

City Council Votes Hiring Architect In Pool Dispute

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
The City Council has voted, four to three, to accept the recommendation of the Recreation Commission to employ an architect for the construction of a municipal swimming pool and bath house.

Following a lengthy discussion that almost amounted to a rehashing of points brought out at the Sept. 20 Recreation Commission meeting, Council members Percy Cox, Mildred McGrath, and Dr. Frank Fuller voted to accept the recommendation while Bill Dansey, John Taylor and Clarence Gray voted against the motion. Mayor Eugene West broke the tie in favor of adoption.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen, explained that the $150,000 project is at a point now where plans and specifications are ready to be developed, said that several architectural firms in the state expressed an interest in providing services and after discussions with three of these, it was concluded that Greenville architect William Friend "represents the type of design assistance that is desirable on this project."

Carstarphen suggested that an architectural firm be employed that would be responsible to the Council and supervise construction of the pool. "I would like to have a professional design technician responsible to us in this project," he asserted.

In opposing a recommendation to hire an architect, Dansey said he does not feel such services are needed and are not legally required. He produced a letter from the Attorney General's office which he said explained that architectural services are not required by law.

Noting that he has information from Carolina Pools indicating that the firm could submit drawings and specifications of a pool "that we feel are adequate," Dansey said that he does not feel that money should be spent for the services when they are not needed.

Ray Martinez, health and physical education professor at East Carolina University, and Ray Scharf, swimming coach at ECU, submitted a letter to the council saying, "As advisors to the Recreation Committee on the planning and design of the city swimming pool, we have followed with great interest the steps toward the finalization of the plans for the pool."

They added, "With over 50 years of combined experience in aquatics, we feel that we can be of service to the city in this venture. It is our expressed opinion that employing an architect is an unnecessary expenditure since swimming pool companies employ their own architects to design pools, considering beauty, reliability of structure and operation."

The men also pointed to the qualifications of city engineer Charles Holliday as an "outstanding and well qualified engineer... who is able to oversee this operation. We are also willing to volunteer our knowledge and experience to this project."

West said that he would be "strenuously opposed to putting any more work" on Holliday. He said that "at the present time he is already overloaded."

He asserted that the Recreation Commission should be given a chance to work, noting that the body made their recommendations and "I'm not in favor of sending the matter back" to the commission.

The council voted to have Recreation Department director Boyd Lee turn over the preliminary specifications and drawings developed by the Recreation Commission and its advisory committee to Friend to use in developing the final pool plans.

Dansey offered a motion that fees for the architectural services be provided out of revenue sharing funds, if necessary, and would be in addition to what has already been allocated for the project.

The contractual agreement with the architect would provide for a basic fee of nine per cent of the construction costs for the pool and seven per cent of construction of costs for the bathhouse.

Friend said that he would begin work immediately on the project. Members of the Greenville Utilities Commission discussed at length with council men the matter of recent revisions in the utility rates.

Appearing at the invitation of West, Utilities director Charles Horne explained that the wholesale cost of electric power purchased by the commission from VEPCO increased 23 per cent in January of this year.

He said that the June adjustments in rates were based on the new wholesale costs using a schedule filed by VEPCO with the North Carolina Utilities Commission. The rates were further adjusted in September, Horne noted, to be competitive with those approved by the state commission for VEPCO.

Noting that there are three major factors involved in the cost of electric service to consumers; cost of power purchased, cost to deliver power to consumer's meter, and cost to extend facilities to meet consumers growing needs, Horne said that all current rates reflect different

U.S. Job Picture Is Basically Unchanged

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation's unemployment rate stood stubbornly at 4.8 per cent last month as a larger than expected number of teen-agers remained on the job, the government said today.

The Labor Department, reporting an essentially unchanged nationwide job picture for the fourth straight month, said the labor force—the number of people holding and seeking jobs—fell less than it usually does in September because more teen-agers decided to continue working rather than return to school.

Because of this situation, the department figured that total employment increased by 700,000 by taking seasonal factors into account. It was the first monthly increase in employment since June.

The labor force usually declines sharply in September as young people return to school. The decline was so mild this year that the department figured a seasonally adjusted 750,000-person rise in the labor force, with teen-agers causing most of that increase. At the same time, this number of jobs declined less than usual for September, and the government figured a seasonally adjusted increase of 700,000 to 85.1 million.

Seasonal adjustment is used by government statisticians to discount seasonal fluctuations in job patterns.

The September report was a prime example of how that technique can show a rise in the number of people working and the labor force when there is an actual decline.

Actually, the civilian labor force dropped from 90.1 to 89 million and the number of people working fell from 85.9 million to 84.8 million.

The Nixon administration has predicted that the jobless rate would fall to about 4.5 per cent of the work force by the end of the year, then remain at that level well into next year.

The number of people out of work was essentially unchanged, the department said, remaining at 4.3 million. There was no change in the jobless rate for major groups in the labor force.

For heads of households it was 2.7 per cent, married men 2.1 per cent, adult men 3.1 per cent, adult women 4.8 per cent and teen-agers 14.4 per cent.

For black workers, the unemployment rates held at 9.4 per cent. It was 4.2 per cent for white workers.

For Vietnam veterans from 20 to 24, the jobless rate fell from 10.1 per cent to 7.6 per cent. But this rate was still higher than for nonveterans of the same age.

The average work week increased slightly to 37.2 hours last month. In manufacturing, the average work week edged ahead to 40.9 hours. There was a small increase in factory overtime.

The department figured that average hourly earnings rose by six cents to $3.97.

Greenville Selected For Human Resources Office

CHARLOTTE — David T. Flaherty, secretary of the North Carolina Department of Human Resources announced today that Greenville has been selected as one of four sites where regional Human Resources offices will be located.

The announcement by Flaherty came during a speech here before the annual meeting of the North Carolina Social Services Institute. In addition to Greenville, other regional office sites include Black Mountain, Winston-Salem and Fayetteville.

The Greenville office, according to Human Resources official, Craig Souza, will be located in Ragsdale Hall on the campus of East Carolina University. "pending final negotiations with ECU officials," on a lease agreement.

Souza said that the Department of Human Resources will probably require from 18,000 to 20,000 square feet of space in the dormitory, located on Fifth Street near the Library Street intersection.

He said from 75 to 100 people from division offices scattered across the state will be assigned to each of the four regional centers which will be "mini-Departments of Human Resources."

Flaherty said the regional office in Greenville "will increase our efficiency in the delivery of services by bringing the management team closer to the people without hiring additional personnel."

"In the past," he said, "a person has had to go to five or six different offices to receive the services our department provides. Now he can come by or call one location for these services."

According to Souza, the department hopes to have the regional facility in Greenville operational "by the first of the year."

Ragsdale Hall, constructed in 1923, has been used as a dormitory and has 93 rooms in 37,000 square feet of floor space.

Bill McDonald chairman of the Greenville Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association, which along with other community leaders worked hard to attract the regional office said this morning, "I'm excited."

He said, "I think it's comparable to a large industry," and emphasized that "a lot of people worked hard on it."

He said the location of the office here is the result of "another community effort... typical of Greenville and its progress."

Chamber of Commerce-Merchants Association manager Harold Creech said of the announcement, "this is great news for Greenville."

He said, "This center didn't locate here just because Greenville is a wonderful place, but rather because community leaders did a great deal of hard work in an effort to have the facility located here."

Creech noted too, that "special appreciation is due to officials at East Carolina University for their assistance."

Confer On Sharing Of Ulster Political Power

BELFAST (AP) — Amid tight security, Protestant and Roman Catholic politicians meet on the outskirts of Belfast today in search of a formula for sharing power in tense Northern Ireland.

The representatives of the province's one million Protestants and 500,000 Catholics will try to agree on a 12-man cabinet to govern Ulster, in line with a plan outlined by the British government.

If they fail, Britain may take away the province's separate identity and absorb it—a move most Protestants and Catholics would bitterly oppose. Many Catholics seek to unite Ulster with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic.

Police and British soldiers ringed Stormont Castle where the meeting was taking place, in anticipation of any possible violence by either Protestant or Catholic extremists. The hilltop castle was once the seat of Northern Ireland's old Protestant parliament which Britain abolished 18 months ago.

The two main participants in the meeting are the Social Democrats, a Catholic party, and the Unionists, who are Protestants. Clergyman Ian Paisley was expected to present a radical Protestant point of view. The liberal, non-sectarian Alliance party also planned to attend.

Militant Protestant factions have opposed sharing their power with the Catholics all along and last week said they would not attend the conference. The militant Catholic Irish Republican Army also has thrown cold water on the session.

Britain's administrator for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, was to preside.

The Unionists want to keep Ulster's links with Britain while retaining a degree of autonomy, while the Social Democrats look to the eventual union of the province with the Irish Republic, its Catholic neighbor.

Meanwhile, the violence which has claimed close to 900 lives in Ulster over the last five years, continued in downtown Belfast on Thursday as Protestants and Catholics clashed in the streets. Eighteen persons were reported injured.

Another eight were injured when a bomb hidden inside a beer keg—the trademark of Protestant extremists—exploded outside a Catholic-owned bar in the capital.

Seek A Marina For Bald Head

WILMINGTON (AP)—The Army Corps of Engineers has received an application to build a marina from Carolina Cape Fear Corp., developers of Bald Head Island.

The application was accompanied by a 300-page environmental impact projection paid for by the developers, according to president William R. Henderson.

Henderson was at the meeting of the American Shore and Beach Preservation Association Friday, as was Brig. Gen. C.N. LeTellier of the Corps.

The Bald Head application is for a 150-dock marina to be constructed on what is now high ground in the interior of the island. Henderson said it would not have an adverse effect on navigation.

Corps approval of the project depends in part on reports to be filed by various North Carolina agencies concerned with protecting the environment, Henderson said.

The Corps has already thrown one obstacle into the path of development at Bald Head, a marshy, sub-tropical island in the mouth of the Cape Fear River.

In 1972, it denied Carolina Cape Fear a permit to build a pier at the edge of the island.

At the same meeting, LeTellier said the Corps had no intention of asking Congress for authorization to take over Outer Banks beach erosion projects scheduled to be abandoned soon by the National Parks Service.

LeTellier said there probably would be a nationwide decrease in the amount of money allotted by Congress for new construction projects.

East's Need For Doctors Stressed At Williamston

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

WILLIAMSTON—Citizens from all over Eastern North Carolina were at Martin Technical Institute yesterday afternoon to greet a legislative committee studying health manpower needs in North Carolina and tell them just how badly the East needs doctors and how strongly this area supports the East Carolina University School of Medicine.

The legislators holding the hearing were Senators Billy Mills, Monk Harrington, Wesley Webster, and Vernon White and Representatives Jay Huskins, Gerald Arnold, Dr. John Gambill, and John Hunt.

Also present were members of a Health Subcommittee composed of Representatives John Henley, Horton Rountree and Julian Fenner.

First to address the committee was Dr. Bill Atkins of Bertie County. He told of his travels all over the country and once even to Europe to recruit an Army doctor to serve in his area. No young doctors will come here and even if they do, most leave because "they're overworked, they can make a third more with the same patient load in the Piedmont than here, and they want to have consulting and continuing education opportunities near at hand," he said. He said he sees the ECU Medical School and the Legislature's doing something about inequities in federal medical payments as two ways to alleviate the "hopelessness of the medical situation in Eastern North Carolina now."

Geoffrey Dick of Weyerhaeuser Corporation told of his company's support of better medical care in the East, including the giving of land for hospital at Plymouth and at Jacksonville and the pledge of $150,000 to the Washington County Hospital. He and Tom Brown, director of the Perquimans County Industrial Development Commission, both touched on the problems of recruiting industry to an area with such poor medical services.

Frederick Fountain of the Williamston Chamber of Commerce attacked "the blatant negativism of the vested interested in North Carolina."

Republican leader R. Frank Everett of Hamilton also blatted the "forces at UNC." He predicted that something will be done in 1974 because "I've never seen people so wrought up in my life as they are over the ECU Med School question." He further predicted "if Frank Rouse of Kinston becomes Republican chairman instead of Gov. Gene Anderson—I mean Gov. Holshouser's hand-picked man, Tom Bennett of Morehead City, two-thirds of the Republican legislators will support the Medical School at ECU."

Dr. Jack Koontz, a Greenville family physician, spoke from personal experience about doctors' wanting to be where there are other doctors. He said he started practicing in Black Mountain as the only doctor in town. For three years he had no time for his family, for vacations, or for continuing education because "if I went away, a diabetic might die." "One doctor in a town is not the answer. He said his present situation is ideal, in partnership with two other family physicians, so one can relieve the other as well as consult with the other."

He also brought up a change of policy in administering medical education loans as being wrong. This has been taken away from the Medical Care Commission and given to UNC, he indicated.

Carol Bailey of Washington County told how his community has spent $2½ million on a new hospital building and offices for doctors, with not many real prospects of filling either.

Dr. Joe Frank, Chief of Staff of the Roanoke-Chowan Hospital in Ahoskie attacked the myth that doctors don't want more doctors. "There's not a doctor in Eastern North Carolina that isn't carrying all the load he can and begging for help," he said. "This is beautiful country, a wonderful place to live and serve, but we need help." He also attacked a proposal in the recent consultants' report which he said called for bringing in foreign doctors. "They tell us to take doctors from undeveloped countries and bring them here to help us with our problems."

He also opposed subsidizing of medical education for black physicians at Meharry University in Tennessee. "North Carolina can send its money to Greenville, as well as it can to Nashville (Tenn.)," he said.

Mrs. Barbara Chapman of Washington, toward the end of the hearing, asked the question, "What can a private citizen do to improve health care here and support the ECU Medical School?"

Sen. Monk Harrington answered by inquiring how many newspapers were represented at the hearing and learning that neither the News and Observer or any other Piedmont ones were. "So in effect, we've been talking to ourselves today, telling one another things all of us know," he said. The main state newspaper won't carry anything about the meeting, and if they had been here, they wouldn't have quoted anybody except perhaps R. Frank Everett. This sounds good when we're down here, but when we get to Raleigh we find it isn't so easy, because there most everyone's opposes ECU on general principles. You've got to get out and take the message of just how critical things are down here all over the state. When you go into the Piedmont, you've got to talk. People there aren't bad. They just don't know, except what they've been told up there. We've got to go after statewide support and fight like we've never fought before to make the ECU Med School and adequate health care in Eastern North Carolina a reality."

Had 3 Collisions All In One Day

It was a bad day yesterday for at least one Greenville resident — Leroy Talton Cherry, 49 of 201 Lee St.

Cherry, according to Greenville police, was involved in three separate collisions during the day. And what's more, he was charged in connection with all three incidents.

Investigators reported the Cherry car first collided with a truck owned by Carolina Dairy Products on a private parking lot at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Center Street about 5:33 a.m.

An estimated $300 damage resulted to Cherry's car in that mishap while an estimated $75 damage was done to the truck.

Cherry was charged with driving under the influence in connection with that mishap.

At 8:30 a.m. Police reported, the Cherry car collided with a car driven by Edrington Harold Glenda of McLean, Va. at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and 14th Street.

Damage: $20 to the Cherry car and $75 to the Glenda auto.

Cherry, again, was charged. This time with driving under the influence (drugs) and failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Then at 6:03 p.m., according to officers, the Cherry car collided with a vehicle driven by Louise Russ Phelps of Greenville at the intersection of Dickinson Avenue and Memorial Drive.

Officers again charged Cherry — this time with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Damage in the third collision was set at $65 to the Cherry car and $100 to the Phelps auto.

No injuries were reported in the series of mishaps.

Other officers installed by Past Lt. Governor of the Seventh Division Bob Hill of Goldsboro were: Kenneth Dews, vice president; and James Black, secretary-treasurer. Four board of director members installed were Pete Eure, Blanie Moye, Ray Oglesby and James Wright.

Outgoing president Regan Jones presided at the meeting. Jerry Cribbs was in charge of the entertainment for the meeting.

Special guests included Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Dennis McLawhorn and Mrs. Vernon Cox.

Fair Enjoys 'Best' Thursday Evening

It was the Pitt County Fair's best Thursday night, fair manager S.C. Winchester said this morning of the estimated 3,500 persons that attended the fair last night.

Winchester said 1,789 adult tickets were sold and 709 children tickets purchased at the gate last night. The remainder of those attending the American Legion sponsored fair were admitted on passes, the manager explained.

Some 400 pre-schoolers, attending kindergarten classes in schools in Greenville and in Pitt County, attended the fair this morning for a special program.

The children toured the fair's main exhibit hall where more than 30 educational exhibits are on display as well as the livestock exhibit hall.

The children also viewed special displays and demonstrations put on by members of the Greenville Fire and Police Departments.

Police officers showed the children a patrol car, a police motorcycle and other police equipment, while firemen displayed a large fire engine and other equipment used in combating blazes.

Addition To The Middle School

The building will be used to replace the Bethel Primary School (former Bethel Elementary). After construction is completed, Bethel Middle School will be used for students in kindergarten through eight grade.

It was incorrectly stated in Wednesday's edition of The Daily Reflector that the classroom building would be added to the Bethel Primary School.

October 9 Is An Election Day

For those who are confused about upcoming elections, we remind that only Greenville and Farmville will go to the polls on Oct 9, next Tuesday to elect municipal officials.

The Farmville polling place will be open for the municipal election. In Greenville the nine precincts of the city will be open and residents will vote according to the precincts. Residents of Belvedere, Club Pines and Lynndale will find they now vote in Greenville 5 and this will continue for future elections. Greenfield Terrace residents will now vote in Greenville 1.

Greenville will be electing six councilmen and a mayor in a non-partisan election. In other words, candidates do not run by political party and there is no primary. If a run-off is required it will be held Nov. 6.

On Nov. 6 all the polling places in the county will be open for referendums on liquor-by-the drink, the $300 million school bond issue and the amendment to the Clean Water Bill. In addition on Nov. 6, the towns of Ayden, Bethel, Falkland, Fountain, Grifton, Grimesland and Winterville will be holding their municipal elections and voters will vote at their precinct places.

On both Oct. 9 and Nov. 6 the polls will be open from 6:30 a.m. until 7:30 p.m. Registration for the Oct. 9 elections has already closed; however potential voters may register through Oct. 8 for the Nov. 6 election. Registering may be done at the Board of Elections office on the third floor of the Pitt County Courthouse.

It is a lot to keep in mind to perform our civic duty of voting; however it is well to remember these important election dates for this year so that we can exercise the great privilege of voting of the candidates and issues that we chose.

Concessions Open The Door To More Terror

Austria says it is standing by its pledge to close a transit camp for emigrating Soviet Jews, despite a visit from Israeli Premier Golda Meir.

The pledge was extracted under duress from Austria by Arab guerillas.

It may be that Austria was happy to find a reason to close the transit camp. That nation, however, would do well to contemplate that once it makes concessions to terrorists it is opening itself to future acts of terror.

Connally Faces New Hostility

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — From his position of seeming unassailability as President Nixon's choice to succeed Spiro T. Agnew as Vice President, John B. Connally now confronts growing hostility from the conservative regulars who dominate the Republican party and outright threats of retaliation from his former Democratic brothers who would control his vice presidential confirmation.

That was not the way Mr. Nixon and neophyte Republican Connally had planned it when Agnew suddenly found himself in trouble eight weeks ago.

Republican strategists are convinced that the President and Connally made a deal under which Connally's nationwide tour would expose the Connally charm to Republican audiences. The purpose: to show that the former Texas Democrat could be as politically attractive a Republican campaigner as he had been. Mr. Nixon's Secretary of the Treasury.

The coast-to-coast exposure, which started in San Diego Sept. 8, would climax in an orgy of pro-Connally sentiment among Republican pros looking for a winner at the moment Agnew—according to the script—handed in his resignation. Connally's name would then be whisked to Capitol Hill for routine confirmation.

Agnew's stubborn refusal to play out the script has now brought Connally under sharply critical political focus. Although still a leading prospect to succeed, if Agnew is finally forced out, these blemishes show:

1. Agnew followers, in the phrase of one, are affronted by Connally's "obvious enthusiasm for Agnew's departure." They grumble that Connally has not hesitated to comment publicly on the Agnew case and even speculate on the vice presidential vacancy (in contrast to silence from the probable new favorite of the Republican right wing, Gov. Ronald Reagan of California). When Connally commented recently that the thought of being President would z"terrify" him, one Republican Senator called it improper speculation on Connally's part as well as palpable nonsense.

2. Despite Connally's stellar debut, at the California Republican convention on Sept. 8, in San Diego, his appearances elsewhere have left some political pros cold. In New York, Connally went to Westchester County's exclusive Blindbrook Club for an evening with top-drawer leaders of the old Eastern social and financial establishment. One wise party pro told us: "That was a mistake. That is one club that politicians are never allowed into." In other words, Connally's visit excited jealousy rather than admiration.

Connally's coattail appeal, moreover, is not universally appreciated. National Committee operatives here reveal they notified party leaders in New Jersey that Connally would be available for a speech to help the underdog Republican nominee for governor, Rep. Charles Sandman. Sandman has not asked him in.

3. Potentially worse for Connally was his notorious outburst three weeks ago that the Supreme Court is not necessarily the "ultimate arbiter" of constitutional disputes and his less widely noticed attack on congressional Democrats last week for playing "partisan politics" with the President's right to fill a vacant vice presidency.

Asked by CBS about Democratic fears that Agnew's successor would be given an unfair advantage in (Continued on page 7)

By ART BUCHWALD

Time Machine Falters

WASHINGTON — Americans are groggy from keeping up with all things happening to their government in the past year. So far, the people being blamed for this are the press, overzealous aides in the Nixon Administration, the Justice Department and the Senate Watergate committee.

But Teebold Ratameyer, a computer expert, has another theory. He thinks the Time Machine is out of synchronization. He feels that unless someone gets it back in order we will never be able to sort out our troubles. "As far as I know," he told me, "the Time Machine was working perfectly up until the election. Nixon received his mandate and the machine had been programmed to give us a peace with honor soon afterward. But then someone fed Watergate into the machine and it's been acting erratically ever since."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, for one thing, this is the first time in history that you've had gasoline rationing after a war was over. In fact it was only after we stopped fighting that we had shortages of any kind."

"It does sound haywire," I admitted.

"Now look at Watergate. The Time Machine was programmed for a scandal in Nixon's Administration... every Administration must have at least one. But Watergate produced a dozen, plus two constitutional crises in one year."

"Two?"

"That's correct. You have the question of the President being forced to give up his tapes, and you have the question of whether a Vice President can be indicated for a crime before he's impeached. In the past, the Time Machine has only given us one constitutional crisis every 20 years."

"Maybe someone has speeded up the machine," I suggested.

"That's a possibility," Ratameyer said. "It might explain the rate of inflation. We know that we must expect a certain amount of inflation every year, but what's been happening in the last six months is ridiculous. Only a Time Machine that's gone completely berserk could allow prices to increase at the rate they have."

"Do you think the Democrats have been messing with the Time Machine to make Nixon look bad?"

"I doubt it," said Ratameyer. "They're just as much victims of it as the Republicans. Here they have the greatest political scandal in the history of the nation, and they don't even know what to do with it. Anyone who could fix a Time Machine would be bright enough to have a plan."

"I must admit your theory has some validity."

"The Time Machine is not only out of whack politically, but it's also out of whack socially. More people are getting divorced than are (Continued on page 7)

Deliver Us Of These

HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Jumping to conclusions:

Women rarely worry about marrying a man smarter than them, because they always feel that if they can't outwit a man they can always outmaneuver him by superior cunning. That's why a wife continues to try to remold her husband nearer to her own wishes. From birth she thinks of man as a form of workable putty.

More men would achieve success in this world, and enjoy life more, if they wore shoes one half size bigger. Tight shoes will cramp anybody's life style, as well as sour his personality.

An optimist is a man in middle age with a chronic disease who believes the onward march of medicine will find a cure for it in his lifetime.

The quickest way to win a reputation as a bore is to insist on performing card tricks at cocktail parties.

It is no testimony to your popularity to be invited to spend a weekend at someone's country place. People who own country places would rather invite Jack the Ripper for company than face a weekend alone with themselves.

One reason civilization is such a mottled failure today is that it no longer inspires man to test himself to the utmost to see what he can do. Instead, it inspires him chiefly to escape blame for whatever happens. He would rather keep his nose clean than save his soul.

Strength For Today

THINGS UNSEEN Practical, hard-headed men often declare that they will believe only those things which they can see. "Show me" is the rejoinder with which many men meet the fundamental religious contention that the things which are unseen are vastly more important than the things which are seen.

Yet actually the greatest powers of the physical universe are all unseen. For example, every particle of matter in the universe responds to the power of gravity, yet gravity is of course unseen. We cannot live without air, but no one has ever seen air. Electricity is an unseen force, and of course the basic elements of matter—atoms, neutrons and protons—carry on their functions in a world invisible to us.

In view of the great powers inherent in the unseen world there is no justification at all for dismissing religion as unimportant because it also postulates the reality of another kind of unseen world. Religion is the best interpretation of the unseen which man has yet discovered.

Declined Silence For Freedom

By WILLIAM L. RYAN AP Special Correspondent

After years of prison, labor camp and forced mental treatment, a 31-year-old Soviet writer has rejected an official offer of freedom in exchange for his silence, according to friends who are regularly in touch with his mother.

Having refused to sign a pledge that he would never again distribute or write criticism of the Soviet system, Vladimir Bukovsky, now very ill and weak, has been transferred from Vladimir Prison to a strict-regime labor camp in the remote Perm area 700 miles northeast of the capital, the sources say.

The "strict-regime" camp is a punishment often meted out to political dissidents.

At such camps the diet is reported to be close to bare subsistence and prisoners are required to do heavy, unskilled labor.

Bukovsky has a rheumatic heart, but other ailments have left him in an extremely weakened condition, his mother said in telephone conversations with friends in the United States.

They report she begged them to appeal in his behalf to the International Red Cross or to the Main Administration of Confinement, Ministry of Internal Affairs, in Moscow. Bukovsky, sentenced last year for his dissident writings, drew a two-year prison term, plus five years in a labor camp and another five in exile.

His mother is said to have told friends that when the time came for Bukovsky's transfer from prison to the labor camp, he was brought to Moscow for interrogation on the basis of testimony at the recent trial of Pyotr Yakir and Viktor Krasin, dissidents who confessed and subsequently drew three-year sentences.

It was then, Mrs. Bukovsky is quoted as saying, that the authorities offered the young man a deal: He would be released if he pledged not to resume his former activities as a writer.

Bukovsky was said to have responded that he not only would refuse to stop such activities, but that he would not accept freedom unless it was extended also to other political prisoners confined because of their opinions.

Bukovsky, a biophysics student at Moscow University when he first ran afoul of the authorities, was one of the organizers of the Phoenix group of intellectuals interested in poetry and politics.

Since 1963 he has been subjected several times to forced mental treatment in prison psychiatric wards. His most recent arrest for "anti-Soviet activities" was in March 1971.

"Our society is sick," Bukovsky said in his final statement to the trial court. "It is sick with the fear that has come to us from the Stalin era."

Set Final Services Sunday At Greene St. Church

Final services at the Memorial Baptist Church's Greene Street location will be conducted Sunday morning prior to the first regular worship services at the new church on Greenville Boulevard.

The Rev. Norman Bennett, pastor of Memorial Baptist, said that brief services dealing with the history of the local church as well as personal reminiscences will begin at 9:45 a.m. at Greene Street and conclude about 10:30 a.m.

He said that following the closing ceremonies uptown, the new facilities at 1510 Greenville

Boulevard will be occupied for the regular 11 a.m. services.

Bennett issued an open invitation to the citizens of Greenville to attend both services on Sunday morning and he noted that the 9:45 a.m. services will offer an opportunity for citizens to participate in closing out a church that was started on Greene Street in 1827.

He explained that the church has a great deal of historical significance in that the Baptist State Convention of North Carolina was formed there in 1830 and the church's name was derived as a commemorative to the formation of the convention.

A memorial window that was located in the church commemorating the 1830 event was removed and has been installed over the baptistry in the sanctuary of the new church, he pointed out. Other small stained glass memorial windows will also be removed from the old church and will be located in the new church parlor, library, and nursery.

The new church project, which began in April of 1972, was completed at a cost of some $850,000, which included the land, church organ, and both the sanctuary and educational buildings of the church complex.

Bennett said that the sanctuary will accommodate about 500 persons while the educational building was designed for about 600 persons.

The pastor added that there will probably be some feelings of nostalgia involved in the first service but he asserted that "we have a unified church and I don't think there are any ill feelings now resulting from our move to a new location."

Refuse Women In Priesthood

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Keen, sometimes tearful disappointment was voiced today by many representatives of the Episcopal Church after its convention refused to admit women to its priesthood.

"There's some real heart-break about it," said the Rev. Canon Charles Perry of Washington, D.C., coordinator for a committee on women's ordination.

Earlier Thursday, the lay-cameral branch of the church's bicameral legislature, the 900-member House of Deputies, confirmed the Right Rev. John M. Allin of Jackson, Miss., to become the denomination's new presiding bishop.

women who had been seeking clerical orders stood in clusters, their cheeks wet with tears as friends sought to comfort them.

Most major Protestant denominations do.

The election of Allin, considered a conservative, brought some dissent among the deputies, who in the past never questioned concurrence in the choice made by the 200-member House of Bishops.

Grace F.W.B. Church Plans Anniversary

Anticipating a thousand in Sunday School, Grace Free Will Baptist Church will celebrate its 20th anniversary this Sunday.

A special anniversary feature will be John Cartwright, former All-American quarterback at Navy. Following Roger Staubach at the Naval Academy, Cartwright broke 12 of Staubach's records. He will be speaking to the youth at the Sunday School hour. During the 11 o'clock service he will give his testimony.

The music department, under the direction of Doug Randlett, will present an program of sacred music for each service.

Under the leadership of Rev. Rashie Kennedy, Grace Church was organized in 1953 with 83 members. Thirty-five charter members remain among the active members. The Sunday School will average over 500 in attendance for this year.

From its initial one building,

Grace has expanded to four units. The most recent addition, a $220,000 educational unit, includes fully carpeted Sunday School space for 600 students plus a gym, kitchen and office complex.

Rev. Chester Phillips, the second minister to pastor the church, came to Greenville in 1962. He is assisted by associate pastor Rev. Doug Randlett. Randlett has been at the church for three years.

Several men have entered the ministry from Grace Church. Rev. Bobby Jackson is the staff evangelist.

The church's $90,000 budget includes foreign and home missions, the Free Will Baptist College, child evangelism, and the radio program, "Coffee With Pastor."

Lunch will be served for the members and guests.

Designate Saturday Forget-Me-Not Day

Saturday has been selected as the date for the annual Forget-Me-Not campaign of Pitt County Chapter 37 of the Disabled American Veterans.

On that date, Forget-Me-Nots—small blue flowers of remembrance—will be offered by volunteers on street corners.

Thad Lilly, commander of the DAV chapter said, "All contributions received for the flowers will be used in the chapter's program of assistance for the war handicapped in this community."

Lilly said the funds will be used to carry on the program of bringing comfort and cheer to the veterans who are now in VA hospitals.

"It is important to understand that the disabled veteran wants just what every other man wants — a chance to live a normal, productive life in his community. He wants to use his remaining abilities to earn a living so that he can bring up his family in the American way. He is not looking for a hand out but sometimes needs a helping hand," Lilly said.

Johnnie Pearson, chairman of the campaign, said the Baptist Student Union, the Veterans

Sunday, all over the world, Christians will unite in Holy Communion.

They won't all agree on the meaning of this sacred act. Nor will they all worship in the same way.

Yet they will draw close to the Lord whose truth and blessing they share. They will come to Him. And in their hearts He will come to them.

No one knows how this communion is possible. Yet each, according to his own faith, believes that it happens. Mystically, symbolically, miraculously, spiritually—men use these different words to express the SOMEHOW that enflames their hearts.

At a Table that spans the centuries, girds the globe, we partake of the Bread of Life—as ONE.

Ass'n Of Counselors Begins Sessions

The North Carolina Association of Marriage and Family Counselors began its annual meeting Thursday at the Holiday Inn here with a talk by Dr. David Mace.

Harry Hagerty Guest DePauw Univ. Saturday

GREENCASTLE, Ind.—Harry Hagerty of Greenville, N.C. will be guest of DePauw University Saturday when his alma mater honors the 40th anniversary of the 1933 football team which went undefeated, untied and unscored on.

Twenty-seven members of the 1933 squad, including Hagerty, have indicated they will attend a special honor luncheon and the 1973 homecoming football game between DePauw and St. Joseph's College.

Another special guest at the luncheon will be Ray R. Neal, head football coach of the '33 squad when it won the Indiana College Championship and the only team in the nation to finish undefeated, untied and unscored on.

Neal was an All-American at Washington and Jefferson and played in the 1922 Rose Bowl Game.

Marriage Counselors Out Of Business," Dr. Mace urged marriage counselors to move from a remedial to a preventive approach to marital difficulties. Marriages are breaking up at such an alarming rate, according to Dr. Mace, that emphasis should be on treating problems before they destroy the marriage.

Dr. Mace, who has devoted 40 years to helping others, feels that married couples who have a warm, loving relationship can do much to teach couples in dif-

Tremors Rocked Central Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Three sharp earth tremors rocked central Chile early today, followed by a score of less intense shakes, but no injuries or serious property damage was reported.

The heavy tremors caused buildings to sway and sent panic-stricken residents into the streets.

Chile is located in the so-called "ring of fire" earthquake zone. A serious quake on July 8, 1971 killed 82 persons and totally destroyed 13,000 homes in the central region.

faculty how to resolve conflict. Both Dr. Mace and his wife, Mrs. Vera Mace, have organized married couples into an Association of Couples for Marriage Enrichment (ACME) to enable healthy married to help couples in trouble.

This morning, Dr. E.M. Rawlings, associate professor of sociology at UNC-Greensboro, spoke on "Current Issues in Marriage Counseling," including theories of counseling used by professionals, research that is being done on marriage, fees and licensing and standards for counselors.

Dr. Rawlings reviewed the literature concerning marriage counseling and stated, "That in itself is a constitutional crisis," I said. "We've gone to the moon, but we can't heat our homes. And the higher the standard of living gets in this country, the more chance you have of choking to death."

"What can we do?" "Someone has got to get to the Time Machine and repair it. We've got to put it back in working order before it gets to all of us."

"But who could do it?" I asked. "It's really a job for Superman."

"Why not?" "I called him," said Ratameyer, "but he told me he doesn't make house calls."

"Marriage counseling has changed from a speciality of professors to a profession in its own right." There is a need for more scientific research as well as standards for licensing marriage counselors. North Carolina does not have a licensing policy for marriage counselors at this time, according to Rawlings.

Dr. Richard Lovelace of Danville, Va., described marriage exchange contracts, which he uses in his private practice, to be useful in helping couples to resolve areas of conflict within marriage. Each spouse agrees to do something the other wants in exchange for getting something he wants in return.

Dr. Herbert Zerof, associate professor of education at UNC-Charlotte, spoke on "Youth Culture and Marriage Counseling."

The North Carolina Family Life Council is meeting in conjunction with the NCAMFC at Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church today and Saturday.

The public is invited to attend the sessions.

(Continued from page 4) the 1976 presidential campaign and that only a "caretaker" should be named, Connally said: "It seems to me to put the Democrats in a position where they care nothing about the country, nothing about its future. All they're concerned about is their own partisan politics."

Some top Republicans fear that attack on his old party cooked Connally's goose for any vice-presidency-by-appointment. They believe, along with highly placed Democrats in both House and Senate, that the Democratic Congress now is tilted sharply against Connally.

In addition, the new and strange terrain through which Connally is now moving—a Democrat-turned-Republican running for the first time for President—has caused embarrassing political slips for one of the nation's shrewdest politicians. All Washington spent last weekend chuckling over Connally's hope to the National Federation of Republican Women that Agnew would be found "guilty" (he meant innocent).

It has not been fatal. With the continued full support of President Nixon, Connally can afford a slip now and then. Nevertheless, politicians are amazed by bloopers from Connally, widely regarded as the politician who never makes stupid mistakes.

One top presidential aide explained Connally's uncharacteristic blundering since Mr. Nixon apparently tapped him as Agnew's successor this way: "I think he's looking a little too anxious." Connally emerged from virtual seclusion, following an unhappy stint as White House consultant in the early Watergate crisis, when Agnew suddenly found himself in deep trouble. Now Connally himself is in some trouble for the first time in his charismatic, all-victorious political career.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were stronger Thursday. Supplies were adequate and demand was good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered to nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 71.80, medium whites 67.44, small whites 51.54.

RALEIGH (AP) — NCDA — North Carolina hog markets today are mostly 50.00 higher. 42.00-43.00 at Kinston, Benson and Lumberton; 39.00-41.00 at Wilson and High Falls; 38.75-39.25 at Tarboro and Bethel; 42.00 at Mount Olive.

RALEIGH (AP) — NCDA — North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers market steady, supplies about adequate, demand good. Weights desirable. North Carolina hens prices generally steady, supplies of heavy type ample and the demand fair. Prices paid per pound for hens over seven pounds at farm 22.00 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market moved generally higher today, ignoring analysts' predictions of a technical correction and concentrating instead on positive economic news.

The Dow Jones industrial average was up 5.87 to 961.77 at 11:30, but declines held a hairline lead over advances in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Big Board's composite index was ahead .16 to 58.76 at 11 a.m., although the market-value index on the American Stock Exchange had slipped .75 to 105.40.

The Big Board's most-active issues included Federated Department Stores, down 1/8 to 42 1/4; McGraw Hill, steady at 10; and First National City Bank, up 1/8 to 45 1/2.

One of the major factors in the Dow's gain was the recovery of Du Pont, one of the average's 30 component stocks. Du Pont, which had dropped 5 1/2 Thursday before analysts learned that the 1973 net would be up nearly 40 per cent, today rebounded 3 1/2 to 193 1/4.

International Business Machines, which has suffered severe price losses because of a negative antitrust ruling, continued its rebound from new yearly lows and was up 6 1/2 to 258. IBM has appealed the ruling.

ITT eased 1/2 to 37 1/4 in the wake of its announcement that it has signed an agreement to sell its Puerto Rican telephone subsidiary for $125 million.

An order imbalance delayed the opening of Chrysler, which revealed it expected a third quarter loss of "up to $26 million" and planned a $150-million debenture offer. It eased 3/8 to 28 at Thursday's closed.

Shun Bad-Guy Role On Roads Priority

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Board of Transportation is determined not to appear as "the bad guys" when it releases its seven-year priority program for rural and urban primary roads.

The Board met Thursday and scheduled a special meeting on October 12 to adopt the report, which will set the schedule for secondary road construction for the next seven years.

According to board members, many projects approved and scheduled by previous Democratic administrations will be either scrapped or moved to such a low priority that "they may never see the light of day."

The plan has been under consideration since the Republican Holshouser administration took over the Department of Transportation in January.

Board member Robert Vaughn of High Point told Thursday's meeting that a crash public relations program needs to be implemented to explain the new plan.

"The public needs to know how the board has struggled to bring order out of the chaos we found ourselves in due to the tremendous backlog of programs," he said.

Secretary of Transportation Bruce Lentz had earlier indicated that the department had approved $1.5 billion, or 10 years' worth, of secondary road projects.

"For some of these projects, there's no way they can be built," said Vaughn. "Unless the public is aware of the situation, we're going to be the bad guys."

Heavy Sales At Farmville

FARMVILLE—Sales on the Farmville Tobacco Market continued heavy Thursday as offerings consisted of more cutters and lugs than any previous day this week.

Leaf grades continued to drop in volume as other grades continued to increase. Sales consisted of more nondescript grades yesterday than on Wednesday.

Grade for grade prices on practically all grades were steady as compared with the previous sale day.

Some lots of better quality marketings such as B1F and B2F sold for as high as $1.16 per pound.

The market yesterday sold 564,975 pounds of tobacco for $512,275 for an average of $90.82 per hundred pounds. To date the Farmville market has sold 13,569,272 pounds of tobacco for $12,314,912, giving a season average per hundred pounds of $90.15.

Appointed To Housing Body

FARMVILLE—Mayor Will Joyner this morning appointed Miss Elizabeth Edwards to a five-year term on the Farmville Housing Authority.

Miss Edwards is a guidance counselor at Farmville Central High School here. The seat on the Authority which is the decision-making body for a local public housing development, became vacant Oct. 1, when Lloyd Englehardt finished the five-year term of Tom Anderson, who resigned this past summer.

City Council . . .

(Continued from Page 1) and the commission must pass along the cost to consumers in order to operate and meet expanding needs.

Commission member Dr. Howard Graddis asserted that the "fact is that electricity is a simple, convenient service to use" and consumers do not realize just how much they are using. He said that new appliances use more current, citing frost-free refrigerators as using more electricity and color television sets using more current than black and white sets.

Graddis said that "we don't realize that all of those motors that are constantly running in our homes are eating up electricity."

Utilities Commission chairman Dr. Ray Minges said that "my bills are outrageous too, but I know they are accurate."

West told the large gathering attending last night's meeting that if the public wants a public hearing on the matter, he feels GUCO will set up such a session. "I'm sure they will check out your meters and answer any questions you have," he pointed out.

The mayor told the audience that since the meeting was not a public hearing, the discussion would have to be confined to members of the Utilities Commission and Council members.

Extra facilities are necessary to take care of peak summer loads and utility rates are established so that "consumers creating high summer demands pay for the costs of providing the service."

The director contended that customers are billed according to usage and where individual bills have more than doubled in some instances and changed little in other cases, the charges were based on consumption.

He explained that a composite of bills of 12 concerned customers were taken for a study to see if they were representative of the overall city situation. Bills among the 12 were as high as $100 and as low as $15, with an average of about $40, he said. The average increase in the bills as reflected in the rate adjustments was some 7.6 per cent. The average bill under the old rate for the 12 customers was $38.70 while the average was $41.60 under the new rate schedule.

Rate reductions were made in September, Horne said, to be competitive with those approved for VEPCO.

"The whole thing comes back to the fact that back in January we had a 23 per cent increase in the wholesale cost of electrical power," he said,

Leadership

"I feel there are many pressing problems that we could encounter in the next two to ten years if we don't take the necessary planning to eliminate some of these."

"Let's take a long term look at the planning of Greenville. Lets find out what we are going to do and how we are going to do it."

"I've always felt that we ought to act instead of react."

The Schools

The citizens of Greenville have not had "the necessary input and response from the school board that they would have had if the members had been elected." If the members are elected they "are going to take the job much more seriously..."

Better lines of communication are needed between the community and the school system.

Recreation

Recreation has "long been a step-child of the city." The idea of recreation involves not only the facilities or lack of them but— "what problems recreation will solve down the line..."

Land-Use

"We need extensive planning in the area of the new eastern by-pass. We need to get into land-use patterns with our development."

"We will sit down and concentrate and plan ahead. It's easier to treat the problems at their source than it is to treat the results that come out of them."

The University

"We all want East Carolina to have a med school and be a great school with a good football team and basketball team. But we are not using East Carolina University..."

There are a "wealth of untapped resources" at ECU "with people trained in all fields. We have a tremendous resource of information and talent over there that we ought to use."

Pirates Prepare For 'Cat Air Attack

Quarterback Carl Summerell

Saturday afternoon at 2 p.m. East Carolina University's Pirates will attend an air show, put on for them by the Davidson Wildcats.

But before the afternoon is over, the Bucs are hoping that instead of being bombed, they are going to do a little anti-aircraft work and shoot down the Wildcats.

Davidson, which will be celebrating its Homecoming, comes into the game with a 1-3 record on the season, having only beaten Lenoir Rhyne, 20-17. They lost to Wofford, 23-0, Richmond, 42-0, and last week to Appalachian, 24-8.

But in none of these, according to East Carolina Coach Sonny Randle did their defense crumble. "Their offense got them into all the trouble," he said.

Randle cited the Richmond game as an example. Going into the final period of play, the Spiders led only 14-0. But early in the period they scored on a long pass, making it 21-0. Then, just a few plays after the kickoff, a pass interception was run back for a touchdown, upping the lead to 28-0, doubling the score in a matter of minutes.

After that, somewhat similar to East Carolina's second period against State, the floodgates were opened, and hard to close.

East Carolina, meanwhile, has been somewhat vulnerable to the pass. In fact, they stand last in the Southern Conference in pass defense, allowing 184.8 yards a game. Davidson, at the same time, is third in passing offense, averaging 140.5 yards a game.

Chief factor in this is quarterback David Harper, who has hit on 51 of 100 passes for 511 yards and two touchdowns. His chief receiver has been Walt Walker, the flanker, who has pulled in 23 of the 51 for 268 yards, and a touchdown.

Harper ranks as the 15th leading passer in the nation, while Walker is the number six receiver. In the Richmond game, he caught 10 passes, the national season high so far. Gary Pomeroy is the number two receiver, having caught 12 for 130 yards and a touchdown.

If there is a fault to the Davidson passing game, it is that it has been too easily intercepted. Davidson has averaged putting the ball into the air 27 times a game, and it has been intercepted nine times, with returns of 154 yards, including one returned for a touchdown.

Unless there is a surprise, the Wildcats will not do a lot of rushing, just enough to maintain an honest passing attack. Their leading rusher is David Ingold, who has 83 yards in 17 carries. The next man down the line is John Webel, who has 32.

Harper, apparently has not been completely invulnerable, although Randle feels the Wildcat line gives him good protection. On the ground, Harper has run for 66 yards, but has been tossed for 175 back, giving him a net of minus 109.

Such news might give the Pirate front four added incentive.

East Carolina's offense, meanwhile, has revolved around its three running backs, all three of whom rank in the Southern's top ten. Currently Kenny Strayhorn leads the conference with a 90.8 yard a game average. Carlester Crumpler is seventh with a 61.0 mark, while full Don Schink is eighth at 59.5.

Quarterback Carl Summerell ranks fourth among league passers with 6.0 completions a game, and his total offense average, 108.8 yards a game, is second in the league.

Randle makes no bones about the fact that the Bucs are the team to beat in this game. "If we go to Davidson and play the game we should, we should win. If we go down there and go through the motions, then it's going to be a frightening afternoon."

The Bucs, by the way, left this morning at 8 a.m., and will work out this afternoon on the Davidson field.

"They throw about as well as anyone we'll face this year," Randle warned. "If they come up with a hot hand, we could be in trouble."

Does the Pirate pass defense record worry Randle? "It's not really alarming, especially when you consider that one of our starters (Butch Stewardman) is not in there," Randle said. He added that Strawderman is not expected to play again this week, as he is still recovering from a pre-season injury.

Will the Bucs challenge Harper by constant redodging? "They roll out, and they protect him well, so it's going to be hard to get to him. Of course, we're going to try, but it's hard to say whether we'll be able to."

Randle expects them to throw quite a bit, especially with the Pirate rushing defense working as well as it has. "We have a couple of things in mind we are hopeful will stop them. I can say that we won't line up like we have for the past four weeks."

Randle also promised some personnel changes, but declined to elaborate on them.

The Pirates, in the game, will be going for their 10th straight Southern Conference victory, and each one they win will set a new school mark. They will be also seeking to score in their 18th straight league game, and if successful, will extend a new school record, tied last week against Furman.

The Bucs also expect to open their offense up a little more this week. The team was somewhat hampered by the lingering effects of an injury to Summerell, but he has been pronounced 100 percent ready for this week's contest.

The Cubs went into the game with a 3-0 mark, as did Goldsboro.

The Cougar Cubs took the lead in the game in the first period, scoring on a 23-yard run by William Morrissey. They upped that to 14-0 in the second frame when Anthony Williams scored from the three, and Morrissey ran over the two-point conversion.

In the third frame, Rose hit first to tie it up. Chenier broke away on a 25-yard run to get the score, and Andrew Newton ran over the PAT.

Rose then struggled into the lead, scoring when Willie Best recovered a fumble in the end zone. Chenier passed to Jeff Barber for the two-pointer, making it 22-14.

Goldsboro came right back to score on the kickoff as Morrissey returned the ball 85 yards for the score, cutting it to 22-20. The Cougars then picked up a safety when Chenier was hit in the end zone, and got the final score when Sykes passed 19 yards to Jones for the clincher.

The swing to new materials

Those new graphite shafts for golf clubs are getting a lot of attention. Union Carbide's THORNEL graphite yarn, composited with epoxy plastic, makes possible a lighter shaft—lets you hit the ball with more speed. Without sacrificing weight at the club head, where it counts.

THORNEL yarn has meant a unique new material for golf club designers. People are looking at it for other uses, too. Fishing rods. Tennis rackets. High performance parts for industry. Developed for some of the toughest jobs in aerospace, it's stronger than steel—yet lighter than aluminum.

Graphite yarn is just one of the new materials Union Carbide is working with. There's UDEL polysulfone, a plastic so tough and heat-resistant it's used in coffee percolators, hair dryers, and baking and serving dishes for microwave ovens. We're a partner in a company that makes paper from plastic. And we've come up with new technology in rigid foam materials that replace wood in furniture.

You know, people are going to be using a lot more of these new materials. We think you'll recognize the quality we put into them—because it's the same high quality Union Carbide people put into all our products.

Little Division In Week's Picks

Unanimity!
That's the by-word for this week. As you'll note below there is only one (1) difference in the entire poll. And guess who made that one pick.
That's right, that little ol' tail-ender—me!
Following last week's misfortunes, we find ourselves even further in the rear of the pack, but the pack has settled down into a real dog-fight, and while they are ripping each other to shreds in the coming weeks, maybe we'll be able to sneak through while they aren't looking.
At any rate, right now there is a four-way tie for first place between Tom Baines, Jack Whichard, John Trotman and Sandra Spivey, all tied at 35-12. George Holland is only one game back with a 34-13 mark, while someone else has a record of 30-17 record.
Again, thank goodness for the high schools, where our record is again intact for the week, discounting the tie between Conley and West Craven.

So, a look first at the high schools in the area. Ayden-Grifton travels to Eastern Wayne in another Eastern Carolina Conference game. This could be the week for the Chargers to be caught off guard and handed an upset. Eastern might do it, but I can't pick them. Ayden-Grifton should win handily.

North Pitt is at Farmville Central looking for its first win. The Jaguars may be down after losing to Ayden-Grifton, and North Pitt could take advantage of it, but you have to go with the percentages. Farmville to win.

Greene Central visits Conley in another ECC squabble. The Vikings are beginning to make some rumbles, but they still may be a few weeks off. The

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

Rams have to win to stay in the race for the title, and they should.

Robersonville travels to Lee Woodard for an Eastern Plains game. The Eagles flew high last week in their victory, and they may be the class of their conference. Robersonville is the choice.

Finally, Williamston is at Washington in a Northeastern battle. The Tigers come off a tough loss to Roanoke Rapids and will be anxious to get back into the race. Washington has been up and down and it could go either way, but we'll pick Williamston.

Now, to the poll. First off, Rose High School is celebrating Homecoming with the Goldsboro Cougars. We have only picked Rose right once so far this year, and we've finally figured out what to do. . .pick them to lose, and that way we're only partly disappointed.

So, here it is, Rose will lose to Goldsboro. . .and this time the panel joins me with a 6-0 verdict.

East Carolina travels to Davidson to meet the Wildcats. The Bucs haven't been real sharp against the pass this year, and you can bet your bottom dollar the Wildcats are going to have that ball in the air around 75 per cent of the time (or trying anyway. . .sic 'em, Dogs).

They may score, but the Bucs should score more. Again, 6-0, East Carolina to win it.

The rest of the poll follows, the trick is to spot the lone difference!

Screams, Jeers Fly As Ali, Joe Sign To Meet Again In February

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — "Forget the money, forget the taxes," Muhammad Ali screamed in a high-pitched voice. "Let me at that Joe Frazier." Ali's henchman, Bundini Brown, reached down to wipe Ali's perspiring face with a blue napkin, and egg his hero on.
"He's gonna whup your tail good," Bundini yelled at Frazier, sitting some five yards away.
Frazier just chewed away on peanuts and glowered. His eyes were like coals of fire.
"What else is there to talk about? I whupped you once, and I'll whup you again," Ali continued to taunt his adversary. "Get up. I'll whup you right now."
"You got me the last time after I had been out of fighting for four years. Now I'm 212 pounds. I'm tough. I'm serious. I'm ready."
It was a typical theatrical performance by the Big Lip, boxing's version of Bobby Riggs, on the occasion of the signing Thursday of a 12-round return match with Frazier at Madison Square Garden Feb. 4, 1974.
But it fell far below his best. You could give Ali no more than three and a half stars. He was far better at Miami Beach, Feb. 25, 1964 at the weigh-in preceding Ali's first bout with the then Heavyweight Champion Sonny Liston, a surly animal of a man who could melt a metal ring pole with a glare at 25 feet.
The Miami Beach act by Ali merited five stars.
He ranted and raved in the middle of the ring, screaming like a madman and boasting: "I'm the greatest. I'm going to destroy Sonny Liston."
Everyone thought the descendant of a Kentucky slave, an 8-1 underdog, had flipped his lid. He had gone certainly mad. Doctors quickly re-examined him. They found his pulse beating at a runaway rate. One physician said Ali, then known as Cassius Clay, was paralyzed with fear. It was thought the fight might have to be postponed.
But it wasn't, and Ali went out that night, pulse normal and as cool as an ice cube, and won the heavyweight title with a seventh round knockout.
With an audience of some 200 reporters and cameramen, Ali went into another mad orbit Wednesday. For the uninitiated, including former champion Gene Tunney, it was awesome and unnerving.
Coatless, tie awry, his boasts shaking the chandeliers, Ali continued to bait the dour Frazier. For Frazier, it was just another re-run of an old show. He listened and reacted with an ugly stare.
"We'll murder you, boy," Frazier said, in a half-whisper. Ali bristled. "I hope I didn't hear you right," he said. "I hope you said, 'Roy,' not 'boy.'"

VMI, Citadel May Be Playing For Right To Escape Basement

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
Although two games are on tap which undoubtedly will have more bearing on who wins the league championship this fall, no Southern Conference football scrap Saturday is bigger to Bobby Ross and Bob Thalman than the meeting of

The Citadel and Virginia Military. By winning the afternoon encounter at Lexington, Va., either Ross' The Citadel Bulldogs or Thalman's VMI Keydets could avoid winding up in the league cellar. Both are 0-1 in league play, but The Citadel is 1-3 over-all and the Keydets winless in four starts.

East Carolina's defending champions can pull into a temporary tie for the league lead in the other afternoon conference game, in which the Pirates will put their 1-0 league record and 3-1 over-all mark on the line at Davidson against the Wildcats, 0-2 and 1-3.

But that tie could last only a few hours, for Richmond's Spiders—who have yet to be scored on in three victories, two inside the league—have a night date at Furman against the Paladins, 1-1 in the conference and 3-1 over-all after losing 14-3 to ECU last weekend.

The other two teams take on outside opposition. William and Mary's Indians, 3-1 over-all, make their first start at home in the afternoon against Villanova, while Appalachian State's Mountaineers, who finally broke into the victory column by beating Davidson

Rose In Race Win

ROCKY MOUNT — Rose High School's cross-country team won its first meet of the year, taking a dual meet from Rocky Mount, 24-35 yesterday. Low score wins in cross-country.
Art Klose of the Rampants took first place in the individual standings, finishing the course in 12:34, a full 15 seconds ahead of the second place finisher, L. Tolar of Rocky Mount, who was timed in 12:49.
Henry Davis of Rose took third at 13:08, followed by K. Lamer of Rocky Mount in 13:09, and Gary Cayton of Rose in 13:10.
Rounding out the top ten were: W. Gray (RM) 13:19; A. J. Tyson (R) 13:20; Hugh Stokes (R) 13:40; Gret Tear (R) 13:55; and Marvin Robinson (R) 14:03.

hard trying to prepare for their option plays."
To hear them talk, you'd think both East Carolina's Sonny Randle and Richmond's Frank Jones were preparing to take on Southern California or worse.
"Davidson plays an interesting brand of football," says Randle. "They are one of a very few teams that live and die off the pass.
"Personally, I like that kind of offense, but I'll tell you, it's hard to prepare a football team to defend against it. They do so many things well. And they use so many offensive variations. It makes things real interesting."
Jones says Richmond had a "tremendous over-all effort" against Wake Forest, beaten 410 by the Spiders, "but we can't have a letdown this week."
"Furman played well against a very fine East Carolina team. They are capable of beating anyone in our league on a given Saturday.

Peace Study Replaces The Protest Of War

By ANN HENCKEN
Associated Press Writer
For an increasing number of college students the study of peace has replaced the protest of war.

Today, 50 colleges and universities across the country offer major or minor programs in peace studies. Five years ago, at the height of the antiwar movement, only one school offered such courses.

At the University of Pennsylvania, students can obtain a doctorate in peace science. A year ago Colgate University established the first professorship of peace.

This fall, 300 campuses are using peace studies material, according to the Institute for World Order in New York City. Spokesmen said the institute receives some 250 inquiries per month from junior and senior high schools, which are also establishing courses of study.

"Our problem and excitement is that interest is growing so rapidly. It's been happening since about 1970," said Franklin Wallin, institute president.

Proponents of such studies don't discount the power of protest. They point to the Vietnam war and public opinion's role in the American withdrawal. But they are hopeful that the peace education movement will go beyond Vietnam.

The growing interest in peace studies stems in part from frustration of some who participated in the protests of the 1960s.

Joe Fahey, acting director of Manhattan College's Peace Studies Institute, said of protest in the 1960s:

"I realized that the problem of war was much deeper than the Vietnam war and protests were not enough to stop it. We decided to make peace our career."

Others see peace studies as part of a growing worldwide concern, building over the past few decades.

"These peace studies programs are part of a global, political and social movement. The bright, moral, pragmatic minds are coalescing. We may be at a moment in history where it's possible to abolish war," said Saul Mendlovitz, director of the World Order Models Project, an effort by teams of researchers around the globe to find better ways to live.

How does one study peace? Courses vary greatly in subject matter, but most start with the premise that war is not inevitable, practical solutions can and must be found.

"The nature of the liberal arts program has been that war is an acceptable means of conflict resolution. It's become a predominant myth in society," said Chuck Appel, a 20-year-old senior at Manhattan College. "But you've got to teach that nonviolent resolution is the best way to solve problems."

The peace science approach is also interdisciplinary. One course may include math, history, government and psychology — in a rounded technique of problem-solving.

"In the past, sociology, economics, each had its own piecemeal approach. We felt the problem of world conflict requires a full attack," said Walter Isard, chairman of the peace science department at the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

Professors also stress that courses take a rigorous, unemotional look at world problems, and that facts and understanding — not rhetoric — are their tools.

Courses range from the University of Colorado's "Sociological Analysis of Revolution" to Harvard College's "History and Theory of Non-Violence."

Lalit Aggarwal, 29, the first candidate for a doctorate in peace science at Penn, is trying to develop a universally applicable framework for solving conflicts at all levels, urban to international.

As an architect and city planner, he felt solutions to urban disputes very inadequate.

"But it's not enough to just say, 'I don't like it.' One should be able to suggest a possible alternative. The program has helped me put my ideas in a more rigorous, precise form," said Aggarwal, who plans to work with an international agency when he completes his degree.

At Manhattan College some 17 courses with an emphasis on peace are offered in various departments. About 40 majors study such subjects as "War and Violence in Western Literature" and "Biology of Human Behavior."

The program is flourishing now on a campus with a strong ROTC contingent — and some radicals who grumbled when the peace major was established.

"The radicals thought we were too much a part of the establishment. We want to reform the system," said director Fahey. He added, however, that he doesn't discount civil disobedience, and teaches about Gandhi and Martin Luther King in his own course, "Religious Dimensions of Peace."

often wonder about the song leaders in Sunday School. "For example, they will select a hymn with 4 stanzas. "But then they ask the congregation to sing only verses 1, 2 and 4. "Yet on the next hymn, they may tell us to sing only verses 1 and 4. "As a rule, however, it is that poor little verse No. 3 that is avoided like the 'Ugly Duckling.' "Yet I see no logical reason why we should sing all 4 verses. "And I notice that a lot of modern musicians like to add variations to the famous tunes of the past, though such variations don't seem to add more charm to the familiar tunes. "So why do people constantly try to change the products of the great composers of the past?"

operates for them?

It inflates our human ego to create or even embellish and rearrange the products of other inventors or authors and composers.

Even the various new versions of the Bible are an indirect example of this.

For the King James version was written in the beautiful prose of Shakespeare's day.

Several words have changed their current meaning during the intervening centuries, as in Christ's statement, "Suffer little children to come unto me."

That word "suffer" meant "let" or "permit" and a glossary could easily have explained these few changes.

But Biblical scholars wished to add their two bits worth of innovation, so they have retranslated the Bible, arguing that their new versions appeal to people much better.

Do you see English scholars trying to translate Shakespeare into modern hippie lingo?

Instead, we append a glossary to Shakespeare but keep his writings in their beautiful original phrasing.

"Lazy but egotistical musicians likewise find it so much easier to try to add variations to the melodic masterpieces of past composers than to create entirely new songs or hymns.

And this urge to inject our own personality into our environment is expressed by the fact that boys will climb dangerous cliffs to write their names and the dates on the sheer walls.

Or put their handprints in fresh concrete sidewalks.

"Kilroy was here!" expressed this same desire to leave our personal imprint on rocks or walls or even tree trunks.

It is a natural human urge to leave our personal "trademark" even if we do so by rearranging the compositions of superb musicians.

But it is better to sing all verses of a hymn! Omitting one or two is like

A Review 'Sounder' Film A Simple Story

"Sounder" is a G-rated picture about a boy, his dog, and his family.

From that sentence you might think it is a typical Walt Disney movie. It isn't, and it is unlikely that Disney would ever make such a movie.

"Sounder" is about a black family, a poor black family, living in sharecropper poverty in Louisiana in 1933.

The young hero is David Lee, and Sounder is his dog. The father, Nathan, steals a ham and some sausage so that his family will have a little meat to eat after days of going without it.

Several days later, Nathan is caught and jailed. Sentenced to a year at hard labor, he is sent off and the sheriff refuses to tell the family to what labor camp he's been sent.

David Lee, an earnest young man, just learning what life is all about, has some education, and is befriended by a white woman, who eventually dares community censure to learn the fate of Nathan.

David and Sounder then journey across the state on foot to learn of his father, but he fails. He does meet a young black schoolteacher, and the first seeds of a life that might be better than that of his parents are planted in him. He finds that there are blacks who do more than just survive.

Finally, his father is freed after being hurt in an accident, and David goes off to school. "I'm going to miss this old raggedy place," he tells his father, "but I'm not going to worry about it."

It is a simple film, one of love between a family seemingly crushed by poverty and misfortune, but a family whose dignity can never be destroyed.

And eventually, somehow, things might be better.

It is a story that is well told, and well-filmed. It is a story that should not be missed — either by black or white. "Sounder" is now playing through Tuesday at the Park Theater.

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1973

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE
from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Listening closely to opinions expressed by those in power is the best course of action today. Then, later you can gain your objectives by a forceful attitude. Good for delightful entertaining. Avoid criticism of others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to make new and interesting friends today, but sidestep the boring and the troublesome. Read good books that could be educational as well as pleasurable. Relax tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A forceful attitude toward others, especially higher-ups, could result in trouble today or tonight. Don't forget to pay an important bill on time. Show that you are a fine citizen.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't give up a new interest simply because you have not studied the details carefully. Get busy with obtaining the data. Going off on a tangent now could lead to real trouble.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be sure to complete any jobs you have left undone and make good use of your hunches. Listen to mate more and you increase the harmony at home. Avoid one who bickers.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) If you first listen to what associates have to say, you can come to a real understanding with them now so that conditions are improved in the future. Stop being so demanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do your share of any work connected with agreements you have made, but make sure you are not stepping on the toes of others. Health treatments can help you become a more vital person.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If you show good pals you like being with them, you can have a wonderful time today. Don't waste time feeling sorry for yourself. Show others that you are loyal. Be cheerful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you listen carefully to what others have to say at home, you can improve conditions there appreciably. Help them to gain their cherished aims. Don't be forceful with others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Keep a vital appointment but make sure you don't become too demanding. Much care in travel is necessary if you want to be sure to avoid an accident. Entertain tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A more conservative attitude is necessary rather than a dramatic one today for the best results. Cut down on present expenses and build up a cash reserve. Evening is fine for fun.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Instead of fretting, get busy and do whatever will make conditions better for you and yours at home. Don't force anyone to do things your way. Use the more gentle approach.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Engage in confidential activities now that will help put your affairs in better shape. Listen to the troubles of others but don't become too involved. Take it easy tonight.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who will be so involved with the troubles of others that it would be well to direct the education along lines of humanitarian work, medicine and the like. Getting into government or police work is also fine here. Teach not to give advice to others unless asked.

Comet Is Really No Hot Item

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comets are sky spectaculars but contrary to what some believe they are not burning, but rather are frozen. Their light comes from the reflection of sunlight off the frozen nucleus. Gases eliminated from the nucleus expand into what is called the coma and together they form the head of the comet.

While the nucleus of a comet may be about five miles across, nucleus and coma together may reach 100,000 miles in diameter. The tail is tens of millions miles long. The record is about 200 million miles.

Govm't-Held Cambodia Is Vast Refugee Camp

By DENIS D. GRAY
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — That part of Cambodia still under government control is on its way to becoming a vast refugee camp.

The statistics tell you that: more than a million Cambodians — one in every seven — displaced by the war and in need of help, barely a corner of the country left untouched by the human uprooting.

You see it in any direction you travel: families trudging along the sides of highways, their property shrunken to what they can pile onto the two-wheeled, cattle-drawn carts.

People, most of them farmers living in small villages, flee their homes in the face of rebel attacks or when their home-grounds become battlegrounds between insurgent and government forces.

They don't go farther than they have to, but often that means long treks to Phnom Penh or distant provincial capitals where handouts or jobs are more readily available and the prospects for safety greater. Some return to their homes only to be driven out again. Others become refugees whose status one American aid official described as "temporary on an indefinite basis."

"When they flee from their villages, they carry some of the family valuables. They sell them and can live on that for one or two months perhaps," says Loueng Nal, the minister for refugees. "After that, they have nothing and somebody must take care of them. The longer the war lasts the greater the problem becomes."

The minister admitted the government cannot now meet the needs of the refugees or solve the mammoth economic, social and political problems arising from a population one-seventh adrift.

This year, the government has set aside a fraction of one per cent of planned national expenditures for refugee care. It comes to $124,000, or about 12 cents a refugee a year.

Government efforts thus far have focused on rice distribution and housing for refugees in the Phnom Penh area, leaving most problems of the provinces in the hands of local authorities.

"We can only hope to provide enough so that they will not die," Nal said.

As with guns and butter, the Cambodian government relies on the United States and other countries for large infusions of aid for its refugee program.

The U.S. government has budgeted $4 million in such aid for Cambodia this fiscal year but one embassy official said, "We don't want to set up a vast aid apparatus like we had in Vietnam."

Consequently the money is funneled through several international relief organizations — principally Catholic Relief Service, CARE, World Vision, the International Red Cross. These groups also add their own resources and go out and do the work.

Food, shelter, clothing and medicine are the priority items, with food basically rice and dried fish and shelter ranging from a few square yards of plastic sheeting to hinder the monsoon rains to thatched roof barracks.

The second phase of government-relief organization aid attempts to provide sources of income for displaced families.
