Oil Producing Nations To Demand More Money

By JOHN LAWTON

VIENNA (UPI) — The world's major oil exporting nations agreed Saturday to demand more money for their oil, Abderrahman Khene, secretary general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), said.

"All the ministers were in agreement that the Tehran Agreement should be revised," Khene told newsmen after a day of secret talks between oil ministers of OPEC's 11 members, who sell most of their production to the West.

The Taehran Agreement fixes the price structure oil companies pay OPEC member nations for their oil.

The ministers will meet again Sunday to name a negotiating team for talks with the oil companies, Khene said.

The OPEC has so far had no contact with the oil company representatives, Khene said, but its members hoped negotiations on revising the Tehran Agreement could begin in several weeks.

The Tehran Agreement, signed in February, 1971, runs through 1975 with no provision for revision.

"But circumstances have changed," said an OPEC official said.

OPEC members include Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Kuwait, Libya, Nigeria, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela. They supply the industrialized states of the West

The 11 members get an automatic 2.5 per cent price increase each year from oil companies to compensate them for inflation.

But the group's officials said actual inflation had far outstripped this figure—in some cases by as much as 11 per cent.

The inflation clause is part of the 1971 Tehran Agreement that established the price structure oil companies pay OPEC's members for their oil. It runs through 1975 with no provision for revision .

Arab News reports Saturday said the Libyan government has warned six foreign oil companies it partly nationalized Sept. 1 that they face total nationalization, if they reject Libya's terms for 51 per cent of their interests.

The Iraqi News Agency, in a dispatch from Tripoli, said the Libyan government has served an ultimatum to the six companies they will be taken over completely if they reject the Libyan terms.

The six companies to be partly nationalized are: Esso Standard Libya, the Libyan American Petroleum Co., the Shell Company for Exploration and Production, Mobiloil Libya, Texaco and the Asian Oil Company of California.

At The University Of Chicago

Explosions Rip Campus Storeroom

CHICAGO (UPI) — A series of explosions ripped through a chemical storage room in historic Jones Hall on the University of Chicago campus Saturday. Officials said radioactive materials stored in the area were secure.

The blasts, which shattered virtually all the windows in the basement of Jones Hall and triggered clouds of dense smoke, occurred in a room known as "The Cave" where chemicals used in research and teaching are stored. Four security guards sustained minor injuries.

A spokesman for the university said firemen and scientists at the scene were "quite satisfied that the canister containing radioactive materials was not entered and fears of radiation contamination were allayed."

Deputy Fire Marshal William Foley entered the area of the explosions about five hours after the blasts and said he could not determine what had caused them. University scientists were not immediately allowed in the building to make an inventory to attempt to isolate what caused the blasts.

The four security guards who were on duty at the chemistry complex of three buildings were treated for cuts and bruises at Billings Hospital. Authorities said no one was in Jones Hall at the time.

It was on the fourth floor of George Herman Jones hall in 1942 that scientists first isolated and weighed the man-made element plutonium, which is vital in nuclear engineering and the development of atomic weapons. The fourth floor has been made a national landmark.

Jones Hall is just across the street from Stagg Field where the first self-sustaining nuclear reaction was achieved by scientists working on the Manhattan Project during World War II. They ushered in the nuclear age.

Donors Needed

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be at the Moose Lodge Monday and Tuesday, with a quota of 116 pints needed each day.

Red Cross Executive Secretary Mrs. Ruth Taylor said the Blood Bank Pledge file, still in the beginning stages will be used with certain pledgers being notified to go and give. She said, though, that many more will be needed and noted that those who have pledged should not feel they have to wait to be called.

In spite of a good visit last month, the County quota is still down, she said.

She urged local firms to cooperate by allowing their employees free time to go out and give blood.

The hours are from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday and from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday.

Sharp Fighting In Cambodia

By ARTHUR HIGBEE

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Government and Communist troops fought two sharp skirmishes Saturday just seven miles from Phnom Penh and two terrorist bombs inside the capital wounded at least 10 persons.

Police said seven Cambodians were hurt when a plastic bomb went off at a ferry landing at early morning market time and three others were injured when a grenade was thrown into a police substation about 20 minutes later.

At Kompong Cham, the provincial capital 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh, government troops were clearing Communist infiltrators out of the suburbs, the high command said. The Communist threat to the city appeared to be subsiding, but the western suburbs and the airport road remained in insurgent hands.

In Vietnam, bitter fighting for control of Highway 1 claimed nearly 100 lives on the central coast about 280 miles north of Saigon, government military spokesmen said.

A spokesman for the South Vietnamese command reported 98 truce violations in the 24 hours ending at noon Saturday, 25 more than the previous day.

Communist forces encircled about 100 government soldiers seven miles southwest of Phnom Penh Friday night, field reporters said. Government forces went to their aid at daybreak, but five men were wounded in the stalled rescue effort.

Seven miles southeast of Phnom Penh, about 300 government troops with 10 armored vehicles advanced half a mile west and captured three Communist bunkers, taking two prisoners.

Cambodian Chief of Staff Maj. Gen. Sosthene Fernandez said the defense of Kompong Cham, one month after American bombing ended, "shows that our armies are capable of doing their duty and fighting alone."

To Sell To N.Y. Times

LEXINGTON, N.C., (AP) — Publisher Joe S. Sink Sr. says the Lexington Dispatch is being sold to the New York Times.

The sale is being timed to coincide with Sink's retirement. Otherwise, the operation of the afternoon daily newspaper will remain essentially the same, with no change in personnel or management planned. Fred O. Sink Jr. is editor and copublisher, and Joe Sink Jr. is general manager and managing editor.

Details of the sale are being work out and no price has been announced. The Dispatch is owned and published by the family of the late Fred O. Sink Sr., chief stockholders in the Dispatch Publishing Co. He died in 1939 and his widow, now 93, is the major stockholder in the publishing company.

He began work with the paper as a youngster and bought it in the early 1920s.

Morgan May Run

RALEIGH (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan says he probably will run for the U.S. Senate in 1976 if veteran Sen. Sam Ervin decides not to seek reelection.

In an interview published in Sunday editions of the News and Observer, Morgan said he would have to consider his own respect for Ervin if Ervin decides to run again as well "as the effect a bloodletting might have on the Democratic party."

"I plan to run if he does not run," Morgan said. Morgan said he was "almost certain, as certain as you can be this far in advance."

Morgan said a final decision probably would be made in January.

Grant Announced

Bill Dansey, First District GOP chairman, has announced that he has been notified by Sen. Jesse Helms office in Washington, D.C. that a combined grant from the Economic Development Adminsistration and the Coastal Plains Regional Commission of $440,000 has been approved for the Ocracoke sanitary District.

Dansey said that the funds will be supplemented by an additional $110,000 from the Ocracoke Sanitary District to fund the construction of a water supply system on Ocracoke.

He pointed out that the grant was in the form of $385,000 from EDA and $55,000 from the Regional Commission.

Order Returning To Chile

By STEVEN H. YOLEN

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Chile began pulling itself back together Saturday, four days after the bloody coup that left a president dead, installed a military junta government and totally disrupted the life of the nation.

The junta ordered banks and stores to open during an eight-hour lifting of curfew between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

The military continued mopping up action against die-hard supporters of deposed Marxist President Salvador Allende, who were still sniping throughout the city. Allende died during the fighting last Tuesday. Scattered shooting could be heard Saturday.

The government announced on nationwide radio the summary execution of a sniper in Valparaiso.

It said "extremists" had attacked an army post and police stations. "One of the snipers was captured and executed on the spot," the broadcast said.

The government still had not made any announcement of casualty figures in the coup fighting. Unofficial estimates placed the death toll at 1,000.

Military forces appeared to be in total control throughout the country except for the small pockets of resistance.

Government employes were ordered back to work by Monday or risk losing their jobs. The mines ministry was ordered to work Saturday.

International communications were beginning to be reestablished. Telex was restored to the outside world and communications satellites were beginning to operate.

The country's borders remained closed and no passenger flights were allowed to land at Santiago. There was no indication when international travel would again be permitted.

Grandson Carl Gustaf To Become New King

Swedish King Dead At Age 90

By IAN WESTERGREN

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — King Gustaf VI Adolf, loved and respected by both monarchists and republicans, died today, the court announced. He was 90.

Crown Prince Carl Gustaf, the 27-year-old heir to the throne who will automatically succeed his grandfather as "King of the Swedes, the Goths and the Vandals," was at the death bed.

The Crown Prince became the new king the moment King Gustaf VI Adolf's heart stopped beating.

The Swedish Broadcasting Corp. interrupted its radio and TV programs to broadcast the announcement of the king's death, followed by mourning music.

Outside the red brick hospital building in Helsingborg hundreds of Swedes had gathered on the lawn waiting for news.

Some in the hushed crowd wept openly when they heard the news.

Carl Gustaf became first in line to the throne in 1947 when his father Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf—Gustaf VI Adolf's eldest son—died in an air crash.

King Carl XVI Gustaf, as the new king will be named, will assume his duties at a special cabinet meeting, expected to be held shortly, government officials said.

The king, a scholarly, mild mannered man who enjoyed a unique popularity with his eight million subjects, had been seriously ill with a bleeding ulcer for the last four weeks.

His struggle with death in the city hospital in Helsingborg in southern Sweden had been followed by the whole nation in daily medical bulletins.

The king survived a number of crises, including an emergency stomach operation and two bouts of pneumonia. A third attack of pneumonia apparently ended his life.

At the cabinet meeting the new king will preside for the first time over his council of state. He will announce his royal name and his royal motto.

Prime Minister Olof Palme and his Social Democrat cabinet will offer their resignations and will be asked by the new king to remain in office, the officials said.

The cabinet will also decide details of the funeral and the official period of mourning.

There will be no coronation ceremony. The last Swedish king to be crowned was Oscar II who succeeded to the throne in 1872.

When Carl XVI Gustaf sits on his golden throne in the majestic hall of state to open the 1973 Riksdag (Parliament) the crown, the apple and the scepter—the royal symbols—will rest on a velvet cushion beside him.

On radio and television an announcer broke into the programs and announced "We have a message of mourning for the people of Sweden. His Majesty King Gustaf VI Adolf has died.

"The official communique reads: "His Majesty King Gustaf VI Adolf has quietly and peacefully died on Saturday September 15, 1973 at 8:35 p.m. (3:35 p.m. edt). Signed by the High Chamberlain of the court."

School Electric Bill Explained

Utilities Director Charles Horne said Friday his investigation of electric billings for North Pitt and D.H. Conley Schools showed a difference in metering for the two schools.

County School Supt. Ott Alford and Assistant Supt. Leck Keeter appeared before the Utilities Commission last week to complain aboout the bill for D.H. Conley which is served by Greenville Utilities. N. Pitt is served by VEPCO.

They said the North Pitt bill for July was $581, while Conley's was $2,810.

Horne said that all of D.H. Conley is served by one meter. That includes the main building, mobile units and ball field.

He said 17 meters are used at North Pitt.

Horne said a problem had developed in the demand meter at Conley and an adjustment would be made for this. No further adjustment will be made, however.

Horne reported that as of Sept. 1, VEPCO and Greenville Utilities are using exactly the same rate schedules for the two schools.

He pointed out that bills for the all-electric schools drop some months and the year around average kilowatt hour cost for Conley would be 1.62 cents based on last year's monthly readings, figured at the new rates. On the county rate it would be 1.94 cents and on the commercial schedule it would be 2.46 cents.

E.B. Aycock's year around average would be 1.9 cents.

State Offers Reward

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N.C. (AP)—Police Chief D.N. Beale says the state has offered a $2,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the persons or persons responsible for slaying a Roanoke Rapids couple.

Deale announced the reward Friday after talking to aides of Gov. Jim Holshouser in Raleigh. The Roanoke Rapids city council had offered a similar reward earlier.

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Shay were found in a gravel pit near Charles City, Va., Sunday. Police said the two apparently had been beaten and run over with their own car. Their hands had been tied behind their backs.

Chrysler Negotiators Back At Bargaining Table

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Labor negotiators returned to the bargaining table at Chrysler Corp. Saturday, eleven hours after the United Auto Workers struck the nation's third largest automaker for the first time in 23 years.

Top bargainers for the union and company made no statements to newsmen, continuing the total news blackout that began Thursday night. It was lifted for one hour Friday for the announcement that the strike was beginning in the United States and Canada.

"We just literally ran out of time," UAW President Leonard Woodcock told newsmen packed into a crowded pressroom at Chrysler's world headquarters in nearby Highland Park.

Negotiations that began July 18 failed to resolve a variety of issues, Woodcock said, including union demands for voluntary overtime, health and safety measures, special provisions for skilled trade and salaried workers and a wage increase.

A new lapel button appeared on union members during the first day of the strike. The green button said "We Can Work It Out."

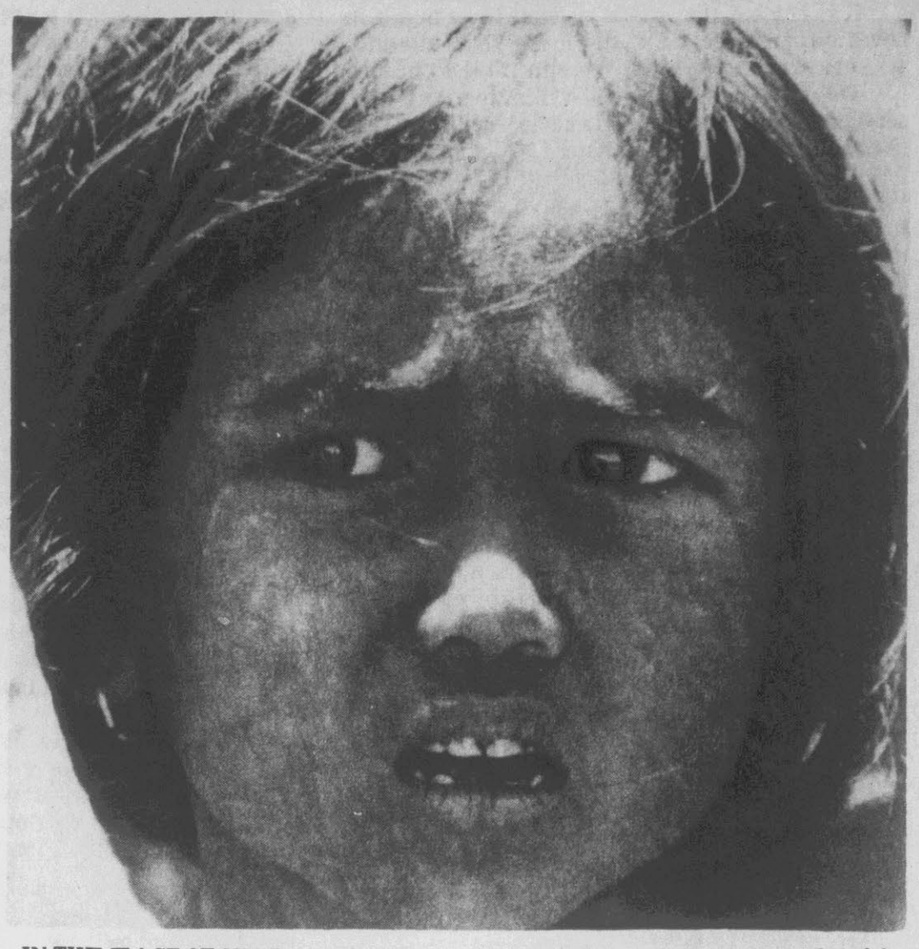

Chrysler has 127,500 workers in the United States and Canada represented by the UAW. Some 10,000 white-collar workers were told by the union to stay on the job and another 14,200 hourly workers were allowed to continue working at various plants that supply other automakers in farm implement manufacture.

It was the first time since 1950 that Chrysler has been shut in a national strike. That walkout lasted 104 days.

Chrysler has been struck three times by the UAW since the organizing drives of the state 1930s.

In 1937, the UAW staged a 45-day strike to win recognition for the union. In 1948, a 17-strike won union workers 13 cents an hour more in pay and improved vacation pay. The 104-day strike in 1950—the second longest in UAW history—won workers better pension benefits.

This year, the major issue was voluntary overtime, a factor that put the nation's second largest union and the automotive industry on a collision course. The union says workers should have the right to refuse overtime assignments and the companies say they won't be able to meet production schedules if they don't control the work schedules.

Israel Plans To Strike Guerrillas World Wide

By United Press International

The Israeli chief of staff said Saturday that Israel will strike at Arab guerrillas "all over the world" and will not limit its actions to reprisals. A Cairo report said Israeli troops and tanks are massing along the Syrian frontier.

Lt. Gen. David Elazar, the Israeli commander, said Israel felt obliged to take a more aggressive policy as long as "terrorist organizations persist night and day in reiterating their declaration of war against us..."

"We are not tied only to retaliatory actions," Elazer said in an army radio interview.

The general said guerrilla activity has decreased in recent months because of the military's campaign against the terrorists and their bases.

He said Arab guerrillas "should know that we too pursue a policy of striking at them all over the world."

Guerrillas have made a number of attacks on Israelis throughout the world since the end of the June, 1967, Mideast war.

In Cairo, the influential newspaper Al Ahram reported Saturday Israel was massing troops and armor along the entire length of the Syrian front.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said it would not release any details on troop movements "as a matter of routine."

The report of a buildup followed Thursday's air battles between Syrian and Israeli jets. Syria said five Israeli and eight Syrian planes were downed. The Israelis claimed 13 Syrian kills with only one of theirs lost.

In Jerusalem, Israeli radio reported Saturday the government has said in a note to United Nations that Syria must bear full responsibility for Thursday's air battles.

Syria has claimed Israeli jets penetrated Syrian airspace. Israel says the dogfights occurred over the Mediterranean Sea.

Grand Jury To Get Information On Agnew

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prosecutors have been told to start presenting information about Vice President Spiro T. Agnew to a federal grand jury investigating political corruption in Maryland, a source close to the inquiry said Saturday.

The source said Attorney General Elliot L. Richardson had not decided yet whether federal prosecutors should ask the grand jury in Baltimore to indict Agnew in connection with an alleged financial kickback scheme involving contractors and politicians in his home state.

But Richardson was said to have concluded that information which might link the vice president should be taken before the grand jury for investigative purposes and that his decision was passed along to authorities working on the case.

The attorney general also was understood to be seeking assurance that individuals who have alleged Agnew's involvement, during private interviews with federal officials, would stand by their stories under oath.

The source said Richardson still was considering the question of whether the Constitution would preclude indictment of a vice president until he had been removed from office through impeachment by Congress.

The attorney general has said he ultimately will decide how to interpret the constitutional provisions in handling the Agnew case and whether any evidence against the vice president was sufficient to warrant a request for grand jury indictment.

Agnew has insisted that he is innocent of all allegations and vowed to prove it.

Spokesmen for the vice president and his lawyers could not be reached for comment on Richardson's reported decision.

At the Justice Department, official spokesmen said they had no comment, but acknowledged that they no longer were denying that Richardson had made any decisions regarding the vice president because the earlier posture no longer applied.

Union Fined

WILMINGTON N.C. (AP)—Federal Judge F.T. Dupree Junior has levied a $5,000-a-day fine on the International Longshoremen's Association in an effort to get longshoremen back to work at the Wilmington port.

Longshoremen continued Friday to honor a picket line manned by discharged cargo handlers at the state docks in defiance of a court injunction ordering them to return to work.

The cargo handlers left their jobs last week demanding an increase in pay. When they refused to return to work they were fired.

The cargo handlers demanded a pay raise from $2.33 to $4.25 an hour. Fork lift operators demanded a pay hike from $2.96 to $4.50 per hour.

In terminating their employment, the state invoked a statute which forbids state employes to strike.

An injunction was issued Wednesday ordering the longshoremen to return to work at 8 a.m. Thursday. When they refused to return Judge Dupree levied the fine Friday.

No More Turtle Oil

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The "turtle oil" bill of 1973 zipped through the California legislature today and went to Gov. Ronald Reagan's desk.

A state law went into effect in March banning sales of turtle oil products on the theory that the sea turtle is an endangered species, although it is not formally classified as such.

The measure was rewritten in the waning days of the session to help singer Polly Bergen sell her remaining supply of "Oil of the Turtle," a cosmetic produced by her firm, before next April. It would not allow any more turtles to be taken, sponsors said.

The bill passed the Assembly late Friday and won final passage in the Senate today.

Bitter Fighting For Highway One

SAIGON (UPI) — Bitter fighting for control of key Highway 1 claimed nearly 100 lives along the central coast 280 miles north of Saigon, government military spokesmen said Saturday.

The fighting was the bloodiest in the Vietnam "truce" in nearly two months. Truce violations were higher throughout the country.

The United States criticized North Vietnam and the Viet Cong for snags in the effort to account for Americans missing in action.

In a statement, the U.S. delegation to the four-party Joint Military Team (JMT) said the Communists "continue to refuse to take any positive action to provide information on missing personnel or to facilitate the repatriation of the remains of POWs who died in captivity or the remains of those who were killed in action."

North Vietnam and the Viet Cong countered with charges South Vietnam and the United States were plotting to re-escalate the war.

They predicted that protests by the U.S. and South Vietnamese governments over 12 airbases the Communists have put into working order would be used as an excuse to step up the war by bombing the bases.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, reported 98 truce violations in the 24 hours ending at noon Saturday, 25 more than the previous day.

He said the clashes along Highway 1 were the bloodiest fighting in one area since July 26, when a total of 170 Communists were killed within 50 miles northeast of Saigon.

Ervin Takes Stand To Save N.C. Wilderness

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Sam Ervin has taken a stand against colleague Jesse Helms' effort to remove 15,000 acres of North Carolina mountain land from a wilderness protection bill, apparently blocking Helms' move to do so.

The Interior Committee, which is considering the bill, extended a courtesy veto to senators from the states involved. Under this procedure, areas included in the bill could be deleted at the request of both senators.

Helms wanted acreage in the Joyce Kilmer Memorial Forest and Slickrock areas removed from the bill. The measure would confer wilderness status on the area, allowing no logging or other commercial ventures.

The freshman Republican maintained that to permanently ban timber cutting in the Kilmer area would hamper Graham County's effort against low-income levels and high unemployment.

In a letter to Interior Committee chairman, Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington state, Ervin wrote, "I want to assure you that I give full support to Senate Bill 316" (the Omnibus Wilderness Bill).

Another 34,100 acres in North Carolina would be designated as wilderness study areas under the bill. This includes 16,000 acres in the Kilmer region, 1,-100 in the Pisgah National Forest near Craggy Mountain and 17,000 in the Croatan National Forest on the coast.

The bill would preserve a total of 232,374 acres of land in the Eastern United States as instant wilderness.

Court Of Military Appeals To Hold Hearing For Calley

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Court of Military Appeals will hold a hearing Oct. 4 on an appeal by convicted My Lai murderer Lt. William L. Calley Jr., an Army spokesman said Saturday.

Calley, convicted of killing at least 22 civilians in the South Vietnamese hamlet of My Lai on March 16, 1968, was sentenced to life imprisonment but the sentence was later reduced to 20 years after a military review.

The hearing, delayed by the long appeals process, was further held up because the Military Court of Appeals is usually recessed from July through September, the spokesman said.

The secretary of the Army last May 14 rejected a recommendation to reduce Calley's sentence from 20 to 17 years, and the court of military review has upheld Calley's conviction and sentence.

Calley's appeal is expected to center on three of more than 30 issues raised by his defense, the Army spokesman said.

The primary issues will concern arguments that lower court appeals were denied because of adverse pre-trial publicity, that evidence was insufficient to prove him guilty of murder, and that instructions by military judges to members of the court were inadequate, confusing, erroneous and misleading, thus prejudicing further appeals.

The court of military appeals, composed of three civilian judges appointed by the President, could either uphold or modify Calley's sentence. The Army said no witnesses are expected to be called.

The court cannot overturn Calley's court-martial conviction. And any ruling it makes regarding the sentence would be submitted to the secretary of the Army for implementation.

Calley is currently confined to bachelor officer quarters at Ft. Benning, Ga., pending the outcome of his appeals.

President Nixon has said that he, as commander in chief of the armed services, may have the final say in the Calley case once the appeals process is completed.

Nixon At Work This Weekend

CAMP DAVID, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon, on a working weekend at his mountain retreat, met for about an hour Saturday with top White House aides Alexander M. Haig and J. Fred Buzhardt.

Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said the President also worked on a package of housing bills he expects to make public next week in a message to Congress.

Warren declined to say whether Nixon discussed the Watergate case with Buzhardt, who as special presidential counsel is one of the team of presidential lawyers fighting efforts by Senate investigators and special prosecutor Archibald Cox to gain access to tapes of Nixon's conversations with aides relating to the scandal.

Warren had said earlier that Nixon's legal advisers were studying a proposal by the U. S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia that some out-of-court arrangement be worked out for Cox to hear the tapes.

Warren said the President had a "general discussion" with Haig, the White House chief of staff, and Buzhardt. Both men came to the camp by helicopter and later returned to Washington.

No staff aides or advisers were reported on hand as Nixon worked on the housing proposals, which he already had discussed at the White House Friday with Secretary James T. Lynn of Housing Urban Development and other top HUD officials.

Warren said the President also would be working on other legislative matters during his stay at Camp David.

Foresees Possible Winter Shutdowns

RALEIGH (AP)—Government and industry officials in North Carolina say proposed heating fuel allocation could lead to periodic shutdowns of universities, hospitals and factories in the state this winter.

Gov. Jim Holshouser is planning a personal appearance to argue against the proposals when the Federal Power Commission begins hearings in Washington next week.

At a meeting of the governor's energy crisis study commission Friday, a state engineering expert, Raymond J. Nery of the staff of the state Utilities Commission, painted a grim picture of what could happen.

Nery listed 200 state facilities and industries that could be forced to shut down for lack of natural gas for heating.

Among them were portions of the state government office complex on Raleigh; the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill; two state hospitals, Dorothea Dix in Raleigh and Broughton at Morganton; and about 175 factories, most of them in the textile industry.

Nery said that for the past three years dwindling supplies of natural gas has prompted the FPC to allow suppliers to refuse up to 19 per cent of their normal allocation to North Carolina customers.

Frank Rouse Fails To Secure Endorsement For Chairman

ATLANTIC BEACH, N. C. (AP)—A movement to endorse incumbent Republican party chairman Frank Rouse in his bid for re-election failed Saturday as GOP legislators tangled among themselves at an informal Republican caucus.

Rouse, backed by the more conservative wing of the Republican party, is being opposed by Thomas S. Bennett, a Morehead City attorney who was picked for the race by Gov. Jim Holshouser. Holshouser is serving as Bennett's campaign manager.

The bid to back Rouse came up during the first session of the two day Republican meeting, which included invitations to the families of legislators.

A group of legislators led by three Rouse supporters - Sen. Robert J. Barker of Wake County, Sen. J. Reid Poovey of Catawba County and Rep. Gilbert Lee Boger of Davie County - started the drive but they backed off in the face of opposition from Sen. Hamilton C. Horton Jr. of Forsyth County.

Horton, the joint caucus leader, had agreed to allow Barker to present a resolution endorsing Rouse but Horton also said he would have ruled it out of order once it had been made. A two-thirds vote of the caucus would have been required to overrule Horton.

The pro-Rouse resolution was never introduced.

Barker, Poovey and Boger have been active in the drive to re-elect Rouse.

Barker participated in a two-day flying trip when Rouse announced his candidacy for re-election. Boger has been working fulltime in recent months at the state Republican headquarters in Raleigh alongside Rouse.

Point To School-Hospital Ties

It is obvious that there is going to be much innovation in medical education in the years ahead as we seek ways to turn out more family physicians.

The Los-Angeles Times-Washington Post news service recently reported on a novel medical college now being developed in Eastern Virginia.

The college, which will open this fall, Eastern Virginia Medical School, will have as its goal the training of doctors who "both know more and care more about patients by educating them in 15 Norfolk area hospitals rather than in the usual big academic 'university hospitals' " the article stated.

It is part of a trend to find ways to tie physician education to the average hospitals.

The school is the first to be established in Virginia in 124 years and it is being financed by private citizens and groups, mostly in the Norfolk area, who have given $17.8 million. The school will open Sept. 28 with 24 students chosen from 1,200 applicants.

The fact that it will have no teaching hospital could alleviate three problems, the article stated:

"It could easily cost $50 to $60 million to start a medical school and build a university hospital.

"With the growth of health insurance and medicare, many university, county and other public hospitals are being forced to scratch hard for patients. Many of those once on charity and welfare are now patronizing ordinary doctors and hospitals.

And "The average hospital that is now getting the patients is not as good medically as the university hospital, and needs to be upgraded by a university connection."

Dr. Richard M. McGraw, president of the Norfolk Area Medical Center Authority, said, "We feel neither medical education nor patient care can flourish without being far more closely related than they have been."

The Norfolk area is taking bold steps to alleviate the shortage of first-line care physicians. We strongly believe it will be the new medical schools now being developed that will lead the way in delivering health care to the family.

The Obligation To 'Give More'

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — University professors did not accept second class citizenship when they went to work at a state school. In fact, the position is an obligation to contribute more to the community than the average person.

Those views from Dr. Leo Jenkins, president of East Carolina University at Greenville, greeted faculty members on the recent opening day of classes.

Representing a rather surprising turn—not for Jenkins, but for public educators who have rather traditionally shunned the public arena of politics—the instructors were urged to get involved in political party activities and governmental offices at all levels.

"This is your country and you should have a greater piece of the action in helping to run it," Jenkins told the teachers. "It will be our salvation that the academic community is free and that its members become involved."

He noted that the academic community is largely gifted and well educated and should use talents to improve the community.

An outspoken Democrat and sometimes mentioned as candidate for governor, Jenkins was careful to emphasize that he did not refer to any particular point of view or position and that teachers should get involved regardless of political inclinations. He said the absence of teachers isnoticeable in state legislatures and in Congress, as well as in political party activites.

And Jenkins also recognized that his remarks could lead to encouragement of differing opinions from his faculty. "I speak with the knowledge that you will offer many points of view and take positions in opposition to each other," but went on to say that, "I am confident that you will enhance democracy by your joy in arguing with each other."

Such an open invitation for suggestions and new ideas, he said, results in many that are "unworkable and others that will not be accepted by the group. . .but our whole system of decision-making in this country is based on the proposition that these suggestions will not be suppressed before they have had a chance to be considered."

In short, Dr. Jenkins summed up, "how can we...fail to tackle any mission that deals with the life and welfare of the people whom we sould be serving?"

Teachers, Principals Split

School principals across the state have split with the classroom teachers group over items to be pushed in the 1974 General Assembly.

The teachers, through their association (N. C. Association of Educators), are aiming for a cost-of-living salary increase of at least five per cent; more leave and sick benefits; fringe benefits; equal summer pay for driver education teachers; professional negotiation between teachers and school boards; and a professional practices act.

But the teachers voted out of their package some items the principals wanted included.

"The principals are not happy with the NCAE package," a spokesman said. Ralph Kimel, principal of Arcadia School in Davidson County, complained that the classroom teachers "voted down some of the proposals we wanted included."

He outlined the additional desires of principals—one of which is a broadened salary gap between classroom teachers and principals which, he said, has "narrowed considerably over a 10 year period" and must be broadened to "keep the best administrators in the offices."

Other points the principals want, Kimel said, include a fulltime secretary for each principal, a car or auto allowance for school business, and clarification of teacher allotment regulations which currently include principals as teachers in determining pupil-teacher ratios.

Another sore point, Kimel said, are the numerous fund-raising gimmicks schools have to use. "The parents are constantly criticizing these fund raisings; and we don't like them at all."

He said that at Arcadia School he had to raise some $600 just to meet the phone bills each year, and that various means of raising $8,000 to $10,000 in additional money is required every year "to operate even a second-rate school. . .but we are criticized by parents for doing this."

Superintendents Push

The state's school superintendents also are putting on a push before the State Board of Education for a legislative package based on a recently completed survey.

The big item is elimination of student fees which the superintendents consider unfair to the students, but essential to operation of schools. They are urging the state to set up a minimum $10 per pupil in order to eliminate those fees for the state's 1.2 million students.

The Vindictive Spirit Remains

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — The continuing and potentially lethal threat to the Democratic party posed by Sen. George McGovern's unreconstructed followers 10 months after his shattering defeat is reflected by one strange and recent postscript to 1972.

The postscript stems from "Goodbye, Mr. Christian: A Personal Account of McGovern's Rise and Fall" (Doubleday) by Richard Dougherty, a veteran journalist and novelist who was McGovern's campaign press secretary. Like other McGovernite memorists, Dougherty is intent on robbing McGovern's humiliating rejection by the people of any meaning and attributing it to a combination of bad luck and unfair treatment.

In dealing with unfair treatment, he cities our column of April 27, 1972. Reporting that many Democrats — correctly it turned out — feared McGovern as the Democratic Goldwater, the column continues:

"The reason is given by one liberal Senator, whose voting record differs little from McGovern's. He feels McGovern's surging popularity depends on public ignorance of his acknowledged public positions. 'The people don't know McGovern is for amnesty, abortion and legalization of pot,' he told us. 'Once Middle America — Catholic Middle America, in particular — finds this out, he's dead.' "

That quote became the focus of the triple-A (abortion, amnesty, acid) campaign against McGovern. So, in "Goodbye, Mr. Christian," Dougherty writes, "I don't believe for a minute that any liberal Senator, at least a Democratic liberal, told them McGovern was for abortion and the legalization of marijuana."

No more serious charge can be made against a reporter than fabrication of quotes (though Dougherty never contacted us about this in the 16 months since the column was published). Consequently, we have asked the unnamed Seantor — a real-life, flesh-and-blood, liberal Democrat, indeed — for permission to reveal his identity.

His position: while not apologizing for the triple-A quote, he denied us permission. Even though McGovern was annihilated in this Senator's state, he explained, McGovernite forces there remain intact as a potent and vindictive force. Should he admit authorship of the quote they might destroy him in a future election.

The incident leads to two minor and one major conclusions. Minor Conclusion No. 1: An unremitting effort exists to rationalize the McGovern debacle by rewriting history. Minor Conclusion No. 2: Any attempt to debunk that effort risks McGovernite retaliation. Major Conclusion: Not having absorbed the lessons of history as thoroughly as the Republicans following the 1964 Goldwater debacle, the democrats could conceivably repeat their past follies in 1976.

Apart from the authenticity of the triple-A quote, Dougherty assaults its accuracy by denying that McGovern supported abortion and marijuana. In fact, McGovern's public statements up to April 27, 1972, were clearly opposed to state anti-abortion laws and ambiguous about marijuana. While opposing marijuana whenever asked, McGovern frequently had spoken sympathetically about its use and compared the drug, favorably at least one time, with alcohol and tobacco. To then perceive McGovern as pro-marijuana would not be unreasonable.

After the triple-A quote, McGovern peeled back on all those issues (amnesty included). But it was too late. Having used pro-abortion and pro-pot formulations to ingratiate himself with the women's lib and shaggy youth subcultures, McGovern's reversal of field could not reassure the majority. Rather, he became ineradicably linked with those subcultures, whose representaives were so visible at the Miami Beach convention.

Dougherty's outrage over the triple-A quote while ignoring the Miami Beach

HANDS OF THE FATHER

Rembrandt's last picture is entitled, "The Return of the Prodigal." When he painted it he was an undischarged debtor owning nothing but the clothes on his back and the materials from which he made his pictures. Actually the picture was something of a personal document because Rembrandt had gotten into his sorry state because he had been a prodigal himself.

Now the outstanding characteristic of this picture is the hands of the father. The picture shows the prodigal kneeling before the father and the father with hands upon the boy's shoulders. The father is welcoming back the son whose garments still smelled of the pigsty.

God's love manifested through the hands of a forgiving father! This is something for all of us who have had a sojourn in a far country to remember to our comfort and encouragment. In his hands we are safe; under his hands we are forgiven and are at rest.

Sunday Morning Notes

Utilities Director Charles Horne visited his daughter and son-in-law in Washington, D.C. last weekend.

They had tickets for the Redskins game which was nationally televised that night.

Sunday afternoon the power went out for some areas in Southeast Greenville.

Pretty soon Charles received a long-distance call in Washington.

It was his neighbor back in Greenville, Joe Exum.

"I want to tell you my lights are out," Exum told the Utilities director. He went on to report him was missing the tennis matches and "I'll probably miss that game you're going to tonight."

"That's no problem," Charles replied. "Just come on up and we'll take you along."

Exum didn't go, though. Infact,the lights came back on pretty soon.

An eight foot cardboard cut out of Charlie Brown stood beside Fifth Street about midnight recently.

If you looked closely you could detect a human arm sticking out with thumb extended bumming a ride.

Might have worked — except it would have taken a pick up truck to haul Charlie Brown around.

And speaking of prefixes on license plates. There was a little Fiat cruising along on Greenville Boulevard. It license prefix was ANT.

East Carolina Unversity Chanellor Leo Jenkins has often made it know that "we emphasize everything we do here," meaning among the various programs and services offered at the university.

That is a fine philosophy and we tend to agree that it is so.

But did we have to emphasize the N.C. State football score?

Spenders Beware

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

The people of the United States are beginning to learn that creeping inflation is but the prelude to galloping inflation and that government spending beyond its income is the forerunner of rising prices and devalued dollars.

We are already into this situation, and so it ought to be easily enough seen by those who will look.

A nationwide independent survey sponsored by the American Farm Bureau Federation involving 1,123 personal interviews in 24 metropolitan areas and 11 non-metropolitan counties reveals that 86 per cent of the people favor cutting government spending in order to combat rising food prices.

If the findings of the survey mean anything at all, politicians are going to find it increasingly difficult to spend and spend without regard to the taxpayers' ability to pay.

Unfortunately, the politician is an unusual breed.

He knows that the people can be gulled by promises of goodies in return for their votes.

Sure enough, they fall for the old badger game and he gets enough votes to win.

Sure enough, he spends and spends — other people's money.

But hasn't the public wised up to this social welfare binge by now?

After all, it has been going on since Franklin D. Roosevelt first took over the White House.

As the consequences of the spending habits of politicians are felt in terms of more inflation, they are likely to find it harder to pass along the blame to businesses, industries, retailers, farmers and workers for what happens to prices.

No matter how many billions are poured into social problems, to buy votes, their effect will be crushed along with the hopes of beneficiaries by the roaring express train of inflation.

In the end the groups of people that free-spending politicians have counted on the most to keep them in office will become the most venomous in demanding retribution.

And would that not be poetic justice?

Salmon Secret Learned

By PAUL W. HARVEY JR.
Associated Press Writer

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — A way probably has been found to predict where silver salmon can be located off the Oregon coast.

It is the first direct result from the upwelling study made in the past two years by oceanographers from 13 universities.

Oregon's salmon resources are rich because of upwelling.

Upwelling is a phenomenon whereby the earth's rotation and strong north winds force cold water from the bottom to the surface.

This cold water brings rich food from the bottom, causing the salmon to swarm after it.

James O'Brien, visiting professor from Florida State University who is co-director of the upwelling project off Oregon, says the new information probably will mean money in the pockets of the fishermen.

"If our preliminary results are confirmed, the fishermen will be able to catch more silver salmon and waste a lot less time finding them," O'Brien said.

The key to the whole business is that silver salmon like temperatures of 52 to 56 degrees.

When the cold water comes up from the bottom, it forms a front that looks on the map like a weather front.

In the areas just behind one of these fronts, there is warm water, often of just the right temperature. These areas are rich in food.

40 Years Ago Today

By SUSAN PRICE

The North Carolina coast is isolated by a tropical storm today that has claimed two lives with its heavy seas.

Elizabeth City, Beaufort and Morehead City were isolated from the rest of the state today and New Bern is "a tangled mess of trees and wire," Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co. manager E.H. Dixon of New Bern says.

One amateur radio station from Elizabeth City said part of the city was under water.

High waters have caused more damages in most areas than the wind damage.

Only minor damage from the heavy rain and gale force winds were received in Pitt County.

However, storm damage to electricity and telephone lines has caused virtual isolation.

This is a day of bad news. Actress Tallulah Bankhead, stage star and daughter of Rep. John Bankhead of Alabama, has withdrawn from the leading role of "Jezebel," a play of the old New Orleans life, due to severe illness.

Tips from Help for Housewives say to put cucumbers in ice water before serving unless you like them limp.

Brokers, Bankers In Conflict

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Are bankers contriving to steal business from stock brokers?

A growing number of securities people, including the head of the New York Stock Exchange, think so. Their complaints are getting louder and a nasty conflict seems inevitable.

The instrument of the banks' involvement is the so-called automatic investment service or automatic investment plan that permits customers to buy stocks directly from the bank.

Investors are offered a choice of 25 blue chip stocks that can be accumulated automatically through monthly deductions from the bank account. The sums range from about $25 to as much as $500.

The bank then can lump together all the purchases and obtain a volume commission when it buys the stocks. In addition to the small commission, the customer pays a monthly service charge of about 5 per cent.

Such plans are in keeping with the long-range goal of commercial banks to promote themselves as the supermarkets of financial services. You may have noticed their slogans: one-stop banking, fullservice bank, etc.

The brokers maintain that the plans do a disservice to them — and probably to customers too.

James Needham, chairman of the New York Exchange, complained this week to the comptroller of the currency that the banks might be violating the Glass-Seagall Act.

This act restricts the selling and distribution of securities by banks, limiting such activities to mere accommodation of customers. Most people, including some bankers, didn't know banks could buy or sell at all.

The right always was there, but the banks never advertised it. Then brokers began turning away small customers, and some bankers began musing over how to accommodate them.

Needham said in his letter to Comptroller James Smith, "To our knowledge, no effort is being made by the banks to counsel these persons on their investment needs, nor is any inquiry made as to whether they should be purchasing the listed stocks promoted under the plan."

The Investment Company Institute, spokesman for the mutual fund industry, also has complained to bank regulators. Like brokers, many mutual fund promoters have been doing poorly of late, both for themselves and customers.

There is another intriguing possibility that has brokers worried. Those 25 blue chips stocks are generally the same ones that the banks keep in their trust departments.

Is it conceivable that bankers might be able to buy and sell stocks within the bank — "crossing" orders from their own supplies — thus never paying commissions at all?

In the view of many brokers, this would be the most unpardonable offense of all. It is where any broker would make his stand.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Messiah, Where Are You?

A Chapel Hill professor, dawdling over his ninth beer, eased himself for some semi-sober reason into a declamation on East Carolina University Chancellor Leo Jenkins.

"Like him or not, con artist or whatever you call him, the guy's incredible," the professor said. "I remember the one who was there before him, Messick I think his name was, when they still called it Eee-Cee-Tee-Cee (for East Carolina Teacher College). He would go up to the Legislature and come on like a freight train and it was like talking to a stone wall. They weren't hostile to him. They didn't know he existed. Eee-Cee-Tee-Cee got what was left after the Greater University had been taken care of. Messick finally went, under pressure I think, and then Leo came on.

"Look what happened. He picked that grubby little campus up by the scruff of the neck and clean transformed it. What you might call on educational Pygmalion. So he conned the Legislature. So he skinned the old Board of Higher Education and politicked the politicians. So what? He did what he had to do. And you know as well as I do if he's sat there behind his desk and minded his manners like a proper president, it'd still be Eee-Cee-Tee-Cee.

"So now Leo is the Down East Messiah. He's got those people believing he's leading them out of the wilderness. He beat the Legislature over the head with the argument that Eee-Cee-Tee-Cee was being fed out of a shallow spoon and now he's applying that argument to the whole region. With good reason.

"The thing that gravels me is why Chapel Hill doesn't have its Messiah. We haven't had one since Frank Graham."

He recalled the days in the 1930's when Dr. Frank beat the highways and byways across the state as UNC's evangelist, and even Down East, where the people were leery of Chapel Hill's liberal leanings, they credited him with walking on water.

"That's what gets me," the professor said. "Why don't we have our Leo Jenkins?"

The answer is obvious, although maybe not plain to see through nine beers.

When Dr. Frank was evangelizing in the '30's, the University was far back in the line at the state trough and the trough was pathetically low even for those up front. The old Consolidated University had to fight and con and plead and cajole and politick — just as Leo Jenkins had been doing — for everything it got. and it was altogher credible when Dr. Frank would stand up and proclaim with that faraway look in his eyes that the University of North Carolina was going to lead this state out of the wilderness of ignorance and poverty and despair.

Leo Jenkins can still do that in Eastern North Carolina and get away with it. More than get away with it, he can do it and come off as a symbol of regional hopes, dreams, pride, and great days a-coming.

For a Chapel Hill would-be Messiah, such a performance would present something of a problem. Picture, if you can, Chancellor Ferebee Taylor standing before a civic club and describing Chapel Hill as the one great hope to lead the Piedmont Crescent out of the wildeness. The good Rotarians would figure he was off his rocker or had tarried overlong at the punchbowl. If Chancellor Taylor in a misguided moment were to beat the highways and byways of the state bearing the complaint that Chapel Hill was getting the short end of the stick in education funds, he would probably be stoned.

Leo Jenkins has been fighting the battles that Chapel Hill fought nearly forty years ago. He has been playing catch-up, forced to try to long shot, seize the main chance, crowd the rules, and the devil with proper form. Anyone in Chapel Hill trying to emulate his performance would manage only to appear ridiculous.

It might curdle the professor's beer, but that's the way it is. — The Chapel Hill Newspaper

Caveat Cravat

There's bad news this morning, men.

You were zapped, weren't you, by the fashion crowd? You threw away all those narrow neckties you had collected over the years and replaced them with the wide, wide variety — 4-½ inches, some of them. For you wouldn't be caught dead in yesterday's stringy unfashionable 2-½ inch style.

Well, the bad news is that the narrow cravat is coming back. Soon that bundle of cloth trailing down your chest will be de trop, old hat, square. "Fashion streamlines the tie with a newly narrow 2-½ inch width!" exclaims a leading New York clothier in newspaper ads picturing its wares. Get ready to unload again.

Frailty, thy name is man. Now maybe you can understand how the missus feels everytime the haut couture crowd fiddles with the hemline. — Miami (Fla.) Herald

Cleveland Holladay, a graduate student from Florida State University, takes off from Albany, and flies over the ocean from Cape Lookout to Waldport.

By measuring heat radiation, Holladay charts the surface temperatures and makes a map.

This information is given to fishermen. They fill out reports, which appear to show that they are able to save time and increase their catches by using the temperature information.

After the end of the two-month project the fishermen's reports will get their final evaluation.

Fishermen don't make much money. They might if they can reduce their search time.

"If they have to spend half a day searching for fish, they lose money," O'Brien said.

He is optimistic about the project, although he can't say for certain yet if it will be of benefit.

It won't work for Chinook salmon. They appear to like just any old temperature.

A similar project has been successful for locating tuna fish. They like it 50 miles or so at sea where the ocean is warm, and not affected by upwelling.

A recent report showed 47-degree water close to shore. That was a good day for upwelling. On the same day, the water temperature 50 miles out was 70 degrees.

O'Brien says that the upwelling studies are a good example of how scientists can engage in basic research without any specific goal in sight, and then have it pay off economically in unexpected ways.

Response On Behalf Of The Scrabble C-of-C

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

SCRABBLE, Va.—A letter is at hand that has caused much discussion. You have a right to know about this letter. It has raised certain questions of ethics, honesty, veracity, and wise public policy, and these I propose to deal with seriatim.

The letter comes from Mrs. Ruth Morrey, who lives on San Antonio Avenue in Menlo Park, Calif. It was addressed (and the address presented, as they say, some threshold problems) to "Chamber of Commerce, Scrabble, Va." It read, in full, as follows:

"Dear Sir: Will you send me information re your city—housing, temperature, rainfall, cultural activities, everything you have. I am seeking a good place to retire in. Thank you."

You may well ask how this interesting inquiry fell into my hands, inasmuch as there is no City of Scrabble, Va., and if there were a City of Scrabble, we would have no Chamber of Commerce. Commerce is one thing we are positively against in these parts. The liveliest commerce we have around here comes when Sheriff John Walker Jenkins puts on an auction, and that is not exactly commerce. It is more a social occasion.

The letter found its way to the Woodville Independent Post Office, 22749, headed by Mrs. Ruth Orange, postmistress. The post office is a one-room wooden structure, furnished with a sitting bench, a rocking chair and a pot-bellied stove. The stove is supplied with wood courtesy of Mr. Jake Sykes, who lives next door. Mrs. Orange put the letter in with my mail because I use Scrabble as the dateline for an occasional country column. I have been known to tell some stretchers in these country dispatches, and Mrs. Orange figured the Scrabble Chamber of Commerce was something I must have invented.

In any event, Mrs. Morrey's letter arrived. The question was, should it be opened? It was a nice ethical question, even a nice legal question. Who am I to open mail addressed to non-existent chambers in non-existent cities? Curiositv triumphed, as you will have deduced already, and the larger questions then arose.

Should the letter be answered at all? Elementary courtesy was though to demand a reply. But should the letter be answered honestly: This was the sticker. If I were to tell the truth about Scrabble, and more broadly about Rappahannock County, nothing but trouble would ensue. The word would spread; we would be deluged by persons seeking a good place to retire in; pretty soon would come tourist buses, paved roads, Little Leagues, piped-in music, subdivisions and duplicate bridge. But could a Southerner tell a lie to a lady in Menlo Park? Say not so!

This is the truth: Scrabble sleeps some 13 miles west of Culpeper, just off Route 522 in Rappahannock County, Va. The community appears on Civil War maps and on geodetic surveys. It had its own post office until Mr. Eisenhower economized it out. Now it just sleeps.

Scrabble, if you can find it, is about the middle of our county. The county has a land area of 267 square miles, and a population of 5,199 for a density of 19 per square mile. That is exactly right. We have lost population in every census, save one, since 1870, a fact that makes us quietly proud. We are 4,340 white and 859 non-white; we are precisely 50 percent male and 50 percent female, a nice arrangement. Median age, 31.0 years; median education, 7.9 school years; median family income, $6,077.

Our mountains have no equals. Our limpid streams run crystal clear. Of smog there is none. It rains just enough and it snows the same way. Our red soil, if you treat it friendly, produces two-pound tomatoes and squash the size of beach balls. The chief pastimes are leaf-looking, bird-watching, fox-hunting and porch-sitting. Under Rappahannock Rules, on his first serve of the day, a tennis player gets to serve until he gets one in.

Mrs. Morrey asked about cultural activities. These include firemen's carnivals in August, hog-killing in November, quilting bees, church socials, turkey shoots, eight revivals a year, and a livestock auction every Thursday at Front Royal. If this isn't enough culture, Mrs. Morrey ispretty hard to please. In Rappahannock County, few die and none resigns, but if a vacancy occurs, I promise to ask the Chamber of Commerce to let the lady know.

Congress Could Boost Its Own Image Through Anti-Inflation Effort

By GEORGE BRYANT

Congress can, if it wishes, play a significant role in the effort to cool inflation. Certainly, a move in this direction would be in the national interest. And it just might help members to win reelection in 1974.

Members of the House and Senate have been back in Washington about 10 days since they had the opportunity to spend their August vacation with their voters. Many, apparently, have been reordering their thinking on the importance of things.

According to news reports out of Washington, members found their constitutents concerned less about Watergate than about the future of the economy. This should be no surprise.

Pocketbook issues outweight political showmanship every time. The concern Congressmen found at home stems from worry that the inflationary boom will lead to loss of jobs, loss of income and hardship.

In other words, there is a lack of confidence in the future. There is today every reason to believe that prices will keep on up and that the dollar will buy less tomorrow. This is the psychology of inflation.

This is where some positive action by the House would help. Irresponsible fiscal policy, meaning deficit on top of deficit, is the prime cause for this country's inflation. Congress, and in many instances the White House, too, has long disregarded the warnings.

As a first step, Congress should demonstrate, by conclusive action, that it will support a spending ceiling. In doing this, it will risk being called a rubber stamp—following the President. But in view of the shortness of time, Congress has no practical way to reorder priorities.

A positive move would be well received both here at home and abroad. At least some of the cloud over the dollar's future value would be lifted, even though there would be no immediate change in the price trend.

As a second step to help rebuild confidence, Congress could go ahead with legislation to change it's present haphazard way of handling money bills—authorizations and appropriations.

Pending legislation would bring some reforms. It has been proposed that each year Congress set a spending ceiling and then act within the financing available. This would be a move in the right direction, but it probably would prove ineffective. Congress probably would end up disregarding its own ceiling.

What's needed is a new approach. There is nothing temporary about government spending programs, even when they are tagged "emergency" for legislative purposes. They have a way of ballooning and becoming permanent, whether they work or not.

It is essential that Congress look not just at the budget for one year, but that it also look ahead. In this way, it might avoid commitments to programs which have a way of getting out of hand.

For any system of year-by-year budget ceilings to be effective, Congress should have a rather definite idea of what's coming for the next few years. The reason for this can be found in the Johnson years.

While the Vietnam war was building into a most costly venture in the mid-1960s, Congress was busy piling one huge social reform program on top of another, with no understanding of future costs.

This performance explains, in large measure, the budget problem today. Revenues are far greater than they have ever been. Few costly new programs have been enacted under the Nixon Administration. The whole budget effort of the past five years has been to "contain," so to speak, the costs of what Congress did in the 1960s.

One approach to a solution of the chronic budget unbalance would be to require the executive branch to submit budgets for, say, the next three, or even five years. This would put Congress on notice of what's ahead, not just what is planned for the up-coming fiscal year.

Obviously, these projections would contain considerable error. But they could provide considerable guidance for the future. Congress would have an idea of what the later installments are going to be on the commitments it makes now.

This approach to budgeting would find hard going with many who are influential in the political power structure. It, like spending reforms in general, probably would run into solid opposition from the left.

The reason is not hard to see. Such projections, if made now, say, would leave no room for a lot of pet projects backed in Congress by this or that bloc, unless taxes were sharply increased. This list includes such things as day care centers for children, a national health program, free colleges, etc.

But unless the nation finds some way to get its spending under control, there will be no end to inflation, even when recession brings the boom to a halt.

No Bitter Attacks On Rouse By Tom Bennett

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH—Thomas Bennett, campaigning for the State Republican chairmanship, isn't ripping opponent Frank Rouse into little pieces.

Sen. Jesse Helm's supporters argue it would be dumb to defeat a chairman who was at the controls when the GOP elected a Governor and a U.S. Senator.

Bennett, when asked about this, gives Rouse due credit. But he adds the only issue in this campaign "is which man can work cohesively and cooperatively with Gov. Holshouser. The Governor says I am that man."

Henry Hall Wilson, Democratic candidate for the U.S. Senate, feels his experience ably qualifies him to serve. Wilson had six years in the White House as an adviser to Presidents Kennedy and Johnson.

Mementoes of those years are prominent in Wilson's Monroe home. White House personnel have him pens used to sign 50 important bills during his Washington stay. He also has scores of pictures showing him in leadership meetings with President Johnson.

Was LBJ really a tough man to work for?

"He never treated me poorly," Wilson said. "Of course, I went to the job under President Kennedy and Johnson was careful how he handled the Kennedy people, because they were fast in leaving him. But he could really give a tongue lashing to those people who were his own choices, and he often did."

Also prominent in the Wilson house is a basset hound by the name of Clyde. I believe someone told me Clyde and his master have the same birthday. The dog's 11 years old.

Kay Miller, who worked as press secretary in Pat Taylor's unsuccessful try for Governor, is working in the same role for Wilson.

Wilson's son, a recent Ivy League graduate, is working to line up young Democrats on behalf of his father's candidacy.

If Sen. Sam Ervin decides to seek reelection, he can wait until the last minute to announce and not lose a thing. It would appear, however, if Attorney General Robert Morgan is going to run for the Senate, he'll have to make those plans known officially in the very near future.

convention suggests he is blind to what really happened in 1972. He scarcely discusses the issues that probably hurt McGovern more than triple-A: defense, welfare, busing. Instead, Dogherty dwells on the Eagleton affair as the root cause of McGovern's debacle and lists Sen. Hubert Humphrey's hardboiled campaign against him as the second most important factor.

This has become the rigidly schematic formula for apologias by McGovernites, including Sen. McGovern himself. But there is one more explanation not joined in by McGovern: the candidate's manifest incompetence (accurately portrayed in Dougherty's book).

Herein lies a blueprint for future Democratic disasters. Oblivious of the lessons of 1972, McGovern's cadres return to battle confident that they can triumph now that Eagleton, Humphrey and, indeed, McGovern are gone. Our unnamed Senator's fear of reprisal from those cadres is, therefore, a thoroughly chilling omen.

Critical Attitudes Have Not Undermined Faith In The Nation

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1973, Field Enterprises, Inc. All Rights Reserved. Republication in whole or in part strictly prohibited except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N. J. — Although the American people are increasingly critical of the U. S. political system, and are frustrated over the many unsolved problems which confront our society, more than nine of ten persons in a recent surgey nevertheless give the United States a favorable rating.

In fact, three persons in four (74 per cent) give their nation a "highly favorable" rating. Only about one person in 25 gives a rating on the minus side of the attitude scale which was used in the survey to measure attitudes toward the United States.

Some differences do emerge, however, on the basis of race, age, and educational background.

For example, the "highly favorable" rating among blacks is 60 per cent, compared to 76 per cent among whites. The comparable rating among young adults (18 to 29) is 64 per cent, while among persons with a college background it is 65 per cent.

In no group, however, is an unfavorable rating given the U.S. by more than one person in seven.

What Do Americans Like Best About U. S.?

In a parallel survey, a sample of Americans was asked this question:

"Many tourists from abroad will be coming to the United States this summer for the first time. If you were talking to one of these people, what would you say is the best thing about the United States?"

The responses come under the headings of democracy, freedom, scenic beauty, high standard of living, medical achievements, ease of travel, diversity of people, and efforts of Americans to improve their lot and that of society as a whole.

A middle-aged electronics engineer said: "The freedom of opportunity in this country impresses me most—no matter what state or station in life you're born into, there's an opportunity to move out of it."

"People in this country are judged by their accomplishments," said a 23-year-old medical student, "and not by their background."

A 50-year-old oil company employe from California had this to say: "The freedom of the press in the U.S. is unparalleled, bringing to light many problems which otherwise might be swept under the carpet."

A 63-year-old antique dealer from Philadelphia answered the question this way: "In the U. S., there's room to complain in, shout in, whimper in, and to keep trying in."

Although the vast majority of Americans indicate faith in the nation, it is doubtful that at any other time in this country politics has commanded so little respect. A key contributing factor has undoubtedly been Watergate.

In a recent Gallup survey, two persons in three express the belief that there are Senators and Representatives in Congress who won elections by using "unethical and illegal methods in their campaigns." In addition, one-fifth of persons interviewed estimate that half or more of the 535 legislators now in Congress have attained office through questionable means.

The percentage of Americans who look favorably upon a political career has declined sharply since 1965, with two persons in three in the latest survey (64 per cent) saying they would not like to have a son go into politics as a life's work.

Few Americans—in fact, only 4 in 100—are unable to name a problem when asked the question: "What do you think is the most important problem facing the nation today?" More than 50 problems are named, ranging from inflation to an energy crisis to a moral decline in society.

Congress Giving No-Fault Insurance Another Look

By STEVE GERSTEL

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The concept of a national system of "no fault" car insurance finally is picking up speed in Congress, more than half a century after it was first proposed.

For the second time in two years, the Senate Commerce Committee has approved a bill which would establish broad minimum standards for the states.

The committee is undecided, however, whether to refer the bill to the Senate Judiciary Committee for further study but with instructions that it must be reported by a given date.

The Senate voted 49 to 46 last August to send "no fault" legislation to the judiciary group. The committee took no action and the legislation died when the 92nd Congress expired.

The movement is mostly in the Senate. No House hearings have been held and there appears little chance a bill will clear Congress before sometime next year.

Dates Back to 1919

The "no-fault" concept of automatic insurance protection regardless of blame dates back to at least 1919, when two articles suggested auto accidents might be treated like workmen's compensation.

In 1925, a judge, Robert S. Marx, proposed eliminating any need to fix negligence in car accidents in favor of some system of automatic protection.

In 1946, the province of Saskachewan in Canada instituted the first "no fault" plan. Although sharply revised over the years, it still is in effect.

After being bombarded in the 1960s by consumers irate at insurance practices, Congress first requested a study of the idea by the Transportation Department. In 1970 Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., introduced legislation. The following year Hart and Committee Chairman Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., joined to introduce a revised version.

The states have been moving at a faster pace. As of June, all state legislatures had considered no-fault or other reforms of car insurance programs.

Nineteen States

Although 19 states have enacted such laws, the committee considers only 11 to be genuine no-fault insurance. They are Massachussetts (the pioneer state), Florida, Connecticut, New Jersey, Michigan, New York, Utah, Kansas, Nevada, Colorado, and Hawaii.

Only the Massachussetts, Florida, Connecticut and New Jersey plans are already in effect. The others become effective between now and July 1, 1974.

The Commerce Committee bill would require no-fault programs set up by the states to meet these minimum standards:

Minimum Standards

—Coverage of all reasonable charges for medical treatment and care of accident victims, emergency health services and medical and vocational rehabilitation.

—Compensation for lost income up to $15,000, provided the insurer is notified in advance of the potential liability.

—Reimbursement for loss of services ordinarily performed by the accident victim such as cooking and other household chores. The states would decide the limitations on such payments.

—Up to $1,000 in expenses for funeral services and burial.

—Compensation to survivors, again subject to limitations set by the states.

Gives States Leeway

The bill does not deal with auto or other property damage. It would leave states free to adopt more far-reaching no-fault insurance programs.

Accident victims would be allowed to file damage suits only if their economic losses exceeded basic benefits provided under the law or if a victim died, suffered serious or permanent injury or disfigurement or was totally disabled for more than six months.

A state would come under a different section of the proposed law if it failed to enact a no-fault program during its first legislative session after passage of the bill.

In that case, accident victims would get payments similar to those set by the minimum standards. But there would be no ceiling reimbursement for loss of income or personal services and survivors benefits would be limited to $200 a week.

In arguing the need for "no-fault," the Commerce Committee said the present system is a failure.

Failed to Compensate

"The negligence-liability insurance system has failed to compensate victims of automobile accidents adequately. It has failed to compensate victims fast enough," it said.

"It has failed to compensate victims fairly. It has failed to expend enough premium dollars on compensation—too many go into such administrative costs as lawyers' fees.

"It has failed to give victims the incentives or the economic means to rehabilitate themselves. It has failed to do anything to reduce the tragic annual human loss resulting from automobile accidents."

No-fault, the committee contended, will allow insurance companies to divert more premium dollars from administrative needs to compensation, increase scope and coverage, cut highway deaths by assuring victims the best and quickest emergency and ambulance service and almost eliminate car accident cases from the already crowded court dockets.

Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., who opposed the bill, said it "would abrogate existing state programs and still would substantially diminish the ability of a state to experiment within responsible limits to design the most effective, fair, and efficient no-fault program in response to its peculiar needs."

Making it clear that "no-fault" is "part of badly needed reform," Baker said he would seek to amend the bill on the floor to meet his objections.

Living Atop Radioactive Garbage Heap Concerns Colorado Farmer

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (UPI) — George Mizushima lives on top of a radioactive garbage heap, and it worries him.

Mizushima, 53, a vegetable farmer who grows potatoes, cantaloupe, tomatoes and corn on 95 acres four miles south of Grand Junction, has tons of sand-like, radioactive residue from an abandoned uranium mine filling in what used to be a basement.

Mizushima is not alone; about 2,800 of his neighbors also own structures with varying degrees of radiation from the mine residue. Public buildings, a shopping center and 15 of the city's schools were constructed with the material before health officials discovered the potential hazard.

But while the problem is a common one in Grand Junction, Mizushima's situation is unique: Officials have told him his house has the worst radiation reading in town.

"I don't know too much about radiation, but since I've heard how strong it is under my house, it worries me," said Mizushima, who was born in Delta County in Western Colorado and moved to Grand Junction in 1929.

Cancer Danger

"They say there is a greater chance of cancer because of the radiation," he said. "There are enough hazards in life without adding to them."

Mizushima's radiation problems began in 1965, a year before health officials accidently discovered the danger in Grand Junction. The farmer decided then to tear down the house he had lived in for 20 years and build a new one on the same site.

The construction firm he hired used the residue from uranium processing — called "tailings"—to fill the basement and as construction fill for the new foundation. There was nothing unusual about that—contractors throughout the area had used the material, which they considered ideal, for 15 years.

Two public health officials were driving by a Grand Junction construction site in 1966 and saw what appeared to be mill tailings being used as backfill. The radioactive garbage had been dumped near the city's Climax Uranium Mill for years.

What to Do?

The officials stopped, inquired and were amazed to hear that the tailings had been used in all kinds of construction since 1951.

The Colorado Health Board stopped the practice soon after that, but 200,000 tons of the material had been used during the 15-year period. Among local residents, the tailings had an excellent reputation as a soil conditioner for gardens.

Shortly after the board stopped the usage of tailings, the battle over who was responsible and what should be done about the situation began.

Health officials blamed the AEC, which until 1968 had absolute authority over all uranium mills in Colorado, and said the agency should provide most or all of the money necessary to correct the situation.

The AEC said is was not within the agency's jurisdiction to decide if the material should have been used or not, and declined any financial obligation.

Congress Acts

Finally, after more than six years of debate, hearings, surveys, studies and occasional evasions, Conggress passed a resolution forcing the AEC to sign a contract with Colorado for joint funding of remedial action.

And so George Mizushima, a Japanese-American whose wife, Sumi, 49, was imprisoned in an American concentration camp near Poston, Ariz., during World War II, learned that his red brick, four bedroom house was one of six targeted for immediate action.

"I've talked to a lot of uranium miners who say the radiation is nothing to worry about," Mizushima said. "But I understand that the stuff takes a long time to cause a problem, so maybe they don't know. But it worries me that my six kids lived here for a long time."

Birth Defects

Mizushima's worries may not be unfounded. Two years ago, a University of Colorado professor of medicine said a four-year study showed that Mesa County (Grand Junction) had an infant death rate from birth defects 50 per cent higher than all the rest of Colorado. The professor, Dr. C. Henry Kempe, also said the county had more deaths from cancer during the study period that all the rest of the state combined.

Kempe said the occurence of cleft lip and palate among newborn infants was almost twice as common in the county as in the rest of Colorado. Radiation may have caused this, he said.

"I want the tailings out," Mizushima said. "If the government won't remove them, I'll take them out myself although I can't afford it. But I'll get them out some way.

"This is a good house—but more than that, it's the only home I've got."

RADIOACTIVE HOUSE — George Mizushima and his wife view their home, which has tons of sand-like radioactive residue from an old uranium mine filling in the basement.

SPRAWLING RANCH STYLE INVITES OUTDOOR ENJOYMENT

ROOFED FLAGSTONE PORCH AND ROOMY CONCRETE TERRACE PROVIDE FOR OUTDOOR RELAXATION IN THE "ALAMOSA."

By Gerry Bishop

Spanning 94 feet to offer four bedrooms, family room, and formal living and dining rooms, the "Alamosa" considers outdoor livability and outlines both porch and terrace.

Colorado pink stone, attractive and maintenance-free, alternates with wood siding to layer the exterior. Inside, the emphasis is on space, and even the entrance foyer is uncrowded.

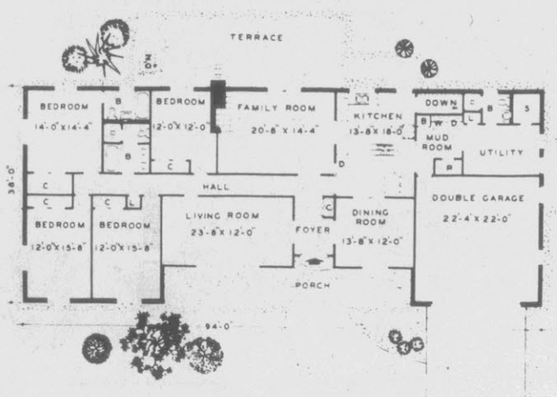

Alamosa

Size: 2,725 sq. ft. first floor; 2,725 sq. ft. basement; 547 sq. ft. garage.
Over-all dimensions: 94 ft. by 38 ft.

Formal areas flank the foyer, with a 23-foot living room at left offering plenty of room for entertaining guests. Formal dining room at right adjoins a sizable kitchen with breakfast nook, planning desk, copious cabinet space, and a pass-through to the family room. Favored with a cheery wood-burning fireplace, the family room spills out via sliding glass doors to the expansive terrace, where a built-in barbecue grill invites summer picnics.

Generously proportioned living areas in the "Alamosa" are matched by comfortably large bedrooms served by large baths. Four bedrooms include a master bedroom with full bath, and all enjoy plenty of closet space. The main bath is a compartmented arrangement with double sinks and separate tub and shower for maximum efficiency.

Laundry space is assigned to the mud room behind the garage which borders a pantry, full bath with shower, huge utility room and storage area. Additional space for storage and recreation is provided in the full basement which measures 2725 square feet of space.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

No matter how many screwdrivers you have around the house, the time always comes when you need one of a size or type you don't have.

While the average household cannot be expected to have on hand the dozens of available kinds on the market, it nevertheless should have at least three or four and, if there is a home workshop, about seven or eight.

If properly taken care of, a set of good screwdrivers can be expected to last for many years, in many cases what is loosely called a lifetime. The reason they seldom last more than a year or two is because they often are used more as substitutes for other tools than as screwdrivers. Among such uses are prying up metal staples, unsticking windows, loosening the lids of cans, punching holes in metal and dozens of other quickie projects for which the screwdriver was never intended.

To use a screwdriver properly, assuming you are right-handed, hold the handle in the palm of your right hand with the thumb and forefinger grasping the handle near the ferrule. Steady the tip of the screwdriver with the left hand and turn with the right until the screw has taken hold. Be sure the screwdriver is in a direct, straight line with the screw. You won't have to think about the individual actions after you have done it properly a few times.

A screwdriver which is not the right size can cause trouble. If the tip of the blade is too small for the slot in the screw, it will damage the screw and often prevent it from being driven all the way. It then has to be removed, sometimes with great difficulty, and a new screw started. If the tip of the blade is too wide or if it is rounded or beveled, it will slip out of the slot, which can mean a damaged work surface or an injured hand.

When the tip is rounded or beveled, a flat file can be used to restore it to usefulness. Place the handle of the screwdriver in a vise, with the tip of the blade upwards. File the tip straight across at right angles to the shank. While an emery wheel can be used to get the same result, be sure the blade is not held against the wheel too long or the tip will become soft as it heats up. Whether filing or using an emery wheel, dip the tip of the screwdriver into cold water frequently.

Use an awl to make a pilot hole in wood before driving home the screw. This is especially important when inserting a screw into hard wood.

Among the types of screwdrivers available are the Phillips, the ratchet, the spiral and the offset. You might hold off buying the latter three until you have need for them, but the regular and Phillips screwdrivers should be in the home workshop in several sizes.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I have just bought a house and intend to start a home workshop. As I have read many times that a portable electric drill is a necessity for work around the house, I have been shopping for one, but I am puzzled by the different sizes — ¼ inch, ⅜ inch, ½ inch and ¾ inch. I have my eye on a ⅜-inch drill, but so often when I buy something I find later that I should have bought a larger size. Would I be better off buying a ¾-inch drill to start with?

A. — No. Not unless you intend to use the drill professionally, which is why such drills are manufactured. Even a ½-inch drill is not the most popular of home models, since it is meant mainly for heavy duty use seldom required in work around the house. Also, it is rather heavy when used steadily. Select the ⅜-inch drill you like. It's a good choice.

Q. — A few weeks ago you advised someone about how to find the studs inside a wall by banging on the wall with the side of the fist. I have tried it many times since then without result. I know that a hollow sound means there is no stud at that point and that a solid sound means there is a stud there. Something must be wrong with me because I seem to hear the same sound no matter where I bang my fist. Isn't there some other way to locate studs?

A. — There's nothing wrong with you. Some persons seem to get the hang of locating studs this way very quickly. Others never do. You probably noticed that I said the fist method was only one of several used to find studs inside a wall. Try this one. Since most studs are spaced 16 inches apart on center — that is, 16 inches from the center of one to the center of the next — measure approximately 16¾ inches inward from one end of the wall. Directly below that point, a couple of inches above the baseboard, drill a hole. You'll know instantly whether the bit has gone through the plaster or gypsum board into a stud or has merely ended in space. If the latter, try again an inch or so away. When you have located a stud, the hole or holes in the wall can be filled with patching plaster so as to be unnoticed. There is one precaution. Don't do any drilling, in this or any other instance, where you suspect there might be electric wires.

Watch Pitfalls In Buying Land

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Buy land. They ain't making any more of the stuff," said Will Rogers.

In recent years folks have been taking the advice to heart —most for weekend, holiday and vacation use; some for investment.

What Will Rogers didn't say, James M. Reed, president of The Branigar Organization, does: "For whatever reason you want that 'little place in the country,' there are things to know—and pitfalls to sidestep—in buying land."

Reed, whose company has been in land-development for more than 50 years, notes that vacation and second homes now comprise one of the fastest-growing segments of the housing market. There now are about two million second homes in the United States, and the number may increase by more than a million during the 1970s, he said.

For those thinking of buying, whatever the reason, Reed has some suggestions:

Above all, he says, know what it is your family really wants—seclusion, a place to camp, or to be part of a full-scale recreational community. Define your needs and determine how much you can afford to pay.

After you know what you want, and your financial limits, make a list of properties to visit. Then do some careful comparison shopping. Do not allow yourself to be pressured into anything. Don't make a decision on the spot. Always think it over away from the actual scene before signing anything.

See the Land

No matter how interesting property may seem in a brochure, never, absolutely never, buy land sight-unseen, Reed emphasized. Always visit the actual site you plan to buy. Never buy over the telephone. "If you think this is impossible," Reed said, "you're wrong. A fantastic amount of land is sold this way. Don't fall for it."

In visiting a particular site with a salesman, study the plat map. Walk all boundaries and check stakes to make sure they are properly numbered. Make a checklist and take notes so you can compare it with lots in other developments.

Reed emphasizes the importance of knowing your developer. "Find out how long he has been in business, what other projects he has developed, how successful they are. A new developer may do a good job but usually it is easier, and safer, to deal with an established, reputable firm," he said.

"Check his financial stability, his reputation. In a development where recreational facilities are provided, make sure the developer has a plan for operating and maintaining the amenities-swimming pool, tennis courts, clubhouse, etc.—and to provide for management after he leaves the development."

Reed notes a salesman's approach often is a clue to the treatment you can expect as a property owner. He suggests some things to watch:

What To Watch For

Is he licensed to sell real estate? Does he live in the development or nearby? If so, Reed notes, he has a reputation to uphold in the community. Is he courteous? What seems to be his primary motivation—serving your needs or earning an easy commission check? Most land salesmen, Reed says, work on a straight commission basis.

If you hesitate in making a decision, does he become abrupt or abusive?

Reed warns of the "switch". You came to see a low-priced tract that was advertised, find it has been sold, but more expensive land is available. Another danger signal, he warns, is a price that drops sharply as you dicker.

Any developer selling subdivisions of 50 or more lots through interstate commerce must register with the HUD (Housing and Urban Development) Office of Interstate Land Sales Registration. Obtain a copy of this registration, or if the land you are interested in need not be registered, check the following points on your own:

Name of developer, subdivision, number of lots offered. Zoning and tax informtion. Number, type and size of proposed amenities, with expected completion date. Location and proximity of schools, shopping centers, churches, hospitals and public transportation. Municipal services such as police and fire protection. Information about roads and public access, and information pertaining to the property, such as land use, building restrictions.

Do not sign a contract, Reed emphasizes, that does not spell out in writing everything the salesman told you. Have your lawyer check the contract before signing.

Be sure you understand every paper pertaining to the sale. If you don't understand, keep asking questions until each and every item is covered to your satisfaction. Be sure you understand the interest provisions, and check on assessment fees. These fees cover property owners' services, such as water and sewage disposal, and may or may not be part of the contract. If not, get an estimate in writing of how much they will be.

Make sure the property not only is something you can afford, but that it satisfies your needs.

THEY WATCH THEIR QUEUES, ANYWAY

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — Turks have become used to queuing for a number of purposes, but a new sort of queue has hit Izmir.

With an average of 28 deaths a day and only eight hearses, the dead have to line up for their last trip.

Rare Stamps Aid College

POUGHKEEPSIE, N.Y. (AP) — Vassar College has netted $2,148,160 from the sale at a series of eight auctions in New York of the rare postage stamp collection bequeathed the school by Mrs. Louise Boyd Dale, a 1936 graduate.

Mrs. Dale, who died in 1967, left to Vassar "the net proceeds of the sale of any of my collection of stamps of Mauritius, the Dominion of Canada, and the Provinces of Canada, New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, Newfoundland and Prince Edward Islands."

An envelope bearing two early stamps of the former British colony of Mauritius brought $380,000, thought to be the highest price ever paid for a single philatelic item at an auction.

Mrs. Dale, who is remembered at Vassar as "a warm and gracious woman, given to anonymous philanthropy," inherited part of the collection from her father, the late Alfred F. Lichtenstein, and added to it herself. Her father, who died in 1947, was president and treasurer of Ciba, Inc., American subsidiary of the Swiss chemical company.

Baltimore City Fair Is The Only One Of Its Kind

NEW AND OLD BUILDINGS form the backdrop of Baltimore's Inner Harbor area during the Baltimore City Fair, billed as the only city fair in the nation. (UPI Telephoto)

By KEN FRANCKLING

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Farmers, livestock and dairy queens usually come to mind when people think of fairs. Not so in Baltimore, in late September.

The three-day Baltimore City Fair Sept. 21 through 23 is billed as the only city fair in the nation and promoters expect another record crowd in this, its fourth yewr.

In 1970, the maiden year, the fair attracted 340,000 persons. In 1971 attendance was logged at 610,000. Last year it soared to 1.2 million fairgoers for the weekend. (The city population hovers around 900,000.)

"We expect at least 1.2 million persons this year and we can accommodate many more," said co-director Frederick A. Bailey. "The fair will be three times larger in area than last year's."

The event will cover Baltimore's Inner Harbor area, the downtown focal point which is the home of the U.S. Frigate Constellation—the oldest U.S. Navy ship still afloat.

Like most fairs, Baltimore's has midway rides, amusements, food, beverages and the ever-present cotton candy vendors. But it has more—exhibits by neighborhoods, community groups, city institutions and artists.

Besides 150-plus exhibits housed in candy-striped tents, fairgoers are treated to performances by nationally and locally known entertainers and a Sunday night windup with fireworks over the harbor.

Organizers depend solely on ticket sales to keep the operation going from year to year. They've used surpluses from the last two fairs to fund planning and aid the Baltimore Symphony and other non-profit causes.

The first fair followed a three-day race riot in Baltimore by less than two years and some businessmen were pessimistic about the plans—going so far as asking the mayor to call it off. He refused.

William D. Schaefer, mayor since 1972, said, "The fair came at a critical and appropriate time. Baltimore needed something to move it forward, something to bring people downtown. The city was in danger of sliding backward."

Some of the emphasis is on the ethnic and neighborhood traditions that make Baltimore a patchwork of little communities in spirit. For the first time, the fair will include an International Village to centrally locate the ethnic displays.

The color, enthusiasm and gusto prevalent at the first three city fairs prompted officials from other municipalities to make inquiries on ways they could start similar fairs and capitalize on city resources to promote urban living.

The fair is one of Schaefer's many methods of getting people together—rich and poor, young and old, black and white—in a spirit of city pride.

Thief Lost His Magnetic Touch

BOLTON, England (AP) — A thief tried to steal a safe containing $7,500 from a scrap merchant's office here by hoisting it through the roof with a giant electro-magnetic crane.

He was caught before completing the task and was fined for causing damage to the roof.

Arab Policy Now Major Israeli Election Factor

By RICHARD C. GROSS

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Golda Meir will need all the energy she can muster in the weeks ahead, a time when Israel may have to decide what to do about the Arab territories it has occupied more than six years.

At the same time, Mrs. Meir, 75, is running for her second term as prime minister in a bid to keep her Labor Party intact.

She first got the job when the party picked her as a compromise candidate shortly after the death of Levi Eshkol in 1969. She was elected later that year.

If Mrs. Meir is chosen again in the Oct. 29 election—and there are few doubts about that among political experts at this stage—the betting is she will quit sometime before the middle of her term and appoint a successor.

It may be Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, a behind-the-scenes power in the Labor Party.

War of Succession

Mrs. Meir took to the arduous road of campaigning again to avoid what officials said would be a war of succession within her party. What she may not be able to avoid is a showdown with Defense Minister Moshe Dayan.

For ahead of her and Israel, now wallowing in a domestic turmoil of continuous strikes spawned by an 11 per cent cost of living increase so far this year, looms an issue of profound importance for the future of this Jewish nation and the aliens under its control—what to do with the million Arabs and the land captured by Israel during the 1967 Middle East war?

Long debated by government officials, by Israelis in the privacy of their homes and among members of Tel Aviv's sidewalk cafe society, the issue exploded in the headlines this summer with reports that Jews were buying land from Arabs on the west bank of Jordan River against government policy.

The west bank of the Jordan is the most populous of the occupied territories, with 600,000 persons.

Death Sentence

The reports reached Jordan's King Hussein in Amman. He said any Arab selling land to Jews will be sentenced to death.

Indeed, the Israeli Land Authority has said it has purchased 7,500 acres of West Bank land since 1967. The Jewish National Fund, a quasi-governmental organization that develops land, has bought another 4,500 acres. Most went to establish kibbutzim (collective farms).

Dayan favor the purchase by Jews of West Bank land on grounds that the region is linked historically with the Jewish religion. It was he and Justice Minister Ya'acov Shimson Shapiro who demanded in April that the government policy be changed to permit those purchases.

Mrs. Meir, along with Deputy Prime Minister Yigal Allon, Foreign Minister Abba Eban and Sapir, voted them down.

Dayan now wants party policy to include the right of Jews to purchase Arab land, and Jewish urban settlement in the territories.

TRADE PARTNERS

BRASILIA (UPI)—Trade between Poland and Brazil now totals $50 million annually, making Poland the largest East European trading partner of Brazil, surpassing even the Soviet Union.

You Have To Love Rock To Hear The Dolls

By BRUCE MEYER
United Press International

They are far from being gifted musicians. Their music is coarse, vulgar, simplistic and loud. They wear makeup, lipstick and six-inch heels. They are the New York Dolls, and you have to love rock 'n' roll to appreciate how beautiful they are.

David Johansen is the Dolls' lead singer, and he says:

"Rock 'n' roll is hard to define. The function of a rock 'n' roll band is to relieve adolescents of their ills ... and I think the Dolls fulfill it amply."

There is only one clear comparison to be made with the Dolls, frustrating as it is for a band that would like to establish its own identity: they are like the early Rolling Stones. The Dolls have the same sort of raw street-brawler feel to their music; hard as a steel-toed patent leather boot and mean as a drunken roller derby queen.

All but one of the five Dolls are native New Yorkers (guitarist Sylvain Sylvain was born in Cairo, Egypt, and raised in Paris)—and they come from the tougher parts of the city. They've been together as a band for about a year and a half.

"Right now I think we're considered an underground group," Johansen said. "But I don't want to be in an underground group. I want to be in a popular group. We're the third generation of rock..."

Little Known

The Dolls have attracted a tremendous amount of attention from New York media types, but except for a couple of articles in national rock publications are little known outside the environs of Greater New York. Their first album, "New York Dolls" (Mercury SRM-1675), should help change all that.

The band has managed to put on record all the crude power of their music, without reducing the studio to total anarchy. No virtuoso musicans are the Dolls—but they know what they want to say, and how to say it.

"I think the Dolls' music is great the way it is," bass player Arthur Kane said. "Some kids say we're not necessarily quite in tune, say we're a little off time, but I think that's great. I really don't want to be refined too much more."

A heaping spoonful of credit for success of the album must go to producer Todd Rundgren. Rundgren's progress as a producer over the past year or two has been incredible. And with "New York Dolls" he has achieved the peak of the producer's art: translating a band's music as accurately as possible into a recording, without imposing his own ideas between the band and the listener.

The Latin Beat Won't Go Away

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Musical fads come and go but the rhythms of South of the Border seem to stick around.

During the days of the big bands, the rumba produced a change of pace and gave dancers a chance to show their skills. Then came the conga, which was more of a group activity and therefore was exceedingly popular.

Herb Alpert revived interest in Latin-flavored music not so many years ago with his imaginative band arrangements and his sound is still hear today.

At the time when Alpert was creating his new sound, Julius Wechter—who wrote "Spanish Flea" and "Brasilia" for Herb's Tijuana Band — was making soothing ripples with his Baja Marima band.

Wechter started his band in 1965 and scored a hit with a single, "Coming in the Back Door," which led to several successful albums.

The Baja Marimba band also toured the country, giving eye appeal at each performance.

Wechter and his musicians are in the recording groove again with a melodic album, "The Baja Marimba Band's Back" (Bell 1124).

For this session Wechter wrote three new songs—"Taco Belle," "Pa" and "Ventura." But he also delved into the work of other composers, notably Neal Hefti with "Tomatoes," Paul McCartney with "My Love," Paul Williams with "Just An Old Fashioned Love Song" and oldtimers Jimmy Van Heusen and Johnny Burke with "Here's That Rainy Day."

Spicy Dixie

Wechter also spiced up the session with a Dixie version of "Tie a Yellow Ribbon Round the Old Oak Tree."

Just the mentioning of the theme of Latin-American music should evoke the name of Xavier Cugat, one of the most enduring of all the band leaders.

Cugie generally is remembered as the suave Latin type whose trademarks were a small dog and a beautiful woman. And he played a fiddle, especially when the song was "Siboney."

Some of Cugat's most notable performances may be heard on "The Beat of the Big Bands" (Harmony KH 32264). This album is the latest addition to Columbia's low-budget re-creation in simulated stereo of music recorded before hi-fi emerged.

In this selection Cugat opens with one of his most popular dance tunes, "Miami Beach Rumba." It also includes another Cugat landmark, "The Peanut Vendor."

Some of the tunes are bona fide latin American, while others have a northern flvor, such as "Night Must Fall" and "Play, Fiddle, Play".

If you're a sentimentalist, you should enjoy this album. It also will give you an excuse to limber up your rumba muscles.

Jules Irving Tries Luck On Broadway

By JACK GAVER
UPI Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jules Irving, who left as artistic director of the Vivian Beaumont Theater's repertory operation in Lincoln Center in June, is going the Broadway producing route this fall.

Moreover, he is starting with the big hit that closed out his Lincoln Center career, the silver anniversary revival of Tennessee Williams' "A Streetcar Named Desire."

"Streetcar" was the last of the season's four productions at the Beaumont, and it was a rousing success from the start, being held over for a month beyond its scheduled six weeks.

Irving will present "Streetcar" at the St. James Theater Oct. 4 for a regular run, using Lois Nettleton as the leading lady. She completed the run as Blanche after Rosemary Harris played the role during the first six weeks at the Beaumont.

The production will have to be restaged at the St. James because the play will be seen there on a regular prosceniumstyle stage, whereas it was presented at the Beaumont in semi-arena manner.

The American Shakespeare Theater at Stratford, Conn., has closed out another successful summer season, and this time the company got some added playing time by taking two of the productions to the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

"Measure for Measure" and "Macbeth" from the Stratford repertoire opened the fall season at the Center's Eisenhower Theater, while the Royal Shakespeare Company production of "The Hollow Crown" began the season in the Center's Opera House.

Anna Aware Of Cleavage, But—

More Proud Of Her Voice

By ROBERT MUSEL

LONDON (UPI) — When Anna Moffo, in one of her famous cleavage gowns, was presented to the Duke of Edinburgh at a recent Royal Gala the First Gentleman of Britain conducted himself as any other redblooded man might have done under the same circumstances. He did not, so to speak, look her right in the eye.

Miss Moffo said later she was paying too much attention to protocol to remember anything other than that the Duke was most gracious (and handsome) and it was not until her hairdresser mentioned the incident the next morning that she realized television viewers must have thought, "She's done it again." Her heart sank. She does not want to be known as the girl who shocked the Nixons at the White House or who appeared nude in an Italian movie, but as what she is.

And that—to quote one authority—is "one of the finest operatic sopranos of our time."

In furtherance of that aim Miss Moffo was in London for the first recording of highlights from Halevy's melodious but not often performed operas, "La Juive", with Richard Tucker, Martin Arroyo, Bonaldo Giaotti and conductor Antonio d'Almeida. The recording was two days away so this was her last day for an interview: she always observes 24 hours of silence before a performance.

"I don't think there has ever been this complete a recording of La Juive before," she said. "I used to be a pianist so I learned the music by myself and starting tomorrow I'll begin to save my energy for the performance. You need lots of it in opera. A full opera must be one of the most sustained physical exertions there is and I used to be an athlete so I know something about these things.

Dean Martin Show

"In addition you have to worry about your throat, about a cold. I always stay indoors as long as possible." She flashed a devastating pair of dimples. "One shouldn't make love, either," she said. "But of course a recording isn't as exhausting as a continuous performance so I won't overdo the diet or seclusion."

After the recording she said she would fly to Los Angeles for a television show with Dean Martin—she has been on his program before. And then the schedule that has taken her to almost every major opera house in the world will bring her back to the Metropolitan in New York for The Magic Flute, Traviata and Luci di Lammermoor. It sounded a strange mixture—pop music (with Martin) to the great arias—but then, as Miss Moffo put it: "I wear my brow lower than the others."

"I've never had a cliche career," she said. "I've sung with Engelbert Humperdinck. I've appeared on TV in Italy where I had my own 90 minute show. I sang, danced, composed some of the music and interviewed guests." (Italians called her "La Exotica.") "Doing all these things helps make you a better actress," she said, "and a more appealing personality and as a result attracts young people to opera. Opera, of course, is my main preoccupation for 90 per cent of the year."

There was a fleeting reference to the envy that has accompanied her career since, not long out of Philadelphia, she auditioned for conductor Eugene Ormandy, who remarked "this girl is too beautiful to sing well."

"People think it's an advantage to look well," she said, "but there can also be a backlash. I'm an opera singer even if some people don't think I look like one."

Missionary Ambition

Miss Moffo said her first ambition was to be a missionary and although she studied voice at the Curtis Institute in Philadelphia a professional career was not uppermost in her mind. She also was absorbed in sports such as field hockey, basketball and tennis. Later on she was president of the Italian Women's Hockey Association. A Fulbright Scholarship for vocal study took her to Italy, where she auditioned for a concert agency in Venice and the very next day was called on to substitute for the great Elizabeth Schwartzkopf.

And so a career was launched.

Miss Moffo speaks three languages fluently but has an excellent ear for sound and can also sing in some 11 others. She regrets that the overblown furore over the plunging neckline she wore when singing at a state dinner at the White House for President Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania in October, 1970, buried the fact that she was singing in Romanian in his honor.

"The dress looked lower cut than it was and it was perfectly safe and proper," she said. "But someone wrote that it was slashed to the waist, that when I bowed to President and Mrs. Nixon and the Romanian president 'disaster seemed imminent.' Nonsense. They said the Nixons were not amused. But at least some writers added that I sang superbly."

She places the White House happening in the same category as her 30 second nude scene in an Italian film, "The Story of Love."

"It upset some of my fans," she said, "but if I had done it on the operatic stage in Salome no one would have batted an eye. The scene as I read it in the script had no details but when we arrived on the set the director said it would take place in a shower. He said, 'No one takes a shower with their clothes on, do they?' So I took my clothes off."

N.C. Artists Well Represented In Group Of 40 Works

New Wachovia Building Features Art Collection

Local people taking the open house tours of the new Wachovia Bank Building in Greenville were in all probability impressed with the fine visual effects created by handsome pieces of furniture, a spacious atmosphere and a colorful collection of contemporary art housed in the new facility.

Wachovia, like other Tar Heel banking institutions, businesses, and firms, have become a major source of support to artists—both known and unkown—in recent years.

Selection of the approximately 40 works of art were for the most part made by Jack Conkwright, Facilities Officer for Wachovia in North Carolina, who is in charge of the bank's art program.

"Wachovia has quite a number of pieces in its collection by North Carolina artists as well as works by nationally known artists," Conkwright explained.

"Of the pieces in the new building at Greenville, some were bought on the spot in Greenville. Two of A.G. Smith's prints come to mind. They were purchased at the Greenville Art Center. There's also a recent Donald Sexauer print and a seascape by Richard Sourkasian, who is a retired postal worker living in Hobucken."

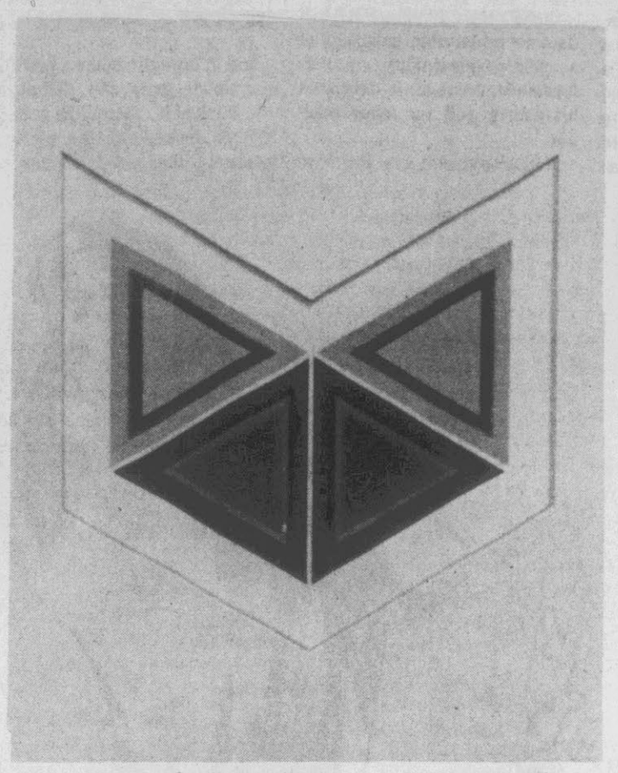

A painting of the Atlantic Coastline station by former ECU art student Ralph Ihrie is in the collection, as is a work by James Shell, another former ECU art major. Duck decoys by George and Elsie Bryant are in the collection.

"Each year Wachovia purchases works to add to its collection," Conkwright said. "While we have no purchase award program as such set up, I attend a number of exhibits as well as craft fairs to make purchases."

While the inclusion of contemporary art in decor planning is no longer a trail blazing trend, it's heartening to see that Wachovia has made it possible for people in Greenville to enjoy this art

And it's noteworthy that the program is also a major benefit to young artists whose market is at best a limited one.

Ed Voorhees at the Mushroom Gallery

Coastal Scenes On View

Now is the time for those who enjoy coastal scenes to take in the Edwin Voorhees exhibit of watercolors at the Mushroom Gallery in Georgetown Shopping Center.

Voorhees, a native of Gulfport, Mississippi, is well known in eastern North Carolina as one of the area's most consistent and most successful depicters of sand dunes and light houses, boats and piers, weatherbeaten cabins and sea gulls.

Since 1964 he has lived in Morehead City, working from there to find the type of non-commerical, rural coastal scenes that have a continuing appeal to him and, in turn, his many admirers.

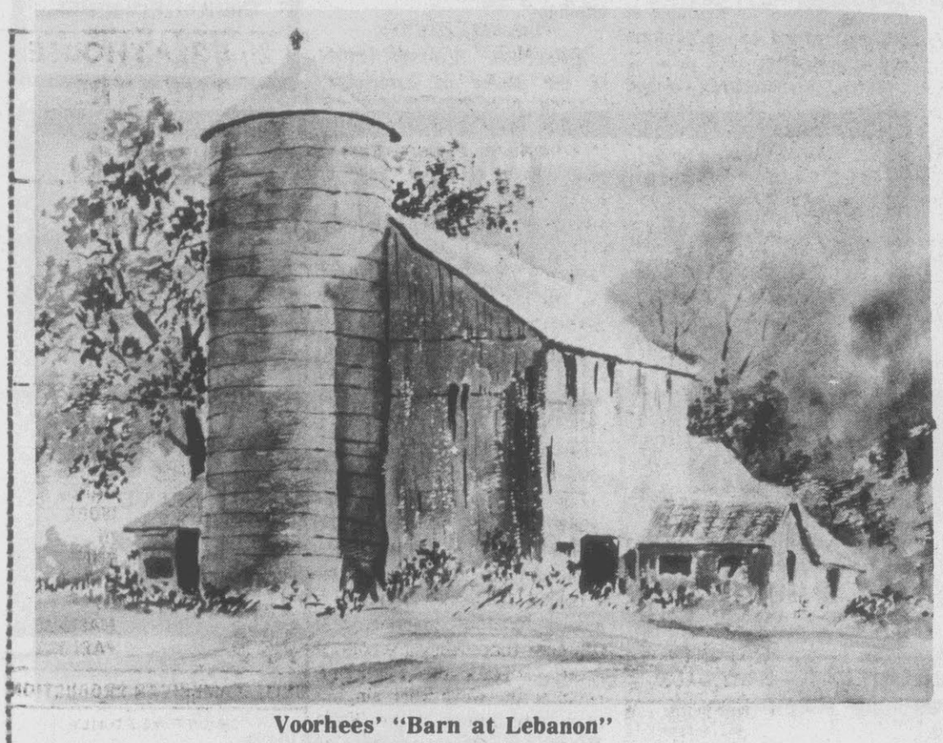

Voorhees also puts in occasional stints as art teacher in various towns in eastern North Carolina, and has taught classes at the Greenville Art Center.

In this current exhibit, which will be up until September 29, Voorhees shows his continuing affinity for pale colors—light blues, creamy tans, pearl grays that are accurate reflections of open expanses of sand and water of coastal Carolina. His preference obviously lies in showing these elements in their calmer moods, not at time when wind and water combine forces to create turbulence or the awesome power of raging storms.

A few pieces are a departure from the sand and water cycle. "Barn at Lebanon" for example, is painted in rich browns and dark greens. A small winter scene combines the softness of snow and the toughness of dormant black branches in a painting that has the poetry of winter's stillness.

It would be refreshing to see Voorhees expand his scope of subjects to give us more of Voorhees outside the restrictions of his dominant seashore scenes.

New Poetry Season Begins On Tuesday

The East Carolina University Poetry Forum gets underway for another season with a meeting Tuesday night at 8:00 p.m. in the English Seminar Room, Room 319, Austin Building on campus.

"I'd like again to welcome anybody interested in writing poetry, or anyone just interested in coming to observe and listen," Vernon Ward, director of the forum said. "There's no formal membership, and no fees."

Ward says a new edition of Tar River Poets is available this week. "This is number 13 in the series," Ward commented, "and features the poetry of Eugene Platt. There's also poems by our local poets included."

Copies are now on sale at the ECU Student Book Store and also at The Mushroom Gallery in Georgetown Shopping Center.

Ward also noted that plans are being shaped up to publish a special North Carolina poetry issue "that should have a lot of interest for local and statewide readers."

The ECU Poetry Forum meets the first and third Tuesday of each month at 8:00 p.m. in Austin during the autumn, winter and spring months.

ECU Pianist Peter Takacs Wins International Event

Peter Takacs, assistant professor of piano in the School of Music, East Carolina University, recently received the top prize in the International Piano Competition held by the University of Maryland.

"I'm delighted, this has been a thrilling experience," the young Roumanian born faculty member said. "This type of competition is the kind of incentive a pianist needs."

As first place winner, Peter received a $2,500 cash prize and will also have a one-man concert in the Phillips Gallery in Washington, D.C. in January of 1975.

For the international event, a panel of judges selected 15 pianists from hundreds of entries to appear personally as semi-finalists. Choices of semi-finalists were based on taped performances submitted. The semi-finalists performed at Tawes Theater the University of Maryland at College Park.

The other two top winners were Alan Marks, a student at the Juilliard School of Music, New York, and Marjorie Hoffman of the University of Maryland. Among judges on the panel were Cecile Genhart of the Eastman School of Music, Rochester, New York; Jorge Bolet, Cuban born concert pianist now living in the U.S. and Elliott Galkin, music critic for The Baltimore Sun newspaper.

For his finalist performance, Peter played Three Piano Pieces, Opus 11 By Schoenberg; and Sonata in B Minor by Franz Liszt. "Each finalist was required to play one contemporary piece and one major romantic work," Peter explained his choices.

Lawrence Sears, music critic for the Washington Evening Star called Peter's performance "sizzling" and added: "he is a superb program builder. He balanced things with Schoenberg's Drei Klavierstucke, lyrically untying Gordian knits of pianism which have been vexing the musical work since 1908."

Now beginning his second year at ECU, Peter to date has appeared in three recitals on campus, including the only one given during the summer months just ended. He is scheduled to give another recital in November, and will be appearing in other national and international competitions during 1974.

He explains that through observation of top leaders and careful analysis of the latest research findings on all aspects of leadership, one will see patterns—success patterns—that effective leaders consistently follow. These he can adopt in order to improve his own leadership ability. Whether it be goal seeking, creative problem solving, organizing, motivating, staffing, training, communicating, inovating, or developing leadership potential, Excellence In Leadership is the most complete, up-to-date resource available for improving leadership skills.

The Renowned Hugh Downs of NBC television shares his thoughts on the true meacing and value of maturity in a book called Potential—The Way To Emotional Maturity. Of the three kinds of maturity—physical, mental, and emotional—he addresses himself to the one that few people attain. Mr. Downs outlines in his book the practical steps that anyone can take to reach emotional maturity. His manner of doing so is typical of the Hugh Downs who is known for his ability to talk to people in his well-known pleasant and informal style.

In Charleston On Saturday

Annual Scottish Events Announced

The skirl of Highland Pipes will be heard throughout the day on Saturday, September 22 as the Scottish Society of Charleston presents the second Annual Scottish Games and Highland Gathering at Middleton Place.

Contestants from all over the United States and Canada will vie for honors in Medieval games of strength and agility, piping and highland dancing competition.

Six bagpipe bands—over 100 bagpipers in all, including the Citadel Bagpipe Band and the Midlothian Pipe Band of Charleston, will perform in mass and in individual competition.

Origins of the games go back to the 11th Century when competition was started by the King of Scotland to test the strength of his young men. The Middleton Place event will have both local and visiting participants to compete in Highland Wrestling, the Hammer Throw, Tossing of the Stone, Caber Toss (100 lb. 18 ft. log). Sheaf Throw and Tug of War. Field entries whether you are a MacSomething or not, are welcome.

The High,and Dancing to be judged by members of Scottish Official Boards, are also rooted in ancient times. Legend has it that an officer of the Roman Legion wrote in 54 B.C. of "the wild pagan dances". Modern versions are more graceful than pagan and will include the "Sean Triubhas" which means "old trousers" and expresses a young boy's delight at graduating to his first pair of long pants, the "Sword Dance" a Soldier's victory dance, and the well known "Highland Fling."

Scottish Wares — tartans, kilts, pewter, blankets, and jewelry as well as authentic meat pies and short bread will be sold at Fair Booths throughout the day. Barbecue dinners will be prepared in the afternoon.

The Gardens and Plantation Stableyards will be open during the event. Visitors are invited to come early to see the early fall flowers and foilage in the formal gardens as well as mule-drawn wagon rides, cow milking, and crafts in the Stableyards.

A Tartan Ball the evening before the games, with piping and dancing exhibitions will kick off the festivites. Sunday, the day following the games there will be a special morning service at the Old Scots Presbyterian Church.

Between Us

Describing Achievements Has Constructive Effect

BETWEEN US
By DR HAIM GINOTT

Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

CONSTRUCTIVE PRAISE does not consitutue judgment of a child's personality or performance. Instead, it describes his efforts and our inner reaction.

Mother avoided evaluation in the following brief conversation. She simply validated her son's faith in his work by her honest description.

Ira, 7, brought home a picture of a cloudy, gray, sky. "What do you think of it, Mom," he asked. Mother looked at the picture intensely, then said, "It has so much movement, that it moves me." Ira jumped with excitement: "That's it," he said. "That was my assignment—to paint a mood." "It's not easy to convey a mood," Mother said, "but your picture certainly did it." Ira beamed with joy.

LARRY, 5, WAS LEARING to ride his bicycle. Mother avoided evaluative praise such as, "You are doing great, you are wonderful."

Instead, she said: "I see you're riding your bicycle. That's very difficult to do." Larry was overjoyed. That evening he told his father: "I learned to ride my bike and that's not easy."

NOT WITH WORDS, but with gestures and grunts another mother conveyed appreciation.

Bob, 4, brought home from nursery school a drawing full of squiggles and scribbles. "How do you like it?" he asked his mother. Instead of answering verbally, Mother touched each squiggle and line, saying appreciatively, "Ummmm."

Bob smiled with pleasure.

CHILDREN BENEFIT MORE when their achievements and efforts are recognized than when their personality is praised. Here is an example of praise phrased as recognition and appreciation:

Maria, 10, thoroughly cleaned up her room. Her mother said, "I noticed how clean your room is. The toys are on the shelves, the clothes are in the closet, the carpet is vacuumed, even the window sills are spotless. What a job."

Mother deliberately avoided evaluative personal praise. ("You are great, you did a marvelous job. You are better than the maid.") Instead she described in detail her daughter's achievements. Maria herself inferred, "I did a good job."

DETAILED RECOGNITION of a child's efforts is the best praise a parent can give.

Julia, 10, helped Mother set the table. Mother praised without evaluation. She said, "I am so impressed with the way you set the table. Everything is in just the right place: the plates, the silverware, the glasses, and the napkins. You even remembered to bring the salt and pepper. Thank you so much."

Mother intentionally abstained from praising her daughter directly. She avoided "you" judgments such as "you are great, you're wonderful, you're Mommy's little helper." She recognized her daughter's efforts and appreciated her help. Julia herself concluded: "I am capable."

ANOTHER ILLUSTRATION of the power of descriptive praise:

Mother was about to leave the house to perform in the local theater. Rose, 9, added a moment of joy. She said, "Mom, do you know what I like about your acting? You don't get stiff on stage. You're relaxed, natural and at ease."

"Rose, you have a real appreciation for what makes a believable performance," Mother replied. "You have recognized and described the most important qualities actors try to achieve."

Rose beamed with joy.

Both Mother's and daughter's praise was helpful. It was appreciative and specific, and gave insight and delight.

Mother reacts to son's sky-picture, so he's in seventh heaven.

Car-Care Tips For Owners Of That New Car

By EDWARD S. LECHTZIN
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Whether you're buying a new 1974 auto or staying with your old car, it will serve you better and longer if you take care of it. Here are some tips on car care from auto industry experts:

Turn off all accessories and headlights before starting a car. They add to the heavy current drain of the starter, reducing the power in the battery needed for the hot spark to start the engine.

Turn on the courtesy lights inside your car when using headlights en route to work on a foggy or overcast morning. They will serve as a reminder to turn off headlights when parking the car.

Cars with automatic transmissions should never be shifted into the "park" position until completely stopped. Shifting into "park" while the car is in motion could snap off the lock pin, causing a costly transmission repair bill.

Car air conditioners should be operated at least 10 minutes every week, even in the winter, to keep the system lubricated and in good condition. Most factory-installed units can be used as heaters by simply moving the temperature control to the desired heat position.

A slipping power steering belt can be detected by a pulsing feeling in the steering wheel when turning. All fan belts should be kept tight and in good condition.

If a car's steering wheel turns more than two inches in either direction before moving the front wheels, the wheel alignment should be checked. Loose steering often is accompanied by "wandering" or difficulty in keeping the car traveling in a straight line.

When a steering wheel starts vibrating, especially at speeds above 45 to 50 miles per hour, it is a good indication that front wheels need balancing. The vibration or "shimmy" also can be caused by front end misalignment.

The leading edges of hood and fenders of a car take a beating from grit and bugs at turnpike speeds. To avoid rust, watch out for and touch up these areas and keep a good coat of paste wax on these surfaces.

Vinyl car tops can be restored to like-new condition with special color matching waxes available at most auto supply stores. Black shoe polish can be used to brighten and waterproof black vinyl tops.

Inexpensive chrome or plastic molding available at auto supply stores will help prevent chipped paint on door edges. The molding slips over the door edges and stops paint from chipping when the doors are opened against a garage wall or adjacent cars.

Voltage regulators on new cars are set for the average driver who puts about 12,000 miles a year on his car. Drivers who average substantially more miles should have the regulator adjusted to the annual mileage to avoid overcharging the battery.

Vapor lock in the fuel line on a hot day can prevent a car engine from starting by blocking the flow of gasoline to the carburetor. Raise the hood to permit the engine to cool and the fuel-blocking vapor bubbles in the fuel line to condense.

Keep the fluid level in an automatic transmission at the proper level but never above it. Overfilling causes foaming, resulting in slippage and the fluid spattering out through the vent.

A car badly in need of a tuneup can waste up to 20 per cent of a tankful of gasoline. Most cars should be tuned once a year, or every 10,000 to 12,000 miles.

Spark plugs are considered the most important item in an engine tuneup. New, properly gapped plugs result in a 7 to 10 per cent gain in engine efficiency and fuel economy.

Heavy stop-and-go driving tends to foul spark plugs quickly, requiring cleaning or replacement more often than the recommended 10,000 miles. A roughness or break in the engine's rhythm generally indicates a misfiring spark plug.

Shock absorbers should be inspected periodically—for example, when a car is placed on a lift for lubrication—to look for leaks and wear. Unlike a bad muffler or worn tire, they generally are overlooked during normal maintenance.

The most noticeable characteristics of bad auto shock absorbers are severe body sway, a bouncing ride and front end dipping when braking. Shock absorbers normally need replacing after 20,000 to 25,000 miles.

Never drive a station wagon with only the rear window open. The airflow can cause exhaust fumes to be sucked into the vehicle. Open a front window as well, or the air-intake vents in the heater system, to break the suction effect.

Gasoline consumption increases substantially when driving on snow-covered roads. Scientific driving tests show a car's gasoline consumption can increase as much as 50 per cent on snow-covered roads.

For faster engine warmup in cold weather, avoid turning on the heater for several minutes, after starting the car. The heater's cold air intake will prolong the time required to heat up the engine.

Check air pressure in car tires only when they are cold or after the vehicle has been parked for at least two hours. Hot tires will show as much as six pounds higher than recommended pressure.

Car owners should always see that valve stems are replaced when buying new tires. Old valve stems could be weakened with age and leak, or they could fail on the road with results similar to a blowout.

Fan belts should be examined occasionally when checking oil, battery and radiator. If the belts appear frayed, glazed on inner surfaces, or stretched so thin they ride on the bottom of pulleys, replace them.

Noise created when a car's steering wheel is turned as far as it will go frequently can be eliminated with a drop of oil on the pressure relief valve of the power steering system.

If a car's engine stalls when shifting to "drive" immediately after starting, it is probably starved for fuel. The choke butterfly may be stuck in the open position. If it is not stuck, the choke controls should be checked by a qualified mechanic.

A hesitation in an engine when stepping on the gas pedal usually can be traced directly to the accelerator pump in the carburetor. The stroke may need adjustment to insure the proper amount of fuel is entering the carburetor.

A light ticking noise when accelerating a cold car engine usually indicates a worn or loose manifold heat control valve in the "at rest" or "cold" position. The ticking should disappear when the engine warms up and the thermal spring expands to rotate the butterfly.

Black smoke when racing a car's engine indicates an excessively rich air-fuel mixture. Remove the air cleaner and check for a sticking choke butterfly.

Motorists should never mix radial tires with any other type tires. Mixing radials with other types can adversely affect handling and performance to a degree that is unacceptable from a safety standpoint.

Pirates Surprise So. Miss With Upset

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

HATTIESBURG, Miss—The running of Don Schirk and Kenny Strayhorn, the toe of Jim Woody, and the passing of Carl Summerell put 13 points on the scoreboard for East Carolina, and the "Wild Dogs" found their way back to respectability, shutting out highly regarded Southern Mississippi last night.

It marked the first time in the five-game series between the two schools that East Carolina had beaten the Golden Eagles.

Woody kicked two field goals in the third period, and added an extra point. His kicks were 22 and 32-yards, respectively.

The lone touchdown for the Pirates came in the second period when Summerell hit Benny Gibson on a 12-yard pass for a 7-0 lead, Southern threatened several times, but after their star running back, Doyle Orange was injured early in the second half, a lot of the stress went out them.

The Pirate defense, too, did the job, swarming over the Southern runners, and putting enormous pressure on sophomore quarterback Jeff Bower, dumping him for losses on several occasions.

The Bucs also picked off three interceptions, one each by Mike Myrick, Jim Bolding and Danny Kepley. Kenny Moore also recovered a fumble of the Eagles.

The Pirates picked up 306 yards in total offense and held Southern to only 177, and they got only 39 on the ground.

Schink finished up with 80 yards in 18 carries, while Strayhorn had 77 in 26 carries.

Summerell, who picked up 21 on the ground, hit six of 13 passes for 101 yards and had one intercepted.

Carlester Crumpler, who usually starts in the backfield, saw only limited action in the game. Reportedly, Strayhorn's performance during the past week's tough practices at Greenville, pushed him ahead of Crumpler, and earned the starting assignment.

And Strayhorn let him know that he's going to have a tough job getting it back.

Orange, who did carry the ball 13 times, picked up only 36 yards. Bower, the young quarterback, who sat out last year after transferring from the University of Georgia, hit on 10 of 20 passes for 135 yards. However, 69 yards of those, including four completings came on Southern's next-to-last drive, late in the game.

Another fine surprise for the Bucs was the excellent punting of freshmen Jonathan Deming, who averaged 38.9 yards in seven kicks.

About the only bad spot on the Pirates was penalties. They drew six for 64 yards, but all of them came at bad times for the Bucs, dulling drives.

Both teams had chances in the first period of the game, but nothing paid off until the Bucs got the ball late in the frame turning the drive into the only score of the first stanza.

Southern put on the first display of mobility, pushing the ball from their own 12 down to the Pirate 13 before a field goal attempt was wide.

After losing a yard on the first play, Orange ripped over right tackle for 14 and a first down at the 25. After a short gain, Bower hit Harvey McGee for 14 more. He then kept the ball on the next carry, going down to the Buc 3. Bower then went to Winston Plunkett for 13 more. Orange banged it to the 15 and on third down, Bower went to the 13. Southern was penalized for delay, and Ricky Palmer's field goal attempt came from the right hash at the 25, but was wide to the left.

Southern got the ball back in good field position after holding the Pirates after being helped by a holding penalty that stopped a drive. From their own 47, the Eagles pushed to the 33 before a penalty went against them, and Jim Bolding followed with an interception returning the ball to the SM 47. ECU pushed to the 38 before a penalty dulled their drive and they had to give it up.

But they got it back after a punt at the SM 45 in the final minute of the period. Summerell hit Gibson at the 28 for a 17 yard gain, then Schink broke away to get 13 more to the 15 as the quarter ended.

Strayhorn picked up four, but Crumpler lost one, making it third down at the 12. Summerell found Gibson open on a short pace, and he waltzed untouched into the end zone with 13:40 left for the score. Woody's kick made it 7-0.

Orange quickly put Southern in good field position returning ECU's third kickoff (the first two went out-of-bounds) to the Buc 47. But they failed to pick up a first down and kicked.

ECU got the ball back when Kenny Moore recovered a fumble at the SM 49, but that drive died at the 11 when Eugene Bird intercepted at the five. Summerell had hit Mike Shea for 17 yards on the key play of that. East Carolina drove across midfield again late in the half, but another holding penalty threw them back, and they never recovered.

East Carolina got the ball back early in the second half on Kelsey's third interception of the year putting the ball on the Eagle 35. Strayhorn and Schink got a first down at the 24, and Kenny took the ball to the 12 on a sweep. But the drive stalled at the six and Jim Woody kicked a 22-yard field goal with 10:28 left for a 10-0 lead.

Southern got good field position on the kickoff, but couldn't move it. The Bucs were in a hold on their series, but a booming 54-yard punt by Denning got them out of it. They got it back when Mike Myrick intercepted at the Buc 42. Summerell hit Gibson on the first play for 33 yards to the Eagle 25, and the Bucs moved on to the 13 before being tossed for a loss and settling for Woody's second field goal, this one a 32-yarder with 3:14 left.

ECU drove again early in the final period, but again a penalty stalled them, after going as deep as the 29. Southern took it from the 20 after the punt and scared the Bucs, driving to the 10 before the Bucs swarmed over Bower to push him back to the 24, and a field goal from the 32 was wide.

But they got it right back on the Buc 27 when Crumpler fumbled and Fred Cook recovered. Joe Tkach, however, tossed Bower for a 10-yard loss, and a penalty pushed them back to the 43, and the Bucs held.

The victory left the Bucs with a 1-1 record, and sends them on another road trip next week with soaring spirits. They will be visiting Southern Illinois University in Carbondale, Ill., seeking to get their second straight victory.

'Cats Hang On For Victory

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Sports Writer

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Quarterback Sonny Lewis engineered one of the most explosive attacks in recent Kentucky history in the first half Saturday, but the Wildcats' offense died after halftime and they barely held on for a 31-26 football victory over Virginia Tech.

Lewis scored two of the Kentucky touchdowns, completed five of eight passes for 84 yards and carried the ball 10 times for 90 yards as Kentucky scored all its points in the first two periods.

After intermission, Kentucky posted only three first downs and fumbled the ball away twice in the third quarter.

Virginia Tech, with sophomore quarterback Rick Popp at the helm, scored 20 of its points in the second half and Popp accounted for two touchdowns on passes to Kevin Dick and Billy Hardee.

Only the Kentucky defense led by 251-pound Jim "Bubba" McCollum, checked Tech from turning the game into a rout.

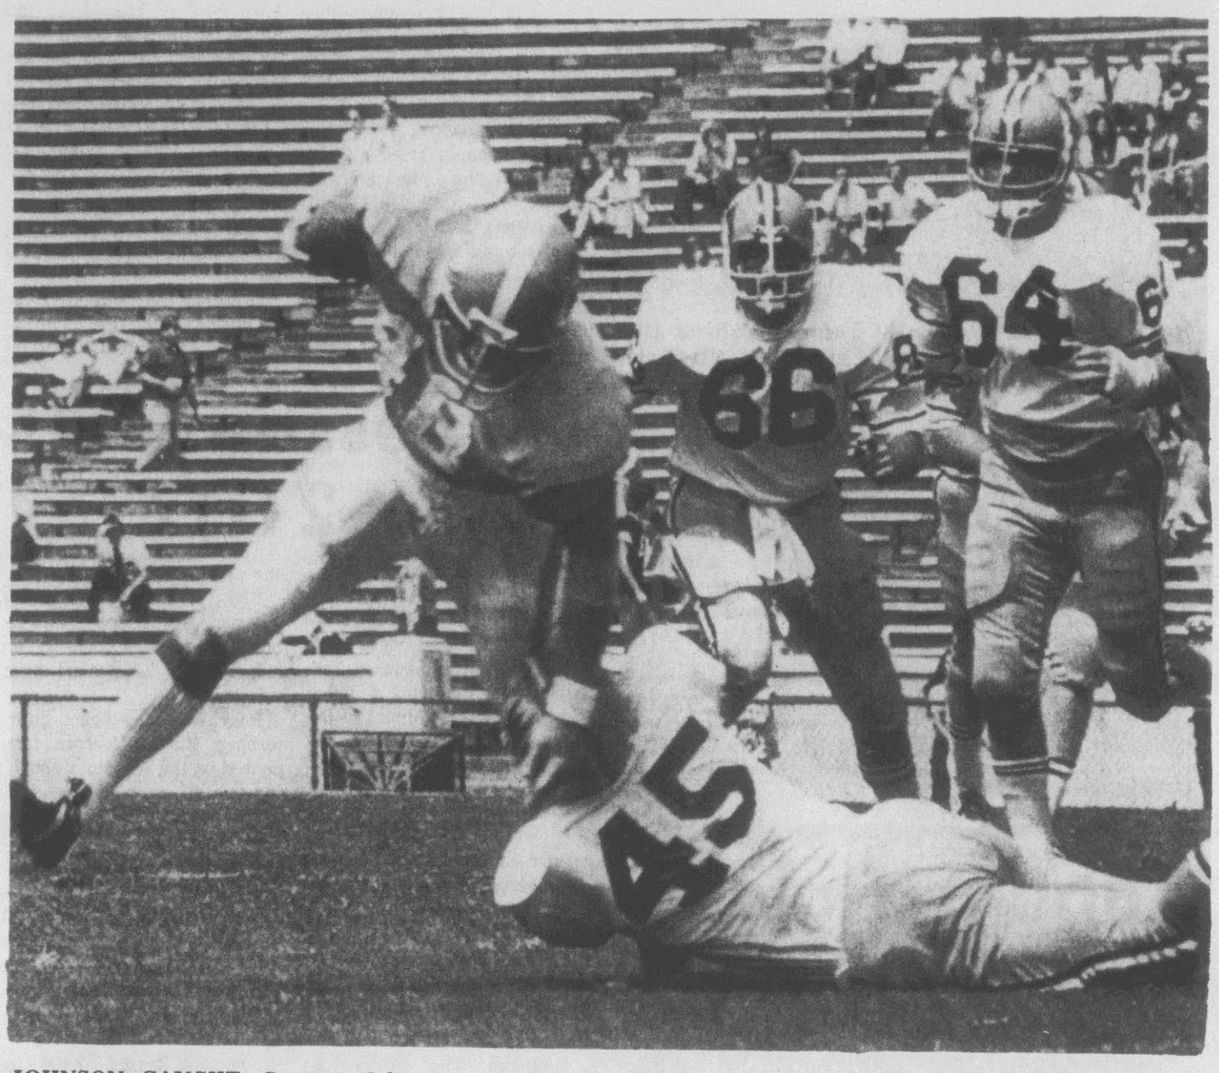

Kentucky's offensive unit gave the Gobblers the ball on the one-yard line midway in the third period but the Wildcat defense held and a 25-yard field goal attempt failed.

Minutes later Kentucky's Sonny Collins fumbled at the Wildcat 28. Again the defense held and Tech came up short.

After a series of downs, Tech blocked a Kentucky punt, took over on the 25 and this time the Wildcat defensive unit was too tired to stop the charge.

Tech went to the air in the fourth period with Popp handling the throwing until late in the game when he was injured on an option play.

Tech's starting quarterback, Bruce Arians, returned for three plays but missed his receivers all three times.

Georgia, Pitt Battle To Tie

By TOM SALADINO
Associated Press Sports Writer

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Sluggish Georgia managed to salvage a 7-7 tie Saturday against upset-minded Pittsburgh in a college football opener marking the debut of Pittsburgh Coach Johnny Majors.

It also marked the first meeting between the two schools.

The Panthers, without a winning season since 1963 and coming off a 1-10 season a year ago, nearly pulled off the upset. But freshman field goal kicker Carson Long's 34-yard attempt with 3:10 to play slithered off to the side.

The second half turned into a bruising scoreless defensive battle after Pittsburgh scored in the opening quarter the first time it touched the ball with the Bulldogs coming back to tie it after 44 seconds were gone in the second period.

Quarterback Bill Daniels guided the 17-point underdog Panthers on their only scoring drive, scoring himself on a 17-yard option-run after 6:08.

The Bulldogs of Vince Dooley, considered dark horses in the tough Southeastern Conference, took advantage of a poor Pittsburgh punt to score their touchdown.

Georgia signal-caller Andy Johnson capped the drive of 46-yards by diving over from four yards out.

The score was set up when Pittsburgh's Larry Swiger saw his punt travel only 20 yards to his own 46-yard line.

Fullback Bob Burns keyed the Bulldog drive with a 17-yard burst while a cruical Pittsburgh off side penalty kept the drive going after Pittsburgh had apparently stopped the Bulldogs on a fourth down play at the Pitt 21.

For Majors, the former Tennessee All-American who switched to Pittsburgh after five years at Iowa State, it had to be considered an excellent start for the once powerful Panthers who have fall on bad times.

Pittsburgh got a fine performance from its fleet freshman tailback Tony Dorsett who flashed for 101 yards in 26 carries and Daniels, who kept the Bulldogs' defense guessing all afternoon with his option running of 55 yards. He also hit on six of 17 passes for 60 yards.

The fine defensive work of Jim Buckmon, Gary Burley, Mike Bulino and Dennis Moorhead kept Georgia pinned up most of the afternoon.

Moorhead swiped a Johnson pass in the waning minutes of the opening half, which stalled Georgia at its own 42, and then Bulino intercepted one in the third period after Georgia had moved to its 43 yard line.

Jimmy Poulos, who was used sparingly in the first half, rushed for 61 yards in the second half and had a game total of 74. Johnson, who completed but one of seven passes for minus seven yards at the half, beefed up his statistics by hitting three straight at the end of the contest. He finished with seven of 17 for 56 yards and two interceptions.

Fourth Quarter Score Gives Heels Come-From-Behind Win

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina recovered a fumble and slammed 37 yards for a touchdown with 2:05 remaining to come from behind and defeat William & Mary 34-27 Saturday in the season opener for the Tar Heels.

A crowd of 33,500 saw quarterback Nick Vidnovic fire a five-yeard pass to Jimmy Jerome for the winning touchdown.

William & Mary had staged an uphill battle that carried the Indians to a 27-26 lead until Doug Gerhart fumbled and Jimmy DeRatt recovered.

North Carolina had grabbed a 13-0 lead on two first period field goals by Ellis Alexander of 39 and 23 yards and a ten-yard touchdown pass in the second period from Vidnociv to Jerome.

The tough Indians came back with two touchdowns to hold a 14-13 lead at the half. The first came on a one-yard plunge by Bill Deery to climax a 74-yard drive. Vidnovic fumbled later and Ron Gilden recovered on the UNC 29.

Seven plays later, Gerhart went over from the one.

The Tar Heels, defending Atlantic Coast Conference champions and picked as one of the league's pre-season favorites, took the second half kickoff and raced 63 yards for a touchdown in six plays. James Betterson took the ball in from the five. A try for two points failed.

William & Mary came back later to roll 62 yards in nine plays with Gerhart scoring from the one.

The Tar Heels went ahead 26-20 on the first play of the fourth quarter with Sammy Johnson bucking over from the two.

William & Mary went ahead 27-26 in the fourth quarter after Kevin Rogers recovered a fumble by Johnson on the UNC 21. Gerhart carried it in from the eight.

The Tar Heels took the next kickoff and rolled from their 33 to Indians' 33 where a third down pass fell incomplete. Alexander then attempted a 50-yard field goal that was short.

The Indians took over on their 20 but gave the ball up at their 44 when they failed to make a first down by inches. However, North Carolina could not capitalize and it wasn't until Gerhart fubmled in the closing minutes that the Tar Heels could escape with the victory.

Johnson led the Tar Heels with 168 yards in 25 carries. Frank Prochilo gained 58 yards in 20 carries to lead the Indians.

Secretariat Beats Riva Ridge

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat, displaying an awesome blend of speed and power, won a $250,000 invitational race Saturday at Belmont Park with a world record smashing time of 1:45 2-5 for 1⅛ miles.

Secretariat, the Triple Crown winner, took the lead from his Meadow Stable mate Riva Ridge approaching the three-sixteenth pole, and roared home to a thunderous ovation from a crowd of 48,023.

It was Secretariat's first start since losing the Whitney Aug. 4 and since being sidelined by a virus. He looked like had never been sick a day in his life.

The 3½-length victory by the big chestnut son of Bold Ruler made him thoroughbred racing's 14th millionaire as the $150,000 first prize boosted his earnings to $1,132,089.

Riva Ridge finished two lengths in front of Cougar II. Both of these horses already were millionaires.

The winning entry of Secretariat, ridden by Ron Turcotte, and Riva Ridge, ridden by Eddie Maple, paid $2.80, $2.80 and $2.40. Cougar II, Mary F. Jones' 7-year-old Chilean-bred ridden by Bill Shoemaker, was $3 to show.

Last Minute TD Gets W. Va. Win

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Danny "Lightning" Buggs scored on a 69-yard punt return with nine seconds remaining to give West Virginia a 20-13 victory over Maryland Saturday in a college football opener.

The swift Mountaineer junior escaped from the grasp of Maryland's Leroy Hughes, dropped back further as he reversed his field and found daylight down the right sideline.

The run broke a tie which developed after the teams swapped touchdowns during a furious 20-second span with less than six minutes to play and the score tied 6-6.

Maryland, which had not advanced beyond the Mountaineers' 26, scored on a one-yard plunge by Lou Carter after a bad center snap on a West Virginia punt had given the Terps the ball inches from the goal.

On the first play following the ensuing kickoff, quarterback Sde Dillon of West Virginia hit tailback Dwayne Woods with a pass over the middle and it went for a 75-yard touchdown which tied the score 13-13.

Maryland gained two first downs before being shoved back by the Mountaineers, setting up the winning punt return by Buggs.

Buggs, an explosive performer last season, caught one pass for 17 yards and lost eight on a flanker reverse before his spectacular dash.

On the final play of the game, Maryland's Ben Kinard ran to the right with the kickoff reception and threw a lateral to Frank Russell across the field. Russell went down the sidelines before being stopped on the West Virginia 32.

Cooper, Defense Leads Navy To 37-8 Rout

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LEXINGTON, Va. (AP) — Cleveland Cooper ran for 172 yards and two touchdowns and Navy's secondary intercepted six passes Saturday as the Middies opened their football season with a 37-8 romp over Virginia Military Institute.

A record VMI home crowd of 10,000 saw Cooper, a 181-pound junior, hit the 100-yard mark when he got the Middies' first touchdown with 12:41 left in the second period from the one after Dan Driscoll ran a pass interception back to that point.

Cooper ran one yard for another score at the end of a 49 yard drive with three minutes left in the half, and the Middies' third touchdown came when quarterback Al Glenny ran one yard after setting up a score with a 35-yard pass to Bert Calland.

David Higginbotham's interception triggered that Navy score.

Freshman Steve Dykes tied a Navy record with three field goals—from 26, 26 and 29 yards—and one of them was set up by an interception and another by a VMI fumble.

Sophomore quarterback Mike Yeager ran six yards for the Middies' final score late in the game after Charlie Robinson made the Middies' sixth pass interception.

Cooper, going over 100 yards for the sixth straight game, had 124 yards in the first half and sat out most of the last quarter. Glenny hit 10 of 21 passes for 126 yards.

VMI's only score came on a 67-yard march, aided by a pass interference penalty.

Davidson Gets Trapped In Spider's Web, 42-0

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP) — Richmond used a strong running game and capitalized on several offensive mistakes Saturday to route Davidson, 42-0, in a Southern Conference football game.

Fullback Barty Smith carried the ball 21 times for 109 yards as the Spiders dominated the game offensively.

His one-yard touchdown in the first quarter capped a 73-yard drive in which he carried 6 times for 26 yards.

Defensively, Richmond limited the Wildcats primarily to short passes. Davidson quarterback David Harper moved his team to the Richmond 35 midway the second period. He hit flanker Walt Walker twice for 27 yards, and fullback John Webel one time for 20 yards in the series.

However, a holding penalty sent the Wildcats back into their own territory and Harper was intercepted on third down and 30 to end the drive.

Walker was the key Wildcat offensive player, as he caught 10 passes for 104 yards.

Dinky Jones scored on a six-yard run and Bob Allen zipped through for 18 yards and a touchdown to extend Richmond's lead to 21-0 at the close of the third quarter.

Linebacker Pat Kelly intercepted Harper's first down pass on the initial play of the final period and galloped 19 yards to put the game away.

Three minutes later, Spider quarterback Dave Yount hit split end Mike Mahoney all alone in the end zone for a 22-yard score.

The Davidson offense set up another Richmond touchdown, fumbling on the Wildcat five with six minutes left in the game.

Then running back John Palazeti scampered around right end for five yards and the final Spider score.

It was the first game of the 1973 season for Richmond, while the Wildcats dropped to 0-2.

It was the first time since 1964 that Davidson has been shut out in two consecutive games. The Wildcats lost last week to non-conference foe Wofford, 23-0.

NEW BERN—Eli Smith, New Bern's lauded running back, scored twice and Duke Williams once leading the Bears to a 27-7 clawing of the Rose High Rampants, Friday night.

New Bern's other score, their first of the game, came on a 14 yard interception return by William Boone. That came with 5:19 gone in the second quarter and put the Bears in front 7-0 after the extra point.

The Rampants got the ball back and marched 80 yards for their only tally of the night as Henry Trevathan passed to Mike Wallace for six. Williams put the Bears back on top with ten seconds left in the half as he danced in from the ten to set the Bears on their way to the win. Both of Smith's TD's came in the second half; the first at 8:41 in the third period and the second from the three with 1:12 left in the contest.

The Rampants tried a field goal early in the gmae but it was blocked.

New Bern won the toss but could not go anywhere on their first possession. Neither could the Rampants although they moved the ball up to the 50. The ball kept changing hands until the end of the quarter when Rose had possession.

Rose drove to the Bear 28 but the field goal try by Scott Walcott was blocked. Rose held the Bears to four downs and got the ball back, after good coverage, on their five. After first down netted nothing, Nat Perkins got the ball out to the ten for the Rampants. Trevathan tried to hit his end out in the flat on the right but Boone slipped in, picked the ball off and waltzed into the end zone. Bryan Smith added the point after for a 7-0 lead.

Rose took the kick off and zoomed back down the field for their only score. Perkins got two on first down from the 20 and Doug Paschal added three. A five yard penalty helped the Rampants out and one third down Paschall banged up the middle for the first down.

Four more by Paschal put the ball on the 39. Perkins carried twice for 16 yards crossing midfield and a second Bear miscue gave Rose an additional 15 yards. Paschall scrounged for a tough three yards down to the 27 and a penalty on the Bears moved it half way to the goal to the 13.

Trevathan hit Wallace over the middle getting the ball to the nine and found him again on second and goal as Wallace ran an out pattern to get the TD. Walcott tied it up 7-7.

That was all the Rampants were to get. New Bern came storming back to go ahead before the half ended. Starting from their 33, runs of six and five yards by Williams put the ball on Rampant turf, the 47. Donnie Spruill lost a yard but two plays later, Dennis Stilley threw to Eli Smith for nine yards and a run up the middle of five by Williams got the Bears a first down on the the Rampant 34.

Two passes to Robert Hughes moved the ball to the five and from there, Williams twisted his way in.

The Rampants were just getting a drive started in the third period when an interception cut it off. After Paschal and Perkins got six from their 37, Trevathan hit Wallace for a first down on the 44. Perkins gained five to the 49 but a fumble cost Rose nine. Trevathan went to the air to get out of the jam but Larry Young snared it and brought it back to the Rampant 42.

New Bern failed to mount a drive in the rest period.

A fumble on the snap of the first play of the fourth quarter gave the Bears the ball on the Rampant 44. After a short gain of three yards an off-tackle sprint by Boone got a first and ten on the 33. The drive was moved along by a 15-yarder against Rose.

Smith slammed through left trackle for 10 and Williams carried twice for eight. That put the ball on the one and Smith shoved his way in on the next play for the score.

Rose was coming back but a fumble ended a drive on the Bear 17. From their own 37, Wallace hauled in a pair of passes from Trevathan for 25 yards and two major penalties against New Bern got them to the Bear 27. Another flag moved the ball to the 17 but Jerry Cook recovered a fumble on the snap virtually closing the door on the Rampants.

New Bern drove down field with Williams carrying seven times for 45 yards and Smith carrying five times for 44 yards and the touchdown. The drive started on the New Bern 22 after the Rose fumble.

New Bern accumulated 197 yards on the ground anbd got 11 first downs. They also ran up 109 in penalties.

The Rampants are at home this week as they host Kinston. Rose is now 1-1-1 for three games.

OSU Buckeyes Trounce Minnesota As Henson Shines

By GEORGE STRODE
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Archie Griffin returned a kick-off 93 yards and Neal Colzie a punt 78 yards for touchdowns and Harold "Champ" Henson scored three times Saturday, powering third-ranked Ohio State to a 56-7 triumph over Minnesota in a Big Ten football opener.

The Buckeyes unleashed another powerful rushing game built around Griffin, Henson and Cornelius Greene, the first black quarterback to start for Ohio State.

Griffin was nearly as sensational as his freshman debut a year ago, rolling up 249 total yards and breaking the Gophers' spirit with his dazzling return after Minnesota's lone touchdown in the second quarter.

That play shot the Buckeyes into a 21-7 lead and the Gophers never recovered, falling behind 35-7 at halftime before a shirt-sleeved Ohio Stadium crowd of 86,005.

Henson, who paced the nation in scoring with 120 points last fall, complemented the Buckeyes' long distance strikes with touchdowns of three, two and one yards. The 245-pound sophomore rushed for 81 yards.

Greene ran up 84 yards on the ground, including a three-yard touchdown, in his first big varsity test. He played briefly as a freshman.

Brian Baschnagel scored on a five-yard run after fumbling a snap on an attempted field goal try by the defending Big Ten co-champions. Greg Hare, who started every game last year, played sparingly in the fourth quarter for the Buckeyes and threw a 55-yard scoring bomb to Bill Ezzo.

John King, Minnesota's big fullback who led conference rushers last season, scored the Gophers' only touchdown on a one-yard run.

Auburn Holds For 18-9 Win

By HOYT HARWELL
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—Quarterback Wade Whatley insured an 18-9 Auburn victory over Oregon State Saturday in a heated intersectional football opener for both schools.

The 12th-ranked Tigers staked out a 10-0 margin, but then fought for their lives against a determined comeback led by quarterback Alvin White.

After the Beavers closed the gap to one point late in the game, tempers flared in the 80-degree heat and both benches emptied during a melee that followed an Auburn interception.

With the shaky one-point lead, Auburn's David Langner put the ball on the OSU 17 with an interception and a 23-yard return and after one play Whatley ran it across on a bootleg. Randy Walls then bootlegged the other direction for two points.

Auburn took a 7-0 lead in the second quarter on a seven-yard run by freshman Secdrick McIntyre, and added three points on a 47-yard field goal by Roger Pruett.

The Beavers, ineffective for three quarters, mounted a 51-yard drive early in the final period after Courtney Hill recovered a fumble. White's passes to Ron Stewart, Dick Maurer and Ray Taroli took the ball to the 10 and White then hit Taroli for the score. But a pass attempt for the two points failed.

Shortly afterwards Rick Kulaas kicked a 28-yard Beaver field goal and it was a new ball game until Whatley's touchdown.

White also set up OSU's field goal with a series of passes that took the Beavers from their own 38 to the 11, where Auburn held. He passed Taroli and Matt Hammack twice each and to Ron Stewart during the drive.

The heat was expected to hurt the Beavers more than Auburn, but Oregon State picked up momentum in the final period against a Tiger team that appeared sluggish most of the way.

Booming punts by both Pruett and OSU's Bob McKenzie kept both teams backed up much of the time.

Auburn could not solve the Beaver pass blocking and White had more than enough time on most of his passes.

Tennessee Beats Duke, 21-17

By ESCAR THOMPSON
Associated Press Writer

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.(AP)—Quarterback Condredge Holloway brought ninth-ranked Tennessee from the brink of defeat Saturday night by diving to the Duke 1 on a fourth down play to set up the Vols' 21-17 game-winning touchdown.

It was a thrilling season opener for both teams.

Tennessee, trailing 14-17, had a fourth-and-three on the Duke 6 with slightly more than 2 minutes left when Coach Bill Battle elected to go for a victory, rather than settle for a 17-17 tie with a field goal.

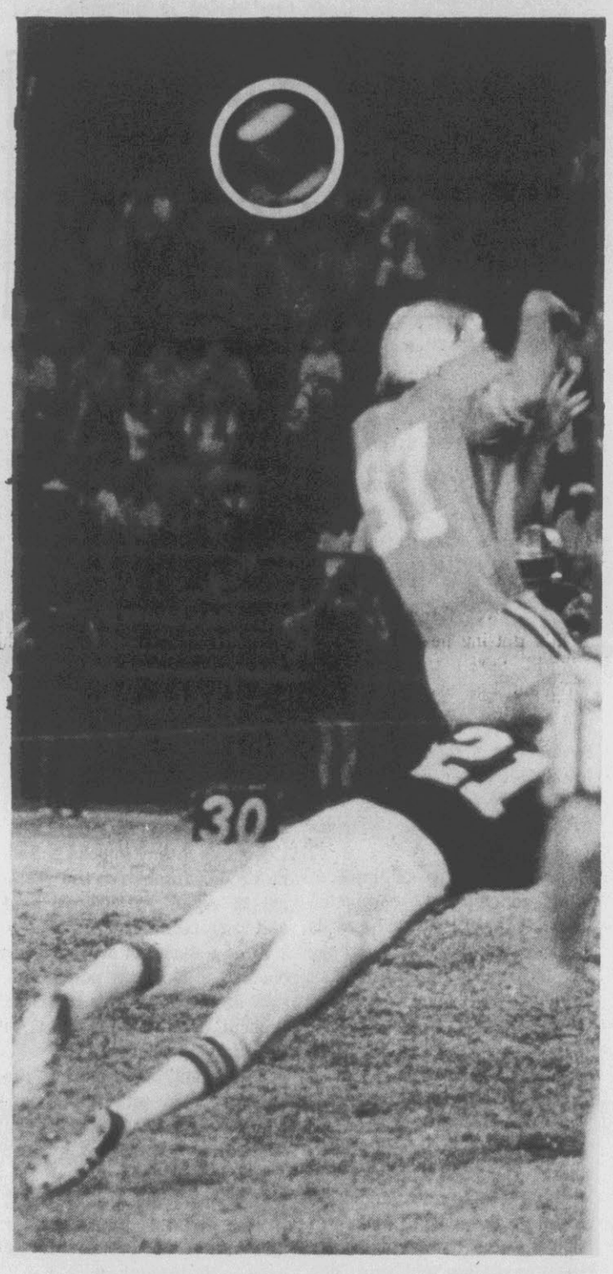

Holloway, who earlier had thrown a 27-yard touchdown pass and dashed 49 yards for a another six pointer, rolled out to the right and dived to the Duke 1 for the first down. Haskel Stanback crashed over for the touchdown with 2:05 left on the clock.

Ricky Townsend, Tennessee's barefoot soccer-style kicker, booted three extra points to run his string to 34 straight over two seasons.

Duke, led by brilliant quarterback Martin Johnson, appeared on the way to a shocking upset over Tennessee, which entered the game a three-touchdown favorite.

Tennessee tackle Robert Pulliam recovered Johnson's fumble on Duke's 26 with 4:47 left. Running plays moved the ball to the Duke 6 where Holloway made his game-saving five-yard run to the Blue Devils' 1.

Johnson scored both of Duke's touchdowns, capping a beautiful 80-yard drive by dashing over from the 4 on a keeper and sneaking over from the 1 two minutes later after the Blue Devils had recovered a Vol fumble on the kickoff.

N.C. State Downs Virginia

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Sophomore quarterback Dave Buckey powered North Carolina State's 17th ranked Wolfpack to a 43-23 victory over Virginia Saturday night in the Atlantic Coast Conference football opener for both schools.

Buckey's pinpoint passing and the breakaway running of senior tailback Willie Burden keyed the N. C. State offensive display as the Wolfpack picked up its second victory in two starts.

Buckey, playing less than half the game, rushed for one touchdown and passed for two, one to his twin brother Don and the other to tight end Harvey Willis.

The Cavaliers, after giving up a 31-yard field goal by Ron Sewell on the Wolfpack's possession, drove for a touchdown that put N. C. State behind for the first time this season.

Sophomore tailback Ray Keys swept in from the five for the Virginia score, but the lead was short-lived.

N. C. State inserted Buckey for starting quarterback Bruce Shaw and rolled 61 yards for the go-ahead touchdown, with Burden bursting over the middle from the eight.

The Wolfpack quickly stretched the lead when Virginia quarterback George Allen Jr., son of the Washington Redskins coach, was hit while trying to pass and fumbled on his own 12. Three plays later, Buckey hit Willis from eight yards out.

Buckey's passes started the Wolfpack on another march midway through the second period and he plunged over from the one to give N. C. State an insurmountable 24-7 lead.

Single In 10th Gives Phils Win

MONTREAL (AP) — Bob Bailey's bases-loaded singled produced the winning run in the 10th inning, leading the Montreal Expos to a 5-4 decision over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday.

The victory left the Expos in second place 1½ games behind the front-running Pittsburgh Pirates in the hot National League East race.

Bailey came through with his game-winning hit after the Expos loaded the bases in the 10th on Ron Woods' single and walks to Ken Singleton and Mike Jorgensen.

The Phillies tied the score 4-4 on Cesar Tovar's two-run single in the eighth inning.

Earlier, Bob Stinson contributed a two-run single in a four-run fourth that helped the Expos to a 4-2 lead.

A record crowd of 34,331 was on hand at 28,456-seat Jarry Park.

Philadelphia starter Dick Ruthven had a one-hitter as he entered the fourth, but walked Larry Lintz to lead off the inning. Lintz went to third when Ruthven's attempted pick-off throw wound up in right field.

Ruthven then got Ron Fairly to pop out but Ken Singleton singled to tie the score. Walks to Jorgensen and Bailey loaded the bases and Felipe Alou singled home another run before Stinson's big hit.

Lions Claw Birds, 20-6

By ERIC PREWITT ...
Associated Press Sports Writer

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Defensive back Jim Bradley made two important plays, including a fumble recovery which led to Penn State's first touchdown and the seventh-ranked Nittany Lions beat Stanford 20-6 Saturday in a college football opener.

Penn State virtually shut off the Cardinals' rushing offense and sacked quarterback Mike Boryla seven times in the nationally televised game.

John Cappelletti, the Nittany Lion's hard running senior tailback, and junior quarterback Tom Shuman were the Penn State offensive stars. Cappelletti ran for one touchdown, setting it up with a 17-yard completion to Chuck Herd in the third period on the first pass attempt of his varsity career.

Shuman threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Gary Hayman in the second quarter two plays after Bradley recovered a fumble by Stanford halfback Scott Laidlaw.

The Penn State defense got the first score of the game when linebacker Doug Allen blocked a punt by Tom Lynn late in the second quarter. The ball rolled out of the Stanford end zone for a safety.

The next time Stanford got the ball, Laidlaw dropped a handoff from Boryla for the fumble which Bradley pounced on. Earlier in the half, Bradley got the Lions out of trouble by intercepting a Boryla pass near the goal line and returning the ball 51 yards to the Stanford 44.

Hayman returned a Stanford punt 21 yards to Stanford 31 in the third period and Cappelletti's pass to Herd put the ball at the five. Cappelletti then carried three straight times, scoring from the two.

In the final quarter, Chris Bahr kicked a 24-yard Penn State field goal and Stanford avoided a shutout loss when Boryla threw an eight-yard touchdown pass to tight end Glen Stone with 1:56 remaining, ending a 47-yard Stanford drive.

Greene Central Bops Firebirds

SNOW HILL—Greene Central put out the fire of the Southern Nash Firebirds Friday night with a 31-0 shutout behind three touchdowns by Miles Briggs.

Greene Central slipped into the lead in the first period of the game and scored three times in the third quarter to put it out of reach.

The Rams got the opening score from Jerome Sheppard as he returned a Firebird punt 56 yards for a touchdown. The kick for the point after failed.

It remained that way until the third period when Greene Central pushed over another score with Briggs bulling in from the four. The kick again failed.

The Rams got the ball back a few minutes later and scored a second time in the period with Briggs going in from the eight. The kick was missed a third time. Briggs scored again as the quarter drew to a close hitting paydirt on an 11 yard scamper. This time Lanier kicked the PAT for a 25-0 lead.

With one second left in the game, Ram quarterback, Jerry Carraway threw to Joe Heath for a four yard touchdown strike to round out the scoring.

In all, the Rams ground out 106 yards on the ground and 131 in the air. Southern was held to just 37 rushing and minus 14 through the airways.

Astros Beat LA

HOUSTON (AP) — Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer run and solo homers by Tom Griffin and Jimmy Wynn lifted the Houston Astros to a 5-1 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Saturday.

All three homers came off Dodger starter Al Downing, including two in the third inning when Gary Sutherland singled and scored on Cedeno's shot after Griffin. Houston's starting pitcher had hit his first homer of the year.

Wynn slammed his 20th homer of the season in the fifth.

Griffin, 2-6, held the Dodgers to six hits. Both of his victories have come against the Dodgers.

DETROIT (AP) — Gates Brown's bases-loaded double drove in three Detroit runs in the eighth inning Saturday, lifting the Tigers to a 4-3 victory over Milwaukee.

Trailing 3-1, the Tigers loaded the bases on singles by Dick McAuliffe and Mickey Stanley and a walk to Willie Horton before Brown delivered the decisive hit.

The Brewers opened the scoring in the second on doubles by Joe Lahoud and Pedro Garcia.

Ayden-Grifton Humbles Southern Wayne, 34-14

LITTLEFIELD—Ayden-Grifton extablished itself as a definite contender for the Eastern Carolina Conference crown Friday night as they slammed Southern Wayne, 34-14, as Greg Nelson threw for three TD's and ran for a fourth.

Nelson now has four scoring tosses in two games. He had one last week against Kinston to Milton Brown who was on the the receiving end of a pair of them Friday. Brown grabbed a total of four of Nelson's passes for 149 yards including one of 90 which was good for a score. Nelson amassed 160.

Southern Wayne slipped in front early in the game as Oliver dove in from one yard out. He added the PAT on a run.

The Chargers pulled within two as Tony Koonce scored on a 62 yard footrace but the extra point try failed. A few minutes later, Nelson unleashed a bomb to Brown for 90 yards and a TD to put A-G in front 12-8.

The Saints struck back with a go-ahead touchdown as Oliver went in from the three. After that the A-G defense stiffened behind Tom Craft who made 10 unassisted tackles ans shut out the Saints.

A-G took the lead on a second Nelson to Brown combination, this one good for 19 yards and Nelson hit Brown on the conversion to go in front, 20-14. Don Phillips was on the downrange end of the next Nelson scoring strike from the Southern Wayne 11. Nelson ran the ball in himself for the PAT.

Who else would cap the night's contest off but Nelson. He finished the third quarter barage with a five yard plunge to give the Chargers the final margin.

The Chargers dominated the game with 470 yards on the ground; Koonce had 160 of them in 17 carries.

A-G will be at home next week hosting D.H. Conley as they seek to extend their record to 3-0.

It's THE Game For Johnny U.

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

It is THE game...but it's not San Francisco at Miami.

It is San Diego at Washington...and a chance for Johnny Unitas to show the world that life begins at 40.

Unitas changes uniforms after 16 years at Baltimore.

The Redskins careened through the 1972 campaign with an 11-3 record and made it to the Super Bowl before losing to Miami.

Along with the San Francisco-at-Miami battle, Sunday's other season openers are the Oakland Raiders at Minnesota Vikings, Dallas Cowboys at Chicago Bears, Detroit Lions at Pittsburgh Steelers, Los Angeles Rams at Kansas City Chiefs, Houston Oilers at New York Giants, Baltimore Colts at Cleveland Browns, Cincinnati Bengals at Denver Broncos, Atlanta Falcons at New Orleans Saints, St. Louis Cardinals at Philadelphia Eagles and Buffalo Bills at New England Patriots.

The New York Jets and Green Bay Packers play Monday night's nationally televised game in Milwaukee.

Miami's wide receivers Paul Warfield and Howard Twilley are doubtful, so they'll go with Marlin Briscoe and rookie Bo Rather.

The 49ers have Vic Washington apparently out with a bad knee, so Doug Cunningham will probably be next to Larry Schreiber at running back.

The Vikings, who slumped to 7-7 last year, rebounded to a 5-0 exhibition mark.

The Raiders may start Ken Stabler at quarterback if Daryle Lamonica is not completely recovered from injuries.

Roger Staubach has again won the Cowboys' quarterbacking job. The Bears will be going again with running Bobby Douglass.

Pittsburgh's ground game will be a big test for Coach Chuck Noll's Lions, whose defense faltered last year.

The Rams have a new coach, Chuck Knox; a new quarterback, John Hadl; and a new target for him in Harold Jackson, the NFL receiving leader last year with Philadelphia. The Chiefs' quarterback, Len Dawson has been bothered by a jammed thumb and may give way to Mike Livingston.

The Oilers won two preseason games, twice as many as their entire 1972 regular-season mark, but now face the Giants, who swept their six exhibition games. The Colts are giving rookie Bert Jones from Louisiana State the starting quarterback job in their opener against the Browns.

Rookie Otis Armstrong is expected to take some of the load off Floyd Little in Denver's running game. Cincinnati has a new starting runner in the backfield, 12th-round pick Charles Clark. Coach John North sends his Saints against an Atlanta club with a three-way quarterback scramble. Dick Shiner is starting this week ahead of Bob Lee and Pat Sullivan.

The Cardinals' Don Coryell and Philadelphia's Mike McCormack make their head coaching debuts.

New England, with new Coach Chuck Fairbanks, will spotlight rookies against the Bills, who have NFL rushing champ O.J. Simpson.

Hiller Matches Mark With 2-1 A Save Friday

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer

John Hiller saves.

Friday night was the 35th time he's rescued a drowning Detroit arm this season-tying Sparky Lyle's American League record in that department.

"I think it's a thing to be proud of," said Hiller after protecting Mickey Lolich's 2-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Elsewhere in the American League, Minnesota blanked Chicago 6-0, Boston subdued Cleveland 6-4, Oakland beat Texas 51 in 10 innings, California edged Kansas City 3-2 and the New York-Baltimore game was rained out.

Hiller wouldn't get excited about his pitching feat. But that's better than when he couldn't. Doctor's orders.

Hiller suffered a heart attack in January, 1971. Hiller made Lolich look good Friday night, protecting the big left-hander's victory for the third straight time and thwarting Jim Colborn's bid to win his 20th game.

A's 5, Rangers 1

It's getting near playoff and World Series time and Gene Tenace, last year's Series hero, is starting to warm up.

Tenace's team, the A's, preparing for post-season competition after moving 5, 1-2 games ahead of runnerup Kansas City in the AL West, were down to their last out, trailing the Rangers and Jim Bibby 1-0.

But that last out was Tenace who singled in the tying run after pinch runner Al Lewis moved into scoring position with a steal of second.

Then in the 10th Tenace was there again in a two-out situation.

Bill North lead off with a single and moved up on Bert Campaneris' sacrifice. Then an intentional walk to Sal Bando and Mike Andrews' single filled the bases before Tenace's 23rd homer unfilled them and ended the game, 5-1 for the A's.

Angels 3, Rangers 2

California's Frank Tanana, a 20-year-old rookie, made the Royals' pennant hopes a game more unrealistic when he fired a six-hitter to beat Kansas City 3-2.

Tanana struck out six and walked one to avenge his loss to Kansas City last week in his major league debut.

Twins 6, White Sox 0

Bert Blyleven hurled a four-hitter, recorded his ninth shutout of the season, struck out 12 and gained his 18th victory in pitching the Minnesota Twins to a 6-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

The Minnesota victory moved the Twins into a virtual tie with the White Sox for third place in the AL West.

Red Sox 6, Indians 3

Carl Yastrzemski drove in four runs with a homer and a single to lead the Red Sox over the Indians 6-3.

Yastrzemski slammed his 16th homer after Tommy Harper had walked and Luis Aparicio singled.

In the National League the scores were: Montreal 3, Philadelphia 2; Cincinnati 7, Atlanta 6; Pittsburgh 3, St. Louis 2; Los Angeles 13, Houston 1; San Diego 4, San Francisco 3 and the Chicago-New York game was postponed because of rain.

Boos Silenced With Game Winning Single

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Bobby Tolan answered the boss with his bat Friday night.

"No comment" Tolan told sports writers after his ninth inning two-out single capped a three-run rally in the Cincinnati Reds' 7-6 comeback victory over the Atlanta Braves.

"It's been a long year, that's all I've got to say," said the Reds' troubled outfielder, who expects to be on the trading block after his fiery outburst with management last month.

"It's was like a storybook," said Manager Sparky Anderson. "I'm happy for him."

Trailing 6-4 going into the ninth, the Reds tied it on Phil Gagliano's two-run pinch hit single. Tolan, playing for the injured Cesar Geronimo, stilled a chorus of boos with a single down the right field line to score Johnny Bench.

It was Tolan's first start in Cincinnati since his verbal war with the Reds' heirachy.

"That's the greatest thing that could ever happen to him," said Gagliano, who was among the mob of players that swarmed out of the dugout to congratulate Tolan.

"He couldn't have got a bigger hit than that one if he had been playing all season," added Gagliano, who boosted his pinch hitting average to .371 with this 13th hit in 35 trips.

It was the Reds' 90th victory of the season and maintained a 4½-game margin over runner up Los Angeles.

"We win 10 more games and they-the Dodgers-don't have a chinaman's chance," said Anderson.

The Reds, now with 51 wins in their last 71 games, had to come from a 5-1 deficit. Home runs by Atlanta's Dave Johnson, whose 41 leave him one shy of the 51-year-old major league record set by Rogers Hornsby, and Darrell Evans prevented Cincinnati's Don Gullett from winning his ninth straight.

Both were solo shots. It was Evans' 39th.

"I thought we were hurting," said Anderson, as the Reds headed into the ninth inning trailing 6-4. "But I knew we still had our front line coming up."

With one out, Pete Rose drilled his third single of the game. Joe Morgan walked, pinch hitter George Foster flied out and Johnny Bench drew a walk.

Then Gagliano, who came to the Reds in a trade from the Boston Red Sox this spring, drove in the tying runs.

"I did what I'm paid to do. Sure it bothers me not to play more, but I know why I'm here. I know my job," said Gagliano.

The series is to continue tonight with Fred Norman, 1112, facing Atlanta's Phil Nieko, 13-8.

Vikes Past Aycock Falcons

HOLLYWOOD—Willie Hawkins rushed for 197 in 19 carries and two touchdowns as the D.H. Conley Vikings scored an 18-9 win over C.B. Aycock Friday night.

Hawkins' two scores were enough to give the Vikings the win. Conley scored first to open the game. Lawrence Harper pulled down a 30 yard pass from quarterback Joey Baggett but the run for two points failed.

Aycock stormed back and took the lead after recovering a fumble on the Vike 20. Alvin Brown took it in two yards out and Mitchell added the PAT for a 7-6 lead.

It was short lived however, as Conley took the kickoff back to the Falcon 11 via the Hawkins Express. From that distance, Hawkins pulled into the station putting Conley ahead to stay. The kick failed.

Conley recovered a fumble in the quarter and on the second play, Hawkins highballed 78 yards for the TD.

Aycock recorded a safety in the fourth quarter as the Vike punter stepped out of the end zone.

The Vikings rolled up 314 yards of total offense but were slapped with 226 yards in penalities. They also had two TD's called back.

North Lenoir Blasts Panthers

WHEAT SWAMP—North Lenoir added salt to North Pitt's wounds from last week's loss to Robersonville with a 46-12 romp over the Panthers, Friday.

North Lenoir rolled up 319 yards rushing while the Panthers got 211. The Hawks ran the score up with three touchdowns in the third period to get the conference win. It was the first East Carolina loop loss for North Pitt. McPhail got the Hawks on the boards first on a 30 yard run. The next score came on a pass from Turner to Brown for 14 yards. Turner passed for a second TD hitting Garry Battle for 12 yards.

North Pitt finally broke the ice as Mooring ran 84 yards for a score.

The Panthers pulled within a touchdown in the third period as Mooring ran back a kickoff 82 yards making the score 18-12. But after that, North Pitt was swamped under a TD barrage.

Barfield got the first of the quarters' three scores hitting from the two. McPhail got his second tally of the game on a five yard sprint and Wood returned a fumble 22 yards for six points giving the Hawks a 40-12 advantage.

North Lenoir scored once more as Jones went over from the six in the fourth period.

Tolan Earned Dog Bone

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Throw a bone into the Cincinnati Reds' doghouse. Bobby Tolan has earned at least that.

Tolan, suspended by the Reds after a front office run-in last month, delivered the ninth inning single that sealed a Cincinnati comeback and beat Atlanta 7-6 Friday night.

The victory reduced the Reds' magic number for clinching the National League's West division to 11. Los Angeles remained 4½ games behind Cincinnati by walloping Houston 13-1.

In other National League action, Pittsburgh widened its East Division lead to 1½ games, defeating St. Louis 3-1. The loss dropped the Cardinals to third place. Montreal took over second place, beating Philadelphia 3-2. San Diego nipped San Francisco 4-3. Chicago's game at New York was rained out.

The Reds were trailing 6-4 with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth inning against the Braves. That's when Phil Gagliano delivered a pinch single for two runs, tying the score and giving Tolan the chance to be a hero and. single home the deciding run.

Dodgers 13, Astros 1

Andy Messersmith tossed a four-hitter and contributed a two-run double to Los Angeles' attack as the Dodgers battered Houston 13-1.

Willie Davis collected four hits and the Dodgers scored four runs for Messersmith in the first inning before he went to the mound.

Pirates 3, Cardinals 1

Pittsburgh struck for three runs in the first inning and hung on to defeat St. Louis, dropping the Cardinals to third place, two games behind the Pirates.

Willie Stargell's bad-hop single scored the first Pirate run and then Richie Hebner doubled home another before Bob Robertson's check-swing single scored the third.

Expos 3, Phillies 2

Montreal nicked Steve Carlton for three runs in the first two innings and made the early edge stand up for a 3-2 victory over Philadelphia that moved the Expos into second place.

Bob Bailey singled home one run in the first and then a walk, singles by Ron Woods and Felipe Alou and a wild pitch added two more in the second.

Padres 4, Giants 3

Clay Kirby and Mike Caldwell throttled San Francisco on six hits, pitching San Diego to a 4-3 victory over the Giants.

John Grubb and Dave Roberts each doubled home a run for the Padres and Derrel Thomas added another with a sacrifice fly.

American League scores: Minnesota 6, Chicago 0; Detroit 2, Milwaukee 1; Boston 6, Cleveland 4; California 3, Kansas City 2; Oakland 5, Texas 1 in 10 innings. New York's game at Baltimore was postponed by rain.

Cubs Beat New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Ron Santo's leadoff homer touched off a three-run Chicago rally and the Cubs went on to defeat the New York Mets 7-0 to gain a split of their doubleheader Saturday.

Tug McGraw earned his 21st save of the season as the Mets won the first game 5-1.

The split left the fourth-place Mets 3½ games behind Pittsburgh in the National League's East Division.

Rick Reuschel scattered 10 hits in the nightcap and the Cubs jumped Ray Sadecki, 4-4, for three runs in the second inning. After Santo homered, Carmen Fanzone walked and raced home on Ken Rudolph's double. Don Kessinger's single delivered Rudolph.

In the fourth, Fanzone opened with a walk and moved to second on an infield hit by Paul Popovich. Rudolph hit into a double play but Reuschel, 13-15, singled, scoring Fanzone.

Then hits by Kessinger and Rick Monday added another run. Jose Cardenal homered for the Cubs in the ninth.

McGraw saved the opener for George Stone, 11-3, who lasted until the seventh inning.

Cleon Jones singled home two runs in the first inning and Rusty Staub's double produced two more in the seventh, helping New York beat Ferguson Jenkins, 12-15.

Tigers Blank Robersonville, 22-0

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston's Jeffery Roberts scored twice on runs of 17 and 23 yards to lift the Tigers past Robersonville, 22-0, Friday night.

Joe Roberson added the other Tiger score on a two yard run in the second quarter.

Williamston got their first score after recovering a fumble on their 48. Kenny Speller got 31 yards, Roberson picked up four and Roberts added 17 before banging in from the 17. Keith Biggs kicked the PAT.

Robert finished off a 52 yard drive for his second TD of the game going 23 yards.

Roberson added the topping to a 72 yard march aided with runs of 17 yards by Roberts and 18 by Doug Selby. Speller ran the ball in for the conversion.

Robersonville drove to the Williamston 15 but lost the ball. Danny Whitehurst picked off a Eagle pass to end the game.

The Tigers ran up 264 total yards rushing to just 81 for Robersonville.

Williamston is now 2-0 while the Golden Eagles are 1-1.

Earlier this week the two school's J.V. teams played to a 6-6 standoff.

Indians Up Sox

BOSTON (AP) — John Ellis drove in six runs with a homer and double, leading the Cleveland Indians to a 9-8 victory over the Boston Red Sox Saturday.

Ellis' bases-loaded double snapped a 3-3 tie in the fifth inning and, after the Red Sox cut the Indians' lead to 6-5, Ellis smashed a three-run homer in the sixth.

Oscar Gamble hit a home run in the first inning and Walt Williams knocked in a run and scored another in the second to give the Indians a 3-0 lead.

Rick Miller's three-run homer for Boston in the third tied the game and Carl Yastrzemski slugged a bases-empty homer for the Red Sox in the ninth.

Jaguars Run Past Warriors

FARMVILLE—Farmville Central got a pair of touchdowns from Lee Johnson and one from Jeff Wilkes to beat the Warriors of Eastern Wayne Friday night, 20-14.

The Jaguars roared back after last week's loss to Rose High to get on the winning track. The win was the first conference game for FC.

Johnson put the Jaguars on the boards first as he cracked over from the five after Farmville Central got the ball on a Martin Little interception.

The score stayed that way until the third quarter when the Warriors tied it up on a 15 yard run by Bobby Friesel. That came with :45 left in the quarter.

Johnson put Farmville Central back on top in the fourth as he drove in from one yard out with 5:53 left to play. David Smith passed to Jeff Cobb for the extra point.

A few minutes later, Wilkes scored from the one to ice the win for the Jags.

Rain Washes Out Friday Trials For Delaware 500

By KRISTIN GOFF
Associated Press Writer

DOVER, Del. (AP) — Drivers, deprived of a practice day because of rain Friday, were expected to have better luck today in pre-race activities leading up to Sunday's running of the Delaware 500 National Stock Car Race.

Practice time on the one-mile track at Dover Downs Speedway was scheduled this morning, with qualifying trials to determine all 40 starting positions slated for the afternoon.

More than 1½ inches of rain drenched the Dover area Friday, preventing any of the 51 entries in the NASCAR 500 miler from trying out the track during the only full day devoted to inspections and practice in the shortened three-day grand national event.

Dover Downs in line with a recent NASCAR change in requirements, dropped its previous four-day schedule of race activities in what track officials said was a move to save expenses for racing teams and give them more time to prepare their cars between races.

For Darrell Waltrip, 26, one of the top contenders for the NASCAR "Rookie fo the Year" award, the rain was a mixed blessing. It gave him a little added time to prepare a substitute car for the race.

Waltrip had been driving a 1973 Ford for Bud Moore of Spartansburg, S.C., but learned only last Tuesday that the car was too badly damaged to be ready for the Delaware race.

The Ford was damaged in a 13-car pileup in the Capital City 500 at Richmond, Va. last weekend and Moore decided to skip the race rather than use a backup car, Waltrip said.

Rather than drop out of competition, Waltrip decided to pull his own 1973 Chevelle out of storage for the competition.

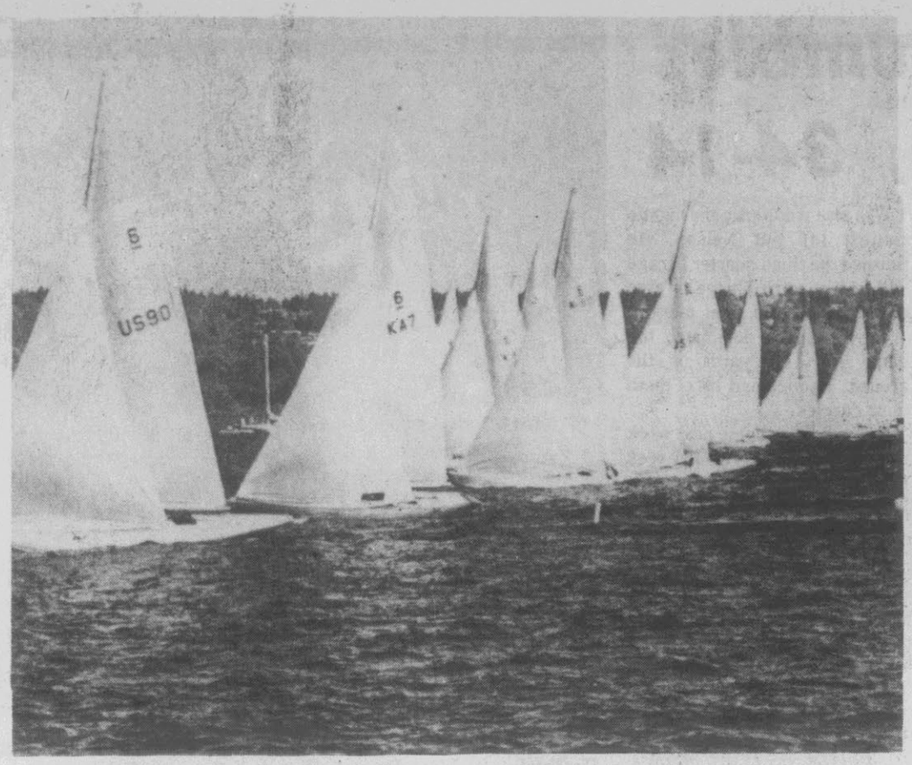

The car has seen race competition only once before—last month at Nashville—and was in third place when it blew an engine, Waltrip said.

His crew, which had been pressed to get the car in shape, found itself with time to spare because of Friday's rain, Waltrip said.

If weather permits practice on the track today "we'll be in good shape," he waid, adding that he felt he could perform well on the short, high-banked track at Dover.

Waltrip, from Franklin, Tenn., will be competing with such grand national veterans as Richard Petty, Cale Yarborough, Bobby Allison and last year's winner of the Delaware 500, David Pearson, in qualifying trials today.

As leading point holder among rookie drivers so far this season, Waltrip is also hoping to improve his position in competition for the "Rookie of the Year" award with a good finish in Sunday's race. Two other top contenders, Vic Parsons of Skyland, N.C. and Lennie Pone of Petersburg, Va. are listed as entries in the race.

NEW YORK (UPI) — From the ditty bag:

—Four huge in-the-water boat shows are in the offing for pleasure boaters along the Atlantic Coast between now and December. The second annual North Atlantic Boat Show will be held at Yacht Haven Marina in Stamford, Conn., Sept. 27-30, to be followed Oct. 4-8 by the fourth annual United States Sailboat Show at City Dock in Annapolis, Md., and the second annual United States Powerboat Show at the same site Oct. 11-14. The fourth exhibit will be the inaugural Southern Sailboat Show to be held in Marine Stadium, Miami, Fla., Dec. 6-9.

—A new electronic instrument that both transmits and receives ultrasound frequencies, the BoatLife Sonic Leak Locator, will be demonstrated at the nation's boat shows this fall. The transmitter, or tone generator, is placed inside the hull or boat compartment and the leak locator wand, an unmodulated microphone, passed over the exterior. The operator picks up the ultrasound emissions through even the tiniest apertures via his earphones, according to the manufacturer.

—A recommended repair kit to be carried aboard by fiberglass hull owners includes fiberglass cloth (several square yards); fiberglass tape (6-inch width, 10 yards; polyester resin (at least a quart in pint cans); fiberglass mat (one square yard); epoxy cement (several tubes). Cloth and mat can be used to repair a fracture or hole. The tape is handy for repairing a fractured spar or temporarily stopping a leak in a pipe or in the cold end of the exhaust tube. Polyester resin wets the glass rapidly and cures quickly, allowing for fast temporary repairs. The epoxy cement serves as a "super-glue" or solder and almost always fits into emergency repairs.

—One of the most enthusiastic members of the sailing fraternity is Dan Rowan, the straight man in the team of Rowan and Martin, who owns two sailboats and two years ago sailed one of them from Santa Monica, Calif., to Hawaii. Rowan, whose new RCA special, "Opening Night, Staring Rowan and Martin," will be telecast over NBC on Sept. 13, told an interviewer recently that "if I could afford it" he'd chuck show business and "take a long, long trip on a boat before I get too old to do it."

—R.E. "Ted" Turner of Atlanta who will skipper the 12-meter yacht Mariner in elimination trials next summer to determine an America's Cup defender, is currently tied with Wally Stenhouse of Detroit for the second World Ocean Racing Championship. Turner won the inaugural championship in 1972 in his converted 12-meter American Eagle. The WORC, sponsored by Yaching magazine, is a three-year contest and the current competition ends in January, 1974.

—A Miami organization has initiated the nation's first training program for aspiring young powerboat racers. The Miami Marine Racing Club, organized by a number of veteran Miami outboard drivers, has attracted upwards of 35 youngsters to monthly meetings and clinics since its inception earlier this year. The club is run entirely by the youngsters, with a three-man adult advisory board which helps conduct informal training sessions on correct methods of rigging race boats, racing technique, and safe handling of powerboats.

Sports Roundup In Brief

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MANCHESTER, England (AP) — Bobby Moore, hero of the 1970 international soccer games for England, was left out of the West Ham lineup against Manchester United Saturday amid speculation arose that he is to be traded.

The 32-year-old Moore reportedly has been upset over West Ham's failure to win a league game this season. West Ham lost again Saturday, 3-1.

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Dey, commissioner of the PGA's Tournament Players Division, announced Saturday that a field of 373 applicants will compete in three regional tryouts for the 1973 qualifying school.

A total of 78 players will advance from the 72-hole tryouts to the qualifying school proper. Those 78 then will play a 144-hole tournament to determine the qualifiers for the tour. Last year, 25 qualified for the tour.

The eight-round event will be held in two sessions—at Pensacola, Fla., Oct. 17-20 and at Myrtle Beach, S.C. Oct. 24-27.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Eastern College Athletic Conference convenes here Monday for a four-day meeting during which time it will be decided whether to establish a post-season basketball tournament.

The tourney would provide automatic qualification for the NCAA's university basketball championships, starting with the 1975 tournament. In the proposed tourney, which still must be approved by the NCAA Basketball Tournament Committee, the 40 independent, university-division ECAC schools would be regionalized into four zones, with the regional winners moving into the NCAA East Regional Tournament.

LIGONIER, Pa. (AP) — The 1975 Ryder Cup matches between the United States and Great Britain will be held at the Laurel Valley Country Club here, William Clarke, president of the Professional Golfers Association, announced Saturday.

Dates for the competition were not announced, but it is expected to be held in the fall.

Laurel Valley hosted the 1965 PGA Championship, and between 1970 and 1972 was the site of the National Team Championship.

The U.S. team left Saturday night for Scotland and the 20th biennial meeting with Britain.

BOSTON (AP) — Barbara Ann Tyler, 64, an executive secretary for the Boston Red Sox for many years until her retirement last month, died Friday night at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Miss Tyler, who joined the Red Sox in 1936, served many team executives, including the late Eddie Collins and Joe Cronin before he left as general manager to become American League president.

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Jim Nicoll of Dallas cruised to a 213.77 mile per hour clocking in his Chevrolet-Vega funny car Friday night for the fastest speed as time trials opened for Sunday's AHRA Western United States Grand American drag racing championships.

Nicoll posted an elapsed time of 6.83 seconds for the standing start quarter mile over a damp track at Orange County Raceway.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — University of Minnesota basketball Coach Bill Musselman has been offered a job as general manager and head coach of the Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association, the Minneapolis Tribune reported Saturday.

Musselman, however, denied that he had been offered the job.

The Gopher coach signed a three-year contract at Minnesota following the 1972-73 season, after visiting the University of Florida and discussing a basketball vacancy there.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Basketball great Bill Russell has agreed to pay $900 a month in support payments to his children and ex-wife following final action in a divorce decree.

Wildlife Afield: Pheasant With Connecticut Yankee

By JIM DEAN

While I was taking care of part of my military obligation in Indiana a few years back, I became close frineds with a fellow from Connecticut—Stamford to be exact. We kidded each other a lot. He said I sounded like "Huckleberry Hound," and I told him he sounded like an Englishman with a bad cold. We got along famously.

But there was one thing about me he couldn't understand.

"I just can't picture you with a gun in your hand," he would say, quite seriously. "I mean you don't look like a hunter. You're all the time talking about the wonders of nature, and you're the only guy I know who would have a pet spider hanging down from the light in front of the shaving mirror. You won't kill that spider, but you like to hunt. I can't figure you out. You're not the type."

"Do you consider yourself a killer?" I asked him.

"Of course not," he said.

"But you're a career officer in the U.S. Army," I argued.

"That doesn't necessarily make me bloodthirsty," he said.

"No," I agreed. "It doesn't. I want you to do something for me. I'm going pheasant hunting this weekend, and I've got an extra gun you can borrow. Go with me and I think I might be able to show you what I mean."

On the following Saturday morning, we left the base and headed for an area where pheasant hunting was pretty good. My friend had bought his license, and reluctantly agreed to go.

"I'm not going to shoot anything though," he warned me.

We drove through the fall countryside, stopping occasionally to admire the blaze of color in the trees and the soft golds and browns in the fields. The sky was brilliant blue and the air was just crisp enough to wear a jacket.

We had no dog, wo we walked the fields alone, hoping to flush a pheasant or perhazps a rabbit.

"It's good just getting out, isn't it?" I asked after awhile.

"Yeah," he said, "sure is."

"Do you ever walk in the fields or woods?" I asked.

"No," he said. "I never did do much of that."

We walked through several fields and stopped in a dense woods to drink from an icy spring. I showed him the tracks of a raccoon and a deer. We stopped for along time to watch a hawk hunting over a field. The hawk finally caught a field mouse. Along one creek bottom, I crushed some pine needles in my hand and held them up for him to smell.

"That's better than aftershave lotion," he said.

As we neared the end of a long field, something moved in the brush ahead.

"What's that?" he asked.

"A pheasant," I said. "When we get to the end of this hedgerow, he may flush."

Tensely, we moved forward and suddenly, a fine cock pheasant burst into the air with a cackle and headed away. I got him with my second shot. That evening, in the cool night air, we roasted the pheasant over a fire and ate him. He was delicious.

"Be truthful," I said as we drove back to the base, "was it like you expected?"

He though about it for awhile.

"No, not really, " he said. "It all seemed very. . .well. . .very natural, though I'm afraid I can't be more specific than that."

While I cleaning the guns later that evening, he came by the room.

"When are you going again?" he asked.

"Next week, probably," I said.

"Well, uh, I'd like to go," he said, "and bring that spare gun along too."

Deer Hunters Take Note

RALEIGH—All deer hunters who plan to hunt on the Butner Game Land should pay particular attention to the regulation said a spokesman for N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission here this morning.

"Inquiries we've received indicate that some hunters are confused about the archery season, restricted zone and the tagging procedure," said Dick Hamilton, Big Game Supervisor for the Wildlife Commission.

The archery season is from September 14 through October 13, and during this season, deer of either-sex may be shot by bow and arrow on the Butner Game Land. Also, during this archery season, bow hunters can hunt on the special restricted zone which is outlined on page 48 of the 1973-74 Game Lands map book. This special restricted zone will be closed to all hunting, both bow and gun, following the close of the early archery season on October 13.

Hunters can get copies of these Game Land map books free at most license agents, and they can also be ordered from the N.C. Wildlife Commission 325 N. Salisbury Street, Raleigh, N.C. 27611.

"All antlerless deer killed by archery hunters must be tagged and registered," said Hamilton.

For the Butner area, all antlerless deer must be tagged at the site of the kill and carried immediatley to the Butner Police Department on Central Avenue in Butner, where the deer will be registered and a possession permit issued. The Butner Police Department is acting as Wildlife Cooperator Agent for the area.

Other information on the Butner deer hunts can be found in the 1973-74 Hunting and Trapping Regulations booklet available free at license agents.

Lt. Gov. Hunt Donates Books

In commemoration of National Hunting and Fishing Day, September 22, 1973, Lt. Governor Jim Hunt on September accepted two new wildlife books for the State Library. Dr. Fred Barkalow presented "The World of the Gray Squirrel" which he co-authored with Monica Shorten, and Jack Dermid presented "The World of the Wood Duck" which he co-authored with Dr. Gene Hester.

Many wildlife and sportsmen's clubs are having special observances of the nationally recognized Hunting and Fishing Day, September 22. In his Auguest 10 proclamation of this day, Governor James E. Holshouser, Jr., said "It is proper that we recognize the important contribution the outdoor sports of hunting and fishing have made to the continuance and improvement of this State's natural resources of wildlife and fish and salute the efforts of those outdoorsmen whose concern helps make these sports a heritage for all generations to come."

1—GREETED. . .by Mrs. Bill Ellington, Mrs. Ross shows her donor card, given her after her first donation and dated with all the six previous times she has given blood. Greenville Utilities, her employer, is given credit for her visit.

2—A RECORD. . .of this visit is started by Service League volunteer, Mrs. Don White. Information like name, address, weight (110 pounds is the lower limit) is written down. Persons who wish to donate on behalf of a certain individual needing blood let it be known here.

3—TEMPERATURE AND PULSE. . .are taken by Mrs. P. K. Andresen, a Service League volunteer. Since her temperature is below 99.6 and her pulse between 60 and 100 beats per minute, Mrs. Ross was given orange juice and sent on.

4—RED BLOOD CELL COUNT. . .is tested with a drop of blood from Mrs. Ross' finger. (The donor is given the choice of having the drop taken from either his finger or his earlobe.) Her blood pressure is also taken and she answers numerous questions about her medical history to determine if she is physically fit to donate. This is the last hurdle.

A Blood Donation Is A Gift Of Oneself

A Reflector photographer followed Mrs. Bessie Ross as she gave when the Red Cross Bloodmobile was here two and a half weeks ago. The purpose was to show how simple giving blood is and how the donor receives a relatively good physical examination that's free of charge, as well as the satisfaction of having done an unselfish act.

Mrs. Ross, whose employer, Greenville Utilities Commission, gives her time off to attend the Bloodmobile, was giving Aug. 29 at the Moose Lodge for the seventh time and for the second time this year. The soft-spoken Greenville lady was casual about her devotion to the local blood program. "I just do it," she said, giving no special reason.

The 5,000-donors Pledge Bank now being set up in Greenville, would add many new persons to the list of regular contributors and probably would mean that no person would be called on to give more than once a year. It would mean Pitt County could meet its quota every Bloodmobile visit. Donors could attend by appointment, saving themselves time and staggering the work of the nurses and volunteers throughout the day.

The Pledge Bank is a Greenville Moose Lodge project and could become a model program, Tidelands Blood Bank officials said.

6—A CHAT. . .with Pitt County Red Cross Executive Secretary Mrs. Ruth Taylor holds Mrs. Ross' attention as blood runs from her arm into the container at the side of the table. When Red Cross nurses have removed the apparatus, she will rest for a few minutes with her donor arm raised, as the man in the background is doing.

7—REFRESHMENTS. . .are served Mrs. Ross and other donors, Mrs. Beverly Wheeler and Bill Williamson by Mrs. W. S. Bost, a Service League volunteer, after their blood donation is completed.

Local ARC Earns Special Recognition

The Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center here has been recognized for its outstanding care and treatment of alcoholic people by the Social Security Administration.

The WBJ-ARC is the only alcoholic rehabilitation center to be approved for Medicare in the eight Southern States served by the Atlanta, Ga. office of the Social Security Administration, according to Reyna E. Williamson, Program Officer, Department of HEW.

A plaque was presented Thursday, by the Social Security Administration, advising the ARC that it has met stringent requirements for Medicare and has qualified for clients to receive assistance through Medicare payments. It was presented by Mrs. Barbara Garland, Social Security representative of the Greenville office of the Social Security Administration.

Donald H. Hayes, WBJ-ARC Superintendent, in accepting the plaque and recognition for the State institution, said, "We are pleased to receive this recognition and to be accepted by the Social Security Administration and to meet requirements necessary for clients to be able to receive Medicare and Medicaid assistance for their care and treatment."

He added, "This honor involves all members of our staff and every facet of care and treatment for clients while they are a patient at the ARC."

David T. Flaherty, Secretary of the N. C. Department of Human Resources, said, "I would like to express by congratulations to Don Hayes and the staff of the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center for their being certified by the Social Security Administration for Medicare and by the State of North Carolina for Medicaid. I am proud to have Don Hayes and these employees working within the North Carolina Department of Human Resources."

Secretary Flaherty added, "It is my hope that the other two alcoholic rehabilitation centers in North Carolina will continue to work toward the goal which the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center has achieved."

Approval for Medicare comes after several months of study by the staff of the Social Security Administration. To receive Medicare approval for third-party payments for patients, the institution must already have a "high standard of services in every aspect of care and treatment," Mrs. Garland said. "These inspections include such things as proper and adequate exits, medical treatment and service, nursing care, food service, etc. and every strict standards of quality and an adequate standard of staff to patient ratio."

Hayes said, "The medicare program is administrated by the Federal Government through the Social Security Administration and is funded through contributions to the Social Security Program and provides benefits to those persons over 65 or who have been disabled for over two years.

"The Medicaid program is administered by the State of North Carolina through the Department of Social Services and provides financial aid to those individuals who are not covered by Medicare and who are not financially sound. This means that we will be able to provide services to patients who in the past could not avail themselves of the services of the Walter B. Jones Alcoholic Rehabilitation Center," Hayes concluded.

The WBJ-ARC was opened in June 1969. It has a patient capacity of 76. The alcoholic rehabilitation program is for five and one-half weeks and includes medical rehabilitation as well as nutritional and theraputic rehabilitation for alcoholic people.

The institution functions under the Division of Mental Health in the 32-county Eastern Region within the N. C. Department of Human Resources.

Science, No Magic, Put Pear In Bottle

SION, Switzerland (AP) — How did the ripe pear get into the narrow-necked bottle of the uniquely Swiss pear brandy?

While many possibilities have been suggested by amazed tourists, the answer is simple: the pear is grown right in the container.

The process takes place in the Valais section of Switzerland, from May to August. In fact, seeing this orchard of glass, at first a visitor would think the fruit trees were infested with hornets' nests.

Actually, 40,000 bottles secured in nets are hung over branches with pear buds. They are suspended by a wire upside down to prevent rainwater from filling them.

The fruit-bearing branches must be inserted into the bottles during three days in May, or else the buds become too large to pass through the necks.

After the harvest in August only 15,000 will meet the quality requirements. These choice pears are washed and treated with a secret recipe the same evening they are taken from the orchard in their bottles. This special method of treatment is necessary to preserve the pear.

After the pears have soaked in a strong alcohol solution for three months, the containers are emptied, washed thoroughly and then filled with the brandy. The bottles with the rejects are used again, once the fruit has deteriorated enough to be flushed out.

Recovery From New Tubal Ligation Surgery Is Quick And Its Effect Is Immediate

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Mary had a laparoscopic tubal ligation early Friday morning at Pitt Memorial Hospital. She was feeling fine by noon and her husband took her home late that afternoon. She did light housework Saturday, went to church and visiting Sunday, and was back at work Monday.

She and her husband have two fine children. After several years of dissatisfaction with other birth control methods, they heard of this greatly simplified female sterilization procedure that is just becoming widely used in the United States. Greenville gynecologists began performing laparoscopies in January of this year.

The couple discussed at length all the considerations of taking such an important step, because, in Mary's initial discussion with her gynecologist, he stressed that there is no reversing the procedure since the Fallopian tubes where fertilization takes place are severed. She could never conceive or bear another child.

The doctor told the couple that recovery from this operation appears to be just as easy as a man's recovery from a vasectomy, the male sterilization operation. Birth control is immediate, he said, whereas there is some chance of conception for up to two or three months after a vasectomy. He did tell them, though, that there is more chance for complications in the woman's sterilization operation for three reasons: because deep anesthesia is needed, because a sharp object has to be inserted into the abdomen, and because an electrical current is used. All of these risks are minimal, but they do exist.

The couple decided to go ahead, so they signed papers as required by the State of North Carolina stating that both marriage partners are willing for the sterilization to take place. The operation was scheduled for a month and a day later, as a 30-day waiting period is required by N.C. law.

The Big Day

The morning of the operation the family was up early. Mary gave breakfast to the others, but could not eat herself because of being "put to sleep" later on. She was in the operating room by 7:15.

The anesthesiologist placed her under deep anesthesia, needed because all muscles in the abdominal area have to be flacid when the operation is underway. The abdomen was inflated with a gas to give the surgeon the necessary working space. One incision of less than an inch was made just below the navel. Another only half as long was made lower on the abdomen. (The lack of scarring because of such tiny incisions is another advantage over some older procedures.) The surgeon grasped each Fallopian tube in turn about an inch from where it enters the uterus and sent an electrical current through the instrument which cauterized (cooked) a small portion, causing it to fall away and leave two sealed ends.

(Dr. Edgar Douglas said experiments are being made now with using a plastic clamp, so even the slight risk involved in using the electrical current would be eliminated.)

The incisions were sewn up and the patient awakened in about a half hour to find two bandaids on her abdomen and no discomfort other than possibly a little gas, which soon went away.

Talks Of Advantages

"The nice thing about the incisions," she said, "is that they were so small that reaching, bending, or whatever movement causes no pulling and thus, no pain. There's just nothing to get over. Once it's done, it's done.

"Not having to leave the children for long or to have more than a day's absence from work is nice, too. If I'd had to wait till I could have a couple of weeks to recuperate, I don't know when I could have got around to it.

"Also, not having to enter the hospital was nice, as we know how crowded Pitt Memorial is, and it wasn't as costly, of course, as several days' stay would have been. We have good insurance which covered almost all the expense, though.

"I wouldn't advise everyone to do it, because it's each couple's decision, but we know we're happy with the family we have and this will give us many years with no birth control worries."

Dr. Douglas said the gynecologists believe, too, that it's the individual couple's decision, that they mention the operation only to women who have had side effects with the oral contraceptive pill or problems with the intrauterine device and would not be content to try any less sure birth control method, or to those who have a medical history which indicates they definitely should have no more children. Most of the operations done here so far have been because the woman asked her doctor about the procedure after hearing about it from a friend or reading about it, he said.

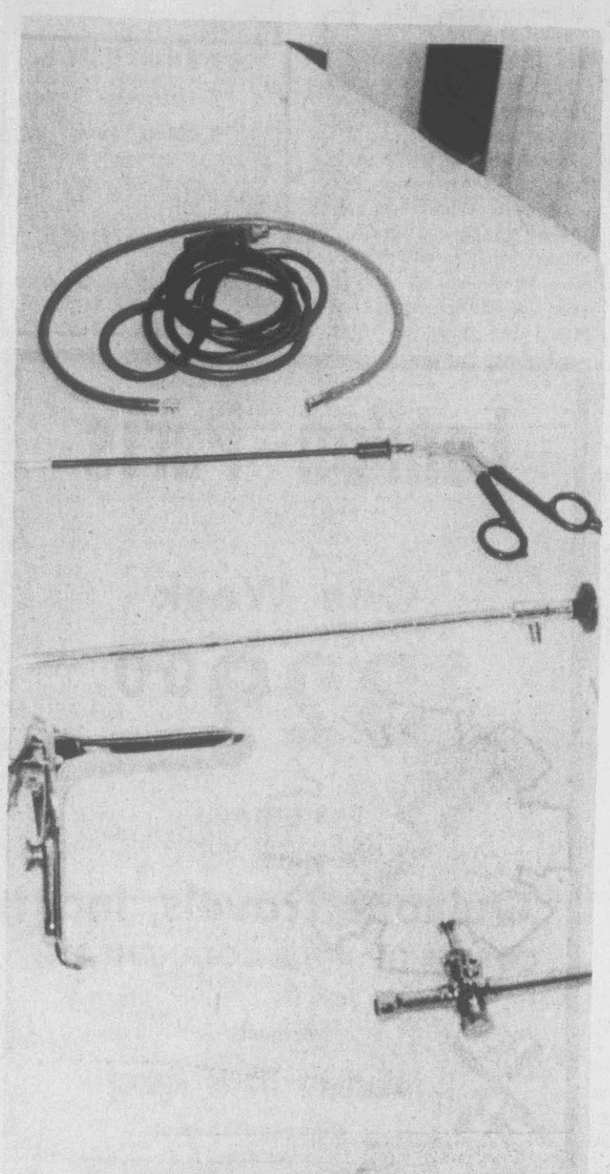

More than 100 have been done at Pitt Memorial so far.

Laparoscopy actually refers to the "tiny-incision" procedure and is used for several other purposes, including diagnosis of pelvic masses and pelvic infection and infertility problems.

Sterilization is its main use, though, 10 to one over all other uses combined at this hospital, though, Dr. Douglas said.

Dr. Jerry Hulka at North Carolina Memorial Hospital in Chapel Hill has spearheaded the effort to familiarize gynecologists in this area with the procedure, which originated in Europe 20 years ago.

Dr. Douglas spent two days observing and practicing with Dr. Hulka in Chapel Hill, and Dr. Hulka later came to Greenville and taught the procedure to the other gynecologists here.

INSTRUMENTS . . . used in the laparoscopic procedure are shown.

CHECKING IN . . . Dr. Edgar Douglas greets a couple in the ambulatory medical-surgical unit at Pitt Memorial Hospital, where the wife will stay only for the day after she undergoes a laparoscopic tubal ligation.

Sallie Mae Should Be Popular With College Students

By BETTY YARMON
Women's News Service

NEW YORK (WNS) — American families of college-age young men and women, hard pressed as they face the prospect of writing checks to cover mounting tuition costs, will find solace soon from a gal named Sallie Mae.

Sallie Mae, blood sister of Fannie Mae (Federal National Mortgage Assn.), is the popular name for the Student Loan Marketing Assn., a new federally sponsored private corporation authorized by Congress for the express purpose of freeing funds for much needed student loans. This is the government's response to the actions of banks in recent days in resisting the pleas of even their best customers for "low-profit" educational loans. The banks have been saying, in effect, thay they simply don't have the money.

Starting this fall, Sallie Mae will raise funds by selling shares of common stocks to leanding institutions such as banks and educational institutions. The money raised in this way will be used to buy up student loans presently held by the lending institutions, which have been made under the Government's Guaranteed Student Loan Program.

This process seeks to put additional funds in the hands of the lenders — in technical terms, making them more liquid — thus encouraging them to make more loans. The funds that the banks raise by selling student loans to Sallie Mae, or borrowing against them, must go back into more student loans. This means that when you knock on your bank's door, you should get a warmer welcome than before Sallie Mae came on the scene.

How To Qualify

To qualify for a loan under the Guaranteed Student Loan Program, you must meet these basic qalifications:

—You must be attending at least half-time — that is, you must be carrying at least half the normal number of credits if attending a traditional college or university.

—The school or college must be recognized and accredited. This does not restrict eligibility to the traditional four-year college. All types of trade schools, from hair-dressing to truck driving, and correspondence schools may be eligible.

—You must be a student "in good standing."

If both you and the school of your choice meet these basic requirements, then contact the lending officer at your local bank, and ask if it makes student loans. If the answer is No, ask if he can suggest another source, for some bank in your community probably will be prepared to make such loans.

An application for the loan can also be obtained from your school or from regional offices of the U.S. Office of Education. The school at which you are enrolled will complete the section of the form that will certify your enrollment, costs, and academic standing. Another section of the form is to be filled in by both student and parent. Forms are then forwarded to the lender for processing.

Within a month or two, depending on the load of paper work being processed by both school and bank, the loan should be forthcoming.

Good Terms

The conditions of the loans are just about unbeatable these days. If your family has an adjusted income of less than $15,000, you are eligible to apply for a government subsidy of the interest on your loan while you are in college; otherwise you must yourself pay the interest. In any case, interest cannot exceed 7 per cent, and you don't have to begin repayment until six to nine months after completion of the course, or graduation.

You may take up to 15 years to repay the loan, and you may pay up the entire amount at any time without penalty.

Repayment may be deferred for up to three years while you are a member of the Armed Forces, a full-time volunteer in the Peace Corps or VISTA, or for any period during which you return to a full-time course of study at an eligible school.

Limits on the loans are also generous. A student can borrow up to $2,500 each academic year up to a miximum of $10,000 extending through graduate school.

First Lady Of Colorado Is Former TV Broadcaster

DENVER, (WNS) — Two years ago, Denver television personality Merrie Lynn visited the Colorado Governor's Mansion for a documentary TV show. This month, she's moving in—as Colorado's new First Lady, Mrs. John Vanderhoof.

"I never had an inkling in 1971 that someday I would live at the mansion," says Mrs. Vanderhoof. "But I'm glad I did that documentary. By the time we finished filming I really knew the historical significance of the place."

Romance, and a resignation, put Colorado's best-known female broadcaster in her new position. Merrie Lynn, a slim blonde of 43, met Lt. Gov. John Vanderhoof, 51, at a party last year and invited him to appear on her KOA-TV show, "Today in Colorado." Commentary led to courtship, and they were married on Feb. 21, 1973.

Five months later, Colorado Gov. John A. Love was appointed the nation's energy czar. Love resigned, and Vanderhoof took the oath as governor on July 16, 1973.

Better Known

Some politicians joked that it was the first time Colorado ever had a First Lady better known to the public than her husband. Mrs. Vanderhoof not only had her own TV show, but was featured in innumerable commercials, one of which, showing her extrolling the virtues of a health spa with a Mr. America type, was still showing when she became the governor's lady.

Although thousands of people know Mrs. Vanderhoof as Merrie Lynn, very few have any idea of her real name and background.

She's a Denver native who began her broadcasting career while a journalism student at the University of Denver. For many years, she was commentator "Kay Howe" for radio station KHOW. When she joined KOA in 1964, she again took a studio name—"Merrie Lynn." But in private life she was Mary Junkin, the divorced mother of two children and one of the most tireless volunteer workers for worthy causes in Denver.

GOV. AND MRS. JOHN VANDERHOOF

Former Banker

Gov. Vanderhoof, although well known in western Republican circles, is not immediately recognized on the street, like his wife. He is a Glenwood Springs, Colo., banker who began his political career after serving with distinction as a Navy fighter pilot during World War II.

"Johnny Van," as he's usually called, was first elected to the Colorado House of Representatives at age 27, served as House speaker for six years, and was elected lieutenant governor in 1970. He too is divorced and the father of two children.

The Vanderhoofs didn't move into the governor's mansion immediately because it took some weeks for the Loves to find a new home in Washington. Mrs. Vanderhoof took advantage of the delay to arrange a leave of absence from her broadcasting cuties.

"Colorado deserves a full-time first lady," she says. But she admits she's sorry to end her career, even temporarily. In May of 1972, a few months before she met Vanderhoof, she was appointed manager of community affairs for KOA; the Denver station is one of the 65 General Electric stations in the nation, and Mrs. Vanderhoof was the only woman executive in the whole chain.

Man's World

"It's hard to give up 20 years of pioneering in a man's field," she says. "I didn't miss a day of broadcasting even when my daughter was born. We hooked the broadcast phone into the hospital room."

But she doesn't mind the feminine role she will play as Colorado's First Lady. She says:

"I never missed a school play, field day or any event of significance in my children's lives, either."

Outdoors Used To Motivate Problem Kids

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer

MOREHEAD, Ky. (AP) — Like thousands of kids, Terry and Fawn went to camp this summer. They went on hikes, slept in tents, swam in a lake and cooked hot dogs over an open fire.

But their summer camp was far more than just fun. It was a tiny step on the road back to the mental health they lost somewhere along the way in their young lives.

"We use the outdoors as a motivating factor," said Heide Miller, director of Camp Greenbrier, where two dozen children with learning problems — some mentally retarded — spend a month each summer.

Terry is 7 years old, slight of build and red haired. He's had trouble coordinating his body, spills almost everything he handles. His attitude toward life turned negative and he developed a violent temper.

Fawn is 10. A brutal childhood left her withdrawn, afraid of the world and the people in it, mentally several years behind her age and irritable to those around her.

"To be honest, we can't accomplish a great deal in just four weeks, but it is a start in the right direction," Ron Ward, a staff member at the camp, said.

"Just last night, Fawn volunteered to one of the counselors that she had been in a fight. It was the first time she acknowledged that she recognized a problem in herself and that's progress," Ward said.

The camp is operated by the Dale H. Farabee school of Lexington as a part of the state's mental health program, and is meant to serve as a model for others in the future.

Basically, its program forces the children to set goals for themselves and to achieve them. Each evening, the children meet around a campfire to talk over how well they've done — or how poorly.

"They help to plan the program with the counselors," Miss Miller said. "For example, they help make up the food orders and learn that if you don't do it correctly, you don't get the food you want."

The campers are divided into four groups, each operating as a completely separate unit. Three are all boys, one is for the girls.

Each child is given chores to do and failure to get them done is reflected in the loss of whatever the group is trying to accomplish. If the fire isn't started, you can't cook, so there's no meal.

Couple Weds In Noon Ceremony

BETHEL — Miss Charlotte Llewellyn Latham and David Charles Miller were united in marriage at noon in the Bethel United Methodist Church Saturday. The Rev. Ellis Jennings Bedsworth, pastor of the church, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cleophas Latham of Bethel. Mr. Miller is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Miller of Greensboro and Southern Pines.

Mrs. Robert Harold Staton, organist, of Bethel and Miss Doris Ann Perry and Carl Stam of Greensboro presented the wedding music.

The vows were spoken before a background of magnolia interspersed with Oriental bamboo. Antique wicker baskets containing large arrangements of magnolia were on either side of the chancel. The windows of the sanctuary were decorated with southern smilax and magnolia and the pews were marked with similar greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of Magnolia Gros Point de Venise lace over silk organza. Designed and was made by Thaia Davis of Beaufort, the dress was styled with an empire waist featuring a portrait neckline edged with scalloped lace motifs. The long sleeves ended in lace scallops and were closed with lace covered buttons as was the back of the waist. The A-line skirt was edged with lace designs similar to those at the neckline.

A cathedral length veil of ivory English net fell from a Camelot headpiece of lace motifs re-embroidered with pearls and crystals and it extended into a wide border of Gros Point de Venise lace. Designs of lace re-embroidered with pearls and brilliants were scattered as accents over the lower portion of the train. The bride's flowers were a colonial bouquet of yellow roses and baby's breath interspersed with stephanotis.

Mrs. William Carson Latham of Thomasville, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Marsha Patti Miller of Greensboro, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth Earle King of Wilson, Miss Jean Huske Dodd of Nashville, Tenn., Mrs. Robert Cowley Young, Jr., Miss Margaret Elizabeth Blount, Miss Carolina Grace Speir and Miss Kathryn Andrews, all of Bethel.

They wore gowns of Oscar De La Renta design of primrose yellow chiffon bodices over faille, fashioned with deep V-necklines bordered with wide ruffles and long sleeves gathered into cuffs. The full skirts were of silk moire taffeta imprinted with colorful bouquets of fall flowers. Moss green velvet encircled the waists and extended down the backs of the skirts. They wore primrose yellow garden hats banded with green velvet and their bouquets were of green cymbidium orchids centered with yellow fujii mums, with backgrounds of acuba leaves and yellow streamers.

Martha Whitehurst Everett, cousin of the bride, of Baltimore, Md., was flower girl. Her dress was of primrose chiffon over faille and was similar in design to those of the bridesmaids. Her headpiece was of green velvet trimmed with miniature fall flowers. She carried a basket of yellow rose petals.

Honorary bridesmaids were Miss Bobbie Allen Weeks of Bethel, Miss Lilian Duer James of Hamlet, Miss Margaret Elizabeth Wellons of Smithfield, Mrs. Douglas Hendon Clark Jr. of Chapel Hill, Mrs. Carlos Arturo Arensberg of Raleigh, and Mrs. Thomas Alton Ridditt Jr. and Mrs. Charles Wallace Warrington III of Tarboro. They carried single long-stemmed fujii mums tied with yellow ribbon.

Mrs. Latham, mother of the bride, wore a long dress of Venetian green chiffon fashioned along princess lines with a capelet bertha collar. Her accessories were of corresponding color and her corsage was a yellow cymbidium orchid.

The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a long formal gown of turquoise organza over tafetta styled with an empire waist featuring a beaded entwined neckline. Her accessories were corresponding in color and her flower was a yellow orchid.

Mr. Miller served as best man for his son. Groomsmen were Melvin Clanton Miller and Timothy Edward Miller, brothers of the bridegroom, of Greensboro, Dr. Walter Bryan Latham of Miami, Fla., and Dr. Harry Staton Latham of Burlington, brothers of the bride, Charles Gunter Caldwell, Richard Marion Pattison and Joseph Lindsay Cook, all of Chapel Hill.

William Carson Latham Jr. and Walter Dean Latham, nephews of the bride, of Thomasville, were junior groomsmen.

Mrs. Robert Joseph Whitehurst of Bethel directed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Saint Mary's Preparatory and College Departments. She is a 1973 graduate of the Univesity of North Carolina at Chapel Hill where she was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. She made her debut at the Terpsichorean Club Ball, Raleigh, in 1970.

The bridegroom attended Florida Southern College, Lakeland, Fla. He is presently employed by The Hub Limited, Chapel Hill, where he will attend the university in the fall.

After a wedding trip to Pawley's Island and Charleston, S.C. the couple will be at home in Chapel Hill. For traveling the bride wore a sand beige pants outfit coordinated with brown accessories.

Immediately following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a luncheon buffet at the church.

Pre-nuptial events honoring the couple included:

On Saturday immediately after the luncheon buffet at the church, Dr. Bryan Latham of Miami, and Dr. and Mrs. Harry Latham of Burlington entertained at an informal "going way" party in honor of the newly-wed couple at the home of their parents. Guests were members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

On Saturday morning Dr. and Mrs. William Carson Latham of Thomasville hosted a breakfast for the wedding party and out-of-town guests at the Bethel Squire.

Friday evening, following the rehearsal, the parents of the bridegroom and friends of the bride's family entertained at a champagne supper at the Greenville Golf and County Club.

Anyone who has attended Munich's famed Oktoberfest in Germany has surely brought back a fest souvenir—most likely a big grey stein marked with a blue HB.

As the symbol of a good time, the stein commemorates a unique celebration in Germany and this celebration will be duplicated in some measure in Charlotte Oct. 6-13.

Known as the Expo Living Iktoberfest, the Charlotte celebration marks the first public event in the Civic Center. The official memento of the event is a stein embossed with the five-color logo of the Expo Living Oktoberfest.

The logo is a Bavarian family, colorfully attired, almost Caricature style, raising their hands and eyes in obvious delight anticipating the German foods, drink and entertainment so much a part of an Iktoberfest.

The Charlotte event is being sponsored by the Central Charlotte Association.

Chapter Holds Publicity Night

He spoke on the importance of good publicity and how to get it done. He also explained the five Ws—when, what, where, why and how.

Senior Regent Dorothy Anderson presided at the enrollment of new members including Mrs. Nancy Lancaster, Mrs. Jeanne Gouras, Mrs. Dorothy Brock, Mrs. Martha Jackson, Mrs. Giner Barber, Mrs. Linda Croom and Mrs. Pattie Williams.

Junior Regent Peggy Jamieson reminded the coworkers to bring items for the flea market, which will be held Sept. 22, as soon as possible.

Junior Graduate Regent Betty Diehl announced that the chapter would receive the award of achievement for the past year. All officers were asked to attend the executive meeting Sept. 16 in Rocky Mount. Past Deputy Grand Regent Bobbie Brunson will be in charge.

A social hour followed the meeting.

Thousands of youngsters still take their lunch to school in spite of the fact that these days the noon meal is frequently available in school lunchrooms. And one of the foods often included in both lunch boxes and lunchroom meals is peanut butter. That's because not only is peanut butter a favorite of children, but because mothers and school lunchroom supervisors know it offers important nutrients.

If you're the sort of mother who on occasion enjoys adding a special treat to a lunchbox, you'll be interested in this brand-new and delightful recipe for Marbled Peanut Butter Brownies. When we tried these bar cookies on our niece and nephew (eight and thirteen years old) they gobbled them up.

MARBLED PEANUT BUTTER BROWNIES

2-3rds cup unsifted flour, stir to aerate before measuring ½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup creamy peanut butter
¼ cup butter or margarine
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 squares (each 1 ounce) semi-sweet chocolate

Grease bottom and sides of a square cake pan (8 by 8 by 2 inches).

On wax paper, thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder and salt.

In medium bowl of electric mixer, beat together the peanut butter and butter. Gradually beat in brown sugar. Add eggs and vanilla; beat until blended. Stir in flour mixture. Turn into prepared pan; spread evenly with spatula.

In a small saucepan over very low heat melt chocolate, stirring constantly. Drizzle melted chocolate from tip of spoon over top of batter. With a knife, swirl chocolate deep into batter to give a marbled effect.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 30 minutes. Cool in pan on wire rack. Cut into squares. Store in tightly covered tin box.

NOTE: One-half cup semi-sweet chocoalte pieces may be substituted for the semi-sweet chocolate squares. The pieces do not set up as quickly as the squares; if necessary, refrigerate the cooled brownies long enough to set the chocolate.

Manucurist Finds Cure For Hair

Manicurist Finds

HAMBURG, West Germany (WNS) — Helga Boehm, 72, was ready for retirement as a manicurist when long hair for young people came into fashion. Now she is making more money than ever teaching youngsters how to make their hair grow longer. Her receipe for her youth: "never dry wet hair with a drier; wrap a towel around your head until the hair is almost dry. When brushing hair, start at the ends. Don't plough the brush down from the hair, which breaks the roots. Trim hair once a month. Don't use the same shampoo more than four times in a row. Be patient; it may take five years to have waist-length hair."

Boy Friend Passes Mother's Test

FRANKFURT, West Germany (WNS) — All her life Erika Schoenbauer had been told by her mother that the first test in selecting a boy friend is, "Would I bring him home and introduce him to Mum?" So it was not surprising when the coed brought home her affectionate classmate, Kurt Roehm. "The surprise came when my mother, a divorcee, eloped with Kurt," said Erika. "I guess he passed the test."

Vegetables Traded For Dress Shops

PARIS, France (WNS) — What ever happened to the butter-and-egg shops, the fruit-and-vegetable stores and the cafe-bistros that surrounded Les Halles, the great wholesale markets in the center of Paris that were torn down and moved to the suburbs? They are thriving better than ever as new ready-to-wear headquarters of ladies dress designers.

Sarah Shelburne an American, runs the most successful at 10 Ruesde Cygne and designs even the fabrics with her French husband. Gavy and Colette, a brother-and-sister team, feature 1930 gowns that grandma used to wear at Mauve, the former dairy at 3 Rue des Pecheurs (Fishermen's Street). Famed model Daphne has converted the fish store at 4 Rue de la Cossonnerie into smart headquarters for blouses which she always dreamed of wearing and finally had to design herself.

Lady Makes Show For Dogs

BRISTOL, England (WNS — The local TV station claimed to have programs to appeal to every member of the family but a lady named Mij Evans proved the station wrong. "There are no show for dogs," she said, "and my boxer Benjy likes to watch TV, especially if it is about other animals." Now Miss Evans has been hired to present 20-minute programs called "Animal Fountain" that will be run by dogs. The master of ceremonies will be Benjy, the boxer.

Abby's Anniversary Tribute

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I shall never forget hearing you speak before the Independent Life Insurance Company's convention in New Orleans. When you read that beautiful tribute to your husband, which you published in your column on your 25th wedding anniversary, we ladies and gentlemen in your audience counted our blessings as you counted yours.

After your talk, I asked you how I could get a copy of that tribute, and you told me to write to you and you'd send it to me.

Instead of doing that, I'm asking you to please print it in your column again, so all your readers can read it, and have a copy, too. We loved you!

JEANNE GREGORY, JACKSONVILLE, FLA.

DEAR JEANNE: Flattery will get you everywhere. Here it is:

"Today is a very special day for me. It's my 25th wedding anniversary, and I have this to say: I had a mother and father who really loved each other, so I know what love is.

I have worked hard to see two teen-agers safely thru their traumatic teens, so I know what satisfaction is.

I have prayed. And my prayers have been answered, so I know what faith is.

I have had by my side, the kindest, gentlest, most considerate human being I've ever known, so I know what happiness is.

And because I've known all these things. . . . I know what wealth is." MRS. MORTON PHILLIPS

DEAR ABBY: My mother in law, who is a widow, has two children, my husband and his sister. Mom travels a lot, and she always brings home souvenirs for my sister in law and me.

Here's the problem: Mom always gives my sister in law and me identical gifts, and consequently my home is full of the same objects as my sister in law's.

Mom is going on another trip soon, and I know she'll be shopping for gifts for us, and I hate the thought of getting another one of those "twin gifts."

Should I drop a hint before Mom leaves and hope she catches on? Or should I be quiet, and pretend I'm pleased when she gives me and my sister in law identical gifts again? NAMELESS, PLEASE

DEAR NAMELESS: The poor mother in law just can't win. In order to show no favoritism between her daughter and her daughter in law she buys you identical gifts, and what does she get? Complaints! Don't "hint" for something "different," because no matter what you get, you'll probably think your sister in law's is better.

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old son got his 15-year-old girl friend pregnant. My son and the girl's parents want me to give my consent for these two kids to marry. I just can't do it because I would feel like I was ruining three lives.

The kids are nowhere near mature enough for marriage, neither are they financially able to care for themselves, let alone a baby.

Do you know of anyone I can get to talk to the girl's parents? Abortion or adoption would be much better for everybody. Please help me. CAN'T SLEEP NIGHTS

DEAR CAN'T: Perhaps your clergyman can talk to the girl's parents. Your local Planned Parenthood also offers free counseling service. They will NOT try to persuade anyone who does not want an abortion to have one. They simply counsel, and will guide them in adoption procedures if that is their choice. Good luck.

The alligator miniature, a famous symbol of one fashion house, now is given a new treatment. The firm of David Crystal says that henceforth the tiny 'gator' on the left of the bodice either can be "peeled" off or fused permanently on with a hot iron.

The Greenville Branch of the American Association of University Women announces the unifying theme for its programs this year as "Balancing Tensions, Values and Growth".

Four program topics related to this theme are directed by local members. They are Mrs. Louis H. Zincone — "Global Interdependence: Budgeting for Earth"; Mrs. Benjamin F. Lewis — "Media: Issues in Communications"; Miss Nancy Williams Lewis — "Woman: Searching for Self"; and Mrs. Austin Perry — "Dynamic Learning: Releasing Human Potential".

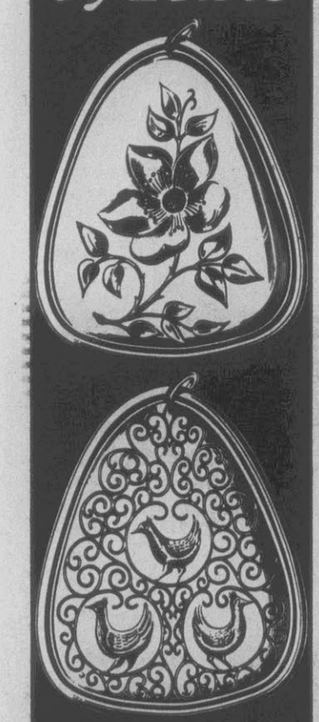

Richard E. Padgett, ECU School of Allied Health and Social Professions, will be the featured speaker Monday at 8 p.m. at the Developmental Evaluation Clinic. His topic will be "Man and His Environment". The meeting is open to the public.

Since the September meeting is also traditionally a meeting devoted to new and prospective members, the local branch urges all interested women to attend or contact Membership Chairman, Mrs. C.R. Kernan Jr., 758-1584.

Half -A-Wash Makes Business

HAARLEM, Netherlands (WNS) — Six teen girls were unhappy with the dirty automobiles parked in their clean city. Their cure: they washed half a car, waited for the owner to return and offered to finish the job free if the owner promised to clean his car every week this summer. "Most owners hired us to give their automobiles regular washings," said Beppy de Drie. "Now we're in business.

Glen Campbell Special

"The Very First Glen Campbell TV Special" is not your basic sort of video musical comedy romp for a number of reasons, all of which can be summed up in the single word "entertainment."

If ever there was to be an uncomplicated hour with a paucity of everything most television specials have come to be. . . . this is it.

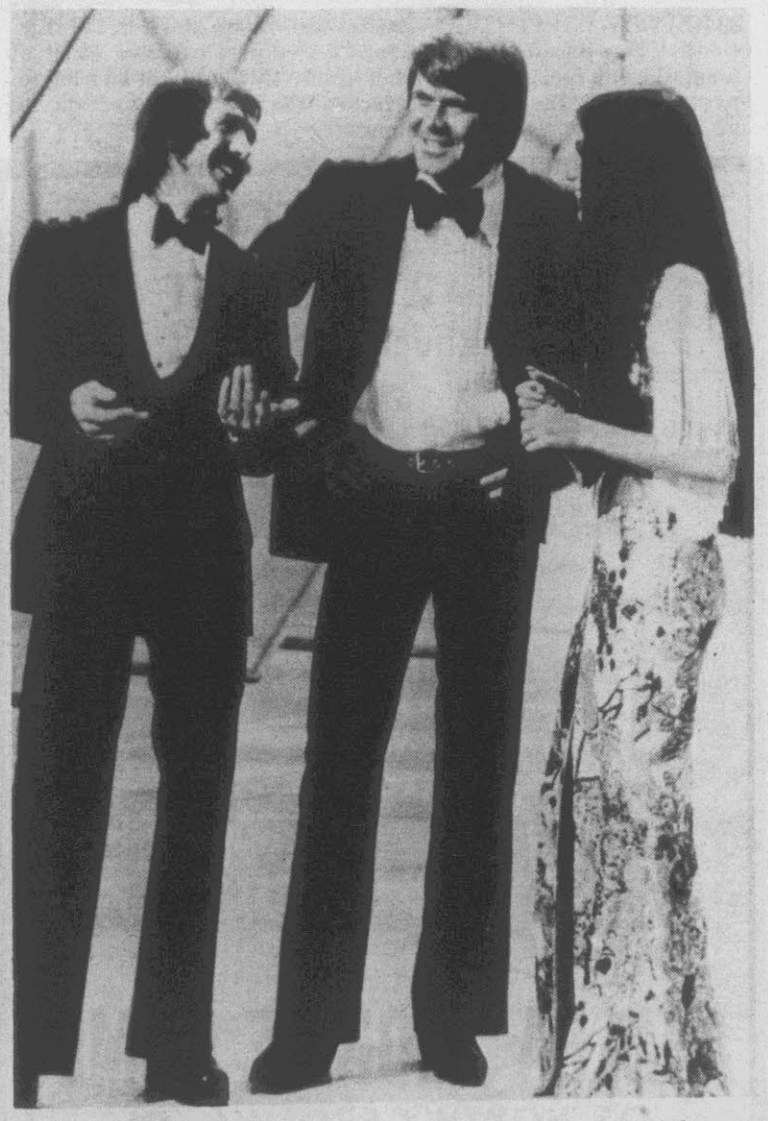

Airing September 16th, 8:30-9:30 p.m. on Channel 6-7, "TV-FGCTS: is well-laced with guest stars such as Burt Reynolds, The Smothers Brothers and Sonny & Cher. Producers Dwight Hemion and Gary Smith have seen to it that there is ample music and slick laugh material but here the simularity to any other musical-comedy presentation ends.

There are no corps of boy and girl dancers nor do Campbell's guests make a pretense of having just strolled out of the wings for a "surprise" meeting of talents. All in all, they each simply do what they do best and the end result is 60-minutes of fast-paced fun.

For the videophile, there is also a bit of brain-boggling coincidence which Glen and his guests poke fun at in the opening moments of the production. At one time or another Campbell was a summer replacement for The Smothers Brothers. . . . Sonny & Cher a replacement for Campbell, in turn, a replacement for another mid-season drop-out. Burt Reynolds, of course, has also chalked up a couple of replacement notices, therefore, the gaggle of celebrities has every right to crack a few jokes about their circuitous paths to stardom.

Mixing and matching the musical and comedy sequences, Hemion and Smith primarily direct musical duties to Glen Campbell and Sonny & Cher for solos, and medleys both individually and as a threesome. The Smothers Brothers take a short turn with Gilbert and Sullivan's "Wandering Minstrel" as a prelude to their comedy spot and Burt Reynolds plays it safe with a few yodels of "Cattle Call" by way of a lead in to the instrumental "Dueling Banjos," which takes on an interesting apsect as he explains how the number came to be part of the movie "Deliverance."

Comedy sequences feature Sonny & Cher's stand up humor and Burt Reynolds teams with The Smothers Brothers to portray a businessman - swimmer who arrives in New York for his firm's annual convention. Campbell takes up his guitar to musically set the scenes for the Babbit's on-the-town adventures in Gotham.

FIRST SPECIAL — Sonny & Cher are among the special guest stars who turn up on NBC-TV Sunday evening, Sept. 16, when Chevrolet presents "The Very First Glen Campbell TV Special," 8:30-9:30 p.m. on Channel 6-7.

Ebsen Is History Buff

When Buddy Ebsen isn't acting, he is either sailing, building or marketing racing catamarans, or he is raising horses, or he is immersed in history.

History, Ebsen says, is a special interest of his, with particular emphasis on Scotland and the American Civil War. In fact, history absorbs much of his thought between assignments on "Barnaby Jones," detective drama series seen Sundays (9:30-10:30 p.m.) on the CBS Television Network, as the second half of "The Mystery Double Feature: Mannix-Barnaby Jones." Mike Connors stars as "Mannix" on the first half (8:30-9:30 p.m.).

Ebsen's research into the Civil War led to his writing of the play "Champagne General," based on President Lincoln's problems with Gen. George McClellan, recently staged in California.

Ebsen's fascination with Scottish history began when he vacationed in Scotland one summer with his family. "The more I traveled around Scotland, and the more I learned about its marvelous past," he says, "the more I wanted to know."

So, Ebsen began collecting books on Scottish history. "I try to buy books from estates that might have rare editions not in general circulation," he notes.

Ebsen admits he has strayed recently from Scottish and Civil War history. He is now reading the new English edition of the Bible, which he finds to be a marvelous historical document.

"It's also great inspiration for a writer," Ebsen adds. "All the great plots of literature are right there."

Markham Debuts As Perry Mason

Monte Markham debuts as Erle Stanley Gardner's famous fictional attorney Perry Mason this week on Channel 3N-9-11.

Markham was born in Manatee, Fla.

Education is a tradition in the Markham family. Although interrupted by appearances in Shakespearean productions and a stint as a Coast Guard officer, Markham managed to return to his alma mater, the University of Georgia, to earn his master's degree. He made his television debut in a two-part "Mission: Impossible" episode. He then starred in two television comedy series "The Second Hundred Years" and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town." His motion picture credits include "One is a Lonely Number."

This summer, Markham co-starred on Broadway With Debbie Reynolds in the musical "Irene."

Markham admits that when he was first approached to portray Perry Mason, he was not interested. It was only after the producers explained the new directions the new series would take, that Markham became excited about playing the famous fictional attorney.

Monte is a rugged, active man who relaxes when he can by racing cars, motorcycles and hydro planes. He also water skiies and rides horses.

Although the series is set in Los Angeles, some episodes will take place in other cities and locales. One such episode involves a court martial, to be filmed at the Camp Pendleton Marine Base, in which Mason defends a highly decorated officer in a murder case.

Monte Markham says the only time he's ever been in court (as a private citizen) was for a small claims action and the decision was a "draw."

He feels that his formula for success in television is based on two things (1) Be Seen — (2) Be good, when you are seen.

Mark Markham. . .the new Perry Mason.

The premiere episode of the "New Perry Mason" finds Perry defending a distraught widow accused of murdering her astrologer husband, a conniving stargazer whose forecasts controlled the fortune of a cosmetics tycoon, in "The Case of the Horoscope Homicide."

Ruth Hussey, long a favorite of film audiences, guest stars in the episode as Corinnne Windsor, the wealthy head of a cosmetics business.

In the story, Mason as the first man on the scene of the crime, is forced by circumstances to become a witness for the prosecution's case against his own client.

Harry Guardino co-stars in the series as Mason's courtroom adversary, Hamilton Burger, the district attorney of Los Angeles, with Sharon Acker as Mason's secretary, Della Street, Albert Stratton as private detective Paul Drake, Dane Clark as Lt. Arthur Tragg of the Los Angeles homicide squad, and Brett Somers as Mason's receptionist, Gertrude Lade.

Northern Ireland Conflict Explored

The role of organized religion in ameliorating the conflict which has caused so much death and destruction in Northern Ireland, is the focus for a special hour-long "Directions" series presentation, "Of God and Irishmen", airing Sunday, September 16.

Guests for the special hour-long "Directions" series program are His Eminence, William Cardinal Conway, the Primate of all Ireland and leader of the more than 3 million Catholics who live in both the British Province of Northern Ireland and the Independent Irish Republic; The Right Reverend John O. Orr, Moderator of the Presbyterian General Assembly of Ireland, and His Grace, the Most Reverend George O. Sims, leader of the Church of Ireland. The Presbyterian Church and the Church of Ireland are, respectively, the largest and second largest Protestant denominations in the North and have followers in the predominantly - Catholic South as well. The three clergymen are the religious leaders of nine out of ten Irish men and women who profess to be Christians.

The following are some excerpted remarks by the three ranking Irish clerics on "Of God and Irishmen":

The religious leaders were in virtual unanimity that the civil strife is not principally motivated by religion.

Cardinal Conway: "This is emphatically not a reigious war. The basic issues are not religious, they are political and social... now, this is not to say that religion has nothing to do with. Obviously, it has; if people are killing each other, destruction is taking place, religion is vitally concerned,"

Rev. Orr: "I agree entirely with the Cardinal that basically it is not a religious conflict, and I agree in the main with his analysis of the situation, which has grown up historically over a long period of years leading to this conflict. But, it is most regrettable, I think, that it is the media who have been responsible for fitting this explanation onto it of what has been happening here...whenever there is an incident of terriorism or of violence of any kind, the media are always very careful to say, 'and he was a Catholic, the person that suffered'. Or, 'it was done by the Protestants', or 'a Protestant organization' or vice versa."

Rev. Sims: "In the old days, I am sure it was far more a religious war than it is at present... but, I believe in these days, you see, we mustn't think of 18th century labels — Catholic and Protestant — because there has been a wonderful change, I think, in the relationship between the Christian denominations. This is why we're here to begin with. And, this is part of our task."

'BAREFOOT EXECUTIVE'—Raffles the chimp stars in the title role of "The Barefoot Executive," a two-part comedy about a chimp who can successfully predict which TV pilots will be a hit, to be colorcast on "The Wonderful World of Disney" Sundays, Sept. 16 and 23 (7:30-8:30 p.m) on Channel 6-7.

PANELING

Decorating problems are not insoluble. By altering a room's color or lines, you can change its appearance completely. Paneling is one way to create a desired effect and so many people are turning to it for its special warmth and beauty. Color, width, pattern and method of installation make a number of variations possible. There are many varieties of wood to choose from, each having a different texture, grain, natural color or knot pattern.

Turn to us when you are planning new carpeting for your home or business. We have a very large selection and expert installation is assured. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

Devoted Family Men

On screen, they are Joe Mannix and Barnaby Jones, tough, singular men without wives or children to encumber their work as private detectives.

Off screen, they are respectivelv Mike Connors and Buddy Ebsen, the stars of "THE MYSTERY DOUBLE FEATURE: Mannix-Barnaby Jones," which premieres Sunday, Sept. 16 (8:30-10:30 p.m. on Channel 9-11. Unlike their alter egos, they are devoted family men.

The time required to make both hour-long series is long and arduous, and can easily drive a wedge between an actor and his family.

"You have to work very hard at being a husband and a father in this business," Connors says. "At the end of the day, when I get home, I'm talked out. Still, I have to take time to sit with my wife and kids and go over their day and tell them about mine."

Ebsen agrees. With three children still at home, including a teen-age son and daughter, Ebsen says he sees that on weekends he goes dune-buggy riding with his son Dusty, or watches his daughter Kiki in an equestrian competition.

A check with Connors and Ebsen on their weekends often produces identical activities — swimming, horseback riding, a family barbecue and, perhaps, a visit with friends.

IN TUNE — Steve Lawrence and wife Eydie Gorme join for a duet during one portion of their new special, "Steve and Eydie . . . On Stage," taped at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas. It will be colorcast on Sunday, Sept. 16 (9:30-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Receives Acting Lessons

After a long and distinguished career playing men on both sides of the law, Dane Clark says he got the acting lesson of his life when he went to the military prison at Ft. Leavenworth to direct a documentary.

Clark, who plays Lt. Tragg on "The New Perry Mason," Sundays (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11, refers to the attitude actors usually assume when portraying convicts.

"Most actors portray men in prison as sullen, sour and lethargic," he explains. "Yet, most of the men we talked with at Ft. Leavenworth were surprisingly upbeat. Of course, they were in a military prison seriously working toward their rehabilitation with training and education."

While Clark brought along actors to portray convicts in the film, he let them go before filming began because they couldn't discard their own preconceived notions.

"I found some young guys in the prison who were willing to take parts in the film, and they were wonderful," says Clark. "I just told them to be themselves, and they were."

Clark recalls one scene he was directing that took place outside a nondescript prison door. Since the location was presenting lighting problems, Clark asked if the door could be opened to overcome the difficulty.

Happiness Is Keeping Busy Schedule

Around Hollywood, John Davidson is known as one of the busiest, hardest-working talents in show business. One look at his schedule for the past few months shows how he has earned his reputation.

From early April until virtually up to the start of production on "The Girl With Something Extra", the new series in which he co-stars with Sally Field, John was bouncing around the country. He was making public appearances that would be reason for a less-enthusiastic performer to be pleading for a vacation instead of starting a 12-hour day, five-day week shooting schedule on a television series.

Those out-of-town dates weren't all whistle stops. Some of them were one or two-night concert dates but most were major multi-week nightclub or stage productions such as the lead in revivals of "Music Man" or "Oklahoma".

And in between these performances, often with only hours to spare, John would jet back to Los Angeles or wherever he was asked to appear for an appearance at a major press or promotion function in connection with "The Girl With Something Extra" (Fridays, 8:30-9 p.m.).

On one occasion, he finished a two-week production of "Oklahoma" with a matinee performance in Dallas, went immediately to the airport for a plane back to Los Angeles for an evening dinner function on behalf of an assemblage of some 60 television editors. Despite a sore throat, John gave the select audience a full 45 minutes of songs and chatter.

It was long after midnight, California time, that John finally made it home to his Hidden Hills ranch deep in the San Fernando Valley.

At 8:45 the next morning, he was at the Century Plaza hotel in Beverly Hills to begin a day-long series of press interviews.

He had to cut the day's last session short to catch a 5:30 p.m. flight out of Los Angeles to begin rehearsals the next day in Warren, Ohio, for his week-long starring role in "Music Man".

The 'Noose' Interrupted

During a scene for the "Eye of the Storm" episode of "Owen Marshall, Counselor at Law" series, guest star Eric Braden is accused of murder by Pat Harrington, playing the assistant district attorney.

As the scene progressed Braeden is backed into a corner with the evidence Harrington keeps throwing at him. Just as Harrington was about to deliver the final noose-tightening lines, a low flying plane buzzed the stage at Universal Studios, interrupting the scene.

Harrington, aware of Braeden's many TV and movie credits as a Nazi officer, looked up from his desk and quipped: "Just his luck. The Luftwaffe's here to rescue him!"

Asner Hooked On Comedy

After a lifetime of heavy dramatic roles, and only three seasons of comedy, Edward Asner is definitely hooked on comedy. Indeed, he could not care less if he never does another Shakespearean costume again.

The role of Lou Grant has become so natural for him that Asner hopes "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," stays forever.

During the hiatus of the series this year, Asner took another crack at drama, starring in a movie titled the "The Wrestler," with mixed emotions. "I kept waiting for the same feeling of satisfaction I get from playing Lou Grant," he recalls, "and it just didn't happen."

Gale Gordon Unlike Uncle Harry

Gale Gordon, who has mastered the blustery, pompous characterization better than almost any other performer in television, is, in person, poles apart from the Uncle Harry role he plays on "Here's Lucy."

The strident, Uncle Harry voice becomes soft and subdued when he speaks off-camera. And his manner is the exact opposite of the overbearing foil he becomes for series star Lucille Ball's humor.

Jets Vs Green Bay On "Monday Night Football"

MOST FAMOUS — Probably, the most famous No. 12 in quarterback history, Joe Namath gets set to direct his New York Jets toward another touchdown drive. The Jets lineup against the imposing Green Bay Packers Monday, Sept. 17 (9 p.m. to Conclusion) on "NFL Monday Night Football." Channels 3W-5-12.

The New York Jets, headed by a healthy Joe Namath, travel west to meet the Green Bay Packers of the NFC Central Division during the fourth season premiere of the popular "NFL Monday Night Football," Sept. 17 (9 p.m. to conclusion).

Frank Gifford, Howard Cosell and Don Meredith will be in Milwaukee County Stadium to report on the play-by-play action as these two top teams do battle.

The "Pack," 11 times the National Football League champions, twice Super Bowl winners, and last year's Central Division champs, have in their backfield one of the most productive dashing duos of any team in the NFL. The star runners are 225-pound John Brockington, who was the first man in NFL history to gain over a 1,000 yards in each of his first two seasons; and 220 pound MacArthur Lane, who was named the team's most valuable player.

The "Pack" also has plenty of reserve backfield power in Don Highsmith, acquired in a preseason deal with Oakland, and Perry Williams, who averaged 4.2 yards per carry last season.

Although the "Pack" suffered in the passing category last season, after being led for 16 previous years by Bart Starr, quarterbacks Scott Hunter and Jerry Tagge have shown marked improvement this year. To make the race for starting honors even more interesting, the "Pack" has recently acquired quarterback Jim Del Gaizo, a left-hander from the Miami Dolphins. Del Gaizo was injured, and completed five of nine passes for two touchdowns with one interception. of nine passes for two touchdowns with one interception.

The Packers' defense was top ranked in the NFL last year and, so far this year, is repeating that performance with starters Willie Buchanon (LCB), Ken Ellis, (RCB), Al Matthews LS and Jim Hill (RS), who make sure their opposing offense plays a conservative game.

Last year's rookie kicker Chester Marcol, who had a field goal record of 33 for 48, strengthened one of the Packers' long-standing weaknesses, and appears to be in good form this year.

ATTACK! — Japanese pilot Lt. Cdr. Mitsuo Fuchida (Takahiro Tamura, top, front), leader of the air attack against Pearl Harbor, transmits the historic code words signifying the success of the surprise blow, in "Tora! Tora! Tora!", epic re-creation of the attack, to be seen for the first time on television on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, Sept. 21 (8:30-11:30 p.m.) in color on Channel 3N,9,11.

Rest Stop Becomes A Terrible Ordeal

A rest stop at a dingy roadside diner in the boiling desert becomes a terrifying ordeal for a woman when her husband mysteriously disappears in the washroom and her search for him is thwarted by two sinister men, in "Dying Room Only" on "Tuesday Movie of the Week," SEPT. 18 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Oscar and Emmy Award-winning actress Cloris Leachman stars with Ross Martin as guest star in the chilling 90-minute suspense drama. Co-starring are Ned Beatty, Dana Elcar, Louise Latham, Dabney Coleman and Ron Feinberg.

"Dying Room Only" opens with Jean Mitchell (Miss Leachman) and her husband, Bob (Coleman), driving home to Los Angeles from a vacation. They are hot, tired and crabby.

Stopping at a diner which, except for an old-fashioned cabin-style motel a few yards away, is the only structure in sight, they encounter a surly proprietor, Jim (Martin) and his equally threatening friend, Tom (Beatty).

Jean goes to the ladies room to freshen up. When she returns to their table, her husband is not there. She waits, assuming he is in the men's room. He does not return. Tom and Jim are surely, taunting her that Bob has taken off and left without her.

Rosemary's Baby For TV Viewing

"Rosemary's Baby," the blockbuster movie made from Ira Levin's terrifying tale of witches, Satanism and an innocent mother-to-be in modern Manhattan, will be broadcast for the first time as an ABC Special Movie Presentation, Saturday, Sept. 22 (8:30-11:10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Mia Farrow and John Cassavetes star as the young couple who move into the Bramford, a beautiful building with an ominous history.

Russell's Views On Acting

"I know it sounds a bit corny," says handsome actor Kurt Russell, "but I love acting. I feel anyone who is in this business and doesn't, is crazy."

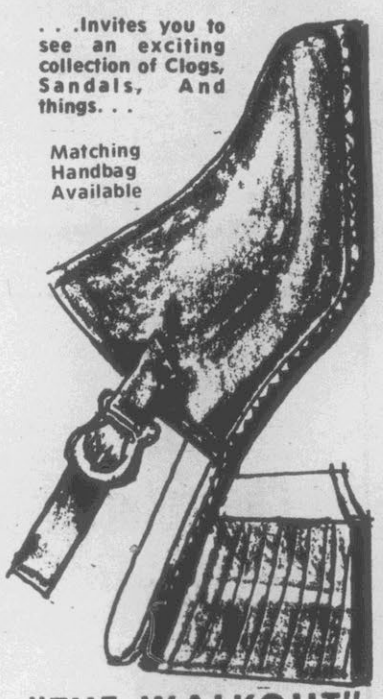

Russell, who stars as a TV network page that skyrockets to fame in "The Barefoot Executive," a first - run movie premiering the fall season for "The Wonderful World of Disney," Sunday evenings, Sept. 16 and 23, on Channel 6-7, has been acting since he was ten. His eleven years in film and TV work have honed the 21-year-old into a seasoned professional.

Always Scaling Heights

With her feet planted firmly in the sands of Pismo Beach, actress Estelle Parsons still managed to keep her head in the clouds, both personally and professionally.

Miss Parsons co-stars with Dennis Weaver in "Terror on the Beach," a suspense thriller filmed on location in the sand dunes of California's central coast for presentation on "The New CBS Tuesday Night Movies" Tuesday, Sept. 18 (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

While her fellow actors were collecting sore muscles from trudging up and down through the soft, shifting sand, Miss Parsons remained serene and ache-free and even took off for some extra hiking across the spectacular dunes that rise wave-on-wave between the Pacific beach and the foothills to the east.

The actress, it seems, is a mountain climber by avocation, so she was in good training for the location outing. An active member of the Appalachian Mountain Club, the native New Englander has scaled minor peaks in the U.S., France and Italy.

She calls mountain climbing "the great leveler," rather ironically. "People who climb for pleasure are a group apart," she says. "Nobody knows, or cares, what his fellow climbers do for a living, whether they are famous, rich or poor. He only cares if they're good climbers."

"Egan", Detective Drama

"Egan", a half-hour drama special based on the exploits of the famous policeman, Eddie "Popeye" Egan, as seen in the Academy Award-winning motion picture, "The French Connection", airs on Tuesday, September 18 (8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

In the special, Eddie Egan, a former New York City detective now working for the Los Angeles Police Department, spots Ida Deveaux, bag woman for syndicate gambling interests, at the Los Angeles airport. After she successfully eludes him, Egan checks with a Las Vegas contact and learns that she is on the lam from the syndicate with a fortune in stolen bonds.

Uncomfortable With Fame

Better than most actresses, Helen Hayes knows the price of fame.

For one thing, she has been famous longer than most of them. She has been a star for 50 of her 65 years on the stage.

Long recognized as the "first lady of the American theater," she has won just about every acting award and has had a Broadway theater named in her honor.

"I never knew how to do it well — to be famous," says Miss Hayes, who will co-star this fall with Mildred Natwick in "The Snoop Sisters" segments of "NBC Tuesday Mystery Movie" (8:30-10 p.m.).

She admits that as a child she had occasional daydreams about what fame would be like.

Tennis Battle Of All Times

Billie Jean King versus Bobby Riggs — the tennis battle of all time — will be televised live on Thursday night, September 20.

The telecast will originate from the Astrodome in Houston, Texas, in prime time (8-10 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Ms. King, age 29, is the world's top woman tennis player and, in the recent pressure-packed Wimbledon's Tennis Championship, won three major titles.

Her opponent, Mr. Riggs, is 55, and is the world's top "tennis hustler." Riggs recently defeated Margaret Court in a winner-take-all match and has loudly forecast a similar victory over Ms. King.

Riggs and Ms. King will play a best three of five sets. The winner will take home $100,000, the loser nothing.

Riggs, who calls this match "Lobber vs Libber," has won titles at Wimbledon once, Forest Hills twice, and the World Professional Championship for times. He often talks of Ms. King's "Big overhead and bigger mouth."

Outcasts Are His Specialty

The time was ripe — Depression America, riddled with frustrations. . . anxieties about where the next meal was coming from. . . . fears. The time was ripe for the growth of an outrageous pair of criminals. The real Bonnie Parker and Clyde Barrow, a desperate duo of social outcasts, are the meat of the matter for "Bonnie and Clyde" director Arthur Penn, whose specialty is the man left outside.

"Bonnie and Clyde," a shattering tale of the notorious Barrow gang, their brief rise to public attention and their violent end, will be presented on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, Sept. 20 (9-11:15 p.m.), in color on Channel 9-11. Faye Dunaway and Warren Beatty star, along with Estelle Parsons, who won an Oscar for her supporting role.

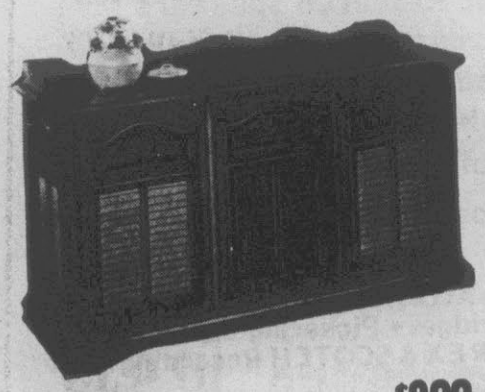

"I would say that the only people who really interest me are the outcasts from society," Penn said as explanation for his choice of the Barrow gang. "The people who are not outcasts — either psychologically, emotionally, or physically — seem to me good material for selling breakfast food, but they're not material for films.

Rock Group On 'Go' Show

The popular rock recording group, the Raspberries, is visited by the "GO" show as they make a new recording, Saturday, Sept. 22 (12:30-1 p.m.) on Channel 6-7. The telecast shows the four musician-singers as they recorded "Tonight," a number included in their new album titled "Fresh Raspberries."

"GO" and its cameras and sound equipment watched as the recording session proceeded from the rough "demo" record stage. The show watches the procedures through the eyes of the record's producer Jimmy Ienner as the group lays vocal and instrumental tracks, through the mix of 16 different sound tracks for the final product.

Ienner has produced 26 records for a number of groups that have made the hit charts in the past two years. The Raspberries had been in existence for a number of years without a hit, until Ienner took charge of their recordings. During the show the Raspberries will be heard in their gold record hit "Go All the Way" and their other hits "I Wanna Be With You" and "Let's Pretend."

Professional Football Season Set

How do you watch a football game on television?

Whatever your style, chances are you can double your viewing pleasure. Al DeRogatis is convinced you can. DeRogatis is a former National Football League star, coach and now the premier analyst of NFL games starting Sunday, Sept. 16 at 1 p.m.

DeRogatis, who analyzes the play-by-play action as called by Curt Cowdy, says there is much which the average fan at home misses.

"Too many fans follow the ball to the exclusion of everything else," DeRogatis said.

Basically, DeRogatis offers a three-point formula as the key to better viewing.

1. "Concentrate on defensive football . . . That tells you what the offense will try to do."
2. "Look at the dominant figures of offense . . . the pulling guards and the tight end."
3. "Think along with the quarterback. The game is situational. It's a game of field position, downs and time."

Playing quarterback in front of your set is a great jumping off place for keener viewing. And seated in an armchair, who cares what the critics think?

Understand at the outset that defenses are designed to take away the sting of offense and conversely, offenses are designed to exploit weaknesses of the defense.

And now, let's play quarterback.

The opposition is using a strict zone defense. That means the threat of the long pass has been diluted, but the short pass is a good bet. The percentage of pulling off a long, explosive run is taken away, too, but the short running game ought to work.

"Another excellent source of increased TV viewing pleasure is getting into the habit of looking at the people who make the play work, or who really stop a play from working," said DeRogatis.

"On offense, pulling guards are so important," DeRogatis explained. "Bob Keuchenberg and Larry Little of the Miami Dolphins are so quick that often their speed in getting to the outside is really what makes the play a ground-gainer.

"Get in the habit of appreciating the fine points of the game without getting yourself all tangled up in a lot of complicated technicalities.

Hints On Football Viewing

NBC will open its professional football season Sunday, September 16, with six regional games, four of which will start at 1 p.m.

This opening salvo of games, among 90 National Football League contests to be aired this season, will be highlighted by three Inter-Conference games. One of these will involve the Washington Redskins, last year's National Conference champions. The 'Skins, prime favorites to repeat their winning ways of a year ago, will engage the ABC's San Diego Chargers at 1 p.m.

Other games slated for 1 p.m. are the Baltimore Colts at Cleveland Browns; Buffalo Bills at New England Patriots, and an Inter-Conference scuffle between the Houston Oilers and New York Giants in Yankee Stadium.

At 2 p.m., a third Inter-Conference fray pits the AFC's Oakland Raiders against the Minnesota Vikings at Bloomington, Minn.

The only game scheduled for 4 p.m. brings together the Cincinnati Bengals and Denver Broncos in Denver's Mile High Stadium.

During the course of the season, NBC-TV, primarily the carrier of American Conference games, will air a schedule spotlighting the Miami Dolphins, Super Bowl winners last January. In fact, an AFC team has won the Super Bowl four of the last five years: The New York Jets (1969); Kansas City Chiefs (1970); Balitmore Colts (1971) and Dolphins (1973). The only break in this heady string of successes was written into the record by the Dallas Cowboys who won for the NFC in 1972.

The Dolphins, who will be seen in Sunday, September 23, against the Oakland Raiders, will start the season with an 18-game winning streak, a record shared with the 1933-34 and 1941-42 Chicago Bears. But the main event for Dolphin fans will occur Thanksgiving Day at 3:30 p.m. when the champions take on the Cowboys in Dallas.

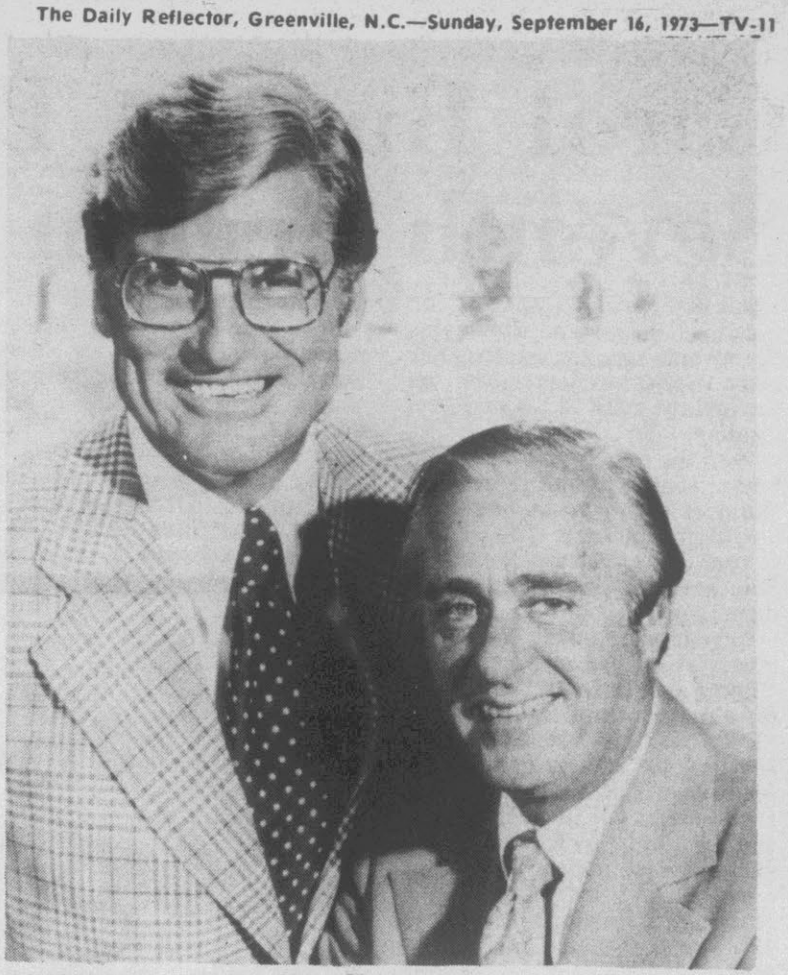

There are two Saturday afternoon games on this year's TV agenda. They pair the Kansas City Chiefs and the Oakland Raiders, December 8, at 4 p.m. and the Pittsburg Steelers and San Francisco 49ers, December 15 at 4 p.m.

On the way to the Pro Bowl and the end of the season, Sunday, January 20, in Kansas City, the divisional playoffs on Saturday and Sunday, December 22 and 23, will be telecast. The AFC championship game is scheduled for Sunday, December 30.

Receives Greeting

Irish actress Fionnuala Flanagan received an interesting greeting from Elena Verdugo when the former reported for her guest starring role in "A Joyful Song" episode of "Marcus Welby, M.D.".

Introduced to Fionnuala, Elena wryly quipped: "Our producer, David O'Connell, told me that we would have Fionnuala in our next episode. I thought it was a new disease of the arm bone." Ironically, Fionnuala in Gaelic means "pretty shoulders".

TEAMED AGAIN FOR FOOTBALL — The Los Angeles Coliseum provides a back-drop for Al DeRogatis (1.) and Curt Gowdy, who will appear on camera once more for the colorcasts of the NFL grid games starting Sunday, Sept. 16 (1 p.m. to conclusion). DeRogatis, a former NFL star and coach, is the top grid analyst on TV. The award-winning Gowdy describes the action for the football games (as well as baseball, basketball and the other major competitions covered by NBC Sports).

Carol Burnett Begins Seventh Season On TV

Variety is still the spice of life for Carol Burnett as she begins the seventh straight season of her own musical-variety show on Saturdays (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

With the singing, clowning and hectic scheduling of guest stars she does each year on her show, one might think she'd be content to rest on her laurels. Not at all. She accepts challenges in all directions.

A year ago, during the hiatus from taping her own season of "The Carol Burnett Show," she did a movie with Walter Matthau, "Pete 'n' Tillie," receiving rave reviews for her dramatic performance. This year during her facation she got Rock Hudson to juggle his own television schedule to appear with her onstage in "I Do! I Do!" at the Huntington Hartford Theater in Hollywood. Again, Miss Burnett was a critical success, as was Hudson, and they broke the box-office record for that theater.

It is television, however, that has first claim on Miss Burnett's talents, and which endears her to millions of viewers. Moreover, the variety format seems to be the perfect showcase for her, having been a shining light in the CBS eye for the past 15 years. Her performances as a "second banana" on "The Garry Moore Show" introduced her to the mass audience, brought her many awards and laid the foundation for the stardom she has since achieved with her own series and television specials.

Remarkably candid, Miss Burnett offers two reasons for preferring the variety format: "I'm still star-struck, just like a kid in a candy store, with guest stars; and the hours are much saner than working in a nightclub or being in a long run on Broadway, or making nothing but pictures. With this television schedule, I get to see my kids off to school every m rning before I go to the studio, and I'm nearly always home by the time they have their dinner."

Being the star of a variety series is great fun for Miss Burnett, but also a big responsibility. Why is she still so enthusiastic, after six seasons? She says, simply, "I love to work."

"My humor is more physical than intellectual," she notes, "and sometimes that's unfortunate, because I have a tendency to be accident - prone, but I love it. Oh, I admit there are times when I wish I could do a more sophisticated, satirical type of comedy, but it's just not for me. I guess I'm a throwback to the old pratfall school of comedy. I should have lived when there was vaudeville, because that's what I feel most comfortable doing."

Gardenia Hides Stage Fright Well

Veteran actor Vincent Gardenia feels that one of the hardest things about acting is hiding his nervousness whenever he performs before an audience.

Although he has been performing since age five, he still suffers from stage fright.

Consequently, he has his work cut out for him this season, since he must face a studio audience once each week in his role as Archie Bunker's new neighbor on "All in the Family."

Gardenia has no pat formula for overcoming his tense condition on stage, only to keep his mind occupied with other thoughts and his person busy before going on.

As soon as he gets over the initial impact of facing the audience, however, all his fears disappear

Saturday Night At The Movies

Paul Newman and Oscar winner George Kennedy star in "Cool Hand Luke," the sage of a cool-headed chain-gang prisoner determined to resist the establishment, to be colorcast as the season premiere of "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies" Sept. 22 (9-11:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

J. D. Cannon and Jo Van Fleet also co-star. Kennedy received the Best Supporting Actor Academy Award for his performance.

Luke Jackson (Newman) is sentenced to two years on a hard-working chain gang after a drunken spree in a southern city. Among his fellow prisoners are Dragline (Kennedy), Society Red (Cannon), Koko (Lou Antonio), Blind Dick (Richard Davalos) and Bablugats (Dennis Hopper).

Luke's cool, independent manner is at once obvious to the camp's brutal administrators as well as to Dragline, who reacts unfavorably to the new prisoner.

Tensions between Luke and Dragline erupt in a fight, and when Luke is badly beaten but refuses to quit, leadership of the chain gang passes to him.

FOR CHET HUNTLEY

A New York TV newsman has said that you debased the profession when, after retiring, you returned to do commercials for an airline. He said that TV newsmen who do this "prove that their honesty and fairness is only a game and that they can be bought." Any comment?—Robert Jackson, Teaneck, N.J.

● I have neither the time nor the inclination to descend into a slinging match with newsman Gabe Pressman, whose intemperate remarks must have been induced by something in the nature of a bad case of the hives. Gabe is obviously unaware that journalism is only one of the somewhat limited band of frequencies in the whole spectrum of communications. I simply decided that I would like to step out of the journalistic band and explore some of the others. I have found it interesting and worthwhile. Also, I am exploring the credibility and communication gap between journalism and American business. There is a problem there. I suspect that there are some sins of omission and commission on both sides. I may write a short book on the subject, and I think Gabe should be the first to receive a preview copy.

FOR PETULA CLARK

Your husband is French, you're English, and you live in Switzerland. What language do your children speak?—M. Maas, Nyack, N.Y.

● French and English. At home we speak mostly French, which is beginning to give me a little problem with English!

FOR MUHAMMAD ALI

Last winter I heard you address some students at a small teachers college in upstate New York. Later I heard you received a fee of $1,500. Why do you spend time on what for you are such small deals?—Dave Mallory, Jamestown, N.Y.

● Two reasons. I like to talk to young people. Also, I like to see out-of-the-way places in this country.

FOR LEE MERIWETHER, costar of "Barnaby Jones"

As a former "Miss America," how do you feel about "Women's Lib"?—V. N., Glendale, Calif.

● I believe in the basic tenets of Women's Lib—equal job opportunities, equal pay for equal jobs. But now that feminists have made society aware of women and their rights, I think it's time to strive for "Lib" objectives in more ladylike ways.

FOR MICHAEL LEARNED of "The Waltons"

Is it true that in real life you are single? If so, isn't it tough for you to play the role of Mrs. Olivia Walton, mother of seven children?—Ellen Rice, Navarre, Ohio

● I am divorced, but I don't find it difficult to play a loving mother, since I am the loving mother of three children in private life.

FOR DENNIS HOPPER, starring in "Kid Blue"

I understand you've given up living in Hollywood completely, and intend to stay in New Mexico. Why?—R. Knowlton, St. Louis, Mo.

● When I was making "Easy Rider," we locationed in New Mexico for two weeks and I fell in love with the country and the adobe-Spanish architecture. I promised myself that if I could ever afford it, I'd go back. So here I am. I've lived in Taos for about five years now. And I hate to leave. I don't miss Hollywood at all.

FOR JIM McKAY, sportscaster

What is the toughest sport for a sportscaster to handle? The easiest?—Charles Little, Lancaster, Pa.

● For me, the toughest is auto racing. The easiest is golf.

FOR LESLIE UGGAMS

Is it true you're part Cherokee?—M. A. L., Pleasantville, N.Y.

● I'm part Negro, part Scottish, part Irish, part Cherokee and part Seminole.

FOR RODDY McDOWALL, starring in "Battle for the Planet of the Apes"

Are you an English citizen, or an American?—J. Pratt, Medford, Mass.

● I came here when I was 12, and I have been an American citizen since I was 21. There was a six-month period when I had the choice between English citizenship and American citizenship. I chose American citizenship.

FOR SEN. EDMUND S. MUSKIE (D-Maine), chairman of the Senate subcommittee on Health Care of the Elderly

Both my wife and I retired recently and we find we can barely afford the medicine we need. Is that unusual?—P. S. T., Stockton, Calif.

● Prescriptions are the largest health-care expenditure the aged must meet from their own resources. Drug costs for persons 65 and over are about three times as great as for younger Americans. And for elderly persons with severe chronic conditions, prescription expenses are about six times as great. No, I'm afraid it's not unusual.

IN THIS GRIND-EM-OUT WORLD, IS THERE SUCH A THING AS A QUALITY CIGARETTE?

If the cigarette is Kent there is.

Kent is probably the most quality-tested cigarette made.

We try to get rid of any taste-robbing imperfections before a Kent ever sees the light of a match. (Over 200 different quality checks in the manufacturing end, alone.)

But Kent quality goes beyond that.

We go to 3 continents, 4 countries and 10 states to find the right kind of tobaccos for the milder Kent blend.

To complement this blend, we even invented our own filter, the famous Micronite filter—to smooth the flavor of Kent.

Why are we such sticklers about how Kent is made?

Because, that way we can give you the mild, smooth taste that makes Kent what it is: America's quality cigarette.

In its June 24, 1973, issue, FAMILY WEEKLY asked you, our readers, for your opinions on the timely issues that face our country. Some 60,000 of you responded! While these results are being tabulated, we thought you might like to compare your answers with those of the editors and executives of the 288 newspapers in which FAMILY WEEKLY appears, and who were polled separately on the same questions.

The voices of America's opinion makers have a message for the nation—and a call for change, a recognition of change, is part of that message. But it is a very carefully controlled and moderated kind of change they are talking about.

One of the strongest sounds these voices make is the call for freedom—with responsibility.

Perhaps it will be surprising to some that newspapermen don't think they have all the answers—and they are as divided as other Americans on the answers to difficult social problems. But they aren't fixed or frozen in the ideas of past decades, either. And if Alexis de Tocqueville, the Frenchman who came to this country 142 years ago to see how America worked, were to tread across the continent again, he might come to the same conclusions he came to then:

"If any congressman cares to help financially pinched Americans, he might note that 60 percent of these opinion makers say that the dollars spent sending sons and daughters to college should be tax exempt!"

"They all consider society as a body in a state of improvement, humanity as a changing scene, in which nothing is, or ought to be, permanent; and they admit that what appears to them today to be good, may be superseded by something better tomorrow."

What do the opinion leaders of our newspapers—288 strong—think about the issues troubling the nation?

FAMILY WEEKLY decided the way to find out was to ask. We sent questionnaires asking for opinions on our changing society, national and foreign affairs, health and medicine, and the media. These questions went to 625 publishers, editors and general managers of FAMILY WEEKLY's 288 influential daily newspapers. The men and women who responded comprise a group from 48 states: from Key West, Fla., to Bellingham, Wash.; from Bangor, Maine, to San Diego County, Fla. They're a unique group, trained not only to voice their opinions to the public, but to listen.

They can be "conservative": 80 percent rejected the idea that the so-called free life-style could produce a better quality of morality in America.

They may be "liberal"—nearly two-thirds thought that the U.S. should reestablish normal diplomatic relations with Cuba.

They have our traditional faith in our youth. Most of the men and women of the press said that young people entering their own business today are better equipped than old-timers.

They are at home with newer ideas: Most said a woman executive can manage a staff of men and women as well as a man.

And there's a certain hope that the old institutions will survive: 53 percent thought that marriage as an institution would not become less important in future years, but one-third thought it would. The remainder weren't sure.

The newspapermen overwhelmingly picked inflation as the major problem before the nation—and they overwhelmingly supported more stringent government efforts to curb pollution of our land and water and air.

And they can be just as divided as any group in the nation on difficult questions—such as gun control and compulsory health insurance. Forty-nine percent of those responding to the FAMILY WEEKLY survey felt tough gun control was needed—but 44 percent said no. There were 43 percent who said no to compulsory health insurance, while 42 percent said yes.

But the theme that keeps reappearing in the answers is the call for freedom, always allied with responsibility.

Timely Issues:

How Newspaper Editors and Executives See Our Changing World

By the Editors of Family Weekly

Even when they speak of their own business of journalism, this twin theme sounds strongly.

These people of the newspaper world, for example, seem to feel overwhelmingly that freedom of the press is endangered by some Nixon Administration policies and practices. At the same time they are evenly split on whether they and their reporters should receive "unqualified legal immunity from revealing news sources." They are strongly opposed to monitors or censors for the media.

Concern over individual freedom comes out again: Three-fourths believe that the privacy of the individual today is unduly threatened by the expanding accumulation of personal data through government dossiers, credit-bureau files, and other computerized information storage.

Even on the most sensitive moral issues, the individual's right to choose is paramount: 51 percent said a doctor should have the option of ending the life of an incurable patient—but only by that patient's own decision. Only 16 percent thought the doctor alone should make this decision.

And the strong demand for responsibility is unmistakable in these answers:

- Nearly four-fifths believe the Federal Government should NOT guarantee a college education to youngsters.
- 93 percent opposed compulsory voting for the Presidency.
- A majority didn't accept the idea of free and easy credit as economically healthy, and three-fourths didn't like the idea of a shortened work week.

In the strongest reaction to any question, 94 percent voted against a grant of unconditional amnesty to draft evaders living abroad. But when the options were changed, 57 percent approved the granting of conditional amnesty "providing they perform some sort of compensatory government service." Only 27 percent opposed this conditional amnesty.

The drug culture has invaded their cities, but the opinion makers apparently would not be stampeded into harsh remedies; nearly three-fourths felt a marijuana user should NOT be criminally punished for a first offense. Only 28 percent felt drug pushers should be given the death sentence.

Inflation, they said, is the nation's most serious problem. Two-thirds believed President Nixon was particularly successful in international affairs. But only 16 percent, a distinct minority, thought he was particularly successful in dealing with domestic economics.

And if any congressman cares to help financially pinched Americans, he might note that 60 percent of these opinion makers say that the dollars spent sending sons and daughters to college should be tax exempt!

What does America face abroad? Most picked the Middle East as the most sensitive trouble spot for our country in the next five years. Yet the editors and publishers aren't thoroughly convinced America is moving in the right direction there. Fifty-one percent said they agree with American policy in the Middle East—and only 15 percent disagreed—but a third of those responding said they weren't sure or just didn't know enough to answer.

If anything, the FAMILY WEEKLY survey showed that these men and women of the press are still concerned about their freedom and about their duty, about the changes that are coming. The late Adlai Stevenson once said:

"When an American says that he loves his country, he means not only that he loves the New England hills, the prairies glistening in the sun, the wide and rising plains, the great mountains, and the sea. He means that he loves an inner air, an inner light in which freedom lives and in which a man can draw the breath of self-respect."

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Much Do Your Fears Influence You?

TRUE OR FALSE: People who have the most to live for have the greatest fear of dying. (See number 5)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Your reaction to a threatening social situation reveals a lot about your personality.

2. A fearful, anxiety-ridden person splurges on life insurance.

3. If you fear the opposite sex, there isn't much you can do about it.

4. Fear makes every ache or pain hurt more than it otherwise would.

5. People who have the most to live for have the greatest fear of dying.

6. If you're afraid of things that pose no actual threat to your safety or well-being, you're neurotic.

ANSWERS

1. True. Psychologists at a leading university made a study of two types of people: those who reacted to threatening social situations with fear and anxiety, and those who took such confrontations in their stride and were not intimidated. People in the first category fell into two types: The over-excitable type, who speak and work rapidly and make many errors; and the inhibited type, who tend to freeze up under a threatening situation and become passive and slow-moving, as though their faculties were partially paralyzed. On the other hand, those people who were not intimidated shared these characteristics: They were not impulsive, but given to acting thoughtfully and deliberately. They were more tenacious, more goal-oriented, and more persevering in overcoming obstacles. They were also more vigorous and less subject to depression and fatigue than those in the first group.

2. False—according to a recent University of California study which showed that fearful, anxious people tended to have a slightly adverse attitude toward purchasing life insurance. By way of explanation, it's suggested that the higher-anxiety individual is reluctant to talk about, think about, or even admit to himself that he is fearful.

3. False. Studies have demonstrated that fear of the opposite sex increases when members of the opposite sex are avoided, and decreases when an individual forces himself to socialize with members of the opposite sex. The effectiveness of this remedy (psychologists term it "desensitization") has been demonstrated by university studies which show that fear of the opposite sex can be resolved in a remarkably short time if, instead of avoiding socializing with mixed company, a person will make a point of cultivating it.

4. True. Psychological studies that examined the influence of various emotional states on pain, by using a special device to measure pain thresholds, have shown that fear lowers your pain threshold appreciably, making every type of pain—headache, stomachache, toothache, backache, etc.—hurt far more than it would otherwise.

5. False. Studies conducted at two leading universities have shown that people whose lives are the most rewarding, "who reported a high purpose and meaning in their life, tended to fear death less and to have a positive and accepting attitude toward it."

6. False. As a leading British psychiatrist observes in summing up the findings of wide-scale studies in a treatise on "Fears and Phobias": Most people have fears of one kind or another that, unless they approach the proportions of a full-blown phobia, are perfectly normal. These may include "mild fears of heights, elevators, darkness, airplanes, spiders, mice, snakes, and taking examinations, as well as superstitions such as fears of houses said to be haunted by ghosts, of walking under ladders, and similar taboos."

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

But I didn't start making big money until I did less—a lot less.

For example, this ad took about 2 hours to write. With a little luck, it should earn me 50, maybe a hundred thousand dollars.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more.

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you the world's most unusual guarantee?

And here it is: I won't even cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material.

That'll give you plenty of time to get it, look it over, try it out.

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

And I'm already going to give you the biggest bargain of your life.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K.—now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary—to prove that sending me the 10 dollars... which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied... is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $100,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid if off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it—cash.

I have 2 boats and a Cadillac. All paid for.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

And I'll show you just how I did it—the Lazy Man's Way—a secret that I've shared with just a few friends 'til now.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that—nothing more, nothing less— the results will be hard to believe. Remember—I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again—I guarantee it.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and an 8-cent stamp. But what if I'm right?

Joe, you may be full of beans, but what have I got to lose? Send me the Lazy Man's Way to Riches. But don't deposit my check or money order for 31 days after it's in the mail.

If I return your material – for any reason – within that time, return my uncashed check or money order to me. On that basis, here's my ten dollars.

Eileen Fulton: "I Love Cooking Chicken for Danny"

"I'm sentimental about food," says Eileen, who plays Lisa in CBS-TV's "As the World Turns."

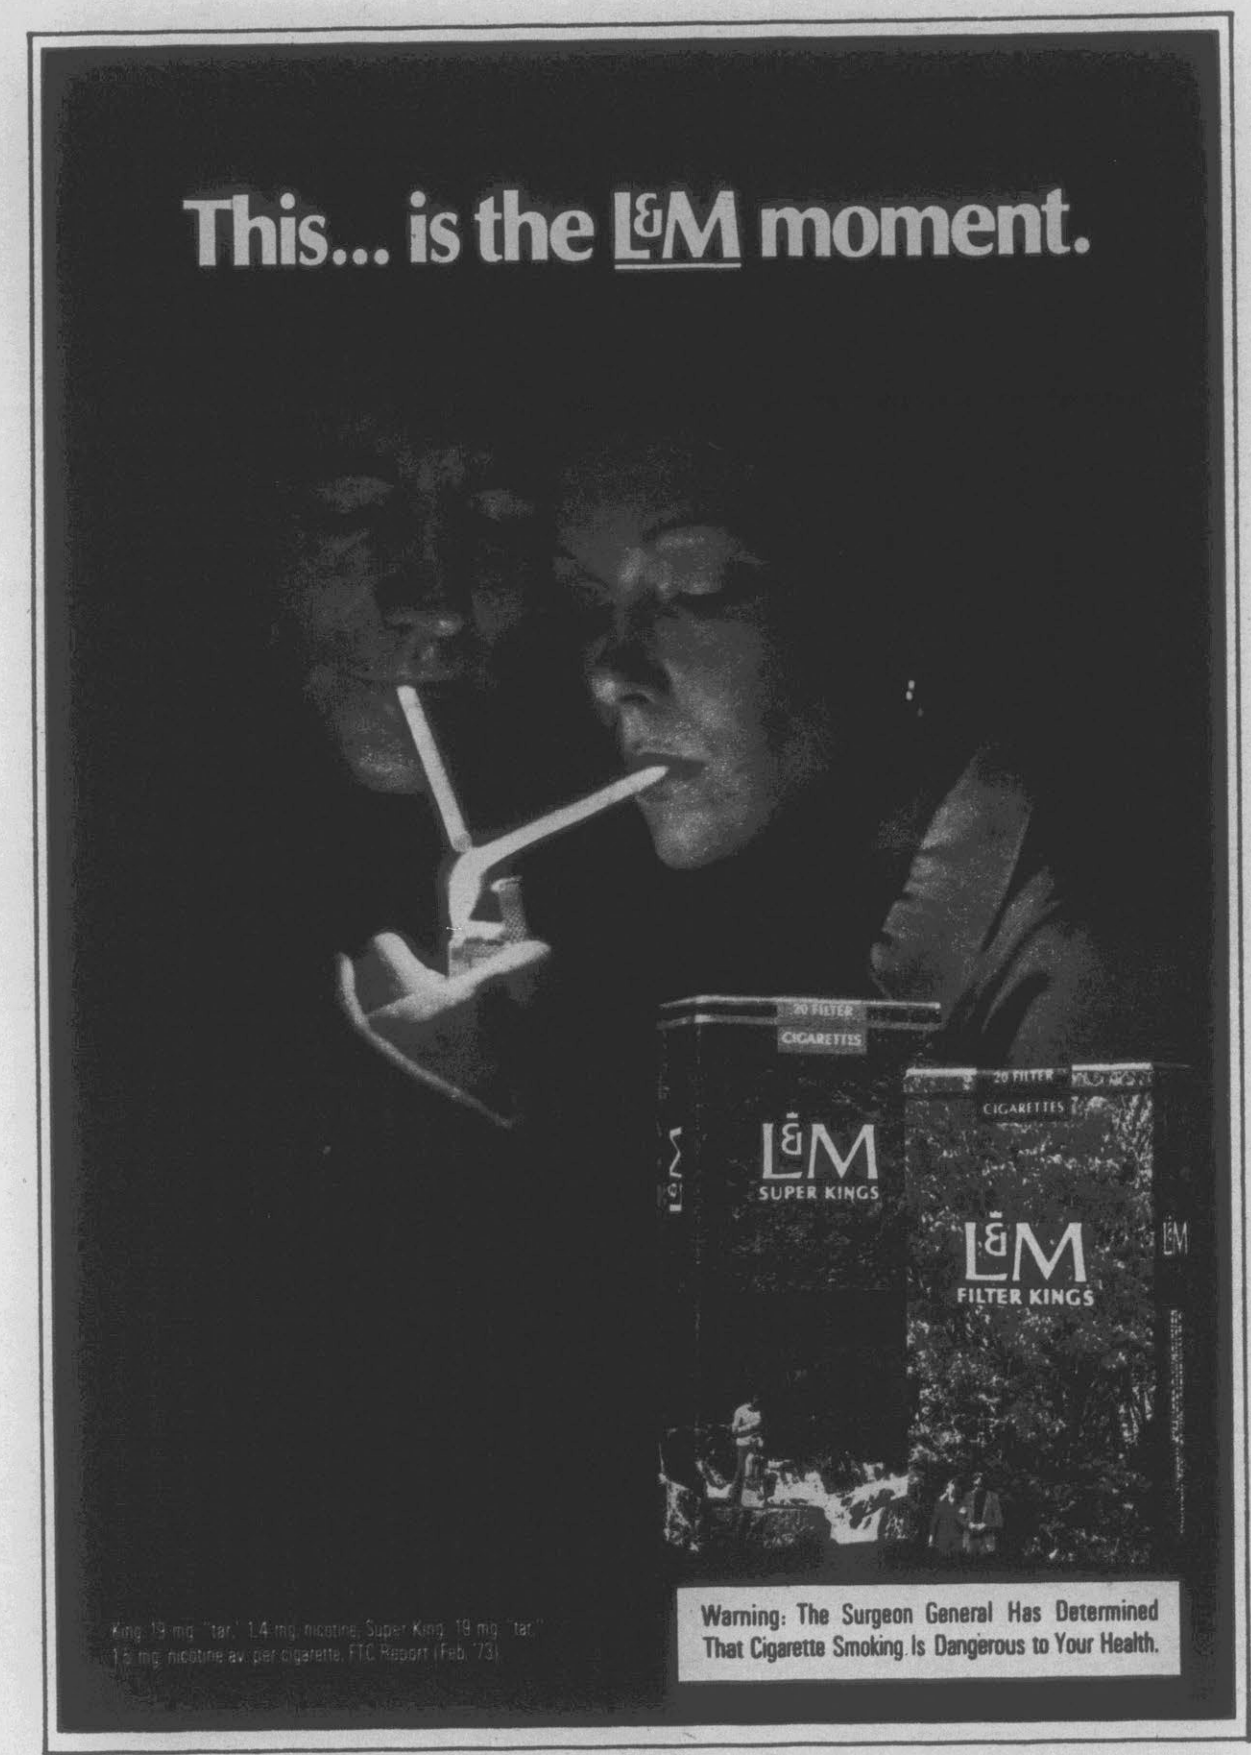

By Eileen Fulton
In conversation with Helen Dorsey

"Actually, it's kind of a Chinese-Italian dish made with Parmesan cheese, water chestnuts and slivered almonds."

I'm sentimental, especially about anything that has to do with my husband [Danny Fortunato] and "our" music. Music brings back memories of restaurants where we both have been, particularly a small Italian restaurant called Santa Lucia, located on Manhattan's West Side. It's no longer in existence, unfortunately.

I'm sentimental about food, too. I love to eat and cook, especially since I've found so many different tastes. For instance, herbs are a delight to toss into a crisp green salad, and it's fun to see what a splash of wine can do to a sauce to get a special flavor.

I'm particularly fond of preparing chicken because there are so many ways to make it. One of my favorite recipes is Chicken and Almonds. Actually, it's kind of a Chinese-Italian dish made with Parmesan cheese, water chestnuts and slivered almonds. Danny is Italian, and his mother is such a fantastic cook—particularly her wonderful homemade pasta.

EILEEN'S LEMON CHICKEN

1 broiler-fryer chicken, about 3 lbs., cut into serving pieces, skinned
3 tablespoons margarine
2 cups water or chicken stock
¾ teaspoon dried tarragon
Pinch thyme
6 peppercorns, bruised
Piece of carrot or parsnip
Small bay leaf
1 tablespoon flour
1½ cups strained chicken stock
1 egg
½ cup buttermilk
1½ teaspoons fresh lemon juice
½ teaspoon finely grated lemon rind
Salt
White pepper
Minced fresh parsley
Hot cooked rice

1. Brown chicken on both sides in 2 tablespoons margarine.

2. Place chicken in saucepan with water, tarragon, thyme, peppercorns, carrot and bay leaf. Bring to boil. Cover; simmer until chicken is tender, about 30 minutes. Strain chicken, place in heated serving dish. Reserve chicken stock.

3. Meanwhile, prepare lemon sauce: Melt remaining margarine in skillet. Blend in flour. Stir in chicken stock gradually. Cook and stir constantly until mixture comes to boil.

4. In bowl, beat egg, buttermilk, lemon juice and lemon rind until well-blended. Gradually stir into chicken-stock mixture.

5. Cook, stirring constantly, over low heat, until thoroughly heated and slightly thickened. Add salt and white pepper to taste.

6. Spoon portion of sauce over chicken in serving dish. Garnish with minced parsley. Serve remainder of lemon sauce spooned over hot cooked rice.

Makes 3-4 servings

EILEEN'S CHICKEN AND ALMONDS

1 cleaned broiler-fryer chicken, 2½-3 lbs.
Salt
Freshly ground pepper
¼ cup butter
1 clove garlic, pressed, or garlic flakes
2 tablespoons minced onion
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 tablespoon flour
1½ cups chicken stock
2 tablespoons sherry
1½ teaspoons dried tarragon leaves
2 tablespoons slivered almonds (oven-browned or lightly sautéed in butter until golden)
½ can water chestnuts (5 ozs.), drained, cut in several pieces
¾ cup sour cream
2-3 tablespoons freshly grated Parmesan cheese

1. Cut chicken into serving pieces. Skin with a sharp knife (skin may be left on if desired).

2. Season chicken liberally with salt and freshly ground pepper. Melt butter in skillet; brown chicken on all sides. Remove chicken; set aside.

3. Add garlic, onion, tomato paste and flour to pan drippings, blending with a wire whisk. Add chicken stock, sherry, tarragon, almonds and water chestnuts. Stir.

4. Add chicken. Cover, cook over medium heat 30 minutes, or until chicken is tender. Remove chicken and arrange in bottom of a shallow baking dish.

5. Cook and stir sauce over medium heat to reduce volume slightly. Stir in sour cream. Do not boil or sauce will curdle. Taste to correct seasonings.

6. Spoon sauce over chicken. Top with grated Parmesan cheese. Run under hot broiler until golden. Serve at once.

Makes 3-4 servings

"When we found out what AARP does for people over 55, my wife didn't mind telling her age."

"After a friend of ours told us about the American Association of Retired Persons, I said to my wife, 'Irma, Everybody's having fun but us. Lots of people out there are having a marvelous time and we're sitting home counting the years.' So I picked myself right up and filled out an AARP coupon just like the one on this page. I want to tell you it was the best thing we ever did."

Irma and Peter McNulty

WHAT'S AARP?

AARP is the American Association of Retired Persons or as we like to think of ourselves—The new social security. Nonprofit. Non-partisan. Anybody who's over 55 can belong. And all it costs to be a member is $2 a year. Which is almost like buying a whole new life for a few cents a week. You can stay home and enjoy it. You can be rich. Poor. Healthy. Not so healthy. It's probably one of the few organizations in the world that demands so little of you, but has so much to give. Simply because its one purpose is to help you continue to feel vital, important and involved in every part of life.

WHAT YOU GET

To begin with, you can continue your education. You can fill your leisure time with hundreds of new meaningful activities. At home. Or outside. You can get help in finding part-time work. Be assured of reasonable prices on medicines, travel, on many of the necessities of life including health insurance. You can meet new people. Make your voice heard in government. You'll receive two fine publications written just for you. In other words, you're going to have fun again and find that life is more than just a way to pass time.

DON'T STOP LEARNING

AARP's Institute of Lifetime Learning offers a full program of education courses in music appreciation, psychology, creative writing, literature, government, and a variety of other subjects. There are home study courses or you can attend lectures at regional centers around the country.

BE REPRESENTED IN GOVERNMENT

AARP's legislative program represents you in your state legislature and Congress. Its 33-point program is a Bill of Rights to all older persons retired or not. We let you know what's happening. So that you can know about all of the legislation put through on your behalf.

FEEL BETTER WITH HEALTH INSURANCE

Medicare doesn't cover everything. So one of AARP's most important services is eligibility for special supplementary Group Health Insurance Plans. They help you to pay for the best medical and surgical treatment, and include a unique Nursing Home and Home-Nursing Care Plan. You'll feel better just having this kind of protection.

PHARMACY SERVICE

Because of the buying power represented by over 5 million AARP members, AARP makes it possible for you to get over-the-counter and prescription medicine and supplies at realistic prices and have them delivered to your home, postage paid.

GO PLACES

Where would you like to travel? Around the world? Across the country? AARP's travel service can help you do it. You can participate in our quality tours at all-inclusive prices. And you'll be fully escorted by AARP's special tour directors. The world is there. All you have to do is go into it.

FEEL LIKE WORKING?

Just because you're retired doesn't mean you can't work. Mature Temps, an AARP recommended service, can help you supplement your retirement income with part-time or temporary employment. There are offices in a number of major metropolitan areas across the country. Just call. Their service is free.

PARTICIPATE IN CHAPTER ACTIVITIES

Chances are there's an AARP Chapter near you. (There are 1300 of them around the United States). If you'd like to go to a meeting and find out about the inside workings of AARP, just come on over. It's a great way to make our association grow stronger and a fine opportunity for you to meet dozens of vital people your own age.

WANT TO GET INVOLVED?

At Local Chapters you'll have the opportunity to find out about community services in which you can lend a helping hand. You can learn more about the Defensive Driving Courses, the Consumer Information Desk or participate in the Tax Aide Program.

NEED ADVICE?

AARP provides its members with a series of booklets that guide retired people through areas of particular concern. They cover everything from how to get personal help, to health advice, moving, diet, and all the little problems that trouble you from time to time.

WORRIED ABOUT AUTO INSURANCE*?

If you're an AARP member, you will receive information about how you may be able to actually save money on your auto insurance with a policy that has guaranteed renewable and limited-cancellation features.

LIKE TO READ?

When you join AARP you automatically receive subscriptions to AARP's official publications, Modern Maturity and the AARP News Bulletin, two publications filled with news and features of special interest to you.

Your annual membership dues of $2 help cover the cost of these publications, which means for as long as you're a member of AARP your magazines will keep coming.

There's so much more to AARP than we have room to tell you here. And really, the best way to find out is to join. The coupon below will enroll you so that you can take advantage of all the AARP benefits and services. There's only one requirement. You have to be 55 or over. We don't think you'll mind telling us if you are.

*Available in all states except Massachusetts.

James Garner: "When I Get Mad, Hold on to Your Hat!"

"When I'm home, I simply don't want to be found. And believe me, if I don't want to be found—no one can get hold of me!"

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Jim Garner, whose most recent film is "One Little Indian," for Walt Disney Studios, has always been one of Hollywood's more elusive actors. This tall, good-looking, amiable actor is usually reluctant to talk about himself. However, when I interviewed Jim on location, in the plush surroundings of his portable dressing room, he answered all my questions readily.

Pictorial Parade

"Privacy is important to me," says Garner. So is his wife Lois.

FAMILY WEEKLY: Why do we see so little about you in print?

JIM: I get bored talking about myself and I can't understand why anyone would want an opinion from me. When I did my first TV series at Warner Bros., I had an interview every day during the lunch break and then another one when I got back on the set. It got so fan magazines were my pet peeve in the whole world. Publicity really bugged me. For a year or so I did nothing but talk about myself—at work, at home, at play. I was fed up! Oddly enough, it also acted as therapy. Suddenly I found myself saying things about myself that I didn't necessarily want to hear.

FW: Do you enjoy acting? Sometimes you look so disinterested.

JIM: I like the physical side of acting, and I am trying to get better. I think I am improving. If I didn't think that, I'd quit! I have learned more in the last three or four years than in all the past years put together. Don't ask me why—because I don't know.

FW: Did you ever take any acting lessons?

JIM: I took five or six classes in New York and then I realized they weren't teaching me anything I didn't already know. The best way to learn is by experience.

FW: You have your own production company. . . .

JIM: Yeah—Cherokee Productions. I named it that because I'm one-fourth Indian. One grandfather was a full-blooded Cherokee, my other grandfather was German. I never knew either of them. My parents told me that my German grandfather was killed by an escapee from a lunatic asylum. He was with a sheriff's posse and this man pulled the gun out of my grandfather's holster and shot him five times in the back. My grandfather didn't even know him!

FW: What's your favorite way to relax?

JIM: One of my favorite ways of getting away from it all is to go to Baja California to fish. Usually four of us guys—racing buddies of mine – take off. We go in two cars for safety's sake because there are places down there where we are 600 miles away from any place where a car can be fixed. This way if one car breaks down, we have the other to rely on. It is terribly desolate. One day when I was there a plane crashed, but the pilot wasn't badly hurt. He would have survived if he'd stayed with his plane and waited to be found. But he took off into the wilds and walked until he came to a settlement—which took six days! He died an hour after he got there!

FW: You played a race driver in "Grand Prix," and you've stayed friends with race drivers. Do you do any race driving now yourself?

JIM: I love long-distance, cross-country racing. "Grand Prix" started my involvement in racing, but I've been interested in it for as long as I can remember.

FW: Did you ever get hurt?

JIM: I rolled a couple of times and pulled the muscles in my shoulder, but I've never had a serious accident.

FW: With all of the robberies in Hollywood, has your home ever been hit?

JIM: Never. I have a German shepherd, a shotgun, and a silent alarm. And when I'm not at home, a friend of mine leaves two Dobermans around. Let someone try to break in! They'll be sorry!

FW: Do you have a temper?

JIM: I lost it years ago and never found it again. No, honestly—I do have a violent temper. But I have a high boiling point. When I do lose my temper, I can be dangerous—to me and everybody else. The last time it happened was about four weeks ago. Usually I boil over when I encounter dishonesty or when somebody kicks somebody else who can't fight back.

FW: What is the most important thing in your life?

JIM: I am not sure what the most important thing is, but my privacy is very important to me. When I'm at home, I simply don't want to be found. And believe me, if I don't want to be found—no one can get hold of me! A movie-star tour once tried to get up my street, but it's a dead end and the driver couldn't turn the bus around. He had to back all the way down the hill. At least no tour driver has ever tried that again!

FW: You seem able to take your star status in stride without going on an ego trip. How have you managed this?

JIM: I know my limitations. I'm not bad, but I'm not the greatest. I've gone farther than I thought I'd go when I worked in that general store back in Oklahoma!

Now, thanks to the efforts of Mme. Nicole Ronsard, the prayers of many can be answered.

Cellulite, which causes unsightly lumps and bulges, is more than simple fatty tissue. It is a gel-like substance made up of fat, water and wastes trapped in immovable pockets beneath the skin.

Mme. Ronsard deals with every aspect of cellulite. You quickly learn where to look for it . . . recognize it . . . and, most important, rid yourself of it forever!

Think what this could mean to you. Unsightly bulges around hips, thighs and buttocks—gone. Flab and pockets of fat around knees, upper arms—gone. Wear clothes you never dreamed you could wear; bathing suits you never dared to even try on; gowns and evening clothes made only for others . . . not for you.

Yes, new life awaits you within the pages of this exciting new book. Say good-bye to "jodhpur thighs" and "saddlebag buttocks" . . . never again be embarrassed by "cottage cheese" textured skin.

While cellulite is recognized throughout Europe, this is the first and only book published in America that deals with this relatively unknown blight to femininity. Every aspect of the problem is discussed and explained in easy-to-read language. For any woman who suspects she may have a cellulite problem, no matter how slight or advanced, this book is a "must."

A Doctor's Foreword

HOW TO RECOGNIZE CELLULITE

Visually, ordinary fat and cellulite are different. Regular fat, when squeezed, is smooth in texture. It does not show ripples or lumps.

To discover if you have a cellulite problem, take one simple test that cannot fail: Squeeze the tissues between the thumb and index finger or between the palms of both hands. If cellulite is present, skin ripples and looks like an orange peel. At a more advanced stage, ripples will be noticeable without any pressure.

PRAISE FROM THE PRESS

WHAT LEADING EDITORS SAY ABOUT MME. RONSARD'S REMARKABLE CELLULITE CONTROL METHODS:

HARPER'S BAZAAR QUOTES NICOLE RONSARD:

"Cellulite can be licked. It's knowing what the problem is and how to solve it that makes the difference."

VIVIAN BROWN, ASSOCIATED PRESS:

"Mme. Ronsard is an expert in the treatment of cellulite. In her salon she uses the French treatment method; but one need not go to a salon to have it done, one reason she wrote the book, "Cellulite—Those Lumps, Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before."

VOGUE MAGAZINE:

"If you ask Nicole Ronsard about cellulite, she could write a book. And she has—Cellulite: Those Lumps, Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before. The very first of its kind, it's devoted exclusively to cellulite—a subject Mme. Ronsard has been studying all her life.

RECOGNIZED BY MEDICAL PROFESSION

Dr. Ian Botosan, a New York gynecologist, stated that cellulite bulges and lumps that won't go away with ordinary diet and exercise have become more prevalent with the increased pace and anxiety of modern living. To quote:

"Women complain that most doctors have no sympathy for this condition and more often than not just tell them not to worry about it and get on with the problem of living."

PLEASED BY NICOLE RONSARD'S BOOK

"I am particularly pleased that Mme. Nicole Ronsard has decided to write this book, thoroughly exposing cellulite for what it is—a very special condition that needs very special corrective measures. I highly recommend (it) as a tremendous help to all those women who have the problem and never knew what to do about it." —Ian Botosan, M.D.

Mme. NICOLE RONSARD ... the author

She is a graduate of the world renowned Ecole Superieure de Paris in Esthetique Corporelle (science related to body shaping techniques).

Under the tutelage of Rene Morice, she probed the causes of cellulite, and with intensive studies in anatomy, physiology, histology, nutrition, calisthenics and manipulative therapy, developed a successful method of treating it.

Mme. Ronsard's salon in New York has gained widespread fame for the remarkable results achieved in thousands of cases. Women in all walks of life, from housewives to socialites, have praised her—for she helped when all others had failed.

To reach the thousands throughout the country who suffer from cellulite, Mme. Ronsard has written her book with the hope that they may be helped. Her wealth of knowledge may now be shared with women everywhere.

This child has a devoted mother, good clothes, balanced meals —and Pin-Worms!

A tormenting itch in the rectal area, nose-picking and fidgeting are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms. It can happen to anyone in any family—young or old, rich or poor. It's so common, medical authorities say that 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, have Pin-Worms without knowing it. And because Pin-Worms bring on itching and fidgeting, they can distract children and affect their school work!

What's more, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

What can you do about it? Fortunately there is an easy-to-take medication that gets rid of Pin-Worms. It's called Jayne's® P-W® tablets. Ask your pharmacist. He'll tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that gets Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

CHARLES & SUSIE
The curtains are checked

Bachelor Charles Tumbridge has two loves in his life: his motor scooter and his white Samoyed dog, Susie. A van driver for a department store during the day, Mr. Tumbridge enjoys spending his evenings and weekends in the country. So he built Susie a dog-house-sidecar for his scooter. The blue-and-yellow sidecar, with little blue-checked curtains, has a sliding door at the side and a sliding sun roof. Susie has a bowl for snacking and a first-aid kit, which Mr. Tumbridge uses when he comes on animals who have been injured in highway accidents along the roads near his London home. Ahh, to be a dog!

PALOMA PICASSO
Papa painted at the dinner table

QUOTE: "My first few memories date back to the age of three," says Paloma Picasso, 24-year-old daughter of the late Pablo Picasso. "My father was around 70. I liked to look at him silently while he was painting at the dinner table. My mother was doing the same thing in the next room. Painting was a common, natural activity for me. I thought all other people in all other houses did the same thing. Sometimes I took a pencil and I drew something on my own. My father stopped working now and then, and stroking my head, gave a glance at my drawings. He never said, 'Change the color' or 'Eliminate that point.'... No! He always said, 'That is very good! I like it. Children must not be influenced,' he repeated. 'Their art must be free and spontaneous. Time will see if it is a mere child play or a true talent.'" UNQUOTE.

Senator Tunney

What happens to Mexican-Americans and other non-English-speaking defendants when they wind up in U.S. courts? According to Sen. John V. Tunney (D-Calif.), they can get interpreters only if they're very lucky. With more than five million Mexican-Americans living in the U.S., Tunney says: "There are only four full-time Spanish-speaking court interpreters in the Southwest." In California, the federal district court in San Diego employs one full-time interpreter. As Tunney sees it, simultaneous translations for those who can't speak English ought to be mandatory. "Surely," he says, "any legal proceeding that allows a party to an action to be deprived of life, liberty or property without bothering to insure that he understands fully what is going on at the trial is so lacking in basic and fundamental fairness as to be violative of the due-process clause of the Constitution."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

BIRTHDAY PAINS

Stop it! Stop it! Must you sing
That silly "Happy Birthday" thing?
Must I have a birthday cake?
Must I grin a grin that's fake?
Must I blow the candles out?
Must I eat a piece, though stout?
Must I read aloud each note,
Some with rhymes that hurt my throat?
Must I, then, unwrap each gift,
Bought, I know, with canny thrift?

If I must, then tell me why.
Look me, meanwhile, in the eye.
When you've told me, tell me then
Why, like other grown-up men,
I must feel dejected, rotten,
When my birthday is forgotten.

The nice thing about politicians is that you can take them at face value and still have two choices.
—Frank Tyger

Dear Senator

My four-year-old nephew was playing on the floor with his alphabet blocks. He held the "R" block up and asked, "What is this one?" "What does it look like?" I said. His reply was, "It looks like a 'B,' 'cept it has its foot kicked up." —Rosalind Sibold

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: LYDIA WANDERS ABOUT THE CASTLE GROUNDS EXPECTING TO MEET ARN AT ANY MOMENT. OH, HOW LOVELY IT WILL BE TO END THEIR MISUNDERSTANDING! BUT AS THE DAY ENDS HOPE VANISHES.

QUEEN ALETA KNOWS THAT ARN IS TROUBLED AND GUESSES HE IS IN LOVE. CAN THIS DAUGHTER OF KING HAAKON BE THE ONE?

"WELCOME TO VIKINGSHOLM, PRINCESS. IS THERE AUGHT WE CAN DO FOR YOUR ENTERTAINMENT?" "WHERE IS ARN?" ASKS LYDIA. "HE TOOK SHIP TO GO ADVENTURING," ANSWERS ALETA.

"I HOPE HE RETURNS SAFELY," AND THOUGH SHE SMILES, HER EYES FILL WITH TEARS AND HER LIP TREMBLES. ALETA PUTS HER ARM AROUND THE SOBBING GIRL UNTIL SHE CALMS DOWN. THEN THE WHOLE STORY COMES OUT. OF HOW ARN MISTOOK HER BROTHER FOR A SWEETHEART AND SAILED AWAY.

PRINCE ARN, SAILING DOWN THE COAST OF THULE, BEGINS TO DOUBT THE WISDOM OF THIS VOYAGE. WINTER IS FAST APPROACHING WITH ITS VIOLENT STORMS, AND THEY WILL HAVE TO AWAIT SPRING IN SOME PORT.

AT BERGEN, ARN VISITS A BANKER AND PURCHASES LETTERS OF CREDIT, FOR IT IS NOT WISE TO CARRY LARGE SUMS OF MONEY AND THESE CREDITS ARE HONORED BY OTHER BANKERS EVERYWHERE.

NOW HE BUYS TRADE GOODS: AMBERGRIS, FURS, AMBER AND CARVED WALRUS IVORY; CHEAP HERE BUT GREATLY VALUED IN THE SOUTH.
