Sadat Says Missiles Poised For Israel Blow

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt claimed today his troops have missiles poised "to be launched to the very depths of Israel any minute." But Premier Golda Meir of Israel claimed the Egyptian tank charge into the Siani has been halted.

Tank and artillery battles raged in the Sinai Desert and in Syria as Sadat made a tough address to the Egyptian People's Assembly in Cairo and Mrs. Meir talked to the Israeli parliament in Jerusalem.

"At this very moment Israeli forces are on the western bank of the canal," the 75-year-old Israeli premier said.

Mrs. Meir did not say how many Israelis were on the western side of the Suez Canal or where they had crossed.

Egypt took control of the 103-mile-long waterway after its troops stormed across at the outbreak of the current hostilities Oct. 6 and pushed into the Sinai peninsula seized by Israel in 1967. Since then Israeli and Egyptian tanks and artillery have been battling along an uneven front placed by claims from both sides at from three to 10 miles east of the canal.

Sadat coupled his missile threat with an announcement he is ready to reopen the canal, closed since the 1967 conflict, and sign a cease-fire leading to a peace conference under U.N. auspices. But he said this would be possible only if Israel pulls out of the Arab land it captured in 1967 and guarantees the rights of the Palestinian people.

Israel has rejected both demands in the past as prior conditions for negotiations.

Mrs. Meir declared in her talk — apparently not intended as a point-by-point response to Sadat — that Israel will never sign a cease-fire with the Arabs unless it specifies the return of "all our prisoners."

U.S. transport planes were rushing arms to bolster Israel's battered war machine, meanwhile, and a Soviet airlift was doing the same for the Syrians and Egyptians as the Middle East conflict went into its 11th day with more furious fighting.

Israel claimed its armor and artillery knocked out 50 Arab tanks on the Syrian front and said its warplanes bombed military targets in Syria and in Egypt about 100 miles north of Cairo, the Egyptian capital where Sadat gave his speech.

"If you imagine you can hit at Arab depth," Sadat declared in a reference to Israeli leaders, "I want to warn you that the transdesert Egyptian missiles of the Zafer type are now fitted on their bases."

"I have always warned that in our confrontation with Israel, it will be an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth and depth for depth," he added.

The Egyptian president, wearing a full military uniform, said that if Israel refuses the Arab demands it faces "a war of attrition which we can endure with greater ease than they can endure."

"Egyptian missiles called Zafer, which means victorious, can cross the Sinai," the former military officer added. "These land-to-land missiles are ready now to be launched to the very depths of Israel at any minute."

The war talk came side-by-side with the peace talk in Sadat's hour-long speech to the People's Assembly. But the main condition laid down for Sadat's professed willingness to accept a cease-fire and attend the peace conference — prior Israeli withdrawal to pre-1967 lines — have been Arab goals ever since the 1967 conflict. Israel has never given any sign it is ready to accept them and Israeli forces have pushed about 20 miles beyond those lines into Syria since the current round of fighting broke out Oct. 6.

On the Sinai peninsula, however, Egyptian troops have pushed the Israelis back from their main defense lines into the desert. Sadat said his troops "performed miracles by any standards" in crossing the Suez Canal and seizing the eastern bank.

Israel said the Syrians today launched a new offensive in an attempt to stave off the Israeli advance. Tel Aviv spokesmen claimed the Israelis were "holding off" and said they downed six Syrian planes in addition to destroying the 50 tanks.

Casals Ill

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Cellist Pablo Casals was in critical condition today, a spokesman for Auxilio Mutuo Hospital said.

Casals, 96, is suffering from a cardiac condition. His physician, Dr. Ramon Suarez, reported Monday that the cellist also suffered pulmonary complications.

Three weeks ago the Spaniards suffered a heart seizure while playing dominoes at the home of a friend. He remained at the friend's house and returned home about ten days ago feeling better.

But last week Casals developed breathing problems, and was taken to the hospital.

U.S. Arms Aid To Israel Keyed To Battlefield

By MIKE SHANAHAN AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the present the size and continuation of American arms shipments to Israel depends almost completely on the battlefield needs of the Tel Aviv government, according to U.S. officials.

A number of sources indicated, however, that the sea and air supply missions announced Monday would be limited to the replacement of planes, tanks, bombs, artillery rounds and other items that are lost or expended in the fighting.

For example, administration officials report that the Israelis have lost about 25 U.S.-supplied F4 Phantom jets in the fighting. Initially, most of the planes will be replaced, but Israel cannot expect larger deliveries as urged by some congressmen and senators, officials said.

In announcing the airlift, State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said the new deliveries were intended to offset the nearly week-old resupply of Syria and Egypt by the Soviet Union.

"We are concerned that the Soviet airlift will unsettle the balance which we have been committed to maintain for many years," McCloskey said. He described the Soviet resupply effort as massive.

He said the Russians, using huge transport planes, have delivered about 4,000 tons of equipment to Egypt and Syria in some 280 flights that began last Wednesday.

Other administration officials, indicating a higher rate of delivery, said the flights have been increasing from a few dozen to more than 70 flights on Sunday.

So far, officials indicated the Russians do not appear to be replacing the hundreds of planes and tanks lost by the Syrians and Egyptians. But officials believe there is a steady resupply of ground-to-air missiles used against the Israeli planes.

A large number of the 95 Israeli planes that U.S. officials say were knocked down by the Arabs so far have fallen victim to Soviet missiles. The Israelis have lost nearly one-fifth of their Air Force, according to U.S. estimates.

Marines To Sail

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (AP)—A group of Camp Lejeune Marines leave for Morehead City today for duty in the Mediterranean with the U.S. Navy's Sixth Fleet.

A spokesman from the Marine installation says the group will sail on the U.S.S. Iwo Jima, a helicopter amphibious assault ship that sailed from Norfolk, Va. Monday. The 32nd Marine Amphibious Unit a landing team from the 3rd Battalion, 6th Regiment and Helicopter Squadron 261 are included.

The ship had been scheduled to participate in an amphibious exercise off the North Carolina coast, but that operation was cancelled.

The spokesman also said the group, the size of which he would not specify, had had plans to deploy for duty next month. There was no explanation for the change of orders.

New Junior High School Plans Again Boggled Down

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

Condemnation proceedings on the 30 acre tract of land for a proposed city school have reached a new stage. With this development, on-going action on PERT, the progress plan to have a new middle junior high school ready by 1975, has bogged down.

Monday night, Superintendent of City Schools Glenn Cox reported to the board that acting school attorney Louis Gaylord had informed him that owners of the property under condemnation procedures have taken the issue to the Court of Appeals. "It will probably be February or March before the case comes before the court," Cox said.

He noted that Gaylord recommended holding off trying to make further plans at the time.

County Commissioners refused to accept the original asking price of $150,000. Following an unacceptable (to the property owners) recommended negotiating price base, the city school board took action to bring condemnation procedures.

A court hearing ruled on a price of $147,000 as a fair offer. This offer the owners have not accepted and have consequently taken the matter to the Court of Appeals.

If and when the property is acquired as a site to construct the new proposed school, the purchase price plus legal fees will amount to more than the original $150,000 asking price turned down by County Commissioners.

On the matter of a requested traffic light at the five-way intersection adjacent to Sadie Sauter Elementary School, Cox reported that City Manager William Carstarphen said the matter was being considered by the City Traffic Commission. "Until then," Cox said, "an additional male police officer has been assigned to help out."

Following a study of a first month school report on the school system cafeteria, Cox said he did not find it necessary at the time to ask the board to consider an increase in lunch prices for students.

His report shows that for September labor costs to produce one plate of food was 29 cents, as compared with 33 cents last September. "This drop is obviously due to changes that have resulted in better management," he noted. The food cost per plate, however, was 38 cents for September. Last year it was 30 cents per plate. As a result, the total cost of 67 cents per plate of food is four cents higher than September a year ago.

"The word is that we are to get additional reimbursement," Cox added. "There's a bill before Congress now that is due to be acted on before adjournment."

Board members gave Cox the go ahead to make a study on the feasibility of a proposed new program. The Mideast Economic Development Commission is seeking to have the city school cafeteria participate in a nutrition program for the elderly.

In effect, this would, if approved by the board, be a contract service whereby one school cafeteria would agree to prepare 135 meals on one day each week.

The State Department of Public Instruction has notified the use of cafeteria facilities for such a program is legally acceptable. Cox said that Agnew Fullilove would be the only school able to undertake such a program, provided other conditions are acceptable. The board will take this matter up for a decision at the November meeting.

The resignation of Bobby Pettis, math and science teacher at A. B. Aycock Junior High School, was accepted. Pettis resigned to take a position as counselor at Pitt Technical Institute. Miss Patricia Scollin was elected to replace Pettis at Aycock. Another new teacher was elected to teach Industrial Arts at Aycock, Rene Laughinghouse. He replaces a teacher who resigned recently.

Barry Humphries, recently hired to head the joint Pitt-county-Greenville City School Systems Health and Drug Education program, spoke briefly to school board members. He outlined the basic purpose of the program, noting that one of the main objectives is the "need to integrate health education with the total school curriculum." In the beginning phase, most emphasis is being

New Administrator For Pitt Health Dept. Takes Up Duties

Roger Barnaby, new administrator of the Pitt County Community Health Department, began work yesterday.

Barnaby spent yesterday meeting staff and familiarizing himself with operations of the Health Department.

He comes here from a job as Executive Director of Health Planning for Southeastern Ohio. This is the first time the Health Department has had an administrator who is not an M. D. This move was recommended by Dr. Robert May, the former medical director, who has reorganized this health department in the past two years. It is a trend throughout the country, he said.

Barnaby said he grew up in Ticonderoga in rural upstate New York. He graduated from Hoffstow University on Long Island, working for the State Department of Mental Hygiene while he was in school. For a year he was a newspaper reporter in Troy, N. Y., while his wife, Sally, completed her B. S. in Nursing. He then worked for the County of Monroe in New York as health, welfare, mental health, and hospital coordinator, until he went to the University of Michigan to get his Master of Public Health degree with emphasis on medical care organization and planning. Since then he has been Associate Executive Director of Health and Hospital Council in St. Paul, Minn., and Deputy Director of Planning for Health for the State of Florida, in addition to the Ohio position he took in 1970.

Barnaby is searching for a home for his family now, he said. The children are Roger, 15; Jimmy, 13; John, 10; and Laurie, five.

He commented, "While I am not qualified yet to comment on any particular program or make suggestion, I will say that from my observations so far, this appears to be one of the best health departments in the state. I am happy to be working with such a forward-looking county administration and with a staff with the spirit and zeal I have seen so far. I think this is going to be a wonderful place for me and my family to live and work."

Barnaby's salary will be funded in part by Pitt County, supplemented through an agreement with East Carolina University. The new health director will receive about $15,000 per year from the county and an additional $5,000 from ECU for teaching duties he will perform within the agency for students in the School of Allied Health.

Kissinger And Le Duc Tho Share Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and North Vietnamese Politburo member Le Duc Tho were awarded the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize today for their efforts to officially end the Vietnam war.

Kissinger and Tho defeated 45 other accepted candidates, including President Nixon, President Tito of Yugoslavia and 10 international organizations.

The prize was about $120,000 and will be shared equally between the two winners.

The Nobel committee chairman, Mrs. Aase

Lionaes, a judge and member of Parliament, announced the decision after the five-member committee reviewed the candidates for 2 1/2 hours.

When announcement of the award came, Kissinger was reported in a meeting at the White House and was unavailable for immediate comment.

Kissinger, 50, is the 16th American to win or share the peace prize since it first was awarded in 1901.

The last American winner was Norman E. Borlaug, who developed a new type of high-yield grain for use in underdeveloped countries. He won the prize in 1970.

Le Duc Tho is the first Asian to win the prize.

The prize has been shared by two individuals 11 times previously.

No Nobel Peace Prize was awarded last year, as has happened on 18 occasions since 1914.

Chancellor Willy Brandt of West Germany won the last prize in 1971 for his reconciliation policy toward Communist Eastern Europe.

Milk Prices Up On November 1

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina Milk Commission today unanimously approved an increase of nearly 3 cents per quart in the price paid dairy farmers for milk in the state.

The increase, effective Nov. 1, is expected to result in similar increases in milk prices at the retail level.

It was the fourth time in a year that the commission had boosted the price paid producers in an effort to meet what the producers said were spiraling increases in their production costs.

In December, 1972, the commission set the price paid farmers for Class I milk at $7.96 per hundred pounds. It boosted this last February to $8.41 and again on Aug. 6 to $9.29. This time, the commission upped the price to $1.33 per hundred to $10.62.

The commission approved the increase on a motion of Mrs. B. C. Langston of Grifton, its vice chairman, after mulling over testimony that farmers' costs have increased 27 per cent during the first seven months of 1973.

$373,000 Allocated To Pitt Secondary Road System Needs

RALEIGH—The North Carolina Secondary Roads Council announced today that it is allocating $28.7 million for improvements to the state's secondary road system on a county wide basis.

Each county's portion of the allotment has been figured on a formula based on the number of unpaved miles within the county and the average cost per mile for paving a road in the county's section of the state.

The State Division of Highways estimates it costs $42,333 per mile to pave a secondary in the eastern section of the state, $38,866 per mile in the central portion and $54,879 in the western counties.

Members of the Council will confer with county boards of commissioners in each county to set up a year's work in the county. The details of what is to be done will be made public before it is finally adopted by the Council.

Pitt County's allocation is $373,000.

Wife Slows Down Mate's Beer Intake

DEAR ABBY: Maybe my experience will help some other women whose husbands have a drinking problem.

My husband used to drink three to four cases of beer a week. I promised him that any day he didn't drink more than two bottles of beer, I would make love to him any time of the day or night. Now a case of beer will last forever.

Many days he will hurry home from work to get home before the kids. He used to stop to have a few beers with the guys. No more. It worked for us, so it may work for someone else.

DEAR SOBER: "Land of the sky blue waters" should be changed to "land of the true blue lovers." Congratulations, even tho I am opposed in principle to using "love" as a reward . . . and withholding it as a punishment.

DEAR ABBY: Three cheers for the guy who shot the dog with a .22 rifle. I would do the same to every dog that comes on my property, but there is a $100 fine for firing a gun in a residential neighborhood.

I say, if dogs were taxed, we would have a better U. S. A. in which to live. Dogs in Europe are taxed.

DOG-HATER IN SOUTH CAROLINA
DEAR DOG-HATER: Dogs are "taxed" in the U. S. A. [What do you think a dog's license is?] In Italy, watchdogs are not taxed, only "luxury" dogs [pets] are taxed. Of course, you might have a difficult time trying to convince the tax folks that your pet is also a watchdog, or that your watchdog is also a pet.

DEAR ABBY: This has been bothering me ever since it happened. Please tell me what to do if it ever happens again.

While at our school dance, a boy asked me to dance with him. I really didn't want to, but I didn't know how to turn him down without embarrassing him. How do you turn a boy down? Please print this because I'm sure many other teen-age girls share my problem.

DEAR CONFUSED: You don't! Sometimes the easiest way around something is straight thru it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALL WHO OBJECTED TO MY REPLY TO "STEVE'S GIRL" [who said she "loved" her job, but that Steve insisted that after they married she would work only 8 hours a day, 5 days a week, and no more. Steve didn't think a woman could successfully combine marriage and a career which demanded more time away from home than that.] I said I thought Steve's request was not unreasonable, but if SHE did, she should hold up the wedding bells.

Hundreds of readers wrote to ask me if my answer would have been the same had Steve's girl demanded that Steve work only 8 hours a day, 5 days a week.

Emphatically NO! It's a fact of life that working women who are married must do double duty. After their 8-hour day away from home they are expected to run a house and raise the children, too. I'm not saying it is FAIR, or even that that's the way it SHOULD BE, I simply say that in 99 per cent of the American homes, that's the way it IS!

A Rare Visit With Last King

By CINDY ADAMS
CASCAIS, Portugal (WNS)—"Never ever will I live anywhere but in Portugal," said the last king of Italy, Umberto di Savoy, who now lives in exile on the Portuguese Riviera. "I will live here all the rest of my days."

"Friends ask why if my wife and son are residents of Switzerland, one daughter stays in New York—and there are many other glamorous places of the world such as Paris—why do I choose Portugal?"

"I'll tell you why. Because I don't forget. Some people forget a kindness. I do not. Never shall I forget that when I was forced to flee Italy in 1946 no other country would accept me. Only the Portuguese government would grant me asylum and all they said was, 'You do not mix into our politics and we will not mix into yours.'"

"And when I fled here with my family I had nothing. But nothing! You see, you may think something like this can happen to you but you never BELIEVE it will so you are not prepared for it. The kindly Portuguese fishermen brought me blankets and pillows and linen. The simple people of the nearby villages welcomed me with food and kindness. Can I ever turn my back on them? No, never."

Distinguished Figure
Rei (King) Umberto, as he's known in Cascais, is tall, slim, stately, impeccable, aristocratically balding and 69 years old. I had met him a few nights earlier walking through the lobby of the Hotel Palacio in the neighboring resort town of Estoril. He was all alone. We were introduced and he invited me to his villa for this friendly, informal meeting.

Other than the blue Portuguese tile on the gate which reads, "Casa Italia," nothing on the salmon-colored corner villa set amid a lush garden overlooking the Atlantic Ocean has anything that calls attention to the face that inside lives His former Majesty King Umberto of Italy.

An Italian count (one of the staff of three exclusive of the local cook and cleaning lady) admitted me to the reception room, then into the wood-paneled, handsomely appointed drawingroom with the Chinese antiques, Italian object'd d'art, oil paintings and the Oriental carpet on the parquet floor.

"This villa was supposed to be a hotel," explained the former King. "I was given this home permanently, for the rest of my life, by this government and by my countrymen who have not forgotten. They bought it while it was still under construction as a pension and my wife and children and I actually moved in and slept here while the painters and plasters were still working." Count Di Sarre

At eleven a.m. on this sun-drenched day the Count di Sarre, his official title-in-exile, was dressed in highly polished black loafers, black socks, blue suit, shirt with button cuffs. He gestured around the room. "Every single thing here was given to me by friends, relatives, my sister who lives nearby or by countrymen who haven't forgotten. No one thing did I have in my possession when I came here. Not one cup or ashtray that you see did I own before 1946."

Over the mantel hung an oilpainting of a wee fair-haired boy. "My son," smiled the head of The House of Savoy. Crown Prince Victor Emanuel now lives in Geneva with his wife and is in the helicopter business.

Asked what his life was like he replied, "Simple. No more do I have to ask what do I do today or where must I be tomorrow. I live a simple existence. I don't really enjoy golfing or sailing. I like to swim. I enjoy walking. I very much enjoy reading. And I have a few friends. At least I think I have friends."

Exile Friends
He referred to the other titled exiles who have made this chunk of the world their personal playground—such people as the Comte de Paris, pretender to the throne of France, and the Count of Barcelona, one of the pretenders to the Spanish throne. He also said he is friendly with the Elliott Roosevelts who live nearby and raise horses.

"Occasionally I travel abroad but never to Italy," he said. "I am not allowed in Italy. Although it is quite a nice existence."

"You know," said Umberto, "It is difficult to understand the state of the world today. Sometimes I think I have lived too long. I cannot believe that all my friends are no longer kings."

With that he walked me to door of the drawingroom, thanked me for coming, and disappeared back into his memories.

But They Constantly Change The Name!

KHARTOUM, SUDAN (WNS)—Officials here have given up their efforts to produce an accurate census in the South. The prime difficulty: mothers tend to change the names of their children almost daily. "They name their youngsters after things they like," explained a spokesman. "Today the most popular first name is Chocolate, but tomorrow it may be Bicycle." As further complication too many families have the same last name: Hob. "Hob means love, and everybody loves it," said the spokesman.

Furniture That Grows Old Gracefully

Have you ever stopped to realize that the furniture needs of your family change as your family changes in age and life style? After children have grown up and left home, families often contemplate moving into smaller quarters. When this happens, less furniture is needed and often times smaller scaled furniture is required.

Most people are happiest when surrounded with some familiar furnishings. Like old friends, treasured possessions make us feel comfortable and at ease. Most families have some pieces of furniture that will fit well into a second home. If there is a need to buy new furniture, there is wide variety of styles to select from. In either event, consideration should be given to furniture that provides special comfort and easy care.

Extension House Furnishing Specialists suggest the following points to consider in selecting furniture for the older adult.

—Chests raised off the floor not only provide a light look in small rooms but facilitate housekeeping. A long-handled mop may be used to whisk away dust without having to move the furniture as often.

—Look for pulls and handles on furniture that are easy to see and easy to grip.

—A wood-grained plastic top dining table can be wiped off after meals, is beverage proof, is resistant to heat and scuff marks, has the warmth of wood and can double for a game table.

—Chairs to go with the dining table can be easily moved back and forth from the dining to living area if they are lightweight. Extra padding in the chair seats will provide comfort for around the clock - use such as playing cards; drinking coffee, or just relaxing.

—An adjustable chair with a built-in footrest eliminates space needed for a separate hassock.

—The older adult spends an increasing amount of time sitting, therefore, special attention should be given to the selection of upholstered chairs. Desirable characteristics have been established to be considered in selecting a suitable chair for the older adult.

SARRATT, England (WNS)—Four years ago Alec Jenkinson, 77, decided to encourage housewives to grow more flowers by offering an annual chrysanthemum trophy in the horticultural show here. "The idea worked, but it's embarrassing," he said. "I've just won my own trophy for the fourth year in a row."

Three Awards For Charlie Rich

By SYLVIA RECTOR
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A mountain of a man named Charlie Rich strode across the Grand Ole Opry stage Monday night to take three Country Music Association awards for the love song "Behind Closed Doors," itself named song of the year.

While the most prestigious laurels, entertainer of the year, fell to Roy Clark, it was Rich who stole the show at the seventh annual awards presentations.

"I was hoping for single of the year. If we hadn't taken that one, I'd have been disappointed. But three..." His voice trailed off and he shook his head. Rich, 40, was dubbed the CMA's male vocalist of 1973 and the song gave him best single and best album honors.

Clark, mainstay of the Hee Haw series, was nominated in only one other category—instrumentalist of the year. What was the secret combination that finally brought him the big one? "Twenty-five years of hard work," he quipped.

Long-haired beauty Loretta Lynn, last year's entertainer of the year, jumped down the stage steps two at a time to take the female vocalist of the year trophy. "I was shocked," she said later. But it was one of two awards for the Kentucky coal miner's daughter.

Conway Twitty and she were named vocal duo of the year for their teamwork on the album "Louisiana Woman—Mississippi Man." She said later that "Conway always makes me do the talking," as he had asked her to do in the ceremonies. Not one to waste words herself, she smiled "Well, Mississippi man, we won it."

The late Patsy Cline and Mr. Guitar, Chet Atkins, were inducted into the Country Music

Hall of Fame. Among the personalities who make up the world of country music, it's the highest possible honor.

Kenny O'Dell, the unassuming, soft-voiced young man who wrote "Behind Closed Doors" picked up best song of the year accolades. "My wife was kind of the reason for that one," he smiled. She was the dark-haried beauty who squealed and kissed him in the audience.

The Statler Brothers quartet took vocal group of the year honors, while the city's own Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass was recognized as instrumental master of the year.

Harmonica master Charlie McCoy made it two in a row as instrumentalist of the year.

Network television lights darted across the polished oak floors for the last time in the old Ryman Auditorium Monday night. Next year, the Opry and the CMA awards will move to the slick, expensive Opryland U.S.A. complex here.

"I was real happy to stand here tonight, but kind of sad, too," Johnny Cash, master of ceremonies mused.

$34,203 For Pitt UF From DuPont Workers

The Kinston "Dacron" Plant of the Du Pont Co. announced that some $34,203 of the annual employee campaign for the United Fund has been designated for the Pitt County UF drive.

Du Pont United Fund committee members presented the check for the funds to Pitt campaign chairman Bill Dansey in Greenville on Monday.

Employees at the Kinston plant annually make a contribution to the local United Fund cause. Last year's employee total amounted to $27,000.

The plant's United Fund campaign, which was completed recently, resulted in total contributions of $105,707 and represented a record figure for the plant. The total exceeded the pre-campaign goal of $86,000 by 23 per cent.

Plant manager Jim Piet praised the employees for their "generous response to the needs of others."

On hand Monday for the check presentation to Dansey were committee co-chairman Bill Mahoney, and committee members Anne Sutton and Bill Holland.

$90.78 Day On Farmville Mart

FARMVILLE—The Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday averaged $90.78 per hundred pounds after selling 518,285 pounds of tobacco for $470,512.

For the first time in several weeks, the volume of leaf grades yesterday was less than any other grade. More grades of cutters, lugs and primings appeared on the floors than on last Thursday's sale.

Nondescript grades also showed an increase in volume and quality leaf continued to account for top leaf prices.

Several piles of leaf grades brought as high as $1.21 per pound. Lower grades of lugs and primings showed a slight decline in price.

To date, the market has sold 15,777,042 pounds of leaf for a season average per hundred pounds of $90.24

Justices Are Silent On 'Bugged' Deliberations

By VERNON A. GUIDRY JR.
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court justices are remaining silent on the prospects — raised by one of their colleagues — that their most secret deliberation has been "bugged."

Justice William O. Douglas used a dissenting opinion in a wiretap-related case Monday to assert his belief that the court's conference room had been bugged.

Five justices who were reached directly or through the staff — Potter Stewart, Lewis F. Powell Jr., Thurgood Marshall, Byron R. White and Harry A. Blackmun — said they would have no comment on Douglas' claim.

An inquiry lodged with the court public information office brought no response whatsoever.

Douglas' dissent, a sharp attack on the prevalence of wiretapping, gave no information beyond his assertion about the court and another involving the late President Lyndon B. Johnson.

"We who live in the District of Columbia know that electronic surveillance is commonplace. I am indeed morally certain that the conference room of this court has been 'bugged' and President Johnson, during his term in the White House asserted to me that even his phone was tapped," Douglas wrote.

Joseph Califano, a Washington lawyer who served as Johnson's domestic affairs adviser, said he knew nothing about the assertion when asked for comment.

Douglas gave no hint of who would conduct such an illegal electronic eavesdropping nor when he believed it occurred. The conference room is the site of the court's weekly meetings where the justices discuss which cases they will hear and take votes on cases already argued.

The confidentiality of the conference is an overriding concern at the court. Only justices attend. A police guard, one of the 51-member force at the court, stands outside. Messages for the justices are announced by knocks at the door which are always answered by the junior justice, currently William H. Rehnquist.

Gerald Ford Declares Punishment Is In Order

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford says whoever leaked the charges against Spiro T. Agnew prejudiced the former vice president's defense and should be punished.

"These charges didn't just come out of thin air," Ford said.

"Somebody in the government violated his oath of office and whoever it is ought to be reprimanded, or whatever the procedure is," he said.

Ford made the comment to newsmen on his return flight from Portland, Ore., where he said the nation should work to solve future problems rather than concentrate on the misdeeds of past months.

"My whole attitude is that every day is a day that we can start anew in seeking the solution to whatever the problem may be in the next 24 hours," Ford said.

Meanwhile, in the House, three men have emerged as possible successors to Ford as minority leader. They were John J. Rhodes of Arizona, chairman of the Republican Policy Committee, Leslie C. Arends of Illinois, now No. 2 as whip, and Samuel L. Devine of Ohio.

A fourth possibility was John B. Anderson of Illinois, who said he was still taking soundings on his chances but had not yet decided whether to enter the race.

On the plane back to Washington, Ford said he did not "have any winning suggestion right now" on how to restore the public's faith in government as part of that effort to start anew.

"I do think as the things of the past four or five months get further away there will be some restoration," he said. "I am convinced that performance is what they want. Results will be the key."

Ford said his own emphasis will be on working with Democratic leaders to reduce friction between Congress and the White House.

He said one way to do this is to work out compromises on legislation at the subcommittee level to avoid veto confrontations. Ford said he was thinking of visiting committee chairmen from time to time to hunt for legislative common ground between Congress and the President.

Gunman Robbed Kwik Pik Store Sororities Host 'Little Sisters'

About $300 was taken in an armed robbery at the Kwik Pik on 14th Street here last night, according to Chief of Police Glenn Cannon.

Cannon said a Negro armed with a small pistol took the money from the store in a 10:25 p.m. holdup. He left the scene on foot.

Last night's robbery was the second such hold up within the past two weeks. And police investigators theorize the two robberies may have been conducted by the same individual.

A Kwik Pik located just outside the city limits on U.S. 264 East of Greenville was held up October 3. About $200 was taken in that incident.

Investigation of the cases is continuing.

Members of the eight social sororities at East Carolina University hosted their "little sisters" at a special "Little Sister" Weekend Oct. 12-14.

Younger sisters of the sorority members visited the campus and were treated to special weekend activities, including the campus Friday night movie, a songfest and picnic lunch on the mall Saturday morning and the Saturday night ECU-VMI football game.

Little Sister Weekend coordinator was Kathy Caston, chairman of the ECU Panhellenic Council's social activities committee.

She is a member of Kappa Delta Sorority and a resident of 61 Dogwood Acres, Chapel Hill.

Building your money: How we can help you build thrift habits for your child.

If your child is ten or over, it's time to start teaching him or her about money building.

First, give us a call. We'll arrange a special tour of Bank of North Carolina, N.A. for you and your child. We'll explain how a bank puts money to work. We'll see the big vault.

Then, open a savings account for your child. (Minors under the age of 15 must have a parent or guardian co-sign to open an account—a N.C. banking law.)

A savings account can be opened at Bank of North Carolina for any amount of $1.00 or more.

A special savings register or passbook will be made out in your child's name.

We'll explain to your son or daughter how interest works. How we use their money and pay them for using it. We'll explain that they receive 5% interest, paid monthly. And we'll explain how compounding works (it's compounded daily) and how they can earn money on the interest they earn.

We suggest they have a goal in mind: a benchmark to work towards. (Saving for "tomorrow" doesn't mean much to a ten-year-old. But saving for a new bike or riding lessons is real and important.)

We'll try to make your child feel comfortable in our bank.

Then it's up to you to encourage your children to save their dimes and quarters for the next trip to the Bank. And encourage them to earn money to go into their savings account. We'll let them know we're proud of them as their balance grows. You'll want to do the same.

The child who learns that bank means more than piggy bank is learning to be a financially responsible adult. And as a parent, that can help you build your own money. And building your money (and your child's) is our business.

Can Stand No More Surprises

President Nixon has proposed Rep. Gerald R. Ford as vice president of the United States to replace the resigned Spiro Agnew.

Rep. Ford has been a good party man in the Republican party and a strong supporter of President Nixon in most of his policy decisions.

After 25 years in the House of Representatives he seems to have the good will of most members of Congress from both parties.

There is no reason to believe that Rep. Ford has anything in his past that might prove embarrassing as the nation's vice president. Congress, however, should take nothing for granted. There should be full hearings on the Ford nomination and anything questionable in his background, no matter how small, should be looked into.

The nation needs no more surprises about its vice presidents and potential vice presidents. Congress owes it to the nation, and to Rep. Ford himself, to look carefully at his background, even though most congressmen, we are sure feel they know the man quite well.

Rep. Ford disclaimed any intention of being a candidate for political office in 1976. "I say that as forcefully as I can," he declared.

That statement should be sufficient for those in Congress who do not wish to see a presidential possibility placed in the vice presidential chair. On the other hand there should be no attempt by Congress to obtain any kind of binding agreement from Ford on his disclaimer from seeking future office. In the first place it probably would not be legal. More important, it is not beyond the realm of possibility that Ford could be president in 1976, if something should happen to the president. In that case, the times could demand that he run for a full term.

These are unprecedented times in American political history. Members of Congress are first political animals, but in this case they should place what is best for the country ahead of any political considerations.

A Storm Over Commitments

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — A new law requiring court hearings for people slated for involuntary commitment to a mental institution is creating a storm of controversy among court and law enforcement officials across the state.

So severe is reaction to the new procedures that legislative leaders have put into gear machinery to either amend or repeal the law which took effect Sept. 1.

State Sen. Julian R. Allsbrook of Roanoke Rapids will launch a public hearing October 19 before his Judiciary Committee to hear the numerous complaints swirling around the procedure and look to recommended changes or possible repeal.

"There's so much concern and reaction on the part of judiciary officials and law enforcement officers that the lieutenant governor has asked us to work on the matter and try to straighten it out. I'm willing to take this on, but none of us know what the answer is," Allsbrook said.

Twiggs Gets Hit

State Rep. Howard F. Twiggs, sponsor of the controversial measure, agreed that there is strong reaction. "Everytime I go over to the State House, legislators call me aside and complain about the reaction they are getting at home. Some even say they think we ought to repeal the law — even if that would leave us with a process which is unconstitutional.

"Everytime I go to a meeting, I feel like they're getting ready to stone me. I've been accused of pushing this through hurriedly, but I can tell you, politically speaking, this is no golden star to catapult me to national fame. It was just something that had to be done in order to meet constitutional requirements on protection of individual rights of freedom through due process; otherwise, we (the General Assembly) would have been back in special session trying to right a new law," Twiggs said.

Twiggs said he is spending many hours daily in conversation or correspondence with people objecting to the procedure. "They say it's terrible, that it's bad, that it's unworkable. But when I ask for specifics and suggestions — well, so far, nobody has responded to that invitation."

Twiggs said he will be present at Sen. Allsbrook's hearing, even though he suspects "a good portion of the time will be spent stoning me."

But even the author of the bill admits there are problems with it, and amendments and adjustments need to be made. But Twiggs insists that some such protection of individual freedoms must be kept. The bill was passed in the last two days of the legislative session, in the face of state and federal court actions which found existing involuntary commitment processes unconstitutional.

Protect Freedom

"The courts hold that by whatever way you take away a man's freedom — even when you say it is for his own good — he is entitled to due process of law. We had to move fast. We had zero commitment law left in North Carolina after the courts ruled our procedures unconstitutional," Twiggs noted.

Under the old law, any person who had facts involving the need for commitment of an individual to a mental institution could get papers and go before local clerks of court and have the person committed.

Twiggs' bill set up an elaborate series of steps to be followed:

1. A law enforcement officer (usually a sheriff) must take the individual into custody and determine if the individual is either violent or unable to function to the degree that he can not provide for his daily needs such as dressing, eating, bathing;

2. The individual must be taken to a doctor for evaluation;

3. He must then be taken straightaway before a magistrate who must decide whether the individual shall be released, or held for further action. If he is held he must be taken to a treatment facility (either a hospital or local clinic);

4. Within five days a hearing must be held before a District Court judge, or the individual must be freed. The law guarantees the individual an attorney and requires a transcript of the court hearing. If committed by the District Court judge, the individual is entitled to all the appeals through normal court channels, including a Superior Court jury trial.

Hearings Continue

5. If committed, it is for a period of not more than 90 days, at the end of which a second hearing must be held in District Court. After this, and for all patients kept in an institution on a long-term basis, a District Court hearing is required every 120 days.

State court officials said that statewide, the new law is requiring between 20 and 25 due process hearings every day, involving either new involuntary commitments, or the re-hearings for those already committed.

Some communities are reacting as well, charging that the procedure is returning to their homes people who ought to be in institutions.

Hot Warplanes Or Cold Homes

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Private warnings have now been informally but forcefully delivered to the U.S. that if Israel is resupplied with F-4 Phantom aircraft and other heavy equipment, King Faisal of Saudi Arabia will feel compelled to cut off all oil to the U.S.

Thus, President Nixon may soon face an ugly choice posed by the Arab-Israeli war of 1973. If he approves replacement of the 40 to 60 jet aircraft believed lost by Israel, he risks a dangerous setback in his home-front energy battle to keep America warm this winter.

If he disapproves, he risks greater Israeli casualties on the Sinai front (and with them a sharp rise in anti-Nixon pressure from the powerful American-Jewish community).

That the threat of a Saudi-Arabian oil cutoff is real goes to what Middle Eastern experts feel is the Soviet Union's real hope for the current war: not so much a return to Egypt and Syria of territories lost in 1967 but radical nationalist revolutions in Saudi Arabia and lesser oil-rich kingdoms.

The aim will probably be advanced no matter how badly the present war may finally end for Egypt and Syria. The result will be an increase in hatred for Washington among both Arab masses and Arab intellectuals.

That threatens King Faisal. Although a loyal, durable friend of the U.S., he would find himself in a political hot-box after another Arab defeat because of uncontrollable anti-U.S. hostility.

The King's protection against the possibility that his regime might be swept away, like the Libyan monarchy by military revolution in 1969, is vital financial aid he gives Egypt. But if the dramatic improvement of Arab arms in the latest war impels the U.S. to massively resupply Phantom jets, Faisal would have to react by cutting off oil.

"If the Arabs see the U.S. trying to save Israel," one Mideast expert told us, "Faisal would have two choices: lead a radical nationalist revolution himself and end oil shipments to the U.S., or find a refugee haven somewhere far away."

That may overstate the case, but the point is essentially valid. With Arab arms performing much better than in any previous stage of the 25-year war, a marked pro-Israel move by the U.S. would immediately be seized by the Arabs to explain what experts here still are sure will be another Arab defeat. If that happened, no Arab leader could afford the intimacy with Washington the U.S. has long enjoyed with Faisal.

Furthermore, the hard choice between fighter planes for Israel or heating oil for American homes is made even worse for President Nixon by the split between the U.S. and Western Europe. With Washington supporting Israel and its European allies moving closer to the Arab states, the split has widened steadily since 1967. King Faisal's prospective decision to deny Saudi oil to the U.S. — if it comes to that — could widen it still further by discriminating against the U.S. in favor of Western Europe.

Such discrimination is in the offing. To enforce any embargo against the U.S., the Saudis are said by international oil experts here to be considering a novel scheme to keep Saudi oil flowing to Europe and Japan (which need it far more) but block it from reaching here. The basic idea: make the American oil companies in Saudi Arabia responsible for enforcement.

If the Saudi government found leakage to the U.S., it would punish the companies. Considering the vast profits of U.S. oil companies in the country with 25 per cent of known oil reserves, leakage would be minimized.

Thus far, of course, the U.S. is playing down the question of sending new Phantoms to Israel, minimizing the effects of the Soviet resupply of Syria and Egypt and counting on Israel's victory in the war. That go-slow policy is essential when the importance of the war itself is measured against the importance of all other questions involving the U.S. in the Middle East. Nevertheless, it is being attacked even now by pro-Israeli.

The Disillusion Is Total

In time, because all wounds heal in time, this would heal. But on the day after Spiro Agnew's confession and resignation, as this is written, the wound bleeds. It hurts, By God, it hurts.

I liked and admired this man; I believed in him. In print and on the hustings, I have defended Ted Agnew a thousand times these past five years. I applauded his deserved attacks upon the liberal media. I delighted in his quick wit and self-deprecating humor. And because he had "not been touched by Watergate"—what an irony is that!—I looked warmly toward his bid to the Republican nomination in 1976.

On this cold gray morning in Washington, the disillusion is total.

"I admit," said Agnew in court, "that I did receive payments during the year 1967 which were not expended for political purposes and that, therefore, these payments were income taxable to me in that year, and I so knew. I further acknowledge that contracts were awarded by state agencies in 1967 and other years to those who made such payments, and that I was aware of such awards. . . ."

In the light of that confession, it is not necessary—it merely quickens the pain—to dwell upon the sordid details etched with such cruel clarity in the government's supporting information. It is all there: the hints, the implications, the brown manila envelopes stuffed with cash, the evidence of payments secretly made to Agnew long after he had ceased to be Governor of Maryland and had become Vice President of the United States.

It is true, of course, as a matter of law, that these detailed charges have not been proved, and that Agnew is "presumed innocent" of the corruption they entail. He has "categorically denied" their truth. Such matters of law are lost in limbo now. By his own plea to the single count of tax evasion, Agnew made it impossible for the government to prove these other charges. He himself has destroyed the presumption of innocence.

His denial chokes in the throat. Can we believe his

Other Editors Say B52 Replacements

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Our Washington columnist, Andrew Tully, wrote last week about the need for Congress to give the Air Force the go-ahead on the B-1 bomber.

Mr. Tully joins a position taken by this newspaper two years ago.

He hit briefly on one of the strongest arguments supporting the B-1 program — the B-52 is wearing out.

This newspaper also developed that story months ago. The Air Force itself isn't having much to say publicly about the B-52's problems for fear of being accused — as always — of scare tactics.

But the B-52, which probably was the best military weapon for the money this nation ever produced, is long overdue for replacement and retirement.

Despite its spectacular record in Southeast Asia, the big plane is constantly plagued by in-flight emergencies.

Many of them barely made it back to their bases during the height of the bombing and in some instances the problems were simply the results of age.

The newest B-52 in our arsenal is 10 years old. It had rendered this nation gratifying service as one of the biggest deterrents to nuclear war.

It performed in Southeast Asia not only as the ultimate strategic weapon that broke the will of the North Vietnamese to continue the war as it was then being fought, but it also provided close support for ground operations.

The latter is a function for which the B-52 was not designed. Plagued now by the threat of metal fatigue, regarded by one expert as being only about 50 per cent effective in event of a major war, the B-52 continues to be the deterrent force on which we place our greatest dependence.

It will take two years from now for us to build and flight test three B-1's.

We would be through the 1980s before we would have 241 B-1's in service.

The projected cost of the 241 B-1's is $13 billion. The B-1 will be twice as fast, far more versatile and can carry twice the payload of the B-52.

Far more importantly, it will be new and dependable for years to come.

Congress must not delay the B-1 project any longer.

A Gym, Not A House

By JO HARING

For The ASSOCIATED PRESS
EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — It seems a shame to waste a perfectly good house on three small boys.

They seem to think so, too, judging from their blitzkrieg efforts at removing it from the face of the earth.

We slaved so long and hard to come by these four walls—agonizingly built, meticulously decorated, laboriously landscaped—amazing our friends, confounding our enemies and delighting the tax assessor.

And totally unimpressing our young fry.

It's not just the defacing of our property. We expected a certain amount of that, being the liberal-minded parents of young sons.

And we circumvented much of the damage by carefully decorating in muted tones of peanut butter and jelly, with accents of finger-mark grey and just a touch of dog hair here and there.

We did not foresee egg yolk and gum, not to mention marking pencils, glue and masking tape.

And surely eternal punishment must await the inventor of the ball point pen.

There might be a certain perverse pleasure in finding malice in these acts. But when No. 2 son takes you by the hand, assuring you that he has "made a boo-ti-ful picture" for you, then leads you to a television set with its picture tube completely colored in with gay pictures to which he points with creative pride, how can you truly find it in yourself to break every bone in his body?

It is the methodical and total destruction which gives one pause.

Shingles missing from the house, sheet rock stripped from the garage, window wells filled with debris, not to mention

The average price on the Pitt County Tobacco Market was expected to rise today, again to a high point in the season.

Total sales for the season at the end of the last week were 23,061,324 which sold for an average of $12.77 per hundred pounds.

Two days after Germany's withdrawal from the World Disarmament Conference and the League of National, the conference has adjourned until October 26 upon pleas by the chairman, Arthur Henderson of Great Britain.

"The struggle for disarmament must go on and the covenant of the League of National shall not be treated as a scrap of paper," Henderson said to the International Peace Association in Geneva.

The controversy over the Greenville City swimming pool is again in the news. If the city passes up the present opportunity to build it with government funds, it will probably be many a day before a municipal pool is built here.

The Pitt County Fair opens today with 20 big acts and 40 rides and canvas theatres. From 10 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. each day, radio station WEED will broadcast direct from the fair grounds.

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The

stock market has risen 97 points in the past month, based on the Dow Jones Industrial Average. It has provided evidence enough for some starving brokerage houses to declare the beginning of a bull market.

That a bull market has begun there is no doubt. But it isn't in stocks; it's in advice.

Market letter writers may be more careful than they were 15 years ago. Then bombast and wordage provided a sweet scent of romance when any intelligent investor should have demanded the facts be put under his nose.

Today's letter writers have more respect for the facts, but they still succumb to the temptation of using them to promote sales rather than to describe conditions.

Activity itself is a goal, because activity brings commissions. And commissions are paid whether stocks rise or fall. There is no requirement that analysis be correct.

The current environment is thus exemplified by statements such as "The year 1974 could be a surprisingly good year for stocks," and "We agree with the administration's chief economists that the nation has passed the worst of the economic fever of 1973."

Without attempting to define what economic fever is — it could be inflation, or too high a jobless rate, or lagging productivity, or weak exports, or the dollar trouble, or all and more — there is a case for economic improvement.

The dollar is now properly valued, or even undervalued. Exports are rising, imports slowing. Foreign money is beginning to flow into U.S. investments. Interest rates probably have peaked.

But only a promoter can ignore the grey color of consumer attitudes, the high interest rates, the devastated housing market, the possibility of chronic inflation, the failure of controls, the unhappy political climate.

These would be danger signs in any other time, but the hope of a market rally after so many months and even years of depressed prices and broker incomes, overcomes fear. A greater fear is all that red ink.

Profits, say some letter writers, have seldom if ever been better, but they omit saying that the stock market reacts to future events, not the past. They don't explain why the market didn't rise when profits were so high.

Strength For Today

DOING ONE'S BEST

The great poet, Robert Browning, a man of some means, once founded a market in Florence to which hand workers could bring fine lace for sale. Most of the work was of very high quality, and tourists bought it eagerly.

One day an old woman came to the market with some crude and uneven lace to see. Her son had been killed in a recent war, and with failing eyesight she was struggling to support three grandchildren by doing the only work for which she had been trained.

"What shall I do with it?" asked the superintendent of the market, showing the lace to Browning.

"Pay for it, and give it to me," was his reply. Every three months, for several years, the old woman returned with more lace, always more poorly done than the time before. And always Browning bought it. His was the spirit of the One who said, "Well done, good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful in a few things. I will make thee ruler over many things. Enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Agnew 'Emphatically' Denies Pocketing Big Sums

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Describing his political ruination by criminal charges as "my nightmare come true" and praising President Nixon and the man Nixon nominated to succeed him, former vice president Spiro T. Agnew has taken leave of American public life.

His valedictory on Monday night was a 17-minute, nationally televised address in which he also urged reforms in political campaign spending, government contract bidding and the use of immunity by prosecutors.

Speaking in a calm and deliberate manner, Agnew denied again all allegations of extortion and bribery raised against him by the Justice Department.

And he said his decision not to contest a felony charge of having evaded some $13,500 in Federal income taxes in 1967, when he was governor of Maryland, was not a guilty plea but "the only way to quickly resolve the situation."

It was done, he said, "to still the raging storm."

But coupled with his reassertion of innocence was a veiled acknowledgement that by some interpretations his activities could have been deemed improper.

"Beyond the insinuation that I pocketed large sums of money, which has never been proven and which I emphatically deny, the intricate tangle of criminal charges leveled at me ... boils down to the accusation that I permitted my fund-raising activities and my contract-dispensing activities to overlap in an unethical and unlawful manner. Perhaps, judged by the new post-Watergate political morality, I did," Agnew said.

"But the prosecution's assertion that I was the initiator and the grey eminence in an unprecedented and complex scheme of extortion is just not realistic," he said. Agnew resigned last Wednesday and pleaded no contest to the tax charge, on which he was sentenced to a $10,000 fine and three years' probation. In return for this the Justice Department agreed not to prosecute him on the other charges, but made them public.

Agnew said he reached the decision to resign only a few days beforehand, and prior to that had been determined to fight for his integrity and his office, regardless of the cost.

But he said that because of crises facing the nation, including the war in the Middle East and the Watergate scandal, he felt the American people needed a vice president in whom they could have total trust and confidence.

In a copyrighted interview Monday by the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner, a "broken and bitter" Agnew was quoted as saying pressure from highest levels of the Nixon administration forced him to quit and plead no contest on the tax charge.

While this suggested Agnew believes Nixon engineered the end of his political career, he said nothing about it Monday.

Saying he wanted to avoid "a paroxysm of bitterness" in his final appearance, he praised Nixon for his leadership and said he had "borne a heavy burden in his attempt to be both fair to me and faithful to his oath of office."

He denied reports that his meetings with Nixon since the scandal broke had been unfriendly or vitriolic.

Elon Installing 7th President

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP)—Elon College's seventh president will be installed in informal ceremonies at the school Wednesday.

Dr. James Fred Young will be installed by Secretary of State Thad Eure, the chairman of the school's board of trustees.

The board will also hold its regular meeting on campus Wednesday.

Lenience Offers Cited As Testimony's Source

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Spiro T. Agnew says prosecutors built their case against him on questionable testimony bought with promises of leniency.

In a farewell address to the American people Monday night, Agnew denied participating in the bribery and extortion scheme described by government prosecutors.

His lone concession was that "the new post-Watergate political morality" might hold that he violated ethics and laws by allowing campaign fund-raising to overlap his role in the awarding of state contracts.

The former vice president lashed out anew at the deals prosecutors made with the four key witnesses against him.

Agnew said the government case "rested entirely on the testimony of individuals who had already confessed to criminal acts and who had been granted total and partial immunity in exchange for their testimony against me ..."

He asked, "What is it that makes my accusers — self-confessed bribe brokers, extortionists and conspirators — believable?"

Agnew said, "As things now stand, immunity is an open invitation to perjury."

The Justice Department has said that prosecutors buttressed the key witnesses' assertions with voluminous records and corroborating testimony from others involved.

Agnew resigned Wednesday and accepted a felony conviction for income tax evasion. The Justice Department agreed not to press bribery and extortion charges but released a 40-page document detailing the evidence against Agnew.

The prosecutors have acknowledged that some promises were made in return for cooperation from these witnesses:

Jerome B. Wolff and I. H. "Bud" Hammerman, who allegedly solicited and shared in the kickbacks obtained from seven Maryland contracting firms, and Lester Matz and Allen Green, engineering company executives who told of making payoffs totaling $87,500 directly to Agnew.

But the government said none of the four has been guaranteed freedom from punishment. Hammerman and Green each has agreed to plead guilty to a single tax violation carrying a maximum three-year prison sentence.

Matz and Wolff have been promised that their sworn statements will not be used against them in any criminal prosecution.

protestation? If these other charges were in fact "damned lies," if they were based upon perjured affidavits, if he were guiltless of any wrongdoing, what, then, was his proper course? It was to resign his office, demand trial, and fight for acquittal by a jury.

Yes, such a trial might have inflicted upon the nation, as Attorney General Richardson said, "serious and permanent scars." Such an ordeal, as Agnew said, would have been "brutalizing" for his wife and children. But the nation is strong; it has survived deeper scars. Wives and children are stronger than we think; they would have endured the ordeal. Agnew's one chance for vindication, if he were indeed innocent, was to demand his day in court. On Wednesday he swapped it away.

The hurt is muffled in sorrow. For the past seven years—seven years!—Agnew has been carrying this secret weight upon his conscience. It must have lain like a stone in his belly. No matter how he moved, or joked, or tried to forget it, the lump was still there. What went through Agnew's mind, one wonders when his friendly visitor came with the envelope in the morning, and he made a speech that night on the old values: honesty, integrity, and obedience to law.

It is a lame excuse—it is no excuse at all—that he had financial problems. Everybody has financial problems. As Vice President surely he had no need of the money we are left to assume he accepted—no need, that is, in the sense of his immigrant father had needs. Agnew could have gotten along on 72,500 a year. One is reminded of Abe Fortas, who had no need of the outside income he accepted when he served on the Supreme Court. Flawed crystal and false gold! One rues with Browning the course of lost leaders: Just for a handful of silver they leave us.

No one—not the press, not Richard Nixon, not Elliott Richardson or Henry Peterson—no one compelled Agnew in 1967 to adopt "a long-established pattern of political fund-raising in Maryland." No one compelled him to take payments "which were not expended for political purposes." He himself has stained this administration, shattered his believing friends, and dealt one more blow to the crippled President who raised him from obscurity. Don't bother, Ted, to say it ain't so.

cushions dispatched from the couch, pictures removed from the walls, water flowing from the bathroom to the kitchen via the ceiling.

All of this would seem to constitute acts of disturbed and dangerous individuals.

Not so. Each is the result of an act of extreme creativity—ammunition for the current neighborhood war, material for a fort, bases for the ball game, cushions for gross motor activity (parachuting from the coffee table), lakes for toy dinosaurs to float in.

We poke fingers into the dikes up to our elbows and assure each other that next year it will be better.

We both know better. Next year they will be older, wiser and stronger—and our energies will have declined by that much.

With the birth of the third boy, we started looking around for a nice gymnasium to buy. There's a lots to recommend it. There are no cushions to be removed, precious little glass to break, no furniture to run into.

With a small trailer parked outside for cooking and sleeping facilities, it's hard to see how we could go wrong—unless, of course, peanut butter and jelly sticks to gym floors.

Angry Athletics Face Mets Again

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Mad at Charles O. Finley and concerned about Tom Seaver, the Oakland A's meet the New York Mets tonight in the third game of the 1973 World Series.

The controversial Oakland owner and the celebrated New York pitcher were two problems as the A's attempted to break the 1-1 deadlock in this best-of-seven-game classic.

Almost always in some kind of hot water, Finley had most of the A's boiling today with his latest affair—the "firing" of second baseman Mike Andrews.

An announcement from the A's front office stated simply that Andrews was knocked off the roster because of a "shoulder ailment."

However, the A's, almost to a man, believed the eccentric Oakland owner literally fired Andrews for making two costly errors in Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Mets.

The uncomfortable situation has the A's on the brink of a wholesale revolution, says outfielder Reggie Jackson, the team's player representative.

"There could be a possibility of refusing to play," says an outspoken Jackson. "There are a bunch of guys on this team who are close to that point."

However, Jackson tempered that bold statement after thinking about it for a while.

"We have to decide whether it's worth it," said the slugger. "After all, we have an obligation to the fans. We owe them a good performance. If we let things like this bother our play, then we wouldn't be professionals." He stressed, though, that practically the whole team was disenchanted with some of the stunts pulled by the Oakland owner.

"Believe me, there are going to be a lot of holdouts in spring training next year," said Jackson. "Some players are going to hold out just for spite."

To further dramatize the bizarre situation some of the A's went through a lazy practice Monday at Shea Stadium wearing adhesive No. "17s" on their uniform sleeves.

"It was in memory of Mike Andrews," said third baseman Sal Bando, half-joking but obviously upset with the new Finley twist.

The mental problems were coupled with the very real physical problem of hitting Seaver's pitches. The ace of the New York staff will be opposed by Oakland's Jim "Catfish" Hunter in a duel of right-handers.

Along with Finley, Seaver also was on Jackson's mind as he readied himself for the confrontation with the National League champions.

"They got a guy going for them that they heard about in China," said Jackson.

Seaver Won't Change His Style; Is Not Worried About Jackson

By FRED ROTHENBERG
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver, believed by many of his peers to be the best pitcher in baseball, isn't about to change his style for anybody.

And that includes Reggie Jackson.

The powerful Oakland line-up features the right-handed power of Sal Bando, Gene Tenace and Joe Rudi, but it's the left-handed slugging Jackson, who should worry the right-handed Seaver. But he doesn't.

"I won't change my style of pitching," said Seaver, 19-10, who will oppose Jim "Catfish" Hunter, 21-5, for tonight's third game of the 70th World Series in a duel between two premier right-handers. "I am a power pitcher. It's silly to tamper with success."

"I respect their hitters and I know they go for fastballs, but I won't let them take my strength away from me."

The only person who ever takes Seaver's strength away is Tom Seaver.

"If I have my stuff, I'll challenge their hitters. If not, I'll have to adjust," Seaver said.

Jackson, the American League's leading home run hitter with 32 and top RBI man with 117, broke out of a late season slump in Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Mets with four straight hits.

"That was a big game for the Mets," Jackson said after the game. "They could have gone back to New York 0-2. Now they are 1-1 and they got a guy going for them that they heard about in China."

Those millions of avid Chinese fans who read the Oriental sports pages know that Seaver led the National League in ERA with 2.08 and strikeouts with 251.

"This year was the best I ever pitched," said the 29-year-old Seaver. "But in the last few weeks I was pitching as lousy as I've ever pitched."

Seaver, who won the NL playoff's decisive fifth game after losing the opener, attributes his late-season problems to a tired arm.

"I'm glad I'll be getting that extra day's rest," said Seaver, whose normal vacation time between starts is four days.

"Now we're in the World Series so I can forget the last couple of weeks," said Seaver. "But if we'd lost the NL East by one game, it would have been a long winter."

Duke Fails To Knock Out Wave

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Duke's valiant efforts to hand Tulane its first loss of the football season fell short Saturday and failed to convince sports writers that the Green Wave, now 4-0, should be knocked out of the Associated Press Top 20 ratings.

Tulane moved up a notch from 18th to 17th place on the poll after its heartstopping 24-17 victory over the Atlantic Coast Conference Blue Devils, clinched in the last nine seconds.

North Carolina State's efforts to regain its footing in the rating rungs brought in some votes, but no return to the Top 20 where the Wolfpack started the season, despite the 24-22 defeat of Maryland in inter-conference play.

N.C. State was the only ACC team to receive votes in the AP poll.

Duke Coach Mike McGee is looking ahead now, to the weekend battle against Clemson in one of two conference games on the Saturday slate.

McGee wasn't certain which quarterback would be used against the Tigers. The Blue Devils, now holding a 1-4 record, got their only sustained drives in the meeting with Tulane under the leadership of substitute quarterback Hal Spears.

"We ended the game with Spears our No. 1 quarterback," McGee said.

After N.C. State's important win over the Terrapins—the two teams had been see-sawing in and out of first place in the ACC conference standings—the Wolfpack is looking forward to a rest. No competition has been set for Saturday.

The other scheduled conference game matches Wake Forest's Deacons and Maryland's Terps at Winston-Salem, N.C.

The interstate rivalry between Virginia and Virginia Tech will be given its head Saturday in a clash set for Blacksburg, Va.

The Tar Heels of North Carolina take on Tulane this week, traveling to New Orleans, La. for the contest.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has sent to the White House a bill authorizing appropriation of $150,000 to help finance the Arctic Winter Games to be held in Anchorage, Alaska, in March 1974.

The House took the final action Monday, voting 306-54 for a bill already passed by the Senate. Actual funds will depend on later appropriation legislation.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Buzzie Bavasi, president of the revived San Diego Padres, told sportswriters Monday he had some good news and some bad news about the baseball team.

"The good news is that we may stay here," he said. "and the bad news, I guess, is the same thing."

CINCINNATI (AP) — At long last, Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw got a shot at Cincinnati Bengal center linebacker Bill Bergey and "really stuck him."

Bergey, who has delighted in taking shots at the blond quarterback over the past three years—injuring him last year—was nailed on his first pass interception Sunday as the Bengals upset the Steelers 19-7.

"You know I had to put a shot on him," chuckled Bradshaw, "and I really stuck him right in the moustache. He'll feel it for a couple of days. I hope I didn't hurt him too much."

Gibson Is Lost

East Carolina tight end Benny Gibson, the team's leading pass receiver, underwent shoulder surgery Monday. He will be lost to the Pirates for the remainder of the season.

Gibson, a junior from Rocky Mount, Va., was injured in last Saturday's 42-7 victory over V.M.I.

Dr. James Bowman, East Carolina team physician, said the shoulder repair went "very well." Gibson will wear a harness for four to six weeks before the pin is taken out. It is hoped it will be ready for off season conditioning drills late in the winter or by spring drills.

In six games, Gibson had caught 12 passes for 157 yards and two touchdowns and one crucial extra point against Southern Illinois. He was ranked by head coach Sonny Randle as "one of the most consistent blockers along the offensive line."

Possible replacement include second team tight end Clay Burnett and converted wide receiver Mike Shea.

Missouri Up To 7th Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The Missouri Tigers upset Big Eight Conference rival Nebraska by just one point, 13-12, Saturday but that was enough to vault them into the top ten in The Associated Press weekly college football poll.

The Tigers jumped from 12th to seventh on the strength of their fifth straight victory, collecting 528 points, and even picked up one first-place vote from the 59 sports writers and broadcasters who participated this week.

Nebraska, 4-1, fell from second place to 11th in the poll. Ohio State, 4-0, continues to hold the No. 1 spot. The Buckeyes, 24-0 winners over Wisconsin, collected 39 first-place votes and a total of 1,113 points.

Alabama, also 5-0, advanced from third to second with eight first-place ballots and 930 points after beating Florida 35-14.

Oklahoma, 3-0-1, jumped from the sixth spot to third on the strength of a 52-13 nationally-televized rout of Texas. The Sooners got eight first place votes and 869 points.

Michigan, 5-0, was up one spot to fourth after a 31-0 romp over arch-rival Michigan State. The Wolverines got one vote for first place.

Penn State, with four first place ballots, rose from seventh to fifth on the strength of its fifth straight win—a 54-3 triumph over Army.

Defending champion Southern California, 4-0-1, fell from fourth to sixth after topping Washington State 46-35. Notre Dame, 4-0, was up one spot to eighth after blanking Rice 28-0. Louisiana State, 5-0, advanced from 10th to ninth with a 20-6 victory over Auburn. Tennessee, 5-0, slid down from eighth to tenth after defeating Georgia Tech 20-14.

Following 11th-ranked Nebraska were Arizona State, UCLA, Houston, Miami of Florida, Colorado, Tulane, Kansas, Arizona, and Miami of Ohio.

Rose Gets Race Win

Rose High School's cross-country team added another victory to its string yesterday with an 18-47 route of Rocky Mount.

The Rampants pushed over seven of the first 10 finishers to completely rout the Gryphons. Rocky Mount finished third in the event, then didn't have another finisher until ninth and tenth.

Art Klose took top honors for the Rampants, finishing in first place in 11 minutes flat. James Davis finished second in 11:07, just beating out Rocky Mount's Lee Tolar, the third place finisher in 11:08.

Rose then took the next five places to finish the victory. Fourth was A.J. Tyson in 11:23, followed by Gary Cayton, 11:32; Hugh Stokes, 11:43; Gregory Teel, 12:00 and Melvin Robinson, 12:12.

Rose Mount's Vincent Chavis, 12:26, and S. Joyner, 12:50, rounded out the top 10 finishers.

Rose visits Wilson on Thursday for their next meet, seeking their seventh victory in eight starts.

Contest Winners

Tony Baker of Rt. 1, Box 289 A, Greenville, captured first place in this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Baker correctly picked the winner in 28 of the 32 games. He won first, however, with his point guess. His guess of 71 was closest to the actual total of 81 scored in Southern California's 46-35 victory over Washington State.

Second place resulted in a tie between one of last week's winners, Stella Braxton of Rt. 8, Box 379-A, Lot 26, Meadowbrook Trailer Park, Greenville, and Charles Vincent, 1415 E. 14th St., Greenville. Both of them also had 28 games correct, and had the same point guess, 68.

The next weekly contest appears in today's paper. Entrants are cautioned that only one entry per person can be entered. It has been noted that some are entering more than once, automatically cancelling their chances.

Pirates Open Cage Workouts

East Carolina basketball coach Tom Quinn welcomed 14 varsity prospects here Monday as practice opened for the Pirate cagers. First day drills lasted two hours with an emphasis on defensive fundamentals, and conditioning.

Only four players returned—center Nicky White, guard-forward Roger Atkinson, Ken Edmonds and Tom Marsh, who sat out most of last season with injuries. Numbered among the varsity prospects were six recruits: Larry Hunt, Reggie Lee, Buzzy Braman, Donnie Owens, Greg Ashorn, an All-Tournament national junior college player and Robert Geter.

"This will be a very interesting season for us," Quinn said following practice. "We could start as many as three freshmen and we definitely will be a young, inexperienced club.

"Our practice today was an enthusiastic as any I can remember since I came here between starts is four days.

"Now we're in the World Series so I can forget the last couple of weeks," said Seaver. "But if we'd lost the NL East by one game, it would have been a long winter."

That could be because everyone is competing for a job. Everyone knows there is a place for them to play.

"I am extremely pleased with the condition of the squad," Quinn continued. We didn't have any first day nagging injuries like blisters or muscle pulls.

"We have more than a month to prepare for our opener (Nov. 30 against UNC-Wilmington). With a young squad, that will

Charlie O. Has Cut Activities

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
NEW YORK (AP) — Charlie O., the lazy-eyed mascot mule, continues to munch his oats under a radiant green and gold blanket. The mustachioed A's feud and fight. The straw-hatted ragtime band plays on. But the boss no longer leads the wild, jiving parade.

"I have to be very careful—the doctors have warned me about getting excited," said Charles O. Finley, accompanying his colorful Oakland A's to Shea Stadium for tonight's third World Series game against the New York Mets.

In the past, Finley, Chicago insurance tycoon and baseball maverick, has been No. 1 cheerleader and baton twirler in the march of his A's, 1972 World Champions, to the pinnacle of the baseball world.

But about two months ago, Finley was stricken with a heart ailment, putting a brake on his activities.

"It wasn't a severe heart attack—it was a mild one," he explained. "But some people don't walk away from a heart attack, regardless of its severity. I'm lucky, I guess."

But Finley is taking no chances.

As he sits in his box behind the Oakland dugout, a cardiologist is always at his side. He is always accompanied by a burly Oakland police sergeant, Carlton Ivey, and his Chicago secretary, Roberta Johnson.

Ivey was at Finley's side in Baltimore during the American League playoffs when the Oakland owner stumbled and fell down three steps, bloodying his nose.

"I got dizzy, lost my equilibrium and fell flat on my face," Finley said.

"I checked with my cardiologist in Oakland and he said it was okay for me to go to the games," Finley explained. "But he wants me always to have a cardiologist present and he doesn't want me to get excited."

The owner said that, while he is watching the World Series, his pulse is taken every inning. "If my pulse rate gets too fast," he added, "the doctor is supposed to get me out of there in a hurry. So far I've managed to contain myself."

"I carry these pills everywhere, too."

The handsome club owner looks gaunt and doesn't move with his former sprightly step.

Reminded that he had been the pioneer campaigner for the designated hitter and night World Series play, both adopted, Finley was asked what other innovations he would suggest for sparking up the game.

"I'm for designated runners, too," he said. "Let's put Olympic sprinters on the base paths. Anything to speed up the game. We ought to bust our butts to make the game as interesting as possible."

"We're working on an 'alert' orange-colored baseball. You know what alert orange is? It's the color cops wear to be seen at night. It's easier for the fans to follow the ball. It's easier for the hitters to see it."

Conover: Irish Ran Up Score

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out the college football wash:

It's particularly interesting that Coach Al Conover of Rice should accuse Notre Dame of trying "to embarrass us" in Saturday's 28-0 victory.

Interesting because unbeaten Notre Dame's next opponent is winless Army and Tom Cahill remembers a game when Notre Dame's Ara Parseghian did all he could to keep the score down.

"They tried to beat us as bad as they could," Conover said after the setback in which Notre Dame outgained Rice 526 yards to 144 but lost four of its five fumbles. He (Parseghian) tried to embarrass us, but he couldn't do it."

Conover's postgame remarks, as well as his ploy of inviting area priests to sit on the Rice bench, has created some ill feeling between the two parties.

"I have no idea what he's referring to," Parseghian replied Monday. "We were only ahead 14-0 at the half. We had the second team in during the fourth quarter and they scored one touchdown on a 38-yard run."

"I've always had great respect for Rice, especially when Jess Neely was coaching there, but I don't share that same feeling for Rice today."

"As for the priests on their bench, that sort of gimmickry is the kind of thing Conover has been doing. But blocking and tackling is what wins games, not gimmickry."

Army's Cahill says that "a 28-0 lead doesn't warrant pulling out your horses. If they had blown a lead everyone would be asking what's the matter with Coach Parseghian."

The whole business of whopping scores is on Cahill's mind. Cahill harks back to 1966 when the Cadets compiled an 8-2 record and Cahill was named Coach of the Year. One of the two losses was 35-0 to Notre Dame.

"That game is deeply ingrained on my mind," he says. "We had lost to Tennessee 38-7 and Notre Dame could have exceeded that score. It was 35-0 at the half and that's the way it ended."

Indiana's Lee Corso, describing his occasional 10-man blitz: "We call it our kill defense. Either we get killed or they do."

To counter-act it, Minnesota's Cal Stoll had his offense operate without a huddle Saturday in a 24-3 victory.

"With our type of offense, the pure Veer, we really don't need a huddle," he says. "We find in practice that we can run twice as many plays without huddling. It also allows our young quarterbacks to spend more time reading the defenses, making a play selection."

Retorts Corso: "The no-huddle was no problem. The problems came after they snapped the ball."

Oilers Dump Bill Peterson

By MICHAEL A.LUTZ
Associated Press Sports Writer
HOUSTON (AP) — Bill Peterson must know all about hearing footsteps.

The first audible step was March 3 when Sid Gillman became Houston Oiler general manager and said he had no desire to coach.

A louder step was heard Oct. 3 when Gillman took charge of Houston's sagging offensive fortunes—a job previously assigned to Peterson.

The resounding thud came Monday when Gillman fired Peterson as head coach and took the job himself with the Oilers bogged down in a 16-game losing streak.

Peterson, who led the Oilers to only one victory in 19 games as head coach, knew his time had come when asked to meet with Gillman and Oiler owner K.S. "Bud" Adams Monday morning.

"I want to stay in coaching of some kind," the disappointed Peterson said. "I like coaching in the NFL but I like college coaching too."

Gillman said the reason for Peterson's dismissal was obvious—his 1-18 record, but declined to go into specifics.

"We're in a winning business," the square-jawed Gillman said. "There is no excuse for failure in our business."

When pressed for specifics, Gillman stuck to his guns. "He's won before. He will probably win again some other place," Gillman said. "He didn't here and was relieved as a consequence."

Adams, who said the entire decision was Gillman's, may have touched on part of the problem.

"Evidently we're not putting together a game plan that is enabling us to win," Adams said. "Right there is where some changes needed to be made."

STENGEL RIDES AGAIN—Yogi Berra, manager of the New York Mets, left, and former Mets manager Casey Stengel talk to newsmen Monday at Kennedy Airport in New York. The

Mets had just returned from Oakland to play in third game of the World Series with the Oakland Athletics Tuesday at New York's Shea Stadium. (AP Wirephoto)

Miami Hands Cleveland Second Loss Of Year

By RICHARD BILOTTI
Associated Press Sports Writer
CLEVELAND (AP) —

"There were no fancy plays, just head on head," said Cleveland Browns middle linebacker Bob Babich. "In a game like that something had to break, and unfortunately it broke against us."

Babich's comment came moments after the Miami Dolphins handed the Browns their second defeat of the season, 17-9, in a National Football League game Monday night.

"Mercury's (Morris) run and (Mike) Kolen's interception were the big plays," Dolphins Coach Don Shula said.

With the Browns ahead 6-3, Morris broke away for a 70-yard gallop in the third period and put the ball on the Cleveland nine-yard line. Three plays later Larry Csonka went in from the two and put the Dolphins ahead for good.

"He (the Browns) Clarence Scott) walked up to me," Morris said. "I should have been a touchdown. I didn't know how close he was or I would have stiff-armed him."

Browns linebacker Charlie Hall said, "we had him (Morris) cornered and he caught our pursuit going the wrong way. It was a sweep to the left, he stopped, planted his feet and cut back. He has the speed to turn it on."

Kolen intercepted quarterback Mike Phipps' pass and returned it 29 yards, giving the Dolphins first and ten on the Browns' 18 with 6:41 left on the clock.

Csonka, who gained 114 yards for the Dolphins, moved the ball to the two, then went in for his second touchdown of the night to put it out of reach for the Browns.

"They were in zone coverage," Kolen said of the interception. "The ball was not thrown that well."

Hall said "I still thought we could win it until the interception. The interception was the big play."

At the time of the interception the Browns were down 10-9.

This is the third time this season the Browns have failed to score a touchdown. Don Cockroft kicked field goals of 30, 42 and 35 yards for the Browns.

"I don't really know why we can't get into the end zone," Phipps said. "I'll have to take the blame for some bad play calling. I guess that's where my lack of experience comes in."

The contest was on national television, and for the first time in the Browns' history local TV was not blacked out. Lifting of the blackout definitely affected attendance.

The Browns announced they had sold all 79,282 seats in the Stadium last Tuesday, but only 72,070 showed up for the game on a clear crisp evening.

The loss puts the Browns in a tie for second place in the American Football Conference's Central Division with the Cincinnati Bengals. Both teams are 3-2.

Wooden Cautious As Drills Open

By RON ROACH
Associated Press Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) —

Supporters of UCLA basketball already are looking for space in the Pauley Pavilion rafters to hang another NCAA championship banner but Coach John Wooden isn't all that confident.

"Whether we can be better than last year, I don't know," Wooden said as his team opened practice Monday. "We do have to replace two starters so I don't expect us to be as good early in the season. Later on we might be as good."

Yet Wooden said he expects Bill Walton, the 6-foot-11 center who has been college basketball's player of the year as a sophomore and as a junior, to be even better as a senior.

Forward Keith Wilkes and guards Greg Lee and Tommy Curtis also return for their senior years.

Add 6-10 freshman Richard Washington, 7-foot sophomore Ralph Drollinger, 6-7 junior Dave Meyers, 6-5 swingman Pete Trgovich, redshirt guard Andre McCarter, and the cast is overwhelming.

The record many predicted for the Walton era—90 victories without defeat—doesn't sound unreasonable. If it happens, the Bruins will have eight consecutive national titles and 105 straight triumphs.

It's hard to imagine. It boggles the mind. Wooden tries to keep it all in perspective as the 63-year-old coach prepares for his 28th season at UCLA.

"No, I couldn't say that," he said to whether this team potentially is stronger than last season. "While I think perhaps the replacements for the two starters I lost might eventually be better than either one, they're not likely to be better this year. They more than likely will be underclassmen and they won't be as good as the seniors."

The two senior starters on last year's team were forward Larry Farmer and perimeter man Larry Hollyfield. UCLA uses one guard, two forwards, a perimeter guard-forward and a center.

As for Hollyfield's replacement, Wooden said he wasn't sure.

Randle Considers Win Over VMI 'A Big One'

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

There have been football coaches who didn't consider it a big thing if they defeated Virginia Military's Keydets, but Sonny Randle of East Carolina's defending Southern Conference champion Pirates isn't one of them.

"This win over VMI was a most important win, more important than most anyone thought," says Randle of the Pirates' 42-7 victory over the Keydets last Saturday night.

"Our team is playing hurt and we have several good front-line players who could not go at full capacity against VMI," says Randle.

East Carolina, one of only three teams that plays every other league member, is three-sevenths of the way toward another title with the fourth hurdle coming up Saturday afternoon at The Citadel.

The key games, both at home, are Nov. 3 against William and Mary's Indians, who have won their only league start, and Nov. 10 against Richmond's Spiders, tied with the Pirates at 3-0 in the standings.

"I think the overriding factor concerning East Carolina football this year is our injury situation right now," says Randle.

"We have key players on both offense and defense playing hurt, and we have lost key players on both offense and defense."

One of the losses against VMI was tight end Benny Gibson, a 208-pound junior who underwent surgery Monday for a shoulder injury and is out for the season. Gibson was the Pirates' leading pass receiver with 12 catches for 158 yards and two touchdowns.

"We could probably use Clay Burnett, a backup tight end, or Mike Shea, who will have to be converted from wide receiver, and, of course, there is always a chance one of our freshmen will come of age," says Randle.

Linebacker Butch Strawderman returned to action against VMI after missing several weeks and "believe me, you could tell the difference," Randle says.

But he adds that sophomore defensive end Cary Godette, "who has been on the verge of greatness for three weeks," wasn't in uniform, though he may be available against The Citadel.

Randle is pleased with his "two first-team tailbacks"—sophomore Kenny Strayhorn and senior Carlester Crumpler, the senior who last season was the conference player of the year and set four league records, though they don't play at the same time.

Crumpler was hurt in the Pirates' 57-8 opening game defeat at N. C. State and has been unable to regain his starting job from Strayhorn, who has been a star in East Carolina's five victories since then.

"Kenny got shaken up in the second half (against VMI) and Carlester replaced him," says Randle. "I think Crumpler ran as hard as I've ever seen him run at East Carolina. He had 49 yards on nine carries and had a 30-plus-yarder called back."

In addition, Crumpler—who scored a conference record 17 touchdowns last season—crossed the goal line for the first time this year.

Eagle Badges Bestowed On Three Scouts Here

Three Boy Scouts of Troop 362 received their Eagle Badges Monday night at the meeting of the Greenville Moose, sponsors of the troop.

Recipients were Donald Freeman Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Freeman; Billy Hopkins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Hopkins; and David James, son of Mrs. and Mrs. Curtis James. The boys and their parents were presented before the lodge by Assistant Scoutmaster Bill Shaw. Governor Garland Beppard bestowed the badges and each Scout pinned a miniature Eagle on his mother.

Other business before the meeting was a report by Civic Affairs Chairman W. J. Shaw on the forthcoming Clothing Bank drive.

The collection of used, but still usable, clothing for distribution among the county's needy families will be conducted next Monday evening between the hours of 7:00 p.m. and 9:00 p.m. Scouts from Troop 362 will assist in the pickups, Shaw said.

A different and more efficient procedure will be followed this year in the annual campaign. Donors are being asked to telephone the lodge office (756-4370) to notify the collection teams of available items.

The Entertainment Committee's Western dinner-dance event on Friday evening was again brought to the attention of members, with Don Edgerley reminding the cutoff time for reservations would be Wednesday evening.

Special project chairman Leon Smith and Past-Governor Lacy Harrell recognized members who served at the Blood Donor Index booth at the County Fair, and reminded the need to recruit more names for the program was a continuing responsibility and need.

Secretary E. L. Baldree reported the board of officers had changed the date of the fried chicken dinner sale (proceeds of which will go to community service programs) from November 6 to November 7, because of a conflict in dates.

How N.C. Congressmen Voted

ROLL CALL REPORT

WASHINGTON — Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Oct. 4 through Oct. 10.

HOUSE

HOME RULE Passed, 346 for and 74 against, a bill providing a limited form of self-government for the District of Columbia, the first "home rule" since 1878.

The bill calls for an elected city council with power to levy taxes, an elected mayor and a mayor-appointed police chief. Also, it gives the District government authority to raise money through bond issues.

Congress, however, would retain control over the District's budget, and the President would retain authority to fill major District judgeships. Additionally, Congress would have broad veto power over decisions of the local government.

The bill now goes to conference with the Senate, which has passed a stronger home rule bill.

Most supporters argued that the bill strikes a balance between pure local government and the necessity for limited federal control over the "federal city."

Opponents generally argued that the bill goes too far in subordinating federal interests to the local government. Some, opposing any degree of home rule, argued that the Constitution mandates exclusive congressional authority over District affairs.

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1),

L.H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), James Martin (R-9), James Brodyhill (R-10), and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "yea."

Reps. Wilmer Mizell (R-5) and Earl Ruth (R-8) voted "nay."

FEDERAL ENCLAVE Passed, 209 for and 202 against, a home rule amendment establishing an enclave under exclusive federal control. The enclave would contain the District of Columbia's central section of monuments, parks and federal buildings.

The amendment would establish a Presidentially-appointed "director of the enclave," and suggests consolidating District-based federal police forces under the director.

Supporters argued that the Capitol building and other federal properties belong to all U.S. citizens, and thus should not be controlled by locally-elected officials. Some supporters argued that, in the event of District statehood, a federal enclave would fulfill constitutional requirements for a National Capital.

Opponents argued that the amendment is unnecessary because the home rule bill sufficiently restricts local control of federal property. They said creation of an enclave would produce overlapping jurisdiction in such areas as transportation, and that the office of "enclave director" would amount to an unnecessary level of bureaucracy.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Mizell, Ruth, Martin, Brodyhill and Taylor voted "yea."

Andrews, Preyer and Rose voted "nay."

SENATE

STRIP MINES Passed, 53 for and 33 against, a ban on strip and open-pit mining of privately-owned land where the federal government has sub-surface mineral rights.

The ban — a victory for environmental interests — mainly affects western states, where coal companies have leased government coal fields that lie beneath privately-owned land.

The motion, an amendment to the nationwide coal strip mining bill, does not prevent deep mining of federally-owned coal.

Those voting for the amendment argued that persons who bought land where the federal government retained mineral rights should be protected against having their land strip-mined. They said coal beneath these lands should be deep mined.

Opponents argued that this will reduce by millions of acres the amount of strip-mineable land. They said the energy crisis requires the fast and cheap techniques used by strip miners, and that forcing companies to use keep mines will mean higher fuel costs for consumers.

Sens. Sam Ervin (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

STRIP MINES Defeated, 29 for and 62 against, a move to gut the strip mining bill of its reclamation provisions. The bill requires coal companies to restore strip-mined land to its "approximate original contour," and permits states to set tougher reclamation standards.

The attempted weakening would have left final restoration requirements up to state and local governments.

After this vote the Senate passed the overall strip mine bill — the strictest it has ever passed — and sent it to the House.

Those voting for argued that local officials can best determine local needs. They said the need for coal requires mining even those lands that can never be completely reclaimed.

Opponents argued that federal reclamation standards are the best way to minimize destruction of land. Sen. Henry Jackson (D-Wash.) said the weakening amendment would have meant "business as usual" for strip-miners.

Ervin and Helms voted "yea."

WAR POWERS Passed, 75 for and 20 against, the conference report of the war powers bill that forbids U.S. involvement in undeclared war for more than 60 days without a majority approval by Congress.

The House is expected to pass the bill and send it to the President. Supporters argued that the bill reasserts Congress' constitutional authority to declare war.

restricts the President's ability to defend the country. Other opposing senators said the bill is too weak because it lacks language requiring the President to obtain prior congressional approval before he declares war.

Ervin and Helms voted "nay."

Hold Man As A Molester

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A marathon swimmer who set a record for treading water this year has been charged with molesting 11 young Charlotte girls.

A hearing is planned Friday for Reginald Lee "Moon" Huffstetler, 38, who was being held on $10,000 bond.

Authorities say the Belmont man often posed as a water pollution official who asked the girls to allow him to check their skin for rashes caused by polluted water.

He has also been charged with three counts of crimes against nature.

Huffstetler attempted to swim the English Channel without success Sept. 21, 1970.

His water-treading record was set June 17, when he treaded in a Charlotte swimming pool for 18 hours, 42 minutes. That record was broken by an Albemarle woman on July 15.

Cost Of Camp Has Quadrupled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Navy says the cost of operating the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md., has more than quadrupled since the beginning of the Nixon administration.

Rear Adm. D. G. Iselin told a House subcommittee Monday that maintenance costs at Camp David were about $640,000 in the last fiscal year. He put the costs at between $145,000 and $148,000 for each full year that Lyndon B. Johnson was president.

"We're making progress, aren't we," remarked Chairman Jack Brooks, D-Tex.

Don R. Brazier, Defense Department comptroller, said part of the increase could be attributed to higher maintenance costs.

The testimony ended hearings on government expenditures at and near Nixon's residences at Key Biscayne, Fla., and San Clemente, Calif.

"We cannot again permit a president or vice president to require the people of this country to refurbish an unlimited number of private homes,"

Brooks said in a statement. "It is difficult to understand why no concern was shown with regard to these expenditures at a time when the economy is in such condition that the administration feels compelled to abolish the school milk program, freeze low income housing funds, and close Public Health Service hospitals," he said.

"Testimony has revealed that some unauthorized expenditures have been made and some legitimate expenditures have been unreasonably excessive," Brooks said.

Ambulance Will Be Free

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Fosyth County Black Panthers say they intend to begin operation of a countywide "people's free ambulance" next month after the county commissioners gave unanimous approval Monday night to a contract allowing them to provide the service.

Party leader Larry Little says problems with insurance and communications, and the completion of a garage will delay the beginning of service until November.

"I can't pinpoint an exact date," he said, "but it should be operating in November."

The free ambulance, an attempt to provide ambulance service for the poor, will operate in conjunction with the county-owned ambulance service already in operation. Nelson Malloy, a party member, will direct the operation which will be funded by an Episcopal Church grant.

The new ambulance is to operate as a non-emergency service, but can respond to emergency calls through its hookup with the county service, by terms of the franchise.

Specialists Will Talk Soybeans

There will be a Grain & Soybean Meeting held Wednesday, at the Ayden Elementary School Cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. Supper will be served.

Dr. J.G. Clapp, and Mrs. R.E. Jarrett, Extension Agronomy Specialists from North Carolina State University, will lead the discussion.

Interested persons should call 746-3196 King Bros. Farm Center, Ayden, or 758-1196, the Agricultural Extension Office so that dinner arrangements may be completed.

This meeting should be interesting to all persons producing grains and soybeans and handlers.

Life Saved By Accident

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Clara Small was being driven to her grave when a traffic accident saved her life, police say.

The police gave this account: Winifred Hilbert, 60, forced his way into the home of his former wife, Mrs. Small, 73, on Oct. 5. He handcuffed her, beat her severely and held her captive for five days. He took her to a secluded cemetery, forced her to dig a grave and told her he was going to bury her there.

Before making a second trip to the cemetery, he removed her jewelry and other means of identification. En route to the cemetery last Thursday, he was involved in a minor traffic mishap and was arrested. He was intoxicated and was carrying a revolver.

"Mrs. Small was too frightened to say anything at the time, but she later told what had happened to relatives who phoned us," Police Sgt. Don Newberger said Monday. He said she had bruises all over her body.

Police have charged Hilbert with false imprisonment, aggravated assault and driving while intoxicated. He was released on bond.

'QUITE SATISFACTORY'
DENVER (AP)— The five surviving Stanek sextuplets were reported in quite satisfactory condition after celebrating their fourth week of life.

IF ALL YOU SEE ARE 3 GLASSES OF MILK...
LOOK CLOSER.

YOU'RE REALLY SEEING
1/2 THE PROTEIN YOU SHOULD HAVE EVERYDAY.

Sure, you're looking at 3 glasses of milk. No one's trying to kid you about that. But there's a lot more to that milk than you might think. There's calcium, vitamins, minerals. But you probably knew that already. But milk's got even more for you. Because it's a food. It's got high-quality protein. And your body should get a good supply of protein each day. One glass gives you 19% of the protein you should have. Two glasses, 38%. And three glasses give you more than half the protein you should have each day. We're not trying to confuse you with statistics. We're just trying to show you that milk can be an important part of your daily diet. And at still about 10-12¢ a glass served at home, an important part of your budget. And that makes milk one of the lowest-priced sources of high-quality protein around. Today, every little bit of information helps. So, here's more about nature's most nearly perfect food, milk.

Be Rid Of The Inner Tensions

Kathy's query illustrates the widespread belief of children that adults NEVER are afraid! So relieve their inner tensions by a "Fear Party," for it will often change their entire future life. It will also avoid your facing that "generation gap" later on!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Y-544: Kathy, aged 3, is typical of many timid toddlers. "Daddy," she asked, "are you afraid of the dark, too?"

And that was the heading of a very attractive full page advertisement by Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., many months ago.

It so beautifully illustrates my emphasis on "Fear Parties" for kiddies, that I clipped it out of the magazine.

For youngsters often are afflicted with all sorts of inner tensions and turmoil.

They hesitate to confess such fears, lest they be regarded as "chicken" or "sissies."

Yet their repression of such phobias makes them neurotic and leads to many behavior problems when they enter school.

Parents are usually regarded as giants and giantesses in physical size, for Kathy's daddy is twice her height and 6 times her weight.

If you adults wish to regain this toddler outlook on the world, just try to imagine that you are now surrounded by men who are all 12 feet tall and weighing 1,000 pounds.

And the women adults, as mothers, teachers, sales clerks and waitresses, would be over 11 feet tall and weighing 750 pounds.

That's the giant adult world in which little Kathy is living.

Moreover, we adult giants seem omniscient to kiddies, for we know when Kathy has been into mischief during our absence, though she can't figure out how, for she thinks "You didn't see me do it."

In numerous addresses before State Teachers Conventions, I have thus urged teachers to devote an hour to a "Fear Party," wherein they casually mention one of their own terrors when they were a child.

One 4th grade teacher started such a "confessional" by telling how she was terrified of snakes when she was 9 years old.

And how her brothers made her life miserable thereafter by scaring her with snakes.

"Do any of you boys and girls have anything you are also afraid of?" she casually inquired.

And a little girl timidly raised her hand; then confessed that she dreaded going to bed unless the light was on.

A second little girl raised her hand and admitted to being frightened by mice.

By this time, a little boy joined in the group confessional and said he covered up his head when a thunderstorm rocked the house or a crash of lightning occurred close by.

Fortified by realizing it was now quite proper to publicly acknowledge an inner terror, one after another released their inner tensions by an open confession.

"Before the end of the hour," this teacher told me, "every one of my 30 pupils had admitted some secret worry or fear."

"And the behavior of some of the neurotic children became more clam and normal thereafter."

Indeed, Alcoholics Anonymous (A.A.) gains much of its splendid benefits by group confessionals.

You can schedule one tonight at your dinner table, for kiddies are greatly relieved to learn that their daddy and mother also had secret terrors during their childhood.

And these group confessionals are a superb addition to Church Clinics, many of which are using the "Worry Clinic" as the general heading for their practical psychiatric discussions.

returned a trump, and declarer was stranded with a heart loser and nowhere to put it. Down one.

South's play was rather less exact than his bidding. He should have realized that there was the danger of an overruff in hearts and taken the necessary evasive measures.

Consider what would happen had declarer ruffed the third round of hearts with the queen of trumps! East can only discard, and the six of trumps remains in dummy. Declarer can get back to his hand with his remaining diamond honor and lead his last heart, ruffing with the six. East can overruff with the jack—the only trump missing that is higher than the six—but that would be the defenders' only trick. Declarer would regain the lead no matter what East returns, draw the outstanding trumps and claim the balance of the tricks. Not even a 4-0 trump split would bother him.

The bidding:

Don't send a boy to do a man's job. The potential saving in labor costs will rarely be enough to compensate for possible failure to accomplish the task.

South's hand was worth 22 points. With only four potential losers and a good seven-card suit, a forcing two-bid was the correct action.

North had the values for a positive response, and his rebid of four spades at his second turn was well chosen—a doubleton queen should prove adequate support for a suit that has been freely rebid. Despite the fact that he is void in his partner's suit, South did well when he leaped to slam. Unless all his partner's values were in clubs there had to be a fair play for twelve tricks.

After a diamond attack, declarer could see no difficulty ahead. He won in his own hand, cashed the king and ace of hearts and ruffed a heart with dummy's low trump. Unfortunately, East overruffed with the jack and

North Vietnam Having Reconstruction Woes

By CHARLES R. SMITH
UPI Senior Editor
HONG KONG (UPI) — North Vietnam's postwar reconstruction program is running into serious trouble.

Bad management, bad weather, supply shortages, theft, worker apathy and a wide range of other problems are hampering the nation's efforts to get back on its feet economically after a decade of war.

Frankly admitting shortcomings in the factories and on the farms, Vietnamese leaders have instituted a series of new measures aimed at boosting production.

They've adopted some capitalistic-type incentive payment programs to increase worker enthusiasm and productivity. They also have ordered a complete general inventory of state property in preparation for drawing up a long-range economic development plan.

At the same time, the Vietnamese have been shopping abroad for more economic assistance from old friends and former foes.

North Vietnam's economic problems are being debated fairly openly in some of the official publications and over Hanoi radio.

"Our economy has just emerged from a fierce and protracted war," Nhan Dan, organ of the Vietnam Workers' (Communist) Party, said in an editorial. "Production has not yet been completely stabilized."

"We still lack much equipment, material and spare parts. Our material supply network is still inadequate. Much of our machinery, equipment and means of transport has been damaged, but we have been unable to make prompt repairs. A number of installations have not had their development trends and missions set forth clearly. There remain many difficulties and hardships in the living conditions of our cadres and workers."

The editorial said the "satisfactory establishment of work norms will result in accelerating production rationalization and technological improvement and in stabilizing production."

Read "work norms" as incentive pay and bonus programs, abhorred by most Communist planners.

Hoc Tap, the Party's theoretical journal, and Cong Tac Ke Hoach, magazine of the State Planning Commission, have lamented that in places where "work norms" had been established there had been much imbalance because of favoritism and other "serious shortcomings in labor management."

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock market prices continued to fall today, as the Mideast war and the Federal Reserve Board's tight-money policy set off another round of profit taking.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 9.48 to 957.56 at 11:30 a.m., and declines swamped advances by almost 5 to 1 on the New York Stock Exchange. Trading was active, and the ticker tape repeatedly ran behind.

The NYSE's broad-based composite index was off 47 to 59.05, while the market-value index at the American Stock Exchange had fallen .88 to 108.43 at 11 a.m.

The Big Board volume leader was Rite Aid, down 1 3/4 to 30. Active issues which bucked the downtrend included AJ Industries, up 1/2 to 2 1/2; Tenneco, up 1/2 to 25 1/2; and Westinghouse Electric, up 1/4 to 33 1/2. Polaroid also ran against the tide, rising 3 1/2 to 116 1/2 after reporting higher third quarter net.

Oils continued to come under selling pressure as investors worried over possible Arab retaliation because of the U.S. stance in the Mideast war. Exxon was down 1 1/2 to 90 1/2, Standard of California was off 1 1/4 to 64 1/4, Texaco slipped 3/8 to 30 1/2, and Gulf dropped 3/8 to 22 1/2.

Some Fear 'No' Vote Plea Will Have Effect On School Bond Issue

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

One recurring question being asked in Greenville today is: Will there be a negative effect on the school bond issue referendum because of the intensive "no" campaign against liquor by the drink? Both issues come before North Carolina voters on November 6.

All across the face of North Carolina the big colorful posters—most are of a sort of eye-catching persimmon color—elicit Tar Heels to vote "NO!" The signs of course, are slanted to the liquor by the drink referendum.

"I'm afraid the school bond issue might be affected by this negative thinking," Dr. Badger Clark, chairman of the Greenville City School Board said at the board's October meeting on Monday night. "I certainly don't want to see the school bond swept under the carpet because of a negative attitude," he added.

"About those signs," Superintendent Glenn Cox said, "The State Committee on the School Bond issue complained to state authorities about the make-up of the posters. If you'll recall, the signs said something to the effect 'Keep our state a great state, Vote No.' Other than a small glass under a hand, there was no indication to show what people were being asked to vote no to."

"Anyway," Cox continued, "a ruling was made that the posters had to be changed. The new ones have two children and words to the effect 'Protect our children, Vote No.' Down at the bottom in small print, however, the issue is identified."

The possibility of the prominent "vote no" signs for liquor by the drink carrying over to influence a negative vote on the $300 million dollars school bond issue has surfaced as a point of concern in the past

Cox revealed the city schools PTAs were being asked through school principals to consider contributing money for the campaign, provided such a suggestion meets with the approval of individual PTA units.

Current plans to boost public understanding on the total picture of the state wide bond issue include an offer of assistance by the local League of Women Voters, who reportedly have volunteered to transport people on election day.

"The big push is getting underway," Cox concluded, "and the main thrust in getting support will come in the final week before election."

Hundreds of frightened persons poured out of the theater as police and security agents pulled the dead and wounded from the building and took them to the hospital.

It was the most serious terrorist attack in the Cambodian capital in two months, since bombs in the central market and two movie houses on Aug. 19 killed five persons and wounded 64.
