See Easing Of Interest Rates Ahead

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline prices probably will increase this week and postal rates may soon follow, but there is growing evidence the country's high interest rates may be about to start down.

Leading to this speculation on interest rates was a decline Monday of more than a full percentage point in the interest of U.S. Treasury bills, which have been favored by many investors in recent months because of their high yields.

Edward M. Roob, an assistant secretary of the Treasury, attributed the decline to a feeling that the Federal Reserve Board may be easing the tight credit policy it has followed since early this year in an attempt to control inflation.

If federal credit policy is easing, it would result in lower interest rates on virtually all kinds of loans, ranging from home mortgages, to consumer loans, to bank loans for big business.

In other economic developments Monday:

—The Cost of Living Council said it would make every effort to meet a request from President Nixon that it allow gasoline prices to increase this week instead of next, as the council originally had proposed.

Council sources indicated the retail price of gasoline would be allowed to increase by one or two cents per gallon to reflect higher wholesale costs.

—Postmaster Gen. E. T. Klassen proposed a two-cent increase in the cost of airmail and first class postage, meaning an airmail stamp would increase from 11 cents to 13 cents and a first-class stamp from eight cents to 10 cents.

"The cost-price squeeze has affected us as much as it has affected the rest of the economy Taxpayers are going to have to pay the price," Klassen said. Congress would have to approve the increases, which would also apply to other classes of mail.

—The head of the Office of Revenue Sharing said that revenue-sharing payments to states and local governments are helping to ease the property tax burden in many parts of the country.

Director Graham W. Watt also said that more than half of recent revenue-sharing payments are being spent for operating and maintenance expenses.

The Federal Reserve Board declined to say whether it has decided to relax its tight credit policy.

Roob commented, "It's not my province to speculate for the public what's going on. But the point is — of this kind of feeling — that as far as its effect on the market, it's true."

The Treasury Department announced Monday that the interest rate on its regular weekly issue of 13-week bills declined to 7.331 per cent Monday, down from 8.786 per cent a week earlier. It was the lowest rate since June 25.

Treasury bills, which are sold in minimum denominations of $10,000, are bought by banks and other institutions and also by individual investors.

The announcement that President Nixon wanted the Cost of Living Council to increase gasoline prices came as some service stations closed down to protest the administration's gasoline price ceilings.

A White House spokesman said the council already had decided to increase gasoline prices by Oct. 2, but the President wanted to "get a decision out this week."

Royalty At Rites For King

STOCKHOLM (AP) — All but one of Europe's reigning kings and queens followed the body of Sweden's beloved King Gustaf VI Adolf to his grave today.

Tens of thousands of Swedes lined central Stockholm's streets in cloudy, windy weather as the body of the 90-year-old king was brought from the royal palace to the cathedral for the funeral service.

The coffin was draped in blue velvet embossed with yellow crowns — the Swedish national colors — in accordance with King Gustaf's wish. The late king, whose motto was "Duty Above All," also decreed in his will that the cathedral be decorated in blue instead of the traditional black.

Gustaf Adolf, the world's oldest monarch, died Sept. 15 after a four-week illness. He was succeeded by his grandson, King Carl XVI Gustaf, at 27 the world's youngest king.

The 500-yard-long procession behind the hearse included Carl Gustaf, King Olav of Norway, King Baudouin and Queen Fabiola of Belgium, Queen Margrethe and Dowager Queen Ingrid — the late king's granddaughter and daughter — of Denmark, Queen Juliana of the Netherlands, and two former kings, Umberto of Italy and Constantine of Greece.

Only Queen Elizabeth of Britain was absent and she sent her husband, Prince Philip, and his uncle Lord Mountbatten, whose sister was Gustaf Adolf's second wife.

The funeral service before 1,400 invited guests in the cathedral was a simple one, again in accordance with the old king's instructions. Archbishop Olof Sundby read excerpts from the Old and New Testaments, and there was no eulogy.

Record Enrollment For Pitt Tech Reported At Meeting Of Trustees

A record-smashing fall quarter enrollment of 997 curriculum students was reported to the Board of Trustees of Pitt Technical Institute last night. This enrollment of day and evening curriculum students represents an approximate overall 32 percent increase over the fall quarter of last year.

Pitt Tech President, William E. Fulford, Jr., told the trustees that the enrollments in the technical and vocational programs had increased by 10 percent and 16 percent respectively. He also reported a tremendous increase in the number of students taking curriculum courses in the evenings for credit toward graduation.

In its first meeting of the 1973-74 school year, the trustee board re-elected Senator Vernon E. White as its chairman. Other officers elected were C.W. Everett Sr., vice-chairman and Mrs. Elizabeth M. Dudley, secretary.

Chairman White announced two re-appointments to the PTI board of trustees — W. A. Gaskins, by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners and C.W. Everett, Sr., by the Pitt County Board of Education. Everett was sworn in as a trustee by Chairman White.

Two new curriculum programs — Food Service Management and Welding, beginning with the winter quarter, were approved by the board. Program Committee Chairman Corey Stokes reported that the two-year Food Service curriculum would be a joint program with East Carolina University. Courses for which facilities and equipment are not available at Pitt Tech will be taught at ECU and the other courses will be taught at Pitt Tech.

The Welding curriculum is being initiated in response to a recently completed survey which indicated much interest in such a program and the demand for training to meet the needs of new industry moving to Pitt County. Due to a lack of teaching facilities for welding at Pitt Tech, it will be necessary to locate suitable facilities off-campus.

A resolution expressing appreciation for "unrelenting and dedicated efforts of support" by the Pitt County Board of Commissioners toward Pitt Tech was passed unanimously by the PTI trustees. The resolution cited past support and guidance, in both act and spirit" by the Commissioners.

In further action, the Board also adopted unanimously a resolution expressing "our deep appreciation for the life and contributions of Charlie G. (Pete) Forlines and sincerest condolences to his family." Forlines had served Pitt Tech for nine years as the head of the Maintenance Department until his death on August 26, 1973.

Upon the recommendation of Jimmy Brewer, PTI personnel committee chairman, the board approved the appointment of certain staff and faculty personnel for the institution. Appointed to fill new positions with the Pitt Tech Job Preparation Program were David G. Kibler, Coordinator; John Corey, III, Instructor; and Alton Ray Harris, Recruiter.

Instructor positions were filled by John L. Warren, Air and Water Resources Technology; Kenneth Dale Morey, and William Gibson, Police Science; and Melinda C. McRorie, Commercial Art; Herbert A. Edwards was appointed as Audio-Visual Technician.

W. H. Howell, Pitt Tech business manager announced that bids for the paving of student parking and to curb and gutter the road parallel to the north side of campus had been let and projects were approximately two-thirds completed.

In other actions, the board approved a current expenses budget for 1973-74 of $1,785,000.00 which represents a 39.5 percent increase over 1972-73.

Hunt Suspects A Double Agent

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt testified today that he suspects one of his own Watergate wiretap crew was a double agent who betrayed the wiretappers to police.

Hunt told the Senate Watergate committee that "the most likely subject" to have been a double agent was Alfred Baldwin, who monitored the Watergate wiretap at Democratic headquarters for the conspirators, but who later testified against the others at their trial in January.

Former FBI agent Baldwin was never charged in the case.

Hunt's double-agent theory was drawn out in questioning by Republican Sen. Edward J. Gurney of Florida.

He said he suspected Baldwin for a number of reasons. Hunt said Baldwin was hired without much checking on his background. Baldwin has relatives active in the Democratic party and a girl friend who worked at the Democratic National Committee headquarters, Hunt said.

He also said he has never come up with a satisfactory answer to why the Washington police plainclothes squad was in the area of the Watergate building when the police caught the wiretappers in the early morning hours of June 17, 1972.

He also said Baldwin, who was equipped with a two-way walkie-talkie, failed to warn the burglars of the presence of police in the building. Hunt said he thought that Baldwin should have known something was wrong when the plainclothes policemen started turning on lights in their initial search.

"There was activity that should have been seen by Mr. Baldwin," Hunt said. He said that after the arrests, Baldwin disobeyed Hunt's orders by taking incriminating wiretapping gear and logs to the home of James W. McCord Jr., one of the men arrested at the Watergate.

"The series of events that night, taken in their totality ... have suggested to me for many months that we might have been, as it were, trapped by information having been provided beforehand to legal law-enforcement authorities by a member of our unit," Hunt said.

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, asked Hunt whether he thought it would have been illegal for Baldwin to notify police of the Watergate burglary.

Hunt said that he still maintains that the break-in itself was legal, and that, if Baldwin betrayed it, this act "certainly was the greatest disloyalty to his employer."

Lack Of Gun Control Seen Homicide Rate Factor

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—An absence of gun control legislation in Southern cities may be one of the reasons Dixie metro areas are dominating the nation's murder statistics, according to some professional observers.

FBI data shows Atlanta leading the nation in 1972 with a rate of 23 slayings per 100,000 population, followed by Gainesville, Fla., Little Rock, Ark., Greenville, S.C.,

Columbus, Ga., Tuscaloosa, Ala., Richmond, Va., and Savannah, Ga.

Out of 53 metropolitan areas that reported 12 or more homicides per 100,000 population, 42 were in 12-state southern region.

"Generally in the South, restrictions on gun ownership are rather loose," said Dr. Eugene Czajkoski (Sha-Ka-ski), chairman of the department of criminology at Florida State University.

He said although statistics were unreliable, he was personally convinced that gun control legislation would reduce the murder rate. He claimed Northern cities have tighter gun restrictions, during a telephone interview from his Tallahassee office.

Based on per 100,000 population, New York reported 19.1 murders last year while Los Angeles reported 12.8. Las Vegas had 18.3, Baltimore 17.6, Detroit 17.3

and Chicago 11.5.

By comparison, Gainesville had 22.3, Little Rock and Greenville 20.4, Columbus and Tuscaloosa 20.2, Richmond 19.8, Savannah 19.2, Raleigh, N.C., 18.7, Lubbock, Tex. and Memphis, Tenn., 18.6, New Orleans and Jackson, Miss., 17.9, Charlotte 17.6 Chattanooga, Tenn., and Jacksonville, Fla., 17.4.

Houston reported 17.3 murders per 100,000 population, Birmingham, Ala., and Augusta, Ga., reported 17.1 and Wilmington, N.C. had 17.

"If I had my way they would take every handgun ever made and throw them in the river," said Georgia Division of Investigation director William Beardsley. "Some people say that if guns were outlawed then only outlaws would have guns. That would be the best thing that would happen. Then the police would arrest the outlaws for having guns," he said.

Beardsley said he is "infuriated" that people hold police departments responsible for murder rates.

"Eighty to 90 percent of the homicides are solved on the spot," he said. "We don't have a great number of unsolved homicides. This indicates it's a social problem and not a police problem." Czajkoski says the lack of gun control is almost a Southern tradition.

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—Skylab 2's astronauts boarded their Apollo ferry ship today and prepared to fly home from man's longest space adventure.

Because of leaks in two of four steering engines, they'll guide their Apollo with a new and tricky firing technique as they head for a late afternoon splashdown.

Alan L. Bean, Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma are returning from a 59½-day journey during which they traveled more than 24 million miles and gathered a wealth of scientific data about the earth, sun and man himself.

The astronauts spent most of the morning closing up the laboratory, setting it up for a visit from the Skylab 3 crew starting Nov. 11.

Then all three slipped through a connecting tunnel into the Apollo, linked to one end of the house-size Skylab station. They closed off the tunnel hatch and carefully checked the systems of their ferry ship.

Mission Control read them the procedures to follow so they would avoid Hurricane Irah on the remote chance they overshoot their landing target off the California coast. Irah is churning off the Mexican coast about 500 miles south of the splashdown zone.

Bean asked what the sea conditions were in the planning landing area. When told the waves were only five feet, he said "not bad."

The control center also reported good visibility in the area, with winds of 16 miles an hour and scattered clouds.

Although the entire firing procedure that the Skylab 2 astronauts must use has never been tried before in space, flight controllers are confident it will pose no problem for the spacemen.

It is necessary because two of four steering rockets on the Apollo ferry ship have developed leaks. Techniques have been worked out and tested in ground simulators to fly the Apollo home with the two good jet thrusters.

"We approach the entry time with full confidence that the two jets can do the job," said Glynn Lunney, manager of the Apollo spacecraft office. "One is sufficient to bring them home. Even if we had a problem with both, we have alternate thrusters that could be used."

Bean, Garriott and Lousma are to detach the Apollo from the 85-ton Skylab station in late afternoon, heading for a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean at 6:20 p.m. EDT.

The jet thrusters will be used to guide the Apollo to a point where the craft's large main engine will be fired to pull it out of orbit.

The carrier USS New Orleans waits in the recovery zone about 225 miles southwest of San Diego, Calif. The ship is to maneuver close to the spacecraft and hoist it on board with a crane.

Before retiring for his last night in space, commander Bean told mission control on Monday: "We've enjoyed it up here. It's been a fantastic experience. It's incredible how much you can do if you've got good support from people on the ground."

Dr. Royce Hawkins, chief of the astronaut doctors, said he expects the space travelers "will be very unsteady" as a result of their long stay in space weightlessness.

He reported all three have lost some muscle mass and are experiencing slight vascular deconditioning.

He said, however, that Bean, Garriott and Lousma are in about as good a shape, or perhaps better, than the Skylab 1 astronauts. The three Skylab 1 astronauts experienced some dizziness and weakness after returning to gravity following 28 days in orbit.

Hawkins said the Skylab 2 crew exercised much more vigorously than did the first crew and this helped level off the deconditioning after 39 days.

In space, without the constant tug of gravity, the muscles, including the heart, grow weaker.

Consumers Resist And Prices Sag On The Cattle Market

RALEIGH (AP)—Hundreds of North Carolina feeder calf producers now offering their animals in state-sponsored sales have suffered a heavy blow because of consumer resistance to supermarket beef prices, a spokesman for the North Carolina Cattlemen's Association said Monday.

Clint Reese of Raleigh, the association's executive secretary, said beef "isn't moving out of supermarkets" across the nation, prices for slaughter cattle have fallen sharply, and order buyers for Midwest feedlot operators have pulled off the North Carolina sales in the past week.

Because of tumbling prices on the sales, Reese took the unusual step of advising producers who have feed and whose calves are light in weight to hold back on marketing the animals until conditions become more settled.

"Order buyers from the Midwest normally take about three-fourths of the feeder calves and yearling steers sold in our co-operative sales each fall," he said. "Since these buyers have no current orders to fill, they have withdrawn from our sales."

Absence of the Midwest buyers has been reflected in a sharp drop in prices paid for calves and yearling steers, Reese added. In the season's first calf sale at Rocky Mount on Sept. 13, a total of 1,345 animals averaged $60.77 per 100 pounds. At Greensboro last Friday, 562 calves brought an average of $54.18—a drop of $6.59 per 100 pounds.

"I hate to say it, but prices probably will drop that much more this week," Reese said.

Trade Mission Has Prospects

RALEIGH (AP)—A North Carolina trade mission to Europe reported Monday it had encountered "solid prospects" for sales of textile machinery, instruments and diesel engines totaling more than $6 million.

A report on the mission's progress cabled to Raleigh also said Romanian officials have expressed strong interest in the possibility of a joint venture with American cigarette companies. Former Gov. Bob Scott, a mission member, said the Romanians want to produce American cigarettes in their own country.

The mission also reported that Bohanan Industries of Gastonia has a "firm inquiry" in Romania for a $5 million sale of custom machinery to manufacture nylon.

Other prospects included a possible million-dollar agreement between Romanians and Bruce GM Diesel of Rocky Mount for diesel engines and a tentative agreement for Troxler Electronics of Raleigh to sell $20,000 worth of instruments to the Romanians.

The eight-man mission, which is in Yugoslavia this week, is scheduled to leave for the United States Saturday.

Another group of 10 North Carolina bankers and economic development experts visited Italy and reported "50 per cent success" with the trade overtures made there.

Led by Robert Leak, administrator of the North Carolina division of industry, tourism and community resources, the group is now in Zurich, Switzerland, calling on Swiss industrialists.

They will leave Zurich on Wednesday with part of the group heading for West Germany and part to Great Britain before they return home later this month.

Leak said part of his mission was returning to West Germany because so many companies expressed interest that the mission was unable to see all of them during their first visit there.

Damages Run High In Three Collisions

More than $3,400 property damage resulted from a series of three collisions here yesterday, according to Greenville Police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from a three-vehicle mishap about 12:20 p.m. on Eastbrook Drive.

Police reported a car driven by Jack Dorman Elkins Jr., 20, of Greensboro and parked car owned by Jai Museswunji Kerawalls of 2010 Eastbrook Apts. and William Joseph Schlumdt of Farmville were involved in the incident.

Elkins was charged by investigators with careless and reckless driving. Damage was set at $1,200 to the Elkins car, $400 to the Kerawalls auto and $800 to the Schlumdt auto.

Michael Matthew Wooles of 2002 Forst Hill Dr. was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 5 p.m. mishap on Evans Street 80 feet South of the 11th Street intersection.

Police reported the Wooles car collided with a vehicle driven by Charles Earl Dees of Greenville, forcing the Dees car into a vehicle driven by Dan Paul Powers of Trio, S.C.

Damage was set at $300 to the Wooles car and $400 to the Dees vehicle. No damage resulted to the Powers car, police said.

Albert Rogers of Rute 5, Greenville was charged with failing to stop for a stop signal following investigation of an 11:25 a.m. mishap at the intersection of 14th and Evans Streets.

Police, who said the Rogers car collided with a vehicle driven by Robert Eugene McGowan of Goldsboro, set damage at $200 to the McGowan car and $125 to the Rogers auto.

No injuries were reported in either of the accidents.

Admits Changes Due To Outside

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — FBI Director Clarence Kelley says law enforcement leaders should be honest and admit "most of the substantive changes we have made as a profession in recent decades have been dictated by external pressures."

Addressing the International Police Chiefs Association here Monday, Kelley said, "We, as professional officers, need to think less of the 'good old days' and more about what can and must be done if law enforcement is to remain relevant to the times and serve the needs of the communities we represent."

"I can only try to emphasize the nature of the problem of contemporary change for our profession — that in our rapidly changing, crisis-laden society, pressures are so complex and many-sided that unless we as police executives remain on our toes, we may find our status in the community undermined."

Vote Raising Lunch Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has voted a $315-million federal increase in the nation's school-lunch program, twice the hike recommended by the House.

Sensors who favored a smaller increase said the Senate was so generous that President Nixon might veto the bill.

The government last year spent $1.5 billion on the school-lunch program, which includes low-cost breakfasts in some schools, free milk and other projects designed to improve child nutrition.

By an 81 to 4 vote Monday, the Senate voted to raise the federal contribution to the basic program by 50 per cent.

The key vote was the 52 to 34 adoption of an amendment by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., to raise the federal subsidy from eight to 12 cents per lunch, regardless of a pupil's financial need.

The House-passed bill, and the original Senate proposal, would raise the subsidy to 10 cents.

A compromise will have to be worked out between House and Senate versions.

Retired Prof To Join Council

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired Yale University economics professor William J. Felner will be named by President Nixon to his Council of Economic Advisers.

Felner, 68, currently is resident scholar at the American Enterprise Institute. He was Sterling professor of economics at Yale from 1969 to 1973 and now is Sterling professor emeritus.

Maynard was taken to Central State Psychiatric Hospital for observation following his second leap, police said.

Claims Greeks Want Him Dead

NICOSIA (AP) — Gen. George Grivas, leader of an armed underground campaign for union of Cyprus with Greece, says the Greek government wants to kill or arrest him.

In an interview released by his supporters Monday, Grivas said he knew of four Greek army majors sent to Cyprus "either to arrest or assassinate me."

Grivas has refused to obey a call by President George Papadopolous of Greece that he disband his group and halt the campaign against the Makarios government.

"The Health Department is seeing approximately 100 Pitt County citizens a day," Mrs. Lawler said. "With expanded staff and facilities, we could see many more."

"I'm very impressed with the mini-clinics we now have one day a week in Ayden, Farmville, Bethel and Grimesland. Each of these are nurse screening situations, a system that's working out well and will be used more and more. We definitely want to build up our mini-clinic program."

Mrs. Lawler said she will be working for a closer relationship for the health department with all the health agencies in the community. She wants very much to develop closer ties with Pitt Memorial Hospital, she said.

One program she hopes to begin soon is to have the hospital report to the health department cases of low-birth-weight babies and mothers who have had problems concerned with the births, so these may be followed up in their early stages.

The health department also will be working closer with the Pitt County Department of Social Services, seeking to learn of health problems the social workers see which may be corrected or helped by the Health Department. A program of regular physical examinations for children receiving Aid to Dependent Children is now underway.

Mrs. Lawler is a native of Westchester County, New York and came to Greenville "by way of Chicago," she said. She and her husband, ECU English Department faculty member, Dr. Donald Lawler, were living and working in Illinois when they decided to move to the South so "Don would never have to shovel snow again."

Mrs. Lawler has a B. S. in Nursing from Georgetown University and a M. S. from East Carolina University. She is a certified public health nurse and was an obstetrical charge nurse for six years in Naperville, Ill. The Lawlers have four children, John, 14; Stephen, 13; Amy, 11; and James, three. They are members of St. Gabriel's Catholic Church here.

Reader Tells Her Pet Peeve

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 By Chicago Tribune-M. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My pet peeve is the way some daughters in law pick on their mothers in law.

I refer to that silly crab who griped because her mother in law always got to sit next to her son [daughter in law's husband] when they rode in the car.

She wrote: "As my husband opens the car door for us, I step back and let his mother get in first. This puts her next to my husband, which I think is MY place."

Well, for Pete's sakes, gal. Get in the car first if you want to sit next to your beloved. He can then help his mother in, and close the door. This puts his mother on the outside, next to the door, which is really the best spot because then she can view the scenery, and isn't squeezed between two bodies with nothing to look at but the hood of the car and the pavement ahead.

More power to you! Me? I'm a mother in law, and prefer to sit near the door and let my daughter in law sit next to my son.

I've noticed, too, that after a mother in law becomes a grandmother, she no longer is despised, but suddenly becomes a wonderful baby sitter. What a difference a child makes!

Just wait, young wives, one day you'll become mothers in law, too. And then God help you!

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA GRANDMA

DEAR ABBY: I met a really cool guy who travels, and he makes this town once every two weeks. Tex and I dug each other right away, and I might as well tell you we ended up at his motel on the second date.

Every time he'd come to town, we'd go to his motel. I really grooved this dude, Abby. He even told me he loved me.

Well, imagine how hurt I was when I found out his brother got married right here in this town last week and Tex took another girl to the wedding.

Wouldn't you think if Tex liked me well enough to have me at his motel every time he got to town he should have asked me to that wedding?

Should I ask him how come I'm good enough to go to bed with, but I'm not good enough to take to a family wedding?

HURT

DEAR ABBY: Don't ask him any questions. The answer is obvious. Just because a man says: "I love you," doesn't mean he means it. And doesn't the fact that he took another girl to a wedding where his friends and family would be present tell you something?

DEAR ABBY: There is a poem by Ogden Nash that I would like to find, but all my efforts led me nowhere. It goes something like this:

"He drinks because she nags, he thinks.
She nags because he drinks, she thinks."
Then it goes on to say that: "In fact, he's a sot and she's a shrew."

I am going crazy trying to track it down. Can you help me, please?

AVID CHICAGO READER

DEAR READER: My reference library contains 15 volumes of Ogden Nash and I can't find it either. But I'll bet one of my readers out there can.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ED LEACH—WHEREVER YOU ARE: The "mea culpa" in my column was no typo, but the "great bilingual pun" you credit me with is undeserved. If you are truly concerned about my "gulpability," please clue me in.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

That In-Fighting Is Indicator

It does not take a particularly keen observer to recognize that a pretty good fight has developed within the Republican party.

On the state level the fight involves the Holshouser forces who are supporting Tom Bennett of Morehead for party chairman against the present chairman, Frank Rouse, of Kinston, who has Sen.

More Building Space Needed

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—A decision has been reached by the Legislative Services Commission which oversees operation of the State Legislative Building that additional space will be required soon, and a study is underway to that end.

Clyde Ball, legislative services officer, and the commission made up jointly of members of the State Senate and State House, are looking to future state office buildings in the immediate area of the State Legislative Building to house some of the operations.

There is a growing debate over the proposal, both in Raleigh and across the state. A central question is whether each lawmaker needs a secretary. There isn't room in the present small offices for both a member of the General Assembly and a secretary, so the heart of the proposal to gain more space revolves around removing a wall between each set of offices so that each member would in effect have two offices.

That move would effectively halve the number who could be housed in the State Legislative Building—causing half to be placed in another building.

Questions Vary

But the questions being raised go beyond the need for secretaries. The building is only 10 years old and when built it was hailed as the only one of its kind in the nation designed to house a state legislature. It provides 4.7 acres of space on four levels, and there are still 50 senators and 120 representatives.

Ball said the study is currently exploratory, but quite serious, and that he is now gathering data on just how much space will be needed, where it should be, and how much it would cost.

His goal, he said, would be to retain the State Legislative Building as the focal point of the legislative process, moving out only as much as necessary to provide adequate space.

"We don't have adequate space now," Ball said, noting that since the building opened, additional services such as research facilities, staff members to work exclusively for the General Assembly and a section to store and file printed bills are in operation—functions which were not planned for or even anticipated when the building was designed.

"Things have changed, and I think for the better. The criticism that we have the same number of legislators is beside the point. We still have the same number of governors, but the need for administrative space has grown. In the General Assembly, the quantity and quality of services has increased enormously, and we need space to house them."

Newcomers Angry

The arrangement provided for one secretary for each veteran lawmaker; one secretary for each two of the new people.

"This produced a tremendous outcry," Ball said. The newly elected members wouldn't accept the arrangement, and Ball said, "I'm getting a great deal of flak from members which I am passing along to the commission." There is no indication a change is planned for the 1974 continuation session, but Ball said he anticipates action during that session to provide secretaries on a one for one basis in 1975.

Some legislators think it not wise to remove any offices from the building, but that other services would be moved instead so the lawmakers can remain under one roof. "We would have to remove everything else in the building to make room for all the legislators," Ball said, and he considers many of the support services critical to the daily operation of the General Assembly.

Ball said he doesn't anticipate any changes in space allotments immediately, but believes some must take place in the next five years.

Some Alternatives

He added that his study covered possibilities of adding a floor on top of the building (ruled out because the foundation wasn't built for it); digging a vast underground addition (ruled out because of exorbitant construction and waterproofing costs); expanding the outside area of the present building (ruled out because of present design and damage to esthetics); and use of the present basement parking area (ruled out because the ceiling is low, there are many columns and supports, and the cost would be too high).

Ball said the criticisms that there appears to be ample, luxurious space in the building is not valid since most of the open spaces, lobbies and corridors are "luxuries for the public. All the blossoms on the roof and fountains in the courtyards are small comfort to the lawmakers if they don't have a place for a secretary to work."

The insistence of many lawmakers having a personal secretary is the crux of the space problem. Ball said the commission have "given ground grudgingly on this point. In 1971, they were adamant in their opposition."

Some petitions were circulated and gained support to have a secretary allocated for each member, but the leadership in both houses managed to cut it off by expanding the number of pool secretaries available, and providing a fulltime secretary for committee chairmen and senior members.

Love, a newcomer to the political thickets of Washington, equivocated.

That was Sept. 8. Shortly thereafter, the White House, with Love now leading the way, came close to outright support for allocations. But Simon's boss, Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz, and other freedom-of-marketplace ideologues such as top White House aide Bryce Harlow, have reversed that trend. There is now open talk of a possible veto if Congress goes ahead on its own and sends a mandatory allocations bill to the President.

Through all this, three hard facts are emerging and they were deeply impressed on the seven governors who attended Wednesday's emergency meeting at the White House: there is no energy policy as yet; there is no hard information on shortages; there are no real contingency plans.

If Mr. Nixon doesn't soon fill that policy and information vacuum and the coming winter turns out long and cold, he will open up a political Pandora's box which for voter fury could make the Watergate scandals a summer picnic.

Laird Tells Shultz

Secretary of the Treasury George Shultz's angry cry from Tokyo that Melvin R. Laird better keep his "cotton pickin' hands" off economic policy was privately rejected by Laird in Washington last week.

"I was making economic policy long before you were even in government," veteran politicians Laird, now White House domestic policy chief, told former Prof. Shultz here after his return from Japan. As a Wisconsin legislator 26 years ago, Laird continued, he conducted a study on state tax laws and has been involved in tax policy ever since. What's more, he said, he would keep talking taxes long after he leaves the White House (less than a year from now, he forecasts) and, in the Helms support.

In Pitt County the split was reflected in a walkout by a group of Republicans at the biennial County GOP Convention. The rump group named their own slate of delegates as the regular session was naming theirs.

The Republican family fight brought some joy to loyal Democrats of Pitt County, who are still smarting over the loss of the governorship and a U. S. Senate seat to the Republicans last year for the first time in this century.

There should be small comfort to the Democrats in the GOP infighting, however. Only a few years back the Republicans could have held their convention in a tea house around a four place table. This year it took the Pitt County Courthouse to hold them.

And the people who went to the court house for the GOP meeting were not registered Democrats who voted Republican one time; these were people who have made their political commitment to the Republican Party. Many of them have left the Democratic party for good, registered Republican and intend to remain Republicans.

Thus, despite the immediate differences of opinion among Republicans, we are seeing a strong Republican organization develop here in Pitt County, one of the real bastions of Democratic power in a Democratic state.

There was a time when local folks would turn out for sheer curiosity when a Republican candidate happened to wander down this way.

Now, however, it must be obvious to doubting Democrats that a vigorous Republican party is a fact in Pitt County and that it is here to stay. Any Democrat who feels his party can depend on the Republicans to tear themselves apart, should take another look. The GOP is gaining strength in Pitt County and the Democrats had better recognize it.

Nixon's Long, Cold Winter

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Just as the Sept. 8 cabinet meeting on threatened heating oil shortages this winter was starting, former Colorado Gov. John Love, President Nixon's energy czar, urgently whispered with Interior Secretary Rogers Morton.

Would Morton support or oppose mandatory allocations of heating oil if the President brought up the subject at the cabinet meeting, Love asked.

Morton and Love quickly agreed that, if that political hot potato was tossed up, they would support allocations. Quickly, however, it became apparent that Mr. Nixon himself was politically and emotionally against mandatory allocations (designed to guarantee a fair level of supplies to potentially oil-short areas like New England and the Upper Midwest).

The ice was first broken by Russell Train, newly sworn in Environmental Protection administrator. Train said that if, as the White House wants, states are asked to provide temporary "variances" from clean air laws, then the administration should ask Congress for mandatory allocations to spread the shortages fairly.

Me. Nixon listened, saying nothing, then turned to Deputy Secretary of the Treasury William Simon.

"You don't agree with that, do you, Bill?" the President asked.

"Yes, sir," replied the forthright Simon, backing Train to the hilt. Mr. Nixon then turned to Morton. Without hesitation, Morton said:

"I agree with Bill Simon 100 per cent."

But energy czar Love apparently was getting the drift of the President's own strong antipathy to allocations. When Mr. Nixon finally turned to him, Love hedged. Maybe yes, he said, but then again, maybe no. Three times the President asked Love and three times

Love, a newcomer to the political thickets of Washington, equivocated.

That was Sept. 8. Shortly thereafter, the White House, with Love now leading the way, came close to outright support for allocations. Constitution's Growth

WASHINGTON—September of each year brings "Constitution Week," marking an anniversary of the signing of our basic charter in 1787. The occasion has special significance this autumn: We are caught in the most strenuous constitutional debates since the Civil War, and any Americans who seldom think much about the Constitution are rediscovering the greatest political document devised.

By this time, 185 years after ratification, one might suppose that every provision of the Constitution would have been tested, construed, and freed of ambiguity. It is part of the eternal fascination of the charter that it continues to pose new questions that demand new constructions. Like a healthy evergreen, the Constitution is forever putting out new growth.

At this writing, the dramatic conflict between the rights of a President and the powers of the judiciary remains unresolved. Most observers think it unlikely that an out-of-court settlement can be reached in the matter of the presidential tapes. The Supreme Court, which begins its new term on Monday, probably will have to say whether a Federal judge can command a President to surrender his personal records for judicial inspection.

The tapes present one towering question of "separation of powers." An ad hoc committee of the Congress met last week for long discussion another such question, involving the power of a President to impound funds specifically appropriated by the Congress, over his veto, and thus to frustrate the clear command of the legislative branch. The committee has yet to devise a parliamentary procedure by which the Congress can maintain control of the purse.

Talk of impeachment is everywhere; it circles our city like heat lightning, flashing and rumbling, and the papers are filled with speculations on the possible resignation of Vice President Agnew. The conjectures raise towering questions of constitutional law. Persons who never had bothered to read the 25th Amendment, prior to its ratification in 1967, are having a glorious time with Section 2: "Whenever there is a vacancy in the office of the Vice President, the President shall nominate a Vice President who shall take office upon confirmation by a majority vote of both houses of Congress."

If all this were not enough, our ears are ringing with other constitutional battles over abortion, censorship, and the limiting of contributions in a political campaign. In the fight over the pending Equal Rights Amendment, we are hearing argument on an old question never conclusively settled: May a State legislature, having once ratified a proposed amendment, validly rescind its resolution

Foot In Mouth Disease

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Man is the only animal that consistently gets into trouble by opening his mouth.

Most creatures open their mouths chiefly to admit food. Man opens his mouth to make a fool of himself. He also must have the most insensitive oral orifice on earth, for man is the only known species that can put his foot in his mouth without even being aware of it.

When his big trap does lead him into one, he defends himself by claiming that he has the right to free speech. What he doesn't realize is that, aside from free love, free speech is perhaps the most disillusioningly expensive thing in the world.

It isn't necessary to button up your lips, however, to stay out of trouble. All you have to do is to learn to think before you speak, and say things that will stir up anger in your fellow man — or make yourself an unwilling victim of him.

Here, for example, are a few classic remarks to avoid, remarks that probably have caused more than half the trouble on earth:

"Doesn't anybody around here ever do any work except me?"

"If you want my advice, I think you should —."

"Put your money where your mouth is."

"Why don't we just step outside and settle this man to man?"

"If you only had brains in all

CHOICE OF LIFE'S WORK

A well-known psychologist was recently quoted as saying, "Do what you enjoy, and enjoy what you do." The psychologist insisted that we only do well the things we like to do, and that our liking for any particular type of activity is a clear indication that here is the kind of work in which we should be engaged.

This is of course a splendid principle, but the trouble is that most of us cannot afford to follow it one hundred percent of the time. There are some things which we might want to do but which are impossible for us physically or mentally. There are other things which are financially out of our reach. And finally, duty to others may prevent us from doing exactly what we want to do.

Therefore, as a practical matter, it often is more important for us to learn to like what we have to do than to yearn for unfettered choice among the options of life. The psychologist's advice is fine as an ideal, but we have to live in a real world which sometimes deviates from the ideal close to our hearts.

Pension Reform Outlook Better

By EDMOND Le BRETON

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prospects that Congress will complete action this year on a pension reform bill have brightened after plans for House consideration were speeded up.

The acting chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., told his colleagues Monday that the committee will begin work on private pension reform next Monday. Ullman said the committee will start work with the bill passed last week by the Senate and attached as a rider to a minor House bill.

This measure, designed to guarantee that participants in private pension plans actually receive benefits when they retire, provides for full vesting of pension rights after 15 years, government insurance of plans against pension fund failure and tax incentives for personal retirement systems.

Ullman told reporters arrangements are being made to coordinate his committee's consideration of the bill with the work already done by a House Education and Labor subcommittee on a separate measure of its own. Some supporters of pension reform legislation had feared a jurisdictional clash between the Ways and Means Committee and the subcommittee headed by Rep. John H. Dent, D-Pa.

Ullman said the Ways and Means Committee intends to open the way for work on pension legislation by completing its major decisions this week on the trade bill that has occupied it for months.

"It may take night sessions, but we'll do it," Ullman said.

House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., meanwhile estimated that final House action on pensions is "a good prospect" for this year. A key staff member estimated that chances of Congress sending President Nixon a bill before its planned adjournment in November are now 85 per cent.

Legislation to protect the 40 million persons in this country enrolled in various private pension plans has been before Congress for several years.

Pressure for action built up after hearings brought out testimony that thousands find themselves without benefits in their old age, either because restrictive provisions of the plans made them ineligible or because the plans or the companies backing them ran into financial trouble.

Russia Is Warned Over Harassment

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.
(AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has told high Soviet officials that the prospect for a new Soviet-American trade relationship remains in doubt because of Moscow's treatment of Jews.

According to U.S. officials, Kissinger told Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko on Monday night that congressional opposition to granting the Russians most favored nation status has not relented due to concern over the plight of the Jews.

The assessment came during a 2½-hour dinner Kissinger gave for Gromyko and Anatoly F. Dobrynin, Soviet ambassador to Washington.

American officials said Soviet harassment of intellectuals also was discussed.

The secretary was said to have stated that this issue was increasing doubts of Congress and the American public about granting trade concessions to the Russians.

The officials said the issue was discussed in a convivial manner. They said the Russians were aware of the seriousness of the American concern as well as the official U.S. determination to keep the discussion private.

To bring about an official public confrontation would be counterproductive at this stage, one U.S. source said.

Kissinger and Gromyko also touched briefly on arms limitation, European troop cuts and the European Security Conference.

Today Kissinger turned from the troublesome Soviet trade issue to another problem area — U.S. relations with the Arab nations. He invited leaders of 19 Arab states and the Arab League to lunch to discuss their concerns, particularly their conflict with Israel.

American officials said the secretary intended to keep the talks general and would not propose new American moves in the Middle East.

A similar assessment was made in Cairo, where the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram reported that Kissinger had told the Arab delegations at the United Nations, "I will confine myself to hearing and only hearing" until Israel's national elections late next month.

This fit in with the slow development of new U.S. attitudes toward the Middle East despite remarks by President Nixon earlier this month that a solution to the Arab-Israeli issue was of "the highest priority."

Four Arab states — Libya, Syria, South Yemen and Algeria — declined Kissinger's in-itation to lunch.

Kissinger, who is in his second day of meetings with other leaders attending the U.N. General Assembly, also scheduled meetings today with Canadian Foreign Secretary Mitchell Sharp, Danish Foreign Minister K. B. Andersen and West German Foreign Minister Walter Scheel.

"Shall I tell you to your face what even your friends are saying behind your back?"

"If nobody else will, I'll volunteer."

"Yeah, it's a good joke, but it sounded funnier the way Milton Berie used to tell it 20 years ago."

"No, it's your turn. I distinctly remember buying the last round."

"Yes, it sounds like you were in the right — but of course I haven't heard the other guy's side of the story."

"What puzzles me is why no woman will ever admit she is in the wrong."

"If I didn't love you, do you think I'd be working myself into an early grave so you and the kids can buy the things you want but don't need?"

"When are you going to start your diet again?"

"If I can be of any further help, don't hesitate to call on me."

meanwhile, will discuss all other aspects of government policy — economics included.

Laird also defended his Sept. 15 press conference boosting proposals for temporary tax increases by Federal Reserve Chairman Arthur Burns. Laird told Shultz not to reject out of hand Dr. Burns's idea of using variable taxes to combat inflation.

Finally, Laird stressed that he knows no tax legislation will pass Congress this year but wanted Burns's proposals ventilated. He remembered pushing revenue-sharing some 15 years before the program was adopted by Congress.

A footnote: Attempting to ease tension after Shultz's attack on Laird in Tokyo, Deputy Treasury Secretary William Simon sent Laird a pair of white cotton gloves. But Laird jokes that he probably needs neither white gloves nor black gloves. He needs kid gloves when talking policy — to soften the impact on Shultz and other officials of his laudable attempt to achieve open government.

Group Asked Tax Boost

CHARLOTTE (AP)—City councilmen were startled Monday when a group came to them to ask the council to raise their particular taxes.

It seems that the local Dry Wall Contractors Association would be willing to pay a higher business privilege license tax in exchange for the satisfaction of knowing no contractors were slipping out of it.

A spokesman for the association told the council that his group would be glad to pay a higher tax if the extra money would be used to hire someone to be sure that all such contractors pay the tax.

The contractors said the Charlotte-Mecklenburg tax office can't afford more personnel to oversee equitable enforcement of the business license taxes, so some contractors get by without paying.

Their license costs about $50, about half of what other cities in the Carolinas tax such contractors.

The shocked councilmen asked the city manager to look into the situation.

thereafter?

It is not necessary that one qualify as an expert on these issues. If such scholars as Archibald Cox and Charles Alan Wright can take opposite positions, amateurs can play the game, too. In my own view, the President is right on the tapes and wrong on impoundment; I would hold that a grand jury is free to indict a Vice President, but that he could not be tried while in office. And I do not see why a State legislature, prior to national ratification of an amendment, cannot rescind a resolution approved by a previous legislature. These are mere opinions. Everyone has his own.

I have been reveling in the Constitution for 30-odd years, and it is like listening to the music of Chopin or reading the plays of Shakespeare: One always finds a nuance, a turn of phrase, or a sudden insight never wholly perceived before.

The Constitution has all the charms of a lovely woman: It is at once strong and yielding, open and mysterious, constant and changing; it both restrains and frees; it leaves interesting possibilities to the imagination. Antony's observant friend said it all of Cleopatra: Age cannot wither her, nor custom stale her infinite variety. The Constitution is the invisible wind and the palpable stone; and it endures.

There's no friend like a good friend.

Losers in the first flight's first round, formed the second flight, with Walter Jones downing Charles Vincent, 6-1, 6-0, for the title.

Jones beat Underwood, 6-0, 6-0, Campbell beat Hill, 6-4, 6-3, and Vincent downed Stephenson, 6-1, 6-3, in the first round, then Jones beat Campbell, 0-6, 6-4, 6-2, while Vincent had a bye to the finals.

Prizes were presented to winners in each flight.

Randle Happy Over Record

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two weeks ago there wasn't an unhappy football coach in the Southern Conference than Sonny Randle of East Carolina's defending league champion Pirates.

East Carolina had just been bombed 57-8 in its opener by North Carolina State, the pre-season Atlantic Coast Conference favorite, and Randle already was engaged in a whole-sale shakeup of his team.

Whatever Randle did, it apparently worked. The Pirates knocked off Southern Mississippi 13-0 the following weekend and followed up last Saturday night with a 42-25 triumph over Southern Illinois.

The Pirates finally have ended temporarily their stay on the road and open defense of their conference championship at home Saturday night against Furman's surprising unbeaten Paladins.

"We showed what we're made of," said Randle after the victory over Southern Illinois. "A lot of folks wrote us off after the problems we had at North Carolina State, but look, now we're coming home 2-1."

"That's quite an accomplishment, considering we've played and won two games on the road against very aggressive football teams."

Randle, a former National Football League star, said "I've never seen college teams hit any harder than they did at Southern Illinois."

"Just look at the players. Our guys are banged up, although not seriously, while Southern Illinois took two players to the hospital with injuries which may cause them to miss the remainder of the season."

Randle said "that's nothing to boast about, but it does show just how hard a game we had. We're finally coming home and we are in much better shape than I expected."

As for Furman, "they are undefeated and last year gave us all we wanted," said Randle. The Paladins actually led much of the way before the Pirates pulled out a 27-21 victory.

"I'm glad to see our offense put plenty of points on the board. I knew it was just a matter of time," Randle added.

The Pirate coach said he has in Ken Strayhorn, Carlester Crumpler and Don Schink "three running backs who I would compare with anyone."

Even though Crumpler was the conference football player and athlete of the year last season, he was hurt in the N. C. State game, saw limited service at Southern Mississippi and carried the ball eight times at Southern Illinois, gaining 81 yards.

"Schink and Strayhorn are still my starters because they simply have won their positions," Randle said. "Crumpler has been hurting but has recovered and worked extremely hard late last week and in the game."

Chances are that Crumpler, who set conference records last season for number of rushes, yards gained and points scored, will be in action in a hurry if the Pirates run into trouble.

Americans Are Golf Favorites

By BOB GREEN

Associated Press Golf Writer TURNBERRY, Scotland (AP) — A tough tour-tested cadre of American pros—most of them members of the victorious Ryder Cup team—rank among the favorites for Europe's richest golf tournament, the $150,000 John Player Classic.

Among them are Arnold Palmer, Gay Brewer, Tom Weiskopf, Johnny Miller, Tommy Aaron, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Charles Coody.

Dave Hill was supposed to be in the U.S. aggregation, but the controversial American star withdrew Monday because of injury and illness.

The 72-hole event begins Wednesday on the 7,070-yard par-71 Turnberry golf course, a windswept seaside links just off the Irish Sea.

Opposing the American millionaires is a formidable array of international talent in this event, which includes only 36 players in its starting field.

Among those are deft little Gary Player of South Africa, defending title-holder Bob Charles of New Zealand, and all but one of Britain's Ryder Cup team, beaten just last week by the Americans at Muirfield on the opposite coast of Scotland.

TAKES SEVEN—Dallas Cowboys' Calvin Hill picks up seven yards on an end sweep in the second quarter against New Orleans last night. Putting the stop on

Landry Captures 100th Victory; Feels Sorry For Saints' Coach

(Editor's Note: Former East Carolina University running back Les Strayhorn saw considerable action in last night's Dallas-New Orleans football game, carried on nationwide television. Strayhorn scored his first professional regular-season touchdown in the game, diving over from a yard away to post Dallas' final score in the game.)

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer DALLAS (AP) — Bob Lilly and Lee Roy Jordan gave their leader a cake and a game ball celebrating Tom Landry's 100th victory as a National Football League coach, but the Dallas Cowboys' mentor couldn't help feeling compassion for the guy in the other dressing room.

Landry's Cowboys mauled New Orleans 40-3 Monday night like teams used to batter Dallas back in the expansion year of 1960, when the Cowboys had an 0-11-1 record.

In the other locker room, New Orleans Coach John North sat slumped over his bench, still looking for his first NFL victory after two tries.

"I know what he (North) must feel, but they'll eat somebody," Landry said. "He's got a tough go ahead of him. I went through the same thing. But if his owners have confidence in him and get some players, he could do it too."

Landry, who now stands 100-76-6 in his 13th year as the only coach Dallas has ever had, said of attaining the century mark, "It's quite a milestone to reach. I'm just glad to be around that long."

"Longevity is more important than anything. I'm glad the owners stuck with me through the lean years and gave me the opportunity to win."

Landry, who is now the 10th NFL coach in the 100-victories ledger, leaned over and blew out the candles on his cake as easily as the Cowboys blew down the Saints.

Robert Newhouse scored two touchdowns—one on a three-yard touchdown gallop and the other on a two-yard pass from quarterback Roger Staubach. Calvin Hill bolted seven yards for a touchdown and was the game's leading ground gainer with 71 yards on 13 thrusts in the nationally televised mismatch.

The Cowboys, who have been to a record seven consecutive NFL playoffs, have won 80 games in the last seven years under Landry.

Landry said it was nice to win 100 but he'll still take the 24-3 victory over Miami in Super Bowl VI as his personal highlight.

"The most memorable highlight has to be the Super Bowl victory," Landry said as he beamed at his players who gathered around the cake.

"Go for another hundred," the players shouted.

Landry said his low point as a coach wasn't the disaster year of 1960 but a 1967 loss to Green Bay for the NFL title.

"Green Bay had a formidable team, but I thought we had a better team," he said of the "Ice Bowl" game, played in sub-zero cold.

The Cowboys pulled into a tie with St. Louis for the lead in the National Conference's Eastern Division with the victory at 2-0.

Dallas plays St. Louis next Sunday.

Landry, who wasn't overly pleased with his team's 12-3 halftime lead over New Orleans, said, "I didn't see the cake at halftime."

"I'm glad somebody had enough confidence in me to bake it ahead of time."

Bucs Announce New Assistant

East Carolina's basketball program, building with talented freshmen recruits, landed what head coach Tom Quinn calls "the most important man in our program" Tuesday with the naming of George "Butch" Estes as assistant varsity coach and recruiting coordinator.

Estes, who played one year at North Carolina and assisted with freshmen coaching duties from 1969-71, comes to East Carolina from The Citadel where he was head freshman coach.

In introducing Estes, head coach Tom Quinn said: "Butch is exactly what we have been looking for. He has experience, but he is still young. He will bring enthusiasm to the program which will make him invaluable in recruiting the areas we need to recruit in most — North Carolina, Virginia, the East and Midwest."

"His background and credits are outstanding. He comes highly recommended from both Dean Smith at North Carolina and George Hill at The Citadel. They are both leaders in their field."

"I wish I could describe how much this job means to me without sounding like just another happy signee," Estes said. "I especially like the recruiting end, because that's what I've always wanted to do."

Triple-S Is Super Combo

College football coaches across the nation are converting to one form or another of the wishbone or veer, but Sonny Randle has installed an offense all his own at East Carolina.

Sportscaster Dick Jones, play-by-play man for the Pirate football network, had dubbed it the "triple-S." Unlike the wishbone and veer, however, Randle's new strategy can't be copied by any of his counterparts.

You see, a coach must have three basic ingredients before he can put the "triple-S" into operation — a Summerell, a Schink and a Strayhorn — and the ingredients are as rare as a 79 cent steak outside the spacious confines of the ECU campus.

Randle's fearsome threesome — quarterback Carl Summerell, fullback Don Schink and tailback Kenny Strayhorn — still line up in the familiar power — I or pro-set formations, but opposing defensive units, like that of Southern Mississippi and Southern Illinois for instance, are probably convinced that it's all part of some undercover offensive conspiracy.

The versatile trio formed a formidable offensive combination indeed as ECU upset the Golden Eagles, 13-0, and staggered Southern Illinois, 42-25.

"Cool Carl" Summerell, the instigator of the trio, proved Southern Mississippi's secondary for 101 yards and a touchdown and then racked up 75 against Southern Illinois. Summerell's work against SIU included touchdown runs of two, six and 10-yards before leaving the game midway in the third period. Under his leadership along with help from reserve Bob Bailey, ECU amassed 384 total offensive yards — 309 rushing and 75 passing.

The "Double-S" backfield of Schink and Strayhorn showed its stuff against the Sulakis in Carbondale. Strayhorn rushed for 95 yards on 18 carries and Schink punched out 50-plus yards with gritty inside running. Both were instrumental in ECU's first touchdown which capped an 80-yard drive early in the first period.

The "Triple-S" has another letter to be added, but the football player is more than just a letter. He is Carlester Crumpler, healthy after nursing injuries at Southern Mississippi. "Crumpler displayed his old form at SIU with a 63 dash off right tackle. On eight unofficial carries, he piled up 85 yards including a crunching dive for a key first down during a second half ECU drive."

And head coach Sonny Randle couldn't be happier. "I'll tell you, it's nice to be a head coach and have that sort of situation. I've talked about our lack of depth and possible injury problems, but having Strayhorn and Crumpler battling for a job sort of cures that situation. I don't think you can ever have enough good runners, but we certainly have two of the best. It doesn't make any difference which one you put in, the offense continues to grind it out with spark."

"This Triple-S idea is great, but Triple-S idea or not, after the dismal showing at State College, the running of Schink, Strayhorn and now Crumpler has helped turn this club around. We punched big holes in the SIU line and our backs took advantage of them. That's when it's a pleasure to coach."

"And even more, I think the Triple-S and the Wild Dogs defense has put us in a much better mental frame of mind for the remainder of the season. We're home now for a game and that will help immensely."

"Offensively and defensively, I think our players are ready to show what they can do in front of a friendly audience."

Baney Finds Victory Sweet

By NORM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
CINCINNATI (AP) — Dick Baney's champagne had a sweet taste to it Monday night.

"Nobody wanted me in July...and now this," said the 25-year-old Cincinnati Reds pitcher, who stopped bouncing around baseball long enough to win the biggest game of his life.

Baney, drawing his first National League start after being given up on two months ago, tossed seven shutout innings against the San Diego Padres in a pennant-clinching 2-1 victory.

Solo homers by Tony Perez and Andy Kosco were all Baney, 2-1, needed. Boos greeted Manager George "Sparky" Anderson when he elected to mop up the last two innings with Tom Hall and Pedro Borbon, who gave up a two-out homer to Ivan Murrell in the ninth.

The victory capped the Reds' greatest pennant rally. Trailing by 11 games on July 1, Cincinnati reeled off 58 wins over the last 81 games to overtake the Los Angeles Dodger and clinch the team's third Western Division title in four years.

The Reds hold a six-game lead with five games remaining. 87

"We've got a great momentum going for us and it will carry us right through," said Pete Rose, the Reds' record-breaking hitting star.

Rose's one hit for the night gave him a record mark of 180 singles in a season by a switch-hitter. It broke Maury Wills' 1962 record.

"This club has 100 per cent heart," said Anderson.

"This is some kind of team," added Perez, whose 26th homer gave him the team lead.

Baney thought his vareer was at a dead end when he was cut for the second time this summer. He was told to find a new profession.

But the softspoken Californian made the most of a minor league coach's faith in him.

"After getting cut by the Oakland A's Birmingham team I spent $60 in phone calls trying to catch on with somebody," he said.

"Vern Rapp of the Reds' Indianapolis farm team called me and said I had another chance. But after losing my first two starts and giving up 23 runs in 19 innings for an 11.00 earned run average I went to him with a ticket in my hand and told him I wasn't going to embarrass him anymore," said Baney.

Rapp tore up the ticket and Baney tore up the league, winning seven straight starts.

"I survived it all, and it's made me stronger. God's been good to me. I'm a tremendous believer.

Baney isn't eligible to pitch in the National League playoffs or the World Series, should the Reds make it.

"They told me they might take me along anyway. If they tell me I can't go, I'll just be happy being the best batting practice pitcher they ever had," said Baney, who tossed 12 no-hitters in his high school career and was named the outstanding pitcher in California.

Cincinnati Captures NL's Western Crown

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer ...and then, there was one.

The third of baseball's four divisional races was settled Monday night when the Cincinnati Reds nailed down their third National League West crown in four seasons by defeating San Diego 2-1.

That leaves only the NL East still undecided with five teams still alive in the season's final week. Pittsburgh remains one-half game behind the New York Mets there after splitting a twilight doubleheader with Montreal.

The second place Pirates lost the opener to the Expos 5-4 but took the nightcap 3-0. Elsewhere in the NL, it was Houston 10, San Francisco 6. In the American League, Boston walloped Detroit 14-0, California beat Texas 10-9 and Minnesota nipped Oakland 7-6.

The Reds took the traditional champagne shower in stride after clinching the NL West. "I think we're more subdued this time," said catcher Johnny Bench. "We're waiting for the third step — the World Series — rather than getting excited over the first one."

The Reds also won West titles and NL pennants in 1970 and 1972 only to be beaten in the Series both times.

One guy who did get worked up over the clinching was pitcher Dick Baney, who hasn't been through this before. "It's the ultimate," said Baney, "the day I dreamed about as a kid."

Baney, who spent the first part of this season being cut by two minor league clubs, got to pitch the clincher and earned the victory on home runs by Tony Perez and Andy Kosco.

The Reds' clinching victory was their 58th in 81 games since July 1 when they were 11 games behind.

Expos 5-0, Pirates 4-3

Willie Stargell homered in each game as Pittsburgh split with Montreal, losing the third game 5-4 but taking the nightcap 3-0. The two homers gave the Pirate slugger 44, tops in the majors. He has had 32 hits in 90 at bats with eight homers and 24 runs batted in this month.

Their first game loss left the Pirates even in that important category with idle New York. The Mets have six games remaining and the Pirates, who have one less victory than New York, have seven to play.

Mike Marshall nailed down the Expos' first game victory, picking up his 30th save of the season when he retired Al Oliver with runners at second and third in the ninth inning.

The nightcap belonged to Stargell, who homered, made an outstanding catch on Ken Singleton and threw out a runner trying to score.

Astros 10, Giants 6

Lee May and Cesar Cedenro crashed home runs, leading Houston to a 10-6 victory over San Francisco. May's homer was his 28th and Cedenro's three-run shot was No. 24 for him.

Jerry Reuss earned the victory with ninth inning help from Ken Forsch.

Red Sox 14, Tigers 0

Boston moved one game ahead of Detroit in the struggle for second place in the American League East, walloping the Tigers 14-0.

Tommy Harper's grand slam home run paced the Red Sox attack with Carl Yastrzemski and Reggie Smith also tagging Boston home runs.

California 10, Texas 9

Lee Stanton's pinch double capped a two-out ninth inning rally that carried California past Texas, 10-9.

The Rangers had scored seven runs in the top of the ninth to take the lead but the Angels loaded the bases in the bottom of the ninth with two out. A pair of walks to Richie Scheinblum and Charlie Sands forced home two runs before Stanton delivered the decisive hit.

Alex Johnson had three singles and three RBIs for Texas.

Twins' A's 6

Minnesota roared from behind with five runs in the seventh inning, two of them on a double by George Mitterwald, to overtake Oakland 7-6.

Reggie Jackson blasted a three-run homer for the A's, his 32nd of the season but first since Aug. 22.

Oakland Manager Dick Williams, preparing for a possible World Series when his pitchers will have to bat, used four of them as pinch hitters. Catfish Hunter singled, Ken Holtzman walked, Darold Knowles delivered a sacrifice fly and Vida Bluegit.

Top Three Continue; State Drops To 19th

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
Associated Press Sports Writer
Southern California, Nebraska and Ohio State continued to run 1-2-3 today in The Associated Press college football rankings while Louisiana State replaced Texas in the Top Ten.

Southern California, which has been No. 1 since the first week of the 1972 season, ran its 1973 record to 2-0 by defeating Georgia Tech 23-6. The Trojans received 36 first-place votes and 1,120 points from the 61 sports writers and broadcasters who voted in this week's poll.

Twelve first-place votes and 1,022 points went to Nebraska, which rallied with three touchdowns in the fourth quarter to turn back North Carolina State, dropping the Wolfpack from 14th to 19th.

Ohio State was idle last weekend following a 56-7 opening game rout of Minnesota and the Buckeyes polled eight first-place ballots and 955 points.

Last week, the spread was 1-106-995-944.

Michigan received one vote for the top spot and 844 after trimming Stanford 47-10 and the Wolverines climbed from fifth place to fourth. Alabama slipped from fourth to fifth with one first-place vote and 766 points when the Crimson Tide had to rally from a 14-0 halftime deficit to beat Kentucky 28-14.

Texas, sixth last week, was upset by Miami of Florida 20-15, and skidded to 14th while Miami, which hadn't received a single vote all season, moved into 18th place.

With Texas dropping out of the Top Ten, Penn State, Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Tennessee and Louisiana State all moved up one position into the 6-7-8-9-10 spots. Penn State thumped Navy 39-0, Notre Dame battered Northwestern 44-0, Oklahoma was idle, Tennessee downed Army 37-18 and Louisiana State defeated Texas A&M 28-23.

Auburn climbed from 12th to 11th by blanking UT-Chattanooga 31-0 while Oklahoma State jumped from 17th to 12th following a 38-6 rout of Arkansas.

Rounding out the Second Ten are Arizona State, Texas, Houston, Florida, UCLA, Miami, North Carolina State and Missouri.

Last week's Second Ten consisted of LSU, Auburn, Arizona State, N.C. State, Florida, Houston, Oklahoma, UCLA, Colorado and Bowling Green and Missouri tied for 20th.

Colorado, which lost its opener to LSU, barely beat Wisconsin 28-25 and fell from the Top Twenty.

The Top Twenty with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Cougars Opening

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — The Carolina Cougars meet Phoenix of the National Basketball Association tonight at Durham. The game opens a string of four exhibitions in five nights for the American Basketball Association Cougars.

All games will be against NBA teams. The Cougars will play Atlanta at Raleigh on Thursday; Friday they meet the Capitol Bullets at Wilmington; and Saturday they play Boston at Greensboro.

In two exhibitions this year, the Cougars lost to Virginia and beat Atlanta last week. Carolina won the ABA East Division last year.

2nd PRIZE

$10.00

CONTEST RULES

- Thirty-two football games are placed in the ads on these pages. Pick the winner of each game (not the score) and write the team name opposite the advertiser's name on the entry blank. The entrant picking the most correct winners each week will be awarded $15.00. Second place $10.00.
- Pick a number which you think will be the most number of points scored by both teams in any one of the week's games listed and write your answer in the space provided on the entry blank. This will be used to break ties. In the event of a further tie the money will be equally divided between the winning entrants.
- Only one entry per week per person. The contest is open to all except employees of The Daily Reflector and their immediate families.
- Entries must be in The Daily Reflector office not later than 5:00 p.m. Friday or post marked not later than Friday p.m. Address entries to: "FOOTBALL CONTEST", P. O. Box 1967, Greenville, N.C. (Reasonable Facsimiles also accepted)

DUNKEL INDEX

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against opposition of identical strength. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Asks Court Reject Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked a federal court to reject the Senate Watergate committee's bid for his Watergate tapes, claiming a president is answerable to Congress only in an impeachment action.

Nixon made the argument through his lawyers in a 71-page brief filed Monday with the U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica.

The White House lawyers argued that the President is not subject to the demands of an individual congressional committee. And, to Congress as a whole, the brief said, the President "is answerable to only one constitutional proceeding," impeachment.

The committee's suit for the tapes is separate from one filed by special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox which is currently before a federal appeals court.

Nixon has refused to release to either the committee or Cox the tapes of his conversations with aides, including former presidential counsel John W. Dean III. Dean has testified that Nixon knew about the Watergate cover-up; the President denies such knowledge.

WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Sept. 13 through Sept. 19.

HOUSE

SCHOOL LUNCHEES Rejected, 127 for and 227 against, an amendment to keep the school lunch subsidy at eight cents per meal served. As a result of the rejection, the subsidy may be increased to ten cents per lunch served.

The federal school lunch program provides money for breakfasts and lunches served by schools which voluntarily follow certain federal guidelines on the nutritional content of their meals. Participating schools must also provide free or reduced-cost lunches to needy pupils.

The bill, with its ten cent subsidy intact, now goes to the Senate.

Those voting for said the $84 million total price tag of the two-cent increase is inflationary. They said an increase in the basic subsidy level benefits rich as well as poor students, and argued for selective aid to those who need it, such as a proposed increase from 40 to 45 cents in the subsidy level for free lunches.

Those voting against said participating schools are caught in a squeeze between higher food and labor costs and the need to serve inexpensive meals. They said that without the two-cent increase students from marginal, middle-income families will drop out of the programs, which depend on high volume participation to keep costs down.

Rep. James Martin (R-9) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L.H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Wilmer Mizell (R-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), Earl Ruth (R-8), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-) voted "nay."

VETO SUSTAINED Sustained, 259 for and 164 against, the President's veto of the $2.20 minimum wage bill. The vote fell 23 votes short of the two-thirds majority needed to override the veto.

The bill called for raising the present $1.60 minimum wage to $2.00 immediately and to $2.20 per hour on July 1, 1974. First-time coverage would have been extended to an estimated seven million workers, such as household maids, seasonal farm laborers and government employees. Most newly-covered workers would not receive the $2.20 rate until July 1, 1976.

Those voting for argued that inflation has gobbled up the 1968 increase to $1.60, and that minimum wage increases do not cause inflation or unemployment. They said America's low-income workers deserve a higher standard of living.

Those voting against argued that the measure would create inflation because the $2.20 level is too high and would be reached too quickly. They called for a substitute bill that offers incentives to employers for hiring teen-age workers, who presently suffer from the nation's highest unemployment rates. They also urged that fewer new workers be covered by the minimum wage.

Henderson, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea." Jones, Fountain, Mizell, Ruth, and Martin voted "nay."

SPORTS BLACKOUTS Passed, 336 for and 37 against, a bill lifting hometown blackouts on the television of professional football, baseball, basketball and hockey games. The bill permits, for a three-year period, telecasts to home fans of games that are sold-out at least 72 hours in advance, and ends a 23-year policy of the National Football League that blacked out telecasts of games within a 75-mile radius of the home stadium.

The Senate then passed the bill and it was signed into law.

Jones, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Fountain, Henderson, Mizell and Ruth voted "nay."

SENATE

PENSION PLANS Passed, 93 for and 0 against, a reform of private pension plans that sets federal standards to protect workers and limits the use of pension plans as tax shelters.

Highlights of the reform are: 1) a federal insurance program to protect workers whose companies or pension plans go bankrupt; 2) protection of workers' rights to some benefits when they leave a company before retirement age; 3) "portability" or transfer of pension equity when workers switch jobs, if new and old employers agree, and 4) assurances that after 15 years of payment a worker is entitled to receive 100 per cent of his benefits upon retirement.

These provisions will take effect January 1, 1976 for existing plans and immediately upon enactment for new plans.

The bill also sets a $75,000 per year maximum that persons can deduct from taxable income as payment into pension plans. Some corporate executives, lawyers and other professionals pay as much as $150,000 of their yearly salaries into pension plans, which allows deferring payment of income taxes on this money until it is drawn as retirement benefits.

Existing private pension plans have more than $150 billion in assets, cover 30 million workers and each year pay out $8 billion in benefits.

The bill now goes to the House. Sens. Sam Ervin (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "yea." TAX LOOPHOLES Rejected, 32 for and 59 against, an amendment to the pension reform bill (above) that would have set a $45,000 limit on the amount of yearly pension-plan payments that can be deducted from taxable income.

Supporters argued that the use of pension plan payments as tax write-offs costs the country $4 billion a year in lost taxes. They said a $75,000 limit (eventually approved by the Senate) does not go far enough in relieving small tax payers of the burden of making up revenues lost through the loopholes.

Opponents argued that corporations use liberal pension plans to entice qualified executives to work for their companies, and that lowering maximum deductions would hinder corporate recruitment. Some of them contended that Congress cannot put limits on the compensation a company offers to its employees.

Ervin voted "yea" and Helms voted "nay."

Ass't Provost At ECU Named

DR. SUSAN MCDANIEL

Dr. Susan J. McDaniel has been appointed assistant provost at East Carolina University. She has been a member of the ECU biology faculty since September, 1967.

Dr. McDaniel is a native of Kansas and holds BS and MS degrees from Kansas State Teachers College. In addition to her PhD study at the University of Oklahoma, she has done post-graduate study at Kansas State University and the Woods Hole Marine Biological Laboratory.

Dr. Robert L. Holt, ECU vice chancellor and dean, said "We are very pleased that Dr. McDaniel agreed to accept this responsibility."

"We believe she will prove a very valuable asset to the Provost's office, especially in her ability to work with students."

A specialist in ecology and animal behavior, Dr. McDaniel has held fellowships sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the National Institutes of Health.

Her career has included various teaching positions and research assistantships with Standard Oil Company and the University of Georgia's Sapelo Island Marine Institute.

She is a member of several honorary societies and professional organizations and has published results of her research in scientific journals.

Recently she collaborated with her husband, Dr. James S. McDaniel of the ECU biology faculty, in extensive research on parasites of mollusks. At the 1972 convention of the North Carolina Academy of Sciences, she chaired the zoology section.

Farmville Mart Volume 'Heavy'

FARMVILLE—The volume of sales yesterday was heavy on the Farmville Tobacco Market. Leaf grades and cutters accounted for most of the volume while primings and lugs accounted for approximately 10 percent of sales.

Fewer grades on nondescript grades appeared on the warehouse floors yesterday than any previous day this season.

According to Louis Williams, sales supervisor, prices on some grades of leaf and smoking leaf were from $1 to $3 higher than last week.

The market yesterday sold 556,270 pounds of leaf for $519,587 for an average of $93.41 per hundred pounds. To date, the market has sold 9,743,693 pounds for $8,655,702, for an average per hundred pounds of $88.82 for the season.

Earns PhD. In Germany

Peter Rolf Mueller-Roemer, a member of the East Carolina University mathematics faculty for the past three years, was awarded the PhD degree on July 4 at the University of Bielefeld, Bielefeld, Germany.

Dr. Mueller-Roemer did his preparatory study at the University of Heidelberg under the direction of Prof. Dr. Horst Leptin. Prof. Leptin moved to the University of Bielefeld last year, so Dr. Mueller-Roemer took his oral examinations and received the degree from that institution.

Dr. Mueller-Roemer was invited to present a one-hour lecture on his dissertation at the International Conference on Harmonic Analysis held August 26-September 1 at the Research Institute of Oberwolfach in the Black Forest.

U.S. Recognizes Chilean Regime

By ROBERT D. OHMAN

Associated Press Writer

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) —

The United States formally has recognized the military regime in Chile, just three days after the Soviet Union broke relations with the anti-Communist junta that overthrew Marxist President Salvador Allende.

"We have indicated our desire to maintain relations," said a State Department spokesman in Washington, confirming an announcement earlier Monday by the Chilean Foreign Ministry. There was no other official comment.

Panama, Haiti and Venezuela also recognized the junta Monday, bringing to about 20 the number of nations extending recognition.

Washington's action was expected to be followed speedily by requests from Anaconda, Kennecott and other U.S. copper companies for the junta to open negotiations on their claims for compensation for their Chilean holdings.

Allende nationalized the copper mines at the start of his administration, one of few of his actions that had the support of most of his opposition as well as his leftist supporters. But he also refused to pay the American companies compensation, claiming they owed the country $757 million in excess profits realized since 1955. The companies are hopeful that the junta will reverse this stand.

Proposals to pay the American companies are not likely to find much support among the Chilean people, and the junta would have a hard time finding the money. But it is badly in need of foreign investment to help with rehabilitation of the economy. An agreement with the copper companies might help calm the suspicions of potential investors that their money wouldn't be safe.

The military leadership kicked out Cuba's diplomats as one of its first acts and later cut diplomatic relations with North Korea. The Soviet Union and East Germany broke with the junta last Friday.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: After some delays and obstacles in a.m., you find yourself later very much in tune with those you like and able to handle matters well. Be cooperative.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Handle personal affairs early so you can later sit down with an associate and plan future operations. Some civic venture could prove helpful, interesting.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make everything around you more artistic and charming, functional. A co-worker could prove difficult early, but later cooperates.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Not good for financial things, but excellent for the personal. Put your finest talents to work. Don't permit another to step all over you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen more to what kin have to suggest, since your ideas are a little off now. Take care of basic matters and show your practical side.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You feel below par, but perk up and you get much accomplished. Telephone friends, visit, and make business calls in person that can be profitable. Entertain in p.m.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are bent on getting financial affairs handled well. Don't permit some emotional individual to waste your time. Cut expenses with improved budget.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You are charming, magnetic and can accomplish much both in business and socially, so get at work and play early. Evening is particularly happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Go along with present set-up, as untried ventures could lead you into real trouble. Any data available gives you understanding.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be with good pals who are helpful and become a happier person. Discuss future goals and get their advice. Don't overspend.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You can certainly get the backing now from higher-ups you need for career purposes. Be active in civic affairs. A blunt person is really your best friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Show new contacts you are willing to help them socially or in business and gain their goodwill. Meet with individuals of different background from yours, and get data.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Use intuitive faculties to accomplish much. Don't go off on fun tangents that could be costly and unsatisfactory. Enjoy good friends in p.m.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who is naturally conservative, but has the wisdom to know with whom to ally self for some mutual activities that are profitable. Will get an early start in making money. Teach early to control the emotions, otherwise the fine promise here will be lessened causing unhappiness. Teach cleanliness while young, and give good religious training in the home.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Opening lead: King of ♠

A field of some 1,500 teams from across the length and breadth of North America entered the Grand National team championship, eventually won by the Florida team of William Seamon, Robert Sharp, Russ Arnold, Richard Pavlicek, Jim Beery and Jane Jaeger. Their victory earned them a place in the playoff to determine North America's representatives in next year's World Team Championship. This hand came up in their semifinal match against a New England team.

North's opening bid is a trifle weak, but he did not want to pass a fair hand with a six-card major suit. Thereafter, nothing could keep South, who had a full opening bid, out of game. And, indeed, he would have made his ambitious three no trump contract had not West, Richard Pavlicek, made a superb defensive play.

The opening lead was won by dummy's ace, and declarer was faced with a communications problem. Since he did not want to cross to his hand with the ace of spades, he elected to lead a low heart from the table. East won the jack and returned a club, declarer playing the ten and West winning with the queen. The defender continued with the nine of clubs, dummy's jack winning. Another heart was led to East's king, and he exited with a diamond.

Declarer won the king and led a low spade, intending to finesse the ten. He would then force out the ace of hearts, and that would set up three heart tricks while the king of spades was still in dummy to serve as an entry.

Unfortunately for the best-laid plans, West was well aware of the situation. Instead of routinely playing second hand low, he inserted the queen of spades, and declarer was a gone goose. He could win in dummy with the king and establish his heart tricks, but there was no way to get back to dummy to enjoy them. Even though the queen of diamonds dropped on the second round of the suit, declarer could make no more than eight tricks—three spades, three diamonds and two clubs.

Former Union Chief In Coma

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Former United Mine Workers President W. A. "Tony" Boyle was in a coma today at a Washington hospital after suffering a possible stroke.

Boyle, who faced murder charges in the killings of union insurgent Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski and Yablonski's wife and daughter, was listed in serious condition.

A 4 a.m. EDT hospital statement said Boyle's condition was "not stable and he has not gained consciousness."

Boyle, 71, stricken Monday night at his home, was rushed to George Washington University Hospital and was in a coma upon arrival, a hospital spokesman said.

Boyle was in the hospital's intensive care unit, the spokesman said.

A hearing had been scheduled for today before a federal magistrate on Boyle's removal from Washington to Pennsylvania to face the charges in the 1969 Yablonski killings.

The Yablonski deaths occurred three weeks after Boyle defeated Yablonski in a hard-fought election for the UMW presidency. Boyle was defeated last year by Arnold E. Miller, a Yablonski ally, in a court-ordered rerun of the election.

The 'Worry Clinic' The Ego Must Be Satisfied

Beware of "Alan's Ailment." Though tall, handsome and a college graduate, he was a "one-date" suitor, for girls avoided second dates with him. Then he started using some psychological strategy. See what happened! Wives, too, can avoid divorce thereby!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Y-525: Alan D., aged 24, is a brilliant engineering graduate.

"But, Dr. Crane," his worried mother began, "Alan doesn't win friends."

"And he can't seem to hold the interest of girls, though he is good looking."

"Yet his father and I would like to have him get married and give us some grandchildren."

"So, what is wrong with an intelligent, handsome young man like Alan, for he likes girls and they seldom give him more than one date?"

Alan's Ailment

Alan's ailment is shared by millions of men and women.

In fact, it is one reason why graduates of girl's colleges often have a handicap at getting husbands!

For this ailment is the Narcissus Complex!

Don't you remember the Greek youth who fell in love with his own reflection in the water?

The focus of unhappy people is on their own epidermis and its contents.

We call it extreme introversion of personality.

Yet the popular folks focus on their human companions and try to make the latter happy via honest compliments and cheery greetings to them.

Success vs. failure can thus be merely a matter of your focal point.

Jesus demonstrated this same idea beautifully when he came down to the sea shore to find that his Apostles had fished all night without catching anything.

Did Christ reprimand them for failure to go back to college for a refresher course in piscatorial science?

Or scold them for using patched nets?

Did he urge them to buy an outboard motor and modernize the old fishing boat they had used without success all night? Not at all!

LAST DAY! "HAMMER OF GOD" (R)

The same boat and patched nets and the very same men, who were then total failures, held all the potential for outstanding success, except for their focal point.

Jesus merely told them to toss their nets on the other side of the boat!

The shift of 180 degrees almost swamped the boat with an avalanche of fish!

Alan and his unpouar colleagues, both male and female, simply need the same 180-degree shift.

At present they stress their own accomplishments excessively.

For they think that if they can appear very important, then their companions will wish to see them often.

Alas, those colleagues also are branded by this same invisible tattoo:

"I WANT TO FEEL IMPORTANT!"

So the more that Alan toots his own horn, the more inferior instead of important does his girl friend feel.

And when we are deflated in ego, we dislike the situation or person producing that result.

So I urged Alan to launch deliberately upon the "Compliment Club" strategy. Within 30 days he was no longer a one-date male!

In 6 months he not only won a wife but became so talented in dealing with people that his firm transferred him to their sales engineering field.

So send for "The Compliment Club" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Many schools are using it to extrovert shy, tongue-tied teenagers.

And if you wives will apply its technique, you need never lose your husband!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Demand Lifting All Gasoline Controls

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Disgruntled gasoline dealers in California returned to their pumps today while some Indiana service station operators continued a shutdown to protest Phase 4 price controls.

President Nixon on Monday ordered a hike in retail gasoline prices expedited, but an official of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers warned that a "national closedown" might develop if the controls on gasoline were not lifted completely.

John Huemmrich, executive director of the gas dealers group, said: "Just giving a crumb is not going to satisfy us. We'd like to have a piece of bread."

He commented after the White House announced that the President had ordered Cost of Living Council Director John T. Dunlop to expedite action on a retail price increase and "get a decision out this week."

But Huemmrich asserted: "If the council decides to give us one cent (a gallon) or two cents even ... they're not giving us a darn thing. The oil companies have already taken that from us last month by increases they passed on to us."

He said that, unless dealers are able to pass on to customers all increases in wholesale gasoline prices, "we will be faced, I'm almost certain, with a national closedown."

Obituaries

Forbes

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Mr. Gene Wallace Forbes of 2847 Gainesville Street, S. E. here died Saturday in a New York hospital after a brief illness.

Memorial services will be conducted Thursday at 2 p.m. at Little Creek Free Will Baptist Church near Ayden by his pastor, Elder J. L. Wilson.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday at 11 a.m. at Capitol View Baptist Church, corner of Division Avenue and Ames Street, N. E., here by the Rev. Andrew Folter. Burial will be in Lincoln Memorial Cemetery in Maryland.

Son of Kate and Mrs. Marybell Smith Forbes of Rt. 2, Ayden, he was a native of the Helen's Crossroads community, but had lived here for the past 16 years. He was member of Little Creek Church and a veteran of the Korean conflict.

Surviving him besides his parents, are his wife, Mrs. Alice O'Neal Forbes of the home; a daughter, Miss Donna Forbes of the home; a brother, Cpl. Curtis Ray Forbes of Fort Bragg; a sister, Mrs. Mary Louise Williams of Rt. 2, Ayden.

The body will be at the Norcott and Company Downtown Chapel Wednesday at 6 p.m. until it is carried to the church one hour before the funeral. The family visitation at the chapel will be from 8 to 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Gray

Mr. James E. Gray, 22, died early Monday morning at his home near Greenville.

Funeral services will be conducted at four o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the Wilkerson Funeral Chapel by the Rev. Lotis Joyner, pastor of the Hopewell Pentecostal Holiness Church. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park.

Mr. Gray was born and spent most of his life in Pitt County and attended the Chicod School. He was married to Linda Gay Coward of New Bern in 1970 and since that time had lived in New Bern. He was employed as service manager for S.B. Parker Air Condition Co.

NOT MUCH LOVING

MENTONE, Tex. (UPI) — Loving County, located on the New Mexico border east of El Paso, is the least populated county in Texas and perhaps the United States, with 164 residents as of 1970. It also was the last county formed in the state and that was in 1931.

Shultz Expects Basic Surplus

By FRED COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — U.S. Treasury secretary George P. Shultz said today that he expects the U.S. balance of payments to show a basic surplus next year for the first time in more than a decade.

Shultz also told the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank that the U.S. trade balance should show a surplus next year after being in deficit since 1971.

"Surpluses in both our trade and basic payments position now appear in sight for next year," said Shultz in his first forecast of 1974 surpluses for the two key economic indicators.

The prospect of a surplus in the U.S. balance of payments is "indispensable for full restoration of confidence" in the dollar and "for implementing any lasting monetary reform," he said.

Shultz said that, "with good will and intensive technical work," a comprehensive agreement reforming the international monetary system can be ready "as soon as next spring."

At a meeting last weekend, Shultz and the other finance ministers of the Committee of 20 leading trading nations set July 31, 1974, as the target date for such an agreement.

Shultz also made these major points:

—He rejected a suggestion by the IMF's new managing director, Johannes Witteveen of the Netherlands, that governments move gradually toward restoring fixed exchange rates while the debate on monetary reform continues. Shultz said the U.S. government expects to see the present system of floating rates continue until the reform agreement is ready.

—The United States still opposes the distribution of the IMF's special drawing rights to poor nations as aid. He said this threatens the drawing rights' main purpose: Replacing the dollar and gold as the major reserve asset financing world trade.

—The Nixon administration would recommend to Congress that it put up $1.5 billion of the $4.5 billion the World Bank is seeking for its development-loan program for the three years beginning next July.

Another speaker at the meeting, West German Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt, predicted that next year "we will be approaching the era of a stable rate of the U.S. dollar reflecting its true value."

On monetary reform, Schmidt said he favored the use of several currencies to prop up a troubled currency, tight controls on the amount of world money that is created and the forcing of countries with balance-of-payment surpluses to change the value of their currencies.

The United States also favors a requirement that a nation revalue its currency when its reserves get too big. But Japan's finance minister, Kiichi Aichi, said at the conference that the idea might be difficult to put into practice.

The U.S. proposal would use monetary reserves as an automatic international indicator of when currency changes are needed. But Aichi commented: "In no country has a computer been appointed minister of finance."

with the trustees information from two recent studies. In a study of economic contribution by staff and faculty at Pitt Tech to Pitt County. Young reported that the economic impact on Pitt County by the PTI employees was approximately $3.2 million. A "new program" survey in the county revealed several new programs desired by the citizens of Pitt County.

According to a desirability index used in the survey, the ten programs mentioned most often, in order of priority, were plumbing, industrial mechanics, welding, auto body, Agricultural equipment, marketing and retailing, diesel mechanic, food service, industrial management and sheet metal worker.

The biggest hindrance to offering these programs, according to Chairman White, is the lack of facilities.

Argentina is the world's fifth wine producer, and has the largest wine cellar.

"Not that we will call it," Huemmrich added. "We won't have to call it for the simple reason dealers are closing down one by one because they can't continue in business."

A leader of the protest shutdown in California took a more hopeful view of Nixon's action Monday.

"Beautiful, beautiful," said Bob Moore, executive secretary of the California Service Station Dealers Association. "This is the guy we were trying to reach."

The California State Automobile Association estimated 75 to 85 per cent of Northern California gas stations were closed Monday, the final day of the three-day protest.

He said that, unless dealers are able to pass on to customers all increases in wholesale gasoline prices, "we will be faced, I'm almost certain, with a national closedown."

Ervin, Helms

Voted Against

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both of North Carolina's U.S. senators, Democrat Sam Ervin Jr. and Republican Jesse Helms, were on the losing side in a 53-34 roll call by which the Senate voted to raise the federal subsidy for the school lunch program from eight to 12 cents.

Ervin and Helms voted against the proposal Monday.

Clean Up

There will be a "Clean Up, Fix Up" campaign in the West Meadowbrook Neighborhood here Saturday at 9 a.m.

Led by Mrs. F.P. Jackson, the Rev. Fred Teel, and Mrs. Christine Lewis, the participants will meet at the Meadowbrook Day Care Center. According to City Codes Enforcement Officer Alton Warren, the City of Greenville will provide trucks and other heavy equipment to help in the clean up effort.

Most Indiana service station closings were in the Indianapolis area, where a Hoosier Motor Club survey reported 392 of the city's 498 stations shut down Monday.

Indiana Gov. Otis R. Bowen said he sympathized with the dealers. "They have to resort to some measure to draw attention to their plight."

Richard F. Messer, president of the Greater Indianapolis Gasoline Dealers Association, said the shutdown would continue at least through Friday unless the Cost of Living Council acted before then.

About 100 Mobil and Shell dealers in Syracuse, N.Y., closed Monday to protest a one cent a gallon price hike by the oil companies.

In Maryland, a spokesman for the Maryland Independent Retail Service Station Association said a protest shutdown affected about 60 per cent of dealers in the Baltimore and Eastern Shore areas.

An impromptu shutdown in the Washington, D.C., area involved less than half the gas stations in Maryland suburbs, only a few in the district and virtually none in suburban Virginia.
