Not Pregnant, Sues

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A woman who for seven months thought she was going to have a baby and didn't has filed a $110,000 damage suit against her doctor.

In a suit filed against Dr. Rose McClanahan in Kanawha Circuit Court on Monday, Mrs. Angela Fields claimed:

Mrs. Fields went to Dr. McClanahan in January 1972 after missing a menstrual period. Following examination and laboratory tests, Dr. McClanahan confirmed the pregnancy.

During the presumed pregnancy, Dr. McClanahan told Mrs. Fields she could detect a heart beat and that the baby would be a girl.

In July, 1972, Mrs. Fields was admitted to General Hospital here for X rays and was advised by Dr. McClanahan that cesarean birth might be necessary.

Mrs. Fields was taken to the hospital's labor room Aug. 7, 1972, and remained there all night. She was released the following morning and readmitted for a period of three days. Dr. McClanahan told her on Aug. 10 that the baby had died.

Mrs. Fields then consulted a second doctor and was advised that she had never been pregnant.

Pioneer 10 On Course

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Flight controllers have made the last scheduled course change for Pioneer 10, opening the way for closeup color pictures of Jupiter and a sequence of delicate experiments probing the planet's mysterious nature.

By firing the spacecraft's small thrusters Monday, controllers at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Ames Research Center aligned the spacecraft for the best possible transmission of long-awaited closeup pictures of the giant planet, NASA spokesman Pete Waller said.

The maneuver aimed the spacecraft's antenna at the earth's position on Dec. 3, when the craft will be the closest to the giant planet — 81,000 miles away from it.

NASA scientists said the craft, now half a billion miles from earth and speeding toward Jupiter at 26,200 miles per hour, has not yet experienced the expected bow shock wave which would signal the craft's encounter with solar winds and the planet's magnetic field.

Twelve "excellent" color pictures snapped from 4.7 million miles above the planet Monday clearly showed the mysterious red "eye" of Jupiter and the black shadow of its moon on the planet's surface, Waller said.

Small Car Sales Climb

DETROIT (AP) — Sales of standard-and intermediate-sized cars continue to drop as consumers seeking better gas mileage turn increasingly to smaller cars, industry officials say.

Mid-November sales of the big Chevrolets, Fords and Plymouths fell below year-ago levels for the sixth consecutive 10-day period, industry figures show.

But the increase in small car sales has helped offset losses in the larger models to hold the decline in industry sales for the period to about 4.4 per cent below last year.

Mid-November sales of standard-sized Chevrolets and Fords were down 20 per cent from the same period in 1972 while Plymouth Fury sales declined 36 per cent.

Former Justice Whittaker Dies

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Charles Evans Whittaker, whose desire to get away from the rigors of Kansas farm life led him to the law profession and eventually a seat on the U.S. Supreme Court, is dead at 72.

He entered St. Luke's hospital Nov. 21, and his death there on Monday was attributed to a "ruptured abdominal aneurysm."

Whittaker was appointed to the high court in 1957 by another Kansan, President Dwight D. Eisenhower. He retired from the high court in 1962 because of physical exhaustion.

Whittaker was granted resigned status from the court in 1965, after his health had been restored. This freed him to take on such duties as corporate directorships.

Born on a farm south of Troy, in northeast Kansas, Whittaker attended a country school on his family's farm before quitting after the ninth grade.

He talked his way into the old Kansas City School of Law in 1920 on the assurance he would complete his high school education as he went along. He said he wanted to get away from the farm and into a different profession.

He passed the Missouri bar examination in 1923 and then won his law degree a year later.

Signs Changed

DOWN WITH THE SPEED—Workers, J. A. Edwards and Russel Adams of the North Carolina State Highway Commission place the new speed limit signs over the existing 60 mile per hour signs. Edwards said there are approximately 115 such signs to be changed in Pitt County. The new gasoline-saving limits go into effect next Saturday, Dec. 1. Silent As To Explanation

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica is holding the subpoenaed White House tapes under guard, but he has given no indication whether he accepts an explanation for why 18 minutes of one of them is blank.

Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's personal secretary, testified Monday that she thinks she accidentally pushed the wrong button on a recorder while she was listening to the tape of a June 20, 1972, meeting between the President and H. R. Haldeman.

Assistant special prosecutor Jill Volner told the court that all discussion of the Watergate break-in, which had occurred three days before, apparently took place during the 18-minute period, obliterated on the tape by a steady hum.

Miss Woods testified at a hearing called by Sirica to determine what had happened to the tapes of the meeting between the President and Haldeman, then White House chief of staff.

She said she had spent long hours at Camp David, the President's Maryland mountain retreat, on the weekend of Sept. 29 and 30, transcribing subpoenaed tapes.

"I did work hard over that whole long weekend ... I was exhausted," she said.

On Monday, Oct. 1, she was back in her office in the White House, where she had several hours more work to do on the tapes plus other matters that had piled up over the weekend.

She said she was working on the June 20 tape when her telephone rang. She said she had to reach way behind her to answer it and when she did she "pushed the record button, obviously," rather than the stop button, which was right next to it on the machine.

In addition, Miss Woods said she would have had to have kept her foot on the pedal which enabled her to move the tape backward or forward while she transcribed it.

"After I turned from the telephone — being someone who has tried to do a good job — I almost panicked," she said when she realized that the record button was depressed.

She checked the tape and found that after a mention by Haldeman of Ely, Nev., where Mrs. Nixon was born, conversation was obliterated by what she called a shrill noise.

Within five minutes Miss Woods went to the President.

"I told the President I was afraid I had caused a gap and he said it was no problem because it was not a subpoenaed tape," she testified.

Surplus

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States scored another big surplus in foreign trade in October, moving the country closer to its first yearly surplus in three years, the Commerce Department reported today.

The department said there was a surplus of $527 million in October, based on exports of $6,431.6 million and imports of $5,904.5 million.

It was the second biggest monthly surplus this year and put the country's foreign trade in surplus by $680 million for the first 10 months of 1973.

By comparison, U.S. trade was in deficit by $5.2 billion for the same period last year. The country had a trade deficit of $6 billion for all of 1972 and a deficit of $2 billion in 1971.

Fuel Oil Rationing Proposals Disclosed

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration has drawn up plans that could require homeowners who use heating oil to turn their thermostats down six degrees from where they were last year.

Other users of oil heat, including commercial and government buildings, could be forced to lower temperatures ten degrees or make equivalent fuel savings.

The plans are contained in the administration's proposal for rationing of heating oil, which was published today in the Federal Register.

A draft of the proposed regulations was obtained by The Associated Press and verified by administration sources.

The regulations also would guarantee certain high-priority users anywhere from 90 per cent of last year's fuel oil supply to 100 per cent of their needs this year.

Barring unforeseen complications, the regulations will take effect Jan. 1.

Under the plan, dealers would be legally required to impose the reductions upon the heating oil delivered to their customers. Purchasers would not need coupons to receive their rations.

The dealers would be required to calculate and distribute the correct amounts according to the formula set by the regulations.

Oil dealers could be fined up to $5,000 for each violation of the regulations, which forbid them to discriminate in deliveries or contract terms among customers within each category.

The regulations seem to indicate that homeowners who last year kept their thermostats at a below-average level would have to lower them by six additional degrees.

However, the proposed regulations say that, "When (the lower thermostat setting) results in undue hardships, the owners or occupants may apply to the local board for adjustment."

The priority uses include fuel production and distribution; public transportation; farming; food processing and distribution; industry; cargo and mail hauling; municipal police, fire and sanitation services and medical establishments.

In other action on the fuel shortage:

—Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said the United States should guide its energy policy on the assumption that Arab oil deliveries aren't going to be resumed. "We have to have a program geared in the long run so others won't have us by the throat," he said.

—The House Appropriations Committee approved $52.1 million for accelerated federal energy research and $21.1 million to run mandatory fuel allocation programs.

—Charles Binsted, president of the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, said gasoline stations would have to seek price relief from the Cost of Living Council if the supply of gasoline is reduced any further. President Nixon has said deliveries to dealers will be cut 15 per cent.

—Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren was asked whether Nixon would follow his own suggestion that Americans spend "a little more time at home" by changing his pattern of spending most weekends away from Washington. "I think he will be spending more time around here ... Just as all people will be conserving, the President will," Warren said.

—Interior Department officials expressed uncertainty at how soon the President's plan to draft 50 oil industry executives to help run his emergency energy programs would be put into practice.

Arabs Review Tactics

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH
Associated Press Writer
ALGIERS (AP) — Leaders at the Arab summit conference generally agree the oil weapon should continue to be used and should be expanded if necessary against countries supporting Israel, informants said today.

But the Arab oil exporters were asked to make special efforts to exempt France and other "friendly countries" from the bans and cutbacks.

The sources said the Arab oil states are expected to tighten the embargo against the United States and the Netherlands but to ease restrictions on Japan because of Tokyo's recent endorsement of the Arab call for Israeli withdrawal from all occupied territory.

The sources said the Arab leaders also are agreed in principle that peace talks with Israel should be held in three stages. The talks are expected to start next month in Geneva.

In the first stage only Egypt and Syria would take part on the Arab side and the only subject discussed would be Israel's withdrawal to positions held at the time of the first cease-fire, on Oct. 22.

After that issue is resolved, representatives of Jordan, Lebanon and the Palestinians would come to the conference table. If the participants in this second stage agreed on a comprehensive peace settlement, all or most of the other Arab states would join for a third round to endorse the settlement.

A source said that if this fails to bring peace, the Arabs will have a detailed, secret plan for another war, including a third front with a coalition of armies striking across the Jordan River.

Recommendations submitted to the Arab chiefs of state by their foreign ministers stressed that an acceptable settlement must include the "complete and total liberation of the territories occupied during the 1967 aggression."

PTI Board Talks Energy-Conserving

The Pitt Technical Institute's Board of Trustees last night authorized its president to develop and implement necessary and reasonable policies for conserving energy (fuel, electricity, etc.) at the Institute, not in conflict with State or local board policies.

According to William E. Fulford, Jr., president of Pitt Technical Institute, a PTI Staff Committee On Energy Conservation has already developed several recommendations for conserving energy. Recommendations expected to be implemented include: maintaining 68 degree temperature in all buildings; all weekend classes to be rescheduled to meet between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m. on Saturdays in the Humber Building; administrative and clerical staff may be asked to observe the same Christmas holiday schedule as students and faculty (December 18-January 2), consolidating travel when possible, and eliminating electric heaters except in cases of emergency.

If the energy situation should become critical, a contingency plan to consolidate all on-campus classes between the hours of 9 a.m. and 9:30 p.m. will be drafted and implemented, Fulford told the Board.

PTI Dean of Instruction, Ed Bright, reported to the Board that the Institute has made application to the State Board of Education and the State Board of Nursing for an Associate Degree Nursing Curriculum. A representative from the State Board of Nursing will visit Pitt Technical Institute on December 11 and 12; the State Board of Education will consider the curriculum request at its January meeting.

Senator Vernon White, Chairman of the Trustees, stated that according to remarks he had heard in Raleigh, the Community College System will become increasingly more involved in offering nursing programs to meet nursing needs throughout the State.

The Board also learned of the immediate need for Pitt Tech facilities for training construction and production workers for several new industries in Pitt County. Industry needs include: welders, form carpenters, (and helpers), pipe fitters, etc. Several alternatives for meeting the facility needs were discussed by the Board. The report, which included several alternatives, was approved by the Board and is to be discussed with the County Commissioners and their advice solicited.

Purported Eisenhower Letter Posing Divorce Query May Still Exist

WASHINGTON (AP) — A letter that Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower reportedly wrote years ago to Gen. George C. Marshall seeking advice on a possible divorce from his wife Mamie may still exist, claims a former aide to the late President Harry S. Truman.

Retired Army Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, who was Truman's top White House military adviser, said that Truman sent the letter to Marshall for Marshall's private files and to keep it out of the hands of Eisenhower's political opponents.

Vaughan denied a published account that Truman had destroyed both Eisenhower's letter and Marshall's reply.

Eisenhower, who at the time was World War II supreme allied commander, reportedly informed Marshall that he was considering divorcing Mamie to marry Kay Summersby, a British woman assigned to drive him around London during the war.

"Gen. Eisenhower asked Gen. Marshall if he thought a divorce would hurt his military career," said Vaughan Monday in an interview. "Marshall told him it certainly would, and would be a very stupid thing to do."

Marshall at the time was Army chief of staff. He later became secretary of state. According to Vaughan, the Eisenhower Marshall letters wound up in Pentagon files. Marshall died in 1959.

Vaughan said when Eisenhower was running for the presidency in 1952, rumors of the letters leaked out. He said those supporting Sen. Robert A. Taft, Eisenhower's opponent for the GOP nomination, "wanted to get hold of the letters and have them published."

Vaughan said Truman, who was then president, interceded and returned the letters to Marshall. Vaughan said he could personally confirm that the letters existed because "I saw them."

The letters, said Vaughan, probably still exist among Marshall's other papers — possibly at the Marshall Research Library at the Virginia Military Institute in Lexington, Va.

Study Single Department, Cabinet-Level Head, For Children

RALEIGH — A new department of state government which would be the state's third largest in terms of budget and people served is being studied by the General Assembly committee on exceptional children.

The super-agency for children with physical, mental or emotional problem would slice through programs and agencies currently operated by 22 state agencies under supervision of four different departments—Human Resources, Education, Social Rehabilitation and Control, and Administration.

Proposed legislation being hammered out by the joint committee of the N. C. Senate and House of Representatives would call for appointment of a cabinet-level secretary to head the new department, and law to put control of the department in local hands through creation of councils to serve specific regions of the state. The legislation, if approved, would require that parents of children needing special services be named to the local councils.

A total of more than $200 million in programs would be collected under the proposed new department, in addition to a host of physical facilities including juvenile training centers, workshops, mental retardation centers, orthopedic hospitals, schools for the deaf and the blind, orphanages, and some rehabilitation centers.

Legislators expect strong reaction to the proposal from department and agency heads who would see their individual programs merged with others and budgets sliced or eliminated in the process.

Co-chairmen of the committee are Sen. Lamar Gudger of Asheville and Rep. T. Clyde Auman of West End.

The proposal would bring into one department all or portions of the following programs and agencies:

Department of Administration—Child Development, Day Care Licensing, Advisory Committee on Youth Development.

Department of Public Instruction—Kindergarten screening and testing, Exceptional Children, School Health (physical education, safety, health), Learning Institute of N. C., Advancement School.

Department of Human Resources—Cerebral Palsy Hospital, Orthopedic Hospitals (Gastonia and Asheville), Board of Health, Child-care Institutions (Alexander, Boy's Home, Central Orphanage, Eliada Home, Junior Order Home, Oxford Orphanage, Sipe's Orchard), Commission for the Blind, Gov.

Morehead School, Advocacy Commission on Children, Mental Health Division schools (Caswell, Murdoch, O'Berry, Western Carolina, Wright School), Vocational Rehabilitation, schools for the deaf and phases of the welfare program affecting exceptional children.

Department of Social Rehabilitation and Control—youth development schools, juvenile training schools, evaluation center.

Additionally, control is being considered over pardon and parole functions of juvenile courts, a procedure to test and analyze any juvenile for adequacy of sentencing in juvenile court, and liaison with locally operated juvenile diagnostic centers.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been divorced for two years, and I have custody of our two children. Occasionally he has them for a weekend.

My "ex" recently married a widow with three children. [I am still single.] Last weekend my children were with their father, and upon returning home, they told me that Daddy had a photographer take a picture of him, his new wife, and all the children [his and hers]—for his Christmas card!

Abby, does he have the right to use a picture of my children on a Christmas card with his new wife and her children? Recipients of the card will naturally assume that my children are living with their father, and perhaps wonder if I am an unfit mother.

Should I threaten him with court action if he uses that picture on his Christmas card? UPSET AND ANGRY

DEAR UPSET: Even tho you are divorced, they are his children, too. Forget it. Your friends and family will know that the children are living with you. And who else matters?

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen a problem like mine in your column. Would you believe my husband is 31 and he still wets himself? Not only in bed, but while he's awake.

Last evening, after supper he went next door to talk to a neighbor and have a few beers, and when he came home [about 9:30 p.m.] his pants were soaked! I asked him how that happened, and he said he didn't know. [He wasn't even embarrassed.]

He even denies that he wets himself. He can be sitting in the living room watching TV, and when he gets up, the chair is soaked. I have scrubbed that chair more times than I can count. Our mattress is ruined. I know it's the beer, but he won't admit it and he won't give it up.

He had a physical last month and claims the doctor says he is sound as a dollar. [I'm sure he never mentioned his wetting to the doctor.]

He works hard, is good to the kids, and I love him, but I can't face the neighbors knowing how they must talk about his walking around soaked. I'm losing all respect for him. Please help me. HIS WIFE IN BOSTON

DEAR WIFE: He's "sound as a dollar" all right—which at the moment isn't very sound. Your husband should see a urologist, and it's imperative that the doctor be informed about his problem. It could be a symptom of something serious, which, if caught early could be remedied.

DEAR ABBY: I'm another one who never thought I'd be writing you, but here I am. I am a 21-year-old college senior. I am still a virgin and have vowed to God and myself that I will remain one until I married.

Last year I met Delores, the most wonderful girl in the world, and we became engaged. Here's the problem. We will not be married until next June, and Delores, who is also a virgin [or so she tells me], says she can't wait until next June for her first sexual experience. She says since we are going to be married anyway, what's the difference?

I am only human, and it is difficult for me to keep refusing her, but I feel that if I were to break my vow to God and myself, I would have a guilty conscience the rest of my life. Please help me. GOD-FEARING

DEAR FEARING: If Delores can't wait, and you'd feel guilty jumping the gun, why wait until June to marry? Tie the knot immediately.

Homemaker's Haven By Miss Addie Gore Pitt Home Agent

Who gets the prized catch when your great hunter returns from the fields and woods? Why, you—the cook, of course.

But be it a large deer or the smallest wild turkey, you also get the responsibility of keeping it safe for your family's holiday feast or meals. And a little extra care can go a long way toward preventing an aftermath of food poisoning.

Salmonellosis is the poisoning most likely to develop from improperly handled wild game. It resembles the flu in its symptoms: headache, vomiting, cramps, nausea, fever and diarrhea. The symptoms usually occur within 12 to 36 hours after eating contaminated food and last from two to seven days. It is seldom fatal, but can be extremely dangerous for infants or older people.

Bacteria grow best between 40 degrees F. and 140 degrees F. So the faster you get your game on one side or the other of these limits, the better your chance of avoiding spoilage.

We'll assume your great hunter took preliminary sanitary steps before presenting his catch to you: He killed his prey quickly and cleanly, washed and chilled it properly and got it home as soon as possible.

You, the cook, can guard against further danger of bacterial contamination by taking these few precautions in the care and handling of your wild game prize:

To begin with, be sure your kitchen, hands, cutting board, knife and other utensils are clean as possible, while you're preparing game for storing or cooking. And wash hands and kitchenware again in between handling raw and cooked meat to avoid cross contamination. Use plenty of soap and water.

After you have thoroughly cleaned your game, treat it just as you would any meat or poultry you buy from the supermarket—wrap meat loosely for later use and store it quickly in the refrigerator. Or for storage longer than 1 or 2 days, wrap it securely in air-tight freezer bags or foils and store it immediately in the freezer (below 0 degrees F.).

Once meat is thawed, cook it right away—ans always cook it thoroughly! Remember that wild game has a greater chance of bacterial contamination than that bought from your neighborhood supermarket, due to the unsanitary conditions in the field.

Remove all stuffing and store meat, stuffing and gravy in separate, cover air-tight containers. Meat from wild birds, as with domesticated poultry, should be removed from the bone before you put it away. Use leftovers kept in the refrigerator within 1 or 2 days. Or freeze any intended for later use.

Your proper handling of food at home—cooking, storing, and serving—is the best protection against foodborne illness you can give your family. So keep the food for your holiday season as safe as possible by following these simple rules.

Puffing Away Saves Marriage

LIEGE, Belgium (WNS) — Liliane Spaaken, 88, celebrated her 70th wedding anniversary here by advising modern wives to smoke a pipe in order to save their marriages. "Pipe smokers learn a lot about silent meditation, which cures rush and irritation," she explained. "We are a breed of friendly people with poetic, intelligent minds." Husband Gerard Spaaken, 90, agrees that pipes are good for wives. "Men don't need them," he added. "I've never smoked a day in my life."

Designer Keeps Young Look

NEW YORK (AP) — Arleen Meyer designs up to 90 hats in a single season, but she keeps only half a dozen in her own closet.

The attractive, dark-haired woman has been successful for 30 years in crowning young heads with inexpensive, high-style, fun headgear.

"I started out to be a fashion illustrator," she said in an interview. "I studied at Traphagen and the Art Student's League, and supported myself selling hats at a Manhattan department store. One day I had a chance for a job, took it and have been there ever since. It was accidental and coincidental, but not strange. My whole family has been in the millinery industry."

To many women, millinery is a dirty word, and Mrs. Meyer says few people use it any longer. It's hats today as the industry is strong after several weak years.

"During the lull, when people didn't buy hats, we turned to designing accessories such as bags, vests that coordinated with hats, fake fur jackets and other coordinates," Mrs. Meyer added.

For her young, bouncy line of inexpensive items, she is influenced by fashion magazines, seeing people on the street, department stores and fashion shows. Everything goes, she adds, into a big melting pot.

"What is strong one season may carry over to the next with a slightly different look. Sportswear trends influence hats as well as the ordinary ready-to-wear showings," she said.

"Color is always changing. Even basic colors may change, though you think they are the same year in and year out. The textile markets are a tremendous help because they evolve colors. They do research and develop new things. Really they create fashion because they tell us what colors and fabrics are available," she added.

In the past two years, the hat industry has gone from poverty to big business, with sales up 16 per cent in 1972. Shortages

Couple Exchange Vows In Ceremony

Miss Elizabeth Dale Byrd became the bride of Robert Alexander Krinks of McKeesport, Pa., Wednesday.

Assisted by the Rev. Robert Hufford of Hooker Memorial Christian Church, Father Charles Mulholland led the couple in their vows in a double ring ceremony at St. Gabriels Catholic Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Byrd of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street length beige dress of jersey polyester. She carried a bouquet of daisies and red roses. The rings exchanged by the couple are heirlooms, first exchanged by the bride's maternal grandparents and later exchanged by her parents at their marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Krinks are in the United States Army. She is stationed at Fort Bragg and he is an instructor at Fort Eustis, Va.

After a brief leave, the couple will return to their posts to await new duty assignments.

Bridge Winners Announced

Wednesday afternoon winners in the duplicate bridge game played at the Bank of North Carolina were:

Mrs. Gail McClelland and Mrs. L. D. Harris, first; Mrs. M. H. Bynum and Mrs. Eli Bloom, second; Mrs. John Proctor and Mrs. J. M. Horton, third; Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts and Mrs. Lacy Harrell, fourth; Mrs. Robert Exum and Mrs. M. L. Eason, fifth.

have been a problem in the new boom, so production problems are a consideration even for a designer.

"We try to keep a line to a minimum" the designer added. "I bring ideas and things I think will be good to a meeting with everybody in the company and we talk about it and decisions are made, considering all the factors."

"I always have successes — there are very few duds in each line — and a few items are very, very hot. We can't afford to gamble on something bad," Mrs. Meyer added.

She does not wear hats from other designers. For the interview she had a classic riding style hat in camel to match her pantsuit, and added gold chains and bangle bracelets.

Mrs. Meyer says felt hats and straw hats are always good for spring. She says she is looking ahead to a softer look in clothes.

"The trend is away from the hardware look of the 1960s. Spring will be soft and feminine with a strong emphasis on classic looks and a few garden party type hats. Trimmings will be added for gaiety and nostalgia. This winter, we thought along the lines of our shearing groups, fake furs in hats, bags and jackets," she added.

She found the knitted cuff a big look for winter, and is already looking ahead to designs for fall, 1974.

"I don't quite see a return of the pillbox hat, but I do think hats are getting smaller," she said. "There's no doubt that we'll have more shallow crowns, smaller, dressier hats that are prettily trimmed."

Questions Raised Over Brown-Bagging Change

RALEIGH (AP) — A proposal to allow bartenders in some North Carolina restaurants to pour mixed drinks with customers' liquor raises a question of control and enforcement and needs further study.

This was indicated Monday when the proposal was offered informally to the state Board of Alcoholic Control by board member Marcus Hickman of Charlotte. No action was taken.

After presenting the proposal, Hickman said he felt it needs further study.

The other board members, Chairman L. C. Holshouser and George Coxhead of Chapel Hill, said the proposal has merit, but poses a problem of control and enforcement.

The proposal would change the brownbagging restriction in North Carolina that forces restaurant customers to keep liquor bottles at their tables and pour their own drinks.

"I feel that the present system is discriminatory against persons who do not belong to private clubs," Hickman said. At these clubs bartenders mix drinks for members.

He told the board, "This particular idea was not mine. It was presented by The Charlotte Observer. I have not discussed the proposal with any licensees, restaurants or organizations."

Later Hickman told newsmen, "I'm not sure that anybody wants it. We don't even know that the attorney general will say it is legal. I think it is."

Marse Grant of Raleigh, a dry leader and editor of The Biblical Recorder, official publication of the Baptist State Convention, said Sunday that if the board approves the proposal a court order will be sought to block it.

He said that in voting against liquor by the drink in a statewide referendum Nov. 6, North Carolina voters said "they don't want this type of liquor distribution."

Coxhead told newsmen he thinks the proposal "is worth considering, but we should go slow on it. Can this be controlled? That's the big thing. It is premature to go into it today."

Leola Forlines, transportation supervisor for Pitt County Schools, attended a gas and oil conservation workshop in Wilson yesterday.

Sponsored by the State Board of Education Division of Transportation, the workshop was held to discuss ways of conserving gasoline and oil in the daily operation of school transportation. Workshops are being conducted throughout the state through Nov. 30.

Forlines said the transportation supervisors were told to consolidate school bus routes where possible, avoid unnecessary trips, overlapping of routes should be eliminated when possible and warm up time at home and at school should be eliminated.

"School bus engines should be cut off while loading and unloading pupils at school," Forlines said. "We were told to fill gasoline tanks only enough to run the routes. Gasoline disbursements should be held to minimum in an effort to eliminate stealing."

Bus servicing schedules should be consolidated so that mileage can be cut and also plan

Will Keynote Dinner Meet

Ed Barham Jr. of Raleigh will be the keynote speaker at a dinner meeting of the Pitt County Historical Society Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Greenville Woman's Club.

Barham serves as the northeast area coordinator for the North Carolina Bicentennial Commission.

He will discuss plans for local bicentennial celebrations and will illustrate his talk with a special bicentennial planning film.

A native of Mayodan, Barham received the B. A. degree in political science from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

North Carolina is using area coordinators to implement plans for the bicentennial in 1976. The state has been divided by counties into four regions with a coordinator for each territory.

Reservations for the dinner meeting should be made immediately by calling Miss Annie Turner.

ment engines should be tuned properly and all tires should be inflated properly. Wheel bearings should be adjusted correctly," Forlines explained.

The workshop instructors also stressed the discontinued extra usage of school buses and other county vehicles.

"The instructors said that school field trips should be necessary and important and not just pleasure riding," Forlines noted. "A log should be kept on all school vehicles and driving should be reduced to a minimum."

The speed limit on all school vehicles should be reduced to 50 miles per hour. School buses are already operating at 30 miles per hour maximum.

"The biggest thing that we can do locally to help the energy crisis," Forlines said, "is to eliminate warm up in the mornings and afternoons. The buses are already governed at 30 miles per hour so the speed cannot be reduced."

The local supervisor and his staff have 185 regular school buses under their charge as well as 106 county automobiles. In all, the bus garage services more than 300 vehicles, including service trucks, buses, and wreckers.

The workshop was conducted by Roy Williams, equipment engineer with the State Board of Education, and Louis Alexander, employee of the Transportation Division of the State Board of Education.

Water Lost By Vandals' Action

Wadie Lewis, superintendent of Greenville Utilities Water and Sewer Department, reported that an unmeasured quantity of water was lost this weekend when vandals opened six fire hydrants in the city's water system and left them running.

Lewis said the act of vandalism occurred between 9 p.m. Saturday night and 9:30 a.m. Sunday morning.

He reported that department personnel were summoned to the corners of Crestline Boulevard and Greenwood Drive, Pine Street and Webb Street, Kirkland Drive and Vernon Street, and Arlington Street and Cherokee Street, as well as to locations on Pineview Drive and Memorial Drive where hydrants were found to be flowing.

"Since this was a holiday weekend," Lewis explained, "it is impossible to get any accurate estimate as to the water lost. Based on area drainage and previous flushing experience, it appears that the length of time that the hydrants were running ranged from a few minutes to overnight."

Lewis added that "Irresponsible acts such as this are a waste of water, money and energy and should not be confused with out previous planned flushing program which was concluded on Nov. 16."

He noted, "Since it is impossible to ascertain the amount of water lost, it is likewise not possible to determine the cost. However, equally as important is the fuel and energy loss associated with the supply treatment and distribution of this water plus that required to locate and correct such senseless deeds."

Expert Nose Is Detector

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — When it comes to malodors, Ralph E. Patrick is an expert. Patrick is an environmental scientist for Ashland Oil Inc., and he always carries his most sensitive and reliable odor detector with him. It's as plain as the nose on his face; in fact, it is the nose on his face.

Patrick is the official nose at Ashland Oil. It is his job to detect and analyze malodors at the company's refineries so that they can be corrected in production processes.

"No instrument can duplicate the human nose for detecting odors," says Patrick. "It's always accurate — barring hay fever or a head cold, that is. If you can smell an odor and it is irritating, the nose knows."

To be sure, Patrick brings other equipment along on his odor search. He has designed a mobile testing unit, mounted in the back of a van, which determines the source and concentration of odors.

Firemen Are Called Twice

Greenville police today are investigating two fire calls received by the Greenville Fire Department to a frame dwelling at 1603 Lincoln Dr. early today.

Fire officers reported that firefighting units were sent to the Lincoln Drive home about 4:50 a.m. where they found fires had been burning on top of a kitchen stove, in a bedroom and outside the kitchen door, although the small blazes were out when firemen arrived.

Only light smoke damage to the kitchen resulted from the fires, officers said.

Then at 6:10 a.m., fire officials said, fire units were again called to the home. This time they found clothes in a bedroom closet had been set afire, but again the fire was out when fire trucks arrived.

Light smoke damage resulted to the bedroom and the clothes were heavily damaged, firemen reported.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said domestic difficulties between the residents of the house may have sparked the blazes.

Efficiency In Cattle Thefts

RENO, Nev. (UPI) — Nevada cattle rustlers are operating a slaughter house on wheels to speed their livestock thefts.

The Nevada Farm Bureau said stolen cows are butchered in a van immediately after they are stolen. The hide and innards are thrown out along the road, and the carcass is ready for sale by the time the van reaches a town.

Our people own the dairy. They do a better job.

At Maola, nobody has the feeling that the company owns him. Because people with every kind of job from route man to President own the company.

And we all know that the better job we do, the better our dairy will do.

So we go out of our way to buy the freshest milk possible. It's funny, but we don't really have to go out of our way at all. Since we're the largest dairy headquartered in Eastern Carolina, we can buy a lot of milk from your neighbors.

After the milk reaches the Maola dairy, well-trained quality control experts pore over it. With a far more critical eye than the United States Government requires.

When our milk leaves the dairy, it leaves early. Our route men know people want their milk on their doorstep when they get up in the morning. And that if Maola isn't there, people will buy something else. That makes it hard to sleep. The same energy we put into bringing you fresh milk goes into all Maola products. Our butter pecan ice cream, for example. We roast our own pecans.

We've made our frozen dessert, Pixie, the most popular dessert from coast to Piedmont.

Since 1935, Maola has grown to be the leading dairy in Eastern Carolina. But we know that to stay there, we all have to do our jobs well every day.

And we will. Our owners will see to it.

Stronger Measures Essential

President Nixon has proposed that gas stations close on Sundays as a way to combat the serious shortage of gasoline.

In a Sunday night talk, the president also called for allocation of home heating oil effective Jan. 1. Shipments to homes would be reduced by 15 per cent; there would be a 25 percent reduction to business and commercial establishments and a 10 percent reduction to industries.

The president also wants to prohibit outside Christmas lights and ban commercial lighting displays when a business is closed.

Curtailed fuel for air service would be instituted.

The most immediate effect on the public might be the closing of gas stations on Sundays since stations were asked to close voluntarily right away.

This, of course, is going to cause hardships on those who must travel for emergency reasons, and will almost certainly lead to blackmarket operations as shady operators sell gas on Sunday for exorbitant prices.

The president called what he proposed rough measures, but we doubt if they are tough enough. We feel it is going to take a careful system of allocation—rationing is the proper word—to make certain that the nation's essential energy needs are met. Sadly, by the time we find that this plan won't work, it may be too late to head off cold homes, silent factories and gasless autos.

The Bigger Reason For Peace In Middle East

An Egyptian editor has warned that Israel might resort to the atomic bomb in any renewed fighting and he has urged that the Arab world make an effort to get or produce the bomb.

That is all the more reason why a just settlement must be reached in the Middle East; it must be done before more nations turn to atomic bombs to fight their wars.

Use of atomic energy in warfare is unthinkable; it must be headed off at all cost.

Allocation The 'Military Way'

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—The federal agency exerting life-or-death power over the American economy through allocation of scarce gas and oil is being run by a crusty three-star admiral who privately vows the program will work "the military way" no matter what the public wants.

Vice Adm. Eli T. Reich, 60, last month quietly retired from the Navy (ending 38 years' service), left his Pentagon job as Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for logistics and the next day came downtown to take over the new Office of Petroleum Allocation in the Interior Department. Since then, Reich (pronounced "rich") has brought in more than 15 retired or active duty military officers (colonels and above). More are on the way.

A Prussian complexion for what is now the government's most important people program seems dubious. But beyond image, Interior Department officials question whether generals and admirals are equipped to dictate allocation and rationing with transcendent political and economic impact.

Their doubts were fueled by

Adm. Reich's first days on the job. Gathering Interior Department staffers about him, Reich declared: "I don't give a damn for the public image. We're not here to create an image. We're to do a job—my way. And that's the military way." Reich then launched into what civilians at the Interior Department describe as a series of "old sea stories."

Interior Department civilians were suddenly in Coventry, cut off from what was happening. Simultaneously, the brass migration began. Navy Capt. Robert C. (Bing) Gillette became acting executive director, Air Force Lt. Col R. D. (Deek) Hensley is Reich's administrative assistant, retired Air Force Maj. Gen. James Curtin was named director of operations.

Retired officers will be in charge of regional offices in Atlanta, Dallas and Denver. Col. James Scanlan was put in charge of personnel with a Navy captain as his deputy. A retired major general was scheduled to become permanent executive director but bowed out because of poor health. Four officers, active and retired, were assigned to the Office of Planning and Policy. Nor has the underground railway from the

Public Forum

To the editor:

The writer regrets the need to reply to the intemperant and petulant letter of 16 November 1973 by Mr. Hannan of the local Employment Security Commission.

My letter, concerning what I felt to be discrepancies in a news story on unemployment, was not directed to Mr. Hannan nor did it at any time refer to him. Yet, under his official title, he chose to deliberately dash off an inflammatory letter attacking me by name and casting reflections upon my sincerity of purpose.

But we should thank Mr. Hannan for, in his misguided zeal, putting his finger on the very crux of the matter on which I wrote. And that is the cavalier manner in which so much government information is released to the public. This exchange would not have occurred in the first place had the report been clear and disclosed 1972 information as such, and explained the limits of the data. Mr. Hannan sarcastically, but correctly, states that I am not a statistician, but then how many of us in the general public are?

As the news release stands, it is an example of bumbling, bureaucratic information. Taken with Mr. Hannan's letter, it raises nagging questions. Does the Commission speak to all the people? Is the Commission interested in communicating or merely creating dimensionless data to shuffle more government paper?

If true communication of unemployment problems is, in fact, the intent of the Commission, then we taxpayers should expect clearer reporting in the future. Further, no citizen should be subject to the bad temper of an irate public official as a reward for civic concern.

Sincerely yours,
Lawrence Behr

Strength For Today

BITTERNESS IS VAIN
Few men have had a sadder life than Ludwig van Beethoven. Poverty-stricken for many years, disappointed in love on several occasions, his hearing failed him at the climax of his career so that he was never able to hear a note of the great sonatas he wrote in his latter years. It was said that on the day Beethoven died he looked out the window at the lowering sky and shook his fist at it.

Actually, although the great composer had much to endure, he was a celebrated personage and the recipient of many honors. He was fully aware that he was considered one of the great geniuses of his age. But, pathetically, none of these compensations meant very much to him. Genius though he was, he knew little about the art of living.

Thousands of humble people with no trace of Beethoven's genius have adjusted to more severe handicaps than he had and have lived happy lives. We have to take the dark skies with the bright ones, and it does no good to shake our fists at the heavens.

Budget Reform On Way?

More than 50 years have passed since Congress adopted the Budget and Accounting Act of 1921. Since then, so far as congressional control of the purse is concerned, it has been downhill all the way. Now the real and hopeful possibility is emerging that the trend may be reversed. If the two chambers can agree on a major pending bill, Congress may be back in the saddle again.

The matter is of towering importance to the American people but the issue lacks political pizzazz. Not many observers are much interested in the companion House and Senate bills that are scheduled for consideration in December. Yet if a workable bill can be passed and if the two chambers thereafter abide by the spirit and the letter of this reform proposal a new sense of order will be imposed on the present chaos of federal spending.

The chaos is of fairly recent origin. For the first hundred years of this republic's history, federal spending was relatively modest. In 70 of those 100 years the budget showed a surplus. By 1900 the national debt amounted to only one billion dollars. By World War II however spending had begun to soar and executive agencies of the government had learned how to razzle dazzle the Congress with end runs around the appropriations committees.

The 1921 act helped for a time, but with the depression of the '30s new theories of federal spending gained control. World War II made bad matters worse. For the part quarter century, the Congress has tagged along behind successive presidents, unable to gain a sense of direction.

The late Harry Byrd used to talk about it all the time. The great Virginian, for many years chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, labored unceasingly to achieve unified control of the budget. He got nowhere. In Byrd's view, it was lunacy for Congress to operate under a system by which a dozen appropriations bills—plus a raft of supplementals and deficiencies—were considered in isolation, as if no outlay were related to any other outlay or to federal revenues as a whole.

Byrd died too soon. After two years of hard labor and delicate compromise, the House and Senate now appear ready to consider a completely new system of fiscal control.

Details remain to be hammered out, but these are the main features: The President will continue to send up his budget in January, but it will cover a fiscal year beginning in October instead of in July. As soon as they are received, the White House figures will be examined by a new Congressional Office of the Budget and by newly created budget committees in each chamber.

Other Editors Say History's Points

(Jacksonville Daily News)

Along with all its other effects, Watergate is spurring scholars to unearth all kinds of historical oddments bearing on some of the constitutional issues involved.

The question of executive privilege, for example, apparently arose as far back as the second term of President George Washington.

In 1795, Washington's secretary of state, Edmund Randolph, resigned in the face of allegations that he had passed state secrets to the French government. To clear his name, Randolph asked Washington's permission to make public certain letters and conversations between himself and the President.

According to historian Thomas Flexner, recipient this year of a Pulitzer Prize for his biography of Washington, the first president "was confronted with a clear case of whether to cling to executive privilege, and he chose not to."

Although he knew that publication of his communications with Randolph could damage the country's international relations, says Flexner, Washington decided that it was more important to retain public confidence that he, as president, has nothing to hide.

Again on the subject of executive privilege, it seems that in 1951 a freshman senator from California introduced a bill that would have given the chief federal judge in each judicial district the power to name, at the request of a federal grand jury, an independent prosecutor to look into a variety of scandals then rocking the Truman administration.

The rationale behind the bill was the belief that the executive branch could not properly investigate and prosecute itself for wrongdoing.

Its sponsor was named Richard M. Nixon.

Wall Streeters Are Confident

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Do you have the sinking feeling that everyone but you is bailing out of the stock market? Well, you're wrong. Your companions include some of the most esteemed, the most elite of Wall Street.

They are convinced that while an Oriental rug has been yanked from beneath the American economy it will soon land on its feet, still stepping forward.

The trouble for the market, it appears, is that some of these well-heeled investor intellects are throwing in more words than money, and this isn't the kind of a market that can be cajoled. It must be shown.

Nevertheless, for what it's worth — and right now that seems to be very little — a good many analysts and some investors are talking confidently.

The consensus of Insiders has turned bullish. This is a forecasting system based on the market activities of insiders, such as officers and directors. It's latest signal is for an upturn within two to five weeks.

Just as bullish is Wright Bankers' Service, which guides the fortunes of many important bank trusts. John Wright, its analyst, is a bit chagrined by the current "extremism," but sticks to his forecast of an advance.

"We believe that the current stock market represents an unprecedented extreme of unreasoned pessimism and subjective evaluation," declares Wright. It will be "followed promptly by a sharp and sustained advance."

Some of the other forecasters are more selective in their bullishness, urging investors to seek special situations, stocks that might benefit from the oil cutback, overlooked stocks and the like.

Standard & Poor's publication, "The Outlook," foresees four groups of stocks as "particularly well situated." The groups: nuclear energy, offshore drilling, rail transportation and property-liability insurance.

The possibilities for nuclear energy and offshore drillers is obvious, by why insurers and railroads?

"Property-liability insurers could well be paying out less in claims as auto speed limits are lowered," says S&P, adding that if industrial activity is cut there

Trash Fuel's Effect

By ED SCHAFER
Associated Press Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The use of trash as a fuel to run electric generators may help get rid of the solid wastes of the nation's cities but will never make much of a dent in the energy crisis, says the head of a trash-fuel project here.

"If we burned all of the trash produced by the two to three million residents of the seven-county area surrounding St. Louis, it would still provide only 5 to 10 per cent of the total fuel needed to power Union Electric's power plants," said David Klumb, an engineer for the utility. "We would still need a lot of coal."

For the past year, Klumb has been working the bugs out of a system that shreds St. Louis trash and feeds it to a huge boiler at the utility's Meramec power plant. So far, the project has had mixed results.

"I have to say I'm cautiously optimistic that we can make our system work. We've had some problems in the past year, but I feel the basic system is sound and we can go ahead and think about expansion to handle the trash for the whole area," said Klumb.

The engineer is quick to point out, however, that the trash-fuel project does more than provide a small percentage of the utility's fuel and reduce solid waste problems.

"What we are really talking about is a recovery process. (Continued on page 5)

City water hasn't tasted the best in the last two days, but don't be alarmed, it's harmless.

According to a public statement by Martin Swartz, superintendent of the Water and Light commission, the queer taste of the water was due to the accumulation of leaves in the water and the low condition of the Tar River.

The statement said that according to bacteriological and chemical tests done daily at the water plant, water has been unquestionably safe.

Pentagon yet run its course. The reason for the topside military invasion is given as dire necessity. The allocation office was struggling along with some 200 nondescript bureaucrats detailed from the poverty program, the Agriculture Department and other departments utterly irrelevant to the energy program. With the crisis at hand, following months of White House procrastination, the office was incapable of doing the job. So, presidential counselor Melvin R. Laird suggested that Reich, an expert at military logistics, take over.

"Frankly, we had chaos," Reich told us, defending the brass as the best available talent. For instance, Col. William Steger, brought over from the Pentagon, is a recognized petroleum expert.

Reich contends that some of his retired generals will stay only six months and that, once conflict-of-interest and antitrust complications are ironed out, he plans to draw 225 persons from private industry. Moreover, high administration officials claim that Reich's army is strictly administrative.

In truth, however, it is more than that. His office is now setting priorities in the critical middle-distillate (heating fuel, jet fuel, diesel fuel, etc.) area. Whether those decisions are correct or not, some administration officials worry about the image. Interior Department bureaucrats cringed when Reich's first act in the new job was to establish top priority for the Defense Department. They fear repercussions when he allocates fuel for defense contractors at the expense of other industries.

Jackson vs. Fulbright
The once warm relationship between Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington and the Nixon administration underwent further deterioration during the Mideast crisis, with Jackson fuming to friends that he was cut off from diplomatic information.

What incensed Jackson was the continuing ardent courtship by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger of Jackson's archfoe and inveterate Nixon-baiter, Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas—a fact spread around town by friends of the Foreign Relations Committee chairman.

Jackson, President Nixon's invaluable ally through the long agony of Vietnam, felt he was cut off from the information spigot because of criticism of detente and the Nixon-Kissinger handling of the Mideast crisis. Last week Kissinger finally telephoned Jackson to ask him for an appointment—but resentment endures.

The idea at this point is for Congress itself, by joint resolution, to agree upon a single comprehensive ceiling on total prospective spending. The two chambers would debate national priorities, and undertake to fix recommended goals within the ceiling for major areas of spending. Appropriations committees and subcommittees would then go to work, but no spending bill—and this is the key to the new structure—could become operative until all spending bills had been adjusted to a ceiling figure.

In its most desirable form, the new system would impose a deadline on wholly new authorizations for spending. The plan would provide a sensible periodic review of "permanent" authorizations. Sponsors want to put a lock on "back door" and "open-end" programs, which function like a dozen wild cards in a 300 billion dollar game of poker. Within a few years, if all goes well, Congress might regain the one constitutional power that stands above all others—the power of the purse.

It is an admirable goal but seeing is believing. The proposed reforms demand that politicians turn into statesmen, and no alchemist yet has perfected that conversion. Even so, a new spirit seems to be working on Capitol Hill. These bills, after all, have now emerged from committee. The problem in coming weeks is to get them through the floor, and to write some sensible controls into law.

Shot, Avers No Regrets

WADESBORO, N.C. (AP)—A former high school football player who was wounded in the leg when he stopped to aid a highway patrolman in a struggle with a suspect says he has no regrets.

"If I had left and he got killed, I don't think I could live with myself," said John Jefferson Crawford Jr., 22, from his hospital bed in Charlotte Monday. Flowers from the trooper were on his dresser.

Crawford, service manager in his father's auto dealership in Wadesboro, aided Trooper D.W. Tant, whose gun had been wrested away Sunday by a man he had stopped on driving charges. The trooper and the man were struggling in the officer's car near Wadesboro when Crawford came by in a car driven by his fiancée.

Crawford said that as he went toward the patrol car, the other man was biting the trooper on the arm, and that they struggled for the gun.

Right now the city is removing the ferrous materials, the iron and steel, from the trash with magnets and selling the material to Granite City Steel, where it is being recycled.

"And now we are working on ways of removing copper, aluminum and other valuable metals from the trash before it is fed to the furnace," he said. One of the early problems encountered by the project resulted from glass in the trash. Engineers at the plant soon learned the glass was wearing out carbon steel pipes from the inside as trash was blown through pneumatic tubes from a storage silo to the furnace. At each bend, the glass chipped away at the pipes until it wore holes through them.

The plant also found it is creating its own solid-waste disposal problem by burning the trash. Chunks of wood, metal and heavy plastic in the trash have a tendency to fall through the furnace without burning. This residue is sluiced from the ash pit and pumped to settling ponds, where it is piling up.

Ash from pulverized coal, the main fuel at the plant, also piles up, but it is sold by the ton to manufacturers of cement blocks and to street and highway departments that use it on snow-covered roads.

The problems of the glass and residue may be eliminated soon by a new piece of equipment added to the city's trash-shredding facility.

"They are working to perfect their 'classifier,' an apparatus that will effectively separate the heavy materials from the predominantly paper trash," Klumb said. "That will help a lot."

The engineer said the environmental effects of burning the trash with low-sulfur coal have yet to be tested in the air and water around the plant.

"We are starting our own tests soon, and the Environmental Protection Agency will also run some tests," he said. "But I believe the emissions from our stacks will be clean."

The funds for the $3-million project, called the only one of its kind in the country, are being provided by the federal government, the utility and the city, with the EPA picking up about two-thirds of the tab.

Oil Jobbers Co-Operate

RALEIGH (AP) — The president of the North Carolina Oil Jobbers Association has promised that state heating oil dealers will carry out President Nixon's plan for conserving fuel this winter, but said distributors are disappointed that their fuel was "singled out" for the forced reduction.

Richard Pugh of Asheboro released a statement Tuesday in which he said the dealers "would co-operate in administering the new program as equitably as feasibly possible."

Despite the feeling that the heating oil industry was "singled out," Pugh said, "The President's approach is still more realistic than an exorbitant or ticketed rationing."

He said implementing the allotment guidelines would require common sense handling of appeals for extenuating circumstances where more fuel might be required than the allotment plan would allow.

December Is Flu Month

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — December is influenza month, a national Center for Disease Control expert says—but he predicts this year's bout won't be as severe as in previous years.

Dr. Robert Rubin said flu hits every December. "It can't miss," he said in an interview today. Just like October is the month for the World Series, December is the month for flu to appear.

No confirmed cases have been isolated so far this year in the United States, he said.

"But if you haven't been vaccinated by now," Rubin added, "it's probably too late."

For optimal protection, vaccination should have been by mid-November, he said.

Airline Cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Air Lines announced today it is eliminating more than 100 flights in January and laying off at least 950 employees immediately because of the fuel shortage.

The cutbacks will put United about 5.5 per cent below its 1972 fuel usage level, United President Edward E. Carlson said. But, he said, the cutbacks are not enough to meet the new fuel allocation levels announced by President Nixon Sunday night.

Under the program announced by Nixon, all airlines must cut back their fuel usage by 15 per cent.

Carlson said United had not yet decided what flights would be eliminated. He said the figure of 100 flights was arrived at by determining how much aircraft flying time would have to be eliminated in order to get below 1972 fuel levels.

Policeman Shot

HICKORY, N.C. (AP) — "My God I was scared. I just hit the deck," said John Hicks, an employee of First National Bank of Catawba County.

Hicks was in the bank Monday when a man walked in with a gun and shot an assistant cashier, Dwain A. Childers.

Police identified the assailant as 28-year-old Donald Ray King of the Hickory area, who was in critical condition at Catawba Memorial Hospital after being shot by a policeman as he fled the bank.

Officers said Childers was shot four times in the head.

According to police reports, the incident did not appear to be connected with a robbery attempt, but "appeared to be an act of jealousy."

Hickory Police Capt. O.M. McGuire, said King's wife, Hazel, worked in the bank's installment loan department.

Police said a warrant would be issued charging King with murder.

Officer Bob Cullins was the first officer to respond to the alarm around 2:30 p.m., and he reportedly shouted at the gunman to halt as he ran out of the bank.

The man fired at the officer, who returned the fire, hitting King in the chest, police said.

Childers, who worked in the installment loan department of the bank, was reportedly in his late 20s.

Neurosurgeon Will Discuss Headaches

Dr. Robert L. Timmons, a man of the Department of Pathology at ECU described Dr. Surgery at the East Carolina University School of Medicine will discuss that painful symptom, the headache, when he lectures to the public Thursday at East Carolina University.

His lecture entitled "Headache Treatment and Mistreatment" is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Allied Health Building on the corner of Charles Street and 264 by-pass in Greenville.

Dr. Timmons is the third in a series of public lectures sponsored by the ECU School of Medicine and the Department of Pathology in an effort to give the general public a better understanding of medicine.

Dr. Abdullah Fatteh, chairman of the Department of Pathology at ECU described Dr. Timmons as an expert in diseases of the nervous system.

"I believe that Dr. Timmons' lecture will be a great contribution because he will outline the various causes of headache and explain how the headache could be mistreated with disastrous results," he said.

Dr. Fatteh explained that the headache is an extremely common symptom that may result from trivial factors such as tension, overwork, etc. But he noted that an organic disease may be responsible for a headache.

"It is important to recognize the true cause of headache so that the proper treatment can be instituted," he said.

Rescued Dogwood To Be A Memorial

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A 30-foot dogwood rescued from a freeway's path is to be transplanted so it can be a living memorial to the slain country comedian, Stringbean, and his wife.

The dogwood is being dug up, roots and all, and removed to Opryland USA near Nashville where it will be dedicated to the memory of David "Stringbean" Akeman and his wife, Estelle.

The Akemans were shot to death Nov. 10 as they returned to their modest home after Stringbean had performed at the Grand Old Opry.

Akeman had been a member of the Opry cast for more than 30 years. He was also a regular member of the cast of the syndicated television show, "Hee Haw."

The tree was spotted by a construction worker who thought it was too valuable to bulldoze away.

Transportation Commissioner Robert F. Smith offered the dogwood to Opryland, the amusement park where the Grand Old Opry will move next year.

Bud Wendell, general manager of the Opry, said "This living dogwood tree will serve as a constant reminder of String and we are pleased to have it as a memorial."

Buc Wrestlers Shine In Meet

NORFOLK, Va.—East Carolina University's wrestling team, working unattacked, again proved to be one of the top teams in the South this weekend, as they captured seven championships at the Norfolk Thanksgiving Open.

It was the third tournament the Bucs wrestled in. They came away with four victories at Colgate and were the top collegiate team in the East Stroudsburg Open.

Jim Blair gained the Norfolk title at 118, successfully defending his championship from last year. He had also won at Colgate and finished second at East Stroudsburg.

At 126, Paul Ketchum took first place.

Milt Sherman, the defending champ at 142, moved down to 134 and took that title, along with the Outstanding Wrestler Trophy. His victory was his third title of the year.

Tom Marriott, who was third at Colgate, won the Norfolk title at 142-pounds.

Steve Satterthwaite took third place in the 150-pound class, defeating teammate Jack Stortz.

At 158, Paul Prewitt won the title, beating out another Buc, Bruce Hall, who was the defending champion, in an overtime.

Ron Whitcomb finished second at 167.

At 177, Bill Hill beat Jim Cox as two Bucs made it to the finals. Hill had won at Colgate and finished second at East Stroudsburg. Cox was third at Colgate.

Mike Radford was second in the 190-class, while Willard Bryant won the heavyweight title.

Ducks Unlimited Meeting Is Set

Roger Collins III, Greenville area Ducks Unlimited chairman, reminded local sportsmen that the annual DU dinner meeting will be held Thursday night at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Collins said that the session will get underway with a 6:30 p.m. social hour, followed by dinner at 7:30 p.m.

One of the highlights of this year's meeting, Collins noted, will be the auction of various items, including several limited editions prints and a Ducks Unlimited Commemorative Shotgun, with proceeds from the sale going to the national DU fund.

Last year's auction raised $865 for Ducks Unlimited, it was pointed out. Jimmy Hudson of Greenville, who served as auctioneer for the event last

Summerell Gets Another Honor

East Carolina University quarterback Carl Summerell has been named the recipient of the MacArthur Award by the Norfolk Sports Club.

The annual award is presented to the Outstanding Virginia Athlete playing out of the state. Last year's winner was NCAA rushing Howard Stevens of the University of Louisville.

Summerell, who led East Carolina to its second straight 9-2 year and Southern Conference championship, set passing records at East Carolina for percentage, yardage, and completions during his career. He is a prime candidate for All-American honors, and is a leading candidate for Player of the Year in the Southern Conference.

Expected to go early in the pro draft this year, he is being considered for several post-season All-Star games.

Others considered for the award include Wayne Bullock of Notre Dame, Billy Paschall of the University of North Carolina, Lora Hinton of Louisiana State University, Larry Burton of Purdue and Jerry Gaines of Western Carolina University.

The award will be presented during the Norfolk Sports Club Jubilee, to be held January 25, 1974, at the Holiday Inn (SCOPE).

Matthews Gets Rookie Award

NEW YORK (AP) — The San Francisco Giants have produced some sparkling baseball diamonds ... Willie Mays ... Orlando Cepeda ... Willie McCovey ... and now, Gary Matthews.

Following in pretty illustrious company on the Giants, Matthews was named Monday the National League's Rookie of the Year for 1973.

Matthews beat out Montreal pitcher Steve Rogers to become the fourth Giant to win the prize. Mays won his when the Giants played in New York.

A total of nine players received votes — the largest field ever — as the National League produced one of its best crops in history. But despite the most diversified voting in the 27-year history of the award, Matthews won in a breeze.

His total of 11 points exceeded by far that of Rogers' 3½. One writer, unable to decide between Rogers and Pittsburgh outfielder Richie Zisk,

San Francisco Stops Skid; Tops Packers

By ERIC PREWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The San Francisco 49ers, blessed by perfect weather and timely Green Bay mistakes, pulled out of the four-week slide which took them to National Football League oblivion.

"I feel like we've just won the Super Bowl," tight end Ted Kwalick said after Monday night's 20-6 nationally televised victory over the Packers, illustrating just how bad things had become.

The Packers, another team on the skids, produced enough misplays to match some recent Super Bowls, and Coach Dan Devine moaned, "I'm sick to my stomach."

But 49ers' Coach Dick Nolan attributed the victory to good defense, a strong running attack led by Vic Washington and some timely late passing by Steve Spurrier. The team produced 268 yards on offense and suffered just one turnover in breaking its four-game losing streak.

"The weather conditions were perfect for passing," said Spurrier, as if apologizing for his 20-yard fourth period touchdown pass to Kwalick which put the 49ers safely ahead, 17-6.

Despite the calm weather, something Candlestick Park ballclubs and fans pray for and seldom get, the 49ers' offense chose to stay mainly on the ground. Spurrier's touchdown pass was just the sixth San Francisco completion of the night.

Rookie Joe Reed, who moved ahead of Spurrier and 38-year-old John Brodie in the quarterback picture three weeks ago, completed just five of 16 passes for 44 yards before leaving with a pulled groin muscle.

Washington rushed for 94 yards, scored the game's first touchdown on a one-yard plunge in the second period and added a 37-yard kickoff return. Fullback Ken Willard had 55 of

Cougars Down Kentucky, 94-82

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Carolina, led by Billy Cunningham, scored 25 points to Kentucky's 12 in the final period Monday night to defeat the Colonels 94-82 and press them for the American Basketball Association Eastern Division lead.

The Colonels still held a slight edge in percentage points after their fourth defeat by the Cougars — .750 to .692.

A late start and some fist swinging in the third period marred the contest, and left Kentucky's Rick Mount saying that pro basketball has become "all push and shove."

The defeat was the fifth this season for the Colonels against 15 wins. Carolina is now 18-8.

The game began 30 minutes late because of a mixup, then was delayed again at intermission after an official be-

Alabama Moves To Top; Bucs Still Get Votes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Flattery is great, says Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant. But there is no substitute for results.

The Crimson Tide of Alabama replaced Ohio State as the nation's top-ranked college football team in this week's Associated Press poll.

"I'm highly flattered, of course, and I certainly hope we can prove deserving," Bryant said. "Right now, though, it doesn't mean a thing unless we can beat Auburn. The squad has worked hard to attain the No. 1 ranking and it's up to us to show we deserve it."

One man who didn't agree with the poll's results was Oklahoma Coach Barry Switzer, whose team finished second in the balloting.

Switzer thinks the Sooners — not Alabama, should be No. 1.

Ohio State's 10-10 tie with Ohio State realigned the poll results with Oklahoma, which had been third, moving up to No. 2, the Buckeyes dropping to third and Michigan maintaining fourth place.

Notre Dame and Penn State, like Alabama unbeaten and untied, remained fifth and sixth, respectively, and remained in contention for the national title, which will be decided following the bowl games on New Year's Day.

Alabama, which beat Louisiana State 21-7 last Thursday, received 36 first-place votes and 1,176 points from the nationwide panel of 63 AP member sports writers and sportscasters.

Oklahoma, which beat Nebraska 27-0 last Friday, garnered 20 first-place votes and 1,095 points. Ohio State collected two first-place ballots and 892 points while Michigan got one No. 1 vote and 876 points.

Notre Dame, a 48-15 Thanksgiving Day victor over Air Force, received two first-place votes and 832 votes while Penn State, which capped its regular 11-0 season with a 35-13 victory over Pitt, earned the remaining first-place vote and 726 points.

Southern Cal used a 23-13 victory over UCLA to climb from ninth to seventh place. LSU's loss to the Crimson Tide dropped the Tigers from seventh to eight while Texas jumped from 11th to ninth with a 42-13 shellacking of Texas A&M.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Randle: Still Up In The Air

The East Carolina University head football position remains "up in the air" in the words of Sonny Randle, the man who currently occupies the job.

Randle, who has been with East Carolina for the past four years, the last three as head coach, admitted that he has talked with the University of Virginia, his alma mater, about the job at that school.

"I had an interview for the job on Friday," Randle said. "It was a very friendly talk, but things are not decided." The coach also said that he had talked with Dr. Leo Jenkins, chancellor of East Carolina, this morning. Details of the two meetings by Randle were not made public.

"I have no idea when Virginia will come up with something definite," Randle said. "I would think that it should be pretty soon."

Football recruiting both at East Carolina and Virginia is hanging in the balance, with Virginia probably getting the shorter end of the deal, having no head coach at all. East Carolina is continuing at a rapid pace, but some recruits appear to be holding off to see what direction the Pirate program will take should Randle leave.

The coach also admitted that he has had feelers from other schools, although he declined to name them. "Let's just say two others," he said, although that

Evans May Be North Leader

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The phone rang in the hotel room. And Johnny Evans, a quarterback from High Point Andrews, perhaps the most coveted player on the 35-man North Carolina Shrine Bowl football squad, began talking to a college recruiter who was keeping in touch.

"I don't know, things are so hectic right now, and everybody's so new to everybody, I'm just kinda following everybody around," Evans said.

The squad of the best high school seniors, which will play a similar squad from South Carolina in Charlotte Saturday, opened two-a-day practices Monday.

Evans, 6-foot-2 and 182 pounds, also has been a tail-back, defensive back, punter and place kicker at Andrews High. He will get competition for the quarterback post from Solomon Everette, a highly rated drop-back passer from Fayetteville Byrd.

As Evans quarterbacked the squad in the first practice, a college coach remarked: "Wait'll they start putting in some options off the set plays for him. He's some kinda runner."

But Gerald Allen of Shelby, head North Carolina coach, hasn't hinted that such plays will be added to the power-I and variations his squad will use. He hasn't even indicated that Evans is the man he wants to run his offense. It's too early for tipping hands.

Jeff Mills, 6-foot-3, 225-pound tackle from Mann High School in Greenville, S.C., impressed the South Carolina head coach, Dick Singleton, in the first workout. "Mills confirmed what we had heard about him," said Singleton, who is from Daniels High in Central. "I don't think there'll be much doubt he's a good prospect."

Mills played tackle on offense and defense at Mann. He's being worked on offense, but says that over-all he prefers defense. He averaged 10 to 12 tackles a game this fall.

Should he win a spot at offensive tackle, he might have to face Thad Allen of Charlotte Garinger, 6-2, 220, a defensive tackle rated one of North Carolina's top recruits. But Mills has other things on his mind right now. He says:

"I'm like these other guys up here. I want to play. All these guys are going against each other, and everybody came here to play."

Nicklaus Getting New Competition In Golf

By BOB GREEN
Associated Press Golf Writer
LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus will have some new and formidable opposition in the person of rookie Ben Crenshaw when he opens defense of his crown in the Walt Disney World Open Golf tournament this week.

The 72-hole tournament is the last of some 46 major events on the 12-month schedule and has an unusual Wednesday through Saturday format. Most tournaments run Thursday through Sunday, but the Disney was changed to avoid a weekend television conflict with pro football.

Nicklaus is the only champion this tournament has ever had and is a solid favorite to take the winner's share of $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000.

The 21-year-old Crenshaw could be his biggest challenger. The sensational rookie has finished first and second in his last two starts and will be facing Nicklaus for the first time since gaining his Approved Player's Card as a full-fledged member of the tour.

Nicklaus, however, has had a lock on this championship. He won the 1971 and 1972 events in the shadow of Disney's Magic Kingdom and has added incentive this year. A victory would assure him of his third consecutive money-winning crown and would break a deadlock with Tom Weiskopf for the most tournament titles this season.

Each has won six, and Weiskopf is not playing in this tournament.

Several of the game's other big names also have completed play for the year and won't compete again until the 1974 season. Among them are Arnold Palmer, South African Gary Player, Billy Casper, Lee Trevino, and Masters Champion Tommy Aaron.

Johnny Miller, the U.S. Open champion who just last weekend took the individual crown in the World Cup competition in Spain, also is among the missing.

Nicklaus, the current PGA champion, was the other member of the victorious two-man American team and wasn't scheduled to arrive at Disney World until today.

He comes in to the tournament with $278,124 in winnings for the season. The only man who can prevent him from taking a third consecutive money-winning crown—considered by the touring pros as the most prestigious of all accomplishments—is Australian Bruce Crampton.

Crampton has won four times this season and was in position to win a half dozen others. He trails Nicklaus on the money-winning list by less than $5,000 at $273,351.

POSTPONED

Rose High School's opening wrestling match, scheduled for last night at New Bern, was postponed.

The Rampants postponed the match because of the late finish of football season. Many of the wrestling team members are members of the football team. The match will be rescheduled for later in the season.

Rose is now scheduled to open on Thursday, traveling to Farmville Central.

Richmond, With Star, Seeks To Pull Upset

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

For some time, Richmond basketball coach Lou Mills tried not to let it worry him, but the nagging thought remained—what would happen to the title hopes of the Spiders without Aron Stewart.

Stewart, the Southern Conference Player of the Year in basketball last year as a junior college transfer at Richmond, was in trouble. He had participated in a post-season all-star game without written permission of the Richmond faculty athletic chairman. Such a violation calls for a year's suspension under Southern Conference rules.

Mills' anxiety was relieved November 14 when league commissioner Lloyd Jordan (whose office is in Richmond) ruled that Stewart would be "suspended" for the first three games of the season, then could resume play for the Spiders. Jordan then dared the rest of the conference to dispute his ruling, saying he would air the league's dirty laundry (if and where it is) if the conference Executive Committee should try to overrule him. As yet, the league appears to be bowing to his act—there has been no announcement of any appeal by the rest of the league.

And that make Mills quite happy. "I've never really worried about his not being eligible," he said just before the ruling. "We're going on the assumption that he's going to play."

Mills, who is the dean of the Southern Conference cage coaches, enters his 11th year at Richmond, where he has been on shakey ground before landing Stewart. But the basketball program appears now on the upward swing.

"We've got a lot going for us," Mills said. "The basketball program has the best opportunity it has ever had. We have money, we have the facility, and we have three assistants for the first time." Mills' team faces a tough schedule, however, with many of the rough ones on the road—such as Villanova, Duquesne, Maryland, West Virginia, Furman, Davidson and William & Mary.

"We should do all right in the conference," he added. "We have some pretty good talent, a little experience and some new faces."

The favorite face, naturally, will be Stewart's. He put in 30.2 points a game last year and pulled down 11.9 rebounds. He's joined in returning by Jeff Snider, at 6-10, the biggest Spider. Snider averaged 11.9 last year. Bob Jacobs and Steve Catlett, both of whom started from time to time last year return. Jacobs averaged 10.7 per game.

One of the new faces will be Eric Gray, a 6-7, junior up from the junior varsity. "He will be exciting to watch," the coach said. "He's one of the quickest men we've ever had. He's still a little uncertain on offense, but at times he gets the ball into the hole quite well. He may be better when he gets into actual competition. He seems to be one of those who don't perform in practice, like Stewart—he's a game player."

The inside people should be a strong point for the Spiders. With Stewart, Gray and Snider, Mills feels the Spiders should be improved. "Bob McCurdy (6-7) will be an asset. He's a dedicated player and can work either at the post or on the wings. His brother Steve (a 6-8 freshman) will also give us a lot of help."

There is some experience at the guard position, but the young players are expected to help here too. Freshman Kevin Eastman "will be real fine when he matures," Mills said. Another freshman, Chris Wright, has come a long way already, the coach said. Mills also expects a good year from Catlett with added depth in Carlton Mack and Mike Sanford.

"We have strength, quickness and we can play some pressure defense," Mills said. "We may also move Stewart out to the guard position where he's just as much at home. It depends on how the other big men come along."

"This team has the makings of being our best ever. And I just have given no thought to playing without Stewart. I don't even want to talk about it."

Unless the other seven members of the Southern Conference try to dispute Jordan's ruling on Stewart, Mills may have little talking to do about it. All he has to do is sit back and watch him score points, and hopefully make the Spiders a challenger to the title along with Davidson and Furman.

Girl Joins Grapple Team

LA MESA, Calif. (AP) — Since Roberta Butcher decided to try out for the wrestling team at Helix High School, she's heard plenty of suggestions about her motives, some of them unflattering. But she says it's really quite simple.

"If there was a girls' wrestling team I would go out for it," says the trim 120-pound 11th grader. "But since there isn't, I just have to stick with the boys' team."

"I suppose that I could have gone out for something like tennis or volleyball to keep in shape, but wrestling just seemed like a challenge."

A new California Inter-scholastic Federation rule allowing girls to try out for any boys' athletic team enabled Miss Butcher to turn out for the start of wrestling practice four weeks ago. She hasn't made the team yet, but she's won the respect of Coach Dick Langston.

"When Roberta approached me last spring about coming out for the wrestling team I just laughed," he says. "However, when she showed up for practice, I knew she was serious. I think she's really sincere about trying to make our team."

An ex-boyfriend might also testify to her sincerity.

"This one boy I was going out with told me to either quit the team or say good-bye to him," says Miss Butcher. "So I said good-bye."

The Worry Clinic Payoff In That 'Second Mile'

Margaret Barber exudes such enthusiasm for cultural advancement that she rates tops on that "Rating Scale for Teachers" mentioned below. She unselfishly goes that "second mile" to make her classes vitally interesting and dramatic.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Y-580: Prof. Margaret E. Barber, aged about 38, is a very popular psychology teacher.

For she illustrates the Bible injunction about "going the second mile."

"Dr. Crane," she telephoned me from California recently, "I am using your textbook in my classes at El Camino College. The students like it immensely. "So I wonder if I might see you in Chicago next Wednesday. "For I am attending a convention there and a devotee of audio-visual teaching aids. "If we could meet, I'd like to bring my camera and take some movies which I would then show to my psychology students.

"In this way I try to make psychology come alive, for which I reproduce my pictures by way of a TV set in the classroom, the students doubly relish seeing and hearing the authors of their textbooks."

Superb Teachers Mrs. Crane and I were to be away from Chicago the week that Prof. Barber was due to arrive.

But we found she'd reach Chicago at 6 a.m. Wednesday morning and her convention didn't start till Thursday.

So we coaxed her to fly down to Lafayette, Indiana, where we'd meet her.

When she arrived, we drove to the Home Office of the Scientific Marriage Foundation, so she could take some pictures of Cupid's Computer, which is used in matching congenial men and women for possible romance and happy marriage.

Prof. Barber is a beautiful woman who radiates vitality and charm. Luckily, she is athletic, too, for her camera, video tapes and other equipment must weigh 75 pounds.

Yet she takes them with her whenever she thinks she can obtain pictures that will interest her large psychology classes. For she is a dedicated teacher with true missionary zeal to help increase the cultural zest of all her pupils.

Rarely have I met a professor with her unselfish concern for her students.

That's why I have long urged the use of "Teacher Rating Scales," which would permit students anonymously to evaluate their faculty.

And the toponch professors don't object to such student ratings of the professors!

Opening lead: Jack of ♠

In life, a pessimist might be described as a man who wears both a belt and suspenders. At the bridge table, he might be described as a winning player, for he imagines the worst and tries to do something about it.

North-South conducted an intelligent auction to reach their best contract. There was nothing remarkable about the first three bids in the auction, but North had a problem with his second bid. The hand looked like it should be played in no-trump, yet the club suit might be un-stopped. Also, South might have to be the declarer in no-trump to protect his minor suit holdings. Accordingly, North temporized by bidding his three-card heart suit and, when South obliged with two no trump, he raised to game.

Declarer was an optimist, and as a result the play was soon over. The jack of hearts opening lead was covered by the queen and won by the ace. A heart return dislodged declarer's remaining stopper, and when West got the lead with the ace of diamonds he cashed three heart tricks for a one-trick set.

Had declarer visualized this distribution at trick one, he could have made his game. Correct technique is to play low from dummy at trick one! East wins the second heart and, if he has a heart to return, that means the suit will divide 4-3 and declarer can lose only three hearts and the ace of diamonds.

This line of play gives up the possibility of making two heart tricks if West holds the ace, but that is a minor consideration. Also, if West has five hearts to the ace and the ace of diamonds, ducking the first heart would result in declarer's downfall. However, this latter distribution is less likely than the one that actually existed, especially as West might have overcalled one heart had he held a good five-card suit and a side ace.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 28, 1973

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan the future more wisely and choose the individuals you would like to be associated with in a new project. Think logically.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can plan your life with greater intelligence right now and make the future much brighter. Avoid one who is a troublemaker.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Looming large in the horizon is the crown of success, provided you make the right contacts now. Make your social life more rewarding.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be charming and intelligent and will not hesitate to take advantage of any opportunities. Direct the education along practical and business lines. The stage could also be a fine outlet here. Give good religious training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

No; it is the slothful, listless or cynical faculty members who argue that students are incapable of judging sterling pedagogy.

That's malarky! And mere buck-passing!

For at age 18, teen-agers can now vote for President of the U.S.A., plus national and state Senators, Governors, plus other officials.

So they are even better able to evaluate a teacher's output, since they are in much closer contact with their classroom professors than with distant political candidates.

So send for my "Test for Good Teachers," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Prof. Margaret Barber gets a "Very Superior," score thereon! (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Alan King Eyes A Comedy Award

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The way Alan King sees it, "Comedy is the only art form that's never recognized its own." But he hopes to remedy this with an annual "Charlie" comedy awards show on television.

Although the Brooklyn-born comedian says the show won't be ready until January 1975, he's already trying to line up a blue-ribbon panel of comedy experts who'd nominate entries from all fields of mirth-making.

At the same time, he says, he's seeking permission from Charlie Chaplin to use Chaplin's name on the show's proposed "Charlie" awards, gold statuettes of Chaplin's "Little Tramp" character which would be awarded all winners on the show.

"I can't think of anybody in the world whose name is more synonymous with comedy than Charlie Chaplin," King said.

He emphasized that the awards wouldn't be restricted to television comedy but would encompass other fields of humor — the stage, books, movies, cartoons and even the rascals known as columnists.

"Let's say there'd be one for the best comedy writing for a newspaper," he said. "It'd cover the Art Buchwalds, the Russell Bakers, but also include local writers."

"You know, there are about 100 guys around the country who write some very funny stuff for newspapers and nobody knows about them," he said, perhaps getting himself 100 votes right on the spot.

King said he doesn't want too many categories of humor on the show. "That'd be a bore," he said. "What we'll probably do is sit down and start with 20, then narrow it down even further."

He said his proposed blue-ribbon panel would be made up of leading figures in humor — performers, playwrights, jesters and the like — who'd serve on what he called a "National Comedy Board."

They'd meet and nominate five entries in each category of humor, abstaining from the voting in categories in which their efforts are included, he said.

After that, King said, final voting on the nominees would be done by the 1,300 critics, television reviewers and entertainment editors he estimated work on newspapers in the United States.

King, who said ABC-TV wants to carry the "Charlie" shows he proposes, was asked if the shows wouldn't cause gripes from television editors who complain there already are too many awards shows on TV.

"Well, let me tell you something: Let everybody beef and let me get a 40 share," he laughed, referring to a share-of-audience figure that any network would be proud to call its own.

Suspect More Flim-Flams In N.C. Than Reported

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

Once in a while, a case in which someone is cheated out of his money because he has trusted a stranger makes its way to public notice. But North Carolina authorities say they believe such hustlers are far more common than the reported cases would indicate.

State Bureau of Investigation Director Charles Dunn said only about 30 to 50 cases are investigated by the SBI each year. He estimated that other enforcement agencies handled about the same number of cases and said, "Probably more than this have actually taken place but have not been reported because of the embarrassment of being 'took in.'"

Flim-flamming comes in assorted styles, but a large number of the reported cases occur around banks. A Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. spokesman identified three types that have most often been brought to bank notice. The kind called "the phony bank examiner" has a number of variations.

Generally, a well-dressed person claiming to be a bank official will approach a customer and ask him to help catch an employee believed to be embezzling funds. The customer is asked to withdraw his savings which the bank official says he will use to trace any embezzlement attempts.

Sometimes the bank customer is contacted at home with similar plans for assistance.

A second scheme is called "100 confusion." Here a person goes into a bank, or any place where money is handled, with a request for change. He confuses the teller or whoever is handling the money, often with a running conversation, and ends up leaving with more money than he came in with.

The confusion could come about by the flim-flammer's asking for change for a succession of bills, or if the teller mistakenly puts away the bill being changed before the transaction is completed.

A third common bank hustle is the use of "scare tactics." A phony bank official approaches a customer and tells him he has inside information that the bank will fail. He offers to help the customer prevent the imminent loss of his money by taking it and putting it in a "safe place."

Dunn said the SBI runs into an even wider variety of schemes and has identified at least 15 types of flim-flamming in North Carolina.

He said the "Social Security bit" was pretty common in the Tar Heel state a few months ago. A person claiming to represent the Social Security office or some other service agency, arrives at someone's house for a conference.

While he is holding a conversation with the victim, an accomplice goes through the house collecting anything of value he can lay his hands on.

Another type is in its heyday during the tobacco marketing season. The flim-flammer approaches someone in the tobacco warehouse area who is likely to have money.

He flashes a roll of bills he has supposedly found or claims to have found some money which he wants to share. In order for the victim to share the booty, he must put up some "good faith money" with which the swindler disappears.

Dunn said flim-flamming is not limited to any particular group of people.

"The successful flim-flammer works a variety of operations. Some of them specialize in older people and some specialize in other groups of people." He warned that older persons are the most likely group to be made victims of "home repair crews."

They offer to do chores that might actually need doing, but their spraying for insects may not be with insecticide and their barn paintings seldom last beyond the first rain.

An assistant vice president for First Union National Bank noted that the most common victims of the "phony bank examiner" scheme are older women.

Kenneth Miller said, "The situations that we know about have all involved older women. We don't know to this day how the people are getting information that they have accounts with us."

He added a word of caution. "I can't think of any situation where anyone legitimately representing the bank would call and ask someone to withdraw money and then have the money picked up."

Miller said the bank is willing to verify any calls its officials have supposedly made.

As for other money-making schemes, Dunn said, "I think people need to be cautious of any easy money schemes. There are really very few ways of making large sums of money very easily."

"I think if products are involved, they'd better be sure of what they're getting before they fork over their money."

Graduate School Is Senator's Priority

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina should build post-graduate medical education facilities before developing a new undergraduate medical school, says State Sen. Gordon P. Allen, D-Person, the Senate majority leader.

In a talk Monday to the annual meeting of the State Council of Social Legislation, Allen talked approvingly of the request of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors for $30 million to expand the area health education center program.

The leader of Senate Democrats said the issue of whether to develop a four-year medical school at East Carolina University was "highly emotional," and he said he hoped that the legislature "would not in a fit of emotion make the wrong decision."

Allen said he does not oppose expansion of the ECU medical school as a goal, and he said, "I would hope that some day they would have the school."

First, he said, "you've got to have the clinical teaching facilities."

Discussing the issue of no-fault auto insurance, Allen said he expects a House subcommittee to revise a Senate-passed bill into an "add-on type bill." He said this would simply provide for additional coverage on top of regular auto liability insurance.

The "add-on" concept does not limit the right to bring court suit and, therefore, the "add-on no-fault is really a no no-fault," Allen stated.

Leave Them On

Leave those security lights on, says Charles Horne, director of the Greenville Utilities Commission.

Horne said his office has had numerous calls asking whether "area lights" for backyards and farms should be turned off to conserve energy. "These are not decorative lights," he said. "We feel very strongly that the amount they cost—they burn approximately two kilowatt hours in a 12-hour period—is cheap compared to the amount of energy that would be needed for increased police patrolling and for loss of property they may be preventing."

Father Will Pay Ransom

LONDON (AP) — J. Paul Getty III's father has issued a statement saying he has agreed to pay a ransom before the allegedly kidnaped youth is returned.

The statement, given to the British Press Association by a family spokesman, did not specify how much would be paid. However, young Getty's mother, former actress Gail Harris, said in Rome that the amount was $1 million, less than a third of the last reported demand.

The 17-year-old grandson of American oil billionaire J. Paul Getty disappeared July 9 in Rome. The family and Rome newspapers have received notes purportedly from the youth's kidnapers.

An original ransom demand of $17 million reportedly had been reduced to $3.4 million.

The statement issued here for the father, J. Paul Getty Jr., said the kidnapers had refused to hand over the youth when the ransom was paid so it was agreed to make the payment before the release.

Ticket For Slow Driver

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Mrs. Reva Williams of Houston was "only performing her patriotic duty to the President of the United States" her lawyer says.

A Texas highway patrolmen thought differently and gave her a ticket because he said she was driving too slow at 50 miles an hour on U.S. 90 in neighboring Richmond, Tex.

Both President Nixon and Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe have called on drivers to slow down to 50 to save gas.

But Sgt. John Rogers of the Houston Department of Public Safety said Monday his officers will continue to ticket slow drivers "if they are obstructing the flow of traffic, Presidential order or no Presidential order."

"We have a state law to uphold," he said. "We can't go around enforcing a Presidential request unless the state legislature acts to change the law."

M.B. Richardson, Mrs. Williams' lawyer, said that when his client received her ticket "there had been recommendations from the White House and the State House to reduce speed."

"She was only doing her part," he added.

Methodist Group Tours England

DURHAM (AP)—About 360 North Carolina Methodists have flown to England to visit sites of historic significance in the founding of their denomination.

Bishops Robert Blackburn of Raleigh and Earl Hunt of Charlotte led the group which left Monday.

In England they will visit Epworth where John Wesley, the founder of Methodism, was born. They will also visit Wesley's Chapel in London and the New Room in Bristol.

Dear Sir:

We, of the A & A Discount Center have the honor and pleasure of introducing to you folks an entirely new product which we feel will revolutionize the pool industry.

The new A & A Steel In-The-Ground Pool is not to be confused with any other type of pools. You owe it to yourself, as a conscientious home owner, to investigate its possibilities and what it may do for you. However, what we must do is set up a few pools, so that the people can see exactly what a finished pool looks like, and have the right for inspection opened to them. The company would like to know, and wondered, if you would be interested in an offer that we are going to make to someone in your community.

We are trying to introduce to a few home owners in your community who are interested in having a pool for their home, and would be willing to let us demonstrate our product and who would pass on to others who might inquire, the information and experience you have gained.

In consideration for your cooperation in letting us demonstrate this excellent swimming pool — a pool which will enhance the beauty of your home and increase the value of your property — the company is offering to you the chance to purchase, at a very, very low price, an A & A In-The-Ground Steel Swimming Pool. We will make you terms to fit your pocketbook.

If you, Mr. and Mrs., would be interested in learning more about this fine opportunity, please mail the enclosed card immediately. This card must be returned within five days after receipt to enable you to take advantage of the offer.

Very truly yours,
A & A DISCOUNT CENTER INC.
