

ECU Med School Viewed Threat To UNC Board

RALEIGH (AP)—A spokesman for a group of legislative supporters of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors says many view the proposed expansion of the East Carolina University medical school "as a threat to the integrity of the board."

Rep. Herschel Harkins, D-Buncombe, made the statement Tuesday after about 40 legislative supporters of the board met in closed-door session to discuss their position on the ECU expansion question.

The board recently turned down a request for immediate expansion of the one-year medical school at ECU and instead recommended funding for nine Area Health Education Centers, community-based medical residency programs.

"We just wanted to see where we are and what we think," said Harkins, an organizer of the closed session. "It was just a bunch of people that lean in the same direction getting together."

He pointed out "it wasn't an anti-ECU thing..." The group, he said, was about equally divided between Democrats and Republicans.

He added the group generally agreed, however, that the Area Health Education Centers proposed by the UNC Board "are so vital to the people that we don't want anything to threaten them."

The meeting was organized by Harkins, Rep. George Miller, D-Durham, and Rep. Jack Stevens, D-Buncombe. Only members of the House were invited.

Meanwhile, it was announced that the next meeting of the ad hoc group of legislators and university officials trying to reach a compromise on the ECU medical school issue will be held Thursday.

Like last week's, the dinner session at a Raleigh motel will be closed.

Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, sent letters Tuesday to the 38 people who attended last week's dinner meeting, advising them of the scheduling of the next session.

He also told them to bring the $5.75 cost of last week's dinner, which was supposed to be a dutch treat but which Stewart wound up paying for.

Stewart said the agenda for the meeting will include the question of accreditation for ECU's proposed two-year program.

Dr. John Cooper, an accreditation expert with the American Medical Association, has agreed to come to Raleigh from Washington, D.C., and address the meeting, Stewart said.

Sources who attended last week's meeting said University of North Carolina President William Friday had given a very pessimistic assessment of the accreditation possibilities for an expanded ECU school.

ECU supporters say the accreditation issue is a "red flag" designed to derail their efforts to persuade the legislature to overrule the UNC Board of Governors and expand ECU's current one-year medical school.

In a letter to all legislators sent by the Medical Manpower Study Commission Tuesday, they said the poor grades given the ECU operation by an AMA accreditation team in 1973 were at least partially attributable to failure of officials at UNC-Chapel Hill to cooperate with the ECU school's administrators.

That situation has been rectified, they said, and they predicted that the AMA would be enthusiastic about approving a properly equipped, staffed and funded ECU school.

'All Issues'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon addresses Congress and the nation tonight on the State of the Union, and quite possibly on the Watergate crisis.

White House officials would not say flatly in advance of Nixon's 9 p.m. EDT appearance at a joint session of Congress whether Watergate-related matters would be touched upon.

However, Deputy Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Tuesday Nixon would discuss all issues important to the American people. And departing aide Melvin R. Laird, asked at a news conference whether Nixon could fail to talk about what the questioner termed a crisis of confidence, replied:

"I think you'll be very pleased with the content of the message."

The White House said Nixon returned to Washington by car after dark Tuesday from a five-day stay at Camp David, Md., where he reportedly spent much of his time on the State of the Union address to be broadcast live by major television-radio networks.

Senate Democratic Whip Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia said Tuesday in an interview filmed for use by public television stations that he thought Nixon could help himself by "dealing with the state of the President."

Nixon was sending Congress a lengthy, written State of the Union message in addition to his speech to Senate and House members.

Most of the President's legislative proposals represent altered versions of ones advanced in earlier years.

Perhaps his major 1974 legislative initiative is a much-revised national health insurance plan.

To be financed largely through employer-employee contributions, it would insure all Americans of basic minimum coverage as well as protection against catastrophic illnesses. It also would absorb the present Medicaid program.

Also expected was a proposal for some form of guaranteed annual income.

Emergency Energy Measure Appears Killed By Senate

By DAVID C. MARTIN Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Controversy over oil industry profits appears to have killed the emergency energy bill that Congress wrestled with for two months.

The Senate voted Tuesday to send the measure back to conference with the House in an effort to remove an excess profits provision that critics claimed was unworkable and probably unconstitutional.

The move to recommit had received the endorsement of President Nixon, who wrote Senate Minority Leader Hugh Scott that it "would be most unfortunate" if Congress approved the energy bill in its present form.

But both House and Senate leaders of the conference indicated there was little chance the conferees would reconsider the bill. The White House has said it needs the legislation before it can order gasoline rationing and other mandatory energy conservation measures.

"It's all in a shambles now," Senate Interior Committee Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said. House Commerce Committee Chairman Harley O. Staggers, D-W. Va., agreed that the Senate vote probably would kill the bill.

"The administration is going to rule this day," Jackson said, explaining that without the bill the President would have to declare a national emergency before he could order rationing.

A source in the Federal Energy Office said gasoline rationing is a strong likelihood this summer if the Arab oil embargo continues.

Jackson also argued that the Senate's refusal to approve the excess profits measure in the bill would make the oil industry "more difficult, more belligerent. The industry must be glowing," Jackson said after the vote.

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., sponsor of the motion to recommit, argued that most of the bill's noncontroversial provisions, including rationing, could be attached to other measures.

The bill was recommitted by a vote of 57-37, with Republicans and oil state senators who prevented passage of the measure before Christmas being joined by Nelson and other liberal Democrats, including George McGovern, D-S.D., and Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn.

In other developments:

—Three oil companies announced substantial earnings increases for 1973. Phillips Petroleum Co. said earnings in the fourth quarter of 1973 more than doubled those of the same period in 1972. Sun Oil Co. announced a 59 per cent increase in earnings during the fourth quarter. And Marathon Oil Co. said its operating income for 1973 increased 62 per cent.

—A Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee is opening hearings on the foreign policy influence of multinational oil companies.

—Federal energy chief William E. Simon warned the American people that "scarce high cost energy will be the rule for many years if not indefinitely." He called for "a new energy ethic — a war on waste."

—The American Automobile Association said gasoline appears to be about as available this week as it was last week. What end-of-month shortages there are seem to be hitting metropolitan centers hardest, the AAA said.

To Trim Budget Requests

RALEIGH (AP)—A "super subcommittee" of 41 North Carolina legislators will go to work today in trimming at least $332 million from budget requests for the next fiscal year.

The subcommittee, composed of members of the House and Senate Appropriations Committee, will be doing work that in the past was shared by all members of the Appropriations committees, according to Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston.

The committee heard the last of the supplemental requests presented during public hearings Tuesday. State employees asked for a 10 per cent pay raise instead of the five per cent recommended by the Advisory Budget Commission.

Taken together, the supplemental requests would add $332 million to the $2.99 billion budget submitted to the legislature by the commission.

The state employees, speaking through association presidents, said the extra pay raise would merely enable them to keep up with the cost of living. The estimated additional cost to the state would be $36 million.

$9 Million In Pitt Hospital Bonds Are Sold

The North Carolina Local Government Commission yesterday sold $9 million in bonds issued by Pitt County for construction of a new hospital.

Low bidder for the bonds was First Citizens Bank and Trust Co. of Smithfield with a net interest cost bid of 4.5777 per cent.

Other bidders for the Pitt bonds included Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. with Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith (4.6235 per cent), First Union National Bank of North Carolina with Morgan Guaranty and Trust Co. (4.635 per cent) and North Carolina National Bank and associates (4.6480 per cent).

County officials, who cited other recent sales of non-taxable 20-year bonds with interest rates ranging from 4.8 to 5.9 per cent, said the recent up-grading of Pitt County's bond rating recently by Moody's Investment Service probably contributed to the lower interest rates bid for the $9 million in bonds sold yesterday by the Local Government Commission.

In addition to the Pitt bonds sold yesterday, the Local Government commission sold $450,000 in bonds for the Town of Carolina Beach.

First Union National, the only bidder for those water and sanitary sewer bonds, bid 5.75 per cent.

A Second Meeting

A second meeting designed to bring members of the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina, officials of East Carolina University and members of the General Assembly closer together on the question of expanding the present one-year medical school at ECU is scheduled for Thursday night.

Plans are for Dr. John Cooper of Washington D.C. to outline for the legislators and administrators of UNC and ECU the problems faced in gaining accreditation for any expanded program at the Greenville campus.

The group met last week in what was billed as an attempt to work out a compromise proposal on the ECU expansion bill introduced in both the House and Senate earlier in the week.

However, individuals attending the January 24 closed-door session said no compromise had come from that meeting.

Last week's compromise meeting was followed by a meeting in Raleigh last night of about 40 legislators reportedly supporting the University of North Carolina Board of Governors' position on the expansion question.

The Board of Governors has recommended that the ECU medical program not be expanded.

Foundation Attains Its Goal Of Matching $50,000 Grant

By JERRY RAYNOR Reflector Staff Writer

Good news was the order of the day at the January meeting of the East Carolina Art Society held in the Art Center Tuesday night.

By approving a contribution of $1,800 from profits realized at the annual Fine Arts Ball in October to be applied to the Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation, the local matching funds needed to put the Maxwell challenge grant over the top was realized.

Two years ago, Grover Maxwell Sr. and the now late Mr. Jeff Maxwell, both of August, Ga., made a $50,000 challenge grant to the foundation established by their sister, the late Mrs. Rachel Maxwell Moore.

The challenge grant carried the stipulation that funds necessary to bring the foundation to a total of $100,000 be raised locally.

Earlier this month, members of the Board of Directors of the East Carolina Art Society voted a $1,500 contribution for the foundation and last night added the additional $300. A total profit of some $3,500 was realized from last year's Fine Arts Ball.

Marvin Blount, Sr. has spearheaded the drive for the past two years to raise matching funds locally for the foundation.

Proceeds realized from investment of the principal of the $100,000 Rachel Maxwell Moore Foundation are earmarked for the purchase of works of art for the Greenville Art Center.

Under the terms of the foundation agreements, such proceeds cannot be used for operating expenses or for any purpose other than purchase of art. (In the event for any reason the Greenville Art Center should cease to function, all works of art in the center's collection purchased with these funds and the foundation fund itself would go to the North Carolina Museum of Art in Raleigh).

Also approved at the Tuesday night meeting was an acquisition policy presented by Miss Elizabeth Copeland. Miss Copeland, Mrs. Bruce B. Sugg, Jr. and Robert Pittman constitute the Acquisition Committee.

The policy approved, applicable for a two year period, provides that Acquisition money from the foundation be used to purchase works of art from regional artists.

In this connection, regional artists will mean primarily artists of eastern North Carolina. However, artists from other parts of North Carolina or ones now living outside the area but natives of eastern North Carolina will not be rigidly excluded.

Miss Copeland said that approximately $11,000 is available for purchase of art during 1974 and said the acquisition committee would begin immediately to contact a number of area artists.

The acquisition committee recommends works of art which must receive approval of the five member Board of Trustees of the foundation before purchase is made.

Permanent members of the trustee board are Marvin Blount, Sr., Charles Howard and Dr. Alfred Yongue. Ex officio members are the director of the Art Center and the president of the Art Society.

The acquisition policy further stipulates that works in all media—paintings, drawings, sculpture, etc. be considered for acquisition.

A third item of good news was the announcement that the final payment of the mortgage on the Art Center building has been made. Transferral of the Deed of Trust is taking place today.

In a report on a state Arts Council meeting that Edith

Walker, director of the center attended in early January, she reported "it's evident that despite our problems we're in much better shape than most art centers in the state."

According to Ms. Walker, the Greenville Art Center is one of only six in North Carolina

Electric Customers Face New Blow In Rate Boost

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Utilities Commission has granted Carolina Power and Light Co. a 5.94 per cent interim rate hike and two commissioners predict the cost to electric customers could rise as much as 40 per cent.

CP&L obtained the 5.94 per cent increase, which will be reflected in February statements, pending full hearings in July on its request for a 21 per cent hike. The company also has pending a request for permission to adjust its rates monthly to reflect rising costs of fuel.

Commissioner Hugh A. Wells said Tuesday the increases, if allowed, would boost customers' monthly bills by 40 per cent. That would make the average CP&L statement for homeowners move up from $18.61 to $25.05.

A CP&L spokesman, however, disputed Wells' reasoning.

Wells said the two big rate adjustments each would add about $3 a month to a customer's bill. The company spokesman estimated, however, the monthly adjustment proposal would not cost customers more than 50 cents in February. He said the cost could go higher in the future.

CP&L has estimated that its average price of coal will increase from $12 a ton in 1973 to $17 a ton this year, Wells said. The company faces an order from the Federal Energy Office to convert most of its operations at the Sutton electric plant near Wilmington from oil to coal, which Wells said has been in short supply.

CP&L has asked the Utilities Commission to approve a proposed arrangement through which it would become a partner in a mining operation in Kentucky.

The company indicated it could obtain 10 per cent of its current coal needs from the mining operation. Under the proposal CP&L would own 75 per cent of the mining company with the remainder owned by the Pickands Mather Co. of Delaware.

CP&L said the total cost of the mine's development would be $27.1 million.

Electric Customers Face New Blow In Rate Boost

RALEIGH (AP)—The State Utilities Commission has granted Carolina Power and Light Co. a 5.94 per cent interim rate hike and two commissioners predict the cost to electric customers could rise as much as 40 per cent.

CP&L obtained the 5.94 per cent increase, which will be reflected in February statements, pending full hearings in July on its request for a 21 per cent hike. The company also has pending a request for permission to adjust its rates monthly to reflect rising costs of fuel.

Commissioner Hugh A. Wells said Tuesday the increases, if allowed, would boost customers' monthly bills by 40 per cent. That would make the average CP&L statement for homeowners move up from $18.61 to $25.05.

A CP&L spokesman, however, disputed Wells' reasoning. Wells said the two big rate adjustments each would add about $3 a month to a customer's bill. The company spokesman estimated, however, the monthly adjustment proposal would not cost customers more than 50 cents in February. He said the cost could go higher in the future.

The company indicated it could obtain 10 per cent of its current coal needs from the mining operation. Under the proposal CP&L would own 75 per cent of the mining company with the remainder owned by the Pickands Mather Co. of Delaware.

CP&L said the total cost of the mine's development would be $27.1 million.

Patients Love Foreign Nurses Because Of Traits

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
MACON, Ga. (AP) — The petite, dark-haired foreign nurses at the Medical Center of Central Georgia are sometimes confused by their patients' Southern drawl. And patients occasionally feel the same about the nurses' soft accents. Such barriers, however, are overcome by the big, warm smiles and bedside manners of the 25 young nurses — 20 of them from the Philippines.

"Patients love them," said Damon D. King, administrator of the hospital, which selected the girls last spring after careful screening of 100 applicants. "They're kind, empathetic and know how to give tender loving care so important to patients," said King. "We think these are natural traits. "The reason we sought foreign graduate nurses is simply the shortage of nurses," said the administrator. A number of hospitals across the nation are seeking foreign nurses for the same reason, he said, particularly the less populous areas. "We're well pleased with them," King said about the nurses, whose ages range from 22 to 25. The girls come from a variety of regions, ranging from large cities such as Manila to the mountains of Mindanao. Elizabeth S. Nardo, who wears her long, dark hair parted in the middle and pulled back, says she came because,

"I'm quite adventurous. I wanted to see the States and to gain more nursing experience. "We are homesick at first," she said. "And now again at Christmas, we are so far from home and loved ones. Sometimes we are crying." The girls, who came last June, have a year's temporary visa, which can be renewed twice, giving them three years here if they desire. "It's too early to say whether we'll want to stay," said Miss Nardo.

Nine of the nurses interviewed said they were able to send money home to their large families of brothers and sisters and also to save. In the Philippines their annual salary as nurses was $600. Here it is $7,500. And they don't mind working the evening and night shifts — it can mean an extra $100 a month. American nurses often have families, said King, and therefore are more reluctant to work the around-the-clock shifts needed in hospitals.

The foreign nurses note one big difference in American patients and those in their home countries. "They ask for more pain medication," said Mrs. Saramma Ninnan, of India. "One notices it especially in the delivery room."

Byung Hee Kim of Seoul, Korea, who is an operating room nurse, says, "I particularly like all the disposable equipment, the gloves, syringes, all can be thrown away instead of having to clean to use again."

"It's really modern here," said Eufracia S. Zapanta of the Philippines. "You don't have to improvise equipment as we sometimes have to do at home. "But what is different that we miss is that we don't have the total patient care as we do at home. There we can give aspirin or a hot water bottle without asking the doctor. Here you cannot," said Miss Zapanta.

All of the girls have a great yen to travel while they are in the States. Thus far, they have only visited Florida where the highlight of their trip was a roller coaster ride at Disney World.

"Most of us don't date because we are loyal to our boy friends at home," said Miss Nardo. However, one of the foreign nurses has married while in the States.

"We window shop and we have the television 24 hours a day," said Estrella S. Custodio, in reply to a question about their recreation. All the girls live in an apartment complex near the hospital.

Miss Custodio says patients sometimes ask them to lunch or invite them to their homes. "The Southern accent is sometimes hard to understand but also sometimes they use the slang," said Miss Custodio, her brown eyes smiling.

S. Thomas of India, one of four male nurses at the hospital, and his wife, also a nurse, are immigrants to the United States. Their keenest loss now is home ties, particularly their 3-year-old child, whom they hope to have join them soon.

W. D. McClure, assistant administrator of the hospital, who flew to the Philippines to select the 20 girls, says they passed intensive tests before being chosen.

"By personally interviewing them, you can tell if they have a severe problem with the language and you're also able to screen out acute personality problems," said McClure.

"In addition, they took a six weeks' acclimation course which they had to pass," he said.

"The big incentives for them to come are money, a chance to travel and the educational opportunities."

However, President Ferdinand E. Marcos announced recently that the Philippine government will no longer permit nurses to go abroad as students or as exchange visitors. He said 18,450 are serving abroad.

One of the nurses at the Macon hospital voiced the only real gripe any of them had with America.

"Too much tax here," said Ofelia Rendon, smiling broadly.

Matte jersey, as the term is used today, is any soft, single-knit fabric that is clinging, fluid, and drapable and has a dull finish. It is usually heavy in weight for such a thin fabric. Originally made in silk and rayon, most matte jersey on the market today is of nylon, polyester of acetate.

Matte jersey is difficult to handle which accounts for why it has not been readily available in yard goods. With this fabrics emerging fashion importance, more people are now buying the fabric. Here are some suggestions for producing a professional looking garment.

When selecting a pattern, choose a simple design with the fewest seams possible. The patterns for "stretch knits only" are often best. The pattern design should allow the fabric to do what it does naturally—drape. Some popular current shapes are:

1. The slinky slipdress.
2. The soft shirtdress.
3. The halter-dress (with or without a jacket).
4. The blouson top with a flowing skirt.
5. The T-shirt dress.
6. The soft dress with shirred top and fluid skirt.

Long sleeves are beautiful in matte jersey when very slim, like a second skin.

When cutting allow generous seams around armholes and necklines. Matte jersey tends to stretch down. Neckline, armhole and waistline seams should be stabilized with twill tape. Mark stitching lines with tailors tacks. Baste seams for the first fitting since the machine stitch often cuts the fabric and leaves small holes. Use a machine ball-point needle and polyester thread. Stretch the fabric slightly as you stitch.

Even though matte jersey does not ravel, a row of stitching is a required seam finish. This prevents the seam allowance from rolling.

Zippers are hard to use in this fabric because of its stretchability. Whenever possible, it is best to make a jersey to pull over the head like a sweater. Loops and buttons and snaps are the best closures. Due to the weight of the fabric, a narrow hem—2½ inches at the most—is best. Hem with a slip-stitch or dressmakers stitch, catching only a thread of the outside fabric. Two rows of hemming—one close to the hem fold; the other at

Abby's Column Was Inspiration

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: On Christmas Day a relative with whom I had been on the outs for four years telephoned me and said, "There is no sense to our being mad at each other for the rest of our lives. Let's be friends again!"

I wept. He later told me that he had been inspired to call me when he read in your column, "Call up an enemy today and bury the hatchet."

Thanks a million, Abby.

DE ESPANA

DEAR DE: De nada!

DEAR ABBY: On our wedding night, my bride said, "It's been such a beautiful day, let's not spoil it with sex."

She gave me no hint while I courted her that she felt that way about sex. We were engaged for a year, during which time she never let me go beyond a goodnight kiss, but I thought it was because she had such high moral standards.

It took me five weeks to consummate our marriage, and then it was very unsatisfactory. She regards sex as a "duty" and I am always urged to "hurry up and get it over with."

I tried to be patient and considerate, and I let her alone for two years while she went thru the motions of getting "psychological counseling." Now she uses all the excuses women use to avoid sex. "I have a headache. It's too late. I'm too tired."

She doesn't want a divorce, and says if I found a girl friend it would be all right with her as long as she didn't know who the girl was.

Is this marriage worth saving? UP A CREEK

DEAR UP: It is, if you don't mind living with your sister. Her suggestion of a girl friend would make a mockery of your marriage. Unless she makes a serious effort to change her attitude about marital relations, you'd be justified in setting her free to find a man who shares her feelings, while you find a woman who shares yours.

DEAR ABBY: I read the article about the 31-year-old married man who still wets the bed, and I sure felt sorry for him because I'm 15 now, and I used to do the same thing until two years ago. Then my parents sent for something they saw advertised in a Sears catalog. It's like a rubber bed sheet with a buzzer connected to it. I'd sleep on that, and the minute it started to get wet, the buzzer would go off, then I'd wake up and go to the bathroom.

At first I had to change the bed sheets, but after a while, the buzzer seemed to wake me up in time to stay dry all night.

I hope you print this, but please don't sign my name or everybody in Worthington, Minn., will tease me. Just sign it.

"HOW DRY I AM"

DEAR DRY: Trust me! You're nice to want to share your solution with others.

Lawyer-To-Be Will Assist The Elderly 'Great Decisions' Series Slated For February

By ALISON LERRICK PARIS (AP) — This year, Mabel Therese Bonney bought all the right text books and enrolled at the Sorbonne to get her law doctorate.

She is likely to stand out from her fellow students, not only because she is an American citizen, but because she has just turned 80.

"I don't notice any difference between myself and the other students. I don't assume I'll have any problem with my professors. I seem to feel I'm eternally young," Miss Bonney said.

She had no trouble with red tape but began classes late because she couldn't figure out the computerized forms. As a freshman, she had a more "senior" 22-year-old student show her the ropes.

This is the fifth time Miss Bonney has enrolled in a university. "I worked my way through four of them," she said, "and then I worked my way through life."

She earned her bachelor's degree at the University of California and her master's degree at Harvard. At Columbia, she prepared for her doctorate in Romance languages and the theater. She was the fourth woman and eleventh American as well as the youngest person ever to receive a doctorate in that field from the Sorbonne in 1921.

Fifty-two years later, Miss Bonney is back in the grind for a more serious reason than rounding out her education.

Her field of interest is gerontology in relation to the law. Some people are born into minority groups, but Miss Bonney joined the ranks of the elderly only recently.

"Gerontology is the newest science in existence, much more so than ecology. Laws must be changed to give maximum protection to the elderly. Old people are not so much discriminated against as ignored. They can't defend themselves," Miss Bonney explained.

The resolute figure in a tweed suit and African beads has a standing offer from a retired judge that, as soon as she graduates, they will open a law firm together.

What inspired Miss Bonney to champion the elderly was what she terms "a perfectly horrendous experience." After 27 years in the same apartment, she was evicted almost bodily when the owner sold the house to erect a high-rise apartment building.

"I was treated scandalously. I could have been treated more roughly, but the treatment I received was rough enough," she complains.

She found herself entangled in a snare of building and apartment laws that took two years to straighten out.

"That shouldn't happen, to an American or to anyone. It's not possible for an 80-year-old person to go through such a thing. I knew two elderly people who died after the same experience," she said.

Now she is busy studying other facets of the problem of old age and visiting homes for the elderly all over France.

"I hope to set an example for the elderly. Their problem is that they give up. Nothing is worse than just stopping. Even the most beautiful modern homes are dead as doornails. People just sit around chewing the fat and playing cards. Not a dog, not a cat, not a goldfish," Miss Bonney criticized.

She lives alone, but with a cat.

One solution, she said, would be opening nurseries for orphans in homes for the elderly.

"Elderly women are overflowing with tenderness and could be grandmothers to children who will never have one," she said.

Otherwise, she is a firm believer in hobbies as an antidote to the trauma of retirement.

"The majority of people must be prepared before retirement so the shock won't be too great.

If you have imagination, you can develop new contacts and do anything. Many hobbies can also be financially rewarding, such as raising dogs or breeding rare flowers. At retirement, most men already have hobbies but not much has been done for women," Miss Bonney added.

She finds that society puts people away too soon, pushing them into retirement.

Miss Bonney still identifies with her American heritage.

"I was born in a very unattractive place in upstate New York," she said, "and my family is eight-generation American on both sides."

A French-Canadian grandmother taught her to speak French because "I wanted to be able to talk back to her. She was a very strong gal," Miss Bonney added.

Oversight Ends In Burned Dinner

LEIGE, Belgium (WNS)—No wonder bride Lucianne Spaaken, 24, burned the dinner the first night after she and hubby Gilbert returned home from honeymoon. Gilbert was three hours late getting home from the office. His excuse: He had forgotten that he was married and had gone to his mother's suburban house by mistake.

The International Affairs Department of the Greenville Woman's Club is now making plans for the Great Decisions program series of 1974.

The overall program on Great Decisions is under auspices of the Division of Continuing Education, East Carolina University, working with local organizations and study groups in the area.

Subjects which will be explored in the 1974 Great Decisions program include The Atlantic Community, President versus Congress, Soviet-American Detente, Cuba and the Panama Canal Zone, The Energy Crisis, Israel and the Middle East Crisis, The Peoples Republic of China and People, People!

The Great Decisions program is an educational, non-partisan undertaking designed to give citizens in all walks of life an opportunity to learn more about foreign and domestic policy issues affecting the United States.

The first program meeting of the 1974 series in Greenville will be at 8 p.m. Feb. 5 at the Greenville Woman's Club. Dr. Goetz Fehr of Germany will be the guest speaker. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Illustrates Inflationary Cycle

Nothing is more indicative of the inflationary cycle than the frequent increases in various government benefits.

President Nixon has proposed a cost-of-living increase in veterans' pension and an eight per cent increase in GI benefits.

Certainly there is no argument that these increases should not be granted. They will do nothing more than help the recipients keep up with the rapidly rising prices of everything they use. Thus they will not be receiving more value; they will just be handling more paper money to obtain the same goods and services.

The increases, however, will push the amount allocated for veterans benefits upward in the federal budget and this along with Social Security and other increases will contribute to further inflation.

This is not to blame recipients of Social Security and veterans checks for inflation. Most of them are living on little enough and the increases they will receive will be essential if they are to maintain a minimum standard of living.

Somehow, though, our society needs to bring inflation under control so that when an increase in Social Security of pensions can be granted it will actually mean some increased buying power for the recipients.

People on fixed incomes suffer most during inflationary periods. We don't have the answers as to how the spiral can be controlled and it looks as if the experts in government do not, either. The answers must be found, however, if we are not to see our monetary system become meaningless.

Gasoline Rationing Is Apparently In Future

As the nation's gas pumps run dry, the government presses are busy printing gas rationing coupons.

While no decision has yet been made to use them, it is beginning to look more and more that rationing must come in order for gas to be fairly distributed.

The prospect is not pleasing, but for a person who uses his car to travel to work, the thought of not having gas the last week of the month is frightening.

Back Taxes Of The President

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Buttressed by insistent advice from political aides, President Nixon has tentatively decided to beat his tax inquisitors to the punch by paying back taxes covering part or all of the controversial half-million-dollar deduction he took for donating his pre-presidential papers to the U. S. government.

This sensational move by Mr. Nixon is designed to reduce the storm of taxpayer fury that will follow the predictable report of the joint congressional Internal Revenue Committee. That report is expected to say the President underpaid his income taxes from 1969 through 1972, and Mr. Nixon has agreed to abide by the committee's findings.

The joint committee is well along in its study, its high-powered staff of tax experts working closely with the Internal Revenue Service. Its recommendation, probably within 30 days, is sure to be accepted in full by its chairman, Sen. Russell Long of Louisiana, and its vice chairman, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas.

That recommendation almost certainly will find the President erred in taking the huge $482,019 in deductions during his first four years in office. Those deductions were based on an authorized expert's appraisal of $576,000 for his public papers—meaning, in the words of the White House statement Dec. 8, that "he is still entitled to additional deductions of $93,981."

Political advisers in and around the President's Oval Office are fearful, and for good reason, that taxpayer reaction to any finding that Mr. Nixon is in serious tax arrears could set off another presidential crisis, perhaps rivaling even the Saturday night massacre and the 18-minute buzz mystery.

Hence, their strong advice: even if Mr. Nixon takes his case to tax court, and wins on each and every point, which they believe he would, the political risk of being found in arrears by a prestigious congressional committee is unacceptably high. Instead, anticipate that finding (with discreet help from the committee itself) and pay up in advance, thus diluting the stigma of being found in arrears.

Much soul-searching has been going on inside the White House on this issue, including endless post-mortems on the Dec. 8 revelation of Mr. Nixon's entire financial situation, embracing the release of his actual income tax returns for the questionable four years.

It had been believed, wrongly, by presidential aides that this report would rebut and stifle the tax accusations swirling around the President. In fact, the Dec. 8 statement "just didn't fly the way we thought it would," says one Nixon political aide. White House hard-liners pointed to the Niagara of criticism which descended on the White House after Dec. 8 to support their view that Mr. Nixon should yield nothing, ever, anywhere.

Despite that Niagara of criticism and continuing pleas of hard-liners not to bend to pressure, the White House consensus still believes the Dec. 8 statement was essential. Anything less, senior advisers feel, would have posed even harsher problems for the President.

The same prospect is foreseen inside the White House if Mr. Nixon beats the punch and agrees to pay up for alleged delinquencies from 1969 to 1972. Even though doing so would be a damaging admission or error many taxpayers would regard as outrageous, to wait would be worse. That explains presidential press secretary Ronald Ziegler's curious statement that the President is conducting his own tax investigation.

Even if Mr. Nixon makes restitution in full of the $482,019 charitable deduction covering his pre-presidential papers (which might cost him more than $200,000 in back taxes), prosecution for fraud in alleged postdating of the charitable gift remains possible. The alleged post-dating apparently had only one purpose: to make the gift legal as of July 25, 1969, the repeal deadline for the law permitting deductions for the gift of political papers.

The decision by Mr. Nixon's tax accountants not to pay capital gains tax on the sale of his Fifth Avenue Manhattan apartment in 1969 or the sale of part of the land he bought at San Clemente, both highly profitable transactions, is also reversible by the joint committee. So is the decision not to pay a cent of California state income taxes.

On all these, his total tax debt could exceed $300,000. If he paid in advance, he would look like a man belatedly taking his medicine—but, if he waited, like a man caught with his hand in the cookie jar.

Strength For Today

ONE FOOT DOWN
"One foot up and one foot down."

That's the way to London town.

This old rhyme came out of a bygone era when most people had no way to get about from place to place but to walk. Of course, the wealthy had horses and carriages, but the poor man could get to London only by plodding along the highway, one foot up and one foot down.

Modern transportation has of course made it infinitely easier for even people of modest circumstances to travel long distances, but it is not true that the passing of time has taken all the drudgery out of the pilgrimage of life. In most spheres it is still true that achievement comes as a result of one foot up and the other foot down. Don't get discouraged if the reward of your efforts seems long in coming. There are no jet liners to success. Most of us have to follow the method of the poor man of long ago slowly making his way to London town.

Doctor, Can You Help?

WASHINGTON—"Doctor, my name is Charles Dividend, and I am president of the Windfall Oil Co. of New Jersey."
"Yes, I was expecting you. You told your regular doctor you wanted to see a psychiatrist. Would you care to sit in a chair or lie down on the couch?"
"What seems to be the problem Mr. Dividend?"
"People are saying terrible things about me. Everywhere I go they call me names like profiteer and price gouger and Mr. Ripoff. I can't take it any more, Doctor."
"When did this paranoia start?"
"It's not paranoia! I was up in front of a Senate committee last week and they treated me like a criminal. I'm president of one of the largest oil companies in the world. I personally gave $100,000 to Nixon's campaign. I'm a great American and I think I should be treated with a little respect."

"I see. Would you like a Kleenex?"
"No, thank you. Everyone is mad at me because I wouldn't sell any oil to the U.S. Navy during the Arab embargo. But what would you do, Doctor, if the king of Saudi Arabia said you couldn't give any oil to the United States. After all, he's a king."
"You sound as if you're carrying around a certain amount of guilt, Mr. Dividend."

"I have nothing to be guilty about, Doctor. I've done a damn good job. My company has provided cheap and abundant energy through aggressive competition. We have spawned tremendous economic growth in this country and have made America the greatest country in the Free World."

"Then why do you need a psychiatrist?"
"I can't remember anything."
"Could you be a little more specific?"

"Well, the other day I went up on The Hill to testify before a congressional committee. They asked me how much profit we had made during the energy crisis and I couldn't for the life of me come up with the figure. Then they asked me how much we had paid out to our stockholders and my mind went blank. They also wanted to know how much taxes we had contributed to the United States, and I just stared at them."
"It seems to me, Mr. Dividend, that you appear to have a block about profits."
"I never did in the past, Doctor. Before the energy crisis I could reel off every figure in our annual company report by heart. Now I can't even remember how much oil we're refining in a month."
"Amnesia is not unusual in the oil business, Mr. Dividend."

"That's easy for you to say, Doctor. But how would you like it if 200 million people thought you were cashing in on a crisis, when, in fact, all you're trying to do is get a decent return on your capital?"
"You feel that there are 200 million people in this country talking behind your back?"
"I know it, Doctor. When I walk down the street, people

Cancer Effort Unreal?

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — James Dewey Watson, Nobel Prize-winning biologist, suggests that the massive federal campaign against cancer may be an "unrealistic pipe dream."

"You may ask whether a cause can ever be good enough to generate small worlds of selfless scientists where the common good is the overwhelming consideration and thoughts about priorities receive little attention," Watson said Tuesday night.

"In fact, don't we already have such an example in the recent 'Conquest of Cancer' legislation?"

"It not only provides to cancer research resources unimaginable several years ago, but also tries to specify how dispassionate advisers can oversee its swift running."

Watson, one of those advisers as a member of the National Cancer Board, continued:

"I'm afraid, however, here again we have an unrealistic pipe dream and that in so far as we are dealing with the process of scientific discovery, the sociology of cancer research will not show any striking differences from other branches of science."

Watson, 45, a professor of molecular biology at Harvard, shared the Nobel Prize for medicine and physiology in 1962 with two British biophysicists, Dr. Maurice H. P. Wilkins and Dr. Francis H.C. Crick.

They were honored for their discovery of the molecular structure of deoxyribonucleic acid, popularly called DNA, the substance of heredity.

Watson also wrote a popular layman's version of the discovery of the nature of DNA, "The Double Helix," published in 1968.

He spoke at the Smithsonian Institution in a series of lectures named for Frank Nelson Doubleday and sponsored by the publishing firm.

40 Years Ago Today

More than 75,000 birthday greeting cards descended upon the White House today, honoring the president on his 52nd birthday. Six thousand balls have been planned across the United States as President Roosevelt prepares to celebrate his birthday.

Mr. Roosevelt has planned his own birthday party, which will include his close friends and members of his official staff.

Many sections of the Carolinas had the coldest weather in years today. The coldest report in the two states was from Ceasar's Head, S. C., where there was an official reading of two degrees below zero.

Asheville reported zero mercury early this morning and Wilmington had a reading of ten degrees.

Two men who "shot it out" in settlement of a dispute here yesterday were in the city jail today, one with severe wounds and the other without injuries.

Both were taken to city hall to await court action.

Question Of Loyalties Raised

By JOHN CUNIFF
NEW YORK (AP) — The drive for overseas markets by multinational corporations is forcing upon the world a host of decisions it has avoided for years.

The most basic of these concerns loyalty. To what country or countries does the multinational corporation owe allegiance? To that in which it is headquartered, or those countries in which it operates?

An example of the conflict that can arise was dramatized in recent weeks when the Exxon Corp., considered to be America's largest industrial company in terms of assets, cut oil supplies to American military forces. It did so, it seems, to satisfy the demand of its supplier, Saudi Arabia. Glaring examples such as this are multiplied dozens of times in less dramatic ways.

The fact is that ground rules for doing business are sometimes absent in the multinational arena, leaving the world's industrial nations to operate in each other's markets on a problem-at-a-time basis.

The informality of these enormously valuable relationships was described last November by Thomas A. Murphy, General Motors vice chairman, in an address to the National Foreign Trade Conference.

Explaining the cornerstone of GM's approach to good relations with its host countries, he commented: "We at General Motors will continue to function as a good citizen in each country where we work. Our mission is to serve the people and the markets of every host country profitably by creating value and jobs."

He said that under the "guest philosophy," each subsidiary must adapt policies to the laws and customs and values of its host country.

While it also professed belief in a guest philosophy, International Telephone and Telegraph Co. clearly found it impossible to apply in Chile. Canada has rebelled against dictates from U.S. corporate headquarters. The Indonesians are angry at the Japanese. Congress still debates whether U.S. jobs are "exported" to foreign subsidaries of multinationals. What are the rights of multinationals to close foreign operations and throw local residents out of work? Who should be the boss, a local or a foreign executive? Should raw materials be imported or purchased locally?

The problem has a dozen facets.

The United States doesn't trade with Cuba, but does that mean Latin American branches of the Big Three U.S. automakers shouldn't ship cars there? Whose national policy should they follow — host or headquarters country?

Congress, the European Economic Community, the United Nations and others continue to study the problems.

Dr. Goetz Fehr To Be Speaker

Dr. Goetz Fehr of Bonn, Director of Inter Nations in the government of West Germany, will be in Greenville from February 3-8 as the featured resource person in a series of events sponsored by East Carolina University's European Studies Committee.

DR. GOETZ FEHR

This committee, which is chaired by Dr. Ralph Birchard of the Geography Department, is an interdisciplinary committee, one of four foreign studies committees which operate under the direction of Dean Richard L. Capwell.

Inter Nations, the semi-governmental agency in West Germany which Dr. Fehr directs, is responsible for such cultural exchanges as intercultural exhibitions and the Goethe Institutes.

The theme of the 1974

European Studies Program is to be European Culture Today: Evolution or Revolution? Whereas in the past the annual programs have centered around formal speeches by numerous invited specialists, this year the approach will be innovative in that direct personal contact with Dr. Fehr will be provided in regular classroom situations, where the informal group discussion system will prevail. In addition to meeting with classes in the German, Political Science, History, Anthropology, Art History, Geography, and Music Departments, Dr. Fehr will present film-lectures to four Greenville community groups: the Optimist Club, Clio Book Club, Woman's Club, and American Association of University Women.

The public is invited to attend the class sessions at the university in which Dr. Fehr is scheduled to appear, the Tuesday evening meeting with the Woman's Club of Greenville, and the Wednesday evening meeting with the American Association of University Women.

No Quota At Demo Rally

Governor George C. Wallace of Alabama will speak at a fund raising rally on Saturday, February 16 at Dorton Arena in Raleigh.

The rally, a $10 per ticket affair, will be Gov. Wallace's first public appearance in North Carolina since his presidential preference primary victory here in 1972.

The doors will open at 5:30 p.m. and the program will begin at 7 p.m. The $10 admission price will include music and a box of chicken with trimmings at each seat.

Henry Oglesby, chairman of the Pitt County Democratic Party, said Pitt County has no quota, "but due to the vote Governor Wallace got here, I do feel we should sell at least 100 tickets."

Tickets can be obtained from Carl Darden and Fred Mattox of Greenville, Charles McLawhorn of Winterville, Jack Lewis of Farmville and Henry Oglesby of Grifton.

Program For Handicapped

The Greenville Recreation Department and the North Carolina Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults have come up with an idea of a program for handicapped persons up to the age of 35.

To be called the GROUP, the idea is for persons on crutches or in a wheelchair to get together and decide for themselves activities they would like to take part in.

Among possibilities already suggested are camping, movies, crafts, nights on the town, card games, rap sessions and community projects. In all proposals, members of GROUP will plan their own activities.

The first gathering of people interested in becoming part of GROUP will be held Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Recreation Building on Elm Street. People who plan to attend are asked to call Alice Keene at 758-4635.

In Vino There Is Not Always That Veritas

By LEONARD CURRY
WASHINGTON (UPI) —
When Almaden Vineyards deliberately mislabeled some wine it sells airlines, the federal penalty was a record quarter million dollars.

The California case, however, was considered a miniscandal next to a similar brouhaha over French wine, which came to light four months ago when the French press reported a scheme to pass off 2 million bottles of cheap wine as the highest quality Bordeaux.

The facts in each case have not been easy to come by, but in the California case at least they were possible to acquire.

In France on Oct. 22 Daniel Doustin, prefect of the Bordeaux region, told reporters both "judicial and tax charges" had been filed but the government refuses to reveal against whom.

In the American scandal, Almaden Vineyards of San Francisco was accused by the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) of mislabeling 28,000 gallons of California varietal wines sold from May, 1972, to January, 1973, to domestic airlines for passenger consumption.

Settlement Traditional
ATF accepted a record $250,000 settlement. Settlement is traditional when government agencies find wrongdoing that involves no irreparable damage to the public.

"The money settlement far exceeded any profit Almaden may have made in its sales of the mislabeled wine," said ATF public affairs chief Warren H. McConnell, a teetotaler.

"We have long felt that adverse publicity would be too punitive for the extent of the crime, but more and more we've been thinking that those who step in a mess should clean their own shoes."

McConnell denied that ATF was trying to cover up for Almaden.

"The whole case is a public record. Under the Freedom of Information Act anyone can ask for facts and receive them."

Rumors of Cover-up
Although the Almaden record was public in Washington, it was under wraps in San Francisco as late as Dec. 17 despite rumors and newspaper accounts that a "scandal" was being hushed up.

"Our problem is two-fold," McConnell said. "Since Watergate, the public has become increasingly suspicious of public officials."

"Second, our bureau recently separated from the Internal Revenue Service. We were accustomed to jumping out from behind a rock, grabbing somebody and jumping back behind the rock."

McConnell said TF is trying to learn how to become a public agency after being an arm of the IRS, which by law must keep tax records of individuals and companies secret.

Review of Evidence
A review of the evidence presented and the actions taken by ATF disclosed the following:

—Almaden mislabeled about one-half of 1 per cent of its annual production—specifically, 23,306.6 gallons of Sauvignon Blanc; 1,226.8 gallons of Gamay Beaujolais; 516.4 gallons of Pinot Noir; 692.4 gallons Zinfandel, and 10,266.6 gallons of Cabernet Sauvignon.

—Of the wine mislabeled between May, 1972, and January, 1973, about 28,058 gallons were consumed by airline passengers. Another 8,000 gallons were bought back by Almaden.

—The mislabeling was discovered by an ATF inspector making a routine check of the Almaden plants at Los Gatos and San Jose, Calif. The mislabeling ended shortly after the discovery, and six months later formal charges were placed. A compromise settlement of $250,000 was reached by Aug. 14, various papers signed and the conclusions announced in September.

—The only public damage may have been to the reputation of a wine connoisseur, who admired a dry red zinfandel that may have been a medium red cabernet.

No Tax Loss

—The only loss to the federal government would have been in the form of tax revenues. But the mislabeled wines, if correctly labeled, would have been taxed at the same rate.

—The mislabeling was "flagrant in that responsible officials were aware of the situation," according to the government report. Almaden since has replaced its production manager, said a spokesman for its parent corporation, National Distillers Inc.

—The settlement was made because Almaden had been formally reprimanded for a similar alleged offense in 1968. There have been about 10 such cases involving other wine companies over the same period.

—The mislabeled wine was sold at about "break-even prices" under contract to airlines. The company's primary benefit was "public relations." The mislabeled wine was in "screw-top" bottles as opposed to corked and therefore had a short life span. None was distributed to the general public for sale.

—The mislabeled wine was "varietal", which means a combination of different grapes. The main grape, however, must comprise at least 51 per cent of the total. In the mislabeling, the total apparently ranged from 40 to 49 per cent.

"No Inferior"

AFT regional director John Krogman said recently in San Francisco that the mislabeled Almaden wine was "not inferior" quality.

"It simply was not the wine of the label on the small, screw-on top bottles the airlines use," he said, adding his statement was to "set the record straight, to eliminate rumors and to be fair to both the company and the consumer."

Official secrecy surrounds the French case, but press reports said the cheap wine was from either regions near Bordeaux or from Spain.

They said it was discovered stored in Bordeaux ready to be sold as expensive Bordeaux "appellation controlee" (controlled label)—that is, wine from a specified vineyard, unadulterated and taste-tested.

Who Is Charged?

Bordeaux vintners were quick to say the wine in question represented only 0.5 per cent of the total yearly local production and to point out that French regulations were effective because the wine was found before it hit the market.

But a Paris newspaper wrote: "Who is charged in this vast fraud affair? Are there even charges as the prefect announced?"

"One thing is sure—it isn't the night watchman at the wine cellar or the chauffeur or a lamplighter. Otherwise, they would rush to announce it."

Argentina Has Uranium Ore

MENDOZA, Argentina (UPI) — The Sierra Pintada uranium deposits in this western Argentina province will produce between 1,000 and 2,000 tons of crude ore daily when production starts in the near future.

The announcement was made by members of the National Atomic Energy Commission. They said the Sierra Pintada mines should produce 400 tons of concentrated uranium annually, worth $10 million.

Sears Tower Is 110-Story Giant

By GEORGETTE WAGNER
CHICAGO (UPI)—Chicago's Sears Tower juts up 110 stories as the world's tallest building. It has been called the first of the super buildings and the last of the technological dinosaurs, too large to survive.

Fazlur Khan, whose engineering concepts made possible the nearly complete Sears building, predicts 100-story buildings will become commonplace and forecasts a 150-story structure within a decade.

Architect Ben Weese disagrees. The Sears Tower is a relic of the past and the restoration of older buildings the way of the future, said Weese, who has rehabilitated several Chicago landmark buildings.

"We can't become rural again," argues Khan, a partner at Skidmore, Owings and Merrill. A burgeoning population, soaring land costs and industry's need for cities in the first place will make larger buildings inevitable.

Builders Misinformed
Furthermore, Khan looks to the super building as an answer to an assortment of urban ills. He would like to see very tall, slender structures surrounded by four blocks of parks, arcades, plazas and recreation areas. The lone building on this megablock would house four-blocks worth of offices, apartments, stores and theaters.

Khan said the megablock will "free the land for more human activities," bathe the city in sunlight, break up the "American urban canyons of concrete and steel" and put back life into decaying cities.

"In the middle of winter you're air conditioning (Chicago's) IBM building," Weese said. Utilities told builders "power was cheap and didn't tell them there would be an energy crisis."

He said older buildings use energy more efficiently. That efficiency coupled with their superior construction, an ample supply of office space and booming construction costs makes restoration more attractive than new construction.

Can Divert Savings
"There's not much construction. No one in the field likes to talk about that," Weese said.

Architect Bertrand Goldberg believes the Sears building won't be duplicated much, not because of its height, but "it is so monolithic in purpose that it intensely aggravates all our urban problems."

Office buildings demand high levels of service—transportation, police protection and sewage—but utilize these services only part of the day.

"It isn't Sears that pays these bills, it is us," he said. A multi-functional building that combines offices, apartments, stores and is in use 24 hours cuts down costs. The savings can be diverted "into the kinds of things people feel the city has failed to provide them—education, security, recreation."

Goldberg, who designed the Marina City Complex in Chicago with its two circular towers, said tall structures that are cut up into boxes destroy neighborhoods, keep people from congregating and produce a sense of isolation and alienation.

New Forms Forseen
"For the first time we can build within reasonable economics whatever (shape) we want. The kinds of places which make it possible for people to cluster in a city, or what we used to call neighborhoods."

Goldberg foresees buildings taking on completely new shapes and geometrical forms.

Architect Mike Gelick views cities on a cross section. Current urban centers are too dense and too high in one area and decaying in another.

If building heights were kept lower—to 20 or 30 stories high—development would spread over a wider band of the city and upgrade the quality of the entire urban center, he said.

"People interact and relate in horizontal levels," Gelick said. Urban blocks must be multi-functional, but the functions coordinated.

Redistricting Bill Is Introduced

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina legislators have introduced bills to redistrict the state legislature, increase the size of the state Paroles Board, earmark funds from inventory taxes and prevent involuntary sterilization of mental defectives.

The redistricting bill was in the form of an amendment to the state constitution. If passed by the legislature it would need approval from the voters in a general election. The bill would raise the membership of the state Senate from 50 to 60; the House would remain with 120 members. It would order the legislature to create 60 Senate districts and 120 House districts of equal size, each of which would have one senator or representative.

Currently, there is no uniform size for districts and the number of legislators elected from a district ranges from one to eight. The bill is sponsored by Sen. A.B. Coleman, D-Orange, who said it would make legislators more accountable to their constituents and would help promote a diversified membership. The Paroles Board would be increased from three to five members under a bill sponsored by Rep. Lawrence Davis, D-Forsyth. Members would serve staggered five-year terms "to prevent any governor from controlling the board," Davis said. He said the new positions were needed to help handle the board's growing caseload. Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, introduced the bill to earmark inventory tax revenues for the public schools. Hyde was an opponent of the bill to phase out the inventory tax which passed the House last week. Hyde said his bill would be inoperative if the inventory tax measure were killed in the Senate.

Rep. Joy Johnson, D-Robeson, said his bill would prohibit the sterilization of mental defectives without their consent or that of their parents or guardians in the case of minor children. Johnson, one of the three black members of the legislature, said the bill was designed to prevent cases such as those which have recently come to light in which women said they were not told they were being sterilized before they submitted to the operation.

Plan Party For Singles

The Greenville Singles Club will have a get-acquainted party Saturday, Feb. 9, at 8 p.m., and any unmarried person over 21 years old is invited to attend.

The president, Ed Sturgeon, said the newly organized club has 65 members, ranging in age from 21 to 50. He said it is hoped that the membership will be 400 by the end of the first six months.

The group will have one business meeting and two social functions per month, and may also have a game night once a month, so there will be weekly gatherings. Dues are $10 a year. A western-style costume barbecue is planned for Feb. 23, with the place and hour to be announced later, he said. Also several weekend bus trips and perhaps some discount charter flights are in the making, he said.

Officers besides Sturgeon are Marty Bunn, vice president; Ruth Ann Haseley, treasurer; and Elaine Harbin, secretary. Hugh Stokes is chairman of the rules committee, currently drawing up a constitution and by-laws, and Diane Finnegan is heading the entertainment committee. Three or four more committees will be appointed soon, the president said.

For more information, one should write Greenville Singles Club, Box 872, Greenville, N. C. 27834.

Re-Elected To Two-Year Term

Dr. Leo W. Jenkins, Chancellor of East Carolina University, has been re-elected to a new two year term on the executive committee of the National Commission on Accrediting.

The ECU Chancellor is serving his fourth year on the National Commission as representative of the American Association of State-supported Colleges and Universities. The National Commission on Accrediting is the largest and most prestigious education accrediting body in the United States. It held its annual business meeting in Washington over the past weekend.

McGee Named Assistant Dean

James A. McGee, a staff member of the East Carolina University Division of Continuing Education since 1964, has been promoted to Assistant Dean for Undergraduate Continuing Education.

Announcing McGee's promotion, Dean David J. Middleton said McGee will continue to direct ECU's Sea Grant Marine Advisory Service for commercial fishermen in addition to his duties as assistant dean.

McGee's new duties will involve various off-campus programs which enable adults to enroll in evening courses for college credit as well as the campus evening program now offered through ECU's University College, Dr. Middleton said.

ECU sponsors evening programs at two military bases and at four eastern N.C. technical institutes.

Better Chickens Are Marketed

COLLEGE STATION, Tex. (UPI)—Consumers are getting better chickens in the market now than they did a few years back, a Texas home economist contends.

Gwendolyn Clytt of the Texas A&M University extension service says fryers marketed today are younger, more tender and meatier for their weight than were birds several years ago.

Amtrak Getting Business Faster Than Expected

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer
Amtrak, the nation's government-backed rail passenger corporation, has sloganeered, advertised, bought locomotives, refurbished cars, lobbied on Capitol Hill and negotiated with money-starved railroads for three years now, trying to put the romance back in rail travel.

Now the energy crisis is bringing Amtrak the business it pleaded for — but faster than anyone expected, and sometimes in crisis proportions.

The result: Some officials predict travelers switching from autos and planes will find the going tough.

Amtrak officials point to improvement programs, but the biggest changes are from 1 1/2 to 5 years away. And the biggest problems have been when people most want to travel — on holiday weekends and in vacation peaks.

The hard fact is that Amtrak is accustomed to handling about one per cent of the nation's intercity passenger traffic. Most of those travelers — 87 per cent — go by auto, 10 per cent use airplanes, and 3 per cent ride buses. Even a one per cent shift of auto traffic would double Amtrak's ridership.

A semipublic corporation backed with government funds, Amtrak took over running all but a handful of America's intercity passenger trains in May, 1971. The railroads had long since lost interest, standing by while passenger travel fell from 98 billion passenger miles in 1944 to 9 billion, including commutation, in 1971.

The aim in creating Amtrak was to trim the rail passenger system to one serving about 20 major American cities as well as intermediate points, on 23,000 miles of track, and to slowly rejuvenate it with new equipment and amenities in which private railroads wouldn't invest.

Growth — if any — was expected to be slow, perhaps 12- to 15 per cent a year.

But in the first three months of the energy crisis, it hasn't been slow. It's mushroomed, with the advent of gasless Sundays, 50 mile an hour highway speed limits, and curtailed air schedules.

"The last time I rode back by car it took all day, driving at 50," said Jack Yellin at Washington's Union Station after returning to college by train from New Brunswick, N.J. "I'm not looking for rides at school any more. The extra time just isn't worth it."

Amtrak officials say they can't tell how many habits have changed for good, but Yellin had a lot of company in the preholiday days when the energy crisis first hit.

Revenues in November, including price changes, were up 50 per cent over November 1972. Overall ridership in December was up 18 per cent over December 1972. And advance bookings were coming in at a rate almost 2 1/2 times that of July and August.

To cope in November, Amtrak said, it was able to run 25 per cent more cars on the same 210 daily trains over roughly the same 23,000 miles of track as the year before.

The New York-Washington run, easily the busiest with 50 of Amtrak's 210 daily trains, carried 9,125 passengers a day through Philadelphia in week of Dec. 17 — up 29 per cent over the same preholiday week in 1972.

New York-Boston traffic, measured at New Haven, Conn., was up 65 per cent. In Chicago 529 passengers a day, up 73 per cent, were on Chicago-Detroit trains. And in Richmond, Va., a dramatic 81 per cent increase was recorded on New York-Florida trains, hauling 2,630 passengers a day.

The strain showed, especially on Amtrak's efforts to add glamor and convenience.

Tombstone For Johnny Ringo

TOMBSTONE, Ariz. (AP) — Nearly a century after his death in the mountains east of here, the unmarked grave of gunfighter Johnny Ringo was adorned with a six-foot marker.

Ringo was one of the most feared gunfighters in the 1880 boom days here. His body, with a bullet hole in the right temple, was found propped against an oak tree on July 13, 1882.

Historical records indicated a coroner's jury ruled the death suicide, but 10 years later another gunman boasted of killing him.

The monument was built in late 1973 by Arizona highway employees and other area residents who became interested in the gunfighter's life.

VETS BUY LAND
AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—More than 43,000 armed forces veterans have purchased 3,359,367 acres of land in Texas since 1949 when the state set up a special program to help former servicemen.

In New York's Penn Station on the Saturday before Christmas, hundreds shoved each other toward the "Statesman" to Boston — a motley collection of three antiquated Penn Central cars, two newer cars whose lights didn't work, a refurbished Amtrak car whose door needed repair, and two more refurbished cars in better condition.

On another Boston-Washington that weekend, dozens of passengers rode south on lounge seats in lavatory compartments, on suitcases parked in aisles, and standing on unheated platforms between cars.

"Any mode — airlines, trains, buses — never has enough equipment to run on holiday periods," an Amtrak spokesman explained.

"It's been like this ever since the energy crisis began," the "Statesman's" snack bar attendant said.

"We thought Amtrak could handle a gradual increase of business, but now because of the fuel crisis, the increase is unnatural and Amtrak won't be able to handle it," says Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., a strong rail backer.

"We are going to have a lot of dislocation in the next few years," Adams says. "A guy isn't going to be able to get where he wants to get when he wants to get there."

Amtrak, which lost an estimated $275 million in its first two fiscal years, has been running at 45 per cent of load capacity on an average. Spokesmen say it could, in theory, double ridership with present equipment. But since November, usage has been heaviest on already heavily travelled lines at times of heaviest demand.

So to get people where they wanted to go when they wanted to get there, Amtrak had to again fall back in the preholiday crush on borrowing commuter cars and other creaking equipment from railroads. That was despite speed-up of a program under which Amtrak refurbishes its own cars — the best 1,900 that the railroads had to offer in 1971.

Amtrak has already spent some $51.5 million refurbishing cars, and plans have been made to acquire new equipment, upgrade roadbeds, and improve service. But the first of 57 new cars won't be on line for 15 months, the next batch of 100-200 for three or four years. Some major track renovation will take five years or more.

So as a first order of business in the energy crisis, says Amtrak spokesman Edwin Edell, a task force is taking a second look at cars previously rejected with the aim of finding 200 or 250 to supplement the current fleet.

Right now, 1,067 Amtrak cars have undergone renovation, and about 400 more are to be improved by summer. Excluding Metroliners serving New Haven-Washington and turborails between Chicago-St. Louis and Boston-New York, all but 200 of the cars date to the early 1950s or before.

Amtrak says real improvement in its locomotive fleet will show by this summer, when the current fleet of 300 locomotives will make way for 150 new 100-mile-an-hour diesels, 26 new electric locomotives, and 40 old engines now being rebuilt.

Amtrak spokesmen are quick to blame dilapidated road conditions, not the strain of the energy crisis, as a basic reason for worsening on-time records. The 1,144 long-distance trains Amtrak ran in November were on time only 40 per cent of the time, down from 50 per cent in November, 1972. On shorter-distance "corridor" runs — primarily in the East — 3,512 trains were on time 71.5 per cent of the time in November. The previous November, the figure was 80.8 per cent.

Today, Edell explains, Amtrak has authority to insist only that railroads maintain roadbeds at the sometimes painfully slow standards of May, 1971, when the rail passenger corporation took over running all but eight of the nation's intercity passenger trains.

The current restructuring of seven bankrupt Eastern railroads into one government-aided freight system gives Amtrak hope new standards can be achieved on some of the worst track, or that Amtrak can acquire the track and improve it itself. But John Ingram, head of the Federal Railroad Administration, says Amtrak and the new freight system, which doesn't need fast track, may not decide who owns the roadbed in the crucial Eastern corridor for a year and a half.

Such disagreement could effectively delay extension to Boston of Amtrak's crack high-speed service, now serving the heavily-travelled Washington-New York corridor with Metroliners. The first 57 new Amtrak cars will be coaches to extend that service northward, and delivery starts in mid-1975.

But true high-speed service must wait until the roadbed between New Haven and Boston is electrified and the entire corridor to Washington is upgraded to 125 mile-an-hour standards, a five-year program that starts when ownership is resolved. Until then, the new cars mean more equipment and comfort — at only slightly faster diesel speeds.

COMMISSIONING—The USS Tunny, the Navy's newest and most modern nuclear powered submarine, joined the Navy Fleet in commissioning ceremonies Saturday at the Ingalls Shipbuilding division of Litton Industries. Jim Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reynolds, of Ayden, is among the Tunny's crew of 12 officers and 98 enlisted men.

Fewer Cattle Reached Public

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farmers sold 2.1 million fewer cattle to slaughter plants last year, a major factor for a 28 per cent boost in the cost of hamburger at supermarkets. Over-all, says the Agriculture Department, production of red meat — including beef, pork, veal, lamb and mutton — was 6 per cent lower last year. And the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which keeps track of hamburger and other food prices, says consumers wound up in December paying slightly more than $1 per pound for hamburger. A year ago, in January 1973, it averaged 78.2 cents.

Cattle sold for beef were tabulated Tuesday in a report by USDA on 1973 livestock slaughter. They totaled about 33.6 million head, down from 35.7 million in 1972. As a result, the report showed, beef output declined 5 per cent. Veal, from young beef animals, plummeted 24 per cent; pork was down 7 per cent; and lamb and mutton was down 5 per cent. Experts say there is little chance of hamburger and other beef cuts declining in retail price soon. The December all-cut price of beef was down slightly from November and the peaks of last August, but so were live cattle prices.

Since then, however, live cattle prices have jumped sharply to a recent peak in early January of about $51. This week they were still averaging around $48 per one hundred pounds.

Agriculture Department forecasters say more cattle will be heading to market later on and that prices of live animals will dip by June.

But middleman costs for processing and merchandising also have risen. Thus, for hamburger watchers, the $1 per pound last month may have been the best bargain for this winter.

Womack To Head Heart Fund Effort

DAVID WOMACK

David Womack has been appointed to serve as Business Day chairman for the 1974 Heart Fund campaign. "Business Day for Heart," to be held Feb. 5, will give the business community of Greenville the opportunity to make its contribution to the fight against heart and blood vessel diseases.

Womack, a Danville, Va., native, is manager of Womack Electronics. He is a member of Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church, the Rotary Club, and the Greenville Jaycees, which he serves on the Board of Directors. He and his wife, Sydney, have a young son.

"Business and industry in the U.S. will lose about 52 million man-days of production in 1974, as a result of heart and blood diseases," he said. "The problem is especially significant for men between 45 and 64. This age group comprises business' most valuable personnel. The loss of their skill, plus the training of replacements, are factors no businessman can afford to overlook."

He said 82 volunteer workers in Greenville will solicit contributions from the business community in behalf of the Heart Association Feb. 5.

Shutdowns By Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — The Chrysler Corp. says it will lay off about 9,500 workers when it closes a Detroit plant for four weeks and an Illinois factory for two weeks.

The layoffs are to balance inventories of standard-size cars. The auto maker said Tuesday that 4,470 hourly workers would be laid off in Belvidere, Ill., and 4,800 would be idled in Detroit. All will be back on the job after the shutdowns, the company said.

Chryslers and Imperials are made in the Detroit plant. The Belvidere facility builds Plymouth Furies, Dodge Monacos and Chryslers.

Chrysler's production estimate for the first quarter of 1974 is 332,000 cars, down 20 per cent from the 418,154 autos made in the first three months of 1973.

Slow sales in the final months of 1973 led to the decision, a Chrysler spokesman said.

Chrysler had previously announced that it had laid off 12,400 hourly workers for an indefinite period of time.

NORFOLK CRUSADE
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham is tentatively scheduled to hold one of his religious crusades here in either late October or early November.

More Limiting Gasoline Sales

WASHINGTON (AP) — A few more stations were out of gas or limiting sales this week than last, but generally the gasoline availability situation was stable this week, the American Automobile Association reports.

After checking 5,994 stations in every state except Alaska, the AAA reported that 22 per cent were limiting sales, up from 19 per cent last week, and 5 per cent were out of gas, compared with 3 per cent.

North Carolina hens: Market conditions unchanged. Supplies of heavy type limited and demand good. Too few sales reported to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market remained sharply higher but drifting today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was up 7.69 to 860.01. An hour earlier the Dow was up a little over 9.

Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange by about 8 to 3.

Analysts said the market was responding to rumors that the Saudi Arabians soon might ease their oil embargo.

"Fourth-quarter earnings continue to exceed the most sanguine estimates," said Robert Stovall, analyst with Reynolds Securities, in citing another factor for the market rise.

Also, hopes that President Nixon would have something positive to say in his State of the Union message tonight were also spurring the market, brokers said.

On the NYSE, American Standard was up 3/4 to 12 1/2 after a 485,800-share block traded at 12 1/2, up 1/8.

Reports Heard At Board Meet

GRIFTON—Various reports were heard at the January meeting of the Griffon Resources Improvement Program Thursday night.

R. T. Griffin, GRIP vice president, reported that a survey of the streets had been completed and the signs will be ordered within a few days.

Mrs. Catherine Condon reported the poles for the signs have arrived and will be installed on the street corners by the town maintenance crew.

The signs are being paid for by town funds and money received from the State Fair booth which won second place.

The annual spring clean-up campaign will be held March 16, 23, and 30. Hours will be from 9 a.m. until noon each Saturday.

Volunteers for the campaign will be needed, in addition to cardboard cartons, large grocery bags, and heavy-duty plastic bags.

According to the Journal, the oil for the unnamed American firm would be made available for delivery to a European port and subsequent transshipment to this country by Petromin, the government oil company of Saudi Arabia.

The Journal reported that some officials of large U.S.-based firms operating in Saudi Arabia said they had not been advised of any changes in the embargo or other restrictions placed on production of the Western-owned Arabian American Oil Co.

The newspaper said there were reports circulating in the oil industry that some production restrictions already have been eased in some Arab countries such as Kuwait.

The Journal quoted one major U.S. buyer of overseas oil as saying: "Tremendous quantities of oil suddenly have come into the market place — oil we didn't even know existed 10 days ago."

Bethel Man Chosen For Short Course

TO ATTEND COURSE. Stephen Batchelor receives a scholarship check from Dr. Joe Pou as county representative to the Short Course in Modern Farming at N. C. State. Watching the presentation is Pitt Extension Chairman Ed Yancey (R). (Reflector Staff Photo)

A 22-year-old Rt. 1, Bethel man has been selected by county agricultural leaders to attend the 22nd annual Short Course in Modern Farming scheduled for Feb. 4-15 at North Carolina State University.

Pitt Extension Chairman Ed Yancey, who served as chairman of the county selection committee, and County Key Banker Dr. Joe Pou, vice president of Wachovia Bank & Trust Co. N.C., announced that Billie Stephen Batchelor will be the area representative under the sponsorship of the bankers from Pitt County.

Batchelor received a scholarship check in the amount of $150 from the county bankers to attend the two-week session sponsored by the N.C. Bankers Association and N.C. State. The annual session is conducted by the School of Agriculture and Life Sciences at the university.

The young farmer attended East Carolina University for a year following graduation from high school and also attended Pitt Technical Institute here.

Batchelor is engaged full time in farming in the Bethel area with corn (100 acres) and tobacco (25 acres) as his major agricultural commodity interests. He also plants some 16 acres of peanuts, it was noted, and has cotton, cucumber and soybean acreage.

The course is funded each year by the N.C. Bankers Association and participating county bankers in turn sponsor one or two young men for the training session.

Scholarships have been provided by the bankers of the state for young North Carolina farmers since the course was initiated in 1953.

During the Short Course, Batchelor and the other men attending will learn to recognize and evaluate modern farming technology. The program covers broad areas of interest to agricultural leaders as well as specific commodity information.

San Francisco Hunting Killers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Police pressed a massive manhunt called "Operation Zebra" through a tense and quiet city, looking for at least two gunmen believed responsible for 10 random slayings in the past two months.

The latest wave of killings came Monday night, when five persons were shot in a two-hour period on city streets. All but one died and doctors say the lone survivor may be paralyzed.

"Sure, people are afraid," Police Lt. William O'Connor said Tuesday. "If the murders had a motive — rape or robbery — it wouldn't be so frightening. This is terrible. There's a lot of hate involved in these cowardly acts of going up to an isolated person and shooting him."

Police said they had no suspects and only slim leads. They said they were working on descriptions supplied by witnesses which indicate that at least two young black men who alternated roles of gunman and driver were involved.

In each slaying, now and last December, the victim was white and was walking along a street.

The only survivor of Monday night's shootings was Roxanne McMillan, 23. She was reported in stable but critical condition after surgery to repair damage caused by a bullet lodged behind her heart and another which went through her liver and lung.

"It's possible that she might be paralyzed," said Dr. F.W. Blaisdell, chief of surgery at San Francisco General Hospital.

Mrs. McMillan was shot as she helped her husband move into a new home. Shades were drawn in the neighborhood Tuesday and some children were kept home from school.

Chief of Inspectors Charles Barca said the slayings were "similar to a spurt of shootings last month in which six persons were killed and two were wounded."

He said "the largest manhunt in the city's history" had been launched to search for the killers. The hunt was dubbed "Operation Zebra" because the code letter "Z," which will be used in police radio broadcasts on the case, is the least busy frequency.

Died Of Injuries

A 55-year-old Greenville woman died in Pitt Memorial Hospital about 4 a.m. of injuries she received when the car in which she was a passenger overturned about a mile West of Greenville on N.C. 24, three hours earlier.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey said Katie Lee Williams of 910 Legion St. died of severe head injuries she received in the mishap.

Highway Patrolman J. W. Brooks said the car in which Mrs. Williams was riding was driven by Barbara Jean Williams, 31, of 400A Howell St.

Mrs. Williams and her husband, Sylvester Williams, 32, reportedly received minor injuries in the accident. Two other passengers in the car were not injured.

Trooper Brooks said the car ran off the roadway, went out of control, and overturned.

The fatal crash occurred about 12:45 a.m.

Investigation of the collision is continuing.

It also asks for the number of department employees "trained in monitoring, wiretapping, eavesdropping, any other interception activity" from Jan. 1, 1965, to Dec. 31, 1973, and the number actually engaged in eavesdropping activities at given points during that period.

The subcommittee also wants to know how much the department spent on eavesdropping equipment during those fiscal years, how much equipment is in stock and who controls it.

The FBI and the department periodically disclose the number of wiretaps in operation.

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP)—Cheering thousands greeted Queen Elizabeth II today when she arrived to attend some of the events at the Commonwealth Games.

Demand Reams Of Secret Data

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate committee is demanding reams of secret information on Justice Department eavesdropping practices for the past six years.

The Senate permanent investigations subcommittee is seeking details far more extensive than the department has ever made public about the wiretapping and bugging operations of the FBI.

The request has set off departmental debate over what information should be disclosed, what should be withheld and what should be provided only on the condition that the committee keep it secret.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-

Wash., sent an 11-page questionnaire Jan. 8 to scores of government agencies with investigative functions. But the Justice Department is one of the chief targets.

Jackson said at the time "we must start by identifying, isolating and eliminating all unwarranted surveillance activities by the government itself. The civil liberties of all our citizens are at stake."

The committee and the department have not disclosed the content of the questionnaire, but a copy was obtained by The Associated Press.

The 11-page document asks for the names of all targets of wiretapping, bugging or other eavesdropping from Jan. 1, 1968, to the present. It asks for the dates of all attempted and actual eavesdropping and for the names, addresses and vocations of all persons whose conversations were overheard.

The subcommittee demands "the precise legal authority warranting such activity" in each case and also asks if the eavesdropping was conducted for criminal law enforcement, national security or other specific purposes.

The questionnaire asks who authorized each eavesdropping incident and what legal authority he had.

See Hint Of EmbargoEnd

NEW YORK (AP)—The Wall Street Journal says there are initial indications of a break in the Arab oil embargo.

The newspaper said in a story in today's editions it learned that at least one United States oil company has been told it can expect a cargo of Saudi Arabian oil by late February.

According to the Journal, the oil for the unnamed American firm would be made available for delivery to a European port and subsequent transshipment to this country by Petromin, the government oil company of Saudi Arabia.

The Journal reported that some officials of large U.S.-based firms operating in Saudi Arabia said they had not been advised of any changes in the embargo or other restrictions placed on production of the Western-owned Arabian American Oil Co.

The newspaper said there were reports circulating in the oil industry that some production restrictions already have been eased in some Arab countries such as Kuwait.

The Journal quoted one major U.S. buyer of overseas oil as saying: "Tremendous quantities of oil suddenly have come into the market place — oil we didn't even know existed 10 days ago."

Egg Producers Seek Damages

OXFORD, N. C. (AP)—A $61.5 million suit has been filed against five companies by 53 egg producers seeking damages for chemical contamination of their flocks two years ago.

The producers alleged that the chemical polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) was introduced into their flocks through negligence.

Names as defendants were the Central Carolina Farmers Cooperative Association, Monsanto Co. of Wilmington, Del., Wilbur Ellis Co., East Coast Terminals Inc. and South Pacific Protein Association Inc.

The suit alleged that egg producers had to destroy thousands of eggs and kill off layers after fish meal containing the PCB was mixed in with chicken feed.

North Carolina hens: Market conditions unchanged. Supplies of heavy type limited and demand good. Too few sales reported to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market remained sharply higher but drifting today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was up 7.69 to 860.01. An hour earlier the Dow was up a little over 9.

Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange by about 8 to 3.

Analysts said the market was responding to rumors that the Saudi Arabians soon might ease their oil embargo.

"Fourth-quarter earnings continue to exceed the most sanguine estimates," said Robert Stovall, analyst with Reynolds Securities, in citing another factor for the market rise.

Also, hopes that President Nixon would have something positive to say in his State of the Union message tonight were also spurring the market, brokers said.

On the NYSE, American Standard was up 3/8 to 12 1/2 after a 485,800-share block traded at 12 1/2, up 1/8.

GRIFTON—Various reports were heard at the January meeting of the Griffon Resources Improvement Program Thursday night.

R. T. Griffin, GRIP vice president, reported that a survey of the streets had been completed and the signs will be ordered within a few days.

Mrs. Catherine Condon reported the poles for the signs have arrived and will be installed on the street corners by the town maintenance crew.

The signs are being paid for by town funds and money received from the State Fair booth which won second place.

The annual spring clean-up campaign will be held March 16, 23, and 30. Hours will be from 9 a.m. until noon each Saturday. Volunteers for the campaign will be needed, in addition to cardboard cartons, large grocery bags, and heavy-duty plastic bags.

The Journal reported that some officials of large U.S.-based firms operating in Saudi Arabia said they had not been advised of any changes in the embargo or other restrictions placed on production of the Western-owned Arabian American Oil Co.

The newspaper said there were reports circulating in the oil industry that some production restrictions already have been eased in some Arab countries such as Kuwait.

The Journal quoted one major U.S. buyer of overseas oil as saying: "Tremendous quantities of oil suddenly have come into the market place — oil we didn't even know existed 10 days ago."

San Francisco Hunting Killers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Police pressed a massive manhunt called "Operation Zebra" through a tense and quiet city, looking for at least two gunmen believed responsible for 10 random slayings in the past two months.

The latest wave of killings came Monday night, when five persons were shot in a two-hour period on city streets. All but one died and doctors say the lone survivor may be paralyzed.

"Sure, people are afraid," Police Lt. William O'Connor said Tuesday. "If the murders had a motive — rape or robbery — it wouldn't be so frightening. This is terrible. There's a lot of hate involved in these cowardly acts of going up to an isolated person and shooting him."

Police said they had no suspects and only slim leads. They said they were working on descriptions supplied by witnesses which indicate that at least two young black men who alternated roles of gunman and driver were involved.

In each slaying, now and last December, the victim was white and was walking along a street. The only survivor of Monday night's shootings was Roxanne McMillan, 23. She was reported

Demand Reams Of Secret Data

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate committee is demanding reams of secret information on government agencies with investigative functions. But the Justice Department is one of the chief targets.

The Senate permanent investigations subcommittee is seeking details far more extensive than the department has ever made public about the wiretapping and bugging operations of the FBI.

The request has set off departmental debate over what information should be disclosed, what should be withheld and what should be provided only on the condition that the committee keep it secret.

The subcommittee, headed by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-

It also asks for the number of department employees "trained in monitoring, wiretapping, eavesdropping, any other interception activity" from Jan. 1, 1965, to Dec. 31, 1973, and the number actually engaged in eavesdropping activities at given points during that period.

The subcommittee also wants to know how much the department spent on eavesdropping equipment during those fiscal years, how much equipment is in stock and who controls it.

The FBI and the department periodically disclose the number of wiretaps in operation.

See Hint Of EmbargoEnd

NEW YORK (AP)—The Wall Street Journal says there are initial indications of a break in the Arab oil embargo.

The newspaper said in a story in today's editions it learned that at least one United States oil company has been told it can expect a cargo of Saudi Arabian oil by late February.

According to the Journal, the oil for the unnamed American firm would be made available for delivery to a European port and subsequent transshipment to this country by Petromin, the government oil company of Saudi Arabia.

The Journal reported that some officials of large U.S.-based firms operating in Saudi Arabia said they had not been advised of any changes in the embargo or other restrictions placed on production of the Western-owned Arabian American Oil Co.

The newspaper said there were reports circulating in the oil industry that some production restrictions already have been eased in some Arab countries such as Kuwait.

Egg Producers Seek Damages

OXFORD, N. C. (AP)—A $61.5 million suit has been filed against five companies by 53 egg producers seeking damages for chemical contamination of their flocks two years ago.

The producers alleged that the chemical polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) was introduced into their flocks through negligence.

Names as defendants were the Central Carolina Farmers Cooperative Association, Monsanto Co. of Wilmington, Del., Wilbur Ellis Co., East Coast Terminals Inc. and South Pacific Protein Association Inc.

The suit alleged that egg producers had to destroy thousands of eggs and kill off layers after fish meal containing the PCB was mixed in with chicken feed.

Bucs Hosting Sixth-Ranked Monarchs

East Carolina University has the tough job of playing the number six ranked small college team in the country tonight—without the services of its top scorer and rebounder.

Nicky White, who strained his knee midway through the second half of Monday night's game with Furman, has been definitely declared out of action for tonight's game with the Old Dominion Monarchs, and there is a definite possibility that he won't be able to play on Saturday afternoon when the Pirates pay a return visit to Furman's Paladins.

The Pirates, who were right in the thick of the game when White got hurt, also were stuck with what many felt was a bad call on the part of the officials, in allowing a basket after a foul. That ran the Paladins from a one to a four-point lead, and while the Pirates fretted over the turn of events, Furman built up a 12-point lead that the Bucs were not able to overcome.

The loss dropped the Bucs to a 5-3 record on the year within the league, and snapped a five-game winning streak by the Pirates. It was also their first loss in Minges Coliseum for the year, and set up the possibility of a two-game loss streak at home—something quite rare.

Without White, who was averaging 14.5 points per game, and 9.5 rebounds per contest, the Pirates will probably turn to freshmen center Larry Hunt, who came on in relief of White Monday and turned in a fine performance.

Hunt, playing about 10 minutes a game, is averaging 2.5 rebounds and 2.9 points a contest. That would extend to 10 rebounds and nearly 12 points per contest were he playing full time.

Hunt also is one of the top field goal shooters on the team, hitting close to 65 per cent of his shots.

But the loss of White's experience and leadership cannot be overcome, and this will bother the Pirates. Coupled with this a nagging knee injury to Tom Marsh, it cuts the Pirate depth to a desperate point should someone get into foul trouble.

Marsh, who sat out most of last year with his knee injury, has worn a brace so far this year, but has been noticeably limping late in the game the past two outings.

Old Dominion presents four scorers in double figures for the Pirates to worry about. They are 12-4 on the season, their latest win coming over Marion College.

Joel Copeland, a 6-7 forward, leads their scoring with a 26.1 point per game average. He's also averaging 12.4 rebounds.

Greg Eubank, a 6-4 guard, is averaging 12.0 points per game, while his running mate, Oliver Purnell, 6-1, has a 12.8 average. Purnell also had 109 assists so far this year.

Tom Street, a 6-6 forward rounds out those in double figures with an 11.6 average, and he's pulling down 10.5 rebounds a game.

Then, 6-10 center Jay Roundtree has an 11.4 average in rebounding, too.

The Monarchs are outrebounding their opponents, 48.7 per game to 39.9, and they are outscoring their foes, 88.7 to 76.3 per game.

Tipoff is set for 8 p.m., with a junior varsity preliminary between the two schools set for 5:45 p.m.

Northeastern Nips Rampants, 60-58

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

ELIZABETH CITY—Rose High's Rampants put up a gallant fight but could not quite get enough points to overcome Northeastern last night as the Rampants fell by a one-bucket margin, 60-58.

The Rampants had ample opportunity to win the contest as they held the lead twice in the last period. Both they and the Eagles sank an equal number of field goals, 24, but the Eagles made good on two more trips to the free throw line providing the margin of victory.

But were never able to get put by that much as the Rampants struggled back and stayed within eight for the rest of the game.

Ray Scott got the Eagles up on the boards first as he dropped one in from his corner but a few seconds later Tyrone Taft scored for the Rampants tying it at 2-2.

It stayed that way for almost four minutes as neither team could get a shot to go in. The cold spell was broken on a basket by Bernard Garrett putting the Eagles back in front, 4-2 with 3:42 to go in the frame but Macon Moye drove in on the baseline to lift the Rampants right back into a 4-4 tie.

NE then blew in seven quick points to run up an 11-4 lead. Moye scored again cutting the gap to 11-6 and after a free throw by Eagle Towe, Joe Wright scored his first field goal to close the gap to 12-8 at the end of the period.

NE took the second period by a slim one point, 19-18. Towe's bucket with 6:46 to go in the half made it 18-8 but Rose fought back and two minutes later trailed by just three, 23-20. Towe free shots by Scott and a basket by Garrett ran it back up to seven, 27-20 but Bynum and Taft sank jumpers for the Rampants to pull them back to within three, 27-24.

Towe's tap in with three seconds to go in the half made the score at intermission read 31-26.

Barrett and Taft carried the Rampants through the third quarter with six and four point as Rose pulled within 41-38 going into the final frame.

Linberg Morris got the Rampants within one, 41-40 with two free shots opening the fourth quarter. Bobby Vaughn matched them for the Eagles and Banks added another to make the lead four, 44-40, but the Rampants again struggled back to be one down on a three-point play by Bynum.

Finally, the Rampants forged ahead as Wright slipped in two free throws, with 6:45 left. Banks scored on a lay-up giving the edge back to the Eagles, 46-45, 12 seconds later. Towe added a baseline jumper but baskets by Wright and Bynum sent the Rampants back in front, 29-28.

Andy Bracken lifted the Eagles back on top hitting from the lane with 5:12 to play and Banks' near goaltending shot gave NE a three point lead.

Wright dropped in a shot from the lane but Banks countered with another shot than was very close to being goaltending, 54-51. Again the Rampants fought back on a free throw by Morris and a field goal by Randy Van Serdan only to see Towe give it back to NE on free throws.

Wright tied it up for the last time, 56-56, with 1:53 to play on a pair of charity shots. Towe scored from under his basket to give the Eagles the advantage with just under a minute left and a free throw each by Vaughn and Bracken provided the needed margin. Wright got the last Rose bucket with seven seconds to play but the Rampants could not force a turnover for another chance at a score.

Wright led the Rampants with 18, Bynum had 11. Towe had 19 for NE and Banks added 16.

The Rampant JV's fell behind early in their game and never caught up. Northeastern won the game, 60-61. Rose got only two baskets in the first quarter to NE's 18 points. Rose could not recover.

Donnie Shields led the Rampant Cubs with 20 and Gerald Holloway had 10 as did Eddie Smith. James and Roger Williams 10 for NE.

Suggs To Join Bucs

Carter Suggs, the top high school sprinter in the country, will sign a grant-in-aid with East Carolina University tonight, it has been revealed.

Suggs, who went to Europe last summer with the Junior Olympic team, has been one of the standouts in the nation for the past few years. This past year, he twice tied with national high school record for the 100-yard dash, finishing in 9.3 seconds. One of those sprints came on the East Carolina track during the sectional meet.

A much-sought-after runner, Suggs said he decided to go to East Carolina because of the closeness of the university to his home in Tarboro and because he liked ECU Coach Bill Carson.

The landing of Suggs gives East Carolina one of the top men in the nation and in all probability, its first true Olympic prospect.

Crumpler, Summerell Pleased Over Draft

Two members of the 1973 Southern Conference championship football team at East Carolina University were among those picked by the National Football League's draft yesterday.

Carlester Crumpler, 1972's Southern Conference Player of the Year, and Carl Summerell, who won that same award this past fall, were both picked in the fourth round of the draft, which went through five rounds on Tuesday.

The draft was to be resumed again this morning at 10 a.m. and proceed.

Summerell, picked by the New York Giants of the National Conference, was the second man to be chosen in that round. Crumpler, chosen by the American Conference's Buffalo entry, was chosen in the latter stages of the fourth round.

They joined one other Southern Conference player, Richmond's Barty Smith, in being in the first day's selections. Smith was Green Bay's first round choice.

"I'm pretty excited about it," Summerell said last night after getting the news. "I really didn't expect to go that high."

The Buc quarterback, who came out of the Tidewater area, has often worked another Tidewater product, Norman Snead, who was a frequent visitor to ECU sring drills during the Sonny Randle era at ECU. Snead currently is with the Giants, and Summerell said he wouldn't be surprised that "Snead had something to do with their choosing me." Snead had said as early as the spring of Summerell's freshman year that he would be one of the outstanding quarterbacks of the country, and his prophecy has proven correct.

"I was contacted by the Giants after they drafted me. They told me they'd picked me and would be getting in touch with me again later. They said they'd like for me to come up in a few weeks and meet everyone."

Summerell plans to play baseball this spring, and the newly passed NCAA rule allowing student athletes who are professionals in one sport play in another will help Summerell do this. "They asked if I would be playing, and I told them I wanted to, but I didn't think that baseball would draft me, too."

Summerell also said that he had contacted his mother immediately after learning of the draft. "She's pretty happy about it, too," he said.

Crumpler, headed for the Buffalo camp, appears headed for a number change. During his high school and collegiate career, he's always worn number 32. But at Buffalo, a fellow by the name of O. J. Simpson happens to own that number—along with about all the honors the NFL could heap on him this year.

How does it feel to be going up against such competition? Crumpler is hopeful that he'll be working for the other running back slot in the backfield. "As far as my number is concerned, I don't want it back. I want to change," he said.

"I figured that Buffalo was one of the teams I would like to play for," the big back said.

"Now I have two New York teams to choose from" Crumpler was earlier drafted by the New York entry into the World Football League. "I haven't made any decision about it yet."

Crumpler, who set new rushing and scoring records in the Southern Conference, said he had been contacted by the Buffalo organization yesterday. "They asked if I was ready to become a Buffalo Bill," Crump said.

Working against Simpson isn't the important thing right now to Crumpler, making the team is. "I'd enjoy running beside him," he said. "But making the team is what counts now, not starting."

Crumpler's family expressed happiness at his selection, but he noted that he has not yet talked with his grandmother, who lives in Wilson, and with whom he grew up.

Crumpler and his wife and son plan to go to Buffalo on Friday to talk with the Bills.

Greene Central Downs Eastern

SNOW HILL—Greene Central took two of three games from Eastern Wayne last night in the Eastern Carolina Conference, keeping its fading title hopes alive. The Rams won their game, 59-48, while the junior varsity won, 58-37. The Greene Central girls, however, bowed to Eastern Wayne, 48-35.

In the girls' game, Eastern jumped away to a 15-6 lead after the first period of play. They continued to pour it on in the second frame, out distancing Greene Central, 16-6. That left the Lady Warriors with a 31-12 halftime lead.

In the third frame, the action slowed for Eastern, as they held only an 8-6 advantage, building the lead to 39-18. The Ewes outscored them, 17-9 in the final period, but they were too far back.

Kathy Spence led Eastern with 12 points, while Betty Thompson had 10. Judith Tripp and Teresa Whitley each had eight to pace the Ewes.

The Lady Warriors, with an outside chance still left are 12-3 in the league, while Greene Central is now 4-11.

Eastern Wayne threatened to take the varsity boys game also, running up a 14-8 total in the first period. The Rams came back, 14-12, in the second frame, but were still down at intermission, 26-22.

In the third period, however, Eastern was held to a mere three points, while the Rams poured in 20, and that won it for them. That pushed Greene into a 42-29 lead. Eastern outthit them again, 19-17, in the final period, but to no avail.

Moses Barron and Lonnie

Artis each had 16 for the Rams, while Jerome Shepard added 10. For Eastern, Sandy Jackson had 14 and Keith Naylor had 13.

The Rams are now 11-4, while Eastern falls to 3-12.

Conley Nearing Title Clincher

WHEAT SWAMP — D.H. Conley took another step toward the Eastern Carolina Conference championship last night with a 61-57 victory over North Lenoir. The loss left North Lenoir with only a hope for a tie for the title, and only Ayden-Grifton in serious contention with the Vikings.

Conley's girls fell to North Lenoir, 43-22, remaining winless in the league.

The Vikings are now 14-1 in the loop, while North Lenoir is 11-4. The Lady Hawks are 2-13, while Conley's girls are 0-15.

In the girls' game, North Lenoir edged out into an 8-6 lead in the first period. North Lenoir came on with an 11-4 second period, upping the lead to 19-10.

In the third quarter, North Lenoir put the game out of reach with an 18-6 advantage, running the margin to 37-16. Both teams hit six points in the final period.

Beverly Faison led North Lenoir with 16 points, while Vicki Vale had 14.

In the boys' game, Conley inched ahead, 14-12, in the first period, but North Lenoir, looking for the upset, outhit them, 22-16, in the second. That left the Hawks in command, 34-30 at the half.

But Conley came back to outscore them, 15-9 in the third period, pushing back ahead, 45-43. Conley outhit them to the wire, 16-14, to hang on to the win.

Larry Daniels led Conley with 18 points, while Buddy Phillips added 13. Gary Battle led North Lenoir with 15, while Mike Miller had 14. David Hardy had 12 and Crois Walton had 10.

Conley will play host to Farmville Central on Friday.

North Pitt Girls Clinch Tie For Eastern Carolina's Crown

BETHEL—North Pitt High School's Big Orange Machine clinched no worse than a tie for its third straight Eastern Carolina Conference title last night as the girls topped C. B. Aycock, 42-25.

The Aycock boys got their revenge, however, in a 54-52 win over the Panthers.

The Pant-HERS, who have never lost a regular season game, won their 17th straight on the year, and hold a 15-0 conference record. Only Eastern Wayne, 12-3, and Southern Nash, 11-3, could catch them, and one more win would wrap it up for the Big Orange.

In the boys game, it was close all the way. Aycock inched into an 11-10 lead in the first period, but North Pitt held a 12-10 advantage in the second quarter. That left the Panthers ahead, 22-21 at halftime.

North Pitt pulled a little more in front, 36-32, with a 14-11 third period advantage. But in the final period, Aycock closed the gap. The two traded the lead with North Pitt working up a 52-50 lead with about a minute to go.

But R. Lancaster tied it up with a basket with 50 seconds left, and about 10 seconds later, Tommy Herndon made two free throws to give Aycock the 54-52 lead, which they held the rest of the way.

Herndon led the Aycock scoring with 18 points, while Terry Coley added 13. For the Panthers, Vincent Barnhill had 13 and Craig McClawhorn had 10.

Both North Pitt and Aycock are 5-10 in the league standings. The Panthers travel to Southern Nash on Friday.

In the opening game of the night, Immanuel took a 59-38 win over Black Jack. Immanuel built up a 29-20 lead in the first half of the game, then outhit Black Jack, 30-18, in the second half.

Ali Now Seeks Foreman Bout

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali's victory over Joe Frazier, which the winner said saved boxing's life, was worth $2.6 million to Ali. His next transfusion to the sport could be worth $5 million.

Five million dollars — that's what promoter Bob Arum said Ali and world heavyweight champion George Foreman each could earn for fighting each other.

Arum, the president of Top Rank, Inc., and Ali's attorney said at a Tuesday news conference, about 12 hours after Ali's decision win over Frazier, said he could not be specific about an Ali-Foreman match.

"There'll be a fight when George Foreman tells us he wants to fight," said Arum.

"If he wants a shot, I'll give him one," said Ali, the self-proclaimed heavyweight champion of the people.

There is little doubt that Ali and Foreman will meet. Some insiders think it might even be this year despite the tax problems it could cause. However, Ali is 32 years old, while Foreman is only 24, and time is running out on Ali.

A source close to Arum mentioned Madison Square Garden as the likely site.

Teddy Brenner, president of Madison Square Garden, has started beating the drums for an Ali-Jerry Quarry fight.

Quarry has won five fights since coming out of a brief retirement but has already lost twice to Ali.

"Jerry Quarry is the great white hope," said Ali. "I'd like to shut him up once and for all."

Meanwhile, Frazier is in the market for a fight.

"I don't really see any reason why I should quit," said Frazier who also made at least $2.6 million in the Ali rematch.

"I love fighting," said Frazier. "It's like writing. It gets into your blood."

Of Frazier's announcement not to retire at age 30, his manager, Eddie Futch, said:

"It's too soon to make any decision. I think we have to discuss a lot of things. I haven't had time to sit down and discuss the whole picture with Joe."

Frazier said he wants to fight either Ali, for the third time, or get a rematch with Foreman, to whom he lost the title, but would prefer another Ali fight first.

"If the money's up and the promoters want it," Ali said of another bout with Foreman.

Notre Dame In 69-63 Victory

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Marquette kept the pressure on Notre Dame's Gary Brokaw and Dwight Clay, so Billy Paterno went to work and ripped the Warriors' defense apart Tuesday night.

College basketball's third-ranked Irish topped No. 5 Marquette 69-63 with Paterno's long bombs from the outside sparking the offense. The 6-foot-5 freshman from Lincroft, N. J., hit the target with six of eight attempts from the floor. Five zoomed in from beyond the 20-foot range.

Notre Dame forged a 33-25 halftime bulge, but the Warriors outscored the hosts 20-8 to lead 45-41. John Shumate, Notre Dame's leading scorer with 27 points, led the comeback, and a Clay jump shot put the Irish ahead for good with about nine minutes left.

Marquette, 16-2, came within three points, 61-58, with 2:24 remaining, but Brokaw hit a lay-up and Shumate and Paterno got loose for easy lay-ups.

Shumate made 11 of 14 field goal attempts as the Irish, beaten for the first time this season by UCLA Saturday night, won their 13th match.

In the other game involving a Top Ten team, ninth-ranked Providence punished Jacksonville 106-90.

Providence, with Marvin Barnes and Robert Cooper leading the way, ran up a 29-point lead at one point and coasted to its 18th victory of the year. The Friars have lost twice.

No Question Jones First

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — To the surprise of practically nobody, the Dallas Cowboys drafted Tennessee State's Ed Jones — and with an equal amount of surprise, the big defensive lineman's first play was to throw the World Football League for a bit of a loss.

The tension was nonexistent Tuesday as Commissioner Pete Rozelle called the National Football League's annual body count — the draft — to order. Houston had the worst record last season — but Dallas, thanks to a trade, had the Oilers' first-round pick, mainly No. 1.

"There was never any question about him being No. 1," Cowboys' scouting chief Gil Brandt said in Dallas, moments after he'd directed the team's representatives on the phone in New York to write Jones' name on the draft card.

The Detroit team of the infant NFL had written Jones' name on its card a week ago — although it obviously figured it was just going through the motions. The NFL didn't go for him until the end of the third round. And Jones made it pretty obvious that he didn't go for the NFL.

"I prefer to play in the NFL," the 6-foot-9, 260-pounder nicknamed "Too Tall" said at a news conference in Dallas moments after his name had kicked off the draft. In fact, he'll be the tallest lineman in the NFL next season. And there's little doubt that he'll be on the line when the campaign begins.

After Jones was picked, the drama picked up just a bit — but not the tempo. It took 3 1/2 hours for the 26 selections of Round One to be made, the longest it's taken since the 4:16 of the first NFL-AFL combined draft of 1967.

The first day's action didn't end until 9:02 p.m. with the completion of the fifth round. That left 12 rounds — 312 of the 442 players up for grabs — for today.

Running backs accounted for a high 23 of the 75 offensive players taken Tuesday and San Diego took the first of them. The Chargers, No. 2 in the order, went for Colorado's 228-pound Bo Matthews. The New York Giants, whose 2-11-1 record equaled San Diego's but who lost the coin flip for the chance to go No. 2, didn't lose anything. They wanted John Hicks and they got the Oakland Trophy-winning two-time All-American offensive tackle from Ohio State.

Chicago took Tennessee State linebacker Waymond Bryant, Baltimore picked Nebraska defensive tackle John Dutton, and the New York Jets went for another defensive tackle in Indiana's

Chocowinity Downs Bears

By BRUCE LOWITT

J.V. Cain of Colorado went to St. Louis, Detroit took Penn State linebacker Ed O'Neil, San Francisco used its two first-round picks to take Alabama running back Wilbur Jackson and UCLA defensive tackle Bill Sandifer, Penn State's John Cappelletti, the Heisman Trophy-winning running back, was taken by Los Angeles ...

On and on it went. There were hardly any surprises, except perhaps that, for the first time since the NFL began drafting players in 1936, none of the teams opted for a quarter-back in the first round ... or the second one, either.

Danny White was the first to go. At the start of the third round, the Cowboys took the Arizona State passer, picked in the second round by Chicago of the NFL and chosen earlier this month by baseball's Houston Astros.

"Baseball is still very much in the picture," White said. "Chicago might afford a more immediate chance to play but Dallas is an established organization with a good reputation."

David Jaynes, Kansas' quarterback and the No. 1 pick by Memphis of the NFL, finally went midway in the NFL's third round, selected by the Kansas City Chiefs.

On and on it went ... but not without a few interesting moments.

In the first round, for example, Detroit traded its pick — No. 13 overall — and center Dave Thompson to New Orleans for the Saints' first-round choice — No. 8 in the order.

The Lions used No. 8 to grab O'Neil. But when No. 13 — apparently belonging to New Orleans — came around, the Lions hollered foul. The trade had involved only Thompson, not their draft pick, they said.

Rozelle ruled in favor of the Saints, who took Ohio State linebacker Rick Middleton. And Rozelle said the whole thing would be open to post-draft review.

There was an in-draft review, too, when Washington, which has a thing about unloading draft choices, tossed three of them to San Diego in return for veteran guard Walt Sweeney.

The review was by the NFL brass — which very carefully checked its books to make sure Washington Coach George Allen actually owned the choices he was unloading.

Robersonville Trims Lucama

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

ROBERSONVILLE—The Robersonville Golden Eagles swept a pair of games from Lucama last night in the Eastern Plains Conference. The boys won their game in an 83-58 romp, while the girls took a 43-26 decision.

Robersonville's girls inched into a 4-2 lead in the first period then broke the bubble on Lucama in the second frame. Robersonville dumped in 20 points in that frame to rush into a 24-9 halftime lead.

The Eaglettes outhit Lucama, 11-10, in the third quarter, boosting the lead to 35-19. They outhit them once more, 8-7, in the final frame.

Elaine Forrest led Robersonville with 12 points, while Pam Hines had an equal number for Lucama.

The Robersonville boys had to fight during the first period to hold down the upset minded, but winless Lucama team, which took a 15-12 lead to the horn. But the Eagles came back with a 26-18 margin in the second stanza, pushed ahead, 38-33, at the half.

The Eagles used another strong period in the third frame to put it away, as they outhit Lucama, 27-12. That ran them

Stewart, Back In Form, Might Make Richmond Factor In Race

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
With Aron Stewart apparently having regained the form that made him league player of the year last season, Richmond's Spiders may still be a factor in the Southern Conference basketball race.

Stewart continued his recent spree, scoring 33 points Tuesday night as the Spiders' whipped Virginia Military's Keydets 81-65, upped their league record to 4-2 and moved into second place by percentage points over East Carolina's Pirates 5-3.

The 6-foot-5" Stewart has scored 179 points in the Spiders' last five games, and he also hauled down 11 rebounds Tuesday night as Richmond won at VMI for the first time in five years.

Two other conference teams took on outside opposition Tuesday night and were beaten, William and Mary's Indians by Rutgers 76-75 and Appalachian State's Mountaineers by UNC-Charlotte 85-63.

Davidson's Wildcats, 12-5, go after their seventh straight victory tonight at Duke of the Atlantic Coast Conference in one of two nonleague games for conference teams. The Citadel's Bulldogs, 9-5, will be at Clemson of the ACC in the other.

The Spiders never were in danger Tuesday night, scoring 12 points before VMI got on the scoreboard. The Keydets cut the gap to nine points at intermission and to six points at one stage of the second half but never got closer.

Stewart hit 13 of 25 shots and got 20-point help from Eric Gray as Richmond ended a three-game losing streak and boosted its over-all record to 19-9.

A pair of freshmen, George Borojevich with 20 points and John Krovic with 19, led the Keydets, now 2-5 in conference play and 5-11 against all opposition.

Mike Dabney's 18-foot jumper with 2:47 left provided Rutgers the winning basket against William and Mary. The Indians stalled for 2:40 for the final shot, but Rod Musselman missed a 20-footer with seven seconds left as the Indians dropped to 4-10 over-all.

William and Mary led by 12 points at halftime, but Rutgers caught up early in the second half and the lead seasawed after that. Mike Arizin gave the Indians their final lead at 75-74.

Vinnie Roundtree had 20 points and Dabney 17 for Rutgers, which upped its record to 12-4. Arizin led the Indians with 19 points and freshmen Ron Satterthwaite added 16.

Appalachian State's Stan Davis scored a game-high 27 points as he continued a futile chase of Stewart in the league scoring race, but the Mountaineers fell to 2-13 over-all against UNC-Charlotte.

The winners put five players in double figures, Robert Earl Blue leading the way with 19 points, in building their record to 14-3.

Mountaineer Coach Pres Maravich was ejected after drawing four technical fouls. The fourth came before he could leave the bench after getting a third. All were for protesting officials' calls.

Air Force junior defensive tackle Terry Young of Green Bay, Wis., is the tallest Falcon football player at 6 feet 7.

Maryland, State Collide In Another Key ACC Cage Meeting

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina State's 22 straight basketball victories over Atlantic Coast Conference opponents is in jeopardy tonight at Maryland's Cole Field House, where the Terps have lost only once in the last three seasons.

And that was to the N.C. State Wolfpack, which won 87-85 last season on a tip-in by David Thompson at the buzzer. It has been the only loss in 34 games at home for the Terps.

N.C. State is ranked No. 2 nationally on a 13-1 record, and is 4-0 in the conference. Maryland, sixth ranked, is 12-3 and 2-2.

The game will be nationally televised, beginning at 7 p.m.

The Terps lost by one point to UCLA in the season opener, dropped an 84 to 70 decision at N. C. State a little over two weeks ago, and were beaten 82-73 at fourth-ranked North Carolina last Saturday.

Coach Lefty Driesell says his Terps will have to get more offense from their inside big men if they are to beat N.C. State.

Maryland didn't do that against North Carolina. The front line of Tom McMillen, Len Elmore and Tom Roy combined for just 28 points. Starting guards John Lucas and Mo Howard took more than half the team's 74 shots.

Driesell said that N.C. State star David Thompson, who scored a career-high 43 points against Maryland in their first game this season, again will be guarded by 6-foot-9 Tom Roy.

Roy missed practice Monday with a dislocated finger. But Driesell said he would be ready, and that the whole team was fired up.

N.C. State had to rally for an 86-81 victory at Big Ten leader Purdue last Saturday.

All five other ACC teams also will be playing tonight. North Carolina will be at Wake Forest, Duke home to Davidson, Clemson home to The Citadel, and Virginia at West Virginia. ACC teams were idle Tuesday night.

This will be the first time since 1970 that North Carolina has played Wake Forest at Winston-Salem. The Deacons scheduled their home games with the Tar Heels in the Greensboro Coliseum the last two seasons.

The teams have played once this season, North Carolina winning 95-78 and bottling up Wake Forrest star Tony Byers.

But North Carolina Coach Dean Smith says his team faces a real challenge on Wake Forest's home court. He notes: "Four days after we beat Duke by two points at Durham (73-71 on Jan. 19), Wake went to the same court and whipped Duke by 19. That's proof enough Wake Forest is capable of beating anyone."

North Carolina is 13-2 in all games and 5-2 in the conference. Wake Forest is 9-6 and 2-3.

In Davidson, Duke will be facing a Southern Conference team which has won six in a row, including two victories on the road against ACC teams last week. The Davidson Wildcats, now 12-5, beat Virginia by one point and Wake Forest by two.

Duke is even at 7-7 and will be seeking its 999th victory since it started playing basketball in 1906.

Anti-Spanking Bill Is Argued In Senate Committee

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — The Senate Education Committee Tuesday heard opponents rap an anti-spanking bill and approved a bill designed to end standing by children on school buses. The bus bill, sponsored by Sen. Dallas Alford D-Nash would provide nearly $5 million to purchase and operate 568 new school buses.

It will have to be approved by the Joint Appropriations Committee before the money can be placed into the budget for next fiscal year.

The committee also considered one of two measures to restrict corporal punishment in the schools. The bill, by Sen. A. B. Coleman, D-Orange, would allow local school boards to decide whether to allow the spanking of pupils in their districts.

Several speakers opposed the measure. They included Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, who said it would place too much pressure on local school board members.

The measure also drew the fire at Dr. A. C. Dawson of the North Carolina Association of Educators and E. F. Johnson, who represented the state principals' association. They said the bills would weaken discipline and diminish the ability of teachers to maintain order.

The committee may act on the measure next week.

The other anti-spanking measure was introduced in the House last week by Rep. Margaret Keese, R-Guilford. It would prohibit use of corporal punishment in the schools.

Other legislative developments included introduction of a bill to increase membership of the state Paroles Board from three to five and a measure to prohibit the sterilization of mental defectives without their consent.

Rep. Joy Johnson, D-Robeson, one of three black House members, told the House his bill, "would eliminate some of these errors we find going on now."

Johnson said some persons have been sterilized without their knowledge or consent. His bill would require the consent of individuals before they could be sterilized and would require the consent of parents or guardians in the case of minors. The family doctor and two other doctors also would have to agree.

Rep. Lawrence Davis, D-Forsyth, sponsored the bill to increase the size of the paroles board from three to five members which Gov. Jim Holshouer has requested. Davis, a Democrat, said his bill was not prompted by the governor's request. Members of the paroles board have said they are overworked and need additional members to handle some of the caseload.

Another bill by Coleman would amend the North Carolina Constitution to require the election of legislators in single-member districts. The bill, which would have to be approved by the people if passed by the legislature, would enlarge the Senate from 50 to 60 members, but would leave the House at 120 members.

Coleman said the bill would provide more diversity in legislative membership and would make legislators more accountable to their constituents.

A bill sponsored by Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, would require that funds collected from inventory taxes on manufacturers and merchants would be transferred to the state treasury and spent for the public schools.

Hyde told the House in a brief comment that the bill would be inoperative if a measure allowing persons paying the inventory tax to receive credits on their state income taxes should not be passed or is declared unconstitutional.

Hyde, an opponent of the tax credit measure, said his bill would have the effect of offsetting a "possible inequity."

Other new House bills included:

—A measure by Rep. Joy Johnson, D-Robeson, to exempt articles sold to churches and other non-profit religious institutions from the sales tax.

—A bill by Rep. Roy Spoon, R-Mecklenburg, to make it unlawful to be under the influence of a drug and be disorderly in public. Violators could be fined up to $50 or imprisoned up to 30 days.

—A bill by Rep. Edward Powell, R-Forsyth, that would require when a person accused of a misdemeanor under the drug laws is adjudged innocent, the person may ask the court to expunge the case from the records.

—A bill by Rep. David Blackwell, D-Rockingham, to give handicapped persons preference when they apply for state jobs.

Better Outlook For Newsprint

NEW YORK (AP) — Projected production of newsprint during 1974 should be adequate to meet "the current needs of newspapers and other newsprint users," says the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The past year was a bad one for newsprint users as strikes and poor weather caused shortages.

The association said the newsprint supply available to the United States in 1974 should exceed 11 million tons. Estimated consumption for 1974 is 10.7 million tons, the association said.

Burglar Has Left Wound

By JAMES L. WATSON
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Household burglary has become so commonplace in major American cities that some people joke about it. Joking soothes helplessness.

Some who have been burglarized rage about the financial loss, against the inadequacy of police protection, against the perfidy of politicians. Rage probably fends off the sense of personal violation.

An acquaintance said: "We've been hit three times, so we bought a big dog." Was he so matter-of-fact the first time?

A home is a haven of individuality in a bog of multiple-copied madness. Burglary is a rape of the private self by an assailant made viler by anonymity.

It is a soiling of memories, a callous pawing over of bits and symbols — retained by chance or design — that reflect a person's identity.

Whether a life has been spent well or foolishly, it belongs to an individual, and its fossils are precious, only for the invited.

This particular burglary was discovered late on a Sunday night. The locks on the hall door were sprung.

After the discovery, the procedure is probably routine: Ease the door open slightly and listen. No sound inside.

Kick the door open violently, hoping to prompt a stir of surprise from anyone hiding in the apartment. Still no sound.

Flip the light switch by the door, walk in and look around. No one there.

What's missing? The television set, the radio, a tape recorder, about $15 worth of subway tokens and coins for the laundry room, a blanket from the bed to wrap up the swag.

The typewriter had been stowed at the back of a closet, so the sight of it would not feed guilt feelings during a month or two of shirking Vast Literary Projects. It is still there. Beside it in squat serenity is the vacuum cleaner, valuable for its age because infrequently used.

Not much has been stolen, but there hadn't been much to steal. Spiritual transients avoid collecting physical belongings too elaborate or heavy to pack in a suitcase.

Partially, at least, the burglar may have done an unwitting favor.

The television set was the tool of a malingerer, a soporific distraction from wiser pursuits. The color had begun behaving oddly, sometimes turning John Wayne green from the bandanna up.

The radio was powerful and expensive, but its purpose had been to bring in Radio Peking, Radio Moscow, the BBC and other such exotica. This proved impossible in the architectural steelyard of Manhattan short of running sophisticated chickenwire halfway up the Empire State Building.

The tape recorder was a delusion from the start, acquired in the false hope that original composition could be accomplished in an easy chair with refreshments on the side rather than in a straight one with a typewriter in front. It was small and cheap, and well gone.

Call the super, not because he can do anything, but to get him out of bed and complain. He lays a few choice names on all housebreakers, then says his regular hall patrols were neglected over the weekend because he was down with a virus.

Call the police for the futile formality of reporting the crime:

"What was the serial number of the television set?"

"I don't know."

"You should note down the serial numbers of valuable articles."

"I know. But I didn't."

"And the number of the radio?"

"No."

"Well then, what was the brand name of the radio?"

"I don't know."

"You don't know the brand name?"

"No ... Look, the damn thing was for listening to, not for staring at. I had a television set for staring at. I know the brand name of the television set."

So it goes.

The busy work is done. The matter is finished.

No it isn't.

With a closer examination of the mess, knowledge of the true loss begins to penetrate.

The intruder left behind a trail of littered personal treasures: a crumpled letter about a special sharing; fingered evidences of many places lived in or visited; smudged photographs of great meaning, but to very few people; disarrayed jots about what is happening, where and with whom; rummaged relics of an episodic existence that had been private except when willingly revealed.

Physical rape is doubtless worse, but this kind of soul rape is terrible enough.

The act of invasion is not the end. The invader's presence lingers.

If you knew what he looked like, anything about him, you could visualize him and banish the vision.

But it is difficult to banish something without substance. Did he stand here? Did he walk there? Did he open this? The questions are endless and agonizing.

You could scream; it might help. But Grandpa always said it was unmanly to scream.

And it would only bring the neighbors, the super — perhaps even the police, who would conclude impressively that it was pointless to ask such an idiot to remember the serial number of a television set.

Issued A Ticket And Paid Fine

SEARCY, Ark. (AP) — Policeman Melvin Stark of Searcy gave his wife a parking ticket and ended up paying the 50-cent fine himself.

Stark issued the ticket while making a routine check of the city's parking meters. He noticed that his family car was over-parked and placed a ticket on the windshield.

That night, his wife returned the ticket to him, explaining that she didn't have the correct change.

Stark paid the fine.

Plans Housing For The Aged, Poor And Blind

By BOB COOPER
Associated Press Writer
LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Led by a Baptist minister, a Lexington group has a unique plan to help "the people you never hear about," the poor, aged and blind.

Construction is to begin early next year on a 12-unit complex to house such people and help overcome some of the problems that come with being alone and sightless with meager income.

"There are three things we wanted to do here," the Rev. Bob W. Brown said, "to provide low cost housing, to help them overcome their loneliness and to give them some security."

He explained that these people usually receive small disability checks as their only income and often have to pay 60 to 70 per cent of it for housing.

"People who are old and blind also lead lonely lives, he continued. "These are people who haven't learned to read Braille and haven't had vocational rehabilitation," he said. "You don't see them on the street; they just sit at home and that is why I call them the people you never hear about."

If they live alone — and many do — they also have problems with thieves.

The Committee for Housing the Handicapped, Inc., which will build and operate the housing complex, grew out of a program at the Rev. Mr. Brown's church, but isn't affiliated with any religion.

"When I selected the committee, I made a point to make it nonsectarian," the Rev. Brown said. There are Jews, Catholics and several denominations of Protestants among the 24 members.

But the original seed was planted when the clergyman started a program called "Blind Buddies" about five years ago at his church.

"The idea was to pair off a blind person with a sighted person so the sighted person could take his blind friend to the doctor or dentist or just shopping," the Rev. Brown said.

"When we started, we had just three or four blind people in the program, but now there are about 50. More than half are black and most are men who are unmarried," he said.

For the past year, the committee has been seeking land on which to build a housing complex and, recently, was given two acres adjoining land that is to become a public park.

An architect on the committee has drawn plans for the complex and three members who are builders are making up a list of materials needed for construction.

The estimated cost is $130,000, which the Rev. Brown expects to come half in donations of labor and materials by builders here and half in donations in cash.

The complex will have 12 small apartments around a courtyard, with one larger apartment where a sighted couple will live. The only entrance, for security reasons, is next to the sighted couple's apartment.

The complex will house 12 to 24 people, depending on whether they live alone or share an apartment and the committee is considering charging 20 per cent of a person's income to live there.

"We haven't reached any decision on that, but we're toying with charging 10 per cent for rent and 10 per cent for board. Of course, it won't pay for itself," the Rev. Mr. Brown said.

Since it is a unique project, the committee considered asking the federal government for money to finance it, the Rev. Mr. Brown said, "but we decided to keep it a personal thing, instead."

"We like to feel that it is just local people meeting the needs of local people," he added.

Co-Winners In News Role

WASHINGTON, N.C. — Two members of the WITN-TV EyeWitness News team have been honored for outstanding spot news coverage of motor car racing, according to an announcement made by the National Motorsports Press Association (NMPA).

Dick Jones, WITN-TV Sports Director, and Robert Perry, Chief Photographer, were named co-winners in the television spot news category in the annual writing, photography, and broadcasting competition conducted by the NMPA. The awards were presented in a recent ceremony at Sea Palms in Brunswick, Georgia.

The competition is held each year among all sportscasters, sportswriters, and photographers in the nation who cover motorsports activities.

The judging for the current awards was done by the School of Journalism at the University of South Carolina.

Jones and Perry were honored for their coverage of activities at the Darlington Motor Speedway and NASCAR racing in general throughout 1973.

Support Group For Excavation

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A distinguished nationwide support group has been formed for the University of California's archaeological excavations set to begin at Neme, Greece.

The Friends of Nemea Committee will help raise funds for the project at the ancient temple and panhellenic games site. Almost $600,000 is needed for the expedition, which is entirely supported by donations.

Treat Flame Retardant Finishes—With Care.

According to the Federal Trade Commission, flame retardant finishes used on children's sleepwear must withstand fifty home launderings. Laundry guidelines to use in maintaining the flame retardant properties are:

- Home launder only.
- Use a detergent—not soap; soap curds can easily redeposit on fabric during the washing cycle. These soap curds negate the flame retardant finish.
- Phosphate detergents are more effective in maintaining flame retardant properties than low-phosphate detergents. Low phosphate detergents can be made more effective provided the manufacturer's recommended amounts are doubled.
- Do not wash in hard water. Do not use chlorine bleach.
- Do not hand clothes in strong, intense sunlight. Sunlight has a tendency to minimize the effectiveness of flame retardant finishes.
- Always follow permanent care label instructions.

The Worry Clinic Messy Home— Usually Happy

Irene typifies millions of wives, so heed her confession. If you husbands were to make a "job analysis" of her varied functions, my list below would be merely a starter. So realize that a happy home for children MUST be a "messy" one!

is quite upset.
"Dr. Crane," she began, "we have 5 children, ranging in ages from 5 to 13.
"And our house usually looks a mess!
"My husband often grows irate because the children leave their toys and playthings scattered around.
"Oh, I try to get them to pick up their possessions and clean up their rooms, but they forget most of the time.

"It is so discouraging to visit the homes of other couples where everything is immaculate.
For I feel that I am failing, both as a mother and a wife, since when I return home my house may look as if a hurricane had struck it.
"Dr. Crane, what can I do to keep things spic and span?"
Messy Paradise
Mothers, take heart!
For a messy home where children are involved, is usually a happy home!
The trim and proper, spic and span houses of childless couples may look beautiful to you harassed parents.
But your kiddies would soon vote to return to the jolly, rollicking atmosphere of your own messy home.
Paradise is messy, to the child's viewpoint.

Hades, to their thinking, is a straight-jacketed environment where they fear to touch things or leave their toys scattered helter skelter!
Dads, PLEASE develop a little more empathy for your wives.
Don't try to compare your neat offices, where a dutiful secretary always has things at your beck and call, with your wife's hectic working place!
Suppose you had Irene's 5 youngsters romping all day in your present spic and span office!
It, too, would resemble the shambles left after a hurricane! And meanwhile you'd be a nervous wreck.
Furthermore, your prim secretary would probably resign!
For the usual mother has the varied and yet the most demanding job in our entire American society.

She operates an unofficial pre-nursery where kiddies aren't even toilet trained.
Meanwhile, she may be a chef, preparing meals that range from an infant's bottle to a swanky steak dinner when daddy gets home.
As a chaffeur, she may take the Nursery School toddlers in the car, as well as transport Girl and Boy Scout members to their Troop Meetings.
As an incidental, she serves as the buyer for clothing, shoes, and groceries for the whole family.
As a side line, she functions as laundress and seamstress!
Plus telephone operator for calls re the PTA, Scouts, Sunday School, and other her husband's business messages.
She is supposed to carry on the correspondence to her folks and also her in-laws plus sending out Christmas greetings, etc.
Often she keeps the financial records and must furnish all paid bills for use in income tax computation.
She even takes the youngsters to the dentist and physician and often applies our best medical pain-killer, namely, a kiss to her child's bruises!

Expect Request To Ban Sale Of Some Cigarette Brands

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ban on the sale of cigarettes with high levels of tar, over 21 milligrams, is expected to be asked this week.
The brands or sizes the Consumer Product Safety Commission will be asked to phase out over an 18-month period are: Camels, Lucky Strikes, Chesterfield king and regular, Pall Mall, Raleigh, Philip Morris regular, long Lucky Filters, Newport Long, Old Gold longs, Phillip Morris Commander, Herbert Tarayon king, Vogue, English Ovals, Mapleton, Half & Half, Piedmont, Marvels, Domino, Bull Durham, Vogue kings, Fatima, Players and Stratford.

rettes with more than 21 milligrams of tar are dangerous substances. The commission would have 60 days to reject the petition or publish it for comment.
It will bring sharp reaction from the tobacco industry and from legislators from tobacco states.
They note that the law creating the commission specifically exempts tobacco from the definition of a consumer product. But Moss argues that no such exemption is written into the Hazardous Substances Act, which the commission administers.

East and West combined in an enterprising defensive effort to deny South of a potential gain from unorthodox bidding.
With both major suits wide open, South's overall of one no trump is, to put it mildly, rather unusual. However, South rated to take about eight tricks in his own hand at no trump. In view of East's opening bid, it seemed unlikely that North-South could make an eleven-trick contract, so South decided that his only chance for game was in no trump. When North competed to two no trump, South placed partner with values in the major suits, and so he decided to shoot for game.

However, dummy's heart holding made it obvious that that suit held no future, and the fact that West had not led a club made attacking that suit unattractive. Therefore, East decided to go after the shorter of dummy's two remaining suits — spades. At trick two, he returned the deuce of spades. Declarer played low and West, in turn, made a superb play — he inserted the eight. Dummy's ten won, and declarer tried to set up club tricks by leading a low club.
East went up with the ace and continued the fine defensive work by shifting back to hearts. West took the king of hearts and returned the queen of spades, pinning declarer's jack! Whether declarer played dummy's king or not was immaterial — the defenders were bound to collect three spade tricks. Added to two heart tricks and the ace of clubs, this spelled a two-trick defeat.

Note that after the opening heart lead, the defenders have to play their cards in exactly this way to defeat the contract. If they diverge in any way from this line, declarer would make his no trump game.
From the auction, West suspected that a club attack might prove futile, tho in the actual case it could have beaten the contract, so he led his fourth-best heart. East won the ace, and it would have been all too easy to return a heart or shift to a club. In either case, declarer would have romped home

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JANUARY 31, 1974

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES You desire to force issues of a practical nature, but this could alienate one helpful to you. Channel all that extra energy constructively and do not criticize or make demands on others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Take care of financial matters early since financiers are in a good mood and can give fine advice. Support. Balance budget better.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Improve looks for right results in business and personal life. Be more cooperative in social affairs. Don't try to get your own way exclusively.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get tasks behind you early so you can delve into what is more vital to your welfare later in the day. Be subtle in romance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Be with good friends, but don't make sarcastic comments. Avoid group meeting that could bring trouble. Do important studying.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't think a higher-up is against you because of his brusque manner; he could be under pressure. Get a good friend to stand up for your ideas.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study interesting new outlets, but don't jump into any until a later time. An expert can give valuable pointers. Listen carefully.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Reach a better understanding in business and improve your status. Heed any forewarning about stock, etc. Show more tact with mate in p.m.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't put all the blame on an associate if conditions are not as you want them to be, since part of the fault can be yours.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be efficient at work and derive the right benefits. Take the health treatments that will make you a more dynamic person.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fun would be very costly now, so do the constructive work that is important, then seek only light entertainment. Silence with an associate is golden.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you cooperate more with kin, you can have more harmony at home. Don't permit outsiders to influence you. Consider one who means a great deal to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Keep busy with shopping, errands, appointments, but take care in driving and don't lose temper. Courtesy pays for you today.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be so blunt that almost everyone will resent this youngster, unless you teach early to be tactful and understanding of others' viewpoints. There is innate intelligence and honesty and with tact this progeny can go far in career, particularly in business or the ministry.

More Cite Big Profits In Oil

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Three more oil companies have announced sharply increased earnings for both the last quarter and all of 1973.

Disclosure of the higher profits Tuesday by Phillips Petroleum Co., Sun Oil Co. and Marathon Oil Co. followed similar announcements last week by oil industry giants.

Phillips, the nation's 10th largest oil company, said its fourth-quarter earnings in 1973 jumped by 128 per cent, up to $86.7 million from $38.1 million in the same period the previous year.

Total 1973 profits rose 55 per cent to $230.4 million, compared with $148.4 million in 1972, according to Phillips, based in Bartlesville, Okla.

Sun Oil, 13th largest, announced that its fourth-quarter 1973 earnings rose 59 per cent, up to $75 million from $47 million for the similar period the year before. Profits for all of 1973 increased 48 per cent to $230 million from $155 million in 1972.

Marathon Oil, the industry's 19th largest company, said its net income during 1973 rose by 62 per cent over the year before, increasing from $79.8 million to $129.4 million. Marathon's fourth-quarter earnings were up 93 per cent.

Major oil companies which announced increased 1973 profits last week included Exxon, the nation's largest, with a gain of 59 per cent over 1972; Mobil, up 47 per cent; and Texaco, up 45 per cent.

Debate Becomes Legal Battle

ROME (AP) — A historians' debate over the role of Pope Pius XII in a World War II massacre of Italian partisans by the Nazis has been turned into a legal battle.

The trial of a defamation suit against producers of the film "Massacre in Rome" began Tuesday.

The suit to halt showings of the film was brought by the late Pope's niece, Countess Elnora Rossignani, who claims it unfairly depicts her uncle as not having done all he could to prevent the massacre 30 years ago this March 24.

The defendants are producer Carlo Ponti, director George Pan Cosmatos and American writer Robert Katz, author of "Death in Rome," an account of the massacre. Katz said the defamation charge was untrue.
