ROCKY MOUNT — Greenville Mayor S. Eugene West, meeting here yesterday with governmental officials and citizens from Eastern North Carolina interested in promoting a movement for better medical care in the state, told the gathering that if they have "friends and relatives in the West, contact them... ask them to help us."

About 65 persons from as scattered points as Hamlet, Southport, Holly Ridge and Plymouth, heard Rocky Mount Mayor John Minges say the only way to gain improved medical service is "for the people to band together and fight."

Minges, who has agreed to serve as chairman of the citizens group said the purpose of yesterday's session was to form an organization and see what we can do to get a medical school established in the East... and West, too. It's time we got together and tell our story. Lets present a united front to the governor and to the legislature."

West, noting that friends and relatives in the western part of the state should be asked to help in the promotion of better medical care, said "the center of politics is in Chapel Hill. 'This (the fight for improved medical service) is politics...you might as well call it like it is," he emphasized.

Minges responded to West's comment by saying, "there is nothing more basic in politics than people." He said, "This has to be a people movement."

Holly Ridge Mayor Ercell Woolard told the gathering that his areas closest medical facility was 21 miles away and indicated three small communities in the Holly Ridge area have banded together to build a clinic and attempt to attract one or more doctors to the area. But, he said, "the state had nothing to offer" in the way of assistance.

"I think we would have a better chance to secure a doctor if there was a medical school at ECU. I'm very much in favor of the school," he noted.

D. F. Odom, Mayor of Mount Olive said in his opinion, "the people don't know the situation." He said "We've got to get to the people and tell them what the deal is."

Miss Louise Williams — a faculty member at ECU for 40 years before her retirement — told the gathering, "I'm very much in favor of a medical school" at the Greenville school. She said that politicians and UNC supporters have been opposed to many of the progressive things the college has done. "The nursing school. They fought that in the same way," she observed. "And it's filling a very great need."

Hershel Johnson of Whitakers told the citizens group that his town has been selected as the site for a "satellite-type clinic," but, he said, "this is not the answer."

He said "A school in Greenville would be the best thing that could happen," and suggested that the very idea of establishing satellite clinics in various areas of the state (as suggested by the Governor and alluded to in the consultants report to the UNC Board of Governors on health care needs of the state) "proves we do need these doctors."

William Bryant, equipment director for Hardee's Food Systems in Rocky Mount noted that one member of the team of medical consultants hired by the UNC Board of Governors, speaking at a meeting in Richmond, said North Carolina needed 2,500 more doctors. Then, Bryant said, the same man reported to the Board of Governors that no more facilities were needed in the state to train physicians.

"We need a task force to pass out information," he emphasized.

At a press conference following the 10 a.m. meeting with the citizens group, Minges told newsmen "we are here, not to talk against anyone, but for ourselves," and said the organization would have "no paid lobbyists" in Raleigh. "No, but we will have people expressing concern..."

Bank In Beirut Seized

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen stormed a building housing several American and foreign banks today, seized up to 60 hostages, and threatened to kill them after a two-hour gunbattle in the heart of Beirut's financial district, police said.

The hostages, including foreigners, were trapped in the six story building, which houses the Bank of America, Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co. of New York, the Chemical Bank of New York, the Deutschebank of West Germany and the Lebanese Banque de l'Industrie et du Travail.

Police said they captured up to 60 hostages and threatened to kill them unless authorities provided a plane to carry them to Algeria or Yemen and released all Palestinian guerrillas held in Lebanese jails. The hostages included foreigners, but none were identified.

The gunmen called themselves members of the "Lebanese Socialist Revolutionary Movement" and gave authorities a 6 p.m. local deadline — noon EDT — to meet three demands:

—The release of all Palestinian guerrillas imprisoned in Lebanon.

—A $10 million ransom from one or more of the besieged banks "to support the guerrilla movement and the Arab war effort against Israel."

—An airliner to fly them to Algeria or South Yemen.

A note thrown out of one of the bank's windows said, "We shall kill all the hostages if our demands are not met by this deadline."

A second note said, "We have wired the bank with enough explosives to blow it up completely, killing all the hostages as well as us. We shall set off the explosives at 1800 local time unless our demands are met."

The building was surrounded by police and Lebanese army troops.

Biggest Tank Battle Of War Said Raging

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Egyptian and Israeli tanks clashed furiously today in the large and possibly decisive Suez Canal battle. Syria said its tanks knocked back an Israeli probe on the Golan Heights front.

Egypt said the Suez fighting centered around the central Bitter Lakes section of the canal and called on Israelis there to "surrender or face complete destruction."

"The battles raging since Wednesday, in the middle sector, are the most ferocious of all since the war began," said Cairo radio. "But our troops will continue, according to plan, to achieve victory."

Israel said its jets were pounding Egyptian targets in support of the Sinai armored forces and claimed Israeli ground fire downed two Soviet-built MIG warplanes and two Egyptian helicopters.

The Egyptians claimed their air defenses shot down 12 Israeli planes and said four Israeli pilots were captured.

Intense diplomatic activity was reported under way to end the fighting. Unconfirmed reports circulated in Washington, Moscow and other world capitals that Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was in Cairo heading a Soviet mission.

The New York Times reported in a dispatch quoting diplomats in the Egyptian capital that Moscow has begun high-level efforts to bring about a settlement of the 13-day-old Middle East war.

But as the reported peace moves went on in secret, five Arabic-speaking gunmen stormed a building housing three American banks in Beirut, the Lebanese capital.

Police said they captured up to 60 hostages and threatened to kill them unless authorities provided a plane to carry them to Algeria or Yemen and released all Palestinian guerrillas held in Lebanese jails. The hostages included foreigners, but none were identified.

The gunmen, calling themselves the Lebanese Socialist Revolutionary Movement, also demanded a $10 million ransom "to support the guerrilla movement and the Arab war effort against Israel." But the established Palestinian guerrilla movement disavowed the raid.

Agnew Case Is Studied By Bar

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — The Baltimore County Bar Association has begun an investigation to determine whether disciplinary action will be taken against former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Agnew pleaded no contest to one federal income tax evasion charge. A 40-page Justice Department summary of evidence tied Agnew to an alleged kick-back and bribery scheme.

Agnew has denied government allegations that he systematically extorted bribes from businessmen seeking county, state or federal contracts. William S. Baldwin, president of the county bar association, announced the probe Wednesday.

NOT ADVISABLE
RALEIGH (AP) — State budget expert Frank Justice has warned North Carolina legislators that "at this point in time, substantial reductions in major taxes do not appear advisable."

committee's case.

A committee spokesman said the decision probably would be appealed.

But Nixon still faces the formidable challenge of special prosecutor Archibald Cox's effort to obtain nine presidential tapes for the federal grand jury investigation of the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

The Middle East war also came home to noncombatant Beirut with offshore explosions that cut an undersea cable linking Lebanon and Europe. Military sources in Beirut said the five explosions were the work of Israeli frogmen but the Israeli radio quoted military spokesmen as denying the charge.

Israel claimed it destroyed 90 to 100 Egyptian tanks in the crucial Sinai battle Wednesday along the Suez Canal. Egypt said the Israelis "suffered heavy losses in tanks and armored cars."

"In the next day or so, we should be able to tell if this is the decisive battle," said an American official in Washington.

"It looks as if it will come to a head soon," said Maj. Gen. Haim Herzog, former Israeli army intelligence chief and now top war commentator for the Israeli state radio.

The Israeli drive into Syria remained bogged down about 21 miles from Damascus and the Syrians claimed they knocked out seven Israeli tanks just after dawn "when our forces repelled an enemy attack on one of our forward positions."

The Middle East war also entered finance with an announcement by Arab oil countries in Kuwait on Wednesday that they will cut their production by 5 per cent a month and increase the cut by 5 per cent a month as long as Israel holds onto Arab lands seized in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

Their hope is that their West European and Japanese customers — who will feel the squeeze first and hardest — will pressure the United States into ending its shipments of war supplies to Israel.

There was intense diplomatic activity in Washington, the United Nations and other capitals aimed at ending the fighting. But no sign of progress was apparent.

U.S. Pressured By Arab Oil Cutback

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The proclaimed cutback in Arab oil production should have little immediate effect on U.S. supplies, an American energy expert says. But Western Europe and Japan, the Arabs' biggest customers, are expected to put pressure on the United States before long to reduce its support of Israel.

Arab oil ministers at a meeting in Kuwait Wednesday announced they would cut production at least 5 per cent a month until Israel gives up all territory it seized in the 1967 war and restores the rights of the Palestinian refugees.

Because the United States gets only about 6 per cent of the oil it uses from the Arab countries, the Arabs strategy was to squeeze the Europeans and Japanese in the hope that they in turn would put the screws on Washington, Israel's chief source of arms.

A 5 per cent cut in U.S. imports from the Arab countries would reduce the total supply in the United States only three-tenths of one per cent, the U.S. expert said in Washington. But he estimated the action would reduce Western Europe's supplies by 3 per cent and Japan's by 2 per cent.

The Nixon Administration is counting on imports of refined heating oil from Europe to meet the shortage expected this winter, and a reduced supply of crude to Europe would make refined products harder to get.

Since production is being cut back rather than exports, the effects of the decision may not be felt for several weeks. And the volume of production will decline very slowly if the reductions continue, since each month's cut will be 5 per cent of the previous month's production. But oil experts in Beirut predicted a major world oil crisis if the cuts continued for as long as four months.

One London oil analyst called the cutback "an extremely astute scheme.... It will make everyone suffer a little and put considerable pressure on Western countries to force Israel to come to an agreement with the Arabs."

Japan, dependent on the Middle East for 80.7 per cent of its petroleum imports, hoped its neutral policy in the Arab-Israeli conflict might exempt it from the cutback. But the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry acknowledged today that the Arab producers may hit it, too, in hopes that Tokyo will put pressure on the United States.

A question both in Japan and in Europe was whether Iran would follow the lead of its Arab neighbors. Iran, not an Arab nation, is the second largest Middle East producer.

The decision to cut oil production as a tactic against U.S. support of Israel was taken at a meeting of the 10 members of the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries, or OAPEC.

After a seven-hour session, the countries issued a communique announcing that they would immediately cut production not less than 5 per cent of the September production.

Allocation Of Fuel Is Voted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House overwhelmingly passed a sweeping mandatory fuel allocation bill Wednesday within minutes after receiving news that Arab states planned to cut back their production.

Both supporters and opponents of the bill, which now goes to conference with the Senate, agreed that it "would not provide one additional barrel of oil." Instead, it would insure that all parts of the nation "share the shortage," Rep. Silvio O. Conte, D-Mass., said.

The bill, introduced by Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass., would go far beyond the administration's mandatory allocation program scheduled to take effect Nov. 1.

The House bill would require allocation of crude oil and all refined petroleum products, including home heating oil and gasoline, based on last year's distribution. The administration program would apportion home heating oil, kerosene, jet fuel, diesel fuel and certain other distillates, but not crude oil or gasoline.

The House bill also would allow service stations to pass any rise in the wholesale price of fuel on to the consumer. This so-called automatic pass-through is denied gasoline retailers under current Phase 4 regulations.

The bill, which is opposed by the administration, would require President Nixon to implement across-the-board mandatory allocation within 25 days.

Nobel Prize To Harvard Prof.

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Harvard economist Wassily Leontief won the 1973 Nobel Prize for Economic Science today for invention of a technique used in the economic planning of numerous countries. The literature prize went to Australian Patrick White for his novels on pioneer life.

The Royal Academy of Science honored the 67-year-old Leontief for the development of the "input-output method and for its application to important economic problems."

Told of the award, Leontief said in Cambridge, Mass., "It's very nice. I'm in good company because already at Harvard there are many professors that have won the Nobel Prize. That's quite an accumulation."

Leontief, professor of economics at Harvard, is director of the school's economic research project, which he organized.

White, 60, was cited "for an epic and psychological narrative art which has introduced a new continent into literature."

White first became known outside Australia with his novel "The Tree of Man," a lengthy saga about pioneers in the Australian bush.

The novelist, who came from Australian sheep-farming pioneer stock, was born in England but spent the first 13 years of his life in Australia. He went to England for his education and service in the Royal Air Force and didn't return to Australia until after World War II.

Leontief has written four books on economics, including the 1966 "Input-Output Economics" which outlined the theories that won the award, and numerous articles in professional journals.

Nixon Wins First Favorable Decision Over Tapes

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon had his first favorable decision today in his legal battle to withhold the White House tapes from the Senate Watergate committee and the special Watergate prosecutor.
U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica threw out

Wednesday the Senate committee's request for a civil judgment affirming its right to demand the tapes from the President.

In his ruling, Sirica said the committee had failed to obtain authorization for suing the President. He said he was not making any judgment on the legal merits of the committee's case.

A committee spokesman said the decision probably would be appealed.

But Nixon still faces the formidable challenge of special prosecutor Archibald Cox's effort to obtain nine presidential tapes for the federal grand jury investigation of the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

In that case, Sirica ordered the President to give him the nine tapes Cox had subpoenaed. The judge said that only if he listened to the tapes could he determine if the President had a valid claim for keeping them secret.

Last Friday, the U.S. Court of Appeals upheld Sirica's ruling.

The President has until Friday to take his appeal to the Supreme Court, a move he is regarded as virtually certain to make.

The committee subpoenaed five tapes last July 23, the same day Cox subpoenaed nine. Three days later the President notified both parties that he would not comply with their subpoenas. The President has contended that because the three branches of government are coequal and independent under the Constitution, neither a congressional committee nor a judge could force him to obey an order.

Cox had argued that in the case of evidence of criminal activity, no man, not even a president, has a right to withhold it from a grand jury.

Don't Want A Divorce? Then Forgive, Forget

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are both 53. We have three married, college-educated children any parents would be glad to claim.

My wife and I married very young. [Shotgun wedding.] We are well off and respected in the community, but here's the problem:

My wife never worked outside the home. She spent all her time raising her children, and she did a fine job. About six years ago I caught her and the insurance man kissing in our kitchen. She swore it would never happen again. Two years later I caught this same man kissing her in the parking lot at a V. F. W. party. Again she swore she would never see him again. Last summer I caught them again. This time there was a big fight, and she confessed they had been seeing each other for six years, three afternoons a week!

She doesn't want a divorce, and this man [also married] doesn't want one either. I don't really want one.

Do I love her? No! I could walk away from her and never look back, but I'm too old to start over.

How do other men who have been in this boat handle a situation like this?

NO NAMES, PLEASE

DEAR NO: How other men handle such a situation may be of no help to you. You need to decide how YOU want to handle it. Talk it over with your wife. It will take a lot of forgiving and forgetting, and forgetting what you forgave to keep your marriage intact. You say you are too "old" to start over! Plenty of men would give a lot to be 53 again. Life is short. Make it sweet.

DEAR ABBY: Since our second child was born, our 3-year-old daughter has been helping me immensely by answering the phone when I am busy. She speaks quite clearly, and answers the phone with, "Hi, my mommy is busy with the baby, but she is coming now."

Some people hang up as soon as they realize a small child has answered. Our daughter is so proud that she can help Mommy in this way. It takes only a few moments to listen to her, and makes her so happy.

Maybe your printing this letter will make some people more tolerant of a small child who answers the phone.

BUSY YOUNG MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: Maybe. But maybe not. Youngsters answering the phone is the pet peeve of a surprising number of adults.

DEAR ABBY: I'm not sure whether I have a problem. Here's the situation: I'm 26 and my wife, Diane, is 22. We got back from our honeymoon last week and are living temporarily with Diane's parents and her sister, who is 21.

Our first night back, Diane was about to leave our room to take a shower when I noticed she had nothing on at all. When I reminded her that her father was in the house she gave me a puzzled look and left the room, naked. That was nothing. Since then she often goes around the house with very little on. She even irons clothes in the kitchen in her bra and panties. Yesterday I came home and found her sitting on the floor watching TV completely naked while her sister was setting her hair. Her sister always wears a little something, but not much. Their father was in the next room reading the paper.

Last night when I spoke to her about it she said that's the way she was brought up. I let it drop and decided to write to you.

Abby, I have no sisters so I don't know how girls normally act in front of their fathers. Are my wife and her sister typical? If I'm the one who's out of line please tell me, and I'll keep quiet.

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: In some homes, nudity is accepted casually, but they are the exceptions—not the rule.

New Day Care Project In Lexington Aids Older People

By MARIA BRADEN
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) —

"I'm going to cry, I'm so happy," said 84-year-old Minnie Thomas, tears creeping into the corners of her eyes. "I'm so glad we're all here together."

Mrs. Thomas is one of about 18 elderly persons taking part in an adult day care center.

The project is an alternative method of caring for older persons who are ill or infirm but who do not need 24-hour medical care.

Lexington-Fayette County Health officer Dr. Philip G. Weiler said it is only the third such project in the nation. The others are in Atlanta and Baltimore.

"They're getting up in the morning with a purpose — like they used to," Dr. Weiler said. "They either make things or take care of each other at the center."

Although the first encounter may be difficult for some, the staff reports that if a person stays in the program for three days, "They're hooked."

Participants, ranging in age from 58 to 92, are picked up at their homes each morning by a driver employed by the center, and are taken to an old Victorian mansion — a former private home — on the edge of a city park.

They start their day with a cup of coffee and a snack, and then spend the morning chatting with each other, singing, painting, or working at puzzles and games.

At noon a hot lunch is served, with a special menu for those on diabetic diets. Another snack is served at 4 p.m. shortly before participants are driven home.

All those participating in the program suffer from some type of disability, and medical tests and physical therapy are administered at the center.

Those attending the center on a regular basis have stopped complaining of chronic illnesses; there has been a lessening of sleep-related illnesses, and in some cases senility appears to have been reversed, Dr. Weiler said.

"If an elderly person is given a chance to be with others, to feel useful again, then the quality of his life will improve," Dr. Weiler said.

One staff member told of a man who joined the program after being by himself for several years. His only shirt is a pajama top which he wears to the center every day. At first he was hostile and refused to talk to anyone, but after several days he began to socialize again, and now takes an active part in the program.

"It's hard initially for some, because it's a change," Dr. Weiler said. "For example, when they first come to the center they get tired, they have to rest. But after a few days they've started to get their energy back."

"They're also dispelling the myth that old people are picky over their food," Dr. Weiler said. "They're picky when they eat alone. Eating is a social occasion, after all. You should see them after they've been at the center for a while."

The project was financed recently by a $32,900 grant from the Junior League to establish and maintain the center for a year. First year plans call for an enrollment of 30. The building was contributed by the city.

Dr. Weiler said the health department will seek federal funds to continue the program.

Judgment Must Be Reserved

Much was heard during the troubles of Spiro Agnew about the publicity surrounding the case and the fact that this made the possibility of a fair trial for the vice president, if it came in the future, impossible.

This debate reached a climax when a federal judge gave Agnew's attorneys the right to subpoena newsmen and other witnesses in an effort to track down the leaks.

We considered this order a violation of the first amendment guaranteeing freedom of the press and we trust that it would have been overturned if the matter had reached a higher court.

As it turned out Agnew pleaded nolo contendere to a tax evasion charge and the government released its evidence against the vice president. The issue of whether or not newsmen could be required to reveal their confidential sources was dropped.

Nevertheless it concerns us that a court in our nation was willing to grant this extraordinary power in the face of specific Constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press. This was, after all, the vice president of the United States and certainly the public should have a very great interest in accusations of wrong doing against him. In addition, now that the entire story is out, we have to be impressed with the accuracy of most reports we read and saw prior to the Agnew resignation.

Many people view this matter as a question of whether the swirl of publicity prejudiced Spiro Agnew's right to a fair trial. A bigger question is whether the American public is sophisticated enough to live in a society where a free flow of information is allowed and can still sit on a jury to render a fair decision, if called on to do so.

Our belief in this case is that most people we talked to could have done this. Almost everyone was aware of the reports swirling about the vice president, but most had reserved judgment on his guilt or innocence until the very day he was sentenced for income tax evasion.

The lesson we can learn from all this is that we have to turn from the Constitutional guarantees of freedom of press, speech and expression in matters such as the nation has just gone through, or the courts will have to decide they can trust the American public to sit on a case and render a fair decision, even though the public is aware of pre-trial publicity.

We think the public can be trusted to be fair. To feel otherwise would be to admit the failure of the jury system and perhaps turn to a system of cloistered monks to hear cases where publicity has been heavy.

High-Rise Fire Risks Growing

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — So far, North Carolina has escaped the disaster of a fire sweeping through a high-rise building. But as more and more are built and especially with what state officials consider present weaknesses in building inspection and fire safety regulations, some people feel our luck may be running out.

In fact, use of newer construction techniques, modern materials for furnishings and the current attitude of workmen who pay less attention to detail in following regulations appear to be creating a potentially dangerous situation for high-rise office workers and apartment dwellers.

That is the view of Kern Church, a deputy commissioner of the state's Insurance Department, and the man in charge of the engineering and building codes division.

So critical is the situation becoming that a special committee has been set up to review nationwide trends in fire-safety regulations and come up with some proposed new regulations for North Carolina.

Public Hearing Set
A public hearing on the subject will be held in Charlotte Nov. 7. Wilmington architect Julian A. Altobellis is chairman of the Building Code Council Committee on fire safety for high-rise buildings which will report to the full State Building Code on the subject.

Church has some strong views on the problem—and potential for disaster—in high-rise buildings.

"Personally, I think this. One of the principal problems is due to the way our society is operating today: people just don't pay attention to detail," Church said.

Even though regulations call for specific fire resistant building materials, "the builders don't pay the necessary attention. For example, stairwell fire-stopping material is not always put in place. Fire stopping material is required between floors, but we're not sure it always is. Workmen, in this age of air conditioning, cut duct-holes and install ducts running from floor to floor; even plumbing and electrical conduit holes are cut and not properly covered or installed.

"Workmen leave holes in the floors, and all of these things create a chimney effect should fire break out," Church said.

"All of this emphasizes the fact that supervision by architects and engineers during and after construction needs to be closer. Generally, they're paid for designing the building—and aren't paid nearly enough to keep on top of the job from then on," he said.

Not Enough Inspection
Additionally, local inspection departments generally don't have sufficient personnel to stay on the job both during construction and during any alterations, to make sure workmen are doing the job properly and using the right materials, he said. The state is responsible for statewide build-codes, but Church has only 13 people in his office to help in this respect, leaving enforcement almost entirely to local officials.

Modern construction styles are also adding possible fuel to the potential for disastrous fires. Older buildings are actually safer, Church believes, because each floor is built separately.

"Today they put up a skeleton, then face it with a smooth, outside skin of metal or glass—suspended a few inches away from the structure. That creates another super-chimney for fires to sweep into. Of course, they're supposed to provide fire-stops. But we're not sure they always do," Church said.

Combustible furniture and interior walls are another compounding problem.

"Materials and compounds being used today are a lot more combustible," Church said. "There are plastics and foam plastics being used in furniture which are fantastically combustible, and yet there is no regulation whatsoever."

"All of this new furniture with plastic surfaces, chairs with foam plastic cushions, and so on are being made of materials which are highly flammable and potentially dangerous," he said. "Much more dangerous than wooden or metal furniture."

Church said it usually takes a catastrophe to bring about major changes in fire codes. In North Carolina's case, though he hopes to see changes made before that happens.

Some New Directions
As the hearings on revising the state codes take place, here are several steps which will be considered to provide more protection in high-rise building construction:

—A voice communication system so firemen can plug in and issue orders and instructions to occupants during a fire;

—Pressurization pumps for stairwells and elevators shafts so fire and smoke will be held out by force of the air pumped in;

—Each floor sealed off; special "safe refuge" areas constructed as fire-proof vaults for occupants.

Choosing Ford Averted Revolt

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Only the selection of Rep. Gerald Ford as Vice President, an unexciting but supremely sensible choice, could have saved President Nixon from the menacing backwash of rebellion building in his own party last week.

In particular, Republican House members were working up a nasty temper last Friday waiting out Mr. Nixon's contrived suspense over a new Vice President. Months of growing resentment toward the President were reaching a climax. Republican Congressmen grumbled that the elaborate selection ceremony planned by Mr. Nixon for the White House East Room ill suited the mood of melancholy caused by Spiro T. Agnew's disgrace. Worst of all, they believed the President had his own mind made up and was sure to ignore their overwhelming recommendation of minority leader Ford.

The choice of Ford, then, was a pleasant, air-clearing surprise to the Congressmen and other key Republicans. By inhibiting his normal impulse for the exotic shock, Mr. Nixon for once satisfied the party faithful. Both on Capitol Hill and in the states, Republican leaders saw Ford as the Vice President who would least hurt the battered party.

The Republican mood prevailing through the rumor-filled hours Friday was typified by the ruggedly independent Rep. Barber Conable of New York, a member of the House GOP leadership. Like most colleagues, Conable privately viewed the ostentatious selection ceremony that night as shockingly poor taste in a time of national calamity.

So, instead of accepting an invitation to the East Room, Conable planned to honor a speaking engagement in his upstate Congressional District and duly informed his floor leader, Gerry Ford. But Ford somberly asked him to attend as a personal favor, and Conable—taking heart from that request—agreed to go.

Conable was not the only Republican who either stayed away from the East Room or was bludgeoned into attending. Sen. Barry Goldwater, fearing Mr. Nixon's non-concern for Republican fortunes would produce a party-splitting choice, left Friday morning for a country weekend on Maryland's Eastern Shore. He returned only after much pleading by the White House, still apprehensive that Mr. Nixon would rupture the party by selecting John B. Connally.

Goldwater had good reason for apprehension. Among the 1976 presidential possibilities (Connally, Gov. Nelson Rockefeller and Gov. Ronald Reagan), Mr. Nixon long ago picked Connally as his favorite. Just Thursday afternoon, Connally was still in the picture.

But even before Agnew's resignation, it was clear that Democratic opposition and Republican misgivings regarding Connally had risen sharply. Once Agnew actually resigned, anti-Connally talk reached a fever pitch.

Presidential counselors Melvin R. Laird and Bryce Harlow, battle-seasoned veterans of Capitol Hill, reported to the President Thursday that Connally might well be rejected by the Senate and would not fare much better in the House. They also reported growing congressional sentiment for Ford. Beyond Capitol Hill, conservative state chairmen inclined toward Reagan sent word they would deeply resent Connally but accept Ford as no threat to Reagan.

Political allies advised Connally he should now avoid a bloody confirmation fight. Over the telephone Thursday night, the President and Connally agreed with this. Before he went to bed at Camp David that night, Mr. Nixon finally decided on Ford.

Strength For Today

HELD BY SILK THREADS

St. Paul in his Second Epistle to Timothy uses the word "entangle" to describe the way in which the affairs of life sometimes gather around a man and gradually make him a prisoner. One little band of laziness is slipped about the body, to be followed by another of avarice, and another of self-centered ambition. Over the months and years others follow and the man finally finds himself hopelessly bound, not by thick ropes but by thousands of slender threads.

To put it more literally, he has let a love of pleasure, a desire for ease, a good-natured attitude toward little vices, a weakness for genial but wayward friends gradually take possession of him, until every call of duty falls on dull ears and an indifferent mind. This victim of little weaknesses has committed no great sin, indulged in no great vice. He has just become entangled in the things of the world, but his bondage is complete.

READY FOR BUSINESS --- ALMOST!

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Prudence Is Compounded

Let this much be emphasized at the outset: Dimethyl sulfoxide, the famous DMSO, is not a "miracle drug."

With that disclaimer out of the way, let me ride piggyback on the broad shoulders of Pat McGrady, Sr., and return to a story that cries out to be told. McGrady, recently retired science editor of the American Cancer Society, has pulled it all together in a book published by Doubleday last week, "The Persecuted Drug: The Story of DMSO."

I got onto this story seven or eight years ago, at the urging of several doctors who wrote to express their dismay and disbelief at what had happened. In DMSO, they believed they had found a marvelously effective substance for treating burns, sprains and certain manifestations of arthritis and skin disease. And the FDA had ordered it banned!

There never was time for me to dig out the whole story. Now McGrady had taken the time. He is a partisan, an enthusiast, a believer. He is sharply critical of the Food and Drug Administration for what he regards as its indefensible timidity and its suffocating prudence. He makes an impressive case.

To go back to the point of beginning: Dimethyl sulfoxide is a simple molecule, easily extracted from coal, oil or, most commonly, from lignin. It was isolated more than a hundred years ago in Russia. Its remarkable properties in the healing arts were first perceived in 1961 by Dr. Stanley Wallace Jacob, professor of surgery at the University of Oregon Medical School, and by Robert J. Herschler, a top chemist with Crown Zellerbach Corporation.

At the time, Jacob was looking for a means of cooling hearts and other viable organs freshly taken from dead donors. Some British literature had prompted him to believe DMSO might be useful. Herschler brought a gallon of the solution to Jacob's office, and Jacob began the experiments that in time would dominate his life and damage his professional career.

Almost immediately, Jacob discovered the phenomenon that offered a hundred thresholds for medical research. He dabbed some DMSO on his arm, watched the solution sink in, and was startled to note that he could taste the DMSO. This meant that the solvent had not merely gone deep into the skin, but actually through the skin and into the bloodstream.

Types In Any Office

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — About the lowest form of life in the average business office is the character almost everyone calls "the moocher."

Everyone looks down on him, and more bad things are said about him to his face than are said about the boss behind the boss' back.

Every office, no matter how small, has at least one moocher, and larger offices may have several. But they are all united by a common philosophy: They want something for nothing and, if possible, they want to mooch it from you. Here are a few familiar types of white-collar moochers you may have noticed in your office:

"Merton the Muncher" — Merton never buys a lunch or brings one. He depends upon the largesse of others for his midday calories. At lunchtime he goes from desk to desk, his eyes mournful, his tongue hanging out like a collie's, and stares in turn at his fellow workers until they toss him a tidbit from their brown bags. Everyone despises Merton, but they can't turn him down. He has gained 30 pounds in 10 years, and the company doctor tells him he'll have to go on a diet or die. Merton's probable choice: death before diet.

40 Years Ago Today

By SUSAN PRICE
October 18, 1933

Austrian government authorities continued their investigation of alleged Nazi plots to seize firearms from the Inn and other garrisons and it was disclosed that a native Nazi military organization had been completed.

Europe contemplated the possible implication of the declaration of Prime Minister Stanni of Denmark coincident with reports that military units in Slesvig had been reinforced and that the Danish Southern frontier would be defended by all means "at our disposal."

A lone bandit held up a mail truck driver at gunpoint in Wilson early today and forced him to drive into the woods near the city, tied him up and escaped with three registered mail pouches believed to contain currency shipments for local banks.

The police later discovered that two other pouches, believed to contain $90,000 for Greenville banks, were received later by the banks. If the money was in the mail truck, it was overlooked by the bandit.

The stock market sagged today, apparently having lost the spirit of recovery which sent the market bounding upward late yesterday in the wake of improved grain prices.

How Document Cosmetic Ads?

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Women's cosmetics and fragrances have succeeded over the centuries not only for what they do, if anything, but because of their allure and ambiance and the hope, the suggestion, the promise they offer.

Their advertising reflects this, much of it being based on the implicit benefits of pleasing men, catching and keeping men, maintaining or achieving social acceptability, and attaining personal well-being.

And, said a practicing psychologist and researcher this week, that puts cosmetic advertisers on the most-wanted list of the Federal Trade Commission, which has taken the position that ad claims must be documented.

But how do you document a fragrance ad that states simply, "And suddenly nothing is the same," or a facial cream ad that contains the promise of "smoothing away the years?"

The FTC doesn't even have a most-wanted list, of course, and it hasn't indicated any unusual interest in cosmetics. But Dr. Joseph Smith told a meeting of cosmetics people that if the FTC were to act, cosmetics would be caught in a gooey situation.

Smith is a market researcher who heads the firm of OxtobySmith Inc. A sardonic humorist at well, he titled his talk "An Awful Shadow Floats Amongst Us," which is a ghastly vision for cosmetics people.

(Would Percy Shelley by chance have dreamed that these words, somewhat edited from his poem, "A Hymn To Intellectual Beauty," would ever be so used?)

Said Smith, who has often knocked and joined heads with the FTC:

"The cosmetics industry is distinctly vulnerable to attack—attack on the grounds that its communications to consumers are deceptive, unfair, and/or misleading." Not that they are, he said, but can they be defended?

To date the FTC has taken on the automotive industry, tires, air conditioners, television sets, foods, hearing aids, detergents, analgesics, toothpastes, cold remedies and the like. But it hasn't confronted cosmetics.

The FTC doesn't have to prove the ads false, said Smith. Instead, the advertiser must be able to demonstrate and document their truthfulness.

This might be a cut-and-dried matter with tires, but when the ad says, as does a fragrance ad now circulating, "And suddenly nothing is the same," you've got problems.

When a cosmetics ad shows a svelte society matron in a touched-up full-page portrait, does it suggest to the reader that she can be the same if she uses the product? Is it implied?

The commission's mandate is to prevent misleading ads rather than to prevent women from buying products. Its goal is to prevent the use of deception to obtain an advantage over competition and the customer.

In previous cases, however, it has asked for material proof, scientific evidence and the like. But what of the intangibles? If a woman believes the product helps, isn't that evidence of value? And if she believes, maybe the dream will come true — no? And doesn't the ad make the dream believable?

Smith told the cosmetics people that the readers of cosmetics ads take their message from: 1. The overt communication; 2. The implicit and symbolic carriers of meaning, their situations, dress, the colors used, the music; 3. The perceptive set the reader or viewer has — that is, knowledge and attitudes.

It means, he said, that advertisers must learn themselves just what their ads are saying, "not what you want them to say and not what you think they're saying, but what they are saying."

And next, he suggested, cosmetic advertisers must convince the pragmatists of the regulatory agencies that not all important values are material, "that benefits cannot be measured only in graduated beakers, but also reside in feelings and emotions."

DMSO might be able to carry other substances into the body — for example, that it might penetrate charred tissues to get at infections down below. As time went on, Jacob discovered that DMSO in itself appeared to have great value in certain cases. The word spread. Other investigators began to experiment and to report dramatic results. Except for the breath odor it produces — a king of garlic-oyster halitosis — DMSO seemed to have no serious side effects.

The excitement grew, and the excitement was Jacob's undoing. The story of DMSO broke in the popular press before it had been professionally presented in a scientific journal. Jacob is a selfless and dedicated doctor with impeccable qualifications as physician and surgeon. But DMSO came to be identified among envious or skeptical members of the scientific community with "unprofessional behavior."

Then some animal experiments indicated that in massive doses, far beyond anything that might ever be prescribed for humans, DMSO caused refractive changes in the eye. The FDA, over-reacting to the thalidomide tragedy, leaped up and cried "halt!" This was in November, 1965. Since then, though limited clinical investigations have continued, DMSO has been used only in veterinary medicine. Millions of patients whose suffering might have been relieved by DMSO, without serious risk of major side effects, have been denied its healing properties.

Last month a panel from the National Academy of Sciences and the National Research Council opened the door by a tiny crack. For most doctors and most patients, however, DMSO remains effectively out of reach.

(This is the first of two columns on DMSO.)

Congress. Whether Ford is a "caretaker" Vice President or instead becomes a 1976 presidential contender, neither the Reagan or the Rockefeller camps feel threatened today. Connally has not been savaged by a congressional confirmation fight which, win or lose, would have scarred him as a presidential candidate. And for the first time in many long months, Republicans had some genuinely nice things to say about their President.

What does Phil do with all the dough he mooches? staged suspense Friday generated unnecessary confusion and dismay. While he was having his only fun since Watergate broke, Mr. Nixon zealously guarded secret nearly undid the rest of the party. Ford left his meeting with the President Friday morning without being selected, openly crestfallen. The gloom quickly permeated the Republican cloakroom and set off rumors of more exotic choices.

A strong but inaccurate Rockefeller rumor at midday caused threats by militantly conservative young Congressmen—such as Reps. Trent Lott of Mississippi and Robert Bauman of Maryland—to vote against him. Far wilder possibilities then surfaced, such as the politically preposterous selection of Chief Justice Warren Burger. "When I heard that," one Nixon aide confides, "I saw the last three years going down the drain." So closely was the secret held that Ford himself was not given the good news until 7 p.m.

After so many false alarms the revelation of Gerry Ford triggered spontaneous cheers in the East Room. For once, Mr. Nixon had followed party advice and avoided a confrontation with

Won State Fair Honors

WINNING ENTRY . . . "Many Hands Make Light Work" is the title of the Grifton exhibit at the North Carolina State Fair. The exhibit received second place honors.

Grifton has been named second place winner at the North Carolina State Fair in competition with seven other communities throughout the state.

Motorcyclist Is Hurt In Mishap

Gilbert McKinney Connelly, 17 of 606 East Ninth St. was reported injured when the motorcycle he was riding overturned on North Overlook Drive, 123 feet West of the Beaumont Drive intersection about 6:25 p.m. yesterday.

Police said the motorcycle overturned when a dog ran in front of the vehicle.

No charges were placed by investigators who set damage to the vehicle at $100.

The theme for Grifton's exhibit is "Many Hands Make Light Work." The idea is carried out by six oversize styrofoam hands and a three-foot light bulb. Each hand carries a phrase emphasizing a community project in which Grifton citizens have worked cooperatively.

The six phases of community cooperation shown in the display are: Newcomers dinners; clean up campaigns; youth and recreation programs; shade festival; new miniparks; and community carol sing.

The exhibit was planned and built by members of the Grifton Resources Improvement Program.

GRIP will receive $500 for the winning entry.

Correction

The name of Jesse Little, one of two candidates for Town Commissioner in Bethel, was incorrectly spelled in a story appearing in yesterday's paper. Jesse, and not Jellie, is Little's first name.

Annual Moose Clothing Bank Drive Set Monday

The annual clothing bank drive by the Greenville Moose Monday evening provides an opportunity for many people to provide an invaluable form of service to scores of Pitt County families who will need its help, says Civic Affairs chairman Bill Shaw.

"It's hard to reconcile this period of prosperity with the needs of so many area people," says Shaw; "but we know from experience there are literally hundreds of people here who are going to need articles of clothing that the clothing bank can provide."

The clothing bank, he points out, makes its big pitch for contributions each fall when area families are sorting and evaluating their articles of clothing for the winter and uncover items that have been outgrown or have been replaced for one reason or another. "So many of these things", he continued, "mean comfort and warmth for less fortunate people."

Collections of items for the clothing bank will be between 7:00 p.m. and 9:00 Monday when Moose members assisted by Boy Scouts will be dispatched to donor households.

Prospective donors are asked to telephone the Moose office (756-4370) to notify contributions will be waiting, and arrangements for the pick-up will be made.

Last winter, something over 400 individuals received articles of clothing from items contributed by local citizens. "The need for children's clothing must be so familiar by now, that an appeal for that category seems almost superfluous," said Shaw. "But we really never seem to have enough. Teachers are frequently the first to become aware of specific needy cases, and there are more such cases than we can really cope with. We are particularly asking for used but still-usable clothing for children; we are called upon to fill needs of all ages, but children's sizes always seem in heaviest demand during the winter."

He urged that local families give what they could on Monday evening. "We need anything and everything that still has some 'wear' left," he said. "Cold weather is just around the corner, and to do what the lodge has done in the past we must depend on the generosity of hundreds of households."

The Moose will assume responsibility for any cleaning or minor repairs required, he said.

Balloons Prompt UFO Reports

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Weather research balloons have prompted a new rash of reports of unidentified flying objects throughout the South and UFO-bugged authorities are bracing for more reports today and Friday.

At least two offices of the National Weather Service reported separate launchings of weather balloons Wednesday.

A huge balloon, 150 feet in diameter, was launched at Palestine, Tex., and authorities say it drifted over Mississippi at a constant 50,000-foot altitude. The weather service at Montgomery, Ala., also reported launching a balloon with an altitude reaching about 85,000 feet.

Many of the sightings occurred after the sun had gone down but a spokesman at the National Weather Service in Macon, Ga., explained the sun's light would reflect off the balloon long after dusk because of the high altitude of the object.

Meanwhile, officials at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida have announced high atmospheric rocket tests today and Friday and cautioned that the rockets could easily be mistaken for UFOs.

Air Force officials said the rockets would release glowing clouds of red, green, blue and yellow gasses.

Car Overturns, Driver Injured

One person was reported injured when a car overturned on Dickinson Avenue 66 feet West of the Higgs Street intersection about 12:03 a.m. today.

Police said the driver of the auto, James Woodrow Wilson of 207 North Library St. was taken to Pitt Memorial Hospital for treatment of injuries he received in the mishap. Officers said the Wilson car struck a utility pole, then overturned.

Damage to the car was set at $750 while damage to the utility pole and wire was placed at $450.

Wilson was charged with driving under the influence and failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

A spokesman said the colors in the sky will be visible as far south as Miami, as far west as Corpus Christi, Tex., as far north as Memphis, Tenn., and along the Eastern Seaboard to Charleston, S.C.

The rockets will be launched at two-hour intervals beginning at 6:30 p.m. EDT today and continue through Friday night, the spokesman added.

Despite official explanations, residents in Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina continued to inundate local sheriff's offices with reports of UFOs.

More than 1,000 cars jammed Interstate 10 near the Alabama-

Mississippi line Wednesday night when a Mobile, Ala., television station reported that it would attempt to film UFOs. The station said an unidentified woman psychic said UFOs would be in the area 16 miles west of Mobile but none was sighted.

A spokesman for the Alabama State Patrol said there were cars "all over the sides of the road and the middle of the road."

Troopers said they had reports of UFOs at Dothan, Troy, Birmingham, Gadsden and Tuscaloosa.

In Mississippi, objects were sighted over Jackson and Yazoo City. In Georgia, the objects were spotted over Atlanta, Athens, Rome and Macon. Greenville, S.C., authorities were swamped with calls from individuals who said they saw an unexplained object in the sky.

Sheriff Fred Diamond of Jackson County, Miss., called for a federal investigation of the recent UFO sightings in the South. He said "people down here are entitled to know what is going on. People are beginning to panic."

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets steady Wednesday. Supplies adequate, demand good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 70.73, medium whites 68.46, small whites 55.43.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hogs were mostly 25 to 50 cents lower today. Supplies ample and demand slow to fair. F.O.B. dock weighted average prices for less than truck lot sales of sized plant grade broilers to be picked up at dock next week is 37.62 cents per pound.

N.C. hens: Market tone weak. Supplies of heavy type fully ample and demand fair. High price reported represents previous commitments and lower current sales. Heavies at farm, 18-21 cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market advanced slightly today as investors took an optimistic view of Mideast negotiations and predictions the prime lending rate would decline soon.

The Dow Jones industrial average was ahead 4.44 points to 966.96 at 11:30 a.m., and advances held a thin edge over declines in active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Big Board's composite index was up .18 points to 59.58 at 11 a.m., while the market-value index on the American Stock Exchange was up .49 points to 108.86.

Federated Department Stores down 1 1/2 to 38 1/2, topped the active issues on the Big Board after a 219,500-share block traded at 38. Other active stocks included Union Carbide, up 1 1/2 to 42 1/2; Vornado, down 1/4 to 6 1/2; and Associated Dry Goods, off 3/4 to 37 1/2.

AT&T, which has announced plans to offer $500-million of its preferred stock, gained 1/2 to 49 1/2. Bausch & Lomb, which has surged climbed sharply after reporting improved earnings, added 2 to 56 1/4. A good third quarter also sent National Cash Register up 1 1/2 to 45 1/2.

The opening of Telex, which has said it faces bankruptcy if a court ruling regarding the payment of antitrust damages by IBM to Telex is allowed to stand, was delayed pending a news announcement.

Some $15 Million Slated For Highway U.S. 264

Under the seven-year highway plan made public by Gov. Jim Holshouser Sunday night, some $15 million will be spent during the next few years to four-lane U.S. 264 from I-95 near Wilson to Raleigh.

The plan does not call for improvement of the highway from Greenville to Wilson, however.

Bill Deal by the Department of Transportation's information office said the Zebulon bypass and connector—a 10.5 miles long project—is scheduled for fiscal

Sees Little Saving In Use Of Generic Drugs

RALEIGH (AP)—The president of the North Carolina Pharmacist Association says that wider use of generic drugs and the posting of drug prices in pharmacies would not result in the savings consumer groups claim.

Whitaker Moose of Mt. Pleasant told a legislative health subcommittee he is opposed to the two methods suggested by consumer groups for lowering drug costs. The subcommittee is studying ways of reducing health care costs.

Consumer groups nationally have suggested the substitution of generic drugs, or drugs sold by the name of its ingredients like aspirin, in place of higher priced brand name drugs containing the same basic ingredients.

Vote Opposition On Liquor Issue

Members of the Gum Swamp Original Free Will Baptist Church have adopted a resolution in opposition to liquor by the drink.

The resolution was adopted in a conference meeting on Sunday. They pledge their support to the defeat of the vote on Nov.

Moose told the subcommittee the substitution of generic drugs would make little impact on the drug price structure because only about 15 per cent of all brand name drugs have a generic equivalent.

Moose said the posting of drug prices could result in an increase of prices for those drugs not on the price list. It could only be workable, he said, if all drugs in all amounts dispensed by the individual pharmacy would be listed.

Don Deaton, a regional vice president for Revco Discount Drugs, said the sale of generic drugs rather than brand name drugs "wouldn't insure that the druggist would lower his prices."

A Raleigh pharmacist, W. P. Wimberly, said that often generic drugs do not do as good a job in certain cases as higher priced brand name drugs.

Luncheon Nov. 4 Planned For Area Employers

FARMVILLE—Employers from throughout the county have been invited to a "Bosses' Luncheon," to be held Sunday, Nov. 4 from 10:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the National Guard Armory on W. Horne Avenue here.

1st Lt. Thomas C. Lamar Jr., commanding officer of Detachment 1 of the 694th Maintenance Company, extended the invitation. He said Pres. Nixon has placed a new importance on the National Guard and other Military Reserve components to provide security for our country in case of an emergency since the all-volunteer Army has come about. The decision to join the Guard or Reserve frequently depends on the attitude of an individual's employer, so this meeting is being held to familiarize employers with the importance and the workings of the Guard, he said.

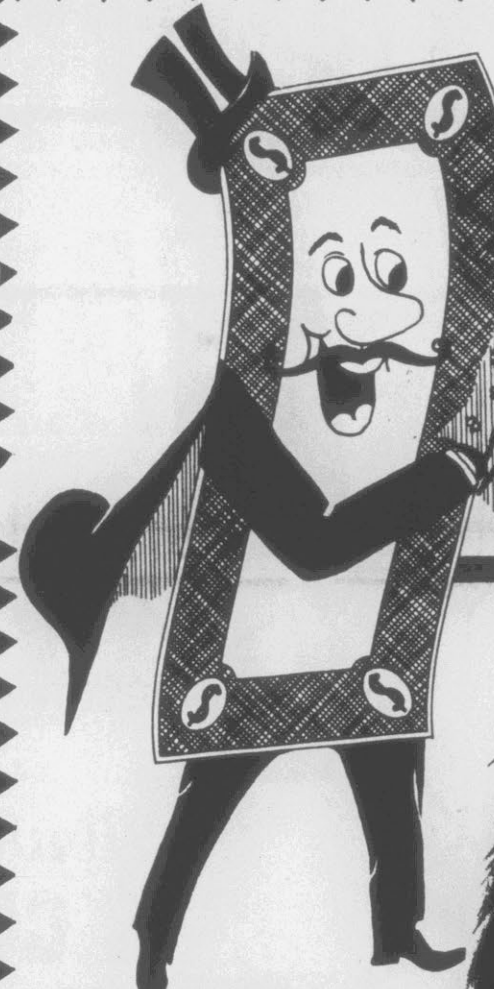

A musical program will be held Sunday at 7:30 p.m. with the Consellers, the Zion Travelers of Stokes, the junior and senior Glory Lights of Oak City. The pastor is Elder Chance.

Elder Chance At Ayden Church

Elder Lucille Chance will be at the Morning Star Holiness Church in Ayden Sunday at 11 a.m.

The Crusade Club will meet at Oak Grove Holiness Church on Bonner Lane Sunday at 3 p.m. Elder May of Ayden and Sister Banks will be present. Rev. J. R. Cumming of Jacksonville will be the guest speaker.

A musical program will be held Sunday at 7:30 p.m. with the Consellers, the Zion Travelers of Stokes, the junior and senior Glory Lights of Oak City. The pastor is Elder Chance.

Chargers, Rams Collide In Key Contest

The Ayden-Grifton Chargers, successfully warmed up for the last two weeks, roll into Snow Hill Friday night, seeking to put some distance between them and the rest of the pack.

Greene Central's Rams, one of the two teams tied for second place in the league must pull off the upset, or the Chargers will almost certainly claim the title this year.

Ayden-Grifton, unbeaten in six starts, five of them in the Eastern Carolina Conference, can take a giant leap forward with the victory. Then, only a miracle could pull the championship from their grasp, since the two teams that would offer them the highest challenge would have already lost to them.

The Chargers come in following their 63-0 rout of Charles B. Aycock, while Greene Central follows a 23-6 win over North Pitt. Conley's Vikings pulled off the upset of the week last time out, downing North Lenoir, 20-8, while improving Southern Nash beat Eastern Wayne, 13-6. Southern Wayne remained in a tie for a second place with a slim 14-12 win over Farmville Central.

This week, besides the Ayden-Grifton meeting with the Rams, Aycock is at North Pitt, Conley is at Eastern Wayne, Farmville

Central goes to North Lenoir and Southern Wayne goes to Southern Nash.

In the Northeastern Conference, Edenton has taken command of the league with a 3-0 record. They dumped Roanoke Rapids, 14-6, last week, to remain unbeaten. Ahsokie beat Plymouth, 24-0, Bertie fell to Washington, 12-0, and Tarboro lost to Williamston, 21-7, in the other league games.

This Friday, Ahsokie is at Williamston, Bertie goes to Roanoke Rapids, Edenton is at Washington, and Plymouth is at Tarboro.

Robersonville's Golden Eagles sit atop the Eastern Plains Conference following a 29-7 win over Elm City last week. The Eagles are now 3-0 in the loop. In the other outings, North Johnston ripped Lee Woodard, 53-6, Rock Ridge beat South Edgemcombe, 35-0, and West Edgemcombe beat Saratoga, 28-6.

Friday night, Elm City is at North Johnston, Lee Woodard is at West Edgemcombe, Rock Ridge is at Robersonville, and Saratoga hosts South Edgemcombe.

East Cartaret pulled into a three way tie for first place in the Coastal Plains Conference with a 20-0 win over Jones Senior. The rest of the league was idle last week.

This week, East Cartaret is at Havelock, West Cartaret is at West Craven for loop meetings, while Jones hosts Camp Lejeune in a non-conference affair.

Ayden-Grifton's Mike Overton saw a lot of people get into the action last week against Aycock. "Our first unit played only the first quarter and got 30 points. The defense got the rest for us," he said.

Overton added that Aycock is a young, inexperienced team, having lost over 20 lettermen last year.

"I can't single out any one individual for his play in the game, he said. "Everyone did their job and did it well. It was a fine team performance."

This week, however, the opponent will be a different story. The Rams have been tough this year, losing only to Southern Wayne. "If we win, it will be a good indication that we're on our way to the title," Overton said.

"But Greene Central has a good team and it won't be easy. We don't look for them to do anything unusual, but they mix up their offense quite well. They run as well as pass and do both well. I do think that it will be a low-scoring game, however."

Up at North Pitt, the Panthers will be hosting the shell-shocked Aycock Falcons, with both teams hoping to snap their losing streak. Neither have posted a victory this year, and the winner will be expected to escape the league's basement.

Panther Coach Danny Wilmer felt that his team did a good job against Greene Central last week. "We hit them pretty good," he said. "We just didn't get anything on track offensively. They played their best people all the way. They got two quick touchdowns, but we fought back in the second half. We were just too far behind. We also got a couple of bad calls on fumbles that we recovered, giving the ball back to them. Overall, it was probably one of our best defensive efforts."

James Carr, the Panther

safety, Ken Tetterton, an offensive lineman; Milton Alston and Steve Fuchs gained praise for their play in the game from Wilmer.

Turning to Aycock, Wilmer is not sure what to expect. "After getting beaten that had a lot of teams snap back strong. I'm sure they won't come up here and lay down and die. They seem to be having a lot of the problems we've had. They are primarily a passing team and we look for them to keep it up."

Farmville Central's Gene Brewer was disappointed in his team's close loss to Southern Wayne. "I felt we played the best we've played except for one quarter, and we still lost. We made a lot of mistakes after we got the lead and they have too good a ball club not to capitalize on them. Missing the two extra points didn't help, but I don't think this was the key reason we lost."

Brewer praised Lee Johnson for his offensive job, but said no one stood out on defense.

This week, the Jaguars face North Lenoir, coming off two straight losses. "They have a big club, and they are fairly quick. They have played good defense, but their offense has been spotty. We'll have to come back and play a good game to beat them."

One who did beat them is Chuck Dunn of Conley, whose team surprised the Hawks last week. "We finally played a good game," Dunn said. "We put a good defensive game with a good offensive effort and it paid off."

One thing that helped the Conley effort was an early fumble that North Lenoir recovered. "They were laughing when they went off the field, and that really burned our kids," Dunn said. From there on, Conley was in command.

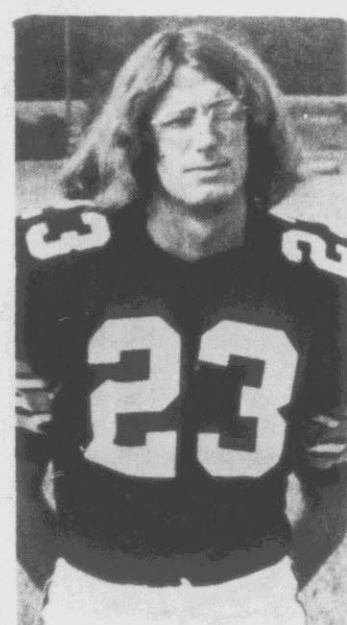

"The real turning point was when we took the opening kickoff in the second half and kept the ball six and a half minutes and scored," Dunn said.

Willie Hawkins, who rushed for 216 yards, drew praise from Dunn, as did Eddie Bunch, and offensive linemen, and defensive players, Calvin Hawkins, Keith Gould and Eddie McGowan.

This week against Eastern Wayne, Dunn sees another tough battle. "Despite their record, they have a good team. No one, except Ayden-Grifton, and that doesn't count, have beaten them bad. They have a good aggressive defense, and a good running back. They like to throw, too. But if we play like we did in the second half against North Lenoir, we'll win."

Staub Paces New York To 6-1 Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Something finally has taken the play away from the Oakland A's internal battles—Rusty Staub's bat.

The A's, who have grabbed most of the headlines lately with juicy stories of clubhouse unrest, at last took a back seat in the World Series to the New York Mets Wednesday night.

Providing some news of his own, Staub dismissed a painful right shoulder and knocked in five runs to help the Mets beat the A's 6-1 and square the best-of-seven series at two games apiece.

"I did a lot of work during batting practice and did several things to adjust for my sore shoulder," said Staub after hitting a three-run homer and two-run single.

He wouldn't say, but whatever it was that Staub did, it worked wonders.

"Under the circumstances, my performance was unbelievably satisfying," said Staub, who also had two hits and a walk in a 4-for-4 night. "When you've been playing in the big leagues for about 11 years and always wanted to play in a World Series, well, this is a great, great feeling."

Staub's shoulder has been a daily topic since last week, when he hurt it while making a stunning catch in the National League playoffs against the Cincinnati Reds.

He still can't throw well—but, obviously, he can hit. Even if it is to the opposite field.

"I hit a fastball," he said about the clout over the left-center field fence at Shea Stadium off Ken Holtzman in the first inning. "I hit the ball perfectly so that it could carry that way. I knew the wind was gusting out there."

"I thought, though, that it would fall between the fields. I was kind of surprised when it went over the fence. I was running as hard as I could because I wasn't sure it was out. It was the first ball I've hit out since the shoulder injury—and obviously, the wind helped."

Matlack considered Wednesday night's assignment more important than the opener last Saturday in Oakland "because we were down two games to one Wednesday night and would have been just about out of it with a loss."

The blast was the beginning of the end for Holtzman, the A's winner in the opening game of the World Series last Saturday. After the 20-game-winning left-hander walked John Milner and gave up a single to Jerry Grote, he took a shower. Staub's two-run single highlighted a three-run fourth inning that was mere icing for young Jon Matlack's first World Series victory.

The power-throwing left-hander limited the A's to merely one unearned run and three hits before leaving with a stiff shoulder after eight innings.

"I learned a little about the A's in the first game and used it to my advantage tonight," said Matlack, the losing pitcher in game No. 1.

He encountered rough going in only one inning—the fourth, when the A's scored their only run with the help of a New York error.

After Joe Rudi struck out, Sal Bando reached first on Wayne Garrett's boot and went to third on a single by Reggie Jackson. When Bando came home as Gene Tenace bounced out to short.

Matlack, last year's Rookie of the Year in the National League, couldn't finish, though. His arm stiffened and he had to watch the ninth inning from the bench.

"My shoulder was really tight out there," said Matlack. "It impaired my throwing. It took something off my fastball because I couldn't come around over the top—I had to throw three-quarter arm."

Ray Sadecki pitched the ninth, but gave New York Manager Yogi Berra some anxious moments before nailing it down. He loaded the bases with two out before striking out Bert Campaneris as most of the paid 54,817 fans roared their approval.

One of the few who wasn't roaring was sitting near the Oakland dugout—A's owner Charles O. Finley. For a change, he wasn't the center of attention.

Finley had started a cause celebre earlier in this Series by "firing" Mike Andrews for making two costly errors in Sunday's 10-7 loss to the Mets in Oakland.

Although Andrews was back in uniform Wednesday night after Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordered him reinstated, the A's were still smoldering with unrest. Oakland Manager Dick Williams was so fed up with the situation that he reportedly decided to quit his job after this World Series.

Andrews made his first appearance since Sunday, in a pinch-hitting role, and grounded out in the eighth inning. He received a standing ovation from the sympathetic fans when he stepped to the plate and a hefty reaction after he went out. "It was great—just great,"

Andrews said about the crowd's hurrahs. "I don't think I've every had cheers like that before. I should have acknowledged it, I guess, but I had only thought when I went up to bat and that was to get a hit."

The series continues tonight in football-like weather as New York's Jerry Koosman faces Oakland's Vida Blue in another duel of left-handers.

Piner, Pittman In State Field

WILSON—Two members of the Rose High School tennis team have earned berths in the State Tournament, to be held next week in Chapel Hill.

Becky Piner and Susie Pittman won their way into the quarter-finals of the Sectional Tournament in Wilson yesterday to gain spots in the state field. A total of 62 girls from 24 schools in the east were participating in the tournament, which concludes today.

Miss Pinner, seeded fourth in the tournament, defeated Lora Stephens of Cape Fear in the first round, 6-0, 6-1. Then, in round two, she downed Kathy Jacobs of Millbrook, 6-3, 6-3. Finally, Miss Piner took a 6-1, 6-0 victory over Bet Brandon of Williamston.

Meanwhile, Miss Pittman was defeating Cherlene Webb of Durham, 6-0, 6-0, in the opening round, then downing Debbie Garver of Kinston, 6-0, 6-1, in the second round. Miss Garver had been seeded sixth in the field.

Finally, Miss Pittman beat Renee Holcomb, 6-0, 6-1, to gain the quarterfinals.

In today's action, Susie will meet Ginger Lanchester of New Bern, while Becky takes on Jean Walston. If both win, they will meet in the semi-finals of the tournament.

In the doubles event, 22 teams entered from 18 schools. Rose High's entry of Lou White and Sarah Wilcox downed Beth Cobb and Marr Harring, 6-3, 6-1, in the first round of the tourney. They were defeated, 6-1, 6-3, in the second round by Rochelle Small and Kathy Harverin, the third-seeded team in the second round.

The state tournament will be held next Wednesday and Thursday.

Heels Try To Stop The Wave

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina's Tar Heels hope to do this week what their fellows in the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Duke Blue Devils, could not manage last Saturday—to stop Tulane's Green Wave.

Duke came away breathless after the stunning teamwork of Tulane brothers Steve and Mike Foley in the last nine seconds left the score 24-17.

The Tar Heels travel to New Orleans with the weight of a 2-3 season record and only two wins to their credit in the standing rivalry, now 8-2-2, with unbeaten Tulane.

Coach Bill Dooley knows just what he and the North Carolina squad are up against. "This is probably the best Tulane team since 1948. The entire team is a strong one," he said of the 17th ranked Louisianans.

"There is no doubt that Tulane has one of the best defenses in America," Dooley observed. "This game certainly will be a great challenge for our offense."

The Green Wave's big man, tackle Charles Hall, isn't expected to make it any easier. The 6-6, 260-pound junior, who was named Associated Press National Lineman of the week this week, earned points from Dooley.

"Hall is just a tremendous player. Tulane has a solid all-around defense, but he is brilliant."

Hall was responsible for eight tackles on the first nine defensive plays against Duke, those plays that left the Blue Devils without a first down before intermission.

North Carolina will counter with its own tackle, Ronnie Robinsin of Burlington, N.C. In the 16-10 win over Kentucky last week he turned in 13 unassisted tackles, five assists, one pass deflection and two sacks of quarterback Mike Fanuzzi.

"It was a magnificent performance," Dooley said of Robinsin. "Ronnie played the best defensive game of any man in the seven seasons that I have been in Chapel Hill."

Air Game May Be Indians Key McGeachy Is Named As New Duke Cage Coach

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

William and Mary, a football team that's won four of six starts almost exclusively on ground power, may be forced to the air if the Indians hope to win the Southern Conference title—but Coach Jim Root doesn't think the problem is insurmountable.

"I'm not overly worried," says Root, whose Indians play only their second league game of the year Saturday at home against Davidson.

"I think I realize what the problems are and I think we can overcome them," says

Root of the Indians' apparent lack of an aerial game. "We're liable to have a big, big game in the next two or three weeks."

In six games, William and Mary has thrown just 64 passes, completed 28 for 384 yards and had eight interceptions. The total for the last three games is five of 27 for 32 yards with three interceptions.

At the same time, the Indians have rolled up 1,582 yards on the ground, averaging 263.7 yards per game and 4.4 yards per rush on 364 running plays.

Junior quarterback Bill Deery leads the way both on the ground and in the air. He's gained 420 yards on 79 carries and hit 13 of 38 passes for 222 yards with three interceptions. Backup quarterback Rip Scheer is 15 of 26 for 162 yards with five interceptions.

Frankie Prochilo has 295 yards on 87 carries, Doug Gerhart 294 yards on 72 carries, John Gerdeman 245 yards on 47 carries and Terry Regan 189 yards on 43 carries. All, like Deery, are juniors.

Their way has been paved by a veteran offensive line averaging 237 pounds per man from tackle to tackle and led by a pair of seniors, 240-pound center Joe Montgomery and 235-pound guard Stan Victor.

"I guess the main problem with our passing is that our quarterback has been injured," says Root. Deery suffered a shoulder injury in the Indians' 31-24 opening game victory over Virginia Tech and saw limited action in the next two games.

"Our passing game is hurting right now," Root admits, "but our quarterback was not able to throw for three or four weeks in practice. He's ready now, and it's just a question of timing."

Deery hit one of 11 passes for minus two yards and had two picked off in a 20-7 loss last Saturday night at Vanderbilt in the rain.

"Saturday's problems were more those of the weather and throwing from 17 points down," says Root. "We didn't play that poorly. We had some unusual things happen to us."

Root says he's happy to be 4-2 after playing five games away from home and told his staff Vanderbilt "is the kind of team that probably would beat us six or seven out of 10 times."

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Duke athletic director Carl James announced today that Neill R. McGeachy will be the Blue Devils' head basketball coach for the coming season.

McGeachy replaces Bucky Waters, who resigned last month after suffering the first losing season in recent Duke basketball history. He was Waters' top assistant last season and has been in charge of the basketball program since Waters' departure.

James would not say whether McGeachy's contract was for one year or more. There had been speculation that Duke would hire an interim coach to replace Waters temporarily.

The 31-year-old native of Statesville, N.C. joined the Duke basketball program in 1971 as freshmen coach. Prior to coming to Duke, he spent two years as an assistant at Davidson.

"Coach McGeachy has developed a strong relationship with the Duke basketball players, and I am confident that their respect and his enthusiasm for the game will afford the followers of Duke basketball an exciting 1973-74 season," James said.

Duke athletic officials had spent the last month interviewing numerous prospective coaches.

Varied UN Day Observances Slated In Greenville

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

When United Nations Anniversary Day comes next Wednesday, October 24, citizens of Greenville will have already honored the occasion with a number of local observances.

It was on October 24, 1945 in San Francisco that representatives from many of the world's nations gathered to sign the historic document establishing the organization that is the one universal governmental voice for people the world over.

Now, 28 years later, the United Nations organization remains an active force in world affairs.

In Greenville, for the 13th consecutive year, Mayor S. Eugene West named Mrs.

Robert Lee Humber to be chairman of United Nations observances in Greenville.

"It is my sincere hope," Mrs. Humber said, "that people here in Greenville and everywhere for that matter, will take time to think about the good the UN has accomplished."

"Sometimes we hear so much about the failures that we forget the UN has accomplished many fine things in so many fields."

Mrs. Humber recalled that her husband, the late Dr. Robert Lee Humber, believed deeply in the brotherhood of man and the concept of a workable world government.

"He had great faith in the United Nations," she said, "and it is this kind of faith I hope many people will share as we observe another anniversary of the UN."

Turning to local observances that have or are scheduled to take place to honor the UN this year, Mrs. Humber mentioned dinners by both the Greenville Woman's Club of Greenville and the Junior Woman's Club of Greenville.

Both clubs honored foreign personnel living in the community, including faculty and students at East Carolina University, their families and non-university foreigners living in the Greenville area.

On Monday night this week, the Association of American University Women sponsored a second annual International Dessert Festival. Proceeds from the dessert-musical go to UNICEF, the international children's fund.

Other events in connection with United Nations observances in Greenville include:

—Carolina Today, WNCT-TV, Friday morning: Dr. Mary Bratton, Assistant Professor of History, East Carolina University will be the special guest to speak on the history of the United Nations.

—Greenville City Schools: Superintendent Glenn Cox said the week of October 22-26 would be marked by individual classroom observances related to subjects being studied by students.

—Churches in Greenville: Churches in Greenville have been asked, through the president of the Ministerial Association, to acknowledge the United Nations in whatever way deemed appropriate in Sunday worship services on Sunday, October 21.

—Flag Ceremony: Members of a Boy Scout Troop of Memorial Baptist Church will raise the UN flag at the courthouse.

—Flag Ceremony: Members of a Boy Scout Troop of Memorial Baptist Church will raise the UN flag at the courthouse.

—Library: Sheppard Memorial Library will have a display oriented to a United Nations theme.

Following a tradition established several years ago, children in Greenville will make a door to door

Homecoming At Church Sunday

BALLARDS CROSSROADS — Sunday is homecoming at Ballard's Presbyterian Church. Friends and members are invited to worship at 11 a.m. and bring a picnic lunch and join the fellowship immediately following the service, which will be led by the pastor, the Rev. Russell Davis.

The Sunday School hour has been changed to 10 a.m. each Sunday, with worship at 11 o'clock each first and third Sunday mornings.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — The Chapel Hill United Methodist Church's youth fellowship is selling Halloween insurance.

In a notice in the church bulletin, they announced that "for 50 cents, the junior high school students will clean up any mess—soaped windows, eggs, toilet paper, etc. — created by mischievous spooks on Halloween night ..."

Post Exchanges Still Prosper

NEW YORK (UPI) — Despite a drop in U.S. military manpower of more than one million since 1969, the military and post exchanges around the world still are doing an excellent business, the Army Times reports. The publication says after discounting the effect of the withdrawal from Vietnam, post exchange and commissary sales have jumped this year by 8.7 to 12.6 per cent.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Morning could be a little difficult because you don't agree now with some bigwig. Strive for more harmony with mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) The situation at home could be difficult in the morning, so use wisdom. Some measure of success can be attained later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The planets are favorable for you to make much progress today so make the right contacts early. Handle deals with wisdom.

Argue Test Shows Bias

RALEIGH (AP)—The U. S. Department of Justice has charged that the National Teachers Examination (NTE) used by the North Carolina Board of Education in licensing teachers is discriminatory.

The department contends in a suit filed earlier this week in federal court that the minimum score requirement on the test "unlawfully hinders or prevents" otherwise qualified blacks, Orientals and American Indians from obtaining employment as public school faculty and staff members in North Carolina.

Thomas P. McNamara, U. S. attorney for eastern North Carolina, said the charge of the "cultural bias" of the test is backed by the high number of blacks who fail it.

The Board of Education voted 7-3 last December to temporarily scrap the test as the only means of teacher certification. Other "subjective" measures were to be used along with the test in determining the ability of a teacher and certification. The test was reinstated as the sole means of teacher certification by the 1973 General Assembly. "It is this law which is now under attack," McNamara said.

THANK YOU

I would like to thank the people of Greenville for their support in the recent City elections. I pledge to you my total efforts in working with the other council members and you for the future progress of our city.

Sincerely,
John L. Howard

Highest N.C. Service Award Is Presented Five Tar Heels

RALEIGH (AP)—U. S. Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., chairman of the Watergate Committee, and four other persons received North Carolina's highest award for service Wednesday night.

The North Carolina Awards for notable accomplishments were presented by Gov. Jim Holshouser. Also receiving awards were Kenneth Ness of Chapel Hill, for fine arts; Helen Smith Bevington of Durham and Burke Davis of Williamsburg, Va., for literature; and Ellis Brevier Cowling of Raleigh, for science.

Ervin received his award for public service.

The recipients were selected by the North Carolina Awards Committee headed by chairman William D. Snider of Greensboro. The commission was created by the 1961 General Assembly.

KING TUT LONDON (UPI) — The British Museum exhibition of the Treasures of Tutankhamen made a net profit of $1.5 million, the museum said. The money was presented to Rene Maher, director-general of UNESCO, to help save temples on the Egyptian island of Philae.

Ervin, who has received national attention as chairman of the Watergate Committee, was cited as a "champion of civil liberties and dedicated defender of the United States Constitution." He also was cited for his service as state legislator, judge, and member of both houses of Congress.

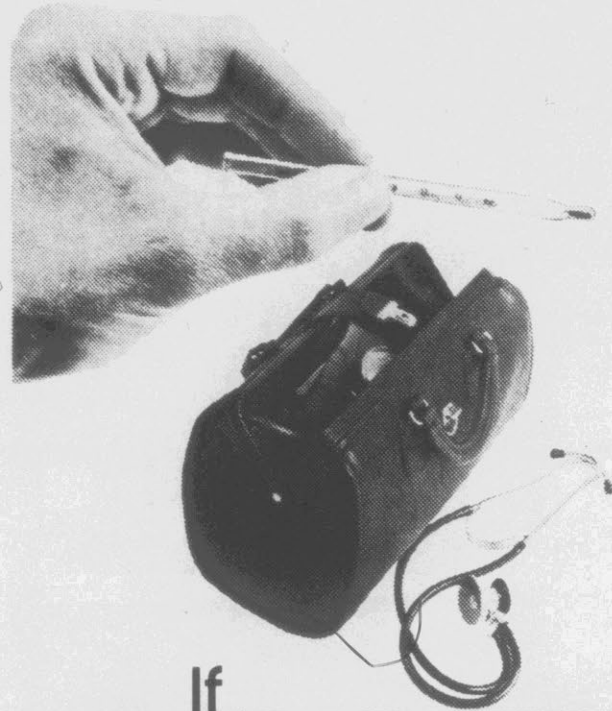

Davis, public relations director at Colonial Williamsburg, is a former North Carolina newspaperman. He was cited as an author "who has made fiction historically accurate and history as exciting as fiction."

Mrs. Bevington, who is from Afton, N. Y., and her late husband both taught at Duke University where she is presently a professor, teaching creative writing, literary criticism and English literature. She has written several volumes of poetry and other books.

Ness, a native of Michigan, became a Carnegie resident artist at the University of North Carolina in 1941 and a professor of art in 1949. His paintings have been widely exhibited.

Cowling is a member of the faculty at North Carolina State University. He is professor of plant pathology, forest and wood and paper science. The citation said his achievements in research and education represent one of the important influences on forest pathology of his generation.
