Citizen Movement For Better Med Care In The East

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

ROCKY MOUNT—Some 65 people from across Eastern North Carolina met here this morning to start a citizens movement for better medical care in the state.

John Minges, mayor of Rocky Mount, agreed to act as chairman of the citizens organization.

"We are meeting here basically to resore to the people the right to determine their future," Minges said. "We should get together, put down our needs. . .compile them and then we could be heard."

Minges asked, "Why not have medical training facilities in the East and in the West, rather than just in the Piedmont section?"

Minges said the Piedmont average for doctors is good but in the East and West, people have to drive 40, 50, 60 and even 80 miles for first aid.

"We need facilities here that can train our own doctors. We have a story to tell. We want you to go back to your community and do an analysis and find out what your medical picture is. Then, see what we can do to get a medical school established in the East and the West, too."

Minges said it was time for the people to get together and tell their story.

"Let's present a united front to the governor and the legislature. We can and will succeed in getting medical attention in the East and the West," Minges emphasized.

"If we start today, it is late enough," Minges stated. "If we wait until 1980 as suggested by the medical consultants report to the board of governors, where will we be?"

Minges said he did not want the meeting to be an East Carolina University meeting. "I am saying the need is here in the East and the need is now," Minges stated.

"I think ECU has done a good job and it may be the logical place to expand," Minges said.

He pointed out that in 1946, two-thirds of the doctors in North Carolina responding to questionnaires, said the two-year program at the University of North Carolina

Arab Foreign Ministers And Pres. Nixon Confer

By FRANCES LEWINE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, who says he would like to be a peacemaker in the Middle East, met today with foreign ministers of four Arab nations to discuss the Arab-Israeli war.

Meeting with Nixon at their request, "to discuss the current situation in the Middle East," were the foreign ministers of Algeria, Kuwait, Morocco and Saudi Arabia.

Before going into the Oval Office conference with Nixon, the Arab officials spent about 45 minutes at the White House with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who also participated in the session with Nixon.

The White House conference came amid reports of stepped-up fighting in the Middle East, increasing U.S. efforts to resupply Israel, fears of Arab oil cutoffs and a 17 per cent increase in the price of crude oil by six Persian countries.

Saudi Arabia's foreign minister, Umar al-Saqqaf, had the seat of honor beside the President while the others arranged themselves on two sofas.

Making small talk while news photographers recorded the start of the meeting, Nixon recalled he had planned to visit Saudi Arabi as a private citizen in 1967 but had to cancel those plans because of the six-day Arab-Israeli war that year.

"I'll come back again," Nixon told the foreign minister.

Before the meeting began six oil states on the Persian Gulf raised the price of their crude oil 17 per cent. The increase was agreed to by Iran, the only non-Arab state on the gulf; Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar. The six said the increase brought their prices in line with that charged for North African and Venezuelan oil and was an economic matter not related to the Mideast war.

However, the six countries later held a closed door meeting with Libya, Algeria, Egypt, Syria and Bahrein to consider "the role of oil in the Middle East conflict."

Iran, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi and Qatar produced about 40 per cent of the oil produced in the non-Communist world. Most of it goes to Western Europe and Japan. The United States gets about six per cent of its oil from the six countries and Libya.

Government sources in Washington said that a 17 per cent increase in crude oil prices from the Arab producers would have a small impact on U.S. gasoline prices. One source estimated it at less than one-tenth of a cent.

The United States now processes about 13 million barrels of crude oil a day.

Hot Battles In Mid East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian and Israeli tanks battled fiercely along the eastern side of the Suez Canal today as Israeli jets pounded Egyptian missile batteries on the western bank, Israel said.

Syria said the Israeli warplanes also attacked Latakia and Tartus, Syrian ports on the Mediterranean where Soviet supplies are reported arriving by sea to replenish the Arab war machine. Three Israeli jets were shot down, Damascus claimed, but it gave no information on damage to the ports.

An Israeli commando force reported operating west of the canal in Egypt apparently pursued its mission of hit-and-run strikes against Egyptian installations in the rear.

"If they were back, we would have announced it," said a military spokesman in Tel Aviv.

Syria said its armored forces renewed their counteroffensive against Israeli tanks that have driven into Syria along a 20-mile zig-zag front and have advanced toward Damascus along a hilly roadway to within about 20 miles of the Syrian capital.

"Fighting is raging with tanks," said a communique broadcast by Damascus radio.

Both sides had reported a big tank battle on the Syrian front Tuesday, with Israel claiming 105 Syrian and Iraqi tanks were knocked out and Syria claiming 80 Israeli tanks were destroyed.

Egypt said its troops also fought a "vicious battle" on the Sinai front Tuesday, beating back a westward push by Israeli tanks.

The Tel Aviv command called today's Sinai tank battles "large-scale" and said fighting was raging along the central sector of the 103-mile-long waterway, which Egypt recrossed on Oct. 6 for the first time since Israel seized the Sinai peninsula in the 1967 conflict.

Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog, former chief of Israeli army intelligence and now the state radio's top military commentator, called the battle "the biggest armored clash in our military history."

Neither he nor the command said how many tanks were participating.

U.S. Ambassador Kenneth B. Keating met with Premier Golda Meir this morning "for a talk," the Israeli government reported. It gave no details.

The United States has mounted an emergency airlift to resupply the taxed Israeli arsenal and balance what Washington calls the "massive" Soviet military aid to the Arabs.

President Nixon scheduled a Middle East meeting in Washington today with four Arab foreign ministers — those of Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Algeria and Morocco.

Hospital Trustees Are Invited Attend Opening Of New Hospital Bids

Pitt Memorial Hospital trustees were invited last night to be present for the opening of bids on the construction of the new hospital Nov. 8 at 2 p.m. at the Pitt County Courthouse.

A pre-bid conference will be held Oct. 24 at 11 a.m., with interested persons invited to attend.

The trustees gave their full support to a Burroughs-Wellcome sponsored program of allowing high school seniors to work at the hospital to learn about health careers. Burroughs-Wellcome will assume all the costs, with no cost to the hospital or the schools.

Trustees chairman Ed Warren said a rehabilitation advisory committee is being formed.

Room prices at the hospital were not raised $4 Oct. as it had been announced they would be, because of a Cost of Living Council directive. The price will be raised $3 Nov. 1, however, Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson said.

Federal review of hospital care is the coming thing now. Programs are now being developed to keep health care costs down and equality up. A committee of doctors will be provided to evaluate care on a regional basis. All of North Carolina will probably be a region, Jack Richardson said. Utilization review for current cases and quality review to determine patterns of care in this hospital and compare it with that of other hospitals will become the responsibility of local medical staffs. The trustees saw a film about the new trend.

Bicyclist Fatality

Pitt County recorded its ninth traffic fatality of the year Tuesday afternoon when a 14-year-old bicyclist was struck by a car on Rt. 3, Greenville.

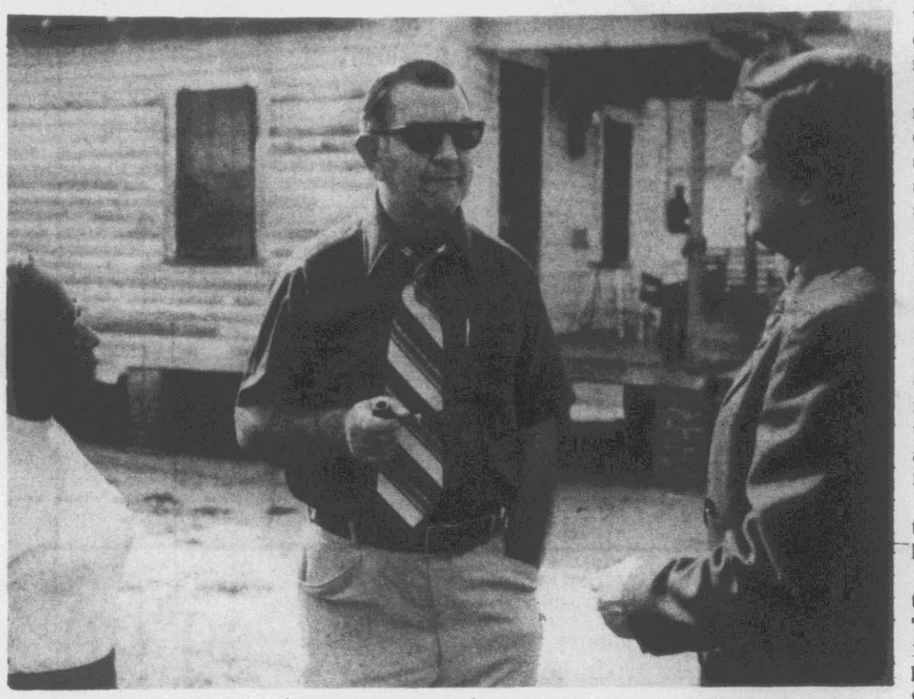

Pitt Coroner and Medical Examiner E. H. Harvey Jr. said that Adrian Gilbert Haddock, son of Gilbert Roger Haddock of Rt. 3, Box 444, was dead on arrival at Pitt Memorial Hospital around 5 p.m.

Harvey reported that the youth apparently rode his bicycle onto the road from the driveway at a relative's house across the road from his home and into the path of a vehicle driven by Mrs. Gloria Manning Harrington of Rt. 3, Box 391, Greenville.

The coroner said that young Haddock died of multiple internal injuries received in the accident. Death was ruled accodental.

Trooper Fred Davis, who investigated the accident, preferred no charges against Mrs. Harrington.

Veteran Crusader For Better Meadowbrook Meets Dave Flaherty

BY CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Meadowbrook's own Mrs. Fannie Jackson got hold of North Carolina Secretary of Human Resources David Flaherty yesterday afternoon.

"Do you see that? Do you see that? Do you see that with your own eyes? Have you ever seen anything like that in your whole life before?" She asked as she "commandeered" a reporter's car and gave Flaherty an impromptu tour of the sights of this North Greenville neighborhood-hog pens, outdoor water pumps, drafty houses, and outdoor toilets.

Flaherty, who was paying a day-long visit to the Pitt County Community Health Department Tuesday, had gone to the neighborhood to observe East Carolina University environmental health students who were making a survey of the area to determine possible health hazards.

Mrs. Jackson, long a neighborhood leader, did not know about Secretary Flaherty's visit in advance, but as always, the dynamic retired teacher grasped the opportunity.

First she took him down a narrow dirt path to a hog pen. "Do you see those pigs? Do you see those nasty swill cans? Do you know that this is in Greenville city limits?" she asked.

The odor from the pens and from mule lots and from pools of stagnant water was pervasive. "You should be over at my house when the wind's right," Mrs. Jackson said.

Flaherty commented on huge gulleys, clogged up and eroded drainage ditches, hazards both because of the danger of children's falling in and because stagnant water is held there.

He expressed shock at the huge number of outdoor toilets. Mrs. Jackson explained that only Moore Street has water and sewer lines, so most absentee landlords use this fact as an excuse not to install the necessary septic tanks and other plumbing for indoor bathrooms.

Flaherty asked the Health Department why this area hasn't been checked before. "Aren't there laws about such filth in such a densely populated area?" he inquired.

Mrs. Jackson introduced him to a man sitting on a porch of a narrow house. "Is this the only place you have to get water," he asked, pointing to the pump beside the house. "Oh, I can't get water from there," the man said. "It's broken. I have to get it at my mother's house."

"And that's several blocks from here," Mrs. Jackson interjected.

She then directed him to peep into the toilet behind the house next door.

After viewing the toilet, Flaherty asked the tenant if she minded if she looked into her home. She invited him to walk through the cluttered three rooms. "You know this is the most profitable kind of rental property there is" he said, "$24 rent a month with no overhead."

Health Department Environmental Health Director Willie Pate said the survey being conducted yesterday was done at the request of the City of Greenville and is wanted in time for the November meeting of the City Council.

Condemn Prize To Le Duc Tho

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government said Wednesday that Hanoi's Le Duc Tho "does not merit" the Nobel peace prize.

Tho, North Vietnamese Politburo member, was named Tuesday to share the prize with U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for their efforts in ending the Vietnam war.

"The Nobel prize given to Le Duc Tho is a defaut ... he does not merit this prize," said a South Vietnamese government spokesman. "Le Duc Tho did not contribute to peace, did not safeguard peace, did not strengthen peace and did not build peace at all."

Charges Filed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Criminal charges were filed today against three corporations and two executives who admitted making illegal contributions to President Nixon's re-election campaign.

Charged with misdemeanor violations of federal campaign financing laws were American Airlines, Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co. and Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing Co.

Officers of Goodyear and Minnesota Mining also were charged.

All were charged under federal law which prohibits donations from corporate funds to political campaigns.

The firms previously had notified special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox of their illegal contributions.

Reports Threats Following Probe

BALTIMORE, Md. (AP) — U.S. Atty. George Beall says he has received physical threats as a result of his probe of political corruption in Maryland which led to the resignation of Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

And Beall said Tuesday the electronic lock on his office door, installed two months ago after Agnew announced he was the object of a federal grand jury investigation, probably will become a permanent fixture.

Beached Whales Had Parasites

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (AP)—An official of the Smithsonian Institute says autopsies performed on 20 pilot whales that beached themselves on the North Carolina coast showed they were infested with parasites in the inner ears.

Dr. James Meade said the parasites affected the whales' inner ear equilibrium, making it impossible for them to feed or navigate properly.

About 35 whales beached themselves near Harkers Island last week. The state Division of Commercial and Sports Fisheries was able to two 15 of the whales out to open waters in hopes of saving them.

ELON INSTALLATION

ELON COLLEGE, N.C. (AP) — Ceremonies will be held at Elon College today installing Dr. James Fred Young as the seventh president of the school.

Says Off-Shore Drilling 'Safer'

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Southeastern states would benefit from the development of offshore oil and natural gas without a significant hazard to the environment, H. J. Haynes, president of Standard Oil Co. of California, said today.

"It is essential to speed development of domestic resources if we are to forestall serious economic problems here in Florida and elsewhere," Haynes said in statement prepared for the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

Haynes, along with other oil company executives, testified in a the last in a series of hearings on the potential environmental impact of oil and gas fields on the Atlantic outer continental shelf and the Gulf of Alaska.

"I would not presume to tell anyone that our operations have reached zero risk level," Haynes said. "However, I would stress that for more than 25 years oil and gas from the Gulf of Mexico and later from offshore California have been flowing steadily and safely into America's energy networks."

He said in drilling 14,000 offshore wells, only three spills of any consequence have occurred.

At Tuesday's sessions of the hearing before Dr. Beatrice E. Willard of Boulder, Colo., a "Save Our Coast" panel of spokesmen for environmental organizations urged extreme precautions if oil drilling was permitted off the coast.

"When the need is pressing, the solution is often incomplete," said Dr. Paul LaRock of the Department of Oceanography at Florida State University.

Florida Atty. Gen. Robert Shevin, in a statement read by Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas Harris, urged the council to recommend that decisions on offshore drilling be left to the states.

Dr. Tim S. Stuart of the Florida Department of Pollution Control asked that oil or gas exploration be delayed until better technology was developed for protecting beaches and wildlife from possible spills.

Several representatives of agriculture and industry in Florida, Georgia and South Carolina urged quick approval of drilling because of shortages already hampering production.

Leaf Sales Extended In S.C. And Border Belt

RALEIGH (AP)—The tobacco auction season will be extended to Nov.1 in South Carolina and the North Carolina Border Belt because much tobacco remains unsold in farms in the area.

The extension of sales was approved Tuesday night by the industrywide Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee. It will mean two additional weeks of sales—a total of seven days—for South Carolina and one additional week—four days—for the Border Belt.

Under the extension, one set of buyers will be operating in each area.

The committee authorized chairman Frank Bryant of Boonville to poll the 33 members to get approval for an additional sales week on the Border Belt if substantial quantities remain unsold at the end of the extended period.

According to estimates given at the meeting, South Carolina has about 6 million pounds of unsold tobacco on farms. The Border Belt has an estimated 3 million to 5 million pounds unsold.

The committee granted an increase in sales allocation to the Eastern North Carolina Belt, effective this week. This resulted because of an 8.8 million pound increase in the crop production estimate for October as compared with the September forecast.

Under the increase, the Eastern Belt's average rate of sale per set of buyers was boosted from 242,958 to 255,538 pounds this week; from. 267,116 to 280,-950 pounds next week; and from 242,958 to 255,538 pounds for the remainder of the season.

The October production estimate showed an increase of 2.9 million pounds on the Virginia side of the Old Belt. The committee decided this increase will be applied to the schedule for the week of Nov. 12 and will be divided among all markets in the North Carolina Middle Belt and both the North Carolina and Virginia sections of the Old Belt.

Meanwhile, the Eastern Belt sold 8,325,475 pounds Tuesday for an average of $90.01 per hundred pounds, a drop of 35 cents from Monday.

Sales on the Old Belt totaled 7,308,047 pounds, averaging $89.15, down $1.08 from Monday.

The Middle Belt sales amounted to 4,121,760 pounds for an average of $87.69, a decline of 79 cents from Monday.

Enjoy Regular Diet, Through A Straw

By DUSTON HARVEY

MENLA PARK (UPI) — If you've been living on warm liquid gelati, tea and broth, a meal of steak and potatoes tastes good —even if you have to sip it through a straw.

"It's tasty if you can't chew or eat otherwise," says Wilma King, who spent a year on a liquid diet after surgery on her jaw.

While recuperating from the bone graft at Stanford University Medical Center, she had to eat through a straw while her jaw was wired shut.

"I was starving on the tasteless hospital diet," Mrs. King recalled. "A little bit of tea and broth goes a long way. It will keep you alive, but not much else.

"When I got home, I decided I could whip up much better meals. I love to eat and decided to return to my regular diet — but through a straw."

The result was such blended delights as "Steak shake," "apple pie drink," "liverwurst and cheese on rye," "chili dog" and "sausage and eggs."

Non-eaters' Cookbook

Mrs. King, 52, a lab assistant in the Stanford Medical School Genetic Department for the past 15 years, decided to pass on her concoctions to others forced to live on a liquid diet for long periods.

The result is a 24-page cook book, titled "Blend and Mend," containing 48 recipes for breakfast, lunch, dinner, salads, sandwiches, dessert and beverages which can be eaten milkshake fashion.

She's sold about 500 of the 2,000 copies she had printed herself. Most of them through doctors and hospitals, and has received dozens of letters of thanks from patients who went off tea and broth.

"You have to need this diet to appreciate it," Mrs. King admitted. "But people who have to use it thoroughly enjoy it. Most of them didn't realize they could still get solid food in their stomachs."

Mrs. King, who said the cookbook was the first for people who can't eat, included calorie counts with each menu to help patients who need to maintain their weight.

The fledgling author, who no longer needs the liquid diet although she is restricted to soft foods, said her favorite recipes were sausage, eggs and potatoes for breakfast and steak or roast beef for dinner.

Steak Shake Recipe

Her menu for steak shake: cut a three ounce serving of broiled steak into small cubes, put into blender, and process for two cycles at chop. Add one-half cup mashed potatoes, one-half cup gravy and one cup warm milk. Process one cycle at mix, two cycles at blend, or until smooth.

Another suggested meal is a liverwurst and cheese sandwich on rye: put a slice of rye bread, broken into small pieces, a slice of livewurst and two tablespoons of cream cheese into blender, process at chop for two cycles. Add one cup of milk and process two cycles at blend, or until creamy or smooth.

"That's very tasty," insisted Mrs. King. "You should try it with a beer sometime ... if you can have beer."

The recipe book's final warning is to sippers whose doctors allow them alcoholic beverages.

"Sipping liquor through a straw can get you stoned very, very quickly," Mrs. King writes.

She also suggests that straw users get out of the house for meals.

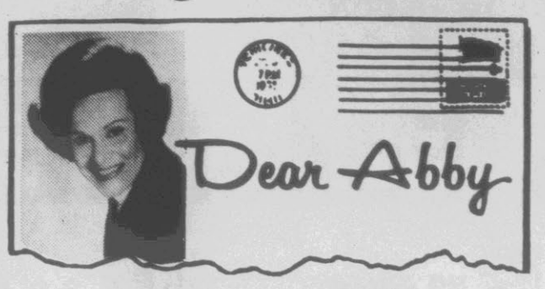

"Cooks and waitresses in restaurants are the kindest people in the world," she says. "They'll blend things to your order and laugh with you —not at you —for your courage."

'Little Game' Is Big Racket

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is handicapped. He wears heavy braces on both legs and walks with crutches.

Last year this "friend" of his talked him into going with him to ask farmers to donate Christmas trees to distribute to crippled children's homes thruout the state.

They cut truckloads of trees, sold them, and pocketed the money 50-50. This friend does all the talking while my husband just stands there on his crutches. His being there suggests that my husband is in some way associated with crippled children's homes, which he is not.

This "friend" says most people can't say no to a cripple.

They are planning to do it again this year. Abby, we don't need the money. I am ashamed for my husband to get mixed up in such an underhanded deal. He says: "It's just a little game. Don't let it bother you."

What should I do? W. K.

DEAR W. K. Tell your husband his "little game" is a big racket in case he doesn't already realize it. Furthermore, to use one's handicap to play on the sympathy of others for a handout is beneath the dignity of most handicapped people, and your husband ought to be ashamed of himself!

DEAR ABBY: I went to two weddings in June. As I entered the church, a small child took my wedding gift for the bride. What happened to the gift after that, who knows.

The bride was a good friend of mine, but I never received any kind of acknowledgement for my gift.

The second wedding, I sent only a card because this bride had a large shower to which I brought a very nice shower gift, which I thought was enough. I received a very sweet letter from the bride, thanking me for the "beautiful blanket." There is obviously some mixup. What should be done in both cases? CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: Write [or phone] Bride No. 1 and ask her if she ever received your gift. Inform Bride No. 2 that you sent her a card, and the "lovely blanket" came from someone else. [That should cover everything!]

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our middle forties. He is an executive, and we live in a large, comfortable home. Achieving this hasn't been easy.

The children are all in school. For the first time in my life I can come and go as I please. There are days when I feel a void and get a little depressed, but who doesn't?

My husband asked me if I would mind looking after his secretary's child five days a week, from 7:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. I nearly flipped. I was also very hurt.

He claims he thought it would be good for me to keep "busy." Also, his secretary was having trouble finding a competent baby sitter. I wonder how many executives' wives would be hurt if their husbands tried to keep them busy in this manner? M. L. IN CLEVELAND

DEAR M. L.: Your husband's generosity leaves me all choked up. If he thinks you need "occupational therapy," tell him you'd like the privilege of selecting your own.

DEAR ABBY: Remember that gal who wrote in complaining about having to wait for loving until after the Johnny Carson show?

Well, tell her she never had it so good! Johnny is on five nights a week. I have to wait until after the Lawrence Welk show, and that's only on Saturday night.

Her 'Families' Are The Poor, Sick, Lame

By ANNE DARLING

LAMBARENE, Gabon (NWS) — When Joan Clent appeared on a bicycle at the Albert Schweitzer hostpital here in 1962, she was skin and bones and black from the sun.

"You must be Livingstone," said the good doctor, after taking one look at her.

The English nurse had come to work for and learn from Dr. Schweitzer at the hospital he had built on a bank of the Ogooue River amid a lush and beautiful equatorial rain forest.

She has boarded a ship in Marseilles bound for Dakar, the capital of Senegal on the West Africa coast. Friends had given her a bicycle and she ride it for nearly 2,000 miles across Africa — from Dakar to Lambarene, in Gabon.

Joan is here now — with "my family, the people I serve," and Pedro, the red and grey Gabonese parrot who say's "hello darling," and Rex. a mangy hound who follows the nurse on her daily rounds and courts the local female dogs at night. And, of course, Joan is still called "Livingstone."

Ascetic

A favorite of the late Dr. Schweitzer, Joan is one of those tireless, ageless ascetics who arises at sunup, refuses to eat meat, practices yoga and showers three times a day "to keep healthy." A universal woman who resents beging labeled "English" or anything else, she has typically gone to the most difficult places and lived with people the world calls wretched.

In England, she worked with drug addicts. She was in Calcutta when the population was ravaged by cholera and floods. In Haiti, Joan worked on community development projects. Now she is thinking about leaving here for the Sudan, because "there is such a need there."

But first, there are so many projects to complete at the Schweitzer hospital. Fruit trees must be planted, pens for Joan's new chickens have to be built, and a fishing boat will be launched.

Joan got a dozen or so mental patients started on a vegetable garden, and the lepers are making carvings to sell to the tourists who visit the Schweitzer hospital.

"It's so important for them to be busy and feel needed," she said. "Community development is more important than anything else. I'm getting people to earn money so they can take care of themselves."

Wants Nothing

Joan herself is totally uninterested in money.

"I never accept money," she said. "I've given away everything I ever owned. I trust completely and want nothing."

Every morning, she climbs to the hilltop that overlooks the river where about 100 lepers and their families live.

"This used to be called a 'leper colony,' but I hated tha name," she said. "The people were isolate up here, in the dark surrounded by trees. But we cleared away the forest so the people could see the river. And we started calling this place the 'village of light.' Dr. Schweitzer like the idea."

Joan worked in Lambarene from 1962 until 1967, and she returned here two years ago. She was at the hospital when Schwitzer died at the age of 90 in 1965.

"Before he died, he sought out those of us whom he loved — to teach us and share something with us," she said. "He told me to love that person I am with at the moment we are together. He said the person's past is nothing to me. It is not important. And that was something I need to understand."

Joan said she loved the old doctor, but was no Schweitzer-worshipper.

"I respected his ideas," she said. "But I battled him often."

The outgoing nurse talks on and on about her work, but not to reporters with notebooks.

"People have written such terrible stories about this hospital," she said. "Photographers have come poking their cameras at my dear lepers. And when Dr. Schweitzer died, we were in the glare of lights and camera form all over the world. They made a circus of us."

A tall, lean, muscular woman, Joan changes her white nurse's uniform at night to beads and headbands and curious costumes she has put together from her years on the road. Asked recently by a friend to explain the "essential Joan Clent," she replied:

"I'm no mystery. It's just that I found this religion that seems to have trebled my energy. It's me. My own life."

Lapel Has Dozens Of Straight Pins

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Turn back the lapel of Aubrey Jay's handsome gray suit and there are dozens of straight pins.

They stem from his profession, which involves making fashions that fit. Jay began his career in custom tailoring on London's Saville Row. Today he is design, pattern and textile process development manager in quality control for the J. C. Penney Co.He finds American women the ultimate fitting challenge.

"There is no such thing as an American body type. There hasn't been time to develop one. other nations have a body type. In Europe, for example, posture and large feet. She will have long arms; and it the present trend to bralessness continues long, pendulous breasts."

"In about 10 generations, an American figure may be developed. The woman's figure, if we eolve at the present leve, will be about 5 feet 10 inches tall, angular, with excellent posture and large feet. She will have long arms, and if the present trend to bralessness continues, long, pendulous breast."

Jay says the difference between men and women is two darts. women's garments need them for fit, and fit is his primary concern.

He is chairman of the sixing subcommittee of the Mail Order association of America, coordinating that group's efforts toward development of uniform sizing.

"One day, a size 10 woman will be size 10 everywhere, no matter what she buys," Jay said. "If she gains or loses 10 pounds, she will change her size accordingly. The only problem we face is the possibility that we'll make more progress toward clarifying sizes than we make ethnic progress."

Jay admits he has seen women wearing fashions he'd been involved with that did not fit them properly. He says he felt "destroyed" but never approaced the women to suggest alterations.

"Alterations are important to proper fit. Even a minor change can make all the difference in the way a garment looks. It's silly to skimp on a one or two dollar investment that can make a dress fit like a million-dollar custom tailored garment," he said.

Jay says that clothing is really packaging. Human beings are packaging themselves, he said, to sell to family, a peer group or an employer. He approves of the packaging, but says some people do it better than others.

"It's better to be looked over than overlooked," he added. "I look at women's clothes on the street instead of their faces, not because I'm old or not interested, but because I look first at the packaging."

Jay feels that people who work in mass merchandising have a unique responsibility.

"We are physically and morally involved in manufacturing. I don't know another company as involved. But basically, the company is only a convenient method of being paid.

"I work for the consumer. If the consumer does'nt buy, I don't have a job. I look at people on the street to see how I'm doing.

"Fashion without fit is valueless. If a garment doesn't look attractive on the rack, a woman will never even take it into a fitting room. Fashion is the impact, but quality is what keeps it sold," Jay added.

As far as Jay is concerned, the consumer deserves a better deal with sizing and fit than he gets today. He has no idea when the committees he's working with will be able to institute nationwide uniform sizing standards. But he has suggestions that can ease the confusion.

"A woman should always try on a garment before buying it. She should regularly patronize a retailer in whom she has confidence," he said.

Jay himself wears only clothes manufactured by his company, as does his wife.

"Fashion," he said, "is finding what is right for you, and being truthful, within reason."

JACLYN VAN LIEU'S BROWN RICE DISH

My sister Rowena, guest of the Van Lieus in Nantucket, Mass., brought me this fine recipe. It's worth having.

- 6 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¾ cup coarsely shredded green cabbage
- 1 large onion, coarsely chopped (about 1 cup)
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 2 chicken bouillon cubes
- 1 cup diced cooked chicken
- 2 tablespoons minced chives or scallion tops
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley
- 1 teaspoon dried crushed marjoram
- 2 teaspoons soy sauce
- 1 can (16 ounces) bean sprouts, rinsed and drained
- 1 cup long grain parboiled brown rice, cooked
- 1 egg, slightly beaten

In a 10-inch skillet heat the butter; add cabbage, onion, garlic and bouillon cubes; cook gently, mashing bouillon cubes with a wooden spoon, to break up fine; continue cooking until vegetables are tender-crisp — about 10 minutes. Add remaining ingredients except egg; heat, stirring often. Add egg; stir over low heat until egg sets. Serve at once. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

EGGS WOODSTOCK

A great recipe from "Country Commune Cooking" by Lucy Horton (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan).

- 2 tablespoons butter or oil
- 2 onions, sliced into rounds
- ¼ pound mushrooms, sliced
- 1 cup sour cream
- 4 eggs
- 1 tablespoon fresh snipped dill or 1 teaspoon dried dill weed
- ½ teaspoon paprika
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ⅛ teaspoon black pepper
- ¼ pound cheddar cheese, sliced

Cook onions in butter in a 9- or 10-inch skillet with an ovenproof handle over medium heat until wilted. Add mushrooms and cook another 5 minutes. Add sour cream, lower heat and simmer 5 minutes. Make 4 depressions in the sour cream mixture with a spoon. Break eggs into them. Do not stir; the eggs should sit on top of the sour cream mixture. Sprinkle with seasonings. Cover and steam 5 minutes. Top with cheese and run under a hot broiler or cover and steam until cheese melts. Serves 4.

Perhaps Crisis Can Inspire Us

Concern is mounting in this country over the energy crisis. This concern has been increased by the Middle East War and the possibility that oil supplies to our nation will be drastically cut because of our support for Israel.

In North Carolina, the Energy Crisis Study Commission is considering recommendations for reducing energy use. Suggestions have ranged from banning electric advertising at night to restricting use of automobiles.

Watson Morris, executive director of ECOS Inc. told the commission, "There simply is not enough petroleum in the earth to sustain the present rate of auto use."

He urged increased use of public transportation and disagreed with the contention that nuclear energy plants for generating electricity should be licensed in shorter times.

Well, the energy crisis seems to be building to major proportions and it seems that our society deals best with a problem when it becomes a crisis.

In World War II, for instance, when rubber supplies were cut off, a synthetic rubber was developed. This opened the way for many synthetic materials and now much of our clothing and other fabrics are made from synthetics.

We have little doubt that if a crash program is instituted fuel can be developed by science which can replace petroleum products. Perhaps it can be produced from coal, or it may be compounded from other chemicals.

Then there is the sun, which has been long looked to by mankind as a potential source of energy for electrical generation. It's heat, however, is not available at night and is dissipated on cloudy days.

Now, though we have the capacity to build space platforms which could gather the sun's rays on a constant basis and beam this energy down to earth stations even on a cloudy day.

We believe the answers to the energy shortage can be found, if we are willing to commit the necessary funds and manpower to such a project.

The committment was made to develop atomic energy and it was successful. We made a committment to land men on the moon and again it was successful. These projects seemed outlandish at the time they were proposed.

Our nation must develop new energy sources and we must do it soon. Such a project can be expensive but its long range benefits will be enormous.

Resist Change In Committing

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—When a public hearing is held October 19 in Raleigh on the state's new law on commitments to mental institutions, law enforcement officers and court officials will bring the bulk of criticism.

Many District Court judges across the state are upset over their involvement in the "due process" procedures for commitment; sheriff's officers are bearing the brunt of the change and are most upset of all.

The old law only required an interested person, usually a relative, to bring an individual before the clerk of court to get an involuntary commitment.,

The law effective Sept. 1 requires a law enforcement officer to sign papers against the individual, bring him before a magistrate for hearing of cause and if the individual is held, he must be brought within five days before a District Court judge. If committed, he has all the rights of appeal through the court system. And if held longer than 90 days, a District Court judge must conduct a new hearing at the end of that time, and every 120 days thereafter.

Here, pulled together from a wide variety of sources, are the basic complaints which have prompted State Sen. Julian R. Allsbrook to hold the hearing with an eye to change or repeal of the new law:

Sheriffs Complain

Sheriffs and other law enforcement officials complain that they are the ones who must initiate proceedings, families can no longer do it themselves. Officers must sign papers finding the individual either dangerously violent or completely disabled, and they argue that they don't have the competency to do that.

The law officers say they have to go into the home and pick up the individual without a warrant or other authorization, opening the possibility of false arrest suits and that they have no officials to help them either make the judgment, or prepare the case against the individual. One sheriff even went so far so to say bluntly: "I can't do do all of that; I'm just not going to bring anybody in."

Sheriffs complain that officers must transport the individual to a hospital or clinic while awaiting District Court proceedings; and must travel extensively conducting individuals to and from court and institutuions for the initial hearings and future rehearings required by the law. This often requires long trips beginning at early hours and involving people who don't understand at all what is taking place, officers complain.

Court officials, especially judges, argue that the five-day time period causes them to make special trips to hold court for mental hearings, especially in rural, isolated counties; that they are legal experts, not medical doctors, and have no right to take jurisdication in such matters; that the hearings and re-hearings will glut an already crowded court docket; and that nobody is responsible for preparing the case and presenting evidence, even though the individual by law is entitled to an attorney and the right to face his accuser.

It Still Works

Despite these and other problems, however, officials close to the process think it is working, but can be improved.

"Basically, it's working because eveybody's making it work," said Taylor McMillan, counsel to the state courts. "It is having some intended effect of reducing commitments, and while there are things that can be done to improve the procedure, the philosophy of the act will prevail and I don't see us backing up from the protections of due process," McMillan said.

Rep. Howard F. Twiggs, who drafted the measure, agrees that changes are needed. He thinks it might be possible for hearings to be held in the mental hospitals rather than courts; the courts in counties where hospitals are located should recieve more personnel; that persons should be allowed to sign papers to start the process rather than leaving this to the discretion of a law enforcement officer.

But he argues that this state, and all others, must have some procedure of this nature to protect individual rights to freedom.

"Certainly, to go from where we were to where we are is a shock to the system. It was an abrupt change from a commitment by convenience system to one of due process," Twiggs said.

"What we have now .bends in favor of the patient. But that is a matter of working out procedures. But you can't force treatment on someone for mental illness anymore than for any other illness.

Sympathy For Israel In War

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1973 Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J., — The sympathies of the American people are 8-to-1 on the side of the Israelis, as determined by the latest nationwide Gallup survey, but nearly half of all persons interviewed lean to neither side in the conflict or do not express an opinion.

The survey, begun October 6 when fighting erupted in the Middle East, revealed that nine in ten persons had heard or read about the crisis in that part of the world. This aware group was then asked the question:

"In this trouble, are your sympathies more with Isreal or more with the Arab states?"

Following are the findings based on the award group:

Sympathies More With Israel Or Arab States?
—Based on Aware Group—

With Israel	47
With Arab States	6
Neither	22
No Opinion	25

To gain insight into the reasons Americans give for leaning to one side or the other in the present conflict, an additional small-scale national survey was carried out Wednesday evening, Oct. 10.

Reasons given most often by those who express greater sympathy for the Israeli than the Arab cause are: (1) sympathy for the underdog; (2) Israel is fighting for survival; (3) Israel was attacked first; (4) the Israelis have a right to have a homeland.

First Reactions Of The Public

The mood of the U.S. public regarding the Middle East crisis is reflected in the following comments from persons interviewed by the Gallup Poll.

A 61-year-old retired homeowner from New York City had this to say:

"My sympathies are with Israel because they're trying to build something over there and they're just defending what they have. We would certainly fight back if Canada and Mexico started piling in on us."

A 41-year-old Pennsylvania resident, the owner of a lumber business remarked. "It looks like the Arabs jumped them first. All differences can come to some kind of agreement by talking, but the Arabs have refused to do so. Israel has given them every chance to talk and the Arabs have ignored them."

Here is what a 44-year-old mechanic from Minnesota told a Gallup Poll interviewer: "I'm in favor of the Jews over there because I think they have a rotten deal. The Arabs are in cahoots with the Communists and I don't like Communists."

A young New York doctor offered a similar reasons: "I just feel that the position of the Israelis is one of self-preservation and that only by taking a forceful military stand can they exist surrounded by enemeies."

"Israel is a new country and has never had a chance to grow and become a peaceful nation," commented a 55-year-old Massachusetts

Send In A New Kicker

WASHINGTON — Playing Coach Dick Nixon paced up and down the sidelines of the football field. His team was on his own 10-yard line, and he was being forced to punt. To make matters worse, his only kicker, Ted Agnew, had been thrown out of the game for unsportsmanlike conduct and had been put on probation for three years and fined $10,000.

Sitting on the bench, all suited up, were Johnny Connally, Rocky Rockefeller, Ronnie Reagan, Billy Rogers, Mel Laird, Barry Goldwater, and Big Elliot Richardson.

"Send me in, Coach," begged Connally. "I can save the game."

"I can't kick," Rocky said, "but if you need me, I'll run with the ball."

Ronnie Reagan said, "Don't forget, I was the original Gipper of Notre Dame."

Nixon just walked up and down the sidelines some more.

He was in a terrible dilemma. If he sent in a strong player, the Democratic team vowed to block the kick. If he sent in a weak player, he might lose the game.

He looked over at Johnny Connally. Johnny was his first choice, but he was a problem for any coach. He had played on the Democratic team, the Democrats seemed to have it in for him. Nixon's scouts had informed him that if he sent in Connally the Demos would smear him.

ART BUCHWALD

The crowd, shocked by Agnew's sudden departure from the field, kept screaming for a substitute.

But this punt meant a lot, and Coach Nixon was not about to be rushed. He walked to the Republican cheering section and said over the loudspeaker, "I need your help. Would everybody please list you three choices for a substitute kicker, put them in a sealed envelope and send them down to the field?"

The Democrats were furious. "How long are you going to have a time out?" one of the players yelled.

Nixon ignored him and walked down past his bench.

Everyone looked up hopefully. Ronnie Regan said, "Coach, I know your game plan and I'm a team player. Give me a break."

Rocky said, "You have to send in someone whom the fans can rally around. You can't think of today, but of the big game in 1976. You won't be sorry, Dick."

Barry Goldwater played it cool. "I don't give a damn if you send me or not, Coach, but you could do a lot worse."

The fans were passing down their sealed envelopes and Mel Laird started counting names. Every time he came across a list in which he wasn't mentioned, he threw it away.

Coach Nixon went up to Big Elliot Richardson. "Elliot, i

Other Editors Say Revising Taxes

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

Despite a tremendous amount of tax activity earlier this year, most Washington observers believe it will be 1974 before Congress finally enacts any major tax changes.

Tax Foundation, Inc. reports that the powerful but ailing chairman of the taxwriting Ways and Means Committee, Rep. Wilbur Mills, said on Sept. 9 that plans to adjourn Congress in November have ruled out the possibility of tax legislation this year.

The House Ways and Means Committee spent over nine weeks last winter hearing the views of 350 persons on what ought to be done or should not be done to revise the federal tax structure.

The tricky path of tax revision this year began in the opening days of Congress in January when a heavy flow of tax revision bills were proposed.

At the first hearings in February, 56 invited witnesses covered 11 broadranging areas of taxation including controversial matters such as capital gains and losses, capital recovery, minimum tax and tax shelters, estate and gift taxation, taxation of foreign income and others.

Many contrasting views were presented not only on specific provisions of the tax law, but even on major goals to be sought in tax revision.

One such example was the highly controversial role of taxes in redistributing income.

As the tax revision hearings continued, the whose thing expanded. There were thousands of pages of testimony taken, all to be analyzed before a bill could be completed.

The administration program, through Secretary of the Treasury Shultz, calls for tighter tax rules on so-called tax-sheltered income of wealthy individuals, new tax credits for property taxes paid by the elderly, for private school tuition and for exploratory oil drilling.

Putting all the various proposals together into a tax bill usually takes Congress two years. Even at that, it is remarkably fast, considering the complexities of tax laws.

Strength For Today

NOT CIRCUMSTANCES BUT SOUL

Thomas Hood, the English poet, was a man of whimisical humor and rollicking fun, yet his poems and drolleries emanated from a man who was slowly dying of tuberculosis. The funny answers he wrote to imaginary correspondents constituted the first humorous column for newspapers. In addition he wrote poetry of surpassing beauty which gave him a place among the the most notable literary men of his day.

Gaiety and gloom are the result not so much of the outside world but of the inside, not of circumstances but of the attitude we take toward them. There is a certain attitude of mind which would make one unhappy no matter where he lived or under what circumstances. There is another attitude which turns every cloudy day into one of pleasantness and even wrings from the misfortunes of life a tribute of understanding and power.

Thomas Hood, a man with these latter characteristics, was certainly an unusual person and can be a model for us in times of adversity.

Executives Just Overwhelmed

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The complex and relatively hostile business environment of the 1970s is overwhelming many corporation presidents and forcing them to quit, according to a management psychologist and consultant.

"The executive suite today is a bunch of important people who individually can't do much and who together cannot decide what to do," said Dr. Eugene Jennings, after reviewing findings of a continuing study.

Jennings, professor of management at Michigan State University, and a confidential adviser to top executives, found that the resignation rate among presidents of the nation's top corporations averaged nearly four out of 20 from October 1971 to October 1973.

More than half of them, all at the highest level of the nation's largest companies were forced out, Jennings said. In the past, such a rate — voluntary or involuntarily — was identified with recession rather than boom.

Twenty-five years ago the professor began studying the characteristics and techniques of executive success by means of interviews, observations and computer analysis, and since then has produced seven books on the subject.

He said that in the 1960s executives acted on the notion that the world was eager for corporate products. Even inferior thinking and products could succeed.

But now the environment is complex and even antagonistic, as exemplified by the consumer and ecology movements. Now, he said, even a good idea might fail, regardless of how strongly it is held.

He believes another reason for the presidential exodus is the condition of the stock market, where buyers aren't as willing as before to pay high prices.

He explained that in the 1960s, corporations sold investors on the importance of the price-earning ratio. They stressed a high P-E ratio as evidence of vigor.

"Now they are being hung by it," Jennings said, alluding to the frustration of executives who see their shares selling at 5 to 10 times earnings after becoming accustomed to at least double that ratio.

A third reason, he believes, is that many companies expanded so fast during the 1960s that they developed a management gap. They grew faster than their ability to develop personnel qualified to handle complexities.

The summary consequence is a higher resignation rate than in the 1960s, when the highest rate found was only 2.2 for every 20 executives.

homeowner. "Israel has tried to resettle the Arabs and the Arabs didn't want it. I can't see why Israel should give up the land it won."

A 66-year-old Florida cab driver said, "The Arabs have been taking pot shots at Israel since time began. Why don't they lay off?"

On The Other Side

Typical of the attitudes of the small minority whose sympathies lie with the Arabs are those expressed by a 28-year-old graduate student from New York City: "It's a simple matter of a land grab by the Israelis in the 1967 war and the Arabs want to reclaim what they think is rightfully theirs."

A 34-year-old teacher from Belleville, Ill., also takes the side of the Arabs: "My sympathies are with the Arabs primarily because of the great numbers of Arabs who were displaced as a result of the 1967 war. Israel refused to accept the problem and turned it over to the Arab nations."

The following comment reflects the views of many of those who sympathize with neighter the Israelis nor the Arabs:

"There is a lot of right and wrong on both sides — there certainly isn't anything clearcut about the situation," was the view of a 37-year-old from Georgia.

Oppose Direct U.S. Involvement

While sympathies are clearly on the side of the Israelis in the present conflict, there is little evidence from the small-scale survey Wednesday evening, consistent with earlier survey findings, that the American people — drained by the Vietnam war and worried about a big power confrontation — want to get involved in a direct military way in the Middle East.

Although the size of the sample of the Wednesday evening survey precludes the reporting of percentages, the dominant mood of the public is clearly that the U.S. should not get involved in the struggle in terms of sending American forces.

Among those who think the U.S. should not get involved is an elderly Florida homeowner: "We should keep our nose out of the situation, and keep our boys home."

A middle-aged executive from Pennsylvania had this to say: "Every time the U.S. gets involved in another country's problems, we have more trouble — the U.S. can't keep acting as a police force."

Palestine Division Supported, 1947

In a Gallup survey in January 1946, three out of every four Americans who had followed the discussions about permitting Jews to settle in Palestine were sympathetic to the idea. Nine out of ten Jews at that time were in favor.

A November 1947 survey showed American strongly in favor of the United Nations plan to divide Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish states. In that same survey, only a third of voters said they would be sympathetic toward either the Arabs or the Jews should war break out between them, although the vote of those expressing sympathy was 2-to-1 in favor of the Jews.

More recently, in July 1967, a month after the outbreak of hostilities that year, a Gallup survey found only one American in seven of the opinion that Israel should be required to give back the lands seized in the six-day war against the Arab nationals. One in four believed Israel should be allowed to keep it all, while about half thought some compromise should be worked out.

I send you in, will you forget about the tapes I made of the other games?"

"It's hard to say, Coach. It's not up to me any more; it's up to the football commissioner."

Nixon turned away in disgust.

"Mel Laird came over with the count. "The fans have voted 49,768 for me, four for Connally, three for Rocky and one for Agnew."

A delegation from the Democratic bench started to cross the field. "Look Dick," one of them said as he came up to Nixon, "you can't hold up the game forever. We can block any kicker you send on the field."

Nixon barked, "The rules say I have a right to choose any substitute I want to kick for me."

"But only with our approval," another Democratic coach said. "Now we have a compromise. Why don't you use one of our kickers? It could bring the stadium together."

"You're out of your minds," Nixon said. "You want me to use a Democratic player on ny team?"

The Democratic coach shrugged his shoulders. "It's the only way you'll ever get to punt."

Nixon angrily turned to the bench and said, "Go in Gerry Ford, and win this one for the Spiro."

their wife or husband simply to get rid of them. That made life a little more comfortable. Get them out of the way.

"And counties did the same thing. They'd commit their problem cases, ship them to Raleigh and put them under the rug. That was the easy and comfortable way. But now, it's a lot harder to get somebody committed," Twiggs said.

"Our mental hospitals were a dumping ground, in many cases, for the old, the poor, the simply incompetent whom people wanted out of the way. Under the old process, they could put them away.

"Well, we've got to have somewhere to put those people, agreed, but that place is not on a psychotic ward in a mental hospital," he said.

"You simply can't commit somebody just to keep them out of sight and out of mind," Twiggs said. "It's easy to say keep those problems at a state hospital, lock the doors, and don't let anybody in or out. Sure it's unpleasant to bring these people into court. But this has to be done to protect them."

hind a temple and started fighting each other. If the man won, he was declared lord and master of his house; if the woman was victor, the husband served her as her slave. Isn't it a shame how many fine old native customs have been ruined by the march of civilization?

In dubious praise: A teacher once wrote the parents of one of her pupils: "not only is your son the worst behaved member of the class, he also has the best attendance record."

Folklore: Twenty-one is considered a lucky number because it is three times seven and because it is the age when one ceases to be a legal infant. Thirty is regarded as an unlucky number because Judas was given 30 pieces of silver to betray Jesus. In general, off numbers are thought to be luckier than even numbers.

It was E. W. Howe who observed, "No man would listen to you talk if he didn't know it was his turn next."

Asks Peanut Need Survey

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Sen. Jesse Helms announced Tuesday that he has requested that Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz send a special representative to peanut producing areas of North Carolina to survey the shortage of government buying and storage facilities.

The United States Department of Agriculture announced that Otis E. Castleberry, an official of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, was to arrive in Raleigh Tuesday afternoon to assess the situation in an attempt to find more warehouse facilities.

Helms noted, "The critical shortage of commodity credit corporation buying and storage facilities, plus a similar shortage of private facilities, threatens this year's crop. Our farmers simply must have the opportunity to sell or put on government loan the crops they are taking out of the ground right now."

Castleberry, it was announced, will visit northeastern North Carolina counties. Helms pledged the assistance and support of his office to the USDA in Castleberry's effort to find additional warehouse space.

Inflation Hits Marriage Mart

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Inflation has hit the marriage market.

The House voted 165 to 9 on Monday to raise the price of a marriage license from $3 to $5.

The bill, sent on to the Senate, would hike the fees which go to county orphans' courts.

Besides the price increase, the bill would abolish requirements that the races of applicants and a common surname be indicated on the application.

Administration Stuck With Controls System

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration is disenchanted with wage-price controls but is afraid of getting rid of them now.

That seemingly contradictory statement sums up the quandary in which the administration finds itself. It is trying to solve the predicament by gradual withdrawal.

"If the controls were dropped immediately, you would have widespread price increases," said Edgar Fiedler, the Treasury Department's chief economist. "That would only generate demands for more controls."

"It seems that we can't live with controls but we can't live without them, either," said an economist at the Cost of Living Council.

Ask almost any administration economic official and he will say that wage-price controls have not done much to restrain inflation and never will.

At a recent meeting of the Business Council, an organization of executives from the nation's 150 biggest corporations, Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz was hounded with questions on when controls would end.

"Then I asked the council members how many of them would raise prices within three weeks after the controls went off," Shultz said. "A very substantial number of hands went up. That explains the problem."

The administration is trying to work out a plan to drop controls on an industry-by-industry basis. Shultz said the plan might be proposed in public before it is put into effect so that everyone would have a chance to comment.

Gradual withdrawal has its problems, too, he said. "The more you deal with the problem, the more you have rubbed into you that the economy is not a set of separate industries," he said.

The nation's most powerful labor leaders have urged an end to Phase 4 controls by the end of the year.

But the administration faces difficult political and economic decisions on what comes next. The most immediate problem is expiration of the Economic Stabilization Act, the authority for wage-price controls, next April 30.

No decision has been made on whether to seek another one-year extension, Shultz said.

"I don't expect the President will seek an extension," said Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz. "If he does, it would not be granted."

Administration economists are fearful that if April 30 is seen as the absolute end of controls, then businesses will simply wait, and then raise prices as much as they want, causing a tremendous inflationary boom.

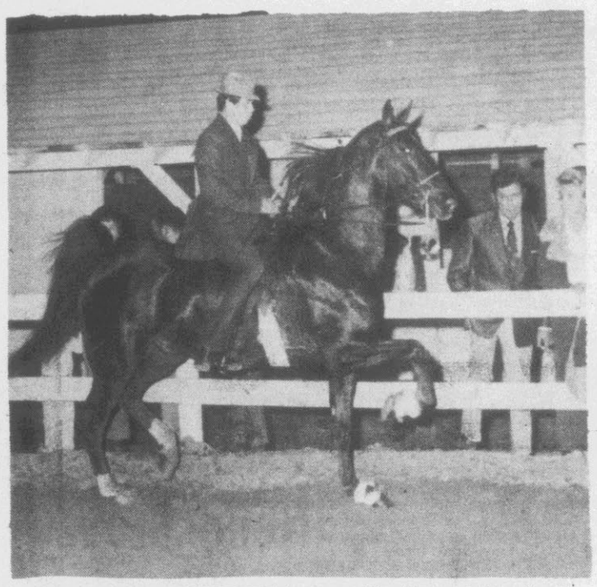

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur F. Burns believes the answer is gradual withdrawal from controls, then the creation of a wage-price review board with powers to delay price increases and investigate monopolies in business and labor.

"I think we have to return by and large to free markets," Burns said.

Services, beginning each night at 7:30, will continued through Friday.

The Rev. Lancaster earned his B. S. degree at East Carolina University and was awarded his master's degree at Duke University.

Reports County Sales-Use Tax

Net sales and use tax collections in Pitt County during September totaled $139,164.51, according to J. Howard Coble, Secretary of the State Department of Revenue.

Coble reported that net collections in Greene County during the month amounted to $8,914.54 while Martin County figures were $37,561.15, Beaufort County $67,450.11 and Lenoir County $109,321.92.

Total collections of the 91 participating counties amounted to $8,761,519.81 during September, Coble said.

Jenkins To Address GOP Meet

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

East Carolina University Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins will address the First District Republican Convention Saturday at the Moose Lodge.

First District GOP chairman Bill Dansey said that Jenkins is expected to speak on medical care for eastern North Carolina and the need for a medical school at ECU. Jenkins will speak shortly after the session is convened at 2 p.m.

Dansey, noting that Jenkins is a prominent Democrat, said that in inviting the ECU head to address the gathering, "I feel that medical care is more important than partisan politics."

The First District session is expected to be attracted by representatives of the district's 21 counties which include Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Carteret, Chowan, Craven, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Greene, Hertford, Hyde, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Pitt, Tyrrell, and Washington.

Dansey explained that delegates and alternates to the convention have been allotted on the basis of the number of votes received by Gov. Jim Holshouser in the district in the last election. With counties having such an allotment based on Holshouser votes cast in 1972, there is a possibility of having some 251 delegates and an equal number of alternates attending on Saturday.

Pitt County will send two slates of delegates and alternates to the district gathering due to a split in procedures at the recent biennial county convention. The district convention's credentials committee will approve one of the two slates to be seated as a voting delegation but the matter could then be taken to the floor of the convention for a vote.

"I think it all boils down to. . .how many people will support Frank Rouse and how many will support Tom Bennett" for the state GOP chairmanship, Dansey contended.

He noted, "That was the main reason for the two conventions being held in Pitt County recently, one of them supporting Bennett and the other Rouse. There is a little mixture in both of them. I don't think either slate is solid," he added.

Dansey said that "Bennett's comment that he was for the medical school here is ridiculous when the governor is against it and Bennett is his hand-picked candidate for the chairmanship. I see no reason for him to change."

The chairman commented further, "I think it is to Eastern North Carolina's disadvantage to support Bennett. It is very interesting that Phil Kirk, one of the administrative assistants in the governor's office, was down here in Greenville to meet with the Young Republicans and said then that the governor was going to stay out of it (the medical school issue). Then he turned around the next week in Greensboro and said the governor was against it."

Delegates attending the convention on Saturday will select a chairman to serve the First GOP District for the next two years.

Social Security Citation Is Given

Ed Fields, Program Director for television station WNCT-TV, channel 9, Greenville, today received the Regional Director's Citation award from the Social Security Administration.

Presentation was made to Fields by Mrs. Delores (Dee) Taylor during the noon-time TV program today. Each Wednesday shortly after noon Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Lilly Diggs, Claims Representative, conduct a social security information show over the local TV station.

The citation to Fields reads "For public service time donated for years to inform the people of Eastern North Carolina of their rights and responsibilities under the Social Security Law."

Mrs. Taylor noted that WNCT-TV has "been of invaluable assistance to all social security offices in eastern North Carolina by donation of public service time for years.

"In fact," she said, "it was one of the first, if not the first, TV station in the nation to donate public service time to the Social Security Administration."

She further mentioned that not only has the station given eight to 12 minutes per week for years on a regular basis, "but the time has always been prime time, and they often give extra time."

Mrs. Taylor cited survey figures that show the Social Security information program is viewed in rural North Carolina by over 35,000 homes..." according to the American Research Bureau in 37,000 homes, and according to the Neilson Survey, in 35,000 homes."

Social Security program in the top 50 of 200 programs shown on WNCT-TV.

In expressing appreciation to and praise for the assistance given by Fields, Mrs. Taylor also made reference to the cooperative attitudes of personnel of the station. "They provide tips to insure high quality broadcasts," she said, "and they keep a mail box labeled Social Security Administration for letters which come to the station to be answered on the program."

Mrs. Taylor also recalled that a Social Security program taped by WNCT-TV last year won top honors in a competition for eight southeastern states.

"If the government had to purchase this time, it would have cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars," Mrs. Taylor pointed out. "Without WNCT-TV's help the job of the Social Security Administration in eastern North Carolina from the 'Capital to the Coast' would be much more difficult. We feel recognition to Ed Fields and to all at the station is long overdue."

Teachers' Pay Hike Priority

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Board of Education has given top priority to an 8 per cent pay raise for teachers in the $178.6 million budget for public schools during the next fiscal year.

In assigning priorities to the budget Tuesday, the board gave the No.2 spot to state administration, $2.1 million. Third priority went to school food services, $560,000.

These three top priorities had been suggested by the state Department of Public Instruction. However, the board rearranged several priorities set by the educators to give greater emphasis to reading, mathematics and the kindergarten program.

The budget now goes to the Advisory Budget Commission which will make recommendations to the 1974 General Assembly.

The budget designates $454,000 specifically for the teaching of reading. The request for the kindergarten program totals $12 million.

Money for research and development for instructional personnel, which includes some funds for teaching reading and mathematics, was moved forward in priority ranking.

The 8 per cent pay raise for teachers would cost $54.4 million.

A. C. Davis, controller for the board, said the state education agency and the board were criticized during the 1973 legislative session for putting teacher pay raises at the bottom of the list.

Lady Bird Sees 'Mohawk Trail'

DEERFIELD, Mass. (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson made an unannounced visit to Old Deerfield Village, driving down the Mohawk Trail to enjoy the fall foliage at its height.

Not Everybody Wants Job Of Directing Show

By ALAN WILSON

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—It took six months to put together, and eight hours to tear apart.

The work is called "horrendous" . . . "hairy" . . . "hectic." And the hours are weird.

Sometimes the people are, too. After all, it's not just anybody who wants the job of producing the nationally televised country music awards show from a building that's 81 years old.

The two big men behind the scenes for this year's show were Walter Miller and Joe Cates. Both are with the Phillips Production Co. of New York.

As co-producers of the Opryhouse spectacular, Miller and Cates were responsible for "getting it all together" as they say. Their problems are numerous but there's some consolation. They have about $275,000 to help make life easier and the satisfaction of having watched and directed a finely polished show seen by the nation.

"We start visiting Nashville six months before the show to begin our work," said Cates.

"When it's over," Miller said, "out come the nails and onto the truck it all goes."

He was referring to sound and lighting systems, a maze of cable work, cameras, taping equiment, the stage set. In all, the electronic gear and set are valued at more than $1 million.

"You're looking at a half million dollar show with all the talent," said Cates.

"It's all made possible because all the stars of country music and the publishing and record people make their services available free or at scale price.

"We agree to do it for a price. Nobody gives us a license to do the show and says spend what you want."

Asked what kind of problems they encounter, Cates replied:

"Oh come on. You name it.

"As a director, I have no room. And you have no production possibilities because there are no facilities.

"But you have to do it here in the Opryhouse because this is the place."

Miller's main job is to arrange for entertainment during the television show and make sure that all nominees are easily in reach should they be needed on stage.

"All the nominees we have to know where they are in the audience so we can pick them out and get them on stage. And of course the managers want to be there too. It's a horrendous job to get it all together."

"It really gets hairy after awhile."

Adding to their problems was the fact that the Opryhouse held its regular Friday night and Saturday shows while the company's crew of 100 workers had to figure out ways to get their equipment and stage set out of sight but ready to be put into action as soon as the shows were finished. On Sunday night, there was a gospel music show.

The Phillips Production crew has been putting on the OMA awards for the past three years. It's also worked the Ringling Brothrs circus, a junior pagent in Mobile, a Flintstones on Ice show in Germany, Cole Porter show in Paris and rodeos.

Consequently, logistical problems are a routine part of life for Cates and Miller. And they take it in stride.

"It's part of what it's all about," said Cates. "It involves a concern, decency and a sense of humor."

UFO Reports All Depend On What One Believes

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

Twinkle, twinkle, little what? Reddish creatures floating out of a strange spaceship with their crab-like claws? A turnip-shaped flying object that blinds with a flash of light? A flying machine shaped liked a cigar that can turn off car engines with a flash of light?

They're unidentified flying objects, and folks around the country have reported seeing a number of them in the last several days.

Are they for real? Is another civilization checking us out?

The answers depend upon which expert is talking, and whether or not you care to believe.

One man who has had his hands full of reported UFOs is Fred Diamond, the sheriff in Pascagoula, Miss.

Diamond said Tuesday reports of UFOs have gotten so bad and so numerous recently that he hadn't slept in 24 hours.

This particular turn of events began last Thursday when Charles Hickson and Calvin Parker went fishing.

They said a blue craft suddenly appeared hovering above the water, and out of it floated three reddish-looking characters with wrinkled skin. Hickson and Parker said they were escorted into this craft, where the creatures examined them and then let them go.

Two scientists with an interest in UFOs, Dr. James Harder of the University of Mississippi and Dr. Allen Hynek of Northwestern, said they placed Hickson and Parker under hypnosis and after four hours of questioning concluded:

"They were telling the truth beyond a reasonable doubt." Harder said Tuesday similar creatures have been sighted elsewhere.

Others agreed that what the two saw were visitors from another world, but there is no documentary proof such a thing has happened.

In 1969, the Air Force ended a 21-year study which took in 12,097 reported UFO sightings. The Air Force said — and its report was endorsed by the National Academy of Sciences — that there was no evidence of folks from other planets paying visits to earth.

It said that 90 per cent of all UFO sightings prove to be plausibly related to planes, satellites, balloons and various natural phenomena.

UFOs have been reported by citizens in the last four or five days in a number of widely scattered areas. Many said they were flashing objects too far away to determine exactly what they were.

Astronomers and other scientists in the affected areas said those occurrences probably were reflections from Mars distorted by atmospheric conditions, or planes or helicopters or balloons. In Tennessee and South Carolina, objects reported at night as UFOs turned out to be balloons with tin foil tied to them.

But there still have been some strange developments.

The Soviet news agency Tass said Tuesday that scientists at four stations have received heretofore unheard-of signals from upper layers of the atmosphere. Tass said scientists were trying to determine if the signals were artificially or naturally produced. It said "it is not precluded that they may be sent by a technically developed extraterrestrial civilization."

Others who have been puzzled lately include James Thornhill, a Civil Defense radar watcher at Columbia, Miss., who said that last weekend he picked up a blip on his screen moving much faster than a helicopter can travel. He said it stopped and hovered about three miles away from his station.

Thornhill said his screen and radio communications suddenly jammed for 15 or 20 minutes. He said that when they returned to normal, the blip was gone.

John Lane, a Gulfport, Miss., cab driver, told police a blue object landed in front of his cab Monday night, stalling it and causing the radio to go dead. He said he heard a tapping sound on his windshield and saw a flesh-colored creature with a crab-like claw.

A woman in Tennessee reported a cigar-shaped object flashed a light and stalled her car, and a truck driver in Missouri said a turnip-shaped object blinded him with a searing light.

And then there was the flood of calls Monday night in Renfroe, Ala., where many residents reported seeing a flying saucer. Deputy Sheriff Tom Traylor investigated the strange-looking object that had landed in a tree and warned residents to keep their distance. Traylor approached the object, opened a pouch and found a note:

"U.S. Department of Commerce, National Weather Service. If found, please mail to 451 Ruby St., Joliet, Ill."

Officials said it was a weather balloon, and a deputy wondered how often it had been reported as a UFO "on its way from Illinois."

Boasted He Gave Killing Blow To Boy

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — A South Carolina teen-ager boasted to friends that he dealt the killing blow to another youth who had been tortured with broken bottles, a witness has testified.

David Hester, 17, of Greenville, S.C., is charged with the murder of Ross Michael Cochran, 17, of Fresno, Calif. Police said Cochran was tied to a table, beaten with chains, and slashed with broken glass at a roominghouse in Daytona Beach frequented by drug users.

Jerry Lee Smith, 21, of Chicago testified Tuesday that following the beating, Cochran was carried unconscious from the house by Hester and three others, and driven away in the trunk of a car.

Smith, one of three men granted partial immunity for their testimony, quoted Hester as saying after he returned from the trip that "the other guy chickened out so I finished him off."

Police said Cochran, who was suspected of being a narcotics agent, was clubbed to death after being tortured.

Charles M. Paige, 21, of Daytona Beach, testified that Hester told him "he couldn't have done it two years ago but it didn't bother him now."

Howard E. Waelluf, 19, of Detroit, also testified during the second day of trial. He said Hester admitted on his return that he was involved in the fatal beating of Cochran.

The prosecution said it has agreed to accept pleas of guilty to lesser charges from Smith, Paige and Waelluf in return for their testimony.

Earlier, Hester's attorney said his client, a drug-addict, beat Cochran over the head with a club in an effort to render him unconscious to convince the others to leave and then save Cochran's life.

Atlanta Elects A Black Mayor

By TONY LEDWELL
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Maynard Jackson says his election as Atlanta's first black mayor is "a resounding affirmation of the principles of unity and brotherhood that have helped make Atlanta truly a city too busy to hate."

Jackson piled up an overwhelming lead in predominantly black precincts to unseat Mayor Sam Massell in their runoff election Tuesday.

Ironically, Massell won virtually all of the black precincts four years ago to become the city's first Jewish mayor. At the same time, Jackson was elected vice mayor.

Unofficial returns, including absentee ballots, gave Jackson 74,404 votes to 51,237 for Massell.

Jackson's percentage of the vote in predominantly white precincts was not immediately determined.

White moderate Wyche Fowler swamped black civil rights activist Hosea Williams, 78,209 to 44,017, for the presidency of the city council. Blacks won nine of the 18 seats on the council.

The election left the city's top leadership one of the youngest in history. Jackson is 35, Fowler 33.

Jackson swept to a first-place finish among 11 candidates in the general election Oct. 2. He polled 46.6 per cent of the vote then; Massell was runner-up with 19.8 per cent.

The election climaxed a bitter two-week runoff election campaign in which race was the prime issue. Massell attempted to link Jackson with Williams and said the "Jackson-Williams team" in the runoff "scares Atlantans to death."

At one point, Massell said, "I just have the guts to say a black man can be bad, just like whites can."

Jackson accused Massell of attempting to polarize the city along racial lines. Blacks account for slightly more than 50 per cent of the population and for 48.5 per cent of the 206,270 registered voters.

at Chapel Hill should not be expanded. The expansion of that school since 1946 to 1948 was caused by a movement of the people.

"We need to get this to be a people's movement. You can see the needs, you can hear the needs, but let's tell the story," the Rocky Mount mayor explained.

"There is nothing more basic in politics than people. This has to be a people's movement," Minges emphasized. "We can effectively influence the legislators in Raleigh if we band together."

Frank Everett of Hamilton, one of several other people who spoke at the session, said the opponents tell you about the health care centers they plan to build. We already have one in every county of the state now (he was referring to health departments).

"They are trying to put you to sleep and they are playing a nice tune for us," Everett said. "This is not a battle between the Republicans and Democrats or the East and West, it is our side against the supporters of the University of North Carolina and Gov. Jim Holshouser is on their side."

Some of the places the people attending from include Mt. Olive, Holly Ridge, Rich Square, Plymouth, Hamilton, Pactolus, Southport, Greenville, Rocky Mount and Goldsboro.

Sales Boom

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — The Dirty Time Co. says sales of its Spiro T. Agnew wristwatch have boomed in the wake of his resignation as vice president.

Dirty Time's president, Dr. Hale Dougherty, said the company's 17,000-25,000 stock of the $19.95 timepieces will be gone in less than two weeks if the current pace continues.

Surgery For Centenarian

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—At age 100, Mrs. Anna M. Yeoman of Lawrence, Kan., knows just what she wants to look at first after she undergoes cataract surgery Wednesday.

"The first thing I'm going to do is read my Bible through," she said Tuesday as she awaited the operation that doctors say may restore the sight she lost years ago.

"The Lord's been awfully good to me—He's been awfully good to me," she said.

Mrs. Yeoman decided to come to Nashville for the surgery after her nephew, Dr. Joe Sutherland, a Nashville physician, visited her in Kansas. Sutherland's late father, Dr. E. A. Sutherland, Mrs. Yeoman's brother, founded Madison Hospital where the operation will be performed.

Sutherland described the surgery as "relatively minor, but when you go operating on someone who is that old, it's psychologically traumatic even though physiologically it's not much of an operation."

Mrs. Yeoman once taught church school in the Seventh Day Adventist Church. For 100 years, she said, she has never forgotten to pray before dropping off to sleep each night.

"I've been saying it a long time, 'In thy hand, oh Christ, I pray, simply to the cross I cling. Leave, oh leave me not for long, still support and comfort me'."

Ask Court To Rule Out Teacher Tests

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—A federal court has been asked to consider overturning a 1973 North Carolina law that requires passage of the National Teachers Examination as a prerequisite to being hired. The suit is the federal government's first legal challenge of the controversial standardized tests required for teachers.

The Justice Department filed a suit in U.S. District Court at Raleigh, N.C. Tuesday contending that the state board of education uses discriminatory hiring practices againt minorities in requiring a minimum score on the test as a condition for teacher certification.

An attorney for the government says statistics show minorities do not score as well on such tests as whites do.

Officials with the state department say the court ruling will probably affect similar requirements in South Carolina and some local school districts.

Government attorneys claim requiring the NTE "unlawfully hinders or prevents persons from obtaining employment as public school faculty and staff members in North Carolina," even if the individuals meet all other requirements.

One attorney pointed out that the Supreme Court ruled in 1970 that employment tests are unconstitutional when they are used to discriminate against minorities by private industry.

The court held the burden is on the employer to prove that the test is inextricably linked to the applicant's qualifications.

Widow Tells Of Her Koscot Investment

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A widow from Elm City, N.C., says she was persuaded by Glenn W. Turner to invest in his cosmetics firm by promises she could make money for doing nothing.

Mary T. Eason told her story on the witness stand Tuesday in the mail fraud trial of Turner, Boston attorney F. Lee Bailey and seven executives of Turner companies.

Mrs. Eason said she heard about Koscot Interplanetary Inc. cosmetics in September 1967 when Turner personally urged her to get in on the ground floor of what would become the biggest cosmetics business in the nation.

Mrs. Eason testified she put up $2,000 to become a supervisor with the promise the money would be refunded if she hadn't recovered her investment in three months.

When she failed to recoup the money, she said a Turner aide gave a $2,000 check but it bounced.

Mrs. Eason she invested another $2,500 under pressure and was told someone else would operate her distributorship with 60 per cent of the earnings going to her.

She said she recovered less than $2,000 and in 1968 started cooperating with postal inspectors investigating Turner operations.

Leo Parker of Maysville, N.C., testified he invested $4,500 for a distributorship in 1967 and was promised $30,000 a year income. He said he recovered only $500 of his investment.

In addition to Turner and Bailey, defendants are Harry B. Atkinson, W. Leroy Beale, Ben U. Bunting, Clyde C. Cobb, Jess O. Hickman, Malcolm A. Julian and Hobart Wilder, all of the Orlando, Fla., area.

Wreck Cost Heavy Loss

An estimated $25,000 damage was caused in an accident 2½ miles west of Greenville on the Belvoir highway.

According to Ptl. G. B. Russ, a large, loaded ten-wheel truck rounded a curve and ran a truck owned by the Greenville Utilities Commission off the highway. The driver of the Utility truck, Bernice Glisson, tried to pull the truck back on the highway, when it overturned, causing an estimated $25,000 damage to the hydraulic derrick truck.

Macolm Greene, assistant utilities director, said that Glisson and another passenger in the truck, Danny Scott were slightly injured.

Ptl. Russ also stated that the loaded truck which ran several cars and two other utility trucks off the highway, had not been found. The other utility trucks involved regained control of the vehicles without mishap.

Investigation into the accident is continuing.

Little is a business man in Bethel and operates a store and barber shop with his brother.

Clark is an employee of Burroughs-Wellcome Company. Both are natives of Bethel.

Rampants Have Week Off; N. Nash Is Next

Rose High School's Rampants take the week off this week, making up for their early start on the football season. They'll stand on the sidelines and watch the rest of Division I teams play conference games.

The Rampants next will face Northern Nash on the road on Friday a week. If they are to have a chance left at the conference title, or a playoff berth, they must win their remaining three league games.

"After looking at the films, I feel like we played a respectable game, considering our mistakes," Rose Coach Dave Bumgarner said after viewing the films of the Rose-Rocky Mount game last week. "I said before the game that if we didn't make any mistakes, we would win. But we made them and it cost us."

Rocky Mount scored in the final minute of the first half to push ahead of Rose, 13-9, and led the rest of the way. They scored on a tackle-eligible play, and Bumgarner says that the films show that the play was illegal. "They fooled us on it, sure, but they also had five men in the backfield and only six on the line, an illegial formation, that the officials didn't catch. And when you give up a cheap touchdown that late in the half, you never can tell how it will affect you."

Bumgarner feels that if Rose had held the lead at halftime, they would have been more fired up in thge second half, and had a better chance. "But that wasn't the real turning point. We had held them and forced a punt, which we fumbled, and they went on to score."

The coach felt that the offensive line didn't block properly at times, and when they did, the backs didn't run to the holes. Then, on defense, he felt that the team didn't go after Rocky Mount's number one back aggressively enough. "We didn't really hit him with he pads; we tried to arm tackle."

"We're going to have to improve on our kickoffs and punts too," he added. One punt, hurried, went only five yards, and Rocky Mount got good returns on most of the kickoffs.

The week off will help the Rampants physically. "Tim Toates is on crutches with an ankle injury, and Doug Paschal has a broken thumb. Both of them should be ready to play, although Paschal may have to wear some sort of protective gear and there is always the possibility that the officials will refuse it."

The Rampants will also be making some lineup changes. Bumgarner said he planned to move Keith Joyner from defense to offense, with Nat Perkins moving into Joyner's vacant spot. Jackie Savage, a defensive end, would also work in Paschal's spot in case he would be unable to go.

In last week's other Division I games, Northeastern tripped Northern Nash, 14-12, in the only league meeting. Wilson, with a non-conference game, tied for the second straight week, 14-14 with New Hanover.

This week, Northeastern is at Rocky Mount, while Northern Nash travels to Wilson.

Strawderman Is Glad To Be Back

Less than a week before East Carolina's opener against North Carolina State, strong (Sarah) linebacker Butch Strawderman crumpled to the ground during a freak practice mishap.

The diagnosis: sprained knee, out for four to six weeks. The problem: how to replace one of the wildest of the "Wild Dogs."

Four weeks turned into five and five into six. Finally, after seven and one-half weeks by Strawderman's careful count, he played as a starter against V.M.I.

"I never thought I'd see the day. When I hurt my knee, the doctors told me I'd be back for Furman (Sept. 29) if I took care of it and worked hard at rehabilitating it. Things didn't go to well at first, but now the knee has come around.

Against V.M.I., I felt pretty good. I think my knee is back almost 100 per cent. But I played like a dummy. I made a lot of mistakes and I'll tell you, the first series I was about to die. It was a long series and V.M.I. did try to throw a lot, but I didn't realize how much conditioning I missed.

"The worst thing that happened was that I couldn't catch the football. I had a chance to intercept two passes and one of them was a sure touchdown.

"I'd better change that. The worst thing was the assignments I missed. The tight end for V.M.I., got me a couple of times when I was playing where I shouldn't have been. Then the guy knocked me down. I don't like that."

"The best part of the game was being back with the 'Wild Dogs.' I say that because they are playing super defense. Coach Randle likes to say they were 'flyin' around' on defense. If you look at the points on the visitors side of the scoreboard you can tell how much flyin' around there was.

"Against V.M.I. the "Wild Dogs" were flying.' I think they came up with pass interceptions and at least three fumbles. The scoreboard took care of itself—seven points. The 'Dogs" shutout Davidson, allowed Furman only three points, scored two touchdowns against Southern Illinois and. shutout Southern Mississippi. I'm proud to be a part of that outfit, even though I wasn't playing when they were doing all the flyin' around.

Strawderman will have his chance to fly around over the next five weeks. He is back and the defense needs him. Cary Godette, defensive end, is playing hurt as is Buddy Lowery. Strawderman's return adds striking power to the "Wild Dogs."

Strayhorn 2nd In SC Scoring

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Barty Smith of Richmond continues to hold a six-point lead over two contenders in the Southern Conference football scoring race, but one of the challengers is new—and both are sophomores.

The 235-pound senior fullback boosted his season's total to seven touchdowns and 42 points with one six-pointer in the undefeated and untied Spiders' 220 triumph over Southern Mississippi.

A sophomore teammate, running back Bobby Allen, remained one of two players just six points behind when he scored his sixth touchdown in the Southern Mississippi encounter.

But moving into a tie for the runner-up spot with a pair of touchdowns in a 42-7 romp over Virginia Military was sophomore Kenny Strayhorn of East Carolina, the youngster who has beaten the 1972 league player of the year, Carlester Crumpler, out of a job.

A pair of William and Mary junior tailbacks, Doug Gerhart and Terry Regan, are tied for fourth with 30 points each.

Gerhart, who has five touchdowns and was tied for second last week, was shut out in a 20-7 loss at Vanderbilt. Regan, who also does the Indians' placekicking, booted the extra point and now has one touchdown, 15 conversions and three field goals.

East Carolina's kicking specialist, Jim Woody, moved up a notch to sixth place by booting six extra points against VMI. He has 28 points on 19 conversions and three field goals.

Another East Carolina performer, senior quarterback Carl Summerell, is seventh with 26 points on four touchdowns and a two-point conversion. Summerell scored once and threw a touchdown pass.

Furman kicker Al Standiford took over eighth place with 25 points by kicking five extra points and a field goal in a 38-7 romp over Davidson. He has 13 extra points and four field goals.

Three players are tied for ninth place with four touchdowns and 24 points each—wide receiver Stan Eure of East Carolina, fullback John Gerdelman of William and Mary and quarterback Bill Deery of William and Mary.

Eure caught Summerell's scoring pass against VMI and Deery scored the Indians' touchdown gainst Vanderbilt.

Parker: Never Used To Losing

NEW YORK (AP) — Jerry Grote refused to speak, the normally exuberant Tug McGraw talked in solemn tones, and losing pitcher Harry Parker spoke in a hoarse, choked voice.

"You never get used to losing," said Parker, who yielded the two-out, 11th inning single to Bert Campaneris that gave the Oakland A's a 3-2 victotry over the New York Mets Tuesday night.

The A's now lead the best-of-seven World Series two games to one.

"I hope I never get used to it. I don't plan on it," Parker said.

The A's, known for their power hitting, scratched out a run in the 11th inning on a walk, a third-strike passed ball, and an RBI single. The passed ball by Jerry Grote put Ted Kubiak in scoring position, and Campaneris knocked him home.

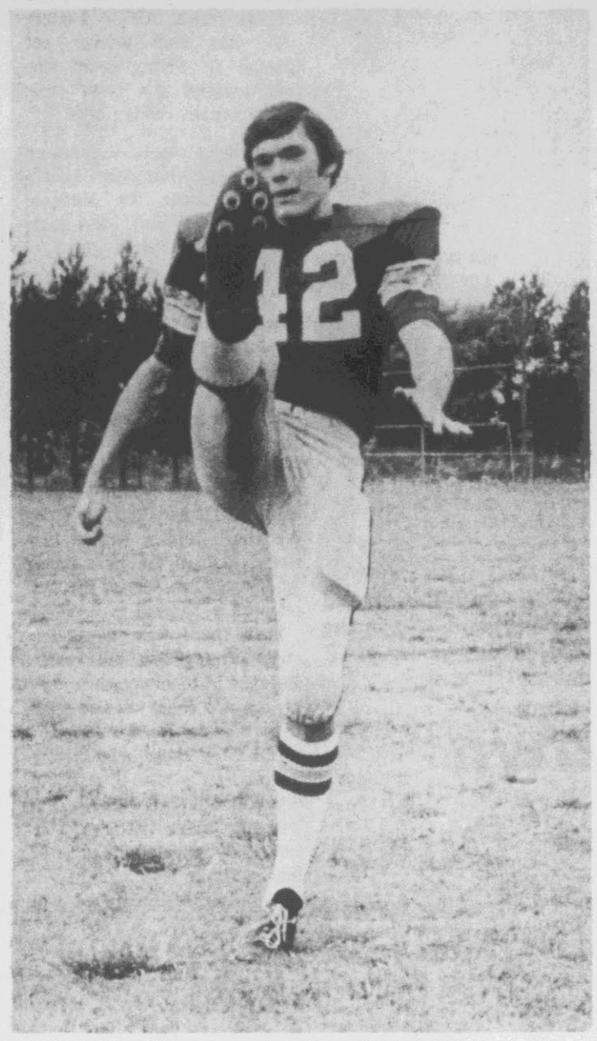

"I'm not blaming anybody," said Parker. "Passed balls are part of the game.

"I'm the one who walked the guy, and I'm the one who gave up the base hit."

The Mets had gone with their ace, Tom Seaver, hoping to gain the advantage in this bizarre World Series that went into extra innings for the second consecutive game.

Seaver, the fireballing right-hander, went eight strong innings and struck out 12 before yielding to Ray Sadecki.

Kilgo: I Like Randle's Style

By JOHN KILGO
KQ SYNDICATE

It's worth the price of admission to watch East Carolina football coach Sonny Randle work on the sidelines. He makes Lefty Driesell and Al McGuire look like a pair of softies.

Randle paces the sidelines between the 20-yard lines. Up and down, shouting encouragement, offering criticism, clapping his hands.

I caught the Pirates in a recent game and couldn't watch the game for watching Randle.

ECU was off sides on a kickoff and Randle boomed at the official: "How can you make that call when you're not in a position to see it?"

When the Pirates' kickoff team came off the field, Randle was there to greet the man who had been flagged as the culprit.

"Wake up," Sonny roared, "you were a step and a half before the ball."

On an ECU pass play into the opposing team's end zone, there was some bumping but no interference called. Randle cupped his hands and yelled at the official: "Worst in history. Worst in the history of football."

The offense, after getting a quick touchdown, had stalled on three straight tries. Randle got them together. "Come on, O ! Go out there and hammer those guys. Hammer 'em."

Even with a huge lead Randle was psyched. He also had the complete attention of his sidelines. The former NFL star receiver has completely turned things around at ECU. He's built a winner. He's a throwback to the old school.

As much as you might like to see Willie Mays and Yogi Berra get another World Championship, how can you pull for the New York Mets when they have 50,000 animals in the stands at Shea Stadium?

The fan behavior at Shea during the National League playoffs was an all-time low. The creeps got so out-of-hand that the game had to be stopped to allow the Cincinnati players to get their wives out of the stands.

These are the same loudmouths who were booing their "beloved" Mets six weeks ago. They're the same ones who were demanding that Berra be fired. I'd like to see Yogi and Willie win another big one—but the fans in New York City don't deserve it. They're strictly bush.

The biggest mystery of the ACC football season is Duke's inability to generate any kind of offense. After doing well against Tennessee and Washington, the Duke offense has been pitiful. The passing game doesn't work. The blockers give the runners little room to operate. And the fumbles come like Founders Day sales at the corner department store. It must be driving coach Mike McGee crazy.

If you're looking for the Coach of the Year in the Southern Conference, study carefully the job being done by Art Baker at Furman. The Paladins have lost only twice, and in those games they gave East Carolina and Richmond all they could handle. Furman is getting very serious about its athletic program and the results are encouraging.

PAT Wins For Blue

The Blue team scored one of its extra points and that meant the difference yesterday in the 7th and 8th grade Tackle Football League game at Elm Street Park, as the Gold fell, 13-12.

The Blue picked up its first score in the second period, with Will Hickman recovering a blocked punt in the end zone. Robert Williams ran over the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

The Gold came back to claim the lead with third period and fourth period touchdowns. The first came on a nine-yard run by Ed Price, cutting the lead to 7-6. Then, John Farley recovered a fumble in the end zone to put the Gold on top, 12-7.

Frank Novak came back with a 35-yard pass to James Hawkins for the Blue, giving them the win, 13-12.

The Green leads the league with a 2-0 record, while the Blue is 2-1, the Orange is 1-1, and the Gold is 0-3. On Thursday, the Orange and Green collide.

Wolcott Gets Kicks From Booting The Ball

The only scoring Rose High School picked up last Friday night against Rocky Mount was three field goals by Scott Wolcott.

And that probably represented a school record.

No one seems to remember anyone kicking that many field goals at Rose. No one has done it in the last ten years, that is for sure. And prior to that, kicking a field goal in high school was almost unheard of.

But Wolcott's kicking has made him a threat whenever the Rampants get down to around the 20-yard line...and maybe even further out.

"This is the most pleasing thing about our season," Coach Dave Bumgarner said. "Scott goes out there with a lot of confidence and kicks it right through. He works hard all of the time, and we know that if he gets the ball on the 30 we can count on three points."

Wolcott got the kicking habit while in school in New Hope, Pennsylvania, where he played about five years of soccer. He still used the soccer-style kick on his PAT's and field goals.

Originally from New York, Scott went through the seventh grade in Pennsylvania, then moved to Virginia. He came to Greenville in August, 1972, and promptly went out for the football team.

In junior high school in Virginia, he had kicked off, using the old familiar straight-forward style. He continued to do this for the junior varsity at Rose his sophomore year, and did a little kicking on the varsity level the following year, also playing some at the linebacker position.

But this year, at the request of Bumgarner, he limited himself to kicking.

"I've tried the regular style, but it just doesn't work for me," he said.

After learning that the placement duties would be on his shoulders, Wolcott went to work in the spring to become not just a kicker, but a great kicker. Throughout the spring, he worked with his father, Ed Wolcott, to improve his kicking. He worked every day, kicking some 75 times. "I kept it up until school was out, and then didn't do any kicking through June and July."

But when August rolled around, he went back to work, kicking the ball through another 75 times a day. "I cut that down a little when we started to play. I now kick 40 to 50 times a day Monday through Wednesday, then kick about 25 or 30 on Thursdays, to get ready for the game."

Wolcott feels that all this has paid off. So far, he's kicked five out of six field goals. "I just wasn't concentrating enough on the one I missed," he said. On extra points, he's also posted a fine accuracy record, hitting eight of nine. "Again, I just let my concentration slip when I missed," he said.

The five field goals and the extra points have made him the leading scorer so far on the team.

Scott feels that his long hours of kicking have increased his accuracy. "I think it added at least 15 to 20 yards onto my accuracy," he said. So far, in games, most of his kicks have come from around 30 yards. His best has been a 34-yarder. "I don't know what my range is, really. I'm pretty sure I can kick it 40 yards, and I've kicked 45 yards in practice under a dummy rush, and I think that I can increase this in the future."

Scott, who has other interests too, is also a member of the Rose track team, running the two-mile event. He also enjoys swimming and tennis.

One of the top students in his class, Wolcott will have no problems getting into any college in the country. "I've considered some of the small New England colleges," she said, "but I want to play football, and a lot depends on whether I get a scholarship to play or not."

Although Wolcott stands only 5-11, and weighs 160, he feels he can play as opposed to just kicking, at some schools. "It really depends on where I go (whether I just kick or play some other position). But I do want to play one way or another. I just hope I get the chance."

Injuries Hurt In Pirate Camp

East Carolina head coach Sonny Randle has been talking about injuries since before the season started. He has warned repeatedly that the Pirates have a "good" football team and that barring injury, East Carolina should be in the thick of the Southern Conference title fight.

"I think most everyone thought I was crying just to hear myself cry and to motivate my players. Well, it's a different story now and I think anyone following East Carolina football fortunes is as concerned as I am.

"We are starting down the stretch in the conference race and we don't have very important, very talented and very skilled people.

"In our 42-7 win over V.M.I., We lost tight end Benny Gibson for the season with a complete should separation. Benny will have surgery this week. Believe me, that's a tough way to end a really fine season.

"And, we're hoping to get Cary Godette, our defensive end, back next week. A couple of weeks ago I said Cary was playing on the verge of greatness. Then, he got hurt. We thought he was gone for the year. We're lucky he's coming back.

"I've been talking to this thing all year. First we lose a valuable player here, then we get one back on a limited basis and then we lose another player. We finally got Butch Strawderman, our Sarah linebacker back, after seven weeks. That is a real boost to the entire "Wild Dogs" defense.

"I want to alarm some people, because that is the situation we are in now. I'm alarmed, some of my coaches are alarmed and I think some of the players realize what injuries are doing to the team.

"And, this is not a crying session because we have the tough ones ahead. I've talked about injuries all year, I've looked ahead to the schedule coming up and I've been truthfull Right now, we're going to play just like we have been playing—one game at a time. The players will discover that they just have to buckle the belt a little tighter and go."

A's, With Something To Prove, Ease Past Mets In 11th Inning

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Neither cold, nor Tom Seaver nor Charles O. Finley could stop the Oakland A's from their appinte ronds uesday night.

And as a result, the American League champions hold a 2-1 lead over the National League's New York Mets going into tonight's fourth game of the 1973 World Series.

"We proved what we can do despite the front office," said Oakland third baseman Sal Bando after the A's beat the Mets 3-2 in 11 innings at Shea Stadium's ice box and took the lead in the seven-game Series.

As is 50-egree temperatures and stiff winds weren't enough of a detriment, the underdog A's were saddled with a two-run deficit in the first inning against Seaver, one of the best pitchers in baseball.

Then there was the matter about Finley and the roster. Because of their eccentric owner, the A's could not use a full 25-man roster for the Series.

In a zany cause celebre, Finley reportedly "fired" Mike Andrews Sunday after the second baseman made two costly errors that led to Oakland's 10-7 loss in Game 2.

His absence, combined with the loss of another player before the Series due to a front-office misunderstanding, cut the A's roster to 23 men.

Even the fact that Andrews reportedly was on his way back to the A's camp today apparently didn't help the club's general morale.

Many of the disenchanted A's have expressed displeasure with their off-beat owner, who has pulled many stunts similar to the Andrews incident.

"I guess we're that good, that we can overcome anything Finley can do to us," said outfield star Reggie Jackson.

Although Manager Dick Williams didn't have a full crew, he had enough in Bert Campaneris. The speedy shortstop helped the A's tie the score 2-2 with a stolen base in the eighth inning, then delivered the winning hit in the 11th inning.

"I felt at the moment that I was going to get a hit," said Campaneris, whose single off New York reliever Harry Parker drove home Ted Kubiak from second base.

Earlier, Campy beat a fine throw by New York catcher Jerry Grote to steal second and set up the A's second run.

From second base, it was easy for Campaneris to race home on Joe Rudi's single to right. That tied the score 2-2 and spoiled a wonderful pitching performance by Met starter Tom Seaver.

Until that point, the New York ace was in command of the situation with a crackling fastball.

"The way he was starting out," said rival pitcher Jim "Catfish" Hunter, "I thought, 'Here he goes again.' But then Seaver wasn't throwing as hard in the later innings. He had to rely on his control instead of his fastball later in the game."

As it was, Seaver struck out 12 batters before leaving after eight sparkling innings.

Many of those strikeouts came in the early going, when the Mets had taken a 2-0 lead built on that first-inning outburst. Wayne Garrett hit Hunter's second pitch of the game into the right-field seats for his second home run of the Series and the Mets scored their second run on a wild pitch by the Oakland ace later in the inning.

Seaver, meanwhile, dazzled the A's with a performance that included five straight strikeouts at one point. But it didn't last forever.

In the sixth inning, the A's scored their first run on doubles by Sal Bando and Gene Tenace. Then after the eighth and 11th-inning rallies, the A's used their powerhouse bullpen to nail it down.

"We're deep in the bullpen," said Bando, "and that's where we have an advantage."

When reliever Paul Lindblad failed to get the Mets' leadoff batter in the 11th, the A's went to their old reliable: mustachioed Rollie Fingers.

Felix Millan sacrificed Wayne Garrett to to second base, but Fingers let him hang there by getting Rusty Staub on a fly ball and Cleon Jones on a bouncer.

That was the third appearance so far in the Series for the busy Fingers.

Fingers may not get the chance to appear again right away if Ken Holtzman pitches up to his capabilities tonight. The 20-game winner will start for Oakland against New York's Jon Matlack in a battle of southpaws.

Record Causing No Letdown As Clemson Prepares For Duke

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Clemson has been measuring its Atlantic Coast conference competition for the weekend, the Duke Blue Devils, and the scouts say Duke has just the type of team that offers the greatest threat to the Tigers — one with good ground control on offense.

Those scouts are suggesting that the Blue Devils are beginning to settle down and predicted they would offer a stiff challenge to anyone considering running away with the league title.

Coach Red Parker says the knowledge of Duke's 1-4 record is causing no letdown in preparations for the game.

"We're working for Duke with the thought that they're going to be the best football team we've played to date," he said Tuesday. "Duke will knock the daylights out of you. The best way to describe them is that they are a physical football team."

The coach suggested that this game, Clemson's second conference clash, might offer troubles not found in the first against Virginia in which the Cavaliers were subdued 32-27.

"I'm afraid there's always a little bit of a letdown between your first and second conference games, and I'm concerned about that right now."

Moreover, Clemson has had its problems stopping teams who run between tackles this season.

Aware of the Tiger shortcomings that have led to a 2-3 record so far, Parker observed, "Duke is an inside-conscious team as Virginia was in the first half. They like the inside power game.

"They are going to beat you with very few offensive mistakes with their defense and their kicking game."

The Tigers can expect to be re-enforced by two of their own squad members who were named as ACC standouts this week. Back Marion Reeves was one of the league Defensive Players of the Week, and quarterback Ken Pengitore was listed as an Offensive Player of the Week.

The game against Virginia in which those two made their marks proved to be the first one in which the Tigers gained more than 500 yards against an ACC opponent. The last time Clemson topped the 500-yard mark in one meeting was against Presbyterian Sept. 1, 1957.

Pengitore passed and ran for more than 300 yards, only the third time a Clemson back had ever gained that much yardage in a game.

Reeves was assigned to contain Cavalier Harrison Davis, then the leading ACC receiver and seventh-ranked in the nation. Reeves did not allow Davis a single reception, graded out 87 per cent, had three solo tackles and six assists and knocked down three passes.

Tougher Inspection For American 500 Cars

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

ROCKINGHAM, N.C. (AP) — With Bobby Allison back in the field, drivers began arriving for the American 500 mile stock car race today and found new and tougher inspection rules in force at North Carolina Motor Speedway.

The new technical procedures, involving minute inspection of engines—inside and out—were put into effect by the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing in the wake of a controversial finish in the Oct. 7 National 500 at Charlotte.

Cale Yarborough, a Chevrolet driver, won the Charlotte race and about $43,000. Richard Petty finished second in a Dodge.

But third place runner Allison, another Chevy pilot, protested that both the Yarborough and Petty cars carried engines larger than NASCAR's maximum of 430 cubic inches.

The day after the race, NASCAR officials disallowed Allison's protest but admitted their technical inspection procedures were inadequate and promised changes for the American 500, final Grand National championship race of the season.

Allison, who had withdrawn his entry for Sunday's race, reconsidered following a Monday night meeting with NASCAR president Bill France. The Hueytown, Ala., driver, who had also threatened to sue NASCAR, announced Tuesday he was back in the race. He had threatened legal action after NASCAR let stand the order of finish in the National 500.

All car owners and drivers were notified Monday that engines powering the 3,800 pound stockers would be dismantled and measured for displacement, including bore and stroke.

Bill Gazaway, NASCAR's Grand National competition director, suggested that car owners bring their machines to the track with at least one cylinder head removed so as to avoid delay in inspection.

Among the early arrivals Tuesday afternoon were the cars of Yarborough and David Pearson, whose Mercury has been the big money and events winner this year. Petty was expected to arrive early today. His racing shops are located about 40 miles from the track.

Drivers were to be allowed on the one-mile banked oval for practice after clearing inspection. Qualifying to set up a field of 40 starters will begin Thursday and continue through Saturday.

Sunday's $106,500 season finale begins at 12:30 p.m., EDT.

Battle Still Won't Get His Recognition

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "In my opinion, Bill Battle never received the recognition to which he was entitled. He played on a couple of great football teams and was a fine leader of those teams."

That's the word from Bear Bryant, who coached Battle at Alabama in 1960-1-2. Bryant is still coaching at Tuscaloosa and come Saturday he'll do battle with Battle for the fourth time since his former player became head coach at Tennessee.

Battle will still be striving for recognition. His Vols are ranked 10th to Alabama's second in The Associated Press ratings, although both are unbeaten. The loser likely will become an also-ran in the Southeastern Conference chase.

Bryant has won two of the three previous meetings with Battle and it says here he'll deliver yet another lesson ... Alabama 28-17.

Last week's count was 45 right and 18 wrong for .714, including Tennessee's 20-14 over Georgia Tech on the nose. The Special, Boston College over Miami of Florida, looked good for 59 minutes. For the season, the score is 241-89-8—.730.

Colorado at Oklahoma: Colorado's 20-14 triumph last year was the Sooners' only setback and cost them a shot at the national championship. This game's in Norman and Colorado has been something less than impressive on the road. Oklahoma ... which looks good anywhere ... 35-14.

Kansas at Nebraska: Last year, Nebraska crushed Missouri 63-0. This year, Missouri got revenge. Last year, Nebraska crushed Kansas 56-0. This year? Nebraska 34-21.

Houston at Miami, Fla.: This one's on Friday night. A good way to start the weekend. Houston 24-21.

Ohio State at Indiana: Says Indiana Coach Lee Corso. "Ohio State has a super football team. We've gone over movies of them and it appears to be a team without a weakness." Right on, Lee. Ohio State 42-7.

Wisconsin at Michigan: Last week, Coach John Jardine said Ohio State was the best team in the land. This week, he might change his opinion. Michigan, 35-7.

Penn State at Syracuse: Syracuse has got to win one sooner or later, but this isn't it. Penn State hasn't lost and probably won't. Penn State 42-7.

Oregon at Southern California: This just might be closer than you think, especially if USC has next week's opponent on its mind. Next week's opponent is Notre Dame. This week, Couthern Cal 28-17.

Oklahoma State at Missouri: Mizzou reached an emotional peak and knocked off Nebraska last weekend. Oklahoma State's had a week off to lick the wounds of its only setback supplied by Texas Tech. So-o-o-o ... Upset Special of the Week ... Oklahoma State 17-14.

Notre Dame at Army: California 51, Army 6. Penn State 54, Army 3. Notre Dame 42, Army 0.

Kentucky at Louisiana State: Tough Tiger defense ages Sonny Collins. LSU 24-6.

Andrews To Tell His End Of Tale

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Andrews, who with two World Series errors over the weekend "became a household name," gets a chance to tell his story today.

The Oakland A's infielder, left the team Sunday afer adoctr sined statment declaring him disabled, was scheduled to be in uniform for World Series game No. 4 against the New York Mets tonight.

Commissioner Bowie Kuhn has ordered Andrews reinstated.

His teammates want him to tell the full story of his meeting with team owner Charles O. Finley.

"Sure, we want it to be made public," said Reggie Jackson, team player representative, after Tuesday night's 11-inning, 3-2 victory.

Jackson talked by telephone with Andrews Tuesday and said later the infielder agreed to leave the A's "because Charlie Finley threatened to destroy him."

Andrews signed the doctor's statement, acknowledging the reported disability.

Jackson added, "We know the man we play for, and we bind together."

Sal Bando said the Andrews incident, "took our minds off Tom Seaver and the ballgame."

Gene Tenace added, "What a game! You make two errors and become a household name."

Lees McRae Is Ranked

HUTCHINSON, Kan. (AP)— Lees McRae College of Banner Elk is rated 12th in the National Junior College Athletic Association football rankings this week.

Iowa Central, Mesa, Ariz. and Fort Scott, Kan. continue to hold down the top three slots.

The big three are all unbeaten and untied in competition this season.

Likes Facing Men His Size

NEW YORK (AP) — Dean Meminger, the New York Knicks' smallest player at 6 foot-1, doesn't often get a chance to go against a man his own size.

But when he does, he delights in it.

Meminger faced Buffalo's touted rookie, 6-0 Ernie DiGregorio, Tuesday night and enjoyed the highest scoring game of his National Basketball Asociaion carer, collecting 27 points, as the Knicks routed the Braves 117-91.

In the only othe NBA game Tuesday night, the Philadelphia 76ers defeated the Houston Rockets 106-10.

The San Antonio Spurs scored their first victory, beating the winless Virginia Squires 116-106 in the lone American Basketball Associationgame

"When you play a man like Ernie D," explained Meminger, "you have to make him pay the price (play defense) or he'll kill you on offense." DiGregorio scored only 12 points.

Meminger, whose previous pro high was 25 points, slithered through the Buffalo defense for most of his points on easy layups. He hit five-of-five field goals attempts in the first period, when the Knicks took the lead for good 28-22, and added 12 points in the fourth quarter.

"It's ridiculous for a guy who averages only about six points a game (Memiger'e average in his two previous seasons in the NBA was 5.2), to make so many easy layups," said Buffalo's Jim McMillian, game high scorer with 29 points. "But the Knicks were executing very well."

Meminger, however, wasn't the Knicks' high scorer. That honor went to Dave DeBusschere, who celebrated his 33rd birthday with 28 points and 14 rebounds.

76ers 106, Rockets 101

Philadelphia, which lost its first 15 games in the 1972-73 season and wound up with a 9-73 record—worst in pro basketball history—needed only three games to gain its first victory this season, beating Houston 106-101.

Fred Carter paced the 76ers with 29 points and Larry Jones, who hit 15 of his 17 points in the second half, and Steve Mix each sank two free throws in the final minute seaing the victory.

Spurs 116, Squires 106

San Antonio, playing its initial season in the ABA, had lost its first four games before handing Virginia its fourth setback 116-106.

The Spurs, who took over the struggling Dallas franchise, were led by Coby Dietrick's 24 points and rookie George Karl and Rich Jones' 21 each.

George Gervin was high for Virginia with 24 points.

Campy Dreams Of Home Runs

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Corresondet

NEW YORK (AP) — As a baseball player, little Bert Campaneris dreams of powering the ball over distant fences such as Hank Aaron or Willie Mays but he is happy at being a banjo hitter with speedy legs.

"Sometimes they say, 'That Campy is one hell of a ball player.' That is good enough for me," the frail-looking Cuban said after leading the Oakland A's to an 11-inning, 3-2 victory over the New York Mets Tuesday night for a 2-1 game lea in he World Series.

"I try hard. I concentrate. I do the best I can. If that is good enough to win, I am very happy."

Tuesday night—a raw, windy and disappointing evening for the Mets—was a happy one for the 5-foot-11 155-pound Oakland shortstop.

He hit three singles, stole second base after one hit to set up and later score the tying run and then, in the 11th, struck the blow that brought Ted Kubiak home with the deciding run.

The Mets have said one of the men they fear most on the Oakland team is Campaneris. "He won't kill you with the long hit—although he might," said Manager Yogi Berra. "But he'll hurt you in a dozen other ways."

Leading off the eighth inning, his team trailing 2-1, Campaneris slashed a single to left. Moments later, he cut loose for second base. Jerry Grote, the Mets' catcher, rifled his throw to secnd baseman Felix Millan. It was close, but Campy was called safe.

He scored on Joe Rudi's single and the game was tied 2-2.

"I go on my own," Campaneris explained afterward. "I usually go on my own. I watch Seaver (Tom Seaver, the Mets' pitching ace) on television in the playoffs. I watch him very close.

"Seaver is slow in his move to home plate. So I get the jump and I go. Anytime, I get a good jump, I go."

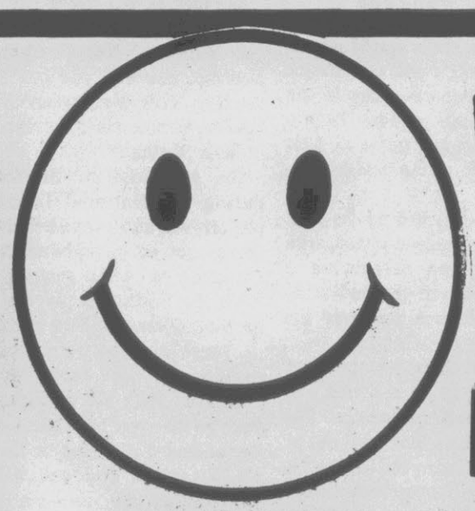

Campaneris said he had a lot of confidence when he strode to the plate in the 11th with Kubiak on second base.

"I feel very comfortable up there," he said, in his broken English. "I say to myself, 'I must try to get a hit.' I see a high fast one and I hit it pretty good."

The ball was drilled into center field, and Kubiak came rushing home.

No Fooling About Auto Size Limits

By TERENCE E. CHALK

HAMILTON, Bermuda (UPI) — When the Bermuda government set a limit on the size of the cars it will allow on the roads, it didn't mean maybe.

Auto dealers in the British North Atlantic colony imported English cars that were an eighth of an inch longer and an eighth of an inch wider than the specifications and found this to be so.

The government refused to bend the law, so the dealers had to bend the cars. One developed a giant press which literally crushed the vehicles the necessary fraction of an inch to reduce their length. In another process the door handles were recessed to take care of the width discrepancy.

Bermuda is fussy about things like that. Littering is taboo, no drinking of any sort is permitted on the streets, and women in hair curlers and men without shirts are banned from the streets.

Rules are rules, and they are followed by islanders and visitors alike. For instance the Norwegian ship Sea Venture has the government's coveted contract to make weekly cruises from New York. Though the ship is permitted to serve as a hotel for passengers while tied up to the dock at Hamilton, it has to be careful not to compete with other Bermuda businesses; its shops are closed and even its entertainers take a rest. If rain should keep the passengers aboard, the cruise director is careful to ask permission to show an unscheduled movie.

People Obey Rules

Bermuda gets away with its stringent rules because it believes people will do as they're told if you let them see you mean it. One tourist was heard to remark: "The streets are so clean I carried a cigarette butt around in my purse all afternoon; I wouldn't dare drop it in the gutter."

And when cruise director Michael Vallis announced the island's rule against hair curlers on the streets, women passengers applauded. Some of them may even think twice about wearing curlers to the supermarket when they get home.

The whole atmosphere of cleanliness is added to by the sparkling white roofs of the pastel houses. The law says roofs must be whitewashed "when necessary" because they are used as catch basins to collect rain that is stored in tanks under the houses. Rain caught in this way is Bermuda's main source of drinking water. That's why Bermudians seldom are unhappy when it rains; sometimes they come mighty close to being thirsty.

Increasing its drive against pollution, Bermuda has just taken a major step to cut down noise. Back in 1946 it reluctantly removed its ban on motor traffic and permitted small cars and light motorcycles on the roads. It enforced strict rules—only one car to a household and limited resale of used cars, a 20-mile-an-hour speed limit, and no operation of cars by visitors.

Cabbies Friendly

Taxi drivers in Bermuda are unbelievable. They're not only courteous, they're friendly, and some of them are entertaining to the point where they'll stop the cab and strum a guitar and sing while their passengers admire the view.

Ordering a cab by phone is an experience. It's no problem if you're at a hotel or other well known place. But only in Hamilton and St. George's are there street addreses; throughout the rest of the island the houses have names, and you have to give explicit directions so the taxi can find you.

The courtesy of the cab drivers is only a reflection of the general good manners to be found in Bermuda. In the stores you'll be surprised at being treated like a VIP, as though the sales people really care about you. They do. These people know the tourist trade is their bread and butter and with no other industry, the whole place is geared to pleasing the visitors.

And there is no problem with the currency. A couple of years ago Bermuda switched from the British pounds, shillings and pence to the metric system and pegged its currency to the U.S. dollar. That means that while the American dollar is losing value elsewhere, it is still worth a dollar in Bermuda.

"We're tied to you and we're sinking along with you," one Bermudian remarked. But he looked as if he thought it might be a beautiful way to go.

Maryland's Scandal May Change Law

By DAVID WIESSLER

BALTIMORE (UPI) — At the heart of the federal investigation into Maryland political corruption that brought charges against Vice President Spiro T. Agnew lies a problem that dates to the time when governments first started spending money for public services.

How can the government get the best possible work for the fairest payment without illegal or unethical practices creeping in?

With government growing by leaps and bounds, public work is often done by fulltime governmental employes but in some instances work such as construction is handed out by public bidding with the lowest bid getting the contract.

The Baltimore case, however, centers on consultants—engineers and architects who do the government's work but get their contracts by private negotiation rather than competitive bidding. It was in this connection that the federal grand jury operating in Maryland so far has indicted Baltimore County Chief Executive N. Dale Anderson on 39 counts of bribery, extortion and conspiracy. The indictments allege Anderson, a Democrat who took over as the county's top official from Agnew in 1966, accepted $46,420 in kickbacks from eight firms during his term in office.

The problem is not new. Kickbacks, paid political favors and bribes started a long time ago.

Blue Ribbon Panel

Nor is the problem situated only in Maryland. Several grand juries and a state legislative commission are looking into a similar matter in Illinois and several central Illinois building contractors have been charged with rigging bidding on a number of governmental works including the state attorney general's office. A Philadelphia grand jury also is looking into a case but so far no charges have arisen.

But when the name of the vice president of the United States was brought into the case, Baltimore builders, engineers, architects and politicians became very aware of the matter.

Gov. Marvin Mandel announced he will no longer accept campaign contributions from consultants and architects who do business with the state.

He further said he will appoint a "blue ribbon" panel to study the system by which professionals do business with the state and may introduce legislation next year to prohibit campaign contributions from architects and consultants who get contracts without bidding from the state.

A problem arises as to what is a political contribution and what is a payoff.

"Acquaintanceship"

A longtime Baltimore engineer said it was customary to buy two or three tickets to political fund raising affairs just as a matter of "acquantanceship." He said the donations were never in regard to specific contracts but he said such contributions were a consultant's fact of life.

Earlier in the year at a state Senate finance committee hearing, State Sen. George Snyder made the statement that professionals considered the purchase of tickets to political fundraisers "a cost of doing business."

The leaders of professional societies at the hearing did not rebut his statement and in fact Robert McNeill of the Consulting Engineers Council of Maryland called it "a fair assessment."

Professional leaders admit there is a possibility for corruption but say if there is any it is very small. The professional consultant societies rely mostly on the ethics of their individual members.

Burglar Broke In Just To Eat

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — A burglar entered a Hobbs residence ate some food and left, apparently without taking anything.

Tomie E. Brag told police he and his wife had left their residence one evening. When they returned they found a third place setting at the dinner table. They then discovered someone had cooked two pork chops, and eaten a pan of cabbage Mrs. Brag had fixed.

Brag said a skillet was still hot, apparently from cooking the pork chops.

'Correcting' Appalachian Trail Faults

By JIM MCGREGOR

LEWISTON, Maine (UPI) — A small group of Bates College students are using their weekends and part of vacations to right what they feel was a wrong in the original construction of the historic Appalachian Trail.

The 23 members of the school's Outing Club are nearing completion of a two-year project to reroute some 13 miles of the 2,000-mile trail that reaches from Georgia to Mt. Katahdin in Baxter State Park in central Maine.

Marty Welborn, a 20-year-old coed from Swathmore, Pa., said the Maine portion of the trail was the last to be completed.

"A lot of people thought the trail should end at Mt. Washington in New Hampshire," she said. "However, people were persuaded to extend it into Maine and I guess they tried to hurry the project before there was a change of position. In their haste, they used logging roads that were already available instead of cutting a natural trail.

"They missed some of the prettiest scenery and the best areas for hiking," she said. "We thought it was time to do it right."

For some 30 years, the Outing Club at Bates has been responsible for the upkeep and maintenance of a 30-mile section of the trail in rural Maine. Similar clubs and individuals are responsible for stretches all the way to Georgia.

In addition to clearing brush and trees for the five-foot wide path, Miss Welborn and the other Bates students have built bridges and other facilities.

"In most important respects our activities were similar to the original work done on the trail," said Miss Welborn. The group had to secure the permission of land owners to reroute the trail in the heavily forrested area.

Miss Welborn said she believed the trail would be completely taken over by the federal government by 1975 and preserved as a wilderness area. She said there have been some problems on some sections because they are not zoned and thereby subject to encroachment of civilization. The Bates Club is supporting the Maine Natural Resources Council in its efforts to get the Maine section of the trail zoned so it will remain protected until it comes under federal supervision.

In addition to getting the trail along the 30-mile section rerouted to where it probably should have been, the club members also were concerned that camps and cabins were gradually showing up in the area.

During the two years they worked on the re-routing job, the students worked under Dave Fields of the U.S. Forestry Service.

Even with the completion of the project, the Outing Club will stay busy on weekends keeping the trail in good shape for hikers who want to submit themselves to the ultimate test —a walk from Georgia to Maine. Hundreds of hiking buffs attempt the walk each year.

After the snow melts in the spring, the club goes out and clears trees, bush and other debris that has cluttered the trail.

Turnpike Toll Is Still The Same

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — When the New Jersey Turnpike was opened to the public on Jan. 15, 1952, the driver of a passenger car traveling the full turnpike length of 118 miles from Deepwater to Ridgefield Park paid a toll of $1.75.

The toll today is still $1.75. That averages to 1.48 cents per mile — next to the lowest car toll on any of the major toll roads in the nation. Cheapest is the 241-mile Ohio Turnpike, with a per-mile toll of 1.45 cents.

Fishless One Day Each Year

SYDNEY (AP) — Sydney is especially short of fish one day a year.

It's supposed to be the fishermen's annual picnic, but there never is a picnic. However, the fish market is closed under the regulations.

Nuisance Habit Hurts Romance

Diane is a slave, so she is losing a handsome and wealthy suitor. The tyrant that keeps her in bondage also causes thousands of divorces, for of 50,000 men who asked me to find them cultured wives, only ONE wanted a girl like Diane!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, PhD., M.D.

CASE Y-545: Diane D., aged 27, works for a newspaper.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "you introduced me to an engineer last year.

"And we have been dating ever since.

"We seem to be congenial in most of our interest and hobbies.

"Except for tobacco!

"He can't stand cigarette smoke!

"And I am a chain smoker, consuming 3 packs per day!

"He insists that I give up smoking before he will give me an engagement ring.

"But I'd rather die than stop my cigarettes!

"So why can't he compromise and not be so obstinate?"

Nuisance Habits

When I talked to her boy friend, he told me that he had warned Diane she'd probably die AND give up her cigarettes!

Besides, he said it killed her romantic allure when he kissed her and was asphyxiated with her stale tobacco halitosis.

"Dr. Crane," he admitted, "she is a very attractive girl and a gay conversationalist.

"But she doesn't realize that she STINKS from that stale tobacco odor.

"I can hardly stand it now, even while we are only at the dating stage and she has all her youthful charms.

"Imagine what would happen if we then got married and she polluted my bedroom with that foul odor !"

Whether you are addicted to overeating or alcohol or tobacco, it is a shame to let those nuisance habits rob you of romance, happy marriage and a longer lifespan.

"But I can't quit!" many victims protest.

Yes, you can - and instantly, IF.

And that big "IF" means, IF you muster 100 percent of your resolution!

John Wayne, a 5-pack-per-day smoker quit when he became a victim of tumors of his lung.

Arthur Godfrey did likewise.

And so have thousands of others.

But why wait till the proverbial "horse is stolen" before you resolve to lock the door?

Obesity is also an indirect cause of divorce for it makes a wife far less alluring in the boudoir.

That's often the start of her husband's worry about being platonic.

And thus incites him to try his prowess with an outside sire.

So you fat wives, who waddle like a walrus as you walk, should blame your own excess blubber more than the paramour when your husband starts straying elsewhere for boudoir cheesecake!

The cigarette habit is not primarily a chemical habit but is merely an outlet for excess energy.

Under pressure, people generate more nervous energy, which craves an outlet via muscular action.

But you can't shadow box or run the mile race everytime you suffer from pent up tension, so millions wave their arms via the smoking of a cigarette.

Substitute another act, with the same arm, and you can more easily quit the tobacco habit!

So send for my booklet "How to Break the Liquor and Tobacco Habits," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

West performed above and beyond the call of duty on today's hand. First, he pushed the opponents as high as he dared in the auction, then he found a line of defense that matched his bidding in aggressiveness.

Holding a hand worth eight tricks on offense at a heart contract, and perhaps no more than one or two tricks in defense, West was determined not to sell out too cheaply. It was not until he was faced with the prospect of contracting for 11 tricks opposite a partner who rated to produce nothing of any value that he decided that discretion was the better part of valor.

West led the king of hearts, and East started an echo by playing the ten, to convey to his partner that he would like the suit continued. Dummy was not a pleasant sight for the defenders.

It was a certainty that they were not going to get any tricks in the minor suits; indeed, it looked very much as if two heart tricks and the ace of trumps were the defensive limit.

However, West came to the conclusion that there was one slight chance to defeat the contract, provided East held the trump jack guarded at least once. If that card could be promoted, the defenders might score an upset.

Having found a distribution that would lead to declarer's defeat, West proceeded on the assumption that that particular lie of the cards existed. At trick two, he cashed the queen of hearts, and everyone following was a ray of hope. Next came the deuce of hearts, offering declarer a ruff and a sluff.

Since to ruff low in dummy or to discard would have meant the immediate defeat of the contract had East started with the jack of spades, declarer ruffed with dummy's queen. He crossed to his hand with the jack of clubs to lead the ten of trumps. Had West played low, declarer intended going up with the king, for the bidding marked West with the ace of trumps.

West did not falter at the last hurdle. He rose with the ace of spades and led another heart, and declarer was doomed. If he ruffed with dummy's king, the jack of spades would be established as the setting trick, so declarer gambled that West held that card. He discarded a diamond, and East ruffed with the jack for down one.

ECU Will Sponsor Trauma Conference

"TRAUMA: Care of Patients with Multiple Injuries," a two-day conference for emergency medical personnel, will be hosted by East Carolina University Oct. 29-30.

The conference course is designed for registered nurses, licensed practical nurses and rescue squad members who must deal with accident victims in emergency medical situations.

Conference speakers will include five Greenville physicians: Dr. Ira Hardy and Dr. Robert Timmons, neurosurgeons; Dr. Jack Welch, anesthesiologist; Dr. John Wooten, orthopedic surgeon; and Dr. Frank Longino, thoracic surgeon.

Also speaking at the conference will be Pitt Memorial Hospital Administrator Jack Richardson; Sylvia Waters, head nurse with Pitt Memorial Hospital's Special Surgical Unit; and Evelyn Perry, dean of the ECU School of Nursing.

Conference co-sponsors with ECU are Pitt Memorial Hospital and the N. C. State Association of Rescue Squads.

Among the topics to be covered at the conference are types and diagnoses of injuries commonly seen in the multi-trauma patient, commonly used life-saving techniques, and proper transportation of victims of head and spinal cord injuries.

Utah's dry powder snow in its high mountain resorts is said to be the best in the world for skiing.
