President Vows Never To Quit In State Of Union Message

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vowing never to resign, President Nixon has given a qualified pledge in his State of the Union address to cooperate with House impeachment investigators.

Nixon's promise came in a dramatic finale to the Wednesday night speech delivered to a packed joint session of Congress and to millions listening and watching across the nation. But he said his cooperation would have to be tempered by his presidential responsibilities, a remark that drew skeptical comments from some Democrats.

Declaring that "one year of Watergate is enough," Nixon called on the Democratic-controlled Congress to join him in making 1974 "a year of unprecedented progress" in accomplishing a 10-point agenda of national goals.

He called for action to "break the back of the energy crisis" and said he was sending Congress major proposals in the fields of health insurance and welfare reform.

He promised action to safeguard personal privacy, a proposal that produced audible snickers from some Democratic lawmakers.

It also included a pledge there will be no recession, continued efforts towards "a just and lasting settlement in the Middle East, continued efforts towards his goal of American self-sufficiency in energy by 1980, decentralization of government, increased transportation aid to communities and reform of the federal educational aid system.

Although most of the 30 interruptions for applause came from the Republican side of the House chamber, GOP and Democratic lawmakers joined later in hailing Nixon's goals, while generally splitting along partisan lines over Watergate.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said Nixon was frank in addressing Watergate and "I particularly liked his offer to cooperate with the House Judiciary Committee."

That panel's chairman, Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said he interpreted Nixon's offer to cooperate consistent with his presidential responsibilities as meaning cooperation with limitations. Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said Nixon seemed to be saying "I will cooperate with the committee of impeachment the way I've cooperated with other committees. Those materials I want you to have, I'll give you."

Nixon launched his Watergate remarks, delivered without a text, after it appeared he had finished his speech. He declared he wanted to end on a personal note.

Stating he had cooperated with the Watergate special prosecutor, Nixon said "the (Continued on page 8)

No Basis To Think Perjury

WASHINGTON (AP) — An assistant special Watergate prosecutor said in federal court today that there is no basis for believing that ousted White House counsel John W. Dean III lied under oath.

"We have no basis for believing Dean has committed perjury in any proceeding," Richard Davis said. "We would have no basis ... for bringing any charge of perjury against Mr. Dean."

The prosecutors intend calling Dean as a government witness at the trial of former presidential aide Dwight L. Chapin on charges of lying to a grand jury.

Davis' statement at a hearing on pretrial motions filed by Chapin was the first public statement from the office of special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski directly contradicting reports from Capitol Hill that the White House has evidence that Dean lied to the Senate Watergate committee.

The former presidential counsel told the Watergate committee he believed President Nixon was aware of the Watergate cover-up prior to March 21, 1973, the date Nixon said he first learned of it.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said recently he has seen White House transcripts he believed contained evidence Dean lied.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell scheduled a hearing for Feb. 15 to hear evidence on Chapin's contention that Dean should not be permitted to testify. Chapin contends he considered Dean his lawyer when both were working in the White House.

Jacob Stein, Chapin's lawyer, said, "if the government has evidence Mr. Dean has lied even in matters extraneous to this case we have a right to this information."

It was then that Davis said the government has no such information. Gesell also denied Chapin's request to transfer the case on the grounds he could not receive a fair trial in Washington.

"The case will stay here. The case will be tried on the date I have set," the judge said. The trial is scheduled for April 1.

Chapin is charged with four counts of lying to the Watergate grand jury about the activities of Donald H. Segretti, underground political operative for the President's re-election committee.

"In the coming year ... increased expenditures will be needed ... to give us the military strength we must have if our security is to be maintained and if our initiatives for peace are to succeed."

Producer Sam Goldwyn Dies At Age Of 91

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Samuel Goldwyn, the colorful Polish immigrant who helped found the American movie industry and became its most independent producer, died early today at 91.

The cause of death was not immediately known, but Goldwyn had been hospitalized for an undisclosed ailment relating to age earlier this month.

Goldwyn's motion pictures included "Best Years of Our Lives," "Wuthering Heights," "Hans Christian Andersen," "Guys and Dolls," "Porgy and Bess," and "The Pride of the Yankees."

Goldwyn had been secluded in his Beverly Hills mansion since 1967, when he suffered a stroke. His only public appearance was on March 27, 1971, when President Nixon came to the Goldwyn home to present the producer with the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor.

The President praised Goldwyn for making films that were entertaining, exciting, great box office but not square "and not dirty."

His career spanned more than half a century since the time in 1913 when he and the late Cecil B. De Mille and Jesse L. Lasky made the first feature length film, "The Squaw Man," in a rented barn in a lemon grove.

Goldwyn was one of the founders of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in 1923-24.

A rugged individualist, he was a fiercely competitive independent producer for all but 10 of those years, a man who didn't want and didn't have a board of directors because "it takes too long to explain things to them."

His wife, one-time Broadway actress Frances Howard, whom he married in 1925, shared the important decisions Goldwyn made and they had a "his and hers" arrangement for many years at the Goldwyn Studios. Her small office adjoined his tastefully decorated one.

Their son, Samuel Jr., 43, followed his father into the business, becoming a director and producer.

They were working in the White House.

'Very Optimistic' Over Med School

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Rep. Gerald Arnold, D-Harnett, said here this morning that he is optimistic over the chances for passage of a bill to expand the East Carolina University medical school introduced last week in the North Carolina General Assembly.

"The chances are better than even in our favor," Arnold explained. "It's a battle that probably will be fought in the appropriations committee."

A member of the Legislative Study Commission on Medical Manpower that has recommended expansion of the one-year program at ECU, Arnold said "I don't have any hopes..." that a meeting scheduled between Legislators, members of the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina and ECU officials tonight in Raleigh will have any influence on the outcome of the ECU expansion bill.

Tonight's meeting in Raleigh is the second such meeting, billed as an attempt to work out a compromise proposal on the ECU question. The first meeting was held a week ago.

According to Arnold, the bill introduced last week is "already... one of the great compromises in the Legislature... especially if you look at it as an ECU versus Chapel Hill issue."

The question of gaining accreditation for an expanded medical program at the Greenville campus is expected to dominate tonight's session.

"The people who introduced the bill, and the medical manpower commission don't see any problem," Arnold said.

"If the legislature appropriates the money for manpower, equipment and space... provide the commitment that we will do these things... accreditation is no problem."

"We just don't feel there's any problem," Arnold emphasized.

The bill as introduced—calling for expansion of the first year class at ECU from 20 to 40 students and adding a second year to the medical training program—"that bill stands a good chance of being passed," Arnold said.

"I'd rather have our side right now than theirs," the House member said of supporters of the Board of Governors, which has recommended against any expansion at ECU.

According to Arnold, the Medical Manpower Study Commission assembled "more facts and more information... did a more objective job... more so than has ever been done..." on the question of the needs of the state in the area of medical manpower and training.

The commission's report, Arnold theorized, "will provide the basis that will get that bill passed."

And, Arnold explained, "I feel that we have the legislative leadership on our side."

He noted that Republican support for the bill is very weak. "The governor is so opposed to it..." Arnold said, citing his influence with Republican members of the General Assembly.

Of the 35 Republicans in the House, Arnold said "I feel one or two Republicans will stay with us for sure... above that I don't know."

"By in' large," Arnold continued, "if it passes, it will be without any help from the Republicans."

The Democratic representative noted that tonight's session is expected to be the last of the so called compromise meetings.

Arnold, a 1963 ECU graduate who received his law degree from the University of North Carolina Law School, is currently a candidate for the Democratic nomination as a judge of the North Carolina Court of Appeals.

And, Arnold explained, "I feel

Scholarship Finalist Chosen

CHAPEL HILL—Jeffrey Brent Price, a senior at North Pitt High School has been named a finalist in the 1974 Morehead Awards competition to study at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

The announcement was made today by Mebane Pritchett, executive director of the John Motley Morehead Foundation. The son of Malotha B. Price of Rt. 2, Robersonville, Price is third in his class of 242 students. He is president of the Pitt County Honor Society and the Teen Dem Club, has been a Sunday School teacher and a radio columnist for his school. He plays football and baseball at North Pitt. In addition he works at a Bethel grocery store, drives a school bus and works on his family farm.

Price says his ambition is to be a family doctor in Eastern North Carolina.

Price has two older brothers, one a dentist in Williamston, and the other in dental school at Carolina, a sister, and a younger brother.

Morehead Awards provide all expense paid undergraduate educations at UNC at Chapel Hill. The value of the awards for North Carolina residents is $2,500 per year or $10,000 for four years of study.

Truckers Crowd Truck Stop In Planned Protest

MT. AIRY, N.C. (AP)—Truckers crowded into the Southern 500 Truck Stop before dawn today as part of the nationwide protest against high fuel costs and low speed limits.

Manager N.L. Hodge said he was not sure how many trucks were involved, but there were so many that "I can't see them all." An employee of the adjoining restaurant estimated the number at 200.

Hodge said there had been no violence. He said the strikers were allowing automobiles to leave the lot, but not trucks.

"There's not a thing you can do when they block you in," he said. "I told them I didn't want any gambling or drinking."

Drivers were blocking his pumps, he said.

Leaders of the stoppage said they were asking company and independent drivers to join in the effort, but they were not forcing anyone to do so.

Spokesmen for two truck stops on Interstate 95 near Roanoke Rapids, scene of protests last month, said there was no evidence of a stoppage.

A spokesman for Derrick's Truck Stop on Interstate 85 near Salisbury said there was no stoppage at his location early today. However Wednesday night an independent trucker said 40 or 50 drivers were waiting at Derrick's to see what would develop.

"If they park them, we'll park them," said a New Jersey company driver. "I'm ready to park if they are."

There had been some confusion over the timing of the stoppage. Some drivers said it was set for midnight Wednesday while others said midnight Thursday.

Highlights

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of President Nixon's nationally broadcast State of the Union speech delivered to a joint session of Congress on Wednesday night.

WATERGATE
"I want you to know that I have no intention whatever of ever walking away from the job that the people elected me to do for the people of the United States."

"I have provided to the special prosecutor voluntarily a great deal of material. I believe that I have provided all the material that he needs to conclude his investigations and to proceed to prosecute the guilty and to clear the innocent."

"I believe the time has come to bring that investigation and the other investigations of this matter to an end. One year of Watergate is enough."

"I will cooperate with the Judiciary Committee ... so that it can conclude its investigation, make its decision ..."

"There is only one limitation, I will follow the precedent ... of never doing anything that weakens the office of the president of the United States ..."

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONSHIPS
"In our relationships with the Soviet Union we have turned away from a policy of confrontation to one of negotiation ... With the People's Republic of China ... we have begun a period of peaceful exchange and expanding trade."

ECONOMICS
"There will be no recession in the United States of America ... I pledge to you tonight that the full powers of this government will be used to keep America's economy producing and to protect the jobs of America's workers."

ENERGY
"I can announce tonight that I have been assured ... that an urgent meeting will be called in the immediate future to discuss the lifting of the oil embargo."

"However, it should be clearly understood ... that the United States will not be coerced on this issue."

"... Let us do everything we can to avoid gasoline rationing in the United States of America."

"Voluntary conservation will continue to be necessary ..."

HEALTH CARE
"I shall propose a sweeping new program that will assure comprehensive health insurance protection to millions of Americans ... And it will not require additional taxes."

TRANSPORTATION
"The program I have proposed this year will give communities not only more money, but also more freedom to balance their own transportation needs."

EDUCATION
"... Last week, I recommended a number of important new measures ... Advance funding will give school authorities a chance to make each year's plans knowing ahead of time what federal funds they are going to receive. Special targeting will give special help to the truly disadvantaged among our people. College students ... will be able to draw on an expanded program of loans and grants."

PRIVACY
"The time has come ... for a major initiative to define the nature and extent of the basic rights of privacy and to erect new safeguards to ensure that those rights are respected."

WELFARE
"... I urge the Congress to join me in mounting a major new effort to replace the discredited present welfare system with one that works, one that is fair to those who need help ... fair to the community, and fair to the taxpayer."

DEFENSE
"In the coming year ... increased expenditures will be needed ... to give us the military strength we must have if our security is to be maintained and if our initiatives for peace are to succeed."

N. C. Legislative Leaders Disagree Over Gas Rationing Plans

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — A group of legislative leaders disagreed Wednesday over the advisability of North Carolina embarking on a mild system of gasoline rationing such as Oregon and Hawaii are using.

Despite the many frustrations in getting gasoline, Rep. William T. Watkins, D-Granville, House majority leader, said he sees no need now of adopting the Oregon plan under which drivers with "even" license plate numbers can buy gasoline on one day and those with "odd" numbers can buy the next day.

"Not presently," he said, "But we might come to it."

"If conditions do not improve soon, I could support a system similar to the Oregon plan," said Sen. Gordon Allen, D-Person, the Senate president pro tem.

Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, agreed with Allen.

be done," Scott added. "It's not fair to the service station operator to subject him to all this abuse."

"I can see where the consumer gets frustrated using all of his gas to drive from service station to service station," Scott stated.

Sen. Russell Kirby, D-Wilson, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, but "I think that as long as you can avoid it it's good to avoid rationing." He recalled the black markets and other ills that marked World War II gas rationing.

"I don't see that it does a thing," said Rep. Robert Jones, D-Rutherford, chairman of the House Rules Committee, in discussing the Oregon plan. Jones said the only place he found trouble in buying gasoline was in Raleigh.

"I don't think states ought to get in the business of rationing," said Rep. Carl Steward, D-Gaston, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. "If we are going to have rationing it ought to be nationwide."

Watkins said the Oregon plan is not as much rationing as it is orderly buying and "while it might be an improvement, it doesn't solve anything."

What I'd really like," said Kirby, "is an explanation of why we're in the condition we're in. I haven't had an explanation that satisfied me. What happened to the gasoline?"

Kirby recalled paying 59.9 cents a gallon for gasoline this week and said the one filling station he found with gasoline on a recent night had 17 cars lined up waiting for gas.

Couple Exchanges Vows In Recent Ceremony

In a double ring ceremony Sunday, Jan. 20, at 3:00 p.m., Miss Linda Kay Brown became the bride of Charles Donelson June in Jarvis Memorial United Methodist Church. The Rev. Charles Smith officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spencer Brown of Greenville. Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Everette June of Jacksonville.

A program of nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Paul Toll, organist. Steve Rodgers and Mrs. Paula Flake were vocalists.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length white organza gown designed with a high neckline encircled with scalloped chantilly lace threaded with white satin ribbon. Matching lace and ribbon extended over the sheer yoke of the empire bodice to the hemline. The long sheer sleeves also featured the be-ribboned lace. The detachable chapel train was edged in trim to match the gown.

She wore a fingertip veil edged in chantilly lace attached to a Camelot headpiece trimmed with a white satin bow. She carried a colonial nosegay of white sweetheart roses, carnations and baby's breath accented with greenery and streamers of white satin ribbon.

Mrs. Annette Pilgreen of Robersonville was matron of honor and Miss Janet Brown, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Sally Bell of Raleigh, sister-in-law of the bride, Miss Marian Halevy and Miss Marcia Schiller, both of Greenville, and Miss Alice Moquet of Branford, Conn., cousin of the bride.

Miss Ginger Galloway of Greenville was flower girl.

Mrs. Ramona Tucker directed the wedding and Mrs. Emily Moore planned the reception. Mrs. Lois Narron assisted Mrs. Moore.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Sam Barger of Kinston, Danny Pearce, Dana Bynum and David Cowell, all of Greenville, Ralph June and Tim Beard, both of Jacksonville.

For a wedding trip to Atlanta, Ga., the bride changed into a wine knit pant suit with a matching jacket.

The couple will reside at Rt. 9, Greenville.

The bride graduated from J. H. Rose High School and Pitt Technical Institute. She is now employed by Rose High School as a secretary. The bridegroom attended ECU and is associated with Greenville Karate Studio.

After the ceremony, the bride's parents entertained at a reception in the church parlor. A color scheme of green and white was used in decorations.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of gladioli, mums and baby's breath accented with a bride and groom figurine.

Professional Outdoorsman Admires Active Sportswomen

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

A lot of women go on rugged outdoor vacations to meet rugged outdoor men, and they do, even though such he-men are becoming scarce, observed John Cooley, 30, of Townsend, Mont., professional outdoorsman, lawyer and former deputy district attorney in Denver.

"But the ladies' participation is no gimmick. They win their stripes by performing well," commented Cooley, who plans unusual outdoor vacations offered by airlines. Many novices are attracted to the scuba diving, mountain climbing, and the like.

"Women have really made a liber out of me," he continued. "They are good sports. For example, scuba diving can make a girl look pretty spookey and slimy. It is hard to be glamorous when you have all sorts of goo dangling over you and something hanging out of your mouth, but they accept the challenge."

By comparison, he explained, "Men worry how they look when they do something messy. They seem to be more fashion conscious and they feel awkward when they wear something uncomfortable."

"Women are not involved in the ego thing. There is not a lot of room for lipsticks on such expeditions and they can accept themselves without being bolstered by hair dryers. But it is frustrating that men cannot respond the same way."

"Maybe we need a man's lib," he said.

Cooley and his partner, Paul Sanders, 44, who has been involved in astronaut recovery programs, have been instructors with Outward Bound. Their present endeavor, Lifebound, "differs drastically from Outward Bound where people are brought for training and are often resentful of the rugged experiences they must engage in," he insists.

The vacation programs planned for various airlines—Eastern, United, Western, Swissair—provide a vacationer with personal experiences in natural environment.

"We are not trying to make men out of boys," Cooley said. "We appeal mainly to a young, singles group. Most of them are already outdoor-oriented, but we have been surprised that we are getting more applications from women."

While most women who apply are in the under-30 group, a 43-year-old Portland woman, a CPA, applied for mountain climbing and was "surprised at her own capabilities," Cooley said. She had previously been involved only in intramural sports.

Equipment is provided because 90 per cent of the adventurers are novices. Forty per cent are college students. A class might go on a trip for a couple of weeks accompanied by their professor who "also gets in his bit."

"We point up the idea that you can be educated without a blackboard," Cooley said.

Scuba diving is tied into vacations in Mexico, British Honduras, the Virgin Islands. Mountain climbers go to Mexico, Colorado, Switzerland. There is safari photography in Africa or archaeological digs in the Mayan ruins. At the moment Cooley is considering canoeing and kayaking and is "firming up" a sailing program for 1974 with two 85-foot ocean racers. He has already determined that sailing will have big woman-appeal.

Actually Cooley is doing what comes naturally. In Steamboat Springs, Colo., where he grew up, school attendance was taken at the top of a ski run when he was in the second grade. When he was at the University of Colorado and, later, a deputy district attorney, he found time to climb mountains. He has managed to combine his law practice and the outdoors.

"The need to commune with nature is basic. We have programs that put people in the wilderness at their own choosing, without diversions. Within fifteen minutes of their return they are asked to provide a spiritual message connected with the experience of confronting nature."

"People say incredible things at that time. Boredom might have been frightening. After throwing rocks for hours and talking to the birds, they finally must think about themselves. But I've never had an accident or a negative reaction in the eight years I've been involved in such things, even though some people become frightened of imaginary or predatory animals. In the end they find it a very positive experience."

"Being plump doesn't stop this woman from being attracted to the same things as her thin sister," said Mrs. Spivack, "even though she may have more construction underneath than the Brooklyn Bridge."

Mrs. Spivack, who's thin (116 pounds, five feet six inches), has learned many of the problems of the not-so-sleek from watching her mother shop. "She'd shove an arm into a sleeve and if it fit she'd buy the garment. She wouldn't try it on. She didn't even take the hanger out. The arm is the nemesis of the plump woman."

Her mother is five feet, weighs 190 pounds, down from the 250 she used to be, said the designer.

Mrs. Spivack also has the understanding of her patternmaker, whose wife is heavy. "Both of us relate to somebody large," she said.

"It's garbage that large women should wear dark clothes," she said. "Large women want high colors, but I'll also put them in neutrals."

"I put trousers on them too. And white at that, for summer and resort. The large woman wants to look pretty and cool."

"I design long overblouses which come down over the waist and to the thigh. Most problem fat needing camouflage is through the waistline area. The long line covers it. And tops are worn outside. Fat women don't tuck in."

"Scale is everything. You shy away from very large patterns. But you'll use larger buttons, maybe make a larger collar. High tabs will break the long plump line on a jacket but you'll put them above the bosom, not on it."

Designer Avoids The 'Old Lady' Look In Styles

NEW YORK (UPI)—A lot of the nation's female "stouts" are more stylish because Stephanie Spivack was sidetracked from her original ambition to be an opera singer.

Today, Mrs. Spivack designs clothes specifically for the larger woman—size 38 to 46. She says that various government sources put her numbers at one third of the female population.

"Being plump doesn't stop this woman from being attracted to the same things as her thin sister," said Mrs. Spivack, "even though she may have more construction underneath than the Brooklyn Bridge."

Young Home Designers League Meets

The Young Home Designers League of ECU met last week at the home of Chancellor and Mrs. Leo Jenkins.

Mrs. Jenkins greeted club members, advisor, Dr. Patricia G. Hurley, and faculty members, Mrs. Dina Carroll and Miss Thelma Snuggs.

The group toured the Jenkins' home as Dr. and Mrs. Jenkins explained student art and accessories. Architectural features were pointed out by Dr. Jenkins, along with favorite family items, which have been collected and various photographs.

Following the tour, President Janet Woolard conducted a business session which included faculty announcements. Judy Hartwell, program chairman, told of plans for the club to visit historical homes in Bath.

Good-byes were said by Mrs. Jenkins, who presented a camellia to each member.

A.A. May Be Answer To Wife's Drinking

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My wife loves to cook—with wine; that gives her an excuse to get into the wine bottle.

She's a school teacher, so her hours are shorter than mine. When I get home at 5:30 p.m. she's already had a snootful and is making dinner [using wine, of course] so by the time we sit down to dinner [with wine] she's already smashed.

After dinner she falls asleep in front of the TV. The next morning she wakes up bright and cheerful, and that evening it's the same story.

If we have no plans for the weekend, it's the same routine—only she starts earlier. If I suggest she lay off the wine, she becomes defensive and insists she can take it or leave it alone. [But she always takes it.]

Is she an alcoholic? And if she is, how can I help her? I hate to see a pretty, intelligent young woman grow ugly and dull before my eyes. Fortunately, we have no children, and with things as they are, I'm going to make sure we don't have any. In the meantime, how can you help someone who refuses to admit she needs help?

PATIENT HUSBAND

DEAR PATIENT: It's not easy. I think your wife is an alcoholic, but until she admits it, and takes steps to overcome it, no one can help her. Alanon, the companion group to Alcoholics Anonymous, teaches the mates of alcoholics to cope with that problem. When you learn to handle it, you may get her to help herself. It's worth a try. They're in the phone book. Get going and good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a problem to end all problems. I am 35, and Ira is 41. We've been living together for two years and three months. We had a big fight last week, and I kicked him out. I told Sybil [my best friend] about kicking Ira out, and within three days Sybil and Ira were married! I didn't know a thing about it. Ira came to see me and I thought he came to make up with me because we made love. It was just like old times. I guess he couldn't get up the nerve to tell me about him and Sybil.

That night Sybil came over and said she and Ira were married. I didn't believe her and called her a liar. Anyway, the next day Ira came over and said it was true. He also said he was drunk when he married her, but he still loved me. I know this sounds crazy, but I love him, too. We belong together. Sybil told me that Ira really loved ME, and she didn't really want him, she just married him to make her boy friend jealous.

Abby, can Ira's marriage be annulled because he was drunk? We're back together again and want to be married soon as possible.

"POOPSIE!"

DEAR POOPSIE: I don't know whether Ira's marriage can be annulled or not, but a lawyer can tell you. So see one!

DEAR ABBY: Why do mothers teach their daughters that when a boy brings them home from a date they should "thank" him for the lovely evening?

After all, it's the MAN who does the asking, and if the lady grants him the date, then HE should thank HER for the lovely evening.

I'm in disagreement with someone over this point and want your opinion.

N. C.

DEAR N. C.: A lady doesn't "grant" a gentleman a date in the same sense that a celebrity "grants" someone an interview, or the Pope grants someone an audience. She simply accepts his invitation. And if they both enjoyed themselves, they should thank each other!

Installation Ceremony Held

Local Branch No. 1729, of the National Association of Letter Carriers of Greenville, and the Ladies Auxiliary No. 2735 held joint installation ceremonies Saturday night at Huey's Restaurant.

Wayne White, assistant national agent, Goldsboro, was the installing officer. New officers installed for the current year are as follows:

Presidents, Frank Morgan and Mary Wainwright; Vice Presidents, Wayne Strawn and June Buck; Secretary-Treasurer, Stanley Colville and Nadine Buck; Chaplain, Lou Wilson.

Following the installation, White was guest speaker for the evening.

The real disposable income per person during the first half of 1973 ran about 11 per cent higher than in the corresponding period in 1972, University of Nebraska researchers say.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There aren't any surprises in my life anymore.

Every Thursday, barring death, I go to the beauty shop. Every six months, I have a standing date with my hygienist to clean my teeth, and every year an appointment to see my doctor. I am scheduled to see my lawyer, my tax man, my son's guidance counselor, my washer repairman and my Avon lady. I am programmed to put the garbage out on Sunday nights, the empties in the trunk every Friday, and the checks in the mail by the 15th.

Heaven knows there are few impulses left to me. I pulled in a gas station the other day and rolled down the window. A girl with a clipboard said, "Hello, are you a standing?"

"A standing what?" I asked. "Have you a standing appointment?" she persisted. "FOR GAS?"

"Yes, we take a certain number of appointments per day and you don't have to wait in lines anymore. You just drive in and we fill your tank."

I sat there numbly. "Do you want to schedule me?" I asked. "Certainly," she smiled. "That'll be a week from Tuesday. Now, will you be needing a lube job, new points or a motor tune-up?"

"People say incredible things at that time. Boredom might have been frightening. After throwing rocks for hours and talking to the birds, they finally must think about themselves. But I've never had an accident or a negative reaction in the eight years I've been involved in such things, even though some people become frightened of imaginary or predatory animals. In the end they find it a very positive experience."

Slot Machines Are Tension Relievers

MAINZ, West Germany (WNS)—Professor Armand Mergen, head of a university team investigating the effects of slot machines on adolescents, has reported that they relieve tensions and do not necessarily contribute to delinquency. "A small win can be therapeutic, especially for girls," he said. "Playing the one-armed bandit decreased boredom that sometimes leads to violence."

"Just fill the tank and touch up the roots," I smiled.

I guess that's what happens when the people to be served outnumber the servers. How ridiculous can you get? Will we have to make appointments with our butchers? Reserve a seat on the ferris wheel? Take a number at the dinner table to talk?

Who knows? Maybe someday mothers will become so important and so inaccessible that she can see the family "By appointment only."

Picture this. A child comes running in shouting, "Mama, Sarah just broke her leg."

"Sorry," smiles Mother, "but I don't have an opening right now, but if there's a cancellation, tell Sarah I'll give her a call."

Or, "Mama, I'm just not hungry."

But of course you're hungry," she says. "I made an eating appointment for you."

Or the husband who whispers, "Dear, the children are gone and I could put on some music and pour a few glasses of the bubbly," only to have mother flip over her calendar and say, "Too bad. I'm scheduled for a headache."

Scout, Scouter Received Honor

A Greenville Scout and his father were honored recently by the Boy Scouts of America.

Dr. Harry Billica and Roger Billica were presented plaques for outstanding service to the Scouting program at an East Carolina Council banquet in Kinston.

Dr. Billica's award was given in appreciation for many years as president of the East Carolina Council and chairman of the Camp Development Committee. The committee planned and built the new Bonner Scout Reservation, 10 miles east of Chocowinity on the Pamlico River.

Roger's honor came from the National Council and named him first runner-up in the competition for youth representative on the National Executive Board of the Boy Scouts of America. A student at UNC-Chapel Hill, Roger was selected to represent the 11 states in the Southeastern Region. In the final interviews held in Chicago, he placed second in the nation.

Two Truck Drivers Killed In Collision

OLD FORT, N. C. (AP)—Two truck drivers were killed in a collision of their tractor-trailers Wednesday on a steep two mile grade of U. S. 70 down Old Fort Mountain, bringing to eight the number of traffic deaths along the stretch since last November.

Highway Patrolman J. M. Waldrop said the latest wreck was touched off when a refrigerator truck, loaded with about 35,000 pounds of swinging beef, apparently went out of control going down the grade and jackknifed.

Waldrop said the truck crossed the median, turned over on its side and skidded about 230 feet, slamming head-on into a flatbed truck heading up the mountain. The flatbed, said Waldrop, skidded about 100 feet as the driver locked his brakes in an effort to bring it to a stop to avoid the collision.

The trooper identified the victims as George Washington Thomas, 39, of Rt. 1, Forest City, N. C., driver of the refrigerator truck, and Lois Radford, 46, of Rt. 3, Blairsville, Ga., driver of the flatbed, which was running empty.

Waldrop said the scene of Wednesday's wreck shortly after 2 p.m. was about half a mile from the spot where five persons died last November when a runaway truck and three cars collided. A truck driver had been killed shortly before in a wreck within about 200 feet of the spot where the five were killed.

Waldrop said the heavily loaded refrigerator truck had passed, about half a mile back up the grade, a runoff into a sand pit, put there especially for any vehicle to plow through the sand to a stop in the event of brake failure.

Hold Pitt 4-H Achievement Event Tonight

The annual Pitt County 4-H Achievement Program will be held tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the American Legion Building. Awards and recognition will be given to 4-H'ers who have excelled in many phases of the 4-H program during 1973. New clubs will also be chartered.

A highlight of the program will be a look into 1974 to see what activities will be held. A group of 4-H members, dressed in costumes to represent each month of the year, will discuss what each month means in the 4-H program.

Anyone interested in joining a 4-H Club or seeing what activities might interest them, may attend the meeting.

Opening lead: Four of ♥
Following a board in a multiple team event can be an enlightening experience. Recently, I had the opportunity of watching three different declarers at work on today's hand.

South's hand was too strong for a one no trump opening bid, so he opened in a suit and then jumped to two no trump. When North showed he had the black suits, South felt his stoppers in the red suits were good enough to undertake three no trump rather than try for 11 tricks at a club game.

At all three tables where I watched, West led the four of hearts against three no trump and East played the queen. The first declarer was the supreme optimist. He won the king of hearts and ran the queen of clubs. East took the king and reverted to hearts, leading the ten. South and West ducked, and a heart continuation by East allowed the defenders to collect four heart tricks and the king of clubs, for down one.

The second declarer displayed slightly better technique. He allowed East's queen of hearts to win the first trick. The ten of hearts was continued, and declarer played the king. Had West taken his ace of hearts, declarer would have been home. Unfortunately, West allowed declarer to win the second heart trick. When the club finesse lost, East returned a heart and the result was the same.

The third declarer must have been a regular reader of this column. He allowed the queen of hearts to win the first trick, and again played low when East continued with the ten. Now, the defenders were helpless. Declarer covered the third heart with the jack, and it made not a whit of difference whether West won or ducked. All the defenders could take were three hearts and a club.

Declarer's objective in withholding the king and jack of hearts on the first two rounds of the suit was to make it safe to take the club finesse. The contract lost only if the club finesse failed and East still had a heart link with partner. Unless hearts were 4-4, in which case declarer could lose no more than three heart tricks, declarer's two ducking plays assured breaking the link.

Nixon Privacy Plans Leave Loopholes

By MARGARET GENTRY
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's privacy legislation harnesses federal and state crime files to specific legal restrictions for the first time.

But it leaves enough loopholes to stir opposition from critics demanding still tighter limits.

In his State of the Union address Wednesday night, Nixon promised an effort to establish "a new set of standards that respect the legitimate needs of society, but that also recognize personal privacy as a cardinal principle of American liberty."

It was a promise from an administration that has been accused of widespread invasions of privacy through wiretapping, bugging and burglary.

A key element of Nixon's privacy protection program is a bill drafted largely under the supervision of Elliot L. Richardson, the attorney general who resigned after refusing to fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

That bill, developed in the Justice Department and circulated among other Cabinet agencies, would restrict the distribution of crime records to law enforcement agencies except in specified circumstances.

The draft has not been made public and Nixon mentioned no details, but The Associated Press obtained access to a copy.

These are the some key features:

—The restrictions would apply to any criminal justice information system operated or funded by the federal government and any other system exchanging information with federally operated or financed systems. It would cover both computerized and manual systems.

—The legislation would add the strength of law to the present policy restricting the distribution of crime files to law enforcement agencies unless specifically authorized by federal or state law.

—The legislation would prohibit the distribution of arrest records for anything except law enforcement purposes if the individual were not convicted of the charge and if there were no pending prosecution. But the provision allows certain exceptions.

—The legislation would require that an individual's files be sealed from the normal distribution channels from five to seven years after his last troubles with the law.

—The legislation would impose a $10,000 fine and one year in prison as the maximum penalty for violators and would authorize civil damage suits. Current policy lacks any provision for such penalties.

Although the department proposal goes much further than current policy, it stops short of the restrictions demanded by critics in and out of Congress. Among other things, the critics prefer much more limited distribution of arrest records unless accompanied by the disposition of the case.

Cubs Staged Space Derby

Members of Cub Scout pack 200, along with their fathers, visited space during its annual "Space Derby" held Tuesday night. Cubmaster Claude Moore said more than 50 "astronaut" Cubs had space ships, made and designed from kits by the cubs and their fathers.

The event was sponsored by the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Following a series of elimination run-offs of "trips to the moon," two cubs were named first and second grand champion of an "Apollo mission." The two were Greg Briley and Brad Hudson.

First, second and third place winners in the preliminary "space derby" were:

Den 1: Louis Fletcher, Chris Baggett, Ken Davis.

Den 2: Michael Schlegel, Jim Brewer, Jonathan McGee.

Den 3: Brad Hudson, Troy Hudson, Eddie Mazingo.

Den 4: Michael Moon, Scott Riddick, David Harper.

Webelos Den: Greg Briley, Butch McLawhorn, John Shaw.

Judges for the event were Mrs. Nelson Crisp and Dixie Green.

Our Congressmen Should Know

Erich Segal, who is best known for "Love Story", also holds his PhD from Harvard and is a professor of Latin and Greek at Yale University.

He appeared as a lecturer at East Carolina University last week and in an interview with Daily Reflector writer Carol B. Tyer he had some comments on the current collegiate scene.

"Students rioted and marched and did all kinds of futile things about the Vietnam War, about which they could do absolutely nothing," he said. "Yet I can't find even a little protest about this very real energy crisis now."

He said gas had run out in New England when he left. "Many people won't even be going to work. And it's cold there, so the lack of fuel oil seems much more critical than here in your balmy climate."

But getting back to reasons why students are not as politically involved now, he said. "I think it's because of the economic situation.

concerned as never since the Depression about getting a job. They know if they don't work just as hard as they can, there won't be a way for them to earn money to pay for their overpriced gas and their overpriced bread when they get out of school.

Riots are not the way but students should let their Congressmen know they are upset about the "rape of the citizen" being carried out in Congress, he said.

"I've written many many letters to my own Congressman and to many others. Every American should spend the eight cents for a letter it takes to be heard," he stated.

Pretty good advice not only for students but for all Americans. A democracy is going to be no better than the input that elected officials receive from its citizens. Any and all of us can send them the message.

Wilson Waging Hard Campaign

By JOHN KILGO
MONROE—Henry Hall Wilson has been in the U.S. Senate race as a Democrat since last spring. Some of his people say his candidacy is catching on. A man close to Robert Morgan said last week: "The Wilson campaign is not going over."

Wilson himself says he's working as hard as possible seven days a week.

"I'm dragging this body everywhere I can," he says. "It's a big state, but I'm getting around. I feel more encouraged every day that passes."

Wilson was not surprised when Morgan announced last week that he would run for the Senate in the Democratic primary. He was looking for the announcement, but now that it's been made, Wilson knows he has his work cut out for him.

"As I see it," Wilson says, "I have a job getting name exposure and Morgan has a job proving he is qualified to go to the U. S. Senate."

Wilson feels he is much better known across the state than he was when he started his campaign. He has 150 billboards up across the state and has traveled extensively, speaking to civic clubs in all areas of North Carolina.

"I've been on radio and TV in most of the towns I've been in," Wilson says, "and the newspapers in those towns cover my talks. I'm making a lot of progress."

Of Morgan, his principal opponent at this time, Wilson says: "I'm waiting to see what posture he's going to take on the issues of the campaign. Right now he's just talking about the job he's done as attorney general, which has nothing to do with the Senate campaign. I've given an opinion on every issue that's been asked of me."

It is known that Wilson isn't happy about Morgan staying on as attorney general while he runs for the Senate, but it's a ticklish issue to bring up. Wilson doesn't want to have a part in putting a Republican in the attorney general position.

"This should be a campaign of federal and international issues," Wilson says. "I feel I can run a game with Morgan on that score."

Wilson knows that Morgan will be a tireless campaigner. The attorney general doesn't have the problem of getting his name before the public.

Most political polls show Morgan to be one of the state's best-known politicians. He can spend his time raising money and campaigning, while Wilson still has to worry about name identification.

Meanwhile, both Morgan and Wilson are watching closely to see what other candidates might get into the Senate race. Former congressman Nick Galifianakis is said to be on the verge of running, if he feels he can get the needed financial support. And Charlotte mayor John Belk is looking closely at the race, even though most political insiders feel Belk will not go through with it.

Strength For Today

CHOOSING THE COURSE
Abraham Lincoln said on one occasion, "And having chosen our course, let us renew our trust in God and go forward without fear."

Let us look at this exhortation a little more closely.

"Having thus chosen our course." We never get anywhere until we think things over and come to a definite conclusion as to what our course of action should be.

"Let us renew our trust in God." The important word here is "renew." No matter what our faith may be, it needs occasional renewal. Deep thought, prayer, and consecration are always essential to a healthy spiritual life.

"And go forward without fear." Many people are simply afraid they will fail, and the thought then becomes a self-fulfilling prophecy. But if they have given their best consideration to the matter, and have renewed their faith, they should be able to go forth with confidence.

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Solid With The Infants

Stanley J. Goodman, chairman of the May Department Stores Co., turned up in St. Louis on January 7 to deliver an address before the National Retail Merchants Association. He said a mouthful. Every businessman in the country ought to read what he had to say.

Goodman's theme — a familiar theme these days — was confidence. He took off from the Louis Harris Survey made public by a Senate subcommittee last month. The survey found, among other things, that public confidence in major American companies has fallen drastically. Five years ago 59 percent of the people had a lively confidence in business. As of last September, when the survey was made, the figure was 29 percent.

"It is even worse with young people," Goodman said. "Only 15 percent — 1 in 7 — of the 18 to 20-year-olds expressed confidence in the way business is run."

Then Goodman walloped his audience with still worse news. A recent Harvard survey put this question to a broad sampling of children of various ages: "Do you think men who run large companies are honest?"

"When they got to the age of 11 and up," said Goodman, "more than half of the kids answered 'no.' We are still solid with the infants, for the moment."

If these findings do not shock businessmen to the very bottom of their balance sheets, something is drastically wrong with businessmen. Today's children are tomorrow's customers, investors, and employees. Unless their confidence can be regained, the business community will find itself in still more serious trouble. The people may have no more confidence in government than they have in business, but inevitably they will seek closer regulation of the marketplace. In time, little will remain of the profit system.

How did it happen? Unless business leaders make some sober studies of the "how" and the "why," they are not likely to come up with effective answers. Goodman's main point goes to an image of negativism: "All the way back to the nineteenth century, business has almost unbroken record of opposing legislation that the public thinks is good."

Goodman cited a dozen examples, running from the Sherman Antitrust Act to Medicare. He could easily have cited a dozen more. Has business ever been in favor of anything? It is hard to recall many measures in the public interest that have drawn enthusiastic support from business leaders. They have fought unemployment compensation, child labor laws, pollution abatement, milk dating, and load limits on trucks. They have fought building codes, zoning laws, mine safety, and federal deposit insurance. You name it: The next witness, representing business, has been against it.

I am not suggesting that business has been wrong in

Gloom Over Wales

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
AP Special Correspondent

SIRHOWY VALLEY, Wales (AP) — A winter gloom of despair, for themselves and their industry, hangs over the mining valleys of south Wales as the men from the pits ponder their strike vote Friday.

"They say we'll be voting ourselves out of existence," growled repair man Peter Padfield, coming off the day shift at the Oakdale colliery. "Then let the industry die a natural death. The youngsters won't have it. There is nothing there to attract them."

Wearing minstrel-show faces and sooty overalls, the men shuffled from the cage that jolted them out of the miles of underground tunnels and gathered around a union announcement on the wall of the lamp shed.

"Nobody wants a strike," said blacksmith Malcom Howls with a shake of his head, "but if the government wants coal it's got to pay a fair wage first."

Tommy Parr, lodge secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers at the Oakdale pit, watched the begrimed men troop off to the bathhouse.

"Not one man there under 40," he said. "Friday may be the last chance to salvage the industry. After years of being kicked around by the Labor government and now by the Conservatives, we are suddenly important because of the Arab oil squeeze."

Shortly after 6 a.m. Friday, when the night shift is wound up in the pits, the men will emerge from the clean clothes side of the pithead baths and place their yes or no answer in a ballot box outside the canteen on their union's call for authority to strike.

The strike call, tentatively scheduled for midnight next Saturday if the vote is affirmative, is the culmination of a three-month wage dispute that has already put nonessential British industries on a three-day week to save electricity.

The miners, whose output supplies most of the nation's energy needs, have refused to John Dillinger, a west gang leader and desperado, was in jail in Tucson, Ariz., today after his capture by "hick town" policemen. Wanted for a long series of crimes, Dillinger said he would "pull every string" to avoid extradition.

Police arrested a man in Kinston today for driving a horse "until its ankles bled." He drove the animal to a "Hoover cart" at high speed, police alleged.

Motorist reported they saw the rig "flying" over roads near the city. When the man drove into Kinston, officers examined the horse and found that partly-cast shoes had cut its ankles, inflicting painful injuries. The man was arrested and held for recorder's court.

The temperature was but a degree warmer today, with the mercury standing at a cold 10 degrees this morning.

Weatherman B. T. Clark, said that the temperature was three degrees lower than the lowest temperature readings last winter.

Communists Drain U.S. Wheat

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is exporting wheat at record levels, with Communist countries the leading buyers, government figures show.

The Peoples Republic of China and the Soviet Union currently are the biggest buyers of U.S. wheat, the Agriculture Department said Wednesday. The statistics were for the six-month period ending Dec. 30.

Overall the drain has been so big that only 178 million bushels will be left in the wheat reserve next summer about the time a predicted new record U.S. harvest begins to come in. That would be the smallest stockpile since 1947.

Here is the situation: China was shipped 95 million bushels of wheat worth $272.4 million in July-December last year. That compared with 20.8 million bushels valued at $35.3 million in the six months a year earlier.

Russia took another 72.2 million bushels worth $149.4 million, compared with 97.6 million bushels at $154.8 million a year earlier.

Those are the two leading buyers of U.S. wheat during the marketing year ending next June 30. Total exports to all countries are estimated at 1.2 billion bushels.

Total deliveries to all countries for the six-month period totaled a record 714 million bushels valued at $2.62 billion.

That was up from 475 million bushels worth $848 million in July-December 1972. Besides the increased quantity, export prices rose from an average of $1.79 per bushel at Gulf ports to $2.78 in the six months last year.

The wheat export surge began 18 months ago with huge orders for wheat from the Soviet Union. Prices at the farm level and at export points began rising sharply after July 1972. For example, the price of hard, winter wheat at Houston at mid-January was $5.80 per bushel, compared with $2.78 a year ago.

In an ironic development Tuesday a Soviet trade official suggested in New York that if the United States runs short of wheat this spring the Russians might be able to sell some grain to U.S. buyers.

Vladimir S. Alkhimov, a deputy minister of foreign trade, said it would be "no problem" to provide U.S. buyers with additional wheat if needed.

Radicals Blow Up An Oil Tank

SINGAPORE (AP) — Four Japanese radicals blew up an oil tank at the Shell refinery off

Singapore today, and three of them took six hostages aboard a ship in Singapore harbor, officials said.

The terrorists threatened to kill themselves and their hostages unless they were given safe passage from the island state, police said.

Marine police intercepted the ship and were reported to have it surrounded in the harbor's eastern anchorage.

Police said the fourth radical remained on the island of Pulau Bukom, the Shell refining center.

The four Japanese said they were members of the Japanese Red Army, the most radical of the Japanese student organizations.

The Japanese Embassy reported that the three radicals aboard the ship made a ship-to-shore telephone call to the embassy and demanded that Ambassador Tokichiro Uomoto come out to arrange for their departure by plane.

Police said a fire caused by the oil tank explosion had been put out and nobody was hurt.

After the noon-time explosion, three of the Japanese seized the ferry boat Laju which ferries Shell workers between Singapore and Pulau Bukom. A government spokesman said the terrorists were armed with explosives.

An army helicopter pursued the terrorist still on Pulau Bukom. He was believed armed with explosives also.

Government sources said Ambassador Umoto got in touch with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka in Tokyo, and Tanaka instructed him to negotiate with the radicals. The ambassador also conferred with Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore before going to the eastern anchorage to meet with the terrorists.

The sources said a Japan Airlines plane had been asked to stand by to fly the Japanese out of Singapore if that could be arranged.

In Tokyo, Chief Cabinet Secretary Susumu Nikaido expressed regret the Red Army was involved. He said the ambassador had been instructed to assist Prime Minister Lee in every way possible to resolve the incident.

The Red Army has been in the news most in recent years for the activities of some of its members on behalf of the Palestinian guerrillas.

About 70 of the organization's members are reported to have joined forces with the guerrillas.

Three of these carried out the massacre at Israel's international airport in 1972 in which two of the terrorists and 24 other persons were killed and more than 70 persons wounded. The third terrorist in that attack, Kozo Okamoto, is serving a life sentence in an Israeli prison.

Training For Cub Leaders

William B. Moore, Cub Scouting chairman for the Sunrise District B.S.A., reminded Cub leaders that a training session will be held on Saturday at 4:30 p.m. at Cornerstone Missionary Baptist Church.

Moore said that various programs will be discussed during the session including the aims and purposes of Cub Scouting, the den meeting, Cub Scout advancement, the pack meeting, boy and unit registration and re-registration, and fund raising.

The chairman, who noted that dinner will be served following the training period, said that Cubmasters, den leaders, den chiefs, denners, den dads and prospective Cub leaders are urged to attend.

ECU Center Is Reorganized

The East Carolina University computing Center has undergone a partial reorganization resulting in changes of responsibility for key management individuals.

Robert D. Bolonde, formerly Director of Operations, has assumed duties as Acting Assistant Director of the Computing Center. In addition, Bolonde has been designated Center Security Officer.

William E. Little has been appointed Acting Operations Manager, with responsibility for overall management of the entire Operations Department. Little's duties represent an expansion of his previous responsibilities to include management of the Key Punch function as well as Computer Operations and dispatching.

No Birthday Cake For Her

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — It was Shirley Turner's 38th birthday, but only her husband and two daughters partook of her birthday cake.

Mrs. Turner said Wednesday she has lost about 50 pounds since mid-November when doctors inserted a silver plate in her mouth and then cemented her upper and lower teeth to the plate.

The Nottingham woman weighed 247 pounds before the crash diet began and she is hoping to shed 135 pounds by June.

She can take liquid nourishment, but not solid foods.

Maddox Wants Aaron Portrait

ATLANTA (AP) — Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox, an avowed segregationist, has told Georgia legislators that a portrait of Atlanta Braves baseball superstar Hank Aaron should hang in the Capitol portrait gallery.

Maddox, who has protested the hanging of a portrait of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in the gallery, said: "There are some of them I wouldn't want here. But I'd like to ask the governor to give immediate consideration to hanging a portrait of Hank Aaron in the Capitol."

Three Accidents Here Yesterday

One person was reported injured and an estimated $2,550 property damage caused in three collisions investigated by Greenville police yesterday.

Officers said heaviest damage resulted from a 5:08 p.m. mishap on Greene Street near the Martin Street intersection. Drivers of vehicles involved in that collision were identified as Marcia Sue Bright of Route 6, Greenville and Ella Kathleen Whichard of 305 South Library St.

Investigators, who reported Miss Bright was injured in the mishap, estimated damage at $800 to the Bright car and $700 to the Whichard vehicle.

Mrs. Whichard was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety.

No charges were reported following investigation of a 5:28 p.m. collision on Greene Street 1,000 feet South of the Moore Street intersection.

Officers said an estimated $300 damage resulted to each of the two cars involved.

Drivers of the vehicles were listed as James Wilbert Futrell of Route 1, Bethel and Hannah Roberts Chapman of 800 North Railroad St.

Vaughn Allen Clark of Boone was charged with failing to stop for a stop light following investigation of a 10:30 p.m. collision at the intersection of Fifth and Cotanche Streets.

Police reported the Clark car collided with a vehicle operated by Jeffrey Howard Hazelton of Winterville.

Damage was set at $300 to the Hazelton car and $150 to the Clark auto.

Defends Autos As Polluters

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Texas Attorney General John Hill says state studies indicate automobiles contribute very little to the air pollution problem and that is why he is contesting federal restrictions proposed on automobiles in Texas' largest cities.

The suit filed by Hill's office challenges the Environmental Protection Agency which has ordered bus lanes, mandatory car pool lanes and moratoriums on downtown garage construction in most metropolitan areas.

(Continued from page 4) work weekends and overtime in support of their demands for a weekly pay increase from $81 a week to $101.25. The National Coal Board says the wage ceilings established under Phase III of Prime Minister Edward Heath's anti-inflation controls allow it to offer no more than an across-the-board increase of $5.17 a week.

A strike by the nation's 280,000 miners is the next step to enforce their wage demands.

Some coal pits in other parts of Britain voted today, but all the miners of south Wales go to the ballot box Friday. A 55 per cent affirmative vote is needed for a strike call.

South Wales miners rolled up 65 per cent, against a national average of 59 per cent, in the 1972 strike that crippled Britain for seven weeks. This time, the figure in the Welsh valleys may go higher.

Kilpatrick . . .

(Continued from page 4) every instance in the past; I surely am not suggesting that trade associations rush to embrace every foolish idea that a senator may propose in the future. But Goodman's blunt diagnosis will be wasted unless industry leaders undertake a search for opportunities to present an affirmative image.

The matter of health insurance, to mention one current example, provides such an opportunity. For many families, the cost of a major illness adds up to catastrophe. Willy-nilly, some legislative answer to this serious social problem is going to be written into law, and it probably will be written into law in this election year. What image will business leaders present? Positive, or negative?

A canny old statesman from southwest Virginia, Henry Gilmer, once set out to formulate a few rules for political leadership. Gilmer's First Law, as I recall, was to find out where the people want to go, and then take credit for leading them there. This is sound advice for politicians. It is sound advice for businessmen, too; and before they lose the kindergarten vote, they had better get on the ball and take it.

Winterville's Kiwanians Sponsor Annual Auction

ANNUAL FARM SALE...All types of farm equipment, such as tractors, combines, trailers, and plows will be auctioned during the 13th annual Winterville Kiwanis Club Friday. Also for sale will be barbecue dinners and other miscellaneous items.

WINTERVILLE—The Winterville Kiwanis Club will sponsor its 13th annual auction Friday, beginning at 9 a.m.

The sale will be held on the May Farm, located one mile north of Winterville on N. C. 11.

All types of farm equipment such as tractors, combines, harvesters, tobacco loopers, trailers, plows of all descriptions, antique goods, farm trucks and automobiles, and many miscellaneous items will be offered for sale.

barbecue dinners will be on sale, beginning at 11 a.m. Tickets for the barbecue dinner are being sold and, in case of bad weather, the tickets will be honored at the Winterville Fire Department. The dinner will still be held Friday even if the sale is called off because of bad weather. Drinks, coffee and roasted peanuts will also be sold during the sale.

Proceeds from the sale, which is the club's largest single moneymaking project, will be used toward community efforts.

According to Norman Worthington, chairman of the sale, anyone can sell and anyone can buy. The Winterville sale is the largest single type farm sale held by any civic club in North Carolina.

If the farm sale is postponed due to weather, announcements of the new sale date will be presented over the radio and in the papers.

Tom Langston is president of the club.

Vote On Zoning Bill Postponed

By ROBERT B. CULLEN Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Sponsors of a state zoning bill for North Carolina's coast have decided to postpone today's scheduled House vote on their bill.

Instead, they will submit the landmark environmental legislation to another round of public hearings in an attempt to appease local governments. Local interests from the coastal area sparked a rising chorus of opposition to the bill from eastern legislators Wednesday. Rep. Willis Whichard, D-Durham, said he decided to delay the vote for fear he would lose it.

One of the most vocal of the bill's critics was Rep. Chris Barker, a Democrat from coastal Craven County.

"We don't want some do-gooder from Durham County telling us what to do with our property," Barker said.

A delegation of officials from Dare County, a rapidly growing coastal resort area, met with coastal legislators late Wednesday afternoon to present their objections.

They said they felt the bill gave too much authority to a proposed Coastal Resources Commission, which would be appointed by the governor to set guidelines and enforce regulations.

The Dare officials said the coastal counties should be the ones to appoint the commission members, not the governor.

The coastal management bill is a complex, 51-page piece of legislation that, if enacted, would give unprecedented power to state government to control land use in North Carolina's 22 coastal counties.

The bill, after a series of hearings on the coast last summer, was rewritten to allow local governments to take the initiative in planning and enforcing the proposed guidelines and regulations. It leaves the state, however, with a veto power over most of the functions delegated to local governments.

Both houses in the legislature had negligible calendars Wednesday in a day given over mostly to preliminary committee studies.

The "super subcommittee" of the two Appropriations Committee got started on its job of preparing the final budget bill for enactment late in the session.

Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, told the committee it should be very careful about granting any of the $335 million in supplemental requests from various state agencies.

Justice Burger Visits Premier

TOKYO (AP) — U.S. Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, in Japan at the invitation of the Japanese Supreme Court, has paid a courtesy call on Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka.

Burger's wife joined the American jurist in the visit to Tanaka's residence on Wednesday.

Shad Queen Date Is Set

GRIFTON—Grifton area merchants and civic groups who wish to sponsor a candidate for the Shad Queen contestants are asked to contact Mrs. Catherine Whaley.

Girls must be between the ages of 16 and 21, have a Grifton route address or attend Ayden-Grifton High School, North Lenoir High School students with Grifton addresses are also eligible.

Sponsors will provide boats for the girls to ride in during the parade and pay a sponsorship fee of $10 which will cover costs of flowers, music and trophies for the queen, runners-up and Miss Congeniality.

The Shad Festival will be held April 5-7 with the pageant being held Friday night, April 5. The pageant is the opening event of the three-day festival.

Miss Jan Paget, a student at Meredith College, Raleigh, is the current Miss Shad Queen.

Director Sues Raquel Welch

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Raquel Welch has been sued by musical director Joe Guercio, who says he was underpaid and uncredited in two of the actress' productions.

The suit filed on Wednesday in Superior Court asks $348,500, including $5,000 allegedly owed for work on a television special, $200,000 in estimated earnings lost because Guercio did not get credit on the special, $43,500 for nightclub material and $100,000 in punitive damages.

Fire Report For County

Pitt County Fire Departments answered 659 alarms during 1973 and saved an estimated $3,700,325 worth of property, according to Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner's annual report.

The dollar value of property involved in or exposed to fire was estimated at $4,357,840, and the property lost at $657,515, he said.

Of the alarms, 133 were homes, 175 were other buildings, 54 were automobiles, 150 were grass, only one was commercial, 17 were false alarms, 72 were "others"; and 57 were mutual aid given to departments outside the county system.

121 persons were enrolled in four night schools for fire training, and 104 certificates given.

Some 13 buildings were burned by fire departments for practice. Joyner said some 225,137 man hours were spent in fighting fires, with 5,119 men going to fires. An estimated 257,498 gallons of water were used, he said.

Economists Say Govm't Behind Fuel Shortages

By RICHARD L. STERN AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A group of leading university economists says government policies here and abroad, rather than any shortage of oil, are responsible for current problems with the supply of petroleum products.

The economists also predicted that in four to five years oil might be a "glut" on the world market as higher prices bring greater production.

The group included Kenneth J. Arrow of Harvard University, cointerwinner of the 1972 Nobel Prize for economics, and professors from several other universities. It met for discussions Jan. 10 at a forum sponsored by the Conference Board, an independent economic research organization.

In releasing a report Wednesday on the forum, the Conference Board said the group's observations and conclusions "are partly based on informed opinion and judgment" rather than actual statistics.

The economists said they believe the United States should have no oil shortfall in the first half of the year as a result of restraints on demand for petroleum products.

But they added that some areas of the nation, such as the Northeast, may continue to have shortages, while others may have an overabundance.

The economists said domestic price controls had contributed to the supply problems. They also indicated that they believed the Arab oil boycott has been only a half-hearted effort.

They said the Arabs were actually breaking their own boycott and leaking supplies to this country through such intermediaries as Romania.

The economists also opposed further interference by the federal government in pricing or distribution of oil.

However, the participants said that the government can help in a more equitable distribution of supplies throughout the nation by examining what they described as antitrust problems arising in current distribution practices.

Will Abandon Coed Dorm

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Students of both sexes live side-by-side in Winston Dormitory at the University of North Carolina under an experimental arrangement, but the plan will end after this school year.

Dean of Student Affairs Donald A. Boulton recently sent a short letter to residents of the second floor of Winston informing them the arrangement "will not be continued next year."

"We were beginning to get danger signals," Boulton said Wednesday. "And we've got to be sensitive to several publics."

In canceling the room-by-room living arrangement, the university administration cited, among other things, "the potential to breed bad publicity."

"We're like buddies... but we're not sleeping together if that's what they think," said Michael Fitzgerald, a sophomore from New York City.

Winston's second floor is the only residence hall where adjoining rooms alternate by sex. Boulton's decision has brought complaints and protests from students. A huge poster has been painted near the student union with the plea "Save 2nd Floor Winston Now." Coeds are wearing sweatshirts stamped with the same message.

Take Lesser Charge In Selling Daughter

JOLIET, Ill. (AP) — A husband and wife accused of selling their 12-year-old daughter have pleaded guilty in Circuit Court of contributing to the dependency and neglect of the child.

After hearing the pleas Wednesday of Michael and Rita Flynn, Judge Robert Buchart set Feb. 28 for sentencing.

Harold Miller, 37, who pleaded guilty earlier this month to charges of abetting the neglect of a child, also is to appear on that date for sentencing.

The Flynns, of the Chicago suburb of Bolingbrook, said they received $26,000 as a dowry from Miller for Rita Jackie Flynn, whom they said he wanted to marry.

Authorities accused the Flynns of selling the girl, who has since been taken from their custody, as have two other children.

The Flynns were arrested March 20, 1973, and said they spent almost all the money to pay debts and to buy a new car and home furnishings.

Miller, of the Chicago suburb of Oak Park, and Rita Jackie were taken into custody at a motel in Asheville, N.C.

The misdemeanor charges the Flynns pleaded guilty to Wednesday had been reduced from child abandonment at the request of the Will County state's attorney's office. Miller was originally charged with conspiracy to commit child abandonment but this also was reduced.

Maximum penalty under the current charges against all three is a year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

Sinatra Sings After Two Days

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Singer Frank Sinatra has returned to the stage for his show business comeback after missing two days.

A spokesman for Caesar's Palace said Sinatra, 58, performed one show before a full house Wednesday night and is scheduled to close out his week-long engagement here with two shows tonight.

The hotel reported that Sinatra had laryngitis Monday night and missed Tuesday night with "a bad and upset stomach."

But Jim Mahoney, Sinatra's agent in Los Angeles, blamed both cancellations on "Vegas throat," which he described as a sore throat caused by air conditioning.

The deepest oil well in the United States was drilled in Oklahoma in 1972. It was more than 30,000 feet deep and a dry hole.

Saigon Girds For New Confrontation With China

Veteran To Speak At Sunday Service

"God and Country Day" will be observed Sunday at Trinity FWB Church from 9:45 a.m. until 12 noon, combining Sunday School and the morning worship. Special guest for the observance will be Clebe McClary, a Vietnam veteran who wounded during his 19th recon patrol. McClary, losing an arm, an eye and two-thirds of his teeth, has undergone 21 operations to restore his health. He has had plastic surgery to build back his nose and face. He will be accompanied by his wife Deanna, the former "Miss Florence, S. C.," and the Oakland Quartet of Charleston, S. C.

"What thrills me about him so much is that after going through all he has, he is still an excellent American who loves his country. In addition to being an outstanding Christian, McClary is a great American," stated the Rev. Al Davis, pastor of Trinity FWB Church. "Young people need to hear him. He tells you how you should stand up for your country instead of running it down."

All scouts, policemen and national guardsmen will be sitting together during the service.

The church is located off U. S. 264 bypass on Golden Road.

By GEORGE ESPER Associated Press Writer SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam today was reported replacing some of its forces on the disputed Spratly Islands in the South China Sea, a move that could lead to another confrontation with China. About 150 troops and three ships left the coast east of Saigon Wednesday to replace an equal number of soldiers on one of the islands, military sources said.

They indicated the move was aimed at continuing to show the South Vietnamese flag to back Saigon's contention that the islands are part of South Vietnamese territory.

The rocky, uninhabited reefs are 270 miles southeast of the Vietnamese coast. Like the Paracels, they may be surrounded by undersea oil deposits.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, Saigon's chief military spokesman, would neither confirm nor deny the reports.

China seized the disputed Paracel Islands, 540 miles north of the Spratlys, in a two-day battle with Vietnamese forces Jan. 19-20. As soon as the battle was over, Vietnamese officials started suggesting that the Chinese might move on the Spratlys next. Meanwhile, five of the 48

South Vietnamese who were captured by the Chinese in the Paracels battle were set free at the Hong Kong border and returned to Saigon for a hero's welcome. They had been held for 11 days.

China has said the others will be released but hasn't said when.

Cambodian government troops battled insurgents on four fronts around Phnom Penh Wednesday night. Fighting was also reported in two normally peaceful provinces about 200 miles to the northwest.

The military command said 10,000 government troops, supported by air strikes, continued to try to push the Khmer insurgents along the southern front back across the Prek Thnot River.

Exam Fee Is Being Ended

The $3 charge for taking the GED or High School Equivalency Exam has been dropped, according to George McRorie, GED examiner at Pitt Technical Institute.

The GED or High School Equivalency Exam is given the first and second Wednesday afternoons of each month from 12 noon to 5 p.m., with re-testing available any day of the week.

The next exam is scheduled for February 6 and 13.

Upon the successful completion of the GED exam, individuals receive a High School Equivalency Certificate, which is issued by the North Carolina Board of Education. The certificate is accepted as the legal equivalent of a high school diploma by businesses, government agencies and institutions.

Any North Carolina resident, 19 years of age or older may take the GED exam. Persons 18 years of age may take the exam if they have been out of school for at least six months.

There are no educational requirements for taking these tests. However, for persons wishing refresher work or practice in English, reading and math, refresher classes are available from Pitt Technical Institute.

For additional information concerning the GED Exam and refresher classes or activities, persons should contact McRorie, Pitt Technical Institute, 756-3130.

Really, You Are What You Eat

NEW YORK (UPI) — Food is the basis of life. In a new booklet prepared by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, that point is made.

"It (food) is the source of health and well-being, gives you the energy you need for every day living, affects your weight and height and even your strength to a great extent. In other words, everything in life begins with food and there is much to the saying—You are what you eat."

Rocky Mount Tops Rampants

Rocky Mount High School nipped the Rode High School Rampants in a wrestling match last night, 32-26.

Rocky Mount won eight of the 13 matches, while one other ended in a draw. The Rampants won only four, but all of them came on pins. Two of the Gryphon wins came on pins.

The loss dropped the Rampants to 4-9-1 on the year, and 3-4 for conference matches.

The Rampants will travel to Northeastern today for their next match.

Summary:

100: Dale Eatmon (RM) decided David Lazzo, 6-0.
107: Cecil Dunbar (RM) decided Mike Alexander, 4-1.

Leaders Claim City Victories

The second and third place teams in the City Basketball League both picked up wins last night, but league leading Coca-Cola was idle.

Kentucky Fried Chicken, in third place, rolled to a 104-47 rout of Edwards in the first game of the evening. By halftime, they had all they were to need with a 50-20 lead. KFC finished Edwards off with a 54-27 final period.

KFC was led by Al Faber with 26 points, while Chris Dominick had 23, Richard Slack had 20 and Gene Rackley had 15. For Edwards, Cleveland Johnson had 12, Linwood Hyman had 11 and Steve Johnson had 10.

The Eagles rolled to an 80-45 win over the Bucks in the second game. The Eagles built up a 35-23 lead in the first half of play, and outthit The Bucks, 45-22, in

A rally from 17 points down in the final eight minutes of play ound the East Carolina University Pirates just lacking ast night as Old Dominion held on to pull out an 80-78 victory.

The sixth-ranked small college power had its hands full in winning the game, and was actually outshot by the Pirates by 16 points from the floor. Only he fact that the Pirates didn't go to the foul line but three times saved the game for the Monarchs.

East Carolina hit just two of their three charity shots, setting a pair of new school records. Previously, the old mark had been four of eight against Richmond in 1959-60.

That meant the difference in the game. Old Dominion hit on 20 of 26 shots from the line, and it enabled them to pull out the victory.

The Monarchs also had the better shooting percentage, hitting a hot 52.6 per cent in the game. East Carolina made good on only 45.2 per cent for the contest. The Bucs outrebounded Old Dominion, 37-43, and had six less turnovers to help account for some of the extra baskets.

For a long time in the game, it looked like the Monarchs were going to make a runaway of it. With 7:25 left to go, they held a 17-point lead, but the hot shooting of Donnie Owens, who canned eight straight long-range shots, helped to bring the Pirates back.

East Carolina also led early, moving out by as much as eight points with 11:58 to go, in the first half but they were outthit the rest of the half, 34-12, as the Monarchs charged into a 14-point halftime lead.

The Pirates' leading scorer, Nicky White, played only briefly in the game, due to a strained knee suffered Monday night. Larry Hunt, who replaced him, did an excellent job, hitting 12 points and pulling down 13 rebounds.

East Carolina grabbed the opening lead as Roger Atkinson hit the first three field goals for the Bucs. Joel Copeland, the Monarch star, tied it up, but Atkinson hit his second and third for a 6-2 lead.

The Pirates held that until Atkinson hit again with 15:50 left to make it 12-6. Then, after another swap of baskets, Hunt scored to up the lead to eight, 16-8.

Old Dominion hit three straight to cut it back to two, but the Pirates pulled away again as Robert Geter got a jumper and Reggie Lee scored two straight for a 22-14 lead with 11:58 to go. But the Monarchs got hot right there and quickly climbed past the Pirates, forging as much as a 16-point lead in the half.

Jay Rountree hit two free throws, and Copeland scored on a three-point play. Oliver Purnell hit on a drive, and Copeland hit after a steal for a 23-22 Monarch lead. East Carolina regained it on White's lone basket of the night, but they went back out on another three-point play by Copeland, 26-24. Gray Eubank hit a free throw, and after a Pirate basket, the Monarchs ran off 13 straight points. Purnell hit two baskets and Eubank got another. Copeland scored from the line and Purnell made another basket. Tom Street added two charity shots, and Rountree finished the rally with two more, making it 40-26.

East Carolina finally got moving, but still found themselves down, 48-34, at the end of the half.

In the second half, things got no better for the Pirates. Old Dominion inched its lead out to 17, 59-42, after five minutes of play, and finally extended it to 19 at 63-44 a few minutes later. It then appeared they could make a runaway of it.

But the Bucs had other ideas and came storming back. Still down by 17 at 73-56 with 7:25 left, the rally by the Bucs began.

Owens started it out with a jumper and Lee hit another. Owens hit again, and Hunt scored from underneath. As the Bucs continued to steal the ball in their pressing defense, Owens struck again on a jumper, and Geter hit to cut it to five, 73-68. Atkinson scored to trim it to three before Old Dominion finally broke its scoreless string. Eubank got two free throws to run the lead back to five. Owens cancelled it, but Copeland got two at the stripe to push it back to five again.

Owens hit again, then Hunt scored to cut the lead to 77-76 with 2:12 to go.

The Bucs then had a couple of chances, but the ball was stolen once, and the other time, the shot bounced in and out. Copeland hit the lone field goal for the Monarchs during the last seven minutes to run the lead to 80-76, and a final shot by the Bucs cut it to the final 80-78 score.

Copeland finished the game as the high scorer for Old Dominion with 24 points, while Purnell had 17, Eubank had 15 and Rountree had 13.

Owens led the Pirates with 20, 16 of them in the second half, while Atkinson added 16. Lee, Hunt and Geter each hit 12 points.

The Pirates now 9-8, hit the road Saturday traveling to Greenville, S.C., for a 12 noon regionally televised basketball game with Furman University. That game may be seen locally over WNCN-TV.

Fieldcrest In Industrial Win

Fieldcrest Mills remained atop the Division One standings in the Industrial Basketball League with a close 56-55 win last night.

In the first game of the night, the Post Office went into an overtime to down Greenville Utilities, 79-71. GUCo inched out into a 38-32 lead in the first half, but the Post Office outthit them, 37-31, in the second, tying it at 69-69 at the end of regulation.

Thomas Perkins led the Postmen with 24 points, while Frank Ligon had 21, Curtis Sutton had 18 and Doug Teel had 14. GUCo was paced by Jimmy Sutton with 17, while Willard Jackson had 16 and James Ward had 12.

Fieldcrest had its hands full taking a 56-55 win over Pitt Memorial Hospital in the second game. Fieldcrest held a 29-25 lead in the first half, but Pitt Memorial came back with a 30-27 advantage in the second half, just short of catching up.

Billy Stokes led Fieldcrest with 26 points, while Louis

Williams had 18 and Charles Harrington had 12. For Pitt, Danny Edwards had 15, Jerry Ebron had 13 and Cecil Edwards had 13.

In the last game, Vermont-American downed Wachovia, 72-64. Vermont-American moved into a 47-24 lead in the first half, and coasted in. Wachovia outthit them, 40-25, but it wasn't enough.

Moses Joyner and Cleveland Taylor each had 18 for V-A, while Eddie Chance added 16 and Charlie Jenkins had 13. For Wachovia, Bill Baggett had 20, R. Brooks had 14 and Jeff Daniels and D. Hardison each had 10.

Foreman, Norton Sign Contracts

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — While Muhammad Ali claims to be the people's champion, George Foreman, the official holder of the heavyweight boxing title, is just a man of the world.

"I'd like to think that I'm as close to being an international citizen as anybody in the world right now," Foreman said Tuesday at the formal announcement of his third straight fight outside of the United States — a March 26 title defense against Ken Norton in Caracas, Venezuela.

While knowledgeable boxing people believe legal entanglements involving his finances and his management are keeping Foreman from fighting in the United States, the champion said:

income and Norton is guaranteed $200,000 against 20 per cent, said Barry Burnstein, president of Video Techniques, Inc., which will promote in conjunction with Telemedia de Panama.

The bout, which will be seen on closed-circuit television, will be held at El Poliedro, a new 14,000-seat indoor arena.

Foreman's purse should be the biggest of his career.

"Before I fought Ali, I was walking around with holes in my pockets instead of money," said Norton, who almost quit the ring two years ago because he was unable to make a living.

He got $40,000 for his first fight with Ali, which he won, and then $200,000 for the rematch, which he lost.

"Ken Norton is the No. 1 contender available," said Dick

"The title don't belong to any one country. I won the championship outside of the United States."

Foreman won the title by stopping Joe Frazier in two rounds at Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 22, 1973. In his only fight since, he knocked out Joe "King" Roman in one round in Tokyo last Aug. 31.

Foreman is guaranteed $700,000 against 40 per cent of all

Sadler, one of Foreman's handlers, who said that Foreman would have fought Ali or Frazier but that they elected to have their rematch instead.

But barring an upset, sooner or later Foreman and Ali will have to get together because of the tremendous financial potential such a fight holds. Figures like $5 million apiece for the fighters are mentioned.

Thompson Shines As Pack Tops Maryland

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
David Thompson has led North Carolina State to a basketball victory over Maryland for the second time this season.

And this time at the sixth-ranked Terps' Cole Field House, where they had a 13-game victory string.

He scored 31 of his 39 points in the second half to rally the second-ranked Wolfpack to an 86-80 victory Wednesday night. It was the 12th victory in a row and the 13th this season for N.C. State, which has lost only to top-ranked UCLA. State also is unbeaten in five Atlantic Coast Conference games, and has won 24 straight over ACC opponents.

The Wolfpack trailed 67-59 with 9:03 remaining, and then Thompson put on a great performance. During the next 4½ minutes he scored 10 points in a 17-4 Wolfpack spurt which gave them a 76-71 lead.

Maryland, now 12-4 in all games and 2-3 in the conference, pulled within 82-80 on a tap-in by Tom McMillen with 5 seconds to play after Mo Rivers missed two free throws for State.

But little Monte Towe, who scored 16 points, dropped in two foul shots for State with three seconds remaining, and added a field goal at the buzzer.

McMillen made 28 points, 20 of them in the second half.

Thompson had scored 41 points in the 80-74 victory over Maryland on Jan. 13.

All the other ACC clubs also played Wednesday night. North Carolina, Clemson and Duke won and Wake Forest and Virginia lost. The teams are idle tonight and Friday night. On Saturday, Duke will be at Maryland and Virginia at N.C. State in televised games. Clemson will be at North Carolina, and Wake Forest at Virginia Tech.

Mitch Kupchak had 19 points and Darrell Elston 15 to lead fourth-ranked North Carolina to a 77-67 victory at Wake Forest. The Tar Heels are 14-2, and 6-1 in the conference. The Deacons are 9-6 and 2-4. They got 14 points apiece from Mike Parrish and Skip Brown.

A goal by Dan Moody with 6:49 to play pulled Wake Forest within 56-54, and the Deacons called time out to set up a game-tying play. But North Carolina's Ray Harrison stole the inbounds pass and scored on a jumper to break the Deacon momentum.

Wake Forest Coach Carl Tacy said of the inbounds play: "It shouldn't have happened the way it did. We didn't come to the ball. That was a very important factor in the game. Had we come down and scored, we could have controlled the tempo for the rest of the game."

Jeff Reisinger scored six of Clemson's seven overtime points as the Tigers withstood The Citadel's slowdown game and won 62-58 at home.

He hit a 12-foot jumper with 3:20 left in the overtime to break the 55-55 deadlock in which the regulation game ended. He also scored on both ends of one-and-one free throws in the overtime.

The lead seesawed until almost the end of the regulation game, when Clemson's Terrell Suit hit a 10-foot jumper with 21 seconds left. The Citadel had another shot from the floor, but missed, and 7-foot-1 Wayne "Tree" Rollins of Clemson snared the rebound for the tie.

Clemson is 10-7. The Citadel of the Southern Conference is 9-6.

Chris Redding scored a point a minute to lead Duke to an 89-72 home victory over Davidson of the Southern Conference.

which had recently beaten Wake Forest and Virginia of the ACC.

Redding played only 26 minutes and scored 26 points. Davidson managed to pull even at 63-all with eight minutes to play, but the Blue Devils reeled off 11 straight points to end the Wildcats' threat. Bob Fleischer got six of those points and Kevin Billerman the others.

Fleischer had 16 points and led the rebounding with 12 as Duke won its 999th game since the school, then Trinity College, began playing basketball in 1906. The Blue Devils have lost 512.

They are 8-7 this season. Davidson, which had won its last six before the Duke game, now is 12-6.

Virginia lost 90-85 in overtime to West Virginia. Levi Phillips hit both times on a one-and-one for West Virginia at the end of regulation play to tie the game at 77-77. And the Mountaineers continued to excel at the free-throw line in the overtime, hitting eight penalty shots, including six straight, by Phillips and Warren Baker. The leading scorers were Baker with 30, Phillips 18, Gus Gerard of Virginia 25 and his teammate Wally Walker 21.

West Virginia, the home club, is 6-9, and Virginia is 5-10.

ABA Files Suit Against The ABA

By BERNARD HURWITZ
Associated Press Writer
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The American Basketball Association and nine franchise owners have filed a suit against the National Basketball Association and 17 of its franchise holders which could, if successful, revolutionize the signing of players to contracts.

The $600-million suit filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court charges fraud, breach of contract and antitrust violations.

The antitrust portion seeks $100 million trebled as damages while $100 million is sought for breach of contract and $200 million for fraud.

The court was requested to prohibit the NBA and its members from signing any new player contracts not negotiated and paid for by an individual team owner.

The ABA also asked the court to prevent the NBA from signing or enforcing existing player contracts containing any form of a reserve or option clause, and to limit NBA player contracts to one year.

It also asked the court to join the senior loop from signing any contract, agreement or having an understanding with any player enrolled in any university, college, junior college, high school or preparatory school for four years from Jan. 30.

The suit said that since the NBA was formed in 1949 it deliberately monopolized major league professional basketball.

The ABA, organized in 1967, alleges that the NBA and its members have eliminated competition by controlling, limiting and restricting acquisition of players, including superstars, by ABA members; television coverage; adequate playing facilities, and geographical areas to the disadvantage of the ABA.

In connection with the breach of contract, the court was told that in May, 1971, the ABA and NBA agreed to merge and pledged to work for federal legislation to exempt the merger from antitrust laws.

The ABA said the agreement remained in effect until Jan. 4, that it had used "its best efforts" to encourage passage of the legislation, but the NBA "failed and refused to exercise their best efforts" for passage.

The fraud was alleged on grounds that NBA's representation that it would employ its best efforts to obtain merger legislation was "false and fraudulent."

Gilmore Sparks East To Win In Star Game

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer
NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Artis Gilmore, Kentucky's tree-top tall center, often has been accused of not playing up to his potential and "doggin' it" during his brief American Basketball Association career.

Statistics would tend to bear out that criticism, since the 7-foot-2 pivot man's figures have dwindled steadily in each of his three seasons with the Colonels. Gilmore, meanwhile, continually has denied the charges — and Wednesday night he added emphasis to his claim, spearheading the East to a 128-112 victory over the West in the seventh annual ABA All-Star game. The 24-year-old center was named the game's most valuable player after scoring 18 points, leading the East with 13 rebounds and topping both teams in blocked shots with four.

Babe McCarthy, the East

coach and Gilmore's coach during the regular season, pointed to the towering youngster as the difference in the game.

Julius Erving of New York agreed with McCarthy. "Artis did it all," said Erving.

Gilmore, the ABA's Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player in the 1971-72 season, was more excited about the three boats he received for being voted the game's outstanding player. "I love scuba diving," he explained. "I'm really good at it, and I'll probably take the boats to Florida with me in the summer and do some scuba diving."

The East's victory and Gilmore's selection as the MVP overshadowed a glittering performance by Swen Nater of San Antonio. The 6-11 Nater, who was understudy to Bill Walton, UCLA's two-time All-American and Player of the Year, scored 29 points and grabbed 22 rebounds, both game-high figures, in 28 minutes.

Nater set four All-Star games records, including most rebounds (22), most offensive rebounds (13), most two-point field goals (13) and most two-point field goals attempted (24).

The young Spurs center, the only rookie on the West team, was the recipient of loud cheers from the crowd of 10,624, the largest ever at the Norfolk Scope. He had begun his pro career this season as a member of the Virginia team, before being sold to San Antonio in mid-November for $300,000.

Nater, however, did not have as much offensive support from his teammates as did Gilmore.

The East, conforming to its pregame plan of trying to outrun the undermanned, slower West, raced to a quick early lead, sprinting to a 9-0 advantage in the first 1:30. After that, the West never caught up, although it managed to close the gap to two points on five occasions in the third period.

The final time, when the score was 79-77, the East ran off a 207 burst, including seven consecutive points by Kenon at the end of the quarter, and surged to a commanding 99-84 advantage after three periods.

Move Is Approved

CINCINNATI (AP) — The American Basketball Association has reportedly voted to proceed with efforts to relocate an ABA team, possibly the Carolina Cougars, in Cincinnati next year.

The Cincinnati Enquirer reported today that the secret vote was unanimous.

Cincinnati Sports, Inc., a group which owns 40 per cent of the Kentucky Colonels and a World Hockey Association franchise, has begun construction of a multi-million dollar 16,000-seat sports arena near Riverfront Stadium—home of the Cincinnati Reds and Bengals.

The Cincinnati Royals of the National Basketball Association moved to Kansas City two years ago, citing lack of fan support.

They played at Cincinnati Gardens.

Back Inks Buc Pact

East Carolina University announced the signing of another grant-in-aid in football this morning.

The latest signee is Thomas Summer Jr., a 6-1, 205-pound back from Cherryville, N.C. Summer was twice selected to his All-Conference team as a back, and was also named as a linebacker his senior year. He received an honorable mention in All-State, and was selected as Player of the Year in his 3-A conference. His own school named him as the Most Valuable Player and the Most Outstanding Back his senior year.

New Tire-Cutter Is In Operation At Landfill

TIRE CUTTER. . . Pitt County Manager Reginald Gray and Greenville City Manager Bill Carstarphen watch county planner Howard Hurlocker operate a new $3,700 tire cutter purchased by the county and placed into operation at the Greenville landfill. The cutter slices tires in half so they can be buried at the landfill successfully. (Reflector Photo By Stuart Savage)

A new $3,700 tire cutter is now in operation in the county—slicing tires in half so they can be successfully disposed of in landfill operations here.

The machine, purchased by Pitt County Commissioners, will be operated at the Greenville city landfill until a new county site is opened.

County residents with two, three or four tires to dispose of may take the tires to either the county landfill at Littlefield, or to the Greenville landfill site. However, individuals or business firms with more than four tires to junk will be required to deliver the tires to the Greenville site for disposal.

the pile of buried trash, he said.

A thousand or more tires are disposed of every week in the county, officials estimate. The tire cutter will make disposing of the used rubber much easier.

The machine can cut 120 to 150 tires—regular or steel belted—per hour.

Why a tire cutter?

According to County Planner Howard Hurlocker, uncut tires buried in landfills will "work their way to the surface," and pop out of the ground. Uncut tires buried in landfills will trap air and will vibrate and work their way upward as heavy trucks and machinery run over

Industry Hires Nuclear Sailors

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Navy sailors who have received training and experience in Navy nuclear propulsion, primarily in submarines, are being told that their skills are marketable in industry.

In recent weeks at least three large corporations have sent representatives to Tidewater to interview their sailors.

They are Stone & Webster Engineering Corp. of Boston, United Engineers and Constructors, Inc., of Philadelphia, and Bechtel Corp. with offices in Gaithersburg, Md., and elsewhere.

The corporations came to Norfolk because of its reputation as the world's largest naval complex.

While industry maintains that it is not trying to steal men from the Navy, it is offering them very attractive benefits.

These include good salaries, moving expenses, and 100 percent tuition assistance for those who wish to continue their educations. The most recent corporation to visit Tidewater was Stone & Webster. It completed three days of interviews here Tuesday.

A company representative, John Hamlet, explained that Stone & Webster designs and constructs nuclear power plants.

"With this energy crisis the burden has been placed on us and others to get these things up as fast as possible," he added. "To do this we need manpower."

Hamlet also explained why Navy people are so valuable to his firm. "We find that fellows even without a college degree often know more than college graduates if they have Navy training."

"They have this understanding of the whole nuclear background. That's exactly what we need."

Hamlet said these people have become a "scarce commodity. Most are pretty savvy guys, and it's only circumstances that kept them from being engineers."

The fact that they aren't engineers is not an insurmountable obstacle, however. If they want to obtain the qualifications at company expense," then they could make us one super engineer," Hamlet said.

Stone & Webster interviewed about 30 nuclear sailors during its three days in Tidewater and hundreds more in recent interviews on the West Coast, according to Hamlet. "We're hiring almost everyone who comes in."

Bruce Thiel, an employment specialist for Bechtel Corp. in Gaithersburg, said his firm has met with more than 100 East Coast Navy people since July and hired about 30 of them. The sailors ranged from third-class petty officers to captains.

But there is a problem in this apparent nuclear bonanza. The Navy needs its sailors as much as industry does, and it wants to keep them.

A spokesman in the Navy's Bureau of Personnel said Tuesday the service has 8,200 nuclear-trained enlisted men and about 2,300 nuclear submarine officers. They have been trained by the Pentagon at a minimum cost of $23,500, he said.

While in the Navy, these men must put up with long periods at sea, long family separations, and the usual hazards of life on a warship. To compensate for this and to meet industry competition, the Navy has begun offering thousands of dollars in bonus money.

For example, a nuclear-trained petty officer with six to eight years of Navy experience gets a bonus equivalent to two years of his base pay on re-enlisting for four years.

These bonuses, called "continuation pay," were initiated in 1972. They are credited with raising the retention rate for nuclear-trained petty officers from a "low, low" figure to the present 35 percent.

Officers receive a $15,000 "nuclear bonus" if they meet certain eligibility requirements and agree to stay in the Navy four extra years. These bonuses also are credited with aiding retention.

In fiscal 1970 the retention rate for all submarine officers, nuclear and nonnuclear, was said to be 33 percent, but by fiscal 1973 it had risen to 47 percent. The goal for this fiscal year is 50 percent, according to a Bureau of Personnel spokesman.

ERA Will Be Main Topic

The Equal Rights Amendment will be the main item on the program of the January meeting of the local chapter of the National Organization for Women (NOW).

Nelson B. Crisp, Greenville attorney, will discuss the legal aspects of the amendment at the meeting which is scheduled for tonight at eight o'clock in the meeting room of the First Federal Savings and Loan Building. All interested persons are invited to attend.

An award will be presented to Kathy Taylor of Bethel, the chapter's special guest of the evening, who recently was the winner in her age group in the National Junior Olympics cross-country two-mile race, Nashville, Tenn.

The Eastern Carolina chapter of NOW is one of 200 chapters across the nation. NOW members include women and men of all ages and racial groups who are working for equality of opportunity for women in all phases of American society.

Veterans Families May Be Entitled To VA Medical Care

Under provisions of Public Law 93-82, wives and children of veterans rated totally disabled from service-connected disabilities are eligible for medical care from the Veterans Administration. Widows and children of veterans who died as a result of a service-connected disability are also eligible.

The new program, known as Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Veterans Administration (CHAMPVA), is similar to the CHAMPUS program for dependents of retired Armed Forces personnel or dependents of those dying in service. Payments under both programs are paid by North Carolina Blue Cross-Blue Shield in North Carolina.

Entitlement ceases when a widow or wife becomes entitled to Medicare coverage under the Social Security program. Basic benefits consist of payment of 75 percent of costs of in-patient hospital services; and reimbursement of 75 percent of costs of out-patient services after initial costs of $50 per person, per fiscal year, have been met.

All participants are cautioned to retain receipts given them at time they pay for professional services and prescription drugs, as proof of payment will be needed in order to file for refund from Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

An initial supply of forms requesting Identification Cards verifying entitlement to benefits has been received by the District Office of the North Carolina Division of Veterans Affairs located at 1203 West 14th Street and persons eligible for these benefits are urged to contact this office in order to establish entitlement prior to their actual need for the services provided.

Student Given Study Grant

Scott Hartness, senior geology student at East Carolina University, has received a research grant from the North Carolina Academy of Science in support of his research on "Infrared and X-ray Diffraction studies, on Xonotlite from Durham, North Carolina."

The study is sponsored and supervised by Dr. Pei-lin Tien, Assistant Professor of Geology at ECU.

Now, for the first time ever, you can get a mortgage commitment before you even look for a home.

We're not saying we were the first to come up with the idea. No, anyone who's ever looked for a house has wished such a thing existed.

What we're saying is that we're the first financial institution around here with the courage to actually do it.

Give you a mortgage ahead of time.

That mortgage, The Early Mortgage, is our commitment on paper to reserve a certain sum for you. You don't have to use all the money. You don't even have to use any. But for three months, the term of The Early Mortgage, you have the certainty that if you need that money to buy a house, it's going to be there.

And, if interest rates should go up during that period, you are not affected at all. You get the exact rate of interest that we agreed upon when we first approved your Early Mortgage.

When you do find a house you want, we'll look it over and make sure it justifies your investment. That works for you, and is something we have to do on every mortgage in any case. And there'll still be "closing costs." We haven't found a way to do away with them yet. But that's about it.

House hunting just became a lot simpler. 🏠

Supervisory Personnel Take Training Program

Supervisory personnel employed by the city are participating in a series of management development training programs sponsored by the city in cooperation with the Extension Division of Pitt Technical Institute.

City Manager Bill Carstarphen explained that the series, which began in mid-January and continues through April, is for the benefit of city department heads, division supervisors and foremen. Seminars are being held on the subjects of supervision, human understanding, improved communications, motivation, and contrasting managerial styles.

Carstarphen said that John Behr, training consultant with Pitt Tech, is conducting the program. The sessions, which include two, two-hour seminars each week, are being held in the new training room of the Utilities Building.

The official noted that the purpose of the series of programs is to examine new trends in the practice of management and to provide supervisory employees an opportunity to improve their managerial skills.

By the time the training program is completed in April, he added, approximately 70 supervisory personnel of the city will have completed a 12 hour block.

The seminars are part of the city's new personnel management and employment development program, Carstarphen said. He pointed out, "We are pleased that Pitt Tech is able to give us this type of help."

Drivers are generally ignoring North Carolina's new 55 miles per hour speed limit. But fewer are being cited for speeding and fewer are having accidents.

An Associated Press newsman drove from Charlotte to Greensboro on Interstate 85 Wednesday, Jan. 23, in an attempt to find out how well motorists are abiding by the lower speed limit.

He found that if you drive along at 55 m.p.h. you will be passed by nearly everyone else on the road. But those who pass you won't zip by at 75, 85 or 95, they'll ease around at 60, 65 or 70.

State Highway Patrol officials say the reduced speed, although not being followed strictly by motorists, is reducing traffic deaths and speeding citations.

Lt. Col. Edward Jones, patrol commander, says it has been effective enough to consider changing the speed limit to 55 permanently, and there is some legislative sentiment for such a proposal.

Capt. L. J. Vance, who oversees patrol operations in the eastern half of North Carolina, estimates a 25 per cent drop in speeding citations during January as compared to last January.

Of the speed limit, he says, "We are enforcing it, but we certainly aren't going out there and make mass arrests. That wouldn't be accepted by the public."

Vance says patrolmen are assigned where traffic is heaviest or sections of roads where more accidents occur. So, if traffic on a certain road is flowing smoothly, a patrolman may leave it and go where he is more needed.

The AP newsman, driving at 55, made a 15-minute check of how many vehicles passed him on the way to Greensboro.

From 9 a.m. to 9:15 a.m., the count was five tractor-trailer rigs and 11 other vehicles, mostly cars but also a couple of pickup trucks.

On the return trip another check was made from 12:30 p.m. to 12:45 p.m. The count was 14 cars and similar-sized vehicles and six tractor-trailers.

The only vehicle passed by the newsman was a Volkswagen driven by an elderly woman on the return trip.

Other drivers have reported similar experiences.

In a letter that appeared in the Thursday, Jan. 24, editions of the Charlotte Observer, Donna Magee of Charlotte said, "On a recent trip between Charlotte and Greenville, S.C., ON I-85, I was made aware of both the dangers and the inequities of the 55 m.p.h. speed limit. I maintained my speed at between 50 and 55. However, few other drivers seemed to do so. Not only was I continuously passed by private automobiles, but also by large tractor-trailers."

The newsman also made a spot check of gasoline stations on the way to Greensboro.

Three stations—Gulf, Texaco and American—were surveyed in Concord. Prices for the three grades of Gulf were 44.1, 45.1 and 49.6. Texaco was 46.2 for regular and 49.7 for high test at the full-service pumps, and 48.9 and 45.9 at a self-service island. American was 54.8 and 50.3.

Four stations were checked in Greensboro. An Exxon station's prices for three grades of gasoline were 45.6, 46.9 and 49.6. A Phillips 66 station showed 49.9 for regular and 53.9 for high test. It was 46.9 and 50.9 at a Mobil dealer, and 47, 49 and 51 at a Shell outlet.

There was no lines at any of the stations and no limit on the amount a motorist could buy. Most dealers said they were closing at night. Some said they were selling only a certain number of gallons a week.

Wade Cobb, 28, a Shell dealer in Greensboro, said he was limiting his sales to 8,000 gallons per week in January so he wouldn't run out at the end of the month. He also said he has stopped staying open at night.

Cobb was asked why he thought prices varied so much from station to station. "It depends on what the stations were selling it for last year," before Phase IV economic controls, plus the increases they have been allowed recently, he said.

In his case, he said, "If the company raises me a penny, I raise my prices a penny."

Committee OKs Move Adding To N.C. Judges

RALEIGH (AP)—The House Committee on Courts and Judicial Districts has approved legislation to increase North Carolina's Superior Court judges by five and the number of district court judges by seven.

The approval came during a debate in which Rep. Liston Ramsey raised the question of whether the state was getting its money's worth out of its judicial manpower.

Ramsey asked the committee if "we are dipping into the taxpayers' pocket to hire judges to do the work of judges who won't work?"

Ramsey said he did not intend to name names, but he could "point out a judge who does not work one month a year."

Rep. C. Kitchin Josey, D-Halifax, replied that the state indeed does have some "incompetent judges" and some "lazy judges." He added, however, that the situation had improved greatly in recent years with the selection of younger

The Worry Clinic Toxic Hazards To The Unborn

Maureen is involved in a medical "triangle" that is upsetting her husband. And may lead to lifelong tragedy for her child. So face the medical facts outlined below. And don't be tricked by buck-passing propaganda, like the thalidomide hullabaloo!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-539: Maureen W., aged 26, is involved in a unique "triangle."

"Dr. Crane," her worried husband began, "Maureen is pregnant."

"And that would delight both of us, except for the fact she is an alcoholic!"

"So she is making a nervous wreck out of me, for I recently read that a couple of pediatricians in Seattle have warned alcoholic mothers about the possible deformities of their unborn babies."

"Isn't it dangerous for pregnant women to drink liquor, and even smoke cigarettes?"

An uproar developed in Germany a few years ago because many expectant mothers were taking a certain tranquilizer.

And here in America its use was finally stopped by the Food and Drug Administration after 4,000 deformed babies were born to such tranquilizer mothers.

Yet 72,000 other defective babies were born that same year right here in America!

What caused these additional 72,000?

The thalidomide hullabaloo served as a neat propaganda "smoke screen" to divert attention from the fact that thousands of those pregnant wives were also smoking and drinking heavily.

In Germany, those pregnant women who were so jittery as to demand chemical tranquilizers from their doctors, were often guzzling liquor and chain smokers.

So thalidomide became the convenient "whipping boy."

Those medical experts at the University of Washington merely described what astute physicians have long noted.

Which is the higher incidence of deformities in babies born to alcoholic mothers.

And you laymen can see why such infants can be damaged in the womb by such foreign chemicals in the mother's blood stream.

For you have already been alerted to the damage that German Measles can do to a mother, especially during the first 3 months of her pregnancy.

Toxins (whether from alcohol, tobacco or virus) can produce paralysis even in a grown man like former President F. D. Roosevelt.

Yet the delicate embryo in the womb has its arm buds sprouting before the embryo is no bigger than your little finger.

If alcohol can produce toxic delirium tremens in a grown man or woman, whose weight may be 150 to 200 pounds, think how susceptible a 1-ounce embryo can be.

The offspring of alcoholic mothers not only are often crippled, mentally defective and slowed in their growth even after birth, but the same is frequently true of babies born to smoking mothers!

For smoking women are far more prone to miscarriages, smaller infants, and a higher incidence of defects in their offspring!

Later this week I'll explain the psychological reason for Maureen's heavy use of alcohol.

But all you expectant mothers should lean over backwards to give your unborn babies a fair break in life!

Don't start them out as feeble-minded, or lacking an arm or leg, or with heart damage, paralyzed limbs, etc.

So send for my booklet "Facts About Pregnancy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Basic Welding Course Offered

A 60-hour course in basic electric welding will begin Monday at D. H. Conley High School.

Course content will consist of sources of electricity for welding, welding circuit, fundamentals, symbols, starting an arc and running stringer beads, running continuous stringer beads, and building up operation with bar rod.

Total cost is $4.08 including books.

Class hours are from 7 p.m. each Monday and Thursday for 24 sessions, thus ending approximately April 25.

All interested persons should plan to enroll at the first meeting.

Garden State Parkway Advertises Its Virtues

WOODBRIDGE, N.J. (AP) — The Garden State Parkway is trying to promote the energy saving virtues of its asphalt straightaway like a company selling toothpaste.

But instead of 23 per cent fewer cavities, the Parkway offers 4.5 fewer gallons of gasoline used.

The Parkway runs the length of the state from the New York line to Cape May opposite Delaware without stoplights and intersections to slow up traffic. It is encouraging people who have to ride to use its road instead of toll-free, but often slower, local roads.

John P. Gallagher, executive director of the New Jersey Highway Authority, which operates the Parkway, said commuters are being told they can save gas and time driving the road.

"Most of our commuters drive suburb to suburb, not suburb to city," Gallagher said. "They have to drive. With the gasoline crunch driving our revenues down, we want them to ride us."

The Parkway has been hurt by the gasoline shortage, with stations able to sell only $1, $2 and $3 worth at a time. The stations are closed on Sundays. The Parkway says that toll roads in other states are not nearly so gasoline-short and a few have stations open on Sundays. Toll revenues were down 6.8 per cent in December. That translates to $3.5 million. In its new budget the Parkway assumes an 8 per cent dip in tolls in the year ahead. Other toll roads in the country have reported similar revenue losses.

PEANUTS
IF A PERSON REALLY LOVES SOMEONE AND WANTS SOMETHING NICE TO SAY, YOU KNOW WHAT HE CAN SAY?
HE CAN SAY, "THANK YOU FOR BEING YOU!"
AREN'T YOU GOING TO THANK ME?
SO FAR, MY WHEEL IS A TOTAL FAILURE, IT JUST HAS NO CONSUMER APPEAL.
HAVE YOU TRIED LOADING IT UP WITH GIMMICKS?
THAT'S IT! HOW 'BOUT IF I PUT A GAS TANK ON IT?
YOU'D BE BATTING A THOUSAND.
WOMEN... BAH! THEY THINK THEY'RE SMARTER THAN US MEN.
TRUE... TRUE!
THEY TRY TO ACT SMARTER, LOOK SMARTER, DO SMARTER THINGS!
IT COULDN'T BE... COULD IT?
I HAD A LITTLE PROBLEM WITH MY CHECKING ACCOUNT.
I HAD $14 IN THE BANK AND WROTE A CHECK FOR $36.
BUT I WORKED IT ALL OUT.
I WROTE ANOTHER CHECK FOR $22 TO MAKE IT BALANCE.
IS IT TRUE YOU'RE GIVING SARGE BREAKFAST IN BED?
YEAH... CORN FLAKES, TOAST, BANANAS, PANCAKES AND SYRUP.
AFTER WHAT HE CALLED YOU THIS MORNING, I'M SURPRISED.
SARGE WILL BE TOO.
IT'S ALREADY IN HIS BED.
MY PLAN... FOR THE PHANTOM... MAY NOT WORK, PRINCESS...
TRY IT... OR DADDY WILL MAKE ME MARRY SOME STUPID DUKE... OR SHEIK...
CAPT. MARKO, I'VE CHOSEN YOU FOR A SECRET MISSION... EVEN MY FATHER MUST NOT KNOW. MARRA WILL EXPLAIN.
BZZ BZZ ?!
CAPTURE... THE PHANTOM? PRINCESS... THAT IS IMPOSSIBLE...
YOU WILL NOT GO ALONE... THIS IS MY COMMAND... YOU HAVE NO CHOICE... CAPTAIN...
THE GIRL! WHERE'S THE GIRL??
GET HER, YOU IDIOTS! LOWER THE LAUNCH AND GET... THAT... WOMAN!!
OWEN'S ON BOARD... SOMEWHERE... BUT HOW DO I GET TO HIM?
WHAT?... OH— WE WERE BUSY FISHING YOU OUT, CAPTAIN...

Months Owe Their Names To Romans

By AP NEWSFEATURES
The months of the year owe their names to the Romans. January was named after Janus, the Roman god of gates and doors, usually represented with two faces.

And, in keeping with his two-faced character, Janus brings the northern parts of the world their coldest weather while bringing the southern regions their warmest.

February comes from the Latin word meaning to purify. In ancient Rome, February was the last month of the year and the Romans purified themselves during this month in preparation for the festivities of the new year, according to researchers for World Book Encyclopedia.

Later, Julius Caesar changed the calendar, moving the beginning of the year from March to January. March, called Martius by the Romans, has traditionally marked the end of winter and the birth of spring.

April may come from the Latin word meaning to open. The growth and animal activity subdued by winter begin to blossom during this "opening" month.

There are several stories about how May got its name. The most widely accepted, according to World Book researchers, is that it was named for Maia, Roman goddess of spring and growth. However, some scholars say that May is short for majores, the Latin word for older men. They believe that May was the month sacred to the Roman majores.

June, on the other hand, was the month Romans set aside for juniors, the young men. Another theory is that the month was named after Juno, the Roman goddess of marriage. Our seventh month, July, was once the fifth month for the Romans. It had been named Quintilis, meaning fifth. When Julius Caesar readjusted the calendar, making January the first month, he renamed Quintilis after himself, since he was born during that month.

The case was similar for August. Originally it was called Sextilis, which means sixth. It was later renamed to honor Emperor Augustus. According to tradition, Augustus lengthened the month to 31 days by taking a day from February.

September, coming from the Latin word for seventh, kept its name when the calendar was rearranged by Caesar, despite the fact it became the ninth month.

October, named after the Latin word for eighth, also managed to maintain its original name, despite attempts by the Roman Senate to name it Antoninus, after the Emperor, Faustinus, after his wife, and Tacitus, after an historian.

November, on the other hand, named after the Latin word for ninth, was about to be named after Emperor Tiberius Caesar. Tiberius, instead, declined the honor offered him by the Roman Senate and left us with November.

Environmentalists Oppose The Disposable Habit

By MICHAEL J. CONLON
WASHINGTON (UPI) — America's disposable society, which stacks trash heaps and drains energy wells at the same time, should be halted where it began—in industry—says President Nixon's top environmental adviser.

Russell W. Peterson, 57, a native of Portage, Wis., took over in December as Chairman of Nixon's Council on Environmental Quality (CEQ). He is no stranger to industry. He is a former Dupont chemist who led the research that developed the "Dacron" fiber.

He also, as governor of Delaware, froze the industrial development of that state's shrinking shoreline to protect the remaining Atlantic dunes and beaches from the marching smokestacks of progress.

How much influence Peterson will wield within the administration remains to be seen, since CEQ advises the White House on environmental issues but enforces no laws.

But under Peterson's predecessor, Russell E. Train, it had some influence in getting legislation drafted. Train became head of the Environmental Protection Agency last summer.

Disposable Disgrace
Asked in an interview about America's rapacity for non-returnable bottles, plastic containers and multi-wrapped paper products, Peterson said the disposable phenomenon "is kind of disgraceful in a way."

"By either a voluntary effort or a promotional effort or by some government regulation, we ought to change the trend," he said, adding:

"One of the things I believe merits serious consideration is requiring that every manufacturer be responsible for the ultimate collection, disposal and reclaiming of its products. For example, say an automobile company.

"If they had the responsibility to recover their automobile after it finished its service, you can bet that they would start designing automobiles to facilitate the recovery of the materials in them."

"They might even go so far as to say 'Well, we're going to get back all of our Chevrolets after four years.' Calculation might show that would be a good time to bring them all back and pay the owners X dollars and then proceed to recover the materials in them."

Asked how he would apply the concept to the countless consumer products on the market, Peterson said he had no "nice clear little formula."

Energy and Environment
"I picked the automobile because that would be an easier one. A refrigerator, an air conditioner, a radio, a television set might also be easy to handle. With some things like bottles and cans, maybe the way that could be handled would be if the manufacturer would initiate his own mechanism for collecting them—or maybe the community would do that and then charge the manufacturer the cost of collection and disposal."

"But it seems to me that when a person manufacturers and sells a product to the community, the operation ought to carry the expense of how we eventually dispose of the product," he added.

Peterson believes the energy crisis will have no long-term negative impact on efforts to clean up the air and water.

"In fact, I think the opposite will happen—that the energy crisis will force us to face up to some of the things we haven't been facing up to in the past," he said. Less demand for energy and less waste of it, he said, could ease the pollution problems that accompanied the time of high demand and liberal use.

Reduce Demand Curve
Peterson believes wiser use of existing energy reserves—including coal—accompanied by a zero growth rate in the population, will permit America to solve its energy problems.

"I believe we can markedly reduce the demand curve for the next 20 or 30 years, and produce an amount of energy within our own shores and as a result stop usurping so much of the world's energy as we have been doing."

One benefit of the energy crisis, Peterson believes, will be a change in the way many Americans live.

"I see this as resulting in a marked acceleration in the movement to mass transit and that in turn would lead to making the central cities more viable, making them a more attractive place to shop, to go for entertainment, to live," he said. "It might well play a key role in helping to rejuvenate our central cities."

TV Show Lives Up To Publicity

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — One tends to be suspicious when a network, a sponsor and a publicity firm all start heavy drum-beating for a TV special a full month before it airs.

You get the feeling they're trying to salvage a bad, expensive project with massive puffery.

But our suspicions were wrong in the case of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," a two-hour drama CBS-TV is broadcasting tonight. This is a fine show and you ought to see it.

It's a beautifully told tale of a Southern black woman's 110 years of life. It starts with her freedom from slavery at the close of the Civil War and ends with her tottering but defiant steps into the start of the new war for civil rights in 1962.

Now, "profoundly moving" is a tattered cliché those in the TV review racket use when a serious show doesn't put them to sleep in 10 minutes.

But it's the only description that seems to fit this production, filmed in and around Baton Rouge, La., based on a 1971 novel by Ernest J. Gaines and adapted for television by Tracy Keenan Wynn.

"Miss Jane," from age 22 to 110, is brilliantly portrayed by Cicely Tyson, who again displays the incredible range of talent that won her both wide acclaim and an Academy Award nomination last year for the movie "Sounder."

The story of the proud, spunky woman she plays is told through a simple, effective device—memories recalled in her age-cracked voice for an eager-to-please young white reporter from the North, sent by his magazine to profile the life of this former slave woman.

The reporter—Michael Murphy—arrives at a time black activists, called "agitators" on the local radio, are seeking Miss Jane's support in the opening wave of civil rights demonstrations that swept the South in the early 1960s.

"Do you remember getting your freedom?" he gently asks her.

It sets the stage for a unique—for whites—history lesson about 97 years of terror and kindness, hatred and love, pride and frightened servility, brave intelligence and white-robed ignorance.

Call it the black experience if you will. By whatever title, this is a superb drama flawed only occasionally by snatches of hockey dialogue in some segments dealing with the present.

The direction by John Korty is unobtrusive and effectively helps the story along without flash or fancy angles.

The acting is uniformly good, with particularly fine efforts by young Valerie O'Dell, who plays Miss Jane as a child; Rod Perry, cast as Joe Pittman, her first husband, and Thalmus Rasulala, who portrays a black educator and former soldier Miss Jane has known from childhood.

As for Miss Tyson—well, she didn't get the Academy Award for her movie, but if she doesn't get an Emmy for this performance there's something extremely wrong in the television world.

$160,022 In ECU Grants

A total of $160,022 was awarded East Carolina University research projects and service programs during December, according to the ECU Office of Sponsored Programs.

Most of the funds originated from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration through UNC-Chapel Hill, which is supporting ECU projects in geology, health and physical education, biology and continuing education.

A grant of $50,000 was awarded Dr. Charles O'Rear, ECU biologist, by the N. C. Department of Natural and Economic Resources for a water quality survey.

The chemistry department received funds from the N. C. Board of Science and Technology and the Triangle Universities Consortium on Air Pollution.
