that I could, consistent with the public interest and my constitutional responsibilities, provide for the Select Committee."

Nixon did not specify which of the thousands of Watergate related presidential papers might be available to the panel but said, "All specific requests from the Select Committee will be carefully considered."

Nixon said that he and his staff "will cooperate with the Select Committee by making available any information and documents that can appropriately be produced."

Meanwhile, U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica announced that a hearing on the controversy over the Watergate tapes would be held promptly today.

Tobacco Steady

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — Prices held steady on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco markets today, an Associated Press survey showed.

At Waycross, an estimated average of $87 a hundred pounds was reported, compared with $85.86 a hundred Wednesday.

With 281,040 pounds sold at Waycross Wednesday, spokesmen said they expect this to be exceeded by about 40,000 pounds today.

Trading has been relatively light on most markets.

At Valdosta, today's average was estimated about $88 a hundred pounds on early sales. This was compared to $85.90 Wednesday.

At Thomasville, a high of $90 a hundred was reported. Wednesday's volume was more than 8.9 million pounds which brought an average of $85.05 for more than $7.6 million on the 28 markets. The season average was reported at $84.92 per hundred pounds.

Complains Over Discourtesies

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexei Shitikov, chairman of the Soviet Union's upper parliamentary body, says Russian lawmakers aren't treated with the proper courtesy in the United States.

Shitikov told American newsmen Wednesday that U.S. congressmen visiting Russia are met by chauffeured limousines, put up in the best hotels and generally given red carpet treatment.

Several property owners in the area expressed concern over commercial development prospects for the neighborhood and one resident questioned whether more vehicular traffic would result from the motel usage. The resident asserted that some children now have to cross the 264 Bypass to get to the school and further congestion is undesirable.

The developers of the proposed motel attended the meeting and were asked to be in attendance at next month's session to answer questions at the public hearing.

Commissioners also recommended approval of rezoning

Letter Text

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is the text of President Nixon's letter to Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee:

Dear Mr. Chairman: White House counsel have received on my behalf the two subpoenas issued by you, on behalf of the select committee on July 23.

One of these calls on me to furnish to the select committee recordings of five meetings between Mr. John Dean and myself. For the reasons stated to you in my letters of July 6 and July 23, I must respectfully refuse to produce those recordings.

The other subpoena calls on me to furnish all records of any kind relating directly or indirectly to the 'activities, participation, responsibilities or involvement' of 25 named individuals 'in any alleged criminal acts related to the presidential election of 1972.' Some of the records that might arguably fit within that subpoena are presidential papers that must be kept confidential for reasons stated in my letter of July 6.

It is quite possible that there are other records in my custody that would be within the ambit of that subpoena and that I could, consistent with the public interest and my constitutional responsibilities, provide to the select committee. All specific requests from the select committee will be carefully considered and my staff and I, as we have done in the past, will cooperate with the select committee by making available any information and documents that can appropriately be produced.

You will understand, however, I am sure, that it would simply not be feasible for my staff and me to review thousands of documents to decide which do and which do not fit within the sweeping but vague terms of the subpoena.

It continues to be true, as it was when I wrote you on July 6, that my staff is under instructions to cooperate fully with yours in furnishing information pertinent to your inquiry. I have directed that executive privilege not be invoked with regard to testimony by present and former members of my staff concerning possible criminal conduct or discussions of possible criminal conduct. I have waived the attorney-client privilege with regard to my former counsel. In my July 6 letter I described these acts of cooperation with the select committee as 'genuine, extensive and, in the history of such matters, extraordinary.' That cooperation has continued and it will continue. Executive privilege is being invoked only with regard to documents and recordings that cannot be made public consistent with the confidentiality essential to the functioning of the office of the President.

I cannot and will not consent to giving any investigatory body private presidential papers. To the extent that I have custody of other documents or information relevant to the work of the select committee and that can properly be made public, I will be glad to make these available in response to specific requests.

Sincerely, Richard Nixon.

Deans Disagree On Medical School Filling The Need

RALEIGH (AP)—Rival medical school deans clashed at a legislative hearing Wednesday over how much a new medical school would ease the doctor shortage in eastern North Carolina.

Not much, said Dr. Christopher Fordham, dean of the state's only public four-year medical school, at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill.

A great deal, said Dr. Wallace R. Woolees, dean of the medical school at East Carolina University, which would like very much to become the state system's second degree granting institution.

Both spoke at a meeting of a joint health committee of the state legislature which is investigating health care problems.

Fordham produced a chart showing the distribution of physicians in the state, and demonstrating that they are concentrated in urban areas. This problem would not be solved, he said, by building a medical school in Greenville.

That would attract doctors to Pitt County, Fordham said, but not to the surrounding counties, where the shortage is acute. There, he said, national studies have shown the shortage would remain.

Fordham said new programs were needed to get physicians to spend part of their time in rural areas. He cited UNC's Area Health Education Centers as an example.

Woolees replied that "the presence of medical schools drawing on local population and providing residency training is the best way of providing doctors in a given area."

He said, the "longer we wait, the more we compound the problem."

Meat Industry Warns Of Early Beef Shortages

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Meat industry leaders are predicting that the retention of the price ceiling on beef will create soaring prices in pork and poultry and spur black market buying of cattle.

A Brooklyn, N.Y., wholesaler who claims he will run out of meat by Monday says, "The slogan in our business has become 'black or broke,'" referring to black market sales.

A Texas meat packer who can't find steers to slaughter says, "We have three choices: close our doors, buy on the black market or continue losing money by taking a loss on dressing beef." A representative of the nation's food chain stores declares: "We are swamped with calls about beef."

An industry spokesman defined the black market as the sale of beef "out of the normal distribution channels."

About 100 representatives of producers, packers, processors and wholesalers met Wednesday in Chicago at a conference called by the American Meat Institute, a trade association of 350 packing houses.

The group asked for an immediate meeting

Program Originated To Improve Health Of Pitt County Children

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The Pitt County Community Health Department and the Pitt County Social Services Department have entered into an agreement designed to improve the health of Pitt County children.

Under a mandate of Title XIX of the Social Security Bill, effective July 1, the Social Services Department is referring one family per week to each of the four Health Department clinics for thorough physical examinations, according to Mrs. Jo Ann Smith, director of Child Services at the Social Services Department.

Doctor Is Too Busy To Care For Family

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-M. Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My mother used to say, "The shoe-maker's children always go barefoot." Now I know what she meant.

My husband is a doctor, but he is too busy to take care of his own family. I've begged him to spend a little time with our son so they can build a good father-son relationship, but he's too busy. If it's not his patients, it's hospital meetings, medical conventions or the American Medical Association.

I have complained of feeling nervous and tired for over a year now, but do I get any comfort from my husband? Not on your life. He tells me to take two aspirin and get some rest. [How can I "rest" when I have to be both mother and father to three children?] Meanwhile, he spends hours listening to other women's complaints, and they tell me how "lucky" I am to be married to such a wonderful, sympathetic, understanding man!

I have considered calling his office and scheduling an appointment with him under an assumed name just so I can talk to him for half an hour. Better yet, print this, it might help.

He reads "Dear Abby" every day, but he never has time for me.

DEAR WIFE: I hope your husband has time for ME today, or we're both out of luck.

DEAR ABBY: After our child started pre-kindergarten, his teacher said Dickie was a terrible discipline problem—he ignored her when she spoke to him, talked while the other children were talking, and she even suspected him of being retarded, or emotionally disturbed.

We took Dickie to a pediatrician who recommended that we have his hearing tested. And would you believe this child had a serious hearing problem! We never knew it until then.

We have now learned that the earlier parents are aware of a child's hearing loss, the better his chances are of responding to treatment, and-or learning to cope with his disability.

Abby, please let other parents know of our experience. I am sorry we didn't find out sooner. DICKIE'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I'm glad you wrote. Hearing loss is THE most common physical disability in the United States. For a free booklet, write to HEARING ALERT, WASHINGTON, D. C. 20007; it alerts parents to the possibility of a hearing loss in young children, and offers guidelines including what to look for, what to expect, and where to go for help.

Convention Reports Given Pilot Members

Three Pilots from the Greenville Club attended the Pilot International Convention, Boston, Mass.

Those attending were Mrs. Sue Howell, President; Mrs. Sue Smith, first vice president; and Mrs. Hilda Johnson. Each one reported on different aspects of the convention to the membership on Monday night.

Mrs. Howell reported on the changes in the by-laws and the structure of the re-organization of Pilot International.

Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Johnson reported on the fun part of the meeting including trips to Cape Cod, Salem and Maine.

All voters were urged to check their registration because some changes have been made in the election laws. These laws were passed by the 1973 General Assembly.

The Pilot International Convention will be held in Miami in 1974 and plans are being formulated to have at least four members attend.

The next meeting will be Aug. 27 at the First Federal Building with a covered dish supper at 6:30 p.m.

Sixty-six per cent of the 1972-73 California almond crop will be sold in domestic markets because demand for the product has increased. Only 55 per cent had been designated for domestic sale as of last September.

A Commitment Points The Way

Greenville's new kindergarten program will get underway this fall with funds appropriated by the state and supplementary local funds.

A program to provide three classes of 23 students was approved by the Board of Education Monday night.

The state has instituted a program of phasing in a kindergarten program over a period of years which will eventually serve all kindergarten aged children. At the outset though, funds are available for only a partial program.

Industries To Be Scrutinized

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Four major industries in North Carolina will come under close scrutiny by state and health inspectors as the state's Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) moves into action.

The four, labeled "target industries" by safety officials, include:

- Mobile home and travel trailer-camper manufacturers. North Carolina currently ranks first in the nation in this field;
- Lumber and logging operations;
- Meat packing facilities;
- Roofing and sheet metal fabricating shops.

The state list of target industries corresponds to a list compiled by the federal government, based on records of people injured or killed on jobs. The federal government also lists longshoremen as the fifth target industry, but North Carolina does not have substantial involvement in that field.

Construction

Not actually listed in fifth place as a target industry, but high on the priority list outlined by OSHA Administrator Raymond P. Boylston Jr., is trenching and digging operations in construction.

In fact, Boylston said, "Anytime my men riding down a road see a ditch being dug, they'll stop and check it out."

That attitude, in short, spells out the seriousness of this new state program which came into being July 1. Boylston, an intent and studious-looking 42 years old, joined the state program after 23 years in various aspects of manufacturing and safety inspection, including national responsibilities with the E. I. DuPont de Nemours Corporation in safety and fire protection, and as a health physicist in radiology protection at the Savannah River Plant in Aiken, S. C.

And before taking the reins as the state's top safety and health officer, he served six years as an appointive member of the Labor Department's safety advisory board.

39 Inspectors

The Occupational Safety and Health Act applies stringent standards to almost all business operations in the state, provides for 39 full-time inspectors stationed across the state to enforce the rules, and contains penalties for violators. Areas of concern range from wiring to dust; from food vending machines to bathroom facilities.

Also, the office in Raleigh has a 24-hour telephone for reporting on-the-job fatalities or accidents resulting in hospitalization of five or more employees. State law requires employers to file a report in such cases within 48 hours, and also required employers to keep, and post during February of each year, an annual report on accidents so that employees can see how many have taken place, and what might be causing them.

Employer concern for safety is a major part of the state's new program, Boylston said, and many local inspections will be made because of employee complaints.

"Any employee can contact the State Department of Labor, and we will determine the need for an investigation through our safety inspectors around the state. We are now averaging one complaint a week—not as many as we anticipated, and I believe the number will increase," Boylston said.

A complaining employee is protected from firing or harassment by the employer, he added.

With 39 official inspectors across the state, Boylston listed the priorities for making inspections in local businesses:

1. A safety officer will immediately go on the scene anytime a fatality occurs, or an accident sends five or more workers to a hospital;
2. Following up legitimate complaints from employees;
3. Visiting those "target industries" where a bad safety record prompts attention;
4. General inspection based on personal knowledge of the inspector that conditions at a firm need attention.

Funding

The new state program is funded at the level of $1.5 million, half by the state, and half federally.

The law provides official status to the inspectors, and they are charged with the responsibility of noting and reporting any safety of health violation anytime they happen to see one. They are permitted access by the law, and can levy penalties, if approved of officials in Raleigh; ranging from $25 to $1,000 "based on the seriousness of the problem and the number of people exposed to possible injury," Boylston said.

Current penalties, he added, range from $25 to $50, but if an employer does not move to correct the problem speedily, a penalty of $100 per day can be imposed—for each item.

But while inspectors must record and report any violation they see, Boylston is providing a team of consultants who will come into a business on invitation to help spot violations and recommend correction—without issuing a citation

For Greenville this meant that an allocation of $47,705 was made. This would have provided for two classes at $17,943 each with a surplus of $11,820. Greenville had the option of housing two classes and returning the surplus $11,820 or supplementing with $6,120 to provide for a third class. The board's decision was to provide the additional funds for the third class.

It is possible that, as other school units return, funds more state money will be available to reduce the local share of the cost. However, the local commitment has been made for funding the third class and we think this was a decision in the public interest.

The state-and-local-financed kindergarten is in addition to the kindergarten program for about 200 students carried out at Agnes Fullilove School with Title I funds.

Two of the state and local financed kindergartens will be located at Wahl-Coates School and one at Elmhurst. The three classes we understand, are already full and there are applicants for the classes who will not be able to get in.

There is an obvious need and demand for kindergartens and we are glad to see this long awaited program get underway. It is regrettable that enough funds are not available this year to provide for all children of kindergarten age, but the city school board has done all it can to stretch the available funds.

Portent Of Good Leaf Sales In Week Ahead

The excellent beginning of sales on the Border, South Carolina and Georgia-Florida tobacco markets or portends a good opening on the big Eastern Belt next week.

Prices on those markets were running ahead of last year's. Since quality of leaf is considered good in our area there is no reason why record breaking prices should not be recorded when Greenville and Rocky Mount open for sales Tuesday.

It should be a bright year for the tobacco farmer.

Mike Mullins In The Senate?

By JOHN KILGO

CHARLOTTE — Mike Mullins, 32 years old, Republican and obviously in love with politics, says: "In politics, I can't think of any job better than being a U. S. Senator."

The rookie senator from Mecklenburg says it'll take something drastic to keep him out of the U. S. Senate campaign next year.

It's unlikely that many people outside Mecklenburg County know much about Mike Mullins. The attorney made his first run at public office last year and got in on the Republican landslide in Mecklenburg, winning a two-year term to represent the people of Mecklenburg and Cabarrus counties.

Controversy flowed him around his first session in the Legislature. Shortly after Gov. Jim Holshouser appeared before the General Assembly to urge the body not to slash taxes, Sen. Mullins introduced a bill to repeal the soft-drink tax.

Republicans in the Legislature were taken back by Mullins' move, even though Gov. Holshouser was to urge repeal of the tax several months later.

Mullins is also the man who cast the vital vote against Equal Rights Amendment in the State Senate.

He says towards the end of the last legislative session some Republicans asked him to give serious consideration to running for the U. S. Senate next year.

"Running for the U. S. Senate is something I've always wanted to do," Mullins says. "And you don't get many chances to make the race. We know how much work we'll have to do and how much money it'll take. We figure the campaign will take between $600,000 and $800,000."

Mullins says no one has "Dropped any money on the table" for him at this early date, and he's not independently wealthy. But he has faith the money will come.

People close to Mullins say they've been assured that Congressman Jim Broyhill will not seek the Senate nomination. They also say only two other people in the state could keep Mullins out of the race by getting on the ticket, they being Sen. Hamilton Horton of Winston-Salem, and Charles Joans Jr. of Charlotte.

Most people feel Horton and Jonas Jr. have decided not to make the Senate campaign, though that could change in coming months.

Mullins says he believes the Democrats will have a "heated primary for the Senate. They'll beat on each and get mad. I believe a Republican can win in North Carolina next year."

Mullins also believes Sen. Sam Ervin's role in Watergate has caused resentment among many North Carolinians.

"I know I resent what he's doing," Mullins said. "He's badgering witnesses something terrible. Sometime you can get more out of people by being nice to them."

Mullins says it's too early to tell what the issues will be in the next Senate race. He says, however, if he runs against Sen. Ervin "age will definitely be an issue and I think rightfully so."

Mullins says his lack of identification around the state doesn't bother him at this stage.

"You become known after you get into the campaign," he says. "No one knew Skipper Bowles when he started running for Governor but they did when the campaign was over. The media, plus your own advertising, will make you known to the people of North Carolina."

BEHIND IRON DOORS

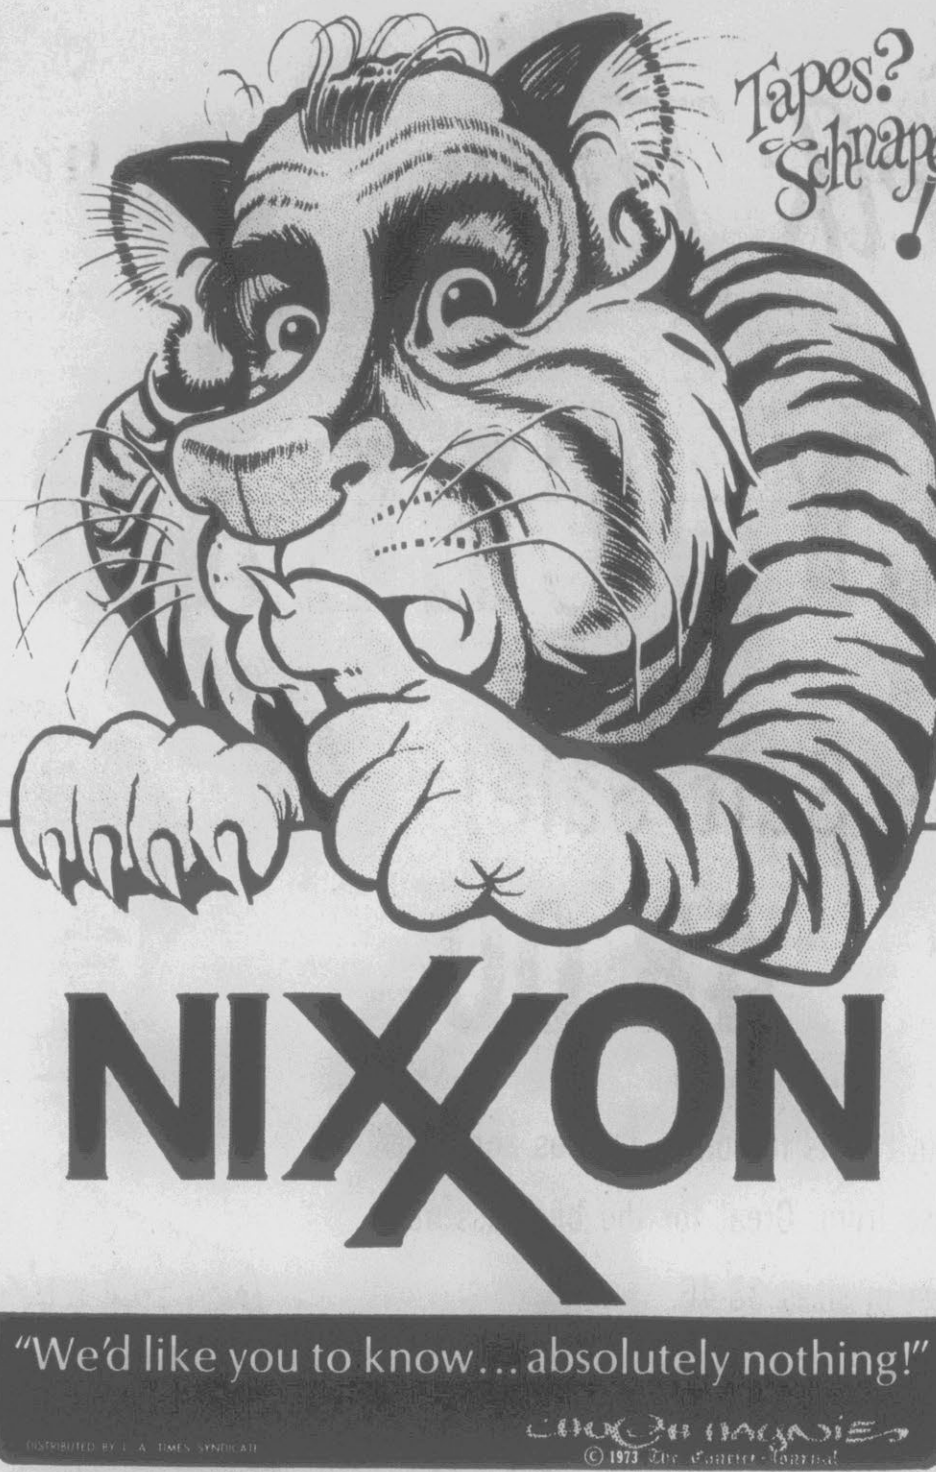

John Bunyan, author of Pilgrim's Progress and a rebel against the established English church of his day, was imprisoned because of his unauthorized preaching. As he was being led into his cell he was calm and serene because, as he wrote later he knew that he carried the peace of God along with him and therefore "went away to prison with God's comfort on my poor soul."

Those jail doors behind which Bunyan was locked for twelve years have been preserved, and people looking upon them have been impressed by the fact that no prison doors, no matter how strong they are, can imprison a free soul. While in his cell Bunyan wrote several books which have brought spiritual inspiration to millions of people, in addition being models of English style.

There are people who have lain for years on invalid's beds yet who have revealed by their calm demeanor that they carried the peace of God beyond the prison doors of pain. Their souls, like Bunyan's are really free.

A Face-Saving Proposal

WASHINGTON—Richard Nixon has painted himself into a corner on these matters of "executive privilege" and "separation of powers." A way has to be found for him to paint himself back out.

This is not merely for the good of Mr. Nixon and the good of his party; these particular fringe benefits have something less than universal appeal. It is simply for the good of the country that the President discover some face saving way to save his own face. He is the only president we have, or likely will have, until January of 1977; the Gallup Poll finds that 49 percent of the people now disapprove of his conduct of the office; and this is no way to run a railroad.

In refusing to turn over certain tapes and documents to the Senate investigating committee, or to a grand jury, the President conceives that he is acting out of pure principle. He is fulfilling his "constitutional obligation to preserve intact the powers and prerogatives of the presidency." To yield the papers would "jeopardize the fundamental constitutional role of the presidency."

But the trouble with this position—one trouble with it—is that the people generally will not see it as pure principle. They will see it as pure executive privilege is as pietistically misty, in its way, as the doctrine of the Holy Trinity, and political metaphysicians are no better than doctors of theology at explaining it. A president presumably has the Fourth Amendment right of any other citizen to be secure in his papers against unreasonable search and seizure, but any additional right of privacy has to be inferred from long custom and from extra-constitutional theory.

It is useless, I submit, for Mr. Nixon to keep trying to sell this bill of goods. He is up against a natural, understandable, and justifiable line of reasoning, to this effect: If the tapes helped to establish his innocence in the Watergate mess, the President would release them; the President refuses to release them; therefore, the tapes would not help to establish his innocence.

The President cannot escape such an inference. He is in roughly the position of a witness who declines to answer questions on the Fifth Amendment ground that truthful answers might tend to incriminate him. Such a refusal doubtless is based upon a proper constitutional right, but its exercise lays down a spoor of guilt. The President's present position is politically untenable. It must be discreetly abandoned.

Why now? Let me venture a modest proposal. The President's objection is to be (Continued On Page 5)

Comparing U.S. With Others

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Statistically speaking, the living standard in the United States surpasses that in other countries.

Americans have more cars, telephones, television, appliances and such per person. Per capita income is the highest, although Sweden isn't far behind.

But other industrial nations not only are catching up but also can show statistical superiority in some areas.

Figures compiled by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development show that the German jobless rate is less than one per cent, compared with a five per cent U.S. average. In fact, the group's midyear economic outlook shows that Canada and the United States most likely would be happy to exchange their jobless rates with many of the 22 other member nations.

The rates for other countries—based on three-month averages ending, because of differences in compilation time, between February and May—are: Canada 5.4, Japan 1.4, Australia 1.6, France 2.1, Italy 3.5, United Kingdom 2.5, Belgium 2.2, Netherlands 3.1, Finland 2.5 and Sweden 1.7.

Also the people of many other nations save much more of their take-home pay than Americans do.

The Japanese lead the world by saving more than 20 per cent of their disposable income. Close behind are the Italians, who in 1972 put away 18.6 per cent of their income.

In contrast, Canadians last year saved 8.5 per cent of disposable income, and Americans put away seven per cent. However, the American wage rate is much higher than in many other countries. Americans therefore might save the same amount in dollars but a smaller amount in terms of percentages.

One area in which the United States shows clear superiority over many other nations is in restraining consumer prices. Inflation is now far worse in several European countries and in Japan.

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

It is easier to rehabilitate women than men mental patients, a study by the University of Missouri at St. Louis has revealed. The chief reason, the study found, was that in returning to society men were expected to work at a job outside the home while most women could return to the less demanding role of housekeeping.

If you had all the gold in the world, how much storage space would you need? Well, it would cover a good-sized football stadium only a little more than a foot deep. And where is all that gold? Three-fifths of new supplies of gold are used by industry, chiefly to make jewelry. Some goes to dentists, but most of the rest is absorbed by hoarders and speculators throughout the world.

Persistence still pays. A survey by the National Retail Dry Goods Association found that 48 per cent of salesmen quit after making one unsuccessful call on a customer. But the survey also concluded that 88 per cent of the business went to the 12 per cent of salesman who made at least three or more calls.

The romantic singing gondoliers who ply the odorous 170 canals of Venice are going ... going ... but not quite gone. At one time there were more than 10,000 of these watergoing troubadors, but now there are fewer than 500. It costs about $3,000 to buy and decorate a hand-turned gondola. Most of the canals' passenger and cargo traffic is now carried by "stinkpots"—motorized craft.

Howard Lee Encouraged

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Mayor Howard N. Lee, North Carolina's only black mayor, says that talks with state Democratic leaders have given him some encouragement on the possibility of becoming a candidate for lieutenant governor in 1976.

Lee said in an interview that he talked last weekend with a number of people at the Democratic fund raising festival at Atlantic Beach. He added that he found "certain amounts of open mindedness" about his possible candidacy without anyone actually committing himself.

Lee, 38, in his second term as Chapel Hill's mayor, described the Atlantic Beach talks as purely speculative, since the general election is three years away.

He said he definitely would run for re-election as mayor in November. He said, if re-elected, his term would expire in 1975, which would give him ample time to mount a campaign for lieutenant governor.

Lee serves as director of human development at Duke University in Durham. He was the first black in history to become mayor of Chapel Hill, home of the University of North Carolina.

questioned by a Senate committee or by a grand jury. He is unwilling to set a precedent by which the executive may be coerced into surrendering its records to a coordinate body of government. Well and good. But suppose, to be supposing, that a way could be found for him to make these records available to an intermediate body with power to act as it deems best.

Specifically, suppose the President were to create an ad hoc committee of White House trustees. Such a body might include Arthur Krock, the most respected retired journalist in America, and former Sen. John Williams of Delaware, a gentleman whose integrity shines like a lighthouse. It might include such respected figures from law, journalism and public affairs as Earl Warren, George Reedy, Dean Rusk, retired Circuit Judge Albert Bryan, and Publisher John Knight.

Such trustees, chosen to command public confidence, would be remote from political partisanship and from constitutional inhibitions. The President could make all the relevant tapes and documents available to them without jeopardizing his constitutional position. The trustees then could transcribe, summarize, include, exclude, suppress or disclose as they wished; and my guess is that a public which is fed to the teeth with Watergate would accept the trustees' report, with relief, as an honest accounting.

This modest proposal is entirely my own. Others may have much better ideas for resolving the dilemma. My point is that the dilemma must be resolved. The President has 1,274 days, more or less, before his term expires. Many millions of Americans, the Gallup Poll notwithstanding, do have confidence in Richard Nixon; they believe in his programs and want to see him fulfill them; and they do not want their President spending those days under a cloud of skepticism and mistrust.

Concept Of 'Legalized Crime' Advanced In Watergate Case

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate testimony has produced a new concept: legalized crime.

That sums up the theses advanced by former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman and his lawyer in defending the office burglary of a psychiatrist who had treated Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg. Ehrlichman's lawyer, John J. Wilson, outlined in great detail an argument under which illegal acts are legal, if ordered by a president for the sake of national security against foreign intelligence operations.

61-Year-Old

Need Is Filled

HAWKINS, Tex. (UPI) — The Moody Foundation of Galveston and the Hobbitt Foundation of Dallas each donated $50,000 to drill an adequate water well for Jarvis Christian College. Dr. John Paul Jones, Jarvis president, said the college has had a water problem throughout its 61-year history.

Said Wilson:

"There is no one in this room who can assert with categorical certainty that the President of the United States does not have the constitutional power to cause the entry under what would be otherwise illegal circumstances in pursuit of foreign intelligence."

Hence, said Wilson, a president does have such powers.

Ehrlichman has testified he did not authorize the 1971 burglary. He said that to his knowledge the President did not. Nixon has said that had he known of it, he would have disapproved.

So it was not clear why Wilson went to such lengths to claim sanction for the Ellsberg operation on the grounds that a president has a reservoir of power to authorize such actions.

CHOICE FOR JUDGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has announced he is nominating Deputy Atty. Gen. Joseph T. Sneed to be a judge of the U.S. Circuit Court in San Francisco. Sneed is a former dean of the Duke University Law School.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, disputed the general claim of such presidential power and said that in the Ellsberg case there was no relationship between burglarizing a psychiatrist's office and foreign intelligence.

"I think that the emissaries that were sent out there for the plumbers to try to steal the doctor's notes were domestic subversion, and not in the defense of this country against foreign intelligence activities," he said.

Charges against Ellsberg for taking and leaking the secret Pentagon Papers were dismissed May 11 after disclosure of the burglary and government wiretapping.

The argument went to a key question in the Watergate scandal: Where does the power of a government, and of a president end?

Ervin said the President has only the powers expressly provided by the Constitution and not, as Wilson appeared to be claiming, authority in any area not forbidden to him.

Ervin quoted William Pitt the Elder on the sanctity of the humblest cottage in England against intrusion by the king. "And yet we are told here today what the kind of England can't do the President of the United States can," he said.

Connally Departure May Indicate Staff's Instability

Connally May Turn To The Political Hustings

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — John B. Connally is expected to hit the hustings to earn his credentials as a Republican this fall, his political popularity apparently undimmed by a short and frustrating stint as presidential adviser.

He's been getting 10 to 60 requests to speak a week and he promises to start accepting at least some of them, a Texas GOP official said.

Connally's friends are delighted he's out of what they considered an unwanted job as a public, rather than private, adviser to President Nixon.

"He's got the best of two worlds now—loyalty to the President and distance from him," said one confidant.

When Connally switched from the Democratic to the Republican party last spring, his plan was to keep out of the limelight until fall, when he would start making political appearances.

He accepted a part-time, unpaid job as an adviser to Nixon on. Connally reportedly blames White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler for fouling up this arrangement by making a public announcement of it.

Ultimately, according to his friends, he was frozen out of intimate access to Nixon after he told the President bluntly he ought to speak out on Watergate and make more appearances around the country.

The brief White House notice about Connally's resignation Wednesday said nothing about differences between the Texan and Nixon, noting only that he was leaving to take a postponed round-the-world trip.

And Connally wasn't talking, having had his say a month ago when, in a White House news conference, he acknowledged he had given all the advice he had.

"He came out with a net plus from this," one friend said.

Nixon and Connally apparently terminated their official relationship still close personal friends and, as GOP Chairman George Bush said Wednesday, "I think people in the GOP respect Connally for his standing by the President."

In a recent Harris poll, Connally ranked only behind Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., as a strong challenger to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, the leading Democratic presidential candidate for the 1976 elections.

Connally was well ahead of California Gov. Ronald Reagan, vice President Spiro T. Agnew and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in the poll.

His friends are convinced he will seek the nomination, with the fall speech-making the first effort toward it.

They also are urging him to set up an informal campaign organization, which he has refused to do.

District Session Begins Saturday

ROCKY MOUNT—District Union Meeting No. 4 of the North East "B" division of conference will convene at the St. Augusta Free Will Baptist Church Saturday and Sunday.

After a business session at 6 p.m. Saturday, the 8 p.m. service will be conducted by the Rev. West Shields. Music will be presented by the St. Augusta Choir.

about the stability of the entourage the President put together following Watergate-related resignations.

There is persistent speculation here that Melvin R. Laird, former congressman and defense secretary, is not entirely pleased as successor to John D. Ehrlichman and may quit as Nixon's top domestic policy adviser.

Laird, who said at the outset he planned to stay only a year, promises to remain on the job "as long as I can do some good." He has helped work out several major compromises between the White House and Congress but it is known that Nixon has not been adopting all of his advice.

Connally, whose resignation was announced by Nixon Wednesday, also found Nixon unresponsive to some of his counsel and, unlike Laird, felt he had no meaningful job to perform in his part-time, unpaid status as a special adviser.

Connally, former Democratic governor of Texas and secretary of the treasury during Nixon's first term, plans to rejoin his Houston law firm Monday.

Connally, who turned Republican a few days before joining the Nixon staff on May 10 also had complained privately about lack of ready access to the President.

Coincidentally, reports now circulate among Laird's former colleagues at the Capitol that he feels a bit cut off. Publicly, Laird says he has all the access to Nixon that he needs.

Unlike most Nixon aides, present and departed, Laird and Connally are professional politicians. They are strong-minded men, if asked for advice, tend to lay it on the line.

Laird was quickly rebuffed by Nixon after he, like Connally, suggested Ronald L. Ziegler be removed as chief White House spokesman because of Ziegler's identification with misleading and erroneous information given newsmen about the Watergate scandal.

Actually, Ziegler has emerged from the Watergate morass w094 stronger ties to Nixon than before and with a much broader role as presidential confidant. Ziegler now ranks with foreign policy assistant Henry A. Kissinger and staff coordinator Alexander M. Haig Jr. as one of the big three on the White House staff.

Although signs of greater openness have been fleeting, Nixon seemingly has made an effort to engage department chiefs more deeply in the decision-making process, and he has reached some significant accommodations with Congress. But Connally has said he really doesn't expect Nixon to change his way of doing business. He told a June 20 news conference:

"I think it will continue to be a continuing style of his operation, the delegation of enormous authority to other people. That is the way he operates. That is the way he is. I don't think you are going to change him or I am going to change him or anybody else is going to change him. You have to take him for what he is..."

ZAP, N.D. (AP) — Albert Beck works for a coal mining company on a dirt road 1,500 miles from the Watergate hearings in Washington.

He likes the hearings.

Ralph Brenner repairs automobiles.

He is sick of the whole Watergate story.

Norman Fuchs is a politician. He says he has lost money because of Watergate.

They all live in Zap, a dot in the middle of the North Dakota prairie, about 60 miles from Bismarck.

But regardless of their feelings, the 270 people who live in Zap are well aware of what's going on in Washington these days.

"I watch every minute of the hearings I can," Beck said. "I feel there's nothing wrong with the truth. I think they should get to the truth no matter what."

"I'm tired of hearing about it," Brenner said, from under the pickup truck on which he was working. "We're wasting a lot of money. I don't think there's anything to be gained if Nixon's involved and they put somebody else in there."

Hippo Being Led By A Goat

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Police dispatchers are accustomed to unusual telephone calls, especially in the wee small hours after the bars close.

So when a police dispatcher received a call early today from a rather timid-sounding woman who said she had just seen a goat leading a hippopotamus down a highway, he routinely sent a patrol car to check the report.

The matter became more than routine when the patrol car verified the call and asked for additional units.

The 4,000-pound creature and the goat had gotten loose from their enclosures at Tule Springs Park north of Las Vegas and were walking into the desert along Tonopay Highway.

Officers enticed the goat back to its pen at the park and the hippo meekly followed.

Dr. W.L. Jones and choir of Mount Calvary Free Will Baptist church of Greenville will render service at English Chapel Free Will Baptist Church Sunday at 8 p.m.

Larry Aipperspach leaned on a tractor in Brenner's garage. "Oh, the Republicans just got caught this year," said the ranch hand. "The way it sounds, the press is out to get him. Still, they did something wrong, so something's got to be done."

Fuchs, mayor of the community and also its postmaster, said the hearings should never have been public.

"If it went to a jury now, how could they get a fair trial?" he said. He said his investments and stocks had dropped in value since Watergate became a national issue.

Some of Zap's residents said they kept track of the hearings by television, but several housewives said they had stopped watching them and had gone back to soap operas.

LENOIR, N.C. (AP)—The Carolina Opry, a country and western music center five miles south of Lenoir, was damaged by fire early today.

The Opry is a cement block building on U.S. 321.

The Caldwell County Sheriff's Department said it received a report of the fire at 2:49 a.m.

The cause of the fire was not immediately determined.

Federal Govm't To Appeal Cambodia Bomb Ban

By BERNARD COHEN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The federal government has filed a notice of appeal to overturn a court decision that calls the U.S. bombing of Cambodia unconstitutional and orders it halted.

Hours after the ruling was announced Wednesday, U.S. Atty. Robert A. Morse said appeal papers were being prepared and that he would seek a stay of the order that takes effect Friday. He said the case would be carried to the Supreme Court if necessary.

In Washington, the White House had no immediate comment.

The permanent injunction against bombing and other military activities in Cambodia was issued by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Orrin G. Judd in a suit brought by Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y. and three Air Force fliers.

Judd said that because Congress had never voted its approval, the government lacked the necessary authority "to order military forces into combat in Cambodia or to release bombs over Cambodia."

Rep. Holtzman, a freshman Congresswoman, said in Washington that she was "extraordinarily pleased" by the decision.

"It reasserts the constitutional requirement that no American lives can be risked and that no American taxpayer's dollars can go to a military effort that has not been approved or authorized by Congress," she said.

The unprecedented decision came exactly three weeks before the Aug. 15 date by which President Nixon previously agreed to stop the bombing raids after both houses of Congress voted to cut off funds.

One effect of Judd's order, according to a lawyer for the American Civil Liberties Union, which represented the plaintiffs, might be the dismissal of cases against persons facing courts-martial for refusing to bomb Cambodia.

The lawyer, Burt Neuberger, cited the case of Air Force Capt. Donald E. Dawson, who is under charges for refusing to fly bombing missions over Cambodia on June 19 and 20.

In arguing against the suit on July 6, the government claimed that the Cambodia operations were "part and parcel of a war that has continued for many years. Now one phase of that war is continuing."

In his 36-page memorandum on the basis for the decision, Judd said the question was not the one put by the government, "but whether Congress has authorized bombing in Cambodia after the withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam and the release of prisoners of war."

"The Congressional action before and after the beginning of hostilities in Cambodia does not include authorization to bomb Cambodia in order to achieve a Cambodian cease-fire or even to protect the Vietnam cease-fire as urged by the defendants."

Deadline On Well-Bidding

FARMVILLE—August 7 is the deadline for bids on two new wells, a 500,000-gallon above-ground storage tank, and lines to serve areas near Farmville not previously provided for by the town water supply.

Contracts hopefully will be let soon after the deadline, Town Administrator W. A. Martin said.

A grant of $243,000 has been received from the Economic Development Agency, as has another of $117,881 from the North Carolina Clean Water Bond Issue. The town will provide the remainder by the issuance of bonds already approved by the voters, probably in the neighborhood of $140,000. The vote was for up to $150,000 issuance of bonds.

One of the new wells is to be located several hundred yards north of Joyner's Crossroads; the other on Highway 264 west.

Areas to be served by the new lines include State Road 121, State Road 1221, and State Road 1200 (Stantonsburg Road) 3700 feet toward Highway 258 and several miles toward Greenville; the Pecan Grove subdivision, and the Collins and Aikman area.

'Singspiration' Slated Saturday

A singspiration will be held Saturday night at 7:30 at the Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church.

The program will feature the Centurions of Fayetteville and the Christinaires of Vanceboro.

The pastor, Rev. Lotis Joyner, invites the public to attend.

Say Brakes Applied On Housing Industry

MOBILE, Ala., (AP)—Southern savings and loan executives have warned that the housing industry is being brought to a "screeching halt" by the loosening of interest limits on savings accounts.

The warning was issued Wednesday as savings and loan officials met here to study the effects of the action by the Federal Reserve Board and the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

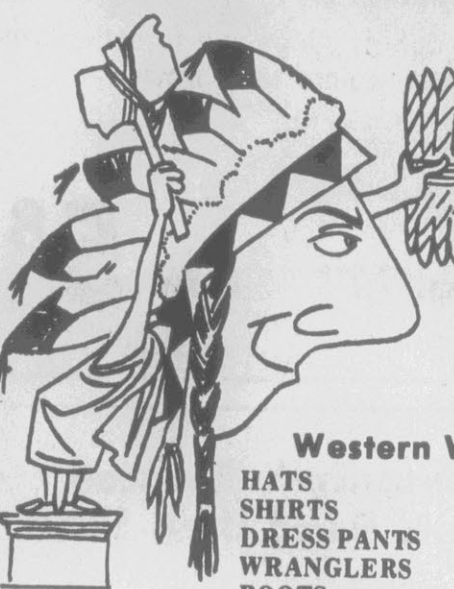

In a statement issued by Bob Dudley Smith, executive vice president of the Tennessee Savings and Loan League of Nashville, the group declared that the sudden raising of the interest limit on savings accounts, and certificates of deposit had brought chaos to the industry.

"The resulting increased cost of the savings dollar will be directly reflected in the further compounding of the already existing problems of increasing costs of housing for the American public," the statement said.

"It will make it virtually impossible for savings and loan associations to operate a mortgage lending service in many states where usury laws of 8 per cent and less make the cost of the raw material (money) in many instances as high or higher than the legally permitted selling price," the statement continued.

The savings executives represented savings and loan leagues in Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, North Carolina and Tennessee.

Holshouser On Mountain Tour

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Gov. Jim Holshouser starts a three day tour of the mountain region of North Carolina today, during which he plans to visit with citizens in courthouses, make some speeches and attend an outdoor drama.

Holshouser will visit eight county seats, holding "People's Day" in each for several hours.

During these visits, Holshouser meets privately with citizens at large on a first come, first served basis.

He was scheduled to stop at the Haywood County courthouse in Waynesville this morning, then speak to a conference of senior citizens in Lake Junaluska.

This afternoon, Holshouser was to be at the Jackson County courthouse in Sylva, then at the Cherokee Indian reservation.

Tonight, he is scheduled to attend "Unto These Hills," the outdoor drama produced by the tribe.

His schedule for Friday includes the Swain County courthouse in Bryson City; the Graham County courthouse in Robbinsville; a plant dedication in Robbinsville; and the Cherokee County courthouse in Murphy.

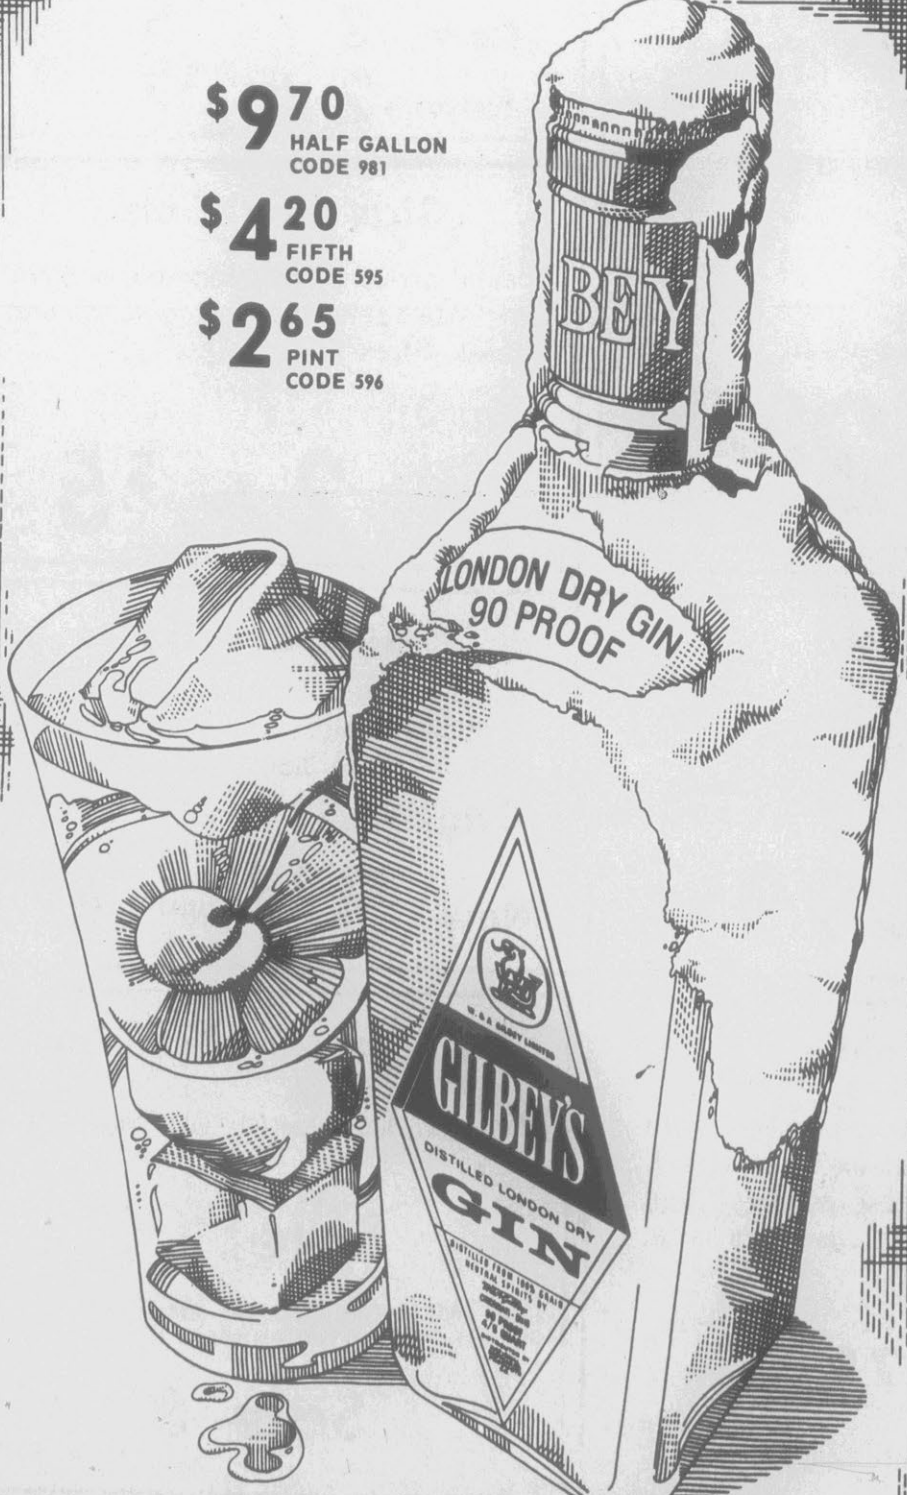

Wednesday night, Holshouser began his western tour by telling the Association of Community Colleges that their leaders had done well in seeking budget reforms.

He said all of state government should work to give taxpayers full value for the dollars they send to Raleigh.

Who Says These Twin Girls Can't Play Baseball?

By CATHY STEELE
Associated Press Writer
HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — Who says girls can't play baseball? This year a lot of people have been saying it loud and clear, notably the national Babe Ruth League and Little League organizations. But the YMCA hasn't said it yet, and their silence has put a pair of pert identical twins on the field in the Catawba County YMCA Youth League this year for the first time.

Laura Canrobert plays catcher for the Phillies and her sister Louise reported with a giggle, "I play anything I can." The pair bugged their parents for years about playing baseball. "Every summer it's been 'Why can't we play ball?'" Mrs. Shirley Canrobert said.

"I want to be on a real team and wear a real uniform," was the plea the twins' mother said she heard constantly from her daughters, now 12 years old. Their two big brothers got to wear uniforms and go to bat for a team, and why, they wanted to know, couldn't they.

"We were dragged to baseball games when our brothers were playing," Laura said, "and we just wanted to play."

This spring they decided to give it a try. They showed up for the Youth League tryouts along with 33 boys and both made the Phillies, one of five teams in the league. If an occasional giggle is distracting, it doesn't show up in performance on the field. The team is in first place, with a 4-1 record.

"The boys on the team have taken it real great," Mrs. Canrobert said. "It was kind of uneasy the first few games, but they've accepted them."

Phillies coach Gene Jarrett confirmed the girls are doing "just fine" and said having the only girls in the league on his team hasn't caused any trouble.

There apparently is one junior chauvinist in the picture, but the girls chivalrously declined to identify the teammate.

"One boy gets mad and asks 'how come them girls get to do everything,'" the twins reported. Jarrett explained he has more than nine players on the team, so someone has to sit out. The coach said one boy doesn't understand why he should be on the bench while the ladies are out there slugging.

When asked if there was anything the boys on the team do better, Louise responded quickly: "Nothin'." Then she hesitated and admitted slowly, "Well...some can hit better." She's had two hits in five games.

Jarrett acknowledged that hitting isn't Louise's strong point, but said, "She's a real good fielder." She's pitched once, but usually holds down third base or center field. Catcher Laura has had two triples and said she's really trying hard for a homer.

Bill Fleming, physical director at the Catawba County YMCA, said there was never a rule against girls playing baseball, but the twins were the first ones to try out.

"This is the first year we have had any girls who expressed willingness to play," Fleming said. He said the league had taken the whole thing calmly.

The young Canroberts' future ball playing careers are uncertain, because the Youth League is only for 11 and 12 year olds. When asked if they would be playing next year, one twin replied, "I don't know if we can, because we'll be 13, so it would be Babe Ruth. And one girl got turned down."

The girl she was referring to was 13-year-old Yvonne Burch of Concord, who made the South Cabarrus Optimist Babe Ruth team this season. She played right field in several games until the national Babe Ruth headquarters got wind of it and passed down the official ruling: boys only.

The National Organization of Women (NOW) is getting ready to fight for Yvonne, but Laura and Louise seem resigned to the fact that they'll only wear their uniforms one season.

Eleven-year-old Tam Mangum of Monroe had no tuck when her parents tried for a court ruling to allow her to play on the Monroe Little League team. A Superior Court Judge in Rockingham said he had no jurisdiction in the case, since it was national rules that bumped Tam from the Orioles first string.

Mrs. Canrobert said Laura and Louise are "happier than they've ever been," and she and her husband, Dr. C. W. Canrobert, are delighted the girls are getting to play. "It's great," she said, "because our kids grow up too fast anyway."

She said Canrobert, a dentist in Conover, see lots of young girls in his work. "And he's glad his girls aren't wearing mini-skirts and eye shadow yet," she said.

Nevertheless Mrs. Canrobert indicated the family doesn't plan to fight Babe Ruth next year over the issue.

Unless a few changes come out of national offices, it looks as if Laura and Louise will be back in the bleachers cheering for their brothers before they know it.

Charge Five Hired Killer

NEW YORK (AP)—Five young Coast Guardsmen, including 19-year-old Timothy L. Keen of West Columbia, S.C., have been accused of hiring a man to kill an investigator looking into whether they were trafficking in narcotics.

They were arrested Wednesday and held in bail of $50,000 each.

Keen and two of the others were arrested in a Greenwich Village restaurant after they were said to have handed $100 down payment to an FBI agent posing as a killer for hire. The agent said he taped their conversation.

"This was not a prank, money did change hands," Asst. U.S. Atty. Thomas Edwards said at a bond hearing. "And the money was a down payment on a larger sum as part of this planned assassination."

Edwards told U.S. Magistrate Charles Hartenstine that the defendants were not major narcotics operators, but traffickers in small quantities of LSD, marijuana and cocaine.

The Coast Guard said the narcotics probe had been underway since last month, and that a Coast Guard investigator was the target of the alleged murder conspiracy.

The five were charged with conspiracy to commit murder, which carries a maximum prison term of 15 years upon conviction, and conspiracy to prevent a Coast Guard agent from performing his duties, with a six-year maximum.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were steady Wednesday. Supplies were barely adequate to short and demand was good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 78.73; medium whites 71.72, small whites 54.43.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina hogs are $2.00 to $3.50 higher today. Tops of 51.00-51.50 at Rocky Mount; 50.50-51.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 49.50-51.00 Wilson and High Falls; 48.50-49.50 Kinston, New Bern, Benson and Lumberton; 52.50 Mt. Olive; 52.00 Salisbury; 55.00 Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Pine Level, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Chadbourn, Ayden and Laurinburg.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Prices sharply stronger today, with supplies short and demand good. Weights desirable. The N.C. f.o.b. dock weighted average price for less than trucklot sales of sized plant Grade A broilers to be picked up at docks next week is 59.03 cents per pound.

North Carolina hens: Market tone stronger. Trading too limited to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit takers moved into the stock market today after it had eight days of upward momentum, sending prices slightly to the downside.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was down 0.75 at 932.27. Declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange held a narrow edge over advances, which had been ahead near the opening.

The Dow blue-chip indicator, which had closed up 14.30 Wednesday, had gained more than 46 points in the eight days of higher prices. It had advanced nearly 63 points since after the July 4 holiday.

Goodyear, up 1/4 at 23%, was the Big Board volume leader, followed by Texaco, Inc., down 1/4 at 34; American Airlines, up 1/4 at 11; and Texas Gulf, up 1/4 at 26%.

Syntex was the American Stock Exchange volume leader, down 3/4 at 99%.

The Big Board's broadly based index of some 1,500 common stocks was down 0.18 at 58.27, while the Amex price-change index was down .01 at 23.50.

request by Pat Thomas for some 3.5 acres of land located east of the Greenville Golf and County Club and adjacent to Country Club Apartments. Thomas said that the land, if rezoned from R-15 to R-6, would be developed with condominiums that would sell in the $50,000 to $80,000 range.

Thomas, representing Southeastern Construction Co., said that some 25 condominiums would be built at a project cost of about $1.5 million. He noted that he has commitments from ten families who indicated that they would be ready now to buy units.

Thomas said that he planned to take the matter before the board of Greenville Golf and Country Club to discuss the proposal and hear the views of the club as well as discuss the project with property owners in the area.

He pointed out that if he finds the project is objectionable to the country club and other property owners, he will abandon the idea and pursue the development of the area with homes.

Approval of a request for rezoning of a portion of the Ione-Hooker-Marshburn property, located next to Coastal Refrigeration Co. on Hooker Road, from R-6 to Downtown Commercial Fringe was recommended.

David Woodard, who owns the property that has some 132 feet frontage on Hooker Road, said that he plans to build and open Woodard Tile Co. on the site.

Holliday noted that a zoning line running from the Tucker Subdivision does not follow a straight course in the area of the Woodard property and actually the land should not be included in the R-6 zoning.

Commissioners agreed to work with Dillon Watson and Phillip Carroll on a study plan for an addition to the Easthaven Subdivision. The addition would be located just north of the 14th Street Extended.

Watson, pointing out that the plans are "preliminary to the preliminary," said that he is seeking the assistance of the board in an effort to see if the proposed plan is feasible.

The concern now is over the exact route of a proposed northward extension of Brownlea Drive, as shown in a thoroughfare plan for the city, through Tenth and Fifth Streets and eventually to First Street. The street would not be built by the developers, it was noted, but its location would affect the development of the addition to the subdivision.

No action was taken on a Preliminary Plat for Section 1 of North River Estates since a required checklist was not completed by the developers. The matter will be on the agenda for next month's meeting.

Recommendation for approval of two requests for rezoning were made at the Joint-City County Planning and Zoning Commission meeting held prior to the city session.

Commissioners recommended that property owned by W. J. Simmons out on the south side of Mumford Road be rezoned from RA-20 to Highway Commercial. Simmons plans to operate a metal specialty shop on the site, he noted.

The 1.1 acre lot is in the same area of the old Barrus Construction site, it was pointed out, and is some 1,000 feet beyond the sand pit. Simmons said that he took an option on the land on the

Mr. Joe Ross, 77, of near Greenville, died in Veteran's Hospital, Durham, Thursday morning. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by the S.G. Wilkerson & Sons Funeral Home.

Young

FARMVILLE—Funeral services for Mr. Charlie Calvin Young, 74, will be conducted Friday at 3:30 p.m. from the Church Street Chapel of the Farmville Funeral Home by Elder Melvin Brann. Burial will be in Hollywood Cemetery here.

Mr. Young lived at 4313 James Road in Raleigh and died Tuesday afternoon in Rex Hospital in Raleigh. A retired farmer, he was a lifelong Farmville resident before moving to Raleigh two years ago. He was a member of the Church of God, 7th Day in Farmville.

Surviving him are two sons, John and Roland Young, both of Raleigh; two daughters, Mrs. Lowell Padgett of Manassas, Va., and Mrs. Lee King of Anchorage, Alaska; two sisters, Mrs. Paul S. Rasberry of Bell Arthur and Mrs. O. M. McLawhorn of Newport News, Va.; a brother, W. W. Young of Rt. 1, Greenville; and 16 grandchildren.

Firm Burned In Snow Hill

SNOW HILL—Happy Jack Inc., a dog care products company, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon.

According to the Greene County Fire Control office, Snow Hill, Shine and Arba Fire Departments answered the call, which came in at 3:15. It was believed that chemicals being heated exploded, starting the blaze, the Fire Controller said.

There were no injuries. The building was considered a total loss, but some records and files were saved.

Happy Jack makes dog care products like mange medicine and vitamins which are sold throughout the United States and in several foreign countries. Principal stockholders are James G. Exum and his sons, Ash and Joe Exum.

$100,000 Study Of Insect Brains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has approved a $10,000 grant to scientists at North Dakota State University, Fargo, for a two-year study of insect brains.

The department, in announcing the grant, described the project this way:

"Under terms of the agreement, the scientists will study cultured insect brains to determine how neurohormones produced in the insect's brain function to control diapause, development and water balance. Disrupting these functions could be one way of biologically controlling insects."

Rationing Newsprint

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP) — British Columbia's largest newsprint supplier announced Wednesday it is rationing supplies to customers in Canada and the United States.

MacMillan Bloedel, hit by a strike at its Port Alberni mill, said in a statement Monday it has lost 40 per cent of its production capacity.

The company said while the strike lasts, newsprint will be apportioned fairly among its customers.

About 120 office workers and electricians have been on strike at the company's Port Alberni mill since July 10.

The international brotherhood is seeking wage increases and a clarification of the work to be done by lead hands.

A MacMillan Bloedel spokesman said the company had tried to arrange other sources of supply for its customers but because of a world-wide shortage of newsprint, no other supply was available.

The rationing is expected to hit hardest at small publishers on both sides of the border who rely on Macmillan Bloedel for their newsprint.

REVENUES UP

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Piedmont Aviation, Inc., announced today that total gross revenues during the second quarter were up 18.5 per cent over the second quarter of 1972 to $34,210,220.

Warns Panicky Buying Harmful

DALLAS (AP) — Panicky grocery buying is more dangerous to the current food situation than the destruction by producers of poultry and other commodities, Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz says.

"The producers responded only as any reasonable people would under the circumstances," Butz told newsmen.

Missing Boa Is Not Dangerous

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Henry, a six-foot-long boa constrictor, escaped from his cage at the Fort Worth home of R. D. Peterson and city police dispatchers broadcast a pickup call for the snake.

But Peterson, in urging the police not to characterize the animal as dangerous, told them Wednesday that Henry is no threat to humans.

"He's not," the owner said. "Kids in the neighborhood play with him all the time. We're not afraid that he will hurt somebody, but that somebody will hurt him before we locate him."

Teachers in Utah, in order to keep their certification, must complete additional course work above the bachelor degree level.

Wednesday night before speaking at the 38th annual convention of the National Association of Counties.

Butz referred to the killing of thousands of young chickens by producers who said it would cost more to raise the chicks than they could get for selling them.

"The thing I fear more ... is panicky buying by housewives," Butz said. "Some black markets already are developing."

He said food prices, exempted last week from the price freeze under Phase 4 of President Nixon's economic program, will continue to go up until the hoped-for increase in crop production materializes.

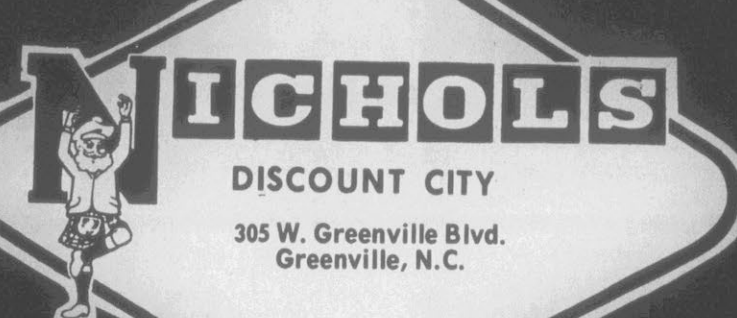

"But the big rise is behind us," Butz said. "I think the American people got the message that they don't get more by paying less."

Babe Ruth Stars Win First, Lose Second

Mayhew, Rochell Lowe, Mike Heath, Allen Hunter, Allen Howard, Chip Post, David Clayton, Jim Webb, Larry Bullard, Donnie Everett, Rich Weddington and Gil Carroll. The South is coached by Perry Pearson, Tommy Hawkins and Finley Read. (Reflector Photo)

HICKORY — Greenville's Babe Ruth All-Stars won the first game of the State finals last night but Kings Mt. came back to take the second, 5-3 to claim the State Babe Ruth Championship. Kings Mt. beat the locals in the first game of the tourney but Greenville battled back into the finals and were one game away from the crown. Greenville took the first game, 7-3.

Jim Wilkerson won the game and stretched his ERA to 0.00 in 21 innings. He allowed only three hits in the first game, for a total of 7 in the three games he pitched.

Curtis Keys scored for Greenville in the first but Kings Mt. got a run in the first to tie it up. In the third Greenville rallied for four runs and the winner. Keith Jones walked and Macon Moye got a hit. A single by Dennis Cristiano drove in Keys and Mike Brewington belted a home run scoring Moye and Cristiano.

Greenville added one in the fourth and one in the fifth. Kings Mt. scored again in the fourth. Moye and Cristiano each had two hits for Greenville as well as David Dixon. Joel Burgess had two for Kings Mt.

Greenville jumped out to 2-0 lead in the first frame of the afterpiece as Keys walked and moved to scored on an out. Moye homered for the two runs.

Kings Mt. went ahead in the bottom of the inning. Frank Hovis walked and stole second. Jackie Wrey singled him to third. An error let Hovis score and another error scored Wrey. Jeff Carroll walked and stole second. The error scoring Wrey moved Carroll to third and a passed ball let him come over with the go ahead run.

In the second Greenville tied it up, 3-3. Brewington tripled and scored on an error.

Kings Mt. pushed over the winning runs in the second. Monte Falls walked and stole up. Hovis homered to put Kings Mt. ahead.

Keys walked in the fifth and moved around on passed balls but could not score. Moye singled in the Greenville sixth and walks to Cristiano and Brewington loaded them up. Moye tried to steal home but was thrown out.

Moye led the hitting in the second game with three in three trips. Bridges had two for Kings Mt.

NEW ISLANDER COACH UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The new York Islanders have been in the National Hockey League only two years but already they have their third coach in 40-year-old Al Arbour. Arbour began his coaching career with the St. Louis Blues in the 1970-71 season. In the NHL, Arbour has played with Detroit, Chicago, Toronto and St. Louis.

Problems Clearing Up For South

Although the North Squad will be trying to extend their record to 8-3, the South squad for this year's edition of the Boy's Home All-Star game will be trying to get back on the winning side they were on two years ago.

In the 1970 game, the South surprised the North with their first win in several years and came back in 1971 to do it again. That time they rolled to a 21-7 win.

Last year, however, the North held the South at the goal line for a 13-7 win. This year the South does not plan any last minute plunges.

With the coaching staff expanded to three this year more work is getting done. Still some things are not pleasing the coaches of the South, Perry Pearson, of Mooresville Senior High, Finley Read of Lumberton, and Tommy Hawkins of Saratoga Central.

Said Hawkins, "Our timing is getting better. Also, our pass coverage is improving and the line is beginning to charge out better. The defensive line is starting to hit.

There have been no injuries of any importance yet except the one to James Moore who suffered a cut over his eye Monday. It required stitches.

The coaches were reluctant to say who had been most impressive so far but did mention that Greenville's Reggie Perkins was "doing real well." All four quarterbacks are working equal time and one has been moved to flanker. Said Hawkins, "Rich Weddington is one of the best looking flankers I've seen."

One weak point they have noticed is the receivers. "They are not catching the ball like we want but we think that will clear up by game time," Hawkins noted.

Head Coach Pearson expressed some dismay with the linemen. "We're a little slow but we have some small, fast backs. We have average speed at the receivers. They're all a little stiff." Lack of quickness and speed in the defensive line is bothering Pearson. Still, he thinks they will manage.

For whatever the line is missing the linebackers will make up for. In Rochell Lowe, Marion Reid and David Clayton the coaches feel they have a good second line of defense. These are the three that have been doing the most work this week.

Mike Delk and Chip Post have been impressive in the line, Post is an offensive guard. At tight end, Jacob Dove has been doing a good job.

Handling the kicking will be Larry Bullard. Robbie Price of Southern Wayne will be doing most of the punting. Returning the ball, Perkins and Moore have been "looking good."

The coaches don't plan to do anything fancy either on offense or defense. Said Pearson, "The pass won't hurt us too bad. Any way we can run the ball on them, we'll go with. We have to play it straight." The South will be going from a pro set running a veer. "I'm sure it concerns them as they concern us, but what we get going we'll use."

The game ought to be a good one. Morale on both teams is very high and every player is looking forward to the game. The heat has not been bothering the South. The timing of the line and the receivers catching the ball should come around by Saturday. Game time in Ficklen Stadium is 8:00 p.m.

Wooden Still Has Too Much

By DAN BERGER

Associated Press Sports Writer LOS ANGELES (AP) — For the last decade, sports writers have done countless stories about the UCLA basketball team with the theme: "John Wooden has problems: Too Much Material."

Nine times in the last 10 years, the coach has solved the dubious problem of too many good players, winning the national championship. In that span the mighty Bruins have 285 victories and 15 defeats, this despite an 18-8 season one year.

The story is just about the same this year—Wooden has too much material. But this year the situation is ridiculous. The Bruins' second five boggles the imagination.

The starting lineup is nearly set, Wooden says, with two-time Player of the Year Bill Walton at center, Keith Wilkins one forward and ragged junior Dave Myers at the other corner spot.

Wooden can choose his guards from among starters Greg Lee and Tommy Curtis or Andre McCarter, a redshirt last year. Wooden says picking a guard to run his system will be his

"Curtis was our sparkplug last year, but the point man has to be a steady influence. Lee was that sort of influence but he wasn't as explosive as Tommy. An Andre McCarter may be more physically talented than either Tommy or Greg."

Wooden said he may even use a freshman, 6-foot-6½ Gavin Smith of nearby Van Nuys, at guard in some instances.

As Walton's backup center, 7-foot sophomore Ralph Drollinger fills the bill. "He's not as agile, but he's worked awfully hard," said a team spokesman.

The reserve forwards include 6-6 Casey Corliss, a soph and one of only two freshmen on scholarship last year. There's also a freshman named Richard Washington, a Portland, Ore., product who was the goal of hundreds of recruiters. Another forward possibility is Pete Trgovich, a 6-5 speedster who was Indiana player of the year in high school three years ago and the freshman team's leading scorer two seasons ago with a 23.4 average.

"Yes, we have good depth," Wooden admitted.

The coach also said that complacency may be a problem this year, but he added: "No positions on the team are firm except for possibly Walton's, so the competition for starting spots should prevent too much complacency."

The closest games the Bruins' starting five may face next year are in scrimmages with the second team.

Union Carbide Ousted, 15-14

Union Carbide became the first team to fall by the wayside in the Purple Division Tournament of the City Softball League. They lost to GUCo, 15-14.

In the opener, the Little Sluggers got a 12-0 bashing of Burger King sending them to the losers bracket. Phil Fleming doubled in the first and scored on a double by Ronnie Craft to get

Coach Resigns

Ed Green, an assistant basketball coach at East Carolina University since March, has resigned to re-enter the high school coaching ranks in his hometown of Dubois, Pa. The announcement was made today by ECU Head Basketball Coach Tom Quinn.

As a member of the Quinn staff, Green assisted in the Pirate recruiting effort in the Eastern United States and played an important role in what Quinn describes as "One of the more successful recruiting campaigns we've had in the seven years I've been at East Carolina."

Green will be the head basketball coach at Dubois High School.

They added two in the second, four in the third, two in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Hardee's dumped Proctor's, 17-12. Hardee's ran out to a 4-0 lead in the first and added six more in the second. Proctor's got three in the second.

Miller doubled in the Hardee fourth and Grant singled. Both scored on a homer by Byrd to get the winner for Hardee's.

Proctor's got five in the fourth and three in the fifth but Hardee's put it away with four in the seventh.

GUCo rallied for three in the sixth to get their win. They had taken the lead in the first but Union got three in the first to go in front. GUCo took it back in the third with three runs but four came over for Union Carbide in the bottom of the frame. The lead went back to GUCo in the fourth on five runs and another pair in the fifth made it 12-8.

Union Carbide rallied for six in the fifth to go in front by 14-12 but three scores in the sixth won it for GUCo. Edwards doubled and scored on a double by Reel. Ward scored on a sacrifice fly and Dameron tripled. He came around on a double by Heath.

Schoendienst Has High Hopes For Last Half

By PAUL LeBAR
Associated Press Sports Writer ST. LOUIS (AP) — "These guys never doubted themselves," said Red Schoendienst, unfolding comfortably into a chair. "Why should I have doubted them?"

A dramatic rise by his National League club notwithstanding, the manager of baseball's St. Louis Cardinals admitted Wednesday he has high hopes and growing anticipation for 66 games remaining in the 1973 season.

"I always hate to compare clubs and I don't like to compare players either," said Schoendienst, who has guided the Cardinals to two National League pennants and a world championship.

"But I'll tell you one thing," he added with a gleam, "for real spirit and real stick-to-it-iveness this club has it as much as any of the others I've had."

Schoendienst's upstart Cardinals, themselves unable to believe a 1-12 start, have soared at a 50-33 pace since April 22 and have been even more spectacular since the first week in May.

With 5½ weeks of the lengthy season gone, the club, fourth last year in the East Division, languished in last place at 5-20.

The once-impossible target—the .500 point—was reached June 23 in a 3-2 victory over the Chicago Cubs and the Cards moved over the barrier for good July 4.

As the more robust Cubs began a nosedive, Schoendienst's club snapped a three-game slump of its own and whipped the West Division's front-running Los Angeles Dodgers twice to move into first place.

The Cardinals' ascent, spectacular by itself, is the more astounding because of apparent, non-disguised deficiencies in power and team speed.

Always near last in home runs, the team's batting average is a meager .248 compared to a league-leading .275 in 1971, when they finished second to the Pittsburgh Pirates, and .260 in 1972.

Compensating areas have been steady starting pitching, a fortified infield and the sturdiest bullpen the Cards have had since winning successive pennants in 1967 and 1968.

Balentine's Bumped Out Of Gold Tourney

Four Seasons, Dainty Maid and Hallow's all took wins last night in the City League's Gold Division tournament.

Four Seasons sent into extra innings as Morgan Printers kept hanging on. Four Seasons took the lead in the bottom of the first with four runs after Morgan had put up three. Morgan got one in the second but Four Seasons ran its lead out to 9-3 in the bottom of the frame.

Morgan closed to 9-7 in the third but a run for Four Seasons made it 10-7 after the third. Morgan pushed over two in the fifth to take the game into extra innings.

Four Seasons finally won it in the eighth as Humphrey singled and Carawan got a hit. Two errors let Humphrey score for a 11-10 total.

Dainty Maid sent Parker's to the losers bracket with a 10-1 win. Dainty Maid got enough in the first. Parker's had gone in front with their only run of the game but Dainty Maid pushed over three to take the lead. Nelson singled and Harris got a hit. Huber reached on an error that scored Nelson and a triple by Powell scored Harris and Huber.

Dainty Maid added three in the third, one in the fourth, two in the fifth and two in the sixth.

Balentine's was the first team to be eliminated as they suffered an 8-7 extra-inning loss to Hallow's. Hallow's inched in front in the first with a single run but three in the Balentine's fourth made it 3-1. Hallow's took the lead back with four scores in the fifth but a run in the Balentine's fifth tied it up. Both teams got three in the seventh. Bumgarner singled in the ninth for Hallow's and scored on hits by Gravatt and Padgett.

Doesn't Want King To Play

CLEVELAND (AP) — At least one person rooting for Billie Jean King when she faces hustler Bobby Riggs in a $100,000 tennis match this fall says she should have declined the challenge.

That's Mr. King—Billie Jean's husband of eight years, Larry.

"I don't think she should play Bobby, and I told her so," King said. He was in Cleveland to announce draft rounds in the newly formed World Team Tennis League, of which he's a co-founder.

"There's little to be gained from this from a women's tennis standpoint," King said. "This just clouds the issue. It could be possible setback for women's tennis. It has nothing to do with winning or losing."

King said his wife, this year's Wimbledon champ, even advised Margaret Court against meeting the 55-year-old Riggs in a similar exhibition match earlier this year. Riggs won that match easily.

But King said Mrs. Court's defeat was part of Mrs. King's determination to play Riggs.

"If Margaret had played reasonably well, Billie Jean wouldn't be playing Riggs now," he said. "She became agitated when she saw how Riggs beat Margaret."

He said Mrs. King felt "women got such a black eye when Bobby beat Margaret badly."

King said he feels he will be cheering with the majority when the match takes place in September.

"Bobby is a boorish person, and Billie Jean is more of a crusader," he said. "I'd say 95 per cent of the women will be for Billie Jean, and at least 60 per cent of the men."

Brown Is Glad To Be Back In Redskins Camp

BY ANDY LIPPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
"I'm happy to be here and Coach George Allen is happy that I'm here," concluded running back Larry Brown who rejoined the Washington Redskins Wednesday.

And while the news got better and better in the Skins' training camp, it got worse for the Minnesota Vikings who learned that defensive back Karl Kassulke has slipped into "very critical condition" as the result of a motorcycle-auto accident. Brown Wednesday ended an 11-day holdout which cost him about $300 in fines per day while he was attempting to negotiate a multiyear contract which he said would provide him with added security.

He refused comment on whether the Redskins had given him any such assurances, but at one point during a team workout, he went over to shake the hand of the man who may have brought Coach Allen a lot of extra security for the coming season—Duane Thomas, obtained last week from San Diego. Allen said he was not sure how he would deploy the one-two offensive punch of Brown and Thomas. He said that definitely Brown would be at half-back, while the rest of the offense would be played "by ear."

A hospital spokesman said Kassulke's condition had worsened following three hours of surgery. One of the physicians attending the popular Viking player said Kassulke will probably never regain normal use of his legs.

Kassulke, 32, was a passenger on a motorcycle which was involved in a collision with a car Tuesday. He had been listed in serious condition prior to Tuesday's surgery.

"The players are avoiding talking about it...because of the uncertainty," said Viking Coach Bud Grant who greeted the 73 players who reported for the opening of the team's training camp.

The Vikings traded a high 1974 draft choice to the Oakland Raiders for 3-year-veteran Greg Slough. The Vikings said Slough would be tried at all three linebacking positions. Coach Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins announced the signing of running back Mercury Morris, wide receiver Howard Twilley and cornerback Curtis Johnson.

Veteran offensive guard Ed Budde returned to the Kansas City Chiefs after walking out of camp on the first day of practice Monday.

The Pittsburgh Steelers reported 12 players currently unable to participate in practice because of injuries. Quarterback Terry Bradshaw missed passing drills for the second straight day due to a slightly pulled stomach muscle.

Cincinnati Bengal veteran wide receiver Bob Trumphy has been sidelined with a cracked or fractured rib, suffered when he ran into a teammate during football practice. There was no word on how long Trumphy would be sidelined.

Offensive tackle Walter Johnson got back into action for the Cleveland Browns, after being out with a pulled leg muscle since last Saturday.

CHICAGO (AP) — "I assume they can play," Coach John McKay says of his College All-Stars. "The pros paid $10 million because they believe these prospects can play."

The talent-rich collegians will get their chance Friday night to prove if they can play against the best in the National Football League, the record-perfect Miami Dolphins. One thing is for sure: the All-Stars haven't had much of a chance to play against themselves.

"I told my players, 'I'm not going to mess up your chances to make $40,000 or $50,000 a year by getting you injured in camp.'" Practicing under McKay's non-contact system, the 51 All-Stars have had only one real scrimmage since reporting to their Northwestern University camp July 7.

"They already know how to block and how to play," explained McKay, making his All-Star coaching debut after producing his third national championship team at Southern California last season.

The Dolphins, first unbeaten team in regular and post-season play in NFL history, are rated 17-point favorites in this 40th All-Star Game, which will be played at Soldier Field. It will be televised nationally by ABC beginning at 9 p.m., EDT.

The All-Stars, however, seem to be in much better physical shape than the Dolphins.

Both of Miami's 1,000-yard rushers of last season, Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris, and linebacker Mike Kolen, have been injured in practice. Morris and Kolen were declared out of the All-Star Game by Coach Don Shula.

"We'd hate to be one of the few pro teams ever to lose to the All-Stars. There is prestige on the line," said Shula.

The last All-Star triumph came a decade ago when Otto Graham's 1963 squad defeated the Green Bay Packers 20-17.

McKay has the brawnniest squad in All-Star history—averaging 254 pounds in both offensive and defensive lines—two strong passers in quarterbacks Bert Jones of Louisiana State and Joe Ferguson of Arkansas and a bevy of fine runners and receivers.

Conceding he ran an easy camp, McKay commented: "We probably won't win. But this is the only way to do it—to run an All-Star camp."

Walker confirmed the diagnosis made in Kansas City where Hunter was injured in the second inning of the All-Star Game. Walker said there was a hairline fracture near the base of the thumb.

Even should he miss five starts, which seems likely, Hunter, 15-3 and winner of 10 straight, still could have a third consecutive 20-victory season.

But the A's, with six games in the next four days, will miss him sorely. Oakland's 2½-game lead over Kansas City in the American League West has been unchanged for 10 days.

"Anytime you lose your biggest winner for any length of time it's tough," said A's Manager Dick Williams at Minneapolis where he went after the All-Star managing chores.

"We've survived before, and we'll survive again," added Williams, who was hospitalized for an emergency appendectomy one week ago and missed the A's three-game sweep over Cleveland in Oakland last weekend.

Purse Goes Up As Aaron Hits 'Em Out

ATLANTA (AP) — Fans attending the home games of the Atlanta Braves will get a shot at collecting more than $700 on 15 different occasions if they can retrieve and return home run balls hit by Hank Aaron.

The Braves announced the home run money will be awarded only to fans returning balls Aaron hits into the seats at home games. The amount will correspond to the Atlanta slugger's career total—$701 for his 701st homer, $702 for his 702nd, etc.

The first of the cash awards for retrieving Aaron homers was given Saturday night to Robert Winborne, 18, of Atlanta. Winborne was presented 700 Eisenhower silver dollars when he returned Aaron's 700th home run ball.

The Braves also announced Wednesday the establishment of a perpetuating college scholarship in Aaron's name. Aaron will name a high school graduating senior each year as recipient.

Palmer Is More Optimistic About Putting

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer
MONTREAL (AP) — Arnold Palmer has a new theory about an old problem—his putting.

"Maybe," said the 43-year-old Palmer, "maybe when I get a little older and get a little more experience, it'll come back."

"Hell, look at Sam Snead (61) and Julius Boros (53). They're both putting pretty good."

Palmer made the smiling comment before teeing off today in the first round of the Canadian Open Golf Championship, which he won in 1955, the first of his some 60 career pro victories.

His response came in reply to a question about whether his oft-publicized putting woes may make him start thinking about reducing his playing schedule or even retiring from the game he did so much to popularize.

"Oh, no," he said. "I'm much more optimistic about it than that," Palmer admitted, however, that "it's still the same old problem. He has, however, been in contention in three of his last four starts. He was out of it only in the British Open and once held the lead late in the last round of the American National Championship.

Despite his putting problems he ranked as one of the favorites in the $175,000 Canadian National Championship on the 6,905-yard, par-72 Richelieu Valley Golf Club course.

Other standouts include the current American and British open champions, Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf, defending title-holder Gay Brewer, leading money-winning Bruce Crampton of Australia, South African Gary Player, Masters king Tommy Aaron, Snead and Gene Littler.

The Pacific Paradise Now Has Pollution, Popcorn

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Thursday, July 26, 1973—13

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press writer
SUA, Fiji (AP) — Bali Ha'i still drifts in and out of the mists, but it has underground telephone cables now. Paradise has parlaments, passports, pollution and popcorn.

The neighborhood airline here flies to an independent state, a protectorate, a condominium, a colony, a dominion, a territory, a kingdom and a republic.

They are all part of the enormous chunk of ocean below Hawaii known vaguely to most as the South seas.

Modern travelers still find the islands as grass skirts and alluring as Captain Cook's crewmen first described them. But there have been a few changes.

Downtown Suva bristles with banks and stoplights. In Melanesia, Stone Age tribesmen are naked but for genital wrappers and Japanese wrist watches. Modern times have touched every reef and rockpile.

Nauru, for example, is a barren eight-square-mile island with a few thousand native inhabitants stuck off by itself where even Robinson Crusoe wouldn't want it.

Today the highways of Nauru are littered with abandoned Cadillacs. It's an independent country with a shipping fleet, a long-distance airline and rich investments.

In Nauru, Fiji, Tonga and Western Samoa, sovereign governments run their own affairs.

Now Pacific premiers meet regularly to relax in colorful island shirts and discuss migration and banana prices.

Although a half dozen foreign countries linger in 14 island groups, in one governing role or another, there has been a break from centuries of domination.

Almost before Cook had finished the cocktail circuit in 18th century England, shiploads of missionaries, pirates, whalers, traders and slavers were on their way from all over Europe.

Europeans at first were just casual callers — and sometimes they were "dinner". Later, when their numbers increased, they took over.

"Blackbirders" collecting slaves sometimes won over recalcitrants by dropping off someone suffering from measles, a previously unknown disease which could decimate an island in weeks.

Gunpowder merchants improved canoe warfare so that people started getting killed. Missionaries covered bare breasts with cloth that got wet and caused pneumonia.

By World War I, the 12 million square miles of the middle and South Pacific were carved up and distributed to Europe and the United States.

Local populations were smaller than when explorers first found them, but flourishing communities were speaking of fluent French, English and German, shipping off coconuts and buying canned peaches.

With the global wars, everything changed. Japan had won and lost Micronesia. Germany was out. Islanders who fought for France and Britain came home wanting independence.

Gentle island ways took on hard commercial edges. The South seas still fall into three big geographical units of volcanic and coral islands, but little is the same above the water line.

Micronesia, a sea of tiny islands from Hawaii to Japan, is a United States trust territory soon to have some form of self-government. But it will remain peppered with American bases and Sta-prest pants.

The Gilbert and Ellice Islands—hardly viable together under Britain—are heading toward freedom, and they may split into two even less viable groupings.

Melanesia starts at New Guinea and takes in the Solomons, New Caledonia and the New Hebrides. The dark-skinned inhabitants are the most primitive and most advanced of the Pacific, living on its ugliest and most beautiful islands.

New Caledonia, marbled with nickel, is the South Seas' most prosperous island, and the French aren't leaving. Britain is disengaging itself from the Solomons.

Papua, new Guinea, soon will be independent from Australia, with some copper-rich islands nearby, and the new state will be bigger than all the other South Pacific islands together.

Fiji, just west of Melanesia, is a mixture of farming, forests, industry and fantasyland. It is the fulcrum of the Pacific, but its leaders carefully avoid alarming newly independent neighbors by taking too active a role.

The third group is Polynesia, the magical islands that sent bank clerks to sea in 36-foot sloops. It is Tahiti, Samoa, Tonga, Easter Island and dozens of chains and atolls. Moorea's side-by-side bays of Cook and Oponohu face probably the loveliest and most lush hills in the world.

And Moorea, like most every other idyllic South Seas island, has electricity, packaged food and gasoline. soon Moorea will have an automatic telephone exchange.

Much of Polynesia, including Tahiti and Moorea, is part of an overseas territory of France. Pressure for change is one of the hottest political questions in the ocean, as are French nuclear tests in a remote corner of Polynesia.

But Pacific politics are generally subdued, cushioned by miles of water and defused by traditional chief systems. Only France, the United States and Chile appear bent on retaining their possessions, and opposition to that is relatively mild. New political freedom has brought new cultural awareness, and old customs are being aired out for daily use and for tourists. And the islands find that, the more they plumb their heritage, the more they all have in common.

Before the Europeans, every island was self-sufficient. People lived in smoothly functioning societies, cooking enormous meals in underground ovens and following their passions with easy abandon.

A lot of the old life is left. Carbon copy sunsets set aflame thatch houses on hundreds of islands as men crouch around large wooden bowls drinking yellowish kava—or yagona—with elaborate ritual. Women with red hibiscus in their hair paddle outrigger canoes to morning markets all over the Pacific, selling green mangoes and visiting their friends.

Last year, artists and performers gathered in Fiji for a Pacific Arts Festival. Athletes meet regularly for the South Pacific Games sponsored by a commission that promotes social and economic advancement.

On a different scale, governments are trying the same sort of cooperation. Every island sells the same dried coconut meat and worries about rhinoceros beetles. They dig in against the same hurricanes, chase off the same Asian fishermen and debate whether to attract or repel tourists. "These islands have more of a chance for economic and social cooperation, if not political, than any other area of the world," says William B. Hussey, a former U.S. diplomat who heads the U.N. Development Program here.

With that approach, Fiji, Tonga, Western Samoa, Nauru and the nearly sovereign Cook Islands formed the South Pacific Forum with Australia and New Zealand. They set up an economic bureau for practical coordination.

Forum members share an airline, and they're working out common shipping, telecommunications links and marketing boards. They took a stand against the French nuclear tests, and they talk over investments and immigration accords. If foreign administrators are going, businessmen and tourists are more common than ever. Australia alone has something near $300 million invested in the South Seas, and Tahiti's tourism has been growing at 23 per cent a year.

Pacific leaders recognize still more change is coming, but they're doing their best to control the change along lines that will benefit them all.

Once telegraph circuits and cruise ships arrive, they have long known in the Pacific, no island is an island.

Ancient Aleppo Maintains Its Beauty Of The Past

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer

ALEPPO, Syria (AP) — Merchant Aref Marjani has spent most of his 60 years in the dark, dusty vaults of one of this ancient city's numerous bazaars, among the finest in the Arab world.

Dressed in a faded ghombaz, a shirt-like robe, with a black Western-style belt around his waist, Marjani is showing an Armenian customer a tray in his hole-in-the-wall stall in the Souk Nahassin or coppersmith's

"Now, Baron Krikor, this is my latest acquisition," he says. An impish grin topped by a small black mustache plays across his weathered face. He is slightly cross-eyed.

"Very nice work, no?" he asks as Krikor examines the tray. The bargaining process for which Levantine merchants like Marjani are famous begins, only to end an hour later with no sale.

Marjani shrugs and tells a visitor, "He'll be back next week. I know he wants it. All I have to do is go a few pounds lower."

Unlike their counterparts in Damascus, the capital, Aleppo merchants are patient. There is no badgering, even of the peasants and nomads from the surrounding countryside who flock to the well-stocked souks in all kind of dress to buy their necessities. These can range from cent pegs to gold bracelets.

But there is more to Aleppo than the souks. It is one of the most beautiful cities in the Arab world and may be in for a revival now that the nearby Euphrates Dam is nearing completion and more farmers will move into the area as land reclamation progresses.

Towering over the souks, minarets and a few churches—Aleppo's 500,000 population includes a large Christian minority—is the citadel, one of the best examples of Moslem military architecture.

Despite repeated attacks, the Crusaders never were able to take it. Approaching the city it is the first thing seen after leaving the flat, arid countryside with its African-looking villages of brown, conical beehive houses.

According to some scholars, the citadel may be built on the ancient tell or mound on which Abraham is supposed to have milked his flocks, hence the city's Arabic name, Haleb, meaning milk.

The strategic position of the Citadel, 160 feet above the surrounding plain, explains the town's existence. Seventy miles from the Mediterranean and 50 miles from the Euphrates River, Aleppo was the gateway to the desert, located on the great caravan route of antiquity which linked Mesopotamia with Egypt.

European trading companies, Venetian, French, English and German, set up shop here in the 16th century. More important, they and the consuls and missionaries that followed gave Aleppo a cosmopolitan flavor it retains today.

Wide pine tree-lined boulevards, public gardens with fountains and outdoor restaurants remind the visitor of a European city.

Some of the richly decorated oriental houses from the 16th century with their lattice-worked wooden balconies, tiled courtyards and large, domed reception rooms still can be seen in the Jedeidah quarter.

A few have the Star of David carved in stone above the door, testimony to the city's once substantial Jewish population that has shrunk to 1,000 or so. The masonry on the balcony of the old clock tower in the center of town is crenelated with the same star.

Tourism in Syria slumped after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war and Aleppo businessmen say it is even worse since the border

If tourism is down, one of the town's major industries, smuggling goods into Turkey, still is flourishing, businessmen say. After years of trying to stop it, the Socialist government now takes its cut from the smugglers and disclaims responsibility once they reach the long border to the west and north, 30 miles away.

Aleppo comes alive just before sunset, when people surge into the streets after the 110 degree temperatures of summer days to enjoy the desert

Cafes fill up with men playing backgammon and smoking water pipes. Street hawkers, their wares in a suitcase, try to attract the attention of window shoppers admiring goods made in textile factories near the city.

Nightlife is pretty tame. There is an imitation discoteque that young people say isn't much fun and a seedy night club with second rate belly dancers. By 10 p.m. the streets are practically empty.

Biggest Rock Concert Set Since Woodstock

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer
WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — A thousand portable toilets line the slope stretching down to the stage. Roads have been built, 100,000 gallons of bottled water trucked in and arrangements made for the sale of electric Yo-Yos that glow in the dark.

There is going to be a rock concert here this weekend. Not as big as Woodstock in 1969, but probably the biggest since then.

"This is the first year you could do it," said Jim Koplik, one of the concert promoters. "The fear of Woodstock, of hippies and long hair made it impossible before now."

Ticket sales—$10 each—will stop at 150,000. State police will stop people without tickets 20 miles down the road. Sheriff Maurice Dean said he expects at least 200,000 people in the area. There were more than 100,000 four years ago at Woodstock, 150 miles east of here.

"I guess it is going to be the major event of the year," said Jean. "Everyone in town is a little apprehensive. But if we can get them in and get them out when they want to go, there won't be any trouble."

One hundred state troopers will be billeted in town, just in case.

The concert is scheduled to run from noon to midnight on Saturday with just three bands. The Grateful Dead will open with a five-hour set. The Alman Brothers and the Band, the backup group that played behind Bob Dylan, will follow.

The concert will be held at the Watkins Glen Gran Prix race course, a sports car track a few miles outside this village of 3,000.

"The whole scene is going to be an event, not just a concert," said Ed Gordon, 18, who hitchhiked in Monday from Sussex, N.J. "Some people are here for the music, some just to be somewhere. I guess there will be some who come just to get their heads messed up with dope."

The promoters—Koplik, 23, and Shelly Finkel, 28—said it could cost more than $1 million to stage the concert. The money comes from backers whose identity Koplik said was private information.

Revenue will come from tick-sales, concessions and a cord album the promoters pe to produce.

Object To Sewage Plan

MARION, N.C. (AP)—Environmentalists have protested against plans of the city of Marion to build a new sewage treatment plant on the Catawba River above Lake James. They said they feared the lake might become contaminated.

They testified at a hearing Wednesday in opposition to a ruling by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in favor of the Catawba River location.

Most of them recommended that the plant be built near the present overtaxed facility on a tributary that drains into the Atawba below Lake James.

L. Williams of Black Mountain, a member of the Metropolitan Sewerage Board of Asheville and Buncombe County, and owner of a houseboat on Lake James, said that to build elsewhere than where presently proposed might cost one or two million dollars more. "But this would be insignificant if we think of the cost of clearing the lake" could it become contaminated in future years, he said.

Two Qualified for Dean's List

James Shelton Wells Jr. and William Thomas Wells, both of Greenville, have qualified for the spring semester dean's list at Wake Forest University.

They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Wells of 1501 S. Adams St. and are rising seniors at the University.

Before you spend $8,000 for a car, you should find out if it's the best car your money can buy.

There's more and more reason to believe that this $8,000 car is it.

1. This year, in a test of riding comfort against a new model of the other leading American luxury car, a Lincoln Continental was chosen as having the more comfortable ride by 64 out of 100 owners of the other make.
2. A survey conducted last year showed that a significantly greater proportion of new Lincoln Continental owners were completely satisfied with their cars after three months' experience than were owners of the other leading luxury make.
3. In addition, another nationwide survey has revealed in the last two years over 20,000 drivers of the other luxury car have switched to the Continentals: Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark IV.

We invite you to judge their car by our car.

LINCOLN CONTINENTAL

Illustrated is Lincoln Continental Sedan with options most buyers choose: 6-way power seat, vinyl roof, luxury wheel covers, AM/FM radio, body side molding, appearance group and interior with leather seating surfaces.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 NT Pass 2 NT Pass
3 NT Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♦
A careful study of the spot cards in his long suit would have revealed to declarer that he needed to execute a neat unblocking play to make his game.

North-South reached three no trump in impeccable fashion. After his partner had opened the bidding with one no trump, North made an invitational raise on his 8 high card points. South, with an absolute maximum, was delighted to accept the invitation.

West led the king of diamonds, immediately attacking the entry to dummy's suit. However, with nine cards in clubs, declarer seemed unconcerned. As a matter of formality, he ducked the first two rounds of diamonds and won the third. He cashed the ace and queen of clubs, West discarding the eight of spades. Declarer overtook the nine of clubs with the king, and then found to his dismay that he had to win the fourth club in his hand. There was no entry to dummy to enjoy his long club, and eight tricks proved to be the limit of the hand.

Had clubs divided 2-2, declarer would have had no problem. However, he should have realized that the club suit might be blocked and enlisted the aid of the defenders to free the suit.

The defenders had no option but to attack dummy's ace of diamonds, for that was the entry to the club suit. All declarer had to do to assure the contract was to duck the third round of diamonds as well!

The defenders would be left without resource. If West continues with a fourth round of diamonds, declarer wins in dummy and discards a club from his hand. Having eliminated the blocking card, he can now take five club tricks.

It would not avail the defenders to shift their attack. For example, if West plays a heart after taking three diamonds, declarer wins and cashes the ace-queen of clubs. Dummy is entered with the king of clubs and the ace of diamonds is cashed so that declarer can unblock the seven of clubs, again freeing dummy's two clubs.

CASE X-570: Art P., aged 19, was helping his father on the farm.
"Dr. Crane," a friend began "Art was standing on the edge of a large corn bin.
"Several thousand bushels of the shelled corn were being dumped in it.
"But Art lost his balance and fell inside.
"I heard him yell for help as he started to go under the avalanche of corn.
"Luckily, he threw up an arm, but he couldn't reach within 2 feet of the surface.
"So I laid a plank across and was able to stick my arm down into the corn till I felt his fingers on the upraised arm.
"Then I held on, to keep him from sinking deeper and deeper, for it's much like standing in quicksand when you get covered with wheat, oats or shelled corn.

"And the local fire department soon arrived. The Chief shoved down a pipe to the level of Art's face, and then turned on the oxygen.
"So Art was able to survive, but if I hadn't heard his cry for help he'd have been a goner."
Beware, Accidents
Caution your kiddies about playing in excavated sewer trenches, for the earthen walls often collapse.
Same is true when children try to dig caves, especially in sandy soil.
And if you ever do find yourself sinking, try to throw up one hand and arm, both as a chute for air, and also to aid possible rescuers.

The 1970 figures showed over 4 million home accidents, plus 2 million while at work and 2 million via automobiles!
Parents, take inventory frequently of your household to make sure of these items:
(1) See that ladder rungs and wooden stepladder steps are O.K.
(2) Beware of aluminum ladders, for if they contact a live wire, you may be electrocuted quickly.
That's a common cause of death among amateur house painters and tree surgeons!
(3) Wives, beware of having the overhead freezing compartment of your refrigerator jammed, like Fibber McGee's famous closet!
Children can be knocked unconscious by frozen items that slide out when the upper door is opened.
And many adults get foot injuries from the same source.
(4) Don't leave loaded guns where kiddies can reach them.
And don't even hide the ammunition where curious children can find them.
Remember, kiddies can locate almost anything you may hide!
(5) Don't let youngsters operate dangerous power saws or lawn mowers.
It's during summer weekends that physicians are swamped at hospital emergency rooms with amputated fingers, toes, hands or feet, due to power lawn mowers!

(6) Even at the dishpan, don't dump sharp paring knives in with the used silverware, for many fingers are cut badly thereby.
(7) Keep matches away from youngsters! And adults should never smoke in bed or while lounging in an upholstered chair!
Over 100,000 permanent injuries occur each year in the home, plus another 90,000 at work and 175,000 due to auto accidents!

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1973 CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are eager now to put home affairs in better shape and it would be wise to spend as much time as possible doing just that. It is also a good time to decide what you can do for loved one, thereby increasing mutual happiness.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study the position that closest kin are in and be of help wherever you can. If your glasses need changing, by all means get them changed. Plan time to entertain steadfast friends.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Attend to business affairs in a clever way early in the day. Make sure you keep appointments on time. Communications can be handled with much success. Help someone in need.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Talk over financial matters with a business expert and put affairs in fine shape. Study your budget and figure out how to cut down on expenses. Show more appreciation to associates.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take the treatments that can make your vitality more apparent and buy the clothing that brings out your special charm. Attend the social and make interesting new contacts.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan time to analyze your present situation and take steps to improve it without delay. Being very enthused about loved one brings fine results. Make sure to pay important bills.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good friend could give you the information and advice you need now. Attending a group affair can bring excellent results at this time. Make sure that your diet is right. Be logical.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan what it is you want to do of a public nature and see that it is done on time and in a proper fashion. Think along constructive and practical lines. Don't lose temper with kin.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Engaging in new interests could be beneficial at this time. Strive for harmony with associates. Avoid an opponent who could cause trouble. Do a favor for a friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have many responsibilities to take care of and should get an early start on them. Give more attention to the one you love. Take time to engage in amusements you enjoy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Pay more attention to an associate who feels you may have been wasting time with other interests. Show that you are a good citizen.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you compliment co-workers when it is due, you find you gain their goodwill. Take steps to gain the data you need. Keep abreast of currents events and become better informed.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) During spare time do the things that you enjoy doing and sidestep boredom. Make sure that your diet is right. Buy a nice gift for loved one. Don't take any chances with strangers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those charming young people who may be sensitive during childhood and could get feelings hurt easily. Teach not to be so self-centered. Direct the education along lines that serve public commodities and merchandizing. Give the right religious training to make your progeny more self-controlled. Teach to smile more.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Infant Bruised By 2-Year-Old

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — patient. Eight-day-old Chante Talbot was reported recovering well today from bruises and scratches inflicted by a 2-year-old child patient in Polk General Hospital. Franchetta Talbot left the hospital Friday with her newborn child but returned Monday because the baby wasn't eating properly. Mrs. Talbot said she left her daughter in a pediatrics room and went to another part of the hospital. When she returned, she said, she was told by nurses the infant had been scratched hit and thrown out of her bassinette by a 2-year-old

NEW EQUIPMENT — The Pitt County Sheriff's Department recently purchased a new filing machine that takes the place of cardboard boxes once used to house approximately 10,000 criminal history records. Above, Mrs. Thelma Dodds operates the new filing machine while Sheriff Ralph Tyson looks on. The new machine is capable of handling up to 50,000 cards, and cost $2,300, part of which was paid by the Mid-East Commission's Crime Justice Division. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Shellings By Reds Bring Aerial Blow

By LEE RUDAKIEWYCH Associated Press Writer PHNOM PENH (AP) — American B52s and F111 fighter-bombers pounded areas west and south of Phnom Penh from which insurgent gunners fired rockets and cannon shells that killed 20 persons and wounded about 100 others on the outskirts of the Cambodian capital. The American planes dropped their bombs within 10 miles of the city. They concentrated on the Tuol Leap area to the west and the Prek Thnot sector to the south, from which the rockets and 75mm shells were believed to have been fired Wednesday night. The Cambodian military command said it thought the insurgents were trying to hit a radio station and the Pochengtong airport. However, the brunt of the attack hit a densely populated slum area on the western edge of the city about 2½ miles from the airfield. One government official said he feared such shelling attacks on Phnom Penh might now become daily. It was the first such attack in more than a year. Earlier field reports said 10,000 insurgent troops were moving toward the city along a 10-mile front and were only four miles away at some points. Government workers were being given small-arms train-

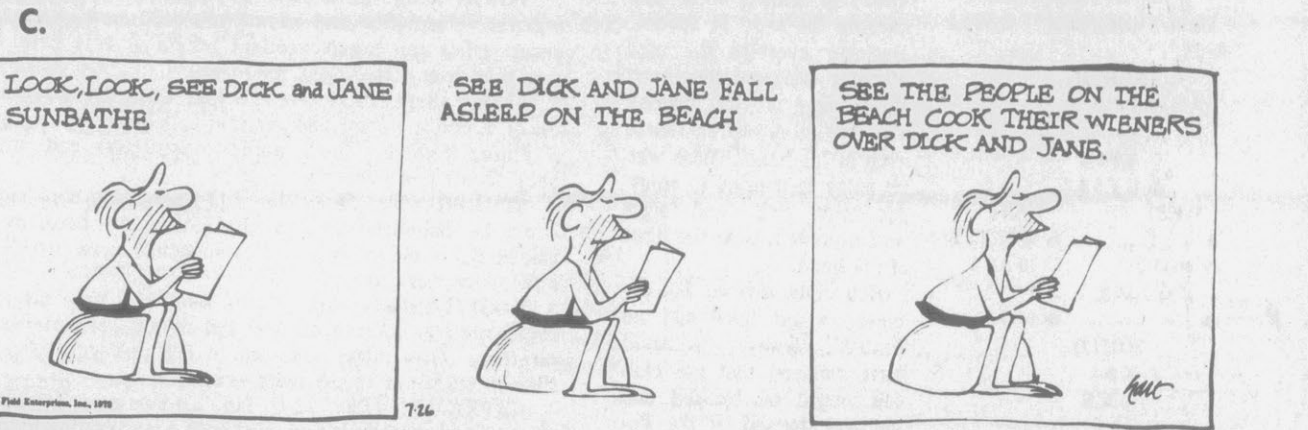

Rep. Rousselot Asks Divorce No Charges In Auto Accident

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rep. John H. Rousselot has petitioned Superior Court here to end his 22-year marriage. The California Republican cited "irreconcilable differences." Rousselot, 46, and his wife Marilyn, 46, have three children: Craig, 18; Robin, 17, and Wendy, 15. According to the petition filed Wednesday, the Rousselots were married in Pittsfield, Mass., on July 29, 1950, and now live in San Marino, Calif. Mrs. Rousselot is a teacher. No one was injured and no charges were preferred following investigation of a 7:47 a.m. accident Tuesday on Dickerson Avenue near Line Avenue. Officers said that the mishap involved cars driven by Wallace T. Ebron of 1211-A Legon Street, and Bobby Dale Daniels of Rt. 1, Grimesland. Damage was estimated at $250 to the Daniels car and $15 to the car driven by Ebron.

ing, and the U. S., Australian and British embassies advised their citizens to leave the city if they had no pressing business. The curfew in Phnom Penh was extended two hours to cover the period from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m. In Saigon, the South Vietnamese command accused the Communists of 98 cease-fire violations in South Vietnam in the 24 hours ending at dawn today. It was the highest number in one day since 104 were reported June 18, but government spokesmen said this didn't seem to be significant. They pointed out that the daily total fluctuated widely for no apparent reason. Sharp fighting was reported 25 miles north of Saigon, in the central highlands near Kontum and along the northern coast about 100 miles south of Da Nang. The Saigon command said 45 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong and seven government troops were killed, and 33 government men were wounded.

Elizabethan Street Fair

MANTEO—Just what was English life like in the 16th century? Historians have tried for centuries to describe the style of Elizabethan livelihood and entertainment.

But this Saturday, patrons can experience just what England was like in the mid-1500's when the cast of The Lost Colony outdoor drama holds an Elizabethan street fair here.

At 3:30 p.m. Saturday vendors, singers, dancers, street fights, beggars, pickpockets, fortune tellers, tumblers, puppeteers—all the characters typical of a circus or carnival atmosphere—will be at the Elizabethan Garden in Fort Raleigh National Historic Site on Roanoke Island.

The annual afternoon affair is designed to present a program of Elizabethan entertainment in an authentic background. Admission will be $1 at the Gatehouse entrance to the Garden.

Highlighting the activities will be a production The Second Shepherd's Play from the period. A mystery play of England's townly cycle, the play originally was done for presentation for the church.

Bolivia's Lake Titicaca is considered the cradle of Inca civilization.

Boys Charged With Killings

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Three teen-agers have been charged with the booby-trap murder of two British soldiers.

The youths charged Wednesday night — two aged 16 and the other 17—were among seven teen-age boys and girls picked up during a series of army raids in Belfast. The others were released.

The soldiers were killed by a bomb rigged to an elevator in an apartment house in the Roman Catholic Falls Road section. The soldiers were with a patrol searching the area.

The government of Northern Ireland, in a report today on the "children of hate" the religious war in the province has produced, said that 41 boys and girls under 17 have been involved in bombings and shootings this year.

A government spokesman said the age of Catholics recruited into the Irish Republican Army also has dropped considerably because of the British army's success in rounding up veteran guerrillas.

The report cited two 9-year-old boys who sniped at troops, a 13-year-old veteran of four armed holdups, a 15-year-old who shot and seriously wounded a soldier and a 10-year-old found wandering the streets with a pistol.

One army officer commented: "You can imagine how a soldier feels when he is confronted by a youngster, maybe the same age as his own child, brandishing a gun or a bomb. That second's natural hesitation could cost the soldier his life."

Another report made public today illustrated the extent to which the hatred between Northern Ireland's adult Protestants and Catholic has spread to their children.

James Russell of the University of Strathclyde, Scotland, made surveys of 3,000 schoolboys in 1971-72. He reported that about half of them believed all persons of the other religion were their enemies, bent on destroying the opposing religious community. About two thirds of the boys said they approved of political violence.

Centenarian Again Top Cotton Grower

By TOMMY STEVENSON
The Decatur Daily
For The Associated Press
BELLE MINA, Ala. (AP) — Mrs. Bettie Pride lives alone on a small farm and grows cotton, not unusual for these parts except that she is almost 100 years old and is the leading small acreage cotton producer in North Alabama.

"I've been in a cotton field ever since I've been in the world," the spry Mrs. Pride says with an almost toothless smile. "Ever since I can remember, my folks woke me up in the morning and told me to get to the fields. I guess that's why I know how to pick good."

For the second year in a row she has won honors for the yield on her 3.4 acres of rich

Limestone County farmland. Two years ago, she was the county winner in the small acreage contest and last year she out-did herself with 1,169 pounds of cotton per acre to become the champion of a 16-county district.

Mrs. Pride recently went to Birmingham to receive her award as a district "Cotton King." She didn't make the meeting, however.

Since it was only the second time in her 100 years that she'd been there, she had trouble finding the hotel and missed the banquet in her honor.

"Birmingham's a good place to get lost in," she said.

She got the award, though. It is a plaque hanging on the wall of her living room beside the certificate she got for leading the county a year earlier.

And perhaps in this, her 100th summer, she will lead the state in cotton production?

"Oh, no, no. I'm slowing down," she says. "I used to be a lot better at picking than I am now. I got to where I don't feel too good sometimes now and can't hardly get around."

A friend says not to believe that, though. "She's the first one out every morning and the last one in at night," he says. "And she knows every inch of that little cotton patch."

Her familiarity with her well-defined territory is obvious as she conducts a tour of the neat farm. Using an old mop handle as a combination walking cane and regal scepter, she struts about her place, pointing at her vegetable garden or at the cotton patch.

"I grow about every kind of vegetable you can name," Mrs. Pride says. "Matter of fact, I grow everything I need to eat during the winter. But I don't eat but a handful of beans at a time."

In her home, a sparse but clean dwelling she had built eight years ago, Mrs. Pride talked about her good record in cotton production. While technical terms such as anhydrous ammonia or disyston systemic insecticide don't exactly roll off her lips, she is by no means a stranger to modern farm methods.

"You got to use fertilizer and all that," she says. "Fertilizer, bug spray, you got to put it on to get the most cotton. But they sure do use lots more now than they did back yonder."

Her real secret, however, is the care and personal attention she gives her 3.4 acres. Once the cotton is up, she spends as much time in the patch as some people do with a garden of prized African violets.

"I don't let the weeds get in there," she says. "No sir, you can't let the weeds get to your cotton. You do and it'll all grow up in grass."

She meticulously chops and picks the cotton by hand, starting as soon as the first boll begins to open. That way she greatly increases her yield.

Late in August, about cotton picking time, Mrs. Pride will complete her 100th year. She doesn't expect much fanfare and doesn't think there should be any fuss over the occasion.

She says she'll probably spend her birthday picking cotton.

"I can't do something else," she says.
