

Rescue Squad Placed Second

OMAHA, Neb. — A Greenville Rescue Squad heavy duty rescue team placed second in international competition held here last week, it was announced Saturday night.

According to officials of the International Rescue and First Aid Association which sponsors the annual international heavy rescue competition, the Greenville Rescue team scored 1,230 points in the three-problem competition, just five points behind the Roache Rescue Squad team from Nutley, N. J. which took first place with 1,235 points. A total score of 1,510 points was possible.

A rescue team from Pdevoze, Pa. took third place with 1,175 points, followed in order by a West Virginia Paper and Pulp Company team from Virginia and an Exxon Oil Co. team from Bayway, N. J.

from Greenville have consistently placed high in state and international competition. Display cases at the city's central fire station contain seven international trophies and 19 trophies given by the North Carolina Association of First Aid and Rescue Squads which local teams have won over the past 12 years. They include one international rescue championship (the Greenville Squad was the first U. S. team ever to win first place in international competition) the 12 state first aid and rescue championships.

Greenville teams will compete in state competition at Asheville next month. Local teams placed first in heavy rescue in state competition in Wilson last year and took third place in the state first aid contest.

The Greenville Rescue Squad and a local resident were cited by the new International First Aid and Rescue president at a banquet in Omaha, Saturday night for assistance given him over the years.

Jim Finison of Greensboro installed as president of the international organization at the banquet cited Dawson Nethercutt of Greenville—director of the North Carolina Department of Insurance's rescue training division—and two other insurance department instructors, Lynn Harkins and Graham Johnson both of Elkin, for their assistance over the years.

Finison, a former Insurance Department instructor and currently Director of Emergency Transportation Services for Guilford County, recognized the Greenville squad for its assistance to him when he first entered the rescue service and for its continuing support.

Investments Top Last Year

ELIZABETH CITY, N.C. (AP) — The state Commerce and Industry Division reported today that investments in new and expanded industry in North Carolina this year is running ahead of last year.

The division reported to the state Board of Conservation and Development at its meeting here that industrial investments in the state during the first half of 1973 totaled $307 million dollars and will add 11,607 new jobs with annual payroll of $72.4 million.

The Office of Forest Resources reported to the board that the spring forest fire loss was the smallest ever recorded. It said regularly spaced rains during the fire season was responsible.

The office also said that serious southern pine beetle infestations are now present in over 30 North Carolina counties.

The Commerce and Industry Division told the board that the State Ports Authority and Dare County have reached an agreement "for the construction and operation of a complete seafood industries harbor at Wanchese."

It said "the facility will be operated by the ports authority and will make dock side processing available for the seafood industry."

'Prime Rate' Is Up Again

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest, announced today that it was increasing its prime lending rate to 9 1/2 per cent from 9 1/4 per cent, effective immediately.

If the rise becomes industrywide, as most observers expect, it would mark the 15th time this year that American banks have lifted the minimum lending rate they charge their most creditworthy corporate customers.

In Washington a spokesman for the Committee on Interest and Dividends, part of the President's economic controls program, said the committee had no comment on today's boost.

The announcement by Chase Manhattan comes a week after the last 1/4 percentage point rise spread through the industry.

The prime rate stood at 6 per cent in January. Many observers feel it will rise above 10 per cent before peaking.

The rate now stands 1 1/4 points above the previous record high set during the credit crunch of 1969-70.

Though an increase in the prime rate has no direct and immediate effect on a bank's loans to smaller businesses and consumers, it usually signals higher interest rates generally.

Fined, License Revoked

NEW BERN, N. C. (AP)—A District Court judge fined gubernatorial aide Gene Anderson $200 today and revoked his driver's license for one year.

Judge Charles H. Whedbee issued the ruling after an attorney entered a plea of nolo contendere - no contest - to a charge that Anderson, 35, had driven with a suspended license.

Whedbee said the revocation would be effective next January, when the suspension of Anderson's license expired. Anderson's license was suspended, subject to special exceptions, in January after he pleaded guilty in Wake County to a 1971 drunken driving charge.

Whedbee's judgment was appealed to the state Department of Motor Vehicles by Anderson's attorney.

Anderson was arrested in New Bern Aug. 12 after his car was involved in a traffic accident.

Anderson, top aide to Gov. Jim Holshouser, said he was driving back to Raleigh from Atlantic Beach. During the investigation, a police officer discovered that Anderson's suspension forbade him to drive on Sunday.

Anderson was charged with driving with a suspended license because he was operating the car during a time specifically forbidden by the Wake County court.

Warns Of Much Bootlegging

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says outlawing the sale of cigarettes in the United States would bring a bootlegging situation worse than prohibition.

Graham said this in a statement Sunday in which he criticized the suggestion of a federal product safety official that a ban on sale of cigarettes might be considered.

Graham said such a ban would be "so unworkable that it defies comment" but that the state must take seriously "any proposal, which would so adversely affect the entire economy of North Carolina."

Order Suspending Of Tobacco Sales

RALEIGH (AP) — A suspension of all tobacco sales on the North Carolina Eastern Belt and the South Carolina-Border North Carolina Belt for the week of Sept. 2-8 was voted by the industrywide Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee Sunday.

In addition, the committee voted at an emergency meeting Sunday to delay from Sept. 17 to Sept. 24 the date for North Carolina Middle and North Carolina-Virginia Old Belts to shift from limited to full operations.

The committee acted after buying companies asked it to suspend all flue-cured tobacco sales the Labor Day week. Company spokesmen said they were having enormous difficulty in getting enough labor and trucks to remove purchased tobacco from warehouse floors and transport it to processing plants.

Farmer and warehouse operator spokesmen voiced strong opposition to the proposal for a sales holiday on all belts, particularly those in the Middle and Old Belts where sales are not scheduled to get under way even on a limited basis until Sept. 4.

It was agreed finally that limited openings will be held as scheduled in the Middle and Old Belts on Sept. 4.

The Middle Belt will open with 15 sets of buyers staffing all 10 of its markets. However, they will handle only as many pounds as had previously been allocated for one-half that number of buyers. All Middle Belt markets will participate in the Sept. 4 opening.

During its early sales, the Old Belt will have 13 of its normal complement of 41 sets of buyers. Six of these will go to North Carolina markets — two at Winston-Salem and one each at Stoneville, Reidsville, Mt. Airy and Mebane. The other seven will go to Virginia markets.

The committee decided Georgia will be permitted, as scheduled, to hold cleanup sales with three sets of buyers Labor Day week.

The buyer spokesmen indicated their labor and transportation problems were more severe on markets to the south, indicating that the movement of North Carolina tobacco to southern markets has been a factor in the marketing crisis.

According to John Cyrus, coordinator of crop services for the state Department of Agriculture, more than 20 million pounds of North Carolina has been sold in Georgia and Florida this season.

Facing A Large Quota

A 244-pint quota needs to be met when the Red Cross Bloodmobile is here Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Greenville Jaycees, led by Johnson Moore Jr., chairman, have been promoting this campaign and Moore said he feels the quota will be surpassed this time. He has sent letters to businesses and civic organizations and has spoken to 11 civic organizations about the blood needs of Pitt County. A competition among clubs and small and large industries has been devised.

Blood may be given tomorrow from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Greenville Moose Lodge. Anyone 18 or older in good health and weighing more than 110 pounds may give.

Bomb Victim

WASHINGTON (AP) — A secretary at the British Embassy was seriously injured today in an explosion. Officials said a letter bomb apparently was the cause.

The secretary was sorting mail on the sixth floor of the embassy, officials said. The explosion occurred about 9 a.m.

George Washington University hospital officials identified the victim as 51-year-old Nora Murray and said she lost one hand and that the other was seriously injured.

Police and embassy officials sealed off the building to keep out newsmen but employees of the embassy were permitted to go to their jobs.

There have been more than 30 such bombing incidents during the past month in London. The secretary-general of the London stock exchange and his private secretary were injured Friday by a letter bomb mailed to the chairman of the exchange.

Cost Of Forest Fires In West Undetermined

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The regional fire center in Boise, Idaho, says it will be a week to 10 days before the cost of the 52 major forest and range fires that blackened 200,000 acres can be estimated.

The last of the 52 major blazes was brought under control Saturday.

A spokesman for the Interagency Fire Center said there were thousands of minor blazes to be considered in any estimate of damage and fire-fighting costs in the Pacific Northwest.

Three firefighters died during the last two days of battling the blazes, raising to four the number of known fire-related deaths.

A spokesman for the Boise center said on Sunday that only 3,000 firefighters remained on duty, compared with more than 10,000 when the fires were at their worst.

About 140 workers remained Sunday at northeastern Oregon's Freezeout fire — the last of the major blazes to be contained — to watch hot spots and clean up. Most of the 1,000-person force was demobilized. The fire was controlled after it consumed 16,000 acres.

The Joseph office of the U.S.

Forest Service in Oregon said the total cost of fighting the blaze would be more than $1.3 million with $650,000 spent in efforts in nearly inaccessible areas in the Snake River Canyon along the Oregon-Idaho border.

Some relief was expected as a weather front brought cool weather and a prediction of a few showers for the Pacific Northwest. A center spokesman said the current drought would continue, however.

Forestry officials said the fire danger in the region is the worst since 1934.

Gaudet's Lawyer Looks To Secret Service Help

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — An attorney for Edwin M. Gaudet says it was the Secret Service who got Gaudet in trouble in the first place, and they should help him get released from state charges today.

Gaudet, 29, was charged by federal authorities with threatening President Nixon's life, but that charge was dropped.

However, he has been jailed in Albuquerque in lieu of $300,000 on three state counts of assault with intent to kill a police officer. The state charges stem from an alleged exchange of gunfire last Monday after Gaudet escaped from a federal agent attempting to arrest him on the federal warrant. He was expected to be moved from Albuquerque to Taos today to answer the state charges.

Gaudet's lawyer, Lillian Cohen of New Orleans, said Sunday, "On behalf of our client, we are going to make an urgent appeal that they (Secret Service) help us get him released on his own recognizance."

Gaudet, who lives in the Morning Star commune near Taos with his wife and three children, surrendered to authorities last Wednesday after a three-day search for him.

Gaudet said Saturday that he didn't fire at anyone. "There were a lot of shots, but they weren't from me," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, I'm a scapegoat."

Inspect Possible Sites For Regional Office

David Flaherty, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources and other staff members met here this morning with a dozen local leaders as part of their search for a site at which to locate one of the department's four regional offices.

Following a meeting at which local officials gave brief resumes of the local area, the Human Resources officials visited 15 possible sites here before traveling to Washington, the only other city in contention for the regional office facility.

Flaherty said from 85 to 100 persons would be moved from the department's Raleigh offices and smaller offices scattered throughout the 33-county region to staff the regional facility, which will manage the department's agencies in the area.

The secretary said a decision on whether to locate the regional office in Greenville or Washington will be made "very shortly... within a week or so."

He said "40 or 50 people are ready to move in now" from the Raleigh office and said, "we need space we can utilize pretty soon." He indicated that aside from those moving from Raleigh, the staffing of the office would be "transitional", with staff members moving to the site of the regional office when lease agreements at current office sites are terminated.

The Greenville-Washington regional office will be one of four regional sites in the state for Human Resources employees.

Fayetteville, according to Flaherty has been selected for one regional center while others centers will be located in the Hickory-Ashville-Morganton area and in the Greensboro-Winston-Salem area.

Flaherty said the establishment of the regional offices is "just an effort to bring the government closer to the people...trying to relieve the trend of all bureaucracy coming to Raleigh."

State health, vocational rehabilitation, mental health and Blind Commission employees would be included in the regional office consolidation.

The state and local officials visited 15 sites in the Greenville area for possible location of the regional center. The proposals included offers of buildings already available and "lots with offers to build whatever you desire," Greenville Chamber of Commerce Merchants Association president Bill McDonald told Flaherty.

According to Flaherty, the "major portion of these people (who would move to the regional office) have incomes of over $15,000 a year."

Problems Due Paper Shortages

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Shortages of paper are causing increasing problems in the supply and availability of newspapers and such basic items as business forms, corrugated boxes, waxed paper and paper bags. Much of the attention so far has focused on newspapers, some of which have run low on newsprint because of paper mill and railroad strikes in Canada. But increasingly tight situations also are being reported in a wide variety of other paper products.

A Los Angeles maker of bags and wrapping paper reports it is able to but only 60 to 70 per cent of the paper it needs. A Bridgeport, Conn., grocery store says it is running out of paper bags. Gulf Oil Corp. says it finds suppliers are reluctant to bid on large orders of business forms.

In Washington, D.C., the General Services Administration reports that paper inventories are short millions of pounds.

An emergency procurement system based on national security priorities has been invoked "seven or eight times" in the recent past to supply paper to the Department of Defense, the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, a GSA spokesman said.

The reasons cited for the paper shortages are many and complex. A principal consideration, observers say, is that new paper mills are costly and take two to four years to build. Several years ago, there was a glut of paper, prices were low and there was little incentive to build new plants.

Then came the business boom of the early 1970s, at the same time as governments were moving toward stricter pollution control. Industry officials say that over a billion dollars, or approximately one-half of all new capital investment, went into pollution control, cutting into funds for expansion.

Today, mills are reported working at full capacity. Yet industry officials say they have been hampered by such factors as economic controls, labor problems, bad weather in timber country, power cutbacks and a lack of investment capital.

"The return on investment has not been sufficient to attract a large amount of commitment to build new capacity," said Edwin A. Locke, president of the American Paper Institute.

Some critics contend that, faced with overproduction and low prices in the late 60s, the paper companies deliberately avoided developing new capacity to create a tight supply and thereby raise prices.

"People who make those statements don't have the facts at hand," said Ralph Michaud, a paper industry analyst with the brokerage firm of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

Sixteen new mills should be constructed by 1975, the paper institute reports, but that may not be enough to stave off spot shortages, higher prices, less variety, and a substitution of lighter for heavier weights of paper.

"While average annual capacity growth for all grades of paper was 3.7 per cent between 1956 and 1972, our most recent survey shows a modest annual increase of 1.4 per cent from 1972 to 1975," said John F. Darrow, senior vice president of the institute.

Martha Plans To Leave John

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martha Mitchell says her husband, former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, is "going to jail," and she plans to leave him, according to the Washington Star-News.

An article in the newspaper's Sunday editions said Mrs. Mitchell was interviewed in a telephone call from her New York apartment. She indicated that she is bitter toward President Nixon, the newspaper said, saying her husband "had a fine reputation on Wall Street" until Nixon "got ahold of him."

Mitchell, currently under indictment in New York on charges of obstructing justice and attempting to defraud the government in connection with alleged campaign contributions to the Nixon campaign, resigned in July 1972 as director of the President's re-election campaign.

"We have been suffering," the newspaper quoted Mrs. Mitchell as saying in reference to the Watergate scandal.

Mrs. Mitchell was quoted as saying that she and her husband love each other very much, but their relationship was finished after an incident in California during the campaign in which she claimed she was "beaten up" by a Secret Service agent. Mrs. Mitchell told the Star-News that the agent manhandled her to keep her from talking to the press.

The newspaper said Mrs. Mitchell said she had seen a "leather-bound campaign strategy book," containing plans for "dirty tricks," which was written by Nixon and his former aide, H.R. Haldeman.

She was quoted as saying the book included "the procedures of everything that has happened—I saw it with my own eyes."

The Star-News said it had contacted presidential Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren, who said there is not and never has been a brown leather book connected with the 1968 and 1972 campaigns.

The article also said that Mrs. Mitchell said her husband talked frequently with Nixon during the summer of 1972 and that the President was aware of the truth of the Watergate case at that time.

Our Labor Day Has A Relaxing Theme

CHICAGO (AP) — The day we have come to call Labor Day is usually spent relaxing, rather than laboring.

Though Labor Day in one form or another is celebrated in many industrial nations throughout the world, it is not always celebrated on the first Monday in September, as it is in the United States.

In Europe May 1, commonly called May Day, is set aside to honor working people, according to The World Book Encyclopedia. That day had long been the traditional holiday to celebrate the coming of spring. In 1889, however, the Congress of the Second International of Socialist parties voted to make May 1 a day of international demonstrations in favor of, among other things, the eight-hour working day, and a mild resolution on equal pay for women.

In the U.S.S.R., May Day is a national holiday and Communist leaders celebrate it by making speeches and holding military parades. In areas of Australia, May 1 is actually called the "Eight Hour Day."

At about the same time the Socialist Party was dedicating the first day of spring to workers, the Central Labor Union of

New York City was attempting to get the last day of summer declared a labor holiday in this country.

Foreign-Based Banks In California Embattled

By BILL STALL
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A new car buyer in California often can get a lower interest rate at a bank with headquarters in Tokyo, Hong Kong or Montreal than at one based in San Francisco or Los Angeles.

California's small and medium-sized banks are feeling the pinch of such foreign competition and are beginning to fight back. And that fight has plunged the California legislature into the world of international finance.

Thirteen foreign-based banks have California subsidiaries. They compete vigorously for customers by offering a full range of retail banking services, including low-interest loans.

Deposits in their California vaults have grown from $514 million six years ago to $1.6 billion this year.

Telephone book listings include the Bank of Tokyo, Sumitomo Bank of California, Hong Kong Bank of California, Bank of Montreal and California Canadian Bank.

The legislative battle has pitted the state's big banks, including the giant Bank of America, against the smaller independent banks.

The battle revolves around two bills designed to stem the growth of foreign banking in the state.

One measure would prohibit any new foreign banks from entering the California market unless their home countries gave California banks the same privileges. It is awaiting a first hearing in the Senate Insurance and Financial Institutions Committee.

A similar bill that has passed the Assembly and is before the Senate committee would prohibit the establishment in California of any more foreign banks that are affiliated with any commercial or industrial businesses.

The foreign banks have hired some high-priced law firms to fight the legislation.

The larger California banks with extensive foreign interests — primarily Bank of America and Wells Fargo Bank — also are fighting the bills. They argue that foreign firms are more likely to buy California products if they have home-country bank outlets here.

The larger banks also fear that countries in which they operate, especially Japan, will retaliate with similar restrictions.

But Michael Rafton, president and chairman of the Central Bank headquartered in Oakland, said foreign banks have an unfair advantage because they have a greater freedom to operate than do their domestic competitors. They are not covered, for instance, by a federal law that prohibits U.S. banks from engaging in non-banking activities such as industrial production.

Rafton said the foreign banks are able to offer lower-interest loans for such consumer goods as autos and television sets because they are "tied in with huge conglomerates that can shift funds around to undercut domestic interest rates. They can play in our ball park, but we can't play in theirs," he said.

New Collar To Restrain Dogs

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A device developed by a welding company executive here keeps dogs within a particular area by giving them mild electric shocks when they approach the perimeter.

Richard M. Peck, owner of R&M Industries here, says he was granted a patent last week for the device, called Sta-Put.

It consists of a collar with batteries and electrodes that apply current to a dog's neck when the animal comes near a buried wire.

The collar would allow watchdogs to roam at night without being chained. Peck said he plans to begin making the devices by the end of the year. They will sell for between $125 and $150.

Opine Beaches Aren't 'Ruined'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Coast Guard says it doubts that the thick, sticky crude oil that has smeared beaches near here will cause any serious ecological problems.

Investigators still were trying to pinpoint the source, the Coast Guard said late Sunday. Beaches from Coronado to Rosarito, Mexico, about 15 miles south of the border, were affected.

Authorities said they hoped natural tidal action would clean the beaches, and the spill did not seem large enough to cause serious hazards to the environment.

Miss Cathryn Smith Is Bride

Miss Cathryn Rice Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bonner Smith Jr., of Greenville, and Edwin Carl Crawford Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Carl Crawford, also of Greenville, were united in marriage in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church Sunday afternoon at three o'clock.

The Rev. Troy Barrett and the Rev. Charles Michale Smith performed the double ring ceremony.

In the center background of the church on the altar was a brass cross flanked with two single candleholders. The altar vases were filled with white chrysanthemums, snapdragons, pom poms. Spiral candelabra entwined with greenery and lered candelabra overflowing with springerri fern, chrysanthemums and snapdragons framed the setting. At the altar was a brass prie-dieu where the bridal couple knelt for the closing prayer and benediction. A three branched candelabra was used during the ceremony. The bride and bridegroom lighted one candle before the ceremony and after the ceremony, they lighted the center candle together snuffing out the two outside ones. The candles and snuffer were decorated with baby's breath and miniature carnations. Pews were marked with white satin bows and the front pews were enclosed and opened before the mothers entered the church.

Mrs. Paul Toll, organist, and Miss Jonnie Cassick, soloist, presented a program of wedding music. Miss Cassick sang "Wedding Song," "One Hand, One Heart" and as the benediction, the "Wedding Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal length white organza gown designed with a high ruffled neckline trimmed in Venise lace. The empire bodice featured embroidered organza with rows of Venise lace threaded with satin ribbon. The short pouf sleeves of the embroidered fabric were bonded in Venise lace and ruffled organza. The full organza skirt was edged in a double ruffle of organza with Venise lace trim which extended to an attached sweep train.

Her elbow length veil of illusion was attached to a Camelot headpiece of ruffled lace and satin ribbon. She carried a colonial bouquet of white miniature carnations, daisies, baby's breath and orchids tied with white satin.

Miss Rebecca Lynn Smith, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and Mrs. Kenneth Beaman was the matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were Miss Camille Smith and Miss Laurie Smith, sisters of the bride, Miss Carolyn Smith, cousin of the bride, Mrs. David Whitley, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Barbara Jean Jamison, Miss Jan Flanagan, Miss Kathy Wester and Miss Pat Swindell.

The attendants wore formal length crepe gowns in rainbow shades of pastel pink, blue, maise, lavender and mint. The gowns were designed with high necklines encircled with lace featuring a sheer square lace yoke edged in ruffled lace. The short pouf sleeves were also edged in ruffled lace. Miniature covered buttons extended down the gown front to the empire waistline which was accentuated with a self-belt of crepe which tied in back.

They wore satin loop bow headpieces with short streamers in coordinating colors to match their gowns. The attendants carried white woven baskets filled with summer flowers in various colors tied with rainbow satin.

Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. Thomas Skinner and Miss Pam Riddick. They carried nosegays of summer flowers tied with rainbow satin.

Miss Karla Turner served as the flower girl. She wore a white dress similar to those of the honor attendants and carried a white basket filled with rose petals. The ring bearer was Mike Worthington, nephew of the bridegroom. He carried a white satin pillow with a spray of summer flowers.

Edwin Carl Crawford, father of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Carl Hugh Ward, uncle of the bride, Chester Don Worthington, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, David Whitley, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, Jimmy Evans and Eddie Evans, cousins of the bridegroom, Jimmy Flake, Don Mills, William Moye and Donnie Brewer.

The mother of the bride wore a pale yellow formal gown and a white orchid corsage. The mother of the bridegroom selected a blue and yellow formal gown and a white orchid corsage.

Grandmothers of the bridal couple, Mrs. Carl H. Ward, Mrs. J.B. Smith Sr. and Mrs. Godfrey Amos Evans, wore white orchid corsages.

The bride is a senior at East Carolina University, majoring in elementary education. The bridegroom attended Lenoir Community College and Pitt Technical Institute. He is now employed with Greenville Fertilizer.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Marie Cox.

Reception
The parents of the bride entertained at a reception immediately following the ceremony in the church parlor.

The refreshment table was covered with a white lace cloth over a full white satin cloth. An arrangement of summer flowers in rainbow colors designed in a five branched candelabra cetered the table.

Assisting during the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. Amos Evans, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Agee, Mrs. William Swindell, Mrs. Wilbur Smith, Mrs. Chester Worthington, Mrs. Wally Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hudson, Mrs. Carl Hugh Ward, Miss Janis Smith, Miss Beth Agee, Miss Jo Jamieson, Miss Susie Miller, Miss Donna Worthington, Miss GIGI Smith, Miss Amy Smith, Miss Jane Smith and Dr. and Mrs. Ray Evans.

Pre-nuptial events honoring the Crawford-Smith wedding party and out-of-town guests included an after-rehearsal party Saturday night.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Crawford Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Chester Don Worthington Jr., Mr. and Mrs. David L. Whitley, Mr. and Mrs. Amos J. Evans and Dr. and Mrs. Ray Evans at the Crawford home.

The refreshment table was covered with a white Nottingham lace cloth and centered with an arrangement of mixed summer flowers. Other floral arrangements were used throughout the house.

Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride, poured punch. Assisting in serving were Miss Donna Worthington and Miss Sandy Evans.

The bride-elect was honored at a bridesmaids luncheon Saturday at the home of Mrs. Max Ray Joyner.

Assisting hostesses were Mrs. J. E. Clement and Mrs. John P. East.

Miss Cathy Smith and Carl Crawford Jr. were entertained at a lawn party at the home of Miss Jan Flanagan.

Miss Carolyn Smith, Miss Becky Smith, Miss Pat Swindell, Miss Pam Riddick, Miss Miss Barbara Jamieson and Miss Flanagan were hostesses.

Rose-McGowan Wedding Vows Pledged

Miss Linda Bryan McGowan and Robert Lee Rose pledged their marriage vows Sunday at three o'clock in the afternoon in Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Bryan McGowan of Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Rose of Farmville.

The Rev. Harley Brown officiated at the double ring ceremony. A program of nuptial music was presented by the Rev. Phillip Cooper, organist and soloist, and Miss Donna Manning, soloist. The Rev. Cooper sang "More" and "Walk Hand In Hand". Miss Manning sang "The Twelfth of Never" and the "Wedding Prayer" as the benediction.

The church was complemented with seven branched and twenty tiered candelabra, bouquets of white mums and pom poms. A three branch decorated candelabra was used in the ceremony, with the bride and bridegroom lighting the two outside candles after the bride's father gave her in marriage and upon the announcement of the two as one, the center candle was lighted together and the two outside ones snuffed out. At the altar was a profile prie-dieu where the bridal couple knelt facing each other for the closing prayer. Pews were marked with white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a formal length gown of silk organza. Cluny lace appliques trimmed the high ring collar, see-through neckline, empire bodice, long bishop sleeves and A-line skirt. The lace details were repeated on the built-in chapel length train.

Her capulet of matching lace was attached to a three tiered veil of silk illusion. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white miniature carnations, orchids and purple statice tied with white satin.

Miss Mittie Ruth McGowan of Roanoke Rapids, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Carolyn Erwin and Mrs. Joyce Strickland of Farmville, Mrs. Judy Pollard of Greenville, Mrs. Barbara KuBrock of Virginia Beach, Va., sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Rita Hodges of Grimesland, and Miss Brenda Harris of Winterville.

The attendants wore formal gowns of orchid and white chiffon. The white chiffon bodice featured a high neckline and full length puffed sleeves. From the high rise waist, flowed a full length orchid chiffon skirt. Their headpieces were of flat tailored bows with hemline streamers matching their dresses. The attendants carried colonial bouquets of mixed summer flowers accenting lavender, orchid and purple, and baby's breath tied with a purple velvet bow with long streamers.

Miss Andrea Layne Cox of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a formal length gown of orchid and white polyester crepe styled similar to that of the bridesmaids. The gown featured a white polyester crepe bodice, a row of lace down the bodice front and long puffed sleeves. The orchid skirt flowed from the empire waist. She carried a white basket filled with rose petals tied with an orchid bow.

Charles Ervin Rose of Farmville, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man. Ushers were Eddie McGowan of Greenville, brother of the bride, Joe Rose of Richmond, Va., brother of the bridegroom, Bill Erwin of Farmville and Larry KuBrock of Virginia Beach, Va., both brothers-in-law of the bridegroom, Ricky Baker and Carlos Moore, both of Farmville. The mother of the bride selected a street length dress of aqua chiffon over taffeta, featuring a lace bodice accented with pearls, sheer full length chiffon sleeves and a roll neckline. A train flowed from the waistline. She wore matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a street length pink polyester dress with chiffon sleeves trimmed with lace. The high ring collar featured matching lace. She complemented her ensemble with matching accessories and a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Effie Sumerlin, grandmother of the bride, wore a baby blue polyester dress trimmed with white lace. She was remembered with a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Sallie Vainright of Greenville, aunt of the bride, presided over the bridal register. Mrs. Margaret Landen directed the wedding.

For a wedding trip to the mountains, the bride wore a navy and white pants ensemble with navy accessories and her mother's corsage.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is a rising senior in social work at East Carolina University. She is a member of Phi Kappa Phi honor society.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Farmville High School and

Artist Solves Crowd Problem

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Here is my solution for that artist who found it hard to paint outdoors [landscapes, etc.] because he always drew a crowd who watched him and sometimes made remarks which distracted him.

I also enjoy painting landscapes. I don't object to a few spectators, but when they get too chatty, I simply remove my hat and pass it.

I rarely get more than a few coins, but it sure thins out the crowd in a hurry. ANOTHER ARTIST

DEAR ABBY: I was born six months and two days after my parents were married. [I figured it out when I was 16.] When I mentioned it to my mother she became flustered and close to tears so I never mentioned it again.

Mom and Dad are tops as parents, and I don't care if they did have to get married, I love them just the same. Abby, you could help a lot of people who had to get married if you would tell them how to handle it when their children bring it up.

Should they lie about the date of their marriage? Or should they say the first baby was "premature"? What's the best answer? THEIR DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: The truth, while sometimes embarrassing, is always the best answer. But no couple HAS to get married. The boy can run off and leave the girl to face the problem alone. Or he can deny paternity.

Some girls choose abortion. Others prefer to have the child, and put it up for adoption. Some have the child and keep it.

The couple who marries when a baby is on the way, and make a success of that marriage [and there are many], deserve respect and understanding.

DEAR ABBY: You stated that a couple could be married by a ship's captain. Whoops! Not any more. They used to be, when voyages lasted months and sometimes years, but times have changed, and so have the rules. Marriages performed by captains at sea will legalize a union while the couple is at sea, but when they reach land, they must be remarried. VOICE OF EXPERIENCE

DEAR VOICE: Thanks. I am presently over my head in letters from readers who advise me of the change. Mea culpa.

Juan Peron Has Not Forgotten

Apparently the old dictator of Argentina, Jaun Peron has not forgotten how to control a nation. It is reported out of Buenos Aires that the new government, now controlled by Peronists—has issued a decree forbidding foreign news agencies to furnish newspapers with Argentine news.

As a result only the government controlled press agency will provide news about the country to the local newspapers of Argentina. It was also decreed that the mass media must give 50 percent of their news content to coverage of Argentina.

Thus we have the first steps toward thought control in the South American nation. Most of the smaller papers cannot afford to have their own correspondents throughout Argentina and they have to rely on wire services. Since they cannot use the news as furnished to them by independent press agencies, they must use that furnished by the government controlled agency. It is hardly likely that a government controlled agency is going to carry anything very derogatory to those in power.

Since 50 percent of the information carried must be about Argentina, most newspapers will be forced to rely heavily on the government controlled press agency.

Repressive government is always quick to recognize that a free press is its greatest enemy. Thus one of the first moves in suppressing civil liberties is always to muzzle the press.

May it never happen in our nation!

N.C. Pride Is Dries' Theme

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Much of the campaign against liquor-by-the-drink in North Carolina will be directed at a secular audience even though impetus for the movement comes from church people.

With a goal of nearly $300,000, the Christian Action League plans an intensive statewide campaign, and The Rev. Coy C. Privette of Kannapolis, president of the association, says that campaign will be based on issues and education—not on emotion.

Two co-chairmen have been named, representing east and west of the state: Attorney Allen A. Bailey of Charlotte, who successfully fought in the courts and overturned a mixed drink vote in Mecklenburg County; and the Rev. Joy J. Johnson, a member of the General Assembly from Fairmont in Robeson County and pastor of a Baptist church.

While direction will come from the Christian Action League and funds from the 7,500 churches affiliated with the league, the advertising campaign will stress pride in North Carolina and will be pitched at the middle ground voters in the Nov. 6 referendum who are not strongly committed to either side.

People Who Care
All advertising will be signed "People Who Care About North Carolina" and usually will not be directly associated with the Christian Action League.

One particular phase of the campaign as planned by the Sonny Smith Advertising Agency in Charlotte will be the question of money coming from one bottle of whiskey—and who gets it.

Smith's agency—he is a brother of television entertainer Arthur Smith of Guitars Boggie and Deliverance—theme fame—will present a television commercial which will show a $4.50 bottle of whiskey being used to pour single drinks into a long row of 20 shot glasses. At $1.50 per glass, the ad will note, that makes a bottle of whiskey worth $30 to "somebody," but not to the local tax coffers.

In newspapers, a full page ad will portray two fifths of whiskey side by side with a label around the neck of each showing it cost $4.50 at the liquor store—but sells for $30 when dispensed by the drink.

Basically, the advertising is directed at a small percentage of people in a middle area who do not have strong feelings about mixed drinks either for or against.

Negative Reaction
Marse Grant, an official of the state's Southern Baptist Convention headquarters in Raleigh and director of communications for the Christian Action League said there may be some possible negative reaction to the advertising campaign from the church people across the state, since the campaign shows liquor being used and is directed not against liquor itself, but the method of sale proposed in the state bill.

But, Grant added, "we figure there are some 40 per cent of the people in the state who are strongly opposed to liquor by the drink and will vote against it. . . we must reach that middle ground of people who are uncommitted either way."

But Grant added, "we figure there are some 40 per cent of the people in the state who are strongly opposed to liquor by the drink and will vote against it. . . we must reach that middle ground of people who are uncommitted either way."

Gov. Jim Holshouser, by the way, spoke a recent Sunday morning at the North Kannapolis Baptist Church led by Pastor Privette.

Privette said there was "no connection whatsoever" between the governor's visit and the anti-liquor campaign, and he did not even discuss the subject with Holshouser.

"When a man has voted against liquor by the drink nine times as a member of the General Assembly, you don't have to ask where he stands," Privette said of Holshouser.

He also said Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt's campaign remarks indicate that the "two top men in North Carolina's government are opposed to mixed drinks."

Revival Flavor
But while the campaign is directed toward education, not emotions, a press conference last week to announce the kickoff took on the flavor of a revival.

Held in the chapel of the Baptist headquarters, some 100 people from across the state, laymen and ministers, gathered to listen as Bailey and Johnson were announced as co-chairmen.

And when Johnson, one of three black members of the General Assembly warned to his task of blaming liquor for crime, accidents, high taxes and said it would attract "dope peddlers, gamblers and prostitutes," the room resounded to cries of "Amen, brother" and "tell it right, now."

And answers to questions from the press by those participating were frequently interrupted by applause from the audience.

Bailey said the bill is also being studied for possible legal action in the courts overturning it should the statewide referendum approve mixed drinks in the state.

Some Satisfaction Is Due For The Consumer

Never mind that electric rates were raised earlier this year, there has to be some small satisfaction for the consumer that the local rates have been reduced by Greenville Utilities Commission.

The move results from a State Utilities Commission decision to cut back retail rates which had been instituted by Virginia Electric and Power. Greenville Utilities followed the new rate schedule of VEPCO, with the exception of some deviations in the large user category.

For the householder, the decrease is not a lot, but it will help some in this era of rapidly rising living costs.

Kissinger Is Taking A Risk

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — For beleaguered President Nixon, the elevation of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger to Secretary of State was a political master stroke, but for Kissinger himself it is fraught with dangers that threaten his charmed life.

For the President, the move takes advantage of by far the brightest shining figure in his pallid administration. By elevating Kissinger to the No. 1 cabinet post, the President at once exploits the mystical public appeal of his ace foreign policy adviser and reinforces his administration at its weakest point: the State Department, cleanly vacuumed of all power by Kissinger's staff at the White House. The impact is felt simultaneously on domestic and world opinion.

But Kissinger could become the victim of the dormant State Department bureaucracy he will not try to energize. If he is undercut in that struggle, U.S. foreign policy and the battered President will suffer along with Kissinger.

Kissinger's aura even in these grim Watergate days is indisputable considering his routine experience wherever he goes. He is literally besieged by citizens, of every age and shape, seeking his autograph and a handshake. He is the only inner-circle Nixon man to have risen and stayed above the sordid White House climate of fear and secrecy that marked the ascendancy of H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman.

Kissinger was himself a prime victim of that climate. According to second-level White House aides, he was sometimes deliberately kept away from crowds on Haldeman's orders to avoid comparison with the President in terms of applause.

The Kissinger appointment was desperately needed by Mr. Nixon as domestic tonic in the wake of his widely criticized Watergate speech and his dismal performance in New Orleans last Monday. Likewise, it is of inestimable political value in relations with foreign nations, particularly Moscow and Peking, which are ominously concerned about the credibility and vigor of the Nixon administration's remaining years. Kissinger's elevation is the first solid indication, since he was forced to fire Haldeman and Ehrlichman April 30, that the President can act boldly and imaginatively.

That was clearly a central reason for relentless persuasion by the new White House chief of staff, Alexander M. Haig, Jr., that the President transfer Kissinger to the polished seventh floor of the State Department. Quietly and patiently, Haig has been displaying to Mr. Nixon the political assets he predicted would pile up if Kissinger were given the foreign portfolio in name as well as deed.

The President, desperate for such assets, first indicated his mind was made up last Saturday (Aug. 18) when he asked Kissinger to cancel all foreign trips for the immediate future. The hard offer came three days later.

Kissinger accepted instantly, assuring a bureaucratic revolution in the moribund State Department that Kissinger, no tidy bureaucrat, may not be able to control. Kissinger is an intellectual and a strategic planner, not a paper-pusher keeping tabs on fitness reports.

Kissinger intends to use his new post of "institutionalize" the vast foreign policy changes he and the President have made. He wants to take unconventional patterns of diplomacy developed in the White House and graft them onto conventional State Department patterns. That means taking the regular Foreign Service into his full confidence and giving it real authority.

Other Editors Say The Scarce Items

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

If you can't find a certain item at the market, don't worry about it. Chances are, you'll find other items in short supply at one time or another.

According to a survey by the Associated Press, this seems to be a general condition around the country. First it was gasoline, then beef, and now there seems to be a general shortage of some things we usually take for granted.

Some shortages of particular items set up a chain reaction, thus creating consequent lack of products in other areas. For example, the gasoline shortage has caused problems in the petrochemical industry.

This means polyester products may be in short supply. And the lack of beef means a lack of leather for shoes and other products.

The chicken supply declined at the beginning of August because of a couple of things. For one, poultry farmers didn't like the freeze on their products. For another, poultry feed was getting rare and costly.

It was rare because, as many farmers and industry spokesmen claim, the U.S.-Russia grain deal last year left grain shortages on the domestic front which are now beginning to pinch.

People who do have grain to ship say they can't get freight cars to carry it because of the Russian wheat deal which has tied up so many freight cars.

Would you believe there is a shortage of telephone poles? Boston Edison Co. and New England Telephone Co. reported a shortage of the wooden poles. Boston Edison uses about 5,000 poles a year. The shortage is now causing delay in new work.

And while you have been reading about the shortages of other items, you may not have noticed that some newspapers are getting slimmer.

That's because of the shortage of newsprint. Many papers are cutting newsprint consumption in order to continue operation. This means smaller editions, at least for a while.

But, then, almost everyone's in the same boat.

The taciturn James Stewart-type pilot is being replaced by the extroverted David Susskind-type who not only never stops talking but tells you a lot more about flying than you want to know.

In the old days of air transportation, you hardly heard from the captain up forward. He might have told you when you were taking off and when you could expect to land, but outside of that he spent his time flying the plane, which is the most anyone expects of his pilot anyway.

But now, because he's either lonely or bored, or because the public relations departments of the airlines are in charge of the crews, the captain does a complete monologue from the time you get on the plane to the time you land. This is how it goes:

"Hi, folks, this is your captain. Well, we're going to have a great flight today to L.A. Your hostesses are Kitty, Patti and I'm Jack. I'm married and have three fine

If you like to go to a zoo, the chances are that you are more intelligent than someone who doesn't. And you probably earn more money. A recent study found that almost three-fourths of the zoo-going public had a high school education or better. Less than half of the non-zoo-goers did. The zoo buffs also had higher average incomes.

Women who have silicone fluid injected into their breasts to enlarge their bustline may pay a later price for their vanity. The fluid can migrate elsewhere in the body. In the case of one 22-year-old woman it collected in painful masses in her abdomen and had to be removed surgically.

Needles were one of the first tools invented by man which have remained in constant use through the centuries. They have been found in the ruins of all civilizations and peoples, from the Eskimos to the Zulus.

Animal crackers: We speak of a herd of deer, a pride of lions, a school of fish, a flight of doves, a skulk of foxes, a covey of quail, a pack of dogs, a muster of peacocks, a gaggle of geese, a bevy of beauties, a swarm of bees, a watch of nightingales, a host of men, a congregation of people, a sleuth of bears, a clustering of beetles, and a flock of sheep. But what is a gathering of killer whales? Well, they travel in a family group called a pod.

Quotable notables: "Don't be unduly critical. Taking things seriously unless they are serious is a senile fault." — Gettysburg.

Durable banner: The flag of Denmark, a white cross on a red ground, is the oldest national flag in history. It has remained unchanged since the 13th century.

Tree treasures: Despite all the woodlands that have been cut for timber in this country, often wastefully, America still has 75 per cent as much forest area as existed when Columbus landed.

Forgotten firsts: In 1891 the first outdoor electric sign in the United States was erected here. It advertised Spencerian pens. The signs quickly became popular, and within 10 years the Times Square and Broadway area had been nicknamed "The Great White Way."

Worth remembering: "If we spent more time counting the blessings we have, we'd have less time to spend longing for the luxuries we don't need."

Strength For Today

WHAT CONSTITUTES GREATNESS?

The French philosopher Rousseau once said, "Great men never make bad use of their superiority. They see it and feel it, yet they are modest. The more they have, the more they know their deficiencies."

It is possible for a man at one and the same time to be filled with realization of his own powers and yet be very humble with it all. A Roman philosopher once said, "Great is he who enjoys his earthenware as if it were silverware, and not less great is the man to whom all his silverware is earthenware." The truly great have a deep understanding of values.

No truly great man can ever be a snob. He may have about him a dignity which sets him off from other men, but this dignity is never offensive if it is kept within the spirit of true humility. Greatness and humility usually go together. Greatness arises not so much from a man's endowments as from the spirit in which he uses them.

Complex Financial Decisions

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The record rise of interest rates this year has presented investors with a new and complex set of financial decisions.

Effective yields of 8, 9 and 10 per cent and sometimes higher dangle seductively these days before practically everybody with money in the stock market, or even the standard 5 1/2 per cent savings account.

But the investor has to answer some fundamental questions for himself before making a choice.

Take a hypothetical individual with a family, some money in growth stocks, and $20,000 in his passbook savings account.

He is pretty well informed on the basic workings of the stock market. He believes firmly in maintaining the $20,000 in savings as a cash reserve — in a safe and readily accessible place where it will be available for emergencies.

He's also keenly aware of inflation, and the toll it is taking on the purchasing power of the $20,000. But, most likely, he's less familiar with the credit markets. "Analysts say that the inverse yield curve current in the present market makes short-term fixed-income securities particularly attractive to cookie-jar savers," he reads in a newspaper financial story. "Such instruments as Treasury bills, commercial paper, agency issues, municipal notes and even corporate bonds are receiving increased attention."

At about that point, slightly mystified, he calls a broker at random — say, Henry Arbeeny, a fixed-income securities specialist at Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

There are many possible approaches, says Arbeeny. Do you want a short-term or a long-term investment? Does your tax bracket suggest taxable or tax-exempt income?

"The menu is large and confusing," he says. "Even some brokers haven't figured it all out."

One obviously attractive possibility comes in the up to 8 per cent returns offered by many banks on federally insured four-year deposits since the government lifted the interest ceilings on those deposits.

But only 5 per cent of a bank's total deposits can go into those accounts, and by now many institutions are "sold out."

Additionally they reduce the accessibility of the money. If the money has to be withdrawn for an emergency before the four years have passed, the depositor's interest for the entire period of the deposit drops to the passbook level, and he is further penalized three months' interest.

Other fixed-income investments can also have their drawbacks, Arbeeny says — the trick is to have a clear definition of one's needs, and then to fit the investment to them.

For those in the 30 per cent income tax bracket and higher, he says, tax-exempt municipal bonds and notes represent the best potential return. Those under the 30 per cent bracket are likely to find their best return in taxable issues, with their higher pretax yields.

Long term or short? Long terms offer the alluring prospect of catching interest rates at a high and riding them well into the future, when rates may be much lower.

But, Arbeeny points out, the holder of a long-term security can suffer should he want or need to get his money out of it before it matures if the security's price has fallen since he bought it.

"If, at the time he invests, the investor is thinking that he may have to withdraw the money for some reason, he's far better off to stay with short terms," the broker observes.

The disadvantage of short-term securities, on the other hand, is that, even if bought at a time when interest rates are at a peak, they provide that high rate only for the few months before they mature. If rates come down in the meantime, the investor finds himself with money to invest and no further access to the peak rates prevailing earlier.

Denverite Crusading For Cleanup Of Community

By JAMES LAWRENCE DENVER (UPI) — In Denver's black community, it's either cleanup property or suffer the consequences. The consequences are sometimes harsh, depending on the individual and his ability to endure public embarrassment. Cosmo Harris, the spearhead of a massive cleanup project that has generated widespread support from within the black community, describes the consequences as "tactics that engage the element of surprise."

Harris, 33, editor of a local black newspaper, uses his paper and the airwaves of a local radio station to blast any resident who might live on or near property infested with unsanitary conditions. In radio spot announcements, the newsman lists the addresses and sometimes names of persons who violate local sanitation department codes.

On the front pages of his newspaper he publishes pictures of shabby kept property and criticizes the owner in unflattering terms.

"I like the way we're conducting our campaign," Harris said in an interview, "because if we had only talked to residents about cleaning up around their property, we would have been ineffective, and nobody likes being told what to do on their own property."

Harris said that response from community residents to the unorthodox campaign and its tactics has been good. "After I blast them a few times, they usually go out and clean things up, but before doing so, I generally get a few phone calls that go into long dissertations of words I'd rather not discuss," he said. "However, I've learned to endure that kind of talk, and if it takes that to solve the problem, then I'm satisfied."

Harris said he got the idea for the campaign last December when one of his paperboys was attacked by a dog while delivering newspapers.

"There was this dog who'd backed one of my boys against a fence," Harris said. "He hollered to me for help and I had one of the worst times of my life trying to get to him because of the trash and garbage that was stacked near the fence."

"Filth Castles"
"I said to myself right then—something has to be done about the situation."

From that point, Harris launched his one-man cleanup campaign to rid the area of conditions that not only affect the health, but the safety of the neighborhood.

With his first front-page editorials entitled, "Even Pigs Can't Be Merry In This Garbage," and "Filth Castles," Harris aroused the community. "After I pictured their property in my paper, I'd send them a 'Dear Neighbor' letter," Harris said. The letter read, "Dear Neighbor, you can be sure that by the time you've received this letter, your neighbor would have talked about the situation and you've perhaps made the list of the inspector from the Department of Sanitation."

Harris said the letter usually got action.

Little Official Help
"I got phone calls calling me everything under the sun, but usually when I drove by the areas the next day, I'd find them cleaned up."

Harris doesn't claim complete success. "I couldn't say it was really successful until every home, business and even church, is rid of any trash that might be in its vicinity," he said. "We want to make our community a model for all areas across the nation."

He said that despite the apparent gains made by the drive, local officials have offered little cooperation. "I'm not concerned about receiving financial support—I just think that the sanitation department and the courts could give us some assistance," he said.

Disappointing Realtors
"The (local sanitation) inspectors can't do very much themselves in the line of getting a violator convicted because usually their bosses don't feel the cases are tight enough for court convictions."

"I think that if we had more court convictions, we would have more response to our efforts."

Harris further said that the real estate industry should take an active role in the clean-up project.

"I'm really disappointed in real estate agents," he said, "because so far they have ignored the clean-up idea—and they are the ones who benefit from it in the long run. After all, the better condition the property is in, the more profits they earn."

But with or without help, Harris said, he will continue the campaign "as long as the situation remains. My philosophy is that one that was taught to me by my mother many years ago. 'If you only have one piece,' she said, 'just keep that clean.'"

It's lucky we're not going up to Montreal because they're really socked in their, and there's a hurricane off Puerto Rico. But that shouldn't bother us today."

"We had some trouble with the turboprofan which delayed us a few minutes, but it's fixed now. We really don't need the turboprofan, but government regulations require that it be in working order, just in case the gyrohizzit goes out, which is hardly likely."

"Now, when we get in the air, you're going to hear a change in pitch in the motors, but don't let that bother you. If you didn't hear a change, then you should be bothered. Ha-ha-ha."

"I'll be putting up my wheels as soon as I take off, and you may hear a slight thump, but don't be disturbed by it. You have to get those wheels up fast when you're taking off—otherwise you don't get the lift, and a plane this size needs all the lift it can get, believe you me."

"I can't see if the wheels are up or not, but I do have a red light on my panel, and if that red light goes on I would, of course, abort the flight."

"We're second in line to take off. There are planes landing and taking off every minute and, while the traffic may appear heavy to you, they seem to have it under control. Once we get away from the airport, we'll be out of danger."

"Well, here we go . . . there—we made it. No red light. I'm getting a slight reading on my oil pressure gauge, but it doesn't seem serious."

You people on the right, if you look down now you'll, see Interstate 5344 over by the river. Sorry you people on the left can't see it. I hope to be driving on it soon. I'm taking my wife and children out visit her mother on my vacation in a couple of weeks."

"We're going to turn the seat belt sign off, but I'd advise you not to unbuckle your seat belt and walk around. You can get a great deal of turbulence up here, and without any warning the plane could hit an air pocket and take a dive, though, of course, it's unlikely."

offices as the Bureau of European Affairs, the Bureau of Intelligence and Research and the Bureau of Planning and Coordination have been virtually bypassed in the Nixon-Kissinger foreign policy revolution. As Secretary of State, Kissinger either must return these and other bureaus to their old eminence or risk fatal bureaucratic ambush.

Both the President and Kissinger want Kenneth Rush, who as Under Secretary of State in effect has been running the department, to continue as chief administrator under Kissinger. That will depend on how well Kissinger and Rush mesh. But the job of gearing Kissinger's White House operation neatly into his new State Department operation, certain to trigger power battles and bureaucratic problems, will be Kissinger's.

"It's going to be turbulent and chaotic here for a while," says one top State Department official who has long hoped for the departure of outgoing Secretary William P. Rogers.

Whether Kissinger continues to lead his charmed life or is irretrievably bloodied by this predictable turbulence now depends on Henry Kissinger. No man since John Foster Dulles has been given such supreme power over foreign policy. The possibilities and risks are immense.

REMEMBER WHEN
MOST THINGS

WERE "HOME DELIVERED"?

NOT TOO LONG ago many grocery stores, meat markets and drug stores offered Free Home Delivery. Not many still offer it today. Even the milkman and bread truck are less frequent in many communities today. The twice-a-day mailman now comes only once.

ONE OF THE FEW remaining home-delivery services is performed by your newspaper carrier. When you think about it, it is rare to have such personal daily service on such a low-priced item.

PERHAPS THE MOST discouraging part of a newspaper route is in collecting from the customers. Most people have the money ready for their newspaper carrier at the regular time. However, some readers require the carrier to make two, three or even more trips in order to get his money. We hate to see these young carriers discouraged. We also hate to see a good businessman give up his route because of the time and effort it takes to collect.

WON'T YOU HELP HIM, (and us) by having your money ready every time?

Watergate Seen Turning Public Against Politics

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Republican politicians out among the voters last week have come up with the same reading on Watergate: It won't damage their election chances next year but it's turning a lot of Americans off politicians in general.

All three said they view soaring food prices as a more important issue than Watergate. Democratic political strategists seem to agree with the assessment that the Watergate scandal will have negative effects on both parties.

But they are inclined to believe that it will hurt Republicans more.

The Republicans out talking to voters last week were Reps. Peter A. Peyster of New York and Stanford E. Parris of Virginia and Maryland State Sen. Robert E. Bauman.

Bauman, a conservative, narrowly defeated a conservative Democratic opponent last week to fill an unexpired term in the U.S. House of Representatives from Maryland's 1st District.

Before the election, Bauman had predicted that neither Watergate nor food prices would defeat him. He proved correct. He believes the same thing will prove true next year.

"The people here are not such sophisticates that they're going to vote against me to get back at (President) Nixon for the bad things that have been done," Bauman said before last week's election.

Bauman's district has sent Republicans to Congress since 1962, however, so it is questionable whether his victory can be taken as a solid indication that Watergate will not hurt Republicans at the polls next year.

In New York City, Peyster got this cynical assessment from a grocer in the Bronx:

"There's an old saying that all politicians are crooks ... It seems to me this is just part of the whole rotten system. But it's nothing new. They talk about Watergate; what about the (Soviet) wheat deal? That's even worse than Watergate."

And in Northern Virginia, Parris spent a day meeting with constituents without any of them even mentioning Watergate.

Their overriding concern was the ever-rising cost of food.

However, at least one House Republican leader, GOP Conference Chairman John B. Anderson of Illinois, says Watergate will severely damage Republicans.

Anderson said last week he thinks Watergate has hurt him so badly that he may abandon his hope of running against Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III next year.

Bauman, Peyster and Parris are pinning their hopes of not being scarred by either Watergate or food prices in the congressional elections next year on their aggressive efforts to separate themselves as far as possible from President Nixon on those issues.

When a young shoe factory worker in Maryland said she thought Bauman might be "in with Nixon," Bauman told her: "It's hard enough being a Republican without being with that crowd."

Parris stressed to every group he talked to that he plans to introduce a bill in Congress to repeal wage-price controls. Parris said he hopes Nixon will voluntarily abandon the controls.

"The Cost of Living Council has been a disaster," Parris told one group. "I think we should have Phase Zero."

Peyster has been criticizing Nixon on both Watergate and inflation in New York City television interviews.

The man Bauman will replace in Congress, William O. Mills, committed suicide after the disclosure that his 1972 campaign had gotten an unreported $25,000 from Nixon's re-election campaign.

Mills left notes saying he'd done nothing wrong but that he would never be able to convince his constituents of that.

Even against that background Bauman said he was convinced Watergate was not an issue in his campaign. "Watergate has not just suddenly made people cynical about politics," Bauman said in his car riding between campaign stops. "It has confirmed to them the myth that has been abroad for years that politicians are corrupt."

The practical effect of that, he predicted, will be that a lot of disenchanted people will feel their vote is useless and stop attended Pitt Technical Institute. He is presently employed as a superintendent with Barnhill Contracting Co., Tarboro.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

Reception
A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony.

After the bridal couple had cut the first slice, the four tiered cake was served by Mrs. Louise Stancill of Greenville, aunt of the bride. Mrs. Lena Mae Cox of Greenville, aunt of the bride, poured punch.

The bride's table was covered with an imported linen cloth and centered with an arrangement of orchid and white carnations flanked by candelabra with tall orchid tapers.

The guests were received by the bride and bridegroom, parents of the couple and the wedding party.

going to the polls. As Bauman was being elected in Maryland Tuesday, Parris was driving from appearance to appearance in Virginia — and being asked about high food prices at every stop.

The Virginia congressman said inflation "may have an adverse effect on incumbents" in the 1974 congressional elections particularly if it is as bad then as it is now.

Of Watergate, he said: "There will be some modest influence by people who blame the whole thing on the Republicans. By far the greatest influence will be that, the whole system is shot through with this sort of thing so I'm just going to be turned off."

As Peyster traveled through his district from plush suburbs on the Hudson to the rundown streets of the Bronx, issues most on constituents' minds were food prices and crime.

"The prices," said an Italian woman in the Bronx. "Too much. Too much. With a big family you cannot make the payments. You gotta stretch."

But the biggest complaint — from all the shop owners Peyster talked to and from many of the people on the street — was crime.

Nixon Finds Freeway Relaxing

By GAYLORD SHAW
Associated Press Writer
SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — Three times in three days last week, the Coast Guard sent a patrol to attention with a brisk salute as an ordinary-looking sedan approached.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday, President Nixon went out through the gate of the Western White House, seeking relaxation by cruising on California's busy freeways.

The President doesn't do the driving. At the wheel of the latest excursions was either a Secret Service man or Nixon's Florida friend and neighbor, C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo.

Rebozo, who left Saturday after spending five days with Nixon at his oceanside estate, completed several years ago the driving course the Secret Service gives agents who drive the President's car.

After leaving the closely guarded compound, Nixon's car pulled onto nearby Interstate 5, a six-to-eight-lane freeway linking Los Angeles with San Diego.

The sedan, specially equipped with radio telephones but otherwise indistinguishable from other Lincoln Continentals, eventually ended up at "Red Beach," an isolated stretch of Pacific coastline usually used by Camp Pendleton's Marines to practice amphibious landings.

Before reaching the beach, the President usually spent an hour or more following a meandering route along the freeways, trailed closely by a station wagon loaded with Secret Service agents.

For the past three years, other cars containing a four-member news service reporter-photographer pool also followed the President's freeway excursions.

But during his current stay, White House aides have refused to inform newsmen in time for them to join the presidential entourage.

The White House won't give a reason for the change in procedure. But it comes amid growing indications that Nixon is unhappy about being followed everywhere by Secret Service men and reporters.

At his news conference Wednesday, the President said he had sought unsuccessfully to have his Secret Service detail cut by one-third, saying: "As far as projection generally is concerned, I don't like it, and my family does not like it."

Two days earlier, Nixon gave Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler a forceful shove when he found that newsmen were about to enter a New Orleans convention hall door reserved for the official party.

"I don't want the press with me," he told Ziegler. "You take care of it."

Robersonville Man Will Join N.C. Roads Council

Kenneth Hudson Roberson of Robersonville is a member of the newly appointed Secondary Roads Council to be sworn in Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. in the Transportation Board Room of the Highway Building.

N.C. Supreme Court Justice Susie Sharp will administer the oaths of office. A briefing by members of the staff of the Department of Transportation and its Division of Highways will follow the ceremony.

The first meeting of the Council will take place the following day at 9:30 a.m. in the Board Room (No. 150). Presiding will be Cecil Budd of Siler City, the Council chairman.

The Council was set up by the 1973 General Assembly in the legislation which created the Board of Transportation. The Council differs from the Board in that the 14 council members represent the engineering divisions within the Division of Highways. The Council is charged with drawing up secondary road construction and maintenance programs in conjunction with members of the Boards of County Commissioners in a specific county. Programs approved by the Council can be reviewed by the Board of Transportation which is geared on a non-geographic basis of membership and charged with the overall road responsibility. The Board of Transportation has specific jurisdiction over the primary, urban and interstate road systems.

One of the first responsibilities of the Secondary Roads Council will be to set up and approve a criteria for maintenance and construction of secondary roads in the 100 counties. Once the criteria is set, and a program is set through meetings with county commissioners and approved by the Board of Transportation, then the program will be made public and available to the citizens. The plans and any changes will be on hand at court houses and in various division offices which the Division of Highways maintains across the state.

Ambassador To Meet Kissinger

MANILA (AP) — U.S. Ambassador William H. Sullivan flew to the United States today to confer with Secretary of State-designate Henry A. Kissinger at the Western White House.

Sullivan said his trip had nothing to do with the disclosure over the weekend that the White House had had his phone tapped while he was assisting Kissinger in the Vietnam cease-fire negotiations, the spokesman said.

Pork and beef prices are expected to decline, eventually, but the experts aren't sure when.

Currently, prices are being held at high levels by the combination effect of demand, or consumer's willingness to pay the high prices, and reduced livestock production due to high feed costs.

"Future levels of beef and pork prices will depend in large measure on consumer demand," according to North Carolina State University extension economists. It has been consumer demand more than any other factor that has driven prices to record highs.

The economists point out that, until recently, high feed prices have had little effect on meat prices. The decisions to produce most of the hogs and all of the fed cattle coming to the market currently were made before the drastic rise in feed prices last fall.

However, high feed prices last winter may have dampened the expansion plans of livestock producers, thus influencing pork and beef supplies in the months ahead.

The N. C. State University economists pointed out that continued high feed prices could continue to keep expansion of production at moderate levels. This would slow the decline in pork and beef prices.

Some experts believe that meat prices have already reached their peak. Expansion of supplies is almost sure to come. The pork supply will build up faster than the beef supply, because the production cycle for hogs is much shorter than that for cattle.

Without high feed prices, supplies would be building up faster. A moderate decline in hog prices is expected to begin in the fall of 1973, but there may be no real break in prices before next year.

Beef prices have been rising almost continuously since 1964, but as prices have risen, so has production. There are now some indications of a substantial buildup in the nation's cow herd that may lead to beef production far beyond the amounts that could be sold at current retail prices.

This would be the break consumers have been waiting for, but it isn't likely to come overnight.

Beef prices during the remainder of 1973 are expected to decline only moderately, and it may be another year or two before there is any substantial reduction in the price of beef.

Some experts have indicated that both beef and pork prices will hit "rock bottom" in 1975, but others believe that pork prices will bottom out in 1974 and beef prices will hit their low in 1976.

"No one really knows," the N. C. State University economists say, "but there is general agreement that beef and pork prices in the not-too-distant future may be significantly lower than they are today."

The American Farmer has proven over and over that he can produce more than he can sell at profitable prices. Even with consumer demand growing at a rapid rate, the farmer can and very well may over produce again.

New Moisture Discount For Corn and Soybeans

Moisture discounts for corn and soybeans will be different for the 1973 crop than for previous years, according to T. E. Nichols, Jr., Extension grain marketing specialist. He said that effective August 13 for corn and October 1 for soybeans the following discount procedures will be used by the grain exporters and presumably the major grain buyers in the state: 2 percent of the market price shall be deducted for each point (1 percent) of moisture over 15.5 percent for corn and for each point over 13 percent for soybeans.

This is a sharp departure from the constant discount (3 cents per bushel for each 1 percent above acceptable levels) used before. Nichols said under old discount schedules drying corn was more profitable with lower market prices than with higher prices. However, with the new moisture discount schedule which varies with the moisture levels and market price, it will be more profitable to dry corn when market prices are high. As an example using the new discount schedule for 20 percent moisture corn: If the market price is $1.50 per bushel, gross return to drying is 8.43 cents per bushel; at $2.50 per bushel gross return to drying is 14.05 cents per bushel.

Peanut Insects Increase

Henry Riddick, Associate agricultural extension agent, says the peanut crop looks extremely good at this time. However, he has observed an increase in damage to the plants by leaf hoppers, thrips, and corn earworms. He encourages producers to keep a close check on their peanut fields for these problems. With selection of the right insecticide good control can be insured.

Peanut Field Day

Riddick further reminds peanut growers that the 21st annual peanut field day will be held at the Peanut Belt Research Station at Lewiston on September 6. This will be a day packed with tours of research and discussion of the latest in peanut production information. This is also the annual meeting of the N.C. Peanut Growers Association. All Pitt County growers are urged to attend.

Return of St. Stephen Crown To Hungary Being Discussed

By ENDRE MARTON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The question of returning the 1,000-year-old crown of St. Stephen to Hungary is surfacing again on the eve of a visit to this country by Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty.

Mindszenty, once Roman Catholic primate of Hungary, opposes giving the crown of Hungarian kings to his Communist-dominated homeland. So do many Hungarian immigrants and those of Hungarian ancestry in this country.

Alfred Puhán, the former U.S. ambassador to Hungary, is among those who think it should be returned.

The State Department's long-standing position is that the crown belongs to the Hungarian people, the envoy recalled in an interview.

"Well, having served in that country I am satisfied that there is a Hungarian nation living in the Danube basin," Puhán said.

Another U.S. condition for the return of the crown was that relations between the two countries should improve substantially.

"They did improve, you may say substantially," Puhán said, and referred to several agreements signed between the two countries since Secretary of State William P. Rogers visited Budapest in 1972.

"I know there will be a blast from Hungarians living in this country and I understand the reasons. But let's face it: the crown is just not ours," Puhán said.

The "holy crown" was spirited out from Hungary, where it was kept in a chapel attached to the palace of Hungarian kings, when the Soviet army approached Budapest in 1944.

It was taken to Germany and delivered to American Army units for safekeeping. It is reported to be at Fort Knox, Ky., together with the scepter, the royal golden apple and robe.

The crown, this country said, "was not removed by force from Hungary, but was surrendered to U.S. authorities for safekeeping and is being held in trust by them... (it) continues to be treated as property of a special status."

The request was repeated in later years, but the subsequent Hungarian governments were not really pressing the issue, probably because of the crown's religious connotations.

It was given in 1001 A.D. by Pope Sylvester to Stephen, Hungary's first king, who later became a saint of the Catholic Church.

Claims Misuse Of Herbicides

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI) — Chemical weed killers harm the environment only because they are misused, says Garlyn Hoffman, range brush and weed control specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"All the various properties of herbicides are spelled out on the manufacturer's label so that agricultural producers and other users can employ them without endangering the environment," Hoffman says. "Gross misapplication and overuse are the main problems."

NEW YORK (AP)— Stock market prices rose slightly today as some buying interest held up in spite of a new rise in the prime rate to 9% per cent and an uncertain dollar in Europe.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which lost almost 29 points in the last two weeks, was up 1.05 at 864.54 at 11:30 a.m.

Advances held declines to a narrow lead in very light trading on the New York Stock Exchange. First-hour volume was 2.24 million, the lightest since July 13, 1972.

The broad-based NYSE index of some 1,500 common stocks was down 0.02 at 54.16 at 11 a.m., while the price-change index of the American Stock Exchange was up 0.01 at 22.82.

The advances came despite the news that Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third-largest commercial bank, had raised its prime lending rate to 9% per cent this morning and was followed by other banks. Neither did the news that the dollar had recovered suddenly in Europe from earlier sharp declines affect the slim gains in the market.

Federal National Manufacturing was the Big Board leader, unchanged at 18%, followed by Kennecott, up 1/4 at 29%. Other volume leaders included Bath Industries, off 1/4 at 18%; Crown Zellerbach, up 3/4 at 29%; and Scott Paper, down 1/4 at 14%.

Slowdown Is Ended For Panama Canal

PANAMA (AP)— Panama Canal pilots called off a two-week slowdown early today and agreed to return to work immediately to clear up a backlog of 118 ships waiting to go through the waterway.

The Panama Canal Co. announced it had agreed to withdraw court action against the Panama Canal Pilots' Assn. and its five officers and to resume recognition of the association as the bargaining agent for the pilots.

Traded Shots

TEL AVIV (AP)— Israeli and Arab forces exchanged fire today along the cease-fire line in the occupied Golan Heights of Syria, the military command announced.

It was the first reported outbreak along the line since July 12 when the Israelis said three Syrian tanks entered the Golan demilitarized zone and opened fire on Israeli positions. One Syrian tank was knocked out in that encounter, the Israelis said.

The action today began when the Arabs opened up with bazooka and small-arms fire at an Israeli army patrol at the southern end of the heights, captured from Syria in the 1967 Middle East war, a communique said. The Israelis returned the fire.

The communique did not say if the clash involved regular Syrian forces or guerrillas. Israel has always claimed that Arab irregulars could not strike across the Syrian cease-fire line if they did not have prior approval from the Syrian army.

Suggest Shower Before Exercise

EMMAUS, Pa. (AP)— Recent research suggests that showering before exercise rather than after is more beneficial to the body.

According to a report in Fitness for Living Magazine, the outer blood vessels constrict in a cold shower, so the core temperature can be kept down during exercise without bringing the blood all the way to the body's surface. Thus there is more blood available to carry oxygen to the muscles and tissues, and to carry wastes away from the muscles. The pulse rate is lower, and the recovery rate faster than normal.

Fire Damaged Goldsboro High

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP)— Authorities are still investigating the cause of a fire which damaged portions of Goldsboro High School Sunday afternoon.

There was extensive damage in the office area and minor damage to the adjacent student lounge, according to E.R. Pope, assistant fire chief. The dollar value of the damage has not been reported.

The offices were closed today, but classes, which began last week, were to follow their usual schedule.

Boy Victim Of Gun Shot

A 14-year-old Rt. 1, Greenville youth is listed in critical condition today in Pitt Memorial Hospital following an apparent accidental shooting Saturday night at his home.

Pitt Sheriff Ralph Tyson said that Theodore Williams Samuel Lewis was shot in the throat with a .22 caliber rifle by another youth. A third young boy was also in the mobile home at the time of the incident, Sheriff Tyson reported.

He said that the three boys were alone in the mobile home, located just off the Stantonburg Road in the Bell Arthur community, when the shooting occurred around 7 p.m. Saturday.

"From all indications it was accidental," the sheriff noted, "but we will have to wait and talk with the victim." He added that no charges have been preferred at this time.

A spokesman at Pitt Memorial Hospital said this morning that young Lewis, son Herbert R. Lewis Jr. of Rt. 1, Box 143-C, was in critical condition in the intensive care section.

Arrest Suspect In Bank Holdup

TAR HEEL, N.C. (AP)—The North Carolina Highway Patrol says an unidentified bank robbery suspect has been arrested at a home in St. Pauls in Robeson County.

A spokesman said two officials of a Tar Heel Bank in adjoining Bladen County are on their way to St. Pauls for identification purposes.

The FBI said a branch of the Bank of Elizabethtown was robbed about 9:30 a.m. today by an armed gunman. The suspect was apprehended less than an hour after the robbery.

Special agent in charge of the Charlotte FBI office Edward J. Krupinsky said the amount of money taken in the holdup had not been computed. No injuries were reported.

Feminists Mark 'Equality Day'

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Feminists staged demonstrations and fairs, conducted church services and honored their greats during "Equality Day" activities marking the 53rd anniversary of women's suffrage.

Seneca Falls, N.Y., site of the first women's rights convention 125 years ago, saw an elaborate ceremony Sunday to induct the first 20 members of the new Women's Hall of Fame. "Great Guts" awards were presented in Los Angeles at a combined picnic, fair and demonstration sponsored by the National Organization for Women.

The awards honored women including Billie Jean King, the tennis star; Olga Connolly, the former Olympic athlete; Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., and singer Helen Reddy, who created something of a feminist anthem with her rendition of "I Am Woman."

In Washington, a women's fair continued in a park near the White House and a rally was set for today on the steps of the Capitol.

A Catholic feminist group demonstrated outside St. Patrick's Cathedral in New York to protest inclusion in the day's liturgy of a verse by St. Paul, Ephesians 5:22, saying: "Wives should be submissive to their husbands as if to the Lord."

Also in New York, a group called Lesbian Feminist Liberation converged on the American Museum of Natural History with a 20-foot long, lavender-painted "female" dinosaur made of paper-mache.

The day marked the signing Aug. 20, 1920, of the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, giving women the right to vote. But a number of activities focused attention on the pending equal rights amendment intended to wipe out all discrimination against women.

In Cincinnati, bicyclists and roller skaters wheeled around Fountain Square in a "Ride for Rights." Feminists designated "Giant Step Backwards" awards for those they blamed for blocking ratification of the amendment in Ohio. Women ministers led a feminist service at Trinity Methodist Church in Atlanta. At Christ Congregational Church in Princeton, N.J., there were readings from "The Women's Bible," written in the 1890s under the direction of Elizabeth Cady Stanton.

And "Roast chauvinist pig" was the main dish at a picnic held at Rock Springs, north of Orlando, Fla.

Phnom Penh Roads Cut

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP)— Communist-led insurgents pushed closer to Phnom Penh today, cutting the capital's highway to the sea again at a point 15 miles from the city.

The fighting for control of Highways 4 and 5, the country's major supply lines, was the heaviest since the end of U.S. bombing 12 days ago. Battles were reported at several spots along both routes.

In the closest major clash, Khmer Rouge rebel forces surrounded a company of government troops a half mile from Ang Snoul on Highway 4, about 15 miles west of Phnom Penh. A civilian vehicle was ambushed and two persons were killed and another was wounded.

Highway 4 connects Phnom Penh with Kompong Som, Cambodia's only deepwater seaport, from which supplies flow into the capital city.

Highway 5 connects Phnom Penh with Kompong Chhnang, Cambodia's only deepwater seaport, from which supplies flow into the capital city.

Indians' Root Eyeing SC Championship

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

Jim Root enters his second year at William & Mary this fall, and he's looking forward to it with a lot of enthusiasm. He's hopeful that by the time the season is over, the Indians will be the champions of the Southern Conference.

He sees it as not as far-fetched idea, and so do a number of the pollsters, who pick the Indians, Richmond and East Carolina to battle it out for the crown.

But it may come down to the final weeks of the season before it's all over. The Indians play East Carolina in Greenville in the ninth week of the year. Then, they play host to Richmond in the eleventh week. Between the two, Richmond and East Carolina collide, putting all three favorites together over that short three week span.

"We have an experienced team, and an experienced coach," Root said. "I know the league is going to be stronger this year, but so are we."

Root feels that having an experienced offensive line, where everyone returns, along with two competent quarterbacks, is one of the strong points.

At the same time, he admits the Indians must improve their defense. Again there are a large number of experienced players back, although a few may be in difference positions from last year.

And perhaps more than anything, the Indians need for the ball to bounce their way a little more. They lost several games because of fumbles or pass interceptions, when to have held onto the ball would have meant a victory.

One of the big question marks is at running back, despite the fact that two of the biggest losses came in the receiving department and at safety where David Knight and Paul Sclaro, a pair of All-Conference and All-Regional selections have graduated.

Overall there are 28 lettermen coming back, with 16 starters among them.

Among them are several All-Conference players, center Joe Montgomery guard Stan

Victor, defensive end Ronnie Chappell and tailback-kicking specialist Terry Regan.

The offensive line is expected to be one of the best in the Southern Conference. Joining Victor and Montgomery in the line are tackles Bucky Lewis, Bud Klipa, Greg Freaney and Barry Deers, along with guard Paul Pavlich. All lettered last year, as did tackle Tom Waechter, giving the Indians plenty of experience and depth.

Quarterback Bill Deery was the leading rushing for the Indians last year with 823 yards, spearheading the Tribe's option offense. A junior this year, he's the number one man in the backfield this year, with Rip Scherer, with whom he shared the position last year as backup. Scherer rates as the better passer of the two, and he's improved in other areas too, but Root feels Deery give the team the best leadership.

before the opening game. At the ends, Chappell will team with letterman Ron Gilden, while Steve Dalton and John Dodd provide depth.

Rich Hodson and Mark Duffner, both lettermen last year are considered the top candidates for the tackle slots. The lone freshman to letter last year, Maxwell Schools and senior Bill Stockey add depth.

Randy Rovesti, a co-captain heads up the linebackers, with lettermen Mickey Outten, Dave Grazier, Kevin Rogers and Bill Hogg fighting for the other two spots.

The secondary is another area where the Indians must improve, and missing Scholaro, one of the nation's top interceptors, cannot tend to help them. But back are John Hostetler, Mark Bladergroen and Lem Tucker, providing experience, and Root is counting on them to show improvement in this part of the defense.

What the Indians really want is what escaped them last year, the league's title. "We play five games in the league and we hope we can win them all," Root said. "We had a great game with East Carolina last year, and we expect another one this year. Richmond was one of the strongest in the league last year, and we didn't move the ball against them, so we know they'll be tough."

Still Root is optimistic. "We're a better team," he said. "And we can win it."

Get Super Bowl Victory Wheeling, Dealing May

By TOM SEPPY
Associated Press Sports Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins have the same goal this season as they did in 1972—a trip to the Super Bowl. Only this time, they're confident they will win the pro football championship game.

It's difficult to improve a team that wins 11 and loses only 3, the most victories in the club's history, and plays its way into the Super Bowl. But Coach George Allen believes he has been able to do it with some deals he made.

Allen filled a left linebacker vacancy, caused by the retirement of all-pro Jack Pardee, now a Redskins coach, with a trade for all-pro Dave Robinson of the Green Bay Packers and then kept Robinson from retiring.

He also swapped five players, none a regular last season, to the Houston Oilers for safety Ken Houston and tight end Alvin Reed. The importance of the trade showed early when safety Roosevelt Taylor and tight end Jerry Smith, both regulars, were injured in the preseason exhibitions and Houston and Reed took over.

Perhaps Allen's biggest deal came when he acquired the moody Duane Thomas from San Diego for two high draft choices and did just about everything he could to make him accepted by his team, the press and the fans.

Allen's trade for Thomas came as somewhat of a surprise considering he also has Larry Brown, the National Football League's most valuable player last season and one of the premier running backs in pro football.

Although fans envision a Brown-Thomas backfield, Allen has insisted they will not play at the same time; that he needed a quality running back to spell Brown after the physical beating he took last season in gaining 1,216 yards.

Allen also drafted Moses Denison, one of the top runners in the Canadian League, and still has Brown's blocking mate, Charley Harraway, to say nothing of the young speedster he picked up in a free agent camp last year, Herb Mul-Key.

One of the Redskins problems may be at quarterback where Bill Kilmer, who took the team into the playoffs and the Super Bowl in his two years, is expected to start although he has been booed soundly by the Washington fans in RFK Stadium.

The jeers, along with the many "I Like Sonny" bumper stickers, apparently are because Sonny Jurgensen has almost recovered fully from his torn Achilles tendon suffered last October.

Kilmer and Jurgensen, two veteran quarterbacks, rely mostly on the Redskins running game but have a superb set of pass receivers in Charley Taylor, Roy Jefferson and Smith. In addition, two new faces could make the team—rookie Frank Grant, a member of the taxi squad last year, and Paul Staroba, acquired in a trade with Cleveland.

The offensive line of tackles Terry Hermeling and Walt Rock, guards Paul Laaveg and John Wilbur and center Len Hauss, the same group as last year, allowed only 11 sacks of quarterbacks during 1972, the fewest in Redskins' history and second in the National Conference.

Defensively, the same line will see action—ends Ron McDole and Verlon Biggs and tackles Manuel Sistrunk and Diron Talbert.

In addition to Robinson, who is receiving tough competition from Steve Kiner, the Redskins have all-pro Chris Hanburger at right linebacker and Harold McLinton in the middle, backed by Rusty Tillman and Mo Potlios, who held down the spot last season.

The secondary is one of the most respected in pro football. Mike Bass and veteran Pat Fischer are the cornerbacks with Brig Owens and Houston at the safeties.

The Redskins kicking game suffered during 1972 with Curt Knight hitting only 14 of 30 field goal attempts. His preseason record also has been terrible.

Encore Number Is Hard Decision

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—What do you do for an encore after winning the Atlantic Coast Conference football title for the second straight year and compiling the best record (11-1) in the history of the school?

Faced with this problem, North Carolina Coach Bill Dooley expects to have another good team despite the loss of 13 of the 22 starters in 1972, including six all-ACC players.

"I'm excited about the coming season," said Dooley, who is beginning his seventh year. "We'll have a good team. We feel good about our offensive backfield. But we lost a lot of offensive players up front, and the defensive ends and depth of defensive tackles are problems."

Linebacker Jimmy DeRatt is the only all-ACC player who returns.

Dooley's 1972 team climaxed the season with a 32-28 victory over Texas Tech in the Sun Bowl.

Nick Vidnovic, who threw eight touchdowns passes last season, gives the Tar Heels strength at quarterback. He is backed up by Chris Kupac.

Rounding out the No. 1 offensive backfield are tailback Sammy Johnson; fullback Dick Oliver, who averaged five years per carry last season; and either Ted Leverenz or Jimmy Jerome at wingback. Leverenz caught two touchdown passes in the Sun Bowl.

Ken Huff, a candidate for All-America honors, and Billy Newton are the starting guards. Robert Walters, a starting guard two years ago, will be at center. Newton missed last season.

Two reserves last year, Ted Elkins and John Tassar, both juniors, will start at the defensive ends. The top tackles are veteran Peter Talty and Ronnie Robinson, a 262-pound junior.

DeRatt will be one of the starting outside linebackers. The other will be either Tom Embrey or Mark DiCarlo. The latter underwent a knee operation near the end of last season, but appears ready for action.

Earl Chesson, brother of former Duke star Wes Chesson, and Phil Lamm are the No. 1 defensive halfbacks. The starting safety will be either Kip Arnall, a junior, or sophomore Frank Townsend.

The schedule:
Sept. 1, William and Mary; 22, Maryland; 29, Missouri.
Oct. 6, North Carolina State at Raleigh; 13, at Kentucky; 20, at Tulane; 27, East Carolina.
Nov. 3, at Virginia; 10, Clemson; 17, Wake Forest; 24, at Duke.

Two-A-Days Continue

East Carolina returned to two two-a-day contact drills Monday following a brief day of rest Sunday.

Weekly practice plans call for the Pirates to work on conditioning as well as development of basic offensive and defensive strategies.

East Carolina held its first scrimmage Saturday which head Coach Sonny Randle termed, "Typical but good."

Another scrimmage is planned for Wednesday or Thursday and again on Saturday. Saturday's heavy hitting session will be the final full contact practice before the North Carolina State opener in Raleigh, Sept. 8.

Five Con-Men Told To Perform Charity Work Or Find Selves In Jail

By JACK V. FOX
LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Federal probation officer Stan Schwartz has the job of keeping track of four army sergeants who proved they could outbilk Sgt. Bilko but he is confident he can do the job.

"If they try to con me, they'll find themselves in jail," says Schwartz.

The case involves Sgt. Maj. William O. Wooldridge, the highest ranking enlisted man in the U.S. Army, and three other noncoms convicted of an astonishing fraud involving kickbacks from operation of overseas GI clubs between 1965 and 1969.

In a novel sentencing last May, U.S. District Judge Warren J. Gerson did not send the men to prison as he could have. Instead he put them on probation with the proviso they perform charity work without salary and sign over virtually all their assets to the government.

"I want the defendants penniless," the judge said at the time. "I just want to make sure you don't have anything."

Suspended Sentences

The other three sergeants, who along with Wooldridge had pleaded guilty, were William E. Higdon, Theodore D. Bass and Seymour Lazar.

All were placed on probation for five years. The judge suspended prison sentences of five years for Higdon and Lazar, four years for Wooldridge and two years for Bass. Ferguson ordered that charitable work be performed for three years by Wooldridge, Higdon and Lazar and for one year by Bass.

So far as he knows, Schwartz said, only Bass, of the four, has as yet made arrangements to start his charity work. He declined to give details at this state.

Schwartz, who was given over-all responsibility for execution of the sentences, says it is too early to make any judgments on how the court's orders are being carried out.

Wooldridge and the others were given a period of five years within which to perform duties that Schwartz said would correspond roughly to those that a conscientious objector could undertake. It was not set forth, Schwartz said, that the men start such work immediately.

September Accounting
Stanley I. Greenberg, the assistant U.S. attorney who prosecuted the case and was given responsibility for the turnover of assets, also says it is premature to judge whether that aspect of the penalty has been properly executed.

The government has made a thorough examination of assets, including Swiss bank accounts whereof Higdon acknowledged he had $300,000 worth, Greenberg said, and an accounting will be made in September.

"Wooldridge, in a recent interview with UPI, said he was fully prepared to carry out the court's orders but that he has not decided what kind of non-paid volunteer work to go into.

"I'm interested in some work dealing with ecology and I've written to the Sierra Club," he said.

"Actually, I don't have any real civilian skills. I was in the army over 30 years. I know how to handle people, I'm a leader but I'm going to go slow on deciding what type of charity work to go into."

House Exempt

Wooldridge said that his only assets were a modest home in Junction City, Kan., and a used automobile, both of which have been exempted from the court order as not being connected with earnings from the fraud.

Schwartz agrees that Wooldridge came out of the scandal with little if any cash socked away but he says Higdon and Lazar profited tremendously.

Wooldridge, who received a "general discharge" from the army instead of an honorable discharge, receives a lifetime pension of $796 a month, which is not affected by the court ruling.

Estranged from his wife in Kansas, Wooldridge says he is deeply concerned about the effect of his conviction on his children, a daughter and four sons, one of whom recently left the Marine Corps after service as a first lieutenant.

Or Else...

Wooldridge is now living in Los Angeles and says he spends much of his time playing golf with old army buddies while he decides what work to take on.

Lazar was permitted to go to Stuttgart, West Germany, where he has a home and assets and settle his affairs before returning to Los Angeles in September.

Higdon is reported to be in Atlanta, Ga., and Bass in Florida. Schwartz would not pinpoint their whereabouts. The probation officer said their files have been turned over to U.S. Probation Department field offices but that he, Schwartz, will keep final account of their compliance with the sentences.

"If there is any reason to believe that any one of them is deliberately attempting to avoid carrying it out, I will have him brought back here before Judge Ferguson who has made it plain that will result in prison," Schwartz said.

By EDWARD S. LECHTIN

UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — There's really very little you can do—outside of standing guard with a shotgun—to keep a professional car thief from stealing your car if he really wants it.

If it's a Continental Mark IV, Cadillac Eldorado or Ford Thunderbird the chances are pretty good some pro is keeping his eye on your car, waiting for the opportunity to snatch it. If this is an average day, 2,500 cars will be stolen in the United States—over $3 million worth of automobiles.

The professional car thief is a businessman with a commodity that gives him nearly a 100 per cent profit. Like any good entrepreneur, he keeps track of market conditions and must know his product.

He already has his order in for a new 1974 model. It will be the last he has to buy.

Within a day or two after the new models begin appearing in dealer showrooms, the pro already will know the easiest, fastest and safest way to get that car out of a shopping center parking lot, a garage or off the street.

Fill Special Orders

Some of the car theft rings are so big that they have their own engineering departments working to figure out what's been added to the new models to make their job a little harder.

While more Americans are moving now to the small car because of the gas scare and higher costs, the pro still wants the luxury models. Why steal a car that's worth only a couple hundred dollars on the hot-car market when a Mark IV brings about $5,000?

The car theft rings can even fill special orders. A phone call to a special number in New York City recently brought the caller the car he wanted in the color he asked for and equipped just about the way he specified.

It's fairly easy for the theft rings to provide a good title for a hot car. Usually it doesn't match the car, even though many of the numbers are the same as on the "new" vehicle identification tag. The cars often are sold to unsuspecting dealers or through an auto auction, finally winding up in someone's driveway.

A new law in Michigan says anyone who paid less than 50 per cent of the retail price of an article must know the item may have been stolen. But there have been no prosecutions of persons found with stolen cars.

Anti-theft Devices

The anti-theft devices added to cars in the past few years have helped get the teen-aged joyrider out of the auto theft scene. About all that's left for the joyrider is the car with the key still in the ignition.

"We've been able to eliminate the amateur, the kid who ran the car until it was out of gas," says Doug Paul, manager of vehicle regulation at Ford. "But the pros are still there. You come up with a new defense and they come up with a new offense."

The automakers have developed some anti-theft devices in the past few years—the ignition key warning buzzer, a steering column lock, a temper-resistant odometer and anti-theft alarm systems. They admit none of these will stop the pro, just slow him down.

They've succeeded to a point, but, the National Auto Theft Bureau reports more than 948,000 cars were stolen in 1972. Eighty-four per cent were recovered, most of them within 48 hours.

If you live in a city with more than one million people in the Northeast, you're in the midst of an upsurge in car thefts. The Far West had a decrease of 7 per cent in the latest figures.

Need Specialists

"That section of the country, especially California, has probably more law enforcement agencies concerned with the problem and are doing more than anyone in the state of New York to combat the rise," says Bob Campbell of the Auto Theft Bureau.

"To really handle the problem," he said, "we need the development of a group of expert investigators in the major police agencies. They would do nothing but investigate car theft rings."

Greater police effort would result in more theft rings being put out of business, Campbell said. One ring broken up in Detroit in late 1971 still had 105 cars in stock—all Lincolns, Thunderbirds, a few Cadillacs and one 1969 Chrysler convertible.

The American car owner is one obstacle to reducing thefts, say some automotive executives. Besides leaving his keys in the car with the door unlocked, he'll put up with only so much safety before it becomes too inconvenient. "A manufacturer walks a fine line," Ford's Paul said. "We could put in a system that would require the driver to go through mental gymnastics to get in and start the car.

Search for Deterrent

"We can't satisfy him while making it hard for the pro. If we made the driver use two separate keys, he'd just be twice as upset. What we're really striving for is a deterrent. The longer the thief has to work to steal the car, the more possibility he could be caught."

Automotive engineers are reluctant to discuss the methods used to steal cars.

"The pros already know how and there's no sense giving the amateur any ideas," one engineer explained.

Ford does have some innovations for 1974 models. They've made two changes in the ignition lock, both designed to make it more difficult for a professional thief to steal a car by removing the lock. One of the changes will cause a portion of the lock mechanism to break away and remain in the steering column if the lock is forcibly removed. This makes it more difficult to unlock the steering column and turn on the ignition.

And for the car-buyer willing to part with about $100 extra, an anti-theft alarm system is available on all cars sold by Ford. Unlike add-on devices sold by some companies, Ford's alarm does not have the tell-tale lock on the fender, and it is turned on and off by locking or unlocking either front door with the key.

Paul says Ford has some other anti-theft ideas it's incorporating into the 1974 models. But they're not visible and the pro won't know about them until he either takes a car apart to find the devices or runs up against them while attempting to steal a car.

Arrested 11 In Disorders

KILMARNOCK, Va. (AP) — Eleven persons have been arrested and more arrests were expected today in the wake of what authorities called "racial disturbances" that followed a Saturday afternoon slaying.

Lancaster County Sheriff Garland Forrester said a state police helicopter, about 80 troopers and 25 sheriff's deputies from five counties were patrolling the area today.

Forrester said there had been at least six incidents that included assaults, shootings, fire-bombings, cars being overturned and windows being smashed. He attributed the "riotous situation" to the shotgun slaying of Clarence Milton, 30, a black farm worker.

The sheriff said 24-year-old Leslie Dawson of Weems, a white farm worker, had been charged with murder in Milton's death. Dawson first was lodged in the Lancaster County jail but was transferred Sunday night to the Richmond city jail under $25,000 bond.

Forrester said Milton reportedly had been invited to Dawson's home Saturday and the shooting occurred at the home about 4:50 p.m.

Forrester said the first indication of trouble came Saturday night when a group of blacks converged at the funeral home where Milton's body was taken.

He said the last reported incident was the firebombing of gasoline pumps at an Irvington auto shop about midnight Sunday.

Thirteen Dead In N.C. Traffic

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina traffic accidents claimed at least 13 lives over the weekend, bringing the 1973 total to 1,170, compared with 1,252 during the corresponding period last year.

The weekend victims included three who perished in a three-car pileup Saturday night in Edgecomb County.

The Highway Patrol said James Earl Debraux, 23, and Bertha Lee Watson, 36, both of Battleboro, were in a car which crossed over the center line of a rural road, struck another car, and then crashed headon into a car driven by the third victim. He was identified as Claude Davis, 29, of Seat Pleasant, Md.

Killed in a two-car crash on N.C. 161 in Burke County near Kings Mountain were 27-year-old Norman Randolph Flowers and 25-year-old Sandra Flowers, both of Stanly. Officers said they were on a motorcycle which was struck headon by another car which had veered across the center line of the highway.

Killed when their motorcycle was struck by a car on N.C. 161 in Cleveland County near Kings Mountain were 27-year-old Norman Randolph Flowers and 25-year-old Sandra Flowers, both of Stanly. Officers said a car veered across the center line of the highway and struck their motorcycle headon.

A 21-year-old Glen Alpine woman, Lela Faye Hyatt, died when her car ran off Interstate 40 near Hildebran and overturned.

James Dallyan Chipman, 18, of Winston-Salem was killed on a rural road in Forsyth County near Winston-Salem when his car went out of control, left the road and hit a tree.

Two persons were killed in separate wrecks on Interstate 85 in Gaston County. Paul Durrett Norris, 27, of Humble, Tex., died when his car was hit by another car travelling north in the southbound lane.

Mrs. Rachel McGuinn Lynch of Mill Spring in Polk County was killed in a 10-car chain reaction pileup on the I-85 bridge spanning the South Fork River. A 36-year-old Washington, N.C., man was struck and killed by a car on a rural road in Beaufort County. He was identified as Jasper Grisson.

William Neal Jr., 44, of Sumnerfield died when his car ran off a rural road near Greensboro. Officers said Sumnerfield was thrown from the car. Arthur Eugene Gordon, 20, of Lexington, N.C., was killed when his car overturned on N.C. 8 about six miles south of Lexington in Davidson County. Simon Lee Ratliff, 52, of Albemarle died when his car ran off N.C. 27 near Troy and plunged down an embankment.

WM. O. WOOLDRIDGE (above), once highest-ranking enlisted man in the U. S. Army, was among those convicted of fraud. (UPI Telephoto)

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: There are some definite confusions in most every mind today and tonight, but there is a good chance such can be eliminated and a right, constructive plan put in action by using cleverness and conscientiousness in trying to solve the problems present. Be specific about stating aims.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Although your mind is on having some amusement, you could lose out where it counts the most in some business opportunity. Get your job done well. Avoid one who argues in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan some time to get together with those with whom you are most congenial and relieve tensions. Then you can get into those business matters that are important and do them well. Try to please mate in p.m.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Improving affairs at home, or planning how to do so while at business is well today. Buy any new pieces of furniture that are needed. Pleasing kin can pay off in much affection.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Contact those who can assist you in making your life easier and happier in the future. An associate will go along now with some plan that he has turned down before. Think and act constructively.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Getting rid of whatever is obsolete and replacing with the new is wise, as well as finding better ways to increase income. Make repairs to property that will add value as well as comfort. Control your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) State your aims to key persons and gain their support for your ideas which are practical. Ideal day to attend group meetings helpful to your personal and business affairs. Dress well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Put more order around you, especially where personal, intimate things are concerned. Later get business matters well handled. Join with good friends tonight for the conversations that are enjoyable, enlightening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Glad about socially so you can secure the information you need, while having a good time. Make sure you do not overdo. The casual look is best now.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make the improvements in career matters that require immediate attention, or you can lose out where it counts the most. Join some civic group which can be most helpful to you. Avoid one who has an eye on your assets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You now understand trends in the outside world and can take the right steps to become more successful. Be interested in that scientific endeavor that is just your cup of tea. Relax at home in p.m.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Operate in a most exact way where debits and credits are concerned and improve your image in business world. Being clever with mate is most important now. Don't let anyone pull the wool over your eyes.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Discuss with associates any questionable points so you can come to a fine understanding and present a united front for more success. Get into that civic affair that brings you more recognition. Extend your powerful possibilities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those clever young people whose mind is buzzing with ideas who will do something about them since he or she knows they are worthless otherwise. There can be fame in such fields as the scientific, the religious, or whatever else will require both vision and determination, since there is also the courage of own convictions in this chart. Teach early to reach quick decisions. Sports are a must.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

The 'Worry Clinic' Bureaucracies Dread Economy

Marie's criticisms would probably meet with the approval of our Founding Fathers. For they opposed use of taxes and government bureaus for anything that could be obtained through private enterprise. That booklet below often removes sterility!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Y-501: Marie J., aged 31, has a widespread marriage problem.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I don't always agree with your column but I enjoy reading them every day."

"Recently you mentioned the case of a young couple about 35 years of age who wanted to adopt a child."

"The official agencies ruled them out, so they appealed to their local obstetrician, who quickly got them a new baby, born to an unwed high school girl."

"Soon they adopted a second and then, wife got pregnant, so they now have 3 kiddies."

"Well, out here in my western state, we also find it very difficult to find any baby for adoption."

"Although the agencies will deny it, we couples who are eager to adopt a baby or even an older child, find many unvoiced taboos against us."

"For example, if a couple already has a child of their own, then that seems to veto their getting a baby from the agency. Also, one's attitude toward abortion, as well as breast feeding, can spoil our chances. Even couples who would adopt an older child or a handicapped youngster seem to be penalized, too."

"Several of us would-be parents feel it would be much simpler and efficient to go directly to a physician and let him procure us a baby as from an unwed teen-age girl. But the agencies seem horrified even at the suggestion they be short-circuited out of the picture."

"Are they just fearful that their subsidies from the taxpayer would be reduced if they didn't expand the population of their orphanages?"

"Maybe I am being somewhat cynical of welfare agencies, but why shouldn't every normal baby be quickly placed in a good home, if there are so many childless couples seeking to adopt kiddies?"

Potomac Fever
Many bureaucrats, both in local and state offices as well as at Washington, D.C., become infected with what is called "Potomac Fever."

That is a psychological malady. It consists of a severe phobia about losing one's political job and thus being deprived of the previous lush paychecks and autocratic prestige that go with riding the backs of the taxpayers.

Economy in all phases of government is thus frustrated by this obsession of present jobholders to hang on to their power.

It would cost taxpayers much less if physicians placed babies of unwed mothers in desirable homes.

Apparently, there are literally thousands of such splendid homes, with cultured, moral parents, who are debarred from adopting children. Yet the number of orphaned and illegitimate babies is zooming.

An adoption often stimulates the foster mother's inner en-doctrines so she may then get pregnant for the first time, despite many years of apparent sterility.

Our 5 Crane children attended the South Shore Presbyterian

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Monday, August 27, 1973—13
Sunday School, where Rev. Alfred Crouch was the talented pastor.

His daughter married another Presbyterian clergyman in the St. Louis area, but when they couldn't have children, they adopted our.

And she authored a very inspiring, delightful little book, titled: "Adopted Four and Had One More," for she then got pregnant!

Send for my booklet "Facts About Pregnancy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, for it shows how apparently sterile wives often can get pregnant.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Tips To Foil Car Thieves

DETROIT (UPI)—Here are some tips from Donald Wolf-sayer, vehicle security manager for Chrysler Corp., that may keep your car from being one of the 2,500 that will be stolen in the United States today:

—Never leave the ignition key in an unattended car.

—In an attended lot, leave only the ignition key. Don't tag that with your home address.

—Don't leave the doors unlocked or the windows open. That's an invitation to theft and vandalism.

—Always try to park in the most-traveled, best lighted areas.

—Don't invite a thief in by leaving valuables exposed in your parked car.

—Don't abandon your car on the expressway. Wait for police and let them make the call for assistance.

—Be extra careful when you park near a bowling alley, sports event, movie or beauty parlor where a thief can figure how long you'll be gone.

—Don't hide an extra ignition key under the floor mat, the seat or other so-called safe place. Over 41 per cent of cars stolen are stolen by the use of these keys.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN

© 1973, The Chicago Tribune
BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠843 ♥AQ2 ♦A1082 ♣A98

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ Pass 2 NT Pass
4 NT Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Whatever you do, don't pass. Your 14 points are of the highest possible quality, equal to many 15-point hands. A bid of six no trump is acceptable to this department, but if you wish to show three aces en route by responding five spades, on the off-chance that partner may be able to suggest a safer slam contract, by all means do so.

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠Q1094 ♥A862 ♦Q42 ♣75

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♠ 3 ♣ Pass Pass
Dbl. Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Vigorous action is called for. East's preemptive tactics made it difficult for you to show your moderate values on the first round, so you should be thinking in terms of game now that partner has shown he has a good hand. A bid of three hearts or three spades, which partner will presume is forced, would be quite inadequate. Nor should you guess which major suit to bid at the four-level. A better choice would be a cue-bid of four clubs, allowing partner to select the suit.

Q. 3—Neither vulnerable, partner opens with one heart and you hold:
♠AJ10654 ♥5 ♦AK ♣AK106

What is your response?
A.—Two spades. Despite the lack of support for partner, your hand is so strong as to suggest a possible slam even in the face of the misfit. Your hand is worth 22 points, and the slam signal should be flashed at once.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠QJ107 ♥105 ♦AK ♣AK1043

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 1 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—One spade. The hand is not strong enough for a jump to two no trump. A bid of one spade is suggested as a temporizing measure. Should partner pass, it will be because he is very weak and you will probably be in the best spot.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ10954 ♥K6 ♦K763 ♣K

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♣ 1 ♥ Pass
1 ♠ Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Inasmuch as you have great playing strength, a bid of three spades is recommended. This is not forcing, but strongly urges partner to continue. The partner's failure to make a takeout double or later to raise spades suggests a shortage there, you don't need much to make game.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AKQJ10754 ♥5 ♦75 ♣83

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
3 ♣ 4 ♥ Pass 5 ♠
Pass 6 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—What is the purpose of North's six club bid? He is saying: "Partner, I am forcing you to bid a slam. My reason for doing so is that I have first-round club control, which might enable you to bid a grand slam!"

Since partner has no significant support for spades, he must have all three missing aces to justify his grand slam suggestion, so the proper call is seven spades.

Q. 7—As dealer, neither vulnerable, you hold:
♠KJ63 ♥AQ1094 ♦6 ♣K83

What is your opening bid?
A.—One heart. It would be poor tactics to open one spade. In those cases where, with minimum opening bids, a four-card spade suit is bid before a five-card heart suit there is the important proviso that it be a good four-card spade suit.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KQ10 ♥AJ10 ♦K1093 ♣AJ

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—It is a choice between raising partner's suit or bidding no trump. As we felt the hand was a trifle too good for a one no trump opening bid because of the intermediate cards, we now propose a jump to three no trump. It is less important to raise minor suits than to show a strong, balanced hand.

Young Hijacker Regrets Reflector Classified Her 'Lack Of Judgment'

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With her expressive brown eyes dominating a tiny face framed in long dark hair, her slight figure and her soft voice, Tamsin Fitzgerald conveys an impression of fragility.

In fact, she looks a good deal more like the flute player and poetry-writer she now is than the plane hijacker and two-year resident of a federal penitentiary that she once was. At age 23 she looks back with disbelief at "my lack of judgment, maturity or whatever" that involved her at age 18 in an abortive attempt with her boyfriend to hijack a plane to Cuba so that he could avoid the draft.

"Michael was under a lot of pressure about the Army, and at that time there were a lot of zany hijackings," she relates. "It was a thought that originated in his mind. That never would have occurred to me in my lifetime. It's just not my style."

He told her she didn't have to go along, his 5-foot-3, 100-pound partner admits. "He was right, but I didn't listen to him," she says. "I didn't like the thought of him disappearing into the skies. I was really hung up on him, so I tagged along."

Michael, who was 21, "didn't display the necessary force" and authorities were waiting for the two when the plane landed in Miami, and both were sent to prison.

It was at Alderson Federal

Penitentiary in West-Virginia that Tamsin wrote a series of letters and fragments of poetry to Richard A. Condon, the author of a book on flute-playing. He was so struck with the sensitive insights his correspondent showed that he has edited the letters into a narrative as a book recently published under the title, "Tamsin."

The author of the letters has been out of prison now for two years and is working at a publishing house and pursuing a musical degree at the Manhattan School of Music.

"How could I defend what we did?" she asks in retrospect. "It was a terribly stupid thing to do and I can't believe I could have done it. Michael should have considered going to jail 'cause that's what he ended up doing."

"We were so lucky not to be hurt or to hurt anybody or to have gotten a life sentence or gone to Cuba. I can't believe how lucky we were," adds Tamsin, who because of her youth will not be saddled with a criminal record. "But in my case it's silly to say I haven't been punished because everyone knows I have."

Michael was freed at the same time she was and they remained together for a while but have gradually drifted apart, and she doesn't know where he is right now.

"I have a lot of feeling for Michael," she says. "When you have been friends, playmates and lovers something remains, but I think the intensity is over, though I don't really know. If Michael showed up on my doorstep in 25 years I would be very happy to see him.

"We were both immature and messed up and we were lucky to meet each other because we were the same size," she goes on. "But as we grow stronger and different we are growing apart and don't fit so well any more."

But, she says, if it had not been for Michael, his letters and emotional support, she could never have survived prison.

"Of course," she adds with a smile, "If it had not been for him I wouldn't have been in prison."

She feels strongly that prisons, which she says are the only institutions that thrive on failure, do not work because of their dehumanizing effect.

Car Kills 5 Pedestrians

KINGMONT, W.Va. (AP) — An elderly woman and her four grandchildren were killed Saturday night when they were struck by a fast-moving automobile as they walked along a secondary road near here, state police said.

The driver of the vehicle, Daryl Wayne Yarber, 22, of Fairmont, was arraigned Sunday before a local justice of the peace on five counts of involuntary manslaughter and one count of drunken driving. Bond was set at $26,000 and Yarber was remanded to the county jail.

Troopers identified the victims as 73-year-old Clara V. West, Robin West, 12, and Kelly Friend, 10, all of Kingmont, and Marcia Wyer, 6, and her sister Monica, 8, of Charleston, S.C.

The children, all cousins, had assembled here to celebrate the 50th wedding anniversary of Mrs. West and her husband, Earl.

Troopers said Yarber's car ran completely off the pavement and struck the five persons as they walked facing him on the shoulder of the narrow rural road.

Yarber's car dragged the bodies for more than 100 feet as it slid down the road, hit a ditch and hedge and ran into a nearby yard, troopers said. He was traveling at excessive speed, police said.

"It looked like a disaster area," said former West Virginia Del. Nick Santasia, in whose yard the vehicle finally stopped. "I looked across the street and I saw bodies all over the place."

Not far from the crash site is a sign welcoming visitors to the community of Kingmont and reading, "We have a number of children but none to spare."

ONE WAY TO AVOID TICKETS — Although it looks like a way to park out of reach of the meter maids, a Hawaiian auto repair shop decided to attract attention by hoisting a Volkswagen up to the second floor and sticking it outside for an advertisement. (AP Wirephoto)

SMOKEY THE BABYSITTER — Smokey the Bear baby-sat six-month-old Amy Marie Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith of Westmere, N.Y. while awaiting an official gathering at the Albany County Airport. Smokey was on hand for an exchange of trees ceremony. (AP Wirephoto)

"Because a person couldn't cope in the real world they provide an unreal world where he doesn't have to make decisions," she points out. "Then he goes back into the world where he couldn't make it before, after years of being treated like an animal. Returning people is what keeps prisons functioning."

"Prison is too removed from reality," she continues. "A halfway house or any kind of a way to keep the person in touch with the community would be a better approach."

Tamsin, who explains that her name is of Welsh origin, was born and grew up in Poughkeepsie, N.Y., where her parents still live. "My mother is my best friend," she says. "I only recently realized the excruciating pain involved in seeing someone you love hurt themselves."

As for the future, she hopes to earn a living by playing the flute. She has had some second thoughts about the renewal, through publication of her letters, of something she would like to put in the past.

"The past follows you around, sneaks up on you, clobbers you," she declares. "But I hope it will just dwindle to a little episode that gives me a twinge of embarrassment and sadness when I recall it."

Phantom Traffic Warden On Job

PRESTON, England (AP) — Automobile owners in this Lancashire community are being haunted by a phantom traffic warden who slaps bogus parking tickets on their cars at night, threatening prosecution. He signs them, "Kelly, Residents' Association Chairman," but the association has never heard of him.

Exact Time By Ancient Clock

Object Fell With A Boom

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — An object thought to be a meteorite recently crashed to earth with a vivid blue flash and a loud explosion that shook buildings near Deniliquin, 176 miles north of here. The Royal Australian Air Force reported that the object had a tail of light three miles long.

Chicken-Eater Had His Fill

WALKERTON, Ont. (AP) — A Walkerton man won't be eating chicken of any sort for a while. Robert Bester, winner of the Walkerton world chicken-eating contest, who managed to gulp down about six pounds of fried chicken at Walkerton's Chick-enfest, said, "I won't be eating chicken for a long time."

WHO'S BEEN SLEEPING IN MY BED?
PRESTON, England (AP) — A burglar who broke into an apartment in this Lancashire town was an easy catch for police — he fell asleep and was found in bed the next morning by the owner. The burglar was jailed for 18 months.

Castro's Cuban Dream Has Miles And Miles To Go

FACE OF AN OLD WARRIOR — A Cambodian soldier waits for orders to move out for an operation on the western outskirts of Phnom Penh as other soldiers in the background sleep. (AP Wirephoto)

EDITOR'S NOTE — Fidel Castro recently celebrated the 20th anniversary of his Cuban revolution. Among those attending was Harold Morrison, foreign editor of the Canadian Press, who spent 10 days observing the Cuban scene. Here is a report.

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Foreign Editor

HAVANA — Cuba, the Communist base in the Caribbean, is beginning to show economic improvement but it has miles and miles to go.

Even Fidel Castro admits this as he tells his people: "The next few years will be years of hard work, sacrifice and struggle."

For the average Canadian traveler, Cuba may appear as a picturesque, enchanting island, trimmed with sandy beaches and swaying palms. Special hotels for tourists can isolate the traveler from the heat, the skimpy Cuban rations of meat, butter and other products and the continuous watch by security men.

Even the Sierra Maestra, the mountains which protected and gave birth to the 1953 Castro revolution, evoke romantic thoughts as evening skies turn red and blue beyond the setting sun.

But travel on those same roads by day and sweep your eye beyond the fields of sugar cane and the bamboo hovels come into sight — hovels and shacks where workers live, waiting for the better life communism has promised.

For many who starved under the old, pre-Castro regimes, the better life has already arrived. At least they have work and an equal share in rationed food and clothing.

No man between the ages of 18 and 65 is without a job. Indeed, he will go to jail if he refuses to work. A minimum wage of 85 pesos a month — about $100 — is enforced. Many workers earn between 200 and 300 pesos a month.

Rent is controlled with the state charging no more than 10 per cent of wages for accommodation. And some Cubans live well, sharing old mansions taken from the rich or in huge new prefabricated apartment complexes springing up in the suburbs of Havana and Santiago de Cuba in the eastern Oriente Province.

For many of these Cubans the competition is not so much for basic food and housing as for some of the finer things in life: a radio, refrigerator or television set.

A private car is out of the question. Those cars that still rattle across city streets are mainly old wrecks.

But the state has cars of its own, along with fleets of buses, and many officials can get cars if their jobs call for vehicles. For the majority transport means the bus.

Officials insist there have been dramatic changes in living conditions. Expanded school construction has virtually eliminated illiteracy. Medical training has increased and those who are sick get proper care.

But compare Cuba with some of its neighbors and the struggle comes into sharper focus. Cuba still is basically a land of sugar cane, tobacco, nickel and rum.

Much of its material it needs is imported. Because of its heavy dependence on Soviet aid, Cuba does most of its shopping in Soviet stores. Planes, trucks, guns, rockets, radios, watches, tanks, ships, radar and other equipment come from Russia.

Diplomatic officials here estimate that Soviet aid must run to more than $1 million a day.

"Who knows," says Castro, "what tremendous suffering our people would have had to endure as the price for our revolution if we hadn't received such huge foreign aid."

But Castro undoubtedly realizes that even the Soviet Union — no matter what its political target in Latin America and the Caribbean — cannot play the role of rich uncle forever.

So the Cuban leader has set a heavy economic task for his people: an increase in national economic production of no less than six per cent a year over the next 10 years.

That's a big target for a country so poor in resources and yet forced by its ideological and political policies to maintain a huge army. Some neighboring countries are known to be uneasy about the Cuban arsenal.

"Why so big?" a Caribbean visitor grumbled during a military display that showed a finely tuned graduate corps of men and women officers, goose-stepping in review before their leader. They were followed by the latest military hardware, including new amphibious tanks, rockets and long-range field artillery. Squadrons of Soviet-made jets flew overhead.

Many diplomatic observers reject suggestions that perhaps Castro is preparing military pressures to expand communism in the Caribbean. They feel he has too many problems at home to gamble on a military struggle that might arouse the U.S. giant nearby.

The more convincing prospect, some observers suggest, is that Castro will continue to promote a propaganda battle and encourage guerrilla warfare by those who advocate communism.

But his main goal at home will be to attempt to fulfill promises of a better life for his people.

Perhaps Castro's most ambitious project is to attempt to triple nickel production to about 90,000 tons a year from the current 36,000.

A move that undoubtedly would help Cuban nickel would be removal of the U.S. trade embargo. Castro keeps referring to the U.S. policy as "a criminal blockade."

But while he still casts the U.S. in the role of the main "imperialist" enemy, there are indications, in discussing the issue with Cuban officials, that the Cuban government would be highly elated if President Nixon decided to remove the embargo.

Ask Restoring Of Cyclamates

By JANET STAIHAR
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration will be asked later this month to reverse its 1969 ban on cyclamates, says Commissioner Alexander M. Schmidt.

Abbott Laboratories will petition for the reversal and is expected to cite new research findings, Schmidt said in an interview. But he said the FDA will require "some harder scientific data than we've got now" before changing its mind about the cancer hazard of the food and beverage additive.

A decision is not expected for months, he said. He acknowledged that Abbott's new evidence may support the request to approve cyclamates again.

"I'm willing to accept the fact that data may come along that show that a lot of our decisions, in the light of new data, were unwarranted," he said. "In the light of old data they may very well have been warranted."

The agency's caution is heightened by the intensive review now underway on the safety of saccharin, the only non-nutritive sweetener remaining on the market and itself suspected of causing cancer in laboratory animal-feeding studies.

Federal law prohibits the use of any amount of a food additive that causes cancer in man or animals.

If a cyclamate approval followed on the heels of a saccharin ban, Schmidt said, "that would take a lot of explaining."

"I don't think we're going to do anything that we can't explain, and explain very well," he said.

Reviewing his first six weeks as commissioner, Schmidt said he plans to better educate the public, physicians and industry about "what we're doing and why we're doing it but, more importantly, the basis upon which we're doing it."

He expressed particular concern that the FDA may be infringing on individuals' freedoms, such as by regulating the composition of multiple-vitamin pills.

"I think that the FDA will have to be awfully careful about its science in justifying any action that would drive a product off the market," he said.

But he added that his concern about industry economics is secondary to what he regards as the FDA's primary role of protecting the public health.

Oldtime Trolley Ride For Tours

VIENNA (AP) — Visitors to Vienna can now tour the Austrian capital in oldtime trolley cars that were built before World War I and have been specially adapted for the purpose.

The two-and-a-half hour trip passes near the Prater, the amusement center, as well as Schonbrunn Palace and many other internationally known tourist attractions. Passengers can get off at any place where they would like to spend a little more time.

The complete circuit costs about $4.

Another Way To Move Pigeons

Greenland Has A Greener Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the generation since World War II, the entire life style and economy of Greenland has changed radically, the National Geographic Society reports.

Thanks to the nearly $100 million poured into Greenland annually by a benevolent Danish government, a former Stone Age people has moved into the 20th century.

VENICE (AP) — City authorities here have decided on a new way to evict the 180,000 pigeons causing decay and health problems in St. Marks Square.

This time, they will move the birds' feeding places to the outskirts of the city, ban stands selling corn in the square and sterilize some of the birds.

Before, officials wanted to ship the birds to other parts of Italy and the world, but were unable to catch them.

Feet Burned By Hot Socks

LINKOPING, Sweden (AP) — Hot socks put 50 Swedish soldiers on the sick list, some suffering second degree burns on their feet.

Authorities said a computer at the central defense laundry apparently mixed far too much lye or disinfectant in the wash.

A warning was issued that at least 1,500 "poisonous" pairs of socks may have been distributed to army regiments.
