

TRAIN DERAILS IN LUCAMA—A Seaboard Coastline Railroad 135 car freight train derailed in a residential area of Lucama south of Wilson early Sunday morning causing extensive damage to the train cars and tracks. Officials said the train was enroute to Rocky Mount from Florence, S. C., Cars that derailed were 21 cars of phosphate, and cars of pulp board and various other items. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

ONE INJURED—Mrs. Kathleen Woodard suffered minor leg injuries when one of the 46 cars of a Seaboard Coast Line Rail Road that derailed in a mass of twisted metal and debris in Lucama about 5:30 a.m. yesterday crashed—along with a tree it pushed before it—into the side of her home near the SCL's main North-South rail line. Trees stopped other freight cars from crashing into the dwelling. Three other persons in the house at the time of the derailment escaped unhurt. (Reflector Photo by Stuart Savage)

Doubts Expressed Over DST, But Schools Adapt To Schedule Shift

Pitt County and the Greenville City Schools began operating under a new schedule this morning as the first school day dawned under daylight savings time which went into effect yesterday.

County and city schools took in one-half hour later this morning, in order to try and avoid putting students out in the dark while awaiting buses.

Principals of the county high schools reported no major problems this morning as students began trying to get used to operating under new school schedules.

Walter Latham, principal at North Pitt, reported he felt 75 per cent of his students were in attendance. Latham expressed concern over putting students out in the dark to await buses, even though his school is taking in one-half hour later.

Buses from North Pitt pick-up students within one mile of Washington and have to begin their rounds soon after 8 a.m., which does put some students out in the dark, as sunrise this morning did not occur until after 8:20.

"I really do not see how it is going to help save energy," said Latham, "We have to light buildings and heat them after the coldest part of the day which is 5 a.m. to 6 a.m."

Farmville Central prinicipal; Russ Cotton, D. H. Conley head James Carraway, Ayden-Grifton principal William Wiggins and Rose High associate principal Dave Bumgardner, all reported no major problems with the new schedule.

Sam D. Bundy Elementary principal John McKnight reported he had a few more students who "slept in a little longer than usual" but otherwise felt his school was operating normally in Farmville.

South Greenville Elementary head Mrs. Lena Brown reiterated the "no problems" comment of most principals, however, she expressed the need of a street light at the front of her school so teachers could see better when arriving in the mornings when it is still dark.

Eastern Elementary principal Mrs. Margaret White stated things were going normally although it was going to take the students time to get adjusted to new class schedules.

Greenville schools superintendent Glenn Cox reported normal conditions in all city schools and Pitt County superintendent Arthur Alford summed it up with, "Outside of a few people standing out in the dark things were normal, although it was 'mighty' dark."

Boxcar Slams House

LUCAMA, N.C. (AP) — One woman was injured Sunday when a railroad box car slammed into the side of her house. The car was one of 46 cars which left the tracks when a 135-car Seaboard Coast Line freight train derailed.

Railroad officials said Mrs. Kathleen Woodard suffered a leg injury and was hospitalized at nearby Wilson for treatment.

Residents of this small rural town of about 550 population were startled from their sleep by the derailment about 5:30 a.m.

Crews planned to have a new track installed around the wreckage by late Sunday, according to Kenneth Kitt, assistant railroad superintendent.

The wreckage blocked the main Florida-to-Virginia line. The northbound train was headed to Rocky Mount from Florence, S.C.

Railroad company workers from Rocky Mount and a derrick and crew from Florence were sent to clean up the staggering mass of steel and wood, which officials said would take several days to remove.

The cars started derailling at the 31st car behind the engine, scattering debris throughout the community which runs along the tracks.

Twenty-one of the derailed cars were loaded with phosphate while the others were filled with pulp board and various other items, Kitt said. One tanker car was filled with asphalt spilled, but no pollution was reported.

The cause of the derailment was under investigation today.

OK Sale Of Pitt Bonds

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Pitt County Commissioners started the new year off right today—their first meeting of 1974—by sampling a nut cake made from a 100-year-old recipe, then approving resolutions calling for the sale of some $11 million in bonds to fund construction of the new hospital for the county.

Commissioner Burny Tucker, who several months ago treated commissioners to home-made apple pie (which he baked himself), today treated commissioners to a nut cake which his wife Mabel baked. "The boss cooked that one," he told his fellow commissioners.

Tucker explained that in addition to other things, the recipe calls for a pound of walnuts, pound of pecans, a pound of Brazil nuts, a like amount of raisins, eight eggs, and coconut.

Commissioners, who last month agreed to provide more than $500,000 needed to fund construction of the new hospital when all other available funds fell more than half-million dollars short of the cost of the project this morning approved resolutions calling for the sale of $9 million in bonds approved by county voters in 1970, and okayed a resolution calling for the sale of $2 million in bonds—a loan from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The bonds will be sold by the North Carolina Local Government Commission.

In addition to the bonds, Commissioners approved a lease agreement for the hospital. Terms of the lease—approved last month by the Board of Trustees of Pitt Memorial Hospital—provide for repayment of the $2 million HEW loan through hospital revenue.

In other business this morning, commissioners heard reports from the Department of

Windsor Castle Guarded

LONDON (AP) — The massive British Army operation against Arab terrorist attacks at London airport has spread to the grounds of Windsor Castle, the royal residence six miles away.

Queen Elizabeth II was not there Sunday when the troops arrived in armored cars to mount guard. She was staying at her Sandringham estate, more than 100 miles away in rural Norfolk.

Some 400 troops and police with machine guns, tanks and armored cars are covering Heathrow International Airport in an alert unprecedented in British peacetime history. The troops were sent to Windsor because the castle lies on one of the flight paths into Heathrow.

Police stopped and searched hundreds of cars on side roads while soldiers with dogs patrolled the meadows, at the edge of the airfield. Other uniformed troops and plainclothesmen patrolled inside terminals.

British newspapers said the cordon was ordered late Friday night after several Western intelligence services reported terrorists had smuggled three Soviet SAM7 antiaircraft missiles from Libya to Europe to strike at flying civilian jetliners.

The missile can reportedly be dismantled and hidden in a suitcase. It is fired from a shoulder launcher and homes in on the heat of the plane's jet exhaust.

Another report said that several terrorist groups "who do not share a common aim" were cooperating in a plot to launch at least 20 attacks soon throughout Europe. The report did not elaborate.

Security precautions were also stepped up at airports in Amsterdam, Brussels, Rome, Bonn and other major West European cities. Canadian airports joined in the special security alert.

But British security sources ruled out a direct connection between the expected attacks and the arrest of members of an alleged arm smuggling ring apparently based in California.

Hearing Denied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gasoline station operators fighting Phase 4 price controls were denied a hearing today by the Supreme Court.

Two station operators suing for themselves and all others in similar circumstances called the regulations applied to retail gasoline outlets as arbitrary and capricious.

The specific point on appeal to the high court was a ruling by the temporary emergency court of appeals set up to handle price control suits. The court held that the station operators must exhaust administrative remedies before going to court.

The litigation began last August prior to the present petroleum shortage. An attorney for the station operators said the shortage in some cases has worsened the economic plight of the operators despite higher prices at the pump because less gasoline is being sold and operators were still working on last summer's profit margin.

Question Of Shelving Tobacco Program Poses Concern In Area

By BLANCHE HARDEE
Reflector Staff Writer
The question of whether or not the tobacco marketing quota and acreage allotment for flue-cured tobacco marketing crop was set last July as 1,175 million pounds. That poundage can either be increased or terminated but cannot be decreased now.

The Act states that "if the secretary has reason to believe that, because of national emergency or because of a material increase in export demand, any national marketing quota or acreage allotment for cotton, rice, peanuts or tobacco should be increased or terminated, he should call an immediate investigation to determine whether the increase or termination is necessary to such emergency or increase in export demand."

"Exports have continued strong during the first four months of the current marketing year and totaled 188 million pounds, 10 percent above the corresponding months of last year," Kenneth E. Frick, administrator of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service said. "Reports from trade sources indicate that cigarette production in foreign countries is increasing by four percent annually. The available world supply of high quality flue-cured tobacco has become relatively tight."

Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz has a formula to follow in determining marketing quotas which is generally, the amount of tobacco on hand minus the amount used and exported should leave a two and one-half year supply in storage.

Stacy Evans, manager of the Pitt County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said the farmers themselves who are growing tobacco do not want an increase because of the anticipated fuel shortage, fertilizer shortage, and the ever present shortage of labor.

"I hope the Secretary will not go as far as to drop the quota and have no limit on the amount of tobacco that can be planted," Evans said.

Evans said the marketing quota cards were mailed last year on Dec. 21. The ASCS office has tentatively set Jan. 4 as the mailing date for the cards this year. However, since the Secretary has not reached a decision on the quota, the cards will probably not be delivered to local farmers until after Feb. 1.

"If the quotas are suspended, farmers can grow all the tobacco they want and there will be no need for rental," Evans said. "I don't know where that will leave the widows, elderly couples and small farmers who usually rent their tobacco out each year. Usually that is all the income they have."

There are 2,567 farms in Pitt County that have an effective (tobacco) quota of 43,192,369 pounds of tobacco. Of that number, 669 farms transferred all their quota last year.

"These 669 farms are owned by elderly people, by and large, who would lose their primary source of income should quotas be suspended, along with many others on whose farms tobacco is still produced," Evans said.

"Since the acreage-poundage quota began in 1965, flue-cured tobacco farmers in the five-states have produced less tobacco than has been used in any one of those years," Evans explained. "The surplus which were burdensome at that time have been drastically reduced. You can't go forever producing less than you are using. Eventually, there will be no surplus. It appears we are at that point now."

Farmers feel if they produce more tobacco, the price they receive will be less.

"If an increase is justified, it should be as small as possible to keep supplies in line with demand," Evans noted. "An increase of 10 percent was approved for last year's crop."

"Farmers have been producing basically 15 percent less than what we have been using," Evans added.

Consideration will be given to data, views and recommendations as to whether the national quota for flue-cured tobacco for the coming year should be increased or terminated, and if increased, the amount of such increase, and data and views submitted by purchasers of tobacco with respect to the capacity of processing facilities to handle the increased weekly marketings which would be expected if the marketing quota is increased.

Submissions should be transmitted in writing to the Director, Tobacco and Peanut Division, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., 20250. All submissions must be postmarked no later than Jan. 10, 1974.

Kenneth Dews of Winterville feels it is of utmost importance that farmers respond to this issue.

"It is a matter of survival on the part of the tobacco farmer," Dews emphasized. "We have had nothing like this since 1939. I feel this could create a chaotic situation and that every segment of the economy would be affected if quotas are suspended."

Dews added, "If the Secretary does anything at all, a small increase may be warranted, but we don't know how much increase he is talking about."

Goodall-Hardee Vows Solemnized On Sunday

The marriage of Retha Louise Hardee and Henry Rivers Goodall III was solemnized Sunday at 3:00 p.m. in a double ring ceremony. The Rev. Bobby Bazen, pastor of the bride, performed the ceremony in the Black Jack Free Will Baptist Church.

Randy Buck, organist, and Mr. and Mrs. David Burns, vocalists, presented a program of wedding music. Mr. and Mrs. Burns sang "One Hand, One Heart" as a duet and Mrs. Burns sang "Twelfth of Never" and "The Wedding Prayer."

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Hugh T. Hardee Jr. and Mrs. Geraldine Mitchell of Greenville, and the late Mr. H. R. Goodall Jr.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown of white organza, designed with a high neckline encircled with ruffled organza and scalloped Venise lace. The empire bodice featured embroidered organza threaded with white satin ribbon. The renaissance sleeves of embroidered organza were also trimmed in Venise lace. A double ruffled flounce of organza, accented with Venise lace edged the hemline, which extended to a sweep train.

The bride wore a formal length white illusion mantilla edged in the scalloped floral Venise lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and roses.

The church was decorated in the traditional green and white. In the center was a fifteen semi-circle candelabra decorated with white mums tied with white satin bows. Tiered candelabra overflowing with bridal flowers and standards of greenery flanked the altar.

The lighting of the three candles was used by the bride and bridegroom. The bride and bridegroom lighted separate candles before the ceremony with the candle lighting bouquet. After the ceremony, they lighted the center candle together, symbolizing their unity. At the altar was a profile prie-dieu where the bride and bridegroom knelt facing each other for the wedding prayer. The front pews were enclosed until the parents were escorted in. Aisle runners were rolled out just before the bride entered the church.

The honor attendant was Mrs. Vicki Dixon of Greenville, sister of the bride. She was attired in a formal length green gown in peppermint crepe, featuring a smocked bodice with a white crepe collar edged in ruffled white lace. A self-tie accented the gown back. The long sleeves featured ruffled cuffs edged in the white lace. She wore a peppermint velvet petal leaf headpiece with a matching illusion veil. She carried a nosegay of mixed flowers in tones of pink, lavender and purple.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Yvonne W. Abbott of Winterville, Miss Lynn Minnette and Mrs. Gwendolyn Harris of Greenville. Their dresses and headpieces were identical to that of the honor attendant and they carried nosegays.

Miss Michelle Burns of Washington, niece of the bridegroom was dressed as a miniature bride and carried a nosegay of flowers. Christopher Hardee of Newport News, Va., cousin of the bride was ringbearer. He carried a white satin pillow with a spray of miniature carnations.

Ronnie Goodall of Greenville, brother of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Hugh T. Hardee III, brother of the bride, Robert Moody, Kim Tavasso, all of Greenville, and Robin Abbott of Winterville.

For her daughters wedding, Mrs. Hardee chose a formal length gown of azalea red chiffon. The bridegroom's mother wore a formal gown of orchid chiffon. Both wore white carnation corsages. Grandmothers of the bride, Mrs. Scott Buck of Greenville, Mrs. Hugh T. Hardee Sr. of Aberdeen, and Mrs. N. C. Tripp of Ayden, wore white carnation corsages to compliment their outfits.

For a wedding trip to western North Carolina, the bride changed into a red, white and blue wool pants suit and wore the roses lifted from her bouquet.

The bride attended Atlantic Christian College and Pitt Technical Institut. She is a secretary at Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co. The bridegroom attended Oak Ridge Military School, East Carolina University, and Pitt Tech. He is employed by Frankie Hardee Electrical Co.

They will reside at Rt. 9, Greenville.

A reception was held at the Cherry Building following the wedding ceremony given by the parents of the bride.

An after rehearsal party was held Saturday night at the Ramada Inn, given by Mrs. Geraldine Mitchell and Mr. Carl Landes.

A wedding breakfast was given by Mr. and Mrs. Hugh T. Hardee Sr. of Aberdeen, and Mr. and Mrs. Norman C. Hardee of Newport News, Va., at the Ramada Inn, Sunday Morning.

Welcome Wagon Luncheon Set

Mrs. Robert Boudreaux will be guest speaker at the Wednesday meeting of Greenville's Welcome Wagon Club.

Her topic will be "Maintaining an Ideal Weight." The luncheon meeting will be held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club beginning at 11:30 a.m. Pre-luncheon bridge will start at 9:30 a.m.

Reservations can be made by phoning Mrs. Kenneth Taylor, 752-6760, or Mrs. George Manning, 758-2214. All newcomers to Greenville are invited to attend. The club's president, Mrs. Lisa Kannen, will preside.

Charity Wins Out In Holiday Spirit

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I solved the problem of what to give the people on our Christmas gift list who have everything, plus a collection of white elephants from previous Christmases.

We sent them checks in the amount of whatever we would have spent for a gift, and on each check we wrote, "Please sign this over to your favorite charity. Holiday cheer to you!"

There are so many worthwhile charities, why spoil the holidays fretting and shopping for unneeded gifts for people who are doing the same for us? We submit this idea in the hope that it will appeal to grownups who want to double their giving.

Abby, since you are probably among those who have everything, please accept the enclosed check for your favorite charity as our gift to you. God bless you and yours.

EUGENE F. MEGYESY, TULSA

DEAR MR. MEGYESY: What a super idea! Too bad it arrived too late to be used this Christmas, but I shall certainly share your novel and generous gift idea with my readers for next Christmas.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column that there's a place in Hollywood that sells false fannies for women.

Do you know if they have any for men? All the pants I buy are way too big in the seat and I have to have a lot of alteration.

FANNYLESS IN FLORIDA

DEAR FANNYLESS: A "false fanny" is simply a padded girdle, and I'm sure it doesn't care who wears it.

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter from the mother of the 16-year-old girl who had gone to a doctor requesting birth control pills. The mother was shocked and upset.

Obviously the girl expected her visit to be confidential, but the moment she left the doctor's office he was on the phone, reporting to the girl's mother.

Abby, even minors have some rights. Some states have laws permitting minors to receive birth control pills without parental consent, while others do not. If this doctor was unwilling or unable to comply with the girl's request, he should have told her so and sent her on her way. To tattle to her mother was a gross violation of professional ethics.

If a patient sees a doctor about a drinking problem, an ethical doctor does not notify the patient's employer. Neither does an ethical doctor contact the wife of an unfaithful husband [other than thru public health officials] to report his case of V. D.

I hope that girl will report the physician's betrayal to her medical society. I would expect the same were I to violate medical ethics.

SAN FRANCISCO PHYSICIAN

DEAR PHYSICIAN: I received a load of letters from other physicians who share your view. I appreciate your writing.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's new booklet, "What Teen-Agers Want to Know," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

Educational Program Begins

Ways of coping with the energy crisis, the rights of women, and consumer protection are all topics that will be dealt with on an education write-in, call-in television program called "It's Your Money."

The program, which runs eight consecutive weeks, is a cooperative venture between the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service and the University of North Carolina Television network.

Each week, call-in or write-in questions will be fielded by a panel of experts, says Mrs. Evelyn L. Spangler, extension home economics agent, Pitt County. Topics will be set one or two weeks in advance, so timely concerns can be discussed when they are of greatest interest, she adds.

"It's Your Money" begins tonight and will continue through Monday, Feb. 25. Airtime is 7 p.m.

Hostess and producer of "It's Your Money" is Mrs. Justine Rozier, extension home management specialist, North Carolina State University.

Persons who wish to ask questions by telephone may call (919) 829-5614 and those who wish to write their question or opinions may address cards and letters to "It's Your Money," Box 5546, Raleigh, N.C. 27607.

Education television networks are Channels 2,4,17,25,26,33,39 & 58. The programs will be presented live from the Raleigh studio.

Helpful Hints

Ignore little problems on the homefront repair scene—and you'll be sorry. They'll become big problems before you know it, just like a little hole in a sock. It gets larger if it isn't darned.

Newspaper makes really good drying "cloths" at window washing time. Just wrinkle a sheet and wipe. No streaks.

Bridge Winners Announced

Winners in the Wednesday morning duplicate bridge game played at the Bank of North Carolina were:

Tied for first were Mrs. Ralph Sullivan and Mrs. John Richards with Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin and Mrs. E. L. Baker; Mrs. W. J. Shaw and Mrs. Pat Thomas, second.

Wednesday afternoon winners included: Mrs. Sol Schechter and Mrs. Max Chused, first; David Proctor, second; tied for third were Mrs. J. W. H. Roberts and Mrs. Lacy Harrell with Mrs. M. H. Bynum and Mrs. Eli Bloom.

Saturday afternoon winners at First Federal Savings and Loan were:

North-South: Mrs. J. S. Rhodes Jr. and Mrs. Roger Critcher Jr., first; Mrs. J. M. Horton and Mrs. W. R. Harris, second; Mrs. Mary K. Perry and Lewis Newsome, third; Dr. Charles Duffy and Ned Kinsey, fourth.

East-West: Mrs. Clifton Toler, first; Mrs. Cora Powell and Ed Emundson, second; Suzanne Cunningham and Mary Riddick, third; a membership game will be held Saturday Jan. 12.

Mrs. Britt Is Speaker

Mrs. Austin Britt presented the program at the meeting of the Merry Tillers Garden Club of Welcome Wagon held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. James Stoneman.

The speaker discussed and illustrated the principles of correct pruning for shrubs and trees.

Mrs. William Carter Smith, club president, conducted a business meeting and reminded members that the program for February would be centered around terrariums and house plants.

Mrs. Glenn Eubanks was welcomed as a new member. Mrs. David Pressel served as co-hostess for the meeting.

GOLDEN OLDIE—A 1920 Pierce Arrow plated in 23-carat gold, rests on a trailer after it was sold to Earl Clark of Lancaster, Pa. for a record $160,000 during the Southwestern U. S. Antique and Classic Car Auction Saturday. Clark did his RALEIGH (AP)—The road back to pre-eminence in North Carolina politics is proving to be a difficult one for the Democratic party.

Crushed by major losses in the 1972 elections and divided by opposition to the party's national ticket, Democrats showed their discontent Saturday at the first meeting of their state executive committee in 17 months.

Electric Car Also Has Its Gas Engine

MIDDLEBURY, Conn. (AP)—Don't be surprised if E. Robert Horwinski's compact car sounds normal one day but makes no noise while running the next day.

He designed it to run up to a point on noiseless battery power, which causes no pollution, and then to shift to gasoline power when the batteries run down.

Horwinski, General Dynamics' former chief of European operations, conceived the "hybrid" car as an answer to the range limitations of a solely electrical vehicle.

While displaying it during a two-day symposium at the University research center the Cheshire, Conn., resident explained how it would work.

"You're stopped at a traffic light in the city. Nothing is running. You push down and you drive away on electricity," he told spectators. "Then you get out on the road and as soon as the batteries are half discharged, the gasoline engine starts automatically."

Horwinski has also designed his car so that any unneeded power developed by the engine is converted to electricity and stored in the batteries.

Batteries occupy the place where the transmission is usually located and power from them and the gas engine is fed straight to the drive wheels.

While the basic Chevelle car he uses still contains the original 165-horsepower engine, he wants to replace it with a smaller one, such as a three-cylinder type used in a French compact.

The smaller engine, he said, works constantly at optimum speed, providing maximum power with minimum pollution.

When the car is stopped outdoors, the engine could be kept running to recharge the batteries. Back in the garage the batteries could be plugged into an electrical supply for recharging.

The maximum speed and range of the car under electrical power are 35 miles per hour for one hour.

Powered by the small gas engine, the car could call on its electric supply if needed for a hill or passing, Horwinski said.

Another device that Horwinski created can convert braking power on downhill runs to electrical power for the batteries. He claims that up to 85 per cent of the power used to go up hill can be recovered on the downgrade.

The inventor has filed for patents on the various devices that make up his hybrid car.

He said low-speed tests so far have been favorable, and he expects the same for top-speed operation.

Protestants held closely comparable views on the President's performance, but today, approval among Catholics is 22 per cent compared to 33 per cent among Protestants.

Nixon's Job Rating Is Still Low At Year's End

By GEORGE GALLUP

PRINCETON, N. J.,—In the final 1973 measurement, President Nixon's job rating, after having risen slightly during November, leveled off at 29 per cent approval—two points above his low point to date.

The President's approval ratings have fluctuated by only a few percentage points in surveys since late September.

Nixon's brief gain in popularity during November (four points nationally) was the result of a sharp rise in support in the South, following his speaking tour there as part of "Operation Candor." His gains in that region, however, have proved temporary.

Nixon's job rating has declined 30 percentage points since late January, when a survey taken immediately following the Vietnam peace settlement showed a record 68 per cent expressing approval of his performance in office. This decline represents the sharpest recorded for any President since these measurements were first undertaken during the presidency of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Watergate A Key Factor

A key factor in the President's slide in popularity in 1973 was Watergate. "Corruption in government" for the first time in more than two decades was, in the mind of the public, one of the most important problems facing the nation. In surveys since June, roughly three-fourths of the public have held the view that Nixon was, at least to some extent, involved in the scandal.

Another major factor in Nixon's popularity decline was inflation—the chief concern of voters during most of 1973. In fact, it is likely that the President's approval rating would have undergone a sharp downturn last year even if Watergate had not been in the picture, since the public traditionally holds the incumbent administration at least partly responsible for economic problems.

Analysis of the final 1973 survey results by population groups reveals that disapproval outweighs approval except among Republicans, where a slight majority express approval.

In contrast, only 17 per cent of persons who describe themselves as Democrats currently say they approve. Independents are much closer in their views to Democrats than to Republicans, with 25 per cent of independents indicating approval in the latest survey.

Little difference in ratings given Nixon is found on the basis of occupation groups, with business and professional people about as likely to voice disapproval as persons in other occupation groups, including manual workers.

Support Among Independents

Dropped most in '73
A comparison of Nixon's support in late January, when his popularity was at a high point of 68 per cent, with his current rating shows the decline to be particularly marked among independents.

While the decline in approval during 1973 was 35 points among Democrats and 37 points among Republicans since late January, it was 48 points among independents.

Decline in approval has also been particularly pronounced among Catholics, in January Catholics and Gardening Is For Everyone. That's the new home gardening program being promoted by the North Carolina Agricultural Extension Service for 1984. This program is a response to the greatly increased interest in gardening as a hobby and a healthy means of producing nutritious and flavorful fresh foods.

The GIFE program will make available to gardeners the results of research which has been gained by universities, USDA and private companies. Bulletins, newsletters and other media will be used in this effort. All information will be available through the local Agricultural Extension Office.

The Garden Manual, prepared by Extension horticultural specialists at N.C. State University, is most useful for local gardeners. It contains a complete listing of recommended varieties, seeding dates, row spacing, fertilizer, maturity dates and suggested amounts to plant per person. In addition, it contains tips on site selection, preparation, and garden management. Other publications available cover mini-gardens, garden insect control, mulches, and fertilizers.

After the vegetables have been produced, how do you make the best use of them? GIFE provides that information through Extension Home Economists and several publications. Vegetables in Family Meals - a guide for Consumers - contains information on storing, preparing and serving home-fresh vegetables. Canning of jellies, pickles, fruits and vegetables is covered in specially prepared bulletins.

Youngsters can get a special boost in GIFE by participating in the 4-H garden project. County, district state and national awards are available for those who do an outstanding job. It is not necessary for youths to belong to a club in order to participate in the 4-H garden project.

For bulletins or more information about GIFE, contact the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Service at 203 West Third Street, P. O. Box 1427, Greenville, N.C. or phone 758-1196.

Japanese Discover Skiing In Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Snowy Alaska may not yet rank as a winter vacation haven, but Japanese ski enthusiasts are discovering it by the charter-load.

Winter visitors from Japan have doubled over the past year and are now pouring in at the rate of 1,000 skiers a month, said Director Frank Seymour of the Alaska Visitor's Association.

Chris von Imhof, Mt. Alyeska ski resort manager, said he has printed duplicate menus in Japanese and hired Japanese-speaking persons for his desk and information staffs.

He described the winter tourists as being between 30 and 35 years old and mostly single. "They're ... one of the most fun-loving and hospitable people that we accommodate," he added.

Von Imhof said Alaska isn't really that far away for the Japanese ski enthusiasts.

He said it takes quite a long time for the Japanese to travel from their urban centers to Japan's ski slopes.

"It takes five or six hours by jet from the (Japanese) urban areas to Anchorage. In fact, they probably can get more skiing time in on less crowded slopes," Von Imhof added.

Japanese skiers pay between $350 and $550 for a week's package including two days in Anchorage and four at Mt. Alyeska. Alaskans heading to Japan without an excursion-rate advantage would pay $770 per person.

Seymour said the first ski packages were offered in 1969, and ski groups provide the heaviest influx of winter guests to the state.

Colors Retired

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—It was the 30th Infantry Division, known affectionately as the "Old Hickory" division.

During World War II, the German radio's Axis Sally referred to it as "Roosevelt's storm trooper division." Some military historians described it as "the most outstanding division in the European Theater."

It had also performed well in World War I.

That proud history ended after 56 years Saturday when the division's colors were ceremoniously retired at a ceremony in Raleigh attended by veterans from North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Tennessee.

The retiring of the colors followed the deactivation of the division last month. Its division headquarters was abolished, leaving separate brigades and other units in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia.

Sugg, who took office three months before Democrats lost the governorship and a U.S. Senate seat in 1972, had been for some time the target of public comments critical of his regime. The opponents came in force Saturday and, in the early stages of a six-hour meeting, seemed set to change his ways or face ouster.

With help from prominent Democrats such as former national committeewoman Martha McKay of Chapel Hill, dissidents such as A. J. Howard Clement III of Durham and Roger B. Foushee of Chapel Hill needed Sugg continuously until, seemingly without reason, the tone of the meeting changed. Sugg concluded the meeting with at least a mild victory, winning approval of his staff's proposed $456,000 budget and plans for party control of the 1974 statewide elections.

The meeting had begun at 11:35 a.m. with about 100 of the 288 committee members present. As the parliamentary maneuvering continued and the meeting dragged on, many members left. Three times in the final two hours the meeting was interrupted by quorum calls. Finally, it was delayed until three specially appointed sergeants-at-arms rounded up enough members to make the quorum.

Somewhat ironically, Sugg's formal prepared report to the committee contained a reference to his effort to build party unity.

"We have used our fund-raising events to demonstrate how various factions are working together now within our party. We believe these efforts have been fruitful to some extent in building the kind of unity that wasn't achieved in the aftermath of our primaries."

"For one thing, the severity of our losses has created a feeling that we cannot afford to continue party in-fighting without reducing our great party to a shadow of its former self."

Foushee, who admitted an effort had been planned to oust Sugg as chairman, said in an interview that many members of the committee were upset over "a lack of communication, a lack of consultation" by Sugg.

Foushee said the dissidents changed their plans, among other reasons, because Sugg "announced at the start of the meeting, and abided by it faithfully, that it would be an open meeting. Most people decided to give him a chance. After all, he only has six months left."

"We wanted to keep him on notice," Clement said.

Sugg, a New Bern attorney, and state party treasurer Edward Renfrow of Smithfield have, in effect, run the party organization since the 1972 elections. They describe their program as one aimed at keeping the party in a middle-of-the-road status, politically stable but free to shift so it could embrace whatever is necessary to give it strength.

Part of that program is the new budget, which includes more than $200,000 for party spending in the statewide elections this year, when the seat being vacated by Sen. Sam J. Ervin will be up for grabs. The Sugg plan calls for the party headquarters to run the campaign for the general election, starting immediately after a nominee is declared in the primary.

Approval of the budget was one of the few matters accepted without challenge at Saturday's meeting.

Despite the long interim between meetings of the committee, the trend will be toward more sessions this year. Sugg was authorized to call a special meeting "at an appropriate time" to consider delegate selection guidelines for the 1974 national party meeting and another meeting already is scheduled for March 16.

In addition a subcommittee took under consideration a proposed change in the plan of organization that would require at least two meetings annually of the executive committee.

No Relief Until New Stability

No one apparently is very happy with all aspects of the Social Security bill which raises payments of recipients by 11 percent.

For many salaried people, it means another increase in the amount of Social Security tax that they will pay this year. Last year the tax was paid on a wage base of $10,600. This year the base was scheduled to be paid on a base of $12,600, but the latest law raises this to $13,200. That means that workers in the top bracket and their employers will each be paying $772.20 in 1974 as compared to $631.80, an increase of $140.40. The 5.85 percent rate paid by worker and employer will not change.

A seven percent increase in benefits for recipients is due to be paid in the March check with an additional four percent due July 3 in the June check.

The average monthly payment to an individual will go from $161 to $181 and a couple's average will go from $276 to $310.

The minimum check will go from $84.50 to $93.80, while the maximum will go from $274 to $304 for an individual and from $411 to $456 for a couple.

As we say, there has to be concern with the effect that the Social Security will have and certainly no one who is going to pay the increased tax will be overjoyed.

Yet, at this time of boiling inflation can our nation do any less for our older citizens than to provide increases to help their buying power stay up with inflation? The increases may help feed inflation, but we must also consider that such increases might not have been necessary if we had gotten inflation under control.

The steadily increasing Social Security tax is not pleasing to us; on the other hand any society must do all in its power to see that its elderly and disabled have a minimal amount to live on. Until we find some way to stabilize the cost of living, increases in Social Security benefits are going to be a necessary part of our economy.

Volunteerism Running Strong

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Don't look for state government to try to step in and run a statewide emergency medical care system, despite the simplistic view that such a move would be the quickest and easiest way to provide uniform ambulance service and care.

"A state owned and operated system would be the biggest mistake we could make. Big government does not necessarily do the job best," believes Jim Page, North Carolina's new chief of Emergency Medical Services.

Page, fresh on the job from a multiple career as a Los Angeles fireman, operations chief of the LA paramedic program, writer, and technical consultant for the Jack Webb television series "Emergency," thinks that to try to make everything uniform and centrally structures would destroy a level of dedication which is wholesome.

"There is a level of enthusiasm and dedication there across North Carolina which is attributable to the number of volunteers working in rescue squads. Even to pay them a modest salary would, I think, destroy that dedication, and to centralize control would do the same," Page said.

More Equipment?

Even the question of state money for equipment comes up against the same view—the present system of the volunteers involving community groups and united fund programs to get money for equipment "generates a spirit of community interest and involvement that can't be matched," Page said.

Firemen, rescue squad members, ambulance attendants all embody a philosophy of commitment to helping one's fellow man which is an "innate characteristic of the American spirit," Page said.

North Carolina, in the vanguard of state's attempting to bring order and a systematic approach to hitherto scattered and uncoordinated approaches to emergency medical service will lean heavily on existing community programs—attempting to raise the level of competence of the people involved, improve equipment, set up some rules and regulations, and pinpoint the right hospitals for prompt care of particular cases.

But in all, the effort will seek to build upon the existing services wherever possible.

"We are only interested in one thing: quality care and transportation of the sick and wounded," Page said.

Diverse resources and lack of uniformity will not detract from that, whether the community resource happens to be a volunteer rescue unit, a private ambulance service, a fire department program or one of the few remaining ambulance services operated by a funeral home, the result should be proper and timely care for people needing help.

New Steps

The first step toward beefing up that service is now underway, with Page on board and a series of meetings slated this month and next with community college and technical institute officials across the state.

Those meetings will pave the way for the schools to provide necessary training for ambulance attendants who they can pass an exam by the state's Office of Emergency Medical Service and be certified as Emergency Medical Technicians.

Within the coming year, Page hopes to put into practice an information gathering system which will tell how effective various areas are in meeting emergency problems, where resources are adequate and where they aren't, what the biggest gaps are in terms of service, equipment, training of personnel and response times; and also provide moves which by the end of two and one-half years should provide these accomplishments:

—Every ambulance attendant in the state will have been certified and tested and ongoing educational programs instituted;

—Every emergency vehicle in the state will have been licensed by Page's office and certified as to minimum standards of design, cleanliness, proper equipment, etc.;

—All hospital emergency rooms in the state will have been surveyed and classified as to facilities, staff and capability to render the best possible aid in specific cases, with a statewide classification system worked out for referral of cases to either a local hospital, regional one, or a comprehensive center depending on the patient's condition;

10 Councils

—At least 10 regional emergency medical care councils will be in operation so that local problems and conditions can have a voice in the state program;

—Progress will be made toward a statewide comprehensive emergency medical communication system linking by radio all emergency vehicles, headquarters, hospital emergency rooms;

—A public education program should be underway providing up-to-the-minute information on what services are available in which areas and who to contact in event of an emergency;

—A disaster plan for mobilization of the emergency medical care system across county and regional lines.

'Ineptitude' By Nixon Enemies

By ROWLAND EVANS And ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Two recent acts of breathtaking ineptitude by President Nixon's foes have strengthened the hand of hard-line staffers inside the White House and thereby increased the possibility of a political bloodbath in the coming months.

Those two events, playing a subpoenaed White House tape recording at a Georgetown cocktail party here and the shotgun subpoenaing of White House files by the Senate Watergate committee, provide needed ammunition for Nixon hard-liners in the continuing internal dispute. Within recent weeks, there have been strong signs of Mr. Nixon's returning to the hard line where he feels most comfortable.

The issue could be decided in current San Clemente discussions. If the hard-liners win, Mr. Nixon will cease all efforts at conciliation and, instead, subject every critic to massive political retaliation. Though its effectiveness is questionable, that strategy could totally brutalize American politics in 1974.

As we have often reported, several presidential aides disagreed with concessions by Mr. Nixon (including casting off his chief lieutenants, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman) last spring when the Watergate scandal broke. Since then, the President has moved reluctantly toward ever greater concessions while sporadically returning to the hard line. "I ask you: what good has it done him?" demands a hard-line aide.

After promising total disclosure during "Operation Candor," the President three weeks ago seemed on the verge of releasing to the public comprehensive summaries of the tapes. For example, speechwriter Patrick Buchanan, usually a hard-nosed conservative, argued such disclosure would do Mr. Nixon more good than harm.

The event that turned the tide was the Georgetown cocktail incident where William Dobrovir, a Ralph Nader lawyer, played a subpoenaed tape as a party stunt. Even hard-line presidential aides privately admit that Dobrovir's bizarre conduct is substantively irrelevant. But it has made all the difference in internal White House politics.

The Dobrovir incident, the hard-liners have argued inside the White House, shows the undisciplined state of the liberals and reveals why they are so vulnerable to sustained counterattack. Moreover, it provides mighty good ammunition for retreating from "Operation Candor."

Coupled with the Dobrovir incident is the blunder by Sen. Sam Ervin of North Carolina, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, in approving his staff's shotgun subpoenas for over 500 tape recordings and documents—a move criticized even by key Democrats. Here again, cry the hard-liners, is proof of indiscipline, stupidity and vulnerability of the liberals. Here again, they add, is a reason to justify an end to "Operation Candor" on grounds that the liberals take a mile when you give them an inch.

The two incidents enhanced the basic argument inside the White House against releasing the tape summaries: just as it did with Mr. Nixon's personal tax statement, the hostile media would emphasize new material derogatory to the President and play down evidence exonerating him.

So, on Dec. 28, the White House acknowledged it would not release the summaries (with the present intention to release merely a "white paper" describing them).

Moreover, the White House mood now is to use the Dobrovir and Ervin incidents to deny all tapes to the Senate committee while making them available to the House Judiciary Committee's impeachment proceedings. Some Nixon men regard the House committee under Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey as bulkier, less united and vastly more partisan than Ervin's and, therefore, a less formidable antagonist.

But the hard-liners now at San Clemente are seeking much more. They want a new posture by Mr. Nixon that will threaten every critic with the political fight of his life. Had this policy been in effect in 1973, Ervin's investigation would have earned him a

Strength For Today

EARTH CRAMMED WITH HEAVEN

Some people never get anything out of the present because they are always thinking about the future; others can never enjoy their present blessings because of remorse and bitterness over the past.

A person is fortunate who learns to enjoy the simple circumstances and everyday persons with which he is surrounded. The happy person accepts the fact that life is pretty much the same in his area of the world, that there are just as good people in his city or village or office or shop as to be found anywhere. He feels that the scenery in his part of the country is as attractive as that in the next country, if he will only open his eyes and see the real beauty inherent in it.

As Robert Browning wrote: "Earth's crammed with heaven, And every common bush afire with God, But only he who sees takes off his shoes; The rest sit round it and pick blackberries."

Humiliation Day, 1974

WASHINGTON—Just before adjourning for the Christmas holidays, the Senate passed a resolution calling for a "National Day of Humiliation, Fasting and Prayer. It was introduced by Sen. Mark Hatfield and adopted by voice vote with no debate or opposition.

I think it was a big mistake. While the idea of such a day is admirable, and one that no God-fearing American can argue with, the results of declaring another holiday will only cause more trouble than it's worth.

Other Editors Say Costs vs. Benefits

(Washington Daily News)

According to figures given out by the American Hospital Association to The Associated Press, the cost for a patient one day in a community hospital in 1946 came to $9.39.

Today that cost has risen from $9.39 per day to $105.09 per day, an increase more than 11 times greater over a period of 27 years. And the question was asked "have benefits gone up 11 times during those years?"

Surely medical science has come a long ways in 27 years and a lot of knowledge has been gained since 1946. But the average life span has increased from about 70 years to 71.1 years.

If we remember correctly, back in 1946 people then were complaining about high hospital costs. Those complaints have not subsided at all and indeed they have increased year by year. The American Hospital Association says that at least 50 percent of the increased costs can be laid to inflation. With that assertion, we can agree. But what about the balance?

Higher salaries, higher utility bills, higher medicine costs, and higher this or that might be charged to inflation. And if we look at it this way, we still have no answer for the other 50 percent of the increase.

Added benefits and enlarged facilities surely could play a part. For instance many smaller hospitals today have many life-saving machines which some larger hospitals in 1946 did not have. Intensive care sections in hospitals are common today whereas in 1946 this was not generally the case. And in defense of hospitals staffs today are much larger than in 1946. But at the same time the patient load is far heavier today.

Another factor which ought to be considered is that of insurance coverage or hospitalization insurance which is so prominent today. And of course Medicare has come into existence since 1946. It all adds up perhaps to the fact that 11 times as many people today have some form of hospitalization insurance than was the case in 1946. And there surely are other factors which must be considered in such a discussion.

However, if The Associated Press with its bevy of expert reporters is unable to explain fully why hospital costs have risen more than 11 times greater in a period of 27 years then a country editor on the Pamlico river cannot explain it either.

The date selected for the day of humiliation is April 30, which in 1974 falls on a Tuesday. If this holiday is celebrated as are other ones in this country, it will mean a four-day weekend.

The first people to take advantage of an official day of humiliation will be the department stores and discount houses. Our newspapers will be full of Humiliation Day sales. While the churches will stay open, it will be the stores that will run the banner headlines GLUNK BROS. WILL HUMILIATE ITSELF BY CUTTING EVERY ITEM IN OUR STORE 50 PERCENT.

OR HARVEY SCHNUCKER WILL FAST ALL DAY UNTIL HE SELLS EVERY USED CAR ON HIS LOT.

The restaurants will have to take advantage of the holiday by having special Humiliation Day dinners with free cocktails and seven-course family dinners.

Deliver Us Of These—

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Things we could all do without:

Any further shortages in the supply of any kind of oil except—except banana oil.

Any new yuletide carols.

Any more Christmas cards that still arrive with postage due.

Merit raises in pay that don't cover higher taxes and food price hikes.

Invitations to accept another credit card.

Pickle-free warts to please the palates of gourmets who find the present kind of warty pickle too homely to be edible.

People who insult their pet dogs by giving them such offensive names as Bowser, Towser, Fido or Queenie.

Filling station creeps who demand that you buy $75 worth of tires or auto accessories before they will sell you 75 cents worth of gasoline.

Democrats who teach their parakeets to say bad things about President Nixon at cocktail parties.

The quality of food you usually get served at places which feature topless hatcheck girls.

The conversation of professors at faculty open house parties—during which they all agree that the three best things about the academic life are June, July and August.

The kind of people who think it is either educational or entertaining to invite guests down to the basement to watch their son's pet snake consume a live mouse.

Being asked by your high school daughter to help her prove that the square of the hypotenuse of a right angle triangle is equal to the sum of the squares of the other two sides.

On days when the streets of home are clogged by knee-deep snow, looking in the Sunday newspapers at pictures of local city officials escaping the cares of public office by frolicking on the beach of a resort in the Bahamas.

Opening the door to your boss and his wife when they arrive exactly a week early to the party you invited them to—and thereby get an eye-filling inspection on how your living room ordinarily looks.

Weepee girls at bar lounges who have a run in each stocking to match the one in their mascara.

Fat doctors who tell you to watch your weight but don't bother to watch their own.

People who automatically think that elderly ladies and men who enjoy feeding bread crumbs to birds in the public parks must all be crazy.

Employers who like to shrivel the dignity of their employees by bawling them out in front of each other.

From these and other pestiferous afflictions of mind or body, deliver us, Amen.

Hurt By Non-Productive Hours

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Plant maintenance workers spend only 2.6 hours of every 8-hour day productively, claims a management consulting firm after a study of practices in 35 plants in 12 industries.

And while it cited union agreements regarding coffee breaks, cleanup time and the like as one of the major causes, it also blamed poor management practices.

Skilled workers would rather be productive than idle, says Dana Devereux, president of The Emerson Consultants, Inc., a management advisers firm founded in 1899. Too often, however, management doesn't cooperate.

Time often is lost, says Devereux, because work is poorly planned, forcing a mechanic, for example, to stand by idly while waiting for an electrician or other skilled worker to complete his part of the job.

Emerson found in its study that 22 minutes of each working day was so wasted. It maintains that most waiting, but by no means all, could be eliminated through planning and coordination of working assignments.

Devereux maintains, in fact, that if a plant attains 50 percent of productivity from its skilled maintenance staff it is "way, way above average," and that a 60 per cent rate is "really outstanding."

This is how the losses were broken down in the study: —Bargaining agreement and plant practice losses, 78 minutes a day.

—Traveling and transporting materials and tools, 77 minutes. This deficiency, incidentally, is one of poor planning. Too often, a skilled man is called to a repair job at another site without being told what equipment is needed. He gets there and has to return for parts or tools.

—Idleness. This is a down-time for no apparent reason at all. Some call it goofing off. It costs 44 minutes a day.

—Late starts and early quits, 21 minutes. Includes expanding the coffee and lunch breaks.

—Excess personnel, 35 minutes.

—Waiting, 22 minutes. Another result of poor planning.

—Receiving instructions, 21 minutes. While Emerson didn't expand on this category, a person is entitled to wonder how much time would be lost if instructions were abandoned. Not much room for improvement here.

—Pickup, cleanup after the job, 25 minutes. Another necessary job that Emerson doesn't mean to suggest could be eliminated. It is essential, but in Devereux's words, "it isn't hand-on-the-wrench time."

The total of "hand-on-thewrench time" comes to just 157 minutes a day, compared with 323 minutes of work that, by this narrow definition, cannot be said to contribute directly to production.

Over a year's time, says Devereux, the dollar cost of non-productivity to a company with 100 skilled maintenance workers is $807,500, or two-thirds of the total maintenance payroll of $1.2 million, based on $6 an hour.

One of the biggest areas for improvement, Devereux believes, is in expanding the definition of skills. Demarcations between skills, he believes, can be costly both to worker and management.

Lest he be called anti-union, Devereux relates his personal belief that "if we didn't have unions the average working man would be paid $5 and he'd be pretty well abused in a lot of places."

Accord Muralist Highest Honors

By JOHN PLATERO
Associated Press Writer
MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Luis Echeverria has ordered the highest funeral honors for David Alfaro Siqueiros, the last of Mexico's three great muralists.

Siqueiros died Sunday of cancer. He was 77.

The president ordered that the body lie in state for 24 hours at the Palace of Fine Arts in downtown Mexico City, an honor usually reserved for heads of state.

Over the next two decades he twice was jailed and twice forced to flee his country. His terms in jail were periods of intense artistic activity. Most of the countries he visited deported him or threatened to deport him because of his agitation for a new social order. But in most of them he left his murals or paintings, done in bold colors with thick, strong brush strokes.

In 1937 he fought with the Republicans in the Spanish Civil War.

Deciding By February 1

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Wimer Mizell, R-N.C., says he expects to decide by Feb. 1 whether to make a bid for the U.S. Senate seat which Democrat Sam Ervin Jr. is giving up.

The 5th District Republican, first elected to the House in 1968, says he's "still testing the waters" to see if the people of the state would like him to run.

Ervin announced last month that he will not seek reelection this year.

Mizell was interviewed Sunday in Winston-Salem on WXII-TV's "Report to the People" program.

Responding to an opinion that he should not run, Mizell said, "I'm flattered in many respects that so many folks, especially those in the 5th District, have urged me to run for Congress again. I think this is a compliment."

"But what I would like to do is see if we can determine what the thinking of the people is at this point, and the very fact that I have the 5th District Seat is what makes it a tough decision for me," Mizell said.

On other topics, Mizell said the opinion he has been getting lately from his constituents is that the overwhelming majority do not want to see President Nixon "forced out of office."

He said he thinks Congress may take action to curb cross town busing of school children as a step to save fuel. He also said he doesn't think year round daylight saving time will result in a significant savings of energy in North Carolina during the winter months.

Anka and Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme. SPEND YOUR HUMILIATION DAY WEEKEND IN LAS VEGAS or SPECIAL FOUR-DAY SPIRITUAL CRUISE TO NASSAU.

The race tracks will hold Humiliation Day handicaps, and some football promoter will come up with an All-Star Humiliation Day Bowl. Indianapolis will have auto racing trials for the Memorial Day weekend (which incidentally used to be a Humiliation Day of sorts until the hucksters took it over).

But the worst thing of all is that all gasoline stations will probably be closed on Humiliation Day.

With forced closing on Sundays and then no gas stations open on Tuesday, you'll have people at each other's throats again just as they were during the Christmas and New Year's holidays. Rather than humbling themselves and asking forgiveness for their sins, they'll only commit new ones in an effort to get enough fuel for the weekend.

The truth is you cannot get this country to stand still and pray for itself by declaring another holiday, no matter how noble the purpose.

I think the Senate should have debated this resolution very seriously before passing it by a voice vote.

Sen. Hatfield is a very religious man and there is no doubt in anyone's mind that he was completely sincere in offering the Humiliation Day bill, but I suspect there are quite a few senators who went along with it because they could see the great possibilities it offered them to get away from Washington for one more weekend.

The resolution also puts the President in a very tough spot. Will he go to San Clemente or Key Biscayne for Humiliation Day? Or to save fuel will he spend the holiday at Camp David and watch "Patton" for the 123rd time?

Baptized In River Sheathed With Ice

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — With snow falling and the temperature in the teens, two women dressed in their Sunday best walked to a hole in the ice to be baptized by total immersion in the Huron River.

"I feel good," said Sister Margaret, minutes before her baptism Sunday. "I've overthrown Satan. He fought me last night. He said, 'Tell them you'll go in the summer when it's not so cold.'"

"But the Lord said, 'You might not have the time. You'll lose grace. I'll take care of you.'"

Along the riverbank in Lower Huron Metropolitan Park, some 50 members of the Little Ida Church of Ecorse, Mich., huddled together singing.

The Rev. Lloyd Smith and his congregation fell to their knees in the snow as the ceremony began.

The pastor pressed his head to the ice on a shallow stretch of the river and prayed: "Oh Lord, thank you for these two that have come out here today. Oh Lord, bless these two candidates."

The minister then walked out onto the ice. In the middle of the river, he stepped into a spot clear of ice, the frigid water rising to his knees. He motioned for the Rev. Walter Smith, assistant pastor of the church, to join him.

Sister Margaret, who would not give her full name or address, and Mrs. Lee Belcher, 50, of Lincoln Park, Mich., went to the hole in the ice.

"You don't get cold; the Lord keeps you warm," a woman on the bank explained quietly.

Sister Margaret emerged from total immersion without so much as a shiver, her face aglow, throwing kisses toward the congregation.

Then the ministers leaned Mrs. Belcher backward under the river water.

The Rev. Mr. Smith asked if any others wished baptism. "If so, we'll go out there again," he said.

No one else requested baptism.

Sentence Is Protested

TARBORO, N.C. (AP)—A group of blacks which Police Chief Harry Alderman said totaled 196 marched from the community of Princeville to the Edgecombe County Courthouse in Tarboro Sunday where they staged a demonstration in protest of the death sentence given three blacks last month for rape.

Alderman said the marchers were joined by others at the courthouse so that the total taking part in the demonstration was about 250.

The chief said blacks had obtained a parade permit and that the march and demonstration were orderly.

The Rev. Leon White of the United Church of Christ Commission for Racial Justice announced plans to stage a march on Raleigh in continued protest of the death sentences given Vernon Leroy Brown, Bobby Hines and Jesse Walston. White said the group would leave Tarboro Friday and reach Raleigh Sunday.

No Opposition To Susie Sharp As Chief Justice

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Supreme Court Justice Susie Sharp, twice recommended for appointment to the U.S. Supreme Court, may become the first elected woman chief justice of a state high court.

Justice Sharp, 66, Democratic candidate for chief justice of North Carolina, is not expected to have opposition in the May 7 primary. State Republican Chairman Thomas S. Bennett says he knows of no Republican opposition in the November election either.

Though not a militant feminist, she says: "I was fighting the battle for equal rights for women in the days when they were not even eligible to serve on juries in North Carolina."

Never married, Justice Sharp was recommended for appointment to the nation's highest court in 1967 and again in 1970.

brutal assault on his own ethics.

Taking a hard line, however, cannot stop the inexorable process now underway: grand jury indictments, trials and—most important—the House impeachment proceedings.

The hard-line advisers concede this. But they are convinced that Mr. Nixon will never be voted out of office by the Senate, will never resign and would prefer weathering the storm inside rather than outside the White House.

They know he will suffer grievous wounds in the process. But in San Clemente, they are now urging him to also inflict some in return and thereby reduce the number and ardor of his enemies ("We want a quartet instead of a choir against us," says one). If the President follows their counsel, the ugliest days of Watergate lie ahead.

Stock And Market Reports

Hogs
RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hog prices were steady to $1.00 lower today. Tops of 40.75-41.75 at Kinston, Benson and Lumberton; 40.00-40.50 Rocky Mount; 38.50-40.00 Wilson and High Falls; 39.00-39.50 Tarboro and Bethel; 38.00-39.00 Siler City and Denton; 41.00 Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden and Laurinburg; 40.00 Salisbury.

Poultry
RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers were steady today. Supplies fully adequate and demand fair. Weights heavy.
North Carolina hens: Wide price range on heavy types. Supplies fully ample to burdensome and demand slow. Heavies, at farm, 13 to 15 cents, mostly 15.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices were mixed to lower today as some blue chips and glammers took heavy losses.
The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.77 to 873.46, while advancing Big Board issues held a 645-to-577 lead over decliners.
Larry Wachtel of Bache & Co. said proposed legislation limiting the amount of any one issue that institutions can own was having a negative effect on the blue chips and glammers since the institutional portfolios were "loaded" with such stocks.
Helping to pull down the Dow blue-chip indicator was Eastman Kodak, lower by 4 1/2 to 106 1/2; Exxon, off 1/2 to 97 1/2; Sears, Roebuck off 1/2 to 83 1/2; and International Harvester, down 1/2 to 27.

Among the glammers, McDonald's was down 2 1/2 to 50 1/2, Polaroid off 1 1/2 to 65 1/2, and IBM off 1/2 to 225 1/2.
CNA Financial was the Big Board volume leader, down 1/2 to 8 1/2, followed by Occidental Petroleum, up 1/2 to 10 1/2; Warner Lambert, down 1 1/2 to 35; and First National City Corp., down 1/2 to 42 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, Great Basin Petroleum, down 3/4 to 3 1/2, was the volume leader.
The Big Board's broad-based index of some 1,500 common stocks was down .41 to 52.47, while the Amex market-value index was up .37 to 95.86.

Classes in needlepoint and crewel embroidery will be offered by Pitt Technical Institute for people in the Bethel area.
The classes, taught by Mrs. Hilda Garrenton, will be held in the Bethel Rotary Building.
The needlepoint classes will begin Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. and will run for 10 weeks. Class time is from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m.
Crewel embroidery will be taught Thursday nights from 7:00 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. and will run for 10 weeks.
Covered in both classes will be at least 25 stitches, projects incorporating these stitches, blocking and finishing.
Anyone attending the classes must be 18 years of age and not currently enrolled in high school.
Students should contact Mrs. Garrenton prior to Tuesday and Thursday nights to see what materials should be brought to class.

Resignation
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Brian Faulkner announced his resignation today as leader of the Unionist party. He remains chief executive of the Northern Ireland government.
His decision followed last week's decisive defeat in his party's council of his policies of power-sharing with the Roman Catholic minority.
Friends said they expect him to seek to set up a new grouping of moderate Protestants built around his supporters in the provincial Assembly.

Rape Charged Three Youths

FUQUAY-VARINA, N.C. (AP)—Police have charged three teen-agers with raping a 13-year-old girl here last week.
The trio was identified as Lacey Jones 18, and his cousin, Kenneth Jones, 16, both of Fuquay-Varina, and 19-year-old John Chance of nearby Apex.
They were held without bond in the Wake County jail Sunday, pending a Jan. 25 hearing.
Officers said the girl told police she was forced from the front yard of her home into a car by three men last Thursday night around 11:30 p.m. She was reported in good condition at her home over the weekend.

Senator Wants Investigation Of Oil Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Vance Hartke has asked the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation to investigate tax returns of the major oil companies.
Hartke, D-Ind., serves on the Senate-House committee, which already is reviewing President Nixon's tax returns at the President's request.
Hartke asked the panel to estimate the "taxes the oil companies have avoided in new oil price increases, and what the multinational oil corporations have and will receive in tax bonanzas" as a result of special tax breaks.
In a weekend statement, Hartke said Americans are paying twice for the latest increase in oil prices: "one time in laying out the cash for the higher gasoline and heating-oil purchases, and again when they pay higher taxes to cover the tax losses unpaid by the oil companies."

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—Under a new law, more Americans will be able to pay doctors to keep them healthy, rather than paying for treatment when they are sick.
The new law encourages development of Health Maintenance Organizations, or HMOs. The goal is to give more people better health at lower cost.
The new law authorizes a five-year, $375-million experimental expansion in the geographic spread of these group health plans, testing the impact in various urban and rural situations, covering large and small groups and providing several kinds of health services.
"For the first time," says Rep. Paul G. Rogers, D-Fla., a chief author of the law, "we've initiated a program which puts the thrust on preventive medicine and also offers the physician financial incentives to keep people healthy instead of just treating them when they are ill."

HMO is a relatively new name for a health-delivery concept growing out of America's 40-year experience with prepaid group medical practice.
It traces its roots to a small clinic in Elk City, Okla., during the Depression days of the 1930s. The concept reached its first big-scale system in the West Coast development of the Kaiser Foundation health plan.
The HMO concept involves an organized system of agreed-upon health services. The HMO is reimbursed through a prepaid fixed amount without regard to the cost of actual services rendered.

Federal health experts estimate there are 115 HMOs in operation—about 80 of them getting federal help—serving more than 4 million persons. During the next five years, these experts guess, the new law could spur creation of up to 400 more HMOs.
Here, in question-and-answer form based on official briefings and congressional and other sources, is how HMOs work and how they will be aided by the new law:

Q. What does the law do?
A. It knocks down some restrictive state laws which impede development of HMOs. It requires each employer of at least 25 persons to offer an HMO option in addition to private insurance in his negotiations if a qualified HMO exists in his area.

Q. What would the law's money provisions cover?
A. These include financial help to public and nonprofit groups through grants, contracts and loans to assist in such things as feasibility studies, initial development costs and early operating deficits.
Furthermore, profit-making HMOs in medically underserved areas would get loan guarantees for start-up activities.

Q. What happens when an HMO is formed?
A. Members would have one-third representation on the policy-making body. They would hire doctors, make contracts to get hospital care, pay a regular monthly charge for health care, and the government would help the group get started.
The members would get all of their medical and surgical hospital services provided through the HMO. They and their colleagues would be represented on the governing boards and would be running the group.

Q. What will happen after the five-year test?
A. The law will expire, and Congress would consider whether to extend it after seeing if it is successful in lowering costs and increasing medical services.

Q. Is there any special treatment for any particular area?
A. In general, rural areas would get 20 per cent of the appropriated money.
Q. What kind of services would be required in an HMO program?
A. There would be a comprehensive set of basic health services such as hospital care, home health service, emergency treatment, preventive and diagnostic service.

Q. Would there be uniform rates?
A. Uniform rates for basic health services and certain supplemental health care would have to be set.
Q. How will HMOs fit in with the Nixon administration's health insurance ideas?
A. Administration health experts say the President's health insurance proposal provides that all of those who are covered by that insurance may use insurance proceeds to join HMOs.

Q. Why would someone want to belong to an HMO?
A. The law's supporters say it has the advantage of providing a specific payment figure for the family budget, while the organization itself has the incentive of keeping people well.
Q. What will happen to the private doctor?
A. Caspar W. Weinberger, secretary of health, education and welfare, was asked whether the private doctor will lose all patients overnight. "I would not think so," Weinberger replied.

Q. I would assume that HMOs would make contracts with physicians in the community to provide the medical services. That is the only way it can be done," he said.
"There will be different kinds of contracts, different kinds of arrangements, but I don't see this as putting the doctor out of business in any sense. I think it provides a somewhat orderly way to manage and deliver medical and health and hospital services to people, avoiding the tremendous ups and downs in the outlays required by average families," Weinberger said.

Q. What is the position of the American Medical Association, which had worked against other more extensive versions of HMO legislation?
A. Dr. Russell B. Roth, president of the AMA, said: "We have not been so much opposed to the basic philosophy of the HMO concept as we have been opposed to the idea of massive federal spending to support it. The bill just signed by the President is rather modest in scale. It is satisfactory to us in the sense that it will provide adequate funding for trial purposes."
"Coupled with funds from the private sector—insurance company and commercial, for-profit investors, for instance—the legislation just passed will provide a level of spending to demonstrate such virtues as the HMO concept may have."

Q. What we opposed is the idea of subsidizing HMOs to a point where they would have an unfair advantage over other methods of providing health care."

PTA Meeting Set Thursday
Eastern Elementary School PTA will hold its first school wide meeting of 1974 on Thursday, at 7:30 p.m. Publicity chairman, Claude Moore also stated that the speaker for the meeting will be Glenn Cox, Supt. of Greenville City Schools. Cox will speak on "Looking Towards 1974; State Budget; Procedures and Staff Planning; A Review of 1973." Following his speech, Cox will hold a question and answer session. All interested parents and teachers are urged to attend this meeting.

Just after sunup this morning, staff members of three local health and social services agencies within the State Department of Human Resources gathered at the ECU School of Allied Health Building to hear Human Resources Secretary David Flaherty talk about "Management by Objectives."

This was a monthly joint meeting of the Pitt County Department of Social Services, the Community Health Department, and Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Secretary Flaherty explained how the management tool familiar to business has been instituted in the Department. The idea is to set up reasonable goals for each department, division, and individual employee, and have these clearly defined. The objectives should be measurable and dated action plans should be formulated. Then periodic reviews should be made.

Hopefully the results will be greater identification of the employee with the overall objectives of the department; clarity of job responsibilities and division of labor, better intra-unit relationship (team spirit), a more dynamic atmosphere, and easier budgeting.

The MBO program set up by Flaherty at the state level is in the process of being extended to the local and regional levels.

Flaherty also spoke out vehemently against the setting up of a new Department of Services to Children and Youth being proposed in the legislature. He said such a move to provide a separate agency for handicapped children would provide additional bureaucracy and tend to isolate these children. Money that could be used for tangible assistance to these children within the existing agencies would be used to set up and operate the department.

The reorganization of state government (cutting back from 300 to 17 state agencies) begun under Gov. Bob Scott is not completed and should be given a chance to show its worth before the state goes in reverse and starts forming more agencies, he said.

He said the ultimate in service to the public will be county departments of human resources, with all services provided by the state and county being administered cooperatively and at the same place. Joint meetings such as this one are a step in this direction, he said.

Hanoi Radio 'Up In Arms'
SAIGON (AP)—Hanoi radio today attacked a statement by U.S. Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger that U.S. air support of the South Vietnamese might be considered if the North Vietnamese launch an all-out offensive into the South.

The official North Vietnamese radio called Schlesinger's statement "a very serious violation of the spirit and word of the Paris agreement, an insolent challenge to the Vietnamese people and to public opinion all over the world."

The broadcast continued: "The Vietnamese people reject this threat and warn that the United States and the Saigon administration must bear full responsibility for the consequences arising from their acts of war."

In a television interview in Washington, Sunday, Schlesinger estimated the possibility of a major North Vietnamese assault at less than 50 per cent.

But he said it was "highly likely" that President Nixon would ask Congress for authority to provide U.S. tactical air support if the North Vietnamese launched an offensive.

"That statement shows that the United States continues to be militarily involved in South Vietnam ... and is an encouragement for Thieu," Hanoi Radio reported.

Last Friday, President Nguyen Van Thieu outlined an aggressive military policy against Communist-led forces in the South. A government spokesman said Sunday that the president's statements could mean the use of government ground troops.

Vikings, Dolphins Arrive In Houston

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ

AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The jubilant throng of about 400 banner-waving fans stormed the ramp with a rush that would have staggered even the best defense front four.

But the defending world champion Miami Dolphins, deplaning here for Super Bowl VIII against Minnesota, took it all right in stride. They're used to such adoration.

"We get this treatment just about everywhere we go," Dolphin running back Mercury Morris said. "Of course, this is a little different. This is the Super Bowl."

The same scene was repeated later Sunday night at Hobby

Airport when the National Football Conference champion Vikings arrived. The crowd was smaller, about 250, but it was no less enthusiastic.

The two teams boarded buses and went immediately to their hotels where more autograph seekers awaited. Regular workouts were scheduled to begin today leading to Sunday's extravaganza in Rice Stadium.

The Dolphins will drill at either the Houston Oilers' practice field or at Butler Stadium in southwest Houston. Minnesota will have a choice of practicing at either Delmar Stadium or Tulley Stadium on the west side of town.

Airport security guards tried to move the crowd behind a fence as the Dolphins' plane approached but there was one fan that wouldn't budge. He was Howard Twilly Sr. of Houston, father of the Miami receiver.

When the senior Twilly was asked to move, he replied "I'm the only man in Texas with a son on that team, and I'm not budging."

And he didn't. Twilly joined the rest of the crowd in cheering and waving at the deplaning Dolphins.

A 'Dream' To Al Hunter And Three Years To Go

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Three years from now, it will probably seem like only the beginning for a Notre Dame senior who could very well be an All-American. But for right now, it seems more like a dream.

For that Notre Dame football player is only a freshman, but he's completed the first year on a football program that is the best in the nation.

A year ago, Greenville's Al Hunter completed his senior year at Rose High School. He was one of the most sought after football players in North Carolina. The telephone rang daily in Rose football coach Dave Bumgarner's office wanting to know if and where he had signed. Everyone wanted Al.

And for some time, it was felt that the big back would stay in his home state, electing to go to one of the Big Four schools or to East Carolina. Every day a new rumor was circulated about where he had or would sign.

But Al went along his way, visiting a few schools, and checking to see what was really best for him. He finally made up his mind after visiting the South Bend, Ind., campus of Notre Dame. It was the Fighting Irish for him.

Hunter confessed after signing that he was "scared." But that may not be the correct term for it. Maybe "nervous" would be better. From Greenville, he was taking a big step—to one of the football powerhouses of America—enough to make any high school senior nervous, scared, or what-have-you.

"I've really enjoyed the year," Al said after returning from New Orleans, where he played a vital role in Notre Dame's 24-23 victory over Alabama, giving the Irish the national championship.

"It was all worth missing Christmas at home for," he added. And the biggest Christmas present of all was the hole that opened in front of him on New Year's Eve night when he raced the 93-yards with a kickoff to score, breaking a Sugar Bowl record that had stood nearly 40 years. If it takes 40 more years to break that one, Hunter will long be recalled in Sugar Bowl annals.

"Getting that touchdown was the most exciting thing of the year for me," Al said. "That, and beating Alabama. We expected them to be tough, and we were right. We'd watched their films and knew that it would be hard to beat them. They didn't have any stars, just a lot of good people, who played together well as a team. They are 11 people working together as a unit."

Hunter has a lot of respect for his new head coach, Ara Parseghian. "He really knows his football," he said. "He's really nice and easy to get along with."

Hunter works primarily under backfield coach Tom Pagna. And this coming spring and fall, Hunter has a big job ahead of him if he wants to start next year, as a sophomore. This year's starters Eric Penick and Ari Best will both return (Al alternated behind them on the second unit). "I would like to start, but if I don't, I hope I'll play a lot. I do hope to be a starter by the time I'm a junior."

Returning his thoughts to the Sugar Bowl, Al admitted that he was nervous when he stepped onto the field. "Some people say that it's just another game. But with 85,000 people and national television, it isn't just another game. I was nervous all day long."

Hunter said when he saw the kickoff headed for him, his first thoughts were to hang onto the ball. "I knew I had to go up the middle and do the best I could. We had seen in their film that we thought we could run up the middle on them if we blocked. Well, everybody blocked beautifully." But Al admits that he didn't think he could go all the way until he got into the end zone. "I was surprised to see it open up, and after I was past the last man, I didn't look back, I just tried to get an angle into the end zone."

Immediately after scoring, Hunter was mobbed by the entire Notre Dame team, buried beneath a cheering mass. "That was the hardest I was hit in the whole game," he later admitted.

Hunter was nervous too when he first stepped onto the field in the opening game of the season. He played in nearly every game and scored three touchdowns during the first 10 games. "I think it was good to be a little nervous," he said. "This is college football, something entirely new, and you can't really be cocky. It's not as bad now as it was at first—they work you up gradually."

Scoring that first touchdown this year, however, was like a dream, he said. What made it even a bigger event was that it came against Army, where his brother, Joe, is in school and his family was in the stands watching.

Now, after all this, Al is home for a few days for a holiday. It'll probably be the last time he gets home until summer vacation. He's been greeted royally, invited to dinners, parties, and the city is even proclaiming Thursday as "Al Hunter Day."

How has all this affected the freshman? "Oh, not much, I guess. I'm happy about it all, but I'm still the same crazy old person," he laughed. Al doesn't believe that it's put any pressure on him, seeing that the bulk of his career is still ahead of him. "A lot of people run back kickoffs for touchdowns; it's no big thing. But I'm happy to be honored so."

Come January 14, Al will be back to Notre Dame—a school he's come to love. "About the only thing I don't like about it is the snow and cold weather. We had 14 inches of snow and the temperature got down around zero just before we left," he said. "And they say the worse is yet to come."

The worse may yet be to come for the weather—but it could also be yet to come for a lot of Notre Dame opponents during the next three years. Al Hunter will be carrying the ball for the Fighting Irish during that time, moving on toward that elusive goal of being an All-American.

And 35,000 people in Greenville will be watching avidly throughout those three years, cheering on their home town hero. Al Hunter Day is Thursday—and perhaps again three years from Thursday.

How better can you say that you love them?

Senior Bowl Workouts

MOBILE, Ala. (AP)—First workouts were scheduled for today in preparation for the Senior Bowl game, set for next Saturday.

The two head coaches for the game, Don McCafferty for the South and Mike McCormack of the North, detailed essentially identical plans for practice this week.

Both will hold going with two practices daily through Wednesday, then begin tapering off with but one afternoon practice on Thursday and Friday.

Although they had not seen the teams Sunday afternoon and wouldn't see them until after breakfast today, both coaches expressed optimism about the talent on hand.

The day began with picture day for the players and coaches at Ladd Stadium.

The coaches said today's morning practice was to be a "loosening up" session, but that in the afternoon they plan to begin work on offensive and defensive alignments.

Among the arrivals in Mobile Sunday afternoon were Heisman Trophy winner John Capeletti of Penn State and Kansas quarterback David James. They were with a group of 12 players who played in the Hula Bowl Saturday in Honolulu.

One change in the lineups was announced Sunday. Booker Brown of Southern Cal informed Senior Bowl officials that he would be unable to participate, and he was replaced on the North squad by Greg Horton of Colorado.

Miller Leads Crosby Golf

By BOB GREEN

AP Golf Writer

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus predicts a brilliant future for Johnny Miller. And there's the prospect of a very pleasant present, too.

"For someone to catch him, Johnny'd have to play bad," Nicklaus mused after a glance at the big scoreboard at the Bing Crosby National Pro-Am Golf Tournament.

"This course can grab you," said Grier Jones, the man, with the best chance of overtaking the front-running Miller.

"But Johnny doesn't look like he wants to back off."

Miller had some similar thoughts.

"Maybe I shouldn't say this, and maybe it won't happen but I think another 70 will win it," he said Sunday after his two-under-par effort staked him to a four-stroke lead over Jones, alone in second going into today's weather-delayed final round of the chase for $215,000 in total prizes.

Miller, who gained the front rank of the game's stars with his record-breaking U.S. Open triumph last year, had a 208 total and a highly respectable eight under par.

"The amazing thing is," the 26-year-old Miller said, "that I'm leading and I haven't had a good putting round yet."

Jones was next at 212 with Rod Funseth, Tom Kite Bruce Summerhays and John Jacobs sharing third at 214.

Jones matched par 72 at the water-logged-Pebble Beach links — site of Monday's final round — while Kite had a 68, Summerhays a 69, and Funseth and Jacobs a 72.

Rookie Gary McCord, who had led or shared the lead through the first two rounds, hit two balls into the cold gray waters of Carmel Bay en route to an 80 that killed his chances at 218.

Nicklaus, the game's premier performer and winner of three tournaments in the last two years at Pebble Beach, broke par for the first time in this event but appeared out of it. His 71 gave him a 218 total, 10 off the pace.

$4,000 Each

In Big Ski Meet

MOUNT SNOW, Vt. (AP) — Spider Sabich, a two-time world champion from Colorado, and three-time Norwegian champ Otto Tschudi earned $4,000 each for winning the two big races in the weekend's $30,000 Mount Snow Grand Prix ski meet.

Sabich, who had won only $1,500 in two previous stop this season, captured the slalom Sunday as Austria's Mike Schwaiger fell and lost a ski on the second run.

Tschudi easily won Saturday's giant slalom, defeating Alain Penz of France in the finals.

Even Blanda Says College Ball 'More Exciting'

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
HOUSTON (AP) — The nation's armchair quarterbacks, eyes aflame and popping from the holiday feast of college bowl and pro playoff games, are steeling themselves for one final fling in front of the tube — Super Bowl VIII.

And many of them are asking:

Is there any way the battle of the Miami Dolphins and Minnesota Vikings can match the cliff-hanging suspense and pulsating drama of the Notre Dame-Alabama Sugar Bowl game a week ago in New Orleans?

Have the college kids, with their brashness and unpredictability, spoiled the fans for the cold, dull precision of the super pros?

In short, do the college boys provide a more interesting product?

These questions were debated over foamy beers in more than one corner pub, in business offices and on commuter trains during the last few days among viewers stirred by Notre Dame's last gasp 24-23 victory for the national championship and impressive performances by Ohio State, Nebraska and Penn State.

One of the most pointed comments came from George Blanda, the ageless quarterback and place-kicking star of the Oakland Raiders, a former pupil of Alabama Coach Bear Bryant:

"The colleges play a more exciting game than the pros," acknowledged Blanda. "Our game is too stereotyped."

One of the most un-pro-like decisions was that of Notre Dame Coach Ara Parseghian in the Sugar Bowl when, with his team nailed against his own goal line and the clock running out, he ordered a long pass on third down and eight yards to go. The pass clicked for 35 yards and was credited with saving the Irish's one-point victory.

"If that had been a pro team," said one observer, "the call would have been for a draw up the middle and then a punt. And the game would have been lost."

While most of the past Super Bowls have been totally lacking in nerve-stabbing excitement, no one questions that the pro game offers the ultimate in skill. The pros are bigger, stronger, faster. They emphasize execution. They have a standpoint at virtually every position.

So, in justice to the pros, it must be conceded that any dullness associated with their performances must be traced to a superior offense meeting a superior defense — the old immovable object and irresistible force.

Frank Gifford To Be Speaker

CLINTON, Miss. (AP) — Television sportscaster Frank Gifford, a former All-Pro football halfback, will be featured speaker at Mississippi College's annual all-sports awards banquet March 2, school officials said.

Gifford handles the play-by-play of the American Broadcasting Company's NFL Monday Night Football. He was named to the All-Pro team six times while playing for the New York Giants and was the NFL's Most Valuable Player in 1956.

He played college ball at the University of Southern California.

Surgery For Hockey Star

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Barry Martinelli, the leading scorer for Rensselaer Polytechnic's hockey team, underwent surgery Sunday for the removal of his appendix and is out of action indefinitely, a team spokesman said.

Martinelli, a 22-year-old sophomore center from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., had complained of stomach cramps Saturday afternoon but had his 12th goal and his 17th assist Saturday night when RPI lost 3-2 to Providence.

One of the major complaints against pro games this past season was the proliferation of the field goal, a boring procedure. The pros had invited this state of affairs by narrowing the hash marks, perfecting the zone defense to make the long bomb almost extinct and continuing to maintain the goal post on the goal line.

Any time a pro team moves past mid-field, it is in position to put three points on the board with one of its sure-footed kickers. The touchdown drive is becoming a rarer commodity.

The colleges avoid the cheap field goal by setting their goal posts 10 yards back of the goal line and widening the hash marks.

The pros have made the quarterback as fragile and delicate as a piece of rare china. The pro quarterback wears an invisible sign on his jersey: "breakable — handle with care."

Even in the cases of scrambling quarterbacks, such as Miami's Bob Griese, Minnesota's Fran Tarkenton and Dallas' Roger Staubach, coaches shiver with fright every time they set out on their own. It's okay occasionally to scramble, but running is taboo.

Most of the colleges subject their quarterbacks to the fullest dangers with the triple-option wishbone, sweeps and misdirections. It gives the game a new dimension. Such running attacks are shunned by the pros because of the danger to the quarterback.

The pros might investigate other features of the college game to add more pace and liveliness. The colleges have about 10 to 20 per cent more plays because they stop the clock after each first down and they offer less time for the huddle.

The pros play the percentages. They stress ball possession over field position. They rarely gamble. They have become so proficient — so stylized — that they are endangering their own product.

They need to go back to college for a few tips.

Musial Will Get Nostalgia Award

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Stan Musial, former St. Louis Cardinal baseball great, will receive the Nostalgia Award Feb. 3 at the third annual Kansas City baseball awards dinner.

Musial is a member of baseball's Hall of Fame and was one of the game's greatest hitters. He will be the third Hall of Famer to receive the award. The others were Casey Stengel and Satchel Paige.

NCAA Convention Is Opening Today

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The National Collegiate Athletic Association prepared to officially open its 68th annual convention today in the wake of some of the most serious violations of its rules and regulations by California State University at Long Beach.

The California school was socked with a stiff three-year probation Sunday by the NCAA's Committee on Infractions for a series of 26 violations in basketball and football.

The Long Beach basketball team is currently ranked ninth in the nation with a 10-1 record. However, the probation means that Long Beach State cannot participate in post-season basketball and football competition for three years, nor can those teams take part in any NCAA-governed television package.

The action against Long

Beach climaxed a day-long series of probationary penalties. Earlier, California State University at Hayward was put on indefinite probation for knowingly using ineligible athletes in baseball and track over the last four years while Cornell University of Ithaca, N.Y., was given a year's probation for recruiting violations concerning two prospective hockey players.

Dr. Stephen Horn, president of Long Beach, told the NCAA that all the persons involved in the school's infractions no longer are with the university. He said Long Beach "intends to continue the vigilance" of its basketball and football programs and would take "any further appropriate action necessary."

Long Beach State was found to be in violation of NCAA regulations governing amateurism, improper aid and extra benefits to athletes, institutional control and eligibility, ethical conduct, eligibility of athletes for regular-season and post-season competition, recruiting and out-of-season football practice.

Besides its three-year probation, Long Beach will be limited to 20 football scholarships and two basketball grants for the first year of its penalty. Normal limits are 30 in football and six in basketball.

The school's former basketball coach, Jerry Tarkanian, is currently at Nevada-Las Vegas, while Jim Stangeland, the football coach, resigned after the 1973 campaign.

The penalty against Hayward State prohibits that school from any postseason play or TV appearances in all sports while on probation. Cornell's probation does not include any such sanctions and is little more than a slap on the wrist.

Dismissed By Va. Tech

RICHMOND (AP)—Virginia Tech has fired all six of the assistants of former head football coach Charlie Coffey, who resigned last week, the Richmond News Leader reported today.

The dismissals could not be confirmed immediately at Virginia Tech, located at Blacksburg in western Virginia, but the News Leader said they were carried out by athletic director Frank O. Moseley.

The newspaper said Moseley, who is scheduled to retire later this year, has been placed "completely in charge" of the search for a new head football coach by Tech President T. Marshall Hahn.

Coffey resigned last week despite expressions of support from Hahn, who had hand-picked the former University of Tennessee assistant as head coach at Tech after dismissing Jerry Claiborne following the 1970 season.

Virginia Tech alumni were disgruntled after Tech posted a 2-9 record last fall — a season climaxed by a defeat at the hands of Tech's arch-enemy, Virginia Military Institute.

Moseley met with prominent Tech alumni and officials last Saturday to obtain their viewpoints on the type of coach he should seek.

Although Coffey resigned only a few days ago, Tech reportedly already has received more than 30 written applications for the head coaching position. Other applications have come by telephone.

Moseley is under pressure to find a coach quickly since the recruiting season already is under way.

Rookie Knox Is 'Coach Of Year'

By JACK STEVENSON
AP Sports Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Our primary function as coaches is to make the players as successful as we can possibly make them," declares Chuck Knox, overwhelmingly named National Football League Coach of the Year in his rookie season.

He was already hard at work planning for next fall's campaign with his Los Angeles Rams when he learned he had won the coaching honors in The Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters.

Hired last winter after the Rams posted a 6-7-1 record, third in the Western Division of the NFC, the 41-year-old marshaled his forces for a 12-2 record and the divisional title.

"We didn't set any goals for a certain number of wins," he explains. "But we knew we had to approach each game thinking it was the big game."

"When we started, the No. 1 objective was to get everyone on the same page. By that I mean everybody on our football team working toward the same end and that is to win."

"The thing that pleased me the most about this Ram team was the great attitude that all of our team had toward working. It was a joy and a pleasure to coach. A lot of this I attribute to the great leadership of veterans like Merlin Olsen, Joe Scibelli, Charlie Cowan, John Hadl and all the others."

"We came in here with a new program and these older veterans accepted it very willingly and the fact they accepted it created the attitude."

Of the maximum 78 votes, three from each NFL city, Knox received 43. Denver's John Ralston was second with 10. Cincinnati's Paul Brown, New Orleans' John North, Philadelphia's Mike McCormick and Buffalo's Lou Saban divided the rest.

In terming the selection a great honor, Knox said, "I think this is a credit to our football players, to my assistant coaches, and to Carroll Rosenbloom and Don Klosterman, who gave me the opportunity to become a head coach."

It was also a tribute to a man who toiled 19 years in coaching before getting his big chance and then made the most of it through methodical planning, careful study and a demand for concentration and consistency from those with whom he worked.

Cleveland State Loses Players

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—Grades and a resignation have cost Cleveland State University four key basketball players, leaving the Vikings without leading scorer Ted Hathaway on the eve of a Cincinnati contest.

Guard Ron Andregg has resigned from the team, giving no reason publicly. Out on low grades, besides Hathaway, are substitute center Jim Lawson and Gale Drummer.

A team spokesman said it is hoped that Drummer will be available for Friday's home game with North Carolina.

Drummer, whose grades fell below the minimum because of a low bowling grade, will be out tonight, but his case is to be reviewed Tuesday.

SPEED RECORD

INNSBRUCK, Austria (AP) — Ronnie Noitgedagt of The Netherlands set a track record in winning an international speed skating meet covering 3,000 meters in 4 minutes, 23.4 seconds.

Your auto liability insurance may leave you liable.

If you are driving with minimum liability coverage you could be heading for financial suicide. A $50,000 liability suit could wipe out your savings, force you to sell your home, even destroy your business.
Nationwide insurance suggests that you adjust your insurance coverage immediately. The man from Nationwide can custom tailor your liability coverage to protect you for what you are worth. And he can also protect you with property loss, collision and comprehensive coverage.

The Worry Clinic Good Oration Requires Work

Prof. Lew Saret was a famous Chautauqua orator and poet. So heed his shrewd advice. And you pastors can always give interesting sermons every Sunday by using Christ's narrative (parable) formula. Note how Dr. Peale makes sermons out of his weekday contacts!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

Case Z-518: Prof. Lew Saret taught for many years at our Northwestern University School of Speech.

"It may take a lifetime," he told us students, "to compile a world shaking oration."

"Thus, that famous 'Cross of Gold' address by William Jennings Bryan was an outgrowth of many years of public platform addresses."

"Mr. Bryan had tested his stories and examples on all sorts of audiences till he knew how the crowds would respond best."

"Though it seemed to be an impromptu speech at the Democratic Convention in Chicago, Mr. Bryan merely rearranged remarks that he had previously used to enthrall many smaller audiences."

"That total address was original, though parts of it had been tested on the public platform for years."

"You students may also become accomplished orators in years to come."

"But you may never 'ring the bell' with more than one or two perfect orations."

"For such a masterful address is the fruition of a lifetime of social experience."

Preachers, N.B.

"Dr. Crane," I am often praised by clergymen who are deft members of the "Compliment Club." "How I envy your ability to hold a congregation in rapt attention."

Though I thank them for their praise, I remind them that I have the advantage of being a visiting speaker.

For I may appear but once before that congregation, so I can lift out surefire examples and audience-participation experiments that I have employed on hundreds of previous crowds.

"When you young pastors retire," I remind them, "you should then constantly accept opportunities to fill pulpits."

"For then you can reach back into your repertoire of possible 40 years of sermonizing and lift out your surefire materials."

For example, if I am scheduled to speak before an audience for the first time, then I tell Mrs. Crane, "Well, I'll give them the old 1-2-3 today," meaning my best anecdotes and surefire examples.

But if I have addressed the same crowd several times previously, then I must analyze those previous speech notes and avoid repetition.

Paradoxically, it seems to cause irritation if a public orator repeats the same address.

Yet audiences don't criticize a musician who returns, year after year, to play the same pieces on piano or violin, or sing the same repertoire of songs!

Why do you suppose listeners hold such repetition against a public speaker but not against a musician?

You might discuss this curious problem in Sunday School or high school public speaking classes.

But everybody can make at least an interesting talk merely by following Christ's famous narrative formula.

Since people are more fascinated by narrative (stories) than by exposition (geometry theorems), then Jesus illustrated his major points with parables (relevant narratives).

Even His famous Sermon on the Mount, which contained the essence of His theological concepts, is full of examples and narration, so read it in Matthew, Chapters 5 through 7.

Pastors, weave your last week's hospital calls, house visits, and other relevant experiences into your sermons, as Dr. Peale so neatly does, if you wish every sermon to be interesting!

Send for my booklet "Public Platform Psychology," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Thornsby . . .

"His big problem is background -- in college his major was conservative arts!"

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—As South, vulnerable,

you hold:

♠AQ93 ♥AK7654 ♠Q2 ♣6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

3 ♥ Pass 3 ♠ Pass

4 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Two spades. With only three spades, a heart bid would be clearly indicated. However, with four-card support the raise is preferable even with minimum high-card values, for your hand should make a convenient dummy.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AQ10754 ♥J ♠AJ53 ♠102

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass 1 NT Pass 3 ♠

Pass 4 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Five diamonds. Slam is probably there, but it would be wrong for you to make a unilateral decision to commit the hand to twelve tricks in spades, either directly or via Blackwood. Just continue to show your features, and let partner get a picture of your holding.

Q. 3—As South, vulnerable,

you hold:

♠A10875 ♥A2 ♠Q10983 ♣6

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass

2 ♠ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

3 ♥ Pass 3 ♠ Pass

4 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What call do you make?

A.—Two spades. You passed a hand that you might have opened, and your tremendous fit with partner has improved your holding. The only way to draw his attention to this is with a jump shift—even by a passed hand, this is forcing for one round and tends to show a fit with partner.

Q. 4 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

♠AK8 ♥K10943 ♠K ♠AJ108

The bidding has gone:

South West North East

1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

3 ♠ Pass 3 NT Pass

4 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—While we would not quibble with a bid of four hearts, we have a slight tendency toward a pass. Partner's acceptance of our game try by bidding no trump shows that most of his values are in spades and diamonds. His failure to indicate any substantial strength in hearts puts a marked limit on the offensive potential of this hand.

Q. 5—As South, vulnerable,

you hold:

♠A ♠AK763 ♠762 ♠10854

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ 1 ♠ 2 ♥ Pass

3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass

4 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Five diamonds. Partner has bid the hand as if he holds six good diamonds and only four clubs. A bad trump break could sink a five club contract, but need not be fatal in five diamonds. An alternative call is four spades, but we hesitate to cue-bid with such weak holdings in the minor suits.

Q. 6 — Neither vulnerable,

as South you hold:

♠Q872 ♠Q10 ♠AKQ54 ♠Q3

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass

3 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Five spades. Partner has shown a strong hand with a good spade suit, and there should be prospects of a slam unless the opponents can grab two quick tricks. Your leap over game will convey to partner that he needs controls in the unbid suits to carry on.

Q. 7 — East-West vulner-

able, as South you hold:

♠Q10954 ♠QJ32 ♠J982

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

1 ♠ 1 ♠ Pass ?

What do you bid?

A.—Four spades. This bid serves a two-fold purpose. Though partner only overcalled, the hands might fit well and four spades could be on. Furthermore, should the hand belong to the opposition, your bid makes it extremely difficult for them to find their best spot and not get overboard.

Q. 8—As South, vulnerable,

you hold:

♠AKJ ♥AJ1062 ♠6 ♠K953

The bidding has proceeded:

East South West North

Pass 1 ♥ Pass 1 ♠

Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Two clubs. It is appealing to raise spades immediately. However, a single raise does not do justice to the hand and a double raise should be avoided with only three trumps, even such good ones. The compromise is a temporary bid of two clubs with the intention of raising spades subsequently.

Mazda proudly presents

RX-4

The first luxury cars with rotary-engine performance.

Mazda's rotary engine licensed by NSU-WANKEL

The RX-4 is more Mazda: longer, wider, sleeker. It drives, looks and feels like the luxury car it is.

And it is the first luxury car to bring you rotary-engine performance. It is designed for today's overall driving conditions. The RX-4 offers a careful balance of fuel economy, good handling, sensible size, emission controls, and rotary-engine performance.

It's a balance no other car can give you. In short, the Mazda RX-4 brings back the thrill of driving — in the best way for today's conditions.

The Hardtop, Sedan and Station Wagon have the luxury features you expect in a thoughtfully designed car, like full carpeting, reclining front bucket seats and tinted glass. Along with unexpected ones, like rear-window defroster and built-in windshield radio antenna.

And with every RX-4 comes a double-length engine warranty. Mazda warrants the basic engine block and internal parts to be free of defects with normal use and maintenance for two years or 24,000 miles, whichever occurs first, or Mazda will fix it free.

Test-drive the RX-4. It runs on the cheapest gas you can buy. And at a time when other '74s are choking on smog controls, Mazda brings back the thrill of driving. It's the first luxury car with rotary-engine performance and economy.
