Procter & Gamble Announces Plant Here

NEW PLANT—Architect's drawing of the food products plant to be built by Procter & Gamble north of Greenville, on State Route 1529. The plant, which will manufacture Pringle's potato chips, will have approximately 10 acres under roof and will employ about 450 people when completed in early 1975.

The Procter & Gamble Manufacturing Co. today announced plans to build a food products plant on a 220-acre site north of Greenville on the Old Creek Road.

Company officials said here this morning that site preparaton will begin immediately, although plant construction is not expected to begin until early next year. The plant is scheduled for completion in late 1974 or early 1975.

The Greenville plant will manufacture Pringle's Newfangled Potato Chips, one of the company's food products brands. Pringle's are currently produced at Procter & Gamble's Jackson, Tenn. plant and are marketed throughout the Midwest and in portions of the Middle Atlantic, Great Plains, and Southwestern states.

The new facility here will ultimately employ about 450 people, the officials reported, with an annual payroll in excess of $2,000,000. Over 80 per cent of the work force will be employed from the Greenville area with local hiring expected to begin late in 1974.

Company representatives, it was noted, will probably begin organizing the local training program during next summer. A training site has not been selected.

Procter & Gamble announced that it will initially develop approximately the southwest one-third of the 220-acre plant site. The new facility will face State Road 1529 (Old Creek Road) with a 300-foot setback. When completed, the producton, warehouse, and office building will include some ten acres under roof. A rail siding will be extended to the plant site.

Daniel Construction Co. of Greenville S.C. will be the general contractor for plant construction.

In announcing building plans today, Procter & Gamble officials stressed the company's appreciation for the cooperation and assistance provided by Greenville officials, the Pitt County Development Commission, and other state and local groups and individuals during the company's study of Greenville as a potential plant site.

Procter & Gamble, founded in Cincinnati in 1837 by brothers-in-law William Procter and James Gamble, is a leading manufacturer of detergents, soaps, toiletries, food products, coffee, and household paper products.

In addition to Pringle's which the company advertises as "made a newfangled way from dried potatoes," other food products manufactured by Procter & Gamble included Crisco shortening, Crisco salad and cooking oil, Fluffo shortening, Jif peanut butter, and Duncan Hines baking mixes.

Pringle's are packaged in air-tight, moisture-proof, recappable containers.

The company's net sales for 1972-1973 total $3,906,744,000, an increase over 1971-1972 figures of $3,514,438,000. Net earnings for the 1972-1973 period amount to $302,103,000, compared with $276,310,000 recorded for the 1971-1972 period.

Procter & Gamble employs some 31,900 in the United States and an additional 15,700 in other countries. Currently, there are 94,000 shareholders in the Cincinnati-based corporation.

Other Procter & Gamble food manufacturing plants are located in Chicago, Ill.; Cincinnati, Ohio; Dallas, Texas; Jackson, Tenn.; Lexington, Ky.; Long Beach and Sacremento, Calif.; Macon, Ga.; Portsmouth, Va.; and Staten Island, N.Y. It also operates the D.H. Food Co. in Omaha, Neb.

'Tremendous Pressure' On CIA, FBI To Limit Watergate Probe Indicated

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional report concludes that former White House counsel John W. Dean III put "tremendous pressure" on the FBI as well as the CIA to limit the first Watergate investigation.

The House intelligence subcommittee report, released today, said Dean urged then-acting FBI director L. Patrick Gray with some 25 calls in two weeks to hold off investigating evidence that campaign contributions for President Nixon were involved in the break-in at Democratic National Committee headquarters.

The report quoted Gray as saying Dean's final calls in the effort shortly after the June 17, 1972, break-in were, in the report's words, "made in such a way as to constitute harassment."

It quoted deputy CIA Director Vernon A. Walters as saying Dean told him "the problem was how to stop the FBI investigation beyond the five suspects" caught red-handed in the break-in.

The subcommittee's report on its four-month, closed-door probe of CIA involvement in the Watergate scandal also said:

—When Dean and former top White House aides H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman urged that the FBI not investigate the so-called Mexican connection involving Nixon campaign contributions because of possible exposure of secret CIA activities, they were "invoking nonexisting conflicts with CIA operations."

—The CIA and its top officials were nothing more than "unwitting dupes" in supplying disguises used in the Watergate break-in, the burglary of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office and other domestic activities.

Although the subcommittee said there was no evidence the CIA knew what the disguises were used for, it obviously should have pressed convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt harder to find out before supplying the disguises.

—Testimony of Gray and Ehrlichman conflict with President Nixon's May 22 statement on how Gray's famous warning to the President that aides were "trying to mortally wound you" came about.

Gray testified that Nixon called back 30 minutes after the acting FBI director gave that warning to a Nixon aide and Gray repeated it to the President, the report said. It quoted Nixon's May 22 statement in which he said he had called Gray on another matter when Gray brought up his concern that, as the President put it, the Watergate investigation would go higher.

Gray told the Senate Watergate Committee the FBI already had learned by then that $89,000 in campaign contributions had gone through a Mexican bank and wound up in the Miami bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of the five men caught in the Watergate break-in.

Top Quota

The 116-pint-per visit quota was surpassed yesterday when the Red Cross Bloodmobile collected on the East Carolina University campus.

Some 156 pints were given with 14 rejects reported.

The Bloodmobile is at ECU again today. Tomorrow it will be in Bethel from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., according to Pitt Blood Chairman Billy Ross.

"We're hoping the Centennial spirit will prevail here and that this visit, sponsored by the Bethel Rotary Club, will be a highly successful one," Ross said. It will be held at the Rotary Club Building.

UN Tightens Its Surveillance Role

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Israeli military command accused the Egyptians of firing three surface to air missiles at reconnaissance flights over Israeli-held territory in the Sinai today but said none of the planes was hit.

The complaint came as U.N. forces tightened their surveillance of the Mideast cease-fire. A U.N. official said in Cairo that Swedish troops have established six observation posts along the Suez cease-fire line and are trying to link with Finns to the south.

He said 53 more Swedes and Finns are due in Cairo tonight to increase the special U.N. emergency force to 660.

The Israeli command said the missiles were fired at its reconnaissance planes flying over the mountainous Jidi area near where the bulk of Egypt's 3rd Army has been trapped by Israeli forces on the east side of the Suez Canal.

The Israeli government came under home front criticism Monday when it allowed supplies to reach the isolated Egyptian army without first winning concessions on the return of Israeli prisoners of war.

Egypt and Syria have so far refused to provide Tel Aviv with lists of Israeli POWs.

Premier Golda Meir held up plans to return 2,000 wounded Arab POWs until the Arabs come up with a list of Israelis they captured in the war.

Maj. Gen. Shmuel Eyal said the Israeli governnment believes Egypt is holding about 350 Israelis and Syria about 100. He says Israel is willing to trade the 7,000 Arabs it captured for them.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al Ahram said Egypt informed U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim it will give the prisoner list to the International Red Cross, but there was no immediate comment from Israel.

Al Ahram said Egypt made the promise while stressing to Waldheim "the necessity of Israeli troops withdrawing" to their positions when the first U.N. cease-fire went into effect Oct. 22.

An Israeli military delegation led by MaJ. Gen. Aharon Yariv met Monday for the third time with Egyptian officers at the cease-fire line on the west bank of the canal, and an Israeli spokesman said they discussed the prisoner situation. More such meetings were expected, the Israeli command said.

Indication That Oil Industry Has N.C. Plans

ASHEVILLE (AP)—North Carolina's industrial resources director, Robert Leake, told a committee of the state Board of Conservation and Development Monday he had received strong indications the oil industry wants to locate refineries in coastal North Carolina and to establish a deepwater oil port 20 miles off Morehead City,

Leake also told the committee there is a good chance that a site off Morehead City will be recommended in a $300,000 study being made under the sponsorship of the states of North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

Goldsboro Has Water Cut-Off

GOLDSBORO, N.C. (AP) — This city of about 30,000 was without water this morning after a valve broke at the city water processing plant.

City officials said they were unsure when citizens would have water again, that it could be another 24 hours.

The valve broke after the city tried to install an emergency water line from the Neuse River to pickup an extra 2 million gallons a day.

Officials said the extra water was needed because the city's main water supply, the Little River, a tributary of the Neuse, has fallen more than 40 inches in the past week.

While crews were making the proper connections for the emergency supply, the valve broke, causing all water to the city to cease.

Most major industries had cut production during the past week, and shut down altogether this morning. Schools and businesses were attempting to function as normal, while waiting for the valve to be repaired.

Seymour Johnson Air Force Base went on its own water supply Monday to conserve water for the city.

Officials said the city normally serves from 50,000 to 60,000 persons, including residents of the city, the Air Force Base and residential areas.

Martin County Adds 2 More Traffic Victims

PARMELE — Martin County's high record of tragic highway deaths in 1973 had another two victims added to the list Monday when a man and wife died after being struck by a train.

E.C. Griffin and his wife Fannie Griffin, identified as residents of Eden, died in a 2:45 p.m. accident Monday in Parmele.

"The accident occurred at the railway crossing in Parmel," State Highway Patrolman B.W. Collier said. "The Griffin vehicle was heading west on U.S. 64 and was struck broadside by the northbound train."

Collier said witnesses said the couple obviously did not see the train or the electrically operated warning lights flashing, "as there was no attempt made t apply the brakes or no ski marks from brakes."

The vehicle, a 1974 Jeepster, was knocked about 100 feet down the track. "Witnesses said it overturned sever times," Collier noted, "and caught fire when it came to rest.Witnesses attempted to help put the fire out a couple of times, but then the vehicle exploded and was engulfed in flames."

Collier said the couple was not identified until relatives from Eden arrived and made positive identification. "They were both burned beyond recognition," he said.

The death of the two makes a total of four persons who have died in auto-train collisions in Martin County within the span of a month. Two young Martin County men died three weeks ago at an unmarked crossing on Wild Cat Road just west of Williamston.

For 1973 the death toll in accidents in Martin County stands at 22, including persons killed in towns and in rural areas of the county.

Propose Dune Become New State Park

ASHEVILLE, N.C.(AP)— The North Carolina Board of Conservation and Development recommended Monday that Jockey's Ridge on the Outer Banks, the highest sand dune on the East Coast, be made a state park to preserve it from private development.

The ridge at Nags Head actually is two sand dunes, the highest 141 feet. Thousands of tourists climb them each year.

Citizen groups have been fighting to protect the area. Private development is encroaching on the dunes, which are on private property.

A resolution for the state park was approved by a committee and then by the full board. "The physical nature of the area and the present pattern of land development suggest that land acquisition for such an area may well be a very costly proposition," the resolution said.

The committee noted, "There are no state funds for this project." Several sources of money were discussed, including gifts and state and federal appropriations.

In other action:

The Commercial and Sport Fisheries Committee agreed to reopen next week some 4,000 acres of coastal waters to shell fishing. The waters, in the vicinity of Morehead City, Beaufort and Carolina Beach, had ben closed because of pollution.

The board was told that removal of the tax on manufacturers' inventory will be the major legislative goal of the Division of Commerce and Development. A spokesman said the tax might discourage industry from locating in North Carolina.

The Grandfather Mountain Motel Operators Association asked that the state establish and maintain a year-round vacation area for sledding, snow and water skiing, ice skating and off-road vehicle trails. The resolution was referred to a committee.

The State Parks Committee called for a public hearing in the Lake Waccamaw area on controversial state lake proposals. A hearing at Lake Singletary this month drew about 300 persons.

That Troublesome Child May Be An Ill Child

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of the first "child specialists" to spot "the troubled and troublesome child" is the classroom teacher, says Dr. Sam D. Clments, a clinical psychologist. He is a professor, department of psychiatry, University of Arkansas Medical Center.

Addressing a postgraduate course for physicians on management of the child with MBD —"minimal brain dysfunction," Dr. Clements said that least five to 10 per cent of American schoolchildren are likely to have a specific learning disability and-or hyperactivity and other neuro-developmental irregularities of sufficient severity as to require special help.

These are children of normal intelligence, he said, and yet, their parents often fear they are retarded because they do not develop reading, writing, spelling, and language skills at the same rate as others.

These children must be recognized and treated at an early age or they are likely to develop some form of maladjustment in later life, the doctors were told.

The two days of seminars on MBD were sponsored by the Child Guidance Clinic in Jacksonville, Fla.; the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, University of Arkansas School of Medicine; and CIBA Pharmaceutical Company, Summit, N.J., as part of its Medical Horizons Postgraduate Medical Education Series.

The course was designed to give practical guidelines to the physician in private practice who is most likely to be consulted about the child with MBD symptoms.

MBD Usually Salvageable

Dr. John E. Peters, course director, and director of the Division of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry at the Arkansas school, said that less than one per cent of those afflicated are diagnosed and treated. "This is particularly discouraging," he said, "because the MBD is nearly always salvageable."

The child psychiatrist said that a child who is not helped early in his elementary school years may fall years behind in reading and writing and never catch up.

Discouraged, he may become a dropout, a juvenile delinquent, or even a drug abuser—an individual who doesn't fit in with others.

Dr. Peters said medication, used under supervision, helps MBD children to concentrate for longer periods of time and to focus their attention on completing specific tasks without being easily distracted by outside stimuli. It is discontinued when it is no longer needed.

Also helpful for the MBD child are a favorable home and school environent. When there is a disturbed situation, the chances of the child developing life-long problems are more likely.

Dr. Peters gave these tips for parents to follow at home:

Do not pressure a child for higher grades. Accept him for what he is and what he does. The emphasis should be on enjoying the learning experience.

Do not ask the child to do more than two tasks at a time. He will usually forget to do an assigned chore. Remind him. However, nagging will not help. The worst thing a parent can do is to do the chore himself. "Children have to be taught the responsibilities of life, and there is no better way to begin than with assigned chores."

Set aside a time and a quiet place away from the television set for homework. Parents should not sit with the child, but should be close by, ready to help.

An older sister or brother can read to the young child. When he gets older, perhaps at about eight years of age, he can use a tape recorder, which most children enjoy anyway.

"These children definitely do mature," Dr. Peters said, "but it takes them much longer to show it. There is a maturational lag, but they catch up in the teen years if they have sufficient support at home and in school, during their elementary school years."

Door Swings Both Ways For Parents And Children

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published the following:

DEAR ABBY: Our brother is 21. He just graduated from college, and has a job that pays him $100 a week. Brother wants to live at home with our parents. They think it will teach Brother a sense of responsibility if he pays them $75 a month for his room and board.

Since Brother is the oldest of six children, what goes for him will probably go for the rest of us.

We don't think children should have to pay to live with someone they love.

Our whole family would like to know how you feel about this. THE OTHER KIDS

DEAR KIDS: How long should an able-bodied, gainfully employed 21-year-old expect to live with Mama and Papa for free? Six months? A year? Forever? Circumstances and opinions differ in all families, however, reasonable people should be able to agree to terms that will satisfy both the lover and the lovees.

Abby, let's put it this way:

DEAR ABBY: We are the parents of a 21-year-old son who has just graduated from college. Now that he has a nice apartment and is making a good salary, we would like to sell our house and move in with him.

He thinks we should pay $75 a month for room and board. We don't think parents should have to pay to live with someone they love. What do you think, Abby? Sign this. . . "THE PARENTS"

DEAR PARENTS: That door swings both ways. Parents who are able to support themselves shouldn't freeload on their kids.

DEAR ABBY: Who wouldn't live at home for $75 a month if Mom and Dad are dummies enough to offer it? The kid [correction—at 21, he's a man] is getting a real bargain.

The real question is: "Do Mom and Dad love him enough to push him out of the nest now that he is self-supporting?" And does he love them enough to take care of himself and ease their burden with the other five? Whether they can afford it or not, they are doing him a disservice to let him stay.

The other kids should know that loving isn't necessarily giving. It is strong stuff when you love enough to say, "GO!" PUZZLED IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about that girl who found out when she was 16 that her parents had been married six months before she was born. She said they were the greatest, and she didn't hold anything against them.

I am 14, and I want that girl to know that I was born four days AFTER my parents were married, and I've known about it for three years because my mother told me, and I respect her even more for being honest.

You should never look down on a person because she made a mistake. A friend of mine was born illegitimate and she knew it, but she never held it against her mother until her mother denied it.

Lying is stupid. The truth always has a way of coming out. GRATEFUL

Try New Idea With Pumpkin

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sculpting a Jack O'Lantern out of a pumpkin is only half the fun at Halloween. What to do with the Pumkin's innards? Economy in these inflationary days dictates that the meat of the orange-colored fruit not be discarded.

First to mind is the traditional pumpkin pie, but there'll be plenty of that as the season rolls towards Thanksgiving. Why not be creative and try pumpkin soup—a creamy, subtle meal-starter held in high regard by the Down Unders of Australia. Here's how:

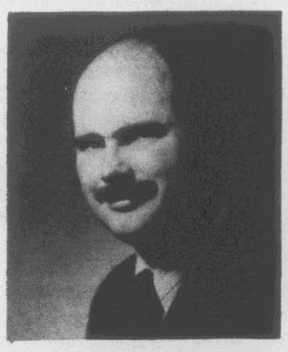

Cook the pumpkin meat in a minimum of water for 15 minutes. Combine two cups of milk, a bay leaf, two thin slices of onion, a couple of parsley sprigs and bring to a boil. Stir this into the pumpkin and add a half teaspoon of sugar and a pinch of grated nutmeg. Cook two tablespoons of quick-cooking tapioca in one cup of chicken stock until tender. Add to soup. Then add one cup of scalded heavy cream. Bring the soup to a boil before serving.

There's a non-tapioca version, too, which is a little less trouble in preparation. Cube two pounds of pumpkin meat and put in a saucepan with two small chopped onions, two cans of chicken consumme and two-and-a-half cans of water, one teaspoon salt and a half teaspoon pepper. Cook over low heat for an hour, then force the pumpkin through a sieve and return to the saucepan. Mix a tablespoon of flour with a little water until smooth and add to the soup, stirring constantly until the boiling point when a cup of light cream is added. Serve with toasted croutons.

Brake Is Applied To Soviet Trade Bill

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — With an eye on big-power politics in the Middle East, the Nixon administration has asked Congress to suspend efforts to liberalize trade with the Soviet Union or tie commercial transactions to Russian emigration policies.

Peter Flanigan, Nixon's chief adviser on foreign economic policy, told a Senate banking subcommittee hearing Monday the position would be changed if a satisfactory Mideast peace settlement is achieved.

"We think it is inappropriate at this time to deal with these issues," Flanigan testified. "It is clear that a settlement in the Middle East depends on cooperation with Russia."

The House Ways and Means Committee has approved an administration-backed foreign trade bill that would grant most-favored-nation status to the Soviets, thereby placing Russian goods under the lowest import duty that is available to United States trading partners.

The House committee, however, added an amendment by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., that would condition the trade liberalization on the Soviet Union's adoption of a free emigration policy for Jews and others wishing to leave.

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., told Flanigan an effort might be made to attach the Jackson amendment to legislation increasing the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank.

Flanigan said his request for a temporary halt applied to both the trade and bank bills.

In Los Angeles, Occidental Petroleum Corp., a prime mover in expanding commerce with the Soviet Union, said a delay in the trade bill would have no effect on its multi billion dollar deal involving chemical fertilizer and development of a world trade center in Moscow.

"Neither of these require most-favored-nation sanctions," Occidental board chairman Armand Hammer said. He added that he thought "President Nixon clearly had no choice but to withdraw the trade bill at this time."

Meanwhile, the Agriculture Department's Foreign Agricultural Service reported Monday that the 1973 Russian wheat crop was rebounding from last year's near-disastrous harvest and would reach a record 100 million tons.

If the projection holds up, the department said, the Russians could have some surplus wheat to sell on the world market in competition with U.S. growers, who last year sold one-fourth of their wheat production to the Soviet Union.

Featured speakers will include Dr. Jefferson McAlpine of the Mental Health Administration, Washington, D.C.; Dr. Larnie Horton, Special Assistant to Gov. Holshouser for Minority Affairs; and David Flaherty, Secretary of the N.C. Dept. of Human Resources.

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 13, the workshop will host the general public at a special presentation by Dr. James H. Brewer, UNC-Chapel Hill professor of history, on "Expression of Alcholism as Told through Song and Verse in the Black Community."

Fighting Goes On In Cambodia

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Fighting continued Monday night at two points along Highway 5 as government forces attempted to clear the road to Cambodia's rice bowl, the military command reported today.

Col. Am Rong, command spokesman, said one operation was centered 12 miles northwest of Phnom Penh where Khmer Rouge insurgents controled a four-mile section of the road.

Another government force was trying to drive the rebels from a 10-mile stretch of the highway 35 miles from the capital.

The government forces made little headway Monday. The highway, which has not been open to government traffic since Sept. 6, runs from Phnom Penh to Battambang Province, in northwest Cambodia.

Another government column linked up Monday with the defenders of Vihear Suor 12 miles northeast of Phnom Penh after slogging through flooded marshlands for several weeks, the command said. Although the siege on the small provincial capital was broken two weeks ago, it has been under continuing pressure.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon command said 37 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong soldiers were killed in three attacks in the Mekong Delta, while government casualties were six dead and 18 wounded.

'Rap Center' Is Being Opened

A Christian coffehouse called "The Prodigal" is being opened at 510 Cotanche Street here through an interdenomination effort.

The "rap center" in a store building is to be a place where anyone can come and talk about anything on his mind, according to the Rev. Steve Jones, pastor of Faith Assembly of God, one of the developers of the coffeehouse.

Jones said the public is invited to a meeting at the coffeehouse tonight at 7:30 to learn more about the plans for the project.

The Dream That Will Not Die

The East Carolina University medical school is a matter that is just not going to die, no matter how strong the opposition.

The First Congressional District Republicans endorsed this important project at a recent convention here.

Last week the N.C. Grange, an influential farm organization, unanimously gave its approval of a resolution calling for development of the ECU med school to four years.

State Grange Master Mrs. Harry B. Caldwell said the resolution "seems to reflect the sentiment of rural people that more doctors and medical personnel are desperately needed in the state, and especially in rural areas. The rural areas are suffering for lack of medical attention. This is, and has been, a matter of concern for our people for a long time."

Also last week Dr. Wallace Wooles, dean of the school, said the recent medical consultants' report calling for establishment of more residency training posititions in North Carolina fits exactly with ECU's hopes to have a four-year school.

Dr. Wooles pointed out that the residency positions could be established while the ECU school is building to four-year status.

Support from individuals and organziations throughout our state continues to build and there is really no reason why development of the ECU school cannot be carried out as other matters recommended by the consultants are being implemented.

The important thing is that the public is demanding that North Carolina get on with the job of developing the ECU School of Medicine.

Toss Gauntlet Over Firings

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The gauntlet has been thrown on the governor's desk by the leadership of the General Assembly over the firings of state employees.

A summertime of "Wait-and-see" comments ended abruptly last week when Secretary Bruce Lentz announced the firings of some 100 career employes of the State Department of Transportation. Rumors that other departments would follow suit are still being heard.

Overnight, Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt—highest ranking Democrat in elective office—reacted. He announced a committee of the N.C. Senate, over which he presides, to start immediately a full scale investigation. He made it clear that Wake County Sen. Bob Barker, named chairman, would have full investigative powers: subpoena of witnesses, access to documents staff aid, to get what information is needed.

Lt. Gov. Hunt made it clear he doesn't label the dismissals— and others preceding this in other departments—as political. "But hard working state employes are doing a good job should not be fired simploy to make a job for Republicans," he said. The committee will seek the answer to the question of politic.

Relations With Governor

Asked what his action might do to his relationships with Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser, Hunt said, "The effect on relations is not the point. What is happening in our state is what is important." He said he doesn't expect his action to affect his relations with the governor.

Then Hunt added, summing up the feelings of a lot of lawmakers, "We have tried to give this administration a chance."

This the first time in memory of most observers of the General Assembly that a lieutenant governor has flown in the face of the governor with whom he serves. Legislative leaders readily call the action an open challenge to the governor.

It hasn't happened to late largely for two reasons: one, both officals have been of the same party as a rule; secondly, the lieutenant governor served as a part-time officials, functioning in the limited capacity of presiding officer of the Senate and little else.

Hunt is the first full-time lieutenant governor in the state.

Additionally, the decision to set up a Senate committee to probe firings by the Republican administration resulted not only from Hunt's interest in the situation, but from expressisons of interest from members of the Senate in town for a variety of committee meetings and hearings last week as the most recent firings were announced.

A Legislative Issue

"Also, Hunt feels strongly that this is a legislative issue," an aide said. He believes that agreements between the General Assembly and the administration have been broken.

In the session earlier this year, the General Assembly made noises of personnel acts effectively stripping the governor and his appointees of powers in this field, including moves toward moving the prisons to the Justice Department; a move to put the State Highway Patrol under a commission decision on any prejudicial firings binding on the agency involved in the firings.

The House of Representatives sent the personnel bill to the Senate with approval, but it stayed in committee awaiting possible action in the next session beginning in January.

Several factors were at work in stopping the General Assembly from stripping the governor of the personnel powers he holds: assurances from administration spokesmen that no purges were to take place; public reaction that Democrats were simply harassing a Republican governor; and the feeling that the steps would damage a future Democratic governor, hampering him in making changes he would need to make.

Also involved were the elements of friction between Sentate and House which usually builds up during a session and often interferes with a bill's progress.

But principally, the assurance that an administration purge was not in the offerings prompted the lawmakers to take a wait-and-see posture.

"But now, we have waited; and we have seen," one legislative leader said bluntly. "The feeling was that the administration would not attempt such moves. That it would be foolish." Lawmakers held off when the prison shakepup took place and when the Highway Patrol was revamped, figuring there would not be continuation.

And so Lt. Gov. Hunt concluded his announcement of a Senate committee with these words: "The findings of the Special Committee should help us determine if additional legislation is needed in North Carolina in the personnel policy area. And it should help us determine whether or not this administration is acting in good faith when it says it is taking politics out of government."

It might also find out, an onlooker mumbled, how many people have been fired since January.

Judge Sirica Deserves That 'Courage' Award

Judge John J. Sirica was given the American Judges Association award of merit for "judicial courage" for his state in the Watergate tapes matter.

Last week President Nixon agreed to turn over the tapes to the judge as he had been ordered.

Judge Sirica deserves this award. It required a brave man, indeed, to stand his ground against the president of the United States.

Israel Blames USSR In War

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TEL AVIV — While Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was in Moscow to patch up detente between the U.S. and the Soviet Union and arrange an Arab-Israeli ceasefire, a diatribe of unmatched intensity was being unleashed at high political levels here against both the Soviet Union and the U.S.-Soviet detente.

The diatribe went beyond the wholly natural Israeli fury over the supply of weapons that killed more than 1,000 Israelis. Such anti-Soviet passion, given the bloody circumstances, was foreordained.

But what some top officials of the government, including defense minister Moshe Dayan, have been saying publicly — and many others have been voicing privately — goes beyond these normal feelings of anger cooked up by the terrible experience of the latest Arab-Israeli war.

What makes this significant is Israel's growing influence on the U.S. Congress, where a powerful pro-Israel bloc headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson is equally convinced that detente is a dangerous delusion. The ferocity of the Israeli line, underlining that Jackson and Co. conviction, threatens detente even more because of Israel's special relations with the U.S.

Kissinger and President Nixon ("your original anti-Communist hard-liner," one politician told us sarcastically) are being portrayed as victims of a clever and successful deception by the Kremlin.

One extremely influential politician, Menachem Begin, who leads the largest opposition bloc in Prime Minister Golda Meir's Knesset (parliament) told us that the Egyptian army came across the Suez Canal "with Russian arms, Russian bridges and Russian aims."

Those aims? To open the canal to the largest Soviet fleet ever assembled in the Mediterranean and consolidate Soviet control over strategic areas east of Suez including Somalia on the African east coast, Aden on the tip of the Saudi Arabian peninsula, with a growing threat to Iran.

"The Kremlin used detente to deceive America," Begin, an extremely hardheaded, hard-lining Israeli hawk, told us. Moreover, he put the start of the deceit in August 1970, when the Egyptians broke an agreement and moved their Soviet surface-to-air missiles close to the Suez Canal just as the U.S.-arranged ceasefire along the canal was coming into effect.

Those missiles were one big reason for the initial success of the Egyptian armies that crossed the canal on Oct. 6, Begin said. A major factor in the withdrawal of his right-wing party from Mrs. Meir's government in 1970, which it had joined in a unity movement on the eve of the

Public Forum

To the editor:

Public apathy can defeat anything and we haven't heard enough about the State School Bond Issue. We wish to say a word in support of this proposal to be voted on at the Nov. 6 election.

We have no children in school; nevertheless, the education of our young people is very important to us. There can be no doubt that the money is needed today considering the population increase, the overcrowded condition of our schools, and the added curriculum needed today.

Perhaps the issue will be supported by more older people if they realize passage of this needed proposal will cost them nothing personally, except the time it takes to mark YES on the ballot.

Please let us hear more on this important public issue as to what advantages its passage will mean to the future of this and other communities.

Strength For Today

BUT NEVER FIRST

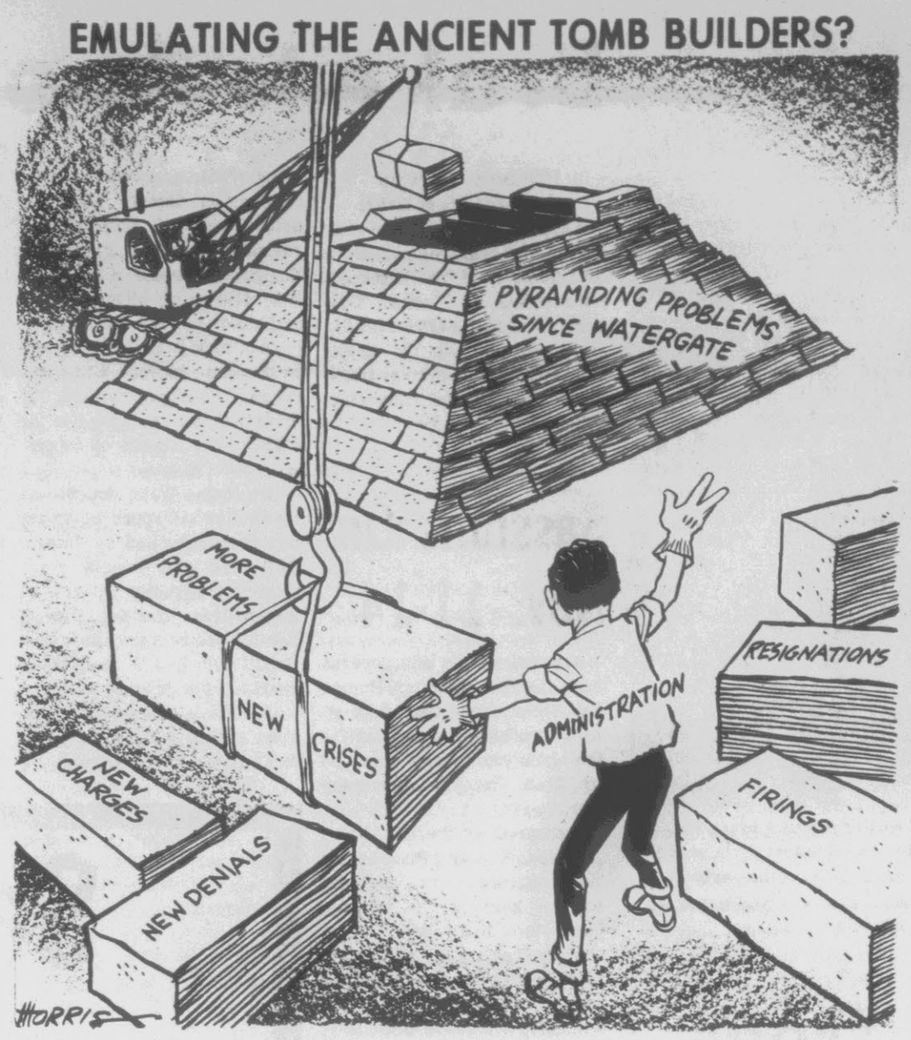

The sum total of Jesus's teaching about money can be expressed in one sententce: People must not put their trust in it and make it the first thing in their lives.

Money can do many things, but it cannot give security. It can add to our comforts, but it cannot produce happiness. It can enlarge out opportunities, but it cannot help us one bit to take advantage of these opportunities. It can procure education for us, but it cannot make us wise. It can take us to the ends of the earth to see things, but it cannot make us understand the significance of these things. It may enlarge the circle of our acquaintance, but it cannot create friends. It may give us comfortable houses to live in, but it cannot create homes.

Money can confer certain advanges on the mind and the body, but it offers no security to all to the soul. The failure to learn this lesson has been one of the greatest causes of human suffering.

When it comes to biography, most of us would rather read a good book about a bad man than a bad book about a good man.

I instantly like any wife if I see her publicly thumb her nose at her husband behind his back when he makes a pompous remark.

I instantly dislike any woman who says she dislikes men who wear ties because she thinks they make them look silly. If all men disliked all women who sometimes wear things that make them look silly, the United States would be a nation of misogynists.

Thanks to modern advertising, it is counted a greater sin in America to have bad breath than bad manners.

Endings And Beginnings

SCRABBLE, VA. — Several days ago a massive moving van lumbered away from the town house I have occupied in Alexandria these past six years, and brought six tons of stuff to my here in the Blue Ridge Mountains. I mark the occasion as my last remove, save one.

Life is always a process of endings and beginnings all flowing together, but the act of moving from one domicile to another has particular meaning. Like graduation, or marriage or the birth of a child, or death in the family, moving is a pivot point. Nothing is exactly the same thereafter.

So my wife and I spent two days packing up the Alexandria place, musing as we always do on such occasions on the amount of sheer junk that somehow accumulates. They say that a love of property is rooted in the conservative philosophy, but a love for jelly glasses? Souvenirs of Atlantic City? Last year's Congressional Record! Eighty-two wire coat hangers? Like mountain climbers, we traversed a terminal moraine of shirt cardboards, broken pencils, and fountain pens beyond repair. Out with them all!

Now work begins anew in the office that Peter Kramer designed and Joe Williams built, at the end of the stone walk that Joe Caliandro laid. These are the craftsmen we have lived with over the past three months. They created a book man's dream come true—shelves and shelves and shelves above a wainscot, and paneled cupboards to conceal new junk below.

We sit tailor-legged on the floor, reveling in the rediscovery of books that had been half forgotten: fat books of essays, slim books of peoms, books on the Congress, books on the presidency, books on education and foreign affairs and the writing art. One whole section is set aside for Supreme Court opinions. How worn are the years of John Marshall! How little touched are the others!

After a time, discouraged by the leaning towers of books, we go outside for a breath of autumn. This year has produced a slow ending and beginning. The trees have turned imperceptibly day by day, with little of the flaming brilliance we marked a year ago. Our hills are mostly garnet and topaz and jade: fine stones in their way, but not much to dazzle the eye.

Even so, autumn in the Blue Ridge is always a weaver's bazaar, It is as if some master maker of rugs had flung his works across the hills in prodigal display. When we walk toward Woodville, we walk through tapestried halls; live quail and bounding rabbits emerge from God's own warp and woof.

The ending and beginning are more personal than professional. I will be in Washington several days a week, making the rounds, talking with sources, covering a newsman's beat. It is a 90-minute drive, and no big thing. But there will no doubt hereafter where home is and where the books are. Home is here in the hills, looking toward Red Oak Mountain, and the books are just at the end of Caliandro's walk.

This move to the hills—still speaking professionally—is motivated by a need I have felt with increasing urgency over the past two years. Every editorial writer will know what I mean. It is a need for perspective, for the vision that keeps foreground, middle distance and

Other Editors Say New Approaches

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

Faced with both an energy and pollution crisis, the nation should take special interest in somehing that is happening in Connecticutt.

An item in THE NEW YORK TIMES advises that the first state agency of its kind, the Connecticut Resources Recovery Authority, has begun to operate. The new Authority is planning a garbage recycling and collection program that by 1984 is scheduled to convert 85 percent of the state's residential, agricultural, and industrial solid wastes into fuel, electricity, and reusable materials.

The authority was created in May by the Connecticut General Assembly to manage $295 million plan that will involve operation of 10 regional collection and recovery centers. The plan is designed to reduce air and water pollution and to replace the present fragmented system of local landfill operations and incinerators.

Work on the first such center, at Bridgeport, is scheduled to begin next year. By 1976 the state expects the plant to recover 72,000 tons of iron and steel, 47,000 tons of glass, 4,000 tons of aluminum, and the energy equivalent of 650,000 barrels of oil. The Connecticut program involves what is believed to be the most comprehensive system devised to put together all the work that has been done on recycling and waste management.

An operating plan proposed in July by the General Electric Company is the blueprint for all future garbage treatment in the state. The regional treatment plants will provide 11 per cent of the state's electricity needs by 1985 through the separation and burning of dry wastes and the manufacutre of synthetic oil and gas. The 10,000 tons of garbage and the results would be shipped to 45 regional transfer points and then to the 10 processing centers.

The authority will be selfsustaining and financed through the sale of recycled materials, tax-exempt bonds, and user fees of about $10 to $12 a ton. The plants are expected to be more than competitive — at $17 to $25 a ton cost of burning garbage in incinerators that meet environmental standards — with the high cost of purchasing land for landfill operations.

40 Years Ago Today

By SUSAN PRICE
October 30, 1933

A routine arrest by a small town Wisconsin constable will be indirectly reponsible for bringing four members of the Touhy gang into federal court in St. Paul, Minn. soon for a second major test of the "Lindbergh" kidnapping law.

The quartet members were sought for months by metropolitan police in connection with a variety of racket crimes.

A tense situation was created in San Juan, Puerto Rico, by bomb plots directed at Gov. Robert H. Gore. Additional police protection was ordered following the finding of a bomb in the garden of his San Juan residence and an explosion on the rest of his summer home.

The calm of the island was further distrubed by striking students who protested the appointment of a trustee of a Puerto Rico University.

Massed forces of police this afternoon overtook rioters numbered by officials at 2,500 and arrested six after the mob had raided seven shops where a tool and die makers strike is in progress, smashing windows, overturning automobiles and ruining blue prints and drawings.

They were arrested after police armed with tear gas and night sticks pursued rioters through a manufacturing plant.

Old Business Concepts Faulty

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Old business concepts die hard, especially if they appear to serve those who harbor them, but just as often because of a blind fear that life cannot exist without them.

Many people will recall that at the conclusion of World War II there was a tendency of businesses to split into two schools: those who thought the country would return to depression, and those who believed a boom lay ahead.

Among the more notable of those who felt that since the country emerged from a prewar depression it was destined to return to a postwar one was Montgomery Ward & Co. Betting on the future, Sears, Roebuck & Co. grew larger than its rival.

Business today is presented with a long list of demands for change that, we are assured, it can't possibly live with. At the head of the list until recently was floating versus fixed exchange rates.

Currency exchange rates were fixed after World War II out of necessity. If nations were to resume trading they had to have a standard of what one currency was worth in relation to another.

Trade—the market itself—can establish relative values, but almost no trade existed among the devastated postwar economies. The dollar was inserted as the kingpin. It was a currency of known value, and other currencies could be assigned values in relation to it.

The world lived with this fixed rate concept for more than two decades. If a country's currency was demonstrably weaker than its assigned value then it was devalued. If overly strong it might be revalued to restore harmony.

The whole thing fell apart, however, when the dollar no longer could serve as the kingpin. Because of inflation and growing competitiveness abroad, its value slowly sank. Then it was officially devalued.

The effect was to wreck the old fixed rate system, and many businessmen, economists and government officials feared the worst. Trade will come to a crushing halt. You can't live without fixed rates, they said.

There were exceptions, most notably Prof. Milton Friedman. Why not, he said, float currencies free to find their own value in the market place? Currency values would be whatever traders were willing to pay for them.

Absurd, said the doubters, we'll never know what we're paying. We need to know if a dollar's a dollar and a franc a franc.

Well, exchange rates are floating, in the words of Morgan Guaranty, "not because of changed philosophical preferences but because of a pragmatic recognition." As has happened so often, the worst fears were only fears.

six-day war, was precisely that — the surreptitious Egyptian missile movement as the 1970 ceasefire took effect.

As for Dayan, he blamed the war of Yom Kippur directly on the Soviets. "Had the Russians not wanted it, the war wouldn't have broken out," he said on television last week. Although some top-level government officials aren't ready to make that accusation, most are — if only privately.

It was alleged, for example, that a principal cause of Moscow's eagerness for detente four years ago was to cloak its Middle East designs. The Soviet decision to withdraw its military advisers from Egypt in 1972, this official said, was a calculated part of the deception (a charge of conspiracy that fits few of the facts known about Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's abrupt dismissal of the Soviet advisers).

So far, this anti-Soviet line is for internal consumption, partly to soften the gathering political attack on the government for poor intelligence, poor judgment or both. Senior American diplomats, for example, have heard little of it. But the Soviet devil theory is a deeply believed credo here which the new war has enlarged and sharpened and which undercuts the former Israeli thesis that detente was in Israel's favor.

No U.S-Soviet peace plan for the Middle East will float without Israel's support. Consequently, it is fair to read the anti-Soviet line as a signal that any political proposals carrying the Soviet imprint may be rejected by the suspicious Israelis. That would gladden the Jackson-led Americans, also convinced that detente is a dangerous delusion. But it would seriously undercut the Nixon-Kissinger policy which has now brought detente through two crises — the mining of Haiphong in 1972 and the Arab-Israeli was of 1973.

House

SCHOOL LUNCH—Defeated, 145 for and 218 against, an amendment that would have given four states—New York, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Maryland—higher federal reimbursements for serving free school lunches than other states receive. The amendment, passed by the Senate, was attached to the school lunch bill conference report.

In the past, cities in the four states have received extra money for school lunches because of high concentrations of "needy" pupils. The House, in defeating this amendment, voted to apply equally to all states the formula for free lunch subsidies. The subsidy will average 45 cents per lunch in fiscal 1974.

Supporters said that school districts in the four states have anticipated higher reimbursement levels in their budgets and, therefore, should receive special consideration for at least one more year.

Opponents argued for closing a loophole that benefits certain states at the expense of the rest of the country, and said that fiscal 1974's new subsidy level softens the crunch on schools in the four states.

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1) L.H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Wilmer Mizell (R-5), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), Earl Ruth (R-8), James Martin (R-9), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay".

Rep. Ike Andrews (D-4) did not vote.

ENVIRONMENTAL EDUCATION—Rejected, 140 for 252 against, a measure that would have crippled the environmental education law. The vote came on an amendment to prevent funding of environmental education programs for two additional years beyond the current fiscal year.

The overall bill, which eventually was passed and sent to the Senate, funds public and private environmental education projects. The bill, supported by the Sierra Club and other environmental groups, authorizes $45 million through fiscal 1976.

The Administration opposed the bill. It maintained that local officials can better determine local needs, and that categorical grants for environmental education should give way to funding through general revenue sharing.

Those voting for generally favored the Administration's position and argued that the environmental education program was never intended to be permanent. Some of them said that environmentalists' "sacred" attitude has cost the economy millions and hindered the solution of pressing national objectives, such as energy development.

Opponents generally cited the need for federally-supported environmental education and argued that categorical grants are the best way to fund it.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Rose and Ruth voted "yea."

Mizell, Preyer, Martin, Broyhill and Taylor voted "nay."

Andrews did not vote.

EDITORS: During this reporting period the Senate was in session two days but took no roll call votes. The Senate is waiting for House to pass legislation.

The House went slow because of the impeachment furor and the Middle East crisis. Also, the House recessed on Friday and Monday for the Veterans' Day Weekend.

Commercials By Kent State Boost School

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Kent State University has turned to radio commercials as a means of boosting college education — and Kent State.

A spokesman for the school said students "just aren't breaking down the doors to get into college" and that "colleges have been forced to advertise for students."

One commercial cites five successful KSU alumni. But the most successful one uses children's voices, says Angelo Coulis, KSU director of radio-television information.

The voices are those of a boy who wants to be a fireman and a girl who wants to be a nurse. An announcer tells them that a college education can help them achieve their goals.

Then the little girl changes her mind. "I want to be a hippopotamus," she says, trailing off with a giggle.

Meters Work On Saturdays, Too

Motorists, used to parking in downtown Greenville on Saturdays without placing money in parking meters may be in for a rude awakening if they fail to pay for their parking time in the future.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, the Police Department will have meter attendants checking parking meters for violations on Saturdays—just as they have during weekdays—begining November 3.

The chief noted that meter attendants will be issuing parking tickets for vehicles found to be violating the city's overtime parking ordinance.

Building your money:
How you can save money by borrowing money.
Most people try to avoid owing money.
Debts are no fun, but sometimes you can save money, in the long run, by borrowing money.
Talk to your Bank of North Carolina, N. A. banker. He has the money to loan to help you save money. First, he can help you determine how much you can wisely owe based on your income and responsibilities. Then he can suggest ways you might save by borrowing.
Perhaps your car needs repairs too often. Borrow to buy a new one. Lower maintenance costs could possibly offset the cost of borrowing and save you money as well.
You want a larger home, a better home. That's big borrowing and, currently, big costs. Borrow instead to add a room or remodel. That adds value to your property—and real estate value appreciates quite rapidly. You may find that borrowing to make improvements turns out to be a wise investment that could pay real dividends in the future.
Paying a lot of bills every month? Add up your interest charges. You might save money by borrowing to pay off those bills and consolidating your debt at a lower interest rate.
Here's another tip. Every time you make a payment on your loan, resolve to make a deposit in a savings plan. Even if it's small. Pay back the bank and pay yourself. You'll build a surprising balance in a short time.
Borrowing can be building. At Bank of North Carolina, N. A., we can show you how. Because building your money is our business.

Will Take Necessary Steps To Clean Up N.C. Youth Program

RALEIGH (AP)—Social Rehabilitation Secretary David Jones says he intends to take whatever steps are necessary to clean up North Carolina's youth training program.

He made the statement Monday in announcing that he and members of his administration had substantiated allegations that the youth program program was plagued by narcotics, child abuse and high-level incompetency.

Saying that the departmental study will continue, Jones confirmed at a news conference the release of 13 top level employes in the youth program. Seven were forced to resign for alleged incompetency, five were dismissed and their jobs eliminated and the other resigned after he refused a transfer.

Jones said studies by groups such as the North Carolina Bar had shown the youth training program "has miserably failed. They are absolutely correct."

The seven whose resignations were requested for alleged incompetency were identified by Jones as:

—John L. Parrish,director of the juvenile evaluation center at Swannanoa, and John B. Eidenier, the school's cottage life director.

—Carl Duncan, juvenile evaluation counselor at the Samuel Leonard School in McCain; Henry W. Parker, director of the school, and Lorenzo V. Balsley, the school principal.

—William D. Noland, director of the C. A. Dillon School at Butner, and Alvis M. Whitted Jr., the school principal.

Jones said Ralph L. Foushee, principal of Samarcand Manor, resigned after rejecting a requested transfer to the Swannanoa center.

The positions eliminated, Jones said, were held by Edward B. West, assistant director of the Swannanoa center; Mary N. Hoyle, assistant training superintendent at Samarcand Manor; James W. McGinnis, supervisor of religious and moral training for the state system; Warren A. Ellis, special education director for the system; and Harold W. Stephan, supervisor of juvenile evaluation at Swannanoa.

Jones said Gene U. Cantrell, principal of the Swannanoa school, was fired because of "incompetence in performance of duties."

Norman Camp, the youth department's director of schools, said he had seem four youthful inmates "sleeping on the floor in 50 degree weather" at the Samuel Leonard School at McCain. The boys were among 80 being punished "for very minor offenses," Camp told newsmen.

Roger Woodbury, director of classification and psychological services, said an inspection at the c. A. Dillon School at Butner disclosed "one boy who had been in segregation almost a week. He didn't even know why he was in segregation. It was obvious his anxiety level was up."

Ten Minutes 'Like An Eternity' In Fighting At Charlotte Schoo!

CHARLOTTE (AP)—"It was a bad day out here...it was hell," says Principal Donald Newman of Monday's racial fighting involving an estimated 300 to 400 of the 1,450 students at Olympic High School. Seven were injured, but only one was detained overnight, and two were arrested, charged with carrying weapons--chain belts made of metal--onto school property.

Mecklenbury County Police were at the school as classes opened today.

The brawl before the start of classes Monday was the first large-scale racial upheaval in the Charlotte-Mecklenburg school sytem this year. The student body at Olympic is about 30 per cent black.

Observers said the fighting began after students began congregating in the enclosed school mall, blacks on one side and whites on the other.

Newman said he had been expecting trouble since Friday. He said that on that day several black youths had attacked a white student and several whites had retailiated by throwing rocks and bricks at a school bus filled with blacks.

A number of students were quoted as saying they had heard that the white student who was chased had planted some marijuana in a black student's car last week, and then called the police. Newman said he had heard the story. He also said he knew that a black student had been charged last week with possession of marijuana, but said he had no confirmation that the drug was planted.

"Some people are saying this whole thing was touched off by a drug thing, but I have no proof positive of anything," Newman said. "But after Friday's incidents, I did anticipate trouble.

"I asked the county police to have a few patrol cars in the vicinity Monday morning, just in case we needed some assistance."

But the white principal said he never expected anything like the brick and bottle throwing, smoke bombs and the physical violence that broke outshortly after students began arriving at school.

"They started gathering in the mall, blacks at one side and whites on the other," the principal said. "I told them to go to class but they wouldn't move, wouldn't go, just kept looking at me."

Suddenly, something triggered the crowd. A smoke bomb, some said, a thrown shoe, according to others.

"Everybody whipped off their belts and started fighting," said one student.

Newman called in police reinforcements and one of the school district's special disruption task forces. "It was all over in 10 minutes, but it seemed like an eternity," he said.

About 150 students were bused home after they congregated outside shortly after the fighting. All other students were free to go home, with their parents' permission.

A school secretary estimated that by 1 p.m. more than half the student body had departed, passing the six county police cars that that remained posted around the campus.

Parents, black and white, came to Newman's office to pick up their children and to speak their minds.

"Nobody could understand how hard I've been working to prevent this kind of thing--to make sure there's good communication among parents, and students and teachers," Newman said.

Unaffected By Firings

Department of Transportation officials said here Monday that Pitt County was not affected by a series of firings and demotions within the State Highway Department ordered last week by Transportation Secretary Bruce Lentz.

About 100 state highway employees were fired and a number of others demoted in what Lentz described as "a professional reorganization" of the Highway Division made after "some eight months of careful and exhaustive study."

Those persons fired, Lentz explained, had either engaged in politics, were not qualified, or were not doing their job.

"Many of them could be classified in two or more of these categories," the secretary noted.

Highway officials noted that none of those fired or demoted were employed by the Department of Transportation in Pitt County.

Two Women GIs In Army Airlift

By HUBERT J. ERB
Associated Press Writer

ANSBACH, Germany (AP) — The U.S. 1st Infantry Division brought 11,000 men, two women and one evening gown to West Germany for field training exercises.

The evening gown belongs to Lt. Gene Thornton, 23, of Middletown, Del., a 5-foot-5, 117-pound member of the Women's Army Corps.

"I brought the gown along in my footlocker, just in case," she said.

"My real name is Eugenia, for my father, Eugene. I am the first ever in my family to go overseas, except for a couple of distant cousins in World War II. They did not come back."

She said the nickname "Gene" helps when she signs Army correspondence.

"The people who get the letters think I am a man and it gets better results," she said.

Pfc. Connie Kalvick, 19, 5-2 and about 120 pounds, is the other 1st Division WAC who came here wearing combat gear and a fatigue uniform. She is from Minot, N.D.

Both she and Lt. Thornton have been in the Army since the beginning of this year. Pfc. Kalvick will serve for two years and the lieutenant for three years.

Lt. Thornton was commissioned a second lieutenant after being graduated from Washington College in Delaware in 1972, a drama major in liberal arts.

Her father is a banker and her mother a teacher.

She joined the Army, she said in an interview, because, "I didn't think there was much happening at home."

The airlift that brought the two women to Germany came from Ft. Riley, Kan., home station for the 1st Division. A reverse airlift takes them home in November.

"I hate wars," the lieutenant said. "I would not want to go to one. Pretending like here is okay. But not the real thing."

Irish Inspired Horseshoe Luck

NEW YORK (UPI) — The superstition that horseshoes bring good luck is believed to have originated in Ireland as a Halloween custom.

Irish farmers who feared harm to their livestock from witches and spirits at Halloween would nail a horseshoe, prongs upright, above the stable door. By tradition, the horseshoe was supported by three nails, each hammered in with three blows to symbolize the Holy Trinity. Legend holds that, anyway.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss . . . and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss . . . but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. No matter which one is causing your hair loss, if you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair . . . now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

A Notice to Suburban Propane Customers About Mandatory Propane Allocations

More propane is being produced and imported than at any time in history. But, the demands made on it as an alternate energy source to natural gas and fuel oil—both of which are in short supply nationally—may exceed the available supply in the cold months ahead.

Therefore, on October 2nd, the Federal Government's Energy Policy Office issued regulations for the mandatory allocation of propane and established priorities to assure that the available supplies of propane are directed to those customers to whom propane is essential for their physical well-being, for the production of agricultural commodities, and other essential needs.

Priority uses established by the Federal Government include: residential, agricultural production, food processing, mass transit, medical and nursing institutions, in-plant vehicles, essential government services, commercial requirements not exceeding 15,000 gallons per year, and natural gas peak shaving.

Non-priority users can expect to receive less than their full requirements and should plan accordingly. These include, for example, the petro-chemical and other industries that use propane as one of several "feed stocks" in manufacturing processes, and industries that use propane as standby fuel when natural gas supplies are interrupted during periods of heavy residential demand.

Suburban Propane, during the past several years, has substantially increased storage facilities and transportation capabilities, and has made large investments in petroleum exploration and production. These steps were all taken to assure adequate supplies for its present customers, and to provide for some new business. It remains to be seen how the new Federal mandatory allocation regulations will affect our plans, but we are optimistic that we will be able to fill the needs of our present customers, particularly in the priority classifications.

Allocation and priorities, however, are no guarantee that all customers will get all of the propane they want or need if there is a severe winter or if the Federal Government redirects propane to other markets or uses. We urge all customers, therefore, to make every effort to use propane more efficiently and conserve it wherever possible and thus do your part to make sure that homes, businesses and services will have propane for essential requirements. And, you will also be saving money.

There are many ways to save gas and money without sacrificing comfort or convenience! In cooking, use the proper flame size. Cover pots and pans. Be sure you have a clear blue flame. Don't use your range for home heating. Defrost foods before cooking . . . and lots more.

Insulation, storm sash and weatherstripping, can keep heat in . . . cold out, while more than paying for themselves. And there are dozens of ways you can save on water heating and in laundering. A folder listing over 30 ways to save fuel and money is available at our office. Stop in, write or phone for a free copy.

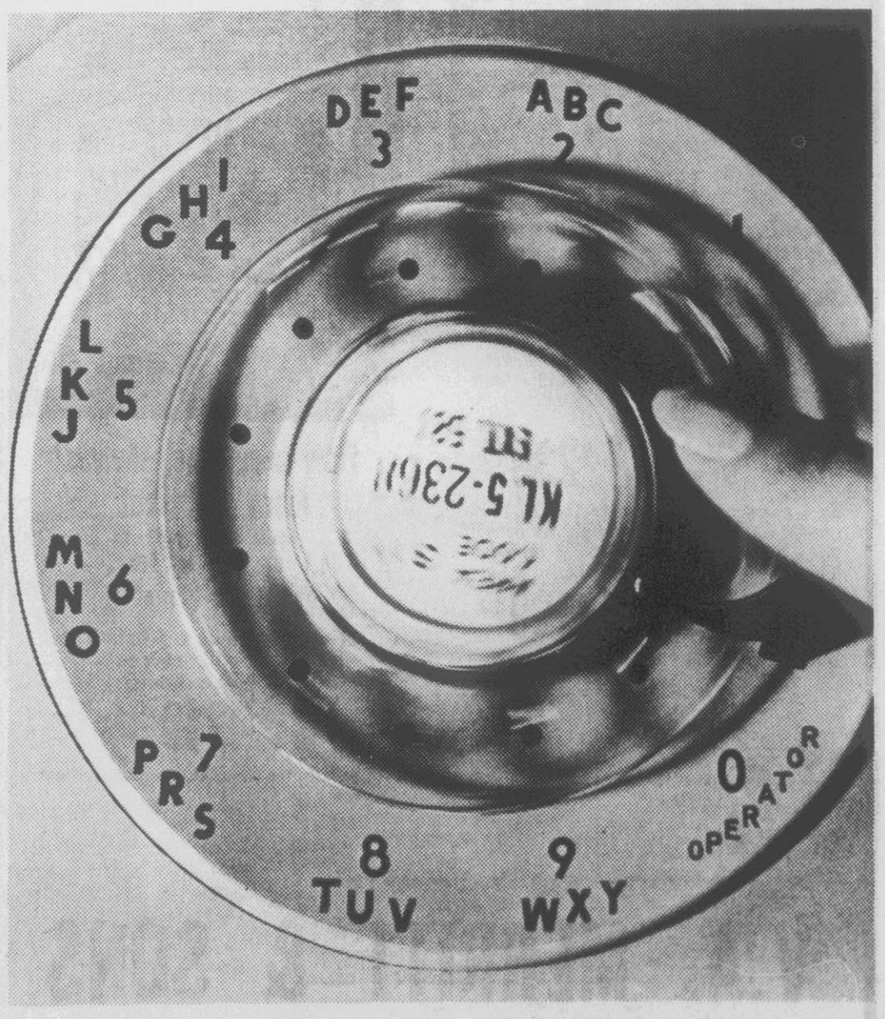

Modern LP-gas appliances are the most efficient users of fuel, because they use it directly thereby eliminating the tremendous fuel waste (as much as 60% and more) that occurs when it is converted into other forms of energy. Appliances that are old or in need of major adjustments or repairs are probably less efficient. It is in your own as well as the national interest to replace them with new gas appliances when the need occurs.

Poll Indicates Majority Still Against Impeaching

PRINCETON, N. J. — A majority of Americans ((55 per cent) think President Nixon should not be impeached and compelled to leave the presidency, as determined by a special nationwide survey conducted immediately following Nixon's press conference Friday evening.

An even larger majority, 62 per cent, voice the opinion that it would not be in the best interests of the country for Nixon to resign at this time.

Confidence in the Nixon administration, however, remains at a low level. A majority in the survey (55 per cent) say they have either "not very much" or "no" trust and confidence in the administration. This finding represents little change from the one recorded in a mid-October survey in which the same question was asked.

Of the six in ten persons who say they have seen or heard the President's press conference, 53 per cent found his responses concerning Watergate to be unconvincing. This compares with 31 per cent who found them convincing and 16 per cent who have mixed feelings or do not express an opinion.

Another question shows six in ten persons (63 per cent) saying they would like to see Congress confirm Rep. Gerald Ford as Vice President at this time. This compares with 17 per cent who are opposed to confirmation and 20 per cent who do not express an opinion.

Following are the questions and national findings:

"Do you think President Nixon should be impeached and compelled to leave the presidency, or not?"

No, should not	55
No opinion	17

"Some people think it would be in the best interests of the country for President Nixon to resign at this time. Others think it would NOT be in the best interests of the country. What is your opinion?"

"How much trust and confidence do you have in the Nixon administration: a great deal, a fair amount, not very much, or none at all?"

Great deal	19%
Fair amount	23

"Did you happen to see or hear President Nixon's press conference tonight (Friday, Oct. 26) on television?"

Those who said they had seen or heard the press conference were then asked: "Did you find the President's responses concerning Watergate convincing or not convincing?"

"Would you like to see Congress confirm Gerald Ford as Vice President at this time, or not?"

Soil Erosion Given Priority

With farmers expected to boost food production in 1974 by bringing several million acres into production formerly "set aside" or seeded to pasture, the Department of Agriculture is giving top priority to controlling soil erosion on newly plowed land, it was disclosed today by Jesse L. Hicks of Raleigh, who heads the Soil Conservation Service in North Carolina.

He pointed out that Secretary of Agriculture Earl L. Butz has urged "using sound conservation practices," on land returned to production, and listed several reasons why:

"First of all, use of sound conservation practices will itself help increase production," the Agriculture Secretary said, adding that "farmers have made great progress in the last 40 years in conservation farming, and with planning they can meet the increased demand for food in 1974 without stepping backwards.

"As the Number One guardians of the nation's natural resources, farm operators have a responsibility to themselves and to future generations to use the soil wisely."

The Secretary of Agriculture asked the Soil Conservation Service "to give first priority to helping farmers and ranchers with their conservation plans."

The Secretary made it clear that the "Produce More, Protect More" program would be a major objective of the Department of Agriculture during the remainder of 1973 and 1974, with an information program coordinated with efforts "on the land" to assure that losses through agricultural erosion, well controlled in recent years, are not repeated as the demand for agricultural commodities surges.

On Verge Of Extracting Oil

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists have not yet discovered how to get "blood out of a stone," but now they are getting something perhaps even more valuable—oil out of rocks.

According to federal government estimates, there is enough oil shale in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming to yield some 600 billion barrels of petroleum—more than all the reserves of the oil-rich Middle East put together.

Through a revolutionary new process developed by the Oil Shale Corp. headquartered here, this enormous source of energy is on the verge of being tapped.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market continued to sink lower today, and brokers said it remained in a consolidation stage after its steady autumn advance.

The Dow Jones industrial average was down 6.32 to 978.48 at 11:30 a.m., and declines outnumbered advances by about 7 to 3 in fairly lively trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Big Board's composite index was off .31 to 59.46 at 11 a.m., but the market-value index on the American Stock Exchange had gained .12 to 109.63.

Volume leader on the Big Board was Mississippi River Corp. The pipeline producer was steady at 17 after a 125,000-share block moved at that price.

Other active issues included NLT Corp., off 3/8 to 27; Southern Co., off 1/4 to 17; and Eastern Gas & Fuel Association, down 3/8 to 24 1/8.

Matsushita Electric, which reported higher third-quarter net, rose 1 to 23 1/4. Bausch & Lomb, which has advanced sharply in the last few weeks since its report of improved profits, rose 1 1/8 more to 51 1/8.

"The Greenville Jaycees, over the last two years, have worked diligently through sponsoring wrestling matches to raise funds for the Boys' Club," Austin Britt said Monday in expressing appreciation for $2,100 in funds given by the Jaycees to the Greenville-Pitt County Boys' Club.

Britt, president of the Board of Directors of the Boys' Club, said "the Jaycees have sponsored wrestling matches for the express purpose of helping us retire the original indebtedness on the former West Greenville Presbyterian Church."

The church building on Skinner Street was purchased and renovated to become the permanent home of the Boys' Club.

"With the receipt of these funds from the Jaycees," Britt added, the final payment to the West Greenville Presbyterian trustees is being made on Tuesday. We are most grateful to the Jaycees. It is their assistance that has been instrumental in making this final payment possible."

Talk Range Of Projects

GRIFTON—The Grifton Resources Improvement Program members discussed projects which could be financed with GRIP state fair winnings at their meeting Thursday night.

A practice session was held for oral reports by community leaders to be presented Wednesday to judges representing the Coastal Plain Community Development program.

Suggestions for spending the state fair money ($500 less cost of the project which has been estimated at $200) include: benches for the sidewalk to be placed at various points in the business district; new street markers; climbing bars for the Minipark and Town Park; and shrubbery for downtown areas.

It was suggested that club members seek help from other town organizations such as the Grifton Garden Club, the Lions Club and the Town Council for assistance in carrying out the projects.

President Raymond Battle told the group the state fair display is now being exhibited at Dick's Auto Testing Equipment Shop on Queen Street for public viewing.

Edenton Holds 13-7 Advantage

EDENTON—A 72-hour wait didn't change things one bit for the Williamston Tigers—they still lost to Edenton 13-7.

Friday night, during the halftime activities, a power failure at the Edenton field left the game in the dark, and the second half was postponed until Monday night. Edenton had a 13-7 lead over the Tigers at intermission and the game was picked up with the second-half kickoff.

Neither team was able to develop much of a threat in the second half, however, and the score remained the same. Edenton did penetrate as far as the 30, while Williamston got down to the 25, but neither offered a serious threat.

All of the scoring came in Friday night's second period. Williamston scored first, with 8:38 left in the half. Billy Markland had recovered an Edenton fumble at the Ace 24 to set up the score. Then, after a slow, but sure drive, Phil Selby pushed over from the one for the score. Joe Roberson kicked the extra point for a 7-0 lead.

Late in the half, Edenton scored on a 46-yard drive to tie it up. Gerald Hall scrambled for 22 yards, then hit Thomas Slade for 18 more down to the 10. From there Hall went around end for the score, and Ralph Garrett kicked the extra point for the 7-7 deadlock with 1:29 left.

Edenton held the Tigers and took over on their own 18 with less than a minute left. Arnold Brothers picked up yardage to the 30, but the Tigers threw them back to the 27. With 10 seconds to go, Brothers got the ball on a draw and streaked into the clear to go 73 yards as the gun sounded to give Edenton a 13-7 lead at halftime, and that held the rest of the way.

Edenton is now 5-0 in the Northeastern Conference and 8-0 overall. Williamston's record fell to 2-3 within the league and 5-3 overall. The Tigers play host to Plymouth on Friday night.

Tourney Set Here

The North Carolina Tennis Association is sponsoring a junior tournament here this weekend, it has been announced.

The closing date for entries is today, however, and anyone wishing to enter is urged to contact Wes Hankins, 758-4552, immediately.

The tournament is one of three being held across the state by the NCTA. Each of the tournments is sanctioned by the United States Lawn Tennis Association and results will count toward the players 1974 ranking. This is the first time a USLTA tournament has been held in Greenville.

The Greenville tounament will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Elm Street Courts, although courts throughout the city will also be used, if needed.

The tournament will consist of singles matches, with a consolation flight for first round losers. Boys and girls who are residents of North Carolina are eligible to compete in one of the following age groups, boys, 16 and under, 14 and under, 12 and under, and 10 and under; girls also have the same age brackets.

All entrants must show an indate USLTA card or purchase an application at the tournament check-in center on Saturday, costing $2.

The New York Rangers are in their 48th season in the National Hockey League.

Contest Winners

Claude C. Gantt III of P.O. Box 1463, Greenville, is the winner of this week's Daily Reflector Football Contest.

Gantt correctly picked the winners in 28 of the 32 games in the contest, but took first place on the basis of his point total pick.

He had a guess of 79 points, while the actual total was 88 in Texas' 55-33 victory over Rice.

Second place went to Bobe M. Rouse of 210 N. Ash St., Apartment 2, Greenville, who also had 28 right, but was further off the point total with a guess of 57.

For purposes of grading the tie between Mississippi State and Southern Mississippi was counted wrong on all entries.

This week's contest appears on the following pages.

Ohio State Is Still On Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

High-flying Ohio State remains in a holding pattern above the rest of America's college football teams—holding onto No. 1 in the weekly Associated Press poll.

The Buckeyes, 60-0 winners over Northwestern this past weekend, piled up 36 first-place votes and 1,148 total points Monday from a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

It was the fifth straight week for Ohio State in the No. 1 position. The Buckeyes held a slim lead over Alabama, No. 2 with 1,052 points.

The Crimson Tide, which crushed Virginia Tech 77-6, collected 12 of the 62 first-place votes supplied this week.

The rest of the top four teams stayed firm with No. 3 Oklahoma pulling down nine first place votes and 961 points and No. 4 Michigan with one first-place ballot and 876 points.

Oklahoma walloped Kansas State 56-14 and Michigan routed Minnesota 34-7 over the weekend.

Notre Dame replaced Penn State as the No. 5 team after beating Southern California 23-14 and virtually ruining the Trojan's chances of repeating as national champion.

The Fighting Irish, seeking their first national title since 1966, moved up from No. 8 with 754 points. Undefeated Penn State dropped one place to No. 6 despite overwhelming West Virginia 62-14 for its seventh straight victory this year.

The Nittany Lions were favored for No.1 by four voters.

Louisiana State also stayed unbeaten through seven with a 33-29 victory over South Carolina that boosted the Tigers from ninth to seventh. They had 518 points.

Arizona State made the Top Ten for the first time this year, moving from No. 11 to No. 8 by routing Oregon State 44-14. Southern Cal, No. 6 last week, dropped to No. 9 and just nosed out crosstown rival UCLA for that spot.

The Trojans had 331 points to 307 for No. 10 UCLA.

The remaining ranked teams this week include: No. 11 Tennessee; No. 12 Missouri; No. 13 Nebraska; No. 14 Tulane; No. 15 Texas Tech; No. 16 Miami (Ohio); No. 17 Colorado; No. 18 Houston and two teams tied for No. 19, Auburn and Texas.

O.J. Simpson Races Past 1,000 Yards As Buffalo Upsets Chiefs

By MARVIN R. PIKE
Associated Press Sports Writer

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — O.J. Simpson was nearing the 1,000-yard mark, rushing that is, and Joe Ferguson said, "The guys in the huddle got all excited."

"Let's block for him," the rookie quarterback of the Buffalo Bills said they shouted, making it difficult for Ferguson to call the next play.

O.J. took the ball and reached 1,000 yards.

"Let's get him some more," his teammates shouted again, Ferguson said, as they once again huddled.

Well, they did. Simpson, the All-American Heisman Trophy winner from Southern California, reeled off 157 yards Monday night in the Bills' 23-14 National Football League upset of the Kansas City Chiefs. His season total to date: 1,025 yards.

The output is a seven-game NFL record, 54 yards more than Jim Brown posted for the Cleveland Browns in 1963. Simpson set another mark, carrying 39 times in the nationally televised game and eclipsing by one the number of carries by Harry Newman in 1934 and Jim Nance in 1966.

"I really don't think about records," Simpson said in the dressing room. "Instead you've got to run and that's what I'm doing. You don't run for records. You just run and the records come."

But Simpson, pointing to Brown's single-season high of 1,863 yards, seemed to be kidding.

"We got 1,000 in the first seven games and we'll go for another 1,000 in the next seven."

The "we" referred to by Simpson were his teammates, especially the young, aggressive offensive line which has been paving the way for his ground-gaining.

For Coach Lou Saban, it was a big game.

"We had to win one pretty quick."

The Bills did just that.

Buffalo kicked off, the Chiefs missed on a pass and then fumbled and the Bills recovered on the Chiefs' 15.

Simpson carried the ball four consecutive times, scoring from the one-yard line.

The Bills kicked off again. On the Chiefs' third play, Linebacker Jim Cheyunski intercepted Len Dawson's pass, returned it 31 yards and Simpson scored from the four. Time: 3:37.

Buffalo iced the game with three field goals. John Leypoldt booted them from 31, 17 and 8 yards.

Kansas City Coach Hank Stram described the game as "incredible."

"We reduced the size of the field to 15 yards the first time we had the ball (when Buffalo recovered the fumble) and four yards the second time (Cheyunski's interception)," he said.

"Any time you're playing a squad that is in an emotional frenzy like Buffalo was—and motivated by their fans—and you give two touchdowns away at bat, you're in trouble."

The Chiefs' two touchdowns followed Buffalo mistakes. Ferguson's fumbled on his 43 and four plays later the chief's Wendell Hayes scored from one yard out.

Punter Spike Jones dropped a fourth down snap in the fourth period and the Chiefs got the ball on Buffalo's two. Quarterback Pete Beathard sneaked into the end zone.

Carter Tosses Eight Scores

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — Luther Carter was headed for Knoxville College a few years ago, but when he learned the Tennessee school was considering dropping football he wound up at Johnson C. Smith University in Charlotte.

Knoxville didn't give up the sport and neither did Carter.

The 6-foot-2, 190 pound junior from Charleston, S. C., threw eight touchdown passes Saturday as Smith won a 55-35 scoring orgy over Winston-Salem State.

He completed 20 of 29 passes for 405 yards, hitting five men on scoring plays. The first was the longest, an 82-yard play with split end Stanley White on the receiving end. White caught the next one for 38 yards.

William Dulin, a tight end, then got into the act, snaring three scoring passes on plays covering 18, 36 and 27 yards.

Carter's other scoring strikes were on plays covering 44, 12 and 7 yards.

Smith needed Carter's heroics to win the Central Intercollegiate Athletic Association game because Winston-Salem's Londell McClary was having a good day, also. His pass to Jumbo Davis covered 51 yards for a touchdown early in the last period to put Winston-Salem ahead 35-28.

Smith followed with a flood of four touchdowns, all on Carter passes, to stay on the heels of pace-seting Virginia Union in the conference race.

McClary's 19-for-35 effort for 293 yards and three scores, good enough to win most games, was overshadowed by Carter's work.

As a sophomore last fall he led the league in total offense and passing and Coach Eddie McGirt hoped that "wouldn't bother his head" this year.

Through six games he had completed only 33 of 91 passes for five touchdowns and 709 yards before the explosion at Winston-Salem.

McGirt noted, "Luther hadn't played real well this season. I guess you could say he came out of his slump. He's got a good arm and he's a real good kid. He just gets a little anxious at times."

Also anxious is backup quarterback Jimmy Wideman, a soph from Greenwood, S. C., who, McGirt says, runs the option very well, but may have to spend the rest of the season watching Carter pass.

Junior Ben Phillips of Honolulu is the top scorer for the Air Force water polo team.

DAYTONA Beach, Fla. (AP) — Russ Moyer, executive manager of NASCAR since 1968, has been appointed vice president in charge of administrative activities, NASCAR President Bill France Jr., announced Monday.

France said Moyer would coordinate the internal activities at NASCAR headquarters and would continue as chairman of the National Stock Car Racing Commission.

CLEVELAND (AP) — Bob Neale of the Cleveland Crusaders undergoes surgery today for torn cartilage in his left knee and is expected to be out of action for six to eight weeks.

The young center was injured in Saturday night's World Hockey Association game at Cleveland Arena, when the Crusaders tied Houston 2-2.

Crusaders' Coach Bill Needham and General Manager Jack Vivian will meet later today to decide whether to bring someone up from the farm system to replace Neale.

CINCINNATI (AP) —The Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League will not call up a player from the Cincinnati Swords to replace star center Gilbert Perreault.

Perreault broke a leg Sunday in a game with the New York Islanders.

A Sabres' spokesman said Monday there were no plans to call up any players from their American Hockey League farm team to replace Perreault.

ATLANTA (AP) — Rookie left wing Eric Vail of the Atlanta Flames of the National Hockey League was cut Monday and sent to Omaha of the Central Hockey League.

Flames' Coach Bernie Geoffrion said it was "the only fair thing" to do because "a young guy like him needs to play every game, not play one game and miss three, play three and miss six."

EXPLANATION - The Dunkel system provides a continuous index to the relative strength of all teams. It reflects average scoring margin combined with average opposition rating, weighted in favor of recent performance. Example: a 50.0 team has been 10 scoring points stronger, per game, than a 40.0 team against identical opposition. Originated in 1929 by Dick Dunkel.

Earl Weaver Easy Victor In Balloting For AL's Top Manager

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Patient Earl Weaver, who remodeled the Baltimore Orioles from a slow, slugging team into a fast, opportunistic club that recaptured the 1973 American League East Division pennant, was chosen today as AL Manager of the Year.

The stocky Weaver was a landslide winner in balloting conducted by The Associated Press before the playoffs and World Series. He earned 170 votes from sports writers and broadcasters in outpolling Jack McKeon of the Kansas City Royals, runnerup with 91 nominations.

Dick Williams, who left Oakland after directing the A's to the American League and World Series championships, finished third with 41 votes. Del Crandall of the Milwaukee Brewers was fourth with 12 votes.

Then came Frank Quilici of the Minnesota Twins, Ralph Houk of the Yankees, Bobby Winkles of the California Angels, Chuck Tanner of the Chicago White Sox, and Billy Martin, who piloted both Detroit and Texas, with one vote each. Tanner was last year's winner.

This is the first Manager of the Year honor for Weaver, although he directed the Orioles to three straight pennants and over 100 victories each year beginning in 1969.

After that string, Baltimore slipped to third in the AL East in 1972, but bounced back for its fourth East title in five years this season.

The Orioles, after a slow start, didn't pull away from the field until putting together a 14-game winning streak in late August.

Their 97-65 record gave Weaver a remarkable 543-337 mark for a .617 percentage since he replaced Hank Bauer as manager July 11, 1968.

The 43-year-old Weaver is convinced the future might be just as good. "I said earlier this year that our farm system has produced enough outstanding players for this team to win six division championships in the next 10 years," he said. "I see no reason to change my mind now."

The Orioles' resurgence this year was led by rookie speedsters Al Bumbry and Rich Coggins, both of whom hit over .300 and paced the club in stolen bases. Over-all, the team had a record eight players who stole 10 or more bases.

"Earl did an outstanding job this year after a somewhat disappointing start," said General Manager Frank Cashen after recently rehiring Weaver for the 1974 season at an estimated salary of $70,000.

"He put together a whole new blend of players and reshaped the club to fit the new talent so quickly," added Cashen. "Half of the players from our championship team of two years ago were gone and we didn't have the power we once did. We outhit every other Orioles' team that played here since 1954 and outran them, too."

Last Chance For San Diego Team

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The clock may be ready to strike midnight for San Diego's National League baseball franchise afte the collapse of an 11th-hour purchase offer.

Mayor Pete Wilson said Monday the City Council had refused unanimously to approve terms of a new stadium lease sought by Marjorie L. Everett, leading stockholder in Hollywood Park Race Track.

"The interests of the baseball public had to be weighed against the interest of the taxpayers and the city could not go that far," said Wilson, one of the council's nine members.

He said two other groups have contacted him, one of local business interests and the other from out of town, and talked of trying to keep the Padres in San Diego.

Wilson didn't identify either group, but said, "obviously the same problem is going to exist for these groups as for Mrs. Everett."

Mrs. Everett's unexpected offer to buy part of the club and keep it in San Diego stalled a scheduled vote by National League club owners Oct. 5 on C. Arnholt Smith's proposal to sell the Padres to a Washington, D.C., group for $12 million.

The league gave the team 30 days to complete the deal.

But Mrs. Everett's attorneys failed to win council approval of modifications in the 20-year lease on city-owned San Diego Stadium. The lease has 15 years to run, and the council filed a $12-million suit against the Padres for breaking it after Smith announced his intention to sell.

Published reports said Mrs. Everett wanted higher percentage of stadium food and parking concessions, other subsidies, a shortened lease, and permission to leave San Diego if attendance doesn't increase from its present 600,000 annual average to 800,000.

The San Diego Union said money differences between the two sides were about $200,000.

"We were asking far less than Washington is willing to give the ball club," said Neil Papiano, Mrs. Everett's attorney. "Apparently the city would rather have its lawsuit than the Padres."

Next Three Weeks Will Provide Answer To Who Is S.C.'s Best

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

For obvious reasons, two coaches whose teams have met at least two of the three contenders for the Southern Conference football title don't want to get involved in the prediction business—but they agree the next three weeks should be interesting.

The three clubs left with a shot at the crown are East Carolina's defending champion Pirates, 4-0 in league play, and Richmond's Spiders and William and Mary's Indians, both 3-0.

William and Mary plays Saturday night at East Carolina in the first key game. The Spiders go to East Carolina Nov. 10 for the second—and it would be all over if the Pirates win both. If not, Richmond will be at William and Mary Nov. 17.

Both Richmond and East Carolina have one other league encounter. The Spiders play host Saturday to The Citadel's Bulldogs and the Pirates will be at home Nov. 17 against Appalachian State's Mountaineers.

East Carolina has two advantages—the Pirates play both of their major contenders at home and they play seven league games to six for Richmond and five for William and Mary.

Bobby Ross of The Citadel has yet to meet Richmond, of course, but he did have one observation after his Bulldogs had been beaten 24-12 by William and Mary and 34-0 by East Carolina.

"I'd say they (the Pirates) are compable to William and Mary, only they get after it better on defense."

Virginia Military's Bob Thalman should qualify as even more of an expert, for his Keydets have played all three.

The Spiders beat VMI 35-0, the Pirates posted a 42-7 victory and the Indians whipped the Keydets 45-14. If you believe in comparative scores, there's not much difference there.

"It would be hard for me to pick one over the others," says Thalman. "They are all equally good in different areas. It's a good situation for the conference. I just feel frustrated that we couldn't be in the thick of it at this point."

All three contenders also played Davidson. Richmond beat the Wildcats 42-0, East Carolina dubbed them 45-0 and William and Mary escaped with a 51-35 victory.

William and Mary has momentum with two straight victories, while East Carolina is coming off a 28-27 defeat by North Carolina and Richmond off a 14-8 upset at Northeast Louisiana that spoiled the Spiders' unbeaten record and knocked them out of the nation's top 20.

"Our season is still in front of us," East Carolina Coach Sonny Randle said after the North Carolina defeat. "I don't know what this game will do to our spirit."

After Richmond's setback, Coach Frank Jones said "the players can do one of two things—they can lie down and quit or they can get up off the ground. I think they'll get up."

The next three weeks will determine who was right.

Quarterbacking Was A Problem

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steeler Coach Chuck Noll keeps coming up with fresh answers when asked what he'd have done if both his quarterbacks had been knocked out of Sunday's game with Cincinnati.

"We would have punted and played defense," he said initially.

"I would have sent up to the press box for one of those quarterbacks up there," he quipped later.

"I would have perspired a lot," he declared Monday.

Actually, Noll would likely have used reserve cornerback John Dockery, whose chief quarterbacking requisite is that he is a pal of Joe Namath's.

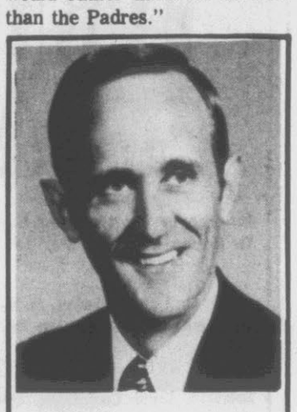

As it turned out, Noll never had to make the decision and the Steelers won 20-13 over the Bengals.

Reserve quarterback Terry Hanratty survived a painful blow to the ribs and finished the game after regular Terry Bradshaw was lost for at least six weeks with a shoulder separation.

Hanratty, whose first pass was a 51-yard go-ahead bomb to Ron Shanklin, will likely start next Monday night against Washington.

Third-string quarterback Joe Gilliam, activated Monday from the taxi squad, will provide the backup.

Hanratty didn't miss a play after his rib injury, but there were some anxious moments along the Steeler sideline.

Too Busy To Check Score

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Hanging out the college football wash:

Charley Thornton, sports information director at the University of Alabama, was so busy researching records during the Crimson Tide's 77-6 rout of Virginia Tech that he neglected to note the score.

"It took so much time to run through several record books — ours, the SEC's and the NCAA's — that I really wasn't watching the score," he said. "When the game ended, my phone rang and a guy wanted to know who had won. I told him Alabama. Then he asked me the score. I glanced at the scoreboard, but it was already off, so I had to ask what it was."

Thornton was still working on the game statistics Monday. And he found a five-yard run by Willie Shelby that hadn't been included in the Tide's originally announced total yardage. The new figures, both NCAA records, are 748 yards rushing and 833 in total offense.

Kansas State's Vince Gibson, a 56-14 Oklahoma victim, thinks the Sooners are better than the teams that finished second nationally the last two seasons.

"That triple option is the toughest thing I've seen yet," he said. "I said before the game Oklahoma was probably No.1 in the country. Now that we've played 'em, I know they are."

Minnesota Coach Cal Stoll refuses to compare the nation's powers after losing for the fourth time to a ranking team. The Gophers have bowed to Ohio State 56-7, Nebraska 48-7, Kansas 34-19 and last Saturday to Michigan 34-7.

But he did say that "when we played Michigan, we were a lot more prepared and a better team than when we played Ohio State in our opening game at Columbus. It's hard for me to predict the winner of a game between Ohio State and Michigan. One thing I do know, there won't be a lot of passing and it will be one of the hardest blocking and passing games ever played in the Big Ten."

Ohio State and Michigan square off Nov. 24 at Ann Arbor.

Southern California's 23-game unbeaten streak went down the drain Saturday ... and so did Guilford College's 32-game losing skein. The Guilford players celebrated by stuffing trainer Neil Welborne face down into a trash can full of ice used to chill cans of pop in the locker room.

Nebraska fans, remembering the explosive days of Johnny Rodgers and friends, are grumbling over the recent lack of offensive punch that has plagued Coach Tom Osborne's Cornhuskers.

The Omaha World-Herald noted a comment overheard in a Lincoln coffee shop:

"Thank God for Richard Nixon. He's keeping the heat off Tom Osborne."

Archibald Is Fined For Talk

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Nate Archibald, the superstar, the heart and soul of the Kansas City-Omaha Kings, had had enough.

But expressing his frustrations about his team's last-place standing to sports writers — criticizing his teammates publicly — was too much for Coach Bob Cousy. He slapped Archibald with a fine of undisclosed amount.

"I'm not defending what Tiny said, but I think that he was frustrated from not having played and spoke without thinking of the situation," Cousy said.

The all-pro guard, out for three games with an injury to an Achilles tendon, played 20 minutes Sunday night in the Kings' 112-110 loss to the Buffalo Braves. His contribution to the losing cause was 10 points and six assists.

As any ship without a rudder, the Kings wandered in circles without Archibald. After seeing his teammates slip to a 4-5 record, Archibald complained, "I think that the team doesn't have any heart. If they aren't going to play basketball then they ought to go back to school."

What really irked Archibald concerned the 44-point performance of Buffalo's Bob McAdoo.

"When a guy scores (that many) points," he said, "half the team should have fouled out. I mean the man should be sore."

He continued, "I know when I've scored 40 points I felt it against teams like Chicago and Detroit. You've got to feel it when you get 40 points."

And then the deepest cut to the team of all:

"They don't have any pride."

Cousy and Archibald discussed the impromptu news conference before practice Monday and Archibald later spoke with the team. The content of his address was not disclosed.

Cousy, who's been juggling his manpower in desperate quest for victory in the absence of his superstar, said:

"I couldn't be mad at the team. In fact, after the game I told them that I thought they had put forth effort. It was just unfortunate that Tiny was injured and we lost Sam (Lacey) in that game, too."

Lacey suffered an ankle sprain.

Cousy completed negotiations with Houston Tuesday in an even-up swap of guards, sending off Matt Goukas for Jimmy Walker.

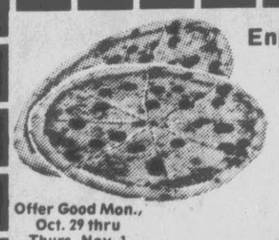

ASU End Is Top Player

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP)—Appalachian State end David Webb today was named Southern Conference football defensive player of the week for his performance in the Mountaineers' 31-6 victory last Saturday over The Citadel's Bulldogs.

The 6-foot, 200-pound sophomore from Oak Ridge, Tenn., made seven individual tackles and sacked Bulldog quarterbacks four times for 38 yards in losses as the Mountaineers took over fourth place in the standings with a 2-1 record.

All four sacks came at crucial times, and Webb also broke up a pass that halted a drive toward the goal by the Bulldogs.

A Non-Smoker Is Turned Off

Horace's wife craved more boudoir romancing. But she unwittingly was making him more and more platonic. Note, too, the birthday present the Pennsylvania dentist's wife gave him. Was it an erotic hint, as he surmised? If you like boudoir cheesecake, avoid cigarettes!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Y-562: Horace T., aged 38, is a bank teller.

"Dr. Crane," his wife explained, "Horace is a good provider but not very demonstrative.

"And the past few years our marriage has been largely platonic.

"So do you think he needs some sex vitamins or hormone shots to perk him up in the boudoir!

"He isn't so old that he should be impotent, for he is only 38.

"But he has even demanded that I buy twin beds, saying I waken him when I roll over at night.

"Dr. Crane, I'd like a more romantic husband so how can I get Horace to perk up in the bedroom?"

"Does Horace smoke?" I abruptly asked, and she shook her head.

Meanwhile she was chain smoking.

So I reminded her that many a non-smoking husband has confessed that he couldn't grow erotic about a boudoir smokestack!

"Dr. Crane," such men have grumbled, "whenever I try to get romantic about my wife and start to kiss her, I get asphyxiated with her stale tobacco halitosis!

"It's bad enough at night, but in the morning she stinks like a neglected ash tray!

"So I just can't work up any erotic enthusiasm about her."

If you wives use cigarettes, then you better delete them, for they can offset much of the boudoir cheesecake that you otherwise offer your mate.

Smokers don't realize how they stink when they are around non-smokers.

"Dr. Crane," many men (as well as women) have protested, "it kills my enjoyment of food at a restaurant when a smoker pollutes the air while I am trying to eat.

"And if that fresh tobacco smoke makes me sick, just imagine how much worse it is to inhale stale tobacco halitosis when I try to kiss my mate."

Tobacco actually has a dual injurious effect on marital romance.

For example, if wives are erotically stimulated but left unsatisfied, they soon grow jittery and neurotic.

So they may adopt the cigarette habit as a means of draining off their sexual energy by waving their hand around every few minutes in the act of smoking.

Cigarettes thus help dissipate a wife's unexpended erotic energy.

But they also inhibit a man's sex drive, if he is a smoker, for they seem to anesthetize his ardor.

You are aware of the fact that smoking cuts down a man's stomach hunger.

By the same token, it apparently curbs his erotic appetite, too!

Even if the husband is a non-smoker, then that stale tobacco halitosis of his wife may also throw him into a platonic state.

Tobacco thus acts as a form of chemical castration.

When I mentioned this fact before a Pennsylvania Dental Convention, 700 doctors wrote the very next week for the booklet below.

"But, Dr. Crane," a prominent dental surgeion protested, "my birthday occurred the day after your speech and do you know what my wife gave me as a present?

"A box of cigars, plus several cartons of cigarettes!

"But she had always been diffident in the boudoir, so was she trying to curb my desire for boudoir cheesecake?"

Send for my booklet "How to Break the Tobacco Habit," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cent.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

BONUS AT END OF THE JOB

ROME (AP) — Every Italian who works, from factory hand to bank president, receives by law a liquidation payment of at least a month's salary for every year of work when he quits, retires, or is fired. His heirs receive it if he dies. For executives, private or public, this often runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars on top of handsome pensions.

Tim Holland, whose new game "Auto-Backgammon" has recently appeared on the market, is generally regarded as one of the world's leading backgammon experts. What is not so well known is that he is also a very fine bridge player, as this deal from a recent rubber bridge game at New York's Regency Whist Club bears out.

South had a fine attacking hand, and slam was a distinct possibility when he opened the bidding. However, when North could do no more than repeat his heart suit over the jump to four clubs, South decided that the prudent course was to settle quietly in the club game. He couldn't ask for aces because that would get the auction too high if North turned up with only one.

Holland sat East and when his partner led the king of spades, Holland dutifully played the three to show an odd number of cards in the suit. West shifted to the nine of diamonds, won by East's ace. The automatic return would have been a spade, and that would have allowed declarer to make his contract.

After some thought, East realized that a spade return would be futile. West knew how many spades declarer held, and he would have cashed the ace if he thought it would go thru. Obviously, West was trying to take as many defensive tricks as possible before declarer took discards on dummy's hearts.

Since there were certainly no more tricks in the side suits, the only hope to defeat South was to make a trump trick, and East found the only defense to give his side a chance. At trick three, he switched to a heart!

Declarer won in dummy and led a trump to his queen, and when West showed out the contract was doomed. There was no way to prevent East from scoring the jack of clubs.

Notice that the heart return is vital to the defense, for it shatters declarer's communications. With any other return, declarer will win and lead the ace of trumps. When West shows out declarer can enter dummy with a heart to take the marked finesse for the trump jack, thereby making his contract.

Wildlife Planting Materials Offered

Wildlife planting materials are available from the North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission, according to Edwin L. Yancey, County Extension Chairman.

These planting materials come in units large enough to seed one-eight acre of land, and are provided free of charge for seed and cover for all types of wildlife.

Several seed mixtures, including both annual or perennial plants can be used on small areas of land that may not be suitable for crop production. Shrub lespedeza seedlings can be planted on land where a seedbed cannot be prepared. Sericea lespedeza seed are available for seeding eroded areas and other small plots of land where there is a need for game cover.

Technical assistance in planning wildlife management programs is also provided free of charge by the Wildlife Resources Commission to land owners and sportsmen.

Sam Poole, 507 Darby Avenue, Kinston, 28501, is the district game biologist who provides this help. Anyone who would like to make application for wildlife planting materials, or need more information about wildlife management, may contact the Pitt County agricultural agents office.

Quality Said A Key Ingedient

NEW YORK (UPI) — The most important ingredient in a prescription pharmaceutical cannot be seen, says the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association. The ingredient: the quality of the product.

A poorly manufactured drug product that cannot be relied on is not only worthless but in some cases it can be dangerous, says the association.

Milk Substitute Coming To Several N.C. Counties

WEATHER OUTLOOK — Here is the precipitation and temperature outlook for November according to the National Weather Service. (AP Wirephoto Map)

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

North Carolina consumers in some counties will soon be offered a new product that looks like, cooks like, and—to some people—tastes like milk, but will cost about 15 cents a half gallon less.

The product, Dairene, is made from soybeans and will be initially distributed by two operations in the state.

Hugh Craft, office manager for Sunrise Dairies of Gastonia, one of the distributors, said the milk substitute should be available by Nov. 5 to residents of Gaston, Lincoln and Mecklenburg counties.

When Sunrise offered samples to the public last summer, he said, "some people said it tasted like real milk and some said it did not."

Leonard Blanton, director of the Dairy Division for North Carolina's Department of Agriculture, observed, "It has a dinstinctive flavor of its own. Corn syrup solids give it a different kind of sweetness flavor."

Assistant Agriculture Commissioner Bill Lowder also found the taste different. "It's not an objectionable flavor, but a distintice flavor," he said.

Despite its soybean origin, Dairene comes very close to the real thing in appearance. "You couldn't tell it from real milk," Craft said.

"Once it is used for cooking or something like milkshakes or ice cream, you probably couldn't tell any difference."

Craft noted that other dairy products like cheese and ice cream can be derived from the substitute, but said there are no plans at present to market them.

Dairene will be available in half gallon cartons at 59 cents each. A half gallon of milk now costs 75 cents in North Carolina.

The soybean product is already available in Florida and Craft said he had heard reports that consumers there have readily accepted it.

Dairene in powder form is to be shipped from Florida to North Carolina, where it will be liquefied, then homogenized and pasteurized as real milk is.

"Many of the ingredients are at approximately the same level as milk," Blanton said. "They have fortified it with added vitamins and minerals to bring it fairly in line with milk."

"It does not have cholesterol in it," Craft noted and added, "It does not have the fat content that real milk does."

The new product also has less protein than milk, a lack that raised some doubts in the Agriculture Department.

Blanton said department officials "have been concerned that it is low in protein as compared to milk. It may be as they go into production, they will raise the protein level."

Despite that reservation, the Agriculture Department approved the sale of the milk substitute in the state Sept. 18.

Since then, Craft said, energy has been devoted to avoiding some of the legal pitfalls marketing Dairene has encountered in Florida.

One legal hassle there was a dispute on whether the milk commission would have regulatory authority over the product. It was decided that since it is not a dairy product, the agency would not be able to control pricing.

In North Carolina that question has been settled. "As far as we know," Craft eaid, "the milk commission has nothing to do with it."

Concord will be the site of the other dairy involved in the distribution of the imitation milk. Blanton said a bottling plant is to be set up there.

Other manufacturers of the base ingredients for dairy substitutes have shown an interest in marketing similar products. Blanton said some dairies had been contacted, but no other official requests for marketing rights have been received at the Agriculture Department.

That 15 cents per half gallon saving over the price of milk is expected to provide an incentive to consumers to try Dairene.

With prices on everything rising as they are, Craft said, "I think this imitation milk couldn't have come about at a better time."

Craft Classes Offer New Ideas

New ideas to make for Christmas are now being taught in the craft classes at Elm Street Recreation Center. Classes in Decoupage are now going on. The Recreation Department has some supplies on hand, but if people are interested in making anything special, they should bring it to class.

A new craft, Shrink-Art, will be offered starting November 6th. Miniatures, jewelry, greeting cards, and holiday decorations can be made. Supplies will be available at the center, but interested persons are asked to bring scissors.

Recycling Cuts Aluminum Cost

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Aluminum recycling programs are "growing by leaps and bounds" and may make the metal one of the cheapest to use, Reynolds Metals Co. officials say.

Richard N. Bolling, manager of Reynolds' recycling division, said Monday his company's recycling activity now produces as much aluminum as if the company had built a new potline, a row of electrolytic cells used in the production of the metal.

Speaking at a meeting on aluminum recycling, he said the process costs but a fraction of a potline and uses only 5 per cent of the power required to produce an equal amount of primary aluminum.

The aluminum industry has been under fire for its high electrical consumption as the Northwest enters the winter with power reservoirs far below normal.

T.E. Feagin, director of marketing for the division, said that while it takes as much as three times the electricity to make a pound of aluminum as it does to make a pound of steel, it takes about a third less of the lightweight metal to make one can.

Bolling and Feagin said that although the aluminum recycling effort was instituted under pressure by environmentalists concerned with can litter, pilot programs found that environmental concern alone wasn't enough to get public cooperation.

They said the program took off when the industry offered 10 cents a pound for used cans.

They said two major Seattle breweries recycled more than two million pounds of aluminum during September.
