

Ask Testimony Of Nixon's Top Aide On Gap In Tapes

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The special Watergate prosecutor's staff wants Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., President Nixon's top aide, to testify at a federal court hearing on the 18-minute gap in one of the subpoenaed presidential tapes.

That was expected to be worked out at a conference in U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica's chambers before the resumption of testimony today in open court.

Haig's name cropped up frequently this week during testimony by Rose Mary Woods, the President's personal secretary, and J. Fred Buzhardt, White House counsel assigned to the tapes case.

Disclosure that Haig would testify came during a rapid-fire series of Watergate developments at the courthouse and elsewhere that included:

—Indictment of Dwight L. Chapin, former presidential appointments secretary, on charges of lying to the original Watergate grand jury.

—A statement from presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler that the special prosecutor's staff has "a certain amount of ingrained suspicion and visceral dislike for this President and this administration."

—A suggestion from special Watergate prosecutor Leon Ja-

$142,000 Received For Stokes Water Program

WATER FUNDS... Harry Jarvis (C) acting FHA county supervisor, presents a check for $142,000 to Stokes Regional Water Corporation officials Ray Fuchs (R) and Sam Gray. (Reflector Staff Photo)

STOKES—The Stokes Regional Water Corporation has received a loan and grant from the Farmers Home Administration totaling $142,000 for a new community water system.

Acting FHA county supervisor Harry Jarvis said that a loan of $75,000 and grant of $67,000 was approved for the corporation, which was formed to secure safe and adequate water for the Stokes community.

Jarvis presented the check Thursday to corporation president Ray Fuchs and Sam

Gray, secretary-treasurer.

The corporation, a non-profit membership organization operated by its officers and members, has put two new deep wells down and water from the new system has been tested and approved by the Department of Health.

Jarvis said that the new water system will be an aid to the future development of the Stokes area and will help in fostering industry location in the area.

Currently, the water corporation has 84 members, it was pointed out. All aspects of providing water to new members will be handled by the organization, including line connections and meter reading.

James T. Johnson, state director of FHA, has reported that under the new Redevelopment Bill other loans and grants will be available to communities for improvements such as fire departments, rescue squads, community buildings and industry.

Some $22,808 has been pledged to the Pitt County United Fund by Burroughs Wellcome Co. and its employees.

Burroughs Wellcome campaign chairman Jim Graham and assistant coordinator Beverly Garrett presented the company's United Fund check Wednesday to Pitt UF chairman Bill Dansey.

This year's figure reflects an increase over last year's company and employee pledge of $16,431.

Burroughs Wellcome, one of the nation's leading manufacturers of pharmaceutical products, has corporate headquarters and research laboratories in Research Triangle Park and production facilities in Greenville.

Ceasefire Holds Despite Maximum Alert On Suez

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The senior U.N. commander in the Middle East conferred with Egypt's war minister today over the suspension of cease-fire talks, then flew to Jerusalem to meet with Israeli officials.

The hurry of activity by Lt. Gen. Ensio Siilasvuo was meant to bring Israeli Maj. Gen. Aharon Yariv and Egyptian Maj. Gen. Mohamed el-Gamasy back to their desert negotiating table after their talks broke off Thursday.

Israeli newspapers reported that Israeli and Egyptian forces on the Suez Canal front were on maximum alert. The paper Yediot Aharonot said Egypt had resupplied its forces with Soviet arms since the war "and they need nothing more than an order to renew the firing."

A U.N. spokesman said "some incidents" had been reported since the talks were broken off, but he repeated an earlier assertion that the "cease-fire is holding." No details of the incidents were available.

The spokesman said Siilasvuo met with Egyptian War Minister Ahmed Ismail in Cairo for nearly an hour at Siilasvuo's request. He declined further comment, but other sources said the meeting was held apparently at the instruction of U.N. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim.

"I think we should not lose the momentum," Waldheim said in New York Thursday. "I think we should do all we can to maintain the momentum and get a settlement."

Yariv said he thought the talks would continue, but Premier Golda Meir declared she was by no means certain that the cease-fire would endure until full peace negotiations begin. U.S. officials in Washington said they expect the Arab-Israeli peace conference to open in Geneva in mid-December even if the impasse is not resolved.

Israel's military command reported that another Israeli soldier had been killed and three wounded in sporadic cease-fire violations, occurring almost daily on the southern front. The Israeli killed Thursday was the fifth reported Israeli fatality since the Oct. 24 U.N. cease-fire.

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Leftist guerrillas have told the Ford Motor Co. here they will murder all American executives and their families one by one.

They also said they would blow up the Ford factory here because the auto maker had "pillaged the country by superexploitation of workers."

The threat came in a letter Wednesday and sent 25 Ford executives and their families fleeing for their lives.

But the Argentine government pledged to take all measures necessary to guarantee the safety of foreigners.

Chrysler Trims Output

DETROIT (AP) — Following in the footsteps of industry giant General Motors, Chrysler Corp. has announced January plant shutdowns to trim production of large-size automobiles.

The nation's No. 3 automaker said Thursday it is extending the week-long Christmas shutdown by three days at two plants which turn out large cars. A third plant which has been assembling large cars will be closed for two weeks during conversion to small car production, Chrysler spokesmen said.

Chrysler also said four small car assembly plants would be closed three days to allow a balancing of parts supplies with the newly converted plant.

About 33,000 Chrysler hourly workers will be affected by the three-day shutdowns, spokesmen said. Another 5,100 will be laid off during conversion of the firm's Newark, Del., assembly plant to small-car production, they said.

General Motors said last week it would shut down some assembly lines in 16 plants the third week in December to cut production by 79,000 large autos. The decision was forced by growing inventories of large-sized autos, GM said.

Gasoline Decision Is Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon may be nearing a decision on whether to impose gasoline rationing, higher gasoline taxes or both.

He scheduled a meeting today with his cabinet-level energy group. Such a move usually means that a decision is near.

Sources said the energy group is leaning heavily toward recommending rationing to Nixon. Senior administration officials have concluded that Congress would not approve a large increase in the federal tax on gasoline to discourage driving, the sources said.

However, Nixon is known to view rationing as a last resort. On Nov. 7 he said the American people would resent peacetime rationing "very, very much" and that he personally disliked it because of the power it gave to the officials who administer it.

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, said Thursday that no decision has been made either way.

Contingency plans are being drafted for rationing, the White House has confirmed.

Many Anxious To Hoard Fuel

CHARLOTTE (AP) — "The phone is about to run us crazy with people trying to buy 55-gallon steel drums to store gasoline or kerosene," says a Charlotte steel drum reconditioner.

State's Building Activity Gained

RALEIGH (ALP)—State Labor Commissioner Billy Creel reported today that building activity in North Carolina showed a big increase in October.

Creel reported that 36 Tar Heel cities issued building permits totaling $62.4 million for the month. This was 24.5 per cent ahead of October of last year.

Building for the first 10 months of 1973 totaled $605.8 million and was up 2 per cent from last year. High Point led in October building permits with $11.3 million worth while Raleigh was second with $9.1 million and Greensboro third with $8.3 million.

Variety Of Topics Before Governor

By STUART SAVAGE

Governor Jim Holshouser held some 40 private interviews here yesterday during the ninth "People's Day" held since he took office in January.

The governor's staff members said another 25 persons were unable to see Holshouser due to lack of time, but noted that 20 of the 25 not able to talk personally with the governor talked with staff members about their problems and will receive the same follow-up to their requests as those who were able to see the governor.

military and be encouraged to join the service of their choice in later years.

According to Tetterton, the cost of the Washington project is estimated at $300,000 and construction is planned to get under way in from three to six months.

Tetterton noted that it is hoped that eventually such centers would be established nationwide, in an effort to help maintain enlistments for an all-volunteer military.

Mrs. Lizzie Tripp of 102 Corbett St. talked with Gov. Holshouser during the afternoon about problems she has experienced in being able to return to the Walter B. Jones Alcoholism Rehabilitation Center as an employee after having an operation, while another local resident asked the Governor for a direct commission in the National Guard.

GREENSBORO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service says it will begin a statewide check Monday to see if gasoline retailers are in compliance with Phase IV petroleum regulations.

Retailers must have posted on each pump stickers showing the ceiling price and minimum octane rating.

Interior Designers Launch National Program

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Some furniture manufacturers are 16 weeks behind in orders, others aren't even taking orders until 1974, and many will never produce the furniture that has been ordered. At least one company is building a new factory to cope with all the new business.

So says interior designer Patricia Harvey, explaining how uncertainties in the home furnishings field are posing enormous problems for interior designers and confusion for their clients. It is one reason, she says, the American Institute of Interior Designers is embarking on a nationwide program to educate the consumer. The AID program will be launched by its 42 chapters and will provide audio visual presentation in a forum that will be tailored to the needs of individual communities, says Miss Harvey, spokesman for the institute.

"For example, the average person has misconceptions that designers make a lot of money. This program will explain how the money is spent, how much time and effort goes into each project, and how the money must now be amortized over a longer period. It will also show how the designer saves a client time and money."

The manufacturer's dilemma in producing furnishings has been compounded by a lack of skilled craftsmen, a depletion of our wood supply and trans-sient employees who do not have the long-time worker's pride in their work, she insists.

"In the past an interior designer could give a client a firm price that would still hold when the home was decorated. Now our quotation is for only three days. Manufacturers now must have big service departments to handle complaints, which is costly, and in this past year furniture prices have gone up about 15 per cent. We no longer can give delivery dates although we do everything physically possible to speed up orders.

Fabrics too have become "the bane of a designer's existence," she observed.

"Some mills aren't producing. You often get wrong colors after waiting many months...lots of things come through in the wrong quantities."

He Took Prison Rap To Protect Cousin

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1973 By Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am in prison, but please don't say where. I pleaded guilty to a charge of child molesting, even tho I was innocent. I did it to protect my cousin from the harm that prison life can do to a person. My cousin, who did the molesting, had never been in prison, and I had.

Now everyone in my family hates me because I had to make them believe I was guilty. If I tell the truth now, I will probably be released, but my cousin will have to serve time.

How can I get forgiveness from my family and still protect my cousin?
WITHHOLD MY NAME

DEAR WITH: Anyone who would molest a child is sick and in need of treatment. Altho you meant well, you did your cousin no favor by taking the rap for him. Now he is free to molest other children while you are being unjustly punished. My advice to you is to confess innocence to the charge, and guilty to lying about it.

DEAR ABBY: You were asked if it was proper to send a sympathy card to parents who had had a full term stillborn child. You said it was.

We disagree. We waited six years for a baby, and when he finally arrived, he was stillborn. Our family and friends knew how we felt, and sympathy cards were the last thing we wanted.

Everyone has a right to his own opinion, and ours is that it is better not to send sympathy cards for a stillborn baby.

It has been 32 years now, but we still remember.

NAMELESS

DEAR NAMELESS: I respect your opinion. But because funerals are generally indicated for full term infants, I would assume that the grieving parents would appreciate expressions of sympathy from friends.

DEAR ABBY: This is how I cured my husband of using objectionable language. I bought a piggy bank, and every time he used a swear word I made him put a quarter in it. And when he used a really DIRTY word, I fined him a dollar. He quit swearing in three weeks. Once in a while he slips and uses a dirty word, but he's a lot better than he used to be.

Pass this on to your readers, Abby. It really works!

PIGGY BANK PEGGY

DEAR PEGGY: Consider it done!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 55-year-old man who has never married. When I meet an unattached woman at a social gathering, I always introduce myself as a widower. If I should date her later on I then tell her the truth. Why do I lie at first?

PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: Because you probably think most people would assume there must be something wrong with a 55-year-old man who never married. It's a false assumption, of course. Many 55-year-olds [women and men] have remained unmarried thru choice. Play it straight. They might wonder why you lied in the first place.

New Cookbooks Timed For Christmas Gift Giving

By JEANNE LESEM

UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — A main dish with more than 40 ingredients is among the more than 1,000 recipes in a prestigious new cookbook timed for Christmas giving.

"The Dione Lucas Book of French Cooking" by the late Mrs. Lucas and her former pupil and assistant, Marion Gorman, is being heavily promoted for readability, practicality and ease of usage.

Similar criticisms can be applied to some other gift cookbooks.

"Feast of Italy," translated from the Italian edition of Arnoldo Mondadori Editore, is pictorially stunning but many required ingredients are unobtainable in the United States.

"Couscous and Other Good Food from Morocco" by Paula Wolfert is delightful to read but some necessary ingredients are not widely available here, and many recipes are time-consuming. Couscous is an elaborate stew that is Morocco's national dish.

"The Cornucopia" by Judith Herman and Marguerite Shalett Herman and "The Hundred Glories of French Cooking" by Robert Courtine, a leading French journalist, reflect eating habits of past and present. The Hermans' book contains recipes and food commentary from the 14th through the 19th centuries. Courtine writes of classical and contemporary cuisine. His menus are simple and well-chosen, his recipes sound delectable and introductions to them are witty and thought-provoking. But some ingredients are not available in the U.S. and measurements are mixture of weights and volume.

For American Cooks

New books better suited to American living include "The Seasonal Kitchen" by Perla Meyers. Like Mrs. Lucas, Mrs. Meyers demands high quality fresh ingredients and no shortcuts. Most of her continental and Middle Eastern recipes do not make exorbitant demands on time and only rarely on budgets.

"Pearl's Kitchen" by Pearl Bailey is a revealing self-portrait of an extraordinary human being and entertainer who has a real feel for simple home cooking. Her views on life, love, child-rearing and cooking make delightful reading.

Other commendable new publications include: Marie Robertson Hamm's "Gifts from Your Kitchen Cookbook," a paperback; "The Portable Feast" by Diane D. MacMillan, "The Cramped Quarters Cookbook" by Bob Reinhart and Dick Woods; "House & Garden's Party Menu Cookbook" edited by Jose Wilson; new editions of "The Good Housekeeping Cookbook" and the "McCall's Cook Book," "Impromptu Cooking" by Glenn Andrews, and "The College Cookbook" by Geri Harrington.

Now Many Are Exceptional?

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — How many children are there in North Carolina who would qualify as "exceptional" and in need of special treatment, or schooling?

The truth is, nobody knows, according to Ray Shurling, staff member of the General Assembly's Fiscal Research Division and author of a study on exceptional children which prompted a joint committee of the N. C. State and House of Representatives to consider creation of a new state department for children.

The only accurate figures available deal with numbers of kids being treated in various programs—and even those figures aren't worth much since agency directors often screen out the hard cases in order to get on record a higher recovery rate, Shurling said.

His book, which has been the foundation of the committee's work, literally overflows with factual data on numbers of programs, dollars spent and so on.

But as to numbers needing programs?

No One Knows

"Not one state agency has any feel for how many of its prospective clientele exist and where they might be found. Such information is crucial in decisions on funding and on locations of everything from teachers to community centers," the report stated. "The crucial point here is that agencies have traditionally asked for funds for clientele that they feel are out there somewhere between Virginia, Tennessee, South Carolina, and the ocean," the report said.

The committee, chaired by Sen. Lamar Gudgeon of Asheville, and Rep. T. Clyde Auman of West End, is putting together legislation which would create the new department consolidating over 22 different agencies operating under four state departments and spending more than $204 million yearly.

Shurling said his study deliberately avoided limiting itself to a single agency or program as most other studies have. He said the boundary between exceptional children and normal becomes hazy at many points, that children with similar problems may be found in a state training school or a mental retardation center, and that the effects of cultural or social deprivation may often be just as severe as a low IQ on a child's ability to learn.

Thus, the report stated, "The centers of this study are the children and their needs, not the agencies who serve them."

The "Study of Exceptional Children" literally brims with observations worth noting. Following are some excerpts from it:

"There are so many people responsible for serving children that the state's role has become confused, and even the roles of different organizations have become confused; there are so many organizations involved that they fight among themselves, especially for money; there are so many organizations that the result is a segmented set of services and segmented children... Put yourself in the place of parents looking for help for their child and consider..."

Large Gaps

At another point: "You will find large gaps for certain kinds of disabilities. For example, in Concord, Burlington and Kinston you will not be able to find much help for your child... if your child is visually-impaired, emotionally disturbed, or learning disabled. But you could find help if your child was crippled, speech impaired, or retarded... as long as you serve categories of labeled children, you will necessarily choose to serve certain children... excluding others."

The report noted at one point: "We have been appalled to find that some closely related programs in purpose have not even heard of each other in practice."

At one point, the report maintains some possibility that specific programs are well funded while others suffer due to existence of stronger professional organizations and lobbying. "As long as kids are categorized, some groups will be more vocal and get more money than others."

Regarding the personnel involved in the variety of programs, the report stated: "The allegiance to one's profession somehow has set pediatrician against psychologist, social worker against educator... either because of professional jealousy, division of responsibilities, or due to training—there is a lot of, indeed too much, in-fighting going on in children's services."

Because training of specialists is so specialized, the report said, "the tendency is to define the problem more in terms of what the professionals are rather than what is wrong with the kids... agencies have developed to service the professionals—Mental Health for the psychologists and psychiatrists, Education for teachers—not to service kids."

Explosive Issue

Those involved in the committee work are well aware of the politically explosive potential in the recommendation to create a new department.

But they are convinced, after reading the study, visiting a number of facilities, interviewing a lot of personnel, that the only way to bring order out of the chaos of programs for exceptional children is to "first define what you think to be the problem, then you find out where it is located, then you revise your definitions, then you organize... and then you ask for funds to implement the entire program," as the study puts it.

amazing. One must concede that the term (UFO) means precisely that: an "unidentified" flying object.

Under any number of circumstances the UFO might be identifiable with very familiar or explainable phenomena; but the tales we see and hear link the UFO to saucer-shape or cigar-shape. There are so many hundreds of such stories that non-believers today tend to be more cautious.

If just one such specific UFO report was confirmed as a cosmic visitor and not a hoax or attributable to an over-inflamed imagination, then the UFO would be the most wondrous happening conceivable.

Could there be a bonafide visitor from another world? Our knowledge of distances between solar systems requires reason to say "no"; but always there remains a wondering "if."

There is an alternative to visitors from some light-years-away planet, and that is a made-in-the-USA saucer. It is a more reasonable explanation when one remembers the so-called sightings are more numerous (almost daily) in times of international tension and fear of war lurks in crisis-climbing news of the day.

The famous Manhattan Project was a secret to Americans and the world until a day at Hiroshima. A new concept in flight and energy, concealed for use only in extreme need, is at least as reasonable an explanation as visits by extraterrestrial beings.

Figments of the imagination or the "real thing," flying saucers and such are here to stay. We rather appreciate them; they liven dull days and lift thoughts beyond the mundane.

Arabs Better Off In Cutback

By ROWLANDE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

KUWAIT—The shameful shortsightedness of the Nixon administration in ignoring the power of Arab oil as a weapon in the Arab-Israeli 25-year war is painfully evident here where some of the world's purest crude is produced at a cost of a mere six cents a barrel from ground to tanker.

"You must face a cold fact," a leader in Kuwait's national assembly told us in the cloakroom of the modern parliament building. "The longer the war goes on between our Arab friends and the Israelis, the better it is economically for us."

Conceding that this is "a tragic way to look at it," the parliamentary leader insisted, nevertheless, that it is the accurate way.

The reason: with the price of oil soaring (the posted price here is about $5 today, up from $2.88 on Oct. 6, the day the war started), Kuwait wants to reduce its production of oil far below the maximum. It cannot spend the dollar income.

Yet, U. S. politicians and some high-level Nixon administration officials who ought to know better are now accusing the oil states of "blackmail" because they won't continue feeding oil to the West while Israel occupies substantial Arab territories in defiance of repeated Western pledges to restore most of the old borders.

Far worse, veiled hints of U. S. counteraction against the Arabs can have only one result: to harden the Arabs, thereby extending the oil squeeze. The fact is that the steady growth of oil production in the Arab states the past few years has served Western and U. S. ends more than it has economically benefited the oil states. The present squeeze, imposed by the political requirements of the Arab-Israeli war, is proving that point every day.

Only three years ago, the two big oil companies that operate the immensely valuable fields in tiny Kuwait—British Petroleum and Shell—were pushing the government to increase the rate of production as high as 6 million barrels a day. That would have made Kuwait second only to Saudi Arabia as a producer of crude—larger even than Iran.

Such a drastic increase in production would have been fine for BP, Shell and its Western customers but potentially disastrous for the future of Kuwait. Specialists here estimate that even a 3-million-barrel-a-day production rate would exhaust proven oil reserves in Kuwait in about 40 years. Then what?

"We shudder to think of the time when our oil runs out," one high-level government planner told us. "That's all we have. We must use it sparingly and wisely to survive as a nation."

In short, reduced future production of Kuwait's rich crude was always inevitable, and so were eventual cutbacks of the infinitely richer reserves in Saudi Arabia. In Kuwait, one oil official told us, the proper production rate may be one million barrels a day—far less than the 3-million rate when the Oct. 6 war started or the 6-million rate the Western companies were aiming for.

In Saudi Arabia, King Faisal had given private assurances that he would probably meet the high-pressure demand of the U. S. and gradually escalate his production to around 20 million barrels a day by 1980—almost three times the rate before the Oct. 6 war. But such assurances contradicted harsh economic facts: the Saudis could not possibly spend the tens of billions of dollars in annual income resulting from such a production rate, which, as in Kuwait, would hasten the day when oil, its only economic asset, would disappear.

Both countries want only enough oil income to finance long-range investment in petrochemicals and to train technicians to surmount centuries of primitive technologies and economies.

It is senseless for American officials to scream "blackmail" because the Arab oil states finally, after years of being ignored, are using their only lever of national power to force Middle East settlement to their liking.

It is just as senseless as it was for the Nixon administration to ignore the reality of Arab oil power since the 1967 war, when the Arabs first threatened to use it to obtain Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory. Now that the Arabs have found how vulnerable the West really is, the comfortable past when oil flowed to suit the West's demands may never return.

Strength For Today

THE BREATH OF THE LORD

A world-famous scientist was once asked whether he thought that religion and science would one day be brought into agreement. Lighting his pipe, the scientist blew two smoke rings. As the smoke rings billowed outward the second slowly merged with the first.

"The breath of the Lord, the breath of the Lord," said the scientist to his questioner.

When asked what he meant, he expressed his conviction that under the guiding spirit of God the findings of science and the revelations of religion would someday be found to be completely identical. Truth is one, declared the scientist, whether it be spiritual truth or truth about the nature of the physical universe, for the God who made all things is one and has not created two kinds of truth which conflict with each other.

WASHINGTON—"Brothers and sisters of the Latter Day Disciples of the Church of Watergate, are you believers?"

"Amen, Richard. We believe."

"Do you believe I had nothing to do with Watergate and the coverup?"

"We believe, we believe."

"And do you believe I knew nothing about the milk fund, the ITT merger or the Howard Hughes $100,000 donation?"

"Hallelujah, Richard. We believe."

"Now, brothers and sisters, I want to tell you about the tapes."

"Oh, tell us, Richard. Tell us all about the tapes."

"There were supposed to have been nine tapes. But when I counted them there were only seven. Do you believe that?"

"Glory be, Richard. We Believe it."

"Do you know why there were only seven?"

"We know, Richard, but tell us again."

ART BUCHWALD

"There were only seven because two did not exist. The tape ran out on one and the other was made on a phone that didn't have a recorder."

"Amen, Richard."

"Now, would you believe I didn't know these tapes didn't exist until the weekend before I was supposed to turn them over to the courts?"

"We believe it Richard. Bless you!"

Other Editors Say A-Bomb Factor?

(Henderson Dispatch)

An Egyptian newspaper in Cairo hints that in any possible renewal of fighting in the Middle East atom bombs may be used. He said the Arabs have the weapons, and if necessary can produce their own. It was indicated that Israel also has these explosives.

Of one thing it may be said that if the Arabs have atom bombs they got them from Russia and if Israel has them they came from the United States. That could mean that, if it should come to this, there would be a confrontation by the United States and Communist Russia. What might come from that only heaven knows, and may heaven forbid.

If the Cairo newspaper has its facts straight, it is all the more urgent, and very urgent, that the existing cease-fire shall not be followed by further hostilities. Talk has been heard of the biblical Armageddon, and if atom bombs are brought into play this could be it. Such a development, in all likelihood, would not be limited to Israel and the Arabs. Who else and how many others might ultimately become involved is a frightening possibility.

The cease-fire is in effect, but it hangs by but a slender thread. An incident could set off the devastating fireworks. The opposing sides in the conflict are yet to meet to agree upon terms of a permanent peace. It will not be easy to come by. Israel wants to keep what it took in the week-long war of 1967, and by the same token the Arabs are demanding all the occupied territory they once held returned to them as a condition of any settlement. If renewed war is to be averted, one side or the other must give ground.

Widespread feeling is that the Kremlin would like to see the fighting resumed and continued until peace is imposed by force, preferably in favor of the Arabs. The United States is extremely anxious that there shall be no more hostilities. To that extent the two major powers are concerned.

By all means there should be a peaceful settlement. Unless there shall be, only time can answer as to the possible consequences.

See No Global Energy Scarcity

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

Associated Press Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The lights in the halls of the U.N. headquarters are dimmed to save scarce electricity. But the offices where the world's energy picture is kept under constant scrutiny glow with hope for the future.

The oil famine in the West, brought on by Arab restrictions, is viewed here as more of a short-term political crisis than a long-term problem stemming from a real shortage.

A widely publicized Club of Rome treatise predicted that an expanding world economy would run out of oil in 47 years and coal in 122 years. But U.N. experts still stand by a 1972 U.N. report that the world's oil may last for more than 75 years and the coal supplies three or four times that long.

The U.N. experts say estimates of oil in the earth are on the increase and plenty of other energy sources still remain to be tapped or developed.

They make these arguments:

World demand for liquid fuels — mainly oil — is growing about 8 per cent per year, judging from the 1960-70 rate. But the estimates of oil reserves have been growing, too, from 7 billion tons in 1937 to 64 billion in 1950 and a trillion in 1970. The more opportunity oil men see for making money, the harder they look for oil.

An investment of $200 to $300 is needed to boost the capacity of Middle East oil wells by a barrel a day; a $2,000 investment will be needed for a barrel-a-day output of North Sea wells, expected to start producing in 1976. When the cost of bringing out oil reaches $5,000, it will equal the cost of producing from oil shales and tar sands, and production from those sources will become economically feasible. Tar sands are estimated to be twice as plentiful as oil shales 1,000 times as plentiful as the world's current oil well reserves.

The current oil shortage in the West will spur the search for other substitutes. Liquefaction and gasification of coal is one possibility but would take 10 to 20 years to become a significant energy source.

New speed limits may chafe some modern motorists, but in the days of the "horseless carriage" the speed limits sometimes were four miles an hour in the country and two in the city. Public Forum

To the editor:

There is a public service you could render your readers in regard to the energy crisis. While people seem to understand that they should lower the heat in their homes to conserve fuel, they evidently do not realize they should also cut down on air-conditioner use. At this moment almost every apartment in our complex has its air conditioner running, when an open window would provide adequate comfort. The fact that there is no charge for electricity in this complex (Eastbrook) encourages such wasteful practices.

We depend on the media to educate the general public concerning energy conservation in this critical time. Please act to do so.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is fine for deciding upon a new plan of action and new outlets for the future. The evening brings into expression an argumentative influence that could be costly. Use self-control and sidestep this situation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) The daytime is best for happy relationship with others. Don't forget to do important errands in the morning. Stay within your budget.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Morning is best time to get on the good side of a bigwig and gain the favor you desire. Much care in motion should be exercised tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The morning is a good time to go after the data you need. Use care in travel. Do your important shopping now instead of waiting until later.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Find a better system for handling your affairs more efficiently and then show appreciation to an expert who helps you. Keep happy.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Discuss policy matters with allies in the morning and devise better methods of operation for the future. Be wise and get a good rest tonight.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) If you handle your affairs in a most precise way now, you can get ahead in your field of endeavor. Do some entertaining at home tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning could bring real happiness and more opportunity for enjoyment, but take care tonight not to lose your temper with close ties.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Work around your home today and make it look more charming. Listen to the ideas of others. Study them well and come to the right decisions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day for expansion and becoming a more successful and active individual. Discuss your ideas with associates and obtain their views. Show more devotion to loved one.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Keep busy at whatever has to do with property management and finances. Make sure to control your temper. Gain the assistance of an expert.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Come to the right decisions when making plans for the future. Daytime hours are best for the social. Home is your best bet tonight.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take the right steps toward your highest aims during the day but take it easy tonight. Do the research work that is vital to your future.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those individuals who in early life will want to help others in every way imaginable, which is a fine trait, provided it is done sensibly. The right guidance and schooling could result in a great religious teacher. Give cultural advantages and don't neglect sports.

Contacted at the North Pole, Santa Claus has confirmed he will appear in the Greenville Christmas parade Saturday.

The parade, sponsored by the Greenville Jaycees and supported by numerous merchants and organizations throughout the area, gets underway at 10 a.m.

According to the chairman, Mark Thompson, the route is as follows: From the corner of Ninth Street and Dickinson Avenue, south on Dickinson to Five Points; onto Evans Street to its intersection with Second Street; and east on Second to Reade Street.

Philatelic Items Now Available

New philatelic items which make ideal gifts for just about anyone are now available at the Main Post Office, Postmaster H. Lloyd Mills announced today.

The items which can be seen in a special lobby display are unique, entertaining and educational, he said.

Mills emphasized that these products are published by the U. S. Postal Service and available only at Post Offices. He urged that customers visit their Post Office as soon as possible as supplies are limited.

addition to the funds raised through the annual auction and membership fees, is channeled directly into the national Ducks Unlimited fund which goes for construction of waterfowl breeding grounds "up north."

Eastern N. C. sponsor chairman Dr. Ed Clement recognized the Greenville area's 29 DU sponsors who support the conservation effort by pledging at least $200 yearly to the work of the non-profit membership organization.

State DU chairman John Farley told the large gathering of approximately 150 members at the Greenville Country Club that five years ago, approximately one quarter of the money raised in the state for Ducks Unlimited came from the Greenville area but in more recent years, other chapters around the state have become more active and are doing their part for the organization.

Farley told the sportsmen that they can "take pride in having a part in preserving waterfowl for our children and grandchildren."

The gathering saw one of the new DU feature films, "Canada Geese" following the business and auction session.

Guests from several towns in the Greenville area attended last night's meeting, including large membership delegation from Washington.

Jaworski's request that Sirica have the Watergate tapes in his possession copied and have the four for which the White House made no claims of executive privilege turned over immediately to the grand jury investigating the Watergate break-in and cover-up.

The Associated Press learned that the White House has told investigators into the activities of the plumbers unit that they could jeopardize the life of a foreign agent and a Central Intelligence Agency operation involving eavesdropping on Soviet leaders, including Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev.

The last witness at the tapes hearing Thursday was Alexander P. Butterfield, head of the Federal Aviation Administration, who had been the White House official responsible for installation of the tape system.

Butterfield said he had assumed the system installed by the technical services branch of the Secret Service was the best available to do the job.

Governor . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Williamson of 417 Arbor St. met with the Governor to discuss the outcome of a court case which resulted when a school bus struck their child.

According to Williamson, the driver of the bus was charged but the case was dismissed in court. "We asked the Governor to look into it," Williamson noted.

One of the last persons to meet with the governor during the afternoon was Greenville city councilwoman Mildred McGrath. Mrs. McGrath, chairman of the Pitt County Woman's Political Caucus said she urged the governor to appoint more women to responsible posts in state government.

Steve Nobles of Ayden said he encouraged the governor to support an expanded medical school at East Carolina University; complained about placing the Department of Veterans Affairs under the Department of Human Resources; and told the Governor that he (Holshouser) should tell the people of the state that when he took office, "less than two per cent of state employees were registered Republicans" so Democrats couldn't say that the present administration is the only political administration the state has seen.

John A. Guy of Greenville, former director of faculty at Pitt Technical Institute and a member of the Advisory Council for Vocational Education to the State Board of Education spoke with Gov. Holshouser.

Guy said he talked with the governor "relative to the emphasis and quality of vocational education in the public schools and post secondary education" such as technical institutes, and it's importance in the years ahead.

Greenville radiologist Dr. William McConnell was the only person to meet with the governor during the "People's Day" session who spent the entire time urging support for an expanded medical school at ECU.

The doctor said he asked Holshouser if he would support expansion of the ECU medical school to a four-year program if such a bill is brought before the General Assembly when it meets in January. "He said he would have to go with the Board of Governor's report," McConnell noted.

One of the last persons to meet with the governor during the afternoon was Greenville city councilwoman Mildred McGrath.

Mrs. McGrath, chairman of the Pitt County Woman's Political Caucus said she urged the governor to appoint more women to responsible posts in state government.

Mid-East Council Adopts Two Projects

The Mid-East Resource Conservation and Development Council, at its bi-monthly meeting adopted two new project measures, both from Bertie County, according to Ralph Tucker, council chairman.

One measure calls for building suitable boat launching facilities at various points along the 115 miles of navigable stream shorelines in the county at an estimated cost of $40,000. There are no public facilities available now. This measure is sponsored by the Town of Windsor.

A second measure sponsored by the Bertie Soil and Water Conservation District will provide quality recreation for five rural communities of Bertie County at the BlueJay Recreation Center near Indian Woods. This project, already underway, will cost an estimated $20,000 to provide two baseball fields, a playground, and community building.

Ed Grune, ECU graduate biology student, made a report to the Council on progress on the recently funded Environmental Study of the effect stream channelization has upon certain stream water qualities. The initial work is underway on Swift Creek in the Coxville and Gardnersville areas of Pitt County.

Roy Beck, SCS District Conservationist at Greenville, reported on the successful completion of the "Soils and Health" short course conducted by N. C. State University at Pitt Technical Institute for County Health Department personnel. Forty-one sanitary technicians from eastern North Carolina were enrolled in course.

Beck also told about two other RC&D project measure proposals being considered. One would establish local volunteer environmental review teams in various jurisdictions throughout the project area. Team membership would consist of professionals such as community planner, soil scientist, engineer, sanitarian, and others. The team's job would be to assess the quantity and quality of natural resources on proposed development sites and surrounding areas. The probable

Electric Motor Course Slated

Pitt Technical Institute will begin an Electric Motor Maintenance and Controls course at 7:00 p.m. Monday in room 113.

The course will provide concepts in single and alternating current circuits, voltages, currents, power measurements, transformers, and motors. There is instruction in using electrical test instruments in circuit analysis and basic concepts of AC and DC machines; and simple controls will be studied.

Tuition cost is $5.00

Interested persons should plan to enroll and attend the first meeting.

THE RIGHT ONE

Barbie has a boy friend—her first! There'll be many more. But someday Barbie will have a boy friend—her last! And there'll be an engagement, and a wedding, and a wonderful life together with their children . . .

If he's THE RIGHT ONE!

Barbie's present boy friend is being brought up the way Barbie is—in fact, they met at Sunday School! Their families worship regularly . . . they seek the same moral and spiritual aims.

But, what about THE RIGHT ONE? Is this fiance-to-be receiving the same sound preparation for tomorrow? Are his parents building the future on the firm foundation of religious faith? Will he be right for Barbie?

The church bells that ring every Sunday are not wedding bells. But they sound the destiny of our sons and daughters . . . and of their families yet unborn.

Rescuers To N.C. Storm Window And Door Have Fuel Industry Seeing Sales Boom

RALEIGH (AP) — A state official says arrangements have been made so that ambulances and rescue squad vehicles which run short of gasoline during weekends may obtain emergency supplies from Highway Patrol stations or highway equipment stations.

Secretary John T. Tolson III of the Department of Military and Veteran Affairs, said the arrangements were made as a result of President Nixon's call for a ban of Sunday gasoline sales.

He asked local authorities to make preparations in advance for weekend emergency trips. If additional gasoline is needed, Tolson said, drivers of emergency vehicles should contact the Highway Patrol local or telephone the central headquarters unit for assistance.

WINTER FORECAST—This National Weather Service map forecasts the average temperatures for the coming winter months. The unprecedented public forecast, prompted by the nationwide energy shortage, indicates that the Far West, the Northern Rockies and northern Great Plains have a 60 percent chance of suffering a colder winter than normal. The Midwest, much of the South and parts of the Northeast have a 60 percent chance of a milder winter than usual. Others sections of the nation have an equal likelihood of having colder or milder temperatures. Area "A" and "B" are based on verifications of 15 years of experimental forecasts. (AP Wirephoto Map)

Red-Faced Over Small Oil Spill

RESEARCH TRIANGLE, N.C. (AP)—Faces were red at the Environmental Protection Agency's building in North Carolina's Research Triangle Thursday.

Part of EPA's job is to stop people who mess up the ecology with such things as oil spills.

But this week, EPA had a small oil spill of its own in the Research Triangle, and it was embarrassing.

Carl Keatts, the building and grounds manager for EPA, said Thursday a small amount of oil spilled while building maintenance workers were cleaning an indoor oil storage tank.

Keatts said the spilled oil went into a storm drain and into a small creek where it was reported by a farmer whose cows use the creek for drinking water.

The E-P-A wasted no time starting a full-scale cleanup and taking steps to make sure it doesn't happen again.

Moss, who sells in 31 states, said the amount of fuel saving by installing storm windows and doors depends on the construction of a house and how well it is insulated.

"I have been told that you lose about 85 per cent heat loss through a single sheet of glass," Moss said.

Bob Kinser, owner of Kinco Products Co., Asheville, said his business had never been better for this time of year. He added, "Our biggest months are September, October and November. Typically, it starts dropping off about Thanksgiving and is way off at Christmas. We usually close down a week at Christmas and take inventory."

Kinser said, "We're running four to five weeks behind in orders. Any orders placed now would be delivered in January."

Plants are already running into shortage of aluminum and vinyl.

"The shortage is spotty, but no serious problem," Kinser said.

W. W. Binning of Binning's Inc., Lexington, said his plant was two or three weeks behind in orders about a month ago, which he termed normal for this time of year.

"Now we're eight to 14 weeks behind depending on the style and model," he said. "There is no such thing as putting on another shift because if we did we would run out of raw materials. We're already running into shortages on aluminum and vinyl for stripping."

Binning said about 80 per cent of his business is in the Carolinas and Virginia.

LeLand Whitley of Pioneer Awning and Window Co., Raleigh, said his business has never been better for this time of year. He added, "We're six to eight weeks behind in orders."

Overcome Barriers On Starting Trials

SIOUX FALLS, S.D. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Fred Nichol has knocked down the last legal roadblock to the beginning of trials for six American Indian Movement leaders indicted for their roles in the siege of Wounded Knee.

A defense motion seeking dismissal of all indictments against the defendants was rejected Thursday by Nichol at the conclusion of a four-day pretrial hearing. Nichol now plans to open the consolidated trial of AIM leaders Dennis Banks and Russell Means Jan. 8 in St. Paul, Minn.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were steady Thursday. Supplies were adequate and demand was good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs delivered in cartons to nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 76.73; medium whites 74.72; small whites 64.32.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—The hog market is irregular. $41.00-$42.00 at Kinston, Benson and Lumberton; $40.50-$41.00 at Rocky Mount. $39.00-$39.50 at Tarboro and Bethel. $41.00 at Salisbury. (broilers)

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Duck broilers market steady, supplies adequate, demand good. Weights heavy at some points. (hens)

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Market steady to weaker, supplies fully adequate, demand only fair. Heavies at farm 24 cents to 25 cents, mostly 25 cents.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market slid lower again today in light volume as brokers said investors continued to worry about the nation's energy problems.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was off 8.35 826.76, continuing to lose from the opening. Declines outnumbered advances 811 to 321 among 1,512 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers generally felt the market reflected energy concerns. Thursday's apparent breakdown in Midwest talks, First National City Bank's decision to raise its prime to 9 1/2 per cent, and published reports that the Arab oil embargo might lead to a worldwide recession if continued.

Akzona dropped 1 1/2 to 18 1/2 to lead Big Board trading, followed by CNA Financial, up 1/4 at 10 1/2, and Polaroid, down 3/4 to 75 1/2. Texas Instruments was off 2 1/2 to 115 1/2 and General Motors down 1 1/2 to 49 1/2. Bausch & Lomb, which was suspended from trading Thursday, fell 1 1/2 to 34 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market-value index at 11 a.m. was off .54 at 93.68. Syntex, up 3/4 at 126, and Allegheny Airlines, down 1.8 at 6, were most active.

The NYSE broad based index was off .39 to 51.49.

Price Hikes Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Cost of Living Council today suspended temporarily proposed new price increases on 1974 model automobiles.

The council said in a statement that it needs more time to review price proposals, which were considered at a public hearing last week.

Council director John T. Dunlop indicated the council expected to have a decision on the increases by Dec. 10 at the latest.

The increases could have gone into effect for American Motors today if the council had not acted to temporarily suspend them.

Under the council's Phase 4 anti-inflation regulations, the auto makers automatically could put their proposed increases into effect unless the council acted to suspend, modify or reject them within that time.

Irving Will Be Paroled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Parole Board has granted a parole beginning next Feb. 14 to Clifford Irving, the writer convicted of conspiring to defraud a publisher with a fake biography of Howard Hughes.

When released, Irving will have served nearly 18 months of a 2 1/2-year sentence.

In granting the 42-year-old author a parole, the board reversed its decision of last August denying immediate parole and scheduling no further review of the case until January.

Irving is confined at the federal correctional institution at Danbury, Conn., where he was transferred last March from the Allenwood, Pa., federal prison camp.

He was sentenced in June 1972 in New York after being convicted of conspiring to defraud the McGraw Hill Publishing Co. Irving began serving his sentence that August.

After plans for his purported biography became known, billionaire-recluse Hughes publicly renounced it as a hoax in a rare telephone conversation with a group of reporters.

Experts Study Flawed Tapes

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — Experts today began studying the flawed White House Watergate tape in which an 18-minute segment of conversation has been replaced by a buzz.

The tape was taken to an unnamed laboratory in New York Thursday night to be studied by a six-man panel agreed upon by the White House and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Also shipped to New York were the electric typewriter of Miss Rose Mary Woods and a high intensity lamp that had been on her desk on Oct. 1. That was the day she was transcribing a tape made June 20, 1972 that included a conversation between President Nixon and H. R. Haldeman, then White House chief of staff.

Miss Woods, Nixon's secretary for 23 years, told a federal court hearing that she accident-

Simmons Brought Fame To Self Through Track

(Editor's note: This is the second of four articles written by sportswriters from across the state for inclusion in the North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame program. The Hall of Fame banquet will be held Tuesday night in Minges Coliseum.)

By BOB QUINCY
Charlotte Observer

Floyd (Chunk) Simmons set his youthful goal in life to become a standout football player. When he failed to live up to his own expectations he settled for becoming one of the greatest all-purpose athletes in the world.

Simmons turned to the decathlon, a grueling test of man's endurance and flexibility in ten track and field events. He won bronze medals twice in Olympic competition. He's proud of his accomplishments but he occasionally refers to his days refers to his days on the gridiron with deep disappointment.

Simmons grew up in Charlotte and attended old Central High there. It was an institution which had taken great pride in its sports program and Simmons was a standout at whatever he chose.

Years later Central produced another Olympic performer in Jim Beatty, who became the first American to break the four-minute mile in an indoor meet and who is also a member of the North Carolina "Sports Hall of Fame."

Simmons came by his athletic talents naturally. His father, who died this year, had been a star performer at Washington & Jefferson College and later coached football at North Carolina and Davidson. He often challenged his son to foot races and other athletic tests.

After the war Simmons became one of Carl Snavely's host of football players at North Carolina. Charlie Justice, a two-time All-America, was the choice at tailback, which also was Chuck's favorite position.

"We had a multitude of backfield talent," recalls Justice, "and after I looked them all over I figured the man I had to beat out was Chuck Simmons. He had speed and size and he looked like a football player."

Justice had superb skills and finesse and no one was to displace him. Simmons was injured, discouraged and elected to travel to the West Coast and take up track on a full-time basis. He had set a number of Southern Conference marks for the Tar Heels as a cinderman.

A handsome six-foot, 195-pounder with a talent for art and photography, Simmons competed in the 1948 Plymatics at London and in 1952 at Helsinki. The legendary Bob Mathias of Tulare, Calif., was to win gold medals both years. Like Simmons, Mathias was also a football standout and he led Stanford to a Pacific Coast grid championship his sophomore year. Mathias gave up the sport as a senior to concentrate on the decathlon and the Helsinki games.

After he terminated his track career, Simmons remained in California and played roles in numerous films, the most notable of which was "South Pacific." He decided to return home after his Hollywood stint and operate his own photography studio. He specializes in portraits of children.

Simmons, at 50, has changed very little since his decathlon days. He competed in a senior's track meet on the West Coast last summer and placed high. He stays in shape by constant workouts of handball, volleyball and track. Each summer he participates in the famed Highland Games at Linville, where he takes delight in such bizarre events as the tossing of the caber.

Chunk is one of those rare individuals who can return to class reunions and truthfully earn the remark, "You haven't changed a bit." Pictures of Simmons today as compared to 1948 are remarkably similar.

The decathlon consists of dashes, hurdles, a distance race, high and broad jumps and the throwing events. Here are the results of the two Olympic competitions in which Simmons

East Carolina University's wrestling team won its second straight Southern Conference championship last year and wound up listed 19th in the nation by the NCAA.

At the start of practice this year, Coach John Welborn expected to have an even better team, with improved national rankings. A key injury, however, slightly dimmed those hopes, but not dashed them.

Dan Monroe, a 126-pound senior expected to score high in the nationals this year, suffered a shoulder injury during preseason workouts and will probably be lost for the year. "There is a possibility that he could be ready in February, but a lot depends on how quickly he comes around after he begins his rehabilitation program. Right now we're not counting on him," Welborn said.

The injury, however, would allow Monroe an extra year of eligibility next season.

"It's still early to compare this year's team with last year's," Welborn said. "But I would naturally expect a little improvement. It wouldn't be a lot however, because it was already pretty good." The injury to Monroe, Welborn admits may make the team a little weaker than last year's, depending on how quickly some of the younger team members come around.

"I think we'll be favored in the North Carolina Collegiate (going on this weekend at Chapel Hill), although there is no official team title given. I don't expect us to do as well as last year when we won eight of the 10 titles, but I do think that we can win five or six. Appalachian State and Pembroke are both improved, and Carolina and State are also putting more money into their programs."

In the conference race, Welborn looks to Appalachian and William & Mary to provide the chief opposition. "William & Mary had three in the finals of the Thanksgiving Open in Norfolk, and we won seven of the 10 titles. But they are stronger than that would seem to indicate. We should be favored, but this doesn't mean we're a shoo-in."

Welborn frankly expects to have the team ranked in the first polls this year. "I think we've proven ourselves in the competition we've been in and we should be ranked."

Welborn feels also that he has several national contenders. He listed his top men in each weight class.

Jim Blair, a junior transfer from Western Carolina becomes eligible this year. He's already picked up victories in the Colgate and Norfolk meets and finished second at East Stroudsburg. "He's an outstanding blue chipper," the coach said. "He could wind up being of national caliber this year."

Glenn Baker, a senior, is working at 126, having moved up from 118 because of the injury to Monroe. He was twice Southern Conference champ at the lower weight. Paul Ketchum also is at this weight, winning at Norfolk last week. He's just a sophomore.

Milt Sherman, another senior, is at 134. He's won titles at Colgate, East Stroudsburg and Norfolk already, and is the defending champion at 142 in both the Southern and state. "Hopefully he's a national contender too," Welborn said. Backing him up is a freshman, Tim Graham. "He won't challenge Milt, but should see a lot of tournament action."

At 150 three men are battling for the number one job. Jack Stortz is a junior who won the state at 158 last year, and he was fourth in Norfolk this year. Tim McAteer, a sophomore, is another in there, along with freshman Steve Satterthwaite. "Steve got upset in the state finals in Virginia last year in high school, and many people felt he was the best wrestler in the state. He picked up a third at Norfolk, beating both McAteer and Stortz in the process."

Sophomore Tom Marriott is at 142. He won at Norfolk, took a third at Colgate and is the defending Southern and state champ at 150. "He's an outstanding wrestler and will be of national caliber before he leaves here," the coach said. Bucky Baker backs up here. A sophomore, he's shown a lot of improvement.

Bruce Hall, another senior, is at 158. He's defending Southern champ and a former state champ. He finished second at Norfolk, however, falling to teammate Paul Prewitt, a sophomore, in an overtime.

Bill Hill, another senior, is the 177-pound classman. He's picked up wins at Colgate and Norfolk, and a second at East Stroudsburg. "He's after his fourth state title this weekend. When he won his third last year, he was the first ever to do that. He's also defending in that Southern and several other top tournaments." Junior Jim Cox backs him up, finishing third at Colgate and second at Norfolk.

The 190-pound class is another up for grabs. John Huber, a senior, started here last year, but suffered knee injury and missed about half the year. Mike Radford took over and went to finish third in the Southern as a freshman. He was second in Norfolk last week.

Willie Bryant, a junior college transfer, works at the heavyweight position. The runner-up in the National Junior College tournament last year, he won at Norfolk.

At 167 is Ron Whittcomb, a sophomore. He was second at Norfolk for the last two years and third at Colgate. He's defending state champ and was second in the Southern last year.

"We really look forward to a fine year," Welborn said. "But there are other teams in the state who are chasing us, so we'll have to keep progressing to stay where we are."

Driesell Gets Chance At UCLA On Saturday

By KEN ALYTA
Associated Press Sports Writer
Ever since he took the University of Maryland basketball coaching job four seasons ago and proclaimed his aim to make Maryland "the UCLA of the East," Charles G. "Lefty" Driesell has dreamed of meeting the Bruins — in the final game of the season with the national title at stake.

That hasn't happened, but Saturday night Lefty and his Terrapins get the next best thing — a season opener against the perennial champs on the UCLA court. UCLA has won 75 in a row and the last seven national titles.

The ambitious opener is one of eight weekend games for Atlantic Coast Conference teams, two tonight and six Saturday.

Coach Tates Locke and his Clemson Tigers hopefully begin what their supporters regard as a new era in the initial IPTAY Invitational at Clemson. It's a four-team, two-nighter that matches 17th-ranked Jacksonville against St. John's of New York in the opener tonight and Clemson against Auburn in the second game.

The tournament marks the varsity debut of Wayne "Tree" Rollins, 7-foot-1 Clemson freshman.

Karate Tourney

Hundreds of karate students from across the national will be arriving in Greenville today and tomorrow for a national Karate tournament to be held at Rose High School Saturday.

Some of the nation's best fighters have already arrived and the East Carolina University club under the direction of Bill McDonald will have their hands full defending the title which they won last year.

McDonald said that one of the highlights of the day will be a demonstration of flying kicks over seven feet high Joe Corley of Atlanta, Ga., Saturday night. Eliminations will begin at 11 a.m. with the finals Saturday night beginning at 8:00 p.m.

Tickets for the tournament may be obtained at the Greenville School of Self Defense, the Colonial Heights State Farm Office, and WOOW radio.

Elon Goes For Title

BURLINGTON, N.C. (AP)—The Wisconsin-LaCrosse football team, which had been restricted to indoor drills at home because of cold weather, arrived Thursday and practiced outdoors in 50-degree temperature. Temperatures in that neighborhood also were expected this afternoon as the team prepares to play Elon Saturday in a Division I playoff game of the NAIA, the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics.

Elon, winner of all 11 games this season and of 14 in a row, is ranked No. 6 in the Associated Press College Division poll. LaCrosse, 9-1, is unranked.

The winner will advance to the NAIA Champion Bowl game Dec. 8 at Shreveport, La., against either Langston, Okla., or Abilene Christian.

"Each of the three other teams in the field will be working under a new coach.

Lou Carnesecca has returned to St. John's after a three-year stint with the pro New York Nets; Bob Gottlieb is starting fresh at Jacksonville; and Bob Davis is new in the top job at Auburn.

Carl Tacy and his Wake Forest Deacons, ACC cellar dwellers last year, open on the road tonight against Rice.

In addition to the Maryland-UCLA and Clemson tournament games Saturday night, there are these openers for conference teams:

Athletes-in-action at North Carolina State, North Carolina-Houston at Greensboro, N.C.,

Virginia at Washington & Lee; East Carolina at Duke.

N. C. State's first regulation game will be at home Wednesday night against East Carolina of the Southern Conference. The State Wolfpack, 27-0 and ACC champion last season, was ineligible for NCAA tournament play because of probation, which has expired.

The game against Athletes-in-Action is classed as an exhibition and will not count in the records, regardless of how many points All-America David Thompson and his 7-foot-4 teammate, Tommy Burleson, score.

The Associated Press pre-season poll ranks State No. 2 behind UCLA, with Maryland fourth and North Carolina fifth.

Burden Claims ACC Top Honor

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Running back Willie Burden of N.C. State has been named the Atlantic Coast Conference's football player of the year.

Burden's selection by the ACC Sportswriters Association was announced today.

He polled 59 of the 109 votes cast. Maryland defensive guard Paul Vallano was second with 33 votes and Virginia quarterback Scott Gardner finished third with ten.

The 5-11, 204-lb. senior from Raleigh was the league's leading rusher this season with 1,014 yards. He holds almost all N.C. State career and season rushing records.

Burden's statistics are more impressive when considered in the light of Coach Lou Holtz's offensive system, which divided the running chores almost equally among four backs.

Burden carried the ball only 150 times this year, averaging 6.8 yards per carry.

Burden led the Wolfpack to an 8-3 season and he will finish his college career in the Liberty Bowl Dec. 17 against Kansas.

In addition to yardage records, Burden caught 15 passes, the second leading total on the team, and was named to the All-ACC backfield for the second straight year.

Energy Crisis To Hit Sports

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer
The nation's energy crisis doesn't stop at your neighborhood gas station or your living room thermostat.

It's likely to reach beyond right into your recreation time and your occupation with the world of sports.

For example, with gasoline in short supply, you might choose to use your quota for more important trips than a ride out to the ball park to watch the local team play.

That possibility hasn't been lost on sports administrators and the subject is being studied on several fronts. It is due for at least a cursory examination at the baseball meetings in Houston next week.

Baseball, of course, could be directly affected because so many games are played each season at night with artificial lights.

The California Angels announced this week that they would reduce the number of games played under the lights in Anaheim by 12.3 per cent next season.

"If they tell us we can't play night ball because of the electrical power drain, we can't exist," said Calvin Griffith, president of the Minnesota Twins.

"From a business standpoint, we simply cannot play during the day. We couldn't even pay our hospital insurance with what we'd draw with all-day baseball."

There is also the matter of air travel and the cutbacks of flights because the fuel shortage. Baseball is considering returning to train transportation for short trips. Trains provided the main source of transportation for clubs before expansion to the West Coast in 1958. Planes, of course, would still be used for cross-country travel.

Football isn't as directly concerned because there is less frequent travel and most games are played during the day.

The golf circuit depends heavily on air travel for players to get from tournament to tournament. Many expressed concern over the problem.

Basketball and hockey teams also do a majority of their travel on charter air planes and the cutbacks have those sports worried too.

Like baseball, hockey plays virtually its entire schedule at night with artificial lighting and is dependent on power supplies to keep ice surfaces refrigerated.

Considerable attention has been directed at auto racing where, after all, the chief attraction is cars chasing around motor raceway tracks, burning fuel. John Cooper, executive secretary of the National Mo-

Alabama Seeks To End Year With 11-0 Mark

By JOHN NELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
Alabama Coach Paul "Bear" Bryant admits he's coming into Saturday's meeting with Auburn "kind of blindfolded" by the Tigers' new Veer offense.

But he's been working this week to shed the blindfolds so that Alabama, 10-0, will not have to face the untidy prospect of meeting Notre Dame in the Sugar Bowl Dec. 31 with a sullied record.

"This is the most important game of the year for a lot of reasons for us," the Crimson Tide coach says. "We've got to concentrate on winning the state championship and get our minds off of anything else."

While No. 1 Alabama meets Auburn on national television, Ara Parseghian's fifth-ranked Irish face the University of Miami, Fla., Hurricanes at night. Ironically, both Notre Dame, 9-0, and Alabama are four-touchdown favorites.

The oddsmakers have made Alabama, which beat Miami 43-13 earlier this season, a one-touchdown pick over the Irish in the Sugar Bowl.

Also on national television Saturday will be the traditional Army-Navy game at Philadelphia.

Other day games Saturday — the final day of regular season action in college football — include No. 2 Oklahoma at Oklahoma State, Vanderbilt at No. 19 Tennessee, Florida State at Florida, Georgia Tech at Georgia, Boston College at Holy Cross, Baylor at Rice and Texas Christian at Southern Methodist.

Saturday night contests include No. 8 Louisiana State at Tulane, Tulsa at No. 14 Houston, Iowa State at San Diego, Utah at Hawaii and Brigham Young at Texas-El Paso.

In the NAIA Division II championships, Glenville, W. Va., faces Northwestern, Iowa, at Huntington, W. Va.

Elon meets LaCrosse at Burlington, N.C., and Langston meets Abilene Christian in the NAIA Division I semifinals.

In the NCAA Division III semifinals, San Diego University is at Wittenberg, and Juniata plays Bridgeport.

In the NCAA Division II quarter-finals, Grambling meets Delaware in the Boardwalk Bowl at Atlantic City, N.J.; Lehigh meets Western Kentucky at Bowling Green; Western Illinois plays Louisiana Tech at Ruston, and South Dakota travels to Boise State.

The only other action Saturday sees Milliken playing Bethany in the Boot Hill Bowl at Dodge City, Kan.

LSU and Tulane both will try Saturday night to rebound from losses. LSU was defeated by Alabama for the Southeast Conference championship last week 21-7, and Tulane was embarrassed by Maryland 42-9.

Navy is a 17-point favorite to defeat the Army cadets, who have not won in nine games.

George Walsh, in his first year as coach at the Naval Academy, says he'd "rather win this one than any other. It's a game we can point to, a game we can get a little more excited about."

But Welsh doesn't believe the 17-point spread.

"I wouldn't bet on Navy at 17," he said.

A-G Girls Take Win

KINSTON—Ayden-Grifton's Chargerettes gained their first victory of the year last night, rolling to a 49-45 victory over Kinston.

The win evened the Ayden-Grifton record off at 1-1 for the year. But it took a second half rally to pull off the victory.

Kinston pushed out into the lead in the first period, gaining an 11-8 advantage. Ayden-Grifton found the points hard to find in the second quarter, getting only three, while Kinston added seven to up their lead to 18-11.

Kinston still managed to hold onto the game in the third frame as both teams began to hit the nets with frequency. Kinston outthit Ayden-Grifton, 18-17, and held a 36-27 advantage going into the final frame. But the Chargerettes took command in that period, dumping in 21 points while holding Kinston to just nine, and that turned the game around for the A-G victory.

Audrey McCarter led the A-G scoring with 17 points, while Decia Little added 16. For Kinston, M. Carlyle had 15 and T. Small had 12.

The girls will next be in action on Tuesday when they play host to Conley. The Charger boys' team plays Kinston tonight.

Wayne Romps By Pitt Technical

GOLDSBORO—Wayne Community College romped to a 106-58 victory over Pitt Technical Institute last night. It was the opening game of the year for the Paladins.

Pitt and Wayne opened the game on even terms, swapping baskets for most of the first ten minutes of play. By the time the first half was at the midpoint, the Paladins had inched out to an 18-14 lead.

"We suddenly jumped out of our pattern offense and started to just run and shoot," new coach Charles Coburn said. "We stopped getting back on defense, and Wayne just ran away with it."

During the final 10 minutes of the half, Pitt scored five more points, while Wayne dumped in 29, rushing away to a 43-23 lead.

In the second half, Pitt continued its bad habits, failing to get back on defense and not working for the good shots, and Wayne took full advantage of the problems, outshooting them 63-35, for the final one-sided score.

T. Hawthorne led Wayne with 19 points, while C. Barnes had 14. R. Becton had 13, H. Stafford had 12 and H. Wooten had 10. Pitt Tech was led by Charles Jordan with 16, while Clarence Wilson had 11.

"I think this game will help us," Coburn said. "We should have learned a good lesson from it."

The Paladins will entertain Martin Tech Monday night in the A. G. Cox gym in Winterville.

Apparently Learn Cause Of Infectious Hepatitis

Uncertainty In N.C. Bus Lines

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists have announced the apparent discovery of the cause of infectious hepatitis, the liver-inflaming malady that strikes as many as 540,000
Americans annually.

The researchers said in the announcement Thursday that the finding should lead to a sure-fire method of diagnosing the often-puzzling disease, possibly to better treatment, and conceivably even to eventual development of a protective vaccine against it.

The scientists said they found a new form of virus-like particle suspected of causing the disease, which also is known as yellow jaundice.

Researchers of the government's National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID), Bethesda, Md., reported they recently found particles of this type in preserved fecal stools of some prisoner volunteers at the Joliet, Ill., prison.

Attempts already are under way to isolate and grow such particles in test-tube cultures — a necessary step toward any vaccine production.

The NIAID researchers said the new finding also means that science may now have pinned down the respective causes of a second and more serious form of the disease.

They recalled that a number of scientists recently discovered another virus-like particle believed to be the cause of the more serious serum hepatitis, or "Hepatitis B."

Infectious hepatitis — or "Hepatitis A" — usually is spread by direct contact or by contaminated drinking water or food.

The serum type is trans-missible by blood transfusions, contaminated medical syringes and needles and contaminated needles of drug addicts.

The serum type strikes a reported 30,000 Americans yearly.
But estimates are that unreported, misdiagnosed or undetected cases run the actual total to 150,000, with estimates of deaths ranging from 1,500 to 6, 000 annually.

Fatalities are unusual from the infectious type, but both it and the serum type produce illnesses lasting from a few days to several weeks.

Tremor Felt In Western N.C.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Brief earth tremors hit portions of four Southern states early today, frightening hundreds of persons. There were no reports of injuries or major damage.

The National Weather Service in Atlanta said tremors were reported in Tennessee, South Carolina, North Carolina and Georgia. Officials said they struck at 2:48 a.m. and lasted about 15 seconds.

Dishes rattled and sleeping residents were awakened by the tremors. Dozens of persons called sheriff's departments and state police to report the phenomenon.

In North Carolina, sheriff's departments reported the tremor was felt in Buncombe, Haywood and Henderson counties.
In South Carolina, reports came from Spartanburg, Grenville and Pickens counties.

"It sure was a tremor of some sort. I felt it myself," said Knox County, Tenn., Sheriff's Deputy Jack Martin.

"There have been no injuries reported yet. I've checked all around the area and surrounding counties. They all felt it, but no one got hurt," Martin said.

Federal Aviation Administration officials said they believed the tremor was centered halfway between Maryville and Johnson City in Tennessee.

Tennessee Highway Patrol trooper Dean Norman said the highway patrol's Knoxville office had been swamped with calls about the tremor. He said people had called from practically every county in Upper East Tennessee.

White and Hall counties in north Georgia reported tremors. Several callers in Atlanta said they had been awakened by the movement.

The energy shortage and impending speed limit reduction are causing confusion and uncertainty among officials of long distance bus lines in North Carolina, while managers of city service remain relatively calm.

"Any reduction in the speed limit below 60 miles per hour will require a major rescheduling," said Aaron Cruise, vice president of traffic for Carolina Trailways, based in Raleigh.
Cruise said rescheduling can't begin until there is some definite speed limit set.

President Nixon wants 50
m.p.h. for cars and 55 for buses and trucks. Legislation giving him power to set such limits is pending in Congress.

Gov. Jim Holshouser has ordered a 55 m.p.h. limit for North Carolina, effective Dec.
1, and the legislature may be asked to lower it to 50.

Until there is something definite to go by to alter schedules,
"We'll be running late," Cruise said in an interview.

He said the speed limit on the New Jersey turnpike has changed three times in less than a month, from 60 m.p.h.
down to 50 and then back up to 55.

Cruise said although there are no figures, there is some evidence that a few more people are using buses for long-distance travel, as a result of the scarcity of gasoline for cars.

"Some of our people tell us we are carrying business we would not be carrying otherwise," he said.

Funds Drive By Humane Society

The Pitt County Humane Society has scheduled a fund-raising campaign Saturday at Five Points and other central locations in Greenville.

Graham House, president, said that Society volunteers will be stationed on the streets to accept donations from pedestrian traffic. Persons who wish to contribute funds by personal check, he said, may mail them to 2414 Umstead Avenue, Greenville. All contributions to the Society are tax-deductible.

House pointed out that since its establishment in 1971, the Society has found homes for approximately 500 stray cats and dogs, co-sponsored the Friends of Animals Spaying Program here and secured veterinary care for numerous sick or injured animals.

The president said that Bateman's Animal Hospital and the Pet Kingdom pet shop "have been vital to the Society's efforts."

The organization meets regularly on the second Monday of each month at Planters National Bank on Third Street at 8 p.m. New members of all ages are welcomed, it was emphasized.

Establishment of an animal shelter in Pitt County is the Society's main goal for 1974, House explained, as well as continuation of the spaying program which provides low cost sterilization of pet animals.

"Both our goals, if fulfilled, will help to alleviate the problems of unwanted strays in the area," House said. "The animal shelter would care for stray animals until adopted or claimed by their owners, and the spaying program will prevent overpopulation among dogs and cats."

House added, "In order to carry out these goals, however, we must have additional active members and more funds."

Other officers of the Society include John Guyette, vice president; Evelyn Beasley, corresponding secretary; Pat Giles, recording secretary; and Dale House, treasurer.

STARTING SUNDAY "BLACK BELT FURY"

The opening spade lead was won in dummy with the king and a spade was led to the ace. Declarer continued with his remaining spade, ruffing with dummy's queen. East made his first good play when he refused to overruff, instead discarding a diamond. It seemed that the rest of the hand was a formality, for declarer could afford to lose three trump tricks. He led dummy's low heart, and East made another fine play by false-carding with the seven. After some thought, declarer played low, and he was rewarded for his care when West had to win with the king. Declarer had preserved the 10-9-8 of trumps, so it was an easy matter to force out the ace-jack and draw the remaining trump, thus making his contract.

Observe what happens if declarer covers the seven of hearts with the eight. West wins and exits with any card he chooses, and no matter how declarer plays he will have to lose three trump tricks to East's ace-jack-six. Declarer's play of following low on the first round of hearts cost nothing, except in the unlikely event that East held four trumps to the A-K-J-7. Had the trumps divided 3-2, declarer would lose three tricks no matter what card he played to the first trump trick.

East Named To Journal Board

Dr. John P. East, professor of political science at East Carolina University, has been appointed to the editorial board of "Modern Age," a scholarly journal of conservative themes and ideas.

The 32-member board includes noted academicians in various fields, such as Mario Pei, Henry M. Adams and R. Barry Farrell.

Dr. East has previously published in the quarterly journal.

He is also a member of the editorial board of the "Political Science Reviewer."
