More Steps To Heal Democrat Wounds

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic party took several more steps toward healing its 1972 wounds over the weekend, as rival factions showed a new willingness to compromise in the name of unity. The most dramatic demonstration of the spirit of togetherness came Saturday when the party's Delegate Selection Commission unanimously approved the recommendations of its drafting committee for revising the rules that caused much of the 1972 unhappiness.

The rules brought charges of quotas and resulted in the exclusion of many old-line party leaders while producing record numbers of women, minorities and young people at last year's convention.

Although many party regulars and party chairman Robert S. Strauss still favor altering the provision on proportional representation, Strauss said after the meeting, "I don't feel strongly enough to want to cause a big fight over it."

Such a battle would surely occur if the issue is reopened when the rules come before the full Democratic National Committee for approval early next year.

At another party meeting in Louisville, Ky., Friday, the black caucus and other liberals on the national committee supported in the name of unity a top aide to Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace over a Mississippi liberal.

That issue arose when Mrs. Pat Derian, a member of the biracial group that has been recognized by the national party as the representative of Mississippi's Democrats since 1968, challenged Mickey Griffin of Alabama for one of six spots on the Executive Committee.

Earl Craig of Minnesota said the blacks decided to support Griffin, who won overwhelmingly, so that "the efforts that we have been involved in" to produce unity would succeed.

Strauss took a step to head off another possible battle when he bowed to the demands of party reformers that the revised rules apply to selection of delegates to the 1974 charter conference.

Discussing the evident effort to avoid party-splitting fights, Alabama Democratic Chairman Robert Vance said "the diverse segments of the party have a very realistic view of what will, and won't, work."

By opting for unity, the reformers gave up hopes of limiting proposals that restore closed slate-making and make it easier to use proxies. The regulars abandoned their hopes of restricting the use of proportional representation.

The biggest issue, the rules that led to virtual quotas in 1972 for women, minorities and young people, had been settled earlier by the writing of compromise language that bans quotas.

Two Sextuplets Taken Home

LAKEWOOD, Colo. (AP) — Two of the five surviving Stanek sextuplets have been taken home from Colorado General Hospital.

The six-week-old infants, Steven and John, left the hospital Saturday afternoon in the arms of their parents, Edna and Eugene Stanek.

The other three babies — Catherine, Nathan and Jeffrey — will be allowed to go home within 10 days, said Dr. James Strain, the Stanek's pediatrician.

John weighed four pounds, 13½ ounces and Steven weighed five pounds, 3½ ounces just prior to their release from the hospital.

The babies were born Sept. 16, seven weeks prematurely. Julia, the second girl, died two nights later of a lung ailment.

Big U.S. Trade Surplus Not Such Good News To Consumers

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is headed for a huge $2 billion trade surplus with Communist nations this year, but it's nothing for American consumers to cheer about.

The surplus, far exceeding original forecasts by the Nixon administration, is being built largely on agricultural exports, mainly the massive wheat deal with the Soviet Union.

That deal drained much-needed U.S. grain supplies and contributed heavily to the big upsurge in food prices this year.

Ironically, the trade surplus with Communist nations is giving the dollar a boost, making it stronger than it might otherwise have been, U.S. officials said.

Trade with Communist nations is one big reason why the nation's trading accounts are expected to be in the black this year for the first time in three years.

U.S. exports to Russia, mainland China and Communist European countries will be $2.5 billion to $2.9 billion this year, while imports from those countries will be $500 to $550 million, Commerce Department analysts said.

This compares with exports of $878 million and imports of $354 million last year.

"I doubt very much if trade is going to be at this year's magnitude in 1974," said Steven Lazarus, head of the department's Bureau of East-West Trade.

Lazarus said he anticipated a 25 per cent dropoff in U.S. trade with Communist nations next year, largely because of smaller agricultural purchases by the Soviet Union and mainland China.

But exports of other American-made goods will increase, he said.

There is one problem clouding the picture, U.S. officials said. Congress is working on legislation that would deny tariff cuts to the Soviet Union until Russia changes its policies dealing with Jewish emigration.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz says failure of Congress to grant the Soviet Union the same rates on tariffs as other U.S. trading partners could imperil expanded trade between the two countries.

Agriculture is not the only area where trade has expanded between the United States and Communist-bloc nations.

Mainland China, for example, has contracted to buy 10 large passenger airplanes from Boeing Aircraft. It also is buying artificial fibers, communications equipment, scientific testing equipment and chemical fertilizers.

Lazarus said the Soviets sent a 16-person purchasing team to New York in 1972. They began lining up contracts for the Kama River truck plant and apparently participated in the grain purchases.

Expanding trade with the Soviet Union also hinges on how much credit it can get from the U.S. Export-Import Bank and private American banks. The U.S. government is putting pressure on the Soviet Union to reveal its secret gold holdings before massive credit is granted.

Florida Beaches Heavily Eroded

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Tropical Storm Gilda's high winds, waves and tides inflicted some of the worst erosion in 20 years on beaches along the southeastern Florida coast, officials said.

Unusually high surf began building early last week along the shore of seven counties. At its height Thursday and Friday, it ripped down seawalls, swept sand out to sea and threatened buildings from Volusia to Broward counties.

As a result of the high tides, the Brevard County Commission has asked Gov. Reubin Askew to declare a 15-mile portion of beach a disaster area.

Tides and winds ate chunks out of a third of the county's oceanfront, seawalls were pounded apart and telephone pole pilings driven 16 feet into the earth were exposed, officials said.

National Weather Service officials said today that Gilda no longer was affecting seas along Florida's east coast and was "a plain winter storm far into the cold North Atlantic off the coast of Greenland."

"The closest the storm got to the southeast Florida coast was about 175 miles, but it was a slow moving storm with a large area of gale winds," said forecaster Vaughn Carmichael.

"Once the storm off the South Carolina coast, the gales were generating huge swells which eventually came along the Florida coast and caused problems."

Carmichael said the surf should be settling back down to normal.

Says Networks 'Too Powerful'

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House aide Patrick Buchanan said today that the broadcast networks have too much power in U.S. news reporting.

"Every legal and constitutional means ought to be considered to break up that dominance, in order to spread it out so that you decentralize power in this area," Buchanan, a key speechwriter for President Nixon, said in an interview on the CBS-TV "Morning News."

Calling for legislation to allow for more competition in major broadcast reporting, Buchanan added, "That would be my view, not that of the administration."

Buchanan said journalists created a confrontation during Nixon's news conference Friday night. "The mood was like Sunday afternoon in the Tijuana bullring," he said.

Meanwhile, in another dispute between the White House and the news media, the administration objected to an article in the Newsweek magazine edition appearing on the newstands today.

The article says federal and congressional investigators are looking into the possibility that Nixon may have manipulated some family-owned property transactions to minimize the capital gains tax due.

The White House called the article a "collection of rumors" and said it "is false and extremely irresponsible in its implications and in the way it was developed."

A Wedding On Alcatraz

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — Tuxedos and flowing gowns billowed in a gentle breeze Sunday as one ex-convict was married and another's baby was baptized on Alcatraz Island, site of a prison that once held some of America's toughest criminals.

"We intentionally chose to hold the baptism and wedding on Alcatraz just because of the dehumanizing conditions that existed here," said Jack Behan, 41.

He and Clare Thompson, 23, exchanged marriage vows on a grassy hillside near cellblocks that once held gangster Al Capone and Robert Stroud, "the Birdman of Alcatraz."

The newlyweds, along with Laurie and Morris Hodges who had their 4-month-old son baptized, are members of the Delancey Street Foundation, a rehabilitation program for ex-convicts and drug users. Behan and Hodges have spent a combined total of more than 30 years behind bars.

The former federal penitentiary in San Francisco Bay is now part of the national park system and open to public tours.

Three Boys Are Charged With Morning Theft

Three 16-year-old boys were arrested early today on larceny charges after allegedly taking ice cream and orange drinks from trucks parked at Carolina Dairy's 2731 Memorial Drive office. Police were looking for a fourth youth who allegedly ran from the car in which the other three were found.

Chief Glenn Cannon said police charged William Barnes Ellington Jr., of 300 North Oak St., David Wayne Leggett of Route 7, Greenville and Donald Allen Jones, also of Route 7, Greenville, in connection with the 2:30 a.m. theft.

The ice cream and orange drinks, valued at $15.56 were taken from two dairy trucks parked inside a fenced-in area at the dairy, Chief Cannon reported.

Unless You're Trained, Don't Keep Loaded Gun

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You recently advised a storekeeper against keeping a loaded gun under the counter in order to protect himself against possible robbers. Why?

In Switzerland every citizen is required by law to keep a gun in his home, and they have one of the lowest rates of homicide and armed robbery in the world! M.C. IN VA.

DEAR M.C.: I advised the storekeeper against keeping a loaded gun under his counter for "protection," because his wife stated that he had never fired a gun in his life. I repeat the advice.

You are correct about Switzerland. But their unique situation requires some clarification. Switzerland has no standing army—theirs is purely a citizens' army. Every physically and mentally fit Swiss male is required to take military training when he reaches the age of 20. He also must take a refresher course annually until he is 50. Meanwhile, he keeps his guns and ammunition at home.

If you are suggesting that perhaps if every American had a gun in his home, it would reduce the national incidence of homicide and robbery, I would remind you that unless one is well trained in the use of firearms, he is better off without them.

DEAR ABBY: Just a moment, please. What does "bewildered grandma" mean, saying her granddaughter looks like "a little old lady from the hills of Tennessee," because she wears her hair pulled back straight in a bun, no make-up whatsoever, and funny little wire-rimmed glasses?

What gives people the impression that we people in Tennessee are a bunch of ignorant hillbillies who still use outhouses, go barefoot, marry at age 11 and do nothing but drink moonshine all day?

Tennessee is a beautiful state, and Tennesseans are the most hospitable, considerate and compassionate people in this country!
PROUD IN KINGSPORT

DEAR PROUD: Bravo! Now, let's hear it from the Jackson Sun.

DEAR ABBY: A "bewildered grandma" complains because her beautiful 22-year-old granddaughter doesn't wear a drop of makeup, and doesn't go in for fancy hairstyles and up-to-the-minute fashions. I should be so lucky with my 17-year-old daughter.

She is a naturally beautiful girl, with big brown eyes, a flawless complexion and a gorgeous smile, but every morning she piles the makeup on so thick she looks unreal. I never know from one day to the next whether her eyelids will be blue, green, purple or brown.

I am waiting for the day my daughter grows up, and realizes, as "Bewildered's" granddaughter has, that the more natural a girl looks the more beautiful she is.
JEALOUS IN JACKSON, TENN.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that old lady who bumrapped the folks in Tennessee she doesn't know what she's talking about. The state of Tennessee has got to be the greatest because Elvis Presley was born here!
LOVES ELVIS IN MEMPHIS

DEAR ELVIS: Sorry, but Elvis was born in Tupelo, Miss.

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Family Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — If you spot an unidentified flying object round your place some night soon, don't be frightened. It's probably the friendly neighborhood witch putting her broom through a flight test for Halloween.

The time's right for that sort of thing. It's also prime time for parents to brush up on the ground rules for Halloween—if their little spooks, hob-goblins and other scary characters are to get through the big trick-or-treat evening out of harm's way.

The kids cavorting as cats, clowns, ghosts and what-not aren't as careful as they should be. Each Halloween some dash across a street without looking and are injured by a car. Or they run through a darkened yard and smash into a tree or trip over a big rock.

Some do sadly back into Jack O'Lanterns containing a candle instead of a flashlight. Their clothing catches on fire. Other children munch goodies given to them as they go trick-or-treating. They're not supposed to do this. They're supposed to wait until they get munchies home and inspect some before eating.

Mrs. Boyles Visits VFW Auxiliary

Mrs. Betty Boyles of Kinston, president of the Second District, was a special guest at the Thursday night meeting of the Auxiliary of the VFW.

Mrs. Boyles gave reports of the National meeting of the VFW held in New Orleans, La. President Richard Nixon was the main speaker at the convention.

Homecoming for State Commander Preston Garris and State Auxiliary President Doris Pierce was held Saturday at the Four Seasons Holiday Inn, Greensboro.

Mrs. Carrie West outlined plans for the District Two meeting to be held in Greenville Sunday, Nov. 18.

It was announced that the local auxiliary has sent a $50 scholarship to the VFW Children's Home, Eaton Rapids, Mich. A cash donation will be sent to O'Berry Hospital to buy presents for the children at Christmas.

Auxiliary members will be selling Buddy Poppies on the streets of Greenville on Saturday, Nov. 10.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Margaret Joyner, Lou Cavendish and Maybelle Joyner.

Past Halloween's such bad things as razor blades in apples and laxatives in candy have tricked unsuspecting little spooks.

The National Safety Council and others working against accidents figure the bad treats come from sick persons. They are called child hater's.

Check List
Some things for parents to think about as they gear up for Halloween:
—Put the kids only in costumes made of fire retardant materials. These catch fire but not as quickly as untreated ones. The costumes from reliable makers are fire retardant, as required by law. There is, however, a danger with a homemade costume. To make these fire retardant, here are directions from the U.S. Department of Agriculture: seven ounces of borax, three ounces of boric acid, two quarts of hot water. Stir until solution clears. If it jells, heat again. Dip the dry costume into this. If the costume is wet it will dilute the solution and make it less effective. Press with warm iron. The result will be a costume that seems thinly starched.

—Make sure the costume doesn't drag or your little spook might trip and fall.
—Put reflective tape on the costume, front and back and sides. This will make wearer more visible to motorists. To add to visibility, make sure child has a flashlight. Keep it lighted when walking along the road. The flashlight also helps the child to find his or her way through unfamiliar territory.

—Masks. Often eye holes are poorly placed or too small for safe seeing. The nose holes aren't large enough or the mouth is too small and the spook can't breathe properly. Better than a mask: a made up false face—with parts from the five and dime Halloween counter. You can find noses, beards, funny glasses and theatrical make-up to design a one-of-a-kind disguise. Put cold cream on before the makeup. This makes removing it later easier.

—Put flashlights, not candles, in all Jack O'Lanterns. Also turn on all year, driveway, porch lights.
—If you don't want any spooks to call, don't light up the place. In some cities the town plan is that tricksters only call on places with the outside lights on. That way they don't bother persons who don't want them to pay a visit.

—Instruct boys and girls not to eat treats, until they come home and you've inspected them. Usually anything wrapped and sealed by the manufacturer (cookies, Crack-erjack, candy bars) is safe. To be doubly sure, however, examine even these packages.
—Children go in pairs. An older child with the younger child.

weather. Cautly? Layers of clothing under the costume, please. Always check the weather before hitting the Halloween trail.
—Dress the spook according to what's proper for the Doctor Develops Home Treatment that RINSES AWAY BLACKHEADS HELPS DRY UP ACNE-PIMPLES In 15 Minutes or Your Money Back!

Queen Helene Mint Julep Masque 15 Minute Treatment
Must Show Immediate Improvement or — YOUR MONEY BACK!

A New York Doctor, working with a cosmetic laboratory, has developed a simple home-treatment that rinses away blackheads in a matter of minutes. It was demonstrated recently on five teen-age girls and three boys.
The results were breath-taking. Blackheads really rinsed away. In fact, many could be seen on the cloth used to wash off the Masque. But this wasn't all! Acne-pimples improved after one application, enlarged pores reduced, and rough complexion became cleaner, clearer and smoother looking. These results certainly indicate why teen-agers are now saying "this is one product that really works"... and why mothers of teen-agers have endorsed its use.
The Masque-Cream Treatment is indeed a remarkable discovery, not only for clear healthy skins, but also for the self-confidence, poise and self-esteem a fine complexion brings to teen-agers!
Anyone Can Use It
If you suffer the agony of teen-age blackheads, acne-pimples and rough unsightly complexion, give yourself this home treatment at our risk. Apply this delightfully Mint-Scented Cream and within 2 or 3 minutes an absorbing agent, called Argilla, dries and turns this cream into a plastic-like masque. You will now feel as though hundreds of "tiny fingers" were softly kneading the skin, loosening pore-caked dirt, blackheads and foreign impurities.
As it firms and hardens, its suction-action draws out waste matter from the pores... In 15 minutes you simply rinse the masque away with lukewarm water which dissolves it immediately. When you wipe your face, you can see that blackheads and other pore "filler" actually come off on your towel. And your skin feels clean... really clean... refreshed, smooth like velvet!

Concern Is For Career People

The firing of around 100 state highway employees and the demotion and transfer of others by Transportation Secretary Bruce A. Lentz has ominous overtones to us.

The wholesale dismissals have prompted Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt to create a special Senate committee to carry out an investigation of the firings and demotions.

Gov. Jim Holshouser has said that the committee will find that the firings were justified.

We have always felt that the governor should be able to name the top men in his administration. Ideally, career men in government should be chosen on the basis of ability, with no regard for party affiliation. Realistically, though, we have to recognize that there will be a tendency for the party in power to reward the faithful. It most concerns us, however, when large numbers of career people are dismissed from their jobs.

We have opposed the Democratic Legislature making any major effort to take appointive powers away from the governor because he is a Republican. Our system of appointments and promotions should be permanent enough to survive the various changes of administration. But when big numbers of state employees of lopped off by the administration, it should be recognized that the challenge is out for the Democratic Legislature to do something that will head off such action.

We think Lt. Gov. Hunt has acted properly to assemble a committee to study carefully these dismissals. The committee should do all within its power to determine whether any of these people have been unjustly removed from their positions. If these state workers were doing their jobs properly and were not grossly out of line in political activity then these facts should be made known to the public.

'New Ballgame' In Classrooms

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—With the revolution in the classroom as new and exotic forms of teaching children being introduced, there is some talk now that teachers are going to have to be taught to do that kind of teaching.

In fact, says a nationally recognized expert in education, with a new language in education, new materials, new techniques: "It's a whole new ballgame. It'll be teacher dropout time...not the students."

And if you think things are getting bad for teachers, consider the poor parent. Mom and dad don't know that's going on in the classroom, and there doesn't appear to be a solution to that problem.

"We're at zero stage in the problem of giving parents the contributions they need to understand what is happening—I don't know where we are going in this," said Peggy Hostetler, an early childhood education expert from San Jose, California.

She was in Raleigh to meet with principals from across the state taking part in a seminar whose title was "Educating Today's Youth for the 1990s."

But as Mrs. Hostetler pointed out, it's not only today's youth who will need educating. Adults have got to get with it as well.

One Word Tells All

There is, for instance, a growing interest in Cover-speak in schools.

It will not be long, she predicts, before students and teachers will be sharing information with body language, grunts and one-word comments which take the place of paragraphs. "You can't keep up with the volumes of information, printed matter, coming at you these days, so you've got to learn to talk in whole paragraphs instead of single words. People do it in all professions, sciences. They understand one another."

"Children will learn to do this and use Cover-speak between themselves. Parents and teachers will have to learn to use it, too," Mrs. Hostetler said.

Teachers primarily, but parents as well, will have a hard time adapting to the trend to classroom management systems. Such things as manipulation, setting objectives, sequencing learning processes, programming are involved. That's all new stuff for most people over 20.

What it means, basically, is that teachers will not be standing in front of a classroom filled with rows of desks while instructing kids. She will, rather, set up programs of performance similar to modern business practices called Management by Objectives.

Students will be charged with specific responsibilities, placed on performance teams, provided necessary tools and equipment and directed to perform the various tasks involved in the learning process.

And of course, computer terminals, learning modules and such will be used.

As to equipment, parents will probably be in for a shock.

Bright-colored plexiglass walls you can see through; classrooms carpeted with the fabric running right on up the walls to make them both more comfortable and cheaper to build; study, work and play areas without standard desks and chairs are already in vogue.

"We're getting away from the rows of desks. You don't sit in a straight kitchen chair at home to listen to good music or watch TV or to read a book," Mrs. Hostetler said.

Get Comfortable

"They won't at school either. You must get comfortable. We'll have free-form lounge chairs so students can recline, put their feet up and read."

And all of this is not just pipe-dreaming, Mrs. Hostetler said. "These are things that are being done in various places around the country...sometimes experimentally. It's just a matter of time and financing until we have them."

She said some methods must be worked out—soon—for training teachers in use of the new equipment and methods, and for teaching parents as well.

But finally a comforting word. "In the midst of all this change, the number one emphasis must continue to be placed here: basic skills must be taught first. All of this is no good if a child can't read. I panic when some educator or scientist gives a speech on why we don't need basic skills anymore—how voice-writers can translate spoken words into written; how calculators make math outdated. This is not true. What good is it to have a written page produced by a computer if you can't read it?"

Not Complete Freedom
And Mrs. Hostetler has a strong caution for those who see the modern classroom as a completely unstructured mess with kids doing their own things without direction or control. That is not, she argues, what this is all about.

"You are not talking about complete freedom, with everybody doing his own thing. If you think that, you are mixing up permissiveness with freedom. That is not the goal."

Space Visitors Should Be Carefully Lettered

In this latest rash of unidentified flying objects, such things as balloons with lights tied to them, Venus, the moon peeping through clouds and helicopters with bobbing, flashing lights have been confusing those who watch for instellar space vehicles.

Someone has suggested that a law is needed requiring space visitors to carefully letter their vehicles: "UFO".

An 'Insoluble' Problem Looms

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBER NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Total agreement in a secret meeting last Wednesday between Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen and the chief lieutenants of deposed special prosecutor Archibald Cox promises new, perhaps insoluble Watergate trouble ahead for President Nixon.

That meeting satisfied Cox's senior staff that Petersen would demand from the White House the same documents that had been denied Cox. Thus, the man desired by Mr. Nixon to investigate Watergate is on a collision course with him. If Petersen persists in demanding the documents and the President persists in refusing them, the possibility looms of Petersen's dismissal or resignation soon — another shock the weakened Nixon presidency can scarcely afford.

So, Mr. Nixon seems likely to emerge from the crisis he triggered last weekend with no gain other than the departure of Prof. Cox. Even with the tremendous cost to his prestige, the President has not deflected the Watergate prosecution from ominous paths down which Cox was taking it.

Besides miscalculating public reaction to the wild weekend, the President misjudged Henry Petersen. A favorite at the White House, career civil servant (and registered Democrat) Petersen was counted on by presidential advisers to quickly clean up the Watergate burglary and quietly drop Cox's other investigations (including the probe of Mr. Nixon's personal finances) and Cox's demands for White House documents.

Such expectations were regarded as nonsense at the Justice Department. But some of Cox's aides expected the worst. Remembering Petersen's outburst before the Senate Watergate committee that the Watergate case was 90 per cent completed when taken from him and given to Cox, they referred to him contemptuously as "old 90 per cent Petersen."

However, a preliminary meeting last Tuesday between Cox's staff and Petersen was most harmonious. On Wednesday, the chief of Cox's task forces went to Petersen's office in the Justice Department to get down to details. They came away convinced he will follow all investigative leads.

That means calling before the grand jury new witnesses close to the President and asking the White House for more documents, including presidential papers that Mr. Nixon forbade Cox to request. That also means Petersen renewing Cox's requests for information denied by the White House — including not only presidential papers but also documents concerning the now infamous Plumbers unit that Cox could not get his hands on.

Moreover, Petersen shows no inclination to shut down any investigations. Responsible Justice Department officials believe the President became insistent about getting rid of Cox when his investigators moved into financial operations of Nixon crony Charles G. (Bebe) Rebozo and when ex-Nixon chief of staff H. R. Haldeman was pressed hard before the grand jury to reveal details of the ITT affair. But Petersen is making no changes.

Finally, Petersen seems committed to make full use of anti-Nixon testimony that deposed White House counsel John W. Dean III will give the grand jury after his eleven-hour deal with Cox to plead guilty on one count. Some Cox lieutenants had feared Dean, potentially the star witness for the prosecution, would be buried in cold storage.

Had Petersen refused to follow these investigative trails, he would have faced public denunciation from Cox's lieutenants. But even without that threat, Petersen was determined to salvage his reputation with a tough investigation. Indeed, acting Atty. Gen. Robert Bork, displeased with his sudden national reputation as the

RELIGION AND HAPPINESS

"Are the consolations of God small with thee?" (Job 15:11).

They are for many people. One of the most discouraging things for a certain type of person to confront is the realization that for all his fidelity and his soundness of belief, his religion gives him very little happiness.

A two-fold cause usually lies at the basis of such a spiritual situation. The first is too little trust in God and the second is too much trust in one's self. People who fail to get happiness out of their religion generally keep themselves from a happy state of mind by swelling on their own imperfections. They should remember that what makes the heart of a true Christian rejoice is not what he is but what God is; not what he does for himself but what God does for him.

Consolation comes when we admit our utter sinfulness and cast ourselves, sinful as we are, upon the mercy and love of God.

Mass Elation Is Absent

TEL AVIV (AP) — The hollow thwack of the paddle ball is heard once more on Israel's beaches, and fewer and fewer sonic booms from the jet fighters rattle the windows and the tourists in the high-rise hotels.

Pleasure yachts with colorful, billowing spinnakers venture out beyond the breakwater onto the sparkling blue Mediterranean. The sidewalk cafes and pizza palaces of Dizengoff buzz with life again. Over the Sabbath weekend, 36 automobiles were reported stolen in the Tel Aviv area. This was only a third the regular rate but was a sure sign that crime, like everything else in Israel, was gradually getting back to normal after 17 days of war and two cease-fires.

"There were no crimes of violence over the weekend, no drug offenses and, knock wood, no noticeable rise in juvenile delinquency," reported a national police spokesman in Jerusalem.

At the busy intersection of Arlosoroff and fashionable Ben Yehuda, two drivers cursed and gesticulated menacingly over a pair of dented minicars.

"It's like old times again," remarked Bernie, the amiable proprietor of Ber-

The dried-up tourist trade received a raindrop of hope when 139 Christian pilgrims turned up on schedule to tour the holy places in Jerusalem, Nazareth and Bethlehem.

In the super-sols, Israel's modern supermarkets, eggs were back on the shelves after three weeks of shortages. It seems that, during the blackout, the chickens couldn't do their thing. All over the land, people were taking down blackout curtains, scraping blue paint off their headlights, removing the cots and water cans from bomb shelters.

Rabbis hurried from house to house — consoling the bereaved, arranging for delayed marriages and Bar Mitzvahs, bringing word of the captured and wounded.

Automobile accidents were back in the news again, bolstering Israel's reputation for having the world's worst drivers.

Real estate dealers resumed showing model luxury apartments to rich American Jews in Netanya, Israel's Miami. And the country's only drive-in theater got back in business with a flick called "Day of Violence." It had no connection with war.

Tel Aviv's Hilton Hotel offered a free two-day honeymoon for all servicemen married between now and Nov. 15 and found itself logging an occupancy rate of 17 bridal suites a night.

To the editor: How do we stand on getting the expansion of the Med School at ECU come January?

First let's list the statewide leaders who are for us. They are U. S. Senator Jesse Helms, Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan, Mayor Howard Lee of Chapel Hill, Former Gov. Bob Scott, Dr. I. Beverly Lake, Sen. Hamilton Horton, Gen. Ralph Scott, Marse Grant, editor of the Biblical Recorder, Wilbur Hobby, and countless others.

There is one and only one statewide leader against us. His name is Jim Holshouser.

Why is this? Our chances are good, but we must work hard starting soon. We must encourage people all across the state to support us. And if all else fails, I personally favor our raising the money ourselves. But surely common sense will prevail when the General Assembly meets.

I believe sincerely that it is in the best interest of our region that we vote against liquor-by-the-drink on Nov. 6. Crash Course In Crisis Living

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The American family is getting a home study course in crisis living, a crash course presented daily in the media space once occupied by the more routine news of human events.

Like a stock market speculator who doesn't know whether to feel exhilarated or depressed until he runs the ticker tape through his fingers, they are living each day by the latest news.

Among the crises that are feared, loom ahead or actually exist are those involving air, water, food, prices, drugs, military, government, housing, cities, fuel oil, gasoline, currency, transportation.

Depending upon occupation or interest, or sometimes geographical location, there are crises involving stocks, newspaper, weather, income, jobs, profits, schools, crops.

Where actual crises don't exist there are often shortages, as in some chemicals; hostility, as between ecologists and builders; tensions, as between labor and management; conflict, as between brokers and bankers.

If the past is a criterion, some of these conflicts, tensions, hostilities and shortages will develop into crises. In the past a good deal of conflict was arranged or easily foreseen. Some of it was produced with full knowledge of the eventual consequences, but produced nevertheless.

—Appliance manufacturers promoted power-operated devices while they and the utilities that supplied the power were warning of shortages.

—The automobile industry produced more cars than ever while clean air groups warned that the internal combustion engine was a major polluter.

—The securities industry combustion engine was a major polluter. —The securities industry ignored the needs of individual investors while trying to hide from the realization that they couldn't continue to exist without them.

—Small-town tax collectors promoted real estate developments while making no provisions for the ecological impact on the water supply and sewage disposal systems.

—Pressure groups blocked the development of new energy sources or the erection of power plants while offering no alternative to the inevitability of higher prices or shortages.

As in some families, the whole world seems held together by its disputes, its conflicts and problems. The atmosphere is one of gloom and gloom, anticipation and foreboding. A crisis atmosphere.

And to get with it, to face the day in the proper mood, you check the latest news.

Farm Scene

4-H is an important part of the Extension Program. It has been since 1914, the year Extension was created by Congressional Action. 4-H was, in the early days, a chief means of reaching rural youth, and consequently adults, with the latest information on agriculture and homemaking, so two of the H's represented Head (knowledge) and Hands (technical skills). But the program never stopped there. Teaching youth to know and respect themselves gave rise to the other H's, Heart (values, ideals) and Health.

Speaking contests, demonstrating ideas, carrying projects or serving as an officer in a club or Council all helped to develop leadership. So, today literally thousands of leaders in business, industry and government say with pride "I was a 4-H'er."

All of this says that 4-H has been a great movement. More important, however, it shows that 4-H has a solid foundation to continue as a great movement. Without abandoning the traditional and principles that gave it strength, 4-H has changed approaches and broadened its appeal to meet the challenges of a new situation. 4-H today is for everybody. City, farm, suburb, apartment—where you live is no barrier to being a 4-H'er. (In 1970, the U. S. Congress appropriated several million dollars for 4-H ex-only man in the Justice Department willing to fire Archie Cox, is trying to seem more than a White House puppet and is fully backing Petersen.

This will not deter liberal Democrats on the Senate Judiciary Committee from subjecting Petersen to hostile examination in hearings on the Cox ouster beginning tomorrow (Monday). Furthermore, Congress is insisting that the Watergate investigation be conducted by a new special prosecutor who must be far less involved with the Nixon administration than Henry Petersen.

Nevertheless, unless Mr. Nixon makes another surprise move, Petersen will be in charge for the time being, moving on his collision course which poses tough questions for the President and his lawyers: Should they refuse the documents requested by Petersen? If they do, will Petersen resign? Can Mr. Nixon sustain the new shock waves of a forced resignation by Petersen?

Even the pleasure for Mr. Nixon in at least getting rid of Cox is meager fare. Cox's sin was his background as a liberal Kennedy Democrat rather than his actual conduct as special prosecutor. On the contrary, because of his innate respect for the presidency, Cox was reluctant to bring down the President on a peripheral issue — tax evasion charges, for example. Now with Cox purged, Mr. Nixon may encounter prosecutors so eager to prove their toughness that they will prove far less fastidious about the presidency than the despised Harvard professor.

Special projects and activities such as Model Rocketry, terrarium building, international foods, archery, horsemanship, photography, and automotive safety fit a wide variety of needs and interests. The projects in agriculture (crops, livestock, forestry, tractor maintenance, etc.) and home-making (canning, freezing, etc.) are still important for those who have the resources for them.

A 4-H'er today doesn't have to belong to a club either. There are special interest activities that may last only a few hours or weeks. Self directed projects are possible where no club or organized groups is available. The community 4-H Club is still a strong part of the total 4-H effort however. Television is providing 4-H to thousands through programs such as T. V. Science and Mulligan Stew (currently more than 1,000 fourth and fifth grade students in Pitt County are enrolled in Mulligan Stew, a six-lesson series on food and nutrition. City and county schools are cooperating with this program.

One specific point where 4-H today is exactly the same as it was in 1914 is its need for You. 4-H needs you as a leader and supporter. A 4-H leader today doesn't sign a contract to meet with a club every month (although we hope some will want too). You may have knowledge or talent that can be shared with 4-H'ers in a special interest group over a few hours or a few meetings. You are needed! 4-H needs you also to encourage your young people to find out more about the exciting world of 4-H.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Gambling is illegal in North Carolina, but Irish potato growers do it all the time. This past summer they won for a change. According to Woody Upchurch, N. C. State University Agricultural Information Specialist, spuds from the state's black soils areas in eastern North Carolina sold for around $10 per hundred pounds, with reports of some going early in the harvest season for as much as $12.

Even in a period when there is nothing unusual about record high prices for almost any product, $10 or $12 for potatoes is a big item.

"Growers didn't average $10 for the entire crop," explained J. L. Rea Jr., Pamlico County agricultural extension chairman, "But even a $5 average would be a big improvement over what they normally get."

Potatoes often sell at the farm for $2 to $3 per hundred pounds and in surplus years have fallen below $2.

This year the nation's supply of stored potatoes was down and new crop plantings were hampered by floods, freezes and a variety of bad weather. So when the first Tar Heel potatoes came out of the ground in June, buyers were eager to buy.

According to Merle Mayo, who grows 383 acres of potatoes in the New Ditch farming section of Pamlico County, it was one of the best prices he ever received for a crop.

The situation was the same up the coast in the Albemarle area. "We had some weather problems that cut yields but certainly no one complained about prices," said Gordon Sawyer, Camden County extension chairman.

"In the past, $3.75 to $5 was regarded as a very good price. We have sold potatoes for $1.75 at times," Sawyer said. "This year a lot of non-contracted potatoes moved for $9 to $10."

Potato growing in North Carolina is a gamble every year, explains Rea. Planting starts in late February when there is still plenty of risk of frost and freeze damage. There were losses during the past growing season. At the June-July harvest period, summer rains often come with unwanted frequency, making digging in the low-lying fields impossible at times.

Then there is the gamble with the market. "Growers have to take what they get for this crop, and sometimes it isn't very much," Rea said. "But this past season they hit the jackpot, and it will help make up for some of those not-so-good years."

Growers enjoyed the rare luxury of a "surplus" of buyers. "It sure felt good to see trucks lined up waiting to be loaded rather than having to wait for them to come," grower Mayo said.

Even with this highly favorable marketing situation, all was not well with the 1973 spud crop. Weather problems cut yields, and the state harvested its smallest crop since 1964. The average yield from 11,200 acres was estimated at 140 hundredweight per acre, down from 146 last year.

The unusual market still made potato profits a good bet for 1973.

Fears Impact Of FDA Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration has warned that legislation now being considered could return the country to the "patent medicine abuses which prevailed at the turn of the century."

Dr. Alexander M. Schmidt made the statement today in testimony prepared for the House Public Health and Welfare subcommittee, which is considering measures to limit FDA authority to regulate vitamins and minerals.

Schmidt told the group that the proposals would "diminish FDA's statutory authority to protect the consumer and would promote widespread consumer fraud."

He said the FDA rules in question simply require truthful labeling and rational combinations of ingredients. He said no nutrient or food components will be banned.

Only two items currently freely available, high levels of vitamins A and D, would require a prescription, he said.

Schmidt said if the FDA rules are overturned, "the marketer would no longer be required to present proof of safety of any food ingredient prior to its use in food."

Excess Goes To Filming

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The excess after expenses of the Billy Graham Crusade in Atlanta amounted to $111,565 which will be used to finance part of the cost of televising the Atlanta Crusade.

An official audit released this week by Sam E. Hudgins, treasurer of the Atlanta Crusade committee, showed that $54,696 was contributed to the crusade.

The decision to use the excess funds for television was made by the Atlanta Executive Committee, headed by Tom Cousins, at the beginning of the crusade planning.

Cousins said the committee wanted to share the crusade, not only with Georgians but with others nationwide.

Neither Billy Graham nor the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association nets anything from the local crusades they conduct but they do ask that an official audit be made of the cash receipts and disbursements.

The Atlanta Crusade audit prepared by Peat, Marwick, Mitchell and Co., a national firm of certified public accountants in Atlanta, showed that $210,225 was collected during the seven-day crusade in June, which drew more than 350,000 persons.

Child Psychologists Gather To Observe 'Miracle'

By WES LEFLER
Health Affairs
Assistant Director
UNC-Chapel Hill

Partly because of a four-year-old Grifton boy named Kem, scientists from around the world will come to North Carolina this week to look at a program Kem helped to make possible.

Kem is a victim of autism. As an autistic child Kem has been living in a world of fantasy rather than reality.

But in one year of treatment in Greenville his doctors, therapists and parents have wrought a miracle!

They have snatched Kem from his world of fantasy and started him back to the real world. Progress has been slow, but in the right direction. Yet, there is a long way to go.

Dr. Jerry Sloan says when Kem first came to Greenville's Eastern TEACCH Center for treatment nearly a year ago he cried a lot. He wouldn't play. He could not talk. In fact, it was impossible to even get Kem's attention.

Dr. Sloan is clinical director of the University of North Carolina's center for the treatment of autistic children in Greenville. The University's western center is in Asheville and the piedmont center and headquarters is in Chapel Hill. TEACCH stands for Treatment and Education of Autistic and related Communications Handicapped Children and is a product of the UNC School of Medicine's Department of Psychiatry in Chapel Hill.

More than a score of the world's leading child psychologists will meet in Chapel Hill Oct. 30-Nov. 2 to look at Kem's progress and that of other children in the program that captured the American Psychiatric Association's top award in 1972.

About Kem's condition when treatment was first started Dr. Sloan says, "Whenever you tried to talk with him he acted as though you weren't even there. He paid no attention to you whatever. He was totally unresponsive. Communication with him was completely out of the question. This was where we started."

Now, Kem is in a special education class at Elmhurst Elementary School in Greenville. The class is made possible through the Eastern TEACCH Center.

To observe him now, one might never suspect Kem is affected with a severe learning disability. Already he has learned to laugh and play with other children. He has learned to share. And he has learned something about love and affection. Completely unmanageable a year ago, Kem now plays games with his classmates and even puts puzzles together.

Real Improvements

"We have seen real improvements in Kem since we enrolled him in Eastern TEACCH here in Greenville. And we are so thankful," says his mother, Ellen Carter. "A year ago we couldn't even keep him inside our fenced yard. He would climb the fence, and away he would go. Of course, we could never relax. Now we can depend on Kem to play in the yard. He's learned to occupy himself with toys and plays much as a normal child would. He is coming slowly, but he is making progress with it."

Kenneth Carter, Kem's father, thinks Kem's most dramatic improvement has been learning to sit in a chair long enough to concentrate on a game or play with a toy. Kem and his father now enjoy playing ball together.

"Just a few months ago," Kem's mother says, "you could give him a box with a toy in it. He would take the toy out and play with the box. Now he's learning to appreciate toys themselves.

Kenneth and Ellen Carter live in Grifton some 35 miles from the TEACCH Center in Greenville and Elmhurst Elementary School where Kem goes to school one day a week. Kenneth is business manager for Edgcombe Motor Co. in Tarboro.

Dr. Sloan compares autistic children with pingpong balls in a windstorm.

"They seem to blow from one activity to another without the ability to control what they are doing. They simply don't know what's going on outside their own minds."

Kem, and others like him, are taught a world exists outside their own minds. Then they are shown how to relate to the real world of parents, friends, teachers and other children.

The children are taught to listen, to observe and to react. They are taught sounds and speech have meaning and to react to the sounds they hear. They are taught that "yes" calls for a certain kind of reaction and "no" means just the opposite.

Vocabulary and speech

Earthquake Hit Off West Coast

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — An earthquake has hit the ocean floor about 50 miles west of San Diego, but authorities said no damage or injuries have been reported.

The tremor Sunday was felt 15 miles inland and for several miles along the Southern California coast.

The tremor registered 4 on the Richter scale, said a spokesman for the California Institute of Technology seismological lab.

The Richter scale is a measure of ground motion as recorded on seismographs. Every increase of one number means a tenfold increase in magnitude. Thus, a reading of 4 reflects an earthquake 10 times stronger than one of 3.

An earthquake of 4 can cause moderate damage.

Petitioning For Impeachment

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia's largest labor alliance, the AFL-CIO Council, is gathering signatures calling for the resignation or impeachment of President Nixon.

"We'd like to see him resign over this Watergate mess. If not, we'd like him impeached," council President Edward F. Toohy said over the weekend.

The council, which represents about 250,000 unionists and more than 300 locals in the Philadelphia area, is trying to collect 200,000 signatures.

Suspect Waste In Foreign Aid

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans generally favor the concept of foreign aid, but a majority believes that too much aid money is either wasted in administrative red tape or pocketed by foreign leaders, a poll shows.

A scientific national sampling of 1,222 Americans disclosed that a record 68 per cent of the public — up 10 per cent from seven years ago — believes it is the duty of the United States to assist the world's poor.

But a concurrent finding suggested that this sentiment does not necessarily mean support for official government aid programs; indeed, 43 per cent of the respondents favored budget cuts in U.S. assistance.

The survey was conducted by the Overseas Development Council, a private institution whose aim is to increase American awareness of the problems facing developing countries. The survey results were outlined in a booklet by Paul Laudicina, an associate fellow of the council.

The study concluded that the public has a low regard for government aid programs compared with voluntary efforts, which are considered more efficient.

"A remarkable 91 per cent of the public agrees with the statement that 'too much of our foreign assistance is kept by the leaders of poor countries and does not get to the people,'" the survey said.

"Eighty-six per cent of the public agrees that 'too much foreign aid is wasted in our own bureaucracy and never finds its way abroad.'"

These negative views have been reflected in rising congressional opposition to the Nixon administration's aid program in recent years. The fiscal 1974 bill, for example, passed the House by a hairline 188-183 vote in July. The Senate margin was 12 votes.

The survey suggested that the declining fortunes of foreign aid could be reversed if more funds were earmarked through the Red Cross, the Peace Corps or CARE, as distinct from governments.

Plant Tallies Fire Damage

WILKESBORO, N.C. (AP) — The 2,000 employees at Holly Farms Poultry Industries in Wilkesboro are not to report to work today after a fire damaged the plant last night.

Francis Garvin, executive vice president of the company, said the employees would be notified of the work schedule for the rest of the week later.

No damage estimates were available.

The blaze was reported about 9 p.m. Sunday and fire-fighting units from all parts of Wilkes County responded to the call.

The immediate cause of the fire at the seven-acre plant is still not known, but firemen believe an electrical wiring problem was responsible.

The fire was contained in the box department area of the plant where most of the damage was done.

Holly Farms is one of the largest poultry producing companies in the nation. The Wilkesboro plant is headquarters for the company.

The skipjack, a member of the herring family, occasionally is found in the Mississippi River.

training are basic. Simple, single words such as hand, shoe, book, door and mother come painfully slow for these children. But words must be learned before communication can begin.

Parents are taught to observe methods use by therapists and then go home and practice, practice, practice with their child. Repetition, patience and understanding are vital for the child to progress.

Quite often, parents become more effective therapists than therapists themselves. That's partly because they take TEACCH methods and adapt them to their own home lifestyle where basic concepts can best be taught.

The people Kem is helping to bring together in Chapel Hill

The people Kem is helping to bring together in Chapel Hill this week include the father of child psychiatry Dr. Leo Kanner (pronounced Conner) of Johns Hopkins University Medical Center and a score of other child psychiatrists and researchers.

Discoverer of childhood autism Dr. Kanner is author of "Child Psychiatry," the standard reference book on the subject, now in its fifth printing.

The case of Kem Carter and many more will be examined, discussed and analyzed to see what new information can be sifted from tons of new research facts on child development, deviations and treatment.

Called the First Leo Kanner Colloquium on Child Development, Deviations and Treatment, the four-day scientific session will feature a kick-off banquet on Tuesday night, Oct. 30, at the Carolina Inn in Chapel Hill and an after-dinner address by Dr. Kanner. Three full days of scientific papers will follow.

THE TEACCH program developed and pioneered at the University of North Carolina School of Medicine in Chapel Hill, has received national and international recognition for its research and treatment methods.

Much of this recognition has stemmed from the fact Dr. Eric Shopler and Dr. Robert Eichler, founders and directors of the TEACCH program, broke away from traditional psychiatric methods in the treatment of autistic children.

First, they took the position that the child's disability is not the fault of the parent (as has been held in the past), but rather stemmed from some biological abnormality of the brain.

Secondly, they believed parents of autistic children must become co-therapists with professional therapists. Traditionally, parents have not been allowed to observe or become involved in psychotherapy.

The American Psychiatric Association gave TEACCH a Gold Achievement Award in 1972 "for the establishment of productive research on developmental disorders of children and the implementation of an effective clinical application". This was the first Gold Award given to a program in North Carolina. More than 100 other programs across the country competed for the award. Also in 1972 it was the first program to receive endorsement from the National Society for Autistic Children.

In supporting the legislation for this program Dr. Leo Kanner wrote this "educational approach including parents, offers the best treatment available for these children to date."

Drs. Shopler and Reichler have been invited to other parts of this country, Canada and Europe to present the program and help establish a similar service.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

TRADITION OF THE PRAIRIE HOUSE — This exciting low ranch with wide sheltering roofs and broad overhangs makes the statement: exterior space around the perimeter is vital to the function and beauty of the spaces inside. Main living zones are distinctly defined, assisted by a subtle change in level. The off-set, three-bedroom wing has its own circulation foyer converted to the main foyer by a hall. The activity areas are further subdivided into the formal living and dining rooms and kitchen, dinette and family room. The utility spaces consist of two-car garage, shop and laundry with adjacent bath. Samuel Paul, 107-40 Queens Blvd., Forest Hills, N.Y. 11375, designed Plan HA776P, 1,810 square feet in area. Safe Trick-Or-Treating Urged Greenville parents were urged today by Police Chief Glenn Cannon to cooperate with local officers in making Halloween trick-or-treat outings safer for local youngsters.

The police official suggested that parents encourage children to trick-or-treat within their own neighborhoods and "insist that they absolutely refuse to accept anything from strangers."

He explained that in recent years, children have been given such dangerous so-called treats as apples equipped with razor blades and candy spiked with narcotic drugs.

"We would prefer that parents only allow their children to go out trick-or-treating before dark," Cannon said, "but we realize that this is an impossible request.

"For this reason," he continued, "children should wear light-colored clothing and carry a flashlight."

He explained that children wearing dark clothing cannot be seen by motorists as readily as ones wearing clothing that will reflect light.

Some children ride their bicycles when going trick-or-treating, he noted. "Please stress that they be extremely careful with their bikes. Be certain that their bicycles are equipped with lights and reflectors and proper brake equipment.

Cannon also urged motorists to be very watchful and attentive on Halloween. "Children get overexcited and many times fail to realize true danger and may dart into the path of a car without realizing what can happen."

Other suggestions voiced by the police official include:

—Walk on the sidewalk

whenever possible and if no sidewalk is available, walk on the left side of the street facing traffic.

—Look both ways before crossing a street and cross streets at marked crosswalks only and be watchful for cars turning at intersections.

—Parents should plan a route for children to take so they can be found quickly if necessary and decide which homes will be visited.

—Children should never go

—Insist that treats be brought home for inspection before anything is eaten and discard all unpackaged or open treats.

Chief Cannon suggested that parents should "talk with your child to help him relax after the Halloween excitement." He said some children may have real fears and "reassurance from a parent" will help ease his fright.

Chief Cannon said if anything is found wrong with treats, call the police department immediately.

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Mrs. Callie Nichols, 66, was so upset when her 100-year-old father ambled away from their home in south Nashville that she fainted and was taken to Baptist Hospital.

Her father, Will Campbell, was found by police, unconcernedly hiking between Spring Hill and Thompson Station, 35 miles south of Nashville.

Cambodia Reinforcing Area Raided By Rebels

By DENIS GRAY Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Government reinforcements have been rushed to an area 15 miles northwest of Phnom Penh to help clear a section of Highway 5 of insurgents, field reports said today.

Three battalions advanced from the north and a fourth moved from the capital to dislodge the rebels who on Sunday had captured a 2½-mile stretch of the highway between the villages of Phum Kruos and Prek Taten.

Fleeing villagers told reporters many civilians were wounded and killed and that homes were destroyed in the battle Sunday.

They said a number of villagers had been abducted by the Khmer Rouge and ferried to insurgent-held territory east of the Tonle Sap River.

The rebels already control a 10-mile section of Highway 5 north of Sala Lek Pram, 35 miles northwest of Phnom Penh. The route is a vital supply link to the rice growing areas of Battambang province.

In other military action, the Cambodian command said troops continued efforts to drive out insurgents massed on the capital's southern per-

Elected By State Group

Evelyn Perry, Dean of the East Carolina University School of Nursing, and Phyllis Nichols, assistant professor of nursing at ECU, were elected to office in the N. C. State Nurses' Association at the organization's biennial convention in Raleigh last week.

Miss Nichols, who is president of District 30 for NCSNA was elected by the House of Delegates to a two-year term on the NCSNA Board of Directors.

Dean Perry was elected chairman of the Forum on Baccalaureate and Graduate Programs and will serve on the NCSNA's eleven-member Commission on Education.

The convention was attended by 600 nurses who heard Rosamund Gabrielson, president of the American Nurses' Association, discuss issues involving mandatory continuing education for nursing licensure.

Also attending the convention from the ECU nursing school were faculty nurses Sylvene Spickerman, who is a member of the NCSNA Long-Range Planning Committee, and Barbara Oyler.

the capital, "our troops have taken the initiative in expanding their zones of security."

The two government garrisons, surrounded by insurgent-controlled territory, have been under heavy rebel pressure in recent weeks.

The U.S. Embassy said Sunday that Maj. Vincent Gomez, an assistant defense attache, has returned to the capital after being slightly wounded Saturday south of Phnom Penh. The Embassy said Gomez was observing government operations when he was hit in the arm by gunfire.

Estimate Fire Cost $100,000
HENDERSON, N.C. (AP) — Vance County fire officials estimated that up to $100,000 in damage was caused by a blaze early this morning which partially destroyed the Humpty Dumpty supermarket on U.S. 1 near Henderson.

Authorities said the fire apparently started in the office or stockroom area of the store about 1 a.m. during a heavy

School Fight At Charlotte

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Two students were arrested and two others taken to hospitals today after a brief outbreak of racial fighting at Olympic High School in Charlotte, school authorities said.

A spokesman for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg system said groups of whites and blacks faced off in the mall area of the school about 8:22 a.m. and the fighting was in progress 10 minutes later. The fighting lasted about eight minutes, the spokesman said.

The spokesman said about 150 to 180 black students left the school and congregated near the campus. They were taken from the area by buses and other vehicles.

Idling Plant In Charlotte
RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—A. H. Robins Co. said today it is closing its Swinson products Co. subsidiary in Charlotte, N.C., immediately "because of its inability to operate profitably."

The Swinson Co. produced potato chips and distributed a line of snack foods in North Carolina, South Carolina and parts of Georgia and Virginia.

Robins acquired Swinson in 1967. E. Claiborne Robins, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of A. H. Robins Co., said operating costs of the subsidiary had risen steadily since then.

Recently, he said, prices of Swinson's principal raw materials, potatoes and cottonseed oil, had risen so much that Swinson could not make a profit "in the foreseeable future."

"Under these circumstances," Robins said, the parent company "cannot continue to absorb Swinson's losses."

Robins said the closing and disposition of equipment and property of Swinson probably will result in an after-tax loss of about 5 cents a share in A. H. Robins Co. common stock.

The principal business of A. H. Robins Co., which has headquarters here, is the manufacture of pharmaceuticals.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

There is little time for looking back for the East Carolina University Pirates. Saturday afternoon, when the horn went off, they were beaten by the University of North Carolina, 28-27.

In many ways, however, it turned into a victory. Because the Bucs simply weren't meant to be there. They were supposed to be down by three or four touchdowns, like last year. After all, State beat them 57-8 and Carolina lost to the Wolfpack by only two.

But there is one thing that is different — the Bucs. They are not the same team that played N.C. State.

"I feel like we beat North Carolina in every way except for the scoreboard," Coach Sonny Randle said. And while he did not feel that the Pirates got the best shake in some of the officiating and the timekeeping, he did not dwell on it. "I don't think that beat us," he said. "It might have helped, but it wasn't the chief cause."

"They just wore us out," he added. "Their depth was the key. We played 30 people and that includes the specialty teams. I'm sure they played somewhere in the neighborhood of twice that many."

But Randle was proud of the effort the Pirates put forth. "I'm as proud as any coach in America. We went up there with one thing in mind. We wanted to win their respect and I certainly think that we did just that. Of course we wanted to win too, and should have done that too."

Randle said that it was a little early to tell how his players will react to the loss. "It's best that we just forget it, just like we could if we had won. At 3:30 Sunday afternoon, we started getting ready for William & Mary. They are certainly a lot better than last year, but I think we showed at Carolina that we are a much better team too. The game should only serve to build our confidence. It ups our stock quite a bit, and our players should feel that they are a better team."

The coach praised the offensive line for what he called "a super job. We moved the football on the ground as well as any team has against them," Randle said. "And I think that was surprising to everyone concerned. Don Schink and Carlester Crumple and Kenny Strayhorn has exceptional games, I think Crump may have been a little better than Strayhorn this week. He is the Crump we use to know now. He still playing hurt, but he's learned to cope with it."

Randle also felt that the presence of Vito Ragazzo on the Carolina side of the field had little effect on the outcome. "Certainly he knows a lot of our players, but we've changed a lot in the past year," Randle said. "We're starting people he remembers as only playing on the scout team, who have improved tremendously. And our offense is not the same either."

But, the time is past for thinking of Carolina. Saturday night, William & Mary awaits, and the battle should be a tough one. "There is too much at stake for last year's game to enter into anything," Randle said, referring to some of the bad feelings the Indians had after losing. "The game will be emotional, but it means so much to both of us."

East Carolina players broke two records against the Tar Heels. Jim Woody's 43 yard field goal broke Rick McLester's mark of 42 yards against Richmond last year. And Jim Bolding's 20-yard interception return brought his total to 84 yards for the year, snapping Todd Hicks' mark of 76 set in 1967.

Carl Summerell is only eight yards short of the career record of 2,516 yards passing. He now had 2,508.

There are a number of other season and career records on the line as the Pirates go into their final three contests.

Viking 'Foot Soldiers' Disrupt Rams' Game Plan To Score Big 10-9 Victory

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Minnesota Vikings won the Battle of Bloomington as they win most of their battles — in the trenches.

The Viking foot soldiers broke through the enemy's lines and totally disrupted their game plan en route to a tense 10-9 National Football League victory over the Los Angeles Rams Sunday.

"I tried everything, but they just out-executed us all day," said Los Angeles quarterback John Hadl. "No doubt about it, that's the best defensive team we've played all year. It was just a battle all day long — we never got the momentum."

One of the pesky Viking raiders was middle linebacker Jeff Siemon, who helped turn the war of unbeaten in the Vikings' favor.

In the fourth quarter when the Rams attempted a counter-attack, Siemon blitzed through the Rams' line twice to harass Hadl and then socked the Los Angeles ace for a 15-yard loss. "I was right in Hadl's face," said Siemon. "We knew if he ever set up to try to throw the long one, we eventually would sack him."

The Vikings thus improved their record to 7-0, the only unblemished record in pro football, and also improved their lead in the National Conference's Central Division. The Vikings moved to a four-game lead over the Green Bay Packers (2-3-2), who dropped a 34-0 decision to the Detroit Lions.

The Rams (6-1) lost a game off their National Conference Western Division lead to the Atlanta Falcons, who trimmed the San Francisco 49ers 17-3.

Two upsets punctuated the NFL's bloody Sunday as the New Orleans Saints turned back the Washington Redskins 19-3 and the Philadelphia Eagles hammered the Dallas Cowboys 30-16. Washington maintained a one-game lead in the National Conference's Eastern Division.

Elsewhere, the East-leading Miami Dolphins tripped the New England Patriots 30-14, the Central-leading Pittsburgh Steelers stopped the Cincinnati Bengals 20-13 and the Oakland Raiders, leaders in the West, trimmed the Baltimore Colts 34-21.

In other games, the San Diego Chargers and Cleveland Browns played to a 16-16 tie; the Denver Broncos slugged the New York Jets 40-28; the St. Louis Cardinals beat the New York Giants 35-27 and the Chicago Bears routed the Houston Oilers 35-14.

The Kansas City Chiefs met the Bills in Buffalo for the weekly Monday night game.

The Ram-Viking affair, played before a full house in Bloomington, Minn., gave the fans their money's worth from the beginning.

Fred Cox kicked a 15-yard field goal and Fran Tarkenton clicked on a nine-yard scoring strike to Chuck Foreman to give the Vikings a 10-0 lead and then their brutish defense made it stand up.

The sturdy Viking defense held the Rams to David Ray field goals of 30, 35 and 47 yards and that was it.

"We did play super," said an immodest Carl Eller. "We played as well as we have ever played ... everyone contributed. If one man falls down, it makes a difference. To a man, we played super."

Saints 19, Redskins 3
New Orleans stunned Washington 19-3 with the help of a newcomer. Bill McClard kicked four field goals to provide the upset.

"We tried to get ready but when your opponent loses 40-0, it's hard to do," said Washington Coach George Allen, referring to the Saints' 40-0 loss last week to San Francisco. "We were just fortunate that Dallas lost."

Eagles 30, Cowboys 16
Roman Gabriel fired two touchdown passes and scored another on a quarterback sneak to lead Philadelphia past Dallas 30-16.

"This is an amazing team, a team of nobodys," said Gabriel, referring to an Eagles' club studded with rookies and castoffs. "This is the best win I've ever been associated with."

Lions 34, Packers 0
Alvie Taylor had his best rushing day with 160 yards. The shutout was Detroit's first this season.

Falcons 17, 49ers 3
Bob Lee hooked up with Ken Burrow for 164 yards and two TDs in Atlanta's 17-3 win. The Falcons (4-3) won their third straight game since Lee became quarterback.

Dolphins 30, Patriots 14
Stung by two New England TDs in the first period, Miami rallied with the help of three field goals by Garo Yepremian for a 30-14 victory over the Patriots.

Steelers 20, Bengals 13
Reserve quarterback Terry

Hanratty, thrown into the breach when starter Terry Bradshaw suffered a shoulder separation, joined with a tough Pittsburgh defense to help the Steelers edge Cincinnati 20-13.

Raiders 34, Colts 21
Ken Stabler completed 25 of 29 passes to set an NFL record as Oakland bombed Baltimore 34-21. Stabler's completion percentage of .862 wiped out the record of .857 established by Sammy Baugh of the Washington Redskins in 1945. Baugh connected on 18 of 21 passes.

Chargers 16, Browns 16
Ray Werschling's 16-yard field goal with 30 seconds remaining gave San Diego a 16-16 tie with Cleveland.

Broncos 40, Jets 28
Charley Johnson threw two touchdown passes, then Steve Ramsey came off the bench to uncork a 76-yard scoring bomb, as Denver beat the New York Jets 40-28.

Cardinals 35, Giants 27
Jim Hart fired four TD passes, including three to Mel Gray, to lead St. Louis past the New York Giants 35-27.

Bears 35, Oilers 14
Ike Hill's 95-yard kickoff return capped a three-touchdown explosion within 95 seconds, sweeping Chicago past winless Houston (0-7) 35-14.

Coach Lou Saban Spent Entire Week Trying To Put Bills Back Together

By MARVIN R. PIKE
Associated Press Sports Writer
BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Coach Lou Saban spent the entire week trying to put the Buffalo Bills back together and expressed hope he had succeeded as the National Football League team prepared to take on the Kansas City Chiefs Monday night.

The Bills fell apart last Sunday in Miami, losing to the Dolphins 27-6 and dropping into second place in the American Conference Eastern Division. They now are 4-2.

Against the Dolphins, O.J. Simpson netted only 55 yards rushing and went to the sideline in the fourth period with a sprained right ankle. Nevertheless, he retained his NFL rushing lead by upping his total yardage to 868 in six games.

The Bills' quarterbacks, rookie Joe Ferguson and reserve Dennis Shaw, completed six of 18 passes for 60 yards. But Buffalo wound up with a net of just one yard passing, as Ferguson and Shaw were sacked nine times for 59 yards in losses.

The Chiefs counted on linebackers Willie Lanier and Jim Lynch to thwart any passing attack the Bills might muster and at the same time shut off Simpson and running mate Larry Watkins.

They looked, too, for 17-year quarterback Len Dawson to pick apart Buffalo's weak pass defense. Dawson passed for 200 yards, completing 15 of 20 attempts, in the Chiefs' 14-6 loss to Cincinnati last week.

"We can't afford another performance like the Miami game," Saban said. "We put on a horrible show."

"We've got to rebound, to put all the pieces back together." The Chiefs, 3-2-1 and battling Oakland and Denver for the AFC Western Division lead, hold a 10-0 edge over the Bills. One game ended in a tie.

Although the game will be seen nationally on ABC-TV, it will not be telecast locally. The Bills missed a sellout in their 80,020-seat Rich Stadium by 1,478 seats, which remained unsold at the 9 p.m. Friday deadline.

Secretariat Wins Final Run, Retires

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
TORONTO (AP) — "I hope I'm lucky enough to have another one," trainer Lucien Laurin said after Secretariat's last race. He said it without conviction.

With darkness fast falling on Woodbine race course Sunday, Secretariat romped home a winner for the final time in his brilliant 21-race career. "We'll take him to Kentucky some time before Nov. 15," said Helen Tweedy, operator of Meadow Stable, after Secretariat's victory in the Canadian International Championship on a cold, wet and windy day.

Secretariat's future contributions will be at the stud. The Triple Crown winner will stand at Claiborne Farm in Paris, Ky., under a record $6.08 million syndication. "He ran a big race and I wanted him to go out that way," said Ron Turcotte, the jockey who was part of the victory celebration but not part of the race for the first time since Secretariat's first two races as a 2-year-old in 1972.

"He's not a horse, he's a machine," said Turcotte, who missed the race because of a five-day riding suspension. "I waited until he got ready and then I just went with him," said Eddie Maple, who replaced Turcotte.

Secretariat went away from pace-setting Kennedy Road with three-eighths of a mile left and at the end, with a chilled crowd of 35,107 cheering him on, was 6½ lengths in front of Big Spruce.

The time was 2:41.4-5 for 1½ miles on a firm turf course that ran on a slight incline for five eighths of a mile and then crossed a 100-foot wide dirt strip.

Secretariat will go to stud as fourth biggest money-winning thoroughbred in history. The first prize of $92,755 for his 16th victory in 21 starts boosted his bankroll to $1,316,808. Only Kelso, Round Table and Buckpasser, all of whom raced much more, won more.

Secretariat also leaves the track as the first winner of the Triple Crown—the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes—in 25 years and the ninth ever and holder of several track records and two world records for the dirt—2:24 for the 1½-mile Belmont and 1:45.2-5 for the 1¼-mile Marlboro Cup.

Woody Hayes, Bear Bryant, Barry Switzer and Bo Schembechler are so unhappy. After all, their teams are ranked 1-2-3-4 in the college football ratings.

But listen: —"I hated the last 20 points," Hayes said after top-ranked Ohio State exploded for eight touchdowns in the second and third periods and buried Northwestern 60-0, the Wildcats' worst setback since 1899. "A game like this doesn't prove a heck of a lot the way we broke it open."

—Runner-up Alabama did even better, slaughtering Virginia Tech 77-6 and in the process setting an all-time major college rushing record of 743 yards as James Taylor, Wilbur Jackson, Calvin Culliver and Richard Todd all gained more than 100. "I didn't want the score to be like that," Bryant said. "We were definitely not trying to run up the score." —Steve Davis and Joe Washington each scored twice as third-ranked Oklahoma whipped Kansas State 56-14 but all Switzer could say was that he was "very sorry the way we played." He referred to 14 penalties that cost the Sooners 126 yards.

—Schembechler said fourth-rated Michigan "did not play a great game" in trouncing Minnesota 34-7 as Ed Shuttlesworth and Gordon Bell each tallied twice. "I was disappointed with our play in the second half."

But not everyone was unhappy. Joe Paterno was delighted with his defense after fifth-ranked Penn State walloped West Virginia, 62-14 and Ara Parseghian was just overjoyed after No. 8 Notre Dame beat No. 6 Southern California 23-14, ending the Trojans' 23-game unbeaten streak and virtually eliminating them from a successful defense of their 1972 national championship.

Paterno said his defense, except for a 96-yard pass play from Ben Williams to Danny Buggs, was almost perfect. John Cappelletti's 130 yards and four touchdowns more than made up for that lapse.

And Parseghian was in seventh heaven after Notre Dame used Tom Clements' one-yard touchdown sneak late in the first half, Eric Penick's 85-yard dash early in the third quarter and Bob Thomas' three field goals to beat Southern Cal.

"This eliminates our chances for No. 1," said McKay. "Notre Dame outplayed us, which is the name of the game. They were well-prepared."

Elsewhere in The Associated Press Top Ten, No. 7 Missouri lost to Colorado 17-13, No. 9 Louisiana State edged South Carolina 33-29 as the lead changed hands for the sixth time on Mike Miley's one-yard touchdown run with 1:03 left and No. 10 Nebraska fought to a 17-17 tie with Oklahoma State.

Donohue Wins Four Events, Then Retires

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Mark Donohue, who for years was called "captain nice" while showing his muscle as a racing driver, won four events at Riverside International Raceway during the weekend and then announced he is retiring from competition.

"I have enjoyed success and, while I have never felt that I was knocking at heavens door while driving, I feel that it is time I quit the cockpit and do something else," the winner of five national driving titles said. Donohue, who will be 37 years old next March, will become president and general manager of Penske Racing, Inc. He will replace Roger Penske, for whom he has driven the last six years.

The moon-faced Pennsylvanian, a serious tactician on the track and holder of a Brown University engineering degree for use in the mechanical aspects of his trade, used one of his most brilliant weekends in the sport as the springboard for his surprise announcement. He had won two of the first three rounds of the inaugural international race of champions (IROC), a four-race series involving 12 of the world's greatest drivers. Then Sunday afternoon, he blitzed a field of 24 starters in both 75 mile and 125 mile heats of the last Can-Am race of the season.

It was his sixth straight Can-Am triumph of the year, even though he had clinched the championship several weeks ago.

All told, he won $18,700 for his Can-Am victory, bringing his season's total in the series to $114,433 and $13,500 from the IROC purse, for a weekend payoff of $32,200.

Donohue will lead six survivors from the three race riverside program into the final IROC event at Daytona Beach, Fla., in February. The 12 drivers are competing in identically-prepared Porsche Carrera sports cars, clad with identical radial tires, and handled by a team of German engineers.

In addition to Donohue, the Daytona Beach survivors include Bobby Unser, David Pearson and A.J. Foyt, all of whom have won more than a million dollars in prize money on oval tracks, and Peter Revson and George Gollmer, who like Donohue are mainly road course operators.

They will race for a purse of $655,000 at Daytona, with $35,000 going to the winner.

Waldrop New N.C. Champ In Cross-Country

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina's Tony Waldrop, a world class miler in the spring, is the new North Carolina collegiate cross country champion.

Waldrop, a senior, won the title Saturday with a 35-yard victory over N.C. State's five-mile course.

His time of 24:10.8 shattered the old course record of 24:16 by Duke Olympian Bob Wheeler in 1971. Wheeler did not compete Saturday due to a minor leg injury.

The Blue Devils, despite losing the individual title and record, swept to their sixth straight team championship, handsily beating the Tar Heels.

Steve Wheeler, no relation to Bob, and Scott Eden finished second and third to lead Duke's contingent.

Victor Elk of Pembroke State was fourth and Dave Hamilton of UNC fifth.

Penn State's football teams have gone to a major bowl game five of the past six years.

Wolfpack Surges Closer To Crown

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina State pushed its way closer to a possible Atlantic Coast Conference championship Saturday by overpowering Clemson 29-6 in a regionally televised contest for the league lead.

N.C. State now stands 4-0 in conference play, while Maryland, the nearest challenger, is 3-1 after pummeling Duke 30-10 in the 27th annual Oyster Bowl game at Norfolk, Va.

With its loss to the Wolfpack, Clemson has dropped to a 2-1, third place conference rating.

Other ACC action saw Virginia take a 21-10 decision from Wake Forest and North Carolina squeak by East Carolina 28-27 with a last quarter rally.

N.C. State, Maryland and Virginia have only two other ACC contests scheduled for the season, while Clemson and Duke have three more league games ahead, and Wake Forest and North Carolina take on four more conference challenges. The Wolfpack needs to win only one other league game for at least a tie for the ACC title.

Two conference games and three with outside opponents are on tap in Saturday's ACC action. Clemson hosts Wake Forest while North Carolina travels to Virginia. Maryland will lay its 5-2 season record on the line when it meets fifth-ranked Penn State. Independent South Carolina faces the N.C. State Wolfpack and Duke plays at Georgia Tech while trying to break a losing streak that has stretched to five games.

That fourth-quarter comeback staged by North Carolina was one of three last-minute spurts staged by ACC teams who came away winners last weekend. N.C. State led Clemson from the beginning, but it was a different story with North Carolina and East Carolina, Maryland and Duke, Virginia and Wake Forest.

The Tar Heels mustered a 67-yard touchdown with an extra point in the final 50 seconds of the game with Southern Conference leader East Carolina to snatch their 28-27 victory.

Maryland's Terps grabbed three final period touchdowns for the decision over Duke. Virginia's Cavaliers came from behind in the fourth quarter to win against Wake Forest.

Won Sahara Golf Play

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — John Mahaffey recently went on a physical fitness program.

In the last couple of weeks it's added 15 pounds to his sparse, 5-foot-7 frame, some $35,000 to his bankroll and the first professional golf title to what he hopes soon will become a collection.

"I don't want this to be the only one," the boyish-looking 25-year-old tour sophomore said Sunday after his three-under-par 68 had nailed down a three-stroke victory in the $135,000 Sahara Invitational.

Mahaffey had a 271 total, 13 under par on the sun-splashed, 6,800 yard Sahara-Nevada Country Club course.

Dave Eichelberger came out of the pack with a brilliant, seven-under-par 64 and took second alone at 274. It was worth $15,390 to Eichelberger and assured him of a spot in the top 60 money winners for the season and an exempt status for next year.

Jim Ferriell, 67, and Allen Miller, 68, tied for third at 275. Lou Graham, who had shared the lead through the second and third rounds, drifted back over the last nine holes, finished with a 73 and tied at 276 with Mike Hill and Larry Ziegler.

Hill, along with Eichelberger, matched the course record at 64. Ziegler had a 72.

Arnold Palmer, one of the few big names to compete in this event, faded with a 73-283. Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Lee Trevino all skipped the tourney.

Mahaffey and Graham remained tied through the first seven holes of the final round, but Mahaffey got in front to stay with a 10 foot birdie putt on the eighth hole.

He pulled away to stay with consecutive birdies on the 14th and 15th. The first came from 15 feet on the 230-yard 14th and the next from only six feet.

"I heard a voice when I was over the putt on the 14th hole," Mahaffey said. "I don't know who it was, but the voice said, 'If he makes the putt, he's got it locked up.' That's kinda what happened."

Education in arts as well as three R's: touring the Metropolitan Opera House

ARTS for KIDS

Movies for Kids: one of programs aimed at making children see when they look, hear when they listen.

Community Holiday Festival is a time for taking part: these are China Night performers.

The arts scene can be viewed from many different cultural levels...

A youthful 11 years old itself—and still springing—New York's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts is much involved with young people and their artistic nourishment. Oh yes, there are grand opera at the Met and Great Performers in Philharmonic Hall. But, the Center's managing director, John W. Mazzola, points out, "Through our student program, a wide variety of festivals, free concerts and opera in the parks, and Movies for Kids, we reach hundreds of thousands of young people each year..."

There's certainly encouragement for young audiences. But these kids also get opportunities to join in the action as performers at street theater, choral and community holiday festivals. And those who aren't turned on by sitting formally through a concert can go on from Promenade Concerts to Rug Concerts—where they can sit on an orchestra level covered with rugs in place of chairs.

The divas are inside: meanwhile, the forecourt of the opera house is a good place for a scamper.

Death Is Just Around Corner

Dr. Hulse preached the funeral service for our oldest son, who crashed as a Marine jet pilot. If you wish to gain the most inspiring picture of Heaven, send for the booklet below, for it contains his funeral sermon, plus Edgar Guest's poem of solace for the bereaved!

By GEORGE W. CRANE Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Y-554: Dr. E. Duane Hulse is a noted Wisconsin clergyman.

He sends me his 10-page mimeographed monthly church bulletin and it is really superb. For it names at least 100 people in a constructive manner in each issue.

And that's the FIRST requisite of any church bulletin!

For people like to see their own names in print, followed by that of their children; then their relatives, friends and neighbors!

Some clergymen miss the boat by using the church bulletin to run a digest of their own sermon or to quote poetry, etc.

"I AM SCHEDULED TO DIE THIS YEAR!" That bold headline caught my eye.

It was listed as the forthcoming title of his next Sunday's sermon.

And it should challenge everybody!

For 350,000 of us will succumb to cancer THIS YEAR, right here in the U.S.A. — despite all modern surgery, X-ray, cobalt, etc.

Another 1,000,000 will die THIS YEAR of heart attacks, strokes and other blood vessel problems.

The estimate for auto highway deaths adds another 60,000.

Meanwhile, the total death number per year runs about 2,000,000.

And with the uncertainty of life, even among teen-agers, due to automobile crashes, nobody can be sure this year 1973 isn't our date to leave this planet Earth!

So now is the time to do some straight thinking! The vast majority believe there is a God.

And they think there must be a Heaven somewhere in the Cosmic Universe.

So how do we get a passport into Heaven?

"Dr. Crane," some have argued, "I give as much to the poor as a lot of virtuous church folks."

"And I abide by the laws, don't cheat on my income tax, etc., so won't I have as good a chance of getting to Heaven as those regular church goers?"

But it apparently requires more than a brotherly spirit and also more than good works, plus charitable contributions to the United Fund, the Red Cross and even church budgets.

Jesus gave mankind the most stimulating concept of the Hereafter of any religious leader in human history.

For even Abraham painted no rose verbal picture of Heaven. And the Sadduces in Christ's own generation denied the existence of a Hereafter.

But Jesus came along and delineated many wonderful characteristics of Heaven.

And he urged us to be charitable, giving us the story of the Good Samaritan as an example.

But even charity and good works are not the passport for entrance beyond the Pearly Gates! Beware!

In Matthew, 10:32, however Jesus outlined the real passport: "Whoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven."

Christ deemed that public "confession before men" so vital that He stated it in the negative, in the very next verse, saying:

"But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven."

If you wait till dying, alone, under a crashed or blazing wrecked auto, would you panicky belated confession count, if nobody else were present to hear you? For it wouldn't be "before men!"

Send for my booklet "So Long George IV," (Solace for bereaved), enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and gain the inspiring new picture of Heaven!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♥AK10 9 5 ♦AQ10 6 5 ♠8 5 4
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ 1 ♠ Dble. Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—With unbalanced hands containing a void in the enemy suit, it is against our policy to stand for penalty doubles of low-level contracts. Therefore, our recommended action is to bid two diamonds.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, you are South with a part score of 90. Your partner opens with one heart and you hold:
♠KJ10 7 5 ♥10 9 8 ♦4 3 ♣8 7 4
What action do you take?
A.—The one heart is enough for the rubber, it is doubtful that the opponents will let the game go by default. Hence, our suggestion is that you get in a bid while it is cheap. We would bid one spade, to sound as if we have something, though the ratio of two hearts is a close second.

Q. 3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠6 5 ♦AJ 9 ♣AKQJ 9 8 5 4
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—You would like to make a forcing bid, but there is none conveniently available. The only solution is a jump to three clubs. This is technically not forcing, the risk that the bidding will die there is great. If the opponents have remained silent, so it is likely that partner has a good hand. It is more important that the bidding develop naturally to facilitate determining the full possibilities of the hand.

Q. 4—As South, vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q 6 ♥A 6 ♦AJ 7 6 2 ♣AJ 9 5
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♠ Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♦ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—The possibilities of slam should not be overlooked. We suggest a cue-bid of three hearts. Partner's response to this ace-showing bid should place us in a better position to determine the final contract.

Q. 5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠AJ 6 ♥KJ 3 ♦AKQ10 9 2 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ 1 ♠ ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Even if partner's response was dead minimum, you must want to be in game somewhere with your powerful hand. The proper procedure to alert partner to your power is to make a cue-bid of two spades. If partner has a good hand, this should facilitate getting to a slam.

Q. 6—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J 9 5 4 ♥KJ 9 ♦KJ 9 8 7 ♣7
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 ♣ Dble. Pass 2 ♦ Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—By first doubling and then bidding a new suit, partner has shown very strong cards. With nine points in high cards, you have a fair holding and have not as yet shown its full value. We recommend bidding three no trump.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠5 ♥7 2 ♦KQJ 7 6 3 2 ♠8 7 2
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass Pass 1 NT Pass ?

What is your response?
A.—Three no trump. Despite your unbalanced hand, this represents your best shot for game. If partner, by some chance, does not hold the ace of diamonds, he should have three cards in the suit for his no trump opening bid, for that bid should be avoided with a worthless doubleton. As compensation, his outside stoppers would be that much better.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q 10 7 6 5 4 ♦AK 9 8 2 ♠10 2
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♣ 1 ♥ 1 ♠ 4 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Four spades. You must do something, and the fact that your partner was unable to act on the second round is not significant. It is highly likely that some of your partner's values are in spades. If, by chance, you are doubled, you can then consider running to five diamonds.

He'll Pay Costs 'Haunted House' Set For Two Nights

RALEIGH (AP)—Secretary of Transportation Bruce A. Lantz says he will pay the costs of a state helicopter ride he took to a Republican rally in Nash County last week.

Lantz, in a weekend statement issued through the governor's office, said he wished to avoid the "appearance of a double standard" but maintained that he was blameless.

Lantz rode a Highway Patrol helicopter Thursday from Raleigh to Rocky Mount, where he addressed a $5 per person GOP Nixon Day rally.

He said in his statement that he had thought he would be attending a meeting about the new seven-year highway plan.

Lantz recently fired 100 highway employes, charging many of them with improper political activities.

One of Greenville's biggest Halloween attractions in past years is being repeated again this year, when "Haunted House" opens on Tuesday and Wednesday nights at 209 West Second Street.

Under the auspices of the Greenville Recreation Department, and sponsored by Alpha Xi Delta sorority, Kappa Sigma fraternity, and the Greenville Youth Council, this year's two nights of spooky house tours are to be held in a house just across from the main post office, from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. both nights.

Coordinating the event are two Recreation Department field workers—Sue Appgar and Jerry Clark, both students of Dr. Ralph Steele, majoring in Parks, Recreation and Conservation at East Carolina University. The two are taking this project as part of their internship with the Recreation Department.

"There will be a costume contest on Wednesday night," Miss Appgar said, "with small cash prizes as incentives."

"These will amount only to $5, $3 and $2 for first, second and third best," Clark said, "with presidents of civic organizations in Greenville acting as judges. Civic groups are also contributing money for the costume contest prizes." Miss Appgar noted "there'll be about 20 to 30 people working in the Haunted House, dressed as ghosts, goblins and other things. Some of the people are from the sorority and fraternity, others may be members of civic groups."

Admission to "Haunted House" is 25 cents for those 15 years old and under, with the charge at 50 cents for people over 15.

"Proceeds will be used by the sorority and fraternity for charitable projects," Clark said. "No specific project has been designated, but it will be for something like support of a foster child or some similar current charitable project." Miss Appgar reminds parents "that any child under ten years old must be accompanied by an adult."

Plans are to have Second Street between Pitt and Washington Streets blocked off to traffic on both nights during the hours the Haunted House will be open.

Cough Drop Has Increasing Sale

MORRIS PLAINS, N.J. (AP) — During 1973, more cough drops than ever before, approximately 43 billion, will have been sold to the American public, according to the Smith Brothers cough drop people. A company spokesman attributes the rising popularity of cough drops as much to the new flavors currently available in cough drops, and their confectionery appeal, as to the severity of the cough and cold season this year.

"After all, many teachers will allow them in class," he reports, "while regular candy is strictly out."

Palestinian Killers Of U.S. Diplomats Still Untried

By RICHARD C. LONGWORTH KHARTOUM (UPI) — When Palestinian terrorists stormed an embassy reception in this Sudanese capital last March and killed the American ambassador and his deputy, the local government's reaction was immediate—and fierce.

Foreign Minister Mansour Khaled promised trial "as soon as possible." And President Jaafar Numieri, openly outraged, said his fellow Arabs had committed "a criminal, irresponsible, unrevolutionary and cowardly act ... I am determined never to be lenient or forgiving toward them."

Passions have cooled since then, as a visitor to this hot and impoverished Nile River city soon learns. Some Sudanese insiders doubt the eight Palestinians in jail for the crime will ever come to trial. Others, plus many diplomats, think the eight—all members of the "Black September" terror band—will be tried, convicted and later pardoned. Few observers, if any, expect the maximum penalty-hanging.

The Palestinians' pre-trial hearing, first set for June 16, has been postponed twice and is due now on Nov. 13. Although there have been good reasons for the postponements, they nevertheless reflect the Numieri regime's reluctance to tackle the case.

The diplomats died in one of the most violent episodes of the Palestinian campaign. On March 1, as diplomats were leaving a reception at the Saudi Arabian Embassy for departing U.S. diplomat G. Curtis Moore, the eight Palestinians swept into the legation. They seized five hostages—Moore, who had been in charge of the U.S. Embassy here; the new U.S. Ambassador Cleo A. Noel; Belgian charge Guy Eid; the Saudi ambassador, and Jordanian diplomat.

Some 24 hours later, as a duststorm swirled outside, the terrorists took Moore, Noel and Eid to the cellar and killed them in cold blood. Their bodies lay there for another 35 hours, until the Palestinians released their two Arab hostages and surrendered. The U.S. government said publicly that the Sudan should execute the terrorist. Numieri, who saw the attack not only as an affront to a brother Arab nation but as a deliberate attempt to disrupt U.S.-Sudanese relations, which had been resumed barely six months before, seemed ready to comply.

But several things have happened since then, according to both diplomatic and Sudanese sources here. First, the Sudan's natural pro-Palestinian sympathies have reasserted themselves, exacerbated this month by the new Mideast war. Among other things, 22 top Sudanese lawyers, including Bar Association President Nirgani al-Nasri, volunteered to help the defense.

Then Numieri faced a serious challenge to his one-party rule. Students demonstrated. Railway workers went on strike. The transportation system began to break down. Food shortages and inflation in both rents and food hit at the same time.

This 'Witch' Is Nice Jewish Girl Who Likes Pumpkin Pies

EDITOR'S NOTE — Does the perusal of a few palms, a study of the stars or the holding of seances make pretty Shawn Robbins a witch? Nonsense, says the professor, she's a nice Jewish girl from Queens. She's also a witch, she says, and her day is coming up.

By KAY BARTLETT AP Newsfeatures Writer NEW YORK (AP) — Pumpkin pie is her favorite food. And her favorite holiday? Halloween, of course. Shawn Robbins is a nice Jewish girl from Queens. She's also a witch, she says.

When she was 8, she told her mother a grandparent would die. Death came the next day. Since then she has predicted airplane crashes that happened, picked winning race horses and once told a friend to sell his stock at 40. It plummeted to 10. "I don't understand it," said Shawn, now 28. "Sometimes it scares me. But mostly I'm curious about it."

Shawn has studied astrology and palmistry, looked for — and claimed she found — ghosts in haunted houses and conducted a few seances that scared her out of her wits.

The first seance took place in a Canadian rooming house — on the night of the Great Black-out. When Shawn ordered the lights back on and nothing happened, she wondered what she had wrought.

Professor Hans Holzer, a parapsychologist, calls Shawn "a nice Jewish girl from Long Island with excellent psychic powers. That witch business is nonsense." Shawn, however, says she has proclaimed herself a witch. "A witch is anyone with psychic powers," she says.

Shawn supports herself by giving readings at fashion shows at a fashionable Manhattan supper club, and by conducting private readings at $20 apiece.

Shawn predicted three years ago that President Nixon would be involved in a scandal in which the letter "W" would predominate, the California earthquake and a number of plane crashes.

She is particularly fascinated by plane crashes and studies the records. "Out of 50 crashes in one year, 35 crashed in a certain phase of the moon," she says. "You would never catch me on a plane on one of those days."

For the future, Shawn has predicted an oceanliner would crash in June or July with loss of life. "I can't see whether it collides with another ship or whether it hits a reef. I also don't know whether it's American or foreign. But it's a large ship."

She also sees a separation between Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and his mother and an illness in the Nixon family within three or four months.

"I see some kind of stomach problem ..."

Shawn has worked as the bass player in a rock band, a guide for the World's Fair, a market researcher, a singer-guitarist, a writer and a seller of flowers. She has also put in duty on the unemployment line.

When she worked for a small advertising company, she kept telling her colleagues the company would not be there within a year. She was half-right. The company was merged with a larger one.

When she worked for Bristol-Myers as a market researcher, she entertained executives by predicting monthly sales figures for the products, sometimes to a fraction of the percentage.

When she conducts a private reading, she relies heavily on astrology and also things that just pop into her head. "It's like watching movies sometimes and the planets are little people in it," she says.

She has some psychic friends and notes that psychic people tend to have "bad eyes, injured heads and be musically or artistically oriented."

Shawn's powers don't always work on herself. She saw that she would be in a bad automobile accident in about six months. So she let her Blue Cross expire, intending to renew it in five months. The crash came six days later and Shawn was without insurance. That's when she started picking horses and claims she made $50 a week.

She doesn't usually do her friends as she tends to see only the good news and not the bad.

And sometimes she's dead wrong. There was the day she told a young lady named Shirley that Friday appeared to be the best day in her entire life.

"The whole week was good, but Friday looked like the day that everything she ever wanted would come true."

Shirley got all dressed up for the big day.

"Shirley was mugged on the subway and subsequently was late for work. They had been looking for an excuse to fire her anyway and so they did. Then she went home to her apartment and found an eviction notice," laughs Shawn. "When I'm wrong, I'm dead wrong."

Seek To Dispel Old Age Myths

By JAY SHARBUTT AP Television Writer NEW YORK (AP) — An ambitious effort to dispel a few myths about old age is coming up tonight on public television. It's called "Wrinkles, Birthdays and Other Fables."

The hour-long show, hosted by Flip Wilson and produced at station KCET in Los Angeles, is tailored for two specific age groups — 35 to 55 and those over 55, KCET officials say.

You might give it a try tonight, whatever your age, but don't expect any belly laughs, even though parts of the show try for them.

The basic idea of the program is to be humorous and informative. Informative it is, but the four skits intended to be funny are laborious and generally flat.

It's kind of surprising, too, because this isn't an amateur effort. The show's executive producer is Bob Henry, who runs NBC's "Flip Wilson Show."

And the list of performers volunteering their services for "Wrinkles" includes such fine pros as Barbara Feldon, Rosemary deCamp, Harry Morgan, Valerie Harper, Rosemarie, Art Linkletter and Pat Harrington Jr.

The humorous skits cover familiar old-age situations — a retired couple living out of wedlock, an old woman who complains her daughter "wants me to be a traditional granny" and a variation on the "Guess Who's Coming to Dinner" theme, with old folks instead of a black man causing the trepidation.

But the best part of the show is a serious courtroom number in which Harrington, defending a client of the "crime" of old age, makes a brilliantly eloquent speech that ends with snores from the jury.

The piece is so good it should be used by itself as a public service announcement on commercial television.

Unrelated Miscellany: ABC's "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice" has become the first casualty of the new television season. It's out after Nov. 7, with movies filling its Wednesday night time slot until Nov. 28.

On that day, nostalgia takes over for the next five weeks with a half-hour show called "Dick Clark Presents the Rock 'n' Roll Years." After that, ABC will announce a new series.

Youth Charged With Murder During Holdup

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—A 16-year-old Hickory youth was being held in the Hickory jail pending a preliminary hearing in District Court Nov. 13, after being charged with murder in the shooting of a Lenoir Rhyne College coed.

Kristin Elizabeth Cress Andrews, 21, was shot during the holdup last Wednesday night of a steak house in Hickory where she worked part-time. She died Thursday.

Police Lt. David Noble said Nelson Caldwell Montgomery was charged with murder in the shooting Friday.

Three persons were believed involved in the robbery of the Le Charolais Steak House in which $1,100 was taken, but Noble said no other arrests had been made.

Unanswered Questions Raised By State's Firings

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Days of reckoning finally came last week for some 113 employees in the state departments of Transportation and Social Rehabilitation and Control.

As they had probably feared they might be, the employees, all holdovers from previous Democratic administrations, were fired. It was the first massive discharge of employees undertaken by the Holshouser administration since it took office in January.

The firings raise several questions, few of which were answered by the statements issued by Secretary of Transportation Bruce Lentz and Secretary of Social Rehabilitation and Control David Jones. These men said the firings followed lengthy reviews of employee productivity and came for reasons of incompetence, improper political activity, laziness, or some combination of the three.

But other observers, in and out of the Republican party, raised questions concerning the timing and manner of the dismissals.

Lentz said the announcement about the 100 employees in the Highway Division was made last week because he had decided to fully review personnel matters and get the Administration's prized seven-year road plan off the ground before taking any drastic action.

But some supporters of Frank Rouse, who is battling the Administration in an effort to remain GOP chairman, could not accept the idea that the firings' temporal proximity to this weekend's state GOP convention was a coincidence.

Delegates to the convention this weekend will know that those 113 jobs, and perhaps others, will be doled out by the governor and his aides, even if Rouse should win.

State Rep. Gilbert Lee Boger, R-Davie, a chief Rouse backer, said in an interview Sunday that he was convinced that the timing of the firings, and some of the personnel involved, were part of an effort to sway votes to Rouse's challenger, Thomas Bennett.

Lentz heatedly denied those allegations in another interview. He said that he had made the decisions strictly on the basis he outlined in his statement of last Thursday.

Another question raised by the firings is how the Democrats, still firmly in control in the state legislature, will react to them.

In 1973, enough Democrats broke party ranks to prevent any of what Holshouser called "stripping" bills to pass. Several of these, which would limit the governor's power to hire and fire, are still alive.

Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt has appointed a special committee to report back to the state Senate on the firings, but a survey of several influential Democratic legislators Sunday indicated that the reaction to the firings fell short of outrage.

Senate Majority Leader Gordon Allen, D-Person, said "It's awfully early to tell what the reaction might be. 100 is a small number when you compare it to 12,500 (the total number of employees in the Department of Transportation)."

Allen said he thought the actions might help enact the House-passed bill to put the Highway Patrol under the control of a Democratic dominated Public Safety Commission.

Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, was one of the key Democrats who broke ranks on several of the "stripping" bills. Johnson said he might now be interested in legislation to protect career employees.

But both he and Allen conceded that every administration makes personnel changes and noted that any large state agency probably has "deadwood" personnel who ought to be fired.

They appeared to be more upset with the manner of the firings. Johnson noted that not all of the 100 employees whose fate was sealed Thursday have been notified yet.

Lentz acknowledged that Sunday, saying he felt it necessary to talk to the higher-ranking persons personally before letting them go. He said all would be told of their status within a few days.

Finally, how many more firings will there be? No one in the Administration appears ready to be specific. Holshouser, asked that question, said only "one or two per cent" of the highway personnel would be fired. Two per cent would be 250.

And, there has been no comparable housecleaning to date in several major departments controlled by the Republicans: Revenue, Natural and Economic Resources, Administration, and Human Resources.

Supplemental Aid By Jan. 1

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—The government has begun searching for aged, blind and disabled Americans who may be eligible for newly federalized welfare payments beginning Jan. 1.

Arthur E. Hess, deputy commissioner of the Social Security Commission, disclosed in an interview that his agency is surveying 400,000 persons in areas of large elderly and poor populations and another 88,000 in a nationwide sampling.

If the nationwide survey is productive, he said, Social Security is prepared to contact another 1.6 million potential recipients of Supplemental Security Income (SSI), the new name for the federal takeover of adult welfare cases.

By phone and mail, district offices are explaining benefits and eligibility to the aged poor, and collecting preliminary information on each person's unearned income and assets.

In the interview, Hess spoke cautiously of previous HEW estimates that about 3 million persons would be added to SSI rolls by next July 1, in addition to the 3.4 million now receiving welfare who will be converted automatically.

"I'm not prepared to say publicly or privately yet that this is an overestimate," Hess said. "But many of the 3 million may not be in a hurry to come in, for one reason or another."

"In a year or so from now, when word gets around I think many of these nonparticipants gradually are going to warm up to the idea," he said.

The new law guarantees a minimum monthly income of $130 for eligible individuals and $195 for couples, rising to $140 and $210 respectively in mid-1974.

In general, SSI checks will be mailed monthly to elderly, blind and disabled persons who receive less than $150, or $215 for couples, from Social Security benefits, pensions, workman's compensation, black lung benefits or insurance annuities, and who have less than $1,500 or $2,250 in bank deposits, stocks or bonds.

Eligibility is denied to those owning houses assessed at more than $25,000, or $35,000 in Alaska and Hawaii, or cars valued at more than $1,200 unless necessary in employment or for medical reasons.

States are required to maintain each person's support at December 1973 levels, or face the loss of federal matching funds for Medicaid.

Before Congress amended the law to protect incomes of those now on welfare, total state-federal costs of the new program had been estimated at $4.8 billion the first year. New cost estimates have not been completed.

Longest POW Is Wed Saturday

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Lt. Cmdr. Everett Alvarez, the American prisoner of war who was held the longest in North Vietnam, has married the woman who greeted him on his return home.

Alvarez and Thomasine Ilyas were married Saturday in a formal ceremony at St. Georges Eastern Orthodox church.

Alvarez, who was divorced by his first wife while he was a prisoner, met his bride when he returned home on a repatriation flight. She was working as an airline passenger service representative in Washington, D.C.

They plan to live at Kingville Naval Air Station in Texas where Alvarez is taking flight retraining. The 35-year-old naval officer spent 8½ years as a prisoner.

Voted 6-1 To Impeach

CHICAGO (AP)—Persons answering a Chicago Sun-Times write-in poll overwhelmingly favored the impeachment of President Nixon.

The poll ballots were printed in the paper last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. The response, reported in the newspaper's Sunday editions, favored impeachment 6 to 1.

Almost 84 per cent, or 7,010 of the 8,390 responses, voted "yes" for impeachment.

The newspaper said 7,050 favored the appointment of a new special Watergate prosecutor to replace Archibald Cox, who was dismissed by Nixon.

The poll was tabulated before Nixon's Friday night news conference at which he said a new prosecutor would be appointed.

About 17 per cent voted against impeachment and 15 per cent were against a new prosecutor.

The Sun-Times reported that ballots returned after Nixon announced he would turn over the controversial White House tapes over to Judge John J. Sirica still favored impeachment almost 6 to 1.
