Wave Of Terror Bombing Continues In England

LONDON (UPI) — A bombing wave blamed on the Irish Republican Army extended into the upper echelons of British society Saturday. A bomb injured three persons at the Bank of England, another was found in a fashionable boutique and a bomb scare halted a cricket match, forcing 28,000 persons to evacuate the grounds.

Scotland Yard said the bombs were part of an IRA campaign to export the violence of Northern Ireland to England. Saturday was the seventh day of bombings in England.

The militant Provisional wing of the IRA said unofficially in Dublin that it was not responsible for the bombings, but Scotland Yard indicated the London branch of the IRA or a splinter anarchist group might be behind the bombings.

Heath personally instructed that all government departments be reminded to take all possible precautions and be reminded of guidelines on recognizing and handling of letter bombs and other suspicious packages.

Police put heavy security precautions into effect on flights from London to Belfast. Passengers were frisked and all suitcases and handbags were searched.

At the Bank of England, a bomb went off in the mail room. Derek Woodward, 44, a member of the bank staff, lost a hand in the explosion, St. Bartholomew's hospital said. Police said the three injured men were trying to surround the parcel containing the bomb with sandbags when the bomb went off.

In Belfast, Northern Ireland, an explosion destroyed a suspected IRA bomb factory Saturday, killing three persons, police said. The explosion demolished a garage behind a vacant house. Police said they found parts of three bodies and said they suspected the garage was used as a bomb factory by guerrillas.

A caller with an Irish accent warned the British Press Association that a bomb was planted in a boutique on Oxford Street, one of the busiest shopping thoroughfares in London. The bomb, wrapped in a white plastic bag, failed to exploded because of a faulty detonator which went off with a "fizzle," according to a witness.

At the Lord's Cricket Ground —the mecca of world cricket players—police cleared the 28,000 capacity crowd. The players sat in the center of the field surrounded by police for an hour until the grounds were searched and spectators readmitted. No bomb was found.

"I am sorry to have to tell you that we have received a bomb warning," the secretary of the Marylebone Cricket Club said over a loudspeaker.

Hijacked Yemeni Plane Diverted To Kuwait

KUWAIT (UPI) — A Yemeni armed with a pistol and a hand grenade hijacked a North Yemeni Airlines DC6 to Kuwait Saturday and surrendered to Kuwait authorities after unsucessfully negotiating a number of unspecified demands.

The 10 passengers and six crewmen aboard the plane were released unharmed. An Interior Ministry statement said the passengers and crew were Yemenis and Italians.

The hijacked plane circled the airport for nearly two hours with smoke trailing from one of its propeller driven engines before officials gave it permission to land at 6:55 p.m. (11:55 a.m. EDT).

The hijacker, identified as Nasser Ahmed Abu Baker, a Yemeni about 50 to 60 years old, negotiated for 90 minutes with Yemeni officials, including Foreign Minister Jaber Al-Ahmad As-Sabah, before he was persuaded to surrender, officnals said. They did not reveal his demands.

He was arrested and held for questioning, they said.

Kuwaiti authorities said they allowed the plane to land because "one of its engines was out of action, the fuel was running short and the hijacker threatening it with destruction," a statement by the Kuwaiti Interior Ministry said.

"After it safely landed, a dialogue took place between the hijacker and the foreign minister who was at the airport control tower. Following this dialogue, the hijacker was persuaded to surrender his weapons and himself," the statement said.

"He was taken into custody by security authorities for questioning and the passengers and crew were safely released."

The Yemen Airways plane was on a flight from the Arab Republic of Yemen to Asmara, Ethiopia, when the hijacker took control over Ethiopia's Red Sea coast. The gunman forced the pilot to land at Djibouti in the French territory of Afars and Issas for refueling and then ordered him to fly back across the Red Sea and across the Arabian desert to Kuwait on the northeast corner of the Arabian peninsula.

SVN Troops Bombard VC

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese artillerymen Saturday fired 1,000 rounds against Communist gun emplacements that have been harassing outposts near the ancient imperial capital of Hue, military sources said.

It was the biggest government barrage in the area since the Vietnamese cease-fire officially began Jan. 28, military sources said.

The sources said the bombardment was ordered after the Saigon 1st Infantry Division lost contact with two outposts 12 miles west of Hue.

The Communist guns have harassed the defenders of the city for the past 10 days.

A government officer said it was "still too early to know the enemy's intentions" in the shelling of Hue. "Whether this is simply to build up their area for future development or to build up their area as a base for further attacks on us, we cannot know for sure," he said.

Lt. Col. Do Viet, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command in Saigon, reported two government soldiers were wounded Friday in a Communist mortar and artillery attack against two government positions at Artillery Base T-Bone, five miles west of Hue.

Swedish King Improved

Monkey Injures Deputy

Pitt County Deputy Sheriff E.H. Latham was injured in the line of duty Friday while attempting to apprehend a Capuchin monkey. The deputy's injury was a bit on the hand.

Fortunately Deputy Sheriff Latham's injury proved to be a minor one and fortunately the monkey had had its shots.

The Sheriffs Department was responding to a call from Mrs. Helen Dail who had requested the Sheriff's Department remove a monkey from her premises.

After Depty Sheriff Latham's unsuccessful attempt, a net and cage were brought to the scene and successfully used in capturing the three year old monkey, which is approximately 18 inches in length and completely tame when not being chased around a garage.

Both the monkey and Depty Sheriff are in good condition.

U.S. Helicopters Rescue Pakistanis

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — A fleet of U.S. helicopters rescued hundreds of flood victims from the Indus River whose turbulent waters threatened to inundate hundreds of square miles of fertile and heavily populated land in Pakistan's Sind province Saturday.

The rain-swollen river was reported ripping away sandbags protecting other threatened lands in an area 125 miles northeast of Karachi.

The first 900 flood refugees from the flooded area arrived in Karachi Friday night and more were expected to pour into the town in next 24 hours.

Train, telephone, telegraph and telex services between the main cities of Lahore, Rawalpindi and Karachi were suspended, and airlines added an extra flight from Karachi to Rawalpindi Saturday—the only link between the two cities.

$513 Million UN Budget

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim has asked for a $513.4 million U.N. budget for the next two years, a 19 per cent jump from $433.8 million appropriated in 1972 and 1973.

The proposed budget includes $11.8 million to cover inflation and $8.7 million for dollar devaluation, Waldheim said.

Waldheim asked the General Assembly for the biggest spending increases in the areas of disaster relief, the environment, narcotics control, industrial development and the Economic Commission for Europe.

Cambodian Insurgents Launch Big Attack

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (UPI) — Cambodian insurgents Saturday launched their biggest attacks since the end of American bombing, firing rockets into the Phnom Penh airport, cutting a vital rice supply route and increasing pressure against a besieged provincial capital.

The most serious action was at the provincial capital of Kompong Cham, 50 miles north of Phnom Penh, where Communists stepped up pressure against the town's besieged defenders. Kompong Cham is surrounded by Communist troops and some sources said the city is the next major target of Communist rebels.

Saturday's attacks were the first signs of a Communist offensive since the beginning of August, when the rebels began withdrawing from positions close to the capital.

The airport has been a frequent target, but Saturday's shelling was the first since the United States ended its bombing support on Aug. 15.

Twelve miles north of the capital at Muk Kampoul, field reporters said five government troops were killed and eight wounded in an all-night battle.

Field reporters said insurgent troops seized a six-mile stretch of Highway 5 36 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. Highway 5 is the major "rice road" leading from Phnom Penh to Battambang, the center of the country's rice-growing provinces.

Helms Opposes Preserving Proposed Wildnerness Areas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Courtesy veto powers for senators in their states may strip areas, including some in North Carolina, from the proposed wilderness bill.

The bill would preserve 233,274 acres in the eastern states as wilderness areas, protected from mining, grazing, timber-cutting and commercial development.

Under legislation being considered by the Senate Interior Committee, 15,000 acres in the Joyce Kilmer Memorial Forest and Slickrock area of North Carolina would be given instant wilderness designation.

Another 34,100 acres in North Carolina would be studied for possible such designation.

However, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., has indicated he will oppose the legislation, contending that to preserve timber would cause a severe loss of jobs, especially in Graham County.

"After talking to at least a dozen people down there, there's no question in my mind that it would run into more unemployment for Graham County, since lumber is the only real industry," Helms said.

The senator said he is opposed to "anything that would destroy the stability of any county in North Carolina ... and besides, it would be different if there was rape said the bill would simply "add to government meddling" in state affairs. "If they leave North Carolina out of it, fine. We don't want it."

Environmentalists take a different view. "Helms' arguments sound like they come straight from the timber companies," said Sierra Club spokesman Ed Easton of Charlotte.

"Ninety-five per cent of this nation's land is already developed, and if we don't save that tiny five per cent, it's like selling the jewels off the crown."

Called the Omnibus Eastern Wilderness Bill, the measure was sponsored by Sen. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and co-sponsored by 32 others.

Most observers predict little opposition to the bill either in committee or on the Senate floor, where it is expected to land later this session.

However, due to the courtesy veto, it may wind up a weak piece of legislation at best.

Most predictions are that North Carolina's senior senator, Sam Ervin, will not get involved in a heated public battle with Helms over the North Carolina portions of the bill.

Virginia Sen. William Scott has already vetoed three proposed wilderness areas in his state, and an Interior Committee aide says "since Sen. (Harry) Byrd doesn't want to get in a big dispute over it, they'll all probably be dropped."

China Tobacco Sale

GREENVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A North Carolina firm today announced a sale of tobacco valued at around $900,000 to the People's Republic of China.

The announcement came from W.G. Glenn, president of Carolina Leaf Tobacco Co., Inc., and Edwin W. Skinner, the company's senior vice president for overseas operations.

They said the 800,000 pounds of Virginia flue-cured leaf will be shipped from an undisclosed North Carolina port to Shanghai in mid September.

Agreement on the sale was reached last November during the autumn trade fair at Canton, the announcement.

Pheasants Destroyed

By STEWART POWELL

BRENTWOOD, N.H. (UPI) — Some 12,000 game farm pheasants exposed to eastern equine encephalitis were gassed to death Saturday and buried in a 150-foot long, six-foot deep trench on the Fish and Game Department farm.

The birds were killed on orders of the state's acting Health Director Dr. Hugh Wilkerson.

Meanwhile an unidentified sailor continued to recover at Portsmouth Naval Hospital from viral encephalitis. A hospital spokesman said the sailor was "resting comfortably" and was still in satisfactory condition.

The spokesman said hospital laboratory tests have not tied the sailor's illness to the outbreak of eastern equine encephalitis that killed 32 horses in New Hampshire over the past 11 days.

Agriculture Commissioner Howard Townsend said Saturday the outbreak was believed curtailed.

"I think as far as horses are concerned, the outbreak is reasonably under control," Townsend said. The last reported case of a horse contracting the usually fatal equine disease was Thursday morning. Spraying of about 7,000 acres of Central Rockingham County was carried out during the week.

Objections to the aerial spraying of malathion by a member of the pesticides control board prompted Gov. Meldrim Thomson to demand the resignation of Dr. Peter Allen. Allen, an employe of the state Department of Resources and Economic Development, also serves as the public ecology representative on the board.

Thomson Friday ordered him to step down for an "intrusion into the emergency effort" or else face formal charges at the next session of the governor and executive council.

Human Resources Office Possible Location Here

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor

David T. Flaherty, secretary of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, will visit Greenville Monday to discuss possibilities for locating a Human Resources regional office here.

Flaherty will meet with Chamber of Commerce officials and other leaders at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

The regional office will be one of four for the state and it will employ approximately 100 people. The department says it needs 18,000 square feet of office space and 75 parking spaces for the regional operation.

Chamber Manager Harold Creech said that eight proposals for furnishing the needed space will be presented to the department officials Monday. He said interest in obtaining the facility is high among local leaders and a committee is being formed to present information and show the possible sites.

"If the facility locates here it will mean a great deal to the community, not only because of the 100 employees, but because most of the 17 agencies in the Department of Human Resources will have representatives in the office," Creech said.

"It is well known and generally admitted throughout North Carolina that Greenville has far more of the facilities and specialties needed to support such a facility than does any city in Eastern North Carolina. Therefire we feel that Greenville is the best suited location for this regional office."

Monday afternoon Secretary Flaherty will visit Washington, N.C. to discuss with Washington leaders the possibility of locating the office there.

The health agencies involved include: Division of Mental Health Services, Division of Social Services, Health Services, N.C. Specialty Hospital, Medical Facilities Service and Licenser, Vocational Rehabilitation, Chief Medical Examiner, Alcoholic Rehabilitation, Confederate Woman's Home, N.C. Board of Ananomy, Advocacy Council on Children and Youth, Council on Developmental Disabilities, School for Deaf, Division of Services for Blind, Cerebral Palsy, Governors Committee on Employment of Handicapped, N.C. Orthopedic Hospital.

Officials expected to be traveling with Secretary Flaherty are Ben Aiken, assistant secretary; I.O. Wilkerson, Jr., chief of facilities construction and licensure department and Conrad Taylor, architect.

No Stand Taken By Demo Party

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's Democratic party has taken no official stand on the proposed creation of a four-year medical school at East Carolina University, but a spokesman said the party does realize "there is an intense interest in the med school" controversy.

Arthur Johnsey, the party's executive director, said some members of the Democratic Policy Committee met earlier this year to discuss North Carolina's health needs. He said most of those present were representatives of the various congressional districts, who join Democratic legislators and party chairman James Sugg of New Bern in making up the committee.

"They decided that health needs should be given the party's No. 1 priority and that, in meeting those health needs, another medical school would be needed," Johnsey said.

He said the members participating in the discussion did not cite ECU specifically as the location for such a school.

VISTA Volunteers To Begin Work Soon

By JERRY RAYNOR
Sunday Editor

Six who have volunteered a year of their time away from homes and jobs to help others are getting settled in Greenville. From now through August 1974 five young men and one young woman will serve Greenville and Pitt County as VISTA volunteers.

They arrived in Greenville on August 13, and have been getting to know the community, along with making contacts with agencies and institutions that will be providing them support.

Theirs is also a two-way effort. Every success they achieve will be a contribution to the aims of the local agencies. Both are seeking a common goal, to help people help themselves.

Geographically the six are pretty well representative of America. Two hail from California—Michael (Mike) Carson of Newark and James (Jim) Speer of San Marino. In college Mike majored in Speech and Political Science; Jim's field is Economics.

Sociology major Linda Schnackenberg is from Port Huron, Michigan; and a second Economics major in the group, Robert (Bob) Edwards, comes from Madison, New Jersey.

The Northwest is represented by Patrick (Pat) Hainley, whose home is Portland, Oregon. His field is Business and Technology. The one southerner among the six, Richard (Rick) Cagan is a native of Florence, South Carolina. A Psychology major, Rick said "I'm the interpreter for southern dialects."

All are single, and for each this is their first venture into the volunteer VISTA project. Before coming to work in Greenville, they received groundwork training in VISTA's regional headquarters in Atlanta.

Following a few more days of local orientation and meeting with people from local agencies and institutions, the six will get down to the heart of their task, working with people. This phase will begin immediately after Labor Day.

Charles Lane, coordinator for Greenville VISTA and the only full-salaried worker in the project, remarked that "in VISTA projects across the country, the percentage of VISTA volunteers who come to serve in the Southeastern States and remain is far greater than in any other part of the country."

Pitt Technical Institute and East Carolina University are two local institutions VISTA volunteers will be working with closely in their work. Community agencies cooperating with VISTA include among several others Pitt County's Health Department and Social Services.

"Manpower and economic development, to include consumer awareness is to be a major part of our work," Lane said. "The volunteers will be working in two groups, with equal stress in both areas."

Lane said plans are to report to the public periodically as time goes by in an effort to let people know what is being accomplished and what needs to be done.

"And we are also in need of additional help, capable volunteers from the community and the university to work along with the people we now have," Lane said.

Persons with background training in economics, business, planning and other special fields who might be able to give time to VISTA are invited to visit VISTA headquarters at Wesley Foundation, 503 East Fifth Street.

"We feel this project has much to offer Pitt County and Greenville," Lane said. "If it's a success, there's a good possibility the project will be continued for an additional year or two."

Bob Leyda Named Admin. Assistant

Bill Carstarphen, Greenville city manager, announced that Bob Leyda has joined his staff as administrative assistant, a position authorized in the 1973-74 budget.

The city manager said that Leyda will be involved in a variety of administrative functions at city hall but will concentrate on three basic areas; personnel management and administration administrative research and budget development and control.

Discussing Leyda's new duties, Carstarphen explained that in the area of personnel management, "we need to do a better job in terms of employee communications and relations and also supervisory training."

Regarding administrative research, he explained that, for example members of the city council often "put forth a question or make a suggestion for something new and we feel that most of these cases are worthwhile and deserve some research."

He continued, "We are in the process now of moving from a once-a-year scramble to full time consideration of the budget." Carstarphen asserted that one of Leyda's key duties will be in the area of budget work.

Leyda, a native of Arlington, Va., graduated from North Carolina Wesleyan College at Rocky Mount in 1971 and taught for a year in the Gates County school system. Following the year of teaching, he began work on his master's degree in public administration and actually, he explained, the program at UNC requires at least a one-year internship in the field of public administration so his first year here will serve that purpose.

The new assistant, who worked at the Institute of Government at UNC during his year of graduate studies, said that he plans to "stay in public administration on some level. This is what I've been interested in."

In addition to his work at the Institute of Government, he also served as a summer intern on the administrative staff for the city of Charlotte.

Commenting on his new job, Leyda said that he is "looking forward to serving the people of Greenville. I came here not out of accident or desperation but because I like Eastern North Carolina. I was in Rocky Mount for four years and I thorougly enjoyed living in this area of the state.

Leyda, whose line of responsibility will be directly to the city manager, will provide administrative support to the city manager's office as well as other city agencies, it was pointed out. "My job is to serve the organization," he added.

Carstarphen said that Leyda's position of administrative assistant carries a salary range of $9,198-$11,739 (Grade 17) as authorized in the new city budget.

Suit Filed

GREENSOBORO (AP) — Seven blacks, employes or former employes of Fieldcrest Mills at Eden, have filed suit charging the textile company with racial discrimination.

The suit brought Friday in U.S. District Court also names the Fieldcrest local of the Textile Workers Union of America as a defendant. It alleges the union has failed to protect the plaintiffs adequately from the discrimination of which they complain.

Back-To-School Time For 5,700 Greenville Boys And Girls

By JERRY RAYNOR
Sunday Editor

School days 1973-74 begin Tuesday morning when about 5,700 Greenville youngsters give up their summer time activities to report to city schools for a part day of orientation.

Elementary students will return home at 10:30 a.m., and junior and senior students will get out Tuesday at noon.

On Wednesday, the first full day of a 180 day school year gets underway for a school year in which there are of significant changes. This is the year new policies go into full effect for probationary and career teacher tenure, with an expanded teacher employment schedule of 10 calender months.

The kindergarten program in Greenville is being expanded, with three new classes to be operated with state funds. Two of these are at Wahl-Coates, with the third one located at Elmhurst. The new classes add 69 kindergarten spaces to the federally funded kindergarten program at Agnes Fullilove.

Despite heavy cutbacks from requested funds in both current expense and capital outlay budgets, receipt of larger-then-anticipated federal funds in various categories will make it possible to carry out the most significant portions of planned school programs. At one point earlier it was feared a loss of personnel might be necessary.

Superintendent Glenn Cox said one of the most significant developments state wide is a new state law limiting classroom sizes. "Under this new law," Cox said, "primary classes, that is, grades one through three, is limited to a legal maximum of 26 students. For the upper elementary classes, grades four through six, the maximum if 33, and the limit for secondary classes is 35 students."

Cox said many veterar teachers are back in place, with "45 new teachers coming into the city schools." Total school staff this year numbers 31(people.

From Rose High School, principal Robert Alligood reports that to date 1,444 students are registered from last year, with 25 new students enrolled, for an expected student body of 1,469.

"This is about 25 or 30 more than we had last year," Alligood said.

In curriculum, Alligood said, "there is a marked growth in the number of students signing up for art, choral music, masonry and mathematics. This might seem to be an unlikely group for growth," he added, "but it indicates students' choices."

Alligood said that three class assemblies will be held Tuesday. "We'll use this opportunity to talk specifically to students about regulations to make sure they are well informed of what is expected of them. From there on it is their obligation to follow school regulations."

Tentative plans, the principal said, "are being discussed and given serious consideration about again staging a major play or musical. At this point I feel we probably will do this. The only thing I can see that would keep us from doing it is money."

"There's 1,530 students enrolled," Paul Rasberry, Aycock's principal said. "At the end of the past school year we had 1,510 on our books, which means we have a small increase this year."

Rasberry said the pre-vocational course conducted at Third Street Elementary School would be continued this year. A couple of new developments are in the offing for junior high students. "One is a semester in U.S. History for ninth grade students," Rasberry said. "This is a substitute for Civics."

"We're also offering an introduction class to algebra," Rasberry said. "This will meet the need of some of our students who are now at a level between general math and algebra."

Like other school personnel, Rasberry expressed an opinion that "optimism is high, and there's a lot of enthusiasm. Everything is in readiness for a good school year ahead."

Outer Banks Marina Said OK By Courts

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A federal appeals court here Friday upheld a lower court decision allowing the construction of a marina and fishing pier on North Carolina's outer banks.

The 4th U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals agreed 2-1 with the Army Corps of Engineers that a proposed project on Bogue Creek in Carteret County isn't "a major federal action significantly affecting the quality of human environment."

Environmentalists, led by the Conservation Council of North Carolina, had asked the court to grant an injunction against the project, reversing an earlier denial by U. S. District Court Judge J. D. Larkins Jr.

The environmentalists had charged that the Army acted illegally in issuing a permit for the project without first preparing an environmental impact statement.

The appeals court said an invitation for comments on the project brought no major objections from any local, state or federal agency charged with having environmental "expertise."

An environmental impact statement was required on any project "the environmental impact of which is likely to be highly controversial," those opposing the project had said.

But the appeals court rejected "the suggestion that 'controversial' must necessarily be equated with opposition."

"Controversial," the court said, should "properly refer to cases where a substantial dispute exists as to the size, nature or effect of the major federal action, rather than to the existence of opposition to a use.

"Otherwise, to require an impact statement whenever a threshold determination dispensing with one is likely to face a court challenge

A Wedding Party That Really Jumped

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP) — Darius R. Lewellyn will be up in the clouds before his marriage today.

He and all the male members of his wedding party, plus the minister, will parachute from 1,200 feet.

All are members of a Green Beret Army Reserve Unit, of which the minister is chaplain. They decided the 30-year-old 1st Lt. Lewellyn's wedding would be a good time to make one of the parachute jumps the unit is required to complete every three months.

The Charlotte Air National Guard unit will fly the parachutists about 40 miles to near the church 10 miles east of Salisbury. They will drop from a C130 transport, jump shortly after noon, and then change into dress uniforms, at the Back Creek Presbyterian Church near Mount Ulla, where the wedding will be held.

The bride, Patricia Proffitt, 21, who like Lewellyn is from Boone, N.C. plans to watch the jump. "I'm not nervous about Darius jumping. He's done it for years," she said.

After the jump, the Reserve unit will have a party in Charlotte for the Lewellyns. The unit is based in Winston-Salem.

The Lewellyn's plan to live in Myrtle Beach, S.C. He is in the construction business, and is a graduate of High Point College.

Exciting Future Taking Shape

Approval of an affiliation agreement between Pitt Memorial Hospital and the ECU School of Medicine is another important step in development of the new medical school.

Action was taken last week by the hospital board of trustees to ratify the agreement. Administrator Jack Richardson said the agreement is generally a statement of desire to work together for the school and the hospital. It is expected that in the future medical students will be provided clinical experience through the agreement.

The agreement should be beneficial to both the hospital and the medical school as the school is expanded and developed. It is anticipated that area hospitals will provide the clinical facilities for a four-year medical school, and certainly Pitt Memorial will be an important part of this arrangement.

Bids should be taken soon for construction of a new hospital building on a tract of land west of Greenville on the Stantonsburg Road. These new and modern facilities will be essential to development of the school of medicine it its expansion is approved as is hoped next year. In turn, the medical school can provide manpower and expertise for the people of the area through Pitt Memorial Hospital.

It can all mean an exciting future for medical care and medical training in our area.

Howls Coming In Urban Areas

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — While there is likely to be some strong reaction to restriction on developments in rural areas under proposed state land use policies, it is in fringe areas of urban centers that the loudest howls will be heard.

Across the state, land would be placed in four basic categories: urban, rural productive, protected or conservation, and developing urban. Each county would be required to draw up a local land use plan so designating all property in the county.

But it is in urban areas where land values skyrocket and developers concentrate. The new policies would strictly limit potential development.

A community would be required to look around and carefully consider surrounding property and clearly identify those areas to be tabbed developing urban, using two criteria: areas with best potential for growth; and areas in which the community can best provide essential services.

Limitations Set

Complex factors would dictate the decision, varying in every community and including terrain (mountains, rivers, lakes might block in one direction), transportation, ownership of land, ability to provide services, etc. Another example is that sewer lines must follow the natural flow of water.

Further, a community would be expected to limit its planning based on reasonable population growth expectations.

"Thus, a town would say what growth it can logically pay for and what areas it can best grow into, and that would form the local land use plan, according to Ronald F. Scott, the state's chief planning officer.

As he described the process in which a county would draw up its land use plan, he sketched on a notepad, drawing a county with one large city and another smaller urban area. There were several areas of land to be designated protected land. There was a large area of rural-productive land. And around the city limits of the two urban areas, he cross-hatched in red two or three growth areas to be designated as developing urban property.

Plans Drawn

Those counties which have personnel to draw up such a plan would do it themselves.

Or, state officials operating out of the various regional planning centers would draw them and present the plans to local governments for public hearing and enactment into law.

The local land use plan would comply with state policy specifications, Scott explained, and the state law would say to local governments "You will NOT move that land into this category until you are prepared to provide the services. Local government will have a lever in state law to tell local developers what they can and cannot do with the land."

Since most communities do not have expertise to draw up such land use plans, the staffs of the state's 17 Multi-County Planning Regions will do this for them, and present them for public hearings and adoption.

What if the counties don't make the move?

"If a county doesn't do this in a given period of time, then a state agency will have to come along and do it for them," Scott said.

"But, the state can't determine properly where to locate the urban developing areas. . .and will likely wind up drawing a plan with no developing urban land. Now, a city or town can't stand for that, and what the state would do would be acceptable locally, so the local governments will have to get about the business of doing it themselves and doing it properly," Scott said.

"By and large, we can say that it is appropriate for the state to set up a taxing system whcih recognizes these differences in the four basic categories of land," he said.

Tax Rates

Basically, it would look like this:

A rate sufficient to support the required level of urban services would be applied in areas classified as urban;

In rural productive areas, the rates sould be reduced, and the land would be taxed according to its use;

In protected, holding or conservation areas, even lower rates would prevail;

Developing urban areas call for a "heavy investment in public services and should call for a higher tax rate to install these services and shape the area up to the level of urban services," Scott said.

The law would create special tax districts in which higher rates could be levied, and Scott feels it is "equitable and logical to do this."

United Fund Provides A One-Time Donation

The budget will provide, not all that the participating agencies requested, but hopefully enough to meet their needs. Certainly the figure is a realistic one insofar as being met by the citizens and businesses of Pitt County, even though—as always—it is a record one.

Soon the drive will get underway to raise the money for meeting this budget. Everyone should give generously and promptly so that this budget can be met.

The United Fund provides for the needs of a large number of local organizations. Contributing to United Fund is an excellent way to provide for the services of these organizations with a one-time contribution.

New Coalition Casts Shadow

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—While the nation and the White House were diverted by Watergate just before the August congressional recess, a new anti-defense spending coalition emerged in the House that may cast a long shadow across the nation's national security policy.

The official line at the White House and Pentagon is to minimize the vote of 242 to 163 on July 31 cutting nearly $1 billion in weapons research from the military authorization bill. But worried supporters of the defense program privately fear the new coalition between fiscal conservatives and dovish liberals may have established a new voting pattern in the House.

This pattern seems the first congressional trend clearly attributable to the numbing effect of Watergate on President Nixon. Whereas Congress may well have halted bombing in Indochina without Watergate's impact, administration officials privately concede the stunning defeat on the arms bill resulted from preoccupation with the scandal.

Indeed, the administration and its defense contractor allies never even saw the blow coming. Pentagon lobbyists had been concentrating on sucessfully defeating amendments to cut U.S. troop commitments in Europe and halt new weapons systems such as the Trident submarine.

To the administration's surprise, an amendment to cut $950 million in research funds was introduced by Rep. Les Aspin of Wisconsin, a former Pentagon economist who has become one of the defense program's most dogged critics during less than three years in Congress. Mr. Nixon did not have time to voice his opposition before Aspin's amendment passed overwhelmingly.

The fact that a very junior liberal Democrat could topple the once olympian House Armed Services Committee reveals how suddenly power has been dispersed in the House.

But more ominous for the long run than the House power breakdown is the fact that fiscal conservatives joined Aspin's doves in the anti-defense coalition. Eager to cut down federal spending generally, these conservatives turned on vital weapons research in the absence of vigorous leadership from a preoccupied President.

With no public campaign from the White House warning of the dangers, congressional votes against defense spending attract support from even conservative voters weary of the military burden. That is clearly the opinion of the highly regarded Rep. John Erlenborn, representing staunchly Republican DuPage County in Illinois. Erlenborn's weekly report back to his district proudly pointed out his vote for the Aspin amendment, adding: "I look upon this as a responsible way for Congress to hold down federal spending."

Many Republicans considerably more conservative than Erlenborn backed the Aspin amendment, such as: John Ashbrook of Ohio, right-wing challenger against Mr. Nixon in the 1972 presidential primaries; John Rousselot of California, former John Birch Society functionary; Ed Hutchinson of Michigan; M. G. (Gene) Snyder of Kentucky; Thad Cochran, freshman from Mississippi typical of the new breed of Deep South GOP conservatives.

In line with Nixon administration doctrine minimizing Watergate damage, high officials point out that the authorization bill is less important than the actual money bill yet to be considered. Nevertheless, close students of the House believe that once a voting pattern emerges even on a relatively unimportant vote, it may well return again and again.

Such a pattern would eliminate the House as an antidote to the more dovish Senate. Furthermore, weapons research is particularly vulnerable in view of the all-volunteer Army's skyrocketing payroll which steadily increases defense housekeeping costs.

GARDENS AMID SQUALOR

Some time ago I sat with a group of friends and heard a man read a very beautiful paper on European gardens. Was it written by a man who had a large and imposing garden of his own, who lived his life among beautiful things? Not at all. It was written by a minister who for almost fifty years had lived in one of the most blighted areas of a great city in order the better to serve the poor, lost, and hopeless people who lived there. There was not a blade of grass within blocks of his house, and not a tree in that section of the city.

Under these circumstances how could this minister write so eloquently about gardens? He could do so because there was another part of him which lived far away from the squalor of the city—in beautiful gardens behind high walls. In the midst of the city streets and the squalor of the slums this man who went from house to house armed with the grace of God and a word of good cheer, carried the vision of gardens with him and cherished them in his heart.

Sunday Morning Notes

Your columnist purchased an orange plant with a coupon from the back of a box of tissues. All you had to do, the promotion said, was place the plant in your home. Soon it would grow beautiful orange blossoms and then small, but edible, oranges would appear.

Well, I've never been much of a house plant man, but growing an orange plant could be fun.

Soon, the plant arrived, neatly boxed. I took it out and it was green and in excellent health. But the instructions said the plant needed a pot and some fertilizer. Off I went to a garden shop. The pot cost 69 cents and the little fertilizer tablets could be had for 49 cents. Certainly such an exotic plant needed the finest of soils, so I purchased a bag of the best for 69 cents. Now my original investment of $1.50 in the orange plant had increased to $3.27.

ALVIN TAYLOR

I pushed bravely on, however, removing the plastic which covered the roots of the plant and placing the plant in the flower pot. I carefully placed gravel in the bottom of the pot and then poured the planting soil around the roots of my orange plant. Then I added a fertilizer tablet, watered the soil and set the plant out in the sun to grow.

It didn't concern me that one leaf dropped off.

The next day I watered it again—and another leaf dropped off. Each day more leaves fell and those that remained shriveled. The plant just up and died.

And that for a man who comes from a long line of farmers. City life will ruin you for farming.

Other Editors Say All The Statistics

(The Wilson Times)

North Carolina is low in the number who take advantage of a college education. But it is not as low as appears, if credit is given for the ones who attend technical institutes and community colleges. And also in the number should be included the ones who enter private junior colleges and the trade, business, or nursing schools.

You have read recently of the many who cannot read or write, according to their grade level. And this is deplorable. You read of the many who do not even go to school, you read of the dropouts and so on, all of which give the state a low rating as to taking advantage of the educational opportunities offered.

Now you are reading of how low the state ranks in the percentage of ninth grade students who complete high school. This is the most deplorable part of the statistics, the number who do not finish the ninth grade and go on to graduate from high school.

Figures on college attendance can be confusing, because the Department of Public Instruction defines a college in the narrow concept of the four-year college. When you consider that 30.9 per cent of the state's high school graduates entered a four-year public or private college last year, 18.4 per cent entered a technical institute or community college, 4.3 per cent entered a private junior college and 4.6 per cent entered a trade, business or nursing school, this adds up to 58.2 per cent of high school graduates last year.

This is not as good as it should be, but it is much better to have the statistics growing in the trade educations than having the students drop out. When they have a profession they are equipped to make a living.

The technical institutes, the community colleges and the specialized trade schools are going to increase their attendance, with the technical institutes and community colleges leading the way.

If the students are planning to be doctors, lawyers or the like they must attend the four-year colleges. But there are too few of these as you know.

The ones who do the work of the world will learn their trade at the technical institutes and the community colleges. These will increase the education statistics, and this is where the increase should be.

'Crack' Ancient Script

By GERARD LOUGHRAN

PARIS (UPI) — Scholars from half a dozen countries are using a computer to crack inland Africa's oldest written language, the Meroitic script of Southern Egypt.

Meroitic was the language of the people of Kush, who flourished from the 8th Century B.C. to the 4th Century A.D. and developed the first major civilization far from the continent's coasts.

So far, all that is known of this people's way of life comes from skeletons, delicate pottery and gold jewelry found by archaeologists and carvings on tombs and temples. These indicate their kings were dark but not Negroid and their women were plump.

Only a few symbols, grammatical forms and some proper names in the language are understood.

Meroitic writing consisted of an alphabet of 23 signs, including four vowels—a, e, i, o—15 consonsants and four signs indicating syllables. There was also a sign for separation.

Prof. Jean Leclant, of the Paris Sorbonne University, writing in a report for the U.N. Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), said that French enthusiasts have collected 900 texts and stored them in a computer.

Texts Recorded

The Paris study group, known as GEM, is recording texts, series by series, and issuing corresponding indexes and tables of concordance as the work proceeds.

This material is distributed for analysis and possible new interpretations to the main center of Meroitic studies in Khartoum, Moscow, Montreal, Toronto, Calgary, Cambridge and Gottingen.

Travelers and scholars have been coming back from the Middle Nile region with Meroitic inscriptions from monuments and tombs for the past 150 years.

But it is only recently that the area has been systematically surveyed.

In 1819, the French architect, Francois-Chretien Gau, brought back four short lines of the first Meroitic text found in Dakka, Lower Nubia. Later, soldiers and explorers followed the Nile and braved the Nubian desert to obtain notes and sketches.

There were also adventurers and plunderers who followed Egyptian troops, sometimes posing as army doctors, such as the famed Ferlini who in 1834 found the treasures of Merowe in a pyramid.

But the first big step in understanding Meroitic script came nearly a century later when the British scholar, F. Lloyd Griffith, succeeded in identifying the names of certain gods and kings by comparing Meroitic with known Egyptian hieroglyphics for proper names.

This led over the years to the deciphering of parts of funerary inscriptions invoking the gods Isis and Osiris and giving; names of the dead and their relatives together with a formula for blessing them.

But the scholars are still a long way from making sense of the language as a whole.

Brazil Joins The Limited Few

By BRUCE HANDLER
Associated Press Writer

SAO JOSE DOS CAMPOS, Zrazig (AP) — Brazil has joined the restricted club of world nations that make their own commercial airliners.

The twin-engine turboprop Bandeirante — an exclusively Brazilian plane designed and built in this huge South American country — recently began flying short hauls on Transbrasil Airlines routes in three southern states. Another local commercial line, VASP, plans to have Bandeirantes in service before the end of the year.

The manufacturer, a government-controlled firm called EMBRAER, hopes some day to sell Bandeirantes to other countries around the globe.

Bandeirante means "pioneer" in Portuguese, Brazil's national language. Planes here must be tough enough to take off and land on short unpaved runways, yet light and powerful enough to cover the distances of this country's underdeveloped interior.

"Ideally, we need a plane that could take off from a soccer field and fly at supersonic speeds, yet still be reasonably priced and simply put together," said Col. Ozireu Silva, EMBRAER's general manager. "But that was not possible. So we did the best we could, and the result was the Bandeirante."

"For price and performance, the Bandeirante has no competitor in the world," declared Ronaldo Olive, editor of a Brazilian monthly aviation newsletter. "It sells for half as much as a British Avro and one-third as much as a Japanese Samurau, and its cost per mile is less than half of that of those two planes."

Many airlines around the world, especially in developing countries, fly Avros and Samuraus on short runs. Transbrasil, the smallest of Brazil's four commercial airlines, is using Bandeirantes to replace its British-built Dart Heralds. The company says the Bandeirante requires fewer passengers to reach the breakeven point on short flights.
even point on short flights.

The Bandeirante carries 15 passengers. It has a cruising speed of 260 miles an hour and range of 1,150 miles. It can take off from a 1,160-foot runway. It also can be adapted to serve as a cargo plane or a flying executive office.

Brazilians have been designing and building airplanes since 1913. But because of a lack of money, a large percentage of them wound up as one-shot prototypes.

EMBRAER began operating in 1970. The government controls 51 per cent of its voting stock, while private shareholders — mostly large firms — hold 71 per cent of the total stock, currently worth $18 million.

The Brazilian government allows private companies to invest 1 per cent of the federal income tax they owe each year in EMBRAER instead of paying it to the national treasury. The number of private shareholders in EMBRAER jumped from 1,035 in 1970 to 73,000 in 1972. Major stockholders include Brazilian subsidiaries of General Motors, Volkswagen and British American Tobacco Co.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Scuttlebutt Is In

It long was a standard joke among middle-management corporate people that if they wanted to know what was going on in their companies the best source was the janitor. The story was not far from the mark, according to an Arizona State University professor of management.

Dr. Keith Davis has studied office grapevines, and asserts about 75 per cent of the rumors circulating through them are true. As a typical example, he cites one company in which employes said they usually got the word about important decisions first through the grapevine, next through their immediate supervisors and finally from official company memoranda.

Some companies, said Dr. Davis, make use of their grapevines by using them both for disseminating information and for keeping a finger on employee morale. What Dr. Davis and the executive sessions of the Senate's Watergate Committee both seem to suggest is that secrets are becoming more difficult to keep. The point may even have been reached where few people pay attention to official statements and memoranda.

"The Whole Story"

Since the First Amendment to the Constitution forbids government from restraining the publication of news, it clearly follows that the government is equally powerless to compel the publication of news or opinion.

Yet the Florida Supreme Court recently ruled that a newspaper—specifically the Miami Herald, which is appealing the case to the U. S. Supreme Court—can be forced to print replies from political candidates it criticizes.

In their majority opinion, six of the Florida court's seven members argued that the state's "right of reply" statute, long regarded as obsolete and unenforceable, "supports freedom of the press in its true meaning—that is,the right of the reader to the whole story, rather than half of it."

It's an argument which sounds convincing enough, but there's a "catch" to it: Who decides when "the whole story" has been told?

The government? There's a name for a political system where the government becomes the arbiter of what is and isn't news. It's called "tyranny." — Huntington (W. Va.) Herald-Dispatch

Rubbing It In

Don't do as I do, do as I say.

This seems to be the attitude in Washington of late, especially in the glaring light of Watergate. The latest whisper out of that strange section of real estate called the District of Columbia concerns Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

A Republican senator—anonymous, of course—says the President is hinting that he would like Cox to cash in his chips and go home. This, after Cox issued a subpoena for the now famous Nixon tapes.

From Cox's ever-growing empire comes a denial about any Nixon hint to Cox plus a firm commitment that Cox will stay. "If Nixon wants him out he'll have to throw him out," was the reported response from Cox's headquarters. "Don't forget," said the spokesman with a sly grin, "this is a law-and-order administration."

Now that's rubbing salt in already sore wounds. — Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser

Fold Up Your Tent And . . .

The well-known mobility of Americans would seem to have reached new heights with the development of a "movable" office building.

A new approach to building construction has been developed and tested by Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, similar to the idea of the erector set. In this concept, a building would be assembled from the foundation up, used, and then when its period of use was over, be disassembled and re-erected somewhere else.

Sounds like a handy option to have in case the neighborhood goes to pot. — Gastonia (N.C.) Gazette

The Headwaiter Heard It Before

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—Remarks that a headwaiter gets tired of hearing:

"The only French Maurice knows is what he picked up from a foreign phrase book a customer left here 20 years ago."

"I know I've sent the steak back three times, pardner, and I'll keep on sending it back until you bring me a real piece of steer. I'm from Texas, and I know what good steak is."

"We're operating in the red now, Maurice, and I can't raise your salary. But I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll list you on the menu as our maitre d'hotel. Maybe with that title you can pick up more palm money from our clientele."

"What if he isn't wearing a jacket, Maurice? Let him in anyway. He owns a 20-acre ranch in the middle of Albuquerque."

"Push the corned beef hash all week, Maurice. If there's any left Friday night, the staff is going to be paid in it."

"Our usual table, please, Maurice. My wife and I just flew in from the Riviera, and we're totally exhausted. If our usual table is taken, I'm afraid we'll have to dine elsewhere."

"The chef is off on a bender, Maurice, and somebody will have to fill in for him. You used to be a short order cook once, didn't you? Well, take off that boiled shirt and black tie and get out to the kitchen, and we'll see how much you're still at home on the range."

Where And How The Welfare Billions Are Used

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

American taxpayers invest billions of dollars annually in programs designed to distribute cash, food, housing and medical services. Congressional committees and social agencies have known for years how these programs are intended to work. But how do they really work?

A joint House-Senate subcommittee, headed by Martha W. Griffiths of Michigan, has spent the past two years exploring that question. All the answers aren't in, but the nine formal papers thus far released by the subcommitte's staff are providing some remarkable insights into the labyrinthine mazes of the welfare world.

This is a world occupied, for one example, by May Doe, the 17-year-old mother of two children, living in a South Atlantic city. Mary emerges this month from the anonymity of a computer print-out as a young woman who, after a fashion, is not doing badly. She earns $56 a month in private employment; she gets $542 a month from eight different programs of public assistance. This gives her an income equivalent—all of it tax-free—of $598 a month, or about $7,200 a year. Will Mary ever go off welfare? Don't hold your breath.

Also living in this welfare world is a couple in an Eastern city, John and Susan Roe, supporting a young child and Susan's teenaged brother. They have earnings in private employment at the rate of $5,148 a year, on which they pay federal income taxes (so the the Internal Revenue Service tell me) of $116 a year. This leaves them a net of $5,032.

To this net private income of $5,032, the Roe family adds $4,620 a year in tax-exempt benefits from various welfare programs. They live in public housing having a rental value of $106 a month. They get $21 a month in aid to dependent children, $83 in general assistance, $34 in food stamps, $123 in Medicaid, and $18 from a neighborhood youth corps. They are thus making do, after taxes, on $9,652 a year.

The two households are not necessarily typical, but they are not unique, either. The subcommittee staff based its study on a random study of 1,758 households drawn from six sites designated by the Census Bureau a "low income" areas. About one in four of all families in these areas are statistically "poor." Over the 12-month period of the study, at least 1,154 of the household received some public benefit.

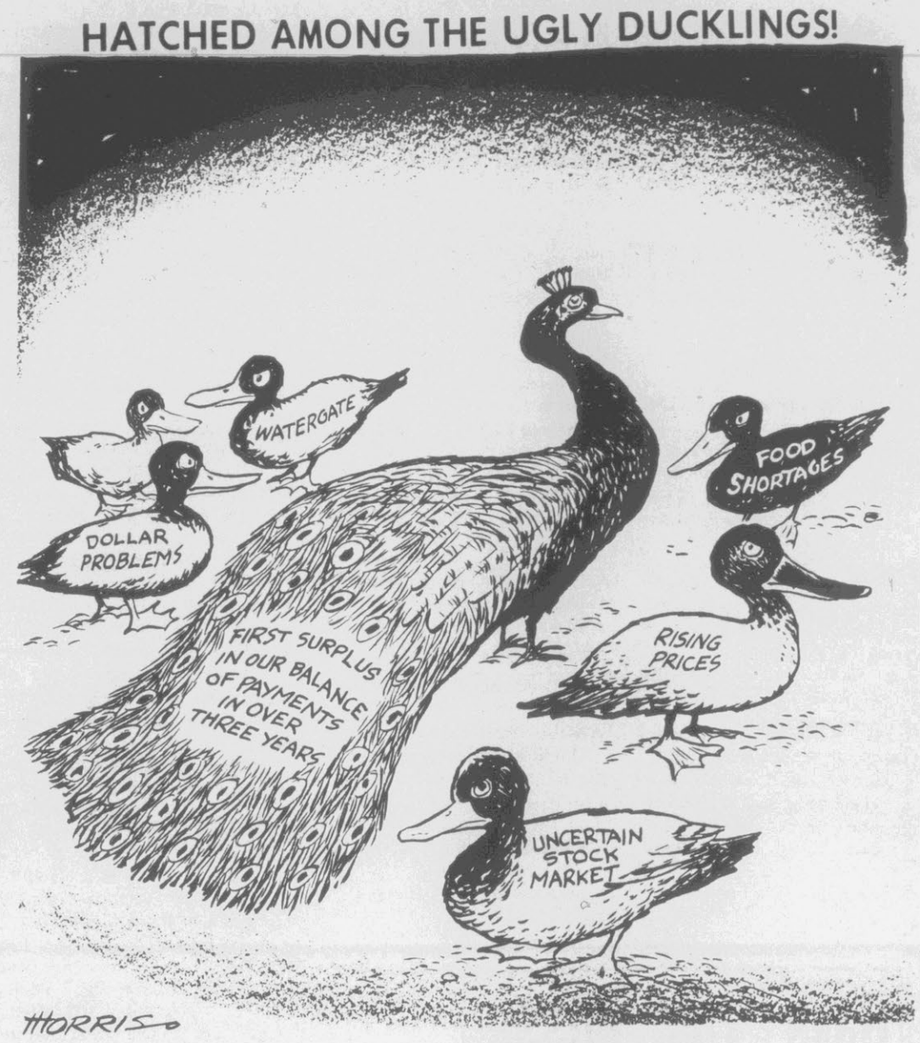

One-fifth of the 1,154 households received only a single public benefit—nothing but Social Security, for example—but 80 percent of the benefiting households were collecting from two or more programs. The study turned up one three-generation family of five, living in a Southern city, which received $8,300 over a 12-month period from 11 different federal programs.

Obviously, in the welfare world, it hurts to have a man around the house. The study found two typical households, only a few blocks apart, one composed of a woman and three chilren, the other of a husband and wife and two children. Their private earnings were about the same—$355 a month in one case, $346 in the other. But the former household qualified for $359 a month in food stamps, health benefits and aid to dependent children. The male-headed household got only $25 a month in unemployment insurance.

In many cases, espcially in the South and East, welfare families plainly do better by not working than by working. Their combined tax-free benefits in cash, food and housing—not counting medical care, manpower training and the like—exceed the median taxable income that might be earned in private empolyment. In a typical welfare family, a job can become a calamity: As private income goes up, public benefits come down. Too much income can bring eviction from a housing project, the loss of food stamps, and the loss of Medicaid. In the real world of public welfare, why work?

These pages of computerized tabulations, even though they are based on actual samples, tell us little of the human values—of what welfare means as a way of life. But the staff studies reveal a great deal about the system. How does it work? It works bizarrely, erratically, unfairly, lucratively, degradingly. Observers have been talking for years of the "welfare mess." Mrs. Griffiths' subcommittee, by painstaking labor, is showing us how vast that mess really is.

Young Attorney's Zeal In Probe Of Agnew Can Open A Pandora's Box

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

The zeal with which a young U.S. Attorney in Baltimore is going after Vice President Spior Agnew must be creating a lot of uneasiness from one end of the land to another.

A link between taxpayer money going into public roads, streets and highways and politicians causes no surprises. In fact, few governors finish an administration without embarassment on this score. But, still, there have been few thorough investigations.

That's what makes the Baltimore case as it is called, significant. Rightly or wrongly fingers have been pointed at the Vice President as the beneficiary of political funds growing out of contracts. This just might lead to the lifting of the lid of a real Pandora's box, with ramifications from City Halls, to State Houses, to Congress. And that is what the unease is all about.

Washington long has suspected that a percentage of the multi-billion dollar interstate highway program was finding its way into politics, at both the state and national level. But since the program commenced under a 1956 law, there has never been any serious invesitgation to look into possible handky-panky.

One reason, of course, is that many members of Congress, both parties, look to what is called the "highway lobby" for political funds. Thus, there's no telling who an investigation might splatter.

For another reason, you need look no farther than the huge highway lobby. It isn't limited to road builders and engineering firms. It includes the petroleum, rubber, auto and cement industries, to name a few. The powerful Teamsters Union shouldn't be overlooked. This aggregation packs a tremendous political punch.

But now that young George Beall, an officer of the Department of Justice, has started a ball bouncing, there is no way of telling when or where it will stop. Beall is a member of a Maryland political family. His father, a Republican, served in the Senate and the son is said to have "ambitions".

The Vice President has denied, in no uncertain terms, any wrong doing. But most of what has made the news about the investigation of money links between Agnew and Maryland contractors has been "leaked". What's more, the media has tagged The Justice Department as the "authorative source".

Agnew took the first stories in good grace, all things considered. At a press conference a couple of weeks ago he declared his hands clean and struck what was called a "cooperative" attitude. He was willing to talk with investigators.

Then came the leak this week. Time Magazine quoted a Justice Department official in Washington as saying that in view of evidence gathered "the department has no choice" other than to seek an indictment.

This is what set Agnew off. He claimed that "some. . .have decided to indict me in the press" and demanded that Attorney General Richardson stop the leaks in his Department.

Interestingly enough, some of Agnew's harshest critics sided with him on this count. The Washington Post, for instance, commented "We do think the Department has a very heavy obligation to ensure that its own people not play fast and loose with Mr. Agnew's constitutional rights."

The way Agnew's name came into the Baltimore case no doubt contributes toward uneasiness among politicians. He was pointed out by contractors trying to bargain with the investigators -- plea bargaining. They promised bigger game if charges against them were reduced.

For many years, Maryland, known as the "Free State", has been plagued by irregularities which have led right up to the Governor's mansion. Both politicians and businessmen have gone to jail.

The New York Times has quoted sources close to the investigations as saying between 3 percent and 5 percent are added to public contracts in the state for political use. This doesn't necessarily mean that all of the money went for bribes and so-called "kickbacks". Most of it was probably "legal" contributions to political organizations for men seeking office.

But if the Watergate invesitgation has, as some claim, the public in a mood to demand "honesty in government", a combing out of relations between public officials and those who get public contracts, might just make a contribution.

today to alter the anti-defense climate, that role must be played by the new Secretary of Defense: Dr. James Schlesinger, a man extravagantly praised and criticized. Friends say his credibility is such that he can convince the nation and Congress of the need to sustain weapons spending in the face of Soviet advances; foes charge he is not enough of a politician and too much of an economizer to play a neo-Churchillian role.

Pessimism prevails today. The overwhelming victory of the Aspin amendment suggests that the mood of U.S. voters and politicians is reminiscent of the Western European climate during the 1930s as described in "The War Hitler Won: The Fall of Poland, September 1939," (Holt, Rinehart and Winston), an excellent new book by Nicholas Bethell:

"There were tens of millions ready to fight tooth and nail against any increase in military expenditure or manpower, taking the short-sighted view that defense is a waste of money, since it provides no direct improvement in a country's living standard. They would not accept the truism that without a valid defense policy a country's wealth can be stolen from it, that without defense a country has nothing."

Noted Trial Lawyer Will Oppose Liquor-By-Drink

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH — Some people said Allen Bailey missed his calling when he didn't become a minister.

Bailey is a Charlotte lawyer who has made great sums of money. He is recognized as one of the top trial attorneys in the state.

Along with Rep. Joy Johnson, Bailey will be co-chairman of the campaign to defeat liquor-by-the-drink on Nov. 6. The wets will have to contend with this man.

Bailey is a gifted speaker and has the ability to get his audience believing in what he says. I watched Bailey in a sensational murder trial a few years ago and his arguement to the jury was something out of a TV script.

"Can you believe," Bailey asked the jurors, "that this man pulled the trigger without provacation?"

Bailey was born in Eastern North Carolina and picked cotton on a farm. He remembers one especially hot day when he was a boy, the cotton sack on his shoulder, when he looked up and said: "Lord, if you get me out of this cotton field I'l drive big cars and smoke 50-cent cigars."

The Lord kept his part of the bargain, Bailey laughs, and he has too. He likes Cadillacs and big cigars.

Bailey headed Lake's campaign for Governor in 1964 and was credited with doing a sensational job.

Dr. Lake remarked to me a couple of years after the campaign: "It got to the point that when we went to rallies, I'd introduce Allen and let him make the main speech. The people loved him."

Bailey worked in 1972 in the unseccessful gubernatorial campaign of H. Pat Taylor.

Bailey is a political conservative who detests liquor in any form. He says he will travel "anywhere at anytime to debate this question."

Bailey led the fight against liquor-by-the-drink in a local option vote in Mecklenburg County two years ago. The measure passed handidly in Mecklenburg, but Baily was successful in getting it overturned by the State Supreme Court.

The Nov. 6 vote will be state-wide and probably very close. It's the kind of campaign Bailey enjoys. He says he'll spend as much time on the campaign as possible — which means he'll be almost full-time. He definitely will make the proceedings more interesting.

it reading 'Greenville Utilities Reduces Rates'," he requested. "All we've had since I've been here is headlines announcing rate increases."

Glad to oblige.

United Fund Chairman Bill Dansey said President Joe Clark told him the drive would be in the fall when he was offered to the job of chairman.

"That's great," Dansey replied. He would have his own work behind him by then.

"...But you really start work in August," the United Fund President informed the new chairman.

Nearly Half Of American Adults Say They Are Overweight

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J.—In a world in which much of the population is chronically hungry or underfed, the U.S. stands out as a dramatic exception. Nearly half of American adults (46 per cent) describe themselves as overweight, compared to 43 per cent who state they are the right weight. In contrast, only 8 per cent say they are underweight.

Americans are also a nation of weight-watchers, apparently heeding the advice of many health authorities who consider obesity to be a major factor in heart diesase and many other health problems. For example, two-thirds of the overweight population admit they are dieting or exercising to lose weight. And, even among the adults who consider themselves "about right" in weight, more than a third watch their diet and-or exercise to control their weight.

The findings reported today are based on a nationwide survey conducted in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period March 30-April 2. A total of 3,052 adults, 18 and older, were interviewed in person. This large sampling—double the ususal Gallup Poll size—permits full breakdowns for men and women separately.

All persons in the survey were asked this question:

"How would you describe your own personal weight situation? Select the category or categories on this card that best apply to your situation: I am heavier than I'd like to be, but I am not now doing anything about it; I am heavier than I'd like to be and I'm watching my diet or exercising; My weight is about what I think it should be and I don't have to exercise or diet to keept it that way; My weight is about what I think it should be, but I have to exercise or diet to keep it that way; I am underweight and I'm trying to gain weight; I am underweight, but I am not trying to gain weight."

The highest proportion of overweight people is found among women, persons 30 years of age and older, upper-income groups, and among Jews.

National	46%	43%	8%	3%
Men	38	50	8	4
Women	55	36	6	3
White	46	43	8	3
Non-white	41	40	10	9
Professional & Business	49	45	5	1
White-collar	45	42	8	5
Manual workers	47	41	9	3
Under 30	42	45	10	3
30-49 years	50	39	8	3
50 & over	47	44	5	4
Protestants	47	43	7	3
Catholics	47	40	9	4
Jews	61	36	2	1
$15,000 & over	52	42	5	1
$10,00-$14,999	50	42	6	2
$7,000-$9,999	48	39	8	5
$5,000-$6,999	38	45	12	5
$3,000-$4,999	43	44	9	4
Under $3,000	39	47	8	6

The results by men and women show that a larger proportion of women (55 per cent) than men (38 per cent) describe themselves as overweight. Correspondingly, a greater proportion of men describe their present weight as "about right."

A comparison of the findings by men and women brings these differeces to light:

1. Virtually as many non-white as white women say they are overweight, but among men the figure is higher for whites.

2. Women in manual worker households are more likely to be overweight than are women in white-collar, business or professional households. On the other hand, men who work as manual laborers are less likely to be overweight than are men in white-collar jobs, in business or in the professions. Many manual workers, of course, have jobs which require considerable physical activity.

3. Middle-age women (30-49 years old) are more likely to be overweight than either younger women in their twenties or older women, 50 and over. Middle-age men, however, differ little from older men in terms of being overweight.

What Are People Doing About Their Weight?

Nationally, 4 in 10 persons in the adult population are dieting or exercising, either to lose weight or to maintain their present weight. The percentage for women is 49, for men 34 per cent.

DEAR ABBY: Our 14-year-old daughter wants to have her nose pierced. She says all her friends are having it done. We let her have her ears pierced last year, and she got an infection which took a long time to get rid of.

Her father and I are against this nose-piercing business, but she is begging and begging. Please advise us.

OLD FASHIONED

DEAR OLD FASHIONED: Tell her as long as she's a minor and living in your home, she will have to abide by your decision, and you don't approve of the nose-piercing bit. When she's of age, and on her own, she may do as she pleases. [What's one more hole in her head?]

DEAR ABBY: Our mother passed away after a lingering illness two years ago. She carefully listed all of her possessions, stating what should go to each daughter and son after her death. Mother had some priceless antiques and heirlooms, including silver, glassware, china, furniture, and jewelry. She gave the list to Dad.

Dad did nothing about the list, and no one wanted to mention it to him for at least a year after Mother's death.

Three months ago Dad married a divorcee he had known only five weeks. [They met on a cruise.] Dad's new wife decided that she and Dad should sell Dad's home and move to an apartment with new modern furnishings. Then she announced she was going to auction off all of Mother's possessions, but she'd give "the family" a chance to BUY whatever we wanted first, at the appraised price.

We are heartsick and don't know what to do. Don't suggest we consult a lawyer. If we were to sue, it would be a public scandal, and we're too proud a family for that.

DISGUSTED IN BUFFALO

DEAR DISGUSTED: Where is Dad while all this is going on? Tell him how you feel about this greedy maneuver and ask his cooperation in dividing your late mother's possessions according to her wishes as you remember them.

DEAR ABBY: About three years ago you printed "A Mother in Law's Prayer." I thought it was hilarious and carried it around with me for a long time. Somehow it got away from me. Will you please print it again? There must be quite a few people who haven't seen it. And those who have will enjoy a good laugh repeated.

YOUR FAN IN FLORIDA

DEAR FAN: With pleasure. Here it is:

"O, Lord, help me to be glad when my son [or daughter] picks a mate. If he brings home a girl with two heads, help me to love both of them equally. And when my son says: 'Mom, I want to get married,' forbid that I should blurt out: 'How far along is she?'

"And please, Lord, help me to get thru the wedding preparations without a squabble with the 'other side.' And drive from my mind the belief that had my child waited a while, she or he could have done better.

"Dear Lord, remind me daily that when I become a grandmother, that my children don't want any advice on how to raise their children any more than I did when I was raising mine.

"If you will help me to do these things, perhaps my children will find me a joy to be around, and maybe I won't have to write a DEAR ABBY letter complaining about my children neglecting me."

DEAR ABBY: Marvin and I have been married for six years. Under normal circumstances he is not a jealous man, but in order to keep him from being too sure of me, I have "invented" some other men in my life.

I am not a beautiful woman, but I am considered attractive. Marvin and I were separated for a few months about a year ago, and when he came back, in order to make him jealous I told him about several "admirers" who were after me, and I deliberately taunted him with tales of our affairs. It seemed to heighten my husband's interest in me.

Should I continue this deception, or should I tell him the truth? I feel that he really loves me, but I can't resist bringing up the "competition" just to keep him on his toes.

MARVIN'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Cut out the fairy tales and be yourself. While you are inventing other men, Marvin is apt to get himself some real live women just to even the score.

DEAR ABBY: You sure missed a wonderful opportunity by not answering "A Believer in Buffalo" when she said with regard to the Living Will: "God determines who shall die and when—not you, or anyone else."

You should have told her that was exactly what you were saying: "Let God make the determination and let man keep his cotton pickin' hands off." JACK IN TAMPA

Mail Signal

A signal light is being installed in the Greenville Post Office to let patrons know when the mail has been put up.

According to Lloyd Mills, postmaster, a red and green signal is being placed in the main lobby as a means of letting people know when the mail is up.

The green light is on when the mail is ready for pick up and the red light shows the mail has not been put up.

The installation should be complete by the first of the week.

Lunchroom for the coming week at Greenville elementary schools have been announced as follow:

Sixteen Completed PTI Requirements

Sixteen students in six technical programs at Pitt Technical Institue completed the requirements for graduation this week, according to Douglas M. Morgan, PRI registrar.

During a luncheon meeting Wednesday, PRI President Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., addressing the graduates, stated that "a trained technician and his or her skills, are a product, and as such, the supply of and demand for your services affect salary."

"While there is a good market for your services because of the scarcity of trained technicians, the successful individual's destiny lies within himself or herself, rather than outside," Fulford said.

He added, "the public or consumers will not tolerate imcompetencies. You must continually strive to upgrade your skills and technical knowlege."

Those completing requirements were:

Swept Off Feet By A Bigamist

BRISTOL, England (AP) — Nurse Penelope Hams was swept off her feet by a dashing patient who boasted of his big business deals and London apartments. They wed in a splashy ceremony.

Too late she discovered he was, in reality, a ledger clerk with a wife and two children in Northern Ireland.

Keith Thompson, 32, was jailed for four years for bigamy.

The Magnificent Two Hundred and Seven.

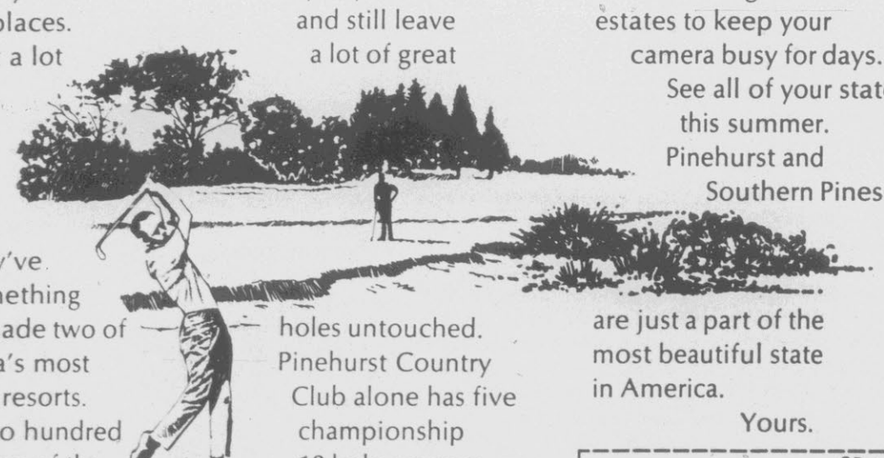

Down in the sand hills and high pines of southern North Carolina, about half way between Raleigh and Charlotte, are a couple of small towns.

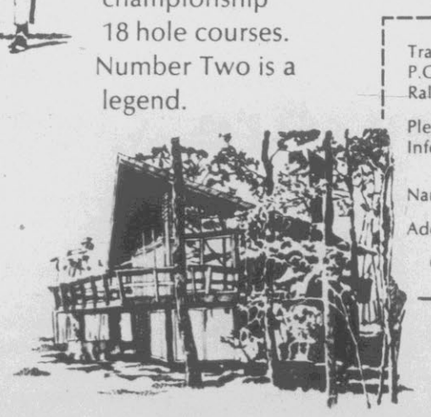

They're kind of sleepy places. without a lot of big splashy hotels and hoopla. But they've got something that's made two of America's most famous resorts.

Two hundred and seven of the greatest holes of golf in the world.

The towns, of course, are Pinehurst and Southern Pines. And the world's golfers have been coming here for three-quarters of a century.

Today, this area is a year-round golf center that's unequalled anywhere. You can play 18 different holes every day for a week and still leave a lot of great holes untouched. Pinehurst Country Club alone has five championship 18 hole courses. Number Two is a legend.

Besides golf, these towns are full of famous old hotels. Modern new lodges. Cozy little guest houses. And enough beautiful gardens and estates to keep your camera busy for days.

See all of your state this summer. Pinehurst and Southern Pines are just a part of the most beautiful state in America.

Yours.

Mosquito Control By Harmones

By JAMES K. STALEY
Associated Press Writer

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Scientists say they have found a way to control pesticide-resistant mosquitoes without drenching the countryside with harmful chemicals.

Synthetic growth hormones capable of controlling mosquitoes are being tested with great success, a group of University of California entomologists said in a report released Friday.

The hormones, when sprayed on wet areas where mosquitoes breed, disrupt the normal growth pattern of mosquito larvae. Some grow so fast they split their shells and die; others grow so slowly they die before maturity.

Health officials have been concerned because mosquitoes, which carry such diseases as encephalitis and malaria, sometimes develop resistance to traditional pesticides.

The growth hormones, on the other hand, are environmentally safe and dissipate quickly into harmless substances after being used, the researchers said.

"This is much more environmentally and ecologically sound, but of course it is also much more expensive, more difficult and more slow," said Raymond Coppock of the university's agricultural extension program here.

Dr. Emil Dupras of the UC Mosquito Control Research Laboratory in Fresno said farmers now pay about 10 cents an acre for pesticide spraying but the hormone treatment could cost between $1.50 and $4.50 an acre.

"If they can still get along with the organo-phosphates, they're going to do it," said Don J. Womeldorf, a state public health biologist.

Womeldorf said the hormones were especially welcomed by public health authorities in California. He said California mosquitoes "have developed great resistance to organic phosphate pesticides which have formed the backbone of mosquito-control programs for the past 20 years."

More Blacks In Med Schools Said Needed

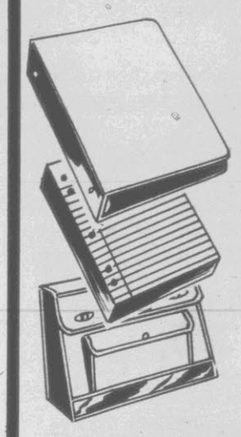

GREENSBORO (AP)—Dr. Lewis C. Dowdy, chancellor of predominantly black North Carolina A&T State University, has called for greater black access to graduate and professional instruction.

He spoke Friday at the fourth annual conference of the National Black Alliance on Graduate-Level Education.

He said the three medical schools in North Carolina have graduated only seven black doctors this year.

"I think its alarming. At this rate it would take 18 years to replenish the supply" of black doctors in North Carolina, he said. There are now 120 such doctors.

Help Plants Survive Vacation

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The late-vacationing apartment dweller who is communing with nature via the plant route and the house dweller who loads his house with plants for winter enjoyment may have the same plant problem: what to do about their plants when they are away from home. They don't want to see all that tender loving care go to rot.

In warm weather the house dweller may sink his plants into the ground with some protection from trees before he leaves on a vacation. In cooler weather he may be afraid to risk the possibility of sudden changes of temperature.

Suggestions given by the Brooklyn Botanic Garden in the recently published "A House Plant Primer" may be helpful to anyone who grows plants at home, especially those people who have so many plants they hesitate to board them with friends and neighbors.

In the primer Robert Tomson suggests putting the plants in the family bathtub as he does, "and you can leave your plants alone at home for three weeks or so with good conscience."

For the bathtub storage, Tomson suggests this method:

Let room-temperature water run into the tub so that the shallow end of the tub is 1¼ inches deep. Depending on the make of the bathtub or the sag of a house, the deep end should have two to two and one-half inches of water in it. Put larger pots at the deep end, smaller ones at the shallow.

Even if you have a miniature botanic garden at your windowsill, the chances are the tub will accommodate all your plants, he points out. He suggests you not fear crowding plants, "for no harm comes of this in their temporary home."

He cautions that one, however, should give the plan a trial run, before putting it into operation. Put water in the tub for a day or two to give you the confidence you may need to leave the plants in the tub. If you find the stopper does permit water to escape, Tomson suggests placing over it a rubber pancake-shaped stopper, available from hardware stores. It might be a good idea to make a further test after you have put the second stopper in place.

The plant grower may find upon his return that there has been some abnormal elongation of shoots due to insufficient light. A judicious pruning of any gaunt shoots soon results in a shapely plant again, he reassures. If the bathroom does not have enough light, you might minimize the problem by leaving the light on while you are away.

If the room is especially dark you may want to use a light meter. There are meters which measure light intensity by foot candles. There is also a government pamphlet on the subject, he says, and there is one published by the Brooklyn Botanic Garden on the subject of gardening under artificial light. These may be of special interest to people who plan long vacations.

If one has only a half-dozen or so house plants, Tomson advises, and doesn't plan to be away too long, one might consider putting the pots in plastic bags instead of resorting to the bathtub. Each plant should be watered thoroughly and put in a bag that is loosely tied around the top of the pot. The bag should serve as a mulch, delaying evaporation. The entire plant should not be put in the bag as the excessive humidity would result in fungus, root rot, marred foliage and premature death, he advises. But the one good thing about the plastic bag method is, he points out, you will not have to worry about cleaning a ring from the bathtub when you return from your vacation.

Most problems with house plants occur when we forget that they are indeed living things and have certain basic requirements, the booklet reminds us. The famed botanic garden has found that "windowsill horticulture is the most frequent topic of talk these days among home growers" who seek their advice.

Other articles in the booklet provide advice on caring for particular plants in winter gardens indoors. The bromeliad, pineapple, avocado, poinsettia, Christmas Cactus, gardenia and African violets are among those plants discussed. It also covers house plant problems, growing plants in a north window, herbs and terrariums.

The Garden Clinic

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. What plants will bloom in an area next to a garage wall where very little sun reaches the ground except in late afternoon: (S.E.B., Charlotte)

A. Among the best for such an area are: ballon vine, corabells, columbine, meadow rue, monkshood, plantain lily and showy sedum (sedum spectabile.) Henry J. Smith, landscape horticulturist)

Q. How do I control nutsedge in my lawn? (C.D., Asheboro)

A. There are a number of herbicides which can be used. They are CMA, DSMA, MAMA, and MSMA. These may be used on bluegrass, fescue, bermudagrass, and zoysia. Do not use on carpetgrass, centipedegrass, or St. Augustinegrass. Three or four applications may be necessary for control. Spray when soil moisture is abundant and air temperature is 80 degrees or above. (W.M. Lewis, extension weed specialist)

Q. Is it harmful for ground ivy to grow over a bed where annual and perennial flowers grow? (A.W.D., Winston-Salem)

A. If the annuals and perennials are low-growing or small plants, the ground ivy could very well do extensive damage. It could even smother them out. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. I have small leafed plants floating on the surface of my pond. All together they look like a green blanket. What is it? How do I control it? (S.T.W., Wendell)

A. Your plant description sounds like duckweed. For control use Diquat at the rate of one gallon per surface acre. Apply in 50 to 150 gallons of water per acre. Add one pint of X-77 surfactant per 100 gallons. Spray to wet all plants. Do not apply to muddy water. Do not use treated water for any purpose for 10 days. (W.M. Lewis, extension weed specialist)

Vinyl Blankets For Foundation

MARIETTA, Ohio (UPI) — About 2 million square feet of vinyl blankets, the largest amount ever produced for one project, will cover the $230 million concrete and steel foundation of New York City's North River Water Pollution Control Project.

The protective membrane is shipped by B.F. Goodrich to Manhattan from its plant in Marietta, Ohio, in blankets or rolls and cut to size by the contractor. The sheeting will protect from corrosive elements the exposed underside of the steel foundation being built on 2,400 caissons sunk in the Hudson River mud. The completed foundation will cover more than 30 acres. A sewage treatment plant will be built on it.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Because it is relatively inexpensive (nothing is REALLY inexpensive these days) and fire-resistant, gypsum board is the most widely used wall material in new houses.

Sometimes referred to as plasterboard or wallboard, gypsum board has a core of pulverized rock, hydrated pulp and a chemical binder or, roughly, gypsum plaster. Covering both sides of this core are paper coverings with a tough consistency. These coverings once were white only so that they could be painted or wallpapered. White is still the best seller, but other and more costly coverings can be obtained in simulated wood, striated effects and various other decorative finishes.

Gypsum board is sold much like hardboard and plywood — in widths of four feet and in several thicknesses. Square, beveled and tapered edges are among the available types. Gypsum board is cut by scoring the face side with a sharp knife, pulled along a straightedge. The knife should be pressed firmly enough so that it cuts through the paper and partly into the core. Place the board on a table or sawhorse so that the scored part is face up and right on the edge. Snap it downward, which breaks the core completely through. Now, using the knife again, cut the paper on the other side and the two pieces will separate. Both edges have to be sanded smooth, using a piece of sandpaper wrapped around a wooden block or any sanding tool with a firm base.

Gypsum board takes paint well, but if you intend to put wallpaper on it, first apply a coat of primer-sealer. This is a precautionary step, should you ever wish to remove the wallpaper at some later time. Without the primer-sealer, stripping off the wallpaper will tear the gypsum board covering.

After a period of years, depending on how much the studs contract, some of the nails used to attach the boards to the framework may pop out a little. This situation can be remedied by driving back the nails a little below the surface with a nailset, then putting in new nails close to them, also setting them below the surface. The nail holes are then filled with patching plaster and smoothed out.

You also can use patching plaster in gypsum board walls when the damaged areas are small. When there is a large defect, it may be necessary to replace a section of the board. In attaching anything to a gypsum board wall, it usually is advisable to nail or screw right through the wall into the studding, especially if the article to be hung is heavy. In some cases, you may be able to use toggle bolts or screw anchors.

(Thirty five household problems are discussed in Andy Lang's helpful handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," which may be obtained by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666).

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I recently bought a small boat that came without an anchor. I understand I can make one out of concrete. Since I have some concrete materials on hand, I would like to make an anchor. Can you tell me how to go about it?

A. — Merely fill a bucket or can with a concrete mixture and set a large eye bolt in the center of it. After the concrete hardens, attach the necessary rope to the eye bolt. The trick is to make this crude anchor heavy enough to hold your boat, yet not so heavy that it is awkward to handle.

Q. — What is the main advantage of using stain rather than paint on exterior cedar shingle walls?

A. — While stain may fade over the years where the sun shines on it, there will be no blistering and peeling, making it easy to re-stain.

Q. — I bought an orbital sander but am puzzled as to how to attach the sandpaper. Can you help me?

A. — I'm afraid not. There are many different ways to attach the paper to an orbital sander, depending on the brand of the sander. If you bought a new one, go back to the dealer and get an instruction booklet that should have come with the sander. If you bought it secondhand, go to a store that sells several different brands and see if you can find one that matches yours. Ask the dealer to tell you how the sandpaper is attached.

Q. — The flashing around one of the vent pipes on our roof is firmly in place, but the cement around it has crumbled. How can it be repaired?

A. — Remove the loose pieces without disturbing the cement that is still solidly in place. Apply new cement liberally so that it not only covers the damaged area but extends part way up the vent.

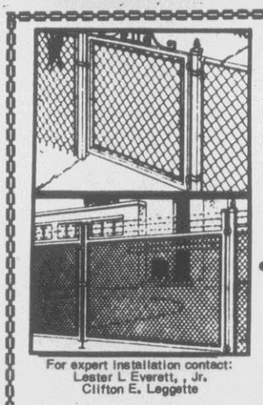

Q. — I intend to put in an outdoor electrical outlet. Any advice?

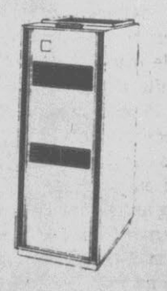

A. — I assume you know what you are doing, since there is no space to tell you all the details necessary to the proper installation of an outdoor electrical outlet. Three bits of advice are offered, however. 1. Be sure you turn off the electricity before you begin work. 2. Make sure you use weatherproof outlets. And 3, which really should be 1 — better make certain you are complying with local electrical codes.

Up To 18

Chapter 463 of the North Carolina General Statutes as enacted by the General Assembly on May 11 gives parents and guardians the right to seek court actions on matters relating to the discipline of their children up to 18 years of age.

The exceptions voted in this act relate to those children who are not married, emancipated or in the armed forces.

According to Arthur Alford, superientendent of Pitt County Schools, the new allows parents to seek a court order requiring their children over 16 years of age and up to 18 years to attend school.

Under the old law, the age limit for action of this kind was 16 years of age.

Swiss Enjoy Confidence

GENEVA (AP) — Switzerland emerged as the most trusted nation in a field of eight countries in a recent poll conducted in France, Germany, Italy, Holland and Belgium.

The survey was made by Ronald Inglehart, of Michigan State University, and David Handley, University of Geneva, in cooperation with the European Community Information Center.

Switzerland ranked first with a trust rating of 78 per cent against a negative total of 11 per cent, while the United States received a favorable rating of 69 per cent against 23 per cent unfavorable.

Britain scored 61 and 30 per cent while the Russians had a distrust rating of 68 per cent, with only 23 per cent positive. The Chinese recorded 9 per cent favorable, 74 per cent unfavorable.

Other ratings were: French, 52 per cent favorable and 38 per cent unfavorable; Germans, 45 and 46 per cent; and Italians 31 and 59 per cent.

Atomic Payoff In The Payroll

OAK RIDGE, Tenn. (UPI) — Payrolls in programs of the Atomic Energy Commission at Oak Ridge reached a record high of more than $176 million during 1972.

R.J. Hart, manager of the AEC's Oak Ridge Operations, says payrolls last year grew by more than $8 million, a 4.8 per cent increase over 1971.

Room To Pass On Oregon Trail

CHICAGO (UPI) — Whatever else it may have lacked, the Oregon Trail offered plenty of room for passing.

The famous route from Missouri to Oregon was rarely a single track anywhere on its 2,000-mile length and in places it was 10 miles wide, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica. Wagon trains often would spread out that far for better grazing and to avoid the dust.

Extensive use of the trail began in 1843. It was still in use as late as 1900.

BREEZY BURG

NEWTON, Mass. (UPI) — Oklahoma City rates as the windiest city in the United States, with Great Falls, Mont., second and Boston third, according to the Mt. Auburn Research Associates, Inc.

Profitable Deal For Bill Holden

'The Blue Knight' Is For Theaters, Too

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bystanders at the broken-down hotel next to the Harbor Freeway gazed twice at the deeply tanned patrolman in the blue uniform of the Los Angeles Police Department.

"No, it couldn't be," they muttered.

But it was William Holden. For six weeks citizens in the downtown area have spotted the actor in his policeman's garb. One man even asked for street directions.

Holden is starring in "The Blue Knight," an unusual venture in television and film programming. The Joseph Wambaugh novel is being filmed simultaneously for U.S. and Canadian television and for movie theaters in other countries.

"The Blue Knight" is scheduled to appear in four 60-minute segments on NBC on successive nights, Nov. 13-16. Later, foreign audiences will see a 100-minute version in theaters.

"The theatrical version will not merely be a trimmed-down version of the four television hours," explained Walter Coblenz, who is producing the film for Lorimar Productions, the company that makes "The Waltons."

"Many of the scenes are shot two ways. The theater version is a bit rougher, both in action and in language. There's one sequence where Holden walks into a burlesque house.

"The theater version will show seminudity on the stage. Naturally that won't appear in the television film."

Toward the end of the "Blue Knight" filming, Bill Holden was playing a scene in which he burst into a sleazy hotel room and arrested a suspect.

The scene was rehearsed and filmed by director Robert Butler with amazing speed, considering the close quarters in which the film crew had to work.

Afterward Holden, 55, sauntered downstairs to his dressing room trailer, opened a beer and explained why he is making his dramatic debut in television.

"It's a good script and a good character," he said. "Also, the deal is financially advantageous for me.

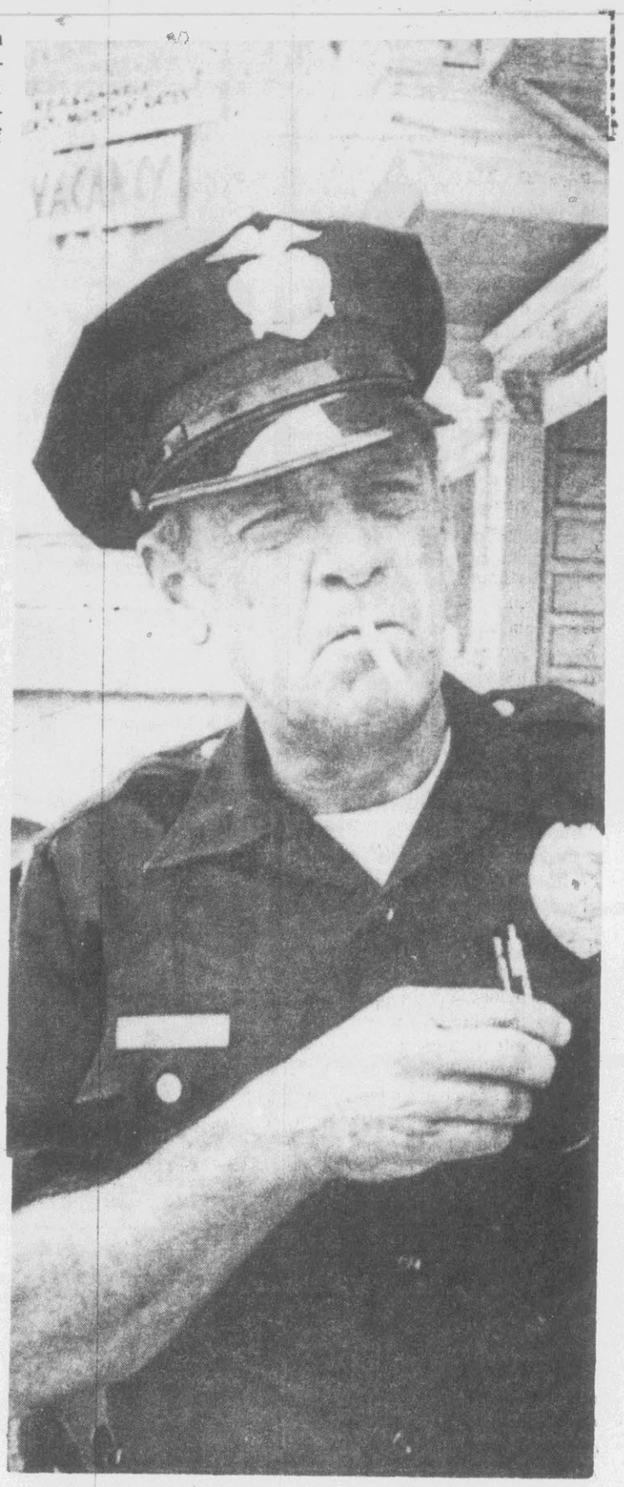

"I can get a three-way return on the project. First is the television play in this country; NBC has the right to two showings. Second is the showing of the film in theaters overseas.

"Third is the subsequent sale of the film to television in those countries. I participate in all three operations."

Holden is earning his pay. He said he had never worked so hard, not even during his early career under slave-driving Harry Cohn at Columbia.

"I found the greatest sleeping pill in the world: this script," he said with a grin. "Not that it's dull. But when I got home after a 13-hour day on the picture, I started to look at what I had to do the next day and I fell asleep."

The "Blue Knight" script is almost double the size of a normal feature and calls for 100 speaking parts and 140 locations, all in real-life parts of Los Angeles. Yet the schedule extends a mere 36 days, about the same as a normal film.

YEP, IT'S HOLDEN — For six weeks Los Angeles citizens have seen him in a policeman's uniform and, taking a second look, spotted actor Bill Holden. (AP Wirephoto)

Recent Delightful Recordings Taken From Television Shows

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — While television is mainly a visual experience, some of the hit shows also appeal to the ear.

That is, these shows can win laughs without the principals being seen, as back in the good old radio days.

There were a couple of recordings of "Laugh In" during the early phase of its popularity. More recently, "All in the Family" and "Sanford and Son" have produced delightful recordings.

Now we have an LP based on the two characters in "The Odd Couple," Tony Randall and Jack Klugman.

"The Odd Couple Sings" (London XPS 903) is worth many spinnings although it gets off to a schmaltzy start with "Johnny One Note."

Tony Randall is a good singer. He might have made it as a solo vocalist had he not gone for acting on stage, in the movies and on television.

Several years ago, Randall recorded an album for Imperial Records that received a warm welcome from musicians, among them Carmen Lombardo, and record reviewers. They particularly liked Randall's whimsy in singing "Little Old Lady," a tune which Bing Crosby popularized way back when.

In "The Odd Couple Sings," Randall carries most of the load but Klugman fits nicely into duets, one of them being "Play a Simple Melody."

One of the more rollicking songs is "When Banana Skins Are Falling I'll Come Sliding Back to You."

The big opus is "The Odd Couple Opera," which takes up most of the second side, with Randall turning in a fine performance.

"In One Head and Out the Other" (Columbia C 32442) is based on appearances in night club engagements which spun off from their gig on the Jack Paar show some time ago.

"The Cab Driver and the Conventioneer" is an extenuated skit that is laced with mild bigotry but is really not offensive. It has a good twist at the end.

Some persons who feel that it is improper to mock any religion may not find "The Faith Healer" humorous but the audience seemed to enjoy it.

Martin Mull and his Fabulous Furniture offers a mixture of soft-sell dialogue and nonpretentious but nevertheless enjoyable music on "Your Living Romm" (Capricorn CP 0117). The titles give away the nature of the album: "A Tribute to Bert Parks," "Martin, Leon, Elton and John," and "2001 Polka." Mull gets the fun off to a good start with "Dueling Tubas."

"Battling Banjos" is a fine item for those who like their banjo music in the bluegrass style (Monument Z32259). There is a suggestion of "Dueling Banjos" in the opening "Battling Banjos Polka" and a full-blown rendition in "Feudin' Banjos." Other numbers which enliven the album are "Nine String Boogie," "Black Mountain Rag," "Georgia Camp Meeting" and "Foggy Mountain Breakdown."

Incidentally, She's A 'Sex Object' Too

By JOE O'SULLIVAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lee Meredith is a wife and mother, a Sunday school teacher, an organic gardener—and incidentally a sex object.

"I don't mind the idea of being a sex object," she said with a giggle, the same giggle as when she talked about her garden and said, "You should see my tomatoes."

But it wasn't her tomatoes that got her the featured role as a "vaudeville nurse" in Neil Simon's Broadway comedy hit, "The Sunshine Boys."

Those reasons were obvious when Miss Meredith was asked for her top-to-bottom measurements during a recent interview in her dressing room.

"My head too?" she asked with a laugh and then reeled off that she was 5 feet 8, 132 pounds, and 38-24-36. That's topped off by cotton candy blond hair and merry-sexy green eyes.

Started at 16

Near the dressing mirror was a photo of Miss Meredith's husband of four years and some drawings by her daughter, Kimberly, 3. Some of Kimberly's drawings were of "Mommy," who was shaped like a potato in them.

Miss Meredith, brought up in Fair Lawn, N.J., began her career at age 16 as a precision dancer. Her first acting job was in the 1968 film, "The Producers," with Zero Mostel.

"Normally, I play leading roles out of town," she said. "On Broadway, you have to kind of settle for what you can get. So I figure I'd rather do a smaller part in a good show than be out of town and do a lead where nobody sees you."

The Depression Years In America, Early Post-War Japan

From Times Of Necessity—Crafts That Appealed

The two items pictured here; one "made in Japan," the other made in eastern North Carolina, have one thing in common. Both were created as the result of economic hard times—the American depression and the immediate post-war effort in Japan to rise from the chaos of defeat and destruction.

In the late 1930s, it was not uncommon for home craftsmen in rural North Carolina to go from door-to-door, offering an assortment of handmade outdoor and porch furniture and accessories—chairs, swings, flower boxes, and shown here, a smoking stand.

The smoking stand pictured is the work of a family formerly living in Washington County. This was a popular item, and similar examples are undoubtedly extant in a number of homes in Beaufort, Martin and Washington Counties, the territory covered by the traveling family of craftsmen.

Made of soft, light wood, the three-legged stand is designed to accommodate two ash trays in circular holders in front of the log cabin. The roof of the cabin is removable, permitting storage of cigarettes and matches. (It is too shallow to hold today's long and extra long cigarettes). Small bent branches form the handle and are also used for decorative purposes in the open spaces between the legs.

The basic color of the stand is a maroon tinged dark brown. Aluminum paint is used for the twining vine and leaf motif on the three legs, and for borderwork. The one curious note is an elaborate pattern, somewhat like the frilly work of a cut lace paper napkin, painted on the flat surface in front of the cabin.

This smoking stand is an example of a design slanted to appeal to the tastes of the times.

Three Frogs

The ceramic vase of three upright dancing frogs shows Japanese ingenuity in meeting the demands of a troubled period in their history. Made in the early post-war period of 1946, it typifies what Japanese craftsmen thought would appeal to the prinicipal buyers of their output at that time—members of the American military occupation forces. And they guessed right, too. Items such as this gaudy curlicue decorated ware found a much readier market than traditional Japanese crafts reflecting a long tradition

"The three graces gone froggy," might very well describe the concept employed in this ceramic figure of three frogs clutching each other in an unrealistic ring-around-the-roses stance with uplifted heads and open mouths.

The artist, though slyly incorporating the imperial crysanthenum crest on the back of each frog, goes from there to embellish the frog skins with baubles and beads much more likely to be found on the costume of a burlesque queen than on a frog, Japanese or otherwise.

Despite the garishness of the decoration, the warm chocolate brown color with areas of bright orange and touches of green, white and gold somewhat redeem the entire effort.

Time has a way of coming full cycle in establishing general acceptance of items such as these two created for popular consumption under economic pressure.

Today, a growing number of affluent Japanese collectors are seeking post-war grotesqueries as side collections to time-honored traditional Japanese crafts.

Since a majority of these items were made to meet a booming demand for a relatively short period of time, the numbers available are somewhat limited. This is particularly true in Japan, where post-war souvenir items made for sale to occupation forces hardly caught the fancy of, or could be afforded by, the average Japanese in those lean years.

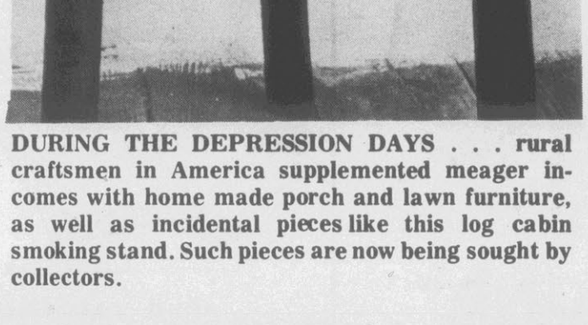

In the case of the Washington County rustic smoking stand, the family making this item, with the coming of World War II, migrated from eastern North Carolina to the shipyards of Newport News and Norfolk.

Because of the growing favor for anything nostagically representative of rural America, including the not so long gone days of the depression, items such as the home-made smoking stand are being eagerly sought by collectors.

A CIRCLE OF THREE FROGS . . . whose open mouths form a vase. This atypical Japanese ceramic piece, made in 1946, is an example of the ingenuity of Japanese craftsmen to meet a post-World War II souvenir demand among American occupational forces.

DURING THE DEPRESSION DAYS . . . rural craftsmen in America supplemented meager incomes with home made porch and lawn furniture, as well as incidental pieces like this log cabin smoking stand. Such pieces are now being sought by collectors.

"Have you ever met some droll folks? Folks with good brains in their noodles, but they do not use their noodles?" We Want Sunshine In Our Houses by Bernice Wells Carson and Ristiina Wigg is a lilting retelling of a Finnish tale about sun-loving droll folks who decided to build houses for themselves, but the houses had no windows. "What has happened?" asked the droll folks in their dark and dreary houses. "We want sunshine. How can we get sunshine in these houses?" After pondering the question, they came up with some surprising answers. Then a clever stranger showed them how to add windows. Sunshine streamed in, but the droll folks still were not using their noodles. If one window was good, why not have lots of windows? Why not knock down a wall? Two walls? Three? Colorful illustrations and a rhythmic text add to this humerous story.

Harlequin is a well-known figure in theatrical history. Harlequin and the Gift of Many Colors by Remy Charlip and Burton Supree tells the story of the orgin of Harlequin's familiar patchwork suit. The children of a little town called Bergamo anxiously wait for the Carnival where there will be dancing and singing and good things to eat. The best fun is that everyone will be wearing a splendid new costume. Poor Harlequin has no money for a new costume, and he is terribly unhappy. His friends come to his aid, and the costume that is created out of their love is the most beautiful anyone has ever seen.

Josephine's 'Magination by Arnold Dobrin is a delightfully satisfying tale for young readers. In Haiti, where Josephine and her mother live, the most important day of the week is market day. Every Friday Jsephone's mother carries a big basket of brooms on her head. Josephine always accompanies her mother, and each week she longs to buy a real doll. She never has the money, and the only dolls she plays with are the ones she makes from hibiscus flowers. One day Josephine accidentally bumps into a stranger wearing an enormous straw hat. There are enchanting little animals made of straw dangling from the brim of this fascinating hat. When Josephine asks the man who taught him to make the little animals, he laughs and says "Why child, nobody taught me how to do it. I just used my 'magination!" Josephine discovers that she has her own "magination" and ends up making a beautiful little doll, plus helping her mother earn extra money at the market.

NCSA Orchestra Tours Italy

ROME AP — The student orchestra of the North Carolina School of the Arts performed Saturday night in the Basilica of Massenzio for an audience that included U.S. Ambassador John Volpe.

The violin soloist was Eric Friedman.

The orchestra is making a 28 day tour overseas and will perform next at the Sion festival near Geneva, Switzerland. Last week the students played at the Palazzo Vecchio in Florence.

'74 Summer Festival Plans

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C.—The North Carolina Summer Festival Board of Directors voted unanimously yesterday afternoon to proceed with plans for a second festival season in Winston-Salem next summer.

Content of next year's season has not yet been decided but will be similar in format to the one this year, board president Mrs. Warren West said.

University Art To Go On Tour

NEW YORK (UPI) — University art collections, among the nation's richest, mostly are immobile—accessible only on home campuses.

But there's a break with tradition on the horizon. Eleven Midwestern university art collections are hitting the road—so to speak. Teamed up, they will figure in an exhibition opening in New York Oct. 4 at the Wildenstein and Co. Gallery. That's the first stop for this unusual roadshow.

The exhibit title: "Paintings from Midwestern University Collections: 17th to 20th Centuries." Seventy-six paintings are in the collection organized and sponsored by the Committee on Institutional Cooperation. That's a consortium of 11 Midwestern universities.

After the New York show closes the paintings will "tour" the participating universities, through April, 1975.

The member universities include: the University of Chicago, University of Michigan, Michigan State University, University of Minnesota, Northwestern University, Ohio State University, and University of Wisconsin. Purdue University will not be able to participate, contrary to original plans.

A fire destroyed the school's exhibition facilities.

The paintings on tour exhibit partially is sponsored by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

The educational consortium behind this unusual show was founded in 1958. It was established to improve the quality and efficiency of higher education through the pooling of certain resources of member institutions.

Other cooperative ventures have included the traveling scholar program and the study of bio-meteorology—the effect of weather on living organisms.

A Tar Heel Fisherman's Complete Guide

Salt Water Sport Fishing and Boating In North Carolina. 1973 edition, compiled and Published by Alexandria Drafting Company, Alexandria, Virginia. 146 pps, illustrated, 50 charts, photographs. $5.95.

For the fisherman who has almost everything, or the one with only a cane pole and a bait bucket, nothing could be more welcome than a copy of Salt Water Sport Fishing and Boating In North Carolina.

Comprehensive is the key word for this oversize (10½ by 14 inches) publication. The rich fishing grounds of creeks, rivers, bays, sound and oceans of coastal North Carolina are covered in detail on an easy to read, simple to follow group of charts scaled to about one inch per mile.

Clarity is another admirable feature. Land areas are shown in a pale yellow with shore areas of water and smaller streams in traditional water blue. Red is the color for major roads, names and symbols of boat launching ramps, and silhouettes of the many different fish waiting for the knowledgeable fisherman. Road numbers, secondary roads, place names of crossroads, town and villages are in black.

While it may seem superfluous to dwell at such length on format, anyone who has ever struggled to locate information on conventional charts or maps will grant the importance of having at hand a publication that is graphically clear and easy to read.

Fifty charts, each covering a two-page spread, cover eastern North Carolina from the Virginia to the South Carolina border, going inland as far as Gatesville, Plymouth, Washington and Castle Hayne.

Even old timers will likely be a little surprised at the variety of salt and fresh-water fish living in the waters of coastal North Carolina—flounder, yellow perch, bass (large and small mouth), pickerel, crappie and catfish, warmouth, croaker, pigfish tarpoon, sheepshead, mackerel and blues, sailfish, tuna, dolphin and wahoos—the list goes on and on, from hand sized perch to prize fighters of the Atlantic.

Another surprise in store is the diversity of information that is available to the fisherman about the water in which he fishes and the land bounding the water. Salt Water Sport Fishing and Boating In North Carolina has obviously not missed much on this score. Among useful information shown on the 50 charts are water depths, locations of piers, buoys, above water and submerged obstacles, various types of lights, fish trap areas, church steeples, towers and other prominent identifying landmarks, and bridges.

Restricted areas, boundaries of wild life preserves, the intercoastal waterway, clearance heights of bridges and overpasses, ferry schedules and load limits, the peak season for various fish in different areas—you name it and more than likely it will be on the charts.

While Salt Water Sport Fishing and Boating in North Carolina is slanted primarily to the fisherman — and incidentally the publication covers considerable territory in fresh water fishing — it is equally valuable to ecologists, photographers, map lovers, or that hard to define breed of people, "random ramblers."

With this book as a reference, it's a simple task to know where even the most remote dirt road will lead to. If the idea of tracing out any of the innumerable canals lacing eastern North Carolina intrigues you, this publication shows you where they are.

Readers fascinated by place names will find much to linger over and ponder about in names of waterways, land features and settlements — No Ache Island, Bonaparte Landing, Emperor Landing, Okisko, Palopato and Rockyhock Landing. From a long list of points, capes, and islands these have been noted: Bottle Run Point, Chain Shot Island, Dram Tree Point, Hogpen and Horsepen Points, Jews Quarter Island, Parched Corn Point, Poverty Point, Troublesome and True Blood Points.

Then there's Big Foot Slough Channel, Bumplanding Creek, Caw Caw Swamp, Chicamacomico Channel, Dipping Vat Creek, The Frying Pan, The Sauce Pan and The Gut, Hell Gate Creek, Mouse Harbor Ditch, Redhead Bay and Rollover Creek.

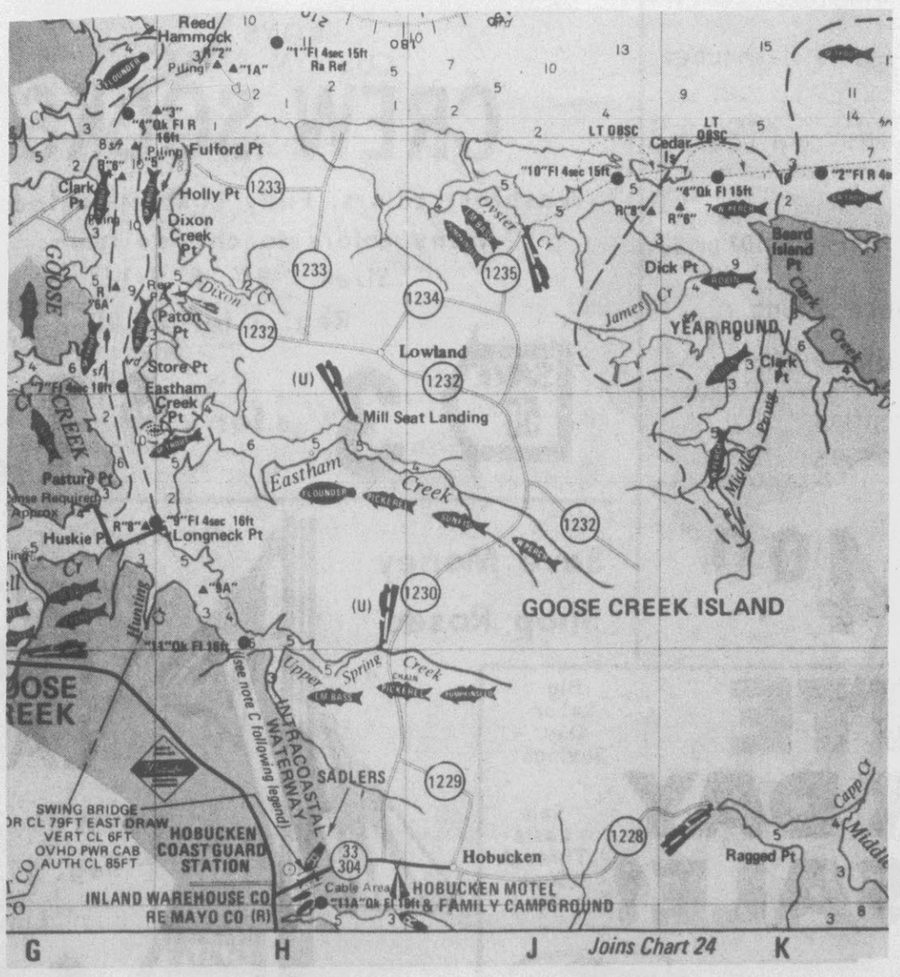

Rounding out the content of this publication are several bonus items — full color pages of fish, diagrams for making loops and knots, listings of saltwater fishing areas including wrecks, fishing piers, a hotel and motel directory, camping and marina listings, and safety rules.

All this is topped off by an opening 12 page spread of text and photographs showing record catches with tips on how to be a possible new record breaker.

Salt Water Sport Fishing and Boating In North Carolina is undoubtedly the most complete and the finest publication in its field.

The 1973 edition is available in local bookstores or can be ordered directly from the publisher — Alexandria Drafting Company, 417 Clifford Avenue, Alexandria, Virginia, 22305. Bookstore price is $5.95. By mail the price is $6.40, which includes postage and handling charges.

Rose Opens Season Friday At Washington

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants open their season Friday night in Washington against the Pam Pack, and most of the Rampant opposition is probably breathing a sigh of relief when they look at the Rose roster.

A couple of names don't appear — three of them in fact — that played a key role in the winning season Rose posted last year.

Those named are Al Hunter, Reggie Perkins and Phil Ragazzo. Hunter and Perkins have graduated, with the former now at Notre Dame continuing his football career. Ragazzo has moved to Chapel Hill where he'll finish his final year of high school.

Hunter and Perkins both rushed for over 1,000 yards last year, while Ragazzo was the team's center, punter, extra point kicker, and a top linebacker.

But now they are gone, and the Rampants must continue without them. And Coach Dave Bumgarner feels that they can, although the early going may be rough.

Only 15 lettermen return, including three offensive starters and six defensive ones, some of them doubling on both sides of the line.

"I still don't consider it a rebuilding year," Bumgarner said. "We do have a lot of experienced people who got in a lot of playing time."

Bumgarner feels that he has an adequate replacement for Perkins. "I'd be foolish to say that we can replace Hunter," he added. "You just don't get an athlete like him every year. He is one of the very few that you really can't replace."

But he's not worried about the running back positions as much as he is about the center spot. "Losing Phil hurts us not only because of his playing ability, but for the loss of his leadership, too."

In the offensive backfield, Bumgarner feels he has adequate ability and exceptional speed again. "We just need to get some experience to build confidence." In a scrimmage last week against Havelock, the Rampants picked up over 200 yards on the ground and hit on two of four passes. "We ran some plays from last year, but we didn't try much of the new stuff we've put in," the coach said. "We will still be using the wishbone."

Currently, the Rampants are starting Dickie Johnson at quarterback. Henry Trevathan and Mike Ball are backing him up. Trevathan ranks as the best passer in the group, but Johnson is a senior while Trevathan is only a sophomore, and the experience makes a big difference.

Nat Perkins and Keith Joyner are holding down the halfback slots, while Jackie Savage is at fullback. All three got quite a bit of experience last year. "Jackie can play Reggie's position without loss of quality. He's quick, fast, and he moves well. Both of the halfbacks also have speed, but they don't have the ability to run over the opposition the way Al did," Bumgarner said.

"I believe we will be stronger up the middle, but not quite as strong outside. This is mainly because of timing and experience and it should improve."

The coach is planning for the Rampants to throw the ball more this year, and he feels he has a couple of good receivers, several in fact. T.J. Payne and Mike Wallace are at the split end position, with Ronnie Rasberry and Curt Creech at tight end. "We're not definitely set here yet," Bumgarner said. "Rasberry is the only letterman, but Wallace caught two passes in the scrimmage game, and looked good."

The interior line returns only one letterman, guard Dave Mathias. Jeff Hagan and Ron Hunt, both tackles, come in from the junior varsity, while either Jay Jester or Tim Toates will draw the other guard assignment. "I haven't been really too pleased with the play there so far, and we'll still be looking."

The biggest problem, of course, is finding a replacement for Ragazzo. Jimmy Wilson, up from the junior varisty, probably would have drawn the assignment, but injured his knew and is out for the year. That throws the burden on sophomore Ed Connolly, who has stepped in. "It's not that he can't do the job, it's just that he's still inexperienced. He'll come around, we know," the coach said.

On defense, the Rampants will see a lot of familiar faces, people who are starting on offense. Mike Bryant, a tackle, is one who'll probably go one way. He's the biggest man on the team at 6-4, 270. The other tackle position will be handled alternately between Toates, Mathias and Hagan.

The ends will be Rasberry, Gilbert Cox, Jester and Hunt. "We'll be using them all to give everyone a chance to rest," the coach said.

Bumgarner feels that he has one of the best linebackers around in Harold Randolph. "He's a hard hitter, and he's seldom driven back." Across from him is Mike Brewington, one of the five sophomores, who has the knack of being at the right place at the right time, but still needs experience and technique. Savage also returns, backed up by Ronald Randolph, while Jerry Griffin is the fourth linebacker, with Vince Atkinson as backup.

The backfield could come from several people, all of whom could interchange the three positions. They include Johnson, Al Heath, Joyner, Mike Allen, Lindberg Morris, Perkins and Jack Jenkins.

If there is an outstanding strength to the Rampant game, it could be the kicking game. "If there is a college prospect on the team, it has to be Scott Wolcott, our kicker," Bumgarner said. "He's as good as any high school kid I've seen, and he's quick and accurate."

In the scrimmage game, with pressure, he kicked a field goal of 33 years. He kicked one in practice, with pressure, of 38 yards, and has kicked as far as 50 yards in practice. He'll also handle the kickoffs.

Paul Farmer is slated to handle the punting.

Bumgarner favors Wilson in the conference race, and picks Rocky Mount and Northern Nash as possible breakthroughs.

"If we have a good opening we could be in it. Our four conference games come later in the season, and our first four games could build a lot of experience and confidence if we perform well. We have too see that we can move the ball and score.

"But I don't think our kids are as interested in being the conference champions as they are in just winning. That means a lot to them — just winning."

Chinese Take Championship

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa. (AP) — Tainan City, Taiwan, won the Little League World Series Saturday on its third straight no-hitter, beating Tucson, Ariz. 12-0.

Huang Ching-Huy, who pitched a perfect game in the opener of the eight-team series, struck out 16 of 19 Tucson batters he faced, walking one and allowing another to reach base on an infield error.

Tucson southpaw Mike Fimbers held Taiwan scoreless for the first three innings, but yielded three in the fourth on a home run, an error, a single, a wild pitch and two passed balls.

Fimbers, who had suffered an attack of asthma was lifted in the fifth and replaced by Mike Martinez, who gave up nine runs in the last two innings on six hits.

Second baseman Scheng Cehng Pai-sheng, Taiwan's leading batter in the series, was 4-for-4 with a double and a home run. Haung and centerfielder Kuo Wen-li also hit roundtrippers, giving Taiwan an even dozen in its three games. It was the fifth batting mark shattered by the team.

Taiwan's 57 runs in games against Tucson, Bitburg (Germany AFB) and Tampa, Fla., broke the old series record of 34 set in 1962.

Huang paralyzed the Tucson team and amazed a estimated crowd at 32,000 with an overpowering fastball. He gave up a first-inning walk to centerfielder Tony Bravo with one out, stranding him by striking out the side.

In the fourth, Martinez reached first when Cheng bobbled a ground ball, but was erased on an attempted steal.

The Taiwan players were booed as they took the field, a result of their overwhelming performances the first two games. They were expected to run away with the game against Tucson.

But Fimbers' sharply dropping curve confused the Taiwan batters for the first time in the series. Until the fieldings errors of the fourth, it was anybody's game.

Volunteer Little League officials from the throughout the U.S. began complaining in midweek about Taiwan's domination of the Little League. Taiwan won the Senior League World Series, for 13 to 15-year-old boys, in Gary, Inc., last week.

Vikings Pillage Oakland, 34-10

By ERIC PREWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Safety Jeff Wright opened the Minnesota scoring with a 15-yard interception Saturday and rookie Chuck Foreman ran for two touchdowns in a 34-10 victory over Oakland. It kept the Vikings undefeated in National Football League exhibition play.

Foreman, the team's top draft pick from Miami, went six yards for a touchdown late in the third period and 29 for another early in the final quarter.

Wright's interception was the fifth of the preseason for Minnesota, 3-0. He stepped in front of receiver Fred Biletnikoff to steal the Ken Stabler pass and went easily into the end zone for the touchdown that tied the score at 7-7.

A few minutes earlier, Art Thoms blocked a field goal try by Minnesota's Fred Cox and Willie Brown ran 82 yards with the ball to give Oakland the first score.

Minnesota went ahead to stay in the second quarter on a one-yard run by Bill Brown that ended an 80-yard drive directed by quarterback Fran Tarkenton. Cox kicked a 20-yard field goal to give the Vikings a 17-7 halftime lead, and booted a 39-yarder near the end of the game.

George Blanda kicked a 27-yard field goal for Oakland, making the score 17-10, before Minnesota pulled away on Foreman's touchdowns.

First Scrimmage Typical

East Carolina University's Pirates put on their hitting clothes Saturday afternoon for their first full scale scrimmage, and Coach Sonny Randle viewed it with mixed emotions.

"It was a typical first scrimmage," Randle said. "There were some bright spots, but overall I believe that we are ahead of last year."

Randle said that he was fairly well satisfied with the drills but noted that both the offense and defense were feeling their way during the early part of the scrimmage. "They performed exceptionally well during the latter part of the scrimmage," the coach said. "I think that we ran out of gas a little early, so we still have some conditioning work to do."

Randle termed the first week of drills excellent until Thursday. That's when the Pirates put on their pads and hit for the first time. "It just destroyed out minds to go into heavy equipment," Randle said. "I think that it's just the transition. We haven't been doing any hitting since the spring and it's just a question of getting back into it.

The coach still believes that the team is further along than last year, however. "We have a more mature team than last year, I believe," he said. "With as many seniors, we should be more mature."

The team reported in better shape this year, too. Last year, Randle put the team through a rugged conditioning program, and while this year's program is no lighter, the number of players who are falling by the wayside is a good deal less.

"We've lost some, certainly, but these are mostly walkons who really didn't come to play football. All of the people who really want to play are still out her."

One injury has marked the season already, however. Reserve running back Al Boudreau suffered an injured ligament in his ankle and will be out for the season.

Randle didn't single out too many people for their work in the scrimmage. "The people that we expected to perform well were the ones who did," he said. "Of course, (Carlester) Crumpler did a fine job, looking fairly sharpe after missing the spring. I also thought Carl Summerell did a fine job. When he's out there, he makes things happen." Randle also noted that reserve quarterback Bob Bailey is now pushing Tom Chipok for the number two job.

Kenny Strayhorn, running behind Crumpler, also had a fine afternoon, breaking one long run.

"We've had several freshmen to look good," Randle said. "But we don't expect that any of them will be breaking into the starting lineup." He had praise for defensive tackle Nicholas Bullock, defensive end Lev Kritsky, defensive pack Reggie Pinkney, punter Jonathan Deming, and running back Raymond Jones.

"It's really kind of hard to single out any of the linemen until we see the films," Randle said. "A lot of what they do just isn't caught until the films."

Depth is still the biggest problem for the Pirates, and Randle hasn't found that it's improved much over the first week.

"We'll continue two-a-day drills next week, with a light scrimmage Wednesday or Thursday. Then, we'll have our last heavy scrimmage next Saturday."

The following Satruday, the Bucs will open the season in Raleigh against N.C. State. "Three weeks is never enough time, and this year we have to ready for one of the best teams in the country—not VMI. I'm not cutting down VMI, but this just isn't anything like last year. We've got to be ready to go right away against the best. We can't build to it."

Lee Upsets Jack; Tom Still In

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Lee Trevino whipped defending champion Jack Nicklaus 4 and 3 in the U.S. Match Play Championships Saturday, while Bert Greene moved into first place in the other half of pro golf's doubleheader, the L&M Open.

Trevino, who said he wasn't playing as well as he liked to, eliminated Nicklaus in the afternoon quarter-finals after Jack was forced to rally to handle the first-round challenge of outsider Joe Porter.

In the other quarter-finals, John Schroeder crushed Buddy Allin 5 and 4, former match play champ DeWitt Weaver defeated rookie longshot Artie McNickle 2 and 1 and British Open champ Tom Weiskopf beat J.C. Snead 4 and 3.

That set up these semifinal matches for Sunday morning: Trevino vs. Schroeder and Weaver vs. Weiskopf.

The finals, with the winner pulling down $40,000, are scheduled Sunday afternoon, immediately after the last 18 holes of the $100,000 L&M Open, a regular stroke play event being played simultaneously on the same 6,786-yard, par-71 MacGregor Downs Country Club course.

Greene, a journeyman who has yet to win in seven years on the pro tour, swept into first in the L&M with a four-under-par 67 and had a one-stroke advantage with his 54-hole total of 208, five under.

Former PGA champion Dave Stockton and Lanny Wadkins, winner of the USI Classic last week, followed at 210. Each had a 70. Wadkins led or shared the lead through most of the day, but dropped back when he found the water on the doubly dangerous 18th hole and made double bogey.

Trevino had a surprisingly easy time in handling Nicklaus, who had some putting problems. Lee, winner of two titles this season, played the front nine in five-under-par 31 and had Jack four-down at that point.

Then Nicklaus bogeyed the 12th, three-putting, to go five down. His birdie on the 13th just postponed the inevitable.

Nicklaus, winner of five titles including the PGA this season, was never in the match played before the massive, milling mob that was loudly pro-Trevino.

Lee punched an eight-iron to within three feet for a birdie on the first hole and dropped a 25-footer on the fourth to go 2-up. Both birdied the fifth and Lee went to 3-up when Nicklaus three-putted the eighth.

Nicklaus made birdie on the par-five ninth—but Trevino reached the green with a six-wood second shot, ran in a 15-foot putt and had an eagle. That put Nicklaus four-down and it really ended with his three-putt bogey on the 12th.

Weiskopf and Schroeder—who finished with a string of four consecutive 3s—won handily in the quarter-finals, but Weaver had to work hard to oust the upset-minded McNickle.

The mustachioed rookie fashioned the biggest form-reversal of the day when he ousted U.S. Open champ Johnny Miller 2 and 1 in the morning's first round.

Masters' champion Tommy Aaron was another victim, losing to Allin 2-up.

George Archer, Grier Jones and Jerry Heard—all seeded players off their high standing on last year's money-winning list—also lost in the first round. Schroeder defeated Jones, Weaver beat Archer and Snead dropped a six-foot birdie putt on the 22nd hole to outlast Heard.

Veteran Dan Sikes took Trevino to the 18th hole before Sikes pumped one in the water and let Lee escape with a 1-up decision.

The obscure Porter, who has never threatened in five unimpressive years on the tour, had Nicklaus three-down after six holes before Jack got untracked and managed a 2-up victory.

Dick Allen Is Out For Season

By JOE MOOSHIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "I'm glad they made the announcement because I was getting bugged constantly about when I'd be able to play again," said Dick Allen Saturday after the Chicago White Sox revealed the famed slugger was through for the season.

The White Sox, confirming an earlier Associated Press story, disclosed the decision on Allen Saturday.

"I'm not going anywhere, I'm going to stay right here and do whatever they want me to do and help in any way I can," said Allen. "We've got a lot of kids on the team and maybe I can help a few of them like (second baseman) Jorge Orta, who is going to be a good one."

Allen, the American League's Most Valuable Player and the highest paid player in baseball with an annual salary of $225,000, suffered a broken left leg in June.

With Allen out of the lineup and other injuries hitting the club, the Sox, who led the American League West by 4½ games early in June, are virtually out of the race. They are in fifth place, 16 games behind the Oakland A's.

Allen, who copped most valuable honors a year ago with 37 home runs, 113 runs batted in and a .308 average, suffered the injury in a first base collision with Mike Epstein of the California Angels June 28.

A few days later he was placed on the disabled list but tried to make a comeback July 31 in a game in which he collected three hits. However, except for a couple of appearances as a pinch batter, he has not played and most of the time he has not been with the club.

"I talked to him on the phone this morning," said Tanner. "I doubt seriously he can play again this season.

"What good would it be if we put him in the lineup just to say that Dick Allen is playing? He might favor the leg to the point of suffering other injuries."

Allen, who despite his lengthy absence, still leads the club in homers with 16, was not immediately available for comment. His current .316 average also is high for the club.

He played in 72 games which, according to his estimated $250,000 salary, amounts to $3,125 per game.

Blue Shuts Out New York, 4-0

OAKLAND (AP) — Sal Bando's solo home run in the fifth inning backed Vida Blue's four-hit pitching and the Oakland A's blanked the New York Yankees 2-0 Saturday.

The victory was Oakland's 12th in its last 13 games, while the yankees dropped their fifth in a row.

Blue, 15-7, gave up two hits in the first seven innings and two more in the eighth in winning for the sixth straight time.

It was Blue's fourth straight complete game.

The only New York hits were Mike Hegan's sun-aided triple in the fourth, a checked-swing single by Gene Michael in the fifth and singles by Michael and Matty Alou in the eighth.

Bando''s home run, off loser Pat Dobson, 7-5, and was his 22nd of the baseball campaign.

The A's added a run in the eighth on Bert Campaneris' triple and Deron Johnson's sacrifice fly.

Indians Win, 6-5

CLEVELAND (AP) — Buddy Bell's second home run of the game, a leadoff blast in the ninth inning, gave the Cleveland Indians a 6-5 victory over the Texas Rangers Saturday.

Bell unlocked a 5-5 tie with his 11th homer of the baseball campaign, a shot over the left field wall at Municipal Stadium.

The Rangers tied the game 5-5 on Vic Harris' run-scoring single in the eighth.

Earlier, John Ellis drove in two key runs to help the Indians take a 5-4 lead.

U.S. Regains Walker Cup

BROOKLINE, Mass. (AP) — The United States withstood Great Britain's tremendous challenge in head-to-head singles matches and regained the coveted Walker Cup Saturday in the 24th biennial amateur golf classic, played at The Country Club.

The British, trailing 10-6 and needing 6½ of the final eight points in the singles, led in six of the matches after nine holes in the afternoon. The other two matches were tied.

However, United States ace Vinny Giles helped start the British downfall with a 12-foot birdie putt on the 18th green, enabling him to halve his match with Britain's Charles Green.

Then the Americans clinched the championship as Martin West, 25, got a birdie three for a 2-up victory over Michael King.

West sank a birdie putt from eight feet on the final hole to defeat King and assure the United States of a victory. It boosted the Americans' total to 12½ points with three matches unfinished.

Woody's Ramblin's

The appointment Friday of Kenneth Germann, athletic director at Columbia University, as Southern Conference commissioner, will bring new life to the league, hopefully.

The Southern Conference during the past few years has remained somewhat of a loosely connected group, with various admission policies and ideals in athletics.

It ranges from East Carolina and Richmond, with tough football programs, to Davidson and Furman, who have put most of their eggs into the basketball program.

And it lacks a round-robin in about every sport. Scheduling is so bad in some areas that teams like the East Carolina swimmers can hardly get anyone in the league to compete against them in a dual meet.

Hopefully, the new commissioner will prove to be strong enough to take the conference and make it a "true conference" with interleague play the chief ida rather than a gateway to post-season play.

Clarence, Stasavich, athletic director at East Carolina, who served as a member of the committee which chose Germann, feels he will be a good leader.

"We were contacted by about 68 people," Stasavich said of the hunt for a new commissioner. "We interviewed about 14."

He said the new commissioner knows a lot of people—"A lot of the right people," who will be able to help the conference on a national level.

"I think he will bring much stronger leadership to the conference. He has tremendous administrative experience, and he got an excellent reference from the president of Columbia, as well as from a lot of other people."

Stasavich said that moving the office of the conference to Charlotte was no big thing. "It's up to the commissioner where the conference office will be located. In all probability, he'll also have the branches of the conference brought together."

Stas said that in the past, there have been three Southern offices. One, maintained in Richmond, was for the commissioner. Another was in Charleston, S.C., where the league's treasurer, lived. The other was in Arlington, Va., where Dallas Shirley, the assistant to the commissioner, news bureau director and officials chief, lived.

'I believe he'll bring all these functions into the Charlotte office," Stasavich said.

The Russians have made a big play for the Olympics, and as far as they are concerned, they probably feel they have it made.

But their treatment of the Isreali team, and the banning of Russian Jews from the spectator area didn't help them internationally.

And their "official reprimand" of Cuba after its riotous fight with the Americans in basketball didn't improve matters. Despite the fact that the Russian fans present had hooted Cuba off the court after the fight.

They still have a long way to go before they can be awarded an event like the Olympics.

Only the background of the athletes, who have few other duties but to prepare for such competition, dulls their shine.

In case you haven't noticed the football season is upon us. Rose High School will be getting an early start of the rest Friday night when they travel to Washington to meet old rivals the Pam Pack.

All the rest of the high schools in the Pitt-Martin-Greene area, including one newcomer, Jamesville, will be joining in the following Friday.

And then on Saturday, East Carolina and State battle in the first collegiate game of the year.

East Carolina will be playing all of its home games this year at night, except for the traditional afternoon Homecoming game, this season against Richmond.

Only three of the six away games will be in the afternoon. They play Davidson at 2 p.m., The Citadel at 1:30 p.m. and the University of North Carolina t 1:30 p.m.

One reason for the swing toward night games, espcially at home, is to get away from competition with the Big Four games, and to offset the problem that so many people in the area work on Saturday afternoons. East Carolina was greatly disappointed in the crowd at the Dayton game last year. That was the last home game, and came right after East Carolina had won the Southern Conference championship. A large crowd was expected, but the game was played opposite two other top draws in the state, and cut the gate to minimal

Many people who attended one of the two other games said later than had East Carolina been playing at night, they would have attended.

The change has been made this year, giving them the opportunity to do so.

The Bucs have been wanting to improve their lighting at Ficklen Stadium for the past several years. This past legislature authorized the purchase of bonds for the purchase and installation of top-flight lighting on the field.

But the money processes grind slowly. Cliff Moore, vice chancellor for business affairs, is in the process of working the bonds out—their sale and the method of paying them off. He estimates that it will be the 1975 season before the new lights are installed, although he hopes that he is being too conservative.

RICHMOND, va. (AP) — "I hope they don't pick us," said Sonny Randle of East Carolina's defending champion Pirates when told Southern Conference football coaches in their preseason poll had been wrong on the winner the last three years.

But Randle will have to live with the "kiss of death," for the coaches in a poll conducted by The Associated Press rate the Pirates narrow favorites over Richmond's Spiders with William and Mary's Indians a close third.

In the poll, in which coaches were not allowed to rate their own teams, East Carolina received five first-place votes to three for Richmond, which finished second last year. The Pirates were named second on two ballots, the Spiders second on four.

William and Mary received five votes for third place and picked up the two second-place ballots East Carolina and Richmond couldn't receive because of the ban on coaches voting for their own teams.

On a 7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis, East Carolina received 47 points to 45 for Richmond and 37 for William and Mary.

Far behind the leaders were The Citadel's Bulldogs with 29 points, Appalachian State's Mountaineers with 24, Virginia Military's Keydets with 19, Davidson's Wildcats with 13 and Furman's Paladins with 10.

It's no secret why the coaches were so unanimous on the top three.

East Carolina returns 16 starts, Richmond 17 and William and Mary 18—and among them they have 13 of the 18 returning All-Southern selections from a 1972 all-star team that had just six seniors.

"For me to think East Carolina is a gut cinch to win another Southern Conference championship is not right," says Randle, starting his third season. "Richmond and William and Mary also have everybody coming back. It's the finest Richmond team I've seen in 15 years—a lot better than a year ago."

The whole bundle could come down to the last three weeks of the season—William and Mary at East Carolina Nov. 3, Richmond at East Carolina Nov. 10, Richmond at William and Mary Nov. 17.

What Randle fears most, however, is the Pirates' start—road games at North Carolina State, Southern Mississippi and Southern Illinois. He says "we might be 0-3 before we play a conference opponent, but our No. 1 goal is to win the conference championship."

Randle has six all-Southern holdovers—188-pounds senior tight end Stan Eure, 230-pound senior offensive guard Greg Troupe, 209-pound senior quarterback Carl Summerell, 210-pound senior running back Carlester Crumper, 204-pound junior linebacker Danny Kepley and 200-pound senior defensive back Rusty Markland.

Crumpler, named the football player and athlete of the year in the conference last year, broke four league season records—340 carries, 1,309 yards rushing, 17 touchdowns and 102 points. Summerell passed for 12 touchdowns while amassing 1,700 yards in total offense.

There are three All-Southern holdovers at Richmond—215-pound senior linebacker Pat Kelly, 195-pound senior defensie back Bob Loprete and 195-pound back Bob Loprete and 195-pound punter Jay Jones, who doubles as a wide receiver.

But the pride of Coach Frank Jones, starting his eighth season, is 235-pound senior gullback Barty Smith, an All-Southern choice as a sophomore who won the Jacobs blocking trophy for the league in 1972.

Jones frankly admits "we're going to have a good football team. We think we have better speed at most positions."

"I know our football team will be better," says Root, beginning his second season at William and Mary. "Whether our record will be better remains to be seen."

Root's All-Southern returnees are 235-pound senior offensive guard Stan Victor, 240-pound senior center Joe Montgomery, 230-pound senior defensive end Ron Chappell and 185-pound junior placekicker Terry Regan, who will run No. 1 or No. 2 for the Indians at tailback.

But the Indians' most exciting performer may be 175-pound junior quarterback Bill Deery, who ran for 823 yards and passed for 860 last season. And 208-pound senior Dick Pawlewicz will be used as a tight end, wide receiver and the third back in the "stacked I"—"I wish I had four more of him," says Root.

His big loss is two-time All-Southern wide receiver David Knight—"You take David Knight out of our offense, you take out a super player. I think of every game when he made a super play that turned the momentum one."

"We've probably got the most inexperienced team returning in the conference," says Bobby Ross of The Citadel, one of the league's two new coaches. There are just nine Bulldog starters back.

One of the keys may be Harry Lynch, an All-Southern quarterback as a sophomore who was victimized by a lack of good receivers last year, then suffered a military suspension in the spring.

Two other quarterbacks are running ahead of Lunch right now, and Ross says Lynch "has to win it back."

All-Southern defensive tackle Ron Reynolds, a 220-pound senior, is back at Appalachian, where Coach Jim Brakefield says "we think over'all we're going to be stronger" in his third season. "The biggest question is our quarterbacks."

Appalachian plays just four league goes and must count one outside opponent—yet to be designated—to be eligible for the title. But the Mountaineers don't have to play Richmond or William and Mary.

"The Key to our whole program is that we've got to be an improved football team," says Bob Thalman, who in his second season last year at VMI produced two victories for the first time in five years.

Ringleaders for the Keydets include 236-pound junior All-Southern offensive tackle Andy Dearman; junior quarterback Tom Schultze, who passed for 1,728 yards last season; sophomore wide receiver Ronnie Moore, who caught 40 passes last year; and senior defensive back "Mean Gene" Williams.

All-Southern wide receiver Walt Walker, a 170-pound senior who led the conference with 62 receipts for 1,031 yards, is the top holdover at Davidson, where Dave Fagg is starting his fourth year.

The Wildcats have 14 or 15 starters returning but lack depth. Fagg says "we want to win football games so bad that I can't stand it."

Art Baker of Furman is the other new coach, and he says "I think I took the job because they told me I couldn't win."

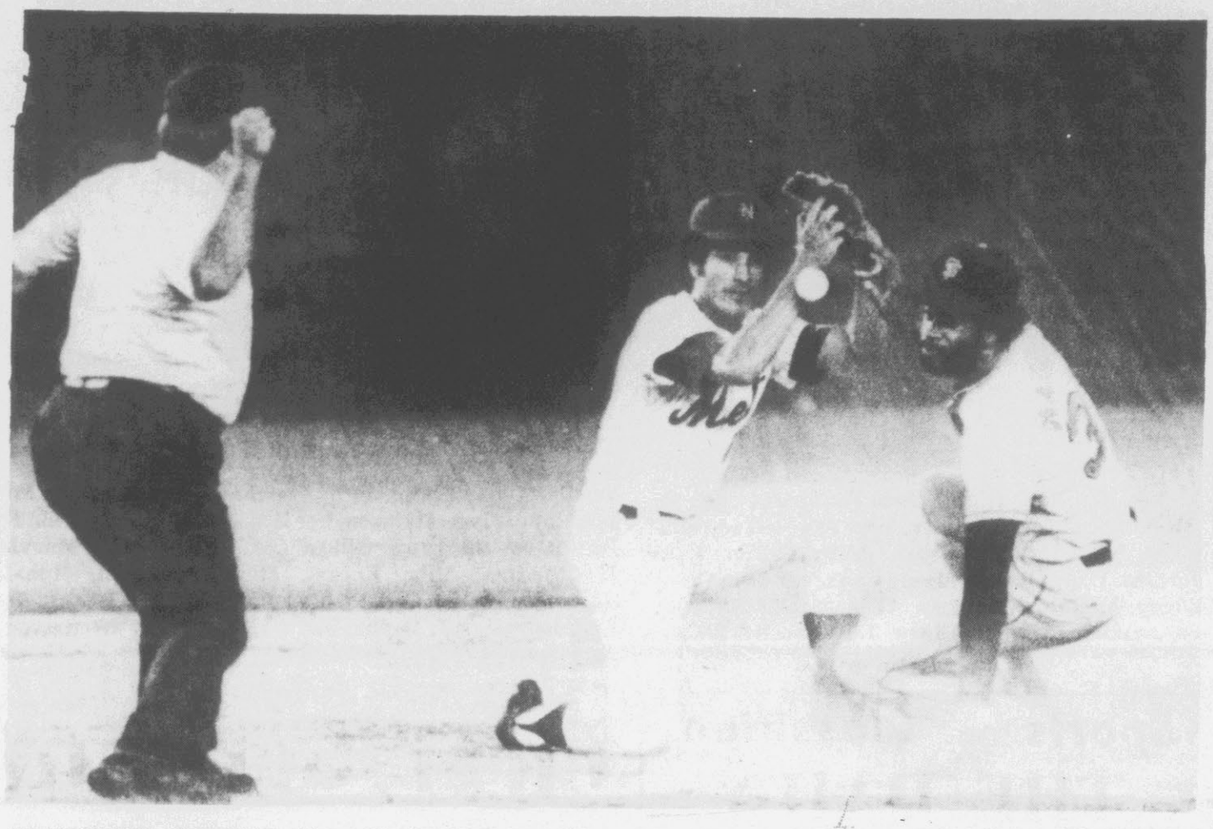

He'll have two All-Southern holdovers, 235-pound senior offensive tackle Dan Utley and 175-pound junior defensive back Vince Perone. The key man on offense is 175-pound senior halfback Donny Griffin, who gained 583 yards last season.

OpenHouse Scheduled

An open house will be held at the Pirate Club Building on the grounds of Ficklen Stadium for all prospective members on Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Pirate Club Director Ira Norfolk said all prospective members in the club are invited to drop by the building, located behind the press box side of the stadium and see the facilities. Advantages and privledges of the various ranks of membership will be explained, and new members can pick out their seat locations for the fall season.

The club currently has 955 members, and Norfolk said a goal of 1,000 is hoped to be reached shortly. Over $150,000 in contributions have been collected so far this year.

Northrup Keys Detroit To 4-2 Win Over Chisox For Jim Perry

CHICAGO (AP) — Jim Northrup's two-run single keyed a three-run second inning that led the Detroit Tigers to a 4-2 decision over the Chicago White Sox in a nationally televised baseball game Saturday.

Chicago pitcher Stan Bahnsen, who came within one out of pitching a no-hitter in his last start Tuesday at Cleveland, suffered a costly wild spree in the second inning.

With one out Dick McAuliffe walked and Norm Cash followed with a single. Bahnsen, 16-15, retired Duke Sims, but walked both Aurelio Rodriguez and Ed Brinkman to force in a run. Northrup then delivered his clutch single to give the Tigers a 3-0 lead.

The White Sox scored their first run off winner Jim Perry, 12-11, in the third inning on singles by Jorge Orta, Bucky Dent and Pat Kelly and a sacrifice fly by Bill Sharp.

A leadoff home run by Carlos May chased Perry in the ninth and Detroit relief ace John Hiller preserved the victory for the Tigers.

Perry scatterd 10 hits and didn't issue a walk before leaving but benefited from some fine defensive work. Double plays got him out of trouble in the second and sixth innings. Dick Sharon made a fine, inning-ending catch on a fly to right by Dent when the White Sox had two men aboard in the seventh.

Bahnsen avoided additional trouble in the second inning when he got Stanley to ground out. He gave up harmless singles to McAuliffe in the third and Brinkman in the fourth.

After the Tigers had scored their unearned run in the fifth, Bahnsen retired the next two men before walking Norm Cash. Sims struck out to end the inning.

With two out in the sixth, Northrup went all the way to second on Bahnsen's throwing error. Stanley then hit a fly deep to right center only to have Sharp make a great, running catch.

The Tigers put runners on first and third with two out in the seventh on singles by Willie Horton and Cash but Eddie Fisher relieved Bahnsen and fanned Sims to end the threat.

Games Must Be Given Priority

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. Athletes gorged themselves on hot dogs, apple juice and rich eclairs as guests of the U.S. Embassy Saturday and counted the medals they won and didn't win at the world University Games.

Competitors and officials agreed they hadn't won enough medals, and stressed that the United States must strengthen its commitment if it is to continue to participate in these biennial mini-Olympics.

"We have to change our priorities at home," said Joe Vigil of Adams State College, head coach of the track and field team. "We had a series of international trips going while trying to get a team together for this show.

"The result was that the athletes who tried to do both came here tired and past their peak. Some of the best ones—those who could have won medals—elected to stay home."

The stay-at-homes included miler Marty Liquori and Olympic gold medalists Frank Shorter and Dave Wottle.

Nicholas Rodis, president of the U.S. Collegiate Sports Council, said that the time has past that the University Games can be considered a casual sports festival for the creation of international goodwill.

"The Soviet Union threw its finest athletes—its Olympic and national champions—into these games," said Rodis, athletic director at Brandeis College. "We will have to do likewise if we want to maintain our stature in world sports.

"There's no doubt that the war between the big sports groups hurt us. We must all get together and work for the country's best interests."

The reference was to the seemingly unending feud between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

New York Nips Giants By 1-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Bradley fired a four-hitter and Garry Maddox drove in the game's only run, leading the San Francisco Giants to a 1-0 baseball victory over the New York Mets Saturday.

Bradley, 11-11, outdueled New York ace Tom Seaver, 15-7, who gave up seven hits in eight innings, including Maddox' run-producing single in the first.

After Bobby Bonds popped out for the second out, Seaver issued an intentional walk to Willie McCovey. Maddox then drove home Matthews with a single to right.

The only hits off Bradley were a fourth-inning double by Felix Millan, sixth-inning singles by Millan and Rusty Staub and a ninth-inning single by Cleon Jones.

Tommy John Sticks Around For End Of 3-0 Victory Over Phils

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Tommy John's parents must have known something.

After all, they didn't give him a last name.

John has started 53 games the past two seasons and has been around to accept his teammates game-ending handshakes only four times.

No. 4 came Friday night when John pitched a three-hitter and struck out seven in hurling the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 3-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Dodgers supported John with an unearned run in the fourth and two more in the sixth on successive triples by Willie Crawford and Von Joshua followed by Bill Russell's sacrifice fly.

Elsewhere in the National League, St. Louis edged Cincinnati 5-4 in 11 innings; New York squeezed by San Francisco 1-0 in 10 innings; San Diego outscored Montreal 5-3; Atlanta overcame Pittsburgh 3-2 and Houston topped Chicago 4-2.

Cardinals 5, Reds 4

Jose Cruz's 11th inning homer snapped a 4-4 tie and provided the Cardinals with a 5-4 victory.

Cruz' 10th homer won the game for Diego Segui, 6-4, who pitched in and out of trouble in the Reds 10th.

Braves 3, Pirates 2

If you add up plusses and minuses, Dusty Baker had two home runs—the one he took away from Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner and the game-winning, two-run blast he picked up for himself in the bottom of the ninth. The second one was decisive, rallying the Braves to a 3-2 victory over the Pirates.

Astros 4, Cubs 2

Jerry Reuss registered his 14th triumph of the season in Houston's 4-2 decision over Chicago and is on his way to a 17-victory season, maybe.

Reuss, who matched his highest victory total for one season, figures he has six or seven starts left.

Doug Rader's two-run single, Bob Gallagher's sacrifice fly and Skip Jutze's RBI single accounted for the Houston runs.

Padres 5, Expos 3

The Padres won't finish anywhere near first place, but they can achieve some consolation from keeping others out of there.

San Diego, 31½ games off the Dodgers' front-running pace, are almost certain to finish far south in the National League's Western Division race and next year the team is moving east.

Mets 1, Giants 0

After holding their own against the Reds and Dodgers, the Mets took the series opener against the Giants and are down 6½ games from the first place Cardinals in the NL East.

In the American League it was: Baltimore 6, Kansas City 0; Cleveland 11, Texas 5; Detroit 6, Chicago 5; Minnesota 3, Milwaukee 0; Oakland 5, New York 1 and Boston 3, California 2.

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Baltimore Orioles are flying rings around the rest of the American League East and haven't come down to earth yet.

"Now, we need another one," said an unquenchable Earl Weaver after his soaring Birds beat the Kansas City Royals 6-0 Friday night for their 11th straight victory.

The longest winning streak in major league baseball this season has given the Orioles a pretty high perch in their division race.

Involved in a tight, four-team fight as recently as August 14, the Orioles hold a 4-game lead over the Boston Red Sox, 4½ over the Detroit Tigers and have virtually knocked the New York Yankees out of contention—sending the skidding Bombers 7 games to the rear.

"We're not home safe yet," said Weaver. "We've got to avoid injuries the rest of the way."

The Oakland A's tightened their grip on the American League West lead by beating the Yankees 5-1. The victory gave the A's a three-game lead over the Royals.

In the other American League games, the Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox 6-5; the Red Sox whipped the California Angels 3-2; the Cleveland Indians ripped the Texas Rangers 11-5 and the Minnesota Twins blanked the Milwaukee Brewers 3-0.

A's 5, Yankees 1

Jim "Catfish" Hunter and Darold Knowles combined on a five-hitter to pace Oakland to a 5-1 decision over New York. Hunter, who suffered a broken thumb at the All-Star game last month, gave up his only run in the fifth inning on a double by Graig Nettles, a walk and a single by Gene Michael.

Tigers 6, White Sox 5

Norm Cash hit a game-tying home run and Tony Taylor singled home the game-winner as Detroit struck for three runs in the ninth inning to defeat Chicago 6-5.

Red Sox 3, Angels 2

Ben Oglivie knocked in the tie-breaking run with a sacrifice fly after an error opened the door in the sixth inning, giving Boston a 3-2 victory over California.

Indians 11, Rangers 5

Frank Duffy hit two home runs, his first of the season, to spark Cleveland to an 11-5 romp over Texas. Duffy hit a three-run homer in the second inning and a solo blast in the fifth.

Twins 3, Brewers 0

GermannAppointedNew Southern Commissioner

CHARLOTTE, N.C.(AP)—Kenneth G. Germann, athletic director at Columbia University for the last five years, has been chosen as the new commissioner of the Southern Conference, a post he didn't know was open at first.

Since last spring the conference had been looking for a successor to 70-year-old Lloyd Jordan, commissioner for the last 13 years. Jordan had indicated he didn't want to renew his contract, which expires Dec. 31.

Germann, who was born 52 years ago, the same year as the conference, said in an interview in Charlotte Friday, "I didn't know the conference was looking for a commissioner. They wrote a letter to Fred Shabel (athletic director at Penn) asking if he was interested or if he would recommend someone. He sent them my name. "Had I known they were looking, I would have aplied immediately myself."

Kenneth G. Germann

Germann will take over the first of next year. He said he would move conference headquarters to Charlotte from Richmond, Va.

Five of the eight teams in the conference are in the Carolinas. They are Appalachian State, East Carolina, The Citadel, Davidson and Furman. The other three are in Virginia–Richmond, Virginia Military Institute and William and Mary.

Before going to Columbia, Germann was assistant athletic director at Rutgers University for seven years. He played football and basketball at Columbia, and coached its freshman football team from 1157 to 1961 before going to Rutgers.

A Southern Conference committee had interviewed 35 candidates for commissioner. Dr. Francis Bonner, a conference leader and faculty chairman of athletics at Furman, said that Germann was superbly qualified and had the unanimous approval of all the athletic directors in the conference.

Germann said, "I hope I can make a considerable contribution in seeing that the conference continues its fine traditions and improves along the way."

Crowd Told Him He Was Nearing Record

By BOB FIRESTONE JR.
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Olympian John Hencken of the Santa Clara Swim Team knew he was heading for a world record Friday in the men's 200 meter breaststroke because of the response from the crowd.

"Yeah, you can tell when the crowd starts cheering you at the 100," said Hencken, who set a world record of 2:20.523 in the event in the National Amateur Athletic Union Long Course Swimming and Diving Championships at Louisville's Plantation Country Club.

"They start yelling every time your head comes up," said the 19-year-old Hencken, who will be a sophomore this fall at Stanford University. "You hear it, then you know."

Hencken's mark broke his own previous standard of 2:21.55 set when he won the event in last year's Olympics in Munich.

Hencken's record was the second world mark set since swimming competition began Wednesday. Keena Rothhammer of the Santa Clara Swim Club set a world record Wednesday in the women's 400-meter freestyle at 4:18.071.

In other competition Friday, triple Olympic gold medal winner Melissa Belote of the Solotar Swim Team of Silver Spring, Md., set an American record in the women's 100-meter backstroke in 1:05.728, breaking her own mark of 1:05.78 set in the event last year when she won a gold medal in the Olympics.

Friday's competition completed action in diving but eight events are scheduled for tonight in swimming.

They include men's and women's 1500-meter freestyle, 100meter freestyle, 200-meter individual medley and 400-meter freestyle relays.

Santa Clara Swim Team led in women's point standings going into today's action with 415 points, Huntington Beach Aquatic Club was second at 132, and Lakewood was third with 121.

The Gatorade Swim Club led in men's point standings with 234 points, followed by the Santa Clara club with 219 and the Marin Aquatic Club of San Rafael, Calif., was third at 133.

Rocky Mount Gains Finals

SALISBURY, N.C. (AP)—Gadsden, Ala., met Calhoun, Ga., Saturday to determine which will be eliminated from the American Legion Southeastern Regional Baseball Tournament.

Rio Piedras, Puerto Rico, then took on the winner of that contest in a game Saturday night.

Rocky Mount, N.C., earned a crucial day of rest in the tournament by defeating defending champion Rio Piedras, 3-2, Friday night to remain the only undefeated team in the double elimination event.

Rocky Mount managed the victory with three runs on a pitcher's error in the third inning. Both teams were scoreless going into the inning and Rocky Mount had two outs with the bases loaded.

When Rio Piedras pitcher Arturo Bello attempted to pick off Rocky Mount's Tommy Crocker at second base, he threw the ball far beyond his centerfielder and all three Rocky Mount runners scored.

In loser's bracket action Friday, Gadsden defeated Vero Beach, Fla., 8-7, to eliminate Vero Beach. And Calhoun eliminated Aiken, S.C. with a 2-0 win.

Gadsden held a 5-0 lead until the fifth inning, when Vero Beach exploded with seven runs. Gadsden trailed 7-6 going into the seventh inning, when Bobby Pope drove in two runs with a single to win the game.

The championship game will be played Sunday between Rocky Mount and the survivor among the three teams playing Saturday. If Rocky Mount should lose Sunday, another game will be played Monday.

The winner of the regional tournament will travel to Lewiston, Idaho, for the national tournament starting late next week.

Error In Story On Deer Hunting

RALEIGH — Deer hunters in eastern North Carolina will not be able to shoot female (doe) deer in either Pender or Duplin counties, or on Holly Shelter, Penderlea and Angloa Bay Game Lands in these two counties during the coming season, even though the 1973-74 Hunting and Trapping Regulations booklet doesn't specifically say so.

The situation results from a conflict between local laws and statewide hunting regulations concerning either-sex deer hunting.

A local law passed by the General Assembly specifically prohibits the taking of female (doe) deer in Pender and Duplin counties. The N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission, therefore, is officially amending the 1973-74 Hunting and Trapping Regulations booklet so that these regulations comply with state law.

For hunters who wish to make a note of the change in their hunting regulations, section (c) on page 13 should be amended to read that "deer of either sex may be taken on all Game Lands or portions thereof (except Holly Shelter, Penderlea and Angola Bay) where there is any open deer season."

This, of course, means that doe deer may not be shot on any of those three Game Lands, nor anywhere else in Pender and Duplin counties.

Thompson Sparkles In Leading U.S. To Basketball's Summit

By GEOFFREY MILLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The world won't question it again in a hurry. The United States reigns as king of world amateur basketball.

A great young American team, averaging 19 years of age, beat the Soviet Union 75-67 in the final Friday night to win the basketball gold medal at the end of the seventh World University Games.

The Russians planned a spectacular closing ceremony Saturday to mark the end of these games in which 4,500 student athletes from more than 70 countries have competed.

Thanks to the basketball boys and a strong performance by the swimming team, the Americans could go to the ceremony with a measure of pride.

The Americans, who failed to pick up a single gold in track and field until they won the two men's relays, managed to put together a final total of 19 gold, 15 silver and 19 bronze for second place in the standings.

All but three of the American gold medals were won by the swimmers.

The happiest man on the U.S. basketball team was Tommy Burleson, by the 7-foot-3 inch center from North Carolina State—the only man here from the American team which bowed to the Russians at Munich.

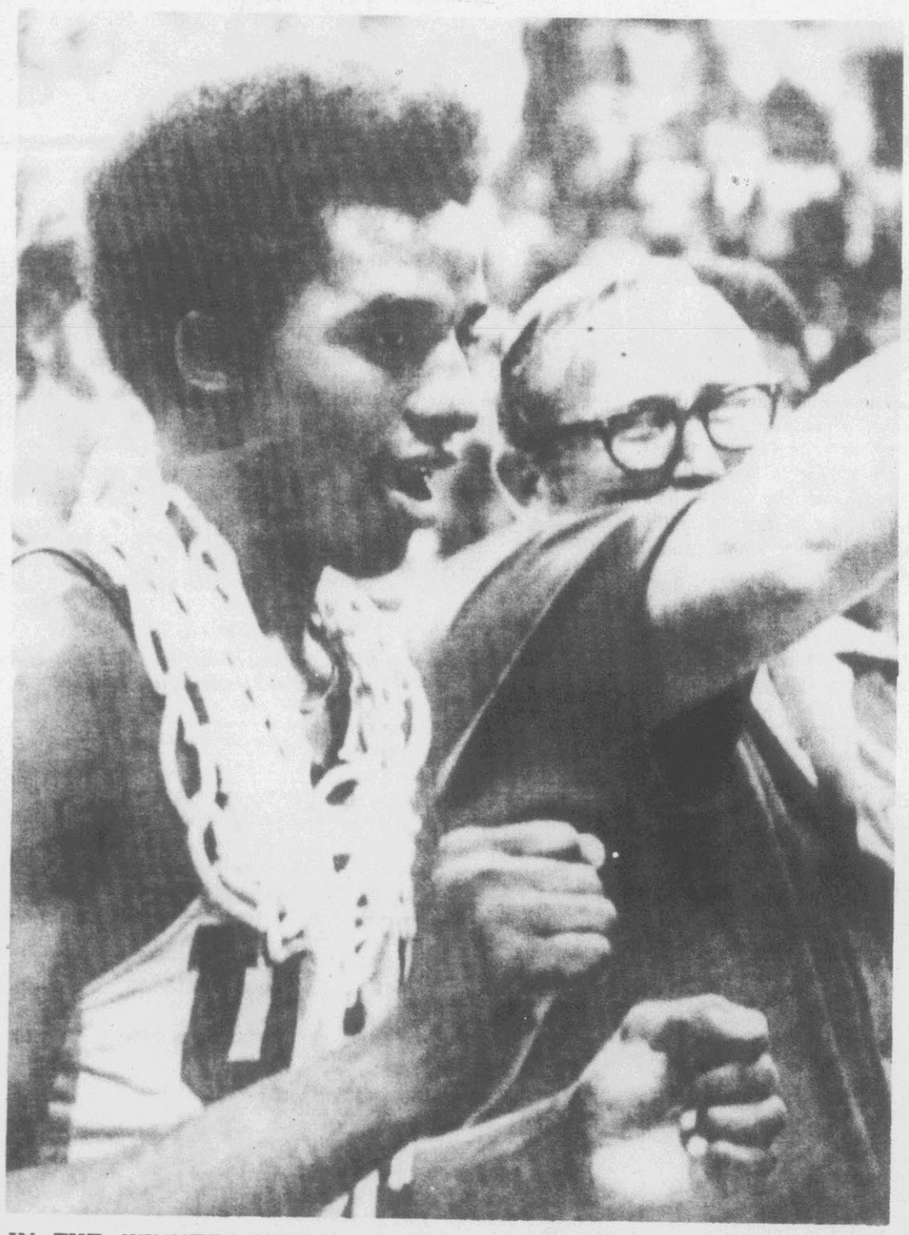

By contrast six of the Russian Olympic winners were playing in Moscow. The Russians' success in world sport is based largely on university students, and this came near to being their national squad.

David Thompson, 19-year-old Junior also from North Carolina State, led the Americans to victory with 24 points. Quinn Buckner of Indiana scored 12 and Burleson 10.

The American swimmers continued to hold the edge over the Russians in a series of thrilling finishes. The U.S. team grabbed five of the seven golds on the last night of competition.

Jack Tingley, a 21-year-old, 6-foot-7 performer from Louisville, Ky., swam to a runaway victory in the 1,500 meters freestyle and collected a second gold medal. He previously won the 400 meters.

Tingley set a University Games record of 16:02.2 and finished 27.8 seconds ahead of the second man, Anton Van Klooster of the Netherlands.

Sports Is Beauty Aid

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

MOSCOW (AP) — Rigorous sports can make a woman a more beautiful and stimulating creature, one of the United States' best known distance runners said, adding:

"We American women could take a few lessons from the Russians and quit worrying about unsightly muscles."

Kathy Switzer of New York, the first woman to compete in the Boston Marathon in 1967, was one of the witnesses to the rout of U.S. women by their Soviet counterparts in track and field, basketball and other sports of the World University Games—swimming an exception.

"There is no reason that American women should be inferior to Russian women in anything, even in sports," Kathy said.

"It's simply that by tradition our country has a bad attitude about sports as far as women are concerned. When a boy is three years old, his father gives him a bat and a ball and starts teaching him to run and throw.

"But if a girl picks up a ball or bat, the parents are horror-stricken. 'You can't do that,' they say. 'It will make you masculine and ugly. You should play with dolls.'"

Miss Switzer, 26, a public relations representative for AMF, magazine writer and competitive runner, didn't play much with dolls, yet she seemed to turn out all right.

She is a svelte 5-foot-7 and 125 pounds. She is hardly the image most people would conjure up for a marathon runner, a girl who keeps trim by running 10 to 25 miles a day.

First Outboard Motor Companies Are Showing Little New For 1974

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — At least two outboard motor manufacturers are out with their 1974 products, and they offer very little that is new or revolutionary.

Both Johnson Outboards and Evinrude Motors, members of the Outboard Marine Corp. (OMC) family, have maintained most of their 1973 line intact, making some styling and engineering changes.

They apparently are marking time until 1975 when they are expected to place on the general market their new rotary combustion, or Wankel, outboard, now described as in an "experimental" stage and used only by company team drivers in racing events.

Major changes by both manufactuers for 1974 are introduction of two all-new outboards of 9.9 and 15 horsepower, replacing two of similar horsepower in the 1973 line, and entry for the first time into the electric outboard market.

The 9.9 horsepower is narrower and shorter than the 9.5 which it replaces. The new Johnson 15 replaces the 20 horsepower model and Evinrude's 15 will take the place of the 18 horsepower offered in the 1973 line.

Both the 9.9 and the 15 share a powerhead that displaces just 13.2 cubic inches, two inches less than 1973's 9.5 model. Both are available in electric and manual starting models.

A Precedent

The new electric outboard, a quarter-horsepower, 20-pound model, represents the first time that either Johnson or Evinrude has produced a noninternal combustion outboard.

Other Johnson and Evinrude models mostly follow the 1973 horsepower ratings, starting with the top-of-the-line 135 and followed by the 115, 85, 70, 50, 40, 25, 6, 4 and 2. The 70 horsepower model is 1973's 65, its rating increased by engineering refinements.

All models are drainless, which means any unburned fuel is recirculated into the combustion chamber.

The 1974 lines mark one of the few times in recent years that Johnson and Evinrude have failed to increase the power of their top-of-the-line models, which went from 125 to 135 in 1973.

At the present time, the most powerful production outboard on the market is Mercury's 150, a six-cylinder, in-line model.

Sluggers Take Title

KINSTON — The Little Sluggers of Greenville captured the annual Jaycee-sponsored softball tournament in Kinston Friday night. The Little Sluggers downed Piggly-Wiggly of LaGrange in the finals, in two straight games.

The Sluggers had dropped into the losers' bracket in the double-elimination tournament, but came back to top Piggly-Wiggly twice, taking the deciding game by a score of 10-8.

Over 30 teams from Eastern North Carolina participated in the tournament.

Mike Parrell of the Sluggers received the most hits in the tournament, while Phil Fleming, also of the Sluggers, was named the Most Valuable Player.

Tennis Club Has Tourney Slate

The Greenville Tennis Club has announced the remainder of its fall tennis tournament schedule, with eight events set for September and October.

The Ladies' and Men's Veteran Singles (35 and over) is the first on the schedule, with play set to begin on September 6. The deadline for signing up is Thursday.

Doubles in the veterans division will close on September 6, with play beginning on September 13.

The Men's Open Singles close on September 13, with play starting on September 20. Ladies Open Singles close on September 27, with play beginning on October 4.

The Men's Open Doubles close on October 4, and will begin play on October 11. Ladies Open Doubles close October 11 with play starting October 18.

Consolation flights will be held depending on the number of entrants. Losers in the first round will drop into Flight A, with losers in the first round of that flight forming Flight B.

Trophies will be awarded to the winner and runner-up in each flight. A $2 entry fee is required for each entrant in each event.

Barbara Close and Bill Still are in charge of the tournament, and tennis club membership forms can be obtained from Frances Gain, 1701 E. Third St.

Dinner Is Scheduled

Rose High School will hold a pot-luck dinner Monday at 6:30 p.m. in the high school cafeteria for all varsity and junior varsity football players, their parents, and supporters.

Each family attending is asked to bring a covered dish to share.

Three Historic N.C. Log Cabin Homes To Visit

Text and Photographs by Beverly Wolter
N.C. Department of Art, Culture and History

This is the third in a series of feature articles written and photographed by Miss Beverly Wolter, for several years publicity writer for the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Miss Wolter recently traveled across the state to report in words and pictures the newest developments in places of outstanding interest from the coast to the mountains.

THE VANCE CABIN. . .birthplace of North Carolina's Civil War Governor Zebulon Vance, located near Asheville. The sturdy log structure was considered "a mansion in its day."

"A mansion in its day" is a description given to an unusual log cabin in Buncombe County.

This is how Mrs. Claude Wheeler described the Vance Birthplace where North Carolina's Civil War governor, Zebulon B. Vance, was born. Mrs. Wheeler is manager of the birthplace.

Visitors to the Vance Birthplace near Asheville could sandwich it this month between two of the state's long-running theatrical hits, the outdoor drams Unto These Hills at Cherokee and Horn in the West at Boone.

The Vance Birthplace is a log cabin, but it is not an ordinary one. The house is three times the size of the average mountain log house and is surrounded by seven farm outbuildings, not to mention the Blue Ridge Mountains.

The mountains cradle the home, providing a photographer's delight in backgound.

Gov. Vance's grandfather, Col. David Vance, an officer in the Revolution, built solidly when he put up his home.

The old handmade brick fireplace still stands. Some of the flooring and rafters of the original house are still in-place, as is some of the original yellow pine panelling in the sitting room.

Surprisingly for a house in such a remote region—settlers were few and far between when David Vance settled—the sitting room has a chair rail, while the panelling is applied vertically above the rail and horizontally below.

The house contains six pieces of furniture or houseware belonging to the Vance family — a bed, spinning wheel, yarn wheel, trammel and wash pot. (A trammel is the long bar on which pots were hung and swung in and out of the fireplace.)

The sixth piece as described by Mrs. Sheeler is "a pot with a hole in it and a broken leg." The pot may be restored.

The Vance Birthplace is unusual among the sites because it does have furnishings belonging to the family.

"People got things together years ago and kept them, hoping the place would be made into a memorial," Mrs. Wheeler said. "Vance was greatly admired and this led to contributions."

Gov. Vance's father, also named David, was a captain who served in the War of 1812.

The governor was only 24 when he went to the North Carolina House of Representatives and just 27 when he was elected to the first of two terms in Congress. When the Civil War broke out, Vance formed the "Rough and Ready Guards" and served as captain. Later he became colonel of the 26th North Carolina Regiment.

Military service did not hinder his political career.

He was elected to the first of three terms as governor while leading his men at the Battle of Malvern Hill in Virginia.

After the war he served three full terms as U.S. senator and was in his fourth term when he died in 1894 at the age of 64.

He has been termed "The Mount Mitchell" of North Carolina's great men, a natural comparison, for the mountain, highest east of the Rockies, is only about 20 miles from the birthplace.

As the state's sites go, the Vance is unusual too because all its outbuildings are open and furnished. The include a slave house, tool house, loom house, smoke house, spring house and corn crib, moved from farms in the area.

These building know brief moments of use twice a year. On Mother's Day and on the third Sunday in October, Pioneer Living Days are held with people cooking over an open fire, weaving, churning, candlemaking, spinning, dyeing and chair bottoming.

While Col. David Vance was fighting in the north at places like Monmouth, Germantown and Bradywine, other North Carolinians were engaging British troops in the south at Cowpens and Kings Mountain.

THE INTERIOR. . .of the Vance home reveals a functional arrangement that is also comfortable and attractive.

The Allen House and the Bennett House, both simple log cabins, are "silent witnesses of war, peace and battles that shaped and shook the nation."

Two log cabins, simple and rude in their rough boarding, stand today as silent witnesses of war, peace and battles that shaped and shook the nation.

One is at the Alamance Battleground, where a bloody skirmish, brought on by the seizure for taxes of a horse and harness by British officials, set the stage for colonial rebellion before the Revolutionary War.

The other cabin is at the Bennett Place where two generals, bitter foes, sat down in gentlemanly fashion to end their roles in the Civil War.

The Battleground and the Bennett Place are within 40 miles of each other off —85 between Burlington and Durham. For the tourist passing through or the stay-at-home looking for a day's outing,the sites with their ample grounds for picnicking and free admission are inviting.

Here the scene is enlivened from time to time as David Sanders, the site manager, gives a rifle-firing demonstration using a reproduction of a weapon that would have been used in the area in the 1750's.

The rifle gives a child-satisfying "bang!" when fired as a fitting conclusion to the anticipation built up as Sanders goes through the paraphernalia used in loading the antique weapon.

Regulators

In the site's Visitor Center an audio-visual program relates the story of the battle which centered around the defiance of the royal governor, William Tryon, by the Piedmont settlers who were known as "Regulators."

The inability of farmers and merchants to obtain cash for trade purpose and to pay taxes, and corruption and extortion by government officials led to the formation of the Regulators.

In a few words and with effective use of photographs of actors portraying Regulators, a moving portrait is presented of the spirit and independence of men who are willing to hazard all against tyranny and injustice.

The men recovered the horse and harness, tied up the sheriff and fired several shots into the home of Col. Edmund Fanning, a militia officer.

A series of riots occurred for several years after the horse incident until finally Tryon marched against the Regulators.

The Battle of Alamance on May 16, 1771, followed. The battle lasted two hours and left nine Regulators and nine militia troops dead. Fifteen Regulators were captured and six hung as traitors, ending the Regulator rebellion.

Allen House

An idea of how the Regulators lived is offered by the Allen House, a restored mud-and-log cabin moved to the battleground from nearby Snow Camp.

The house has some surprising modern touches—a recess for warming dishes in the chimney; a walk-in closet next to the chimney, a surprise because closets were virtually unknown during those days; and a swinging shelf holding crockery and condiments over the dining table.

The Allens must have had some valuables, too. Both a desk and a chest have hidden compartments which Berris Shepherd, the groundskeeper, delights in showing.

Despite its conveniences, the cabin lacks a facility even lesser structures had at he time.

There are no windows.

"They must have kept the door open most of the time," Shepherd said.

Bennett House

The Bennett House, the home of a farmer, James Bennett, moved into history when Gen. William T. Sherman and Gen. Joseph E. Johnston met in it on April 26, 1865, to discuss the surrender of Johnston's Confederate troops.

Sherman wrote out a generous plan of surrender, accepted by Johnston and Confederate president Jefferson Davis. Sherman's Union superiors rejected the terms.

Explaining the site, William Herald, Assistant Site Manager, said, "Essentially, we try to tell the story of what went on. This was the site of surrender, not of battle. The emphasis is on peace, not war."

An effort is made to show Sherman as a fighting man but not the ogre he is considered because of his havoc-wreaking March to the Sea after the burning of Atlanta. The battle over, Sherman proved a decent, compassionate man.

Only the chimney of the Bennett house is original, but the reconstruction is more accurate than many reconstructions because of the availability of sketches of the house done at the time of the historic meeting.

A restored cook house on the site offers an excellent collection of kitchen utensils and framing and building tools. Looling at the cast iron pots and pans and the heavy tools the spectator can only wonder are the strength of the women who lifted the filled pots and the endurance of the men who weilded the axes, augers, saws and mallets.

The significance of the Bennett House is not confined solely to the surrender, according to a site brochure.

Here for the first time Union and Confederate troops were introduced to "bright leaf" tobacco, a meeting that was to have more than passing effect on the development of the city of Durham and the economy of the state as a whole.

THE ALLEN HOUSE. . .built in 1782, is a one-room house with a loft. It is unusual, even for its time, in not having windows.

A PLACE OF PEACE-MAKING. . .The Bennett House, where General William Sherman and General Joseph E. Johnson met on April 26, 1865 to discuss surrender terms

Women In Pitt Government Are Few And Far Between

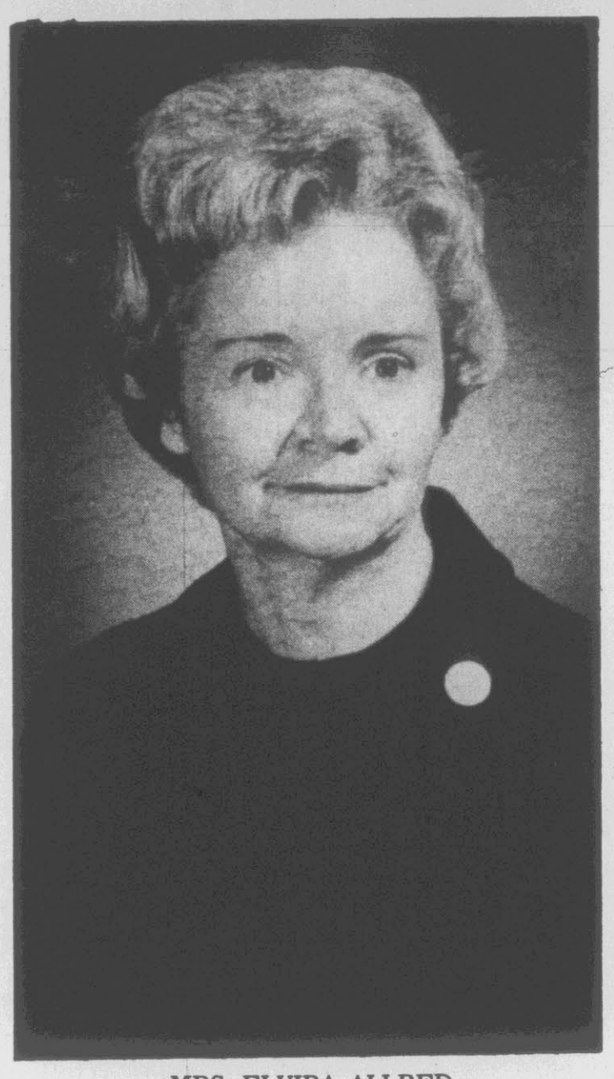

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A survey of the Pitt County government and the municipal governments within the county reveal a woeful scarcity of women in either elected or appointive positions.

The only four elective positions in the whole county held by women are those of Mrs. Elvira Allred of Farmville, Pitt County Register of Deeds; Mrs. Millie McGrath, a Greenville City Councilwoman; Mrs. Catherine Condon, a Grifton Town Councilwoman; and Mrs. Ruby Hodges, a Grimesland Alderman. Mrs. Olive Morrill is an Alternate Commissioner in Falkland, but she said this is an appointive position.

There are no women mayors, and never have any women either run for or held a mayoral office in Pitt County.

None of the County Commissioners are women. As noted previously, the Register of Deeds is a woman, Mrs. Elvira Tyson Allred. She succeeded a woman, Mrs. Blair Cox Wheless, who died in office in 1962. All the elective positions of sheriff, district solicitor, superior court judge, clerk of court, four district court judges, and coroner are held by men. The only woman who has ever run for a County Commissioner's seat is Miss Jensina Steinbeck, who was defeated in the last election. None of the other offices have ever been sought by a woman.

MRS. ELVIRA ALLRED

MRS. RUBY HODGES

The elected Board of Education has no women.

In the County Schools System, there are a few women in administrative positions. Mrs. Kathryn Lewis is Director of Pupil Personnel Services. Mrs. Patsy James and Mrs. Lillian Bradley are Supervisors of Elementary Education. Mrs. Janie Manning is Supervisor of Kindergarten. Mrs. Ola Perry is Supervisor of Primary Education, Mrs. Sue Branch is Supervisor of Reading; and Mrs. Donna Ware is Director of School Food Services.

Mrs. Gretchen Weeks this year has been named principal of Bethel Primary School. Not since Mrs. Edna Earle Baker served six years as principal in Fountain has a woman held this position in the Pitt County School System.

The 15-member Planning Board has no female members, and the county planner is a man.

The 18-member Pitt Memorial Board has no female members, and the only woman in an administrative position at the hospital is the Director of Nursing, Miss Jean Owens. This, of course, is a job traditionally held by a woman.

The Industrial Development Commission, with 17 members, has no female members, and the executive secretary is a man.

Mrs. Millie McGrath is a member of the six-member Greenville-Pitt County Airport Authority, as one of two representatives of the Greenville City Council on the Authority.

Mrs. Myree Hayes and Dr. Malene Irons are on the eight-member Mental Health Authority.

No woman is on the three-member Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

No woman is on the three-member County Board of Elections. Miss Margaret Register is executive secretary.

There are no women on the seven-member Community Health Board. In the Health Department, Mrs. Susan Cassidy is administrative division chief and Mrs. Margaret Coughlin is personal health division chief.

Mrs. Jean Darden is a member of the Social Services Commission. Miss Dorothy Bolton is director of the Social Services Department.

In other salaried positions with the county are Mrs. Margaret Roberts as clerk to the Board of Commissioners and also as assistant county auditor. Miss Elizabeth Copeland, Sheppard Memorial Librarian, is considered County Librarian.

Ayden has no women Commissioners, but it has distaff representatives on all of its official commissions. Mrs. Gay Blocker and Mrs. Bobbie Lynn Manning are on the Recreation Commission. Mrs. Joesphine Reaves is chairman of the Library Commission and Mrs. Nina Phillips and Mrs. David Jefferies are members. Mrs. William S. Manning and Mrs. Odell McLawhorn are on the Planning Board. Mrs. Nina Phillips and Mrs. Viola Stewart are alternate members of the Zoning Board of Adjustment. On the Housing Authority are Mrs. Annie M. Brown, Mrs. Sandra Garris, and Mrs. Evelyn Persinger. Mrs. Winifred Nelson is town clerk and tax collector.

Bethel's town clerk is Mrs. Martha Mewborn, but no elective or appointive positions are held by women.

Falkland has only Mrs. David Morrill in any official capacity. Besides being an Alternate Commissioner, as was noted previously, she is a member of the Planning Board.

Farmville has no women members of its Board of Commissioners and no women on it Planning and Zoning Board, its Board of Adjustments, or its Housing Authority. Mrs. Barbara Griffin and Mrs. Joseph C. Brown serve on its nine-member Recreation Commission. Mrs. Margie Nichols Tripp is Deputy Town Administrator and Mrs. Sylvia Allen Fisher is Assistant Tax Collector.

Fountain has Mrs. Annie Gray Purvis at its Town Clerk, but has no female members of its Board of Commissioners.

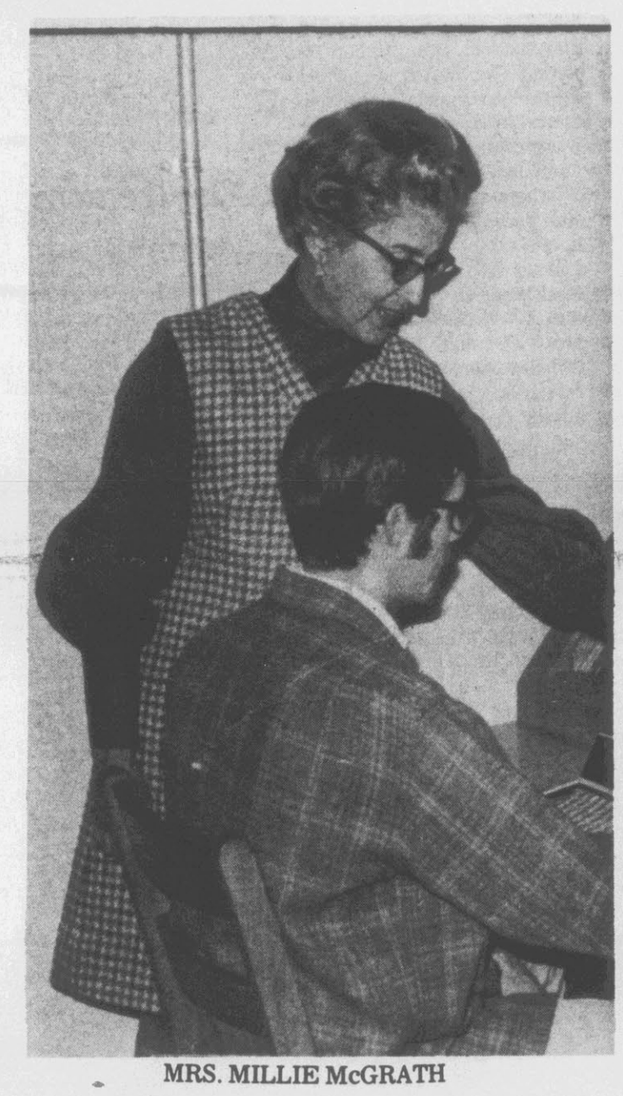

Greenville, besides its female City Council member, Mrs. Millie McGrath, has women on several commissions. Mrs. Louis Gaylord Jr., Mrs. Clay Burnette, and Mrs. Eleanor Hagan are on the Recreation Commission. The Sheppard Memorial Library Board has Mrs. Harriett Wooten, Mrs. Thelma Lawrence, Mrs. Beatrice Maye, and Mrs. Sue B. May. Mrs. Ruth Trevathan is on the Planning and Zoning Commission and Mrs. Mary Alice Yarborough is a Board of Adjustments member. Mrs. Jean Darden, Mrs. Everlena Rogers, and Miss Jane Long Joyner are on the Human Relations Council; and Mrs. Myra Cain is City Board of Elections chairman.

On the 41-member Citizen's Advisory Committee are Mrs. James T. Little Jr., Mrs. Thelma R. Jones, Mrs. Lillie Wilson, Mrs. Ida Smith, Mrs. Thelma Moore, Mrs. Amos Evans, Mrs. Marvin Buck Sr., Miss Louise Congleton, Mrs. W. E. Roseveare, and Mrs. Sarah Kavanaugh.

Dr. Malene Irons is on the Good Neighbor Council.

Greenville Boards and Commissions having no female members include the Fireman's Relief Fund, the Greenvill Foundation, the Housing Authority, the Parking Authority, the Plumbing Examining Board, the Redevelopment Commission, the Traffic Commission, and the Utilities Commission.

Mrs. Teresa Shank and Mrs. Lucille Gorham serve on the Greenville City School Board. In administrative positions within the City Schools System are Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education; Mrs. Ann Harrison, Director of Special Education; Miss Bettie Forrest, principal of Elmhurst School; Mrs. Lena Brown, principal of South Greenville School; and Mrs. Margaret White, principal of Eastern School.

MRS. MILLIE McGRATH

MRS. CATHERINE CONDON

Grimesland, besides its female member of the five-member Board of Aldermen, Mrs. Ruby Hodges, has a Board of Elections made up entirely of women— Mrs. Zelda Galloway, Mrs. Dorcas Whichard, and Mrs. Annette Heath. Mrs. Annabelle Heath serves as Town Clerk and Tax Collector.

Grifton, besides having Mrs. Condon as one of its five Commissioners, has Mrs. Janie Mae Mewborn as chairman of its Board of Elections. Mrs. Nannie W. Smith is town clerk and tax collector.

Winterville has only one woman on any of its board. Mrs. Pearl Gardner is on the three-member Board of Elections.

Needed: Feminine Office Seekers

Mrs. Millie McGrath in Greenville, Mrs. Catherine Condon in Grifton, and Mrs. Ruby Hodges in Grimesland have made "town fathers" an obsolete term in Pitt County.

However, the three apparently are the only successful female bidders for municipal office — ever.

"It would appear that many more women need to think seriously of offering their leadership to their hometowns as well as to the county and state," says Mrs. Nelson Blount Crisp, of Greenville, a member of the N.C. Women's Political Caucus Policy Council. "It's not that women would necessarily do a better job, than men, although they might in some cases," she said, "but that so much ability is being wated on the sidelines. It's an untapped source of betterment for our communities."

According to the memories of those contacted in the various town offices, only a handful of other women have given local politics a try, but were not elected.

Mrs. Jess Carraway Heizer ran for Commissioner in Farmville in 1969. The late Mrs. Frances Joyner Harper had tried it a some years earlier.

The late Mary Mann, once Grifton postmistress, gave it a try in Grifton. Mrs. Joyce Harris Mills of Winterville lost out in trying for an Alderman's seat. Mrs. Annie Brown and Mrs. Lucy Smith have tried in Ayden. Bethel, Falkland, and Fountain report that they have had no feminine officeseekers. In Greenville, before Mrs. McGrath there were Mrs. Velma Cannon and the Rev. K.T. Hall.

Can Runaway Food Prices Affect Family Nutrition?

Accent On Living

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS

NEW YORK (WNS)— Recently I was asked by another reporter if the runaway food prices might endanger the average family's nutrition.

Yes, the sharply higher prices, especially of protein foods, can harm the nutritional status of moderate-income families if they are not aware of this danger and how how to protect against it.

Until recently at least, most Americans usually got enough protein. They were more likely to be short on vitamin C, vitamin A, calcium and iron, which ironically enough, are available form relatively inexpensive foods.

Complete Protein

But the enforced reduction in use of the currently expensive meat, poultry, and eggs, with greater use of grain products such as noodles and rice instead, raises the possibility that moderate-income families may not get enough of the complete protein provided by food from animal sources. Only such foods have all of the essential amino acids in adequate quantity. (Amino acids are the components of protein.)

If you don't get at least some protein from animal sources almost every day there's further danger that you may not get enough B vitamins, espcially B-12, and of iron. Meat and eggs are one the more common sources of iron although not necessarily the richest. Many girls and women, and also young men, tend not to get enough iron.

None of the grains and other plant foods have complete protein although soybeans, ground nuts, wheat germ and white and red beans are most nearly complete. Sometimes people are misled by the word "whole" into thinking that so-called whole grains are complete. They are not.

Rationing by Price

As the result of the rationing by price compelled by the cost increases, many people have reduced their use of meat and poultry. Store sales figures verify this, if any verification were really needed. The sales figures show that dollar volume on meats has continued at about the same level as a year ago while the tonnage handled has gone down, indicating that people are spending as much as the higher prices but buying less.

As we have pointed out before, the safest way to hold down protein-food costs is to combine a little food from animal sources with the plant foods that are relatively high in protein. As well as soybeans, ground nuts and others mentioned before, plant foods relatively high and also relatively complete, include lima beans and dry peas. Lentils, mung beans, oatmeal and sesame seeds are fairly high but incomplete. Brewer's yeast is high but incomplete.

Polished rice is only fairly high in protein as well as incomplete. Brown rice and parboiled rice are a little higher than polished rice.

If you don't use any food from animal sources in a meal, another safeguard is to try to combine several plant foods so that their amino acids complement each other. Thus, in the well-researched "Diet for a Small Planet," Frances Moore Lappe suggests, for example, that beans and rice complement each other.

Another, more popularized and almost-vegetarian book, "The Hip, High-Prote Low-Cal. Easy-Does-It-Cookbook," by Naura (cq) Hayden, suggests many casserole and soup recipes combining grains and vegetables with some of the lower-cost complete-protein foods such as nonfat milk powder and cheese

Comparative Protein Values

The price surges have not hit all complete protein foods with the same force, and some interesting variations have resulted in the normal comparative costs of the protein in different meats, poultry and fish you might use to combine with lower-cost plant foods.

Below is the newest list we have calculated based on mid-August prices. The prices, of course, will fluctuate further, thus changing the relative values again. For example, broilers usually cost less than turkeys, both per pound and in terms of the cost of the protein, but recently have cost more—for the first time in my memory. Broilers have 57 grams of protein per pound; turkeys, 66; ground beef, 81.

Cheddar cheese ranks highest in protein of the foods on our list, with 113 grams to the pound, with canned tuna next (110) followed by other fish steaks and fillets with 80 to 95. (One hundred grams of protein is the equivalent of 3½ ounces.)

Here, then is the current cost of 100 grams of proetin for these foods:

Cheddar cheese, $1; canned tuna, flakes, $1.02; beef liver, $1.04; perch fillets, frozen $1.13; eggs (per dozen), $1.14; turkeys, $1.15; ground beef, regular, $1.19; halibut steak, frozen, $1.22; canned lunch meat, $1.29; broilers, $1.37; cod fillets, $1.40; liverwurst, chunk, $1.61; beef chuck, with bone, $1.63; ham, whole cooked, $1.69; frankfurters, $1.71; round steak, $2.25; bacon, $3.45.

Of special interest, note the surprisingly high cost of the protein in franks and bacon, due to the large amount of fat in these products.

The cheapest complete protein is, course, nonfat dry milk; also the most versatile since it is simple to add to patties, meat loaf, stews, soups, casseroles, desserts, etc.

Miss Roxanne Lutz and Mrs. George Hood presided over the favors table. Mementoes of the occasion were miniature boxes tied with ribbons and flowers containing the bridegroom's cake, and pink rose petals were used in place of the traditional rice.

Female Pastor Counsels College Students On Tough Questions

By CAROL DEEGAN
AP Educational Services Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — The pastor wears a skirt. But she also wears a collar and counsels college students on tough questions pertaining to the armed services, abortion and capital punishment.

She is Elizabeth Platz, the first woman to be ordained in the Lutheran Church in the northern hemisphere.

Her ordination was held more than two years ago at the University of Maryland, where she served as a Lutheran Church lay worker for five years.

Since her ordination, has she encountered any problems as the university's Lutheran chaplain because she is a woman?

"I've really been able to say in all honesty that there is not the kind of antagonism that many girls and the older women anticipate," the Rev. Miss Platz said.

She admits that some people haven't approved, including some clergy, but "by and large, the greater part of the negative comment has come from women."

The Rev. Miss Platz says she entered the ministry because of her interest in theology.

"I didn't realize the impact of being the first woman to have been ordained because I was really fat, dumb and happy in my own little world, doing the ministry," she recalled.

And in the years that have followed her ordination?

"It's just been really great. There's nothing like service in the church in terms of working with people as well as the structures," she said.

The Rev. Miss Platz said what she particularly likes about her job is that she gets involved in "all kinds of things where people really live."

"How do I live and maintain integrity? To me that seems to be a real question she said. "The draft was a big one because it was a real question of conscience."

"Amnesty, abortion, capital punishment. I get a lot of questions like that," she added.

The Lutheran chaplain says that more and more, whether consciously or unconsciously, segments of American society have been buying into a "revenge motif."

"The revenge motif is very strong in the capital punishment thing. Abortion is a revenge motif. The whole question of amnesty is a revenge motif," the Rev. Miss Platz said.

And how do the young people view what is happening in the world around them?

The Rev. Miss Platz says that young people have seen, through the news media and through their own lives, a kind of "immediacy" in the world today.

They are skeptical, she said, so there is "a natural and healthy rejection of pat answers, things they had been told."

"Institutions, government, church, schools aren't as beautiful as we have made them out to be. Aren't as good. Aren't as powerful; sometimes they're too powerful," she said.

"I think, for example, some of the kinds of problems in the government — Watergate — have borne out for many young people in this country a lot of things they've been told or believed.

"This discrepancy between what is said and what is believed and how one lives is really coming home to young people," the Lutheran pastor added.

She said women today still find it difficult to break what have been comfortable stereotypes, even if they have been unfair.

"Women's role in our society, at least as I have been able to understand it, has been derivative," the Rev. Miss Platz said.

"She is someone's daughter, she is someone's wife or someone's sister," she explained.

The lady pastor says women should say:

"I'm a whole human being and I have these talents and I have these gifts and I really want to opt them and I've really got something I want to do."

1 can (8¾ ounces) cream style corn
⅛ can (4 ounces) whole roasted and peeled green chilies, seeded and chopped
1½ cups grated (medium-fine) cheddar cheese, lightly packed

On wax paper thoroughly stir together cornmeal, baking powder and salt. In a medium mixing bowl beat eggs slightly; beat in milk and oil; stir in corn, then cornmeal mixture until dry ingredients are moistened. Spread half this batter over the bottom of a square glass baking dish (8 by 8 by 2 inches). Sprinkle with half the chilies and half the cheese. Add remaining batter, spreading it carefully and evenly; sprnkle with remaining chilies and cheese. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until baked through and browned 8 about 40 minutes. Makes 6 servings (The chilies add hot seasoning.)

Her bouquet was a single white magnolia, and her only jewelry an Inca necklace designed by Delfin, of Lima, Peru.

The church was decorated with garden and field flowers. Mrs. Julian Emmett Winslow Jr. served as mistress of ceremonies.

"The Pantry," a cookbook compiled this spring by the staff of the Baptist Children's Homes of North Carolina, Inc., was released to the public during the agency's annual homecoming festivities at Mills Home, Thomasville.

The book is filled with some 200 pages of choice recipes from the agency's staff members—from houseparents to farm workers to the president—who work at seven campuses around the state. "The Pantry" is comprised of 14 different food sections, including one done especially by the men.

The project began last winter after a Mills Home houseparent casually suggested at a staff luncheon that each cottage needed a collection of recipes by campus staff. It took some five months to complete the book which was edited by agency public relations staff and printed by the agency's print shop.

The Pantry seemed a fitting title for the book since all cottages on the Children's Home campuses have a pantry. Both houseparent and children alike labor through the summer months to fill the cottage pantry.

For the most part, the recipes are not originals, but represent delicacies which staff members have tried, tested and moderated to suit their own tastes in home cooking.

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper D. Boyd, of Rt. 3, Greenville, returned home recently after a month-long vacation in England. While there, they were reunited with their son, Jasper Jr., and his family.

The Boyds took advantage of their visit to do quite a lot of traveling and camping around England as well as Scotland and Wales. On a camping trip covering 2,800 miles of British countryside, Jasper Jr. was able to show his parents much of the history of the United Kingdom.

One of the highlights of the Boyds trip was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Neville Smith of Mundsbord in Norfolk County, who gave them a complete tour of London.

For the first time, Davidson College's freshman class will include women this fall. Although the college became coeducational in 1972, it admitted only upper-class transfer students last year.

Some 89 women and 247 men are expected to arrive on campus Sept. 1 for four days of orientation. John Allen Tucker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Tucker of Rt. 9, will be a student there.

Use Psychology In Winning A Child's Cooperation

By DR. HAIM GINOTT

Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

THE LESS A CHILD is ordered around, the more likely he is to do what is expected of him. Here's how one mother gained her son's cooperation early in the morning, and relieved herself of painful ordeal:

Such a morning routine left Mother upset and exhausted. Glenn simply took his time. The more Mother rushed him, the slower he became. Mother decided to change her approach and shift to her son the responsibility for getting to kindergarten on time.

She gave him his own alarm clock. Unbelievably, he was up before the alarm went off, got dressed, came for breakfast, ate, got his coat on and left for school without any maternal prodding.

It is better for all concerned if a child is awakened by an alarm clock rather than by an alarmed mother.

WHEN WE RESPOND to our toddlers as to intelligent, sensitive persons, the results are often surprising.

Mark, 2, stood up on a chair at a friend's house. At home, he is allowed to do so.

Mother said, quietly, "Mark, at Debbie's house chairs are only for sitting.'" To everybody's surprise, he sat down.

Mother did well to invite Mark's cooperation by defining the use of an object. She gave information, not criticism or orders. (Sit down! You'll ruin the chair!)

Her kind voice and words solved what could have become an ordeal.

WHEN A CHILD REFUSES a reasonable request, it is best not to reason with him, but to offer options. He resists us less when he has something to say about his life. Example:

Billy, 5, woke up coughing. Mother went in to give him some cough syrup. He refused to take it. Mother said: 'You can take it in your room or in the bathroom." He decided to take his cough syrup in the bathroom. Then he went back to bed, without complaints.

Giving Billy his choice turned an unhappy situation into a pleasant moment: Whenver possible, a child should be allowed to exercise his right to make decisions for himself.

Nicole, 4, scattered her toys on the living room floor. It looked like a disaster area. Normally, Mother would have gotten angry, ordered Nicole to pick up the toys, banished her to her room, and punished her. This time, Mother said, "We want our home to be beautiful. Toys scattered on the floor make it look unattractive."

Mother brought out a clock and told her daughter to see how fast she could clean up. Nicole zoomed out of the wings, raced around the room and cleaned up the mess.

Mother achieved the desired result without shouting, threatening or punishing. Instead, she pointed out to her daughter what was expected of her, and did so in a motivating manner.

SAYS JON'S MOTHER: "Giving Jon choices has been incorporated into our home so fully that my husband and I do it instinctively. Jon's grandparents and my friends laughed at me when they constantly heard, 'Do you want juice or milk? Do you want to leave now or in five minutes? Would you like to use a bottle or a cup? Do you want to push the stroller or ride in it? Would you like to go on the swings or the sliding pond? Do you want ice cream or soda? Etc. Etc.' But everyone did notice the difference between Jon and other children in the park. John is more cooperative. Now, many of my firends have started giving their children choices. There is an epidemic of options in our park."

Have Place Names To Fit Any Taste

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — To get to Boston, Cleveland, St. Paul, Long Island, Tacoma, West Point or Yale, you don't even have to cross the border of one eastern state. They are all towns and villages in the Commonwealth of Virginia. Likewise Syria, Paris, Dublin, Glasgow, Hague, Vesuvius and Moscow.

The Virginia Governor's Office, Division of Industrial Development, while recently updating its labor force figures (40,000 new workers available each year), noted the names of some of these, and others where Virginians live:

If you are a manufacturer of items for females, you might like to locate a plant in Charity, Dawn, Dot, Gladys, Ida, Lilian, Louisa, Maidens, Marion, Nora, Opal, Pocahontas, or Vera.

For swinging companies, there's the town of Lively; and for conservative ones a Modest Town. If you have a chain of dance halls, there's Bumpass, Va. Specialize in products for the retired? Here's a variety of choices: Rural Retreat, Rescue, Sunbright, Red House, Wilderness, Check. And Clover—where everyone wants to live some day.

There are some fine people, the governor's office says, living in Short Pump, Gum Spring, Goochland, Ark, Ben Hur, Chuckatuck and Burnt Chimney; and others in Bandy, Critz, Crows, Cuckoo, and Fancy Gap. The residents in Moon Post Office are not astronauts. Nuttsville and Tabb are only about 50 miles apart, and Oyster is 40 miles from both. If it's Java you want, that's about 170 miles away. (Food companies, take notice.)

Three Of 10 Need Help

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — Three out of 10 American school children experience academic adjustment problems. They need help.

At the University of Rochester (UR) a highly successful program to aid such children has been developed. It aims at early detection and prevention of school adjustment problems among area primary graders. The program, thanks to Uncle Sam, is going national.

Known as the Primary Mental Health Project—PMHP—the plan was founded and is directed by Prof. Emory L. Cowen. Aided by about $380,000 over three years from the National Institute of Mental Health, small groups of psychologists, educators, psychiatrists and social workers from school districts throughout the country will come to UR to study PMHP.

Cowen says nationwide many of the three out of 10 children needing help go unaided because of the shortage of mental health professionals.

In Rochester, PMHP brings school mental health services to more than 7,000 primary graders in 13 schools. The team of helpers includes school-based mental health professionals, non-professional child aides, and substitute teachers.

Last year, PMHP conducted its first workshop for representatives of 10 school districts throughout the United States. Cowen reports that as a result of this first workshop PMHPs have been established in Ann Arbor, Mich.; New Haven, Conn.; Fairfax, Va., and Des Moines, Iowa. In addition, projects are pending in Fairbanks, Alaska, and Fort Worth, Texas.

Doctor Shows How To

Bathe Away "Corns" and Calluses in Minutes*

By INA LEE

YESTERDAY at the offices of a foremost New York foot specialist, I experienced what may prove to be the answer to the foot problems of millions. I was shown a quick, easy way to relieve tired, aching, itching feet — even feet tortured with corns and calluses!

As a reporter, I'm on my own feet about 12 hours a day. For years I've suffered — not only from corns and calluses — but also from recurring athlete's foot, and that tired, aching feeling so familiar to salesmen, postmen, policemen, teachers and others who must stand on their feet for their livelihood... I tried everything from specially made $45 shoes to all kinds of foot powders, creams and salves — all to practically no avail. So I was naturally skeptical when I was assured, in a doctor's office that in a few minutes I would be relieved of all the foot miseries that had been plaguing me for years. I just couldn't believe it — but here is what actually happened!

In just 20 minutes, the itching misery of my athlete's foot had subsided. My corns were softened and dead skin washed away. So were my calluses!

In fact, my feet felt simply wonderful — and that is why I am writing this article — so that others will be helped as I have been! For this doctor's simple method is now being made available to the public for home use!

PART 1.
A Mineral Bath for Your Feet

For the first part of this 3-way method the doctor had me place my sore, tired feet in a basin of hot water. To this water he added a green powder containing Potassium, Iron, Magnesium, Lithium, Iodides and other minerals (similar to those found in the waters of famous natural Spas). Almost immediately I began to feel a new and wonderful sensation. All the pressure and the heavy feeling in my legs seemed to float away. My feet felt as though they had no weight at all. My foot and leg muscles seemed to relax. I could actually feel soreness and pain diminishing.

"The perspiration, the dirt and the odors so common to your feet is now being cleansed from your pores," the doctor informed me. "The hot mineral solution is easing surface tension, stimulating circulation and sending a fresh supply of new blood to your feet. This helps cleanse out the pores that soap and water cannot reach."

I could see dry, dead, scaly tissue being flaked away. I touched the hardened surfaces of my feet and found that they were now soft and smooth. I could feel the dead dry skin of corns and calluses softened and loosened.

PART 2. Corns and Calluses

After about 15 minutes the doctor had me remove my feet from the bath. Then while they were still moist, he began to massage them with a special volcanic lava stone, which he had already soaked in the Footherapy bath. It felt as if my feet were being gently caressed with wool. In just 3 or 4 minutes this volcanic stone began to buff away the dead skin of corns and calluses that had bothered me for years. Best of all, one particularly painful corn on my little toe which I had to have cut off at least once a year was gradually being buffed away. It was as if I had grown a new pair of feet.

PART 3. Athlete's Foot, Unpleasant Odors

The third and final step of this doctor's treatment is a medicated cream designed to correct the condition of athlete's foot, prevent sweating and remove unpleasant foot odors. It contains a tested chemical which is now being used in hospitals, to help combat fungi, dangerous bacteria and relieve skin rashes. As the doctor rubbed this cream into my skin, I felt a cooling, mint-like sensation. Itching between the toes disappeared. A special combination of natural oils helps lubricate the entire skin surface leaving a soothing, protective, invisible film to help guard against reinfection of the area.

"Even though we have gotten such wonderful results with just one application," said the doctor, "you must remember that the secret of well being, pain-free feet is constant care and attention. Your shoes must be fitted correctly and your feet must receive the proper hygiene. That's why you'll find that if you use this simple medicated method everyday after work, your feet will not only continue their remarkable improvement but will feel healthy, rested and cool even after your toughest working day."

Nothing Else Like It

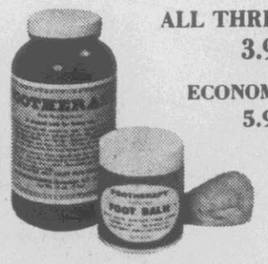

If you suffer from tired feet, aching feet due to foot fatigue, you can now rinse away those aches and pains with nature's own minerals. You can even aid painful, stubborn corns and calluses without "razor blade" surgery, and if your feet are cracked, itching, sore from fungus infections . . . perspire excessively . . . give off unpleasant odors . . . you can relieve these conditions practically overnight!

But even more important, you can give your feet a daily hygienic "doctor's" care—right in your own home — that will help keep your feet strong, impart a feeling of well being; inhibit the growth of fungi, bacteria.

The medically developed products used in this doctor's treatment are Footherapy Mineral Bath, Footherapy Lava Stone and Footherapy Medicated Balm. These 3 items are sold as a complete application kit for only $3.98 and $5.98. Quite a bargain when you think of what it can do for the condition of your feet, your sense of well-being and even your disposition! If pains or corns persist — consult your chiropodist.

A New Look Given 1949 Film Story

"A hilarious answer to 'Who wears the pants?'" screamed billboards touting the MGM motion picture, "Adam's Rib," starring Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn. That was 24 years ago.

This fall, "Adam's Rib" will be a new series airing on FRIDAYS (9:30-10 p.m.) starring Ken Howard and Blythe Danner, on Channels 3, 5 & 12.

The premise of the series, also produced by MGM, is basically the same as the movie: a husband and wife who are both lawyers - but on opposite sides of the fence. He's an assistant district attorney and she is a partner in a law office.

The big difference between the movie and the series is that in the series, the question of "Who wears the pants?" is not regarded as quite so frivolous. Woman's lib has obviously had an impact.

In the 1949 version of "Adam's Rib," Spencer Tracy portrays Adam Bonner, the prosecutor of a woman ("a dumb blonde" type) accused of killing her husband. Katharine Hepburn plays his wife, Amanda, who is also the accused woman's defense lawyer.

During the course of the trial, the issue of equality of the sexes is argued by both attorneys — which results in a great row both in and out of the courtroom.

Eventually, the accused woman is acquitted — which is one small step for Amanda and one great leap for womankind in proving that a woman can do anything a man can do and that she can do it better. Adam's pride, of course, is seriously dented. The two decide that their differences are irreconcilable and they file for divorce.

When they meet in their accountant's office to settle their business affairs, Adam resorts to "woman's most potent weapon" — tears. Seeing a grown man cry breaks down the last of Amanda's rancor. The divorce is scratched and the Bonners live happily ever after.

The new "Adam's Rib" on ABC reflects how times — and male vs. female stereotypes — have changed in the last 24 years. It is a sophisticated romantic comedy about present-day marriage that is told with wit and sometimes biting humor.

As Adam and Amanda Bonner, Ken Howard and Blythe Danner will sometimes oppose each other in court — and sometimes at home. But their differences of opinion will not affect thair love and respect for each other.

As a "liberated" husband, Adam has no difficulty — at least on the surface — in accepting his wife as his equal. Sometimes, however, he's forced to admit that in general, he does feel that men are "more equal" than women. And Amanda, of course, will be forced to show him that he's wrong.

The two stars of the series both acquiredost of their acting experience in the theatre. Howard has earned a Tony Award, New York Drama Critics Award and a Theatre World Award. Miss Danner won a Tony WAward in 1970 for her performance in "Butterflies Are Free."

THEN AND NOW—Katharine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy are pictured in a scene from 1949 movie "Adam's rib." Recreating the roles are Blythe Danner and Ken Howard (bottom photo)

Special On Horses

HORSING AROUND—Den Weisen is shown with the stallion Perfecto in the NBC special, "Cycle of Life," which dramatizes the unending evolution of life by focusing on the birth and growth of a horse. The program will be color-cast on the NBC Television Network Thursday, Aug. 30 (8-9 p.m.) Weisen created, directed, produced and wrote the special, which stars Fess Parker.

Den Weisen came to Los Angeles some 10 years ago with his favorite horse, Perfecto, and 17 cents in his pocket.

Today, he raises some of the finest horses in the country on his own ranch in Walnut, Calif.

Here, at the Enterprise Ranch, he has kept a promise made to Perfecto — that some day he would build him a barn that's something special.

Perfecto now lives in such a barn: Stalls of stainless steel; a long corridor carpeted in royal blue; crystal chandeliers suspended from a high ceiling supported by Roman columns.

His fascination with horses led him to create, write, direct and produce "Cycle of Life", a one-hour special to be colorcast on Thursday, August 30 (8-9 p.m.) on Channels 6&7.

One day, while working with Perfecto, Weisen was spotted by a producer who offered him a job touring with sport shows.

Weisen and Perfecto traveled nine months, performing in virtually all the major rodeos and sport shows around the country.

It was at this point that Weisen made his promise to his horse. He returned to Los Angeles with enough money to establish the Enterprise Ranch and build Perfecto's barn.

Next, Weisen imported top quality stock, including Andalusians from Spain, Arabians from the world over, quarter horses from Texas, palominos and other breeds.

He is involved in various ventures, including agricultural and educational shows and serves as a consultant to major studios on films dealing with horses.

Presley's Aloha Show On Nov. 14

"Elvis: Aloha From Hawaii," the 90-minute special starring the dynamic Elvis Presley that was one of television's most widely acclaimed presentations of last season, will be repeated on Wednesday, Nov. 14 (8:30-10 p.m.) on NBC.

The special was colorcast last April. Presley's concert originally was transmitted live in January via satellite from Honolulu to the Far East and South Pacific, and was relayed a day later to the 28 nations linked by Eurovision. The concert was a benefit performance with proceeds going to the Kui Lee Cancer Fund.

The show was viewed by more than 69,000,000 people in over 29,000,000 United States homes, according to National Nielsen Audience Estimates.

Holden Stars In 4-Parter

"The Blue Knight," the NBC Television Network's "mini-series" dramatization of the best-selling Joseph Wambaugh novel, starring William Holden and Lee Remick, will be colorcast in one-hour segments on four consecutive weeknights in November, it was announced today by Lawrence R. White, Vice President, Programs, NBC-TV.

Mr. White said the drama will be broadcast in the 10-11 p.m. time period Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, Nov. 13, 14, 15 and 16.

" 'The Blue Knight,' our first major venture into the 'mini-series' area," Mr. White said, "is supported by top-level writing, acting and production talents, which indicate our strong belief in this new television form. We have now selected a scheduling pattern which we feel is most appropriate to the proper telling of the story.

"The consecutive-night placement of the segments is dramatically sound, and the continuity of the time period over four evenings will enable the audience to plan its viewing of this important production."

Holden, an Academy Award-winning star (Best Actor, "Staglag 17," 1953), will be making his first major dramatic television appearance in a distinguished stage and screen career which spans more than three decades. He portrays Bumper Morgan, a 20-year veteran of the Los Angeles Police Department who is nearing retirement. The story focuses on Morgan's last four working days on the force.

Also in the cast are Joe Santos as Sgt. Cruz Segovia, Sam Elliot as Charlie Broski and Vic Tayback as Neil Grogan.

Author Wambaugh, himself a member of the Los Angeles Police Department, also wrote "The New Centurions" — another widely acclaimed best-seller. Additionally, he is the creator of "Police Story," the new series which will be colorcast Tuesdays (10-11 p.m.), starting Oct. 2.

Tennis Pros Celebrities Play

ABC Sports will present the second annual Robert F. Kennedy Pro-Celebrity Tennis Tournament from the Forest Hills Tennis Stadium, Sunday, August 26 (3-5 p.m.).

Some of the more than 35 outstanding tennis pros who will be competing in singles matches and pro-celebrity doubles matches are Stan Smith, Pancho Gonzales, Rod Laver, Arthur Ashe, John Newcombe, Marty Riessen, Bob Lutz, Tom Okker, Cliff Drysdale, Roscoe Tanner, and Erik van Dillen.

Some of the nearly 40 celebrities who will be competing are Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy, Sen. Edward Kennedy and his wife, Joan; Sargent and Eunice Shriver, comedian Alan King, composer Burt Bacharach, columnist Art Buchwald, designer Oleg Cassini, former football stars Jim Brown and Rosey Grier, and actors Dustin Hoffman, Cliff Robertson, Sidney Poitier, and Charlton Heston.

Miss America To Be Singing

Terry Anne Meeuwsen, Miss America of 1973, will sing "He Touched Me" during the live colorcast of the 53rd annual Miss America Pageant Sept. 8.

She sang the song at last year's telecast on her way to the crown, and she has been asked to sing it at virtually all of her public appearances since.

Burghoff— Birdman Of Malibu

'The Birdman of Malibu' — That provocative-sounding title, with no criminal overtones, has become a local beach pseudonym for diminutive Gary Burghoff, the all-knowing, all-seeing Radar of the "M-A-S-H" comedy series on the CBS Television Network.

Burghoff, an amateur naturalist from early childhood, became interested in rehabilitating ailing sea birds near his beach home after discovering a sick California brown pelican a little more than a year ago.

He hearned from the Long Beach and Game

He learned from the Long Beach Fish and Game Department that the Los Angeles Zoo and its curator of birds, Frank Todd, would be interested in setting up a treatment center for birds, if he could bring them in.

So for many weeks the deeply concerned actor, using an old milk truck as an ambulance, drove the 40 miles from Malibu to the zoo as many as three times a week to supply his feathered patients with vital care.

Burghoff's humanitarian reputation grew locally, he began to receive phone calls from lifeguards, vets and beachgoers who discovered birds encumbered with broken wings and a variety of crippling injuries.

It soon became apparent that a nearby treatment center was required to expedite the birds' recuperation, and Burghoff responded to the need by building an aviary in his backyard.

Enlisting the assistance of Malibu veterinarian Dr. Eric Hughes, who set wings, patched up legs and provided other medical aid, the "Birdman" launched his rehabilitation program for pelicans, seagulls terns, cormorants, Arctic loons and other flying inhabitants of the local environment.

Burghoff doesn't represent himself as an ornithologist or a James Audubon, but he admits to having acquired considerable knowledge of bird behavior pattern.

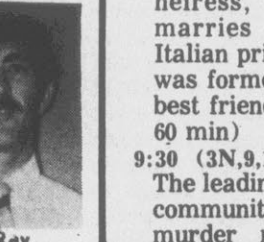

"Seagulls have a pecking order," he notes. "When a new bird is added to the aviary, there is a readjustment of the positioning order at feeding time.

"I have discovered that the best medicine for ailing birds is other birds. They are very competitive about feeding, and it's a healthy thing to have new ones introduced to the pen. This tends to perk up the ailing ones."

Most of the week Gary Burghoff is immersed in the satirical comedy world of "M-A-S-H", but on weekends emerges again in his beach guise as "The Birdman of Malibu"

NY RECRUITS

"Maude" is probably the first series taped in Hollywood where all of the regular cast members were recruited from New York. All had considerable stage experience, with very little television experience, prior to "Maude." Apparently the formula works.

Daytime Actor Is Singing

Don Stewart was born November 14, 1935, on Staten Island, N. Y., son of a doctor and nurse.

When he was three and one-half his family moved to Norfolk, Neb., where he grew up on a farm and laid the foundations for a career as an entertainer by singing to the animals.

He was educated at Norfolk schools, at St. John's Military Academy in Delafield, Wis., and Hastings College in Nebraska.

His singing voice was discovered when he was in high school in Norfolk, and he became soloist with the school choir.

At age 24 he was the youngest aircraft commander in the Strategic Air Command, putting in some 1,800,000 miles flying jet bombers.

Returning to civilian life, he sang with the American Choral Society, the Schola Cantorum and the Radio City Hall chorus. Moving into the chorus of "Camelot" on Broadway, he understudied Robert Goulet, and also on Broadway, sang the lead in "The student Prince."

In off-Broadway and summer stock productions, he had roles in "The Apple Tree," "Pajama Game," "Oklahoma!", "Do Re Mi" and "Bells Are Ringing."

In television, he made guest appearances on a number of Hollywood - originating series, including "Adam-12, "Dragnet" and "The Virginian."

Stewart has been a member of the Naval Reserve since 1963, and flies jets one weekend each month with that service.

He joined "The Guiding Light" in December 1968 as Michael Bauer, attorney. In a recent national television magazine poll he won honors as best daytime actor.

Stewart has recently launched a successful nightclub singing career. He is co-owner of a 30-foot boat, and a partner in a Madison Avenue art gallery.

Teacher Won The Big One

Edie Liebman, a schoolteacher from Yonkers, N.Y., was declared the winner of a $20,000 condominium in the "Florida Home Finals" on NBC's "Three on a Match".

Mrs. Liebman and 11 other contestants were eligible for the home when, during four previous weeks of appearing as contestants, they matched the "Deed" symbol on the "Three on a Match" Jackpot Board. This entitled them to a private phone number.

When Edie's number was picked on the show out of a glass bowl in Florida by Harry C. Powell, Jr., president of the condomiunium development, she was awarded the two-bedroom house, located at Lehigh, Fla., 12 miles from Fort Myers.

Background For 'Secret Storm' Is All His Baby

What do a piano and a vibraphone, a pod shaker, a gourd and sand blocks, bongos, a systhesizer and an electric harpsicord, a Chinese bell tree and a cymbal all have in common? Carey Gold, the man who plays them all, that's what! He is a 27-year-old composer and musical director who is the leader of a 10-piece, one-man band.

The young musician, a native Californian and cum laude graduate of Columbia University, plans all of these instruments to provide innovative live orchestration as the background music on "The Secret Storm", daytime drama seen Monday through Friday.

Gold's contribution to "The Secret Storm" is more than meets the eye — or ear, in this case. He begins his daily routine by reading and studying a script the day before production.

"I really try to involve myself in each day's story," he says. "After one reading, I pretty well know what kind of mood I should create. The next morning, before I report to the studio, I re-read the script and try even more to identify with the characters to make the music as specific to the situation as possible. The actors have a difficult job, and I feel that I have a responsibility in my musical interpretation to give them a fair shake."

Gold plays through each day's presentation three times in his south booth adjacent to the studio and control room. The first time is during the 1:30 p.m. run-through rehearsal, which is followed by any notes the producer and director may have on his interpretation; the second at 2:30 p.m. for the dress rehearsal and any additional notes, and the final performance is 3:30 p.m. for the on-air tape. He then begins to prepare for the next day — an entirely new script which will call for entirely new scoring.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE — Ann Wedgeworth is currently appearing on both TV and theatre screens. In the daytime drama series "Somerset" she plays Lahoma Lucas, a woman whose marriage was nearly wrecked. Movie audiences can see her in the current film "Scarecrow."

Campbell As A Commentator

Award-winning singer-guitarist Glen Campbell will join sportscasters Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek as guest commentator for Monday Night Baseball on Aug. 27. Air time is 8:15 p.m., immediately following "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" at 8 p.m.

Campbell, one of many stars of the entertainment world with a strong yen for baseball, will be the 14th celebrity to have added commentary to Monday Night Baseball this season.

Campbell, who will star in "Chevrolet Presents the Very First Glen Campbell Television Special" on Sunday, Sept. 16, will need little introduction as a celebrity from the Messrs. Gowdy and Kubek in his first baseball broadcasting assignment.

Campbell has won five Grammy Awards from the National Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences, and earned 10 Gold Records from the Record Industry of America, each signifying a million dollars in album sales. He also had his own weekly TV series for nearly five years.

SMITH'S SON

Reid Smith, a star of the new "Chase" series, is the son of Vern Smith, announcer on the long-running "Ozzie and Harriet" TV series.

Four-Night Show 'War And Peace'

The statistics behind the mammoth Russian-made film version of Count Leo Tolstoy's masterpiece, "War and Peace" are, from start to finish, staggering.

The largest and most ambitious motion picture ever made, "War and Peace" was filmed over a period of five years at a production cost of more than $100,000,000.

The 6½ hour film will be shown on four consecutive evenings, on ABC Wide World of Entertainment, on Channel 3-5-12. Monday, Aug. 27, Tuesday, Aug. 28, Wednesday, Aug. 29 and Thursday, Aug. 30 (11:30 p.m.-1 a.m.).

Sergeo Bondarchuk, the producer - director, co-author and star (he portrays Pierre) has brought the monumental novel to the screen with complete fidelity, precise historical accuracy and with a magnitude and sense of spectacle commensurate with its unprecendented budget.

Never before has the catch phrase "cast of thousands' been so meaningful. The battle scenes were staged as exact re-enactments of actual battles; at Borodino, more than 120,000 French and Russian troops fought one of the bloodiest battles of all time. More than 120,000 troops were used to recreate this battle for the film.

The cast includes 30 of the foremost Soviet stage and screen stars. Only a single newcomer was cast - Ludmila Savelyeva, who was entrusted with the vitally important role of Natasha. Miss Savelyeva was chosen after a talent search that rivaled that of the quest for the actress to play Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind."

Set construction was not only a major production problem, it was an incredible achievement. The streets of Moscow and St. Petersburg, the old Kremlin and a variety of battle locales were re-created in 103 outdoor sets.

Some 69 additional outdoors sets simulate the gardens and parks of the 19th century nobility, plus remote villages and other battlegrounds.

In addition to the military uniforms of many nationalities, including Russian, French, Austrian, Italian and Polish, there were over 2,000 separate and distinct civilian costumes, covering all strata of Russian society from Tsar to peasant.

The armed forces used 160 artillery pieces, 120 wagons, 7,000 swords and daggers, 52 tons of smoke compound, 23 tons of gunpowder, 16,000 hand grenades, 6,000 white smoke bombs and 4,500 fuses. The flame and smoke effects for the three major battle sequences consumed over 105,000 tons of kerosene.

In discussing the task of turning the novel into a film, Bondarchuk explained that several approaches had been considered. "Our desire was always to convey what Tolstoy wanted to say with utmost fullness and consistency. We have tried to involve the spectator in the vents on the screen, to make hgim espericen waht Tolstoy's characters experience and the atmosphere in which they lived."

Assorted Yankees 'Wired Up'

The bullpen is a private place of business in major league ball parks, but in "The Baseball World of Joe Garagiola" on NBC, immediately preceding Monday Night Baseball (8 p.m.), August 27, the bullpen in Yankee Stadium becomes a nice place to visit even if ordinary people can't live there.

This edition of Gargaiola's "world" takes an incisive look at the game from the vantage point of the bullpen by wiring for sound assorted Yankees, including Sparky Lyle.

Lyle, the game's premier relief pitcher, will be viewed closeup by way of three cameras, one of which will be placed adjacent to the bullpen, another roving the stands for special angles of the bullpen crew and the third on the game's action.

WORKING ON A CASE — Peter Falk, as Lt. Columbo, works to solve the murder of an heir to a trust fund, in "The Greenhouse Jungle," to be colorcast on "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" Aug. 26 (8:30-10 p.m.).

Gorman Humility 'Lesson'

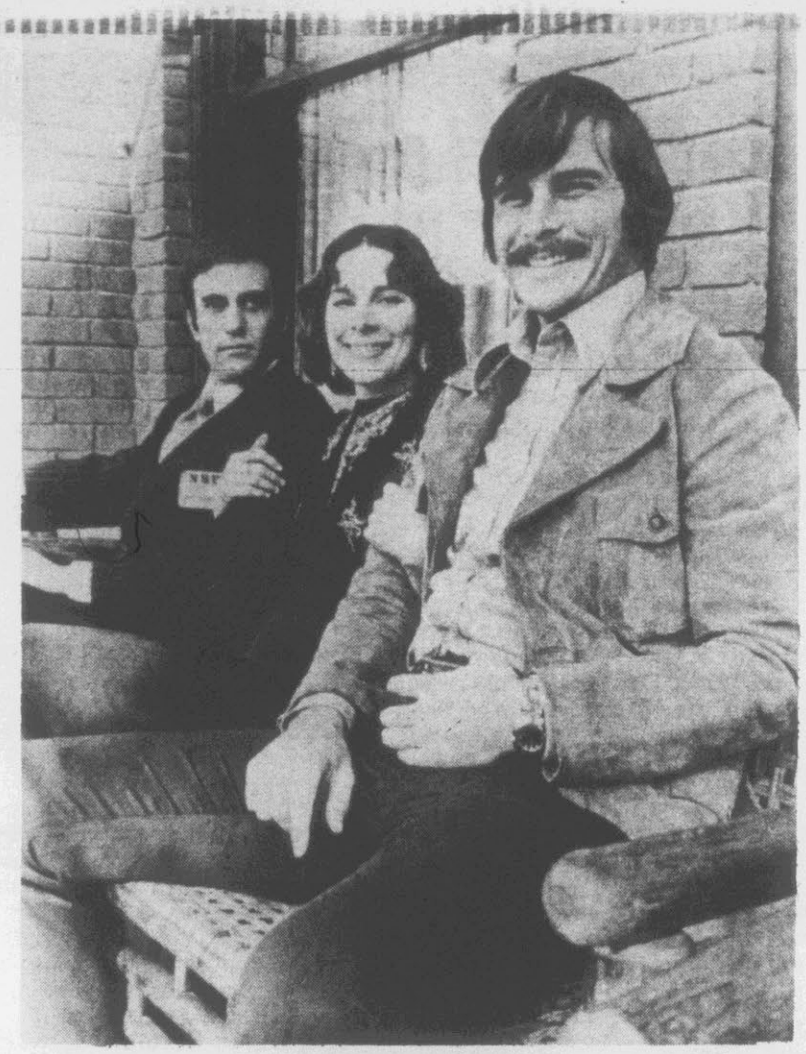

He majored in education in college, worked as a salesman after serving in the Air Force, then switched to acting in the mid-1960s because he had an idea he would do well at it.

The foregoing describes the metamorphosis of Cliff Gorman, talented Broadway actor who makes his made-for-TV film debut in "Class of '63," co-starring James Brolin and Joan Hackett, on the "Tuesday Movie of the Week" Aug. 28 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

"I graduated from New York University in 1958 with a B.S. in education and then spent two-and-a-half years as a lieutenant in the Air Force," Gorman elaborated. "I tried selling for a couple of years, but I got bored."

Gorman made his Broadway debut in 1965 in "Hogan's Goat" and a few years later gained critical acclaim in both the New York stage and film versions of "The Boys in the Band." He established himself as an actor to be reckoned with when he next starred on Broadway in "Lenny," the biographical drama about acid-tongued comedian Lenny Bruce for which he won a 1971-72 season Tony Award.

The lean, medium-height actor, who made his motion picture debut several years ago in "Justine" and has "Cops and Robbers" with Joe Bolognal awaiting release, says he was quick to sign for "Class of '63."

CLIFF GORMAN, Joan Hackett and James Brolin (l to r) find old hurts re-lived when they meet again at a dangerous college class reunion in "Class of '63 on the "ABC Tuesday Movie of the Week," Tuesday, August 28 (8:30 to 10 p.m.)

"It's a good role and the script is intelligent. I play a jealous husband who likes to play deadly games with his rival (Brolin). It happens at a college reunion where people try to relieve their pasts. It's kind of sad, but certainly true to life."

"I listened to a few of Bruce's records, but basically took my inspiration from the script. 'Lenny' is the story of what happened to a guy, and that's the way I played it."

Regarding "The Boys in the Band," Gorman would not play the same kind of character again. "The audience would remember me and listen more carefully the next time. I'd find myself exaggerating to the point of caricature."

A First-Time On TV Movie

Aldo Ray and Peter O'Toole star in "The Day they Robbed the Bank of England," an exciting story based on the historical details of the only time the seemingly impregnable Bank of England was robbed, to be presented for the first time on television on "The CBS Late Movie" Wednesday, Aug. 29, Channel 3N,9,11.

In the story, Ray protrays Irish-American adventurer Charles Norgate, ringleader of a group of Irish patriots who plot to rob the bank in order to obtain funds for Ireland's fight against England for home rule in 1901. Against formidable physical odds, he and his companions gain access to the strongly guarded vaults by means of an obsolete sewer line, then transfer the gold bullion to an abandoned warehouse.

Defensive Medicine Explored

Doctors are learning more and more that they are "damned if they do and damned if they don't".

The practice of "defensive medicine", and skyrocketing costs of hospitalization — two deeply troublesome aspects of medicine in this country today — will be explored in an "NBC Reports" special to be colorcast on Tuesday, August 28 (10-11 p.m.). Ron Nessen and Ken Alvord will be the reporters.

The rising incidence of medical malpractice suits is leading doctors increasingly to practice defensive medicine to avoid such suits or defend themselves against them. Defensive medicine is characterized by excessive tests, excessive consultations with specialists, more office visits, longer hospital stays — all beyond what is clinically necessary. Also, doctors may refuse to follow a risky procedure for fear of complications that could lead to a lawsuit.

An American Insurance Association official reports that the chances are one in six that a doctor will be sued by a patient. Soaring with the number of suits are the cost of insurance premiums to the doctor and the size of settlements to the plaintiff.

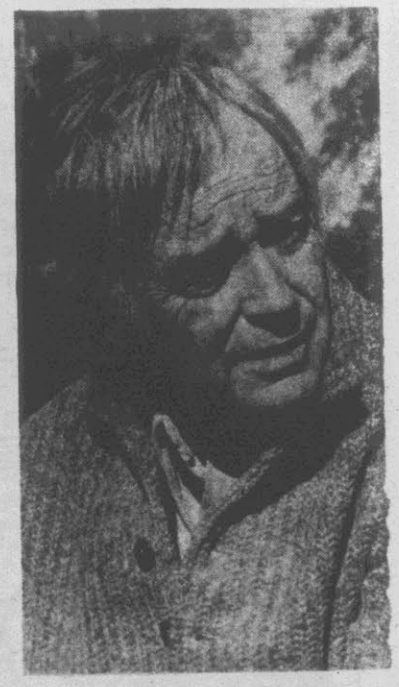

Recent opinion surveys reveal that up to 70 percent of the doctors interviewed admitted practicing defensive medicine. (And some experts believe that defensive medicine may be adding 10 percent to the cost of hospital bills.)

In a study he made while at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Dr. James Potchen said that one billion dollars are spent annually on unnecessary x-rays. (He noted that in addition to the cost factor, x-rays are potentially dangerous to the individual and, in the gross population, could trigger genetic changes in future generations.) Diagnostic x-rays are the source of more than 90 percent of the man-made radiation reaching the American people, according to another study.

The report will look into the defensive medicine problem in three basic areas: the doctor's routine office practice; the hospital experience of a patient from admission through surgery and recovery; and emergency room treatment.

It is being filmed at many locations, including Albert Einstein Hospital in New York City, John Hopkins University in Baltimore, the University of Pittsburgh Medical Center, and the office of an internist in Washington, D. C. An interview with Dr. Denton Cooley, the noted heart surgeon, will be filmed in Houston.

Since 1965, hospitals have averaged a 13 percent increase in costs annually. The story behind this rise will be explored in visits to Albert Einstein Hospital and Montefiore Hospital, both in New York City, and a medical facility in Chicago.

REBEL — Lew Ayres portrays a professor and rebellious citizen of a "perfect order" society where individual freedom is severely limited, in "World Premiere: The Stranger," to be colorcast on "NBC Tuesday Night at the Movies" Aug. 28 (8-10 p.m.).

Adam 12's Rookie Is A Veteran

He is a veteran actor and he is entering his sixty year as rookie Officer Jim Reed on NBC's "Adam-12" series.

His acting career actually started 12 years ago after he played on a football team led by Rick Nelson against a squad formed by Elvis Presley. The game was not only the beginning of his show business career, but also was the formation of a lasting friendship with Nelson.

McCord worked as an extra and in small roles in the "Ozzie and Harriet" show as a lark. It wasn't long before the various facets of show business sparked his interest in acting as a career.

After graduating from Baldwin Park High as an All-San Gabriel Valley star tackle, the native Californian enrolled at nearby Citrus Junior College with an eye toward becoming a high school football coach.

He later transfereed to Mount San Antonio Junior College where he earned an Associate of Arts degree. McCord then accepted a bid, one of 20 offered him, to the University of Utah in Salt Lake City.

STRAINS MARRIAGE — George Kennedy and Vera Miles find their marriage suffering when he loses the job he has held for more than 20 years and becomes an unemployment statistic in "A Great American Tragedy," a contemporary social drama on "Wednesday Movie of the Week" Wednesday, August 29 (8:30-10 p.m.).

Dolphins And Vikings Meet On August 31

The Super Bowl VII CHAMPION Miami Dolphins, as a prelude to the regular-seaon schedule of National Football League games, take on Minnesota Vikings in the first of three pre-seaon games to be presented on Friday, August 31, beginning at 9 p.m., on Channel 9-11.

Jack Whitaker, play by play, Pat Summerall, color and analysis, and Brent Musburger, post-game, will cover the action from Metropolitan Stadium in Bloomington, Minnesota.

The Dolphins swept to the NFL championship in 1972 with the first all-winning season in the NFL's history (14 regular-season and three post-season games). In accomplishing the unprecedented feat, the Dolphins led the league in both scoring and defense, limiting opponents to a total of 171 points.

Bob Griese, at quarterback, and the running-back duo of Jim Kiick and Larry Csonka are the stalwarts of the offense. Nick Buoniconti, at middle linebacker, leads the defensive unit.

College Football Special

"An Autumn Affair: College Football '73", a one-hour special, will be telecast in color on Thursday, August 30 (8-9 p.m.).

Narrators for the special are Chris Schenkel, Bud Wilkinson and Duffy Daugherty. Wilkinson is a former University of Oklahoma coach and has been an expert analyst ABC's college football telecasts for the past seven years. Duffy Daugherty, recently - retired Michigan State football coach, will be joining the ABC College football commentary team this fall.

The special will look at the 1973 season in the light of predictions by members of the Football Writers Association of America (FWAA), who will pick the various conference winners, the top ten teams in the country, and the probable winner of the Heisman Trophy.

Among the program's features are segments on Tom Osborne, Nebraska's new head coach, halfback Anthony Davis of USC, who scored six touchdowns against Notre Dame; the Selmon brothers (LeRoy and Lucious) of Oklahoma, and the nonconformist genius coach of Penn State, Joe Paterno.

Baseball Fan In Japan Is Very Partisan

In Japan, like in the United States, the custom today is to behave in a partisan manner. Like yelling at the umpires, players — and when the occasion calls for it — screaming at other fans.

The behavior pattern of the Japanese fan will be given a close look Saturday, September 1, in the pre-game show prior to Major League Baseball's Game-of-the-Week on NBC at 2 P.M.

This will be the third and final show on NBC probing the mystique of America's national pastime in Japan. Jim Simpson will be the host of this edition of Japanese baseball which was filmed recently in Japan.

Race Of Champions

International Race of Champions — one of the most unusual concepts in the history of automobile racing — which involves 12 of the world's greatest drivers — will be telecast by ABC Sports during the first quarter of 1974, it was announced today by Roone Arledge, President of ABC Sports.

Arledge said that three races of the four race series will be taped at the Riverside International Raceway on October 27th and 28th. Those three races will then be telecast over the ABC Television Network beginning in January.

He said the fourth race in the series will be broadcast February 16 from the Daytona International Speedway on the weekend of the famed Daytona '500' Stock Car Race.

The 12 drivers, representing the four major branches of auto racing, will compete against each other in identical Porsche Carrera racing cars for prize money totaling more than $140,000.

Eleven of the drivers have already been selected. They are Jackie Stewart, Emerson Fittipaldi and Denis Hulme, all from formula one racing; Mark Donohue, Peter Revson and George Follmer, of American road racing; Richard Petty, David Pearson and Bobby Allison, of stock car racing; and Bobby Unser, and Gordon Johncock, both of U. S. Auto Club (USAC) racing.

Penske Productions, creators of the series, have ordered 15 special 1974 three-liter Porsche Carrera RSR racing cars from Porche's plant in West Germany. Each car will be checked by racing officials before their bonded shipment to the United States.

The cars will be identical in every way, including, fuel, oil, tires, spark plugs and shock absorbers. The only exception will be adjustments to the driver's seat. Drivers may not make mechanical changes on the cars.

One Track Mind Said A Factor

Buck Buchanan is considered one of the top defensive tackles in the AFC. Being a veteran of seven All-Star games and having been voted the Chiefs Most Valuable Player by his teammates in '65 and '67, Buck attributes his success to a "one track mind."

This mammoth defensive tackle (6'7", 275 lbs.) keeps his mind on just one thing: "Beating his man." This one thought prevales in his mind during the off season as well as when the season is in progress. It should be noted that the term "beating his man" that dominates Buck's every thought is not necessarily a physical beating but is the slang expression for getting past an offensive lineman for a shot at the quarterback. If, however, "beating his man" necessitates a little more of the physical connotations of the expression, Buck is adequately prepared to handle that. In fact, some of Buck's opponents would argue that Buck takes the term quite literally.

"All winter I think about something I can use to beat my man," says the All Pro. "I dream about it at night. All year I think about it. During the season I don't think about anything else. I don't let anything interfere with my job. All I think about is how.I can beat my guy, because I know he's thinking how he's going to beat me."

Buchanan has devised many weapons which enable him to consistantly defeat his opposition. His most famous approach is "the club" in which either of his massive forearms is swung like an ax at the shoulder pads or head, knocking his adversary off balance, thus giving Buck the half-second he needs to scrable into the backfield and disrupt things there. Another technique he has developed through the years is how to direct his brute strength with a combination of fakes.

Through the years Buck Buchanan has proved a solid performer for the Kansas City Chiefs never having missed a practice session in ten years. Last year, he was hampered some by an injury and only played part-time against Oakland and Denver. It was the first time he had ever missed any part of a game due to injury.

Buck will be in action against the Green Bay Packers, Sunday, August 26, at 8:00 P.M. on Channel 3-5-12, when the Chiefs and Packers square off in Kansas City

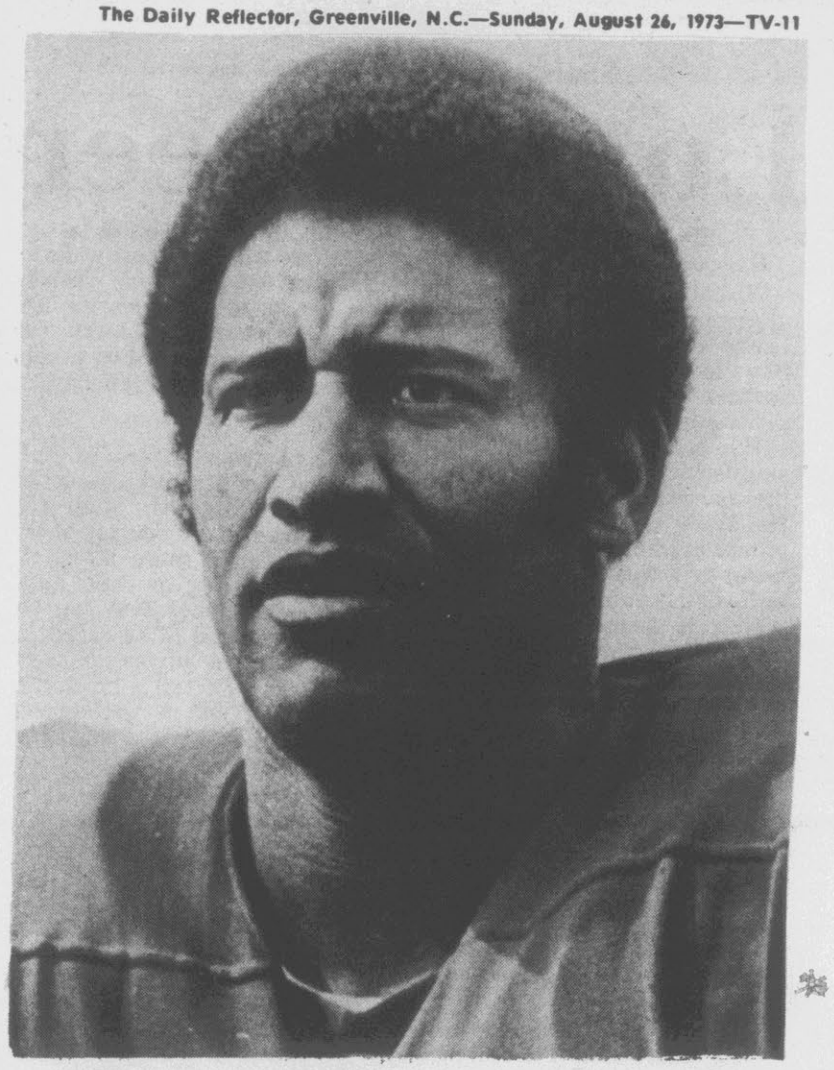

The Partridge Family At Sea

"The Partridge Family" will film an episode at sea for the 1973-74 season while cruising from Acapulco to Los Angeles aboard the S. S. Fairsea, an 860-passenger luxury cruise ship, operated by Sitmar Cuises.

Miss Shirley Jones and the other members of the cast will fly to Acapulco September 16, to join the regularly scheduled cruise, with a stop at Mazatlan.

A production crew of more than 50 persons, headed by producers Mel Swope and William S. Bickley, will accompany the cast from Hollywood for a five-day shooting schedule.

Buck Buchanan (6'7", 275 pounds) All Pro defensive tackle for the Kansas City Chiefs, starting his eleventh season. Kansas City will square off aginst Green Bay on Sunday August 26, at 8:.00 p.m.

Lorne Greene Series Described

By DAVID VICTOR
Executive Producer of "Griff"

We have made exciting concept changes in "Griff," starring Lorne Greene in the title role and Ben Murphy as his younger partner, to make it unique among private investigator series.

The premise of "Griff" is a simple one. He is single. He is in the private investigative field. His Wade Griffin Investigations offices are in Westwood, a locale never before used in a series, but an exciting youth-oriented place which is somewhat familiar nationally because of UCLA. I always like specific locations for the values they add to series, as Santa Monica in "Marcus Welby, M.D.," and Santa Barbara in "Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law."

Westwood is an appropriate setting for a man like Griff, who, as a police captain had been almost at the top of the department before he quit over a matter of principle. He is a man of great reputation with contacts of the highest level.

This is not a cliche detective show. Griff is not a Raymond Chandler kind of private eye, suffering pretty much at the displeasure of the police department. This is not our attitude. Griff handles only big cases. He would not get involved in a Peeping Tom operation for divorce evidence, unless it was a necessary precedure in a major case.

This is essentially a mystery show, usually involving homicide or some aspect of it. This is a strong investigative series in which we will be honest with the audience and give them clues as we get them. Our stories are about people in high places. The crimes are committed by people who probably never committed one before.

The relationship between Griff and the Ben Murphy character, S. Michael Murdoch, is already established at the opening of the series. Though there is an obvious difference in their ages, there is no generation gap between Griff and Mike except in their different styles. Mike is casual, as reflected in his clothes and cars. But in professional philosophy, each is a surrogate for the other. They are completely in accord as to results, although their methods may differ. They get along well, respect each other and like each other.

The third member of Griff's office family is secretary-receptionist Gracie Newcombe, a charming character, an old movie buff and a good actress who finds it tough to get arrested in that pursuit. She studies hard, is modern, but a romanticist, and Griff lets her off for interviews. We hope to cast an actress for this role shortly.

Griff is an attractive middle-aged man and women will react to him. He is strong, has strong moral convictions, and is articulate. Both he and Mike are street fighters when necessary to defend themselves or others.

I am asked time and again, "Why another private investigator show?" Obviously all I can tell you is there's always room. The reason the format has been used over and over again is because it satisfies a need people have for entertainment, providing both mystery and legitimate action.

Philosophically speaking, an officer working in a police department usually has the job of proving somebody guilty. In some ways, private investigation is a reversal of this for a humane man. If you put out a shingle and a man, woman or child comes to you for help, it is usually to prove them innocent because either the circumstances are so damaging or a police department can't get to it for whatever reason.

Here we have Lorne Greene, a superstar, an individual of moral conviction, of involvement in the case of right. I think it's really fitting for him to play a private investigator.

FOR ED McMAHON

Jack Paar's return to a television talk show has proved to be a disappointment. What do you think is the reason?—T. F. Kane, Durham, N.C.

● Jack and his colleagues evidently thought that he could pick up where he left off ten years ago. But because of the many changes in our society, the parade has passed him by. Those water-closet jokes that caused such a furor when he was in his prime would be tame stuff today. The Tonight Show has been on for almost 11 years, and we've kept in close touch with the scene and our viewers. Many of our people who are now 27 years old and married were with us as teenagers. They grew up with us.

FOR AL KALINE, Detroit Tiger baseball star

I've heard that only one batter ever pinch-hit for Ted Williams. Did anybody ever pinch-hit for you?—James McLoskey, Pacoima, Calif.

● Fred Hatfield pinch-hit for me back in 1954. He hit a home run—and he's never let me forget it.

FOR PAT MORROW,
Rita Jacks Harrington of "Peyton Place"

Is it true that you are giving up acting to study law?—B. K., Whittier, Calif.

● No. Someone printed that I hated acting, but that absolutely isn't so. Acting is fun. And it pays. That's the money that is getting me through law school. Eventually I want to be a politician, and my father convinced me that training and a background in law are necessary before entering politics.

FOR JANET LYNN, skating star

It's no secret that you pray before each performance and consider yourself a religious person. Is there any one experience when you felt the presence of the Lord most intensely? —B. A. Martin, Kankakee, Ill.

● Yes. I remember, when I was in the seventh grade, sitting in church. The pastor's sermon brought forth a torrent of tears, and I vowed from that moment to seek a deeper meaning in life.

FOR SEN. CHARLES H. PERCY (R-Ill.)

I hear you have presidential ambitions, but isn't the Watergate scandal draining power from the White House? And shouldn't it?—James Scott, Scranton, Pa.

● The executive branch has had far too much power. The Congress is beginning to reassert itself in an effort to become, once again, a full-fledged and coequal partner in government. But the Congress should be very careful that it does not overplay its hand to the point of defying our constitutional history.

FOR DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

When an adult plays games with children should the adult let them win or play to the best of his adult powers?—Lynnette Paulsen, Lansing, Mich.

● I don't think an adult should pretend to lose to make a child feel better, because that's dishonest. The emphasis in skill games should be on teaching the child better techniques. If the adult wants the child to win, he should play games in which luck is important.

FOR DIZZY DEAN, ex-pitcher, now sportscaster

What is your feeling toward the new "designated hitter" rule in the American League?—Will Page, Statesboro, Ga.

● I don't like seeing that chance at bat being taken away from the pitcher.

FOR SUSAN SAINT JAMES of "McMillan & Wife"

Whatever happened to the baby that Sally was supposed to have at the end of last season?—Barbara A. Wellman, Clinchco, Va.

● The creator and executive producer, Leonard Stern, decided to write the baby out of the script. Rumor has it that the baby couldn't act!

FOR JOHN G. SCHMITZ,
1972 Conservative party presidential candidate

Why was your campaign ignored by the mass media?—William H. Tribe II, Ogden, Utah

● The mass media have generally ignored candidates other than those of the two major parties, except when there was good reason to believe another candidacy might affect the winner of the election. The prospect of my affecting the election was destroyed because Senator McGovern was decisively repudiated by the American people from the beginning.

FOR SEN. ERNEST HOLLINGS (D-S.C.)

What is the advantage of Gerovital, the Rumanian drug that you and other senators are seeking to bring into this country?—R. Z., Hayward, Calif.

● Gerovital, called the "youth drug," is widely used in Europe and Mexico. It was developed by a 73-year-old woman doctor, Ana Aslan, in Bucharest. Tom Eagleton, Howard Cannon of Nevada and I had an Army doctor from Walter Reed Army Medical Center check out the claims for this drug as a cure for arthritis, for making hair grow and general rehabilitation. The doctor came away much impressed. Still, the U.S. bans the drug. I think we ought to obtain its entry into this country to help the elderly.

Friendship Between Women: Why It's Different... Why It's Better,

By Rona Jaffe

When I was growing up, long before anyone had heard of Women's Lib, most of us little girls were taught that other little girls were not to be trusted: they were catty, selfish, treacherous and would steal your boyfriends, not because they particularly wanted your boyfriends but because it was an instinct born in women to acquire men. Despite this indoctrination, and despite the fact that some of the girls we knew at school were catty, treacherous, and did steal not only boyfriends but clothes and money as well, all of us managed to have close friends, and of course at least one real Best Friend.

Life without one's best girl friend would have been unendurable. Who else would listen to your innermost secrets, never laugh at you, understand, give sympathetic advice, commiserate, and never tell? It was always understood between best friends that no man could ever be the cause of a falling out: if both of you liked the same boy it had to be consecutively, never simultaneously. You could never date your best friend's exboyfriend until she had stated that she was through with him, no matter how many times he appeared at your dorm when she was out and offered to take you for a ride as long as he was there anyway. You were wise to that ploy; that was treacherous. You and your best friend either actually agreed or at least understood by instinct that no casual man, no ego trip, no fling, could ever come between you. He would have to be The Man, and then of course everything would be different, but you both hoped (and really rather knew) that you would never both fall madly in love with the same man at the same time and want him for life, because that was one of the reasons you were such well-matched and trusting girl friends.

When we all grew up and Women's Lib came along to tell us that women were wonderful, any of us who had a best friend already knew it. Men talk a lot about their old loyalties, their lifetime friends, their old school pals, their old Army buddies, but can they really confide their weaknesses to each other? Can they cry in front of their best buddy, unless they're dead drunk and then pretend to have forgotten all about it in the morning? Can they tell each other how afraid they are—not in the foxhole, where pretense is allowed to vanish, but in the office, where sometimes pretense is all there is? Can a man tell his best friend he thinks his wife may be cheating on him, that he's worried sick and what should he do? Can a man tell his best friend that he feels inadequate? There are so many areas in which we humans feel inadequate, and sometimes being able to share these fears with someone close can make them go away. But men seem to have been brought up to act strong, not to admit to weakness and fear, and so when men get together with their best friends it seems they are always doing something: playing tennis, bowling, having a drink, playing cards, fishing, camping, chasing girls, talking business, watching some sports event live or on TV. These are things men can only "do with men." Actually they could do most of them alone or with their dogs, but they choose to do them with their men friends because it is their way of expressing their friendship.

We women, on the other hand, do not have to express our friendship by doing things together. We know that it is usually quicker to shop alone, and when we shop or lunch or play tennis or go to the movies together it is usually for efficiency as well as companionship. When we want to be together we are simply together: we sit down and talk. We talk in our kitchens and living rooms and in restaurants, and we have long talks on the telephone, a gadget to which most men seem to be allergic except when used for business. A man gets off the phone as soon as possible; communication that is not face to face seems to disturb him. Women understand the warmth of a phone talk with one's closest friend when there is a problem to be solved, a fear to be shared and dispersed, or just when one is bored or lonely. Men think they are practical because they use the phone to make dates. We women know we are practical because we use the phone to avoid making dates: why not talk now?

"A man gets off the phone as soon as possible; communication that is not face to face seems to disturb him. Women understand the warmth of a phone talk with one's closest friend...."

One of the things women who are close friends can talk about at almost inexhaustible length is sickness and health. Men are so squeamish (or are they just indoctrinated still to exude that image of physical invincibility?) that it is a wonder so many men become doctors. Women know that the female body is important and sometimes delicate; we are fascinated by its care and upkeep, we know its well-being is vital. "What did the doctor say?" can set off a monologue between close women friends. Two close men friends would rather talk about what the garage mechanic told them about the car—it's not a threatening subject. But what did the doctor say? "Nothing."

In the giving up of their free time to help each other, men and women are about equal. But the way many women's lives are structured today, with a job and a home to take care of, there is more need of friends to reciprocate in giving up their free time to help other friends, in child-watching or all the fetching and depositing of young children that our busy lives demand, and the women friends come through. Women are much less hesitant than men to ask their friends for favors, largely because we women have always been asked to help, to do things, to come through when there's no one else around, no matter how inconvenient the circumstances, and so we expect the same warmth and courtesy from our close friends that we give to them.

The one area in which women are much more reluctant than men to ask their friends to come through is money. Women very rarely ask their girl friends for a loan, largely because women have been underpaid for so long that we know it would be a silly request. Who has any extra money? Women are still used to asking men for money: father, husband, brother, boss, boyfriend, and if all those fail there's always the man at the bank. Men sometimes ask women for money, and seem to have no guilt about it. Apparently the memory of Mama is still warm in their hearts.

A group of women may look silly dividing the check in a restaurant, but a man looks sillier picking up the check for the whole group when he can't afford it. We women may be phony as can be with strangers we don't trust, but we don't have false pride with our good friends. We know that a good friend is irreplaceable, but a friend you have to fool to keep is not worth keeping.

Rod McKuen— Poet, Songwriter, Singer: How Life Finally Forced Me to Be Myself

By Andamo Crater

FAMILY WEEKLY: With all those hundreds of concerts you do—do you ever get stage fright?

McKUEN: Never. If people pay to see me, we must want to see each other. So what do I have to be afraid of? And I also don't believe in bad audiences. I think you give bad performances. If you don't get to your audience, it's your fault, not theirs. You just have to work that much harder. I go crazy out there sometimes. After I do a few songs, if I feel like I'm not getting to them, I just go bananas. And I work my tail off; I change all the songs right in midstream, switch things around like mad."

McKUEN: Oh yeah—if you can't, you shouldn't be a performer. You know, this year, I will have done 240 concerts in 16 countries. One day, I did three lectures, and for about the last 12 or 13 days I've done two concerts a day.

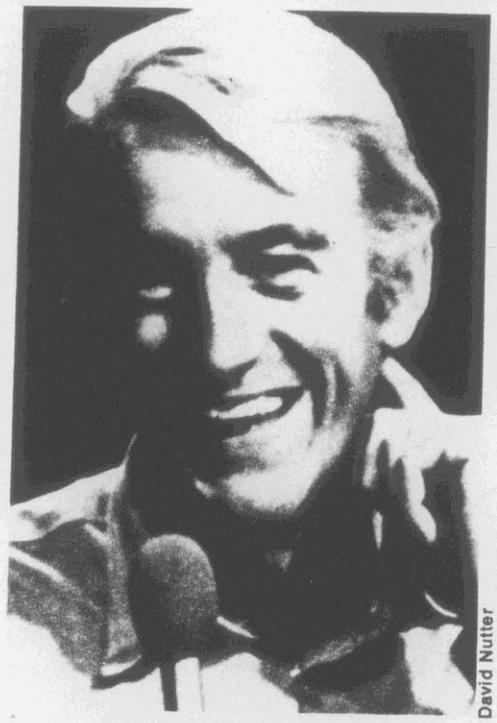

FW: You only began to make it in the late sixties, but I seem to remember your records started showing up as early as 1958 or 1959.

McKUEN: That's right. My first album—"Songs for a Lazy Afternoon"—came out about then. I had a whole different voice then. I lost it singing rock and roll. I had done this rock and roll record as a gag, and after that I found myself doing these concerts. I didn't know how to sing, so I was singing from my throat. I did 80 concerts in eight weeks. By the end of that time, my throat was like hamburger. The doctor said I would never sing again. He also said, "You'll be lucky if you ever talk again." And sure enough, after a few days, I lost my voice completely. It was six months before I could actually talk.

FW: What did you do then?

McKUEN: Well, I went back to California. And I was in the hospital for the first six weeks. I thought to myself: If I can't write and sing the kind of things I want to, I don't want to do anything at all. And it was only then that I began to be successful. But I knew there was no point in my doing rock and roll songs, because there were a lot of other people doing them better than me. And I couldn't say anything within the medium that couldn't be said better by somebody else. So I decided I was going to go my own way.

FW: When did you feel you were getting hold of your audience?

David Nutter

"I'm going to be charitable and not name them, but I think there are singers who sell hundreds of thousands of albums who are afraid to get inside a song and really work it."

McKUEN: It was spooky and strange. It was as though one day you were sort of there, and the next day you were there! I would love to put my finger on that day, but I can't.

FW: Weren't you doing records of your poetry a dozen or so years ago? I remember one called "Beatsville."

McKUEN: I've got to tell you a great story about that album. In fact, there were two albums. The other one was called "Time of Desire." I made them around 1959, and they just sat there on the shelf. When I became a success, the company took those two albums and turned them into 17 albums! Would you believe that?

FW: Why do you write songs?

McKUEN: I think you should have an awfully good excuse to write a song. There should be only three reasons for writing anything. One is to have fun—the most self-indulgent reason. The second one is this—either to write about something nobody else will write about and do it in an intelligent and sensible way, or to write about something that everyone writes about and to write about it differently. Then there's the third reason—the paramount reason for me—I write about people's inability to communicate with each other. And that, to me, is almost a mission in life. I believe in one-to-one communication very strongly. I believe it's the answer to our ills—all of them.

FW: What singers do you like the best?

McKUEN: I'm crazy about Mary Travers. I like Judy Collins and Neil Diamond very much—and, of course, there's Sinatra. I think in my lifetime, there have been two real innovators in music. Sinatra, because he sang on the vowels and because he made every single word understandable. And the Beatles, because they made a form of music, rock, acceptable whether played by the raunchiest rock group or the most sophisticated symphony orchestra.

FW: Do you feel you have been strongly influenced by anyone?

McKUEN: I hate being compared with another writer or singer, but I think you can't help being influenced. We all learned from Sinatra—as writers and as singers. But certainly all Americans have been influenced by Walt Whitman, whether we know it or not. In music, we've been influenced by Aaron Copland, whether we know it or not. It just happens.

FW: Who are you working with these days?

McKUEN: I'm making an album with Hildegard Knef, and another one with Marlene Dietrich. You know, my favorite singers are always people who supposedly can't sing—but who are incredible singers. I love Lotte Lenya's singing and Fred Astaire's.

McKUEN: It means they can't sing by any musicologist's definition. You know—bel canto. What annoys me even more are the singers who can sing and don't. I'm going to be charitable and not name them, but I think there are singers who sell hundreds of thousands of albums who are afraid to get inside a song and really work it. You know, when Sinatra came to do his album of my songs, he worked incredibly hard. He knew every single song when he came in—there are some very difficult songs to sing in that album. We did the talk songs in 90 minutes, when it would have taken most people three to five hours.

He's a remarkable man.

According to the sports editors of FAMILY WEEKLY newspapers, a certain announcer on UCLA football telecasts this fall will be talking about the exploits of the best college quarterback in the nation.

That sportscaster is Tom Harmon, one of the greatest of all collegiate halfbacks during his days at the University of Michigan and winner of the coveted Heisman Trophy in 1940. He now handles the microphone for KTLA, the Los Angeles television station that carries all UCLA games.

The quarterback whose feats Harmon will be describing, no doubt in glowing yet controlled terms, is Tom's own son, Mark Harmon, a blond-haired senior who stands six feet tall and weighs 185 pounds. Mark has been voted to the quarterback position on FAMILY WEEKLY's third annual All-America team, a 48-player squad chosen by sports editors of the newspapers that bring you this magazine.

In separate balloting, young Harmon, who guided the Bruins to a fine 8-3 record in 1972, was elected the country's best collegiate passer in a close three-way race, narrowly edging out Pacific Eight rival Mike Boryla of Stanford, and left-handed junior David Humm of Nebraska. Boryla is also the son of a famous sports father, Vince Boryla, a former college and pro basketball star who is now general manager of the ABA's Utah Stars.

Harmon, who ran UCLA's wide-open wishbone attack to near-perfection a year ago, completed 30 of 70 passes for six touchdowns, and ran for 444 yards and seven more touchdowns. In gaining his berth on the All-America first team, Mark beat out another running-passing quarterback, Condredge Holloway, a junior at Tennessee.

The other winners in the "best" voting–to select the top runner and lineman in the nation–won their first-team berths with ease. Anthony Davis of the University of Southern California, last year's national champion and UCLA's cross-town rival, received an overwhelming 80 percent of the votes cast for running back, and was acclaimed top runner in the land by an even wider margin. In both cases, the runner-up to Davis, a 5-9, 190-pound junior, was Arizona State senior Woody Green.

Lucious Selmon of Oklahoma drew almost 90 percent of the votes for the first-team berth at middle guard, and the 6-1, 224-pound senior also was elected the best lineman in the country by an almost 20-vote margin over Notre Dame's prodigious sophomore defensive tackle, 265-pound Steve Niehaus. John Hicks, Ohio State's 255-pound offensive tackle, also received considerable support in the "best lineman" category.

Place-kicker
Ricky Townsend
Tennessee: 6-2, 198

Punter
Greg Gantt
Alabama: 6-1, 190

When all other means of scoring fail, our first offensive team can call on Tennessee's junior place-kicking whiz, Ricky Townsend, who kicked 12 field goals and converted all 31 of his extra-point tries last season. Kicker on the defensive team is Greg Gantt of Alabama, from the same Southeastern Conference as Townsend.

Southern Cal's Davis, who likes to be called A. D. rather than Anthony, and absolutely never answers to "Tony," had a serious automobile accident last January that nearly ended his athletic career. Davis suffered a cut (but not severed) Achilles tendon, and a punctured right kneecap, plus numerous cuts and abrasions. But he healed quickly and demonstrated he would be back in the Trojan lineup this fall when he batted .360 and stole four bases while performing as a utility outfielder for the Southern Cal baseball team in 15 games last spring.

A. D.'s athletic forte, however, is football. Trojan Coach John McKay started him slowly last season, and in the first seven games of the year Davis gained a relatively meager 356 yards. Then, in the next two games, he ran 206 and 195 yards respectively against Oregon and Washington State. In the regular season finale against a tough Notre Dame squad, Southern Cal romped, 45-23, and A. D. scored all six of his team's touchdowns, two on kickoff returns of 97 and 96 yards. When Southern Cal completed its undefeated 12-0 season by crushing Ohio State, 42-17, in the Rose Bowl, Davis rolled for 157 more yards on the ground for a season's total of 1,191 and a per carry average of 5.8 yards.

Oklahoma's Selmon is the second consecutive middle guard from the Big Eight to be voted the nation's best lineman in the FAMILY WEEKLY All-America balloting. In 1972, Selmon played in the shadow of Nebraska's Rich Glover, last year's "best lineman" and a nearly unanimous choice to post-season All-America teams. This year Selmon should direct more attention toward himself.

Lucious has two younger brothers also playing football for Oklahoma–LeRoy, a defensive tackle, and Dewey, a back-up middle guard. Lucious made 83 tackles in 1972, ten of them resulting in 48 yards in losses by the opposition. He also broke up two passes and recovered two fumbles. Selmon was a defensive tackle for the Sooners as a sophomore two years ago, but was moved to middle guard in spring practice of 1972.

Southern California, with "best runner" Davis, will get a chance to face the other two FAMILY WEEKLY "bests" this season. The Trojans host Oklahoma for a night game on September 29, and meet UCLA on November 24 in the last game

IN THIS GRIND-EM-OUT WORLD, ISN'T IT NICE TO KNOW SOME PEOPLE REFUSE TO GRIND-EM-OUT?

We try to get rid of any taste-robbing imperfections before a Kent ever sees the light of a match. (Over 200 different quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the right kind of tobaccos for the milder Kent blend.

To complement this blend, we even invented our own filter, the famous Micronite filter—to smooth the flavor of Kent.

Why are we so adamant about how Kent is made?

Because, that way we can give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

of the season and what could be a classic Pacific Eight showdown.

There are five Trojans on FAMILY WEEKLY's first team, giving Southern Cal the largest representation of any school. Joining Davis as first-team selections are wide receiver Lynn Swann, defensive end James Sims, and defensive back Artimus Parker, all seniors, and linebacker Richard Wood, a junior.

Texas has the second largest contingent on the first team, including Roosevelt Leaks, the junior fullback who won his position by nearly 40 votes over UCLA senior James McAlister, who also is one of the nation's finest long jumpers in track. Center Bill Wyman and guard Don Crosslin are the other Longhorns on the first offensive squad, and Texas' Glen Gaspard makes the defensive team at one of the three linebacking spots.

berth than anyone else. In the closest race for any position, Frank Pomarico, another Notre Dame senior, won one of the guard spots, with Crosslin of Texas right behind. Tyler Lafauci of Louisiana State and Bon Boatwright of Oklahoma State were only a few votes back and made the second team.

Niehaus, the sophomore defensive tackle, is the third Notre Dame player on our first team. Under the new eligibility rule permitting freshmen to play varsity football at most of the nation's colleges, Steve made the Fighting Irish regular squad last year and was having a brilliant season when a knee injury sidelined him after four games. Expert opinion contends that Niehaus still could be the finest defensive lineman ever produced in the proud football history at South Bend.

Penn State placed two men on the first team, tight end Dan Natale on offensive and tackle Randy Crowder on defense. Ohio State placed Hicks at offensive tackle, and a big linebacker, Randy Gradishar, on the first team. Alabama's 6-6 defensive end John Croyle is the tallest man on either the first or second team, and the Crimson Tide is also represented by punter Greg Gantt. Nebraska, famous for its giant offensive linemen over the years, has another topflight performer in this tradition: 247-pound tackle Daryl White.

How the All-America Voting Went

Here's the way the FAMILY WEEKLY All-America college football team for 1973 developed, position-by-position:

Quarterback: The wishbone offense, which places a premium on a quarterback who can run as well as pass, is the most popular in American college football today. Mark Harmon of UCLA, who runs the Bruins' wishbone attack, and another versatile quarterback, Condredge Holloway of Tennessee, ran one-two for the quarterback job. Nebraska's David Humm, a fine passer, was only a few votes behind them. Harmon, who also is a fine passer but apparently was favored as the first-team quarterback because of his all-round versatility, was voted "best passer," with Mike Boryla of Stanford a close second. Humm was third in this category, only two votes behind Boryla.

Running back: Southern Cal's A. D. Davis won by a landslide, with Woody Green of Arizona State second and Charley Davis of Colorado slightly behind him. A. D. won by an even wider margin in the "best runner" voting.

Tight end: In a close race that wasn't determined until the final ballots were counted, Dan Natale of Penn State edged J. V. Cain of Colorado. Henry Childs of Kansas State was another vote-getter.

Wide receiver: Lynn Swann of Southern Cal and Jack Alvarez of Kentucky won the top berths. Alvarez held off Danny Buggs of West Virginia and Air Force's Frank Murphy by only a few votes. Bob Revelle of Nebraska and Bill Buckley of Mississippi State had support.

Offensive tackle: Daryl White of Nebraska and John Hicks of Ohio State were front-runners all the way, finishing ahead of Buddy Brown of Alabama and Eddie Foster of Oklahoma. Charlie Getty of Penn State was fifth in the voting.

Offensive guards: Frank Pomarico of Notre Dame finished way ahead of the field. Texas' Dón Crosslin nosed out both Tyler Lafauci of LSU and Bon Boatwright of Oklahoma State for the other first-team guard berth. John Houser of Arizona State and Bob Wolfe of Nebraska both had strong support.

Place-kicker: Ricky Townsend of Tennessee was first, nudging Rich Sanger of Nebraska; Fred Lima of Colorado was third.

Defensive ends: James Sims of Southern Cal and John Croyle of Alabama finished ahead of Mike Truax of Tulane and Van DeCree of Ohio State. Malcolm Minnick of Texas, Orrin Olsen of Brigham Young and Steve Manstedt of Nebraska all were in contention.

Defensive tackles: Steve Niehaus of Notre Dame, Randy Crowder of Penn State, Steve Cassidy of LSU and Benny Sivley of Auburn finished in that order. Robert Pulliam of Tennessee and Dave Gallagher of Michigan had strong support.

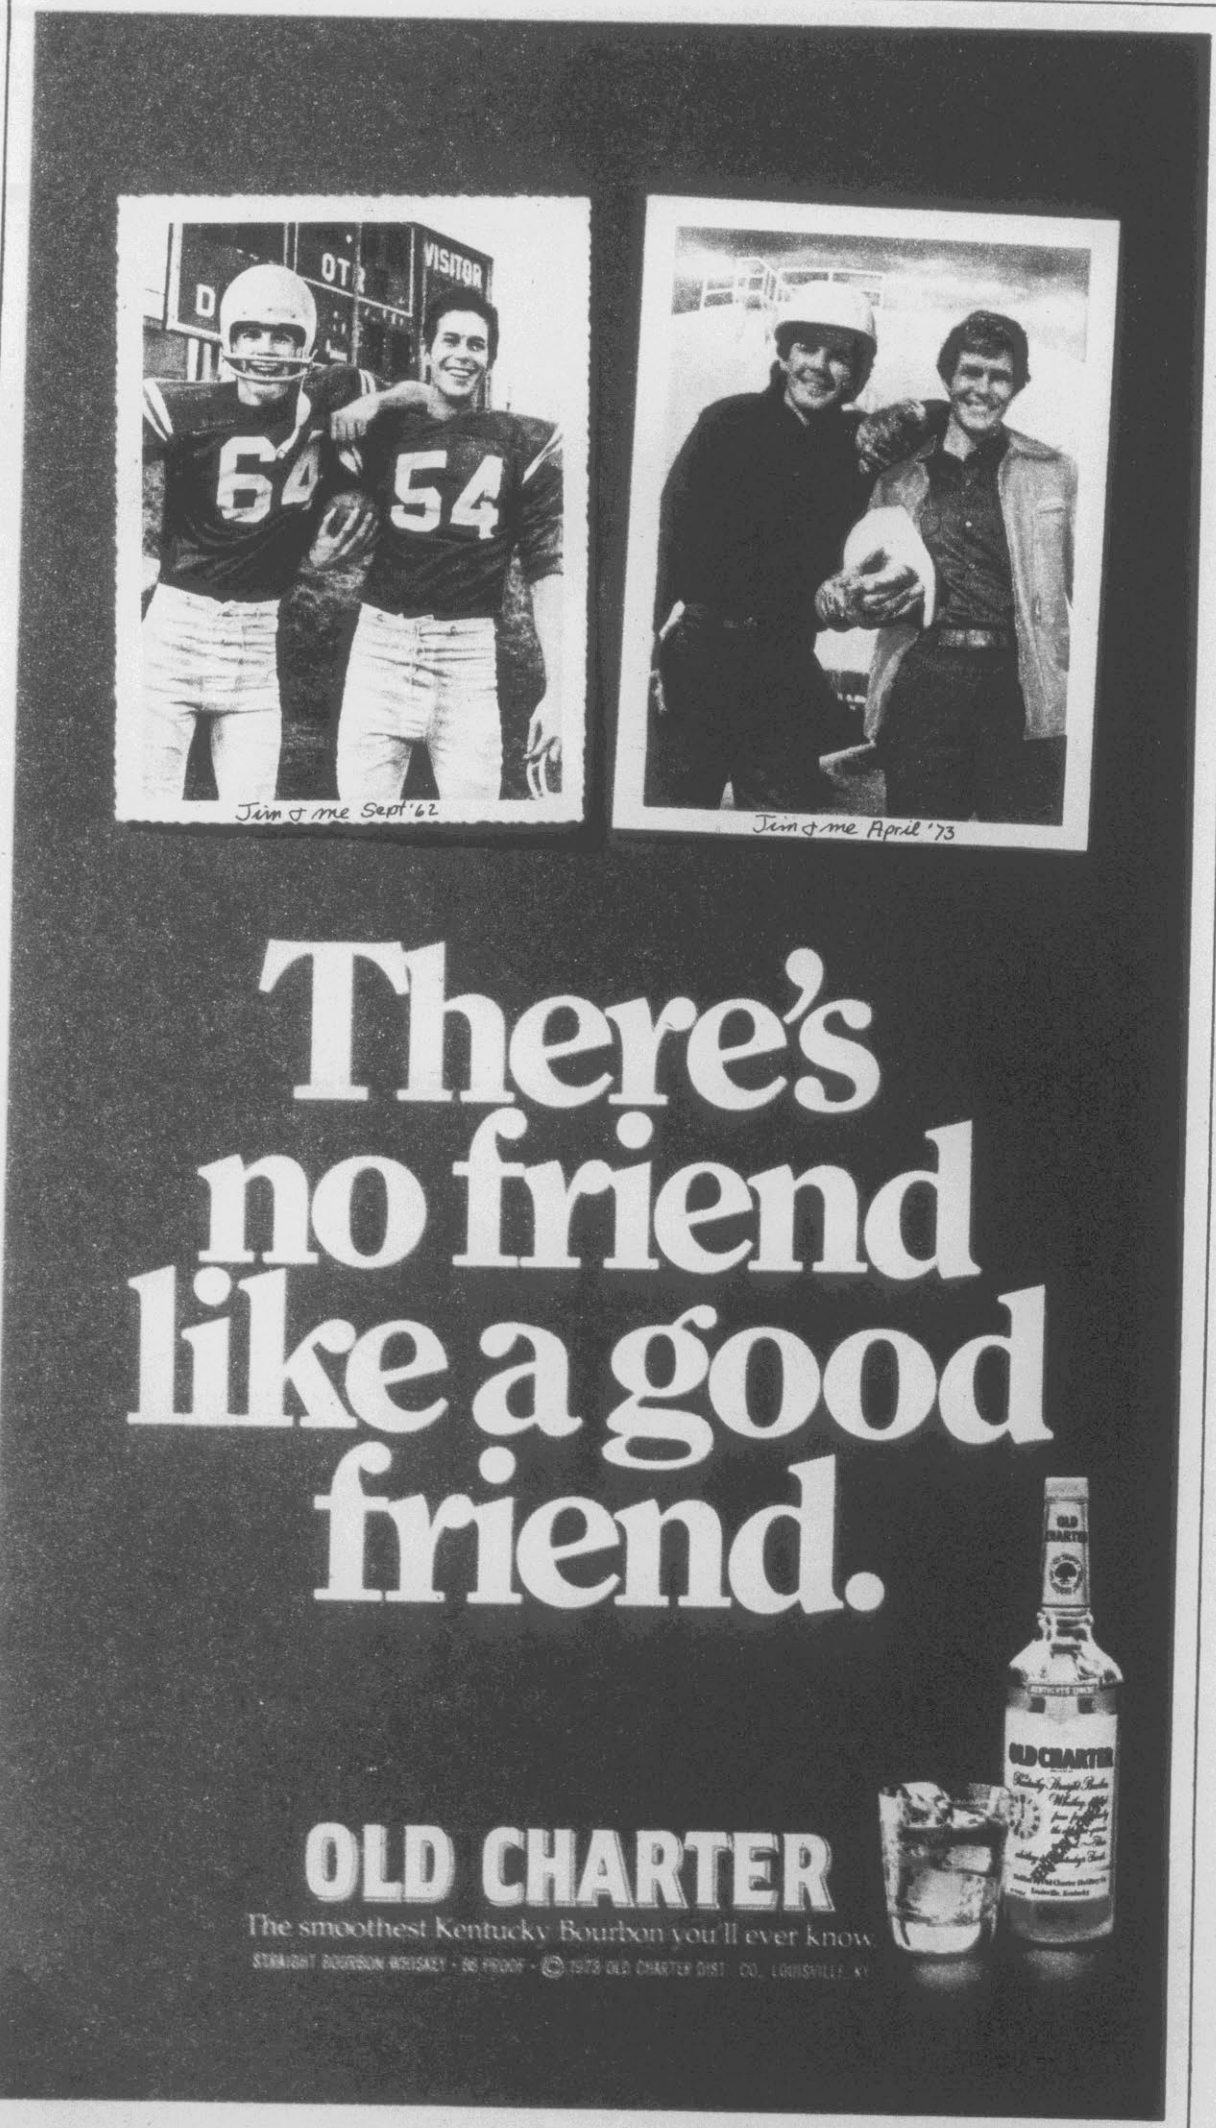

Middle guard: Oklahoma's Lucious Selmon was way ahead of Tony Cristiani of Miami (Fla.) in the first-team balloting; Paul Vellano of Maryland and Mike Phillips of Cornell both had backers. Selmon won the "best lineman" designation by 18 votes over Steve Niehaus, Notre Dame's defensive tackle. Others attracting votes were John Hicks of Ohio State and Daryl White of Nebraska, both offensive tackles, and Randy Gradishar, Ohio State linebacker.

Linebackers: Richard Wood of Southern Cal and Randy Gradishar of Ohio State had a wide margin over all other candidates. Glen Gaspard of Texas earned a spot on the first team by a few-vote margin over Warren Capone of LSU. Chuck Strickland of Alabama, Ed O'Neill of Penn State, and Michigan State's Ray Nester were next in the balloting.

Defensive backs: Mike Townsend of Notre Dame, the top choice, was well ahead of Artimus Parker of Southern Cal, who, in turn, was well ahead of Jimmy Allen of UCLA. Randy Rhino of Georgia Tech, who narrowly missed the first team, finished ahead of David Langner of Auburn. Paul Hayner of Michigan State and Harry Harrison of Mississippi were close behind.

Punter: Greg Gantt of Alabama made the first team by turning back Michigan State's Bill Simpson. In third place was Rusty Jackson of LSU.

©1973 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

In this picture, everybody has a gimmick . . . almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along. 1. No way. He's Gerry Atric, over-the-hill hippie. Irons his hair twice daily. Cigarettes taste just as flat. Gimmick: Watching bowling pins "do their own thing, man." 2. Naomi Glowsoul. Gimmick: Uses so much body english that police have raided the place four times. 3. Nope. It's Angie "The Arm" Kugelman. Throws so hard three automatic pinsetting machines have quit. Smokes cigarettes so heavily filtered, he's like a man giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to a rock. 4. Right. He just likes bowling, not gimmicks. Likes his cigarette honest and no-nonsense, too. Camel Filters. Easy and good tasting. 5. Zooty Smith. Gimmick: Has worn same good luck clothes since he broke 125 in 1942. Smokes war surplus cigarettes and saves the tinfoil. 6. Whiz Kid Pringle. Developed math formula to bowl a perfect strike. Unfortunately releases ball on backswing.

Camel Filters. They're not for everybody (but they could be for you).

Smart Cooking

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen prepares turkey wings for the barbecue. "With prices what they are," says Marilyn, "turkey wings—which are available frozen in most supermarkets—are a good answer for many families. (Don't confuse them with chicken wings: Turkey wings are surprisingly meaty and filling.)"

Turkey Wings: A Dollar-Saving Idea for the Barbecue

MARILYN'S MENU

Celery Hearts and Olives
Cranberry Barbecued Turkey Wings*
Crunchy Cheese Tomatoes* Corn Fritters
Country-Garden Salad Bowl*
Fresh Peach Cobbler
Iced Tea Coffee Buttermilk

*Recipe given

CRANBERRY BARBECUED TURKEY WINGS

8 (about 6 lbs.) frozen turkey wings, thawed*
1½ qts. water
1 teaspoon salt
1 onion, quartered
8 peppercorns
½ teaspoon thyme leaves
1 carrot, quartered
1 stalk celery with leaves
Cranberry Barbecue Sauce:
1 can (1 lb.) cranberry sauce
1 cup ketchup or chili sauce
½ cup water
¼ cup firmly packed light-brown sugar
¼ cup butter or margarine
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon garlic powder
¼ teaspoon chili powder

1. Place turkey wings in large 6-8-qt. kettle or Dutch oven. Add remaining ingredients. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered 1-1½ hours, or until tender.
2. Remove turkey wings from broth, wrap and refrigerate. Pour broth into container, cover and refrigerate. (Use for soup.)
3. Make Cranberry Barbecue Sauce: In 2-qt. saucepan combine all ingredients.
4. Bring mixture to boiling, stirring to break up cranberry sauce. Reduce heat and simmer uncovered 10-15 minutes, stirring occasionally.
5. Place cooked turkey wings on grill, 4 inches from hot coals. Brush with Cranberry Barbecue Sauce.
6. Broil for about 15 minutes. Turn, brush with barbecue sauce and continue cooking for another 7-10 minutes, basting frequently. When wings are sizzling hot and crusty, serve. Makes 8 servings

CRUNCHY CHEESE TOMATOES

1 cup herb-seasoned stuffing mix
1 tablespoon freeze-dried chives
¼ cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
⅛ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ cup butter or margarine, melted
4 underripe or green tomatoes, halved

1. Preheat oven to 400°F. In medium bowl combine stuffing mix, chives, cheese and pepper. Add butter, toss to combine.
2. Line a shallow baking pan with foil. Spoon about 2 tablespoons crumb mixture on top of each tomato half.
3. Bake about 15 minutes, or until tomatoes are fork-tender and topping is golden brown. Makes 8 servings

COUNTRY-GARDEN SALAD BOWL

1 qt. washed, chilled, torn romaine lettuce leaves
1 qt. washed, chilled, torn iceberg lettuce leaves
½ qt. washed, chilled, torn chicory leaves
½ qt. washed, chilled, torn escarole leaves
1 cup thinly sliced radishes
½ cup thinly sliced green onions
2 cups thinly sliced cucumbers
½ cup coarsely grated carrot
1 packet (0.7 ozs.) cheese-garlic salad-dressing mix
Tarragon vinegar
Vegetable oil
Water

1. Place greens in large plastic bags. Seal with twisters, refrigerate. Place radishes, green onions, cucumbers and carrot in separate small plastic bags. Seal with twisters, refrigerate.
2. At serving time toss greens together in large salad bowl. (If you do not have a bowl large enough, use two smaller salad bowls.)
3. Scatter radishes, green onions, cucumbers and carrot on top of greens. Cover and refrigerate if not serving immediately.
4. Make up salad dressing according to package directions with tarragon vinegar, vegetable oil and water.
5. Toss greens with salad dressing, using a fourth cup dressing at a time, just until leaves are coated. Serve immediately.

Don't Let This Summer Destroy Your Complexion

The summer months may be a recreation season for you, but a near-disaster for your complexion. You enjoy a change of pace that ought to bring your face a relaxed, younger-looking expression. But instead you may end the three-month summer season looking decidedly older.

A single summer day can be a little like a whirlwind tour through all the climates of the world. You swim, then bake yourself on a sandy beach under a desert-like sun. You take windswept car rides. You step from sun-baked pavements, squinting against the glare, into chill air-conditioned restaurants or stores. A sudden summer storm leaves the air steaming and humid. Your complexion is exposed to a wide variety of environments, each with shocking suddenness.

Is it any wonder that your skin becomes dryer as the days pass? The dryer your skin, the more that dryness emphasizes little lines and wrinkles. And the older you look. But there's no need to despair. It is possible to enjoy the pleasures of summer and still maintain your youthful look.

Many younger-looking women, from Acapulco to Sydney, discovered that they can barely get through the summer happily without their beautiful secret, the unique fluid known in the United States as Oil of Olay beauty lotion. This summer, share the secret, the lovely benefits of this world-renowned blend. Oil of Olay was created by beauty researchers to soften and silken a woman's complexion. The complexion-cherishing lotion contains a wealth of natural moisture, tropical moisturizing oils and other emollients.

Oil of Olay, available at drugstores, penetrates the important surface layer of the skin quickly, working with nature to ease away the dryness that can make you look older. The beauty blend helps maintain the oil-moisture balance, an essential element necessary for your complexion to look as young as possible. The skin-loving liquid also sets up an effective barrier to keep nature's own moisture from surrendering to sudden environmental changes.

You will know when your skin would welcome Oil of Olay. Whenever it feels dry or slightly tight or rough to the touch, your complexion is asking for, and needs, all the help it can get from the beauty blend.

No matter how often you soothe on cherishing Oil of Olay during the day, apply at bedtime, so it can work its wonders during nocturnal hours. And in the morning, as a moisty, nongreasy makeup base that lets cosmetics stay fresh for hours.

Summer Beauty Hints

Gently bathe away your sun-protective lotion after sunning. Pat your body almost dry, then soothe your still-damp skin with Oil of Olay wherever the sun's rays have reached you.

* * *

During these months when the need for Oil of Olay® is great, always carry a bottle with you . . . to the beach, on weekend trips, when going shopping.

JAMES BROLIN
"Libbers aren't direct"

James Brolin, costar of TV's "Marcus Welby M.D.," talks about Women's Lib: "Somebody asked me what I thought of a woman directing, and I said I think it's fantastic if she can put out the product; but in the meantime, she may lose a lot of her femininity and the thing that makes her attractive to men—which, in the end, is what many liberationists are after. They're after the attention of men, in a sense. That may be a generalization, but to tell you the truth, I think that Women's Lib is not a direct honesty. Sometimes, the Libbers have appeared very frivolous and expressed themselves in terms of not having their cigarettes lit, their doors opened and other things like that, but that's not what they're really about. It's just a way to get attention for other things underneath."

"Astute physicians have for years known empirically that there is a connection between nutrition and mood. Patients who complained of depression, anxiety, irritability, or just general confused thinking, frequently reveal that they are not getting enough of one or more basic nutrients. When these nutrients are restored to the diet, complaints of problematic moods vanish. . . . If a nutritional deficiency exists, the cells of the brain and the central and peripheral nervous systems may function below capacity. Thus, while it may not be literally true that we are what we eat, we are undeniably affected by food, in mental as well as physical ways." From "Depression, A Layman's Guide to the Symptoms and Cures," by Paul Gillette and Marie Hornbeck (Outerbridge and Lazard, $5.95).

How big is big? For the biggest ship in the world, the "Globtik Tokyo," big means almost a quarter of a mile long, and 79 tennis courts would not be too much for this ship to accommodate. Constructed in Japan, this monster tanker is the biggest moving thing ever built by man. She weighs only a light 477,000 tons deadweight, and her deck area is 25,000 square yards. She carries a crew of 38 men and has a service speed of 15 knots.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

CHAIN LETTER

Our bank has pens its patrons use;
On tables they are found.

Some, filling out deposit slips,
I note reveal disgust
To think that chains should bind these pens
And show such lack of trust.

But my reaction's different,
As I am glad to tell:
I'm glad the bank's like this and hope
My money's chained as well.

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

"What do I have to do in the wedding?" he asked. "Nothing," I replied. "We'll just sit together and watch." "Good," he sighed. "I thought I might have to be a pallbearer or something!"
