L. Patrick Gray Reports False Assurance By Dean

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III said today ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III assured him falsely last year that he was relaying FBI reports of the Watergate investigation directly to President Nixon.

Gray also said that when he began supplying Dean with FBI reports "I felt it was proper and I would do it even if Sen. (George) McGovern were president."

Gray told the Senate Watergate committee that he first started giving FBI information to Dean barely a month after the break-in at Democratic headquarters on June 17, 1972.

Gray began answering questions about his role in the Watergate scandal a day after a member of the committee, Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, D-Ga., said no evidence has been found to justify impeaching Nixon.

Talmadge said the only testimony so far which implicates

Nixon are accounts of Dean and of Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, deputy director of the Central Intelligence Agency.

Gray has disputed Walters' second-hand version of a telephone call between Gray and Nixon. Walters said Gray told Nixon the Watergate investigation would lead quite high and that Nixon should fire those responsible. Gray said all he told Nixon was that men on his staff were trying to wound him. Gray said Nixon told him to proceed with his probe of the wiretapping.

Gray was asked why he supplied FBI reports directly to Dean, rather than through the chain of command that included the attorney general. "There's no doubt in my mind that when the counsel to the President of the United States asked for information I was going to give it to him," Gray said.

"You didn't work for Mr. Dean, did you?" asked assistant committee counsel Rufus Edmisten.

"I worked for the President," Gray said.

Gray said Dean assured him that he was reporting directly to Nixon.

"I specifically asked, 'John, are you reporting directly to the President?' or through Mr. Haldeman and Mr. Ehrlichman?" And he told me, "Directly to the President," Gray said.

However, Dean has testified that he spoke directly to Nixon only once about Watergate last year, on Sept. 15.

Former presidential chief of staff H. R. Haldeman and former chief domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman both have testified that Dean reported mainly through Haldeman, and gave constant assurances that the FBI had nothing to implicate White House staff members in the wiretapping.

Talmadge, in a television interview Sunday, said Nixon would be cleared if the accounts of Dean and Walters don't stand up.

Misdirected Bombs Hit Cambodian Naval Base

By DENNIS NEEDLE

Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — A misdirected U.S. bombing strike hit the Cambodian navy's Mekong River base at Neak Luong today, killing about 100 persons and wounding many others, military sources said.

The accidental bombing was carried out by either eight-jet B52 bombers or F111 fighter-bombers, the Cambodian sources added.

Another off-base U.S. air strike killed at least a dozen civilians Sunday in a village southeast of Phnom Penh, according to field reports. The reports said the bombing, at Prek Eng six miles southeast of Phnom Penh, was in close support of government forces in the area of Highway 1.

The navy and military base, 32 miles southeast of the capital of Phnom Penh, was hit with about 20 bombs, the sources said.

First reports said there were about 100 persons killed and at least another 100 wounded at the base.

More than 60 wounded soldiers and civilians were taken to Phnom Penh's Preah Ket Mealea Hospital. Some of the wounded were children.

"There was no warning," said army Pvt. Preap Tuot, who said he lost his wife and three children. "We were all sleeping."

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy refused to confirm or deny the misdirected strikes.

At the navy base hit by U.S. bombs, government forces hold a four-square-mile perimeter around the base and the town of Neak Luong. The government forces also hold a six-mile stretch of road toward the south.

The base, virtually surrounded by Communist-led forces, has about 3,000 soldiers and is the home port for navy gunboats that escort ship convoys carrying supplies from South Vietnam to Phnom Penh. The area around the bases has been bombed for months by B52s and U.S. fighter-bombers. Reports from the countryside say the area has been devastated.

In Bangkok, Thailand, a government official said the deadline of Aug. 15 set by the U.S. Congress for ending the bombing in Cambodia was "irresponsible." The leader, Deputy Premier Prapas Charusathien, said the deadline was a clear indication of the United States abandoning its Asian allies.

In Saigon, the Viet Cong charged Monday that South Vietnamese bombers attacked a village 30 miles north of Saigon last Saturday, killing or injuring 50 persons and destroying homes.

To 9 Per Cent

NEW YORK (AP) — Several major banks raised their prime lending rates to 9 per cent today, following through on a ¼ percentage point increase initiated by three banks on Friday.

The increases today by New York's Chase Manhattan Bank, the country's third largest, and others brought the prime to an all-time high and virtually assured that the 9 per cent level would spread throughout the industry within the next few days.

The prime rate is the minimum interest banks charge their large corporate borrowers for short-term loans.

While it is not directly linked to consumer installment loans or mortgage rates, a rise in the prime frequently signals a general boost in over-all interest rates, which might occur some months later.

Changing Name Of CD Agency

A resolution changing the name of the county's Civil Defense Agency to the Civil Preparedness Agency and the title of the C.D. director to the Civil Preparedness coordinator was approved by Pitt County Commissioners at their morning session today.

Commissioners approved the resolution after County Fire Marshall and (former) Civil Defense director Bobby Joyner said the name change is in keeping with a change in name and title by an act of the 1973 legislature.

Joyner told commissioners that to date this season, county fire units have responded to 75 tobacco barn fires as compared with 39 to date last year.

Last month, Joyner told the board, volunteer fire departments in the county responded to 98 fire calls as compared with 52 during July, 1972.

Commissioners this morning also approved — based on the County Planning Board's recommendations — expansion plans for the Bell Arthur and Eastern Pines water systems. In addition to hearing reports

CONVICTION UPHELD

Skylab Crew Begins Space-Walk Repairs

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Skylab 2 astronauts stepped outside their troubled space station today to load telescope film, unfurl a new awning-like sunshade and search for leaks in the craft's air conditioning system.

Wearing bulky space suits attached to 60-foot lifelines, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma exited through an airlock hatch to start the planned 3½-hour excursion. Skylab was orbiting 271 miles above the earth.

Skylab 2's commander, Alan L. Bean, monitored the walk from inside the station, relaying Mission Control radio instructions and ready to assist in case of trouble.

First task for Garriott and Lousma was to erect the sail-like sunshade to help keep the laboratory cool. That was to take more than an hour.

The air conditioning leak, which came to light Sunday night, is the latest problem to beset the station, already experiencing propulsion leaks and electrical difficulties. None of the problems pose a threat to the astronauts.

Before they could suit up for the space walk today, the spacemen had to restore pressure to a tank which is part of a system that removes moisture from the air. This has been a recurring trouble spot.

Ground experts continued to study problems that caused leaks in two jet engines on the Apollo taxi ship, which is docked with the space station. They still are hopeful the astronauts will be able to return to earth in the craft Sept. 25 after a record 59-day flight.

In case they can't, around-the-clock work went on at Cape Kennedy, Fla., to prepare the Skylab 3 rocket and Apollo as possible rescue vehicles that could be launched Sept. 10 or later.

Although mission control doesn't understand fully the jet thruster problem, experts feel confident the Apollo could bring the astronauts home safely if necessary before the rescue ship is ready.

They emphasize the rescue craft is being prepared as a precaution and they hope to launch it as planned to ferry the Skylab 3 crew to the station.

On Sunday night, mission control told the astronauts of a potential long-term problem. Analysis disclosed leaks in two systems that cool certain electronic systems.

The control center said experts had been studying the leaks and determined that the primary system still had about 16 days' supply of coolant. A backup system had enough for 60 days—enough to complete the mission.

The spacemen were to link rods into two 55-foot poles, join the poles in a V and attach them to a strut on the telescope assembly. The 22-by 24-foot aluminum-coated shade is to be fitted over the poles.

The shade will supplement a large parasol installed in May by the Skylab 1 crew to cool the laboratory by reflecting away the sun's rays.

The space walk originally was scheduled last Tuesday but was postponed four times while the astronauts recovered from motion sickness and mission control troubleshooted the Apollo problem, which at one time had officials considering a quick return to earth.

A female spider made her debut aboard Skylab on Sunday. The common cross spider, named Arabella, will be studied to determine how well she can spin a web in space weightlessness. Garriott moved her from a small vial into a transparent cage.

Farmville Market To Open Tuesday

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market will begin 12 days of limited sales tomorrow morning as the Eastern Belt swings into the second phase of its early opening schedule.

Farmville will join Williamston, Tarboro, Goldsboro and Smithfield in opening the 1973 season with one set of buyers each while Kinston and Wilson will open tomorrow with two sets each.

Greenville and Rocky Mount began auctions July 31 as the belt opened in July for the first time in history.

Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade, said that warehouses here began flooring tobacco for the season opener on Friday and he predicted that the floors would be full by Saturday.

"They may bring some tobacco in on Monday (today) but for the most part, the floors should be full by Saturday," he said. "All firms will have a full sale on Tuesday," Williams pointed out.

The sales supervisor explained that Farmville will operate through Aug. 27 with one set of buyers and following the 12 days of limited sales, a second set of buyers will be added on Aug. 28 to complete the season.

For the first week of the season or actually three days of sales the Farmville market has been allocated some 326,976 pounds per day and four hours and 18 minutes of selling time per day, he continued.

Tomorrow's opening sale will get underway at Fountain and Monk's at 9 a.m., Williams reported, and the second sale will begin at 10:43 a.m. at Planter's Warehouse. The third sale will be held at New Blue Warehouse, beginning at 1:16 while Bell's Warehouse is scheduled for the fourth sale of the day at 1:47.

Williams contended that, "As a whole, I think the tobacco will be mighty light. But, I think we'll have a better crop than we anticipated earlier."

He added, "I've seen some of the tobacco on the floor here and most of it looks pretty good. I'd say that prospects look good for the market opening."

In Williamston, the first sale will get underway at 9 a.m. at New Dixie Warehouse, according to a spokesman there, and Rogers Warehouse will handle the afternoon sale, beginning around 1 p.m. The Spokesman, noting that the two warehouses will rotate selling time until Labor Day, reported that a full sale is scheduled for Tuesday and about half of Wednesday's sale has already been floored.

Batista Dies In Spain

MARBELLA, Spain (AP) — Fulgencio Batista, the stocky Cuban dictator overthrown by Fidel Castro in 1959, died early today at a resort colony near here on the southern coast of Spain. He was 72.

His son Ruben said the ex-sergeant, who staged two revolutions and ruled Cuba for 18 years, suffered a heart attack shortly after a meal with his family in his vacation villa at Guadalmina.

"It was really unexpected," Ruben said. "Everything happened within a few minutes."

A sola, robust man, Batista had given no indication of illness during the day and had no history of heart trouble, the family said.

Also with Batista at his death were his wife, Marta; three other sons, Jorge, Fulgencio and Roberto; and a daughter, Marta Maria.

The family said funeral services were set for Tuesday in Madrid with burial in San Isidro cemetery there. The coffin will be wrapped in a Cuban flag, the family said.

The Cuban Embassy in Madrid said it knew of Batista's death but had no official comment. Radio Havana mentioned the death briefly in an early morning newscast.

Cyrus Looks For Better Quality

By The Associated Press

Seven markets of the Eastern North Carolina Belt begin limited tobacco sales Tuesday and a marketing specialist said he looks for prices to average between $84 and $85 per hundred pounds.

"There should be a slight improvement in the quality of offerings from the opening last Tuesday on the Rocky Mount and Greenville markets," said John Cyrus of the North Carolina Department of Agriculture. "However, there's still going to be some dead and waste leaves in the primings from the bottom of the stalks," Cyrus said.

He added he expects better grades to begin showing later this week. Markets which begin sales Tuesday are Wilson and Kinston, each with two sets of buyers, and Farmville, Goldsboro, Smithfield, Williamston and Tarboro, each with one set.

Opening sales last Tuesday at Rocky Mount and Greenville totaled 1,535,371 pounds for an average of $83.49 per hundred pounds.

Cyrus said the opening day average Tuesday will be close to the Eastern Belt's first day sales in 1972, although the quality of offerings will be down.

The remaining markets on the Eastern Belt open the season on Monday, Aug. 27.

Long-Distance Call Results In Arrest Of 2 For Break-In

A long distance telephone call early this morning led Greenville police to a Contentnea Street home where they arrested two local people on charges of breaking and entering and possession of marijuana.

Chief Glenn Cannon reported a Wilmington, N.C. woman called police headquarters about 12:50 a.m. and reported that a Greenville neighbor had telephoned her to report a light being on in her 102 Contentnea St. rental house.

Police responded to the supposedly unoccupied home and found James Howard Johnson, 22 of 508 Battle St. and Switzerland Venus Jones, 18 of 401 Deck St. inside.

Chief Cannon said that in addition to the breaking and entering and possession of marijuana charges lodged against Jones and Johnson in connection with this morning's incident, Johnson was also charged under warrants already on file with assault on a female and another count of possession of marijuana.

The chief said the assault on a female charge stemmed from a July 14 incident while the possession of marijuana charge resulted from a July 10 case.

Athens Airport Terrorists Keep Silence

By PHILIP DOPOULOS

Associated Press Writer
ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Two Arab men who opened up with grenades and pistols in the crowded Athens airport Sunday today refused to answer police questions, the police reported.

The attack killed two Americans and an Austrian and wounded 55 persons.

The Americans were identified as Mrs. Jeannie Salandi, 23, of Highland Park, N.J., and Elbert Kersen, 53, a Union, N. J., plumbing contractor. Kersen's wife Kate, 49, was injured.

The Austrian was a 50-year-old attorney named Ullhofen.

In addition to the two men, two women were being questioned.

Police said they disarmed a time bomb, which had not been set to go off, that was found inside a letter box in the transit lounge four hours after the attack. Witnesses told police they saw a man drop a large object in the box before the shooting began in the lounge.

The two Arabs surrendered Sunday after crouching with 35 hostages behind the lounge's marble bar for two hours while they tried to get a plane to take them to the Middle East.

It was not known what promises, if any, were made to get them to surrender.

Witnesses said passengers were preparing to board Trans World Airlines flights to Tel Aviv and New York when one of the Arabs, about to check his baggage, threw a hand grenade to the ground. Then both men began firing pistols.

More than 1,000 persons were in the lounge. Flying glass struck many as they sought cover.

Airport police closed in, and the two Arabs took cover. "They herded as many persons as they could behind a marble bar in the transit lounge and waited it out, brandishing their pistols and grenades," said Dimitra

Michapoulou, a TWA ground hostess.

The two terrorists told police: "We have accomplished what we wanted to do." But authorities said they may have planned to attack passengers on an Israeli airliner that left 10 minutes before the shooting began.

Police said the Israeli flight still was listed on the information board as awaiting departure and this may have confused the terrorists.

Nectarines Serve Up In Many Ways

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
Nectarines are delicious to eat "as is," but they're also good in a salad. In the following recipe they're teamed with shrimp and a special dressing.

When you are serving a tossed green salad to accompany a main dish, you'll find that some nectarine slices tossed with the salad will make the greens taste especially good.

Another way nectarines taste delicious is with ice cream. Just slice the fruit and add sugar to taste plus vanilla and serve over vanilla ice cream.

Nectarines are great added to Ambrosia. To make a traditional Ambrosia, layer sliced peeled orange rounds and flaked coconut in a glass bowl, adding sugar to taste. To use the nectarines in this classic dessert, add a layer of the sliced fruit to the oranges and coconut.

SHRIMP AND NECTARINE SALAD

Lemon-mint Yogurt Dressing.

1 tablespoon lemon juice

1 tablespoon salad oil
1 tablespoon finely chopped "fresh mint"
1/2 teaspoon seasoned salt
1 1/2 cups shelled and deveined cooked shrimp
4 fresh nectarines
1 quart shredded lettuce
Prepare Lemon-mint Yogurt Dressing; refrigerate.

Mix together the lemon juice, oil, chopped mint and seasoned salt. Pour over shrimp; cover and chill.

At serving time, halve nectarines and remove pits. Cut fruit into medium-thick slices. Arrange drained shrimp and nectarines on the lettuce. Serve topped or tossed with Lemon-Mint Yogurt Dressing.

Makes 4 or 5 servings.

LEMON-MINT YOGURT DRESSING

1/2 cup plain yogurt
1/2 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons finely chopped fresh mint
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 tablespoon marinade drained from shrimp
Mix together all the ingredients. Makes about 1 cup. Use as directed in Shrimp and Nectarine Salad recipe.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Greenville Community Center. The refreshment table was covered with a lace cloth and adorned with crystal candleholders with yellow and orchid streamers and bows. Mrs. Fred Camp, aunt of the bride, served cake and Miss Jackie Jones and Mrs. LaVerne Lane poured punch.

Miss Debbie Allen and Miss Teresa Manning presided at the guest register.

The mother of the bridegroom entertained the bridal couple, members of the wedding party and family at her home Saturday evening.

Children Suffer From Tension As Well As Cuts, Bites, And Burns

NEW YORK (AP) — What are the biggest medical problems facing kids this summer? Insect bites, cuts, sunburn, diarrhea and allergies rank highest on the list. Yet colds, and the chance of catching pneumonia and other illnesses can also be a problem.

Surprisingly, tension is an important problem with the young as well as their parents.

"Too many parents over-protect their children with unnecessary medicines and lotions, while others show too little concern," says Dr. Fredric Snyder, general pediatrician. He suggests several medical tips for parents with small children.

"Diarrhea is probably one of the most prevalent disorders among kids during the summer," Dr. Snyder says. "The problem is often caused by viral infection, food or just the tensions of traveling."

"The best remedy is letting the illness run its course, while giving the child clear fluids to prevent dehydration and eliminating milk and fruit from the tot's diet. Kaopectate won't cure him, but will give symptomatic relief."

He says tension is another problem. Children need some way to release their emotions. "Clay is good because they can pound the material into a shape. Another release is water. For example, one way to relax a tot before he goes to bed is with a lukewarm bubble bath. Put in a few tub toys and let him splash."

"A word about bubble baths. Be sure to use the correct amount and never leave the box or plastic bottle near the tub. Kids have a tendency to add more bubble bath mixture as the suds disappear. That's not good," Dr. Snyder said.

"Insect bites also plague kids at this time of year, but putting a lot of cream on tots to prevent bites really isn't that good for them."

"It's best to dress the child in long sleeves and pants. Then treat any bite with calamine lotion, keeping it free from infection and covered so the child won't rub or scratch the area."

Dr. Snyder feels sunburn needn't be a problem if the child is initially exposed to the sun for short periods of time each day while wearing loose clothing. That way he builds up his tolerance.

"Always make sure the child gets plenty of liquids while in the sun, so he won't become dehydrated," Dr. Snyder suggests, "and remember suntan lotions really don't work that well, except for zinc oxide which blocks out the ultra-violet rays."

As a precautionary measure, Dr. Snyder recommends up-to-date inoculations. For example, at two, three and four months the child should be having his DPT booster, and followed at 12 with a DT.

"If a child's tetanus boosters are up-to-date, there is no reason to get a tetanus shot for a minor injury or cut," he says. "I really think we're guilty of over-giving tetanus shots in the U.S."

"Still another summer problem for kids is allergies, and yet parents have a tendency to over treat those illnesses, too. Oftentimes, a parent mistakes post-nasal drip which causes a child to cough a good deal in the morning, with something more serious."

Stag Party Is Out, Fiancee Says

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 By Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As the cliché goes: "I never thought I'd be writing to Dear Abby, but here goes."

My oldest and dearest friend is marrying a gal he's been living with for two years. Some of his buddies wanted to have a stag for him—the typical kind—a dinner with drinks, and a lot of gags about his "last chance" to enjoy bachelorhood. We wouldn't go so far as to have any nude girls jumping out of cakes or anything like that.

The problem is his fiancée. She says the traditional stag is a "chauvinistic idea" and if his friends want to honor him, they should entertain the two of them together.

The groom doesn't want to upset his fiancée, so he's asked us to call off the stag. I am pretty burned up about the whole thing. I think the decision should be the guy's, and not his fiancée's. So you tell me, Abby, who is being unreasonable here?

D. R.

DEAR D. R.: The decision WAS the guy's. He decided not to upset his fiancée. So if you want to honor your buddy, do it his way or not at all.

DEAR ABBY: Is it standard practice to charge close relatives for wedding pictures? My sister in law has had two children marry this past year. [My son was in one of the wedding parties]. She had pictures taken of all the guests as well as the bridal couple and wedding party. Then she went ahead and had a lot of pictures made up, and she charged her own parents, sisters, and brothers for the copies of the pictures that included THEM.

Is this right? And if it is, don't you think $5 is a little stiff for one five by seven black and white glossy?

D.A. IN C'VILLE

DEAR D.A.: It's standard practice [if one can afford it] to GIVE close relatives one picture of themselves as well as one of the bride and groom. Those who want additional pictures should order [and pay for] their own.

And yes, I think $5 for one black and white glossy is a little stiff.

DEAR ABBY: We had to write! Our oldest son, who was a fine athlete before he entered the service, also stepped on a mine in Viet Nam. He lost one leg, and the sight of one eye.

Three months later, he won a trophy in skiing competition, and we have several shelves of trophies he has won every winter since his accident in 1970. He is still able to surf, and has a license for scuba diving. Next year he graduates from college with a degree in physical education.

Last March we attended a meeting of the National Inconvenienced Sportsmen's Association in Winter Park, Colo. There were both male and female entrants from 12 years old to 50, and some of their accomplishments were absolutely unbelievable! The last thing these people want is sympathy.

We were heartbroken when we heard the extent of our son's injuries. Now we have the greatest admiration for his courage. Do you wonder why we are such proud parents?

Candid Words By Ex-Governor

Former Governor Bob Scott has always had a way of getting right to the heart of a problem; and, unlike many politicians, he has never been afraid to say what he is thinking.

Gov. Scott got right to the heart of it when he advised the board of governors to recommend construction of a four-year medical school at East Carolina University before the General Assembly does it.

Clouding the issue is the "prejudice" against ECU on the part of the Board members and administrators who come from the old Consolidated University, he said.

"There's no question but that the UNC people are prejudiced," he said. "Anything of that calibre they want for the old Consolidated University. It's a matter of competition for funds."

He also cited a "pushiness" on the part of the ECU proponents; however, he suggested that pushiness and regional and institutional pride are not entirely bad.

We can accept both observations by former governor Scott. In acknowledging there has been pushiness on the part of ECU partisans, it is only fair to note that it has taken everything that could be thrown into the battle to even move the medical school to its present one year status.

Naturally Scott's remarks did not set well with those who do not want to see any change in the status quo of North Carolina higher education. But the fact is that the debate and eventual establishment of the ECU medical school pre-dates the board of Governors by nearly a decade. While it is true that the board now has a committee studying the matter, it is also true that the committee is studying the establishment of an ECU medical school after-the-fact. It is a doublejeopardy sort of thing so far as the hopes of North Carolina citizens for improved health care are concerned.

The credit for establishment of the UNC Board of Governors has to go to Bob Scott. He developed the concept and fought for it. At the same time, no one is more knowledgeable about the problems of medical education in North Carolina than Bob Scott. This was an issue also with which he wrestled during his four term as governor.

Former Governor Scott made his recommendations with only the highest motives. He, more than anyone else, wants to see the board of governors concept succeed and if the board members are wise they will heed his advice.

Price Pinch Is For Everybody

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Even the pigeons are feeling the pinch. The peanut man has gone up from 10 cents a bag to 15 cents.

All those tourists and schoolkids and office workers who spend their lunch hours feeding the birds at Capitol Square are seeing inflation in action.

It's happening all across the state, and hitting your pocketbook at every turn.

The N.C. Restaurant Association warns that as many as 200 restaurants across the state may have to close down because of a beef shortage.

Cows aren't getting to market because cattlemen are holding back, waiting on the price ceiling to be lifted Sept. 12 so they can raise prices to meet increasing costs of feed.

Chickens and hogs, too, are involved. North Carolina beef is relatively small in importance to chickens and hogs, and N.C. State University poultry expert Dr. Charles Brooks said there has been a big drop in broiler chicks placed on farms for feeding because the profit potential is down.

In The Red

And Dr. John Ikerd, N.C. State livestock specialist, said hog growing is down, too. "Many (farmers) seen convinced that they cannot stay out of the red with feed costs so high," Ikerd said.

Egg production costs are up; cost of eggs per dozen skyrocketing.

Fuel costs are up for farmers, just like gasoline is up for motorists. There's even a twine shortage on the tobacco farms where the hands are now being tied and strung for market.

In short, state experts now predict, consumers who have been hoping on expanded production to lower food costs are in for a shock: less beef, poultry and pork is heading for market, a shortage looks real and prices are headed up instead of down.

Meanwhile, back in the suburbs, people hunting a place to live are suffering.

Houses High

All across the state, real estate and housing costs have taken tremendous leaps.

Hardest hit is the person moving to a new town and hunting a house, especially if moving into a rapidly growing town; a small town where the supply is especially short; or a mountain or coastal resort area where vacationers are gobbling up real estate.

In the mountains, Florida residents are creating a real estate boom buying summer homes in the highlands.

Real estate men say prices in the last 12 to 18 months have gone up out of all proportion to building material and labor costs — dictated mostly by supply and demand.

Tax records in almost every county where growth is taking place show that house prices have increased at the accelerated rate of eight to 10 per cent per year.

In Raleigh, newspaper advertisements and real estate men tell of houses standing empty on the market going up as much as $1,500 in a week's time.

Short Takes

Luther Hodges Jr., son of a governor and now a Charlotte banker, is high on the list of new faces in the Democratic Party who could help pull things back together. Others include House Speaker James E. Ramsey of Roxboro; Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. who is working hard to make his spot as top elected governmental official in the party a leadership post; Senator Gordon P. Allen of Roxboro, who is present pro tempore of the Senate.

Nobody appears at this point to be clearly in charge. There is still lots of talk about Hargrove A. (Skipper) Bowles of Greensboro who lost his election for governor to Republican Jim Holshouser. Most observers believe Bowles wants to try again.

All but discounted at this time, but still in contention, is Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University at Greenville who has made some noises about running for governor.

But there are those who believe Dr. Jenkins keeps his name out front more as a means of gathering clout for his position at the school, and as a method of winning political favor for his strong fight to get a medical school down east.

With Gov. Jim Holshouser and his staff now officially established in the new Administration Building, the search is on for more space.

His chief aide, Gene Anderson who is regarded as the right arm of the governor, is operating out of a tiny cubicle behind the press office — hardly pretentious enough or large enough, he feels.

Outrage Over Nixon's Tapes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Facing both an historic court test and massive popular disapproval following his refusal to release the Watergate tapes, President Nixon now confronts a new challenge from angry Senators who feel betrayed.

Sen. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois, a liberal Democrat not normally noted for partisan fireworks, will take the Senate floor soon to denounce Mr. Nixon for "covering up the cover-up." Stevenson and other Senators of both parties believe Mr. Nixon's refusal to release the tapes reneges on his pledges of full authority for special prosecutor Archibald Cox. Without those pledges, the Senate almost surely never would have confirmed Elliot Richardson as Attorney General.

Thus, the world is closing in on the President over the tape issue. Instead of resigning in protest, as some presidential aides may have hoped, Cox is going to court. Public opinion, instead of admiring the President's pluck has turned against him. And now angry Senators are about to add to the tumult.

Stevenson was a chief actor in the high drama last May during Richardson's acrimonious confirmation hearing. That drama centered on efforts by both the Senate Judiciary Committee and Stevenson, acting outside the committee on behalf of 28 Senators. They demanded Richardson pledge the Nixon administration to give the yet unnamed special prosecutor complete freedom of action in prosecuting former or present administration officials. Stevenson thought he got that pledge.

Instead, Stevenson now tells those 27 fellow Senators, the President's decision denying Cox access to the tapes has "violated Richardson's clear pledge." In his Senate speech, he will charge:

1. The President said in his April 30 speech he would give Richardson "absolute authority to make all decisions bearing upon the prosecution of the Watergate case and related matters."

2. Richardson, in a much-studied "charter" of authority for the special prosecutor, in turn promised that Cox would have "full authority" for "reviewing all documentary evidence available from any source, as to which he shall have full access."

Stevenson, Republican Sen. Charles Mathias of Maryland and others among the 28 Senators, who wrote two letters to Richardson during his confirmation hearing pinning down Cox's powers, now believe the administration has reneged. Stevenson feels that the denial of the tapes to Cox amounted to Mr. Nixon's "reversing the rules" and "undermining the authority" both of Richardson and of Cox. "Either Mr. Cox has full access or he does not, and if not our trust was misplaced," Stevenson told us.

The administration challenges the very source of the Stevenson argument: if Mr. Nixon really intended Cox to have total power over which White House documents and presidential papers should be given the Watergate prosecutors, Cox would be usurping the powers of the President.

Actually, say Mr. Nixon's men, the President never intended any such unprecedented delegation of power. What Richardson really meant to tell the Senate was that Cox would have exactly the authority which he, Richardson, would have if the Justice Department were in charge of the prosecution. No more, no less.

The fact is that, in making his pledge to the Senate Judiciary Committee (and separately in his two letters to Stevenson), Richardson was acting on his own. His "charter" for the special prosecutor was never discussed with the President or with the White House lawyers who are handling Mr. Nixon's legal case.

That explains Richardson's ambivalent reaction to Cox's confrontation with the President. While asserting that the President's refusal of the tapes to the Senate Watergate committee rested "on substantial legal and constitutional foundation,"

Even before the major banks announced a lending rate of 9 per cent to big corporate customers, General Motors was selling at only 8 times earnings, Ford at 5 and Chrysler at 4.

These incredibly low price-earnings ratios follow reports by GM of one of the best years in its history, by Ford of the best quarter in its history, and by Chrysler of the best April-May-June period ever.

Match those ratios — or multiples of current earnings at which these stocks are selling — with the 50s and 60s so common seven years ago among some stocks that offered little but promise.

Those were the days of the so-called performance game. If a stock performed, if it offered a lot of action, then it was considered a stock to watch. The fundamentals? Not nearly so important.

How ironic. The fact was that many of those companies really didn't perform; they were, to some degree, a product of the imagination — of hopes, publicity, promotion and, it is suspected, even of manipulation.

In contrast, some corporations today are performing as never before, but their stocks aren't. There is no vast public in the market as there was 10 years ago. It is an institutionalized market, a shrunken market.

Some days, in fact, the major portion of trading is by insurers and banks and funds. But these institutions aren't investing in the market as a whole. They have selected some 50 to 80 stocks in which to participate.

A glance at the price-earnings ratios of these select stocks shows the impact of this concentration. All have P-Es in the double figures, most of them well over 20.

An article in the "Institutional Investor" magazine describes the perplexity of an investment adviser who still believes in some of the once-powerful blue chips such as General Motors, and some of the smaller emerging giants of tomorrow.

The adviser showed a visitor two specially prepared charts. "One showed Kodak passing General Motors last year in total market value although GM's earnings exceeded Kodak's net worth."

The other chart, "similarly constructed to depict irrationality in the way market values have been assigned, matched IBM against the total value of all stocks listed on the Amex," or American Stock Exchange.

The explanation lies in the PEs. Kodak sells at 38 times current earnings. IBM sells at 33 times, earnings, or eight times the P-E of Chrysler.

The relatively few stocks with high P-Es now make up the oasis in the desert which not long ago was a lush and productive garden. And with interest rates rising, some analysts fear that the oasis also might dry up.

BUT NOT ABOUT TO HAVE A BIG FALL!

Rock Around The Clock

WASHINGTON — An estimated 600,000 young people showed up at Watkins Glen, N. Y., last weekend for a rock concert. That means there were 1,200,000 parents biting their nails and drinking booze to keep from thinking the worst about what was happening to their children.

I speak from personal experience because I donated a daughter to the concert. Actually I didn't give her to the concert. She gave herself. She announced in no uncertain terms that this concert was the most important thing in her life and if she missed it there would be nothing worth living for.

The fact that she had heard the same group, The Grateful

Dead, three weeks earlier in RFK Stadium did not enter the picture. She hadn't, she pointed out, heard them at Watkins Glen—and if you didn't hear them at Watkins Glen, then you just couldn't say you had heard them.

After my daughter departed in a Volkswagen with five other people, I had a lot of time to think about Watkins Glen—all night to be exact.

Why would 600,000 youths drive hundreds of miles, wallow in the mud, bake in the sun and do without water and shelter to go to a rock concert that most of them couldn't even hear?

The answer is that all over this great country of ours

Everyone needs a goal in life. And when it was announced there was going to be a concert at Watkins Glen, it gave these rootless young people a place to head for.

In India it would have been the Ganges. In the Middle East it would have been Mecca. In the United States this year it was Watkins Glen.

For the first time all summer these 20th-century gypsies had a purpose in their traveling. They all turned and faced New York, come with cars, others with buses and many with nothing but their thumbs.

With a goal ahead of them, their lethargy left them and their spirits brightened. Now when they called their parents collect, they could say with pride that they were going somewhere.

What started out as a rock concert put on by a couple of smart promoters turned into a religious rite for which no sacrifice was too great to be where it was happening.

All over America bourgeois parents turned on their television sets to watch with trepidation as helicopters hired by the networks filmed the masses of humanity down below. There they were, 600,000 of our children, wall to wall, sitting on the hard ground, zonked out by bearded men screaming into electronic speakers that shattered the eardrums of anyone within 20 miles of the band.

Robby And Glynnis

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — First they fell in love on film—and now they say it's the real thing.

A year ago, when each was 16, Robby Benson was receiving $700 a week and Glynnis O'Connor $600 for making an unheralded picture called "Jeremy." It promises to be one of the sleeper hits of the year, and at 17 its two young stars are a bit dazed at standing on the threshold of a future full of the promise of really big money goodies.

The film is a simply told, appealing adolescent version of "Love Story." Two high school kids meet, get acquainted, fall in love, then must part. That's all. There is no tragic death scene. There is no villain. The firm for which the girl's father works transfers him out of town, and she must go with him, leaving her young love behind.

The story line is older than Hollywood. It's as old as the human race, but it leaves audiences of teen-agers gulping with self-pity and grownups with eyes that overflow at the memory of their own youthful romances.

Both Robby and Glynnis now stoutly hold hands at press luncheons and insist that, whatever else the future brings, the big thing will be each other. Tattletale time will tell whether this attitude is a precocious pubescent flowering or a publicity presentation. Right, Manny?

Robby, who is near-sighted, 6 feet tall, and 125 pounds, is the more experienced actor. He has made more than 100 television and 30 radio commercials, dubbed the English for 50 foreign films, and for three years appeared in the stage musical,

Strength For Today

THE PATIENCE OF GOD

Col. Robert Ingersoll, a popular lecturer on agnosticism and atheism in the late nineteenth century, once stopped dramatically in the middle of a lecture and declared that if there were a God in heaven, Ingersoll would give him just five minutes to strike him dead. Then Ingersoll took out his watch and waited calmly for five minutes. Many people in the audience became very excited, and a few women fainted. At the end of the period Ingersoll put his watch back into his pocket and

When someone told the contemporary evangelist, Dwight L. Moody, about the incident, Moody laughed and said, "Ingersoll certainly did not think that he could exhaust the Lord's patience in five minutes, did he?"

One of the most consoling of all realities is the patience of God. If he were not patient, many of us would have suffered divine retribution long before this. But we should realize that there is such a thing as presuming even on this divine patience.

Silent On Any Losses On N. Vietnam Probes

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The Pentagon has disclosed that 102 Americans were killed on spy missions in Laos and Cambodia since 1965. But it has not told whether any Americans died on similar missions inside North Vietnam.

Prior to 1968, secret patrols were frequently sent into North Vietnam as well as into Laos and Cambodia to gather intelligence. The patrols were made up of Indochinese directed by American team chiefs. Such operations were given the general code name "Daniel Boone," and they were directed by the mysterious SOG, the Studies and Observations Group.

Newsman in Vietnam reported some of these missions at the time. But generally the U.S. public and Congress chose to accept the official response to the reports: denial, no comment or the phony cover story that American troops were in "hot pursuit" of enemy forces or U.S. aircraft had accidentally strayed over the border.

The North Vietnamese and Viet Cong also reported on the spy missions; the standard response from the U.S. Command in Saigon was a denial or the statement that it never commented on Hanoi's propaganda.

The patrols into North Vietnam were eventually discontinued because too many teams were lost. The Pentagon has not said whether the casualties included any Americans, and there is considerable suspicion that some of those the Pentagon says were killed in Laos actually died while directing teams in North Vietnam.

The intelligence gathering teams were originally organized by the Central Intelligence Agency and the Green Berets of the 5th Special Forces Group. They later were put under the control of SOG, which was part of the U.S. Command in Saigon.

Some Americans who went on such missions in Laos said the teams not only gathered information but often carried out acts of sabotage, blowing up North Vietnamese supply trucks and fuel lines and kidnapping North Vietnamese troops for interrogation.

The Pentagon also has never reported the number of aircraft lost before 1970 during secret operations in Laos and Cambodia. Such losses at the time were listed as losses in South Vietnam.

In Oregon, Buffalo Meat

NEW YORK (AP) — Beef dominated business news this past week, and wholesalers, retailers and consumers faced a declining supply many blamed on the government's price freeze.

By late in the week, some 100 slaughterhouses and packing plants were reported shut down. A supermarket chain in Portland, Ore., said it had ordered 100 buffaloes a week for the next three weeks. Two West Coast wholesalers said steakhouses they serve might soon have to serve stew meat.

"He's my steady," said Glynnis, and Robby nodded tolerantly.

Glynnis, short, winsome, and shy-faced, looks like the dark-haired princess in a fairy tale. She has made several television commercials and is now acting in the soap opera, "As the World Turns." She plays the role of Dawn, daughter of that dauntless timeless heroine, Ellen. In real life, she is the daughter of Danny O'Connor, a director of special events for NBC News.

"I like sports," he said. "The worst thing about making the picture was that I had to give up a job walking hot horses at the Aqueduct racetrack. I'm from Texas, and I'm crazy about horses. I handicap them—and sometimes bet on them."

The date of the wedding hasn't been set.

Tanaka Ends U.S. Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka ended his United States visit Sunday, declaring that Japan will not acquire atomic weapons in order to become a permanent member of the United Nations Security Council.

Japan is under constitutional restraint not to rearm or to send its forces abroad, Tanaka explained on the NBC show Meet the Press.

In a communique signed with Tanaka last week President Nixon pledged American support for Japan to join the U.N. Security Council as a permanent member.

Other permanent Security Council members are the United States, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom, France and the People's Republic of China. All are nuclear powers.

Japan will continue to rely on the security treaty with the United States for nuclear protection, Tanaka said.

Tanaka also said he was sure trade difficulties between the United States and Japan can be solved, and he invited American businessmen to be more aggressive in selling goods in Japan.

Tanaka left for Tokyo Sunday from San Francisco, where he had spent two days giving speeches, relaxing and meeting Japanese-Americans. During his six days in the country he also had visited New York and Chicago.

A spokesman for one Los Angeles market said he was figuring on "probably a 60 per cent cut" in the amount of beef he normally gets.

You open the door and it's like gangbusters," said a supermarket employee in Sacramento, Calif., as he looked at the long line at the meat counter.

Meanwhile, the government was sticking to its guns on the beef price freeze — at least for the time being.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz on ABC television's "Issues and Answers" Sunday said that the freeze on retail beef prices would be kept until Sept. 12, the date set by President Nixon last month when he lifted price controls from all other foods.

Saying that the cattle being held off the market now would have to be sold sometime, the secretary added: "The more they hold back now, the more will come onto the market on Sept. 12, and that will tend to hold prices down in the future."

However, New York City's consumer affairs commissioner, Betty Furness, said on Sunday that prices would soar once controls were removed.

Speaking on a local television program, she advised shoppers to "forget about buying beef until this hysteria has passed."

Beef was the critical item for most people over the weekend. "One guy came in here and filled three shopping bags with meat for his restaurant," said the meat manager of Ralph's Market in Los Angeles. "It's not fair to the customers." The store later imposed a limit of two steaks and two pounds of ground beef per shopper—a practice adopted by supermarkets in many cities.

Dr. Herrell F. DeGraff, president of the American Meat Institute, said beef would get even scarcer in the days ahead. DeGraff's comments were in an interview in the current issue of U.S. News & World Report.

He said the beef freeze also would lead to shortages of other meats. "It is simple arithmetic," he said. "Beef normally supplies 55 per cent of the meat that Americans eat; pork and poultry 45 per cent. If the majority of demand is concentrated on that 45 per cent, there will be a real scramble in supermarkets, and the cost of pork, bacon, ham and broiler chickens is going to soar right out of sight."

Shultz 'Aware' Of Food Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz says one way to cope with high food costs is to take a good look at your diet to see if some changes can be made.

"I know it's a good idea for me, and I think that wouldn't be a bad idea for lots of people," he said on ABC's "Issues and Answers" television program Sunday.

"As you can see, I've probably eaten more than I should in recent months and years," he said.

Although Shultz deals in billions and millions, he says he has a complete awareness of the housewife's grocery bill "because my wife points it out to me all the time."

trated on that 45 per cent, there will be a real scramble in supermarkets, and the cost of pork, bacon, ham and broiler chickens is going to soar right out of sight."

A Richway supermarket in an Atlanta, Ga., suburb ran out of beef over the weekend. "Sorry, no more beef," read a sign over the meat counter.

Supermarkets weren't the only ones with problems. Restaurants were complaining too.

Restaurant officials in the Santa Monica, Calif., area said guards were being put on delivery trucks by some meat suppliers because of the possibility of theft. "These trucks are worth a fortune now," said George Bennett, head of the Santa Monica Bay area restaurant association.

A steakhouse in Independence, Mo., meanwhile announced a new item would be on the menu Tuesday: The "Nixon Special," a 49-cent soup and cheese sandwich luncheon.

Richardson added that the parallel request from Cox was "in full accord with the requirements of his job." Maintaining an above-the-battle posture, Richardson called for a compromise. Cox himself has no quarrel with that reaction or with Richardson.

To the Senators, however, this smacks of lawyers' language. Mathias believes Richardson was speaking for the President when he pledged sweeping powers for Cox. "If the Attorney General wasn't offering this deal in the President's name, as we thought he was," says Mathias, "it isn't worth very much."

Having been on the receiving end of White House deception and cover-up for months, the Senate is in no mood to bow meekly to the President's refusal to deliver his tapes. The coming Stevenson attack is the opening shot in a new Senate onslaught against Mr. Nixon which threatens to make his lethal political situation worse.

The big question every parent must have asked himself was, "Where did we go wrong? You spent 18 years of your life seeing they got all their vitamins, making sure they did their homework, teaching them to brush their teeth, providing them with a security you never had. And the final result of it all was down in some pasture land in New York state where they came to blow their minds."

But, as I have been told many times, it isn't for us to judge what our children do. Our only role in the summer of '73 is to accept their collect telephone calls so they can let us know they're still alive. And so, as the sun came up over the Washington Monument, I stood in my bathrobe on the balcony facing New York state and the only thought I had was, "It could have been worse. We could have been living in Watkins Glen."

Gather For 'Sun Dance'

MISSION, S.D. (AP) — The Sioux Sun Dance attracted an estimated 2,000 Indians to witness the start of the four-day main sacrificial religious ceremony of the Plains Indians.

Most of the worshippers on hand Sunday apparently were from the Rosebud Indian Reservation in south central South Dakota, where the Sun Dance is being held. But some came from as far away as New York, California and Oklahoma.

The Sun Dance goes back at least 500 years in Indian history.

A spokesman said the ancient custom of piercing the dancers' skin will be a part of the thanksgiving ceremony — probably on Wednesday.

The rite involves insertion of leather thongs under the skin of the dancers' chests and backs. The skin is ripped away in strips as the dancers pull away from a pole to which the thongs are tied.

The practice is prohibited by the federal government.

A date for union has not been agreed upon. Libya wants a complete merger with Egypt by Sept. 1, but Egypt prefers a gradual approach stretching over a long period of time.

Rookies To Get Long Looks Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although veterans will dominate the starting lineups, Cleveland Coach Nick Skorich and San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan both plan to take a long look at some key rookies when their teams meet tonight at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium in the wintup of the first full weekend of National Football League exhibition action.

In Sunday night's only game, the New England Patriots rallied for two touchdowns in the final period to pull out a 17-17 tie with the Oakland Raiders.

Saturday night, the Miami Dolphins edged the Cincinnati Bengals 14-13, the Philadelphia Eagles beat the Buffalo Bills 13-6, the Kansas City Chiefs defeated the New Orleans Saints 12-6, the New York Giants crushed the San Diego Chargers 28-3, the Pittsburgh Steelers trounced the Baltimore Colts 34-7 and the Chicago Bears tied the Green Bay Packers 13-13.

The New York Jets nipped the Houston Oilers 16-13, the Detroit Lions topped the Washington Redskins 17-14 and the Dallas Cowboys beat the Los Angeles Rams 24-7 in Friday night games.

Skorich will start Mike Phipps at quarterback and give second-year man Brian Sipe some work in the second half. Nolan will counter with John Brodie at the start and go to Steve Spurrier in the second half, with young Joe Reed also possibly seeing some action.

Skorich wants to get a good look at some young running backs as possible bench strength behind veterans Leroy Kelly and Bo Scott.

Nolan wants to examine his rookie wide receivers.

Following their fine comeback, the Patriots were given a scare as veteran George Blanda attempted a 43-yard field goal at the final gun. But his attempt was low and short.

Daryle Lamonica tossed touchdown passes for Oakland, but John Tarver scored on a three-yard run for the Patriots' first touchdown, then New England capitalized on a short punt by Oakland rookie Ray Guy to tie the score, Jim Plunkett hitting Tommy Reynolds with a 21-yard pass for the touchdown.

The NFL champion Dolphins had their hands full in posting their 20th consecutive victory—the final preseason game of 1972, 14 regular season games, three playoff games and a 14-3 win over the College All-Stars in Chicago last Friday being the previous 19.

Philadelphia's Po James set up the winning touchdown with a 32-yard scamper, then ran it in from three yards out with 3:05 left in the game to make the Eagles' debut under Coach Mike McCormack a winning one. Jan Stenerud booted four field goals to Happy Feller's two as the Chiefs topped the Saints.

John Unitas made his debut for San Diego, playing the first period, but was overshadowed by the Giants' quarterback tandem of Norm Snead and Randy Johnson.

Pittsburgh showed midseason precision in whipping the new-look Baltimore Colts. Pittsburgh's Preston Pearson set up two touchdowns in the first four minutes with runs of 69 and 39 yards.

Green Bay's Chester Marcol, whose kicking had beaten the Bears three times last year, missed what would have been the winning field goal from 39 yards out with eight seconds left Saturday night as the Packers and Bears tied 13-13.

RIDING HIGH—Atlanta Braves pitcher Phil Niekro is carried by catcher Paul Casanova and second baseman Chuck Goggin after completing a 9-0 no-hitter over the San Diego Padres at Atlanta Stadium Sunday. The Right-handed knuckle ball specialist now is 11-5 for the season. The no-hitter was the first for the Braves since moving to Atlanta from Milwaukee. (AP Wirephoto)

Brent Strom Wins First Since April Over Brewers

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer Brent Strom's on a winning streak—one in a row. Well, for him it's a winning streak.

"I have been wondering when I would win again," said the Cleveland Indian pitcher after stopping a personal 10-game losing streak with a four-hit, 4-1 decision over the Milwaukee Brewers in the second game of a Sunday doubleheader. The Indians won the first game, 6-5.

The last time—and the only time—that Strom won a game in the major leagues was on April 9 this season. He beat the New York Yankees 3-1 with an eight-hitter.

Strom's first victory in more than four months was fashioned with the help of George Hendrick's 21st home run of the year, a solo shot, and Oscar Gamble's two hits and sacrifice fly.

The Indians won the first game with the aid of an error. Frank Duffy came home on shortstop Tim Johnson's miscue in the ninth for the go-ahead run.

In the other American League games, the Chicago White Sox took a doubleheader from the Texas Rangers, 7-3 and 5-4; the Detroit Tigers topped the New York Yankees

8-6; the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Kansas City Royals 7-1; the Boston Red Sox tripped the Baltimore Orioles 7-4 and the Oakland A's whipped the California Angels 6-2.

White Sox 7-5, Rangers 3-4 Carlos May drove in four runs with a homer, double and sacrifice fly to pace Chicago to a 7-3 victory over Texas in their first game.

The White Sox took the second 5-4 as John Jeter doubled home the winning run in the ninth inning.

Tigers 8, Yankees 6—Dick McAuliffe drove in four runs with a pair of homers and Jim Northrup and Mickey Stanley also homered, powering Detroit to an 8-6 triumph over New York.

Twins 7, Royals 1—Bert Blyleven hurled six perfect innings and finished with a three-hitter, leading Minnesota over Kansas City 7-1. The loss stopped the Royals' winning streak at seven games.

Kansas City shortstop Fred Patek broke up Blyleven's no-hit bid with a triple off the left field wall leading off the seventh. Cookie Rojas followed with a run-scoring single.

Red Sox 7, Orioles 4—Tommy Harper blasted a three-run double and then stole third and came home on an error for Boston's fifth run of the seventh inning, leading the Red Sox to a 7-4 victory over Baltimore.

A's 6, Angels 2—Dick Green slugged a grand slam home run in the eighth inning to power Oakland to a 6-2 success over California.

In the National League Sunday, the St. Louis Cardinals beat the New York Mets in a doubleheader, 3-2 and 4-1; the Pittsburgh Pirates took a 4-1 decision from the Philadelphia Phillies; the Montreal Expos downed the Chicago Cubs 3-2; the Atlanta Braves topped the San Diego Padres 9-0 as Phil Niekro pitched a no-hitter; the Cincinnati Reds turned back the Houston Astros 7-1 and the Los Angeles Dodgers tripped the San Francisco Giants 4-3.

Niekro Steals Aaron Light

By TOM SALADINO

Associated Press Sports Writer ATLANTA (AP) — It took a no-hitter to do it, but someone finally stole the show from Hank Aaron—at least for a day.

Phil Niekro, the Atlanta Braves' knuckleballing right-hander, was the star of the show Sunday, bewildering the San Diego Padres with his dancing serves and tossing the first no-hitter in eight years of National League baseball at Atlanta Stadium.

"We kept thinking the next guy would get a hit," said San Diego Manager Don Zimmer. "But outside of one hard-hit ball, that was about it. He pitched a heck of a game."

The Braves won the game 9-0 with the Padres managing just five base runners off the 34-year-old Niekro—three on walks and two on infield throwing errors by shortstop Marty Perez and third baseman Darrell Evans.

The game was wrapped up by the sixth inning and the only excitement left for the 8,748 fans on the hot, muggy afternoon was whether Niekro could achieve his masterpiece.

The last no-hitter pitched by a Brave was 12 years ago—ironically by Warren Spahn, who was to be inducted into the Hall of Fame today. Spahn did it in Milwaukee, beating San Francisco 1-0.

"I had never been through anything like this before," said Niekro, who upped his record to 11-5. "It probably happened at the best time in my life. My father is ill in a hospital and maybe this will pick him up a bit."

purposely passed after Al Oliver's long fly moved the runners up. Zisk followed with his second double.

In the American League, Boston beat Baltimore 7-4, Detroit shaded New York 8-6, Minnesota trounced Kansas City 7-1, Oakland topped California 6-5 and 4-1 and Chicago took two from Texas 7-3 and 5-4.

Nichols Wins $50,000 In Sudden-Death Putt

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Bobby Nichols went home to Ohio a winner again—for the first time in a long time.

Tom Weiskopf went home to Ohio unhappy and disgruntled again—for the first time in a long time.

"All I'm going to say is that I'm glad to be going home to Ohio. That's all I'll say about it," the obviously angry Weiskopf said after a quadruple-bogey eight and the end of his winning streak.

Nichols, meanwhile, was bubbling happy after his dramatic triumph in the 37-hole windup Sunday in the rich Westchester Golf Classic.

The 37-year-old veteran did it in thrilling fashion. He came from nowhere with a blazing, five-under-par 31 on the final nine holes to tie Bob Murphy and then won the ensuing play-off by dropping a 25-foot birdie putt on the first extra hole.

Nichols, five strokes back when the second of Sunday's two rounds started, closed up with a 65, seven under par on the 6,614-yard Westchester Country Club course, and finished with a 272 total. Murphy had a final round 67.

Weiskopf, meanwhile, took a fat eight on the par four fourth hole and his rally fell just short when he missed an eagle putt on the 18th hole.

It left him with a 71 last round and a 273 total—just one shot out of one playoff and tied with veteran Dan Sikes.

His finish snapped the string that included consecutive triumphs in the British and Canadian Opens. He's now won five times in nine starts and has collected more than $200,000 in the three-month string, about the same amount Ben Hogan won in his lifetime.

Gibby Gilbert, Gene Littler and Frank Beard were just two strokes out of the playoff at 274, but Jack Nicklaus didn't get into the multiple-man scramble for the top spot. He was at 276. Arnold Palmer had a 69-279. U.S. Open champ Johnny Miller 68-281 and Gary Player 73-282.

All will be playing in the PGA National Championship in Cleveland this week.

Here are the final scores and money winnings: x-won sudden-death playoff:

ECU Downed, 6-3

East Carolina split a pair of decisions over the weekend, though one of the games was rained out after two and one-half innings of play.

ECU dropped a 6-3 game to Pembroke and was leading UNC-Wilmington 4-0 but the game was called with Wilmington coming to bat.

Pembroke led off with a run in the first as Hawkes singled, moved up on Pyrtle's single and stolen base, and scored on a sacrifice fly by Barbour.

Pembroke picked up four more in the third. Callahan led off with a single, and moved up on Hawkes fielder's choice. Pyrtle singled to score Callahan and move Hawkes to second. Successive doubles by Barbour and Preston got three more runs. They got their final tally in the sixth, when with two out after a Johnson single, Callahan doubled in the sixth and final run for Pembroke.

The Pirates lone run in the fourth scored when Troy Eason and John Narron came up with consecutive singles. An infield out and walk brought Eason across.

Two more came by in the ninth.

The 'Worry Clinic' Standard Kept By Hard Core

Father James is properly shocked by the sex data below. But you dedicated workers in churches can take heart. For the delinquency, criminality and adultery cited in 'America,' as well as Italy and elsewhere, are chiefly among the pagan 50 percent of the population!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE X-578: Father James, aged 43, is alarmed.
"Dr. Crane," he began, "I recently read the report of a survey of Italian wives.
"Tragically, 25 percent of them reported being unfaithful to their mates!"

"And about 35 percent more said they would enter into adulterous affairs if they ever had the opportunity."

"Yet Italy is supposed to be a very religious country!"
"For our Roman Catholic faith claims the vast majority of Italians as members."

"So what is wrong with the world nowadays?"

Moral Erosion
Moral erosion has become unusually evident during the past generation. Why?

Because of the permissive doctrines of child rearing, so ably advocated in America by Dr. Spool.

Plus the dabbling of church leaders in politics!

Many of the former leading pulpits of America are now merely sounding boards used by smart aleck clergymen to attack the "establishment" that has actually furnished them their free seminary education and salaries.

And it isn't fair to ascribe the moral turpitude of those Italian wives to the reduced influence of the Roman Catholic Church.

For most of our church denominations cite large enrolments, yet not 50 percent of them are actually very active or dedicated members!

Indeed, Protestant churches don't command a 25 percent Sunday attendance here in America.

Billy Graham said all church attendance isn't 5 percent in England!

So it would be more scientific to break down such data as those cited regarding Italian wives.

How many of those adulterous females do you think are active, dedicated members of their local churches?

Here in America we claim about 65 percent total church membership of our 210,000,000 men, women and children.

That 65 percent includes Jewish, Catholic and Protestant enrolments.

Which means there are actually almost 75,000,000 pagan Americans!

For they don't even have their names on any church roster!
And of the remaining 135,000,000 "nominal" members of Jewish, Catholic and Protestant faiths, only about 50 percent are what we call active, faithful parishioners.

Which means that the church backbone of America is maintained by less than 75,000,000 of our total 210,000,000 people!
So our crime cases, as well as those Italian adultery figures, are not likely to be chalked up against these faithful church attendants!

Oh, some of them may backslide occasionally but our zooming crime rate and sexual promiscuity are NOT due to these 75,000,000 faithful church goers!

Same is likewise true of adulterous wives in Italy. They may be "nominal" Catholics but don't follow the dictates of their church.

Indeed, surveys show that as high as 50 percent of Catholic wives in America use other methods than the church approved "rhythm theory" for birth control and also approve of abortion.

But they are usually not the hard core, faithful parishioners upon whose shoulders depends the integrity of every nation and all virile churches.

Never grow discouraged, for probably a majority of all people will never enter Heaven!

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1 — Neither vulnerable,

partner opens with one club

and you hold:

♠A J 8 5 ♥K 10 7 5 ♦8 4 3 ♣7 4

What do you bid?

A.—One spade, rather than one spade. You have a weak hand and can make only one constructive bid. A one heart response permits partner to show a four-card spade suit at the one-level if he has it. If you respond one spade, partner may have a four-card heart suit without the values to be able to show it at the two-level.

Q. 2 — Neither vulnerable,

partner opens with one club

and you hold:

♠A Q J 5 ♥K Q 10 6 ♦7 5 3 ♣8 5

What do you bid?

A.—One spade. This hand differs from the preceding one in that it is strong enough to bid twice opposite a partner who was able to open the bidding. Since you intend showing both suits, you should do so in the normal order.

Q. 3 — As South, vulnerable,

you hold:

♠A 9 ♥10 8 6 5 4 ♦A Q 10 ♣A K 10

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid?

A.—This is a very powerful hand opposite a partner who has jumped over the top. Our main concern is the trump suit, and neither cue-bidding nor Blackwood can find out how good is partner's trump holding. Our suggested call is five hearts. Partner should deduce that you have all the side suits controlled, and that your great concern is with hearts.

Q. 4 — As South, vulnerable,

your right hand opponent opens with one spade and you hold:

♠K 6 ♥A 9 5 2 ♦A Q 7 ♣A J 10 8

What action do you take?

A.—Double. The alternate call of one no trump is not our first choice. Our objection is based to some extent on the fact that we have four hearts, so a heart contract might easily be lost by refusing to double. Also, we would prefer a more robust holding in the opponent's suit to overall with one no trump. With most of our points in ace and king and a ruffing value in spades, this hand should play better in a suit.

More Involved In Urban Needs

NEW YORK (UPI) — A survey of state colleges and universities shows a steadily growing involvement with urban problems.

The result of this, says the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, is an increase in specialized academic programs and a proliferation of community service projects diversified throughout the urban environment.

'Stereotypes' Of Sex Bias

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Three of the areas where the public can easily see the adverse effects of sex bias in schools are textbooks, physical education courses, and the lack of women school administrators," says Katherine Cole.

The director of the new Resource Center on Roles in Education said also that minority students have concern for these issues as well as other ways women and minorities are "tracked" or restricted into narrow stereotyped roles.

Though her husband often went on business trips, she hated to be left alone.

"I've solved our problem," he said. "I've bought you a St. Bernard. It's name is Great Reluctance."

Expensive Nights Out In S.C. Minibottle System

Farm Scene

By HENRY C. RIDDICK

Tobacco insects that could attack the 1974 tobacco crop can be greatly reduced now by cutting your tobacco stalks and plowing out the stubbles immediately after harvest.

By destroying the stalks, you can reduce the food and breeding places for the hornworm and the flea beetle. Over 90 percent of the hornworms that live through the winter are produced after August 1.

Hornworms and budworms in the pause stage over winter in the top two inches of soil, and it is believed they overwinter mostly on the row rather than in the middle. Therefore, many of these pupae could be desbroted by thoroughly plowing out the old stubbles.

In addition to helping reduce the population of insects destructive to tobacco, there are three diseases that can also be reduced by destroying the stalks and plowing out the stubbles. These diseases are brown spot, nematodes, and Mosaic.

Several farmers in the county have already completed the harvest of their tobacco crop. Others are completing harvest each day. If you have finished harvesting your tobacco crop, the time to destroy the tobacco stalks and plow out the stubbles is "right now."

First, cut the stalks, and see that they are cut in small pieces to speed up decay. Reduction in both brown spot and Mosaic is dependent upon the old crop residue rotting and decaying before the next crop. A rotary mower would do an excellent job of cutting the stalks.

Next, the old root system should be completely destroyed for the most effective reduction of nematodes. This can be done effectively with either a bottom plow or a "middle buster."

Each day you delay, this practice after the harvest is completed will mean more disease and insect damage to the 1974 crop.

OPERATION R-6-R (Reduce 6 Pests) Campaign is being held again this year. Let's start today and reduce the occurrence of these insects and diseases in our 1974 tobacco crop. We are looking for 100 percent participation among farmers this year.

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP)—The first thing a visitor to South Carolina notices about its mini-bottle liquor-by-the-drink system is the cost. It's expensive to have a night on the town in the Palmetto State.

At Myrtle Beach, a 1.6-ounce bottle of your favorite brand sells for a standard $1.75. This means that by the time you tip the barmaid who brings the drinks to your table, it costs a couple $4 for a round of drinks. A second round brings the ante to $8.

South Carolinians voted for the mini-bottle system in a November, 1972 referendum.

North Carolinians will vote on liquor by the drink in November, but the mini-bottle will not be involved. If liquor by the drink passes, drinks will be poured from regular bottles by bartenders.

Truly, only the wealthy can afford to get tight on the Grand Strand. And at least one resident has devised a way to beat the system which is reminiscent of the old brown-bagging.

"I refuse to pay these prices," said the resident, a woman. She said she keeps some used mini-bottles at home. When she goes out to dinner, she fills a bottle or two and puts them in her handbag. When she gets to the restaurant, she pours the contents into her water glass and has herself a mixed drink at a fraction of the retail cost.

Bill Schreyer, a wealthy retiree from nearby Princeton, said he thought the mini-bottle drinks—at $1.50 to $2.00—cost too much. "It's quite a bit higher than at other places," said Schreyer, who has traveled widely.

Addison Miles, general manager of the Pine Lakes Country Club, said the high tax South Carolina has placed on the mini-bottle makes it "quite expensive" to entertain. He said the mini-bottle system results in poorer service and poorer drinks for the customer.

"But at its worst, it's better than brown-bagging," Miles added.

Under brown-bagging, Miles said, his club had a lot of trouble because "we had no control over the amount a customer drank."

"I think the general public is dissatisfied with it—the mini bottle, the cost, and the way it is served," Miles added.

Asked what system he would prefer, he said:

"I'd prefer the same mixed drink system that most advanced states have—with proper controls that are rigidly enforced, a system that will allow our state to compete for the tourist industry."

"When you have the general public dissatisfied either from brown bagging or from mini-bottles, you only enhance the profits of the illegal traffic," he said.

"When the public supports a system, they'll help enforce it," food."

Miles added.

Jack Divine, who owns an interest in two swank Myrtle Beach restaurants, says he feels South Carolinians like the mini-bottle system, but "I feel the tourists don't like it. The women complain that the mini-bottle is too strong."

He said he does not feel tourists object to the price, and added that "to me, it's a lot more convenient than brown-bagging."

Divine said that he, like Miles, would prefer to have drinks mixed by a bartender.

This, he said, would enable restaurants to make more money from their liquor sales and this would enable them to "give you a better entertainment and food."

The operator of the coffee shop at the Ocean Forest Resort said he was "surprised at the good reception" he's had for mini-bottles and said only a few customers have commented on the prices.

"It's a whole lot better than brown-bagging," he added.

One observer said he feels the price of mini-bottles definitely affects the quantity of liquor people consume in restaurants.

"They are not cutting down on their drinking," he said.
