Martial Law Decreed For Greece

By ROYAL BRIGHTBILL
ATHENS (UPI) — President George Papadopoulos decreed martial law throughout Greece Saturday and sent tanks and troops into the ancient streets of Athens to crush remnants of a student rebellion and restore order.

Police said four persons were killed and more than 120 injured in a night of fighting that turned downtown Athens into a battleground. The battle ended when an army tank smashed through the iron gates of Athens Polytechnic School, focal point of the student rebellion which started Wednesday, and police routed occupying students with wooden staves and lead pipes. The military command imposed a 4 p.m. curfew in all towns with more than 5,000 population. Troops and tanks took up positions throughout Athens to discourage any resumption of anti-government demonstrations.

Papadopoulos, speaking with the rattle of gunfire still in streets, blamed a night of bloody fighting on "nihilist elements exploiting naive persons and the self-interest of some political leaders."

The tanks crunched through the streets and gunfire erupted half an hour after the students cranked up their clandestine radio shortly after daybreak exhorting classmates and Greek workers to return to the streets to renew the battle.

Papadopoulos said the three days of demonstrations, aimed at the overthrow of his military-backed regime, showed "the existence of a conspiracy aimed at the violent obstruction" of his plan to lead Greece to national elections under his new republic.

The military command, under armed forces commander Gen. Dimitrios Zagorianakos, issued orders banning private meetings of more than five persons, attendance at soccer games, and hoarding of food.

The order also re-established press censorship, revoked all existing gun permits and hunting licenses and prohibited private possession of any firearms. Families cannot offer shelter to persons not belonging to the same household under the military orders.

Papadopoulos indicated the return to martial law—only three months after it had been finally lifted—would not deter him from leading the country to elections. In the closing remarks of his speech he said:

"People of Greece, internal calm, desired by every honest citizen, will be restored and public order will be secured for the nation's march toward normal public life."

Sorrow, Joy For Kennedys

By GARY THOMAS
WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a morning of tragedy and muted joy, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., comforted his cancer-stricken son after his right leg was amputated Saturday, and within an hour gave his niece away in marriage to a chorus of "Irish Eyes Are Smiling."

Kennedy and his wife, Joan, were waiting when their blond, blue-eyed son, 12-year-old Edward Jr., was wheeled back into his room at Georgetown University Hospital about 10 a.m. after successful, hour-long surgery for removal of his right leg above the knee.

A hospital spokesman said young Teddy, who was diagnosed a week ago as having bone cancer in the lower portion of the leg, was in satisfactory condition. Four hours after the operation, the hospital said he was "making an uneventful recovery."

While his wife remained behind, the distraught senator left the hospital 20 minutes later for Holy Trinity Church in Georgetown, one block from the university campus, for the wedding of Kathleen Kennedy, 22, the oldest of the 11 children of his slain brother, Robert F. Kennedy.

The church was jammed with friends and relatives of the Kennedys and the groom, David Lee Townsend, 25, a long-haired, bearded Harvard doctoral student. Among the wedding guests, whom singer Andy Williams led in a rousing chorus of "Irish Eyes Are Smiling" after the nuptial vows were exchanged, were Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., Boston Mayor Kevin White and Sargent Shriver, the bride's uncle and McGovern's vice presidential running mate last year.

Nixon Hopes To Restore Public Trust

By EUGENE V. RISHER
KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon pressed a major campaign to clear his name of Watergate and restore confidence in his leadership Saturday night with an hour-long televised news conference before about 400 newspaper editors meeting at Disney World.

The nationally broadcast appearance was part of a determined Nixon effort to convince the public that he is innocent of complicity in the Watergate coverup and a variety of other allegations of wrongdoing against him and his administration.

The news conference, carried live by all major radio and television networks, was the first Nixon has held since Oct. 26, and his first speaking engagement outside Washington in nearly three months. He passed up the White House press corps traveling with him in favor of questioning by the newspaper editors from throughout the country.

After a full week of lengthy private White House conferences with Republican members of Congress and selected Democratic legislators in an apparent attempt to defuse a drive for impeachment proceedings in the House, the President embarked Friday on a series of campaign-style public appearances that will last through Tuesday.

In Georgia, which gave Nixon one of the biggest statewide majorities of his election landslide a year ago, Republicans are coordinating a mass petition campaign in support of the beleaguered President, with the results to be presented to him when he arrives Sunday afternoon.

A group of Mercer students sent a telegram to the White House protesting the visit, and said they were planning to demonstrate Sunday.

The Pentagon will fly two plane-loads of VIPs to Georgia Sunday for the festivities, including members of Congress, military officials, and employees of the House Armed Services Committee, which Vinson served as chairman until his retirement in 1965.

By United Press International
Egypt Saturday flatly rejected an Israeli peace proposal calling for mutual troop withdrawals on the Sinai front and the creation of a U.N. buffer zone along the Suez Canal. Egypt also charged that Israel seriously violated the week-old cease-fire agreement by constructing a causeway across the Suez Canal.

Despite the emphatic Egyptian rejection and the cease-fire violation charges, measures for carrying out the six-point cease-fire agreement between Israel and Egypt proceeded smoothly Saturday.

POW exchanges continued without a hitch in Tel Aviv and Cairo, relief supplies kept rolling into Israeli-surrounded Suez City at the southern end of FARMVILLE—Pitt Blood Chairman Billy Ross reminded citizens in the Farmville area that the Bloodmobile will be here on Monday from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m.

Ross said that the visit will be at the First Christian Church here. David Stowe is the new Farmville blood chairman and is helping to coordinate tomorrow's visit.

the canal and the International Red Cross evacuated more wounded civilians from the Suez City.

In Tel Aviv, government sources said Saturday, the Israeli government is seriously concerned the United States may try to railroad it into surrendering most of the conquered Arab territory it has held since the 1967 war.

They said Israel is determined to resist any such pressure, either at the planned Middle East peace conference or outside it.

The Israeli military disengagement plan, officially proposed by Mrs. Meir Friday, calls for all Egyptian forces to pull back to the West Bank of the Canal and Israeli troops to withdraw to the East Bank—the 1967 cease-fire lines. U.N. peace keeping troops would act as a buffer between them. Egyptian government sources said the Egyptian idea of a disengagement would require an Israeli pullback from the West Bank into Sinai beyond the positions held by Egyptian forces there, with U.N. troops serving as a buffer between the forward lines of the two sides.

Skylab 3 Astronauts Set Up Space Home

By BRUCE E. HICKS
UPI Science Writer

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Skylab 3 astronauts, feeling healthy and chipper, moved into the big station Saturday to set up their home for the holidays and man's longest spaceflight.

Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue carried in baggage from the Apollo ferry ship which they flew to Skylab Friday and linked to the nose of the 100-ton station orbiting 270 miles above earth. They hoped to stay aboard for a record 84 days. Pogue apparently was over a bout of space nausea suffered at docking but all took more motion sickness pills. The pilots ate breakfast before opening the hatch between the two vehicles.

Carr told mission control: "We're all feeling pretty good." Gibson, the crew's scientist, said they were anxious to open their new home. "It looks pretty good, we can't wait to dive into it."

The final crew in the $2.6 billion Skylab program turned on lights, water heaters and electronic equipment powered by solar energy cell panels. Their historic flight, slated for at least 60 days with an option to last until Feb. 8, is the last manned American mission until July, 1975.

Pogue switched on a teleprinter which carries daily schedules and information to the crew from mission control and confirmed receipt of their first message.

"Gerry, Ed and Bill," the message read. "Welcome aboard the space station Skylab. 'Hope you enjoy your stay. Looking forward to several months of interesting and productive work.'"

Ground communicator Bruce McCandless said the message was transmitted after the last flight. After this flight, he said, "We'll have to unplug a message that says: 'To whom it may concern.'"

Intense Fighting In South Vietnam

By BARNEY SEIBERT

SAIGON (UPI) — Government troop columns trying to recapture three outposts near the Cambodian border from the Communists are advancing in the face of intense rocket grenade fire and mortar shelling, the South Vietnamese high command reported Saturday.

Fighting and shelling north and south of Saigon—most of it less than 50 miles of the capital—left 27 persons dead, 30 wounded and eight missing Friday and early Saturday, the command said.

In neighboring Cambodia, President Lon Nol predicted North Vietnam would launch an all-out offensive to capture Cambodia during the dry season beginning after Christmas. He said the North Vietnamese strategy was to free its troops now in Cambodia for fighting on other fronts in South Vietnam and use Cambodian food to supply such a new offensive.

South Vietnamese command spokesman Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien said Communist troops in the Cambodian border area about 120 miles north of Saigon opened small arms and rocket grenade fire against a ranger unit a half-mile from the Dak Song base, which fell to the Communists Nov. 6, and lobbed 30 rounds of 82 mm mortar shells onto a government infantry unit about three-fourths of a mile from Dak Song.

Skirmishing also continued near Bu Prang and the Bu Bong base.

Lumber Company Destroyed In Winterville Fire Friday

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Staff Writer

WINTERVILLE—A late Friday night fire destroyed the Eastern Lumber and Supply company here. Damages are expected to approach the million dollar mark.

Seven Pitt County fire units responded to the blaze which was first reported around 9:10 Friday evening. Trucks from Winterville; Ayden, Grifton, Eastern Pines, Red Oak, Fountain and Staton House all helped in fighting the blaze which continued burning Saturday. The building may continue to burn on into the middle of this week.

Pitt County Fire Marshall, Bobby Joyner, did not have any ideas as to probable cause or estimates of damage. "It will be the middle of the week before we can get in and do any investigation. We think the vault with the records is safe," Joyner said.

The company was a supplier for several building supply firms in the area and at the time of the fire the building contained plywood, carpet and other building items. Two trucks were also burned in the fire.

The back of the building had just recently been constructed. The whole structure did not have a sprinkler system.

While fighting the fire, the companies found themselves running out of water. To remedy the problem, water was brought in from Ayden and Greenville. Joyner said that it failed to present a major problem for the firemen.

No injuries of any kind were reported.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Bomb Attacks In Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — At least six persons were injured Saturday in series of new bomb attacks against bars owned and frequented by Roman Catholics. Police blamed the attacks on Protestant extremists seeking to prevent any mellowing between Northern Ireland's two feuding religious communities.

More than 30 Catholic-owned bars have been bombed in the past 13 days and officers said Protestant extremists appear to be systematically destroying such pubs around Belfast.

Channel Tunnel Agreement

LONDON (UPI) — Britain and France Saturday signed a historic agreement to build a tunnel under the English Channel, linking Britain to the European continent, 178 years after the idea of a land link was first proposed.

The signing climaxed a two-day summit meeting between French President Georges Pompidou and Prime Minister Edward Heath, pledged to discuss the strengthening of Europe's voice in world affairs

GM Negotiators Meet

DETROIT (UPI) — Negotiators for General Motors and the United Auto Workers met Saturday to head off a series of "mini-strikes" threatened by 420,000 workers if there is no new national contract agreement by 10 a.m. Monday. There was a possibility of an all night session Sunday if bargainers thought they had made enough progress toward an agreement.

470 Elmhurst Authors Celebrate Book Week

By JERRY RAYNOR
Sunday Editor

A most remarkable publishing feat took place in Greenville last week, one that will not easily be capped for some time to come. As their contribution to the observance of National Children's Book Week, 470 young authors at Elmhurst Elementary School each turned out a book to mark the occasion. Not only did each child write his own original story; each drew their own illustrations, and then assembled and bound it. On Friday, in the library of Elmhurst the nearly half a thousand additional titles to the world's store of literature went on display. From the evidence, there's a tremendous literary force stirring in the active minds of these young story tellers—the authors range from six to eleven years old. A sample of titles show exciting possibilities for anybody's reading list. "The Ghost That Scared

Everyone;" "Tingle;" "I Love;" "Puddle, The Goldfish;" "That Night In The Graveyard;" "Tim, the Tunkey;" "The Day Grandfather Tackled A Tiger;" and "My Monsters." (What is a "Tunkey?")

When the books were completed, each class chose the best books from their own room. Winners, totaling 31, were announced for first, second and third places. On these, seals with the words "Elmhurst Book Award" were placed on the covers of the books—first place winners bear the words in blue; second place words are in red; and third place, green.

As an added measure of recognition for the young authors, the 11 first place winners were given an opportunity to read their book to the student body assembled Friday morning.

Work on the books, was done during language arts classes by the students. Covers are hard-back, with a big variety of textures and designs used to create colorful effects. Some boast covers made of bright wall paper; others are burlap or construction paper glued to cardboard.

So that each child can have a chance to browse over the works of his fellow authors, the school is keeping the books displayed on Monday. All students will be given a chance to look them over.

This has been a happy event for the children at Elmhurst. It's hard to think of a more appropriate way to observe Children's Book Week, which was the week of November 11-17.

Other schools in the city and county school systems also observed the week in various ways.

School Board Meets Monday

The November meeting of the Greenville City School Board of Education will take place Monday at 8:00 p.m. at Third Street School.

The school will be open by 7:30 p.m. so that board members and visitors can see the classroom prior to meeting time.

On the agenda are a number of items, including pupil transportation, resignations, election, leave of absence and work incentive program under personnel matters; the Sadie Sautler site and school crossing, Aycock track, Rose High football facility, Junior High site and the statewide bond issue, all under school facilities; ABC revenue and state budget request, under budget-finance matters; and several items under the curriculum category, to include a curriculum study by the League of Women Voters.

Thanksgiving Culture Tour

Miss Janet Whitehurst of Greenville is one of 12 Davidson students who will spend the Thanksgiving holidays in New York City.

The trip, which will include seeing eight varied theater productions, is a climax to a fall seminar in performing arts.

Among productions they are scheduled to take in are two plays, "That Championship Season" and "Moonchildren;" an opera, "La Traviata;" and a performance by the New York City Ballet.

Miss Whitehurst is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. Whitehurst.

Electric Bill Paid By Error

The electric bill for July and August for D.H. Conley High School has been paid to Greenville Utilities; but Supt. Ott Alford said the bill was paid through a clerical error.

The county schools had protested the two-month bill of $5,834 for the school and had declined to pay it.

Utilities Director Charles Horne reported at a Utilities meeting last week that the bill still had not been paid, but upon further checking he discovered the Conley School bill was paid in full.

The Pitt Board of Education voted not to pay the bill and Alford said the charge for the two months is still being protested.

He said a meeting is planned for this week of the involved parties to try to resolve the differences.

Recreation Meeting Set

The November meeting of the Greenville Recreation Commission, delayed from last Wednesday night, will this month be held Monday evening at 8:00 p.m. in the office of the director in Elm Street Gymnasium.

Two items are scheduled on the agenda; a recommended layout of the pool complex and site by architect Bill Friend—under old business; and under new business, a slide presentation of recreation facilities and program, conducted by Jerry Clark.

Basketball Turkey Shoot

The Greenville Recreation Department is holding a Basketball Turkey Shoot Monday, at 6:45 P.M. The Turkey Shoot will be held at three locations: Elm Street Gymnasium; West Greenville Center; and South Greenville Center. Participants will shoot four shots to determine the winner in each of four age groups: Grades 1-6, 7-9, 10-12, and adults. A fee of 25 cents will be charged for ten foul shots.

A total of 505,346 Texas school children travel to school on buses each year.

Kissinger Series of Follow-Ups

By WARREN L. NELSON — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger swung into a series of follow-up strategy conferences on his Middle East and China missions Saturday, including a meeting with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin.

Kissinger scarcely paused after his return to Washington from a 12-day, 10-nation round-the-world diplomatic trip to brief President Nixon, top administration officials and Congress.

He talked by telephone with President Nixon in Key Biscayne, Fla., for 20 minutes Friday evening, breakfasted at the White House with Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger, CIA Director William Colby and Undersecretary of State Kenneth Rush Saturday and arranged the meeting with Dobrynin later in the day.

On Tuesday, he will go before a closed session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to answer questions about his Middle East peace efforts and his talks with Chinese leaders in Peking. Kissinger also is expected to hold a news conference Wednesday.

He will personally report to Nixon sometime in the next few days but has no plans to fly to Key Biscayne where the President went for the weekend.

Kissinger indicated he also intends to give the Israeli ambassador a fill-in on his talks with the leaders of five Arab nations.

This would be in keeping with Kissinger's intention of serving as a catalyst between the two hostile sides in an effort to build a firm Middle Eastern peace on the cease-fire foundation he helped lay during his trip.

He indicated he expects that within the next 10 days or two weeks, the timing and makeup of the Mideast peace negotiations can be settled. His prompt consultation with Dobrynin was viewed as an effort to enlist the cooperation of the Soviet Union in ending conflict in the oil-rich area.

Kissinger's final official stop before returning home Friday was in Seoul, where he reassured Korean leaders he made no deal with the Chinese for withdrawing the 40,000 U.S. troops still stationed in Korea. In the past several weeks, China and North Korea have mounted an intense effort to get the current session of the U.N. General Assembly to kill off the U.N. Korean Command of which American troops are a part.

News Content Cut In Many Newspapers

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—A shortage of newsprint has forced cuts in news content in more than 62 per cent of newspapers surveyed by the Associated Press Managing Editors Association, according to a report released today.

Of 470 newspapers responding to the survey released at the APME's annual convention, 295 said they had reduced their news content.

The 400 newsmen from the United States and Canada attending the five-day convention that opened Friday were to discuss the future of the newsprint shortage today following a speech by Florida Gov. Reubin Askew.

The first victim of the newsprint shortage, the survey showed, was syndicated features, followed by international and national news, photographs, comics and sports. Local news was the last thing cut, the survey said.

Least affected was advertising. Only 48 of the newspapers responding said they had cut

Boston Globe Receives AP Service Award

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—The Boston Globe was named Saturday as the 1973 recipient of the Associated Press Managing Editors Association's Public Service Award for an investigative series on illegal gambling.

The award, which was presented at the APME convention at Disney World, cited the series of articles entitled "Betting In Boston — An Open Book," as an excellent extensive investigation.

Other finalists for the Public Service Award were: —The Milwaukee Sentinel for an investigation of the Milwaukee County welfare department which revealed mismanagement and waste of taxpayers' money. —Chicago Today for a continuing investigation of persons and businesses profiting from public funds at the direction of public officials. —The Miami Herald for a series called "The Greening of the Legislature," which assessed the impact of campaign contributions on Florida lawmakers. —The New York Daily News for an expose of widespread abuses in the New York Medicaid program. —The Pottstown, Pa., Mercury for a special edition disclosing deplorable conditions and leading to improvements to a state school for the retarded. —The Chicago Sun-Times for an investigative report which prevented the waste of $6 million in city-administered funds for a politically connected airport parking contract. —The Providence, R.I., Journal Bulletin for a campaign leading to a voluntary citizen cleanup of junk and debris along the Blackstone River. —The Santa Fe New Mexican for an investigation of backroom maneuvers in the state's horse racing industry that led to passage of a new law for improved control of race tracks.

Governor May Close Forests

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser says he may have to close North Carolina forests to hunters, fishermen and campers if there is no rain soon.

Rain would alleviate the tinderbox condition of the woodlands have developed during the long dry period.

The situation is eastern and central North Carolina will become critical if the drought does not end, he said.

A state Forest Service spokesman said fires were burning in Tyrell, Robeson, Cumberland, Hoke, Richmond, Montgomery, Wilson, Edgecombe and Halifax counties.

Holshouser urged hunters to be "extremely careful" with fire. Quail and rabbit season starts today.

All open burning permits were canceled earlier in the week by the Forest Service, which said weather reports offer little promise of significant rain in the near future.

ECU Med School Not Included In Board Plan

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—The University of North Carolina Board of Governors has given final approval to a medical education plan which does not include expansion of East Carolina University's medical school.

The $30 million plan, adopted Friday for presentation to the 1974 legislature, provides for establishment of a series of Area Health Education Centers and more resident physician positions to staff them.

The board rejected two attempts by ECU supporters to soften the blow of its opposition to expansion of their medical school.

ECU now has a one-year program with 20 students who transfer to the UNC-Chapel Hill medical school after their first year.

By a vote of 22-7, the board turned down a proposed amendment by David Whitchard of Greenville. The amendment would have added $25 million to the package for expansion of the ECU school.

By a vote of 15-9, the board rejected a motion by Reginald McCoy of Laurinburg that a minority report favoring ECU be presented to the legislature.

ECU chancellor Leo Jenkins, in Greenville, said after the meeting that he was disappointed in the decision. He said the expansion of ECU

Death Threats For Perons

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—President Juan D. Peron and his wife, the vice president, have received almost daily death threats, Social Welfare Minister Jose Lopez Rega says.

Lopez Rega, also Peron's private secretary, made the statement Friday night at a meeting of metal workers which Isabel Peron attended. He did not say who made the threats.

Mrs. Peron refrained from making any reference to the threats. But she decided against attending a rally later in the evening with some 20,000 moderate Peronist youth at a football stadium. A spokesman said her absence was due to rumors that she might be attacked.

First Conference of Black Leaders

By RANDALL H. HARBER — Black city officials from across the nation voted Saturday to band together in the first national conference of black mayors.

Mayor A. J. Cooper of Prichard, Ala., told approximately 300 delegates to the Southern Black Mayors Conference that the organization "will be a new vehicle for the civil rights struggle based on an organization and a concept and not on an individual."

The conference, said Cooper, "will be a vehicle with a greater accountability because when the more than 100 black mayors in this nation take a position on issues they will be speaking as officials responsible to their local electorates."

Cooper said blacks across the nation wanted to be able to make use of the leadership of mayors such as Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, Maynard Jackson of Atlanta and Coleman Young of Detroit.

The conference, which will be operated under the umbrella of the National Black Caucus of Local Elected Officials, will be organized in a meeting next spring. No date or place was set, but the delegates voted to have the meeting in the Northeast or the Midwest.

The conference was approved as the delegates huddled behind closed doors.

Cooper, explaining the conference to newsmen, said the organization wants to set up a staff in Washington to lobby for legislation and programs black mayors want.

"First of all," said Cooper, "black mayors have the same problems all mayors have. Then, we feel black mayors

Galloping Glacier

TACOMA, Wash. (AP)—British Columbia's largest glacier is "galloping" in spectacular fashion and could cause serious flooding next summer in Canada and Alaska, according to scientists.

A galloping glacier is one moving faster than the normal rate of a few inches to one foot a day.

Austin Post, an American hydrologist, said the flooding could result if 44-mile-long Tweedsmuir Glacier blocks the Alsek River.

Tweedsmuir straddles the British Columbia-Yukon Territory border 169 miles northwest of Juneau, Alaska. It moves out of the St. Elias Mountains into the Alsek River valley, where it pushes the river into a narrow channel called Turnback Canyon.

Budget Commission Works On 74-75 Recommendations

By ROBERT B. CULLEN — Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina Advisory Budget Commission has almost completed preparation of its state spending recommendations for the 1974-75 fiscal year, with few surprising or controversial items left in.

The commission met all day and long into Friday night in a shirtless meeting closed to the public with Gov. Jim Holshouser presiding.

They were working on the "expansion" part of the budget, having already given routine approval to the funding needed to continue ongoing programs.

Budget estimators told them a surplus approaching $300 million will be in hand if revenues continue as projected.

Sources familiar with the committee's work but mindful of their anonymity in view of Holshouser's order that they keep it secret, told the Associated Press that among the budgeted items approved are: —A five per cent raise for all state employees, including teachers, that will consume $60 million of a surplus that may reach as high as $300 million if revenue expectations are met. The commission reached the five per cent figure after rejecting a proposal for a 7.5 per cent hike. —Continuation of the kindergarten program development for $12.5 million. —Expansion of Holshouser's rural health care center program for $10.12 million. —The addition of 1,500 new employees for the Department of Human Resources, most of whom will work in the mental health program. —Two new prison buildings to replace Craggy prison near Asheville and Polk Youth Center near Raleigh, at a total cost of $15 million. —Two new office buildings for the state government complex in Raleigh with a total cost of $15 million; and smaller state office buildings in Charlotte and Winston-Salem expected to cost about $2 million each. —Funds to hire 60 new Highway Patrolmen, a cutback from the 200 the Patrol had asked for. —A total of $8 million for land acquisition and development in the parks program. —A new airplane for the use of the governor and the Department of Natural and Economic Resource's industry hunters, expected to cost $585,000. —A new crane costing $1.9 million for the port of Wilmington, but no new crane for Morehead City. —Just before the commission adjourned, the University of North Carolina Board of Governors sent over the $30 million health education package it had approved earlier in the day. The package, which does not include funds for expansion of East Carolina University's medical school, will be considered at a Nov. 30 meeting. With the medical package still pending, the commission has about $100 million of expected surplus left unallocated. Sources said Holshouser, a supporter of the Board of Governors, will probably be able to get the commission to approve the package as presented. That would leave about $70 million to be fought over by those favoring the ECU medical school, tax cuts, or additional funding for items already in the budget like parks and employe salaries.

Patronage Battle Discussion

RALEIGH (AP)—Opposing sides in the battle over state patronage have agreed to talk it over at lunch in the Governor's Mansion next week.

The Democratic members of a select state Senate committee on personnel practices, led by Sen. Robert L. Barker, D-Wake, will meet with Gov. Jim Holshouser and Secretary of Transportation Bruce Lantz on Wednesday.

The committee was appointed by Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt after the Administration fired, demoted, transferred and retired 101 Highway Division employes last month.

Its efforts to find out about personnel policies were stymied this week when the Administration told its personnel officers not to respond to invitations to testify.

Holshouser proposed the Wednesday meeting, saying that his schedule prevented him from meeting with the committee members on Friday as they had requested.

The governor met with the Advisory Budget Commission all day Friday and leaves this weekend for the Republican Governors Conference in Memphis.

Writers Win Awards

RALEIGH (AP)—Ronald H. Bayes, Fred Cheppell, and Dr. Lionel Stevenson have won major writing awards presented as part of Culture Week ceremonies.

Bayes, writer-in-residence at St. Andrews Presbyterian College, won the Roanoke-Chowan Cup for his book of poetry, "The Casketmakers."

Chappell, writer-in-residence at UNC-Greensboro, won the Sir Walter Raleigh Award for his novel "The Gaudy Place."

Endorse Impeachment Resolution

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Directors of the North Carolina Civil Liberties Union have decided to ask the House to impeach the President.

The vote Friday was 6 to 4 in favor of endorsing an impeachment resolution adopted by the national board of directors. The vote authorizes the state executive director, Bety Brinson of Greensboro, to speak publicly for impeachment with the backing of the 2,000-member organization.

LWV Receives Grant

HICKORY, N.C. (AP)—A $2,750 grant to finance a series of conferences on "The Child in Trouble in North Carolina" has been received by the North Carolina League of Women Voters.

The grant will finance day-long conferences on juvenile justice problems in Greenville, Durham, Greensboro, Charlotte and Boone, a spokeswoman said. Sessions will be held in January and February.

Hunt Committee Challenged

RALEIGH (UPI)—Republican Senate leaders said Saturday they were considering legal action challenging the legality of the Hunt Committee to probe recent firings in the Holshouser administration.

State Sen. Charles Taylor, R-Transylvania, the Senate minority leader, issued the statement on behalf of himself and George Roundtree, R-New Hanover, Senate minority whip.

Taylor said while the Senate Republican leadership knew that Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt had the power to select Senate committees, they believed this could only be done after the Senate gave its general authorization of a subject to be covered.

The Republican leaders questioned both the "propriety and legality" of the special committee named by Hunt to probe the recent firings in the corrections and transportation departments "without any color of authorization from the Senate to cover functions that existing Senate committees now have jurisdiction to handle."

Six Arrested In Drug Raid

The Greenville Police Department and the Pitt County Sheriff's Department arrested six local men Friday night at the Country Club apartments and charged all six with possession of marijuana with intent to distribute. The raid, which occurred at 8:30 p.m. resulted in all six men being placed in the Pitt County Jail under a $2,500 bond each.

Approximately one-half pound of the weed was taken in the raid.

Arrested were: Billie Joe Parsely, 20 of Apt. 19, Country Club Apartments; Thomas Franklin Forn, 19, of Lot. 2, Azalea Gardens; Berry William Brown, 18, of 907 E. Fourteenth St.; James Lee McDermott, 19, of Apt. 22, Country Club Apartments; Larry McMillian, 32, of 211 N. Warren St.; and Cecil Thomas Barnett, 20, of Apt. 22 Country Club Apartments.

Dillon Ripley Seriously Ill

CALCUTTA, India (AP)—Dillon Ripley, director of Washington's Smithsonian Institution, was flown to Calcutta for medical treatment today after becoming seriously ill in a remote village of the Himalayan kingdom of Bhutan.

Ripley arrived in an Indian air force plane and was immediately put under a doctor's care at the U.S. consulate-general, said Hobe Bradley, the mission spokesman.

Auto Accident Investigated

Greenville Police investigated one auto accident Saturday which resulted in $450 property damage. Involved in the accident, which occurred near the intersection of Tenth and Evans Streets, were William Jenness Moore of 105 Fairlane Rd., and Albert Bertalan Suto of 3938 Glenwood Apt. 9. Moore was charged with failure to see a safe movement. Damage was estimated at $200 to the Moore vehicle and $250 to the Suto auto.

Administrator Named

George W. Wilson is the new administrator of the Greenville Nursing and Convalescent Center here.

The appointment was announced by Richard Rynd, president of the Health Facilities Division of the Community Health Corporation, with headquarters in Towson, Md.

Wilson, a Danville, Va. native, has practiced nursing home administration in Maryland and Virginia. He received a B. S. degree in business administration at the University of Georgia and had done additional work at George Washington University. He and his wife, the former Nancy Edelman of Washington, D. C. and their four children will move to Greenville soon.

New Stickers Required For Fuel Retailers

Charles DeWitt, district director of Internal Revenue, reported that all gasoline and diesel fuel retailers in North Carolina must obtain new ceiling price stickers for each pump or grade of petroleum sold.

DeWitt said that the requirement is due to recent changes in the Cost of Living Council's Phase IV petroleum regulations which stipulate that the new stickers must be posted on pumps by 11:59 p.m. on Nov. 21.

In Greenville, the new stickers and instruction-computation forms may be picked up at the IRS office located in the Rivers Building, 211 Evans Street.

The director noted that stickers and instruction-computation forms may be requested by mail or telephone only from the IRS District Office in Greensboro.

They're Not Rolling In Money

After a summer of crushing electric bills most home owners must be feeling that Greenville Utilities is rolling in money; it is a sad fact, however, that the commission is scratching to fund needed expansion projects.

This doesn't soften the high cost of purchasing electrical energy for the modern home but it is something that the citizens of Greenville, owners of Greenville Utilities, will have to face.

At the November meeting of the commission looked at $154,496.29 in water system extensions to the industrial area along the Eastern by-pass and to the new Pitt Memorial Hospital area.

They were also told of the need for $325,000 in electric work in the next fiscal year. Included is an ECU substation, $75,000; VEPCO 115 KV substation structure, $125,000; Eastern by-pass substation, $100,000 and other items.

These are just part of the projects which are facing the utilities as they try to meet electric, water, sewer and gas needs for a rapidly growing city and rural area.

It will be next spring before the budget for the 1974-75 fiscal year is made up, but these and other items will have to be included at that time if the projects are to be completed in time to meet anticipated need.

Beyond that the Utilities is looking to a new sewage disposal plant to be constructed north of the Tar River within the next three to five years. It will cost $3 to $5 million with some of this to come from the state Clean Water bonds. Officials are hoping for some federal funds in the future, although none are available at present.

It is likely that normal revenues will not meet these capital improvements expenditures, and there would be three ways of getting the money needed: reducing city turn-over from its present $436,061; issuing bonds or increasing rates.

Presently the commission follows VEPCO's retail rate schedule and would like to continue to do so. The city councilmen might well storm the utilities office if the turnover were reduced, but this is something that could happen. If it did, obviously the council would have little choice but to increase property taxes in make up the funds that are lost. Issuing revenue bonds is the third possibility to be paid for, hopefully, out of future revenues which the improvements would bring in.

It is too early to say how it will all work out and it is nice to think of a Utilities Commission that is just flush with money. It's not that way unfortunately, and there is certain to be some looking around next year to find ways of financing needed improvements.

Property Tax Change Delayed

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—A proposal to end the personal property tax levy for local governments will be delayed for awhile, but the sponsor still intends to follow through on the idea.

Alamance County Rep. Jim Long mentioned the proposal as a committee he chaired studied a bill to take private passenger cars off local tax rolls, placing a statewide auto excise tax in effect instead. Revenues would be rebated to cities and counties.

Long thinks the so-called "junk tax" on household goods, jewelry, dogs and so forth should also be ended. The amount of revenue generated locally by that tax is not great and could be easily made up by the auto excise tax which would produce an increased revenue estimated around $15 million for local governments.

Long first thought of including that personal property tax change in the auto excise bill, but changed his mind. "It just can't be directly tied in to the auto excise bill even though there is an element of relation," Long said. "Probably the best thing to do will be to introduce the measure separately and let it catch up with the other bill later."

Elimination of the administrative bother of listing, checking and trying to collect both the auto and personal property tax will allow local tax officials to concentrate on real property taxes and end the long lines of people waiting to list property every year.

Mobile Home Problems
Buncombe County Rep. Herschel Harkins sees some "mind-boggling possibilities" in efforts to redefine laws covering mobile homes, especially those regarding taxation.

Are mobile homes personal property, real estate or motor vehicles?

With the numbers of them growing in North Carolina at a staggering rate, experts predict that this year at least half of the new single-family homes occupied will be mobile homes.

Harkins, chairman of a finance subcommittee, came into contact with the subject through a proposal to provide for listing mobile homes as real property instead of personal property.

But he quickly saw the maze of problems involved in law regarding mobile homes. After all, he said, our law is mostly based on old English common law regarding property—and they never thought of a mobile home back then.

Harkins suggested, and the committee agreed, that nothing be done about the tax shift proposed, but that experts from the state's Revenue Department, General Assembly, and the Manufactured Homes Association work together in drawing up some proposals which would establish a new set of rules and regulations for mobile homes, and create a classification for them.

Auto Excise Tax Okayed
Auto dealers continue to resist the proposal to place an excise tax on passenger cars to be paid at the time of initial registration with the State Department of Motor Vehicles, and annually thereafter when new license plates are bought.

The object of the bill originally introduced by Rutherford County Rep. Bob Jones and much amended and rewritten by Jim Long's committee, is to catch the thousands of people who have not been paying the local tax.

Long's committee adopted the measure recently, and passed it along to the larger Finance Subcommittee which also endorsed it for later action by the full Finance Committee chaired by Rep. Liston Ramsey and probably floor action in the 1974 General Assembly.

Basically, the bill would require car owners to pay the excise tax along with the annual license plate fee. Rates would range from a full one per cent of the retail cost on a new car; 85 per cent of that amount the second year; 70 per cent the third; and so on down to 15 per cent (or $3) on a car nine years old or over.

City dwellers would pay a double fee, since this would represent a combined city and county tax. Revenues would be rebated to local governments on the basis of numbers of cars registered in local areas.

Gaston County Rep. David W. Bumgarner Jr. who worked for and supported the proposal all along as a member of Long's committee balked at the last minute.

He voted against the proposal, creating a tie situation which Long broke in favor of the bill. Bumgarner explained later that he is not opposed to the idea, but to the fact that the proposal is tied in with a staggered auto registration system proposed by the Motor Vehicles Department which will require legislative action later, and he didn't believe he should vote in favor of something connected to another proposal which may or may not receive legislative approval.

Faisal Posing Chaos In West

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
RIYADH, Saudi Arabia—

The exotic meeting in the Red Palace here between the King of the Arabs, surrounded by his Bedouin chieftains, and the German-born American Jew, a scene of contrast and irony, was a dramatic climax—but what followed raised staggering problems.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger emerged from his two-hour private talk reinforced in all his intuitions: austere King Faisal of Saudi Arabia will not "restore his faith" in the United States until Israel actually withdraws from occupied Arab lands.

For the U. S.—but most particularly for Europe and Japan—those words carried danger. Yet, Henry Kissinger could not shake the King of Saudi Arabia, who crystallized the following points with punctuated brevity (in deep contrast to the shrill rhetoric of some other Arab leaders):

First, he had kept his silence year after year since the Israelis seized the Sinai peninsula, the Golan heights and religious places in East Jerusalem sacred to the leader of Islam.

Second, he had done so in faith that the U. S. would respect its long friendship with the Arabs and persuade Israel to do what two American Presidents had repeatedly promised and the United Nations had ordered after the six-day war of 1967.

Third, his silence had not endeared him to other Arabs. Now he would accept no more promises, even if he himself were willing to take one more chance, which he was not.

Fourth, the systematic increase in Saudi oil production was economic folly for his country. It could not spend the income and the earned dollars had a precarious future value less than oil in the ground. Yet he had agreed to a production increase to prevent oil famine in the West. All that was before the recent war.

For his part, Kissinger convinced the King that he was facing a "serious" man of genuine "sincerity" unlike, the King later told intimates, some other Americans who had claimed authority but failed to perform.

Kissinger opened his two-hour talk with the man whose possession of oil confers frightening power by saying he had read all the private correspondence between the King and three American Presidents: John Kennedy, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon. From that record, said Kissinger, it was embarrassingly clear that the King had reason to complain.

But President Nixon was now unequivocally committed to Israeli withdrawal and he, Kissinger, would not have undertaken the negotiation if not convinced that settlement was possible.

With a familiar display of ego, Kissinger informed the King that he was not in the habit of failing and pointed to his success in negotiating an end to American participation in the Vietnam war after four years of work. The two then agreed that a peace conference, preferably in the U. S., should start before the end of the year.

But on the matter of softening the oil squeeze, a principal reason for his trip here, Kissinger failed to gain assurances on the basis of new American credibility. The King insisted again and again the proof was in the pudding, not in its promise.

This adamant stand was inescapably clear to us when we saw the King later in an exclusive interview. He declined to agree that Kissinger had impressed him deeply as a man who meant what he said, and that he "hoped" the U. S. was now prepared to deliver. Clearly the King still doubts American willingness to take on Israel. This means that even though Kissinger has now established his own credibility with the King, that is not enough to loosen the tightening oil stranglehold.

This might change if Kissinger could persuade Israel to start a pullback from the Suez Canal and produces agreement on a phased withdrawal. Otherwise, the absolute monarch, who rules a remote (Continued on page A-5)

Strength For Today

LOVE AS POWER
A great painter who became famous because of his pictures of Christ was once asked to explain the secret of his technique. "It lies," he said, "in my growing love for the Master. The oftener I paint Him the more I love Him, and the better I love, the better I paint Him."
Psychologists tell us that there are great reservoirs of energy in all of us which some circumstances may open. If we get a great love in our lives, it often happens that powers within us, apparently unrelated in any way to human affection, are stimulated in an amazing fashion. This is particularly true when the love involved is a wholehearted love for Christ which has grown out of a profound religious experience.

The reason why love is the most potent force in the world is that God is love. When we love, therefore, the whole power of the spiritual world is channeled through the latent capacities of our lives.

Other Editors Say Benefits In Crisis

(Goldsboro News-Argus)
President Nixon will find the American people will respond quickly and with determination to his call to sacrifice to meet the national energy crisis.

It is the nature of our people to rise to such a challenge. The problem is real and the part we can play is clearly defined.

The energy crisis is one which we can lick, working together. And we all like to win. The governors of the states should move quickly to respond to the President's appeals for lowered speed limits and reduction in fuel consumption in general.

In the process of reducing automobile gasoline consumption by holding down speed on the highways—and limiting the number of trips we make—we will also enjoy a significant reduction in highway deaths and injuries.

That would be a highly desirable spinoff benefit from a national crisis. The President said he already had ordered thermostats lowered in the White House and in other government offices.

Many of us have found that lower temperatures in the home do not mean discomfort. Indeed, it is invigorating to get up in a house in which the temperature has been allowed to drop during the night.

For many of us it will bring back memories of the old days when the fires burned down overnight and room temperature was very close to the outside readings. We all survived. During the crisis we all can learn to get along without every light in the house burning.

We can learn to better plan our trips to town or downtown to make one do for two—or three. There might even be the inclination to walk a few blocks instead of driving when the weather is right and the sun still shines.

It seems to us that the military could play an important part in the effort. Aircraft and ships and tanks are hogs when it comes to fuel consumption. Our military today is in a state of peak professionalism. We suspect that a reduction in training flights or cruises or exercises for those veteran servicemen would not significantly lower performance capabilities.

Desert Speed Center

By JOHN J. SANKO
PUEBLO, Colo. (UPI) — Sleek red and white rocket-shaped vehicles now race along tracks in a sun-baked desert area once infested by rattlesnakes.

Although a sign still stands warning of the snakes, most have departed for other sites and workers at the Department of Transportation's High Speed Ground Test Center can concentrate on things other than reptiles.

Much of the attention is centered on what officials describe as their two Buck Rogers' type vehicles — a Tracked Air Cushion Research Vehicle which may someday hit speeds of up to 300 miles an hour and an aluminum-skinned Linear Induction Motor Test Vehicle capable of 250-mile-an-hour speeds.

Although neither may ever run on tracks anywhere than at the center, they should provide information that will lead to vehicles of the future.

Kal Grunwald, project monitor for the two vehicles at the 30,000-acre test site east of Pueblo, says a lot more is involved at the center—even if the projects are not as spectacular.

"We feel one of our main purposes is to assist the railroads in evaluating concepts and present day problems which they face," he said. "We test—or eventually will test—just about everything."

Work in Progress
Construction work at the remote site, about 20 miles east of Pueblo in northern Colorado, still is in progress. One of the most massive undertakings is a Wheel-Rail Dynamics Laboratory, a multi-million dollar structure that will do for trains what a wind tunnel does for planes. It may be ready for use next year.

The Greenville tobacco market today had paid out a total of $8,158,087.79 to tobacco planters of this section, nearly double the amount which had been paid for the corresponding period last year.

Poundage, like the amount of money paid out, was also far in advance of last year's total up to this point.

The average this year was $15.95 over last year's average of $12.17 per hundred pounds.

Organization of the Red Cross Roll Call was complete last night, according to Roll Call Chairman S. G. Wilkerson. The Greenville Kiwanis Club is sponsoring the drive for members of the business district and the committee of that club.

Wilkerson said the roll call is expected to surpass last year's roll call by far. Pitt County's quota is one thousand members with the roll well organized in the county as well as Greenville.

Optimism, Or Just Obstinacy?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — A little more than two weeks ago the New York Stock Exchange distributed to member firms the consensus view of 46 leading forecasters. Not one of them foresaw lower stock prices in 1974.

Asked by the exchange's own economist, William Freund, "What are your feelings about the direction of stock prices in 1974?" about 95 per cent responded that the market would rise, while 5 per cent said there'd be no change.

Such a broken-cable descent is enough to shake anyone, even some of the hardy foreign investors who had been pouring their money into the market during September and October. A fall from that height doesn't produce a bounce.

He argued that when that point is reached, many people begin making their plans for the coming expansion. A lot of people, he said, are looking at those low price-earnings ratios and for the first time in years are feeling the attraction of a little speculation.

Nevertheless, a random sampling of economists and market buffs of varying credentials, some of whom might have been included in Freund's survey, shows a remarkable degree of optimism, or maybe obstinacy.

While conceding the very rough estimate that for each percentage of energy shortfall you can deduct 1 per cent or more from the Gross National Product, they generally maintained their confidence.

Domestic energy will now be produced in quantity rather than lying inert, said one. Production will take equal billing with ecology, said another. Waste and inefficiency will be eliminated, said several.

Prodded for details, some forecasters maintained they were working night and day during the past week and were still in the midst of their analyses. Therefore, they said, it was difficult to document their optimism.

Some in fact were already looking over the valley to the peaks beyond, maintaining that the energy shortage would galvanize the nation, spur it to a renewed dedication, and cause the economy to shed some old angle irons.

One forecaster who conducts daily polls and who is still synthesizing the results of interviews over the past few days went so far as to suggest the likelihood of a stock market boom beginning sometime in the next few months.

He maintained that in terms of mental attitude the American public has been in a recession for a month or so.

As analysts, institutions and individuals reach their conclusions over the next week a more conclusive pattern should emerge. It is conceivable that all this bad news can be absorbed.

If Newsprint Crunch Comes, Kenaf May Be Answer

By STAN DARDEN
GAINESVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — If the newsprint shortage gets any worse or the United States' timberland starts producing more lumber for housing, paper makers might consider a plant named "kenaf" which looks like marijuana to the untrained eye.

Kenaf (pronounced kuh-naf) is a hibiscus plant which requires much less processing and chemical treatment than pulpwood to be turned into paper, according to Dr. Gordon B. Killinger, assistant chairman of the University of Florida Agronomy Department.

"Kenaf could be the biggest thing since we learned how to make paper from pine trees back in 1928," Killinger said.

Killinger says that while there is no immediate shortage of pulpwood there may come a day when more of the wood is needed for building as the construction boom continues.

Killinger also said he understands the newsprint shortage is not because of any reduction in wood production but is attributable to labor problems and financial troubles among the big paper-producing Canadian mills.

At the moment, kenaf is an academician's toy. But it could become a major source of paper production in the future.

Forest Management
"Unless forest management is greatly intensified, the volume of consumption may outstrip timber growth by the end of the decade," Killinger said. "If mills are to maintain current high production levels—or expand production—new sources of pulp materials like kenaf will be desperately needed."

"As land becomes increasingly scarce, the pulp and paper industry is going to be forced to begin growing more cellulose per acre than pine trees now provide, and kenaf offers the best prospect in this part of the country."

Because of its fiber structure, kenaf could be processed more easily at the pulp mill than wood, requiring only minor changes in equipment. Kenaf needs less time and fewer chemicals to make paper pulp, and it lends itself to continuous pulping at the mills.

But kenaf has its drawbacks. Its seedlings, which Killinger has imported mostly from Guatemala and El Salvador, are extremely water sensitive and must be planted in raised beds.

A kenaf crop must be rotated with other crops such as cotton or corn. And the kenaf plant is susceptible to root knot nematodes and the parasitic pink bollworm.

Kenaf Publications
Despite the drawbacks, Killinger says he will continue to grow and process kenaf into paper on his one-acre plot near the university.

The Institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences at Florida used kenaf paper to print the news releases telling about the plant.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's Northern Utilization Research Laboratory in Peoria, Ill., another group which is experimenting with kenaf, has published a booklet with pages made from kenaf.

Killinger says kenaf has been used as yarn and cloth backing for rugs since Biblical times. But the mass production of kenaf as paper substitute was first developed at Florida in 1967 and further researched by the USDA's Peoria lab.

Hardy Crop
Kenaf is a hardy crop that grows "from frost to frost" straight through from spring to fall, Killinger said.

Kenaf could be grown and harvested annually, whereas pine trees usually require at least 15 years before they are mature enough for harvesting.

More Divorces Than Marriages

CAIRO (UPI) — For every Egyptian marriage in 1970 there were two Egyptian divorces. There were 325,000 marriages and 700,000 divorces in that year, the last for which government figures are available. Part of the explanation is that a Moslem man can easily divorce any of the four wives he is allowed to have by uttering the words "I divorce thee" three times.

City School Lunch Menus

Lunchroom menus for the coming week at Greenville elementary schools and the Junior and Senior High School "hot line" have been announced as follows:

Monday—hot dogs with chili, french fries, cole slaw, sweet rolls, milk;

Tuesday—sliced turkey, rice or dressing with gravy, candied yams, green beans, cranberry sauce, rolls, milk;

Wednesday—fish sticks, buttered potatoes, cole slaw, corn bread, cake, milk.

Thursday—No School
Friday—No School.

North Pitt School News

Jeff Price, a senior at North Pitt, has been selected as a candidate in the John Motley Morehead Scholarship competition.

Also selected from Pitt County was Tom Craft, a senior at Ayden Grifton High School.

The Senior Class has just completed their candy sale project.

Seniors who have not ordered their graduation announcements or who have not paid the $5 deposit, should see Mrs. Nixon in the guidance department.

Some students from North Pitt visited friends and families in Chapel Hill during the weekend and also enjoyed the homecoming festivities at

Once-Famed Bank Bandit Looks Back

HARVEY BAILEY

By DAVID DARY
For The Associated Press
JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Harvey Bailey does not look 86 years old. His physique is that of a man perhaps 20 years younger. And with his white hair, sparkling black eyes and square jaw, he looks more like a retired successful farmer than a retired bank robber.

But between 1920 and 1932, John Harvey Bailey was America's most successful bank robber.

Today, after spending nearly 40 years in prison, including 12 years in Alcatraz, he lives a quiet life here with his wife of eight years.

Bailey recently retired as a cabinet maker, a trade he learned as a boy and resumed while in prison. In 1964, he was paroled from prison and moved to this southwestern Missouri city.

Not long after, Bailey met J. Evetts Haley, a Texas writer and historian. Now Haley, fascinated by Bailey's life, has written a book about it, "Robbing Banks Was My Business."

Bailey says he decided to tell his life story to Haley because he "wanted to say that crime doesn't pay. I hope my story may be a warning to young Americans who may be tempted."

Bailey admits that he was tempted as a young man. "I began as a bootlegger," he says. "It was easy money. But then I graduated to banks. There was more money in robbing banks. I robbed about two banks a year during the 12 years I was in that business."

Bailey talks freely of those days when he worked with such desperadoes as Machine Gun Kelly, Alvin Karpis, Frank Nash, Fred Burke, Pretty Boy Floyd and others.

"I knew them all, and I worked with them," he said, adding, "Al Capone was one of the best boys you ever met. I knew him at Alcatraz. He worked with me for three years. I watched over him because some of the punks wanted to stick a knife in him."

Of Pretty Boy Floyd, Bailey recalled, "He was a thief, but there was honor among thieves then."

Bailey said that in 1924, when a serious drought hit the Cookson Hills in Oklahoma, he and Floyd broke into a grocery store at Sallisaw, Okla., loaded a pickup truck with groceries and distributed them to the "poor Cherokees and other folks" in the hills.

"They were starvin' to death until we helped them," said Bailey, who is not apologetic about his past.

Although Bailey robbed banks from Texas northward through Kansas to Wisconsin, and from Ohio westward into the Dakotas, he eluded the law. When he was finally sent to prison in the early 1930s, it was, he says, "on a bum beef."

He was sentenced to life in prison for conspiracy and kidnaping in the famous case of Charles F. Urschel, wealthy Oklahoma oilman.

"I never was involved in that," Bailey asserts. Bailey explains that he was captured with $640 of the ransom money. Machine Gun Kelly, who had directed the kidnaping, had repaid a loan, he said, and Bailey was unaware that the money was part of the Urschel ransom.

Comparing robbing banks in the '20s and '30s to such crimes today, he said, "It can't be done today in the towns of 65 or 75 thousand people like when we robbed them. Today there's helicopters, airplanes and two-way radios. You just can't do it without gettin' caught."

Circuit Banquet At Goldsboro

MISS ECU FOOTBALL FOR 1973... is Miss Beverly Dameron of Burlington. She was named last spring by a vote of the football players and coaches.

Miss ECU Football Is First Titleholder

WEBBING OUT THE SPIDERS... was the theme selected by Miss Kathy Rambo, left, and Miss Beverly Dameron as they decorated the locker room last week as a spider web.

A girl in the ECU Pirates football team locker room! And still another in the locker room! Who are they and why are they there?

The girls are Beverly Dameron and Kathy Rambo and their purpose in being in the locker room is decorative. The coeds decorate the area before the last heavy team practice and before each football game.

The girls have a unique friendship—Miss Dameron is the first reigning Miss ECU Football, Miss Rambo is co-head of the university cheerleaders and they are roommates.

Elected by a vote of the players and coaches, Miss Dameron was approached last spring by Coach Sonny Randle, who asked her if she would like to be Miss ECU Football for 1973.

"I was very delighted and honored at being selected," Miss Dameron replied.

As the titleholder, she aids the coaches in recruiting, meeting and talking to possible recruits, gives them a tour of the campus if the boys are interested and tells them of after-game parties and entertainment offered in Greenville and on campus.

During spring coaching clinics for the past four years, she has assisted in several ways—registration, distributing brochures and answering general questions about the campus. She also visits surrounding areas during the season to help present ECU football.

During home football games, she has assisted the sports information director with setting up a system to help and aid reporters within the press box. Acting as a general Girl Friday, she obtains food and coffee for the working press and schedules other girls to gather game statistics.

In decorating the locker room, the girls try not to do the typical beat whoever theme. "We try to make each week's theme exciting and different instead of something feminine—Kathy and I use posters perhaps with puns or crepe paper streamers woven into a maze. For instance we have used quotes on posters or gossip painted on a huge paper football," said Miss Dameron. They also leave candy treats for each player and coaches.

"For Halloween this year, the cheerleaders and I gave a comedy skit based on a night meeting of the team and last year, we participated in a trick instead of a treat—by tying all the players' clete shoe strings into knots."

About two afternoons a week, Miss Dameron usually drops by to see a practice session. "A lot of people might wonder why, but by knowing the players personally, I am genuinely interested in knowing if they had a rough practice or if there were any injuries and just exactly how they were doing that day," she continued.

Appearing at all pep rallies, Miss Dameron is "just an avid Pirates fan, cheering with everybody else."

Miss Rambo and Miss Dameron have a weekly radio program "Pirate Pigskin Preview." They interview two or three players per week and the show ends with a game prediction. Miss Dameron has appeared on a TV talk show, telling of the ECU athletic program, of student support and about the things she does as Miss ECU Football.

She also has a brother and sister enrolled at ECU. A former Pirates football player, Tim Dameron is a graduate assistant football coach. Her younger sister, Connie, is a sophomore.

A senior, Miss Dameron's major is speech pathology and audiology.

This Young Lady Is Champion On And Off The Ice

NEW YORK (WNS) — The world needs more young people like Karen Magnussen. She had a goal. She pressed toward it unswervingly, with an abundance of courage and hard work. In March, 1973, she achieved it. She became the world figure skating champion.

"I've had falls, broken legs, and everything, but I'm just as glad for it," she said here.

"I've always been disciplined, I was brought up with common sense, and every year I was meeting new people, and it was so rewarding. There are so many wonderful people in skating."

From the vital rays she gives off, from the white-tooth smile that seldom stops, she looks to be a health champion as well. A better example of the value of sports, a sharper rebuke to the lazy and slack-muscled, would be hard to find. Beyond all that, she is a pretty, curvy, blue-eyed blonde.

She is 21, from Vancouver, British Columbia. And she's a professional, now, the star of Ice Capades, now on a 44-week tour of 23 U.S. and 13 Canadian cities.

"My goal was to win the world championship, and now that I have I've become a professional," she said. "Money has never been a big part of my life. We're just a middle-class family, and I'm glad my folks don't have to worry now about paying my bills. They gave up so much for my lessons, and they never said one thing about it, for which I love them so much.

"I can help them out now, and help my two younger sisters. I don't miser my money. I have too much fun giving it. I sent my parents to Hawaii in May for their first real vacation.

"My dad's Norwegian, and my mom is Swedish. I was in Oslo this past year, and I met many of my relatives for the first time. I wasn't Karen Magnussen of Canada any more, I was Karen Magnussen of Norway.

In 1969, struck by stress fractures in both legs, Karen could not compete in the world championships in Colorado. There were grave predictions that she would not skate again.

Wheelchair

"I was in a wheelchair for three months. I found out about my fractures in February, and I was back on the ice by the middle of May. I never thought once that I wouldn't be back. Skating gets into you, and it's hard to get away from it.

"My mother used to skate for fun. When I was about six and a half she took me to a general skating session, and I kept asking for more. I won my first competition when I was seven. My sisters (Lori, 18, and Judy, 15, both long haired blondes) ski and do school sports, but they're not interested in skating."

Hadn't she wanted to conquer the Olympics? She placed seventh in the 1968 Olympics, won a silver medal in the 1972 Olympics.

"I would have had to wait about four years for the next Olympics. All the skaters are very young now, a new generation is coming in. There are over 250,000 registered skaters in Canada alone. I trained eight hours a day in Toronto last summer. I've been with my trainer, Mrs. Brauckmann, nine years, and she's still teaching me things today."

She relishes her work in Ice Capades.

"It's so entirely different, everything's so glamorous, being able to wear beautiful costumes with a lot of beading. Sonja Henie was the skater I most admired, because of the glamour she brought to skating. She gave skating the artistic point of view, she introduced ballet movements on ice.

"My hours are different now. For 13 years I've been used to living from 5 in the morning until 9 at night. I'm up much later now, so I try to sleep until 10."

She misses home cooking. Her own home cooking.

"I do all the cooking when

Accent On Living

A-8—The Daily Reflector, Greenville, NC—Sunday, November 18, 1973

I'm at home. I was 12 when I started cooking, I didn't want anybody else in the kitchen, and my mother said, "Take over." I cook whole wheat bread and oatmeal bread. My mother has been acting as my secretary, helping me with my mail. I answer my mail by hand. She addresses the envelopes and puts on the stamps.

"I get a lot of mail from Europe and Japan—was there for the 1972 Olympics. When the Japanese write they are great lovers. I get proposals of marriage, it's unbelievable. They love blondes.

One-Time Thing

"There isn't time for marriage now, but I have friends all over the place. I want to do everything I want to do, then settle down, because I want it to be a one-time thing. I've seen friends marry young, and it just doesn't work out."

She doesn't smoke. She likes wine with dinner.

"I learned to like wine in Europe. You can't drink milk in Europe, and you don't dare drink water because you never get out of the bathroom... No one in my family has ever been seriously sick. I get colds, you're on the ice for hours and perspiring, but I've always been healthy."

She is not one-sided.

"I play tennis, swim, horseback ride, and ski a bit in the spring. I've started doing needlepoint; my grandfather taught me. I'm a second-year student at Simon Fraser University. I'm studying kinesiology, which is sports medicine. I make good grades. School is an escape from skating, and vice versa. I don't want to be cut off from the rest of the world."

She was recently elected to Canada's sports hall of fame. She proudly wears a medallion given her by George Eby, president of Ice Capades: "On one side it has the date I won the world championship, March 1, 1973, in Czechoslovakia. I won't forget that I competed in seven world championships."

She was in the Soviet Union for an exhibition tour.

"The people you see in railway stations are so poor, and the officials are riding around in big cars, and nice clothes. It really makes you appreciate your own country."

There is a Karen Magnussen Foundation in Vancouver.

"Eighteen-thousand people came to my twenty-first birthday party. The proceeds that were left over, $13,000, went to the foundation, which will help skaters. I hope it will become a Canada-wide thing."

She is 5-3, weighs 118, eats sensibly.

"I eat a lot of vegetables and salads, cottage cheese, fish and poultry, not so much beef. I take a one-day vitamin supplement plus iron, and a B-Complex supplement.

"I want to lose seven or 10 pounds, but it's hard. I'm all muscle. I know it's muscle because it doesn't jiggle."

ICE SKATING STAR... Karen Magnussen achieved her goal and turned professional.

Couple Exchanges Vows Saturday

ROXBORO—The wedding of Miss Nancy Coleman King and John Cleveland Wagstaff was solemnized in the Roxboro Baptist Church Saturday at 7:30 p.m. by the Rev. Lewis Wall.

Mrs. Wally Wright, organist, and Mrs. Pete Humphries, vocalist, presented a program of wedding music. Mrs. Humphries sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Coleman King of Roxboro, and Mr. and Mrs. John Fletcher Watstaff of Rt. 1, Roxboro.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight satin gown fashioned with a cathedral train, scooped neckline, edging of Venetian lace and fitted long sleeves ending in a point over her hands, trimmed on the points with Venise lace.

The gown had a fitted waistline and gathered skirt.

Her Camelot cap of matching lace and pearls had a veil of silk illusion, cathedral length, edged with matching lace. The bride carried a bouquet of gardenias, stephanotis and English ivy in a cascade.

Mrs. Charles Lewis Jr. of Sanford, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and Miss Helen James of Roxboro was maid of honor. They wore formal gowns with forest green velvet bodices and ivory crepe skirts. The dresses had empire waistlines with a midriff accented with crepe design in matching shades of green. The bodice featured a high neckline with mandarin collar and short puffed sleeves. They wore Camelot caps of matching forest green velvet with short veils of matching tulle.

Bridesmaids were Miss Gail Blalock, Miss Gwynn Long, Miss Jean Hester, Miss Shelby Wiley, Mrs. Susan Rhodes, Mrs. Linda Winstead, sister of the bridegroom, all of Roxboro, Miss Marcia Carpenter of Durham, and Miss Kathy Rook of Bethel.

The bridesmaids' formal gowns were fashioned after that of the honor attendants. They featured a bodice of forest green velvet and skirts of gardenia crepe. All the attendants carried bouquets of mixed autumn flowers.

Miss Kim Lewis was flower girl and was dressed like the honor attendants. John Humphries was ring bearer.

The father of the bridegroom served as best man. Ushers were Michael Winstead, David Winstead, James Rhodes, Bill Dallas, Barry Walker, Dan Lawrence, Mel Wrenn, all of Roxboro, and Charles Lewis Jr. of Sanford.

The couple will reside in Roxboro.

The bride is a graduate of Person Senior High School attended Atlantic Christian College and is employed by Eaton Crop. The bridegroom is a graduate of Person Senior High School and Technical Institute of Alamance. He is presently engaged in farming. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. John Rook Sr. of Bethel, and the late Mr. Rook. Following the ceremony, a reception was given by the Wayne Vernelson gave Sherry Francis a jolt while she was at work one afternoon in September — had gave her an engagement ring. Thinking that he was returning home from a trip to Raleigh and then going on to work, she was surprised when he walked into her office.

The ring was a complete surprise. Wayne had traveled to Raleigh to select the ring on Saturday, letting Sherry think that he was hunting. The next Friday they called and told him that the ring was in and he went to Raleigh to pick it up.

Sherry thought that something terrible had happened like an automobile accident when she first saw Wayne. After finding out that nothing had happened, she then got the ring. She said, "I was one excited young lady."

A graduate of Farmville High School and Pitt Tech, Wayne is now employed by Burroughs Wellcome. Sherry is a graduate of Rose High School and also attended Pitt Tech. She is now a secretary at Heilig-Meyers Furniture Co.

They will exchange wedding vows on Feb. 10 at Parkers Chapel Free Will Baptist Church.

Vickie Vultee of Greenville will play the part of a mourner in the forthcoming production of "The House of Bernarda Alba," to be presented by the College of William and Mary Theatre Dec. 6-8.

A graduate of Rose High School, Vickie is a member of the college choir and chorus and a member of the Interhall Council for residence halls.

"The House of Bernarda Alba" is a brooding drama about the inhibiting forces of outmoded customs. It will be directed by Louis E. Catron and will be given in Phi Beta Kappa Hall at the college, which is located at Williamsburg, Va.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Michael R. Schweisthal.

Devoted Fans Dye Hair Rainbow Colors

BOURNEMOUTH, England (WNS) — Teens Julie Weber, Valerie Crawford and Andrew Sharp were such devoted fans of pop singer David Bowie that they dyed their own hair to match Bowie's multi-colored locks. Julie, 16, and Valerie, 15, were banned from school when they refused to wash out the blue and green streaks. Andy, 14, obeyed the headmaster's order and went back to his natural corn-yellow hair.

'Who Were My Parents?'—One Woman's 20-Year Search

real parents had a choice: They gave us away at birth. What have we done except be born inconveniently?"

By RONALD G. BURNS
NEW YORK (UPI) — Florence Fisher's problem sounds simple enough: All she wanted was to find herself.

But Florence's identity crisis was more troublesome than most. In fact, it took her 20 years, hundreds of shoe-leather miles and countless rejections to overcome.

Florence was an adopted child who wanted to find her real parents.

"My mother carried me in her womb for nine months," she said. "She was part of me and I was part of her. I wanted to know who she was, and who my father was—maybe so I could know who I was."

Florence's struggle to satisfy her seemingly simple need to know was hampered all along the way by traditions and laws that hold secret the birth records of adopted children.

"All Worth It"

"The clerks, the counselors, the social workers, the adoption agencies—they sit there and tell you, 'You have no right to know that,'" she said. "It's like everyone knows more about adoption than the adopted child. They even have the gall to suggest getting psychiatric help."

She says her search was "all worth it." But as she speaks, her high-pitched voice cracks, her tiny hands fidget, her wide, unblinking eyes grow moist.

The struggle has taken its toll.

Raised by parents too ashamed and afraid to tell her she was adopted, Mrs. Fisher dimly recalls "finding a paper" at the age of seven that gave her real name. She found out for sure 16 years later, and spent the next two decades searching out—and finally finding—her blood relations.

"For 35 years, I lived with shadows," she said. "It was like I was chattel: the state took away my rights at birth and sold me into slavery."

The search began the day her adoptive mother died when Florence Laddin, then 21 years old, mentally plucked the name of Anna Fisher off that long past "paper" and managed to recall the name of the obstetrician who had delivered her. ("My adoptive mother had mentioned his name because she used to speak of 'labor pains'—as if she had actually given birth to me herself!")

Asking questions

"I called him on the phone and said my real name, and he shot back, 'oh, the adopted child!' I had just found out, so that was still quite a shock. I told him I'd like to find out who my real parents were, and he said, 'That's ridiculous—and hung up!"

"As I recovered from that, I suppose I got the first flashes of what was in store for me in the years to come."

As those years stretched into decades, Florence made the rounds of city agencies and adoption services, asking the same questions over and over again.

"I called the hospital where I was born every day for 15 years, hoping that a clerk would make a mistake and give me what I wanted."

"Amazingly enough, one day it actually happened, and suddenly I had the names of my parents and grandparents."

New tack

Armed with the new information, Florence took a new tack, tracing the names through the vast files of the genealogy department at the New York City public library.

"A mere five more years and I found my mother. Ten months after that I found my father, as well. And it was only then that I learned that I was not illegitimate, that in fact my parents' brief marriage had been annulled by my grandmother."

"Finding my mother was almost eerie. 'Our facial features are identical. Our figures are the same. We move our hands the same way. Even our voices are alike. But even more significantly, we share so many of the same interests."

"It convinced me that we are products of our heredity, not our environment."

Florence, now 43, says her mother was "shocked" when she found her and "for three days pretended I had found the wrong woman." But on the morning of the fourth day, she says, her mother "called up weeping and admitted everything."

Father's reaction

But it was her father's reaction that especially startled her. "I expected him to tell me to go to hell," she said. "But he was thrilled at finding me. My mother was the hesitant one. She still hasn't told her family about me."

In hopes of changing the laws she has come to despise, Florence Fisher has written a book, "The Search for Anna Fisher," and formed a nationwide organization of adopted children who are searching for their natural parents.

She said her group "numbers in the thousands" and that "we've been working diligently to team up adopted children with their real parents, so far with great success."

Her efforts have met with opposition from associations of adoptive parents and casual dismissal from adoption agencies.

"Her group is not chartered. Her funding is unaccounted for. Her true membership is unknown," says Jean Tournery, president of the New York Adoptive Parents Association. "What is it that makes her qualified? As far as I can see, not a thing."

Not that simple

Mrs. Tournery calls Mrs. Fisher "publicity seeking" and "self-serving," and adds: "We are thinking here mainly of the adopted child. If you open these records to adopted children, who's to say natural parents won't be able to get them and find their children—an experience which could be very painful and damaging."

Jane Edwards, executive director of the Spence-Chapin Adoption Agency, said, "Natural parents have a right to confidentiality," and added: "Research that has been done shows that the need to know is not that important psychologically."

"It's so easy to say all your problems are caused by not knowing who your real parents are," Mrs. Edwards said. "It's just not that simple."

But Mrs. Fisher, asserting that "no one should be able to buy their privacy at the expense of someone else's anonymity," demands to know "why I have to spend my whole life justifying to these people my simple desire for my birthright."

And she added: "At least the

AFTER 20 YEARS. . . Anna Fisher found her natural parents and has now formed a nation-wide organization of adopted children who are looking for their natural parents.

Mrs. Jenkins Couldn't Say No To Carbon Paper

NORTHAMPTON, England (WNS) — Jennifer Avery, 27, secretary to the boss of a food company here, ordered two boxes of carbon paper from a stationery salesman who visited her office. When 12 boxes arrived, she accepted them. But then more and more boxes came. He and other salesmen frightened, bullied and blackmailed her until she had deliveries made to her home because there was no more room at the office. When it was discovered that three other companies had been similarly bamboozled into buying $600,000 worth of paper they didn't want, the law was called in. Ten men are now on trial for conspiracy to defraud and blackmail.

Mrs. Leo W. Jenkins presented the program at the meeting of the Seira Book Club held Tuesday at the home of Mrs. S. R. Bartlett.

She told of a tour which was granted by the Danforth Foundation for two months last winter to her husband.

Her descriptive report of America "a kaleidoscopic view" consisted of observations and reactions which they encountered on their 12,500 mile tour by automobile.

A dessert course was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Fred Bauman and Mrs. William Heyman.

A brief business session was held prior to the program.

All Attractions

TUNIS, Tunisia (WNS) — In an effort to attract more vacationers, the Medina Samira Club here has printed a brochure that lists its sports and amusements. The list includes "swimming, sailing, water skiing and conception for young people."

Secretary Too Private For Jealous Husband

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife is the private secretary to an important executive. She called me at work to tell me she was at her boss's HOUSE for a few hours to take dictation. She said he was on his "vacation" and was afraid if he went to the office he'd get tied up there all day.

I hit the ceiling, and told her in no uncertain terms that I didn't like the idea. She assured me that her boss's wife was home so I should simmer down.

An hour later I phoned the boss's house to make sure his wife was home. [She was.] Then I asked to talk to the boss. I told him it was O.K. this once to have my wife working at his house, but I didn't like the idea, and not to ask her again.

Well, Abby, since that happened my wife has been boiling mad at me. She said I humiliated her before her boss and his wife, and if I ever did that again, she would divorce me!

She insists I don't trust her. I do trust her, but I don't trust her boss. Do you think I was wrong to check up on her, and tell her boss how I felt? FRANKLY JEALOUS

DEAR FRANKLY: Yes. You showed an insulting lack of confidence in both your wife and her boss.

DEAR ABBY: I'm in love with a man who is attractive, hard-working, honest, sober, and morally sound, but he has one failing that absolutely drives me up a wall. He is cheap from the word go!

When he takes me out [which isn't too often] we always go to the least expensive place he can find. And there can be a parking lot right next to where we're going, but he drives around for half an hour to find a parking place on the street.

He tells me not to buy him anything for Christmas, because he hates to shop, and he's not buying ME anything.

Abby, I realize that he was poor when he was young, but he makes good money now, and has only himself to support.

He says he loves me, and we're discussing marriage, but I'm wondering what marriage would be like with a man who's so tight with his money. He's a beautiful person otherwise. Do you think he'll ever change? FRUSTRATED

DEAR FRUSTRATED: He's a creature of habit. I doubt if he will ever enjoy spending money, but with some gentle prodding, you could loosen him up a bit. When discussing marriage, don't forget to discuss budget, or you and this "beautiful person" will be having money fights for the duration of your marriage.

CONFIDENTIAL TO DOROTHY N.: Lord Byron took the words right out of my mouth when he wrote:

"All who joy would win
Must share it.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212 for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

Book On Bazaars Gives Helpful Hints

NEW YORK (UPI) — Bazaars are a time-honored way of raising money for a worthwhile cause while at the same time giving people a good time for their contributions.

And if they are a venerable institution, they also are up-to-the-minute because they mean community participation and provide a way for people to interact with their neighbors to help each other.

Now there's a book out to help the would-be bazaar organizer—Dorothea S. Britton's The Complete Book of Bazaars (Coward, McCann & Geoghegan). The book is concise, well-written and of particular interest to first-time fundraisers.

It offers many helpful hints including tips on forming committees, utilizing diverse talents to best advantage, displaying merchandise and raising working capital.

The useful advice and thoughtful discussions cover many areas, ranging from the principles of merchandising to those of dividing labor and dealing with people. For the reader who wants even more ideas than the book presents, there is a list of publications and places to find additional assistance.

Mrs. Britton's suggestions have application well beyond the world of bazaars. Her excellent list of supply sources, for example, might be used for numerous other purposes. Similarly, readers interested in making inexpensive and attractive gift items and in planning playtime projects for children also will be rewarded.

For whatever purpose this book is used, the reader will find it easy to follow. Not only is the text eminently readable, but the numerous photographs and line drawings are uncluttered and clear.

The Pitt County Association of Insurance Women held their regular luncheon meeting at The Three Steers Wednesday. Mrs. Virginia Nichols, state president, was the featured speaker for the occasion.

She gave a program on "Parliamentary Procedure" explaining the importance of the procedure in conducting meetings with ease and understanding.

Mrs. Nichols presented the national charter of the National Association of Insurance Women to the Pitt County Chapter. Mrs. Polly Dail accepted the charter for the club.

The Welfare Committee announced that a child had been selected for Christmas giving and gave a list of the things the child would like to have. The girls will be brought to the December meeting, which will be a Christmas wrapping party at the home of Mrs. Dail on Dec. 14.

Mrs. Dail presided and gave the invocation.

Club Members Hear Speaker

"Making Flowers From Shells" was the program topic for the meeting of the Lakewood Pines Garden Club held at the home of Mrs. Tyson Bilbro Tuesday.

Introduced by Mrs. Fred Baumann, Mrs. Norwood Whitehurst displayed original pictures of flowers she had designed using native shells, most of which were found on the beach and in the sound at Emerald Isle.

"It is much better to arrange shells of the same colors and they are enhanced if placed or arranged on a dark background. Many articles can be made with a little imagination and a variety of shell," she said.

The speaker gave brief history of shells and a question and answer period followed the program.

Mrs. Reuben Lowe, president, conducted the business session and reminded members of the silent auction to be held at the December meeting.

Mrs. Lowe reported on the district meeting held in Edenton which she attended with Mrs. J. C. Bateman.

Wedding Invitation

Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Ross request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter, Donna Kay, to David Rogers, on Saturday, Nov. 24, at 4:00 p.m. in the Wynne Chapel Church, Bethel. No invitations were mailed.

Usherette—Meet More At Movies

KINGSBRIDGE, England (WNS) — Emily Wood, 86-year-old great-grandmother, has just retired as chief usherette at the Regal Cinema here. "I had to retire because the movie house is closing," she explained. "I'm not entirely sorry because I like romantic old costume pictures, not the nude and horror films of today." She is happy that the Regal closed with a revival of Walt Disney's "Snow White and

The Seven Dwarfs" even though "I like 'Gone With The Wind' better." Her only trouble in retirement: "Evening will be lonelier. You meet more people at the movies than at the TV set."

SLIGO, Eire (WNS) — Women in need of legal help here because of marital troubles or bad working conditions in the factory or office are invited to visit the busy firm of lawyers named Messrs. Argue and Phibbs.

Plans Ready For Future Earthquake

By JAMES O. CLIFFORD
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Experts say there's no doubt a 1906-style earthquake will hit San Francisco again. The only question is when.

Ed Joyce lives as if it will happen any second.

Joyce is director of emergency services in the office of Mayor Joseph L. Alioto. It's his job to think about "the unthinkable" and be prepared to act when it strikes.

"If a major earthquake hits we could find ourselves with 350,000 homeless and possibly 20,000 dead," Joyce told UPI.

Joyce, 54, a former senior planner with the State Disaster Office, for years now he has been working to develop a plan to avoid what any disaster worker fears most: "chaos and panic."

San Francisco's "earthquake command post" would be located at the Youth Guidance Center on Twin Peaks. Major department heads—from fire, police, medical Red Cross, public works and social welfare—would go there immediately after a quake. The center also would be the radio communications center, a vital part of disaster relief operations. And San Francisco has been divided into 10 "staging areas" for post-quake relief, each with massive care facilities where the Red Cross would be in charge of food, clothing and housing.

San Franciscans have been raised on stories of grandparents heading to Golden Gate Park in the big shake of 1906, the worst earthquake ever to hit an American city. And the old Clark Gable film "San Francisco" is still seen on enough TV late shows to keep alive the idea that the park is the place to go. That 1906 quake took 452 lives.

"Golden Gate Park will be overwhelmed by people because they've heard that all their lives," Joyce said. The refugees won't be camping out in the park like grandpa did, however. They'll be sent on to emergency facilities for food and housing. Mobile feeding units will be used to supply food to families who remain in their homes.

No agency learned its lesson better from the 1906 'quake than the fire department; the real killer in that disaster was a three-day fire that found firemen almost helpless because of pipes broken by the temblor.

"After 1906, the city installed a high pressure system in the downtown area that is for the exclusive use of the fire department," said Chief Emmet Condon, the city fire marshal. "The system is fed from a reservoir on Twin Peaks, which is expected to hold up."

The firemen could also pump water out of the bay or, as a last line of defense, use the string of 75,000 gallon cisterns located under the city streets. The underground pipes carrying the water now have flexible joints that "give" during an earthquake. "We were tied into the domestic water system in 1906," Condon said. "And 23,000 lines into homes broke."

Thanksgiving Services Set

Thanksgiving will be observed at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, Fourth and Meade Streets, Thursday at 11.

As in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, which have held the traditional Thanksgiving services for more than 70 years, the congregation will give testimonies of gratitude.

Mrs. Lucinda Wright and Dr. James Wright, first and second readers, will conduct the Thanksgiving service. The service will include the reading of the President's Thanksgiving Proclamation.

Members of the community are welcome to attend the service.

Raedeka Will Be Monday Speaker

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you can utilize your time to advantage by studying various points of view and then apply them to your own life. Be alert to the best means by which you can operate in the future. Don't take any risks.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Ideal day to show your appreciation for those who have done favors for you in the past. Plan how to handle difficult tasks ahead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Take part in recreations with those you like and make this a most happy day. Showing more devotion to mate can bring greater rapport.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Spend some time putting home in better order and establishing more harmony there. Show others that you are an optimist.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Attend the services of your choice and talk with those who can assist you in elevating the level of your consciousness.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Think of ways that could produce greater income in the days ahead. Go over your budget and make it stretch. Avoid unnecessary expenses.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take time to improve your state of health so that you will be at your best when you attend social affairs. Meet new personalities.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Good day for attending to private affairs that will make your life run smoother. Plan time for meditation. Later accept invitation.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact some good friends and get the answers to problems you have. Make a social visit and show that you are a good friend.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Getting into civic activities can produce fine results now. Bring your talents to the attention of some bigwig who can help.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Step out of a rut that has gotten you down and meet new personalities. Make plans for getting into new activity in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Let your intuitive forces go to work for you and then you will know how to handle your affairs better. Show more enthusiasm.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Good day to meet quietly with associates and go over your joint projects. Come to a fine understanding with persons you respect.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be one of those delightful young people who is most conscientious and will enjoy working to make a success in life. Give as fine an education as you can afford. A brilliant career could start upon reaching maturity. Music could easily be the forte here. Give spiritual training early in life.

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can improve your health and get support from an influential man, but think in terms of long-range plans vital to your progress since nothing happens quickly now. Be calm.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get an early start and duties are soon behind you. Talk that plan over with a co-worker who is also an expert. Something fine could come of this.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Ideal day to join an associate at some enjoyable place for future benefits. Keep the conversation light. Avoid one with a chip-on-the-shoulder attitude.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Handle home affairs carefully for right results. Get at the cause of tensions there and do something constructive about them. Pay bills.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Shop early and build up your reserve. A good day also for selling if you are in business. You have much ability. Use it.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Study what should be done to improve your possessions and real estate. Follow hunch about money matters. Enjoy your favorite hobby with congenials in p.m.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take treatments to be more dynamic and charming. Attend a worthwhile social affair and plan social life better for the future.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Privately plan more efficient future operations. Some special thought for the one you love brings fine results. Think constructively.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get in touch with friends and gain the cooperation you need to reach some goal easily. Do something kind for a worthy friend. Avoid heavy traffic tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Improve your position by giving more attention to career and public matters. Study debits, credits. Avoid one with weird ideas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go after new interesting outlets and make big headway not possible before. Get data from right sources. Avoid some situation that could get you into real trouble.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle all obligations conscientiously and derive fine benefits therefrom. Do something thoughtful for mate and be more cooperative.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Listen carefully to what associates have to suggest to get ahead faster. Use tact with one who opposes you and avoid stiff resistance. Be gentle with mate in p.m.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be capable of making a success of almost any venture given wholehearted attention, so be sure to give tasks to perform early in life, the right kind of discipline, or indolence could be the life's preoccupation and the great talents wasted. Much ability at precision work, engineering. Sports are a must.

Excavators Uncover Ancient Synagogue

IZMIR, Turkey (AP) — American archeologists in Turkey have excavated the largest ancient synagogue known outside Israel, a conference of 800 archeologists from 21 countries was told here.

The synagogue at Sardis, in western Turkey, has been studied in detail and partly reconstructed, according to a report given at the Tenth International Congress of Classical Archeology by Dr. Asher Ovadia of the Department of Classical Studies at the University of Tel Aviv.

Eight synagogues have been identified from ruins or inscriptions in Asia Minor, Ovadia said, and many more probably wait to be identified. In the past, synagogues have sometimes been wrongly identified as churches because of the basically similar ground-plan, he said.

The main criteria for identifying a synagogue of the first six centuries A.D., from which period most of the examples in Turkey date, are the finding of Greek or Hebrew inscriptions of a distinctively Jewish nature, the discovery of stones bearing representations of the Menorah, or seven branch candelstick, and other Judaic symbols, the orientation of the building towards Jerusalem, and the presence of a small square apse at the east end, designed to hold the Torah scrolls. Benches facing the apse are another indication that the building was a synagogue.

The building in Sardis is remarkable among the synagogues in Asia Minor for its size and its prominent location in the city's central market place. The synagogue dates to the second century A.D., and was restored or rebuilt on at least three occasions, the major restoration coming in about 400 A.D. It continued to be used for Jewish worship until Sardis was destroyed in 616.

Excavation and study of the city, once one of the most prosperous in the ancient world, was started in 1958 and is the work of a joint team from Harvard and Cornell Universities.

Maringouin, the name of a small cajun community in Louisiana, means mosquito in French.

Ethnic Studies Today Abound In Nation's Colleges

By KAREN OLIVER
United Press International
Ethnic studies, one of the fruits of the turbulent 1960s, were considered by some to be a fad that would pass when the campuses calmed. Now student voices are lowered, but ethnic studies seem to be thriving. On campus after campus contacted in a nationwide UPI poll, enrollments are holding generally steady, faculties are being strengthened, and funding at most colleges is being continued although it has been cut in some.

Black studies, the pioneer in the field, is offered even in some Deep South universities. And courses in Chicano, American Indian, Asian-American, even Judaic studies are offered at many colleges.

Dr. Bill Banks, head of the Afro-American studies program at the University of California at Berkeley, which has one of the country's largest ethnic studies departments with an enrollment of 2,000, said his department was "feeling a financial pinch" but still growing.

At the University of Utah, the program was reported growing steadily, with a projected enrollment increase of 100 students and a funding boost from $80,000 last year to $200,000 this year.

"On the whole the Afro-American studies department has done well," said E.W. Ziebarth at the University of Minnesota. Texas Tech University at Lubbock offers an interdisciplinary ethnic studies minor which has been "well accepted," Dean Lawrence L. Graves said.

At the University of Texas at Austin, Dr. James Roach, Dean of the Division of General and Comparative Studies, predicted "survival and perhaps some modest growth" of ethnic studies.

Frank Laraque, acting chairman of the Afro-American Studies Department of New York City College, said his enrollment has doubled over the two semesters of the last school year, additional instructors have been hired and several new courses are being offered.

In spite of this success, there is nevertheless a running controversy centered around the means of offering ethnic studies courses—whether they should be interdisciplinary parts of traditional academic departments or whether they should be under a separate, independent, department. Many ethnic studies administrators questioned in the survey attributed their success to their independent status. This kind of administration support and confidence, they say, is necessary and if it wavers, the programs may ultimately be phased out under the guise of economy or damaged by hiring underqualified "token" faculty.

"I'm still not confident that the ethos of the university is such as to be congenial to the flourishing and expansion of a black studies program," said Donald Blackman, Chairman of Black Studies at the State University of New York at Stony Brook.

Andrew Brimmer, a member of the Federal Reserve Board of Governors and president of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History in Washington, said he did not think the mechanics were the "cutting edge", but rather whether ethnic studies can compete successfully academically and how well they share in other aspects of university education. "During the next five years everybody will be expecting more of ethnic studies than they expected five years ago," said William L. Phillips, associate dean of Arts and Sciences at the University of Washington. "It just isn't enough to talk about black or Chicano heroes any more. The studies have to be done with the same scholarly care and erudition you would expect in any major discipline."

The University of Wisconsin this year withdrew financial support from a black cultural center on the campus. But Dean of Students Paul Ginsberg stressed the university still had a department of Afro-American studies that was "alive and well."

At Harvard University, a 1972 study committee recommended that the Afro-American program be given full-fledged department status.

At Boston University a four-year-old program is currently "very strong," a spokesman said, and there are no indications it will be phased out. Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., was chartered in 1769 to provide education for Indians. More than 200 years later, in 1971, it started a native American studies program which now has an enrollment of 48 Indians representing 20 tribes. Anthropology Professor Michael Dorris, a member of the Modoc tribe of southern Oregon, heads the program.

At Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., which claims to have inaugurated the first African studies curriculum in the United States in 1948, a spokesman said it now has 40 faculty members, about 100 graduate students, and more than 45 courses in such fields as anthropology, art, history and linguistics.

Black studies programs are also found in the south, although usually in predominantly black colleges. There are some at the University of Mississippi although a spokesman said enrollment is rather small.

Dreams Of 'Unseating' Auto Capital Detroit

By CHARLES BUTLER, Jr.
MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI) — A young attorney here dreams of the day Detroit will recognize Vermont's capital as the nation's automobile capital.

John M. Kilmurry left his law practice this fall to devote all his energy to the development of an electric car.

Building cars isn't new to Kilmurry, who has a Masters degree in engineering. While he was in college, Kilmurry developed an electric car and sold the design to General Motors.

The car he's building now, however, won't be sold to any of the major car manufacturers. The original, he said, "never saw the light of day." This time he wants to see the fruits of his labor and is concentrating on manufacturing the electric car.

Kilmurry has invested $60,000 in the project and has commitments from investors for another quarter of a million dollars, and a promise of $6 million to build a factory if the prototype is satisfactory.

He originally planned to have the car on the road by Christmas, not necessarily to sell as a present for "the person who has everything" but as a means of transportation when the fuel crisis hits the country.

The car won't be ready now for some time due to problems with what Kilmurry calls the "large industrial bureaucracy" and trouble getting parts, machines and "just things like that."

Kilmurry envisions himself as the Henry Ford of the electric car era, and hopes someday his name will be in the spotlight along with those of Chevrolet, Ford and Plymouth at the nation's car lots.

Kilmurry expects to complete the prototype of his electric car by January, and if successful, he and the financial backers will build an assembly plant for their new low cost vehicle on a 100 acre site in Barre Town, a few miles from here.

"I think there's going to be a breakthrough in battery technology in the next few years," he said when asked why he'd give up a prospering law practice to build and market a new car.

The fuel shortage predicted for this winter and the future also has had a bearing on his plans. "The oil crunch is coming and gas prices are getting out of hand," he said. "Also people are getting tired of dirt and grime and the expense of running a car."

The Kilmurry, if it's called that, will sell for around $1,800, and will have a maximum speed of 70 miles per hour. The car he designed while in school would only do 48.

The new car will have a travel range of between 100 and 150 miles at speeds of 60 to 70. But, he says it won't be a cross country vehicle, until the major manufacturers get involved and support it.

The electric car runs on battery packs which must be recharged often. The charger he's designed takes four hours to boost a battery to run the car, which he points out could prove a problem.

But a group in California and scientists around the country, he says, are working on other charges which could reduce the time. If there's a breakthrough in that area, Kilmurry says he has no qualms about using someone else's product.

Kilmurry isn't the only one in the country working on an electric car for the future. He says a firm in Bedford, Mass., is marketing one, but that the car's speed and range is well under the minimum he's set for the Kilmurry.

Japan has several companies producing electric cars and the Japanese government has financed the development of the inexpensive car. The British have been using electric automobiles for more than a century, Kilmurry said.

He said the American car manufacturers won't market the electric car because "they have an economy car to satisfy the market and an electric car would only provide competition."

But that hasn't put a roadblock in Kilmurry's plans for the future. He says once there's a market, "the big companies will open their doors to the electric car people."

When they "open the door" Kilmurry plans to be standing in line. He says his car will have no trouble meeting Ralph Nader's on federal safety standards, and will be safer than the average automobile because it's center of gravity will be lower.

For Kilmurry it's only a matter of time, he hopes, until he's recognized as one of the country's new wizards in a new car era.

Whittier Largely Stands By Nixon

By LINDA DEUTSCH
Associated Press Writer
WHITTIER, Calif. (AP) — This is Richard Nixon's hometown and, Watergate notwithstanding, he is still highly popular here.

"There is a great deal of sympathy toward the President here," says Mayor Blake Sanborn, a Republican who joined with four city councilmen to write Nixon "that we stand very much behind him."

Of course, some opposition to Nixon exists in Whittier, but it is neither organized nor vocal. About 2,000 persons staged an impeachment rally earlier in the month in neighboring Yorba Linda, Nixon's birthplace. But Sanborn and other civic leaders say they're confident this could never happen in Whittier.

Identical framed portraits of Nixon are prominently displayed at City Hall, Whittier College, East Whittier Friends Church and at the Chamber of Commerce. Rarely is a disparaging word heard about Nixon in any of these spots.

"We do get people coming here who look at the picture and say, 'So you still claim him?'" says a secretary at the chamber office. But the chamber does make a point of claiming him — maps boast this is "President Nixon's hometown" and direct visitors to landmarks such as the Nixons' first apartment and his first law office.

The city's most cherished project is its effort to become the site of Nixon's presidential library when he leaves office.

"It would give our city something which would appeal to visitors," says Mynatt Smith, editor of the Whittier Daily News. "The fact that Whittier bears the name of a famous poet (John Greenleaf Whittier) doesn't bring three visitors here a year."

Smith adds, "Regardless of what happens about Watergate or any other aspect of Nixon's tenure as president, this town should mark for posterity that this man came from here."

Among Nixon's staunchest defenders in town is 30-year resident Harold Kinnaman, president of the Chamber of Commerce. "It would be foolish for him to quit," Kinnaman says of Nixon. "He hasn't done anything ... I think he'll fight the thing through and he'll come out on top. I haven't talked to anyone in Whittier who is against the President." Chamber manager Jerry Hathaway is less emphatic. "I'm sure there are people here that have some concern about the way things are going, including myself," he says. "But we are just waiting to see what happens."

In the city of 73,400, where 60 per cent of the voters are Republican, Democratic attorney Paul Weil doesn't classify himself as a politician although he is president of the Whittier School District Board of Trustees.

"I tell my kids that just like Nixon I'm a Whittier lawyer who became president," he jokes. Weil is cautiously critical, insisting he's more concerned about preserving the institution of the presidency than finding Nixon guilty or innocent.

"It's not Nixon as an individual that's threatened," he says. "It's our way of doing things; it's the presidency. My reading of the reaction in our community is one of dismay. There has been community pride in the President, particularly among those who knew him when he lived here ... Whittier College is justly proud of him, as any college that produces a president should be."

At the Whittier College campus, drama major Steven Woods, studying under a tree, commented: "Most people around here have sort of turned off on Nixon. They think it's kind of comical to say, 'I go to Whittier. I can become President.' But a larger part of the students don't even care."

The college president, Frederick Binder, agreed. "Every time there's an upheaval on the national scene, there is some reflection on campus. Yet, strangely, in this situation, we've had nothing at all," he said.

"I've had no visitations from students, no letters. No one has made speeches or held demonstrations ... I have not detected a groundswell or upheaval — not even among the politically oriented faculty." He credits a shift of student interest away from politics and toward social work as the reason.

Binder is a Republican. The college's vice president is a former Nixon classmate, and Nixon is still an honorary member of the Board of Trustees. There is an endowed "Nixon professorship" which is held this semester by onetime Nixon appointee Joseph Blatchford, who lectures on "The American Presidency."

Perhaps the closest thing to controversy in Whittier has involved the President's minister. The Rev. Eugene Coffin of the East Whittier Friends Church made news by revealing requests from Quakers around the country that Nixon's church membership be rescinded for un-Quakerlike behavior.

Coffin, who has preached at the White House at Nixon's invitation, refused to consider ousting the President.

"One of the basic Christian concepts," he says, "is that we don't abandon one who is in trouble. We help him. We consider the President as we would any member of this church."

Taking Down The Billboards

SALEM, Ore. (UPI) — Oregon may be among the first states in the nation to rid itself of roadside billboards, part of the cleanup and beautification program that began with Lady Bird Johnson and the Congress a few years ago. The state has let contracts to bring the billboards down at the rate of 25 per week and there were 2,400 billboards to be taken down in the program. Cost of removing the billboards was estimated at $6.5 million, with the federal government covering 75 per cent of those costs.

Otter Mobility Hard To Beat

CHICAGO (UPI) — For mobility, it's hard to beat an otter.

These furry animals, which are widespread throughout the world, prefer to travel by water, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica, but on land can travel faster than a man can run. They can swim under water for a quarter of a mile without surfacing for air.

Flat Pirates Still Roll By ASU, 49-14

ECU's Carl Summerell gains as ball slips loose after the whistle.

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

East Carolina University football coach Sonny Randle says that it is the mark of a good team when you can win by 35 points and still play way under your potential.

That's exactly what East Carolina's Pirates did yesterday when they popped Appalachian State University, 49-14, and snapped a bushel basket full of records along the way.

The victory was the ninth of the year for the Bucs, as they closed out the 1973 regular season, with their eyes still on a possible bid from the Tangerine Bowl. It was the second straight 9-2 season for the Bucs.

Carlester Crumpler, who scored three times in the game, on runs of six, two and five yards, carried the ball 34 times for 184 yards, snapping 1,000 for the second straight year. His total for 1973 is 1,042, remarkable considering how little playing time he actually had. Crumpler's day brought his career Southern Conference record to 2,889, and his carries, also a S.C. record to 659. His touchdown total, 37 and his points, 222, also represent school and S.C. marks.

Carl Summerell passed twice for touchdowns in his finale. He hit Stan Eure on a 40-yard fly pattern, then went to Jimmy Howe for five yards. His four completions brought his career total to 196, an ECU record.

Kenny Strayhorn scored one touchdown, on a three yard run, and the other came with just nine seconds left when Captain Crunch, Danny Keypley, raced 85 yards with an interception, snapping three school marks. His run was the longest in ECU history, and his total return in two interceptions of 92 yards set a new season mark. With an earlier interception during the season, he has returned them a total of 110 yards, a new season record.

Jim Woody kicked the PATs following each score, a total of seven, another school record. And his total of 39 for the year set a new ECU mark and tied the existing Southern Conference record.

Winding up the record parade, Reggie Pinkney with three kickoff returns brought his total for the year to 20 with 467 yards, both new marks.

An idea of how the game went can be seen in the statistics, which saw Appalachian State gather in 358 yards, while the Bucs had only 350. The Bucs got the big plays, however, and allowed ASU to move around freely between the 20s.

Their two scores both came on long plays. Bob Steelman scored on a 66 yard pass from Phil Coccioletti and Charlie Haugbrook raced 25 yards for the other. Greg Clark hit two PATs, extending his NCAA consecutive record to 65.

The Mountaineers, with an upset in their eyes, controlled the first period, as the Pirates appeared to be completely flat after being so skyhigh for the past three weeks.

On their second possession, Appalachian moved the ball from their own 40 to the Pirates' 28 before failing to pick up a first down. Then, the next time they had it, they moved from their 44 to the five yard line, gaining a first down at the seven. But Cap'n Crunch saved the day there, intercepting in the end zone with 22 seconds left in the period to turn the ball over to the Bucs at the seven after the runback.

From there, behind the running of Crumpler, the Bucs caught fire and raced down the field. On the first play, Crump went over left tackle and picked up seven. He carried three more times for nine, seven and 13. Don Schink then got 10 and Crumpler came back to carry the next three times, moving it from the ASU 47 to the 34. Schink got six more, then Crumpler picked up seven. Summerell hit Eure at the six, and Crumpler went around left end on the next play for the score. Woody kicked with 10:11 to go, and it was 7-0.

Three plays after the kickoff, Mike Myrick picked up a fumble to turn it back at the 40. Summerell sent Eure racing for the goal line with the snap, and the senior receiver pulled the ball over his shoulder at the one and stepped into the end zone. Woody again kicked for the 14-0 lead with 8:35 to go.

The Bucs quickly came back with another score. After forcing a punt, they used an eight-yard return to the ASU 37 by Jim Bolding. Crumpler carried twice for 13 yards, then Schink got five. Summerell added three and Crumpler went to the 13, three more yards. Summerell kept to the seven, and Summerell hit for two. From the five, he went over the middle for his second touchdown of the day, with 2:44 left, making it 21-0.

The Bucs tried to move on the opening kickoff of the second half, but sputtered after moving from their 27 to the ASU 40, punting away. From there, Appalachian came up with its first score.

From the 20, ASU lost two then Coccioletti hit Chuck Hartman for 14. He missed the next pass, then found Steelman open and he raced 66 yards with the ball for the first of the two ASU scores. Clark's kick with 9:11 in the quarter made it 21-7.

Bucs May Not Wait

The Orlando Sentinel told the Daily Reflector last night that East Carolina and Tampa are the chief candidates for the 1973 Tangerine Bowl bid.

But the newspaper also said that no team is expected to be selected until next Saturday night.

East Carolina Coach Sonny Randle said that East Carolina would hold its last team meeting on Monday at 7 p.m. and that if no bid had been received by the time, it would be assumed that there would be none coming for the Pirates. "We've proven ourselves," he said last night.

State Claims ACC Title, 21-3

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Bruce Shaw scored one touchdown and set up another with a 40-yard pass as N.C. State defeated Duke 21-3 Saturday to nail down a Liberty Bowl bid and clinch a tie for the Atlantic Coast Conference championship. Two Liberty Bowl scouts were in the crowd of 40,380 that saw State roll 52 yards for a first period touchdown.

A 40-yard pass from Shaw to John Gargano set it up on the Duke twelve. Willie Burden scored from one yard out six plays later.

Duke got on the scoreboard in the third period when David Malechek kicked a 20-yard field goal.

The 20th-ranked Wolfpack, now 7-3 for the season and 5-0 in the ACC, swept 80 yard for a fourth period touchdown in 14 plays, with Shaw scoring from the six.

State added a final touchdown in the closing seconds when Ralph Stringer intercepted Mark Johnson's pass and ran it 34 yards to the Duke ten.

The score came on a three-yard pass from Dave Buckley to Mike Hardy.

Late in the fourth period a free-for-all developed after Brian Krueger tackled Duke's Hal Spears for a fourth down loss.

Spears kicked Krueger and plays spilled out on the field, but order was soon restored. It was the eighth loss for Duke against one victory and a tie with Wake Forest.

State missed a scoring opportunity late in the second period when Bobby Pilz recovered Tony Benjamin's fumble on the Duke 16. Two plays carried to the seven, but Stan Fritts fumbled and Duke's Jeff Christopher recovered on the five.

The Blue Devils could get only three first downs in the first half, when their deepest penetration was to the N.C. State 49.

Willie Burden and Charley Young led State's running game. Burden collected 84 yards and Young 82.

Bill McElroy of Memphis formally extended the Liberty Bowl invitation which State had long been rumored to have. The Wolfpack will play Kansas on Dec. 17.

Smith Shines In 31-0 Victory By Richmond

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP)—Big Barty Smith ran for 128 yards and two touchdowns, completed one pass and caught three Saturday as Richmond's Spiders overpowered William and Mary's Indians 31-0 for second place in the Southern Conference and their best football season since 1943.

The 235-pound senior fullback carried the ball 25 times while scoring on runs of one and five yards, had 40 yards on his three receptions and threw the first two passes of his career, one of which he hit for 34 yards.

Quarterback Harry Knight completed nine of 14 passes for 102 yards and one touchdown as the Spiders finished 5-1 in the conference and 8-2 overall. The 1943 Richmond team was 6-1.

William and Mary, shut out for the first time in 48 games, crossed midfield only twice in suffering its third straight defeat. The Indians finished third in the conference at 3-2 and were 6-5 overall.

Richmond used up 8:24 on the clock the first time it had the ball, moving 76 yards in 18 plays on the running of Smith and the passing of Knight, who threw the last 19 yards to Mike Mahoney for the touchdown.

On the fifth William and Mary play after the kickoff, the Spiders' Mark Shelton picked off a Rip Scherer pass at the Indians' 35 and ran it back to the 13.

The Spiders were set back to the 28 by a penalty, but Smith ran for 17 yards on the next play and scored from a yard out on the first play of the second quarter.

William and Mary's only advance into Richmond territory before intermission ended when Ed Amrhein intercepted a Scherer pass at the Spiders' 22. Richmond twice more crossed midfield, but got nothing but a missed 50-yard field goal try by freshman Johnnie Jones, who later made one from 26 yards.

Leading 14-0, the Spiders took the second half kickoff and used up 6½ minutes in moving 82 yards in 17 plays with Smith scoring from five yards out.

Smith had all his three pass receptions and ran for 37 yards in the drive, which actually amounted to 97 yards because of a 15-yard penalty against the Spiders.

After missing in the first half on the first pass he had thrown, Smith connected with Mahoney on a 34-yard completion late in the third period that led to Jones' field goal. Freshman Ed Kreilis ran two yards for the Spiders' final score with 59 seconds left.

The Indians, boasting one of the conferences top offensive units, were limited to 111 yards in total offense. Their top runner was Frank Prochilo with 35 yards on 10 carries. Scherer completed only four of 15 passes for 33 yards.

Keydets Upset Virginia Tech

By BILL BASKERVILL
Associated Press Writer
BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—Tailback Ronnie Norman, sidelined most of the season with an injury, scored with 9:21 remaining, and Virginia Military's Keydets blunted a last-minute drive by Virginia Tech and upset the Gobblers 22-21 Saturday in the season's football finale for both teams.

It appeared the Gobblers would pull out the game in the final seconds, but quarterback Eddie Joyce, who had thrown two touchdown passes earlier, fumbled on a rollout on the three-yard line and the ball was recovered by VMI's Don Newcomer.

Norman, a junior from Norfolk, Va., who was injured in the first game of the season and had carried the football only 15 times, rushed for 153 yards on 27 carries Saturday, as the Keydets finished the season with a 3-8 mark.

The favored Gobblers wound up the season at 2-9. Virginia Tech's late drive which was aborted by Joyce's fumble, began after Wayne Latimer missed a 37-yard field goal but VMI was offside and Tech was given the ball again with a first down on the 15.

Phil Rogers, who went over the 1,000-yard rushing mark for the season, ran 12 yards to the three on the next play, but Joyce then fumbled as he was hit by a group of VMI players.

VMI's winning touchdown came on a 12-play, 80-yard drive, highlighted by the running of Norman and the passing of Tom Schultze to Ronnie Moore.

In VMI's decisive drive, Schultze completed four of four passes for 49 yards and Norman rushed for 24 yards.

VMI opened up a 10-0 lead on Mike Cole's 45-yard field goal and Schultze's 34-yard touchdown pass to Allen Morgan.

But the Gobblers took a 14-10 lead at intermission on Joyce's 68-yard bomb to Ricky Scales and 33-yard scoring toss to Billy Hardee.

The Gobblers took the second half kickoff and drove 74 yards in five plays with James Barber scoring on a nine-yard run. The tenacious Keydets narrowed the margin to 21-16 with 3:33 remaining in the period when Keith Barefield bolted over from the four, capping a 77-yard drive.

After Tech had the ball for two more possessions and Latimer's 34-yard field goal attempt sailed to the left VMI began its winning drive.

Schultze completed 14 of 18 passes for 207 yards and one touchdown. Joyce connected on 12 of 20 passes for 216 yards and a pair of touchdowns. Barber rushed for 127 yards and Rogers had 98 to give him 1,037 for the season.

'Cats Nip The Citadel

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—David Harper completed 14 passes for 182 yards, including a 24-yarder for the winning touchdown, as Davidson edged The Citadel, 19-16, Saturday in a Southern Conference football game in which the lead changed hands six times.

The Citadel thought it had the winning points in the final minute on Doug Dotson's 27 yard toss to Gene Johnson at the goal line. Johnson tumbled in to the end zone with 45 seconds left.

But Dotson was ahead of the scrimmage line when he threw on fourth down, erasing the play. Davidson held on as time ran out.

Ralph Tice kicked a 27-yard field goal for The Citadel after Davidson fumbled the opening kickoff. Harper passed for 11 and a touchdown to Steve Still, giving Davidson a brief 6-3 first period lead.

Before the quarter was out, Johnson had recaptured the

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

It was a record setting day for the Pirates—and at the same time, it was a sad one.

Sad, after a 49-14 victory? That's right, sad. For those of us who have watched East Carolina football for what seems like time immemorial, an era has come to a close.

Carl Summerell has walked on the grasses of Ficklen Stadium for the last time as a varsity football player. So has Carlester Crumpler.

These two young men have left their impression on this community and East Carolina. They will not soon be forgotten. Summerell is a super quarterback. One coach, whom we will not name, but a member of the Pirate staff, said it may be a long time before there is another like him—if ever.

His sophomore year, he was highly touted. But he didn't have the type year everyone saw for him. Then, last year, he showed that he was going to be a good one. This year, he showed he was a great one.

Carlester Crumpler had to wait out his freshman year without touching a football and it hurt him. His sophomore year he never quite got going. Injuries have plagued him throughout his career.

But behind the able blocking of Les Strayhorn last year, he became the Southern's all-time rusher and scorer, snapping both season records. This year, continually hampered by injuries, he spent a lot of time on the bench behind sophomore Kenny Strayhorn. But gradually he came—and against The Citadel, he hit his stride. And amazingly, he still got over 1,000 yards for the season and 72 points. That made his career marks in both rushing and scoring go into the Southern record books. If he had been healthy, there would have been no question that he would have joined the elite group of men who have rushed for over 3,000 yards. He fell just over 100 yards short of it.

There are others, surely, that could be mentioned here. There were 16 other seniors who played their last game. Larry Bolger, Ned Cheely, Dave Dadisman, Stan Eure, Tom Frazier, Robin Hogue, Fred Horesi, Dan Killebrew, Chip Leavitt, Rick Leonard, Rusty Markland, Winston Mayhew, Ken Moore, Mike Myrick, Gary Niklason, Joe Tkach and Greg Troupe.

Some of them will go on to play again. Others will fade into obscurity.

Years from now, someone will start comparing some ECU team with "that team back in 1973." They'll talk about Captain Cool—Carl Summerell, and The Crump—Carlester Crumpler. And if we're still around here, we'll nod our head in remembrance too. We'll remember them.

That's why a victory can be sad.

Golfing Title Goes To Barber

By BOB GREEN
PINEHURST, N.C. (AP)—Balding veteran Miller Barber turned back the bid of rookie Ben Crenshaw with some careful, conservative golf and won the game's biggest prize—$100,000—with a victory in the World Open Saturday.

The 42-year-old Barber moved past faltering Tom Watson, who had led through the fifth, sixth and seventh rounds, with a two-under-par 69 and clinched the title when the challenging Crenshaw drove into the piney woods on the 16th hole.

Barber finished this two-week, 144-hole tournament with a total of 570, two-over-par on the 7,007-yard, No. 2 course at the Pinehurst Country Club.

It was the first winning score over-par since Gary Player took the 1972 PGA National Championship.

Crenshaw, a 21-year-old blond who won the San Antonio-Texas Open two weeks ago, threatened the leader until he bogeyed the 504-yard, par-five 16th in the cool, breezy weather. He finished with a 71 and was second at 573, only three strokes back.

It was small consolation for the intense young man, but he collected $44,175 from the total purse of $500,000—the biggest ever in professional golf—and now has $76,749 in only five starts as a pro.

Leonard Thompson, an obscure second-year touring pro, came on and took third with a 71—575, but never was in the two-man title chase.

Watson, a red-haired 24-year-old, quickly dropped back as he played his front side in 41. He finished with a 77 for the day and was tied for fourth at 576 with former PGA champion Al Geiberger. Geiberger played the last round in 70.

"It just wasn't much of a day," said Watson, his lips a tight, grim line of bitter frustration. "I just didn't hit my irons worth a damn."

The game's big names never were in contention in this marathon event, and finished well back. Player had a 71—581, Arnold Palmer and Masters champion Tommy Aaron each were 76—586, and Billy Casper had 74—587, 19-over-par.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino and Tom Weiskopf did not play, and their absence prompted tournament officials to reduce the purse to a maximum $325,000 over 72 holes for 1974. U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller withdrew and Australian Bruce Crampton, a four-time winner this year, failed to qualify for the final 72 holes.

RALEIGH—Rose High School used a hard-hitting defense to take advantage of mistakes by Raleigh Enloe Friday night and romped to a 26-0 victory in the first round of the State 4-A Football Playoffs.

The Rampants alertly pounced on five loose balls in the game, and three times turned them into touchdowns. Only once did the Rampants move for a score on something other than a fumble, when they took their first possession of the second half and drove 70 yards for the second touchdown of the night.

The Rampant defense was the difference in the game. Only twice in the game did the Eagles manage to push the ball over the midfield's stripe. And both times it was for only one play.

Five different Rampants took part in the scoring. Doug Paschal got the first score, from two yards away, and Keith Joyner broke loose for 46 yards for the second. Jackie Savage and Henry Trevathan went in from two and one yards respectively. Scott Wolcott kicked two extra points, had one blocked, and a pass for the fourth failed.

By the time it was over, the Rampant offense had picked up 194 yards rushing and 18 passing. Enloe had only 76 rushing and 15 passing as the Rampants completely bottled them up.

Rose got a break on the very first play. They had kicked off to Enloe's Richard Mills, who fumbled the ball when he was hit and Pat Hagan fell on it at the Enloe 25.

Three plays, however, netted not one yard, so Wolcott came in to try a 43-yard field goal. The kick was true, but lacked height. It hit the crossbar, bounced up, hit it again coming back down and fell back onto the field.

Neither team got anything going until late in the first period when Mike Brewington recovered another Enloe fumble, this time at the Eagle 32.

The Eagles drew a five-yard penalty on the first play and Joyner took a pitchout around the left side for the first down at the 22 on the next play. Two short plays netted five yards and Lindberg Morris got six with another pitchout, down to the 11. Paschal hit to the eight on first down, but Trevathan keeper got nothing. Paschal went over right tackle for six, down to the two, and on fourth down, he went through the same hole into the end zone. Wolcott kicked the PAT for a 7-0 lead with 23 seconds left in the first period.

Harold Randolph put Rose in good field position in the opening seconds of the second period when Eddie Murphy bobbled the snap on a punt and was jarred loose from the ball, with Randolph recovering at the 19. Rose got down to the 12, but was then thrown for a nine-yard loss on third down, and another field goal attempt fell short from the 38.

Enloe crossed midfield finally on the last play of the half, as Donald Upchurch broke away at the Eagle 45 andaced 21 yards to the Rose 34 before being stopped as the clock sounded ending the half.

The Rampants took their first possession of the second half and put up their second score. After the kickoff, they drove from the 30. Savage carried the first three times, gaining three, seven and three yards. Morris went around the left side for 11 to the Enloe 46, and on the next play, Joyner took the pitchout around the right side and danced down the sidelines all the way to the end zone. Wolcott again kicked for a 14-0 lead with 10:51 left in the period.

Rose got the ball back on the Enloe 49 on the next series, but couldn't gain and kicked it away. Enloe gave it back seven plays later. The punt had put the Eagles in a hole at the five, but they gambled on fourth and one and made it at the 16. On third down, a pitchout was fumbled and Randolph again pulled it in, this time at the eight.

Trevathan kept down to the four, then Morris hit around the left side for two. Savage then went over right tackle for the final two, and with 3:23 left in the frame, Rose held a 20-0 lead. Wolcott's try to the PAT was blocked.

Enloe got the ball over the center of the field for the second time early in the final period. They took over at their own 47 after a punt. After a pass failed, quarterback Wes Summer kept for six to the Rose 47. But on the next play, Summer fumbled and Ronnie Raspberry hauled it in at the 50.

Rose converted that into the final score of the night. Savage and Trevathan each picked up eight yards on two carries. Then from the 32, Trevathan hit Morris for 18 yards and a first down at the 14. Enloe was off-sides on the first play, putting it on the nine. Morris got six up the middle to the three, and Rose hit three times for two yards before Trevathan kept and cut in over left tackle for the score. A pass attempt by Jack Jenkins on the fake kick failed, and Rose held a 26-0 lead with 5:18 showing.

Rose got one more chance, from their own 47 when a personal foul moved the ball down to the Eagle 35, but they failed to pick up a first down.

Rose now moves into the second round of the playoffs, and will play host to Wilmington Hoggard, a 9-6 victor over New Bern. That game will played either Thursday or Friday in Ficklen Stadium.

Maryland Rips Clemson Eleven

By ED ROWLAND
Associated Press Writer
CLEMSON, S.C. (AP)—Louis Carter scored three touchdowns, the first on a 50-yard run, as Maryland beat Clemson, 28-13, in an Atlantic Coast Conference football game Saturday to remain in contention for a bowl bid.

The victory gave Maryland a 7-3 record and undisputed possession of second place in the ACC with a 5-1 mark. A game with Tulane at College Park next week winds up the Terp's season, their best since 1962.

Scouts from the Peach and Fiesta bowls watched the game. Maryland Athletic Director Jim Kehoe said, "we'd be receptive" to a bid, adding he expected any invitation to be extended later Saturday.

Carter burst around left end on the game's fourth play, and went over from the one in the next two periods.

Terp quarterback Ben Kinard called on Carter, Rick Jennings and himself to move the ball through Clemson's porous line through most of the game. He passed only occasionally.

Clemson quarterback Ken Pengitore was intercepted for the first time in six games and 121 attempts, one of the stolen throws setting up a Terp touchdown. But Pengitore threw 19 yards to wide receiver Gordy Bengel for a score in the opening quarter and dove over the goal line from a yard out for another late in the game.

Apps May Be Improved, But Might Not Climb

By WOODY PEELE

(One of a series)

For the past two years, Appalachian State University has gone into the Southern Conference basketball tournament in the number eight position, and although they have surprised a lot of people they haven't won a tourney game yet.

This year, as Press Maravich enters his second year at the helm at ASU, there is some cause to think that perhaps the Apps may be on their way up, but not much.

The Appalachian State team is also hampered by having no big man except for 6-8 sophomore John Vukosovich, and he doesn't expect to play that much. "We're definitely going to be looking for a big man next year when we go out. If we can find a good one, the future will be bright for us," the coach said.

There are six freshmen on the team and Maravich expects to play them all. "They're not going to start, of course, but every one is going to see a lot of action." One of the freshmen, however, appears out for the year, however, Chet Marshall, 6-5, who hurt his back.

Maravich wants to see the conference as a whole get better. "We have to work to build this conference. The conference sports information director must work directly with the commissioner to publicize the conference. The conference also must become fixed. There have been right many changes with comings and going in the last few years. Better balance and continued improvement will come along in four or five years. And I don't believe that anyone can build a team in less than 3-5 years."

Virginia Loses

MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (AP)—Sophomore tailback Dwayne Woods rushed for 178 yards and three touchdowns Saturday as West Virginia vented its frustration on outmanned Virginia and posted a 42-17 college football victory.

Woods, who carried 29 times and raised his season rushing total to 752 yards, put the Mountaineers, 5-5, in front for good with a one-yard dive three minutes into the third period. His other touchdowns came on runs of two and eight yards in the first half.

Furman Beaten

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Walter Peacock rushed for 166 yards in 16 carries and scored three touchdowns as Louisville defeated Furman 35-14 in college football Saturday.

The 5-foot-7 Peacock, who leads the Missouri Valley Conference in scoring with 66 points, raised his rushing total to 1,126 yards for the season. The game was the sixth this year in which the sophomore topped 100 yards rushing.

lead for The Citadel on a six-yard scoring run, but Davidson again forged ahead on Dave Ingold's 25-yard touchdown jaunt.

Gene Dotson race for 33 yards and a third period touchdown to put The Citadel out in front. Then came Harper's game-winning toss to Mike Harding.

The result left the teams tied for the conference cellar at 1-6 in loop games. The Citadel ended its season with a 3-8 overall record, while Davidson closed out play for the year at 2-8.

Andrew Johnson set a school record for The Citadel by gaining 240 yards on 34 rushes.

Tice, who made one placement conversion and missed one, also missed a second field goal attempt from 32 yards out in the fourth period.

East Carolina immediately struck back. Crumpler took a draw for 21 yards to the Buc 49, and Howe picked up 11 to the ASU 40. Crump went twice for six, then Summerell hit Mike Shea at the 22. A penalty moved it to the nine, and Crumpler added four to the five. He went over the left side from there for his third score with 4:39 left, making 28-7.

In two plays after the kickoff, Coccioletti got ASU back into Buc territory, but Myrick picked off a pass turning it back.

The Bucs punted away, however, and from the 25, Appalachian went on another drive. This one went to the Buc 31 before Butch Strawderman tossed Coccioletti for a 13-yard loss and forced a punt.

On the first play after the kick, Howe fumbled it to ASU, and the Mountaineers took over on the 25. Haugabrook took it on the draw, broke loose and went all the way for the score with 14:06 left, making it 28-14.

Reggie Pinkney came up with an interception to set up the next Buc score. He returned it 29 yards to the ASU 28, and a penalty put it at the 23. Crumpler hit twice to the 11, and a pass interference penalty gave the Bucs the ball on the seven.

Summerell sent Howe wide open into the end zone for the scoring pass and that made it 35-14 with 8:23 left.

The Bucs got it back on Joe Tkach's fumble recovery at the 35. Howe picked up 16 and Strayhorn carried twice for 15 before the Bucs were hit with a delay penalty. Strayhorn carried to the three, then went over with 4:05 left for the score. That upped it to 42-14.

Finally, as Appalachian threatened again, Kepley stepping into the ball on his own 15, got a couple of key blocks and raced down the sidelines 85 yards for the final score, just making it to the end zone with nine seconds left to the final 49-14 score.

Now the waiting begins for the Bucs, who badly want that bowl bid. They are hoping that it will come—and come quickly. They've waited since last year.

Ahoskie Turns Fumbles Into Victory

By CHIP LAMBETH
 Reflector Sports Writer
LITTLEFIELD—Ayden-Grifton's Chargers got a rude welcome to post season conference playoff action Friday night by the Ahoskie Cougars as they were thumped 28-14 for only their second loss of the year.

The Chargers, co-champs of the Eastern Carolina Conference got the top playoff spot having beaten Southern Wayne, who shared the crown at season's end. The Saints were beaten 21-20 by Havelock Friday night with Havelock taking on Ahoskie next week.

Both teams came into the game posting equal 9-1 records. A-G came out on the short end of things to close out their season while Ahoskie is still alive.

Two early fumbles cost the Chargers the game. The first, on a misplayed fair catch and the second on a kickoff reception, led to scores by the Cougars that helped them win the game.

Calvin Sessoms was the star of the game for Ahoskie as he ran for 84 yards and three touchdowns. The one that gave his team the opening lead came after Ronnie Salmon dropped a fair catch on the A-G 27 and three plays later the Cougars had a score.

An 11 yard pass put up the next six points but the Chargers came back to break the ice as William West scored on a nine yard run for the only A-G score of the half. Ahoskie countered with another TD by Sessoms set up by a second fumble and after that it was all over.

A-G scored again in the second half but could not put it together for any more points.

The Cougars got their hands on the ball first but could not go more than eight yards in three plays. Mike Umphlett punted to Salmon who signaled for the fair catch but the ball squirted out of his arms into those of a Cougar defender giving them new life at the Charger 27.

Russell Harrell got a short one and Curt Flood blew through a gaping hole in the middle of the Chargers line on a draw play and scampers 20 yards moving the ball to the A-G eight. On the next play, Sessoms broke several tackles on his way into the end zone to put the Cougars up with 9:34 left in the first period. Greg Boone's kick made it 7-0.

West took the ensuing kickoff but bobbed the ball giving the Cougars time to move downfield and get to West before he could get control of the ball. Thomas Moore recovered for Ahoskie.

Thurman Wynn lost a yard but Harrell got two back only to see Milton Brown pick off a third down pass at the A-G four.

The Chargers punted the ball right back four downs later giving it up on the 33. Flood moved inside the 25 to the 24 and another run of nine yards put the ball on the 15.

Umphlett threw to Thurman Wynn on a post pattern for a TD with 6:48 left in the quarter. The extra point kick made it 14-0.

The first play after the Chargers got the ball back turned into a seven yard loss. Wood scrouged for three and on third and 14 Greg Nelson passed to Brown who made a diving catch at the Cougar 49 good for 37 yards and a first down. Tom Craft boomed up the middle for two and Wood got one, then 16 more down to the 30.

Nelson sneaked for one and decided to keep the ball himself on a second down rollout got 20 yards around the left side to the Cougar nine. Tony Koonce got nothing up the middle but Wood rammed the ball across the goal line on the next play to put the Chargers within eight as time ran out. The kick for the PAT was blocked.

The defenses stiffened in the second period and they traded punts without anything important happening until just under seven minutes left in the half. Koonce fumbled on a pitchout around his right end and Thurman Wynn recovered on the A-G 29. Umphlett carried for five and Sessoms set up his own score with a dash of 23 yards down to the one. He dove in on the next down for the TD with 5:46 left in the half. Boone added the kick.

Ahoskie forced another Charger punt after the kickoff and took over again on their 48. A 14 yard run by Sessoms moved the ball across the A-G 40 and two plays later he picked up 15 more going down to the 19. Harrell drove to the 14. Sessoms took a handoff on a left end sweep but cut back and followed his left tackle into the end zone for the score.

Sessoms' third TD wrapped it up for the Cougars. Although the Chargers did score on their second possession of the second half they never got another point. After swapping punts, A-G took over on the Charger 40. Koonce carried a pitchout nine yards and Nelson bootlegged for 12 more. Nelson passed to Salmon for 29 yards moving to the 10 and after Craft bulled to the one, Nelson went in for the score. With 6:20 left in the third period Nelson passed to Brown for the conversion.

A short punt gave the Chargers good position at the Cougar 31 and a 15 yard penalty helped them move to the 13. Koonce and Nelson carried to the 10. A third down pass fell short and Nelson's fourth down attempt got only five of the needed six yards and the ball went over to Ahoskie.

The next time A-G got the ball, it was on the 45. Koonce started off what looked to be like a scoring march with a gain on 12 over right tackle but a five yard penalty and three yards rushing on the following two plays pressured Nelson into throwing an interception to Vernon Williams who took it at the 24 and returned it to the 36.

Time became a factor for the Chargers then and it began to slowly ebb away. They finally stopped the Cougars on the A-G 34 but the deepest Chargers were able to get was to the Cougar 42 where Thomas Moore intercepted a Nelson pass which all but ended the game. On the last play, Umphlett threw to Flood for 40 yards down to the A-G 23 ending the game outright and ending the year for the Chargers.

The Chargers will now have to turn their thoughts to the basketball season ahead which starts this Tuesday with the Chargers meeting Southern Nash whose football team handed the Chargers their only regular season loss.

Bucs To Face Tourney Champs

WASHINGTON, D.C.—Defending champion American University will face East Carolina in the opening game of the 4th Annual Presidential Classic basketball tournament, Jan. 4, at the Fort Myer Gym in Arlington, Va., while host George Washington meets Lehigh in the second game, according to GW Director of Athletics Bob Paris. Game times are 7 and 9 p.m. with the consolation and championship games scheduled for the following night.

Paris also announced that he has received the parings from the Marshall Memorial Invitational and the Queen City Invitational, two additional tournaments GW will compete in this year. The Colonials will open the Marshall tournament Dec. 21 against Texas A&M with Marshall facing Northwestern in the nightcap. GW has been paired against host Canisius in the second game of the Queen City while Richmond and the University of North Carolina at Charlotte will tangle in the opener on Dec. 28.

American captured last year's Presidential Classic by defeating GW in the Championship game, 103-86, and returns four starters this season. The Eagles must find a replacement at center for departed All-American Kermit Washington but feels they will have another outstanding year led by forward Wilbur Thomas.

GW also returns four starters from its fine 17-9 team of a year ago and has set a post-game tournament as its No. 1 goal for 1973-74. The Colonials will be led again by All-American candidates Pat Tallent and Clyde Burwell.

East Carolina lost six lettermen including its top two scorers Earl Quash and Dave Franklin but is expecting big things from 6-8 senior Nicky White and 6-6 junior college transfer Robert Getz. Lehigh under former GW assistant coach Tom Pugliese, had a good recruiting year and lists nine freshmen on its roster. Pugliese says he is building for the future and may start two or three fresh.

Tickets for the Classic, at $4.00 each, and all GW home games are now on sale at the GW Athletic Ticket Office, 2035 H. St. N.W.

Bears Fall To Lucama Five

BEAR GRASS—The Bear Grass girls' basketball team won their first start in three games Friday night, downing Lucama, 32-24. The boys' weren't quite as lucky as Lucama pulled out a 58-55 win.

The loss was the third straight for the Bears.

In the opener, Bear Grass eased out into a 12-8 lead in the first period of play. The girls went out to outscore Lucama, 11-5 in the second period and boost the lead to 23-13 at the half.

The Lady Bears lost the basket in the third period, however, scoring only one point as the Lucama lassies came on with eight to trim the lead to only 24-21. But in the final period, Bear Grass outhit Lucama, 8-3, to pull away and hold for the win.

Colar Rogerson led the Bear Grass scoring with 11 points, while Vicki Beach added 10. K. Smith had 10 for Lucama.

In the boys' contest, Lucama moved into the lead in the first quarter, taking a 10-7 advantage at the horn. Bear Grass came back in the second frame, however, pushing through 18 while holding Lucama to 11. That left the Bears ahead, 25-21 at intermission.

It stayed close the rest of the way. Lucama held an 18-16 scoring advantage in the third quarter, but the Bears held to the lead, 41-39. In the final frame, however, Lucama's 19-14 advantage, overcame the lead and let them take the win.

J. Keller led the Lucama scoring with 23 points, while S. Wilson had 13. For the Bears, Vernell Rogers and Clifton Barfield each had 12, Mark Gardner had 11 and James Biggs had 10.

The two meet again Monday at Lucama.

Tripp Is All-Star

MURFREESBORO—Robert Tripp, Chowan College sophomore defensive back from Farmville, has been named to play for the South team in the first annual Coastal Conference all-star game Saturday, Nov. 24 at 8 p.m. in Keyser, W. Va.

Tripp was one of eight Chowan players selected for the South all-star team, comprised of players from Ferrum, Lees-McRae and Chowan. The north squad will be formed of players from Wesley, Potomac State, Baltimore and Nassau.

The players, all sophomores who have completed their eligibility with their respective teams, will be guests at a conference-sponsored banquet Nov. 23 featuring an address by Sam Humm, known as "Mr. Football of West Virginia" and a former all-pro player.

Tripp, an all-conference choice last year as a freshman, made five interceptions during the season as Chowan split 10 games.

Robersonville Wins On Yards After Tie

WILLIAMSTON—Robersonville won its first game of the 1973 state 2-A playoffs Friday night by slipping past Fuquay-Varina, 25-22.

That's right. At the end of the game both teams had accumulated the same number of points, 28, and the winner was decided by total rushing yardage, Robersonville coming out on top.

Fuquay-Varina had held a 28-15 lead going into the last period but the Golden Eagles rallied to push over two TD's and tie the game. The kick on the extra point that would have given the Eagles the game was blocked.

The real star of the game was Drew Fish who ran for four touchdowns and 145 yards in 24 carries in F-V's losing effort.

Quarterback Matt Wilson led the rushing for the Eagles with 117 in 13 trips while Frankie Spruill had 101 carrying the same number of times. Three Robersonville players caught a pair of passes each. Ricky Purvis got 58 yards and a TD. Jeff Warren's pair were good for 25 and Mike Matthews ran 50 yards with his two.

It took Robersonville two plays to get on the scoreboard. They took the opening kickoff and on second down, Wilson broke loose for 64 yards and six points. Robin Fowler's kick made it 7-0. Fuquay-Varina came back to as Fish blasted for three scores. In the first quarter

F-V took over after forcing a fumble on the Eagle 13. They drove to the five and Fish went in from there. Ricky Hancock ran in the conversion for an 8-7 lead.

A second quarter fumble gave the ball back to F-V on the Eagle 11. David Spivey threw to Fish for the score from the five. The extra point failed. Another fumble set up the third F-V TD. This one they recovered on their own 16. Two plays moved them to the 49. A three yard run moved them across midfield and then Fish blew through the line to race 48 yards for the score to make it 22-7.

The Eagles closed the gap a few minutes later after regaining possession on their 45. A 36 yard pass from Wilson to Matthews to set up Wilson's eight yard scoring run.

Fish scored again in the third quarter on a two yard dive but one yard run by Fowler and a 24 yard pass from Wilson to Purvis tied the game.

Because of the 33 yards more rushing that Robersonville had, they were declared the winners.

Owens Leads Cougar Victory

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Tom Owens killed two birds with one basketball Friday night.

While leading Carolina to a 118-100 American Basketball Association victory over the New York Nets, he not only improved the Cougars' record, but his TV image as well.

"I just wanted to get a good start in the third quarter for the TV in New York," said Owens after getting all of his 21 points and 11 rebounds in the third stanza.

"My folks and friends were watching and I was scoreless in the first half. I was determined to do something."

Owens' spark shot the Cougars into an unsurmountable 87-70 lead.

The Cougars cruised to their 15th victory in 20 games this year despite the 29-point performance of Net star Julius Erving.

Cowens Needed No Incentive

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Dave Cowens doesn't need any incentive to play against Milwaukee.

"He ignites himself when he sees them," says Boston Celtic Coach Tom Heinsohn. "He knows he has to have a good game for us to win."

Cowens was better than just good Friday night, scoring 26 points and grabbing 20 rebounds as the Celts stopped Milwaukee's 13-game winning streak with a 105-90 victory.

"Cowens just does the things he has to do," said Heinsohn after watching his 6-foot-9 center take the play away from the 7-foot-2 Jabbar in the final period.

Popping in baskets over his taller opponent, Cowens scored 14 of his points in the final stanza as the Celtics not only stopped the Bucks' long streak but continued one of their own. The victory was No. 8 in their row for Boston.

In the other NBA games, the Detroit Pistons walloped the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 125-98; the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Cleveland Cavaliers 117-93 and the Los Angeles Rams trimmed the Chicago Bulls 118-102.

Pistons 125, Kings 98
 Willie Norwood led the balanced Detroit attack with 15 points as the Pistons beat Kansas City-Omaha 125-98. The Pistons ran off 17 straight points in less than six minutes during one stretch.

"The game was settled in the first five minutes when we established control," said Detroit Coach Ray Scott. "I had a feeling before the game we were going to show we were ready."

SuperSonics 117, Cavaliers 93
 Seattle used a tough defense and the 32-point scoring of Spencer Haywood to beat Cleveland 117-93. The SuperSonics reeled off nine straight points midway in the first period to break a 10-10 tie and never trailed thereafter.

Lakers 118, Bulls 102
 Gail Goodrich scored 38 points to lead Los Angeles past Chicago 118-102. Playing without Jerry West and Bill Bridges, both out with injuries, the Lakers shot 59 per cent from the floor in the first half.

In the American Basketball Association, it was Carolina 118, New York 100; Memphis 108, Utah 85 and Denver 130, San Diego 126 in overtime.

Improving Your Reel For Blues

By JOEL ARRINGTON
The ballon I was using for a float danced on the surface and occasionally was pulled under by the frisky blue fish which was my bait near the bell bouy marking the Cape Lookout jetty.

Tom Earnhardt of Raleigh and I were in persistent pursuit of king mackerel. November 12 probably is past the prime float-fishing time for inshore kings, but we had to be shown.

Lined up along the jetty were about 20 small boats. Their occupants were fishing for snapper blues among the rocks and catching them rapidly along with pig-fish and occasional puppy drum. The wind, which had blown heartily for two days had fallen out completely and the ocean's surface was glassy. Beyond Earnhardt's float, a baitfish flipped into the air and its pursuer's back and dorsal fin emerged. It was no king mackerel, not one of the false albacore (spotted bonito) we had chased in vain that day, but when my ballon was suddenly dragged through the water so fast it popped, I felt there was a chance I would learn the fish's identity.

The reel was a model 6000 Ambassador. It holds only 190 yards of 15-pound test monofilament, and is considered a heavy freshwater reel suitable for light saltwater use. It remained to be seen whether it would hold the strong, long-running marine predator with my bait in its mouth.

Among revolving-spool, level-wind reels, the Garcia Ambassador series is one of the best. The model 5000 is standard for tournament largemouth bass fishing. The 6000 is similar, but has greater line capacity and therefore can be used for larger fish. Most veteran fishermen acknowledge the Ambassador's suitability for freshwater, but have reservations about the drag system when pitted against powerful marine fish.

However, the factory drag can be improved. Further, it can be so improved that there is no fish under 100 pounds that cannot be confidentially handled on 15-pound test line, even by inexperienced fishermen.

My reel was improved by Gordon Young, an expert fisherman at 1511 S. W. 112 Avenue in Miami, Florida 33165. He machined out the shoulder and made a teflon washer to fit inside the main gear, then cadmium plated. The top pressure disc was replaced with a new one made of silver-plated brass. Also, the factory spool was replaced with a solid aluminum one. The new drag cost $12.00 and the spool $15.00. Young must have your reel to do the work.

These modifications result in a reel whose spool will not warp under pressure of tight monofilament and whose drag is superior to those in many large trolling reels. It permitted me to boat in less than four minutes the 15-pound bluefish which had taken my bait at Cape Lookout.

Earnhardt and I had three hookups on three baits, landed those three blues, and put over our last bait, but lost it on the strike. The fish cut 40-pound test Sevenstrand cable.

As one of the blues came reluctantly to gaff, it was followed by a free-swimmer. Handy was a one-handed spinning rod with a medium reel spooled with 10-pound test. On a 30-pound test leader was a Mirro Lure plug. The bluefish pounced on it, shook it's head once in the clear water, and cut the leader like it was sewing thread.

Bluefish were not thick around the Cape that day. Our experience proves blues can be caught on live baits even when they are scattered. It also demonstrates why schools of bluefish are always the same size. Big ones eat the little ones.

GET THAT BALL — Rose High School's Jeff Hagan and another unidentified Rampant scramble after a loose ball behind Raleigh Enloe's Richard Mills following the opening kickoff. Rose recovered the ball, but didn't score on the 25. They went on, however, to record a 26-0 victory in the State Playoff's first round. (Reflector Photo)

Wildlife Afield: It Won't Help The Crisis

By JIM DEAN

The crisis in energy is rapidly being translated into terms everyone can understand. It promises—among other things—colder homes, slower speed limits, less travel for pleasure, year 'round daylight savings time and the possibility of relaxed pollution controls.

These changes are forcing a re-assessment of values, and that is necessary if people (and not just Americans) are going to successfully cope with an increasing shortage of energy. But is this enough?

James Wallace, a member of the State Board of Water and Air Resources, teaches environmental subjects at N. C. State University. He is also a charter member, past president and a moving force in the growing energy crisis (such as 50 miles per hour speed limits) are, to say the least, interesting. Wallace called the proposals "...like putting an ice pack on a cancer."

He is, unfortunately, absolutely right. The measures that have been proposed may, in many cases, be completely necessary. But they are strictly short-term efforts. They will help us deal with the energy crisis in the coming months, but that is all.

It is disheartening to see that so far, this country still has not come to grips with the real significance of the current energy crisis.

What we are witnessing is not a problem that can be dealt with merely by lowering the thermostat a few degrees or driving 10 miles per hour slower.

The energy crisis is here to stay, and although there may be periods of time in the near future when the problem may appear to ease, this will be a cruel illusion.

Here's why. As the TV ads pointedly say, this country runs on oil. Also gas and coal. Without these critical resources, we are in trouble. That, by now, should be apparent to everyone.

It is also true, that these resources are running out. We may conserve them and use what is left more wisely, but they are still running out. It is like being stranded in the desert with a canteen half full of water. You can drink it more slowly, but you can't refill it. It will be empty soon enough.

The oil, gas and coal companies feel the solution to the energy crisis is to step up exploration, and relax air pollution standards so that more coal can be used to generate electricity. That is not going to add more water to the canteen, but merely use what is left more quickly.

The obvious answer—and one we are still waiting for—is the beginning of a crash program to find new sources of energy to replace those we are losing. (This, of course, is not in the best interests of the oil, gas and coal companies, but their long-term fate appears sealed anyway).

What kind of crash programs should we undertake? For one thing, more money and research should be poured into finding an efficient way to harness resources that are less restrictive. We need also to diversify our energy sources so that we are not totally dependent upon one or two shrinking resources.

For example, we need to find an efficient way to harness solar energy. We need to concentrate more efforts in learning whether we can tap the heat energy in the core of the earth. We need to take another look at the power of the wind. Efforts to make nuclear energy safe must be stepped up, particularly nuclear plants that "breed" their own operating power. We should also determine whether or not we need to control population; and if so, to what degree, and how.

The ultimate question is one of growth itself. How much energy should be consumed? Even if we conquer our problems in the short run, can we afford—ever again—to consider any form of energy as limitless?

These are programs and questions that should be getting major attention and practical application. Unfortunately, most of them aren't.

What Wallace is saying is that it is not enough merely to treat the symptoms of this cancer. We must find the cures.

Engine Genius Turns Toward Family Market

By JACK WOLISTON
NEW YORK (UPI) — When Carl Kiekhaefer sold his Mercury Marine to Brunswick Corp., and departed the premises, he concentrated his engineering genius on production of powerful inboard engines for the offshore racing fraternity.

Using a pair of Kiekhaefer's 468 cubic inch, 600-horsepower fuel-injected Aeromarine, Dr. Bob Magoor, the Miami Beach eye surgeon, racked up four wins, two seconds, one third, a fourth and a fifth to win the 1973 American Power Boat Association inboard offshore championship.

Now Kiekhaefer has turned his talents to production of what he calls a new design concept in two-cycle marine engines aimed at the family market—buyers who are looking for quiet, dependable, sure starting, low maintenance engines for inboard auxiliary power, light sport boats, small hydrojets and airboats.

There are three models in the line introduced by Kiekhaefer Aeromarine Motors, Inc., of Fond du Lac, Wis.—20, 30 and 40-horsepower engines.

The new engines, according to the company, will have liquid cooling and will incorporate many engineering innovations which will "set new standards of quietness, smoothness, compactness and simplicity, surpassing the rotary engine and outmoding all previous concepts of engine design."

A company spokesman says the engine is based on an inverted-V (I-V) design concept which, among other advantages, prevents wet fuel from accumulating in the crankcase. "The fuel continually flows down the cylinder liners, lubricating the piston rings, and ultimately reaches the lowest point in the engine—the combustion chambers," the spokesman says.

Fishing Tourney

The State of North Carolina will initiate its first Official Saltwater Fishing Tournament on January 1, 1964.

Citations suitable for framing will be awarded anglers who catch eligible species over listed minimum weights. Official Weigh Stations will be established at marinas, piers and tackle shops along the coast. Applications for citations will be submitted only through Official Weigh Stations.

At the end of the year, special awards will be presented to citation winners who have caught the largest fish of each eligible species.

Regulation brochures are being prepared. In the brochure will be listed Official Weigh Stations, rules and regulations, eligible species and minimum weights.

"Weights will be set so that the average angler will have a reasonable chance to win a citation," said Tournament Director Joel Arrington, "but they will be high enough that catching a citation fish will be a genuine angling accomplishment."

Invitations to become Official Weigh Stations have been mailed to about 150 piers, marinas and tackle shops, but Arrington said any coastal business catering to fishermen, provided it has proper scales, is invited to apply for Weigh Station status.

man points out. "Here the 40,000-volt Kiekhaefer 'K-tron' ignition system assures ignition and complete combustion of the fuel during each revolution of the crankshaft."

In contract, he says, in conventional two-cycle engines, wet fuel accumulations in the crankcase and induction systems cause erratic carburetion and misfiring, particularly during idle and low operating speeds.

The liquid cooling system, according to the company, eliminates cooling fan screech and whistle, a major source of noise found in air-cooled engines.

It does this by dissipating heat in the same fashion as in automobile engines, except that a specially designed heat exchanger is used instead of radiator, so no cooling fan is required. The cooling liquid is simply circulated through the heat exchanger by a beltless pump having its impeller mounted directly at the end of the crankshaft.

Sea water never passes through the engine because a closed-circuit "fresh water" cooling system is incorporated.

The company says that elimination of a cooling fan, which requires several horsepower to drive at high speed, means more horsepower delivered to the propeller.

Hotline To Hit Hunt Violators

RALEIGH—Deer hunters in North Carolina will see some differences when the season opens on November 19.

It's all part of a campaign to improve protection of wildlife resources—particularly in and around Game Lands—and also give sportsmen an increased opportunity to cooperate in the apprehension of game law violators during the deer season.

Several thousand signs are currently being posted in major deer hunting areas from Butler and Uwharrie through the mountains. These signs will furnish the "hotline" telephone number of the nearest Commission base radio station. Sportsmen who observe or suspect a violation are urged to call these numbers, and their report will be relayed to mobile teams of Wildlife Protectors patrolling the area.

The key numbers are in Wayneville (704-456-9292) Morganton (704-437-5131), Jonesville (919-835-6426), China Grove (704-857-1646) and Haw River (919-578-1646).

Also, Wildlife Commission personnel will be stationed at 21 strategic points in major deer hunting areas during the deer season. These men will be in trucks equipped with radios. Their primary purpose is to provide sportsmen a contact for reporting violations which will then be relayed to patrolling teams of Wildlife Protectors. Each of these reporting stations will also serve as a Wildlife Cooperator Agent where big game kills can be reported and tagged.

Barker's Creek Entrance Road; Big Santee/Elah Gap; Fires Creek Entrance; Standing Indian at Wallace Gap; Coweeta Entrance; Wayah Gap; Old Wayah Check Point; North Mills Entrance; Davidson River Road at Looking Glass Falls; Bent Creek Entrance; Green River near Big Hungry Creek;

Dolphins Seek Title Clincher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Miami Dolphins will be out to clinch their third straight American Football Conference East title when they meet the Bills at Buffalo Sunday. Bills' running back O.J. Simpson will be out to see they don't.

Simpson's 20 carries for 99 yards last week against Cincinnati gave him 1,204 for the season, just shy of the 1,251 he collected last year.

In other National Football League pairings Sunday, Denver meets Pittsburgh, San Francisco is at Los Angeles, Cleveland faces the Raiders in Oakland, Philadelphia faces Dallas, Baltimore meets Washington, the New York Jets are at Cincinnati, Houston plays at Kansas City, Detroit meets Chicago, New Orleans travels to San Diego, Green Bay's at New England, St. Louis meets the New York Giants, and Minnesota plays in Atlanta.

The Pittsburgh Steelers are protecting a 13-game winning streak at home in their AFC contest with the Denver Broncos.

The Los Angeles Rams are trying to protect a one-game lead over Atlanta's Falcons and have won their last six meetings with San Francisco.

Oakland will face a Cleveland Browns team that they've beaten twice already this year.

The Dallas Cowboys have regained a share of the National Football Conference's East lead since being beaten three weeks ago and won't want to give it up against Philadelphia.

Dallas shares that lead with the Washington Redskins, who must break a 14-year jinx to stay there. The Redskins have not beaten the Baltimore Colts in their last nine meetings.

The New York Jets haven't lost to Cincinnati in their four meetings, but their only healthy quarterback is Bill Demory, a rookie.

The Kansas City Chiefs is moved into a first place tie with Oakland in the AFC West Monday when they beat Chicago 19-7. This week they protect that tie in a game with Houston, which hasn't beaten the Chiefs since 1967.

The Detroit Lions still trail the Chicago Bears in their series, but Detroit has taken control in recent years, winning nine of their last 10 meetings. The San Diego Chargers, who are making only their second start under new Coach Ron Waller, have won three of their last four outings with the New Orleans Saints.

Packer Coach Dan Devine and New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks have never met in NFL competition, but they were old Big 8 college opponents at Missouri and Oklahoma.

The St. Louis Cardinals found their only victory in the last seven games in their last match with the New York Giants three weeks ago when Jim Hart passed for four touchdowns. The Giants have lost seven in a row.

The Minnesota Vikings, who have clinched the NFC Central title, have won their first nine regular season games and face an Atlanta team that's won its last five.

Named As Tennis Pro

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—James Watson, assistant professor of Spanish and tennis coach at Drake University, was named Friday as tennis professional at the Olde Providence Racquet and Swim Club in Charlotte. The 34-year-old Watson, who also is head pro at the Des Moines Racquet Club, will take up his new duties Jan. 1, succeeding Bob Joyner, who has left to take a job with the Carmel Country Club in Charlotte.

Watson is a native of San Francisco and was graduated from Pan American University in Texas in 1962. He received a master's degree and a doctorate in Spanish from the University of Missouri, and was tennis coach there in 1966 and 1967.

Rapes, Assaults Become Major Problem On Campus

By TERRY RYAN
Associated Press Writer
Rapes and assaults on coeds have become a major problem on the nation's college campuses, security officials say. They cite coed dorms, hitchhiking and lack of concern as contributing factors.

Campus administrators have responded by imposing tighter regulations in living areas, increasing police patrols and installing better locks and lights. Coeds are taking self-defense courses, and male students have started escort services on many campuses.

"Attacks on females have gone up at just about every school we have contact with," said Herbert T. Voye, editor of the Campus Law Enforcement

Journal. "It's not just a question of more women reporting it. It has happened."

Voye is chief of security at Tufts University near Boston. Several female students have been raped on or near the campus in the past year, including one girl raped in a dormitory room during the first week of class this fall.

"I was looking forward to a nice quiet year," said Voye. "Now the students are up in arms demanding more security. They want me to beg the administration for money to have a man with a dog patrolling on campus."

Tufts has spent $30,000 to upgrade campus lighting, has a female security officer training at a rape crisis center and now has guards stationed inside women's dormitories.

Like nearly all campus police officials, Voye said nonstudents were responsible for the increasing attacks on women.

"To judge from the people we have apprehended and what I've heard from other campuses, the majority of cases don't involve students," said Voye. "It's outsiders."

The increase of rape incidents is not an isolated phenomenon but part of a general rise in campus crime during the past few years. Long considered inviolate sanctuaries, schools across the country are now plagued with incidents ranging from bicycle thefts to muggings. There are exceptions, but not many.

The rise in rape complaints on campus is also part of a nationwide situation reflected in the 70 per cent jump in reported rapes in all jurisdictions surveyed by the Federal Bureau of Investigation during the past five years. "Crime is increasing in our society," said Audie Shuler, police chief at the University of Florida's Gainesville campus. "We live in it, so we are part of it."

Twenty male students at the Florida school were hired last month to augment the campus police force after one coed was raped in a parking lot and another abducted and raped elsewhere. They are armed with whistles and badges but do not carry guns or have arrest powers.

Rape reports have mounted at big city and small town schools alike. Two girls were raped and two others assaulted in a housing complex on the Brigham Young University campus in Provo, Utah. City and campus police were alarmed by reports that gun-toting male students had taken to guarding girls' apartments.

At the University of Illinois Champaign-Urbana campus, four rapes or attempted rapes were reported in the 12 months that ended last June. Four such cases already have been reported this school year. Teams of security officers were dispatched to lecture in dormitories and sororities on preventing rape and dealing with it if it occurs.

The increasing independence of women was cited by many security chiefs as an underlying explanation for the increase in rapes. Coeds are more likely now to work alone in a laboratory at night or walk by themselves to the library after dark.

"You can come out here any night of the week and you'll see a coed walking alone," said A.L. McCoy, security chief at Louisiana State University. "You just wonder, 'Now, she's just not concerned.' And a lot of them have the opinion, 'Well, it's just not going to happen to me.' So I don't know what the answer is."

Changes in campus living patterns have made the job of protecting all students more difficult, said security officers. Coed dorms and open living areas mean anyone can wander around without arousing suspicion, they said.

Although students just a few years ago fought for such arrangements, dormitory security is now being tightened, often at the urging of students. At the University of Pennsylvania, 200 women staged a sit-in outside the president's office demanding better protection after a series of rapes in the campus area.

Hitchhiking coeds, now a common sight around most campuses, are particularly vulnerable to attack. In addition to numerous reports of rape, hitchhiking college girls have been murdered during the past year in Boston; Ann Arbor, Mich.; and Santa Cruz, Calif.

While most coeds recognize the danger, many consider it an infringement on their freedom to be told they should not hitchhike.

"It's the only way I have of getting home," said a girl standing beside a guard booth at the edge of Indiana University's Bloomington campus with her thumb out. "Why shouldn't I?"

Fifteen rapes and at least 20 other assaults on women have been reported in Bloomington since April. Six rapes were reported in the entire county last year. The outbreak, which peaked during the summer months, has the campus and the community on edge. Response has varied.

A feminist group called WAR — Women Against Rape — has urged every woman to carry a whistle while walking at night and organized a campaign to establish "safe houses" on every block where women could seek refuge.

Escort services have been started in three of the university's dormitory complexes. In Teter Quadrangle, one of the dormitories, 75 male volunteers signed up to escort coeds around campus after dark.

"I got one call the first week of the program and have not received any since," said William Barnard, a freshman who was photographed and issued an identification card by the escort service. "Most of the guys I know report about the same response."

Similar services have sprung up at other schools. The University of Colorado now has "People Walkers," and a fraternity at the University of Rochester this fall started a "Dial-A-Sam" program.

Self-defense classes for women have blossomed on campuses from Boston to Berkeley, Calif. About 100 Indiana University coeds are enrolled in karate and judo classes. While women's group support them as a measure to counter the passivity they say is bred into American women, some people doubt their real value in deterring rape.

"When it came to an actual situation, knowing judo didn't help me at all," said an Indiana coed who took a self-defense class last spring and was later raped on campus. "I really don't think it was that useful."

Campus security officers said a woman's best defense still was to scream for all she is worth.

Dentist Treats Cancer

GRAPEVINE, Tex. (UPI) — Coffee and lemon juice enemas, 10 almonds at breakfast, 10 at lunch, a quart of carrot juice and a pint of celery juice every day—that, in part, is how Dr. William Donald Kelley, 48, an orthodontist, treats cancer.

As far back as 1970, 17th Judicial District Judge Walter Jordan ruled that Dr. Kelley's operation was "injurious and dangerous to the health, safety and welfare of the public."

Judge Jordan permanently enjoined Kelley from the practice of medicine in Texas and ordered him to post $2,000 bond. He also ordered Kelley to stop distributing a book, "One Answer to Cancer."

The American Cancer Society also checked Kelley out and concluded:

"After careful study of the literature and other information available to it, the American Cancer Society does not have evidence that treatment with the Kelley Ecology Therapy results in objective benefit in the treatment of cancer, or that the Kelley Malignancy Index is a proven method of diagnosing cancer, in human beings."

Kelley, a man who habitually speaks softly, said he really did not want to discuss his cancer operation, but that he never quit accepting patients at his little office north of Fort Worth, Tex.

Kelley said he does not advertise for patients and claimed: "I just don't know how they find out about it."

"I don't want to say anything," he said. "You had better talk to my attorney."

Faces Hearing
The attorney said the reason neither he nor Kelley wanted to talk was that Kelley faces a hearing on an attempt to withdraw his license to practice dentistry, although he is not now practicing dentistry.

Kelley believes cancer is a "symptom of inadequate and deficient protein metabolism, because of a deficiency of active pancreatic enzymes."

He is said to have arrived at this theory and his method of treatment after a bout 10 years ago with cancer. His own cancer is now said to be arrested.

He claims he is years ahead of medical doctors in diagnosing cancer, though he cannot diagnose "in the true sense of the word." That is, he can find out what is wrong with a patient for his own satisfaction, but cannot tell the patient about it.

Having "diagnosed" cancer in a patient, Kelley recommends that he give up all meat, milk in every form, except yogurt or buttermilk, and peanuts.

To supply protein, he recommends 10 almonds at breakfast and 10 at lunch, in addition to vegetable protein. He also recommends a mixture of raw whole grain cereals for breakfast each morning, and allows dates, date sugar, figs, raisins, blackstrap molasses, pure maple syrup and unpasteurized honey.

He urges enemas with coffee, lemon juice, buttermilk, sour milk or yogurt for as long as three months.

If Planters can offer 7.25% savings certificates with a 7.52% annual yield, how come everyone else isn't doing it?

WILL HE HAVE IT BRONZED? —It's not a cast of thousands, nor a baby cast in a new role, but maybe 28-day-old Norman Mansfield can have the cast on his broken leg bronzed when he gets older. Norman, who barely tips the scales at five pounds, broke his right leg Tuesday in Toronto, but is resting fine, thank you. (AP Wirephoto)

They might if they could. But very few banks have the unique computer system that Planters has.

Our new system compounds the interest on our 7.25% certificates on a daily basis. So if your interest and principal are held to maturity for four years, you get the extra advantage of a 7.52% effective annual yield.

If you don't want your interest compounded and retained with your certificate, you can be paid quarterly by check or we can transfer your interest to another PNB checking or savings account.

Either way, with PNB's 7.25% certificates you can watch your money earn more without lifting a finger to help it. Invest it and forget it.

Come talk to a Planters banker or send in the coupon below. But do it soon, because our new savings certificates are available for a limited time only.

You wouldn't expect an offer this good to go on forever!

Between Us

Teacher Responsibility Lies Beyond The Three R's

"He swept through the class like a tornado..."

Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

TEACHERS NEED TO TAKE a good look at their range of responsibility: their daily activities, their hourly classes, and their minute-to-minute communication. They need to learn the process of keeping children sane.

The following incident was brought to my attention by parents of an elementary school child:

Alan, 11, was caught cheating during an exam. His teacher called in Alan's parents, and in front of the child, she said: "Your son is a moral moron. I shudder to think where he might end up."

The effect of the teacher's words on Alan and his parents was devastating. It left them feeling hopeless, as though Alan's fate were sealed.

This teacher needs to become aware that in adult-child relations labeling is disabling. The diagnosis may become the disease. It is damaging to tell a child where he will end up. Destinations may become destinies.

IN EVALUATIONS written by student teachers assigned to public schools, here is how one young writer described one of the high school teachers: "Mr. S. Saw it as his mission to make life miserable. He tested his scythe-like tongue on the tired and the tardy. He swept through the class like a tornado, displaying his titanic temper. He seemed to enjoy seeing children seethe with fury and tremble with terror. He sailed his self-made sea of spite, reaping a harvest of hate."

Another wrote: "The worst I saw in some classes was that life was dreary, dismal and devoid of delight. Despite color television and teaching machines, there was an oppressive atmosphere in the classroom. Some teachers sounded like sergeants snarling at soldiers, snapping commands and growling orders. Their tongues were threatening and their mood menacing. Children, reduced to animal status, were called pigs, apes, gorillas. They seemed doomed by a malignant milieu."

And a third report: "The second-grade teacher is a crisis-creating woman. Her words warn and her glare sends waves of anxiety throughout the room. She infects everyone she touches with a feeling of distrust and doom."

SARCASM, RIDICULE, BELITTLEMENT are taboo in teacher-child relations. Children are vulnerable. They believe what adults tell them. What a parent or a teacher says in jest, may have serious consequences in a child's life. The following illustrates a most destructive example of jesting:

Scene: Awards Night Dinner with 300 students, parents, teachers, principals, Board of Education members in attendance.

Each coach announces the names of his respective team members and calls them up for their letter, trophy, pin or certificate.

The softball coach then announces a special award. She tells of a game when at a crucial moment, one girl fell down and lost the game. The coach hands her a large hand-printed certificate, "The Klutz of the Year Award." The recipient almost fainted with embarrassment, while everybody else laughed.

Farm-City Week Is Marked By Kiwanis

The Greenville Kiwanis Club held a special Farm-City Week observance at the regular meeting Wednesday night. Dr. Joe Pou, Vice-President of Wachovia Bank and Trust Company, N. A. talked with the club about the farmers role in domestic, business and world trade. Special guests of the club were David Harold Smith and John (Jack) B. Lewis, Jr. Pitt County Co-Chairmen for Farm-City Week, Robert Little, Chairman of the Pitt Soil & Water Conservation District, and Wayne K. Stokes, Chairman of the Pitt County Farm Bureau's Young Farmers and Ranchers.

Dr. Pou emphasized the farmers contribution to business by pointing out that production, marketing and processing of agricultural commodities is this nation's biggest industry. "I have no fear that we will suffer shortages of farm products if the American farmers are provided a reasonable incentive to produce," he stated.

Citing a turn-around in the United States trade balance, (The U. S. went from a deficit in 1972 to a plus of more than $5 billion in 1973), Pou pointed out that Eastern North Carolina agricultural exports amounted to over $500 million. With more than 80 billion U. S. dollars being held by other countries, U. S. agriculture is the brightest hope for bringing them home, he said.

By MARY CHARLES STEVENS

Sees Lower Food Prices

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — Some lowering of food prices is just around the corner in the opinion of Dr. Everett Peterson, agricultural economist at the University of Nebraska.

He noted that live animal prices dropped one-third during a one-month span. Since it takes about six weeks for a drop in such prices to effect the supermarket, the consumer must wait for specials on beef, lamb and pork, Peterson said.

He cautioned, however, against expecting a drastic reduction in prices. Food costs, he said, won't dip to what they were in 1972.

Peterson said pork prices will probably not drop as beef prices will because so far there are no signs that hog production will be expanded.

By 1971, he said, a further decrease in beef prices can be expected, based on current beef numbers.

Peterson gave these tips for stretching food dollars: —Plan meals and shop for a week's food needs rather than buying day to day.

—Make a grocery list and stick to it; resist impulse buying.

—Prepare more food at home because convenience foods are more costly.

—Don't shop for groceries when hungry.

—Use dry skim milk rather than whole or 2 per cent milk.

—Substitute eggs, poultry, fish and cheese for red meat.

LIFE-SAVING EQUIPMENT DALLAS (UPI) — The equipment used in the attempt to save President John F. Kennedy's life was purchased for $1,000 by the General Services Administration and shipped to the National Archives. The money was collected through donations.

Exploring Burroughs-Wellcome, participating in Youth Week, and riding in a bike-a-thon were activities enjoyed by Rose High students this week.

Friday, many Rose High members of the Burroughs-Wellcome Explorers Post participated in an all day tour of the main building of the plant. They watched as medicines were made, bottled, labeled, and packaged. Also they enjoyed eating in the Burroughs-Wellcome cafeteria. Last week the post took a tour of the chemicals manufacturing building and saw the careful conditions under which the chemicals are produced.

Youth In Government

Thirty-seven members of the SGA were chosen to participate in Thursday's Youth in Government Day. First, they went to City Hall where Mayor Eugene West gave an overview of City Government and City Manager, Bill Carstarphen talked about organization and management of city government. Second, Charles Horne Jr. discussed the role of utilities commission in government. They enjoyed J. M. Laney's topic of "Building a new Greenville" and slides and pictures of some proposed changes of Greenville. Lastly Public Works Director, Mayo Allen spoke to them on his duties.

Bike-A-Thon

The Rose High Kiwanis Key Club is helping to sponsor the Diabetes Bike-A-Thon this afternoon. Each rider must get as many sponsors as possible to pledge any amount to the Diabetes Association for every mile he rides. This is the major fund drive of the association for 1973.

Monday, to kick off Youth Week, Myrla Cox, Harry Pair, Arthur Best, and Lynn Cargile spoke to the Optimist Club. They discussed the ideas of youth of today and their role in society.

Many Rose students got together and chartered a bus, and others took the activity bus to Raleigh Friday night to watch the Rampants play Enloe. Lisa Wilson was in charge of chartering the bus.

Cites Confusion In Food Claims

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A University of California scientist warned that confusing and conflicting claims being made by unqualified people make it almost impossible for the consumer to know what good nutrition is.

Dr. George M. Briggs of the Berkeley Campus' Nutritional Sciences Department advised consumers to contact local public health officials and community medical associations when in need of sound nutritional advice.

GERMAN CONSUMPTION BONN (UPI) — The average citizen in West Germany smokes 2,000 cigarettes and drinks 140 liters of beer annually, according to the Ministry of Youth and Family Affairs.

MUSIC NOTES

BARTOK FESTIVAL AT STONY BROOK

STONY BROOK, N.Y. (AP)—The First International Bela Bartok Festival, featuring choral works, ballet, symphony and chamber music of the famous Hungarian composer, will be held at the State University of New York here.

Bartok came to the United States in 1940 and remained until his death in 1945.

According to Lewis Lusardi, executive director of the university's Center for Contemporary Arts and Letters, Bartok's music forms a bridge between the centuries-long tradition of folk music and the new rhythm and tonality structures of the 20th century.

The choice of repertoire for his Scarlatti Marathon will not be disclosed in advance.

'Hair' Coming Up Dec. 5 At ECU

The East Carolina Playhouse, under the direction of Edgar Loessin, is busy rehearsing for the upcoming production of Hair which will open December 5th at 8:15 in McGinnis Auditorium.

Hair ran on Broadway for over four years. It is one of the most popular and innovative stage attractions of this century and is considered a landmark musical.

Barry Shank will direct the music, Carol H. Beule will design the costumes, and Robert T. Williams will design the sets and lights.

Grammophon 75 Years Old

HAMBURG, Germany (AP)—What began as the first successful reproduction of scratchy sounds on a flat disc in the late 19th century has led to the observance this year of the 75th anniversary of the founding of Deutsche Grammophon Gesellschaft, headquartered here.

In observance of the jubilee year a commissioned work, "1898," was recently introduced here, played by its composer, Mauricio Kagel. The 45-minute composition was featured at a celebration attended by Dr. Gustav Heinemann, President of the Federal Republic of Germany, actor Peter Ustinov, composer Dr. Karl Bohm, and Oliver Berliner, American grandson of the founder of DGG.

The man who started it, Emil Berliner, invented the first flat disc and developed the first method for mass producing records. The youthful German immigrant had already invented the microphone, a device he sold to Bell Telephone under a patent filed April 14, 1877. The use of Berliner's transmitting device decided for all time that Bell, not Western Union, would launch the telephone business in the United States.

Which company would finally be in the telephone business was settled in court. The issue turned on whether Berliner or Edison was first with his microphone. The courts decided Berliner had been first.

What Are The Chances For Ballet Films?

EDITOR'S NOTE — Will a ballet movie draw an audience? That remains to be seen of the Australian Ballet's film "Don Quixote." But, if not, it won't be for lack of talent. Rudolf Nureyev and Sir Robert Helpmann costar and codirect.

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A lot of people act in both films and on stage and some of them direct. Few do those three things and also dance in ballet. That is because, says Sir Robert Helpmann, whose career encompasses all four, they did not plan ahead.

For five years, while he was a star of the Sadler's Wells Ballet, he took acting and voice lessons. He choreographed the ballet "Hamlet" and cast himself in the title role, "hoping someone would get the idea." Then he convinced the management of the ballet, which also was the management of the Old Vic to let him quit dancing long enough every year for a dozen years to play one role on the Old Vic stage. His second role was Hamlet.

in 1956 — during the years of World War II, dancing every night and three times on Saturdays.

Sir Robert, who now divides his time between London and Australia, has come to New York for the premiere of the Australian Ballet's film, "Don Quixote." He is Don Quixote, and Rudolf Nureyev, who has toured extensively with the company as guest artist, has the main dancing role.

Will a ballet movie draw an audience?

Sir Robert says, "The thing that always distresses me and irritates me is the way ballet has become regarded as something highbrow. When a person says, 'We don't go; we don't understand ballet,' that drives me mad. You're not supposed to understand anything. I don't understand piano playing, but I enjoy hearing a piano player."

"I think this began when Diaghilev brought his ballet from Russia to Paris. It became a snob thing."

"I'd have been thrown to the sharks if I'd mentioned dance as art in my day. It was entertainment. And the average dancer is the least highbrow person in the world. He talks about his work the way any athlete talks about his sport."

"On Monday nights in Australia we say anybody under 20 can get in for half-price. Some people said that wouldn't succeed because young people don't understand ballet. It is actually the first performance to sell out. And you'd think the Beatles were on, the way they scream and carry on."

Nureyev staged "Don Quixote" in 1966, based on Marius de Saury's opera.

Petipa's 1869 work. He and Sir Robert codirect the movie. Petipa did it a deal more to present lively Spanish dances than to tell the story of Cervantes' novel.

"Rudi dances unbelievably," Sir Robert says. "There is one place where he does incredible things in a grand pirouette. It is fiendishly difficult. If he was in the Olympic Games, he'd get a gold medal. He does it brilliantly."

"We had wonderful cameramen. They had to learn the choreography, practically enough so they could dance it. I can not bear seeing heads in dance films when you can't see the feet, or the feet with the heads cut off."

"We had the problem of no studio large enough to cope with the sets in Australia. Luckily the old airport in Melbourne had closed and there were three hangars unused. We had appalling problems with just empty aircraft hangars to convert into studios and a schedule of 26 days to make a full-length movie, but we achieved it."

AFTER THE FIRE... is over and the excitement of trying to get a dramatic action shot is gone, a camera can pick up interesting details from the ruins. Here, charred beams and fragments of boards, photographed from beneath against the open sky, result in a stark reminder of the power of fire. Such details can also create visual patterns that have interest aside from their story telling effect. (Photograph by Jerry Raynor)

Judges Comments On Annual Show

Book News

Because spectators always wonder why certain works won prizes in the Annual North Carolina Artists Exhibitions at the North Carolina Museum of Art, the judges this year tried helpfully to explain some of their choices.

The 36th Annual opened Nov. 14 at the museum and will run through Jan. 13.

The judges brought a varied background to their work. Bengt Von Bonsdorff is director of the Amos Andersonin Taidemuseum, Helsinki, Finland. Ben Kamihira is a painter and teacher at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts. James Pilgrim is curator-in-charge at the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The judges indicated some disappointment at not finding more prints and drawings. They also said they thought the amount of the prizes ranging from the $75 for the print award to the $1,000 first prize was not high enough. A total of $4,625 was put up by the North Carolina Art Society, Rauch Industries, Inc., and North Carolina National Bank.

Kamihira said he thought some of the artists had lowered their prices to suit the amount of the purchase prizes and Pilgrim chimed in, "It is curious that there were so many $500 paintings."

Several of the prizes were for $500.

Non-judges, looking at the $1,000 first prize winner, "Forms on Green" by Ralph Cox, Athens, Ga., described it, not unfavorably, as "resembling potshards, as if somebody had thrown down a pot," and also as looking like "bits of a broken scroll, like a 'Sic transit gloria mundi' over a Luther Bible, but broken up."

The judges talked about "Forms on Green" by Ralph Cox, Athens, Ga., described technical facility." Kamihira noted that he liked "the metallic 20th century look about it."

Judges last year liked Cox's work almost equally well, awarding a $500 prize to "Pink Forms," a painting similar to "Forms on Green."

"Doll Baby" by Gina Gilmour of Charlotte, a $500 winner, presents a large old-fashioned doll on a chair in a manner that drew judges' comments about its "imposing, monumental quality" and its "enormous presence."

"You could not look at it from very near," Von Bonsdorff said.

Another $500 winner, "Agin Court" by Frank Faulkner of Winston-Salem, a painting of whorls and squirrels, was distinguished, the judges said, "by the heavy impasto used to define shape."

To Kamihira, the painting offered "armor-like quality, of organic things trying to peek through the armor."

A painting that probably will attract spectator approval because of its realism is "Carr Street Window," an honorable mention winner by Willie B. Grimes of Salisbury.

Von Bonsdorff said he thought it "represents the best of this group." Pilgrim commented on its tight structure, while Kamihira said the work was "well-posed," had a "certain nostalgia" and was "beautifully put together in an abstract way."

Pilgrim said he found the 699 works entered in the competition for the exhibition to be "diverse and of a uniformly high level." Von Bonsdorff said, "It reminds me very much of our own competitions."

While not disputing Pilgrim, Kamihira said he felt "everything is three years back somehow." Pilgrim agreed that "the 'hardest, purest conceptual things are not here.'"

A similar comment was made by judges last year.

"I had hoped to see something more unique rather than what is happening elsewhere," Kamihira said.

Von Bonsdorff said he was "surprised" to see examples of abstract-expressionism and Pilgrim echoed him with "I was startled to see it was still going on."

Kamihira concluded by saying he thought the "open-exhibition competition is very good—it opens ways for geniuses we might discover."

A Review

Frustrated Patriots: North Carolina and the War of 1812, by Sarah McCulloh Lemmon. The University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill. 223 pages. $10.50.

Sarah McCulloh Lemmon, in her most recent book, Frustrated Patriots: North Carolina and the War of 1812, has written a work not only for those interested in North Carolina and American history but also for those concerned with contemporary affairs. Recent experiences in World War II and Korea fostered the belief that during wartime Americans united behind the political leaders. For this generation, Vietnam destroyed that illusion, and Professor Lemmon reminds us that it was never more than an illusion.

At the outset, Professor Lemmon registers her belief that North Carolinians did not go to war for the reasons attributed to most Americans. They wanted war because Britain interrupted our foreign trade, impressed American seamen into the British navy, and armed hostile Indians. In addition, many Americans, particularly westerners and some southerners, dreamed of territorial expansion into Canada and Florida. With the Outer Banks hampering trade and the frontier west of its boundaries, North Carolina appears to have been relatively untouched by these economic and military abuses and territorial dreams. Rather, North Carolinians rallied to support of the war because they felt mighty Britannia had long been trampling our national honor and, consequently, this necessitated a second war for American independence.

Once declared, most North Carolinians supported the war effort. Politically, the Republicans, who had been the peace party during the undeclared war with France in 1798, were the war party. North Carolina war leaders included Nathaniel Macon of Warren County and Israel Pickens of Burke County. Enthusiasm soon turned to frustration, for this proved to be a frustrating enterprise from first to last. Congress' support for the war was rickety; the military often appeared not only disorganized but unorganized, resulting in confusion at every level; provisions for troops were usually inadequate; their pay was constantly tardy; and recruitment never reached desired levels. Moreover, coastal defenses proved inadequate. After a British landing on the North Carolina coast, the legislature adopted a resolution complaining at the "neglect" by the national government of the defense of the state. Yet, when called upon North Carolina provided its share of finances, supplies and troops who performed well, and the exploits of Benjamin Forsyth and Otway Burns became the ingredients for local folk legends.

Opponents, too, were frustrated. Although not all were Federalists, most were. William Gaston of New Bern and Joseph Pearson of Rowan County led the Federalist while Richard Stanford or Orange County led the Republican opponents. If Republican proponents seemed incapable of winning the war, the Federalists were unable to halt it. Gaston opposed parliamentary tactics to limit freedom of speech in the House of Representatives. He pleaded with his colleagues in Congress never to refuse to hear "the language of truth." Pearson indignantly challenged insinuations that opposition to the war was equivalent to treason. To such a charge he replied, if "this doctrine be once established, an ambitious Executive, and a weak, a wicked, or interested majority of Congress have nothing to do but declare war, under any pretence, or for any cause or object, however unimportant, or however destructive of our best interest, we will be bound to strengthen the arm lifted for our destruction-join in acclaim of praise to our destroyers, or sit by, in silent anguish, awaiting the death-blow to our Constitution, and with it our liberties as a people."

The war produced mixed results for North Carolina. It did stimulate a new sense of independence from Europe, promoted pride and increased faith in the republican form of government and prompted a new sense of nationalism. On the negative side, however, the state was hurt because the opening of the Southwest lured promising young leaders from the state. For the next few decades, North Carolina, indeed, became the "Rip Van Winkle" state.

Professor Lemmon has recounted a period of frustration and struggle in North Carolina and America. It is such accounts that all generations do well to remember.

Ralph Cox's Painting Receives Top Award

"Forms on Green," a painting by Ralph Cox of Athens, Ga., is the work of art awarded the $1,000 first prize purchase award in the 36th Annual North Carolina Artists Exhibition which opened Wednesday and will be on view at the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh through January 13.

The three $500 purchase award winners are: Gina Gilmour, Charlotte, for "Doll Baby," an acrylic; Frank Faulkner, Winston-Salem, "Agin Court," acrylic; and Sherry Waterworth, Boone, a wood and lead sculpture entitled "Skewer II."

A new prize, the $950 Rauch Industries, Inc. purchase award went to Dennis Zaborowski of Chapel Hill, for an oil painting, "Pink Coffee Cup."

Two North Carolina National Bank awards were given. Henry Peterson of Newton, Mass. received $500 for "Portrait Painting," and $300 went to Michael Loyer of Chapel Hill for "The Sportsman," an acrylic.

Art Society Awards of $100 each were given to Keith Lambert of Greensboro for "Interlock Six," a stoneward sculpture; Willie B. Grimes, Salisbury, "Carr Street Window," an oil; and Paul Hartley, Winston-Salem, "Protection VII," a mixed media work.

This year, a total of 699 works were entered in the competition. From this number, 130 were chosen for the 36th annual exhibit.

Greenville artists whose entries were chosen for the show are Fred L. Brooks, Jr., Robert Edmiston, Marilyn Gordley, Tran Gordley, Doug Helms, Gerald Johnson, Norman Keller, Mary Alice Langston, A. Robert Rasch, Donald Sexauer, and Melvin S. Stanforth.

Davidson Competition Announced

The third annual Davidson National Print and Drawing Competition, the largest of its kind in the United States, will be juried in February by the internationally known artist and critic, Walter Darby Bannard.

The competition, coordinated by Prof. Herb Jackson of the Davidson College art department in Davidson, N. C., offers $5,450 in awards. The deadline for entries in 1974 competition is January 26.

In 1973 the Davidson National attracted more than 3,300 entries from all 50 states, ranking it the largest such competition in the U.S.

For 1974, $5,450 in awards are being offered. New this year is an Impressions Workshop Award which will allow the recipient to have a limited edition printed at the Impressions Workshop in Boston.

Davidson College will make five special purchase awards of $400 each for the college's permanent collection. Other sponsors include the North Carolina Arts Council, the Jefferson Pilot Corporation and Foundation, North Carolina National Bank, and Knight Publishing Company.

Each artist may submit two entries in any print and drawing medium, made within the last two years. Any artist resident in the United States, or his gallery representative, is eligible.

Works accepted for exhibitions will be displayed in the Cunningham Fine Arts Center of Davidson College March 17-April 19, 1974.

Further information is available from Herb Jackson, Box 2495, Davidson College, Davidson, N. C. 28036.

A Review

The Woman Alone. By Patricia O'Brien. New York, Quadrangle-New York Times Book Company, 285 pps., $7.95

This is a powerfully written informative book which analyzes one of the most tragic realities of American society today - women living alone.

The Woman Alone brings to light the critical and sometimes over-whelming plight of women of all ages who are either widowed, divorced or single. For over a year and a half, Patricia O'Brien researched and interviewed many divorcees, widows, single people and old people. In The Woman Alone she gives a forceful account of the shocking realism of what it is like for a woman living alone in a marriage-oriented society. "It is no illusion," she says. "Widows have their memories, divorced women their anger, and single women their cats."

Miss O'Brien brings focus to the loneliness and the frustrations of these society-segregated women—how they personally cope with emotional and financial problems, what rewards they hope to achieve from individual endeavors, and their vulnerability to the pressures of discrimination and suspicion.

This book is not a Women's Liberation document as such; but rather an authoritative message that a woman alone should not be ostracized if she has never married or because unfortunate circumstances have left her a widow or a divorcee. The Woman Alone reveals that the role of a widow, divorcee or single person is not a unique one, but that these women are human beings who are unique, and who, like everyone else, can use their talents to contribute something of worth to our social structure.

Miss O'Brien states: "The underlying assumption seems to be a woman 'should' belong to a man, and if she doesn't for too long a time something is amiss. People disapprove of women without men, not in an overt way, but by exhibiting a vague, general cautiousness toward what is not known or understood."

The Woman Alone should be read by married people, men and women alike, as well as every woman and man who is alone.

It cannot help but make the reader feel that there should be a new approach and drastic steps taken to eradicate the indifference of society toward women who live alone.

Joyce M. Woddard (Editor's Note: Mrs. Woddard is a widow, the mother of an 18 year old son, and "an avid reader".)

Chase Work Given NCMA

In a surprise ceremony last Wednesday, the North Carolina Art Society honored State Treasurer Edwin M. Gill with the presentation of a painting by William Merritt Chase to the North Carolina Museum of Art.

The painting, "Dorothy, Helen and Bob," was presented at the annual meeting of the society in the Archives and History-State Library Building.

Chase, one of the nation's leading artists of the late 19th and early 20th centuries, has depicted three of his children in a charming portrait. The two younger, Bob and Helen, are seated, while the older sister, Dorothy, looks on in the background.

Finley T. White of Durham, society president, said the painting was given to honor Gill for his long service to the Museum and to the society.

Chase, who was born in Indiana in 1849 and died in New York in 1916, was primarily concerned with portraits and figures during his middle years. "Dorothy, Helen and Bob" probably was painted about 1905.

ACTIVITY DECLINE

Federal Home Loan Bank of Atlanta, the regional reserve bank for savings and loan associations in North Carolina, reported that activity for state savings and loan associations declined sharply in September from last year's level.

During September, the state's 164 associations received $153.8 million in new savings, while their withdrawals amounted to $103.9. The net gain of $49.9 million reflected a decline from last September's record of $65.6 million.

Mortgage loan closings also showed a marked decline in September as North Carolina associations totaled 171.2 million in comparison to the peak of $112.7 million reached a year earlier.

NET INCOME DOWN

Wallace J. Conner, president of Conner Homes, Corp., reported that sales and other revenues from continuing operations increased for the fiscal year ending Sept. 2 from $17,246,942 in 1972 to $20,803,719.

Income from continuing operations increased from $578,335 in 1972 to $1,065,982 in 1973, he reported, but net income declined from $578,335 or 39 cents per share in 1972 to $557,214 or 37 cents per share for 1973.

CUTTING BACK

Julian White, assistant manager at Tarheel Toyota, reported that the firm, in an effort to conserve electricity, is cutting back in usage of 2,000, 15-watt bulbs that light the company's used car lot.

White, noting that the firm is encouraging other businesses that utilize excessive outside lighting to reduce their electrical usage, said that the lights will be timed to come on at sunset and shut off at 8 p.m., rather than at 11 p.m. under the old schedule.

He explained that the action is being taken voluntarily and "we hope it might inspire other firms to do the same thing. I think we are headed for some type of regulatory action," White said, "and maybe by cutting back usage voluntarily, it will keep mandatory regulations from being as strict."

White added that local, state and federal government has asked everyone to cut back on energy usage in every form "so we are doing this in hopes that others will follow suit and conserve as much as possible."

EARNINGS UP

North Carolina Natural Gas Corp. announced earnings for the fiscal year, ending Sept. 30, of $1.40 per share as compared with $1.30 per share last year. The company reported earnings after taxes of $2,384,202 as compared with $2,212,853 for the previous year.

20-YEAR MARK

Fieldcrest Mills Inc. is celebrating 20 years under Fieldcrest ownership, a period in which the company's yearly sales increased from $39 million to over $244 million and capital expenditures totaling $122 million were made to expand and modernize the business.

The facilities in Greenville include a woolen and synthetic yarn spinning plant on Dickinson Avenue which the company has operated since 1960 and a worsted wool spinning plant built in 1970 east of the Bethel Highway.

TURBULENT MARKET—Stock market prices sank rapidly early in the week, with analysts blaming concern about the energy problem's impact on the economy. Prices recovered strongly Friday when President Nixon spoke optimistically about a possible increase in Arab oil exports to the West. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials plunged 17.08 points from the previous Friday, closing the week at 891.33. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks finished the week at 287.5, a 7.3 drop from the previous Friday's closing. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

carpets. Annual Greenville payroll is $2,500,000 with the company employing 360 persons here.

Fieldcrest Mills Inc. operates 26 plants in five states and employs over 12,000 people on a total payroll of over $81 million.

MANAGER NAMED

Mrs. Betty Lou Modin, a member of the Williamstown staff of Branch Banking and Trust Co., has been named manager of the new Jameville office which opened on Monday.

ELECTED TO BOARD

Carl V. Venters Jr., general manager of Durham Life Broadcasting Co. and owner of radio station WFAG in Farmville, has been elected to the board of directors of Bank of North Carolina N. A. in Raleigh.

Venters served as president and general manager of the Farmville station for 12 years before joining Durham Life Broadcasting in Raleigh, a subsidiary of Durham Life Insurance Co. which owns WPTF radio station in Raleigh.

STEPS TAKEN

Wachovia announced that it is directing all of its bank offices to take steps in reducing electrical consumption, conserving gasoline and other fuel, and is taking other short-term steps to help meet the energy crisis.

The bank reported that temperatures in office buildings will be reduced to 65-68 degrees while other steps include doubling up whenever possible on all out-of-town business trips; turning off certain exterior lighting, including signs; and limiting the speed of all company vehicles to 55 miles per hour.

Each bank office, it was noted, is being asked to begin to take long-term steps toward reducing energy consumption, including checking insulation in all buildings, planning future buildings with energy conservation in mind, and purchasing heating and air conditioning units with the lowest possible energy consumption level.

MERGER PLANS

Officers of Wachovia Bank and Trust and the Bank of Elizabethtown were notified that the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency has approved plans for the two institutions to merge.

Under terms of the agreement, each share of stock in the Bank of Elizabethtown would be exchanged for 13.73 shares of common stock of the Wachovia Corp. A total of 54,920 shares of the Wachovia Corp. would be exchanged for the 4,000 shares of the Bank of Elizabethtown that are outstanding.

The Bank of Elizabethtown, now with four offices, was chartered in 1907 and has deposits of almost $10 million.

BAN PON, Thailand (UPI) — A dirt road leading north and south to nowhere from this isolated hill village in far north Thailand illustrates as well as anything the perils and frustrations of politics in Asia. Almost incredibly it involves the interests of two major powers, the United States and China, as well as Thailand itself.

After five years of construction the road has progressed 17 miles—seven miles northward, 10 miles southward—at a cost of 150 lives or almost nine men per mile, all killed in attacks by insurgent tribesmen thought to have the support of the Chinese. Protection of the road is being financed at least in part by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA).

Located just a few miles from the frontier with the Indochina kingdom of Laos, the road is an area made to order for insurgency and intrigue. It runs through Nan province which, geographically, is a funnel-shaped valley ringed with rugged mountains and sitting in an L-shaped bend of the Laotian border. It also is less than 25 miles from the end of a road the Chinese have built through north Laos like a spear pointing at Thailand.

Between the Chinese road and the border is a base manned by a "special force" of Thai volunteer troops. Although their days may be numbered by the Laos peace agreement, for the present they continue to be paid and directed by the CIA.

On the Thai side of the frontier is a smoldering struggle that has its roots in resentment by regional Meo and Yao tribesmen at attempts by Thai officialdom through the years to encroach on their opium trade and bring them under government control.

Tribe men Rebel "The area is like a boil that is waiting to break," says one counterinsurgency source. No one can venture a guess at what the eventual outcome will be.

The road from Ban Pon was intended to swing southward along the Lao border, eventually linking up to form a loop with another road project from the south and bringing government influence to dozens of villages in between.

Hill tribe insurgents, armed and often led by Communist cadres, have fought to keep the roads out of their redoubts. Between the completed seven miles on the northern leg and 10 on the southern leg there remain close to 60 miles of untouched jungle in between.

Today, work goes on spasmodically under Thai army protection on a second road leading from Ban Pon toward the Laotian border. But all work at both ends of the loop road has ceased since 12 workers were wiped out in a single attack late last year.

The insurgents have posted signs warning that a similar fate awaits anyone else who ventures far along the road. A construction worker at the heavy sandbagged camp here shakes his head. "No one is going up there any more," he says.

Uneasy Stalemate

An uneasy stalemate has set in, punctuated by incidents such as a raid two months ago in which about 30 insurgents

Advent Calendars

NEW YORK (UPI) — A charming European Christmas custom—sending Advent calendars to children—is getting a toe-hold in the United States.

A number of card shops and department stores market the calendars which should be purchased in November. Most of the calendars are designed in West Germany and Denmark and bear European village or religious scene. Some are self-standing and depict castles, buses, angels and doll houses.

The scene incorporates numbers running from 1 to 24 which indicate the position of a flip-open panel that reveals a Christmas scene. The idea is to open a panel a day from Dec. 1 to Dec. 24, which covers the pre-Christmas liturgical season known as Advent. The last panel always depicts the manger scene.

Cost of these novelties ranges from $1 to $3. If you can't find a shop that sells them, write to House of Calendars, 81 Irving Place, New York, N.Y. 10003 and request it brochure describing 40 Advent calendars.

came to the gates of the work camp to dynamite a large concrete bridge across the Nan River.

The army also stays away from the loop road, using artillery fire in an attempt to keep insurgents off, with some shells landing uncomfortably close to the camp.

Originally, government crews worked on the road, but that stopped last year because of the casualties. Then an Italian-owned company with large interests in Thailand ranging from tourist hotels to lucrative trading rights was induced to take over construction, and given tacit permission to offer bribes to the insurgents.

Quantities of salt, medicines and other supplies were turned over to the guerrillas, who accepted them but continued to kill construction workers. Now the construction company is in the process of putting its workers through military training, and there are indications it may recruit CIA-trained volunteers.

The United States has stopped directly financing big road construction projects in Thailand, instead providing military aid which enables the government to spend its own money on the roads.

U.S. Adviser A U.S. military adviser who is stationed at the province capital is barred from accompanying Thai army units in the field, but civilian American officials do venture into the countryside to consult with military officers and the paramilitary border police.

The Chinese have long been in the position of guiding the destiny of the insurgency, and North Vietnam has also trained insurgents.

In June, 1972, a year after China began its swing to a more conciliatory foreign policy, a man in the uniform of a Meo tribesman walked out of the jungle. He identified himself as a native of Yunnan Province in southern China and a member of the 11th Peoples Liberation Army, a Chinese unit.

It was the first time direct Chinese participation in the insurgency had been established. The defector said at least 200 men like him had entered Nan Province from Laos in 1971 and were now spread throughout North Thailand.

Prisoner Art On Display November 20

By FREDERICK M. WINSHIP
UPI Senior Editor
NEW YORK (UPI)—Most of the artists represented in one of New York's largest group exhibitions of the season will not be present for the event. They are imprisoned.

The "Art from Inside" show which opens Nov. 20 at the New York Society for Ethical Culture galleries is expected to top the first show given there last year. Of the nearly 500 paintings, drawings and sculpture submitted by New York prisoners (with a few contributions from Connecticut, New Jersey and Missouri, 258 were sold for prices generally ranging from $25 to $60. Prisoners set their own prices and get 90 per cent of the profits.

The show had its genesis in Thomas O'Connor, who spent eight of his 32 years in military stockades, federal and state prisons, and county jails before he became executive director of Ethical Culture's Prison Reform Task Force. He is negotiating with the Metropolitan Museum to have the exhibition there next year.

"I began painting in prison on a masonite board with housepaint stolen by another inmate," O'Connor said. "I used it as a means of escape from the daily tensions of prison life—as a means of getting totally wrapped up in something. I didn't take it seriously at the time."

After his release from serving a term for robbery in 1968, O'Connor began to think of prison art as a means of demonstrating to the public that prisoners can contribute to society, given decent training and facilities. Ten per cent of the money from sales of paintings at the show goes to the New York State Department of Correctional Services for expansion of its meager program to provide inmates with art materials. Big art supply companies also make contributions.

"Much more can come out of state prisons if we put something in," O'Connor said. "If we want to avoid recidivism, we must provide inmates with the means of keeping themselves out of prison, skills like data processing, mechanical repairs, writing. Not all of the artists have talent enough to break into the fine arts field, but they could learn such art-related skills as drafting and mechanical design."

Art submitted for the show ranges from almost camera-like realism to surrealism and abstraction. One artist, Lawrence Condon, paints with the technical facility of Andrew Wyeth and favors Wyeth's rural imagery. Some paintings, but by no means the majority, invite psychological analysis because of their morose colors, sad-faced portraits, and depiction of shackles and bars.

The cover of the exhibition invitation is a reproduction of a striking self-portrait by Richard Robles, who is serving two life sentences for the sensational 1963 Manhattan murders of Janice Wylie and Emily Hoffert. Robles, who still protests his innocence, depicted himself seated in slumped position staring vacantly at the viewer. A cartoon balloon reads: "Help!"

"Most of the artists paint in their cells, and we've received paintings on everything from mattress ticking to sheets," O'Connor said. "Other prisoners encourage the artists and their criticism generally is constructive. The prisoners get their subject matter from photographs, magazines, postcards and imagination. We have more this year that express the prisoners' conditions, to express protest."

The Ethical Culture Prison Reform Task Force operates with 130 volunteers and six paid staff, three of whom are ex-inmates. It works with prisoners and particularly with their families in giving assistance with welfare, housing, legal, job and vocational training problems.

Can Belts Save 14,000 Lives?

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — If everyone riding in a car in the United States used lap and shoulder belts, an estimated 14,000 lives could be saved each year.

Dr. Charles Warner, professor of mechanical engineering at Brigham Young University who just spent two years as the federal government's top auto passenger protector, based that estimate on studies made in Australia.

Australian law requires mandatory use of belts, while only 20 to 30 per cent of the American public uses lap belts and less than 10 per cent use shoulder belts, he explained.

"Most people don't really understand what kind of forces they are exposed to in a crash," Warner said when asked why the rate was so low in the United States.

Passengers Fear Belts

Even in a collision at 30 miles an hour, he said, a force of about two tons may be exerted on the upper torso area. Without any belt, a person can also expect to be thrown through the windshield at that speed.

Elaborate interlock systems in 1974 vehicles may raise the belt usage rate as high as 75 per cent in new cars, said Warner. Still, it will take around 15 years before the highways are "purged" of older cars not containing the new mechanisms.

Warner does not favor laws forcing mandatory use of belts. He said the public needs to realize the belts and warning systems are installed for safety purposes, not just as an annoyance.

Some persons do not use the belts because of fear of injury or being trapped in a car during an accident. Cases of this happening do exist, said Warner.

Air Bag Safer

One problem is that much of the public is unaware of the right way to wear a lap belt, he said. The belt must be attached snugly around the pelvic area, not higher up on the abdomen, where the force of a collision might cause the buckle to injure intestinal tissues. Newer model cars have the buckle far over on the side or nearly on the floor of the vehicle to prevent this, said Warner.

Passive restraints such as the air bag would result in even greater protection than the belts during accidents, said Warner. Although an air bag system would cost between $100 and $200, he said it would "pay for itself eight or nine times over" in lives saved.

Legal battles between auto makers and the government are slowing the installation of air bags on cars, although General Motors is offering them on 50,000 of their 1974 models. A consumer movement for automobile safety is needed to get action, according to Warner.

"If consumers wanted the safety devices, Detroit wouldn't hesitate a minute to put them on," he said.

Warner has been on leave from BYU for the past two years as acting chief, Driver Passenger Protection Division, Office of Crash-Worthiness, National Highway Traffic and Safety Administration in Washington, D.C.

Career Education: A "Learning In Action" Concept

UTILITY BUILDINGS . . . D.H. Conley High School students Eddie McGowan, James Perkins, Jeffrey Dawson, Randy Jones and Carl Albert (top of building) frame a utility building to be sold. The carpentry students, taught by Roderick Harrell, have sold five such buildings to members of the community. Money from the sale was used to buy more building materials.

HURRY WITH THE HAMBURGERS . . . Jordan Nelson and Angela Bowers and Beverly Moore wait for their customer's order. Mickey Hines practice being short order cooks while "waitresses"

Career education attempts to help the student understand the world of work and search or build his place within it.

An effective career education program should provide students with planned and continuous opportunities—informational, intellectual, experiential, psychological, and social—to develop a meaningful and flexible life style in the world of work.

According to Carl Toot, director of occupational education for Pitt County Schools, career education is the approach to learning and teaching which combines organized classroom experiences with the reality of the world which we live and work. It provides additional curricular options and increases alternatives and experiences appropriate to each individual.

"Career education is designed to secure and maintain a satisfactory lifestyle through learning to live, learning to learn and learning to make a living," Toot said.

"The higher up in grades a student goes, the more involved the program becomes—only in high school does he study a particular vocational course," Toot explained.

Toot added, "Learning to make a living is important to every student, regardless of what he plans to make his life career."

The primary students are made aware of the many different ways of making a living. The middle grades explore careers as part of their traditional academic program. They explore many of the available occupations and have hands-on experience of some of the many things that people in various occupations have.

Occupational education, a phase of career education, includes such subjects as carpentry, electricity, auto mechanics, drafting, masonry, graphic arts, metal work. These courses are offered to high school students.

"Occupational education is just a part of the career education program offered to students. This area is designed for students who wish to pursue a particular occupation," Toot explained.

Today there are 20,000 different ways to make a living. Half of them didn't exist five years ago. Five years from now, there will be an additional 10,000 new careers, while one quarter of those available today will have become obsolete.

At Bethel Primary, the students study various occupations. The first grade, taught by Mrs. Juanita Johnson, has been studying community helpers, including the fireman and school personnel. They plan to study the policeman, doctor, nurse, minister and other occupations which make up their community.

The second grade at Bethel Primary, taught by Mrs. Brownie Highsmith, has just completed a study course on the fireman. They have studied the policeman and plant to take up home building or the super market next.

Mrs. Highsmith has a bulletin board in her room entitled "The World of Work, I Want to Be A." The title stays the same each month but Mrs. Highsmith changes the occupation. The children painted pictures showing the role the fireman plays in the neighborhood as well as learned a number of firemen songs.

The career exploration program taught at Bethel Middle School is one of 21 pilot programs in the state.

The portion of the program is the study between career awareness and career proficiency.

In the occupational labs students rotate through "hands-on" activities relating to all types of work.

The labs are taught by Mrs. Rachel Welborn, Kent Worthington and Rod Whitley.

Every student in the seventh and eighth grades in the school as a normal part of his educational process, is involved in activities designed to:

—Appraise their individual interests, abilities, potentials and needs;

—develop positive self-concepts, positive attitudes toward work, and social skills necessary for effective human relationships;

—recognize the dignity of each occupation and appreciate the contributions which each make to our functioning society;

—explore, participate in and achieve success in basic skills related to a variety of careers;

—develop attitudes and skills related to the appropriate use of leisure time.

The exploration classes in the seventh and eighth grades meet three periods a week in the occupational labs for hands-on activities related to all types of occupations, one period with the career guidance person for personal, and career information and one period with the homeroom teacher for music and art.

"Our program is a student-centered activity-oriented learning experience designed to equip the student with a relevant, meaningful education," Mrs. Welborn explained. "Career exploration is designed, through a cooperative educational effort in conjunction with other disciplines, to provide a total and comprehensive approach to learning.

"Correlation of learning activities and teaching methods, along with cooperative planning by occupational and academic teachers characterizes this phase of career exploration. In this aspect, it is a 'blend' of all disciplines," Mrs. Welborn said.

In Mrs. Welborn's lab, students operate a telephone switch board, take "blood samples" from a hospital patient, operate a short order restaurant or take shorthand dictation.

Worthington's students participate in welding, bricklaying, photography, woodwork, sheet metal construction, and electricity.

Whitley, career guidance member of the team, has the curriculum information center where both students and teachers go to perform research directed toward a greater knowledge of the world of work and the opportunities that may be found there. The research is carried out according to the individual interest and needs.

Whitley also establishes services designed to aid the student in determining, analyzing and understanding his interest, aptitude, abilities, opportunities, problems and needs in order to make wise choices, adjustments and plans.

The guidance program is concerned with enabling the student to better understand himself and to more effectively utilize his assets and opportunities so that he may live and make a living to the best advantage of himself and society.

The career clusters studied at Bethel Middle include: Agri-business and natural resources; business and office; communications and media; construction; environmental control; fine arts; health; hospitality and recreation; manufacturing; marketing and distribution; marine science; personal services; public services; transportation; and consumer and homemaking.

Grades are not given for participation in this program.

"All levels work together,"

Mrs. Welborn noted. "This helps build self image. The students learn to work together and with other people. They learn things in our class which helps with their reading, math and adds to class participation."

Worthington's lab work centers around three main areas: construction, manufacturing and agri-business and natural resources. Whenever possible, his students take field trips to see first hand such occupations as carpentry, bricklaying, heating and air conditioning duct work installed and other related occupations to the class study.

Whitley helps the students gather information of the occupations they have studied under Mrs. Welborn and Worthington. The students use files, films and other available materials to learn as much as possible about various occupations they are interested in.

Whitley also works with the attitudinal aspect of the working world.

"The career program is not planned to take the place of academic subjects but to enhance them and make it more relevant to the students," Whitley said.

Also participating in a program of the same type as found at Bethel Middle School are students at G. R. Whitfield, Grimesland.

PAPER FIREMEN . . . First graders Robin Willis, Gloria Phippen, Levon Short and Steve Suggs make firemen out of construction paper. The class, taught by Mrs. Juanita Johnson, has just completed a career course on firemen.

Text and Photographs by Blanche Hardee

RUSHING TO A FIRE . . . Vincent Clark and Thomas Bowers, second grade students at Bethel Primary, practice some of the firefighting techniques they learned during a career study of the fireman.

SAWING A BOARD . . . Darrell McRoy cuts out the various pieces that will be needed to make a stacked book shelf.

SANDING AND MORE SANDING . . . Barbara Garris sands the portions of her bookshelf before putting the sections together.

MAKING POT HOLDER . . . Gregory Keel and Keith Briley saw a strip of metal that will be molded into a metal pot holder.

Every Grain Of Rice A 'Bullet' To South Vietnam

By ARTHUR HIGBEE
SAIGON (UPI) — Everything costs more for South Vietnam's 20 million people these days, and rice costs most of all.

Staples such as sugar, fish and cooking oil have gone up by 50 per cent in the past year. Rice costs fully twice as much as it did a year ago.

A 100-kilogram sack of ordinary rice in Saigon costs 17,000 piasters (about $36 for 220 pounds, or 16 cents a pound)—when it can be found.

The government of President Nguyen Van Thieu, faced with a winter of rising discontent, is taking vigorous measures to spread the rice around, while trying to keep it from the Viet Cong.

"Consider every grain of rice a bullet," President Thieu ordered his troops a month ago. His aim is to do what he can to starve out an expected Communist general offensive late this year or early next year.

Rice-consciousness But keeping the rice away from the Communists is a contradiction in much of the Mekong Delta and the coastal highlands, where the Viet Cong live right among the people.

And the Communists are as rice-conscious as anybody. They are busy these days buying rice, stealing rice and battling government troops for rice.

Despite the cease-fire that supposedly went into effect last Jan. 28, the level of combat is higher than it was a year ago in such key delta provinces as Chuong Thien and Dinh Tuong.

Dinh Tuong province, which starts 30 miles southwest of Saigon, straddles Highway 4, the so-called "rice road" to the delta.

To keep rice away from the Viet Cong, the government has decreed that people living in areas adjoining Communist-led territory can keep no more than a 10-day supply of rice on hand.

Difficult to Enforce The rule is difficult to enforce. When it is enforced, the government calls it confiscation. The Communists call it "looting the rice of the people."

The government also has stepped in to buy up rice in place of the Chinese merchants who usually do the job.

Among domestic and foreign economists, this has raised all the usual arguments against the free-market system, and then some. Given South Vietnam's notoriously corrupt officialdom, abuses are inevitable.

But for the moment the government has seen to it that the families of soldiers, civil servants and refugees are guaranteed 50 kilograms (110 pounds) of rice per family per month at regulated prices.

The fixed price is 25 to 30 per cent under the free-market price. Soliders, civil servants, refugees and their families account for fully 7 million of South Vietnam's nearly 20 million population, so that is a lot of people taken care of.

Search Is Hard Peasants who grow their own rice account for roughly that many more, but that still leaves several million people who grow no rice and have no ration cards—professional people and trades people, skilled and unskilled workers and the unemployed.

For them, the search for rice is especially hard and the price especially steep. Sometimes they have to settle for the American-developed "miracle rice," sometimes they have to use such unsatisfactory substitutes as bread (which also is hard to find), sweet potatoes, bananas or manioc, a starchy root.

The Vietnamese don't care for most kinds of miracle rice. "You can eat it when it's freshly cooked and still hot," one housewife remarked. "Once it's cold, it gets hard. It's all right for baking or feeding to livestock."

Ten years ago South Vietnam was a net exporter of rice. Then the war closed in, taking vast areas out of cultivation and sending hundreds of thousands of farm boys into the army, which certainly numbers 1.1 million men.

Even with these handicaps, South Vietnam managed until this past year to grow about 90 per cent of its own rice, with imports of American rice (not "miracle rice" but good Louisiana and Carolina rice which the Vietnamese like) to make up the difference.

Drought and Flood This past year a combination of the heavy fighting that preceded the so-called cease-fire, plus a nasty combination of drought and floods, has cut back rice production—right at a time when U.S. economic aid, including rice imports, is diminishing.

On top of this, the departure of American forces threw 250,000 Vietnamese out of work, and cost Vietnam $300 million a year in foreign exchange earnings.

Imports of U.S. rice this year were targeted at 350,000 to 400,000 tons—or about 1-10th South Vietnam's own annual production. But barely 300,000 tons have arrived this year, though another 25,000 are expected.

Some of this tonnage of U.S. rice, however, is being diverted to Cambodia, which in its own way is even worse off than Vietnam.

Experts predict that South Vietnam will go on running short of rice as long as fighting continues at the present level and a million men are kept under arms.

Milling Waste South Vietnam loses fully 1-5th of its rice crop through wastage in milling. Modernization of its mills would eliminate this and make the country self-sufficient in rice. But this would require the kind of money for capital investment that South Vietnam just does not have.

Cambodia exported rice until it, too, was pulled into the war in 1970. Since then, with the Communists occupying most of the countryside, Cambodia's cities have been chronically hard up for rice.

The United States has committed itself to shipping 85,000 tons of rice to Cambodia during the current fiscal year. On top of that it has borrowed 5,000 tons from Vietnamese commitments—and plans to borrow 10,000 more.

This robbing-Peter-to-pay-Paul is something that few Vietnamese have read about and even fewer can do anything about, given their dependence on continuing U.S. rice shipments. The United States has promised to repay the rice by the end of this year.

Answer To The Carlsbad Cavern

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Ark. (UPI) — Blanchard Springs Caverns opened officially to the public last summer under the auspices of the U.S. Forest Service and is Arkansas answer to Carlsbad Caverns.

A $5.3 million project put the caves in shape for public touring. Although Blanchard Springs is not as large as Carlsbad Caverns or Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, many of those who have seen all three say Blanchard Springs offers the most in natural beauty.

Buying Meats Should Be Last

NEW YORK (UPI) — Although some supermarkets' layouts make this difficult, try to buy meats, including hamburger, last.

Burying the meat at the bottom of the shopping cart can puncture the package. This mishandling increases the chances that bacteria will grow in it. Hamburger can be stored in its own plastic wrapping, but not in butcher paper, says the New York Better Business Bureau.

Graceful Spanish arches accent windows, camouflage garage doors, and blend beautifully with shake-shingled mansard roof in this two level plan.

Inside, the "Spanada" assign balconied sleeping quarters the upper level and living areas the lower level. Entry is via double doors into the tiled foyer, which routes traffic up to bedrooms or down three steps to living and family rooms, each favored with wood-burning fireplaces. The living room preserves formality, eliminating unnecessary traffic and adjoining a gracious dining room. Additional dining space is outlined in the U-shaped kitchen, located to serve dining room and family room with equal ease. A convenient utility-laundry room is included in the kitchen complex and given an outside entrance.

Expansive, accessible, and perfect for entertaining, the family room opens to a semi-private terrace through sliding glass doors and also features and entrance to the double garage.

Four bedrooms, each large and indulged with double closets, occupy the upper level. Two full baths include a bath with shower private to the master bedroom and an efficient compartmented main bath. Front bedrooms are favored with sliding glass doors to the attractive balcony, and a sizable storage room borders the stairway.

Measuring over 26 feet on each side, the "Spanada's" double garage offers storage space for bicycles and garden equipment, and a full basement is also provided.

Apartment dwellers have always been the chief victims of noise that passes through walls, ceilings and floors, but modern machines have created clutter within private homes.

Power tools in the home workshop, electric dishwashers, vacuum cleaners, automatic can openers and garbage disposals are just some of the machines that create unpleasant sounds.

There are many ways in which such noises can be controlled, but the basic principle remains the same: the way to decrease the annoyance of sounds is to do something about them AT THE SOURCE. For instance, if the table saw whirring away in the basement is bothering the people in the room above the workshop, the place to control that sound is the basement, not in the room in which the noise is heard.

An acoustical tile ceiling will do much toward absorbing the sound of the saw, far more than anything that might be done in the room upstairs. In the same way, a room which generates a lot of noise — such as the kitchen — should be sound-conditioned as much as possible so that the noise is absorbed while it is still in the room.

If Junior's hi-fi equipment is driving everyone else in the house slightly batty, the plan should be to keep the sound within the room rather than attempting to keep it out of the other rooms. Such things as rugs and draperies will absorb much of the sound, as will acoustical material of any kind.

When there is a sound of any kind, some of the sound waves hit your ears directly. Those that hit the floor, ceiling, walls and furniture continue to bounce around the room if the surfaces are hard. But each time the waves hit a soft, absorbent material, some of them are pulled in and stop reverberating. That's one of the reasons kitchens are often noisy. Most of the surfaces there are hard and thus nonabsorbent.

You can't do too much about noises that come from outside the house, but you can do something. Simply shutting a window when a neighbor starts a power lawn mower keeps out much of the sound. That's why air-conditioned houses usually are so much quieter than others; the windows are closed all or most of the time. Double-glass windows and thick rows of shrubs help to deflect and absorb outside noises.

If you are having a house built, you should give some attention to the installation of walls built especially to absorb sound, if not between all the rooms then where there is likely to be a problem. One of several ways in which this is done is through the use of double rows of staggered studs, with insulation between.

(Removing mildew, repairing brickwork and taking care of sweating windows and walls are among 35 subjects in Andy Lang's helpful handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Garden Clinic

N.C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions
 Q. Please give me some suggestions for growing rhubarb. (B.G., Chapel Hill)

A. Rhubarb grows well in the upper Piedmont and Mountains. From the Raleigh area eastward the weather is too hot and humid for rhubarb. You can grow rhubarb in the Chapel Hill area, but you will have to spray regularly to control diseases, replant every two to three years, and be satisfied with green color rather than the normal deep red. Crowns are planted in the spring. Harvest begins the second growing season. (A.A. Banadyga, extension horticulturist)

Q. Is it advisable to apply lime and fertilizer to a lawn at the same time? (J.H., Asheboro)

A. It can be done. There is no advantage or disadvantage, chemically speaking. (Jack Baird, extension agronomist)

Q. How do you grow a fibrous begonia during winter? (Mrs. G.L. Falson)

A. Place the begonia in a sunny window. Supplement light with that of a lamp on cloudy days. Gently loosen soil with a fork every two to three weeks to prevent packing. Water only when soil is dry to the touch of your fingers. Use water which is at room temperature. Fertilize every three weeks with one-eighth teaspoon of blue fertilizer dissolved in a cup of water. This is a special 20-20-20 fertilizer good for most house plants. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Home Fuel Conservation Begins

By VIVIAN BROWN, AP Newsfeatures Writer

Operation Fuel Shortage is underway in most homes. Wood-burning stoves are making a comeback — one city reported a 700 per cent increase in sales this year — as people acquire them against the day. Chimneys are being cleaned and firewood is being ordered in the interest of fuel preparedness.

Fuel watchers in the government are monitoring the weather to see its effect on fuel, and it is explained that the amount of fuel burned in the house depends on how much the temperature outdoors goes below 65 degrees. Even then, body heat, stove use, good insulation and air tightness may keep the furnace from chugging away even though the temperature goes below.

President Richard Nixon has suggested turning down the thermostat four degrees at night to save fuel, and one woman is convinced it does. In addition to lowering the family thermostat, she pulled the draperies over a large drafty picture window each night last winter, and it helped ease the fuel consumption, she said.

That small but useful tip had been offered by a spokesman for the petroleum industry along with some others which included these worthwhile reminders for conserving fuel.

House Temperature...Keep thermostat at 70 degrees or less. Every degree over that increases the cost of fuel by 3 per cent...In addition to lowering the thermostat at night, turn it down if the house is vacant over a weekend...If one plans a "cold-weather vacation, turn the thermostat to 55...a thermostat in a cold or drafty place can increase the fuel used...If it is on a wall exposed to a window used for airing a room, it is also misplaced. Old thermostats can monitor heating requirements irregularly.

Furnaces should be cleaned regularly. Dirty filters in warm air systems can cause poor distribution of heat. Ditto dust on radiator base boards.

Room Pointers: close off unused rooms in the house. Open bedroom windows only from the bottom: opening from the top will let warm air escape. Very drafty windows should be given a weatherstripping treatment or cover windows and unused doors completely with heavy plastic which might be taped on. Keep furniture and other objects away from heating units where they might block the flow of heat...A sheet of aluminum or aluminum foil can be put behind a radiator to reflect heat into a room. Keep fireplace damper closed to avoid heat escaping. Repair faucet drip — if hot water drips at the rate of one drop a second, 700 gallons of water and a considerable amount of energy will be wasted each year. Appliance Use — avoid using heavy appliances — floor sanders, and the like — during peak energy periods when schools, stores, factories are making high energy demands. In those peak hours do one big wash rather than several small ones, but better to use a washing machine at night or on weekends.

...Keep air-conditioning filters clean or air will get to places where it is not needed.

...Appliances should not be turned on and off constantly. Television requires a big power thrust. Vacuum cleaners should be kept running while furniture is moved...Remove everything you need from a refrigerator at once instead of opening and closing the door several times for one meal. For example, in the morning, remove juice, coffee, bacon, eggs, milk, butter and anything else needed. (Anyone trying to sleep can provide a perfect count on the number of times the refrigerator door bangs shut in the morning, if you need corroboration.)

...In cooking try to get mileage out of a hot burner. Electric stoves take a while to heat so after using a hot burner use it for something else that will be needed in a short time. (Bacon cooked on the coffee burner?)

Along these lines, General Electric's Consumer Institute suggests cooking potatoes and vegetables along with the roast in the oven instead of using surface units. They also advise:

A 10-year-old refrigerator may function well but if its door gasket is old and hardened, it is probably allowing cold air to leak, making the compressor work longer hours to maintain the desired interior temperature. They suggest cleaning, adjusting and replacing minor parts to conserve energy and add to the lifetime of an appliance. They also advise that a refrigerator or freezer should be shaded from direct sunlight and shouldn't be placed in tight niches with little air circulation. A hot spot can add as much as 15 per cent to the cost of operation, the institute says.

In that battle, the Battle of Britain, British pilots downed three German planes for every pilot lost. Polish pilots flying with Royal Air Force units scored four for one. Pilots in all-Polish squadrons attached to the RAF scored nine for one.

The highest scoring unit in that battle was the Polish Air Force's Kosciuszko Fighter Squadron. It downed 126 enemy planes.

In all, 154 Polish pilots fought in the Battle of Britain and 30 died in it.

A. — I could tell you, but it wouldn't do any good with the kind of table you have. The finish she is talking about is called limed oak. As the term implies, it is used principally on oak or, at least, on a wood with open pores. The limed effect is produced by filling the pores with white paint. On a wood with closed pores, it simply won't work.

Q. — Our blacktop driveway has some holes in it. The rest of the driveway is in good condition. Can I repair it myself with one of the blacktop patching materials I see advertised or does it require a special skill?

A. — Yes, provided the old siding is carefully gone over to see that it is securely attached everywhere. The one difficulty you may find is in cutting asphalt shingles. There are several ways to do this, but most of them require some skill and lots of practice. You may be better off renting an asphalt shingle cutter, which does the job easily and neatly.

For The Week Of November 18, 1973

The Daily Reflector

A Gridiron Feast

ABC will televise five games nationally, all involving top-ranked teams November 22, 23, and 24. Probably never in the history of college football will so many great teams be seen in such a short period of time.

On Thanksgiving, ABC will start the "Three Day Jubilee" by televising the Air Force-Notre Dame game. At halftime, ABC Sports will cover the special ceremonies dedicated to Frank Leahy, former Notre Dame coach, who died last June.

Some observers of college football feel that Leahy is the greatest coach of all time. He won national titles in 1943, 1946, 1947, and 1949. His 1948 and 1953 teams were ranked second.

Ironically, in 1948, it was a 14-14 tie with USC which cost the Fighting Irish the national title. And in 1953, it was another 14-14 deadlock, this time against Iowa, which cost Leahy a national title in his last year of coaching.

Thanksgiving night, ABC Sports will be at Baton Rouge to cover the Alabama-LSU game, another important clash which will have a bearing on the eventual winner of the 1973 national championship.

On Friday, Nov. 23, the cameras will be in Norman, Oklahoma, for the Nebraska-Oklahoma game. Two years ago, Nebraska came from behind on a dramatic touchdown drive in the fourth quarter to edge Oklahoma, 35-31, in what many observers feel might be the greatest game of all time. Last year, ABC covered Oklahoma's 21-14 upset. The Sooners trailed by 14 points but rallied in the second half to win.

On Saturday, Nov. 24, a doubleheader will be seen. First, Ohio State-Michigan immediately followed by USC-UCLA.

Ohio State-Michigan isn't just a game, it is a scene. Over 103,000 fans will be at Ann Arbor to see this classic.

USC-UCLA is one of the most bitter rivalries in college football. The 1967 game, won by USC, 21-20, when O. J. Simpson streaked 64 yards for a touchdown in the fourth quarter, decided the national title.

MERCURY MORRIS, running back for the Miami Dolphins, will see action against the Buffalo Bills on Thanksgiving Day.

'My Fair Lady'

"My Fair Lady," the film musical and winner of eight Academy Awards, is perhaps the most successful multi-media property in the history of show business. The film, starring Audrey Hepburn and Rex Harrison, will have its TV premiere on Thanksgiving Night, Thursday, Nov. 22 (8-11:15 PM) on Channel 6-7.

Based on George Bernard Shaw's "Pygmalion," "My Fair Lady" opened as a Broadway play during the 1955-56 season and captured the New York Drama Critics Award. The six-and-a-half year Broadway run was seen by 3,750,000 persons (60,000 of them standees), who paid $20,223,918 to see 2,717 performances.

In the story, set in class-conscious 1912 London, professor of phonetics Henry Higgins (Harrison) emerges from the Covent Garden opera house to overhear Eliza Doolittle (Miss Hepburn) a ragged flower girl, attempting to sell her wilted violets to a bystander, Colonel Pickering (Wilfrid Hyde-White).

Eliza is shocked to find Professor Higgins taking notes of her shrill, cockney speech and momentarily learns that Pickering is a student of dialects. Disdainful of Eliza, Higgins, an avowed woman-hater, boasts that under his tutelage she could become a salesgirl in a flower shop or even pass as a duchess within six months.

Eliza's imagination is fired by Higgin's suggestion and she soon invades his home offering to pay for lessons to improve her speech. Higgins is astonished. When Col. Pickering challenges him to a wager to make good his boast, he takes Eliza on as a pupil.

Stanley Holloway portrays Eliza's happy-go-lucky father, Alfred Doolittle, the role he originally created on the stage. Theodore Bikel appears as Zoltan Karpthy; Jeremy Brett plays socialite Freddy Eynsford-Hill; and Gladys Cooper appears as Professor Higgin's mother.

A number of unusual props with a great deal of history behind them were part of the filming.

—And Macy's Big Parade Colorcast

Martin Milner and Kent McCord, the popular stars of "Adam-12" series, will co-host the live colorcast of the 47th annual Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade Thursday, Nov. 22 (10 a.m. to 12 noon) on Channel 6-7.

NBC-TV's Thanksgiving Day programming will be network television's first "All-Specials Day." The traditional Macy's Parade coverage will be preceded by the colorcast of another holiday special (9-10 a.m.), and will be followed by "Magic Man" (12 noon to 1:30 p.m.); a musical adaptation of Lewis Carroll's "Through the Looking Glass" (1:30-3 p.m.); a pre-game football special (3-3:30 p.m.); a National Football League contest between the Miami Dolphins and the Dallas Cowboys (3:30-6:30 p.m.); and the TV premiere of the multi-Academy Award-winning movie, "My Fair Lady" (8-11(15 p.m.))

New York City's annual salute to the holiday season, the Macy's Parade will include celebrities riding unusual floats, the high-flying Goodyear cartoon character balloons in their only public appearance of the year. The balloons are: the 50-foot-high Linus the Lion; 58-foot-tall Smokey the Bear; the 60-foot-long Dinasauro; and the 63-foot-long Underdog.

More than 300 handlers will be necessary to man the guidelines of the helium-filled balloons as they travel the parade route down Broadway to Herald Square.

Milner, as Officer Pete Malloy, and McCord, as Officer Jim Reed, are entering their sixth year as stars of "Adam-12."

Milner has had leading roles in many motion pictures including "Marjorie Morningstar," "Sweet Smell of Success," "The Long Gray Line," and "Life With Father." He also starred for four years as Tod Stiles in the "Route 66" TV series. In addition to acting, he grows avocados commercially at his ranch near Fallbrook, Calif., where he lives with his wife, Judy, and four children.

McCord abandoned an early ambition to be a high school football coach after he became interested in acting.

Young Actress 'A Real Trouper'

A frightening experience has ended happily for young Lisa Lucas, who appears as Addie Mills in "The Thanksgiving Treasure," a family drama special to be presented Sunday, Nov. 18 (7:30-9 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Thirteen-year-old Lisa auditioned for her first professional dramatic role last year, and won the part of Addie in the acclaimed special "The House Without a Christmas Tree," presented last season on the Network. Charged with creating another story about the same Nebraska family in the 1940's, producer Alan Shayne and Gail Rock, author of the story on which the special was based, went to work on a new story for Lisa Lucas, along with Jason Robards and Mildred Natwick, who star as her father and grandmother.

Shayne, who co-authored the new story with Miss Rock, explains how part of the plot developed. "Lisa begged us to include a horse for her in the story, because she loved to ride so. We did, and the horse, Treasure, soon became an integral part of the script being written by Eleanor Perry. Lisa later became involved in selecting the horse.

"Just as we were beginning to tape the special, a woman rode into our small-town location site on a horse exactly as the script described. We knew we had to have that horse, and were delighted to find that it was also a bit of a ham in front of the camera."

Shayne relates what happened next during the taping of "The Thanksgiving Treasure." "Because Lisa was getting on so well with the horse, we decided to include a scene of them galloping through a field. They thundered down a hill, right at the camera, but we all realized that something was wrong. When the horse came to a stop right in front of the camera, Lisa made a move to dismount. But the animal was frightened and suddenly sped off in the other direction, with Lisa no longer in control.

"Lisa shouted, then fell from the horse as it galloped over the top of a hill. We ran to her and saw that her ankle was broken. She was in a great deal of pain. We rushed her to a hospital, where the doctor was afraid that surgery might be needed to repair the number of small bones that had broken in her ankle."

Lisa now remembers the accident calmly. "I know I'll be a little nervous as first," she admits, "but the closer I get to being out of this cast, the more I think about riding again."

For Lisa Lucas, it's autographs and get-well wishes from (l to r) Jason Robards, director Paul Bogart and producer Alan Shayne, after she accidentally fell from a horse while starring in "The Thanksgiving Treasure," a family drama special to be presented Sunday, Nov. 18 (7:30-9 p.m.) on CBS Channel 3N-9-11.

TEENAGE DECORATING

If you have a teenage daughter with an eye for color and a penchant for picking fabrics and furniture, then let her do her own "thing" in decorating. Doing up her room the way she wants it can be a fun project for both of you. Especially if you restrict yourself to coordinating and advising and let her be the creative force. Most teenage girls have well developed personal tastes in home furnishings as well as clothes. They know what they want, in colors, styles, type of furniture and accessories. Creating her own "have now" is good practice.

We have a large collection of carpeting bound to suit your teenager's fancy as well as your own. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

Ken Berry To Serve As MC

Ken Berry, actor, comedian, song-and-dance man and motorcycle buff, is making a debut.

Berry who starred on the network series "Mayberry R.F.D.," will be seen for the first time as a master of ceremonies when he hosts the 13th annual "Miss Teenage American Pageant," to be broadcast live from Ft. Worth Tex., Saturday, Nov. 24 (10-11:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

Carol's Talent Shines

When Carol Burnett stars as Princess Winnifred in "Once Upon a Mattress," to be rebroadcast on Sunday, Nov. 18 (9-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11, it will not be the first time that Miss Burnett has displayed her gift for satirical comedy.

In order to marry Prince Dauntless, Carol has to undergo a "sensitivity test." She must detect one tiny pea as she reclines upon a towering pile of mattresses. If Princess Winnifred passes the test, devised by Queen Agravaing, the overbearing, aggressive mother of Prince Dauntless, she may join the Prince in the land of happy-ever-after.

Miss Burnett's natural satirical talent has been showcased in countless ways on her own show on the network. In the past, she has satirized old movie queens, harried housewives and everything in between on "The Carol Burnett Show." She has appeared as Wanda Sue, the television weather girl, in a spoof of "The Very Friendly News Team." As Honey Bunny in a rags-to-riches romp, she went from an orphanage to stardom.

As a head nurse in an episode of "Terminal Hospital," Miss Burnett has used her gift of satire to solve all kinds of problems and cure all kinds of illness. In addition, she has poked friendly fun at politics and has portrayed the distaff side of a marriage that seemed to have been made in environs far from heaven.

Miss Burnett has also made the most of a full-length spoof of a musical when for a full hour she joined Harvey Korman, Lyle Waggoner and Vicki Lawrence in the tribulations of "The Dolly Sisters," who progress from singing waitresses in a small New York cafe to Broadway

"The Three Musketeers," Alexandre Dumas' famous 19th century adventure novel of intrigue, will be seen as an animated special on CBS, Friday, Nov. 23 (4:30-5:30 p.m.) in the "Famous Classic Tales" series on Channel 3N-9.

Jules Verne's Classic On TV

When Jules Verne's classic adventure, "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," is broadcast on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 22 (3:30-4:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9, as part of the "Famous Classic Tales" series of animated specials, the program will be another instance of renewed interest in the author's works.

This re-awakening of interest is due partly to the spectacular films based on his stories, and partly to a realization, in these days of space flight, that we are living in a Vernian world of wonders.

Too, there is an apparent return to one of the great themes of literature, the story of strong, adventurous and self-disciplined heroes who display dogged determination and stalwart courage in facing peril for the sake of a worthy ideal.

A lofty moral idealism always imbued Verne's novels. In fact, there is some similarity in Verne's novels. In fact, there is some similarity in Vern's writing to those of Joseph Conrad, who celebrated the soldierly virtues of courage, self-control and honor in such novels as "Lord Jim," "The Secret Sharer" and "Typhoon." Verne once said, "At heart, my uncle Jules had only three passions: freedom, music and the sea."

In "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," its hero Captain Nemo, sympathizes, as did Verne, with revolts against tyranny; he subsidizes the Cretans in their rising against the Turks, with treasures looted from a Spanish galleon sunk in Vigo Bay.

Like Verne, Captain Nemo loves the sea, not only for itself, but because it represents all he values most: "The sea is everything. Its breath is pure and healthy. Here man is never lonely, for on all sides he feels life astir. The sea does not belong to despots. Upon its surface men can still make unjust laws, fight, tear one another to pieces, wage wars of terrestrial horror. But at 30 feet below, their reign ceases, their influence is quenched, and their power disappears. An, sir, live—live in the bosom of the waters. There along I recognize no master! There I am free!"

Jules Verne's work is characterized by unglagging industry (those soldierly virtues again) versatility, descriptive powers. His imagination was bounded only by his love of accuracy and, above all, by the lofty moral idealism which inspired his work.

Sander Vanocur A Duke Fellow

A Duke University announcement that Sander Vanocur, former White House Correspondent and TV newscaster is joining Duke's faculty is not quite true, according to Vanocur.

He said that he would direct the activities of a number of eminent journalists who will be invited to the campus four times during the coming year as Duke Fellows in Communication.

"But I definitely have not been hired by Duke, and I do not have a faculty position there." Vanocur said from his Washington office.

"If they've announced that, it's a little premature. We have been talking but we haven't finalized things yet."

"But I definitely will have an association with the Duke Fellows program, and I'm looking forward to that." Vanocur currently is a consultant for the Center For the Study of Democratic Institutions at Santa Barbara, Calif.

Actresses To Visit Dinah This Week

The woman's touch is added to Thanksgiving week colorcasts of "Dinah's Place," starring Dinah Shore, with visits from actresses Natalie Wood, Barbara Rush and Betty Ann Carr, Nov. 19-23 (10-10:30 a.m.).

Monday, Nov. 19 — Dinah gives her personal advice on enhancing Thanksgiving: frosted grapes for an edible centerpiece. Butcher Merle Ellis shows how to bone a chicken and suggests an elegant, but easy, stuffed chicken entree. Sewing expert Carol Bird shows how to make a caftan in a few hours.

Recreated By Flip Wilson

"Clerow Wilson and the Miracle of P.S. 14," the animated special in which Flip Wilson recreates his childhood trials, tribulations and triumphs, will be colorcast again on Monday, Nov. 19 (8:30-9 p.m.) on Channel 6-7. The star of "The Flip Wilson Show" hosts the special and provides voices for several of the characters.

TALKS TURKEY—Fat Broad orders B. C. to find a turkey for her recipe for rock soup in the animated special, "B. C. The First Thanksgiving," Monday, Nov. 10, on NBC (in color, 8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7. The show is based on Johnny Hart's popular comic strip characters.

Johnny Hart Tells Own Story

Most personalities have press agents who write their biographies. Not so John L. Hart. He writes his own.
 Hart is the creator of the comic strip "B. C.," which is being transferred to television as a half-hour animated special, "B.C. The First Thanksgiving Monday (8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.
 "Grade Ann and Irwin James Hart are two of the finest people I have ever know," writes Hart, of his parents. "I met them for the first time in the predawn hours of Feb. 18, 1931, in a small, obscure town "in New York".
 "School to me was a place to have fun, so I majored in that," Hart writes of his education. "It offered only three subjects for which I held any interest—arts, sports, and girls.
 Hart joined the U. S. Air Force "and visited three wonderful countries — Texas, Georgia and Korea. While in Georgia in 1952, I met and married an alluring lass named Bobby. That was a very good year."

 After the Air Force, Hart turned to cartooning for a living. After four months, he was selling to The Saturday Evening Post, True Magazine, Colliers, Bluebook and others.
 "Sales became fewer and further apart. I was faltering decidedly. Confidence turned quickly to despondency."
 He went to work in the art department of General Electric for two years.
 "It was during this period that I began to read with astonishment a comic strip called 'Peanuts,' by Charles M. Schulz. It gave me the inspiration to try a comic strip." One of his GE cronies, "who know how I loved to do cavemen gags."

Talk about type-casting. Marla Adams, who stars as Belle Kincaid on "The Secret Storm" weekdays is making her nighttime television debut—in the role of a daytime-drama actress. She has a guest-star role in "Those Who Care," a sort of show within a show, spoofing daytime drama, on "The New Dick Van Dyke Show" Monday, Nov. 19 (9:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

'The Hospital' Sunday Night

George C. Scott stars in "The Hospital," a black comedy of the realities of life (and many peculiar deaths) in a big city medical center, which will be the "ABC Sunday Night Movie," Nov. 18 (8:30-10:30 PM) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Charles Champlin in the Los Angeles Times said, "the comedy is informed by a sense of the non-comic realities of their (hospital personnel) jobs, the real pressures, the real distresses," in describing the screenplay, for which Paddy Chayefsky won an Academy Award.

Diana Rigg is co-starred in the film which was directed by Arthur Hiller.

Pauline Kael called it "one of the few enjoyable new movies...low comedy, to be sure, but funny and lively." Judith Crist said "Don't fail to see 'The Hospital'... (apart from) providing true comedy of the absurd (it is) one of the most critics felt deserved yet another Oscar nomination, plays Dr. Bock, the disillusioned and self-disgusted Chief of Medicine in a giant metropolitan hospital complex.

"In this story, his day begins with the discovery that an intern (whose incorrect diagnosis let a patient die) is dead himself of an accidental overdose of glucose, administered while the intern was sneaking a nap in a patient's bed.

Contemplating suicide because of his personal failures and disgust with his staff, Bock next learns that a young pathologist has died of an apparent heart attack in the crowded emergency room. Then he learns of a patient who came in with a very minor ailment and is now almost dead due to a series of three near-fatal errors by three incompetent "specialists."

Enough becomes too much. Bock grants permission to an Apache witch doctor to try to save the patient the staff has almost killed, and goes to his office to eliminate himself permanently.

There, the patient's free-spirited daughter (Diana Rigg) provides several excellent reasons for living, and Bock goes back to straighten out the madhouse around him. His further investigation proves that there is something more than inefficiency behind the sudden rash of peculiar deaths.

'Duel At Diablo' Set

James Garner and Sidney Poitier star as two men who fought each other one day and now fight together to stay alive in "Duel at Diablo," Western adventure on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies" Thursday, Nov. 22 (9-11 p.m.) in color, on Channel 3N-11. Dennis Weaver, Bibi Anderson and Bill Travers also appear in the film.

Jess Remsberg, a frontier scout, rescues a white woman from the Apache tribe holding her captive and returns her to her husband. Motivated by his will to avenge the murder of his own wife, Jess agrees to scout for the Army while he tracks his man, with his suspicions falling on Toller, an Army horsebreaker. Jess is determined not to let the man out of his sight—or his gunshots. But the two are forced to fight together in a deadly Indian battle with their back against the wall of Diablo Canyon.

'Cotton Comes To Harlem'

Godfrey Cambridge and Raymond St. Jacques star in "Cotton Comes to Harlem," the first of the current wave of popular black detective films, to be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" Nov. 19 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

In the story, the Reverend Deke O'Malley (Calvin Lockhart) sponsors a mammoth barbecue in the heart of New York's Harlem to give would-be investors the opportunity to put their hard-earned funds in his "Back to Africa" movement.

Police detectives Gravedigger Jones (Cambridge) and Coffin Ed Johnson (St. Jacques) immediately begin an investigation of the shady scheme.

O'Malley raises a small fortune at the affair, but before he can make his getaway, ex-convict Calhoun (J. D. Cannon) has made off with the loot. When Coffin and Digger catch up with the crooks, neither has the money, and a sprinted search is on.

Sponsors Drop New TV Shows

A lot of people have a hand in planning the programs that appear on your TV screen: producers, managers, programming experts, network executives.

But practically no sponsored program (except the news) appears without the client's okay. Occasionally, a sponsor might take a completely detached view and pick up the tab for a program that is controversial, of limited audience appeal or in some other way off-beat. But this is rare.

The common practice is for the sponsor or his advertising agency to stamp an okay on each program before it goes on.

If they do not like what they see, or if the ratings are not up to expectations, then out it goes—permanently if some other sponsor can't be persuaded to underwrite it.

Among the new shows to be dropped in January are: "Perry Mason," "Calucci's Dept.," and "Roll Out."

HIGGINS X 1,007

Rex Harrison, who portrayed Professor Henry Higgins 1,006 times on the New York and London stages, played the role for the 1,007th and last time in the film version of "My Fair Lady," to be colorcast Nov. 22. The film won eight Academy Awards.

Acting Is A Business To Curtis

He's a true movie star and a veteran of some 60 feature films among them some of the industry's biggest money-makers. But Tony Curtis is inclined to view acting as more of a business than an art.

"An actor could starve to death, and some do, waiting for the right artistic outlet," he says. "We're really just part of a product. If we're lucky, all the elements combine to make it into an art."

That's why Curtis doesn't draw a dividing line between movie, television or stage work. And why he makes a rare dramatic television appearance as special guest star in "Hit-Run" on "Shaft," starring Richard Roundtree, Tuesday, Nov. 20 (9:30-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

He plays the ruthless owner of an illegal gambling club that is the scene of murder, extortion and double-dealing in the world of losing bettors.

Dr. Doolittle For Holiday

Rex Harrison stars as the lovable doctor who has delighted generations of children and adults alike in "Doctor Doolittle," the full family film which fills Thanksgiving Eve, as an ABC Special Motion Picture Presentation on Wednesday, Nov. 21 (8-11 p.m.) on Channel 3-5.
 Honored with nine Academy Award nominations, this major motion picture, based on the characters created in the books by Hugh Lofting, takes the gentle doctor through adventures with such animals as the Giant Pink Sea Snail, the Giant Lunar Moth and — the hit of the movie — the beloved Pushmi-Pullyu, a two-headed llama.

A Time To Remember

"JFK — A Time to Remember," an affectionate and revealing recollection of John Fitzgerald Kennedy, the boy, the man, and the President, ten years after his tragic death, will be a special presentation of the "ABC Wide World of Entertainment," Wednesday, Nov. 21 (11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m.), on the eve of the anniversary of his assassination.

Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy, the last President's mother, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, his brother, and Eunice Kennedy Shriver, his sister, recount their personal remembrances in interviews videotaped at the family compound in Hyannis, Mass., where John Kennedy spent many summers of his life.

The interviews are conducted by Tom Jarriel, White House Correspondent, and Bob Clark, Correspondent on Capitol Hill, who also journeyed to the temporary site of the John F. Kennedy Memorial Library in Waltham, Mass., where Kennedy memorabilia is being collected and stored.

Dave Powers, who was special assistant to the President in the Kennedy Administration and who was riding in the motorcade behind Kennedy on that tragic day in Dallas, Nov. 22, 1963, and who is curator of the Memorial Library, tells of his experiences as an eyewitness to the fatal shooting.

'Magic Man' Colorcast On Thursday

"Magic Man," a 90-minute special featuring some of the world's greatest magicians in every conceivable type of magic act, will be colorcast on Thursday, Nov. 22 (12 noon - 1:30 p.m.) on Channel 6, as part of NBC's "All-Specials Day." Bill Bixby, star of "The Magician," will be the host.

The program will be taped in NBC's color studios in Brooklyn, N. Y., before an audience of over a hundred children — wearing costumes they devised themselves — who will appear on camera. In an unusual conception, the cameramen also will appear on the TV screen. Costumes are being designed for them and decorative heads are being created to be attached to the cameras.

The audience of costumed children will sit on a magic island surrounded by clouds. There will be five satellite stages encircling the island where the magicians will perform their feats.

Acts involving animals, cards, birds, elevation, box illusion, escape, fire, juggling, comedy and umbrellas will be included.

'Our Gang' Actor Is Back Again

The character of Otis in the "A House Is Not a Poolroom" segment of "Sanford and Son," to be colorcast on Friday, Nov. 23 (8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 6-7 has a very famous face, but the face has scarcely been seen publicly for nearly 30 years.

Otis is played by Mathew Beard Jr., who was Stymie, the derby-hatted urchin in the old "Our Gang" comedies back in the 1930's. Now 48, Mat has been out of show business since he was 19, when addiction to narcotics halted his career.

Beard did the Stymie role from age 5 to 10 and had parts in several motion pictures including "Jezebel," "Prisoner of Shark Island" and "Captain Blood," as well as roles on radio shows such as "Lux Radio Theatre" and "Silver Screen Theatre."

But in his late teens, he succumbed to hard drugs. "However," he said, "I don't blame Hollywood for my problem; it was just the experiences of youth. The same thing could have happened to me anywhere."

- 9:00 (3N,9,11) CBS Friday Night Movie: "To Sir, With Love" Sidney Poitier. Warm and beautiful story of a novice teacher in a tough London school who tries to instill discipline, self-respect and self-control in his students. (repeat, 2 hrs)

'Pinafore' On Friday

An exciting new chapter opens in the world-famous Gilbert and Sullivan comic operas when the D'Oyly Carte production of "H.M.S. Pinafore," on the "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People," is broadcast Friday, Nov. 23 (3-4:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11. Richard Thomas, who stars as John-Boy on "The Waltons" will be host-narrator.

With the renowned D'Oyly Carte Opera Company's centenary waiting in the wings — it will be celebrated in March 1975 — an agreement has been reached between the company and Sir Lew Grade, of England's ATV, for exclusive television productions of the company's Gilbert and Sullivan presentations.

The November 23 broadcast on the Network, hosted and narrated by Richard Thomas, is the first taping in the planned series of distinguished comic operas.

"Pinafore" was an apt choice for the initial production, for Sir Arthur Sullivan's inimitable score, coupled with Sir William Gilbert's uproarious story about the shenanigans aboard H. M. S. Pinafore, has long been one of the most popular G&S shows with American audiences.

It was also one of the earliest Gilbert and Sullivan successes in London, where it opened on May 25, 1878.

UCLA To Meet USC

The University of Southern California (USC) will meet the University of California Los Angeles (UCLA) Saturday in a traditional cross-town clash. This super contest usually determines the Pacific - 8 Conference Champion and the West Coast representative to the Rose Bowl. The game will be aired on channels 3, 5 and 12.

Both USC and UCLA rank among the most elite college football powers in America. They each possess outstanding athletes with exceptional offensive prowess.

UCLA is led by record-breaking right half Kermit Johnson, holder of UCLA's one game and full-season rushing records. James McAlister also returns to join Johnson in the Bruin backfield to form one of the most explosive running attacks in the nation.

The USC Trojans will also field an extremely awesome offense centered around their sensational All-America Anthony Davis. Davis emerged as the most exciting and biggest name collegian last season when he led the Trojans to the national championship and a Rose Bowl victory over Ohio State.

Anthony starred in three nationally televised games against UCLA, Notre Dame, and Ohio State.

Part II Of 'Stowaway' On Saturday

Part II of "Stowaway in the Sky," acclaimed French film written and directed by the late Albert Lamorisse, will be broadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, Nov. 24 (1-2 PM on Channel 9-11).

The adventures of an eccentric aeronaut (Albert Gille), who wagers he can fly across France in a free balloon, and his grandson (Pascal Lamorisse) the stowaway of the film's title, continue as the balloon drifts toward the French Alps, over the lush cattle country.

When a forest fire causes the airmen to lose their craft, Tou-Tou (Maurice Baquet), who has been trailing them on the ground, comes to their rescue with a spare balloon he has been carrying in his touring car. Shortly, the boy and his grandfather are airborne again to continue their whimsical adventure.

Filling Cowboy 'Holes'

"Our defense is set up so that it's a team defense," says Lee Roy Jordan, "not an individual defense."

"You're going to leave some holes open sometimes. You've just got to be able to cover them up most of the time."

The responsibility of covering up those holes rests to a great extent on the shoulder pads of the Cowboys' veteran linebacker crew — Jordan in the middle, Dave Edwards on the strong side and D. D. Lewis on the weak side.

Since, as Jordan says, it is not an "individual defense," individual honors have been scarce for Dallas linebackers. Jordan has played in three Pro Bowls and made All-Pro once. Edwards has been shut out. Lewis is in his first year as a starter after four seasons of backing up Chuck Howley.

(Howley, the most-honored Cowboys linebacker ever with six Pro Bowls and six All-Pro years to his credit, agreed in September to come out of retirement and be available should one of the starters be injured.)

Despite the lace of All-Pro certificates, the Dallas linebackers are highly respected by their opponents.

"They're so quick, and know so well what they want to do," said Miami Coach Don Shula after Super Bowl VI, "it's awfully hard to force them into a mistake."

Although D. D. Lewis is the newest member of the starting linebacking corps, he's no newcomer to the Dallas system. "It's not like I was a rookie, trying to absorb everything all at once," says D. D. "This is my fifth year and I've been learning right along."

Tom Landry already had gone on record, in the summer of '72, as saying Lewis, "could start for anybody." The long wait behind Chuck Howley before getting his starting berth never seemed to bother D. D., who kept busy as captain of the Cowboys' special teams and always was ready to move in when a starter was injured.

Prior to the 1972 NFL season, Lewis was asked if he had considered asking to be traded rather than continue in a backup role for the then World Champion Cowboys.

"No, I'll stay right here," said Lewis, "I just think that by staying in Dallas I'll be a starting linebacker on a championship team."

"I was one of 14 children," recalls D. C., "and the bigger ones ate first. Then, if we had company, all of us kids would just have to wait until the grownups finished eating. I know how to wait."

Lewis appears to be receiving the dividends of his patience. He is now the starting Right Linebacker for the Dallas Cowboys, who are currently engaged in a fierce battle with the Washington Redskins for the NFC Eastern Division Championship.

That leaves only the question of Lewis' initials. They stand for Dwight Douglas.

Asked if he were named after Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur, D. D. replied: "I don't think that's what my mother had in mind. I had 13 brothers and sisters, and we were running out of names. It was either Dwight Douglas or go to numbers."

D. D. Lewis (6-1, 225) linebacker for the Dallas Cowboys has stepped in for the retired All-Pro Chuck Howley. Landry had said, "Lewis could start for anybody," long before Howley retired. Today we find Lewis starting for not "just anybody" but for the Dallas Cowboys as they meet those tough Miami Dolphins on Thanksgiving Day, Thursday Nov. 22, in Dallas on Channels 6-7. This game will remind many of their Super Bowl VI meeting and could well be a preview of Super Bowl VIII.

Redskins And Lions To Clash

The Washington Redskins invade the den of the Detroit Lions in a national Football League Thanksgiving Day battle to be broadcast nationally on Thursday, Nov. 22 beginning at 12:30 p.m., on Channel 3N-9-11.

Ray Scott, play by play, and Pat Summerall, analyst, cover the action from Tiger Stadium, Detroit, Mich.

"The NFL Today," 30-minute pre-game program beginning at 12:00 noon, will feature a segment focusing on Joe Paterno, head coach of Penn State, in which Paterno reveals his reasons for not accepting a lucrative offer to coach the New England Patriots in the NFL, and his philosophies on football and life which Paterno tries to relate to his players at Penn State.

The Redskins, Eastern Division leaders in the NFC, with a won-lost record of 5 and 2 and defending National Football Conference champions, go into the contest with last year's NFC rushing champion Larry Brown, who rushed for 1,216 yards. Veteran quarterback Sonny Jurgensen and Bill Kilmer are the "chuckers" and signal callers behind the Redskin offense. Charley Taylor is the premier receiver for the Redskins.

Sunday TV Features Francis Speight

Francis Speight became a revered painter, an award-winning realist whose works hang in permanent collections of the Metropolitan Museum, the Pennsylvania Academy and the Art Gallery of Toronto, to name a few.

The artist in residence at East Carolina University will be featured on "North Carolina: The Arts", Sunday, November 18 at 7:30 p.m. on UNC-TV, Channel 25.

Born in 1896 in Bertie County, Francis Speight became the first North Carolina artist to be honored with a one-man exhibit at the North Carolina Museum of Art.

"In Francis Speight we see a thing that is unique," says the museum's curator Ben F. Williams. His uniqueness in his interest in realism—with certain impressionist tendencies here and there."

While his contemporaries followed more fashionable trends in art, Francis Speight, in his quiet and gentle way, pursued his interest in landscapes. As a teacher and student for 40 years at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts, the oldest art school in the country and one of the best known, he enjoyed painting in the Manayunk-Roxborough area of the Schuylkill Valley near Philadelphia. He has been called the dean of the Manayunk for making that half-urban-half-suburban part of the city poetic.

"Perhaps he likes this region because it seems to move at his own deliberate pace," says Williams. "In his paintings of the area, figures walk down the middle of the street, and, if there are cars, they seem to be at a standstill and do not get in the way of the more important picture-building elements—tone, simplicity and weight of the stone and stucco houses which have become identified with his work."

Speight says the "height and depth of the landscape" interested him because his childhood was spent "in eastern North Carolina where it was fairly flat."

The youngest of a large family, Speight's childhood was spent on the farm of his mother's family. His father, a Baptist preacher, employed a teacher for his and neighboring families, and the young boy's first five years of education were in the schoolhouse in the yard. After high school in Lewiston, Francis studied for two years at Wake Forest College. There he wrote stories and rhymes for the student magazine and drew cartoons for the newspaper, "Old Gold and Black", and the annual.

Filed on location in Bertie County, Greenville and Pennsylvania, the University Television program on Francis Speight lets the artist tell the story of his art and himself.

"I find that besides painting... my thoughts run much more to matters having to do with sociology, I guess, theology or something of that sort," he says.

'Alice' Back In Carroll Classic

"Alice Through the Looking Glass," featuring a cast of major stars in a musical treatment of the renowned classic "Through the Looking Glass" by Lewis Carroll, will have a repeat colorcast Thanksgiving Day, Thursday, Nov. 22 (1:30-3 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Starring (alphabetically) are Roy Castle as Lester the Jester; Robert Coote as the Red King; Richard Denning as Alice's father; Jimmy Durante as Humpty Dumpty; Nanette Fabray as the White Queen; Ricardo Montalban as the White King; Agnes Moorehead as the Red Queen; Jack Palace as the Jabberwock; Judi Rolin as Alice; and Smothers Brothers as Tweedledum (Tom) and Tweedledee (Dick). Twenty-four dancers join the principals in the musical numbers.

"There are so many things I want to find out about."

In his speech and in his paintings, Francis Speight is wary of overstatement. "Simplicity, which some painters may acquire with much work and with much thought, was built into Francis' character and reflected in his work," says his friend and fellow artist Franklin Watkins.

"Perhaps it is for this that he seems to abhor novel subject matter—an essential with some artists—and he has painted the same few acres of streets and hills and buildings over and over again. But always with more confidence, always with variety and with a continuing delight that his growing strength in expression allows us all to share."

New Family Series Set

"Apple's Way," a new family television series by the creative team responsible for "The Waltons," is being readied as an hour-long weekly presentation to premiere Sunday, Feb. 10 (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on CBS, it was announced by Robert D. Wood, President of the Network.

"Apple's Way will replace 'The New Perry Mason,' currently broadcast in this time period."

"Apple's Way," created by Earl Hamner, concerns a successful 40-year-old Los Angeles architect who returns with his wife and four children to live in his hometown of Appleton, Iowa.

"The impressive welcome accorded 'The Waltons,'" said Mr. Wood, "has shown us that there is enormous audience receptivity to another program series containing the same human values. 'Apple's Way' is just such a program, except that it deals with these values in an entirely different manner. Happily, we've been able to tap the same creative resources that gave us 'The Waltons' for 'Apple's Way.'

"Because we feel that 'Apple's Way' will have such a universal appeal, we have scheduled the series at 7:30 p.m. on Sunday, a time that traditionally attracts maximum family viewing."

Commenting on the forthcoming series, Hamner said: "At a time when our country is approaching its 200th birthday it is appropriate that we present to the American people an affirmation of those values which have sustained us during those 200 years."

FOR HARRY REASONER, ABC News

You recently did on-the-spot reporting of the desolation and starvation in Africa. How did this affect you personally, knowing that you could walk out and that the natives couldn't?—Ralph R. Bell, Escondido, Calif.

● This question confronts most journalists throughout their careers. I remember, for example, departing from an outpost in Vietnam after spending some time with the U.S.

Marines who were holding the post under siege. I had gotten to know the men personally, and I knew what they had been through and what they would endure after I was safely back in Saigon. I suppose my feelings toward the West African drought victims were about the same as my feelings toward the Marines. You always leave that kind of situation with one hope—that you can communicate to others what the conditions are and what the people there are enduring. You want to produce in your audience the empathy you felt when you were there. If a journalist can do these two things, then I think he has done his job well.

FOR SEN. JAMES B. PEARSON (R-Kan.)

I see you've asked for a congressional study of the big newsprint shortage. Can't the press take care of itself?—D. R., Salina, Kan.

● It shouldn't have to—since for many people, particularly those who live in sparsely populated or isolated areas, the daily or weekly newspaper is the single most important source of information available. A severe newsprint shortage over a period of six months could destroy a large number of these publications.

FOR JEANE DIXON, clairvoyant

Did you at one time foresee the Robert F. Kennedy assassination?—Mike Schueler, Winona, Minn.

● I definitely picked up certain thought waves that I interpreted as warnings of Senator Kennedy's assassination, although these events evolved from man-made thoughts and plans that were subject to change. I do not believe that Senator Kennedy's death was destined, as was John F. Kennedy's.

FOR KAREN BLACK

I read somewhere that you have ESP. Is that true?—J. F., Stockton, Calif.

● I think most people do, without realizing it. I don't know how many times I will pick up the phone before it rings and there's someone on the other end. Recently I called an expectant girl friend because I "knew" she was about to have the baby. She said no, it wasn't time. She called me back 45 minutes later and said yes, she was having her baby.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

You seem so much taller than most performers. Does this present problems?—S. A. Q., Council Bluffs, Iowa

● I'm five-feet-seven, and it used to be a problem when I was a ballet dancer. It's still an obstacle for some of the male dancers I need for my act. I won't even audition one who is under six feet.

FOR WILLIAM CONRAD, TV's "Cannon"

Do the producers of your show want you to take off weight?—James W. Helein, Appleton, Wis.

● No, they like me as is, but I want to take it off on my own. On the other hand, if I got to what I should be, the show would go down the drain.

FOR DARRELL ROYAL, head football coach at the University of Texas

You seem to discourage your players from going into pro football. Why?—Mrs. Lela Owens, Havelock, N.C.

● I'm not knocking pro athletes who have the talent to be in the high-money brackets. I'm talking about the marginal players, who barely make the pro ranks, hang on for awhile, then learn when they retire that they have neither financial security nor stability. I'd like to see our boys with something on the ball channel their intelligence elsewhere.

FOR VICKI LAWRENCE, singer

Did your hit record, "The Night the Lights Went Out in Georgia," cause any adverse reaction from people in Georgia?—Terry Hull, Quincy, Ill.

● On the contrary, Southerners in general, and people from Georgia in particular, have been my best fans. As you may know, Sonny Bono turned down the song for Cher because he said it would not sit well with Southerners. But I was thrilled with the reaction in the South, particularly in Nashville and Atlanta, where the record broke first.

FOR SEN. HERMAN E. TALMADGE (D-Ga.), chairman of the Senate Agriculture Committee

Are cotton growers in the chips again? I hear prices have tripled since last year.—S. T., Albany, Ga.

● You're right—but it is not the farmers who will benefit. It is the speculators who will make all the big profits. Wild speculation and the attempts of some buyers to corner the cotton market are largely responsible for these runaway prices.

FOR DEREK MILLER, University of Michigan psychiatrist
Why do you say that the Women's Liberation Movement is contributing to psychological disturbances in adolescents?—Mrs. Laurene Mills, Hobart, Ind.

● Parts of the Women's Liberation Movement seem to believe roles in the family should be the same for men and women. But if both father and mother behave in an equally motherly way, adolescents struggling for independence from mothering can find no support within the family. To quarrel with both parents at the same time over the same issue leaves children without emotional support, a common cause of running away and drug dependence.

Ten Years After His Death:

"I Remember the Magic That Lived When Jack Kennedy Was Alive"

By Kenneth O'Donnell

Pictorial Parade

"On the evening of his first TV debate with Nixon, I asked the senator about Nixon's ability as a debater. He smiled and said, 'Excellent, as long as an opponent isn't present in the same room with him.'"

On November 22, this Thursday, it will be ten years since Dallas, where he was shot. But it has been 28 years since I first met John F. Kennedy.

It was in the spring of 1945, and the words "Camelot" and "charisma" would have been a bad fit then on this young man who had just decided to run for Congress. He was gaunt from his war injuries in the Solomon Islands and the back injury he received there kept him in almost continuous pain. He told me briefly why he was running and asked for my help in a forthright fashion.

The seat he challenged had been held by his grandfather, the celebrated Honey Fitz, and by James Michael Curley as well. The district itself was highly political, composed of hard-working people whose loyalties were to church, family and politics—in that order. The wealthy John F. Kennedy from Harvard was not of their mould.

Bobby Kennedy met with me and I told him: "Bob, he can't win. I'll help, but it's personal. I don't think he can win." He did win; he had the courage and willingness to knock on every door and accept insults without a backward step. Little by little, he drew the grudging admiration of these people to whom courage was a most respected virtue.

He never forgot the 11th District of Massachusetts. Sixteen years later, when he was President, we sat at his swimming pool and Dave Powers told him that Matty Loftus—a bartender who had been one of his first supporters—had had a heart attack. The President said, "Call him." Long after that, Matty told me how the phone rang, how there was curiosity at the bar. And then Matty told them. "It's Jack," he said, "the President."

After three terms in the House, he went after a seat in the U.S. Senate, a seat held by Henry Cabot Lodge, who was considered unbeatable. But, of course, JFK won. And in his first year as senator, he married Jacqueline Bouvier, but was also forced to subject himself to a critical operation on his spine.

In 1956, he became one of the leading candidates for Vice President at the Chicago convention. A good showing would help him at home but a bad defeat would be embarrassing. When the Louisiana delegation caucused and voted to support him, Bobby called his father in France while Jack watched. Joe Kennedy was angry about Jack running at all—and got so mad he turned the air blue around the telephone. Bob looked at his brother and laughed. "He is the only man in the world," said Bobby, "who can sever a transatlantic cable by voice alone."

Kennedy lost the nomination, but he made an unbelievable showing and impressed everyone with his grace in defeat.

The polls in 1956 and 1957 showed a surprising thing—that Kennedy was the presidential choice of Democratic voters. But Jack knew he had to prove his acceptability to the voters.

His religion was a "problem"—and he went against everybody's advice when he made it an issue in the streets of Morgantown, W. Va. To this highly patriotic people, he spoke of his war record and said that neither his religion nor any veteran's religion had ever been questioned in those dark days of the Republic. I was standing in the crowd, stunned by hearing him confront the issue. The spectators were coal miners and steelworkers, most of whom had come out of curiosity to see this boy from Boston. Their comments were exciting. One fellow looked at his friend and said, "Good-looking fellow and a nice talker." The reply was, "Yup, gutsy fellow, too," and a third man said, "I kind of like him."

Back in our car, I told him what I had heard. The senator looked out the window and said, "I made a bet and I won. The people are fair." Religion for the moment was set to rest.

After his nomination, the campaigning was much tougher, with 20 to 30 speeches a day. But at each stop one could almost sense that the senator was projecting his coming administration as the beginning of an adventure.

At one stop in California, Gov. Pat Brown asked a bystander to hold his coat. As the train pulled out, the Governor looked back at his lost jacket and panicked a bit. "He's got my coat," he told Jack—and JFK replied: "Pat, throw him the pants; he might as well have the whole suit."

On the evening of his first TV debate with Nixon, I asked the senator about Nixon's ability as a debater. He smiled and said, "Excellent, as long as an opponent isn't present in the same room with him." Jack must have won the debates, for he won the election that followed.

After the Inauguration ended—in the bitter cold and snow—an agent tapped me on the shoulder. "The President wants you and Mr. Powers in his bedroom at 10 p.m.," he said. We obeyed. Jack strode into the room,

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

But I didn't start making big money until I did less—a lot less.

For example, this ad took about 2 hours to write. With a little luck, it should earn me 50, maybe a hundred thousand dollars.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more.

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you the world's most unusual guarantee?

And here it is: I won't even cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material.

That'll give you plenty of time to get it, look it over, try it out.

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

And I'm already going to give you the biggest bargain of your life.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K.—now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary—to prove that sending me the 10 dollars... which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied... is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $100,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid it off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it—cash.

I have 2 boats and a Cadillac. All paid for.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

And I'll show you just how I did it—the Lazy Man's Way—a secret that I've shared with just a few friends 'til now.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that—nothing more, nothing less—the results will be hard to believe. Remember—I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again—I guarantee it.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and an 8-cent stamp. But what if I'm right?

Joe, you may be full of beans, but what have I got to lose? Send me the Lazy Man's Way to Riches. But don't deposit my check or money order for 31 days after it's in the mail.

If I return your material—for any reason—within that time, return my uncashed check or money order to me. On that basis, here's my ten dollars.

Please send Air Mail. I'm enclosing an extra dollar.

Kennedy

divesting himself of the day's fineries as he walked. Then he lay down on the bed and said, "At last I have a home. Jackie's right here, I can even go home for lunch with Caroline and John. That's beautiful. But best of all, I won't have you two staring at me at 7 o'clock every morning telling me to get up." The new President fell asleep. At 7 a.m. I awakened him. He stared at me incredulously and said, "Get out." I said, "Sir, the staff awaits you for assignment."

"Who called this outrage at this hour?" he asked. I said, "The President." He looked at me, sat up sharply and said, "Hey, that's me. OK, get my breakfast."

Khrushchev, during the early part of the Presidency, became more belligerent. The Soviet Union broke the Nuclear Treaty that it had solemnly signed with the U.S. The Russian Premier had told Eisenhower in 1959 that he intended to absorb Berlin into East Germany and recognize it as a sovereign nation. President Kennedy and Mr. Khrushchev agreed to try to solve the problem in Vienna.

The President sent me to Vienna to prepare the agenda with the Russians. They told me that Mr. Khrushchev was arriving by sealed train and that Kennedy should do the same. I said that the President would fly, that he enjoyed the crowd and that we would make our own decisions. The Russians got our point—the contrast of Kennedy arriving to a happy open reception while the Russians sneaked in during the dead of night. The Soviets also had "decided" to have Mr. Kennedy lay a wreath on the tomb of the unknown soldier in Vienna. But the President and Mrs. Kennedy wanted to attend services at St. Stephen's Cathedral instead. I called the President in Washington.

"Tell the Russians," he told me, "that while Mr. Khrushchev is laying the wreath on the soldier's grave, I'll be praying for his soul."

Dave Powers and I watched from the Embassy as Khrushchev and Kennedy had their final talk. Suddenly Khrushchev broke into a big grin and the tension appeared to break for a moment. Then the two men ended the conference. I asked the President what Nikita had grinned about. Kennedy explained that he had pointed to one of the medals on Khrushchev's chest and asked about it. Khrushchev had answered, "That's the Lenin Peace Prize." And Kennedy said, "Well, I hope you get to keep it."

On the plane back, he called me to his sleeping quarters and began bouncing his thoughts in the air. He talked about children—not his own, but all children. "I worry because they have not lived their lives. We've seen it all—loved, fought, laughed and cried. But these kids. . . . Do you know what Nikita said? 'I only feel sorry for those who survive a nuclear war.'"

He arrived home and, on television, reported that Khrushchev had told him he was willing to go to war over Berlin. Jack answered that America would meet its commitments. The Soviets began applying daily pressure on the access to Berlin. Every time Rusk, McNamara or Bundy called, the White House shuddered. Never before had two nations tottered on the verge of such disaster.

On October 13, construction began on the Berlin Wall. But Jack Kennedy seemed strangely calm when he heard this news. Finally, he looked up to me and said, "Kenneth, would you separate a city with a wall if you expected to own all of it? The Berlin crisis is over." And so it was.

But the greatest crisis in world history was not far away. In the fall of 1962, the President called for Mr. Gromyko and asked him point-blank if the Soviet Union's word was still good, and whether his master, Mr. Khrushchev, intended to abide by his promise not to plant missiles in Cuba. Mr. Gromyko assured the President that they would not break their word. While this assurance was pouring from his lips, President Kennedy had

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Kenneth O'Donnell, former Special Assistant and Appointments Secretary for President Kennedy, was a close friend of JFK's from 1945 (the year Kennedy first ran for Congress) till the day of the assassination in 1963 (O'Donnell was riding in the car behind Kennedy's limousine in Dallas). A member of Kennedy's so-called "Irish Mafia," O'Donnell has, since those days, worked in the presidential campaigns of Robert Kennedy and Hubert Humphrey, and has himself twice sought nomination for governor of Massachusetts. He is coauthor, with David F. Powers, of the best-selling Kennedy reminiscence, "Johnny, We Hardly Knew Ye" (Pocket Books, $1.95).

THE JOHN F. KENNEDY MEMORIAL PLATE

Minted in strictly limited editions of Solid Pewter and 24 Kt Gold on Pewter Illustration Reduced. Actual Size 9" diameter.

THE YEAR was 1963 . . . just ten short years ago. The date was November 22 and the place was Dallas. The President of the United States, John F. Kennedy was riding in the back of his open limousine. In less than one minute the emotions of all Americans were transformed from high spirited celebration to national sorrow. John F. Kennedy had been struck down by an assassin's bullets.

On the threshold of the 10th anniversary of this tragedy, The Hamilton Mint has created a medallic work of art that fittingly portrays the image of this great man. The John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate, designed by the noted medallic artist Thomas E. Rubel and sculptured by master craftsman Alfred Brunnetin captures, for all time, the cherished profile of this man. And now, for a limited time, you can own this outstanding work of art.

AVAILABLE IN SOLID PEWTER & 24 KT GOLD ON SOLID PEWTER

Because Pewter has always been the traditional metal of America, The Hamilton Mint felt it would be most appropriate as the basic ingredient of this historic plate. The John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate is available in Solid Pewter for only $25.00 per plate or in 24 Kt Gold on Solid Pewter for just $40.00 per plate. With either plate you will receive, at no additional cost, a custom designed easel to properly display your plate in a prominent place in your home or office.

INDIVIDUALLY SERIALLY NUMBERED

The John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate will only be available to collectors until November 30, 1973. Any orders postmarked after that date will be returned. Each plate will be individually serially numbered and each subscriber will receive a signed Certificate of Authenticity

Deluxe Version: 24 Kt Gold on Solid Pewter

The beauty of this John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate has been made even more exquisite and valuable with the addition of 24 Kt Gold richly layered on Solid Pewter. Available for just $40.00 each.

Because owning a collector plate that has been struck in a strictly limited edition will set your John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate apart from other works of art, your plate is destined to become a treasured family heirloom.

UNIQUE PLATE DESIGN

Each John F. Kennedy Memorial Plate is a full 9" in diameter and it reflects, in high bas relief, the classic portrait of our former President. Because Pewter is one of the most enduring metals in the world, your plate will reflect in gleaming brilliance, the most minute details of the artist's sculpture.

ORDERS MUST BE POSTMARKED BY NOVEMBER 30, 1973

Celeste Holm:

“Happiness? That’s a Greeting Card Word”

“This was the first time I had ever sung in a mental ward. It was an amazing experience! One of the patients was completely turned off; but gradually, as I sang, he began to smile.

Later I was told that this was the first response he’d shown in six months.”

FAMILY WEEKLY: Where were you born, Miss Holm?

CELESTE: Oh dear, Miss Holm sounds so formal. Call me Celeste—most people do. I was born in New York.

FW: Which part?

CELESTE: All of me.

FW: So you want people to think of you as humorous?

CELESTE: Yes. I like that because without a sense of humor, who can survive?

FW: Who is the real Celeste Holm?

CELESTE: A very busy person, very curious about the hows and the whys of people, and aware of the problems of the world about me. I am also an actress who enjoys her work, because I enjoy the response of people. You see, I care about life itself most of all. That’s why all the arts are so fascinating—because they can remind people of the constant and varied potential in our lives. I have always valued the life I was given. I think, if I have a secret for living, it is to enjoy being as involved as I can be in relation to everything around me.

FW: Does that lead to happiness?

CELESTE: What’s that? Joy, pleasure, contentment, maybe. But happiness, no. I think that’s a greeting-card word. Too many people look for happiness, believing it to be something that can be attained and felt constantly. I don’t think that is true. I believe that life is a series of challenges, and hooray for that! How dull it would be if it weren’t.

FW: Are you content then?

CELESTE: At this moment, yes.

FW: But only at this moment?

CELESTE: That’s all there is. Now. Today. Who knows what comes next? Right this second I’m having a marvelous time being interviewed.

FW: You like that?

CELESTE: Of course. Everyone likes being the center of attention at times. It’s a need we all have, whether people want to admit it or not. Do you know why people want to be stars? I believe it is because they think it means that one is loved more than others and by everybody. It is the love people want. Money, power, they’re just substitutes.

FW: Do you feel loved?

CELESTE: Yes, but I am not always aware of it. Sometimes, when I least expect it, people in the street smile at me. Some even speak to me. I like that. It’s the response again, they’re responding to their memories of me. When I’m onstage, I need to feel the response of the audience, just as all those people need to feel mine. Perhaps that’s what life is all about—reaching out, touching

Cool Whip® makes a pretty pie.

Cool Whip® topped pumpkin pies are not only lovely, they're luscious. If you make your own this season, here's how the good taste of Cool Whip® Non-Dairy Whipped Topping makes light and fluffy Instant Pumpkin Pie.

Instant Pumpkin Pie

2 packages (3½-oz. each) Jell-O® Brand Vanilla Instant Pudding and Pie Filling 1½ cups milk
 1 can (16-oz.) pumpkin
 1½ teaspoons pumpkin pie spice
 4 cups (one 9-oz. container) Birds Eye® Cool Whip® Non-Dairy Whipped Topping, thawed
 1 baked 9-inch pie shell or graham cracker crust, cooled
 Pecan halves

Add pie filling mix to milk in a bowl. Mix slowly with rotary beater or at lowest speed of electric mixer just until blended—about 30 seconds. Blend in pumpkin, spice, and 2 cups whipped topping. Pour into pie shell. Chill until set—at least 4 hours. Garnish with remaining whipped topping and pecans.

And saves a pretty penny.

Celeste Holm

Continued

Celeste Holm as Aunt Polly in "Tom Sawyer."

each other, contributing to each other's being. Oh my, are we getting too serious?

FW: Would it worry you if we were?

CELESTE: No, not really. But so many people today seem afraid of touching, of feeling. I wish people didn't feel compelled to wear the armor that they do, that shield they live behind.

FW: What is your favorite commitment outside of your family and the theater?

CELESTE: Mental health. During the war I worked at the Stage Door Canteen. The first hospital I visited was St. Albans, on Sunday, my only day off. This was the first time I had ever sung in a mental ward. It was an amazing experience! One of the patients was completely turned off; but gradually, as I sang, he began to smile. Later I was told that this was the first response he'd shown in six months. Since then I've realized how immediately important we can be to each other, and I've been involved with mental-health programs ever since.

FW: Are you opposed to the new sexual permissiveness?

CELESTE: It doesn't seem to have made people any happier or more aware of each other's needs. There is a lot of "action" today, but very little love. Frankly, I think sex without affection is like life without breath. I have never been interested in making love with a man whose child I wouldn't want to bear. That may be a distinctly old-fashioned concept, but it's mine.

FW: You have children, don't you?

CELESTE: Yes, but I don't talk about them, at least not in print. They are marvelous and they do not wish to be appendages of their mother. I understand and respect that.

FW: You make motherhood sound easy.

CELESTE [Stunned]: I do? Well, I don't mean to. Motherhood is the greatest opportunity for making mistakes. After all, there's no rehearsal, no out-of-town tryout. Just "Okay, Mother, you're on!" and 24 hours a day!

FW: Has your own motherhood made you a more understanding mother onstage?

CELESTE: Of course it has—it was infinitely valuable when I made "Tom Sawyer" last year in Missouri. I play Tom's Aunt Polly—a character Mark Twain patterned after his own mother.

FW: Was it fun playing in a musical again?

CELESTE: We had the most marvelous time together—and all the real townspeople in Arrow Rock, Mo.—population 81—were our townspeople in the movie. We even restored the town to its old 1840 self.

FW: What about your relationship with your own parents? Was it a good one?

CELESTE: Was and is. I used to think of my childhood as being quite normal. Now, I'm not too sure. I always felt close to my family. We enjoyed each other, we still do, and that seems to be unusual today. I never felt misunderstood or put down. The generation gap is an alien phenomenon to me. My mother was and is a creative, intelligent, fascinating woman, an artist by profession. My father is warm, human, big in stature and heart.

FW: And your husband?

CELESTE: Wes? [Wesley Addy] Oh my, Wes is the kind of man every woman falls in love with. He is that special. Kind, helpful—he's to be trusted. We've been together 11 years.

FW: Would you call it a modern romance?

CELESTE: On no. Romance is the surest way to the divorce court. Romance is the way people think it is, not the way it is. A good relationship has to be based on mutual respect, affection and trust. It isn't easy to find, but then, what is that's worth having?

Virginia T. Gross

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen shares recipes sent to her by Virginia T. Gross of Council Bluffs, Iowa. Says Marilyn, "When Ginny, who's the wife of newspaper publisher A. Richard Gross, sent me these recipes, I tested them in our kitchens. Take my word for it: they are superb!"

Beef Burgundy— How They Make It In Council Bluffs

GINNY'S MENU

- Cheese and Crackers
- Assorted Beverages
- Beef Burgundy*
- Yugoslav Vineyard Vegetables*
- Mixed Greens Salad
- Crusty Garlic Bread
- Burgundy Wine

Coffee    Tea    Milk

BEEF BURGUNDY

- 4 tablespoons butter or bacon drippings
- 7 medium (1½ lbs.) yellow onions, sliced
- 2 lbs. lean chuck, cubed
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon ground black pepper
- ½ teaspoon marjoram leaves
- ½ teaspoon thyme leaves
- 1 can (6 ozs.) sliced or button mushrooms, drained
- 1 can (10½ ozs.) beef bouillon, undiluted
- 2 cups dry red burgundy
- 1 teaspoon liquid gravy seasoning

1. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in 6-8-qt. Dutch oven. Add onions and sauté, stirring, until soft, about 8 minutes. Remove from pan.

2. Add remaining butter and brown meat cubes, ½ at a time. Return all meat to pan, toss with flour. Add salt, pepper, marjoram, thyme, beef bouillon and 1 cup wine.

3. Bring mixture to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer covered 3 hours. Add 1 cup wine, onions, mushrooms and liquid gravy seasoning. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer covered 30 minutes.

4. Taste just before serving. Correct seasoning if necessary. Ladle into serving casserole. Makes 6-8 servings

Make-ahead note: Beef Burgundy may be frozen.

YUGOSLAV VINEYARD VEGETABLES

- 2 cups cubed potatoes (1 lb.)
- 1½ qts. cubed eggplant (1 lb.)
- 2 cups diced green pepper (¾ lb.)
- 2 cups diced zucchini (½ lb.)
- 2 cups chopped Bermuda onion (¾ lb.)
- 2 cups diced carrots
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- ½ pkg. (10 ozs.) frozen peas, unthawed
- ½ cup plus 3 tablespoons olive oil
- 3 teaspoons salt
- ½-¾ teaspoon Tabasco*
- ½-¾ teaspoon ground black pepper*
- 1½ qts. sliced tomatoes (2 lbs.)
- ¾ cup converted raw white rice
- 2 tablespoons wine or cider vinegar
- ½ cup water
- 1 cup coarsely grated Jack or Muenster cheese

1. Preheat oven to 350° F. Lightly oil a large, shallow 3-qt. casserole.

2. In large bowl combine potatoes, eggplant, green pepper, zucchini, Bermuda onion, carrots, parsley and peas. Season with ½ cup olive oil, salt, Tabasco and ground black pepper. Toss well.

3. Place ½ of the sliced tomatoes in bottom of prepared casserole. Cover with ½ of the diced vegetables. Sprinkle rice over the vegetables and top with remaining diced vegetables. Cover with remaining sliced tomatoes. Pour 3 tablespoons olive oil, vinegar and water over all.

4. Bake covered for 1¾-2 hours, until vegetables are tender. Uncover casserole and top with cheese. Place under the broiler about 2 minutes, until surface is lightly browned.

Makes 8 servings

*Use higher measurement if you like things "hot" and peppery!

Editor's note: This makes an unusual hearty casserole that serves as both vegetable and starch requirement on your menu.

You're Never Too Old To Hear Better

Chicago, Ill.—A free offer of special interest to those who hear but do not understand words has been announced by Beltone. A non-operating model of the smallest Beltone aid ever made will be given absolutely free to anyone answering this advertisement.

Try this non-operating model in the privacy of your own home, to see how tiny hearing help can be. It's yours to keep, free and without obligation. It weighs less than a third of an ounce, and it's all at ear level, in one unit. No wires lead from body to head.

These models are free, so we suggest you write for yours now. Again, we repeat, there is no cost, and certainly no obligation. Thousands have already been mailed, so write today to Dept. 4757, Beltone Electronics Corp., 4201 W. Victoria, Chicago, Ill. 60646.

TUNE YOUR GUITAR LIKE A PROFESSIONAL

This new invention is ideal for every guitarist... beginner or professional. Six precision tuned reeds make precise tuning a snap. Just clamp onto your guitar, then adjust the strings. When the proper pitch is reached, the corresponding reed vibrates. Just as simple as that!

We guarantee complete satisfaction or your money back. Complete, plus 49¢ shipping and handling only. $5.95

Those horrid age spots*

Help fade them with Esoterica.® Makes your skin look years younger.

*Weathered age spots on your hands and face tell the world you're getting old—perhaps before you really are. Now, help fade them with ESOTERICA, the medicated cream. Not a cover-up, ESOTERICA actually goes into the skin where it works in the pigment-forming cells to help make your skin look lighter and younger again.

ESOTERICA, which comes in a mildly fragrant greaseless base, may be used on age spots on hands, face, arms and neck. Why let age spots age your appearance? Get ESOTERICA Medicated Skin Toner today—Regular, Fortified and Facial Creams plus Hand Lotion.

Report to the FW Woman

Great Clothes for the Woman Who Works

This week, Women's Editor Rosalyn Abrevaya has some suggestions for looking great on the job. "Running a household and sandwiching in a full- or part-time job," she says, "calls for easygoing clothes a woman can put on and forget about. Here's how to build such a wardrobe!"

Photos by Normand Menard

Suited for the business scene: At left, a Cheviot-tweed belted shirt-jacket suit in a Woolblend fabric of wool and Orlon. The other, a tweed plaid in pure wool, features a cardigan jacket. Both suits are by Pant-her. Necklace by Onik Sahakian. Portfolio by Dopp.

Here's a smart duo for winter work assignments. The dress in pure-wool gabardine has a V-neck to fill with a haberdasher scarf. Chains by Monet. The Shetland-wool sweater set is worn over a blanket-plaid skirt in a Woolblend fabric of wool and Orlon. Jewelry by Willie Woo. Outfits from Ellen Tracy.

- 1. Make an inventory of your current wardrobe. Decide what to discard. A tip: If you haven't worn an outfit in six months, you probably never will. Give it to your favorite charity. Now look over the clothes you enjoy. Perhaps a good suit could stand a change of buttons and belt, maybe a colorful scarf. Or it might be time to invest in a new one again. You might also try buying a smart new jacket for a favorite shirt or skirt.
- 2. Build around one or two colors. Your choice might be the earth shades of camel, rust, brown or hunter green or wine. By practicing color discipline you'll never be able to say, "I haven't anything suitable to wear!" because, having purchased accessories to coordinate with these colors, you should be able to pull together any number of dressing combinations.
- 3. Resist fad buying. If you're tempted to buy clothing that doesn't coordinate with the rest of your wardrobe or emphasizes fuss and frill, forget it. You'll only feel guilty watching it hang there when you realize you didn't really need it.

4. Keep a list of accessories of "what goes with what" pinned inside your closet door. You'd be amazed at the time it saves when you're trying to get to work.

If your wardrobe does need filling in after you've inventoried it, there are some exciting choices this season: Sweater dressing is getting a big play. It could be a sweater-knit dress with short cape sleeves or a big shawl-collared sweater-jacket tied like a bathrobe or a sweater set (the difference from the twin set of the fifties—the cardigan is longer). Suits are back and have never looked better. The prevalent style is a new, softer construction, usually with a longer, belted jacket. British-inspired fabrics—flannels, tweeds and plaids—are making good fashion sense and represent a return to the classics.

In accessories, the small hat looks right whether it's a felt fedora, a knitted cap or wool-jersey turban. Chains of varied lengths, the thinner the better, are being worn in cascades down the bodice of a soft dress or sweater. The reigning handbag silhouette is the long envelope clutch, roomy enough for all your necessities. Sheer, shaded hose are being worn with everything, while the clunky, clodhopper shoe is being displaced by slender, comfortable heels.

As a working woman, do you have to mortgage the homestead to afford these new fashions? Not likely. All the clothes shown are under $100.

Shoes: Sandler of Boston; Scarves: Ray Strauss; Bags: Baron International; Hats: Betmar.

If you smoke menthol.

Anybody who smokes knows there's a controversy about smoking going on. And that most of the controversy is about 'tar' and nicotine.

Yet when we ask the average menthol smoker why he smokes a menthol cigarette, he almost always tells us that he smokes a menthol because it doesn't have a hot or a harsh or a scratchy taste.

Well, Vantage with menthol doesn't have a hot or a harsh or a scratchy taste either.

But what Vantage Menthol also doesn't have is anywhere near the 'tar' and nicotine most of the other menthols have.

And that's something we thought a menthol smoker would want to know about.

Vantage Menthol tastes every bit as cool, every bit as refreshing as any menthol cigarette you ever smoked.

But it has only 11 milligrams 'tar' and 1.0 milligrams nicotine.

Don't get us wrong. That doesn't mean Vantage Menthol is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine menthol around.

It does mean that Vantage Menthol is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette that you'll enjoy smoking.

You don't have to believe us.

All you have to do is try a pack.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

"I lost 6 inches off my waistline in only 21 days doing just one five minute exercise—and didn't even have to give up eating the foods I love."

"I never thought it would happen to me...but it did. I got fat. As a former fashion model, I'd always taken pretty good care of myself because if I didn't look good, I didn't work. But when I got married, and didn't need a job, it was a different story. For about 5 years I neglected my body, and ended up a mess. And worst of all, I looked about 10 years older than I really was. So I decided that it was time to do something drastic. I tried a few of those 'effortless exercisers' but, of course, they didn't do a thing. Then I heard about Joe Weider's 5 Minute Slimming Plan. After just 21 days on the plan, my weight dropped from 143 lbs. to 129. And my waist went from a sloppy 31" to a nice, trim 25", just about what it was when I was modeling. I can't thank the Weider 5 Minute Slimming Plan enough. It gave me back my youth." Aleta Hopkins

What is this ingenious 5 minute body shaper plan?

The Weider "5-Minute Body Shaper" plan is based on doing ONE CONTINUOUS RHYTHMIC CO-ORDINATED EXERCISE. That's all you do! This one 5-minute exercise is designed to attack the Waistline and Hipline (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look)—as well as burn off excess body fat fast by speeding up your metabolism, burning stored calories and releasing excess water — while reshaping your chest, shoulders, arms and hips, as well as firming up your legs and gut — YOUR TOTAL BODY!

It's safer than strenuous gym workouts, beats the time consumption and dangers of gym workouts . . . or any other vigorous sport.

The unit weighs about 16 ounces and fits any wallet-size case. You can carry it and use it wherever there's floor space — anytime. Even while watching television.

How much can you expect to lose in 14 days?

Individual results vary, but during an average 14-day period, you can expect to lose up to 4 inches from your waistline and up to 10 pounds from your present weight. It strengthens your heart and lungs, increases stamina and endurance, improves your digestive function and general health. It also shapes you up — from head to toes. For a "5-Minute Exerciser — it sure does a lot."

Here's what the experts say:

"Doctors have always known, exercise done while lying on the back, virtually eliminates strain while slimming and reshaping the body. Yours is the finest Body Shaper Program on the market." RICHARD TYLER, Chiropractor

"Beats jogging and working out in gyms — and much safer. I lost 4½ inches off my waist in 14 days." JIM HANLEY, famous athletic coach

"Based on sound physiological and medical knowledge, it burns fat and shapes the body without strain to the heart or other organs. I lost 32 lbs. of excess weight using it." PIERRE GRAVEL, D.C.

*Exposing effortless exercisers

Reader's Digest (September, 1971), New York Times and Good Housekeeping, among others, exposed sauna wraps, inflated belts, weighted belts and effortless exercisers as frauds. Scientific researchers, medical and fitness experts all agree... there is only one way to firm, shape and trim up your body... you must work the inches off!

Living Proof of Fantastic Results

BEFORE WAIST 44" AFTER WAIST 38"
MICHAEL BENEDICT (AGE 55) LOST 22 LBS.

BEFORE WAIST 30" AFTER WAIST 25"
SANDY DIXON LOST 7 LBS.

Famed European health and beauty authority reveals how to RID YOURSELF OF UGLY FAT... LOSE THOSE LUMPS, BUMPS AND BULGES YOU COULDN'T LOSE BEFORE in a startling new book that exposes CELLULITE.

In 224 revealing pages, Mme. Nicole Ronsard deals with a problem affecting 8 out of 10 women . . . the problem of the lumps and bulges that won't go away no matter how much you diet . . . no matter how much you exercise.

If diet doctors, pills, salons, exercise gyms, spas and steam rooms haven't helped, chances are that you have cellulite and can be one of those fortunate women that will benefit from the secrets in this sensational new book.

WHAT IS CELLULITE?

Don't let the word frighten you. Millions of women everywhere have cellulite and live their lives with it . . . simply because they have never been able to recognize it, and thus have not been able to do anything about it. Now, thanks to the efforts of Mme. Nicole Ronsard, the prayers of many can be answered.

Cellulite, which causes unsightly lumps and bulges, is more than simple fatty tissue. It is a gel-like substance made up of fat, water and wastes trapped in immovable pockets beneath the skin.

Mme. Ronsard deals with every aspect of cellulite. You quickly learn where to look for it . . . recognize it . . . and, most important, rid yourself of it forever!

Think what this could mean to you. Unsightly bulges around hips, thighs and buttocks—gone. Flab and pockets of fat around knees, upper arms—gone. Wear clothes you never dreamed you could wear; bathing suits you never dared to even try on; gowns and evening clothes made only for others . . . not for you.

Yes, new life awaits you within the pages of this exciting new book. Say good-bye to "jodhpur thighs" and "saddlebag buttocks" . . . never again be embarrassed by "cottage cheese" textured skin.

While cellulite is recognized throughout Europe, this is the first and only book published in America that deals with this relatively unknown blight to femininity. Every aspect of the problem is discussed and explained in easy-to-read language. For any woman who suspects she may have a cellulite problem, no matter how slight or advanced, this book is a "must."

FIRST PRINTING NOW READY

The first printing of this important new book is now ready for distribution. To assure early delivery, rush your order today. Fill in the coupon below and send it with your check for just $12.95.

You are certain to agree that Nicole Ronsard's treasure of knowledge should become a permanent addition to your bookshelf. The information, the advice, the total concepts contained therein can help you shape a new outlook on life, as well as a new figure.

So act now, while you're determined to help yourself. The answer to your problems may be in the understanding of cellulite and the program found in "Cellulite Those Lumps, Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before."

DE LUXE HARD BOUND EDITION
224 Pages • 8 1/2" x 9 1/2"
172 Illustrations and Photographs
A Doctor's Foreword

GUARANTEE

When you order "Cellulite: Those Lumps Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before," you do so with the understanding that if this sensational book doesn't help you overcome your most difficult figure problems, you may return for full money back. If you are not satisfied in every way with Nicole Ronsard's contribution to a more beautiful you, then simply return the book and it has cost you absolutely nothing.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE CELLULITE

Visually, ordinary fat and cellulite are different. Regular fat, when squeezed, is smooth in texture. It does not show ripples or lumps.

To discover if you have a cellulite problem, take one simple test that cannot fail: Squeeze the tissues between the thumb and index finger or between the palms of both hands. If cellulite is present, skin ripples and looks like an orange peel. At a more advanced stage, ripples will be noticeable without any pressure.

PRAISE FROM THE PRESS

WHAT LEADING EDITORS SAY ABOUT MME. RONSARD'S REMARKABLE CELLULITE CONTROL METHODS:

HARPER'S BAZAAR QUOTES NICOLE RONSARD:
"Cellulite can be licked. It's knowing what the problem is and how to solve it that makes the difference."

VIVIAN BROWN, ASSOCIATED PRESS:
"Mme. Ronsard is an expert in the treatment of cellulite. In her salon she uses the French treatment method; but one need not go to a salon to have it done, one reason she wrote the book, "Cellulite—Those Lumps, Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before."

VOGUE MAGAZINE:
"If you ask Nicole Ronsard about cellulite, she could write a book. And she has—Cellulite: Those Lumps, Bumps and Bulges You Couldn't Lose Before. The very first of its kind, it's devoted exclusively to cellulite—a subject Mme. Ronsard has been studying all her life."

RECOGNIZED BY MEDICAL PROFESSION

Dr. Ian Botosan, a New York gynecologist, stated that cellulite bulges and lumps that won't go away with ordinary diet and exercise have become more prevalent with the increased pace and anxiety of modern living. To quote:

"Women complain that most doctors have no sympathy for this condition and more often than not just tell them not to worry about it and get on with the problem of living."

PLEASED BY NICOLE RONSARD'S BOOK

"I am particularly pleased that Mme. Nicole Ronsard has decided to write this book, thoroughly exposing cellulite for what it is—a very special condition that needs very special corrective measures. I highly recommend (it) as a tremendous help to all those women who have the problem and never knew what to do about it." —Ian Botosan, M.D.

Mme. NICOLE RONSARD ... the author

She is a graduate of the world renowned Ecole Supérieure de Paris in Esthétique Corporelle (science related to body shaping techniques).

Under the tutelage of Rene Morice, she probed the causes of cellulite, and with intensive studies in anatomy, physiology, histology, nutrition, calisthenics and manipulative therapy, developed a successful method of treating it.

Mme. Ronsard's salon in New York has gained widespread fame for the remarkable results achieved in thousands of cases. Women in all walks of life, from housewives to socialites, have praised her—for she helped when all others had failed.

To reach the thousands throughout the country who suffer from cellulite, Mme. Ronsard has written her book with the hope that they may be helped. Her wealth of knowledge may now be shared with women everywhere.

in his lap the latest pictures of the missile sites. He told me later, "It was the hardest moment I can remember. I just wanted to bring those pictures out, put them in his hands and ask him to repeat what he had said."

The President debated the alternatives: tactical air strikes, invasion or a blockade. The merit of the blockade was that it gave the Russians time to realize our intentions with minimum losses both physically and to Soviet "face." Blockade it was, and the U.S. Navy was deployed.

The President informed the American people on TV of the Soviet deceit and the danger it posed. On Saturday, two cables came from the Kremlin. The first expressed a willingness to cease construction of the sites and discuss the removal of Soviet bombers. The second cable said the Soviets wanted to discuss withdrawal of American forces from their positions all over the world. Since the second cable was unacceptable, Bobby Kennedy suggested we ignore it and give tentative agreement to the first cable. Which is exactly what we did.

The next morning the radio told everyone that Khrushchev had agreed to withdraw the missiles, that the ships were turning back and the crisis was over.

As we assembled at the White House that morning, an obviously relieved and happy group, the President told us pointedly that he didn't want to see any gloating by government people. Any implication that we had forced Khrushchev to back down could lead to disaster. John F. Kennedy was not only a political leader, but a real statesman, as Nikita Khrushchev was just finding out.

Dallas was his last voyage. He wanted to go. He wanted to win Texas in 1964, and he was greeted by large and friendly crowds everywhere. During the motorcade, Dave Powers turned to me and said, "We'll win Texas." These were Dave's last words to me before the shots rang out.

MUSCLING IN

I've heard of what is often known,
And spoken of, as muscle tone.
What tone is that? I must say I
Have wondered whether low or high.
My muscle tone, upon my word,
I've listened for but never heard.
I've had a twinge but not a twang,
I've had a binge but not a bang.
My joints I've heard, their creak and crack,
I have a noisy neck and back.
My muscles, though, I can't deny it,
Must be high-toned, they are so quiet.

They have a teenage doll that's so realistic, you wind it up and it leaves home!

I often put off till tomorrow
What I should do today—
Because I find it'll slip my mind
Much easier that way.

On a recent trip to the Jersey shore, I lost my four-year-old son on the boardwalk. After a few minutes (which seemed like hours), I found him with a lady and her small baby. The woman told me that she had asked my son what his mother was wearing so that she could help him find me. He had replied, "It doesn't matter what my mother is wearing. I'd know her face anyplace."

A pair of identical twin brothers decided to have some fun. They dressed exactly alike, went to a bar and sat, side by side, with the same kind of drink.

A man who had been drinking heavily staggered in, stared at them and ordered another drink. Cautiously, he approached the twins for a better look.

Finally one burst out laughing. "It's all right, sir," he said. "You're not really that bad. We're twins."

The drunk looked again, blinked, and asked: "All four of you?"

A visitor to Los Angeles was on a tour of the La Brea Tar Pits, a tourist attraction on busy Wilshire Boulevard where the remains of many prehistoric mammals have been dug up from the earth they were trapped in. When the guide pointed out some markings that were thought to be footprints of dinosaurs, the astonished woman turned to her companion and exclaimed: "I'm amazed that they'd come this close to a busy street like Wilshire Boulevard!"

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

What in the World!

ELSIE AND BAYAH
Two cuddly rejects

Elsie, the lion cub and Bayah, the tiger cub, were abandoned by their mothers at a tender age and adopted by Mary Chipperfield, whose daughter Suzanne is shown here giving the cubs a little mother love of her own. "Big cats tend to reject their young if there is anything wrong with them," explained Mrs. Chipperfield. "Elsie couldn't move her back legs at first because she had something wrong with her joints. But luckily a surgeon was able to drain off some fluid and she's now frisky." Bayah's rejection, however, remains a mystery, as does the question of what will happen to the cubs when they grow up.

FAYE DUNAWAY
The windmills of her mind

Faye Dunaway is into a new kind of self-analysis that she calls "active imagination." Recently she described an Alice-in-Wonderland trip into her own mind: "You close your eyes and uncross everything. You mustn't cross the conscious side of yourself with the unconscious. You just go inside, and when you feel you're inside, you look for an opening on the left—the unconscious side. It's always quite specific. You go through that and then you go down a kind of tunnel. You come out, then you look for your guide. It's just far out, it really is. I asked one figure if he was my guide, and he turned into something else. Then I asked him again, and he said, 'Yes.' Then I tell him who I want to visit. The devil, for example. My guide takes me to visit him." What good is all this? "Well," says Faye, "a lot of good things have been happening to me since I've been doing it. Somehow it helps—just in terms of connecting with what's around you." And you thought she was just another face!

"Men are like plants. They have their good qualities and their bad. Even the best of my good herbs can become dangerous and harmful. Roman chamomile, for example, that family panacea with such a good name for aiding the digestion and settling a nervous stomach, can cause vomiting if taken in too large doses. Linden blossoms, which so effectively induce sleep, can cause insomnia if the doses are too strong. Even the greater celandine, which I value highly, is so toxic that if very strong doses are ingested it can be fatal. I feel the same curiosity and the same affection for men and all growing things. This helps me greatly in my treatments." From "Of Men and Plants," by Maurice Messegue (Macmillan, $6.95).

Want to build a $350,000 sports stadium? Jerry Woodard of the Post-Tribune in Gary, Ind., did it. But he had something special going for him—Gary hosts the Little League World Series, the only true world series in baseball. To become host, Gary had to come up with a large enough stadium. So Jerry and other community leaders got to work. "We 'sandbagged' everybody in the community," he says, "and the newspaper went all out in promoting our project." The contributions, small and large, came tumbling in. A building contractor worked free. And the steelworkers, electrical workers and plumbers unions donated their members' time. Up went the stadium, big enough to seat 15,000 to 17,000 people, and with the most up-to-date facilities anywhere in the country.

Doctors' Tests Show How You Can Actually Help Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues

Also Get Prompt, Temporary Relief in Many Cases from Rectal Itching and Pain in Such Tissues.

When inflammation, infection and swelling exist in hemorrhoidal tissues—it can be very painful for the sufferer. But there's an exclusive formulation which in many cases gives hours of relief from the burning itch and pain in hemorrhoidal tissues. It also helps shrink the swelling of such tissues. Sufferers are delighted at the way it acts so gently and is so soothing to sensitive tissues.

Tests by doctors on hundreds of patients reported similar successful results in many cases. And it was all done without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or stinging, smarting astringents of any kind.

You can obtain this same medication used in these tests at any drug counter. Its name is Preparation H. Preparation H® also lubricates to protect the inflamed, irritated surface area to help make bowel movements more comfortable. Be sure and try Preparation H. In ointment or suppository form.

by CHIC YOUNG

DAGWOOD, I'M MAKING A SPECIAL DISH FOR YOUR DINNER TONIGHT.

BUT I'M ALL OUT OF PAPRIKA... WOULD YOU BE A DEAR AND RUN TO THE STORE FOR ME?

SURE!

DON'T FORGET NOW... PAPRIKA

I'LL REMEMBER

PAPRIKA, PAPRIKA, PAPRIKA...

HEY, DAGWOOD... HOW ABOUT SOME POOL?

WELL, MAYBE JUST ONE GAME

PAPRIKA, PAPRIKA, PAPRIKA...

PAPRIKA, PAPRIKA, PAPRIKA

PAPRIKA, PAPRIKA, PAPRIKA...

HERE IT IS, BLONDIE

THANK YOU, DEAR

DAGWOOD! THIS ISN'T PAPRIKA! IT'S TAPIOCA!

-- AND LET'S ALSO GIVE THANKS TO THAT SPECIAL BREED OF MAN FACING UNFORESEEN DANGER OR DEATH -- THE "COP" AND FIREMAN.

YOU STUPES! LEAVING MY KEYS HANGING IN THAT PADLOCK.

I CAN'T EVEN DRIVE MY CAR.

DON'T WORRY, PIKE. IF THE KEYS ARE IN THERE, WE'LL GET 'EM.

INSIDE TRACY'S FOUNTAIN PRISON -

SO I'M FREE OF THE CHAIN, BUT WITH THE CUFFS BEHIND MY BACK -

I'LL SOON KNOW WHAT MY PHYSICAL TRAINING HAS DONE.

AH!

THOUGHT I HEARD VOICES.

OUT OF MY WAY, YOU DUMMIES! I'LL GET THE KEYS MYSELF.

STALKY SCHWEISENBERGER HAS DISAPPEARED FROM MAUMEE BECAUSE HER BROTHER IS PLACING LARGE BETS THAT OLEY WILL NOT PLAY AGAINST SCIOTO STATE IN THE FINAL GAME OF THE SEASON...

BECAUSE

IT IS THE TRADITIONAL MAUMEE-SCIOTO STATE GAME—WITH SCIOTO HOWLING FOR REVENGE AFTER LOSING BY THREE POINTS IN 1972

by MILTON CANIFF

THIS GOPHER CHARACTER SAYS HIS SISTER RUNS OLEY'S LIFE!

WELL, THE BETS ARE LOST—BECAUSE THERE'S OLEY!

THE PRESENCE OF ONE MAN, EVEN A SPECIALIST, MAY SOMETIMES SPARK AN ORDINARY TEAM TO PLAY OVER ITS HEAD—WHICH MAUMEE DOES—FOR ONE HALF...

THEN SCIOTO STATE'S SUPERIOR POWER TAKES OVER AND THE MAUMEE MEN ARE TIRING FAST—YET, THERE STILL IS NO SCORE...

I'VE DONE IT! I'M IN UNIFORM! STALKY'S KINKY BROTHER HAS LOST HIS BET!

I WON'T HAVE LONG TO WAIT!

THE GAME WILL BE OVER

AND I WON'T GET TOTALED AFTER ALL!

I'VE BEEN HONEST! I WANT MAUMEE TO WIN THE GAME...

...BUT I'M AFRAID OF GOING IN THERE AND BEING MURDERED!

OLEY'S AGONIZED REVERIE IS BROKEN AS A BAD PASS FROM CENTER IS TOUCHED BY THE MAUMEE PUNTER! THE BALL SKITTERS ACROSS THE GOAL LINE!...

TO AVOID A SCIOTO TOUCHDOWN, A MAUMEE PLAYER FALLS ON THE FOOTBALL AND THE SCORE IS SCIOTO STATE 2—MAUMEE 0! MEANWHILE: AT A MOTEL IN A NEARBY TOWN... ONION RINGG SEES ANOTHER DRAMA UNFOLDING!!

WRITE ME A CHECK—OR I BREAK ANOTHER FINGER!

Our Story: AT LAST A SCOUT GALLOPS IN ON A SPENT HORSE: "THE LATOURS ARE COMING TO SEEK VENGEANCE. BUT THIS IS NOT JUST A RAID, FOR THEY HAVE RECRUITED THEIR NEIGHBORS AND MARCH IN FORCE!"

"THIS IS UNFAIR," CRIES SIEUR DE VOLNAY, "OF COURSE WE RAID OUR NEIGHBORS AND RUN OFF THEIR CATTLE, BUT WE ALL DO IT AND RETURN TO THE SAFETY OF OUR CASTLES." THEN HE GIVES ORDERS TO PREPARE FOR A SIEGE.

THE SERFS ARE ORDERED TO PREPARE FOR THE SIEGE. IN DUMB MISERY THEY GATHER UP THEIR MEAGER POSSESSIONS AND DRIVE THE LIVESTOCK INTO THE CASTLE COURTYARD. WHEN AT LAST THE GATES ARE CLOSED THERE IS HARDLY ROOM TO TURN AROUND, AND THE WOMEN STRIVE TO KEEP THEIR CHILDREN FROM THE HOOFS OF CATTLE.

"I KNOW IT'S ALMOST THANKSGIVING, MRS. TREE, BUT... BUT I-I JUST DON'T FEEL VERY MUCH LIKE CELEBRATING THIS YEAR... NOT WITH SANDY (GULP) G-GONE!"

"THANKSGIVING IS ALMOST HERE, BUT WITH SANDY STILL MISSING; ANNIE, IS DOWN IN THE DUMPS..."

"I HAVE AN IDEA ABOUT SANDY, ANNIE! I THINK YOU SHOULD GO OVER TO THE UNIVERSITY CANCER LAB AND SEE IF THEY'VE GOT HIM!"

"LEAPIN' LIZARDS, MRS. TREE! D'YA REALLY THINK THEY MIGHT HAVE SANDY?"

"TH' BIG GOOF! HE'LL PROBABLY WOLF IT ALL DOWN IN THREE GULPS AN' NOT EVEN SAY THANK YOU!"

"B-BUT WHAT IF HE'S N-NOT THERE? WH-WHERE'LL I LOOK (GULP) NEXT?"
