Nixon Lawyer Says Court Unable Enforce Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for President Nixon told a federal judge today that the court lacks jurisdiction to enforce the subpoena served on the President by Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

An attempt to enforce the subpoena demanding presidential tape recordings, they said, "would be an unwarranted and unsuppportable violation of the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers."

J. Fred Buzhardt, special White House counsel, in a court appearance lasting less than two minutes, filed a lengthy legal brief supporting the President's refusal to turn over White House tapes subpoenaed by Cox.

The action came shortly after the Senate Watergate committee decided to postpone any legal action of its own to obtain tapes and related documents pending disclosure of Nixon's reply to the Cox subpoena.

The committee apparently decided to put off its lawsuit because of some concern that federal courts might refused to accept the case on grounds that they lacked jurisdiction.

"The committee decided to postpone filing the suit until counsel for the committee have an opportunity to ascertain and study the reaction of the White House attorneys to the motion of the special prosecutor," Watergate committee chairman, Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.J., announced before the start of the day's hearings.

The committee's suit had been expected today or Wednesday. Ervin gave no hint of how long postponement of the action might be.

After Nixon's lawyers filed their opinion, U.S. Dist. Court Judge John J. Sirica gave Cox until Monday, Aug. 13, to respond.

Buzhardt asked for and was granted until Aug. 17 for any additional written reply. Sirica scheduled oral argument for 10 a.m. EDT Aug. 22.

Cox had subpoenaed tapes of nine presidential conversations related to the Watergate case.

The Senate Watergate committee also subpoenaed presidential tapes documents. President Nixon refused to comply with any of the subpoenas.

The White House brief rejected Cox's argument that the President had waived any claim of executive privilege when he permitted aides to testify before the Watergate committee about the conversations.

The White House contended that the President's letter to Sirica on July 25 notifying the judge that he would not comply with Cox's subpoena "constitutes a valid and formal claim of executive privilege by Richard M. Nixon in his official capacity as President of the United States to withhold information the disclosure of which he has determined would be contrary to the public interest."

Tragedy Of War

ACCIDENTAL VICTIM—A Cambodian girl, wounded in an accidental B52 bombing of Neak Luong, Cambodia, is carried from a boat to an ambulance. U.S. Embassy officials said possibly more than 150 persons were killed and more than 300 injured in the Monday mistake. It was described as the worst bombing accident of the Indochina war. Kleindienst Recalls Nixon 'Dumbfounded' By Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon was "dumbfounded" when told that his closest aides had been accused in the Watergate case in mid-April of this year, former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst said today.

Kleindienst told the Senate Watergate committee that he first learned of accusations by White House counsel John W. Dean III and former Nixon campaign deputy Jeb Stuart Magruder early in the morning of April 15.

He said he immediately sought a meeting with Nixon, and relayed the information to him early that afternoon in Nixon's office.

"He was dumbfounded, he was very upset," Kleindienst said.

Kleindienst said Justice Department officials told him, and he told the President, that Dean and Magruder had implicated former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, campaign aide Frederick C. LaRue, themselves, White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, former campaign aide Robert C. Mardian, "you name it."

"This is the first time since June 17, 1972, that anybody had given me any credible evidence that any of them were involved in any way," Kleindienst said.

The hearing was disrupted for about 10 minutes during the morning session by a half dozen young people who took turns reading aloud from a statement. They called themselves representatives of "the National Caucus of Labor Committees."

Chairman Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., ordered the disruptors ejected and they were taken by Capitol police to a room in the basement of the Russell Senate Office Building.

Kleindienst also testified that he warned Ehrlichman less than two months after the June 17 break-in that he might be involved in an obstruction of justice. And Kleindienst said he threatened to resign if Ehrlichman didn't stop meddling in the investigation.

He also said the mastermind of the wiretapping, G. Gordon Liddy, approached him the afternoon after the raid and said that White House or Nixon campaign employes might have been included among the five men arrested inside Democratic national headquarters.

He said he immediately gave orders against any special treatment for the men, and told Liddy to leave the golf club where they met.

But Kleindienst insisted he didn't have evidence of high-level involvement in the case until Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen, the man in over-all charge of the wiretapping, told him about the accusations of Dean and Magruder.

Courthouse Basement Renovation Approved To Add Office Space

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

County Commissioners yesterday approved renovating a basement area at the Northeast corner of the Court House to house offices for three magistrates now located in a trailer on Washington Street.

The basement area to be used to house the magistrates is now serving as a shop area for the county's maintenance department. The shop will be moved to another area of the Court House basement.

An existing outside stairway will give direct access to the magistrates offices. The offices can also be reached by way of existing inside stairs.

Commissioners discussed the possibility of allocating or assigning parking space in the new county parking lot adjacent to the court house but took no action yesterday.

Jim Horne, director of the Pitt County Development Commission told the board that a division of U.S. Industries making mens' and boys' wear will locate in Grimesland when renovation of the old Grimesland elementary school building is complete.

USI has leased the old school facility from the Pitt County Board of Education and renovation of the building is scheduled to get underway Monday.

The industry is expected to employ about 250 persons when in full operation.

Pitt Health Director Dr. Robert May told commissioners progress is being made in locating an administrator and physician consultant for the Health Department.

Dr. May told the board applicants are being interviewed for the administrator position while negotiations are being conducted to secure a physician consultant.

The two-man team of administrator-physician consultant is expected to replace Dr. May as director of the department within the next several months. The doctor has indicated his desire to resign his post and recommended that the use of a public health administrator — consulting physician team to head the department would be more economical and more efficient for the county than to employ a physician as director.

Auctions Begin In Farmville

FARMVILLE — Sales began at 9 a.m. today as Farmville opened the 1973 flue-cured tobacco season.

Farmville joined Williamston, Tarboro, Smithfield, Goldsboro, Kinston and Wilson in opening today as the Eastern Belt began the second week of sales. Greenville and Rocky Mount kicked off the season last Tuesday.

After observing activities on the first sale, Farmville Tobacco Board of Trade sales supervisor Louis Williams reported this morning that auctions were "moving along pretty well" with primings making up some 95 per cent of the volume.

Williams reported that primings on up to the few cutters on the floor were selling well. "From what I've seen on several rows this morning, it looks like the primings might be selling a little above what they sold for last week" as the belt opened, he said.

The sales supervisor noted that, with the limited amount of quality grades on the floor doing very well, the opening day average should top $84 per hundred.

The Farmville market will sell some 326,976 pounds per day for the first three days of sales. Some four hours and 18 minutes of selling time has been allocated.

Another Mistake In Bombing Raid

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Another accidental U.S. bombing near here was reported today as the U.S. Embassy announced casualties in the B52 bombing Monday of a government base town on the Mekong River totaled more than 400 dead and wounded.

The second bombing in error, this time by a U.S. F111 fighter-bomber, was reported to have killed four civilians and injured 13 on a government-held island southeast of Phnom Penh in the Mekong.

The island was six miles upstream from Neak Luong, the naval base town on which a U.S. B52 heavy bomber dropped a string of bombs before dawn Monday.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Donald Doergel said he had heard reports of the second bombing accident but "I don't wish to talk about it."

There was no letup in the U.S. bombing. Heavy explosions could be heard from areas around Phnom Penh as U.S. fighter-bombers kept up their support of government ground forces. There was no word of B52 operations, but it was considered unlikely that there had been any curtailment because of the tragedy at Neak Luong, 32 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

The casualty toll at Neak Luong rose today as U.S. Embassy officials said the count now was 137 killed and 268 injured.

It was the worst bombing accident of the Indochina war, and it came just nine days before American bombing of Cambodia is scheduled to end.

Greenville Leaf Market Had $84.77 Average

The Greenville Tobacco Market recorded an $84.77 per hundred pounds average Monday, down four cents from last Thursday, as 1973 Eastern Belt sales moved into the second week.

Poundage, as well as price average, was down yesterday as the local market sold 657,790 pounds of tobacco for $557,623, compared with Thursday's poundage of 758,015 for $642,868.

While the Greenville average fluctuated only a few cents from last week's final sale, the average on the Rocky Mount market dropped to $82.37 per hundred pounds following Thursday's $83.58.

Rocky Mount warehouses sold 664,892 pounds Monday for $547,692, down from Thursday's 756,127 pounds for $631,961.

With most grades of primings and nondescript down $1 to $3 from Thursday, according to the Federal-State Market News Service, the belt average dropped to $83.57 per hundred compared with $84.19 recorded on the final sale last week.

Greenville and Rocky Mount combined to sell $1,322,682 pounds Monday for $1,105,315. The two markets sold 5,881,114 pounds during the first four days for $4,928,554, a season average so far of $83.80.

Monday's sale marked the final two-market auction for the season as seven more area markets began operations today. Joining Greenville and Rocky Mount for sales today were Farmville, Goldsboro, Williamston, Smithfield and Tarboro, each with one set of buyers, and Kinston and Wilson, with two sets of buyers each.

John Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist with the N.C. Department of Agriculture, predicted a slight improvement in quality of offerings on the seven markets opening today and forecast a first-day average of $84 to $85 per hundred. The opening day average last Tuesday was $83.49 as auctions began here and in Rocky Mount.

According to the News Service, Monday's Stabilization receipts on the two markets totaled 10,878 pounds and represented only eight-tenths of one per cent of the total poundage.

Market	Pounds	Dollars	Average
Greenville	657,790	$557,623	$84.77
Rocky Mt.	664,892	$547,692	$82.37
Totals	1,322,682	$1,105,315	$83.57
Sesaon Totals	5,881,114	$4,928,554	$83.80

$82-$87 Range

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A price range of $82-$87 per hundred pounds was reported for early tobacco sales today as seven markets of the Eastern North Carolina Belt opened the season.

A spokesman at a warehouse in Tarboro said "the quality is as good or better than last year's opening." He said some growers were not satisfied with the prices for better grades of lugs.

"It looks like our price range is $82-$88," he said.

At Smithfield, sales supervisor N.L. Perkins said that in the first 30 minutes about 35,-000-40,000 pounds was sold, ranging from $74 to a top of $89. None went to the FlueCured Stabilization Corp., he said.

At Wilson, the early range was $81-$87. John Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, was at the Wilson opening and said the average should go above $85.

Other Eastern Belt markets which opened today were Goldsboro, Kinston, Farmville and Williamston.

The Rocky Mount and Greenville markets opened the season a week ago.

Abolished

RALEIGH (AP)— Insurance Commissioner John Ingram today ordered North Carolina's assigned risk automobile liability insurance program abolished on Oct. 6.

Ingram took the action in approving a plan of operation for the new state Reinsurance Facility, which was authorized by the 1973 General Assembly as a replacement for the assigned risk program.

Skylab 2 Astronauts Resume Experiments

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With a record space walk on the books, Skylab 2's astronauts today resume experiments in their orbiting laboratory.

The flight plan called for mostly medical experiments for Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma. But Garriott, a solar physicist, planned a long-awaited study of the sun with a battery of eight telescopes.

Garriott and Lousma loaded the telescope cameras with film Monday during a record space walk in which they were outside the station 6 hours, 31 minutes. That's nearly double the previous mark set by two Skylab 1 astronauts in June.

During the excursion, they also raised a new sunshade over their space home, worked with two scientific experiments and examined three trouble areas on the spacecraft.

Monday's space walk had been set for 3½ hours, but it was extended an extra three hours because of difficulties in erecting the shade.

They discovered no new clues to Skylab's problems.

The major problems afflicting the station on the 11th day of the Skylab 2 mission are:

—Leaks in two steering rocket systems on the Apollo taxi ship in which the astronauts are to return to earth on Sept. 25 after 59 days in space. Experts say the craft is still flyable. In case they don't understand the problem, or it gets worse, the space agency has ordered a rescue rocket prepared at Cape Kennedy for a possible launch Sept. 10 or later.

—A leak in a refrigeration system that cools the workshop and various electric equipment. On Monday it was feared both the primary and backup systems had leaks. Analysis showed that only the primary system was faulty and that the secondary is sufficient to support Skylab 2 as well as the following two-month Skylab 3 mission. Still, troubleshooters would like to know the cause of the leak.

—A large short circuit that occurred in the solar telescope system last week. Its origin is a puzzle, but so far it has not affected the experiments.

Agnew Says Justice Dept. Is Investigating Him

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said Monday night he had been informed he is under investigation for possible criminal violations. The Wall Street Journal reported in its Tuesday editions that the investigation involved allegations of bribery, extortion and tax fraud.

Agnew was notified formally by the Justice Department last week that he is involved in a far-ranging criminal investigation by the U.S. Attorney's office in Baltimore, the Journal said.

Agnew made the disclosure through his press secretary, J. Marsh Thomson, and declined further comment "other than to say that I am innocent of any wrongdoing, that I have confidence in the criminal justice system of the United States and that I am equally confident my innocence will be affirmed."

The investigation is being carried on in strictest secrecy, the Journal said. On receiving the Justice Department notice, the paper said, the vice president sought a White House audience, presumably to inform President Nixon.

At Camp David, Md., a White House spokesman declined comment. But he said the White House was aware of Agnew's statement before it was released.

The Justice Department notification, sent by U.S. Atty. George Beall, was hand delivered to the vice president, the paper said.

The Journal said the allegations against Agnew stem from the award of state contracts during Agnew's tenure as governor of Maryland in 1967 and 1968 and from federal contracts in Maryland let by the General Services Administration since Agnew became vice president in 1969. The GSA is the agency in charge of constructing federal buildings.

The investigation isn't related to the Watergate scandal, but the letter to Agnew was cleared by Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, who then notified Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox, the paper said.

The prosecutors have not yet presented to a grand jury sitting in Baltimore the evidence they have assembled, the newspaper said.

The vice president hasn't been asked to testify before the grand jury, the paper said. If he were called, he would in all liklihood be invited instead of subpoenaed, partly in deference to his office.

If the case did proceed to the grand jury stage, the prosecutors would have to confront the constitutional doctrine of separation of powers, the doctrine Nixon is invoking in the Watergate case, the Journal said.

The Washington Post had a similar report in its Tuesday editions.

The Post quoted sources as saying the investigation also involves two former Agnew fundraisers: J. Walter Jones, an Annapolis, Md., banker, and I. H. Hammerman, a Baltimore investment banker.

Their Remodeled Farmhouse Expresses Themselves

By LEE SOUTHERLAND
Appalachian State University News Bureau

BOONE — A lot of people must have passed by the vacant 100-year-old tin-roofed white-frame house in Zionville, N.C. without noticing anything particularly outstanding about it.

Because until recently it looked pretty much like any old farmhouse you see dotted around in the Blue Ridge mountains along the N.C.-Tenn. border.

But that was a year and a half ago: before Joe and Andrea Sloop stumbled onto it and decided to remodel.

Since then, they have hammered, sanded, sawed, torn down, thrown away and rebuilt the house that was originally built by a Watauga county Civil War veteran returning home from the war.

Andrea says her husband, who teaches industrial arts at nearby Appalachian State University came home glowing when he first saw the house and 50 acres of untouched mountain land along side it.

"I have to admit I was skeptical when Joe first showed it to me," Andrea said. "Looking back I'm surprised he talked me into coming out here."

Two years of dust and mountain animal life, including two six-foot black snakes, had accumulated inside when they moved in last October. The only heat was what blazed out of an old wood stove and there was no running water. The upstairs was filled with feathers, seeds and other remnants of a grain storage room.

"It was really like camping out at first," Andrea said. "We lived in one room huddled around the stove until January when Joe finished putting the furnace in."

THIS MOUNTAIN FARMHOUSE . . . has become the Sloops' beloved home as well as their ongoing joint project after a year and a half and untold hours of hard weekend and vacationtime labor.

Perhaps the most amazing thing about the Sloop's remodeling has been its cost. Outside of building materials, the only money they have paid in labor in $20 for plumbing.

"The thing I'm so terribly proud of is that we've done the work ourselves," Andrea said. "The house is really an expression of us and of our own creativity."

The Sloop s claim anyone could remodel their own home — that is doesn't take much technical carpentry know-how. "I had no knowledge at all when we started," Andrea said, "and I learned to panel and lay stones myself. The information is easy to get in books or from other people, and well worth the satisfaction."

They have spent weekends and vacations rising early and working hard. Both have a full schedule: Joe teaches at Appalachian while working on his doctorate degree at N.C. State and Andrea teaches for Head Start while working on her masters degree in in guidance and counseling at Appalachian.

Everything in their home was either made, begged, borrowed or given to Joe and Andrea.

When they first bought the property neither of them realized the two delapidated chicken houses were made of the now rare and expensive wormy chestnut wood. They tore them down and used the old wood to build kitchen cabinets, panel walls, make candle holders, shelves and a kitchen table.

One of the things finished recently is a stone fireplace. "Andrea brought the rocks up from a little creek on the property and I mixed the concrete," Joe said. Together they laid the rock and made a mantle out of a old chestnut beam from the front porch.

Cleaning, painting and building closets has taken much of their time, but creating furnishings has been one of their favorite activities.

They got the idea for their colonial dutch bed — build into the wall out of old chestnut wood — from one they saw in an old Dutch house in Iowa on their honeymoon. Andrea made the curtains that hide it in the daytime.

A tree stump was made into a table when Joe cut a thick round piece of glass for its top and kitchen chairs were made from some old broken down ones they found in the barn. An old-timery bathtub found abandoned in a field fit perfectly in their new bathroom.

One reason Joe and Andrea made the move to the country was Joe's yearning for a garden. "I'm an old farm boy from Yadkinville and I knew I had to have my own garden to grow things," he said.

This summer their garden has produced a good drop of organically grown tomatoes, peas, okra, squash, corn, cantalopes and potatoes.

They are also busy with canning and making preserves with blackberries, strawberries, grapes and apples. The old root cellar off the kitchen has made an ideal place for a pantry and storage area.

The Sloop's are concerned about the preservation of the natural beauty of their land and the land of their neighbors in the N.C. mountains. They fear that because there is no zoining or planning law in the county that the natural beauty will be destroyed.

"We love these mountains and are concerned that the quality of life will be hindered out here if land is allowed to be developed for commercial purposes in all areas," Joe said.

The Sloop's are active in local movements to protect the natural environment.

THE STRIKING FIREPLACE . . . was made from stone from a creek bed on the Sloops' property and topped with rare worm-eaten chestnut salvaged from chicken houses on their property.

Light Tuna Salad Is A High-Protein Bargain

Young and old will love this colorful salad because it combines two favorites, canned tuna and macaroni—along with red onion rings, sliced celery and carrot "blossoms". The macaroni should be cooked in the Italian manner, al dente, which means "to the tooth" or firm. "No work" canned tuna is one of the most popular summer dishes. Its tempting flavor is just right for a variety of recipes. It's not "heavy"—yet it leaves you feeling satisfied—because, after all, it's a complete protein food comparable to lean meat. And it still is a great food bargain. That's why savvy homemakers are using tuna in family menus several times a week.

Tuna Salad Italiana

- 1 package (8 ounces) macaroni bows, cooked according to package directions
- 1 small red onion, sliced and separated into rings
- 1 cup diagonally sliced celery
- 1 cup carrot flowers*
- 3 cans (6½ or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil, drained and cut into chunks
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- ¼ cup clear Italian dressing
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon Tabasco pepper sauce
- Salad greens

Combine cooked macaroni, vegetables and tuna chunks; reserve. Combine next four ingredients. Pour over macaroni-tuna mixture; toss together lightly. Line salad bowl with greens; add macaroni-tuna mixture. YIELD: 6 to 8 servings. Carrot flowers:* Cut 1 cup thin carrot slices. Form petals by cutting 5 small wedge-shaped notches around edge of each slice.

Doctor Talks About His Hearing Loss

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. Reprints of articles by a noted doctor will be given free to anyone requesting them.

The articles discuss frankly and factually the doctor's own hearing loss and what he did to correct it. Reflecting his own personal experience, these articles also describe the special problems of the hard-of-hearing and the consequences of continued neglect.

The articles are free and easy to understand, so we suggest you write for your copies now. Again, we repeat there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Write today to Dept. 8011, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, Ill. 60646. (Adv.)

Is The Widow A Digger Of Gold?

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 55-year-old man whose wife died three years ago. I am going with a 51-year-old widow. She is a high class, attractive woman whose husband left her as well off financially as I am. [Maybe better.] I am not the only man she goes with, and I see other women, but we both see more of each other because we seem to enjoy each other's company more. [Yes, it is a "love" affair, too.]

This woman is always suggesting that I buy her expensive presents. I never figured her for a gold digger, mainly because she can buy anything she wants, but she insists that I buy her things. I haven't bought her anything yet, but I am on the verge.

She's never bought me anything, but then, why should she?

Part of me says, "Buy her something to please her," but part of me says, "Why should you? Don't be a chump." What do you say? NOT TIGHT—JUST CAREFUL

DEAR NOT: "Why should you? Don't be a chump." [P. S. If she's no gold digger, she shouldn't act like one.]

DEAR ABBY: This is just like waking up in the middle of a nightmare! We have been married for two years and are now in the process of moving. Yesterday I found nine handwritten "thank you" notes I had written for wedding gifts received shortly after we were married. They had fallen behind a desk drawer.

I feel two inches high, knowing that these people have never been thanked for their wedding presents. They are probably wondering what kind of manners I have. Or do you think they have forgotten about it by now?

What should I do? MORTIFIED

DEAR MORTIFIED: It's a hundred to one they have not forgotten. Better late than never. Send the original "thank you" note, explaining exactly what happened. They'll understand.

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law lives in another state. I write her long, newsy letters about once every three or four weeks.

If I'm a little late getting a letter off to her, she calls mutual relatives long distance, telling them she is worried sick about me because she hasn't heard from me in so long.

Abby, she is not senile. She's sharp as a tack. I am on to her little stunt. She just does this to give the relatives the impression that I neglect her. [I do not!] If she is really worried about me, why doesn't she call ME instead of calling everyone else?

Any suggestions? BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: Short circuit her little stunt and be sure she gets an "I am fine" postcard every week without fail.

DEAR ABBY: I have read and reread that letter about "Grandma" who put $200 in the bank every month while she lived off her married daughter. Grandma kept promising this daughter she would get everything when she [Grandma] passed away.

That brought back memories of my own experience. I took care of an ailing uncle for many, many years. His own children never bothered with him. This uncle must have said a thousand times: "When I die, you are going to get everything I have."

Well, Uncle never made a will, and when he died his estate, which was considerable, was divided up according to law. Guess who never got a dime? "ME" IN ILLINOIS

DEAR ME: You belong to a large club. But there is no subtle way to suggest that someone make a will.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Is zero z-e-r-o "nothing"? Most folks do think that nothing and zero are the same thing. Instead of being "nothing," zero is something — something important to you.

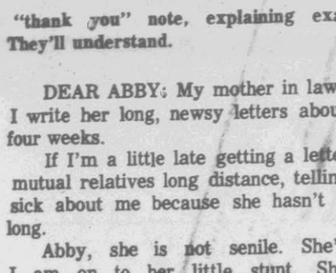

Mathematics was not very precise until the invention of the zero. It's one of our most useful inventions. The ancient Babylonian astronomers were the first to record it. Then it was lost for a time and later picked up by the Hindus. It came to Europe from India by the way of Moslem countries. That was long, long ago (probably about 800-1200 A.D.).

Take this zero, put a tiny zero at its upper right and a capital F and a period along side it. The tiny zero and the capital F added turn the big zero into a symbole for temperature. And what does temperature mean? To the mother, it may mean that Johnny's brow is very hot and she wants a doctor. To others, temperature may mean how warm it is outside or the coolness of a brisk spring breeze.

But bring temperature down to zero degrees F. then it means, "This is the amount of coldness frozen foods need for storage." It is insurance against quality loss. When you process your own food and put it in the freezer, you want — months later — to eat food of approximately the same quality that you put in. If you buy frozen food, you have the right to expect good quality.

Frozen food is sensitive — very sensitive to those temperature changes above 0 degrees F. Take strawberries, for example. They are one of our best sources of Vitamin C. When we eat strawberries we expect to get all this high vitamin content. But if the frozen berries have been held at too high a temperature much of this vitamin may have disappeared. Here is a startling fact: If you hold frozen strawberries for one month at zero degrees they lost very, very little Vitamin C. But, if you hold them at +20 degrees F. for one month, half of the Vitamin C. is gone.

Quality loss in food does not necessarily occur all at once. It accumulates. Several short exposures to high temperature cause a little damage each time. You can't undo this damage once it is done — so several short exposures to high temperatures add up to serious damage. That's why it is important for everybody who handles frozen food to know the value of this little symbol we call the zero. It isn't nothing; it's something.

Tippy's Corner

Tippy's Taco House is well known from coast to coast for delicious Texas-style Mexican food.
A Tippy's Taco House will be opening soon in Greenville.

ENCHILADA — Mellow cheese, juicy sweet onions, rolled in tender soft corn meal tortilla, and crowned with chili gravy, chili con carne, and melted cheese.

TAMALE — Zingy, spicy beef, pork and spices, snuggled in a blanket of corn meal and cooked to perfection.

GUACAMOLE — Mellow creamy avacodas blended with special spices and a dash of sweet onion to create a delicate salad to enjoy on a bed of crisp lettuce. . .or a party dip on crisp tostado chips.

TACO — A crisp tortilla, partially folded - filled with tender beef, or rich beans, or creamy guacamole. All Tippy's tacos are accented with special spices, cheese, and topped with crisp lettuce and tomatoes.

BURRITO — An up-dated Mexican sandwich of taco meat and chili con carne, garnished with cheese and spices and rolled in a soft flour tortilla. An excellent choice for a tasy lunch.

CHALUPA — Tortilla smothered with beans crowned with lettuce and tomato and a touch of cheddar cheese. So tasty and different!

TORTILLA — The Mexican "staff of life." Tender fresh meal rounds with a delicate unforgettable goodness.

TOSTADO — They are tortillas toasted to a golden brown to make a crisp, snappy chip for dipping, snacking or just fun.

SLOPPY JOSE — Our taco meat blended with chili con carne and garnished with cheese and onion. So delicious and superior to old-fashioned hamburgers.

KORN DOGS — Tired of the hum-drum hot dogs. Enjoy our delicious Korn Dogs. You'll never want to go back to the old hot dog eating habits. We use quality weiners and wrap them in our Texas-style corn meal blend and deep fat fry until crisp and zesty. Mustard or catsup just adds to the unforgettable flavor. Deliciously different. . .a meal on a stick.

TIPPY'S CHICK — Hints of Ole Mexico because of the specially selected 15 Tippy seasonings carefully blended and cooked under controlled pressure so that the flavor is enjoyed throughout chicken. Served piping hot and free of greasy taste. Even diabetic patients can enjoy Tippy Chick. Now that you've tried the rest, enjoy the best.

TACO DOGS — Consist of a spicy hot dog wrapped in a flour tortilla and deep fat fried to tenderized perfection. This "zesty-pooch" is so deliciously different you'll never want just a plain hot dog again. Served plain with mustard or catsup or topped with a serving of our famous chili con carne and a nip of shredded cheese you have a taste treat that will appeal to the young and the young at heart.

Independents Face New Threat

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Already pinched by the nationwide fuel shortage, independent discount gasoline stations are facing another troublesome economic fact of life: direct competition from outlets owned by the major oil companies.

Major oil firms in the past few years have entered the discount-station market with increasing frequency, opening outlets featuring catchy names, cut-rate prices and gasoline generally comparable to that sold in their brand-name stations.

The trend has raised serious questions about the ability of the small, independent gasoline station to survive, especially since oil and gasoline will be harder and harder to come by.

The practice also has caught the eye of the Justice Department.

Justice sources said a probe is under way to determine whether the major oil companies are violating federal antitrust laws by opening more discount stations. The laws are murky in this area, especially since consumers are benefiting by lower prices.

But one Justice source said the department is concerned that independent stations will be forced out of business by the majors' cut-rate, secondary brands.

He raised the question of whether all discount stations would then vanish, leaving the consumer with no alternative to higher-priced major brands.

But major oil companies defend the practice, saying they are beginning to get into an area cornered long ago by independents, thus increasing, not inhibiting, competition.

Sensitive to charges that they can supply their discount stations much easier than the independents, the major oil companies, at least during the present gasoline shortage, have decided against opening any new discount stations.

There is no official count nationally of discount stations owned by the major oil firms. Most estimates put the number at a few thousand.

The majors' outlets have numerous names. Exxon has 28 Alert stations and two more under construction, most of them along the East Coast.

Phillips Petroleum, which began its discount program years ago, has 700 discount stations with such names as Blue Goose, Blackjack, Excel, Red Dot, Bonanza and Seaside.

Shell has Ride stations, Atlantic Richfield has Award, and Standard of Ohio has Gas-N-Go.

Mobil has 29 Sello stations in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, all run by salaried operators.

Although the overall quality of gasoline at Sello is not the same as that sold in Mobil stations, the spokesman said, regular and premium grades with octane ratings "competitive with other nonmajor marketers in the area" are sold.

The quality of the gasoline elsewhere is substantially that of the brand name stations, according to several industry spokesmen, but usually contains fewer additives.

Hospitals For Scouts' Health

Parents of the more than 40,000 scouts attending the Eighth National Scout Jamboree-East at Moraine State Park, Pennsylvania need not worry about their son's health, according to Frankford Johnson of Greenville who is serving as one of the 2,000 scout news correspondents.

Johnson, a member of Troop 426-2, said that there is a complete Army field hospital at Moraine and 12 scout hospitals scattered throughout the 2,000-acre campsite.

The Army hospital, a 100-bed medical treatment facility, is equipped with modern surgical, laboratory, X-ray, dental and in-patient facilities, the reporter explained.

He noted that each of the 12 scout hospitals are staffed by three trained physicians, one trained nurse, and five aides. A hospital tent is split into three sections: a waiting room, treatment room and a ward. Doctors are on duty 24 hours each day.

At each of the 12 hospitals, Johnson pointed out, there is an ambulance that will go to any emergency.

Johnson was selected by his Jamboree troop to serve as a scout correspondent during the encampment.

Statewide Job Survey Begun By Commission

The Employment Security Commission has started a statewide job survey to examine worker skills and job locations of employees in some 5,000 non-manufacturing business firms, James E. Hannan, Manager of the State Employment Office here reported today.

He said questionnaires are being mailed from Commission headquarters in Raleigh to the bulk of the state's non-manufacturing companies. North Carolina is one of 21 states participating in the Federal Manpower Administration and Burear of Labor Statistics sponsored job study.

Results of the study, according to Hannan, will be used to provide accurate information on worker-skills by industry and trends in non-manufacturing employment. The finished project will also identify geographical areas in which worker skills are located, and permit local, state, and ultimately national, projections of future work-skill requirements by industry. "It will identify new occupations and define which jobs have declining opportunity."

He explained that the survey will help government officials at all levels plan occupational training programs and evaluate these programs. Public and private educators can also use the study results to relate current instruction programs to the current labor market.

Hannansaid he does not know how many employers in the Pitt County area will be contacted, but he urges those firms and companies which do receive questionnaires to cooperate fully with the job survey.

"Reports from individual companies will be kept confidential," he said. "Data will be published only in summary form." Similar studies of jobs in wholesale and retail trade, state, and local government and other sectors of the economy are planned, he explained.

Stevie Wonder Is Injured In Wreck

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Blind soul singer Stevie Wonder is in satisfactory condition after being injured in a highway accident, Baptist Hospital said today.

Wonder, 23, was hurt when a car driven by John Harris, 24, of New York City collided with a logging truck Monday near Salisbury. Harris was listed in good condition.

Wonder and Harris were taken to Rowan Memorial Hospital in Salisbury after the wreck. Wonder later was transferred to the larger Baptist Hospital.

The singer and his 10 piece band, called Wonderlove, have recorded such hits as "My Cherie Amour," "Superstition" and the No. 1 song in the country three weeks ago, "You Are the Sunshine of My Life."

Members of the band were traveling in two other cars to keep the benefit date for radio station WAFR in Durham, N.C., 75 miles northeast of the scene of the accident. The concert, scheduled at Duke University, was canceled.

Highway Patrolman D.H. Moran said the car in which Wonder was riding crashed into the rear of the logging truck. The driver of the truck, Charles Thomas Shepherd, 23, of Rt. 4, Salisbury, suffered cuts and bruises in the accident on Interstate 85 near Salisbury.

Wonder and Harris were taken to Roman Memorial Hospital of Salisbury after the wreck, which occurred about 2:45 p.m..

Russians Look To 1976-80

MOSCOW (AP) — As part of its 1976-80 economic plan, the Soviet Union is eager to do business with American chemical companies, two McGraw-Hill editors have reported.

The Soviet position was outlined by Chemical Minister Leonid Kostandov, in an exclusive interview with Chemical Engineering's editor-in-chief, C. S. Cronan, and McGraw-Hill Bureau chief, Axel Krause.

"Mr. Kostandov told us that U.S.S.R. officials want to deal directly with top executives of key U.S. companies to work out mutually beneficial agreements," Cronan said.

Let The Air Out Of Balloon Hoax

MORAINE STATE PARK, Pa. (AP) — A Florida youth who doesn't think it's nice "to fool the scouts" took some of the hot air out of a supposed 1,900-mile balloon trip between the West and East national Boy Scout jamborees.

Larry Kircher, Jr. 14, of Holiday, Fla., sniffed a hoax and as correspondent for his troop he set out on an investigation that resulted in an admission by Jamboree-East officials that the scouts had been misled.

When Jamboree East opened here last Friday, Director Arch Monson told 40,000 cheering boys that racing balloons would take off from the western jamboree at Farragut State Park in Idaho to arrive at Moraine before the closing ceremonies this Thursday.

Less than 48 hours later, two balloons showed up here. Young Kircher had a few questions.

He confronted Charles Wott, director of special events of Jamboree East and also telephoned officials at Farragut. Monday he released the results.

"The balloonists had really flown only a few miles out of Farragut to a nearby airport where they packed up and were jetted to an airport close to Jamboree East. Then from a new launching site they blew their balloons back up and flew to Lake Arthur here.

"They actually flew less than 100 miles," he said.

Mark Clayton, public relations director of Jamboree East, confirmed the story and observed that such a trip normally would take four weeks. He added that the balloonists "tried to keep the fantasy going."

Kirchner said Mott explained to him that officials "were trying to add some excitement to both jamborees.

"We are supposed to be trustworthy to other people as our scout oath says," said the Florida youth, "so why can't people who deal with us be trustworthy also?

"We'd rather have it like it is," he said. "No one likes to be fooled."

Moose Enroll 24 Members

The enrollment of 24 new members into the Greenville Moose lodge and announcement of a new entertainment chairman highlighted last night's weekly meeting.

Roy Thompson was designated by lodge Governor Garland Beddard to the entertainment post. Thompson's first assignment is to prepare a Family Day program to be held in the new future.

Special project chairman Leon Smith reported preliminary work on the blood donor index plan is progressing and an organizational meeting with representatives of a number of other area groups will be held tonight.

The new members enrolled, were:

Howard D. Bolyard, Elbert Lee Buck, R.J. Bowell, Gary S. Cooke, Robert A. Eisenman, Fred V. Feamster, Clifton R. Gentry, James R. Hudson Jr.;

Donald E. Jones, Jack LaMantia, Lloyd C. Lancaster, Gerald S. Pierce, Charles D. Roark, Sam S. Moore Jr., Donald H. Sayce, Larry E. Snyder;

City Counts 3 Accidents

An estimated $2,275 property damage resulted from three collisions investigated here yesterday by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a 7:14 a.m. collision at the intersection of 14th and Charles Streets involving cars driven by James Arthur Smith of Route 1, Winterville and James Whitley Thomas of 1710 Englewood Dr.

Police, who charged Thomas with failing to stop for a red light, estimated damage to the Smith car at $800 and set damage to the Thomas vehicle at $500.

Kay Hand Wyont of 1801 East First St. and a passenger in the car she was driving were reported injured in a 12:16 p.m. collision of First Street 20 feet East of the Ash Street intersection.

Investigators said the Wyont car collided with a utility pole and parked car owned by the City of Greenville Housing Authority causing an estimated $500 damage to the Wyont car and $150 damage to the city vehicle.

No charges were made following investigation of the collision.

Joy Strickland Melton of 1307 Powell St. was charged with no operators license and leaving the scene of an accident following investigation of a 5:05 p.m. mishap on East Gum Road 15 feet North of the Washington Street intersection.

Officers reported the Melton car collided with a vehicle driven by George Davis Yelverton of Greenville causing an estimated $175 damage to the Yelverton auto and $150 damage to the Melton car.

Gasoline Spills In Creek Bed

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — Gasoline was spilled in a creek bed area Monday when a bulldozer ruptured a pipeline in 800-acre Ren Geren Regional Park.

Director Floyd Metts said the park would be closed until Wednesday because motorcycles could cause sparks that might ignite the fuel.

Metts said he did not know how much gas was lost but it flowed about four hours. He said trucks with suction equipment were at the park to pick up the gas, which was three to four feet deep in places.

Transit System Again Serving

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Bay Area Rapid Transit system is back in business—with the bugs that have plagued the $1.6 billion mass transit system the past 11 months.

A BART official said that Monday "was full of steady, minor, annoying delays but in general things are going beautifully" as operations resumed after a 35-day strike.

Problems in the manual control system caused many five- and 10-minute delays, officials said and added that four of BART's 18 trains were sidelined with computer disorders, officials said.

"Basically, the trains were having a little difficulty in picking up orders; and if they don't understand what the computer is trying to tell them, they won't go any place," an official said.

Sad Impact Of New Efficiency

It has to be the passing of an era of sorts when a 132 year old post office is closed down in this time of modern transportation.

The Pactolus Post Office will close Aug. 31 and the postmistress, Sandra Gray, says it has been there for 132 years.

The post office is located in Satterthwaite'sstore where it has been for 45 years. Thirty-eight of those years it was operated by Cecil Satterthwaite.

The post office has been open for six hours a day and served 250 customers. But is has reportedly been losing money. Now its patrons will be served by rural route carriers and a post office which goes back to pre-Civil War days is to be no more.

Perhaps it speaks well for the new postal service that in the name of efficiency the Pactolus Post Office is being eliminated. To us, though, it is regrettable that there is not room in the far flung postal system for a tiny post office to serve a rural community. No doubt Pactolus was a losing proposition, but at the same time perhaps service should be put above all else in delivering the mail. The postal service has been limited a little more by the elimination of this rural post office.

Spotty Record In Bond Votes

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Despite a spotty track record for local school band votes over the past several years, Tar Heel voters have given their okay to more than $100 million in local school construction funds.

But still, state officials said, citizens believe local school bonds have been widely unfavorable.

"Notwithstanding what a lot of people think, we've had a number of local bond issues to pass," the state's number one expert on bond votes said.

Dr. J. L. (Jet) Pierce is director of the division of school planning on the staff of the state superintendent of schools.

He is a veritable fountain of information on school bonds.

Taking the year 1969 through the present, North Carolina's track record shows 25 local bond issues approved, 17 defeated.

But 1969 was the year of the big turndown, largely due to local hassles over integration, and more lost than won—eight turned down; seven approved.

Eliminating 1969 from the count, the picture improves to a count or 18 approvals statewide to nine losses from 1970 until now.

4 This Year

So far this year, there have been four local bond votes with one, Harnett County's $7 million proposal, defeated; three passed: Union County for $11.7 million; Clinton Schools for $2.3 million; Yancey County for $1.5 million.

Also affecting the overall track record, Dr. Pierce feels, is the fact that in some cases, notably Transylvania schools and Stokes County, voters came back to approve bond proposals first rejected at the polls.

Stokes in fact, turned down $2.5 million in 1971; came back in 1972 and approved $5 million.

But in two counties, Wake and Durahm, voters have twice rejected bond issues during this period.

While simple statistics can tell one side of the story, Dr. Pierce sees a number of other factors in whether a local vote will pass.

"The school finance picture is a rapidly changing one, and has changed considerably in the past three years. There was a time when communities depended on two primary sources: the annual ad valorem tax and local bond referendums," Dr. Pierce said.

Focus Shifts

But now, he said, a larger percentage of construction money is coming from federal revenue sharing funds and from local one-cent sales tax which a majority of counties levies.

Also affecting local decisions, he believes, is a new state law which prohibits a school district bond vote when the unit is smaller than the county in which it is located. Any bond vote now must be countywide and the money split among the districts by boards of county commissioners.

The upcoming statewide bond vote for $300 million to be committed to local school construction purposes will also have its affect on local votes, Dr. Pierce believes.

Finally, some local votes have failed because the campaign for approval was not well enough organized.

The state department of public instruction provides advice in this area as well as assisting local officials in drawing up the bond packages.

"You give me the local Democratic and Republican executive committees, the county commissioners and the school board to back a local vote, and we'll win," Dr. Pierce said, characterizing the leadership required.

Promotion Leader

"Ordinarily the board of education or the county commission, or both, will set up a committee of some sort to promote the porposal. Typically, a community leader vitally interested in education will head up the campaign.

"Then, you line up the support of the local teachers' associations, the Parent-Teachers Association, and call on the N. C. Congress of PTA and the NCEA for backing.

"Then, some community leader is tabbed to organize and raise financing; not a whole lot of money is raised since this is not a big expense requiring widespread advertising and so on," he said.

No public money can be used for promotional purposes. "Promotion generally is first the responsibility of the board of education, and sometimes members of the county commission push it."

While $15 million in local bonds have been passed already this year, at least two more votes, involving $10 million, are being seriously studied in Currituck County and in the Kinston-Lenoir County schools.

Municipal Elections Reminder Is Sounded

Lest we forget that this is a municipal election year, Mrs. Myra Cain, chairwoman of the city board of elections has reminded that filing time is coming up.

Municipal elections were moved from May to Oct. 9 this year and the filing period for prospective council members and mayor is from Aug. 17 until Sept. 14.

The fees will also be higher this year with council candidates paying $25 and mayoral candidates paying $50.

Members of the council had a longer than usual term this time because the election date was moved. The voters will get their chance at them in the fall, though, and another political season is rapidly approaching.

Predict Hanoi Will Try Again

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Field reports from Vietnam warn that Communist forces, confident that U. S. bombers will never reappear in Indochina after Aug. 15 and hopeful that vital U. S. supplies will dry up, are sure to challenge Watergate-paralyzed Washington with a general offensive.

Both written reports and departed officials passing through Washington agree that Hanoi's new offensive is a question not of "if" but of "when." It couldcome in mid-October or perhaps not until spring or even later. But all observers believe the refitted North Vietnamese legions will strike from new bases in South Vietnam to attempt the conquest of the entire country.

Present combat readiness of North Veitnamese troops, worn out only six months ago, is a byproduct of the peace agreements negotiated in Paris. But the enhanced prospect of a Communist offensive soon stems from Hanoi's reading that the mood in Washington today will prevent President Nixon from helping the South Vietnamese.

The overriding new development in South Vietnam since the ceasefire is the development of a Communist-controlled "nation" in the wilderness (widely called the Third Vietnam). Secure behind those borders in the mountainous northwest, the North Vietnamese army has licked its wounds and prepared for battle.

To give the impression that the so-called "Provisional Revolutionary Government" really has its own country, Hanoi has been trucking civilians from North Vietnam (recently including truckloads of single women). Hanoi's optimum wish is for refugees to flow out of Saigon-controlled areas into the Third Vietnam.

That has not and surely will hot happen. Despite continuing corruption, the people of South Vietnam have made their choice for President Nguyen Van Thieu's government. Skeptical old Vietnam hands in the U. S. Foreign Service, returned to Vietnam for temporary duty following the peace agreement, were amazed that the provailing public attitude had shifted from neutrality to a bread-and-butter preference for the Saigon regime. That is confirmed by a secret public opinion survey conducted by U. S. officials in the populous Mekong River delta.

The threat from the Third Vietnam, therefore, is not political but military. With the Americanized South Vietnamese army (ARVN) neither equipped nor trained for guerrilla raids into the new base area, the Communists have safely rebuilt their army. Intelligence sources now evaluate North Vietnamese forces as at least their size when the massive spring 1972 offensive was launched. In terms of tanks, heavy artillery and antiaircraft rockets, they are considerably superior.

What has so far inhibited a new offensive is the Hanoi politburo's difficulty in reading the intentions of the inscrutable Americans. Amazed at Mr. Nixon's resumption of bombing twice in 1972, Hanoi has feared his response to any new aggression.

But experts believe that Hanoi now views Mr. Nixon, politically crippled by Watergate, as unable to resume bombing anywhere in Indochina after the Aug. 15 statutory deadline. With that inhibition gone, there is only one thing for the Communists to do with their refitted army: use it.

That same realization on is dawning on South Vietnamese officials. When we reported from Vietnam last April, several ARVN generals confided to us they could not stop a new general offensive without the U. S. B-52 bombers that halted the Communists at the gates of key cities a year ago. Now, according to new reports from Vietnam, that attitude has changed. ARVN generals know they must rely on less artillery and infinitely less air support and are prepared to make the best of it.

ARVN has fought best with its back to the wall and escape routes blocked—as in the 1972 siege of An Loc. Now, with massive American support ruled out, the entire army has its back to the wall.

Consequently, the most skeptical U. S. observers believe ARVN can stop a general offensive, if the necessary lifeline of U. S. supplies is not choked off.

Strength For Today

THE PURPOSE OF LIFE

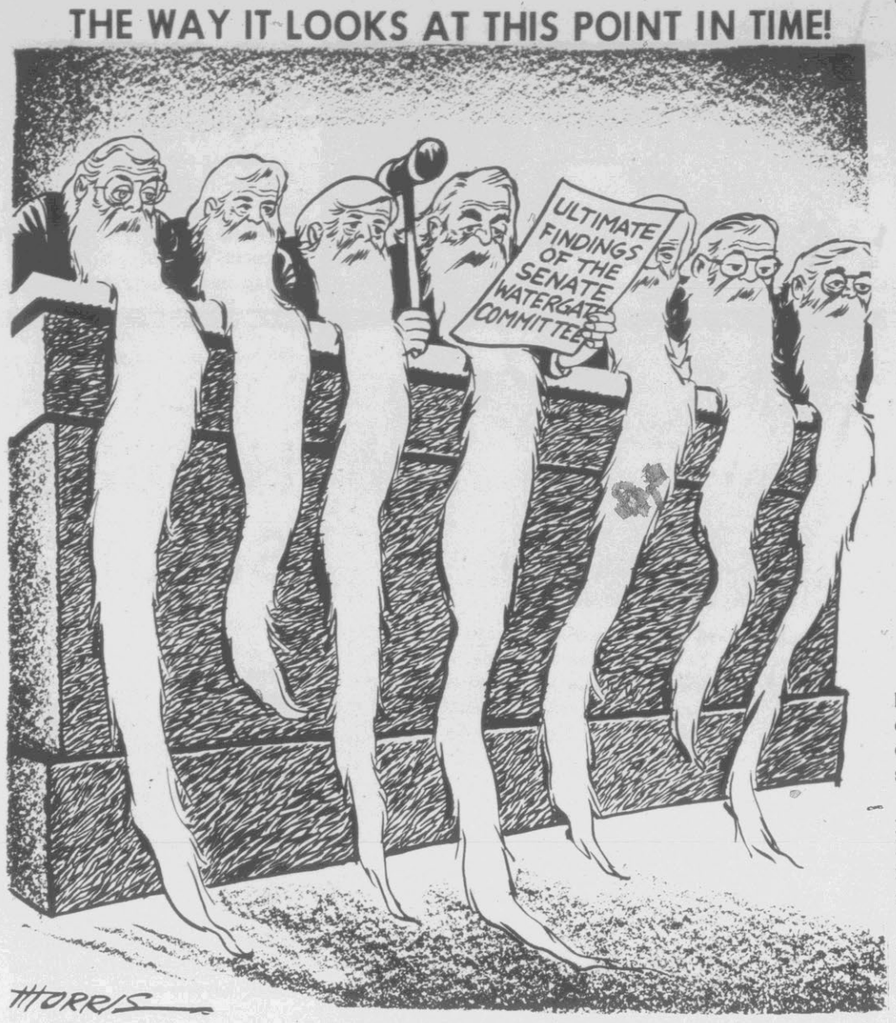

A distinguished theologian was once asked by a couple which he knew very well to talk with their little boy about some religious questions which the boy had raised. Accordingly, the boy came to the theologian's study one day and the two began their talk. For openers the boy asked, "Uncle Ed, what are we here for, anyway?"

The theologian was surprised at how directly the boy had gone to the heart of a vitally important religious matter. "We are here to grow souls," the theologian replied to the lad, and then was led into a discussion of the matter which later led to his writing an important book on the purpose of life. His ultimate conclusion was that we are to prepare ourselves to take our place in the eternal spiritual world when everything human and material has passed away.

If we can look at life in this manner it is not hard for us to take whatever life gives, be it happiness or sorrow sickness or health, riches or poverty.

Keeping Opinions Alive

The mail brings a sad letter from William F. Buckley, Jr., writing in his capaicty as editor of National Review. Because every subscriber to National Review has received such letters in the past, and becuase it is out of character for Bill to be sad for long, the letter impels no sense of impending doom. But it does prompt a few observations.

Why don't conservatives tend to their wounded? Why does the business community, in the matter at hand, exhibit so little sense of business or community? And to extend the lines of inquiry generally, why is it that magazines of opinion, whether liberal or conservative, have such difficulty in surviving?

That was the purpose of Bill's letter: survival. His fortnightly magazine, bravely launched in 1955, has been sinking ever since. In 1971 it lost $315,000. Last year it lost $317,000. My distinguished friend makes the point, in his cheerful way, that the loss in '72 was not really worse than the loss in '71, if proper account is given to inflation; but one is reminded of Nixon's efforts to demonstrate that his deficits wouldn't be so large if only everyone were working. The losses are horrendous.

Thus the letter to subscribers. The editor is appealing for pledges of $300,000 to keep his magazine afloat another year. I believe he will get it, partly because Bill is Bill, and partly because improbably enterprises often are sustained by faith. "Credo quod habes," as Erasmus once remarked to Thomas More, "et habes." Believe that you have it, and you have it.'

Yet these annual fund-raising appeals, quite literally touching as they are, cannot provide a solid answer to the problems that afflict National Review. The same problems, one may be certain, also afflict such liberal journals as New Republic. You don't cure these ills with contributions; you cure them with advertising. And advertising — that beautiful profitable, lovely, indispensable advertising — is what they have not got.

Well, they have some advertising. National Review had about 250 pages of paid advertising (as distinguished from house ads) in 1972, and will do maybe 7 to 10 percent better this year. New Republic had 241 pages, which unhappily was down from the 329 pages the year before. Compared to the linage in such magazines as Fortune, The New Yorker, Playboy and Harper's, this is not even minor-league stuff. The opinion magazines are not even in the ballpark.

One is minded to wonder why this is so. One answer is that it is not worth the time and trouble to an advertising agency to place, say, $10,000 worth of advertising in National Review for the $1,500 commission thus produced. The same time and trouble could be exerted more profitably elsewhere. Another explanation, I am told, is that some advertisers are wary of being identified with the editorial views of a medium; the tenuous line of reasoning is that if a distiller of gin advertises in National Review, which thinks well of Rhodesia, blacks will stop drinking gin. Still a third explanation is that advertising agencies are run by liberals, who just naturally hate National Review, and therefore practice a policy of

Other Editors Say It Can Be Done

(Henderson Dispatch)

If enough people want to enough, the Federal budget can be balanced. It can be done without any higher taxes. It can be done without sacrificing any vital Federal service. What's more, it can be done in the next budget (the current one is too far gone).

Preposterous, you say? Certainly not. It is only a matter of sound financing, something which Washington has not been accustomed to in a generation, except for a very few years.

Senator Helms has introduced a bill in the Senate which would require that the government spend no more than it takes in for any one fiscal year. The senator has challenged a colossal problem. It's colossal because Congress and the administration has allowed it to become that, Between the two branches of government, fiscal sanity can be restored to the Federal establishment.

A gentleman from the Washington scene was in the office the other day. He said there is a growing consciousness on Capitol Hill that the ridiculous habit of deficit and borrowing a year after year must be ended. That's one of the most encouraging reports we have heard from the seat of power in many a day. The wonder is as to whether the honorables will follow through or ignore the dictates of conscience.

One hopeful sign is that more and more Americans are becoming fed up and disgusted with fiscal irresponsibility in the house of the mighty. If there shall be enough of that, those in control will sense the threat to their political future and will act accordingly and sensibly.

Trouble now and all along has been and is that citizens generally are too callous and indifferent about affairs of their government. When and if they are sufficiently concerned, results will be had. The dollar will strengthen abroad, foreign trade can be balanced, people will have greater confidence in Congress and the administration, and the nation will have made a new start toward monetary integrity.

The Helms proposal is proper. It is long overdue. But it will be a steep hill to clumb. There will be obstacles to overcome. The ascent is possible and the obstacles can be tossed aside. Where there is a will there is a way. It is a question of whether there is enough will among those who can accomplish these objectives. It is possible. One wonders if it is probable.

Farm Real Estate Values Soar

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — When you spoke of rich farmland in days gone by it was understood that you were speaking of the soil's fecundity. Today it's possible somebody will think you're talking about price.

In the latest compilation by the Department of Agriculture, farm real estate values were up 13 per cent for the year, bringing the rise during the past six years to about 50 per cent.

In some areas the increase is considerably more, actually exceeding the much publicized rise of suburban land prices. Since March 1967 the price of farm real estate in Nevada, for example, has exceeded 150 per cent.

The increases are more bad news for housewives, since the higher purchase prices will be reflected at the retail level. Conversely, higher food prices is one major reason why land prices are bid up.

The farmer receives the news with mixed emotions. A retiring farmer may get prices beyond what he would have imagined a few years ago. But a young buyer will find himself at a competitive disadvantage.

The major factor behind the rise, in the view of some agriculture authorities, is the sharp rise in commodity prices. With soybean prices double what they were a year ago, one farm financier forecasts soybean land to rise 30 to 50 per cent this year.

Acreage prices, near or at record highs, run from a minimum of about $150 for wheatlands to $250-$300 for Alabama soybean land to $500-$550 for Mississippi Delta cotton-soybean land to $1,200 for Illinois cornland.

The average value of all farmlands rose $28 last year to $247 an acre, and the total value of farmland and buildings climbed $28.2 billion to a record high of $258.7 billion. And increases are expected to continue.

Some larger increases are expected to result from nonfarm factors, such as housing demand and investors' efforts to seek hedges against inflation. That, at least, has been the pattern of the past.

New England farmland, which is generally inferior to that of the Cornbelt, the Delta, and the Northern and Southern Plains, has risen close to 100 per cent since 1967, to a great extent because of housing and recreation.

Other areas in which prices averaged 100 per cent above those of six years ago include New Jersey, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Georgia. In Nevada, where prices have risen most sharply since 1967, the gain last year was 18 per cent.

In the Cornbelt and in California, where prices already are high, the increases both over the six-year and one-year periods were comparatively modest, rising 12 and 29 per cent for Illinois, and 2 and 15 per cent for California.

Some Opine Stage Is Set For Economic Recession

To Investigate 'Credit Crunch'

IT'S NOT A LOT OF SPEED TRAPS — At first glance, one would think that this might be a speed trap, but they are actually traffic counters. George Melton, of North Carolina State Highway Commission, makes spot checks of various counters that he will use to check the traffic on the primary, secondary and soil roads of 11 counties in eastern N.C. Over a 24 hour period Melton places approximately 45 counters and checks the traffic. He then sends a report to Raleigh where the figures are programmed in a computer for future use. WASHINGTON (AP) — With the prime interest rate at an all-time high, the House Banking Committee is preparing to investigate the nation's financial structure and its impact on the credit crunch.

Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., chairman of the committee, says he wants the panel to write a plan for stabilizing soaring interest rates.

The prime lending rate, the figure charged banks' most creditworthy customers, reached 9 per cent throughout the industry Monday, the highest rate on record.

The prime rate was 6 per cent at the beginning of the year.

Since January, the Banking Committee staff has been preparing an analysis of financial institutions and regulations and considering possible reforms.

Before Congress began a month-long recess last Friday, Patman, a persistent critic of high lending rates, said his panel will hold hearings in September to "consider all aspects of the current credit crunch and the manner in which it is related to financial structure and regulation."

He promised the committee will draft specific legislation in September or early October to stabilize interest rates.

In a letter to committee members, Patman acknowledged "many divisions of opinion" within the panel about key financial issues.

"But I feel there is general agreement that we must improve the delivery of credit services to the people on more stable and reasonable terms and on a basis which will allow the entire economy to remain competitive and prosper," Patman said.

Interest rates are exempt from controls under President Nixon's economic-stabilization program.

Meanwhile, Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today the economic outlook for the year ahead is a 1970-type recession with increases in prices and unemployment.

He gave this gloomy assessment on the basis of hearings he conducted for the Senate-House Economic Committee on the state of the economy at midyear.

"I am convinced that there is nothing in our current economic policies that will retard an inflation that we will suffer for years to come," he said in a statement.

"Even worse, as the economy does slow to a recession level, prices will continue to rise sharply," he said.

Treasury Secretary George Shultz said Sunday he is confident the nation is not headed for a recession.

By DEBORAH M. RANKIN
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — While 1973 has been a boom year so far, a number of leading economists believe business is in the early stage of a slowdown that could accelerate into recession proportions by mid-1974.

Most of the economists interviewed by The Associated Press expected the slowdown would continue and probably worsen next year, but few made an outright prediction of recession. When they did, they said it would be moderate and not necessarily bad for the country or consumers.

The economists were in general agreement on three other major economic questions.

They predicted:

—The inflation rate would continue to rise, but not as sharply as this year.

—Unemployment would increase slightly to 5 or 5½ per cent.

—A credit crunch on the order of 1969-70 was unlikely, although interest rates would remain steep.

When a slowdown becomes a recession can be a semantic problem. The National Bureau of Economic Research defines a recession as two or more consecutive quarters of decline in the "real" Gross National Product — GNP — discounted for price increases.

Many economists are now talking in terms of a 1974 "growth recession," in which real GNP continues to expand but at less than its customary minimum level of 4-4½ per cent.

One economist who believes an actual recession is inevitable and the only question is when it will occur is Milton Friedman of the University of Chicago.

A monetarist who links growth of the money supply to rising prices, Friedman sees recession as good for the national interest. He says it would "correct" prices that have been driven sky high by the country's insatiable demand for goods and services.

It all depends on the policies of the Federal Reserve Board, which acts as the nation's money manager, according to Friedman. If the Fed tightens the country's money supply it would increase the likelihood of a recession in 1974, but if the Fed allows money to expand at the level of the first six months of this year that prospect would be delayed.

"You can only go on a drinking bout for so long," says Friedman. "Sooner or later you're going to have a hangover."

Another economist who expects an actual recession is Albert Sommers of the Conference Board, a nonprofit economic research organization.

But he believes it can be "quite moderate" because there are plenty of cushioning influences. These include a turnaround in the U.S. trade balance as a result of the two dollar devaluations and the general optimism of business regarding long-term capital spending.

But the average American worker may take home a somewhat slimmer paycheck, Sommers says.

"It will mean less overtime and a certain amount of layoffs, but we're not talking about a deep recession."

John Kendrick, a fellow economist with Sommers at the Conference Board, disagrees with his colleague's predictions. Kendrick says an actual recession in 1974 is possible but a growth recession is much more likely.

He sees the deepening slowdown as a direct consequence of a corporate profit squeeze induced by Phase 4 controls. While business could suffer next year, it might not be so bad for workers, he adds.

"The consumer will be getting ahead of the game a little bit," Kendrick predicts. "Wage rates will go up 6-6½ per cent and there will be some slowdown in inflation, with prices rising 4-5 per cent. So he'll see some improvement in terms of purchasing power."

Consumers' buying plans indicate they're becoming more cautious in their appraisal of future economic conditions. A May-June survey by the Conference Board indicates a "significant decrease" in the number of families who expect business conditions to improve and an increase in the number who think they'll get worse.

Disqualified For Food Stamp Violations

ATLANTA, Ga. — A Bertie County, N.C., food store — Base Superette, Inc., of Windsor — has been disqualified from the federal food stamp program for violations, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) reports.

The store, which is managed by Alice Ballance, was disqualified for six months, starting July 24, after being charged with selling ineligible items for USDA food stamp coupons. Among the items were cigarettes, paper products, cleaning products, tobacco products, imported items and a metal foot tub.

A regional FNS official explained that the store will not be allowed to accept food stamp coupons during the disqualification period.

Food stamps, by law, can be used only to buy food, he added.

Even now, ARVN is on starvation rations of arms and ammunition, ending its once profligate expenditure of artillery. But sizable forces in Congress would totally cut that lifeline, dooming ARVN and South Vietnam.

The real possibility that Watergate's malaise may prevent Mr. Nixon from stopping such a calamity is a factor in Communist deliberations whether to attack. So, after the sacrifice of so much American blood and treasure, the final verdict in Vietnam—and all its ominous implications for this nation—may depend on whether the President can recover from Watergate.

ostracism. None of these answers holds water.

It would seem to me that these magazines of opinion, possessed of intensely loyal and literate followings, should be excellent media for particular advertisers. Four out of five subscribers to National Review drink whisky; three out of five drink gin. Half of them own two or more cars. Their median income is $19,000. A four-color back cover is $2,220 in National Review and $2,575 in New Republic. The per-reader rates are competitive, and under an arrangment between the two magazines, advertisers with delicate sensitivity may buy the same space in both for a 10 percent discount.

My chief concern, understandably, is for Mr. Buckley's blue baby. His magazine is devoted to keeping alive those principles of free enterprise and limited government so dear to the hearts of the business community. Many leaders of that community doubtless will respond to his recent letter with nice fat checks. It would be so much better, in every way, if they would respond with nice fat ads.

See Record In Wheat Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat futures prices hit a historic high of $4 a bushel Monday on the Chicago Board of Trade in what one commodity authority termed "possible hysterical buying."

The September contract closed at $4.04 as prices advanced the 10-cent daily limit for a sixth consecutive day.

"There's possible hysterical buying here," said Clifford Roberts, vice president of commodity marketing for Cargill, Inc., one of the largest grain exporters in the country. He added that there was "substantial foreign buying."

Prior to last week's high of $3.50, the record of $3.25 had stood since May 1917.

The higher prices were attributed by one source to growing foreign demand for United States wheat, dwindling existing stocks and a less-than-expected 1973 harvest.

Prices have almost tripled since the government announced the wheat sales to Russia last year. Since Phase 4 was initiated July 18, prices have gone up 40 per cent.

Richard Bell, Department of Agriculture deputy assistant secretary for international affairs and commodity programs, said large amounts of this year's crop already have been sold to Russia and China. Japan has made a major purchase.

In futures trading, a seller contracts to deliver a specified amount of a commodity by a specific future date, often at a price substantially higher than current cash market prices. At Monday's close, however, the September wheat contract was 18 cents below the cash market price.

Yanks Crumble In Tenth Frame

By ALEX SACHARE
Associated Press Sports Writer

After eight innings Monday night, the New York Yankees looked like a first-place team.

Unfortunately, the Yankees' game against the Detroit Tigers lasted 10 innings—and by the time it was over, the Yankees were fourth in the wild American League East, and Detroit was on top of the heap.

First a two-run pinch-homer by husky Frank Howard with two out in the bottom of the ninth capped a three-run rally that erased New York's 4-1 lead and sent the game into extra innings.

Then Aurelio Rodriguez scored all the way from first with the winning run in the 10th inning—thanks to a pair of Yankee throwing errors and a missed play at the plate.

Meanwhile, the Baltimore Orioles, who had been first in the AL East before Monday's play, lost a 5-3 decision to the Boston Red Sox. That dropped Baltimore to second place, one-half game back of Detroit. Boston and New York are each one game out, although the Red Sox are one percentage point ahead of the Yankees.

The Orioles were knocked out of first place by unbeaten, 23-year-old lefthander Roger Moret, who posted his fifth victory of the season with relief help from Bob Bolin.

The Cleveland Indians beat the Chicago White Sox 7-3 in the only other American League game.

In National League action, the New York Mets beat the St. Louis Cardinals 10-3, the Houston Astros edged the Cincinnati Reds 5-4, the Montreal Expos topped the Chicago Cubs 7-3 and the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated the San Diego Padres 2-0.

Indians 7, White Sox 3

Chris Chambliss' two-run double capped a five-run second-inning outburst that lifted the Indians to a 7-3 decision over the White Sox.

Gaylord Perry, 11-15, went all the way for the victory, giving up five hits.

Mets 10, Cards 3

Harry Parker pitched three scoreless innings of relief, working out of trouble twice, and picked up the win when the Mets rallied for three runs in the seventh and five in the eighth to beat the Cardinals 10-3.

"We played like we were in a daze," said Lou Brock after the Cardinals, the National League's East Division leaders, committed three errors and misplayed a number of other chances.

Astros 5, Reds 4

Jimmy Wynn, who just got over an 0-for-32 skein, rapped out two singles, scored three runs, stole two bases and drove home the tie-breaking run in Houston's 5-4 triumph over the Reds.

Expos 7, Cubs 3

Balor Moore pitched six innings of no-hit ball in Montreal's 7-3 triumph, but Mike Marshall had to come on in the eighth and picked up his 22nd save of the year.

Ken Singleton, Bob Bailey and Jim Lyttle homered for Montreal.

Dodgers 2, Padres 0

Al Downing, 9-6, scattered five singles, struck out six and walked just one as the Dodgers stopped the Padres 2-0 and raised their lead in the National League's West Division to four games over second-place Cincinnati.

Goal Line Drills Pay Off For San Francisco

By RICHARD BILOTTI
Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND (AP) — San Francisco 49ers' Coach Dick Nolan has been drilling his squad in defensive goal line stands and Monday night in Cleveland Stadium it paid off.

The 49ers stopped the Cleveland Browns twice with second down and goal situations and defeated the Browns 27-16 in a National Football League exhibition game.

"We're looking for improvement on the goal line," Nolan said. "We've been working hard and well and put forth a lot of effort."

Forty-niner middle linebacker Frank Nunley threw veteran Browns running back Leroy Kelly for a two-yard loss in one of those stands.

"We weren't doing anything really fancy," Nunley said. "The first time they ran the weak side and cornerback Bruce Taylor closed it up."

"We were just doing basic things. We have several variations off the goal line we haven't put in yet."

On both goal line stands the Browns were forced to settle for field goals.

The 49ers also capitalized on three Browns' fumbles.

Browns quarterback Mike Phipps fumbled while attempting a pass in the first quarter and the 49ers took over the ball on the Cleveland 13. That led to the 49ers' first touchdown.

Quarterback Steve Spurrier threw a pass over the middle on the third play from scrimmage after the fumble and Vic Washington ran 24 yards to put the 49ers on top 14-6.

In the fourth period Browns rookie center Bob McClowry's bad pass from center over the head of punter Don Cockroft set up Bruce Gossett's second field goal of the evening.

The Browns scoring came on three field goals by Cockroft and Mike Sumner's interception of a John Brodie pass.

Browns' coach Nick Skorich was happy with Phipps' performance at quarterback. Phipps, who has been with the Browns four years, is beginning his second year as the starter.

Phipps completed 13 out of 17 pass attempts and gained 173 yards.

"He showed us that he has fine control of the offense," Kkorich said.

Spahn Shows That He's Still Tough In Clutch

By DICK JOYCE
Associated Press Sports Writer

COOPERSTOWN, N.Y. (AP) — Warren Spahn always was tough in the clutch.

Just after he began his acceptance speech during induction ceremonies for baseball's Hall of Fame Monday, his brother-in-law, Les Curran of Buffalo, N.Y., collapsed.

Spahn stopped his speech and moved into the crowd as doctors admistered to the stricken man.

Although shaken by the incident, the winningest left-handed pitcher in history resumed his talk as the ambulance, siren blaring, took his Curran to the hospital.

He was reported in satisfctory condition after suffering from exhaustion.

Spahn, 52, praised his father, Edward, who was present. "He taught me how to pitch,"said the former Boston and Milwaukee Braves' star who ranks No. 5 on the all-time winning list with 363.

One of the game's toughest competitors, Spahn, now a coach with the Cleveland Indians, probably would have been elected two years earlier to the Hall if he didn't pitch briefly in the minors after winding up his big league career in 1965.

Spahn was elected in his first try by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

The late Roberto Clemente also was elected by the writers after the five-year waiting period was waived. His widow, Vera, accepted the replica of the Hall of Fame plaque.

With her three young sons, Enrique, Luis, and Robertito, and Roberto's mother among the audience, Mrs. Clemente said: "This is Roberto's last triumph. If he could have come here, he would have dedicated it to the people of Puerto Rico, the people of Pittsburgh and the fans throughout the United States."

The former Pittsburgh Pirates' star, who had a .317 lifetime average for 18 seasons and was a member of the 3,000-hit club, was killed in a New Year's Eve plane crash off his native Puerto Rico while on a mercy mission to earthquake victims in Nicaragua.

Have Different Reasons To Win

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

TALLADEGA, Ala. (AP) — Richard Petty and David Pearson concede that they have entirely different reasons for wanting to win the $150,000 Talladega 500-mile stock car race.

Pearson's reason has to do with money. Petty couldn't care less about the take home pay. For him, it's a matter of pride.

"That Richard already has more money than he'll ever spend," Pearson joked Monday as he awaited the arrival of his red-and-white Mercury. "What is bugging him is that he has never won a race at Talladega, and he won't quit until he does."

The two super drivers of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing's Grand National circuit will be among the first to get on the 2.66-mile Alabama International Motor Speedway when practice opens Wednesday. And they'll be top favorites when a field of 50 starters begins its journey Sunday.

Pearson, by far the hottest driver on the circuit this year with nine triumphs in his last 10 starts, needs only $13,560 from the purse to make him only the second strictly stock car pilot to amass $1 million in career prize money. Petty is the other millionaire, currently with official winnings of just under $1.5 million.

But there are three major ovals on the NASCAR circuit on which Petty has never won a race. Talladega is one, the Charlotte, N.C., Motor Speedway is another, and the third is the Michigan International Speedway.

"Somehow, I've had most of my real troubles at those three ovals," Petty said. "Seems I always come to Talladega, for instance, with a monkey on my back. I've had problems here you wouldn't believe."

Sunday's race pays $19,465 to win. If Pearson gets his ninth big track victory of the season, he automatically goes over the $1-million career mark. Second place pays $10,790 but the 38-year-old star would need to pick up a considerable portion of the $5,000 in lap money.

Petty and Pearson, good friends off the track but hard-nosed competitors behind the wheel, are among racing's most astute businessmen.

But Petty is an intensely proud man, too.

"There has to be a way to shake the monkey," he said. "It's getting to be a matter of pride. I have won at Daytona five times, I have won some tracks eight or nine times. But not Talladega. Now, it boils down to the fact that all I can do is keep trying, and hope for some luck."

Pearson laughed. After all, he has triumphed at Talladega three of his six races at the central Alabama oval.

Colts Are Real Question Mark

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Colts, two years removed from a Super Bowl championship, are clearly the question mark team of the upcoming National Football League season.

Many observers feel that the bold moves by Joe Thomas during his 13 months as general manager will pay off much sooner than if he had approached the rebuilding problems piecemeal.

Since an aging squad posted a 5-9 record last year, Baltimore's first losing season since 1956, Thomas has made 17 trades. Twelve veterans, including such household names as Johnny Unitas, Tom Matte and Bubba Smith, have been dealt off and another retired.

With the opening day 40-man roster likely to include about a dozen rookies and 10 second-year players, inexperience and transition difficulties stand out.

But Howard Schnellenberger, in his rookie season as head coach after seven years as an assistant to the 1973 Super Bowl adversaries—Don Shula and George Allen—is not easily deterred.

"Whether it's realistic or not," Schnellenberger said, "our objective is to somehow, someway, scratch to win enough games to qualify for the playoffs.

He concedes, however, that cohesion may be lacking in the two departments which need it most—the offensive line and the defensive secondary—and that more experience is needed on the defensive line.

Conversely, he is more than satisfied with quarterbacks Marty Domres and rookie Bert Jones, tight end Ray Chester, running backs Don McCauley, Lydell Mitchell and Don Nottingham, and the linebacking crew of Mike Curtis, Ray May and Ted Hendricks.

Domres, who replaced the legendary Unitas after the fifth game of 1972, will be Schnellenberger's quarterback starter "until he shows me he can't win."

Schnellenberger describes McCauley, Mitchell and Nottingham—who have just 500 lifetime carries among them—as outstanding running backs and calls Nottingham "the best blocking fullback I've ever seen."

Schnellenberger expects the offensive line to be "a good working unit," but only tackle Dennis Nelson and guard Glenn Ressler are experienced starters.

The defensive line could include rookie Mike Barnes at end along with Roy Hilton, and rookie Joe Ehrmann at rackle with Jim Bailey.

The secondary, anchored by Rick Volk, a seven-year veteran, likely will be noted for its slam-bang aggressiveness while the youngsters learn the intricacies of zone defense. None of the other five starters and reserves has more than three years in the NFL.

David Lee, with a fine seven-year average of 42.9 yards, is solidly entrenched as Baltimore's punter, while newcomer George Hunt is expected to be the placekicker.

Immanuel And Oakmont Win

Immanuel Baptist and Oakmont Baptist, winners in their respective divisions in the Church Softball League regular season, captured their playoff titles last night and will now meet for the overall championship.

Immanuel beat Black Jack, 8-2, to capture the National Division title, while Oakmont gained a 14-2 win over First Christian for the American title.

The two will hold a best-of-three series for the title tonight starting at 7:30 p.m. at Evans Park. Trophy presentations will be held for the leagues at 7:15 p.m.

In the American finals, Oakmont got all they needed in the first inning, scoring three runs. Charley Russell opened up with a double and moved to third on an out. He scored on Bobby Hall's sacrifice fly. Danny Singleton slammed a home run and Don Parrott doubled. He scored on Ned Cheely's triple to give Oakmont its 3-0 lead.

They went on to add one in the second, one in the third, two in the fourth, five in the sixth and two in the seventh.

Christian got both of its runs in the fourth inning.

Immanuel also got all it needed in the first inning of its game, scoring three runs. W. Dean singled and C. McNeil got a hit and moved up on an error on the play. G. Williams singled and came around to score the third run on a hit by L. Vander Heyden.

Immanuel picked up three more in the third, one in the fifth on a homer by J. Grimsley, and one in the seventh. Black Jack scored once on the first and once in the fifth.

To Join Grid Staff

Dwight J. Flanagan, former assistant football and head track coach at New Hanover High School in Wilmington, N.C., has announced that he will accept a coaching position with Samford University in Birmingham, Alabama.

Flanagan will work with head football coach, Wayne Grubb, and his staff as an offensive receiver coach.

Flanagan played his high school football under Jerry McGee at John A. Holmes High School (Edenton) and attended East Carolina University playing under Clarence Stasavich and Mike McGee 1966-70. In 1971, he served as backfield coach for the East Carolina freshman team. This past year at New Hanover High, he was the receiver and defensive backfield coach under Glenn Sesser.

Flanagan is expected to assume his duties at Samford University immediately.

Rampant Practice

Rose High School will open its 1973 football practice sessions Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. on the school practice field.

All tenth, eleventh and twelfth grade students who plan to go out for either the varsity or junior varisty are to be present. The first week's drills will be for conditioning purposes with no contact work.

The Rampants will open the season on Friday, August 31, against Washington High School.

Cuban native Orlando Pean, who lives in Miami, Fla., is with his sixth team in the major leagues. He pitched his way back to the Baltimore Orioles following a foot injury in 1970 with Pittsburgh.

Three American Players Picked

TOKYO (AP) —Three American players were picked for the 1973 Japanese professional baseball all-star games, scheduled July 21, 22 and 24.

John Sipin, former of the San Diego Padres, will represent the Taiyo Whales. George Altman, formerly with the Chicago Cubs, will be in the game from the Lotte Orions along with former Baltimore Oriole Don Buford, who is now with the Taiheyo Lions club.

Hamilton Wins

Hamilton swept a doubleheader from Belvoir Sunday in the Pitt-Martin Semi-Pro League

They won the first game 3-2, then came back to take a 1-0 shutout win in the second.

The 'Worry Clinic'

A Heavy Price For Ignorance

Della's sexual complex formerly caused millions of wives to nag their husbands, falsely accusing them of infidelity. For women have absorbed an entirely false notion about female sexual appeal! Boudoir cheesecake is based on your brain; not your uterus!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE X-579: Della D., aged 44, has her husband worried.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "Della used to be a vivacious wife and sweetheart.

"But during the past year, a great change has come over heer.

"Now she broods and cries a lot.

"And she has grown suspicious of me, often claiming that I don't love her.

"She even accuses me of having affairs with other women who work in my office.

"And she berates me half the night till I grow so angry that I tell her to shut up, saying she knows she in the ONLY woman whom I ever loved.

"This may mollify her at the moment, but the very next night she starts this nagging all over again.

"Is this typical of the female menopause, for she stopped her menstrual periods about a year ago?"

Menopause Mistakes

Millions of women now go through the menopause without any appreciable upset.

For in hundreds of newspaper areas this column has exploded the old myths about the menopause!

"Actually, the female uterus (womb) has little chemical effect on a woman's physiology.

Like the vermiform appendix, it can thus be surgically removed without reducing a woman's erotic hunger, just as an appendectomy doesn't kill a woman's enjoyment of dining room menus therafter!

Thus, the womb and the appendix are relatively "excess baggage" on a woman's anatomy.

But if she develops the age-old notion that the womb is the main barometer of her sexual appeal to her husband, then such a woman may go into a mental tailspin and sprout all these classical symptoms that Della demonstrates.

For when she reaches the age of about 45, or has had her womb removed surgically at an earlier date (hysterectomy), she suddenly wonders if her husband will be as affectionate and erotic as formerly.

Now, the first time in maybe 20 years of marriage, such a wife begins to focus her ideas around the subject of marital sex.

Obviously, her husband is less ardent at the age of 45 than he was at 25, so she immediately believes her lack of a functioning womb must be the cause.

It definitely is NOT!

Wives, get hep!

The female uterus doesn't contribute any thrills to your husband's enjoyment of marital relations!

So it is your fat tummy and long continued previous frigidity in the boudoir that have reduced his erotic fervor by the time he reached 45.

If you wives will quit concentrating on dining room roast beef and become adept at serving him boudoir cheesecake, he'll perk up, regardless of the state of your uterus!

And so will you!

For you can be shot full of estrogenic hormones and still be a twin for nagging, weepy Della, unless you wise up to the medical and pshychglogical facts about sex.

Send for my medical booklet "Sex Problems in Marraige," enclosing a long stamped, return evelope, plus 25 cents, for your husband can then prove that your menopausal complex is merely a false notion, developed above your eyes!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets)

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a particularly good time to produce results in which it is necessary to use much of the vitality that is released today. You can easily impress others with your ability to forge ahead. Rely more on your own intelligence.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have strength of mind and body now to succeed in your aims, so don't waste time. Concentrate on activities that are most important to you. Make any necessary changes in travel plans.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Decide whatever is most important to your well-being and put your ideas in operation without delay. Strive for more harmony with associates. Come to a better understanding with mate.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Talk with associates on how to improve present operations, but make sure you don't act as a "know-it-all." Evening should be for having more harmony at home. Show more kindness to loved one.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take the time to come to a far better rapport with fellow workers. Take the exercises that will improve your health. Mate would appreciate dining out tonight. Enjoy life more.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Entertain those who have done favors for you in the past. Think over an important matter carefully before making a decision. Plan more intelligent for the future. Do something nice for your mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can now improve conditions at home and should waste little time in doing so. Some entertaining in the evening can be very pleasurable with kin. Do nothing that would irk others.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) It may take some travel to obtain the information you require to improve your present activities. Become more cooperative with co-workers. Avoid one who likes to argue. Be more practical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) This is an excellent day for obtaining the data you need for a plan you have in mind. Do those things for good friends that will let them know you like them. They are in need of affection now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You have fine ideas and can put them in operation early so be sure to do so in a positive fashion. Don't be so demanding with others. Try not to criticize others at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't confide data that has been given you by higher-ups to others. Being happy with those who mean a great deal to you is possible now. Make sure that your diet is right.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You are socially minded now and should do something very constructive along such lines. Improve your relations with good friends. Gain the information you need to further your aims.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Fine day for getting on the good side of bigwigs and the public in general. Engage in civic affairs and show that you are an excellent citizen. Going on a tangent now could lead to trouble.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those charming young people who is positive and outgoing, but is not one to keep a secret very well. Direct the education along pleasing the public in some way, or in humanitarian endeavors. The field of investigation is fine here, as well as government work. Spiritual training is a must. Give some sports early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Given a reprieve at the opening gun, declarer used what knowledge he gained from the auction to land a four spade game that seemed doomed to defeat.

West's preemptive opening bid was passed round to South, who balanced with three spades. North realized that his partner might be bidding under pressure, but he felt that his fine trump support and general values merited a raise to game.

In an effort to obtain a quick ruff, West attacked with the ace of diamonds. For safety reasons, East decided to encourage with the nine—if South held the ten of clubs, a shift to that suit might prove fatal for the defense. West duly continued with a diamond to the ten and jack, declarer ruffing, and it seemed there was nothing declarer could do about his two potential club losers.

It was obvious that West could not hold the king of clubs. He had opened with a preemptive bid and had shown up with the ace of diamonds. As he probably held the king-queen of hearts, he could not hold another high card. Apparently, declarer would still have to lose two clubs and a heart. The only way to avert this would be to endplay East.

Trumps were drawn in two rounds and the ace of hearts was cashed to strip East of that suit. His preliminary work done, declarer led the queen of diamonds from dummy. East covered with the king and declarer discarded a club—a loser-on-loser play.

East found himself with a diamond trick he did not expect to make, but he was not especially pleased with this Greek gift—he was caught in an endplay. If he returned a club, it would run around to dummy's queen and declarer's only losers would be two diamonds and a heart; if he led a diamond, declarer would get a ruff-and-sluff.

South gave up a trick he didn't need to lose and got back two in return—a bargain at any price.

Newsprint Supply Will Be Tighter

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The supply of newsprint for the nation's newspapers is tight and may get tighter, which probably will result in more 15-cent newspapers and higher advertising rates in the future, according to industry spokesmen.

The country's 1,761 daily newspapers have been under warning for some time from the American Newspaper Publisher's Association that demand for newsprint is catching up with supply.

"The present situation is not yet acute," said Stanford Smith, president of the ANPA. "The situation is that newspapers cannot get large shipments as fast as they might like to have them with the exact specifications they would like to get," he added.

Smith said he had not heard of any cases where newspapers have missed editions because of a lack of newsprint, but added a number of newspapers have taken steps to avoid wasting newsprint.

But Smith and others feel the big problem may lie ahead. Newsprint mills are already producing at capacity or near capacity in both the United States and Canada while demand from the newspaper industry continues to surge.

"If the economy moves up in 1974 and 1975, there could be a very tight supply situation," said Howard Post, a Department of Commerce specialist for forest products. Newsprint is currently selling for $175 a ton. Post estimates the price would have to increase to between $225 to $250 per ton to provide adequate incentive for new investment.

Brought Into N.C. Battle

ASHEVILLE (AP)—A man who has led successful drives against liquor in other states is teaching North Carolina dry leaders at rallies this week how to defeat liquor-by-the-drink in the Nov. 6 referendum.

He is Dr. Ross J. McLennan of Oklahoma City, Okla., executive director of SANE, Sooner Alcohol Narcotics Education.

"The American public has been brainwashed by the liquor industry," he told laymen and churchmen from 16 western North Carolina counties at the first rally Monday night. It was in the West Asheville Baptist Church.

He disputed what he called "Chamber of Commerce claims" that liqour by the drink would mean an economic boom to municipalities. He said only the liquor industry and those who would sell mixed drinks stand to benefit.

McLennan was introduced as the man who led the forces which defeated liquor by the drink by 70,000 votes in Oklahoma last November.

Arab Guerrillas Quietly Hunting Outlaw Groups

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The established Arab guerrilla groups are quietly searching their ranks for "outlaws" they believe are hurting the Palestinian cause with indiscriminate acts of international terrorism.

Informants close to the leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), the umbrella body for most of the recognized guerrilla groups, said it is investigating three incidents that generated widespread criticism of Palestine freedom fighters and contributed nothing to the battle against Israel.

The latest such incident occurred Sunday when an Egyptian and a Palestinian killed three persons and wounded 55 at the Athens airport. The terrorists surrendered to police and later claimed to be operating on orders from Black September, a militant splinter group outside the PLO that was responsible for the attack on the Israeli Olympic team in Munich, Germany, last summer.

WAFA, the Palestinian news agency, said the PLO had sent one of its investigators to Athens. And a spokesman for Black September in Beirut said his organization had "nothing to do with the Athens operation."

Israel has announced it will hold guerrilla groups based in Lebanon responsible for terrorist attacks even if they deny involvement. The guerrillas are anxious to avoid retaliatory Israeli raids into Lebanon because their relations with the Lebanese government are badly strained.

The manhunt in guerrilla ranks is a radical departure from the leadership's old policy concerning unsanctioned or unauthorized operations. In the past, the PLO disavowed the terrorist extremes of Black September and other militant splinter groups but condoned the motives.

Now the PLO is condemning the Arab gunmen in the latest attacks and is accusing them of plotting against the Palestine liberation movement to the advantage of Israel.

The emergence of outlaw guerrillas could mean the Palestinian leadership is losing control of its rank and file. It is known that, while the PLO is stressing more operations inside Israel and the occupied territories, some of its militants believe international shock tactics are much more effective in attracting attention to the Palestinian cause.

At the same time, any third force in the guerrilla war risks attacks by both Israeli and Palestinian assassination squads.

Asteroid Moving At 60,000 MPH

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A scientist has reported an asteroid which she says travels faster than anything else in the sky.

Eleanor Helin, a scientist at the California Institute of Technology here, said Sunday that the asteroid, with a diameter of five miles, travels 60,000 miles an hour in relation to the earth.

Mrs. Helin said she discovered the unnamed asteroid last month while taking photographs at the Palomar Observatory. The object passed within seven million miles of the earth when discovered, she said.

The asteroid is in the constellation Scorpius.

Highway Hit By Flooding

LENOIR, N.C.(AP)—A cloudburst put U.S. 321 between Blowing Rock and Lenoir under as much as five feet of water early today, and forced evacuation of families from low areas.

The 18 miles of mountain road between the two western North Carolina cities was closed to traffic because of flood washouts and toppled trees and power lines.

Most of the evacuees were from near the Patterson community six miles north of Lenoir. They were taken to the high school in Lenoir. Other high schools in the Lenoir area were available if needed.

Rescue squads were called out to evacuate them by boat to higher ground, and then by vehicle.

The National Weather Service issued a flash-flood warning until 4 a.m. this morning for the counties of Caldwell (Lenoir), Watauga (Blowing Rock), Avery, Ashe, and Wilkes.

The weather service said heavy thunderstorms fell in the area, and residents and motorists shold be on the alert for flash flooding in low areas along streams and creeks.

AT CAMP DAVID

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — President Nixon spent Monday night at his mountain retreat here, with no immediate indication of when he would return to the White House.

PUBLIC NOTICES

PUBLIC NOTICE

Public notice is hereby given that the Planning and Zoning Commission of the City of Greenville will conduct a courtesy public hearing on a request by Mr. David A. Evans, Sr. for rezoning property located in the immediate area of the intersection of Fourteenth Street and Greenville Boulevard S.E., adjacent to the Etna Service Station. The petitioner has requested rezoning of three tracts as follows:

Tract No. 1: To be rezoned from "Neighborhood Commercial" to "Downtown Commercial Fringe";

Tract No. 2: To be rezoned from "R-9" to "Downtown Commercial Frange";

Tract No. 3: To be rezoned from "R-20" to "Downtown Commercial Fringe".

The courtesy public hearing will be conducted at 8:00 p.m., Wednesday, August 22, 1973, in the City Council Chambers of the Municipal Building, Fifth and Washington Streets.

All persons interested should be present at the aforesaid time and place when they will afforded an opportunity to be heard.

BY ORDER OF THE PLANNING AND ZONING COMMISSION.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets generally steady Monday.

Supplies short.

Demand good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites: 87.09, Medium whites: 84.39, Small whites: 65.52.

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina hog markets today mostly steady. Tops of 57.50-58.50 Kinston, New Bern, Benson and Lumberton; 57.50-58.00 Rocky Mount; 54.50-56.00 Wilson, High Falls; 58.00 Mount Olive.

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina FOB dock broilers: Prices steady. Supplies barely adequate. Demand good. Weights desirable. Hens: Market stronger. Supplies remain short. Demand good.

Too few sales reported to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were mixed today, amidst continuing concern over high interest rates and new uncertainties on the political scene.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up nearly three points early in the session, was off 1.13 at 911.65. Advancers edged decliners, 572 to 466, with 1,432 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading was brisk.

Arlen Realty led trading on the Big Board, down ¼ to 5. American Telephone preferred was unchanged at 49⅜ and Phelps Dodge rose ½ to 45¾ to complete the top three most-active issues.

Two active gainers Monday were down today: Curtiss-Wright, off 1 to 28⅞, and Bausch & Lomb, down 1 to 32½. Smith International, meanwhile, rose ⅞ to 21¼.

Sony Corp. jumped 1⅜ to 48¾. Kennecott Copper rose ⅛ to 30⅛. The Cost of Living Council exempted copper scrap from the freeze Monday.

Among the groups steels were down, while rails, oils, and utilities generally rose.

On the Amex, Champion Homes was most-active, up ¼ at 7, followed by Kaiser Industries, unchanged at 7, and American Israeli Paper, up ¾ at 10⅛. The 11 a.m. price change index read 23.37 and unchanged.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,500 common stocks was up .06 at 56.99 at 11 a.m.

Rule Vulgarity No Basis For Dismissal

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Use of a "four-letter vulgarity" in a college publication is not grounds for dismissal of the students responsible, a federal appeals court said today.

The 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed with the U. S. District Court for Eastern North Carolina at New Bern that efforts by East Carolina University officials to dismiss two students violated First Amendment guarantees of freedom of expression.

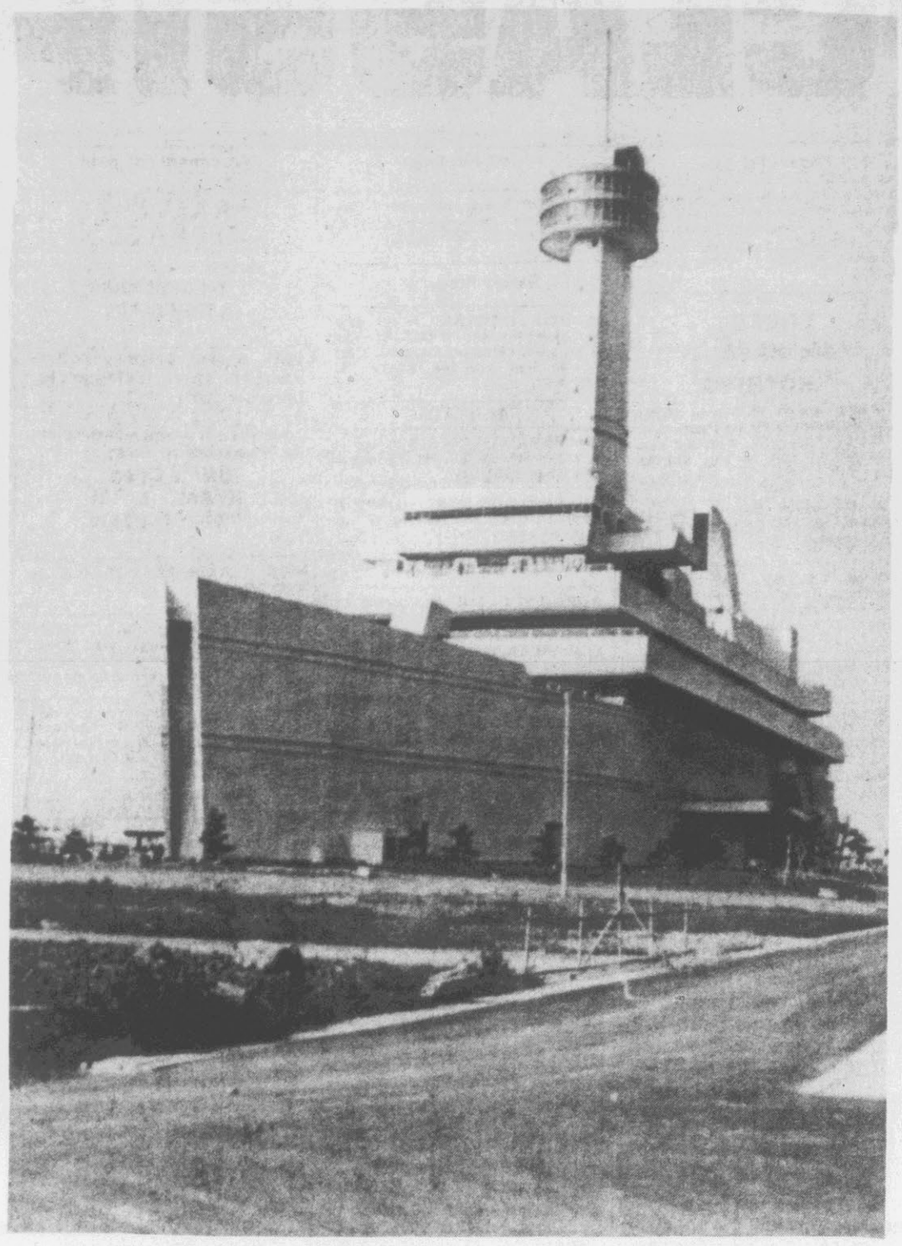

Seeking reversal of college disciplinary action were Robert R. Thonen, editor of the campus newspaper, and William Schell Jr., whose letter published in the paper included a vulgar reference to East Carolina University President Leo W. Jenkins.

In granting the two students a preliminary injunction, the district court had noted that no disturbances or disorders occurred on campus after publication of the letter, and said the sanctions placed on the two students violated their First Amendment rights.

The First Amendment, the circuit court said today in agreeing with the lower court, means that no government has the power to restrict expression because of its message, ideas, subject matter or content.

"The record reveals that university officials undertook to deny these students the right to continue their education," the appeals court said, "because one word in an otherwise unexceptionable letter on a matter of campus interest was deemed offensive to good taste."

It said previous decisions of the U. S. Supreme Court made it clear "that the mere dissemination of ideas — no matter how offensive to good taste — on a state university campus may not be shut off in the name alone of 'conventions of decency.' "

Wake Asks Leaf Probe

RALEIGH (AP)—A state and federal probe of tobacco prices, market opening dates and buying practices has been requested by the Wake County Commissioners.

The board chairman, Waverly Atkins, who is also a tobacco farmers, said he would go to Washington if necessary to ask officials to help Wake farmers.

The commissioners specifically asked the state and federal justice departments to "find out what is wrong" with tobacco marketing. The North Carolina congressional delegation was asked to inquire into marketing practices.

In addition, the industrywide Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee was asked to study tobacco market opeing dates.

A half dozen farmers and warehousemen appeared before the commissioners to urge relief from what they called worsening sales conditions for Wake tobacco farmers.

He will also answer questions about current peace activities in the state.

The meeting will be preceded by a picnic at Elm St. Park at 6 p.m.

The public is invited to attend.

Hotel Given To City Of Raleigh

RALEIGH (AP)—The 250-room Carolina Hotel in downtown Raleigh has been donated to the City of Raleigh for use as office space.

Mayor Tom Bradshaw told the City Council Monday Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McKinley Bryan of Greensboro were giving the hotel to the city provided the city assumes the hotel's debts, not to exceed $150,000.

Bradshaw said the hotel had recently been appraised at $625,000.

Councilman Robert Shoffner greeted the announcement by saying, "I'm so glad Santa Claus came early this year."

Bradshaw said he did not know how long it would be before the city takes over the hotel. He added it is possible some part of the building will continue to be used as a hotel.

Near $10 Million Spent On Nixon Residences

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has made an unprecedented accounting for some of the secret costs of the presidency while ordering a full disclosure on his purchase of homes in California and Florida.

Acting on the President's instructions, officials at the White House, Secret Service and General Services Administration revealed Monday that nearly $10 million had been spent by the government since 1969 for security, communications and other work at the First Family's out-of-town residences and offices.

At the same time, presidential spokesman Gerald L. Warren announced that Nixon had hired a private auditing firm to prepare "a complete, detailed accounting of the acquisition of the homes and property" he has purchased since taking office in San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla.

That report will be released within a month, Warren said as he told newsmen it would "include everything ... on which you have had questions."

The White House has been barraged with questions since May, when it disclosed that Nixon had borrowed $625,000 from industrialist friend Robert M. Abplanalp to purchase the San Clemente estate in July 1969—and that the loan was canceled in a complex transaction 18 months later when Nixon sold to Abplanalp 23 of the 29 acres in the ocean-side tract.

GSA administrator Arthur Sampson, in an apparent reference to Watergate, said his agency divulged its $3.7 million in spending for security and administrative support of the President and his family because of "the atmosphere that exists today government wide."

He said virtually all the work was requested by the Secret Service in line with its duty to protect the President and his family "both from malicious harm and from safety hazards."

Many of the items listed in a 70-page fine-print breakdown supplied by Sampson dealt with presidential security. But a few didn't—including $89 for "four decorative pillows" for the President's San Clemente den, $475 for a "swimming pool cleaner" for the Key Biscayne compound and $6.83 for "picture frame supplies."

Sampson said some such items will be reclaimed by the government when Nixon leaves office and no longer needs them.

Warren said the same is true for more than $600,000 of the nearly $6 million in communications installations and other work financed by the military at San Clemente and Key Biscayne.

Dr. Kosteck Is Joining ASU Music Faculty

BOONE—Dr. Gregory Kosteck has joined the Appalachian State University faculty as composer-in-residence in the music department.

Prior to coming to the University Kosteck was composer-in-residence at East Carolina University. He has taught public school music in Norwalk, Conn., and was chairman of the music department at Washington and Jefferson College.

Kosteck, 36, will teach courses in music composition at Appalachian.

He has published compositions for opera, orchestra, band and chamber music. He was selected this year by the Music Teachers National Association as the recipient of the Distinguished Composer Citation.

A graduate of the University of Maryland, he received his doctorate degree at the University of Michigan.

Vitamin C Effects In Deterring Colds Are Being Tested

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Children taking big doses of vitamin C daily experienced significantly fewer sick days with colds than schoolmates taking fake pills in a test study in Arizona, a federal researcher reports.

Dr. John E. Coulehan told a Stanford University symposium on vitamin C and the common cold on Monday that the 14-week study involved 641 Navajo children at the Toyei Indian boarding school.

He said boys and girls aged 10 to 16 years who received vitamin C were given two-gram doses daily. Children from 6 to 10 who received the vitamin were given one-gram pills.

Significantly more children taking vitamin C stayed well throughout the test period, the 14 weeks ending last May, Coulehan said.

In the lower grades, the vitamin C group recorded 28 per cent fewer sick days than children who were given inert placebo pills; the older group, 34 per cent, he said.

Coulehan said he and his colleagues at Fort Defiance Indian Hospital in Fort Defiance, Ariz., did not detect any greater beneficial effect from the two-gram daily dose over one gram.

The test results are "statistically significant, but their actual clinical meaning remains to be determined," he said.

"Further clinical trials must be performed both to confirm and expand these findings as well as to identify more specifically the possible effects of vitamin C," Coulehan said.

Richard H. Colby, mathematics professor at Stockton College in Pomona, N.J., reported similar prliminary findings in a study with 107 students and faculty members in the last school year.

He said of 15 colds reported, five were suffered by test subjects taking vitamin C and 10 by those receiving placebos.

Hadden Home From Travel-Study Tour

Rev. Willaim J. Hadden, Episcopal chaplain at East Carolina University, has returned from Europe, where he attended the International Conference of Campus Ministers in Aarhus, Denmark and visited chaplaincy centers in England and Scotland.

During his tour of Great Britain, Hadden visited campuses in London, Oxford, Coventry, Warwick, Keele, Edinburgh, St. Andrews, Stirling and Glasgow.

He also discussed a program of British-American exchange of chaplains with Rev. John Davies, Director of Anglican Chaplains.

In a paper to be circulated among U. S. campus ministers, Hadden will discuss in detail his experiences with the campus ministry in Great Britain, which he found to be one of the most dynamic forces in the English church.

His travel was sponsored by grants from the Board for Theological Education of the Episcopal Churches and the Diocese of East Carolina.

Claim Crippling Trade In Heroin

WILMINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Wilmington police said the local heroin trade had been crippled by pre-dawn raids Monday that resulted in 15 drug arrests.

Those arrested included Walter L. Simmons who was charged with four counts of possession and sale of heroin and with conducting a continuing criminal enterprise. Conviction on that charge carries a sentence of 10 years to life. Simmons was placed under $108,000 bond.
