NO PLACE FOR THE BIRDS. . .Flocks of birds, mostly starlings, swarm over a landfill near Smith Reynolds Airport in Winston-Salem. The FAA says the birds endanger airplanes using the airport. A sanitation official said the city was ready to exterminate the birds until it was discovered a state law prohibits poisoning wildlife. City officials have now decided to quit using the landfill and deliver garbage to two other landfills. The garbage has attracted as many as 200,000 starlings. (AP Wirephoto)

Nixon Makes Review Of Federal Spending

By RICHARD LERNER

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon Saturday began a final review of federal spending plans for the coming fiscal year which were expected to reach a total of $300 billion for the first time.

Nixon was said to be considering an additional package of contingency spending programs if the energy crisis weakens the economy beyond administration expectations and drives unemployment up

All decisions on the fiscal 1975 budget covering the business year starting next July 1 will be made by mid-week so that the budget can be printed and sent to Congress late this month or early in February.

That would anticipate a deficit of about $7 billion, compared with one of between $4 billion and $6 billion which the administration now is projecting for the current fiscal year —a year in which Nixon had hoped for a balanced budget.

Accordingly, Nixon was understood to be studying a variety of "stand-by" plans to stimulate the economy quickly if needed.

Among the possible "stand-by" measures which Nixon was believed to be studying to stimulate the economy in an emergency were steps to expand public service employment, to increase defense spending in areas with many people out of work and to increase spending for public works projects, especially environmental programs.

In addition to the budget, Nixon was expected to focus in coming days on the State of the Union address scheduled for delivery to Congress about Jan. 22. At that time, the President probably will spell out some of his budget plans.

Arab-Israeli Forces Agreement Said Reached

By KIM WILLENSON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger ended seven and one-half of talks with Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan Saturday saying that they had reached substantial agreement on how to approach the issue of disengaging Arab and Israeli forces.

Dayan said he was satisfied with the talks, which began Friday, and prepared to return Saturday night to Israel to start hammering out a concrete negotiating proposal with Prime Minister Golda Meir and her cabinet to be presented at peace talks in Geneva.

The two men met for four and one half hours Saturday in Kissinger's office at the State Department. After the first hour, they were joined by aides and later by Herman Eilts, the chief U.S. representative to Egypt.

Dayan and Kissinger had talked for three hours Friday before the Israeli defense minister went to see Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger to discuss how his country would use a $2.2 billion emergency arms aid appropriation from the United States.

"Our two positions approached each other substantially... we are talking tactics and nuances," Kissinger said when he and Dayan met with newsmen briefly after their session concluded. "There was no confrontation between us. Not only was there no confrontation, but there was no significant difference between us and the Israelis."

Dayan added: "I personally was very happy with these talks. Now I am going home and I hope our cabinet will be in a position to formulate something concrete to propose to the Arabs. Whether we shall reach agreement with Egypt, I can't say now. But I think we can have a concrete proposal, and I don't think it will take a long time."

Neither Kissinger nor Dayan disclosed any of the details of their agreement.

An Israeli military analyst meanwhile said in an Army radio commentary in Tel Aviv that Israel is willing to withdraw its Army back inside the Siani nearly 20 miles from the Suez Canal if Egypt thins out its forces of the east bank of the waterway.

Dayan cautioned against over optimism about the peace negotiations. "Everybody should realize that after such a long time of fighting and confrontation it is very difficult to make even the first step toward an agreement," he said.

Storm In Western States

By United Press International

Snow fell on deserts in Southern California, Utah and Arizona Saturday, stranding motorists and blanketing Palm Springs golf courses for the first time in 25 years.

Up to four feet of snowfall accumulated in the mountains around Los Angeles and an estimated 1,000 persons were marooned in their cars trying to get through snow-clogged passes.

Snow covered Palm Springs, desert resort and winter home of many wealthy retired individuals, for the first time in a quarter century.

Twenty-one inches of snow piled up at Victorville, Calif., and 16 inches were reported on the ground at Palmdale on the high desert.

Snow was reported at Furnace Creek in Death Valley Friday, for the first time since 1968 and only the third time since the National Park Service began keeping records in Death Valley 15 years ago. Temperature dropped to 33 degrees.

Six inches of snow fell by daybreak at Las Vegas and highway travel from St. George, Utah, into the gambling city was banned unless autos were equipped with chains or snow tires. All other roads into Las Vegas were reported hazardous.

An icy storm gripped Oregon and gusty east winds blew through Columbia Gorge. Timberline Lodge ski area on Mt. Hood was closed because of strong winds. Mt. Hebo, on the Oregon coast, reported a wind gust of 103 miles an hour.

Many Drown In Mishap

MANILA (UPI) — Almost 100 persons were feared drowned Saturday in the sinking of the ferry Tagbilaran in strong winds and high seas in the central Philippines shortly after midnight.

At least 37 bodies were recovered, including those of 11 children. Still missing were 45 others. A coast guard spokesman said earlier that 135 survivors out of the 212 passengers and five crewmen aboard were picked out of the water by rescue ships.

The 100-ton Tagbilaran sank at 12:30 a.m. Saturday off Bagacay Point in Cebu province, 330 miles south of Manila, on the return trip from Baybay town in Leyte province to Cebu city.

UPI correspondent Buddy Quintana in Cebu said about half of the bodies are unidentified, including the 11 children. He said most of the passengers were residents of Leyte province returning home from Christmas holidays in Cebu City.

Rescue ships from the Philippine navy, coast guard, national and local police combed the area where the ship went down as well as nearby islands in a search for survivors.

Arabs Ease Oil Flow

BEIRUT (UPI) — Countries on the Arab oil nations "most favored" list will be able to import all the oil they require under the easing of Arab restrictions announced Dec. 25, the Middle East Economic Survey said Saturday.

Among the "most favored" nations are Britain, France and Spain.

The Middle East Economic Survey, a weekly Beirut publication which specializes in oil affairs, said it had received "important clarifications" of the ease-up in the Arab restrictions announced by Arab oil ministers after a conference in Kuwait.

It said it had been informed countries on the most-favored list will be allowed to import their "actual needs of crude oil from the Arab states, even in excess of the level of their imports for September, 1973" (before the Arab oil cuts started) subject to the proviso that none of the Arab oil will find its way beyond their borders or replace non-Arab oil which they would have imported.

London Airport Fully Guarded

By NAT GIBSON

LONDON (UPI) — Troops and tanks guarded London's Heathrow airport Saturday for the first time since World War II. Police said it was a safeguard against a possible Arab guerrilla attempt to shoot down a commercial jetliner in reprisal for the arrest of four young suspected gunrunners from the United States.

Police said they acted after a warning that Arab guerrillas armed with ground-to-air rockets planned to shoot down an airliner.

The troops and tanks that blocked roads leading to the airport were pulled back at nightfall, but senior police officials said discreet security measures would remain throughout the night.

A top-level conference of senior army and police officers and Home Office officials Saturday night decided the massive security exercise at Heathrow was "not 100 per cent effective," security sources said. They said several new areas of security would have to be covered.

"The contingency measures taken at London airport will continue for the time being," A Home Office spokesman said after the meeting

In the United States, FBI agents arrested a retired Navy man Saturday on charges of aiding one of those arrested in Britain. John M. Reed, special agent in charge of the Sacramento, Calif., FBI office, said Theodore Dean Brown, 31, of Goleta, Calif., was arrested shortly after midnight at Travis Air Force Base.

Brown was charged with "aiding and abetting" Allison Rae Thompson, 18, of Santa Barbara, arrested a week ago in London.

Three others arrested were Robin Orbin, 20, a dark-haired American girl detained as she stepped off a plane from New York Friday, Abelkhir el-Hakaoui, 25, a Moroccan national who was student body president at Santa Barbara, Calif., City College, and Atler Naseen, 21, a Pakistani also living in Santa Barbara. Miss Thompson, Hakaoui and Naseen were charged Friday but Miss Orbin has not yet been formally charged and is held for questioning.

Strong Quake Rocks Peru

By STEPHEN MORROW

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — A powerful earthquake rocked the Lima area early Saturday, causing at least six deaths, destroying homes and spreading panic among some five million persons.

Peruvian civil defense officials said two persons were killed around Lima, two others in the town of Yauyos east of Lima where the quake was most intense and two others in smaller towns. He said fragmentary information received from Yauyos indicated at least 100 homes were destroyed there.

A spokesman for the U.S. National Earthquake Information Center in Boulder, Colo., said the 3:33 a.m. EST tremor was of the same magnitude as the disastrous Managua, Nicaragua, earthquake in 1972 —6.2 on the open-end Richter scale.

Dr. Waverly Person said the Managua quake was very shallow, but "the Peruvian quake was about 60 miles beneath the earth's surface. That is deep enough to lessen the death toll."

The Peruvian Geophysical Institute said the tremor measured only 4.8 on the Richter scale in Lima. Its epicenter was between Yauyos and Huarochiri about 50 miles southeast of Lima.

Information from the isolated mountain area more than 7,000 feet above sea level was scarce. The area has no telephone communication with the rest of Peru even under normal circumstances. Most homes in the area are of poor quality construction.

The Peruvian Red Cross sent emergency supplies, including medicines, tents, blankets and food to the stricken area around the Malael River and the organization's National Executive Committee was in permanent session in Lima to coordinte relief efforts.

First relief brigades equipped with short wave radios reported difficulty in reaching the disaster zone because landslides blocked access roads and government transport crews were dispatched to the area to repair the damage. The Peruvian army was placed on alert to help out in the relief effort.

Time To Change Clocks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clocks across almost all of the United States will be moved ahead an hour today as the nation embarks on year-round Daylight Saving Time as an energy-saving measure.

The time change took effect at 2 a.m. local time today and the country will remain on daylight time through October 1975.

At the order of Congress, the change will not affect Hawaii, the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico or most of Indiana. In addition, Secretary of Transportation Claude S. Brinegar, acting for President Nixon, on Friday exempted the mountain time zone areas of Idaho, Oregon and Arizona and agreed to a request by Kentucky to include all but 12 northeastern counties in the central time zone.

Two Committees Endorse ECU Med School Expansion

RALEIGH (AP)—Two committees of the North Carolina General Assembly Friday endorsed a proposal to expand the medical school at East Carolina University.

The action added strength to ECU forces who are pushing toward a legislative showdown with the University of North Carolina Board of Governors over the issue.

But one of the committees, the joint House and Senate Committee on Health, amended a report from the Medical Manpower Study Commission to comply with the Board of Governors' request for nine area health education centers (AD-HECs).

Also endorsing the ECU med school expansion Friday was the Senate Interim Committee on Education and Health. The committee's chairman, Sen. Tom Strickland, D-Wayne, said the only difference between the committee's position and that of the UNC Board is that ECU supporters are asking for expansion immediately.

A team of out-of state medical consultants conducted a study for the UNC board last year and recommended against immediate expansion of the ECU medical school. Strickland told his committee the medical consultants "said they were going to have to expand in the future either at ECU or at Chapel Hill. We're saying we want to do it now."

NC Democrats Approve Budget, Chairman's Plan

By MELVIN LANG
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's Democratic Executive Committee approved a $456,000 state party budget Saturday, giving a vote of confidence to party chairman James R. Sugg and his plan for the party to assume control of the 1974 statewide political campaign.

Sugg's victory came despite a series of challenges to his leadership during the early hours of the six-hour state meeting, which was the first by executive committee in 17 months.

The campaign plan would allow expansion of party headquarters in Raleigh to include coordinators and staff personnel to direct the Democratic campaign for next fall's general election. The new budget included provisions for at least $223,700 to finance the party campaign.

Sugg came under pressure within moments after he convened the committee, mostly from members of the Orange and Durham county delegations but also from scattered groups throughout the meeting room. In rapid succession, challenges were made to his agenda, the method of appointing committes, the selection of speakers for major party functions and other items.

Roger B. Foushee of Orange County, one of the Sugg opponents, said after the meeting was adjourned that an effort had been planned to oust Sugg as party chairman. The plan was dropped well after the meeting started, he said.

Old Hickory Retired After Career Of Glory

RALEIGH (AP)—National Guardsmen from four Southern states ceremoniously retired the colors of the "Old Hickory" 30th Infantry Division Saturday.

The ceremony officially ended a glittering 56-year history for the division, which was deactivated Dec. 1 in reorganization ordered by the National Guard.

Members of the division were honored for their conduct during World War I and, two decades later, spearheaded several successful campaigns against Adolph Hitler's troops.

Some military historians described the division as the "most outstanding division in the European theater" during World War II, when its troopers fought at Normandy, Mortain, the Siegried Line, the Battle of the Bulge and the Rhine.

Veterans attending the ceremony Saturday, coming from South Carolina, Georgia, North Carolina and Tennessee, recalled that the 30th helped repell two of Hitler's elite SS Panzer Divisions and another armored division at the Vire River in Normandy.

Tennessee guardsmen were part of the 30th Division during most of its history, although the state was not included when the division was deactivated. Because of their historial interest, however, Tennessee veterans participated in Saturday's retirement ceremony.

One veteran, Millard P. Burt of Raleigh, said radio propagandist Axis Sally "used to call us 'Roosevelt's SS Division' and German prisoners would call us 'the elite, the elite.'" Burt, the division's wartime band director, is now a professor at North Carolina State University.

A member of that band, then Sgt. Ellis W. Williamson of Raleigh, later became a major general in the regular Army and was among the first commanders of American troops in Vietnam.

Before the second war, the division trained and supplied troopers going overseas and participated in the building of Ft. Jackson in South Carolina.

"When we went there in 1940, there was a million pine trees and 18 buildings," remembered James A. Buffaloe, now a training officer for North Carolina's Civil Defense program. "When we left, people said there were a million buildings and 18 pine trees."

Fayetteville Deputy Slain By Soldier

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C.(AP)—A deputy sheriff was killed by a bullet through the left temple as he sat in his patrol car early today in what Sheriff O.F. Jones called an unprovoked attack.

The sheriff said that a soldier from nearby Ft. Bragg then was arrested after racing off in the deputy's patrol car, and had been charged with murder.

The deputy was Joe Smith, 41, of Fayetteville, married and the father of five children. He joined the Cumberland County Sheriff's Department after retiring from the Air Force a little more than two years ago.

The sheriff identified the soldier charged as John F. Blair, 20. Jones said he also had been charged with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill for allegedly firing at a truck driver who had given him a lift to the truck stop where the deputy was slain, and with auto larceny for stealing the patrol car.

The deputy was slain at the 401 Truck O'Tel on U.S. 401 south of Fayetteville.

The sheriff gave this account:

The truck driver, William Hatcher of Rural Hall near Winston-Salem, stopped to ask Deputy Smith directions to the Hercules steel plant in Fayetteville, to which he was delivering a load of steel.

Blair, who was hitchhiking and had been picked up about five miles south of the truck stop, got out of the truck and fired on Smith through the open window of the patrol car without apparent cause.

Blair then fired at Hatcher, without hitting him, jerked Smith from the patrol car, and sped off in it.

The car was found wrecked in a residential area of Fayetteville about three miles away. Blair was captured without resistance in the area by Fayetteville policemen.

A 22-caliber target pistol which the sheriff said killed Smith was found on U.S. 401 halfway between the truck stopped and the wrecked patrol car.

The deputy was shot at about 1:30 a.m., and was pronounced dead on arrival at Cape Fear Valley Hospital in Fayetteville.

U.S. Apology For CIA Incident

BANGKOK (UPI) — American officials said Saturday they had apologized to the Thailand government for a bungling attempt by a U.S. Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) operative to interfere in internal Thai affairs.

A CIA agent acted on his own when he wrote a letter to the Thai government purported to be from Communist guerrillas in northeastern Thailand, an American Embassy spokesman said. In the falsified letter written by the agent, the guerrillas offered a cease-fire with government troops in return for autonomy for the northeastern part of the country.

"The incident of the cease-fire letter has been discussed with the appropriate Thai officials," the spokesman said. "It was a regrettable and unauthorized initiative."

The spokesman said U.S. Ambassador William Kintner had issued orders "that no American officials be involved in any activity which could be interpreted as interference in Thai internal affairs."

The spokesman would not confirm or deny reports in Thai newspapers that the responsible CIA agent, who was not identified, has been transferred from the guerrilla zone to Bangkok. He is supposed to have written the letter in the hope that some guerrilla fighters, disappointed over the soft attitude of their leaders, would defect from the insurgent ranks.

The letter, signed by "Chamras," was sent to Prime Minister Sanya Dhammasak with copies to five Bangkok newspapers from Sakhon Nakhon in northeastern Thailand, a major refuge for Communist insurgents.

Sources said the Thai prime minister was skeptical about the authenticity of the letter from the start. He had it traced and discovered it had been sent from the CIA office in Sakhon Nakhon because the CIA agent had made the mistake of sending it by registered mail.

The Thai government has never agreed to allow the insurgents an autonomous zone in return for a cease-fire because such a move would be tantamount to admitting defeat at the hands of the Communists.

There are an estimated 7,000 Communist guerrillas operating in Thailand, most of them in the northeast.

A Disappointment For Star Gazers

By THOMAS G. BELDEN
UPI Science Writer

HOUSTON (UPI) — Scientists confirmed the bad news Saturday that Comet Kohoutek, once billed as the astronomical wonder of the century, is going to be a "great disappointment" to gaze at, no more spectacular than the average star.

Skylab 3 astronauts Gerald P. Carr, Edward G. Gibson and William R. Pogue reported from their vantage point above earth's atmosphere that the comet was "fainter than faint" and growing increasingly dim as it moved away from the sun.

Dr. Thornton Page, an astronomer with the Naval Research Lab (NRL) of Washington, said he and another NRL comet watcher, Dr. Don Packer, had developed a theory to try to explain Kohoutek's sudden drop in brightness. Page said he expected the theory may be disapproved by data brought back by the Skylab crew.

"It's going to be a great disappointment," Page said. "I'm afraid it will be a rather faint object. My expectation is it will look like a rather normal star, not even a bright star. With the naked eye you might be able to see a little bit of the tail, but I'm afraid people will have to use binoculars to see Kohoutek's full glory."

The astronomer said he and Packer think some of the numerous constituents believed to be in the comet nucleus, or center, have formed a sticky white compound that has covered the nucleus in some way, thus locking in much of the material.

Usery Named Spec. Assistant

SN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — W. J. Usery Jr., chief labor troubleshooter for the government the past five years, Saturday was named a special presidential assistant in charge of labor problems related to the energy crisis. He was to continue as head of the Federal Mediation Service.

Usery, 50, had been offered a high office in the AFL-CIO union hierarchy and the White House, in making the announcement of Usery's agreement to stay in government, made clear President Nixon considered it a major achievement to persuade him to stay on.

It was believed Usery was AFL-CIO President George Meany's personal choice to be the next head of the giant labor federation.

The White House said Usery would deal mainly with labor relations matters concerning "production, delivery and disbursement of energy fuels and power," working closely with Federal Energy Administrator William E. Simon and Labor Secretary Peter J. Brennan.

Usery also will remain director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, a position he assumed last March after four years as assistant labor secretary.

Usery, called on by Nixon many times to help settle major strikes and labor disputes, said he decided to accept the White House post because of the energy crisis.

He said in a statement he believed "that I might better be able to contribute to labor, to management, and to our nation by accepting President Nixon's request that I remain with the government."

Usery said he felt an obligation to help efforts intended to minimize the number of jobs lost and workers displaced by energy problems.

Before joining the government in 1969, Usery served 13 years as a leader of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, an affiliate of the AFL-CIO.

The White House said Nixon wanted Usery to be involved with coordinating a broad variety of government labor relations activities, including those covering airlines, railroads, trucking and federal, state and local employment.

Fighting Continues In Cambodia, SVN

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — Rebel troops drove government soldiers from an outpost just outside Phnom Penh Saturday while inside the city, terrorists killed one person and wounded 11 others by hurling a hand grenade into a crowded market place.

In South Vietnam, the military command said 32 Communists were killed at a government cost of four infantrymen dead and 13 wounded when Viet Cong troops attacked an infantry outpost in Kiem Tan district in Long Khanh province, about 27 miles northwest of Saigon.

A South Vietnamese government spokesman said the Friday afternoon attacks were mounted against infantry and militia posts in Hoai An and An Tuc districts. Government troops repelled the attackers, seizing 45 hand grenades and two weapons. Five government rangers were wounded.

Cambodian field reports said a rebel unit forced government troops from the outpost at Prek Krabao, only six miles northeast of Phnom Penh, in fighting that raged throughout the night and into Saturday.

The 50 government defenders left behind machine guns and a large quantity of ammunition, the reports said. One Cambodian soldier was killed, more than 10 were wounded and others were believed drowned as they tried to swim to safety across the Tonle Sap River.

The Cambodian high command said a young girl was believed to be one of the terrorists in the grenade attack that killed one person and wounded 11 others inside the capital.

Alabama Law Ruled Out

By RANDALL H. HARBER

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — A federal court ruled Alabama's antiobscenity law unconstitutionl Saturday in a suit filed by the producers of the motion picture, "Last Tango in Paris."

The three judge panel did not view the film, saying it was unnecessary to rule on the possible obscenity of the film itself because the state law was "unconstitutional on its face."

United Artists Corp. filed suit after a local theater owner was served a notice by Montgomery police that law officers felt there was "reasonable cause" to think "Last Tango" was obscene.

The theater owner was told he could show the film but that its showing might result in prosecution.

The court said the police notice amounted to an unconstitutional restriction of the First Amendment right of free expression.

In addition, the court said the burden of proving the film obscene must rest with the censor, but does not under the Alabama law.

The law, said the court, would require the theatre owner to seek a judicial opinion on the alleged obscenity of the film, but would not require the state of Alabama to do anything.

The court also said the law was riddled with procedural defects because it does not provide for quick court action in obscenity cases.

The court issued an order restraining Montgomery officials from further interfering with the showing of the film.

Bombs Explode

By MORLEY MYERS

LONDON (UPI) — Bombs believed planted by the Irish Republican Army (IRA) exploded at the Earl's Court International boat show and Madame Tussaud's waxworks Saturday, forcing the evacuation of more than 30,000 persons before the blasts. Later a bomb damaged a home in a fashionable Chelsea neighborhood.

No one was hurt in the blasts —the first in London this year— which came after telephoned warnings to the British news agency Press Association.

The bombings began at 4:22 p.m. (10:22 a.m. EST) with an explosion at Madame Tussaud's waxworks, blowing a door across the road minutes after hundreds of visitors had fled.

Three minutes later, after 30,000 visitors had fled the boat show, bomb exploded in an $45,000 yacht, police said.

The Chelsea bomb, seven hours later, wrecked a house in Cadogan Gardens believed to be occupied by a British army general, nearby residents said.

Shortly before the Chelsea blast another bomb was discovered alongside the west London headquarters of the Burns International Security Service (U.K.) Ltd., British Branch of America's Burns detective agency. Explosives experts defused it about 30 seconds before it was timed to explode.

Institute Of Evangelism Being Held In Greenville

Personal evangelism—one-to-one sharing of the Christian faith—will be the thrust of an Institute on Evangelism to be held in Greenville next Thursday through Sunday.

The Institute is being planned by members of several denominations and any person interested in learning how to tell another person about Christ is invited to attend free of charge.

The Rev. Richard "Dick" Little of Richmond, Va. is the evangelist conducting the Institute. He is engaged in full-time preaching evangelism, under the auspices of the Presbyterian Evangelistic Fellowship. A graduate of Davison College, he said he grew up in the church and "joined" at an early age, but that he did not become a follower of Christ until his junior year in college. He then attended Union Theological Seminary in Richmond, Va. and did graduate work at Lancaster Theological Seminary in Lancaster, Pa. He said the method of personal evangelism he now teaches in institutes like the one here this week was developed by a Coral Gables, Fla.

The schedule for the Institute is as follows: Thursday at 7:30 p.m.; Friday at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.; Saturday at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.; and Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Visitation will be held Friday and Saturday afternoons. The morning and evening sessions Friday and Saturday will be the same, so persons may attend either each of these days. Each session will be about one-and-one-half hours in length.

The Rev. H. M. McLamb and John D. Grier are co-chairing planning for the Institute. J. Howard Moye is finance chairman.

Returns Recovered Treasure To Ocean

ISLAMORADA, Fla. (AP) — Divers are ready to search for $50,000 to $100,000 in gold and silver artifacts a treasure hunter claims to have dumped back into the ocean off the Florida Keys.

Diver Tom Gurr was shown Friday on CBS-TV dumping what he said was treasure he had recovered in the past year from the 250-year-old wreck of the Spanish galleon San Jose.

The State of Florida claims 25 per cent of the value of any treasure found in state water and the searchers keep 75 per cent.

So Gurr was charged late Friday with grand larceny and was being held in Brevard County Jail on a $7,500 bond, police said.

Gurr could not be reached for comment, but a friend and fellow diver, marine archaeologist Robert Marx, said that if Gurr did throw away the treasure it was probably because he "couldn't get the state to divide it, so he couldn't sell it and was broke."

State officials said Gurr had contracted with the state to keep the treasure secure and had no right to dispose of it.

"I broke no laws," Gurr said in the TV broadcast. "I'm just returning it to where I got it. The state didn't pay me to get it."

Gurr has been diving on the San Jose for the past five years. The ship, part of a Spanish treasure fleet, sank in 1733 about four miles off Islamorada in the Upper Florida Keys.

Child Specialists Oppose Creation Of New Agency

"The concepts in the bill to create a Department of Services to Children and Youth are beautiful, but I don't think the provisions of the bill are workable," Dr. Malene Irons said Friday afternoon.

Dr. Irons, director of the East Carolina University Development Evaluation Clinic and numerous other Pitt County persons attended a legislative hearing in Kinston Friday morning on a bill to create such a department in state government to deal with the problems of handicapped children. Dr. Irons went on, "It doesn't look like sense to me to form a new agency. I can appreciate the feelings of some of the parents of multihandicapped children that services to their children are fragmented. Certainly we should work toward the betterment of the whole child. However, I think we should communicate better among the agencies we now have and make them more capable of dealing with the problem, rather than creating another agency."

Dr. Irons left a summary of her opinions on the matter with the legislative committee, headed by Sen. Livingston Stallings of Craven County.

Dr. John Richards, chairman of the ECU Special Education Department said there were between 15 and 20 speakers against the bill and one in favor. He himself spoke against it, saying he thinks the state's money can better be spent on improving existing programs for children with special problems rather than on creating a new agency. He said he believes the bill steps on the toes of the schools, most of which have done a good job with the funds they have in providing programs for children other than "normal," including the retarded, autistic, gifted, and others.

Prays For Evil Spirits To Leave

HOUSTON (AP) — A Roman Catholic priest says he visited an abandoned Pagan church here and prayed for evil spirits to leave the structure.

Workmen reportedly feared the presence of evil spirits at the house after seeing the movie "The Exorcist."

The Rev. Francis E. Monaghan, vice president of St. Thomas University, said he did not actually perform an exorcism because he is not qualified to do so.

"You have to pray and fast for several days before you do it (the exorcism)—or something like that," Monaghan said. "Usually you have to get a priest from out of town."

Monaghan said the action was taken at the request of Thomas L. Whitcomb, owner of the property.

He said he and Whitcomb, a lawyer and Episcopalian, prayed together Thursday for the evil spirits to leave.

Whitcomb, who is having the house repaired, said workmen were back on the job Friday, considerably less nervous after the prayer session.

The rites of exorcism is performed in the movie "The Exorcist" where it was done to drive evil spirits out of a child.

The Roman Catholic Church has for centuries recognized exorcism as a religious act. It is an attempt to drive out evil spirits by commands, ceremonies and prayers.

Council Action Poor Procedure

Apparently a majority of the City Council, led by Mayor Eugene West, decided last Thursday that it would be a fine day to eliminate a municipal job. So at the council meeting that night four of them voted to eliminate the position of administrative assistant to the city manager.

Never mind that it is currently occupied by Bob Leyda, the position will no longer be funded after Feb. 1, if this council action is allowed to stand.

Mayor West blamed the change on a desire to "take a long look at the budget." He claims that $7,500 was originally allocated for the job, but that Leyda is being paid over $9,000.

As a mater of fact, the Greenville City Council last year unanimously approved the budget for 1973-74 which called for the addition of the administrative assistant at a salary range of $9,198 to $11,739.

We checked with cities comparable to Greenville here in the east and found that Kinston, Rocky Mount and Goldsboro have administrative assistants to the city manager. The salary range in Kinston is $8,200 to $9,800, in Rocky Mount it is $10,712 to $14,378 and in Goldsboro it is $10,442 to $12,333. Wilson has an assistant city manager at a salary range of $13,702 to $18,356.

Even though the City Council last year approved the budget authorizing the addition of an administrative assistant, Mayor West, Councilman Percy Cox, John Loward and Joe Taft took it upon themselves to abruptly eliminate this position by Feb. 1.

That action came despite the fact that City Manager Bill Carstarphen explained that around 60 percent of Leyda's time is spent on personnel work and he also has duties involving purchasing and employee training.

All this was extremely poor procedure on the part of these four City Council members. They took an ill-advised action and one that should be corrected immediately.

The action very much undercuts City Manager Carstarphen who came to Greenville from Charlotte only last year as a highly recommended municipal administrator. So far as we can determine, he has been doing a good job here.

Mayor West and the councilmen who supported the mayor need to recognize that it is the mayor and council's duty to formulate policy under the council-city manager form of government. But it is a bad thing when abrupt policy changes are used to meddle in the administrative phases of municipal government.

Nixon Adviser Or Scrapegoat?

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

AUSTIN, Tex.—Prof. Charles Alan Wright, listed by high White House officials as the source of President Nixon's inflexible line against releasing tape recordings, says he was rebuffed last July when he suggested exploring a compromise solution.

That is not the only difference between White House claims of Wright's role as a Nixon Watergate attorney and his own description given us in an interview at his University of Texas law school office. While continuing to completely support Mr. Nixon, Wright contradicted the White House version of his own advice on key Watergate matters.

Like much about Watergate, this can be explained in two possible ways—one benign and the other malignant. The benign explanation: garbled internal communications which undeniably becloud the Nixon White House. The malignant explanation: the White House was using Wright to hide behind his massive reputation as a constitutional scholar, attributing to him unpopular decisions actually made by others.

For example, senior presidential aides have assigned Wright major responsibility for Mr. Nixon's intransigence last summer in barring even limited disclosures of the tapes. According to these sources, Mr. Nixon accepted Wright's constitutional advice to withhold the tapes while rejecting counselor Melvin R. Laird's political advice to release them.

Wright's version disputes this. Although retained by the President on Watergate matters last May, a previous commitment took him to Scotland during July. In Edinburgh July 16, Wright learned from a BBC broadcast that the existence of surreptitious White House tapes was revealed that day. He quickly received a transatlantic call from the White House asking him to rush back.

Arriving the evening of July 19, Wright went straight to the White House. He carried with him an editorial from the Times of London urging some compromise for disclosing the tapes. No newspaper in the world, Wright told the White House lawyers, had supported Mr. Nixon so well as the Times. Therefore, should not its suggestions be considered?

The reply from White House counsel Leonard Garment: the time to worry about newspaper editorials had long passed. Wright was handed a fait accompli. Less than 72 hours after the existence of the tapes was revealed, the President had decided irrevocably against their disclosure. Nor, Wright told us, was he ever consulted on the propriety of this decision.

Moreover, Wright has been described by White House aides as reassuring the President he surely would win the tape case in the Supreme Court. When we reported this last October, an angry Wright telephoned White House chief of staff Alexander Haig to protest that presidential aides were misrepresenting him. Haig later told the press that Wright had predicted merely a 50-50 chance—a version confirmed to us here by the professor.

White House staffers also have described Wright as leading the President to believe that he could fire Archibald Cox as special prosecutor without forcing the disastrous resignation of Elliot Richardson as Attorney General. Not so, says Wright. "I thought sure that Elliot would follow Cox," he told us. But, he added, he was never asked his opinion.

Thus, Wright's description of his role is far smaller than the image drawn by the White House. He was not consulted about releasing the tapes. He was not asked to assess the consequences of firing Cox. As he revealed in a Washington Post interview published Dec. 9, he was not informed about the two missing tapes and was told about negotiations between Cox and Richardson at the eleventh hour.

Wright imputes no sinister motive. His lack of vital information, he told us, derived from deep White House concern over security. What's more, he believes that concern is well founded in light of pervasive news leaks.

If, however, the malignant explanation of Wright's experience is accepted, he was kept in the dark not because of clogged communications but because the White House intended to take advantage of his reputation. Indeed, now that the White House tapes policy has ended so badly for the President, there are signs some presidential aides see Wright as the scapegoat.

Wright himself remains loyal, supporting the White House in its dispute with Richardson. Nevertheless, the White House clearly feels his usefulness is ended. "Is Charley still unhappy?" asks one presidential adviser, miffed by Wright's recent public statements. Another contends Wright is not being consulted now because constitutional questions are not involved and "his expertise is really very limited, you know." Like other men of stature, Charles Alan Wright's service to President Nixon concludes with the taste of ashes.

A Down-Trend In Roads Funds

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—State road funds based on gasoline taxes are taking a dive, with the worst yet to come.

While collections so far are still some $5 million ahead of last fiscal year, a downward trend is already evident. A projected increase of 5.15 per cent in monthly tax income has already been wiped out, and November collections showed an actual drop of $270,000 below those of November, 1972. At that rate, there's no way state highway officials can realize the anticipated $18 to $20 million monthly income on which they're presently budgeted.

Already routine maintenance work has been trimmed to the bone and all Transportation Department vehicles ordered to cooperate for an 11 per cent savings in fuel consumption.

But the worst is yet to come, state officials believe. Federal energy expert say the real crunch will come in February or March—and that's about the time state officials hope to be able to get a handle on how much of a loss the state can anticipate.

"But the present figures are significant as an indicator—collections have dropped, and our people are well satisfied this will continue," says Ted Harrison of the Department of Transportation public information office.

What's Ahead?

What will all of this mean for roads programs?

Nobody can be certain at this point. It can well mean that with a 55 mile per hour speed limit in effect, the state can cut back on some widening and improvement projects.

It might also mean that the state is fortunate in the long run in not having as much, expensive interstate highway mileage as it might have had if North Carolina had participated vigorously in that program from the beginning-since the high-speed throughways no longer serve that distinct purpose, and gobble construction money at a rapid clip.

But in all, officials are not taking the view that motorists will have to live forever with the lowered speed limits or cutbacks in use of the car or truck.

"We don't figure this to last forever. It would be short-sighted of us to say that. Road building will go on. You have to have roads if you're gonna have buses.

"But this will give us a chance to do some serious and different kind of thinking about mass transit," Harrison said.

Keep Eye On Dunn

The city of Dunn in Harnett County may find itself being much watched in the months ahead.

If Dr. Leo Jenkins' travel chedule shows a visit there, it could well be a clue to his political intentions.

Speaking to a chamber of commerce meeting recently, the East Carolina University chancellor said he feels that community best captures the mood of North Carolina, and if and when he makes up his mind about running for governor, he'll make it known in Dunn.

New Foot Stamp Rules

"You do not have to be poor by public assistance standards to be eligible for food stamps," Dr. Renee Westcott said in outlining more liberal food stamp regulations which took effect the first of the year.

A working father with a wife and two children can earn as much as $6,000 a year and still be elibible for the stamps.

"Of course, he would have to pay more cash because of his comparatively high income, but he would still be getting a bargain," said the director of state Social Services division.

A household of four will be able to earn up to $473 monthly compared to the old level of $387—and that's the income level after taxes and social security are ducted.

Under the new rules, the stamps worth $142 in food purchases could be bought for $83. The same size family with little or no income would get the stamps free.

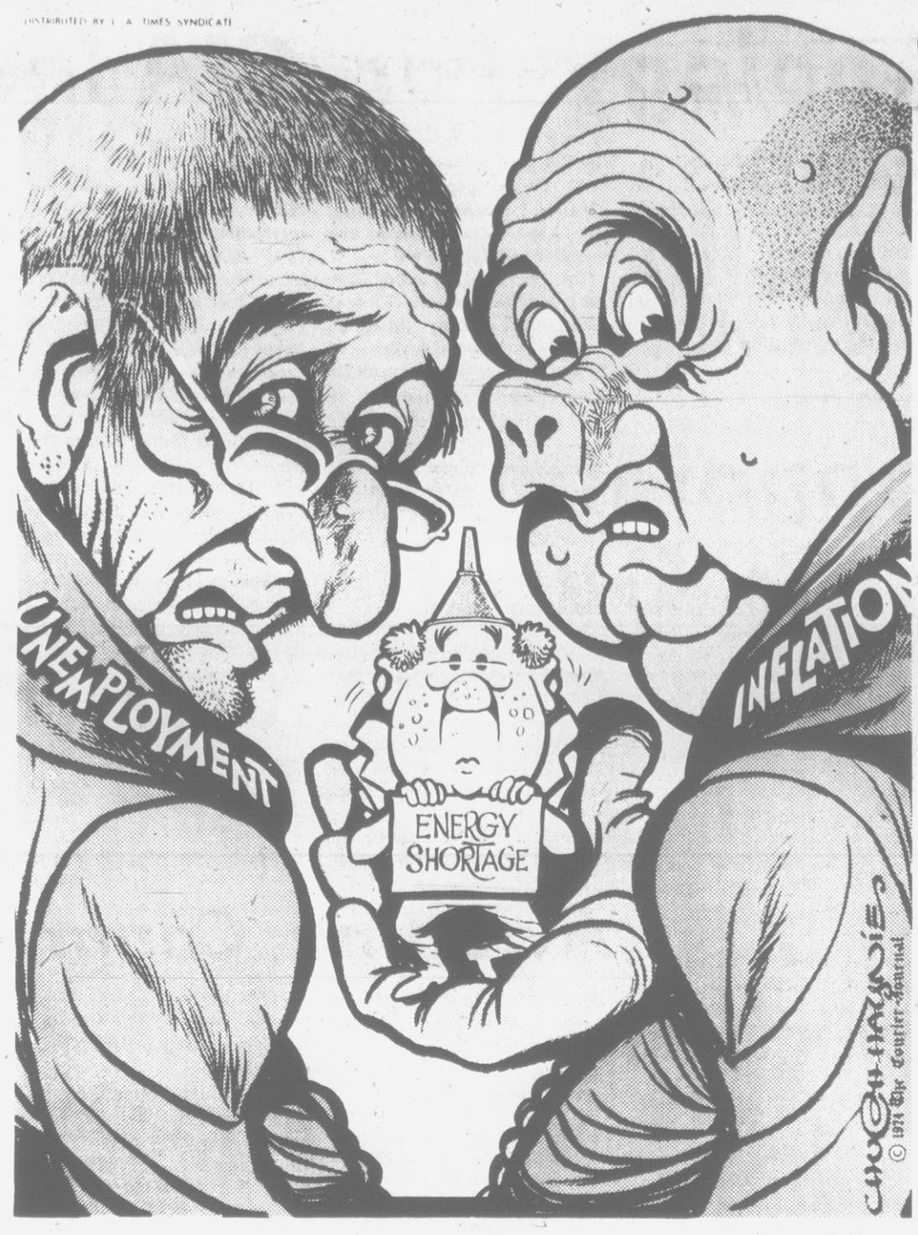

"With food prices higher than ever before in the nation's history, the relief offered by use of food coupons can take the consumer back to the prices he spent years ago. Why not use food coupons," Dr. Westcott said. All counties in the state will use food stamps by July 1, this year, replacing the commodities distribution program.

Sunday Morning Notes

Your columnist was standing at the river bank at Tar River Estates one day after Christmas. A small boat soon appeared around the bend from down river.

As the boat neared, I could make out that it was a Kayak and a girl was paddling it.

She paddled over to the left bank as she neared where I stood.

"Pardon me," she said. "Do you have a telephone?"

"Why, yes," I answered.

She gave me a telephone number and asked, "Would you call that number and ask whoever answers to meet me at the crew launch."

ALVIN TAYLOR

She explained that her friends in another Kayak had overturned downstream and they were waiting on the river bank for help.

The young lady paddled off toward the crew landing and I called the number.

Strange things happen on the Tar.

And a bachelor returned to his Tar River Estates apartment New Year's Eve to find a drink sitting on his door sill.

He took the drink, in a plastic cup, inside, sat it on a table and waited.

Soon a pretty young lady he knew knocked on the door.

"Did you find your drink?" she asked.

The bachelor pointed to it on the table.

"Go ahead and drink it," the young lady said, "It's all right."

"No way," answered the bachelor. "A glassy eyed

Other Editors Say Train Comeback?

(The Wilson Times)

It is taking an energy crisis to bring back the railroads to their former place of importance in the economy. Amtrak is the name given the consolidation of the lines considered necessary for the protection of the nation. The passenger service had just about been neglected so few used the service.

Now reservations on the railroad are sought after. Recent conditions find the trains full and the passengers enjoying the trip. As one said, you do not arrive tired, and you may take longer but if you are on a vacation, this does not matter.

There is no question as to one point, passengers are going to get discouraged if they have to put up with inconveniences. Such things as wrecks which keep the trains held up for several hours and you arrive at your destination four hours late, will not be tolerated for long.

Amtrak planners are working to find more passenger cars and to get more mileage out of what they have. And the planners are also making plans for the entertainment of the passengers. The trains now have bingo, movies for the children and the meals should be improved, and this is said to be taking place.

There was a holiday rush back to the trains. If the Amtrak officials take advantage of the opportunity, and make train travel as delightful as it is in areas where it is a main method of transportation, possibly the railroads can come back into their own. Then those who are not trying to make time, but who are on a vacation, will continue to ride the trains.

This will be possible on such runs as from Washington to New York or from Washington and New York to Chicago and on to the West coast.

There was the time when the travel to the West coast on the trains with the glass tops and the good meals had a full train during the vacation season and usually every day.

This nation has to continue the railroads for security reasons. They are not paying their way, that is why Amtrak was organized.. Now the time has come to improve the service and to work to bring back train travel to the place it once enjoyed.

Copa's Fifty Years

By BRUCE HANDLER
Associated Press Writer

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Rio's famous Copacabana Palace Hotel — once a meeting spot for itinerant kings and temperamental movie stars — is quietly celebrating its 50th anniversary.

The old gray edifice is more likely these days to be host to a businessman from New York or Tokyo than a countess or an artist. But the Copa is still very much in business, despite increasing competition from flashy modern hotels.

When the Copacabana Palace opened in 1923 it was the first big building in Copacabana, a Rio residential neighborhood with 2½ miles of spectacular beachfront along the open Atlantic.

The hotel quickly became a gathering place fo the "beautiful people" of that era and helped put this tropical South American city on the international tourist circuit.

During the 1930s and early '40s gambling was legal in Brazil, and the hotel had its own casino. The maitre d' wore tails. Guests were required to dress up at night: long gowns for the women and dark suits for the men.

King George VI of England, Clark Gable and Rita Hayworth stayed at the Copa. Nat "King" Cole packed revelers into the Golden Room, the hotel's nightclub. Bing Crosby and Bob Hope used the hotel as the scene for much of the action in their movie, "The Road to Rio."

King Carol II of Romania lived in exile in the Copacabana Palace during the World War II.

Plans for the Roosevelt Birthday Ball to be held here on January 30 were outlined at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday. Similar balls will be held across the nation and the proceeds will go to a permanent endowment fund for the nation-wide work of the Warm Springs Foundation for infantile paralysis. The President will be 62 on that date.

Eddie Pool's Orchestra of State College, composed of ten musicians, has been secured to provide music for the occasion and good music was expected to be one of the outstanding features of the ball.

The dance will be formal and all dancers will be required to appear in evening dress, but this will not be required of spectators.

Lowest Down Payment In Years

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It is now possible to buy stocks with the lowest down payments since the 1930s, the result of a Federal Reserve Board decision to inject a little life into a severely depressed industry.

Most securities men tend to welcome low margin because it brings in more business. Speculators take out their doodle pads and lay plans to return to the market. Existing stockholders find they have more buying power.

Immediately after World War II an investor had to put up 100 per cent cash in order to buy stock. As recently as 1968, after several ups and downs the margin requirement was 80 per cent. Last year it was 65. Now it's 50.

In making its decision, the Fed implied that it is now safe to encourage more debt because stock market credit has diminished appreciably in the past year or so, from $7.9 billion in December 1972 to about $5.5 billion now.

What the Fed didn't say is that a good deal of that debt reduction wasn't the result of financial dedication by those who held stocks on margin but, instead, was the accomplishment of foreclosure proceedings.

That is, an untold number of shareholders during the past year of depressed prices were unable to maintain their margin accounts and paid them off simply by letting the broker sell them out.

For example, a customer may have pledged fully-owned stocks as margin for new purchases. But, as the market prices of those pledged stocks declined they dipped below requirements and the broker may have asked for more collateral.

This situation is probably the most dangerous one for any margin investor. If he doesn't have additional funds to bring his account up to requirements, or if he loses his nerve, he may find his stocks sold to satisfy the law.

The fact is that while margin does make stocks considerably more attractive, it also makes them riskier. The rewards are enhanced but so is the risk. There is no escaping the risk-reward ratio. It's the game.

Another aspect of margin that is sometimes treated carelessly by speculators is the matter of interest to be paid. When stocks are rising sharply and interest rates are low it can be a matter of slight concern.

But when the market is sluggish or depressed and interest rates are high, as they are now, it could mean the difference between profit and loss. Brokers are now charging more than 10 per cent for margin loans.

Of additional concern for credit buyers is that margin requirements can vary. Note this asterisk in a New York Stock Exchange explanation:

"The New York Stock Exchange ... may set requirements calling for more cash or securities or require full cash payments. And your member firm may, at its discretion, request further such deposits.

"Moreover, it should be noted that your broker can demand payment of your debit balance at any time."

That same publication states clearly the powers of the broker:

"When you receive a maintenance margin call, you may either put up more cash; deliver more marginable securities to your broker as collateral; or sell all or part of your holdings and turn the proceeds over to the firm ...

"Otherwise, your broker has the right to liquidate your securities."

Margin, in the final analysis, creates powerful leverage for those who can afford to buy $2, 000 worth of stock, the minimum required for a margin account. But it also requires a great deal of faith.

Faith in the market. Faith in the broker.

Observations From Editorial Columns

N.C. Democrats And Chinese Fire Drills

In the 1972 general election, North Carolina Democrats running for substantial office looked in unity and fraternity, much like a Chinese fire drill.

Each candidate kept his own counsel, raised his own money and other campaign necessities, and ran his own show. Campaign trails seldom came together. When they did it was coincidental and a little chilly: a curt nod of recognition, none of that Hail, oh brother of the Democratic bond.

The State Democratic Party, whose sachems liked to think of themselves as the maestro orchestrating his major campaign movement, was just there. The gubernatorial nominee's man was in nominal control of what—that was an interesting question.

Everyone of course, treated the national Democratic ticket headed by Goerge McGovern like an active case of leprosy. You could ask any Democrat in pursuit of high office how he liked McGovern and the answer invariably amounted to "George who?"

The Tar Heel Democrats' handling of President Nixon, who at that time had no need to deny that he was a crook, was decidedly circumspect. The harshest criticism of the President that could be drawn from a prudent Democratic candidate amounted to something like "I'm not getting into that; I've got all I can say grace over in my own campaign."

Not only did the Democratic candidates choose not to give the rough-edge to President Nixon and the Republican Party, they presented themselves only vaguely if at all as Democrats. Whenever possible, many of them avoided all reference to party affiliation. The standard disclaimer was "I vote my convictions, not the party line."

The effect of all this campaign freelancing, the widespread attitude of every man for himself, and the lack of any fiercely partisan flavor is still not entirely clear. Some say it contributed heavily to the election of a Republican governor and a United States senator. Others insist that the results would have been much the same if all North Carolina Democrats had run as one with the party label worn on their sleeves. You can take your choice of those two theories or come down somewhere in between. No one will ever be able to prove you wrong.

Anyway, with the 1972 debacle vividly in mind, the Democratic sachems will come together this weekend to see what changes can be brought to discourage another Chinese fire drill.

The grand scheme is to exert firm control on the campaigns of all who run for office wearing Democratic colors. Directing the path of a hurricane would be easy by compairson.

Party Chairman James Sugg has in mind monitoring the campaigns of Democratic candidates this year. Efforts will be made to get commitments from candidates conceding that the campaigns will be run by the Democratic Party as a team effort.

The Democratic chieftains will also seek to discourage primary runoff elections, thereby stemming the normal flow of intra-party blood.

There is no great harm in this kind of political star-gazing. It will help kill a weekend and the State Democratic Party will have a chance to check its own pulse, which is not a bad idea in its present condition.

But the possibility of anything substantive emerging from the high-council meeting is distant and thin.

The Democratic Party can wade hip-deep through commitments from candidates acknowledging the party's supreme command of all campaigns. For practical effect the commitments will be worthless. Those candidates reasonably stable will go along with the party so long as it suits, or at least doesn't interfere with, their purposes. When the party's overall interests and a candidate's own campaign interests happen to be at odds, the candidate will invariably go his own way, the commitment notwithstanding.

Chairman Sugg can monitor campaigns until his eyes glaze over, which shouldn't take long, but that numbing exercise will go largely unrewarded. Say he detects a candidate doing voilence to State Party unity and decides to throw his weight around. Well, his weight as party chairman would possibly permit him to say, "Look here, fella, you're hurting us. How about getting with the team." Beyond that, he hasn't the weight to lean on anybody.

Given words enough and a little public attention, and if they don't start fighting among themselves, always a definite threat, the party leaders might be able to start creating an illusion of campaign unity this weekend.

Withal that, Will Rogers could have been speaking as a Tar Heel born and bred when he said, "I don't belong to any organized political party. I'm a Democrat." — The Chapel Hill Newspaper.

A Conservative View

The Most Dismaying Sympton Of Corruption

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

I have been reflecting on Watergate lately, in the course of closing the files on 1973, and venture this observation for what it may be worth: In the whole sad list of the bad things that were done, one action stands out as the worst. It was the compiling of the "enemy lists."

Granted, that is no easy choice. One has to relegate to a secondary rank such offenses as the bugging itself, the cover-up, the extortion of campaign contributions, the attempted seduction of Judge Byrne, the contemptible devices of Donald Sergetti, the presidential aproval of a break-and-enter plan, the careless handling of the White House tapes—all of that, and more.

Yet my own eye keeps turning back to a kind of awful fascination, to the memoranda that were prepared by John W. Dean, III, in August of 1971 and again in September of 1972. Some of the other incidents could be explained, if not justified, in terms of over-zealousness, pure panic, human error, perverted taste, or an obsessive anxiety for the national security. The enemies lists can be understood only in terms of corruption.

By "corruption," I mean to suggest an abuse of office, an arrogance of power, that goes beyond mere scandal. The corrupt acts that Dean recommended were so far removed from integrity, virtue and honor as to shock the conscience. He was proposing a course of action at once vindictive and vile. In those sleezy memoranda from this sleezy little man, the stench becomes unbearable.

"This memorandum," Dean wrote to John D. Ehrlichman on Aug. 16, 1971, "addresses the matter of how we can minimize the fact of our incumbancy in dealing with persons known to be active in their opposition to our administration. Stated a bit more bluntly—how can we use the available federal machinery to screw our political enemies. . .

"After reviewing this matter with a number of persons possessed of expertise in the field, I have concluded that we do not need an elaborate mechanism or game plan; rather we need a good project coordinator and full support for the project. In brief, the system would work as follows:

"Key members of the staff. . .should be requested to inform us as to who they feel we should be giving a hard time. The project coordinator should then determine what sorts of dealings these individuals have with the federal government and how we can best screw them (e.g., grant availibility, federal contracts, litigation, prosecution, etc.). . ."

A few weeks after that memorandum crept up the line, White House Counsel Charles Colson, catching the contagion, worked up a priority list of 20 enemies. As to Morton Halperin: "A scandal would be most helpful here." As to CBS correspondend Daniel Schorr: "A real media enemy," Dean licked his pencil and wrote down 216 names. A year later, on Sept. 11, 1972, Dean sent to IRS Commissioner Johnnie M. Walters a list of 490 "enemies" of the Nixon administration, with a request that their tax returns be specially audited.

One struggles to visualize Dean at his desk. Did the coordinator of the project lick his lips at some especially juicy prospect? Did his fantasies evoke the stammering victims as agents of the IRS began to turn the screws? Did he smile with satisfaction, rub his palms, count the enemies by fives and tens as he alphabetized their names? One wants to vomit.

It is gratifying, of course, that Walters eventually paid not the slightest attention to Dean's request. There is no proof whatever that Richard Nixon initiated these lists or knew of their existence. What is so deeply dismaying is that an atmosphere existed, a state of mind existed, some perhaps unspoken understanding existed, in which this fungus growth could occur. In such a fetid climate, absolute power corrupted absolutely.

Excess Profits Tax Is One Of Meanest Jobs Awaiting Congressmen

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

Writing an excess profits tax will be one of the meanest jobs vacationing Congressmen will face when the national legislature returns to work January 21.

The aim will be to prevent the petroleum industry from reaping windfalls as a result of the "energy crisis". Few people will find serious fault with such an objective, expecially at a time when there is rising suspicion that the shortage is about as much contrived as real.

But there is nothing simple about writing a tax of this sort into law. The oil industry, and the whole energy field, for that matter, must be left with incentive to get on with the job of meeting current and future demands of the nation. This means carefully drafted and well considered legislation.

Politics will complicate the task. This is a Congressional election year, which means that one-third of the senate seats and all House seats are at stake. It will be a season that invites demogogeury. It will be all too easy to broaden what starts out as a tax aimed at petroleum profiteering to cover all business.

In this connection, it should be remembered that petroleum is not the only basic material in short supply in the U. S. The list is long and includes key metals. What this means is that, more and more, the national economy is coming under price pressure from world markets, where price and supply is beyond any control from Washington.

It's a situation which makes for quick and big profits for those skilled in trading in world markets. And the impact of this "profiteering", if it can be called that, will be reflected throughout the economy. Politically, this makes a general excess profits tax attractive—"take the profits out of shortages."

But the U. S. is at a point where it needs tremendous capital investment to develop sources of raw materials and the plant capacity to utilize what is available in the most efficient way. Any hasty tampering with the tax structure could put an unwanted brake on capital outlay.

The excess profits tax experience of the past will be of only limited benefit to Congress in facing the present problem. These were wartime ventures and aimed at a situation that is far different from that of the present.

The policy of the government in World War II, and to a lesser extent in the Korean conflict, was to channel available materials into the war effort and to prevent excess profits, expecially on military contracts. There was little concern about the impact on capital spending. Where war production was involved the government stood ready to see to the financing. The fact that the non-defense side of the economy suffered made no real difference.

Today, though, it is important that everything possible be done to see to it that the energy shortage causes as little disruption as possible. Unnecessary unemployment, for instance, would lead to quick trouble. And so would an unnecessary widening of shortages.

So, if Congress does feel compelled by politics to go beyond the petroleum industry in recapturing excessive profits, it should exercise great caution.

Caution is also essential in handling oil, even by itself. Charges against the industry, growing out of the current situation, plus the industry's record over the years, invite Congress to "get tough."

It's going to be hard for Congress to sort out the facts. The oil industry is "secretive", when it comes to supplying the government with information. This is shown by the fact that no one, in or out of government, seems to know just what the shortfall, real or threatened, amounts to. And over the years, the industry has enjoyed great government favor intended to avoid just the sort of shortage situation we are up against today.

Congress should keep in mind that a few excess profits, here and there, are preferable to a profitless, but shortage-ridden economy.

1946, but the Copa remained a highlight of the international social scene. Orson Welles once tossed the furniture out of the window of his room during an artistic tantrum. Jayne Mansfield created a sensation by "losing" the top to her bikini in the hotel's pool.

Today, the casino is no more. The maitre d' makes do with just a tuxedo. The Golden Room is often closed, because Brazilian entrepreneurs can't match the fees top entertainers get in Las Vegas and London. You don't even have to wear a tie any more to get into the Copacabana Palace dining room.

Copacabana is now a maze of concrete, with competing Brazilian hotels towering over the eight-story Copa. Sheraton, Inter-Continental and Air France-Meridien have begun building luxury hotls in Rio. Hilton has its spot picked out further down Copacabana Beach.

"I believe there will be enough business for everyone," predicted Mariazinha Guinle, the owner and president of the Copacabana Palace and widow of the hotel's founder.

"At many other hotels the guests are treated like numbers. In they come, and out they go," she told a foreign correspondent. "But here, the employes know the guests' personal habits and treat them as though they were in their own homes. Our guests always come back. Why, we've got 15 people on our staff who have been working for us for more than 40 years."

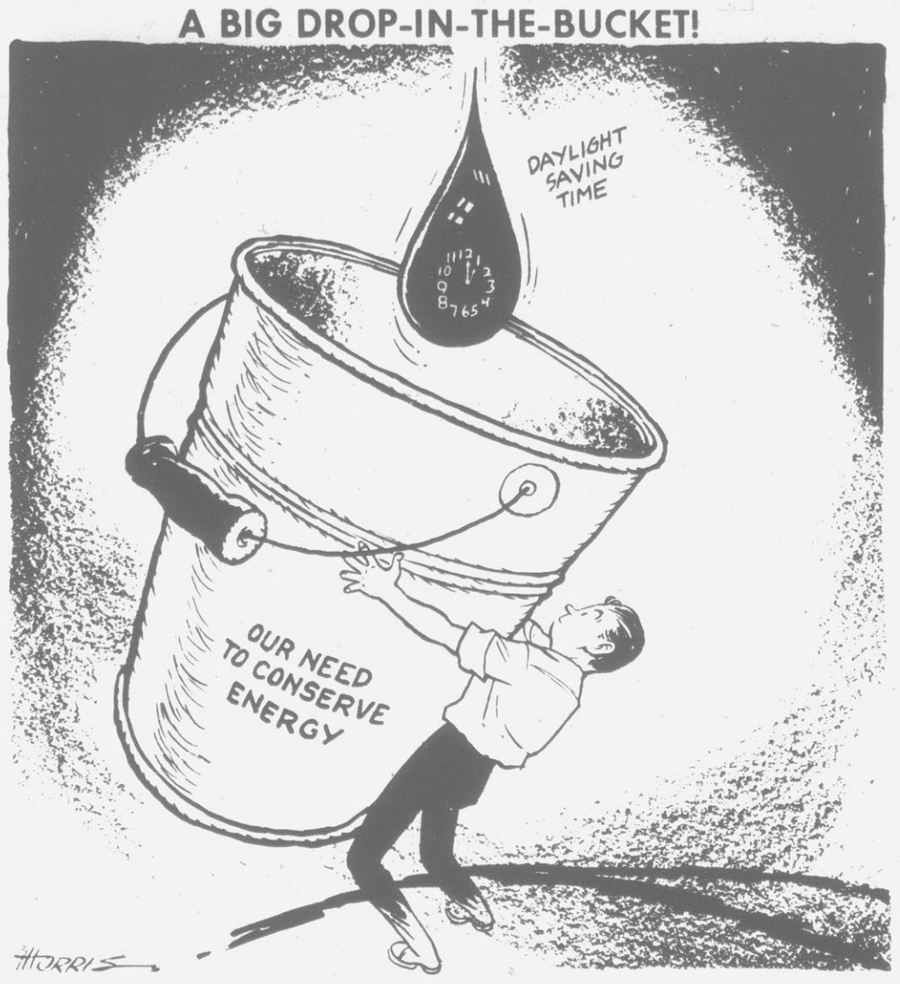

There are persistent reports that foreign hotel chains have offered fabulous sums — the latest story, in a newspaper gossip column, mentioned $30 million — for the Copacabana Palace.

"There are many rumors," Mrs. Guinle said. "But I'm not thinking of selling. In fact, we're repainting the entire hotel, putting in new carpets and a modern telephone switchboard and remodeling the swimming pool."

The Guinles are one of the richest families in Latin America. When the Copa's founder, Otavio Guinle, died in 1953, Mariazinha could easily have spent the rest of her days as a free-spending jet setter.

"My husband wanted me to continue with the hotel," the slender, brown-haired proprietress declared. "I tried it and became interested in the hotel business. Besides, it's better to be doing something useful than just traveling all the time."

A BIG DROP-IN-THE-BUCKET!

Wilson Would Rather See Morgan Stay Aloof

By JOHN KILGO

Henry Hall Wilson, who has been an announced candidate for the U. S. Senate for seven months, says he hopes Robert Morgan and Sam Ervin III decide not to seek the office.

"Bob Morgan is doing a fine job as attorney general," Wilson said. "He's also in the middle of his elected term. I would hope he wouldn't run for the Senate. However, at the time I announced seven months ago, I said I'd take on all comers. No one else has said that yet. And if I didn't think I could win, I wouldn't have announced in the first place."

Wilson says he has picked up a great deal of new support since Sen. Sam Ervin announced that he would not seek re-election. When I asked Wilson to give me some names, he said: "I can't speak for them. They'll be speaking for themselves. But I have gained additional support from all over the state."

When Morgan enters the Senate campaign, there will be attempts made to cast Wilson as a liberal. The Monroe native isn't buying that kind of talk.

"I don't think I could have served as head of the Chicago Board of Trade without recognizing the problems of business people," Wilson said. "I think most people know this to be a fact."

We asked former St. Gov. Pat Taylor how much money it would cost to mount a Senate campaign next year in North Carolina.

"I'm not certain about that," Taylor said, "but I hope the people are in a mood that they're not expecting candidates to spend a great deal of money. I hope in North Carolina that the political races are much less expensive than they have been in the past."

Skipper Bowles spent a large sum of money in defeating Taylor in the 1972 Democratic gubernatorial primary.

Taylor, of course, told us he seriously doubted that he would be a Senate candidate. How would people label him in a race against Morgan and Wilson?

"I never liked labels," Taylor said. "I hope I'm conservative about some things and liberal about some others."

Most people see Taylor as moderate to conservative.

Required Oil Investments Will Need Those Larger Profits

By PETER ARNETT
AP Special Correspondent

Judging by the headlines, everyone seems hurt by the energy crisis except the oil companies.

"Royal Dutch Shell 3rd quarter earnings up 274 per cent," read one headline. Another said, "Gulf Oil up 91 per cent, Exxon up 80."

A Chase Manhattan Bank study of 30 major oil companies showed their profits had risen an average of 59 per cent for the first 11 months of 1973. These companies had earned $6.9 billion in all of 1972 on gross revenue of $106.3 billion. That was 6.5 per cent. "Never before was the earnings proportion so low," the Chase study said.

Last year, in sharp contrast, the oil industry has been making money despite the crisis. How come?

Industry spokesmen say that 1973 profits look good in comparison with 1972 because 1972 was so bad. But they also concede that oil companies hiked both prices and production volume to meet demand in Europe and Japan. While prices and volume increased, costs remained relatively stable until October. Middle East oil, for example, rose from about $2.80 to $5 a barrel in the first 10 months of 1973.

Then the oil producing countries—in the Mideast, Latin America, Southeast Asia and Africa—decided to take more of the earnings for themselves. Between Oct. 16 and Jan. 1, the governments of these countries doubled and tripled taxes and royalties. The oil companies couldn't raise their prices as quickly to cover the new costs.

They also were forced by the Oct. 17 Arab embargo to reduce production in the Mideast, where Europe and Japan get most of their oil.

Rising prices and demand in 1973 particularly benefited international oil companies, such as Shell and Exxon, which operate all over the world, a spokesman for the Cost of Living Council told The Associated Press.

"Shell made a heck of a profit in some places, but much less in the United States," he explained.

The profit mix is likely to change in 1974. Oil produced and sold in this country probably will jump in profit. That's because prices have been rising for domestically produced oil faster than taxes and other costs. The average price of a barrel of American crude rose to more than $5 in December, compared with about $3.40 at the start of the year.

An oil industry analyst at Chase Manhattan estimated that profits on crude oil produced outside the United States rose from 50 cents to $1 a barrel in 1973, but now have declined again to 50 cents or less because of the new taxes and royalties.

Saudi Arabia, the center of Mideast oil, is an example. The operating company there is Aramco, a consortium dominated by American oil companies. On Jan. 1, Aramco began paying the Saudi government about $7.10 in taxes and royalties for each barrel of oil taken from the ground and exported. From Oct. 16 to Jan. 1, the taxes and royalties were about $3.05 a barrel and before Oct. 16 they were well under $3.

Consumers in the United States, Europe and Japan eventually will pay an additional 10 cents or more per gallon for gasoline, heating oil and other petroleum products to cover the latest increases in taxes and royalties. It might be March, however, before prices can be increased that much.

"You wait until the 1974 first quarter profits come out and see what happens to the international companies," says the Chase Manhattan analyst.

The oil industry does not reveal the profit it makes on oil produced and sold within the United States. Oil industry analysts say it's hard to determine the per barrel earnings on domestic oil because of the industry's bookkeeping system.

Whatever the profits last year or this year, industry leaders say they are necessary.

"Many responsible people in public life today do not yet understand the petroleum industry's need for adequate earnings to fund its capital requirements," said Maurice F. Granville, chairman of the board of Texaco, Inc. "Some of them claim that our industry is earning excessive or so-called windfall profits."

John G. Winger, head of Chase Manhattan's energy economics division, says: "Clearly in terms of the world's current and future needs for petroleum, the industry's earnings positively are not excessive—on the contrary, they are still subnormal."

Winger says that between 1970 and 1985, the oil industry must invest $1.3 trillion to meet projected demand. He said $755 billion of this must come from profits.

Platt's Oilgram reports that U.S. companies are planning to invest $14.3 billion in 1974 for exploration and production. This compares with $10.3 billion in 1973. Exxon alone has announced a record $6.1 billion capital budget for 1974, up 73 per cent from the previous high of $3.5 billion. A company spokesman said capital spending could run to $16 billion over the next four years.

Emergency Airlift To Israel Adds Status To C-5

Editors: On Oct. 14, the United States launched a month-long emergency airlift of arms to Israel. UPI Military Writer Edward K. DeLong accompanied the only airlift flight which carried reporters to Israel and later talked with U.S. officials about their plans for the future.

By EDWARD K. DELONG
United Press International

Ominous lightning clouds streaked the horizon. On his green cockpit radar screen, Air Force Maj. Gerard F. Sawicki saw an almost solid band of bad weather dead ahead, just off the Israeli coast.

Somewhere above and behind Sawicki's ammunition-laden C5 Galaxy, maintaining strict radio silence in the predawn blackness, a pair of Israeli jet fighters flew escort for the big U.S. Air Force transport on the final leg of its 7,420-mile flight from Dover Air Force Base, Del.—an unseen reminder this was no routine peacetime mission.

"We haven't needed those escorts yet," said Capt. Fredrick D. Schultz of Jonesboro, Ark., a C5 copilot. "We haven't seen any Arab plane or had any trouble. But it's nice to know the escort is there."

Sawicki, weary after eight hours in the pilot's seat, eased the C5 down to 2,000 feet and banked to the right. The Lynbrook, N.Y., native threaded his way carefully between storm cells until, suddenly, the clouds parted and the lights of Tel Aviv blazed in his windshield.

Touch-Down

"Field in sight!" called Capt. James R. Parker of Kings Mountain, N.C., a second copilot. Minutes later, plunging through one last squall, the huge C5 touched down between the yellow lights marking Lod Airport's 10,000-foot runway.

Four Isreli Army guards carrying stubby Uzi submachine guns surrounded the plane before its engines whined to a stop. Trucks, jeeps and a bus converted into a refreshment stand manned by El Al airline stewardesses rolled up.

Within 10 minutes, a band of Israeli teen-age volunteers—including several American youths who were living on a kibbutz when the war broke out—were trundling out the cargo, 157,564 pounds of 105 mm cannon ammunition strapped to 22 pallets.

The 141st C5 full of replacement arms for Israel had made its delivery. Sawicki's crew did not know it, but theirs was one of the last emergency airlift missions.

Dramatic Example

The Israeli airlift offered a dramatic example of how U.S. weapon stockpiles can be transformed into political and military muscle to aid a friend at wr without American blood being shed.

Many officials, remembering the horrors of direct U.S. intervention in Indochina, saw in the operation a blueprint for future military aid.

The airlift started Oct. 14 and lasted 33 days. The Military Airlift Command (MC) hauled 22,500 tons of arms to Tel Aviv aboard C5s and smaller C141s. Although C5s flew only 145 of the 565 missions, they carried nearly half the total tonnage.

A Soviet arms airlift to Egypt and Syria triggered the U.S. effort. MAC points with pride to the fact that by Nov. 2, the 20th day of the airlift, its average 20 flights per day—a total of 400 flights—had been able to equal the tonnage delivered to the Arabs by more than 900 Soviet flights.

Accomplishing this, however, placed a heavy strain on America's airlift resources. MAC canceled its training support for such units as the 82nd Airborne Division, and hired 148 extra commercial cargo flights at a cost of $6 million to take over missions normally flown by Air Force transports.

Beef Up Transport Fleet

This strain, plus the heightened appreciation of the potential of a global airlift capability, convinced the Air Force it should beef up the transport fleet established in the 1960s.

Made wary by the refusal of most Western European allies to let airlift planes use U.S. bases on their territory, Air Force officials also determined they should prepare to conduct future global airlifts without the use of overseas bases if necessary.

Logisticians, meanwhile, saw the airlift as a sweet triumph for their profession.

"Critics have insisted the U.S. armed forces are weighed too heavily toward logistics and support, and not heavily enough on combat forces," one official said.

"In this instance, despite the fact that the combat forces were alerted in case they should be needed, it was the logistics and support forces who played the larger role."

Know Weakness

The Air Force is looking at a number of ways to correct the known weaknesses in America's existing airlift capability and to develop new capabilities for the future. These include:

—Teaching C5 crews how to refuel their planes in the air. The C5 is the only U.S. transport with refueling capability, but prior to the airlift only 19 MAC crewmen were qualified to perform the maneuver because practicing for it placed unwanted strain on the plane's wings.

—Recommended modification of the C141 so it, too, could be refueled in flight. Without a refueling stop, the C141 payload would have been so reduced during the Israeli airlift that it probably could not have been used. The Air Force has 275 C141s.

—Proposals for beefing up the present U.S. military airlift fleet, either by adding more planes to the Air Force inventory or by offering inducements for commercial carriers to buy more jets that could be easily converted to carry militry cargo.

In the final days of the Middle East crisis, there was strong support within the Pentagon for a proposal to reopen the Lockheed C5 production lines and supplement the existing 79 C5s with additional craft modified to eliminate troublesome wing fatigue problems.

Preferred Airlift Plane

Officials estimated the new model C5, equipped with less complex electronic gear, probably would cost about $35 million per plane—$20 million less than the original version.

The C5 is the preferred airlift plane because of its great size, its compatibility with military equipment, and the fact it can be loaded from the front or the rear. But the estimated $200 million cost of reopening the assembly line, plus congressional pressure against buying any more of these cost-overrun plagued planes, has undercut initial support for this proposal.

More likely plans call for encouraging commercial airlines to buy wide-bodied passenger jets, such as the Boeing 747 or the McDonnell Douglas DC10, modified with oversize'8 dtcargo doors and reinforced floors so they quickly can be converted for airlift use.

Yet another proposal calls for the Air Force to purchase up to 37 747s at cost of perhaps $25 million per plane. MAC already has conducted a dozen cargo flights from California to the Philippines to test a leased 747 carrying militry cargo.

The chief drawback to the 747, officials said, is that its cargo compartment sits high off the ground and requires special loading gear.

"We are looking at a great many possibilities, but nothing has been decided yet," one official said. "One thing is certain, though, and that is the need to increase our airlift capability soon."

Cold statistics tell much of the Israeli airlift story.

It was a Red Ball Express of the sky. The first flight took off just nine hours after the decision was made in Washington to match the Soviet airlift of arms to the Arabs.

At the peak of the operation, code named "Nickel Grass," a new flight touched down in Tel Aviv every hour around the clock.

Crews involved in the airlift flew 8.3 million miles. The bill for their services, calculated at $3,078 per hour for th C5 and $1,017 per hour for the C141, totaled $23.6 million.

Cargoes included 29 M60 heavy tanks, each weighing 100,000 pounds; additional M48 medium tanks, about 99,000 pounds apiece; CH53 Jolly Green Giant helicopters; til sections for A4 attack bombers so the Israelis could repair battle damages rapidly; 175 mm cannon; 155 mm howitzers; fuel tanks; clothing; tents; tires; aircraft engines; medical supplies; decoy chaff; and spare parts of all types.

Return Cargo

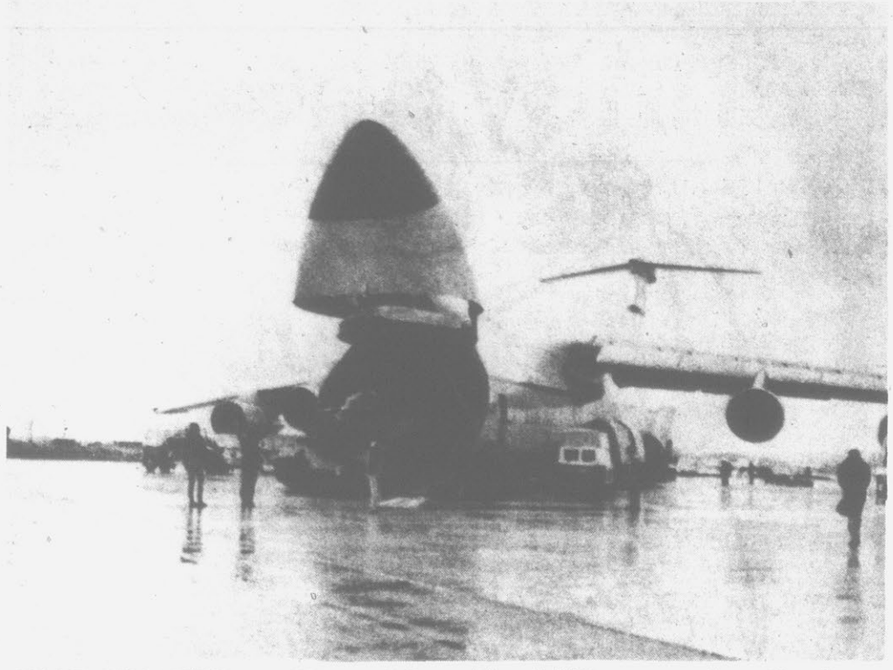

The Defense Department refuses to discuss cargoes flown from Israel to the United States. But Pentagon sources said these bonus return loads included a captured Soviet T62 heavy tank, a Russian-made scissors bridge mounted on a tracked vehicle, and an SA6 missile system.

Many of the lrgest and heaviest items, such as the tanks and the helicopters, could be carried only by the oft-criticized C5, the world's biggest plane.

The Israelis, who were fighting on two fronts when the airlift started, responded to this massive U.S. operation with deep gratitude and with gifts to the crews of roses, silver medallions and food.

And Hochzelt Nira, a Tel Aviv eighth-grader, wrote in one of the hundreds of letters U.S. air crews recived from Israeli school children:

"I want to express my deep thanks to you and to the American government. When I hear every day the aeroplanes that bring military equipment to Israel, I think about you and your friends. And I'm very happy that the Americans are doing so much for Israel."

Californian Hopes Be 'Worm King Of World'

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Bill Halbert aims to be the worm king of the world.

The 29-year-old former novelty salesman is well on the way with his North American Bait Farms.

Raising worms for fishermen's bait is a $1 billion-a-year business nationally.

Halbert's sales topped $100,000 last year and may reach $300,000 this year, he says.

"There are about 25 million licensed fishermen in this country," Halbert says. "It's increasing at nearly two million each year. If each of those new fishermen purchases just $1 in worms during the year, the increase amounts to $2 million. Nice figures."

North American Bait is expanding as fast as it can but is hampered by a shortage of redworms, nightcrawlers and meal worms. Halbert can't get enough nightcrawlers from Canada so he hopes to be the first dealer to import them from South and Central America.

"We ship worms all over the nation and have little trouble," Halbert says. "Occasionally a box will be crushed at the post office but usually there is no problem. They'll live 10 days to two weeks in a crate."

As a means of expanding, Halbert is setting up other people in business as worm farmers. "I need all the breeders I can get," he explains. "Anyone with a backyard and five minutes a day can earn money from worms."

He will set up anyone in the redworm business for $550. "For that they'll get 100,000 worms, compost and instructions about raising the worms," he says. "In five minutes they can learn all they have to know to be successful. All they have to do is build the three-by-eight-foot bin."

North American Bait pays the breeder $1.50 a pound for all the bait-sized worms produced. Theoretically, a 100,000 batch will multiply to 6.4 million worms in a year, if the population doubles every 60 days.

There are about 500 worms to a pound.

However, it takes about six months for a worm to mature and only full-grown worms are marketable.

That's a $2,400 herd in a year, if you sell all the mature adults, leaving you with more than five million worms growing in their bins.

All this from an animal that eats manure.

"The ones who usually laugh about this business," says Halbert, "are the ones who need the money it can earn."

Locator Maps Help Tourists

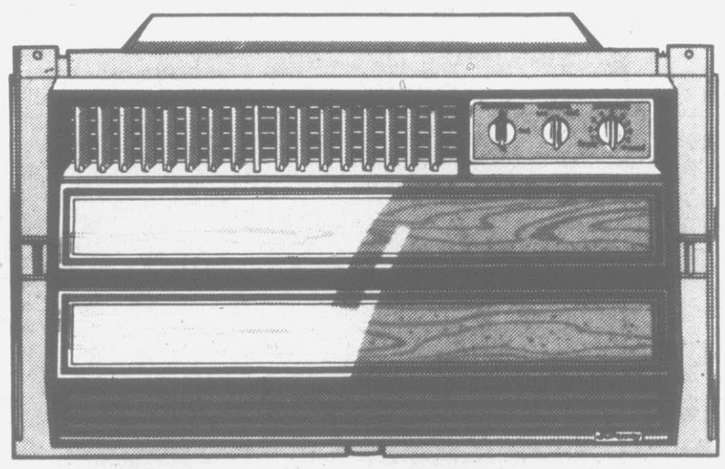

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — Motorists in Indianapolis are getting some help in finding directions, even if they can't always find open gasoline service stations.

Indiana Bell Telephone Co. recently began installing locator maps on transparent plastic in 125 outdoor public coin telephone booths. The maps mark the caller's location and major thoroughfares.

For the tourist, they also highlight points of interest.

REAL ESTATE
CHIT-CHAT
By Dees Whitley

WRONG PRICING LOGIC
If you try to sell your house yourself, how do you set a realistic price? Most people base their price tags on the only facts known to them: original price, cost of improvement, and hoped-for profit. Then they adjust to bring their figure in line with what they think similar houses are bringing. Sounds reasonable, but three of the basic facts are irrevelent, and the fourth is highly dubious. The original price, improvements and hoped-for profit only determine whether you gain or lose, but they do not necessarily have anything to do with the right price to produce a sale. Prices of other houses may give you some clue to the market; but most of the time, you only hear of the asking price. If it's not a realistic price, it won't be the selling price. How then do you set a realistic price? By consulting a Realtor whose business it is to know how much property can bring and will bring. His knowledge of the market is invaluable.

Gold They Mine Today Is Dumped Over The Hill

By JOHN J. SANKO

IDAHO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — The youthful workers in the Edgar Gold Mine, which spewed out high-grade silver and gold before the turn of the century, now worry more about technique than product. The gold gets dumped over the hill.

The mine, located in the Rockies above the mountain town of Idaho Springs, represents one of the toughest college laboratories in the world.

Mining students at the Colorado School of Mines spend 12 Saturdays each semester—for a total of 96 back-breaking, grueling hours—drilling, blasting and mucking in the mine. For their efforts, they get two credit hours of recognition toward their degree and hopefully a much better understanding of what goes on inside a mine.

"We're really not mining anything to get any money out of it," said George Bator, head of the mining department at the school. "We do have some ore in there that would run about $16 to $20 a ton, but it's really not worth mining.

"We don't pay much attention to it (the gold)," he said. "We just throw it over into the dump and let the Cub Scouts and tourists scramble for it. The biggest flake that I ever saw that came out of here was a piece about the size of my fingernail. That probably would have weighed about a fifth of an ounce.

The Colorado School of Mines at Golden has been using the Edgar mine as a laboratory now since 1921. In the 1870s, it produced high-grade silver along with gold, lead and copper. Like most mines in the area, it was virtually abandoned by the end of World War I.

Equality

All of the mining students are required to take the course. Bator, who has been in charge of the mine for the past three years, said girls work alongside boys and do the same rigorous tasks.

In one section of the mine, Bator had Joan Stratton, 21, a student from Palos Verdes, Calif., drilling into rock with a 150-pound jackleg drill. The noise was so loud that shouts could not be heard.

"It takes about three days to recover after a day out here," Miss Stratton said during a break from her chores. "We get some help from the boys, but we have to do it all pretty much on our own."

Miss Stratton said the worst task in the mine was mucking—the strenuous job of picking up blasted rock from the mine floor and loading it into mining crs for removal.

Melind, Smith, 20, a junior from Alvin, Tex., was clearing rock from tracks a few yards away. She agreed the work was hard, but said she enjoyed it, even though she had a minor mishap the week before.

"I put the pressure up too high on the drill and it went up to the ceiling," she said. "I couldn't turn it back down and was just hanging onto the leg."

A boy student wisely shut off the air going into the drill. With things under control, Miss Smith went right back to drilling again.

Dynamiting

While the two young ladies were working in one section of the mine, other students were attempting to drill a mine shaft to the area where they were working. In still another section of the mine, Rex Harnish of Buena Vista, Colo., was setting off two sticks of dynamite to blast loose some rock.

"We do everything in here that you do in an actual mine," Bator said. "By the time they are through here, there won't be anything involving a mine they haven't done.

"Our main reason for this is that we talk about theory and we can draw a picture, but that doesn't mean too much," he said. "When they come in here, they do the actual work. Then they can find out how much is involved, how difficult it is to handle the equipment, and how much a man should be able to do. On that basis then, they won't be fooled very easily."

In addition to work in the mine, the students get quizzes, pop tests and an hour lecture on Saturday mornings before entering the mine. They also must get out to the mine on their own—some 22 miles from the Colorado School of Mines campus in Golden.

Bator calls it the safest mine in the world and says "it's safe because we make it that way."

No Cutback For Yogi Airlines

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — The energy crisis hasn't caused any cutbacks at Yogi Airlines, America's smallest air service. According to the owner, Bill Tarrasky, a University of Rochester student who is also the pilot, reservations clerk and mechanic, Yogi Airlines doesn't even own a plane.

Tarrasky, a flying buff, rents planes from a local flying club whenever he has enough passengers for the same town, and divides the costs and landing fees among them.

"Yogi Airlines has carried more than 40 University of Rochester students since September, but it's a nonprofit operation," says Tarrasky. "It helps me log flying time for my commercial license, and enables students to travel cheaply."

'Blockhouse' Style For Future?

By STEWART POWELL

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — The architectural wave of the future may be buildings that conserve energy such as a solar heated federal office building scheduled to be built here.

The architect of the innovative $6.5 million building, Nicholas Isaak, has included energy saving features in its plans that could cut energy consumption up to 50 per cent. The square blockhouse style structure will have thick walls, one-fifth the windows of a normal office building and a blackened windowless north wall, according to the 59-year-old Isaak.

The interior will be lit selectively with dim hallways and focused lighting in working areas and stairways. The heating system will be a variable flow rather than a variable temperature system, directing more warm air into a cool section rather than raising the building temperature.

Solar cells are planned for the roof to capture heat that will be stored in three 10,000-gallon water tanks beneath the building. Hot water, rather than being heated to 180 degrees only to be cooled by the user, will only be heated to 100 degrees.

"The design innovations were culled from over 500 suggestions by utility companies, manufacturers and other designers," Isaak said. "Many are common sense style changes that come when designers think of energy rather than flair."

Experimental

The General Services Administration and the National Bureau of Standards will monitor the experimental features in the building over the next several years to determine which ones should be included in other buildings. Construction is scheduled to begin this spring with completion sometime in 1975.

Isaak says buildings designed with energy use in mind should be "the wave of the future." For him, there is no conflict between design and function.

"I feel the building will be beautiful as well as functional. If these energy conserving measures are adopted in other buildings, none of them should be detrimental to good design," he said.

While the building includes the recommendations of many energy experts including the New York engineering firm of Dubin, Mindell, Bloome Associates, Isaak takes credit for pulling the plans together.

"Each building that an architect designs is an individual kind of building. It may contain many elements that have been used before, but you always feel you're the father of the building."

New Ground

While plans for the experimental building have been under way for several yers, the current energy crisis has focused interest on the success of the project.

"It's kind of satisfying to be right in the middle of something that is importnt," Isaak said. "Maybe we can produce something that might help. We are breaking new ground and that is always exciting."

Manchester, often cloudy for much of the winter, was selected for the site of the solar heated building because of the wide variations in climate, Isaak said. "I think the government wanted to give these ideas a real good test."

The massive walls and common sense design of the building come in part from Isaak's New Hampshire upbringing. Massive stone walls tumble across the New Hampshire landscape and give it a special character.

"We're all working in a contemporary style, but somehow or other the region puts a stamp on a design. It's philosophical thing. You're raised in a certain area, brought up in certain ways and these feelings find their way into your work," he said.

Yellowstone Park Bear Management Under Attack

By J. PHILLIP MAGERS

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — A noted American wildlife biologist claims the bear management program at Yellowstone National Park has cut the grizzly population about in half.

It's the latest charge from Dr. Frank Craighead, who along with his twin brother, John, has a long-standing feud with the National Park Service over the program started in 1969.

Craighead says their latest report to the park service shows during the years 1970, 1971, and 1972 the population was just about cut in half. "We believe there are somewhere in the neighborhood of 100 grizzlies left," he said.

The latest study, submitted in July, has not been made public by the park service, and is another example of what Craighead calls "harassment" by federal agency of independent research, "unless it agrees with existing policy."

Bears Want Handouts

Craighead, who lives at nearby Moose, Wyo., said he and his brother were not invited to a recent discussion of the program at the park attended by Assistant Interior Secretary Nathaniel Reed. This despite over a dozen years of field research by the two brothers on the grizzlies in the Yellowstone ecosystem.

The management program was designed to return the black and grizzly bears to their natural habitat and reduce human conflict. The bears had grown dependent on garbage dumps and "handouts" from tourists.

Bears were trapped and drugged by rangers who transported them, sometimes by helicopter, to the remote parts of the 3,400-square-mile park.

Grizzlies Vulnerable

"The deaths were due to poor management. The dumps were rapidly closed, and it put the whole population under a stressful situation," Craighead says.

The grizzlies were made more vulnerable to outside hunting, the bears had trouble adjusting agin to their natural ways, he says, and some were killed by drug overdoses and others shot when they repeatedly returned.

"Our information and computer dta indicates that the program is rapidly diminishing the grizzly population," says the biologist who recommended a slower, more controlled program to return the bears to their environment.

Craighead says the park service may eventually accept some of his and his brother's ideas. "I don't think they will announce any change, or admit any error, but there is possibility they may take some of our past recommendations," he says.

Although most of the attention has been directed at the mammoth grizzly, now considered a "rare" species, the black bear apparently caught in much the same situation, although documentation is less available.

Dire Prediction

"If the present management program continues," predicts Craighezd, "it will wipe the grizzlies out by about 1990."

Although the Craigheads have attempted to work within the system to force change in the program, Frank Craighead says now, "I think what is really needed is a congressional investigation."

Park officials don't agree with the Craigheads' dire predictions. In fact, Glen F. Cole, supervisory research biologist, believes his study has shown the program a success.

"The data gathered so far shows that the program has accomplished its goals of returning the grizzlies to natural conditions and reducing injuries to human beings," he says.

Visitors to the park are sometimes disappointed not to find the famous "roadside beggars" of years past, but park officials say both the bears and humans are better off.

Cole says conditions really got out of hand in the 1960s when some bears were living out of garbage dumps near campgrounds. "Some were really rough customers," he says.

Bears have caused relatively few injuries in the park, and there have been only three deaths caused by grizzlies since 1872. Bears had to be shot in some of these incidents.

"This was a terrible price to pay, and we simply didn't think it was worth it," Cole says.

City School Lunch Menu

Lunchroom menus for the Greenville elementary schools during the coming week have been announced as follow:

Monday—hot dogs with chili, french fries, cole slaw, sweet rolls, milk;

Tuesday—spaghetti and meat sauce, tossed salad, fruit juice, french bread, brownies, milk;

Wednesday—oven-fried chicken, whipped potatoes, peas and carrots, rolls, peanut butter delight, milk;

Thursday—chili con carne, cole slaw, rolls, purple plums, milk;

Friday—vegetable soup, sausage pinwheels, cake with pineapple topping, milk.

SEATTLE SUMMER FESTIVAL CHOSEN WINNER

NEW YORK (AP) — The Pacific North West Music Camp in Seattle has been named winner of the $500 prize in the seventh award program honoring summer festivals for performance and promotion of American music.

Honorable mentions went to California's Claremont Music Festival and the James Dick Festival in Austin, Tex.

The competition is sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs and the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers.

Dual Post For Harth

Editor's Note: Violinist Sidney Barth was a guest performer at East Carolina University on November 14, when he appeared in concert as a featured artist in ECU's School of Music Festival '74.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sidney Harth, 44, has been named to the dual posts of concertmaster and associate conductor of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, starting this season.

He is the first musician to hold both positions in the orchestra's history.

In joining the orchestra, Harth takes over the first chair left vacant by the resignation of David Frisina, who will continue to play in the first violins as concertmaster emeritus. He also takes over the podium spot occupied for the past three years by Gerhard Samuel, who has joined the faculty of the California Institute of Arts in Valencia.

Harth comes to Los Angeles from the Carnegie-Mellon University where he has been head of the department of music.

Jolson's Song Source For Japanese Image

NEW YORK (UPI) — When Al Jolson sang "Sonny Boy" more than 40 years ago, he had no way of knowing he was creating an image for a Japanese industrial giant.

According to a report in the Dec. 6 issue of Electronics magazine, Sony took its name from the melody popularized by the late jazz singer.

The magazine said Akio Morita, president of Sony, chose the name because he was searching for a short word that would sound alike in all languages.

Morito said the company first thought of using three catchy initials but abandoned this strategy because too many other organizations had done so.

"Going to four letters was the next logical step," Morita said.

He said he spent considerable time studying dictionaries for a name that would resemble "sound" or "sonic."

Then he found "Sonny Boy" among some song titles.

This led Morita to pick the name "Sony," because "we were the sonny boys of our industry.

Earl Scruggs Revue Coming To Minges

One of the world's outstanding banjo players, Earl Scruggs, will be presented in concert on Thursday, January 17, at 8:00 P.M. The concert will be held in Minges Coliseum.

The Earl Scruggs Revue consits of Scruggs, playing both banjo and guitar; three of his sons—Randy, who plays lead guitar; Gary, who plays electric bass and harmonica; and Steve, who plays rhythm guitar; and also Jody Maphis, on drums; and Jack Graves, who plays the dowbro.

Many critics today say that what the Earl Scruggs Revue is playing is a close to rock as it is to Bluegrass. Scruggs admits, "After all, the young fresh ideas mixed in with the old ideas that I had makes for interesting music." His long haired sons are, of course, a great influence on their music. His sons, much like the quiet, easy going, father, let their fingers do the talking.

Since the group formed in 1970 the appearances has been more "uptown", but their Nashville roots are still very evident. Not only do Earl and his three sons play in the band, but his wife, Louise, handles all the business affairs of the Revue. This is indeed a family affair, one of a kind in the music business.

Tickets for this concert may be obtained at the East Carolina Central Ticket Office, Box 2731, East Carolina University, Greenville, 27834. Public tickets are $3.00.

Mail orders will be taken in advance, but will not be mailed by return mail until after January 10.

THE EARL SCRUGGS REVUE. . .is coming to Greenville at Minges Coliseum on January 17 for a one-time performance. Tickets are now available, at the box office or my mail.

Book News

From Sheppard Memorial Library

By LOUISE WILKERSON

Sheppard Library has several witty new books to help pass the January lull, after the high spirits of the holiday season.

Art Buchwald's new book I NEVER DANCED AT THE WHITE HOUSE is at the top of this list. Buchwald, the nation's foremost sataritst and syndicated newspaper columnist, now zeroes in with irreverent zest on such subjects as "The Watergate Saga," "Don't Call It Pot," and "The Poems of Richard Nixon." Shredly biting, Buchwald again produces a genuinely hilarious book sure to put off an invitation to the White House for years to come.

In the same vein, Erma Bombeck, another syndicated journalist, in her new book, turns her delightful wit to the "daily domestic scene," where the chapter titles are proof of the fun to come..."We Have Measles...It Must Be Christmas," and "Talk To Me — I'm Your Mother." I LOST EVERYTHING IN THE POST-NATAL DEPRESSION is Erma Bombeck in top form, commenting on everything from weight watching to hostile children.

"The Ph.D. has become a license to steal" asserts Professor X, "inasmuch as the position of college instructor demands little work and less intelligence." Professor X is the author of a drolly humorous new book entitled THIS BEATS WORKING FOR A LIVING; THE DARK SECRETS OF A COLLEGE PROFESSOR. Students will read the book with glee, professors will fume, and the taxpayer discover why "he had to hock his future to pay for Junior's sheepskin." Professor X criticizes, among other things, salaries, textbooks, academic committees, and himself.

Another cleverly-written and exceptionally useful addition is Barbara Curry's OKAY, I'LL DO IT MYSELF. With the help of this well illustrated book the woman of the house will no longer have to beg friend, husband or superintendent to fix dripping faucets, refinish furniture, hook up T.V. antennas etc. The author deals first with tools, what they are and how they are used, then concentrates on how to make a place livable, giving simple instructions on taking apart, putting together and replacing almost anything. The author also presents inexpensive ways to brighten up, cover over, and rejuvenate the whole house or apartment.

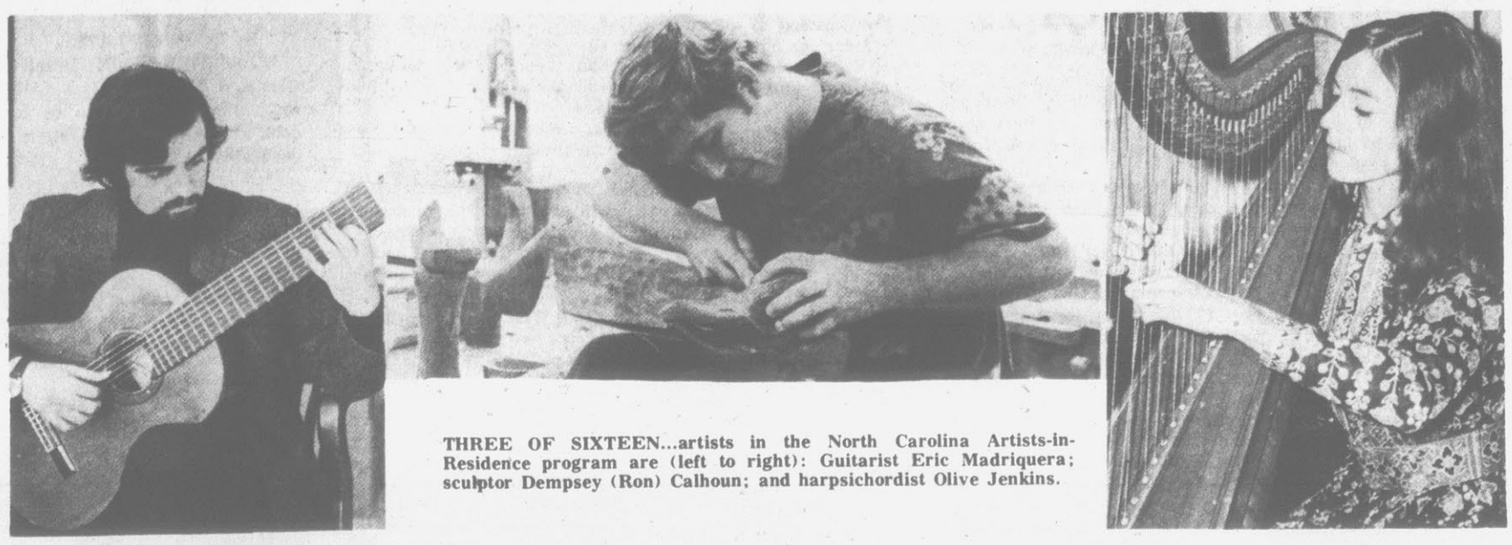

Artists-In-Residence Program Grows

North Carolina's Artist-in-Residence program has tripled in size for the 1974 season with an expansion that includes two dramatists, one craftsman and a photographer-printmaker.

Started in September 1971 as a Musician-in-Residence program, the current number of people involved, totaling 16, is triple the number, five persons, previously involved.

Music is still the mainstay of the Artists-in-Residence program for the Tar Heel state, with 12 music makers including six guitarists, two harpsichordists, two pianists, a harpist and a lutist.

The 16 people in the program work at community colleges or technical institutes full time nine months during the year. The artists give concerts and lecture-demonstrations to public school groups, churches and civic clubs. Though not allowed to teach regular classes, an artist may give a lecture-demonstration to a scheduled class. Dramatists also may organize and direct community theater, children's theater and experimental theater workships.

THREE OF SIXTEEN...artists in the North Carolina Artists-in-Residence program are (left to right): Guitarist Eric Madriquera; sculptor Dempsey (Ron) Calhoun; and harpsichordist Olive Jenkins.

Among technical institutes and community colleges throughout the state taking part are Lenior Community College, Cartaret Technical Institute, Craven Community College and Coastal Carolina Community College in Jacksonville.

The single craftsman chosen for the program is Dempsey (Ron) Calhoun, a recent graduate of the School of Art, East Carolina University.

Local Artists In Mint Show

Three North Carolina artists—two faculty members of East Carolina University and an ECU graduate—are having a multi-media exhibition opening in Gallery 501 at the Mint Museum of Art in Charlotte today.

Mel Stanforth and Gerald Johnson, both printmakers and both on the faculty of the School of Art, ECU; and Paul Hartley, an ECU graduate now living in Winston-Salem and painting full time, will be showing prints, drawings and paintings.

A reception for the three artists is being held at the Mint beginning at 2 o'clock and lasting until 5 o'clock this afternoon.

As an added feature to this multi-media exhibition the three artists, who have become involved with exploratory film-making, plan to present some of their films at today's opening.

The show will continue on view in Gallery 501 through January 24.

Writers Meeting

The first meeting of the Greenville Writers Club for 1974 will take place Tuesday, January 8, beginning at 8:00 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Raynor, 2106 Pendleton Street.

Persons interested in writing, other than poetry, are invited to attend and to bring manuscripts to be read.

Winter Decorations From Nature

After Christmas decorations are taken down, home decorations can turn to nature to bring a bright note in January. Miniature moss gardens, long used during winter months in eastern North Carolina in lieu of cut flowers, are easily made. All that is required is a shallow tray of light wood or ceramic. These can be rectangular, oval, circular or free form. Clumps of various types of ground mosses are taken up with a small amount of earth left attached. To permit occasional watering to keep the garden fresh longer, the tray should be lined with tinfoil or plastic before fitting the moss in. For added color, clusters of bracket fungus can be inserted between the moss. Other ideas for winter decoration shown here include fluted sweet gum branches and guinea feathers placed in bases. Also effective are green briar vines, reeds and bare branches with interesting shapes and bark textures. (Reflector photos by Jerry Raynor)

A Compact Guide Book To Tracing Civil War Ancestors

Tracing Your Civil War Ancestor. By Bertram Hawthorne Groene. Winston-Salem, John F. Blair, Publisher, 1973. 124 pps, illustrated. $5.95.

There's always room for one more "how to" book and history professor Dr. Bertram Groene, formerly an instructor at East Carolina University, has come up with a "guide" that will be helpful to anyone who has ever toyed with the idea of rounding up information on a Civil War ancestor.

Since Tracing Your Civil War Ancestors is basically a guide book, Groene outlines the practical steps from initial interest to acquiring full information from records of a century ago. The more information a person has to start on, naturally, the easier it will be to dig up additional information. . .and success is not always guaranteed.

Most important in the beginning stage is an identifying name and regiment. This meager information, Groene asserts, is enough for "those with the know-how of Civil War research (to). . .open the door and unlock the past."

The know-how is what this small volume is about. Happily, Groene intersperses his instructions with examples that gives the book a distinctive flavor that will appeal to history lovers without any intention of uncovering the past history of an ancestor.

Groene cites several examples of his own finds—a sword or pistol bearing a brief inscription leading to the unfolding of the fascinating life story of men who fought in America's most tragic war.

The real value of Tracing Your Civil War Ancestor lies in the thoroughness of listing of basic sources. Addresses of state and federal archives; universities and libraries that have complete sets of indexes to Civil War military service records; forms to ask for in requesting information and instructions on how to complete them; source books for regimental histories and rosters; source books for identifying Civil War weapons and accoutrements; and a selected bibliography of books that will furnish a researcher with good leads—are among the listings provided.

Groene does not promise a successful search in every instance. Even with what should normally be sufficient information to turn up more data, there are times, he cautions, when a searcher must face the fact "that records do get lost by the tens of thousands. If you cannot find information on your soldier, it does not mean that he never existed. It means only that he was, historically speaking, shot dead in the records office. So you must brace yourself for occasional failures and dead ends."

Anyone who might have entertained the notion of someday getting around to tracing out the history of an ancestor who served in the Civil War would be wise to start out with a copy of Groene's book. Compacted here is everything you need to know on how to get started.

War Fails Halt Bridge Traffic

By ROBERT SLATER

ALLENBY BRIDGE, Israeli-Occupied Jordan (UPI) — Ali Muhammed Ali used to be a cook at the British consulate in Jerusalem. Now, at 57, the Israeli Arab is retired.

He has had time to visit relatives in Amman, the Jordanian capital, twice this year.

He is one of an average of 700 Arabs who every day cross the Allenby bridge over the Jordan River between the Israeli-occupied west bank and the kingdom of Jordan. The visits are hardly routine.

"I visited my brothers and sisters in Amman," Ali said, "but now I'm glad to be back."

He rested in the open-ir wood shed near the bridge, not far from Jericho, while Israeli guards checked his bags. A soldier removed his wooden walking stick.

Ali dismissed the soldiers' curiosity, pulled on his gray-white mustache, and moved his four-year-old daughter closer. He looked tired.

Israeli authorities point to Arabs like Ali as symbols of the continuing normalcy across the Israeli-Jordanian frontier. Jordan entered the October Middle East war, but indirectly by sending troops to help Syria.

This bridge and the Adam Bridge farther north stayed open throughout the war and its aftermath, except for a brief period one day.

Eight deportees from the west bank tried unsuccessfully to cross the bridge to return home in mid-December. Israeli guards stopped them and closed the span for five hours because of a demonstration protesting the move.

Despite the closure, officials said 783 persons crossed the bridge that day nd 890 the next.

During the war, traffic across the bridge dropped 40 per cent, reflected in the total number of crossings: 14,048. In November, military authorities said 18,286 persons used the bridge, mostly Arabs.

One million Arabs crossed the Allenby and Adam bridges last year, officials say.

"Things are about normal now," one officer said pointing to the traffic on the span under a morning sun. "You couldn't tell there had been a war."

Old Theater Given New Lease On Life

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — What can be done with an old theater building in a business district, short of tearing it down for redevelopment? One answer is conversion of the structure into a minimall with 13 stores and a restaurant lounge. In Beaver Falls, it was a $250,000 venture undertaken by three businessmen.

The minimall, first of its type in the area, opened in December with accolades from other business people and customers alike, pleased with conversion of an old eyesore into something attractive and useful. In addition, it gave an aging business district a shot-in-the-arm.

The first step was acquisition at a reasonable price of the property — which was closed as a movie theater in November, 1960. The second step was borrowing a wad of money.

Lining up prospective tenants was necessary, too, such as a fabrics shop, a bakery, a toiletries-bath shop, clothing shops, tobacco and candy store, costume jewelry-cosmetics shop, paint, wallpaper and decorating store, photo shop, carpet shop, an ice cream parlor and a sporting goods store.

Conversion of the theater building into a minimall involved tearing out much of the first floor and building a shell within the structure. There were 1,098 tons of fill used to make the first floor level and 110 cubic yards of concrete poured.

The Spanish motif of the former theater — named the Granada — was preserved and enhanced in the conversion. The marquee was retained and redecorated in Spanish stucco and the front of the building was cleaned.

Promotion helps, too — just as it did in the theater business. When the minimall opened, the developers had a 61-foot cake stretched across the property's frontage.

Pirates Down Lehigh; Rose Handed Loss

Rampant Rally Falls Four Short

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

Rose High made two valiant efforts to overtake the Northeastern Hawks last night but both proved futile as the Rampants fell by a mere four points, 80-76.

The first rally came in the first half as the Rampants battled back from 17 points down, 35-18, to cut the gap to 44-36 at intermission. Northeastern ran the lead back out to as much as 20, 60-40, but Rose rallied again but fell inches short of the win.

Rose never led in the game but tied the Hawks once. That came in the opening minutes after Martin Towe tapped in a rebound to open the scoring for Northeastern. Bobby Dough knotted it at 2-2 for Rose but Towe scored again and a bucket by Bobby Vaughn gave Northeastern the lead for keeps.

Tyrone Taft sank a shot from downtown for Rose, 6-4, but it was the closest the Rampants got in the quarter. Vaughn added a free shot and a field goal by Bernard Garrett to increase the spread to 11-4. Two more charity shots and a pair of buckets put up a 13-point margin, 17-4. The period ended, 23-8.

Ray Scott drove in for a layup to start the second period for the Hawks and after they moved out to 35-18, Rose started to battle back. Behind Ronnie Barrett the Rampants rallied to close to 38-30 but two free shots by Scott put the gap back at 10. Barrett and Linwood Brown scored for Rose pulling the team to within four, 40-36, only to see Scott sink two additional free throws and a field goal to end the half, 44-36.

Donnie Shields brought the Rampants up to within six, 44-38 at the start of the second half with charity throws but Northeastern blew in eight straight points to run the lead back out to 14, 52-38. Juan Johnson's bucket with 5:10 left in the period made it 54-38.

After Shields made a pair of free throws. Scott, Johnson and Andy Beacher all scored for Northeastern making it 60-40, the biggest spread of the night. Rose outshot Northeastern, 12-10 in the last half of the third period and trailed by 70-52 going into the home stretch.

Barrett opened the fourth with a tap-in after a missed Rampant shot on which Jimmy Banks was called for goaltending. It was matched by a follow-up shot by Towe. Rose struck back with seven quick points. Barrett scored the first two on lay-ups after Rampant steals and Bynum added a free throw. Taft scored on a fast break bringing the lead down to 11, 72-61.

After matching baskets, the Hawks scored twice to run it back up to 15, 78-63, but got only one more basket in the game. In the meantime, Rose was scoring 13 points.

Barrett hit on a lay-up and took a feed from Taft on a steal to make it 78-67 with 3:03 left. He added a free shot and after Banks scored the last Northeastern field goal, Taft hit from way outside and Bynum from the baseline to narrow the gap to eight, 80-72. Taft drove in and scored after a steal but moments later he fouled out.

Lindberg Morris hit a jumper from outside and seconds later Bynum drew a foul from Towe with :04 left. If he could have made them and the Rampants could have then stole the ball on the inbounds play they might have had a chance to go into overtime. Bynum missed the first of the one-and-one opportunity, however, and Northeastern came down with the rebound which ended the game.

Although the Rampants were dominated in a big way by height, they put up a good effort. Barrett led all scoring with 27 and Bynum had 17. Scott had 18 for Northeastern and Vaughn had 16. The Hawks were led by Banks with 21.

The J.V. game was like a dieing fish; the lead flopped back and forth so many times we lost count. Northeastern won it, 72-68 only after having the fight of their lives to get it. The Baby Hawks inched in front, 13-10, in the first frame but Rose went on top at the half, 34-30.

The lead stayed with the Rampant Cubs in the third, 55-54 but NE rallied in the fourth with 18 points to Rose's 13 to win it.

Williams and Arnette Shiner each had 18 for NE, James Lee had 14 and Delbert Powell had 11. Mike Brewington led Rose with 18, Walston had 12 and Harry Pair 10.

Ashorn Sparks Bucs To 60-47 Tourney Win

FT. MEYERS, Va. — East Carolina University, playing uninspired ball, gained a 60-47 victory over winless Lehigh last night to take the consolation championship of the Presidential Classic.

The Pirates, who had blown a six-point lead in the final 40 seconds of the first round, had to settle for the third place slot in the tourney while hosting George Washington battled American University for the title. American beat East Carolina, 82-75, in an overtime Friday (see story on Page B-2).

Gregg Ashorn, making his first starting appearance for the Pirates, seemed to be the only Buc on target for the night. He was the lone Buc to break into double figures in the game, finishing with 17 points.

East Carolina's Gregg Ashorn was named to the All-Tournament team selected following the conclusion of the Presidential Classic.

Joining the Pirate were two players each from finalists George Washington and American University. From GW were Keith Morris and Mike Halloren, while Wilbur Thomas and Johnny Lloyd of American were picked.

Lloyd, who led his team to a 62-60 win in the championship, was named the Most Valuable Player in the Tournament.

The junior college transfer hit on eight of 12 shots from the floor, one of the few Bucs to turn in a good shooting performance for the evening. He added one free throw to make his total.

Overall, the Pirates shooting was not good. They made just 37.3 per cent of their shots, including a 30.3 mark in the first half. Lehigh made good on just 30.4 per cent including 23.2 per cent in the second half.

The free throw shooting, which cost the Bucs the game on Friday night, didn't improve much. Lehigh hit 62.5 per cent from the stripe, while the Bucs were only 58.8 per cent.

The turnovers were even, 22-22, while East Carolina held a 47-37 edge in the rebounding. Ashorn was the high man in this too, pulling down nine for the Bucs, while Robert Geter had seven, and Nicky White and Roger Atkinson each had six.

The Pirates, who seemed to be still shell-shocked by their stunning loss on Friday night, appeared to go through the motions for most of the game, not breaking it open until midway through the second half.

Lehigh got the opening lead on a basket by Fran Lynam, but Ashorn hit to tie it up. The Engineers went back ahead, 4-2, and 6-4 before gaining their biggest lead of the evening, 8-4 on a drive by Rich Price, who hit 10 of Lehigh's first 14 points.

East Carolina got back into an 8-8 tie with Geter getting two in a row, then Ashorn tossed in a loose ball for a 10-8 Pirate lead, their first of the night.

Lehigh came back to tie it up four straight times before Buzzy Braman got a free throw and Tom Marsh hit a pair to run the Bucs out by three, 19-16.

But the Engineers fought back and after Price hit two in a row, Paul Brandenburg made two in a row to give them a three-point edge, 24-21 with 1:07 left in the half.

White made two free throws, however, and Geter hit with seven seconds left to allow the Pirates to enjoy a 25-24 halftime lead.

Ashorn opened the second half with a basket and after Price hit a free throw, Donnie Owens got a bucket for a 29-25 lead. But Lehigh tied it one last time, as Doug Kistler and Price each scored for a 29-29 deadlock.

Geter drove in for a basket, and Ashorn hit two straight. White added a layup and the Bucs had run up a 37-29 lead as the half neared its midpoint.

Lehigh cut it back to four, but East Carolina pulled away again, as Ashorn hit two in a row, Braman made two at the stripe, and Al Edwards added one free throw. That made it 46-35 with 7:45 remaining.

After an exchange of shots, Larry Hunt raised the margin to 50-37 with just over five minutes left.

Then, with under two minutes to go, a three-point play by Edwards ran the lead to 58-43, the widest margin of the night for the Bucs. Rich Zajac hit a pair of baskets around one final one by Ashorn in the closing minute to set the final score.

The victory was the first on the road for the Pirates, who had lost their first five there. They are now 4-5 overall, but take a victory into their third Southern Conference game of the year next Wednesday at Robbins Center at the University of Richmond.

While Ashorn was the only Pirate to hit double figures, Price was the only Engineer, hitting a game high 19 points.

Following the Richmond game, the Pirates remain on the road, visiting VMI on Saturday. They return home the following Monday to meet Appalachian State University.

North Carolina, No. 4 nationally, got 36 points from Ed Stahl and Darrell Elston to trim Duke 84-75 in the third place game. The tournament matches Atlantic Coast Conference teams in extra games that do not count in the ACC standings.

N.C. State, now 7-1, trailed Wake Forest 24-16 before scoring a dozen points in two minutes, mostly on layups after steals. The ballhawking State Wolfpack led at the half 51-33 and was in command the rest of the way.

Burleson was aided by David Thompson's 20 points and 17 by Mo Rivers.

Wake Forest, now 7-2, was led by Tony Byers with 18 points and Mike Parrish and Cal Stamp, each with 14.

Stahl scored 20 points, his season high, and Elston 16 as North Carolina won its eighth game in nine starts while handing Duke its fourth loss against five victories.

Twelve of Stahl's points enabled the Tar Heels to lead 40-37 at halftime as they wiped out a one-point Duke lead with a 10-0 spree.

Elston put North Carolina ahead for good at 52-51 to start a 20-6 surge in which he contributed seven points.

Chris Redding's 18 points and 15 by Bob Fleischer, 13 in the last half, led Duke.

Final Shot Tops Marquette

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP)—South Carolina's Brian Winters hit a 20-foot jump shot with two seconds left to upset sixth-ranked Marquette 60-58 Saturday.

The Warriors and the Gamecocks had battled to a 58-58 tie with 3:14 left in the game and the score remained that way until the game-winning shot by Winters,who collected 17 points for the afternoon.

It was South Carolina's 28th consecutive win at Carolina Coliseum. The last time the Gamecocks lost on their home court was to Marquette two years ago.

Marquette, previously undefeated at 10-0, trailed South Carolina 32-25 at the half. Then, sparked by Earl Tatum's 21 points, Marquette knotted the game with a little over three minutes remaining.

The comeback by Marquette was aided by a full court press at the beginning of the second half which held down the Gamecock offense.

Tie For Golf Lead

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller battled wind, rain, hail and cold for a 70 and moved into a share of the second-round lead in the weather-plagued Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament Saturday.

"If we get rain all day, were dead," said Jack Tuthill, tournament director for the Tournament Players Division of the PGA and the man in charge of this event.

"The courses are soaked now. They can't take any more water there just isn't any place for it to go."

"Virtually unplayable," said Jack Nicklaus, who has won the last two Crosby events and who was the pre-tournament pick to win this event that offers $215,000 in total prizes.

Nicklaus had a 73 and was well back in the field at 147.

Lanny Wadkins, a two-time winner last season and one of the outstanding players on the tour, had a 73 and was tied with Grier Jones at 140, two strokes off the pace.

Jones had a 69.

Hale Irwin, with a 71, was at 141 and the group at 142 included Barney Thompson, Dave Glenz, Gary Saunders and John Jacobs. Jacobs had the best round of the day a 68 at Spyglass Hill.

Special Nights Planned By ECU

East Carolina University is planning several special nights during the remaining basketball season.

Four different types of events are planned, with special ticket prices for each.

The first of the nights will be a "Group Night," to be observed first on Monday, January 14, when the Pirates entertain Appalachian State. Any group or organization of 25 people or less can buy seats together for a flat fee of $25. Larger groups will be charged $1 for each additional person.

Group nights will also be held on Monday, January 28 for Furman and Saturday, Feb. 23 for The Citadel.

The second of the specials will be a family night, to be held first on Wednesday, January 23, when the Bucs entertain St. Peter's. A family of four can buy seats together for just $4. Each additional member of the family can be admitted for just $1 each.

Two other family nights are planned, on Wednesday, February 6, against Buffalo State, and Wednesday, Feb. 20, against Richmond.

Ladies night will be observed on Saturday, January 26, when the Bucs host Virginia Military. All ladies, regardless of age, will be admitted free to the game.

High School night will be held on Saturday, Feb. 9, when William and Mary visits East Carolina. Any organized school athletic team under supervision will be admitted free as a group to that game.

East Captures 24-14 Victory In Hula Bowl

By BOB BARR
Associated Press Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Norris Weese of Missisippi came off the bench to inspire a bruising running attack as the East downed the West 24-14 Saturday in the Hula Bowl.

Weese scampered 34 yards for the East's first touchdown and directed two other scoring drives. The fleet 195-pound signal caller, who ran for 92 yards and passed for 35 yards, was named the game's outstanding offensive player.

Heisman Trophy winner John Cappelletti of Penn State and Jim Jennings of Rutgers had one-yard touchdown runs for the East and Chuck Ramsey of Wake Forest kicked a 19-yard field goal.

Ben Malone of Arizona State accounted for all the West scoring with a 33-yard pass reception and a seven-yard run.

The heavier East team contained the West within its own 30-yard line in the first half, but the offense didn't start moving until Weese replaced starter David Jaynes of Kansas.

Weese directed a 49-yard drive to the West one-yard line, but lost a fumble there to West linebacker Tom Poe of Washington State.

The East got the ball again on the 36 after a short West punt. One play later, Weese got a key block from tackle John Hicks of Ohio State, reversed his field to the left and scored from 34 yards out.

Weese had a 26-yard run in the next East drive which was capped Ramsey's 19-yard field goal.

Despite losing the statistical battle, the West capitalized on two big plays to keep the outcome in doubt until the final minutes.

Daryl McGallion of Houston intercepted a Weese pass at the East 46 early in the third quarter and Arizona State's Danny White hit Malone for the touchdown six plays later.

Malone's other touchdown came one play after Steve Odom returned a kickoff 93 yards early in the fourth quarter.

Fullback Ed Shuttlesworth of Michigan was the workhorse in the East's ball control game, carrying 22 times for 84 yards. Cappelletti, who had only one practice with the team, ran 46 yards.

The West's defensive unit, which was on the field for nearly three-fourths of the game, had its proudest moment in the second quarter. Lucious Selmon of Oklahoma and Levi Stanley of Hawaii teamed to stop Shuttlesworth twice from the one-yard line, then Poe pounced on Weese's fumble on a third down play.

Selmon, who had 13 tackles and five assists while playing three quarters, was named the outstanding defensive player.

He sacked Jaynes twice in the opening quarter, and the East relied on its ground game the rest of the way. The East pounded out 257 yards on the ground and ran 81 offensive plays to the West's 33.

It was only the fourth of the 28 Hula Bowls which was divided between East and West. The East has won three and tied one.

The Paladins went ahead at the 13:49 mark in the first half on a layup by Clyde Mayes. Furman built a whopping 30-point edge by the half, and kept the Mountaineers at least 23 points down for the rest of the game.

Lucas Sparks Maryland Win

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Sophomore John Lucas rallied third-ranked Maryland late in the first half and sparked the Terps to an 89-60 victory over Clemson Saturday in a regionally televised Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game.

The Terps, who lost their season opener to top-ranked UCLA by one point, now have won eight in a row.

Clemson, now 7-3, battled the favored Terps on fairly even terms until four minutes remained in the first half when the Terps led 27-24.

Dye At Work Building His Staff; Recruiting

Pat Dye began his fulltime duties as football coach at East Carolina University Friday, with a lot of work ahead of him in organizing a new staff and recruiting for the coming year.

Dye, named in mid-December to replace Sonny Randle, came to East Carolina from the University of Alabama, where he handled the linebackers. He was late in coming to the job because of his committment to the Crimson Tide's bid to win the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans on New Year's Eve. That turned into a victory for the unbeaten Irish of Notre Dame, snapping Alabama's string of 11 games this year.

Dye was asked his assesment of the Sugar Bowl game. He said, "I just wish that Al Hunter (former Rose High School running back) was at East Carolina instead of Notre Dame. It's hell to have to play a game and have your neighbor beat you. He's a great back and is going to be a super player for Notre Dame."

Hunter returned a kickoff a record 93-yards in the Sugar Bowl game to help Notre Dame gain the victory. Just a freshman, most of his career with the university still lies ahead of him.

"I think it's too bad when there are good football players like Hunter who go off to other schools. We've got to try and keep players like him in this state," Dye said, "preferably here at East Carolina."

Dye has several of his assistants already at work. They include Henry Trevathan, the lone holdover from the Randle staff, and Frank Orgel, a graduate assistant at Florence State last year. Ben Grieb, a former Pirate gridder, and an assistant at Louisiana State last year, has not been officially announced, but is at work.

"I've got most of the staff made up now," Dye said, "but most of them have not been officially approved by the administration yet. This should be a formality, and the staff should be complete and official in four or five days."

Dye added that he was "tickled to death with the ones he has recruited to be on his staff."

The main job that lies ahead of the staff is the assesment of those players on hand and the recruiting of 30 incoming people (the NCAA limit set begining this year). As of Friday afternoon, no one has officially signed with the university.

"We have a number who have told us that they were coming, and we hope to start signing them very shortly," Dye said. "It's quite a pleasure to see how many have waited to talk with us before they make a committment. If we get our share, we should do all right."

Apparently, however, many of the North Carolina players are escaping the Pirates. "We would like to get as many North Carolina boys as we can. It means more when you go up the road to play your neighbors, when they're North Carolina boys, too," Dye said, referring to State and Carolina.

"I didn't realize that we were playing so many of the ACC schools in the future," he said. "And if we are, we'd better have the troops to do it with and not be embarrassed."

Dye said one of his first concerns in recruiting is backs, since he plans to run the wish-

Pirates Fall, 82-75, In Overtime Game

Neither Tactic Brought A Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Coach Alex Hannum has tried having his Denver Rockets run against the New York Nets; that strategy resulted in a pair of lopsided defeats.

So Friday night he decided he'd slow things down. And while the Nets couldn't run away and hide, they still managed a comfortable 109-92 American Basketball Association victory.

"I wasn't going to have that happen again and have us disgraced," said Hannum, referring to Denver's two previous losses to New York.

"Thus, the game plan was to walk the ball up the floor. It doesn't make for a beautiful game, but we had no alternative."

The tactic worked for a while and the Rockets even came as close as six points in the final period behind Dave Robisch. But the Nets, led by John Roche's eight points, pulled away at the end with a 20-9 tear.

In other ABA games, the Kentucky Colonels whipped the Memphis Tams 125-102 and the San Antonio Spurs beat the San Diego Conquistadors 112-105.

Nets Coach Kevin Loughery said Hannum's tactics did not come as a surprise. "After what happened before," he said, "we expected this kind of game from them."

Julius Erving scored 34 points and pulled down 10 rebounds to pace the Nets. Bill Paultz added 18 points and 15 rebounds.

Mike Green led Denver with 16 points and Marv Roberts added 15.

Colonels 125, Tams 102

Kentucky's two big men, center Artis Gilmore and forward Dan Issel, combined for 54 points to power the Colonels over Memphis. Issel had 29 and Gilmore 25.

The Colonels broke out to a 13-2 lead in the first four minutes, and the Tams could not come closer than eight points the rest of the way.

Substitute Jim Ard was high scorer for Memphis with 21 points.

Spurs 112, Q's 105

Bill Averitt and Jim Silas scored 33 points apiece for San Antonio, but it was a driving layup by center Swen Nater with 2:18 to go that finally put the Spurs in front at 101-100.

Travis Grant scored 23 points and Dwight Lamar 20 for San Diego.

In the National Basketball Association, it was Philadelphia 78, New York Knicks 75; Capital 94, Cleveland 91; Detroit 106, Boston 101; Kansas City-Omaha 122, Phoenix 97; Los Angeles 114, Golden State 111; Houston 119, Portland 113, and Seattle 103, Chicago 101 in overtime.

FT. MEYERS, Va. — Incredibly, East Carolina University played for third place in the Presidential Classic last night. With a minute to go in their first round game, it appeared almost a certainty that the Bucs would be facing hosting George Washington in the championship finals.

But it just wasn't to be. Somehow, East Carolina went from a six-point lead with 40 seconds left to a 71-71 tie at the end of regulation play. And the shock of losing that lead held on throughout the extra five minutes as American University came on to take an 82-75 victory.

And that put American into the finals of the tournament, while the Bucs had to be content to play winless Lehigh for the consolation prize.

The loss kept East Carolina winless on the road. They are now 3-5 overall, with all three of their wins coming at home, where they have not lost.

American is now 7-2 overall.

The fate of the game was determined at the free throw line for the Bucs, who shot only 41.7 per cent from that charity stripe. Twice during the final 30 seconds they went to the line with a chance to sew it up, and both times they came away with nothing gained and the ball lost.

For the youthful Pirates, who start two freshmen, two seniors and a junior college transfer, it was a heartbreaking finish to what could have been the start of something big.

The game was quite even most of the way, and in most of the statistics. East Carolina shot 42.7 per cent from the floor, while American hit on 40.7 per cent of their chances. Both teams pulled in 51 rebounds. In turnovers, East Carolina had 21, while American had 20. East Carolina also fouled once more, 19, as compared to 18 for American.

But as compared to East Carolina's terrible free throw shooting, American hit 60.9 per cent—not good—but good enough.

East Carolina grabbed the initial lead in the game and led throughout most of the first half of play. After the first baskets, they moved out to an 8-2 lead, and moved on to a 23-16 edge by the halfway point in the half.

But American put on a rally and finally tied it at 29-29 on a shot by Bill Demharter, their 6-10 center. Wilbur Thomas then dropped in a free throw for a 30-29 American lead, but the Pirates grabbed it back, 31-30, on a shot by Tom Marsh.

Reggie Lee added two more for the Bucs, and after a basket by American, Nicky White hit for a 35-32 lead. Roger Atkinson then canned a jumper with two seconds left in the half for a 37-34 edge at intermission.

The bottom fell out on the Pirates at the start of the second half, as they didn't score until Tom Marsh hit a layup with 14:17 left in the regulation time.

During that drought, American was running off 16 straight points to take a 50-37 lead. Johnny Lloyd led the way during that string, hitting 12 of the 16 points.

East Carolina struggled back, trailing 52-45 with 13:09 left, and then finally tieing it up at 59-59 with 6:04 to go. Donnie Owens had two layups and two long jumpers, while Robert Geter hit on a jumper and a layup during the rally. Finally, Reggie Lee hit a 25-footer to tie it at 69-69.

It was tied again at 61-all, and at 63-63 before Lee hit with 3:35 left for a 65-63 lead. Atkinson followed with a layup for a 67-63 margin. White then dropped in two free throws to make it 69-65, and added a layup with 40 seconds left for a 71-65 advantantage for the Pirates.

It appeared invincible.

But Lloyd hit a jumper to cut to 71-67, and with 24 seconds left, Lee missed on the opener of a one-and-one. Lloyd dropped in another jumper with 18 seconds left, making it 71-69.

Buzzy Braman then missed on another free throw, the first of a bonus situation, and with six seconds to go, Mike Jenifer hit for American to tie it up and force the overtime.

Both teams scored quickly in the extra period, but Thomas hit a free throw and a jumper to give American a 76-73 lead and then never lost it. Lloyd followed with a score, then stole the ball and scored again to make it 79-73. Lee got the only other Pirate basket of the period, but Demharter got a free throw and Jenifer, a tap-in for the final 82-75 margin.

Lee led the Pirate scoring with 18 points, while White had 11. Owens and Geter each had 10. For American, Lloyd finished with 25, while Pete DeHaven had 14, Thomas had 13 and Demharter had 11.

Following Saturday night's game with Lehigh, the Bucs return to Southern Conference action, facing arch-rival Richmond in the Virginia capital on Wednesday.

Playing The Best Is Habit For Piston Five

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Playing the best brings out the best in the Detroit Pistons.

The Pistons, who have played nothing but contending teams for the past two weeks, met another one Friday night—and beat the Boston Celtics 106-101 in the National Basketball Association.

"The difference was poise," said Detroit Coach Ray Scott. "We don't make the mistakes now that we were making early in the year. We've learned."

The Pistons' locker room was happy, and no wonder. They have beaten Milwaukee twice and Boston this week and hold a 6-3 edge over the NBA's better teams in the last two weeks. The Bucks lead the Midwest Division and the Celtics, the Atlantic Division.

Dave Bing paced a final, three-minute surge that helped the hot Midwest Division Pistons win their 14th game in the last 19.

In the other NBA games Friday night, the Capital Bullets trimmed the Cleveland Cavaliers 94-91; the Philadelphia 76ers tripped the New York Knicks 78-75; the Kansas City-Omaha Kings turned back the Phoenix Suns 122-97; the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Golden State Warriors 114-111; the Houston Rockets held off the Portland Trail Blazers 119-113 and the Seattle SuperSonics nipped the Chicago Bulls 103-101 in overtime.

Bullets 94, Cavaliers 91

Elvin Hayes scored 31 points and helped bring Capital out of a three-game losing string. The Cavaliers took a 14-12 lead on Bobby Smith's jump shot in the first period and didn't lose the advantage until less than five minutes remained in the game.

76ers 78, Knicks 75

Steve Mix, Fred Carter and Tom Van Arsdale scored two points apiece in the last minute to lead Philadedelphia past New York in the lowest-scoring NBA game this year.

Kings 122, Suns 97

Sam Lacey scored 21 points, grabbed 18 rebounds and had seven assists for Kansas City-Omaha.

Lakers 114, Warriors 111

Gail Goodrich scored 29 points and Jimmy Price had 20 to lead Los Angeles over Golden State. It was the Lakers' first victory in three games this season against the Warriors.

Rockets 119, Trail Blazers 113

Calvin Murphy scored 33 points, pacing Houston over Portland. The rough game was marked by 13 offensive fouls—11 on Houston—and four technicals on the Rockets.

SuperSonics 103, Bulls 101

Jim Fox hit two free throws with one second left in overtime to lead Seattle over Chicago.

In the American Basketball Association Friday night, Kentucky beat Memphis 125-102; New York downed Denver 109-92 and San Antonio turned back San Diego 112-105.

Deacons Downs Japanese Team

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Jim Gregory ran for two touchdowns, leading Wake Forest University's football team to a 28-3 victory over the West Japan College All-Stars Saturday.

Gregory tallied on runs of 20 and two yards in the first quarter. Bob Paquette scored on a six-yard run in the second period and Ken Griffith on a one-yard dash in the final quarter.

The Japanese team scored in the third quarter when Yoshiharu Murata connected on a 26-yard field goal.

"I'm greatly impressed with the tremendous improvement the Japanese teams have made in the past two years," said Wake Forest Coach Chuck Mills, who previously coached at Utah State.

Mills' Utah State team beat Japanese squads 50-6 and 45-6 in 1971.

"The Japanese have made 100 per cent improvement in skill of the game," Mills said. "They played 100 per cent better today. We won because we were bigger."

A crowd of 10,000 watched the game at Amagasaki City Stadium near here.

The vistors from North Carolina will go to Tokyo for their second game of the tour against the East Japan All-Stars Jan. 13.

Towe's Shots Topple Heels

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Tall Story at North Carolina State is Tom Burleson but there's a surprise ending once in a while.

Diminutive Monte Towe doesn't get the notice the 7-foot-4 Burleson does but he does get the key baskets—like Friday night's two free throws in the last 18 seconds that beat North Carolina 78-77 in the Big Four basketball tournament.

"This was our confidence builder," said the 5-7 Towe after the victory moved the Wolfpack into tonight's finals of the all-Carolina tourney. "We're at a point where down in the last minute or two, we have great confidence."

It was a typical, knock-down battle between the fifth-ranked Wolfpack and the fourth-ranked Tar Heels, two giants from the Atlantic Coast Conference.

And it turned out to be a frustrating defeat for North Carolina Coach Dean Smith.

"It was a game we wanted badly," said Smith, whose team lost its first game of the season after seven victories. "We're terribly disappointed."

The victory earned North Carolina State a shot against Wake Forest in the finals at the Greensboro Coliseum. Wake Forest beat Duke 64-61 in Friday night's other Big Four game.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Houston and Florida State advanced to the finals of the Bluebonnet Classic at Houston. The host Cougars stopped Denver 96-79 and Florida State crushed Texas A&M 99-79.

In the first round of the Presidential Classic at Ft. Myer, Va., American University trimmed East Carolina 82-75 in overtime and George Washington bombed Lehigh 80-44.

New Mexico, the nation's No. 12 team, trimmed Utah 98-91; Arizona State smashed Wyoming 91-69; Hawaii swamped Rice 109-75 and Brigham Young stopped Texas-El Paso 62-58 in other top games.

Two Take City Wins

Kentucky Fried Chicken and Coca-Cola picked up victories in the City Basketball League Friday night.

Coca-Cola downed Carolina Dairy in the opening game, 72-39. They rushed away to a 41-17 halftime lead and were never in any trouble after that. Coke outhit the Dairymen, 31-22 in the second half for the easy victory.

Owens led Coke with 19 points, while Modlin had 16, Norris had 14 and Warner had 10. For Carolina Dairy, Tommy Jordan had nine.

In the second game, KFC took an 82-77 win over Edwards. In the first half, the two teams swapped baskets, with KFC holding a 39-37 lead at intermission. KFC managed to outhit Edwards, 43-40, in the final half to gain the win.

G. Rackley led KFC with 33 points, while R. Slack had 15 and R. Kear had 12. For Edwards, Linwood Hyman had 23, Steve Johnson and Greg Bryant each had 12 and Robert Johnson and Ben Johnson each had 10.

Belhaven Tops Bear Grass

BEAR GRASS—Belhaven swept a three game set from Bear Grass Friday night winning each game by big margins.

The Belhaven J.V.'s took the opening game, 79-62. The Bear Grass girls dropped their game, 51-38. Bear Grass had taken the lead by a basket in the first period, 12-10 and held on to it in the second quarter as the lead remained the same at the half, 22-20.

Bear Grass went cold in the third quarter and Belhaven snuck past them with 15 points to BG's six moving into a 35-28 advantage. Belhaven outhit Bear Grass 16-10 in the last quarter.

Ruby Borden had 10 for Belhaven.

In the boy's game, Belhaven took the lead in the first quarter and never had to catch up. They slipped in front by 18-15 and blew through 22 in the second period for a halftime score of 40-31.

The third period sent the Belhaven on its way to the rout as they added 27 to 14 for Bear Grass. Bear Grass only managed to get seven in the last period while Belhaven was blasting in 24.

Hilton Armstrong led the Bears with 18. Walter Green had 14 for Belhaven while Michael Credle had 13, David Ebron 12 and Ronnie Gibbs scored 10.

Business Men Have Race Car

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — A group of local businessmen announced purchase Saturday of a 1974 custom-built Dodge racing car which will be entered in a dozen nationally known stock car races this year.

Named "Almost Heaven, West Virginia," the $30,000 car will be driven by Hershel McGriff in 12 races beginning with the Jan. 20 race at Riverside, Calif.

The car will be owned by the incorporators of Almost Heaven, West Virginia Inc., headed by Charleston lawyer K.D. Pauley.

The car was prepared by Petty Enterprises and a crew from that firm will maintain it during the coming year of race events.

Another businessman in the venture, Ray Park of Charleston said, "It's going to be especially exciting for West Virginians, I think, to be watching television and listening on the radio to see how 'Almost Heaven' and Hershel are doing in these races. It's really a West Virginia good-will carrier on wheels."

The car, painted gold and blue—the state's official colors—has been entered in races at Riverside, Daytona, Atlanta, Darlington, S.C., Talladega, Ala., and Charlotte, N.C.

Jockey Carlos Barrera, who rides thoroughbreds at New Jersey tracks, was born in Mexico. He recently turned 26.

bone offense. "I understand that we have several outstanding backs, but it takes a lot to run the wishbone. You also have to have a good quarterback. Then too we understand that most of the offensive line is gone, too. But we'll really take any outstanding player."

Dye said that he hasn't seen the films of the returning players yet, but he expects that most will stay where they are. There will be some adjustments on defense, because of a different alignment. "Our containment positions are quite important, and we want to have good people there."

Kinston Tops Rampants, 63-55

UP FOR TWO—Kinston High School's Rudolph Ham goes up for an attempted basket during Friday night's action between the Vikings and Rose High School. The Rampants' Griff Garner (51) and Herb Bynum (33) try to defense against the shot, which didn't fall in. Kinston gained a 63-55 win over the Rampants in the game. (Refelctor Photo by Foreman)

KINSTON—Rose High School's Rampants got back into action Friday night after the long Christmas holiday layoff, but they didn't get a belated Christmas present. Kinston walked away with a 63-55 victory that wasn't as close as the score might indicate.

With just under two and a half minutes left to go in the game, the Vikings held as much as an 18-point lead over the Rampants, and had the game wrapped up. They had put pressure on the Rampants from the opening tipoff, and the turnovers that the defense produced helped to make the difference.

Neither team really played well. Kinston didn't pull ahead in the first period until it was nearly two-thirds over. But from a 7-6 lead, they pulled steadily away and never trailed again. Both teams took 59 shots from the floor, with Kinston hitting on just three more, 26-23, than did the Rampants. Kinston made two more free throws, 11-9.
two more free throws, 11-9.

Rose really wasn't out of the game until the middle of the third period, and even then Kinston seemed reluctant to put it away. Rose went nearly five minutes without scoring in that frame, but Kinston could only get from a six-point edge to a 14-point one during that period.

Late in the game, they went into a spread offense that turned diminutive (5-8) Mark Dale loose to handle the ball and get fouled (9 of 10 from the line), and that opened up the 18-point bulge. After that, Rose cut it back against the subs.

Kinston took the initial lead with a free throw by James King after 45 seconds. Neither team could hit from the floor, however, until Herb Bynum connected with a jumper with 6:30 left for a 2-1 lead.

For the next few minutes the lead jumped back and forth, with Rose holding 4-3, and 6-5 advantages, that last coming on Bynum's bucket from underneath with 3:22 left.

But Sotello Long hit from the baseline with 2:27 left to put the Vikings into a 7-6 lead and they never trailed again. Dimitri Belmont followed with two more shots from almost the same place, making it 11-6, a five-point spread. Kinston managed to hold that the rest of the period, leading 15-10 at the horn.

During the first two minutes of the second period, the two swapped baskets, but Bruce Reese hit a jumper to up the Kinston margin to 21-14. After another swap, Dale hit on a three point play with 3:26 left to run it to 26-16, then stole the ball seconds later to hit and make it 28-16. Rose outhit them 6-4 the rest of the period, but trailed, 32-22 at the half.

Kinston got the first basket of the second half, but Rose came back with the next three, trimming the Viking lead to 34-28, the closest the Rampants came in the period. That last basket, by Bynum came with 6:11 left, and they didn't get another until 1:19 showed. Kinston meanwhile ran off four baskets, two each by Colin McDuffy and King, upping the lead to 42-28, a 14-point bulge. Rose and Kinston held that margin the rest of the period, and the Vikes held a 47-34 lead at the horn.

A three-point play by Long opened the final quarter, and ran the lead out to 50-34, a 16-point advantage. Rose cut it by four, but with 4:39 left, trailed, 54-41.

Kinston spread it out at that point, and Dale went to the line three straight times, hitting five of six to run it to 59-41, the biggest lead of the night with 2:46 left. His miss, which came on his final charity shot of the night, was only his fourth of the season.

With 2:22 left, Rose still was down by 18, 61-43, but outhit Kinston's reserves, 12-2 the rest of the way to cut it to the final margin.

Dale finished with 21 points for the Vikings, while King added 11.

For Rose, Ronnie Barrett was high with 24 points, while Bynum canned 18 points

The victory was the 11th straight for the Vikings, who have yet to lose this season. Rose is now 1-7 on the year.

In the junior varsity game, Kinston also rolled to victory, taking a 68-45 decision. Rose slipped into a thin 10-9 lead after one period, but couldn't extend it much. They led by as much as two and had the chance to take a bigger lead. Then, midway through the second frame, Kinston hit a hot streak and rolled out to a 27-19 lead by halftime.

They continued to pull away from the Rampant Cubs in the third period, outhitting them, 16-12, to hold a 43-31 margin. The finished off the win with a 25-14 final period margin.

Calvin Morris led Kinston with 22 points, while Jimmy Parker had 12 and Ulysses Smith had 11. For the Rampant Cubs, Gerald Holloway had 15 and Mike Brewington had 12.

Rose was to play host to Northeastern Saturday night, then entertain New Bern on Tuesday.

Greene Central Tops Firebirds

SNOW HILL—Greene Central High School gained a 62-48 victory over Southern Nash Friday night. The Ewes didn't fare as well, falling, 59-22, to the Lady Firebirds.

Greene Central also won the junior varsity game, 45-42.

In the opener, Southern Nash's girls pushed out into a 15-5 lead over Greene Central in the first period of play. They continued to pull away from the Ewes, 20-10, in the second quarter, rolling to a 35-15 halftime advantage.

In the third period, it was just more of the same, as the Firebirds hit 14 and held the Ewes to just four. That made it 49-19. In the final period, Southern held a 10-3 scoring advantage as they wrapped it up.

Gloria Pope led the Southern scoring with 16 points, while Bandy Bass had 11. For the Ewes, Judith Tripp had eight.

In the boys' game, it was tight until the final period. Both Southern and Greene pushed through 12 points in the opening period, and it didn't change a bit in the second frame. Both hit 14 to make it 26-26 at the half.

The Rams managed to outhit the Firebirds, 11-9, in the third quarter to inch into a 37-35 lead. Then, in the final period, Greene romped through with a 25-13 advantage, scoring the victory.

Moses Barron and Lonnie Artis each dumped in 16 points for the Rams, while Jerry Jones had 10. Jimmy Kale led the Firebirds with 10 points.

Panthers Take Pair From CBA

PIKEVILLE—North Pitt High School swept a pair of varsity games from Charles B. Aycock High School Friday night. The boys took a 59-54 win while the unbeaten girls took a 53-46 verdict. Aycock came away with only the junior varsity, 40-37.

In the girls' game, Aycock, believed to be one of the tougher opponents the Big Orange Machine must face in the conference, gave North Pitt a little trouble. The Pant-HERS inched out into a 14-11 lead in the first period of play, then outshot Aycock by 16-12, in the second frame. That gave them a 30-23 lead at the half.

North Pitt was again able to inch forward in the third period of the game, outhitting the Falconettes, 8-6. That made it 38-29 as the last period got underway. Aycock finally outscored the Big Orange, 17-15, but it was only a dent in the lead.

Joy James led the North Pitt scoring with 13, while Debbie Pollard had 12 and Kathi Manning had 11.

In the boys' game, North Pitt slid ahead, 8-7, after one period of play. Aycock came back to outhit the Panthers, 17-13, in the second quarter, however, to take a 24-21 lead at intermission.

In the third period, Aycock continued to pull away, looking like a winner, as they outscored North Pitt, 17-9. That built the lead to 41-30. But in the final period of the game, North Pitt caught fire and came roaring back. They dumped in 29 points, while Aycock got only 13, and the rally carried the Panthers past the Falcons to the win.

S. Edgecombe Defeats Eagles

PINETOPS — Robersonville managed to pull out only a single win Friday night out of three they played against South Edgecombe taking just the J.V. game, 40-36.

The Lady Eagles lost their game, 49-35, while the boys, suffering the loss of Ernest Crandall, dropped their game 58-32. Crandall was unable to play as the result of the death of his mother earlier this week.

South Edgecombe took an eight-point lead in the first period of the girl's game, 13-5, and added four points to it in the second quarter to be in front by 29-17.

The third and fourth quarters were equal, point-wise, as South Edgecombe got 10 and Robersonville nine in each frame.

Elaine Forrest led the Lady Eagles with 13. Bynum had 11 for South Edgecombe and Summerlin added 10.

The ten-point lead that South Edgecombe rolled up in the first period was what stopped the Eagle varsity. The 17-7 score was increased to 35-13 in the second period as the Eagles fell further behind.

The last two periods were close as South Edgecombe scored 15 to Robersonville's 13 the third and 8-6 in the fourth.

Conley Downs South. Wayne

DUDLEY—D. H. Conley's Vikings remained unbeaten Friday night as they took a 44-38 victory over Southern Wayne. The Conley girls didn't fare as well, however, falling to Southern Wayne, 42-13.

In the opening game, Southern Wayne pulled out into an 8-2 lead by the end of the first period of play. The Valkyries had not much better luck in the second frame, scoring only three points. The Saintes meanwhile picked up 17 more and held a 25-5 lead at halftime.

Southern again outhit the Valkyries, 10-6, in the third period, as they ran the margin out to 35-11. Conley was outhit once more in the final period, 7-2.

Charlotte Armwood led Southern with 11 points, while Rosa Adams had five to lead Conley.

In the boys' game, Conley jumped away to a 16-6 lead in the first quarter of play. They continued to pull away from the Saints in the second frame, pouring in 14 while Southern upped its production to nine. That left the Vikings in a 30-15 lead at the half.

With a victory obvious, the Conley team didn't do quite as well in the second half. Southern outhit them in the third period, 10-9, but still down, 39-25, but were too far down to catch up.

Larry Daniels led Conley with 16 points, while Mike Sutton and Clennel Streeter each had 10 points. For the Saints, Ken Mack had 13.

Conley, now 9-0 overall, will play host to Eastern Wayne on Tuesday.

Ayden-Grifton Gains Win Over E. Wayne

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLE FIELD—It was the Ayden-Grifton Chargers who went on the warpath Friday night as they ravaged the Eastern Wayne Warriors, 70-58. The girls' game was a different story.

In that, the Lady Chargers were not only beaten but out rebounded, out hustled and out played by the eager Squaws, 40-36. After EW rallied in the third quarter to take the lead for the first time, they held on to it for the remainder of the contest.

The A-G J. V.'s won, also, 71-47.

The first quarter was not a good picture of what the rest of the girls' game turned out to be. The Lady Charters jumped out to a 14-6 lead but EW cut it to just a bucket's worth in the second period, 24-22. They made up the difference in the third frame and held on to win it.

Audrey McCarter put the A-G girls up first as she scored from underneath with 49 seconds gone. Pat Smith tied it for the Squaws but a basket on a drive by Decia Little and another bucket by Miss McCarter ran the A-G lead out to 6-2. Debra Barfield scored from the lane making it 8-2.

Smith scored again for EW but Little followed with two increasing the lead to eight, 12-4. Each team added another basket as the quarter ended.

Miss Smith opened the second with a lay-up for the Squaws although Little's two points on a drive matched them. Betty Thompson and Miss Smith both scored making it 16-12 and after Connie Carter hit for A-G, Joy Spence and Smith canned shots cutting the lead to 18-16.

Tena Smith put one through for the Lady Chargers and it was followed by a lay-up by Miss Spence. McCarter and Little made a three-point play but baskets by Spence and Smith closed the gap to 24-22 at intermission.

A-G ran off three buckets in the first three minutes of the third period but got only one more as EW started to catch the Lady Chargers. Thompson sank a free shot and Gloria Davis added a field goal narrowing the gap to 30-27. Tena Smith hit for A-G but Pat Smith ripped off three fast breaks on steals to give the Squaws the lead, 33-32, with 24 left in the period.

Thompson made it 35-32 with a jumper at 7:45 in the fourth period. Little got a base-line basket pulling the A-G girls to one, 35-34, and after Spence got a bucket Little hit again but it was the last basket the Lady Chargers were to get.

Thompson scored on a drive with 1:14 and Mary Herlihy added a free throw for the final score.

Smith led the Squaws and the game with 20 points. Little led A-G with 16 and McCarter had 10.

The boys' game was a typical Charger rout. A-G rolled out to a 17-9 lead in period one and blew through 27 points in the second and coasted from there.

The tone of the game was set in the first minute-and-a-half as the Chargers scored three quick buckets before the Warriors had turned around twice. Two of those were by Travis Woods and the other a tap-in by Jessie Brown. Another three goal spurt later in the period on a basket each by Woods, Milton Brown and Danny Garris made it 16-5.

The Warriors got only nine more in the second period. Woods and Melvin Stewart led the way for A-G with eight points each in the frame. The largest lead came shortly before the end of the half as the score went to 44-18.

Both teams swapped baskets in the third period with the Chargers taking a 16-14 advantage. Eastern Wayne chopped away at the lead in the last quarter as the A-G bench was emptied. The Warriors dumped 23 points in it to 10 for A-G.

Ron Coley led the Warriors getting 18 points in the losing effort, most of his points coming in the last period when he got 10. Clarence Dempsey scored 11.

Woods led the way for Ayden-Grifton greasing the nets with 10 field goals. Jessie Brown scored 11 before fouling out, and Milton Brown and Stewart each added 10.

Boaters Will Get Fair Share

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — Pleasure boat owners have been assured by the government that they will receive fair and equal treatment in allocation of fuel during the energy crisis.

That word comes from William H. Johnson, director of the Policy Analysis Division of the Federal Energy Office, who told a group of boating representatives meeting with him recently in Washington:

"Our proposals do not discriminate among classes of users who purchase gasoline at the retail level."

Johnson gave no specific figures. He said there will be cuts in gasoline allotted to boating, as there will be in fuel allotted to most other activities, but they will not be as drastic as reports had led many boat owners to believe.

In 1973, owners of the nation's 7 million boats using power consumed an estimated 880 million gallons of gasoline, or less than half of one per cent of the nation's total petroleum consumption.

Whatever happens, some facets of pleasure boating are going to be hit harder than others.

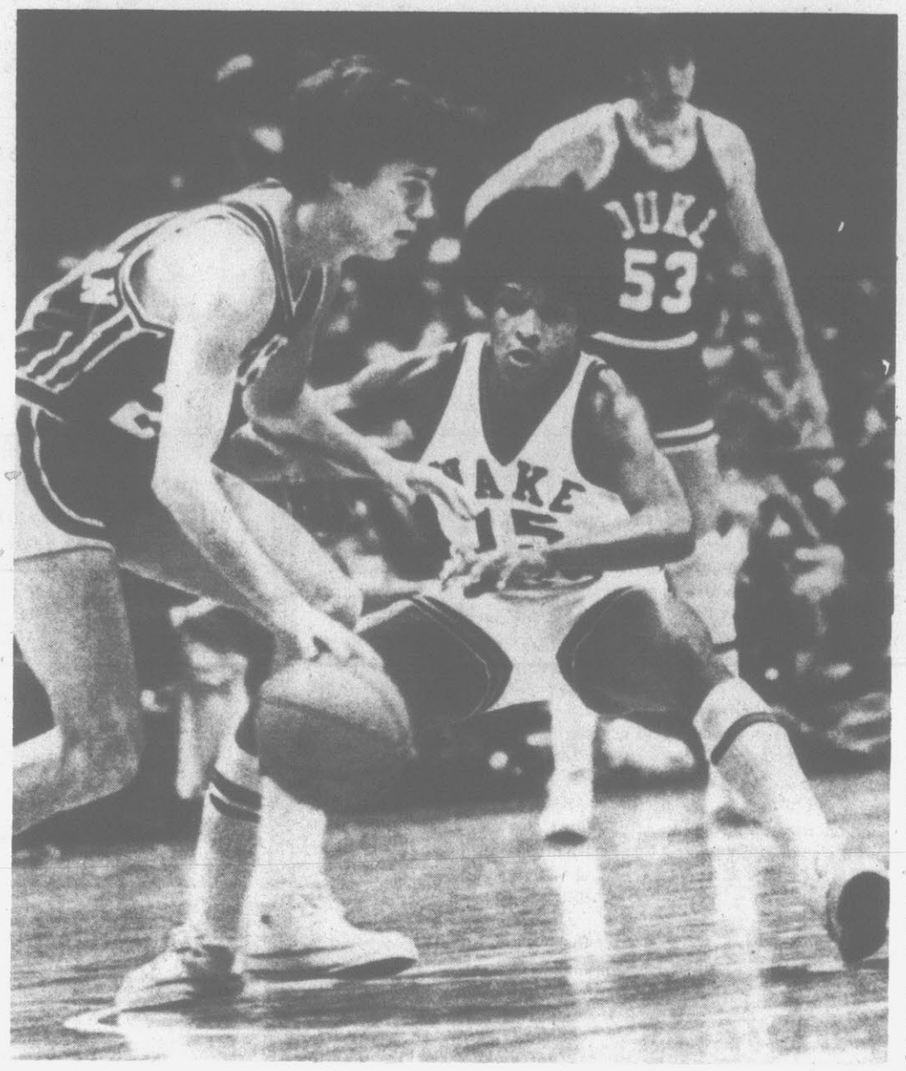

Powerboat racing may have to be curtailed. The men who control the fuel hoses may frown on any allotments for competitive events by such boats as the big unlimited hydroplanes and the high horsepower offshore racers.

Pleasure cruises may become adventures in uncertainty, with no assurance that fuel may be available as a boat sails from port to port.

But cruising and racing represent only a small percentage of the use to which powerboats are put. An estimated 75 per cent of small boat owners use their craft for fishing, and fuel consumption in many such instances is negligible—a trip to the local fishing grounds and back.

A survey of advertising and boatyards indicates there is no panic-selling of power craft. One marina owner reported: "Owners are sitting tight. They figure they will get a fair shake on fuel, even though they may not get as much use out of their boats as they did before."

One noticeable trend is the increased interest in sailboats. Dealers report sales of the nonpower craft are at record highs.

Aycock Takes Opening Win

E. B. Aycock Junior High School won its opening game of the season Friday night, downing Southern Nash Junior High, 56-47.

The Aycock Baby Phantoms didn't fare quite as well, falling to Southern, 38-23. Larry Speight was the high scorer for the junior varsity scoring eight points.

In the varsity game, the Phantoms rushed out to a 14-4 lead in the first period and were ahead the rest of the night. They outhit Southern Nash, 16-10, in the second period and built up a 30-14 lead at halftime.

In the third period, Southern managed to outscore Aycock, 17-15, but it only cut the lead to 45-31. Southern once more outhit the Phants, 16-11, in the final period, but it was too little, to late.

Mike Adams led Aycock with 16 points, while Danny Short had 10.

Williamston took the J. V. contest, 54-48. The girls won, 64-48. The Lady Tigers inched into the lead in the first period, 15-8 and built it up with 15 in the second quarter for a 28-28 at halftime.

Williamston boosted the margin to 46-28 in the third quarter and eased through the fourth period to the win.

Cissy Taylor led the Williamston girls with 27, Fran Hardison had 12 and Nancy Williams 11. Marian Davis led Plymouth with 24.

Williamston had taken an early first quarter lead as they slipped in front by four, 18-14 but Plymouth gained control of it in the second quarter edging Williamston by ten, 21-11 for a 35-29 lead at intermission.

Williamston narrowed the game to 48-45 but Plymouth rallied in the fourth to pull away as they outshot the Tigers, 19-12.

Virginia Tech Coach Suddenly Quit Friday

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP)—A four-man committee has been set up to begin interviewing applicants for the Virginia Tech football coaching job, given up without warning by Charlie Coffey after three years in which he produced just one winning team.

A high source at Tech said the committee was looking "for a head coach with a track record of winning." Among those on the list were believed to be Bill Mallory of Kent State and Art Baker of Furman.

One member of the committee is Athletic Director Frank Moseley, who has announced he will retire in July after serving since 1951.

"This now means we are looking for two top men in our athletic department," Tech President T. Marshall Hahn said Friday in accepting Coffey's resignation and admitting his surprise.

Just weeks earlier, he had voiced complete support for Coffey despite alumni pressure that Coffey be removed after a 2-9 season last fall and a 12-20-1 record for three years that included only one winning mark—6-4-1 in 1972.

"This was entirely Charlie's decision," said Dr. Hahn. "We here at the university felt we had a topflight coach and man directing our football program and we were 100 per cent behind him."

One possible candidate for the job, Tech offensive coordinator Dan Henning, took himself out of the running Friday.

"I've decided that I'm not going to be a candidate for the head coaching job here," said Henning, one of only four members of Coffey's staff still on the Tech payroll.

Coffey, 39, reportedly had four years to go on a contract ranging between $27,000 and $30,000 a year. He said he had "planned to retire after the 1973 season" because he long ago said he planned to quit coaching before he was 40.

"But after a dismal 2-9 season, I bristled up and decided to coach one more season," added Coffey, who will be 40 on June 28.

"After more thought, I have decided to retire now. I feel an obligation to my staff, and it wouldn't be fair to bring in new staff members knowing I had planned to coach only one more year."

Coffey, a Tennessee alumnus who spent three years as defensive line coach at Tennessee and five as defensive coordinator at Arkansas before succeeding Jerry Claiborne in 1970, said he plans to devote his time to his trucking firm in his home town of Shelbyville, Tenn.

Coffey gave no hint of plans to resign Thursday when he discussed the decision of Billy Clay, Tech's newly hired defensive coordinator, to remain as an assistant at South Carolina. Clay had been Coffey's linebacking coach in 1972 before going to South Carolina.

"Losing Clay was the final blow for Charlie," said a Tech source. The source said Clay had been hired at a salary of $20,000 per year and had been authorized by Coffey to bring in two new defensive assistants and pay them $16,000 each.

But the source said Clay told Coffey that, after three weeks of interviewing, he couldn't get the men he wanted to come to Tech.

"Charlie has tremendous respect for Billy and what Billy told him was a real jolt," the source reported.

In addition, Coffey had confirmed Thursday the loss of freshman quarterback Eddie Joyce, who started the Gobblers' last four games last fall, due to "personal and academic reasons."

There also were reports of other player defections and serious recruiting problems as a result.

The dream of Mrs. Nellie Sanders of Plymouth, a river barge, supported by state and local funds, would combine the services of a library, art gallery and theater. Hopefully, the project would be ready by 1976 to ply the sounds, bays and rivers of Eastern North Carolina as far inland as Greenville, Hamilton and Fayetteville.

A Cultural Barge For Coastal Carolina

Text By Beverly Wolter, N.C. Department of Art, Culture and History.

A barge floating gently along the streams and waterways of the state like the showboats of old, but carrying books, art and live theater to remote hamlets and thriving cities may one day ring bicentennial celebration bells in the state.

At the moment the barge is something, but not much more, than a gleam in the eye of a woman known variously as "the Gray Owl" (from a newspaper column she writes) and "the barge lady."

The woman is Nellie Sanders of Plymouth, a determined, grayhaired, blow-cut golfing grandmother. She is the regional librarian for Chowan, Tyrrell and Washington Counties and the one-woman locomotion pushing the barge.

While her barge project has the blessing of various state and local political and business leaders, many practical aspects of her movable feast of the arts remain to be worked out before the target launching date of 1976 is reached.

Of these, the foremost is money, but Mrs. Sanders is not to be stopped by that consideration in her pursuit of a dream.

The North Carolina Department of Cultural Resources has just given a grant of $500 for a feasibility study to the Bicentennial Barge Foundation, Inc. Grace J. Rohrer, department secretary, has agreed to serve on the foundation board formed at her suggestion by Mrs. Sanders.

Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr. recently endorsed the project to give the non-partisan touch Mrs. Sanders sought.

Mrs. Sanders' idea got to Cultural Resources by way of the State Library and the North Carolina Bicentennial Committee, neither of which had any money at all for the barge.

"I originally suggested to the State Library that we have a floating library," Mrs. Sanders said. "There was federal grant money up for grabs for innovative programs for disadvantaged areas."

The federal money fell through, but in the meantime her ideas had expanded from a library with its meeting room to include a theater and an art museum.

Her thinking, she said, was based on "the need to make libraries more popular. Only 15 per cent of the people go in libraries. This would be a lure to the library—people would come to the theater—they would see a small library and maybe change their idea of a library as being a forbidding place."

Why a barge? she was asked.

"Because we have more water than highways in this part of the state," she answered simply. "There's more water than land.

"Water was the first means of transportation—the idea seemed very appropriate for the bicentennial—water brought the first settlers to the coast—water was their first means of transportation through the state."

Also, she said, "I wanted something mobile that was big enough to include everything I wanted. The highways are not big enough and that naturally leads you to water."

Equally naturally, the statement raises a "can-you-make-them-drink" question of how acceptable the barge will be to the people served by it.

Mrs. Sanders hopes a feasibility study can help determine the welcome the barge would receive. The barge is going to need community support, ranging from people coming to it to docking, policing, parking, fire protection and similar services.

The study can determine where the barge can go in terms of navigation as well as population. Presumably the barge will travel on the Inland Waterway and up rivers—the Cape Fear to Fayetteville, the New to Jacksonville, the Tar to Greenville, the Roanoke to Hamilton, and the Chowan to Winton. Villages on the Albemarle and Pamlico Sounds and on the Outer Banks could be visited by the barge.

Mrs. Sanders said she wanted the barge to be small enough to visit small places but big enough to "do everything we want it to do."

The barge cannot be wider than 40 feet and probably would be from 110-200 feet long. she said. Probably a two-story superstructure would be needed.

The study would help determine the size and also whether the barge should be self-propelled or pulled by a tug. To be decided too are the relative costs of converting and maintaining a surplus or old barge and building a new one.

The "everything" Mrs. Sanders wants the barge to do includes a historical display as well as a library, theater, and art exhibit.

The theater, she thinks, perhaps could be done on a cooperative basis by universities in cities served by the barge or by community theater groups. The local county library would furnish the librarian when the barge was "in port." The barge might serve as a pilot project for a statewide borrowing program under consideration by the State Library. The program would permit residents to borrow and return books anywhere in the state.

Mrs. Sanders sees the barge functioning 40 weeks of the year with a fulltime director overseeing the operation. She does not expect the barge to be self-supporting. She feels some minimal charges should be made for some barge activities, partly on the theory that people value more highly what they pay for and partly because the barge will need the money.

A DREAM IS DISCUSSED. . .Mrs. Nellie Sanders of Plymouth, in discussion with Philip Ogilvie, State Librarian for North Carolina. Mrs. Sanders' dream is to see a barge serving as a floating library, theater and art museum on the waterways of eastern North Carolina. (Photo courtesy State Dept. of Archives and History)

The Albemarle Area Development Association involving 10 counties and the commissioners of several counties have given their blessings to the barge, but have not voted any money for it.

At least one large corporation, the Weyerhaeuser Corp., is represented on the foundation board through a vice-president.

The commissioners may indicate their support in cash later in the same way they have supported the library work of Mrs. Sanders and colleagues.

In the three years she has been regional librarian, the commissioners have more than doubled their counties' per capita expenditures for libraries.

Mrs. Sanders is proud of that increase because the library is her "cause" where the barge is concerned.

"I feel we do have a committment to a better support of the public library at the state and local levels. I feel that the barge will make us more visible. From that standpoint, it is sort of my crusade."

Mrs. Sanders' library career began after her husband was killed in an auto accident in 1969 while they were living in Asheville. A native of New Orleans who had received her bachelor's degree at Rice University, she took her master's degree in library science at the University of North Carolina.

She has three children, a son, Stephen, and daughter, Vicki, who has two sons, who live in California; and another daughter, Cyndy, who attends North Carolina State University.

From the start of her library work, she has been active in library organizations.

As for other interests, she has a two-word answer, "I golf."

"Silversmiths of North Carolina" In New Edition

A MORAVIAN CUP. . .with the mark of Traugott Leinbach & Son (Graugott Leinbach and Nathaniel Augustine Leinbach), who were Moravians in Salem, is shown above. The cup is shown on the frontispiece of "Silversmiths in North Carolina," published by the Historical Publications Section of the N.C. Department of Cultural Resources. (Photograph courtesy State Department of Archives and History).

Antique silver "made in North Carolina" is the subject of a new book just off the presses.

Silversmiths in North Carolina 1696-1850 is now off the presses and ready for North Carolinians. The revised and enlarged edition of the book by Dr. George Barton Cutten, originally published in 1948, is just released and available for purchase from the Historical Publications Section of the Department of Cultural Resources. The new edition is limited to 1,000 numbered copies.

The handsome volume, appropriately bound in silver with a ricepaper jacket, is edited by Mary Reynolds Peacock, editorial assistant in the publications Section.

An alphabetical listing of more than 200 North Carolina silversmiths and their marks, the book contains notes on the lives of the smiths, as well as details on the unusual pieces of silver handcrafted by them.

Research on the book took two years, with Mrs. Peacock scanning old documents, court records, old newspapers, wills—any place that might have contained additional information. She explained that the dates 1696-1850 were chosen because by 1850 electroplating was becoming common and machinery was appearing in the shops, even though handmade silver continued to be made, and is still being made occasionally today.

The Foreword of the new volume notes that "In 1948, the State Department of Archives and History published a booklet entitled The Silversmiths of North Carolina by Dr. George Barton Cutten, who was then living in Chapel Hill. Dr. Cutten's interest in silver had begun as a hobby during the 1930s; but by the time of his retirement from the presidency of Colgate University in 1942, he had accumulated an outstanding collection of old silver and had published several articles and a book, The Silversmiths of Utica. He later wrote The Silversmiths of Virginia and The Silversmiths of Georgia."

The Foreword further explained that "Dr. Cutten sold to the State Department of Archives and History, for a nominal fee, a collection of representative pieces of silver for the period 1655 to 1868; this silver is prominently displayed in the North Carolina Museum of History, located in the Archives and History-State library Building." . . .

The new Silversmiths in North Carolina features many photographs of pieces, with their descriptions and histories as well as owners' names. In many cases anecdotes and interesting details of the craftsmen's lives are included. One photograph reproduces an invitation mailed by one of the smiths and his wife on the occasion of the 50th anniversary of their wedding!

Especially interesting is the fact that individuals came from as far away as New York and Louisiana, bringing their valuable pieces to be photographed for the edition.

"And the amazing thing," Mrs. Peacock remarked, "is that we're still receiving silver. Two Freeeman Woods spoons were brought in last week and were photographed—for any possible future revision," she added. "Out hope is that people will become interested in collecting; perhaps they will be able to identify their own silver and bring in more pieces or provide information about silversmiths." She pointed out that other revisions may be made in years to come, adding the additional information received, but that no future edition is presently planned.

As the recent research began and letters went out, "People realized they had pieces they didn't recognize as being North Carolina work and willingly brought them in for photographing," Mrs. Peacock recalled. She mentioned that she has been amazed at the interest shown. "It is surprising and rewarding," she said.

As the Foreword of the book continues: "Undoubtedly there are names and silver still to be discovered. Persons knowing of other silversmiths are invited to write to the Division of Archives and History so future editions will include the additional names."

And North Carolinians may now enjoy the new edition, reawakening an interest in the silver handcrafted by their ancestors—and maybe even discovering an old piece in a relative's attic!

British Labor Unions Threatens Campaign

LONDON (AP) — Britain's labor unions threatened to wage an all-out campaign against Prime Minister Edward Heath's economic policies as the country's industrial and energy crisis dragged on today.

Parliament will be recalled Wednesday for an emergency debate on the worsening energy problem. There was speculation that Heath may call an election in search of a mandate backing his government's actions.

The leaders of more than 100 unions said they will meet soon to launch a campaign to force the government to reverse its economic policies, particulary its anti-inflationary guidelines which have blocked big pay raises.

The campaign, labor sources said, will be organized by the Trade Union Congress, and led by two of the country's largest and most powerful unions: the Transport and General Workers' and the Engineering Workers.

Although labor leaders did not go into detail as to what actions they plan, sources said militant blocs within organized labor have been calling for a coordinated industrial action that could paralyze the country.

Labor problems in the coal and railroads industries have been blamed for the country's energy problems which has forced all nonessential businesses on a three-day work week.

Although there was widespread nervousness in industry over the recent economic developments, Britons in general have bounced back with bulldog grit.

Breweries, short on fuel for delivery trucks, have hitched long unused wooden wagons to teams of horses and distributed barrels of beers to taverns around London.

Hundreds of women textile workers in the Midlands, were taking work home to finish garments which otherwise would lie in the factories for weeks because of the shorter three-day work week.

Large stores in London's West End shopping center have been handing out battery-powered flashlights to customers when the lights go out. And many book shops are lit by candles and kerosene lamps.

In a factory in Blackheath, T.W. Lench has found a way to keep his employes warm even though the heat may be switched off. He makes a point of distributing flasks of tea and coffee laced with whisky and rum.

Freight Rate Increase OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's railroads have received permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to file for a 5 per cent freight rate increase. If granted, the boost would provide $576 million in new revenue to the lines.

An ICC spokesman said Friday that all railroads involved in interstate freight transportation, with the exception of the Long Island Railroad Co., were seeking the increase.

Beechcliff

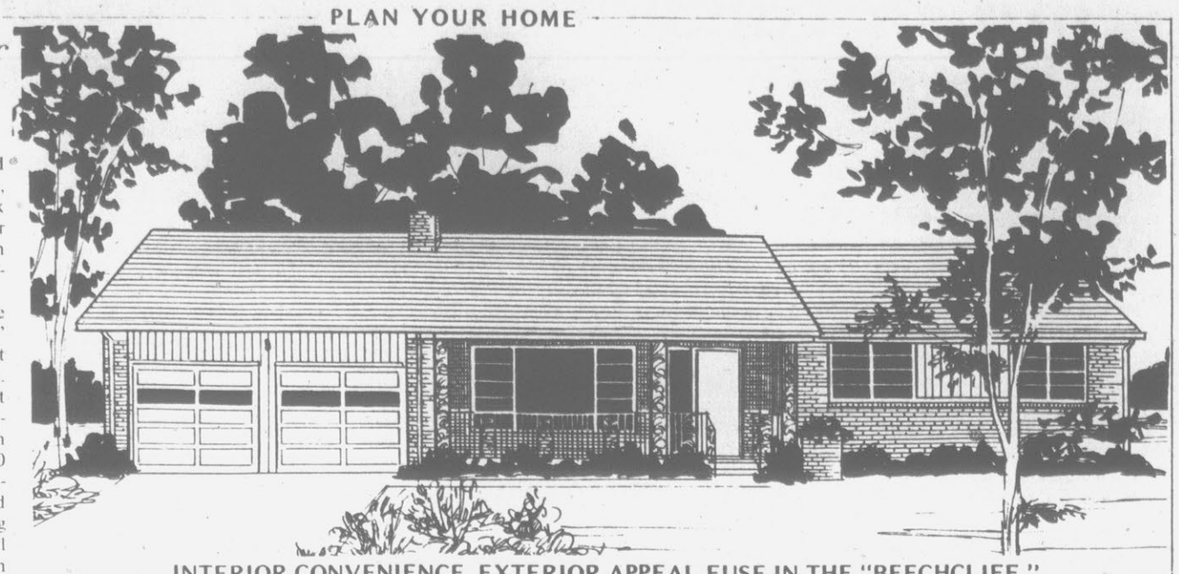

By Gerry Bishop

Porch-fronted and laced with ornamental iron work, this three bedroom brick design exhibits an exterior with lasting appeal and an interior based on convenience.

Simple lines dominate the facade of the "Beechcliff," completed by a usable front porch framing the entry. The living room, with coat closet and cozy wood-burning fireplace, issues a warm welcome, stretches over 20 feet to offer space for relaxing and entertaining, and spills into the sizable dining room. The functional kitchen is replete with cabinet and counter space and is open to a breakfast nook, which might also be used as a play area or sewing room.

Completing the kitchen complex is a handy utility room, perfect for laundry equipment and accessible to the garage for use as a storage room. The double garage also merits convenient access to the basement and kitchen which helps eliminate cross-traffic through the home.

Bedrooms fill the right wing of the "Beechcliff" and can be separated further by adding a door at the bedroom hallway. Elongated full bath with linen closet serves the area and remains only a few steps from the living room for maximum convenience. Each of the three bedrooms houses adequate closet space, and separate "his" and "hers" closets are featured in the master bedroom.

INTERIOR CONVENIENCE, EXTERIOR APPEAL FUSE IN THE "BEECHCLIFF."

IRON WORK ORNAMENTS THREE BEDROOM BRICK

Besides the utility room and large garage, the design outlines a full basement with another 1286 square feet of space for storage, utilities and recreation room.

Size: 1,500 sq. ft. first floor; 1,286 sq. ft. basement
470 sq. ft. garage.
Over-all dimensions: 66 ft. by 32 ft.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Carpeting can partially deaden the sound of a squeaky staircase, but not eliminate it.

The application of a dry lubricant, such as powdered graphite, may eliminate the noise, but it will be just a question of time before it returns.

The only permanent solution to most squeaky stair problems is to bring the riser and the tread close together, since it is the separation of the joint between these two parts that is causing the noise. The riser is the vertical portion of the step, the tread the horizontal part that is stepped on.

On stairways where the underside is open, you need only have someone walk up and down the steps and you will be able to hear the noise and see where it is coming from. The repair is then relatively easy and just a matter of common sense, as you can see what is loose and how it can be tightened.

Most troubles occur on stairs that are not open, such as those going from the first to the second floor. It is those with which we are concerned here.

The initial move in the repair job is to determine whether the riser and tread are joined simply by having the tread rest on the riser or are held together in a rabbeted joint. Look under the stair nosing, the outside edge of the tread that extends past the riser. If the joint is exposed, you sometimes can see immediately how the riser and tread are joined. If it is not exposed, remove the piece of cove moulding that is covering it. Should you find it impossible to determine the type of joint, see whether you can push a knife blade upward along the riser a little way into the tread. If you can, it's a rabbeted joint. If you can't, it's a butt joint.

The purpose of finding out the type of joint is that each requires a different method of repair. If it is a butt joint, you will have to drive finishing nails through the tread and into the riser. Have someone stand on the tread to push it close to the riser. Drive two finishing nails through the tread at angles so that the points of the nails come together or nearly together when they enter the riser.

When driven all the way, the nails thus would form a V inside the wood. Whether you need one pair of nails or more depends on whether the first set corrects the problem. This will have to be done on each tread where there is a squeak.

If the joint is rabbeted, the solution is to drive small wood wedges upward into the joint after first coating them with wood glue. It may be necessary, especially if carpeting won't cover the repair, to use a sharp knife to slice off any part of each wedge that is still visible.

Driver Training Pays Dividends

NORTH KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Professional driver training programs of the nation's trucking companies have made a significant reduction in the accident rates, according to a truck supply manufacturer.

Jack F. Whitaker, president of Whitaker Cable Corp., said industry figures show trucks are involved in only 15 accidents per million vehicle-miles travels, compared to about 29 accidents per million vehicle-miles traveled by passenger cars.

A Guidebook For Householders

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Whether you're laying in the week's groceries, filling out your wardrobe or looking for a new house, it's wise to have a shopping plan.

Haphazard shopping can wreck a budget and result in disappointment. When too many impulse purchases strain the food budget, however, a week of spaghetti, hot dogs and hamburgers can set it right. The wrong dress will hang in the closet a year or two at most.

But the wrong house is something you—and the whole family—may have to live with for years. Finding the right home probably is the mc difficult, as well as the most expensive, decision the average family makes.

To organize nd simplify the job, State Farm Fire and Casualty Co., Bloomington, Ill., has just issued a 24-page working guidebook for househunters.

Detailed Inspection

The booklet is divided into three sections, each designed for use at a different stage in the serch for the right house. "The guide won't be needed for most of the homes you look at," the company notes. "You'll know pretty quickly whether you're interested in them or not. But it can help you make a final decision when all but two or three possibilities have been eliminated.

The first section is a Quick Check providing at a glance essential information about three possible choices. The second, a basic check, goes into more detail regarding the physical aspects of the three most likely prospects. Section Three is a Detailed Inspection of the one home which seems most suitable, to help void overlooking any important points.

Layout Most Important

In its basic check for living areas, the guide covers the following points:

—General. Layout is most important. Should provide free traffic flow. Keep family's living style in mind. Anticipate problem areas. Ideally, kitchen and living room should have southern exposure to get plenty of sunlight. Empty rooms can appear deceptively large. Get measurements, not placement of windows, doors, etc. to make sure furniture will fit. If home has wallpaper you don't like, remember it can be a chore for you to remove, expensive to have it done.

—Kitchen. Probably most important single room. Also most costly on square-foot basis. Keep in mind if it needs remodeling. Check layout, placement of stove, refrigerator, sink, counters for efficiency. Ask what ppliances come with house, how old they are. See that they're in good working order. Kitchen close to garage, laundry room, family room, patio, can save steps. Ventilation over range a plus.

—Living Room. Size most important factor, followed by layout, location. Measure, sketch rough layout to see if furniture will fit. Foyer preferable to door opening directly into room. Reduces drafts, provides privacy. In older house, especially, fireplace may not be in working order. Check. Coat closet should be handy. Check number, location of electrical outlets, wall switches.

Garden Questions

Q. What would be the cause of pansy plants growing long stems and very small flowers? (Mrs. W. S., Winston-Salem)

A. Too much shade, or overcrowding. A good strain of seed, a good soil, protection in case of severe cold, and not too much shade are necessary for good results in growing pansies. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. Last winter I pruned my Concord grape vine. It was four years old and had not been pruned before. The vine grew well last summer but had practically no grapes. Could pruning have had anyting to do with this problem? (Mrs. G. W., Mortanton)

A. Yes, Improper pruning caused you to lose a crop of grapes. Grapes grow on the current season's growth that comes out of one-year-old canes. If you cut off all the one-year-old canes, then you get no grapes. This winter leave about four pencil size canes that grew last year. Cut them back to 10 to 12 buds, and you should have a good crop of fruit next summer. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. What different methods can be used to propagate roses? (M.C., Ringwood)

A. Rose varieties may be propagated by budding, grafting, cuttings, and layering (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. I heard on the radio that it is not good to plant squash and gourds together. Why? (Mrs. B.D., LaGrange)

A. Because some squashes and gourds belong to the same species and will readily cross pollinate. Most ornamental cucurbits—mock orange, crown of thorns, bicolored types, etc.—belong to the same group as yellow summer squash. Dipper types and luffa (sponge types) gourds are in separate groups and may be planted together or with most other types. The best way to avoid cross pollination is to examine the stem attachment on the fruit. Varieties with similar stem attachment are very likely to cross pollinate. The only sure way to produce pure seed from groups that will cross pollinate is cover both male and female flowers with a plastic bag and pollinate them by hand. (George Hughes, extension horticulturist)

Real Estate

By Louis E. Clark, GRI
REALTOR

WHAT GOES WITH HOUSE?

Real estate is usually defined as the land and everything attached to it, such as: buildings, trees, shrubs, etc. The buyer normally gets all of the real estate, but none of the owner's personal property. The problem arises when personal property has become a part of the real estate. This is called a fixture and does pass with the real estate.

There are three usual test which must be satisfied. Has the personal property been permanently annexed to the real estate? Is it intended to become part of the real estate? And finally, what is the local custom? Usual fixtures might include: shades, heaters, ranges, screens, storm windows, lighting fixtures, etc.

It is important that the seller spell out specifically in his sales agreement exactly what he intends to give to the buyer as part of real estate. This will save misunderstanding at the closing, and sometimes save a sale.

Cold City of Culture

EDITOR'S NOTE — The Kremlin views this city of culture and 18th century architecture with some distrust. On the other hand, one resident of Leningrad dismisses Moscow as a "Tartar village." Leningrad, or "Peter," as the people call it, is friendly to a point and wrapped in history. Or you might meet a rock group wearing wraparound sunglasses that will serenade you with "Baby Wha'd I Say?" In English.

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

LENINGRAD (AP) — Like a mammoth found under the northern ice, St. Petersburg is preserved almost intact. Some people claim they can hear its heartbeat in faint counterpoint to the official cadence.

When Leningraders refer to their city as "Peter," it is not out of nostalgia for Tsarism.

It comes close to a collective recognition that the city retains the cultural advance it gained over the rest of the country more than 200 years ago.

Standing on the embankment across the gray and icy Neva River from The Hermitage, one Leningrad intellectual remarked: "When Moscow wants to know something about art, literature, music of good taste, they come here."

Expressing this sentiment in another way, a young poet exclaimed, "Moscow is a Tartar village."

Although Leningrad was the cradle of the Bolshevik revolution, the break in Russia's history is less apparent here than anywhere else in the Soviet Union.

There's not the atmosphere on a political midway that prevails in Moscow. No Kewpie-doll Lenins disturb the 18th-century harmony of the original architects, and downtown there are no great garish Red banners exhorting an indifferent labor force to bring Communist party decisions "into life."

Because of its striking difference, the former capital has traditionally invited envy and distrust from Lenin's successors in Moscow. The Kremlin appoints outsiders to govern.

"They are afraid of our independence so they send us Voyevody," a student explained, deliberately choosing the old Tsarist term for military governors.

The job of being the party "Voyevody" in Leningrad hasn't been a uniform blessing for most of the nominees. Zinoviev and Popkov were executed, Zhdanov died in mysterious circumstances, and Kirov was murdered, probably on Stalin's orders. Just last year, Leningrad party chief V.S. Tolstikov was exiled as ambassador to Peking.

An understandably nervous local party organization in turn keeps the screws tight on anything resembling political dissent.

The authorities, however, seem compelled to permit much greater variety in non-political life.

Peter the Great's window to the west is frosted over but some light manages to slip through.

The more enterprising youth are as well versed in jazz and rock as their peers in Stockholm, Paris or Rome. If they're almost as well dressed it's due to private deals made with the thousands of Finns who come on weekends to enjoy limitless drinking and a change of air.

Young men wear their hair long, a fact obliquely and belatedly approved by the Leingrad party newspaper recently when it noted that "although men's hair fasions change more slowly than women's, they don't stand still. The modern hair style is longer."

And Leningrad girls have discovered that the effectiveness of eye makeup is not necessarily an absolute function of quantity.

People are more relaxed and polite. Ask a Leningrader directions and, likely as not, he'll take you to the bus stop and wait with you until the right one comes along. There's enough residual rudeness so you know you're back in the U.S.S.R., but there's nothing to compare with the Olympics-class shoving and shoulder-knocking practiced in Moscow.

Maybe it's that the society is more integrated, a conclusion supported by the observation that public drunkenness is much less visible than in the "Tartar village."

Food provisions seem to be on a par with Moscow — the same shortages of fruit and vegetables prevail, and beef is priced so that a pound costs the average worker 1¼ hours' wages. But there's a difference, typical of the gap between Russia's first and second cities.

Take Yeleseyevsky's, for example. A sort of Russian Fauchon's before the revolution, the store on Nevsky Prospekt is preserved in the same potted-palm, beveled-glass, art nouveau style that would satisfy its emigre founder. Fifty-five years after the revolution the only fruit available is apples, but they have been washed and stacked in neat pyramids. In Moscow apples are served from a dusty bin, like so much coal.

At night in the Baku Restaurant on Sadovaya Street, a rock group with wraparound sunglasses plays to a full house. With more energy than precision they plunge into "Yellow River," "Mammy Blues," "Yesterday" and Baby Wha'd I Say?", all in English except the finale — "Hava-Nagila" to which a Red army artillery captain dances as if there will be no tomorrow.

Item: The Leningrad comedy theater is rehearsing "How To Succeed in Business Without Really Trying."

Can anyone live in Leningrad? No, replies Deputy Mayor Arseniy Alexandrovich Chistyakov. You have to have a permit.

The city government is trying to limit Leningrad's population growth. A ceiling has already been imposed on new industrial construction. Now numbering 3.3 million people within its limits, Leningrad is targeted for no more than 4 million by the year 2000.

Permits are being issued to skilled workers the city needs — these are the people who have priority on new housing — and those with a family reason to settle here. Chistyakov says that almost in spite of itself, Leningrad is growing by more than 30,000 residents a year.

Pompeii's Dancing Faun

THE DANCING FAUN OF POMPEII. . .a small bronze statue in the once buried city at the foot of Mount Vesuvio, is one of the treasures of the Mediterranean art world. The statue, like the city and many of its inhabitants, lay buried for long centuries following an eruption of the volcanic mountain in AD 72. (Photograph by Jerry Raynor)

I AM REAL ESTATE

I am the basis of all wealth, the heritage of the wise, thrifty and prudent.

I am the poor man's joy and comfort, the rich man's prize and the right hand of capital.

I am the solace of the widow, the comfort of old age, the cornerstone of security against misfortune and want. I am handed down to children through generations, as a thing of greatest worth.

I am growing in value. Though I seem dormant, my worth increases, never failing, never ceasing. Time is my aid and population increases my gain.

I am increasing in strength. The centuries find me younger and my possessors learn to believe in me. While all things wither and decay, I survive.

I am trustworthy and sound. Unfailingly I triumph and detractors are disproved.

HANDLE ME WITH CARE!

Entrust me to Better Homes & Realty when you wish to buy, sell or rent.

Single-Handedly Trying To Preserve Dying Culture

By KATHLEEN PALM

FORT KENT, Maine (UPI) — In the St. John River Valley, which some people call the most beautiful part of Maine, a desperate man is racing to save a culture from the ravages of time.

"Every day it's too late," says Roger Paradis. "These old people are taking their treasures to the grave."

Paradis, armed with only a few tape recorders, is single-handedly trying to record the folkways of a vanishing generation of French-Americans who dwell in the Valley.

"It's nothing short of a cultural emergency," Paradis says. "I estimate there are maybe five years left."

Paradis has uncovered an unexplored antropological lode of folktales, songs, crafts and skills that very few people knew existed.

"I have found completely virgin stuff," Paradis says. "I'm just trying to get it all before the old people die. The things they know are amazing and I don't think anyone's ever touched any of it."

Paradis, 38, is French-American, born and bred in the Valley near the Allagash Wilderness on the northern boundary of Maine.

"I couldn't speak English until I was six years old," he says. "It was hard to learn."

Paradis went on to earn advanced degrees from the University of Maine and is an associate professor of Acadian history and French-Candian studies at the Fort Kent branch. The programs are the only such ones taught in an American college, Pardis believes.

He is proud to be a member of a minority that he says has always been scorned and discriminated against in Maine.

Unlike many of his generation Pardis is almost militantly French-American.

"The younger people are ashamed to admit they can even speak French," Paradis said "What I want to do is save the folkways and help Franco-Americans find an identity they can be proud of."

"I think the identity crisis in this country is due largely to the melting-pot mentality. French-Americans in Maine have always felt ashamed because they didn't live up the WASP image of the Yankees."

Paradis is out to change that. He is working with one old man who has repertoire of some 500 folktales he can recite by heart, many of which run to seven hours in length.

The stories are tall tales that deal with mythical lumberjcks, potato farmers, star-crossed lovers, cosmic heroes, and magical animals. Many relate the exploits of heroes from the ancient, almost forgotten days in France.

"Many of the tales and songs crossed the Atlantic when the French emigrated to America," Paradis explains. "I have recorded one song, still commonly sung by the old folks in the Valley, called 'The Treason of Marshal Biron.' This man betrayed Henry VI of France and was executed by the King. But the people loved Biron and composed a song in his honor. When Henry learned about the song he outlawed it. For many years it was a crime to sing the song in France.

"But it survived, all 25 verses of it. Now that's amazing when you consider the song dates from the 1500's and most of these people never heard of Henry IV of France, except as the 'roi' of this song."

Paradis says the people make up their own stories too.

"One old woman here tells 'La Chanton de Blondie.' Her great-greatgrandfather fell in love with beautiful blonde many years ago. He was supposed to visit her one day, but it became very stormy and he was delayed.

"When he finally got to her house he found to his horror that Blondie had been murdered. The old woman has always loved this story and so she composed a folksong commemorating her ancestor's ancient love affair.

"But it's not just songs and tales, though there are literally thousands of these," Paradis says. "These people have created beautiful architecture, exquisite barns and houses with not a nail in them, music, weavings, hundreds of riddles, lullabies, proverbs and sayings."

"One old man I know is an excellent primitive folk artist with over 100 canvasses to his credit. He's what you might call a French-Canadian Grandma Moses," Paradis laughed.

"One man makes violins for the reels the old men compose. Another makes rocking chairs that would be the envy of the Bauhaus School," he says. "All by hand. And these people don't even realize they're extraordinary. They're just doing what they've always done. But their children don't know anything about these things. The culture will soon be dead."

Paradis explained that folklore is "the legacy of an immemorial past.

"Common people are not ignorant," he says. "Their memories are crystal clear. Illiterate people develop beautiful oral traditions to compensate for the lack of the printed word."

Paradis has collected spells, incantations, maxims about sowing and reaping, methods of folk medicine and weather-predicting, all indigenous to the St. John Valley.

He spends 16 hours a day teaching a full academic load and then heading out to work on his self-appointed mission. His wife Anne painstakingly transcribes his tape recordings.

"If I only had a videotape camera with all the videotapes I need, and maybe a technician to run the thing, I'd be in heaven," Paradis says. "It's killing to know there's so much out there I'm losing for lack of equipment."

He has received small grants from the university and the Maine Commission on the Arts and Humanities to continue his work. Ten students help him now and then. But he is still handicapped.

"If I had the equipment I need we could develop a superb collection of folklore that has never been gathered and we could use it in the classrooms. What a marvelous way to teach children French and anthropology," Pardis said.

"You see, we are Americans first and foremost. But we should retain a cultural identity which is French. The preservation of the French language in Maine and the French folkways are basic to that identity.

"I would like to see America become an ethnic mosaic, with each small piece having its own beauty and integrity. But when you step back, all the little pieces should blend into a beautiful harmonius whole," Paradis says.

"I guess that's my dream."

Believer In Psychic Cure

NEW YORK (AP) — Astronaut Edgar D. Mitchell, who conducted ESP tests as he journeyed to and from the moon, has documented a number of cases in which human ailments have benefited from psychic healing.

His studies of the psychic phenomenon and human consciousness, says the sixth man to walk on the moon, are on a higher level than the telepathy tests he ran during the Apollo 14 flight.

Mitchell observes in a new book, "We Are All Healers" by Sally Hammond, that for three months he witnessed an American, who was trained in a Tibetan technique of healing, perform what amounts to miracles. He reports seeing cases of hepatitis remissed in four days as opposed to six months, gallstones removed without surgery and arthritic conditions in which the calcified deposits started to disappear in a few days.

Too Psychedelic For Irish Judge

DUBLIN (AP) — "Discos are a new development designed by the devil for crazy youngsters to make them even more crazy," said Judge Carr, at Naas Court, County Kildare.

He said the psychedelic lights which rotated at high speed could drive people out of their minds.

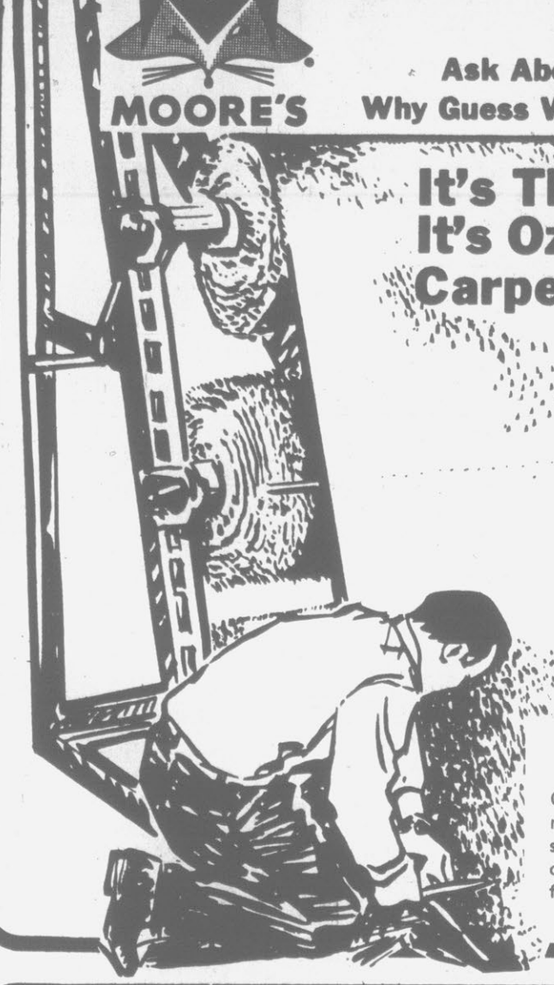

The judge was hearing an objection to the granting of a dance license to an hotel.

Early Aid Solves Some Learning Problems

LEARNING TO READ. . .Mrs. Elizabeth Avery, lead teacher at REAP, works with one of her pupils on remedial reading material.

Accent On Living

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Sunday, January 6, 1974—C-1

By GAIL MICHAELS

Tommy, age 11, rarely sits still in class. He makes foolish responses to the teacher's questions and asks questions which have no relation to the class discussion. He does very poorly in his schoolwork. Yet, all tests show his intelligence to be well above average.

Tommy is one of from three to 20 percent of all school children which have a specific learning disability. Many docotrs theorize that learning disabilities result from a minimal brain dysfunction, an undetectable failure of certain parts of brain to function normally.

A great number of people have brain dysfunctions such as tone deafness, color blindness, or poor coordination. Tommy's problem is much like one of these, but, since his disability is in learning, it affects his life more seriously.

Specialists in learning disabilities work with children to determine what type of disability a child has and then use remedial techniques to treat the child's symptoms. If a child like Tommy receives help early, he can look forward to a productive life, possibly including scholastic honors. If not, his feelings of inadequacy and anxiety over his continual failures may lead him to give up on himself and withdraw from society.

Hyperactivity

Hyperactivity, the inability of a child to sit still for any length of time, is the most common symptom of a child with a specific learning disability. However, some children are hypoactive, sluggish and unresponsive. According to the magazine, "Today's Education," other symptoms which a child might have are: learning deficiencies in a specific area of study; poor coordination; poor attention span—the child cannot pay attention to any one thing for more than a short length of time;

Perseveration—the child is unable to stop an activity even when it is finished. He may be unable to change an incorrect action after being shown the correct way; emotional instability—the child may have temper tantrums or may be anxious for no apparent reason. He may have abnormal difficulty in adjusting to changes in routine;

Impulsiveness—poor auditory discrimination, the child has difficulty distinguishing between sounds like d, p, and g, and words like run, sun, fun; poor visual discrimination—the child may read "b" as "d" and vice versa, "on" as "no", "saw" as "was," etc.;

Poor spatial orientation—the child cannot tell time and is unable to tell the difference between up and down, over and under, inside and outside,; poor visual or auditory memory; disorganization—the child is messy. His questions and responses are inappropriate for his situation:

Area Programs

There are several programs in this area for children with learning disabilities. Mrs. Betty Quinn is in charge of the Pitt model project, one of three such projects in North Carolina. Mrs. Quinn seeks to identify and evaluate children who have learning disabilities in the Pitt County elementary schools.

These children are given remedial work in sessions that may last anywhere from 30 to 60 minutes per day. In addition Mrs. Quinn works with the teachers.

The Greenville City Schools have a variety of programs for school age children with learning disabilities.

There is one porgram in this area for pre-school children with learning problems, REAP. REAP's director, Walter Creekmoore, says that REAP mainly seeks to diagnose the particular disability of the child and develop a program that fits the child's needs. They then place the child back in the family or school setting so that parents and teachers can use the developed program to continue working with the child.

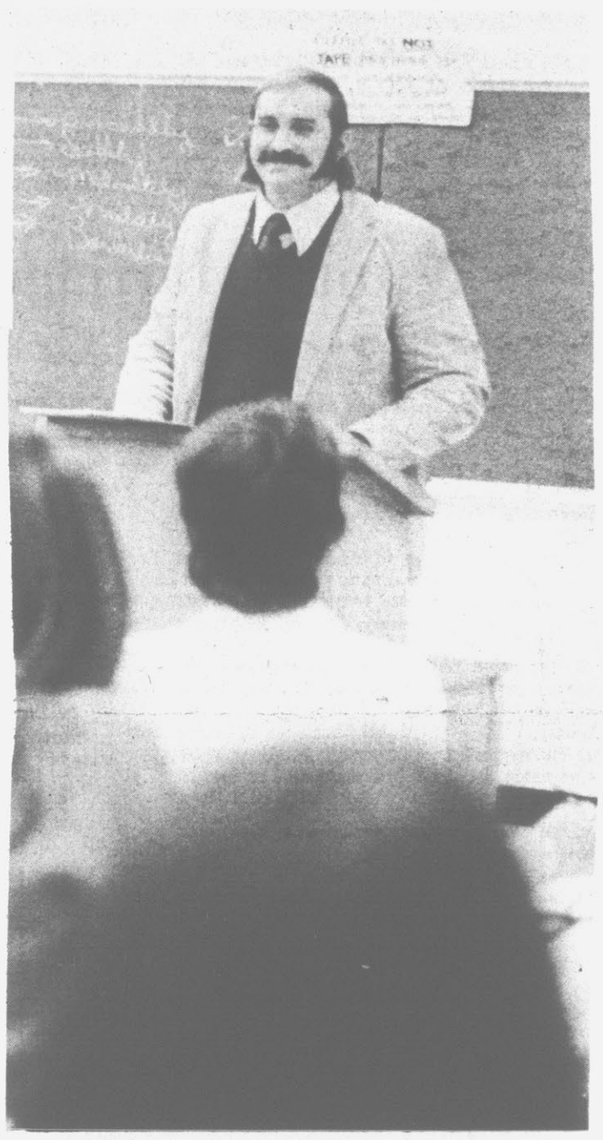

In addition to these programs a new teacher training project has been established at the graduate level in the ECU Special Education Department. Mrs. Betty Levey is coordinator of this program.

According to Mrs. Levey, both teachers and parents in eastern North Carolina have expressed great interest in the program. Students in this program work closely with the Pitt County model program.

There is also a chapter of the Council For Exceptional Children in Greenville. This is for parents and professionals interested in any type of exceptional children.

A GOOD SELF-CONCEPT IS IMPORTANT. . .Mrs. Elizabeth Avery and Mrs. Boots Mills, social worker at REAP, analyze the self-portrait of a six-year-old child with a speech handicap and perceptual motor problem.

TRAINING NEW TEACHERS. . .Walter Creekmore, director of REAP, teaches a class on exceptional children.

Old Year Filled With Good And Bad Moments

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — It was a year that created the dollar drain right at the checkout counter. It was a year when meat became somewhat akin to mink in cost ... a year when keeping warm in winter was no longer a matter of putting on the red flannels.

It was a year with many good and bad moments ... happy times when a princess married a commoner in royal splendor, a happy time when many of the nation's POWs came home from Southeast Asia ... a year of tragedy for the nation's Second Family ... a year when a former First Family observed a saddening 10th anniversary ... a year when an ex-president died.

Women, who traditionally control the family purse strings, found the control rough going in 1973.

Prices Climb

The high cost of living marched higher with each new government price index issued. Soaring food prices caused the most concern.

What happened to our pocketbooks, however, was just one of the many problems with which we groped and coped.

There were Watergate, the meat boycotts, the mortgage crunch, high interest rates and the fuel shortages.

Rep. Ogden Reid, D-N.Y., summed up the food situation thusly: "Runaway food prices are the number one issue. There isn't a housewife on two feet that isn't complaining about it."

And Rep. Pat Schroder, R-Colo., summed up the situation this way: "We were all raised with the notion that this is the land of plenty, the cornucopia. The beef shortage, lack of gas, and housing problems have left people sort of dazed ... they just can't figure out what's going on."

The American family was not alone with scarcities. Its counterpart in Rome, London, Buenos Aires, Tokyo, fought many of the same battles including the food shortage. Meat costs rose throughout the world despite government price controls and campaigns aimed at changing eating habits.

Phase Four

The Nixon administration, hoping it could cope with the situation, put into action its Phase Four—ending the freeze on prices for health care and food, except beef. Phase Four was just another step marking President Nixon's efforts to combat price and wage inflation.

As the year drew to a close, the president assured us that significant progress had been made and that food prices were coming under control.

The high cost of meat and shortages, however, saw housewives and other consumer activists organizing boycotts, turning from beef to fish (which promptly went sky high in price). Stores selling horse meat opened.

In some areas, frantic shoppers stole meat from the supermarkets. Housewives learned to use meat substitutes —cheese, chicken, turkey, eggs, and as one observer suggested, the meat boycott in April was the week "women discovered eggplant."

Produce prices climbed too and put many to work in their own backyard gardens, cultivating vegetables, reminiscent of the Victory gardens of World War II. One resident of an exclusive north Dallas neighborhood turned his backyard into a vegetable garden and frontyard into a wheat field.

The Energy Crisis

As the year moved along, we heard more and more of what, in an over-simplification of the problem, was called "the energy crisis."

The experts had been warning of fuel shortages for years but it all came home sharply as winter came, and there would be few persons not affected in one way or the other.

To help conserve auto fuel, President Nixon called on the motoring public to keep speed limits to 50 miles an hour and urged states to enact legislation to enforce his request.

There was talk that gas rationing would be a fact of life by the end of the year or early in '74. To conserve electric power, many homes planned a reduction or elimination of special holiday lighting. Many stores and city light departments also trimmed or eliminated the yule's glow.

On the women's liberation front, its leaders pushed ahead in matters of employment, politics and government and education. But their one major disappointment was in failing to get the equal rights for women amendment—referred to as ERA—ratified by the necessary 38 states.

Changes, Anyway

But as foes of the amendment massed their forces, a constitutional expert at Columbia University, Ruth Bader Ginsburg, saw changes for the modern woman anyway.

"We are living in a far different time from the era when women won the right to vote (the 19th amendment adopted Aug. 26, 1920)," she said. "The women's movement today is not going to lose momentum and fold ... no matter what happens to ERA."

Women progressed on several fronts individually in '73 also.

Dr. Dixy Lee Ray, a 59-year-old marine biologist, became the first woman chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Dr. Ruth Lewis Farkas, wife of the department store tycoon, was named Ambassador to Luxembourg. Mrs. Perle Mesta once had the same job.

The widow of former House Majority Leader Hale Boggs became the first congresswoman in Louisiana history by winning in a special election to fill her late husband's seat.

Jeanne M. Holm became the first woman two-star general in U.S. military history. She directs Women in the Air Force (WAF).

General Holm brought women's Lib into the air force, ending the practice of recruiting women only as stenographers and clerks.

Lt. Col. Nancy Hopfenspirger took command of the U.S. Army post in Wurzburg, Germany—the first woman to hold such a major army command overseas.

Change in Military

The whole pattern of women in the military is changing. During the year, the military reported that one of every nine Air Force recruits was a girl. That worked out to 11 per cent. Six per cent of Army and Navy recruits were women, a big change from just a few years ago when only two per cent of the armes forces was female.

Billy Jean King served up a solid blow for women's Lib and women athletes when she thumped that male chauvinist Robert Larrimore Riggs in the highly-publizied challenge tennis match in Houston.

One sportswriter said the 29-year-old Mrs. King, long an activist in women's liberation, played against Riggs, 55, with "all the caution of a Kamikaze pilot and all the femininity of a roller derby star."

Special Awards

The National Organization for Women (NOW) of the feminist movement decided on some special awards for male chauvinism in '73. It cited, among others, Vanguard Records for a "Keeping Her in Her Place" award for recording the song, "Get Your Biscuits in the Oven and Your Buns in Bed."

Meanwhile, more wives took outside jobs. One reason—to supplement family income as living costs skyrocketed. Another — more opportunities for women opening in white collar and service jobs.

The U.S. Census Bureau said the 1972 head-count showed 40 out of every 100 wives in the labor force, compared with 25 out of every 100 in 1950.

We wound down the fighting in Southeast Asia. And a whole nation watched as television recorded the return of the first prisoners of war, symbol and victims of a decade of agonizing war. Eventually nearly 500 POWs came home.

In an historic resolution of the fiercely contested issue, the U.S. Supreme Court overruled all state laws that prohibit or restrict a woman's right to obtain an abortion during her first three months of pregnancy.

The court drafted a new set of national guidelines that would result in broadly liberalized anti-abortion laws in 46 states. But it did not abolish restrictions altogether.

A Baby Bust

There was no connection, but the government reported the nation was in the middle of a "baby bust". Statisticians reported the fertility rate in 1972 fell to 2.03 children per family, significantly below the "replacement level" of 2.1 children.

Some families, however, were helping to keep the large family image going.

Sextuplets were born to Edna and Eugene Stanek, of Denver. One of the six died shortly after birth, however. Stanek is an accountant.

In Portland, Ore., Mrs. Eric Anderson, wife of a Brush Prairie, Wash., metal salesman, gave birth to quintuplets. Quints also were born to Mrs. James Baer of Northbrook, Ill. Baer is a stockbroker. All three of the women had taken fertility drugs.

The continuing Watergate investigation had many repercussions in the women's world. Mrs. Richard Nixon mostly remained silent on the issues which reached right to the White House. But daughter Julie did not.

Julie—Mrs. David Eisenhower—spoke out frequently and vehemently, always defending the president—"I believe in my father and I believe in his administration," she said again and again. The Watergate affair, she told audiences and interviewers, had brought the Nixon family closer together.

MISS LYNDA FAYE BYRD—is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Byrd of Rt. 8, Greenville, who announce her engagement to Eddie Alfred Edwards, son of Mrs. Alice Edwards of Rt. 2, Chocowinity, and the late Mr. Thelbert Edwards. The wedding will take place Feb. 2.

Old Year. . .

In the vice-presidency, it was another thing. Spiro T. Agnew resigned, confessing to income tax evasion.

Moves Into Limelight

And another Second Family moved into the limelight with President Nixon's nomination of Gerald R. Ford, the House Republican leader, to replace Agnew. It would mean many changes for the Fords and their four children, even though the Fords have been on the Washington scene for 25 years.

The number of presidential widows became four when Lyndon B. Johnson died January 22. Mrs. Johnson, 60, said after she got her husband's business matters in order, she would resume public life on a limited scale with her work on beautification of America a major interest.

The other women, for whom the White House was a common bond, are Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Mrs. Harry S. Truman, and Mrs. Aristotle Onassis, the former Jacqueline Kennedy.

For the Kennedys, the year marked the 10th anniversary of the assassination of the 35th president. The widow had remarried in 1968 to the elderly Greek shipping tycoon and settled down to life in New York and Greece.

The children, Caroline and John, had grown into their teens and friends said they seemed to bear no scars of the tragedy that marred their early years on that November 22, 1963.

Another Kennedy married in '73—Kathleen, 22, eldest of 11 children of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, wed David Lee Townsend, a graduate student at Harvard and her former tutor on Southern writers.

Wedding of Year

The wedding of the year, however, was that of Princess Anne, 23, to Capt. Mark Phillips, 25. Anne, fourth in line to succession to the British throne (her three brothers have precedence), was married to her commoner husband in historic Westminster Abbey in London. It was a glittering ceremony with all the pomp and pageantry which the British do so well on great occasions.

Several couples headed for Splittsville in '73.

Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor separated and announced plans for a divorce.

Former U.S. Attorney General John Mitchell reportedly had moved out of the Mitchell's cooperative apartment on Fifth Avenue and was living at a hotel, name not disclosed.

In Annapolis, Maryland's Gov. Marvin Mandel moved out of the executive mansion and announced he would seek a divorce from his wife of 32 years to marry a southern Maryland divorcee. Barbara Mandel said she intended to stay Mrs. Mandel.

And Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis' sister, Lee Radziwill, announced the end of her marriage to Stanislas Radziwill, of Polish aristocracy. The couple had two children.

In Fashion

In the world of fashion, most everything seemed to be in a holding pattern—no drastic changes in hemlines or waistlines in '73. You had to count in, however, the continuation of the exaggerated platform shoes both sexes took to in '72.

Father Wants Marriage References

c 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A young man was asked by his girl friend's father to provide "references" before he'd consent to the marriage.

The young man didn't like the idea, and you agreed that "getting married wasn't like applying for a job."

You are both wrong! When one marries, he tackles the toughest job of all.

The father basically is trying to insure the success of his daughter's marriage. Such a realistic view is long overdue, and should be legislated into existence. This could reduce the number of broken homes, juvenile delinquents and the soaring welfare costs.

In my state, you don't drive without a series of classroom and actual driving lessons, plus a written test, and a road test. But all you need for marriage is a blood test and the price of a license.

I think the establishment of a sound family unit deserves at least as much attention and legislation as driving an automobile, don't you? PAWTUCKET, R. I.

DEAR PAW: Of course, but where does one get "references" for marriage? Only a former partner can provide them, and if a man is a widower, his partner is dead. And if he's divorced, his "ex" would probably be the last person to recommend him for marriage.

DEAR ABBY: I lost quite a lot of weight and now my seat is so flabby it looks terrible.

Abby, someone told me that a doctor can lift your seat. Is that true, or was she putting me on? Please tell me because I would give anything to get my seat lifted. Sometimes I feel like I am practically dragging on the ground. I am married and have two children. Sign me . . .

DRAGGING

DEAR DRAGGING: Yes, it's possible. It is called a "thigh lift." I understand that a plastic surgeon can lift just about anything. Today seats . . . tomorrow, the stock market!

DEAR ABBY: Like everyone else who writes to you, I have a problem, but this could be a multimillion-dollar problem. Two years ago [when I was 64] I married a man who was 81. He was not in good health, and I was his wife, cook, housekeeper, chauffeur and nurse—on 24-hour-a-day duty, you might say. When we were married he promised he would leave half of everything he owned to me, and the other half would be divided among his children. He was a wealthy man and owned lots of choice Florida property which his father bought in 1901.

I took him at his word and never asked to see anything in writing. Well, he died recently, and all he left me was $10,000 a year for every year I lived with him. That's only $20,000! The rest his children got.

I feel that I was cheated. I don't want to gamble what money I have to fight the case unless I can win. What are my chances? Do you know a good sharp Florida lawyer who can help me? ROBBED IN LAUDERDALE

DEAR ROBBED: I do not recommend lawyers ["sharp" or dull] but if you don't know one, consult your county or state bar association and they can advise you.

Miss Virginia Underwood Weds

Miss Virginia Vincent Underwood and Leo Frederick Bass were united in marriage Saturday at 3:00 p.m. in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The Rev. Troy Barrett, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Leon Russell, a former pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bobbitt Underwood Jr. of Greenville. Mr. Bass is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Freedom Bass of Fuquay-Varina.

Mrs. Paul A. Toll, organist, and Mrs. Herbert Waldrop Jr. presented the wedding music. Mrs. Waldrop sang "How Do I Love Thee" and "Entreat Me Not To Leave Thee". Following the Lord's Prayer the "Wedding Prayer" was sung.

The bride carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses, tips of baker's fern tied with yellow velvet bows with long streamers.

The attendants carried nosegays of shades of pinks, lavender and fuschia miniature carnations tied with heavenly blue velvet, a shade darker than their gowns.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory gown fashioned of silk organza which was appliqued with chantilly lace. The long sleeves were fitted and had V-notched cuffs which were edged with matching lace. The gown had a flared A-line skirt with a chapel length train appliqued with chantilly lace. An ivory elbow length veil completed her ensemble.

Mrs. D. Michael Langston of Greenville was matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of peacock chiffon designed with a high neckline encircled with matching Venise lace threaded with aqua satin. Matching trim was featured on the empire bodice and cuffs of full bishop sleeves.

MRS. LEO FREDERICK BASS

Bridesmaids were Miss Kay Wilson, Miss Carol Patterson and Mrs. Thomas Wyche, all of Greenville, Miss Anita Small cousin of the bride, of Elizabeth City, Mrs. Mark Dean, sister of the bride groom, of Lenoir, and Mrs. Sherrill Daniels of Cary. The bridesmaids wore dresses of aqua chiffon high rise with beige cotton lace trimming beneath the bustline, neckline and cuffs. The bottoms of the dresses were ruffled and full.

Mrs. Underwood, mother of the bride, wore a full length dress of champagne poly-satin skirt and bodice woven with gold threads. Her corsage was green cymbiduim orchids.

The mother of the bridegroom was attired in a pink polyester double knit floor length dress and coat ensemble with matching beaded cotton Venise lace encircling the coat. Her corsage was white cymbiduim orchids.

Mr. Bass served as best man for his son. Groomsmen were Ervin Surratt of Jackson Hill, Tom Allen of Raleigh, and Joseph Stroud of Fuquay-Varina, Ted Powell of Condord, TSgt. Harold Bass, cousin of the bride groom, of Hurlburt AFB, Fla., and Robert Underwood, brother of the bride, of Chapel Hill.

Mrs. W. L. Cox directed the wedding.

The bride is a graduate of Rose High and Louisburg College.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Wingate College and is attending North Carolina State University, Raleigh. He is presently employed by Universal Polymer Products, Inc.

After a wedding trip, the couple will make their home in Fuquay-Varina.

On The Young Side

By MARY CHARLES STEVENS

Rose students reluctantly reopened books this week after a much too short Christmas holiday.

Many enjoyed trying a hand at ice skating during vacation with the opening of a new rink, "The Ice House."

The Saturday Night Youth Group had a banquet New Year's Eve at the First Federal Savings and Loan Building. Their program consisted of games, singing, special music and speakers.

The special music consisted of a trio composed of Sylvia Carraway, Terry Leggett, and Nancy Barber and selections by the Outreach Singers.

The Outreach Singers are a group of youth group members who were organized in May by Chuck Barber and Sam Smith. They sing for churches and civic groups. This ensemble is formed by Sylvia Carraway, Terry Leggett, Nancy Barber, Elizabeth Smith, Carol Hackett, Janet Hackett, LuAnn Snowden, Nancy Troutman, Mary Roberts, Deborah Lambeth, Barbara Clemens, Becky Clemens, Alvin LeRoux, guitar players Jeff Barber and Keith James and director, Steve Midgette.

Mexico Trip

Rose students Johnny and David Mattheis traveled to Mexico for 17 days during the Christmas holidays with sisters Mary and Jane, brother Joe and parents. They drove straight to Mexico City where they stayed for five days and watched a series of six bull fights in the largest arena in the world. During the day they enjoyed visiting the Aztec pyramids and ancient churches while at night they walked through the central square, which was brightly illuminated with Christmas lights.

They also viewed the site of the 1972 Olympics. Christmas Day was spent in Tampico swinging at a pinata in their hotel. The Mexicans don't celebrate Christmas Day until Jan. 6 and the children get out of school at this time for a three month holiday. Monterey and Loredo were included in the list of cities the Mattheis family visited.

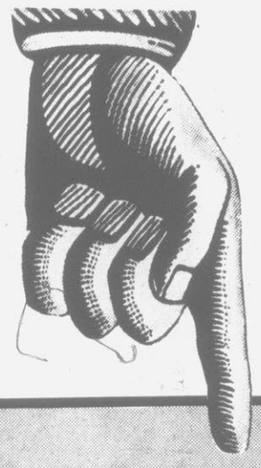

This school year's first Rose High Report will be presented Monday night at seven o'clock on WOOW Radio. Stuart Wells and Jackie Ferebee will give this five-minute presentation of news around Rose.

Second Production

Headed toward their second major production, the Rose High Arts Departments are aiming towards an April presentation of the speretta, "The Red Mill" by Victor Herbert.

Tryouts for singers, actors and dancers will take place at the end of this month and are open to any Rose students. The script calls for four male non-singing roles as well as singing ones. Positions are also open to any students who wish to participate on scenery crews, make-up, back stage, etc. The orchestra will consist of the Rose band as well as a few Junior High students and various others who are interested.

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

A staff aide to President Richard Nixon and a member of his news summary staff spent the holidays here. Why in Greenville? Because this is her hometown.

Sherby Everett McGrath and her husband, Jim, were visiting her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Grover Everett.

In describing her job, Sherby said, "We prepare a 10-20 page summary of news stories from wire services, newspapers, TV shows, columns and editorials daily for the president.

The publication is on his desk by 7 a.m. every morning so that he can get a review of the total news scene before he starts his daily routine of appointments."

"When there is a special event such as a major speech on TV, we inform President Nixon immediately of what the commentators are saying about it," she continued.

"The six-member summary staff searches 60 papers from across the United States daily for editorials and columns of interest and cartoons. We check national magazines weekly for similar coverage. Our main objective is to give the President a reading of the mood of the country," added Sherby.

Speaking out on Watergate, Sherby remarked, "The people involved in Watergate were only a small part of the administration and Federal Government as a whole. What they did was obviously wrong and their cases should be taken care of in the courts. The majority of people working in the administration are honest and hard working people who are trying to serve their country and it's a shame that many of them are being tarred by the Watergate brush.

"As for impeachment, I think personally it would cause much more unrest and confusion than already exist but arguement that the impeachment process would be the only way to clear up Watergate once and for all does have much validity. If Congress elects to take this course it should do so forthrightly and without any foot dragging or I believe the U. S. would be in more trouble than it seems to be in today.

"On occasion we see various senators and congressmen. I have met Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and David and Julie Eisenhower. It's not a glamor job but it's interesting, informative and gives valuable insight into politics and the workings of the government," she concluded.

A graduate of Rose High School and Wake Forest University, Sherby worked on The Baltimore Sun as a staff reporter, for Rouse Co. as a writer and for "U. S. News and World Report" as an advertising copy writer.

Swimsuits Are Covering More

By MAXINE YEE

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Coverup and support are available in many of the West Coast's 1974 spring and resort swimwear collections for the woman who bags and sags or is well-endowed.

Showings by the California Fashion Designers exposed a more practical swimsuit that can go anywhere, do anything. In many collections, there was more coverup than skin.

Taking full advantage of the lighweight Lycra, Spandex, Antron and nylon fabrics, many suits are one-piece and have very little padding.

Cole of California presents a collection of unrestraining swimwear. The support comes from a well-engineered lining that hugs the body without being heavy and padded. Straps are well placed, with many drawn to the center back and clasped.

Sandcastle takes full advantage of the maillet, a simple one-piece suit. It designs many high-necked suits.

Casa Di Cole emphasizes quality and wearability, with easy comfort and easy care. The lean, tapered look is evident with sexy but simple suits. Again, the heavy padded bras are eliminated, with support coming from a built-in triangle that maintains the natural look.

Poppy Line

Nostalgia pervades the Poppy Line this year, with designer Kathy Brown going back to the 1940s for many of her ideas. A Poppy suit, created for the 18 or the 80 set, requires a little money, a relatively good figure and a young spirit.

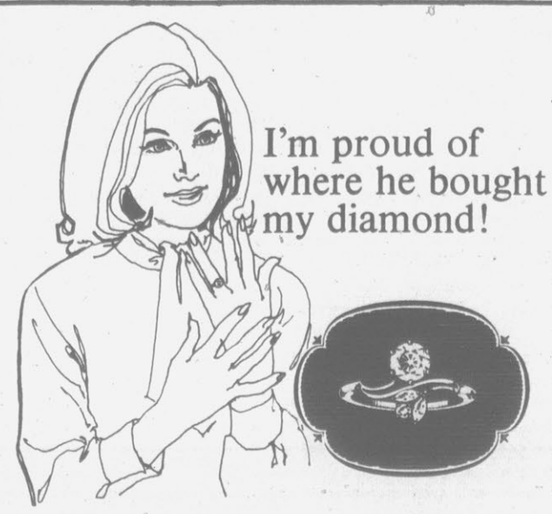

Softly sculptured bras make smooth, sexy bodysuits with 40s shirring and draping in Antron, nylon and Lycra. The ever popular denim takes on a new dimension with little touches of hand embroidery.

The bikinis aren't all dead, with Poppy reviving the teensiest bikinis to combine with matching accessories.

Deweese Designs, a firm that fills the void between the young set and the misses consumer, in customary fashion emphasizes control in a fashionable way. Where control is needed, a padded bra is expertly constructed into the suit. Many have the convertible twin back straps that can be worn as a halter.

To accompany the swimsuits, all designers offer a line of sundresses for beach, patio or entertaining. Ankle-length skirts, flowing caftans and long coverups, with or without the halter effect, are ever-present.

Variations come in the wrap-style, the V-necks, the tiny tucks and soft gathering, the exotic designs and colors and the delicate fabrics.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My husband and I suffered a "culture attack" the other night and attended a rather heavy play adapted for the screen.

We knew it was class because the popcorn machine was silent, the movie was in black and white and there was no line to get in.

Several hours later we emerged, climbed into the car and discussed the movie on the way home.

My husband spoke. "I for one was certainly impressed with his handling of an obsessional theme."

"I know," I said. "It's rare when you can find an author who snubs ambiguity and never violates his integrity with his characterizations."

"Were you offended by the humiliation heaped on the heroine by the abusive sons and their father?"

"Heavens, no," I said. "I felt she gave a rather artistic interpretation and a deep dimension to a role which could have been rather mechanical and awkward."

"I couldn't agree more," he nodded vigorously. "She was flawless in her brutal sensitivity in putting each man in his place. I hate character compromise!"

"And so do I," I nodded.

"You know, all the time I was sitting there," he continued, "I kept wondering what has happened to the taste of the masses. You can't get blunt, daring drama like that between a deodorant and a cat food commercial."

"That is so true," I said. "Can you see the average family sitting through a paradox that strips away the veneer of pretense and reveals in flawless detail the essence of a real being?"

He laughed giddily. "I can just see Mr. America when the uncle fell dead on his face in the living room and no one seemed to notice him."

"You are too funny," I said, trying to retain my composure. We rode in silence.

"By the way," I said, "why did they let the uncle just lie there on his face and act like he wasn't there?"

"Wasn't it obvious?" asked my husband. "That the author's every pause and gesture was measured by caliper so that the precision never became deadening?"

"Where did you hear that?" I asked.

"Read it in Time magazine."

"Did you really understand the play?" I asked.

"Not a word," he said.

Mother Goose Was A Busy Body

STORRS, Conn. (AP) — Mother Goose, the author, was a village busy body and a common sense philosopher who lived in a religious age, says a university professor.

Wilson Curren Snipes, writing in a children's literature journal published here, says that from a biographical perspective, Mother Goose "knew many intimate details of the life of her community, based on Mrs. Goose's detailed knowledge of Jack Horner, Mrs. McShuttle, Doctor Foster, Jack and Mrs. Sprat, Old Mother Hubbard and Simple Simon."

Snipes is head of the English department at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University. His article is in the journal "Children's Literature, The Great Excluded," published by the Children's Literature Association.

The journal is edited by Francelia Butler, a member of the University of Connecticut English department.

Snipes says Mrs. Goose "Liked children...had a special interest in animals...and followed some questionable eating habits — "pease porridge NINE days old."

Viewing the authoress through the socio-cultural looking glass Snipes says the characters of her age included bakers, joiners to make coffins, fishmongers, tailors, cobblers and a monarch, "Old King Cole."

"Mrs. Goose lived in a religious age. 'Little Fred always said his prayers when he went to bed.' In 'Matthew, Mark, Luke and John' we hear Mrs. Goose saying 'Bless and bed I lie on.'"

To the humanist critic, the question is what are the ethical qualities to be found in Mrs. Goose's work? She "made clear the importance of moral responsibilities — Little Boy tending his sheep, Tom Piper's son was beaten for stealing a pig, Taggy who stole a piece of beef was beaten on the head and Little Johnny Stout who put pussy in the well was considered a naughty boy."

To the new, or formalist critic, says Snipes, the question involves the work itself.

Mrs. Goose's works are playful, imaginative, musical, humorous, symbolic and paradoxical, he writes.

He says that to the psychoanalytic critic's eye, one of the most interesting Mother Goose poems is the familiar "One, two, buckle my shoe..." He says the poem reveals values parents teach girls as they grow up but also poses a problem to some editors.

The last line reads "nineteen, twenty, my stomach's empty."

In context with previous lines — courting, kissing and waiting — the stomach being empty does not make sense, Snipes writes.

"I am prone to think the editor has taken privilege with Mrs. Goose's verses. It may be that the House Un-American Activities Committee will investigate both sides of the matter, or the Illinois American Legion will attack Mother Goose for indecency," he says.

Professor Butler, in the introduction to the journal, notes that there is an increasing academic interest in children's literature, a subject which many people used to snub.

"Now with lowered enrollments in colleges throughout the country and the urgent need to pay attention to student interest, scholars who have hitherto stuck their noses up at children's literature are having their noses forcibly stuck into it," she says.

Costume Winners Named At Celebration

GARDNERVILLE—On New Year's Eve, an old-fashioned celebration was observed in the fellowship hall of the Timothy Christian Church. Guests were dressed in costumes ranging from the early 1900's until present day.

The hall was lighted with old-fashioned kerosene lamps. At 8:30 p.m., blackeyed peas, corn bread and hog jowl was served from an iron pot buffet style.

Old fashioned games were played and winners named. Robert Halstead Sr. and Mrs. Cannie Dixon were masters of ceremonies. Mrs. Alton Gardner, painist, accompanied the group in singing songs.

Costume judges were Mrs. Vera Smith, Mrs. Katherine Gaskins, Mrs. Dessie Stanley and Alton Gardner. Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Buck, dressed as Jed Clamplett and Granny, were first place winners while Jr. and Mrs. Wiley Stancil Jr. were runners-up.

A candlelighting service and silent meditation at midnight concluded the evening's activities.

Insults Not Easily Forgiven Or Forgotten By Child

BETWEEN US
By DR. HAIM GINOTT

Note to readers: The encounters depicted in my column are designed to serve as a practical guide to improved communication. They are not to be taken literally. They should be adapted to individual situations and individual ways of speaking.

A TEACHER SHOULD NEVER humiliate a child or ridicule his family. Insults cut deep and are not easily forgiven or forgotten. I heard the following story from a noted lawyer with a humble background. He recalled his school days and talked with a burning hatred about one teacher. He said:

"I made the mistake of telling my teacher that I wanted to be a lawyer. He laughed at my ambition and took special pains to discourage me. He used to ask me in front of my friends, 'George, isn't your father a baker? Doesn't he have a bakery? Well, if I were you, I'd spend more time in the bakery and less time in school. Baking is a good trade. And, you'll never be good in anything else.' This happened 40 years ago, but I still hate this teacher with a passion. You know why? Because I believed him. Whenever I failed in anything I said to myself, 'The teacher was right. I'll never be good in anything.' It took me years to get over his false prediction and realize that I was a capable person."

AN EDUCATOR demonstrates civilized ways of dealing with hostile feelings. Unfortunately, the reverse is often true: the teacher himself, when provoked, engages in gutter rhetoric.

A teacher, in this example, overheard a boy calling a girl names.

Teacher: Stop this name-calling!

Boy: But she's such a weirdo!

Teacher: You are an ill-mannered, rude, bad-mouthed weirdo yourself.

A teacher should point up a child's talent, to give him hope that he is capable of learning and making a good life for himself. The following tells an opposite tendency: A teacher destroying a child's self-confidence.

Child: Mrs. R., I did all my homework except the last question: I just didn't understand it.

Teacher: How could you not understand that question? There's nothing to understand about it. We've been doing it all year. I can't accept that as an excuse. If you don't know that, then there is something definitely wrong with you!

A WISE TEACHER is not provoked into trading barbs or hurling insults, as the teacher in the following episode did.

Aron, 17, an avid chemistry major, came in after school to finish an experiment. His teacher said: "Be sure not to mix up the chemicals."

"For heaven's sake," answered Aron, defensively, do you think I am an idiot?"

"Yes," replied the teacher. "I consider every student an idiot until he proves to me otherwise."

The teacher's response lacked elementary respect for her students as human beings. It takes quite a bit of chutzpah (effrontery), to prejudge and label a whole class of students as idiots. The teacher would have been more pedagogical had she replied to Aron's defensive question with an undefensive answer such as: "I really have faith in your ability to carry out your experiment even without my warning."

A SARCASTIC STYLE IS TABOO. Teacher asked Valeire, 9, a question. Valerie started to answer. The teacher interrupted.

"You're talking too fast! What's your hurry? Where's the fire? I'd bet you yourself can't hear what you're saying."

The children started laughing, while Valerie stood confused and embarrassed.

A good educator is sensitive to children's feelings. He is never abrasive in replies or requests. To a fast-talker a teacher can say: "I don't want to miss any of your words." This gentle reminder would have a gracious impact.

"I told teacher I wanted to be a lawyer...
He took special pains to discourage me."

Air Defense Priorities Cut By Fuel Shortage

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Because of the fuel pinch, Air National Guard pilots assigned to defend the United States against possible bomber attacks are allowed to fly only when ordered aloft to investigate suspicious planes, a Guard source says.

"They fly only on a direct scramble order from the North American Air Defense Command," the source said Thursday.

The pilots are barred from practicing their aerial skills, including important instrument and night flying, when they are not on runway alert even though their squadrons have been given a first line mission, the source said.

It is this ban on proficiency flying that has prompted military officials to warn that reserve pilots of all the armed services will lose their edge and national security will suffer unless it is relaxed.

Of particular concern to them is the effect on pilots belonging to 19 Air Guard squadrons which have been assigned the major responsibility for continental air defense in recent years. Only seven regular Air Force squadrons serve in that mission.

Guard officials said a part of every squadron is on runway alert at all times. Pilots draw active duty for several days in a row.

The National Guard Bureau reportedly had appealed to Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger to grant air-defense pilots an exemption from the training flight ban he imposed Dec. 21 on the air reserves of all services.

Schlesinger acted after the Federal Energy Office said it would divert up to 1.5 million gallons of military jet fuel to commercial airlines through this month.

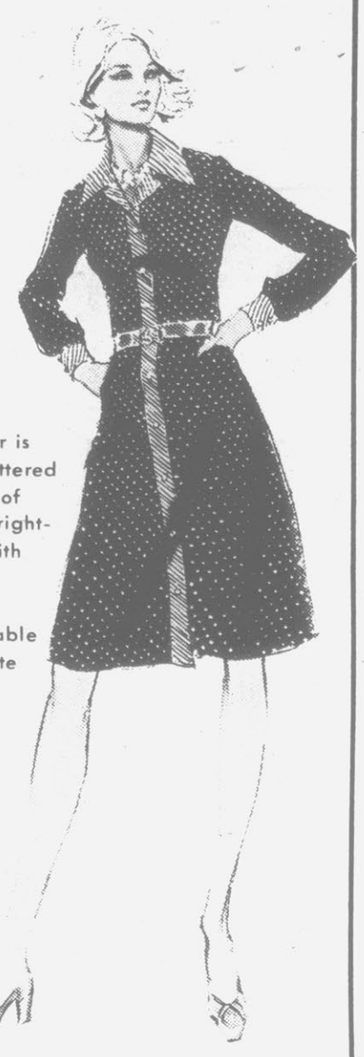

The Pentagon had cut back Regular Air Force, Navy, Marine and Army training flights by as much as 30 per cent even before the energy office ordered the jet fuel diversion. The training of undergraduate pilots also has been stretched out to save fuel.

On Wednesday, the Pentagon announced it had asked the White House and the energy office to boost the military fuel allotment slightly to permit more regular air crew training and to "do something about the Guard and the Reserve stand down."

The Fitzgerald Story

After a summer spent "in drinking and general unpleasantness," F. Scott and Zelda Fitzgerald, along with their daughter Scottie, a French nursemaid, Mademoiselle, and Philippe, a chauffeur-companion for Scott, returned to America for some "judicial tranquility" at Ellerslie, a house outside Wilmington, Delaware.

It is at this point in their lives, in 1928, that the special "ABC Theatre" presentation "F. Scott Fitzgerald and 'The Last of the Belles'," to air on Monday, Jan. 7 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12, picks up the threads of the turbulent life of the acknowledged spokesman for America's Lost Generation.

Richard Chamberlain stars as F. Scott Fitzgerald, the man who wrote "This Side of Paradise," "The Great Gatsby," "Tender Is the Night," "The Last Tycoon," and scores of short stories. Blythe Danner is seen as the flamboyant Zelda Sayre Fitzgerald.

The special, which intertwines a part of the lives of the Fitzgeralds with one of the author's short stories, is a play-within-a-play. Starring in the fictional segment of the special are Susan Sarandon as Ailie Calhoun and David Huffman as Andy McKenna.

Fitzgerald, a man who could not physically tolerate alcohol, was in 1928, drinking heavily. Zelda, searching for an individuality of her own, was obsessed by the thought that she could, at the age of 28, still become a brilliant ballet dancer. She had retreated into a wall of silence which Scott was rarely ever able to penetrate.

Their relationship had become so strained as to embarrass anyone who came to visit. Fitzgerald, always strapped for money, was forced to sell a short story as quickly as possible to pay for their summer in France. "The Last of the Belles," published in the Saturday Evening Post, was one of the stories he wrote at that time.

The couple in "The Last of the Belles" are, of course, Scott and Zelda. It is a romantic, semi-fictional account of their meeting while Scott was in the Army and stationed in Montgomery, Alabama in 1919. The story introduces Andy McKenna, a young Army lieutenant who meets the prettiest and most sought - after girl in Tarleton, Georgia.

The story rests heavily upon the character of Ailie Calhoun (Susan Sarandon), a very Zelda-like young woman, much the same kind of girl Fitzgerald met and fell desperately in love with ten years before he wrote the story.

"The Last of the Belles" originally called "The Georgia Belle" - was sold to "The Saturday Evening Post" for $3500, and appeared in the 2 March 1929, issue. Although it was long fashionable to sneer at Fitzgerald's "Post" stories as hackwork, it is now understood that his 160 stories had a crucial role in his career. Not only did that keep the expensive pot boiling and thus provide Fitzgerald with time, these so-called slick stories were written out of his most personal emotions.

"The Last of the Belles," written at a time when the Fitzgerald's marriage was showing signs of strain, is Fitzgerald's attempt to reappraise his courtship. Indeed, one of the questions the story asks is whether Southern Belles are suited to life outside their natural environment. Because it is a Fitzgerald story, it is permeated with emotions of regret for lost youth, lost love, lost drama.

RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN stars as F. Scott Fitzgerald, with Blythe Danner (right) as his wife, Zelda and Leslie Williams as his daughter Scotty.

Patti Sings In Same Key

If you are in your early twenties, you were born about the time the Andrews Sisters broke up.

If you are in your early thirties, one of the Andrews Sisters' hit records was probably playing on the radio in the hospital where you were born.

And if you are in your early forties, you might have heard the Andrews' first big hit, a reworked Yiddish folk song called "Bei Mir Bist Du Schon."

That was in 1937, the year that Patti, Maxene and Laverne Andrews became overnight stars.

Now, 36 years lager, Patti Andrews, the lead singer and the youngest of the trio, has lost neither her voice nor her enthusiasm for performing, as she proves in a rare television appearance, on "One More Time," an all-star variety special to be broadcast Thursday, Jan. 10 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

"Bei Mir Bist Du Schon" has suddenly become a hot property again. Young performers are singing and recording it as part of the nostalgia movement that is sweeping the country. The Pointer Sisters, who became singing stars in 1973, are one of the group's fascinated with old tunes. Appropriately, Miss Andrews joins them in singing the Andrews Sisters' 1937 hit on "One More Time."

Like most "overnight" successes, the Andrews Sisters hit it big only after seven years of trucking around the country playing the vaudeville circuit with minor bands and living in cheap theatrical hotels.

Born in Minneapolis, the sisters had several years' apprenticeship in kiddie revues before winning a chance to tour the country with Larry Rich's entertainment troupe. Patti was 11 years old at the time. Seven years later, they were brok in New York City. They took a radio booking at $15 a week, and were fired after two weeks.

Just like in the movies of that era, however, a record executive heard them singing, on a taxi radio. He located them and took them to a studio where they recorded two songs on what was to be a fateful record. George Gershwin's "Nice Work If You Can Get It" was the side they were pinning their hopes on. "Bei Mir Bist Du Schon" was the flip side — more or less a throwaway.

They did the record for a flat fee of $50, with no roaylties. But it didn't matter. The record sold over a million copies, and the Andrews Sisters were on their way.

Over the next decade, they turned out a string of hits that added up to more than 50 million records, songs like "Apple Blossom Time," "Rum and Coca Cola," "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree," "Boogie Woogie Bugle Boy" and dozens of others.

But Patti Andrews isn't living in the past. She loves the new groups and the new music.

"There was a horrible period for music not too long ago, but now it's back on track," she says. "Kids today have really taught us a lot—different meters, different beats—and I'm right with them. Believe it or not, I still sing in the same key as 30 years ago, and I'm never going to stop."

Landon To Star And Direct

"The Little House on the Prairie," on NBC World Premiere movie starring Michael Landon, will begin filming in Arizona in early January. Landon, a star of the long-running "Bonanza" series, will also direct the film, which is based on the book by the late Laura Ingalls Wilder.

The novel is the second of nine "Little House" books by Mrs. Wilder which are regarded as classic Americana. They detail her family's struggle 100 years ago to survive in the American wilderness.

Sunday Sports Show Bows In

"ABC's Wide World of Sports" will premiere its new Sunday 15-week winter version of the award-winning sports series with a special telecast of the world famous Harlem Globetrotters in London, England, with all-time great basketball star Wilt Chamberlain providing the color commentary, plus the Hawaiian Masters Surfing Championship from Oahu, Hawaii, Sunday, Jan. 6 (3:30-5 PM) on Channel 3-5-12.

Sportscaster Keith Jackson will be joined by Chamberlain to describe the Globetrotters court wizardry.

As a special feature, Chamberlain wil join some of the Globbies at center court to reminisce about the days when Chamberlain was a member of the team, and films of him in action as a Globetrotter will be seen.

The Trotters' lineup going in against the New York Nationals includes Marques Haynes (6'0"), Meadowlark Lemon (6'2"), Jackie Jackson (6'5"), Geese Ausbie (6'5") and Bobby Joe Mason (6'4").

By tradition, the Globbies always get the show under way with their own kind of "basketball jam session" at center court with a circle. Beginning in the 1930s, they turned a simple warmup into a kind of art form of speed, tricks, feints, and behind the back and under the leg shots.

In the 1940s, they added another tradition with the playing of the Brother Bones record of "Sweet Georgia Brown." Ever since, the Trotters have been without their lively rendition of that tune.

The Globetrotters began their illustrious career in Hinckley, Ill., in 1929 and have since traveled to at least 89 countries as America's ambassadors in short pants. Their travels have ranged from the Pacific Island of Tahiti to the Royal Court of Queen Elizabeth of England.

'60 Minutes' Will Premiere Sunday

How effective are Arab and Israeli lobbyists in trying to win the support of the American people? Will solar energy one day heat homes and run factories? What effect does the competition of midget football have a on a boy? These are some of the questions CBS News' "60 MINUTES" looks at in the first edition Sunday, Jan. 6 (6-7 p.m.) of its sixth season on Channel 3N-9-11.

In "Propaganda War," co-editor Mike Wallace reports on the efforts of Arab and Israeli lobbyists as they take their case to the American people and the Congress. "60 MINUTES" focuses on Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, Petroleum Minister of Saudi Arabia; Dr. M.T. Mehdi, head of the Action Committee on American-Arab Relations; and I. L. Kenon of the American-Israeli Public Affairs Council— principa protagonists in the war to win "the hearts and minds" of the American people. In addition, Senators Henry Jackson and William Fulbright talk to Wallace about the inroads, if any, each side is making with Congress.

For this story a special CBS News poll is being taken to determine among other things how the American people feel about supporting Israel in the Middle East, whether they think we should pressure Israel into giving back Arab lands if that is the price to get Arab oil flowing again, and whether they feel Israel and American Jews have too much influence on U.S. foreign policy.

Prof. Aron On Eternal Light

"A Conversation with Professor Raymond Aron," distinguished author, political commentator and scholar of world affairs, will be presented as an "Eternal Light" special on Sunday, Jan. 6 (5-6 p.m.). NBC News correspondent Edwin Newman interviewed Professor Aron in Paris.

The two men will discuss, among other subjects, the world scene; the reduction of the probability of nuclear war between the great powers; the education of man to reason; the power of the presidential system in the United States; the international system of waging small wars; foreign policy as a permanent duty and the ideals of liberty and equality.

NEW YEAR, NEW LOOK

This is the time of year when we all make one resolution or another. It's the time for something new in many areas of our life. It might be just the right moment to give your home a "new look." Perhaps you've been postponing changes and selections, but you've got to start somewhere. How about your living room? If you are changing the decor, that calls for a complete turnabout. Or if you are just deciding on a minor investment, it's a good time to make it.

If you are planning new carpeting for your home or business, we would like to come to your assistance. Eastern Carpet Inc., 602 West Greenville Blvd., Greenville. 756-1944. "Where There's Always A Sale."

Sandy Plays A Married Girl

"You know, this is the first time I'll be appearing on television as a married girl who faces all sorts of real-life situations which most of us can recognize," said Sandy Duncan.

She was talking about her co-starring role (with Bill Bixby) in "Married Is Better," the "Bell System Family Theatre" special which will be colorcast on Wednesday, Jan. 9 (10-11 PM) on Channel 6-7.

The comedy with music is based on the poems of Judith Viorst, author of a number of popular books, including "It's Hard to Be Hip Over Thirty and Other Tragedies of Married Life,"

Bonnie With Buddy

"My dad never picks easy things for me to break-in with," says Bonnie Ebsen.

The beautiful blonde offpsring of Buddy Ebsen makes her television acting debut in the role of a militant women's lib advocate in the "Venus as in Flytrap" episode of "Barnaby Jones," starring her father, the second hour of "The Mystery Double Feature: Mannix-Barnaby Jones" (8:30-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

"I made my dancing debut with my dad at a formal dinner honoring Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne," she says. "There were more famous actors in that room than I'd ever seen in my whole life."

She explains that her father, who had been teaching her a couple of his routines, told her only a week before that she would be dancing at the affair. "If he'd told me sooner, I never would have made it," she admits.

"He also took me out in summer stock with him," Miss Ebsen points out. "We did 'Take Her, She's Mine" and "Our Town,' and in both shows my roles were pretty meaty, especially for a newcomer."

Edwards Hosts New TV Game

If performers were awarded letters for each of their show business activities as college athletes are for varsity sports, then Geoff Edwards would be a three-letter man working on his fourth.

Geoff, who hosts the new daytime game series "Jackpot!", would be awarded letters for his work in television, radio and movies. Also, he would be striving for his fourth, since he is "three-quarters through writing my first movie script."

The 5-foot-11, blue-eyed personality believes in keeping busy. In addition to emceeing "Jackpot!" Geoff will continue to host TV's "The New Treasure Hunt," currently being syndicated in 75 major cities, and his daily three-hour morning radio show broadcast in Los Angeles, during which he does comedy bits, comments on topical happenings and plays records.

"I can always remember holding two jobs," Geoff explains.

Edwards, who was born and raised in Westfield, N. J., and received a B. A. degree from Duke University, began his broadcasting career with a radio station in Albany, N. Y. Snowfalls in Albany are measured in feet, not inches, and one winter morning Geoff decided he would be more comfortable working in Florida. Four weeks later he was in the Sunshie State.

It was a wise decision, for not only had he landed a radio job in West Palm Beach, but he met Suzanne, hostess of a TV show, who was to become his wife.

After they were married, Geoff and Suzanne moved to San Diego, where he hosted a late night TV talk show. In 1963 the Edwards moved to Los Angeles, where Geoff had been active in radio, TV and movies.

LAUNCHES "JACKPOT!"—Geoff Edwards headlines "Jackpot!", the new Monday-Friday daytime game series featuring a fast-paced question and answer format, with potential prize money of up to $50,000 for the big winner each week. It premiers on the NBC Channel 6-7, Monday, Jan. 7 (12 noon to 12:30 PM).

A New Daytime Series Begins

"How To Survive a Marriage," the contemporary serial-drama which will join the NBC-TV daytime program schedule Monday, Jan. 7, will premiere on that date with a special 90-minute presentation, it was announced today by Lin Bolen, Vice President, Daytime Programs.

The premiere will be colorcast from 2:30-4 p.m. preempting "The Doctors" and "Another World." The program's regular time period subsequently will be 3:30-4 p.m.

Discussing the 90-minute premiere concept, Ms. Bolen said, "We feel that the expanded premiere offers an excellent opportunity to explore in some depth what the characters are all about, and will also provide a great deal of insight into the major conflicts in the story."

Noting that this was the first time a serial-drama was being launched in this form, Ms. Bolen said, "It is an experiment which we think will be successful and which will be used in the future not only to introduce new series, but to introduce new storylines within an existing series, as well."

Allan Potter, producer of "How To Survive a Marriage," said that a complete storyline will be self-contained within the 90-minute premiere episode. He also noted that the premiere, like subsequent segments, will feature extensive location production in and around New York City.

"How To Survive a Marriage" deals with the problem of separation and impending divorce as it confronts a couple after 12 years of marriage.

Rosemary Prinz, who became one of the most popular actresses in daytime television in the role of Penny on "As the World Turns," will portray Dr. Julie Franklin, described as an example of "today's truly liberated women." Dr. Franklin is a friend of the heroine of the story, Chris Kirby, who will be played by Jennifer Harmon. Chris's efforts to cope with the problems posed by separation after 12 years of marriage are the focus of the story.

Signed for the role of Chris's husband, Larry, is Michael Landrum. Lynn Lowry plays Sandra Henderson, a beautiful 23-year-old, and Fran and David Bachman, a happily married couple, are portrayed by Fran Brill and Allan Miller.

In addition, two of NBC-TV's popular morning game shows — "Jeopardy!" and "All-Star Baffle" — will move to new time periods.

"Jeopardy!", currently colorcast from 12 noon-12:30 p.m., will move to the 10:30-11 a.m. time period, while "All-Star Baffle" goes into the 12:30-12:55 p.m. slot. On the same date, "Jackpot!", a new series starring Geoff Edwards, premieres in the 12 noon-12:30 time period.

'Jeopardy' Has $10,000 Bonus

"Jeopardy!" starts the new year off with a $10,000 "Run-A-Category" bonus, which will begin Monday, Jan. 7, and continue for four weeks.

The popular daytime game show, with Art Felming as host, will offer $500 on Jan. 7 to the first contestant who successfully completes all five parts of any category. Five hundred dollars will be added to the cachet each day the bonus is not won.

Profile Vine Deloria

"Americans All," the ABC News "mini-documentary" series, focuses on American Indian spokesman Vine Deloria - attorney, author and advocate of justice for the first Americans - Monday, Jan. 7.

The "Americans All" program will be telecast immediately following the "ABC Theatre" presentation of that date, "F. Scott Fitzgerald and the 'Last of the Belles.'"

Melba Tolliver, WABC News reporter, is host for the "Americans All" prime time series, which spotlights the contributions of ethnic minorities to American society and culture.

ABC News cameras followed Deloria, a Standing Rock Sioux Indian with degrees from Iowa State University and the Lutheran School of Theology, Rock Island, Ill., as he met with the tribal council of the Tunica Indians in Marksville, La. One of many dispersed tribes, the Tunicas are attempting to preserve their heritage and gain recognition as Indians with federal rights. Deloria uses his knowledge of law to find solutions to Indian problems by working within the system.

Deloria also was filmed talking with fourth grade children at the Marksville Elementary School. The author of a section of a text book on Sioux Indians being used in the school, he answered questions on the living conditions of Indians, how their children play and the work that brought him to Marksville.

DEMANDING GRANDE DAME. . . . Academy Award winner Celeste Holm portrays an indulged socialite whose unimpressed, maverick attending physician accuses her of being a spoiled hypochondriac in the "Web of Intrigue" episode of MGM-TV's "Medical Center," airing on CBS Monday, January 7 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Deloria was born of a distinguished family of scholars, clergymen and warrior-chiefs on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation in South Dakota. In 1969, his first book, "Custer Died for Your Sins," created a national controversy by detailing years of mistreatment of Indians and urging Indians to renew their fight for survival. Subsequent book, "We Talk, You Listen," and "God is Red," were aimed at making white men understand the philosophy and religion of Indians.

With royalities from his book sales, Deloria helped two years ago to found the Washington (D.C.) based Institute for the Development of Indian Law.

PLAYS WITH FATHER — Barry Van Dyke, the 22-year-old son of series star Dick Van Dyke, portrays a young actor eager to take over the soap-opera role Dick plays on "The New Dick Van Dyke Show" Monday, Jan. 7 (9:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Present 'Hawaii' Friday

The film version of James A. Michener's epic best-seller "Hawaii," which stars Julie Andrews, Max Von Sydow and Richard Harris, will have its world television premiere as a special presentation on "The CBS Friday Night Movies" Friday, Jan. 11 (starting at 8:30 PM). Also starring in the film are Carrol O'Connor and Gene Hackman.

The Rev. Abner Hale does battle for a nation of souls and tries to hold onto the soul of a single woman - his wife Jerusha. Transplanted from the dangerous and arduous trip around Cape Horn to settle in and civilize the lush islands of Hawaii.

The natives experience the first signs of civilization when Hale orders them to destroy their pagan idols, cover themselves with sufficient clothing and abolish their ancient practice of incestuous marriage. In return, he offers them the new ways. But change brings with it ravaging new diseases, commercialism and money hunger and the corruption of a more demanding time.

Rafer Hoxworth, an arrogant seaman, comes with the tide of merchants and threatens Hale's psition on the islands and even his marriage.

The motion picture was filmed on locations ranging from the Arctic Circle to Sturbridge village in Massachusettes, and to the beaches of Hawaii. The supporting cast of native Hawaiian players is seen against the background of the spectacular grandeur of the islands.

Key Comedy To Wedding

Millie Owens' elaborate wedding plans for her only daughter are turned topsy-turvy when the daughter suddenly announces that she is getting married in six days instead of six weeks as scheduled, in "Mother of the Bride," a laugh-filled 90-minute "ABC Afternoon Playbreak" special, airing Wednesday, Jan. 9 (1:30-3 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5.

The frolicsome comedy stars Eve Arden as Millie Owens, the unflappable "master planner" who, undaunted by the chaos that ensues, remains determined that her daughter will have the wedding of her (Millie's) dreams.

Don Porter stars as George Owens, father of the bride, and Jennifer Salt as Jody, the bride-to-be. Elizabeth Allen and Elliott Reid star as Amy and George Whitman, the estranged parents of the prospective groom, and Kip Niven plays their son, Steve.

'No, I Am Not Maude'

By BEATRICE ARTHUR

After more than a year to ponder the situation, and after being asked the question hundreds of times, I have finally decided in my own mind that the answer is "No, I am not Maude."

Apparently, Maude Findlay is a woman with whom a lot of people identify. We've received dozens of letters from women who think they are Maude, from husbands who think their wives are Maude, and from office workers who swear that the lady at the next desk or in the office down the hall is more like Maude Findlay than anyone else could possibly be.

And I happily admit there were some letters which gave my ego quite a boost, too — letters from men who think Maude is the sexiest lady on television — and, even if they mean in the over-40 age bracket, I find room for personal satisfaction in reading them.

You see, it was my intention from the beginning of the series to show that there is a soft spot or two in Maude's armor of steel, and it's gratifying to know that viewers see her as I do.

But to get back to the differences between Maude and me. For one thing, although I can rant and rave as much as Maude does when the need arises, I don't have her persistence. If someone calls my bluff and yells back at me, I usually back down. In all honesty, I'm afraid the tiger in my tank is really a pussycat.

My husband keeps telling me if I just had the courage of Maude's convictions I could save a fortune at the supermarket, but the truth is that I'm absolutely incapable of haggling with the butcher over a choice cut of meat, as Maude would do, and I am a pushover for any door-to-door salesman with a reasonable sales pitch.

I guess I'm also lazier than Maude. At least, when it comes to "causes" like charity organizations, civil-rights rallies, or even fighting traffic tickets. I'm definitely not a joiner. I much prefer browsing through antique shops, reading, watching old movies on television, or enjoying family activities with my husband and two sons. I also have two huge German shepherd dogs who pout if I don't take them out for a long walk every day.

Cops Became Executioners

Melvyn Douglas, Robert Forster and Michelle Phillips star in "Death Squad," a hard-hitting drama about a group of militant policemen who take the law into their own hands when they disagree with court decisions on the "Tuesday Movie of the Week," Jan. 8 (8:30-10 PM) on Channel 3W-5-12.

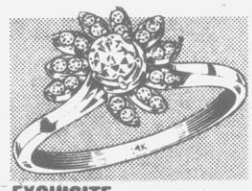

After a series of gangland-style executions occur, a tough ex-cop, Eric Benoit (Forster), is lured back to the force by a new Police Commissioner to infiltrate renegade elements in the department and expose the officers involved. Mental Health Study

"The Fragile Mind," an hour-long Special narrated by Academy Award - winning actress Joanne Woodward, will be seen on Wednesday, Jan. 9, 10 p.m. on Channel 3W-5-12.

The Special deals with a national health problem which affects one of ten persons and one of four American families. Mental health is the subject of "The Fragile Mind." It is examined subjectively through the eyes of five Americans who are undergoing treatment for emotional disorders.

The five subjects of this Special come from various portions of the United States and range in age from a young boy to a middle-aged widow. They, and their doctors, agreed that their therapy treatments would not be hindered by participating in this program and even, perhaps the act of participation, might prove beneficial.

One of our subjects is Milton McMurrey, (cq), a successful architect from Austin, Texas who had such a morbid fear of travel that he had never seen homes designed by him which were under construction. He was afraid he might die during a five-mile automobile trip.

Darlene Rand, a happily married mother and housewife, was so depressed that she completely lost interest in her nicer than average suburban Los Angeles home.

JOANNE WOODARD narrates the ABC News Television special "The Fragile Mind," a study of mental health, airing Wednesday, Jan. 9 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Joy Millin of Portland, Oregon was an only child. She desperately needed the love her father could give her, who unable to recognize her need, devoted himself to business. Joy married young, became addicted to drugs and was able to kick the drug habit when she became pregnant.

Norma LeBrecque is a widow from Rochester, N.Y. She had been utterly and completely dependent upon her husband. When he died she lost all sense of direction and purpose. Without someone to guide her, she was a lost soul.

Mathew Bulot of Bacliff, Texas is 10 years old and the youngest of eight children. He was ejected from school as a trouble-maker. He refused to grow up, preferring to be close to his mother, like a child years younger.

All of the five subjects are in the midst of treatment. All are progressing. We share their talks with therapists, psychologists and in some instances, their group therapy sessions. They are living proof that no one must suffer alone from emotional problems. There is help available. You have but to ask for it.

"The Fragile Mind," an Alan Landsburg production, was produced by Kay Hoffman.

Identifies With Dirty Sally Role

One might never guess that Jeanette Nolan would have the least bit of identification with a salty old woman who scavenges the West for worthless junk.

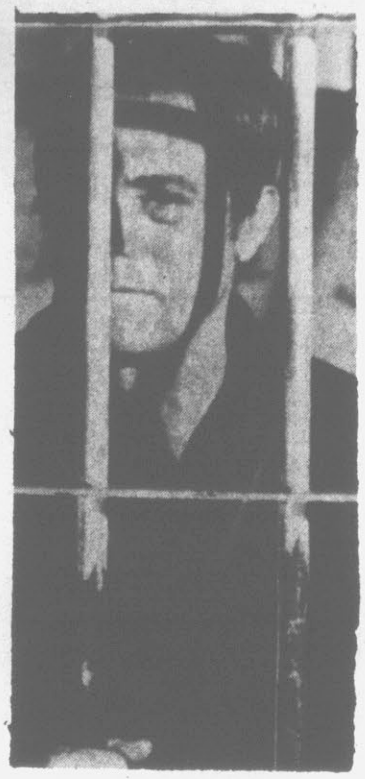

Yet Miss Nolan brings more than her many years of acting experience to her title role of "Dirty Sally," the new Western series which will have its premiere Friday, Jan. 11 (8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

For one thing, she is contributing two personal props that are very close to her heart — a "soogan" and a shawl.

The soogan, she explains, is a colorful trail balnket that has been in her family for 150 years. "I found it in an old closet recently," she says. "It was falling apart and very dirty. but I

HIS BANK WITHDRAWAL FAILED — Paul Burke guest-stars as Hardway, a man who finds himself behind bars after being captured in a bank heist, in "Two Hundred Large," on "Ironside" to be seen Thursday, Jan. 10 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Special On Andes' Trip

"Journey to the Outer Limits," the second of four seasonal National Geographic Society color documentaries, which recounts the traumatic and adventurous experiences of a mixed teenage group as they attempt to scale the formidable Santa Rosa Peak in the Peruvian Andes, will be presented on Thursday, Jan. 10 (8-9 PM) on Channel 3W-5-12.

The hour-long film focuses on the mental and physical conflicts of three young people of diverse social and ethnic backgrounds, each of whom in his own way, hopes to "find" himself, in the critical challenge ahead, the climbing toward the icy, wind-swept peak.

In prepatation for their assignment, the trio - along with other serious adventurers - spend three arduous weeks at the famed Outward Bound Wilderness School in Colorado, a unique institution offering one ofthe most rugged courses in mountain climbing in the world. Inculcated in the trainees is the basic philosophy of the school - to induce the individual to surpass his imagined physical and emotional limits.

The students brave the difficulties of rock-climbing, crossing dangerous gorges and kayaking down treacherous rapids. They learn to cope with rope bridges, zip wires and Tyrolean traverses. During the final days of training each student undergoes the ultimate test of ingenuity, strength and skill - the solo.

'Born Free' To Be TV Series

"Born Free," a television series filmed entirely on location in Kenya, East Africa, and based on the movie and book of the same name, will be presented on NBC in the 1974-75 season.

Many of the key production personnel associated with the motion picture will be involved in the one-hour TV series.

Humorist Will Be Interviewed

Frank Sullivan, well-known for his witty essays, poems, and annual Christmas rhymes that have appeared in the New Yorker magazine, will be interviewed at his home in Saratoga Springs, New York, by Robert Cromie, on "Book Beat", Monday, January 7 at 9:30 p.m. on UNC-TV Channel 25.

Sullivan's literary career began on The New York Herald, but his fondest memories are reserved for his years at The New York World under Herbert Bayard Swope. In a piece he completed after the demise of the World, he wrote, "When I die I want to go wherever the World has gone and work on it again."

A charter contributor to the New Yorker, Sullivan's humor brightened its pages since the magazine's inception in 1932.

SERIAL VETERAN

Dack Rambo—co-star of "Dirty Sally" made his acting debut on the Loretta Young TV series and has appeared regularly on the daytime serial, "Never Too Young."

Bing A Top Publicist

It has been said the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am golf championship is the best publicized tournament in the world because of Bing. Certainly, Crosby's association with golf in general and the tourney in particular is legendary.

The 33rd annual competition at Pebble Beach Jan. 3-6, kicks off the yearly pro tour for the first time in history. ABC once again will televise the third and final rounds of play SATURDAY, JAN. 5-7 (7-8 p.m.), and SUNDAY, JAN. 6 (5-7 p.m.), with Crosby himself joining commentators Chris Schenkel, Jim McKay, Bill Flemming, and expert commentators Byron Nelson and Dave Marr.

The tournament, won last year by Jack Nicklaus, is played on three courses—Cypress Point, Spyglass Hill and Pebble Beach—and this was Bing's idea in the first place.

"The California PGA was originally against the idea because it had never been done before," Bing stated. "Ultimately the PGA okayed the plan. The three courses are rated as three of the greatest in the world, according to Golf Digest. Pebble itself has always been in the first 10. Some have said the real reason you can't golf at Pebble is because it's too beautiful," Crosby added with a grin.

The tournament, which has raised $3 million over the years for charity, including student loan funds to 50 universities in 49 states, had not been played since 1942 since its first years at Rancho Santa Fe, Calif., when it was moved to Pebble Beach in 1947. From an original purse of $500 in 1937 to a one-time plateau of $10,000, the tourney now has total price money of $215,000-$185,000 professional purse and $30,000 Pro-Am purse.

'Go' Covers Boat Races

The 1973 Hennessey Grand Prix boat races will be the subject of "Go" on Saturday, Jan. 12 (12:30-1 p.m.) on NBC. Red Lewis is narrator and writer of the program.

The Hennessey Grand Prix took place in the ocean waters off the coast of New Jersey in July, and the mobile PCP 90 tape cameras of NBC were there to bring the races to the TV screen. The special light-weight cameras not only observed the races from the shore but also from the cockpit of one of the racing boats itself, driven by 18-year-old Lance Taines.

During the course of the program, Lance's preparations and work are chronicled by the cameras to give the home viewer a first-person experience of the boat race.

REELISM

The Statler Brothers, who will be guests on the Feb. 23 90-minute country music special, "Johnny Cash's Music County," share an interest in old motion pictures and own a collection of more than 100 films including silent classics and singing Westerns.

Cavaliers Hosting Tar Heel Cagers

The nationally ranked University of North Carolina Tar Heels journey to Virginia for a 3:00 p.m. ACC clash with University of Virginia on January 12. The Cavaliers will be viewing the Tar Heels as an excellent mark with which to enhance their national and ACC prestige.

As the Cavaliers opened their season, the paramount problem was finding a floor leader to replace their All American guard Barry Parkhill. After their first two games of the season, Virginia basketball had a new floor leader in Billy Langloh, the 6-3 freshman who played his high school basketball under Morgan Wootten at DeMatha in Hyattsville, Md.

When Langloh was signed at Virginia ("because I fell in love with the place") it was said he would make people in Charlottesville and folks around the ACC forget about Barry Parkhill.

Well, no one at Virginia will forget "Mr. B. P." and most around the toughest basketball conference in the country will continue to recall Barry's dominating style of play. But it could come to pass that Billy Langloh, he of the constant open mouth and flowing blonde mane, will endure his talents in the same manner.

There are certainly rocky roads ahead for this 18-year-old plays much like a seasoned veteran as opposed to the freshman he actually is. But for now, he is what he was supposed to be.

Langloh is not Virginia's most talented player. In fact he probably rates as its fourth best. Give the nod to Gus Gerard, Wally Walker and Al Drummond in relation to pure athletic ability. But overall, give Langloh the No. 1 spot as a leader, that necessary entity that welds average teams into good teams and sometimes to greater heights.

He is not a great shooter ("shooting is not my thing") nor does he possess great speed. However, he is a good shooter and everyone who defends against him will have to watch his first two steps. His forte is the remarkable (as a freshman) ability to anticipate what is developing at each end of the court, that is, from baseline to baseline. And then, as Bill Millsaps of the Richmond Times - Dispatch puts it, "the ability and the intelligence to exploit it for his team."

Of Langloh DeMatha's Wootten stated, "I've never had a better player from baseline to baseline." Langloh was a three-year starter at DeMatha and in his junior and senior year DeMatha lost only twice.

Three of Langloh's teammates last year are currently starting for major college basketball programs. Adrian Dantley starts for nationally ranked Notre Dame; Carroll Holmes at Northern Illinois and Ron Satterthwaite at William and Mary.

New Rules On Kicking Role

The people who put together the Senior Bowl football game will have something entirely new for viewers watching this unique game on Saturday, Jan. 12 (1 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

For starters, the kickoffs will be booted from the 35-yard line instead of the 40.

"Less chance of a strong-legged kicker booting the ball over the end line for a touchback," says Rae Scheussler, Senior Bowl Vice President and guiding genius of this clash beween the nation's top college seniors representing the North and South.

First Addition To TV's Brady Bunch

Robbie Rist is the first addition to the regular cast of "The Brady Bunch" in the five years it has been on television. The nine-year-old's arrival comes about when Oliver, a nephew of Carol Brady, comes to visit for an indefinite period. Robbie's presence brings the total number of Brady kids to seven.

Born in LaMirada Community Hospital, La Mirada, California, Robbie is the youngest of the two children of Bruno and Elfriede Rist. His father, Bruno, is an electronics engineer who was born in Rumania and grew up in Germany. He came to the United States in 1952 where he met his wife, Elfriede. Mrs. Rist was born and raised in Germany and came here in 1954. Gudits Kaye Rist, 18, Robbie's older sister, is a psychology major at Pierce College. She was once interested in fashion modeling. She gave it up and now works part-time at an electronics company.

The blond actor is an A student at a San Fernando Valley elementary schol where he is in the 4th grade. His only weak subject is penmanship.

His interests include playing the piano, the guitar and singing.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR PETE ROZELLE, commissioner of the NFL

Why doesn't the winner of the Super Bowl play the best of the Canadian football teams?—Patty Merriman, Naples, Texas

● For several reasons. First, the Canadian football championship—the Grey Cup—is played in November, while the NFL Super Bowl champion isn't determined until the second week in January, so the Canadian season would have ended perhaps two months prior to the earliest time when such a game could be played. Another problem is the difference in rules: The Canadian field is 110 yards and the end zones are 25 yards, compared to 100 yards and 10 yards in the NFL; Canadian teams have 12 players, NFL teams have 11; Canadian teams have three downs to achieve a first down, NFL teams four downs. And so on. No, I just don't think it's practicable.

FOR LEE MARVIN

I understand you have eight kids. Don't you ever feel the need for privacy?—P. R. O., Aurora, Ill.

● Only two children live permanently at home. The others are in and out. Yes, I do have a need for privacy. When it gets too hectic I take a long walk on the beach by myself. But when I go away on location I miss the kids and invariably take a couple with me.

FOR KAREN MAGNUSSEN, figure-skating champion

You must have gotten to know many East German skaters. Can you explain why more of them don't defect?—A. B. Green, Little Rock, Ark.

● They tell me that in a country like the U.S. or Canada, they would be nobodies. In East Germany they get special treatment—good apartments, cars and other extra privileges—that the amateur athlete in our country would not be allowed to accept.

FOR GEORGE FOREMAN, heavyweight boxing champion

What three boxers do you consider the top contenders for your crown?—Steve Nelson, East Grand Forks, Minn.

● The way I see it, Ron Lyles is the hungriest of the contenders, so I'd have to rate him No. 1. After Lyles, I'd say Muhammad Ali is No. 2. Joe Frazier is No. 3.

FOR ANN LANDERS, columnist

What type of education have you had that enables you to give advice in your columns?—Tracy Alletag, Pineville, La.

● I have had 3½ years at Morningside College. But formal education is not what "enables" a person to do this work. I have as my consultants some of the most distinguished physicians, psychiatrists and assorted authorities in every conceivable field. In a way, it's not what I know, but who I know that qualifies me to do this work.

FOR ARLENE DAHL, actress

Is it true that you used to date John F. Kennedy when he was a young senator?—Mrs. J. F. Moore, Austin, Texas

● Yes. In the early '50's he would come to Hollywood about once a month and stay for a week. He loved show business and liked being around the stars. But he was very shy. His father used to phone me occasionally, and I had the feeling he was playing matchmaker. Then I got married, and six months later Jack married Jackie.

FOR GEORGE PEPPARD

Are the proverbs used on "Banacek" really Polish proverbs? —James Brennan, Buffalo, N.Y.

● The proverbs are the work of "Banacek" executive producer George Eckstein, who did some digging into Polish culture and came up with what he says are "slightly altered" Polish proverbs.

FOR MARGARET HAMILTON

How do people usually recognize you—as the "Wizard of Oz" Wicked Witch of the West, or as Cora, the Maxwell House coffee lady?—S. K. Montecliner, Davenport, Iowa

● The coffee commercial is what they think of when they see me now, but the Wicked Witch recognition keeps returning. Being recognized is a pleasant experience. Sometimes I wish I'd get the ohs and ahs glamorous stars get, but I'm always recognized with a smile—and that tickles me!

FOR SEN. CHARLES PERCY (R—Ill.)

You've said that elderly Americans are our most neglected minority group. Can't Social Security benefits be increased again?—Mrs. Lela Owens, Havelock, N.C.

● Sure, but there'd still be too many older Americans living well below the standard they enjoyed prior to retirement. Anyway, money alone cannot end the neglect of the elderly that characterizes our whole youth-oriented culture. To overcome this will require more than money; it will require a basic change in our attitudes.

FOR ARNOLD "RED" AUERBACH, general manager of the Boston Celtics

You coached the Celtics to nine NBA crowns in ten years. In what year do you feel you had the best team?—Paul Kolar, Pisek, N.D.

● I coached so many great teams that it would be impossible to pick one "best" team. But there were two that stand out in my mind: the 1960-61 Championship team had Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman and Sam and K.C. Jones in the backcourt. It was probably our most powerful offensive team. The 1964-65 team compiled the best record of any of my teams and was the most powerful defensively.

Even at the Zoo everybody has a gimmick... almost everybody. Find the one who doesn't.
1. No. He's Miles Tugo, underwear salesman pretending he's a jogger. Gimmick: Cigarettes with filters so thick every time he inhales, his ears pop. 2. Meet Livingston I. Presume, gorilla. A latent Homo Sapien, who throws tires at anybody who doesn't believe in Evolution. 3. Nope. He's Jerry Bilt, zoo painter. Holds gimmick: A long pole to paint ape's cage (says he's allergic to fur and having his leg pulled off). His Maxi-Long cigarettes easily break in half, too. 4 & 5. No and no. They're Sam and Janet Evening, movie team making a low budget jungle picture: "King Kong Gives Detroit A Hickie." 6. He's Skip Tickel. Was given this address to deliver 12 Chinese dinners. Gimmick: Smokes cigarettes with filters so hollow he talks with an echo. 7. Right. He prefers wildlife to wild gimmicks. Wants no nonsense in his cigarette, either. Camel Filters. Good taste. Honest tobacco. 8. No. It's either the symbol of a high-quality cigarette, or a high-rise sheep.

The FAMILY WEEKLY Poll Results:

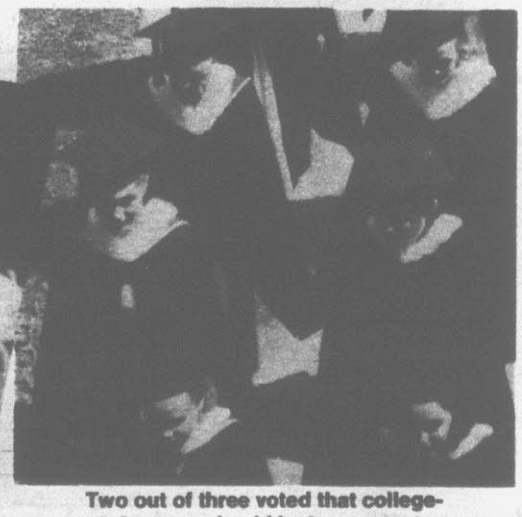

How Americans Stand on Today's

By the Editors of FAMILY WEEKLY

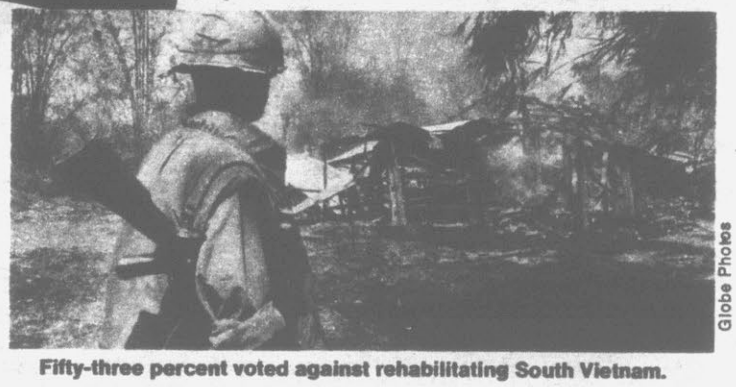

H. Armstrong Roberts

The patient has the right to choose death, said readers—but the doctor doesn't.

Two out of three voted that college-cost money should be tax-exempt.

Globe Photos

Fifty-three percent voted against rehabilitating South Vietnam.

"What seems to divide the country today is—age."

Last June, as part of a double-barreled poll of the press and the public, FAMILY WEEKLY asked readers for their opinions on 29 "timely issues." The responses came in by the tens of thousands—in a great avalanche of mail. Last September, we reported on the responses of newspapermen. Now here is an analysis of how readers answered the same questions.

The Mason-Dixon line no longer seriously divides Americans on major questions.

And men and women are likely to think pretty much alike on many of the nation's problems.

What seems to divide the country today is—age.

More than 60,000 readers from all 50 states and the District of Columbia responded to our 30-question poll. Generally, the regional differences in the answers were surprisingly small, and sex wasn't a key dividing factor. But on almost all issues, the answers chosen by FAMILY WEEKLY readers in the 18-to-25-year age group varied sharply from the remainder.

Perhaps it's to be expected. Modern communication and transportation are ending regional differences. East, West, North or South, we watch the same television programs and read the same magazines, shop in the same chain supermarkets and pick up the same drive-in hamburgers for the family. But age is one difference that is irreconcilable.

"Crabbed age and youth cannot live together," said Shakespeare in "Julius Caesar." "Confidence is a plant of slow growth in an aged bosom; youth is the season of credulity," said William Pitt, the noted English statesman.

These differences are apparent in all types of questions:

In domestic politics, when asked if tough price controls should be reimposed, 52 percent of the FAMILY WEEKLY respondents said Yes, but only 38 percent of the 18-25 age group wanted such firm controls.

In foreign affairs, to a question that asked if the Vietnam cease-fire strengthened the U.S. internationally, only 38 percent of the FAMILY WEEKLY respondents said Yes, but a much smaller fraction—only 28 percent—of the 18-25 age group said Yes.

On life-style questions, the differences were clear. For example, while 71 percent of all responding to the poll said the so-called "free life-style" wouldn't produce a better quality of life, only 49 percent of the 18-25 group—not quite half—were willing to give that clear No answer.

What kind of questions did the FAMILY WEEKLY poll show Americans sharply divided on?

- Gun control split the nation, with 47 percent calling for stronger laws and 45 percent rejecting such laws (but 54 percent of that 18-25-year group wanted tougher laws).
- Conditional amnesty (coupled with compensatory service) for draft evaders was another nation-splitter, with 42 percent voting Yes and 44 percent No. (The remainder are unsure or have no opinion.) Fifty-four percent of the younger group favored such a conditional amnesty.
- U.S. policy in the Middle East was split three ways among poll respondents, with 35 percent favoring our policy, 30 percent opposed and 27 percent unsure. That 18-25 group disagreed with the majority, but was just as divided—29 percent supporting our position, 36 percent opposing and 26 percent unsure.

On what does practically everyone agree?

- Pollution, with eight of ten favoring more stringent regulations to protect the water, the land and the air (but nine of ten in the 18-25 bracket wanted tougher rules).
- Rehabilitating North Vietnam, with four of five voting that it isn't a U.S. responsibility. (The 18-25 group agreed with the others on this issue.)
- Unconditional amnesty for draft evaders living abroad (in contrast to the conditional amnesty) was opposed by four out of five of the 60,000 poll respondents—but only three of five in the 18-25 age bracket.

There were guides for legislators in the poll, too, indicating what type of new laws FAMILY WEEKLY readers might want—or might not want.

- A compulsory health insurance was favored 47 percent to 35 percent (the remainder unsure or not answering). In the 18-25 group the margin was 53 percent-33 percent. But readers were seriously split over how to pay for such insurance, with neither taxes nor individually paid insurance premiums winning strong support.
- No-fault auto insurance should be made available to all, nearly three of five voted, with the 18-25 group matching the figure.
- College-cost money should be tax exempt, two of three voted, but the margin was four of five in the 18-25 bracket.
- Even rehabilitating South Vietnam was unpopular, with 53 percent voting that the U.S. didn't have such a responsibility.

Radical solutions to social problems weren't popular: Two-thirds of the FAMILY WEEKLY readers said marriage won't become less important in the future. Here, only the under 18-year-old group seriously disagreed, with 55 percent of the youngsters predicting a less important role for matrimony.

Readers strongly opposed giving doctors the right to end—on their own—the life of an incurably ill patient. But in another poll theme—a strong belief in individual rights—the readers voted that the patient did have the right to choose death for him-

Stormy Issues

Fifty percent favored resuming relations with Cuba.

Stronger gun-control laws were slightly favored.

The interest in freedom showed itself, with nearly half the respondents agreeing that freedom of the press is endangered by some practices of the Nixon Administration. The right to say no was defended, too, with four of five opposing compulsory voting for the Presidency.

There were surprises:

Half the respondents—and two-thirds of the 18-25 group—thought the U.S. could reestablish normal diplomatic relations with Cuba.

And more than half those answering the poll opposed a guaranteed college education to youngsters with ability—even though, as might be expected, seven of ten of the under 18-year-olds and half the 18-25's wanted such a college-education guarantee.

Just over half the respondents—and seven of ten of the 18-25 age group—thought a woman executive could boss men and women as well as a man.

Two-thirds thought the privacy of the individual was threatened by America's vast information-gathering business, from government dossiers to credit-bureau investigations.

And what did FAMILY WEEKLY readers pick as the U.S.'s most sensitive trouble spot? The majority picked the Middle East, and picked it even before the war that surprised the world broke out this fall.

What are the nation's key problems? Inflation, energy and pollution and crime, in that order, said the majority of those polled, a tough list to quarrel with.

On the drug issue, the poll showed the concern of parents more than anything else. A strong majority—61 percent of all respondents and 75 percent of the 18-25's—said a marijuana user shouldn't be criminally punished for a first offense. But for pushers, 52 percent favored a death penalty—although only 27 percent in the 18-25 group voted for that harsh penalty.

But what's most amazing is that in one of the most dramatic years in the history of our Republic, opinions on major questions are still so moderate. The explosion of the Watergate investigation into illegal White House snooping; the inflation that suddenly pushed food prices up; the sudden stream of shortages, from fuel oil to fertilizer; the resignation of Vice President Agnew; the Middle East war; the constant talk of impeachment—any one of these issues could shake the confidence of a nation. Together, it's possible to see them leading to division and panic.

The FAMILY WEEKLY poll showed, instead, that while young and old may differ on how to resolve the nation's problems, they are in close agreement on what those problems are. For all our troubles, says our poll, as a nation we are stronger than we may think.

BEEFY MACARONI AND CHEESE

Rinse 1 pkg. or jar (4 ozs.) dried beef with hot water; drain well and shred. In medium skillet combine 2 cans (14¾-oz. size) macaroni and cheese and beef. Heat covered over medium heat 5 minutes. Meanwhile, combine 2 tablespoons melted butter or margarine with ¼ cup bread crumbs, season with dash of seasoned salt. Sprinkle crumbs over macaroni mixture, cover; continue heating 5 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings

"REFRIED" BEAN TACOS

In pie pan, mash 1 can (1 lb.) baked beans with potato masher. In skillet, fry 4 slices bacon until crisp; remove and crumble. Pour off all but 3 tablespoons drippings. Cook ¼ cup chopped onion and 2 teaspoons chili powder in drippings until tender. Add beans and 1 can (4 ozs.) taco sauce (or ½ cup tomato sauce). Cook 5 minutes, stirring frequently. Divide bean mixture into each of 6 prepared taco shells (or use 6 slices toast). Top each with 2 tablespoons shredded lettuce, 1 tablespoon diced tomatoes (optional), crumbled bacon and 1 tablespoon shredded cheddar cheese. Makes 6 servings

Excuse us for butting into the recipes.

But we needed a little extra room to make the point that a pound of Miracle spreads 36 more slices than unwhipped margarine.

Whipping gives Miracle Brand Margarine six sticks instead of four. So a pound produces 36 extra pats.

Whipping means smoother, easier spreading, too. And whipping sacrifices none of that good, fresh Kraft margarine flavor.

With all these advantages, you'd think all margarines would be whipped, wouldn't you?

They aren't.

YOUR NERVES CAN CURE THEMSELVES

once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...

If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms:

constant nervousness and over-irritation... indecision... depression ...loss of confidence in yourself and others... feelings of unreality... overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts...

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart... that your identity is dissolving... or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on...

"missed" heartbeats—"racing" heart—palpitations—or sudden sharp pains under the heart...

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs...

"churning" stomach... nausea... choking feeling in the throat... inability to take a deep breath... tight band of pain around the head..."ready to jump out of your skin"... strange tricks of vision ...weak spells... insomnia, that goes on night after night after night...

hand shaking... panic spasms... knots in your chest... dizziness... difficulty in swallowing... vomiting... and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled... And Then Diminished ...And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:

If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill... they have not deteriorated... they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED..."rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation ...and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression... indecision... loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach... palpitating heart... never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous-symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs... NOT with shock... NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranqualize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead—leave them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward—brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it"!

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

"... helped me so much and released me from the particular hell I have been living in since my breakdown six years ago."

"I think of Dr. Weekes with admiration and deep gratitude, as I am sure thousands of other people are doing."

"I am amazed at the progress I made in such a short time."

"It would be no exaggeration to add that your book saved my life."

"The method you give for cure of nervous conditions is so effective—and so simple—I cannot think why nothing remotely like your system has been suggested to me."

"The great reassurance you give about the distressing physical symptoms of a disturbed nervous system is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from your book."

"You cannot possibly imagine what a relief it is to be able to view life normally again, instead of fear-panic all the while."

"I cannot describe the emotion I felt to find, at last, someone who really understood the problem, and to hear her say the condition can be cured. ..."

"I would like you to know that my nervous condition has so greatly improved through the advice gleaned from your most precious and invaluable book ... that all symptoms have now disappeared and I rarely need Librium or sleeping capsules."

"My physician is amazed at my progress and of course I showed him your book which he borrowed and read thoroughly and is now recommending to other patients."

"My wife has made a vast improvement since using your book and now feels for the first time like getting away from the hospital altogether. I'm sure if she had had your treatment in earlier years she would never have had to go into the hospital at all."

WHAT THE PUBLISHER SAYS:

HOPE AND HELP FOR YOUR NERVES has sold over 250,000 copies and has been endorsed by medical and mental-health associations throughout the world. Millions of Americans have heard Dr. Weekes on television and radio shows and have read excerpts from the book which recently appeared in Reader's Digest. If you are one of the many whose nerves are on edge and who sometimes feel panic and don't know why, this remarkable book was written for you.

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from... how "deeply entrenched" they are... how long you have been plagued by them... how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body"!

For example:

The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"—how to banish it in minutes... and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish!

How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion... morning depression... thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sicknesses as far finer and stronger people than they ever were before!

How to recover from chronic tension caused by an insoluable problem! The only sane way to overcome it! How to avoid unnecessary suffering, for both yourself and others! And, perhaps, actually turn your worst defeat into crowning success!

The surest and most permanent way to cure obsessions!

How to tap the forces of Nature, every morning, that are just waiting to cure you!

How to bring happiness back into your everyday life! Not by waiting for some great event or reward... but simply by developing the eyes to see joy in the little things all around you!

And—the final goal: How to develop the kind of nervous control that automatically turns panic off the instant it starts! That frees you forever from "nerve-crutches" such as drugs or alcohol! That lets you pick up your life again from the point where over-sensitized nerves forced you to abandon it, with absolute confidence that you now have the poise and self-possession to accomplish the goals you have always wanted!

Already a best-seller in nine foreign nations, as well as the United States! Read it from cover to cover. We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

VITAL NOTE!

To gain the wonder-working benefits of this book in every area of your life starting within the first five minutes after you pick it up—there is absolutely no need to STUDY this revolutionary new book or even read it from cover to cover, or expend any more "literary" effort on your part other than to browse through it at your leisure for one or two thrilling minutes a day!

This is NOT a textbook! NOT a study manual! There are no lectures—not a single "blue-sky" theory to ponder over anywhere!

Instead, for the first time; here are revolutionary new breakthroughs that HELP YOUR NERVES DE-SENSITIZE THEMSELVES... ACTUALLY DRAIN OUT TORTUROUS MENTAL AND PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS, STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY—all through a few incredibly-simple techniques that you can put to work for you the very first time you pick it up.

Therefore, we do NOT want you to treat this amazing volume as you would an ordinary book! Instead, we ask you this:

Place it on your bedstand, entirely at our risk, for thirty days! Browse through just a few pages every night before you retire! Skip around if you like! But make absolutely no conscious effort to "study" this book, "work" on it, or even memorize a single one of the thrilling techniques you will find on every one of its pages!

Instead, you'll make this startling discovery in these very first thirty days alone. Instantly—simply by leafing through its pages—your mind will automatically absorb the wonder-working procedures laid out for you in this book! Effortlessly, you will respond to its convention-shattering breakthroughs!

Inevitably—hour after hour—day after day—week after week—you will find your body draining away, almost by itself, the tortures of constant nervousness... overwhelming depression... lack of confidence... chronic fatigue... 'skipping' or 'racing' heart... pins and needles in hands or feet... even nausea, shortness of breath, chest and stomach pains, weak spells, and never-flagging insomnia! And much, much more!

All these—gone! For just a few short moments a day!

Star Chat

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Tough Talk from James Caan: "So Now, Suddenly, I'm Supposed to Be a Genius!"

Caan in his newest film, "Cinderella Liberty."

"I went to college to play football and drink beer. I was 16 and nothing else mattered. Business management, history, economics, prelaw—you name it, I did it. I switched majors seven times in two years. I just kept fooling myself that I was interested in something when I really wasn't."

FAMILY WEEKLY: You've been in some pretty big movies—"The Godfather," TV's "Brian's Song"—yet you've never won an award. How do you feel about that?

CAAN: Let's face it: It's the success of the pictures that makes you a big guy, not your performance. The best job I've done was in "The Rain People," but the picture didn't make any money. Now, after "The Godfather," I am a genius and get six scripts a day!

FW: What did you think of Marlon Brando's turning down his Academy Award?

CAAN: That's his business. But let me tell you one thing: I respect Brando. Brando takes chances. He could have done "On the Waterfront" or "Streetcar" for the rest of his life. But no, he does musicals. He does "Last Tango in Paris," or the old man in "The Godfather." He does what he believes in. That takes guts. You can't become a superstar unless you've made it big, fallen on your tail, and then made it big again. The nature of this business is envy. Unless you can prove you can do it the second time, people don't believe you have what it takes.

FW: Is there any actor that you would want to be like?

CAAN: If there is, it's Brando.

FW: Your first marriage ended in divorce. How old were you when you married Deejay Mattis?

CAAN: Twenty-one. I proposed on our first date and we got married a few months later. It was too fast. We were lovers. We never had a chance to become friends. I was always in search of love. We eloped on five dollars I borrowed from my mother.

FW: Do you think that you will want to get married again?

CAAN: I have mixed emotions about it. I'd like to get married again, but I also like my freedom. I want more kids (I have one daughter), but at this point I don't like the idea of having responsibilities.

FW: You have been going with Connie ["Playboy" Playmate Connie Kreski] for a couple of years now. How does she feel about your attitude?

CAAN: She's very sweet. If she weren't, our relationship wouldn't have lasted this long. I would have felt imprisoned, and that would have been the end of it. Believe me, I am not easy to live with. It takes a lot of woman to put up with me.

FW: In what way?

CAAN: I love to go out with my friends and stay up all night. I enjoy going on rodeos. I want to do what I please without being tied down.

FW: You mean—no responsibilities?

CAAN: I don't even own a home. First of all, until now I couldn't afford one I really wanted. See, no matter how much money I make, at the end of the year I have nothing left.

FW: How can you be broke with all the money you're making?

CAAN: That's one of the great mysteries of life. My business manager says the same thing. I don't know. Dinner parties, rodeos, fun. . . .

FW: Why do you have a business manager when you took business management in college?

CAAN: I went to college to play football and drink beer. I was 16 and nothing else mattered. Business management, history, economics, prelaw—you name it, I did it. I switched majors seven times in two years. I just kept fooling myself that I was interested in something when I really wasn't.

FW: I read that you were born in the Bronx; then I read that you were born on Long Island. Which was it?

CAAN: I was born in the Bronx, but my parents moved to Long Island when I was six. My parents still live there.

FW: When did you have your first real fight?

CAAN: I learned to fight when I was five. I was beaten up one day, and when I came home, my father kicked me out the door and told me not to come back until I'd beaten that kid.

FW: Did you ever go to jail?

CAAN: I got pretty close. I did the usual things kids do in tough neighborhoods—stole candy, drag raced, that sort of thing. But nothing serious enough to go to jail.

FW: What do you look forward to in life now?

CAAN: I've stopped looking forward. I've decided to live for today—as long as I stay healthy. Professionally, I don't want to be tied down with more than one picture at a time. I'd like to do just one picture a year—maybe two.

FW: How come you had a nervous breakdown?

CAAN: Oh, you mean when I did "The Rain People"? I played a depressing character, and then we were shooting and traveling all over the country. There was absolutely nothing to do at night. I'd go to my motel room and play with the light switches. I can't act all day and talk theater all night. That's the kiss of death. You can't analyze everything. I've got to be active mentally and I've got to be active physically as well.

FW: Such as?

CAAN: Tennis, rodeo, girls . . . you know, having a good time.

FW: Did you ever go to a psychiatrist?

CAAN: I went to a psychologist.

FW: What did he do for you?

CAAN: He made me realize that I need to have a good time!

How Your Horoscope Can Bring You Wealth, Love, Success And Happiness

Astrology Today
PRESENTED BY THE INTERNATIONAL ASTROLOGICAL ASSOCIATION
"The World's Largest Astrological Association"

by NORMAN P. KENNEDY

Did you know your horoscope could mean the difference between happiness or sorrow; between success or failure?

Picture a long room with doors at each end. In this room there is money, attractive persons of the opposite sex, books that tell you the secret of happiness and many other valuable articles. But, also in this room are bottomless pits, traps, hostile persons and dangerous beasts chained in various places around the room. You must walk through this room, but you may take out of it anything you can.

Now if you had a choice, would you choose to 1) go through the room blindfolded or 2) go through the room with your eyes open and with written instructions on which places an and people to visit or avoid.

Of course, all of us would pick the second choice in a case such as this. Isn't it ridiculous, then, that we would choose to go thru life, the same situation, blindfolded! Even when there is a means to go thru life with a map and our eyes wide open! The means provided is Astrology. The map is our astrological horoscope.

How does it work? Nature's cosmos imprints each of us at the time of birth - when the umbilical cord is cut. We then become ourselves. Until the cord is cut, we are part of our mother. Why or how we presently do not know. The movement of the large solar bodies then times potentials for events in our lives. Astrology does not cause events but is timing of events. But, it's not fortune telling. It's a prediction of potentials which free will can override.

Here is a common misconception about astrology. Some people say, "how can stars millions of light years away be related to our lives." The error here is the word stars. Astrology deals with the relationship of our lives with the sun, moon, and planets–not stars.

And, anyone who doesn't think that the sun, moon, and planets do not regulate earth and its inhabitants, had better think again. We all know how the moon controls the tides. We have all heard of the famous clam experiments where the clams open and close by the cycle of the moon, sun, and planets. Police departments and insurance companies show exact relations with crime and violence with cycles of the moon, sun and planets. Doctors are finding direct relationships with successful operations and the cycle of the solar bodies. Authenticated research is now proving that astrology can predict natural disasters, wars, diseases a person will suffer, personalities of people and much more.

What does a natal horoscope analysis by a qualified astrologer contain? A natal horoscope analysis contains the best psychological analysis of yourself that you can get today. Because, in a controlled experiment in 1960, astrologers beat psychologists in predicting case histories.

In addition, a natal horoscope analysis includes discussions on the following: financial outlook; taxes and inheritances; early home environment; relationships with family; relatives and parents; lovelife and marriage; children; career and occupation; hopes; wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. In a major analysis, a one year forecast is also included.

Many people think that astrology only appeals to "way out" unscientific people. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact, studies show that astrology appeals most to intelligent and logical people.

Consider these famous scientists: Galileo-astronomer, Carl Jung-psychologist, Johannes Kepler-astronomer, Roger Bacon-mathemetician, Tycho Bache-astronomer. Want to know what they all had in common? They all were astrologers themselves or used astrology in their work. Even Albert Einstein was impressed by the accuracy of astrology when he studied it in his late years.

Astrology appeals to people in every walk of life. A horoscope has meant the difference between success and disaster for famous people throughout history. Your horoscope can mean the same to you.

Your horoscope can help you be in the right place at the right time.

Did you know that the three wise men who found the Christ Child were astrologers? The "large star" which guided them to the Christ Child was really a cluster of cosmic bodies which were, as predicted by astrological charts, in line at that particular time. This was the reason it was so bright. This alignment of bodies allowed the wise men to know the time and place of the birth of Christ. Also, Christ chose His 12 apostles according to the 12 astrological signs.

Your horoscope can help you avoid disasters while guiding you to your beneficial opportunities.

Did you know that astrology helped the allies win W.W. II? The allies employed astrologers. The axis powers started out employing astrologers. But, this was ceased early when the famous astrologer, Karl Ernst Krafft, predicted the exact time and place of an attempt on Hitler's life in 1939. Hitler thought the astrologers were conspiring against him, so they were imprisoned.

This proved to be a tragic decision for Hitler. A decision that may have altered the course of the war. Because, if Hitler had studied his horoscope, he would have used different strategy. Why? Because two horoscopes, one of Adolf Hitler, drawn by two different astrologers, in two different countries, at two different times exactly predicted the course of W.W. II.

Hitler did get to see these horoscopes . . . . too late. He read them in the last hours of the war as Berlin burned around him. The following is an authentic account of the incident.

Here is a direct quote from THE RISE AND FALL OF THE THIRD REICH, by William L. Shirer:

> "They sent for two horoscopes, which were kept in the files of one of Himmler's multitudinous "research" offices. One was the horoscope of the Fuehrer drawn up on January 30, 1933, the day he took office; the other was the horoscope of the Weimer Republic, composed by some unknown astrologer on November 9, 1918, the day of the Republic's birth. Goebbles communicated the results of the re-examination of these two remarkable documents to Krosigk.
> An amazing fact has become evident, both horoscopes predicted the outbreak of the war in 1939, the victories until 1941, and the subsequent series of reversals, with the hardest blows during the first months of 1945, particularly during the first half of April.* In the second half of April, we were to experience a temporary success. Then there would be stagnation until August and peace that same month. For the following three years, Germany would have a hard time, but starting in 1948, she would rise again."
> *Hitler committed suicide in April, 1945.

On the other hand, astrologers aided the allies in forecasting the axies moves. The most famous astrologer, Louis de Wohl, employed by British government, predicted the exact events leading to the downfall of Mussolini. He gained the faith of the American military when he predicted Pearl Harbor a year before it happened.

More on avoiding disasters, here is a story from a recent newspaper article in the Miami Herald's Sunday magazine.

> –Mary Kelly is a computer programmer. She credits astrology with saving her from an operation on her legs that would have left her crippled. "It happened in New York in 1963," she says. "My doctor decided an operation was needed, and told me to check into the hospital Friday for the procedure on Monday. I consulted my astrologer, who did a special lunar return chart and came up with the possibility of a wrong diagnosis for Monday. She told me to have the operation changed to Wednesday, in order to allow the planet Neptune, amongst others, to change position. I did this, and on Tuesday the doctor suddenly discovered a blood clot was causing the trouble. Had he performed the operation, as any doctor would have on Friday's symptoms, I probably would never have walked again."–

Also in the Miami Herald article, was a story about a noted Miami astrologer, Clifford McMillen. Here is an excerpt.

> –McMillen is also listed as the official astrologer to Sen. George McGovern, and predicted in February, 1972, that he would lose in November to President Nixon. At the same time, he forecast the victory of his Democratic nomination at Miami Beach.
> As he explained to his afternoon museum class recently, "The planet Saturn came into conflict with a planet of McGovern's career area, setting up a T-square, which means considerable difficulties to overcome. In October, Nixon, a Capricorn, will be benefiting from the good planet Jupiter, while McGovern, a Cancer, will have the trouble-giving planet Saturn in conflict with his career area, from the 12th House, building up unknown enemies. Really, in the coming race, he might as well stay home."

Your horoscope can bring you wealth. Famous business tycoon J. P. Morgan, used astrology to acquire his fortune. Morgan did not make a financial move without checking his natal horoscope forecast.

From the article in the Miami Herald come these stories:

> –Stockbrokers on Wall Street are as likely to call an astrologer in this decade as Hollywood film stars would call a psychiatrist in the last. David Williams, a 75-year-old retired financial expert who lives in Clearwater, has made $150,000 from the stock market in 13 years by using astrology as an investment guide.
> Robert Cooper is a classic, middle-aged establishment sort with silver-rimmed glasses - but he wouldn't move a penny in the $4-million St. Petersburg corporation from which he retired recently as vice president, before charting the planets.–

Your horoscope can show you the way to success and happiness in love and marriage. Horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Jackie Kennedy predicted their current successful marriages. Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier of Monaco and Jackie Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis, Greek multi-millionaire.

Princess Grace and Prince Rainier have recently had their horoscopes done together by American astrologer, Keith Clayton. As with these famous people, your horoscope can help you find and keep a lasting and meaningful love relationship.

Is a natal horoscope analysis a good investment?

By knowing how to advance your career or making a correct financial decision, you would get back your investment thousands of times. Success in the areas of lovelife, marriage, children relationship and peer relationship is of infinite value. Knowing what future potentials to take advantage of and which ones to avoid can offer a priceless feeling of security.

Now and through the ages a good natal horoscope analysis has meant success for many people. In other cases many men have missed their opportunity; some with tragic consequences, such as Adolf Hitler.

Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided?

Today, right this moment, you can have your natal horoscope cast and analyzed. You can get it for only the cost to make your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process–FREE. The article below will tell you how. The means are available, but the choice is yours.

BY SIMPLY MAILING IN YOUR BIRTH DATA FOR RESEARCH

by John F. Ford, President of International Astrological Association

Send me your exact time and place of birth. I'll cast and analyze your natal horoscope for research purposes. You may have duplicate copies of your horoscope for only $3.00–the cost to make your copies plus postage and handling costs. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process–FREE, because of the fact that we must produce your horoscope for research anyhow.

Your natal horoscope will consist of nine pages and over 3,000 words. Your natal horoscope will contain your psychological analysis plus a discussion of the following: your lovelife; financial outlook; marriage, family and children relationships; career and occupations; hopes, wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. A horoscope of this type would cost up to $300 if done by an astrologer.

I will cast your horoscope with the help of our 360 - 65 I.B.M. computer, which contains over 24 million bits of information. Your horoscope will not be the worthless type found in daily newspapers. Your natal horoscope will be cast from your exact time and place of birth for you and you alone.

THERE'S ABSOLUTELY NO CATCH. I need this information for my astrological research. I am looking for certain planet configurations. If you are chosen as a research subject, I will mail to you a research questionnaire. If you fill out and return this questionnaire, you will be entitled to extra bonuses.

There is no need to worry about finding out about an unavoidable coming disaster thru your chart. As mentioned, astrology deals in potentials. Your free will can override potentials if you know about them. In any case, the policy of qualified astrologers is positive astrology. If there is something negative in your chart, you are told what you can do to make it positive.

To get your horoscope thru this special opportunity, simply fill out the research computer form to the right and mail to the address given on the form. Include the $3.00 copy cost for each horoscope or charge your credit card. There is a limit of two per family. If you don't know your exact time of birth, fill in 12:00 PM.

If you have any questions, call me, John F. Ford, President, International Astrological Association, at (216) 494-4282. Thank you!

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

The Place You Live— And How It Affects Your Life

True or False: How much you trust your fellowmen is likely to depend on what part of the country you live in. (See number 3)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Almost everybody agrees that there is one state in the U.S. with the greatest scenery, the most natural beauty.
2. Where you live has a bearing on how long you're likely to live.
3. How much you trust your fellowmen is likely to depend on what part of the country you live in.
4. Most Americans are dissatisfied with the region they live in and wish they could move somewhere else.
5. How strictly you will be judged should you stray occasionally from the straight-and-narrow path in your social attitude or conduct depends more on where you happen to live than how you live.

ANSWERS

1. False. No question is more controversial, for virtually every state has outstanding features that are rated highly by some, shrugged off as unimpressive by others. On two separate occasions, however, nationwide public-opinion surveys were conducted that showed eight states as being most frequently mentioned for their beauty. They are: California, Colorado, Florida, Pennsylvania, New York, Washington, Oregon and Kentucky. When people were asked to name the city with the most beautiful setting, San Francisco scored the most votes, with Washington, D.C., as second choice, followed by Los Angeles, New York City and Miami. Others high on the list included Denver, Honolulu, New Orleans, Salt Lake City and San Diego.

2. True. Longevity studies conducted by a leading life insurance company show that "longevity in the U.S. varies appreciably from one region to another." It's pointed out that the chances of surviving from age 65 to age 85 provide a practical measure of longevity. It was found that men aged 65 had the best chances of living 20 more years in Florida, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oregon, California and New Mexico. As for the women, they had a survival advantage over men throughout the U.S.
3. True—as shown by a nationwide survey of people's attitudes conducted by the University of Michigan's Institute of Social Research, which showed Westerners to be the most trusting of their fellowmen by a significant margin. Easterners and residents of the Midwestern states ranked next. Southerners, it was found, were inclined to be most skeptical of other people's motives, particularly if those people are strangers.
4. False. In a coast-to-coast survey, people were asked if they had ever thought they would like to move to another state. Two out of three said they preferred their own state for a variety of reasons and wouldn't want to move anywhere else.
5. True—according to a recent survey of the attitudes of Americans as regards morals, ethics and human conduct in general. Findings: The most morally strict and disapproving of permissive life-styles were the Southerners. Midwesterners ranked next, then came Westerners. Most broad-minded of all, most tolerant of human frailties and peccadillos, were the Easterners. They tended to embrace the most uncritical, live-and-let-live attitude.

Arthritis, Rheumatism Sufferers Just Wouldn't Let Me Stop Making ICY-HOT!!!

By Bryan Auer

For 50 years the J. W. Gibson Company, makers of pharmaceuticals and household items, has been selling more than 275 different products. When I was fortunate enough to take charge of this company, I thought it wise to review all the things we had been selling. As a good manager I made an effort to economize and decided to eliminate more than 150 products. One that I eliminated was called ICY-HOT—a medicated cream that was really different . . .

Well friends—you can't imagine what happened! It was like the roof fell in—I got hundreds—literally hundreds—of letters from people who suffered from the minor aches and pains of arthritis and rheumatism pleading with me that ICY-HOT was their salvation, and that I'd be letting them down if I took it off the market.

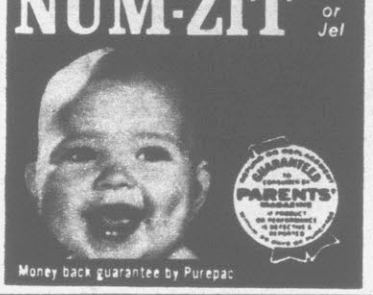

What could I do? The same thing you'd have done. I started making ICY-HOT again. What's more, I felt that if ICY-HOT was that good, I'd like everybody in the United States who suffers from the minor aches and pains of arthritis and rheumatism to know about it. That's why you're reading this now.

And that's why you can try ICY-HOT on this iron clad guarantee of complete satisfaction or money back. But you won't find it in your drugstore. You can only purchase ICY-HOT by mail. All you do is send only $2.00 for a big 3½ ounce jar of ICY-HOT. If you are not completely satisfied don't bother sending back the unused portion of the jar—just send us a note and I will send you your $2.00 by return mail.

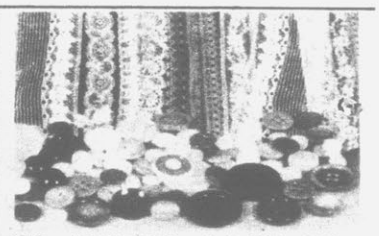

Take advantage of this no-risk offer—you have nothing to lose. Trying is believing! Only by trying can you fully appreciate the benefits of ICY-HOT. Send only $2.00 to:

THE LENNON SISTERS
Don't argue—discuss

QUOTE: The Lennon Sisters Secret of Success: "We think the reason we've lasted so many years is because we don't argue. There are 11 children in our family, and when we were little, Mom would say, 'Please keep your voices down. Don't argue – discuss! With so many of you around, what if everyone argued? I couldn't take it!' The result was that we grew up talking things over. The majority rules, and that's that." UNQUOTE.

Ever gone to the supermarket with a man? Here's how Sam Levenson sees it: "Getting out...is...more difficult than getting in. It is somewhat like leaving a foreign country. 'What do you declare?' The check-out counter looks and operates like the U.S. Customs. There are two lanes marked Local, two Express, one Ten items or less, and seven lanes marked This lane closed. Any lane may be closed at the discretion of the customs officer if said lane should become dangerously overcrowded by one person." From "In One Era & Out the Other" (Simon and Schuster, $6.95).

WHAT'S YOUR HANDPRINT?
This machine knows

A foolproof security system that checks handprints instead of fingerprints has been invented by Robert Miller of Northvale, N. J., and is currently being used by banks, businesses and the Strategic Air Command as a means of identifying employees. The machine, a large black box, measures the lines coming into the center point of a person's palm and acts like a giant fingerprint. Exactly how the machine works is something Mr. Miller would have to explain, but essentially what happens is this: A person places a card into the machine. Then he places his hand palm down on the machine. If the data on the card matches the handprint, then the person can enter the building. If not, lights flash, bells ring and the doors remain shut. 1984 is only a decade away!

BUY CYCLE

For saving gas, for exercise,
The bike is back, I realize:
Two wheels, two pedals, handlebars,
A seat—it's simpler far than cars.

Yet not as simple as before.
Where is the one-speed bike of yore?
The three-speed's noticed now and then,
But mostly you must have a ten.

Our children's bikes, the very latest,
Are really slick, the kind that's greatest.
They've hand brakes, racing tires and sirens,
Imported, best in our environs.

They're made of finest steel I'm told,
Though I insist they're made of gold.
You say this isn't really so?
I paid for one. I ought to know.

THROUGH A CHILD'S EYES

Kids see life differently. Send original contributions to "Child," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., N.Y., N.Y. 10022. $10 if used—none returned.

Having one daughter, 5, and a son, 3, we were pleased that our third child was another little girl. On my arrival home with the brand-new baby, my daughter sat next to me. While I was talking about my two beautiful little daughters, my son rambled over and asked sullenly, "Momma, do you like the girls better than me?" "Of course not," I answered, "I love all of you—and especially you because you're my only son." With sheer delight and amazement he looked at me and said, "Oh Momma, am I really?" *—Mrs. William J. LITTLE EMILY

"Try to bring back the Big Band Sound, and this is the thanks you get!"

Crack open a Zane Grey book and ride into a vast, rugged land with no fences to limit a man's freedom—or to diminish his dreams.

It's a world where broken-nosed, bullet-scarred men ride hard, hunt bravely and shoot straight—or die early.

Where the Indians still don war paint to collect scalps and the buffalo roam in thundering herds. Where the land is still up for grabs—waiting for men with courage enough to tame it.

If this is the world you would like to explore, let us send you—for only $1—three of the greatest books Zane Grey ever wrote:

The Thundering Herd.
Tom Doan sets out to find Millie Fayre, a petite beauty imprisoned by desperadoes, but finds himself trapped between rampaging Comanches and fifty square miles of stampeding buffaloes.

Riders of the Purple Sage.
Probably the most popular Western ever written. In the midst of fiery action, a mysterious rider and the girl he loves gamble their lives in the winning of the West.

Arizona Ames.
A blazing epic of a hard-riding cowpuncher whose six shooter spread terror among the toughest bad men.

These handsome, hardbound books are clothed in sunset red, desert tan and cavalry blue, and stamped in genuine gold. They're the first of what could be a library of Western classics you'll be proud to own.

And to celebrate Zane Grey's 100th Anniversary, we'll send you all three books (regularly $11.67) for only $1.

And you'll want to own others in the series as they become available.

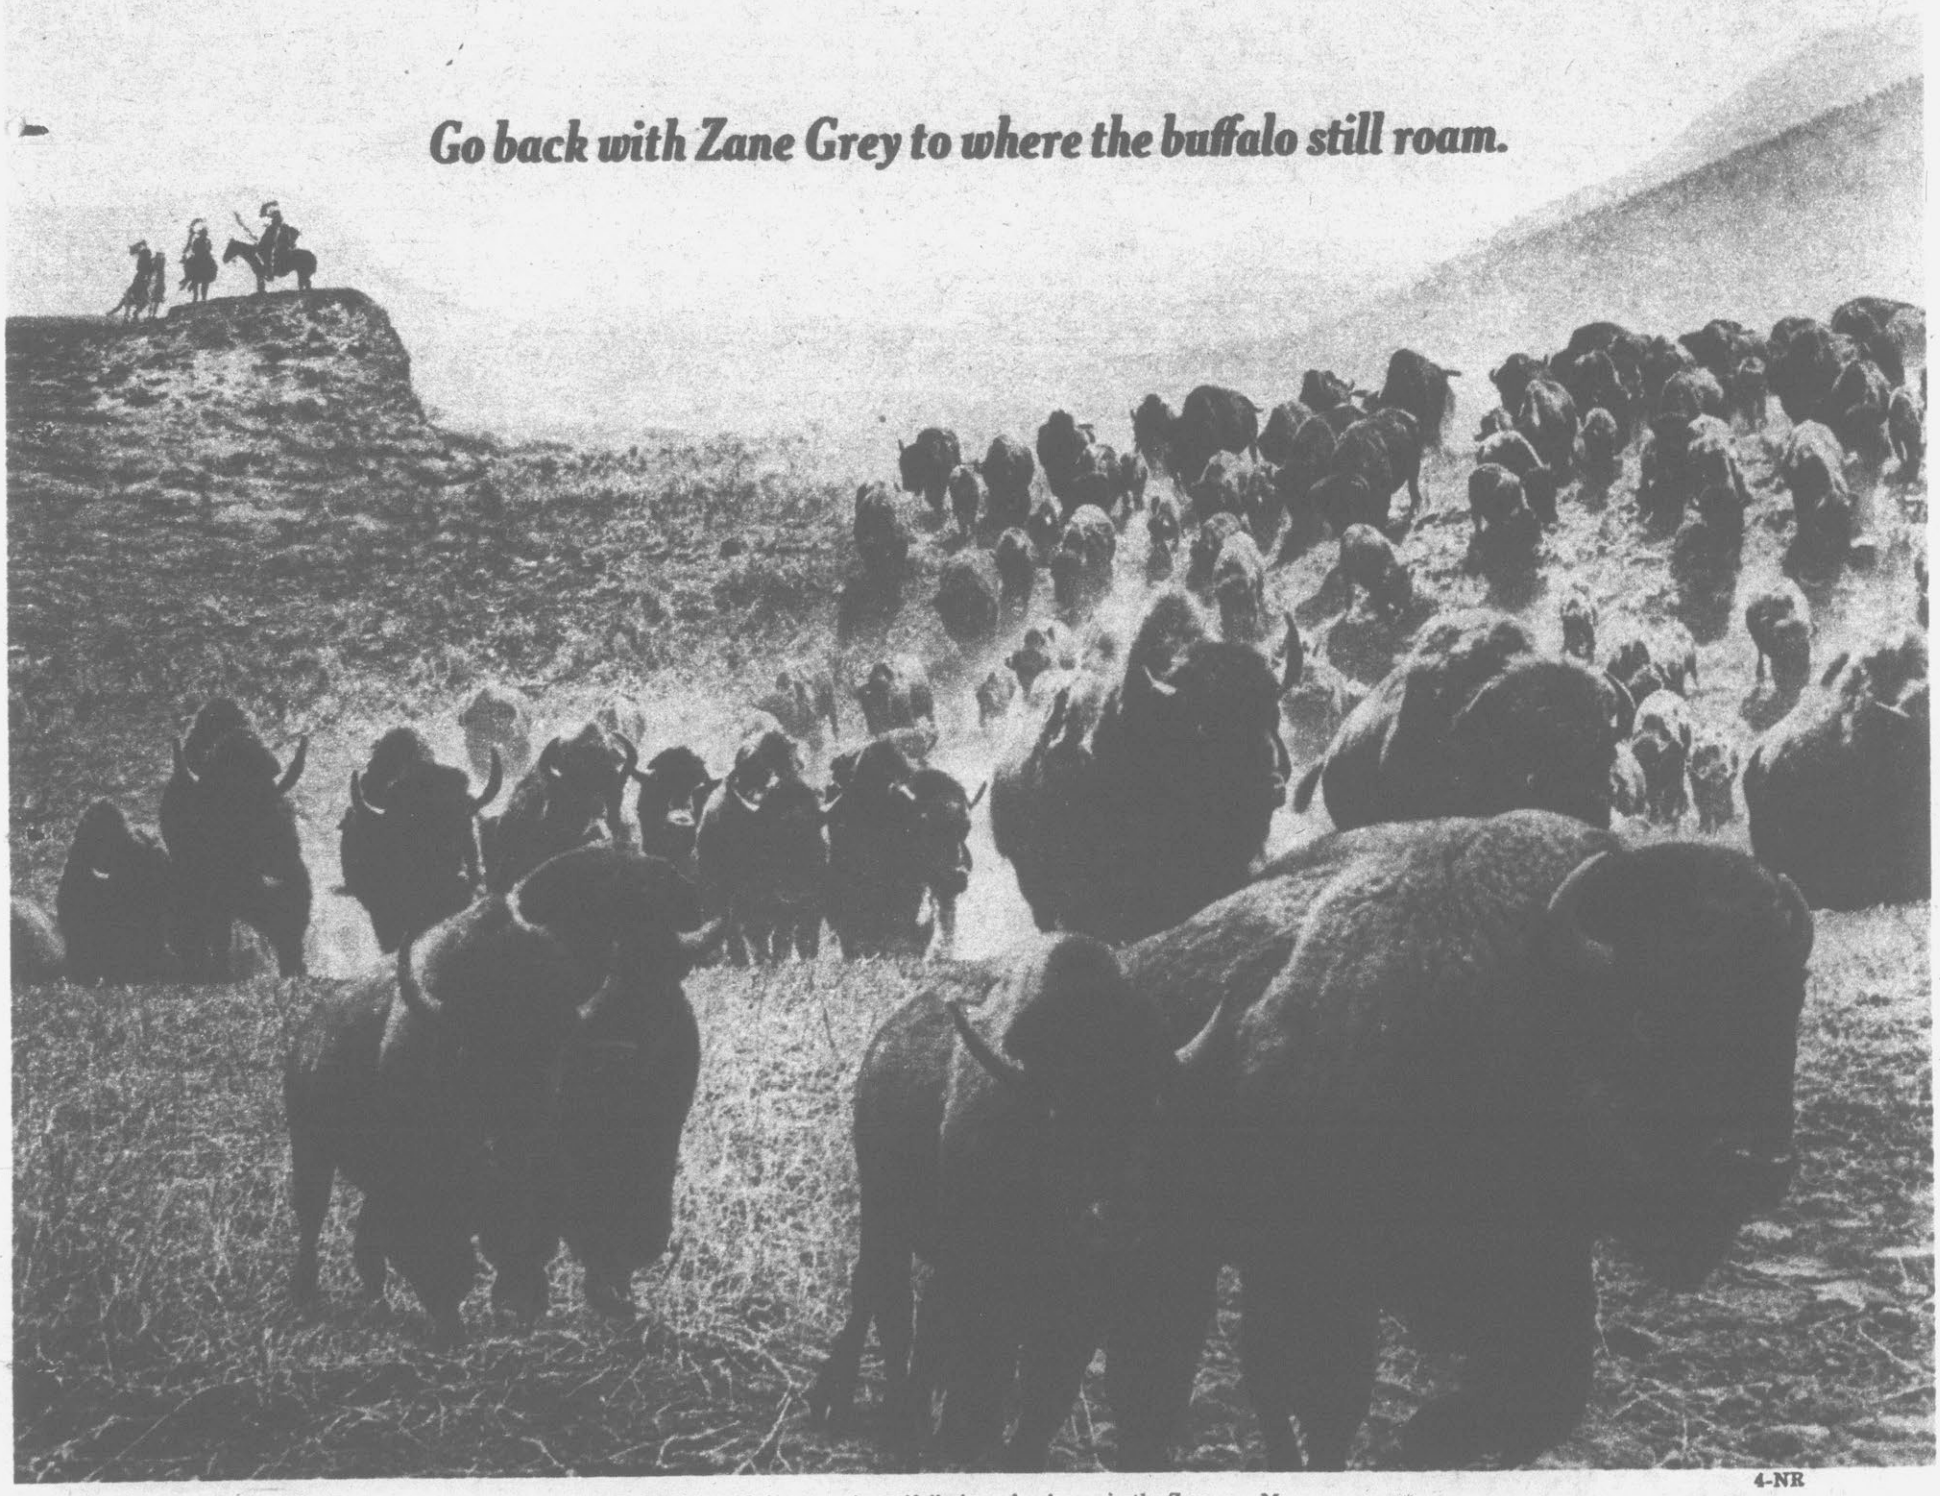

They will include: Wildfire, Wild Horse Mesa, The Vanishing American, Fighting Caravans, The Hash Knife Outfit, Maverick Queen, Thunder Mountain, and many more.

Because we print in large quantities, and because we sell directly to the public, we can offer our subscribers beautifully bound Zane Grey books for only a fraction of what you'd expect to pay—only $3.89 each plus shipping.

Send no money. Just mail the coupon to get Riders of the Purple Sage, Arizona Ames and The Thundering Herd—the whole shooting match—at the special introductory price of $1 plus shipping. The Zane Grey Library, Roslyn, N.Y. 11576.

Go back with Zane Grey to where the buffalo still roam.

The Zane Grey Library
Roslyn, N.Y. 11576

Please send me Riders of the Purple Sage, Arizona Ames and The Thundering Herd.

If I don't want to keep these introductory volumes, I'll return them within a week and owe nothing. Otherwise, I'll pay just $1 for all three, plus shipping.

Also reserve for me other beautifully-bound volumes in the Zane Grey Library, which I will be entitled to receive as they come from the presses.

I'll get advance descriptions of all future volumes. I may reject any book before or after I receive it.

For those I keep, I pay just $3.89 each plus shipping. And I may cancel my reservation at any time.

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER

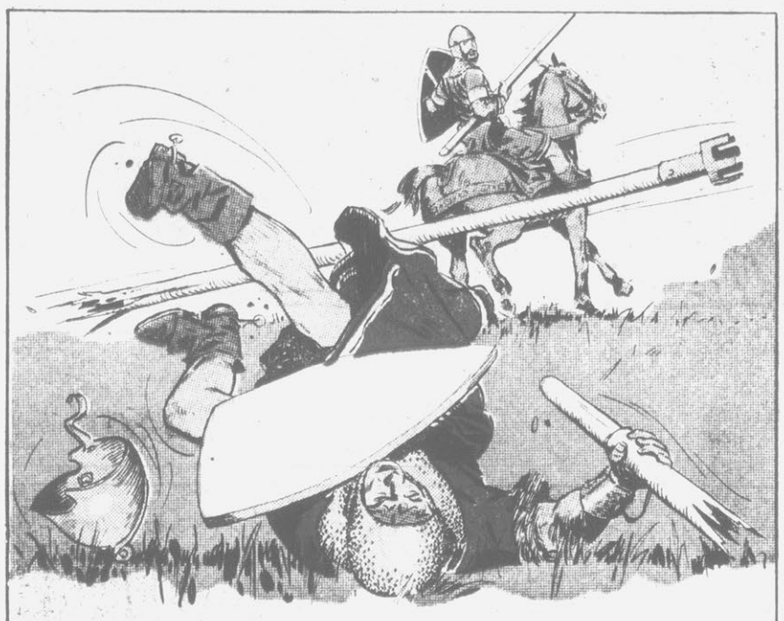

Our Story: THE DAY OF THE TOURNAMENT DAWNS AND PAUL, WHO WOULD LIKE TO PARTICIPATE IN THE GAMES OF STRENGTH AND SKILL, MUST BE NURSEMAID TO SQUIRREL. HE JUST CANNOT LET HER RUN LOOSE AMIDST THE EXCITED CROWD.

ARN SURVIVES THE GRAND MELEE BY SHEER LUCK. IN THIS EVENT, TWENTY KNIGHTS LINE UP ON EITHER END OF THE FIELD AND CHARGE. LANCES ARE SHATTERED, MACES AND UNSHARPENED SWORDS DRAWN, WHILE SQUIRES RUSH AMONG THE COMBATANTS TO RESCUE FALLEN MASTERS.

SIR GAWAIN IS IN HIS GLORY AS HE TUMBLES ALL WHO DARE CHALLENGE SO HARDY A VETERAN.

POOR ARN GAINS NOTHING BUT EXPERIENCE, FOR IN HIS FIRST JOUST HE LEARNS THAT A BOY, NO MATTER HOW SKILLED, IS NO MATCH FOR A GROWN MAN.

ARN EVER DREAMS OF LYDIA, AND HAD LONGED TO HAVE HER AT HIS SIDE..... BUT NOT NOW. HE WOULD NOT LIKE HER TO SEE HIM BOUNCED ON THE TURF.

HE SEEKS ADVICE FROM SIR GAWAIN. "TOURNAMENTS ARE NOT FOR YOU. YOU ARE TOO GENTLE. YOU TAKE AFTER YOUR MOTHER. YOU MUST HAVE A CAUSE TO FIGHT FOR."

BUT IF ARN FEELS DISCOURAGED, WHAT ABOUT PAUL? WHILE TRAVELING, LITTLE SQUIRREL HAD BEEN A JOY, RUNNING FREE AND COMFORTABLY DIRTY..... BUT IN THE PALACE SHE NEEDS CONSTANT SUPERVISION. OH, HOW HE LONGS FOR ONE ROWDY NIGHT IN A TAVERN!
