

Leaf Mart Average Edged Up Yesterday

Poundage dropped slightly Wednesday from opening day figures on the Greenville Tobacco Market but the local average edged up the $84.92, an increase of 46 cents per hundred pounds over Tuesday.

Buying continued heavy as local warehouses again combined to sell over 750,000 pounds of tobacco. Wednesday's totals were 751,050 pounds for $637,783 and compared with opening day figures of 769,918 pounds for $650,243.

Greenville's neighboring market, Rocky Mount, also recorded an increase in overall average yesterday as sales continued on the two Eastern Belt markets on a limited, two sets of buyers per market basis. Rocky Mount sold 757,869 pounds for $628,732 in averaging $82.96, compared with Tuesday's average of $82.52.

The belt average inched up as prices improved on the second day of auctions. With lugs and first pullings still constituting much of the floored leaf, the average for the two markets was $83.94 on 1,508,919 pounds for $1,266,515.

For the season the combined total of Greenville and Rocky Mount sales stands at $3,044,290 pounds for $2,548,410 an average so far of $83.71.

According to the Market News Service in Wilson, Stabilization receipts on the belt were again

July Index Data Wholesale Prices Saw Steep Decline

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The steepest monthly decline in wholesale prices in 25 years was recorded in July, the Labor Department said today. It attributed the decline to the Nixon administration's price freeze and export controls.

The decline in wholesale prices was led by prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds which decreased during July by 4.1 per cent on a seasonally unadjusted basis and 4.6 per cent on a seasonally adjusted basis.

The one month decrease in farm prices on an adjusted basis was the biggest decline ever, Labor Department figures show.

The over-all decline in the July wholesale price index was 1.3 per cent, unadjusted, and 1.4 per cent, adjusted. The decrease compared with average increases during the previous six months of 1.7 per cent.

The Labor Department noted its check of wholesale prices for July was made after President Nixon's price freeze went into effect on June 13.

And it noted some commodities for which prices declined, such as soybeans, had wholesale prices came after months of steep increase and was welcome news for the Nixon administration in its efforts to check rising inflation in the economy.

The Labor Department said the wholesale price index was 134.9 in July, using the 1967 figure of 100 as the basis of measurement. The July index was 12.7 per cent above a year earlier.

On a seasonally unadjusted basis, the over-all decrease in the index was the first since October of 1972, and on a seasonally adjusted basis it was the first decline since September of 1971.

The adjusted decline was the steepest since February of 1948 when the drop was 1.5 per cent.

The Labor Department said the substantial decrease in the prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds were largely due to lower prices for soybeans and grains. The price of soybeans dropped sharply in recent weeks after the administration put them under export restrictions.

Phnom Penh Feels Tightening Noose

By DENNIS NEELD
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian insurgents cut a strategic highway behind Phnom Penh's southeastern defense line today while closer to the city government troops battled infiltrators.

American B52 heavy bombers and fighter-bombers continued to pound insurgent positions around the clock in an attempt to blunt the threat to the capital.

The Cambodian command announced that in an attack before dawn the Communist-led rebels cut Highway 1, at the town of Deyeth, 13 miles southeast of Phnom Penh. Deyeth is two miles behind Phnom Penh's defense perimeter.

The southeastern defenses were further threatened by a strong force of infiltrators. Government infantrymen were fighting to dislodge them from bunkers the insurgents hastily dug in the village of Robas Angkanh, which the overgovernment forces overran Wednesday.

A militia company disintegrated under the Communist attack and about 100 soldiers were reported missing.

Another insurgent assault during the night was reported against the village of Prek Ho, six miles south of Phnom Penh. The government said it was repulsed.

The spokesman for the Cambodian command, Col. Am Rong, reported also that government operations were continuing against Communist positions in the region of Kompong Kantuot, 11 miles south and west of Phnom Penh, and at Chrey Loas, nine miles to the northwest.

Am Rong had reported Wednesday that combat on all fronts had slackened off, largely as a result of heavy casualties inflicted on the antigovernment forces by the American air strikes. The lull, if there was one, didn't last long.

Despite the fighting, more than 500 trucks and trailers arrived by convoy in Phnom Penh Wednesday from the coast and from Battambang, in northwestern Cambodia.

The convoys brought rice and meat for the city's 1.5 million people as well as a variety of other goods.

No Income Tax

NEW YORK (AP) — At least 11 major corporations paid no income taxes last year, according to Rep. Charles A. Vabik, D-Ohio, an advocate of tax revision.

He listed the companies as McDonnell Douglas Corp., Republic Steel Corp., and Occidental Petroleum Burlington Northern, Eastern Airlines, Trans World Airlines, UAL Inc.'s United Airlines, Northwest Airlines, Consolidated Edison Co. of New York, American Electric Power Co., and Pennzoil Co.

Vanik asserted that all of these companies reported substantial net income last year but apparently escaped taxes through legitimate writeoffs. He also noted that International Telephone & Telegraph only paid an effective tax of 1 per cent.

Ex-CIA Director Felt Agency Used

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former CIA director Richard Helms told the Senate Watergate Committee today that "it seemed to me the agency was being used" by White House consultant E. Howard Hunt in 1971.

Hunt was convicted in the first Watergate trial.

Helms, now ambassador to Iran, testified that after a series of requests from Hunt which "seemed totally unacceptable," he directed the CIA deputy director to call White House assistant John D. Ehrlichman and "tell him we wouldn't be doing these things any more."

Hunt is a former longtime CIA employee who went to work for the White House. He now is awaiting sentencing for his part in the Watergate break-in at Democratic national headquarters.

Henry A. Kissinger's national security staff, who was being transferred to a special investigative unit being set up by Ehrlichman.

"This was the now well-known 'White House plumbers' group."

"He wanted to find out how the intelligence agency and community handled classifications of documents," Helms said. He added he put Young in touch with Howard Osborne, director of security at the CIA.

"It was apparently to Osborne that Young originally made the request for a profile of Ellsberg," Helms said. "Osborne then brought the request to me."

He described such a profile as "a technique for putting together a lot of information about a foreigner ... an attempt to analyze what sort of human being he was ... the idea was to give insight 'what motivated some individual, why they did things the way they did and so forth.'"

Helms said Young knew the agency wrote such papers and wanted the agency to do one on Ellsberg.

"I remonstrated with him," Helms said. "I told him I think this is an imposition to ask us to do this."

"He... said the White House was interested ... that Ehrlichman regarded it as highest priority, so did Dr. Kissinger and we should help because we were the only ones in town who had practice with it and please would we do so."

There was a slight increase of one tenth of a per cent in industrial commodities during July, but this too, was sharply below the average increases of more than one per cent during the first six months of the year. The price freeze, imposed on June 13, was regarded as a major factor in checking industrial prices.

There was a "very substantial decrease" during the month for lumber and wood products, especially for soft wood lumber and soft wood plywood, the Labor Department said.

Prices of textile products and apparel were among those increasing.

Skylab Crew Cleared To Take A Space Walk

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Doctors have given the Skylab 2 astronauts medical clearance to take a thrice-daily space walk on Saturday.

"I see no physical reason why they couldn't do the EVA (extra-vehicular activity) on Saturday," Dr. Paul Buchanan, a space agency physician, said late Wednesday. "They report they're all feeling fine."

Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma suffered from motion sickness for the first four days of the planned 59-day mission, which started last Saturday.

They gradually recovered and on Wednesday Buchanan said: "This is the first day that food has really tasted good to them."

The sickness slowed the astronauts considerably and forced three postponements of the space walk, originally set for Tuesday.

During the walk, Garriott and Lousma are to step outside the orbiting laboratory to unfurl a new sunshade to help keep the workshop cool. They also are to replace film in an array of solar astronomy telescopes.

In addition to the illness, the astronauts were delayed in several minor hardware problems, most of which have been corrected.

At one point Wednesday night, commander Bean complained that Mission Control planners were giving the astronauts too much work to do and asked that they cut back a bit.

"We've been working from sunup to sundown and we still can't get everything done," he said.

On Wednesday they started a series of medical experiments that will be conducted throughout the mission to determine how well they adapt to the weightless world of space.

Later today, Garriott, a solar physicist, planned to fire up the solar astronomy telescopes for the first time on this flight.

Before retiring Wednesday night, each of the astronauts

Outlay Vetoed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $185 million emergency medical services program was vetoed by President Nixon Wednesday.

The program too expensive, the President termed, and said it would infringe on the role of state and local governments.

The federal role, Nixon said, should be limited to "demonstration effort, leaving states and communities free to establish a full range of emergency medical services systems that best suit their varying local needs."

He said he had proposed $8 million for the program for the last fiscal year, and $15 million for the current fiscal year.

The $185 million program vetoed by the President would have covered three years.

The President also objected to a provision in the bill for continued operation of in-patient facilities at eight general hospitals of the Public Health Service which, he said, "have now outlived their usefulness."

New Popularity Is 'Ridiculous'

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Rose Alexander has been getting a few more calls than usual since police in nearby Newark began using a new batch of traffic tickets early this week.

Ten thousand tickets were printed with the wrong telephone number, Miss Alexander said she's found some new friends but has also talked to a lot of irate people and one drunk who refused to hang up.

"I don't mind being popular, but this is ridiculous," said Miss Alexander, who is single.

Capt. Anthony Calgary, acting head of the violations department, said it could have been worse for the Clifton woman. The mistake was caught just in time to halt the printing of 290,000 other incorrect tickets.

No More Judges

RALEIGH (AP) — The new chief judge of the North Carolina Court of Appeals says he envisions few changes in the court under his leadership.

Walter E. Brock was sworn in Wednesday to succeed Raymond B. Mallard, who retired earlier this week because of ill health.

Brock said in an interview he sees no need for adding new positions to the nine-member court despite a steadily increasing case load.

He added, "I can speak unhesitatingly for all the members of the court. We do not want to add any more judges at this time. In the future, of course, we may have to, but right now we feel it might dilute the efficiency of the court."

Brock said the appeals court is studying ways to increase the court's efficiency.

Haldeman's Colleagues Observe Little Change

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — To the White House staffers watching the Senate Watergate hearings on small-screen television sets in their offices, H.R. Haldeman's icy stare was unchanged.

It flashed only occasionally in his three days of testimony before the Senate committee. But when it did, Haldeman's former colleagues nodded at one another.

To the public, Haldeman seemed to shed on the witness stand his reputation as Mr. Tough Guy—the brusque, hard-driving taskmaster who cracked the whip over the White House staff.

To those who had felt the whip, the penetrating glare from his blue eyes was a sign he hadn't changed that much.

"The situation was different, but you could sense he was pretty much the same," said one former associate.

John Ehrlichman's witness-stand style — confident and combative — also had been seen before by those who knew him at the White House.

Then he had been the aggressive advocate of President Nixon's domestic policies. Now, he was the aggressive defender of his actions — and those of the President — in the Watergate controversy.

But his former White House associates said Ehrlichman could also be compassionate

McGovern Expects Big Fight For Re-Election

SIoux Falls, S.D. (AP) — Sen. George McGovern, already running hard for re-election in 1974, has amassed a campaign war chest of a size unprecedented in South Dakota politics.

But McGovern says he expects to be outspent by his Republican opponent.

"I can recall any other campaign in which I've spent more than my opponent. I expect that will be true in 1974. I'm one of the top Republican targets," the South Dakota Democrat said in a telephone interview.

Records filed by McGovern's campaign treasurer with the Secretary of the Senate in compliance with the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1972 show McGovern has already received nearly half a million dollars in contributions.

In his latest quarterly report, filed June 10, McGovern listed total receipts of $441,516.79. The next report is due Sept. 10.

McGovern also listed expenditures of $397,481.70, but that includes savings certificates and deposits totaling $271,931.28. Cash on hand was listed at $50,779.39 at the end of the reporting period, giving McGovern a total of $321,710.67 in cash or savings accounts.

And McGovern said his presidential campaign committee has about $190,000 in bill another account which is being maintained to pay off 1972 debts. He said if any of this money is left after all bills are in it will be transferred to the Senate campaign account.

Republican Al Schock, the Sioux Falls dairy owner who is McGovern's only announced opponent for the Senate seat this year, listed receipts of $2,249.74 and expenditures of $487.22.

The most money a candidate ever reported spending before in South Dakota was $329,000 listed by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., when he first won election to the Senate in 1972.

and sensitive to the feelings of his staff — a trait that did not seem to come across in his rapid-fire replies from the witness stand.

Haldeman also could be soft-spoken and polite as Nixon's closest aide — and periodically would display during his White House days the engaging grin that television viewers glimpsed, a former associate said.

But he also had that chilling stare that "could make you quake in your boots," said one former White House employee.

In his White House days, the stare was reserved for those who didn't, as Haldeman told the committee, measure up to a "zero defect system."

Butz Sympathetic, But No Hint On Lifting Freeze

NO MEAT TODAY — An attendant adjusts empty meat hooks at the Sterling Meat Co. in New York Wednesday during one-day closure called by about 85 percent of the city's meat wholesalers. Wholesalers claim inadequate supplies of beef. (AP Wirephoto)

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz has expressed sympathy for the plight of the meat industry but has given no indication that the freeze on beef prices will be lifted early.

Butz met with about 50 meat industry representatives in Washington Wednesday amid new reports of shutdowns and anticipated closings based on increased doubts about the continuing availability of meat.

Acknowledging that the beef industry has "very serious" problems, Butz said, "If I had my druthers, right now, all things considered, I would give serious consideration to ending it (the freeze) sometime before Sept. 12."

The cabinet officer added, however, that rescinding the freeze "is not a decision that the secretary of agriculture makes."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said Wednesday the Sept. 12 cutoff date would hold.

In New York City, where most of the wholesale beef dealers were closed Wednesday because of beef shortages, the federal government launched an investigation into whether the scarcity was real or "artificially created."

Meat packers around the country predicted layoffs and further shutdowns next week and some retail stores warned that unless supplies are replenished their meat cases will be barren.

A division of Swift & Company announced in Chicago that it will cease slaughtering operations at three more locations Aug. 6, when the company's total production will be cut to about one-third the normal volume.

An official of J. Weingarten, Inc. of Little Rock, Ark. predicted that its stores probably won't have "any beef or very little" after today. "When it's gone it'll just be gone. We'll just put of a sign saying, 'temporarily out.'"

The American Hospital Association called on the meat industry to give health-care institutions top priority for supplies, saying a number of hospitals are already facing beef shortages.

In Tucson, Ariz., Raymond F. Thill, executive vice president of the National Association of Meat Purveyors, said his members already were observing such a policy.

Some unusual and some illegal steps were reported being taken to ease the pinch of the meat shortage.

A longtime practice of raising livestock and vegetables at state institutions in Wyoming, discontinued in other states, is helping to keep those facilities self-sufficient.

A Utah cattleman says cattle rustling is on the increase while some New York City butchers have reported paying illegal prices to obtain their beef.

A supermarket chain in the Portland, Ore., area said it had ordered 100 buffalo a week for the next three weeks to augment its dwindling supplies.

The Agriculture Department said last week's slaughter in the United States was down 9 per cent from the previous week and that the total slaughter Monday at federally inspected beef plants was 79,000 cattle, 23.4 per cent below the previous Monday and the lowest daily slaughter since the end of the national consumer meat boycott early in April.

Acquit Four Of Assault

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Four Jacksonville policemen were acquitted in Onslow District Court Wednesday of assaulting the owner of a guest home.

"From what I have seen of the city of Jacksonville, they do need some tough cops in the area," said Judge Paul Crumpler in finding the four officers innocent.

The charges were brought July 25 by Claude Carroll after he was arrested on charges of disorderly conduct and resisting arrest.

Carroll claimed he was beaten with fists and a flashlight while he was handcuffed during the arrest.

The judge convicted Carroll of resisting arrest. He sentenced the man to 30 days in jail and fined him $100. He gave notice of appeal.

The officer, Lt. Jerry Reed, Lt. Troy Shivar and Patrolmen William Perkins and Kevin Thomas said Carroll had struck Perkins when he was being taken to a patrol car. They said Perkins hit Carroll in the face twice to subdue him.

Frozen Out By Price Freeze

YREKA, Calif. (AP)—A meat market founded during California's Gold Rush was frozen out of business by the price freeze, says its owner.

"I just can't make any money the way it is," said Jim Bryan, 42, blaming a combination of factors caused by the price freeze and meat shortage.

The City Meat Market closed Saturday, and its two employees were dismissed. It was founded in 1854 by a German immigrant. Bryan started running it 20 years ago after his father put in 20 years serving this Northern California mountain community's meat needs.

'Big 3' Favor Fines For Not Buckling Up

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's three major automakers have endorsed laws requiring motorists to fasten their seat belts or face fines.

Ford and Chrysler endorsed the mandatory "buckle-up" laws Wednesday as more effective than government proposals to drop seat belts in cars in favor of automatically operated crash protection devices. The best known such device is the air bag.

General Motors, which has initiated an advertising campaign on behalf of the seat belt laws, announced it will proceed with its delayed plans to introduce air bags as an option for the second half of the 1974.

GM's plans had been delayed by a court battle over specifications for a test dummy. The bags costing $200 each now will be available on Cadillacs, Buick Electras, Rivas, Oldsmobile 98s and Toronados.

At the same time, GM has asked that the current Aug. 15, 1975, date for mandatory air bag installation be delayed until researchers can compare various restraints.

Officials of the National Highway Transportation Safety Administration said at a Senate Commerce Committee hearing, at which the automaker also testified, that the agency is actively lobbying in the states that are considering mandatory seat belt laws.

Spurred by a report of a 20 per cent reduction in traffic fatalities in Australia after mandatory buckle-up laws went into effect, advocates in this country have introduced similar legislation in 21 states. The proposed fines range from $15 to $25. No state has passed such a law.

Sidney L. Terry, vice president of safety relations for Chrysler, said, "The Australian experience has lead Chrysler to the conclusion that the most effective measures that can be taken to reduce traffic fatalities are those which promote belt usage, particularly the enactment of mandatory usage laws."

Terry noted that cars coming off the assembly lines after Aug. 15 will be equipped with devices to prevent the cars from starting unless the front seat belts are buckled.

Leaf Prices Still Soaring

VALDOSTA, Ga. (AP)—For the third consecutive day Wednesday average prices on the Georgia-Florida flue-cured tobacco market clipped the previous record high.

More than 9 million gross pounds were sold at an average of $87.79 per hundred pounds, 32 cents better than Tuesday's average which also was a record.

Sales totaled $8,192,988, pushing the season total to $46,417,917. The season gross pounds stand at 53,782,261, sold at an average of $86.31 per hundred pounds.

At the market at Live Oak, Fla., the average price per hundred pounds was $90.06, highest in the belt.

Volume of sales continued heavy at most auction centers. Auction bid averages on several U.S. grades and comparisons:

B3F $91 UNCHANGED, B4F $91 up $1; B5F $90 up $1; B4KR $90 up $1; B4KM $88 unchanged; C4L $91 unchanged, X3L $90 up $1, X4L $88 unchanged, X4F $89 up $1, P4L $87 unchanged; P4F $88 up $1; P5F $86 unchanged.

A Review New James Bond Still Gilt-Edged

The first thing one notices about the new James Bond film, "Live and Let Die" is the new James Bond.

For the first few minutes of the film, one is bound to try and draw a comparison between Sean Connery, who has played Bond in all of the previous films except for one, and Roger Moore, the current Bond (and reportedly, the original first choice before Connery).

But the comparison is short-lived. It isn't necessary. The new Bond is still gilt-edged, if a little faintly, but he carries it off with typical Bondian manner.

The puns, brought into previous films, are there even heavier and naughtier (parental guidance suggested). The viewer, however, is soon settled back watching the chases that are played more for laughs than drama, and forgets that old Sean is not up there doing it all.

The film is typical of the series, and has only the slightest of similarities with the original story, one of the earliest Ian Fleming Bond works.

It involves the black dictator of the Caribbean Island who is into heroin smuggling on a grand scale. He also pretends to be a big time American hood to aid in this. Accompanied by a white female seer, he's been unbeatable by the British secret service until Bond comes along, woos the girl away, and then, gets away, and gets away, and gets away from the villains.

Chases include automobile, airplane (on the ground), and a great comedy series involving boats, police cars, and the funniest Southern sheriff since Joe Higgins.

If you like Bond, you'll like this one, now playing at the Plaza Conema. — Woody Peele.

Potential Bicycle Safety Hazard Seen

J.C. Penney has reported to the Consumer Product Safety Commission a potential safety problem involving the hand brakes on a limited number of touring bicycles imported from Austria by Stelber Industries Inc., Valley Stream, N. Y.

The manager of the Penney store at Pitt Plaza, J. F. Baumann, said that no more than 2,000 of the three-speed and five speed 26-inch lightweight bicycles with the potential brake problem were distributed to larger Penney stores which sell bicycles.

Bicycles involved, the manager reported, are J. C. Penney models 2100, 2200, 2700, and 2800. Stelber Industries indicated that the problem may also exist on bicycles manufactured under several other brand names.

The hand brakes on some of these bicycles have been found defective, it was explained. The problem involves a defective retention bushing in the handlebar brake assembly. The defective brake equipment is identified by the name "Ping-Ho-Hi-Stop" which appears on the metal portion of the caliper brake.

Baumann urged all persons having Penney 26-inch touring bicycles with these brakes to refrain from riding them and to return them immediately to the store where purchased for free replacement of the defective part.

Membership of the Mormon Church, 3.2 million in 1973, is projected to reach 6 million by 1982.

Four Collisions In Greenville Listed

An estimated $2,300 property damage resulted from a series of four collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville police officers.

Heaviest damage reported resulted from a 7 a.m. mishap on Memorial Drive some 225 feet South of the Airport Road intersection which involved cars driven by Mary Walker Moore of Route 1, Greenville and Larry Earl Roberson of Route 1, Stokes.

Police, who set the damage to the Moore car at $400 and damage to the Roberson vehicle at $300, charged Roberson with operating on the wrong side of the road.

Clyde Henry Armstrong of Route 2, Plymouth was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 9:55 mishap at the intersection of Tenth and Evans Streets.

Officers reported John Covington Cole, 16 of 1402 Dickinson Ave., the driver of the second car involved, was injured in the collision which caused an estimated $300 damage to the Armstrong auto and about $350 damage to the vehicle Cole was driving. A 4:45 p.m. collision on Trade Street 100 feet West of the Bismarck Street intersection resulted in an estimated $100 damage to a car driven by Robert Herman Peaden Jr., of Greenville, and about $400 damage to a car operated by Thomas William Denton of Greenville.

Officers charged Denton with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of the mishap. Pearl Hester Worthington of Route 1, Winterville was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of the fourth collision, a 9:52 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Dickinson and Watagua Avenues.

Officers said the Worthing car collided with a vehicle driven by Sandra Faye Langley of Route 1, Stokes.

Damage was set at $100 to the Worthington car and $350 to the Langley auto.

Begins Term As Council Prexy

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Ambassador John A. Scali, who became U.S. chief delegate to the United Nations in February, has started his first one-month term as president of the U.N. Security Council.

Scali took over the post Wednesday from Sir Colin Crowe of the United Kingdom.

Police Hunting Vehicle In Hit-Run Case

Greenville police are continuing their investigation of a hit and run mishap this morning that caused an estimated $3,500 to one of the two cars involved...and police are trying to locate the second vehicle.

Police said a 2 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets caused an estimated $3,500 damage to a car driven by Jerome C. Jones, 23 of 302E Eastbrook Apts.

Officers quoted Jones, who was driving East on Fifth Street as saying a compact car, traveling North on Cotanche Street failed to stop for a stop light and collided almost head-on with his car, then sped away from the scene.

No injuries were reported by investigators.

Wife Learns About 'Dumb' People At Party

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has worked at the same office for many years. He seldom took me to any of their social functions.

Two months ago we were invited to a small party—about 20 people. My husband asked if I would mind if we picked up one of the girls from his office. I said it was all right with me.

At the party there were many friendly gestures between my husband and this girl, but the clincher came when a man from the office who did not know me, asked my husband if he had brought Sally.

My name is not Sally. My husband looked embarrassed and the girl from the office, who of course was Sally, gave the man who asked the question a reprimanding look.

I have lost a lot of trust in my husband. What do you say about this? DUMB DORA

DEAR DORA: There were at least three people at the party far "dumber" than you.

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a very embarrassing problem. I am a 20-year-old college junior at a large university. For a while I dated what seemed to be a nice guy I'll call Bill. He attends the same "U," and is an art major.

Bill took some harmless photographs of me on the beach in my two-piece bathing suit last summer. After that I sort of broke off with Bill and started seeing another fellow.

I recently learned thru friends that Bill is painting a nude portrait of me, using as a model the picture he took of me in the bathing suit. Of course, he's using his imagination, but I don't like the idea. He's planning to use this "nude" portrait of me in an art exhibit. I do have a great body, but I don't want half the world seeing me naked, in addition to which I don't want people to think that I am the kind of girl who would pose for a picture like that. It could destroy my reputation.

Is there anything I can do to stop him?

NO NUDE MODEL

DEAR NO NUDE: Since it's your "great body" Bill wants to immortalize on canvas, ask him to please use somebody else's face. If he refuses, ask him to please leave the suit on, or you will see a lawyer about bringing another kind of "suit" into the picture.

DEAR ABBY: This girl I like knows hand sign-language. Big deal! She is always using it in front of me to talk to her friends. I never know what she's saying, except that she points to me, so I know she's "talking" about me.

I have asked her to please refrain from doing this, but she just laughs it off and continues.

This drives me up a wall. How can I get her to stop?

SPEECHLESS

DEAR SPEECHLESS: Why don't you learn a little hand sign-language, and surprise her by "telling" her what you think of her?

CONFIDENTIAL TO JACK CLARK, REALTOR, AURORA, ILL.: Please send me your complete address. I owe you $5.

Businesswoman Fights Illness With Hard Work

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Betty-jane Hilton bought her own business as a reason to stay well.

She had been out of the hospital for one whole year out of the previous five, and thought it ought to continue.

A veteran of five cancer operations, a brain hemorrhage and serious kidney surgery, the attractive blonde president of Sanitized Sales Company of America says she may be a fatalist, but she believes she has been left on earth for some purpose.

The poised former model's firm licenses a wide range of bacteriostats and fungistats used in many products for home and hospital.

Betty Hilton was not always the poised businesswoman who spends about half of her time on the road.

"No woman in my husband's family had ever worked. But I offered to make a deal with him. I had tried playing bridge and working in politics and it wasn't enough. I couldn't have children, so I said we could either adopt four, or I could go back to work.

"He wasn't interested in adoption at that time. So one day in a restaurant I was talking about how bored I was and how I wished I could find a job. A man sitting nearby came over and offered me one," Mrs. Hilton said.

She went to work on a trial basis 16 years ago. Ten years ago the board of directors made her president of the company and six months ago, she bought the business.

"In between, I had a brain hemorrhage, cancer operations and a few other things," she added. "When I think of all the things that have happened to me I feel I should be 22 instead of 45. But the hospital and I have a good agreement. They always put in a special telephone for my business."

Seeing a product you can't see and assuring purchasers that it does perform is not always easy. Customers range from manufacturers of wigs to moving vans companies to mattress makers.

"The quality control must be extensive. You can't afford to sell chemicals without knowing where they are going and what they will do. The large and small buyers must know the product is there and working. We can't afford to be wrong," Mrs. Hilton added.

As president, Mrs. Hilton supervises an extensive sampling program. Samples are taken of chemicals at the mill, at the company where chemicals are added to a product, and at the retail level.

"I nearly died from a staph infection once, so I believe cleanliness is important," she added. "But still, even I can't see what I sell. I'm lucky I've been able to pick up almost anything I ever wanted to learn."

Born in Kentucky, brought up in Michigan, she attended college for one year, began and ended an unsuccessful first marriage and worked at many jobs. On her first trip to New York she met her second husband, but it was five years before they married.

"We have a strange marriage. If we weren't two individuals it wouldn't work. For much of our marriage we've maintained separate residences, in the city and the country, and been together weekends.

"Now we're involved in a new place at the shore. This business about two people becoming one is nonsense. Two people who marry share a common perimeter," she said.

Mrs. Hilton is not a women's liberation advocate. She calls the movement "malarkey" because it doesn't mention equal responsibility in the same breath with equal pay and equal jobs. She believes "all three go together."

"In my life, I have learned to make substitutions. If you can't do that, you sit back and become a women's libber and complain about everything. Of course, I'd like to have a half dozen children and a couple of grandchildren. But I was not dealt that hand, so I can't sit back and complain that life gyped me.

"I went to my 25th high school reunion," Mrs. Hilton added. "After seeing my old friends, I decided my life was a pretty good one. I came away with a feeling of satisfaction."

"I find life interesting. There's so much out there to see and do."

Engagement Announced

MISS REBECCA SUSAN CAMPBELL . . . is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Robert Campbell of Sanford, who announce her engagement to James Fleming Davenport III, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Fleming Davenport Jr. of Greenville. The wedding will take place Sept. 8.

When considering a new range, you need to know the difference between self-cleaning and continuous cleaning ovens. In the former, the oven soil is reduced to a light ash during a separate high heat cycle. The remaining ash can be removed with a damp cloth. In continuous cleaning, the oven soil is gradually reduced to a presentably clean condition on specially treated surfaces during normal baking or roasting operations. Any spillovers should be wiped away.

Today's Shortages Man-Made

By and large, Americans have forgotten their agricultural heritage and the lessons learned therein. Where once the United States had a very large percentage of its people engaged in agriculture, their ranks have shrunk to a minority status; so much so, that politicians today give little more than lip service to the "farm vote." The experiences of 1973 may change all that.

This is the year that will demonstrate the continuing need for a healthy and productive farm economy. demonstrate it in a way that should make a lasting impression on the most remote native of the concrete jungle.

A lot of Americans have been awakened to the fact their country is now a major source of certain food commodities for a large proportion of the peoples of the world. The referral to the U.S. as a reliable "food bank" to make up for poor crop years has been a stabilizing factor in the world. The recent heavy sales of grain to the Soviet Union and to Communist China underlined that; as did the sudden embargo on soybean exports. (The latter was a nerve-shattering experience for some governments.)

But Today there is no accustomed large farm commodity surplus to fall back on in the event of a poor harvest. For the first time since 1948 our grain bins are all but empty. There are no reserves for a rainy day.

It reminds one of the direful prospects raised by some seers who have looked ahead and warned of an approaching time when burgeoning populations would outstrip food productivity, and the dire sociological impact resulting.

They were looking decades ahead. Today should concern us.

There is an uncomfortable feeling in the knowledge that Russia and Red China could not (again) by themselves this year provide all the foods their populations required. We know too of other peoples whose way of life has always been on the brink of famine; and others whose people know too much about hunger.

We are learning about shortages in a way no one though possible two years ago.

The irony of it is that our shortages are man-made. Suppose nature stepped into the act and curtailed farm productivity or fuel productivity for just consecutive seasons. The word "catastrophic" only begins to describe the impact.

No Picnics In Mayors' Races

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Another small town tradition—that covered-dish supper where somebody got and suggested that so-and-so be mayor and everybody agreed—has become the victim of the times.

Uniform election laws for municipal elections go into effect this year for the first time across North Carolina. This means that all 462 cities, towns or incorporated villages must elect mayors and councils November 6.

Until now, each municipality did its own thing, with most of them holding elections in the spring or summer, and many of them doing it quite informally.

In setting up the new process, Alex K. Brock, director of the State Board of Elections, ran into some stiff opposition, despite the fact that the General Assembly had passed the law.

"When you have to write a right severe letter to some city official telling him what the law says, you are likely to get angry," Brock chuckled.

And this one mayor who was so damn sure of himself that he was just downright arrogant called to tell me that his town didn't come under all that new stuff," Brock said.

Informal Vote
"We have this covered-dish supper and we get together and talk and somebody gets up and suggests, somebody and then we vote," the mayor told Brock.

"Well," Brock responded, "no doubt that was the way you did it, but you must now comply. That is the law. And you'll just have to hold your picnic earlier and nominate somebody to file for election."

Cities have been "surprisingly responsive," Brock added, and only 10 towns are still delinquent in getting the final detailed legal papers on file with the State Board of Elections.

Even the smallest town—and some have as few as 50 registered voters—must conduct their elections under the uniform procedures. The towns can select one of four types of municipal elections:

—Non-partisan plurality in which candidates must file between noon Sept. 14 and noon Oct. 12; with election Nov. 6.

—Partisan with primary with candidates filing in party races between noon Aug. 3 and noon Aug. 31; first primary Sept. 25; second primary if needed Oct. 16; and election with party nominees on the ballot Nov. 6.

—Non-partisan with primary in which one slate of nominees runs regardless of political affiliation, with candidates filing between noon, Aug. 17 and noon, Sept. 14; the primary Oct. 9, and election Nov. 6.

—Non-partisan election and runoff (eliminating the primary) in which candidates must file between noon, Aug. 17 and noon, Sept. 14; elimination election Oct. 9; final runoff (if needed) Nov. 6.

New Registration
Another change in this year's municipal elections is that all voters are now registered on one set of books—those held by the county board of election.

Previously, a voter might have been registered in as many as seven different books: county, town, school district, fire district, sanitary district, soil and water conservation district—a total of 1,100 special district throughout the state.

In some counties, especially those where partisan municipal and county elections were held (like Randolph and some western and near-western counties) voters would register Republican on one book; Democratic on another so they could participate in what they considered the most important primaries.

That will no longer be possible, Brock noted, and all of those books have been consolidated into one registration. "If you were registered anywhere, you are now automatically registered for all purposes."

"Even if a town decides to conduct its own municipal election instead of contracting with the county elections board to do it, registrations are still kept by the county, and the town must coordinate with them," he explained.

Of the 462 municipalities, 201 opted to conduct their own elections under a town elections board; 262 contracted with the county board to handle it. Towns with partisan elections automatically fell under the county board.

Cure Apathy?
Brock believes this simplification and standardization of town elections will go a long way in helping to cure voter frustration and apathy.

Brock credited Rep. Samuel H. Johnson of Raleigh with having the nerve to introduce the far-reaching legislation bringing about the change, and Deputy Attorney General James F. Bullock for spelling out the problems which in Bullock's words made the state's municipal election procedures a "disgrace."

One of Bullock's principal concerns as he met regularly with the State Board of Elections during revision of the laws, Brock said, was the fact that municipal officials who themselves were elected to office sat in judgment over election procedures used to select a possible replacement.

An Opportunity For New Faces

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH—If there's a new face on the horizon and he or she is interested in politics, 1974 would probably be the best time ever for them to seek elective office.

That's the opinion expressed to me by pollster Walter DeVries, the man who gauged public opinion for gubernatorial candidate Skipper Bowles in 1972.

At that point in the interview DeVries made the comment that 1974 might be a great year for a fresh face who could campaign as a sort of non-politician, if there is such an animal.

DeVries, who now makes his home in Wrightsville Beach, says he isn't sure the Watergate hearings are affecting Sen. Sam Ervin's popularity in North Carolina. "I'd like to do an in-depth study on that question," DeVries says. "But as a gut feeling, I'd say Sen. Ervin was probably helped by it initially, but I'm not certain he's being helped by it now in North Carolina. Watergate is a world of its own and I don't know how much of it the average guy is watching now."

Politicians, of course, are speculating that 1974 could be the year that Sen. Ervin runs in the Democratic primary against a field that could include Attorney General Robert Morgan.

DeVries also says it used to be that being an incumbent was a major asset in a political campaign, but Watergate and other issues now seem to be making that a liability.

"I've been doing some studies in other states and have talked with other pollsters across the nation," DeVries said, "and cynicism among voters seems to be two or three times higher than it was in 1972 and you know how high it was then. The more people learn about Watergate, the higher that cynicism becomes; not just about Watergate, but all institutions."

"I would guess that an Ervin-Morgan campaign would be one of the more interesting ones ever staged in North Carolina, if it comes about," DeVries said. "It goes without saying that Sen. Ervin is well-known. And in all the polls we ran in 1971, we found Morgan to be extremely well-known by the voters. As a matter of act, the first poll we ran on the Governor's race found Morgan leading Pat Taylor by a small margin and Bowles by a very big margin.

But when we asked people what they knew about Morgan or what they liked about him, specifics were hard to come by. Very few of them even mentioned consumerism and that's what he was known for at the time." DeVries is convinced that Watergate is hurting both political parties, though the

CLOUDS OF WITNESSES
According to an old Scottish story a highland chief by the name of MacGregor fell wounded in a mighty battle and his followers in dismay began to give way before the enemy. The old chieftain saw this, and raising himself on his elbow cried in a strident voice, "I am not dead, my brothers; I am looking to see that you do your duty." The conclusion of the story is of course that confidence went through the ranks and that his followers won the day.

cloud of witnesses. Not a crowd of witnesses, but a cloud, referring to the saints and martyrs, to the good men and women who have passed on before, to loved ones who are eagerly watching the lives of those whom they left only a short time ago. When we are tempted to give up we should remember the host of loved ones who, even though they are silent, are saying to us, "I am looking at you in the hour of trial, pain, and temptation, to see that you fail not."

Pattern To Be Broken

More than 65 years ago, President Theodore Roosevelt sent a message to the Congress. He was concerned about the high cost of the presidential campaign of 1904 and the bi-elections of 1906.

"The need for collecting large campaign funds would vanish," said the old Rough Rider, "if Congress provided an appropriation for the proper and legitimate expenses of each of the great national parties."

Roosevelt's idea, in brief, was for the public financing of federal elections. It is an idea, I submit, whose time has just about come.

This represents a change of position on my part, and on the part of other conservatives who have objected to federal financing in the past. We have felt that any such program would be unwise in terms of fiscal policy, and we have argued that corollary regulations, limiting private contributions and other otherwise regulating the conduct of political campaigns, would infringe upon first amendment freedoms.

These are serious objections, and I reluctantly put them aside. What we are talking about is a complex system of appropriating public funds to be spent by private hands—by political parties and by individual candidates. Such a prospect requires, at a minimum, a network of tight controls, supervised by a massive bureaucracy. A workable plan would have to cover both primary and general elections; it would have to give account to third parties and to possibly frivolous candidates; and it might create new evils, by reviving bossism and entrenching office holders, as objectionable as the old evils it is intended to dispel.

Yet it seems to me, on balance, that drastic measures are needed if we are to remove the curse of money that now corrupts our political process. If we do not learn at least this lesson from Watergate, we are doomed to repeat that wretched course of instruction. By fixing tight limitations on individual contributions, the Senate early this week moved in the right direction; yet a great deal remains to be done.

Political campaigns, of necessity, are expensive. They are especially costly, and especially difficult, for newcomers who challenge incumbents. Once we clip the wings of political angels, as the senate proposes, some alternate plan of campaign financing will have to be provided. The present scheme of tax checkoffs and tax deductions is feeble and ineffective. Roosevelt's forthright proposal of 1907 could dispel the clouds that now shadow public confidence in public institutions.

This is the important thing. The walloping contribution from the milk producers to the Nixon campaign may have been utterly untainted by any thought of a bribe; but under the circumstances, it smacked of corruption. The $100 bills that came from Robert Vesco may have been prompted by motives of Snow White purity; but the charge is widely believed that the case bought access to high places. important role in the life of a child by the time he is 5 ("Tell me again what I was like when I was young, Mama"), and after he is middle-aged it will may play the dominant role.

It is doubtful whether any human being after the age of 21 spends an hour of his waking life without some retrospect, without at least a momentary flashback into memory. Unlike the camera, which has some limitations of time and space, memory can instantly and hardly without effort return the human mind's eye back into any significant scene or place of his existence.

And as we grow older, and our prospects grow dimmer, we depend more upon the productions of memory for our spiritual nourishment.

There are a lot of vitamins in your own memory if you can look back and remember when—

A teen-age child would almost as soon think of committing hari-kiri as calling his father or mother by their first names. Neither parents nor children deplored the existence of a generation gap; both found it rather useful.

To anyone growing up in the Midwest, the Mississippi River was a greater symbol of romance and adventure than any ocean. Politicians and political philosophers thought that if we ever got into any war in the Far East, it certainly wouldn't be with any country smaller than China.

Yul Brynner had hair. Clara Bow, one of the earliest of many movie stars to emerge from Brooklyn, was known as "The It Girl."

During the prohibition era in Manhattan the house of Helen Morgan, "the singing speak-easy operator," was almost as well known as the House of Morgan run by J.P., the banker titan.

Many medical specialists were publicly hopeful that the problem of cancer would be solved by 1950 at the latest.

Rocket pioneers who predicted that man would sometime send a space missile to the moon were dismissed as harmless, publicity-seeking cranks.

The most popular lines high school kids wrote in each other's graduation books were: "Leaves may wither, flowers may die, friends may forget these, but ne'er shall I."

Auto Industry's Boom Goes On

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) —

Despite price restraints, costly safety controls, a high incidence of recalls and the imminence of antipollution devices, the automotive industry is running up records like an odometer rolls up mileage.

Reports from each of the country's four major manufacturers are as loaded with superlatives as some of the new car advertisements.

In the second quarter, for example, General Motors secured its position as the world's largest manufacturer with record sales of $9.6 billion, record high employment of 813,000, and record payrolls of $2.6 billion.

About the only disappointment in the GM report was a $20 million decline in profits from the first quarter. Nevertheless, the $797 million of net income was $74 million above the year-earlier period.

Ford reported second-quarter sales and earnings higher than ever before, more than $100 million higher than in the same period of 1972. The figures: sales $6.27 billion, earnings $394.2 million.

Chrysler reported sales and earnings higher than in any previous second quarter. Sales jumped to $3.18 billion, and net income rose $40.2 million to $108.6 million.

American Motors, which had all but sputtered to a stop a few years ago, responded to the vigorous market with April-May-June sales of $472 million, about $96 million more than a year ago. Earnings more than doubled to $16.9 million. American companies aren't the only ones participating in the boom. While total sales through June in the U.S. market are expected to top six million units when all reports are in, close to one million of these are imports. Offsetting the imports was a stronger showing abroad by U.S. manufacturers. GM, for example, reported "unprecedented worldwide sales and record profits from overseas operations."

The big question now is how long the boom can continue. More than a few analysts of the automotive industry believe that today's records are, to some extent, at the expense of tomorrow's business.

Surveys suggests that this is just what is happening. Convinced that future prices will be higher, and the product less efficient, some buyers are in effect buying tomorrow's car now.

If car makers are worried about this they don't show it. Early compilations suggest that the third quarter will be another record breaker, and that strong sales might continue well into 1974.

But later in 1974 the car makers must contend with the reality of pollution control standards. It is at this point that buyers might balk, waiting for the next guy to make a test run before committing themselves.

There still are a few question marks about these forecasts of many vigorous months to come. First is the labor situation, with contract talks now under way at GM. And then there is the question of gasoline availability.

Low Marks To Cambodia Army

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Two weeks before U.S. bombing support of Cambodia ends, U.S. military analysts give low marks to the Cambodian army and offer little hope it will improve. Much of their blunt criticism is aimed at Cambodian army staff and field officers, whom they accuse of corruption, bad tactical planning, mismanagement of resources and lackluster leadership in battle.

Reports reaching the Pentagon tell of the U.S.-equipped Cambodian army starting out on multi-battalion operations, only to be stopped by smaller forces of Communist-led insurgents despite heavy fire support from U.S. bombers and fighter bombers.

Among other things, the United States has been speeding powerful new howitzers to the Cambodians but the analysts say it is questionable whether these guns will do much good in the hands of Cambodian artillerymen, whose fire recently has been rated ineffective.

One appraisal circulated in the Pentagon referred to the deteriorating morale of the Cambodian troop.

"Prospects of early improvement of the Cambodian army are poor," this appraisal said. Nearly a month ago, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said that "the knotty question is whether the (Lon Nol) regime, during the course of the next 40 days, will begin to develop the kinds of strength and internal discipline that will permit it ... to bring (its materiel) advantages to bear" against the insurgents."

Pentagon maps reflecting the deteriorating Cambodian situation show about 75 per cent of Cambodia under insurgent and North Vietnamese control. The only areas left to the government, according to these maps, comprise a shrinking perimeter around Phnom Penh, a corridor to the port of Kompong Som, on the Gulf of Siam, and another corridor to the rice-growing area in western Cambodia.

Major Cambodian setbacks occurred despite hundreds of U.S. war plane sorties a day.

U.S. analysts say the tiny

Cambodian air force is in better shape than the army, but is extremely limited and unable to offset the loss of U.S. air support after Aug. 15.

Schlesinger said last week that, on strictly military grounds, the halting of U.S. bombing of insurgent forces in Cambodia is "ill advised."

But there is no sign that the Nixon administration will seek an extension of the bombing beyond Aug. 15 and every indication that Congress would reject such an extension, if it were requested.

Rules IBM To Pay Up Fine

NEW YORK (AP) — A federal judge has declared International Business Machines Corp. in civil contempt of court and imposed a $150,000-a-day fine starting Friday for its refusal to provide documents in a government antitrust suit against the huge computer firm.

An IBM spokesman said company lawyers were set to argue at a U.S. Court of Appeals hearing today in Bridgeport, Conn., for a stay to block the fine pending appeal of the contempt decision.

Chief Judge David N. Edelman of the U.S. District Court ruled Wednesday that IBM must pay the fine daily starting Friday unless it turns over some 700 documents sought by the government.

The Justice Department has charged IBM with monopolizing the general computer market and requested the documents to aid in constructing its antitrust suit, which seeks to split up IBM into several competing companies.

In imposing the fine, Judge Edelman said he was concerned with "prompt resolution" of government's four-year-old complaint.

IBM reportedly has turned over millions of other documents to the government but balked on the 700 because it considers them "work product" subject to lawyer-client confidentiality.

Lawyers for the mammoth electronics and data processing firm, headquartered in Armonk, N.Y., contended that government agencies including the FBI had routinely destroyed old files of documents which might have been helpful in its defense against the antitrust suit.

Demand Control Of Expenditures

WASHINGTON (AP) — Future federal expenditures on security work for President Nixon's personal residences would require congressional approval under a measure approved by the House Wednesday.

The provision was included in a $4.2 billion funding bill for the White House, Postal Service, Treasury Department and several other executive agencies.

It passed the House by voice vote and now goes to the Senate.

Meanwhile, Rep. John H. Buchanan Jr., R-Ala., predicted that a "comprehensive report" on publicly funded improvements at Nixon's homes in Florida and California will be made public within 10 days.

Tuesday the White House said it will make a complete disclosure of the improvements, but set no date. And Arthur F. Sampson, director of the General Services Administration, announced that no more piecemeal information on the matter will be revealed pending completion of the comprehensive report.

He said the report is being prepared to "dispel the idea in the public's mind that large amounts were spent to improve the President's home."

The statements came in response to charges by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Tex., that the Nixon Administration is trying to block his subcommittee's investigation by withholding records of public funds spent on improvements or the residences. Brooks said he would try to subpoena all pertinent data.

The last figures made available by GSA indicated that a total of $1.9 million has been spent on construction, operation and maintenance of security operations at the Nixon homes.

Republicans are probably getting the worst of it. This is because of the cynical eye with which voters are viewing politicians and their respective parties.

"You can look back to 1972 and tell people of North Carolina wanted a change," DeVries said, "and this was before Watergate became so widely known. Bowles defeated Taylor, Holshouser defeated Gardner, Galifianakis defeated Jordan, and then Holshouser won over Bowles and Helms over Galifianakis. The desire for change would seem to be much greater now than it was a year ago."

I asked DeVries if Watergate could have an effect on the liquor-by-the-drink referendum.

"I don't think so," he said. "But to me, it appears the dregs are well organized and working along, while the wets still don't have much of an organization. Usually in a vote like this, the people against turn out in larger numbers percentage wise than those in favor. I would say at this point, and again this is a gut feeling, that the wets would look to be in trouble."

American Airlines, has explained why a large part of the political money given by the business community is given: "It is given in fear of what could happen if it were not given."

This pattern has to be broken. Granted, the drafting of a workable law on public financing will not be easy. This whole business of election reform, as last week's debate in the Senate made clear, is in part a choice of lesser evils as better than greater evils. The suspicious though will not go away that some members, in the pious name of election reform, are in fact taking a leaf from the famous textbook in political science by Prof. John Wesley Dean, "maximizing our incumbency, or, how to screw our opponents."

'Miss Indian' Beauty Chosen

SHERIDAN, Wyo. (AP) — A 21-year-old Arizona State University student has been named as Miss Indian America.

Maxine Henrietta Norris, a Papago Indian from Casa Grande, Ariz., was presented a scholarship Sunday, among other awards.

She is a health education major who plans to teach school on the Papago reservation in the southwestern corner of Arizona.

Claire Manning, a Payute Indian from Awyhee, Nev., was chosen first alternate. She also was named Miss Congeniality.

Revival Planned Begin Oct. 14

ENFIELD—The Rev. Roy L. Matthews, pastor of the Eden Methodist Church, has announced that revival services have been scheduled.

The Rev. Ellis Bedsworth, of the Bethel United Methodist Church, Bethel, will be the guest speaker. Services will be held Oct. 14-19.

Will Speak Here Sunday

RUSSELL WILKINS

Elder Russell Wilkins will speak Sunday afternoon at three o'clock at the Phillippi Church of Christ, located on 13th Street.

The service will be sponsored by the Young Adult Choir.

Wilkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie Wilkins of Roper, is a member of Bethel Church of Christ, is an ordained minister of the Washington-Norfolk Assembly and is a rising senior at Plymouth High School.

The public is invited to attend.

Moon Rock For Pres. Podgorny

MOSCOW (AP) — President Nikolai V. Podgorny of the Soviet Union has received from American Embassy officials a small rock sample from the moon.

The rock, about half the size of a baseball, had been brought back from the moon's Taurus Littrow Valley by Apollo 17 astronauts. It was presented Wednesday as a gift from President Nixon.

Accepting the moon sample, Podgorny said preparations were "successfully continuing" for a joint Soviet-American space flight scheduled for 1975.

Dollar Improves On All Markets

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar improved on all European markets today.

The dollar opened at 2.35 marks in Frankfurt, up from Wednesday's 2.3365. The rate in Paris was 4.105 francs, a gain of 2 1/2 centimes, while in Zurich it rose to 2.8500 Swiss francs, up more than half a centime.

Experience Scarred Community Of Wounded Knee

By PHYLIS MENSING
Associated Press Writer
WOUNDED KNEE, S.D.
(AP) — Each day brings car-loads of tourists to this small village. The license plates span the Union: Pennsylvania, Missouri, New Jersey, Nebraska.

For many summers, people have come here to view a cemetery holding the remains of 146 Indian men, women and children killed by U.S. cavalrymen in 1890. But there is an added reason for coming this year, the result of militant Indians' highly publicized 71-day takeover of the village that ended May 8.

Reminders of the occupation are visible everywhere: a burned-out church, a flattened trading post, slogans on a museum, carpenters carrying lumber and scaffolding.

Undetectable to the average tourist, however, are scars left on some of the people of Wounded Knee and the surrounding Pine Ridge Reservation, home of 11,000 Oglala Sioux.

"The people here are culturally closely knit by a kinship pattern relationship. This sudden episode of aggressiveness has strained the pattern," said Johnson Holy Rock, a former Oglala tribal chairman who now is a member of the tribal council.

"There's an atmosphere of distrust or disagreement or dissonance among the people themselves," he went on. "Some were in favor of what happened, some disagreed. Consequently, it brought people into conflict. Internal family structures have been disrupted because brothers and sisters, aunts and uncles have started taking sides on positions of the people involved. On Feb. 27, a group led by the American Indian Movement swept into the village, took over the trading post and began the confrontation with government marshals and FBI agents who set up roadblocks around the hamlet.

The siege went on and on. Before it ended with an agreement on May 8, two Indians and two federal agents were wounded and two occupiers — Frank Clearwater, identified later as a white named Frank Clear, and Lawrence Lamont, an Oglala Sioux — were shot dead.

Now, nearly three months later, a key issue raised by AIM continues to divide the Oglala Sioux.

AIM leaders Russell Means and Dennis Banks demanded that tribal Chairman Richard Wilson be ousted and new elections be held. They also called for the removal of Bureau of Indian Affairs Supt. Stanley Lyman.

Wilson, who calls AIM members hoodlums and extortionists, said in a recent interview that he expects to seek re-election in January, despite

Plan Expanding Of Two Plants

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—The Mead Corp. announced Wednesday it will expand its Stanley Furniture Co. plant at West End, N.C., and another at Stanleytown, Va.

The project will cost $12.5 million, the company said.

A new finishing plant and a warehouse will be built at West End.

several impeachment attempts during his 13 months in office.

"They (AIM) have a whole lot of grievances but no solutions," said Wilson. "I think only the elected constitutional officers can have the solutions. 'AIM didn't help us one bit,' he added. "If there's been any change since the occupation, it's been for the worse."

"At election time, the atmosphere is going to be real tense, depending on what happens with the tribal legislative system," said Holy Rock. "I think those who are opposed to constitutional government are going to make an aggressive bid to take charge of tribal government and practice the traditional form."

But he said the traditional form of government, advocated by some pro-AIM people, is almost completely forgotten.

"Some practice a loose form of traditional government, for example, following the hereditary line of chiefs. But they are mainly going through the motions. Those that want traditional government are trying to reach back and grasp something about as illusive as a fish that one tries to catch by the hand. It all adds to the confusion."

One of the terms of the settlement was that White House representatives come to the reservation to discuss creation of a presidential commission to study the 1869 treaty granting the Sioux all land in South Dakota west of the Missouri River.

That group met late in May with Frank Fools Crow and other tribal elders near Kyle, northeast of Wounded Knee. Fools Crow and the others urged the White House to abolish the Indian Reorganization Act that provides for elected tribal governments, and to let the Indians return to older ways.

Nothing major has come from the talks.

Another issue raised by AIM was the reform of the Bureau of Indian Affairs and changes in federal Indian relationships. Several congressional hearings have been held, but no major changes have been implemented.

Holy Rock, who was part of a task force that studied the issue, said the group concluded that although it had faults, the BIA was necessary to the future of the Indian.

"We have a lot of problems with our young people," Holy Rock said. "They have a lot of energy and things they observed at Wounded Knee fit into their attitudes. They see an avenue for that energy and whether it is right or wrong, it is appealing.

"The takeover seems to have brought an increase in an attitude adverse to law enforcement and the judicial system as practiced by the tribe under constitutional government."

But a teacher at Pine Ridge said students appeared to be more excited about AIM a year ago. "AIM sort of wore out its welcome," he said.

While the debate goes on so does the rebuilding of damaged property and for some it is a particularly bitter experience.

Probing Source Of Controversy

CULLOWHEE, N.C. (AP)—An select committee from the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina began four days of closed meetings Wednesday to determine the facts in a controversy between the chancellor of Western Carolina University and some of the school's faculty.

Committee chairman William Johnson told an audience of several hundred before hearings began. "This is not a formal investigation against the chancellor," Jack T. Carlton, nor against faculty members. He said the committee of three will make recommendations for the board after ascertaining the facts.

Carlton was the first person interviewed by the committee.

Ex-Mayor Yorty Practicing Law

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former Mayor Sam Yorty has returned to law practice and says he will specialize in international law.

Yorty's 12 years as mayor ended after he lost a May 28 runoff election against City Councilman Tom Bradley.

It was while serving in the state legislature in 1939 that Yorty, now 63, finished night school law courses and was admitted to the California bar. He has not said publicly whether he intends to run for office again.

home. Mrs. Coates said the family's problems began when three persons came to the door and demanded entry. When her husband refused, she said, they began breaking windows and gunfire was later exchanged.

Coates said the family put as many possessions as they could into the trailer and moved behind federal roadblocks. "The next morning the house was on fire ... If the marshals had wanted to protect the place, they could have," he said.

Eva and Paul Red Star are among several displaced Wounded Knee families living in temporary trailer homes in Pine Ridge. New houses being built in Wounded Knee are expected to be finished this fall. "We're going back. It's our homestead," said Mrs. Red Star.

"The government forced us out. They took our food because they thought it would be given to AIM," her husband added. "Instead of going to the store, where the AIM forces were, they went to the homes of the residents and forced them to leave."

"Some others refuse to go back because of the high emotions still involved," said Eugene Rooks, executive director of the Oglala Sioux Housing Authority. The authority is working with the Housing and Urban Development Administration — HUD — to build an estimated $30,000 worth of new low-rent units at Wounded Knee.

"They (AIM) are still waiting for their Black Hills settlement. We're slow but at least we're doing what we say we will do," he said.

Pianist Takacs In Recital On Sunday

A varied program of piano music is in the offing Sunday afternoon when pianist Peter Takacs gives a recital at Recital Hall on campus at East Carolina University Sunday afternoon beginning at 3:15 p.m.

Peter, a native of Bucharest, Roumania, has just completed his first year on the faculty of the School of Music at ECU, where he is Assistant Professor of Piano.

On his program, he lists one work which he says he believes will be the premier performance in North Carolina. The work is American composer Lybbert's Sonata Brevis, written in 1962.

Other compositions Peter will play are Mozart's Sonata in D Major; Ballad in F Minor by Chopin; three pieces for piano by Schoenberg; and a Franz Liszt piece, Sonata in B Minor.

The Sunday recital will be his third since he joined the music faculty here in September 1972. As a result of winning the yearly competition sponsored by the N.C. Symphony Orchestra, Peter will be making two appearances with the orchestra in the 1973-74 season. One will be in Rocky Mount, the other in Fayetteville.

Within the near future, the young bachelor pianist, will be entering a number of major national and international competitions, including ones scheduled at the Universities of Maryland and Rhode Island. In 1974 he plans to enter the annual Maryland and Rhode Island. In 1974 he plans to enter the annual Montreal Piano Competition in Canada.

During the coming season, he will also be conducting a newly organized music group on campus, the ECU Contemporary Chamber Ensemble.

Admission to Sunday's concert is free, and the public is invited to attend. The Recital Hall, located just off East Tenth Street in the A.J. Fletcher Music Building, is air conditioned.

Confirm Colby As CIA Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has confirmed President Nixon's nomination of William E. Colby, a career intelligence officer, to head the Central Intelligence Agency.

Colby, who has been deputy director for operations in the spy agency since March, will replace James R. Schlesinger who was appointed Secretary of Defense.

The 83 to 13 vote Wednesday followed a debate in which demands were made for closer congressional scrutiny of the "cloak and dagger" operation.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., proposed a permanent Senate committee to oversee CIA operations and publication of the now-secret intelligence budget.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., introduced a resolution for a one-year special committee study of U.S. government intelligence activities, including military intelligence, and a bill to revise the CIA charter.

Colby was praised by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., acting chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, as "a dedicated and competent professional" who had been given tough assignments in Laos and South Vietnam because of his ability.

In opposing Colby, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., called him "the epitome of the covert man" and not the one to strike a needed balance between the clandestine and intelligence functions of the CIA.

Colby, who has been deputy director for operations in the spy agency since March, will replace James R. Schlesinger who was appointed Secretary of Defense.

Senate Votes Require Nixon Allocate Fuels

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate, seeking ways to ease the nation's fuel shortage, has voted to require President Nixon to order a mandatory allocation of surplus fuels.

The measure would direct Nixon to establish the program within 10 days. It also would give him sweeping powers to set gasoline and fuel oil prices.

The sponsor, Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., said the legislation was needed so the United States wouldn't be caught short with this fall's high seasonal demands for harvesting and heating fuels.

He also said it was Congress' last hope for saving independent oil and gasoline distributors.

The Senate adopted Jackson's proposal 79 to 9 Wednesday in the form of an amendment to a non-related bill, one establishing guidelines for the labeling of copies of coins.

The amendment would direct the President to draw up fuel allocation regulations taking into account public health, national defense, maintenance of essential farm operations, and equitable shares of oil to independent distributors.

The President would be given authority to set prices at which gasoline, heating oil and other petroleum products could be sold. The program would run until March 1, 1975.

Jackson said there is a good chance the House will accept the package after it clears the Senate today. That way it would reach the President's desk shortly after Congress recesses Friday for a month.

Nixon already has authority to implement a mandatory allocation program. But sponsors of the Senate proposal protested that he hasn't used it, relying on voluntary allocation instead. The Jackson amendment would give him no choice.

As both House and Senate sought to wind up their work for the start of the month-long recess, the Senate also planned

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY

Fall Cucumbers
All evidence points toward a fairly large fall crop of cucumbers. George Hughes, Extension Horticultural Specialist, listed five items that growers need to be aware of in order to make a good crop:

1. To get a long harvest period, seeding should be completed by August 1. Where necessary or desirable, planting may continue until August 10-15 but both length of harvest and yield is likely to be reduced.
2. Pick worms are already present in North Carolina and a rigid control program will be necessary. Exercise care in spraying after blooming starts to avoid killing bees.
3. Plant only varieties resistant to our major diseases. Southern Cross Explorer, Galaxy Chipper, Carolina or Sumter are varieties that should be able to withstand the diseases provided fungicides are applied. None of these varieties are completely immune.
4. Use a good weed control program. If current rains continue into the fall season, weeds could be a serious problem. Prefar, Planavin (use only on raised beds), Alanap-Prefar combination or Vegiben 2E will be suitable. Consult the County Agents Office for specific recommendations on each.
5. Broadcast all the fertilizer (100 lbs. each N-P-K) and disc in 5-7 days prior to planting.

Tobacco Diseases
The increase in tobacco disease incidence is fair warning that growers can not afford to slack up with any method of control according to Furney Todd. Todd is Extension Professor of Plant Pathology. The diseases of blackshank, Granville wilt and Mosaic have taken a higher toll of the 1973 crop than was the case during the last two growing seasons. Losses are still low when compared with crops of earlier years, said Todd

Expecting More Tractor Sales
NEW YORK (UPI) — More discretionary income and a penchant for time-saving by families in performing weekly gardening chores are expected to raise industry lawn and garden tractor sales to slightly over 1 million units this year, an increase of about 8 per cent over 1972, according to an industry source.

Darwin G. Kettering, president of Massey-Ferguson, Inc., a leading garden tractor firm, estimates his own company will sell about 12 per cent more machines than last year.

Japanese Quads Get Along Fine
GIFU, Japan (AP) — Quadruplets born to the 23-year-old wife of a local farmer are now five weeks old and getting along fine, hospital authorities reported today.

The boy and three girls were born prematurely to Misao Hachiya on June 26. The boy weighed 5 1/2 pounds and the girls between 3 1/2 pounds and 4 1/2 pounds each.

Meany Is Critical, But Will Keep Job

CHICAGO (AP) — Despite bitter denunciation of President Nixon over the economy and Watergate, AFL-CIO President George Meany says he will remain a member of the administration's labor-management advisory committee.

But the powerful labor leader predicted Wednesday that the administration's economic controls would lead the nation into a recession by the end of the year.

"To me, we are facing economic disaster in this country at the present time, unless there is some change in the policy," Meany told newsmen during the AFL-CIO's quarterly executive council meeting in nearby Oak Brook.

Meany called for the immediate lifting of economic restraints, including wage and price controls and the freeze on beef prices, and a return to a free market economy.

Meany saved his strongest criticism for the Watergate affair, which he called a national disgrace.

the law, that is the end of democracy in this country," he said. "If they can break it and burglarize your home, they can commit any crime."

Meany also said the 13.6-million-member federation would continue to support Cesar Chavez's embattled United Farm Workers Union.

Meany said he would meet Friday with Teamsters Union leaders in an effort to bring an end to the struggle over which union would represent California farm workers.

Parker's, Sluggers In City Title Victories

Parker's Barbecue came out of the losers' bracket and knocked off Dainty Maid, 9-7 and 9-5, to gain the playoff championship of the Gold Division of the City Softball League last night. Regular season champ Little Sluggers won the Purple Division with a 13-4 win over Hardee's.

The two teams will now meet for the overall league championship Friday night in a best-of-three series.

In the first game of the Gold finals, Parker's pushed over a run in the first, while Dainty Maid came back with two. Dainty Maid, which won the regular season title, got another in the second. Parker's rallied for three in the third, while Dainty Maid got one for a 4-4 tie.

Dainty Maid got another in the fifth to regain the lead, then picked up two in the sixth after Parker's had scored one in the top of the frame. But Parker's came back with four in the seventh to push ahead and win. Jay Boswell walked and Ronald Carraway tripled. Nichols singled, and a triple by Willie Wallace brought in another run. Wayne Avery's fielder's choice scored Wallace with the final run.

In the second game, Parker's pushed over three in the first, but Parker's came up with three in the third to tie. Parker's got another in the fifth, while Dainty Maid pushed ahead with two in the sixth for a 5-4 lead.

But again, Parker's came up with a big seventh, scoring five runs, to win the game and the title. Carraway singled and Wayne Vincent got a hit. Robert Garrett doubled and Wallace singled but was thrown out trying to stretch it. Johnny Carraway singled and Robert Nichols reached on a hit. He scored on Lester Wells' double with the final run.

In the other division, Little Sluggers had little trouble in winning. They pushed over two in the first, as did Hardee's. Two more crossed for the Sluggers in the third, and they broke it open in the fourth.

That inning saw eight runs cross for a 12-2 lead. R. Coggins doubled and W. Briley singled. S. Peele singled and P. Page got a double. L. Hardee singled and P. Fleming reached on a fielder's choice. R. Craft doubled and M. Parrell did too. He came around to score on hits by Coggins and Briley to conclude the scoring in the frame.

The Sluggers added one more in the sixth, while Hardee's came up with two more in the seventh.

OAKLAND (AP) — The California Golden Seals have signed another of their veteran players, center Ivan Boldirev.

The team announced the signing of Boldirev, 24, to a multi-season National Hockey League contract Tuesday. He played in 56 games last season, missing 21 with a knee injury, and scored 34 points.

Boston Outslugs NY; Birds Take Over 1st

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Two of the best catchers in the American League also are two of the best fighters.

Thurman Munson of the New York Yankees and Carlton Fisk of the Boston Red Sox came to blows after a head-on collision at home plate Wednesday.

The battle sparked a free-for-all and before order was restored, the Red Sox had literally knocked the Yankees out of first place in the American League East with a 5-4 decision.

After Munson's irresistible force met Fisk's immovable object at home plate in Fenway Park, the game was delayed for several minutes while both benches emptied. Then the Red Sox rallied in their half of the ninth to pull out the tense contest.

Mario Guerrero's two-out single drove home Bob Montgomery with the winning run.

The loss spilled the Yankees out of first, a position they had held since July 11. The Baltimore Orioles, 4-2 winners over the Cleveland Indians, jumped over the Yanks into first by .004 percentage points.

In the other American League games, the Detroit Tigers nipped the Milwaukee Brewers 2-1; the Kansas City

Royals trimmed the Chicago White Sox 4-2; the Oakland A's turned back the Minnesota Twins 6-2 and the California Angels stopped the Texas Rangers 5-1.

Orioles 4, Indians 2

Boog Powell clubbed a home run, his ninth of the season, to help Baltimore defeat Cleveland 4-2. Powell unloaded his homer with the bases empty in the sixth off Dick Bosman, who suffered his 12th loss of the year.

Despite the success, and the Orioles' rise to first place, Manager Earl Weaver wasn't impressed.

"I don't care what position we're in now," said Weaver, "as long as we're in first place after the last game of the season."

When you have a heavy load to lift, lift it with HiJackers. The rear-end, air-adjustable shocks by Gabriel.

HiJackers are the shock absorbers you fill like a tire to lift loads up to 1,000 pounds on campers, wagons, big cars. While still maintaining a safe, level ride. And after hauling your load, you can return your car to normal simply by reducing the air-pressure.

HiJackers also give high-performance cars better traction for faster acceleration.

Wise Escaping Shadow Of Carlton

END OVER END—New York Yankees' Thurman Munson is out at the plate on an attempted suicide squeeze, bowling over Boston Red Sox catcher Carlton Fisk in the ninth inning Wednesday at Fenway Park. The umpire is Joe Brinkman. The two players began trading blows after hot words and both were ejected from the game. Boston won the game, 3-2. (AP Wirephoto)

National League is one of the main reasons the St. Louis Cardinals are atop the National League East. Until this season, Wise's main claim to fame was that prior to the 1972 season, he was traded even-up for Carlton. While Wise compiled a 16-16 record for St. Louis, Carlton won 27 games and the Cy Young Award for the Phils.

But this year is another matter. Wise boosted his record to 12-4—and hit a three-run homer—as the Cards beat the Montreal Expos 9-3, then watched as Reggie Cleveland pitched a five-hit, 2-0 triumph in the second game of a twinight doubleheader Wednesday. The Cards, who lost 20 of their first 25 outings, now lead the second-place Cubs by 3 1/2 games in the NL East.

In other National League games, the Philadelphia Phils beat the Chicago Cubs 2-0, the New York Mets swept the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0, 5-2 in a twinight doubleheader, the Atlanta Braves outscored the Cincinnati Reds 14-6, the Houston Astros blanked the Los Angeles Dodgers 5-0 and the San Diego Padres edged the San Francisco Giants 6-5.

Phil's 2, Cubs 0 Philadelphia's Wayne Twitchell shut out the Chicago Cubs on just two hits Wednesday night, pitching the Phils to a 2-0 victory. Twitchell hurled no-hit ball for 5 1-3 innings, but Phils manager Danny Ozark didn't think he pitched all that well. "I couldn't get the breaking ball over the plate early, and had to go with my fast-ball," explained Twitchell, who boosted his record to 10-3.

Mets 3-5, Pirates 0-2 Tom Seaver pitched a four-hitter and struck out 11 in the Mets' 3-0 win in the opener. He raised his strikeout total to a league-leading 166 and lowered his earned run average to 1.87.

John Milner, playing despite a sore shoulder, clubbed two solo homers to help the Mets to a 5-2 triumph in the second game. James Rodney Roachard tossed a five-hitter in stopping the Dodgers 5-0 for his first major league shutout.

Jimmy Wynn hit a two-run double in the sixth inning, ending an 0-for-32 streak and sparking a four-run rally. The hitless streak was a record for an Astro player.

Braves 14, Reds 6 Dave Johnson belted two homers and Darrell Evans and Mike Lum hit one apiece as the Braves outslug the Reds 14-6. Johnson now has hit 27 homers on the year—his previous one-season high was 18—and Evans has 31.

Tony Perez smacked his 20th homer of the year for the Reds.

Astros 5, Dodgers 0

James Rodney Roachard tossed a five-hitter in stopping the Dodgers 5-0 for his first major league shutout.

Haldeman Linked To Charlotte Suits By His Memo

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Scores of both protesters and nonprotesters were either denied admission to a public rally for evangelist Bill Graham at which President Nixon spoke two years ago, or were ejected once they were inside the Charlotte Coliseum. Former White House Chief of Staff H. R. Haldeman showed enthusiasm over prospects for violence and the display of obscene signs by anti-Nixon demonstrators at the

Acceptance By Hirohito Seen

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako welcome President Nixon's invitation to visit the United States next year, according to an imperial spokesman. Sources said Wednesday the royal couple may accept the invitation for two weeks in the autumn of 1974.

who were denied admission, including five who were arrested on disorderly conduct charges. Secret Service men, Charlotte police and ushers turned many persons away from the Coliseum. Fourteen young persons

Last Tuesday, U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan ordered the case scheduled for trial and said the federal and local officers conducted a "wholesale assault upon the civil rights and liberties of numerous citizens" at the ceremony for Graham, a native of Charlotte.

McMillan said the main criteria for exclusion had been long hair and casual dress.

He enjoined the Secret Service from arbitrarily barring people from presidential appearances unless the personal safety of the president was involved.

Former White House counsel John Dean had testified in earlier committee hearings that Haldeman helped set up a plan to bar dissenters from presidential appearances. The memo, however, was the first evidence linking Haldeman directly with the Charlotte actions.

The memo, addressed to Haldeman by an aide, Ronald H. Walker, said the latest intelligence from an advance man, Bill Henkel, and the Secret Service, was that between 100 and 200 demonstrators probably would be present, and that violence and "extremely obscene" signs were anticipated.

Following the reference to obscene signs was a handwritten note saying "good." This word also was written near a passage saying the Charlotte police were tough and would use force to prevent disruption of the President's movements.

After the reference to Graham the word "great" was written.

Haldeman acknowledged the note was authentic and that he had written the notes in the margin. He said he made them because if the demonstrators intended to act that way, it would be seen by the public.

The Charlotte Observer, in its account of the Haldeman testimony about the memo and the reaction in the city, said: "Observers saw no evidence, however, of any violent disruptions. The demonstrators were generally peaceful and there were few obscenities."

A spokesman for Graham said Wednesday the evangelist "was not aware of the problem of the Secret Service until after the ceremonies were concluded."

Graham was en route to London Wednesday and not available for comment.

John R. Grimes, who headed the Charlotte office of the Secret Service at the time of the rally, had told Judge McMillan's court that "plans were made to exclude certain people from the coliseum." He declined comment Wednesday on the judge's decision. Graham now is in Washington with the Secret Service.

No other Secret Service officials would comment. One noted that the Charlotte case is headed for trial.

Charles H. Crutchfield, a broadcast executive who is president of the Charlotte Chamber of Commerce, organized the Graham Day activities, held Oct. 15, 1971.

He said shortly after the event that an intelligence team which had spent three weeks on campuses in this area "reported to the Secret Service that there would be several hundred young people who had long hair and dressed like hippies ... and they would be coming in groups of two or three ... and would take over the stage and disrupt the program."

"The Secret Service instructed to examine very carefully all people with long hair and beads. Unfortunately, in doing this some innocent people were evicted from the area. It's a regrettable thing, but their job is to protect the President ... and they did it."

Charlotte Police Chief J. C. Goodman, a defendant in the damage suit, disputed Judge McMillan's statement that the police had assaulted the civil liberties of those excluded. "We did the job we set out to do, protecting the President," Goodman said; "He left town safely, and that was our primary consideration. We violated no one's rights."

Authority Is Upheld

(RALEIGH AP)—The authority of a Charlotte judge to halt the public from going onto school grounds during school disorders was upheld by the North Carolina Court of Appeals Wednesday.

The court in an opinion written by Chief Judge Walter E. Brock dismissed an appeal by black students who challenged two orders of Superior Court Judge Frank W. Snapp Jr. The orders were issued during a series of school disturbances in October and March.

The court ruled there was no question that Snapp had authority under equity law to issue the orders.

The students claimed the orders were harassment to keep them from organizing an NAACP club at East Mecklenburg High School. Besides, they said, the orders trampled on their constitutional rights of free speech and assembly.

"There is no showing in the record that the legal or constitutional rights of any known individual were restricted or denied," said the court. Although the students claimed their rights were violated, they never showed how they were violated, the court stated.

Cannot Deal In Doctrine

(RALEIGH AP)—North Carolina's courts may not deal with questions of religious doctrine when deciding church disputes, the State Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday.

Such decisions would require "a civil court to determine matters at the very core of a religion—the interpretation of particular church doctrines and importance of those doctrines to the religion," the court added.

If the courts made such decisions they would trespass on the constitutional separation of church and state, the court added. "Disputes over church property may still be resolved and occasionally regrettable must be resolved in civil courts," said the judges. "The civil courts must decide church property disputes without inquiring into underlying controversies over religious doctrines and without in any way basing their decisions upon any determination made upon such an inquiry."

The appeal arose in a dispute between members of Little Mountain Baptist Church in Surry County.

At the end of the evidence, a jury decided that the pastor's group had deviated from the dogma upon which the church was founded.

However, as the Appeals Court sent the case back to Surry County, it said no questions of belief may be examined by the court.

Long after this summer's over, you'll be glad you bought an Olds 88.

Next winter:
88 will have more room for the bowling team than a small car.

Next spring:
88's thick, full-foam seats and big-car ride will help smooth out rough spots in the way you'd expect from a full-size car.

Next summer:
88's spacious trunk carries more luggage, backpacks and beach balls than a small car can.

Years from now: At trade-in time, you'll find out that Delta 88 is traditionally among the leaders in resale value.

A lot of room inside, smooth ride, plenty of trunk space, excellent durability—just a few of the reasons why more than half the people who traded in cars on Oldsmobile Delta 88s this year traded in other makes.

This month, Oldsmobile's lowest priced full-sized car is a better buy than ever because your Olds dealer is making great year-end deals. Test drive an 88. It's a car you'll be happy with long after the summer's over.

Olds Delta 88. Not just another pretty car. See your Olds dealer about his Year-End Wrap-Up sale now.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Dramatic, unexpected events can happen today that bring you a big chance to go forward quickly if you accept. However, there are disturbing conditions also connected with this that make you feel you are being put on a spot you don't relish, but don't fuss because you can turn this very much in your favor.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A partner can give you advice now that is very much to your benefit so be sure to follow it and gain. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You now know what to do to make your job less difficult and to be of greater help to fellow workers, also. Take the right treatments so you add to present vitality. Show you are an efficient worker.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) An invitation may be extended you unexpectedly that can bring you much joy, so plan free time out. Get that work done on some creative idea you have. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Show more affection for those at home and make them happier, more satisfied. Add comforts to the home that make it more attractive and comfortable. Show you are artistic, musical.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You may receive some visit or call that could be just the right thing to make everything better for you. You are able to find that item that has long been difficult to get. Then you can enjoy it to the full.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Show others you are a practical person and they will cooperate more so you become more successful. You know exactly how to proceed. Show another you really appreciate this person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan just how you can make others happier and gain their goodwill, do them a real service now. Being more willing to cooperate will bring fine benefits to you, too. Write letters, but don't be too wordy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Analyze just how to improve operations and know exactly where it is that you are headed. Convince others with your good ideas. The evening is ideal for romance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Showing more devotion to those who have been good to you and adding to present goodwill you enjoy is wise. Look into some new social fun that can be very pleasant; just your cup of tea. Show you have poise.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you understand higher-ups better, you can build greater security for yourself in the future. Getting into some civic work can prove very beneficial to you and improve your public image. Think logically.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You understand better now how to make your life more satisfying and successful, so take the right steps quickly. Go to right sources for the data you need at this time. Do so in a confidential way.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your intuition tells you what to do pretty much today, so follow it and get good results, coupled with your good judgment. A better understanding with mate can bring fine benefits. Show more courtesy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY — he or she will be one of those charming young people who likes to join with others at new and fascinating projects, so be sure to give the finest education you can of a scientific nature, as well as whatever has to do with the humanities, and this becomes a successful and happy life here. There is much talent for work requiring perfection of detail and polish. The field of art would be good also, and the field of music could be explored. Don't neglect spiritual teachings.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

The 'Worry Clinic' Red Herring Is Familiar Ploy

Donald's miserliness and caustic remarks are a typical "red herring." When husbands scare themselves into a platonic state, they try to divert their wife's attention by reducing her to tears. Wives, "boudoir cheesecake" solves this problem.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE X-575: Donald B., aged 43, reduces his devoted wife to tears. "Dr. Crane," she moaned, "we used to be a very happy couple."

"But the last couple of years Don has been caustic and critical of everything I do!"

"For example, he claims I am spending his money so fast he'll be broke before he is 50."

"But I am a very frugal housewife and he has previously been overly generous with his money."

"So why is he suddenly becoming a miser and a chronic fault-finder mate who won't even kiss me goodnight?"

Sex Changes

Don is a typical example of what is called the male climacteric.

That refers to a change in personality at middle age, due supposedly to sex changes.

But both the climacteric in men and the menopausal upsets in women are chiefly above the eyes!

This means they are actually not as much a result of reduced hormone secretions of the sex glands but to fright!

For women, ever since Eve, have imagined that when their uterus ceased its regular monthly function, as at age 45, then they were sexually "on the shelf."

"Dr. Crane," they have moaned, "I am no longer appealing to my husband so I feel that I am nothing but a nothing and not a thing at all!"

That's malarky! The female womb (uterus) is much like the veriform appendix attached to the intestine, for both are chiefly "excess baggage."

They can be removed surgically without any interference in the love life of the woman or in her enjoyment of food at the dinner table.

But is she mistakenly thinks her uterus is the center of her allure, she can then degenerate into a nagging, frightened and unattractive wife.

To force her husband to protest his former ardent devotion, such a wife often begins to accuse him of lack of affection or even of seeking romance with other women.

And this same type of mental upset regarding sex afflicts literally millions of men.

For when they get scared that they may be slipping in their boudoir functions, they they rapidly grow morose and terrified about impotence.

But they don't want their wives to realize that they can't grow ardently aroused in the bedroom, so they unconsciously hit upon the universal ruse of being caustic, fault-finding and hypercritical.

For if they snarl at their mate and "chew her out" constantly, they figure this will make her believe their lace of marital relations is due to the husband's anger or hatred, instead of impotence!

Other men suddenly become alcoholics, chiefly to divert their wife's attention from the husband's inability to function sexually.

Such husbands, too begin to grow miserly, since money represents power over their wives, and they think this is their only remaining way to retain dominance in their wife's life.

Wives, banish your mate's imaginary impotence, for then he'll purr happily and become generous with his money, too!

So send for my medical booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Sixty per cent of the working population in metropolitan Los Angeles drives to work, says the National Automobile Club.

The first man known to navigate the 1,400 mile-long Colorado River was Maj. John Wesley Powell in 1869.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Five of ♠

There are many "rules" to the play of cards, some of them leftovers from the days of whist. Most of these offer sound advice. However, beware of playing by rote. Rules were made to be broken.

South's choice of opening bids does not meet with our complete approval. We prefer something better than a weak doubleton for an opening no trump bid. In addition, all of South's points are in aces and kings, so his hand is more oriented to a suit contract than to no trump. North's raise to game is faultless.

West applied the "rule" for opening leads: "Fourth best from your longest and strongest." Declarer allowed East's king to win the first trick, and ducked again when East continued with the nine to his partner's queen. Perforce, he won the ace on the third round.

There were eight top tricks in sight, and the logical place to seek the game-going trick was in the club suit. Accordingly, declarer led a club, but West played the jack! As West held two winning spades that he could cash once he got the lead, declarer was forced to win the trick in dummy. He followed with the remaining high clubs, to learn that the suit divided 4-2. Declarer could establish dummy's fifth club, but there was no entry to the table to enjoy it. Eight tricks proved to be declarer's limit.

It would have been a different tale had West thoughtlessly followed another maxim: "Second hand low." Had West played the seven of clubs on South's first lead of that suit, declarer would play dummy's nine. East would win with the ten, but there would be no way to get to West's hand for the defenders to take their spades.

Declarer would win any return and lead his remaining club. Dummy's ace, king and queen would extract all the defenders' cards in the suit, and dummy's six of clubs would be declarer's ninth trick.

All Hawaii Insulted By Haldeman's Attorney

By BOB BARR
 Associated Press Writer
 HONOLULU (AP) — "You do not call anyone here a 'Jap,' unless you want to get smacked in the mouth," a newspaper editor says.

John J. Wilson, during a break in the Watergate hearings in Washington, referred to Sen. Daniel K. Inouye as "that little Jap."
 Wilson's remark touched a delicate nerve in the islands, where 36.7 per cent of the population is of Japanese ancestry.
 "I believe that a public apology is owed to all the people of Hawaii because of your disgraceful racial slur against one of our United States senators," state GOP chairman Canla Coray said in a telegram to Wilson, attorney for former White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

as 'nigger' on the mainland," said A.A. Smyser, editor of the Honolulu Star-Bulletin.
 David C. McClung, the president of the state Senate, said he might have given Wilson "a good old right-hand punch" had he been present when Wilson made the remark about the Hawaii Democrat.
 "Dan didn't because ... he's too much of a gentleman," McClung said in yet another telegram to the attorney. "Second, Dan couldn't. He left his right arm on a hill in France, fighting to rid the world of bigotry."
 Inouye, talking to newsmen in Washington, brushed off the remark as "unfortunate."
 Inouye was born to Japanese-American parents in Honolulu.

Adjustability Is 'Very Civilized'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Australian Prime Minister Gough Whitlam doesn't have to stretch to see over a lectern. But he does like to avoid squinting to read his notes when speaking.
 Whitlam, who stands 6 feet 4, was favorably impressed as he toured the General Assembly Wednesday and saw its adjustable lectern, which can be altered to the height of the speaker.
 "Very civilized," he commented.

"On behalf of all the people of Honolulu, of whom more than 200,000 are Americans of Japanese ancestry, I deeply and bitterly resent the contemptible remark you made ...," said Honolulu Mayor Frank F. Fasi, a Democrat, in a telegram to Wilson.
 Fasi invited Wilson to visit him, his Japanese-American wife, Joyce, and their 11 children.
 "Following the introductions, it will be a great pleasure for me to personally throw you out of my office," said Fasi.
 "I'm sure Mr. Wilson doesn't realize that the term 'Jap' in Hawaii is about as acceptable

Find Plane, But No Pilot

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — A small plane which disappeared last May 5 after the pilot reportedly radioed that his engine had failed over the Pamlico Sound area of the upper North Carolina coast has been found in Omaha, Neb.
 Efforts to learn the whereabouts of the pilot, identified at the time as Chuck Little of Burlington, N.C., have not been immediately successful.
 Coast Guard helicopters and surface vessels, and private pilots, had searched for the Super Cub plane for a few days, and then discontinued the effort.
 Steve Butler of Greensboro, the owner, says he was notified recently that the plane was in Omaha. He says that while flying it home, he landed at Louisville, Ky., for fuel, and got caught in the turbulence of a jet which had landed just ahead. His little plane bounded off the runway and into a pile of dirt left by a construction crew. The landing gear and the fuselage were damaged. Butler brought the plane home the rest of the way by truck. It is at the Clayton Airport between Burlington and Greensboro, and Butler says he believes it will be repaired and flying in a couple of months.

Stardom Limits Ervin Activity

WASHINGTON (AP) — "I can't go anywhere where people don't recognize me," says Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee. "So I have to be very circumspect in my conduct."
 The North Carolina Democrat who has become a star of daytime television commented on the problems of his current fame during an appearance Wednesday night at the annual convention of the International Platform Association.
 Referring to one of the convicted Watergate conspirators, Ervin told the gathering: "I think I'll follow E. Howard Hunt's example and go to the CIA and borrow some dark glasses and red wig."

Observing N.C. Farm Practices

To observe North Carolina farming operations as compared to those in Japan, K. Nakano is residing with the George Briely family of Route 5, Greenville for two weeks.

Nakano is one of three Japanese farmers living on farms in Eastern North Carolina to get a first-hand look at flue-cured tobacco operations. Sponsored by the Japan Monopoly Corp., they are primarily studying local methods of management, rationalization, mechanization, and marketing.

Japan is the third largest importer of flue-cured tobacco in the world, and the Eastern N.C. area was selected because of the amount of flue-cured tobacco it produces, according to Tadashi Yamada, a supervisor at the regional office of Japan Monopoly Corp. in Raleigh.

Participants in the training program are chosen by competitive examination. This is the first year of the program which began July 24.

According to Yamada, the three visitors are under the training of the Domestic Training Schedule Program in Japan and they will travel to Virginia and Canada after their 10 days here are completed.

The Japanese Government, through the Japan Monopoly Corp., controls the tobacco industry and sets grade prices for the leaf through negotiations with the growers, explained Yamada.

for that grade. The main purpose of the program is to increase the knowledge of the young tobacco growers in Japan. In this area they will specialize in learning the management of a big tobacco farm and different methods of tobacco farming.

Lecturing On Yoga Sunday

Acarya Jagadeva, spiritual teacher of Ananda Marga Yoga, will present a lecture Sunday, August 5, at 7:30 p.m. in room 201 at the University Union. The lecture is free and open to the public. It will be followed by an informal discussion.

Ananda Marga is a spiritual and social service society which uses the techniques of yoga to develop physical, mental, and spiritual harmony within the individual. It does not attempt to replace the individual's religion and many members of Ananda Marga are active in churches and other religious groups.

Acarya (teacher) Jagadeva, who is a native of Holland, has studied in India with Shrii Anandamurtiji, international spiritual leader of Ananda Marga. Following the Greenville visit, Jagadeva will fly to Panama, the next stop on his lecture tour.

Ananda Marga offers free instruction in the techniques of yoga. Plans are underway to form a practicing group in Greenville.

Most People Think We're Crazy, Says Balloonist

By BARBARA REHM
NEW YORK (UPI) — The old woman rocked furiously in the hot afternoon and laughed crazily. "A balloon, you say. Ha ha ha. Hear that, Johnny, they come in a balloon. Ahh ha hah!"

Across the road from her porch in the backwoods of New Jersey a brilliant blue and white, eight-story-tall hot air balloon lay sprawled across a mulberry tree.

Only hours earlier, Phil Hallstein stretched 525 square feet of limp nylon balloon across a shrub-grown field near Solberg, N.J., and watched it billow and snake across a dew wet field.

He balanced a double-bared propane burner and a six-foot flame roared into the twisting net. Slowly it inflated. We climbed into the wicker basket and carefully tucked in a bottle of champagne.

Five men sat on the gondola, holding it down until Hallstein made a final inspection of the ropes. "Let'er go!" he yelled and we soared to 3,000 feet in minutes.

A slow, quiet glide in the midmorning sun. There was no sound except the occasional roar of lighted propane. We drifted aimlessly with the wind across the fields.

There was no real feeling of speed until we hung dizzily over the edge of the basket and watched the balloon's shadow race across patchwork fields.

"It's like a raft on a stream," Hallstein said. "You roll and tumble with the winds. I get up here all alone and I just want to laugh my head off.

"There's nothing like it. Nothing. It's a good life with a little of everything," he grinned. "I still consider myself somewhat of a pioneer. I'm up here doing something most people don't know anything about."

And there is the wild desire to jump suddenly into the sun-splattered New Jersey flatlands as we skim slowly over treetops.

Farmers stop in midfield with their plowing and stand up on their tractors to shout good morning as the magnificent balloon passes overhead.

Women with children in their arms wave furiously from porch steps, and Hallstein bends down laughing over the edge of the basket, shouting and waving to them all.

The crowds with their dazed, upturned faces, shake their heads in wonder and watch the balloons settle over the trees.

"Some people never saw a balloon in their life," laughs Hallstein. "They don't know for sure how to react when they see it skim over their backyard."

"But their first reaction is one of joy, I think. Balloons make people happy. They laugh a lot as this big balloon floats past their kitchen window."

Suddenly the wind picks up and the balloon rolls into a cloud. Thick white swirling fog brushes up against the face and Hallstein laughs uproariously as he reaches out to touch the cloud from all sides in the midmorning winds.

The balloon slips into the sun and drops within inches of wheat stalks. Dazed cattle peer at us nervously from the other side of the field.

Ten seconds later the balloon jumps to apple-picking level and then climbs over treetops to 2,000 feet and rolls slowly over the hills.

For a long moment it is mirrored in a small lake and then races at 30 miles an hour across a cornfield.

Just as a power plant looms up ahead Hallstein decides it's time to come down. "We're a bit low on propane," he says, peering through the thick woods for a landing site.

"But," he says shrugging his shoulders, "brace yourself, this is going to be a bit steep."

He tugs suddenly at the red cord and the top of the balloon opens wide to a brilliant sky.

In seconds the balloon hits, jumps and bounces across the shrubbery, right into a group of power lines. The basket tilts and slams into a mulberry tree.

As the blue and white nylon drifts over us and settles in the tree, Hallstein pulls out the champagne and pops the cork.

"Another successful landing. That's the thing you never know where or how'll you'll land," he says as people begin to crowd around the field to see if we walk out alive.

While President George Washington and most of Congress watched, Blanchard made his ascension amid cannon volleys and much flag-waving. In 46 minutes he landed in a field near Woodbury, N.J.

"Those days are long gone," Hallstein says sadly. "People used to think balloonists were demons from the sky. Now they think we're just plain crazy."

From a prison yard in Philadelphia in 1793 a French balloonist, Jean Pierre Blanchard, climbed into a hydrogen balloon with a small black dog and six bottles of wine for company.

Leads Nation In Home-Owners

NEW YORK (UPI) — Michigan leads the nation in the number of home-owning families, accounting for 74.4 per cent of occupied dwelling units being owned by the occupants, the United States Savings and Loan League reports.

The next five states with a high percentage of home-ownership are: Indiana and Iowa, 71.7 per cent, Minnesota, 71.5 per cent, Maine and Idaho, 70.1 per cent.

Computerized System Speeds Police Search

NEW YORK (AP) — The Police Department is putting into action a computerized microfilm system which can scan 6,000 mug shots or fingerprints of possible crime suspects within 15 seconds.

"It will save thousands of police man-hours," Chief of Detectives Louis C. Cottell said Tuesday. "And it will also save the fatigue that victims endure when they have to go through mug shots for hours and hours."

The electronic system, which flashes pictures onto a 16-inch television screen, codes mug shots of arrested persons according to physical description, ethnic background, age, crimes committed, nickname and other criteria.

The device also can identify a man from a single fingerprint.

Garage Is Taken, Piece By Piece

HESHBON, Pa. (AP) — Alex Johnston's three-bay garage is missing. State Police say somebody apparently carted it away piece by piece.

The garage was on land that Johnston owned some distance from his home in this Indiana County community, and he hadn't been by the structure for about two weeks.

When he did stop by, Johnston found only a few odd-sized remains.

Tower Clock-Repairing Has Its Novel Hazards

By JAMES F. DONOHUE
Associated Press Writer
WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — The Archambaults are in a line of work that has unusual hazards: bees, hornets, bats, pigeons and over-protective mother starlings.

They repair and maintain tower clocks in New England.

The Archambaults—father Edward, 66, and son William, 41—operate Tower Clock Specialists in Waltham, a two-man company set up to service New England's approximately 800 tower clocks.

"I wouldn't call it a dangerous profession, but there are some hazards," William said.

"I've been attacked by a starling that was protecting her nest. And then there are pigeons. They're a special menace, especially for clocks. The pigeon white mixes with the clock oil. One pigeon can ruin a clock."

"And bats," said Edward. "There are not as many as there used to be in the old days, but they're there. You have to ignore them. I mean, if there's a bunch of bats there, you walk right in and let them peep all they want."

The Archambaults make service calls throughout the region at prices ranging from $30 for a simple inspection to more than $1,000 for conversion of a mechanical clock to an electric clock.

Since no one is manufacturing mechanical tower clocks any more, the Archambaults maintain their own machine shop to make parts they can no longer buy.

Most of the clocks they service are 35 to 120 years old, William said. The oldest is the 212-year-old clock at the old South Meeting House in Boston.

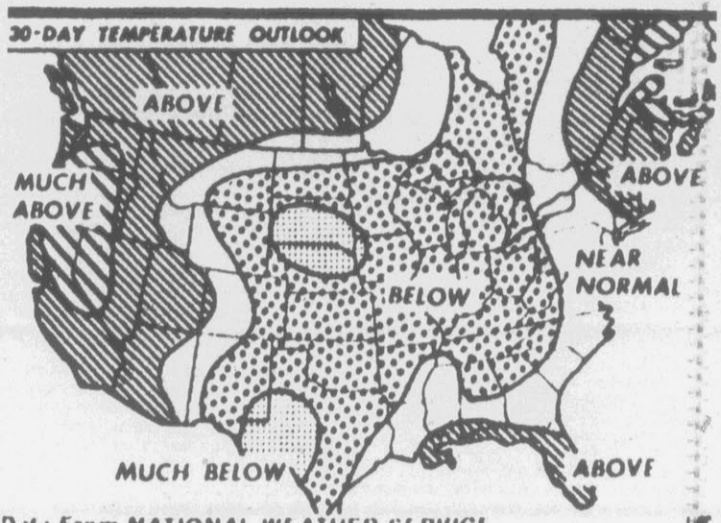

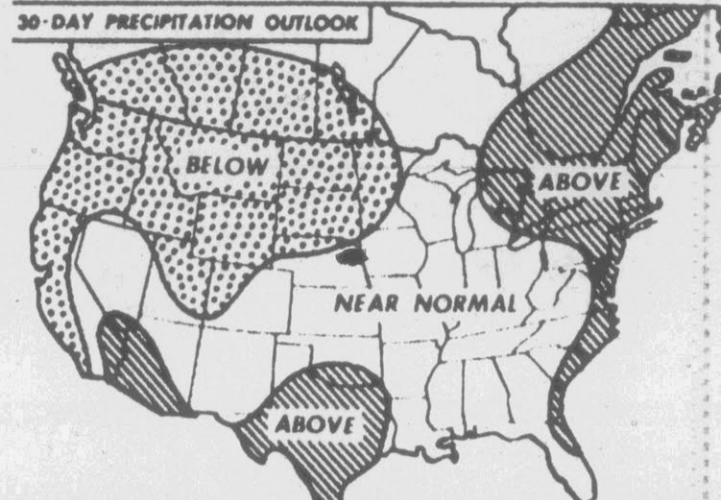

"It's still in its original condition and it's still operating," William said. "It's a beautiful thing. The gears are made of apple wood because they didn't know how to machine cut metal in those days."

The Archambaults are not worried about running out of business.

"What many people don't know is that these clocks are made to last," William said. "Most will last 500 years. In most cases, they'll outlive the buildings they're in."

FEATHERING ITS NEST — A catfood tin can is made into a nest for a hungry fledgling by occupants of a farm near Huddersfield (England) who rescued the bird from the jaws of a cat. The can makes a deep draft-proof nest and needs only a light tap for the fledgling to raise its head to be fed. (AP Wirephoto)

37 years
in business says more than that we're 37 years old.

It says we must be doing something right. With other car dealers coming and going, we've had to be more than merely lucky.

We started with quality automobiles, Buicks and Opels. Their traditions of fine craftsmanship and mechanical inventiveness keeps people coming back to them, year after year.

But we didn't stop there. We added service people whose experience means our work is done right the first time.

And when we hired salesmen, we made sure they were the kind of men who'd rather make a friend than make a sale.

We're proud of our success.

But we're also thankful to all of you who have counted on us over the years.

We pledge to continue to offer you the service, sales, and automobiles that have kept you coming back.
