Leaf Quality Down, Some Growers Disappointed

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

A slight decrease in overall quality of tobacco from last year's banner offerings resulted in subsequent opening day prices today that some farmers termed disappointing.

Although initial sales began at one warehouse in the $86 per hundred pounds range, the quotes did not remain that high throughout the first row as buying progressed.

With Greenville and Rocky

Mount opening today in what was cited as the earliest Eastern Tobacco Belt beginning in history, pre-opening forecasts of a lower quality of offerings held up.

The first 20 piles sold, as auctions began at 9 a.m., brought $86 per hundred pounds and after a single $87 per hundred quote, the figures reflected a mixture of $85 and $86 quotes along the first row. After another break of $85 per hundred piles further down the row, the prices dropped to $84 and $84, and on several bundles as low as $81.

Prices appeared to level out in the $83 to $85 per hundred range as the first set of buyers continued their opening sale duties. Several piles of damaged tobacco brought $75 and $74 per hundred pounds.

Elbert Mills of Rt. 8, Greenville had some of the early tobacco on the floor and he pointed out that his offerings did not sell "quite as good as last year. I think things will pick up later on as the season moves along." The farmer had some 2,400 pounds floored.

Mills, acknowledging that he was a "little disappointed" in the opening prices, said that most of his tobacco brought $86 per hundred pounds. Lugs constituted the majority of his opening sale, he said.

L. C. Edwards, a Rt. 3, Greenville farmer, asserted that prices today were $2 to $5 lower than last year when $87 per hundred was the general rule. Edwards, noting that he sold 2,466 pounds, said that his tobacco averaged in the $85 to $86 range.

Floyd Harris of Greenville, who farms in the Belvoir area, said that he knew "prices would be down from last year. I really didn't expect to get what I got last year" on opening day.

Harris, who also farms with his son, Bobby Ray Harris, said that he felt things would pick up as the buying season progresses. He pointed out that he had both old tobacco (last year's) and new on the floor this morning consisting mostly of first and second primings and some lugs.

According to John Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist with the N. C. department of Agriculture who was on hand for the opening sale here, the "quality was down, somewhat, as we had expected. There is also quite a bit of non-descript tobacco here this morning where they was very little non-descript on last year's opening sale."

Cyrus said that grades here today were running from fair to low as compared with medium to high last year. He added that grade prices were pretty much in line with last year. First offerings generally consisted for first primings and lugs, he pointed out.

"We knew the quality would be well and is generally well balanced as far as meeting the demands of both export and domestic buyers. "We have both medium to thin to meet the domestic demand and also tobacco with sufficient body, a little heavier leaf, for the export buyers."

A sampling of tobacco quotes at another warehouse with first sales indicated a general trend of $87 per hundred pounds down to $84 with the majority running in the $85 category.

The local market, opening today with two sets of buyers, will continue on a limited schedule until Aug. 28 when two additional sets of buyers will be added. The fifth set will be assigned here on Oct. 9.

Greenville and Rocky Mount will handle the first week of sales and will be joined by seven other markets on Aug. 7 as Wilson, Kinston, Farmville, Williamston, Tarboro, Goldsboro, and Smithfield begin auctions. The full belt will swing into operation on Aug. 28 when the remaining eight markets open.

Cyrus said that today's opening marked the first time an Eastern Belt market had opened as early as July.

The Day Began With 'Let's Sell Tobacco'

By PEGGY WEIMER
Reflector Staff Writer

With the announcement, "Let's sell tobacco" by Slim Short, the Farmer's Warehouse was officially opened this morning. A variety of people had assembled news media, dealers, farmers, workers, and the many people who had just come "to watch."

Like loyal subjects following their king, the buyers, various farmers, and reporters followed the auctioneer between the long rows of baled tobacco. So his yells, that only experienced tobacco people understand, blended into the overall hum of old friends meeting and the bustle of the workers.

Four little boys clung to their grandfather, wide-eyed with curiosity. They had come from Washington D.C. to visit their grandfather and the youngest ones were seeing their first tobacco market opening.

One eight-year-old boasted that he "helped take off tobacco" and found the market "real good." His four-year-old brother reaction was "all right!" but he confessed that he'd "rather sell 'bac-co."

Young girls moved quickly down the lines of the already sold bales, marking them with identifying tags for the various companies. Another group of people followed them, typing up the piles with pieces of burlap. The tobacco was then placed on jacks by boys who loaded it into the respective trucks.

An oddity in the informality of the warehouse, two nicely dressed women moved down the aisles. "It's my first experience in selling tobacco," the younger woman confessed. "My husband is working in the fields today so my stepmother came for moral support." The other lady remarked that it was her first time at an opening also because "when we were little, the menfolks always came."

The neat piles of tobacco became scattered due to the jostling they received. People still grouped together, comparing prices or the quality of the leaf.

One 62-year-old man reminisced about the markets of 40 years ago. "This opening looks like the tail of the season compared to them. You used to load up a wagon of tobacco and a wagon load of folks. Often I'd have to clear the family off the bales before I could sell the tobacco."

Having cooked and sold peanuts for the past 14 years, the "peanut man" stood at the end of a row, his basket resting on a stack of tobacco. "I used to cook and sell up to 400 pounds a day. I cooked these this morning. . . and sell them most everyday during the market season."

The hour of selling suddenly at an end, the warehouse crowd soon thinned out, with only the farmers and workers left to take care of the remaining tobacco.

Haldeman Testifies He OK'd Money For 'Black Projects'

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former presidential chief of staff H. R. Haldeman testified today that he approved a $90,000 campaign budget for "black projects" prior to the Republican national convention last year. He said he didn't know what the projects were.

Haldeman began answering questions of the Senate Watergate committee after testifying Monday that he listened to two White House tapes he said refute John W. Dean III's testimony about two key meetings with President Nixon.

Haldeman acknowledged that he had approved a memorandum, dated Feb. 3, 1972, seeking campaign funds for White House political projects, such as presidential travel and mailings to special-interest groups. Among the items was $90,000 for "black projects" to be carried out by Charles W. Colson, another White House adviser.

Asked what the projects were, Haldeman said, "I'm not sure." He said he didn't think they had anything to do with previously disclosed "black advance" work, because Colson wasn't an advance man.

Former campaign aide Robert C. Mardian testified earlier that he was told the Nixon reelection campaign had an extensive budget for "black advance" work, which he described as political sabotage.

Haldeman said the budget memo only covered campaign funds that would be needed through Aug. 20, 1972, the time of the Republican convention.

The beginning of Haldeman's interrogation, expected to take most of this week, delved mainly into his responsibilities at the White House and went over points Haldeman made in his opening statement Monday.

Haldeman said Dean came to him in recent months to remind him that Dean told him about two meetings at which the Watergate burglary and other political espionage activities were discussed.

These were the meetings Jan. 27 and Feb. 4 attended by Dean, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, Jeb Stuart Magruder and G. Gordon Liddy, the father of the plan.

"As I recall he told me they had been in December and January and that he attended two meetings and that he had come to me after the second meeting and reported to me that there had been an intelligence plan that had been totally inconceivable and absurd," Haldeman said.

"Do you recall his doing that?" asked committee counsel Samuel Dash.

"I don't recall it with any clear recollection," Haldeman said. "But I was willing to accept Dean's specific accounting to me that it did happen."

Haldeman insisted though that he recalled Dean telling him the meetings were in December 1971 and January 1972, not January and February.

The question of whether the Liddy plan, scaled down from $1 million to $250,000, was finally approved by Mitchell is in dispute. Magruder, Mitchell's deputy, said the former attorney general approved it at a third meeting March 30 last year. Mitchell said he disapproved it. A third man, campaign aide Frederick C. LaRue, said Mitchell neither approved nor disapproved, but said it was something that could be decided later.

Haldeman said also he doesn't recall being informed by his aide, Gordon Strachan, that a sophisticated intelligence plan had been formed in the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

Haldeman said he checked his records to see if he had met with Dean in early 1972 and found there had been a meeting on Feb. 1. But he said his logs would not necessarily be accurate for meetings away from his own office.

The former chief of staff said he knew of the White House "plumbers" unit being set up to plug leaks such as that of the Pentagon Papers, but that he had no active part in it. It was supervised by John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic adviser.

Q. Did you discuss at any time with Ehrlichman the work of the special investigating unit?

A. No, I don't think so other than that there was such a unit and they were working on this.

Flakeboard Plant Shutdown A Blow To Workers And Farmville

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE—Today, of all days, with the tobacco market's opening, it's plain to see that Farmville is what it's always been—a tobacco center.

This town of 5,000 was nonetheless stunned by Friday's announcement that International Paper's flakeboard plant here is to be closed down almost immediately. Some 207 workers, plus clerical workers and supervisors, were told of the shutdown Friday morning.

According to several indications, there had been that something had to happen. Production was way down, largely because of worn-out, obsolete machinery. "We knew they had to put in new equipment or something, boiler operator William B. Gardner said. "A supervisor had told me just the week before, though, that they were going to get new equipment and expand the operation."

Perhaps this was rumor begun with wishful thinking. But Tommy Wainwright of Pitt County Transportation Inc. of Farmville which does almost all IP's hauling of flakeboard said his company had been advised by International Paper just recently to buy new equipment. "We got the announcement along with everyone else on radio and in your newspaper," Wainwright said. "It's really set us back," he said, estimating that at least 50 percent of the trucking firm's business has been dependent on International Paper.

"We turned down tobacco in Georgia this summer to handle our commitments to IP," he said. "It's bad now as IP is tapering off, but it's going to be worse this next winter, when all the other seasonal work is over. We'll just have to look around for new clients, I guess."

R. T. Thompson, International Paper's plant manager, said the shutdown had been months in the making. He said the final decision was made in early June in a Board of Directors' meeting in New York City.

NOT PROFITABLE

"It's just a matter of economics," he said. "This plant has been losing money for the company for some time. It's an old plant, so the equipment is not the most modern and it takes more workers to operate it than it does with newer equipment for the same processes. Also, it's worn out by 15 years of use. Production has been going down steadily for several months because of these problems.

"It was not a decision lightly made," Thompson said. "I understand that this is the first Southerncraft Company, International Paper has ever had to close down."

He maintained that the labor union reportedly quite strong here, had nothing to do with the closing. "There are unions in many of International Paper's plants, including in one of its two other flakeboard plants in the Southerncraft divisions," he said. "We've always got along well with the unions."

He cited as another problem the high cost and relative unavailability of wood for the flakeboard operation. "I understand that International Paper is the largest landowner in the country other than the U. S. government," he said, "yet we have little timberland in North Carolina. Wood has to be hauled such a long distance to this plant or it has to be bought from area farmers and costs us more this way, so this is another big consideration."

Thompson said certain commitments to customers will have to be honored, so operations will continue for a short time. Once the shutdown is in effect, machinery will be dismantled. A few good pieces will be sent to the other flakeboard plants, one in Greenwood, S. C.; and the other in Malvern, Ark. Other machines will be stored for parts, and much will be sold for salvage, he said.

He indicated that every consideration will be given the employees. All will be given the chance to transfer to other International plants and several already have requested such transfers, he said. Generous severance pay and payment of retirement benefits will be worked out for the others, he said.

Any speculation within local circles that complaints about smoke, sawdust, and noise made by nearby residents prompted the shutdown is unfounded, he said. "Had the company decided to stay here, it would only have been a matter of a hundred thousand dollars or so to correct all these problems and the money would have been appropriated," he said.

"This is not pleasant at all," Thompson said. "We have always enjoyed a good relationship with the Farmville community and we hope

By CHRIS CONKLING
NEW YORK (AP) — Severe physical harm to preadolescent children is inherent in Little League baseball, one medical expert warns.

Dr. Joseph Torg, assistant professor of orthopedics at the Temple University School of Medicine and chief of orthopedic surgery at St. Christopher's Hospital for Children, Philadelphia, has found that Little League pitchers, involved in the competitive and highly structured sport of organized baseball, are more prone to serious shoulder and elbow injuries than kids who play the game for fun.

The major physical damage, according to Torg, is that, while the mechanics of pitching are similar for children and adults, preadolescent players can easily injure certain bone growth elements which are no longer present in adults. There may be a high incidence of shoulder problems and a condition known as "Little League elbow," a group of five disorders affecting the growth elements in the pitching elbow.

"Most cases respond to rest and abstinence from pitching," Torg says. "However, in severe cases, healing may take up to a year or 18 months. Also, a fragment of bone may become detached, float free in the elbow joint, interfere with joint mechanics and cause life-long arthritic changes."

Torg maintains that intense competition promotes these disorders.

"Children have been playing baseball for 90 years," Torg says. "It was not until the advent of Little League baseball — organized by adults — that certain abnormalities in the shoulders of preadolescents first developed."

"In Little League baseball, there's repetitious and demanding practice, unwarranted pressures to win — from coaches, from parents and from teammates — and the tendency to treat physically and emotionally immature youngsters as adults."

"In such an atmosphere the preadolescent pitcher too often becomes a damaged pawn."

To eliminate the possibility of shoulder injuries, Torg suggests the elimination of adults from supervisory roles, thereby eliminating the pressure of competition from recreation.

"What we need today is a little more cooperation and a little less competition," Torg insists. "It doesn't have to be an all-or-none phenomenon. It's very possible to cut out intense competition where you have adult pressure in events such as Little League."

Torg cautions that youngsters must be protected from excessively competitive situations, "at least not more than is engendered within themselves, without parents goading them on, until the advent of their secondary sex characteristics," when there is a marked change in the body's physical makeup.

To test how competition might affect young players, Torg and two colleagues contrasted the effects of pitching on the arms of Little Leaguers with those of participants in the Lighthouse Boys' Club baseball program. The club is a Philadelphia-based organization whose purpose is to provide activities for inner-city youths, encouraging participation and recreation rather than competition.

The Lighthouse boys, like the Little Leaguers, were allowed to pitch a full seven innings. The prime difference was that, whereas the Little Leaguers must compete to make the team and to play each game, the Lighthouse members were automatically assigned to a team and were required to play a minimum of 3½ innings per game.

"Roentgenographic examinations of the shoulders and elbows were carried out in 44 of the 49 Club team pitchers," Torg reports. "There were no abnormalities in any of the shoulders," and only two instances of elbow damage.

Compared to an earlier study by Dr. J. E. Adams, a West Coast orthopedic surgeon, of 80 Little League pitchers, which showed 45 of them had "Little League elbow," "these findings are relatively few."

Although Torg admits that his data is not yet conclusive, he feels that "the observations suggest that competition is not good for kids."

Marriage Announced

Mrs. Christine M. Lockamy of New Bern, announces the marriage of her daughter, Judith Anne, to John Mack Nichols, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey G. Nichols of Greenville, on July 7, 1973, in Dillon, S.C. The bride is the daughter of Mr. William Preston Lockamy of Winterville. The couple are residing in Wilson, where he is employed by Branch Banking and Trust Co.

Tea Honors Miss Morgan

Miss Vickie Morgan, bride-elect of Del Burns of Goldsboro, was honored at a tea Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Marshall Whitehurst.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. Earl Costner and Mrs. Roy Rumbley.

Guests were received by Mrs. Jack Morgan, Mrs. A.J. Burns, Mrs. Whithurst and Miss Morgan. Miss Carol Morgan presided at the guest register.

The refreshment table was covered with a white cloth and centered with a bouquet of mixed summer flowers flanked by silver candelabra. Miss Sharon Costner poured punch.

The bride-elect was presented a corsage of white daisies and a gift from the hostesses.

Miss Morgan must be protected from excessively competitive situations, "at least not more than is engendered within themselves, without parents goading them on, until the advent of their secondary sex characteristics," when there is a marked change in the body's physical makeup.

Mother Wants To Keep New Nose Quiet

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: For my high school graduation, my parents gave me a new nose. I had it done last week, and even tho it's still swollen, I just love it!

I am going east to college in the fall. I will be meeting lots of new kids, and my mother told me that I shouldn't tell anybody I had my nose done. I told her I hadn't planned on wearing a sign saying: "I had my nose done," but if it comes up in a conversation, I am not going to lie about it.

She said it would be foolish for me to admit it, and she asked me to promise her I wouldn't tell anybody.

I respect my mother's opinion, and I know she means the best for me, but I just can't make her that kind of promise. This is the first really serious conflict we have ever had. Am I wrong? Or is she?

NOSE JOB

DEAR NOSE JOB: Mother usually nose best, but not this time.

DEAR ABBY: I am very much in love with Steve and he is very much in love with me. We plan to be married in September. There is only one problem: I am also very much in love with my job.

I'm a secretary and have been with the same company for five years. I intend to keep on working after we are married. I guess you could say I am career-minded.

Steve says before we get married I must promise that I will not work over eight hours a day, and I'll not work at all on Saturdays. Right now I work more than eight hours many days, and I work on Saturdays, too.

Steve doesn't think a woman can be married and have a career, too. I disagree, Abby, do you think it's fair for a man to ask a woman to give up something that means as much to her as my job means to me? I love Steve and don't want to lose him, but I also love this job. Please settle this.

STEVE'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: It's all right for a girl to like her job, but if she is "in love" with her job, her love life with a real live man is in trouble. I don't think Steve's requests are unreasonable, but if you do, hold off those wedding bells. I hear a clinker in the belfry.

DEAR ABBY: Is there a way for a couple to be assured they will get the sex child they want? I have heard there is a foolproof method for getting a boy or a girl, whichever the couple prefers. If you know how this can be accomplished with positively no chance of failure, please respond at once, and I will send $25 to any charity you designate.

FATHER OF SIX DAUGHTERS

DEAR FATHER: Yes. ADOPT! Send $25 to your local Planned Parenthood chapter.

DEAR ABBY: Grandma wrote that she was embarrassed because her grandson bragged so much about his war record, even saying that he had won 11 purple hearts. She should use an old Jewish saying next time "Junior" starts to boast:

"Do not make yourself so big

You are not so small."

Says Markets Out Of Beef This Weekend

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS were disputed by the deputy director of the federal Cost of Living Council, who said meat industry pressure to lift the beef price ceiling would be resisted.

"The cattle simply are not being brought to market," Lyle Everingham, president of Kroger Co. of Cincinnati, Ohio, said Monday.

The beef shortage has forced Kroger to lay off 400 workers in 13 meat-processing plants, Everingham said. He predicted further layoffs unless the Phase 4 price ceiling on beef is lifted.

The federal freeze on beef prices also was cited by a union official in New York City who predicted that "housewives of this city and this nation will find there is little if any beef and beef products to be bought anywhere" by the end of the week.

The ceilings are slated to remain on beef until Sept. 12.

One food chain, Finast, posted signs at meat counters asking customers to be "a good neighbor by buying only what you need so there will be enough for everyone."

The warnings from food retailers and meat processors of an impending meat shortage

Direct and indirect assaults on the beef price freeze were coming from inside and outside the country.

The Iowa Cattlemen's Association claimed that Canadian meat packers were circumventing the freeze by purchasing cattle in Iowa and Nebraska for processing in Canada and resale in the United States.

Larry Kallem, executive vice president of the organization, said Canadian packers can make a profit because meat imports to the United States were not affected by the price ceiling on domestic beef.

In Seattle, meat packers from a dozen Western states charged on Monday in a federal suit against the Nixon administration that the freeze is discriminatory.

Calling themselves, "scapegoats," the meat packers charged that many companies will have to close or operate at a loss unless the beef freeze ceiling is lifted.

Can't Escape News Coverage

MIAMI (AP) — Mary Vecchio, who was photographed kneeling over the body of a student killed by National Guard troops at Kent State University three years ago, has been fined $50 on a prostitution charge.

Police records disclose that Miss Vecchio, 17, was arrested by two Miami detectives Friday night after she had solicited them and accepted $20 for prostitution. She pleaded no contest to a charge of offering to commit prostitution.

She blamed news coverage of her arrest on the picture taken of her in 1970 after four students died in the campus shooting at Kent State and the wide use which was made of it.

"No matter what I do, or what my family does, it gets into the newspapers," Miss Vecchio told an interviewer Monday.

"I have friends who got busted for prostitution, and they weren't in the papers.... I can see why movie stars don't give a damn what they do, they'll get bad publicity anyway. It just keeps hanging on."

A runaway at the time of the Kent State shootings, Miss Vecchio was recognized by her parents from the photograph and she was returned home.

She went back to her ninth grade classes at a junior high school here, but she dropped out, ran away again and in 1971 was sent briefly to a home for juvenile delinquents.

She said she became a prostitute just a month ago but has since given it up.

Tapped To Head Safety Office

WASHINGTON (AP) — James B. Gregory, a retired oil firm executive now active in charitable work, will be nominated administrator of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The White House announced on Monday that President Nixon would nominate Gregory, 48, to succeed Douglas W. Toms, who resigned the $40,000-a-year job on March 31.

Hopefully, Inequity Remedied

Phase IV of the nation's attempts to control inflation has been announced and one of its primary features is to lift the freeze on foods.

The President announced that only beef remains subject to rigid price controls lasting until Sept. 12.

Like most of the nation we were appalled at the rapid rise in food prices which the nation faced prior to the most recent freeze. After the freeze took effect however, it became apparent that the result was going to be future shortages of food items.

That was true because even though prices were not frozen at the farm level, the farmer was limited in what he could get for his product because of the retail freeze. Thus soon came the stories of cut-backs in farm production because the farm operators recognized that they would be producing foodstuffs at a loss.

The food price freeze held retail prices for a time, but it is clear that with the freeze lifted there will soon be increases which will send food prices upward again.

It has long been argued as to who was getting the money from rapidly rising food prices—the farmer, the middle man or the super markets.

We hope that the farmer is getting a considerable part of it. The question arises as to whether the recent rapid increase in food prices is not really an adjustment in our economy because the farmer operator and farm workers have for so long gotten so little. We have had the situation where the $2,000 per year farm worker has helped to pay the $10,000 per year auto worker's salary when the farm laborer purchased a car. By the same token the $10,000 per year auto worker was benefitting from $2,000 per year farm laborers when he went to the store to purchase groceries.

Such an inequity could not go on forever and perhaps an adjustment is presently taking place which is causing the rapid increase in food prices.

This is not much comfort to the city worker who faces ever rising prices, and yet most of us are fair minded enough to want to see the farm operator and the farmer worker get a reasonable living out of their toil.

Sedimentation Action 'Iffy'

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — While Gov. Jim Holshouser took a first step Monday (July 30) toward implementing the General Assembly's 1973 bill on control of sedimentation of streams, those close to the problem are not optimistic of results.

An 11-member commission was named to develop regulations and administer the act which took effect July 1.

The commission's first job will be to draw up specific regulations governing the deposit of soil in creeks and streams, and they have a year for that process.

In the meantime, there are three provisions in the act which are mandatory, and are now effective:

1. Steep slopes which permit ready washing away of soil are regulated;
2. Any ground clearing over one acre in size must not be left uncovered by some form of foliage or ground cover more than 30 days;
3. A buffer zone of foliage must be left around any land-disturbing operation.

One Staff Man
But while a commission is now organized and the law ready to be enforced, only one full time staff member in the N. C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources will be provided to work with the commission.

The coordinator for sedimentation will be charged with hearing complaints from the public about creek problems created through land clearing in the area by developers; working with local governmental agencies regarding creek sedimentation problems; and enforcing the rules against developers.

As a spokesman at the state's Department of Natural and Economic Resources put it bluntly: "We just don't have the manpower to enforce this law."

"We will contact governments and ask them to enact bills shadowing these three mandatory state regulations so they can help with the enforcement," he said.

"We will also call on soil conservationists with the federal government to help as far as educating both local governments and developers. "But, with one guy and his secretary, there won't be much enforcement. Essentially, we'll be asking voluntary compliance."

Some Penalties
The law provides penalties, but officials think it unlikely any would be applied except in flagrant cases.

Conservationists are frankly worried over the situation, since sedimentation of streams is a leading factor in the increasing incidence of flooding in North Carolina.

The new law covers any "land-disturbing" activities, principally at construction sites and on road-building projects. Farming operation are excluded.

Here, in brief, is the process connected with land-disturbing construction which is causing concern to soil conservationists:

Soil left uncovered washes into nearby creeks or streams and washes downstream where it is deposited. This causes blockage or narrowing of the stream, forcing the water to run higher in the banks and faster.

The velocity of the water tears away natural vegetation along the creek-bank, causing even more erosion and blockage until eventually the flooding potential of the creek is increased tremendously.

Controls are available to prevent this problem, conservationists say, including sediment traps at construction sites to hold the soil between the construction area and the creeks; buffer zones to trap the washed soil; ground cover foliage; etc.

The new law specifically mentions both standard construction operations and road-building, where raw banks contribute to large volume of sedimentation to streams.

But conservationists look with concern at the enforcement process at the state level, and at the wording of the bill which calls for "a program and . . . adoption of minimal mandatory standards which will permit development of this state to continue with the least detrimental effects from pollution by sedimentation."

Special Interests
Observers are also anxious to see just how members of the commission will perform, since a number are by law members of "special interest groups" including persons nominated by the state Home Builders Association; Associated General Contractors; an officer of a public utility company; member of the State Mining Council.

The makeup is, however, balanced by the required appointment of a soil scientist from N. C. State University; the director of the N. C. Water Resources Research Institute; member of the Soil and Water Conservation Committee; member of the State Board of Water and Air Resources; and two persons representing non-governmental conservation interests.

Ehrlichman's Fact-Shredder

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The rationale for burglarizing the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist given by John D. Ehrlichman's sworn testimony is shredded by one fact not disclosed until now: a 1971 secret meeting between G. Gordon Liddy and FBI officials.

Liddy asked whether the FBI was seriously investigating Ellsberg's disclosure of the Pentagon Papers. The answer was an unequivocal yes. Indeed, the facts not revealed previously repudiate suggestions by Ehrlichman—and President Nixon himself—that the FBI was restrained from probing Ellsberg by J. Edgar Hoover's non-cooperation.

Ehrlichman and the President were either given false information, or distorted the truth. The result was an illegal act, now defended by Ehrlichman as a proper exercise of presidential power, which never would have been entertained by the FBI. As elsewhere in Watergate, the Ellsberg burglary can be traced to one of two sources: presidential complicity or presidential confusion.

The dispute stems from Ehrlichman's testimony Tuesday that his lieutenant, Egil (Bud) Krogh (head of the new "Plumbers" unit), told him that "I am having real trouble getting the FBI to move on this (the Ellsberg case)."

In fact, a key Plumber, Liddy, visited FBI headquarters in the summer of 1971 after the Pentagon Papers were leaked and published. He told a Hoover lieutenant that a secret White House unit had been formed under Krogh's leadership to plug leaks of security information—the first the FBI heard of the Plumbers. Liddy was told the FBI had plugged the leaks itself.

When Liddy next asked about the Ellsberg investigation, he was taken to the FBI official in charge of the case. This official told Liddy the Ellsberg probe was, in FBI parlance, "a special," with a separate staff, and that "we are going all out." Liddy did not dispute this.

In truth, nearly double the agents working on the Berrigan case, then Hoover's favorite cause, were assigned to the Ellsberg unit. Although Hoover's bureaucratic red tape probably hampered the investigation, nobody at the FBI given any credence to Ehrlichman's testimony—previously attributed to Mr. Nixon—that Hoover smothered the Ellsberg probe.

Ehrlichman testified Tuesday that then Atty. Gen. John Mitchell told him "We have a very tough problem" because Hoover prohibited an FBI interview of millionaire toy manufacturer Louis Marx, Ellsberg's father-in-law and Hoover's close friend. Moreover, testifying earlier before the Ervin committee, presidential aide Richard Moore said Mr. Nixon told him this year the White House itself investigated the Ellsberg case because of Hoover's friendship with Marx.

The facts are that Marx was interviewed by the FBI. A proposed interview had been disapproved by Hoover, but the official running the Ellsberg investigation inadvertently overlooked Hoover's disapproval and authorized the interview (which turned out to be unproductive). Marx told the FBI agent he disagreed philosophically with his super-dovish son-in-law and did not even know his whereabouts.

When he learned his, an outraged Hoover banished the official to a field office (a transfer overruled by Mitchell, as Ehrlichman testified). The bizarre case reveals the petty toughest critics could not claim it remotely affected investigating the Ellsberg case.

Nor would those FBI officials critical of Hoover's latter-day caution have dreamed recommending a burglary of the psychiatrist's office. On July 20, 1971, Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis J. Fielding, refused to talk to FBI agents because of the doctor-patient relationship. Under long-standing procedure, when refused the doctor's records, the FBI dropped the matter.

Accordingly, when Ehrlichman initiated the Aug. 11 memorandum authorizing a "covert operation," he was taking action impermissible in the FBI no matter what Director Hoover's attitude. The FBI learned of the Sept. 3 break-in this past spring.

Excesses Will Be Seen

Barely six weeks have passed since the Supreme Court handed down its new guidelines on obscenity, and we are already headed back to Square One. It is like the Marx Brothers, who first sold their suckers a Code book and then sold them a Code Book to understand the Code Book. We will have to have further guidelines to understand the guidelines.

Across the country, and especially across the South, local prosecutors are leaping into a race to determine who is most against smut. They are cracking down on such magazines as Playboy and such movies as Carnal Knowledge. The attorney general of Virginia is petitioning the high court for clarification. The American Civil Liberties Union is fairly frothing. At the University of Virginia, editors of the Cavalier Daily assert that their blood is "literally boiling, a vascinating prospect, and Jacqueline Susann is aghast."

Ms. Susann was in Washington a few days ago to promote her new book. She makes these occasional tours, she said, because they give her an opportunity to see "what people outside New York are really like." She had made a discovery: "There is a different morality outside the bit cities." If local community standards are to prevail, she feared for the worst. "Everybody I know," she said "is outraged."

Her observations are pertinent. Ms. Susann writes novels that turn noses blue. It is a manifestation of that different morality she perceives among the heathen whose habitations lie somewhere west of the Hudson. But Ms. Susann is not writing pornography; she is writing trash. Her lip-licking novels bear about the same relationship to actionable obscenity that the tasty offerings of Mr. McDonald bear to a platter of chitterlings. They are not even second cousins. And the fact that Ms. Susann's lip-lickers have sold 11 billion copies, or whatever, attests to her community acceptance across the country.

This is not what the Court was talking about in its rash of opinions on June 21. Chief Justice Burger tried to make

Public Forum

Letters submitted for publication must be limited to 300 words, and signed.

To the editor:

This letter is concerned with what I feel to be an unreasoned, excessive, unfair increase in the utility rates perpetrated by the Greenville Utilities Commission. I am fighting mad; I am concerned, and there are many other tax-paying citizens who are concerned. We want to know WHY. We want answers that are honest, and answers that we can understand. We want answers that do not sound like an Ehrlichman, Haldeman, Mitchell coverup.

There are several questions I would like to ask. Good, sound answers to these questions might help settle the growing unrest in the city of Greenville.

1. Why was there a rate increase for services given by the Utilities Commission of Greenville?
2. Why are there so many apparent discrepancies in utility rates?
3. Why can I not get satisfactory service and satisfactory answers from the Greenville Utilities Commission when requested?
4. Who in this town is responsible for explaining honestly, and openly, to the public what the energy problems are? Is it the City Council? The City Manager? The City Engineer? Or, is it, as it usually is, the lowest man in the maintenance department?
5. Is the utility rate in this town a hidden tax? If it is not, why doesn't someone come out and convince the public it isn't? If it is a hidden tax, why?
6. Do utility commission personnel read meter each month? If not, how do they know what one should be charged?
7. Does the building code regarding the wiring of houses need revising and investigating in this town? My real question is, if a house is not properly wired, is this in itself a source of energy loss? Who is responsible for inspecting the work of electrical contractors in Greenville? We do have a building inspector, don't we?

I recommend very strongly that someone responsible in this town, a public official, either elected or appointed, give priority to the idea of answering honestly the questions listed above. Is suggest that he use either television or this paper as a medium of explaining to concerned citizens the facts behind the so-called energy crisis in Greenville.

Check Your Status

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Would you be surprised if people suddenly started cutting you up socially or at the office? Well, you shouldn't be. It is your own fault. Unnoticed by yourself, you have been slowly losing status, and all at once, it seems, people have turned on you.

HAL BOYLE

But they always turn against anyone who doesn't take the trouble to protect his status. In this world you don't need to keep your mind to be successful—but you do have to save face.

How can one safeguard his status? By checking it regularly. How often? Well, if you're the careful type, you'll check it as often as you should brush your teeth—at least twice a day.

Here are a few simple ways to check your status. It is probably triple-A if the following things are true of you:

You have a 10-room suite at the Watergate, but you don't have to testify to the Senate where you got the money to pay the rent. You've made the last payment on the three original Picasso paintings you bought on credit 10 years ago.

A state official has arranged that the water in the swimming pool at your country place will be changed once a week at no expense.

Local firms today announced that they would cooperate with President Roosevelt in his National Recovery Plan by increasing payrolls and number of employees. The Greenville Cotton Mill announced that pay of employees has been increased to $12 a week as provided by the textile code under the Recovery Plan and that a night shift has been placed in operation doubling the force from 150 to 300 employees.

Greenville merchants were today preparing to observe Thursday, August 3rd as "Dollar Day" and an advertising campaign is under way to bring the largest crowd to the city ever. Approximately twenty leading merchants will take part in celebrating "Dollar Day."

'Guidelines' Not For Everybody

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — There's nothing like a good discussion of somebody else's finances to take your mind off your own. To fuel such a discussion, hoping it remains that and nothing hotter, consider this:

In 1972 there existed a 5.5 per cent guideline for wage increases. In spite of this, the total compensation of chief executives rose about 7.8 per cent, according to a survey by McKinsey & Co., management consultants. The survey was conducted among 592 of the largest U.S. corporations in 31 industries. The findings reveal that compensation rose 18.6 per cent in motor vehicles and equipment and 12.8 per cent in railroads.

"Only five industries failed to post increases," McKinsey found, "with meat products alone showing a significant over-all chief executive pay cut—a decrease of 14.3 per cent."

How could such a thing occur, seemingly in violation of guidelines? The answer lies in the difference between salaries and total compensation, which includes not just the salary but the bonus and incentives and such.

"The fact that executive incentive plans are controlled separately from salaries under existing pay regulations accounts for why over-all executive compensation can increase by the 7.8 per cent that it did, despite a 5.5 per cent wage increase guideline," said George Foote, a McKinsey partner. A separate analysis of salaries only showed an increase of about 5 per cent from 1971 to 1972, he said, concluding: "The charge made in some quarters that executives have been lining their pockets at the expense of lower paid employees does not appear to be substantiated by the facts."

And here's another: If for some reason you had the notion that business hasn't been good, perhaps because the stock market simply doesn't reflect it at all, you should be reminded that seldom in recent history have corporate profits risen so sharply.

Preliminary computations show that after-tax profits of corporations during the April-May-June quarter were about 30 per cent higher than in the same period a year earlier.

In publishing its own survey, First National City Bank commented: "A rapidly expanding economy and easing of price controls under Phase 3 helped increase earnings at five out of six of the firms covered by the survey."

Here are a few of the after-tax corporate profits reported by Citibank for the first half of 1973 compared with the first half of 1972:

Paper 74 per cent, iron and steel 57, nonferrous metals 51, automobiles and parts 58, chemicals 40, petroleum 46, machinery 35, rubber and plastics 30 and textiles 29 per cent.

Anticipating such increases, Robert Parks, the chief economist for the investment house of Blyth Eastman Dillon commented in a research piece directed at the company's personnel:

"Price violators anyone? The statement . . . by the Cost of Living Council that it has found only a few violations of price standards under Phase 3 is astonishing to us on a number of accounts."

He proceeded to list some of them, the first of which was:

"It runs counter to the overall data for several industries, which show rapid price rises, wholesale and retail, in the first half of this year, a large climb in total profits, and a significant rise in profit margins . . ."

Many of the profit margins, he argued, rose above the average of the best two of the past four or five fiscal years," which suggested to him that more profit violations could be found than were turned up by the council.

Strength For Today

NATURE NOT ENOUGH
It is not difficult to believe that God is in the world as we look out over the green fields to distant purple mountains, or as we look into the deep blue of summer skies, or into the glory of a starry night. Surely, we say, there must have been a creator behind them.

Yet, when we have made this assertion we have not established a sufficient basis for religious faith. If we are going to trust God, we must have certain assurances concerning his character. We cannot worship God just because he put the touch of beauty into the landscape. The hills and the valleys, the ocean and the sky are not a sufficient Bible for us. God himself must tell us certain things about himself before we are justified in falling down and worshipping him.

The Bible and God's holy spirit speaking to our hearts disclose what the beauty of nature never can, and what the soul must know if it is to have peace.

Insurgents Near Phnom Penh

By DENNIS NEELD
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian insurgents edged closer today to Takhmau, only four miles from the edge of Phnom Penh and the key to the city's southern defense line. Fighting was reported during the night within two miles of Takhmau, and a government communique said three villages south of the town were hit by fire. Many people have fled their homes along the thickly settled road between Takhmau and Phnom Penh. Other fighting was reported both north and south of Phnom

Penh, but details and casualties were not announced. On the south, the battlefronts were at the village of Preateah Lang, where a government armored force is trying to outflank the insurgent advance from the southwest; at Wat Sleng, on Highway 3 nine miles from the capital; and at Prek Ho, six miles south of the city. Northwest of Phnom Penh, fighting erupted at the village of Kap Srathom.

In Saigon, the South Vietnamese military command reported four civilians were killed and 21 were wounded in grenade and mortar attacks Monday on a hamlet on the central coastal plain and near Ben Cat, 25 miles north of Saigon. The command accused the Communists of 97 cease-fire violations during the 24 hours ending at dawn.

The Canadian peacekeeping mission flew home from Vietnam after six months of frustration and dissension with the Hungarian and Polish members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision.

Arrest 16-Year-Old In $15,000 Extortion Plot

DURHAM (AP)—A 16-year-old Durham youth was arrested Monday by a dozen federal and local officers at a wooded area where they had put a package in response to a threat to a banker's family.

The banker said a telephone caller had told him that his wife and daughter were being held and that he should get $15,000 for the caller.

The banker, Robert F. McCarn, first learned that his family was safe, then notified police. The bank said a package was prepared that did not contain any money and delivered to the specified location.

Nearly two hours after officers began watching the spot, they arrested Richard L. Bullock. Police said he was charged with attempting to commit common law robbery. Bullock was jailed under $7,500 bond pending a Durham County District Court hearing Wednesday.

Durham police and a spokesman for North Carolina National Bank gave this account: McCarn, operations manager and vice president of the bank, received a call about 10:30 a.m. from a person who asked if it were possible to have money transferred from a Baltimore bank to Durham. McCarn said yes and that the caller should come by the bank.

The caller thanked McCarn and hung up. In less than 30 minutes the official received another call from a person he identified as the first caller. He said the caller inquired if he were McCarn and then said, "Well, I have your wife and daughter as hostages and want $15,000 in cash."

McCarn said he was given directions to a wooded area near the downtown section where the money was to be left and told to have it there in 15 minutes.

When McCarn said he wasn't sure he could do it, the caller told him if he didn't "it will be your funeral."

The official immediately telephoned his home, found his family all right, then notified police. The Durham County Sheriff's Department sent deputies to the home for several hours.

The FBI was also alerted. Officers from the federal and city agencies took the bank package to the designated spot and remained from about 11:30 a.m. until 1:15 p.m. when the youth was picked up.

U.S. B52 bombing missions continued around the clock, pounding at insurgent concentrations and supply routes. American fighter-bombers continued to give close support to government ground forces. A river convoy of seven oil tankers, four freighters and two tugboats reached Phnom Penh Monday night without losses after the hazardous 60-mile run up the Mekong from the South Vietnamese border. It carried fuel, rice and ammunition.

Rotaries For 1974 Vegas

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — General Motors President Edward Cole says his company will manufacture 100,000 Wankel rotary engine Vegas in 1974.

Cole told University of Michigan students on Monday that development of the rotary engine is limited only by time and research money available. He said the engine has advantages in size, weight and the low number of moving parts.

Cole also told a university engineering and management seminar here that the Wankel will be able to meet federal emission standards, although he said they were the result of "legislative overkill."

Cole said General Motors has studied several different engine designs—including the gas turbine, stratified charge, steam and Stirling engines. He said the rotary design is most likely to be used extensively in the future.

"While the problem was intricate and sophisticated, several of the autos currently equipped with rotary engines have apparently handled it quite successfully," he said. Cole said GM's engineers have modified the engine slightly and solved the sealing, emissions and fuel economy problems that originally plagued the Wankel engine.

The GM executive said a major problem remaining in the mass production of rotary engine cars is manufacturing—the cost of factory changeovers and machine retooling might be prohibitive.

Kilpatrick Col.

(Continued From Page 4) this clear, but he will have to try again. Meanwhile, it may be useful to look once more at some of the language in Miller v. California and its companion cases. State statutes designed to regulate obscene materials, said the Court, "must be 'carefully limited.'" The sexual conduct portrayed in such material must be "patently offensive." The Court had in mind the depiction of "ultimate sexual acts, normal or perverted." Its guidelines were intended to isolate "hard-core pornography" only. The Court specifically excluded works that evidence "serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value."

To persons with any knowledge of the sordid world of commercialized pornography, these guidelines should be reasonably clear. The movie "Deep throat" is patently offensive in a way that "The Last Picture Show" plainly is not. Ms. Susann's latest novel, "Once Is Not Enough," clearly can be distinguished from an excretion known as "Suite 69" that figured in the companion case of Kaplan v. California.

Such distinctions are puzzling only to those who want to be puzzled. They present no especially novel problems at law. For a jury to conclude that a particular work is "patently" offensive is not more complex than concluding that a particular action is "reasonably" necessary.

As the States rewrite their obscenity laws, and new prosecutions are undertaken, we can expect some mistakes, some excesses of censorship, some bad errors of judgment. But after the first spasms of morality have subsided, and various appellate courts have had an opportunity to build upon the Miller decisions, perhaps a body of law will develop that will more clearly define the "hard-core" stuff the Court has in mind.

The high court never will be done with what the late Justice Harlan called "the intractable problem of obscenity." But, then, the Court will never be done with determining "probable cause" or "due process of law." If its new guidelines serve to keep hard-core pornographers at bay on the one hand, and puritanical prosecutors at bay on the other, a very considerable area of freedom will remain in between.

Record High For Tobacco

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP) — The Georgia-Florida clue-cured tobacco market set a record high Monday for the average price of a hundred pounds of Type 14 tobacco.

The Federal-State Market News Service reported that 9,594,301 pounds were sold for an average of $87.42 per hundred pounds. That clipped by two cents the previous high set on Aug. 8, 1972.

Tobacco farmers sold $8,347,935 on Monday to boost the season total to $30,210,541. More than 35 million pounds have been sold since the market opened a week ago and have averaged $85.61 per hundred pounds.

On Monday, the opening day of the second week of the season, the practical top price rose to $91 per hundred pounds and gains ranged from $1 to $3 per hundred pounds over last Thursday as the largest increases centered on better quality grades.

Auction bid averages per hundred pounds on several U.S. grades and comparisons on Monday:

B4F $91 up $3; B5F $89 up $1; C4L $91 up $2; C5L $89 up $2; X3L $90 up $3; X4L $88 up $1; X3F $90 up $3; C4F $89 up $2; P3L $89 up $2; P4L $87 unchanged; P4F $88 up $1; P5F $86 unchanged.

Claim Accord—On Repatriation

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — Informed sources say India and Pakistan have agreed on the repatriation of more than 90,000 Pakistani prisoners held in India since the 1971 war that created Bangladesh.

Delegations from the two governments ended nine days of talks today in Rawalpindi, and the sources said they also agreed on the exchange of Bengalis in Pakistan for Biharis in Bangladesh.

Film Banned By British Censor

LONDON (AP) — British film censor Stephen Murphy has banned American director Sam Peckinpah's latest movie, "Pat Garrett and Billy the Kid." He cited "casual, motiveless" killings in the $2.5-million Western, which stars James Coburn, Kris Kristofferson and Bob Dylan.

The picture's European premiere, scheduled for Aug. 16 in London, was postponed. Sources in the movie industry said Murphy's ban reflected the growing opposition among the British public to violence on the screen.

California's first mint was opened at Mount Ophir in the Mother Lode country.

Rouse Sees No Contest

RALEIGH (AP) — An aide to North Carolina Republican Chairman Frank Rouse says he doesn't believe Rouse will have any opposition in his bid for reelection.

Rep. Gilbert Lee Boger, R-Davie, predicted Monday that Rouse would eventually have the support of 75 per cent of the delegates to the November convention in Raleigh.

"It looks so darn good, I don't believe they'll run anybody," Boger said in an interview. "It would take a big name Republican and I don't think one would want to risk his political future."

Boger said Rouse expects an opponent backed by Gov. Jim Holshouser, "but I don't."

Jack Childs, the governor's press secretary, said Monday the chances of Holshouser actively opposing Rouse are slim. Rouse and Holshouser fell out in 1972 when Rouse left office to campaign for Holshouser's unsuccessful primary opponent, Jim Gardner of Rocky Mount.

Boger estimated that the Rouse campaign will cost a minimum of $25,000 and donations are being sought to finance it. He said Rouse spent $20,000 of his own money in winning the chairmanship in 1971.

Rouse and Allie Ray McCullen, the party's executive secretary, are campaigning around the state this week.

Boger said the campaign is moving at a brisk pace, adding: "It's becoming apparent that in the next two weeks, we may have it locked up."

Oregon has 200 state parks, including some featuring sand dunes, gorges, waterfalls and caves.

'Hammer' Feted

HOUSTON (AP) — They call Hank Aaron "The Hammer," and Monday the Southern Christian Leadership conference made sure no one forgets it by presenting him with a 16-pound silver-plated sledgehammer.

Aaron, who now has 700 home runs, 14 short of the all-time record held by Babe Ruth, told the SCLC luncheon that he's only after his niche in history, and not the Babe's.

"I intend to retire the season I get the record," said Aaron. "People seem to feel that I am trying to do away with the memory of Babe Ruth. That's not true. Babe Ruth is one of the greatest men to play the game."

"I just don't want anybody to forget Hank Aaron," Aaron, who has one more year to go on his contract with the Braves, said he has no doubt he will break the record.

"I look at Roger Maris who had a whole season to hit 61 home runs. If I can't hit 14 in 1½ seasons, I don't deserve them."

Aaron said blacks have proven themselves on the baseball field and now it's time for them to move to higher positions in the game.

"As I look at major league baseball today," he said, "I think of something the late Jackie Robinson told me. He told me that until he saw black faces in managers' positions, until he saw more blacks as coaches, that the game would be like stagnant water to him."

"What baseball needs to do is revamp itself. To give blacks an opportunity to show their ability to lead in other places than just the field."

BASEBALL'S FOURTH NO-HITTER — Jim Bibby of the Texas Rangers pitches in his no-hit game Monday night against the Oakland A's in Oakland Stadium where the Rangers won, 6-0. He struck out 13 batters while pitching in the fourth no-hitter this season in the majors. (AP Wirephoto.)

Bibby Becomes Fourth To Throw No-Hitter

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
"Things are looking up now," said Jim Bibby. The Texas Rangers pitcher couldn't have been any more "up" against Oakland.

White Sox 9, Twins 1
Jim Kaat entered the game at Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium with a 29-10 lifetime record against Chicago. Now it's 29-11.

Blair of the Orioles struck out on a ninth-inning changeup which bounced in front of the plate. The Tigers' ace reliever replaced Mickey Lolich after Andy Etchebarren's two-run homer had cut into a lead built on solo homers by Dick McAuliffe, Duke Sims and Jim Northrup.

In the National League, Montreal swept a doubleheader from the New York Mets 1-0 and 5-2 in 10 innings, Philadelphia nipped Pittsburgh 1-0, the Chicago Cubs downed St. Louis 3-1, Atlanta ripped Houston 7-3 and Los Angeles beat San Francisco 5-2.

Red Sox 4, Yankees 3
Jim Ray Hart's ninth homer of the baseball season, a two-out shot in the top of the ninth, averted a defeat for the Yankees—but only temporarily. In the bottom of the ninth, Rico Petrocelli, who had hit a two-run homer earlier, led off against New York's ace reliever, Sparky Lyle, with a single, moved to third on a wild pitch, and came home on Rick Miller's single, giving the Red Sox a 4-3 victory.

Tigers 4, Orioles 3
John Hiller saved Detroit's 4-3 victory with a "pitch that never got there."

Four Teams Are Ousted

Parkers Barbecue remained alive last night, but Burger King split a pair of decisions in the City League tourney Monday night.

Parker's came up with an 11-2 win over Morgan Printers in the opener, and closed out Four Seasons in the nightcap, 10-6.

Burger King took a split by losing to Hardee's in the finale by 11-7. They won the first game over Proctors, 11-10.

The wins and losses now set up a meeting for Little Sluggers and Hardee's tomorrow night, while Dainty Maid and Parker's will tangle in the Gold Division.

Proctors took the an early lead in their first battle, but saw Burger King come back to tie it at four in the bottom of the first. Burger King took the lead in the second when L. Smith reached on an error and scored on a double by L. Brock.

Proctor's got four in the fifth and two in the seventh, but Burger King rallied again in the sixth with five spot to shut the door on Proctor's. They had scored one earlier in the third.

Hardee's put up six runs in the first three innings while BK could only manage Three. Five more runs by Hardee's in the fifth and sixth finished off BK, who could only score one in the seventh.

Parkers scored in the final four innings to take care of Four Seasons. Four Seasons got five in the fifth and one more in the seventh, but came up short, despite a triple by R. Vincent.

Earlier, they had disposed of Morgan Printers. They got all they needed in the first on doubles by Garrett, Wallace, and Nichols, and a single by Mills.

So. Pitt Romps

WASHINGTON — Southern Pitt's Little League All-Stars romped to a 17-5 win over the Beaufort County All-Stars at Washington last night.

Neal Johnson was the winning pitcher for Southern Pitt. He allowed twelve walks, but struck out six and gave up only two hits. Rose was the loser for Beaufort, though he, too, gave up only two hits.

Southern Pitt's next competition will be tonight with a team not yet announced.

Farmville Wins, 12-7

WASHINGTON — Farmville's entry in the District VIII Tar Heel League tournament took a 12-3 win from Plymouth yesterday.

Jimmy Whatley was the winning pitcher for Farmville. Allen Moore led the hitting with three in four trips. Ted Johnson had two hits for Farmville. Randy Barber led the Plymouth team with two hits.

Farmville will next meet the winner of the Washington-South Pitt game on Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m.

Trio Brings Pirate Collar

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Steve Carlton, Bob Boone and John McSherry teamed up to help the Philadelphia Phillies blank the Pittsburgh Pirates 1-0.

That's Carlton...as in pitcher...Boone...as in catcher... and McSherry...as in umpire.

Carlton, 1972's Cy Young Award winner, hurled a six-hitter, walked one and struck out 10. But it took a fluke play in the seventh inning of the Monday night game to preserve the shutout.

Vic Davaillo, a pinch runner, was at first base with two out when Dave Cash rapped a single past third baseman Mike Schmidt. It might have gone for extra bases but the ball struck umpire McSherry and caromed toward left fielder Greg Luzinski and Davaillo had to stop at second. Both runners advanced on a wild pitch but Rennie Stennett struck out to end the threat.

A 27-game winner last season, Carlton boosted his 1973 mark to 10-11 and finally got his earned run average under 4.00...to 3.98.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Chicago Cubs shaded the St. Louis Cardinals 3-1, the Los Angeles Dodgers beat the San Francisco Giants 5-2, the Montreal Expos took two from the New York Mets 10 and 5-2 in 10 innings and the Atlanta Braves downed the Houston Astros 7-3. Cincinnati and San Diego were not scheduled.

Cubs 3, Cards 1
Rick Reuschel allowed only five hits in outdueling Bob Gibson and pitching the Cubs to within 1½ games of the Cardinals in the NL East. It marked the first time since June 29 the Cubs put two victories back-to-back.

St. Louis scored in the top of the first when Lou Brock walked, stole his 35th base of the baseball season and the 600th of his career and came home on a single by Tim McCarver.

Dodgers 5, Giants 2
Dave Lopes drove in two runs with a homer and single and Joe Ferguson also homered as the Dodgers boosted their lead in the NL West to five games over idle Cincinnati and seven over the Giants.

Claude Osteen held the Giants to four hits, one of them Gary Matthews' seventh homer. Ron Bryant, tied with Cincinnati's Jack Billingham as the league's top winner, took the loss, his eighth against 15 wins. He's 4-8 against the Dodgers in his career and 0-8 in Dodger Stadium.

Expos 1-5, Mets 0-2
John Boccabella crashed a three-run double in the 10th inning of the nightcap after Ken Singleton's run-scoring double in the ninth inning won the opener as rookie Steve Rogers hurled his second straight shutout with a seven-hitter.

Braves 7, Astros 3
Ron Schueler scattered seven hits and Darrell Evans and Frank Tepedino crashed home runs for the Braves off sore-armed Larry Dierker, who was making his first start in eight weeks. Evans' two-run shot in the first inning was his 29th.

Greenville In Babe Ruth Win

NEW BERN—Doug Selby scored the winning run on a passed ball in the bottom of the eighth inning to give the 13-year old Babe Ruth All-Stars an 8-7 win over Union County and move up in the district tournament.

Greenville had pushed over three in the seventh to tie the game at 7-7 and won it after seeing Union County load the bases in the top of the eighth.

Union scored first as they fought for a 4-0 lead in the first. Greenville tied it up in the second with a four-run burst but the lead went right back to Union in the third as they rallied for three. It stayed that way until the seventh.

Willie Wynn opened the game with a single and went to second on a hit by Jimmy Tyson. Both runners moved up on a passed ball and an intentional walk was given to Dayrol Barrino filling the bases. Two walks, to Mike Stewart and Ronnie Chaney brought in two runs and a hit by Mike Helms drove in two more runs.

Greenville tied it up in the second. Derek Brewington reached on an error and Greg Lee moved him to second with a hit. Danny Hester walked loading the bases and both John Coffman and Freager Sanders walked forcing in two runs. Selby smashed a double driving in Hester and Coffman. Union was not happy with the last inning so in the third they rallied for three more getting the lead back. Barrino walked and stole second. Stewart walked but was forced at second by Chaney. Barrino scored on the fielder's choice. Helms singled Chaney over to third and after Helms stole up, Ven Burwell walked.

Mark Arrowwood grounded into a force play but Chaney scored. Wynn was safe on an error scoring Helms.

Greenville almost won it in the seventh but their rally fell a run short. One-out walks to Jeff Aldridge, Brewington and Lee loaded the bases and Hester singled to left. Aldridge scored by Gary Allen, running for Brewington, was nailed at third. Coffman walked reloading the bases and Sanders blasted a two run single to right to tie the game.

Walks to Tyson, Mike Stewart and Chaney loaded the bases for Union in the eighth but a fielder's choice ended the threat.

Selby singled and Allen walked. A wild pitch let Selby get to third and scored when the catcher's pick off attempt was errored.

Greenville will play again tonight at 9:00 p.m. Union County 403 000 00—7 7 3 Greenville 040 000 31—8 6 1 Arrowwood and Barrino; Cleetwood, Ross (1), Lee (3) and Brewington.

CONGRESSIONAL TUMBLE — Rep. Lou Frey, R-Fla., hits the ground after trying unsuccessfully to tag out Rep. Walter Flowers, D-Ala., in Monday night's Congressional baseball game at Memorial Stadium in Baltimore. Flowers was caught off second on a pickoff attempt but made it back safely. 'Vinegar Bend' Banned, Wins Anyway, 12-4

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer
BALTIMORE (AP) — Circumstances prevent big Wilmer "Vinegar Bend" Mizell from offering a low profile, but he does look less imposing way out in center field.

That's where the Republican congressman from North Carolina plays in exile, more or less, since being banished from taking the mound in the annual baseball game against the Democrats.

But even without the pitching of Mizell, who won 90 games in the major leagues, the Republicans took a 12-4 decision Monday night. It was the 10th straight victory for the GOP, which now leads the series 11-1.

Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois remained unbeaten while notching his 11th victory, with two innings of relief help from Rep. Bill Cohen of Maine in the four-inning contest.

Reps. Alan Steelman of Texas, Will Hudnut of Indiana, and William Keating of Ohio each drove in two runs for the Republicans, while Rep. Lou changes, and an outfield caucus between two Democrats which allowed a ball hit by Steelman to fall for a single.

Secretaries from Capitol Hill acted as cheerleaders for both teams, although their plea to "hit it again, harder," sounded more apropos for football.

Rep. Silvio Conte of Massachusetts, the GOP manager through the entire series, was named his team's most valuable player. For the Democrats, the honor went to Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana.

"I don't know how long I can pitch," said Michel, a former baseball star at Bradley University. "When you reach 50, you start thinking of slowing down—even in congressional games."

"We're like the old Washington Senators' baseball team, which won the Grapefruit League in the spring and then finished last in the American League," Mizell said of his GOP team. "We win the games in the summer, and lose the elections in the fall."

High-Scorer Forecast

GREENSBORO (AP) — Another high-scoring game is forecast at the East-West All-Star contest in the 25th annual basketball game at the Greensboro Coliseum tonight.

A year ago John Lucas, now a Maryland standout, put in 31 points while pacing the East to victory.

This year's starting guard combination of Jerry Moore (Madison-Mayodan) and Randy Abernathy (Hilderran) have a combined scoring average of 52 points for the West. But the West spotlight falls on seven-foot Jeff Crompton of Burlington Williams and forward Melvin Watkins of Reidsville both of whom earned all-American honors last season.

Forward Sam Kennedy of Winston-Salem Reynolds joins them in the starting West lineup. East hopes rest heavily on the 6-7 foot frame of center

Cedric Maxwell, a shot blocker from Kinston. He'll get help from 6-5 forwards Alvin Masensburg of Wake Forest and Cleveland Howard of Rocky Mount.

James Brogden has earned the key point guard role ahead of Leon Dickens of Roxboro Person. The other East starter is guard Ricky Goldston of Pinecrest. Forward Raymond Miller of Garver is counted on for heavy duty along with Bob Fogleman of Raleigh Sanderson and Ed McLean of Lumberton. Clarence Caldwell of Fayetteville Sanford adds depth at forward.

West bench strength comes from guards Bruce Dye of Charlotte and Ray Coble of Western Guilford, forwards Pearl Shaw of Northeast Guilford and Greensboro's Gil Vance, and center Jesse Scruggs of Tuscola.

ANAHEIM (AP) — Two former high school chums were catching up on their sleep today after claiming a world record for continuous tennis playing—75 hours with some food and drink but no sleep.

Jim Carroll and Douglas Nassif, both 21, ended a match at 11 p.m. Monday which began at 10 a.m. Friday. They apparently had broken the mark of 73 hours 25 minutes listed in the Guinness Book of World Records. Keeping score by games, not sets, Nassif defeated Carroll 387-386 in singles. The pair won 48 and lost 60 playing passersby and Anaheim city tennis instructors in doubles.

ANAHEIM (AP) — Starting outfielder Vada Pinson is expected to be out of the lineup five to seven days after suffering a slight shoulder separation, the California Angels announced Monday.

The condition was diagnosed and treated after Pinson crashed into a wall during the first game of a doubleheader Sunday in Kansas City, a club spokesman said.

Pinson, 34, was hitting .263 with seven home runs and 39 RBI. The club said game strategy will dictate which of several players will start in Pinson's place.

Belvoir Wins, 9-6

FARMVILLE — Belvoir's Bombers took a 9-6, 10 inning victory from Farmville in semi-pro baseball action Sunday.

Farmville led off the fourth inning with one run as Wooten singled and came around to score on three successive walks. In the eighth inning, they put up five more to seemingly secure the game.

Belvoir led off the game with a five-spot of their own. The team batted around in the inning, with R. Johnson leading off with a walk. Three successive singles by Bobby Short, J.C. Daniels, and Wade Johnson scored the former Johnson. Two more walks and a fielder's choice on which everyone was safe accounted for the other four runs.

Belvoir refused to be denied, and tied the game up in the sixth inning. R. Johnson walked again, and came around on a single, and a passed ball. Belvoir won the game in the tenth with three runs. Three singles, and two stolen bases as result of walks accounted for the three tallies. Farmville loaded the bases in the bottom of the tenth, but failed to get anyone across.

Applications Being Taken For Supplemental Aid

The Greenville, N.C. social security office is now taking applications for supplemental security income payments, a Federal program scheduled to start in 1974 that will establish an income floor for people in financial need who are age 65 or over, or blind, or disabled, according to George Bailey, social security district manager.

But people already getting State old age assistance, or State aid because they are blind or disabled, don't have to apply he said. They'll be getting more information later this year about how the program will help them.

"The first monthly payments under the Federal program will be made in January, 1974," Bailey said. "Until then, State and local public assistance offices will continue to make payments in the usual way."

People not getting public assistance now who think they may be eligible for the new Federal payments should call or write social security to find out if they should apply, according to Bailey.

"Federal supplemental security income payments will be made by the Social Security Administration," Bailey said. "But the program will be financed by Federal general revenues—not by social security contributions from workers and employers. It's not the same as social security."

The aim of the new program is to provide supplemental payments in cases of need so that people 65 or over, or blind, or disabled will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 a month for a couple.

"This doesn't mean that every eligible person or couple will be getting that much from the Federal Government every month," Bailey said. "The amount of the Federal payment any person gets will depend on how much other income he has."

"Eligibility for Federal payments will depend not only on the amount of income people have but on the value of their assets," Bailey said.

"If you're single—or married but not living with your husband or wife—you can own things worth up to $1,500 and still get Federal payments," he said. "A couple can own things worth up to $2,250 and get payments. Not everything you own has to be counted toward your total assets, however."

"A home of reasonable value will not be counted as an asset," Bailey said. "In addition, the Federal Government will not put liens on the homes of people getting Federal payments. Personal effects and household goods won't count in most cases. Insurance policies or a car may not affect eligibility either, but it will depend on their value."

Certain income also will be disregarded in deciding on an application for supplemental security income. The first $20 a month of income generally won't affect the Federal payment at all.

"In addition, people who are working part time should know that the first $65 a month of earnings won't be included in counting their income and only half of the rest of their additional earnings will be counted," he said.

Apart from earnings, other income above the first $20 a month generally will reduce the Federal payment. "This includes social security checks, veterans payments, workmen's compensation, pensions, annuities, and gifts," Bailey said. "And if you live in someone else's household, your basic Federal payment will be reduced by one-third before other income that may affect your payment is deducted."

People who need more information to decide whether they might be eligible for the Federal payments should call social security at 758-3121 or write to the office at P.O. Box 1367, Greenville, N.C. he said. "Or a friend or relative can make the call if the person in need isn't able to," Mr. Bailey said. "Even though payments cannot start until January, 1974, we're starting to take applications now so we can process them ahead of time and avoid delays that might occur if there's a rush of applications right at the end of the year," Bailey said.

Jamboree Time For 70,000 Scouts Coming From Around The World

By JOHN W. MOODY
NEW CASTLE, Pa. (UPI) — Halfway around the world is a long way to go for a camping trip, but nine boys from India are making the hike. So are boys from Australia, Japan, Greece, England and other faraway places.

The attraction is the quadrennial Boy Scout Jamboree, being held this year, Aug. 3-9, in two places for the first time. Jamboree-East will be held here in western Pennsylvania at Moraine State Park. Jamboree-West will hold forth at Farragut State Park, Idaho, site of the last Jamboree in 1969.

Approximately 40,000 scouts are expected to take part in Jamboree-East, 30,000 in Jamboree-West. They'll come from every state in the union as well as foreign lands. For example, among boys who'll be camping at Moraine State Park are 32 from Boy Scout Troop 1510 in Monessen, Pa., only 50 miles from the campground.

At the suggestion of the Scouts themselves, the Jamborees this year will have as one theme, "Ecology and Environment." Hence, the Moraine Jamboree will have over 100 booths and exhibits on conservation and wildlife management. "We hope," said William Jackson, Sr., site chairman, "that the exhibits will show how we can all help the ecology and make the world a little nicer place to live."

Also in line with the ecology theme, Jackson said, "we expect to leave the park in better condition than we find it. The state of Pennsylvania had planned to do considerable work on Moraine anyway. By holding our Jamboree here we've put that work ahead of schedule by years."

During the Jamborees the boys will be kept busy fishing, canoeing, swimming, playing ball, taking part in patrols and hikes, engaging in art and other instructional programs — and just plain getting to know other Boy Scouts from throughout the United States and the world.

Feeding such assemblages is a huge undertaking, and the food available for hungry young appetites is based in large part on the experience of past Jamborees and the Scouts' own suggestions.

Among menu items at Moraine will be 79,000 10-inch loaves for hero sandwiches, 44,000 mountain trout, 120,000 chickens, 50,000 cases of assorted canned foods, 380 crates of apples, 8,236 pounds of carrots, 313 boxes of bananas, 800 cases of orange juice concentrate and 594,000 fresh oranges, 14,280 pounds of tomatoes, 175 cases of cabbage, 21,060 heads of lettuce, 400 dozen doughnuts, 288,000 eggs, 40,000 pounds of butter, 18,000 hamburger buns. And that's a very partial list. Potables will include hundreds of thousands of quarts of milk, tens of thousands of bottles of soda.

The Scouts will be bunked at 24 campsites, each holding 1,500 to 2,500 boys and advisors.

JAMBOREE FOOD—Preparing food for 40,000 boys is a monumental task, one facing officials overseeing Jamboree-East. Here Scout officials are dwarfed by mountain of boxed food assembled for the event. (UPI Telephoto)

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make yourself as attractive as you can so you create an excellent impression. Join good friends at parties. Don't forget to pay an important bill that will improve your credit rating.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Find the right way to get your home more attractive and functioning better. Avoid any arguments there. Rid yourself of whatever stands in the way of your advancement. Think along more constructive lines.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Showing others you do your shopping, errands efficiently is important now. Search out the books, periodicals that have the data you need. Take it easy tonight and be happy with kin.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You want to have a larger income and can now find the right methods for so doing. First decide where you can cut down on expenses. Sit down with experts and get their advice, which can prove very valuable.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study yourself well and see how to improve your appearance and charm, and make others respect you more. Get into the social gatherings that mean the most to you. Make new friends who can be valuable to you in the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have many personal tasks to take care of and should do just this and forget the social for the time being. Try to help one who is having rough sledding. Show you are a true humanitarian.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Spend more time with a person you want to know better who could prove helpful to you in the future. Get out to that meeting where you can add to present roster of friends. Show you are an excellent conversationalist.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Taking care of any public matters is wise today and you can do so in a most efficient and careful way. Handle that credit matter satisfactorily, also. A higher-up gives you the helping hand you need.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Study new projects that are fascinating to you; you can very likely advance through them. Making contact with persons whose ideas are different from yours is fine. Learn much that way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get responsibilities behind you with speed today and make sure you know better what your mate's expectations are. Trust your intuition so you know how to get along better with the one you love. Think.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen with care so you know exactly what an associate expects of you, then state your own views clearly. Some service you give others now can be most helpful, far more than you realize. Show generosity.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who would do well in scientific work in laboratories, research, diets, and should learn early to communicate with others wisely. Be sure to slant the education along such lines, and give courses in psychology, also. Ethical training early is important. Teach while young not to get bogged down with detail that is relatively unimportant, or this could diminish much of the big success possible here.

Psychiatry Is Probation Rule

MOUNT HOLLY, N.J. (AP)—Jerry Garcia, lead guitarist of the Grateful Dead rock group, will have to report to a psychiatrist every two months for a year as part of conditional probation terms. Garcia, 30, of Marin County, Calif., drew a one-year conditional probation term Monday on charges of possession of narcotics.

Judge Herman Belopolsky said he would entertain a motion for dismissal of the charges at the end of the one-year period if probation terms

Opening lead: Jack of ♣
The lure of a finesse proves irresistible to most bridge players—so much so that they often ignore all other possibilities in favor of the finesse. South's success at his spade slam hinged on his ability to find an alternative source of tricks.

The auction was admirably direct and accurate. After North opened the bidding with one no trump, South jumped in spades. In view of his three trumps and ruffing value in clubs, North needed no further encouragement to leap to slam. West led the jack of clubs, and when dummy came down it was obvious that declarer had no worries outside of the heart suit. At first glance, it seems that he will have to take two finesesses in hearts—a play that has a 75 per cent chance of holding the losers in the suit to one. A glance at the diagram will show that, as the cards lie, that line of play was doomed to failure.

Before playing to the first trick, declarer took time out to survey his resources. After a few moments, he arrived at the conclusion that dummy's ten of diamonds offered an extra chance. If either defender held the queen-jack of diamonds with only one other card, the ten could be set up for a discard.

Accordingly, declarer won the club lead in dummy and drew trumps in three rounds, ending in his own hand. He then cashed the king and ace of diamonds, felling East's jack, and ruffed the five of diamonds. When this brought down the queen from East, dummy's ten of diamonds was set up for a heart discard. Declarer was now in a position to finesse the queen of hearts for an overtrick, but he had to be satisfied with making his slam.

The extra chance offered by the diamond suit is not easy to spot. Indeed, when this deal was played in a pair tournament, North-South almost invariably were down one at six spades.

The 'Worry Clinic' Buck-Passing Isn't The Way

Thelma's atheism is an example of mere buck-passing. Lazily, she wanted God to do her work. Asking favors of Deity is like wanting a bank to cash your checks. You must first have deposited some money or your checks will "bounce." So do selfish prayers! Get hep!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.

CASE X-573: Thelma D., aged 19, is an angry coed. "Dr. Crane," she began, "I am an atheist, for I know there is no God.

"So why do you keep talking about God and why do you go to church every Sunday?" "God is a myth and religion is just an opiate to keep the masses quiet!"

Cherchez la Femme
When I quizzed Thelma further, I found that she had earlier been a very religious girl. "But I prayed every night for 4 years," she confessed. "And I begged God to give me a husband. But he didn't!"

Beach Clinic Set Aug. 14

KITTY HAWK—Sponsored by the Pamlico Conservation District and the Soil Conservation Service with federal, state, and local agency assistance, a Beach Environmental Clinic will be held here Aug. 14-18 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

The purpose of the clinic is to inform county residents and visitors of existing and anticipated environmental problems and to provide information toward solving or preventing them. The meeting will also provide a common meeting ground for county, state, and federal agencies to discuss possible solution to beach environmental problems. Specialists will be available to discuss a variety of subjects relating to these problems and their control. Lectures will be held at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the library of the Kitty Hawk School.

"So I know that there is no God and religion is just the bunk." But I reminded her that God helps those who help themselves.

Then I chided her for being 25 pounds too fat. "Why didn't you send for my Diet Chart, offered in your local newspaper?"

"Then you could have streamlined your figure and become far more alluring to the usual college man."

For romance is usually associated with slender female figures. The "Fat Woman of the Circus" attracts curious glances but doesn't stimulate requests for dates!

You plump married women also know that when your husbands start chasing around with other females, the latter are not baby hippos or 2-legged elephants!

Again, I remonstrated with Thelma for not having ordered the "Climpliment Club" booklet, where she could have learned the art of winning friends easily.

Even a fat girl can acquire friends and occasional dates if she will daily employ the "5 Laws for Complimenting."

Thus, if Thelma had utilized both those booklets, costing only 50 cents since they are strictly a non-profit educational fringe benefit of this newspaper, she could doubtless now "have an engagement ring or frat pin. Alas, too many people pray to God and then expect him to do all the work in producing the results they crave.

Maybe that's typical of our modern age, where people now wait for Uncle Sam to solve their medical, food, housing and other problems, while they sit on their fanny, guzzling beer and watching TV, paid for by the hard working taxpayers of the land.

Anyway, it is illogical and an evidence of mere buck-passing when you ask God for something you can do for yourself. In fact, it is a disgrace and insult to the Almighty!

So learn how to pray! Prayer is not an "Open Sesame" formula for gaining the answer to selfish desires.

To be most effective, you should first indulge in a "do it yourself" policy till you have exhausted human agencies. Then, if you are still lacking a complete solution, you may ask God to make up the difference. But you better have previously built up some "asking favor" with the Almighty.

Praying to God for favors is

Cooperative Role Set Up

A cooperative program between Pitt Technical Institute and the N. C. Department of Human Resources—Division of Services for the Blind has been instituted to provide vocational and technical training for blind and visually impaired individuals.

Rehabilitation counselors of the Division of Services for the Blind will refer the blind and visually impaired students to Pitt Tech in this program which is the first of its kind in North Carolina. The Division will provide a counselor at Pitt Tech for the students and they will participate in regular curriculum programs.

Mrs. Fran Churchill is employed to work with the students. In addition to serving as faculty counselor, she also works in Pitt County as a rehabilitation counselor with the blind and visually impaired.

Three full-time students, currently participating in the program, are enrolled in the electronic servicing, electronic technology, and mental health curriculums. Environment is expected to increase to 10 full-time students during the 1973-74 school year.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices pushed slightly higher today, making a feeble effort to resume the 10-day rally halted Monday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was up 1.74 at 935.51. The Dow had risen some 50 points in the two weeks ended last Friday but dropped a little under 3 points Monday.

Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange today by about 6 to 5.

Analysts said the market was just drifting aimlessly, with investors waiting on the sidelines.

Most of the profit taking had dried up, and the mild upward direction was due largely to the favorable trend in quarterly earnings reports, brokers said.

Big Board prices included International Telephone, up 1/4 to 35 1/2; Fannie Mae, up 1/4 to 18 1/2; Sony, up 1 to 47; American Airlines, down 1/2 to 11 1/2; and Cabot, up 1/2 to 26 1/2.

Assembly Discord

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The new legislative assembly meets for the first time today with one-third of its members vowing not to cooperate with the moderate majority.

Security around the legislative building in Stormont Castle on Belfast's outskirts was tight. British troops continued an operation launched 10 days ago to prevent the Irish Republican Army and Protestant extremists from unleashing a wave of violence.

Trouble flared briefly in Londonderry early today when Catholic mobs stoned troops who moved in to remove makeshift barricades thrown up to mark the first anniversary of the storming of IRA strongholds by the army.

People's Democracy, a Roman Catholic civil rights organization, planned a protest march on Stormont today. Officials expressed fear that either Catholic or Protestant guerrillas would use the march as cover for an attack.

But the greatest danger to the assembly, on which the British have pinned their hopes of restoring political stability, probably will come from within.

Twenty-seven hard-line Protestant members on Monday announced a "campaign of non-cooperation" and said they would not share power with the Catholics in the mixed Protestant-Catholic government that the 78-member assembly is supposed to choose.

Because the Protestants outnumber the Catholics two to one, the Catholics have been shut out of all previous governments. The key point in the British government's peace plan for Northern Ireland is to give the Catholics a share in the executive that the assembly will elect equivalent to their numerical strength. The Protestant militants led by the Rev. Ian Paisley and William Craig want the return of the former all-Protestant government.

Flakeboard . .

to end it as happily as possible. We're already meeting with the Economic Council director and other community leaders to try to work out a smooth exit. We hope the land and building here can be sold to another industry which can take up the slack."

AGREAT SITE

Tom Thompson, Farmville Economic Council director, (The same last names are coincidental) confirmed that talks have begun about replacing International Paper with another industry. "We are really sorry to see the flakeboard operation go," he said.

"The opening of the plant by American Cyanamid in 1958 opened a new era for Farmville, as this was the first non-tobacco-related industry to locate here, I understand. But we must turn loss into an opportunity and we're in a very good position to do just this. IP is vacating a choice industrial site. It has everything an industrial operation needs—highway and railroad access, water, electricity, sewer, and natural gas, plus two warehouses, a long and spacious production building, good offices, and 97 acres of land.

"As soon as the necessary arrangements are made for IP's giving up the property, we will be at Conservation and Development in Raleigh looking for just the industrial enterprise seeking to come into North Carolina to which we'd like to offer this gem site. I feel sure that within a year, we'll have a very desirable new corporate citizen in Farmville.

"Of course, we can't measure the human tragedy caused by abrupt losses of good jobs experienced here this past week, but we will be doing all we can to soften the blow," he said.

MUSIC CHARMS

ROLLESON, Ariz. (AP) — Popular music, with brief breaks for weather and news, is piped around the clock to cattle being fattened at the Swift & Co. packing plant here.

CHARLES STREET IS CLOSED. . . and this is the reason why. Norfolk and Southern Railroad crews are shown readying a 117-ton, 133-foot-long steel beam for loading on flat cars, then to be hauled several hundred feet East to the Charles Street overpass crossing. Charles Street was closed Monday to permit erection of two of the large steel beams which will support the railroad across Charles Street. The street is being widened to four lanes. Railroad officials say they hope to have the beams safely in place by Wednesday night so traffic can be allowed to flow normally again. A 150-ton crane is being used to handle the heavy steel supports. Some 53 steel cross members will connect the two beams and support a deck plate over which the railroad will run. Urges 'Balancing Act' On U.S. Energy Needs

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The President's new energy chief, John A. Love, is calling for more "pragmatism" in balancing the nation's energy needs against protection of the environment.

"I am afraid we are faced with two imperatives—the environment and energy—and we cannot take an extreme view on either end," Love told a House Banking Subcommittee Monday.

Love had been asked by Garry Brown, R-Mich., "if we can continue to make the energy demands we have and still make the (environmental cleanup) policy commitments we have?"

"We are going to have to bring a greater pragmatism ... a greater balance ... to it," Love replied.

He said energy is important "not only to our way of life but to our personal freedom. It is so vitally interwoven in our life it is hard to realize doing without it."

In answer to other questions, Love said he didn't believe the oil companies had conspired to withhold gasoline supplies from the market or to raise prices, that Congress should hold hearings on the deregulation of new natural gas supplies and, in at least a partial agreement with Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill., said government action had not furthered the success of energy policies.

Crane had asked specifically about the retarding effect of environmental controls on atomic energy generating plants.

"The number of nuclear power plants is far below those forecast as needed," Love said, but he said the reasons were a combination of "environmental concerns, siting problems and to be honest, technical problems so that it has not come along as far as it should have."

Poage said he doesn't know if Butz is bluffing. He said Butz "is in the position where he has to give us his asking price rather than his selling price, and I don't believe the conferees are going to make any further concessions."

Dollar Gains On Money Markets

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar improved today in all key European money markets for the second straight day. It hit its best price in several weeks in Frankfurt, Paris and London, but trading was light. Dealers said the dollar has been helped by both the reduction in interest rates in West Germany and the recent support buying by government central banks.

In Frankfurt, the dollar moved up quickly shortly after opening from Monday's close of 2.33 marks to 2.35 marks. In Paris, the U.S. currency advanced to 4.12 French francs, up from 4.0887 on Monday.

HEARING SET

CAIRO (AP) — A preliminary hearing will open Sept. 25 for 10 Palestinians held in Khartoum for the murder of two American diplomats and a Belgian envoy, Sudanese Information Minister Omar Mousa said today.
