

Nixon To Submit New State Of Union Message

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, accusing the Democratic-controlled Congress of compiling a "very disappointing" record this year, is submitting a new State of the Union message in an effort to break loose administration-sponsored legislation.

"I don't blame him for wanting another State of the Union message because the first one was very disappointing," said House speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla.
House Republican Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan, meanwhile, said he felt Nixon handled himself well during the news conference and, "I'm pleased the President indicated the executive branch would work with Congress trying to get these things done."

—Announced he will veto a bill that would raise the minimum wage from $1.60 to $2.20 an hour, saying it would be inflationary.
—Declared he "will not dignify" any questions regarding "charges that have been made by innuendo or otherwise" against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew. He again "expressed my confidence in the vice president's integrity during the period he has served as vice president and during which I have known him."

Dealing with Watergate-related questions, Nixon said he would continue to take a "hard line" against surrendering his taped conversations to Senate or federal investigators, on constitutional grounds.

Asked if there was anything in the tapes that would reflect unfavorably on his own account of the Watergate matter, the President said, "there is nothing whatever."
Nixon was asked what he meant, specifically, by an earlier statement that he would abide only by a "definitive ruling" of the Supreme Court in the tape case now being litigated. He said his lawyers had told him it would be inappropriate to say anything further as long as the case is before the courts.

C.K. Beatty Files For City Council

A veteran city official, C. K. Beatty, who served as director of the Department of Public Works for some 26 years before retiring two years ago, filed as a candidate for a seat on the Greenville City Council this morning.
Beatty, a Gaston County native came to Greenville in 1927 after attending N.C. State University in Raleigh. He first was employed by a mortgage firm, then was a full-time employee of the North Carolina National Guard for 14 years before first taking charge of the Department of Public Works.
After 4 1/2 years with the city, he purchased an oil distribution firm in Washington, but sold that business and returned to Greenville where worked for a soft drink bottling firm before again—and for some 22 years in the future—becoming director of the city's Public Works department in 1949.

"We started that in the latter part of the 1950s... had very little money. We just sent men in there and did some work."
He emphasized, "I'd like to see people take more pride in and beautify the city more. There is no use in having parks unless we take care of them... beautify them and keep them up."
I'd like to see Greenville continue to be a progressive city."

C. K. Beatty

In addition to his years of service with the city and his more than a dozen years as an Elder and before that a Deacon in the First Presbyterian Church here, Beatty has served as vice-president of the Greenville Kiwanis Club and the North Carolina chapter of the American Public Works officials and was the first football coach at East Carolina University.
"I started the football program at East Carolina (then East Carolina Teachers College) in 1932," Beatty explained.

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP) — The five Palestinian terrorists who seized 13 hostages in the Saudi Arabian Embassy and held out for 27 hours took off from Le Bourget Airport in a Syrian Arab Airline plane today. Their destination was unknown.
Police said in addition to the Palestinians, six hostages and 12 crew members were aboard.
The aircraft took off at 2:41 p.m. — 9:41 a.m. EDT.

then refused the special Syrian plane. Each time they set a deadline, said they would start killing the hostages if their demand was not met, and then changed their demand after the deadline passed.
The terrorists seized control of the embassy Wednesday morning on the first anniversary of the Palestinian attack on the Israeli Olympic team in Munich. The invasion of the embassy embarrassed Arab delegations trying to drum up a condemnation of Israel at the summit conference of non-aligned nations in Algiers, and the Palestinian guerrilla command repudiated the terrorists.
The terrorists initially demanded an Arab jet from Algiers for their escape. When it hadn't arrived this morning, they demanded a French executive jet and threatened to start executing the hostages if it wasn't supplied in an hour.
Shortly after the deadline, they decided the executive jet wouldn't be big enough to handle their party and said they wanted to take a commercial airliner. They said they were interested in flights to Morocco, Tunisia or Algeria, and the police said they were looking for an airline that would take them.

At 9:40 a.m., 24 hours after they broke into the two-story embassy building, the Palestinians sent out word that "if at 10 a.m. we do not have a plane, we will kill two hostages, one Saudi Arabian and one French."
A woman appeared at a window and shouted in English: "Get us a plane because this time they're going to kill us."
During the night the terrorists and Arab diplomats in Paris worked out an agreement providing for Iraqi Ambassador Na'ama Al Na'ama to substitute for the six non-Arabs among the hostages, for the nine Arab hostages to accompany the terrorists to Algiers and for the ambassador to be released at the airport just before the group took off.

Jim Graham May Run For Governor

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Deposed United Mine Workers President W.A. "Tony" Boyle was charged with murder today in the killings of UMW insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and Yablonski's wife and daughter.
The charges, outlined in two state warrants, are based on new evidence from William J. Turnblazer, a middle-echelon UMW official who has turned state's evidence and who claims Boyle "initiated and instigated a plan to assassinate and murder" Yablonski, authorities said.
The first warrant, officials said, outlines murder charges against Boyle, 71, who rose to power in the UMW under the tutelage of the late John L. Lewis. The second warrant sets forth murder charges against Turnblazer, authorities said.

Former UMW President Boyle Charged In Yablonski Murders

The state warrants were filed today in Washington, Pa., 20 miles southwest of Pittsburgh, and were expected to coincide with announcement of action in the case by a federal grand jury later in the day.
The contents of the warrants were disclosed by Jess Costa, Washington County district attorney.
Sources said the federal grand jury here has been asked to consider indicting Boyle and Turnblazer on charges of conspiring to violate Yablonski's civil rights.
Turnblazer, a lawyer from Middlesboro, Ky., is president of the UMW's District 19, the district through which the government says Yablonski's murder was planned and financed. Turnblazer currently is in protective custody, according to federal sources.

Boyle's name has been mentioned repeatedly in court proceedings that have grown out of the murders, but Boyle has denied any wrongdoing. He once said he would "swear to Almighty God" that he had no knowledge of the killings.
Seven persons have either been convicted or pleaded guilty in the Yablonski killings, described in confessions and other evidence as a complex plot that was nearly given away by poor planning and, in its final moments, was nearly bungled by a jammed gun.

Turnblazer's initial details of the assassination plot were summarized in a four-page affidavit filed with the state murder warrants and signed by Pennsylvania State Trooper Elmer W. Schifko. The affidavit was based on a conversation between Turnblazer and Schifko on Wednesday, Schifko said.
The affidavit goes on to quote Turnblazer as saying he took part in a plot with Boyle and Pass to embezzle $20,000 in union money to finance Yablonski's death.
Under Pennsylvania law, a grand jury next will weigh the warrants and consider whether to issue an indictment. An indictment would have to precede any trial.

Non-Aligned Conference Opens

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer
ALGIERS (AP) — The Arab guerrilla attack on the Saudi Arabian embassy in Paris injected a jarring note in the summit conference of non-aligned nations today and detracted from a call by President Houari Boumedienne for a general break in diplomatic relations with Israel.
Instead of lobbying for an anti-Israeli resolution, Arab foreign ministers were occupied with the embassy incident. They discussed it for two hours Wednesday night, conferred this morning with their chiefs of state and scheduled another meeting today.
The foreign ministers were reported furious at the timing of the attack. "One wonders just what is behind all this," said one of them.
King Faisal of Saudi Arabia looked grim and drawn as he emerged from the opening session of the four-day conference Wednesday. He made no statement, but sources in his entourage said he felt the attack was the work of "terrorists and saboteurs, not of Palestinians."
Boumedienne, anxious to keep the conference from being overshadowed by the Paris affair, conferred with Palestinian guerrilla chieftain Yasir Arafat. Arafat assured him the terrorists in Paris were unknown to him and not part of a recognized Palestinian organization.

Neither Boumedienne nor President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, the only two Arab speakers at the opening conference session, mentioned the events in Paris in their speeches.
Along with his call on the nonaligned nations to boycott Israel, the conference's Algerian host urged joint action by the 76 nations to protect their economic interests. And he warned that there was an "imminent threat of imperialist military intervention" in the Persian Gulf area. He did not indict the United States by name, but it was obvious that Washington was his target.
The elder statesman of the conference, 81-year-old President Tito of Yugoslavia, warned the nonaligned countries against allowing the lessening of world tensions to undermine their solidarity.
The 51 chiefs of state and heads of government president also include Prime Minister Indira Gandhi of India, bemedalled President Idi Amin of Uganda, Prime Minister Fidel Castro of Cuba in a new green fatigue uniform, wizened Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia and shirt-sleeved Col. Moammar Khadafy, the dynamic leader of the Libyan revolution.

Court Sets Date For White House Tape Action

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica today granted the White House until Sept. 24 to file an answer to the Senate Watergate committee's suit seeking access to secret tapes of presidential conversations.
Sirica rejected the committee's request that action on the case be speeded up.
"The court is determined not to be rushed into a half-baked job" in this most important case, Sirica said.
White House Special Counsel J. Fred Buzhardt told Sirica he needed more time to prepare the White House response to the committee and pointed out that he is already busy preparing an appeal from Sirica's decision in a related case involving Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox's suit seeking some of the same tapes.
Samuel Dash, chief counsel for the Senate committee, argued that the committee hopes to complete its hearings by Nov. 1 and needs to get the tapes before then, thus requiring that the case be expedited.
"Whatever we have here is not that complicated a matter,"

Dash said. He said that many of the same issues arise in the special prosecutor's suit.
Meanwhile, President Nixon has declined to spell out what he meant by his statement last month that he would only obey a "definitive" ruling by the Supreme Court on the tapes issue.
But Nixon indicated at a news conference Wednesday that the matter might be clarified during the White House's appeal of a ruling by Sirica last week. Sirica ruled that Nixon must turn over to Sirica for private review nine tapes of discussions between the President and former aides implicated in the Watergate scandal.
"The matter of definitive ruling is one that will be discussed in the appeal procedure," Nixon said. "For me to discuss it in advance would be inappropriate."
The Senate committee had asked Sirica on Wednesday to speed up action on its suit so it could go to the Supreme Court in tandem with the suit by Cox.
Dash asked Sirica to schedule oral arguments for Sept. 12. He said "The committee's need for expedition is ... equal to or even greater than that of the special prosecutor."

MRS. RICHARD EUGENE HOLLEY

Couple Weds In Private Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Belinda Ann Flake and Richard Eugene Holley was solemnized Saturday at two o'clock in the afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Tom Davis performed the double ring ceremony in front of the fireplace. Guests present for the private ceremony were members of the families, grandmothers and uncle of the bride. Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Flake and Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Holley, all of Greenville.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white crepe and lace fashioned with long sleeves, empire waist and high lace collar. She carried a bouquet of roses and daisies. In her hair, she wore fresh flowers matching the white roses and daisies in her bouquet.

The mothers of the bride and bridegroom wore white orchids and the grandmothers wore white carnations.

After a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the couple will be residing in Mexico, where they will continue their education.

The house was decorated with arrangements of lowers, greenery and candles. After the ceremony, refreshments were served to the wedding guests.

Tell Jane Her House Is Dirty

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have this best friend I'll call Jane. She has been over here asking me what's wrong with her because she and her husband have been fighting a lot. She says he hasn't been coming home for supper lately. He eats out and comes home at bedtime.

I know one thing that is wrong, but I can't find the words to tell her. The minute you walk into Jane's house you smell this funny smell. It's like food decaying. And that's probably what it is, because you never saw such a filthy house. You have to step over boxes and sacks to get from one room to the other.

You can't sit down anywhere because every chair and couch is covered with stuff—books, newspapers, clothes, boxes. Her dining table is loaded with more stuff, and so is her kitchen table.

I noticed she served John his dinner every night on a tray in front of the TV because she's too lazy to clear off space on the table.

Anyway, I think you get the picture. I just hate to hurt Jane's feelings, but I'd like to tell her to clean up her house and keep it that way and maybe John would feel like coming home more often.

JANE'S BEST FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: A "best" friend should do the friendly thing and TELL Jane exactly what she thinks is the matter. What are you waiting for?

DEAR ABBY: A neighbor in my condominium complex recently suffered a heart attack, and within minutes after the police and ambulance arrived, a crowd gathered.

Some of the onlookers interfered with the ambulance attendants so they could get a good look at the victim as he was being placed in the ambulance. One man actually stopped the man's wife as she was getting into the ambulance with her husband, and asked: "What happened?"

Lest you think I was part of that crowd, I viewed all this from my apartment window.

How can people be so cruel and nosy? And then they attempt to excuse their action by saying they were "concerned."

NOT NOSY IN LAUDERDALE

DEAR NOT NOSY: Call it "morbid curiosity." There will always be people who chase fire trucks and ambulances and who take some perverse pleasure in witnessing the suffering of others.

DEAR ABBY: Having always believed that it is customary for your future in-laws to suggest the manner in which they wish to be addressed, I waited, but nothing ever was said.

I've been married for two years, and I still have the problem of not knowing what to call my in-laws, and "hey, you," is not my style.

I would feel awkward at this late date continuing to call them, "Mr. and Mrs. _____," as I did before I married their son.

I cannot call them by their first names, as some of my friends address their in-laws.

"Mother and Dad" is unnatural for me, as that is what I call my own parents. [They have told my husband to call them "Mom" and "Pop," which he does very naturally.] My in-laws are both avid readers of your column, so perhaps if you print this, they will see it and my problem will be solved.

For heaven's sake . . .

NO NAME

DEAR NO: For heaven's sake, why don't you come right out and ask: "What would you like me to call you?"

DEAR ABBY: Speaking of signs in offices of professional men, one of the best I've seen was in a medical doctor's office in San Diego.

It said: "Morticians dig cigaret smokers."

Wiggs-Bland Vows Spoken

Miss Cynthia Lee Bland became the bride of Steven Forrest Wiggs Saturday evening, Aug. 25, at eight o'clock. The double ring ceremony took place at the Wiggs' home in Greenville with the Rev. Charles Harrison officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel William Bland of Harrisonburg, Va., and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Wiggs.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of peau de soie. The molded empire bodice, encircled with scallops of peau d'ange lace, was fashioned with a lace yoke embroidered with seed and wheat pearls forming a standup scallop lace collar and long sleeves centered with cutout

Her illusion veil was attached to a headpiece of matching lace leaves and seed pearls. She carried a white lace covered Bible with a long-stemmed red rose and lace fern.

Mrs. Ann Bland Morris of Amelia, Va., sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Miss Jennie Elizabeth Bland, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid. Miss Faye Elizabeth Bland, sister of the bride, and Rebecca Annette Morris, niece of the bride, were flower girls.

David M. Wiggs, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and Samuel W. Bland III, brother of the bride, was ring bearer.

After a wedding trip to the coast, the couple will reside in Greenville.

A reception, given by the parents of the bride, was held at the Holiday Inn, Greenville.

The reception room was decorated with arrangements of white and yellow mums. The bride's table was covered with a white lace cloth and the centerpiece contained a miniature bride and bridegroom surrounded by Baker's fern, white mums and yellow dahlias flanked by white tapers in silver candelabra.

After the bride and bridegroom cut the traditional first slice of the three tiered wedding cake, guests were invited to the table by the bridegroom's aunt, Mrs. Dan Singleton, and cousin, Mrs. Donna Waters, of Raleigh, who served the cake and poured punch.

Parties Given Bride-Elect On Saturday

Miss Lou Latham, bride-elect of Bethel, was honored at a luncheon Saturday in Smithfield. Hostesses were Mrs. James Wellons and Miss Margaret Wellons.

Arrangements of bridal flowers were used throughout the house. The dining room table was centered with a silver epergne filled with pink roses and greenery.

The honoree was presented an orchid corsage and a gift from the hostesses. Special guests attending from Bethel were Mrs. Walter Latham, Miss Candy Speir, Miss Betty Blount, Mrs. Ferrell Blount and Mrs. Robert Young.

Miss Latham and her fiancé, David Miller, of Greensboro were honored at a pig pickin' Saturday evening at the Robersonville Country Club.

Individual tables were covered with blue and gold cloths and centered with lighted hurricane lanterns.

Hosts and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Weeks, Miss Bobbie Weeks, Miss Eleanor Ward Staton, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Carson, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Johnson, Mrs. W. T. Ward, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dewar, Mr. and Mrs. Delton Perry, Mr. and Mrs.

Interesting Ideas Presented In Cookbook

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — Soup for breakfast and chicken with lentils and pineapple are among the interesting and often economical ideas in recently published cookbooks about foreign and ethnic cooking.

The soup is suggested by Elizabeth Alston in "The Best of Natural Cooking Around the World" (McKay). It is miso, a spicy bean concoction that's a breakfast staple in Japan. Miss Alston, a former Cordon Bleu Cooking School instructor, has many other inventive and frequently inexpensive suggestions for good, healthful eating without faddism. For instance: Cheese pancakes for breakfast, cabbage salad with light, low-calorie yogurt dressing, turkey with mild curry sauce and tuna mousse.

Miss Alston's book is good even for beginners, because her shopping, storage and cooking directions are particularly clear.

Some of the world's most unusual ethnic dishes evolved in the Caribbean, where fish, seafood, pork and chicken are widely used because the tropical islands have neither the climate nor the terrain for cattle ranching. In "The Complete Book of Caribbean Cooking" (Evans), Elisabeth Lambert Ortiz shows how the Indians, Africans, Europeans and Asians have blended their diverse cuisines harmoniously in the nearly five centuries since Columbus first made landfall in the islands.

Holder's "Economic Recipes" Included are fish, seafood and meat stews, pot roasts, chicken cooked with various fruits and rum, rice and bean combinations, fruit breads, desserts and many soups that make a one-dish meal.

"Geoffrey Holder's Caribbean Cookbook" (Viking) is as captivating as is its multi-talented author but more admirable for his writing and illustrations than as a practical kitchen guide. Many of his 77 recipes, especially for salt cod, chicken or fresh fish, are economical, but there is no glossary and no source list for unfamiliar and not readily obtainable ingredients. Holder is best known here as a singer, dancer and actor.

In "An Invitation to Indian Cooking" by Madhur Jaffrey (Knopf), recipes appear more complicated than they actually are because the ingredient lists are long. The author uses individual spices instead of commercial curry powder.

An initial investment in seasonings is required but the basic ingredients of many dishes are lower-priced items such as ground beef, lamb shoulders and shanks, stewing beef and chicken. Almost all the spices and herbs are sold in supermarkets.

Chinese Are Complex Cooks Dutch cooking will find familiar fare in "Food That Really Smecks" by Edna Staebler (McGraw-Hill Ryerson). The author, a Canadian, grew up in a Mennonite community where plain cooking is the rule: simple chicken and meat dishes with potatoes and fresh vegetables and delectable sweets and sours-preserves and pickles. For admirers of Chinese cuisine, there are three new publications, each quite different from the others.

"Eighty Precious Chinese Recipes" by May Wong Trent (Macmillan) is almost as good as a live cooking demonstration for teaching the techniques. Line drawings accompany each recipe and most are simple to prepare, although some special ingredients will have to be ordered by anyone not living near a Chinese community. The book contains 10 chicken recipes and several with ground beef.

Many recipes in "The Step-by-Step Chinese Cookbook" by Georges Spunt (Crowell) cover two to three pages of fine print. Others are followed by several pages of variations that are hard to understand. The most useful feature of this big book is a 6-page buying guide that tells how many servings or cup measurements are obtained from a pound of various ingredients.

"Peking Cooking" by Kenneth H. C. Lo (Pantheon) is fun to read but I wouldn't try to cook from it. Terminology and measurements are retained from the original British publication and there's no list of mail order sources for special ingredients. The complexity of true Chinese cooking can best be realized from Lo's list of 15 different cooking methods — including scorched-frying. In most other parts of the world, scorched food is an embarrassing mistake!

Careful Driving Now Essential

Safety is a subject that we hear about constantly, but we have one more word of caution to offer.

East Carolina University is now open with more than 10,000 students and hundreds of faculty members back in town. Many of the students and some of the faculty are not familiar with the streets and "stop" intersections of the city. That puts a double burden on those of us who do know the local traffic routes to be careful in our driving.

A good defensive driver will be cautious at an intersection even though he knows that he has the right-of-way. If a car comes through a stop sign, the resulting wreck is just as serious and the injuries just as painful for the driver who had the right-of-way.

We should remember, too, that because of the university there are large numbers of people drawn to Greenville for seminars and meetings. On Saturdays that football games are scheduled here, big numbers of people will be coming to Greenville. Entertainment events will also draw people to Greenville who are not familiar with local streets.

Those of us who drive here every day should be careful as we move about the city. We should also be helpful to those who are looking for the proper intersection at which to make their turn.

Safe driving is something we should practice every day. During the fall months, with traffic building as it is in Greenville, we should be particularly careful.

Education's Spelling Must Be L-O-V-E

It may have crossed your mind, too, that the role of a school board and its collective school staffs represent a degree of parenthood that only the most dedicated could face up to.

In our city schools alone there are almost 5,500 young people whose lives and futures are largely entrusted to a relative few. For many hours every week they are responsible for the molding of future adults; their learnings, their safety, their physical and mental health, are entrusted to our educators.

Of course, this has been going on for a goodly number of years; and the results (we say this smugly) have not been all bad. Chalk up education as one of those professions whose hallmark must be spelled L-O-V-E.

Only Mills Can Push Tax Plan

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—The doleful political significance of Rep. Wilbur Mills' surgery for removal of a damaged spinal disc is its possibly fatal coincidence with a Nixon-Mills agreement on what is potentially President Nixon's most comprehensive tax program to battle both recession and inflation.

With Mills now out of action for one month, this highly imaginative tax program may die aborning. Only Mills, resourceful chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, has the prestige on Capitol Hill to push a new tax program through the faction-ridden Democratic Congress.

Moreover, President Nixon himself had not quite gone that last step of giving Mills the enthusiastic backing of the Nixon administration. The reason: to make up the revenue loss of tax incentives for new plant and equipment, the Mills plan would have to raise taxes somewhere—probably a small increase in the 48 per cent corporate tax rate.

"The President's still hung up on the stupid pledge he made not to raise taxes in his second term," one highly placed administration official told us. "He's beginning to bend, but he hasn't bent all the way yet."

That final stage of bending is going to be far more difficult for Mr. Nixon now that Mills is flat on his aching back in a Little Rock hospital. Yet, the President's all-out endorsement of the developing Mills plan is an absolute precondition for its success.

Realizing this, Dr. Pierre Rinfret, the President's unofficial and irrepressibly independent economic consultant, has strongly pressed the White House to get Mr. Nixon to take a vocal, exposed position backing the Mills program (incidentally giving the embattled President a nice handle to shift out of Watergate and into the economy).

Dr. Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve who has been way ahead of the administration every step of the way on the anti-inflation front, has quietly been providing Mills with research for the principal part of the Mills tax program: the fast tax write-off for new plant and equipment in such overburdened basic industries as steel.

The Fed's research staff, quietly beefed up during the Burns chairmanship, has sent Mills technical information to identify other basic industries (for example, paper, oil refining and copper production) whose products either are now in dangerously short supply or soon will be.

The idea is that encouraging new investment in these basic industries will increase future supply, thus precluding inflationary pressures stemming from shortages of materials and supplies.

That is the anti-inflation prong of the two-pronged Mills plan, and it fits the still unstated but well known views of such key Nixon advisers as William Simon, Deputy Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary George Shultz, Simon's boss and Mr. Nixon's economic czar, has said privately that he, too, likes this Mills approach. Lacking definitive word from Mr. Nixon, he is keeping silent.

Undeterred by presidential inaction, Dr. Burns, has not kept his silence. In little-noted testimony early last month to the joint economic committee, Burns publicly backed Mills' plan to build future capacity through tax incentives and thus cure what he called "severe capacity restraints" in some basic industries.

Mills, more worried over a recession than inflation, sees his tax-incentive plan as a device to continue high employment after consumer spending declines and production lines start laying off workers. That is the anti-recession prong of his plan.

Butressing Mills' fears are new findings by consumer expert Albert Sindinger. The pollster most favored by the White House, Sindinger has just informed his blue-ribbon list of big business clients that consumer sentiment show a sure-recession consensus among almost 20 million job-holding consumers as of today.

Among all consumers, Sindinger finds that lack of confidence in job security—hence fear of recession—is higher today than it was just before the August 1971 inflation-recession crisis which stampeded Mr. Nixon into his first wage-price freeze and economic controls.

Mills was a key factor in that belated Nixon-Connelly decision two years ago. He is even more important today, first because of the Watergate paralysis in the Constitution In A Smog

The day after Judge John Sirica's opinion came down, a page one headline in the Star-News summed up the state of both the weather and the law: "Smog Is the Worst Ever Recorded Here."

All over town, lawyers, pundits, clerks and cab drivers are construing the Constitution. Both newspapers have handed down concurring opinions. Sen. Sam Ervin called in to add his note of approval. The consensus is that Judge Sirica was right, and the President was wrong, in the matter of the presidential tapes.

"It is ordered," said the judge, "that respondent, President Richard M. Nixon, or any subordinate officer, official or employee with custody or control... is hereby commanded to produce forthwith for the court's examination in camera the subpoenaed documents or objects which have not heretofore been produced to the grand jury."

Well, I dissent. Judge Sirica's opinion was reasoned and temperate. His solution, is so it may be termed, does the least possible violence to the principle the President is defending. This principle holds that the judicial branch cannot "command" the executive branch to disclose its confidential papers. That proposition seems to me sound; and the principle, like chastity, cannot be surrendered in part. If the principle can be violated, goodbye principle. The Republic would survive, but our power structure would be significantly altered.

It is said that the tapes contain, or may contain, substantive evidence of value to the grand jury still investigating the Watergate scandal. "What distinctive quality of the presidency," asked the judge, "permits its incumbent to withhold evidence?"

The answer, it seems to me, is that the presidency is in fact unique. Everything about the office is distinctive. A good deal of demagogic blather has been heard these past few days about the President "being like other men." The argument runs that Citizen Nixon just happens to be sitting in the

Words That Weary

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Remarks that an avant-garde artist gets tired of hearing:

HAL BOYLE

"I like your latest canvas, Lance. What is it a picture of?"
"You can buy it if you want to, Maude. But where will you hang it—in the basement or the attic?"

"Don't tell me a man has to go to art school to learn to turn out junk like this?"

"Did you paint this one with a brush or a pocket comb, Lance?"

"That one looks like a cat had run across it before it dried out."

"Don't tell me what it is, Lance. It's more fun to guess."

"I love this canvas, 'Nocturne in a Red Brickyard.' But I can't help wondering why he painted all the bricks a bright blue."

"If my daughter turned in a drawing like that in kindergarten, the teacher would make her stand in the corner with a dunce cap on her head."

"Well, I hope he at least has the common sense to marry money. He'll never earn any."

"As Lance's parents, naturally we're proud of him. His real ambition was to be a sculptor, but we only own a small grocery store, and we couldn't afford to buy him the marble he needed."

"In my opinion he'd have done better with all that paint if he had just put it on a barn."

"For a moment I kind of liked the one titled 'Nude Sliding up a Banister'—then I found that what I thought was the banister was actually the nude."

"Don't you think this one would have a deeper meaning if you just hung it sideways, Lance?"

"I told you the children were too young to bring to the gallery, dear. We'll have to take them home now. They say the paintings scare them."

"They used to have a finger-painting chimpanzee at the Baltimore Zoo. Do you suppose Lance took any lessons from him?"

"No, I don't think Lance needs a rich patron. What I think he needs is a good case of amnesia—so he'll forget all about being an artist."

"What he really wants to do is to paint a mural for a government building, but no branch of the government is willing to be the guinea pig."

"I heard that the reason his gallery picked this time to put on a one-man exhibit of Lance's work is because all the art critics are out of town on their summer vacations."

"Your art is a lot clearer to me, Lance, now that I've started going to a psychiatrist, too."

Ship Reshaped Warfare Ideas

By BILL NOBLITT
BEAUFORD—Why all the excitement over possible raising of the ironclad battleship Monitor which has been buried under the Atlantic off Cape Hatteras for more than 100 years.

It's much more than just historical value, says Dr. John D. Costlow, for 21 years director of the Duke University Marine Laboratory on Pivers Island here in Beaufort.

It is believed that the Yankee gunboat was built using some tremendously advanced ideas in construction and equipment—and those ideas went down the ship when she sank in a gale while under tow off Cape Hatteras on December 31, 1862.

Rushed into production by orders from Washington to match the challenge of an iron-clad Confederate boat—the Merrimack (or Virginia as she was more commonly called)—Monitor revolutionized naval warfare.

John Ericsson was the designer and he answered the call for a new ship with a rough-draft preliminary sketch which won rapid approval from the authorities in Washington.

"But the orders to the builder were that he produce the ship in a hurry. Under deadline pressure, the designer did not keep detailed description in writing or engineering sketches of what he was doing," Dr. Costlow said.

Ericsson built Monitor "pretty much by eye," but Dr. Costlow said what little is known about the innovations used revolutionized shipbuilding, it is widely believed that even more exciting techniques must be on board.

For one thing, the Monitor had a steel-clad turret which proved particularly effective for protecting the guns and the commander during battle. The same technique has been used on all battleships and cruisers built in the world since 1880. Dr. Costlow, a tall, angular fellow who bites his words into crisp particles is a working scientist, as much at home behind his desk at the Marine Lab as he is trekking in shorts through the muck and sand of his beloved off-shore islands near here.

He is particularly excited as his laboratory ship Eastward with a team from National Geographic on board searches for the sunken Monitor.

What are the chances? "Good, I hope," Dr. Costlow said. "They have the most sophisticated electronic gear available on board. And they have the log of the ship which was towing her when she went down."

"That information gives us the longitude and latitude. But, of course, there's the element of slippage. She might have drifted any direction."

Dr. Costlow received daily communiques from the search party, and is waiting for the day "someone comes running in waving a piece of paper." He was preparing recently for a trip to London which will keep him out of touch for six weeks. But he will receive the word when it comes by special message.

The Monitor was launched after the crash building program on Jan. 30, 1862; sinking less than a year later.

What shape will she be in if raised? The lack of oxygen beneath the sea means the metal plates will be in prime condition, but coated probably with barnacles. Metal doesn't rust so long as it remains submerged.

But then salt-impregnated plates will rust in a hurry once exposed to air, and only an elaborate and expensive process involving use of vacuum chambers can remove the salt water and protect the ship.

So study of the boat and those unusual design and building techniques will have to be done rapidly.

Strength For Today

TRUE WISDOM
President Woodrow Wilson once wrote: "No nation can ever survive its own follies that does not indoctrinate its children in the Word of God; for the righteousness of nations, like the righteousness of men, must take its source from this fountain of inspiration."

A generation of youth today is growing up which knows little about the ways and teachings of God. It has long been established that under the principle of the separation of church and state religion must not be taught in the public schools. Whatever one might think about the wisdom and rectitude of this decision, it is plain that if youth is to be taught religion, that teaching must take place in the home and in the church. If young people are not taught the duties which God requires of man and the moral obligations we owe one to another because we are all children of the Heavenly Father, then these young people have not learned the most important truth of all. It will be a poor exchange if we make our youth wise as regards material facts and ignorant as regards the eternal purposes of God.

Just Like Other Occupations

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — While a career in professional baseball might be the dream of youth and the envy of adults, it is just another way of making a living to the analysts at the Department of Labor.

And when studied that way, as Harold Blitz of the Labor Department has done, it begins to look like every other occupation: lots of work, plenty of competition, weary repetition, tough days as well as easy ones.

About 400,000 boys play on about 13,000 high school baseball teams, according to the study, "The Drive to Win: Careers in Professional Sports." Another 25,000 play on about 1,000 college teams.

Of these, about 1,200, or one per cent of the eligible pool, including foreign players, can expect to be drafted. Once drafted they have to make the team; once they make the team they have to fight toward one of the 600 major league positions.

In 1970 about 100 rookies escaped the pool and made it to the major leagues. Those who didn't make it may have returned to a grueling life, for which they might be paid $500 or $600 a month.

"Unlike that of the majors, life in minor league baseball—where most professional players work—is characterized by small parks, small towns, small crowds, cheap hotels, and 20-hour bus rides."

Major league salaries ranged from $13,500 to more than $150,000 last year, according to the study. The average was nearly $30,000 a year.

In addition, players received $15.50 a day for food and $55 a week for laundry, drycleaning and incidentals during spring training. Sometimes the rookies got bonuses.

"The number one pick in the country might get about $70,000, and the fourth or fifth might receive $30,000," which is decidedly more than the brightest prospects from Harvard or Stanford business schools can expect.

And if they manage to play in a World Series they might, if they are winners, receive nearly $25,000, as the Oakland players earned last year, or $19,000 if they are losers, as were the Cincinnati Reds.

Other players earn money from endorsements, but this income is usually limited to the stars. Some capitalize by writing books, but this activity is even rarer.

It isn't at all uncommon to hear a major league complain about his inability to make ends meet, one of the main reasons being—in some cases, at least—the necessity of maintaining two homes.

While they are in the game they must make the most of their opportunities. The average major league career is over after 7 or 8 years. A second career is foredoomed.

Nixon Urges Arab-Israeli Negotiations Drug Chief To Be Named

By ENDRE MARTON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, urging Arab-Israeli negotiations to end their six-year-old stalemate, says a settlement would ease the oil crisis.

At a news conference Wednesday, Nixon blamed both sides for the Middle East impasse. "Both sides need to start negotiating. That is our position," he said.

"One of the dividends of having a successful negotiation will be to reduce the oil pressure," the President said.

Recognition that the Arab-Israeli dispute and the oil crisis are connected represents a shift in the administration's position, officials said. Israel opposes linking the two problems, which it says would encourage radical Arabs to press their threat to use Middle East oil as a political weapon.

But Nixon said such threats will not change U.S. support of Israel.

"To suggest that we are going to relate our policy toward Israel, which has to do with the independence of that country, to which we are dedicated, to what happens on Arab oil, I think would be highly inappropriate," the President said.

Nixon said that "both sides are at fault."

"We are pro-peace and it is the interest of the whole area for us to get those negotiations off dead center and that is why we will use our influence, what influence we have...to get those negotiations off."

Nixon warned the oil-rich Arab countries that they might lose their markets if they continue to raise prices and expropriate American companies.

"Oil without a market...does not do a country much good...I think that the responsible Arab leaders will see to it that if they continue to up the price, if they continue to ex-appropriate, if they do ex-pensation, the inevitable result appropriate without fair com- is that they will lose their markets, and other sources will be developed."

Delia Weak, Still Alive

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — Refusing to die properly, erratic tropical storm Delia waddled back into Texas early today after spending part of the night churning in the Gulf of Mexico.

The National Weather Service reported that at 3 a.m. EDT aerial observation found the center of Delia had thrust back ashore near neighboring Freeport with winds of 45 miles per hour.

Delia was expected to head in a northerly direction at about 10 m.p.h.

Delia had surged ashore Wednesday afternoon and then retreated 80 miles back into the Gulf of Mexico south-southwest of Galveston.

Gale warnings were up as winds hurled surf onto beach fronts in four-foot tides.

The National Weather Service station in Galveston said there would be more heavy rains from Central Texas eastward into parts of Louisiana, Arkansas and Mississippi.

Police at Freeport, 30 miles down the Texas coast from Galveston, said about seven inches of rain in 24 hours covered streets and continued to fall.

With streams bursting from their banks and flooding of low areas widespread, crops appeared to be suffering the heaviest damage.

In the Houston vicinity, farm experts said up to 75 per cent of a $50 million rice crop remained unharvested in the coastal plains opposite the upper Texas coast. The experts predicted losses would total several million dollars.

Cotton grower Vince Espolito of Stafford said cotton already hurt by too much rain prior to Delia had deteriorated so much that some fields would not be picked. He said plants would be shredded.

Flash flood warnings were up for dozens of counties from around Corpus Christi into Louisiana. The weather service expected rivers to keep on rising into this weekend.

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon soon will nominate John R. Bartels Jr. to run the government fight against drug pushers, administration sources say.

The action would give the Drug Enforcement Administration a permanent chief for the first time since its creation more than two months ago.

Meanwhile, the way was apparently cleared for the confirmation of Russell E. Train as administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency.

And Elburt F. Osborn, director of the U. S. Bureau of Mines since 1970, announced that he plans to resign to return to geochemical research.

Bartels, 38, has been the acting DEA administrator since the agency was formed. The nomination will be made within days, sources said Wednesday.

A White House source said one reason for its delay was some doubt about Bartels' limited administrative experience. He was not the first choice of either the White House or Atty. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson for that reason, the source said.

However, the source added, "there was never a question about his substantive qualities."

The White House source said Bartels' performance as acting administrator was considered strong and had favorably impressed officials involved in the choice of a permanent DEA chief.

A Harvard Law School graduate and one-time Fulbright Scholar, Bartels is a native of New York who has spent a career in private law practice and government law enforcement.

The word "boycott" originated when Captain Boycott, a land agent on Ireland's Achill Island, was ostracized by his tenants for charging unjust rents, National Geographic says.

Kilpatrick Col.

White House now, but he is plain old Citizen Nixon so far as the law is concerned. "He ain't no king."

The argument is specious. Patrick Henry long ago looked sourly upon the presidential office: "It squints of monarchy." Henry's vision was defective. No president is a monarch; but he is—president. Even in a purported criminal case, even if he himself were suspected of criminal conduct, a sitting president cannot be "commanded" by the courts to perform the act here demanded. If this were not true, as Jefferson told John Marshall at the time of the Burr trial, any federal judge could any president, under pain of contempt, to produce any paper, to appear in person, to testify at distant trials, and so on.

The Washington smog is filled with wild surmise. Suppose Judge Sirica's order is upheld, all the way through the Supreme Court, and the President still refuses to give up the tapes; (Nixon has said he would obey a "definitive" order, but he has changed his mind before.) would he then be cited for contempt? Would marshalls be dispatched to arrest him? To drag him physically into court? Could a president then be jailed until he purged himself of contempt?

We have had quite enough hot air without this. We have had too much law and not enough politics, for Nixon's problem is not legal, but essentially political. He could win 9-0 in the high court and still lose everything in the country. Eventually he will have to yield those tapes. The day has long passed when Andrew Jackson could say (as he probably never said,) "John Marshall has made his decision—now let him enforce it."

If the President loses, he will have to obey the court; if the President wins, he will have to make the tapes public as a voluntary act. Nothing less will suffice to dispel the suspicion, reflected in presidential popularity polls, that Nixon was in this up to his ears.

Another suspicion also floats in the smog, that the tapes have now been doctored and no longer contain "the truth." But it too hot to harry that suspicion. On this issue, the President should be trusted, or the president should be impeached. But a president, I submit, cannot be "commanded."

Shipbuilding Workers Receive Subpoenas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight special prosecutor Archibald Cox declined to discuss what the eight would be questioned about.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eight employees of a Cleveland, Ohio, shipbuilding firm have been subpoenaed to appear before the Watergate grand jury, according to court papers filed Wednesday.

The subpoenas were disclosed when an attorney for the company, the American Shipbuilding Co., asked for and received a two-week delay in the employees' appearance before the grand jury. They had been under orders to testify on Wednesday until U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica granted the delay.

Waffle House To Open Here

The opening of the Waffle House on Greenville Boulevard near the entrance to Lyndale is planned for the middle to latter part of November, according to M.E. Bailey of Orangeburg, S.C., who owns the franchise.

Bailey, noting that 60 to 90 days are normally required for construction, said that the new facility will seat some 33 customers when completed.

The Waffle House will feature a general, fast-food limited menu that includes, steaks, omelets and a variety of sandwiches, Bailey pointed out.

He said that a local manager will be hired for the new restaurant as well as employees from the Greenville area.

The chain of restaurants, headquartered in Atlanta, Ga., has some 200 Waffle House facilities in operation not only in several North Carolina cities and along the East Coast, but in locations in Texas, Colorado, Nebraska, Ohio, Michigan and other states.

Medical Research Funds Is Controversial Issue

By WILLIAM STOCKTON
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — How to parcel out money to America's medical scientists is a question which has brought debate and discussion swirling about the National Institutes of Health.

The crux of the matter is the $1.1 billion budget of the NIH, and whether it should be used for outright grants to individual scientists or for carefully tailored contracts detailing specific research.

Some characterize it as but a tempest in a teapot, the product of exaggerated concern by disgruntled scientists who have had research funds cut or feel their area of work isn't adequately funded.

But to others it portends a permanent shift in the means and emphasis of federal support of biomedical research that could erode the quality of scientific investigation, increase waste and delay the long term conquest of major disease.

Since federal support of research began its steady escalation following World War II, the individual scientist's research grant has been a hallowed institution. A researcher who encounters an interesting problem he would like to investigate writes a proposal and forwards it to the appropriate government agency. This particularly has been the case at NIH.

If he is funded, the scientist has wide freedom in his approach to the problem.

He is considered successful to the extent that he advances knowledge. From the steady accumulation of such knowledge, it is hoped, will come new treatments and cures for more diseases.

But in recent years, particularly in the last two years, the percentage of the NIH budget going to individual research grants has declined substantially. From a high of 65 per cent of the $1.1 billion NIH budget in 1968, investigator originated grants have dropped to 55 per cent of the $1.1 billion proposed 1974 budget.

The difference is an upsurge of contracts for specific research and large chunks of funds given to research centers, such as medical schools, to pursue definite goals.

The contracts, usually for one year but sometimes longer, call for specific pieces of research work aimed at a precise, attainable goal. The work is closely monitored by NIH project officers and there is little of the freedom that goes with an individual grant.

Administratively, NIH designates the large research center funds as grants. But the money, sometimes millions of dollars, goes to the governing institution or a single scientist-administrator who then parcels it out to closely supervised subordinates in the coordinated research project.

The increasing use of contracts is attracting mercenary scientists, lowering the quality of scientific research, asserts Dr. Gordon Sato of the University of California at San Diego.

Such critics don't cite specific examples of low quality, mercenary work, admitting they express personal opinions based on their impressions.

NIH officials defend the shifting funding methods and contend research quality and quantity remains high.

"We have to ask ourselves continually what funding mechanism adheres best to getting the job done. The only valid question is what mix between grants and contracts," said Dr. Guy Newell, deputy director of the National Cancer Institute, where the shift to contracts has been greatest.

NIH administrators view contracts as a useful tool to coordinate and manage research so that concrete results immediately applicable to the care of patients will emerge.

The contract figures also can be misleading, NCI officials note. A $122 million expenditure for contracts in 1972 included $72 million not for research. The money was spent on production of special drugs, research materials and gathering information or treating patients.

But the shift to contracts reflects growing pressure on federally funded biomedical scientists to produce a relevant research. Researchers worry that most research will become justifiable only if its immediate relevance can be demonstrated.

Prominent scientists, such as Dr. James Watson at Harvard University, have warned that nature doubtlessly contains surprises that could make research considered highly relevant one minute highly irrelevant the next. The basic research of today lays the groundwork for medical advances 25 years from now, they argue.

Four Outer Banks Areas In Danger

HATTERAS, N.C. (AP)—The National Park Service has pinpointed four locations along North Carolina's Outer Banks that could be in danger of being washed away by the Atlantic Ocean.

The park service recently announced it had given up a 36-year fight to hold back the ocean and in the future will cooperate with nature instead of batting it.

Robert Barbee, superintendent of the Cape Hatteras National Seashore, said that as a result winter storms may push the ocean over at least four weak sections of Hatteras Island during the next few years. This could cut the island into separate pieces.

He listed the four vulnerable spots as: a low-lying stretch of

Nepotism May Be Extended

RALEIGH (AP)—If the state attorney general approves the change, the nepotism policy of the North Carolina Alcoholic Control Board will be extended to city councils and other local governing boards which appoint local ABC boards.

The board voted Wednesday to ban employment in the ABC system of persons related closer than first cousin to city councilmen, county commissioners or others who make ABC appointments.

The action was taken after the board was notified that the ABC Board in Hot Springs would not comply with an order to reshuffle personnel.

Under the state board proposal, councilmen or other appointing board members would also be prohibited from making a contract involving ABC stores such as leasing the property for a store.

Marcus Hickman, a board member, suggested the change in the board's recently adopted hiring policies.

At Hot Springs, near the Tennessee border, two brothers are the only employees in the town's ABC store. One, C. E. Anderson, was formerly chairman of the local board but resigned at the insistence of the state board.

A third brother, Howard Anderson, is a member of the town council which appoints the board. He has a part interest in the lease for the local ABC store.

The board took its action after the attorney general ruled that under current regulations, there was no conflict of interest.

"The reason the ABC Board got into this in the first place," said Hickman, "was complaints from the mayor and local people that they were getting no money from the ABC system."

ABC Administrator Wiley Ruth said the store's margin of profit has declined from 3.6 per cent to 1.03 per cent at last report. The state average is 8 to 12 per cent.

In other action, the state board gave Northampton County Board Chairman B. R. Burgwyn 30 days to resign as either chairman or system supervisor.

Under the hiring policies, a board member is prohibited from holding another job in the ABC system. If Burgwyn doesn't resign, the board said it will remove him as supervisor.

Sun Flare Ups Reported

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, HOUSTON (AP) — With the sun erupting all over the place, solar physicist-astronaut Owen K. Garriott is having the time of his life on the Skylab space station.

sources pass Wednesday when the second medium-size flare of the day triggered an alarm on the console from which they operate a battery of eight solar telescopes.

Garriott has observed the sun all of his adult life. But, like other solar physicists and astronomers, he has been frustrated. The earth's atmosphere filters out most solar X-ray and ultraviolet radiation, leaving flares in sun study.

Now he's above the atmosphere with a sophisticated $121.2 million worth of solar instruments, and seeing more-than-expected activity.

The sun is supposed to be in a quiet period of its 11-year cycle, but ground scientists say it is performing now like it is scheduled to act two years hence.

Neil R. Sheeley of the Naval Research Laboratory told newsmen at the space center Wednesday night: "We don't know why all of a sudden these flares pop up. Something very interesting is going on here that we're trying to untangle."

Garriott, Alan L. Bean and Jack R. Lousma expected more of the same today and were prepared to cancel other experiments to concentrate on the sun. They were in the 41st day of their 59-day mission.

They called off an earth re-

Fear Pervades Charlotte Schools

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The superintendent of Charlotte and Mecklenburg County schools, Dr. Roland W. Jones, says there is fear among students, and some are even "afraid to use the rest rooms."

"The pervasiveness of a community at with itself inevitably affects children," he said Wednesday night in a television speech.

"Just as many adults of both races fear to walk throughout some parts of their communities, so do many children fear to walk in some parts of their communities—the schools, he said. "In many cases the fears of our children stem from real incidents. In many cases they stem merely from rumor. Either way the fear is real, and it's a problem that all of us must deal with."

He praised numerous parents, students, administrators and teachers who have been working "to make our schools work."

Charged In Collision

Lee Huntington-Hannah Jr., of Greenville was charged with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety yesterday following investigation of a 5:20 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial and Fairlane Drives.

Police reported the Hannah car collided with a vehicle driven by Arthur Gold Dunn Jr. of Pinetops, causing an estimated $300 damage to the Hannah car and $275 damage to the Dunn vehicle.

No injuries were reported.

Girl Collides With Bus

An 11-year-old girl received minor scratches when the bicycle she was riding collided with a school bus at the intersection of Fifth Street and Hilltop Drive—at Wahl-Coates School—about 7:50 a.m. yesterday.

Police said Lisa Carroll of 203 North Library St. apparently rode her bicycle into the side of a bus making a turn into the school.

No damage resulted to the bus or the bicycle, officers noted.

Driver of the bus was identified as William Earl Moseley, 17 of 504 East Gum Rd.

Should Measure The Fertilizer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—University of Tennessee experts say it is easy to use too much fertilizer on garden plots and that such nutrients should be carefully measured.

With the growth of novice gardening, some people are finding problems measuring fertilizer for small plots. So UT specialists suggest a way to do the job without special equipment.

Where the fertilizer rate is recommended at 100 pounds per acre, the gardener should measure out one-half cup of fertilizer for each 100 square feet of garden. Other proportions can be figured from this formula.

Ehrlichman, Krogh To Surrender

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A former White House aide indicted in the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist is expected to surrender to authorities here today, sources said.

Egil Krogh, a former assistant to former presidential domestic adviser John D. Ehrlichman, reportedly sent word Wednesday he would appear for arraignment before Superior Court Judge James G. Kolts.

Sources also said that Ehrlichman, who was indicted with Krogh and two others, notified the district attorney he will surrender next Tuesday. Kolts had given all those indicted a week to voluntarily turn themselves in.

Krogh and Ehrlichman were indicted Tuesday along with convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy and David Young, a former aide to Henry A. Kissinger, sources said. Bail for each was set at $500.

Liddy is in jail. Young's plans were not known.

The persons and charges named in the four-count indictment still are an official secret.

Ehrlichman is charged with perjury, burglary and conspiracy, the sources said.

Krogh reportedly is accused of burglary, conspiracy and solicitation of a burglary. Liddy and Young are charged with burglary and conspiracy to commit a burglary, sources said.

Ellsberg said at his Malibu home, "I wish them a fair trial."

Deputy Dist. Atty. Stephen Trott, who will prosecute the case, said it is unlikely that the defendants could be tried together.

Dist. Atty. Joseph Busch said Wednesday the local prosecution will have no adverse effect on the Watergate probe directed by special prosecutor Archibald Cox. Busch said he spoke with Cox before the indictments were returned. A Cox spokesman had said the indictments could threaten the Watergate break in probe.

Ehrlichman's perjury indictment reportedly was based on contradictions between his testimony before the panel here and his Senate Watergate committee testimony. The grand jury heard tapes of his Watergate testimony, sources said.

Annual personal income per capita for New York State's more than 18 million residents is $844 higher than the U.S. national average, according to the State Commerce Department.

Cholera Epidemic Being Controlled

ROME (AP) — Two more deaths were reported today in Italy's cholera outbreak, bringing the toll to 19 in two weeks. However, doctors said the epidemic was being brought under control.

The latest victims were a 58-year-old man in Naples and a 59-year-old woman in Foggia, north of Bari. The woman's husband died of cholera earlier this week.

The disease has killed 11 persons in Naples, where Italy's worst outbreak in 50 years was first detected, seven in the Bari-Foggia area and one in Rome.

About 690 persons were still quarantined in Naples and Bari, and 154 confirmed cases were reported in the two cities. But doctors said the number of new cases has been dropping and most of those quarantined in Naples will be released in the next few days.

In Bari, the provincial health commissioner expressed "cautious optimism."

Most of the deaths have been linked to eating shellfish, particularly mussels. Navy ships have destroyed scores of mussel beds along the south coast to enforce a nationwide ban on their sale.

Medical authorities said fish other than shellfish were safe to eat.

The Naples district attorney opened an investigation into the licensing of mussel beds in Naples harbor despite warnings from medical experts that they might be health hazards. There were reports that numerous indictments might result.

Personal per capita income for New York State residents rose to $5,000 in 1971, the highest in the nation, reports the State Commerce Department.

Land Deeded To Procter And Gamble

A deed giving title to 332.02 acres of land North of Greenville to Procter and Gamble Co. has been recorded by the Pitt County Register of Deeds office.

Procter and Gamble, the nation's largest maker of synthetic detergents and soaps, announced July 19 that it had exercised an option to purchase a site near Greenville but gave relatively few details as to the size of the tract or their plans for it.

The company said at that time that the site is only one of several locations acquired around the nation as part of a long-range plan for possible expansion of its food products manufacturing capacity.

Food products manufactured by the firm include Crisco shortening, Crisco Oil salad and cooking oil, Fluffo shortening, Pringle's Potato chips, Jif peanut butter, and Duncan Hines baking mixes.

According to the deed, filed August 28, Procter and Gamble purchased the 332 acre tract from Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Langley of Albany, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Tomas E. Langley of Eustis, Fla.; Mildred Langley Cozart and husband Otho C. Cozart of Pitt County; and Jane Langley Johnson and husband Charles H. Johnson of Guilford County.

The tract fronts on the Old Creek Road—rural road 1529—just north of Greenville, and adjoins land owned by Carolina Leaf Tobacco Company, Vermont American Corp.; and the Dale Farm Industrial Site owned by Greenville Industries.

Although no price for the tract was announced, the $664.50 tax stamp affixed to the deed indicates a transaction involving some $664,500.

Beauty Contestant Airs Her Views

By G.G. LABELLE
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — "I may have been out there wearing only a swimsuit and a smile, but I have seen women's lib girls angrily marching and bouncing down Milwaukee Avenue, and I ask you, 'who is happier, them or me?'" says Judy Hieke.

"It's not them!" says Miss Wisconsin, who took opening night, preliminary honors in the Miss America Pageant, along with Miss Illinois, Colleen Ann Metternich.

"I'm proud of my figure and I say so myself," says Miss Hieke, 5-foot-9, about 120 pounds and 37-25-36.

Miss Hieke, a University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee sophomore majoring in music, says she agrees with women's liberation in such areas as equal pay for equal work, but doesn't think much of the movement.

"I don't need movements," Miss Wisconsin has to wait until Friday to see if she can repeat Miss Meeuwse's win in the talent division.

Miss Metternich, 23, of Carthage, Ill., won the talent award and Miss Hieke won swimsuit in preliminary competition.

No winner is announced in the evening gown competition. All 50 state queens will be competing tonight and Friday

Miss America. The current Miss Wisconsin has to wait until Friday to see if she can repeat Miss Meeuwse's win in the talent division.

Miss Hieke, 19, will make another walk in evening gown competition tonight and play a flute solo in the talent competition.

Nixon Conference Analyzed

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, who had been holding news conferences less, may now be enjoying them more.

After 14 months without a televised question-and-answer session, Nixon has held two in the past two weeks. With them, the President appears to have made substantial headway in his effort to move past Watergate and turn attention to other issues.

There was evidence of that in the marked contrast between the two news conferences, one Wednesday, the other at San Clemente, Calif., on Aug. 22.

The San Clemente appearance, Nixon's first news conference in any setting since March 15, was dominated by Watergate. Eighteen of the 21 questions were related to the scandal, and most of them were harshly worded.

Indeed, Nixon at one point answered a question he had not been asked, breaking in to express his irritation at the way the questions were going. "Just a minute," he said. "We have had 30 minutes of this press conference. I have yet to have ... one question on the business of the people, which shows how we are consumed with this."

It was different Wednesday. A half-dozen Watergate questions were among the 14 put to the President, but there really were no new points raised. In responding, the President repeated what he had said before.

Inflation, oil, foreign policy and taxes, were major topics raised and covered.

In San Clemente, Nixon faced the questions piled up during nearly 10 weeks of Senate Watergate hearings. With the investigation in recess, and Congress just returning from a month off, there was no such pressure Wednesday.

Nixon quickly went on the offensive, announcing he would prod the Democratic-controlled Congress to act on administration proposals by submitting a new State of the Union message.

As in San Clemente, there was a Nixon jab at the news media as he discussed his effort to rebuild confidence in the administration.

"It is rather difficult ... to have the President of the United States by innuendo, by leak, by, frankly, leers and sneers of commentators — which is their perfect right — attacked in every way without having some of that confidence being worn away," he said.

"Now how is it restored? Well, it's restored by the President not allowing his own confidence to be destroyed ... Second, it's restored by doing something."

Nixon said that is what he is trying to achieve, but added that the news media have not paid much attention. "Your attention is, quite understandably, in the more fascinating area of Watergate," he said.

The President wants the nation's attention elsewhere, and the indications so far are that his two news conferences served that aim.

Encephalitis Kills Horses

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—An outbreak of eastern equine encephalitis has killed at least 15 horses in northeast Florida, officials report.

But health authorities said Wednesday they didn't expect another epidemic like the one that swept Florida two years ago. That one carried a Venezuelan strain of the disease that is 95 per cent fatal.

Officials said the Venezuelan strain can be transmitted from horse to horse. The eastern strain can only be carried by mosquitos and birds.

Mayor Proclaims September As Cerebral Palsy Month

Mayor S. Eugene West has today proclaimed September as the month for concerted efforts in the public fight against cerebral palsy.

"I urge the citizens of the area to support the efforts of volunteers in the fight against cerebral palsy in the spirit of public interest in the welfare of the handicapped," Mayor West states in the proclamation.

For more than 22 years the annual drive for funds has focused attention on fighting the dreaded disease that each year still cripples 10,000 new born babies.

Funds collected in the annual drives are used to provide diagnostic services, treatment and therapy.

Each year funds are also allocated to continue long years of intensive research in effort to find causes and possible prevention of the crippling disease.

Concurrent with Mayor West's proclamation, Mrs. Russell Reid Davis, chairman of the current cerebral palsy campaign, has announced that the period September 3 to October 10 will be the time set for volunteers to call on offices and businesses in the area to collect funds.

"We have a real need if we are to continue to provide all the services that victims of cerebral palsy in our community must have," Mrs. Davis reported.

This year the theme, "Happiness is Helping," has been adopted nationally for the United Cerebral Palsy campaign.

Personnel active in the current campaign, in addition to Mrs. Davis, are: Dr. Earl Trevathan, honorary chairman; Billy Nobles, Ayden; Mrs. Robert C. Young, Bethel; Mrs. William N. Gordon, Farmville; Clifton R. Gentry, Grifton; Mrs. Edwin Elam, Winterville; Miss Karen Mills, Grimesland; Miss Elizabeth Davis, Simpson; all area chairmen.

Also, the committee includes: William A. Ross, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Jeannette Cox and J. P. Morgan, Commercial and Industrial Chairmen; Dr. Robert Thurber, Appeals Letters and Special Gift Chairman; Captain John Walsh, Roadblock Chairman for Greenville; and Mrs. Robert Mewborn, Coin Container Chairman.

18 Items For City Council

An 18-item agenda faces the City Council tonight at the regular 8 p.m. session at city hall.

Under old business, the council will consider a new appointment to the Human Relations Council to replace the Rev. T.J. Payne who has resigned. John S. Whichard will complete his first term on the Redevelopment Commission in October and his reappointment will be considered tonight.

Public hearings are scheduled on rezoning requests for the W.D. Tyson property, located in the northwest intersection of the Norfolk Southern Railroad and 14th Street from R-9 to Office and Institutional; the Ione Hooker Marshburn property on Hooker Road by David Woodard from R-6 to Downtown Commercial Fringe; Pat Thomas property located east of Greenville Golf and Country Club and adjacent to Country Club Apartments from R-15 to R-6; and sections I, II, and III, of Tuckahoe Subdivision outside the city limits on State Road 1704 from RA-20 to R-9.

A request for rezoning the Pinegrove Subdivision by P.G. Dickerson from RA-20 to R-9 is scheduled. Dickerson requests rezoning of the property, located opposite Pinewood Forest Subdivision, in order to develop the area into residential lots.

Council members will also consider an application for renewal of a mobile home permit by Mrs. Eliza Underwood at 1517 S. Pitt Street and an application for a mobile home permit by East Carolina University, School of Allied Health and Social Professions, for the placement of a mobile home adjacent to the Pitt County Community Health Department and Mental Health Center.

Under new business, three applications for mobile home permits by Pitt County Memorial Hospital to place a mobile home behind the main hospital building on W. Fifth Street, the Pitt County Community Health Department to place a mobile home behind the Health Department building at 1823 W. Sixth Street, and Joe Hardy, who requests a permit to place a mobile home at 217 W. Dudley Street, will be considered.

Other business includes: an application for permits to operate taxicabs by Joseph William Spellman, Fred Lee Gray, and Mrs. Marilyn Moore Brown; a request for annexation of a triangular shaped tract in the southern portion of Tucker Estates by David A. Evans Jr.; consideration of bids for the purchase of a trampoline for the West Greenville Recreation Center, and a paint machine for the Sign and Paint Division of the Public Works Department; consideration of an ordinance adopting by reference the North Carolina State Building Code; consideration of a proposal by Barrus Construction Co. for price revisions in the city's paving contract; and approval of revisions in the city's insurance protection and bond program.

The council will also hear a report and recommendations from the Human Relations Council and also a request by Sidney H. Skinner for consideration of street light and traffic signal installations, street improvements, and operation of a Police Substation in the West Greenville neighborhood.

Second ECU Med School Class Begins

By CAROL TYLER
 Reflector Staff Writer

"This will be a four-year medical school. It won't come to be as quickly as we'd like and there's a fight ahead, but the need is here and the potential is here and we will have our four-year program," Dr. Leo Jenkins vowed during an orientation session for this year's medical students yesterday.

The session, held yesterday morning, was the first time the 20 students to be together, according to Steve Joyner, one of the students who says he is originally from Greenville.

"I wish your class could be 50 or 60 strong," Jenkins told the group. "It should be. There are definitely that many well-qualified men and women in this state who would like to attend medical school and never will be able to. North Carolina is not a land of opportunity for medical education."

Dean Wallace Wooles told the students that if they work they will succeed this year. "Last year's class did extremely well," he said. "Consciously or unconsciously, we will compare you to them. However, there's no reason you shouldn't measure up and even surpass them. Your records thus far show you're capable of just this."

He reminded them that the year will be physically and intellectually demanding. He told of one of last year's students, a former paratrooper who considered himself in excellent physical condition. The student said he worked one day with a woman doctor from Kinston, starting at 6:30 a.m. and working into the evening. He came out physically sick with fatigue, and left her with six patients left to see, Dr. Wooles related.

"Remember when you're sweating over a cadaver for seven hours that you may one day have to sweat over an operating table that long. Everything in your training has its counterpart in your future as a physician," he said.

He gave few do's and don'ts, saying that students should know they are preparing for the highest possible professional degree and that their appearance, dress, and conduct should always reflect the same.

He reminded that the patient always has the right to refuse examination or care, and that they should never be offended if during some of their clinical training, a patient did refuse.

He promised that the faculty would never discuss the politics of the medical school question with the students. "If things get too bad, I'll come in and fill you in as best I can," he said, "but for the most part, you are to set politics aside and attend to your work."

"Faculty advisors will be assigned only after we get to know you better," he said, "in the hopes that we can match personalities in as much as possible."

"All of you will get to know one another very, very well. Being part of a small class is a luxury — for you and for your professors."

The professors, Health Affairs Dean Dr. Edwin Monroe, and Vice President Robert Holt were introduced to the students. A reception followed the orientation session.

Rampants Host Jaguars In Home Opener

ED TURNAGE

Rose High School opens its home football season Friday night, playing host to the Jaguars of Farmville Central High School.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. in Ficklen Stadium.

The Rampants are hoping to improve their play from last Friday's opener against Washington that saw a 7-7 tie that the Rampants were lucky to almost broke away to score.

"We didn't play up to our capabilities," Bumgarner said in retrospect. "The heat, the lack of preparation during the final week because of heat, the number of people we had going both ways, really a lot of little things, added up to not being ready to play football," he added.

"I think we can do better. We had too many people standing around."

Bumgarner did think that the kicking game went well. "I think (Paul) Farmer got the ball away very well, and none of his kicks were returned." Farmer's kicks did get high altitude, but managed only an average of 28.7 yards, mainly due to three of the six bouncing back upfield, one over 10 yards.

He also had praise for sophomore center Ed Connolly, who played well in his first varsity start.

Defensively, the standout was another sophomore, Mike Brewington, who blocked the punt and recovered a fumble by Washington. "He did exceptionally well," Bumgarner said. Brewington was awarded the first of the weekly "BAGUBA" awards. Bumgarner explained that this stood for "Brutal, Aggressive Guy Uninhibited By Adversary."

The coach also praised Hagan and Mike Bryant for their defensive work.

"The defense did a pretty good job," he said. "They held them several times inside the 20—the offense was our problem. We spent Monday and Tuesday working on this. We're making a lot of changes in the lineup, and going to nearly everyone on a platoon."

Bumgarner said that this would allow the coaches to take with the two units while the other was on the field. "We didn't get to do this last week because so many were going all the time, so we couldn't talk out our mistakes until halftime."

Bumgarner also promised that the ball would be going into the air more this week. "We really didn't get a chance to throw last week," he said of the Rampants' two attempts, both incomplete. "Washington kept us in the hole the entire night, and we just didn't get to do what we wanted to do. I think our blocking and our confidence is going to be improved this week to allow us to do what we want to."

The Rampants will be playing host to a team opening its season, Farmville Central. "We saw them play a scrimmage game with Williamston last week," Bumgarner said, "and we were highly impressed with them."

"They have a potent offense and an adequate defense. The outcome of the game will probably rely on who can move the ball against the other better." Bumgarner also noted that the Jaguars have a pair of impressive running backs and that the line was quite aggressive. "We're going to have our work cut out for us, that's for sure," Bumgarner said.

The probable starting lineup for Rose on offense will have Mike Wallace and Ronnie Rasberry at ends, Ron Hunt and Jeff Hagans at tackles, Tim Toates and Dave Mattheis at guards, Ed Connolly at center, Henry Trevathan at quarterback, Lindberg Morris at fullback, Nat Perkins and Doug Paschal at halfbacks.

On defense, the Rampants will start Pat Hagan and George Martin at ends, Mike Bryant and Jose Baro at tackles, Jerry Griffin, Mike Brewington, Harold Randolph and Jackie Savage at linebackers, with Dickie Johnson, Keith Joyner and Al Heath in the secondary.

TICKETS

Tickets for the Rose High-Farmville Central game will be on sale at the game for $2. No student rates will be sold there.

Student tickets will be on sale through Friday afternoon in all schools of the city system for $1.

Sports Briefs

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — John Newcombe battled fellow Australian Ken Rosewall in the men's semifinals today in the U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

In Wednesday's matches, Newcombe beat Jimmy Connors of Belleville, Ill., 6-4, 7-6, 7-6 and Rosewall ousted Vijay Amritraj of India 6-4, 6-3, 6-3.

Chris Evert, Enonne Goolagong and Helga Masthoff joined Margaret Court in the women's singles semifinals. Miss Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., defeated Rosemary Casals of San Francisco 6-1, 7-5. Miss Goolagong eliminated fellow Australian Kerry Melville 6-3, 7-5 and Miss Masthoff, from West Germany, downed Julie Heldman of Houston, 6-3, 6-3.

SEATTLE (AP) — The University of Washington told five Seattle-area Elks lodges they get. The lone Rose score came on a 61 yard run with a blocked punt by Jeff Hagans, who picked up the ball after Mike Brewington had batted it off the foot of the Washington kicker.

It was the defensive play of the game for the Rampants, who didn't have much else to brag about. They did manage to stop Washington three out of four times inside the 20 yard line, but the offense had a poor night.

Overall, the Rampants picked up only 58 yards in total offense, far short of the 300 yards Coach Dave Bumgarner had set for a goal. The defense held Washington to 167 yards, and 33 of that came on the next-to-last play of the game when a runner can no longer buy blocks of football tickets for Huskies games.

Joe Kearney, the university's director of sports programs, said the lodges failed to return statements that they no longer practice racial discrimination.

Supporting Cast Helps Cincy To Down Houston In Eleventh

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Johnny Bench, Pete Rose and Joe Morgan are the leading men of the Cincinnati Reds, but not always the whole show.

There's a talented supporting cast and some of them took center stage Wednesday night. "It's guys like Dan Driessen and Ed Armbrister who are helping us turn the season around," said Rose after the Reds beat the Houston Astros 9-3 in 11 innings.

Armbrister drove in three runs in regulation time and Driessen knocked in the tiebreaker in a six-run rally in the 11th to give Reds their seventh straight victory and a two-game lead over Los Angeles in the National League West race. "Driessen is a gut hitter," said Rose. "We need one like him in the third slot."

Rose, who normally draws the raves, also applauded another of Cincinnati's new faces—pitcher Fred Norman. "Don't sell him short...he didn't get the win tonight, but what a difference he's made on this ballclub," said the Reds' star left fielder.

In other National League action, the Dodgers lost ground by losing to the San Francisco Giants 7-0; the St. Louis Cardinals gained ground in the National League East by beating the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3; the New York Mets stopped the Philadelphia Phillies 4-0 and the San Diego Padres trimmed the Atlanta Braves 4-3. Rain postponed the Chicago-Montreal game.

A walk to Tony Perez and singles by Bench and Cesar Geronimo loaded the bases and set the stage for Driessen's game-winning hit. The Reds then poured five more runs across on a sacrifice fly by Denis Menke, Clay Carroll's infield single, Rose's run-producing double and Morgan's two-run single.

Giants 7, Dodgers 0
The third-place Giants remained within five games of the top by taking a 7-0 decision over the slumping Dodgers, who have lost six in a row.

Right-hander Jim Barr hurled a six-hitter and the Giants scored seven times in the first three innings to complete a three-game sweep of their series at Candlestick Park.

Cardinals 5, Pirates 3
Ted Sizemore and Tim

McCarver each drove in two runs to lead St. Louis over Pittsburgh 5-3 as the Cardinals stretched their East lead over the Pirates to three games.

Mets 4, Phillies 0
Rusty Staub blasted a bases-empty homer and Wayne Garrett knocked in two runs with a triple to lead New York over Philadelphia 4-0. Ray Sadecki and Tug McGraw combined on a four-hitter for the Mets.

Padres 4, Braves 3
Pinch-hitter Gene Locklear's single in the ninth inning scored Leron Lee with the winning run that rallied San Diego to a 4-3 triumph over Atlanta.

American League scores: Detroit 7, Cleveland 3; Boston 7, Baltimore 5 and Oakland 11, California 8.

Mills Sees Tough Road Ahead For Tigers In New Conference

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor
(One of a series)

WILLIAMSTON—Like neighboring Robersonville, Williamston High School's Tigers have moved up into a new conference and a new classification this year, and it might cause a drop in the Tiger record.

Williamston is now in the 3-A Northeastern Conference instead of the 2-A Albemarle League, and Coach Dink Mills feels that this is definitely going to make a difference, especially this year.

"We don't have a lot of experience this year," Mills said. "We lost our center, both guards, a tackle and a split end off the offensive line—just about the whole front. This is where we've going to be real inexperienced. We have a good group of backs and we have real good experience here except for quarterback."

A total of 10 lettermen return this year, including five who started from time to time on offense and six defensive starters.

"We probably would have a stronger running game this year if we have a little more passing experience. Losing a quarterback the caliber of Mike Weaver is hard to overcome,"

Mills said. Mills feels that the Tigers have progressed further than they did last year, "but we had further to go," he added. "We are not the team we were last year, and it's going to be an entirely different year. We are going to have to play hard to win."

Offensively, the Tigers will line up in a wishbone. "But we'll run the belly series, out of it. We've spent a lot of time faking with the ball and this is going to help us. But we'll still miss the passing game we need to make the offense really work."

With Weaver gone from the quarterback spot, and Dwight Ange, Williamston's big end also gone, the passing personnel just isn't what it has been. Phil Selby is in the quarterback position this year, and although Mills feels he is doing a fine job of handling the ball, he just doesn't have an adequate passing game. "He needs to improve his confidence all around, too," the coach added. "We know he can do the job with time."

Joining him in the backfield are two who saw action last year as starters, tailback Jeffrey Roberts and fullback Joe Roberson. "Jeffrey was our main ball carrier last year, and picked up over 600 yards, and we expect all three backs to run right much this year." The receivers include slotback Kenny Speller, split ends Roy Lilley and Mike Fitzgerald, and tight end Keith Biggs, a 6-4, 200-pounder Mills calls a definite college prospect.

In the line, Rex Raiford will be at the right tackle spot with Mike Rollins moved from tackle to right guard. Ricky Holiday has proved a bright spot at center so far, while Mike Bryant will be the left guard and Billy Markland is the left tackle. "The only man back is Rollins, who played tackle last year. The linemen have come along, but it's going to take a while, especially in 3-A competition."

Defensively, Mills feels the people up front will be improved, but that the secondary could be a weak point, due to inexperience. He plans to start Markland and Michael Horner at the ends, Holiday and Dwayne Bell at tackles; Roberts and Rollins at the inside linebackers, Biggs and Speller at the outside posts, Keith Brown and either Selby or Fitzgerald at the halfbacks and Lilley at the safety.

"Having so many going both ways presents a big problem for us," Mills said. "It's especially going to hurt us on hot nights." In the conference, Mills sees Tarboro, Roanoke Rapids and Edenton as the teams to beat.

"Of the seven games we play," he said, about three will be even, and the rest will see us having to really play super to win. On paper, I guess we'd be somewhere in the middle of the race."

Mills pointed out that Williamston did not have to advance to 3-A because of enrollment, but that the school felt that it would be to its best advantages to do so, both financially and in benefit to the overall athletic program. "I think we can compete, but it's going to take a few years to adjust. In the past we could look at our schedule and see that we have only three of four teams the caliber of Edenton to play, and we could almost be assured of wins in the other games. Now, it's like having to play Edenton every week."

"It's going to be tough for a while."

DUNKEL COLLEGE FOOTBALL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Bucs Have Poor Drill

East Carolina Coach Sonny Randle continues to be worried as game time for the opener with N.C. State approaches.

The Pirate practice yesterday did nothing to improve his outlook, he said afterwards. "It was a bad practice to have so close to such an important game," he said. Both the offense and defense were very disappointing in their work.

Following this afternoon's practice, limited mainly to specialty drills, the Bucs will be given the night off—no team meetings, for free time. They plan to leave for Raleigh area tomorrow afternoon, and the cheerleaders are planning a pep rally-sendoff for them at 2:30 p.m. at Scales Fieldhouse. The East Carolina University sky jumping team will take part in the activities, and the public is invited to take part.

The Bucs will work out Friday night in N.C. State's Carter Stadium.

Game time there Saturday will be 7:30 p.m.

Boston Downs Orioles Again To Cut Eastern Lead To Four Games

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer
The numbers are still on Baltimore's side, but those figures looked a little nicer before the Orioles flew into Boston earlier this week.

The second-place Red Sox took three out of four from the American League's Eastern Division leaders this week, including a 7-5 victory Wednesday night and cut the Orioles' edge to four games.

"We just couldn't afford to lose ground in a series like this, and even a split would have hurt," said Eddie Kasko whose club won the crucial series with the help of a six-run second inning.

Elsewhere in the AL, Detroit beat Cleveland 7-3 and Oakland defeated California 11-8.

A sweep or near-sweep of the four-game set by Baltimore would have just about provided the knockout punch the Orioles are looking for. And after Baltimore's 13-8, opening-game victory, the Red Sox looked wobbly.

But the Orioles couldn't deliver that big blow and although they're still ahead on points, they have to be wary of the Red Sox.

The Red Sox victory Wednesday night was behind Roger Moret, who increased his season's perfect record to 10-0.

Dwight Evans started things rolling for Boston in the second with a two-run homer. Carl Yastrzemski followed with a two-run double and Danny Cater and Carlton Fisk supplied RBI-singles to the rally.

The outburst broke a 1-1 tie. Cater had singled home a run in the first which the Orioles matched in their second on Don Baylor's ninth homer of the season.

Tigers 7, Indians 3
Lerrin LaGrow was banished to the starting rotation Wednesday night and that move gave the recently-promoted pitcher his first victory and the recently promoted manager, Joe Schultz, his third victory in four games.

No. 3 for Schultz, the man who replaced Billy Martin, was a 7-3 decision at the expense of the Cleveland Indians.

A's 11, Angels 8.
As long as Jim "Catfish" Hunter stays out of New York City, he should be okay. The last time country boy "Catfish" went to the big city, he suffered his third loss.

That was on May 29th and he hasn't lost since. Hunter won his 13th straight game Wednesday night, pitching Oakland to an 11-8 victory over the Angels.

Ray Fosse capped a five-run Oakland first with a run-scoring single and added a two-run single to the A's ninth-inning rally.

In the National League, it was: Cincinnati 9, Houston 3 in 11 innings; San Francisco 7, Los Angeles 0; St. Louis 5, Pittsburgh 3; New York 4, Philadelphia 0 and San Diego 4, Atlanta 3. Rain postponed the Chicago-Montreal game.

Questions Abound As Dallas, Miami Clash In Exhibition Game

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS (AP) — World champion Miami meets Dallas tonight for the first time since the Cowboys administered a punishing lesson to the Dolphins in Super Bowl VI.

Question marks abound for both teams in the nationally televised, 9 p.m. EDT, National Football League exhibition contest with some 60,000 fans expected in Texas Stadium.

Dallas crushed Miami 24-3 in Super Bowl VI behind quarterback Roger Staubach. The Dolphins haven't lost a regular season or playoff game since the lashing, but will be on the rebound from a 20-17 exhibition loss to Minnesota last week.

The questions about the Dolphins include can they bounce back from defeat and can they avoid the complacency which overtook Baltimore and the Cowboys after triumphs in Super Bowl V and VI, respectively?

"Our team has a much better attitude than it did last year," says Cowboy Coach Tom Landry, who admits his team didn't have a "winning edge" after Super Bowl VI.

While Miami's come-back mettle will be tested, Landry will be looking at Dallas' pre-season finale to settle his No. 1 quarterback problem. Will it be the scrambling, daring Staubach or the conservative, pocket-passing Craig Morton?

Both played well as Dallas ripped Kansas City last week. Staubach gets the starting nod against the Dolphins with Morton ticketed for duty in the second half.

Dallas, which has been in the NFL playoffs a record seven consecutive years, is 3-2 in the pre-season while Miami holds a 4-1-1 record.

The Dolphin-Cowboy clash opens the final weekend of exhibition action in the NFL.

On Friday, Kansas City is at St. Louis, New England plays at Detroit and San Francisco is at Los Angeles. Saturday's schedule has Oakland at Buffalo, Green Bay at Cincinnati, the New York Giants against Cleveland at Akron, Ohio, the New York Jets facing Philadelphia at Tampa, Fla., Atlanta at Pittsburgh, Minnesota at San Diego and Houston at New Orleans.

Baltimore at Denver and Chicago at Washington completes the pre-season schedule Sunday.

In Wednesday's NFL activities, the New York Giants withdrew waivers on rookie defensive tackle Rich Glover Wednesday, the day after placing him on waivers. The Giants apparently placed the former Nebraska start on waivers in an effort to learn if other clubs were interested in him.

Aussies Meet In Semifinals

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — "I have a grudge to settle with Ken," said John Newcombe of his fellow Australian and semifinals opponent, Ken Rosewall.

"I beat him in the final at Wimbledon in 1970 then he smashed me here in the semifinals.

"I was so confident that I really got smashed...killed, that year."

Newcombe, the 29-year-old No. 10 seed, was feeling pretty confident again Wednesday. He had just ousted ninth-seeded Jimmy Connors, the 21-year-old from Belleville, Ill., 6-4, 7-6, 7-6 after winning both tie-breakers 5-4.

Rosewall then eliminated the last of the young lions who invaded the U.S. Open Tennis Championships. He beat a man half his age, 19-year-old Vijay Amritraj of India, 6-4, 6-3, 6-3, in another quarter-finals match.

"I had been looking forward to playing Ken for a long time because I knew he had a good backhand," said Vijay, who wasn't even born when Rosewall first started playing international tennis. "But once I got out there, I wanted to leave the court as fast as I could."

Amritraj, the good-natured conqueror of fourth-seeded Australian Rod Laver, said Rosewall "hit the ball too close to the line for me. I don't think even Laver returned so well as he did."

Rosewall, who first won the U.S. title in 1956, and then again in 1970, said he approached the match with Amritraj with the attitude that "win or lose I'd make him work at it and let him know he'd played me at least once in his career. He may never get another chance."

Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong, just as Margaret Court did earlier, reached the semifinals without losing a set, but not without a struggle.

Chris, the third seed from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., capital-

Yamaha will teach your family to ride.

Here's the chance for your family to learn all about riding a motorcycle. Safely.

It's the Yamaha Learn to Ride Safety Program.

Designed to teach beginning motorcycle riders the correct, safe way to ride. You'll learn how to sit on a motorcycle. How to handle it once you're on it. How to start, steer, shift and stop it.

We have many trained instructors to give you individual riding instruction. And plenty of new Yamaha motorcycles. Everything is free, from helmets to words of encouragement.

This program is conducted by Yamaha and your local Yamaha dealers. It is the only national motorcycle instructional program in the United States, and has the support of many local, state and national safety organizations.

It's a fun program that will be held in more than 110 major cities in the United States this year alone.

And it's open to everyone. Of course, if you're under 18, you'll need your parents' written approval.

Bring your family and friends to the Yamaha Learn to Ride Safety Program. You'll all learn to ride a motorcycle safely. And open up a whole new world of family entertainment.

Work Force Is Up In County

The civilian work force in Pitt County in July was estimated at 39,030—an increase of 6,400 from the May period.

According to Jim Hannan, manager of the Greenville Employment Security Commission, total employment rose by 6,600 to a July total of 37,490. The majority of the worker increase was in agriculture.

The nonagricultural wage and salary segment registered a loss of 130 as employment gains of 90 in manufacturing were overshadowed by worker losses of 220 in the nonfactory group. The unemployment total was down 200 from May to July.

"Total employment, led by a seasonal increase in agriculture, registered a substantial increase of 21.4 percent from May to July," Hannan said. "Farm employment showed a tremendous increase of 6,650 workers. However, worker losses in the nonfarm wage and salary sector offset some of this increase."

Nonmanufacturing employment declined 220 mainly due to the end of the regular school term at East Carolina University. Small worker gains were noted in nearly all manufacturing industries. The tobacco industry recorded the largest factor employee gain.

A comparison of July, 1973, with July, 1972, reveals an over-the-year increase of 520 workers. Agriculture was the only major group showing a decline. The largest worker increases were noted in government, apparel, chemicals, trade and service.

Total unemployment in July was estimated at 1,540, or 3.9 percent of the total civilian work force. This is a decrease of 200 since May and a decrease of 720 since July, 1972.

Unemployment insurance claims declined by 397 since May, placing the current figure of 261 or 1.5 percent of the insured work force.

"Total employment in Pitt County will probably drop to about 33,700 persons by mid-October," Hannan explained. "The majority of this expected worker loss should occur in the agricultural sector."

Led by expected seasonal employment increases in the tobacco industry, factory employment should increase by over 1,000.

"However, the closing of a local food processing plant in

Homecoming Is Planned

AYDEN — Homecoming will be celebrated by members of the Community Baptist Church here Sunday.

The Rev. Bob Cunningham, of Bluefield, W. Va., will be speaking at the morning and evening services. Special music will be provided by the minister and his wife.

Activities for the day will begin at 10 a.m. with Sunday School, morning worship at 11 o'clock followed by the fellowship meal. The evening service will begin at 7:30. All members and friends are invited to attend.

August and the termination of operations of a flakeboard plant in September will probably deter manufacturing employment growth by some 300 laid off workers," Hannan said.

Nonmanufacturing employment is expected to increase employment by about 1,500 persons over the next three months. Retail trade, service, and government will probably absorb most of this anticipated worker increase.

The Statewide Job Bank system is helping inform applicants as to available job openings in other areas, at the same time bringing qualified applicants to the jobs in our area.

"Employers are urged to use the system as it enables recruitment throughout the state," Hannan said. "Our office will be glad to show interested persons how the system works and answer any questions."

Horse Show Scheduled

PLYMOUTH — The Roanoke Saddle Club of Plymouth, will hold a horse show Saturday, beginning at 6 P.M. at the Garrett's Island Riding Ring in Plymouth. In addition to Western Pleasure and Game Classes, there will be classes in English Pleasure Roadster Pony, and classes for Novice Horsemen.

Exotic Plants Is Store Theme

The new Flora and Fauna Store, which recently opened on Arlington Drive here specializes in the sale of exotic plants and is operated by a couple knowledgeable in the care of insect-eating and other plants and animals.

Ted and Rita Minton have been in the wholesale plant business for some time, specializing in insectivorous plants, which they grow in greenhouses at their home near Fictolus. Besides the Greenville store, they have a store in Concord and will soon open others in Crabtree Valley Shopping Center in Raleigh and Vernon Park Mall in Kinston.

A large skylight in the Greenville store gives the customer the feeling of being in a greenhouse. Lush plants line the shelves and walls. There are also some gardening supplies and a few tropical fish, the latter of which will be added to later on. They also hope to have tropical birds later, if a quarantine is lifted on these.

Some items for sale include terrariums in containers as varied as six and a half gallon jugs to beer glasses, Venus flytraps singly or grouped with several other insectivorous plants, cactuses, a bromeliad, which is a South American plant related to the pineapple, rubber and umbrella trees, and many small house plants.

Minton was a biology major at East Carolina University. Perry McLawhorn, who formerly operated another garden supply store here, works with the Mintons.

Registrars Appointed

Registrars and judges of elections have been appointed for a two-year period to serve the Town of Farmville, it was announced today by J. B. Spilman, chairman of the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Farmville has one precinct. Appointed registrar is Cecil A. Lilley. Judges are Arthur C. Joyner Sr. and D. C. Johnson. Assistants are James W. Taylor and Clarence J. Artis.

Farmville citizens who have not registered to vote in the Oct. 9 municipal election have until Monday, Sept. 10 to get their names on the books, while the deadline for candidates' filing is Sept. 14. Lilley will be in his office, located at 106 E. Wilson Street, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. to accept registration, as well as on weekdays.

The Pitt County Board of Elections office in the Courthouse also will open Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Frinks To Make Appeal

RALEIGH (AP)—Attorneys for civil rights leader Golden Frinks say they will appeal a decision by the North Carolina Court of Appeals which upheld his conviction for parading without a permit last November at Wilson.

The charge grew out of a protest over the arrest of black students following a racial incident at Fike High School.

In upholding the validity of Wilson's parade ordinance Tuesday, the Court of Appeals noted the U. S. Supreme Court has previously rejected arguments similar to the ones used to declare the local law valid.

Frinks' attorneys claimed the law was invalid because it lacked "definite, objective criteria on which to base administrative decisions."

Minibottles Haven't Unleashed Hades

By ROB WOOD
Associated Press Writer
South Carolina, long noted for both its tight reins on the sale of liquor and its unbridled desire for consumption of booze, has gone some six months now under the new minibottle system without reaching the Hades predicted by its critics or the financial paradise forecast by its supporters.

If the scales tip either way, the minibottle backers seem to have the weight of public opinion and state governmental blessings on their side. Liquor, booze, old John Barleycorn, call it what you may, has been a political issue in South Carolina, a big notch in the Deep South Bible Belt, for decades.

In recent years, however, with the influx of new residents from the North and from the Midwest, the demand for a change in liquor laws became louder and louder. There were complaints that South Carolinians voted dry but drank wet. There were complaints about the brown-bagging system where you had to tote your booze into a bar, have a drink mixed out of your bottle, and then carry what was left of the fire water home.

Bootlegging was a common practice, whether it was the sale of white lightning brewed in some hidden still or the sale of regular booze after the official sundown closing time for state liquor stores.

In the general election of 1972, South Carolina voters gave approval, by a 10,000 vote margin, to the sale of minibottles, a form of liquor-by-the-drink.

Opponents of the new system said South Carolina was weaving down a liquor-paved path to moral destruction. Supporters said South Carolina was riding down a golden lane of new tax money to prosperity. Neither were right nor wrong.

Law enforcement officers throughout the state have said the minibottle system has reduced the number of arrests due to liquor.

Gov. John C. West said recently "the passage of the minibottle legislation last year and the effective enforcement of that law by our state's officers, has been the most significant contribution to improving highway safety in our state in many years."

Since the implementation of the minibottle bill, West said, "there is tangible evidence that it is working. For the first time within recent years, there is a significant reduction in the number of highway deaths and the number of fatal accidents in our state."

"For the first six months of this year," he said, "54 persons were killed on our streets and highways. For the same period last year, the figure was 63. If the present trends continue, we could optimistically anticipate that by the end of the year, highway deaths might be reduced by as many as 100, and I frankly cannot think of a finer accomplishment for our state."

Dr. Floyd Duncan, hired by the South Carolina Commission on Alcoholism to conduct an in-depth study of the minibottles, said in a recent interview:

"Perhaps it is too early to tell what the minibottle has done to South Carolina, but early indications are that consumption is lower than in the past. There are some indications that the minibottle is a measure of moderation. It appears as if drunken driving arrests are down, that those persons who take the Breathalyzer tests are showing a lower percentage of alcohol in the blood, and that traffic deaths are below last year. All of this might be attributed to the minibottle."

One of the big arguments of backers of the minibottle proposal in 1972 was that South Carolinians should be able to buy a drink and not a drunk. This meant an individual should be able to go into his friendly neighborhood bar and get a couple of minibottles,

Nicosia Has World's Oldest Supermarket

By FRANK N. HAWKINS JR.
Associated Press Writer
NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — This is one of the world's great archeological supermarkets.

Bargains can be found in beautiful amphoras or jars dating to the Hellenistic period 700 years before the birth of Christ. Or if your tastes run to the early Bronze Age, some 4,000 years ago, a rare double-neck glazed vase can be yours for about $60.

Shops are filled with hundreds of such items — jars, pots, terracotta figurines, bronze pieces, gold jewelry and others dating 5,000 years or more and many of them as fine as pieces to be found in the Cyprus museum.

The fact that it is illegal to remove from this Mediterranean island nation any item made before 1850 has not slowed the artifact trade which has without having to buy a full bottle from a liquor store and then empty the bottle before heading home.

Dr. Duncan said, in a section of South Carolina residents have been interviewed concerning the minibottle and "from the first figures available, it appears that most of these persons believe the new system cuts down on drinking."

Money out of the pocket of the average drinking man also may be having a sharp impact on the reduction in consumption at bars and restaurants. It simply costs more to drink under the minibottle system.

Once, an individual could spend, say $8, for a quart of fair-to-middlin Scotch. He would take it into the bar and pay about 40 cents for ice and mix, be it water or soda. Now, a minibottle of fair-to-middlin Scotch will cost anywhere from $1.25 to $2.50, depending on where you drink.

So, while consumption in the bars has declined, so has the projected state tax revenue dipped. Each minibottle in South carries a 25 cent state tax. Robert C. Wasson, chairman of the State Tax Commission, said recently that a year ago there was an estimate that the minibottle would bring in about $9 million annually in new revenue. But that figure has now been scaled down to $4½-$6 million.

"Part of the argument for minibottles," he said, "was that they were going to bring more people into South Carolina and that there would be an increased consumption. We anticipated that, but at this point it hasn't happened."

Several city officials around the state have admitted there has been no great, sudden growth in tourism, or conventions, since the minibottle enactment. They say an increase could be noted in the next six months and that the little mini hasn't really had a chance to prove itself."

Dr. John Roberts, editor of the Baptist Courier, official magazine for the South Carolina Baptist Church, said:

"I have not heard of any official evaluation of the effects of the minibottle. Anything I would have to say at this point would be off the top of my head and I believe we need more study before making any evaluation."

The Baptist Church was one of the most vocal opponents of the minibottle bill.

Eugene Mullikin, editor of the South Carolina Methodist Advocate, said, "We have made no particular observations. I am not evading the question, but I way home, then having their final shots before dinner in the easy chair in front of the television set.

A cross-section of persons contacted by The AP upheld this theory. All of those questioned said they really hadn't cut down on the amount of drinking, but did far more of it at home with the wife than in the bar.

One successful businessman said, "A few drinks after work and then to the old homestead. One, I just can't afford to spend that much for the minibottle and two, and a big TWO, is that I am scared of the crackdown on drunken drivers and I would lose a good job with my driver's license revoked."

There has been little criticism from those former opponents of the minibottle.

"I have not heard of any official evaluation of the effects of the minibottle. Anything I would have to say at this point would be off the top of my head and I believe we need more study before making any evaluation."

The Baptist Church was one of the most vocal opponents of the minibottle bill.

Eugene Mullikin, editor of the South Carolina Methodist Advocate, said, "We have made no particular observations. I am not evading the question, but I

way home, then having their final shots before dinner in the easy chair in front of the television set.

A cross-section of persons contacted by The AP upheld this theory. All of those questioned said they really hadn't cut down on the amount of drinking, but did far more of it at home with the wife than in the bar.

One successful businessman said, "A few drinks after work and then to the old homestead. One, I just can't afford to spend that much for the minibottle and two, and a big TWO, is that I am scared of the crackdown on drunken drivers and I would lose a good job with my driver's license revoked."

There has been little criticism from those former opponents of the minibottle.

Dr. John Roberts, editor of the Baptist Courier, official magazine for the South Carolina Baptist Church, said:

"I have not heard of any official evaluation of the effects of the minibottle. Anything I would have to say at this point would be off the top of my head and I believe we need more study before making any evaluation."

The Baptist Church was one of the most vocal opponents of the minibottle bill.

just don't know." The Methodist also opposed the minibottle, on the grounds that the church stood for abstinence of all alcoholic beverages.

There have been few problems in the enforcement of the new law, although at least one person has been arrested for bringing in minibottles from Maryland, where the state tax is 21 cents a bottle cheaper than South Carolina.

S.J. Pratt, chairman of the State Alcohol Beverage Control Commission, said recently the major problem is the failure of retailers to open the liquor in the view of customers as required by law. When it is all said and done, South Carolina will never be the same.

Last year, a political candidate even gave a cocktail party.

But back in the 1950 senatorial race, then Gov. Strom Thurmond, and now a senator, waved aloft a picture which he said showed his opponent, the late Sen. Olin D. Johnston, drinking a toast to a controversial U.S. cabinet officer.

Johnston defended his support of the cabinet officer, but hastened to add: "I don't take a drop of liquor. I never touched a drop of liquor in my life."

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE
from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The early part of the day is fine for having a constructive discussion with associates. Be careful of unpredictable changes or you could upset the benefits that otherwise could be yours. Don't become involved in arguments.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) One in influential position listens to your ideas in the morning but does not agree with you. If you are charming with everyone you can get far better results. Express happiness.

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Take the time to improve your health. Co-workers are apt to be critical and could tire you out, but take everything in stride. Not a good day for wearing your finery or taking chances.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Seek the advice you need from an expert, even though you may not use it right away. Do important things first and then tonight get those dull tasks out of the way. Do some reading.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Morning is best time to show devotion to family and friends since later you could become argumentative. Try not to be forceful with anyone. Improve your health tonight.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Early in the day is best for accomplishment in civic and business matters. Take no chances with an influential person who can give you the information you want. Evening is fine for entertaining.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) Take the time to study whatever is puzzling since there are apt to be tense moments in the morning when you could become confused. Show that you are an ambitious person. Relax tonight.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) Show that you are conscientious in carrying through with promises you have made to others and gain their goodwill. Your most important work should be handled early in the day. Be wise.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) Handle business matters efficiently in the morning and make sure you use tact for best results. A civic affair should be attended in the afternoon. Be happy with loved one tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21) Attend to those duties ahead of you with determination and get them completed without dashing off on some tangent. Make plans for taking health treatments. Take it easy tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 20) Morning is fine for planning amusements for later in the day, but take care you don't spend too much. Fine day for whatever is of a creative nature. Make plans for the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) You can handle those family affairs well in the morning and then all goes nicely later in the day. Otherwise there are apt to be all kinds of disappoint

The 'Worry Clinic' Pandering Can Ruin Republic

Elmo is pandering for votes. And thus is trying to destroy our great Republic by imitating Pontius Pilate's deference to mere majority vote. "Might makes right" is the standard rule of democracies. But in our Republic, "Right makes might."

By GEORGE W. CRANE,
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Y-510: Elmo R., is a member of the U.S. House of Representatives.

"Dr Crane," one of his constituents protested, "I consider Elmo merely a political chameleon.

"For he recently announced in his monthly Newsletter that he would always vote for whatever 51 percent of his constituents wanted.

"If he is thus merely reflecting what the Gallup and Harris or other pollsters find out, why should we spend $42,500 on his annual salary?"

"Shouldn't a legislator vote for what he knows is right and just, after he knows the secret facts from classified documents and Congressional Committee investigations?"

"We voters on the firing line may not have access to all the facts, so what we apparently may WANT at the moment may not be RIGHT!"

Pontius Pilate

Pontius Pilate was one of those chameleons, too, who ignored what was just, in order to curry favor with the majority.

Alas, far too many members of state and national legislatures do the very same thing.

But a true statesman should imitate the good family physician.

The usual doctor doesn't give a child just what he wants, for that may be candy.

Instead, the child may NEED castor oil, so the physician prescribes what his superior knowledge shows is best for his patient.

Indeed, if Congressmen merely push their voting button according to the latest surveys, why not let Dr. George Gallup do that for us and thus save the Congressman's $42,500 annual salary, plus the other $400,000 allotted to each one for this office expenses?

Dr. Gallup has expert pollsters all over the U.S.A., so they could do such button-pushing and thus eliminate the need for our entire U.S.A., Congress and state legislatures, too.

But the intent of our Founding Fathers was for us to be represented by logical statesmen who, like scientific doctors, know far more about our own problems than we do.

This popular policy nowadays of pandering to the 51 percent majority is ruining our once great Republic.

It is changing it into a democracy, which Chief Justice John Marshall showed is an intolerable type of government. "Democracy," said John Marshall, "is mobocracy!" "The difference between our Republic and a democracy," he added, "is the difference between order and chaos!" Please note that "order" and "chaos" are not synonyms!

Instead, they are opposites oronyms!

Pontius Pilate ignored the rules of the great Roman Republic and transformed his courtroom into a democracy.

In fact, it was the most perfect democracy in world history, for apparently men, women and children all were allowed to vote.

And they voted 100 percent wrongly!

For they had been propagandized into sending an innocent Christ to his death, as they screamed for the release of a known multimurderer, Barabbas.

That's what happens when democracy subverts a Republic!

So view with suspicion ANY legislator who says he merely follows the will of his constituents!

The bidding:

Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Queen of ♣
The surest way to defend against a potential crossruff is to lead trumps at every opportunity. East had the right idea, but his execution was slightly faulty.

South was somewhat weak for his first-seat opening bid. Although the hand counts up to 13 points, it does not include the two defensive tricks required for a doubtful opening bid. However, the vulnerability was in his favor and he did hold both major suits. Despite the fact that he held only four trumps, North decided to blast into four spades because of his distribution and two aces. East could not quite believe his ears, and expressed strong doubts that the opponents would be able to make ten tricks in his longest suit.

West's choice of the queen of clubs for his opening lead gave the defenders a chance to beat the contract. East realized that, as South was surely short in clubs, there was the possibility of a crossruff. Accordingly, he overtook the queen with the king and, after South followed suit, shifted to a low trump.

South's ten of spades won the trick and he set about scoring his trumps separately. The ace of diamonds was cashed and a diamond ruffed. Declarer returned to his hand with a club ruff and ruffed another diamond. After cashing the king and ace of hearts, another club was ruffed.
Declarer led a heart and ruffed with the ace of trumps as East helplessly underduffed. A club was led from dummy, and declarer had to score his queen of trumps: If East ruffed low, declarer would overruff; if East ruffed with the king, declarer would discard and his trump queen would become a winner. In all, declarer scored one trump trick, two hearts, a diamond and six ruffs.

East had the opportunity for a brilliant defensive play. Instead of leading a low trump at trick two, East should return the king of trumps, apparently sacrificing the monarch. However, the trick will return. Later in the play, when declarer tries to score his third ruff in dummy with the seven of trumps, East can overruff with the eight and declarer can maneuver no more than nine tricks.

Financing Important

"The availability of financing for homes in the country is most important for continuing development of our rural areas throughout North Carolina," according to F. L. Little, Jr., President of the Pitt-Greene Production Credit Association.

The Pitt-Greene PCA has been making agricultural loans for more than 39 years including farm homes and recently expanded services to include non-farm rural home loans. "Rural home financing is becoming an even more important part of our lending operations as more people learn that financing for homes in rural areas is available through the association," Little said.

The association makes short and intermediate loans and is currently serving more than 1128 farmers, growers, ranchers and rural homeowners with loans totaling $20,739,000 in Pitt and Greene counties. The association's home office is located in Greenville and the branch office is located in Snow Hill.

Directors of the association are Alton Gardner of Rt. 2, Ayden; W. F. Welfare, Jr., of Snow Hill; Chester Don Worthington, Jr. of Rt. 1, Greenville; David Harold Smith of Rt. 2, Ayden; and Charles H. Harper of Rt. 2, Snow Hill.

Fresno Junior College, established in 1910, was the first junior college in California, according to the California Teachers Association.

Loans Tight For Middle Income N.C. Students

By VAN VANUCH
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Prospective college students from middle income families in North Carolina are being squeezed out of the tuition loan program subsidized by the federal government, state officials say.

Duffy Paul, director of the College Foundation, Inc., in Raleigh says loan volume is down about 40 per cent over last year, the same figure reported nationally by the U.S. Office of Education.

The foundation is a private, nonprofit organization which obtains money from lending institutions and makes it available to students.

One reason middle income students are having a hard time qualifying for loans is that Congress instituted a more stringent "needs assessment" in March, which effectively disqualifies those whose families have an annual adjusted gross income of $12,000 or more.

Another is that banks and other lending firms find it more profitable to make other investments at higher rates than the 7 per cent allowed under the program, even though the federal government subsidizes it to 8 3/4 per cent.

However, since the foundation administers the program in North Carolina, students in this state are largely unaffected by the reluctance of banks to make money available.

When a student applies for a loan and his family must file with the college a statement that is designed to assess whether or not he actually needs the loan. The statement lists the size of the bank account, property owned, income recurring medical bills and so on.

"If the adjusted family income is more than $12,000, it is very difficult for the student to meet the needs test in most cases," said Paul. "More of our loans are going to students from low income families than ever before."

Stan Broadway, executive director of the State Education Assistance Authority, said the new criteria effective March 1, 1973, have created some confusion, since many students who were previously eligible can't meet the test now.

He said Congress established new standards to prevent abuses, "but in doing so they might have made it a little more strict than they intended."

Broadway said there will be an attempt in Congress to "modify the regulations to permit students who legitimately need these loans to go to school" when the session reconvenes.

Figures for the 1973-74 year are not in yet. Last year, 5,700 students at North Carolina colleges and universities were going to school with the aid of subsidized loans.

Bill Geer, director of student aid at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, approves of the tougher requirements.

"We think the needs test is appropriate in that it permits those who have actual need to secure loans and excludes those who do not," he said.

Geer said anyone who doesn't meet the requirements can work and put himself through college. "I believe it's still true that any student who wants to go to college can do so."

Swinging Show Will Teach Kids

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — One of the briefest, hippest kid shows on television—ABC's "Scholastic Rock"—will start some swinging grammar lessons next Saturday morning. It already has put a lively beat to basic math.

The new lessons are in "Grammar Rock," a companion series to the 11 "Multiplication Rock" segments that have been part of ABC's Saturday and Sunday morning children's programming since Jan. 6.

The method of both series is simple but highly effective: The usually dull rules of multiplication and grammar are written as catchy lyrics to pop music with cartoon characters moving about briskly to illustrate the number or rule of grammar involved.

Each show lasts only 3 1/2 minutes, but you might try to catch one some morning. They're excellent. The music is billed as rock, but it really isn't. It's more in the jazz vein.

Several of the singers behind the cartoon characters are respected jazz artists, albeit not as widely known as some of today's pop music stars.

The "Multiplication Rock" team consists of Blossom Dearie, an excellent pianist; jazz drummer-vocalist Grady Tate; and pianist Bobby Dorough, who composed all the multiplication songs.

Another well-known figure in jazz circles—trumpeter Jack Sheldon—sings in the new grammar series, according to spokesmen for Scholastic Rock, Inc., the New York-based producers of both shows.

Segments from both series will air five times each Saturday and twice on Sunday, according to ABC, which says yet another "Scholastic Rock" series—dealing with American government and history—may be ordered up at a later date.

Another project aimed at young viewers is in the works right now at CBS-TV. It involves current news items and an effort to put these stories into perspective for the 10-to-16-year-old viewer.

CBS says the shows, each running nearly two minutes, will start in October, run Monday through Friday and examine one current story a day with detailed but easy-to-follow background material on it.

The new series will be seen on the five CBS-owned television stations—in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Los Angeles—as part of those stations' early evening local news programs, the network says. The shows also will be offered to CBS affiliates.

"We'll be using CBS News film and probably be leaning very heavily on graphic arts to illustrate or explain each story," says Pat Lynch, producer of the as yet untitled series.

"Our purpose," she added, "is not to regurgitate the news but rather to amplify it."

Advertisers Calling Names

By DEBORAH M. RANKIN
AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Encouraged by the government, advertisers have taken off their gloves and started calling each other names in public.

Greyhound claims its bus service is a better buy than Amtrak trains. Avis resumes its historic feud with Hertz and says its computerized car rental system is speedier than that of the competition.

Federal officials believe the use of such brand-name comparisons is good for consumers. But the approach also has raised questions about who decides what advertiser is right when superiority claims conflict and who makes sure the public is protected from unsubstantiated claims.

Schick began a year ago a series of television commercials which claimed that one of Schick's electric shavers shaves closer than comparable models made by Norelco, Sunbeam and Remington.

Norelco, the giant of the electric-shaver industry, disputed the claim and pressed charges against Schick. Norelco says its lab tests prove its model shaves the closest of them all.

The dispute has been studied by the Federal Trade Commission and one advertising-industry group and now is before a second industry panel. And the deceptively simple question of which shaver takes off more whisker still has not been resolved.

But the government believes this sort of comparison gives consumers more information about competing products. The FTC pushed the approach 18 months ago when it ordered two television networks to lift their bans on advertising in which competitors are mentioned by name.

"If it is based on sound data, comparative advertising is pro-consumer and pro-competitive," said Gerald J. Thain, head of the FTC's bureau of consumer protection. "It means that consumers can make a decision based on solid information, rather than on who uses the sexiest models."

But John E. O'Toole, president of the ad agency Foote, Cone & Belding, maintains that advertising "is more than the mere relay of facts." It is "selling and not objective reporting," he says.

Such sentiment is widespread in the ad industry. It was not surprising that advertisers initially reacted to the FTC policy with caution. But more and more companies have adopted the comparative approach.

Purina maintains its dog meal has "twice the protein" of Alpo's and costs only half the price. Alpo counterattacks with a commercial that shows a dog sniffing a bowl of Purina but eating a bowl of Alpo.

Inevitably, this approach raises the hackles of some manufacturers who feel they have been unjustly maligned in the competitors' ads.

Comparative advertising probably would be more prevalent if it weren't for the admitted reluctance of corporations to name their competitors for fear the same strategy might one day be used on them.

Silver Eagles Appear Saturday

KINSTON — On Saturday, beginning at 2:45 p.m., the Silver Eagles will be at Kinston Airport for an Aviation Day Appearance. They are being sponsored by the Aviation Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. Representative Dan Lilley is chairman of the event. The Silver Eagles are Army men, pilots of the dependable Army work horse, the helicopter.

Based at Fort Rucker, Alabama, the Silver Eagles United States Army Aviation Precision Demonstration Team was authorized in 1972 by direction of the Department of the Army, and was formed in February 1973.

The parents of former East Carolina University News Bureau Director Henry Howard are featured in a September Reader's Digest article entitled, "Riches No Diamond Could Buy."

The article tells the story of the Howard Memorial Scholarship Fund, through which more than $2 million has been administered by the Rev. Charles Howard and his wife, Alma, while they themselves lived on a minimal income. He was a teacher of Bible at Campbell College for many years and is a well-known Baptist evangelist.

The mission of the Silver Eagles, 12 officers and 18 enlisted men, all volunteers, is to contribute to public understanding of the capabilities of the Army's aviation equipment.

The Silver Eagles perform in the OH-4A Cayuse light observation helicopter, capable of speed up to 140 pmh. Each show opens with the Starburst, a performance in which four helicopters fly towards the spectators and then turn away in four directions trailing smoke.

USAF jets are also scheduled to fly over as part of the Saturday afternoon air show.

The public, including children, are invited to be on hand at Kinston Airport Saturday afternoon to see the Silver Eagles in action.

Bundy Will Be Speaker

The writer of the article, which appeared first in The Christian Herald, is J. Winston Pearce. He borrowed money from Howard, who was his high school teacher in Youngsville to attend Campbell College, learning later that the money he used had been meant to buy Howard's fiancée, Miss Alma Dark, a diamond engagement ring and that the loan had been agreed to by her.

Henry Howard was a Daily Reflector staff writer for about four years.

State Rep. Sam D. Bundy will be featured speaker at the quarterly meeting of the Eastern Carolina Safety Council in Rocky Mount Thursday. Friday he will speak at Howard Memorial Presbyterian Church Men's Family Night in Tarboro and Monday he will address the annual meeting of the Four-County Electric Membership Corporation in Wallace.
