Hospital Bids Well Above Available Funds

By STUART SAVAGE

Reflector Staff Writer
There will be negotiating, much study and some soul-searching for the next few weeks by members of the Board of County Commissioners and Trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital. They must decide what to do about constructing a new hospital here.

Bids for construction of a new 300 bed hospital were opened yesterday. The low base bids for construction totaled $13.25 million. Add to this the cost of land ($390,860), the architects fees (six percent of construction or some $795,000) and other costs involved (such as bond costs and legal fees) and the $16.8 million total is somewhat more than the $14.195 million on hand.

Funds available for the project include $9 million in bonds approved by Pitt voters several years ago, $1.693 million in federal and state rehabilitation funds, $750,000 from the Duke Endowment, a $2 million Medical Care Commission loan, $685,800 in federal revenue sharing funds already earmarked for the projects and just over $661,600 in other funds (including a $30,000 grant from Burroughs-Wellcome Co. and other gifts).

Low bidder for the general construction contract was T.

A. Loving Co. of Goldsboro with a base bid of $8,282,500. Other bidders included D.R. Allen & Son of Fayetteville, $8.7 million; Ranger Construction Co., Atlanta, $8.4 million; Nello L. Teer Co., Durham, $8.5 million and George W. Kane, Inc. Henderson, $8.38 million.

The low electrical bidder was Watson Electric Construction Co. of Wilson with $1,678,510. Other bidders included Southerland Electric of Jacksonville, $1,721 million; Bryant-Durham Electric of Durham, $1.71 million; Bryant Electric Co. of High Point, $1.78 million and Starr Electric Co. of Greensboro, $1.729 million.

The low bidder for the plumbing contract was Faulk Plumbing and Heating Co. of Garner with a $992,000 bid. Other bidders for the plumbing contract included W. H. Sullivan, Greensboro, $1.2 million; Poole & Kent, Winston-Salem, $1.3 million; Smith Plumbing and Heating, Raleigh, $1.153 million; W. R. Proctor Plumbing and Heating, Raleigh, $1.06 million and Community Heating & Plumbing, Greensboro, $1.156 million.

Mechanical contract low bidder was W. H. Sullivan Co., Greensboro with a $2,297,000 bid. Others included: Poole & Kent, $2.5 million; Biemann & Rowell Co., Raleigh, $2.3 million; Albemarle Plumbing & Heating, Raleigh, $2.6 million and Bolton Corporation, Raleigh, $2.4 million.

Options open to officials include the rejections of all bids, have architects re-design the facility and advertise for new bids on a scaled-down project; find a source for the additional funds needed (some $1.26 million after the allowable 5 percent is negotiated out of the proposed bids); or possibly reject the bids, hope to secure an additional $1.5 million in federal loan funds, and re-advertise for bids on the current plans.

Officials have 90 days in which to award contracts to the low bidders or reject the bids and start over again.

Architects for the project indicated yesterday that the low plumbing and mechanical bids were under their projected estimates, while the electrical bid was slightly over their projected cost. The big difference, they said, came in the general construction contract which exceeded their projections by $1.5 million.

Architects estimated the total cost of the project at $11.19 million. Yesterday's low bids were about 18 per cent over the estimated cost.

The low base bid for the general construction contract does not include some $55,000 for construction of a special hemodialysis unit or $162,000 for a psychiatric nursing unit (the low bids for those extras) or other alternates included in yesterday's bidding such as carpet and special wall finishes in some areas of the facility which will now have to be dropped.

Closing Dates Are Announced

Closing dates for several markets in the Eastern Belt have been announced by the Federal State Market News Service.

The Ashokie and Windsor markets closed after sales yesterday. Closing dates for next week include: Nov. 12—Wendell; Nov. 13—Smithfield, Dunn and Washington; Nov. 14—Tarboro; Nov. 15—Greenville, Kinston and Williamston

Middle East Agreement Announced

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel and Egypt have agreed to a six-point plan designed to open negotiations for a permanent Middle East settlement, the U.S. government reported today.

Shortly before the announcement, Israel said Egyptian missiles had shot down an Israeli reconnaissance plane, shelling was reported on the Syrian front and Premier Golda Meir called in the U.S. ambassador amid reports that a hitch had developed in the plan worked out to bolster the cease-fire.

There was no immediate indication of what the hitch might be but the announced agreement differed from one reported in Israel on Thursday.

The announcement of the plan said representatives of the two nations are to sign the agreement, worked out with the help of U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, on Saturday at a meeting on the Suez-Cairo road under U.N. auspices.

Announcement of the agreement confirmed unofficial reports that a peace plan had been accepted by both sides following Kissinger's visits to five Arab states this week.

A letter from Kissinger to U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, made public by White House officials in Washington, listed the following six points:

—Egypt and Israel agree to observe the U.N. cease-fire.

—Both sides agree to begin immediate discussion of disengagement and separation of forces from positions held on Oct. 22, the date of the original cease-fire.

—Daily supplies of food, water and medicine will be allowed into the town of Suez. Wounded civilians will be evacuated from the town.

Canvass Shows One Discrepancy In Vote Results

The official canvass of Tuesday's voting results revealed only one discrepancy from figures published by The Daily Reflector.

Carolina precinct voted in favor of the Clean Water Bond amendment, giving it a favorable margin of 126 to 84. The Reflector reported in Wednesday's edition that Carolina voted against the measure by a 126 to 84 margin.

The adjusted Clean Waters totals for Pitt gives the amendment a vote of 9,158 for and 2,666 against.

Thursday's canvass was conducted by the Pitt County Board of Elections with board chairman J.B. Spilman Jr. presiding.

DECLARES EMERGENCY MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Mayor Henry Maier has declared a state of emergency as a result of the firemen's work slowdown which entered its sixth day today.

uated from the town.

—No hindrance of non-military supplies to the east bank of the Suez Canal.

—U.N. forces will take over Israeli checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez road. At the Suez end of the road Israeli officers can participate in supervising the non-military nature of cargo.

—As soon as the U.N. checkpoints are established, prisoners of war are to be exchanged.

The encircled Egyptian 3rd Army, supplying of which was a key point in negotiations, was not mentioned in Kissinger's letter but would be covered in shipments to Suez.

The agreement, as announced, differed in some points from one reported earlier in the day by U.S. officials traveling with Kissinger in Saudi Arabia.

The officials said a five-point plan reported by the Israeli State Radio on Thursday was essentially correct but some refinements were being worked out.

The plan broadcast by the Israeli radio called for removal of the Egyptian blockade of the Bab el Mandeb Strait at the southern entrance to the Red Sea to give Israel access to the Indian Ocean.

This was not included in the agreement announced by Kissinger. He also did not include the Israeli Radio's final point that direct peace negotiations between Israel and Egypt would begin once the first elements of the agreement are fulfilled.

The lifting of the naval blockade could be an understanding outside the formal agreement. This was indicated by one Israeli report which said that since the Egyptians had never officially announced there was a blockade, then Cairo was free to lift it quietly without publicity.

Both Americans and Israelis were silent about the subject of Mrs. Meir's talk with Ambassador Kenneth B. Keating and there was no confirmation of reports that it dealt with last-minute Israeli objections to the agreement.

There was also no indication whether the plane incident or the Syrian shelling were part of the reported hitch.

An Israeli communique reported the shooting of the plane and said the crew parachuted onto Egyptian territory. It did not call the incident a cease-fire violation, indicating that Israel wanted to minimize the incident.

The U.S. officials with Kissinger said Syria, the other major combatant in the October war, had not endorsed the agreement. Kissinger did not include Syria in his Middle East tour, and Syrian threats to resume the war have generally aroused no concern.

City Council Votes Action On Meadowbrook Needs

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council has voted to install piping and to fill in an open drainage ditch that has been a major area of concern in the West Meadowbrook section of the city.

Council members, who recessed at 12 midnight Thursday after taking up 17 of the scheduled 36 agenda items, instructed the city manager to look into the possibility of Highway Commission participation in the project.

City engineer Charles Holliday reported an estimated cost of the project, which would include 850 feet of 30-inch corrugated pipe, at $9,846.

Councilman Percy Cox, who presided as pro tem in the absence of Mayor Gene West, noted that the city in the past has installed pipe in residential sections at the expense of property owners who paid for the pipe. Cox said that he "feels like the city is at least responsible for half the cost of the pipe."

Councilman John Taylor contended that people living in the area can not afford to pay for the pipe. He said that there is a proven threat of disease in the area due to the open drainage situation.

City Planner John Schofield, who has made a study analysis of the North Greenville area, reported that census figures indicate there are 526 people living in the area that includes 42 and one half acres of developed land. Of the 152 dwellings in the neighborhood, approximately 46 per cent meet housing standards, 40 per cent are substandard, and 14 per cent are mobile homes.

Health conditions in the North Greenville-West Meadowbrook are entailed by the study "leave a lot to be desired," he noted.

Since the area has been annexed, "most of the normal city services have been provided," Schofield pointed out. The city planner added that a very small percentage of the owners in the area have tapped on to the sewer system that was extended into the area.

The Council voted to purchase property bounded by Third, Fourth, Greene and Pitt Streets from Memorial Baptist Church for $125,000. The proposed use of the property, which contains some 87,000 square feet was the site of Memorial Baptist Church until the recent move to Greenville Boulevard, which include public parking and eventually the construction of municipal buildings.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen said the city, in considering the property, "has an unusual opportunity to purchase a city block that is adjacent to the Central Business District that would provide parking" and other desirable uses.

In further business, the Council approved a request by the Eastern Carolina Sheltered Workshop and Vocational Rehabilitation Center for the use of a city refuse truck in the collection of corrugated paper.

Haward Dawkins, Workshop executive director, said that the agency is striving to find constructive things for the handicapped people to do at the Workshop and in turn help the community. He noted that a lot of cardboard is discarded at the landfill and with the use of a city truck and cooperation of Greenville businesses in separating cardboard products from their solid waste, the paper could be packed for recycling.

A request by Pitt County for city cooperation and assistance in the regulation of storage, collection, transporting and disposal of solid waste and the specific disposal of automobile tires was discussed and the Council agreed to work with the county in such an effort.

Bids have been let by the county for a tire cutting machine and the county requested assistance from the Sanitary Landfill Division of the Public Works Department in operating the machine at the city landfill site until the county's landfill is open. The Council agreed that the city will provide personnel to operate the cutter two days a week.

Two resolutions pertaining to Greenville's eligibility for federal subsidized flood insurance under the National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 was approved and following a presentation by a representative of the Department of Water and Air Resources.

The resolutions involve "assuring the Federal Insurance Administration of the city's intent to enact and maintain adequate land use and control measures pertaining to flood protection" and "requesting the N. C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources, Board of Water and Air Resources, to arrange with the Army Corps of Engineers for a survey and mapping of areas within the city and its extraterritorial jurisdiction affected by periodic flooding."

The action, it was pointed out, will insure a legal and specific definition of the city's flood plain and offer subsidized insurance protection against flood-related losses.

Rufus Huggins was appointed to the Recreation Commission to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Eleanor Hagans who resigned.

Council members also appointed Myrle Cox and Keith Joyner to the Human Relations Council as representatives from J. H. Rose High School and Brooks Bear during 1972, they tell us we aren't customers of anyone."

Mrs. Schwarz said she has appealed for help — so far without luck — to the special allocation office set up in Lansing by the Michigan Department of Commerce.

"I called them as soon as it became apparent that we were going to spend a heatless night," she said. "But the girl that answered the phone in Lansing told me there were hundreds of people on their list and all she could do was add my name to it."

Don Myers, a spokesman for the department, said "it could take a week or so" before new oil customers like the Schwarzs will be served. The state can order that as much as 10 per cent of the fuel received by Michigan wholesalers be used for hardship cases.

"We're doing the best we can," said Myers. "We're short-staffed and confused at the moment, but we are trying to get each and every call. Undoubtedly these people won't be forced to go without heat all winter, but each case has to be handled individually."

He also said that the shotgun could not have been fired because the shells in it were not the right size.

Medlin was treated at Maria Parham Hospital in Henderson, where a doctor said he had lost a lot of blood, and then was transferred to Duke Hospital in Durham.

Henderson Jailer Wounded During Break-Out

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—A jailer was shot and wounded in the escape of two prisoners early today, a break engineered by a man with a sawed-off shotgun who scaled a chain-link fence, authorities said.

They added that the shotgun wouldn't fire because it had shells of the wrong size, so the man evidently hit the jailer on the head with the weapon, got his pistol from a drawer, and shot him.

Sheriff L. B. Falkner of Vance County said the night jailer at the county jail in Henderson, Thurston Medlin, about 58, had been hit in the back of the head and shot in the neck.

Falkner said the shotgun, with blood on the barrel, had been found in the jail yard, but that Medlin's pistol was missing.

Medlin was treated at a hospital in Henderson and transferred to Duke Hospital in Durham.

The escapees, 4th grad pvs (for NC points pickup is in K035 and for SC points is in K035)

The escapees were identified by an off-duty day jailer, Robert Edwards, as Duane Coleman, 21, of Baltimore, who was awaiting trial on a charge of passing a forged check at a Henderson bank, and Anthony Williams, 22, of the Henderson area, awaiting trial on a charge of possession of marijuana.

Edwards gave this account:

A man scaled the six-foot fence and the barbed wire on top. He got into an unlocked anteroom where he confronted Medlin and trusty prisoner William Person with the shotgun.

After Medlin was wounded, the man got his keys and ordered Person to open a block in which there were four cells. The cell which housed Coleman and Williams also was opened. Five other prisoners in the block did not escape. Nor did other prisoners in the jail, a brick building about three blocks from the business district of Henderson, a city of 15,000 in north-central North Carolina near the Virginia line.

Edwards continued: The two escapees and the other man evidently got over the fence at the back. A deputy bringing a man to jail had just unlocked the gate in the fence at the front of the jail. He saw the men in the yard, but thought they had legitimate business.

The break was at about 1:30 a.m.

However, the deputy, C. C. Ellington, who was contacted later, said he arrived shortly after the break, and did not see the three men. He said that when he arrived the trusty was trying to scale the fence to re-

New England Mansions Aid Tourist Trade

By KENNETH CAFARELL
NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — The Newport mansions sit atop low, slate colored bluffs which meet the Atlantic Ocean. They are fabulous reminders of lifestyles of captains of American industry of yesteryear.

More than 30 mansions, many of them costing well over $1 million when they were built around the turn of the century, are shrouded in huge elms, oaks and amples.

Had they been built in Europe they would have been called palaces, but their owners called them summer cottages, and lived in them about six weeks of the year, during the late spring and early summer.

John Jacob Astor, William and Cornelius Vanderbilt, Edward J. Berwind, and William Shepard Wetmore were among the most prominent men who made Newport the social capital of the country at the time.

Well over 200,000 persons visited nine of the mansions last year, comprising a large part of the city's tourist trade.

The mansions are open daily during the summer under the auspices of the Newport Preservation Society which operates them on private donations and admissions.

They were either given to the society as gifts or brought outright at a fraction of their original cost because they became too expensive to maintain.

The most opulent of the mansions is the Breakers, which was built for Cornelius Vanderbilt in 1895. Its kitchen alone has floor space equal to an average house.

The most spectacular of its 70 rooms is a huge formal dining hall which measures 42 feet by 58 feet and rises two full stories. Twelve red alabaster columns topped with gilded bronze capitals support the ceiling which is covered with a huge painting of Aurora at dawn. The walls are marble.

The Breakers is situated on what many experts call the finest piece of real estate on the east coast, bounded on two sides by the ocean.

A few blocks away is Marble House which is considered the finest example of American Renaissance architecture in the country. It was built for William Vanderbilt and features a ball room which is completely gilded.

There have been no official estimates of the cost of the two Vanderbilt mansions, but laymen's estimates run into the millions.

Almost next door to Marble House is Roscliff, built for the daughter of James Fair who discovered the richest vein of gold and silver in the world, the Comstock Lode.

Yearly Auction Held At Meet

A members' auction highlighted the dinner meeting of Alpha Nu Chapter of Alpha Delta Kappa, international sorority for women, held at Tom's Restaurant.

Mrs. Lois Haddock was the auctioneer for the yearly event.

The meeting was conducted by the president, Miss Alya R. Taylor. Mrs. Evelyn Finch gave the devotional and invocation. Reports were given by Mrs. Bettie Hardee, corresponding secretary. Mrs. Jeanette Clapp, scholarship chairman, and Miss Taylor, who told of a meeting at Morehead.

The group decided to have a secret sister for Christmas. Meeting places for the remainder of the year were discussed.

Computer Dates Leave Her Lonely

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: If you use my letter, please don't use my name. I already feel like a first class fool. I am a 58-year-old widow who signed up with a computer dating service four months ago.

I was interviewed in person and said I liked classical music and theater, and only wanted a presentable escort. I paid them $398, and they guaranteed me two dates a month with a man supposedly selected by computer whose interests would match mine.

None of the characters they came up with were even presentable. All impressed me as men who were looking for a meal ticket. Some were insulting.

After four months without one suitable date, I asked this company for a $200 refund. They turned me down. I saw my lawyer, who said I was an idiot for having gone for a deal like this in the first place.

I could sue them, but I don't want to publicize my foolishness. I ask you, are all these mating and dating services just out to take people? And where does a respectable woman go to meet a decent man? BEEN HAD

DEAR BEEN: I've had both bad and good reports on computer dating and mating services. [Mostly bad, which is not surprising since people write to me about their bad breaks—not their good.] I agree with your lawyer. Respectable women meet decent men thru mutual friends, or in decent places like volunteer organizations, church groups, and adult education classes.

DEAR ABBY: I am 17 years old and am still a virgin. This guy I'll call Randy asked me to go all the way with him. I told him I was saving myself for marriage, and he said I was foolish because no guy wants a virgin anymore. Is that true?

Randy signed up for the Navy for four years and he is leaving soon. Do you think a girl should get that serious with a guy before he goes into the Navy? He probably just wants somebody to write to, but I am afraid to get involved with him knowing he'll be tied up with the Navy for so long.

Please tell me what to do as I am all mixed up. IN DOUBT

DEAR IN DOUBT: Slow up, young lady, or you will be in TROUBLE. Plenty of guys want their brides to be virgins so don't let Randy sell you a bill of goods. He sounds like an immature, irresponsible kid you would do well to stay away from.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 30-year-old woman whose mother tells her she is "blackheaded and stubborn" because she refuses to try to make friends with a large dog that attacked her two years ago.

Being attacked by this dog was a traumatic experience for me. I can still remember the bleeding teeth marks on my wrist, and the large scar on my leg which took a year to heal.

My mother claims that this dog is friendly to anyone who isn't afraid of him, so I should pet him thru the fence to make friends with him, and act like I am not afraid of him. I claim that under the circumstances it is normal for me to be afraid, and even foolish to be otherwise.

This dog was trained as a watchdog. Am I being stubborn? J. W.

DEAR J. W.: Yes. But intelligently so. They say, every dog is entitled to one bite. And that dog has had his.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Cranberry Bars Are A Family Dessert

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor
That versatile fruit, the cranberry, is here in its fresh form to make the most of. Whether cranberries are used in a stuffing for pork and baked apples, in a relish and salad, or in puddings and pies, they add tangy and refreshing flavor.

One good cook we know invented a recipe for Cranberry Nut Bars that her family enjoys. These cookies are super when served the day they are baked but they may be kept overnight. They pick up a little moisture during the overnight stay but they still taste delicious.

CRANBERRY NUT BARS
½ cup margarine
½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
2 tablespoons molasses
2 eggs
1 cup flour, stir to aerate before measuring
½ teaspoon baking powder
¼ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup walnuts, chopped
½ cup raisins, chopped
1 cup fresh cranberries, chopped
Confectioners' sugar, if desired

In a medium saucepan melt margarine; remove from heat; stir in sugar and molasses. Add eggs and beat until blended.

In a bowl or on wax paper thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, baking soda, salt and nutmeg; add to molasses mixture; stir to mix well. Stir in nuts, raisins and cranberries.

Turn into a greased 9-inch square cake pan, spreading batter to cover bottom of pan evenly — batter will not be very deep.

FAMILY TREAT—Cranberry Nut Bars, made with the fresh fruit, serve as dessert.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until top is golden-brown — 20 to 25 minutes. Place pan on wire rack to cool completely.

Cut into 3 by 1 inch bars in serving, if desired, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar. Makes about 27 bars.

All For The Ladies Is His Recipe

PARIS, France (WNS) — Jean Claude Pascal's recipe for modern success: "Please the ladies. And in order to please them, change your act frequently." Pascal began his career as a designer for Christian Dior. Then he became a matinee idol in French films and theater. After that, he quit France to design fabrics and sheets in West Germany. And now he will "inundate the American and French markets with perfumes and cosmetics." "My chief rival in jumping from product to product is Pierre Cardin," said Pascal. "We began our careers together at Dior."

West Europe Tries Save Fuel

By JULIE FLINT
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Most West European governments say the oil squeeze hasn't reached crisis proportions yet, but they are trying to conserve their supplies.

Legislation to limit public and private consumption and pleas for voluntary curbs blazed the trail that President Nixon took in his television address Wednesday night.

Belgium, the headquarters for the European Economic Community, has led the European bloc with wide-ranging restrictions to be implemented if Arabs continue to restrict their oil production and exports. The West German government has taken similar action, and Scandinavian nations have put lesser curbs into action.

France, on the other hand, believes it is protected by its strongly pro-Arab policy. This was borne out by Algeria's decision to exempt France from the 25 per cent cut it announced Thursday in exports to Western oil companies.

European airlines have not yet acted to counter fuel shortages, but the British lines are considering pooling their services to arrange fewer, fuller flights. If an American fuel shortage keeps U.S. airports from refueling European airliners, American planes might not be refueled in Europe.

Britain, with a 65-day oil supply on hand, has drawn up contingency plans that are still secret. Most heating in Britain now is by gas or electricity, with oil systems limited largely to rural areas and to new housing developments where oil companies offer cheap bulk rates.

The Belgian government is preparing the machinery to requisition oil, gas and fuel stocks, reduce heating oil deliveries, and heat government buildings to only 68 degrees, a few degrees below the average European home temperature.

Belgian motorists may have to observe reduced speed limits. In addition, their Sunday pleasure driving will be restricted beginning Nov. 18.

much as Holland banned unnecessary driving last weekend. Dutch children may have their school week cut from six to five days. The Luxembourg government has moved to close gas stations over the weekends, banned hoarding and urged careful fuel consumption.

West Germany's ruling Socialists and opposition Christian Democrats joined to pass a bill giving Chancellor Willy Brandt sweeping powers to save fuel. The powers mirror the Belgian initiatives, and in addition the public is being urged to use more coal.

In Switzerland, a government appeal for voluntary curbs on oil consumption has avoided rationing "for the time being," one official said. A decision is expected shortly on a ban on weekend and holiday driving.

The Italian government has discarded initial plans for new speed limits, a ban on weekend gasoline sales and longer Christmas vacations for roads and in the home.

AFL-CIO Bosses Tee Off Impeachment Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO, saying that President Nixon has shown no intention of resigning, is asking its 13.5 million members to press Congress for his impeachment.

The White House said in rebuttal that the labor federation's action "is ill-conceived and can only result in harming the nation at home and abroad."

The AFL-CIO's impeachment call Thursday followed unanimous adoption at its national convention in Miami Beach, Fla., last month of a resolution that sought Nixon's resignation or, failing that, his removal by Congress.

AFL-CIO President George Meany has also publicly questioned Nixon's emotional stability.

Thursday's sharply worded statement was prepared by the federation leadership for distribution at factory gates, union meetings and through mailings to rank-and-file workers.

Among its accusations was that Nixon has "constantly lied" to the American people. Most of the 19 reasons it listed in calling for impeachment dealt with the Watergate affair and what it called the erosion of public confidence in the government. It charged that Nixon has used his office "to attempt to put himself above the law."

"Until Richard Nixon is removed from office, we will not be able to get Watergate behind us," the statement said. "We will not be able to proceed with sober and constructive solutions to our economic and social problems at home or to the dangers of war in the world."

The statement urged union members to send impeachment messages to their congressmen and to Chairman Peter Rodino of the House Judiciary Committee, which has begun studying impeachment grounds.

Ken W. Clawson, deputy director of communications at the White House, said in reply: "We are confident that the working men and women of the AFL-CIO will reject George Meany's unseemly attempt to manufacture impeachment fervor against President Nixon."

'Cold Wave' Due Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A cold wave warning has been issued for North Carolina for tonight. Lows in the 20s inland and 30s along the coast and Outer Banks are forecast by daybreak Saturday.

Scattered showers will occur mainly across the southeast portion this morning, ending by afternoon. Highs today will be in the 50s in the west and north portions, 60s in the south.

Small-craft advisories are in effect for the coast and Pamlico and Albemarle sounds. Southwesterly to westerly winds will be shifting to northerly and northeasterly 15 to 25 knots today, and waves will increase.

Sunny skies and temperatures in the 40s Saturday afternoon will make for fine fall football weather.

Across the eastern two thirds of the state, where more sunshine was evident, temperatures ranged Thursday from the mid 60s to the low 70s. The actual range was from 57 at Asheville to 73 at Jacksonville. Scattered light rain spread into the mountains during the early afternoon and the southern Piedmont during the late afternoon.

Board Took Field Tour

The board of supervisors of the Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District examined a severely eroded commercial development site in Greenville during a field tour Monday afternoon.

"Soil and Water Conservation Districts will begin playing an important role in implementing North Carolina's 'Sediment Pollution Control Act of 1973', according to Roy Beck, district conservationist with SCS, "that will control erosion during land disturbing activities."

Erosion control plans for development sites like the one in Greenville will be submitted to the appropriate Soil and Water Conservation District for review and comments under provisions of the new act.

During the afternoon, the group also toured portions of Chicod Creek which has dried up. The U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife reported that the stretch of Chicod Creek visited supports a very large population of fish. However, Monday, the supervisors found only one small pool filled with stagnant water.

Auto Crashed Into Store Front

Robert Clark Corrie Jr., of Mount Olive was charged yesterday with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety after his vehicle crashed into the front of Johnson's Furniture Co. at West End Circle about 9 a.m.

Police reported an estimated $5 damage resulted to the Corrie car while an estimated $1,000 damage resulted to windows at the front of the furniture company building.

No injuries were reported.

Alumni Group Of Ex-Patients

Ex-patients of the Acoholic Rehabilitation Center have organized an alumni group and bi-monthly meetings are being held.

The next meeting will be held on Nov. 15, Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. in the conference room of the administration building at ARC. Interested ex-patients and their families are asked to be present.

This is the second meeting of the non-profit group.

Much Frustration And Dismay

Assuming you have read the President's energy-conserving proposals, or heard them, your reaction should be one of infuriated dismay and frustration.

That this land of abundance in energy resources and known as a nation of world leadership in the fields of technology and industry could ever find itself in such a bind is incomprehensible.

You know, and we know, if local utilities commissioners were as shortsighted in providing a community's water supplies. . . failed to project future needs and planned accordingly. . . they would be branded as inept and something less than a qualified for their responsibilities.

The Congress, the petroleum industry leaders and White House appointees delegated to keep abreast of energy needs simply haven't done their jobs.

The American petroleum industry, in particular, has raised dark suspicions. Their leadership is (or should be) composed of the most brilliant men in the fields of production and marketing. We can think of few industries with a history of better cognizance in meeting the questions of supply and demand than in the petroleum industry. Now, in less than 2 years, they fall flat on their collective faces.

Why? A labor union can strike to focus attention on their demands or complaints. What does an entire industry do. . . simply fail to function?

But then, one can't make a segment of the overall picture a scapegoat. Certainly the industry has been hampered by federal laws, by state laws and community ordinances. Legislation that inhibits the energy-producing industry must run into the thousands of volumes. So inhibitive have the lawmaking processes become, that the U.S. petroleum industry found it more economical to build or lease tankers to import fuels than to drill and build more and better refineries.

Frustrations make one prone to strike out in any and all directions.

But the end result has been to make us vulnerable to blackmail by the oil-producing countries in the Middle East. We can and will beat that, of course. But not everybody can. West Europe can't. Nor can Japan.

Too many millions of people are seeing their basic needs threatened by the cut-off of all-important fuel. It is a situation which lends itself to desperate measures that go beyond words.

Shah Guarding Key Waterway

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

TEHERAN—When Soviet Prime Minister Aleksei Kosygin on his recent visit here complained to the Shah about Iran's soaring armaments program, which he said was costing $2 billion, the Shah smiled a chilly smile and murmured: "Three, not two."

Indeed, the Shah's ambitious defense program is costing in toto even more than $3 billion. The Shah privately estimates its annual cost right now at between one and two billion dollars—a lot of hardware even for a fast-developing country of 32 million.

Yet, considering the Shah's ability to cash-and-carry every dollar's worth out of his oil-fattened treasury, and considering his plan to make Iran the principal guardian of the vital Persian Gulf waterway, his decision to build the best combat force between the Soviet Union and India is very good news for the West.

A cursory glance at the Shah's inventory, either in place or on order, makes pleasant reading for friends, among whom the U.S. stands high: close to a thousand British Chieftain tanks, 169 F-4s of the advance D and E classification, 141 F-5s, a couple of specially built British frigates, a couple of U.S. destroyers, U.S. air tankers to give his fighters maximum range, fast patrol boats, British-made Hovercraft and much more.

Neither the Shah nor his Prime Minister, a hard-headed nine-year veteran, will mention such statistics. They arouse suspicions in India and in some of the Shah's neighbors, particularly the hostile Iraqis.

Iraq broke relations with Iran in 1971 when the Shah seized British-controlled areas in the Gulf, including the Iranian side of the Shatt-al-Arab waterway dividing Iran and Iraq—and three strategic islets near the neck of the Persian Gulf—just before the British vacated the Gulf area. Although diplomatic relations were restored by Iraq for tactical reasons when the war of Yom Kippur broke out, the two countries are bitter enemies.

Thus, protecting his flank along the volatile border with Iraq, which is armed to the teeth by profligate Moscow, is a secondary reason for the Shah's huge military buildup. The greater reason is to keep Persian oil flowing and Persian control over the Gulf and the Sea of Oman.

As the Shah told us in an interview. "We must depend on ourselves. No one will do it for us."

The Shah means just that. He sent Iranian (Persian) armed help to Oman early this year to quell a radical left-wing movement in that small emirate. They are still there. He will do the same anywhere along the congested west bank of the Gulf.

Publicly, he and King Faisal of Saudi Arabia, another traditional but more passive monarch, have agreed to cooperate on keeping the Gulf clear of foreign influences and to protect the small oil emirates from radical infiltration.

But the two monarchs are not close, despite efforts by Washington to make them so. Moreover, the Shah's prospective military power puts him in a unique class, far superior to the Saudis.

Soviet influence in the Gulf area today is weak, except for Iraq. A Soviet mission in Kuwait is small, and the half-dozen emirates have not even granted diplomatic exchanges to Moscow.

That hasn't stopped systematic and increasing Soviet naval penetration of the Gulf, however. Small Soviet naval vessels are frequent visitors, and early this year for the first time a Soviet cruiser steamed up the Shatt-al-Arab. Soviet activity is intense in Aden, far to the south on the Arabian tip, but on the Gulf itself there is no easy toehold other than Iraq—not yet.

Strength For Today

SCRIPTURE INCARNATE It has sometimes been said that we are the only Bible that a careless and hurry world will take time to read. We are the living epistles of God's Word.

This is particularly true in the relationship of parents to children. Many parents hope in a vague sort of way that their children will grow up to be church members, but these parents never try to effectuate this hope by teaching their children from the Bible. Perhaps their failure in this regard stems from the fact that they know little about the Bible themselves. But whatever the reason, their actions speak louder than any words. If the parents pay little attention to the Bible, the children naturally conclude that it is not very important.

Our children's ideas about God are largely formed by the attitudes they perceive in us. And so it is with many other people besides children. Our actions, rather than our words, constitute their Bible.

One Could Record Again

WASHINGTON — The solution to the two missing presidential tapes is simple. The President should do them over again with the same cast. It would be no problem for the White House to rent a recording studio and hire a producer to make tapes as good as the original.

This is how it would go.

PRODUCER: Okay, Mr. President, do you have your script? Now on this tape you're getting a call from John Mitchell. It's right after Watergate and Mr. Mitchell is giving you a fill-in. Mr. Mitchell, you hold the phone over there at that mike. Are we ready? Roll 'em. This is the Nixon-Mitchell telephone conversation tape one. Go.

MITCHELL: Hi, Mr. President. John Mitchell here.

NIXON: Hello, John. How's Martha since you tied her up in Newport Beach?

PRODUCER: Cut. Mr. President, you sound too relaxed. Now you have to remember, this is right after Watergate, and it looks like the Committee for the Re-Election of the President has been involved. Could you get some anxiety in your voice?

NIXON: I never show any anxiety.

PRODUCER: Well, pretend you were just awakened or something. We want to make this thing sound real. Okay, roll it again, tape two.

MITCHELL: Do you want to start from the top or where I tell the President I can't tell him anything about Watergate because it will only upset him?

PRODUCER: All right, start from there.

MITCHELL: Mr. President, I know something you don't know.

PRESIDENT: What is it?

MITCHELL: I'm not going to tell you because you'll go through the roof.

PRESIDENT: But as President, shouldn't I know everything you know? It isn't nice to keep secrets from me, John.

MITCHELL: Someday you'll thank me for not telling you about it.

PRESIDENT: Why on earth did you bring it up, if you can't tell me?

MITCHELL: In the future I may have to testify that I didn't tell you about it and I want it on the record.

PRESIDENT: Well what did you call for then?

MITCHELL: Just to tell you I couldn't tell you anything about the Watergate break-in or who was involved.

PRESIDENT: I appreciate that. And, John, have a nice day.

PRODUCER: Beautiful. You guys were perfect. All right, let's do the second tape. Where's John Dean?

ASSISTANT: He's sitting over there being guarded by two secret service men. He says he doesn't want to do it.

PRODUCER: Why doesn't he want to do it?

ASSISTANT: He says he has a contract with Columbia Records, and he can't make tapes for anyone else.

PRODUCER: Get him over here to this mike.

DEAN: I can't read my script with these handcuffs on.

PRODUCER: Take off the handcuffs. Now, John, the Presidency of the entire United States is at stake. How you read these lines could affect the history of the country. Do you understand?

DEAN: I guess so. But this script doesn't sound like me.

PRODUCER: Who's going to know, John? You're in show biz.

DEAN: The President didn't say these things to me.

PRODUCER: Look, John. Don't worry about what the President said to you. Let him worry about his own lines. Okay, let's roll. Everyone in the studio, quiet. Tape one Nixon-Dean in Oval Office alone.

State Records Pile Up

By DR. H. G. JONES
Director of Archives and History

RALEIGH (AP) — State agencies and institutions created 46,931 cubic feet of records during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1973, according to a report recently submitted to Gov. James E. Holshouser by the Division of Archives and History.

These records would fill 7,333 file cabinets costing $490,000 if purchased new. However, during the year 24,218 cubic feet of records were destroyed or removed to low cost storage in the state records center, representing a saving of more than $250,000.

The total volume of state records has increased 22 percent since 1971 and has more than doubled in the past 10 years.

State agencies and institutions are creating records 50 percent faster than they are removing them. Although the records transferred to low cost storage in the records center have increased to a total of 74,854 cubic feet—or the equivalent of the contents of 11,695 file cabinets—more than 20,000 cubic feet of additional records could have been transferred had space been available and retention and had disposition schedules been followed.

Not all records were kept, however. Some 21,455 cubic feet were destroyed both in the agencies and in the records center under approved schedules. The records which were destroyed weighed 322 tons and would have occupied 3,350 file cabinets had they been retained.

The annual report of records holdings, which is submitted to the governor after the end of each fiscal year, is designed to measure the effectiveness of the records management program administered by the Division of Archives and History.

It is also designed to assist (Continued on page 5)

Arrangements for the big county-wide rat banquet on November 17 are almost completed. The county agent reports that many persons are taking advantage of the opportunity to get rid of rats and that orders for the special rat bait are pouring into his office.

It is hoped that the rat campaign this year will reduce Pitt County's share of the $200,000,000 losses each year in this country due to rats.

Governor JCB Ehringhaus will speak at the Golden Weed Jubilee to be held in Farmville tomorrow night and one of the largest crowds ever to gather in the thriving Pitt County town is expected to be on hand.

During the afternoon, the governor will make a tour of inspection of Eastern Carolina tobacco markets, returning to Farmville in time to take part in the celebration. The address will take place at 7:30 p.m.

The address will be followed by the presentation of a pageant depicting the history of tobacco from the beginning of the industry to the present.

Energy Problem Now A Crisis

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It is no longer a problem," said Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers after meeting with President Nixon on the fuel shortage. "It is a crisis of major proportions."

"We are heading toward the most acute shortages of energy since World War II," Nixon told the American people in a nationally televised address Wednesday night.

Just three weeks after Arab oil nations cut off oil shipments to the United States, Americans have begun to realize just how serious the fuel situation may be this winter.

Nixon, seeking emergency powers from Congress to cut down on energy demand and preserve petroleum supplies, recognized the Arab oil weapon in his speech, saying it will mean more than two million fewer barrels of oil daily by the end of the month.

Petroleum supplies will be at least 10 per cent and maybe 17 per cent short of needs, the President said.

A few weeks ago, however, few people inside or outside the government saw the situation in the same grim light that Nixon saw it in his speech.

Before the Arab nations decided to wield the oil weapon, the administration was saying the nation would be able to survive the winter despite an already tight supply situation.

It didn't become clear to the administration until about a week ago just how serious the shortage will be. Emerging from a meeting with the White House energy adviser John A. Love last Thursday, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the "crisis is much worse than all of us had anticipated a week ago."

Love conceded to reporters Wednesday night: "We have an emergency now."

The arithmetic of the crisis has changed dramatically in a few short weeks.

Less than a month ago, U.S. officials were saying that the nation gets only about 6 per cent of the oil used by Americans from Arab nations. But that amount, it turns out, is in direct shipments.

If direct and indirect shipments are figured, the shortages range between 10 and 17 per cent, according to Nixon. Some of his experts say it could be as high as 21 per cent.

Administration experts had expected an oil shortfall of between 100,000 and 800,000 barrels a day before the Arab oil cutoff was announced.

But they said the cutoff threatens the nation with a loss of between 2 million and 2.5 million barrels of oil a day on top of that. The nation uses about 17.4 million barrels daily.

The potential shortage could be as high as 3 million barrels daily if the Pentagon is forced to use only domestic oil sources for its supplies. The military now gets about half its supplies — or 300,000 barrels daily — from foreign sources.

Experts said the shortage would be more acute if the United States decides to help out its European allies, also hurt by the Arab oil weapon.

Questions And Answers On Nixon Energy Measures

'Phantom Voice Of August' Is Now Generally Believed A Hoax

By CHARLES J. CANNON
DENVER (UPI) — "Help me. Help me."

Those words, allegedly broadcast by a small boy named "Larry" who said he was trapped in a wrecked pickup truck with his dead father, set off one of the largest single manhunts in the history of the Southwest. It went on for days, until people throughout the country were awaiting the outcome.

Now, Federal and state officials in Colorado and New Mexico agree, unofficially, that the entire episode—involving hundreds of man-hours by state police, local law enforcement agencies and private citizens—and costing an estimated $20,000 in New Mexico alone—was a hoax.

"We haven't heard a thing since the voice quit broadcasting in late August, and I haven't talked to anyone who has since that time," said Nellie Whitham, secretary of Mile High React.

React is an organization of Citizens Band radio operators who are often called in on search and rescue efforts. The group set up listening posts throughout Colorado to aid in the search for Larry.

W.D. George, engineer in charge of the Denver office of the Federal Communications Commission (FCC), also said his agency had heard no more from the "Phantom voice."

"As far as I know, it was a hoax," George said. "We don't have anything to the contrary."

Began in August
Officials of the Colorado State Patrol and the Arapahoe County Sheriff's office also agreed the entire incident was a hoax, but no one would say officially that the search had been abandoned.

The incident began in early August when CBR operators throughout the Southwest picked up transmissions from Larry. The youthful voice said a pickup truck driven by his father had crashed in the New Mexico mountains and that his father had been killed in the wreck. The boy said he was trapped in the overturned vehicle.

A massive search was launched. Helicopters from the New Mexico National Guard and Ft. Bliss, Tex., joined the hunt, together with an Army search plane and numerous private aircraft. One private plane crashed during the search, but no one was injured.

Martin Vigil, chief of the New Mexico State Police, said there never was any definite information to indicate that the transmissions originated in that state. But his agency acted on the assumption that the calls were legitimate and that someone needed help.

The hunt was called off Aug. 12.

Phantom Voice
"We have exhausted all efforts," Vigil said. "I think we would have found him (Larry) if he had been there, because all the areas that were indicated were searched extensively."

Then, two weeks later, CBR operators in Colorado received calls from a man criticizing New Mexico officials for not locating Larry.

During his several transmissions, the man sometimes spoke in the voice of a small boy, taking responsibility for the New Mexico hoax and daring authorities to locate him. In one broadcast the man threatened to kill President Nixon and then Vice President Spiro Agnew. He also broadcast threats against one of the CBR operators monitoring his calls.

A huge network of CBR operators was quickly established in an effort to pinpoint the man's location, but the phantom voice was not heard again.

The U.S. Secret Service, which entered the case after the threats against Nixon and Agnew, will not comment on progress of its investigation. Other law enforcement agencies have consigned the case to their inactive files—until, or if, the voice is heard again.

Participant In Special Program
STAUNTON, Va.—Linda Cartner of Greenville, N. C., is one of several Stuart Hall students participating in an extracurricular program in titled "Man and His Environment" this week.

The program consists of a visit to the farm of Mrs. Electra McGay, a noted environmentalist, attendance at a lecture at the University of Virginia, by Stuart Udall, former secretary of the interior, and special classes on energy crisis.

The goal of the records management program administered by the Division of Archives and History is to create a system by means of which records may be destroyed or transferred from costly office space at about the same rate they are created. Although it may look like a losing battle, progress has been and is continuing to be made in effecting substantial savings to the taxpayer.

The 1971 General Assembly appropriated funds for a new State Archives Annex which will serve as a greatly expanded records center. It is hoped that construction on this facility will begin soon so that thousands of cubic feet of records now occupying prime office space may be transferred to less expensive housing.

Canoes brought voyagers from Southeast Asia to distant Pacific islands centuries before Columbus braved the Atlantic.

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are questions and answers on the scope and impact of the "energy emergency" program announced Wednesday night by President Nixon:

Q. Will homes and offices be colder this winter because of energy shortages?

A. The President asks that home thermostats be reduced by six degrees so the average daytime temperature will be 68 degrees. Operators of offices, factories and stores are asked to cut their heating needs by 10 per cent through lowering thermostats or adopting shorter working hours.

Home owners and businesses that heat with electricity or natural gas are expected to make the same sacrifices as those using oil and the federal government will set an example by lowering thermostats in its buildings to 65 to 68 degrees in daytime.

Q. Will there be rationing of gasoline and home heating oil?

A. The federal government is developing a gasoline rationing plan that will be put into use if needed, and a proposed plan to ration heating oil will be announced in about four weeks.

Q. Will there be restrictions on the use of automobiles?

A. The President has suggested that states lower maximum speed limits to 50 miles per hour and asked Congress for emergency authority to cut speed limits through federal action. He also suggested parking taxes be raised, vehicles with but a single occupant be barred from designated sections of each city and preferential parking be provided for participants in car pools. All federally owned vehicles will observe a 50 mile an hour speed limit.

Q. Is thought being given to adopting year-around Daylight Saving Time?

A. Nixon asked Congress to authorize adoption of Daylight Savings Time throughout the year, saying it could reduce electricity and heating demands by as much as three per cent.

Q. Will there be curbs on use of energy for lighting?

A. Nixon seeks congressional authority to order a curtailment of outdoor electrical advertising and ornamental lighting, including gas lamps to be found in front of many homes. He also wants power to limit store hours, which would save on both heat and light. None of his proposals would affect use of lighting in the home.

Q. Will any of the administration's proposals result in higher taxes?

A. Nixon said the government is considering imposing "control fees" or surcharges to discourage excessive use of natural gas and electricity and asked Congress for authority to levy them.

Q. How will the energy conservation program affect use of such public carriers as airlines and bus lines?

A. Nixon noted the Federal Aviation Administration already is working with airlines to reduce flying speeds and limit the amount of taxiing but said shortages of jet fuel could lead to a 10 per cent cutback in scheduled flights. As for buses, he suggests they be given exclusive highway lanes on commuter routes and said the federal government will give priority to applications for federal grants to buy buses for mass transit.

Q. Will the energy-saving measures lead to greater pollution?

A. Yes. Nixon asked Congress for authority to waive state air and water quality laws and regulations on a case-by-case basis, without notice or hearing, if necessary to permit use of more plentiful but dirtier fuels.

Q. Will the President's program result in higher prices?

A. In some cases, probably yes. For example, he asked Congress to authorize temporary suspension of federal regulation of prices on new production of natural gas for the duration of the emergency.

Q. How bad is the energy shortage?

A. The White House said daily supplies of crude oil and oil products now are running about 10 per cent below demand but added that if the current cutoff of Arab-supplied oil continues supplies will run 17 per cent short of demand. In shortest supply are heating oil, diesel fuel, kerosene, residual fuel oil and jet fuel. While gasoline is falling about 7 per cent short of demand, expected shifts in refinery output to greater production of heating oil at the expense of gasoline would boost the gas shortage significantly.

Pitt Agent At Conference
Mike Davis, 4-H Agent in Pitt County, was one of more than 800 persons who participated in the 27th Annual Conference of the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents at Roanoke, Va., recently.

The conference theme was "Tune In—Turn On" and was designed for extension youth personnel involved in 4-H youth work. Keynote speaker, Dr. H. Kirby Krams, Assistant Chief of Delinquency Prevention Bureau for Delaware, and feature speaker, Rev. Charles H. Gibbons, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Bristol, Tenn., spoke on "Fine Tuning for Action" and "Tune In—Turn On", respectively.

Returned To Greenville To Share Beethoven's 9th

By JERRY RAYNOR
Staff Writer

"To me it's an important piece of music," W. H. Tolson said, referring to Beethoven's Ninth Symphony to be performed at Wright Auditorium by the ECU Symphony and choruses at 3:15 p.m. on Sunday afternoon.

Tolson, a Greenville native and retired chemist now living in Midland, Michigan, arrived here Thursday night and will play the double bass in Sunday's performance.

"I heard about the planned performance of the Ninth through alumni mail-outs," Tolson said, "and realized this was very likely the first time it would be performed in this area. It has been more than five years, in 1967, since I've performed in the Ninth. It's good to have this chance to play in it again."

Tolson mentioned a remark made by the famed conductor Bruno Walter. "Every community should have a performance of the Ninth Symphony every two years, it's good for the soul."

A 1937 graduate of East Carolina University, "it was East Carolina Teachers College then, of course," Tolson majored in science and spent 30 years with Dow Chemical, beginning in Wilmington and ending up in Midland, Michigan, where he retired.

Asked how he became involved in music, Tolson said, "My mother, (Mrs. W. H. Tolson) a Peabody graduate, has been and is still a piano teacher in Greenville.

Sometimes I play the piano, but that's mostly for dance bands." The father of five children, "three daughters and two sons," Tolson is married to a former Greenville girl, Carolyn Hamric. "Two of our daughters," he noted, "are professional musicians. One is a cellist in the Winnipeg Orchestra, another is a violinist in the Vancouver Orchestra."

To get to Greenville with his double bass, Tolson drove down in his VW bus. "I had to do that or pay a full fare for a seat for the instrument," he said. "You can't send it as baggage, so it was necessary to come this way."

In Michigan, Tolson is a regular performer with the Saginaw Symphony Orchestra. "I've performed with this orchestra for 25 years," he said. "Often I fill in with college orchestras in the area."

Changes that have taken place at ECU since he graduated 35 years ago are "very impressive," Tolson pointed out. "When I graduated in 1937 there was only two piano teachers and a voice coach on the faculty. It's certainly a different story today. I've followed the growth of the university and of the School of Music with great interest. The fact that the School of Music has the ability to give a performance of a work as important as Beethoven's Ninth Symphony speaks for itself.

"I certainly hope Greenville people will turn out to hear this fine piece of music," Tolson said, "I'm certainly happy to be here to take part in it."

Workshop On Planning Held

PLANNING WORKSHOP—James R. Simeon, consultant with the State Department of Public Instruction, shares some of his ideas on planning with principals and central office personnel of the Pitt County Schools during a workshop session.

The leadership planning team of the Pitt County Schools participated in a three-day workshop this week devoted to comprehensive educational planning.

Attending the workshop were the superintendent, members of the central office staff and school principals.

The Pitt County school unit was one of 94 throughout the state which participated in the project, which advocates planning as a major approach to educational improvement on state and local levels. Planning is envisioned as a key element in the management skills required to prevent or find solutions to educational problems of the 70's.

The participants were exposed to the planning process and were encouraged and assisted in initiating and implementing comprehensive, long-range planning.

Procedures followed involved a review of system-wide philosophy, an analysis of the current status of the educational program and the employment of proper steps in order to effect improvement in the total educational program. The ultimate goal is improved learning for all students.

The workshop, conducted by James R. Simeon, consultant with the State Department of Public Instruction, Division of Planning, which sponsored the workshop.

Race Slated Model Plane

The Greenville Flight Club—whose members build and fly model airplanes—will sponsor a radio-controlled model plane race beginning at 10 a.m. Sunday at the group's flight field just East of Greenville off U.S. 264 in the Eastern Pines community.

Club officials said the races, a radio controlled sport pylon and quarter midget racing event sanctioned by the Academy of Model Aeronautics, will be limited to radio controlled model planes. There will be several planes flying at one time at speeds in excess of 100 miles per hour.

The program will last most of the day and the public is invited to attend. Club officials suggested persons attending should bring portable chairs as no seats are available at the site. Trophies will be awarded race winners.

Farmville Mart Had $84.56 Day

FARMVILLE—Marketing of heavy volume of poor grades of tobacco was responsible for the drop in average on the Farmville Tobacco Market yesterday. The market average $84.56 per hundred pounds after selling 564,123 pounds of leaf for $476,909.

Nondescript grades, primings and cutters accounted for most of the volume. Quality grades of leaf and smoking leaf accounted for top prices.

To date, the market has sold 23,155,539 pounds of tobacco for $20,718,570 for an average per hundred pounds for the season of $89.48.

Language Arts Program In Four-Day Workshop

At East Carolina University on Tuesday, a four day Language Arts in the Secondary Schools Conference-Workshop will be held, lasting through Friday.

Ms. Janice Hardison, faculty member of the English Department and conference director, says the event is "a product of efforts made by the English Department to stay attuned to the changing scene in our secondary schools.

Registration for each of the four days is $5.00 per person per day, which includes luncheon. A number of well known persons in the field of literature will be taking part in panel discussions on subjects of concern to English teachers in secondary schools.

These include Doris Betts, author of several novels and short story collections and Director of Composition, UNC-Chapel Hill; Dan Williams, proprietor of the North Carolina Bookshop, Kitty Hawk; Dick Sisson, a retired editor of Life-Time Corporation, now living in Nags Head; and Larry Tucker, Chief Consultant, N.C. Department of Public Instruction.

Highlights of the schedule of panel discussions show:

Tuesday: "Pornography and the Law," Larry Tucker, and Emily Boyce, ECU Library Science Department. A Book Fair with materials provided by participating publishing houses will also be featured.

Wednesday: "Teaching Composition to the College-Bound," Doris Betts; "Teaching Composition to the Tech School-Jr. College-Bound," Ruth Fleming, ECU English Department; "Science Fiction," Dr. Donald Lawler; "Black Literature," Dr. Norman Rosenfeld; "Folklore," Dr. Paul Dowell; "Individualized Instruction," Douglas McReynolds.

Thursday: "Behavioral Objectives in Writing," Linda Wilms, Pitt Tech; "Films," Dr. William Stephenson; "Art," Betty Petteway; "Special Learning Problems," Terry Lawler; "The Fifth Language Art: Visual Literacy," Al Munns.

Friday: "The High School Newspaper: A Factor in Public Relations," Janet Davis, English Department, North Johnson High School; "Current Trends in the Physical Composition of High School Newspaper," Ira Baker; "The Role of Journalism," Ira Baker; "The School Newspaper: News or Gossip," Janet Davis; "The Year Book," Mary Sorensen; "The Literary Magazine: Publishing High School Compositions," Dan Williams and Dick Sisson.

Participants in the schedule listed above are all faculty members of the ECU English Department unless otherwise noted.

In addition to panelists listed, a number of ECU faculty from various departments will be participating. Persons interested in complete details of the four day conference-workshop are asked to contact Ms. Hardison, 758-6041.

One Hurt In Collisions

One persons was reported injured and an estimated $3,675 property damage caused in two collisions investigated here yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 4:05 p.m. collision at the intersection of Greene Street and Mumford Road involving cars driven by Peggy Elaine Oakley of Route 6, Greenville, Sally Lou Freeman of Route 3, Wake Forest and Glenda Kay Denton of Route 8, Greenville.

Police, who reported Miss Freeman was injured in the crash, estimated damaged at $1,300 to the Oakley car, $1,000 to the Freeman auto and $900 to the Denton vehicle.

Miss Oakley was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

Eleanor Oneal Sullivan of 238 Churchill Dr. was charged with failing to decrease her speed following investigation of an 8:15 p.m. mishap at the intersection of Tenth Street and Greenville Boulevard. Officers identified the driver of the second car involved as Edward Frederick Grune Jr., of Tokoma Park, Md. and estimated damage at $175 to the Grune car and $300 to the Sullivan auto.

Revival Series Begins Monday

Revival services will begin Monday and continue through Sunday at the Black Jack Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church, Rt. 3, Greenville. The service will begin at 7:30 each night.

Guest minister will be the Rev. Condary Ellis, pastor of the Hodges Chapel Pentecostal Free Will Baptist Church, Dunn. The Rev. Ellis is a graduate of Campbell College and Holmes Theological Seminary. An invitation is extended to public by the pastor, Rev. R. M. Stewart, who states that a nursery will be provided each night for the convenience of parents. Special singing by various groups, along with the Church Choir, will be featured in each service.

Revival Series Begins Sunday

STOKES—Revival services will begin at the Stokes Baptist Church Sunday night and will continue through the following Saturday night.

The Rev. Thurman Griffin will be the speaker for the services. Special singing will also be held during the services.

Wasn't Running, Won 2 Offices

WESTBROOK, Minn. (AP) — Roger Klasse had perhaps the most successful day of any candidate, winning two offices for which he was not even running. Klasse was elected to both at-large vacancies on the Westbrook Village Council in Tuesday's election. No one filed for the seats, but Klasse received 84 write-ins for one and 55 for the other.

Runnerup in both cases was Roger Boultmann, with 52 and 30 votes, respectively.

Mayor Harold Schmidt, who also was elected on a write-in vote after no one filed for mayor, consulted with attorneys and then notified Klasse and Boultmann that they had been duly elected.

Sponsoring Special Service

GRIFTON—The Rev. Jessie Williams and the St. Delight Holy Church of La Grange will be in charge of services at the New Covenant Holy Church here Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

The youth department is sponsoring the pre-anniversary service to honor the pastor. The public is invited to attend.

Gotta look that up

Man has a hunger for knowledge. It first shows itself in childhood and prompts incessant questions and exasperating experiments. But it continues all through life. Recently, on discovering something you didn't know, you murmured to yourself, "Gotta look that up . . ."

Upon this basic hunger for knowledge, the Church's program of religious education is planned. That's why we urge parents to foster a Christian atmosphere in the home. It is also why the Church provides religious instruction long before secular education begins. And it accounts for continuing emphasis on youth and young adult activities in most congregations.

We adults haven't outgrown the hunger for knowledge. Most of us recognize that our scientific and material progress points up the crucial need for spiritual standards to believe in. God has vital truth to impart to men. The place to look it up is your church.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) —(NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: market steady, supplies adequate, demand good. Weights heavy at some points.

North Carolina hens: market stronger on heavy type with a firm undertone for next week, supplies adequate, demand good. Prices paid per pound for hens over 7 pounds, at farm, 23 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices turned sharply lower today amid growing investor concern over the effects of the energy crisis on the economy, analysts said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was down sharply 13.40 at 919.25. The Dow blue-chip indicator had been up more than 20 points in the previous two trading sessions after seven sessions of steep declines.

More than a point in the drop of the Dow Jones industrials today was accounted for by the General Motors price being reduced by ex-dividends.

Declining Big Board issues had a 622-to-485 lead over gainers after gains for a time had held a moderate lead today.

Goodyear, down 7/8 at 19 1/2, was the Big Board volume leader, followed by Matsushita Electric, down 1/2 at 22 1/4; Chrysler, down 1 at 20; Westinghouse, down 3/4 at 31; and British Petroleum down 1/4 at 15.

Du Pont, a major energy user, was down 6 at 172. Monsanto, which along with other chemical-industry companies is heavily dependent upon petroleum products, was down 7/8 at 60 3/4.

Generally going against the downward trend were rails. Analysts said some investors believed that an oil-short nation would become more dependent on railways for both shipments and passenger service.

Penn Central was up 1/2 at 31 1/4; Chesapeake & Ohio, up 1/4 at 50 1/4; Santa Fe, up 1/8 at 29 1/4; and Southern Pacific, up 1/4 at 35. But Illinois Central was off 1/4 at 23 1/2, and Southern Railway was off 3/4 at 38.

On the American Stock Exchange, Cinerama, up 3/4 at 1 3/4, was the volume leader.

Bicycle Theft

Charged Youth

Billy Ray Ellis, 17, of 210 West Gum Road was charged yesterday with larceny of a bicycle following investigation of a 2:45 p.m. incident on Church Street.

Chief Glenn Cannon said Ellis allegedly took a bicycle belonging to Raymond Eddy Singleton of 1304 North Washington St.

Third Unit Of Preschool Will Open

A third unit of preschool will be opened at East Carolina University for the winter and spring quarters. The announcement was made today by Dr. Nash W. Love Jr., chairman of the Department of Child Development and Family Relations, School of Home Economics.

Interested parents of children who have had their third, fourth, or fifth birthdays by Oct. 15, 1973, are invited to make application by calling 758-6908 or 758-6926 between the hours of 9:00 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. through Nov. 16.

The preschool programs, meeting daily weekdays from 9:00 until 12:00 have three purposes: to offer good living-learning experiences to individual children within a group setting; to be a resource to parents; to provide observation-participation to students who wish to increase their skills in relating to young children.

Additional information will be given upon request.

Dorm Arrests For Violation Of Drug Law

Three East Carolina University students were arrested in Aycock Dorm on the ECU campus last night on drug-law violation charges following a search of one of the dormitory rooms by Greenville and East Carolina University police and agents of the State Bureau of Investigation.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon identified the three as Thomas Davis Loman Jr., 18 of 441 Aycock; Melvin Sidney King, 18 of 405 Aycock and Samuel Thomas Pridgen, 18 of 421 Aycock.

All were charged with possession of marijuana. In addition, Pridgen was charged with possession of hashish.

Bonds for the three were set at $500 each and hearing of the cases was scheduled for District Court, November 26.

Teenagers Held For Break-In

Two teenagers, one 13 and the other 15, were charged with breaking and entering here yesterday morning after they allegedly entered a house at 1305 South Washington St. and attempted to remove a flashlight, camera and radio from the dwelling.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the two were taken into custody by officers as they allegedly attempted to leave the dwelling through a rear door, about 9:36 a.m.

The two allegedly gained entrance to the dwelling through an unlocked front door.

Poppy Sale

The annual Buddy Poppies sale, conducted by the Veterans of Foreign Wars, will be held Saturday in Greenville.

Sponsored by Auxiliary Post 7032, the poppies will be sold on street corners throughout the city.

Veterans in the Veterans Administration Hospitals and Domiciliaries and in State Veterans Homes make the Poppies which are shipped to VFW Posts and Auxiliaries throughout the nation.

The disabled Veterans are paid for making the poppies and the money they receive provide enough extra income to make hospital living a little more tolerable.

The annual Buddy Poppies sale is the only public solicitation conducted by the VFW.

Bucs Host Richmond In Title Contest

Rampants Nip Northeastern For Berth

Randolph's Run Provides Score

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

That's the way the ball bounces!

An old saying, but it had a lot of meaning last night for the Rose High School Rampants, who won their way into the State Playoffs for the first time as a 4-A school. The ball bounced right for them, giving them a 7-6 victory over Northeastern of Elizabeth City, and second place in the Division I standings.

The Rampants, 3-1 in conference play, will meet the Division V winner, Enloe, next Friday night on the Eagles' home field at 8 p.m.

The ball did take the right bounces for the Rampants, dropping into the hands of Harold Randolph after he had caused a fumble, and he took the ball 50 yards for the lone Rose touchdown of the game.

It also bounced right when, late in the game after the lone Eagle touchdown, the Rampants were able to stop the Northeastern sweep for a two-point play to hold their slim lead.

And on the following play it bounced right when an on-sides kick rolled out of bounds just fractions of a second before it was recovered by Northeastern.

Overall, it was a defensive struggle. Elizabeth City got only four first downs in the first half of the game, and all four came on a drive that went from their 20 to the Rose 25 before the fateful fumble that Randolph converted to a touchdown.

Rose, meanwhile, also had trouble moving the ball, not making a first down until 3:09 remained in the half, and they got only two in the period.

By the time the game was over, Rose had amassed just 112 yards on the ground and 27 through the air. Northeastern had just 131, all on the ground.

The lone Northeastern score came on a nine-yard sweep by Delbert Powell on the second true drive the Eagles made in the game, late in the final period.

Rose had been unable to move it from the kickoff and punted away, giving it to Northeastern on their own 20. Between short yardage plays, James Harris picked up seven and Jay McDonald got six, then six more for a first down at the 45. Powell fumbled the ball forward on the next play but William Seymore recovered it for an eight-yard game.

The Rampants then threw quarterback Mike Sawyer for a six yard loss on the next play, but Rose was guilty of spearing on the play and it cost them 15 yards and gave the Eagles a first down on the Buc 38. They made 10 yards in three plays to the 28, and finally banged down to the 25, where on fourth and seven, Sawyer faded back to pass.

Randolph put a hard rush on him, hitting him and knocking the ball loose. As the ball bounced back up field, Randolph gave chase, trying to pick it up. He finally found the handle at the 50, and outraced the desperate Elizabeth City defenders the rest of the way, diving the last few yards to escape the final foe into the end zone.

Scott Wolcott booted through the fateful extra point with 3:12 showing and the Rampants held a 7-0 lead.

From there until late in the game, the defense was the key factor. Northeastern got the ball inside Rose territory when Mike Harris intercepted a Henry Trevathan pass and returned it to the 37, but two plays later, Nat Perkins picked off one by Sawyer and carried it back to the 38. The Eagles were guilty of a personal foul on the play, pushing the ball over midfield to the 47, but a five-yarder for illegal procedure killed Rampant chances to move it.

On their first possession in the second half, Rose got a drive going and looked as if they might put another score on the board. From the 35, Lindberg Morris picked up seven. After a first down at the 47, Trevathan sneaked for six, crossing midfield. Shortyardage moved it to the 42 for a first down, and at the 33, the Rampants went on fourth down to make a first down at the 32. Trevathan hit Mike Wallace for 13 to the 19 yard line, but two straight passes fell incomplete there, and a fumble cost Rose six yards on the next play. A field goal attempt from the 32 yard line fell short.

Elizabeth City then drove from the 20 to the Rose 40 in six plays before a fumble cost them the ball. A 25-yard scamper on third and vie from the 35 by Powell set up the play. On the next snap, Granville Barnes lost the ball and Jackie Savage fell on it for the Rampants.

Rose moved it back across midfield, going from the 42 to the 29 before failing to pick up a first down early in the final period.

The Eagles then launched their final period drive that nearly paid off for them. From the 28, Powell picked up nine

Pack Says Penn State Won't Intimidate 'Em

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

North Carolina State fullback Charley Young says of Saturday's football game at undefeated and sixth-ranked Penn State, "We may get beat, but I don't think we'll be intimidated like we may have been last year."

The Nittany Lions won 37-22 over the Wolfpack. The N.C. State coach, Lou Holtz, says, "I hope we can do something that nobody else has done, and that's make it close. Last year they almost ran us out of the stadium the first half. The second half was a more even game because Coach (Joe) Paterno was nice enough to play his second team."

Penn State led 23-0 at the half and 30-8 early in the fourth quarter. All of N.C. State's points were scored in the fourth quarter.

Young looks on the trip as a chance at redemption for the seniors. "We've been up there twice, and have not fared very well. This is a last shot for a lot of us on the squad, and we all want to make a better showing."

Penn State won 35-3 in 1971, and has beaten N.C. State in all their nine meetings.

Penn State is 8-0 this season and N.C. State is 6-2. The Wolfpack has shown punch with an offensive average of 404 yards a game, but the Nittany Lions are No. 3 defensively in the nation and No. 1 against the rush. Not a single opponent has scored on the ground. Opponents have been limited to an average of 8.5 points.

Sellout Crowd To Be On Hand For Showdown

For one whole year, ever since East Carolina sloshed through the floods of Central Virginia to bop the Richmond Spiders, 21-0, Frank Jones has waited.

He started that wait the minute last year's game was over with the old Brooklyn warcry, "Wait 'till next year."

Since that minute, he's been putting together a Richmond Spider team that would make many a coach tremble, and the Spiders have been doing things right just about all the time.

The next week after the Bucs stopped them, Southern Mississippi did it to them, 34-9, but only one team in the last 12 games has done it.

Richmond romped to four straight victories to close out the Southern Conference season last year, tripping Furman, 37-0, The Citadel, 21-7, Davidson, 20-14, and William & Mary, 20-3.

This year, they've gone past Davidson, 42-0, VMI 35-0, Wake Forest, 41-0, Furman, 20-17, Southern Mississippi, 42-20; West Virginia 38-17, and The Citadel, 17-0. Only upstart Northeastern Louisiana stopped them, 14-8, knocking them from their ranking as the nation's number 20 teams.

And the Spiders have done the job in stopping their opponents cold most of the time. They rank fifth in the nation in scoring defense, allowing only 8.5 points a game.

And they can score, too. Barty Smith, their leading scorer, and the leading scorer in the Southern, has 72 points, and his 9.0 average per game is second in the nations.

This is all not to say that East Carolina hasn't waited too. They've waited for a whole week—ever since beating William & Mary 34-3, last Saturday night.

The winner of the game likely will win the Southern title, although should Richmond win, they would still have to beat the Indians next week. An East Carolina victory would slam the door and give the Bucs their second straight title in a row.

The game shapes up as both an offensive and a defensive battle. If that sounds strange, it should.

East Carolina leads the Southern in total offense with a 384.2 average. Richmond is second with a 351.4 mark.

But East Carolina also leads in total defense, 255.3 per game, while Richmond is third, with 274.0.

In rushing, the Bucs lead, 263.6, to Richmond's fourth place, 214.5. In rushing defense, ECU is again first, 128.1, while Richmond is second allowing 144.6.

In passing, however, Richmond has the offensive edge, standing second with 136.9 per game. East Carolina is fifth at 120.7. In pass defense, the Bucs are third at 127.2, while Richmond is fourth at 129.4.

But where it really counts, Richmond leads in both scoring offense and defense, getting 31.6 points a game, while allowing only 8.5. The Bucs have scored 28.8 per game and allowed 13.7.

But only one team in the Southern Conference has scored a touchdown on the Bucs, VMI, and two others, William & Mary and Furman, have been allowed a field goal.

Barty Smith leads the Richmond rushing attack. The big back, listed by many as one of the nation's best, is averaging 80.6 per game, but got over 200 against The Citadel last week. He has been moved from his usual fullback position to tailback because of an injury.

Harry Knight, the quarterback, is the offensive leader, with 115.0 yards a game and a total of 920 yards. Smith is right behind him with 645 overall.

Knight has hit on 56 of 122 passes for 911 yards and seven touchdowns.

Across the field, East Carolina will counter with Kenny Strayhorn, still the Con-

Aycock In Loss

Bertie Junior High School handed E. B. Aycock Junior High a 25-0 loss in the final game of the year for the Phantoms.

Bertie broke the game wide open on the first play, carrying the kickoff back 80 yards for the score.

They also scored twice on one-yard plunges, and returned a pass interception 40 yards for another score.

The loss left Aycock with an 0-7 record for the year.

Pirates Given Nod Saturday

There is a little bit of disagreement on this week's poll, but not much—not much.

Just about everyone agrees down the line. There are only two of the 12 games that bring any sort of difference. Three people have the same cards, while two others are also like, with one difference from the others.

Then, well, there's this guy who never does get many right—he's got a couple of differences from the majority.

At the end of last week's pickin' John Trotman and Sandra Spivey tied for the lead with an 83-23 record. Jack Whichard is just two more back with an 81-25 mark.

Then, there was a jump down to Tom Baines, 79-27, then two more to George Holland, 77-29, and finally—we have a 75-31 mark to now.

Ah, well, if the Bucs keep winning, we'll be happy.

Taking a look at the high school action this week, we understand that we've made the folks in Farmville mad these past two weeks, picking their foes to win. The Jaguars, of course, have come through to win both games, and we congratulate them.

This week, they play Charles B. Aycock, a team that has won just once this year. There doesn't seem to be much of a challenge for the Jaguars here, really, and we'd pick them to win this one, regardless.

North Lenoir is at Ayden-Grifton as the Chargers seek to wrap up a share of first place and the top seeding for the playoffs. North Lenoir has been going downhill since early in the year, but gave Greene Central a fit last week. Ayden-Grifton should win it, however.

Southern Nash visits Conley, who got shot back down to earth last week by the Jaguars. Southern Nash has the job of stopping hard-running Willie Hawkins this week, but defense is their specialty.

Energy Crisis Could Have Effect On Auto Racing's 1974 Program

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The energy crisis, particularly any serious shortage of gasoline, could have a damaging effect on the 1974 auto racing program, according to officials close to the sport.

"We don't use that much gasoline in our stock car program," said Bill France Jr.,

Elon May Be Picked

GAINESVILLE, Ga. (AP) — A group of Gainesville businessmen has announced the creation of a Poultry Bowl football game matching two of the nation's top-rated small college teams.

The sponsors said Thursday the event will be played Dec. 8 and has been approved by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Among the teams being considered, they said, are Jacksonville State College, Livingston and Troy State, all in Alabama; Elon of North Carolina; Grambling of Louisiana; and Carson-Newman of Tennessee.

Gainesville is among the country's largest centers of poultry production.

Baby Rams Take Win

NEW HOPE—Greene Central's junior varsity rolled to a 27-13 victory over Eastern Wayne yesterday, sewing up the JV championship in the Eastern Carolina Conference.

After Eastern Wayne had taken a 7-0 lead, Lonnie Jones scored on a 15-yard run for the Baby Rams, with Billy Waters kicking the extra point to tie it up. Eastern regained the lead, 13-7 in the second quarter, but again Greene Central scored, with Waters doing the honors from 15 yards out to make it 13-13 at the half.

Michael Cannady did the scoring to put the game out of reach for Eastern by scoring twice in the third quarter. His first score was a 60-yard romp, while the second was from 10 yards out. Following the first score, Troy Albritton passed to Ronnie Whitley for the two-point conversion.

Greene Central finished the year with a 7-1 overall mark and a 6-0 conference record.

Southern Nash gets the nod.

Robersonville goes to North Johnston with the conference championship and a playoff berth safely tucked away. The Eagles might be riding for a fall this week, but we'll have to give them the favorite's role.

Williamston goes to Bertie in a Northeastern Conference game. Bertie has been largely unsuccessful this year, while the Tigers are suffering through one of their poorer years of late, having lost three times. They shouldn't lost another.

Southern Wayne is at North Pitt also trying to hold onto a share of the conference championship. The Panthers might try harder, but they still will come out on the short end of this one.

Finally, Eastern Wayne is at Greene Central. The Warriors haven't been making too many war cries this year, and there are likely to be very few coming as the Rams hand them one final loss.

Now, turning to the poll.

As you can see, we're a day late on Rose. However, we can all say with honesty, that we all got it correct this time in an informal poll here at the office.

But the big game still remains to be played Saturday afternoon in Ficklen Stadium. East Carolina meets Richmond in a battle of the top two defenses in the Southern Conference.

Richmond comes in with only one defeat, while the Bucs have lost twice. In all probability, the winner will take the title this year.

According to our panel of experts, by a 6-0 vote, it will all be over Saturday night, with ECU again the champ.

when we have our biggest crowd."

France and the other spokesmen for racing, which draws upwards of 45 million spectators yearly, also noted that other sports programs would be affected at the gate — though not as severely as auto racing.

"People can ride buses to stadiums in big cities, where municipally-owned facilities are usually on bus lines," a small track promoter near Greenville, S.C., said. "Most race tracks are privately owned and usually are out in the boon-docks. They had to get far enough outside the city to be able to afford the land."

France's Grand National stock cars, limited to the last three model years and powered by big-bore, fuel-gulping engines, use pump gasoline of a slightly higher octane than the premiums offered at most gas stations.

The Indianapolis-type cars use a fuel mixture based on methanol, while such series as the Sports Car Club of America's Formula 5000, Can-Am and Trans-Am use pump aso-line.

All of NASCAR's racers are fueled by the Union Oil Company of California, once headed by Claude Brininger, now President Nixon's secretary of commerce.

DOWN TO THE WIRE

NEW YORK (AP) — On the morning of the last day of the regularly scheduled baseball season, five teams had a chance to win the National League East race and enter a five-game league playoff against Cincinnati. The Montreal Expos lost their chance to stay in the race by losing their final game against the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Chicago Cubs dropped out when they split a double header with the New York Mets.

The Mets and Cubs were forced to play two rained-out games while the Pirates played a postponed game against the San Diego Expos.

The final result: Mets 6, Cubs 4, giving the Mets the East title and making unnecessary a second game.

ferences's leading rusher with 748 yards, and Carlester Crumpler, the Southern Offensive Player of the Week, who rushed for 160 yards against William & Mary and brought his total to 716 for the year.

Then, there is quarterback Carl Summerell, who's hit on 67 of 130 passes for 981 yards and six touchdowns.

Somewhere, however, the defenses are going to have a word on the game, and the loudest word will probably be the decisive one.

"We'll certainly have to contain Smith and Knight," Randle said. "Richmond compares favorably with Carolina, although I don't think their depth is as great. It's close to it however."

Randle apparently is also looking for a defensive game. "Both teams have real, real fine defensive teams, especially when it comes to scoring. But you really can't compare statistics—everything is going out the window on this one."

The coach also noted that Richmond has waited a whole year to face the Pirates. "We aren't going to have any problem getting up for this game," Randle said. "The crowd response (a sellout) also excites us."

Randle noted that the Richmond offense is a dangerous one. "They thump you to death with the run, then bombs away. They also capitalize on the other team's mistakes, so we can't make any if we want to win."

The coach agreed that the team has been slow starting offensively in the first quarter in its home games, but that this was due in large to the shifting type defenses that the opponents had used. "It just took a little time to adjust to," Richmond, however, he believes, will not go in for any fancy defense, but just come right at the Bucs.

Following this week's game, the Bucs have one last date left, with Appalachian in Ficklen Stadium next Saturday night.

yards, then got nine more. After a short gain, McDonald pushed it over into Rose territory at the 46. Powell got seven more, but on the next play, the Eagles were hit with an 18-yarder for holding, pushing them back to their own 43. Barnes added 12 yards, but then Rose was caught on pass interference, putting the ball on the Rampant 30.

McDonald got 10 yards, and short yardage, including a fourth and one, finally put it on the nine for a first and goal.

Powell then took the ball on a power sweep around left end for the last nine and the score with 3:26 left.

The Eagles then tried the same play to the right, but the Rampants sniffed it out and smothered it several yards shy of the end zone, holding the 7-6 lead.

Rose wasn't able to pick up a first down as the clock ticked away, but the Rampant defense was up to the job. With 2:18 left, the Eagles got it at their own 33, and were promptly thrown for losses of one, nine and 10 yards as they tried to pass. They finally kicked it away, and Rose ran out the final 45 second to preserve the win.

The playoff bid is the first since Rose was a member of the 3-A Northeastern Conference, and captured first place in the league, only to lose in the Eastern finals to their second place team, Tarboro.

Tennis Club Names Officers

The Greenville Tennis Club held its annual awards party and election of new officers last night at the Pitt County Wildlife Club.

Tom Sayetta was elected as the new president for the coming year, while Bob Irwin was selected as vice-president.

Anne Sayetta was named as the new secretary, while Diane Hankins was elected the new treasurer.

Serving one-year terms on the board of directors are Becky Piner and Lou White, while Sis East and John Hill are serving two-year terms. Wilbur Castellow is serving a three-year term.

Continuing as members of the board of directors are Wilkins Winn, Charles Vincent, representing the Greenville Recreation Department; and Wes Hankins, immediate past president.

The Greenville Tennis Club has grown from the original 44 in 1970 to 161 memberships, many of which are family memberships for two or more. It has just completed its most ambitious undertaking, the sponsorship of a USLTA sanctioned junior tournament. The club also sponsors teams in two summer leagues, a total of three teams altogether. They hosted the Roanoke League championships and won the title in that one.

Recently, they have joined with the Recreation Department in sponsoring the newly installed wind screens at the Elm Street courts.

Membership in the club is open to all citizens of Greenville, and further information may be obtained from either Tom or Anne Sayetta at 756-7576.

S. Vietnam's Economy In Crisis Stage

By TAD BARTIMUS
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON (AP) — The cease-fire didn't bring an end to the fighting in South Vietnam, but it has brought economic crisis to its 18 million people who relied on the United States for butter as well as guns.

When the GIs left for home earlier this year they took their dollars with them, leaving behind an enormous foreign exchange abyss.

The nine months since the cease-fire accord have failed to produce the millions in private investment President Nguyen Van Thieu's economic advisers optimistically predicted would flow into the country's coffers.

They also have failed to yield the extra foreign currencies that Thieu's economists thought would freely contribute toward rebuilding the nation.

The U.S. disengagement had instant impact: another 300,000 persons were left without jobs, officials say. Neither U.S. nor South Vietnamese officials are able to say what total unemployment is but Western economic experts estimate that it is higher than 7 per cent. The U.S. unemployment rate this past summer was 4.7 per cent.

U.S. sources here say the cost of living in South Vietnam is up to 53.8 per cent over last year. They blame this partly on import costs going up and production going down, as well as worldwide inflation. They add that another factor is the fall in the value of the piaster. In a recent five-week period it went from 500 to the dollar to 525, meaning most goods bought abroad cost more piasters.

The cost of rice grown in the country has risen 83 per cent over its cost per kilo — or 2.2 pounds — over last October. It is selling for 170 piasters now on the black market.

The price of sugar is up 220 per cent to 595 piasters per kilo over last year.

It is estimated the country's 1973 imports will total nearly $750 million and no one is sure how they are going to be paid for.

At the height of the war U.S. military spending accounted for $400 million of the country's foreign exchange needs — about half.

This year American spending has plummeted to $100 million, the real value of which is chopped by a third because of increased world prices and dollar devaluation.

Although double last year's, Vietnamese exports are expected to reach only $50 million in 1973.

The U.S. Senate is considering a foreign aid bill it already has pared to $376 million for all of Indochina, which also includes Cambodia and Laos.

Thieu maintains he needs twice that for South Vietnam alone if he is to pursue his policy of an open economy by maximizing investment and trade.

The country's foreign exchange reserves are evaporating at a rate of $10 million every 30 days. At the end of October the reserves amounted to $143 million.

Thieu's economic advisers are pressing hard for a reduction in the country's 300,000 civil service corps and its 1.1 million-man army.

Thieu, aware of the staggering cost of maintaining such an establishment, is receptive to weeding out the civil service branch. No one seems to know how to do it, but everybody agrees it must be done.

The military, however, is a different matter. The president is predicting a North Vietnamese offensive early next year and opposes any reduction in the army.

In an effort to feed, equip and house his fighting forces and their dependents, the president imposed a 10 per cent value added tax on all goods and services last July.

Howls of protest, compounded with an instant rise in inflation, forced him to modify the tax three weeks later, but most experts now concede the gamble didn't pay off and the economy sank further into mire.

The most visible result of that miscalculation is the continuing rise in the cost of rice, staple of the South Vietnamese diet.

South Vietnam has more arable land per inhabitant than any other Southeast Asian country. Western experts predict this year's rice crop will be plentiful, despite the almost 100 per cent increase in the cost of fertilizer.

These same experts insist there is plenty of rice to feed the population until the December harvest begins. But hoarding and speculation, combined with widespread corruption, have fueled the public discontent by creating artificial shortages and soaring prices.

Despite the guarded optimism of some Westerners toward the country's long-term outlook, prospects for the immediate future appear bleak.

Robt. Little Will Speak

Robert G. Little, chairman of the Board of Supervisors for Pitt Soil and Water Conservation District, will discuss "Getting Ready for a Watershed Project" at an area-wide meeting at the Goldsboro Motor Hotel, November 25, it was announced by William G. Greenlee of McDowell County, Chairman of the Watershed Committee of the North Carolina Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts. Greenlee, said, "An interesting program has been prepared that will also include representatives from the N.C. Attorney General's office and the Institute of Government discussing legal aspects of PL-566 watershed projects."

"The workshop, starting at 10:00 a.m., has been planned for Soil and Water Conservation District Supervisors, SCS personnel, County Commissioners, and county-wide Watershed Improvement Commissioners, all State and Federal agricultural agency people, and others interested in water shed development."

Bottled Water Sales Doubled

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP

UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — One out of every 500 American homes uses bottled water—double the number 10 years ago.

Why has a custom generally considered European grown so quickly into a $125 million business in a country where tap water has always been as American as apple pie?

The American Bottled Water Association (ABWA) credits the purity and taste of bottled water, which comes from natural springs and wells or is formulated or distilled. There's also the convenience of bottled water in factories, offices and schools. The association does not—officially—credit the boom to the public's fear of pollution.

"There's been a tendency to advertise bottled water by knocking tap water but the ABWA has an advertising code of ethics that opposes this sort of ad," said John G. Scott, association president. "Most tap water in the United States is safe except for temporary periods."

Scott, president of the 103-year-old Mountain Valley Water Co., admits that the pollution issue has attracted a number of "fly-by-night" water bottlers to the business during the past few years, but he said many already have folded. There are 700 firms active today, many of them serving small areas where the water of a local spring has long been considered healthful.

Mountain Valley of Hot Springs, Ark., known as "the water of Presidents", is the only natural spring water distributed nationally and the major holdout against plastic containers, which have become common in the market. It is a hard water (low in sodium) and tends to pickup some taste of plastic.

"We even get out bottles six months before they are used," Scott said. "That's to guard against the chance that chemical activity in new glass would effect the taste."

Devotees of the Mountain Valley taste range from President Nixon, who took the water with him on his trips to Peking and Moscow, to Secretariat and Riva Ridge, the thoroughbred racers. French bottled waters have long dominated the European market but the late American-born Duchess of Talleyrand imported Mountain Valley into France.

As bottled water becomes big business, big business is buying into it. American Nestle has purchased Deer Park Spring Water Co., in Maryland, the Coca Cola Company of Atlanta purchased Belmont Springs Water Co., near Boston, and Foremost-McKesson bought Sparkletts Drinking Water Corp., in Southern California, an area which accounts for half the bottled water sales in the United States.

Human consumption is the main use of bottled water but it also has industrial uses. It is mixed with jet aircraft fuel to cool engines during takeoff, applied to the plating of space rockets as a final rinse, used to wash electrical insulators while the current remains on, and mixed with concrete for a firmer set.

TOYOTA '74

In the year of the small car, the biggest choice is at your Toyota dealer.

You might think of Toyota as a car or two, just small potatoes in the small-car business.

But you ought to stop in at your Toyota dealer and see what he's got.

You'll see a bigger selection of small cars than anybody else in town offers.

You'll see coupes, 2-door sedans, 4-door sedans, station wagons, small pickup trucks and those very tough Land Cruisers.

Twenty-three models in all, and all so you can find exactly the kind of small car you're looking for.

The automotive experts say '74 is the year of the small car. We think you'll truly enjoy spending it in a new Toyota and seeing how much car your money can buy.

SMALL, STRONG, LONG TOYOTAS. Our new trucks have the biggest engines of all the small pickups, and one has a bed a foot longer than any other small pickups.

LOW, LOW-PRICED TOYOTAS. Seven new Corollas this year, from the five-speed SR-5 to the lowest priced of all, the 1200 2-door sedan.

TOUGH TOYOTAS. The three new models of the steel-clad Land Cruiser come equipped to the teeth. They're for people who like to play rough.

SOFT TOYOTAS. The top of the Toyota line is Mark II, in three different models. Each comes with six cylinders and rich standard equipment. Worth giving up your big car for.

NEW-ALL-OVER TOYOTAS. The five new Coronas are virtually redesigned up one side and down the other. New safety features, advanced engineering. You'll see.

And so is the new Celica GT 5-speed.

The sportiest Toyotas are Celicas. A GT with a five-speed transmission, radial tires and full instrumentation. And right behind, at a slightly lower price, is the new Celica ST with a standard 4-speed transmission or automatic you can order. Racy as these new Celicas are, both offer the economy of a six months or 6,000 mile recommended maintenance schedule.

WILMINGTON—Several local school board representatives attended the meeting of the North Carolina School Boards Association convention Nov. 1-3 in Wilmington.

Representing the Pitt County board of education were: Mark W. Owens, Dr. Tom Patterson, Dr. J. O. Carson, and Supt. Ott Alford. Greenville school board participants were Mrs. Lucille Gorham, Mrs. Terry Shank and Supt. Glenn Cox.

The meeting gathered school board members and superintendents from across the state to discuss the importance of the statewide School Bond Referendum and other current educational issues.

The group heard addresses by Rep. R. Lane Brown, III of Stanly County, chairman of the state committee backing the bond issue, and Dr. A. Craig Phillips, State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

During the Convention a legislative program for the Association was adopted, resolutions were passed and new officers were elected.

Sponsoring ECU Group

The Greenville Alumnae Chapter of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. is sponsoring an undergraduate chapter of the public service sorority on the ECU campus.

Induction ceremonies are to be held Saturday evening with the sorority's regional director, Louise K. Reddick, heading the list of participants.

The following ECU coeds will become charter members of Delta: Terry Thompson; Harriett McCullers; Joyce Bourknight; Edna Rountree; Veronica Coburn; Renee Andrews; Linda Ebron; Carol Caldwell; Debbie Collins; Mamie Davis; Naomi Newton; Cathy McLeod; Roslyn Patterson; Gloria Williams; and Veronica Ward.

The chartered chapter will be one of the few predominately black sororities to be established on a predominately white university campus in the eastern United States.

pervised probation. Since then Agnew has worked at settling the affairs of his vice presidency and arranging his papers for the National Archives. Several staff members have stayed on to aid him.

They work every day in a renovated federalist-style townhouse across the street from the White House. The office space was made available by the White House, and a White House spokesman said Agnew would need the quarters for from four to six months.

Associates say Agnew's mood is good.

"He had his whole staff out to his house last Saturday night for a buffet dinner and he was just amazing," one friend said. "He looked fit. He was calm and strong as ever."

But Agnew's departure from office and the resolution of the Justice Department's case against him did not end the troubles of the former vice president, who has no job and no known income.

In Maryland, the Baltimore County Bar Association is studying the possibility of disciplinary action, which could lead to disbarment, based on his federal felony conviction.

Baltimore City, Baltimore County and Anne Arundel County prosecutors are deciding whether to begin their own investigations.

Agnew faces mounting bills in the wake of his legal trouble. A defense fund set up under Chicago insurance magnate Clement Stone probably won't raise enough to pay Agnew's legal costs.

Less than two years ago, Agnew bought a home in Kenwood, Md., a Washington suburb. The purchase price was reported to be $190,000 with a down payment of $30,000. Agnew's mortgage would still be over $150,000, "and it was learned that he has not put the house up for sale."

The Internal Revenue Service is believed to be auditing Agnew's back tax returns with an eye to collecting what could be tens of thousands of dollars in back taxes.

An IRS spokesman declined comment on whether the agency was auditing the Agnew returns or whether it planned to do so.

The Worry Clinic

A Moratorium On New Taxes?

Heed Milly's angry protest! For 218 members of the U.S. House of Representatives are responsible for our hordes of federal bureaucrats! And a mere majority in your state legislatures are at fault for all statewide boondoggling.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Y-561: Milly D., aged 38, helps run a hardware store.

"Dr. Crane," she protested, "I also have a family and must divide my time between home and this store."

"My husband expects me to be the bookkeeper and also file our state as well as federal tax forms.

"And now I must also collect the nuisance retail sales tax; then send in this additional report."

"Yet neither Uncle Sam nor our state pays me a penny for doing all of this coerced tax collecting for them!"

"Instead, I was even fined a $10 penalty last month for not getting our retail sales tax mailed on time."

"Dr. Crane, if we employers and merchants must do most of the detail work for the IRS, plus our state taxing boards, why shouldn't we be paid a commission on what we collect for them?"

"For we must compute the Social Security payroll deductions, plus the state and federal income taxes from our employees, and then handle these nuisance red tape forms for the retail sales tax besides!"

"This is making slaves out of the creative people who furnish the jobs for the other carefree American workers."

"It is adding insult to injury to coerce employers and merchants to do the detail work for all those well paid IRS and tax bureaucrats, without even a 'Thank You,' without a penny commission, and then to be fined, besides, for being even one day late with our reports!"

"What can we do to stop this forced labor system that all employers are now subjected to?"

Taxpayers' Revolt

The ballot box is the best place to oust the bureaucrats that now are on the backs of all creative workers.

So keep a record of all state and federal legislators who vote for any increase in taxes!

Then defeat them at the next election! Oust them!

Do the same for your county officials who delude Americans by glibly promising no increase in the actual tax rate, but sneakily raise the assessed valuation of your homes, farms and stores!

Remember, too, that you don't vote directly for appointive officials, such as the hordes of bureaucrats.

But they all depend on the appropriation bills that must originate in the lower house of Congress and your state legislatures.

If a majority of those elected legislators refuse to vote for the constantly expanding demands for increased taxes for the bureaucrats, then those bureaucrats will be forced to get off your backs and try to derive a living by joining the creative workers.

And "creative" workers are usually those not getting their salaries from taxes!

Such "creative" workers actually produce some positive good, such as wheat and corn, or shoes and automobiles, houses and haircuts, medical or dental surgery, newspapers, trucking,

Youths Drawn To Social Work

By RONALD G. BURNS
NEW YORK (UPI) — They're called honkies if they're white, Uncle Toms if they're black and do-gooders either way. Their programs are ridiculed as wasteful and unworkable. Their jobs are being cut back and eliminated.

But despite mass disillusionment since the Great Society glow of the 1970s sputtered out, young people are still flocking to the much-maligned field of social work.

"We had the greatest number of applicants in our history this year," said Dean Mitchell Ginsberg of the Columbia University Social Work School, the oldest and largest such school in the nation.

"They are still applying because despite the frustrations and 'turning away,' there remains a fair degree of idealism and desire to help."

Across the nation, the reports are the same.

Waiting lists

"We have a waiting list of students that we can't begin to accommodate," said a spokesman for the Social Work School at the University of Tennessee.

In New Hampshire, state Welfare Director Thomas Hooker said his department "has more applicants for fewer social work jobs than ever before."

And in Illinois, a spokesman for the Department of Children and Family Services said his agency is "still getting about five applicants a day from college grads" and declared: "There is certainly no problem in recruiting all the workers we need."

Federal cutbacks, however, have forced many scholarship-hungry minority students to drop plans for social work training and have reduced jobs to the point where a social worker glut looms for the near future.

"The stipends that help the ones who need it most—and probably could help the most—have been cut out," said Jack Goldberg, Social Work Dean at New York University. "It's a damn shame, but there probably will be fewer blacks and Hispanics around."

Fewer choices

Goldberg insists that despite the cutbacks, all NYU graduates are still being placed. But he says there are now fewer choices for jobseekers.

"A couple years ago, NYU graduates could have their pick of five or six jobs," said David Roberts, former New York City Welfare Commissioner. "Now, it's more like one or two."

But Ginsberg believes there is "some danger of a glut" unless present cutbacks are reversed.

"The field is getting crowded," he said, and Nevada deputy welfare director William Labade agreed: "Applicants are beginning to find it takes a while to get placed."

Diminishing jobs. Less Government help. Fewer programs. Exacerbated urban tensions. Still, the field is crowded with enthusiastic students and workers.

People's needs remain

"The positions themselves aren't available when the students graduate, but the needs of the people are still there," said David Roberts, field coordinator at the University of Houston Social Work School. "The students see a future even though they don't see a specific spot to work."

At the University of Wyoming, Social Work Director John W. Hanks asserted: "Students are still very interested in positions where they can relate to people in meaningful and helpful ways."

And in New York City, Alvin Schorr, executive director of the Community Service Society, the largest private welfare agency in the world, declared: "The needs of the people are still so acute that certainly here at this agency, where so much has been pioneered, where so much was being done when social work was unheard of anywhere else, certainly we are not privileged now to turn our backs."

Nevertheless, said Goldberg, there has been "some hardening up, some pushing away."

Frustration, anger "We see it here," he said, "in terms of frustration and anger over the cutbacks, but not in terms of numbers of applicants because there are still so many who care about the issues, and who care about people in need of help."

Ginsberg said some of the frustration "may be deserved because a few years ago we tended to be too grandiose."

And Goldberg agreed: "We don't want to save the world anymore. Social workers are simply trying to help people who are having a rough time live out their lives more equitably."

"That's all. Just helping one life at a time so no one is left without some shred of meaning and dignity, so no one ends up an old man standing on a corner."

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1973

CARROLL RIGHTER'S
HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Get yourself on a very secure financial basis so you will have plenty of money in the days ahead. Find out how to make your money go farther.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make collections, pay bills and talk over with experts how to become more successful in the days ahead. Don't be impulsive or you get into trouble.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve health and appearance, then take advantage of some opportunity to have a good time socially. Get shopping done early.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get right facts to improve conditions and make some outlet successful. Help some friend who is having troubles. Don't broadcast it around, though.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Gad about with good friends at the hobbies mutually enjoyable. State your basic aims and you can be helped in gaining them. Avoid gossip.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle duties in the outside world without wasting time. Improve your credit. Learn from some influential person how to become more successful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Do research work now to make your outlets more successful in the future. Plan that trip that will bring you pleasure as well as success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Keep promises made conscientiously. Enjoy amusements with the one you love. Deepen bond between you and be happy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show associates you are fulfilling your share of any bargains made. Get into work necessary in regard to some civic matter without further delay.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Improve your efficiency and clear your desk for bigger things ahead. Improve health now for it could cost you much more later.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget anxieties and go out and have a delightful time. Perfect a hobby. Enjoy the company of some person of whom you are fond.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Get tasks done at home and forget that desire for fun until they are completed. Improve harmony and happiness there. Show true devotion.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Ideal day for shopping, errands, financial affairs that are important. Go over any reports or statements that are vital to your welfare.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be an occult-loving individual who will always act in a magnetic way though appearing to be slow and determined, and will get excellent results, provided you teach early to reach right decisions through good judgment. Much money can be made and education should be slanted toward banking, lecturing, the ministry and the like. Much love of humanity here and innate kindness.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!
