

Street Resurfacing Plan To Get Underway Today

Phase one of three-part street resurfacing program in Greenville was scheduled to get underway this afternoon, according to city manager Bill Carstarphen.

The city manager said that phase one, which has been approved by the City Council, is part of a three-year resurfacing program here that is expected to involve the use of shared revenue funds.

Included in the first segment of the program, he said, are 21 streets that were selected on the basis of a complete survey of the condition of all city streets conducted by the Engineering and Public Works Department.

Bids on the 21-street project were received in June and the contract for $48,500 was awarded to Barrus Construction Co. in July.

Streets that are being resurfaced during the ten-day project include Summitt Street from Fifth to First Street; Lewis from Fourth to Second; Meade from Fifth to Second; Elm from Tenth to Fifth and from Third to Willow; Forbes from Eighth to Ninth; Washington from Tenth to Eighth; 14th from Charles to Evans; North Overlook from Elm to Brownlea; Sherwood Drive from Knolwood to Greenville Boulevard; Church-Side Drive from Red Banks Road to Oak View; Pinecrest Drive from Elm to Drexel Lane; Southview Drive from Charles to Brook Road; Brook Road from Charles to Forest Hill Drive; Cozart from Hooker from Hooker Road easterly 700 feet; Wilson from Dickinson Avenue to Line Avenue; 14th from Broad to Dickinson and from Dickinson to Fifth; Ward from Elizabeth to White; Elizabeth from Fifth to Third; and W. Fifth from Pitt to Elizabeth Street.

Carstarphen said that the next resurfacing phase will be getting underway within the next 12 months and will involve about twice as many streets as the first part. Funds for the second phase have been appropriated in this year's budget.

Fear Rising Tide Of Letter Bombs

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The wave of letter bombs and incendiaries here that police attribute to the Irish Republican Army is likely to continue and may get worse, Scotland Yard believes.

"This could be a desperate situation," said Chief Supt. Roy Habershon, the head of the Yard's bomb squad. "No one should underestimate the intentions of the bombers in London. They mean to burn, maim and kill."

The police are convinced from an examination of the materials used that the bombs are the work of the IRA, fighting to drive Britain out of Northern Ireland and reunite the Protestant province with the Roman Catholic Irish Republic.

Security precautions were strengthened today in three danger areas:

—London, where three days of mail was being delivered after the long end-of-summer holiday weekend.

—Belfast, the capital of Northern Ireland, where Prime Minister Edward Heath was beginning a two-day visit.

—British diplomatic missions overseas. A mail bomb Monday blew off a hand of a woman employee at the British Embassy in Washington.

Although there have been few serious injuries, the series of more than 30 letter bombs and incendiary devices since Aug. 18 is the longest wave of terror in England blamed on the IRA.

Most of the bombs failed to go off, were defused or did little damage. The most seriously injured were a secretary at the London Stock Exchange—who suffered facial, arm and leg injuries Friday—and a worker in the bank of England who lost a hand Saturday. Both opened letter bombs.

Approximately 11,500 Students Check In As County Schools Open

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer

It was back to school for approximately 11,500 students attending Pitt County Schools when doors opened this morning to begin the 1973-74 school term.

Orientation for high school students was held Friday and Monday and for elementary students Monday. Today was the first full day of school which began the 180 day term.

The four high school principals reported smooth openings as well as did elementary school principals.

D.H. Conley Principal James Carraway reported a fine opening with about 975 students reporting for classes. The enrollment at Conley last year was 908. A total of 46 teachers are employed at Conley this year and 16 buses are transporting the students to and from school.

William Wiggins, principal at Ayden-Grifon High School, said he was very pleased with the opening this morning.

"Transportation has been very smooth. The students arrived on time," Wiggins said. "Orientation sessions held Friday and Monday showed a good turnout with about 95 percent of the students in attendance."

A normal schedule was maintained at Ayden-Grifon today. The only problems, Wiggins explained, were with enrolling students who had not previously registered and making a few adjustments in the class schedule.

The enrollment at Ayden-Grifon this year is about 840 as compared with last year's number of 800 students. Forty-two teachers are employed at the school and approximately 22 buses are in operation.

According to Russ Cotton, principal at Farmville Central High School, the orientation sessions Friday and Monday and additional teacher work days accounted for the fine opening they had this morning.

The enrollment at Farmville Central is expected to total about 1,112 as compared with last year's total of 1,007.

Cotton said about 840 students reported for classes today. He said the low attendance was probably due to students still working on the farm and others who may not have returned home from late vacations.

A total of 51 teachers are employed at Farmville Central this year. Thirty-five school buses are in operation at Farmville Central.

The enrollment at North Pitt High School is about 1,030 as compared with 980 students (at the end of last school term). There are 51 teachers on the payroll at North Pitt and 22 buses are being used to transport the student to and from school.

Arthur Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, cautioned people to be aware of students standing along the side of rural roads waiting for buses and buses that are stopped to load and unload students. He stressed that drivers exercise all caution for the safety of the child.

"My particular objective this year is to see that each student becomes a more responsible person," Alford said. "By this, I mean, responsible for being in class on time, attending school every day, bringing their books and counselors employed at Pitt with them, and conducting themselves in a more responsible manner."

"This is the only way that we are going to be able to reach each child to his fullest potential, for the child must want to learn and must apply himself to the opportunities which are provided for him."

Alford said the school personnel will do their part, in fact, will go out of the way to give assistance and direction to the students.

"The secret to it all," Alford noted, "will be found in how the child accepts the responsibilities which are his."

There are a total of 554 professional teachers, librarians and counselors employed at Pitt County Schools this year. A total of 183 buses (including a few being used by the Greenville Schools system) are being used for transportation this year.

An enrollment of about 11,500 students (including kind-

Repatriation

NEW DELHI (AP) — India and Pakistan, striving to heal the wounds of a war that ended 20 months ago, today signed an agreement permitting the release of about 90,000 Pakistani prisoners of war.

The Pakistanis were taken during the December 1971 India-Pakistan war fought over the creation of Bangladesh in what had been the eastern wing of Pakistan.

Their continued detention by India was the chief stumbling block to a final settlement of the war. The Bangladesh government of Prime Minister Mujibur Rahman had threatened to try a small group of them on war crimes charges for alleged atrocities during the war and the Pakistani military occupation that preceded it.

The text of the agreement to release them, signed after 11 days of bargaining, was not immediately released.

'Dress Rehearsal' For Next 180 Days As City Schools Get Underway

By JERRY RAYNOR
Staff Writer

This morning was somewhat like a dress rehearsal for the next 180 days, as some 5,700 young people in Greenville trooped into schools to get reoriented to classroom surroundings.

For some, it was a little more exciting than just being back in school for another school year. Kindergarteners, new first grade students, boys and girls entering junior and senior high for the first time, and those elevated to the exalted position of "seniors" had a little extra reason to find this a memorable personal occasion.

From principals and supervisors the word was that "all is going beautifully this morning." "I'd like to emphasize the tremendous difference it has made having the six day teacher work period to get things in readiness," Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education, said in reporting on opening day for the junior and senior high schools.

"Teachers and principals have been planning together, have had time to organize and to have things ready to go today. The classrooms look simply wonderful.

"The teachers I've seen look beautiful too, all gussied up, it's really a fine start for a new school year," Mrs. Whitehurst added.

In reply to a question about evidence of new fashion trends among students, Mrs. Whitehurst said "There's still a wide variety of dress, but the thing I've noticed most is that students are dressing for comfort. Practically all the students, boys and girls, are dressed in trousers."

Charles Ross, Director of Elementary Education, also mentioned the value of teacher having the six day period before school opening. "I think this really was important. Everything is better programmed, better planned than ever before.

This is the first year teachers have had this long a period to prepare for school opening. In previous years, two days have been the span given teachers to that task.

"Another thing that pleases me," Ross said, "is that no classes seem crowded. It looks like we're all set for having excellent conditions from the very beginning of the school year."

Principals contacted report that the response to assignment letters seemed better this year than before.

"All children, or nearly all of them," Johnson Spruill, principal of Sadie Sauter Elementary School said, "knew where to go. After the first 15 minutes just about every child was in place in his classroom. It didn't really seem like opening day, things were so quiet and normal after the first few minutes."

At Aycock and Rose, principals Paul Rasberry and Robert Alligood spent the morning conducting orientations sessions to inform students on matters of curriculum, discipline, sports, special events and other aspects of the coming school year.

Khe Sanh Today A Big North Vietnam Base

WASHINGTON (AP) — The North Vietnamese have violated peace accords by transforming the onetime U.S. base at Khe Sanh in South Vietnam into a major military complex, say Pentagon officials.

Defense Department analysts say the Communists have built new roads leading south and west, big storage and repair facilities and restored and enlarged the old air field.

Khe Sanh, they said, is now protected with an air defense shield similar to that surrounding Hanoi.

A new road network along the western side of South Vietnam as well as the revitalization of the Khe Sanh previously have been reported but not in such detail.

It was not clear why, with apparently little or no chance that Congress would approve any return of U.S. airpower to Indochina, that Pentagon officials chose now to comment again on the Khe Sanh buildup.

Officials, who asked not to be quoted by name, deny they are preparing Congress for any new request for new authority to bomb. Such authority disappeared by law with the Aug. 15 bombing halt in Cambodia.

The same officials indicated other smaller North Vietnamese bases are under construction in other parts of South Vietnam.

U.S. Air Force photographs of Khe Sanh are taken from high-flying unmanned drone planes. Officials said the runway at Khe Sanh has been lengthened from 3,400 feet to nearly a mile long, allowing it to handle the largest Soviet MIG jets and other planes. None have shown up so far.

Full, Independent Audit Of San Clemente Purchase Revealed

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has disclosed that his two closest friends, C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo and industrialist Robert H. Abplanalp, were secret partners in an investment firm that bought the bulk of his San Clemente property in December 1970.

The White House said on Monday that Nixon had ordered release of a detailed independent audit to dispel "false allegations that campaign funds had been used to acquire the San Clemente property."

And the White House said the President and Mrs. Nixon originally bought their $1.5 million estate in 1969 with their own funds, loans from banks and eight per cent interest loans from their wealthy, longtime friend, Abplanalp.

"The President had to borrow money, pay interest at current rates and, similar to most Americans, still owes money on his properties, as we all do—all of us who own property," said Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren.

Rebozo's part in the transaction previously had not been public knowledge because all deeds and mortgages were held by the Title Insurance & Trust Co. and were not filed for public inspection.

The detailed documents and reports from the New York accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand show that President and Mrs. Nixon sold all but 5.9 acres of their 28.9-acre Pacific oceanfront property 2½ years ago to the B. & C. Investment Co. of Los Angeles, owned jointly by Abplanalp and Rebozo, for $1,249,000.

But the White House said Abplanalp "in the last month or so" acquired Rebozo's interest in the company.

The financial details of Nixon's San Clemente dealings have come out since the Orange County Register at Santa Ana, Calif., published a story three months ago alleging that Senate investigators believed the San Clemente property had been purchased with leftover 1968 campaign funds.

The White House denied the story, and no Senate source ever confirmed it.

In May, the White House issued a financial statement that said Abplanalp originally loaned the Nixons $625,000 to purchase their San Clemente property.

It said that, in late 1970, he bought 77 per cent of the property, leaving the Nixon's 5.9 acres—including beachfront, a small private golf course and the Spanish-style mansion they plan to make their permanent residence.

The latest accounting also covers Nixon properties at Key Biscayne, Fla., and is consistent in detail with the May figures, except for Nixon's personal expenditures on his properties.

Warren said the "fuller audit" showed $217,280 was spent for improvements, furnishings and other costs at San Clemente, compared with the May figure of $123,514. It showed a total of $76,000 spent for improvements at Key Biscayne.

These are Nixon's personal expenditures, compared with almost $10 million the General Accounting Office said was paid by the federal government for construction, repairs, security installations and communications at the California and Florida compounds.

Details of the financing of his two houses in Key Biscayne, purchased in December 1968 for a total of $252,800, had been made public previously.

Among the loans Nixon made to buy those properties was a $65,000 unsecured bank loan obtained in December 1968 from the First National Bank of Miami.

Nixon still owes $161,000 on his Key Biscayne properties.

Number Of Traveling Businesswomen Is Growing

By DEE WEDEMEYER
Associated Press Writer

It was midnight when New York banker Robert Jacobs and his colleague, Margaret Weisser, reached the motel in Rockford, Ill.

At the desk, they registered separately. Each had a credit card. They expressed no preference for adjoining rooms.

The desk clerks processed the forms, but were clearly perplexed.

As Jacobs and Mrs. Weisser headed toward their rooms — inevitably adjoining — they heard a clerk remark:

"They say they are from New York and work for a bank."

The bankers chuckled. It was not a new experience. As one of an increasing number of American women traveling on business, Mrs. Weisser repeatedly finds herself challenging traditional etiquette.

Some women have traveled in their jobs for decades, of course. But in the past five years more and more have gone on the road to represent some of the older, more established firms. Over the years, few firms had formal policies against women traveling, but misgivings held down the numbers. Some men thought it would not appear proper for two single people of the opposite sex to travel together. Or if a married man traveled with a woman, his wife might be jealous. And women traveling alone raised questions of safety.

Donald Armiger, a vice president for personnel at New York's First National City Bank — which employs Jacobs and Mrs. Weisser — said that the worries do not seem to have been warranted.

"There have been no scandals. I'm sorry to say," said Armiger.

The main problem is traditional etiquette.

In restaurants, checks inevitably come to the man, even if it is the woman who is taking the client out to dinner.

Many women interviewed told of being asked, "And what would the missus like" while their client sat by uncomfortably.

Many men who have traveled with women on business said their company is a welcome change.

David Witherell, an accountant for Price Waterhouse & Co., traveled last year with his boss, Anne Curtis, to a small town near Scranton, Pa.

"It changed the style of the trip but I found it a pleasant change," said Witherell. "Men tend to carouse more in the evenings, out bar hopping. It toned things down a little."

"Women have different things to talk about. It opened up new conversation avenues. With a man after work you tend to talk about sports. With Anne one night we went shopping or we talked about plants, women's clothing styles. Things I wouldn't talk about with a man."

John Ryan, general manager of Sylvania Commercial Electronic Corp. in Bedford, Mass., said his trips with female coworkers have convinced him that women are much better travelers than men.

"Women tend to be better organized than men," said Ryan. "Men will stay in a meeting until the last minute possible. Women stay until time to go. The old myth of women with many suitcases isn't true either."

Some women said they are learning that travel is not the glamorous experience they thought it would be.

"I used to think it was great to travel internationally until I discovered New York and Paris and London all look the same at rush hour," said Jane W. Gladson, who has traveled internationally for Exxon and now is an account officer at First National City Bank, traveling on the East Coast.

She said that her greatest problem was keeping her private life organized while on the road.

"It is a logistical nightmare," said Miss Gladson. "Men can call wives to pack their suitcases. It is totally impossible if you leave at 7 a.m. and return at midnight. There are no supermarkets open then."

Mary Ann Gore, mother of four children, began working three years ago and now is manager of Frances Wright, a specialty store in Memphis, Tenn. Her first business trip was the first travel she had done in more than a decade without her husband.

"I had never checked into a hotel myself before," she said. "I didn't know how to tip. Before I had swished out the door into the cab and never tipped a door man. All the traditionally masculine things to do."

For Mrs. Gore, the worst problems are well meaning friends who ask, "How do you manage with the children?" and feeling guilty about missing events in the children's lives.

Husbands left behind say they get an inordinate amount of kidding from their friends.

LBJ Space Role Honored

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The late President Lyndon B. Johnson has been honored as a leader in bringing Americans into the space age.

The nerve center of America's manned space program was dedicated as the Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center in ceremonies Monday marking the 65th anniversary of Johnson's birth.

Earlier at the LBJ Library in Austin, Johnson's widow, Lady Bird, and her two daughters smiled and wept as the Lyndon B. Johnson commemorative stamp was issued on the stage where the late president made his last public appearance.

At the space center dedication, Dr. James C. Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, called Johnson "a crusader in man's conquest of space."

"No other person did more to move America and the world rapidly into the space age than Lyndon Baines Johnson," Fletcher said.

Postmaster General E. T. Klassen presented souvenir sheets of the stamp in black albums embossed with gold to Mrs. Johnson, her daughters and their husbands.

There will be special singing and prayer for the sick. The public is invited, according to the pastor, the Rev. R.A. Griswold.

Majority Lean To Handling By Court

NEW YORK (AP) — The Harris Poll says 62 per cent of those it surveyed recently agreed with President Nixon's contention that the Watergate affair should be turned over to the courts.

The poll reported Monday that 32 per cent disagreed when asked if it were "time to turn the whole question of Watergate over to the courts and allow the President to concentrate on more important things."

However, the Harris organization said, respondents split

Pulled Out Into Pursuer's Path

KINGS MOUNTAIN, N.C. (AP)—A Kings Mountain police car, involved in a high speed chase, collided with a vehicle that pulled out of a driveway into its path.

The driver of the second car, William Edward Browning, 50, was fatally injured. He died about 5 a.m. after being taken to Charlotte Memorial Hospital.

Authorities said Browning apparently was not aware of the chase, even though the police car's blue light was flashing.

Two Kings Mountain patrolmen, Donald Ivey and Houston Corn, and a passenger in the Browning car, Raymond Jackson, suffered minor injuries.

The car that was being chased got away.

Newspapers Feel Shortages In Newsprint; Some Suspend

By BARTON REPPERT
Associated Press Writer

A worsening shortage of newsprint has forced newspapers across the country to drop regular features such as comics, limit advertising, reduce news space, trim press runs and even suspend publication some days.

The shortage has been aggravated by continuing strikes at some major papermaking mills in Canada and a Canadian railroad strike that began last week. About 65 per cent of all newsprint used in the United States comes from Canada.

In Ottawa, Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau said Monday night that Parliament would be recalled to end the rail strike because "we cannot live with such disruptions any longer."

Newspapers hardest hit by the shortage have been smaller dailies without long-term contracts with paper manufacturers. However, some of the nation's largest papers are beginning to feel the pinch.

The Wall Street Journal announced on Monday that certain features would be curtailed or suspended and a "strict limit" was being placed on the amount of advertising that could be accepted.

The financial daily, with a circulation of 1.3 million, also said it was limiting newsstand sales and suspending all circulation sales promotion activity.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer, in an attempt to conserve dwindling stocks of regular newsprint, today published some editions with two of its four sections printed on pink paper that had been left over from recent holiday issues.

The Chicago Daily News has cut down space for news coverage by a page, while the Chicago Tribune has reduced its press run—the number of copies printed—and tightened waste controls.

In St. Petersburg, Fla., publishers of the Times and the Evening Independent said the newspapers were cutting back their space for news by 35 per cent and advertising space was being trimmed by 25 per cent. The Jackson County Floridian has announced that it will suspend publication of Monday afternoon editions after Sept. 1 because of the newsprint shortage.

The Bellefontaine Examiner in Ohio did not publish last Saturday, missing its first issue in 82 years. Publisher T. E. Hubbard said the paper later obtained an interim stock of newsprint.

Arizona's two largest newspapers, the Arizona Republic and The Phoenix Gazette, have dropped their first editions because of the shortage. In Wisconsin, the Wausau Record-Herald eliminated its editorial page and most comics

Saturday, saying they may have to be cut out on some future days. Other newspapers said they had not encountered much difficulty because they had stocked extra newsprint and were relying on more than one supplier.

Mysterious Fallout Of Soot Blankets Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — The lady of the house came to the door with black grime all over her knees, feet and hands.

"Would I talk about the fallout? Just look at me," she said.

Mrs. Gordon Claus was one of many victims of a mysterious fallout of soot that blanketed part of Windsor, Ont., and several suburbs of neighboring Detroit Sunday night and returned again Monday evening.

She and thousands of others will have to repeat Monday's housecleaning process today.

Windsor police said the soot's return was "terrible—just awful" and spread over the city's west side, closest to Detroit.

Police said the fallout was not as heavy as Sunday's but seemed worse because of temperatures in the 90s and high humidity. A police spokesman said the fallout was gritty and many persons found it difficult to breathe.

Two Windsor constables complained of nausea and breathing problems and were treated and released from a hospital. Residents with respiratory diseases were urged to stay indoors as much as possible.

Environmental officials have not yet pinpointed the source of the oily grime. But Edmund Moranty, enforcement supervisor for the Wayne County Department of Health's air pollution control division, said the soot was from oil-fired equipment. Two power plants in the area use oil-fired equipment.

"The situation is pathetic in some of these homes," said David Edwards, engineer for the air management branch of Windsor's Department of the Environment. "They woke up and their skin was black, their clothes were black, their drapes, their furniture."

Mrs. Claus' troubles were typical of those whose homes, cars, boats and swimming pools were drenched with soot.

"I've been cleaning ever since I got up this morning," Mrs. Claus said Monday as she slumped into a chair.

"I've been here two years, and this is the first time something like this has ever happened. Before, you could just wipe it off. This stuff just makes an oily smear."

"I've had to change all the bedclothes. Even my ironing-board cover was filthy."

Mrs. Claus said that, when she awoke Monday morning, there was a light film of grime on her arm and her shoulder, and her husband left tracks on the kitchen linoleum when he walked across it.

The soot was so thick in her garden "you could have written on my tomatoes," Mrs. Claus said.

Large-Scale Appearance Of Radial Tires

DETROIT (AP) — Steel-belted, radial-ply tires will make their first large-scale appearance on the new American car lines this year.

Long dominant on European highways, the radials were virtually unknown to the average U.S. car buyer until just a few years ago. But a major effort by the top domestic auto and tire firms has made their widespread inclusion possible on 1974 model cars.

The radials have been widely touted as long-wearing, virtually puncture-proof and capable of providing a much smoother ride.

And the federal Environmental Protection Agency says they also will mean a gasoline savings of about 10 per cent.

The automakers are expecting Americans to jump at radial options and at models with radial tires as standard equipment when the 1974 cars go on sale next month.

Earlier Return To Washington

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has switched plans and decided to return to Washington before Labor Day.

When the President arrived at his oceanside estate a week ago, aides said he was expected to remain at least through the Sept. 3 holiday.

But deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren said Monday that Nixon would return to Washington toward the end of the week and would spend the holiday weekend at Camp David in the Maryland mountains.

The President was expected to confer today with Secretary of State-designate Henry A. Kissinger, who returned to the Western White House Monday after an overnight trip to Washington for meetings with State Department officials.

Wife Of Forger Has No Regrets

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A million dollars made and lost. A husband deported to France and imprisoned. Going from Park Avenue to a studio apartment in New Jersey. Flat broke with three children to support.

"If you're talking about regrets, I have none," petite Anne-Marie Stein, wife of art forger David Stein, announces firmly. "I would do it all over again."

It was in 1964 that the 20-year-old university student, vacationing in Cannes, met Stein and gave up her law studies to follow the art dealer through Europe and eventually to the United States.

It wasn't until she had known him about four months that she discovered that many of the Picassos, Chagalls, Braques, El Grecos, Dufys and other "masterpieces" he sold to galleries and collectors were fakes he produced to order.

"He had been doing the forgeries while I was out shopping or sightseeing," recalls Mrs. Stein, who has recounted her story in a book, "Three Picassos Before Breakfast: Memoirs of an Art Forger's Wife." She had been sick for a few days and couldn't leave their hotel room.

"This time he was caught because there was no way he could paint without my seeing him," she explains, her English perfect but heavily French-accented. "He started laying out papers and colors and finally showed me a small photo of a Von Dongen and asked if I thought it would look better in watercolor or pastels."

"This is when it hit me like a brick," she continues. "I didn't recover my speech for a long time. But David is the kind of person who has a very strong will, is very stubborn. Nothing

ANNE-MARIE STEIN

I could have said could have dissuaded him."

She admits it wasn't too hard to accept the knowledge, since she had already had what she considers shocking experiences with the ethics of dealers and artists themselves who, she says, for a price would authenticate a painting even if they knew it wasn't theirs. "If he had been robbing banks at gunpoint that wasn't for me," she declares. "But the people we were dealing with were supposed to be knowledgeable and if they bought those paintings they got what was coming to them. And I was very young, it was a life of adventure with glamorous aspects, a lot of travel. But mainly, I wanted to stay with David. It was as simple as that."

She even started helping him, using tea to age the papers on which he painted and shredding the works that were "not good enough quality." Stein often painted at night in hotel rooms, since carrying such paintings would have been dangerous when crossing borders, Mrs. Stein explains. He once produced 40 Cocteau drawings in less than four hours.

"He never copied from existing paintings," she points out. "It would be too easily detectable and just not fun. He did his own compositions in the style of the painter. It's a little bit like method acting."

When Mrs. Stein became pregnant they decided to go legitimate and in 1965 came to New York, where Stein opened an art gallery. But their high-style living, including a chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce, brought money problems.

"One way to get out of financial difficulties is to paint a fake, and the whole cycle started all over," the artist's wife relates.

What became of something like a million dollars they had made?

Mrs. Stein, a deeply-tanned brunette, holds up empty hands. "It beats me," she says with an eloquent Gallic shrug. "David was a fantastic promoter and could make a lot of money but never knew how to keep it. He invested money in setting up a business in Palm Beach and it all went down the drain after his discovery."

That "discovery" came after Stein became a drug addict and to obtain money started turning out Chagalls at a phenomenal rate. Chagall himself denounced them as forgeries, and Stein spent time in prison both here and in France, where he is now living and painting "in the style of..." with his own signature.

Mrs. Stein lives with their three children in a small apartment in which hangs just one of her husband's paintings, a self-portrait in the style of Chagall. "I had to sell the rest, but I didn't think there would be much demand for this one so I kept it."

"I'm trying to get a visa for David to get over here. As to the future," — another shrug — "qui vivra verra" — who lives will see," she translates.

He Won't Leave Wife Until She Has New Prospect

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are contemplating a divorce. She is 40, I am 38, and we have five children. I am in love with another woman and want to marry her, but I will not leave my wife until I am sure she has somebody else. She knows all about my situation.

Even tho I don't love my wife, I want her to be happy. She is blond, attractive, 5 foot 8 and weighs 115. Money is not a problem. I intend to support her and the children, but I'd feel much better if she had a man. We've been the route of ministers and family counselors, and now I think a professional matchmaker or computer-dating service is in order. Who locates prospective husbands for single women?
NO NAME IN N. Y.

DEAR NO NAME: I don't. Your concern for your wife is commendable, but have you discussed this with her? Is she interested in another husband? If she is, does she want to go the computer or matchmaking route? I'd like to hear her side of it. She may not be programmed to follow your plan.

DEAR ABBY: You said, "Freud found sex in the outhouse, and brought it into the living room."

I always wondered what ailed Dr. Freud. Now, I know. Imagine, anyone looking for sex in an outhouse!
JAMES E. C.

DEAR JAMES: I didn't say Freud LOOKED for it there. I said that's where he FOUND it.

DEAR ABBY: Cold chills ran up my spine when I read the letter from that heartbroken mother, whose daughter, a nurse, was marrying an amputee. [He lost both his legs when he stepped on a mine in Vietnam.] The mother said her daughter was beautiful, and could just as easily have married "a whole man."

I am sure many people think my husband could have married "a whole woman" instead of me. You see, when I was 3, my brother shot me thru the head with a .22 rifle. Thank God I am still alive, altho my left side is paralyzed.

I can walk, and do anything any other woman can do. But best of all, a wonderful man thought I was "whole" enough to marry. He is handsome, kind, and faithful, and he treats me like a queen. We've been happily married for 10 years. I still can't believe my good luck. Sign me,
FREDDY'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It's more than "luck." You must have a lot going for you. Congratulations.

FAMILY REUNION

The descendants of the late John and Mary Warren will hold their second family reunion Sunday, Sept. 2, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Warren, Rt. 3, Snow Hill.

Dinner will be served picnic style and all descendants are asked to bring baskets.

This fall the reversible look in coats comes on strong. The reversibles move from patterned plaid to solid with the inner side extending as a face-framing collar or cuffs and/or hemline border.

Silver jewelry with touches of gold is one look for the fall.

Woman Counts Problem Of Growth

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Judith Senderowitz says people don't like to hassle with numbers.

The first woman president of Zero Population Growth says that's one of her organization's problems in educating people about uncontrolled growth.

"Despite reports in the press, we haven't reached the ZPG rate in this country. We're 100 million people away from it. But it's tough to get people to listen to the mathematics of the situation. They don't see that there will soon be half again as many people as there are now," Miss Senderowitz said.

The attractive young woman with reddish-blond hair says being national president of a group like ZPG gives her a different perspective from those grass roots days when she helped found the New York chapter.

"I suppose I was typical of a lot of people when I was in graduate school at Columbia. I had been concerned about population growth for a long time. There didn't seem to be any ready access to solving growth problems. One day I answered a magazine ad offering membership in a group to help combat mushrooming population.

"I went to a meeting, thinking I'd be overwhelmed by screaming, concerned people. There were six people at the meeting, and I brought two of them. ZPG people are not joiners; they are very low key. But they are concerned and they have found a viable outlet for their concern in ZPG," she said.

A biochemistry major at Mt. Holyoke, Miss Senderowitz switched to social history at Columbia. Now the ZPG national leader is involved in social problems of today.

"Now there's a greater range of strategy," she said. "I can no longer think of New York's urban-oriented problems alone. I must consider problems of Colorado and Florida and the whole country."

Nationally, ZPG is becoming involved in a wider, less parochial range of issues.

"Our biggest job is to educate people as to ways their

Miss Senderowitz says people are thinking in terms of fewer children, but not in terms of controlled growth of cities, or in terms of conservation of resources.

Americans, she added, are fairly bad at planning ahead.

"Population growth catches up with you pretty fast. People still feel pressured to have children. At least 95 per cent of all women in this country still get married. Then they are subtly pressured to have children; otherwise, they're less than a person. It's hard to explain that there's nothing wrong with the plumbing but you just don't want to have children."

In her travel across the country, Miss Senderowitz often takes a few days off from speaking engagements for camping and enjoying the out-of-doors. She says in the cities she visits, there is more and more of the same — each place begins to look alike.

"Some of our critics say we're trying to cut down on the freedom of the individual. That's not true. We want to maintain the freedoms we already have in this country. We want to extend freedoms we have never had. If anything, we want to maintain the freedom of choice and of lifestyle for people of the future," she added.

ZPG says it is too late to study the population explosion. The facts exist.

"But drawing on our research, we can work to save the good life in this country," Miss Senderowitz said.

Women's Lib French Style

PARIS, France (WNS) — Edgar Faure, president of the French National Assembly and possible next president of France, wonders if the woman of the future will be too busy on her own to be First Lady to her political husband. His wife, Lucie Faure, is already mayor of Port Lesnay, editor of the magazine La Nef, member of the program committee of the nation's TV and radio networks, judge of an important book-prize committee, and best-selling novelist and film writer. Mrs. Faure's attitude: "I believe that the fight for women' liberation from man is in vain. We have not yet found a way to perpetuate the race with a male. However, I deny the superiority of man over woman." At the moment she still finds time to take care of her husband's official residence, the Hotel de Lassay, and all the receptions and dinners that he holds there. What piques her: "There are still only 8 women among the 479 males elected to the National Assembly, and only 2 women among the 38 top appointees in the Pompidou government. The all-male Academie Francaise, which stands for the culture of France, is a group of misogynists with no intention of voting a woman to membership."

Another Bureaucrat Goes Wild

A Washington bureaucrat is getting far afield in proposing outright ban of cigarettes.

The chairman of the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Richard Simpson, has said such an attempt will be made.

This move should be fought with everything that can be brought to bear. Banning of cigarettes is another infringement on the rights of individuals.

If it can be proven that cigarettes have a long term adverse effect on the individual, then the government should make those facts known. It should be up to the individual, however, to decide whether he wants to take any risks for whatever pleasure cigarettes give him.

There are risks in driving an automobile, but no one proposes banning them because of the danger of having a wreck. For that matter, people are killed mountain climbing, skiing, playing football and in a great variety of other activities. The participants know the risks involved, but they are prepared to take their chances because they derive satisfaction from these activities.

There is always somebody in government ready to tell the public what it can and cannot do. If we value our freedoms, however, we should not let them get away with it.

Regional Office Would Be Welcome Addition

We are hopeful that the regional office of the Department of Human Resources will be established in Greenville.

Department officials are considering sites for the office, one of four in the state now and Secretary David Flaherty and other officials visited Greenville Monday.

We think Greenville has much to offer is a site for the regional office. There are a number of health related facilities here and certainly many of the programs at ECU could be helpful to the regional office staff.

The office staff of around 100 would be welcome in Greenville.

Hearings Fail Draw A Crowd

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — When State Rep. Ernest B. Messer of Canton called for a meeting of his subcommittee on campaign contributions, spending and reporting recently, he expected to get a pretty good response.

At the 1:30 p.m. meeting time, Messer and committee member, A Hartwell Campbell of Wilson were the only members present.

After a 20-minute wait, Messer apologized to the assemblage of newsmen and interested onlookers, then announced the hearings would proceed.

Perhaps, some of those present felt, the televised Watergate hearings had jaded some North Carolinians to the question of campaign finances.

Bills Expected

Purpose of the Messer committee is to work-up bills to be presented in the General Assembly governing campaign funds, reporting procedures and possible limits.

Messer said he wrote all Republican and Democratic party chairmen in the state's 100 counties, a number of elections officials and others asking their views.

"I received a few replies... not many," he said candidly. "Most didn't reply at all."

But Rep. Messer has saved back a little bombshell for the committee sometime in September which will guarantee some interest in the subject.

Some of those invited for the two-day session to be held Sept. 12 and 13 are persons who have faced the problems of raising money and controlling campaign expenditures by their various committee workers.

These include four ex-governors: Luther Hodges, Terry Sanford, Dan K. Moore and Bob Scott. Messer said they indicated they will attend, and former Gov. Moore sent a lengthy letter to Messer insisting that not only stringent rules and limits on contributions and spending are needed, but a report of advertising spending should be made both by the candidate's camp and the advertising media so the two figures could be compared.

No Appointment

Gov. Jim Holshouser was invited, but Messer said rather wistfully that he had tried for two days to get an appointment with the governor and couldn't. "But we are inviting him or his representative," he said.

Members of the Council of State and former defeated candidates for governor including Hugh Morton, Skipper Bowles, Pat Taylor and Jim Gardner are also on the schedule.

Then, Messer said, to guarantee a proper balance, he has invited both GOP Chief Frank Rouse, object of an ouster move from the governor's office, and the governor's choice to succeed Rouse — Thomas L. Bennett.

Messer said there has been some sentiment expressed that if rigid reporting rules are implemented there would be little need for limiting amounts of contributions or expenditures. But the committee is to tackle that problem, he said.

Basically, Messer said the questions are what contributions should be reported, what expenditures should be reported, what should penalties be for not reporting or for issuing a false report and should there be a dollar limitation on the amount which can be spent in a campaign.

Basically, the committee agreed (Rep. Lane Brown came in later to join the talk), the legislation should cover all state officers down through members of the General Assembly, any federal officials where state laws don't conflict with federal, and the model laws should be written so that local governments can adopt them to cover city and county officials if they wish.

No U.S. Law?

Alex K. Brock, director of the State Board of Elections, told the committee that they need not be too concerned with what might come in the form of federal legislation. His study indicates it "will never see the light of day," and then went on to say there was so much confusion in present state law regarding who must file and whether the report must be filed in Raleigh or in local Superior Courts that not even the Secretary of State and the Attorney General can agree.

"If we can't get three fellows in Raleigh to agree, how can we expect a candidate operating out of the den of his home to know what to do?" Brock wondered.

He recommended ditching all existing laws and coming up with a totally new, simple act providing a central filing place and central clearinghouse for rules.

The Advice Of Wilbur Mills

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—At a time when his own economic experts are worried sick about runaway inflation, President Nixon has received contrary advice from Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas: consider business tax incentives to prevent a severe recession.

Mills, chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee, offered the advice in a secret meeting at the White House with the President some two weeks ago. The only other man in the room to hear Mills' private views was George Shultz, Secretary of the Treasury and Mr. Nixon's economic czar.

Dangerous though the inflationary pressures are, Mills informed the President, he was beginning to feel that the recessionary dangers are worse—particularly a possible sharp rise in unemployment.

Mills next recommended to Mr. Nixon his tentative scheme for a fast tax-write-off to divert scarce materials into new plant and equipment, a means of both fighting inflation and cushioning a recession.

Although such a plan has been contemplated by Mills all summer (and was reported by us six weeks ago), this was the first time he had presented it to the President.

Mr. Nixon was non-committal, asking Shultz to look into it. In fact, no serious consideration has yet taken place at the Treasury. What's more, Mr. Nixon's advisers still believe that the inflation crisis is so severe that Mills would be better off looking into a tax increase.

A footnote: Having finally taken his doctors' advice for a complete rest, Mills is now in excellent physical condition. The aching back which led Mills to announce last month that he might retire from Congress is causing him no trouble today.

Although Republican national chairman George Bush is publicly saying nothing, his deep concern is revealed by the fact that he has on his desk a copy of the complete text of Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson's Aug. 8 speech promising to take the Justice Department out of politics.

Moreover, Bush's worry mirrors the concern of other top party leaders—and at least one of President Nixon's senior aides—that, in taking his department out of politics, Richardson may be closing political doors the party needs opened.

Bush tells intimates he is in full accord with Richardson's determination to eliminate the disastrous political overlap with law enforcement procedure that have resulted in indictments of two former Nixon cabinet members.

But how far does Richardson really intend to go in his new order that every department must report any conversation or contact with outside parties, including members of Congress?

Similarly, does Richardson's edict barring announcements by Congressmen of lucrative Justice Department grants to their hometowns mean that House members and Senators also will be denied the right to propose U.S. attorneys and federal judges for presidential nomination?

If Richardson does not show up for the Sept. 10 meeting of the Republican National Committee, it will be regarded by Bush and other party leaders as a sign that the Attorney General means business about leaving politics to the politicians. The White House is making efforts to see that cabinet members, including Richardson, attend the meeting.

The fact Richardson made his speech during the congressional recess raised suspicions of party leaders, particularly in the Midwest and South. They believe the Attorney General waited for Republican Congressmen to leave town before exploding his bombshell.

Unambitious Mondale

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, who like many leading Democrats is privately concerned about the lack of a viable alternative to Sen. Edward M. Kennedy for the 1976 presidential nomination, is grumbling that his junior colleague from Minnesota, Sen. Walter Mondale, is too shy in putting himself forward nationally.

Humphrey's irritation came out during a private meeting in Louisville, Ky., with fried chicken magnate John Y. Brown, Jr., of Louisville during the recent national convention of the Young Democrats. Sitting in was Brown's good friend, John J. Hooker of Nashville, two-time candidate for governor of Tennessee and a

OPPORTUNITIES FOR SERVICE

One day in 1782 Robert Raikes went into the slum section of his native city, Gloucester, England, in search of a gardener. The man he wished to see was not at home, and Raikes noticed that the street was full of children who seemed to be constantly involved in quarrels and bickering.

Raikes determined to help the children in some way, and the result was the modern Sunday school. He hired competent teachers and established the first school in the gardener's home. Under his constant encouragement the movement spread, and by the end of his life three hundred thousand boys and girls were attending Sunday school in England.

Raikes found his greatest opportunity for service right in his home town and in the least desirable section of that town. There are plenty of places to serve if we will keep our eyes open, and often they are nearer at hand than we think.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT!

Nixon Depended, And—

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

President Nixon's bare-backed bout with the bronco press has to be ranked among the finest sports spectaculars of the year. Last week's event was in the best bull-throwing tradition of the rodeo. Everybody got bruised but no one got badly hurt. The President won on points, but the press scored impressively, too.

The most revealing moment of the afternoon came when Nixon was trying to explain why he himself didn't communicate with government prosecutors last spring. He said that he assumed that John Dean, and later John Ehrlichman, were doing the communicating for him. Then he said:

"The President doesn't pick up the phone and call the attorney general every time something comes up on a matter. He depends on his counsel, or whoever he's given the job to."

This was the quintessential Nixon speaking: "The President doesn't pick up the phone." The sentence came out like a hiccup. It was an afterthought, a further comment that went beyond the answer he had given already; he didn't need to say it — but in that unexpected moment of truth we learned something about Nixon and why he is in the fix he is in.

It simply is not a part of Nixon's nature to "pick up the phone." Suppose, to be supposing, that Nixon's nature were otherwise. Suppose that in June of 1972, after the implications of the Watergate break-in began to emerge, the President had seized a telephone and given some orders to a White House operator:

"Get me John Mitchell on the line. Then get me Gordon Liddy. What's Job Magruder's number?" In ten seconds — the White House operators are the most efficient professionals in the world — they have John Mitchell waiting on hold. It is 10 o'clock on the morning of

Other Editors Say Credibility Gap

(The Greensboro News)

A healthy dose of skepticism is always in order when reading public-opinion polls, but the surveys made by George Gallup and Louis Harris following President Nixon's Watergate speech deserve careful study. They make plain the depth of the problems Mr. Nixon faces in regaining public confidence so that he can avoid presiding over a three-year lame-duck administration.

The people do not want Mr. Nixon impeached, and they do not want him to resign even if he is proved to have played a role in Watergate or the cover-up; both polls leave no doubt about that. But the polls also show that a decisive majority of Americans simply do not believe Mr. Nixon when he says that he was unaware of what his principal aides were doing in his name.

To govern the nation, a President must have the highest possible degree of public trust; without it, he cannot gain support for his programs and the business of the nation goes virtually unattended. That, the polls emphasize, is precisely where Mr. Nixon finds himself now. He is, as he says, "the President," but his loyal constituency is now so small—it runs a fairly steady 25 per cent in the polls—that his administration is floundering. As David Broder points out, such vital programs as his trade-reform bill are languishing in congressional committees because Mr. Nixon no longer has the political muscle to force Congress to act on his proposals.

If Mr. Nixon is to change this, he has only one real choice: to be utterly candid with the public about Watergate. He avoided candor in his recent speech—or certainly he persuaded only a small minority of Americans that he was being candid. So long as he refuses to discuss Watergate in chapter and verse, public skepticism will remain high.

Obviously there are risks in candor: the full story of Watergate, once disclosed, might lead to impeachment proceedings against the President or a further decline in public confidence. Yet if Mr. Nixon is as concerned as he says he is with getting on with "the urgent business of our nation," he must take those risks. For it is abundantly clear that little if any business, urgent or otherwise, can be carried out by a President whom the public suspects of misbehavior.

If Mr. Nixon reads the polls closely, he will realize that the public is more interested in knowing the truth than in removing him from office. He ought at least to consider the possibility that by clearing the air, even if in doing so he discloses questionable actions of his own, he may make it possible to resume governing the nation with the vigor he displayed in his first term.

Overseas Acquisition Goes On

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Despite uncertainties in international economics, a number of U.S. firms are going ahead with overseas acquisition plans, a Midwest research organization reports.

Midwest Research Institute of Kansas City surveyed 1,300 firms and about 20 per cent responded. Results were reported in a study entitled "A Profile of U.S. Corporate Growth: 1973."

The survey found about 75 per cent of the responding firms planned to make acquisitions this year. About one-third of those involved foreign acquisitions, despite uncertainties over exchange rates, the balance of payment situation and the use of the dollar as principal means for financing foreign trade.

About 80 per cent of the firms that already have foreign operations indicated they planned to expand them this year.

Gary R. Nuss, who directed the MRI study, said the sampling included public and private firms, those with domestic, international and multinational operations, and both manufacturing and nonmanufacturing concerns. The study was sponsored by Corporate Diversification, Ltd., New York, through a grant to MRI, a private, nonprofit organization.

Firms surveyed showed little concern about effects of the first re-evaluation of the dollar. Only 14 per cent said re-evaluation would be unfavorable. Most felt it would have no effect and about one-third said it would be favorable.

The survey was taken prior to the 1973 devaluation, but Nuss said the 1973 devaluation may not concern corporate planners any more than the earlier changes.

The survey showed firms put little short-run emphasis on President Nixon's foreign policy moves toward China and Russia. But about half the respondents, although seeing no short-run gains because of the detente with the Soviet Union, saw major opportunities opening by 1975.

Nuss said only a minute number of firms regard the expanded European Common Market as a threat to their own growth. He said changes in the Common Market were overwhelmingly viewed as favorable.

The survey showed 95 per cent of the firms expected at least 15 per cent rate of return on overseas investments, with domestic rates of return several percentage points lower. Nearly a third demanded a 25 per cent return overseas and 57 per cent wanted at least 20 per cent.

Nuss said if the 1973 devaluation has an effect on corporate planning, it may be in this area, with planners stiffening their position on expected returns from established overseas operations.

He said larger firms were skewed toward the upper ranges on expected return, smaller firms toward the lower end.

The 1973 survey again showed Western Europe to be the overseas area believed to have the greatest potential for American firms. But new emphasis was put on Latin America, especially Brazil, and the Far East. Although the African continent as a whole was not viewed favorably, South Africa was singled out by 4 per cent of the respondents as a favorable area of investment.

Nuss said businessmen think of markets as people, not governments, and the people of Russia and China have much less wherewithal for the purchase of American goods than Western Europe and other strongholds of U.S. business activity. The MRI report said, "It is understandable, therefore, why the respondents reflect a relatively lackluster interest in the business significance of the President's political coups."

The survey showed 90 per cent of the respondents expect foreign firms to keep increasing their investment in the United States, but two-thirds considered it of little consequence to their own operations.

Nuss said it appears larger firms, with revenues greater than $1.2 billion, are more likely to see good than bad in foreign operations coming to the United States.

"It can be expected that the number of foreign take-overs will grow dramatically in 1973 and beyond," the report said. It was felt some countries, especially Japan and West Germany, have established such effective marketing beachheads that assembly operations in the United States will make sense, especially in view of the second dollar devaluation.

We can always look back and remember when —

Eggs were 25 cents a dozen, milk five cents a bottle, and three pounds of hamburger cost a quarter.

You could have more fun in the back seat of a sports car than going to a drive-in movie.

The bars gave away free shrimp on Friday night, and salted it so heavily the customers drank twice as much beer.

The rich used dental floss after a meal, and the poor used toothpicks, kept in a glass or dish on the dinner table.

You and your best girl were the heroes of the neighborhood if you won a local dance marathon contest.

Few children reached voting age without having their tonsils or adenoids removed.

You could make the welkin ring until three o'clock in the morning, and still feel fresh as a daisy when you went to work.

Practically every man carried a silver dollar, a rabbit's foot or some other kind of good-luck charm in his pocket.

It didn't startle children to see their parents kneel and say a silent prayer before going to bed. After all, the kids did, too.

The average man had only two pairs of shoes and no more than three neckties in his wardrobe.

A small town was one in which you could remember the times during the year you stayed up after midnight.

Parents knew more than their children about sex.

Those were the days — remember?

Special Nat'l Guard Maneuvers May Bring Changes

By GEORGE STEIN
Associated Press Writer
FT. STEWART, Ga. (AP) — The National Guard 30th Infantry Division (Mechanized) has had many extra weekend drills over the past 18 months, but military spokesmen say the special maneuvers they were on the past week may mean profound changes for the military.

The special maneuvers seek to give military planners realistic estimates on the time needed to ready a National Guard division for combat after mobilization.

New and better equipment has made the 30th the best equipped National Guard division in the country, according to Bill Smothers, the Pentagon official who supervised the $38 million funding for new and rebuilt equipment going to the 30th over the past two years.

But the test, officially called Office of the Secretary of Defense Test 2 (OSD Test 2), has had other effects.

Preparation for the exercise this summer has meant unusually long hours and many weekends away from home for many of the 15,000 in the 30th.

Robert L. McCrady, adjutant general of the South Carolina National Guard said, "Initially, there was a substantial amount of apprehension and opposition to the extra time required of the guardsman."

"Too often, he has been called on to serve as many as three, and sometimes, four weekends a month, and this begins to encroach on his personal life," said McCrady, who added that the usual amount of time a guardsman spent on duty was one weekend a month.

He said, however, that he was optimistic about the feelings of the enlisted men, after talking to some at Ft. Stewart. Spokesmen for the division said that many weekends were spent out in the woods, rather than back at a National Guard station where weekends often run on eight-hour days.

Success for the test, which seeks to find out if the time needed to ready a National Guard division for combat can be cut from ten weeks to six, means that active Army strength levels could be safely reduced, a military spokesman said.

"If that can be done, then the savings in terms of reduced defense spending may be counted in billions of dollars," said Smothers.

"It is far less expensive," he said, "to maintain a ready reserve than it is to maintain a

Bury Truckloads Of Marijuana

ROCKY MOUNT, Va. (AP) — Police in Franklin County, Va., cut three truckloads of marijuana from fields and buried the 6,950 pounds of weed at the county landfill.

Later Monday, the 23-year-old attendant at the landfill was charged with possessing marijuana with intent to distribute it.

Police said Gary Hardy Brown of Roanoke is accused of digging up 200 pounds of the weed with earthmoving equipment, hauling the plants several hundred yards and re-burying them.

He faces a court hearing Sept. 21.

Brown flatly informed Humphrey he intended to run for the Senate from Kentucky next year. Then, turning to national politics, he informed Humphrey that Ted Kennedy really seemed to be gearing up for the 1976 campaign. Why, asked Brown, didn't Humphrey endorse Kennedy?

No, Humphrey replied, he was committed to Mondale. But he then began to complain that Mondale, endorsed for President by Humphrey on election night 1972, was not getting around the country to build himself up. "I'm afraid the boy just doesn't have much ambition," snapped Humphrey.

fulltime standing army."

Maj. Gen. Dan K. Edwards, the division's commanding general, says he thinks that if the test works out, the intensified training program tried for the past 18 months on the 30th with troops from Georgia and the Carolinas, would be extended to other National Guard units.

He also said that a closer relationship between the active Army and the reserves should come if the test were successful.

Edwards, a former assistant secretary of defense during the Korean War, said that in his opinion, if the tests showed that the role of the National Guard could not be significantly increased, "there will be no political decision to increase the size of the active

No Injuries In Auto Mishap

Judy Woolard Hardee, 24, of Route 3, Greenville was charged with failing to reduce her speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of an 8:30 a.m. traffic collision here yesterday on Tenth Street 30 feet East of the Cedar Lane intersection.

Police reported the Hardee car collided with a vehicle operated by Rufus Nyman Elks, 69, of Simpson causing an estimated $25 damage to the Elks car and about $300 damage to the Hardee auto.

No injuries were reported.

Kilpatrick Col.

But history, they say, is only biography; events are no more than the lengthened shadow of men who make them. Because Nixon was Nixon, he could not "pick up the phone." He is a creature of self-discipline and established order. He goes through channels. So he rings the buzzer for Bob Haldeman.

"Bob," he says, "tell John Dean to look into this Watergate business." And he turns to his morning appointments.

I have a hunch that such scenario actually was played in the White House fourteen months ago. To an extraordinary degree, Nixon "depends on his counsel, or whoever he's given the job to."

Such an attitude is at once the genius and the curse of the top executive. Duties have to be delegated — of course they must be delegated! — but the rules of delegation can be obeyed to excess. Nixon depended, and he got: Watergate.

Senator Howard Baker has been digging at this aspect of the Watergate affair from the very beginning of the hearings. He has wondered aloud about the "mystique" of the presidency. Is there something in the nature of the office itself, he has asked, that drops a glass wall between a President and the outside world? Is there a sense of royal presence that stays the eager hand, or stifles the warning word?

Lyndon Johnson suffered no such inhibitions. He never hesitated, when the spirit moved him, to "pick up the phone." Harry Truman, to judge from his daughter's biography, could cut through protocol with a single salty phrase. Nixon is born of a different breed. He is a private person, reserved, restrained, tightly controlled. In their place, and to a reasonable degree, these are great qualities in a President. Nixon has earned respect for them.

Yet all the same, it might do this particular President a world of good — it might win him, not respect, but understanding and even affection instead — if more often he would break out of the shell, lose his temper, shove old Ron around, sweat, swear, weep and belly-laugh like other men — and pick up the phone himself.

forces."

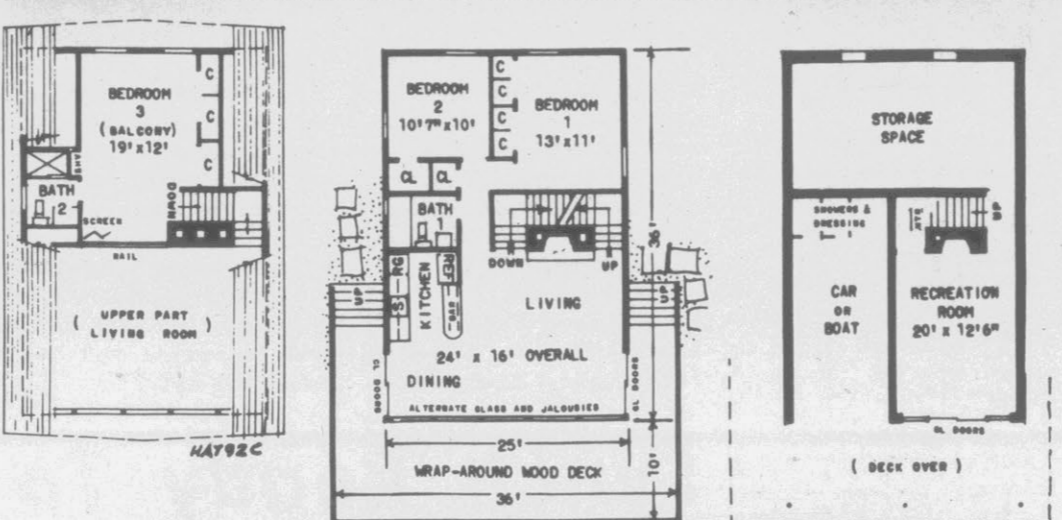

With the test results going to Washington Dec. 1, the final assessment of their significance will not be known for months.

OSD Test 2 is part of a series intended to see how the National Guard can have a larger role within the nation's military. Three years ago, an increased role for the National Guard and the reserves was announced by former Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird. He said then that the first and primary mobilizations in future emergency buildups would be with the National Guard and the reserves, rather than the draft.

With both sides having helicopter and tactical air support, the test was in the framework of conventional warfare, although neither atomic, chemical or biological weapons were simulated in the test despite the capability for these the division has, according to Edwards.

Haldeman Is Named One Of Defendants In Suit

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Former White House chief of staff H.R. Haldeman and two other White House aides were added Monday to the list of defendants in a federal suit charging that persons were unlawfully excluded from Billy Graham Day ceremonies in Charlotte in 1971.

U.S. District Judge James B. McMillan ruled Monday that Haldeman, White House advance man William Henkel, and former White House advance man Ronald H. Walker could be named as defendants in the $840,000 suit.

Fourteen dissenters sued the Charlotte police, the city of Charlotte and the U.S. Secret Service, claiming they were illegally excluded from the rally at the Charlotte Coliseum Oct. 15, 1971. President Nixon attended the event, which honored Charlotte-born evangelist Billy Graham.

McMillan ruled on July 31 that the rights of the plaintiffs had been violated in their exclusion from the event. He enjoined the Secret Service from barring dissenters from presidential appearances anywhere in the United States, unless the President's personal safety is at stake.

In the wake of the ruling attorneys sought to bring the White House officials into the suit. They based their requests on testimony given by Haldeman to the Senate Watergate committee Aug. 1.

Haldeman testified that he had approved a memorandum that outlined a plan to exclude dissenters from Graham Day by using local police and Veterans of Foreign Wars marshalls. The plan was written by Walker after Henkel had relayed reports that 100 to 200 demonstrators were expected at Graham Day.

Monday McMillan ruled on motions by attorneys for the dissenters and for the Charlotte police department and city of Charlotte asking that the three White House aides be added to the suit. Ernie Helms, a Charlotte salesman and VFW marshal at the event was also added as a defendant.

The Charlotte police motion charged that "deceptive practices and conspiracy" were used to make the department look responsible for security measures at the rally. The motion called the security plan "an exclusionary practice in which the Charlotte police actually had no role." The Secret Service was officially in charge of the security measures.

McMillan also ruled that the head of the Secret Service will not have to appear in Charlotte to testify in the case. In ruling against the request made by George S. Daly, attorney for the plaintiffs, McMillan allowed James Dowley, the Secret Service chief, to testify in Washington D.C. instead.

Asst. U.S. Dist. Atty. David B. Sentelle argued that the government could not do business if federal agency heads named in law suits as defendants had to testify where the suits were filed.

Gunman Wounds AIM Chairman

By TERRY WOSTER
Associated Press Writer
WINNER, S.D. (AP) — Carter Camp, the president of the American Indian Movement, has been arrested and charged with critically wounding fellow AIM leader Clyde Bellecourt.

An FBI spokesman in Minneapolis, Minn., said Camp was arrested by Cherry County Sheriff James Ward in Valentine, Neb., late Monday night. The spokesman said Camp surrendered without incident.

U.S. Atty. William Clayton of Sioux Falls, S.D., said Camp was charged with assault with a deadly weapon on an Indian reservation.

The same charge was filed against Camp's brother, Craig, and Leroy Cassodes. They were being sought.

AIM leaders talked late into the night on Monday, planning strategy to save their organization as Bellecourt remained in critical condition at a Winner hospital.

Bellecourt, a Minneapolis resident, was shot in the abdomen Monday morning in the yard of a home north of Rosebud, S.D. He underwent almost four hours of surgery.

Bellecourt was elected in 1968 as the first chairman of AIM, which spearheaded a 71-day occupation of the hamlet of Wounded Knee on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation earlier this year.

Camp had been free on $25,000 bond in connection with charges against him stemming from the Wounded Knee occupation.

A spokesman said the organization's leadership would offer a statement today on the shooting incident.

AIM organized an around-the-clock guard of the hospital. Two unarmed guards were stationed outside Clyde Bellecourt's door and another was stationed outside the window of the patient's room.

The 'Worry Clinic' Tips On Good Study Habits

Thelma remained an honor student in college by following the basic study rules outlined below. It isn't the size of your high school but your own study habits, coupled with an alert mind, that produce "A" grades in college. So "jump the gun."

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE Y-502: Thelma D., aged 18, is soon to enter college. "Dr. Crane," she began, "I was on the honor roll in high school. "But there were only 89 in my graduating class, so I may feel lost when I enter our state university with its 20,000 students. "How can I be sure to make high grades when I get there? "For I understand that many fairly good students in high school, are soon on probation at college!"

How Make "A"
Diligent students even in small high schools can still make "A" grades at the big university. But in very small high schools, if pupils have a very high I. Q., they can often coast along with poor study methods and still surpass many of their less alert classmates. On the college campus, however, the duller students have already been weeded out. All the usual university

Preemption is a two-edged weapon. Generally, it consumes much of the opponents' bidding space making it difficult for them to bid accurately to the proper contract. But there are times when it drives the opponents to a successful contract that they might not reach under their own power. This deal from the 1973 world championship qualifying round encounter between the U. S. team and the Aces illustrates this point.

Six diamonds is a good contract for North-South, but it is unlikely that it would be reached in a normal auction as North-South have a combined high-card count of only 27 points. The slam is makeable because the two hands fit perfectly and every ten, nine and eight is a working card.

students have a high I. Q. so the race for top grades is much keener than in high school.

Those who coasted through high school on their superior intelligence, even though lacking in good study habits, then fall far behind in the very first weeks at college.

Since they are in such fast company, mentally, they can rarely catch up, which is why many alert high schoolers get on probation in their freshman college year!

Go to your local or college library and read Chapter 2 in my college textbook, "Psychology of Learning and Memory."

It will show you how to rate top marks in college as by:

(1) Jumping the gun!
In sports, you are not allowed to "jump the gun" but in scholastic competition, that's an ideal plan of action.

It involves buying your textbook BEFORE the first meeting of your class and skimming through it to glean its general scope, noting if it has many charts, illustrations, etc.

Also, it is wise to talk to previous students of your new professors so they can tell you what the teachers stress and the type of exam question that you'll likely encounter.

(2) Never miss class!
For teachers usually stress in their daily lectures the important items they'll also cover on exams.

(3) As you read your textbook, use a colored pen and underline the "meaty" items, which contain factual data.

All textbooks have many paragraphs of mere words without containing anything about which an exam question can be phrased.
So under line the "streaks of lean in the bacon."

Check Pressure On 'Cool' Tires

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Don't check the pressure on your tires when they are "hot," the National Automobile Club warns. Ideally, tire pressure should be checked after your car has been sitting for at least three hours.

In practice, the Auto Club says, you can check them if you have driven for less than a mile at moderate speeds. The club says that "hot" tires can increase their pressure by up to six pounds, and letting air out of tires in this condition results in underinflation and heat buildup, causing excessive tire wear.

Don't include ambiguous items in your True-False quiz, but make each statement so it can be answered with a definite

"True" or "False."

Also, phrase your own exam statements so the non-reader can't derive the answer by the way the question is slanted.

And in parentheses, list the page where you have underlined the factual statement that forms the answer, for this helps you make a quick 5-minute review of the chapter just before the professor gives you his exam.

Russian Novelist Threatened

By FRANK CREPEAU
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Nobel Prize novelist Alexander Solzhenitsyn, in a rare and bluntly outspoken interview with two Western newsmen, says his life has been threatened. He says that, if he is imprisoned or killed, "the main part of my works will be published."

The world-celebrated author, whose works are banned in the Soviet Union, said he and his family have received warnings and "if I am declared killed or suddenly mysteriously dead," the world could conclude that "I have been killed with the approval of the KGB or by it."

The KGB is the Soviet security police organization.

Solzhenitsyn, 54, is the author of such famed novels as "The First Circle," "Cancer Ward" and "August 1914." He won the 1970 Nobel Prize for literature, but authorities prevented him from receiving it in his homeland.

The author was interviewed by The Associated Press and Le Monde of Paris. He accepted written questions and wrote out answers to those he chose to respond to.

The bearded writer, dressed in an open-necked shirt and slacks, was friendly and animated as he discussed developments that have convinced him the cause of individual freedom in the Soviet Union is at a low ebb.

Some other main points of Solzhenitsyn's statements: "What he calls 'the main part of my works' is as yet unpublished.

—He will continue publishing his books in the West. Now that the Soviet Union has signed the international copyright convention, he also will give his works to "samizdat," the clandestine "self-publishing" system used by Soviet dissenters.

—He will further defy officialdom by moving to Moscow to live this winter, despite denial of a permit.

—He wanted particularly to speak out in defense of the noted physicist, Andrei D. Sakharov, a prominent Soviet champion of human rights, because he is convinced the increased harassment of Sakharov and others shows the situation is "at a nadir."

—Any trial of dissidents Pyotr Yakir and Viktor Krassin will be a "doleful repetition" of the Stalin purge trials of the 1930s. He feels that if Yakir and Krassin agreed to turn state's evidence, as reported, they have conducted themselves "basely."

"But I must say that my death will not make happy those people who count on it to stop my literary activities. Immediately after my death or immediately after I have disappeared or have been deprived of my liberty, my literary last will and testament will irrevocably come into force ... and then the main part of my works will start being published, works I have refrained from publishing all these years.

"If the officers of the KGB track down and confiscate copies of the harmless 'Cancer Ward' in all provincial cities—and fire holders of these copies from their work or drive them from higher educational institutions—what will they do when my principal and posthumous books stream out all over Russia?"

He declined to discuss in detail the unpublished "main part" of his works, especially in an apartment he believed was bugged. He turned instead to plans for publishing the remainder of the series that began with "August 1914."

He said that probably "I won't let out 'October 1916' before the third volume, 'March 1917,' is ready." The two are too closely knit and only together could explain his view of the course of events, the writer said.

"August 1914" related in fictional form the catastrophic defeat of the Russians by the Germans in the early days of World War I. The other two books are planned to carry the narrative through the Bolshevik revolution.

Ala. Official Gets Parole

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Alabama Atty. Gen. Richmond Flowers will be paroled from federal prison Oct. 15 after serving 16 months of an eight-year sentence.

Flowers, 56, was convicted in 1969 of conspiring to illegally exact payments from persons and firms doing business in Alabama while he was attorney general from 1963 until 1967.

The U.S. Board of Parole announced on Monday the parole of Flowers and the parole of Birmingham, Ala., businessman and banker Oscar Hyde, who was sentenced with Flowers.

Hyde also had received an eight-year term on charges of conspiracy to obstruct and delay and affect commerce by extortion.

Flowers was convicted on March 10, 1969, but because of appeals delays did not begin serving his prison term until April 17, 1972.

Flowers, who was at the prison camp at Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., was attorney general during the first administration of Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace. He was an outspoken foe of Wallace's racial policies.

Bandsman Files $1 Million Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A high school bandsman has sued his school for $1 million because he was suspended after he displayed a McGovern sticker on his baritone horn at a rally for President Nixon.

George Alan Koenigshofer was suspended from the band Nov. 4 but reinstated in January.

Koenigshofer's suit, filed Monday in Superior Court, said his treatment by Rowland High School officials had made him extremely nervous and given him hives and hay fever.

The suit also contended that the school, band director George Gullet and school principal Thomas Aney violated the youth's right to freedom of speech and unfairly forced him to participate in a partisan political rally.

Cites Changes During Decade

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. says the decade since her husband made his "I Have a Dream" speech has shattered a century of segregation.

King delivered his speech 10 years ago today at the foot of the Lincoln Memorial in Washington. Mrs. King said on Monday that the changes since the speech were "a proud part of our history, paid for with heroism and dedication of countless thousands of blacks in one of the most magnificent movements for progress of this century."

In a statement issued on the anniversary date, Mrs. King said: "In a single decade, the system of legal segregation which had stood for a century was substantially shattered."

Chrysler Plans Submit Terms

By PIET BENNETT
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. executives plan to present their contract proposals today to the United Auto Workers.

Details of the offer were a tightly guarded secret.

One Chrysler spokesman said Monday, "A copy hasn't even left the building where it was written." And UAW President Leonard Woodcock said he had no details on what the company may propose.

Union leaders said an offer 18 days before UAW contracts expires Sept. 14 at Chrysler, Ford and General Motors would be the earliest in history. Ordinarily, contract offers have been made seven to 10 days before the old pacts expire.

On the eve of the offer, Woodcock and UAW Vice President Doug Fraser complained about the lack of detailed discussions on some "essential" union demands. They mentioned specifically voluntary overtime and improved health and safety conditions in the plants.

Subcommittees discussing wages, pensions and grievance procedures met Monday while UAW leaders waited for the company's offer.

William O'Brien, Chrysler vice president for personnel, said last week the offer would stick close to federal guidelines calling for a 6.2 per cent limit on boosts in wages and fringe benefits.

Chrysler, which employs 127,000 union members, is the UAW target in bargaining for new contracts with the nation's three largest automakers. The UAW hopes any agreement it reaches at Chrysler will become the pattern for contracts with GM and Ford.

If the current contract expires before a new pact is signed, Chrysler faces the prospect of a UAW strike while work continues on the assembly lines of its competitors.

Block Switch To Petroleum

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration has acted to block coal-burning industries from switching to scarce petroleum fuels needed for home heating.

Power plants and other coal-burners would have to continue using coal for at least a year under tentative regulations announced Monday by White House energy chief John Love.

Before the regulations are made final, a public hearing will be held Sept. 6-7 at the Interior Department, Love said.

He said the action, the first significant use of President Nixon's authority to impose mandatory allocation of fuels, was an effort to ease a serious home heating fuel shortage expected this winter.

Love said the new regulations were required because "there may be insufficient supplies of petroleum products, especially home heating oils, to meet essential needs in certain parts of the country and to insure an adequate supply to the independent distributors and marketers."

Amalgamated ladies GREENVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — The National Association of Junior Auxiliaries originated in Greenville at a meeting of the ladies' organizations from about 10 towns in southern states. The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. Brodie Crump on Nov. 3, 1941.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 29, 1973

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Good for getting at whatever work faces you and doing it in such manner that you gain the goodwill of others as well as have a wonderful feeling of satisfaction yourself. Unusually good for housewives to get home spotless and immaculate and for men to have places of work in perfect functional order. Action.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Don't waste a moment of this precious day when you can get much accomplished if you apply yourself early. Find the right kind of clothing to suit your personality. Join good friends socially in p.m.

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Plan to do some entertaining that will make those you love happier and give you much pleasure. You can take that small risk now you have been afraid to do before. Good results will come if you are sure of yourself.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You want to make some additions at home that will please kin and the morning is a good time. Then get busy with business affairs. Entertain at home tonight and make a fine impression.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Set up appointments early and then off to the shopping you have been unable to do before. Make sure that unusual business matters are well handled. Check your utilities and see if all is in order. Read some in p.m.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Although spending is more your speed, this is a good day to get into those big deals for which you are famous and achieve big results. Get quick advice from that trusted banker first. Then proceed like a general.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) Being with good friends is your best bet today and you can have both pleasant and profitable moments, hours. Group affairs are just your cup of tea. Make sure you do not spend beyond your means.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) Being particularly devoted to the one you love can bring greater harmony for the future. Use your intuition so you come closer to some cherished aim. Much happiness in p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) Confide in some good friend a fine plan you have in mind and get his cooperation so it becomes truly successful. Get into the social circle that most appeals to you in p.m. Converse intelligently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21) Fine day for making the right impression on bigwigs in business who will appreciate your ability. Get credit built up. Your success and happiness can increase proportionately to your wise actions of this day.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 20) Seek that data you need so your business operations will meet with far greater success. Making new and clever associates among those with greater background than yours is wise. Think logically, constructively.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) Discuss with associates what your aims are, then get busy and do the work required by such plan. Be sure you show others you are going to keep promises made, although there may be a slight delay. Make sure you hire right help.

PISCES (Feb 20 to Mar 20) Sit down and discuss honestly with allies what it is you have in mind and listen to what they have to suggest so you cement far better relations. Plan the future in minute detail. Leave nothing to chance.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be one of those young people who automatically gets fine ideas but is then not certain about them and could lose out because of this, so teach early to have more faith and to act in a positive manner. Parents should give praise early where and when it is due. Fine chart for any profession that requires precision and patience; much success is then possible. Some study of music is good, as well as dancing. A fine mathematician here, too.

Helms Aide Visits Pitt

George S. Dunlop, staff assistant to U.S. Senator Jesse Helms, feels that the biggest concern of people he has met in the east is the state of the economy.

Dunlop was at the Pitt County Court House here yesterday to hear complaints and comments from any local citizens. It is one of a series of visits he is making to counties throughout the east on the senator's behalf.

Dunlop said he has found that people feel government is too big.

The next concern is whether justice is being done in the Watergate matter. He said he gets the feeling the public believes Watergate preoccupation "is bringing down the country."

On his visit here Dunlop said several individuals appeared to inquire about personal matters with which they wanted help. He said he also conferred with county and city officials concerning local government problems.

Dunlop, who has offices in Raleigh, said such visits will be made on a regular basis and every county will be visited at least once a year.

Sen. Helms also has an office at ECU.

Phnom Penh Road To Sea Is Reopened

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — A government armored column smashed through Khmer Rouge positions on Highway 4 today, reopening Phnom Penh's highway to the sea, said the Cambodian general in command.

The Cambodian capital's other major supply road, Highway 5 to the rice belt in the northwest, still was blocked by the insurgents. But a tug pulled 750 tons of ammunition up the Mekong River from South Vietnam without being attacked. It was the second convoy to sail up the river in four days.

Associated Press photographer Horst Faas reported from Highway 4 that a dozen armored personnel carriers and some 300 infantrymen pushed through a road crossing at Thnal Totoeng, 18 miles west of Phnom Penh, and began patrolling both sides of the highway.

The general commanding the Cambodian force told Faas that the Khmer Rouge insurgents had withdrawn a mile off the road after being pounded with artillery and heavy mortars.

The general said traffic had resumed on the highway and some of the first vehicles moving toward Phnom Penh were ambulances loaded with government soldiers wounded farther down the highway.

Military sources also reported progress on Highway 5. They said a government force had cleared all but two miles of a nine-mile stretch by dusk Monday and were continuing operations to reopen the road.

U.S. sources said that, although Highway 4 to the coast and Highway 5 to the rice belt in northwest Cambodia have been cut since last weekend, they knew of no food emergency in the city swollen by refugees to a population of 1.5 million.

The Americans refused to say whether the U.S. government would fly in food should the situation worsen.

Obituaries

Ebron
ROBERSONVILLE — Mr. Joseph C. Ebron died Monday afternoon in the Veterans' Hospital in Durham. He was the son of Mrs. Roena Ebron of Robersonville. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home.

Tobacco Sales As Expected At Robersonville

"Sales were pretty much as expected," Edmond Lee, one of the stockholders of Hardee's Warehouse said about the opening of the tobacco market today in Robersonville.

The first sale at Hardee's was followed by a second sale at Gray's Warehouse. There are two warehouses in the Robersonville market.

Lee said top sale was 91 cents a pound. "I figure the average will come out to about 87 cents a pound," Lee said. "It was a full floor consisting primarily of lugs and cutters."

"Most of the farmers seemed fairly well pleased with sales. Since other markets have been open in the east for some time, they knew about what to expect in prices."

Ray Letchworth this year is sales supervisor for the Robersonville market.

Smith
FALKLAND — Mrs. Ellen J. Smith died early this morning in the Greenville Nursing Center. Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Phillips Brothers Mortuary.

Vines
Mr. Moses Vines, 91, of 407 W. Eleventh Street, Greenville died Friday in the Greenville Nursing Center.

Funeral services are planned for Sunday at 3 p.m. at St. Peter's Free Will Baptist Church at Seven Pines near Farmville.

Leaf Mart Adds Buyers

FARMVILLE — The Farmville Tobacco Market added another set of buyers today and are now operating with two sets.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor for the Farmville Market, volume of sales was heavy yesterday and consisted of more leaf grades than any day this year. Primings and lugs grades were less in volume than on Thursday.

Nondescrpt grades accounted for the smallest volume of sales of any day this season.

Grade for grade prices were steady. The better grades accounted for a much better average than last Thursday. Quality grades of leaf and cutters continued to bring top prices. Stabilization receipts accounted for only 2,572 pounds of gross sales yesterday.

A total of 266,812 pounds of tobacco sold for $231,035, giving an average of $86.59 per hundred pounds. To date, the local market has sold 3,512,818 pounds of leaf for a season average of $85.42.

Police Chief Confirmed

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The city manager's office at Goldsboro today released a statement confirming C.M. Gilstrap as chief of police, succeeding Roy Renfrow who resigned in late July.

The statement also said an investigation by the State Bureau of Investigation into activities in the police department found some misconduct of departmental matters and some possible criminal violations. No further details were released.

However, District Solicitor Ogden Parker said his office had researched the SBI findings and found evidence of only one possible criminal violation. He said he is requesting the attorney general's office to assist in determining whether a criminal indictment would be appropriate.

The investigation was initiated after a citizen's group complained to the mayor and Goldsboro alderman of possible corruption in the department.

Redevelopment Commission's Hosting 2-Day Workshop Here

The Greenville Redevelopment Commission is hosting a workshop sponsored by the Carolinas Council of Housing, Redevelopment and Codes Officials tomorrow and Thursday at the Holiday Inn.

According to Joe M. Laney, executive director of the Redevelopment Commission here and currently the secretary-treasurer of the Carolinas Council, the seminar will begin tomorrow morning at 10:30 and conclude on Thursday at noon.

Laney said that advance registration for the workshop has been received from 65 participants from cities throughout North Carolina and South Carolina.

The Council consists of agencies managing renewal, housing and codes activities in over 125 cities in the two states.

The local official said that Mayor Eugene West will welcome the group tomorrow morning that will also include representatives of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development who will be on hand to assist in the workshop.

Visiting officials include Ted Smith, Regional regional advisor for the Atlanta regional office which covers eight southeastern states; Rawland E. Eng, chief of real estate for the State of North Carolina in the Greensboro HUD office; and Alan Stailey, chief of real estate from the State of Virginia from the Richmond HUD office.

Laney noted that Robert Cox, chief of the community development section of the N.C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources, will speak at the luncheon tomorrow and will discuss the role of the state in assisting non-metropolitan communities of under 50,000 in making the transition from the current urban renewal programs to new programs commonly referred to as community development revenue sharing.

Overall purpose of the workshop, he said, is to discuss the acquisition of real estate under the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970. This law governs the acquisition of real property for all federally-assisted programs.

Justice Lake Urges Conservative View

BUIES CREEK, N.C. (AP) — Associate Justice I. Beverly Lake told Campbell College students today a threatened victory by "the cult of Equalitarians" could "paralyze America's tomorrow."

Lake, who ran for governor as a segregationist before his appointment to the state Supreme Court, spoke at the college's 87th annual convocation.

He urged the students to become "conservatives," defining the term as being descriptive of a person who serves as a custodian of "the sources of our continuing strength," in preserving the United States.

He said conservatives must attempt to retain education, the American concept of government, faith in God, patriotism and the freedom of the individual to excel.

Lake said the freedom of the individual to excel and to enjoy the fruits of excellence are "a priceless treasure from America's day before yesterday."

Hearing Slated At Washington

A hearing on the Coastal Area Management Bill will be held on August 31, at 9 a.m., in the Beaufort County Courthouse, Washington.

This will be the last five hearings held in the State. During recent weeks strong opposition was voiced for the bill at hearings held in Manteo and Elizabeth City.

The Mid-East Commission urged all interested citizens and elected officials to attend the hearing and express their views on the Bill.

The mid-East region includes the counties of Pitt, Beaufort, Martin, Bertie and Hertford.

County Schools

dergarten through 12 grades ) is expected this year.

"If the usual trend continues, there will be a slight decrease in the overall enrollment this year. The high schools will show an increase while a decrease will be seen in elementary schools enrollment," Alford stated.

Alford said that 15 years ago, the schools were enrolling between 1,500 and 1,600 first graders. Today that number is nearer 800.

Food service, transportation and heating are three real concerns that will have to be watched very carefully during the next several months.

"We are wondering whether or not we can get enough fuel to heat our buildings all winter gasoline to operate the buses and food to operate the lunchrooms with out assistance," Alford emphasized.

"Not knowing where the price of food will level off has caused some concern. We do not know what food items will be available to us and at what cost," the superintendent noted.

"We hope there will be some relief in the cost of food and hope for a mild winter as far as weather is concerned," Alford said.

Certain school fees have been approved by the Pitt Board of Education and all persons capable of paying are expected to pay these fees, according to Alford.

The price for school lunches has been set at 45 cents for elementary students, 50 cents for high school, and 60 cents for teachers.

Growing Pains

Even with 444 acres of land and a giant pharmaceutical plant just North of the city, valued at some $1.21 million according to Pitt County Tax Department records, Burroughs-Wellcome Co. is reaching out into the Greenville community for additional space.

Company officials yesterday said the firm has leased the old Winn-Dixie building on Tenth Street to house sales promotional materials and offices formerly located in a warehouse building at the plant site. The move into the 10,000 square feet facility in the city a month ago was made to give more room to the sales promotional department and to provide more space in the warehouse at the plant site.

Burroughs-Wellcome also is using a portion of Imperial Tobacco Co. storage space in Greenville for raw leaf material storage. The company has been using Imperial storage facilities for six months to a year, officials noted.

Introducing Unicom 500 P.

The truly professional electronic printing calculator. No electronic printer in its class has ever combined so many technical advances. The 500P has seven independent working registers. A versatile add mode system. A stop/start printer for absolute silence between calculations. Plus a ribbon cartridge you can change in five seconds.

Automatic percent key. Automatic counter. Repeat add/subtract. Automatic squaring and square root. Automatic first factor accumulation. Two separately addressable memories. And much, much more. It's incredibly efficient. It's remarkably simple to operate.

James R. Gaskin, dean of the UNC College of Arts and Sciences, said in Chapel Hill a proposal to make Bounds' new position a continuing professorship would be presented to the state Board of Governors.

Add Buyers

Two sets of buyers were added to the Greenville Tobacco Market today and now that market is operating with four sets of buyers.

The Greenville market average $87.76 per hundred pounds yesterday after selling 498,691 pounds of leaf.

The entire Eastern Belt was in operation today with the Aoshkie, Clinton, Dunn, Robersonville, Wallace, Washington, Wendell and Windsor markets opening for the first time this selling season.
