

Outer Banks Desalting Plant Ends Dispute Being Left 'To Nature'

BUXTON, N.C. (AP)—The National Park Service decision to let nature take its course in the Cape Hatteras National Seashore apparently will set far-reaching precedents nationally. The service is turning away from a policy which for years has sought to turn back the Atlantic Ocean from houses, motels and roads on the Outer Banks.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — The United States will build the world's largest desalting plant to help settle a 12-year dispute with Mexico over the quality of Colorado River water, the Western White House has announced. The desalting plant, to be located in Arizona, will be in accord with a new U.S.-Mexican water agreement approved by President Nixon and Mexican President Luis Echeverria.

The plant will remove up to 90 per cent of the salinity in waters in the channel draining the Wellton-Mohawk Irrigation Project of Southern Arizona. Mexican authorities have complained that extensive irrigation of salty soils in the Colorado River basin has increased the salinity of water flowing into the Mexicali Valley and brought poverty to thousands of Mexican farmers there by ruining their crops. Former Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell, who negotiated the agreement as Nixon's special ambassador, said congressional leaders have been kept informed of the proposal and approval is anticipated to implement the $115 million project by 1978.

Brownell said the new agreement requires the United States to eliminate the salting effects of the Wellton-Mohawk drainage district by next summer. However, since the desalting project could only be in its initial stages by then, the United States will supply Mexico with pure water from its storage supplies to meet the commitment.

effect of destroying our beaches." Scientists say artificial dunes, seawalls, groins and jetties prevent the natural deposition of sand on barrier islands, which build themselves during storms. So the Park Service's specific recommendations for North Carolina beaches will be that no more federal funds be spent to protect private property, state property or county property on the Outer Banks.

Chou Says 2 Coups Plotted Mao Assassination Plot Told

By JOHN RODERICK Associated Press Writer TOKYO (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai, in an important policy speech to the 10th Chinese Communist party congress released today, said Defense Minister Lin Piao attempted to assassinate Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung before dying in a plane crash in 1971. Making his first public official disclosure of the events which led to the death of Mao's heir-designate, Chou told the congress on Aug. 24 that Lin, a military hero, plotted not one but two coups, the first during the second plenary session of the 9th Central Committee in August 1970, and the second in March 1971.

approved by the congress on Aug. 28, was distributed by the official Hsinhua news agency and monitored in Tokyo. The five-day party congress, which wound up Aug. 28, condemned Lin and Mao's long-time friend and former private secretary, Chen Po-ta, described as linked to the coup, and posthumously read the shy former marshal out of the party and all his posts. Chou said that Lin, though named in the party constitution as Mao's successor, attempted with Chen to put through a draft in the 1969 9th party congress which would have negated Mao's line that the major struggle in China was between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie. He said that Lin and Chen portrayed the situation as a fight between the Socialist system and the backward productive system, a view Chen had held since the 8th party congress in 1956. Only after his efforts were frustrated did Lin grudgingly accept Mao's line, Chou said.

James Bainbridge, acting deputy director of the Park Service Southeast Office, told the Winston-Salem Sentinel Thursday the new policy eventually will apply to all national seashores and not to North Carolina alone. "We're not going to try to fight the ocean any more," he said. "We're going to roll with nature, rather than to try to buck it."

Nixon Lawyers To Appeal Sirica's Order On Tapes

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — President Nixon has decided to carry to the next judicial plateau his legal fight against producing the secret Watergate tape recordings. The President ordered his lawyers Thursday to appeal to the U.S. Court of Appeals the ruling by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica directing him to turn over the tapes for the judge's private inspection. After Sirica's ruling Wednesday in Washington, Nixon announced he would refuse to comply.

last year and that was an all-time peak at the time. A wreck Thursday morning at the Elm Street-264 Bypass intersection knocked out power in the eastern section of the city, affecting about 15 per cent of the system, he reported. Most of the sections were restored to power in 20 to 30 minutes although a few other areas, including Drexelbrook, had slightly longer outages. An additional 25 per cent of the power system, encompassing almost everything south of 264 including Winterville and Ayden, experienced roughly a 15 second blackout when the main transmission lines slapped together. The line serves four substations, Green reported.

Schools Idled By Heat Wave

Most of the Pitt County Schools closed early yesterday due to hot weather. With a high temperature of 96 degrees reported by the Greenville Utilities Commission, only those schools with air conditioning remained open for the full school day. D.H. Conley, Ayden-Griffon and Farmville Central, Bethel Primary and Bethel Middle Schools maintained their full day schedule with the other 17 county schools were dismissed shortly after lunch. Troop A Will See A Change Of Command

By STUART SAVAGE Reflector Staff Writer Highway Patrol Troop "A" commander Capt. R. F. Williamson is being transferred to Fayetteville and Troop "C" commander Capt. J. T. Jenkins is being transferred from Raleigh to head Troop "A" as part of a shake-up of the North Carolina Highway Patrol. The transfers were announced yesterday by N. C. Transportation Secretary Bruce A. Lentz who named former Major E. W. Jones as head of the Highway Patrol. Lt. Col. Jones, who was scheduled to take the oath of office in Raleigh at 2 p.m. today, replaces Col. Edwin Guy, a 34-year veteran of the Highway Patrol as commander. Guy was asked to resign earlier this week by Lentz.

No Local Power Crisis Due The Hot Weather

By TOM BAINES Reflector Staff Writer The annual late-summer heat spell continues but so far no significant problems have arisen within the Greenville Utilities power system, according to assistant director Malcolm Green. Green said that no reductions in voltage have been made and no cutbacks have been requested by Veeco. "We have made some detailed voltage checks and we are keeping a very close watch on the system," he added. He explained that the system is "very heavily loaded" at this time of year and "in some isolated cases, we are overloaded."

'Impacted Funds'

The Greenville City Schools will soon be receiving the annual allocation of federally impacted funds. "This will be somewhere between $6,000 and $8,000," Supt. Glenn Cox said today. Each year these funds are received to compensate the schools for a certain percent of expenditure for children of federal employees attending the schools system. "This primarily involves children of VOA personnel and a few children of military personnel in the area," Cox pointed out. The factor that make Greenville eligible for impacted funds, Cox noted, "is the presence of three federal housing projects in the school area. This makes us eligible to qualify for the funds. The VOA and military children provide us with students for whom the government furnishes financial support."

Lentz Declares Ousted SHP Officers 'Failed Exercise Leadership'

RALEIGH (AP)—State Transportation Secretary Bruce Lentz says Col. Edwin C. Guy and three other top officers of the North Carolina Highway Patrol were ousted because they failed to exercise leadership. Lentz told newsmen Thursday the officials had been given a chance to make some "significant, positive changes," but these were not forthcoming, and "about the only changes came through my initiative." Maj. E. W. Jones, a veteran

He said Bowen will be offered employment in another state law enforcement agency. Lentz announced the transfer of three of the

School Examinations May Pigeonhole Child

(Editor's Note: Following is the second article in a series on the way schools over-test students, often doing more harm than good.)

By DONNA JOY NEWMAN
CHICAGO (WNS)—A current best seller, "My Name is Asher Lev," by Chaim Potok, tells the story of a boy from a strictly religious Jewish sect who indulges his genius-level gift for art by compulsively drawing and painting while his father dismisses the work as "foolishness."

Asher grows up to wide public acclaim but unbridgeable alienation form his father, who sees his son's gift as an evil that draws him away from service to the Jewish people and traditions.

The story says a lot about parental expectations for children. Adults have always hoped their children would be "good at" the skills that would enable them to successfully fill roles that fit the older generation's values and lifestyles.

But in perpetuating their culture adults have created one of the most controversial practices in schools today—the IQ test.

Although for centuries people have tried to find ways of measuring intelligence, the so-called intelligence test as most school children know it is largely a 20th-century phenomenon.

Innate Ability

Its purpose is to measure raw or innate ability for learning—the vague quality children are referring to when they say something like "He's the smartest kid in the class because he always gets the answers right." Or the quality teachers are talking about when they say a child has "a high IQ of 140" or "a low IQ of 85."

But most educators today agree that no test really isolates a person's ability to learn although Dr. John Ertl of the University of Ottawa has developed a still-controversial brain-wave test that measures "neural efficiency." What an intelligence test really measures, most agree, is some combination of ability and previously learned skills and concepts.

For instance, most intelligence tests today cover verbal and number skills, reasoning, spatial perception, and the ability to perceive similarities and differences. But if you ask a child which number in the series 3 6 9 12 14 does not belong, you are testing not only his ability to reason, but also the computational skills he has learned.

Likewise, if you ask him to reason which word does not fit the group turkey, ham, goose, duck, chicken, you are testing vocabulary and acquired knowledge of poultry and meat along with abilities of mental manipulation.

High Correlation
Studies have established a fairly high correlation between so-called intelligence or ability test scores and scores on tests designed to measure school achievement.

Schools are dominated by a white middle-class culture that stresses high verbal skills.

Is there any middle-class parent who doesn't want his child to learn to read?

Children tuned to the dominant culture naturally do better on intelligence tests, the critics say (statistics on standardized test scores show lower scores among lower socio-economic and minority groups).

Low-scoring children are viewed as "slow" and sorted to the bottom of the instructional pile, often in slow groups, and not much is expected of them.

Studies have shown that when not much is expected of children they don't accomplish much, whereas those treated with confidence and encouragement learn more. So IQ test critics charge the whole thing becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy.

All over the country, teachers and psychologists are rising up angry against IQ tests, especially the ones administered on a large-group basis.

Besides the cultural factor, test performance is influenced by how the child feels when he takes the test, whether he thinks the test is important, the interaction between him and the examiner, and general test nervousness—to say nothing of learning disabilities due to what some call minimal brain dysfunction.

And studies have shown that measured IQ can vary as much as 40 points from one time in a person's life to another. Forty points could mean the difference between a child's being classified dull or talented.

Edgar G. Epps, professor of urban education at the University of Chicago, says educators "should be more concerned with teaching children than measuring them and rank-ordering them."

As an alternative to testing for a child's ability, "give the child every opportunity to demonstrate what he can do" in the classroom," said Epps.

One of his students, Stephanie Skurdy, a teacher for four years in the Chicago schools, says she has seen students whose IQ score information and other credentials "would ride along with them from kindergarten into high school" with no updating by retesting (the Chicago schools no longer give intelligence tests on a citywide basis).

"Most of the students placed in low-ability classes are seriously affected by the experience," she said. "We've given so much credence to IQ tests, but they work against students—and not just minorities. Teachers have a defeatist attitude about basic (low ability) classes. A teacher's attitude should be, 'I have something that everyone in this class can learn,' not just a feeling of manifest destiny."

Looks Like Old Lady

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 22-year-old college-educated granddaughter who looks like a little old lady from the hills of Tennessee. She doesn't wear a drop of makeup! And her hair, which is straight as a poker, she brushes straight down, or pins up on top of her head like a charwoman. She wears funny little wire-framed glasses. I never see her in anything but blue jeans, or a gingham apron, suitable for a barn dance.

When I tell you she could have qualified for Miss Teenage America when she was 17, it's not just Grandma talking.

This change came about during her sophomore year at college. She's an honor student and never got mixed up with drugs. What is the matter with this child? Is she punishing her mother who is a beautiful woman and loves beauty? Or is she punishing her father who is rich and would buy her anything she wants?

BEWILDERED GRANDMA

DEAR BEWILDERED: Nothing is the matter with her. She's making a statement: "Accept me, unadorned. Please take the time and effort to discover the real me!"

Look closely, Grandma, you might find a very beautiful person behind those little wire-framed glasses.

DEAR ABBY: Help! Maybe if our neighbors see this in print they might take the HINT.

Our neighbor's divorced daughter, with her two small undisciplined children (ages 2 and 4) lives right next door to us. The problem: This mother gets these children up at 7 a. m. and sends them outside to play. They play with very noisy toys, also scream and yell at the top of their lungs. This continues all day long. Believe me, it is enough to "wake the dead."

My husband and I have a business that keeps us up late at night, and we would like to sleep until at least 9 a. m.

I know people write to you complaining about barking dogs, but what about barking children? Sign this,

WISH THEY WOULD MOVE

DEAR WISH: A hint won't help. TELL your neighbors that you would appreciate it if they supervised the children at indoor play until at least 9 a. m. because you need your rest. And don't be bashful. They probably send the kids outside so THEY can go back to bed.

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from a woman who visited her sister in Omaha, and couldn't sleep because this sister had a grandfather clock in the hall which went "ding, dong, and bong" every half hour. Well, that reminded me of my own story:

After I married, I moved to a distant state. My own dear mother came to visit me every summer. She'd stay the whole month of June. We had a Westminster clock which had been in my husband's family for four generations, and my husband had been hearing those chimes ever since he was a baby.

Mother complained that the chimes kept her awake, so

I persuaded my husband to turn off the chimes during Mother's visits.

My husband had become so accustomed to hearing those chimes that he couldn't fall asleep without them. Abby, sometimes he'd toss and turn until 5 a. m.

Well, after six years of Mother's June visits, we had five children—all with birthdays in March!

So, tell that lady to get some ear plugs so her sister's chimes won't bother her. Or better yet, to get a chiming clock for her own home, and get used to it.

In Italy, One Man's Entire Salary Spent On Eating

EDITOR'S NOTE—The price of food has risen so much in Italy's inflation that one family is spending the husband's entire salary just on eating. This third and last of three articles on European inflation shows how a postman is keeping his family going.

By HILMI TOROS

Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP)—Antonio Fiumara makes $4,000 a year as a mailman in Rome. He says the only way he can make it through inflation in Italy is from the tips he receives on his rounds during the Christmas, Easter and summer holidays.

Fiumara, a 37-year-old elementary school dropout, has been delivering mail for 20 years. He makes $310 a month now and his 31-year-old wife Margerita says she spends all of that just on food. They have two sons, Gaetano, 12, and Marco, 9.

So, says Fiumara, the $1,700 a year he gets from 2,000 families in tips saves his family.

"That's our living money," Margerita says.

Antonio and Margerita break down a normal month's spending this way:

—Rent. Only $20 for a two-room apartment on the outskirts of Rome. They live in a government-subsidized housing project for workers. Not all mailmen live in such projects, however.

—Clothing. About $340. She says the family watches for end-of-season sales for savings up to 50 per cent.

—Entertainment. "None," the postman says. "We have a television. That's all we need and we can afford." But he allows $17 a month for gasoline for the family's occasional Sunday drives.

—Vacations. Almost free. The family goes to the farm of Margerita's parents in the Abruzzi Mountains 155 miles east of Rome.

But with a postman's salary come fringe benefits. Buses are free for him, but not for his family. On trains the entire family gets a 50 per cent discount.

All medical expenses, including medicine, are free, paid by the state. The family, however, pays for dental and eye care.

The two children go to state schools free.

The boy's pocket money is still minimal — for ice cream. Their recreation is soccer, either playing on a nearby field or watching on television.

Fiumara pays no taxes. His income is judged below the taxable minimum.

But his salary has been almost static for the past two years as Italy's inflation rate galloped 10 per cent in 1972 and is running at 14.4 per cent this year. His monthly salary goes up every three months when all paychecks are adjusted to the official cost of living index. Raises amount to a dollar or two, he says.

Many of Rome's mailmen are known to moonlight although it is illegal. Their work schedule, from 7 a.m. until about 1 p.m., gives them the whole afternoon free. It is said that some mailmen can earn $150 to $200 a month with the second job they try to keep secret.

The Fiumaras' biggest complaint is about the price of food.

The price of meat went up 16 per cent in a year. A pound of prime veal now costs $3 a pound. Fruit went up 22 per cent and wine 32 per cent.

"We can't bargain on food anymore," Mrs. Fiumara laments. "The other day they were selling fresh figs at 700 lire a kilo. When I tried to complain, the man just said: 'If you don't like it, don't buy it.'"

Adds her husband: "What burns me is that recently in Naples I saw fresh fruit and fish being thrown away. I think some merchants would rather do that than sell them cheap."

The Fiumaras say they still eat what they did before — but in smaller quantities. Others are doing the same in Rome as one now sees shoppers asking for two or three apples instead of by weight.

Ham with "one fig for each" opens a typical family dinner, followed either by fish or a thin steak with salad. Fruit tops the supper.

Only on Sundays do they eat the traditional pasta, they say, although pasta dishes are filling and inexpensive. A pound of spaghetti still costs about 20 cents, enough for three persons. The family considers pasta fattening and the parents say the boys need meat, vegetables and fruits.

Over-all, the postman considers himself "not poor, but certainly not rich." He says he can buy no luxury items such as a washing machine, a dishwasher or an air conditioner.

But he did manage to buy a $2,000 car.

"In Italy everybody owns a car," he said, "even if one doesn't use it much." And Fiumara says he doesn't. A gallon of gas now costs over a dollar.

Asked Son Be Allowed To Die

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Doctors said there was no hope for 20-year-old Paul Wojcik, critically injured in a traffic accident.

So his parents asked that he be allowed to die and that his kidneys be used to help someone else live.

"I think it would help to be able to think there is someone who probably wouldn't be alive" without Paul's kidneys, said the father, Lester Wojcik.

"If Paul could have decided, that's what he would have wanted," said the mother, Madeline.

The youth, an 'A' student at Florida State University, was injured Sunday when struck by an automobile. Police said the driver of the stolen car escaped on foot.

After talking with five surgeons and a priest Tuesday night, the Wojciks told doctors to remove breathing tubes from their son.

"His brain was damaged so severely the machines registered no activity," Mrs. Wojcik said. "Five specialists told us he was not really living—the tubes simply forced his breath in and out."

A spokesman at Florida Hospital, Bob Wade, said:

"This is the first instance we've had where a person was inevitably terminal and taken off life-sustaining facilities. The individuals involved had the right to decide and could have hung on and hope for a miracle.... There was no hope from the beginning."

The youth died shortly after the breathing tubes were removed.

Surgeons immediately removed his kidneys and prepared them for transplanting into patients whose own were not functioning.

"Paul had a lot going," said

Wojcik, a high school guidance counselor.

Mrs. Wojcik, a former teacher, said her son "was the most happy person. He made straight A's without worrying or cramming. He had a million interests."

Rizzo said he will "absolutely not" permit the bell to be moved almost three blocks away to a spot suggested by the state.

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—Pvt. John H. Ahselin, 18, stationed at the Camp Lejeune Marine Base in North Carolina, was killed Thursday when he was struck by a car on U. S. 50 near Ocean City.

State police, who investigated, said Ahselin was from Portland, Ore.

Always A Degree Of Concern

Almost no one is pleased when a tobacco sales holiday is called, but Eastern and Border Belt markets are facing one next week.

Sales will be halted during the week due to a decision made by the industry-wide Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee. The decision was made after buying companies reported problems obtaining enough labor and trucks to move tobacco from the warehouses to processing plants.

There is always concern when a tobacco marketing halt is called. There is the fear that when markets reopen prices will take a dip. Also these days farmers are anxious to sell their tobacco once they have gotten it out of the fields because their money has been tied up by the high costs of raising and handling tobacco and they need the cash to come out.

On the other hand there is always the possibility that if the buying companies are unable to handle the tobacco coming in for warehouse sales, they will simply quit buying until the glut subsides. This, of course, would be certain to bring about a drop in prices since competition would be lessened.

As J. N. Bryant, sales supervisor for the Greenville Tobacco Board of Trade pointed out, the sales will actually only be suspended for three days. Monday, which is Labor Day, is always observed as a holiday and no sales are held on Friday. So only Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday will be dropped from the normal sales schedule.

We think everyone would feel better if tobacco sales proceeded as rapidly as possible. It appears, though, that the processing plant problems offer an adequate reason for suspension of sales and farmers may in the long run receive better prices because of the suspension.

Banking Land For Tomorrow

By BILL NOBLITT
BEAUFORT—The federal government is stepping up efforts to acquire two islands offshore for a second National Seashore Park.

At stake is some 38 miles of shoreline on the Core Banks and nearby Shackleford Island which form a barrier system running from Morehead City and Beaufort eastward and northward along Carteret County's shoreline.

To speed up the process, a veteran Parks Service man, Preston (Mack) Riddle, who has been working at the Cape Hatteras Seashore Park, has been named director of the new park further south and will get his offices set up this fall on Harkers Island.

point would be developed and visitors would be encouraged to travel on foot the rest of the way.

In The Future
Asked if no causeways for cars to cross on or roads to drive about on were in their thinking, Riddle summed up his attitude toward the future of the park.

"No, we should leave it mostly natural and let our children make some future decisions on what to do with it. We want to put in structures and development that will live with the land and water out here... structures that can change and be adaptable and flexible, not ones which will block the flow of water or alter the landscape," Riddle said.

Park Service personnel said surveys show that 65 per cent of the people asked where they would prefer to live given a choice say the seacoast.

But the coast is just a narrow sliver and south of Virginia—in fact, the Carolina coast—is about the only place land in its wild state can now be found.

The investment in the new park which will embrace Cape Lookout and the towering lighthouse there will be big. The best guess right now is between $5 million and $10 million. As Riddle said, just removing the junk cars people have left to rust on the outer banks will be a costly problem.

Walking the wild beaches and towering dunes of the almost deserted islands with Riddle and with Bob Barbee, director of the Hatteras Seashore, is not only an education—it's fun.

Goats And Sheep
Another problem will be what to do with the herds of wild goats, several hundred sheep, scattered cows and a handful of horses which make up Shackleford's population.

The federal people plan to ask Congress to push legislation authorizing them to go ahead and buy Shackleford right now while the state finishes getting remaining acreage at Cape Lookout to make up the entire park. The state has agreed to buy the Core Banks property but has not been able to get it all together. Original federal law called for waiting until the state finished land acquisition before moving ahead with the park, but the park director hopes that will be changed.

For People
Their vision of what ought to be done here is geared toward people using the now deserted strands of beach and waters on the sound side along the banks.

With the rush of the people to the sea intensifying road-building, motel construction and related activities, the parks people hope they can get this beach land soon and make it available to all visitors; not just a few who can afford the luxury of membership in private clubs.

They want to leave both islands pretty much as they are now, but make them accessible to visitors.

These beaches, after all, are the last remaining available land in a natural state along the Eastern coast—except for some islands off the shore of Texas in the Gulf of Mexico which the experts class as inhospitable to people.

Moreover, what gives the Cambodian issue special spice is the fact that high officials now in the Defense Department, most particularly Deputy Secretary William P. Clements, left the impression with the Senate Armed Services Committee

Accompanied by a representative from the parks design division in Denver, Colo., the federal people trekked the land with an eye to future use.

Moreover, what gives the Cambodian issue special spice is the fact that high officials now in the Defense Department, most particularly Deputy Secretary William P. Clements, left the impression with the Senate Armed Services Committee

"We propose to provide ferry service across from the mainland and have just minimum facilities out here—some picnic areas, rest facilities and camping areas. On Core, vehicles would be provided to carry people up the beach," Barbee said.

Moreover, what gives the Cambodian issue special spice is the fact that high officials now in the Defense Department, most particularly Deputy Secretary William P. Clements, left the impression with the Senate Armed Services Committee

On Shackleford, the smaller island, but the prettiest with its dunes and forest growth, only a land

A Murky Legal Area Poses Grave Dangers

Federal District Judge John J. Sirica has ruled that President Nixon must make tape recordings of White House conversation available to the judge for private examination.

The Nixon administration has said it would not comply with the order on the basis of separation of powers as provided in the Constitution.

The president may simply ignore the order and even the most eminent Constitutional authorities cannot agree who is correct.

We are in a murky legal area where dangerous legal precedents could be set. The wrong moves could permanently alter the balance we now have in government.

Hard Question For Kissinger

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Although eventual Senate confirmation of Dr. Henry A. Kissinger as Secretary of State is not in doubt, President Nixon's ace diplomatic operative is going to be pressed hard on the secret U. S. bombing of Cambodia in 1969 when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee starts its hearings Sept. 7.

The fact that President Nixon, in his Aug. 20 speech at New Orleans, took full responsibility for the Cambodian bombing decision has not in the slightest diminished the senatorial appetite for a full-scale expose of how the decision was made and whether Kissinger himself will be able to justify it.

and the nation on Aug. 9 that the orders to falsify bombing reports in order to maintain total security had emanated from the Pentagon.

Clements, in fact, actually produced a now widely published document authorizing 14 B-52 strikes into Cambodian border areas adjacent to South Vietnam on the nights of Nov. 24-25 and Nov. 29-30, 1969. The document, which Clements indicated was the only one he could find in Pentagon files on the Cambodian bombing, bore the signature of Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the initials "MRL" for Melvin R. Laird, the then Secretary of Defense. It was marked "top secret—eyes only" and dated Nov. 20.

One reason: even Senators completely committed to confirming Kissinger are troubled by his future dual role as Secretary of State and also as the President's White House foreign policy adviser, in charge of the National Security Council staff.

So astonished was Democratid. Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, acting chairman of the committee, when Clements produced his document that he telephoned Laird in Chicago (where he was addressing the National Legislative Conference) and warned him: Mel, they're trying to do you in up here.

As a former Air Force Secretary, Symington knew neither Gen. Wheeler nor Laird had authority to falsify bombing reports. Only the President himself could order an official cover-up of bombing operations against a neutral nation, together with the falsification of reports essential to make the cover-up work.

Their question: will Kissinger give them the full background of the March 1969 decision to bomb Cambodia or will he claim executive privilege on grounds of his confidential relationship with the President? If the latter, Kissinger will risk raising senatorial hackles at a time when congressional suspicion of presidential power and secrecy has reached its high point of at least the last 50 years.

At the White House itself, the disclosure by Clements was received with amazement and chagrin. Clements' Cambodian scapegoats was not appreciated, even though some cynics at first thought that Clements must have had White House authorization before producing the "top secret—eyes only" memorandum.

HEAT OF THE FURNACE
George Whitfield, the great evangelist, used to tell the story of a workman he once observed who took a piece of glass, put it first into one furnace and then another, and finally into a third heated to a very high degree of temperature. When Whitfield asked why this process was necessary, he was told that the great heat of the last furnace was required in order to make the glass transparent.

The people who have taken the hard things in life in the right spirit have a crystal-clear quality to their personalities. They have a power, poise, and resourcefulness which other people do not have. These people do not grow bitter, they do not spend the rest of their lives wringing their hands. They take the heat of the hottest furnace of adversity, and ever afterwards their lives have about them a quality which people discern and respect.

His name is Harold.
I discovered Harold accidentally. I had made a call to a company that had promised to build me some bookshelves. I demanded to talk to the head man to find out why they hadn't been delivered. He hemmed and hawed awhile and finally admitted his company didn't actually make the bookshelves—they subcontracted the work to another company.

A call to Wisconsin revealed that the company didn't make bookshelves, but supplied the wood.
"Well, who make the bookshelves?"

I called that company, which said that the work had been subcontracted to a company in Wisconsin that specialized in bookshelves.

To the editor:

The month of June was designated as Cat and Kitten month by the Humane Society of the United States, but the only recognition given to it in Pitt County was to permit the continued birth of dozens of unwanted kittens who were later thrown out on the highways to starve, be injured or killed, or an even worse fate—being dumped at the Pitt County Dog Pound—a hell-hole for all animals.

Harold lived on a farm near Delaware.
I found him in a large barn surrounded by lathes, machine tools, lumber, upholstery, saws, drills, electrical equipment and presses.

A report is to be compiled covering atrocities viewed there in the name of Pitt County aid. All persons having experienced such contact with the Pound are invited to commit them on paper and mail to me for inclusion in such report. The Pound is partially supported by taxes of animal owners and it is time that we demanded humane officers for Greenville and Pitt County rather than "dog catchers".

In every corner of the barn piled high were appliances to be fixed, furniture to be upholstered, lamps to be rewired, cabinets to be repaired, rugs to be re woven, desks to be refinished and mattresses to be restuffed.

Let us take a giant step towards not only controlling overproduction of unwanted animals but when we must, to remove the burden humanely at the veterinary hospitals rather than submit the animals to the reprehensible treatment at the dog pound.

When I walked into the barn Harold was shouting into the phone, "but I've only got two hands!" Then he hung up. "Everyone want everything in a hurry. That was a decorator in Oregon," he said. "She's been waiting on two upholstered chairs for six years. Big deal!"

We point out again that the reduced-fee spaying program is still available for needy cases so that there is little excuse for permitting extra litters of puppies and kittens to end up in suffering. Many persons do not read this paper so that it is up to the readers to pass this information along. A little help at a time can become a big help when added up. Start now! the same brag about the girls in his life. They are harder to hold on to. Someone who borrows an umbrella from you may bring it back; a man who borrows a girl may leave her someplace else later, but rarely will he return her—and never in the same shape.

Do you have good luck in some towns, bad luck in others? Many traveling men say that certain towns are always a hoodoo to them, but that in other towns their luck is always good. I have spent nearly half my life in New York City and always felt it is a kind of jinx. For all the magic it is reported to hold, it has given me few unexpected happinesses. On the other hand, I have always felt that if I ever went to El Paso, Tex., where I've never been, something nice would happen there to make my life better.

In this respect, the names of girls are like towns—you have better luck with some than others. Check your memory and see if that isn't true in your own case. I love the sound of Mary and Sarah, but girls with those names never gave me anything but a sad or bad time. Never, however, have I had any trouble getting along with girls named Frances, Marge or Dorothy. There are so many girls named Susan that you can't draw any firm conclusions. This Sue will cheer you up—that Susie will make you eat your heart out.

Why are so many elderly former policemen flatfooted? Well, it isn't from pounding a beat while they were on the force. It is caused, after they retire as cops, by standing for years on marble floors as bank guards.

Physicians say it is unfair to leap to the conclusion that a middle-aged man with a big florid nose got it from drinking. They say it is a syndrome that can have many causes. That may be true. Yet I'm sure that in my own lifetime I've seen more red-nosed men in bars than at the opera—and I've been to two operas.

Is there such a thing as a male menopause? Some doctors deny there is. They insist that the menopause is strictly a female phenomenon, as feminine as womanly intuition. But anyone who has had much experience with middle age knows that it upsets men as well as women, and provokes some men, who can't stand the thought of losing youth, into acting as crazily as if they were undergoing two menopauses. Among middle-aged married people, I long have felt, the menopause is catching—like scarlet fever. Sometimes the wife gets it first, then her husband catches it from her. Sometimes it hits the husband. (Continued on page 5)

Bicycle Sales Top Auto Sales?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Back in 1960 the bicycle was hardly considered a serious means of locomotion, even by bikemakers themselves. It was a youngster's toy at best, and a decidedly unglamorous one too.

wisdom of their attitude. Halfheartedly, cities set aside bicycle lanes at the edge of roadways, but more often in parks, since the bike was still thought to be a recreational vehicle.

pollution.
Seeking to keep their families together, parents often joined the kids on bike trips. And when they learned the convenience of the bike, they sometimes pedaled on to work.

The automobile was king of the road. A bicyclist dared not venture onto the highways, where curb-to-curb cars left him barely a gutter for safety. At home, two cars crowded the bike out of the garage.

Responding to the renewed interest, bikemakers produced more highly engineered models. By 1965, according to the Bicycle Institute of America, sales rose to 5.6 million. Nearly 33 million bikes were in use.

Sales in 1971 rose to 8.9 million units. An estimated 53.1 million bikes were in use. And bike users, including those who rented, were estimated at close to 80 million, compared with only 35 million in 1960.

In all of 1960 only 3.7 million units were sold, 1.1 million of them imported. There were about 23.5 million bikes "in use," but an opinion exists that half of them were used but once or twice a year.

Although sales declined in 1969 and 1970, the saga of the bike remains generally consistent, benefitting from one sociological change after another.

Sales last year made the biggest jump of all, to 13.9 million units, 5.1 million of them imported. More than 60 million bikes were said to be in use and there were close to 92 million riders.

Understandably, these same people tended to become more obese and prone to circulatory problems. The so-called good life often was an abbreviated one, an observation only the foolish could ignore.

For reasons of health, many Americans decided they would shine up the frame, pump up the tires of the old bike in the basement and use it as an exerciser. The bikemakers got their first encouragement in years.

"Discovery" of the bike spread. Thoughtful individuals realized that while they couldn't take their bikes out on the superhighways, they certainly could use them to advantage on local trips and around town.

Richardson Decisions Posing A Political Dilemma

FIGHTING CHOLERA — Sanitation truck sprays liquid disinfectant on the streets of Naples, Italy, inner core as a security ruled by Health authorities after an outbreak of cholera in the Naples area with seven dead and scores hospitalized. (AP Wirephoto)

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's white knight, Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson, has splashed into quicksand that threatens to overshadow the ambitious goals he has set for himself and the Justice Department.

Richardson soon must decide whether to press ahead with extortion and bribery allegations against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, a fellow Republican. He must decide — and instruct the U.S. attorney in Baltimore — whether any evidence concerning Agnew that might be developed informally by the prosecutor and his assistants warrants presentation under oath to a special federal grand jury investigating political kickbacks in Maryland.

As allegations mounted that the scandal reached high into the White House, perhaps to President Nixon himself, the renewed investigation was taken away from the department and given to a special prosecutor.

President Nixon's first attorney general, John N. Mitchell is under indictment on charges of conspiracy, perjury and obstruction of justice and is under investigation for other alleged crimes. His successor, Richard G. Kleindienst, resigned because so many of his associates were implicated in the Watergate matter.

But after Nixon demanded an end to the leaks, Richardson wrote Agnew to promise a more formal investigation. In the Watergate case, Richardson pledged to grant full authority to special prosecutor Archibald Cox and apparently has done so.

One Injured In Accidents

An estimated $1,750 property damage was set and one person were reported injured in two traffic mishaps investigated here yesterday.

Officers reported Jennifer Gene Jackson, 17, of 1005 West Sixth St. was injured when caught between two cars about 8:30 p.m. on Battle Street.

Police said Jackson was attempting to start a parked car owned by Helen Ellis Newton of 1003 West Sixth St. when another parked car, driven by William Hugh Hansley of 1200 Farmville Blvd. started forward, catching the youth between two vehicles.

No damage resulted to the two vehicle.

Johnny William Simmons of 312 Clairmont Cir. was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 5:28 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Memorial and Sylvan Drives.

Officers said the Simmons car and vehicles driven by Isaac Earl Allen of Ayden and Linford Earl Moore of 1505B Fleming St. were involved in the collision. Damage was estimated at $1,200 to the Allen car, $200 to the Simmons vehicle and $350 to the Moore auto.

No injuries were reported.

And no matter what the decision is, it seems virtually certain to draw criticism and cost Richardson some of the support he needs to restore the public image and internal morale of the Justice Department.

There are almost certain to be cries of "cover-up" if Richardson decides the allegations should be withheld from the grand jury or possibly the House of Representatives where impeachment proceedings originate.

And from other quarters will arise cries of "persecution" if he chooses to pursue the accusations Agnew denounces as "damned lies."

The issue tests Richardson's oft-stated vow to depoliticize the Justice Department in appearance as well as substance.

The department was severely criticized for its original investigation of the Watergate burglary after disclosures this spring verified news reports that the scandal reached far beyond the seven men implicated in that investigation.

The department also was jolted by charges that it settled a series of antitrust actions against International Telephone & Telegraph out of court in 1971 because of ITT contributions to the Republican party.

In that disease-ridden climate, Nixon turned to Elliot Lee Richardson, the proper Bostonian untainted by corruption after 20 years in politics, to rescue the department.

Time and time again, Richardson has told audiences and interviewers since he took command three months ago that his primary mission is to restore public confidence in the department by proving that it is administered without political considerations.

His strategy includes a course of independence from the White House, a path he has never fully explored.

The separate problems of the President and vice president test his cleverness in traveling such a course.

For example, Richardson met secretly with Agnew on Aug. 6 to elaborate the status of the investigation. But he had relayed the information to White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig days earlier.

When Agnew blamed the Justice Department for leaking allegations against him to the news media, Richardson defended the department and said he would continue an informal probe. Yet when Cox subpoenaed tapes of the President's telephone conversations with his aides, Richardson told reporters he thought Nixon had a sound legal argument for refusing them.

Some eyebrows were raised, and Richardson decided not to answer any more questions about it. Nor has he allowed newsmen to question him about his handling of the Agnew investigation.

On other issues, Richardson has taken cautious strides away from the White House.

But a knowledgeable department official said the shift toward independence is slight and should in no way be considered a revolution.

However, the Agnew case is the most serious challenge to date to Richardson's campaign to restore confidence to the department. How he answers the dilemma facing him on that issue could well decide the success or failure of his other efforts to restore confidence in Justice.

Breaking The Pattern Of One-Man, One Car

By JAY PERKINS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Experimental express bus lanes and computerized car pools are showing signs of breaking down the one-man, one-car commuting pattern in some urban areas, government reports show.

The one-man, one-car pattern largely is responsible for the rush hour traffic snarls and air pollution alerts of recent years, the reports say. Such commuting also has placed a substantial drain on the nation's energy resources.

Rather than continue to build bigger roads, the Department of Transportation has been experimenting with ways to reduce the number of cars using existing roads.

Drivers accustomed to bumper-to-bumper traffic, the department reasoned, might leave their car at home if they could be assured of riding a bus that whizzes into town on an exclusive traffic lane.

Or they might be willing to join car pools if all the parking spaces at their company parking lots were reserved for car pool members.

Several demonstration projects tend to show this is correct, the department says.

Bus ridership on Shirley Highway between Washington and its Virginia suburbs has increased 400 per cent since express bus lanes were started in 1969, the Federal Highway Administration says.

Bus patronage on the San Bernardino Freeway in Los Angeles has increased 30 per cent since an express bus lane opened last January.

A car pool program for Washington employees of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration resulted in an average of 3.85 persons per car. The national average is 1.2 persons per car during rush hours. NASA car pool members get preferred parking spaces.

Several companies have started programs of their own, the report shows.

The 3M Co., for example, has loaned 12-passenger vans to employees for transporting other employees to and from work. In return, they get a free ride and the use of the van during off hours. Passengers pay enough fare to make the commuter service break even.

McDonnell Douglas Corp.

promoted employe car pools in St. Louis, Mo., by giving drivers preferred spaces. The result was an average of 2.8 persons in each car.

Several government agencies are taking a close look at a project conducted by the Highway Administration for 600 employees.

A computer matched each employe with eight potential car poolers from his general residential area. The agency says a questionnaire sent out two months later showed the program had been well received.

Peron Begins His Campaign

By MORT ROSENBLUM
Associated Press Writer
BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Juan D. Peron kicks off his sure-to-win presidential campaign today with a balcony appearance before a throng of enthusiastic supporters parading below.

Leaders of the General Labor Confederation, the backbone of the Peronist movement, organized the rally. To insure a huge turnout they called a one-day strike for the confederation's 2 million members throughout the country. For public transport, only a 15-minute stoppage at noon was scheduled so the workers could get to and from the rally.

The 77-year-old leader was to review the parade as it passed before him, but he was not scheduled to speak.

Although the leftist Peronist youth organization is bitterly opposed to the more moderate union leaders' strong influence with Peron, it said it was taking part in the rally to bring unity to Peronism.

The police and various Peronist security forces were on a full alert to guard against violence as the opposing groups mixed. The last big Peronist rally, for his return from exile on June 20, resulted in gunfire between rival Peronist factions that killed dozens of persons and wounded hundreds.

The election is Sept. 23, and Peron is certain to win. He was nominated for the presidency after his disciple, Hector Campora, resigned so Peron could return to the office from which the military ousted him in 1955. The military had barred him from the March election in which Campora was elected.

On the eve of the rally, Peron met with Peronist members of Congress and told them Argentina must help create a "third world...where dependence on superpowers must be broken down." He called for a new "universalist" world organization in which all nations would be "allowed to defend their own identities."

Thus, the key document justifying the secret bombing policy was written not on Nov. 20, 1969, the date of Clements' memorandum, but the Previous March 16—just before the secret bombing started.

It spelled out the entire "press guidance" secrecy policy for the military to follow. One copy of this key document, obviously top secret and with limited distribution, is in the Joint Chiefs' files. However, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, present chairman of the Joint Chiefs who was testifying with Clements Aug. 9, the day Clements disclosed the Wheeler-Laird memorandum, did not give Clements the Joint Chiefs' own record.

The real push for the Cambodian secrecy policy in 1969 came not from Laird and Wheeler but from the diplomats—the State Department and Kissinger—who knew that disclosure would gravely compromise the then Cambodian government of Prince Sihanouk.

The Senate will insist on all the intimate details from Kissinger. If he refuses them, his transition to the No. 1 cabinet post will have some rocky spots.

subcontractors who depend on me and if I didn't do the work, they would all go out of business."

"But surely there must be someone else who has the skills necessary to do your kind of work."

"You'd think so, but I can't even find anyone to help me. My own son started to help me, but he found it paid better to take orders. So I'm doing it all alone."

"Is the fact that you're the only one who does the work in the United States the reason I have to wait so long for my bookshelves?"

I suppose so. Things keep piling up and I just do the best I can. I still haven't made Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes' bookshelves.

"But he passed away."

"Nobody told me. I don't get much chance to read the paper," Harold apologized.

"Well, I can move your order up then."

"When do you think I can get the bookshelves?"

"Bout April 12, 1978, if there's no shipping complications. You'll have to excuse me now, I have to fix some lamps for President Harding. It's a rush order."

"Harold, President Harding's gone, too."

"That's a shame. I guess I can go ahead then on the Judge Crater order."

Skylab's Crew Declared Fit

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — After five weeks in space, Skylab 2's astronauts "are still going strong," and doctors credit their good health to rigid exercise.

"We're very satisfied with the general health and condition of the crew at this time," reported Dr. Royce Hawkins, one of the flight surgeons at Mission Control. "They're really in excellent shape."
Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriot and Jack R. Lousma today began their 35th day in their orbiting laboratory, seven days longer than the old space endurance record set in June by the Skylab 1 crew. They plan to stay aloft 59 days.

Hawkins said in some ways the Skylab 2 astronauts are performing better now than the first crew did after 28 days. "They are still going strong and it looks like we might expect them to continue," Hawkins told newsmen Thursday night. "But we still have a way to go and we'll have to wait and see. There may be a few changes of a subtle nature that might show up later."

When the Skylab 1 astronauts returned to earth, they required nearly three weeks to completely readapt to gravity because their heart and muscle systems had deconditioned in weightlessness. They recommended that the Skylab 2 spacemen do more exercise to help prevent deconditioning, and an hour a day was scheduled for each man, most of it on a fixed bicycle-like device.

Each week, medical specialists evaluate the conditions of the astronauts and make a decision on whether to continue the mission for another week. On Thursday they gave the go-ahead until at least Sept. 7.

First Woman Preacher In The Reformed Church

By JON HALVORSEN
Associated Press Writer
PEARL RIVER, N.Y. (AP) — "Christ was a radical. He spoke to women, He associated with the oppressed, the underdogs of society," Joyce Stedje declares.

Such sentiments aren't normally associated with the old and sedate Reformed Church in America, which traces its origins in this country to 1628. But Mrs. Stedje, 47, a mother of six whose soft voice and gentle manner believe firm Christian convictions, has succeeded in getting the Church to discard one of its oldest traditions. She is the first woman in the history of the 220,000-member Church to be granted a license to preach.

She took the initial step last January when she went before the district governing body of the Church for examination on her license to preach and ordination as a minister, subject to her receiving a "call" from a congregation.

But first the group of about 50 men pondered an article in the Book of Church Order which begins: "The ministers of the Word are those persons who ..."

They decided unanimously that "persons" meant women as well as men. Mrs. Stedje was pleased by the ruling, but thought it would have been "pretty presumptuous to limit God" in His choice of who will serve the Church.

She has already preached and conducted Sunday services at three Reformed churches in New York and New Jersey whose congregations were "very friendly and very open" toward a woman in the pulpit. But she dislikes the connotations of "preacher."

"I'm happiest in a dialogue situation ... where the congregation is not sitting passively and being talked down to," she says.

Final approval of her license to preach came at the Church's General Synod in Pella, Iowa, in June. After a 1½-hour debate, a key motion to consider her case separately from that of eight men was defeated by a margin of more than 2 to 1.

One woman told Mrs. Stedje, "I'm all for you being ordained, but I personally wouldn't want a woman minister."

But the former grade school teacher who earned a masters degree in divinity from Union Theological Seminary is not yet a minister. Under Reformed Church rules, an applicant is not ordained until after he receives a call from a church. And each congregation is free to choose its own pastor.

"So if a church doesn't want a woman, she's not going to be ordained," says Mrs. Stedje.

"It is a simple exercise in political power," DeBruhl said in a statement read at a news conference.

DeBruhl referred to Thursday's shskup in the state Highway Patrol as a "politically-motivated purge of ranking career personnel."

'Wholesale Purge' Of N.C. Employes Laid To Holshouser

RALEIGH (AP) — State Rep. Claude DeBruhl, D-Buncombe, asserted today that the Holshouser administration is conducting a "wholesale purge" of state employes.

Citing the state Department of Corrections, DeBruhl said the governor's "hatchet men are going through the ranks—from top career administrators to guards to secretaries—eliminating jobs and personnel without regard to its effect on the operations of the department, or the morale of its employes."

"It is a simple exercise in political power," DeBruhl said in a statement read at a news conference.

DeBruhl referred to Thursday's shskup in the state Highway Patrol as a "politically-motivated purge of ranking career personnel."

In announcing the changes Thursday, Gov. Jim Holshouser and Transportation Secretary

Bruce Lentz denied a "purge" of the patrol was under way and pointed out that all the personnel fired, promoted or demoted were registered as Democrats.

DeBruhl said career personnel "should be left free to pursue their duties in the public interest without fear of political reprisal or meddling by either party."

WON'T YOU HELP US TO HELP HIM TO HELP YOU?

YOU MAY be seeing a new businessman in your neighborhood in the next few weeks. He (or she) is willing and eager to make a success of managing his newspaper route. He's got a lot to learn. How to make delivery in the right way and at the right time. How to keep accurate records. How to collect properly, pay for his papers and make a full profit. Most of all, how to keep his customers happy all of the time. Sometimes, it's not too easy.

OUR CIRCULATION DEPARTMENT tries to select the best possible young people for each route. We try to teach, train and advise them in the basics of their first business venture. We hope they will give you the best service possible.

IF YOUR SERVICE isn't just right, we'd like to ask a favor of you. Won't you let us know? If he's forgotten to deliver your paper, we'll remind him. If he is unnecessarily late, or teases your cat or isn't collecting at the proper time, please tell us. He really wants to serve you well, and we want to help him.

IT'S HARD FOR US to know which of our new carriers needs some special help. That's where your phone call to our circulation department can show us where to direct our efforts. All of us want you to be happy with our newspaper and service.

Beginning of the year TWO

How did we ever get into the habit of looking backwards? By-product of some shoddy mathematics, no doubt. If the day you are born is your birthday—then it's undoubtedly your first birthday. And when you are a year old you should celebrate your second birthday, and begin your second year.

Of course, we are not seriously advocating that everybody add one to his next birthday. That would be too confusing for certain friends of ours who are 39 and holding!

But you will agree, won't you, that on birthdays we ought to be looking ahead? The only year we can do anything about is the one we're about to live. Opportunities do a great deal more for human character than memories, no matter how fond the memories.

The churches with their tremendous resources for spiritual training and growth always celebrate our children's birthdays by looking ahead.

Salary Curbs In Executive Ranks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Salary increases for top business executives could be limited to 5.5 per cent a year under Phase 4 economic regulations proposed by the Cost of Living Council.

The Council said Thursday it was seeking the change from Phase 3 guidelines to make executive pay "conform more closely to the regulations in effect for other wage and salary groups."

Under Phase 4, most workers are permitted a 5.5 per cent increase, and seven-tenths of one per cent for fringe benefits.

The Phase 3 program specified only 5.5 per cent guidelines, for executive salary increases. The guidelines were not mandatory limits.

The Cost of Living proposal to set mandatory limits for executive increases provided for exceptions that could be granted with prior approval from the council.

The council said it would issue the regulations sometime after Sept. 17. Until then the council said it would accept comments about the proposal.

Phase 4 guidelines for most other workers are unchanged from Phase 3 regulations. Hebert Messer, a spokesman for the council's wage division, said the new regulations would affect top company executives—from as few as three in a small company to as many as 40 for a major auto maker.

He said the regulations would apply to all firms and that companies whose annual revenues exceeded $250 million would have to report incentive pay and salaries to the government. Firms with revenues of more than $50 million would be required to keep records of these payments.

In addition, all firms would have to set up an executive control group to keep track of bonuses and salaries that are paid to top executives.

Commenting in Charlotte on his new assignment, McNery said he will serve until a new chancellor can be selected. "I am not a candidate for the chancellorship," he added.

McNery moved to UNCC from Stetson University in Florida, where he served as dean. Carlton was named president of WCU on June 21, 1972, and has had an embattled tenure. Last January, two faculty members resigned and others threatened to do the same in protest against proposed changes by Carlton.

One proposal, dropped shortly after it was announced, called for a one-year moratorium on the granting of tenure to faculty members.

Another proposal, also dropped later, called for changing the starting date for the school year from Sept. 14 to Sept. 1. Students objected, arguing that starting school two weeks earlier would cost many of them two weeks pay from summer jobs.

Carlton New Friday Aide

CULLOWHEE, N. C. (AP)—Dr. Jack K. Carlton has resigned as chancellor of Western Carolina University, effective Sept. 10, to become assistant to William Friday, president of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

A school announcement in Cullowhee said Dr. William Hugh McNery, vice chancellor for academic affairs at the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, will serve as acting chancellor for WCU.

Commenting in Charlotte on his new assignment, McNery said he will serve until a new chancellor can be selected. "I am not a candidate for the chancellorship," he added.

McNery moved to UNCC from Stetson University in Florida, where he served as dean. Carlton was named president of WCU on June 21, 1972, and has had an embattled tenure. Last January, two faculty members resigned and others threatened to do the same in protest against proposed changes by Carlton.

Again Allowing A 'News Pool'

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — The White House is resuming the practice of allowing a protective pool of newsmen to follow President Nixon when he takes private outings.

Nixon, his wife, daughter Tricia Cox and the President's Irish setter, King Timahoe, went on a two-hour excursion to a beach on Thursday. For the first time in a week news reporters were told of his plans in advance so they could follow him.

Last week the White House stopped notifying reporters in advance of Nixon's movements, apparently on orders from the President. Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said at the time that Nixon wanted to take "a private drive."

On Thursday, Nixon left the San Clemente compound and drove 12 miles to a secluded beach in the Camp Pendleton Marine Base.

'City Schools Stay Open

"We did not close any of the city schools yesterday because of the heat," Glenn Cox, Superintendent of the Greenville City Schools reported today.

Cox and principals of schools are meeting this morning to discuss the possibility of taking this action if deemed necessary. "We won't make a decision one way or another, however, until about noon," he said.

The superintendent said that because of the heat, and since most of the schools are without air conditioning, "teachers will be authorized to use floor or window fans in their rooms if they want to do that."

Of the nine schools in Greenville, only two, Aycock and Wahl-Coates, are air conditioned. Also, about one third of the classrooms at Rose have air conditioning. All other schools are without it entirely.

City schools will be closed Monday for Labor Day.

Killed When In Pursuit

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Two policemen chasing a suspect in a purse snatching attempt were killed when their police car slammed into a palm tree, officials say.

Killed were Philip Yourman, 30, and Byron Riley, 26.

Other officers said the two were patrolling a shopping center in Hollywood, late Thursday when they saw a man trying to take a purse from a woman. The man had knocked the woman to the ground and was struggling with her when he saw Yourman and Riley drive up, police said. They said the man then jumped into a nearby car and fled south toward Miami.

The officers, wearing plain clothes and driving an unmarked car, gave chase but lost control of the car while rounding a corner on a residential street not far from the shopping center, police said.

Yourman was a three-year veteran on the force. Riley had been an officer for 1 1/2 years.

The woman was released after being treated at a local hospital for minor injuries.

Man Mauled By Large Rhino

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — An attendant at an animal preserve in Palm Beach County was in serious condition early today after being mauled by a 3,000-pound rhinoceros named Gus.

Warner Andres was tending the animals when the adult male rhinoceros charged at him Wednesday and trampled him, said Dick Huhn, park manager at Lion Country Safari.

He said park officials didn't know what provoked the charge.

"They (rhinoceros) are pretty good animals," Huhn said. "They roam free in the preserve and are not very aggressive."

Romanian Official Held In Data Theft

By HARRY ATKINS Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — A Romanian government official and a Ford research engineer are being held on charges of conspiring to steal a secret glass-making process from the automaker.

An official of the Romanian Embassy in Washington also was questioned but not arrested, FBI agents said Thursday.

Alexandru Patrascu, 46, an official in the Romanian Ministry of Light Industry, was charged with conspiring with John C. Akfirat, 39, of Ann Arbor, Mich., in a plan to steal the secrets.

Ford officials said Akfirat worked with a "float-glass process," a system for the manufacture of glass used by Ford under a license agreement from Pilkington Brothers, Ltd., Liverpool, England.

The data concerning the glass-making process were to have remained secret under terms of Ford's agreement with the British company.

Ford officials said the glass has a variety of uses, including automotive.

At his arraignment before a U.S. Magistrate in Detroit, Akfirat was ordered held in lieu of $100,000 bond. Patrascu was held in lieu of $50,000 bond.

Neil J. Welch, special agent in charge of the FBI in Detroit, said Panel L. Mangu, second secretary of the Romanian Embassy was questioned and released after confirmation of his diplomatic immunity status.

Akfirat was arrested on the job at Ford. He was charged with stealing the secrets and conspiring to sell them to a Portuguese firm for $250,000.

FBI officials said Akfirat may have been trying to sell the secrets to more than one country, thus accounting for the Romanian involvement in the case.

Welch said the FBI's investigation had determined Patrascu was in possession of stolen documents. He was charged with conspiring with Akfirat to sell trade secrets.

The FBI said Covina Compania Vidreira Nacional of Lisbon apparently wanted the Ford data for the construction and operation of a European glass manufacturing facility.

Akfirat was to have been paid $250,000 for the data, in addition to being employed by Covina at $2,500 per month during the building of the European facility, an FBI affidavit said.

Welch declined to say whether Covina received any of the secret documents or if such data would be returned.

The FBI said Akfirat systematically removed highly classified technological data from Ford facilities in suburban Dearborn and made copies. Agents said Akfirat had purchased an airline ticket from Detroit to Portugal and apparently was planning to transport the copied data to Lisbon this Saturday.

Post Office At Pactolus Is Closing

PACTOLUS—The Pactolus Post Office which has served customers for more than 132 years will not open for business Saturday morning. That facility closed at the end of business today.

Mrs. Sandra Gray, postmaster for the postal facility here for the past three years, said the Pactolus office is being discontinued because it is a money-losing operation.

Pactolus customers will be served by the Greenville Post Office on Rural Route 5. Customers have been asked to erect mail boxes in front of their homes on the right side of the road, according to the line of travel of the mail carrier.

Cecil Satterthwaite served as postmaster for the Pactolus Community for 38 years. After his retirement about three years ago, Mrs. Gray was named postmaster.

Rural carrier service will provide all of the postal services, including parcel post, stamps, money orders and special services, formerly available at the Pactolus Post Office.

Mrs. Gray has been transferred to the Greenville postal facility and will be working as a window clerk.

Music Festival Plans Cancelled

MARYVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A Maryville promotion firm announced today a music festival planned Sunday in Claiborne County, Tenn. has been cancelled.

"We are cancelling all plans for a festival this weekend in the Cumberland Gap area," Better Business Promoters, Inc. said in a statement.

The company said it was unable to obtain a site for the proposed festival and time wouldn't permit it to seek another location.

At Tazewell, seat of Clairborne County along the Kentucky border, Asst. Dist. Atty. Jim Estep said "That's good news," when advised the proposed festival had been called off.

Estep said Dist. Atty. Arzo Carson of Huntsville was planning to seek a restraining order banning the event.

Since plans for the proposed festival leaked out Wednesday night, officials in both Kentucky and Tennessee let it be known they wanted no part of it.

The first report was that a festival would be held in southeast Kentucky as a protest against Tennessee drumming a proposed rockfest out of Polk County.

A man who identified himself as Joe Scott to the Knoxville Journal and WBIR-TV newsman Wednesday night, described plans for bringing eight bands to an undisclosed site in Southern Kentucky for the weekend.

Sunken Sub 'Hooked Up'

CORK, Ireland (AP) — Two submariners trapped a quarter of a mile beneath the Atlantic sang for their lives today and shortly afterward a rescue line was reported attached to their stricken craft.

Bursts of sea shanties from the minibus stuck in mud on the ocean floor helped a sister submarine grope toward it.

Then a British navy survey ship and a trawler on the scene reported a lifeline from its mother ship on the surface had been attached to a ring on the bodywork of the trapped sub.

Vickers Oceanic, owner of the pocket submarine that has been stuck on the ocean bed 150 miles south of Ireland for the past two days, said the navy report was "very encouraging."

But a spokesman added: "We are waiting for this to be confirmed by the Vickers Voyager," the mother ship.

He explained that Vickers headquarters in northern England was having communications difficulties with rescue headquarters.

Reports of the lifeline connection came as the two Britons on board the transatlantic cable-laying sub had less than 24 hours air supply left.

The summer temperature in Utah averages between 65 and 80 degrees in different parts of the state but it often climbs to well above 100 degrees.

Waltrip Wants Race Behind Him

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
DARLINGTON, S.C. (AP) — For rookie driver Darrell Waltrip, Monday's 24th Southern 500-mile stock car race is a milestone.

"I want to get this one behind me. I think too many people will be watching to see how I do, to see me tear the walls down. After this one, maybe I can settle down."

Waltrip is 26, handsome, articulate—and, some experts say, the most talented race driver since David Pearson.

He's a sure bet to win rookie of the year honors in the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing and go on to greater prize money.

He came to NASCAR's Grand National circuit after three years of winning races on short tracks around Nashville, Tenn. His advance billing was the heaviest any new driver ever brought to the elite Grand National campaign.

Last week, after impressive starts in 13 races in a two-year-old Mercury that he worked on himself, Waltrip was picked to succeed the veteran Bobby Isaac at the wheel of a Ford owned by master mechanic Bud Moore of Spartanburg, S.C. It was a ride many top-line, proven NASCAR drivers would have given up their prize money to have.

In Thursday's first round of qualifying for positions in the prestigious Labor Day race, Waltrip did what he was expected to do: he placed the car fourth in the starting order at 147,578 miles per hour.

Pearson, as expected, captured the front row pole position in the Mercury with which he has won nine of his last 11 starts and $168,555 in prize money. His speed was 150.366 miles per hour, just two m.p.h. off his own lap record for the tough 1 3/8-mile Darlington oval.

Bobby Allison won the other front row berth in a Chevrolet with a speed of 149.434 m.p.h. and all-time money winner Richard Petty was third best at 147.848 in a Dodge.

A dozen more positions were to be filled today, leaving the remaining 16 spots in the 40-car order for Saturday's final round of trials.

Waltrip, a 6-foot-1, 195 pounder, says he has no misgivings about locking horns with the Pearsons, Pettys, Allisons and the other NASCAR stars on Darlington's oval, acknowledged to be the toughest on men and machinery in stock car racing.

"The other drivers, including Pearson and Petty, know I'll be out to win it. They have gone out of their way to help me learn the business, and I appreciate it. But they don't expect me to move over when they come up behind. They expect me to race them."

"No, I'm not afraid of Darlington. It's just that I'm in a new car, the first competitive one I have had in Grand National racing. I just want to get this one out of the way and settle down for the rest of the season."

Robersonville, Now In 2-A, Is Looking For Another Loop Title

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

ROBERSONVILLE—Robersonville's Golden Eagles come off a fine season last year, which did, however, see their attempt at a second straight Class A title slip through their fingers.

And it was their last chance, too. This year, the Eagles advance to the 2-A ranks, and are a member of the Eastern Plains conference.

Noland Respass, however, believes that his team has shot at the title, despite being in a new ranking—although he isn't making any promises about a state title.

"Most of the teams in our conference are also new to the 2A ranks," Respass said. "Only North Johnston is an established 2-A team, and I guess they'll be the league favorites. But I can see us, Saratoga Central and Elm City all challenging them."

"When we go up against some of the other, more-established 2-A schools, however, it may be a different story," he added.

There is good physical strength on the team, and Respass said many of the veterans reported heavier, but without loss of speed and quickness. "We're going to be able to put the ball into the air," he added.

The reason for that is the return, for his third starting year, of quarterback Matt Wilson. "He'll do a lot of running too. And for the first time, we feel we have an adequate backup in Jimmy Stalls. Sammy Gray is also one of the finest running backs around."

The backfield has good depth and good quickness. "We're not real fast, however, but we have better size," Wilson, according to Respass, is attracting the eyes of several college coaches as he goes into his final year. "He's able to do what we want to. He can run the option, and he's a good punter and an excellent linebacker. Stalls could be starting for a lot of teams."

Gray will handle the tailback slot, his second year as a starter. Kim Knox is his backup. Robin Fowler has stepped into the fullback position, and has been "really impressive," Respass said. Frankie Spruill backs him up, giving plenty of depth to the backfield.

Neno Hayes and Jeff Warren will alternate at the flanker position, while Mike Matthews will be at the split end, backed up by Marshall Lawrence. Larry Jackson and Ricky Purvis will handle the tight end position.

James Wallace, at 6-2, 220, is

Foreman Makes First Defense

By PHIL BROWN
Associated Press Writer
TOKYO (AP) — Challenger Joe "King" Roman played baseball and champion George Foreman planned a final light gym workout on the eve of a world heavyweight boxing title fight Foreman is expected to win with an early round knockout.

"I don't agree," said Roman's manager, Bill Daly. "If that were the case they should just mail the check to the hotel. They are going to be surprised," he said of the local boxing writers who have been enthusiastic about Foreman's battering ram punches and showing sympathy for Roman, the No. 9 contender in both the World Boxing Council and World Boxing Association ratings.

Just 24 hours before the start of the 15-round fight at 12:30 p.m. Saturday here and 11 p.m. EDT Friday in the United States, Daly expressed concern about the size of the ring, which his aides went to inspect and found still not erected in Tokyo's 15,000-seat Budokan-Martial Arts Hall.

The rules call for a ring 16-to-20 feet square, and officials said Thursday the Tokyo ring would be about 17 feet.

"They've got trouble on their hands if they don't have the right ring," Daly added. "They can't put a 16-foot ring in there with two big giants. I have to protect my fighter."

"In Madison Square Garden and all over the country they have 18-to-20-foot rings," Roman's manager said.

Meanwhile, Roman was playing catch in the yard of his hotel, after some running in the morning.

When the size of the ring came up at a rules meeting Thursday, Foreman's manager, Dick Sadler, suggested an 11-foot ring so "we'll have some fighting instead of running."

He and Foreman hope the predictions of an early round knockout will come true. Foreman—who has scored 35 knockouts in winning 38 fights against no defeats—won the title from Joe Frazier with a second round knockout in January.

Roman, 25, of Puerto Rico, comes in with a record of 44 victories—22 by knockout—seven losses and one draw. He is to receive $100,000 for the fight, which is to be televised nationwide in Japan and by closed circuit in the United States.

Foreman, who is to receive $1 million, says he has no special thoughts about who he would like to meet next.

"I'm taking it one fight at a time," said the 24-year-old champion from Hayward, Calif. The managers have waived Japan's rule that three knockdowns in one round amount to a knockout. It will be up to American referee Jay Edson of Phoenix to stop the action if he

Injuries Piling Up

Injury and illness have thrown a cramp into the East Carolina football practices for the past couple of days.

A total of seven new players, not including the already announced Al Boudreau and Butch Strawderman, missed practice yesterday because of injuries and illness. Two of the number reported in sick.

"I'm alarmed," Coach Sonny Randle said, as the Pirates approached the start of the final week of preseason drills. "Our players are falling out left and right and I'm worried whether we'll have 22 sound ones left to take to N.C. State next week."

"The situation is getting critical," he added. "We never could afford injuries or sickness, and if this continues we're going to be in very bad shape to take on a very tough opponent in our first game."

The Pirates who were able to continue two-a-day drills yesterday, working more on conditioning and polishing the offense and defense.

The hot afternoon workout, however, had a pleasant ending as the Bucs were treated to a surprise watermelon feast at the end of the drills.

Two-a-day drills continue today and tomorrow, with the possibility of a final scrimmage on Saturday.

Quarterback Is Pleasing Coach

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Before preseason practice began as Appalachian State's Mountaineers prepared for their second season of football eligibility in the Southern Conference, Coach Jim Brakefield said, "The biggest question is our quarterbacks."

But Brakefield is more than satisfied so far with the performance of junior letterman Phil Coccioletti, last year's backup signal caller.

"He's been more impressive this fall than last spring, and we believe he can get the job done admirably," says Brakefield. In the event Coccioletti can't, Brakefield thinks he has two capable sophomores in Roscoe Batts and Bruce King.

The Mountaineers have been hit defensively by the loss of two of their returning starters, senior linebacker Wayne Causey and junior back Rich Hrenko.

Causey suffered a head injury last spring but appeared set for the coming season. But Brakefield says, "After observation during the first week of preseason drills, team doctors felt it was in his best interest

Broncos Going After Buffalo

By ANDY HIPPMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

"I'd like to see the whole crowd give him a standing ovation," says Floyd Little, star running back for the Denver Broncos. But Little says the Broncos would then like to celebrate the return of their old coach, Lou Saban, to Denver tonight by trouncing his Buffalo team.

"We're going after them...we're taking no prisoners this week," says Little. "We want to show him what he produced in his five years..." Saban coached the Broncos for five years, but this will be his first appearance in Denver since he left in 1971 to join the Buffalo Bills.

Both teams are putting their best finery on display for the occasion. Saban said he'll start the National Football Conference's leading rusher, O.J. Simpson, who missed the last two games with a cracked rib. John Ralston, the former Stanford coach who succeeded Saban at Denver, said he plans to start his first team backfield, with Charley Johnson at quarterback and Little and Joe Dawkins at running backs.

In other Friday night games, Miami will be at Minnesota and San Diego will be at Los Angeles.

On Saturday, Baltimore will be at Houston, Atlanta at Cincinnati, Detroit at Cleveland, Kansas City at Dallas, the New York Jets at New Orleans, San Francisco at Oakland, Pittsburgh at Green Bay, St. Louis at Chicago and the New York Giants will greet Philadelphia at Princeton.

Washington will meet New England on Sunday night. The Broncos, 1-2 in pre-season play, may unveil their newest scoring threat, wide receiver Gene Washington, acquired Tuesday from Minnesota. Talk of "the old days" will also be aroused when John Hadl, now with the Los Angeles Rams, faces his old teammates, the San Diego Chargers. Hadl, a Charger for 11 seasons, will start for the Rams, still seeking their first victory after three defeats and a tie.

John Unitas, who rested a sore back last week, is scheduled to start for the Chargers. The Dolphins' record of 23 games without a loss, already blemished by a tie, gets a stern testing from the Vikings, who are just off an impressive 34-10 romp over the Oakland Raiders.

The Dolphins have been slowed this pre-season by injuries to top ground gainers Larry Csonka and Mercury Morris.

WRAP AROUND ROOMMATE — Tight end Tom Osborne of Bluffton, Ohio, shows Coach Jack Murphy of the University of Toledo his female roommate, Herbie. She could make a great tackler. (AP Wirephoto)

Different Kind Of A Roommate For Player

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Tom Osborne, a tight end on the University of Toledo football team, may be the only player on the team with a female roommate.

He also may be the only college football player in the nation whose female roommate is a snake. This unusual liaison tends to restrict the Osborne hospitality a bit, too. Osborne's roommate is a pet boa constrictor he named Herbie, even though Herbie is a female.

Herbie is only 42 inches long right now, but eventually she will be nine feet long and about as big around as a man's forearm.

"She sleeps most of the time, and she's never bitten anyone," said the Bluffton, Ohio youth, "but I guess most people still are afraid of her because she's a snake."

"Inez, the maid who cleans our dorm rooms, wouldn't even come in my room for a whole year after I had Herbie. Now she comes in and asks me how the snake is and if it's been eating good. She sort of grows on people." That last statement may be the exact reason few persons come around to see the female roommate.

Osborne has another, more normal roommate, his twin brother Mike, also a Toledo varsity football letterman.

Until now, Osborne's mother grew Herbie's diet back in Bluffton. "At first, Herbie ate about two mice a week," said Osborne. "Then she settled into the pattern most snakes have of eating about once every two weeks. She used to eat about 10 mice at a time, or about 20 a month."

But, Herbie's appetite has grown. This summer her diet switched to rats.

"My mother has tolerated a lot of weird hobbies of mine," said Osborne, but at this point she drew the line. Now he has to begin raising the rats himself in his dormitory room.

Herbie, housed in a 10-gallon aquarium, soon will get a new home—a 25-gallon aquarium. "Snakes are just like a human muscle," said Osborne. "They have to have room to move around, and the more they move the more they grow."

Having a snake as a pet was "just something I had to do," he said.

"I had a fascination for snakes when I was a kid," Osborne said. "Herbie is more of a project with me than a hobby, and she doesn't come easy. I hate to think of the money I've spent on her already, and as she grows I'll have to spend more, but she's my responsibility and I hope to keep her until she reaches full growth."

Clemson's football team lost 26 lettermen from its 1972 squad.

Perry Checked But Martin Loads Ball

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

Hail Cesar!

But Philadelphia third base coach Bill Demars couldn't do it Thursday night.

In fact, Demars had about as much chance of hailing Cesar Tovar in the last of the ninth as he would the proverbial New York cab on a rainy day.

"I make up my mind to score," said Tovar after he ran Demars' stop sign and slid home with the winning run in the Phillies 8-7 come-from-behind victory over the Montreal Expos.

Elsewhere in the National League, the St. Louis Cardinals edged the New York Mets 1-0 in 10 innings and the Los Angeles Dodgers squeezed by the Houston Astros 6-5.

In the American League action, the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Boston Red Sox 4-1, the Cleveland Indians blanked the Detroit Tigers 3-0 and the Minnesota Twins defeated the Texas Rangers 5-2 in 11 innings.

Dodgers 6, Astros 5
Pinchhitter Ken McMullen's eighth-inning single scored pinchrunner Jerry Royster with the tie-breaking run and gave the Los Angeles Dodgers a 6-5 victory over the Houston Astros.

Cardinals 1, Mets 0
You can't lose if the other team doesn't score, but you can't win if you don't. Tom Seaver understands this and engaged in a holding action for nine innings, blanking the Cardinals while his Mets were running their scoreless string behind Seaver to 23 innings.

In the 10th, the Mets punished Seaver for the 24th time while the Cardinals scored the games only run, sending Seaver to his second consecutive 1-0 defeat.

Lou Brock opened the 10th with a double, moved up on Ted Sizemore's sacrifice and scored on Jose Cruz' one-out single.

Indians 3, Tigers 0
Gaylord Perry is a celebrity. He's just written a book. So he'll just have to get used to people touching him.

Thursday night it was umpire Red Flaherty, rubbing his fingers around Perry's ears and on his uniform.

Flaherty was checking for the foreign substance that Detroit Manager Billy Martin thinks Perry uses to load up the baseball.

Flaherty couldn't find anything so Martin decided to show the umpire what to look for. He instructed Tiger starter Joe Coleman to doctor the ball in the eighth and Fred Scherman to load it up in the ninth.

But Perry's baseballs worked better than Detroit's as the Cleveland righthander, innocent until proven guilty, checked the Tigers on six hits 3-0.

Brewers 4, Red Sox 1
In the hot corner...weighing 180 pounds...from Boston, Massachusetts...Carl Yastrzemski.

And his opponent...weighing less than a pound...from Haiti...an American League baseball.

At least that's the way George Scott, Yastrzemski's former teammate, views the Boston superstar's Thursday workout at third base.

"All he needed was a pair of boxing gloves and I thought he'd be fighting George Foreman," Scott said after watching Yastrzemski butcher three balls which led to all four Milwaukee runs in a 4-1 victory.

"Hell, he's a 13-year veteran. He could get hurt over there."

Normally a leftfielder, Yastrzemski was filling in for the injured Rico Petrocelli. His courage is admirable and so is his honesty.

"Tell Boomer (Scott) the ball he hit past me to drive in the run should have been an error, too. But tell him I'll be back tomorrow night."

Twins 5, Rangers 2
Jim Bibby lost his perfect game in the first, his no-hitter in the fifth, his one-hitter in the eighth, his shutout in the ninth and his ballgame in the 11th when the Minnesota Twins struck for four runs and held on for a 5-2 victory.

Bibby struck out 15 while giving up six hits before he ran out of gas in the 11th.

Winning pitcher Bert Blyleven also pitched brilliantly, allowing 10 hits and fanning eight before leaving the game in the 11th.

"It was a little frustrating tonight," Blyleven said. "He pitched great. I was just trying to hold them to one run and hope we'd score one some way."

Miss Gould, 16, had indicated eight days ago she was considering swimming in this meet in an attempt to qualify for the Australian team which will compete in the Commonwealth Games next year.

SYDNEY (AP) — Former Olympic swimming star Shane Gould said today she does not plan to try a comeback in the Australian national championships, which begin here today.

Michael D. Jarvis, former assistant varsity basketball coach at Northeastern University, will take a similar post at Harvard this fall.

Tired Trevino Ranked Favorite

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Lee Trevino is tired.

"I'm beat," the weary golfer said before teeing off today in the first round of the $200,000 Sammy Davis Jr. Greater Hartford Open Golf Tournament.

"I'm not playing as well as I'd like to and I know why," he continued.

"I just don't want to practice as much as I should. I can find the time to do it, but I just don't want to. I don't want to get out there and beat the balls the way I should."

"If I didn't have anything to do but play golf, that would be something else. But I've got all those other things that take up time—exhibitions, filming commercials all that sort of thing."

"Of course I can't blame anybody but me. I don't have to do all these things but I let myself get talked into them."

"But I'll tell you one thing. I'm gonna start cutting down on my schedule. Starting next year I'm just not gonna play as much. I'm gonna cut way back. The last six years I've played golf every day. If I keep beating balls as much the next four years as I have the last six, I'll be dead by the time I'm 38. And that ain't gonna happen."

Although he says he isn't playing his best, hasn't won since March and was upset by John Schroeder in the Match Play Championship last week, Trevino still ranks as the man to beat for the $40,000 first prize in this enriched event.

The purse went up from $125,000 the previous year and is now among the dozen highest on the tour.

With the increase in the purse and with Davis lending his name and prestige to the tournament for the first time, the event has drawn the strongest field in its history.

In addition to Trevino, the defending champion, other standouts in the 147-man lineup includes Arnold Palmer, Billy Casper, South African Gary Player and controversial Dave Hill.

Nastase Near Open Defeat

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Only four points separate flamboyant and controversial Ilie Nastase of Romania from defeat in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

The defending champion today resumed a match with Rhodesian Andrew Pattison which was halted with Pattison ahead 6-7, 2-6, 6-3, 6-4, 5-3.

The Nastase-Pattison match is to be resumed at 11 a.m. EDT.

Nastase is in danger of being the second seeded men's player to go down to defeat in this tourney where the players are in competition with the saunlike weather as much as with each other.

Roger Taylor of Great Britain, the No. 11 seed, frittered away a two-set lead and was upset by John Alexander of Australia in Thursday's second round.

Taylor, a semifinalist at Wimbledon this year, fought off match point five times before Alexander finally defeated him 3-6, 4-6, 6-3, 7-5.

"I wasn't aggressive enough," said Billie Jean King, drained by a heat wave that was heightened by an overnight power blackout at the hotel where she was staying. Such power shortages are common in the metropolitan area during prolonged heat waves such as the one that sent temperatures at the West Side Tennis Club to 98 Thursday.

Mrs. King, the top seed who is seeking her fourth title here, easily ousted Peggy Michel of Pacific Palisades, Calif., 6-2, 6-3 although she was erratic at the outset.

Clemson's football team lost 26 lettermen from its 1972 squad.

Pressure Off Janie Blalock

By MIKE COCHRAN
Associated Press Writer

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "It's been like climbing a mountain, and now I can see the top," said Janie Blalock.

Accused of cheating and threatened with suspension, Miss Blalock won a pair of recent legal duels with the Ladies Professional Golf Association. She says now the pressure has eased.

That served as a warning of sorts to her fellow pros as the $30,000 Charity Golf Classic opened today over the par 72, 6,243-yard Woodhaven Country Club course.

A field of 65 pros are aiming for the $4,500 first prize, and Miss Blalock is as a top contender. Four amateurs bring the field to 69.

"I think in the long run it's made me a stronger person, a less naive person," said Janie, 27, of the ordeal that began in May, 1972, with charges that she repeatedly marked and replaced her ball improperly during competition.

"I used to be a country girl," she quipped. "Now I'm a woman of the world."

A district court judge last month ruled against her suspension, and an appeals court three weeks ago threw out the LGPA case.

"It was a pretty good feeling," she admitted. "I think most of the pressure had been taken off. I think that's why I started to play better."

The United States Ryder Cup team will travel to Muirfield, Scotland, for a showdown with the British team Sept. 20-22. Only native-born PGA members are eligible.
