Fuel Surcharge Is Added To Utilities Customers' Billing As Two New Schools Listed Top Priority In Pitt

By ALVIN TAYLOR
Reflector Managing Editor

A fuel adjustment surcharge for electricity was added to Greenville Utilities customers bills last night.

The Utilities Commission approved a surcharge to pass on a fuel adjustment charge which it pays to Virginia Electric and Power Co., Greenville Utilities electrical supplier.

The surcharge will reflect the charge from VEPCO of 1.24 mils per kilowatt hour ($0.00124).

The surcharge will be flexible and will reflect future increases or decreases in the fuel adjustment factor as fossil fuel prices fluctuate. The likelihood of the price dropping any time soon is most unlikely, however, since much of VEPCO's power is generated with oil and the price is soaring.

Utilities Director Charles Horne said he had attempted to get an opinion from VEPCO on how high the fuel adjustment factor might go. The reply indicated only that further increases were likely. Average residential electrical users will find their bills increased by about five percent when the surcharge goes into effect Feb. 1. Large residential users will see an increase of around ten percent. Large industrial users will find their bills running about ten percent higher.

Horne said the fuel adjustment charge, which is provided for in the Utilities contract with VEPCO is costing Greenville Utilities $37,200 per month at the current rate of 1.24 mils per kilowatt hour.

Increases in propane gas rates were made last night to reflect increased cost. Rates were adjusted upward 13 cents per ccf and the minimum will now be $2.20, effective Feb. 1.

Horne pointed out that rates were adjusted Dec. 1 to reflect propane gas cost of 17.3 cents per gallon. Average cost is now running 21.7 cents per gallon. Horne did report, however, that additional supplies of propane have been received and more are anticipated so that it is likely that some supplies will be available through the winter.

improvement grant for work in North Greenville.

Commissioners approved low bids by Westinghouse Corp for nine transformers with a total cost of $85,340. The transformers will serve the new hospital, Procter and Gamble and one will be a spare. Two more Westinghouse low bids for transformers were tentatively approved to serve a prospective plant at a cost of $18,926.

Also approved was a low bid by Westinghouse for furnishing 50,000 pounds of aluminum conductor for delivery in 1975. The bid provided for an increase in price based on future prices of aluminum.

A special meeting was set for Jan. 24 at noon to review two bids. One is for a sewer outfall line to serve the Singleton industrial building on N. Greene and the other is for an electrical substation structure for ECU and the Eastern bypass.

Commissioners postponed action on a request by W. E. Dansey for accepting sewage from a subdivision on U. S. 264 east of Greenville.

The Pitt County Board of Education yesterday listed a new Farmville Middle School and a new Belvoir-Pactolus-Stokes Middle School among its top priorities in a list of long-range construction plans.

Construction of the Farmville facility is planned to begin this year but construction on the Belvoir-Pactolus-Stokes School will not begin until 1975, according to plans approved yesterday.

Also listed as top priorities in the long-range plans were: new addition to the Bethel Middle School; additional kindergarten and primary classrooms at Chicod Elementary School plus renovation of the entire building; construction of a cafeteria and kindergarten spaces at G. R. Whitfield; library and kindergarten classrooms at W. H. Robinson School; a new cafeteria, additional land and kindergarten spaces at Pactolus Elementary; library, kindergarten and primary classrooms for Belvoir Primary; and Sam D. Bundy School will receive a library, cafeteria, administrative area, 15 kindergarten and primary classrooms.

The board agreed to request more capital outlay funds to buy additional campus space at H. B. Sugg School. Renovations have also been planned for Bethel Middle, A. G. Cox, Grifton, H. B. Sugg and Falkland. In addition, funds are to be made available to demolish a two-story portion of the 1916 Grifton School and a one-story portion located on the South End of that building. Necessary renovations will be made at Ayden Grammar School with the idea that a new facility be constructed on a new site as soon as funds are available.

Dudley and Shoe, Inc., will be the chief architectural firm in implementing the construction program. The board agreed to have plans drawn for work at W.

H. Robinson, Chicod and G. R. Whitfield and Farmville Middle School.

Two committees were named to begin looking for possible sites for the proposed Farmville Middle School and the Belvoir-Pactolus-Stokes School.

Named to locate a site for the new Farmville facility were Tom Patterson, Mark Owens, and the chairmen of the advisory councils in Farmville. Beverly Congleton, William House and the chairmen of the Belvoir, Pactolus and Stokes advisory councils will locate a possible site for that area.

Contracts for construction of a new classroom addition at Bethel Middle School will be awarded after Thursday, subject to approval of the State Board of Education. All apparent low bids will be accepted except for the electrical bid which will be rebid.

J. H. Hudson, Inc., was low bidder for general construction while other low bidders included: W. M. Wiggins, plumbing; Southern Piping Co., heating and air conditioning. Stuart Shinn, was low bidder for the electrical work.

Board members approved a five-year contract with the Clint W. Lee Co. for purchasing high school diplomas. The company agreed to offer the diplomas at $2.40 each. Students will continue to pay for their own diplomas as they have been doing in the past.

Mrs. Rolla Pollstin was hired to work with Mrs. Sandra Sauve as an alcohol education teacher in both the city and county schools.

Superintendent Ott Alford was given permission to enroll in a class in law at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill which is designed especially for school superintendents.

The class will meet two Thursdays a month for eight sessions.

Board members agreed to ask the Pitt County Commissioners for a five percent cost-of-living increase for all noncertificated personnel. The increase, totaling about $38,000 for a half year, will come from money transferred in the county budget and some surplus of the county schools fund.

The county commissioners recently approved a five percent cost-of-living increase for all county employees. According to Alford, that excluded several employees who were doing the same work as the county employees but were being paid with state funds. If approved, the five percent increase will put the state employees on the same increase rate as the county employees.

It was announced that the North Carolina Department of Administration has approved a lease of the Grifton Elementary School building by the Department of Public Instruction at an annual lease price of $9,600.

The board accepted the audit report from John C. Proctor and Company.

Alford announced that reservations to the National School Board Conference in Houston, Tex., must be made by Feb. 1. Several board members expressed a desire to attend the meeting. Expenses would be paid by the board of education.

Alford said the District II meeting of the board members, advisory council members and administrators will be held Wednesday, Jan. 16, in Plymouth.

The Soil Conservation Service has agreed to work with the school board in an effort to solve the drainage problem at Ayden Grammar School. It was reported that the installation of about 1100 feet of drain tile should eliminate the problem on that school campus.

Tom Craft, associate superintendent, told the board that the county buses had a total of 10 accidents from August through December in 1973 as compared with 12 during that same period in 1972. Craft said the county had a good record as

White House Defends Its Milk-Price, ITT Action

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — The White House says "traditional political considerations," but not campaign contributions, influenced President Nixon's 1971 decision to boost milk price supports. It kept the lid on tapes and documents involved in the incident.

Acknowledgment that politics figured in the controversial decision was made in one of two "white papers" issued Tuesday to counter charges that contributions swayed Nixon in the milk case and in an antitrust suit involving International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

Although the White House at one time considered making public summaries of tapes and papers bearing on the two cases, it said such a step was vetoed because Nixon feels strongly about maintaining the confidentiality of presidential files.

The tapes and documents already have been given to Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, and the White House expressed hope he and a federal grand jury "will respect the confidentiality of these materials."

The carefully prepared and detailed "white papers" made these key arguments in defense of Nixon's conduct:

—Milk prices. Under Democratic leadership, Congress was to pass a bill ordering higher price supports, and Nixon "could not veto it without alienating the farmers — an essential part of his political constituency." He knew of promised 1972 campaign contributions from the three largest dairy cooperatives but did not discuss them with dairy leaders or with advisers who helped him reach his decision.

—ITT. Nixon intervened only once in the ITT antitrust case, after former aide John D. Ehrlichman told him the Justice Department was about to act contrary to Nixon's personal philosophy. He withdrew the intervention two days later after John N. Mitchell, then attorney general, reasoned that otherwise Erwin N. Griswold might resign as solicitor general. All this took place before ITT pledged financial support for the 1972 Republican National Convention were held in San Diego, Calif.

—"UNAUTHORIZED" WASHINGTON (AP)—The Internal Revenue Service said today that a published report that it is about to rule President Nixon underpaid his federal income tax "does not come from an authorized source."

they knew of no further statements concerning Watergate-related matters.

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader and others are suing Nixon, contending he increased milk price supports in return for $427,000 in campaign donations from the three biggest dairy co-ops.

The milk case statement said "there was no mention of campaign contributions" at a March 23, 1971, meeting of Nixon and dairy leaders.

The White House said later that day Nixon met on the support issue with seven advisers and "the political power of the dairy industry lobby" was brought to the President's attention.

It said he was told that legislation to increase the support level had the support of House Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., and Chairman Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, "two of the most powerful legislators in the country."

"Neither the secretary nor anyone else discussed possible contributions to the President's campaign," said the White House.

"The President himself concluded that the final decision came down to the fact that Congress was going to pass the higher support legislation, and he could not veto it without alienating the farmers — an essential part of his political constituency."

For the first time, the White House said Nixon had no knowledge of a 1969 contribution of $100,000 from Associated Milk Producers, Inc., delivered to the President's attorney, Herbert Kalmbach.

However, it acknowledged at Charles W. Colson, former White House special counsel, wrote a memo to Nixon in 1970 that AMPI had pledged $2 million for his 1972 campaign. It actually contributed $427,000.

After the White House statement was released, John Butterbrodt, president of AMPI, told newsmen in Chicago:

"Nixon is telling the truth. Basically we had Congress ready to propose and support a bill to raise the price support to 85 per cent."

But Butterbrodt said although Nixon has answered the question of the price support issue, he has still not answered why an antitrust suit was filed against AMPI in January 1972, after AMPI stopped contributions to the Nixon campaign.

The eight-page ITT statement said there was no relation between an out-of-court settlement of an antitrust case against the corporation and ITT's payment of $100,000 as part of a pledge to help underwrite a GOP convention in San Diego.

The case, brought in 1969, challenged ITT acquisitions of the Grinnell Corp., the Hartford Fire Insurance Co. and Canteen Corp.

The White House said Nixon "expressed irritation with the failure" of Richard McLaren, then assistant attorney general for antitrust, "to follow his policy." It said Nixon telephoned Deputy Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst "and ordered that the appeal not be filed."

The statement said that two days later Nixon withdrew the order after Mitchell reasoned with him that Griswold, "as a personal matter ... had prepared his brief for appeal and would resign were the appeal not to proceed."

It treated ITT's San Diego pledge as an entirely separate and unrelated matter, saying:

"The President was unaware of any commitment by ITT to make a contribution ... at the time he took action on the antitrust case. In fact, the President's antitrust actions took place entirely in April of 1971 — several weeks before the ITT pledge was even made."

Loyalty Oath Rule In Politics Struck Down by Justices

By VERNON GUIDRY
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Political parities may not be barred from state ballots because they refuse to sign an oath renouncing violent overthrow of the government, the Supreme Court held today.

The court made its long-held distinction between a belief in the efficacy of violent overthrow and an advocacy of violent action. The mere belief is constitutionally protected, the court reiterated, in tossing out an Indiana loyalty oath that was challenged by the state's Communists party.

A unanimous court said a refusal to take such an oath does not necessarily signal support of unlawful action.

Thus, continued Justice William J. Brennan Jr. for the court, the states may not use such an oath to burden access to the ballot.

Brennan's opinion was joined by Justices William O. Douglas, Potter Stewart, Byron R. White and Thurgood Marshall. Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. agreed with the result of the court action but found his own, more narrow ground.

Powell, in an opinion joined by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Harry A. Blackmun and William H. Rehnquist, said the loyalty oath should be invalidated because it was not required of the two major parties and thus denied the challengers in the case, the Communist party of Indiana, the equal protection guaranteed by the 14th Amendment.

The court has previously held that advocating violent overthrow of the government in the abstract fell under constitutional protection.

Brennan noted that the court had previously dealt with the issue of loyalty oaths in the areas of public employment, the practice of law and taxation, but said it never before considered a loyalty oath case limiting access to the ballot.

Nixon 1975 Budget Is Predicted Going Over The $300 Billion Mark

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's proposed fiscal 1975 budget will call for an increase in defense spending exceeding $5 billion, higher than earlier estimates, says Budget Director Roy Ash.

Ash, head of the Office of Management and Budget, said in an interview that it will take $5 billion to finance higher pay and price increases for the military. On top of that, the defense budget will contain "a number of initiatives" to add to present programs, he said.

"It will be a fully adequate defense budget," Ash said. "It will do more than just make up for the high cost of material and the higher pay to those in the service."

He called the increase "the right thing to do in the world as it now is."

The defense budget for the fiscal year that ends June 30 is $79 billion. Although Ash gave no figure, sources indicated that the increase could be as much as $6 billion to $8 billion.

As for the budget as a whole, Ash said it would carry a deficit of between $6 billion and $10 billion.

While not providing a precise figure on what the budget would be, Ash said he did not see any way of avoiding going over $300 billion. This would be an increase of at least $27 billion.

Ash said the new spending program will include funds for a start on national health insurance, although he said it will be 1977 before that proposed program would have a significant dollar impact on the budget. Nixon is expected to detail his national health insurance plan soon and send legislation to Congress early this year.

Ash said the budget will contain significant amounts for research and development in energy. The budget will reflect a 5-year, $10 billion energy research program recommended by Dixy Lee Ray, chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Ash said the administration energy research proposal would not vary substantially from the AEC plan, which calls for federal spending of $1.6 billion in the first year.

The research program would put heavy emphasis on development of coal and would continue present programs to develop nuclear energy, Ash said.

Ash said the budget will contain a new revenue sharing program for transportation, under which money can be sent out to localities to spend for their transportation needs.

An East Carolina University freshman from Wilson received only minor injuries when he fell from a third floor Jones Dormitory room window early today.

University officials, who said investigation of the incident is continuing, reported Richard D. Robbins Jr. fell from the third-floor dorm room window about 1:40 a.m. and landed in a clump of bushes before striking the ground. They said the bushes apparently cushioned the student's fall, thus sparing him serious injury.

Spokesmen said a police officer in the area of the dormitory heard a loud noise and upon investigation saw Robbins hanging out of the window, then heard a call for help.

Before the officer could aid Robbins, the youth fell to the ground.

Nothing Tangible

3-Floor Tumble

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department's antitrust chief says he hasn't unearthed much evidence that oil companies conspired to create the fuel shortage, but isn't ruling out the possibility.

Asst. Atty. Gen. Thomas Kauer said antitrust lawyers have so far been unable to come up with anything tangible to support the suspicion that the oil companies produced the crisis to drive up their prices and profits.

Kauer said he probably won't disclose the findings of the department's collusion inquiry unless it produces a lawsuit. "But I think the assumption will be if we don't file suit, we didn't find any," he said Tuesday in an interview.

"While I can understand the public's suspicion, there just is not much hard evidence of collusion," he said. "I just don't see that there's that kind of evidence, but I'll be damned if I'm going to say it isn't there."

Kauer also said he does not foreclose the possibility that individual firms may have acted unilaterally "to restrict output or something of that sort," which he said in most cases would not violate antitrust laws.

Expects Some Form Of 'No Fault' Plan

The chairman of the legislative subcommittee on no-fault insurance said Tuesday night that he believes the 1974 General Assembly will pass some form of no-fault plan.

Speaking to the Pitt County Bar Association, Rep. Gerald Arnold, D-Harnett, said that he is "not sure North Carolina is ready for no-fault. Few people understand it and there have been so many misrepresentations."

Arnold, a candidate for the State Court of Appeals, noted that the most controversial factor in any discussion of no-fault is that of a threshold. "This threshold concept," he contended, "is supported by the insurance industry. Thresholds are good for insurance companies because they are actually simple to calculate and they eliminate claims."

The representative told the association, "My personal opinion is that North Carolina ought to pass a bill without artificial thresholds and without impairing the tort system, along the lines of Arkansas, Delaware, Oregon, and Maryland."

"If this cannot be done," he continued, "and it would be very difficult with the present climate, we should revise the thresholds in Senate Bill 137, the Study Commission Bill to provide for fairer and more equal thresholds..." He added that his subcommittee has rewritten the bill.

Arnold said that a Wake County Representative conducted a poll recently that indicated 70 per cent favored no-fault insurance. "I'll bet each person polled had a different idea of what no-fault would do for him. Conceptions of no-fault are like fingerprints—no two alike."

Morgan Says Money Is 'Prime Consideration'

ROANOKE RAPIDS, N. C. (AP)—Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan said Tuesday night money is a prime consideration in his decision on whether he will run for the U.S. Senate.

Morgan is expected to announce his decision about Jan. 21. Heis considered a likely candidate for the seat now held by Sen. Sam Ervin. Ervin has announced he will not seek reelection.

Morgan, in Roanoke Rapids for a speech, said in an interview he knew that such a race would cost a lot of money. "I don't have that kind of money," he said.

Meanwhile Nicholas Smith, the 1972 Republican candidate for attorney general, said Tuesday he does not want an appointment to the attorney general's post if Morgan should resign to run for the Senate.

Smith is now director of the Division of Motor Vehicles' enforcement and theft bureau, which works closely with the Justice Department headed by Morgan.

A candlelight reception was held at the church immediately following the ceremony. A string quartet from the National Symphony Orchestra played as the guests entered and were received by the bridal couple and their parents.

The serving tables were covered with matching hot pink silk cloths and each held arrangements of pink and red roses, carnations and fern. Each table held a pair of antique candelabra which set the motif of the table.

The bride's table was decorated with silver candelabras holding hot pink candles and entwined with pink roses. The bridegroom's table was adorned by brass candelabra with hot pink and pale pink candles.

The champagne table featured crystal candelabra and caviar which was a gift from the Ambassador from Iran. It was decorated with an antique white cherub bowl centerpiece holding pink roses and ivy. Antique Chinese porcelain candelabra set off the hors d'oeuvres table.

The rehearsal dinner was given Monday by the parents of the bridegroom at the Fort McNair Officers Club. Guests included the family, members of the wedding party and out-of-town guests.

Dog Lovers-Unite Against The Cynics

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Thanks for sticking up for the poodle lover. We know how she feels because we have an 80-pound boxer named Gus, whom we love like some parents love a child. Gus is well-trained and far more obedient than some of the neighborhood children. We wouldn't think of taking a trip without Gus, and we also spell in front of him because he understands everything we say.

I know a woman who gave her dying parakeet mouth-to-beak resuscitation and revived him. This may seem strange to some people, but an animal lover would understand. Do you?

PHOEBE (GUS'S "MOTHER")

DEAR MOTHER: Do I? I just sent $30 to The Beaver Dam, Wis., Veterinary Clinic for spaying a Dalmatian named "Dear Abby."

An employee of the Humane Society in Beaver Dam informed me that they had a lovable mutt named "Dear Abby," who, because she wasn't spayed, was having difficulty finding a home. He said they were praying for a "miracle" because if they couldn't place "Abby" soon they would have to destroy her.

Well, they prayed, I prayed, and "Abby" was spayed.

DEAR ABBY: I sometimes receive a letter and notice that the postage stamp on the envelope has not been canceled, so I just pick it off and use it again.

Would you call that cheating? T. G.

DEAR T. G.: I wouldn't call it being honorable.

DEAR ABBY: A situation in the grade school [grades 1-7] my children attend has caused concern. No toilet paper, soap, or towels are kept in the bathrooms. The students must ask for "supplies" from the teacher or the principal. The supplies are kept in each room in a "tote bag" to hand-carry down the hall or into the bathroom adjacent to the classroom.

Many students, rather than face the embarrassment of asking for the tote bag, and then be seen carrying it, will [1] hold their needs until recess at which time they use the bathroom, without using any sanitary supplies at all, or [2] try to wait until they get home at the end of the school day.

I approached the principal. He listened patiently, then told me that because in the past the children had abused the supplies when left in the bathroom, the only alternative, as he saw it, was this method.

My suggestion for implementing a student bathroom patrol, and/or new types of dispensers was not readily received.

According to the principal, this is not just a local problem. I'd like to know if other schools have found a better solution to this problem.

CONCERNED PARENT: AUGUSTA, GA.

DEAR CONCERNED: We shall see. In the meantime, write to the National Committee For Support Of The Public Schools, Suite 410, Wilde Lake Village Green, Columbia, Md. 21044. Also your local chapter of American Civil Liberties Union may be helpful.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212.

Off-quality fruits and vegetables often can be purchased at reduced prices but may not represent a savings. Waste in preparation of the poorer quality produce may offset the price reduction.

League History Reviewed

Mrs. W. S. Bost treated the Greenville Service League to a review of the first 10 years in the history of the League.

It was recalled how Mrs. Wyatt Brown conceived the idea back in 1938 when she and a group of ladies were extremely involved with the Thrift Shop. Out of this community effort evolved the Greenville Service League and all the many community services its members have performed.

Many memories were recalled when Mrs. Bost told of the various meeting locations the League had had—over the Dickinson Branch of the Guaranty Bank and Trust Co., over Key Brown's drug store, the Municipal Building and also over the State Bank Building. It was noted that some of the programs instituted during that period are still fulfilling a need in the Greenville community.

Committee reports followed. Twenty-five baskets were donated and delivered to the needy by Service League members at Christmas and three calls for financial assistance for furniture, food and utilities were reported by Mrs. A. M. Mumford. The Lending Chest answered a call for one wheelchair and the Layette Committee supplied two layettes to needy families.

Over 100 Christmas favors were made and wreaths hung throughout the hospital by the Hospital Activities Committee. This committee also judged the Christmas decorations on the various wards and announced that first prize went to the Pediatric Ward. The Hospital Fund reported nine memorials donated and Bloodmobile Chairman reported that 41 workers had worked a total of 210 1/2 hours and had helped to collect 358 pints of blood during the two visits of the Red Cross Bloodmobile to Pitt County last month.

It was announced that the sustaining members of the League will be hostesses at a coffee honoring the new members on Tuesday, Jan. 22, at the home of Mrs. Ed Harris from 10:30 to 12.

A letter of thanks from the Mental Health Association was read for League assistance with Operation Santa Claus.

Mrs. Charles Stevens, president, announced the receipt of a check from Belk-Tyler Co. A committee will make a recommendation as to what area of community activity the money can best be used.

Seminar On Birth Defects Is Announced

A seminar on birth defects will be held at the home of Elaine Tschetter Friday, Jan. 18, from 10-11 a.m.

The purpose of the seminar is to create an awareness of the problem of birth defect and of the high incidence of parantatal morbidity in Eastern North Carolina.

The program will also include general information on the causes of birth defects and ways in which citizens of Greenville may help lower the incidence of birth defects.

Mrs. Tschetter received her B.S. degree in home economics education from Framingham State College, Framingham, Mass., and studied at the Merrill-Palmer Institute of Human Growth and Development, Detroit, Mich. She holds her M. A. degree in home management and child development at Michigan State University.

She is a member of Alpha Chapter of Omicron Nu honor society. "Generalization in Prenatal Biology" was the title of her master's thesis.

The seminar is open to all interested citizens and expectant mothers are encouraged to attend. Coffee will be served.

The event will be held at 102 N. Ash St., Apt. 2, Tar River Estates.

Don't Upset Tobacco Programs

Like everyone else, we are hopeful that nothing will be done by the secretary of agriculture to upset the tobacco program.

The secretary has the authority under the Agriculture Act of 1938 to increase or terminate the program and there had been speculation that termination had been under consideration. The thinking now seems to be that a ten percent or more increase might be ordered by the secretary.

In making any decisions, though, Secretary Butz ought to consider that the tobacco program affects the livelihood of thousands of farm-oriented families in the nation.

Here in Pitt County, there are 2,567 farms with an effective tobacco quota of 43,192,369 pounds of tobacco. Many of the quotas are small and the farm owners some years ago gave up trying to meet the rapidly growing costs of harvesting tobacco. Thus they have transferred their quotas to large producers and for last year 669 farms transferred all their quotas.

Since Pitt County is an area of small farms, these quotas are often transferred by elderly people and those with marginal incomes. Often the money they receive from transferring the quotas is the major source of income for them.

Any moves which the secretary of agriculture makes that might prove disruptive to the tobacco program are going to be affecting the income of a lot of people who need it to survive. What is true in Pitt County can be multiplied many times throughout the tobacco growing areas.

Certainly the tobacco program should be continued and any quota increases should be minimal.

Battle Joined On Youth Dept.

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—It has taken a few weeks for opposition to get together, but the battle appears joined over a surprise proposal to create a new state department for services to children and youth.

That proposal drawn up without public notice as to meeting times and places by a joint legislative committee on exceptional children has now run into solid opposition.

Creation of the super-agency for children which would be the third largest department in state government with a budget over $204 million and pulling together some 22 state agencies or programs under one umbrella was first revealed publicly in this column in late November. At that time, committee members and staff said the proposal was being kept quiet to avoid the outcry sure to come from affected agencies.

Human Resources
The Department of Human Resources would be the most drastically affected by the proposal, with more than 85 per cent of the programs affected currently in that department.

David T. Flaherty, secretary of Human Resources, is the first top-level official to speak out against the legislative proposal.

"That would be a real step backward," Flaherty said. The criticisms of the existing situation contained in the committee's work is largely valid, Flaherty said, but the approach is wrong.

A new department as outlined would only "create an added layer of bureaucracy," he said, and would undermine his current efforts to tear down the walls which have existed between the various agencies involved.

"The creation of a new department will not insure increased services or better coordination... problems and constraints with which existing agencies have struggled would be the same (including) lack of awareness and involvement by significant numbers of people, inadequate funding, and lack of adequate facilities and competent professional people," Flaherty said.

The committee's proposal, Flaherty said, was drawn up by a handful of people without professional input and represents "reacting to state government before it was reorganized... that's the thing that is so incredible."

Additionally, Flaherty said a check with federal officials indicates that as much as $20 million in federal funding would be lost to the state by tampering with the structure of programs.

Ideally, the secretary believes that a strong and independent advocacy commission overseeing all programs for retarded or handicapped children with clout to say yes or no on money proposals would go a long way toward resolving the problems.

Give Him Chance
But his first priority is to be given a chance to see the job done himself—under the state reorganization which has been in effect only seven months.

He said a thorough study of existing programs and future directions is now nearing completion, and will result in future major changes in programs for children, but a new department is not the answer: "That would be a tragedy. We're only fooling the public if we say a new department would solve all of these problems. I don't see how anyone can say they have a solution for this problem, until we have tried our approach."

Flaherty said his department is preparing to meet the problems in developing a comprehensive system of services to children, and are "willing and able to assume responsibility for those programs... we have recognized unmet needs; we know that some children have been inappropriately placed; we know that better use can be made of funds and personnel... Progress is being made."

Scott Agrees
State Sen. Ralph H. Scott of Alamance County, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, parent group of the committee on exceptional children, hinted at a chilly reception for the proposal to create a new state agency.

"I'd rather see Flaherty and his group given a chance to work these things out rather than create another level of bureaucracy."

"We ought to give reorganization a chance to work first. The problem is that there are already so many divisions of state agencies which have to do with children's services, and here we're talking about creating another division on top of that," Scott said.

Flaherty said his work thus far shows two immediate priorities: a complete screening program for all children from birth—even before by screening mothers—so that any problems can be identified early and later institutionalization avoided; and valid identification made of the kinds of problems and numbers of children with them in the state.

"We are going to be asking, a year from now, for funding and for new programs. But with only seven months behind us, we are not ready," Flaherty argued.

Al Hunter's Future Is Very Promising, Too

Tomorrow will be Al Hunter day in Greenville as the community honors a young man who has already won acclaim as a freshman at Notre Dame.

A great career is ahead for young Al Hunter and we offer our congratulations to him as his home town prepares to honor him.

In 90 Days, If No Total War

By JOHN KILGO

RALEIGH—The North Carolina Legislature, set to meet here next week, should be out of town within 90 days if total war doesn't erupt over the proposed expansion of the ECU med school, and an effort to give the state a form of no-fault auto insurance.

Rep. Craig Lawing of Mecklenburg, who has labored to push a no-fault plan through the Legislature, has suddenly become an optimist on the subject.

"I think we'll get a no-fault bill passed without trouble in the House," Lawing told me, "and I'm thinking it ought to go through the Senate without major problems. It'll be a good bill. I know the people in the House, who have opposed no-fault up to now, appear to be in favor of it."

While no-fault and ECU's med school expansion appear to be the two most controversial items likely to surface, there is a possibility the Legislature could find itself in a hot debate over annual sessions. The feeling among most legislatures is to leave this item until 1975, but there is a strong undercurrent among others to thrash it out this time.

State Sen. Eddie Knox and Sen. Phil Godwin are two strongly opposed to annual sessions, and Knox says: "I'm going up there to do my best to kill annual sessions. They're not working."

The leadership of the House and Senate feel optimistic about chances of the coming session moving with dispatch. Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt says the interim committees have done so much work "that the legislators will be better informed than ever before and ready to go to work."

House Speaker Jim Ramsey tells us the Legislature, in his opinion, should be able to conclude its work by mid-April.

"Unforeseen roadblocks could materialize," Ramsey says, "but I really don't look for this session to become bogged down for a long period of time."

One possible "roadblock" is a desire on the part of some lawmakers to move the primary date from May until September. The politicians are divided on this and it holds the possibility of at least a minor flap.

Far and away the most explosive issue deals with whether to expand the one-year med school at East Carolina University.

Sales. Rep. Lawing, who disapproves of immediate ECU expansion: "That thing's going to get blood before we're done. The University's Board of Governors is against expansion at this time and if the Legislature goes against them, it'll be a real slap in the face. But if you want my opinion, I think ECU partisans are going to whip us."

Sen. Thomas Strickland of Goldsboro, who chaired an interim Senate Committee on Education and Health, disagrees with Lawing.

"This rejects the Board of Governors," Strickland says of ECU expansion, "only if the Board considers itself supreme."

Sen. Strickland's committee, along with a joint House and Senate committee on health, last week endorsed the immediate expansion of the ECU med facility. Support of ECU expansion had come earlier from the Medical Manpower Study Commission, co-chaired by Sen. W. D. Mills of Onslow and Rep. J. P. Huskins of Iredell.

"I'm optimistic about ECU med school expansion," Sen. Mills told me. "It is to a degree a confrontation with the Board of Governors, but we're elected to be the voice of the people. I don't think we should rubber stamp every single item they come up with. I don't want to destroy the Board, but we've got to look at things as they come to us. I think the med school at ECU will be expanded."

Strength For Today

THE BURDEN OF CONSCIENCE

We read in I Samuel 16 that the Lord sent an evil spirit upon King Saul which troubled him.

This statement has often perplexed Bible readers. Would God really send an evil spirit upon a man to trouble him? He certainly would, He certainly did, and He certainly does to this very hour.

A person who has any conscience at all experiences considerable discomfort when he does something wrong. We can be pretty sure that it is the Spirit of God Himself which gives him a troubled conscience under these conditions. The conception of God as the constant giver of happiness and pleasure finds no justification in the Bible. The Lord is certainly full of mercy and loving kindness, but the fact that He is, causes Him to be extremely severe in His treatment of erring men. But the Bible makes plain that His purpose is not so much punishment as turning them from their evil ways. Under these circumstances a bad conscience is a blessing at a time when it is sorely needed.

So He Flies Commercial

WASHINGTON—Almost everyone in Washington has been greatly impressed with President Nixon's sacrifice in flying commercial to San Clemente, Calif., for the holidays. In taking a United Air Lines flight, the White House pointed out, the President was setting an example for saving fuel and also showing his faith in the commercial aviation industry.

But there are a few people in town, though, who are concerned the President might make a habit of flying on a commercial airline and it could endanger the national security of the country.

Other Editors Say Worth The Try

(Winston-Salem Journal)

The year 1974 will be a testing time for one of the most important laws enacted by the 1973 General Assembly: an act which would provide special property-tax relief to farmers living in urban or rapidly developing suburban areas.

The new law will be especially advantageous to farmers in large, populous counties like Forsyth. But the benefits will not come automatically. Those who want to claim the exemption will have to apply for it at the county courthouse.

It will be a long time, of course, before we can see how effective the law has been in slowing urban sprawl. But for some farmers it could have a considerable impact. There have been estimates, for example, indicating that landowners in densely populated areas will be able to cut their tax bills in half. Surely that will be enough to encourage many of them to take advantage of it—even if in doing so they make it more difficult for themselves and those who come after them to convert their land to residential or commercial use.

Under the old law farmers in suburban areas found themselves caught up in a never-ending squeeze between rising taxes—brought on by rapidly accelerating land costs—and dwindling profits. This is why so many of them either sold out to speculators or went into the development business themselves. There certainly was very little incentive to continue farming.

But now we can at least hope that all of that has changed. Critics of the new law argue that the lucrative tax benefits in the new law will in fact have exactly the opposite effect. Developers, they say, will be better able than ever to buy land cheaply and hold it for long periods at minimum cost.

But they will not get off that easily. Each time the land changes hands or is placed in a different zoning classification, the owner must pay a stiff penalty. He must make up what he has not paid in back taxes for a period of five years, and in addition pay a 9 per cent interest charge.

This is a relatively tough provision—tougher than many of the earlier proposals before the General Assembly. We should remember, however, that no matter how well it works the new law is by no means the whole answer to our land use problem.

What we need now is a comprehensive land-use bill—one that places maximum pressure on the cities and counties to check unwise growth. Within that context farm tax relief can be a valuable instrument indeed. But until we get the necessary laws (and what the 1974 General Assembly will do is somewhat uncertain) there is simply no way of judging its ultimate impact.

Bigger Than An Energy Crisis?

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP)—A problem bigger than the energy crisis? That's what a group of business executives claims lies in the future if the United States doesn't begin immediately to strengthen its capital markets.

Yes, says the Committee of Publicly Owned Companies, there's still another shortage, a shortage of equity capital with which to begin, improve and expand industry, and by extension, to provide goods, services and jobs.

The shortage manifests itself immediately in some of the lowest prices at which stocks have sold in years, with shares of some healthy companies selling at only twice earnings instead of 10 to 15 times.

As an immediate consequence of those depressed prices, says the committee, some American companies are highly vulnerable to takeovers by foreign bargain-hunters who accumulated dollars during the past 20 years.

In the final six months of 1973, says C.V. Wood Jr., chairman of the committee and president of McCulloch Oil Corp., foreign companies made tenders for 63 American companies, double the number of offers made in the previous six months.

Some well-known names already have succumbed, including Gimbel's, Travelodge International and Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream, all ironically to companies based in the economically depressed United Kingdom.

McCulloch cites further evidence of a capital shortage in a reduction in the number of new enterprises. During all of 1973 only 99 new stock issues were marketed compared with 568 a year earlier.

What the capital shortage does to the spirit of new enterprise and competition is part of the long-range problem, but of immediate concern to the committee of 600 companies is that it is already curtailing expansion.

"Companies have had to defer necessary improvements, replacements and expansion because of depressed market conditions," says McCulloch, who notes that while some businesses showed record high profits their prices slipped.

Why there should be a capital shortage in what has been traditionally the most capital-rich country on earth is a story in itself, with the plot centered around a securities industry suffering from functional imbalances.

The individual investor has largely deserted stocks, preferring high-interest bonds, certificates of deposits, real estate or just passbook savings. Some of this money does eventually get to the market, but indirectly and incompletely.

As even stock brokers concede, the individual investor has lost faith in the securities industry, the consequence of some scandalously inefficient operations. And the big institutional investors are concentrated in a relatively few stocks.

Bluntly stated, there is an enormous concentration of power in capital markets. A small number of the nation's banks, for example, control scores of billions of dollars in pension funds. And they invest in only a small fraction of the market.

That fraction, less than 100

Announcement was made today that the President Roosevelt Birthday Ball here on January 30 will be held in the Campus Building at East Carolina Teachers College.

The ball here is to be one of 5,000 such affairs held on that night throughout the nation in honor of the President's birthday.

The Greenville Tobacco market resumed sales yesterday after being closed since December 15 for the Christmas holidays. With total offerings of 184,406 pounds the price situation was above that of the closing week before Christmas and in most instances the growers received more than they had expected for their sales.

Yesterday's sales brought $27,239.55 for an average price of $14.88 per hundred pounds.

While definite announcement as to the market's closing date has not been announced, it is expected that the market will close at the end of this month.

Offerings are light again today and all sales will finish shortly after noon.

the Los Angeles airport. "You get the luggage," the President yells to Pat. "I'll get the tickets."

Mr. Nixon gets into a long line. He waits 20 minutes and finally gets up to the counter. Just as he's about to say something, the reservation clerk puts up a sign: "Next Counter Please."

The President says, "Look I've got to get to Washington, D. C."

The clerk who is counting his cash says, "I don't care if you're the President of the United States. This counter is closed."

"But I am the President of the United States."

"You are? Could I have your autograph?"

"Yes," the President says, signing his name. "Now can I have tickets to Washington, D. C.?"

"I'm sorry," the clerk replies. "I'm going to lunch."

The President gets in the next line. Pat comes up and says, "You should have gotten in this line in the first place."

The President, trying to hold his temper, says, "Pat, I don't need you to tell me which line I should have gotten into. Now shut up."

Pat, in tears, says, "You never talked to me that way when we flew on Air Force One."

A half-hour later the President is at the counter. "I would like 20 first-class seats to Washington, D. C., on Flight 151."

The reservation clerk goes to the computer and starts hitting keys. "We don't have 20 first-class seats. We can put three in first class, 12 in tourist and the rest will have to be standby."

"All right, but hurry," the President urges. "The plane is leaving in five minutes."

"Is this family plan?" the reservation clerk asks.

"Three on family plan, the Secret Service men will fly tourist."

"How old are they?"

"What do you mean how old are they?"

"If they're under 21 and have student cards, they can fly for 25 percent off."

"For heaven's sakes, please, I don't want to miss the plane. A generation of peace depends on me getting on this flight."

"Yes, sir, I'll have to write up these tickets."

"Look, just take this money and write them up later."

"I'm sorry, sir. That would be highly irregular. You do have time, you know."

Angola Shares Poverty And A Way Of Living

By HAROLD H. MARTIN
 LUANDA, Angola (UPI) — You won't find an African taxi driver in this capital city or in any other major Angolan cities. Nobody seems to know why this should be so, and the Portuguese appear surprised at the question. "You see them (Africans) riding as passengers, don't you?" one said. True, and you see them as truck drivers and driving fast, expensive sports cars, as shopkeepers, hotel clerks, newspaper editors and town councilmen—and in poverty. In this Portuguese colony you also see whites as waitresses, chambermaids in hotels—and poor.

European Presence
 Though no official statistics are available, an estimated two to five per cent of the shantytown residents outside Luanda are white, a resident of this white-ruled country said.

"The presence of the European in Africa is as real as the presence of the blacks in the United States. No one there thinks of getting rid of them," said Baltazar Rebello de Souza, newly appointed Overseas Minister for Portugal in a lunchtime conversation in Lobito, an hour's flying time south. "So the solution to the problem is to have a mixed society."

That isn't everybody's answer. In March, 1961, the town of Carmona in the Uige district of northern Angola came under heavy anti-Portuguese guerrilla attack to begin the first of Portugal's African "wars". At that time it was a dusty town of 8,000 persons. For its defense against the guerrillas the city was awarded Portugal's highest honor, the collar of the Tower and Swords, which can be seen on the village coat of arms.

Attacks Continue
 Today 20,000 people, mostly Africans, live and work in the town and on the dark red soil of the coffee plantations, which provide the principal crop in the area and Angola's main export. Some of the town's population growth came from villagers moving from the thick forests because of guerrilla attacks that still take place in the region.

But, said Victorine de Fonte, an African farmer and member of the local consultative council, "most of them come because of the work available." In the first three weeks of November, according to official figures, there were 67 instances of guerrilla activity, leaving two soldiers and six civilians dead and 20 guerrillas killed. Most of the action took place a few miles south of Carmona.

Troops of "cacadores" (hunters), including some former guerrillas, constantly patrol the area and villages have organized militia. A network of uniformed civil defense guards, skilled and highly trained, also operate in the area.

Both Portuguese and diplomats living in Carmona consider the guerrilla activity light, consisting mainly of isolated villages or ambushes of a truckload of coffee plantation workers.

Money Problem
 "Terrorism is not the problem," De Fonte said. "The problem we have is getting money for investment in our crops and the things we need." One of the charges commonly leveled against the Portuguese presence in Africa is that they are exploiting the African. Certainly there is discrimination, but it is not readily observable in Luanda.

The African and white can be seen eating in the same restaurants, lunching in the same cafes, buying in the same shops and living in the same street. Except in purely African townships, they go to the same schools, dressed in identical white smocks.

A resident diplomat said, "Unlike South Africa, if a white man hits a black man here, he'll get hit back. And he'll get a fair break from the police."

Appearances Deceive
 Appearances are not all they seem. In the African village of Calema outside of Nova Lisboa, the village school is built of ochre color sod brick and thatch, and desks and stools are piles of dirt baked in the sun. Less than a mile away in Vila Brava, a mixed community of Cabo Verdeans and Portuguese, the school is of cement and tile and the desks of wood.

It is obvious, even to the casual viewer, that the 390,000 Europeans and 126,000 "Mestizos" are generally better off than the 5,157,000 Africans.

But it is equally obvious that the African has, and can, advance. One sees an African commanding a mixed troop of black and white soldiers; one meets an African farmer who is on his city council; one sees school children of all ages walking, talking, laughing and playing together.

As for making comparison with South Africa and Rhodesia a Luanda journalist said, "Their way is not our way."

Centers Offer Mothers Help

VIENNA (AP) — This city has 56 advisory centers for mothers offering counsel and medical care for their children under six.

The Vienna Press and Information Service reports that each center is visited by an average of 31 mothers per day and more than 100,000 children each year.

Special classes for expectant mothers are provided by the centers, and each new mother receives a free layette from the city.

The relationship between social worker, doctor and mother often becomes a source of personal friendship, the service reported.

Says Banks Are Real Culprits

DALLAS (UPI) — Wright Patman, chairman of the House Banking and Currency Committee, says "the big banks" are leading the nation into a depression through high interest rates.

"The big banks and federal reserve are making a depression right now," he said. "The prime interest rate is a big fraud anyway. It is not meaningful and nobody enforces it."

A Shortage In Plastics

By LOUISE COOK
 Associated Press Writer
 The Buffalo, N.Y., General Hospital can't get the clear plastic cups it uses to measure out medication and has had to switch to opaque ones.
 Brackenridge Hospital in Austin, Tex., reports its supply of cotton goods is "almost nil."
 And Bryan Memorial Hospital of Lincoln, Neb., said it has been experiencing "shortages of all kinds of things that come in plastic containers."

Medical Center in Milwaukee,
 Wis., said there was a shortage of low-grade plastic items such as specimen bags but drug supplies would remain stable.
 "The trend we've been able to see is those areas where there's a good profit to be realized will be the areas where the resources are centered. And they are in the drugs and high grade plastic materials," he said.

The problems stem from the energy crisis. Industry sources and public officials have warned that some drugs and medical supplies might be in short supply, especially plastics, medicines and other items
 made from petrochemicals.
 Petrochemicals are by-products of oil and natural gas.

W.B. Marshall of the Grand Rapids, Mich., Hospital Council said the four major hospitals in the area were definitely stockpiling scarce articles, especially tubing.

An Associated Press survey showed that some hospitals around the country were experience difficulties in obtaining certain items, especially those made of plastic. Some reported they might have to switch back to glass for such things as syringes. No hospital reported stockpiling goods against future shortages.

The four institutions joined together in stocking up on canned food, paper and heating oil.
 The American Hospital Association said a survey it made showed there was "not a whole lot of stockpiling going on."
 The supply situation varied, however, from hospital to hospital, even in the same city.

Earl Jones, director of purchasing for the Buffalo hospital, said the shortages have forced substitution and innovation. When the hospital couldn't get a particular device used for administering anesthesia, it switched to a new kind of implement "that called for all kinds of changes in technique," Jones said.

Several hospitals indicated they might revive old equipment.
 The Columbus, Ga., Medical Center recently offered some used stainless steel equipment for sale. Learning that plastic might be unavailable, the center decided to hold on to the stainless steel and withdrew the offer.

Tip For The Watt-Watcher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tip for energy savers: depending on the type of lamp there may or may not be a saving in lamp life related to the number of times it is switched on or off.
 Watt-watchers from electric-supply companies say for an ordinary light bulb there is no shortening of lamp life caused by frequent switching. Therefore there is no potential savings from leaving it on rather than turning it off, even if only for a few moments.

A spokesman for Mount Sinai Hospital said the center has been delayed. "We have back orders for sheets that go back months," he said.
 Bryan Memorial spokesman
 Jim Gember said: "Our hospital is finding that there has not been a shortage of drugs, but the containers that the drugs come in are hard to get.
 We have been experiencing shortages of all kinds of things that come in plastic containers."

Aerial Photo Pleases Farmville Commissioners

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
FARMVILLE — Farmville commissioners last night expressed satisfaction with a new aerial photograph of Farmville and the surrounding area erected in the Farmville Courtroom, where they regularly meet.

Original plans had called for the photo to be hidden by drapes, but commissioners decided the framed photo prepared by Van Lewis of McDavid Associates Inc. engineering firm is attractive enough that it need not be covered.

Besides, Commissioner Sarah Albritton pointed out, the red drapes proposed would not go well with the green carpet of the courtroom. "Just what we've needed all the time," the other Commissioners agreed. "The woman's touch."

Following the suggestion of the recreation committee headed by Mrs. Albritton, the Commissioners agreed to pay some $288.24 to cover the cost of correction of damages done by vandals during last year's summer recreation program held at H. B. Sugg Gymnasium.

Burn To Death In Mobile Home

CHARLOTTE (AP)—An elderly woman and her daughter burned to death in their mobile home in the Moore's Chapel section near Charlotte Tuesday. Police said they had charged a woman who lived with them with murder in the deaths.

The victims were Mrs. Rebecca Jane Sikes, 69, and Mrs. Patsy Louise Bumgardner, 39.

Police said that Mrs. Margie S. Satterfield, 43, had been charged. She will be given a preliminary hearing Friday.

Included was the replacement of several windows and a water fountain.

Mayor Will Joyner gained the Commissioners' approval on several appointments. He appointed to the Library Board W. A. Allen III, Eloise Moye, and R. D. Rouse Jr.; to the Board of Adjustments James Kilpatrick and Russ Cotton; and to the Planning Board Dewey Hathaway, Horace Allen, J. I. Morgan III, Jim Craft, and W. C. Joyner.

An audit contract for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1974 was given to Vance Taylor, a local CPA.

MEET THURSDAY

Nursing mothers of Greenville will meet at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association building Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

A film on breastfeeding will be shown at the meeting, which is open to the public free of charge.

Town Engineer Jack McDavid reported that there is plenty of water in a well just completed near Joyner's Crossroads.

Police Chief Carl Tanner beamed when the Commissioners approved participation of the town in the purchase of a console for the Police Communication System for the Police Department.

"With one mike and the controls upstairs, we'll be able to talk to other law enforcement agencies all over the country," he said. "It should make our work much better."

The town will pay 25 per cent, or approximately $1,125 and a grant from the Mideast Economic Development Commission will provide the remainder of the $4,500 cost of the equipment.

The Board authorized the county tax supervisor to accept certifications for non-profit organizations' tax exemptions on behalf of the Town of Farmville, to make the procedure simpler for the organizations involved.

The Town Attorney was asked to draw up a bill to amend the town charter to make it possible for the Mayor to postpone a regular Board meeting when it

Trial Set On Finishing Dam

GREENSBORO (AP)—Trial has been scheduled in U.S. District Court Feb. 4 to determine if construction of the B. Eerett Jordan Lake will be completed.

The Jordan Lake formerly was known as the New Hope Dam project.

The case will be heard by Dist. Judge Eugene Gordon, who indicated the trial would last about 10 days. Conservationists contend the $59 million dam would upset the environment and should be stopped.

falls on a holiday or election day. This month's regular meeting time fell on New Year's night and the Board was obliged to meet, though there was not a quorum and the meeting was adjourned until last night.

It was agreed that the Town should buy a film of the Centennial activities in 1972 to place in the town library for the enjoyment of all Farmville citizens.

A meeting with the Central Business District Committee was set for Jan. 11. Also set was a brief meeting for next Monday night to act on a resolution to establish the maturity date for a $150,000 bond issue to be voted on by Farmville citizens this month.

Trustbusters Will Seek Out Targets For Lawsuits

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Turning away from a scattergun approach, government trustbusters now plan regular searches for possible antitrust violations by the nation's major industries.

The new practice could lead to more government lawsuits challenging the structure of entire industries, said Assistant Atty. Gen. Thomas E. Kauper, head of the Justice Department's antitrust division.

In an interview Tuesday, Kauper also said he sees no acceptable way to shield the division from political pressure and he defended President Nixon's intervention in the ITT case.

He said government lawyers are "taking quite a hard look" at powerful agriculture cooperatives.

And he said he has found little evidence that major oil companies conspired to create a fuel shortage in order to drive up prices and profits.

As for the division's overall approach, Kauper said, "We do need to have a much more systematic notion of what we're doing industry by industry.... You need a little more of a strategy and perhaps a little less of simply responding to complaints."

In the past, he said, the practice often has been to "bring a case here, bring a case there" without a clear goal and a thorough analysis of the economic impact.

To reverse the direction, the division was reorganized recently to stress economic planning. The new approach may have a strong impact on concentrated industries where a handful of companies dominate the market, he said.

Kauper said the new approach means antitrust lawyers will conduct "a regularized review of pricing and profits" in an industry, minimizing the number of investigations carried out in response to complaints, imminent mergers and allegations of conspiracy.

As for political pressure, Kauper said he sees no acceptable shield against allegations of improper influence such as the current charges involving the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. and the dairy cooperatives.

In the ITT case, Nixon insisted in a statement Tuesday that he was only concerned with broad antitrust policy when he ordered the Justice Department not to appeal a suit challenging an ITT merger to the Supreme Court. A pledge of political contributions by an ITT subsidiary had no bearing on his actions, Nixon said.

Kauper, who became antitrust chief in mid-1972 after the ITT cases were settled, was asked if he thought it proper for Nixon to order the case dropped.

"That is not an altogether easy question to answer," he said. "Yes, it seems to me that the President of the United States does have the authority to say 'this is a particular matter, that as a policy judgment, I think you are wrong on.' Assuming that the concern is with the policy that is being developed as an administration policy, that is within his prerogative."

But if Nixon was motivated by politics rather than policy, "then you've got a problem, sure," Kauper added.

More Clouds And Showers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Cloudy and rainy weather is expected in North Carolina to the weekend, with clearing and colder by about Sunday.

Frontal systems will move into the coastal areas this afternoon and tonight. Winds will be increasing and the seas getting rougher. Small-craft advisories have been issued, effective this morning.

Highs today will be in the upper 50s in the mountains, and upper 60s to the low 60s elsewhere except for the lower coastal area. It will reach the low 70s on the southern coast.

Clouds spread rapidly across the state Tuesday, holding temperatures rather uniform. The warmest spot was Wilmington with 60. It reached 59 at New Bern and 58 at Jacksonville. Hickory never got above 47 or Elizabeth City above 48.

The weather systems have been moving very rapidly across the United States the last few days. The storm tracks have kept the worst weather away from the Tar Heel state. But the upper-air steering currents are changing, and this change could bring some of the heavier precipitation into North Carolina.

Dye Office To Transfer

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP) — American Colors & Chemicals Corp., better known in textile circles as American Aniline, announced Tuesday that it is moving its headquarters to Charlotte.

The dye producer formerly was called American Aniline Products, Inc. The name was changed with the acquisition last month of the Colors Department of Tenneco Chemicals, Inc.

The 25 to 30 executives being transferred to Charlotte will come from Tenneco Colors headquarters in Reading, Pa., and the former American Aniline headquarters in Paterson, N. J.

The company has manufacturing plants in Reading, Paterson, Charlotte, Beaufort, S. C., and Lock Haven, Pa.

American Colors & Chemicals is owned by North American Phillips Corp. and the Loppers Co.

Seek A Ruling On Compliance

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Charlotte-Mecklenburg County, N.C., school board sought a ruling Tuesday declaring its schools have achieved racial desegregation.

It asked the U.S. 4th Circuit Court of Appeals to overturn an order by U.S. District Judge James McMillan of Charlotte that its desegregation plan be revised.

McMillan has been supervising the desegregation of the schools. A ruling that the system now is unitary could lead to release from his supervision.

But Julius Chambers, attorney for black plaintiffs, argued that the board's present desegregation plan has "increased the unfair burden borne by black students and others in selected areas of the school system."

The appeals court is not expected to issue a decision for several weeks.

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (AP) — A weary but determined President Nixon marks his 61st birthday today, bent on yet another attempt to put Watergate behind him.

With his so-called "Operation Candor" apparently wrapped up in the form of Tuesday's "white papers" on the ITT and milk price support controversies, Nixon was described as ready to begin emphasizing his leadership role and his talents at statecraft.

What could be a make-or-break effort on Nixon's part is expected to emerge most fully in his forthcoming State of the Union blueprint for the nation's future and in diplomatic initiatives to grapple with the energy crisis on an international scale.

The President's associates agree he was worked very hard during his California stay, now in its 14th day. Several acknowledge that he is showing signs of fatigue.

An aide reported Nixon has been getting little rest and even less recreation here. With Southern California suffering through cold, stormy weather, the President's relaxation has centered around unannounced drives through the countryside.

Although some aides confess to discussing among themselves the possibility of a Nixon resignation should scandal continue to dog him, they express confidence he will not quit.

An assistant who almost always echoes Nixon's sentiments declared: "He's not going to permit the government, himself and the executive branch to become consumed by Watergate. No President has ever gone through a year of attack, or pressure, like this past one. We've had a year of it, and enough is enough. Let's move on."

Yet Watergate does remain close to the forefront of White House thinking.

"Nobody's hiding from it," said a man who is very close to the President. "It's staring us right in the face."

One aide said that the President is convinced that the Democratic party establishment, liberals in general and important elements of the news media are making a concerted effort to destroy him. This source said that Nixon emphasized the belief in table-thumping staff meetings shortly before he flew here Dec. 26.

Although Nixon's doctors say his health is basically sound, the past year of intense pressure has taken a toll noticeable in a face that is more deeply lined and often ashen.

"I've never been conscious of his age before," remarked a close associate. "Now I am." Some say Nixon's July bout with what was diagnosed as viral pneumonia hit him harder than most people know.

One source acknowledged that Nixon sometimes walks with a limp, although the White House has consistently denied it. The informant attributed this to a chronic muscle problem in the lower back. He also reported the President apparently broke a toe about a year ago in a fall at the edge of his Camp David, Md., swimming pool.

Parliament Returns To Debate Energy Crisis

By JEFF BRADLEY
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Parliament was called back into session today to debate the energy crisis crippling Britain, the labor disputes causing it and what the Conservative government is doing about it.

Before facing the House of Commons, Prime Minister Edward Heath created a new department of energy and named the defense secretary, Lord Carrington, to head it. The government said he would be given wide powers over the nation's coal, gas, electricity and oil resources.

Heath's secretary of employment, William Whitelaw, was meeting with leaders of the coal miners whose refusal to work overtime has cut the supply of coal to the nation's power stations. Whitelaw planned to ask for the 280,000 miners to vote on the 16½ per cent pay increase their leaders have rejected.

Leaders of the railway engineers' union also were meeting today to consider expanding their slowdown into a strike. The railmen were angered because the rail board announced anyone who "deliberately" refused to work would not be paid. Government sources said if the trainmen struck, the army might be ordered to keep the trains running so that deliveries of coal to the power stations would not be reduced further.

The miners' ban on overtime in support of their wage demands has cut coal output some 40 per cent. The rail slowdown, also in support of demands for higher pay, has further reduced the supply of coal to the power stations as well as halted most train service to the sprawling London suburbs.

To conserve the coal supply at the power stations, nonessential industries and businesses went on a three-day week Jan. 1. The government said by Tuesday, 915,000 of Britain's 25 million workers had registered for unemployment pay because the shortened work week had made them eligible. This figure does not include the nation's 490,000 permanently unemployed and thousands of women factory workers who are not entitled to register for unemployment benefits.

The National Economic Development Council predicted that Britain's over-all production would drop 20 per cent this month and would deteriorate quickly after that unless the coal miners' dispute is settled.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were steady Tuesday. Supplies were barely adequate and demand was good.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs delivered in cartons to nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 79.73; medium whites 77.72; small whites 71.43.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina hogs were steady to 75 cents higher today. Tops of 42.25-43.25 Kinston, Benson and Lumberton; 39.50-41.50 Wilson and High Falls; 40.50-41.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 40.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market tone weaker today. Supplies fully adequate. Demand fairly good. Weights trending heavy. Estimated slaughter today 1,163,000.

North Carolina hens: Market weaker on heavy types. Supplies fully ample and demand slow. Heavies, at farm, 13 cents per pound; previous commitments 15 cents.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stock prices took very heavy losses today as investors worried about the effects of soaring oil prices on the world's economies, brokers said.

Large corporations, heavily dependant on profits abroad, took big losses based on those worries and the fact that the rising value of the dollar overseas could have even more adverse effects on their earnings, brokers said.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was down a big total of 18.45 to 843.33. Declining New York Stock Exchange issues had a very broad 1.169-to-184 lead over gainers in heavy trading.

Among the large international companies hard hit today was Coca-Cola, which opened after a 90-minute delay, down 4 to 115. First National City, also opening after a delay, was down 3 1/2 to 37.

Meanwhile, gold-mining issues, which made heavy gains Tuesday against a downward market, were generally off today as bullion fell overseas.

Oil issues also were under very heavy selling pressure. Gulf Oil, sixth in Big Board volume, was down 1 1/2 to 23; Standard Oil of California, down 1 1/2 to 32 1/2; Continental Oil, off 3 to 51 1/2; Exxon, down 2 1/2 to 93 3/4; and Texaco, off 1/2 to 29 1/4.

On the American Stock Exchange, Trans Lux, down 1/2 to 2 1/2, was the volume leader.

The Big Board's volume leader was First National City, followed by Kennecott, down 2 1/2 to 43 1/4; International Paper, down 2 1/2 to 50 1/2; and Matsushita Electric, down 1/2 to 14 3/4.

French Film Voted 'Best'

NEW YORK (AP)—"Day for Night," a French romantic comedy-drama on the art of film making, has been voted the best movie of 1973 by the New York Film Critics Circle.

In the critics' annual poll Tuesday, Francois Truffaut and Valentina Cortese were named the year's top director and supporting actress for their work in "Day for Night."

Selected as best actor was Marlon Brando, for his depiction of a troubled American in the French-made, sexually explicit "Last Tango in Paris." Joanne Woodward was cited as the outstanding actress of 1973 for her role as a restless, middle-aged wife in "Summer Wishes, Winter Dreams."

Honored as best support actor was Robert De Niro, who played a small-time hoodlum in "Mean Streets," a film about life in Manhattan's Little Italy. The critics cited for the year's best screen writing "American Graffiti," which depicted teen-agers growing up in a California town in 1962.

The 26 film critics participating in the poll will present plaques to the winners Jan. 27 at Sardi's Restaurant in the Manhattan theater district.

Dollar Drain 'Al Hunter Day' In Oil Price Events Planned

WASHINGTON (AP)—The high cost of importing oil may cause another trade deficit for the United States in 1974, a top Commerce Department official says.

Sidney L. Jones, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs, said in an interview Tuesday that the costs of importing petroleum and other energy products could rise to $10 billion in 1974.

This compares to $4.8 billion in 1972 and $7 billion during the first 11 months of 1973.

The United States ended 1973 with its first trade surplus in three years. A major factor was two devaluations of the dollar, which made U.S. goods cheaper overseas and foreign goods more expensive in this country.

Jones said that the rising value of the dollar abroad will eventually erode some trade advantages now enjoyed by U.S. exporters.

The Greenville Human Relations Council has coordinated and announced a special schedule of events for Thursday's observance of "Al Hunter Day" here.

The Council reported that at 9 a.m., a "Moment of Gratitude" will be held at Mt. Calvary Free Will Baptist Church where Hunter has been an active member for a number of years.

At 10 a.m., a reception is scheduled at City Hall, it was pointed out, and Hunter will be presented with a copy of the proclamation honoring him issued by Mayor Eugene West.

"Al Hunter Day," designated by the City Council and proclaimed by the mayor, honors the Notre Dame freshman who helped lead his team to a New Year's Eve victory over Alabama in the Sugar Bowl.

Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hunter of Greenville, broke a Sugar Bowl record in returning a kick-off 93 yards for a touchdown.

His annual salary will be $7884.

Charles Johnson, principal of Chicod Elementary School, provided a German Chocolate cake for breadtime during the meeting yesterday.

Johnson, who had promised some board members earlier that he would provide refreshments if they visited his school, was just fulfilling his promise.

Rev. Charles R. Parker will preach at Simpson Chapel Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Rev. Matthew Best, pastor, invites the public to attend.

New Bern Press Stops Rampants

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It took the New Bern Bears a period to get the wrinkles out of their press, but when they finally ironed out their problems, they took the Rose High School Rampants to the cleaners, 62-68, last night.

Rose led for most of the first period, but New Bern's full court man-to-man press finally proved too much for them, as the Bears took the lead for good after just under two minutes of play in the second quarter of the game.

From there, it was just a question of setting the margin, as the Bears steadily pulled away.

The press forced the Rampants into mistake after mistake, and but for the shooting of Herb Bynum in the third period, they might have really been run of the gym.

Rose scored only 13 points during the frame, but Bynum accounted for 11 of those. He finished the night with 13 field goals along with four free throws for a grand total of 30 points, his best night of the year.

But his effort was not enough against the balanced scoring attack of the Bears. Four of their five starters placed in double figures, and a small towel would have covered the point spread between the four, who ranged from 17 to 20 points each.

It was not the Bear scoring so much, however, as it was their defense that did the job against the Rampants, who, most of the time, were able to go to the boards with them. The turnovers mounted, however, and spelled the doom for the Rampants.

There was early hope, but it faded before halftime. Jeff Jones hit the opening basket for the Bears after 30 seconds, and Gary Mattocks hit from underneath for a 4-0 lead before Robert Brinkley finally broke the ice for Rose.

Brinkley came on strong with another basket on a drive, tying it up, then drove in with 5:41 left in the period to put Rose into a 6-4 lead.

He continued his one-man show with a three-point play with 5:14 on the clock to run the Rampants into a 7-4 edge.

A minute later, Bynum hit the first of his free throws to up the lead to 8-4 before New Bern finally came back. Mattocks hit from the line on a jumper and Robert McClelland hit from the baseline tying it at 8-8 with 3:12 left. Bynum followed with a shot from underneath to put Rose back ahead, and after a free throw by Mattocks, Bynum hit once more for a 12-9 lead. Ronnie Barrett canned a jumper with 1:35 showing for the biggest Rose margin of the night, 14-9, before the Bears finally called a time out to talk it over.

McClelland and Ronald Scott hit on baskets to close the gap to one before Linwood Brown's jumper with three seconds left made it 16-13 at the end of the period.

Scott went back to the same place, just off the foul line for two more jumpers early in the second period and put New Bern into a 17-16 lead after less than 30 seconds. Rose regained the lead on two free throws by Barrett, but Scott again hit a jumper for a 19-18 edge.

Bynum tossed in a missed shot for one more Rampant lead, but a pair of free throws by Jones, and a tap-in by him with 5:56 left gave the Bears a 23-20 lead, and they never lost it again.

The two teams swapped baskets until the score reached 27-26, and then the Bears ran off six in a row. Mattocks hit from underneath, and McClelland hit a charity shot. Jones tossed in an errant shot, and Scott added a free shot for a 33-26 lead.

A minute later, from at 33-29 lead, Scott hit and Mattocks made a three-point play to up the lead to nine. After a swap of baskets, McClelland tapped in a shot for the biggest Bear lead of the half, 42-31, but Rose cut it back to 42-34 by halftime.

During the third period, with only Bynum hitting for Rose, aside from an opening basket by Brinkley, the Bears inched away. Mattocks hit for a 38-36 lead, then midway through the period, hit again to make it 54-40. Jeff Loftin made good a minute later for a 58-42 lead, and by the end of the frame, New Bern led, 62-47.

They steadily built it up until with 4:54 on a hooker by Jones, the Bears held a 75-53 advantage, their widest spread of the night. After that, as the bench began to clear, the Rampants slowly trimmed it back, but it was too late to do any good.

Besides the scoring of Bynum, Brinkley finished with 11 points, while Barrett hit for 13.

New Bern was led by Mattocks with 20, while Scott had 19, and Jones and McClelland had 17 each.

Conley Wins On Second Half Surge

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer
HOLLYWOOD—D. H. Conley's Vikings unfurled their sails in the third quarter of their game with Eastern Wayne last night and rolled in 31 points to sail out to a lead that was never contested for the rest of the contest.

The Warriors had stuck right with the Vikings throughout the first half tying the score four times and leading the game once. But the surge in the third quarter proved to be too much for Eastern Wayne and the Warriors suffered their second humiliating defeat in as many games, 94-61. They lost to Ayden-Grifton last Friday by 70-58. Conley meets A-G this Friday night in a cross-county clash. Conley edged out to a 12-8 lead in the first and only held on to two points of it as they went into the dressing room at the half leading 34-32. They came out and ripped in 19 points before the Warriors had gotten the ball into their court good. After that it was a matter of seeing how many tallies the Vikings would get.

In earlier games, the Conley J. V.'s won easily, 66-54, but the Vikings lost 47-16. The Conley girls scored four points in each quarter as the Sawks hit them with a ferocious attack and turned nearly all the Conley mistakes into scores. The only two Valkyrie baskets in the first period were scored by Cathy Allen on two sharp assists by Debra Page after Conley steals.

Eastern Wayne took the lead, 17-4, in the first and added nine to it in the second, 12 in the third and nine more in the fourth. Pat Smith led the Sawks with 20 points and Betty Thompson had nine.

The Warriors presented a problem early in the game for Conley but they were soon overcome.

Milton Tucker got the Vikes up on the boards with a jumper from the corner but it was quickly matched by a shot from the lane by Mark Edmonds, 2-2. Mike Sutton drove in to score along the baseline for Conley, 4-2, and Clennel Streeter hit on a feed from Rick Mobley to run it up to 6-2.

Keith Naylor tapped in a rebound for the Warriors and Ron Conley blew in a shot from outside to tie the game at 6-6. The lead went right back to the Vikings on a back-handed lay-up by Buddy Phillips and Gary Mobley's field goal gave them a four-point lead again. Coley scratched for EW to cut the score to 10-8 with 1:23 to go in the period but Rick Mobley put it back up to four hitting from the corner, 12-8.

Rick Mobley increased it to 14-

8 as the second period opened and Phillips added a tap-in for a 16-8 score. Edmonds and Charles McAdoo brought the Warriors back within four, 16-12, but Conley slipped out again on buckets by Phillips, Streeter and two free shots by Larry Daniels, 22-12, to a ten point lead with 4:23 to go in the half.

Clarence Dempsey hit two free shots and then the Warriors scored three straight times as Randy Jackson, Edmonds and Jackson again put in baskets from underneath closing the gap to 22-20. Daniels' bucket made it 24-20 but EW countered with a shot by Dempsey. Another bucket by Daniels was matched by a second from Dempsey.

Streeter lifted the margin back up to four, 28-24, with a lay-up but it too was erased by a blast from the Warrior corner by McAdoo. Two more baskets were exchanged and then with a pair of charity shots by Edmonds and a field goal by Jackson the Warriors tied the score, 30-30.

McAdoo put the Warriors ahead with :37 left, 32-30 but Streeter's free shots tied the score again, 32-32. Daniels pulled down a rebound and hit Sutton with a long pass which Sutton converted into two points putting the Vikes back on top, 34-32.

Dempsey danced through the lane to score for EW as the game was knotted again. Streeter's lay-up at the horn have the Vikings a two-point lead which was never matched again.

Conley controlled the tap to start the second half and the bucket by Daniels started a rally that lasted 4:19 and netted the Vikes 21 points sending them out to a 57-34 lead. In the surge, Rick Mobley had ten points, Daniels seven and Sutton four. The spell was broken for Eastern Wayne when Jackson sank a hook shot. It was wiped out by three baskets by Conley giving them a 63-36 lead, their biggest yet. The period ended, 67-44, after a three bucket string by Edmonds.

The second string came in for Conley in the fourth period but there was little difference seen. They slammed in 27 points upping the gap at time to 29, 73-44, and 33, 79-46. The biggest spread of the night came at 93-44 after a drive by Sutton who came back in to direct traffic for the Vikings. They just missed the century mark by three field goals as time ran out.

Five of the Vikings were in double figures. Sutton led the way with 20, Phillips canned 16, Rick Mobley, 14, Daniels 13, and Streeter 12. Edmonds led the Warriors with 18, Dempsey had 15 coming off the bench and Coley had 11.

The Vikings are now 11-0.

Virginia Tops Wake For Second ACC Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Clemson, which shot only 30 per cent in losing 89-60 to third-ranked Maryland last Saturday, continues in the basketball pressure cooker tonight against fifth-ranked North Carolina.

And, on Saturday, the Tigers play the No. 4 team, North Carolina State.

North Carolina has been shooting 56 per cent on its way to eight victories and only one loss. Clemson is 7 and 3.

Six North Carolina players, including starters Darrell Elston and John O'Donnell, were sick with a virus Tuesday and it was doubtful whether they would play.

The others were Ed Stahl,

Ray Hite, John Kuester and Brad Hoffman.

In addition, freshman center Tom LaGarde broke a small bone in his foot during practice Monday, and is out indefinitely.

The game at Clemson is the only one tonight for Atlantic Coast Conference teams. North Carolina State was to have played at Duke, but that game has been postponed to Feb. 4.

There was only one game for ACC teams Tuesday night—Virginia beating Wake Forest for the seventh straight time, 91-84.

Wally Walker scored 26 points to lead the Cavaliers to their fifth victory against four defeats. It was their second victory against no defeats in the conference.

Tony Byers of Wake Forest had 18 points in the first half, when the Deacons trailed by only 48-47. But he was limited to only four points after intermission by Steve Morris. Freshman Bob Schellenberger took up some of the slack, finishing with 18 points as Wake Forest lost its third game against seven victories. It was the first conference game for the Deacons.

Clemson has not beaten North Carolina in their seven games since Coach Tates Locke came to Clemson three years ago. And the Tigers have not beaten the Tar Heels since the 1966-67 season.

The Tigers have posted some sweet victories over St. John's, Purdue and Furman this season. But they are shooting just 41.6 per cent.

Their leading scorer, Van Gregg, is averaging 13.6, but was only 1 for 11 at Maryland.

Other Tiger scorers are Wayne Croft, averaging 11.8, and freshman Wayne "Tree" Rollins, a 7-foot-1 center, averaging 11.5.

Rollins flashed some good moves in the Maryland game, scoring 12 points, pulling down 14 rebounds and blocking six shots.

However, he will have problems with North Carolina's Bobby Jones and Mitch Kupchack, each 6-foot-9 and shooting better than 60 per cent. Jones is averaging 14.4 points and Kupchack 13.2.

Wrestlers Defeated

LITTLEFIELD—Havelock High School defeated the Ayden-Grifton wrestling team, 60-12, in a match held Monday night at Ayden-Grifton.

Earl Harris gained one of the Charger victories with a pin at the 126-pound level. The other also came on a pin as Burley Gardner won the 155-pound class.

NCAA Relaxes Its Pro Rules

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A trend to liberalize rules on amateurism — 62 years too late for Jim Thorpe — was evident at the National Collegiate Athletic Association Convention Tuesday when the group voted to permit an athlete to play as a professional in one sport and compete at the college level in others.

"I'd say I'm in favor of it," was the reaction of John McKay, football coach at the University of Southern California.

"We had a boy at Southern Cal several years ago who was a great football player but quit to try professional baseball. He hurt his arm, and he's a Los Angeles cop now. He could have returned to school and played football under this policy," said McKay.

The National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics, in the 1950s, allowed pros to compete in other sports in college, but that organization of smaller colleges since has rescinded the rule.

The Amateur Athletic Union still considers an athlete a professional in all sports if he's competed as a pro anywhere.

"But I think the AAU will go to this, too," said University of California Athletic Director Dave Maggard of the major NCAA change in policy.

"They've given Jim Thorpe his medals back," Maggard noted.

Thorpe, hero of the 1912 Olympic Games, was forced to return his track medals after it was revealed he earlier was paid for playing baseball on the semi-pro level. The medals were re-awarded posthumously last year.

The delegates began the final convention business session Tuesday, and it was scheduled to conclude today with measures regarding transfer and eligibility rules, athletic scholarship limitations and internal NCAA governing policies still on the agenda.

The proposed constitutional change allowing pros in one sport to compete in other sports as collegians passed by four votes. A two-thirds majority, or 254 votes, was needed and the vote was 258-123.

There will be restrictions on the pro-amateur rule, however. The athlete will not be eligible for scholarship money while still a pro and he will not be allowed to make commercial endorsements and retain his NCAA eligibility.

In another vote regarding amateurism, the NCAA decided that attending professional tryouts, such as those conducted by baseball teams, should not throw an athlete into pro status, providing the tryout was for no more than 48 hours and the prospect received no money.

Robersonville Gains Victory

ROBERSONVILLE—The Robersonville Golden Eagles split a pair of games with West Edgecombe last night. The Eagles won their game, 58-51, while the Lady Eagles bowed in a close one, 46-44.

In the opener, Robersonville eased into a 10-8 lead after one period of play. West Edgecombe came back in the second frame to take the lead, however, outthitting the Eagles, 16-12. That left West Edgecombe in a 24-22 lead at the half.

West Edgecombe continued to build its advantage in the third quarter as they outthit Robersonville, 16-11. That upped it to 40-33. Robersonville tried for a comeback in the final period, outthitting their guests, 11-6, but it just fell short.

Gloria Hines led Edgecombe with 29 points, while Donna Walker had 10. For Robersonville, Beatrice Forrest had 17, while Elaine Forrest hit 12.

The boys game was off to a start like the girls', with the eventual loser taking an early lead. By the end of the first frame, West Edgecombe had built up a 17-14 lead. Robersonville didn't let them capitalize on it, however, outthitting them, 15-14, and trailing just 31-29 at the half.

In the third frame, the Eagles pushed into the lead with a 15-8 scoring advantage. That left them ahead, 44-39, as the last quarter opened. They held off any Edgecombe rally with a 14-12 final period, to claim the win.

Tyrone Little led Robersonville with 26 points, while Ernest Crandall had 12. For West Edgecombe, Charlie Pittman had 23, while Rodney Price and Johnny Powell each had 10.

Robersonville will travel to North Edgecombe for its next game, Friday.

Early Deficit Drops ECU JVs

ELIZABETH CITY—East Carolina University's junior varsity, playing its first game since January 14, bowed to the College of the Albemarle last night, 92-76.

The Baby Bucs, hurting from their long layoff and the fact that they have had only one practice session since mid-December, got off to a slow start. College of the Albemarle jumped into an early lead and after nine minutes of play had run out to a 23-point lead.

The Bucs started to chop down the lead after that, cutting the margin to 16 points by halftime, 52-36. They continued to chip away at the margin, cutting it to as little as 10 points with seven minutes left in the game. But COA pulled away again, running back out to the final 16-point spread. Al McCrimmons led the Pirate scoring with 22 points, getting 14 of them in the second half. Harry Miller added 15, while Tyrone Williams had 12 and Tim Brogan had 10.

The victors were led by Sam Leggett, who popped in 20 points, while Harold Jackson had 14. Brown had 12, while James and Smiley each had 10.

The Baby Bucs travel to Richmond tonight to face the Baby Spiders in a preliminary to the ECU-Richmond varsity event.

Tarboro Downs Williamston

WILLIAMSTON—The Tarboro Vikings rolled to a 76-57 victory over the Williamston Tigers last night in a Northeastern Conference basketball game.

The Williamston junior varsity salvaged a split of the evening, winning their game, 51-41. No girls game was played. The Lady Tigers play host to Bertie tonight.

In the varsity contest, Tarboro shot away to a 20-8 lead in the first period and were never in any danger after that. In the second frame, the Vikings dumped in 22 more points, while Williamston was only able to increase their total to 12. That left Tarboro in a comfortable 42-20 halftime lead.

Things got little better for the Tigers in the second half. Tarboro outthit them, 16-9, in the third quarter, building their lead to 58-29 by the horn. Williamston finally got something going with a 28-18 final period, but it was too late to do any good.

Vines led the Tarboro scoring with 19 points, while Draughn had 13 points and Forrest had 12. For the Tigers, JoJo Purvis dumped in a game high 25 points, while Keith Biggs added 16.

The Tigers travel to Edenton for their next outing, on Friday.

In the girls' contest, both teams started slow with each scoring five points in the first period. Aurora warmed things up a little in the second quarter with 11 points, but the Bears could manage only four, falling behind 16-9 at halftime.

Both again matched points in the third period, with each hitting six points as the score climbed to 22-15. But in the final period, Aurora outthit the Bears, 9-7, to claim the win.

In the boys' game, Aurora jumped off to an early lead and built up a 24-13 lead in the first period. Bear Grass came back with a 20-11 second period advantage, chopping the lead back to only 35-33 at the half.

But the break stopped their momentum and Aurora came back to outthit them, 19-16, in the third frame, holding a 54-49 lead. They polished off the Bears in

Leaders Win In Church Loop

Black Jack and Immanuel took easy Church Basketball League wins last night, but it took an overtime for Presbyterian to come out on top.

The three winners each remained unbeaten in league play after two games.

In the opener, Black Jack rolled to a 77-29 win over Trinity. By the end of the first period, Black Jack had all it needed with a 42-12 lead. They came back outscoring Trinity, 35-17, in the final period.

Tal Adams led Black Jack with 21 points, while Phil Page had 18, Randy Hudson had 13 and Danny Edwards had 10. For Trinity, John Banks was high with eight.

53-21 rout of St. James in the second game. The Baptists had all they needed in the first half, too, as they built up a 27-10 lead. They outthit St. James, 26-11, in the final half.

G. Catlett led Immanuel with 17 points, while D. Rumbley had 12 and C. McNeil and L. Hardee each had 10. Jackie Vick led St. James with five.

In the final game, Oakmont gained a 31-26 lead in the first period of its game, but Presbyterian rallied in the second half. They outthit Oakmont, 21-16, and tied it at 47-47 at the end of regulation time. In the overtime Presbyterian got four points, while Oakmont managed only two.

Larry Graham and Paul Andrews led Presbyterian with 11 each, while Bob Lamb had 18 and Jay Collins had 11 for Oakmont.

Bankers Given First Defeat

The unbeaten list in Division II of the Industrial Basketball League fell to two teams last night as NCNB suffered its first loss. Pitt Memorial picked up its first victory, while Empire Brush and Union Carbide stayed unbeaten.

In the opening game, Pitt Memorial nipped Wachovia Bank, 48-45. Wachovia rushed out to a 24-16 lead in the first half of play, but ran out of steam. The Hospital came back in the second half with a 32-21 scoring advantage that was enough to pull off the victory.

Danny Edwards led Pitt Memorial with 17 points, while Clarence Taft had 13. Wachovia was led by Bill Baggett with 24 points.

Union Carbide handed NCNB a 58-47 defeat in the second game of the evening. Union Carbide ran up a 29-13 lead in the first half of play, then had to hold off an NCNB rally in the second half. NCNB outhit the Battery men, 34-29, but it wasn't enough to overcome the deficit.

Garland Warren led Union Carbide with 20 points, while Tommy Roach had 18 and Elphonza Mayo had 12. For NCNB, Randy Martin had 14, Kenny Wood had 12 and Leon Johnson had 11.

The final game saw Empire Brush gain at 81-46 win over the Post Office. The Brushmen ran out to a 32-15 lead in the first half, then kept speeding away, outthrusting the Postmen, 49-31, in the final period.

Bobby Parker led Empire Brush with 22 points, while Ed Coburn had 19. James Parker had 14 and Charles Coburn had 11. For the Post Office, Thomas Perkins had 16 and Frank Legion had 13.

Charlie O. Is Selling Teams

CHICAGO (AP) — Charles O. Finley has put the Oakland Athletics up for sale, the Chicago Tribune reported today.

The price, the newspaper said, is $15 million.

Finley told the Tribune in an interview that he finally has acquiesced to the urgings of his doctors.

"My doctor has told me to get out of all sports for physical reasons," Finley said.

He said he is open to bids from "responsible parties" to purchase the American League baseball club which he moved from Kansas City to Oakland in 1969. The team has given him two World Series championships in a row.

Finley told the Tribune he plans to sell his hockey team (the California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League) and his basketball team (the Memphis Tams of the American Basketball Association) for health reasons, too. He declined to put a price on either team.

He said the National Hockey League is "making arrangements" to purchase his California Golden Seals.

Finley said he has no particular persons in mind who might buy the A's, but that the Marjorie Everett-Vern Underwood syndicate, which is currently seeking to buy the San Diego Padres, is interested. He said he expects to speak with a representative of that group today.

Despite Finley's success with the Oakland team, it has caused him some headaches. The latest was the tiff with his manager, Dick Williams, who wanted to move to the Yankees even though his contract with Finley still had two years to run.

Verbal Sparring Continues As Teams Prepare For Super Bowl

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — The big fist fight still is four days away, but the National Football League already has a nice little scuffle in full swing — and the main combatants don't even wear uniforms.

On one side is Bud Grant, the ramrod straight coach of the Minnesota Vikings, the National Conference's entry in the real bloodletting, more commonly known as Super Bowl VIII.

On the other side stands Pete Rozelle, commissioner of the league and probably the most powerful head of a major pro sport since Kenesaw Mountain Landis ruled baseball from 1921-1945.

And in the middle is Delmar Stadium, Houston's high school football field and facilities where the Vikings are preparing for Sunday's NFL title game against the Miami Dolphins, American Conference Champions and defenders of the Super Bowl crown.

Rozelle and the rest of the NFL hierarchy say Delmar is more than adequate for the Vikings' needs. Grant doesn't.

On Monday, Grant called the facilities "shabby" and unworthy of a "junior high school team."

Rozelle didn't take too kindly to that. At least, that's what Grant presumed on Tuesday when he surprised a news conference with the fact that he'd been reprimanded for his comments and advised that more of the same might result in a fine.

"The commissioner took a dim view of my observations," Grant said. Did Rozelle's response suggest that further comments should be tempered? "I took it as a threat," Grant replied coolly.

League by-laws prohibit a coach or player from criticizing another team or the league. Jim Kensil, Rozelle's chief aide, said Grant's comments conflicted with the NFL constitution.

"We were disappointed to hear about it publicly, not from the organization," said Kensil. "The first thing we consider is the field, the second the training room and the third the dressing room."

Grant was satisfied with the field, but called the rest of the accommodations poor, noting there were no lockers and only one coaches' table. And its location didn't help matters.

"We have to bus 20 minutes to and from the field while the Dolphins (using the Houston Oilers' facilities) can hold a squad meeting in their hotel and walk across the street to practice. It gives Miami an advantage," Grant insisted.

Don Shula, who is taking his Dolphins into their third straight Super Bowl, got a kick out of the brouhaha. "I think this has given the Vikings a competitive edge," he said, failing to suppress a grin. "They're angry. We're in trouble unless we can get the league to do something to get us teed off, too."

Set Mothers March Dates

The three days of January 18, 19 and 20 have been chosen by Greenville women for a second annual Mother's March to collect funds for work being carried on locally, state wide and nationally in the fight against birth defects. The goal set for the 1974 march is $3,000.

Barbara Brock and Elaine Tschetter, publicity aides for the event, have furnished a calendar of activities scheduled to take place in Greenville during January, with the three day Mothers' March as the culminating activity.

Activities slated prior to the Mothers' March are:

—January 9—Organizational meeting of Leaders (Junior Woman's Club providing leadership);

—January 14—Series of lectures on birth defects by Elaine Tschetter to be given to Home Economic classes at North Pitt High School;

January 16—Guest appearance by workers (to be announced) on the Carolina

Today television program: —January 16—Guest appearance by Father Hugh C. Mulholland on Radio WOOW to spotlight the Mothers' March.

—January 18—Seminar on birth defects to be held at 102 North Ash Street, Apartment 2.

General chairman of the event is Maureen Garrison. Co-chairman is Sydney Womack, with Frances Mann, Shelly Basnight, Libby Swinson, Nancy Whitlow, Cathy Quirk and Karen Collier as area chairmen. Area apartment complex chairman is Gwen Wilson.

Other workers active in the program are Harriet James, mapping and coding; and Ann Hunsucker, supplies.

For the Mothers' March, a call is going out for additional volunteers. Mrs. Brock says that "300 volunteers are needed to cover assignments. No one will be asked to contact more than 20 residences."

Persons wishing to volunteer their services are asked to call 756-5139 or 756-0659.

Scientist Says Savings In DST

By JAY PERKINS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Daylight Saving Time will save energy even if people turn on as many lights to brush their teeth in the morning as they did to down their martinis at night, says a government scientist.

It also could provide bonus benefits by giving people a better chance to safely reach their home after work, says Dr. Douglas Bauer.

Bauer, deputy assistant director of research for the Office of Energy Conservation, says daylight time could cut the nation's demand for heat and electricity by anywhere from one to three per cent.

It saved an estimated 700,000 tons of coal during World War II, according to the Edison Electric Institute of New York City. The Nixon administration estimates it could save 150,000 barrels of oil a day this winter.

Bauer says daylight time can save energy because the nation's demand for energy does not stay constant — it hits peaks and valleys during a 24-hour cycle.

He said one peak comes during the late afternoon, while a valley usually occurs in the morning hours.

Utility companies normally use their most efficient generators as much as possible while retaining their least efficient generators only to boost power during the peak periods, Bauer said.

Thus, by shifting an hour of daylight to the evening, daylight time cuts down the need for electricity during a peak period, and lessens the likelihood that the less efficient generators will be needed.

Dr. Bauer also says he feels people will use less electricity in the morning hour of darkness than they did at night.

"In the morning, in most parts of the country, it's already dark (when people arise), so you've already got lights on," he said.

And he says daylight time also will give people a better chance of getting safely to and from work since they will have more light at a time when many of them are tired and some have had a few drinks.

Leaves Panama With No Word On New Treaty

PANAMA (AP) — Ellsworth Bunker, the longtime American diplomat assigned to work out new treaty arrangements on the Panama Canal, has left here without announcing any agreement.

Panama seeks complete sovereignty over the U.S.-governed Canal Zone while the United States wants to maintain military control.

However, both sides agree a new treaty is necessary to replace the one signed in 1903 which gives the United States perpetual control.

Talks on a new treaty started in 1964 after anti-American rioting on the border between the American-held territory and the Republic of Panama. Twenty-five persons were killed.

In the latest round of negotiations, Bunker and Panama Foreign Minister Juan Antonio Tack met for three days.

Further Testing Of Bing Crosby

BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP) — Singer Bing Crosby is undergoing further tests to determine the exact nature of a lung ailment for which he was hospitalized on New Year's Eve.

The 69-year-old Crosby, admitted to Peninsula Hospital after complaining of chest and back pains, has thus far failed to respond to treatment for pneumonia, said Dr. Stanley Hanfling, a specialist in internal medicine.

Crosby was listed in satisfactory condition, but Hanfling said the singer suffered "a moderate amount of discomfort, controlled by medication." The singer is expected to stay in the hospital another 7 to 10 days.

Soaring Costs Dampen Street Work Program

WILLIAMSTON—A much higher costs than anticipated has posed problems for the town of Williamston in its street improvement programs. Original funds budgeted for planned improvements amounted to $88,000. Low bids recently received for the listed improvements come to $154,000.

After being presented this dilemma at its January meeting on Monday, the Williamston Town Board members decided to take no immediate action on the total project, but to consider the alternative of extracting parts of the project to be let on separate bids. The matter will be decided on at a later meeting.

Zoning ordinances changes were approved following a public hearing on two zoning issues. The first was to include churches as a permitted use in various zoning areas; and the second was approval of rezoning a two acre tract outside the town limits from R-14 to offensive industry to permit construction of a junk yard near Sweet Water Creek.

In the matter of county wide communications system, previously approved by both Martin County Commissioners and Williamston Town Board members, town members Monday adopted a resolution to request a federal grant in the amount of $43,008.75 and approved the town's share of the costs—$10,752.18.

As a follow up to the trial period of discontinuing use of parking meters, a decision was made to continue the policy of not using meters, and to go back to the old parking system. The town attorney was instructed to bring the provisions of this system for penalizing unauthorized parking up to date and to present his recommendations at the next board meeting.

The Workable Program for Williamston with HUD expires March 1, 1974, and approval given to make application for another two year extension period for the program.

In connection with HUD requirements for municipalities, an amendment was adopted to the town's plumbing code to place homogeneous bituminized fiber sewer pipes on the approved list.

Action on another long standing program, the county wide service, also available in Williamston, for the free removal of junk vehicles was authorized to continue until April 1, 1974. After that date, removal of junk autos will be at the expense of the owner.

An ordinance making it unlawful to raise or keep chickens, ducks, geese, guineas or other species of fowl within the city limits was approved, as was a resolution to request the Mitchie Publishing Company to codify and publish the various town ordinances.

Two bids were accepted—one a low bid or $6,200 from Martin Tractor and Truck Company for a truck chassis for a fire tanker truck; and the other, a bid of $1,799 by the Alexander Welding Company of Raleigh for a 1,600 gallon water tank for the fire truck to be used in rural areas.

Pitt Students On Dean's List

WILMINGTON—Two Pitt County residents have been named to the fall semester dean's list at the University of North Carolina at Wilmington.

Students cited for their academic achievement were William Thomas Rivers of Greenville and Bonnie Turnage Wiley of Ayden.

Mrs. Wiley accepted a position as assistant director of admissions and registration for the University of North Carolina here upon her graduation in December.

Annual Pun Fest Ended

NEW YORK (AP) — The 27th annual convention of the Society for the Revival and Preservation of the Pun is over, and as the carpenter once said, "it wasn't awl bad."

Aspiring and practicing comics turned out Tuesday night for a comedy workshop at the New School for Social Research celebrating what one wag called "Attila the Pun."

The workshop was originated by former gagwriter George Q. ("for Quip") Lewis, who said he wants to establish a pun library "where one can groan to his heart's content."

Touted as the convention's choicest groan-producer was the line about a Navajo electrical engineer who lost his job and wound up repairing on-the-blink lights in lavatories back home. The engineer thus became "the first Indian who wired a head for reservations."

From Morrie Simkin, the manager of an East Side Manhattan clothing store, punsters heard of the manacled poets on a one-woman planet vying for her hand by thrashing each other — illustrating that "bards of a fetter flog to get her."

Workshop leader Lewis, embellishing the wisdom of pianist and humorist Oscar Levant, reminded his comic proteges that "a pun is the lowest form of humor — when you don't think of it first."

One woman at the pun-fest, however, couldn't muster much enthusiasm and just sat silently through the hour-long session. She said of the "convention" and Lewis' workshop: "It's a kindergarten for the middle-aged."

Three Hurt In Accidents

Three persons were reported injured in one of two collisions investigated here yesterday that resulted in an estimated $3,750 property damage.

Officers identified drivers involved in an 8:15 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Fifth and Elm Streets as Raymond Garner Shirley of Route 2, Walstenburg and Phyllis Evelyn Andrews of 105 North Oak St.

Both drivers, according to police, and a passenger in the Andrews car, were injured. Damage was set at $250 to the Shirley car and $800 to the Andrews vehicle.

Shirley was charged with failing to stop for a stop light. Alfred Edward Harris of Route 6, Greenville was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 4:43 p.m. mishap yesterday on Greene Street 240 feet North of the Fifth Street intersection.

Officers identified the drivers of the other cars involved in the collision as Mary Eakes Rose of 501 East Tenth St. and Judy Evans Farmer of 202 North Oak St.

Damage was estimated by police at $100 to the Rose car, $2,300 to the Farmer vehicle and $300 to the Harris car. No injuries were reported.

The Worry Clinic Emotions Not Not Permanent

Hazel made a sad mistake on her wedding day! It is duplicated by almost every bride. And it brought her face to face with divorce. So quit passing the buck by blaming my incisive diagnoses! Use this column to SAVE your marriage and safeguard your kiddies!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.
CASE Z-521: Hazel R., aged 37, narrowly escaped divorce.
"Dr Crane," she began, "I'll admit that I used to grow so angry at your column that I'd even burn the page before my husband got to our newspaper."
"For I felt you always blamed us wives for divorce."
"But one day I learned, quite by accident that my husband had been seeing a girl on the sly for several months.

"She was only 21, slender and full of energy."
"My husband had been telling me he had to work late at the office, so I never suspected he was visiting his paramour on those nights."
"When I first found out, I was crushed; then angry) then vindictive, but finally my good sense took over."
"So I faced myself in my full length bathroom mirror."
"Well, I had put on 25 pounds of that ugly blubber you mention."
"And I recalled that I had often avoided or evaded him in the bedroom, even irritably pushing him away at times."

"Certainly, I had never spent much time in offering him boudoir cheesecake, for I was a splendid cook and thus enjoyed concocting dining room delicacies."
"So I decided to follow your advice about fighting fire with fire!"
"For you have often said that wives have a decided advantage if they will offer their mates as much erotic delight as the paramour does."
"Well, I dieted; added a new perfume; bought some dishonorable nighties, and drank coffee so I'd not snore at bedtime!"
"It soon worked like a charm!"
"His 'overtime' at the office shifted to 'overtime' in our boudoir!"
A Wife's Mistake
The usual bride makes a sad psychological mistake on her wedding day!
For she firmly believes her bridegroom's pledge to "love, honor and cherish" her all his life!

Another Radio Waves, High Tides Series To Debut

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Another new network radio series will debut next March, bringing to three the number of daily network radio drama series that have hit the airwaves since mid-December.
Its executive producer, Byron Lewis, jokingly describes the coming show as "soap opera in the classic sense: trauma upon trauma upon trauma." But it'll be markedly different than any past or present trauma drama aired on a network.
Called "Sounds of the City," it's aimed at black listeners, performed by black actors and actresses and produced by a black-owned company, UniWorld Group, Inc., which Lewis heads.

The series will focus on experiences of the Calvin Taylor family, a clan that includes two teen-agers, an older daughter recently graduated from college and their aunt and uncle.
What gave Lewis the idea for the series?
One factor, he said with a laugh, was his childhood memories of how his mother and aunt were "totally involved in radio soap operas — things like 'Stella Dallas,' 'John's Other Life' and 'Our Gal Sunday.'"
"I never could understand it because it was almost as if the characters were members of our family, and here this was a black family, relating to white characters in white situations."
But it really was created, he said, because there are few programs directed to black interests, despite the current success of movies and television programs featuring black stars.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Waves riding freak high tides have pounded the coast of Southern California in the aftermath of nearly a week of severe storm activity.
Officials in coastal Orange County declared a local emergency Tuesday, but the National Weather Service said milder weather was in store for most of the region during the next five days.
At least eight homes were damaged in Capistrano Beach and boat equipment was washed away in Newport Beach Tuesday as 8-foot waves slammed into the coastline. The rare high tides were caused by an unusual alignment of the sun, moon and earth.
Authorities said the high tides would continue part of today but doubted they would cause major damage.
For six days, back-to-back storms had dropped 7½ inches of rain on Los Angeles and paralyzed mountain communities with heavy snow. The second storm in the tandem began to move inland Tuesday.
The National Weather Service forecast mostly fair weather today, with temperatures warming to the low 60s in Los Angeles. Temperatures had dipped into the 40s and 50s here and below freezing in the mountains during the storms.

Opening lead: King of ♣.
A cardinal rule for successful defense is: Keep your cool. Don't get rattled and make a hasty play, or like West in today's hand, you might lighten your wallet unnecessarily.
North made the technically correct opening bid of the suit below his singleton. When South responded one spade, North realized that game might be made even if partner was minimum for his bid, so he raised to the level he thought his side could make.
West led the king of clubs, and hit the panic button when he saw dummy. He was afraid of establishing dummy's club suit, so he decided to shift. In an effort to cut down dummy's ruffs, West played the ace of spades and another.
Declarer won and led a second club, and the ace of clubs was the last trick for the defenders. Two of declarer's diamonds, could be discarded on dummy's clubs.
Had West retained his composure, he might have found the winning defense. He could account for three tricks in his own hand, and unless partner held the king of spades, the only source of a fourth trick was in the diamond suit. For this to materialize, East would have to hold the queen of diamonds.
Thus, West should have concentrated on making sure that declarer had no place to get rid of his diamond losers. Clubs represented a threat of discards, so West's task was to neutralize that suit.
After winning the king of clubs, West should continue with ace and another club. Declarer can take one diamond discard, but that is all. When declarer leads a trump, West rises with the ace and returns a fourth club. East ruffs and the declarer can overruff, he is deprived of his second discard. However he tries, he has no way to avoid a diamond loser.

Canoeing Has Unexpected Hazards

ICY BANKS—Ice chunks heaped into crackling piles on the banks of the Missouri River near Atchison, Kan., provide a cold walk for the hiker seen at upper right. The river continues its flow under the piles of ice which resemble giant hunks of peanut brittle. (AP Wirephoto)

Canoeing is one of the fastest growing outdoor sports in America and not necessarily just for the rugged individual, either. Entire families in Texas devote their leisure time to riding the swift currents of streams and rivers. However, it's not without its hazards both on the water and along the bank where some irate land owners view canoeists as trespassers. The moral of the following story is be careful of the river you ride.

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer
COMFORT, Tex. (AP)—The swift, green water of Guadalupe River pushed Nancy Pruitt's canoe toward the first low-water bridge below Comfort, Tex., and the same sheriff's deputy who had hassled her party at the put-in point was standing on the bank near the bridge, arguing with those in the lead canoe.

"He was a dead-ringer for the Dodge sheriff," says Nancy, a green-eyed redhead. "And he had a very large pistol." The deputy had asked them at the put-in point what commune they were from and warned them against smoking marijuana and trespassing on the banks.

After the 14 canoeists got under way, they noticed they had company.

"It was kind of spooky," says Nancy, an Austin, Tex., artist whose wildlife paintings have illustrated two children's books. "People were riding along on horseback, in pickups and a jeep. They watched us through binoculars."

This is the Texas hill country where a man's property is like a part of his skin—don't touch unless invited.

Nancy says when she saw the deputy the second time standing on the bank, "I knew it was a real emergency, but I couldn't hear what he was saying at first because of the noise of the water."

As she and her husband, Jim, an electrical engineer, came alongside, the deputy told them not to land there. The current swept them toward the bridge, where the water rushed under with only a few inches of clearance.

"The canoe went broadside," she says. "Jim was faster than I was. He was able to leap out, but I went under."

The churning water shot her under the bridge. Luckily, she was not hurt. "He (the deputy) wouldn't let people get out on the gravel bar on the other side to help me out," she says. "He was laughing and making cracks about hippies and murderers and rapists, about people not being safe in their homes, about old ladies being raped and having their heads cut off, about junkies and dopers and on and on and on. It was incredible."

Finally, the deputy allowed the others to take their canoes out and carry them around the bridge.

"He said by law he was allowed to shoot because it was trespassing," says Nancy.

Five months earlier, in August 1971, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department published a booklet entitled, "Pathways & Paddeways," with maps showing campgrounds and rest stops along this beautiful stretch of the Guadalupe.

Unfortunately, the maps failed to make clear these were sites of a proposed state waterway. Hundreds of canoeists were drawn to the river, some of them so new to the sport they badly misjudged time and distances between road crossings and ended up knocking on a rancher's backdoor after sundown.

Often, they got help. But many times they scared the neighborliness out of property owners unaccustomed to figures moving around on their land after dark.

Some ranchers assumed incorrectly that they owned to the middle of the river, that it was their river. They still are hostile to any canoeing, and they have important people on their side.

"I'm 100 per cent behind the landowners," says Kendall County Sheriff Lee D'Spain.

"Canoeists have no business getting in the river."

Dozens of canoeists have reported harassment by sheriff's officers, particularly when they beach their canoes to scout rapids ahead or to portage around low-water bridges.

"I'm sure that all states have similar programs to some degree," says Parks and Wildlife Commissioner Bob Burleson of Temple.

Burleson has canoed in Arkansas, Colorado, New Mexico and old Mexico as well as Texas. "My wife was in the party that was shot at on the Cossatot River in Arkansas," he said.

Many Texas canoeists also have reported hearing rifle bullets whine across the water in front of their canoes. That sort of thing can diminish the enjoyment of a Sunday outing.

All navigable streams in Texas are public property, and that usually includes, depending on the height of the water at the time, a portion of the banks.

The boundary is halfway up the lowest bank that separates the riverbed from the adjacent upland, the bank that serves to confine the waters within the bed and preserve the course of the river. A line drawn from that point across the river locates the boundary on the other side.

Determining this "gradient boundary" is complicated and expensive. Only surveyors can do it.

Texas Land Commissioner Bob Armstrong says, "There are bad canoeists just as there are bad landowners."

Armstrong, an avid canoeist, thinks the sport needs to be regulated, but he believes that requires legislation.

Game Warden Milburn Dearing of Boerne says canoeists have shot livestock, littered private property, sunbathed on bridges and paddled naked in front of family groups in private camping areas.

The landowners organized the Guadalupe River Association, whose president, Frank Brady of San Antonio, says the big controversy is not canoeists but pollution by the city of Kerrville.

Many leading canoeists say the situation is more volatile today than ever before.

"If we had a killing," says Harold Belisle, a member of the Parks and Wildlife staff, "this whole thing would be solved. People would get up in arms. My question is do we have to have that killing?"

Claims Reports Of Big Oil Stockpiles

LOS ANGELES (AP)—California Sen. John V. Tunney says he has reports of oil tankers arriving as fast or faster than a year ago and that storage tanks in the Los Angeles area are "filled to brim" with oil.

"If these and other reports we are getting are accurate, it could represent a conspiracy far greater than anything in the Teapot Dome scandal," Tunney said Tuesday.

"The figures lead one to believe that the oil companies are withholding oil from the market to jack up prices and maximize profits.

"I cannot conclude that with finality from the information we have received so far, but obviously the situation is very suspicious and should be thoroughly investigated."

The Democratic senator met with members of the Los Angeles Harbor Commission, labor leaders and industry representatives.

A harbor department spokesman said almost as many ships have come in during the last 12 months as the previous year—780 in 1973 compared with 790 in 1972.

"We don't have final figures, however, on the number of barrels on each ship," the spokesman added.

Tunney said in his meetings there was "a widespread belief that there is a conspiracy among the oil companies, yet we cannot get the figures on plant capacity or storage."

"It is absolutely critical for Congress to have independent statistics on the oil situation. Now all we have are figures from the American Petroleum Institute," Tunney said.

MIA Search To Continue

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Pentagon says the attempt to locate more than 1,100 U.S. servicemen missing in Indochina will continue, despite a temporary halt following the attack last month on a helicopter engaged in the search.

A spokesman said the apparent ambush of the unarmed helicopter Dec. 15 in the Mekong Delta south of Saigon and the death of an American Army captain in the incident has made U.S. officials "much more cautious than we were before."

But the spokesman, Air Force Lt. Gen. Daniel James, said there are no plans to curtail the search. He emphasized that American diplomats will continue to press for access to unsearched areas.

James said the North Vietnamese, who agreed under the Paris peace agreement signed over a year ago to aid in the search for the missing, have instead provided "one excuse after another" for postponing searches of more than 100 possible sites.

He said finding sites that Communist leaders in North Vietnam, South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia will permit to be searched remains the main problem in the operation to find and identify the missing servicemen.
