Unemployment Up In August

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate, after declining for two months, edged up slightly in August as the economy continued to cool, the government said today.

The Labor Department said the number of workers without jobs last month numbered about 4.2 million on a seasonally adjusted basis, or about 4.8 per cent of the work force. At the same time, total employment in the country held to a seasonally adjusted level of 84.4 million. It was the second straight month in which employment did not increase, after posting particularly strong gains earlier this year.

Unemployment had hovered around the 5 per cent mark for several months dropping below that level in June for the first time in more than three years. The June unemployment figure was 4.8 per cent and was followed by another slight drop in July to 4.7 per cent.

The summer drop had raised hopes of the Nixon administration that its goal of a 4.5 per cent unemployment rate would be achieved by year's end. However, there was some doubt as to whether the rate would continue to fall or edge back upward as the economic boom cooled.

The Labor Department reported little change in the unemployment rates for both black and white workers last month. The white jobless rate in August was virtually unchanged at 4.2 per cent while the rate for blacks, after rising sharply in July to 9.3 per cent, dropped in August to 8.7 per cent.

Over the past year, total employment in the nation increased by 2.4 million. The Labor Department said employment increased substantially in August for nonagricultural workers, rising by 290,000 to 75.8 million.

The July-to-August jump was mainly in the service-producing industries, while in the goods-producing industries employment in manufacturing was virtually unchanged.

"Manufacturing employment has remained steady since June, following a sustained surge since the beginning of 1972; during this period, factory jobs expanded by 1.3 million, recovering all but 40,000 of the job loss incurred during the 1969-70 recession," the government said.

In construction, the number of jobs was unchanged in August, after posting a gradual rise over the previous three months.

In agriculture, the jobless rate rose sharply last month to 7.6 per cent from 5.0 per cent in July on a seasonally adjusted basis.

In August, the average length of unemployment was 10 weeks, a slight gain from the previous month but two weeks below the average in August 1972.

Average weekly earnings rose 38 cents to $147.02 in August.

The average work week in manufacturing declined in August by two-tenths of an hour to 40.6 hours, while actual hourly earnings in private nonfarm payrolls were up 1 cent to an average of $3.91 last month.

Galveston, Tex. (AP) — Officials hoped today they could salvage most of the rice and cotton crops in waterlogged areas of Texas and Louisiana as Tropical Storm Delia, reduced to a mere depression, abandoned its siege of the two states.

Murder Charge Against Boyle

By SAM BOYLE
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "This is where the case began and this is where it ends," prosecutor Richard A. Sprague said as he announced charges of murder against former United Mine Workers President W.A. "Tony" Boyle in the 1969 Yablonski killings.

Boyle and one of his former deputies, William J. Turnblazer, were arrested Thursday in the killings of Joseph A. Yablonski, his wife and daughter.

Boyle and Turnblazer are the eighth and ninth persons charged in the murders of Yablonski, a union insurgent whose dissident movement shook Boyle's leadership in 1969 and later toppled him from the UMW's top post.

According to affidavits released by Sprague, the special prosecutor in the case, the information leading to Boyle's arrest was supplied by Turnblazer. Turnblazer, 52, president of a UMW district in Kentucky, pleaded guilty Thursday in federal court in Pittsburgh to an indictment charging the violation of Yablonski's civil rights.

Boyle, 71, was arrested in Washington Thursday on the same federal conspiracy indictment. A Sept. 25 removal hearing was set. Boyle can not be formally arraigned on the three Pennsylvania murder charges until he appears in that state. Conviction of either the federal conspiracy indictment or the state murder charges could carry a sentence of life in prison.

According to the murder complaints against Boyle and Turnblazer, the deposed union leader "initiated and instigated a plan to assassinate and murder ... Yablonski," who had lost an election to unseat Boyle. The election was three weeks before the Yablonski murders.

"The case against him (Boyle), frankly, is enormous," a spokesman for Sprague said.

"I don't know what it's all about," Boyle told reporters after being arrested in a Washington law office.

Joseph A. Yablonski Jr., a Washington attorney who was present at Boyle's arrest, said, "We've waited a long time." The most recent trial in the Yablonski case ended in the conviction of Albert Pass, like Turnblazer an official of UMW District 19. The spokesman for Sprague said the investigation into charges against Boyle entered its final phase immediately after the Pass verdict.

In the criminal complaint filed with Common Pleas Judge Thomas D. Gladden in Washington, Pa., Boyle is alleged to have told Turnblazer and Pass on June 23, 1969:

"Yablonski ought to be killed or done away with."

Turnblazer alleged that "Pass then offered to accept the assignment and stated that District 19 would take care of it."

Turnblazer said Pass later told him Boyle "has made arrangements for them to obtain approximately $20,000 from the treasury of the UMW International to pay for the assassination."

The government said Yablonski was killed mainly to keep him from testifying before a federal grand jury investigating union finances.

The bullet-riddled bodies of Yablonski, 59; his wife Dorothy, 57, and their daughter Charlotte, 25, were found in their Clarksville, Pa., home on Jan. 5, 1970. They had been dead several days.

City Council Approves Four Rezoning Requests

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The City Council conducted public hearings on four requests for rezoning Thursday night and gave its approval for all four zoning changes.

Council members approved the rezoning of the W. D. Tyson property located in the northeast intersection of Norfolk Southern Railroad and 14th Street from R-9 to Office and Institutional.

The quadrant, with frontage on 14th Street, consists of some 1.1 acres and will be developed with a medical clinic and offices to be used by two general practitioners, the owner reported.

Rezoning of a portion of the Lone Hooker Marshburn property on Hooker Road, located adjacent to Coastal Refrigeration, from R-6 to Downtown Commercial Fringe was approved. David Woodard, who submitted the request, indicated that he intends to build and operate Woodard Tile Co. on the property that has a frontage of some 132 feet on Hooker Road.

City engineer Charles Holliday said that actually the property should not have been included in the R-6 zoning but a zoning line running from the Tucker Subdivision deviates in the area of the Woodard property.

Approval of a request by Pat Thomas for rezoning of his property located east of Greenville Golf and Country Club and adjacent to Country Club Apartments was authorized. Thomas, who requested a zoning change from R-15 to R-6, has indicated that the 3.5 acres in the tract will be utilized for the construction of 25 condominiums which will sell in the $50,000 to $60,000 price range.

Thomas, representing Southeastern Construction Co., told the council that the property has access through a dedicated street as well as through a street that runs through the apartment development.

The council also approved a request for rezoning of Sections I, II and III of the Tuckahoe Subdivision on State Road 1704 from RA-20 to R-9.

In other business last night, the Rev. Dan Earnhardt was appointed to the Human Relations Council to fill the unexpired term of the Rev. Tommy Payne who has resigned. Earnhardt, director of the Wesley Foundation here, will complete Payne's term that expires in September of 1975.

John S. Wichard was appointed to a new five-year term on the Redevelopment Commission. Wichard will complete his first full term on the board on October.

The council voted to award a purchase contract to H. L. Hodges Co. here for a nylon web bed trampoline for West Greenville Recreation Center. Hodges submitted a low bid of $1,208 while Program Aids Inc. offered a $1,358 bid.

A bid of $1,198 submitted by Southeastern Safety Supply for the purchase of a paint machine for the Sign and Paint Division of the Public Works Department was awarded. Kelly-Creswell Co. and The Grigsby Co. offered bids of $1,375 and $1,376, respectively.

Funds for the purchase of both the trampoline and the paint machine are included in the 1973-74 budget, it was noted.

Kissinger Makes Peace Pledge

By HARRISON HUMPHRIES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger today pledged a conscientious effort to work with both Congress and allies overseas for a more peaceful world if confirmed as secretary of state.

In a statement prepared for the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Kissinger made a clear attempt to win support of the often-skeptical senators.

He said "our task is to define — together — the contours of a new world, and to shape America's contribution to it."

He added that "with good will on all sides I deeply believe we can reach this goal."

He pledged to seek advice and counsel from many areas of the American public.

"Our foreign policy cannot be effective if it reflects only the sporadic and esoteric initiatives of a small group of specialists," he said.

Kissinger was named by President Nixon on Aug. 22 to succeed William P. Rogers as secretary of state.

The next day, Kissinger told a news conference "the intenion of the President, and my intention, is to establish a new and full partnership with the Congress in developing policies which are in the national interest."

Reaction to Kissinger's appointment generally has been favorable in Congress, where his performance in difficult international negotiations has been openly admired.

As national security adviser to the President, the German-born former Harvard professor played a major role in the conclusion of last year's strategic arms limitation agreements with Russia and the Vietnam peace agreement last January.

In secret trips to Peking, Kissinger paved the way for President Nixon's surprise visit to China in February 1972.

The expected close questioning on the issues of secrecy and executive privilege stemmed from the dual role he would have as secretary of state and presidential adviser.

Nixon has said Kissinger would retain his position as assistant to the president for national security affairs.

them he could not guarantee to obtain Abu Daoud's release, and the Palestinians accepted his offer of a Kuwait Airlines Boeing 707 jet to take them to Riyadh, since the Saudi government might have more influence with the Jordanians.

Moments before takeoff, the gunmen radioed their ultimatum to the control tower.

Abu Daoud is serving a life sentence for plotting to overthrow King Hussein. Jordan's foreign minister refused on Thursday to arrange for his release.

The gunmen, reportedly led by a 35-year-old Jordanian doctor, had held 15 persons captive in the Saudi embassy in Paris but let nine of them go before leaving the French capital Thursday afternoon.

Sources at the conference of nonaligned nations in Algiers said the Saudi government had expressed disapproval to the French government because it let the terrorists get away with the Saudi hostages. But French officials said the Saudi ambassador in Paris agreed to the arrangements.

The Palestinians entered the embassy shortly after it opened Wednesday morning, took it over and demanded that Abu Daoud be freed and that they be given a plane to fly them to an Arab capital.

At first they said they wanted to fly to Algiers, where most Arab chiefs of state are attending the nonaligned conference. But the Algerian government was embarrassed by such an incident while it was host to a major international gathering and indicated it would not allow the terrorists to land.

Although Abu Daoud is a leader of Al Fatah, the largest of the Palestinian guerrilla organizations, Al Fatah chief Yasser Arafat and the leaders of all other major guerrilla groups repudiated the terrorists and said they had no connection with their organizations. But President Hafez Assad of Syria personally ordered a Caravelle jet of the Syrian Airline to take them and their hostages to the Middle East.

During their flight to the Middle East, the foreign ministers of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Syria and Iraq met with Jordanian Foreign Minister Abdul Hamid Sharaf at the Algiers conference to try to persuade his government to free Abu Daoud.

Sharaf pointed out that all the major guerrilla groups had denied any connection with the gunmen.

"How could Abu Daoud be turned over to persons who might turn out to be Israeli agents?" Sharaf was reported to have said.

Krogh Felt Efforts Lawful

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Egil Krogh Jr. says he regrets the "mistake" of White House efforts to get Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatric records. But he says he felt the plan was fully authorized and lawful.

The solemn Krogh, speaking publicly for the first time about the 1971 break-in at the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist, said he was told the "covert activity" was necessary for an "urgent security purpose."

Krogh, who supervised the secret White House "plumbers squad," pleaded innocent Thursday in Los Angeles Superior Court to charges of burglary, conspiracy and solicitation of a burglary. Then he broke his long public silence on the break-in.

"I distinctly feel now that the decision that was made in 1971 to go forward with the covert operation was a mistake," Krogh said in a courthouse corridor news conference. "I felt it was a mistake immediately thereafter when details of its execution were presented to me."

The square-jawed Krogh said the plumbers unit was formed in 1971 by President Nixon. He said the legal defense at his trial would center around instructions he received about the break-in's relation to national security.

Krogh, 34, said he had "some real regrets over what has taken place in terms of injury to innocent persons." But he said he wanted to stress that "at the time in 1971 when this job was presented to me as something of extreme national importance, that what I undertook was fully authorized and lawful."

He did not say whether he would contend that any of his orders came directly from Nixon. In a sworn affidavit he signed during the Pentagon papers trial, Krogh referred to Nixon's orders to plug information leaks. Former presidential counsel John W. Dean III told the Senate Watergate committee that Krogh had told him orders for the break-in came from "the oval office."

Krogh, once a close aide to presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman, was indicted Tuesday along with Ehrlichman and former White House employee David Young and G. Gordon Liddy on various burglary and conspiracy charges. Ehrlichman also is charged with perjury. Krogh was the first of the four to surrender.

The four defendants were indicted in the Sept. 3, 1971, break-in at the Beverly Hills office of Dr. Lewis Fielding.

Gas Prices To Take Dip Tonight

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Barring last-minute intervention by the Supreme Court, many gasoline retailers around the country will have to lower their prices at midnight tonight.

New government price ceilings on retail sales of gasoline will force many stations to shave from one to three cents per gallon off their prices to motorists, officials of the Cost of Living Council said.

Every gasoline pump in the country is supposed to have a red, white and blue sticker listing the ceiling price and octane rating of the gasoline in the pump.

Gasoline retailers, who claim the government has singled them out for special price punishment, held to a slim hope that the Supreme Court might suspend the ceilings at the last minute.

Chief Justice Warren Burger rejected Thursday an application from the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers that would have blocked the new controls, but an attorney for the group framed a new appeal to Justice Thurgood Marshall.

The attorney, Jerry S. Cohen, dismissed speculation about a possible boycott by the 165,000 members of the group if the ceilings go into effect at midnight.

A boycott had been threatened by some retailers last weekend — when the ceilings originally were to have taken effect — but the Cost of Living Council delayed the new price levels for a week.

"Most of our members are middle-Americans who believe in obeying the law," Cohen said.

"They have no objections to being treated like everybody else, but they do object to being singled out from other groups for special treatment," he added.

Cohen said there is "no question about it" that many dealers will have to roll back their prices when the ceilings go into effect.

The motorist can complain to his local Internal Revenue Service office if he feels he is being cheated, either on price or the octane rating.

Mom Treats Dad Like A Three-Year-Old

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Ever since I became an adult my mother has been pushing poor Dad around. She interrupts him to correct his grammar, tells him what to say, what to wear, and what to do. And when he talks on the telephone she literally stands beside him and prompts him as if he were three years old.

Dad doesn't like to be treated this way, but after a lifetime of fighting with competitors in business, all he wants now is peace at home. Occasionally he tries to assert himself, but it's such a hassle, he gives up and Mom wins again.

I've tried getting Mom interested in volunteer work, especially working with small children to satisfy her urge to boss somebody around, but she finds destroying Dad's manhood inch by inch more to her liking.

Don't tell me it's none of my business. If I hadn't grown up poor Dad wouldn't be in all this trouble. He's taking the heat meant for me. I wish I could help him.

SORRY FOR DAD

DEAR SORRY: Don't waste too much sympathy on "poor Dad." No man can be pushed around unless he surrenders his manhood. If you could convert some of your wishbone to "poor Dad's" backbone, you'd both have it made.

DEAR ABBY: I went to a charity luncheon as a guest of a friend of mine. One of the door prizes was a trip to Hawaii. I won it.

Afterwards, one of the women came up to me and congratulated me and she said, "I hope the organization can expect a nice donation from you."

To tell you the truth, I hadn't even considered such a thing. I don't want to appear cheap. Should I send in the price of a luncheon ticket for a donation?

LOVELY HULA HANDS

DEAR HANDS: It would be a nice gesture. (P. S. Why not be a sport and make it a little more than just the price of the luncheon?)

DEAR ABBY: Recently I was in a drug store when a woman, who appeared to be about 60, came in grumbling about her "old age."

The druggist, a good friend of mine, pointed to me, and said: "This old gent is 87, and he seems to be doing all right."

The woman asked me how I did it, and I replied: "I don't smoke or drink, I attend church regularly and never fool around with more than one woman at a time."

She looked me in the eye, and asked: "Mister, what do you do for fun?"

I told her that I wandered thru graveyards and copied unusual inscriptions from the tombstones. It's true, but I'm sure she didn't believe me.

Miss Jackie Porter Weds In Ceremony Thursday

The Salem United Methodist Church was the scene of the wedding of Miss Jackie Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leland Porter of Simpson, and Donald Gray Wall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Wall of Blounts Creek, on Thursday at 8:00 p.m.

The Rev. Richard Arno and Rev. Ray Webb, cousin of the bride, officiated at the ceremony.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Parker Overton, organist, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Lloyd Fornes, soloist, who sang "Love Story" and "We've Only Just Begun."

The church was centered with a massive vase arrangement of gladioli, chrysanthemums and pom poms in mixed colors. On either side was a seven branch candelabra holding white chaise candles. The church windows held single burning tapers with baker greenery. The family pews were marked with white satin ribbons.

The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of corded silk designed on princess lines. Her full length mantilla was edged with Venise lace. She carried her great grandfather's prayer book centered with a white orchid.

Bridesmaids were Miss Kay Wall, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Kay Edwards of Greenville. They wore formal length dresses of pink chiffon with burgandy lace bodice, empire waist and bishop sleeves. Their headpieces were burgandy bows with pink veils. They carried long-stemmed pink nuns with burgandy ribbons.

Earl Wall served his son as best man. Ushers were Karl Moore of Chocowinity, and Randy Batts, cousin of the bride, of Greenville.

For her daughter's wedding,

MRS. DONALD GRAY WALL

Mrs. Porter chose a floor length canary yellow knit dress with empire waist and matching accessories. The bridegroom's mother chose a dress of baby pink with white accessories. Both mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Mrs. Geneva Webb, grandmother of the bride of Bell Arthur, and Mrs. Jessie Gray Wall, grandmother of the bridegroom, of Blounts Creek wore corsages of white carnations.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will reside at Grimesland. The bride chose a three-piece green pant suit for her trip and used the orchid lifted from her Bible.

The bride is a graduate of D.H. Conley High School and is presently employed with Union Carbide. The bridegroom attended Chocowinity High School and is employed with Hackney Body Shop, Washington.

The wedding was directed by Mrs. Marsha Arno.

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Simpson Community Building. Mrs. Fred Edwards Jr. presided at the register.

Mrs. Margaret Tetterton, aunt of the bridegroom, of Blounts Creek poured punch. Mrs. Sandra Wallace, cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Charlie W. Harris, aunt of the bride, served the wedding cake.

The table was center with a vase of mixed summer flowers. The building was lighted by candlelight.

The reception was given by Mrs. Geneva Webb, grandmother of the bride, and aunts and uncles of the bride.

Homemaker's Haven By Sue May

BUYING GROUND BEEF

The increased cost of food challenges homemakers to do more selective shopping in all sections of the grocery store. Since shopping wisely at the meat counter is especially important, I'd like to share with you some information as compiled by Mrs. Ruby Uzzle, Consumer Marketing Economist.

Ground beef, like most other popular foods, is available in a variety of qualities and stages of preparation. The name of the product is a fairly reliable clue to its content.

Ground beef or hamburger is made from fat and lean trimmings of high-grade beef mixed with meat from older beef animals that are not tender enough for roasts and steaks. Meat from older beef animals has a well-developed flavor and makes a flavorful product when thoroughly ground and mixed with fat trimmings from higher grade meat.

By federal and NCA standards, hamburger must contain at least 70 percent lean and no more than 30 percent fat. Retailers may use a higher percent of lean than the minimum 70 percent, and some do. Ground beef may contain only fresh or frozen beef from any age animal. Pork or ground animal organs must not be mixed with meat that is labeled hamburger or ground beef. No cereal may be added.

Some stores prepare a low-fat ground beef to meet the demand for lean ground beef at a lower price than must be charged for ground round steak or ground chuck. There is no basis on which consumers can judge fat content except by noting the cooked yield of a pound of ground lean by comparison to a pound of regular ground beef or hamburger.

A pound of fresh hamburger should yield 11 to 12 ounces of patties cooked to the medium-done stage. If patties are cooked to the well-done stage, the yield is lower. Other types of ground beef, of a lower fat content than hamburger, should yield slightly more cooked meat to the pound of fresh meat. Ground Cuts - Ground chuck, ground round steak, and ground sirloin are supposed to be made from cuts for which they are named. Their fat content should be similar to that of the cuts for which these ground beef products are named. Some markets carry products that are labeled to indicate a quality similar to that of a certain cut-for-example, chuck-quality ground beef. Possibly this is meant to indicate a fat content similar to the cut for which it is named.

According to Mrs. Uzzle, all types of ground beef must meet the minimum standards for hamburger. In addition, their fat content should be similar to that of cuts for which they are named. On this basis, ground chuck and ground sirloin should have no more than 18 to 21 percent fat. Ground round should contain no more than 12 to 15 percent fat.

Solski's No Ordinary Grocer

By ALISON LERRICK PARIS (AP) — It may be hard to find Mascara and bricks when you plan to drink the first with the second.

A "brick" is a leaf of flaky pastry. Mascara can also be Algerian wine. And for any kind of weird food, Parisians make a pilgrimage to Israel Solski.

He's a grocer, but you don't go to his store to pick up a quart of milk.

Just behind the Hotel de Ville, his little shop is like a chunk of North Africa transplanted from the souks.

There are conical red bread baskets dangling from the ceiling, strings of dried pomegranates on the walls and anywhere, a tagine or two. These coarse earthenware "casse-roles" in which Moroccans simmer their chicken are worth their weight in centimes when you consider the breakage rate.

Neighborhood customers who pile into the shop — and bargain bitterly over olives at 50 cents a pound — come for that back-home taste. Elegant French women enter in trepidation, clutching their husbands' hands.

Fashionable girls ask for kohl for their eyes and henna for that true maroon hair glow. It's also available on the leaf for ex-Moroccan newblows to strew over their new apartments.

"It's lucky some people still believe in old customs. They enrich life," says Solski.

Ten years ago, this "grocer" with a beard and a benevolent sense of humor, stepped into the exotic food shoes of his father-in-law. A native of Brussels, he has since acquired a good Arabic accent — from paying attention to his customers — and a passion for mint tea.

"Nowadays, couscous is the dish a la mode in Paris. The North African cuisine is as refined as the French, and much less complicated. French cooking is only for businessmen who can afford to digest while they discuss," he shrugs.

Some customers can waste a morning on olives alone. There are 11 vats of them, a variety per vat, ranging from the provinciale size of peanuts to olives as big as lemons from Seville.

Tunisian olives are swollen and purple or marinated in fennel and lemon. Spanish olives come with bits of hot pepper, and woe betide the person who thinks the red is not for color only.

"In my opinion, the Greek olives are the best," says Solski in a confidential whisper.

As for olive oil, the Greek is certainly the strongest. "Some people are crazy about it, others are not," Solski added.

Avocado oil, blander by far, is for them.

Also from Greece are barrels of tarama, a pale pink paste of fish eggs that is spread on toast. Better for breakfast are the Greek jams, in such unlikely flavors as orange petal, green nut, fig, pistachio and baby eggplant.

From Africa, the fruit is dried rather than bottled and starts from the date, up. You can even have your figs and raisins on the branch. But the dried banana is "the most nourishing food in the world. The Indians in Central America eat two a day and that's enough. And that's all they eat," adds Solski.

Richta is the African version of spaghetti, home-made only. Chachouka is the Tunisian name for ratatouille. And beginners use two bricks — pastry layers — at a time for greater reinforcement in their pigeon pie.

To flavor any of these, try harissa, the most eye-watering condiment of them all. In cans, "it stings and has no perfume," says Solski, who makes his own by soaking dried hot peppers and grinding them with garlic and olive oil.

The names of wines ring strangely on ears attuned to "Chateau Something." They include Rose of Carmel, Nazareth, Jerusalem and Emir.

Stronger, though, is the licorice-like Ouzo or Izarra, the liqueur from the Pyrenees, which Ernest Hemingway compared to hair tonic in "The Sun Also Rises."

Faculty Salaries Inequitable

Chancellor Leo Jenkins has told the ECU faculty that he will "do all in my power" to equalize faculty salaries throughout the UNC system.

Jenkins, in a talk to faculty members as ECU opened its fall quarter, said it was "very discouraging" when faculty members see that counterparts at other institutions are enjoying large salary differentials.

"I am in favor of equalization of faculty salaries," the chancellor said. "Salaries should be based not on geography but on training, experience and work. I will push with all in my power for comparable salary levels for those of equal rank, similar training and similar teaching responsibilities."

Certainly Jenkins' sentiments would be popular with the ECU faculty, one of those institutions which has not enjoyed favorable treatment when it comes to faculty salaries.

At the same time the logic of an equalized salary system is inescapable. It is something that should have the highest priority with the recently formed board of governors, which is charged with bringing some order to the state's system of higher education.

The situation where a man of equal training and experience receives less than his counterpart at another institution, developed over the years because those institutions with the most political muscle were able to grab off huge portions of the higher education appropriations. That is one of the reasons why the complete reorganization of higher education which resulted in the formation of the board of governors was called for.

The board must come to grips with long standing problems of higher education, and one of the most pressing is inequity in pay for the faculty members.

New Commander Takes Over Troop

As part of the recent Highway Patrol shakeup Capt. John T. Jenkins is being assigned here as Troop "A" commander.

He will be in charge of the Highway Patrol's largest troop in land area.

Capt. Jenkins has been stationed at Troop "A" headquarters in Greenville previously and is known as a good law enforcement officer.

We would expect that under his leadership, Troop "A" will continue to be an outstanding Highway Patrol unit.

Labor Unhappy Over Strauss

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Organized labor's operatives who helped elect Robert Strauss Democratic national chairman nine months ago have a private new grievance against him: his formula for distributing funds from the national party telethon will benefit "new politics" forces dominating the state parties in California and New York.

The Sept. 15 telethon, expected to net over $2 million and possibly twice that amount, is Strauss's pride and joy. He sees the healing balm of money joining party regulars and reformers in joyous solvency. But sharing precious dollars with his foes, Strauss's labor supporters grumble, is only the latest example of his compulsive desire to appease his enemies while neglecting his friends.

This is the heart of the steadily escalating unhappiness between Strauss and Alexander Barkan, head of the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE). Big labor's political operatives feel Strauss was elected not as a unity candidate but as the vehicle for traditional Democrats to regain control following the McGovernite revolution.

Consequently, they resent Strauss's role as honest broker between all factions.

COPE is not Strauss's only ally within the party. Moderate governors who worked hard to elect him—particularly Govs. Wendell Ford of Kentucky, David Hall of Oklahoma and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas—are delighted with his efforts at conciliation. So are congressional party leaders.

Thus, growing alienation between Strauss and political representatives of AFL-CIO president George Meany is certainly no fatal "like sinus," explains a Strauss lieutenant, "It hurts like hell, but won't kill you". However, the split ultimately undercuts the common goal of both Strauss and COPE: returning the Democratic party to the center in time for the 1976 election.

Just how much this alienation involves tactical disagreement can be seen in the current, largely, concealed irritation over distributing telethon funds. Strauss's formula: one-half to the Democratic National Committee, one-half to states in proportion to their contributions to the telethon. In his opinion, that distribution will energize state party organizations and bridge ideological gaps. For instance, Strauss has collaborated closely on telethon business with assemblyman John Burton, the militant reformist California state chairman; to do otherwise would be self-defeating.

But Strauss's labor critics grumble that what seems to be his fast new friendship with Burton is illusory, bound to dissolve in the first real ideological test. So, they conclude, the effect of the Strauss formula is to turn money contributed by traditionalists in California over to Burton's new politics.

For fear of endangering the telethon, that particular complaint is not being formally voiced. But it follows a long line of Barkan grievances over Strauss's handling of sometime petty, always hideously complex quarrels fought out inside the Democratic party since the 1972 election.

Already well known is Barkan's unhappiness over Strauss's neutrality in intraparty contests lost by COPE: elections of a national Young Democrats president, the head of the national state chairmen's organization and new members of the party's executive committee.

In addition, John Perkins, Barkan's deputy, complained that Strauss operative Robert Keefe gave him little help in July's charter commission meeting at Fort Collins, Colo.

But the focus of COPE-Strauss tension has been the Delegate Selection Commission headed by Baltimore city council-woman Barbara Mikulski. The bewildering, three-cornered intrigue boils down to this: Strauss believes he can do business with Miss Mikulski in search of moderate rules which will avoid the excesses of 1972; Barkan feels Miss Mikulski is irrevocably in league with the reformers and should have been neutralized long ago.

In reply to his labor critics, Strauss contends there is no sense in premature battling and promises to be resolute when the time comes for the great symbolic question of reform: to abolish the 1972 system setting quotas for blacks, women and youth at the national convention.

But the reformers hope to finesse the issue, condemning quotas in principle while retaining them in substance. On the theory that conciliation is habit forming, Strauss's labor backers fear he will accept such a solution, effectively leaving the quota

Riggs Vs. Buchwald

WASHINGTON — Most men of my age have fantasies about women. But I'm happy to say that I am different. All my fantasies have to do with tennis. No matter where I am or what I'm doing I dream of tennis.

My favorite tennis fantasy is that I'm watching the Billy Jean King-Bobby Riggs match at Houston. Bobby Riggs is beating Billie Jean King 5-1, and she is worn to a frazzle and in tears.

I can't stand it any longer, and I rush out on the court with my Pancho Segura racket.

"Why don't you pick on someone of your own sex?" I shout at Riggs.

"What's it to you?" Riggs demands.

"I can't stand anyone who takes advantage of a woman," I reply. "If you're really such a big shot, why don't we have a match?"

"Please," Billie Jean begs me, "you'll only get hurt." "Don't worry about me, Billie Jean," I reply. "I can take him."

Riggs is grinning his cruel grin. "Okay, wise guy, I'll play you for $100,000—one set."

"I'll pick up where Billie Jean left off," I say.

"You mean with me leading 5-1?"

"What's the matter, Bobby? You losing your nerve?"

Riggs seems flustered. Billie Jean is crying, and the crowd is roaring.

"Rough or smooth?" I say to Riggs, as I take off my mauve sweat suit.

Riggs says nervously, "Smooth."

It's rough and he has the serve. He loses his serve and it is 5-2. I win mine 5-3. He double faults his next four points and it's 5-4. The crowd is going crazy. As we change courts, Billie Jean whispers to me, "I love you."

I ace him four times in a row and it's 5-5. Riggs is perspiring and his face is red. "Maybe we can talk this over."

"We have nothing to talk over, Riggs. It's your serve." He serves and I hit back to the base line. He returns it and I'm already at the net. I go plop and it drops just over.

He serves again, and this time I lob it. He raises his racket to return it when an airplane flies over and he misses the ball. (I practiced this shot for days. The trick is

Other Editors Say Money Problem

(Rocky Mount Evening Telegram)

By the time the federal government started its new fiscal year this past July 1, Congress had still to pass the first of the 13 regular appropriations bills that provide funds for operating the government.

Special legislation enabled the government to meet its payrolls and continue operations at existing spending levels, while Congress continued to debate the money bills.

While not unusual, according to a Tax Foundation, Inc., report, this last-minute action calls attention to the budgetary procedures by which Congress controls the nation's purse strings.

Under existing procedure, Congress will not know how much it has voted to spend in the current fiscal year until sometime after it adjourns.

In its recent study, "Spending Control Issues and the U. S. Budget," Tax Foundation recommended that, before acting on appropriations or other spending measures, Congress should relate spending to revenue and debt requirements to arrive at an open decision on whether to reduce spending, increase taxes, or incur additional debt.

The Joint Study Committee on Budget Control, established by Congress last year to review and recommend reform of Congressional budgetary procedures, has acknowledged that "this failure to arrive at budgetary decisions on an overall basis" has contributed to the continuation of federal budget deficits—in 37 of the past 43 years.

The accumulating deficits, reflected in the federal debt now totaling $461 billion are seen by economists as a significant factor of inflation at home and lack of confidence in the dollar abroad.

Several proposals that would improve Congressional budgetary and fiscal procedures have been introduced but no action has been completed in time for the new fiscal year.

Economic Direction Is Debatable

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Will the economy drift off into a minirecession, a growth recession, stagflation or even a full blown depression? This, it is unnering to contemplate, is one of the big economic debates today.

Some economists, it should be noted, believe there won't be a recession of any kind. And Argus Research, which provides much of Wall Street's economic analysis, has declared that the economy will grow rapidly for the next five years.

However, probably one-half of the better known economists, the ones who cultivate a popular following for personal, professional, business or political reasons, are worried about the immediate future of the economy. They agree that a slowdown is due in 1974 — even Argus concedes that — but few of them can agree on the precise degree of slowing. As one popular forecaster wrote to his clients this week: "We are adrift in uncharted waters. Not one of us has lived through this kind of economic environment before. When uncertainty prevails, caution presides."

And when the future is cloudy economists give foggy forecasts, sometimes coining words such as stagflation to avoid the hard, precise definitions that scientists use when they wish to penetrate the haze.

But even stagflation, when analyzed, offers more meaning than some of the other terms. Highly descriptive, it denotes economic stagnation, or sluggish growth, accompanied by inflation, a meaning few would misunderstand.

What's a minirecession? Apparently it's a period of very slow growth, as depicted by a growth in the Gross National Product of only one per cent or so, compared with something like 6 per cent for all 1973.

And a growth recession? More of the same. It means the economy continues to grow, probably at about 2 per cent, but accompanied by an unsatisfactory level of joblessness and other negative traits.

Jobs Don't Work

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you a round peg in a square hole? Many people suspect all their lives that they are. They stew and wonder if they wouldn't do better and be happier if they were in another line of work.

If they would be, they are fools not to summon up the courage to make a change and give themselves a chance to put their dreams into action.

On the other hand, anyone who does take the bull by the horns runs the risk of being tossed aside and finding himself worse off than before, an unhappy man with a punctured balloon.

He could find himself jobless or scrambling hard to cling to a job that was worse than the one he had left.

It is difficult, perhaps, for you to think of a job less satisfying than the one you're working at. But there are lots of them.

Here, for example are a possible few:

Girdle inspector for a firm specializing in clothing for overweight women.

Guidance counselor in an old folks' home.

Statistician for the police department during a crime wave.

Horse buyer for a company that makes canned dog food.

Dog catcher in a neighborhood full of kids.

A door-to-door salesman in Outer Mongolia.

Stand-in for Yul Brynner.

Ketchup spreader for a "shoot-em-up" television program.

Standby donor for Count Dracula.

Heating control officer on a scientific project to hatch a dinosaur's egg.

A rabbi in an Eskimo village.

A missionary to hell.

Quality control engineer in a paper clip factory.

Bubble gum remover from Times Square sidewalks.

Porno book peddler at a Boy Scout Jamboree.

Scriptwriter for a bankrupt Chinese fortune cookie maker.

A code clerk in Peking.

A governess for the old lady who lived in a shoe.

A Soviet army sentinel in Siberia.

The night watchman at a reform school for teen-age girls.

The CIA or FBI liaison man for the White House.

Liberace's valet.

Caretaker of a secret Mafia cemetery.

Social secretary for Martha Mitchell.

Entertainment director for a WCTU convention.

Fund raiser for the 1976 Republican convention.

Yes, any job has its own kind of woe. You might as well remain a round peg in a square hole as switch to a new job that would only make you a square peg in a round hole.

Mental Health Studies Set

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — North Carolina is engaged in a study of mental health problems and ways to meet those problems which is unlike any ever done in this country.

The study will not only call on experts for testimony and reports for data, but on members of the public to say what they think is good and bad about the situation, and what ought to be done.

State Sen. Kenneth C. Royall of Durham is chairman of the Mental Health Study Commission set up by the 1973 General Assembly. That commission is to get its work done and come back into the 1974 continuation session for action.

Sen. Royall called the study now underway "the most comprehensive study of this type ever undertaken by a state in our nation," and said the opportunity for the commission to report back to the same Legislature which authorized the study is an unusual opportunity for success.

Public Invited

He called public participation in the study a "vitally important segment" as he urged people working in the areas of mental illness, mental retardation, alcoholism and related areas to meet with the commission to talk about their concerns.

A meeting in Raleigh was scheduled this week. But it is in regional meetings across the state that public sentiment is sought.

Public sessions will begin at 1 o'clock, following seminars for professional workers, in each case. Meetings will be held in Fayetteville at the mental health center on Tuesday, Sept. 11; at Allied Health Building in Greenville on Wednesday, Sept. 12; at Western Carolina Center's Holly Hall in Morganton on Monday, Sept. 17; and at commissioner's meeting room in Guilford County Court House on Tuesday, Sept. 18.

Meanwhile, a professional consulting team has been hired to carry out a detailed collection of information and compile it into a report for the commission.

Already in the works are in-depth questionnaires which have been hired to carry out a detailed collection of information and compile it into a report for the commission.

Already in the works are in-depth questionnaires which have been sent both to employees and to patients at various institutions across the state.

Responses to the questions will be used to give a look at how both groups feel about the treatment methods and facilities.

Facilities Survey

Another part of the study involves a complete survey of physical facilities devoted to care of patients, the state of repair and the need for future growth.

Another study is aimed at gaining clinical results of treatment programs to evaluate failure and success and point toward change or innovation in that area.

Royall said no area of health care is changing as quickly as that of mental health now being studied, and that public awareness and involvement will lead to an "unprecedented level of service... in years to come."

David T. Flaherty, secretary of Human Resources which administers the mental health programs, backed the study commission efforts, and said he believes the commission "will find citizens have strong feelings concerning the delivery of mental health services. I hope that people across the state will take advantage of this opportunity to voice their concerns and suggestions."

He said such meetings will provide "a feeling of the pulse at the local level." Flaherty, by the way, recently called on mental hospitals to get many

Strength For Today

TRUE SYMPATHY

Charles W. Eliot, for many years president of Harvard University, had a quite disfiguring birthmark on his face. One day as he was walking down the street he saw some youngsters teasing and abusing a little fellow who was similarly disfigured. Instead of passing by and ignoring the incident, he stopped and put his arm about the miserable little boy. "Don't worry, son," he said in tender tones, "you see I have the mark also."

If we can bear the disfigurements of our disfigured brothers, limp because they limp, grope with them in blindness, or stand in the midst of the deaf and speechless and understand; if we can weep with those who sorrow and sit with quiet understanding beside those whose disappointment is too deep to measure, then are we friends indeed. Then do we truly sympathize. In feeling with them we become one with them and we demonstrate to them that Christ still lives in human hearts.

Despite Controls, Inflation Worsening

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of farm products increased by a record 23.1 per cent at the wholesale level in August and the nation's inflation approached the worst rate of this century, the Labor Department said today.

The department's Wholesale Price Index showed the over-all increase in wholesale prices during August was 5.8 per cent on an unadjusted basis and 6.2 per cent when adjusted for seasonal variations.

The over-all increase in the wholesale index was not a record, but was the highest since an 8.1 per cent rise in wholesale prices in October of 1946.

The increase in price of farm products was led by higher prices for livestock, grains, oil seeds, poultry, eggs, cotton and milk, and was just about double the previous record monthly increase of 11.9 per cent in July of 1946.

The Labor Department also reported a slight increase in the country's unemployment rate in August to 4.8 per cent of the labor force, up from 4.7 per cent in July.

Administration officials have expressed fear that the August Wholesale Price Index, which shows what happened to prices after the government price freeze was lifted Aug. 12, could deal the new Phase 4 anti-inflation program a major psychological blow.

Most of the increases in wholesale prices eventually will be translated into higher retail prices. Since much of the increase is for farm products, higher prices are ahead for many foods. Food prices at retail already have increased about 12 per cent so far this year.

The increases for farm products and the overall index were the biggest since World War II.

The previous record one-month rise in the index was 2.8 per cent in December 1950 and the previous biggest increase in prices of farm products was seven per cent in last June.

The increases occurred after the government lifted its freeze from food prices and replaced it with new controls of Phase 4 anti-inflation programs.

The increase in wholesale prices in August, which Secretary of Treasury George P. Shultz said would be astounding, could deal the Phase 4 program a major psychological blow before it gets fully underway.

The meat industry has given every indication that big price increases are planned after the price freeze on beef is lifted Sept. 13.

Candidates To Attend

Several political candidates from various towns in the county have promised to attend a meeting of the Pitt County Branch of the NAACP Sunday, according to D. D. Garrett.

The meeting will be held Sunday at 7:30 p.m. at Haddock's Chapel at Haddock's Crossroads.

Says Burglary Proper Tool

By VERNON A. GUIDRY JR.
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A claim that burglaries are legitimate tools in the hands of a president responsible for protecting national security may be in for judicial examination.

Former White House domestic affairs chief John D. Ehrlichman, the principal public exponent of presidential right to break and enter, stands accused in the burglary that brought the issue to public attention.

He and three other former White House aides have been named in sealed indictments returned by a California grand jury in connection with 1971 break-in of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

Ehrlichman told the Senate Watergate committee he had no prior knowledge of the break-in conducted by the "Plumbers," a special White House unit. But he and his lawyer, John J. Wilson, argued strenuously that the burglary was "within the President's inherent power" to protect national security and pursue foreign intelligence.

They based their argument primarily on a 1972 Supreme Court decision dealing with wiretaps and bugging. The high court demanded prior judicial approval when such surveillance is used against domestic organizations in national security cases. But the court specifically reserved judgment on the question as it pertains to "activities of foreign powers or their agents."

Since then, a federal judge here has decided a case that seems to buttress their foreign intelligence argument, at least as far as electronic surveillance is concerned.

Last July U.S. District Court Judge John H. Pratt dismissed

Evans-Novak

problem to state parties and ultimately the 1976 convention. Thus, they fear that the convention might be a disastrous repetition of the Miami Beach carnival.

With vital decisions by the Mikulski commission due within the next two months, there is no common strategy on how to destroy the quota system, root and branch. Strauss and Barkan have been too busy haggling over tactics while the reformers, delighted by the split among their enemies, have worked hard to perpetuate the 1972 reforms in slightly more respectable clothing.

a suit brought by members of the militant Jewish Defense League for damages against the government for tapping JDL telephones in 1970 and 1971 without judicial approval. Pratt's decision is being appealed.

The league's activities against Soviet and Arab diplomats in the United States brought the league within the reach of "the President's constitutional authority to conduct the nation's foreign relations and his power to protect the national security," Pratt ruled.

Although Ellsberg released the Pentagon Papers to congressmen and U.S. newspapers, Ehrlichman said the government received information that the Soviet embassy also had received a copy, introducing a foreign intelligence aspect into the investigation.

Noting the Supreme Court's avoidance of the issue of foreign intelligence wiretaps, Wilson told the Watergate committee there is "no one living" who could categorically assert that burglaries in pursuit of foreign intelligence were beyond the president's power.

However, an assertion of presidential authority as a defense against criminal charges in the burglary seems clouded. President Nixon has denied any prior knowledge of the burglary, has deplored it and has declared he would have prevented it had he had known about the break-in plans.

patients out of the institutions and into community care treatment as rapidly as possible, based on the belief that institutions should be for the most seriously handicapped persons and that development of community care facilities such as half-way houses should be used more.

Action Criticized

The actions were criticized in some quarters, including a resolution from the Lenoir County board of social services labeling the changes "a step backward in the care and treatment of these patients."

Flaherty insists that the view today is that "unnecessary institutionalization and institutionalization merely for custodial care violates the individual's human rights," and noted that court suits on behalf of mentally retarded persons are being brought resulting in demands for changes which cannot be met.

"We in North Carolina would like to move on our own and at our own speed to improve the lives of our mentally retarded persons without having an outside federal court come in and make its demands upon us that will almost be impossible to meet," Flaherty responded.

High Priority Still Several Months Away

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The "highest priority" President Nixon has placed on making progress toward a Mideast settlement won't be translated into action for at least two or three months.

The main reason for not moving faster is the lack of a solid plan for getting negotiations started between Israel and the Arab nations, administration officials say.

Another reason given is the lack of confidence concerning American ability to influence either side to accept any proposal. The two sides disagree on preconditions for negotiations. Israel is willing to talk with no prior conditions, but the Arabs insist that Israel agree before negotiations begin to withdraw from territory conquered in 1967.

Nixon told his news conference Wednesday that both sides are at fault for the impasse. He added that American concern over possible shortages of Mideast oil has made finding a settlement the "highest priority."

But the officials in charge of finding the way to a settlement feel November or even December will be the earliest they will have any plans in shape.

First, they want to evaluate the conversations among the hundred or so foreign ministers who will attend the United Nations General Assembly this month.

The Mideast and the related oil situation is expected to dominate the U.N. meeting and may result in a full Assembly debate.

If that occurs, it won't be before October and American policymakers feel they must hold back any plans until the debate is over.

Another reason for delay is to evaluate the Israeli election on Oct. 29.

In addition, the administration admittedly faces problems in making its influence felt.

Nixon acknowledged the United States lacks strong influence among the Arabs.

This leaves Israel as the main target of Nixon's determination to find a way of influencing the Mideast situation, U.S. officials say.

Israeli sources in Washington, however, say that while they are sympathetic to the United States, their government will act only in its own interests and not because of American pressure.

Counselors To Meet At Jarvis

Communications among family members will be explored in lectures and discussions at the 26th annual meeting of the North Carolina Association of Marriage and Family Counselors at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church here Oct. 4-6.

The meeting, which is co-sponsored by East Carolina University, includes a number of open sessions. All persons who are interested in better marriage and family communications are invited to attend.

Featured speakers include Dr. David R. Mace, family sociologist of the Bowman Gray School of Medicine; Dudley Flood, former Greenville educator who is now Assistant State Superintendent for Human Relations and Student Affairs in the Department of Public Instruction; and Dr. Carlyle Marney, clergyman, editor and lecturer.

These three key speakers will speak on topics in the area of family communications. Other speakers include members of the ECU faculty, ministers, educators and officers of family relations organizations.

The program also includes small group discussions on difficult aspects of family life, including parent-child, student-teacher, counselor-client and minister-layety relationships; marital relationships, black-white barriers; and the grief experience.

All conference sessions, except meeting of the N. C. Association of Marriage and Family Counselors, are open to the public.

Prior registration is necessary

Falkland PTA Meet

FALKLAND — The first meeting of the Falkland Elementary School for this term will be held Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the library.

A variety of items are scheduled to be discussed.

According to Principal William Moore, there are still openings for the kindergarten program. Any interested parent may contact the school about the program. The telephone number is 752-7820.

May Have A Rematch

PARIS (AP) — Chess champion Bobby Fischer may play Boris Spassky in a rematch in Paris next year.

Stanley Rader, Fischer's attorney, is here sounding out the chances. He spoke of a million dollar purse for the winner, and from $150,000 to $200,000 for the loser. Fischer defeated Spassky in Iceland last year and plans a European tour early next year.

Price Up

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (AP) — Rising beef and pork prices spell bad news for goats, a Williamson County goat dealer has reported.

Clyde Beard said the sudden demand for goat meat has sent the price of the animals soaring from about $8 or $9 to $15-20. Some large goats are bringing $25 or more, he said.

Presenting Musical

The Star of the East Masonic Lodge of Pactolus will present its annual musical program Sunday at 4 p.m. at Stokes Elementary School.

The program will feature the M.R. Wilson Singers, the Gospel Consolators, the Waterside All-Male Chorus, the Gospel Chimes and others. The public is invited to attend.

Homecoming Service At Rock Spring

Quarterly meeting and homecoming will be observed at Rock Spring F.W.B. Church this weekend.

Quarterly conference will be held Friday night and Holy Communion will be held Saturday night.

Bishop W. L. Phillips will preach Sunday at 10:30 a.m. The homecoming address will be delivered by Mrs. Althea Wooten and at 2:30 p.m. the Rev. J. N. Gibler of the St. John Church, Farmville, will preach.

Free Ride To Register

From 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. Saturday transportation will be available from the Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church for all citizens of West Greenville desiring to register for the upcoming Greenville city elections.

During this special registration day, the books will be open from 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. at the main fire station on West 5th Street in Greenville.

The Citizens For Total Positive Government encourage all persons who are 18 years or older to help make the voter registration drive in West Greenville a success by registering to vote before the Monday, September 10, deadline.

Receives Grant

Dr. William H. Waugh of the East Carolina University School of Medicine has received a grant of $25,000 from the National Heart and Lung Institute for his research on kidney function.

The Institute, one of the National Institutes of Health, awarded the $25,000 for direct costs of the project. Dr. Waugh has been engaged in his research for several years. It deals with local control of renal peripheral vascular tone.

Dr. Waugh, a graduate of Tufts Medical School, is the author of more than 60 publications on medical subjects.

Service Set English Chapel

The Rev. F. C. Mitchell and the Bethel Chapel Choir will render services at English Chapel Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

Everyone is invited to attend, according to the sponsor, Sister Louise Dixon.

Homecoming Scheduled

BELVOIR — The Belvoir Free Will Baptist Church will celebrate 10 years with its annual homecoming.

The 11 a.m. service will be conducted by the Voyagers Trio of Kernersville, both singing and preaching. After lunch on the grounds, there will be more singing by the Voyagers and the Rev. Al Davis, pastor, will be the featured speaker. This service will take the place of the usual 7 p.m. service. The public is invited to both services.

The church was organized in the spring of 1963 and held its first service in its present building in September of that year. It is located on the Belvoir Highway six miles west of Greenville.

Returns From Conference

Dr. Patricia Daugherty of the East Carolina University biology faculty has returned from an international genetics congress at the University of California at Berkeley.

Approximately 2,000 scientists from 70 nations heard symposia and exchanged ideas on current research in heredity and variation among related organisms.

Way Film On TV

The Rock of Ages Music Festival at Sidney, Ohio, sponsored by The Way Biblical Research and Teaching Ministry, which has a unit in Greenville, is featured in a film, To be shown on CBS Sunday.

The film, which shows young people "getting high" on God's Word rather than on drugs, is to be shown on WNCN-TV, Channel 9, Sunday at 10 a.m.

Completed Course

Dennis C. Davis, assistant professor of physical therapy in the East Carolina University School of Allied Health and Social Professions, completed a recent post graduate course in Hawaii.

The courses, sponsored by the University of Southern California's medical school, were held in Maui and Oahu.

Holy Trinity Opening To Be Observed Sunday

The formal opening service of the new Holy Trinity United Methodist Church, 1400 Red Banks Road, will be observed Sunday. The Rev. Charles Michael Smith, first pastor of the church, will deliver the sermon at the 11 a.m. worship hour. The public is invited to attend.

The Rev. Smith served Holy Trinity from July 1966 to November 1968, coming to Greenville from an associate pastorate in Aberdeen, Scotland. He returned in June 1971 to accept the position of associate minister at the Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. He is a member of the N. C. United Methodist Conference; a graduate of Duke University and the Duke Divinity School.

Banquet Held In Simpson

SIMPSON — The second annual Senior Citizens banquet was held Sunday afternoon at Phillipi Missionary Baptist Church, here. The event was sponsored by the Club of Concern for Senior Citizens.

The speaker was Mrs. Willie Mae Hawkins of Grimesland. Her topic was "I Know Thy Works." Music was presented by Mrs. L. T. Parker, Mrs. Vinie Willis, and Mrs. Nora Gatlin.

Mrs. Queenie Taft presented flowers to the three oldest persons in attendance. They were Mrs. Mary Grimes, Mrs. Queenie Harris, and Jessie Kennedy.

Officers chosen for the coming year for the club were: Mrs. Gertrude McCoy, president; Mrs. Myrtle Thompson, vice president; Mrs. Hattie Thompson, secretary; Mrs. Lillian Gatlin, assistant secretary; and Fannie Hardy, treasurer.

Rev. King White Is Revival Guest Speaker

The Rev. King E. White will be the revival speaker each evening next week at the Faith Pentecostal Holiness Church, located on 14th Street Extension.

A former pastor of St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church here, the Rev. White is presently serving as conference superintendent of the Pennsylvania Conference, with headquarters in Greenville, Pa.

The Rev. R. N. Hood, pastor of the local church, invites the public to attend the services beginning at 7:30 p.m. There will be special singing each evening by various groups and a nursery will be provided for small children.

The Traveling Salesman WHO CANNOT SEW

Sunday morning in Buffalo—and a button falls off my last clean shirt: "Sorry, sir, valet service does not answer!"

Little girls can sew on buttons. Tailors can sew on buttons. My tough old sear-gent could sew on buttons. But not me! I never got around to it.

I'm going to church anyway. Long time ago I realized that it may take a bit of effort, and some determination, and quite a lot of experience to become a regular church-goer. But life is full of real crises that demand faith and courage and a Source of guidance. There isn't much comfort in discovering that others can overcome such crises—while you never got around to it.

So any Sunday, in Buffalo, Rochester, Syracuse or Troy . . . you'll be seeing me in church. (I'm the stocky fellow, with the red hair—and the button missing from his shirt!)

Four Courses Set To Start

Four fall courses will begin next week at Pitt Technical Institute, according to Ola L. Porter, director of extension.

The programs planned include: —Principles in Supervision, a 45-hour course meeting Tuesday at 7 p.m. The class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and instructional cost will be $2 per person.

Course content presents basic and general principles of effective supervisory techniques. The course is divided into seven parts which include fundamentals of supervision, relationships on the job, communications, how to train employees, performance and job evaluation, job management and work improvement.

—Home plumbing repairs, a 24-hour course which will meet each Thursday from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. for eight sessions. Instructional costs is $2.

Course content will involve basic plumbing fundamentals, simple tools and materials used for repairs, practices in changing faulty washers and fittings for leaky faucets, clearing and cleaning stopped drains and sinks, and other repair practices.

—Basic first aid, a 12 hour course to begin Monday at 7 p.m. in room 124.

The class will meet from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. for four sessions Mondays and Wednesdays (Sept. 10, 12, 17, and 19).

Satisfactory completion of the course meets the First Aid requirements for the Pitt County American Red Cross and also the Occupational Safety and Health Act.

The course is open and available to any interested citizen. No pre-registration is required. Books can be purchased at the first session for a total cost of $3.60.

—Cabinet making, will begin Tuesday at 7 p.m. The 66-hour course includes types of wood to be used in the construction of cabinets, construction of kitchen cabinets (base and wall), drop in stove and surface units, drawers, bookcases, gun cabinets, window valances, bathroom vanities, doors, fitting, shaping and designing.

The class will meet each Tuesday and Thursday night from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. in room 12. Instructional cost will be $5.

Transfer $1.9 Million

WILLIAMSTON — Martin County Commissioners, in the regular September meeting held this week, approved a temporary transfer of $1.9 million in school funds.

The transfer is from the $4.5 million dollar school capital reserve and bond revenue and was made for the purpose of providing funds for the school construction program now underway.

The $4.5 million in bonds, approved in an earlier referendum, are to be sold beginning Tuesday.

In another action the commissioners approved a bond referendum proposal in the amount of $1 million for additional construction at the new Martin County Hospital. The money would be used to add a third floor to the two floor building just recently completed.

Commissioners also passed a resolution of agreement with W. J. Robinson of Robersonville for picking up old cars outside city limits of town in Martin County.

In a final action, Hassell Warren was named as the commissioner to represent the County Commissioners to the Jury Commission of Martin County.

Thursday Winners

By CHRIS CONNELL Associated Press Writer ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — A Louisiana singer whose voice improved after she choked on an Easter egg and a shapely blonde who had to leave the country in search of a swimsuit have won second round honors at the Miss America Pageant.

Debbie Ward, a Louisiana State University senior from Baton Rouge, sang a medley of "A Heart That's Free," "I Enjoy Being a Girl" and "I Could Have Danced All Night" to win Thursday night's talent competition and a $1,000 scholarship.

Leslie Ann Mays, a 23-year-old model from Mercer Island, Wash., won the $1,000 scholarship in Thursday's swim suit preliminary. She displayed a 35-24-34 figure in a white bathing suit she had "to go all over Washington and Canada to find."

The third round of preliminary competition in the annual pageant is scheduled tonight. Miss America 1974 will be named Saturday night.

On Easter Sunday, seven weeks before the state pageant, Miss Ward choked on the yoke of a holiday egg, and hemorrhaged her right vocal cord in a coughing fit.

"When I got through coughing my voice was an octave lower," she said.

More Work For Industrial Park Outside Williamston Is Planned

WILLIAMSTON — Additional work will get underway this month in developing the Kehukee Industrial Park just outside Williamston adjacent to U. S. Highway 64 west.

At the Wednesday night meeting of the Williamston Town Board, town commissioners amended the 1973-74 town budget to add $3,66,000 to income and expenses in the budget to permit running water and sewer lines to Kehukee Industrial Park.

The town has recently received development approval by the Economic Development Administration in a conference setting forth guidelines for the area's development, which now includes Martin Technical Institute, a racing track, two ball fields, a highway patrol station and the site of the old Martin County Home.

Commissioners also reviewed revenue sharing funds and approved allocations to different departments, to include: salaries for the Police Department, $62,400; town office equipment, $31,000; water and street equipment, $17,102; sanitation and sewage disposal equipment, $31,000; police and fire department equipment, $7,000; and recreation, $2,000.

Bids for a garbage truck were reviewed, with a low bid of $11,400 by Truxmore Industries of Richmond accepted. Bids were also reviewed for a street sweeper to replace the one that burned last week, but a decision on bids was postponed until a future date.

A resolution was passed giving commissioners a voice in the location and timing of future exhibition rides to be held in town. This action follows complaints received when the Jaycees staged a benefit exhibition in a residential section of town.

The first week of October has been designated "Rescue Squad Week" in Williamston. The request for designation was presented by Dr. Frank C. Sheldon, president of the Williamston Rescue Squad, who explained that a fund raising drive to help purchase a new ambulance would be made at that time.

In other actions, Williamston Town Commissioners—approved a request to raise the monthly subsistence payment to volunteer firemen from $8.50 to $11.00; heard a report from Town Attorney D. A. Manning that the State Highway Commission has been assured by the Williamston Parts and Metal Company that junk metal and trash would be removed from the right-of-way of the street; approved rezoning from shopping center to highway commercial property on the north side of U. S. 17-64 by-pass across from Holiday Inn; and named Warren Goff to replace Miss Marjorie Lindsley on the board of Martin Memorial Library.

Mental Health Hearing Is Set

RALEIGH — State Senator Kenneth C. Royall, Jr., chairman of the North Carolina Mental Health Study Commission, today reported on the activities of the study commission and announced plans for a regional public hearing Wednesday, Sept. 12 at 1 p.m. at the Allied Health Building, corner of Charles Street and Greenville Boulevard, Greenville.

This Commission was established by the 1973 General Assembly to study and evaluate the existing system of delivery of state health care for mental illness, mental retardation, alcoholism and related health problems. If is further charged with recommending an improved system for delivery of the short and long term mental health needs of the citizens of North Carolina.

and related health services to appear before the commission to express their concerns.

The public hearings will begin at 1:00 p.m. and will continue until those present have been heard. Senator Royall suggested that those persons who wish to appear contact Mrs. Betty Keaton at (919) 829-4630 at the Department of Human Resources, Division of Mental Health, 11th floor, Albemarle Building, Raleigh, N. C. The time set aside by the Commission for each individual presentation is 15 minutes or less.

David T. Flaherty, Secretary of the Department of Human Resources pledged the support of his Department to the Commission.

Happy With Drive's Net

Gen. John A. Lang Jr., 1973 Pitt County Cancer Crusade chairman, reported today that this year's county crusade reached the highest level in financial returns of any annual campaign conducted to date.

Approximately $13,100 was raised in the campaign, which began in April and was concluded Aug. 31. Although the county goal of $14,000 was not reached, Chm. Lang expressed his delight with the amount raised.

"Mrs. Phyllis Martin, president of the Pitt County American Cancer Society chapter and I would like to thank all those throughout the county who have helped make this the best campaign yet," Gen. Lang said. "We are especially indebted to the Greenville Woman's Club, under the leadership of Mrs. Ernest Holt, which came into the campaign at a late date and raised nearly $1,000 to help close the gap. The ECU ROTC Detachment and the Greenville Moose Lodge helped out greatly.

"We'd also like to recognize the towns of Farmville, Ayden, and also, Grifton, each of which raised more funds than in any previous year."

Operation Sunshine To Open

Operation Sunshine opens its doors Monday.

It will operate each weekday from 3 to 5:30 p.m. with bus transportation available at the close of each day.

The Center will follow the same holiday schedule as the Greenville City Schools. Any girls from eight years old through the sixth grade are invited to attend.

Mrs. Barbara Whitehead will be the director for the school year. She is a student at Pitt Technical Institute and has worked at the Center for several years. Under a special program at Pitt Tech, several Mental Health students are volunteering to work at Sunshine.

Anyone having questions about Operation Sunshine may call or visit the Center, located at the corner of Pitt and West Third Streets, 758-5838.

Will Meet Wednesday

The Environmental Health Division of the Pitt County Community Health Department will hold a meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the Health Department to discuss newly adopted solid waste regulations.

These regulations become effective Oct. 1. All private solid waste collectors, representatives of municipalities in Pitt County, and other interested parties are urged to attend this meeting, according to W. M. Pate, Chief of the Environmental Health Division of the Health Department.

THE STRAIGHT-UP MARTINI DRINKER. AN ENDANGERED SPECIES.

It would be a shame for America to lose its last few devoted martini purists. We should all do what we can to save them.

That's why Canada Dry makes gin and vodka especially for this vanishing breed. Gin and vodka with the dry smoothness that a straight-up martini demands.

And remember, if they're good enough to please the Straight-Up Man they must be good enough to survive on the rocks.

We're doing our bit. Do yours.

Take a Straight-Up Martini Drinker to lunch.

Dr. Weihauer Consecrated On Thursday

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — In an age-old rite of pageantry and ritual, the Rev. Dr. William Gillette Weihauer was consecrated as Bishop Coadjutor of the Episcopal Diocese of Western North Carolina Thursday night.

The Rev. Dr. Weihauer, the first coadjutor in the diocese' 51-year history, will succeed the Rt. Rev. M. George Henry as head of the diocese upon his retirement in 1975.

In the interim, Bishop Weihauer will assist in the operations of the diocese.

The service, held in Asheville's city auditorium, opened with a procession of the combined choirs of the diocese directed by Marilyn Keiser, diocesan music consultant.

The choir were followed by the participating clergy, special guests, ecumenical guests and the diocesan clergy.

The new bishop was presented to the Most Rev. John Hines, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church in the United States, by Bishop Henry and the Rt. Rev. J. Stuart Wetmore, bishop of New York.

The coadjutor promised to observe the doctrines and disciplines of the Episcopal Church and following his examination by Bishop Hines, the 25 bishops of the province "laid hands upon him."

The laying on of hands symbolizes the Apostolic Succession.

The preacher was the Rev. Dr. Peirson Parker, a professor at General Theological Seminary in New York.

Prior to his election as coadjutor last May, Bishop Weihauer was rector of Christ Episcopal Church in Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

Changes Sought In Developments

RALEIGH (AP)—Three witnesses called for changes Thursday in proposed state regulations for construction of shopping centers and other major developments.

The witnesses were among about 50 persons who attended a public hearing held by the state Water and Air Quality Committee on proposed regulations authorized by the 1973 General Assembly.

Jesse James Boyd of Charlotte, representing the International Council of Shopping Centers, called for 10 changes in the proposals, including one that would allow shopping centers to be developed without a permit in those areas now zoned for that use.

Lou Johnson, president of the Environmental Coordinating Council of Winston-Salem and Forsyth County, suggested that the state require a permit for shopping centers now under construction that would not be completed by the end of the year.

Minor modifications also were suggested by a spokesman for the Environmental Protection Agency.

In addition to shopping centers, the regulations would apply to housing and trailer projects involving 500 or more units that cause a density of 7,680 persons or more per square mile; stadiums and sports arenas seating 25,000 or more; drive-in theaters with 700 or more parking spaces; any parking facility with a capacity of 500 vehicles; and amusement parks and recreation facilities designed to serve 25,000 or more persons daily.

No Driving For Philip

KUSPENSKOYE, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Prince Philip of England took such a fancy to a four-horse coach at a show held in his honor that he wanted to drive the team.

But the prince, an accomplished coachman and horse fancier, was politely, but firmly, escorted to the rear seat of the "chetvyorka" as a passenger.

The coach circled the track twice with a visibly irritated and unsmiling prince at the Tuesday celebration.

When Philip was later offered a ride in a "troika," he walked off briskly. He commented, "No, thanks. We've been around twice. That's quite enough."

To Combat Growthmania

SMITHFIELD, N.C. (AP)—Johnston County leaders are divided over whether they want a high-paying truck manufacturing firm to locate in the Smithfield-Selma area.

The Greater Smithfield-Selma Chamber of Commerce has adopted a resolution asking Eaton Corp. of Cleveland, Ohio, to look elsewhere for a plant site.

Gary Dent, executive vice president of the chamber of commerce said the action was taken because of a "tight labor market and other factors. . . like trying to combat growthmania."

But Norman Denning, chairman of the Johnston County Board of Commissioners, said the chamber's action came as "quite a shock to our board."

"Eaton's pay scale, from what I hear, would have forced other industries around here to go up maybe . . . but we're in favor of increasing incomes," Denning said.

"Labor isn't that scarce here," Denning added. Since adoption of the chamber of commerce resolution saying that Eaton's location in the area "would be disruptive to the community and local industry," Eaton officials has stated that they are looking at other potential plant locations. The company owns a 120 acre site here.

Tech. Schools Accredited

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Board of Education granted accreditation Thursday to the Blue Ridge, Halifax County, Haywood, Randolph and Wilson County technical institutes.

Jim Ellerbe, acting director of the division of institutional evaluation for community colleges, said Thursday's action raised to 29 the number of institutions accredited by the state.

Bond Issue $17 Million

DURHAM (AP)—A $17 million bond issue for municipal facilities will go to before the voters of Durham Saturday.

The money would be used for capital improvements, including street paving, recreation facilities and water-sewer improvements. City officials hope to combine the bond money with federal general revenue sharing funds for a total of $27 million.

Candidate

RALEIGH (AP)—District Judge S. Pretlow Winborne of Raleigh said Thursday he would be a candidate next year for the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

Winborne, 50, is a Democrat. He was the only candidate in a 20 person field to win election in the first primary during the 1968 elections for the new District Court bench in Wake County.

He was appointed a judge in Raleigh City Court in 1960, stepping up from the city solicitor's post.

Heavy Tonnage At Inland Port

DULUTH, Minn. (UPI) — This inland seaport handles about 40 million tons of cargo during a typical Great Lakes navigation season from April to December. Most of the shipping consists of iron ore, but also includes grain, coal, limestone, salt and petroleum products. Duluth is port of call to about 2,500 commercial ships each season.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady Thursday. Supplies about adequate, demand fairly good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites: 76.73; Medium whites: 69.19; Small whites: 67.43.

Hogs
RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hogs are about steady. Tops of $40.50-$41.00 Rocky Mount; 40.00-41.00 Kingston, New Bern, Benson and Lumberton; 39.00-40.00 Wilson and High Falls; 41.00 Salisbury.

Poultry
RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hen prices weaker on heavy types with supplies about adequate and demand fairly good. Light type too few to report. Heavies at farm, 28 cents per pound. North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers market steady with supply adequate and demand fair. Weights are desirable.

NEW YORK (AP)— Although it had been expected, analysts said the Labor Department's announcement of soaring wholesale prices in August sent stock market prices mixed to the minus side today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was down 2.26 at 898.78. Advancing issues on the Big Board, however, held a lead over declines in moderate trading.

Fannie Mae, up 1/4 at 197 1/2, was the Big Board volume leader. Walt Disney was down 3/4, at 77 1/2, after the company estimated earnings that were less than had been expected by some analysts.

U.S. Industries was third in volume, up 3/4 at 13 1/2, while Phillips Petroleum was fourth, down 2 1/2 at 54 1/2, after a major financial publication raised some doubts about the extremely optimistic prospects of the company held by some analysts.

On the American Stock Exchange, Tenneco warrants, unchanged at 4 1/2, was the volume leader.

Profit taking was apparent in some paper and basic commodity issues which have been heavily brought recently.

Utilities showed strength as investors continued to consider them good buys.

Commonwealth Edison was up 1/4 at 30 1/2, while Consolidated Edison was up 1/4 at 22 1/2, and Consolidated Natural Gas up 1/4 at 26 1/2.

The New York Stock Exchange's broad-based index of some 1,500 common stocks was down .05 at 56.21, while the Amex's market-value index was up .55 at 101.50.

Says SCLC Is Not Dead

The people in Pitt County must realize that the SCLC (Southern Christian Leadership Conference) is not dead, but very much alive," according to Bennie Roundtree, vice-president of the Pitt SCLC chapter.

Roundtree's comment was made while commenting on the 16th annual SCLC convention held in Indianapolis, Indiana last week, which he attended.

Roundtree, who headed a delegation from Pitt to the annual meeting said the SCLC faces "a tough assignment" in the year ahead.

"There is a failure of Black people who now occupy improved positions because of SCLC's struggle for freedom... to support it financially. "I am sorry to say that some of our churches have failed to speak out on criminal justice and the drug problem which is ripping off the Black community."

Roundtree praised Greenville Police Glenn Cannon for what he termed "an excellent job in reducing discrimination and police brutality because of what SCLC has stood for and has reacted to in the past."

But, Roundtree emphasized, "this is not a job for the police chief or other city officials alone. "I am pleading to all law abiding citizens to stand up and fight against that which is wrong, as well as to support that which is right."

Roundtree noted, "The Pitt County unit of SCLC is asking every citizen... to help the SCLC to continue to fight non-violently for freedom and justice for all."

Mr. Roosevelt Cannon of Rt. 2, Ayden, died at his home Monday. Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 1:30 p.m. at Live Oak F.W.B. Church with Elder W. W. Wilson officiating. Interment will follow in Live Oak Cemetery.

He was the son of the late Lubbie and Martha Grimes Cannon. He was born and lived most of his life in the Ayden Community.

He is survived by four sisters, Mrs. Mable Tucker and Miss Virginia Cannon, both of Ayden, Mrs. Lillian C. Staple and Mrs. Novella C. Cox, both of Bridgeport, Conn.; three brothers, Roscoe Cannon of Rt. 2, Griffon, William Earl Cannon, Ayden, Linberg Cannon of Bridgeport, Conn.

The body will be at the Norcott and Company Downtown Funeral Chapel from 6 p.m. Saturday until taken to the church one hour prior to the service.

Family visitation will be held at the chapel from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday.

Morton
BETHEL—The time of the funeral of Mrs. Ora Morton has been changed from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. It will be held Sunday at Riddick's Chapel Baptist Church by the Rev. J. L. Farmer, her pastor. Burial will be in Pinelawn Cemetery here. The body will be taken from Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home to her home on E. Crawford Street Saturday at 1 p.m.

Peele
AURORA—Robert T. Peele Sr., 78, a resident of the Royal community on Rt. 2, Aurora died in a Washington nursing home Thursday night following a long illness.

Mr. Peele was a retired farmer, a veteran of World War I, and a member of the Aurora United Methodist Church. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Lucy H. Peele of the home; a son, Robert T. Peele Jr. of Greenville; a daughter, Mrs. W. C. Bonner Jr. of Washington; three brothers, William D. Peele and Owen Peele, both of Aurora, and Rufus Peele of Chicago, Ill.; three sisters, Mrs. Alston Spruill, Miss Amanda Peele, and Miss Rosa Peele, all of Aurora; four grandchildren; and two great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at the Aurora United Methodist Church Saturday at 2 p.m. by the Rev. Emmitt McCall. Burial will be in the Oakhaven Cemetery at Edward. The body will be carried from Paul Funeral Home in Washington to the church one hour before the funeral.

City Council Site Selection Has Been Delayed

Relations Council, presented four recommendations adopted by the HRC in August. The Council, he said, recommends that Fair housing practices in the east side of the city be adopted to prevent discrimination against minority groups in purchasing homes. The adoption of crisis guidelines was also recommended as well as an affirmative action program to insure equal employment for all persons.

Mrs. Jean Darden, a member of the Human Relations Council, requested that the City Council endorse a resolution backing the idea of fair housing practices for all areas of the city. The HRC will prepare such a resolution and it will then be reviewed by the city attorney prior to endorsement by the council.

The Human Relations Council also recommended expansion of the Council membership to include two high school and two college students. The council will consider the appointments at the October meeting.

Applications for permits to operate taxicabs by Joseph William Spellman, Fred Lee Gray, and Mrs. Marilyn Moore Brown were approved by the council. All three were recommended for approval by the Greenville Police Department following routine investigations.

Approval was given to three revisions in the city's insurance protection and bond program. The revisions involve an increase in the maximum amount of coverage under certain statutory bonds, expanding bond protection to cover certain positions not now covered under the existing program, and purchasing additional insurance protection in the areas of theft and forgery.

City manager Bill Carstarphen reported that the revisions are designed to strengthen protection in the areas of insurance and bonds and would involve an increase in the annual premium of $1,156. The coverage would be expanded, he said, to employees who are in a position to handle money but have not been bonded in the past.

Council member Percy Cox questioned whether the coverage should be increased to the maximum amount on all employees handling money. "I don't see why all these people should have this higher coverage," he asserted.

Carstarphen said that the "Opportunity for loss is there when money is handled." The premium increase approximately doubles the existing rate.

Revisions in the city's paving contract with Barrus Construction Co. as proposed by Barrus, were considered and approved by the Council. The contract is reviewed periodically, it was noted.

The Council agreed to look into the feasibility of widening Chestnut Street following a request by Sidney H. Skinner for consideration of the widening project. Skinner asserted that widening of the street would take some of the traffic pressure off Dickinson Avenue. Council members agreed that the possibility of state participation in the funding of such a project should be looked into. The city's codes enforcement officer, Alton Warren, was instructed to look into a request by Skinner for more street lights in the Spruce-Myrtle Streets area. Skinner said that the area does not have sufficient lighting.

Councilman Bill Dansey said that the problem may be one involving not the number of lights in the area, but the distribution of the existing lights.

Skinner also requested that consideration be given to the operation of a Police Substation in the West Greenville neighborhood. Carstarphen said that currently no cities in the state operate precinct station and many cities outside the state are getting away from the idea.

It was pointed out that the Council approved an expansion of the number of patrol zones and authorized funding in this year's budget for the hiring of additional manpower in those areas. Additional officers are being hired to increase the patrol coverage.

The Council approved a request by East Carolina University, School of Allied Health and Social Professions, for the placement of a mobile home adjacent to the Pitt County Community Health Department and Mental Health Center.

Joel Vickers of the School of Allied Health told the board that there are no plans now to construct a permanent structure on the site to replace the mobile unit. Future plans depend on the availability of space at the new hospital, he said.

The mobile home will serve as a center for inter-disciplinary human resources team service delivery operations. An application for renewal of a mobile home permit by Mrs. Eliza Underwood of 1517 S. Pitt Street was granted with the stipulation that the permit be terminated when Mrs. Underwood moves from the unit.

Public hearings were scheduled on applications for mobile home permits by Pitt Memorial Hospital to place a unit behind the main hospital building as quarters for the night intern, by Pitt County Community Health Department to place a mobile home behind the Health Department Building for an office and by Joe Hardy to place a unit at 217 W. Dudley Street.

A public hearing was also scheduled on a request by P. G. Dickerson for rezoning of Pinegrove Subdivision located opposite Pinewood Forest Subdivision from RA-20 to R-9. The Council set a public hearing on a request for annexation of a triangular shaped tract in the southern portion of Tucker Estates by David A. Evans Jr.

Site Selection Has Been Delayed

WINTERVILLE — David T. Flaherty, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources told Winterville Kiwanis Club members last night that a decision on where to locate its Eastern Regional office has been postponed for a month in order to give Gov. Jim Holshouser time to take a look at other state departments, possibly coordinating the location of other regional offices in an effort to prevent departments having regional centers at different places.

Flaherty visited Greenville, August 27, surveying possible sites for an eastern office for his department. He also visited Washington and told officials the regional center would be located in one of the two Eastern North Carolina cities.

Flaherty, speaking at the club's regular monthly meeting, said civic groups and the general public should become involved in working with the state in its efforts to improve state hospitals and other services under the Human Resources agency.

He cited one example of how civic clubs can get involved in working with the state. He said clubs and private citizens sponsored a "Happiness Is..." day at the Murdock Center. "It had been just brick walls before," Flaherty explained, noting that the private community brought bedsprings, painted the old iron beds, installed curtains and hung pictures to brighten up the institution. "It means a whole lot for the place to be warm," he suggested, and estimated that it would cost in the neighborhood of $700,000 for the state to finance such projects at all of its institutions.

Flaherty told the Kiwanis Club members that some youngsters, who have been in state institutions for five, ten, 15 and even 20 years, have never had a visitor. "It would be nice," he suggested, "for civic clubs to write to the kids or go visit them or send them fruit."

In addition to encouraging public involvement in the department's activities, Flaherty outlined the role of his department — with its 25,000 employees — and its goals. He emphasized that "people are our most important resource" and said the administration wishes to hear the views of the people on how best the Department of Human Resources can serve.

Register Saturday
Miss Alya Ray Taylor, registrar for the city Board of Elections, reported that she has several incomplete registration forms that have been filled out by prospective voters.

She said that although she has tried to contact most of the people who failed to include various items of information on the registration forms, there are some who have not been contacted.

Miss Taylor asked that new registrants who have questions concerning their recent registration procedures call city hall at 752-4137.

The registrar added that she will be on duty all day Saturday at the Main Fire Station on Fifth Street to handle registrations. "I plan to be there throughout the day from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and even through the lunch hour," she said.

Registration books for the Oct. 9 municipal election will close at 5 p.m. on Sept. 10. Candidates for city offices have until Sept. 14 to file.

Suit Filed Against Raleigh Schools
RALEIGH (AP)—The federal government has filed suit in U.S. District Court accusing the Raleigh city schools of discriminating against female custodial employes by paying them 10 to 15 cents an hour less than the rates paid men for similar jobs.

The Labor Department also alleged that the Raleigh school system had shortchanged other employes on overtime and had failed to keep records on all hours worked.

The suit, filed in the name of Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan, asked the court to enjoin the school board and Supt. Conrad Hooper from continuing the pay rates. It also sought an order directing the board to make up the difference in back wages for the last two years, with interest added.

Labor officials said Thursday 67 women were affected by the pay policy.

Dies In Shooting
CHARLOTTE (AP)—A policeman shot an 18-year-old youth to death in Charlotte early today.

The policeman said the youth, Ricky Ricardo Cunningham, had wrested a pistol from another officer with whom he had scuffled.

The policemen had stopped Ricardo on a driving charge. The shooting occurred in the

Pirates Open Season With Tough 'Pack

Fullback Don Schink

What happened last year is now history. It's a whole new season, and the job is there to be done all over again.

The Pirates of East Carolina University went 9-2 last year, winning their first outright Southern Conference championship. Some feel they can win it again this year, posting as good a record or better.

Whether it can be done or not remains to be seen as the Bucs are on the verge of the new year.

Last season, they lost only twice and one of those was to the powerful Wolfpack of N.C. State University, a team that bowed only three times last year, while tying one. They tied Maryland in their opener, the first game under Lou Holtz who had taken over the reigns after a poor year in 1971. They lost two weeks later by a point to the eventual Atlantic Coast Conference champs, North Carolina, 34-33, then later bowed to Georgia, 28-22, and tough Penn State, 37-22.

They finished the season with a 42-17 rout of Clemson, then astonished West Virginia, 49-13 in the Peach Bowl.

And along the way then handed East Carolina one of its two losses, 38-16.

There are those who feel that score could well be repeated Saturday night following the 7:30 p.m. kickoff at Carter Stadium.

East Carolina Coach Sonny Randle isn't sure whether it might happen or not. "We're not ready to play right now," he said yesterday afternoon. "I don't know if we're going to be ready to play Saturday night. I hope things will change, but I really don't know if we CAN get ready, if you stop to analyze it. How do you get ready for a great football team like State?"

The Pirates will be going into the game in "great" physical shape, according to Randle, who put the Pirates through another tough opening. "We have to be tough. We don't have the numbers to play a lot of people, like State does, and then to play the schedule we have."

Injuries are still a concern to Randle, who admits that some of those who will see action Saturday night are recovering from minor injuries received during the final weeks of pre-season practice. "They haven't responded like we had hoped, but I'm not naming any names. They probably will be ready, but we're unsure how effective they'll be."

Randle says he doesn't understand why the Bucs haven't been getting up for the game.

"Apparently I'm not man enough to get them up. I thought that just having to play State would be enough to get them up, without anything extra."

Randle said that the heat that the Bucs have had to work in hasn't helped any either. "That hasn't helped our frame of mind any. It's tough anytime you're getting ready for a team like State, but it's close to impossible in this weather. I hope it'll be cooler Saturday evening, but I don't think it will be a great factor unless it's very hot. Then, they'll have a greater advantage over us, just by being able to rest their people more with that great dept of theirs," Randle said.

And the development of depth hasn't been a surprise for the Pirates. "We just don't have much," the coach said. "We knew that a couple of freshmen, Greg Pinkston and Jim Bolding, would help us in the secondary, but aside from that, there have been no surprises."

Randle plans to carry a squad of 50 to the game, but expects to play only about 25-30. "We had three major injuries up there last year," he recalled, "and we'll need plenty of back-up people."

State, meanwhile, appears to be in good condition for the opener too, although two regular running backs, Stan Fritts and Charley Young, are not going to start due to injuries. They are expected to be well enough to play. Also, the repaired retina of number two quarterback Dave Buckley appears to be causing no problem now. "They have three quarterbacks and five running backs," Randle said. "Injuries are always crucial, but with them, they have someone to turn to."

Randle also isn't expecting anything different this year in either State's offense or defense. "They did about everything on offense last year, and they'll probably add a little to that. Defensively, they used a 5-2, and if they can beat us without showing anything new, they will."

At the same time, Randle feels that all of the pressure is on State. "They are picked by 23-38 points in about every prediction we see," he said. "So the monkey is really on their back. We have nothing to lose."

Holtz apparently agrees. He said earlier in the year that a victory over Nebraska, State's third opponent would put him on Cloud Ten, but that if "lost to East Carolina, I probably won't be around for the Nebraska game."

Randle and the Pirates would like nothing better than to test this theory.

The Bucs will travel to Chapel Hill this afternoon, going to Raleigh to work out in Carter Stadium under the lights tonight.

A near capacity crowd is expected at the stadium, with the remaining tickets going rapidly. The stadium holds 41,000, and a crowd of no less than 36,000 appears certain, barring poor weather.

Pirate Club Passes 1,000

The East Carolina Pirate Club puts its ships into the waters to begin the football wars of 1973 this weekend, and Ira Norfolk, Executive Director of the Club, is pleased with the recruiting job done by the Navy his year.

"A stable nucleus of seasons salts return aboard," he said. "Coupled with a crew augmentation of 278 new shipmates, the club is up to 1,025."

Norfolk said that this is the first time that the Pirate Club has passed the 1,000 member mark in its history.

Membership in the club is made up of various ranks, depending on the amount of gifts presented. The top rank is Plank Owner, or life-time membership. Norfolk reports that there is now one member in this category.

There are 27 admirals, 2 comodores, 65 captains, 15 commanders, 98 lieutenants, 599 ensigns, and 221 bo'sun's mates.

Norfolk emphasized that the crew still has room for additional "shipmates" for the 1973-74 season, and anyone interested may contact him at the Pirate Club behind Ficklen Stadium.

The Club's first activities for the 1973 football season will get underway tonight in Raleigh, in preparation for the season opener with N.C. State Saturday night. Tonight, at the Sheraton, a kickoff banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. for club members. Chancellor Leo Jenkins and Attorney General Robert B. Morgan are to be the featured speakers.

In addition, three members of the club will receive "Pirate of the Year" awards. Norfolk said that the award is based on several factors, all of which spell out the named of the award. "They include Perseverance, Initiative, Resourcefulness, Aggressiveness, Tenacity, Enthusiasm, Yare, Energy, Allegiance, and Reliability," Norfolk said, adding that yare is an old word meaning preparedness.

Winners of the award this year include Bill Clark of Greenville, Floyd Jenkins of Fayetteville and Steve Morrisette of Raleigh.

Following the banquet, a hospitality suite will be opned at the Hilton.

Officers of the club include Les Garner, president; Jim Jackson, Harold Thomas and Mike Bunting, vice-presidents; Cliff Moore, treasurer; and Joe Hallow, secretary.

Field Goal Is Dolphin Killer

By DENNE H. FREEMAN, Associated Press Sports Writer DALLAS (AP) — The world champion Miami Dolphins enter the 1973 regular National Football League season wondering where all their magic has gone.

Call it the Superbowl jinx or whatever, but the Dolphins have lost their touch to win in the crunch, a trait which carried them to 17 consecutive victories last year.

"It used to be that the Dolphins were pulling out victories at the end, but now it has turned against us," Miami Coach Don Shula said Thursday night after Tony Fritsch's 22-yard field goal in the final three seconds handed Dallas a 26-23 victory as both clubs closed out the NFL exhibition season.

Two weeks ago, Fred Cox of Minnesota toed a field goal at the final gun to give the Vikings a 20-17 victory over Miami, snapping a streak of 23 games without a loss.

Losses to Minnesota and Dallas came after Miami had built up huge leads. The Dolphins led Minnesota 17-3 before bowing, and they held a 23-6 lead over Dallas before melting to the Cowboys' second half charge led by Craig Morton.

Quarterback Earl Morrall, who played the second half for Miami, summed up how his team felt about losing the pressure cooker games: "It's kinda tough to lose by a pair of field goals right at the last."

Miami opponents said that all last season.

Miami opens the regular season a week from Sunday against San Francisco in the Orange Bowl while the Cowboys travel to Chicago.

Baltimore, winner of Superbowl V, and Dallas, 24-3 conqueror of Miami in Superbowl VI, both folded in a defense of their crowns.

The Kansas City Chiefs, hampered by an erratic offense which has produced just one victory in five preseason games, will rely on 38-year-old quarterback Len Dawson to call the plays Friday against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dawson has quarterbacked the Chiefs only five quarters during the exhibition season and managed to complete six of 13 passes for 58 yards in Kansas City's 27-16 loss to Dallas last week.

The Cardinals have a 2-2 preseason record and probably will rely on a passing game sparked by quarterback Jim Hart who completed 18 of 48 passes for 257 yards in last week's 31-20 defeat by Chicago.

New England plays at Detroit and San Francisco is at Los Angeles in other Friday night games.

Saturday night Oakland is at Buffalo, Cincinnati hosts Green Bay, Cleveland and the New York Giants clash at Akron, Ohio, the New York Jets battle Philadelphia in Tampa, Fla., Atlanta is at Pittsburgh, San Diego welcomes Minnesota and Houston is at New Orleans.

It was the final pre-season game for the Cowboys, who must now cut four more people from their squad to get down to the prescribed limit of 40. That cut is expected to come Monday.

The game went right down to the end as Dallas came back from a 23-3 deficit to win, 26-23 with three seconds left, and the first string backs went most of the way.

Balance May Be Key For 49ers

By ERIC PREWITT, Associated Press Sports Writer SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers bucked a National Football League trend last season and still were winners.

But Coach Dick Nolan, looking at the slight downhill slide of the team over the past three years, is eager to shed his reputation as an iconoclast.

"Running and passing balance is the ideal, of course, and we will aim for that," he promises for the 1973 season, when the 49ers will be shooting for a fourth straight National Conference West Division title.

The San Francisco offense, led by quarterbacks John Brodie and Steve Spurrier, gained 2,735 yards passing and only 1,616 rushing last year. Twenty-seven of the offense's 38 touchdowns were on passes.

"The other top teams had a balance between passing and running of no more than 60-40. We were probably about 70-30, and that's bad," admits Nolan.

The 49ers, 8-5-1 last season, also were the only division winner without a 1,000-yard rusher in the NFL's "Year of the Running Back."

Rose, State Are Panel's 1st Picks

These are the times that try men's souls. No, it's not time to start a new revolution or anything like that. It's just time to start picking those winners again.

After last year's dismal finish in the Daily Reflector's Big Six poll, the cast has reassembled again this year with hopes that this writer will be able, once again, to claim his rightful place atop the heap.

Last year's position of being almost on the bottom of the heap was not well-liked by the sports department, so we have promised to try and do better.

It's not going to be easy, however. These are always those surprises that you don't expect that throw you down to the bottom of the pile.

This year's panel of experts is the same as last year. We again represent the sports department, while Tom Baines resumes as the Newsroom representative. Jack Whichard again is the management rep, while John Trotman is back for the advertising department. George Holland represents composing, while Sandra Spivey is our gal Friday again.

Sandra's predictions threw a scare into the men last year as she proved to be up there in the standings all year long.

So to it. First, a look at the high school games in the area. They are hard to pick, too, since it is the first outing for most.

Ayden-Grifton travels to Kinston. It's the first meeting for the two, but the Chargers are supposed to be strong this year. Kinston hasn't been strong at all for several years, and we've no choice but to pick Ayden-Grifton.

Conley goes to Southern Wayne in the first Eastern Carolina Conference game. The Vikings expect to be improved this year, but the Saints rank as one of the contenders for the title. Southern Wayne gets the pick.

North Pitt goes to Robersonville in a battle of old rivals meeting for the first time on the gridiron. The Panthers also are an improved team this year, but the Golden Eagles look like another league champ. We'll go with Robersonville.

Williamston goes to Gates County for its opener. The Tigers are now 3-A, but will be meeting an old league rival in Gates. We'll stick with Williamston.

Greene Central is at Saratoga in another old-time rivalry. Both stand to be top teams in their leagues, but we must go along with the Rams to win this one.

Turning to the Rose-Farmville Central game, there is near unanimity in the panel. Rose has a game behind it, a 7-7 tie with Washington in which they didn't look too sharp. Farmville Central is playing its opener.

The panel goes with experience, little though it is, and picks Rose by a 5-1 margin.

Then, East Carolina travels to Raleigh on Saturday for its first game—and with the rough Wolfpack of N.C. State, ranked as one of the best in the country. The Bucs are sure to have their hands full and the injury situation hasn't helped much. We'd like to hope for an upset, but all six apparently don't expect it. State is the choice of each of the pollsters.

UNC, State, Maryland Dominate Pre-Season All-ACC Selections

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina, North Carolina State and Maryland each placed five players on the 24-man All-Atlantic Coast Conference pre-season football team chosen by writers and sportscasters who recently completed a tour of the seven grid camps.

N.C. State, chosen by media representatives to unseat North Carolina's Tar Heels as conference champion, placed four men on the 13-player offensive unit and one on defense. North Carolina placed three on offense and two on defense, and Maryland landed three spots on defense and two on offense.

Nick Vidovic, an All-Conference selection last year who led the Tar Heels to an 11-1 record, including a Sun Bowl victory over Texas Tech, won the quarterback spot.

Returning All-Conference offensive players named to the pre-season team are N. C. State's tackle Rick Druschel, guard Bill Yoest and running back Willie Burden and Stan Fritts, and punter Chuck Ramsey of Wake Forest.

Players from the defensive unit include linebacker Paul Vellano of Maryland and backs Mike Smith of N.C. State and Bob Smith of Maryland.

Yoest and Stultz were unanimous selections. Other members of the offense team are:

Ends and wide receivers — Harrison Davis, Virginia; Frank Russell, Maryland; tackles — Robert Pratt, North Carolina; guards — Ken Huff, North Carolina; center — Paul Ryczek Virginia; running backs — Frank Harsh, Wake Forest; and place kicker — Steve Mike-Mayer, Maryland.

Others on the defensive team are:

Ends — Stan Land, Virginia, and Ernie Clark, Duke; tackles — Ronnie Robinson, North Carolina, and Randy White, Maryland; linebackers — Jimmy Williamson, Clemson, and Dick Ambrose, Virginia; and backs — Phil Lamm, North Carolina, and Ronnie Hoots, Duke.

In the voting for the probable order of finish in the ACC race, North Carolina State was picked first, followed in order by North Carolina, Maryland, Duke, Virginia, Clemson and Wake Forest.

He Won, But It Wasn't His Day

By KAROL STONGER
Associated Press Sports Writer
FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — It just wasn't Jan Kodes' day.

He won a match he didn't really have to play but lost his favorite racket along the way.

"It's gone," lamented the 26-year-old Czech, holding up the racket with a broken head.

"It's the one I won Wimbledon with," he said sadly. "I played all my matches there with it and all of my matches here with it. I don't serve as well with the other one."

Kodes broke the racket at 5-2 of the first set then struggled to a 6-2, 4-6, 6-1, 3-6, 7-5 quarterfinals triumph over Nikki Pilic of Yugoslavia in the U.S. Open championship.

Kodes broke Pilic in the 12th game of the fifth set for the right to meet top-seeded Stan Smith in the semifinals. Smith, the tall blond from Sea Pines, S.C., who won Wimbledon last year and the U.S. Open in 1971, breezed by Onny Parun of New Zealand 6-3, 6-3, 6-2 in Thursday's first center court match.

Pilic and Kodes were scheduled to play the second match, but through a mix-up in scheduling, Pilic was a late arrival so a women's doubles semifinal was inserted. "In the Italian Open I came late for a match with Arthur Ashe and I had to default," said Kodes. "But I didn't ask Pilic to default. I didn't want to go into the semifinals that way. I wanted to play."

It was a matter of honor. Kodes won Wimbledon after more than 70 members of the Association of Tennis Professionals boycotted it because Pilic had been banned for refusing to represent his country in Davis Cup play.

The absence of many of the premier players cast doubt on his ability. Even the Open selection committee questioned it by seeding him sixth.

Winning Wimbledon usually means gaining a No. 2 or No. 3 seeding at Forest Hills.

Montreal Vaults Into Second In National's East With Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Montreal Expos are in a pennant race. Isn't that just grand?

Yes, that is just Mike Jorgensen's grand slam.

The bases-filled blast Thursday led a 5-3 victory over the Chicago Cubs that moved the Expos into second place in the National League East, three games behind the St. Louis Cardinals.

That brought noisy approval from the partisan crowd at Montreal's Jarry Stadium.

Montreal's fans have every right to go beserk, if they wish.

The expansion club came into the league in 1969, but hasn't had a bona fide contender until this year.

In Thursday's only other National League game, the San Diego Padres nipped the Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2.

In American League action, the Cleveland Indians beat the Detroit Tigers 10-4; the New York Yankees stopped the Milwaukee Brewers 8-6; the Chicago White Sox blanked the Minnesota Twins 6-0 and the Oakland A's tripped the California Angels 6-4.

Padres 3, Dodgers 2
Fred Kendall singled home

Dave Roberts with the decisive run in the sixth inning, giving San Diego a 3-2 decision over slumping Los Angeles. The loss was the seventh straight for the Dodgers, who dropped 2½ games behind the front-running Cincinnati Reds in the National League West.

Indians 10, Tigers 4
Chris Chambliss slugged two home runs, one with the bases loaded, to power Cleveland to a 10-4 decision over Detroit. Chambliss' grand slam shot keyed a seven-run inning in the fourth that put it away for the Indians.

Yankees 8, Brewers 6
New York scored four times in the eighth inning, three on a homer by Mike Hegan, to beat Milwaukee 8-6. The Yankees loaded the bases and scored their first run of the rally on a sacrifice fly by Thurman Munson.

Hegan then blasted his fourth homer of the year against the foul pole in Yankee Stadium's right field. The four-run rally wiped out a three-run uprising by Milwaukee in the top of the inning.

White Sox 6, Twins 0
Stan Bahnsen checked Minnesota on four hits, pitching Chicago to a 6-0 triumph for his 18th victory. The White Sox provided the right-hander with the only support he needed in the first inning.

The White Sox scored two quick runs off Dan Fife as Pat Kelly opened with a double, Jerry Hairston walked and Bill Melton and Carlos May came through with run-scoring singles.

A's 6, Angels 4
Two relief pitchers helped Vida Blue win his 16th game in Oakland's 6-4 triumph over California. Blue held a 6-3 lead but was knocked out of the game on Frank Robinson's 25th homer in the eighth inning.

Horacio Pina came into the game at this point, but needed help himself from Paul Lindblad.

While the winner gets a fat $50,000, the runnerup takes $15,000, the No. 3 man wins $7,500 and the last man is assured of $5,000.

Both rounds will be televised nationally by NBC from 5:50 p.m. EDT Saturday and Sunday.

The Golden Bear, a four-time winner of this event, is making his ninth appearance in the World Series of Golf while the other three competitors are starting in this tournament for the first time.

The other players eligible are the winners of the American and British Opens, the Masters and the PGA National Championship.

Nicklaus got in as the winner on the season's last major title, the PGA.

The others in the fight for the $50,000 first prize are British Open champ Tom Weiskopf, U.S. Open king Johnny Miller and Masters title holder Tommy Aaron.

The site is the 7,180-yard, par 70 Firestone Country Club.

With quarterback Dave Humm hampered by elbow and knee ailments and possibly limited to only part-time duty, Nebraska may pass less and run more.

On the other hand, the 10th-ranked UCLA Bruins, greatest rushing team in Pacific-8 Conference history, "have not changed anything except improve our passing game," according to Coach Pepper Rodgers.

Nebraska After Loss Revenge

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Hoping for revenge in September and its third national college football championship in four years come January, Nebraska opens the 1973 campaign Saturday against none other than UCLA—the team that knocked the Cornhuskers from the top last fall.

Efren Herrera's last-minute field goal gave UCLA a 20-17 triumph, ending the Cornhuskers' 32-game unbeaten streak and depositing them as the No. 1 team in the land following two consecutive national titles.

They never made it back to the top of The Associated Press poll and eventually finished fourth, the same place they're ranked in the current pre-season ratings.

Gone from the Nebraska lineup are a quartet of super stars—Heisman Trophy winner Johnny Rodgers, Outland recipient Rich Glover, Willie Harper...and Coach Bob Devaney.

After 11 seasons as head coach, during which he compiled a brilliant 101-20-2 record, Devaney gave up the football job to devote full time to his duties as Nebraska's athletic director. He turned the coaching reins over to 34-year-old Tom Osborne, his hand-picked successor.

"Sure, it's a heck of a challenge and a tough act to follow," admits the red-haired Osborne. "But our coaches and our players are anxious to do a good job and they believe in what our program means at Nebraska."

"Sometimes I wish we were opening with a weak team, but that's not possible," Osborne says. "UCLA was good enough to beat us last year and Coach Rodgers' team is better this year."

With quarterback Dave Humm hampered by elbow and knee ailments and possibly limited to only part-time duty, Nebraska may pass less and run more.

On the other hand, the 10th-ranked UCLA Bruins, greatest rushing team in Pacific-8 Conference history, "have not changed anything except improve our passing game," according to Coach Pepper Rodgers.

Nicklaus Favored

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Pro golfer's Big Four winners square off in the game's World Series this weekend with—as usual—Jack Nicklaus in the favorite's role.

The Golden Bear, a four-time winner of this event, is making his ninth appearance in the World Series of Golf while the other three competitors are starting in this tournament for the first time.

The other players eligible are the winners of the American and British Opens, the Masters and the PGA National Championship.

Great Lakes Water Quality Worsening At Slower Pace

By PETER M. ZOLLMAN
BUFFALO (UPI) — Water quality in Lake Erie and the other Great Lakes isn't exactly improving yet, according to Dr. Robert A. Sweeney, "but it's getting worse at a slower rate."

Sweeney is director of the Great Lakes Laboratory at Buffalo State University College. One of his jobs is keeping an eye on the quality of the water and the marine life in the lakes.

"The elimination of phosphates is beginning to have an effect on the water," Sweeney said in a recent interview. "Akron, Ohio, Detroit, and other places outside Erie County (where Buffalo is located) have gone to smaller amounts of phosphates in detergents."

The 32-year-old, wiry limnologist ("that's a fresh-water ecologist") has been with the college for six years and been studying the lakes for the past eight. He stressed that—public notions to the contrary—Lake Erie and the other lakes in the chain are extremely productive.

"For its size, Lake Erie is still the most productive lake we know of in the world—but it's producing fish of little value," Sweeney said. "For example, at one time there were more fish taken out of Erie, Pa., than any other port in the world."

Sheepshead, carp, and ale-wives taken out of the lake now have little value, he said. However, efforts are being made at his lab and others to make better use of these fish through the production of "fish protein concentrate."

For human consumption, Sweeney said, the lake still yields lake trout, whitefish, yellow pike, cisco (a herring), blue pike, and others.

"People tend to think of Lake Erie as some kind of cesspool," he added. "This is absurd."

The problem of pollution in Lake Erie and other Great Lakes is being conquered, he said, but the big problem—municipal sewage—remains to be tackled.

Even Cleveland, with the famed "burning" Cuyahoga River, is doing something about pollution.

"The problem with Cleveland, as with most of the other municipalities along the shores, is that it's hurting fiscally," the youthful researcher explained.

"The major problem of the lakes is overfertilization. Lake Erie has aged 1,500 years biologically in the past 50 years.

"Aging may be reversible, but I doubt very much if we're ever going to have the number of fish in the lake that we used to."

The Great Lakes lab, with what Sweeney describes as "three distinct functions," is funded through grants and contracts with various governmental and private agencies as well as through the college.

Current funding for the staff of 33 is around $500,000 annually, and Sweeney expects it to level off and remain fairly steady.

Sweeney says the lab serves to educate, both through the college and through its well-known library; to conduct applied research on the causes and ramifications of water pollution; and to "cooperate and communicate" with citizens' groups and the media in an effort to spread the story of pollution and its solutions.

It operates a number of vessels on the lakes, including a 66-foot boat on "permanent

Ivory Poaching Increasing In East Africa

By RAYMOND WILKINSON
NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — The world monetary crisis has triggered a massive increase in ivory poaching throughout East Africa to the point where entire herds of elephants are endangered, according to wildlife officials.

Speculators, especially in India and China, for the last year have been snapping up ivory as quickly as it appears on the market, in preference to holding uncertain currencies, especially the American dollar, they said.

This has resulted in a dramatic increase in poaching by groups operating on a large scale and single operators who can get as much as $3,000 from a single elephant.

Poaching has become front-page news in local newspapers. The governments of East Africa, especially Kenya, are under increasing pressure to take measures to protect the herds.

Accurate figures are impossible to obtain, but the seriousness of the situation was underscored by David Sheldrick, warden at Kenya's Tsavo Park, one of the continent's biggest.

"With ivory at a premium, poachers have been trying to get into the park in such numbers that the situation became beyond our resources to control—until we received reinforcements," he said.

"But unless severe sentences are imposed on poachers as a matter of urgency, the indiscriminate slaughter of elephants and rhinos will pose a serious threat to the future of Isavo Park."

He said 300 elephants and 40 rhinos had been illegally destroyed since January.

Editorialized Africana, which speaks for the East African Wild Life Society, says in a forthcoming edition:

"This is the situation in one relatively small area of Kenya which is subject to close surveillance and effective policing. It makes you wonder what is going on in the more remote parts of the country."

And not only large scale gangs are making a killing. One up-country farmer told UPI:

"I go hunting now to make a profit. I can get a license for 2,000 shillings ($300) for a single elephant, and clear $3,000."

Non-citizen Asians who are gradually leaving Kenya are also getting into the act, according to wildlife officials.

Trophy Trick
Under exchange control regulations, they are allowed to take out of the country only a certain amount of foreign currency, but they are skirting this rule by hiring hunters to shoot elephants and then exporting the tusks as trophies.

Climbing Cliffs Said To Be Exhilarating

By STEWART POWELL
NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (UPI) — Paul Ross says when new rock climbers are halfway up an 800 foot sheer rock face, they may wish they were some place else.

But when it's all over, says the climbing instructor at Eastern Mountain Sports Climbing School, there is an exhilaration that can only be explained by doing it.

"I've been on climbs where I'd have given everything I had to get off the thing," said the 36-year-old British climber. "But the incredible fear that I felt on a climb seems to vanish after a day or two, and when you look back at it, all that's left is a sense of accomplishment."

Ross said climbing is safer than people think. "When one of us goes," he said, "it's quite spectacular. But there have been 65 drowning deaths in New Hampshire this year and no one is writing about that."

Two rock climbers fell more than 200 feet to their deaths Aug. 12 when an iron spike tore loose from the 1,300-foot sheer rock face on Swan Song at Cannon Mountain. Ross said that was only the third fatal climbing accident in 30 years.

"Something came loose," he said. "That is a rarity." Ross helped recover the bodies of the two climbers.

Courses are available to rock climbers, but there are no testing programs to certify climbing ability. Each climb is rated, however, in climbing manuals. "Climbers know what they're getting in to before they start," Ross said.

Ross is one of two permanent instructors at the 6-year-old mountain climbing school on the edge of the White Mountain National Forest. He is one of 40 rock climbing guides in America certified by the American Alpine Club.

The school instructs between 80 and 100 beginning rock climbers a month. Beginners usually complete part of the 400 foot vertical climb up Cathedral Ledge or the 800-foot climb up Whitehorse on their second day. Ross tells students fear is normal.

"If you don't have a sense of fear then you can really get yourself into trouble," he said. The biggest part of the climbing school's program is designed to prepare a climber mentally for the challenge. "I explained to people there is no such thing as getting dizzy or fainting, unless of course they have vertigo—a disease. It is very rare that people freeze" the 19-year climbing veteran said. Balance and strength also are essential.

"When people get into situations where they are exposed and they become very, very frightened," Ross said. "They start doing wrong things. They mess up and lose it."

"What you have to do is relax your mind," he said. "No school can give climbers that training, it's something they have to acquire on their own."

Many of the people who come to the school, Ross said, just want to try it out. "At least half the people who take the course have never even read about rock climbing, let alone done it," he said. "Their reaction is quite dramatic when they are taken to the foot of the rock face they will climb on their second day."

TREASURE COVE—Your Getaway Place to the Sea. One of the finest recreational communities in the country, with everything you've ever wanted in such a community plus a private 24-hour security force for the protection of your property and your privacy.

THE NEUSE RIVER—flows right by the property. Deep enough for the largest pleasure boats and wide enough for small craft sailing and water skiing. The fishing's great too. Blues, flounder, croaker, spots, hogfish and speckled trout are all caught just offshore.

PAMLICO SOUND—hundreds of square miles of sheltered water. Perfect for sailing, boating, fishing. And it's just eighteen miles via the Neuse River from your homesite at Treasure Cove.

THE ATLANTIC OCEAN—the second largest water playground in the world (only the Pacific is bigger). The deep sea fishing here is among the very best anywhere. And you're only thirty miles from Treasure Cove.

Minorities Business Ventures

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—When black businessmen approach Ralph Hunt for advice on starting a new venture, he'll tell them the three "M's" for survival are Management, Marketing and Money, and that if they can get the first two the last will come.

Hunt is director of the Durham Business and Professional Chain, an organization of businessmen that has been helping blacks and other economically disadvantaged groups get the three M's together for more than 30 years.

The chain was one of the first southern chapters of the National Business League that Booker T. Washington started in the 1930's as a self-help organization for blacks.

Last year, it was among nine agencies in the country to be awarded special contracts as Business Development Organizations by the federal Office of Minority Business Enterprise.

This fall, the chain will add a new service to the list of ways it has been helping minority businesses, when it takes on a cooperative project with graduate business students at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The chain has invited graduate students who run a volunteer consulting project called the Master of Business Administration Business Assistance Program to help with serving some of its clients in the Durham area.

It has also invited the students to help with one of the chain's biggest projects, coordinating plans for a black shopping center proposed for Durham at the intersection of the East-West Expressway and Fayetteville Road.

Planned as part of Durham's urban renewal program, the shopping center will be owned by a corporation sponsored by the black community. Currently, the chain is working to find several large merchants to rent space at the shopping center, and it will meet with developers later this month. The large tenants are needed in order to secure loans to buy the land that has been reserved for the shopping center.

It also helps prospective black businessmen secure loans; gives technical advice, and sponsors seminars on general management subjects.

Archery Workshop Set

There will be an archery workshop for adults Tuesday from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. at West Greenville Gymnasium at the corner of W. Fourth and Nash Streets here.

The workshop will be conducted by E. M. Jones, extension forestry specialist from N. C. State University. According to Michael A. Davis, assistant extension agent working with 4-H, the 4-H program has secured equipment through a local sponsor and will begin conducting archery activities throughout Pitt County. This workshop will acquaint adults with the archery program. Any interested adult may attend.

Racer To Speak To 6th Grade

Carl Horton, race car driver from Grifton, will speak to the Sixth Grade class at Contentnea Elementary School in Kinston next Wednesday at 1:30 p.m.

The sixth graders are studying various types of vehicles and overall safety and Horton's topic for the session will relate to the study program.

Mrs. Jeanne Carr, sixth grade teacher at Contentnea, arranged for the guest speaker.

The 'Worry Clinic' Winning New College Friends

Lana wanted a college romance! Many happy marriages followed the classroom technique I taught my psychology students at Northwestern University. Star salesmen memorize a surefire conversational formula. So do all people who are popular! Read below!

By GEROGE W. CRANCE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE Y-511: Lana B., aged 18, is soon to enter college. "But, Dr. Crane," she protested, "I have always been shy and almost tongue-tied when I meet strangers. "So what can I do to win friends when I reach the campus?"

Solutions Vs. Theory
Alas, our educational system has devoted too much stress to theories and far-fetched data. But has failed even to show teen-agers how to carry on easy, effortless conversation, which is essential for social happiness. Analyze these two book titles, each of which was advertised nationwide for an entire year in leading American newspapers. They were priced the same. —The Secret of Self-Improvement

—How to Improve Your Conversation
One title pulled 77,000 orders while the other produced only 36,000.

In chapter I, of my college textbook, "Psychology Applied," I have listed the "5 Basic Laws of Human Motivation."
That pair of book titles illustrates one of them, which shows that the specific is more appealing than the general.

Self-Improvement is thus a general heading, covering conversation and many other things.

So the "Conversation" title sold the 77,000 copies!

And that is also borne out by Lana's query about how to carry on gay repartee.

In my classes at Northwestern University, I'd thus practicalize psychology by showing how it could be used in everyday situations.

So I'd ask a coed and a young man to come forward and sit in front of the class in a pair of chairs, arranged facing the audience.

They were to imagine they were casual seat mates on an airplane or bus.

"Now show the class how you'd get the conversational machinery rolling gracefully," I'd instruct the coed.

Starting casual conversation requires previous drill, just as tyro salesmen must also be taught exactly what to say when meeting a prospect.

The coed would thus smile prettily and start her part of the dialogue but end with a question mark, as a cue for his entry.

"I suppose you're a senior here at Northwestern?" she'd deftly compliment him while asking a question.

"Oh, no," he'd happily protest, "I'm just a freshman."

"You are?" she'd exclaim in apparent surprise. "Why, you look as poised and assured as if you'd been on campus before. Do you happen to live here in Chicago?"

And by this neat device of shooting questions at him, she'd keep pulling him back into the dialogue.

All an easy conversation consists of its merely a dialogue where one member of the duo keeps the conversational machinery rolling steadily by means of those question marks!

Since girls usually more deft

Kennedy Daughter To Wed

BOSTON (AP) — The eldest daughter of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy plans to marry a Harvard University graduate student, the Boston Globe reports.

The Globe says it learned Wednesday that Kathleen Kennedy, 22, a senior at Radcliff College, will become the bride of David Lee Townsend, 25. He is working toward a doctorate in American literature.

Townsend was Miss Kennedy's tutor during her sophomore year at Radcliff. Townsend, a 1969 graduate of Loyola College in Baltimore, said the couple had not decided where to live after their fall wedding, although both would continue their studies in Cambridge. He was contacted Wednesday at his parents' home in a suburb of Baltimore, Md.

Marrieds Can Play

COLUMBIA (AP)—Pending a hearing, U. S. District Judge Robert W. Hemphill Tuesday ordered the South Carolina High School league to stop enforcing a rule which prohibits married students from participating in high school interscholastic athletic competition.

His order is the result of a complaint brought in federal court at Greenville on Aug. 14 by Alford Crews Beeson, a married student at Liberty High School. The high school and the Pickens County School District are also defendants in the suit.

Beeson sought to play football but was turned down because of the High School League rule which states that to participate in interscholastic athletics, "a student must not be married nor shall he ever have been married."

with words, I'd place the major burden on the coed.

Men usually exhaust their conversational ammunition when they have mentioned the weather and the last athletic contest!

Dr. John Morgan at Evanston and I on our Chicago Campus thus had the largest enrollments of anybody in our entire Psychology Department.

And it was because both of us stressed the specific interests of students, slanting our lectures and classroom experiments to their immediate needs!

So send for my booklet "Formula for Being an Interesting Conversationalist and Personality Improvement," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. Anti-water Pollution Priority Set RALEIGH (AP)—Projects in Guilford County and Greensboro have been given No. 1 state priority among 39 anti-water pollution projects in North Carolina calling for federal grants totaling $38 million.

The state Office of Water and Air Resources has given preliminary approval to the 39 projects. The recommendations were made public Wednesday at a hearing before a committee of the board.

Both the state and the federal Environmental Protection Agency are expected to give final approval before the end of the year.

Some $2.7 million in federal money is proposed in planning for the Greensboro Metropolitan Sewage system and construction of sewer facilities in Guilford.

Other large grants recommended include: Farmville, $3 million; Durham, $1.5 million; Concord, $7.7 million; Hickory-Newton, $6.4 million; Morehead City, $1.2 million; Henderson, $4.2 million, and Wilson, $1.4 million.

Carolina Beach would receive $797,000 in federal aid toward a $1 million waste treatment plant. Beaches in Dare County would get $250,000 for planning for a sewage complex.

The principle of the rotary engine, now being used in some automobiles, was patented in 1769 by James Watt, inventor of the steam engine, says National Geographic.

Music Festival On Channel 9

During the last few years young people have been flocking to rock music festivals across the country. Illegal drug use, sex, and scattered trash are generally characteristic of these festivals, but the Rock of Ages music festival at Sidney, Ohio is a glowing exception to the rule.

It's hard to believe that people in this day and time can actually get high on God, but the film "Rock of Ages" lets you see it for yourself. The people at this unique festival manifest a way of life that's been hidden for almost 2000 years. It's a way of life that turned cities upside down, shook governmental officials with amazement, and astounded the eyes of all who beheld the many mighty miracles and wonders God brought to pass at the commands of these extraordinary people.

What is this way of life? What are these people like who get high on God? How do they do it? What kind of music do they play? You can see it Sunday, September 9th at 10 A.M. on CBS TV, Channel 9. (Advertisement)

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Interesting friendships can be continued or started now. Good judgment and interesting activities can be realized by those who want to make humanitarian progress. You are able to make progressive gains in social activities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A fine day for contacting good friends and making new contacts. Plan new recreations and hobbies that are more to your liking. Show more devotion to family in the evening.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are now able to contact influential persons at recreations. See what can be done about improving your credit rating. Use a practical approach. Take time to engage in amusements.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take a trip to whatever place will open up new vistas and profitable outlets for the future. Take a more definite approach to what has been impossible to achieve in the past. Be firm.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Confide a plan you have to loved one and get the cooperation you need to make it a success. Put tasks behind you that are vital although they may seem unimportant at this time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) As associate needs your cooperation and advice now, so be sure to give. Take part in a civic affair that you enjoy. Do something constructive about an emotional problem you have.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Adopt new appliances that can make your work less tedious and save time, strength and bring in more benefits. Find the right apparel that makes you look more charming and up-to-date.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Getting together with individuals you truly like can make this a most pleasant day. Show loved one more devotion and affection and deepen the bonds between you. Be helpful to others.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Some changes at home can make the conditions there more pleasant in the future, so cooperate with kin more closely. Make the home more functional and add more comforts. Be more cheerful.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Good day for visiting new places and taking in pleasures that give you a feeling of happiness. Think along more optimistic lines. Cheer others up. Do something constructive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Making improvements at home would be welcome now and a fine way to spend the day. Meet with financial expert late in the day and get new and better ideas for advancement in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Entertain or be entertained by good friends whom you want to remain in your life far into the future. Put that fine gregarious quality into constructive use at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Follow your intuitive promptings and know where to go so that you can become more successful in the days ahead. The evening can then be fine for the romantic side of life.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who will want to be of service to others and for this reason would do well in personnel work, nursing and in the social service fields. Education should be directed in pleasing the public. The nature is a discriminating one. Teach kindness early.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

New Protein Drink To Be Tested

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A division of Coca-Cola Co. said Wednesday that a new powdered drink with as much protein as milk will be test marketed in the Atlanta area.

The product, called "Sampson," is mixed with water and comes in several flavors such as orange and lemon.

A Coca-Cola spokesman said the new high-protein product is intended as an alternative to milk, and has been recommended to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for use in school breakfast programs.

However, a spokesman for the Senate Agriculture Committee in Washington said the school proposal has not been accepted.

The new product is processed from whey, which is the watery part of milk that contains sugar and minerals.

"A lot of people really don't like milk," the Coca-Cola spokesman said. "This drink would give them the protein they miss by not drinking milk."

"Sampson" will be tested for acceptability in private schools, restaurants and some hospitals in the Atlanta area, the spokesman said.

Los Angeles (AP) — Actress Cybill Shepherd has sued Playboy magazine for $9 million. She claims it wrongfully published two seminuude photographs from "The Last Picture Show," in which she starred.

The actress, 23, said she only reluctantly had agreed to the scenes in the popular movie in which she stripped before jumping into a swimming pool.

The Memphis actress, popular in television commercials and a frequent cover girl, said use of the photos without her consent in Playboy invaded her privacy and was a misappropriation of her property rights.

Also named in the suit as a defendant was the magazine's publisher, Hugh Hefner.

The bidding:
 South West North East
 1 NT Pass 3 NT Pass
 Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥

There are times when declarer has several different ways to play for his contract, but he cannot afford to adopt the wrong line. Occasionally, the dilemma can be solved by enlisting the aid of the opposition.

After South had opened the bidding with one no trump, North did not feel that the quality of his heart suit was such that he should probe for a 4-4 fit and a major suit game. With 13 high card points opposite a minimum of 16, he felt there was little danger at three no trump.

West led the king of hearts, and declarer could count eight top tricks. A 3-3 diamond division would give him his ninth and, if that failed, the club and spade finesses were still in reserve.

To investigate the possibilities, declarer won the first trick with the ace of hearts and tested the diamonds, ending in his hand. Unfortunately, West discarded a low spade on the third round. Declarer could not very well afford the club finesse, for if it lost he might be defeated — he could lose four heart tricks and a club. To complicate matters, the spade finesse could be taken either way.

Declarer found a practical solution to his problem. The possibility that West started out with six hearts was remote. Rather than guess which finesse to take, declarer simply exited with a heart.

West took his four heart tricks, declarer discarding three clubs from his hand and a diamond from dummy. With nothing but black cards left in his hand, West had to lead into one of declarer's tenaces. Whichever suit he led would allow declarer to score three tricks in that suit, bringing South's total to nine.

This line of play gave up any chance of overtricks, but landed the game.

Minges Not To Seek Sixth Term

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP)—Mayor John Minges, citing family and business interests, announced today he will not seek a sixth term in the upcoming election Oct. 9.

"It's time to step down," said Minges at a news conference.

"I want to express my deep appreciation to the people of this community who have supported me in my administration's programs. I thank them for their confidence in me."

Minges expressed pride in his record. "Our unemployment rate is one of the nation's lowest, our public utilities are developed to a high level of capacity, local government is viable and effective and our fiscal position is healthy."

The 55-year-old mayor was first elected in 1964 and has served five consecutive two-year terms.

No candidates have filed for the office.

Minges' goal of attracting new industry to the Rocky Mount area served as both a campaign platform and election issue. Since he first took office, some 50 new industries have located in Nash and Edgecomb counties.

With or without the rocks? Either way it's superb Tennessee Sour Mash Whisky.

Why? It's mellowed through charcoal. For a smooth, expensive taste.

What? The thought that quality always takes a little longer.

When? Alone or with a friend. George Dickel makes anytime special.

U.S. Solicitor General Is A Red-Bearded Intellectual

By MARGARET KILGORE WASHINGTON (UPI) — When the Supreme Court returns to work in October, the justices will find Solicitor General Robert Heron Bork, a red-bearded intellectual who advocates restraint in the use of law and the power of the courts, serving as the government's top trial lawyer.

"Just say I like to read and write and talk to my friends and drink a little," the amiable 46-year-old Bork said in an interview at his Justice Department office. He is down the fifth floor hall from Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson.

While Richardson went to Justice as part of the Watergate housecleaning, Bork was named to his assignment following the routine retirement of Erwin N. Griswold at the end of the court year in June.

Bork, Richardson and acting Deputy Attorney General William D. Ruckelshaus confer regularly on policy issues affecting Justice, including efforts to improve the department's public image.

A Yale University Law School professor who supported President Nixon's re-election in 1972, Bork will represent the government before the Supreme Court. He will decide which cases the government should ask the court to review and what the government's position should be.

Fine Sieve

He also will supervise preparation of the briefs and will personally argue the most important cases before the high court, wearing a black long-tailed morning coat he said he has been too busy to have fitted.

Working with a legal staff of 15, Bork hopes to use a fine sieve in deciding what cases to bring to the Supreme Court.

"We file 1,700 pleadings a year with the high court," Bork said. "That's too much for us to handle and too much for them." Several justices have complained of being hopelessly bogged down in appeals that are never accepted for review and that cut into their valuable case deliberation time.

During Bork's confirmation hearing before the Senate Judiciary Committee, liberal Democrats were critical of his conservative political views, but said they were "disarmed" by his answers to their questioning.

Bork described the solicitor general's job as more that of a hired hand than a policymaker. He said, "I will enforce the policy of the government in antitrust as the government defines it and not as I define it."

IBM Case

Bork was critical of the administration's early campaign against conglomerate mergers. He also has written a book on antitrust policy but now says it will await publication until he leaves office.

"I've written a lot of things that perhaps I would have been better off not writing, now that I'm on the other side," he observed with a grin.

Asked if he thought the government's protracted antitrust suit against International Business Machines, begun in 1969, might finally come to trial, he quipped, "Yes, eventually. But I may not still be around to see it."

The new solicitor general is a native of Pittsburgh, a graduate of Hotchkiss, an exclusive Connecticut prep school, and the University of Pittsburgh. He served in the Marines in World War II, emerging as a captain.

As an undergraduate, he said, he was a "conventional New Deal liberal." In law school at the University of Chicago he met conservative professors who changed his views, "but the beard still gives me a liberal image," he said, tugging at his well-manicured whiskers.

Teach, Write, Think

After law school, he practiced for a year in New York and then returned to Chicago to join Kirkland, Ellis, Hodson, Chafetz and Masters (now Kirkland and Ellis), the city's largest firm. He soon was made a partner.

In 1962, he decided "those guys in practice don't have time to spend all the money they make." He joined the Yale faculty to teach and write and think.

"It's an advantage for me to be in government now," Bork said, "because I've been in practice and I've taught, so I've seen law from all angles." He is married and has three children, all avid skiers.

Bork was one of 45 academic figures who signed a full page advertisement in The New York Times last Oct. 15 endorsing Nixon for re-election. He avoids comment now on the President's Watergate involvement.

ACLU Case

"I was much more up on the whole thing when I was sitting around the Faculty Club at Yale last year," he said. The most notable case his office handled on behalf of the government were efforts by the American Civil Liberties Union to halt the Cambodian bombing before the Aug. 15 cutoff. The government won the case.

However, if the Senate effort to force President Nixon to release taped White House interviews ever reaches the high court it probably will be argued by a member of the special Watergate prosecuting team, not Bork, because of efforts to keep the investigation independent.

When a letter to the editor in the Times challenged the academic endorsement of Nixon, Bork replied with a letter dated Oct. 29, 1972, which praised the President's Vietnam policy, his leadership and his Supreme Court appointments.

"The judicial philosophies of the new justices," he wrote, "are far more in line with the historic philosophy of the court than were the views of the dominant wing of the (former Chief Justice Earl J.) Warren court. The Warren court represented a sharp challenge to the traditional relationship of the judiciary to the processes of democratic government."

"We are in no danger of having our individual liberties unduly contracted by the new court. Rather, we are in a period of consolidation and, hopefully, a new era of respect for the judgments of the representative branches of government."

He also was one of Nixon's consultants in drafting the legislation he sent to Congress last March to make school busing a limited, last-resort remedy for school desegregation.

First Total Blood Washout Survivor Now On Active Duty

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Air Force Sgt. Tor Olsen lay on the operating table a year and a half ago with no pulse, no heartbeat, no brain waves—and no blood in his body, just saline solution.

"I guess you could say I was dead," Olsen said in an interview, looking tanned and fit in his Air Force blues. "Now I feel great."

Olsen, 23, was a victim of viral hepatitis and in a stage four coma—the one that precedes death—on March 31, 1972, when doctors at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center in San Antonio, Tex., decided to try a total "washout" of his blood supply. His own blood was pumped from his body, replaced first by a salt solution, then by donor blood.

"I was the third one on whom it was tried and the first to survive," Olsen said almost casually, although he was far from casual at the time of the washout that became a medical "first." The same procedure has since been performed successfully on others, including 14 at Wilford Hall.

Olsen was suffering from complete liver failure when the washout was performed and its success may mean that perhaps half of the 6,000 Americans who die of liver failure each year can be saved, according to the Air Force.

Olsen's story began in February, 1972. Until then he had been a normally healthy young man whose experience with doctors was limited to "a sprained ankle and things like that."

"Then suddenly I was having joint pains, back pains, pains in the elbows, knees, fingers. I felt like I had arthritis but I thought that was ridiculous for somebody my age."

"I was a typist then at McConnell Air Force Base outside Wichita, Kans. I had blood tests taken at the hospital there and they diagnosed it as hepatitis and gave me bed rest and things. I didn't even feel sick."

"My records showed I was doing pretty well. All of a sudden I started deteriorating, the blood tests were really getting bad. I was getting really tired—things along that nature. This was over a period of four or five weeks."

"Then I started hallucinating. It's like having your eyes open and looking into a kaleidoscope. You can't distinguish shapes or patterns—really weird."

"After that, as far as I knew, I just fell asleep—but actually it was a coma."

"Medevac"

On March 28 Olsen was airlifted to Wilford Hall. During the "Medevac" (medical evacuation) flight his condition deteriorated. He was only slightly responsive to pain. His pupils were fixed and dilated and didn't react to light. By the time the jet landed, he was in stage four coma.

Olsen failed to respond to conventional treatment and finally, on March 31, Air Force doctor Col. Gerald Klebanoff decided to attempt the "washout" or bloodless perfusion.

"But then after a while I did believe it and then I was scared, really scared. I realized what I'd been through and that nobody else had made it so far. I was afraid I wasn't going to make it. My parents were there, they'd come down from Laurens, N.Y., and they reassured me. And I prayed a little bit as I imagine everybody in that situation does."

"I started to come out of it late the next day, a Saturday, but I was still very confused, I didn't understand," Olsen recalled.

"The next day, it was Easter Sunday, they had to explain it to me. The last I remembered I was in Kansas, now I was in an intensive care unit in Texas and I was missing a few days. I didn't believe it at first, it sounded too farfetched, too far out."
