Death Toll At 186 In Brazilian Skyscraper Fire

By MARCELO LINS

SAO PAULO (UPI) — Firemen searching through smoke still pouring from a fire-gutted Sao Paulo skyscraper found more bodies Saturday, raising the death toll to at least 182. Police probed reports that a bomb threat had been telephoned shortly before the inferno in the 22-story building.

Sao Paulo authorities voiced angry accusations that inflammable construction materials and inadequate exits contributed to the disaster that trapped hundreds of persons on the roof and upper floor of the modern downtown Joelma Building Friday.

Mayor Miguel Colasuonno said the flames shot rapidly through the office tower because the builder had used "inflammable material" in the upper floors and said a new building code would be drawn up immediately. "It will contain new safety and preventive measures against fire and all kinds of disasters", he promised.

"Most of the victims were cooked," said Fire Chief Jonas Flores Ribeiro Jr. "At least 80 per cent of the deaths were caused by panic."

Ribeiro said the building had inadequate sprinkler systems and the fire stairs "were only 11 inches wide."

By noon Saturday, the city morgue reported 182 bodies—many burned beyond recognition—had been brought in. Only 110 have been identified. Many bodies were mangled from falls as the victims, desperately trying to escape the intense heat and smoke, leaped from the building.

Amid the accusations that the building was constructed with flammable materials and lacked adequate fire exits, civil authorities vowed Saturday to take prompt action to alter the city's construction code.

Several newspapers reported a telephone operator said she received an anonymous phone call on Thursday threatening that a bomb would go off in the building Friday morning.

Fire officials, however, said "our experts have determined that there was initially only one focal point to the fire, which would seem to halt the supposition that it was intentionally set."

"But we cannot make hasty conclusions and we prefer to await the results of our investigation," he added.

Prices Of Some Foods Continue To Go Up

By United Press International

Prices of some food staples are continuing to spiral upward, according to a survey of supermarkets in 10 major cities.

Eggs and milk lead the way, costing more in most of the cities than they did in the second half of 1973.

Bread prices have dropped in as many cities as they have risen, and the price of chicken varies sharply.

The prices of bread, eggs, milk and chicken were surveyed by UPI in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Columbus, Washington, D.C., Chicago, Atlanta, Dallas, Boston and New York.

The highest prices were found in New York City, where it cost housewives more to buy the four items thn it did in surveys conducted on July 18 and Nov. 21 last year.

Supermarket managers blamed continuing increases in costs on everything from inflation, higher grain costs to farmers and last year's beef shortage to higher wages in the food industry.

But, said Safeway market manager Larry Mosler in Dallas, "consumers are getting smart. They are not buying as much and they are really watching prices."

The survey found that the price of a dozen AA large eggs jumped 22 cents to $1.05 in Boston, and 15 cents to 91 cents in Washington for the steepest rises since the last check on Nov. 11. Only two cities reported a drop in prices, down 6 cents to 83 in Atlanta and a drop of 3 cents to 74 cents in Los Angeles.

The price of bread showed the sharpest increase in Washington where it was 16 cents higher at 40 cents a loaf, but in Columbus dropped 16 cents to 33 cents.

Morgan Seeking People Support In Campaign

By CARL L. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

N.C. Attorney General Robert Morgan is putting his trust in the people of North Carolina to finance his campaign for the democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Speaking in an interview here Saturday morning, Morgan said "I could raise the $350,000 we have set as a budget for my campaign in one week if I wanted to accept the funds of special interest groups.

"But I don't want the support of General Motors or special interest groups, I want the support of the people of North Carolina."

Morgan spent several hours in Greenville Saturday morning at the Ramada Inn meeting people and soliciting support for his campaign.

Morgan intends to take his campaign to the people personally, meeting citizens and asking for small contributions in order to take the May 7 primary for the Democratic nomination.

If he wins the nomination, Morgan said he would expect the Democratic party to take over and help him with his campaign.

Morgan expressed dismay that Henry Hall Wilson, also running for the Democratic nomination, told an audience in Charlotte that his campaign would be financed from outside of the state.

When asked why he has not resigned from office since announcing his candidacy, Morgan stated he felt it necessary to keep the justice department separated from the governor's office.

"I've got a good staff and I would hate to see it completely done away with within six months by the governor if I were to resign now," he said.

Although not a professional in international affairs, Morgan stated he has had extensive experience in national and international affairs, but intends to concentrate on North Carolina as his prime interest.

Widely traveled in the state, the candidate said he feels his wide knowledge of North Carolina from public instruction institutions to the mental hospitals cannot be matched by any other candidate.

Asked what his primary interest will be if elected, Morgan

"In order for Pitt County to continue to grow educationally, culturally, and economically, we must be progressive and insist on efficiency in all phases of our county government," he emphasised. "We must develop short- and long-range plans for the total development of Pitt County, but we must also be ready to accommodate necessary changes that are in the best interests of our citizenry. With the terrific economic strain that Pitt County citizens are undergoing, we must give the taxpayer a dollar's worth of services for his tax dollar."

He is currently chairman of the Pitt County Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees and vice chairman of the United Fund. Poll Shows Many Nixon Critics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A poll made public Saturday showed that nearly two-thirds of all Americans last December considered themselves critics of President Nixon.

The poll, conducted by the Roper organization and released by the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), said that 36 per cent of those surveyed last December considered themselves "strong critics" of the President. An additional 27 per cent said they were moderate critics.

Thirty-eight per cent of those surveyed said Congress should establish the President's guilt or innocence in administration scandals through impeachment proceedings. Another 24 per cent called for his resignation.

The Roper organization concluded that "support for the President continues to erode." It said the survey indicated Nixon "picked up slightly in the South and with independent voters, but the general picture remains of a public disaffected with its president."

Gromyko-Nixon To Meet Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko will meet with President Nixon on Monday, the White House announced today.

Gromyko will fly to Washington Sunday in a Soviet airliner from Cuba where he has been accompanying Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev on a visit to Premier Fidel Castro.

Seven-State Influenza Outbreak

ATLANTA (UPI) — The National Center for Disease Control (NCDC) Saturday reported a seven-state outbreak of influenza, the first major occurrence of the disease this winter.

The outbreaks were reported in Georgia, Illinois, Iowa, Michigan, Minnesota, Oklahoma and Wisconsin.

In addition, the Texas State Health Department said flu-like diseases have closed some Texas schools and caused high absenteeism in other areas.

World's Biggest Yo-Yo

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) — Students at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have built "the world's biggest yo-yo."

They plan to drop it Monday from the roof of a 21-story building and keep it going with a giant mechnical "finger."

The yo-yo's creator is Dr. James H. Williams, 32, an assistant professor of mechanical engineering, who put the contraption together with the help of 10 students during MIT's semester break.

It's made of two 26-inch bicycle wheel rims connected by a steel shaft. The string is heavy-duty braided nylon cord.

To keep it going, Williams and his students concocted a 9-foot aluminum beam, or "finger," run by a 1.5 horse power motor. It will jerk the yo-yo back each time it hits the end of the 265-foot cord.

"We had a lot of problems," Williams said. "For example, how do you pump a yo-yo. It's not something you ever have to consider when all you have to do is yank your finger.

VA To Pay Bailey's Bills

CHICAGO (UPI) — Leroy Bailey, a faceless and sightless Vietnam veteran whose treatment by the Veterans Administration drew the concern of President Nixon, has turned again to a private doctor for help. But this time, the VA says it will pay the bills.

Bailey, 26, hopes that if he undergoes a series of painful operations by Dr. Charles Janda, a plastic surgeon in suburban Oakbrook, he might be able to chew solid foods again. Besides being blind and having only the traces of a nose, Bailey has been on a liquid diet since his face was "shot off" by an enemy rocket in 1968.

Doctors at Hines Veterans Hospital say they can perform similar surgery on Bailey, but they are not as optimistic as Janda. Bailey is reluctant to return to Hines.

After he was injured, he underwent dozens of operations there for three years. Then doctors discharged him, saying there was no more they could do, and Bailey went on feeding himself by squirting liquids into the cavity where his mouth used to be.

In 1971, Bailey got surgical help from Janda, who also heads the plastic surgery unit at Chicago's Mercy Hospital, but the VA refused to pay the bills because it said Bailey's injury was not "service-connected."

Renew Traffic Check

BERLIN (UPI) — East German police were reported Saturday to have renewed their checks on traffic heading for West Berlin from West Germany despite Allied protests that such restrictions violated an agreement on unimpeded access to this isolated city.

According to border police in Bavaria, the East German authorities halted and inspected traffic to Berlin Friday night for the second time since the Big Four agreement designed to lessen tension here was signed 18 months ago.

Bomb Explodes In Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — A bomb blast at a railroad station here injured a fireman and two ambulance attendants responding to a blaze that had broken out moments earlier with the explosion of another bomb.

Police cleared Belfast's Great Victoria Street railroad depot after receiving a telephone call saying four bombs were planted there. A parcel left in a restaurant exploded after the station was cleared, starting a fire.

While firemen fought the blaze, a second bomb exploded near a line of telephone booths, injuring the fireman and two ambulance attendants, neither seriously.

Arab Guerrillas Seize Greek Ship In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (UPI) — Three Arab guerrillas brandishing machine guns and hand grenades hijacked a Greek freighter in the port of Karachi Saturday and demanded the release of two fellow terrorists jailed in Athens.

Authorities said the men, believed to be Palestinians, threatened to blow up the vessel if the two jailed Arabs—recently sentenced to death by the Greek government for a bloody airport attack in August—were not released within 24 hours.

The fate of the 33 crewmen of the ship, the 7,727-ton L.D. Vori, was not known. Ten crewmen were said to be Arabs. Reports said the guerrillas took two officers hostage, but then released the captain, identified as Constantinos Blatsiotis, after two Pakistani doctors confirmed he was suffering from a heart condition. The Vori, owned by the Compania Naviera Carica of London, was in Karachi unloading sugar from Brazil.

The incident was the second hijacking of a vessel in Asian waters within 48 hours by terrorists identified with Arab causes.

A ferry boat, commandeered by four men in Singapore after an abortive attempt to blow up a Shell refinery, sat in Singapore Harbor Saturday surrounded by police boats for the third day as negotiations deadlocked over the hijacker's demands they be allowed to fly to an Arab country.

After word of the Karachi incident reached Athens, Greek foreign minister Spyros Tetenes called in Arab ambassadors to discuss the situation.

"The ambassadors were told by the minister of the situation and were asked to intervene to avoid unpleasant developments against the crew," the spokesman said.

The Karachi incident was the second effort to free the terrorists in Athens—Shafik El Arid, 22, and Talal Khantourah, 21.

Last Dec. 17, five Palestinian guerrillas hijacked a Lufthansa plane after killing 31 persons by firebombing a Pan American plane in Rome and flew to Athens to demand the release of the two.

Court Order Is Issued For Removal Of Trucks

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP)—Davidson County Sheriff Fred Sink said late Saturday night that a court order had been signed to remove nine milk trucks blocked in by striking truckers.

Sink said he had conferred with Judge Robert Collier Jr. of Statesville and "it is my understanding that he has" signed an order sought by owners of the refrigerated trucks.

The sheriff said he had not received the order and "it is my understanding it is still in the hands of the people who obtained it."

He said he assumed his office would receive the order Sunday or Monday.

Earlier Saturday, Phil Kirk, administrative assistant to Gov. Jim Holshouser, said Judge Collier had signed the order and that 15 state troopers were being sent to assist Sink in clearing the nine trucks from the Roadranger Truck Stop, where about 75 trucks were parked.

But Sink said since he had not received the order, no highway patrolmen were needed. He said he had been assured by Kirk and highway patrol officials that the troopers had been put on alert, and would be ready to assist if needed.

Floyd Johnson, a spokesman for the North Carolina Independent Truckers Association, said the owners of the milk trucks had decided to wait until Monday to deliver the court order.

Johnson said drivers were allowed to leave the truck stop and that many had gone home.

Meanwhile, the leader of the protest urged company drivers not to move their vehicles if their employers obtained court orders for their release.

Mere Shadow From Phil

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (UPI) — Never in his years as a weather forecaster has Punxsutawney Phil, the groundhog, vacillated.

In the past, if Phil cast a shadow Feb. 2 after he emerged from his burrow, there was no doubt that six more weeks of winter weather was in store. But at 8:28 a.m. Saturday, Phil barely cast a shadow.

Sam Light, longtime president of the Punxsutawney Groundhog Club, was mystified. But he recovered his aplomb and interpreted the wan shadow as meaning six more weeks of mild winter weather.

But in Sun Prairie, Wis, there was no such indecisiveness.

Jimmy, locally reputed to be the only "official" weather forecasting groundhog, climbed from his burrow through new-fallen snow Saturday and definitely saw no rays of the sun.

Thus, he forecast an early spring—at least for the Wisconsin prairie.

Surcharge Ups Local Light Bills

An increase in the fuel surcharge for electricity will be reflected in the February bills of Greenville Utilities customers, GUCO director Charles Horne reported Friday.

Horne said that the commission was advised by Virginia Electric and Power Co. that GUCO's fossil fuel charge for February would be 1.93 mils per kilowatt hour or $0.00.24.

He explained that the increase in the fuel surcharge the Utilities Commission pays Vepco is directly attributed to the rising cost of Venezuelan oil that Vepco must buy to generate power.

The increase for local consumers, Horne pointed out, means roughly five to ten per cent for the average customer. He said that although it is difficult to pinpoint an "average" consumer since rates fluctuate in summer and winter, the average user has been paying approximately 2.25 cents per kilowatt hour. With the increase, the price would go up to some 2.94 cents per kilowatt hour.

The fuel adjustment surcharge for electricity was added to local bills in January and it was noted at that time that the surcharge would be flexible in reflecting future increases or decreases in fossile fuel prices.

Horne said that as Vepco's generating costs fluctuate as a result of oil price increases, the increases naturally "come back to us each month on an adjusted basis." He added, "Whether we like it or not, when Vepco's costs go up, the consumer has to pick up the tab on a graduated scale each month."

Great Train Robbery Escapee Found In Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Ronald Biggs, the Great Train Robbery convict tracked down at a Rio hotel nine years after escaping from a British jail, is expected to be returned to England shortly, a British official said Saturday.

Although no extradition treaty exists between Britain and Brazil, Biggs was said to have told Scotland Yard he would go back voluntarily.

Biggs escaped from prison while serving a 30-year sentence for his role in the $7.26-million theft of used banknotes from a train on Aug. 8, 1963—the biggest such robbery in history.

(In London, the Daily Express reported Biggs was penniless and had decided to "square his account." It quoted him as saying: "I have discovered that my life is empty without my wife and children. I had a terrifying dilemma—whether to stay free and risk never seeing them again or to give myself up and enjoy a happy old age with them.")

Henry Neill, the British consul in Rio de Janeiro, said two English detectives approached Biggs Friday in the Hotel Trocadero on Copacabana Beach.

"The two chaps located Biggs and told him, 'we know who you are and now what do you want to do?'" Neill said.

"Of course a foreign government cannot arrest anyone in Brazil, so Brazilian authorities have been kind enough to house Biggs for the time being," Neill continued.

"Biggs signed a statement in front of me indicating his desire to return to the United Kingdom to face any charges that may be brought up against him," the consul said.

Neill said he expected Biggs to return to England in a few days.

Carlos Alberto Garcia, a deputy of the Brazilian federal police, said Biggs apparently had been living in Brazil for the past three years under the name of Michael Haynes, working as an interior decorator.

Less than $1 million of the train robbery loot has been recovered, although 15 persons, including Biggs, eventually were arrested and convicted. Most of the stolen banknotes ceased to be legal tender last September.

It was the second time that Scotland Yard located Biggs since he escaped over a wall at Wandsworth Prison with three other men. He flew out of Australia just before officers raided his home there in 1969.

In the Great Train Robbery, a gang acting with commando-like precision rigged a false signal which made a Royal Mail train stop near Cheddington, northwest of London, then overpowered the train crew and broke into mail cars where used banknotes were being carried on their way to be destroyed.

106 Year Old Former Circus Aerialist Dies

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Larry Lewis, the 106-year-old former circus aerialist and assistant of Houdini who ran 6.7 miles every day through Golden Gate Park, died Friday of cancer.

The centenarian could run 100 yards in just over 17 seconds, carry a 200-pound sack across a hotel ballroom, and he boxed every day at the Olympic Club.

Lewis, who became ill only recently, was a veritable dynamo and could outrun and outwalk men half his age.

Lewis celebrated his 102nd birthday by running 100 yards in 17.3 seconds, half a second faster than on his 101st birthday.

Dr. S. Barrie Paul, his physician, credited Lewis' health to good living habits and genetics—"the right combination of parents."

Until he "retired" at the age of 105 Lewis also walked several miles every day to his job as a hotel banquet waiter where he lifted heavy trays.

After "retirement" he took a job as goodwill ambassador for an employment agency, but continued his athletic activity without a slowdown.

Born in 1867, Lewis grew up playing with Indian children.

"A Navajo Indian, Chief Iron Shell, my grandfather, taught me the most important thing in life. He told me to never stop exercising and to try to treat everyone as you want to be treated."

When he was 15, he joined P. T. Barnum's circus as an aerialist and acrobat.

For 33 years Lewis was an assistant to the legendary magician Houdini, and until Lewis' death he delighted in amusing friends by escaping from straitjackets.

Lewis hardly had an ounce of fat on his five-foot-seven, 136-pound frame. He subsisted on a daily small portion of lean meat, steamed vegetables and three gallons of spring water. He did not drink, and he did not smoke.

Lewis left no survivors. His second wife, Bessie, whom he married when he was 86, died of a heart attack in 1972 at the age of 75.

Three Rare US Stamps Sold For $100,000

BOSTON (UPI) — A set of three unused 1896 American stamps with inverted centers sold for $100,000 Friday night at what was described by the auctioner as "the largest auction in the United States in the past 10 years."

The stamps were part of 224 lots, which netted $500,000, as about 70 of the nation's top stamp collectors and dealers gathered in a quiet room of the sedate Parker House Hotel.

Irving Koslow, vice president of Stampazine, Inc., New York City, bought the featured lot at the sale of the major collection of Charles A. Schafer of Augusta, Ga.

One of the 1896 American stamps, a 15 cent brown and blue stamp featuring an inverted scene of Columbus discovering America, is among only three of its kind known to exist and was said to be worth $40,000 as a separate item.

The set of inverts, valued at only $13,500 in 1955, was purchased by Schafer for $85,000.

The auction's proprietor, Stanley J. Richmond, said there were at best only three or four prospects nationwide in a position to bid on the famous set.

It "was one of the rarest sets of inverts in the world and the only known complete set in unused condition," said Koslow.

Also included in the American three-stamp set was a 24 cent green and violet stamp with an inverted scene depicting the signing of the Constitution, and a 30 cent blue and carmine with inverted flags, said to be worth $35,000 each.

Another stamp, a 1918, 24 cent, carmine, rose and blue air mail stamp with an inverted picture of a biplane in the center sold for $29,000.

Most of the active bidders chose to remain anonymous, only using their initials during the auction.

Violence Marks Truckers Strike In 12 States

Armed National Guard troops patrolled Pennsylvania highways and scouted for snipers by helicopter in Ohio Saturday in an effort to stem violence in a strike by independent truckers threatening to choke off food supplies and paralyze industries.

Meat packing plants in at least nine states began closing down, raising the prospect of lack of meat and higher supermarket prices. Serious shortages of food were predicted in some states within the next few days.

Thousands of workers in auto, steel and electrical equipment plants were being laid off with even bigger industrial shutdowns feared if the strike by truckers demanding cuts in diesel fuel prices lasts much longer.

In Texas, drivers of 18 tank trucks filled with tequila from Mexico stopped on the shoulders of highways near Laredo to join the strike.

Governors of nine states were called to an emergency meeting in Washington Sunday to discuss with congressmen, federal and state officials and representatives of the trucking industry efforts to reach a settlement in the dispute.

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield sent telegrams to federal energy chief William Simon and Senate Commerce Committee Chairman Warren G. Magnuson Saturday calling for immediate action to settle the truckers' strike. He said the strike "could have disastrous effects on the entire country" if it continued.

Gunfire, beatings and other violence, widespread in the three days the strike has gone on so far, were reported Saturday in 12 states—Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Alabama, West Viriginia, Iowa, Tennessee, Virginia, Delaware, Maryland, Texas and Kentucky.

Less than a half-dozen injuries were reported all told.

The big rigs blockaded truck stops in Southern California and Georgia, but fuel tankers began moving out of oil depots in New Jersey Saturday after a strike-caused delay in deliveries of gasoline in the New York metropolitan area.

About 1,500 Pennsylvania National Guardsmen patrolled highway overpasses to prevent sniping and boulders being dropped on top of trucks still operating. Lt. Gov. Ernest Kline said Guard helicopters would keep an eye over the highways Sunday and the state's entire 21,000 guardsmen would be called out if necessary.

Guard choppers were scouting over major roads in neighboring Ohio with orders from Gov. John J. Gilligan to search out snipers and report potential trouble buildups to the highway patrol.

Florida Gov. Reubin Askew offered Guard tankers to haul fuel for emergency services that were drying up because of the driver stoppage, but no one took him up on it.

Price, Wage Controls Lifted On Many Stores

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Stores that handle about 25 per cent of the country's retail sales have been freed of price and wage controls, but officials said they foresee no sharp price boosts.

Among those not affected are retail food stores, and Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council indicated that controls in that area are not likely to be lifted soon.

"Certain food prices are expected to rise increasingly in the months ahead," he told a news conference, adding that retailers' profit margins may not be to blame.

Stores removed from Phase 4 controls are those handling hardware, building materials, garden supplies, general merchandise, boats, recreational and utility trailers, apparel and accessories, furniture and home furnishings, and food and drink sold by establishments doing less than $50 million in sales yearly. Only chain restaurants do more than that.

In addition to food stores, controls remain in effect over retail stores of petroleum and its products, motor vehicles, parts and equipment and large eating and drinking establishments.

"I do not think it will make any appreciable difference" in retail prices, Dunlop said. "I don't honestly expect them to be any different than they otherwise would have been."

The action does not affect wholesale prices, which have been rising about twice as fast as retail levels, and it does not exempt executive compensation from wage regulations.

The council said that 10 of the largest retail firms have made commitments that they will not exceed fiscal 1973 pretax operating profit margins. In much of the retail industry, that fiscal year ended on Thursday and the new one started Friday.

"Because these commitments extend to most of the largest retailing companies who have operations in every state," Dunlop said, "they will undoubtedly have a restraining effect on price increases across the entire industry."

The 10 firms are Sears, Roebuck & Co., Marcor, Inc. (formerly Montgomery Ward), J.C. Penney Co., S.S. Kresge Co., Federated Department Stores, Inc., F.W. Woolworth Co., Allied Stores Corp., Broadway-Hale Stores, Macy's, Inc., and Marshall Field & Co.

The council promised to keep a close watch on periodic reports required from the larger firms affected, and Dunlop said it would take action if that seems to be necessary.

The council estimated that 49 per cent of the nation's sales by dollar volume was covered by price-wage controls two days ago, and that just over 25 per cent now remains under controls.

Dunlop said the goverment has been engaged in a gradual process of removing controls but "we have no specified timetable in mind" for their complete removal.

N.C. News Brief

Plenty of Stolen Gas

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—Service station operator William Dickerson advertised that he had plenty of gasoline.

Saturday, Dickerson was in jail under $4,000 bond, charged with receiving 8,400 gallons of stolen gasoline.

Thursday, Vance County authorities charged Michael Taylor of Henderson with truck larceny, after a gasoline tanker was stolen from Tri-County Oil Co. and later found abandoned and empty.

Officers said the gasoline was stored at Bill's Exxon service station, operated by Dickerson, just north of Henderson on I-85.

Duke Receives Chinese Art

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Duke University announced receipt Saturday of a collection of Chinese art believed to be one of the most outstanding in the country.

The gift was from retired Army Col. Van R. White of Mebane, N.C., who was assigned to Peking before the Communist revolution.

The collection includes 140 pieces of jade, porcelain, bronze, ivory and wood carvings and a few paintings assembled during White's three-year tour in China.

The collection, appraised at almost $1 million, will be housed in the Duke Art Museum after an opening exhibition in March, the university said.

Rules State Gift Is Taxable

GREENSBORO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service contends the state cannot legally make a nontaxable gift of money to anyone.

It says that therefore Mrs. Alice W. Broughton widow of Gov. J. Melville Broughton, owes $4,918 in taxes on income she received between 1968 and 1970, mainly from a state pension of $3,000 a year.

She contends the money voted for her benefit by the legislature is a gift. The IRS contends it is for service rendered to the state by Broughton, and therefore is taxable.

Minister 3rd Senate Contender

RALEIGH (AP) — William H. Hare of High Point, who says he is a "working man's candidate," has become the third contender to file for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate in North Carolina.

Hare, who arrived in Raleigh on Friday after a four-day walk from High Point, joined Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan and Charles B. Riddle of Goldsboro in the contest.

Henry Hall Wilson of Monroe, former president of the Chicago Board of Trade, also has announced his candidacy as a Democrat, but has not yet officially filed with the State Board of Elections.

Hare is an ordained minister in the Christian Church and is the president of a High Point pet shop. He has no previous statewide political experience.

Disc Jock's Rock Knocked

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Brother Dave Bell, a disc jockey on WIST, played hard-rock music with biting lyrics as a background comment to President Nixon's State of the Union message while it was being broadcast live Wednesday night.

Garrett Allen, manager of the radio station, said, "It was in extremely poor taste, and Dave has been severely reprimanded for it."

Allen said that Bell, whose program is called "Alternative," will remain on the air.

While the President was saying, "One year of Watergate is enough," listeners could hear Beatle John Lennon singing "Give Me Some Truth."

'First In Freedom' Auto Tags

RALEIGH (AP) — The state Department of Transportation has approved the slogan "First in Freedom" to be imprinted on North Carolina's new five-year auto license plates.

The plates will be issued for the first time next year if the General Assembly approves a bill authorizing the action. The five year tags would be renewed annually by obtaining stickers which would be attached to the plates.

The approved slogan, which is an attempt to promote the national bicentennial celebration in North Carolina, is a reference to the first provincial congress, held in August, 1774, in New Bern.

Liz Fentress, media director for the state bicentennial commission, said the meeting "was the first major organization of anti-Royalist sentiment in the colonies." She said many historians consider the 1776 Philadelphia meeting, where the Declaration of Independence was signed, to be a logical outcome of the New Bern Congress.

Recommends Lift Rate Ceiling

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A study commission of the North Carolina General Assembly has recommended a one-year suspension of the state's eight per cent ceiling on home mortgage interest rates.

Legislation authorizing the one-year suspension is expected to be introduced in the legislature next week. If approved, it could mean increased availability of home mortage money in the state, although probably at higher interest rates.

The vote of the commission members present Friday was 7-3. All of those voting for the measure were connected with the mortgage, savings and loan or home building industries.

The three members voting against the suspension were the "consumer" representatives on the panel. They said they would submit a minority report recommending that the ceiling be retained.

Syria-Israel Exchange Artillery Fire

By United Press International

Syria and Israel fought a three-hour artillery battle Saturday amid reports the United States had sent "new ideas" to the Syrians and Israelis on disengagement of their troops from the Golan Heights cease-fire lines.

In Cairo political sources said that Mohammed Hassanein Heikal, the editor of Cairo's semi-official daily newspaper Al Ahram and a confidant of Egyptian presidents, had been fired from his editorship for "non-conformist" writings.

Heikal was fired, sources said, because he criticized Arab oil-producing countries for lack of militancy and expressed skepticism about U.S. sincerity in trying to bring about an Arab-Israeli settlement.

Syria said its forces killed or wounded about 25 Israelis and knocked out several tanks in the artillery clash on the Golan Heights, but Israel said it suffered no casualties in shelling exchanges at four points.

In the latest of daily clashes on the Golan Heights, a military spokesman in Damascus said that Syrian antitank weapons scored a direct hit on an Israeli armored personnel carrier, destroying it and its occupants. Several Israeli tanks and artillery pieces were also knocked out of action, the spokesman said.

On the Suez front, Egyptian troops have begun thinning out from the Sinai, with disengagement between Egypt and Israel reported proceeding "smoothly."

Al Ahram reported, meanwhile, new American suggestions on Syrian-Israeli troop disengagement with the aim of creating a "formula acceptable to the two parties."

Earlier this week, the newspaper reported that Syria had requested that Israel withdraw from all occupied Syrian territory but that the Israelis expressed willingness only to pull back from lands captured in the October war.

The newspaper said Cairo has received a copy of the American "ideas" and that Syrian President Hafez Assad sent an "urgent" message to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat on the subject.

Assad discussed disengagement and the Arab oil weapon Saturday in Riyadh with Saudi Arabia's King Faisal and was to visit Kuwait later.

Syrian diplomats were expected to fly to Washington shortly to head the Syrian interests section at the Pakistani Embassy there in a step-up of diplomatic ties, a spokesman for the U.S. Embassy in Beirut said.

Pago Pago Death Toll Now At 93

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa (UPI) — The death toll in the Thursday crash of a Pan American 707 at Pago Pago airport rose to 93 Sunday when one of nine survivors died.

Six persons remain in critical condition, another is in good condition and an eighth person was released.

Will Continue War With China

SAIGON (UPI) — The South Vietnamese vowed Saturday to continue the war with China for control of the barren Paracel Islands in the South China Sea.

In a two-day battle Jan. 19-20, Chinese troops drove the Saigon forces from the area.

A front page editorial of President Nguyen Van Thieu's party newspaper, "Democracy," said: "In the middle of a difficult battle to repulse 400,000 North Vietnamese troops back to the north and a struggle for economic development, the Paracels battle is another burden on our shoulder.

"The naval battle between us and China has temporarily ceased. Both sides suffered heavy casualties and material damages. But in reality, it was only but a beginning.

The method to carry on the fight will be flexible depending on the development of the situation. But the goal remains the same: South Vietnam will not sit down, crossing its arms, to see its ancestral inheritance stolen away."

.....Court Order

"We'll let those refrigerator transport drivers go," said Ronnie Ayers at Roadranger. "But I wouldn't drive that thing across the bridge. I'd like to live."

Roadranger was one of four North Carolina truck stops blocked off by strikers. Truckers also blocked Bill's Truck Stop near Lexington, Southern 500 Truck Stop near Mt. Airy, and Derrick's Truck Stop near Salisbury.

Morgan feels the race to fill the Senate seat being vacated by Sen. Sam Ervin Jr. is of major interest to the national Republican party.

"Our sources indicate that the national Republican party considers this election the number one test in the nation in repudiating Sen. Ervin and his Watergate committee," stated Morgan.

stated he would become involved in people oriented issues and especially in trying to establish health care for everyone.

"Only the rich and the poor can afford health care in this country now," he stated, "I hope to make it possible for everyone to have access to a hospital bed and a doctor at a reasonable cost."

Noting that President Nixon and Senator Edward Kennedy have both expressed themselves on the subject of medical care reform, Morgan said he did not

Could Go For 4-Year School

A lady was standing in front of a display of television sets. Something came on the six o'clock news about the fight for the ECU Medical School.

She bristled and her eyes flashed. "They're not going to let us have it!" she snapped angrily. Then she wheeled and walked away.

Well, we think that we can assure that lady and millions of others like her across North Carolina that because of them there is an excellent chance the power groups will have to "let us have it." In fact, because of this refreshing new attitude among North Carolinians, our state government even now is more responsive.

There was a time when the attitude of the average easterner or westerner or rural and small town Piedmont North Carolinian would have been one of resignation when told by the power group that the public really didn't understand its own needs. But no more. And for that reason things look bright, indeed, for the ECU Medical School.

As Rep. Gerald Arnold, D-Harnett, said on a visit here last week, "The chances are better than even in our favor. I'd rather have our side right now than theirs."

How true that is. Even though the opposition talks about accreditation, the hard facts, as presented by the Medical Manpower Commission, are that new medical schools have been developed in other states under all kinds of conditions. There is really no valid reason why it cannot be done at East Carolina University.

The Legislature has bent over backward in attempting to find some area of compromise with the portion of the UNC board which wants nothing done to expand the ECU Medical School. Legislative leaders have sought compromise even after the UNC administration spent the funds allotted for study of the matter and failed to come up with any ECU goals.

There is still another way the Legislature can go. It can order the present one-year arrangement continued between ECU and Chapel Hill. In the meantime the Legislature can appropriate funds for development of a full four-year program at ECU. Then as the building and staff are developed the ECU one-year students can begin moving up through the second, third and fourth year levels at their own school.

Since the ECU people were doing quite well with the acrediting agencies before Chapel Hill meddling began, there is little doubt that this program can be successful. It is a great shame that the taxpayers who pay the bills for the Chapel Hill Medical School cannot demand its cooperation in developing a new school. But if that is the way it is, why not work around this road block?

Strained Over Impeachment

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Key Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee have sent this secret message to President Nixon: they will have no contact with him until impeachment proceedings are completed, a potentially ominous signal from the President's own party.

The message, quietly sent to the Oval Office after a caucus of the committee's Republican members just before Christmas, is being taken with deadly seriousness. One thoughtful Republican on the committee has informed his wife to expect a good long wait before fraternizing at any White House social functions.

Partly behind this sypmbolic and temporary divorce from the Nixon White House by Republicans on the impeachment committee are naive efforts by the White house to butter up the Congressmen who are going to be sitting in judgment.

One is Rep. Hamilton Fish, a Republican junior member of the committee from upstate New York. He found himself conspicuously invited to a White House bill-signing ceremony for the first time during five long years in the House. The bill, unimportant compared to other bills the Congressmen had a role in, dealt with the 1976 bicentennial.

Another Republican committee member was crudely sounded out by the Republican party chairman of his state, obviously on orders from the Republican National Committee, to find out how he was going to vote. He was outraged by the question.

Whether this arm's-length gap between the committee's 17 Republicans and the President widens is going to depend heavily on whether the White House decides to cooperate—or do battle with—the impeachment committee. The Republicans, headed by Rep. Edward Hutchinson of Michigan, are sending this private warning to the Oval Office: Remember, Mr. President, this committee could either be an agent of impeachment or an agent of "exoneration."

Some presidential aides believe Mr. Nixon is well aware that his conduct toward the impeachment committee, as the legal body responsible for starting the constitutional impeachment process, must at least appear to be beyond reproach.

In contrast to the Senate Watergate committee established to investigate alleged illegalities arising from the June 1972 breaking and entering of the Democratic National Committee offices, the House Judiciary Committee has what one presidential aide calls "a constitutional burden." While saying nothing publicly about how the President will deal with the committee, White House aides concede this distinction is bound to have some impact on the President.

Yet, no White House guidelines are yet discernible, nor are they likely to be until the White House has answers to some of these questions: Precisely how does the committee define an impeachable offense? How does the committee plan to use and safeguard information demanded from the White House? Can the committee guarantee the confidentiality of documents and other materials it gets from the administration?

As for the total break in communications between committee Republicans and the President, presidential advisers seem content with the channel proposed by Hutchinson: all contact between the Republicans and the White House will be handled by the committee's minority counsel, Albert Jenner, and Mr. Nixon's special counsel, James St. Clair.

Yet, the quick decision by the Republicans to break off contact with the White House reflects deep strains within the party over the impeachment issue. Facing a congressional election only nine months hence, there is not a Republican member of Congress running for reelection not terrified that the political fallout of Watergate may gravely taint his campaign.

In short, it is the Republicans, not the Democrats, who stand to gain most by Mr. Nixon's removal from office well before the campaign starts. The Republicans would then be running under the banner of Gerald Ford and in a political climate closer to presidential honeymoon than Watergate.

The impeachment committee Republicans, lawyers to a man, do not publicly discuss such apostasy. Instead, they told of the committee's constitutional prerogatives, of its dominant role over all other Watergate-connected bodies and of the need for full presidential cooperation with what one calls their "decorous" impeachment proceedings.

Thus, if the President means to extend his "fight like hell" pledge to the House Judiciary Committee, he risks massive defections among Republicans who otherwise might find sound reasons for voting against articles of impeachment. If one thing about the move to impeach Mr. Nixon is perfectly clear, it is that impeachment is more a political process than a criminal prosecution. Intent to cooperate, not intent to resist, could turn out to be President Nixon's best defense.

More Smoking During Crises

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Cigaret sales will show record growth when reports come in—and the reason is Watergate, shortages the fuel crisis.

"Oh, yes. Sales figures will show how uptight everybody is. Cigaret smoking is booming—it will be way up," says Hendricks L. Shelton of Richmond, president of the company which makes Kools, Viceroy, Raleigh and others.

Holding a hand high over his head, Shelton said that's how sales are going right now. "People just smoke more when they're worried—and they're certainly worried right now."

Even a Tombstone

Somebody in Eastern North Carolina probably has a different worry these days: whatever happened to his wife's tombstone.

Shelton has it—in his office. It came in a load of tobacco.

"We get everything in tobacco, but thats the first tombstone we ever got," he laughed.

Sand is the big thing he said. In last year's load of right around 200 million pounds of flue-cured, his firm bought and paid for five million pounds of sand.

"And the higher price isn't the end of it. We have to pay to have the sand transported, keep a truck busy hauling it to the dump, and the sand plays havoc with our equipment," Shelton said.

UNC Gets Answer

A letter from Sen. William D. Mills of Maysville, and Rep. J. P. Huskins of Statesville is being circulated around the State House.

Written in answer to points raised by the University of North Carolina Board of Governors in the continuing East Carolina University medical school debate, the co-chairmen of the legislative Medical Manpower Commission take this posture:

Their study group has been the "only group that attempted to find out what the people want and are willing to pay for," while university studies have not gotten imput from citizens, they wrote.

"It is our feeling there has been a lack of cooperation and trust on both sides. And we think it is time the legislature stepped in and resolved the controversy—in the interest of the people, if possible."

The letter denies that the committee has put itself up as an adversary to the Board of Governors, stating, "Rather than erode its authority, we have sought to enlarge its vision."

The study commission is pushing for the medical school at East Carolina.

Sandwich on Silver

Contrary to what you might think, having a "working lunch" in the governor's office while interviewing him is not an occasion for loosening one's tie and putting one's feet on the desk.

We did not, in short, send downstairs to the vending machine for a moonpie and RC.

Rather, a line of the employes from the Governor's Mansion marched in bearing large silver trays on which rested a turkey snadwhich, one of those fancy two-handled soup cups, and a keep-hot container of homemade vegetable soup.

A word of warning. The container contains more soup than the cup will contain.

After you've spilled soup all over your sandwhich, soiled the governor's desk, then reached around to pick up one of the ornate brass ash trays by the fancy handle and had it come off in your hand with a clatter—things can only go downhill.

Gracious host that he is, Gov. Jim Holshouser just kept insisting "It happens all the time." I don't believe it.

"It is cowardice to commit suicide."—Naploeon Bonaparte.

"O! heigh-ho. the derry-o! a-hunting we will go!"

By ALVIN TAYLOR

Sunday Morning Notes

Cindy Dunn, who used to work for The Daily Reflector and is now employed by Dr. J. M. Ward in Ayden, visited Pitt Plaza with her son, Hall, age three, the other night.

The youngster had on a Davy Crockett type fur cap and when they visited Big Star Super Market the cap somehow fell to the floor unnoticed.

Cindy soon heard some gasps and squeals from other shoppers. She looked back to see them pointing to the "strange animal" crouched on the floor.

She retrieved the cap and placed it in its proper place on her son's head.

Three young ladies were talking in a restaurant. Two voiced complaints about their husbands.

"I don't understand it," the third said. "I've been married for two years and I don't have any complaints."

"You didn't get husbands like we've got," one of her friends answered.

Oh well. Marriage must be a one-out-of-three gamble.

ALVIN TAYLOR

"Can you tell me what street this is?" he asked your columnist.

He went on to explain that he was trying to find a girl.

"She said her apartment was where Oak and Ash come together."

Well, Oak and Ash never come together. They run parallel to each other. But then maybe she didn't want him to find her.

Being a patriotic American your columnist gathered up all the old coat hangers the other day and took them back to the cleaners after a story appeared about the coat hanger shortage.

It got 'em out of the closet and really it's just as easy to carry them to the cleaners as it is to take them to the trash can.

And a local grocer advertised: BYOB. That means, of course, bring your own bags, because of still another shortage, paper bags.

The ultimate in recycling is reusing grocery bags and coat hangers for their original purposes.

(Henderson Dispatch)

Few people have taken the time to consider the load carried by Vance county's thirteen doctors. It is estimated by the newly-formed Physicians Procurement Coordinating Committee that in Henderson and Vance county, and the surrounding area, these thirteen professional men, at least theoretically, are responsible for the health of from 80,000 to 100,000 persons. That would average about 6,000 to 7,000 for each doctory.

Fortunately, most people do not very often need a physician, but nearly every individual at one time or another has reason to seek the advice and service of a doctor. The ratio of doctors to population on the basis on 100,000 people is a surprise to those who have never given the idea a thought.

In view of these calculations by the committee, it is easy to understand why additional professional men are needed, and the group has begun a search for more practitioners.

The Henderson area is not the only one in North Carolina lacking in medical men. Others are also looking for help. How many are achieving success no one knows.

The road to a degree in medicine and the subsequent internship is a long and hard one. It requires intensive study on the part of students and great familiarity with accepted methods of treating countless types of diseases. Nor is time in training the full story. The course is probably the most expensive of any required of any student. And that frightens away many aspiring youths planning a career.

While it is true that the annual income of the average physician is in the high brackets, most of those who are ready to lauch into their chosen field start out with a substantial college debt hanging over them. These factors are a partial explanation of the scarcity of doctors. But the need persists and grows with the population increase, which is faster than the supply of qualified men.

The committee has its work cut out, and every one in this vicinity hopes and prays for its success.

Never Really Certain

By CHRIS S. MORGESE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — One out of five persons who takes the behind-the-wheel examination for a California driver's license fails the test—sometimes in spectacular fashion.

It is the monumental failures who make the state's 500 driving examiners a bit uneasy the 20 or so times a day each gets into a car with a novice driver.

Examiners say some of their experiences with license applicants are mildly amusing but occasionally they are downright terrifying.

One examiner, now retired and who asked that his name not be used, reported "I always figured I would end up in a cemetery because of this job but I certainly had in mind postponing the trip for a few years.

"So when I asked her (a license applicant) to demonstrate her parallel parking ability, she backed up over the curb, across the sidewalk, through a chain-link fence, down a grassy slope and across a beautifully landscaped garden area before her car came to rest against a headstone in the Community Cemetery."

"Relaxed" Applicants

Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV) examiners are not always sure where the applicant is going to take them.

Examiner David Hamerro of Camarillo said, "I had barely gotten my prepared speech finished: 'Good afternoon. Please relax. This won't take long.' Then bricks and plaster were flying across the hood of the car and I discovered that my examinee had driven straight through the wall into the men's room of the DMV building."

Calvin Pitts, DMV information officer, said about 30 accidents occur each month during the Unless skating in the business district is halted immediately, the Board of Aldermen is planning drastic action, probably eliminating skating altogether.

The statement was made today by the Mayor Roy C. Flanagan after the matter was discussed at considerable length by the aldermen last night.

Mayor Flanagan said the board appealed to both perents and children to cooperate in eliminating skating on streets in the business district and remove the danger to skaters and pedestrians.

There is a law prohibiting skating uptown, and unless the practice is stopped, the legislation will be drastically enforced.

"Dancing Lady", starring Joan Crawford and Clark Gable will be shown for two days at the State Theatre this week.

The love story-musical and dramatic action program will also star Fred Astaire.

Representatives from the U. S. Internal Revenue Department will be in Greenville on February 19-20 to assist taxpayers in filing federal income tax returns.

Strength For Today

FORTUNES AWAITING US

Recently a boy living in a city of the Northeast dropped out of high school after a minor altercation with his parents and started hitchhiking to Florida. Shortly after leaving home a wealthy relative died and left the boy a substantial legacy. All he had to do was to come back to claim it.

But of course, the boy's parents did not know where he was and there appeared to be no way to get the news to him about the legacy. At last the parents arranged to have a message sent out by radio stations on the route to Florida: "Come home, son, there's a fortune awaiting you." The boy heard the message by chance, and came home to receive the legacy.

The same message has been going out over God's radio station for centuries. "Come home. The incomparable riches of Christ await you, and they alone are worth the having. And all you have to do to receive this legacy is to come and claim it."

Good Chance Of No Recession

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — President Nixon has an excellent chance of fulfilling his State of the Union pledge that "there will be no recession in the United States of America."

A few months ago his chances would have been considered lower, mainly because of a huge shortfall in oil stocks was anticipated by most authorities. Inevitably, they said, it would reduce industrial activity.

Because of the cooperation of man, who cut down sharply on wasteful practices, and nature, which provided a mild winter, that prospect is diminished.

Before the Mideast oil cutback many economists rated the chance of a recession at 50-50. That ratio probably rose to 60-40 last fall. Now it is probably back to 50-50.

But the economy doesn't respond to commands or wishes. The President's statement that "we shall win our fight to hold down the cost of living" may be much harder to fulfill.

The truth is that inflation is an international problem that eludes control by domestic policy. The world's growing demand for goods places a premium on items once thought inexpensive.

If the Arabs raise the price of oil, for example, it is inevitable that buyers oil will be importing a degree of inflation. If the price of Brazilian coffee beans rises, so also will raise the price here.

This lessening of control over inflation may indeed accelerate in years to come if the world's industrial communities grow together into one vast market place, with each nation's economy highly dependent upon others.

The difficulty and sometimes futility of the inflation fight is shown in many wasy:

—In promises by Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, that prices would soon stabilize, until after two years of such promises he was forced to concede that prices will continue to rise in 1974.

—In the fact that Nixon, while proclaiming his philosophical bias for free markets, was forced to impose wage and price restraints.

—In the realization that stability of domestic prices could inadvertently be disturbed by the activities of a few private companies selling grain to the Soviet Union.

It is demonstrated in an even more important way. The President in his message made it clear that, given the choice of two evils —he prefers inflation.

It may sound incredible to younger Americans, but there was once a day when it was considered proper to reduce inflation by sacrificing jobs, purchasing power and production. It lessened demand, but at an awful price.

Nixon, as do most Americans, considers that option too primitive.

Big Concern Over Energy

By GEORGE GALLUP

(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J., —The energy crisis is now the top worry of the American people, replacing inflation which was the public's top concern during 1973.

In the most recent nationwide Gallup survey, nearly half, 46 per cent, name the energy crisis and fuel shortages, while 25 per cent now say inflation is the top problem facing the nation.

In the previous audit of the public's chief worries, reported in September, inflation topped the list by an overwhelming majority. In fact, the proportion in that survey who named inflation (about seven persons in ten) was the highest ever recorded in the history of the Gallup Poll, dating back to 1935. Inflation was the top problem named in every measurement in 1973 from the end of January, following the Vietnam peace settlement.

The impact of Watergate continues to be reflected in these regular measurments of the public's top concerns. "Dissatisfaction with government" and "corruption in government" are named next most often, after inflation, in the latest survey. All other problems were named by 6 per cent or less.

FINDINGS ARE OMINOUS FOR GOP

To gain insight into one political mood of the nation at this time, survey respondents were next asked which party they think can better handle the problem they named—the Republican party or the Democratic party. The results show the Democratic party with the widest lead it has held since October of 1964, with 39 per cent crediting the Democrats as better able to deal with the top problems, compared to only 15 per cent who say the Republican party. Many, however, are uncommitted (46 per cent).

The democratic party has registered steady gains on this barometer since October 1972, when a Gallup survey taken shortly before the presidential election showed the GOP with a wide 39 to 29 per cent margin. By last May, the Democrats held the lead, 36 to 21 per cent.

The current findings, showing the Democrats with a still wider lead, are ominous for the GOP, since the combination of these two questions—asking voters themselves to single out what they believe to be the top problem and the party they think can better deal with this problem—has proved to be a reliable indicator of relative party strength in congressional election years.

The following question was asked in the survey:

"What do you think is the most important problem facing this country today?"

MOST IMPORTANT PROBLEM

Energy crisis	46 %
High cost of living	25
Dissatisfaction with government lack of trust in government	15
Corruption in governemnt-Watergate	7
International problems	6
Unemployment	5
Moral decline-lack of religion	4
Crime-lawlessness	3
Other problems	7
No opinion	3

(Total adds to more than 100 per cent since some persons named more than one problem.)

This question was asked next of those in the survey who named a problem:

"Which political party do you think can do a better job of handling the problem you have just mentioned—the Republican or the Democratic?"

Here are the results and trend:

PARTY BETTER ABLE TO HANDLE MOST IMPORTANT PROBLEMS?

	latest	May	Oct.-72
Democratic	39 %	36 %	29 %
Republican	15	21	39
No difference	30	30	22
No opinion	16	13	10

The findings reported today are based on personal interviews with a total of 1,504 adults, 18 and older, in more than 300 scientifically selected localities during the period Jan. 4-7.

A Conservative View
A Long, Long Way From Myra Bradwell's Era

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Alas for Myra Bradwell! She was born too soon. One of these days, when the U.S. Supreme Court completes its judicial ratification of the Equal Rights Amendments, perhaps the women's libbers will revive her name and pay her posthumous honors.

These reflections are prompted by the court's action the other day in cases involving three pregnant school teachers, two of them in Cleveland, the third in Chesterfield County, Va. All three had been suspended from their jobs under school board regulations. With Justice Rehnquist and Chief Justice Burger dissenting, the court ruled the suspensions unconstitutional and laid down new guidelines. Local school boards henceforth must not infringe upon the "basic constitutional right" of school teachers to get themselves pregnant and stay on the job.

It was a notable victory for women's liberation. The majority opinion, written by Justice Stewart, further buttressed a judicial structure that has been under construction since November, 1971, when the court nullified an Idaho statute which said that "males must be preferred to females" in certain probate cases. Subsequently, the court has held that single women in Massachusetts are entitled to obtain contraceptives; that Louisiana and Texas cannot discriminate against illegitimate children; that the U.S. Army must treat women officers like men; and that the Pittsburgh Press cannot classify help-wanted ads by sexual preference.

Whether the court sails under the flag of Equal Protection, or Due Process, or Privileges and Immunities, the course is clear: The court itself, sub silento, is ratifying the pending Equal Rights Amendment. It is of only passing interest that Montana on Jan. 21 became the 32nd state to ratify, leaving six to go. Stewart and his gallant colleagues are making the states obsolete.

One supposes that Myra Bradwell would be pleased. All that I know of this pioneer libber is that she was born in Vermont, moved to Chicago, got a leagal education, married, and in 1872 applied for a license to practice law. This was only four years after the Fourteenth Amendment had been declared part of the Constitution. The Illinois Supreme Court flatly turned her down, and on April 15, 1873, the U.S. Supreme Court voted 8-1 to affirm.

Justice Samuel F. Miller spoke for the court, saying that if a state wants to prohibit women from practicing law, nothing in the Fourteenth Amendment stands in the way. Justice Joseph P. Bradley added a concurring opinion in which he rang all the bells of male chauvinism:

"The civil law," said Bradley, "as well as nature herself, has always recognized a wide difference in the respective spheres and destinies of man and woman. Man is, or should be, woman's protector and defender. The natural and proper timidity and delicacy which belongs to the female sex evidently unfits it for many of the occupations of civil life."

It is repugnant to the concept of family, Bradley went on to say, for a woman to adopt "a distinct and independent career from that of her husband." To be sure, many women are unmarried, but they are exceptions to the general rule: "The paramount destiny and mission of woman are to fulfill the noble and benign offices of wife and mother. This is the law of the Creator."

In Bradley's interesting construction of the law, both constitutional and divine, Justices Stephen Field and Noah Swayne agreeably joined. It was quite some time, I suppose, before Illinois licensed lady lawyers.

Now, this is our thought for today: Not one comma of the Fourteenth Amendment has been changed since that day in April when this Illinois Portia lost her case. Only the judges have changed. It is a fair assumption that the eight justices who concurred in Bradwell v. Illinois in 1873 had a clear understanding of what the Fourteenth was intended to accomplish. Certainly they must have had a clearer understanding of "intent" than the eight justices who united in 1973 in Frontiero v. Richardson, the case of the woman officer.

Well, Justice Bradley is dead, but Justice Stewart lives. The Constitution is what the judges say it is, and the "intention of the framers" no longer greatly matters. It doesn't greatly matter, in any event, in that expanding citadel of jurisprudence which ought to be known to memorialists hereafter as the Myra Bradwell School of the Law.

Representatives On A Hot Spot; Impeaching Could Badly Backfire

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

News dispatches picture the House of Representatives as "divided" and "edgy" over the impeachment of President Nixon.

This is understandable. The House has allowed itself to be maneuvered onto a hot spot. And at this stage, it is difficult, indeed, to foresee the consequences.

According to polls by newsmen, most members willing to commit themselves oppose impeachment. But nearly half the membership professes to have an open mind. No matter how the issue is handled, the political danger to individual members will be great.

The trouble is that there is no hard case against Nixon. The constitution defines impeachable offenses as "treason, bribery, or other high crimes and misdemeanors." The popular interpretation is that criminal wrong-doing must be involved.

This is where the zealous investigating has fallen short. And it is not expected that the House Judiciary Committee, which must provide a bill of particulars against the president will outshine the special prosecutors and Senator Sam Ervin's Watergate Committee.

As things now stand, it looks as if the House Judiciary Committee will have no open and shut case against the President, based on acts of criminal violations. He has responsibility, as President, for the behavior of subordinates.

But the absence of a tight criminal case isn't going to stop the anti-Nixon advocates. They want impeachment. If they can't get it, then they want to draw the issue out until government flounders and force a resignation.

This week, the House Committee was advised by its special council, John Doar, that by February 20 he will produce a brief on what constitutes impeachable offenses under the constitution.

It will be interesting to see how much influence the activists have on Doar, a former Justice Department lawyer, named during the Eisenhower Administration, but raised by the Kennedy Administration to some prominence.

Doar may well embrace the argument, which has shown up among the antis, that impeachment is not necessarily related to any criminal act. Loss of confidence, a weakening government, a damaging of integrity, would be enough

But any such general approach to impeachment could backfire on Congress and in a rather direct way. Because it is here that Congress, itself, has fallen so badly.

Polls show people more concerned today about inflation and the fuel shortage than about anything else. Both of these are areas where Congress, in any fair placement of blame, looks mighty bad. For years, it has voted the deficit spending out of which inflation has grown. And it has also failed to take action in the energy field, although it had long warnings.

There is no way to indict individual members of Congress for what inflation, say, is doing. But if Congress should try to impeach a President on the grounds he has weakened the integrity of government then it would be hard for Congress to duck its own responsibility. Just a lot of members should retire, or be defeated by the voters.

It's worth recalling that the House got pushed into the impeachment issue last fall, following the weekend of the big firings. That was when Nixon accepted the resignation of Attorney General Richardson and his top aide, then had Archibald Cox, the special investigator, fired.

The spot the House is on is simply this: If it doesn't vote impeachment, the anti-Nixon activists, including important segments of the press, will accuse it of condoning Watergate. And it if votes impeachment, it may have to do it on grounds which would undercut many members of both the House and Senate.

CAN HARDLY BLAME HIM IF HE GOES BACK IN!

tests in which applicants attempt to demonstrate their driving skills to the examiners.

"More than a few examiners have been injured" —several seriously in recent years, he said.

The examiners report there have been instances where applicants showed up for the test after taking several drinks to "relax."

Best Defense

"Some are so relaxed in fact that they can hardly stand," said Art Stapleton, assistant chief of the Division of Driver's Llicenses.

"Judgment is our best defense in these cases. We know better than to get in the car with him. We use judgment in determining whether we should call the police or send the applicant home in a cab."

An applicant must achieve at least a 70 per cent score to pass the on-the-road driver's test. Failure can result from a range of mistakes from driving into men's rooms to running a red light or from an accumulation of less serious faults.

Sometimes failure can occur before the test starts.

Examiner Isabel Woods of Sacramento reported that before starting the driving portion of the test, she asked the applicant to demonstrate hand signals.

For the left signal, the applicant correctly rolled the left window down and stuck his left arm straight out. But for the right signal, the examiner said, the applicant slid across the seat to the right side of the vehicle, rolled down his window and stuck his arm out.

Charles Jonas Definitely Not A Senate Candidate

By JOHN KILGO

Charles Jonas Jr., Republican from Charlotte, will definitely not be a candidate for the U. S. Senate this year. Jonas has gone so far as to urge that Congressman Wilmer Mizell run for the Senate as a Republican.

And Jonas told me in an interview: "This is not the time for me to run. We're having another baby this summer and it isn't the time for me to be traveling the state campaigning. It's also not the time for me to uproot my family and head to Washington. My decision not to run is made."

Jonas says some polls taken by the GOP indicate that the Republicans can win the Senate seat this year.

"Watergate isn't going to have an effect on this Senate race, unless Sam Ervin campaigns for the Democrat and talks about it," Jonas said. "I don't believe Watergate made Sen. Ervin more popular in this state. It made him better known, but I don't think more popular."

Jonas is pushing Mizell for the Senate for a couple of reasons. One is practical. If Mizell doesn't run, who can the Republicans recruit? Also, Jonas thinks Mizell can win in the general election.

"If Wilmer gets into this race," Jonas said, "he very likely will not have the same kind of tough primary that the Democratics will have. That's one reason I made my decision not to run this early. I wanted him to know I wouldn't be fighting him in the primary."

Mizell will be risking an almost certain return to Congress from the 5th District if he runs for the Senate. He knows this and Republican Party leaders know it. They're asking him to take a risk. Mizell, before he decides to do that, will take a close look at a poll that has jsut been completed. The results ought to be in any day.

Jonas says another plus for the Republicans in the North Carolina Senate race will be Gov. Jim Holshouser.

"In the past," Jonas says, "the Democrats have been able to throw the Party's leadership into campaigns for the Senate. Now we'll be able to do that. Jim Holshouser is going to be a legitimate influence in the Senate race. He has a way with people and they like him for the job he's doing. He's a popular Governor."

Jonas also mentioned that Sen. Jesse Helms could help boost Mizell's candidacy, especially in the east.

"And another factor that you shouldn't discount," Jonas says, "is the East-West breakdown that the Democratic Party established in this state years and years ago. It's going to make a difference in the general election, the fact that Bob Morgan is from the East. Many people tried to talk Jim Broyhill and me into running for the Senate in 1972, before Jesse became a candidate. But Sen. Ervin was there from the West, and we both felt the other Senator should be someone from the East. The fact that Sen. Helms is from the East would have to help Mizell in a race against Morgan. You can discount that if you want, but the people won't discount it in November."

Electric Appliances, Conveniences Add To Electricity Bill

By CARL L TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

(The costs used to compute these figures were supplied by the Greenville Utilities Commission based on an average charge rate per year and an average consumption rate per appliance.)

The thermostat has been cut back, the extra lights are out, doors closed and storm windows are closed or have been added along with a few extra inches of insulation in the roof. You are getting up one-half hour earlier in the morning in order to pick up the guys in the car pool—leaving home in the dark. The energy crisis has struck home.

Still, the news forecasts the shortage will be with us for some time and you are urged to further cut back on power consumption. What else can you do?

Now is the time to plan for a conservative future in your buying habits if you would like to saye energy along with some money in your utility bill.

Those appliances that make life so much easier consume energy, not a great deal per unit, but when you total up the power consumed by all the blenders, color televisions, dishwashers, etc., in town, it adds up to a great deal of power.

If you are planning to buy a new appliance in the future, these figures may help you in making your choice if you want to be power conservative in your purchase.

As you arise in the morning and take a hot shower before leaving for work, that hot water is costing you. The average 50 gallon hot water heater set at 160 degrees is not the most expensive item on your utility bill.

The average heater costs $7.59 per month for the power to heat the water. A quick recovery type heater averages $8.64 per month.

The average 14 cubic foot refrigerator that keeps the bacon and eggs cool costs $3.27 per month if the unit is a frost-free type, or $2.04 per month if it is the standard type.

If you prepare your breakfast on a hot plate, the electricity per month will average 17 cents to heat it, while if your meals are prepared on an electric range the cost will average $2.11.

The average toaster will cost six cents per month to heat, while a waffle iron will average four cents per month.

If you do your laundry at home, your automatic washer will average costing 19 cents per month to operate while the iron that pressed the shirt will cost 25 cents.

Coffee prepared in an electric perker averages 19 cents per month to heat, while if you watch the morning news before leaving for work the television set will cost $1.18 per month if it is a color instant-on model, 79 cents for a standard color model or 64 cents for a black and white model. If you listen to the news on the radio, the unit will average costing you 19 cents for the entertainment.

Cleaning up the breakfast dishes, if you place them in a dishwasher, the unit will cost you an average of 66 cents per month to operate, while the garbage disposal averages six cents.

Taking the hamburger out of the freezer to thaw for supper, the standard freezer consumes $2.15 per month of power while a frost free unit consumes an average of $3.17.

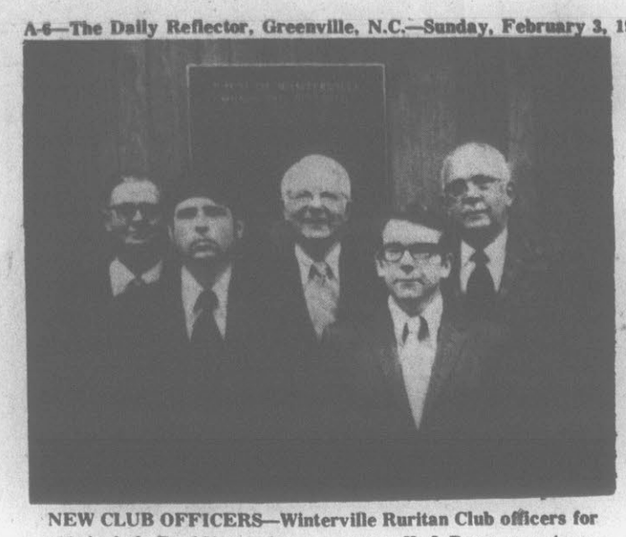

The furnace fan to keep the house warm costs 70 cents while a space-type heater consumes 72 cents.

These items are the basic power users in the average home. Other items such as dehumidifiers consume an average of 66 cents per month, hair dryers (portable) two cents, and a vacuum cleaner averages 85 cents.

On a yearly basis, these figures mean a hot water heater will cost $91 to operate, a frost-free freezer $37.98, a standard freezer $25.77, a 14 cubic ft. refrigerator $24.52, an instant-on color TV $14.23, standard color TV $9.49 and a radio $1.85.

An electric blanket yearly will cost $3.17, a dishwasher $7.82 and a standard black and white TV $7.78.

Praises Work Of Historical Groups

By J. THOMAS PAILLA
Associated Press Writer

CORNWALL, Conn. (AP) — The key to Debbie Covington's job with the local historical society is knowing what to keep and what to sell.

Local museums can become inundated with "truckloads of junk," if someone doesn't pick just the artifacts of local significance.

"An archivist must be selective in what he keeps," she said.

"Unless the materials are important historically, they should be sold for fund raising purposes. Selection is as important as acquisition."

She believes that historical societies can become less dependent on donations by selling unneeded artifacts.

Mrs. Covington looks for items that are most pertinent to the Cornwall area. Items not of particular interest to the town should be sold off "to pay for the heating bill and other necessities."

"Unless the furniture is made in the town, it doesn't mean anything. Say a woman was a ratpacker and saved dresses. Unless a dress was worn to an inauguration or it bore the hole of an arrow shot at some local ancestor, I wouldn't keep it."

Mrs. Covington sees value in maintaining community historical societies because they enhance local appreciation for the past.

"The historical society should be the liveliest place in town," she said.

"I think the world could get along very well without historical societies. But it is a very interesting way to give people a sense of history and make it live for them," said Mrs. Covington.

"Bring the children to the society, let them sit at the old desks in the school room, write on the slates, touch things, and try on costumes of the past so they know what it's like to wear them. This is what living history means."

Language Class Learns Related Culture

Mrs. Barbara Rogers, Spanish teacher at North Pitt High School, has had an article on her Spanish Culture Class printed in the 1973 edition of "Options and Perspectives" a sourcebook of innovative foreign language programs of America. The book is published by the Modern Language Association of America.

Mrs. Rogers developed the program after Mrs. Betty Speir, guidance counselor at North Pitt, expressed a wish to have some kind of language class for lower learning students.

"I began developing the course in my mind," Mrs. Rogers said. "After the program plans were completed, I received permission to teach the class."

The program, in its second year at North Pitt, includes about 40 students. The project has been developed specifically for students with lower reading ability with the purpose of exposing them to people who language and lifestyles are different from their own.

"The program is a one-year course. There is no follow-up and nothing is required for the course," explained Mrs. Rogers.

The class emphasizes culture.

"I feel the students will profit more about knowing how another group lives than they will in learning the language," Mrs. Rogers said.

The program attempts to make each learning activity a visual, hands-on experience in which the students participate.

Mrs. Rogers uses photographs, slides, filmstrips and films during the class period.

Units included in the course are: Introduction to the Spanish Language and to the Countries Where Spanish Is Spoken; Geography of Latin America; the History of Latin America; Family Life of Spanish-Speaking People; Food and Clothing; Religion and Education; and Cultureal Activities and Sports.

"Students learn the language through simple Spanish phrases and sentences," Mrs. Rogers stated.

In one exercise, involving the description of a house, the students first collected pictures of houses, floor plans and rooms.

"Using the pictures as clues, I present the related vocabulary orally and then in writing. The construction of sentences is taught through oral questions that require a structured answer," the teacher stated.

After the students have learned the vocabularly, they participate in class sessions in which they ask and answer questions in Spanish.

The students study the family including parents, children, aunts, uncles and cousins. Also discussed is the weather conditions, the seasons, and the months of the year.

Students receive one unit of high school credit for completion of the course.

DISTINCTIVE AND APPEALING, THE "BENNINGTON"

BLENDS AN UNUSUAL MIXTURE OF TRADITIONAL FEATURES TO TEXTURE ITS FACADE.

By Gerry Bishop

Shutters, stone trim, and cupola highlight the attractive facade of the "Bennington," which places garage doors at the side to focus attention on the neatly proportioned exterior. Basically a rectangular plan, the attached garage and traditional trim add variety and appeal.

Inside, the floor plan is efficient and features an entry foyer that directs traffic to living areas at left and bedroom areas at right.

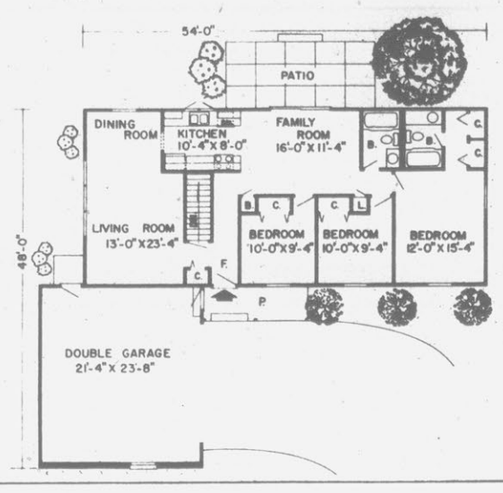

EXTERIOR VARIETY AIM OF TRADITIONAL PLAN

Beyond the handy coat closet, the spacious living-dining room stretches over 23 feet to offer formality and border the kitchen. The compact corridor kitchen also serves the family room, an airy spot open to the terrace via sliding glass doors. The family room is placed to invite use for family activities, and its relaxed atmosphere makes it an ideal center for informal entertaining.

Sleeping quarters encircle the family room on two sides and place a full bath within reach. Three bedrooms line the front of the plan, while two baths line the rear. Luxury is not sacrificed in the sleeping wing, which boasts a lavish master bedroom with dressing area, double closets, and full bath.

With all its features, the "Bennington" covers only 1296 square feet of living space and economically provides an equal amount of usable space for recreation area and storage in its full basement. A large double garage with side and rear entrances is also featured.

Size: 1,296 sq. ft. first floor; 1,296 sq. ft. basement; 528 sq. ft. garage.
Over-all dimensions: 54 ft. by 48 ft.

Either Move Or Stay Forever

NEW YORK (UPI) — A family should move every year or two —or live in the same house forever.

When you're on the go, you're not as likely to accumulate too many "things". Spend a lifetime in the same house and, eventually, someone else will have to clean out your attic and basement.

These conclusions come as the result of a somewhat involved process, starting with a resolution to "do something" about a too-cluttered house.

The answer was obvious: dispose of the clutter.

Start in Basement

The place to start, of course, was the basement storage room. Clean it out and there would be room for the more recent accumulations in the guest room, the study, nooks and crannies throughout the house.

It was in the basement our theory of moving began to develop.

Unearthed at the back of the store room, unopened, was a mover's carton marked "miscellaneous." Whatever the contents, it was clear they were unnecessary in our lives. We moved for the first, and only, time some 14 years ago.

We decided on the spot to make a clean sweep now, then go through the house each year as if we were moving. We worked out a logical plan. You may want to try it:

Updating Inventory

A room at a time, remove everything that does not belong in that room —fifteen boxes of Christmas decorations from the guest room closet, for instance.

Weed out the remainder according to the rule of use: if you haven't used it in a year, dispose of it.

We decided on four allocations for disposal: things the youngsters (now married) might like; things that might bring a bit of a windfall profit at a garage sale; a collection for Goodwill or the Salvation Army; the scrap heap.

In the process, we would update an inventory of our possessions, with photographs of the most valuable items.

Such an inventory is a must for every family for insurance purposes. It is impossible to reconstruct the contents of a house accurately after loss takes place. It is easy, they say, to keep such an inventory current. All you have to do is list item, date of purchase, purchase price. But somehow our acquisitions always seemed to outpace our list-making abilities, especially the books and records, the linens....

Planning Garage Sale

We did get the living and dining rooms in pretty good shape, and the guest room except for the Christmas things in the closet.

And we reorganized the basement store room. Most of the things the youngsters want are stored there, except for the Christmas things in the guest room. A service family, they're on the move every couple of years right now and can't take them at once.

We also have set aside a few things for a garage sale. There's not quite enough, though, so we'll have to hang on until we accumulate a bigger stock.

A stack in the back hall is waiting to go to Goodwill. And there are a few boxes of books set aside for the next library book sale. Piled in the garage are some things we'll put out at the next town clean-up collection.

Now we're looking for cupboard space in the kitchen for that mover's box of "miscellaneous." It contained a fine assortment of cake decorating tools, cake pans in the form of a lamb, a Christmas tree and wedding bells, some timbale irons, an ice cream freezer and a stone crock for pickle-making. I haven't done those things in years and it just might be fun —after we finish the inventory.

By the way, we've opted to live in the same house forever. For us, it's too late for anything else.

The Garden Clinic

(N. C. State University answers timely gardening questions)

Q. We have an arbor over our patio. Clematis vines have been planted—but it will be several years before they cover enough for shade. What are some fast-growing vines we can use for shade until the clematis "come of age?" (M. E. Graham)

A. These annual vines will grow rapidly, giving a good canopy of foliage and blooms: baloon vine, canary bird vine, cardinal climber, morning glory, scarlet runner, and cypress vine. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

Q. When is the best time to prune apple and peach trees? (A. D., Fayetteville)

A. It is best to prune large size apple trees, those 10-20 ft. high, as soon as the tree is dormant. In the Raleigh area this will usually be after Thanksgiving. Prune the young trees in January and February. Peaches should be pruned late in the year, late February and early March. It is better to prune peaches at full bloom rather than October, November or December. (Melvin H. Kilbe, extension horticulturist)

Q. I love blueberries, but the space I have to plant them is limited. Would it be appropriate to use them as foundation plants instead of the traditional holly, juniper, etc? (M. M. , Raleigh)

A. Yes. Blueberries make excellent landscape plants. You may use them as hedges, background plants or as foundation plantings. Use the rabbiteye type (Tifblue, Garden Blue, Woodard). Rabbiteye blueberries need at least six hours of full sun each day and a soil pH below 5.0. Use plenty of organic matter, such as peatmoss, sawdust or pine bark. Irrigate during dry weather. Treat the soil with an insecticide such as chlordane as a precaution against termites if you use sawdust near the house. (Joe Brooks, extension horticulturist)

Q. I fertilize my lawn (fescue) with 8-8-8 fertilizer in the spring and again in the fall. Is this the most efficient type of fertilizer to use? (Mrs. L. M., Apex)

A. No. Turfgrasses perform best (retain stand and quality) when fertilized with a 4:1:2 or 4:1:3 ratio of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash. You are providing too much phosphorus and potash in relation to nitrogen. (W. M. Lewis, extension agronomist)

Community Is Slimming Down

LONDON (AP) — Free slimming centers are being opened by the borough council of Hounslow, a London suburb.

People attending pay 2½ pence (about 6 cents) a week. "The money is used to buy small gifts which are given for every stone (14 pounds) lost," a council official said.

Councillor Mrs. Mary Smith, who admits to weighing "a bit over 21 stone (294 pounds)" has promised to reduce her bulk by 147 pounds by the time the borough's mayor completes his year of office next May.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

We have already seen some of the effects of the energy crisis on the real estate industry, already beset for some time by a variety of negative factors, most especially high interest rates. Housing developments in outlying areas, not accessible with a small amount of gasoline, have found it difficult to attract prospective purchasers over weekends.

But what about the long-range results of the energy situation on the residential housing market? The question was directed to architect Robert Babbin of Rolling Meadows, Ill., because he is frequently called on to address fellow professionals about architecture, land planning and development.

"There will be one set of effects for the next three to five years," said Babbin, "and another set that will last 10 or more years. In the shortrange area, the time required to construct housing projects will be lengthened about 30 per cent because excavators and material transporters will be on fuel allotments and because energy will be limited for the production of brick, tile, plumbing fixtures, gypsum and metals and some other items.

"Because of the nature of the construction process, delays in the early stages of a project cannot be remedied by increasing effort in later stages, nor can one generally 'work around' a problem; therefore, we will likely see periods of weeks or months when projects become inactive waiting for certain materials. The possibility of substitutions is somewhat limited by the rigidity of codes and the interrelationships of construction details."

How will this affect the cost of housing?

"Between construction loan interest, supervision and general operating expenses, a three-monthy delay on a $1-million, one-year project would cost about $40,000. After the subcontractors live through several of these slower projects, we will find them raising their bids to reflect their increased costs so that, by two years from now, the increased cost of housing due directly to energy conservation will range from 9 to 12 per cent."

What is the long-range picture?

"Although insulation is one of the least expensive elements in construction, many builders have ignored the long-range economy in favor of minimizing original cost. In the future, I believe we will double our insulation standards as well as significantly increase the use of double and even triple glazing. Solar orientation and prevailing wind patterns will regain importance in planning, as we try to put nature back to work in the comfort and control of our environment. The energy-conserving aspects of landscape design (such as shading the west exposures and windbreaking the northern exposures) will be brought to bear.

"In apartment-condominium design, the shape of buildings and individual units will change so that less perimeter is exposed to heat loss and sun load. There will be an effect on the location of housing. Sites near commuter railroad stations will increase in value. There will be pressure on the suburbs to rezone the areas within walking distances of railroad stations to allow for moderate-to-high-density housing. The high price of commuting by automobile will stimulate many persons into moving back to the cities.

Real Estate

By Louis E. Clark, GRI
REALTOR

REAL ESTATE VS. DOW JONES

When talking about fortunes made in investments - the mind normally equates with the stock market. However, when we compare the results over the past decade between stock market profits and real estate increases, we'll see quite a dramatic difference in dollars.

In the decade from January, 1960 to January 1970, the Dow Jones Industrial average jumped from 688 to 800 - an increase of 16 percent in ten years.

In 1960, the average sales price for a single family house in many suburban areas of major cities was $18,307. Ten years later, the average price had increased to $27,022 - an appreciation of 47.6 percent. Nationally, the increase in real estate value has been some what less dramatic - 32 percent - but even that is double the Dow.

No matter how you slice the cake, an investment in real estate over the past decade has proven to double stock market increases. And the trend appears to be widening in favor of real estate.

Big Silence Over Soviet SST Plane

By BARRY JAMES

MOSCOW (UPI) — When the Tupolev 144 supersonic airliner dropped out of the sky in flames over Paris last June, it also dropped abruptly from the columns of the Soviet press.

Once hailed as a shining example of Soviet technology, the needlenosed TU144 seems to have been officially forgotten for the time being.

The aircraft was to have gone into passenger-carrying service with the state airline, Aeroflot, by this year, according to past accounts in the Russian press.

But the plane hardly was mentioned in recently published surveys of Aeroflot's expansion program in 1974.

Two newspapers, Sovietskaya Russia and Sothialisticheskaya Industria, carried interviews with the head of Soviet civil aviation, Gen. Boris P. Bugayev.

Other Aircraft

Bugayev said the Soviet Union pioneered supersonic passenger travel with the TU144, but did not say whether the plane will go into service this year. He did describe other aircraft which will join Aeroflot in 1974.

The Soviets began an inquiry last summer into the June 3 crash of the TU144 at the Paris Air Show which killed 12 persons.

Details of the inquiry have not been made public.

Up to the time of the crash, the Soviets gave no indications they were having problems with the TU144, and frequent reports said testing was proceeding according to schedule.

In 1971, Western airline mechanics in Warsaw said a TU144 prototype landed there with large structural cracks in its engine mountings, but Aeroflot spokesmen denied anything was amiss.

First Airbus

Bugayev said Aeroflot will begin using its first airbus, the 350-passenger Ilyushin 86, on internal routes in 1974. He said a 40-ton cargo-carrying jet, the Ilyushin 76, also will join Aeroflot this year.

A stretched version of the Ilyushin 62 called the IL62M will start flying the Moscow-Peking route in February, Bugayev said.

He said "security and regularity" of flights will be provided by improved radio navigation facilities and air traffic control.

He did not say whether this is in response to Aeroflot's safety record, which recently was the subject of an article in the civil aviation magazine Grazhdanskaya Aviatsiya.

In the past year and a half, at least seven Aeroflot aircraft have crashed with the loss of about 400 lives.

GAS CUT-BACK

CORTLAND, N. Y. (UPI)— The State University of New York College at Cortland cut back on its use of natural gas for heating campus buildings this winter. It saved an amount in the first 13 days of the midyear break sufficient to heat 200 area homes for the same period.

Insights, Reflections In "The New East"

The latest issue (Vol. 1, No. 5) of eastern North Carolina's own magazine, The New East once more brings to the forefront interesting insights on people, places and issues.

In the November-December 1973 issue (The New East is published bi-monthly), articles range from nostalgic reflections to in-depth comments on the continuing controversy centering on a medical school at East Carolina University.

A special supplement pays tribute to the city of Wilson for being selected as one of 11 "All-America" cities in the U.S.

Two men perhaps closer than anyone else to the ECU Med School, Dr. Edwin Monroe, Vice-Chancellor, Health Affairs; and Dr. Wallace Wooles, Dean, School of Medicine, ECU, give their thoughts on the basic needs of a medical school to train more general practicioners to serve eastern North Carolina.

The two point out what they consider the untenable stand of opponents who try to have the situation both ways—acknowledging a dire need for more doctors while disclaiming a need to expand the current budding ECU Medical School. Details not found in daily press releases make these articles well worth reading.

In a much lighter vein, readers will find Jim Dean's nostalgic recollections on the virtues of front porches entertaining.

Bob Simpson's writing on "Waterways" has a fine poetic feel for winter sun, along coastal waters. He evokes cheerful moods, and speaks of the smell of fish, engine oil and coffee.

In "Naturally Good Together" Mildred A. Huskins reveals the intruiging possibilities of combining sausages and apples.

Other articles include Faith Hils' account of the "Columbus County Hotline"; a story on "Original Washington"; Peggy Payne's account of "Commuter Hops" (between Morehead and Greenville and Greenville-Raleigh); and an article on Kinston's Du Pont plant setting a new world record in industrial safety.

Readers with a yen for fishing will want to head out for the Outer Banks after reading Jim Dean's tips on how to hook giant bluefish and speckled trout along the narrow islands during the winter months.

The rise of an industry in Grifton from a former manufacturers of wagons, carts and planters to a thriving nationally known producer of camping trailers is told in Joe A. Paget, Sr's "Cox Trailers On The Go."

Focusing on people, Wilson native Jim Hunt, the Tar Heel lieutenant governor, is profiled as "Our Man in Raleigh."

The New East continues to provide residents of eastern North Carolina with a diversified round-up of what's going on. This latest issue is no exception and again proves there's much of interest taking place in our own favorite corner of the world.

How To Subscribe And Help Promote An Area Brochure

At a recent annual meeting of the Coastal Plain Development Association, members of the Travel and Recreation Committee of the association voted to promote subscriptions to The New East magazine.

The purpose of this action is threefold: first, to create a wider readership for a news organ of importance to residents of eastern North Carolina; second, to provide a source of funds for the Travel and Recreation Committee, which is now in the process of attempting to put together a public service Travel and Recreation brochure for the ten county association area; and third, to foster a working relationship between various regional agencies as part of a total effort to direct the attention of eastern North Carolina residents to what's available in their own back yard.

The Travel and Recreation Committee, as part of Coastal Plain Development Association, is a non-profit organization. Publishers of The New East have agreed to turn over to the Travel and Recreation Committee $1.00 for each subscription received through the committee.

This subscription drive is being made simultaneously in all ten counties comprising the Coastal Plain Development Association.

Greenville and local area persons interested in subscribing to The New East are asked to send checks in the amount of $4.00 made payable to The New East to: John Jones, Holiday Inn, P. O. Box 585, Greenville, N. C. 27834. Mark envelope ATTN: Subscription.

A Cookbook That Isn't, And Better So At That

Carolina Sportsman Cookbook. By Franc White. Greenville, N. C. 1974. 96 pps illustrated, $2.95.

Franc White has written a fascinating book which he calls a cookbook but isn't. It is more like a series of essays about fish he's met at the end of his line over the years with hints to make it easier for the reader to meet them, too.

He delights in their habits and eccentricities. The reviewer, having been brought up trolling for Mackinaw in the deep Rocky Mountain lakes and listening to a purist father disparage all other forms of fishing, was prepared to be "big about it all", but the book's casual charm and White's love for the subject made this unnecessary.

He describes the way to make Bass grow on trees and shows a Charlotte man planting a school (?) of Bass trees. If this does not entice the reader, he can always go fishing for largemouth Bass in the Santee-Cooper Lakes of South Carolina. There spring fishing ". . .is like fishing in a hayfield." "It makes the hair stand up on the neck to watch shaking grass mark the line of charge as an invisible lunker hurries to chomp your escaping spoon-snake."

White also includes camping and canoeing hints, how to hunt venison and wild birds, throws in some personal philosophy, discusses topographical maps and even pays tribute to his little Piper airplane, the Flying Zebra.

The recipes interspersing these essays are simple, clear and excellent. He's cooked them on his "Carolina Sportsman" television show during the last year. Ranging from Eggs Mendel for breakfast, so good even my husband, who hates eggs, liked it, to Bass with walnuts for dinner.

Bass With Walnuts

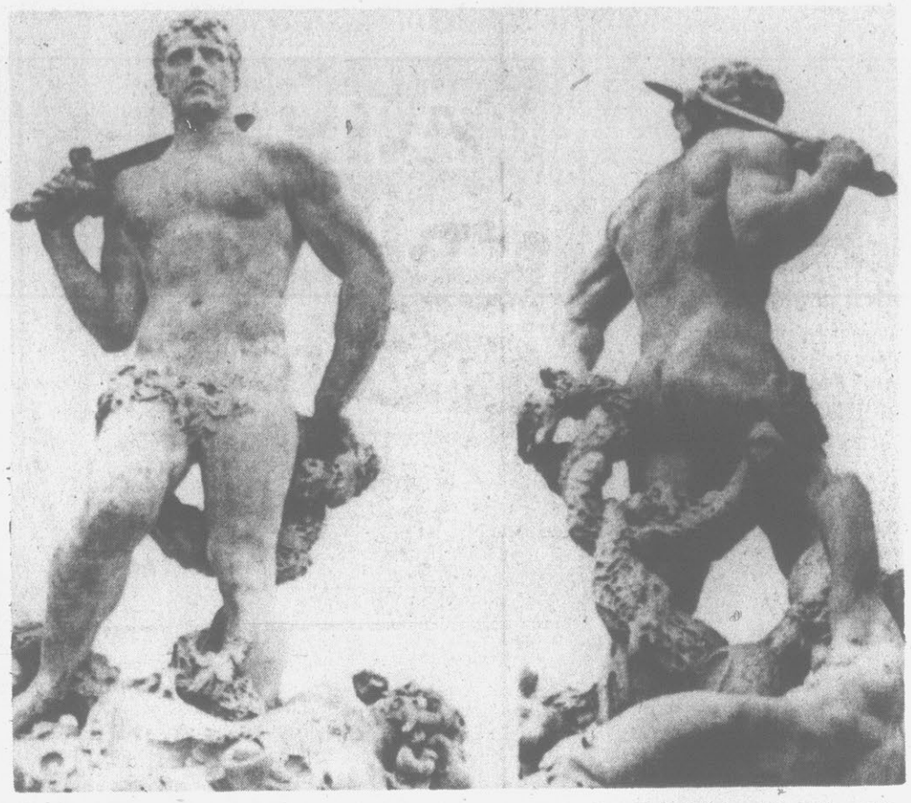

4-6 medium bass fillets
¼ cup fine cracker crumbs
¾ cup white flour
2-3 egg whites
1 cup black walnut meats
Cooking oil and melted butter

Beat the egg whites until stiff. Combine cracker crumbs and flour in a paper bag. Place fillets in bag and shake until coated. Slice the walnuts with a sharp knife into fine pieces (do not grate). Using a fork, dip fillets into the egg whites and then into the plate of chopped walnuts. Fry slowly until well done in the mix of half butter and half oil.

The illustrations in the book leave much to be desired and the photographs, while of good quality, are monotonous. With this minor caveat, the newcomers to North Carolina will be introduced to an exciting part of North Carolina life, one they would do well to explore, and old timers will get some new recipes.

STATUE OF CONTROVERSY. . .Known officially as "Civic Virtue" and called "Fat Boy" by its detractors, this hefty ten-ton, 22 foot statue (shown here in both front and back views) has become a controversial stone man in the borough of Queens in New York. Women libbers protest the manner in which "civic virtue" is sculpturally presented—a male figure standing with his feet firmly planted on two supine, naked women; one representing vice, the other corruption. Jess Lair, a successful advertising man in Minneapolis, was stricken with a heart attack at the age of thirty-five. A series of heart attacks after this one, heart surgery, other close brushes with death, and his wife's emotional problems because of his precarious health—were enough disasters to destroy most people. In a deeply personal and searching book called "HEY, GOD WHAT SHOULD I DO NOW?" Jess and his wife Jacqueline share the true story of how the tragedy of heart attack can lead to new values, new freedom, and a new more meaningful way of life. This inspiring book is full of priceless tips such as how to handle a heart attack victim, decide priorities, learn to surrender, and live in harmony with life. "HEY, GOD, WHAT SHOULD I DO NOW?" is Jess and Jackie's answer to the questions frequently asked by the readers of Jess's first book, "I AIN'T MUCH, BABY, BUT I'M ALL I'VE GOT."

Living in a society of disturbing conflect and rapid change, concerned parents are finding it increasingly necessary to seek basic principles of child-rearing which can help them understand and be prepared for the numerous situations that arise in the parent-child relationship. Sidney Callahan, editor of THE WORKING MOTHER, has combined her experience as a mother of six, current psychological theories, and sociocultural observations to piece together the sprawling puzzle created by the scant information available on the subject of parenthood. The reslut is a book called PARENTING. This book on the principles and politics of parenthood answers some important questions on the subject and offers specific objectives intended to promote progress in future parenting—from conception to maturity. An important observation made by Mrs. Callahan in her book is that success in parenthood is measured by how little a parent is needed in an adult child's life. The wisdom and knowledge Sidney Callahan has put into PARENTING make it an excellent book to fuel thought and raise consciousness.

As priest of an Episcopalian parish in Queens, New York, W. L. Damian Pitcaithly became involved in the shadow world of the addict. Later as founder and leader of the Samaritan Halfway Society, he dedicated full-time to the fight against drugs. FROM DOPE TO HOPE: The Story of Father Pit and The Samaritan Halfway Society is the history of his struggle to open the eyes of his middle-class community to the growing horrors of the drug problem. The stories which form the focus of this book are the stories of those who have walked the long road from dope to hope. Their stories are shocking, even horrifying. But like the Halfway Society, which has brought new hope and new life to many hundreds of former junkies, it is also an inspiration.

YIPPEE, I GOT THE BALL—Furman's Clyde Mayes (34) appears to be jumping for joy as he grabs a rebound during the Paladins' game with East Carolina Saturday afternoon. Furman's Craig Lynch (40), Fessor Leonard (30) and East Carolina's Nicky White look on. Furman won, 72-70. (AP Wirephoto)

GREENVILLE, S.C. — Furman University's Paladins overcame an early 11-point lead, then held off a valiant East Carolina rally to nip the Pirates, 72-70, yesterday afternoon.

The victory upped the Paladin's Southern Conference record to 7-1, padding their lead. The Pirates, meanwhile, dropped to 5-4 in the league, but remained in third place in the Southern Conference standings.

One other league game, between Richmond and The Citadel, was scheduled for Saturday night, but the outcome of the game would have no affect on the standing either of the Paladins or the Pirates.

The game saw the outcome go down to the final shot of the afternoon, but the breaks went against the Pirates most of the way in the regionally telecast game. The Bucs had fallen back by as much as six points, but Furman was not able to break the game open.

It marked the third straight loss for the Pirates, who lost to Furman on Monday to start their skid. A two-point loss to Old Dominion came in the middle of the two games with the Paladins.

The difference in this game seemed to be the presence of 7-1 Fessor (Moose) Leonard. Leonard had been suspended from two games by Furman Coach Joe Williams, and didn't start in this game, but when he came in after the Pirates had forged ahead and were completely dominating play, he turned the game around for Furman.

Neither team shot well. The Bucs hit only 42.4 per cent of their shots, while the Paladins connected on even less, 36.1 per cent. The Bucs, despite the work on 6.9 Clyde Mayes and Leonard, outrebounded Furman in the end, 53-48. Turnovers, however played a major role, as as the Bucs lost the ball 20 times, as compared to just nine for Furman.

Fouls also meant a lot, with 20 called against the Bucs and 15 against Furman.

East Carolina opened up fast, streaking to a six-point lead on baskets by Donnie Owens, Nicky White and Robert Geter. After over two minutes, Mayes finally hooked in a basket for the Paladins. East Carolina continued to hold the lead however, and slowly pulled away.

They upped their margin to seven when Roger Atkinson hit a free throw with 12:25 left in the game. Gregg Ashorn followed that with a baseline jumper and White canned a hook shot for a 23-12 lead, the biggest margin the Pirates enjoyed.

But Leonard came on then, hitting four in a row to cut the lead back to 25-18. The two teams traded baskets until Craig Lynch hit two from the corner to cut the lead to five, 33-28 with 4:38 to play.

After a Pirate free throw by Atkinson, freshman Bruce Grimm tossed in a couple to cut it to 34-32. Finally, with 30 seconds left, Leonard hit a turnabout jumper to tie it at 35-36, but Kenny Edmonds put the Pirates back in front. Leonard made a free throw with two seconds left to make it 38-37 at the horn.

Lynch tossed in the first basket of the second half, giving Furman the lead for the first time, 39-38. East Carolina regained it, but Furman took it back. East Carolina took the lead once more, 42-41, as Reggie Lee hit from the baseline, but that was to be it.

Grimm's jumper put Furman back up, 43-42, and Mayes hit with a loose ball seconds later for a 45-42 lead.

The Bucs cut it back to a point, but baskets by Leonard and Lynch and a free throw by Grimm put the Paladins into a six-point lead, 50-44 with about 15 minutes to play.

White got a basket and Atkinson, a free throw, cutting it to three, but Furman pulled away again, this time by seven, as Lynch hit for a 56-49 lead, Furman's biggest.

The two teams traded points until the 62-55 mark, when Atkinson hit from the lane. A technical foul was called on Leonard at that point, and Roger tossed in the free throw. After the inbounds, Lee hit a jumper, completing the five-point play, and the Bucs were back within two, 62-60.

Furman got baskets from Leonard and Ed Kelley, however, to up the lead to six again, but the Bucs cut it back on two free throws by White and a basket by Lee. Still, however, the Priates couldn't get the shot that counted. Each time they had the chance, they either missed, or lost the ball.

Finally, with 27 seconds left, Owens hit a pair of free throws to trim the lead to 72-70, and just seconds later, the Bucs stole the ball to have one last chance.

Owens took an off-balance shot from the lane, but it bounced off the rim and into the hands of Leonard, ending the hopes of the Bucs as the horn went off.

Leonard led the Furman scoring with 17 points, while both Mayes and Lynch each had 14, and Bud Bierly had 12.

For the Pirates, White was tops with a game-high 18, while Geter and Lee each had 10 and Owens and Atkinson hit 10 apiece.

The Bucs, now 9-9 on the season return home Wednesday night to play host to the Buffalo State University Bengals at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum. The ECU junior varsity hosts Chowan in a 5:45 p.m. preliminary.

Notre Dame In Win Over 'Cats

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — John Shumate scored 26 points and Gary Brokaw added 24, pacing No. 3-ranked Notre Dame to a 95-84 victory over Davidson in college basketball Saturday.

The Irish had pulled away to a 22-point lead midway through the second half, but the Wildcats fought back—outscoring Notre Dame 12-1 at one point—to close to 79-72 on a field goal by Larry Horowitz with less than four minutes to go. Davidson was still behind only 91-84 with less than a minute remaining before being forced to foul to get the ball.

But Brokaw hit vital points down the stretch to keep the Irish out in front.

Shumate carried the Notre Dame attack at the start of the second half, scoring 11 of the first 16 Irish points. It wasn't until Dwight Clay, the outside shooting hero of the Irish victory over UCLA two weeks ago, hit five straight bombs that Notre Dame pushed ahead comfortably at 74-52.

Davidson kept close except for two dead streaks, the first in the opening half when they fell quickly from a one point deficit midway through the half to trail 45-32 at halftime.

Horowitz paced the Wildcats with 18 points, followed by Greg Dunn's 16.

Horowitz also grabbed eight rebounds to head the Wildcats, who were outrebounded 46-37 for the game. Shumate pulled down 14 missed shots for the Irish.

For the game Notre Dame connected on 57 per cent of its shots, compared with only 46 for the Wildcats.

Clay, whose five straight fielders from beyond the 20-foot range provided the cushion for Notre Dame in the late going, finished with 19 points, on nine of 13 shooting.

Nicklaus Builds Up Insurmountable Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HONOLULU (AP) — Jack Nicklaus put together a solid, 3-under-par 69 and opened up an all-but-insurmountable six-stroke lead Saturday in the third round of the $220,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament.

Nicklaus, who has led or shared the lead all the way in this chase for a $44,000 first prize had a 54-hole total of 201—15 strokes under par on the 7,154-yard Waialae Country Club course and the lowest three-round total so far this year on the pro tour.

"He'd have to back off, shoot 73 or 74 in the last round," for the rest of us to have a chance," said J.C. Snead, who shared second place with Gibby Gilbert at 207.

Snead had a 67, five under par and Gilbert took a 71.

Tied at 208 were Rod Curl, Tom Watson, Dwight Nevil, 21-year-old rookie Eddie Pearce and New Zealand's John Lister. Curl had a 67, Lister, Watson 69 and Nevil and Pearce 71s.

"Anything can happen," said Watson, who blew a four-stroke lead in the last round of this tournament a year ago. "I did it last year.

"Maybe it'll be different this time, but anything can happen."

While Nicklaus, in only his second start of the season, had things just about the way he wanted them in the brilliant sunshine and 80 degree temperatures, some of the game's other great names had their problems.

Arnold Palmer went to a fat 76 for 220. Billy Casper had a 74 and was tied at 215 with Australian Bruce Crampton, who matched par 72. Lee Trevino managed a 71 but at 214 was 13 strokes back.

Johnny Miller, meanwhile, continued his streak of subpar shooting. The young man who swept the first three titles of the season had a 70 and stretched his streak to 14 consecutive rounds in which he has broken par.

Miller, however, had a 211 total—10 strokes back—and appeared to have little chance to retain his unbeaten status for the year.

The powerful Nicklaus, his blond mane gleaming in the sun that replaced two days of showers, didn't make a bogey in his cruise over the oceanside course.

He started with an easy birdie on the par-five first hole, parred the next 11 in a row and then birdied two in a row, the easy par five 13th and the 14th.

His biggest problems came on the 15th, just as national television cameras came on to send a live account of the action to the mainland by satellite.

He put his drive in the right rough and was partially stymied by a tree. He flew a short iron second shot over the tree, but it hit on a cart path—inches from out of bounds—and bounced back into a bunker. He blew it out to seven feet and made the putt for par.

Nothing Special At ACC Meeting

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — The Atlantic Coast Conference opens its three-day winter meeting Monday afternoon and Commissioner Bob Jones says "no real major issues" will confront the representatives of the seven member schools.

Much of their time will be given to "housekeeping", updating ACC bylaws to bring them into uniformity with changes in national rules voted in during the NCAA convention last month at San Francisco.

Athletic directors, whose chairman is Bill McLellan of Clemson, will begin their closed sessions Monday afternoon. Sports scheduling and problems connected with travel in view of the energy crisis will occupy much of their time.

The ACC Medical Advisory Committee also meets Monday to discuss treatment and prevention of injuries among athletes. The group consists of team physicians and head trainers.

Athletic directors will meet twice Tuesday, first in their capacity as the conference basketball committee, later as the television committee.

The executive and booking office committees will meet Tuesday night and faculty chairmen will meet Wednesday morning.

The final full business session will begin at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday, with a news media briefing to follow.

Dr. D. Alan Williams of Virginia, conference president, will preside over the session.

Hawaiian Sunrise

HONOLULU (AP) — With a six-hour time difference between Hawaii and the east coast of the United States, the early starters in the third round of the $220,000 Hawaiian Open golf tournament had a 7:08 a.m., local time teeoff Saturday.

The early starting times were necessitated by the network television schedule which called for a 7 p.m., EDT finish.

Lee Trevino and Fred Marti were in the first group off the tee. It was still pitch dark and pre-dawn when they stood side by side on the practice tee about 6:50 a.m.

Trevino was complaining loudly and at length about the early hour, the darkness and the fact that he couldn't follow the flight of the ball.

"It's okay," said Marti. "For 50 cents they'll give you 15 tracers."

Maryland Rips Duke By 104-83

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — John Lucas paced a first-half surge with 25 points, helping sixth-ranked Maryland roll up a 21-point lead en route to a 104-83 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory over Duke Saturday.

Lucas finished with 31 points while hitting 13 of 20 from the floor and was credited with five assists in helping the Terps rebound after consecutive losses to North Carolina and North Carolina State.

Maryland scored eight consecutive points, four by Lucas, to take a 20-10 lead midway through the first half and was never threatened thereafter. The Terps led by 25 points early in the second half.

Len Elmore, Maryland's leading all-time rebounder, pulled down 16 of his 20 rebounds in the first half which ended with the Terps ahead 51 30. The victory gave Maryland a 13-4 record, including 3-3 in the ACC.

Bob Fleischer scored 23 points to pace the Blue Devils, who are 8-8 against all competition and 1-4 in the league.

DUKE (83): Hodge 6 2-3 14, Kramer 7 2-4 16, Fleischer 8 7-10 23, Burch 2 0-1 4, Billerman 3 0-2 6, Redding 6 1-2 13, Armstrong 2 0-0 4, Zuk 0 0-0 0, Burdette 0 1-3 1, Fox 0 0-0 0, Cook 1 0-0 2. Totals 35 1325.

Scott To Be Out For The Season

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charlie Scott of the Phoenix Suns, still groggy from an operation in which a metal plate was put in his left forearm, said Saturday he won't play again this season but plans to start working out again next summer.

Scott talked about the collision with Lakers' center Elmore Smith which left the Sun's leading scorer with both forearm bones broken just above the wrist.

"I was driving for the basket and then I fell over," he said of the incident in Friday night's National Basketball Association game, won by the Lakers 121-110.

"I'm through for the year but I'll work out in the summer," Scott said. He added that doctors at Centinela Valley Community Hospital told him the double break would take about 18 months to heal completely.

Now in his fourth year out of North Carolina, the 6-foot-6 Scott had been enjoying his best season in the National Basketball Association, averaging 25.9 points per game.

Coaches for the Suns have been with him, Scott said, "wishing me a speedy recovery."

The break is "painful but I'll get over it," Scott said. He feels no anger towards Smith, he said, explaining: "We left right away for the hospital. There was nothing really to be said. I understand that."

ECU's Carson Scored Coup In Signing Suggs

By DANNY WHITFORD
Special To The Reflector

The bespectacled coach makes no effort to conceal the pride, nor to suppress the inevitable smile that spreads across his face as he stands before the bevy of reporters, photographers and television cameras he has grown accustomed to in recent days.

Bill Carson take the abnormal media attention in stride, exuberating enthusiastic but unadulterated confidence that the big steep has been made—the step that he believes initiates East Carolina University's move into the "big time" in college track and field circles.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Carter Suggs is the greatest athlete ever to sign with East Carolina in any sport," assures Carson. "His potential is awesome.

"He was already a world-class sprinter as a junior in high school and he'll be even better this year.

"When he enrolls at East Carolina next fall, our first task will be to begin preparing him for the 1976 Olympics."

Carson's observations concern Carter Suggs, the "Tarboro Flash." Carter Suggs, the most highly sought after prep sprinter in the nation. Carter Suggs, the one young man with the proven ability to bring international attention to himself and to his team in his first year as a collegian.

It was only Wednesday that Carson, Suggs and Tarboro Senior High track coach James Brett, announced that Suggs had signed an athletic grant to attend East Carolina. Suggs made his choice after sifting through more than 140 scholarship offers from schools across the nation.

"I've never been closer nor related as well to a recruit as I have with Carter Suggs," says Carson. "He's a tremendous credit to his family and to his coach.

"Coach Brett deserves a great deal of credit for helping Carter develop his skills. The kind of raw talent that Carter possesses can't be taught, but Brett is responsible for helping him utilize it to its fullest."

Suggs burst into the national limelight less than a year ago in a state sectional meet held on the same East Carolina University track that will be his home for the next four years.

In one of the nation's classic high school sprint duels, Suggs streaked past Greenville's Al Hunter at the tape as both clocked 9.3 seconds to tie the national high school and world junior records in the 100-yard dash.

Suggs went on to lead Tarboro to the state championship, sped to the national Junior AAU hundred title and was voted by the National Federation of High School Athletics as the most outstanding high school sprinter in the nation—all of this as only a junior.

"He'll do 9.1 or better before he's through," Carson firmly believes. "He'll be hard to beat in the hundred and along with another of our outstanding recruits, Larry Austin, should team with some of our current sprinters to give us one of the fastest 440-relay teams aroung."

Austin, a highly touted 9.5 dashman from Jacksonville, was the only North Carolina trackster to defeat Suggs in 1973. Carson announced Friday, only two days after the signing of Suggs, that Austin had elected to ink a pact with East Carolina

Carson, who attributes much of East Carolina's recruiting success to Pirate Assistant Coach Curtis Frye, also announced recently that Charlotte's Mike Cunningham, one of the state's top middle distance runners, had accepted a grant-in-aid to attend ECU next year. Cunningham has run the mile in 4:20 and the quarter-mile in 50.0.

Thompson Leads State To Win

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—David Thompson snapped North Carolina State from a 15-minute lethargy Saturday and the Wolfpack went on to crush Virginia 105-93.

The Atlantic Coast Conference victory was the 13th straight for the second-ranked Wolfpack, who lead the conference with a 6-0 record and are 15-1 overall. It was the seventh straight loss for the Cavaliers.

N. C. State, perhaps lulled by memories of the 20-point win they scored earlier this year on Virginia's home floor, started the game loose, relaxed—and behind.

The Cavaliers wiped the smiles from their faces by jujmping out to a six-point lead. The Virginians shot at a 56 per cent clip and their scrappy man-to-man defense kept the ball away from Thompson.

With five minutes left in the first half, Thompson and his teammates woke up. Pressing on defense and breaking on offense, the Wolfpack spurted to a 49-43 halftime lead. They opened the second half with more of the same.

Within minutes, State held a 22-point lead, and it was not until Coach Norm Sloan emptied his bench that Virginia could narrow the margin.

Thompson finished with 23 points, one more than Tommy Burlson had for the Wolfpack. Gus Gerard led the Cavaliers with 20. Virginia's record dropped to 5-11 overall and 2-4 in the ACC.

VIRGINIA (93)—Gerard 9 2-4 20, Morris 5 0-0 10, Tulley 3 3-5 9, Walker 6 1-2 13, Stahurski 5 1-1 11, McKeag 4 2-4 10, Langloh 4 4-5 12, Bonner 1 0-1 2, Shetlick 3 0-0 6, Drummond 0 0-0 0.

Rocky Mount Holds Off Rose For Win

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Rose High School's Rampants, despite poor shooting, outhit Rocky Mount from the floor by six points, but ended up losing to the Gryphons by that same margin, 62-56.

It was the second close game between the two teams. Earlier, the Gryphons had gained a four-point victory over the Rampants.

The loss eliminated the Rampants from any hope of the regular season title. They are now 1-6 in the Division I standings, while Rocky Mount, with no worse than a share of first place, is 6-1.

Rose finished the game with 52 points from the floor, hitting on 26 of 66 shots, a poor 39.4 per cent. Rocky Mount, which took only four shots in the final period, during which much of the time they spend in stalling, made good on 23 of 48, for 47.9 per cent.

The difference in the game came at the foul line. Rocky Mount hit on 16 of 24 attempts, while Rose made good on four of six.

That difference was caused by the fact that only 10 fouls were called on the Gryphons, while the Rampants, who had to come from behind all evening, collected 21.

All-America candidate Phil Ford hand another fine evening, hitting 21 points, may of them coming on fast breaks, when he had little opposition. However, he didn't hit many from the outside, getting most of the rest from inside.

Ford wasn't the high man, however, as Jarvis Moore finished with 22 points, getting several on fine assists from the speedy guard.

Rose High's Herb Bynum also had 22 points to tie for game-high honors.

Rose got the opening basket for its only lead of the night when Ronnie Barrett scored off the tap. Rocky Mount got its first points on a free throw by Jimmy Weeks, then went ahead when Ford got a three-point play on the fast break, making it 4-2.

Rose tied it up when Barrett hit again, but two free throws by Ford with 5:57 left in the period put the Gryphons ahead for good. Doug Henley scored on the base break, and after the Rampants got another score, Ford and Henley both hit jumpers to run the lead out to 12-6.

After a Rampant time out, Rocky Mount added two more as Weeks hit a pair from the charity line. Bynum made a basket and two free throws, but minutes later, Rocky Mount hit a streak that carried them into the second period. In the final minute of the first frame, Moore hit a pair of jumpers and Ford scored on the fast break, making it 23-12 at the end of the period.

Moore and Ford each connected early in the second period to run the lead out to 27-12, a 15-point margin, and the largest the Gryphons held.

Rose cut it back to seven, but Rocky Mount didn't let them come any closer, holding out for a 35-24 lead as the half came to an end.

In the third period, the Rampants came back to within seven again, 39-23 on jumpers by Tyrone Taft and Barrett, but Moore and Ford led another pull away that upped it to 15 again. They each hit two baskets around a tap-in by Bynum for a 49-34 lead with 3:21 left in the period. Rose again cut it back, however, and trailed, 52-42 as the quarter ended.

Bynum and Randy Van Surdan each hit to open the final period, and after a score by Ford, Linwood Brown and Van Surdan hit again, cutting the lead to 54-50 with 5:37 to go.

The Gryphons went into a stall after that, with Carlton Alston finally getting a free throw with 3:36 left. He missed the second shot, but got the rebound and drove with it to up the lead to 57-50. Moore added two free throws 18 seconds later before Rose finally hit again with 3:06 left, 59-52. After a free throw by Thomas Lancaster, Rose got two baskets by Macon Moye to cut it to four again, 60-56, but the Gryphons held the ball successfully after that.

They got two more free throws in the final minute, from Ford, to secure the victory margin.

Besides Bynum's points for Rose, Brown added 10.

In the junior varsity game, Rocky Mount gained a 59-40 lead, holding sway all the way. The Baby Gryphs opened up a 14-9 lead in the first period and outhit Rose, 20-8, in the second for a 34-17 halftime lead.

Rose outhit them, 15-14, but still trailed, 48-32, as the third period ended. Rocky Mount outhit Rose once more, 11-8, to hold on in the final period.

Ken Bullock led Rocky Mount with 18, while Willie Williams had 16 and Reginald Lucas had 12. Donnie Shields led Rose with 13.

The Rampants play host to Bertie Senior on Tuesday.

The Deacons roared to a 32-15 advantage in the first half, but Tech ran off 10 straight points to cut the deficit to seven at intermission.

Clemson Scares North Carolina

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—Darrel Elston hit on a goal and two free throws in the last minute and 13 seconds to give fourth-ranked North Carolina a 61-60 victory over Clemson in an Atlantic Coast Conference game Saturday night.

A crowd of 8,800 saw Elston score the goal to put the Tar Heels ahead 59-58 with 1:13 to go. Then with nine seconds remaining Elston was fouled and made both ends of a one-and-one to push the margin to 61-58. Wayne Rollins 71 Clemson center, scored on a goal at the buzzer.

The Tigers led until UNC's Bobby Jones scored on two free throws with 2:19 to go to give the Tar Heels a 57-56 edge. Terrell Suit then sank a goal as Clemson took the lead again 58 57.

East Carolina Swims Past Richmond Team

RICHMOND, Va.—East Carolina University's swimming team got a taste of what to expect in this year's Southern Conference Swimming and Diving Championships Friday night. The Bucs gained a 70-42 victory over the Spiders, but came away feeling that the University of Richmond team is vastly improved over last year.

"They'll be giving us some of our stiffest competition in the championship," Coach Ray Scharf said. "It's going to get tougher and tougher to keep winning like we have."

The Bucs have dominated the conference in swimming since entering the league.

The Bucs won eight of the individual events, while the Spiders took three. The relays resulted in a split. The lone double winner in the meet was Paul Schiffel, who took the 200-yard individual medley and the 200-yard butterfly event.

The Pirates set six new pool records during the meet, while Richmond set one.

The Pirates, now 3-4, were to swim the University of Virginia on Saturday afternoon.

Yacht Buying Hasn't Stopped

By ROBERT H. REID
Associated Press Writer

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Despite the fuel crunch, one of the nation's leading builders of powered yachts believes its well-heeled customers will keep buying boats.

After all, company officials say, a person who can afford a $100,000 yacht can pay for expensive gasoline.

"The customer we're talking about is a very affluent individual," said Charles M. Kauth, vice president-sales of AMF Hatteras Yachts. "Boating is too much a part of his life to give up completely."

Although the very rich may still be buying yachts, officials of the boating industry say that sales over-all have dipped. They blame conflicting assessments of the crisis as much as actual shortages for the decrease.

"The lack of facts out of Washington breeding confusion in the mind of the boatman or prospective boatman has led to postponement of the decision to buy until he gets some hard facts," said George Rounds, secretary of the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers of Greenwich, Conn.

"We did a survey of marinas in Southern California and Florida, where boating is still going full bore," he added. "Those we talked to were generally at 90 per cent allocation. What the public has seen, or heard or been led to believe is that there's no fuel. They just haven't tried."

Kauth agreed that the industry over-all has suffered, but he maintained that at AMF Hatteras the backlog of orders is as great as that of a year ago. He declined to provide figures.

"There may be some effect on the lower end of the market," he said. "I assume that its customer profile might more reflect the average American customer."

Customers of AMF Hatteras are hardly average. Kauth said the firm's least expensive craft, a 36-footer, lists for about $45,000. The "average-priced" model far exceeds the cost of most homes.

Most of the yachts have the conveniences of a lavish home, from air conditioning to stereo and ice cube makers. The company manufactures yachts from 36 feet to plush 70-footers that list for $400,000

The company had feared that the petroleum shortage might put polyester resin, a principal material in hulls, in short supply, since it is a petroleum-base product. However, Kauth said the company has been assured of adequate supplies, at least for the short run.

Despite official optimism, AMF Hatteras has laid off 15 per cent of its 500-man work force in its New Bern plant. Jim Miller of the company's personnel office said the workers would be recalled as production picks up on a new line of 70-footers.

As a sign of confidence, the company has large exhibits for shows in New York and in Miami.

With the threat of government-imposed fuel cutbacks, the industry has mounted a lobbying effort in Washington sponsored by several groups, including the National Association of Engine and Boat Manufacturers. The lobbyists are trying to insure that enough fuel is set aside for boating and other recreation.

They argue that although the leisure industry may not seem as essential as commercial transportation, it is an important economic factor in many communities.

"The government is studying the leisure industries because they recognize that it's the fifth largest industry in the country," Rounds said. "They almost have an economic responsibility to treat it equitably."

Meanwhile, AMF Hatteras has begun a campaign to inform marina owners and yacht salesmen of fuel conservation techniques. A 36-foot yacht burns about 14 gallons of fuel per hour at normal cruising speed.

"By operating the boat at a reduced speed, the owner can enhance his range and reduce fuel consumption," Kauth said. "It may take him longer to get from Point A to Point B, but our customers have the time."

Lefty: Terps Not In Shape

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Maryland raced to a 21-point halftime lead while beating Duke 104-83 Saturday, but it was the second half performance which most impressed—or depressed—Coach Lefty Driesell of the Terps.

"I think we found out something that I've been pondering for a long while," Driesell said. "I'm convinced our players aren't in condition."

With that, Driesell ordered an unusual Sunday workout for the sixth ranked Terps and promised "three or four tough practices" before the Virginia game on Wednesday.

"Maybe I'm wrong, but that's my analysis," Driesell said. "We've been watching ever since the Fordham game, and we haven't done as well in the second half. Maybe we're out of shape."

Center Len Elmore, who grabbed 20 rebounds Saturday, said with a slight smile after being told of Driesell's theory: "That's the truth. I'm not going to contradict him."

But then he added: "I'm in the best shape of my life. At this stage of the season, having a day off never hurt."

Guard John Lucas, who scored 25 of his career high 31 points in the first half, said: "I got a little tired, and it wasn't even a close game."

Maryland, now 13-4, was ahead 51-30 at halftime and led by at least 15 the rest of the way.

"It was a first half game all the way," said Coach Neill McGeachy of Duke, which is now 8-8. "Lucas forced Kevin Billerman into foul trouble, and did us in."

McGeachy also praised the effectiveness of Elmore off the boards and said Maryland "probably had its best bench game of the season" from Owen Brown, Billy Hahn and Jap Trimble.

"But we can't feel sorry for ourselves," the Duke coach said. "In 48 hours, we play the No. 2 team in the nation."

The Blue Devils, who beat Davidson on Wednesday, play second-ranked N.C. State on Monday. They also have a game next week against third-ranked Notre Dame, giving them five contests in 10 days with three of the opponents ranked among the top six in the nation.

"We needed a game like this to get us back on our winning ways," Elmore said after the Terps rebounded following consecutive losses to North Carolina and N.C. State.

McGeachy said he was told by reporters prior to the game that Duke was catching Maryland at an opportune time. "But," he noted, "they seemed to be in good spirits today."

Palmer Gains 4-Shot Lead

MIAMI (AP) — Sandra Palmer shot a four-under-par 69 Saturday to take a four-stroke lead into the final round of a $30,000 invitational tournament on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Miss Palmer's 36-hole total is 139, seven under par. In second place at 143 are Karolyn Kertzman of Santee, Calif., who had a 71 Saturday, and Donna Caponi Young of North Hollywood, Calif., who shot a 70.

First round leader Pam Higgins of Palm Springs, Calif., staggered in with a 77 after a 68 Friday for a 145 total on the 6,300-yard, par 73 Kendale Lakes Country Club course.

That tied her with Jane Blalock of Highland Beach, Fla., Kathy Whitworth of Dallas, Sandra Post of Boynton Beach, Fla., and Laura Baugh of Long Beach, Calif.

A stroke ahead of Miss Higgins' group at 144 was Mary Mills of Laurel, Miss., who had a 74 Saturday.

"I was very impressed with Sandra Palmer's round," said Miss Higgins. "The course played at least a couple of strokes tougher than yesterday.

"I used every golf club in my bag out here today because of wind conditions. I played badly, got tired and lost my concentration."

Miss Palmer, the 1962 football Homecoming Queen at North Texas State, won five events last year and ranked third in LPGA earnings with $60,186.

Miss Palmer, 32, credited her play in this initial event of the LPGA season to jogging she has done for three days a week this past month at Delray Beach, Fla.

"The legs are the key to my golf swing," she explained.

Miss Kertzman has never finished higher than sixth in two years on the tour. She was idle until two-and-a-half weeks ago because of an operation to remove calcium deposits from her left elbow.

"I'm surprised by my showing, especially my putting," said the 23-year-old who won $7,573 last year.

Plymouth Gets Win Over Tigers

WILLIAMSTON — Plymouth High School rolled to a 70-54 victory over the hapless Williamston Tigers here Friday night. Williamston's girls rolled to a 63-46 win in their game, while the Baby Tigers won, 56-50.

In the girls' game, Williamston shot out to a 20-10 lead after one period. The action slowed for the Tigerettes in the second frame, as they only outhit their guests, 11-10, for a 31-20 halftime lead.

Williamston continued to coast along in the third frame, 16-14, edging the lead to 47-34. They outshot Plymouth, 16-12, in the final quarter, winding it up.

Nancy Williams led Williamston with 16 points, while Bet Brandon had 13 and Fran Hardison had 12. Mercedes Dickerson led Plymouth with 13, while Brenda Brown and Marian Davis each had 12.

The Plymouth team had little trouble in gaining victory in the boys game. Plymouth ripped off 23 points in the first quarter, allowing only six to the Tigers. They came back with a 16-12 advantage in the second period to lead 39-18 at the half.

Plymouth outhit the Tigers, 17-12, during the third period, running their lead out to 56-30. Williamston tried for a comeback against the Plymouth bench, 24-14, in the final frame, but still fell short.

Basnight led Plymouth with 21 points, while Bell had 19. Keith Biggs was high for Williamston with 12 points.

The Tigers travel to Tarboro on Tuesday.

McNamara New Padre Manager

SAN DIEGO (AP) — John McNamara, a San Francisco Giants' coach, was named Saturday to manage the San Diego Padres, getting his second major league managing job.

He signed a one-year contract.

Peter Bavasi, general manager of the National League baseball team, said McNamara, 41, will replace the fired Don Zimmer.

Salary terms were not disclosed.

Zimmer was dismissed after the 1973 season in which the Padres finished last in the National League West for the fifth straight year.

The easygoing McNamara, who never played in the major leagues, was named manager of the Oakland A's with 14 games left in the 1969 season, replacing Hank Bauer.

He was fired the day after the end of the 1970 season, becoming Oakland owner Charlie O. Finley's 10th managerial victim in 10 years. The A's had finished second in the American League West with an 89-73 record, their best mark since 1932.

Finley claimed McNamara had not maintained tight enough control of the players.

For the last three seasons, McNamara has been the Giants' third base coach. He had been considered the leading candidate for the San Diego job.

Aycock Upsets Greene Central

PIKEVILLE — Charles B. Aycock High School upset Greene Central's Rams Friday night, 68-65. The Aycock girls took a 58-22 win in their contest, while the Greene Central junior varsity kept it from being a Falcon sweep with a 45-38 win.

The Rams, who found themselves eliminated from a title chance with the result of the game, inched into the lead, 15-14, after one period of play. They began to pull away from the Falcons in the second quarter, outscoring them, 16-10. That left Greene ahead at intermission, 31-24.

But the Falcons came back out of the dressing rooms fired up and proceeded to pour in 20 points in the third frame. Greene Central got only 10, and found itself trailing as the final period got underway, 44-41. The Falcons matched the Rams point-for-point in the final eight minutes, holding onto the lead for the win.

Jimmy Price and Tommy Herndon each had 15 points to lead the Aycock upset. Richard Lancaster added 12, Terry Coley had 11 and Parker Davis hit 10. For the Rams, Moses Barron had 31, while Jerome Sheppard had 13 and Tim Butts added 10.

In the girls' game, Aycock went out into a ten-point lead in the first period, 16-6. They outhit the Ewes, 16-9, in the second and led 32-15 at the half.

Aycock continued to make a runaway of it in the third period, outscoring the Ewe cagers, 17-4, for a 49-19 lead. They outhit Greene, 9-3, in the final period to complete the rout.

Evans led Aycock with 17 points, while Lancaster had 12 and Sirt had 10. Laura Pridgen led the Ewes with nine points.

Greene Central's boys are now 11-5, while Aycock is 6-10. The Aycock girls post an 11-5 mark, while the Ewes are 4-12.

Robersonville Sweeps Evening

BLACK CREEK—Robersonville's Golden Eagles swept a trio of games from Lee Woodard Friday night winning each by more than 16 points.

In the JV game, the Baby Eagles bombed LW, 75-45. The Robersonville girls took their game by 50-34 and the Varsity won, 74-55.

In the girls game, Robersonville had some trouble pulling away from Lee Woodard. They edged out to a 9-8 lead in the first quarter and by halftime they had added only one point to the gap. 21-19.

The Lady Eagles warmed up in the third period, dumping in 17 points to zoom out to a 38-23 lead. But Robersonville could not keep up the steam in the fourth period and bettered LW by only one point. 12-11. It did not matter as they already had the game won.

Elaine Forrest led the Robersonville girls with 13. Pam Barnes paced LW with 15.

Robersonville's 20 first quarter points sent the boys winging to their win as LW only managed to get six to go through the nets. As the first half ended, Robersonville led 36-24.

Both teams added ten in the third quarter keeping the margin the same. The Eagles took the last frame, 28-21, as they ran up the final spread of 74-55.

Ernest Crandall led the Robersonville team with 15, Ricky Purvis had 14, Tyrone Little 12 and Percy Morning 10. Michael Atkinson was high for Lee Woodard with 17.

Ayden-Grifton Wins To Stay In The Race

NEW HOPE—Ayden-Grifton kept its fading title hopes alive Friday night with a 71-57 romp over Eastern Wayne. The A-G junior varsity slipped to a 54-53 win in its game, while the Eastern Wayne girls downed the Chargerettes, 42-27.

In the girls' contest, Eastern inched ahead, 8-6, in the first period. They came back to zip away in the second, 14-3, and run their lead out to 22-9 at halftime.

Eastern put through 14 more in the third, while Ayden-Grifton increased its scoring to 12, but still trailed 36-21. Both hit six points in the final period.

Pat Smith led Eastern with 14 points, while Scott had 12. Kelly Reeves had 16 to lead Ayden-Grifton.

In the boys' game, it was a different result. Ayden-Grifton edged out into a 16-10 lead after the first period of the game. They went on to outhit Eastern, 13-11, in the second frame and built a 29-21 advantage at the half.

The Chargers continued to have trouble pulling away, however, edging Eastern, 20-18, in the third period. That left A-G ahead, 49-39. They outhit the Warriors in the final period, 22-18, to win it.

Milton Brown led Ayden-Grifton with 26 points, while Melvin Strewart had 14, Jesse Brown had 13 and Travis Woods had 10. Keith Naylor led Eastern with 18, while Dempsey had 13, Charles McAdoo had 12 and Ron Conley had 11.

Ayden-Grifton is now 14-2 with two games left, while league-leading Conley is 15-1, one game up. For Ayden-Grifton to win outright, Conley must drop both of its games next week, while A-G wins. A single win for the Vikings insures a share of the title, while a sweep would give them a win. Likewise, a loss for Ayden-Grifton would knock them out of it.

Eastern Wayne is 3-13, while their girls are 13-3. The A-G girls are 10-6.

Ayden-Grifton will play host to Southern Wayne on Tuesday.

Belhaven took the girls' game, 58-33, then won the varsity boys 51-31.

The loss left the Bear Grass girls with a 1-11 mark, while the boys are 0-12 in the league. Belhaven's teams are 10-2 each.

In the girls' game, Belhaven inched into the lead, 10-8, after one period of play. They managed to put a little more daylight betweeen themselves and the Bears, 15-10, in the second frame, moving into a 25-18 halftime lead.

The third period made the big difference, as Belhaven shot down the Bears with a 16-4 margin to run their lead to 41-22. Bear Grass was outgunned again, 17-11, in the last period.

Ruby Borden led Belhaven with 26 points, while Colar Rogerson had eight to pace the Lady Bears.

In the varsity game, Rocky Mount edged out into a 12-7 lead in the first quarter of the contest. Aycock came back with a 16-9 edge in scoring in the second period, however, and gained a 23-21 lead at the half.

The Phantoms continued to pull away in the third period, 17-4 as they built their lead to 40-25. Rocky Mount rallied for a 25-19 margin in the final period, but couldn't catch up.

Ocalas Randolph led Aycock with 18 points, while Mike Adams had 17 and Danny Short had 14. For the T-Birds, James Bynum and Terry Knight each had 14.

Jamesville Ices District Berth

JAMESVILLE — Jamesville High School rolled to a 51-39 victory over Mattamuskeet Friday night in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Conference. The victory clinched a berth for the Bullets in the district tournament later this month. The Jamesville girls, however, bowed, 42-25, while the Jamesville JV's won their game, 43-39.

In the girls' game, Mattamuskeet jumped off to a 12-1 lead after the first period. They continued to pull away from the Lady Bullets in the second quarter, 8-5, leading 20-6 at the half.

Mattamuskeet kept moving away in the third period, 6-3, holding a 26-9 lead going into the final period. Both teams hit 16 points in the final frame.

Gloria Collins led the Lady Lakers with 14 points, while Minnie Futrell had 13. For Jamesville, Charlotte Hardison was high with four points.

In the boys' game, Mattamuskeet inched ahead, 12-11 after one period, but the Bullets came back with a 23-15 scoring advantage in the second. That pushed Jamesville into a 34-27 lead at the half.

But the Bullets got into foul trouble in that first half, and put the ball on ice in the third period. They still outhit the Lakers, 3-2, moving the score to 37-29. Jamesville then outhit them in the final period, 14-10, to take the win.

Steve James led the Bullets with 13 points, while Horace Hall had 10 and Gurkin Martin had 12. No one broke double figures for the Lakers.

Jamesville's boys are now 6-6 in the league with two games to play and have clinched at least a fifth place finish, which, barring an upset in the tournament, would give them a place in the district. Mattamuskeet is now 3-9. The Jamesville girls are 1-11, while Mattamuskeet is 4-8.

JACKSON CHECKED

NEW YORK (AP) — The success four Met pitchers had against slugger Reggie Jackson in Shea Stadium helped the Mets take two of the three World Series games played at home against Oakland. The pitchers who faced Jackson with men on base were Tom Seaver, Ray Sadecki, Jon Matlack and Jerry Koosman. They held Jackson to one single in 12 official at bats. Jackson made out nine times with men on base, failing to advance 11 runners.

In each of the three New York games, Jackson struck out his first time at bat. Seaver got him three straight times on strikes.

Coke In 9th Win

Coca-Cola continued to roll along in the City Basketball League Friday night, taking a 78-56 win over the Book Exchange. It was the ninth straight win for Coke.

Jim Modlin led Coke with 30 points, while John Rodgers had 10. Mike Jackson and Jack Hodge each had 12 points, while Phil Duffy had 10.

Kentucky Fried Chicken downed the Eagles, 91-67, in the second game. KFC worked up a 46-24 lead by the end of the half, and outscored the Eagles, 45-43, in the final period.

Al Faber led KFC with 34 points, while Kris Dominick had 19 and Richard Slach had 12. Charles Meeks paced the Eagles with 23 points, while Karl Hardee had 14 and Bobby Gaynor had 13.

HOLLYWOOD—Only Ayden-Grifton's Chargers stand in the way of the D. H. Conley Vikings now as the Eastern Carolina Conference season is rapidly drawing to a close. The Vikings reduced their magic number to two Friday night as they bashed Farmville Central, 73-30.

A-G is the only remaining team with a shot at the league-leading Vikings. Any loss by them coupled with a win by Conley would give the Vikes the crown.

In addition to the boy's win, the Conley JV's also won. The Farmville Central girls, however, mauled the Valkyries, 57-23. The first quarter was the only close part of the game but after the Lady Jaguars warmed up, they rapidly pulled away from Conley.

Kathy Suggs got the Lady Jags on the boards first as she opened the game with a bucket from her lane. A free throw by Conley's Daphne Simpson and a basket by Pat Buck put the Valkyries in front, 3-2.

Suggs slipped Farmville Central into a 3-3 tie on a free throw but Buck scored on a drive as Conley went back on top, 5-3. Suggs continued to carry the Lady Jaguars as she scored again retieing the game, 5-5, only to see Simpson drop in a long bank shot to give the lead right back to the Valkyries.

But that was the last time they had it. Darlene Joyner knotted the score at 7-7 for Farmville Central and Suggs added two charity shots to give them a 9-7 lead at the end of the quarter.

The area's leading female scorer, Julia Moye began to warm up and canned her first basket of the night to give FC an 11-7 lead. The Valkyries fought back to tie it again on baskets by Ella Fleming and Rosa Adams.

Suggs added her eighth and ninth points to give the advantage back to Farmville Central for good on free shots and Moye scored a three-point play. Beth Turnage made a pair of free shots but Debra Page made two for Conley to cut the lead back to five. They were the last Valkyrie points of the period as Farmville Central ran off nine quick ones as Jennifer Counterman suddenly got hot sinking three field goals, to make it 27-13.

Farmville Central took the third period, 10-6. It was not until the clock showed 2:10 left in the game that Conley scored again. In the meantime, the Lady Jaguars were running up the score to as much as 34, 54-19.

Moye had eight of her 21 points in the last period. Counterman broke into the double figures column for the first time hitting 13 and Suggs scored 10. Pat Buck led Conley with eight.

Larry Daniels was the undisputed master of the boards Friday night as he swept off 24 rebounds leading Conley in the department as the whole team grabbed 55. The Jaguars had less than half that total, 25. Conley's Buddy Phillips had 11 and Rick Mobley had six. Walter Gorham and Mike Corbett had seven each for FC.

As far as effectiveness from the floor was concerned, neither team could wave a flag. The Jaguars shot a miserable 24.1 per cent while the Vikings did not do much better hitting on 35.4 per cent of their attempts.

The Jaguars were never in the ball game as the Vikings rolled up an 11-point lead before the Jags even scored. After the first quarter, Conley had little trouble dominating the game.

Phillips tapped in the rebound of Mobley's shot for the opening bucket of the game and Mobley dumped in two field goals from the Conley corners to make it 6-0. Willie Hawkins scored after an assist by Clennel Streeter, 8-0, and Streeter dumped in a three-point play with 2:38 left in the frame to lift the Vikings up by 11-0.

Corbett broke the ice for Farmville Central with a swish and Mark Gorham added a lay-up. Daniels dumped in a shot and after Lee Johnson's free throw, Milton Tucker scored for the Vikings to give them a 15-5 lead at the end of the period.

Daniels and Mobley each squeezed through seven points and Phillips six as the Vikings took the second period, 20-8, leading at halftime, 35-13.

Another 15 went up for Conley in the third compared to eight for the Jags. Gary Mobley scored inside the final minute of the quarter to give the Vikings a 50-21 lead.

Gary Mobley scored again to increase the lead to 52-21 as the final quarter began but Corbett and James Cobb blew through buckets to start causing the Conley bench some worry. It did not last long as the Vikings ran in 11 straight points before the Jaguars were able to score again on Frankie Shelly's shot from the lane, 63-29.

The margin took another ten-point leap as the Vikings moved out to 73-29 with 34 seconds left. Shelly scored the final FC point on a free shot.

Daniels was as hot on the floor as on the boards. He led the Vikings with 21 points, Rick Mobley had 14 and Phillips 12. Corbett was the only Jaguar in double figures with 12.

The Vikings travel to face North Pitt Tuesday.

Big Orange In Win For Title

SPRING HOPE — North Pitt High School's girls basketball team claimed their third straight Eastern Carolina Conference championship Friday night with a 32-20 victory over Southern Nash.

The Southern boys got revenge by taking the varsity boys' game, 49-39, and the junior varsity, 43-42.

The win boosted the North Pitt girls' record to 16-0 in the league, iceing the title for them. They are 18-0 on the season, and still have never lost a regular season game, and only one game in their history, that in state tournament play.

The game was not a good one for the Big Orange Machine, however. With one starter still out with injuries, Debbie Pollard, they had trouble with one of their arch rivals. Both teams hit six points in the first period, but the Pant-HERS managed a 7-4 margin in the second for a 13-10 lead at the half.

The third period did the trick for the Big Orange, as they outhit the Lady Firebirds, 11-2, to boost the lead to 24-12. The two teams each hit eight points in the final period.

Wanda Whichard led North Pitt with 10 points, while Gloria Pope had eight for Southern, which is now 12-4 in league play.

The Southern boys jumped away to a 13-6 lead after the first eight minutes. North Pitt outhit them, 8-7, in the second frame, but was still down, 20-14 at the half.

Southern then canned 22 points in the third period, to put the game away, as the Panthers got only 10, trailing 42-24. North Pitt outhit the Firebirds, 15-7, in the final period, but it wasn't enough.

Sid Joyner led Southern with 13 points, while Randall Baker had 12. Charles Lewis led North Pitt with 13.

The Panthers are now 5-11 in the league, while Southern is 7-9. North Pitt goes to Conley on Tuesday.

Wildlife Afield: Photos Add To Sport

By JIM DEAN

One of the best slide shows I ever saw was presented by an amateur photographer whose equipment consisted largely of a moderately priced single lens reflex 35mm camera and a standard 50mm lens.

He used his camera to make a visual record of his trips. Whenever he went duck hunting, he shot pictures of people loading decoys in the boats, pictures of the hunters in the blind, pictures of hunters with their kills and even pictures of sleepy hunters eating breakfast at 4:30 in the morning. His fishing trips are also recorded on slides.

Of course, he only showed us his best slides, and he admitted that he shot a lot of photographs that didn't turn out. That is nothing to be ashamed of. A good professional photographer shooting photos of hunting and fishing is pleased if he gets three or four really good slides out of a 36 exposure roll of film.

"I always shoot a lot of pictures," he told me, "and I manage to wind up with a pretty good selection. I enjoy it. To me, getting a good photo is as much fun as catching a fish—sometimes."

Outdoor photography must be one of the fastest growing hobbies around. Hardly a week goes by that somebody doesn't come by the Division of Education of the N.C. Wildlife Resources Commission in Raleigh and ask our photographers questions. Mostly, they want to know how to get started.

Advice will vary depending upon who you ask, but some general observations can be made. The first rule, I think, is to buy the best camera you can afford. In photography equipment, as much as anything, you get what you pay for. Also, I believe a newcomer would be well advised to purchase a 35mm single lens reflex camera with a standard lens (usually such a lens will range from 45 to 55mm). If you can afford it, get a camera that has a built-in light meter that tells you the right settings to insure a properly exposed photograph (neither too light, not too dark). The best built-in meters are those that measure the light through the lens of the camera. We use this type of camera extensively.

There are several reasons for suggesting such a camera. Most important, these 35mm cameras are light and easy to carry. Also, the better ones have excellent lens. Prices range from $100 to well over $500, and the higher the price, the better the camera. In my opinion, you'll be better satisfied with a camera that costs at least $200 to $250. You may find a decent one for less than that, but it may not be very durable, and the lens is likely to be poor. Another good piece of advice is to buy only from reputable dealers where you can see what you are getting. Avoid those "wonderful" mail order deals. Also, buy a camera whose brand name is widely known. The better Japanese and German cameras are probably tops.

Once you've got your gear, here are some tips. First, don't worry about not having a long telephoto lens. You probably won't miss it. Even in wildlife photography, the super long lens is not often essential. Your normal lens will cover 90 percent of the things worth shooting.

Shoot lots of closeups. Move in close on subjects. Try to fill the viewing field with the subject. Shoot lots of photos, and always shoot every photo at several different settings to make sure you've got it. Don't put too much trust in the light meter. If you shoot color film, have your subject wear bright colors. Finally, don't be afraid to experiment.

Outdoor photography can add a new dimension to your sport, and you may even find it to be the most enjoyable hobby you have.

Battered Eyesore Still Is The Biggest Goal Among Yachtsmen

By KEN FRANCKLING

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A modern-day silversmith might call it a worthless eyesore, but yachtsmen around the world regard the America's Cup as the Holy Grail of sailing.

The schooner America outdistanced a fleet of British rivals around the Isle of Wight in 1851 bringing home from Britain a pitcher of silver then valued at 100 guineas.

A 12-meter challenger from Australia or France will make the 22nd bid to wrest the "auld mug" from possession of the New York Yacht Club this September when the America's Cup races are held off the Rhode Island coast.

Race officials spurned a request from the financial syndicate backing aluminum yacht Courageous to postpone the races until 1975 because of the energy crisis.

Biggest Tourist Boon

The America's Cup trials and best-of-seven finals are traditionally the biggest tourist boon for this stately resort with spectators on land and afloat building up 20,000 strong after six weeks of trials.

Civic officials and merchants in Newport say it's too early to gauge the energy crisis' effect on the 1974 series. In the same vein, they don't speculate whether there will be a rise or decline in the millions of dollars the event brings the local economy every three or four years.

"I don't think the energy crisis will have an effect on the number of people coming here," said Mayor Humphrey J. Donnelly III. "If the fuel situation is a factor, the race will draw more people from the local area."

In the past, the series has drawn a spectator fleet of up to 1,000 boats for the weekend races. The races, over a 24.3 mile course, are scheduled to begin Sept. 10

Economic Gain Seen

A switch in geographic drawing power would have the biggest effect on hotels and motels which are booked full for the final series. There is an added attraction this year. A seven-day boat show coincides with the cup races.

Donnelly said Newport will win economically regardless of the energy situation. "There is no question in my mind that it will be very beneficial to Newport," he said. "It always has been."

The British have been the most persistent in trying to win back the cup, which is securely fastened down in a glass display case at the New York Yacht Club. They have challenged —and lost —16 times.

But there will be no British entry when the foreign elimination trials start Aug. 22. The Royal Thames Yacht Club backed out in December after finding that no suitable 12-meter yacht could be completed in time for the trials.

Two-Time Defender

Intrepid faces her most serious challenge evern in the U.S. trials off Newport. Keel modifications are underway to put her back in 1967 form, but some experts way the new aluminum challengers, Courageous and Mariner, will have a decided advantage.

Tar Heel Outdoors: Recalls Game Shortage

By JOEL ARRINGTON

In these days of shortages of one kind or another, sportsmen might be prone to remember years of plenty and years when fish and game were scarce.

I recall, for example, fish gluts and game surplus and times of simple plenty, as at Hatteras last fall when flounder seemed to pave the ocean bottom, at Nags Head one year when giant bluefish were so thick you could touch them with your rod, and in Albemarle Sound when school stripers showered bait and we caught fish on flies with every cast.

But I also remember other times, as at Ocracoke when we fished for channel bass all night for three nights running and never caught more than a wretched ray; and on Whipping Creek Lake on a frigid February day casting in vain for chain pickerel and the cypress was sienna against a Kodachrome sky; and the time we raced all of the long day after Russian boar in the Nantahalas and the slopes were steeper with every step and our breaths came hard and condensed in thick clouds and we returned to the lodge without game.

In retrospect, I think we got a much real good out of those experiences on the lean days as on the fat. There wad disappointment, but also there was great satisfaction for having given it a good try. There was a crackling fire, sometimes, steaming wool socks and good bourbon and stories and laughter and lies. There were coats that smelled of birds, hands and smelled of bait and dogs that just smelled.

When I reminisce over the last decade, I now find it difficult to sort out bad years from good ones. They were all the same — all full of gratification and ecstatic joy, grim disappointment and regret.

I suspect that the end of the next decade will bring much the same summation. We will find that we did not really need the things we wanted or grew short of, that what we really needed was facility for making more of the day, a greater sense of satisfaction for having tried.

Now, for the first time ever, you can get a mortgage commitment before you even look for a home.

We're not saying we were the first to come up with the idea. No, anyone who's ever looked for a house has wished such a thing existed.

What we're saying is that we're the first financial institution around here with the courage to actually do it.

Give you a mortgage ahead of time.

That mortgage, The Early Mortgage, is our commitment on paper to reserve a certain sum for you. You don't have to use all the money. You don't even have to use any. But for three months, the term of The Early Mortgage, you have the certainty that if you need that money to buy a house, it's going to be there.

And, if interest rates should go up during that period, you are not affected at all. You get the exact rate of interest that we agreed upon when we first approved your Early Mortgage.

When you do find a house you want, we'll look it over and make sure it justifies your investment. That works for you, and is something we have to do on every mortgage in any case. And there'll still be "closing costs." We haven't found a way to do away with them yet. But that's about it.

House hunting just became a lot simpler.

The Early Mortgage. Only from First Federal.

Police Dept. Juvenile Division Begins Monday

A Juvenile Division, designed to handle all juvenile-related cases, will begin operation Monday within the Greenville Police Department.

Chief Glenn Cannon, who made the announcement Friday, said officer Hugh J. Benson will be assigned to the division "to handle all juvenile complaints" and other matters involving juvenile-related activities of the department.

Benson, a 20-year Army veteran and former Boy Scout executive joined the Police Department here March 1973.

Cannon said Benson has successfully completed a 160 hour Introduction to Police Science Course and a 40 hour motor vehicle accident investigation course as well as a 40-hour Juvenile Officer curriculum since joining the department.

"This is the first phase" of the program Chief Cannon noted. He said hopefully another officer will be assigned to the division within the year.

According to Chief Cannon, Benson will work closely with the Police Club at the old Eppes High School gym (where he will maintain his office until additional space is made available at Police Department headquarters) as well as the Greenville Junior Cadet Program—a program involving 30 boys from Rose High and Aycock Junior Cadet Program—a program involving 30 boys from Rose High and Aycock Junior High Schools in police work.

Aquarium Whale Is Expecting

NEW YORK (AP) — What do you do with a pregnant whale?

At the New York Aquarium on Coney Island, they watch it carefully, guard it against inquisitive sightseers and hope the pregnancy will come to full term without the disaster that beset the birth of Francis' calf in July 1972. That quite unexpected event was followed shortly by the death of the baby, which had been unduly excited by spectators.

Francis, a beluga, was the first whale known to give birth in captivity, and her accomplishment had led to a whale-breeding program involving her and three other belugas. If it succeeds, scientists have great hopes for benefits not only for endangered species but for mankind. And Francis has become pregnant again.

The spelling is correct; Francis is named after a man.

Business Notes

AWARD PRESENTED

James Keel of Keel Peanut Co., Greenville, received the 1974 "Seedman of the Year" Award on Jan. 25 in Raleigh from the N. C. Crop Improvement Association.

Keel, who was recognized for his work in promoting certified seed, received the award from association president, Robert Hardee of Raleigh. The Greenville businessman was cited as a pioneer in the production of certified peanut seed in North Carolina.

NET INCOME DOWN

Servomation Corp. reported that preliminary figures indicate that its sales for the second quarter of fiscal 1974, ended Dec. 29, were up about 13 per cent over the same quarter in fiscal 1973, but that its net income would probably be down about 19 per cent for the quarter.

Allan P. Lucht, chairman of the national food and refreshment service firm, said that the decline in earnings is principally the result of rising food cost.

DIVIDEND DECLARED

Directors of Jefferson-Pilot Corp., meeting in Greensboro, declared a quarterly dividend of 13 cents per share, payable on March 1 to shareholders of record at the close of business on Feb. 8.

Jefferson-Pilot Corp. is listed on both the New York Stock Exchange and the Midwest Stock Exchange. Life insurance subsidiaries of the corporation are Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co. and Pilot Life Insurance Co.

NEW BUSINESS

David Briley Sr., David Briley Jr. and Jerry Smith announced the formation of a new corporation, Pitt Marine Sales and Service Inc., located at 3104 Memorial Drive.

The partners reported that Pitt Marine Sales and Service, which officially opened for business Friday, will be the new dealership for Johnson Motors and will also handle Arrowglass and MFG boats.

David Briley Jr. said that the dealership will offer complete sales and service of Johnson products and accessories as well as a staff of factory-trained mechanics. A full stock of marine equipment will be included in the company inventory, he said.

TEN YEAR AWARD

Roy H. Park, president of Park Broadcasting Inc., recently presented three members of the Park group with Ten Year Service Award gold cuff links in New York City.

Receiving the awards during the presentation at the New York Athletic Club were WNCT-TV vice president and general manager Hank Tribley and WNCT-TV sales manager John Clark, both of Greenville, and Hohn B. Babcock, executive vice president of Park Broadcasting, Ithaca, N. Y.

The presentations were made at the annual Management and Sales Meeting of the Park group.

ELECTED TO BOARD

North Carolina National Bank Corp. board chairman Thomas I. Storrs announced that William A. Klopman, executive vice president of Burlington Industries Inc., and Dr. Juanita M. Kreps, vice president and James B. Duke Professor of Economics at Duke University, have been elected to the NCNB board.

Storrs said that the management of NCNB Corp., parent company of North Carolina National Bank, will recommend the election of Klopman and Kreps to the corporation's board of directors at the annual shareholders' meeting in April.

North Carolina National Bank, the principal NCNB Corp. subsidiary, has 148 offices in 48 North Carolina communities in addition to international banking offices in New York City, London and Hong Cong. The bank had deposits at Dec. 31 of $2.961 billion.

CARD OF THANKS

WE WISH TO express our appreciation to everyone for their thoughtfulness and kindness during the time that our house was destroyed by fire. May God Bless each and everyone of you. In Christian Love, The Jimmy Bullock Family.

IN MEMORY OF our dear Mother, Son and Nephew; Mrs. Anna Barnhill and Bert Barnhill who passed away two years ago, February 2, 1972, how much you are all missed, no one can say. Yor faces are still so clear, blurred only by sudden tears. We will never forget those happy days you gave to us in your funny ways. You are now with God in heaven above and our thoughts are with you. With all our love. Sadly missed by two daughters, Mother, Aunt Estella and Olive Barnhill.

THOMAS REALTY COMPANY

THE ULTIMATE IN LEISURE LIVING

. . . . . has come to Greenville. It's no secret now. Thomas Realty Co. is introducing "The Martinsborough Square," a condominiums community.

We wanted to make our condominums very special. So, first, we selected a site adjacent to Greenville's most beautiful golf course, Greenville's Golf and Country Club. Next we added variety. Choose from our 2 and 3 bedroom gardens or townhouses. Then we add spaciousness in our condominiums that only the most luxurious leisure living can afford. Finally, we only build 22 units to preserve a small private community.

Are you still asking yourself, "What are condominiums?" Let us explain. Condominium ownership at Martinsborough Square is more than just living, it's a lifestyle. Martinsborough Square is a common meeting ground for a broad spectrum of social, cultural, intellectual and recreational facilities. These condominiums are spacious and luxuriously appointed, suggested quiet, elegant taste and style. Condominiums offer the advantages of property ownership without the offsetting responsibilities. INTEREST payments and property taxes are deductible. Environmental COMPATIBILITIES, ARCHITECTURAL GRACE, SOLID CONSTRUCTION is the result of our efforts to provide condominium owners AT MARTINSBOROUGH SQUARE with a SOUND INVESTMENT IN LIVING.

It's a lot like an ENGLISH VILLAGE. Only closer. We didn't decide to call it a village because THAT'S WHAT IT IS. A place where privacy emerges as a natural characteristic. A place where you breathe clean air. MEET AFTER WORK FOR A GAME OF TENNIS, OR GOLF, OR SWIM. A place with nice people and THINGS TO DO. A village . . . .

Services To Handicapped Noted

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

The N. C. Council on Developmental Disabilities, Department of Human Resources, recently has published an 18-month study of the extent, scope, and quality of services to the handicapped provided in each of the 100 counties.

Mrs. Sarah G. Allen, local coordinator of the Council, told of the facilities named in the Pitt County study and of the list of needs documented.

Facilities and programs mentioned include the East Carolina Sheltered Workshop, the ECU Development Evaluation Center, the programs of the Pitt County Department of Social Services, the Farmville Child Development Center, the Coastal Plains Mental Health Center, programs of Pitt Technical Institute, specific programs in the two school systems, and services of The N. C. Vocational Rehabilitation, and the N. C. Corrections system.

In naming needs, Mrs. Allen said prevention of developmental disabilities is the No. 1 priority. She mentioned follow-up of high-risk infants, which she said the Pitt County Community Health Department is beginning, better nutrition and care of the mother during pregnancy and of the infant; a screening program for every child from zero to six years old, more genetic counseling, and courses on family responsibility for junior and senior high school students.

Other needs she mentioned include education and socialization of the estimated 355 mildly retarded pre-school children in the county; more teachers and classrooms for the estimated 681 mildly retarded school-age children, including prevocational and vocational training; specialized job training for the estimated 1,040 mildly retarded adults; the establishment of group and-or family care home for formerly institutionalized retarded persons to return to the community. (Two have been started in cooperation with the Pitt County Department of Social Services); diagnosis and counseling for the estimated 3,695 developmentally disabled persons and their families; vocational counseling and job training and placement for the estimated 216 retarded persons who can work under supervision; public health nursing and homemaker service for the estimated 70 moderately and severely disabled infants and young children; two more child development centers (There is an established one in Farmville and one just opening in Ayden. Needed now are one to serve the Bethel area and one for the Grimesland area); additional special education classes in the public schools, particularly the county schools; and a day activity center for adults who cannot work but need to get out of their homes at times and mix with other people.

Mrs. Allen said the "community profile" shows, in both narrative and chart formats, what actually exists at the local level. A strong attempt was made to discover referral patterns, waiting lists, accountability, and local interpretation of existing guidelines, she said.

"The Profiles already need updating," she commented. "So much has been done since the study was made, and there's so much to be done."

Eastern N. C. Folkways Changes To Be Talked

Eastern North Carolina folkways as they influence the family life, the agriculture and the politics of the region will be discussed at a series of informal programs to begin at East Carolina University Tuesday.

The series is entitled "Folkways in Eastern North Carolina: Stability and Change."

ECU English faculty members Douglas McMillan, Paul Dowell and Janice Hardison will direct the three programs in the series.

Dr. McMillan will begin the series Feb. 5, defining the term "folkways" as the total oral tradition of an area, which is handed down from one generation to the next, including legends, customs, beliefs and designs, relating these traditional folkways to the eastern North Carolina family.

Dr. Paul Dowell will direct a program Tuesday, Feb. 12, on "Folkways and the Land," discussing the influence of eastern North Carolina folkways on the yearly agricultural cycle of the region's farms.

Janice Hardison will direct the final program, "Folkways and Politics," Monday, Feb. 18, examining the role of regional folkways in the political decision-making processes of eastern North Carolina.

The programs are designed for the general public, and are free of charge to all interested persons. There will be opportunities for persons in the audience to participate if they wish.

Each of the three programs is scheduled for 8 p.m. in room 103 of the ECU Biology Building.

The ECU Department of English is offering the series with the sponsorship of the N. C. Committee for Continuing Education in the Humanities and the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Last year the ECU English department was supported by the two sponsors in a series of programs on social change in eastern North Carolina as revealed by the novels of Ovid Pierce and Inglis Fletcher.

Scout-O-Rama Here Mar. 23

SCOUT-O-RAMA '74 is the name given to the upcoming Scout show scheduled for Saturday, March 23 from 2 to 8 p.m. in the National Guard Armory in Greenville.

Scout troops, Cub packs and Explorer posts of Pitt District will team-up to give one of the best shows of Scouting Skills ever offered, according to Dr. Harry Billica, president of the East Carolina Council.

Some 700 to 800 boys are expected to participate in the event displaying 30 to 40 Scouting skills of their own choosing. In addition to the Boy Scout displays, Cub Scouts of the county will present a "Cub Scout Midway" in which they will show Cub Crafts and projects done during the last year. Also featured will be a District Championship Space Derby Tournament. The "space ships" racing in the tournament will be built by Cub Scouts. The ships, powered by rubber band motors will race along a special series of monofilament lines or tracts.

Tickets for the show will be sold by Cubs, Scouts and Explorers beginning February 10th. All funds received will be used for expenses of the show and the needs of the various units.

ECU Historian To Be Speaker

"Historical Controversies of the Seventeenth Century" will be discussed by Dr. William H. Cobb of the East Carolina University history faculty at the Wednesday, meeting of Phi Sigma Iota, the ECU Romance Languages honor society.

The public is invited to attend the meeting, which is scheduled for 8 p.m. in room 201 of the Student Union.

Dr. Cobb's lecture will be a brief critique of several of the major issues among historians of the 17th century, with emphasis on the political problems of France and Spain at the time.

POINTERS—Instructor Bob Millie gives ECU student Jane Noffsinger some pointers on learning to skate backwards.

Greenville's Exciting New Participant Pleasure Sport

Ice Skating Is Here

. . .ALONE IN A CROWD

RIGHT FOOT—Instructor Millie shows his student how to get started on the right foot in skating backwards by making an arc similar to a half-moon.

Text and Photographs By Carl Tyer

Greenville had its newest recreation center go into operation on December 18, 1973 when the Ice House opened its doors for business with customers waiting in line to get in.

The Ice House brings ice skating to Eastern North Carolina for the first time and has been welcomed with enthusiasm by residents according to manager E. E. Rawl Jr.

Built in the old Union Carbide plant, the center was under renovation for six months in order for the proper equipment to be installed to create a 200 by 85 foot skating arena with a maze of piping in the floor to produce the one and one-half inch of ice.

"The idea of building the facility was studied for sometime before construction began," according to manager Rawl. A great deal of interest was shown by residents in having recreation of this type, especially by employees of Burroughs-Wellcome Co., who were accustomed to the winter sport.

Along with the pharmacutical company, East Carolina University has shown interest in the facility with plans to establish ice skating classes for credit as a course available to college students.

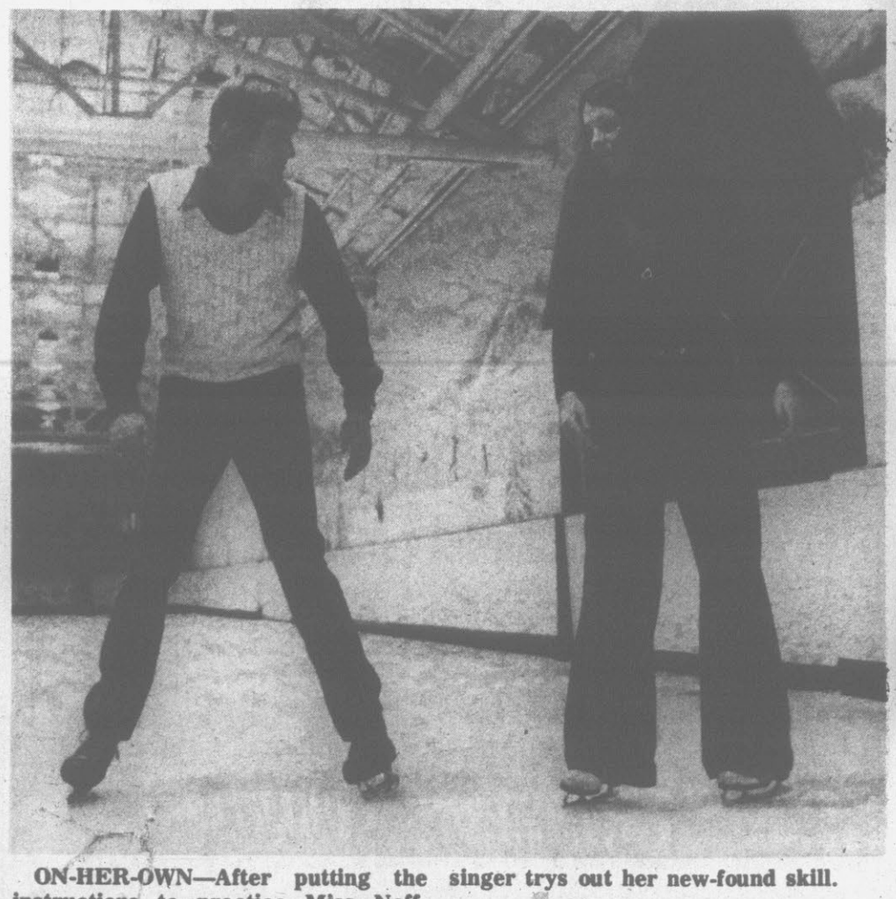

"Hockey will be a key to our program," according to Rawl. The Ice House plans to establish amateur hockey teams with players made up of boys 9 to 15 years of age. A total of 64 boys will comprise the teams, which will undergo a 10 to 12 week training program under the supervision of Bob Millie, a native of Toronto, Canada and graduate student at ECU.

Millie, who has been skating for 18 years will also be conducting skating classes twice a week at the facility.

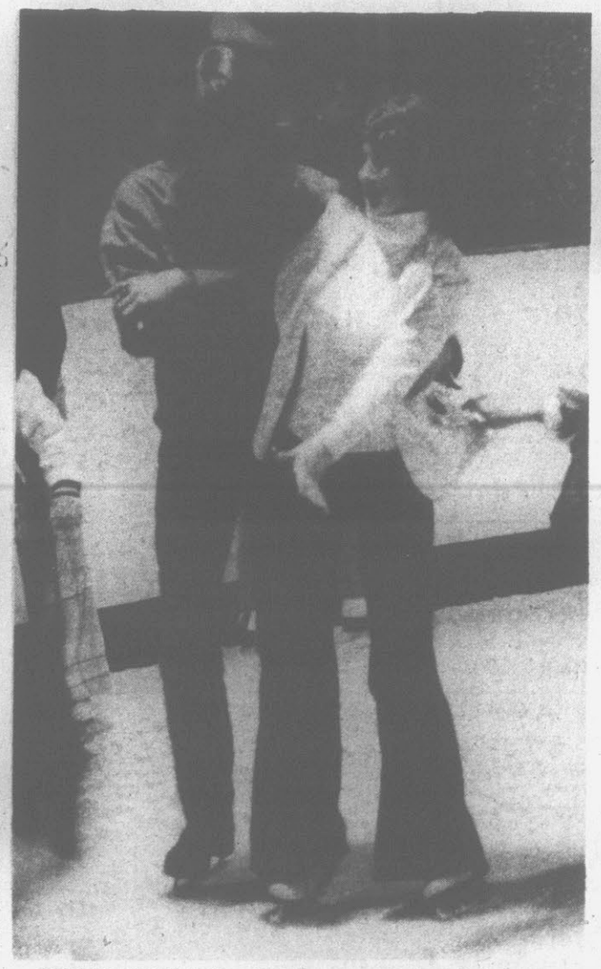

Skating classes will be conducted in a smaller arena adjacent to the main rink so that beginners will not have to contend with more advanced skaters.

The facility has five skating sessions lasting two hours each during the week and seven sessions on Saturday and four on Sundays.

Along with skating, the Ice House has a large game room with pool tables and other equipment, a snack bar and retail stores offering merchandise related to the sport.

Tenant Complains About Profanity Usage

c 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I own an apartment building. One of my tenants is a retired school teacher. He is a proper gentleman and if anyone says "hell" in front of him, he raises his eyebrows and says, "Please, I do not tolerate profanity."

Well, a young newlywed couple has the apartment next to this old gentleman, and they use a lot of four-letter words in their conversations. Naturally, it's a source of great annoyance to this gentleman, and he complains to me daily about it.

I have told the newlyweds not to talk so loud, and to cut out the four-letter words, but it hasn't done any good. The newlyweds claim this old man must have his ear to the wall because they talk in normal voices and do not shout.

So what should I do! LANDLORD

DEAR LANDLORD: YOU be the judge. Ask the complainer if you may visit his apartment and learn for yourself whether the neighbors are out of line—or if HE is.

DEAR ABBY: My husband died suddenly three months ago. Last month was our 36th wedding anniversary. I didn't receive one gift or anniversary card from any of our friends who always used to remember us on that occasion. I felt terribly let down and hurt.

I have been told that when your mate dies, you no longer have a wedding anniversary. It that true?

It seems you are treated entirely different after you lose your mate. You suddenly become a third wheel—unwanted and unnecessary.

What do you think? ALONE AND LONELY

DEAR ALONE: When one's mate dies, the wedding anniversaries cease. Your friends probably felt that sending gifts or cards would have revived memories of past anniversaries, which could conceivably sadden you, since you are now alone.

However, instead of ignoring the occasion, it would have been a kindness for some friends to have invited you out on that day.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl. I don't mean to brag, but people have told me I am very pretty and have a good personality.

I have never had sex with anybody. I am saving myself for marriage. Some fellows have tried to talk me out of it, but so far I've managed to stay pure.

I recently met a fellow [24] who told me that I am the kind of girl he would like to marry, but before he gets serious with me I will have to have sex with him because sex is important to him, and he wants to be sure I can satisfy his sexual demands.

I like this fellow more than any I've ever dated, but I don't want to give in. On the other hand, I'm afraid if I don't, he'll drop me. What should I do?

SAVING MYSELF

DEAR SAVING: Tell him you have a few demands that have to be satisfied, too. One of them is your own self-respect. And feeling as you do about saving yourself for marriage, if he doesn't want to accept it, he's not for you. I have an idea he may not drop you. But if he does, you could be lucky.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is a chaser. I knew it when I married him, but nobody's perfect, and besides he has a lot going for him. For instance, he's a good provider and he's not stingy with his money. And he's also a wonderful father to our seven children, he's devout in his religion, and hasn't missed mass in 13 years, no matter how hung over he was.

His last fling was with a girl who used to call here and try to disguise her voice, but I always knew it was her. She'd say it was a "business call."

Once this girl called and talked to ME. She said she was in love with my husband and he was in love with her, and she asked me why I didn't give him up. I told her I'd give him up, but she'd have to take our seven kids, their ages are 2, 3, 5, 7, 8, 10, and 12. She hung up. [I think she must have fainted.] That's the last time she called here.

Just thought this might be helpful to other wives with my kind of problem. MARY SUNSHINE

DEAR MARY: Thanks, but it's risky to make an offer you'd never honor.

Cooking Is Fun!

For a meatless supper an Onion Cheese Pie served with a crisp salad makes an excellent main course. For ending this meal, choose a hearty dessert. Or, if you like, you can serve soup as a first course and put fruit at the end of the menu.

The onion used in the pie is the Spanish variety that comes in large round size and has a crackly-thin golden-bronze skin. It is wonderfully sweet and adds distinctive flavor.

ONION CHEEESE PIE

Cheese-flavor crackers
½ cup butter or margarine
Large Spanish onion
2 eggs
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon white pepper
½ teaspoon dried crushed Italian herb seasoning
¾ cup coarsely grated sharp cheddar cheese

Finely crush enough of the crackers to make 1¾ cups crumbs. Melt 6 tablespoons of the butter and mix with the crumbs; press over bottom and sides of a 9-inch pie plate. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 5 minutes. Cool.

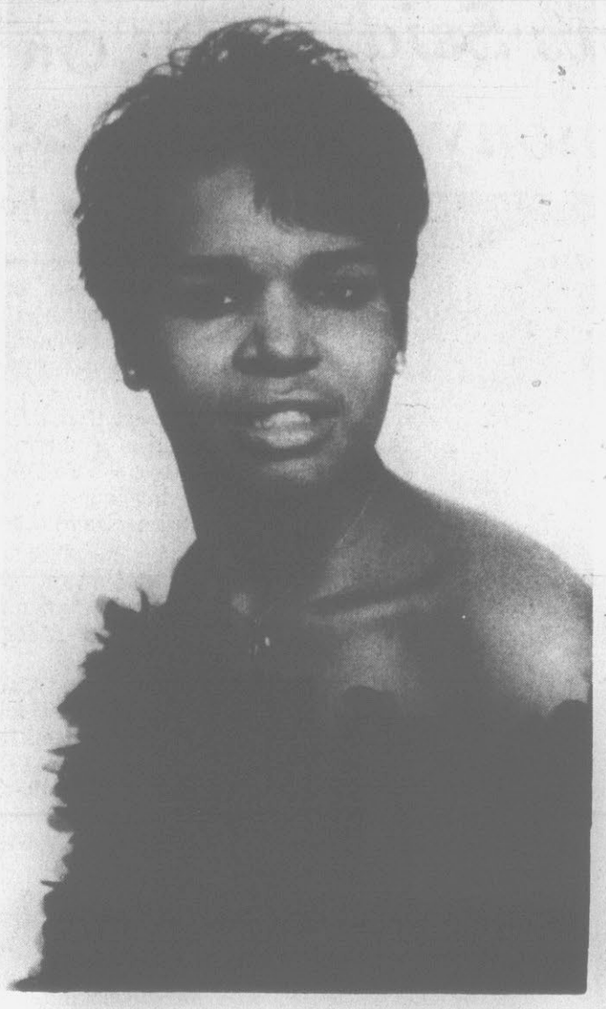

Peel onion; cut in half lengthwise; slice thin; separate slices into half-rings — there should be 3 cups.

In a 10-inch skillet melt the remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Add onion and cook gently, stirring often, until soft and transparent; onion should look yellowed but not brown. Spread onion over bottom of pie shell.

In a small saucepan beat eggs slightly; add milk, salt, pepper and Italian seasoning and beat just enough to combine. Add cheese. Stir constantly over low heat until cheese melts — do not boil. Pour over onion.

Bake in a preheated 450-degree oven for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake until filling is set — 15 to 20 minutes longer.

Seafront Wooing Campaign Ends

GREAT YARMOUTH, England (WNS)—City fathers here asked patriotic young ladies not to go wooing with boy friends in cars parked on the seafront. Their reason: automobile headlights dazzled pilots bringing ships into the busy port and could cause a wreck. "The chief pilot even stopped big tankers from coming in at night for fear of dazzling headlight trouble," said town councillor George Holmes. Now the anti-kissing-and-cuddling campaign is over. The city has built a tall, anti-dazzle screen around the seafront parking lot.

Cardin Wardrobes Deserve Background

PARIS, France (WNS)—Famed French couturier Pierre Cardin has decided that his chic wardrobes for women and men deserve a proper background for fine living. Therefore, he is installing a secret laboratory in his Espace Cardin opposite the American Embassy here to create revolutionary apartments to fit the Cardin look. Alain Carre will head a department of eight designers to create Cardin living rooms, bedrooms, playrooms, bathrooms and kitchens. The couturier promises a "rational frame for full living, fertile in surprises." Fountains will replace faucets in the bathroom, and bedrooms may have constant, romantic moonlight. The "Cardinization" of the home will include Cardin furniture, carpets, sheets, towels, lights, mirrors, bidets and even washing machines.

Couple Starts Out Fighting

AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (WNS)—At the wedding banquet, bride Anna van Beek objected to the wink that her groom Rudi game to a bridesmaid. She punched him in the winkingeye so hard that she knocked him out and broke her own hand. While one doctor brought hubby to, another bandaged her hand. "Hurry," ordered Anna, "or we'll be late for the honeymoon plane."

Psychiatrist Says Housewives Are The New Servant Class

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Housewives have good reason for going to pieces, says a psychiatrist who considers the old expression appropriate for today.

"Going to pieces is the old expression for a breakdown," said Dr. Robert Seidenberg. "But it's a better description of the lives of housewives today. They must meet their husbands' needs, their children's needs and handle their housework. Their lives are fragmented and they spend more time with machines than with their families."

Dr. Seidenberg says housewives are the new servant class in America.

"The husband's life has a central core: his job. But each time he is transferred to a new community, a wife must make new friends, extend herself to establish a new identity. Even when moves don't occur that often, a housewife's life is in a bunch of pieces," he said.

Seidenberg, author of "Corporate Wives, Corporate Casualties," explores the issue in his book. He practices in Syracuse, N.Y., where around 100 of the nation's largest corporations have branches, and where he encountered many "corporate wives" in practice.

"Professionally, I see wives and children, rarely husbands. The traumatic aspects of consciously fragmenting a woman's life, shedding her credentials may take tranquilizers, begin to drink or just feel depressed.

"Two things happen to children. Moving can bring families closer together but they also may overload the system. Mothers expect more of children in the way of gratification. This even happens in countries like Japan," Seidenberg said.

He added that his book came partly from his own dissatisfaction with theories in his discipline. Then he began to get letters of reaction from women across the country who said he described their problems exactly.

"Women have little choice about moving. If they don't, they may be guilty of desertion; the law supports the husband. In some states, a woman who is not living in her husband's domicile can lose her right to vote or to hold office," he added.

"The law is not alone. Macho, which individual men have, corporations also have," Seidenberg said.

"I once asked an executive with a giant corporation what happened if he had a woman executive to promote and transfer. He said he first talked to her husband to find out if it would be okay."

Seidenberg has found little direct investigation of wives by companies. He says that instead, such investigation is turned over to an executive search organization, or is medicalized so that it appears to involve health care and benefits.

"Corporate America must answer the question of how much of a man they buy when they pay his salary. A line has to be drawn. A corporation buys a man's skills and a certain degree of loyalty, but it cannot and should not expect to own the whole family," he said.

The psychiatrist believes that women in the future will be persons in their own right, working at least part time. This, he said, would be the real solution to the problem of the corporate wife.

Seidenberg, a classically trained psychoanalyst, says he is a Freudian who "is constantly adapting and making adjustments in the traditional view of analysis."

He is a member of the National Organization for Women and says he is able to be active because his wife, an attorney, is active in the women's movement as well.

"I think issues have their time; you can't rush history. Look at the change in the visibility of women in the past few years: who would have predicted it? I think there will now be more opportunity for women to achieve at home and in the community as well as in the world of professionals," Seidenberg said.

Cookies From World War II

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

During World War II a New York friend of ours who grew up in North Carolina was in the Marine Corps. Her job was to teach recognition of planes and ships (one of them the USS North Carolina) to Marine air pilots. After the war, the USS North Carolina was preserved as a state memorial and anchored at Wilmington on the Cape Fear River where it is open to the public seven days a week the year round.

On a recent trip to Wilmington our friend toured the ship. In the galley she found a recipe for Hermits posted as an example of the kind of food served aboard during the war. She scribbled down the ingredients — 48 pounds flour, 1 pound salt, 5 dozen eggs and so on. When she returned to New York she baked the cookies using the original ingredients but reducing them to family size. Then she got out her model of the USS North Carolina — a memento of her Marine Corps teaching days — and displayed it when she served the Hermits! Here's her thrifty recipe:

HERMITS

3 cups unsifted flour
1-3rd cup nonfat dry milk powder
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
1 teaspoon nutmeg
½ cup margarine
1 cup sugar
1 cup dark corn syrup
2 tablespoons water
1 egg
½ cup raisins

Grease and flour a 15 by 10 by 1 inch jellyroll pan.

Thoroughly stir together the flour, dry milk powder, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg.

In a large mixing bowl cream margarine and sugar. Add corn syrup, water and egg. Gradually and thoroughly beat in flour mixture. Stir in raisins. Turn into prepared pan, spreading to edges.

Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until edges are brown — 25 minutes. Cool in pan placed on wire rack. Cut into 3 by 2 inch bars. Remove with a small metal spatula. Store in a tightly covered tin box.

Makes 25.

Easter will fall on April 23 in the year 2000.

Acceptance Is Growing For Women In Pulpit

By ANN CURLEY

MADISON, N.J. (AP) — Nancy Bahmueller-Gard took a traditional route for women in religious professions when she went to theological seminary — the first time. Last year she returned to work toward her master of divinity degree and has since been ordained by the United Methodist Church.

The South Plainfield minister is among a growing number of women seeking such a career.

A field education assistant at Drew University Theological School, she first worked in the field of Christian education.

"I realized back then that I really wanted to preach and do such work as pastoral counseling," says the 33-year-old minister, who is interested in establishing women's centers. "I felt at the time it was a very male kind of thing and I didn't really get support for it."

Her circuitous route to the ministry is not unusual for women, says the director of admissions for the Drew seminary. The percentage of women enrolled at that school has doubled in recent years, according to the Rev. Diane Bennekamper.

She points out that a majority are in the master of divinity program that can lead to ordination.

Women attending the New Brunswick Theological Seminary in the past four years have been the first to enter since its founding in 1784.

The enrollment of women is up 20 per cent over last year at Princeton Theological Seminary, according to Mrs. Maurice H. Smith of that school's administrative staff. She says they are showing an interest in specialized ministries, such as working with the handicapped or prison inmates, as well as seeking church pastorates.

Major denominations are getting "geared up" to the idea of women as parish ministers, according to the Rev. Philip Kunz, director of social concerns for the New Jersey Council of Churches. But he describes the number now in local churches as "just a trickle."

The Rev. Mr. Kunz estimates that there are 25 to 30 women in local church pulpits in the state. A majority of those are in the independent "storefront churches," he says.

"The pulpit has become the symbol of almost the last stronghold of male supremacy in the church," comments retired Drew seminary professor Nelle Morton.

Initial acceptance may come more readily from local congregations than from male ministers, she says, adding that "as more women have become ministers in churches, the colleagues of these women have become less fearful."

"Some see it as a threat, not that women are better than men, but that there is a short supply of congregations for the number of ministers," explains the Rev. Kenneth Shirk of Trenton.

"I think it gives the churches more flexibility to do more things in nontheological relationships," he counters. "I don't think we can ever have too much manpower, womanpower or personpower."

His associate pastor, the Rev. Carol Goldstein, finds no problems of acceptance from colleagues or the congregation at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer in Trenton.

"They came to recognize me as their pastor and not just a woman pastor," she says.

The Rev. Emily Champagne of Cranbury, who served a Unitarian Church near Los Angeles before her marriage and move to New Jersey, calls her church ministry a "tremendous positive experience."

Like others in her field, however, she feels churches must begin to deal more adequately with the concerns of women.

"I feel that a woman does bring something different to the ministry," says the Rev. Mrs. Champagne, who would like to see churches served by men and women coministers, or alternate between them when they choose pastors.

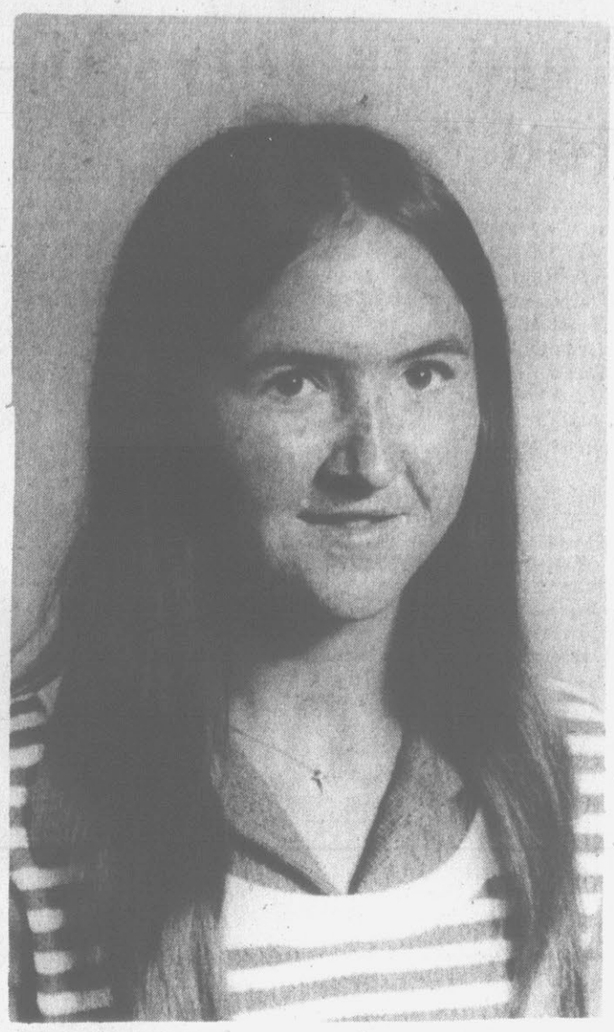

Sharing such a position at Plainfield's First Park Baptist Church are Janet Gifford Thorne and her husband, Colin. They have been co-associate pastors to the church's senior minister since August.

"There's a sense of struggle with what sort of an identity I should have," notes the Rev. Mrs. Thorne, who is not alone among women ministers who consider themselves part of the "larger women's struggle."

"I have a sense of vision because I see how things could be and see in little ways how they are changing," she says.

The presence of women in campus ministries is helpful to students interested in religious vocations, who "at least need a model," observes the Rev. Aida Spencer of Trenton.

"I don't think of it as someone to copy but just to see someone like you in a role and to identify with the role," notes the 26-year-old Presbyterian minister. She is Protestant chaplain at Trenton State College.

Many Rose students who have tried all week for various parts in the musical The Red Mill by Victor Herbert, anxiously await the announcement of the cast tomorrow or Tuesday.

Students planning to fly to France Easter are counting the days to vacation. They will drive to Norfolk and from there, fly to Philadelphia where they will catch a chartered plane to France. First they will visit the beautiful Chateaux Country and then travel to Paris where their tours include the Louvre, Notre Dame, the Latin Quarter and the Eiffel Tower. A visit to Versalles is also on the agenda.

Future travelers include Gail Shaw, Gail Molic, Mark Boudreaux, Lynn Winborne, Debbie Goodson, Kim Knight, Mollie Allen, Elizabeth Whitehurst, Melanie Hite, Robin Moore, Lisa Clark, Debra Meekins, Mrs. Bernadette Morris, and Mrs. Carr.

Recently Rose High Junior, Jimmy MacMillan, spent a week in Raleigh acting as a page for the Senate. He enjoyed running errands during the sessions in the morning and during the afternoon but mainly he enjoyed meeting so many new people.

Rose Mary Stocks, also a Junior, will be a pagette for the House this week. Both students will receive $25 for their service.

Ice Skating

Miss K. Flanigan's advanced P. E. classes are enjoying ice skating, a sport new to Rose High P. E. The girls use the buddy system and all have been successful on the ice. Some have challenged themselves with skating backwards and fancy turns. Plans for possible future activities include bowling and cycling.

Fourth period students include, Joan Atkinson, Vivian Brown, Trina Carney, Vendy Clemons, Ginger Flye, Flora Hardee, Gwen Gilbert, Lourie Hooper, Susie Pittmen, Claudia Saddler, Ann

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

There are six words that make my flesh crawl. I don't even hang around for the rest of the sentence. As soon as I hear, "What kind of a mother would. . ." I split.

We all start out like Mary Poppins. But somewhere along the line, the washer breaks down, the gerbils form a city, and you realize the high spot in your day is finding your comb in the toy box.

It's easy to be critical when you don't know the circumstances. For some of the most-often-asked questions, I offer these answers.

"What kind of a mother would let a child go to church wearing a sweat shirt that reads, 'U. S. OLYMPIC DRINKING TEAM'?"

Answer: A mother who washes and irons eight days a week, who succumbs to pleas from her child to "Let me dress myself" and is at this moment knocking on the door of the convent begging for an application blank.

"What kind of a mother would let a child play with the produce?"

Answer: A mother who has one child in the cart eating a bar of soap, another one with a hand caught in the gum machine, a husband who is going around the block with his gas gauge on E, and who has two items too many for the Express Line.

"What kind of a mother would strap a baby into a car so that he can move only his head?"

Answer: A mother realistic enough to believe the old adage that "God couldn't be everywhere at once so he made two-year-olds."

"What kind of a mother would write a 15-cent check for school milk?"

Answer: A mother who is shrewd enough to hide her ballpoint pen in the oven.

"What kind of a mother would call the teacher to verify her sons request for $6 for a workbook?"

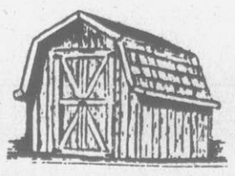

Answer: The same mother who sent $6 for the workbook for the same child back in September, who is realistic enough to know there's a little larceny in every child.

Mothers aren't perfect. No one said they were. But what's wrong with collaring your own child once in awhile and saying, "Kid, on a love scale of ten, today you're a big zero."

What kind of a woman would say, "What kind of a mother would. . .?"

Possibly the woman who reads only the Ivory ads, watches the Brady Bunch, or who has forgotten what it takes to survive "the best years of your life."

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 3, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A weird sort of day; one that rebounds from upsetting and annoying conditions to some sudden oasis of clear thought. Schedule communications, appointments for a.m., and family matters for p.m.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Follow gently along with ideas of associates and you accomplish much. Take advantage of opportunities now ripe for your advancement.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Make arrangements of a monetary nature early, then handle correspondence, reports. Later, get okay from associates on ideas of mutual benefit.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Improve health, looks early, then get into financial plans for greater security. Be sociable at right places in p.m.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Get the support you need from others during day, but show independence in p.m. Avoid a hypocrite. Make plans for improvement.

LEO (July 2 to Aug. 21) The offer of a friend to help you should be accepted during day, but go at it alone in p.m. Be sure you know what you want before taking action.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle important duty well in a.m., then be with friends socially. Pay bills. Arrange to economize.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study brochures, journals, travel folders, that give information needed to help you get ahead faster. A long-distance phone call brings data desired.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Put important obligations behind you early before going off to social pleasure. Try to please mate more for happier future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) A good day to gain backing of an associate which is impossible during work days. Carry through with your part of any agreement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Discuss work early for greater future efficiency. Then off to activities that are important. Improve health.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan for entertainments you desire in coming weeks, then tend to those chores you have let slide. Be happy with loved one in p.m.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Change your attitude for a happier rapport at home, then off to entertainment. Look around for comforts that will please kin. Be generous.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have a life full of changes, but only because a variety of activities is enjoyed and there is a gambling quality in the nature. There is much gentility here, though, that attracts others. The ability to solve problems is great because the mind is very clear. Some special outlet could bring both fame and increased fortune during middle age.

Rough Idea Of Skylab Speed

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Sue Bean, wife of astronaut Alan Bean, said here recently she got a better idea of space speed when she went outside her Houston home to see Skylab II with her husband aboard pass overhead.

"When I walked back into the house, the special radio phone box they install in astronaut homes was ringing," she said. "When I picked up the phone it was Alan, saying he was over Madrid, Spain."

Mitzi Offers A Treat

"Mitzi. . . . A Tribute to the American Housewife" will provide a visual treat for art lovers, decorators and movie buffs, as well as offering the talents of Mitzi Gaynor and guest stars Suzanne Pleshette and Jane Whithers.

The hour-long special, to be presented Monday, Feb. 4 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 9-11, also stars Ted Knight, Jerry Orbach and Cliff Norton in a light-hearted salute, in music and humor, to the woman of the house.

Beyond the cast, two of the props in the show are of special interest — a pair of 12-foot-tall crystal candelabra. Each is made up of thousands of handcut pieces of crystal weighing 1,800 pounds, and each holds 72 light bulbs. The pair are valued at $200,000, and would probably be impossible to duplicate.

The candelabra are from a set of four manufactured in the early 1900s in France for use in the baccarat room of the Monte Carlo Casino. At one time, they were part of a crystal display at the Louvre in Paris.

The pair used in Miss Gaynor's special were eventually acquired by film mogul Jack L. Warner, who used to say that he won them in payment of a gambling debt. Reportedly, he used them at his palatial Hollywood estate, but at some time they were shipped to the Warner Bros. Studios for use in a motion picture, and forgotten.

Producer Lee Miller recognized the charm of the piles of glass, found in the recesses of the studio's storage area, while seeking unusual props for "Mitzi. . . . A Tribute to the American Housewife," and quickly rented the candelabra. He admits that if he had known the cost of their restoration, he might have changed his mind. Steel bases had to be manufactured to transport the lamps, and Miller jokes that it took three gallons of glass cleaner to polish them.

Now, the future of the huge lamps is again uncertain. At this time of energy shortages, there are few places for two $100,000 lamps which burn nearly 3,000 watts of current when lit.

VERSATILE MITZI GAYNOR stars in her second consecutive CBS variety special, "Mitzi...A Tribute to the American Housewife" on Monday, February 4, (9:00 p.m.) on Channels 3N-9-11.

Cloris Wanted To Look Awful

"How do I look?" demanded Cloris Leachman. In truth, she probably never looked worse. Her hair, half in and half out of a pontail, was held up with a piece of string. Her dress looked like a tired accordion. Her bobby sox were dusty, and her sneakers needed a bath.

"I wanted them to black out my teeth," she confided, "but they really thought that was one touch too much. I think it would help me look terrible, though."

Looking terrible was indeed the object for the Academy Award-winning actress. She was doing her best to look her worst for her role as the overworked, overtired mother of a large family of migrant farm workers, in Tennessee Williams' "The Migrants," the season's second "CBS Playhouse 90," to be broadcast on Sunday, Feb. 3 (9-10:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11.

Dressing down to the part was the least demand on Miss Leachman for this role. She had a very delicate self-imposed line to walk, in order to create a believable character.

"I wanted to create a feeling of movement, not of depression," explained Miss Leachman during production. "These desperate, exhausted people don't wait on the sidelines of life. They play the game — every day of their lives. They lose, but they play."

How well she was toeing the mark was a question Miss Leachman asked herself before every scene, and asked both crew and cast members after each take. She demanded to know if they thought she was "firm, poignant, real."

"It's hard to convey this idea," she said. "I'm not going for values that are sad. My character is not a defeatist, any more than you could call Ma Joad a pathetic defeatist in 'The Grapes of Wrath.' My migrant mother is always just a bit larger than the tragedies that strike her down. People could start to cry at any part of this drama, but not with any help from me. I don't intend to play it for tears. I want no sympathy.

'Country' Hits

More and more listeners, in the cities as well as the road-houses and high-school gyms where the music has always flourished, are finding a sound they've always wanted. Its chords are strong and simple, its lyrics straightforward. The music is country, and it's currently enjoying an explosion in popularity.

Devotees will revel in the many sounds and talents of the genre on "Country Music Hit Parade" Monday, Feb. 4 (10-11:00 p.m.) on CBS. The special, originating from the venerable Grand Ole Opry House in Nashville, Tenn., will be hosted by Country Music Hall of Fame member Eddy Arnold.

Featured on the special will be such country music stars as Danny Davis and the Nashville Brass, Lester Flatt and the Nashville Grass, George Jones, Patti Page, Jeanne Pruett, Charlie Rich, The Stony Mountain Cloggers, Conway Twitty, Dottie West and Tammy Wynette.

While other trends in music reached their peaks and then plummeted, country music has been the most stable arm of the record industry—accounting for 20 percent of the American market. Apart from its fiercely loyal following, however, for years millions of people either disliked or simply ignored country. To many persons, it represented merely a narrow world of sequins, pickup trucks and naive politics.

Not anymore. Rural youths arrive on college campuses to find their long-haired urban peers turned on by the music they thought had been left back in the boondocks. Radios are being tuned to country. Country stations are winning the ratings race in such urban areas as Los Angeles, Detroit and New York.

In the spring of 1973, singer Tammy Wynette ("Stand by Your Man," a million-selling single) and her husband, George Jones, became the first country act to play New York City's August Philharmonic Hall at Lincoln Center. And the audience, musically sophisticated, made it clear that they dug the Nashville sound.

Armchair sociologists have traced the country-music boom to an upsurge in right-wing sentiment—a glib notion, considering that the new breed of fans has been largely attracted to free-thinking song-writers like Kris Kristofferson and Tom T. Hall.

A more substantial theory holds that listeners can identify more than ever now with the heroes and heroines of country tunes—people coping with the problems of jobs, families and simple survival in an increasingly complex and threatening world.

Will Explore Advertising

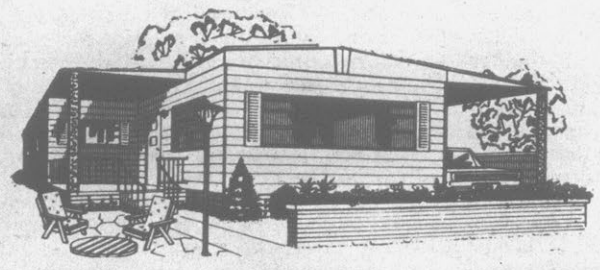

"John, Is That Billy Coughing?", a study of design is advertising, with George Lois, a leading figure in the field, will be presented on "Camera Three", Sunday, February 3 (11-11:30 AM).

Lois, who now heads the Lois Holland Callaway agency in New York City, is seen at work on the broadcast, and discusses his techniques and ideas. Included are examinations of some famous covers he designed for Esquire magazine, as well as of some of his advertising campaigns for various products and services.

Lois is also seen filming television commercials, whose story-boards illustrate the transition from idea to finish film.

"Design is more than a guy sitting down at a table, drawing lines," says Lois. "Design is communicating with people. If you have an exciting concept, then naturally you put it down in the most dramatic way—with artistry, imagination, imagery. Then, you're communicating!"

David Janssen As Investigator

David Janssen creates an individualistic private investigator who becomes emotionally involved with a cover girl marked for murder by a deranged photographer and finds his own life at stake, in the world premiere of "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead" on the "ABC Sunday Night Movie", February 3 (8:30-10:30 PM) on Channel 3-5-12.

John Anderson, Howard Da Silva, Martin Gabel, Clu Gulager, Zalman King, Andrea Marcovicci (critically hailed for "Cry Rape"), Tim McIntire, Jodie Foster (star of this season's "Rookie of the Year") and Harvey Jason guest star. Co-starring is Barbara Leigh.

Janssen plays Harry Orwell, a likeable individualist who lives at the beach and handles only those cases which intrigue him.

In "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead", model Jennifer English (Miss Marcovicci), annoyed because she seems to misplace personal items, doesn't realize that she is being photographed wherever she goes by Roy S. John (King). The photographer who has hundreds of photos of Jenny, as well as her missing keys and other items, views himself as Jenny's protector in his love fantasy.

At the beach, Jenny's estranged father, Police Lt. Humphrey Kenney (Da Silva), asks Orwell's help after Charley English, from whom Jenny is seeking a divorce, is murdered. Shaken, Jenny assures Orwell that although she does not need his help, retired Col. John Lockport (Anderson) with whom she is romantically involved, may. Although she believes in Lockport's innocence, he had a motive in that he saw English strike Jenny while refusing her divorce requests.

While Harry Orwell becomes increasingly attached to Jenny, she turns to Lockport for solace, not knowing he is to become the photographer's next victim.

Rewards Of Series Star

Spending a whole week perched in a tree was Ronny Cox's introduction to the luxuries of starring in his first television series.

There was also Sam, the show's friendly, scene-stealing dog, to contend with, but Cox accepted it all gladly, in his role as George Apple, in the new family series, "Apple's Way", premiering Sunday, February 10 (7:30-8:30 PM) in place of the "New Perry Mason" series.

The show, created by Earl Hamner, creater of "The Waltons" series, is about an architect who moves his family from California to his hometown in Appleton, Iowa. There they have a variety of adventures, in adjusting to the life and values of a small town.

"It was quite an adventure in that tree," Cox relates. "In the story, George Apple climbs into a big old tree his ancestors had planted, to keep it from being torn down.

Story-Teller
A Daydreamer

He was born April 2, 1805, in the slums of Odense, on the Island of Fyn, Denmark, the son of a poor shoemaker and his superstitious, almost illiterate wife. His grandfather was insane, and his grandmother, a pathological liar, spoiled him. A sensitive child, he preferred daydreaming and playing with a puppet theater to associating with other children or learning a trade.

From this ill-starred childhood rose Hans Christian Andersen whose writings produced some of literature's best-loved and most widely read tales, many of which reveal an optimistic belief in the victory of goodness, beauty and harmony.

Moreover, in the majority of his stores, an autobiographical element is clearly distinguishable. One such, "The Little Mermaid", will be seen as an animated special on Monday, February 4 (8-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 9-11. Richard Chamberlain is the narrator.

Much like his little mermaid, whose love for a human prince leads her to seek an immortal soul through live, pain and selfless works, Andersen himself was a chronic-albeit ofttimes thewarted — seeker in life.

At the age of 11, after his father's death and his mother's remarriage, Andersen went to Copenhagen in search of his fortune. Although he succeeded in getting work there as a supernumerary at the Royal Theater, he nonetheless experienced great hardships. In 1882, Jonas Collins, one of the Royal's directors, took an interest in Andersen and raised enough money to send him to grammar school.

THE FIRST STEP in her quest for an immortal soul is taken by a young mermaid princess as she climbs to the palace of the handsome human prince with whom she has fallen in love, in the animated adaptation of Hans Christian Andersen's classic fairy tale, "The Little Mermaid", to be broadcast Monday, Feb. 4 (8:00 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

It was an unfortunate move. The school's headmaster made Andersen the butt of his humor and reduced the 17-year-old student to despair. Four years later, the headmaster moved to another school, taking Andersen with him. But he and his wife made life so mierable for Andersen that Collin arranged private tuition so that the boy might enter Copenhagen University.

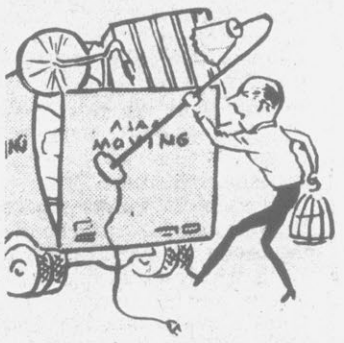

Gretchen In 'Somerset'

Gretchen Wyler has joined the cast of the daytime drama series "Somerset" in the regular role of Doris Heller. Miss Wyler, who is best known throughout the country as a star of musical comedy, turned her attention to dramatic acting this past year. She received widespread critical acclaim for her portrayal of the title role in the touring company of "And Miss Reardon Drinks a Little."

In "Somerset," her role is that of a genial friend and confidant of the principal character, Ellen Grant (Georgann Johnson).

Miss Wyler first achieved fame when she took over the role created by Hildegarde Neff in the Broadway production of "Silk Stockings." She later replaced Gwen Verdon as the lead in the Broadway musical "Damn Yankees." Apparances as the female lead in the touring company of "Destry Rides Again" were followed by a Broadway engagement in "Bye, Bye Birdie."

In Geneva, he breaks into a card factory and etches secret marks on the printing plates which are used to print the famous Kaleidoscope playing cards used in all European gambling casinos.

No Formula In Seuss 'Magic'

There have been scholarly treatises written on just about every subject from Adam to the atom. But who ever heard of a doctoral thesis on the inventor of "four fluffy feathers on a fifferfeffer feff"?

Well, it's been done — and more than a few times — according to Theodor (Dr. Seuss) Geisel, the fluffy-feather inventor himself, who is also responsible for zuffs, wungs, green eggs and ham, grickle grass, truffula trees, thneeds and a variety of other Seussian thing-people-animals.

Hearing of esoteric works devoted to the "formula" behind his classic children's stories brings a wry Seussian smile to the face of the artist-writer. He claims, for example, that "time, worry and perspiration" were the only basic ingredients he used to whip up the talking - elephant title star of "Dr. Seuss' Horton Hears a Who," the Peabody Award-winning animated special to be rebroadcast Monday, Feb. 4 (8:30-9 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11).

Nothing would seem to require technical analysis less than the author's word picture of Horton the elephant "in the heat of the day in the cool of the pool" splashing around in the "jungle of Nool." But the universally appealing Seussian simplicity continues to be analyzed in literary laboratories in an attempt to determine the complexities that astute analysts feel must lie beneath it.

If there is a Seussian success formula, it defies description by the author, a man who thrieves on describing the indescribable.

In addition to magical imagination and flamboyant language, which are inherent in his distinctive genius, Geisel keeps in mind several Seussian basics of word-spinning.

One such element is what the author terms "the elimination of the unnecessary."

"A child's span of attention is relatively short, and he quickly becomes impatient when a story wanders',, explains Geisel. "If the writer loses a young reader for a second, he's lost him, period."

Humor, of course, is a prime requisite for every Seuss work. And logic is vital—good, direct child-logic—as in the Seussian truth that "a two-headed animal must have two toothbrushes."

Perhaps the most important attribute Geisel adds to his fundamental artistry is his understanding of the mental processes of children.

After all, as Horton says in the tale, "a person's a person no matter how small."

EDDY ARNOLD relaxes during the taping of the "Country Music Hit Parade", a musical special which Arnold will host Monday, February 4 (10:00 p.m.) on CBS Channels 3N-9-11.

Jane To Dance In Special

"Mitzi. . .A Tribute to the American Housewife" could be subtitled "Jane Withers Dances Again". The hour long television special co-stars the former child star in a return to the musical scene she once thought she had lost forever.

The Mitzi of the special, to be seen Monday, February 4 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11, is one of show business' most versatile talents, Mitzi Gaynor. Miss Withers was, of course, one of Hollywood's top box-office stars, in the late 1930s. Later a noted character actress, for the past 12 years she has been television's lady plumber Josephine in commercials.

For Miss Withers, the dancing is the big news.

Just 20 years ago, she was completely paralized with rheumatoid arthritis, Doctors told her she might not walk again for several years. Yet, two years later, she not only was walking, she was playing the choice role of Vashti in the motion picture "Giant".

For Miss Withers, her latest personal triumph is the dancing she does in "Mitzi. . .A Tribute to the American Housewife". It is an accomplishment she would have despaired of a short time ago.

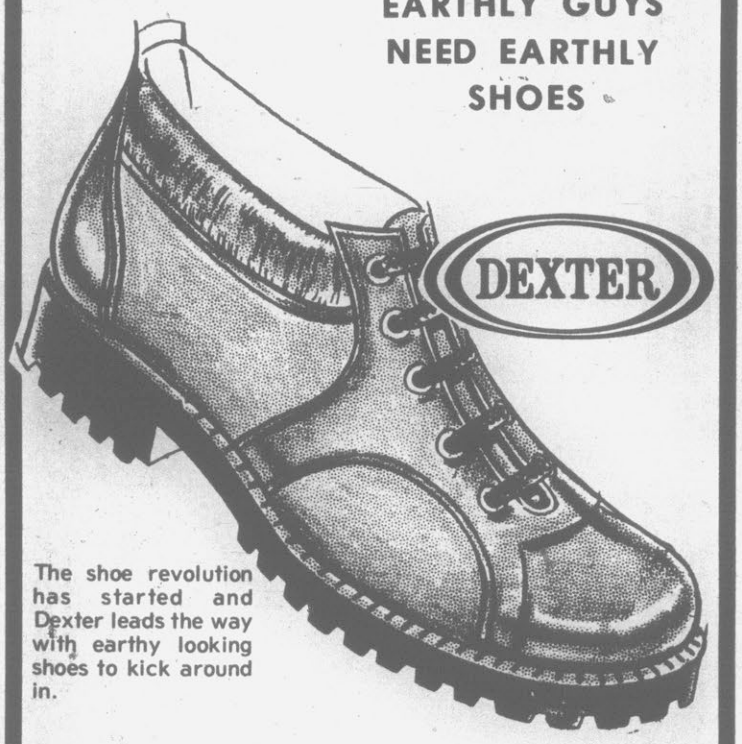

"My dancing may not be on a par with Mitzi's," Miss Withers admits, "but for me, to be able to dance again, it is the most beautiful routine in the show."

Role Chosen By Viewers

According to a research project that queried people who watch television regularly, the TV audience wants "more of the David Janssen they loved, sympathized with and followed in 'The Fugitive'", not just the competent and interesting character they've seen in some of his more recent television offerings."

The report was cited by Howard Rodman, the writer of "Smile, Jenny, You're Dead", the new feature film in which Janssen will star on the "ABC Sunday Night Movie", February 3 (9-11 p.m.).

"They want him firm and tough, yes," Rodman said, "but with a kind, helpful, sensitive side and — because of that — vulnerable. So that's the way you'll see him in this one."

Janssen himself sees the movie in less personal terms: "Who cares what happens in a story if nobody cares about the people it happens to?", he asked in a recent interview. Then the director, the writer and I met we had no story; only the dim figure of Harry Orwell, the man the movie is about.

"We had done a different film about Harry last year, but that was only a one-hour story and, of necessity, almost all plot.

"This time we wanted to concentrate on Harry himself—what he thought about things, how he felt about life, about himself, about women, about his work as a private investigator who lives in a shack on the beach and only owns one suit."

In conversation it becomes apparent that Janssen admires "Harry O", and is possibly even a little envious of the character's individualistic life style: "Harry's got the money to have his car fixed but he isn't sure he wants to—you'll almost never meet anybody in the Los Angeles area who rides busses around town, but Harry does. It gives him time to think.

"Harry's walking around with a bullet in his back, left over from his days in the police department, so he knows what being alive is worth. He may have only one suit, but he's also got a second-hand boat he's trying to fix up for a cruise to some exotic spot. There's a lot of dreamer in a man like that."

Janssen not only admires the character's freedom, he also appreciates his seeming weaknesses: "When this guy is on a case, he'll follow a clue anywhere it leads, even if it means convicting his own client. He's also fool enough to get personally involved with his clients.

Movie Depicting Singular Aspect Of Commune Life

It is estimated that there are 475,000 young people in religious communes of various kinds around the world today, according to seminary graduate Jack Huffman, technical advisor on "Can Ellen Be Saved?", the "Tuesday Movie of the Week", February 5 (8:30-10 PM) on Channel 3-5-12.

The new movie, starring Leslie Nielsen, Michael Parks, John Saxon, Kathy Cannon and Louise Fletcher, graphically depicts the situation presently affecting so many families, in which young people turn their backs on their parents and society to affiliate with unorthodox religious sects.

About the movement, a well-known psychiatrist said recently: "It is a sociological phenomenon in a period of confusion. Young people are searching for something they can believe in — something that would be meaningful."

In the film dramatization, Ellen, played by Kathy Cannon, is a confused and purposeless girl who is on the verge of using drugs and possible suicide when she is drawn into the Children of Jesus group by two other members. Michael Parks stars as Joseph, their leader.

The movie poses the problem but does not take a stand for or against the groups.

As happens in some of these communes, she is indoctrinated to the point of renouncing her parents, holding that she is now "a child of Jesus" and no longer recognizes any family outside of the other members.

This is when her parents (Leslie Nielsen and Louise Fletcher) turn to a man (John Saxon), who has rescued other teenagers and returned them to their families by force and a systematic de-programming (or "brainwashing").

The situation raises a question: What are the rights of children and what are the rights of parents in such a case? Is it wiser to leave children where they are or force them to return to a world they have rejected?

The young religious groups take a dim view of organized and orthodox religious and traditional religions take an equally dim view of the Jesus cults, says Huffman, who recently — at Billy Graham's invitation — addressed the evangelist's 2,000-member staff on the problem.

John Saxon, who is seen as the professional de-programmer, has severe doubts about the techniques used by his character in the sequence with the girl.

"Such a man is hard to understand," he says. "He is a complex personality — in a way, a by-product of the world today. As I played the role I asked myself: is such a man a force for good or bad?".

Both Saxon and Kathy Cannon found the de-programming sequences completely exhausting. "We were wiped out at the end of two days," she says.

Filled Vacant Role In Hurry

For Duane Bogie, executive producer of FCB Productions, the clock turned back 24 years while he was attending the taping of the new "Hallmark Hall of Fame" special, "The Country Girl". It stars Jason Robards, Shirley Knight Hopkins and George Grizzard and will be colorcast on Tuesday, February 5.

Bogie was seated in an orchestra seat of Toronto's Royal Alexandra Theatre along with some actors watching director Paul Bogart mount a scene from the Clifford Odets play. Suddenly, Bogart stepped to the stage apron, peered at the group and said: "There's one more part to be filled in a hurry. You look right for it." He pointed to Bogie. "All you have to do is memorize three speeches by tomorrow morning. You'll be terrific."

Profile Of A Top Admiral

"The United States Navy is changing and one man is leading that change. Elmo Zumwalt, Chief of Naval Operations, who is known to almost everybody but his subordinates as Bud, has changed the Navy more in three-and-a-half-years than it changed in the previous century."

At least that is the opinion of NBC News producer Wallace Westfeldt, who is talking about Admiral Zumwalt's new ideas in Naval practice and operation as a military and social institution — and how it affects personnel and their relationships with each other. The subject will be examined in a special "NBC News Reports" program titled "The Man Who Changed the Navy," to be colorcast Tuesday, Feb. 5 (10-11 PM), on Channel 6-7.

Plan Salute To James Cagney

"The American Film Institute Salute to James Cagney," highlighted by presentation to the veteran film star of the Institute's second Life Achievement Award, will be broadcast as a 90-minute entertainment-event special, Monday, March 18.

Luminaries of the motion-picture world will participate in the event, recalling not only personal anecdotes of their experiences with Cagney but also incidents of his profound effect upon their professional careers and upon the industry as a whole. The special will feature entertainment numbers and film highlights of Mr. Cagney's 60 motion-picture performances.

The Life Achievement Award, set up by the AFI board of directors, honors its recipient not for a single work but "for the whole body of his contribution to American film". The pretigious award was presented for the first time last year, at a similar event, to the late director John Ford.

Cagney, an Oscar winner for his now classic portrayal of George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and one of the most popular stars the movies have ever produced, retired in1961 after 30 years in films.

Cagney's show-business career actually began in the 1920s when, leaving college for lack of funds, he tried out for the chorus of a musical comedy called "Pitter Patter" and got the job — without any prior knowledge of the art of hoofing. There followed 10 years of theater experience.

He and Joan Blondell had played opposite each other to critical acclaim in a Broadway play called "Penny Arcade", and they were brought to Hollywood in 1930 by Warner Bros. to re-create their performances in the film version. Released under the title of "Sinner's Holiday", the motion picture was the prelude to Mr. Cagney's long film career, during which he was consistently among the top box-office stars because of such memorable pictures as "Public Enemy", "The Roaring Twenties", "The Fighting 69th", "Angels With Dirty Faces", "Love Me or Leave M" and "Mister Roberts".

"The American Film Institute Salute to James Cagney" will mark Mr. Cagney's first public appearance since his retirement 13 years ago. The program will be taped at a dinner in his honor held by the AFI at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles on March 13.

'A Tree Grows In Brooklyn'

Oscar and Emmy Award winner Cliff Robertson, Diane Baker and Nancy Malone star in "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn", a 90-minute program development project for NBC-TV.

Robertson, who won an Oscar as Best Actor for "Charly" (1968), previously won an Emmy for "The Game" segment of "Bob Hope Presents The Chrysler Theatre" (1065). He was President Kennedy's choice to portray him in the film "PT 109". In "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn", he plays Johnny Nolan, a singer-waiter who can't stay away from the bottle.

Miss Baker plays his wife, Katie Nolan, a woman in her early thirties who tries to hold the family together with a job as a scrubwoman. The family consists of her unemployed husband, a daughter, Francie (12), a son, Neely (11). She also has a sister (Miss Malone) whose marriages and divorces have tainted her reputation.

Katie tries to put food on the table and has a hard time trying to find a balance between pride and poverty.

Miss Baker made her film debut in "The Diary of Anne Frank", portraying Anne's sister, and starred in "The Prize".

CAUGHT UNAWARES — Burt Reynolds, as saddle tramp Sam Whiskey, is caught unawares during a poker game in "Sam Whiskey", a Western comedy to be colorcast on "NBC Wednesday Night at the Movies", February 6 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Return Of Fay Spain

Television is better than ever in a definite but subtle way that can be detected only by an insider, says Fay Spain, an insider who has been away from it for a while.

Some 15 years ago Miss Spain was all over home and theater screens: She was Darling Jill in "God's Little Acre" and Rod Steiger's co-star in "Al Capone"; on TV she guest-starred in numerous series.

Then she got married, inherited her husband's four youngsters by a previous marriage and left acting for homemaking. Now, with the kids grown and more time on her hands, she has returned to acting. She plays a lush in the "Ironside" colorcast of "Class of '40", Thursday, February 7 (9-10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

A New TV Family Bows In

"We may be poor, but we're not losers," says Esther Rolle. "If you've got love, you're a winner — and we've got love."

Miss Rolle was talking about her new television family, a Chicago ghetto family of five who will be introduced in the premiere of the new comedy series "Good Times", Friday, February 8 (8:30-9 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11.

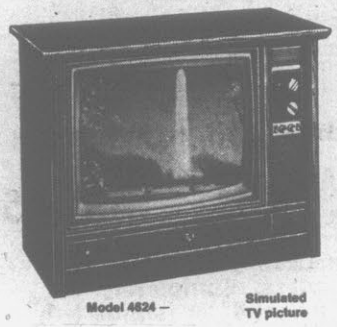

The series stars Miss Rolle in an offshoot of her role as Florida Evans, the Findlays' housekeeper on the Network, in a different environment. "Good Times" focuses on Florida's life in the ghetto with her husband, James, played by co-star John Amos, and three children from 10 to 17 years of age.

Miss Rolle's childhood background has helped her interpret her characterization of Florida Evans. Although she grew up on a Florida farm instead of a big-city ghetto, she recalls that her real-life family, like the Evans family, didn't have many worldly possessions, but they were not poor in spirit.

"I was a grown woman before I found out I was poor," says Miss Rolle, who grew up as the ninth child in a family of 18 children on a farm in Pompano Beach, Fla.

Deacons Host Va.

After falling to Virginia, 91-84 in their first meeting in Charlottesville, the Wake Forest Deacons will be ready for the Cavaliers when they meet Saturday, February 9, in Winston-Salem on Channel 6-9-11.

At Virginia (a game coach Carl Tacy wanted badly in order to avenge the two big losses to the Cavaliers a year ago), the Deacons were victimized by great defensive play by the Cavalier guards and some hot shooting by the frontcourt.

In Wake's poorest defensive effort of the year, the Virginia team penetrated and scored almost at will, receiving superlative efforts from Andy Boninti, Gus Gerard, and Wally Walker.

For Wake Forest, the offensive attack died in the second half when Tony Byers (who scored 18 points in the first half) was limited to just five shots.

So far this season for the Demon Deacons, it has been basically the same story in all the games. When the Deacs play well, they get strong scoring efforts from their backcourt of Byers and Skip Brown. When they play poorly, it is usually due to a lack of height and muscle inside.

Opposition coaches seem to think that Wake is just a big man away from having an awesome offensive attack. They already sport some of the finest outside shooting around.

Tony Byers, the star senior guard, led the Deacons in scoring last season with a 21.7 average. He finished second in the conference in scoring behind All-American David Thompson of N. C. State, who averaged 24.7 points a game.

Byers has demonstrated a superb shooting percentage from the floor, 47.2, even though most of his shots were from long range. He also had a 72.1 free throw percentage.

Palmer To Seek His 6th Crown

Arnold Palmer, who moved into some pretty exclusive company with his $32,000 victory last year in the Bob Hope Desert Classic, will be seeking a sixth crown in the event when NBC-TV colorcasts the final two rounds of the tournament's 15th edition Saturday and Sunday, February 9 and 10 (5-6:30 P.M., both days).

Palmer, with total earnings of more than $120,000 for 14 appearances in the gruelling 90-hole event, also walked off with the top prize in 1960, 1962, 1968 and 1971. As such, he jouned fellow greats Walter Hagen, Ben Hogan and Sam Snead as the only golfers ever to win one tournament five times or more.

In addition to his first-place finishes in the Hope tourney, Palmer also has to his credit two ties for second, a third and one fourth. Last year he, Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller battled to the wire, with Palmer's 343 total giving him his only victory of 1973.

This year's Desert Classic—which will be played over the Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado and La Quinta courses — offers total prize money of $160,000, equaling the record set last year. The event traditionally attracts most of the game's top golfers and many outstanding amateurs and celebrities.

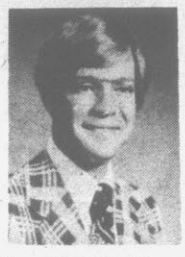

ACC BASKETBALL — Tony Byers, 6'2" - 180 - star guard of the Wake Forest Deacons will see action when the University of Virginia meets the Deacons at Wake Forest Saturday, February 9 at 3 p.m. on Channel 6-9-11.

IMPROMPTU VISIT

Governor Jimmy Carter of Georgia will make an impromptu appearance on an upcoming telecast of "Music Country U.S.A.". He stopped by to watch his daughter's clog dance group appear in a segment of the series and could not resist acting like a proud papa when the cameras were turned his way.

Hockey Players Marked

A time-honored axiom in sports has been: "You can't tell the players without a scorecard." But the home TV viewer, without access to scorecards, has come to rely more and more on players' names on uniforms as a means of facilitating the identification process.

Not all National Hockey League teams display player names on their jerseys, but those slated to appear on NBC will.

NBC-TV, presenting 15 regular-season games and some Stanley Cup contests in its 1974 NHL coverage, has arranged with the league to have all teams — whether or not it is their standard practice — display player names on the backs of their jerseys so they may be more easily identified by the armchair fan.

Through a joint effort on the parts of Chet Simmons, Vice President, Sports Operations, NBC, and Don Ruck, Vice President, National Hockey League, such an arrangement — at least for TV — has been established for the 1974 coverage season.

Scotty Connal, Executive Producer, NBC Sports, noted that "the approach is ideally suited as a means of familiarizing viewers with the players — as well as serving as a quick aid to player identification." This, Mr. Connal added, proved to be a success in the old American Football League.

NBC's first hockey colorcast on January 4 marked the unveiling of the new arrangement. Although the New York Rangers have had names on their jerseys for some time, the game marked the first such display be the Boston Bruins, who will be so identified this season only for NBC telecasts

A NEW CAREER

Soap opera star Mary Stuart, of "Search for Tomorrow," has embarked on a new career, composing and singing—and she has a new album.

Adding Sports Shows

The impact of sports on television over the past decade is graphically indicated by year-end figures that show an increase of more than 100 percent in sports programming hours since 1963, according to Chet Simmons, Vice President, Sports Operations, NBC-TV.

At a news conference in Los Angeles, Simmons pointed out that 10 years ago, five percent of network time was devoted to sports programming while during 1973, the figure had more than doubled to 11 per cent.

In addition, the number of prime-time hours for sports programs has increased dramatically, Simmons said. "In 1963, 85 hours of sports were shown during nighttime hours. In 1973, the figure was 160 hours. Also, football and baseball are shown on a weekly basis in prime time now, as well as many bowl games, NCAA Basketball Championships, the Olympic games and major league baseball's All-Star Game and World Series," Simmons said.

Nearly 1,000 hours of sports were telecast by all three networks during 1973 — of that figure, NBC televised 385 hours, over 90 percent of which were "live," he added.

Johnny Miller Heads List

Red-hot Johnny Miller, the first golfer to win the opening three tournaments on the pro golf tour, heads a list of top PGA players slated to participate in the 15th annual Bob Hope Desert Classic, which will be colorcast on Saturday and Sunday, February 9 and 10 (5-6:30 p.m., both days) on Channel 6-7.

The 26-year-old Miller, a three-stroke winner over young Ben Crenshaw in last weekend's Dean Martin-Tucson Open (also covered by NBC-TV), will be among 128 professional golfers seeking the $32,000 first prize in the 90-hold Desert Classic.

Miller, with earnings of $90,000 in his record-setting start (which also includes victories in the Big Crosby tourney and the Phoenix Open), finished in a tie with Jack Nicklaus in last year's Desert Classic, two strokes in back of Arnold palmer, who won the event for the fifth time.

Palmer will be returning, as will previous Classic winners Billy Casper, Bob Rosburg and Tom Nieporte

BRIAN, TIM AND TED—NBC "NHL Game-of-the Week" sportscasters Tim Ryan (center), Brian McFarlane (left) and Ted Lindsey, a member of the National Hockey League Hall of Fame, get some "ice time" of their own. The three hockey announcers (Tim handles the play-by-play, Ted is his analyst and Brian the between-periods host) can usually be found on the ice the day before the colorcast.

SURVIVORS—Charlton Heston, as scientist Robert Neville, and Rosalind Cash, as Lisa, are among the handful of survivors of a nuclear holocaust in "The Omega Man," a drama to be colorcast on "NBC Saturday Night at the Movies," February 9 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Ballet Star To Create A Dance

The CBS Television Network has commissioned Edward Villella, principal dancer with the New York City Ballet and considered by many critics to be America's leading ballet star, to create and dance in "Harlequin," a youthful version of the 16th-century commedia dell'arte character.

The special, fifth in the ongoing "CBS Festival of the Lively Arts for Young People" series, will be broadcast Wednesday, April 10 (3:30-4:30 p.m.).

Unlike the traditional character, usually played as a poor yet beguiling rogue, Harlequin, in Villella's production, will be portrayed as a boy beloved by his friends.

Patricia McBride, Villella's frequent partner at the New York City Ballet and on television, will dance the role of Columbine, the pure, teasing, loving girl whom Harlequin is taken with, but whose hand is sought by many.

The ballet's opening finds preparations being made for a joyous street fair. Everyone is expected to arrive in splendid costumes — everyone, of course, except the impoverished Harlequin. Brokenhearted, he nonetheless maintains his characteristic wit and charm before friends and his adored Columbine. To mask his misery, he performs an exuberant dance before dashing home.

His friends soon surmise that if anyone could concoct a dazzling disguise it would be Harlequin if, indeed, he had the means. They set about to remedy the situation, each agreeing to contribute a part of his own costume, thus permitting Harlequin to attend the fair wrapped in the love of his friends.

"Harlequin" is the first ballet for children to be commissioned by an American network. It also marks Villella's major choreographic work for television. His first ballet, "Narkissos," based on the myth of Narcissus, was performed by the New York City Ballet in 1967.

Villella believes his fascination for choreography is a natural step. A dancer learns his trade — his art — and wants to explore it. Moreover, while a dancer is usually told what to do in a performance, Villella believes a point is reached where a dancer wants to tell someone else what to do.

George Grizzard No 'Personality'

George Grizzard has been one of the busiest actors in the theatre, television and films for more than 20 years. "But I'll never be a personality," he said with a smile.

The soft-spoken actor's latest venture is a co-starring role (with Jason Robards and Shirley Knight Hopkins) in the new "Hallmark Hall of Fame" production of "The Country Girl" by Clifford Odets. It will be colorcast on Tuesday, February 5 (8:30 to 10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Despite acclaim for his work — he originated the role of Nick on Broadway in "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"; co-starred in "Teacher, Teacher" on the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" and in "Pueblo" on television, and has appeared in such films as "Advise and Consent" and "Happy Birthday, Wanda June" — Grizzard thinks he belongs to the "Gee, I've seen him before but what's his name?" group of performers.

He said: "Privacy is a most important thing to me and I suppose one of the prices I pay is that people don't know me. Sometimes I wish I were more unique, more familiar to the audiences.... but then again, maybe I really don't wish that.

"That fact that I dwell in a sort of show business anonymity is good for me as an actor. This way, the characters I play are more believable because my personality doesn't get in the way

FOR ANTHONY QUINN

Don't you think a child should grow up and then decide for himself what religion he believes in?—F. R., Danville, Ill.

● No, I don't. I believe you must know the form of a thing before you decide anything about it. Children should learn a religion so that they'll have a foundation from which to spring, from which to change if they so decide. Although I'm not Catholic, my children are being brought up Catholic. Later on, if they want to change religions the way I did—fine.

FOR IRVING WALLACE, author

How long does it take you to research a book such as "The Word"?—John Newlin, Santa Rosa, Calif.

● It took me ten years—two years full-time, eight years part-time—which included nine trips to Europe, 58 interviews with Bible experts, and endless poking around the back streets of Europe. I had to become an expert myself in Bible publishing, archaeology, Jesus, carbon dating—and still remember I was writing a suspense thriller. It was hard work but great fun and a memorable experience.

FOR BART STARR, former football star

Would you ever come back to football as a coach?—Lee Pollard, Bethel, N.C.

● I'm not particularly planning to get into coaching, but the right opportunity might change my mind.

FOR CAROL BURNETT

I read that you got straight A's in school. Did your grades come easy?—Barbara Cunningham, Pocatello, Idaho

● I was a B student. Grades came easy in subjects I liked. The others came hard.

FOR SUSAN SAINT JAMES, star of "McMillan & Wife"

Is it true that you sew most of your clothes?—Mauri Forsberg, Yuma, Ariz.

● I used to, but I don't have time now, what with the series and my baby. I wear blue jeans a lot.

FOR GOV. GEORGE WALLACE

Do you have any hope of ever walking again?—Mrs. Rita Hurst, Lancaster, Pa.

● From what neurosurgeons have told me, I'm afraid I can't expect to walk again.

FOR JUDY COLLINS, folk singer

I've heard you're going to quit folk singing and one-night concert tours like your friend, Joni Mitchell. Is this true?—J. B., Buffalo, N.Y.

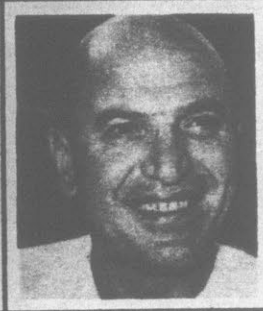

● I will not quit singing, but I will quit touring for a while. I want to spend more time putting together my records and writing new songs. I also want to devote more time to my friends.

FOR ARTHUR O'CONNELL, actor

I remember you years ago in "Citizen Kane" with Orson Welles. What was he like to work with?—S. Vogler, San Antonio, Texas

● We all realized he was a genius. And he was very patient and gentle—not at all the opinionated man he's been made out to be. Many times we'd do a scene and he'd get back and see it through the camera and say, "I was all wrong!" and we'd start over. He was very open-minded.

FOR TELLY SAVALAS, star of "Kojak"

Is it true that you shave your head daily?—David Gomia, Middletown, Ohio

● I shave it every day and have done so ever since I played Pontius Pilate in "The Greatest Story Ever Told." If I didn't shave it now, nobody would recognize me.

FOR PETER RODINO, JR. (D-N.J.),
House Judiciary Committee Chairman

Why does your committee need $1 million to figure out whether or not President Nixon should be impeached?—D. A. L., Louisville, Ky.

● Any impeachment inquiry—but particularly one concerning the President of the United States—involves many uncharted and untested issues. It's necessary to assemble a staff of the highest quality and rectitude, including persons with extensive judicial experience, to assist in carrying out a proper and complete investigation. And this costs money.

The Top Five Women Golfers:

Style, Grace—And Now Big Money, Too

By Helen Dorsey

"I want to be treated like a woman."—Kathy Whitworth

Veteran golfer Patty Berg, a stocky, grizzled, gray-haired lady who turned pro in 1940, remembers the old days well: "We had only three tournaments, five professional women players, and the total prize money was about $500. In the Women's Western Open in 1941, we played all week for $100."

Today, lady golfers win small fortunes in tournaments sponsored by large corporations and receive abundant television exposure and publicity.

For a close look at today's five top LPGA money winners, FAMILY WEEKLY interviewed the girls as they awaited the upcoming $100,000 Sears Women's Classic, to be held February 4-10 at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

So move over, Arnie and Jack—let's hear what the girls have to say.

KATHY WHITWORTH
(1973 EARNINGS: $82,864)

Kathrynne Whitworth, 1973 top money winner, is sometimes called the Jack Nicklaus of the women's tour. She is ramrod-straight and lanky, 35 years old, and walks with an easy lope. She has the face of a pioneer lady and speaks directly, with a Texas drawl. Kathy, the perfect example of the longtime pro, exercises great discipline in her game and has a low tolerance of anything that may interfere with it.

"The most important thing is your attitude about the game and what your purpose is out there. To be a good player, you must be able to concentrate well. You don't always hit the ball perfectly, so you have to be able to learn to adjust. You can't let outside things interfere with what you're doing."

Kathy enjoys the company of men. Her tastes are definite. "I like mature men, men older than I am. I like sports-oriented men, but I think it's more important that a man be a strong individual because I'm so independent. However," Kathy added, "I don't like men who are overpowering to the point that they are obnoxious. I have a strong personality, and to complement me and respect my views I need a strong man. I'm not trying to wear the pants. And I'm certainly not a Women's Libber. But I want to be treated like a woman. At the same time, I'm not helpless, because I can do things for myself. Therefore, I think mutual respect is important. I've found several fellows like that, but they are very rare indeed."

Success has given Kathy the opportunity to buy two homes—one in Denton, Texas, the other on Padre Island, off Texas, where she enjoys her hobby of digging for old Spanish coins washed ashore from shipwrecked galleons.

JUDY RANKIN
(1973 EARNINGS: $72,989)

Judy Rankin, the second biggest winner, is the only married girl in the top five. Petite (5-3) and blonde, the 105-pounder has been called a "Nordic spark plug" because of her powerhouse swing and deadly chip shot. The 27-year-old, who also lives in Texas, started playing golf at age five.

Wide World

"I used to cry a lot over my golf."
—Judy Rankin

Judy is very emphatic about her reasons for pursuing the the tour. "Money. Of course I enjoy the game and I really am addicted to the competition. But I certainly wouldn't do it to the extent I do or work as hard at it or put my family out if it were not for the money."

Judy's husband Walter, or "Yippie" as she calls him, and their five-year-old-son Tuey are a great support to Judy, accompanying her on many of the tours. "I'm amazed how well the married girls are able to play because of all they have to do before they ever get on the course," says Yippie. "Judy has to see that Tuey and I are both fed and worry about getting baby-sitters."

Yippie — a former football player, now an insurance executive—understands the game of golf fairly well, but not the mental concentration it requires. "You have to keep your composure. At first, I used to want to tell her, 'Stomp 'em in the ground!' It took me a couple of years to get over that."

Judy and Yippie do a good deal of Monday-morning quarterbacking over her mistakes after she's had time to cool off. "Sometimes I welcome what he has to say," says Judy, "but sometimes I can't seem to get my head together and we have a conflict simply because I'm not open to any discussion!"

Judy is a perfectionist. "I used to cry a lot over my golf. It's always been a very serious part of my life. It was a hardship on my entire family, even down to my aunts and grandparents. But my father's idea was that if I could do something well, it would enable me to have a better life."

Still, she looks to partial retirement—or at least the luxury someday of saying, "I don't feel like playing this week."

SANDRA PALMER
(1973 EARNINGS: $55,439)

Sandra Palmer, third top winner, is compact in build and an excellent all-round athlete. Another Texan, Sandy ranks with the best shotmakers in the game.

A pretty girl (she was a beauty queen and cheerleader in college), she is very direct, almost

"If you're just interested in watching pretty girls, you ought to go to a beauty contest or a burlesque show."
—Sandra Palmer

terse, until she sizes you up. She shares an apartment with roommates in Dallas.

Sandy tries hard to pace herself. "Traveling takes its toll. And I tend to practice too much, which is pretty exhausting by the end of the year. But I really do enjoy the fame and I can't think of anything else I'd rather do. I'm smart enough to know that you can't do it forever, so I try to work hard at it while I'm doing it."

The Top Five Women Golfers

Touring, she says, makes marriage pretty well out of the question. "It would take an exceptional man, someone who would not be too demanding. Because if you're going to play a competitive sport, it has to be an all-round job. And if you're married, that's another full-time job, too. Besides, men don't want you to be away from home. If I could find someone wealthy enough who could go with me, it might work out nicely. I like athletic guys, guys who like being outdoors, with some intelligence. I like people who have some compassion for what I'm trying to do."

Sandy feels some of the other women golfers work too hard to project "the feminine image on tour. Of course, people enjoy coming out and watching attractive women. I mean, who wouldn't? But sometimes that's overdone and detracts from the game. Most people come out to watch good golf shots. If you're just interested in watching pretty girls, you ought to go to a beauty contest or a burlesque show."

Sandy does, however, enjoy dressing up off the course, enjoys going out and meeting people. "Sometimes people get the wrong impression because they think you're in town to have a good time. That can be overbearing and strained. But most of the girls know how to handle themselves very well."

"Some of the words I can't repeat. In a sense, I kick myself."
—Betty Burfeindt

BETTY BURFEINDT
(1973 EARNINGS: $51,030)

Betty Burfeindt, fourth big-money winner, is Irish and red-headed, with a temper to match. A creature of sunny and stormy moods, the 27-year-old New Yorker (she lives now in Palm Springs) gives herself pep talks on the course to help her improve her game. "Some of the words I can't repeat," she says, smiling slyly. "In a sense, I kick myself, as if to say, 'Get yourself in gear and get going!'"

Betty is a determined competitor. She entered the ranks of professional golfers after winning a mink coat in the 1970 Sears Tournament. Her greatest test of courage came in 1972, when she nearly died from a thyroid condition. She is also constantly fighting attacks of fatigue due to a metabolic condition.

Betty claims having a temper helps her game. "If your temper takes over, that's no good, but I think if you get mad enough at yourself, you can do what you want to do. I just don't think you can go along staying only on one level."

Betty's interests beyond golf include going to the movies, dancing, and decorating doors using decoupage (the practice of gluing pictures to wood and then covering them with layers of varnish). Like many of the girls on tour, Betty feels a need to be alone. "I socialize with the girls, but I don't hang around any one particular group. I definitely have to get off by myself sometimes."

CAROL MANN
(1973 EARNINGS: $47,734)

The Veruschka of the links, Carol Mann stands 6-3. She just misses being pretty, but she makes up for it by her kooky personality. She lives alone in a Baltimore suburb, loves music and finds therapy by strutting around her apartment listening to rock music. She thrives on driving her Mercedes "as fast as I can," and would someday just adore to "put a knapsack on my back and roam the world."

Ten years ago, when the 32-year-old blonde turned pro, she longed for "fame, fortune and travel." Now she finds golf "the best way I can express myself. I look on it as an art—a creative action. It's wonderful to be able to play golf skillfully and beautifully and to have the self-discipline while you're producing these beautiful shots."

Carol is introspective, and she admits this hinders her game (she has had to stop reading so many psychoanalytical books). "I've been coming out of an emotional funk. I was full of doubts and fears about everything. My confidence just got shattered. It affected my game to the point I was not able to put mind over matter. Now I feel that I'm able to do that, and my game has improved."

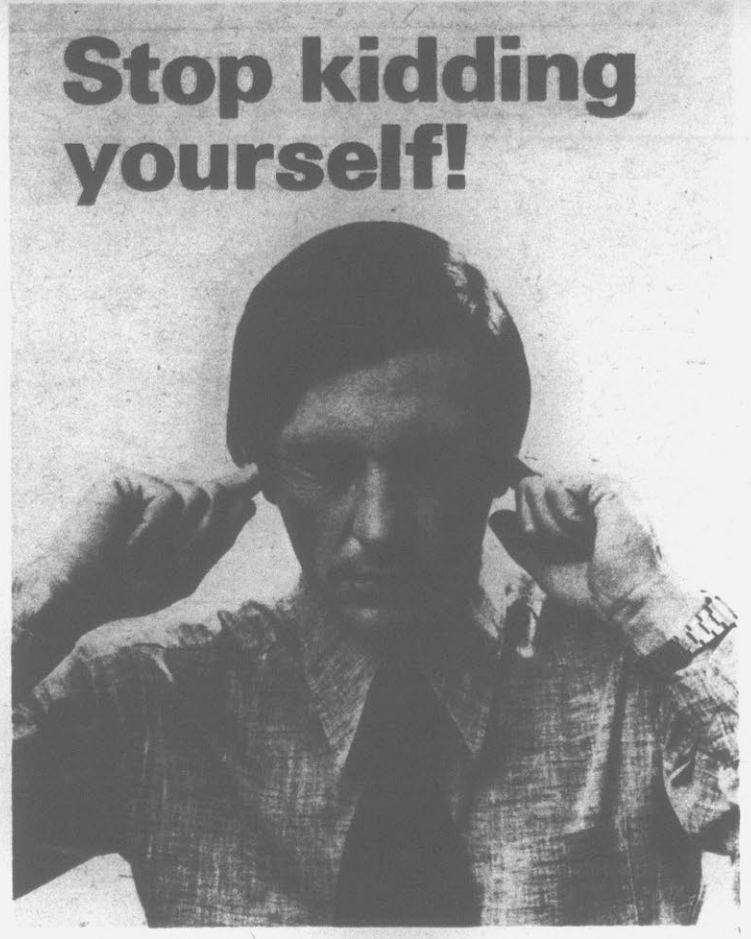

"I look on golf as an art—a creative action."—Carol Mann

Carol, predictably, is self-conscious about her height. "I used to walk into a room, and when someone would remark about my height, I'd want to fall into a hole."

Until recently, one of Carol's chief diversions was playing the flute. But she lost "the damn thing in a car. I've thought about taking up the piccolo. The thought of me playing a piccolo is so wonderfully incongruous!"

Stop kidding yourself!

Doesn't it strike you as strange that somebody as down-to-earth as yourself would think that if you close your eyes to serious questions, they will go away?

Yet there are plenty of people who spend their lives kidding themselves about the things that really matter. What things? Well, religion for one. For many, religion is like electricity. They know what it is until you ask them. And even when they can define religion, they don't see it as the most basic relationship of their lives.

If religion up until now has meant little or nothing to you, isn't it time you stopped kidding yourself? "It's all make-believe," you say. But what if it isn't? Write for our free pamphlet: "Religion Means God and Me." No one will call.

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

©1973 R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

In this picture, everybody has a gimmick . . . almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along. 1. No way. He's Gerry Atric, over-the-hill hippie. Irons his hair twice daily. Cigarettes taste just as flat. Gimmick: Watching bowling pins "do their own thing, man." 2. Naomi Glowsoul. Gimmick: Uses so much body english that police have raided the place four times. 3. Nope. It's Angie "The Arm" Kugelman. Throws so hard three automatic pinsetting machines have quit. Smokes cigarettes so heavily filtered, he's like a man giving mouth-to-mouth resuscitation to a rock. 4. Right. He just likes bowling, not gimmicks. Likes his cigarette honest and no-nonsense, too. Camel Filters. Easy and good tasting. 5. Zooty Smith. Gimmick: Has worn same good luck clothes since he broke 125 in 1942. Smokes war surplus cigarettes and saves the tinfoil. 6. Whiz Kid Pringle. Developed math formula to bowl a perfect strike. Unfortunately releases ball on backswing.

Camel Filters.

(but they could be for you).

Models have perfect faces, and there isn't a thing you can learn from them, right? Wrong! Like all of us, they're not at their best in the morning—until they "put on" their faces. Let top model Sunny Griffin show you what she had to learn the hard way!

You Can Correct Your Facial Flaws (Top Models Do!)

By Rosalyn Abrevaya, Women's Editor

"Before." Cover girl Sunny Griffin looks like this until she "corrects" her features with makeup.

Makeup by Coty Clothes by Genre

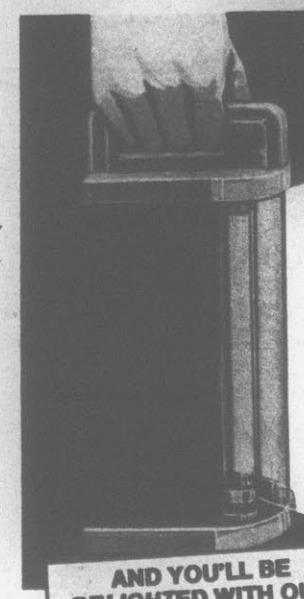

"After." Sunny's vibrant good looks emerge, the result of beauty strategy that minimizes dark circles, flat cheekbones and an uneven skin tone sprinkled with freckles. Turn the page to see how it happens.

You may not care that you weren't born with an aquiline nose, sculpted chin and prominent cheekbones – the ultimate model. But if you've ever had a hankering to improve your looks, what a malevolent delight to discover that top fashion models have feature imperfections! Sunny Griffin (left), a super-model known for her perfect girl-next-door face, says that often people don't even realize she's a model unless she's had 15 minutes with her makeup bag of tricks. "On my first job, I arrived an hour early without any makeup and sat down quietly in a corner waiting for someone to tell me what to do. Nothing happened. Then I heard the photographer frantically calling my agency to complain that 'the model' hadn't arrived yet. I was too embarrassed to tell him it was me! I never appeared without some corrective makeup again."

Sunny describes her problems as "chronic dark circles around my eyes, flat cheekbones, a bump on the bridge of a too-long nose, prominent chin, sparse eyelashes and an uneven skin tone sprinkled with freckles." Here's how, working with Wayne

A "Map" of Sunny's Makeup Magic

Like an artist working on a canvas, Sunny daubs strokes of color in strategic places, as outlined below.

Franken from Coty, Sunny makes up her perfect photo-face. She uses several shades of a rich protein foundation and cream blusher.

1) To hide dark circles around her eyes, she applies a very pale flesh tone (but not white—it looks too owlish).

2) To even skin tone, cover freckles and the occasional blemish, a shade of foundation that perfectly matches her complexion is applied. (Sunny always tests her makeup near a window to see how it looks in clear daylight.)

3) To create high cheekbones, Sunny uses a darker shade of foundation below her natural bones and a rosy blusher on top (as shown). A touch of rouge around the hairline and on the chin adds sparkle to the face.

4) To sculpt a perfect jawline, the dark foundation is applied in broad strokes under the chin.

5) To fix that too-long bumpy nose, she uses dark foundation down both sides and under the tip.

6) To dramatize eyes, Sunny uses brown eyebrow pencil blended along top and bottom lashes and shaped in an arch across the hollow of the eye. (She recommends the pencil for eye liner because it has a softer line and is easier to control.)

7) To make the most of skimpy lashes, Sunny applies coats of mascara alternated with pats of powder, which acts as a fixative.

8) For an appealing mouth, a light daub of the darker makeup shade is applied just under the center of the lower lip. (Check your makeup again after you've dressed, advises Sunny. The rouge that may have seemed too bright—after applying mascara, eye shadow and lipstick—may need heightening.)

"An important part of my beauty routine," Sunny tells us, "has nothing to do with makeup at all." First, she always thoroughly cleanses and moisturizes her face morning and night. Second, she's a fanatic about health and exercise. Eating a balanced diet is one of her chief tenets. Here's her prescription: "My working-day breakfast, which I never skip, is high in protein. I make an eggnog of skim milk and egg, and add fresh fruit, when available, or vanilla flavoring. With this, I have one slice of whole wheat toast with honey, no butter, and drink decaffeinated coffee. Lunch? I carry it with me. I tote raw carrots and celery, sometimes with a bit of spicy dip, a piece of cheese and an apple. This way I get protein and crunch. Dinner is usually fish. (My only problem there is that my husband hates it!) Snacks? I never keep sweets in the house—they're too irresistible. But I do indulge in a candy bar occasionally so I won't feel deprived." Sunny has a complete physical every year and exercise is a way of life with her. She skis, plays tennis and works out in a gym. "I never ride when I can walk," she adds, "and I try to walk at a blood-circulating pace."

3 Tricks Professional Models Use

1. The best trick for making lips "sparkle": super-frosted lipstick or, over your favorite lip color, a finishing touch of petroleum jelly.
2. If you forget all makeup rules, remember this one: A corrective dark daub diminishes flaws or helps them recede (as in creating attractive cheekbone hollows), and a light makeup application enhances (as in pastel eye shadow to bring out small eyes). The only exception: the lip area—dark lipstick will draw attention to a wide mouth. Reverse the rule here.
3. Three tiny dots of blue mascara or moistened blue brow pencil placed at the lower outer edge of the eye will bring out the whites of your eyes.

The ABC's of Hand Care

Good nails, on well-kept hands, are an essential touch of beauty. But they're not easy to come by! Many nails are needy and show it in splits, breaks and other troublesome signs of weakness. How to get them in shape?

First, your diet. If you have vitamin, calcium or protein deficiencies, they'll show up in unhealthy looking nails. Check with your doctor; then you might supplement your diet with a daily vitamin or a packet of gelatin.

Do try to spend 20 minutes once a week grooming your nails, taking the opportunity to treat hands and arms to a brisk cream massage. Between manicures, use a terry-cloth towel to gently push cuticles back each time you wash your hands. Use hand lotion and nail-cuticle cream to nourish the cuticle down where the nail takes root. If your nails are too soft, you'll find nail hardeners on the market, some fortified with protein.

Other helps: buffing or massaging the fingers toward the tip to improve circulation. Remember that the cold winter weather has a definite effect on your nails. They become more brittle in winter and therefore need extra-special care.

Start your own "nail security system." Always carry a small emery board in your purse for on-the-spot repairs. Don't use your nails as tools! Use the end of a pencil to dial the phone. Grasp objects especially hairpins, with the cushions of your fingers. Pry open the tops of containers with kitchen gadgets. Cover up your hands with rubber gloves when you do your heavy household cleaning jobs such as hand-washing clothes, painting or cleaning silver. Turn light switches off and on and push elevator buttons with your knuckles rather than your nails.

The fact is that, by practicing a little "nail consciousness" every day, you can manage to get away with spending a minimum of time and effort on basic care—and still have beautiful hands to show for it.

At 38, I got rid of 10 pounds and my gray hair, and went to work for a decorator.

Over the past few years I'd gotten a little fatter and a little grayer. Year by year. Maybe because my husband loved me too much. But deep down I knew. And here I was nearing 40.

Before when I'd had these feelings I'd work it off cleaning a closet or something. This time I knew I had to renew myself. It was painful but I went looking for a job.

I decided one thing I didn't need was gray hair. Every time I looked in the mirror it was depressing. That gloomy gray-brown color just wasn't me!...

I didn't want to use a peroxide dye though. I wouldn't touch my hair till I found out about Loving Care® lotion. It's not a permanent tint or dye. It's a gentle color wash.

It's different from most all other haircolor brands because it doesn't have peroxide! And it doesn't change your own natural color. Just the gray goes away.

Now I'm doing things. I like myself. And who knows what's ahead! I feel as a person I've only just begun and forty is going to be fabulous!

How to Give Yourself a Perfect Manicure

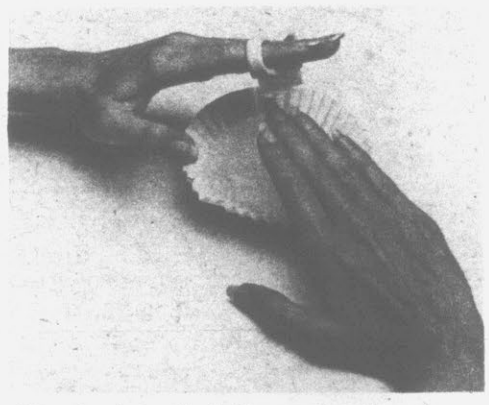

There probably isn't a woman alive who wouldn't enjoy the luxury of a professional manicure once a week, but few have the time, the money or a convenient salon. Here's how to succeed on your own, illustrated by the experts at Cutex.

Begin by removing every last trace of polish with polish remover, using cotton in a gentle outward stroke. Then rinse fingertips.

With an emery board, filing in one direction toward the center, shape your nails, aiming for a medium length (about ¼ inch beyond fingertips) and a broad oval shape—best for resisting breaks and bruises.

For the most professional-looking manicure, angle the emery board at 45 degrees.

Then proceed as follows:

After shaping nails, bathe your hands in a warm, sudsy solution, gently scrubbing nails clean with a good hand brush.

Loosen cuticles by nudging them back with a manicure stick lightly wrapped in cotton and dipped in an oily cuticle remover. Then rinse with warm water.

Three strokes—that's all it should take to apply a coat of polish perfectly. Always polish your handiest hand first, leaving the less dextrous one bare while it's working. Stroke number one goes down the middle of your nail; strokes two and three down each side. Always start at the base and work to the tip. Ward off disheartening smears by beginning the polishing process at the thumbnail and then working your way back from the pinky to the index finger. Two coats of polish usually do the trick. Allow one minute for the first coat to dry before applying the second. Finish with a final protective coat of "colorless" polish for extra shine and staying power.

The final, perfect manicure! For a neat finish, run a manicure stick tipped with cotton and dampened with polish remover along the outside of the cuticle and fingertip to clear away any smudges of polish.

How's Your Nail IQ?

Did you know that—

1. Use of a metal file can weaken and split nails (an emery board is recommended).

2. Nails should not be shaped too deeply at the corners. Pointed nails will break faster than oval-shaped.

3. Tobacco stains can be removed by rubbing the areas with a wedge of lemon or cotton soaked in hydrogen peroxide.

4. Digging your nails into a cake of soap before tackling a gardening chore will keep them cleaner, protect against breaking.

5. A complete new nail grows every three to five months—faster in summer than winter, faster on the right hand (if you're right-handed) and middle finger, and even faster during pregnancy.

Medicine Chest: At-a-Glance Bulletins from the Changing World of Medical Science...

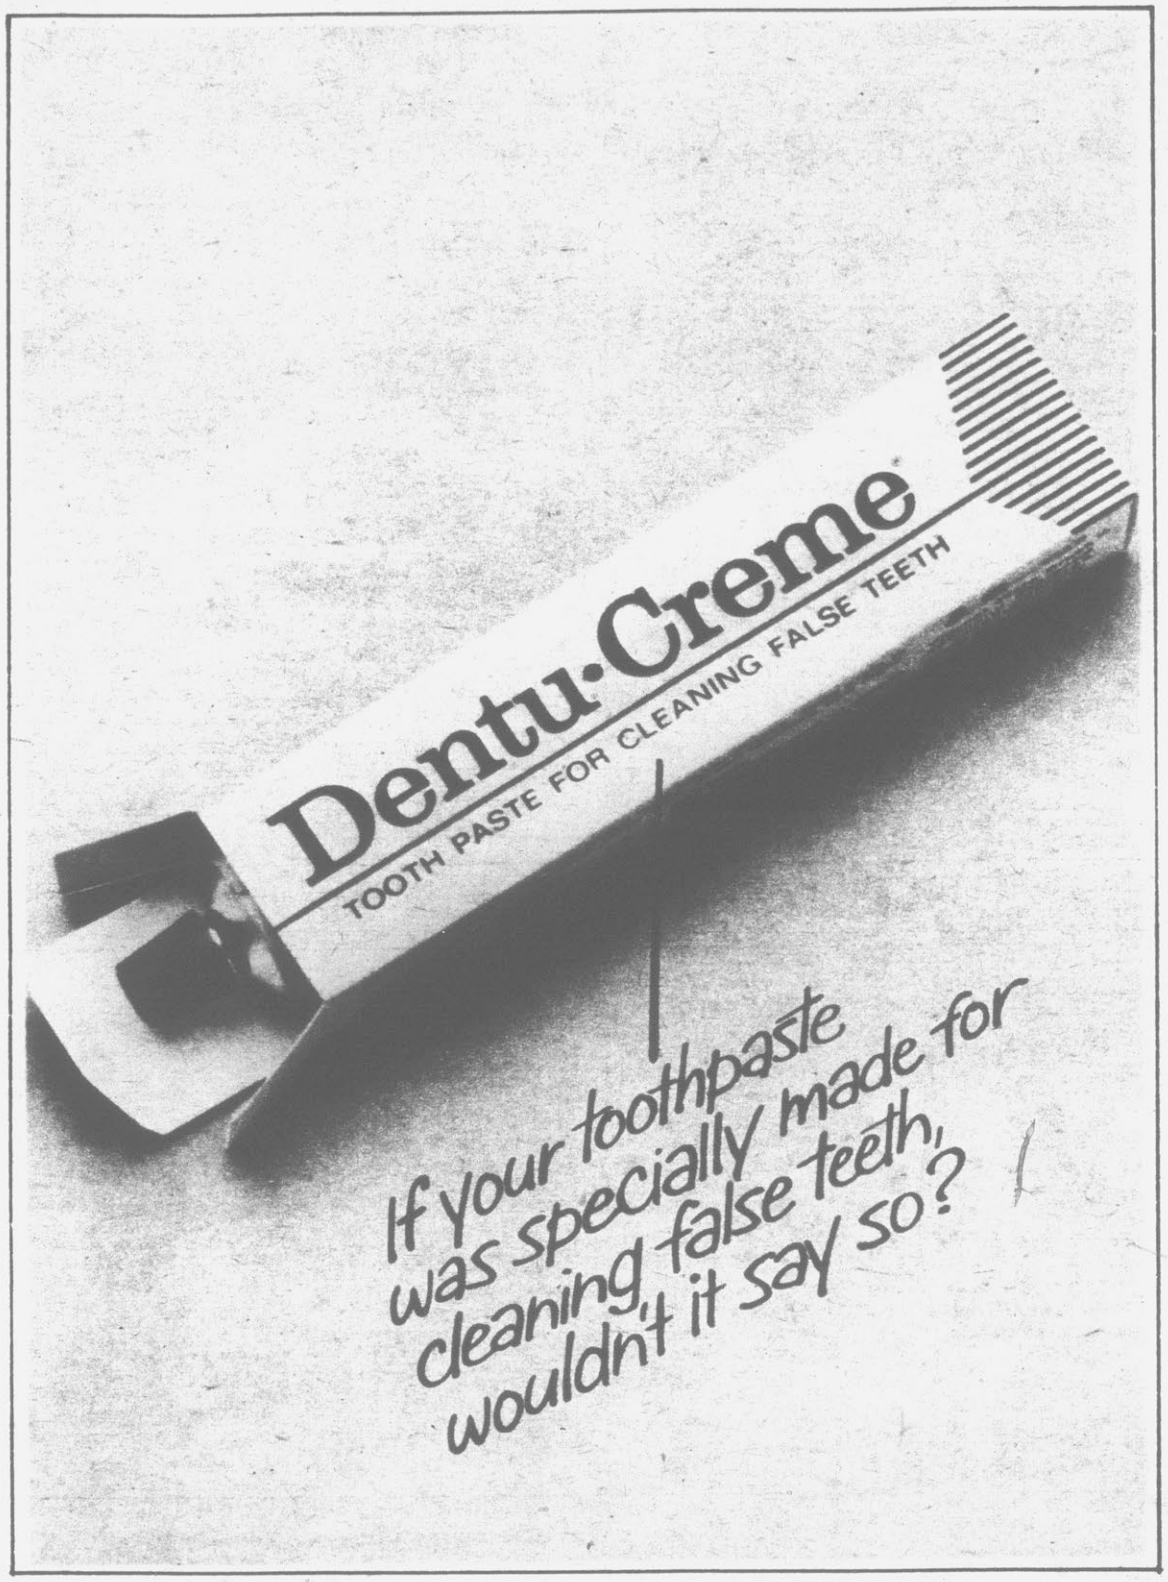

By Erwin DiCyan, Ph.D.

CAN SENILITY BE CURED? Yes . . . maybe. . . . In the past, senility has been treated with drugs. But now there's evidence that some senility, in early stages, can be helped by adequate nutrition. Given the proper vitamins, minerals, trace minerals (minerals needed in minute quantity), and food that is thoughtfully prepared, some so-called senile symptoms are often much reduced. One secret: Older people need an adequate caloric intake, but carbohydrates should be reduced and proteins increased. This is according to Dr. T. G. Taylor of the University of Southampton in England. Another thing to watch for – dental problems. Older people's dentistry must be maintained to assure a varied diet.

DO "ANTACIDS" REALLY WORK? Consumer interests often claim that medicines advertised on TV are ineffective and that some are even dangerous. Not so. The majority probably serve a good purpose. For example, a recent article in the "Journal of the American Medical Association" by Drs. Daniel Hollander and John Harlan reports that antacids (such as those on TV commercials) are effective in helping to heal and relieve stomach ulcers. Of course, many doctors have prescribed antacids that way for years. Still, it's good to keep in mind: "Consumerism" is one thing, cynicism is another.

SON OF VITAMINS C AND E? Vitamin B_6 may be the next rage after vitamins E and C. Watch for it. Another name for B_6 is pyridoxine. B_6 has a number of functions, including protection of the nervous system against convulsions. A few years ago, cases were reported in which, in the processing of a baby food, B_6 was lost. The babies fed with that food developed convulsions. In a recently published book ("Vitamin B_6– The Doctor's Report," by Drs. John Ellis and James Presley, Harper & Row, N.Y.), B_6 is reported to be useful for impaired circulation, rheumatism and nerve affections of the hands. But more study is needed.

A NEW FLU. The influenza virus has a new look this year. Last year's flu shot alone will probably not protect you. The new flu is the old Hong Kong flu with a face-lift–the same, but different enough to make a new protective shot advisable. The new flu vaccine is given a few weeks after the customary flu shot. With the energy shortage this winter, heating may be low. Assuming that this makes one more susceptible to the flu (a point on which there is controversy among doctors); it is doubly advisable to protect older people and those with respiratory problems or chronic heart disease. Warning: Since these vaccines are cultured in eggs, those allergic to eggs should avoid them.

DENTISTRY MOVING UP? Look for dentistry to move in the direction of general medicine. A relatively new concept called stomatology looks at the mouth as a kind of mirror of the body. Certain signs in the mouth, such as changes in color, or the presence of spots, can indicate a serious medical condition – leukemia, cancer, jaundice. Even measles shows its signs in the mouth before a general rash occurs (spots inside the cheeks, called Koplik's spots). What it all means: increased status for dentists (and perhaps higher bills?).

CYCLAMATES MAY RETURN. Remember three years ago when the sweetening agent, cyclamates, were ordered off the market in one weekend? Many scientists disagreed with that step. They did not believe cyclamates harmful. Since then, a dozen different studies in many parts of the world have indicated cyclamates got a bum rap. The manufacturer who sponsored those studies, Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill., has made a formidable 15-volume petition to the FDA to restore cyclamates to the market. A decision should be forthcoming soon.

DOCTORS AFRAID OF DRUGS? Doctors fear drug addiction so much that they are reluctant to prescribe adequate doses of narcotics even for people who need them. This is the finding of a survey by Drs. Richard M. Marks and Edward J. Sacher of Albert Einstein College of Medicine. The survey found "a pattern of undertreatment of pain . . . leading to widespread and significant patient distress." This sometimes takes on strange and illogical forms, such as the fear of some doctors to give generous pain relief to terminal-cancer patients because it might addict them. Or take LSD. Experiments show that LSD comforts patients dying of cancer and enables them to face death with little or no distress. Still, doctors refuse to use it. LSD has bad connotations. This is the kind of thing critics point to when they complain Americans are not being allowed to "die with dignity."

TWO NEW CANCER TESTS. (1) You'll be hearing more of CEA (which stands for carcinoembryonic antigen) as a test for cancer. Developed by Drs. Phil Gold and S. O. Freedman of Montreal, the test is particularly promising for finding cancer of the gastrointestinal tract—the digestive system. It's not as useful for other cancers. The test is done by taking a blood sample from patients and putting it in contact with serum from rabbits who have been injected with serum from known cancer patients. The amount of CEA, if found, is calculated. This determines likelihood of cancer. (2) Up till now, breast cancer has usually been confirmed by a biopsy taken under general anesthesia. A small portion of the breast is surgically removed and examined. When the material is found to be malignant, the breast is often removed while the patient is still under anesthesia—with the patient having the shock of waking up minus a breast. Now there is a simpler method. The biopsy can be made on material that is drawn out of the breast by a needle. This does not require general anesthesia and the results can be had in an hour.

TO BE AWARDED TO 100 WINNERS IN OUR 19th ANNUAL PUZZLE CONTEST

PRESENTED FOR YOUR ENTERTAINMENT BY TOWN & COUNTRY PUZZLE HOSTS, THE SAME OLD-TIME PUZZLE MAKERS WHO FOR THE PAST 19 YEARS HAVE PUZZLED YOU PUZZLERS WITH OUR OWN UNIQUE AND INTRIGUING CONTEST.

RULES

1. Solve this puzzle as you would any other crossword puzzle except that the letters you supply are determined, not by definitions, but by letter values.

2. Fill in every empty square with a letter. When completed, every series of 2 or more letters must spell a word, both across from left to right, and down. Every word appearing in the solution, both across and down, must be taken from the accompanying "OFFICIAL WORD LIST" and must be spelled exactly as it is there. Words may be used more than once (no limit).

3. Black squares have no value. Using the letter values shown here, add correctly the value of ALL letters in each line ACROSS—(BOTH THE LETTERS ALREADY IN THE PUZZLE AND THOSE YOU SUPPLY)—and place these LINE TOTALS at the right of the puzzle as indicated. Then add these LINE TOTALS correctly, and put your Total Score in the space indicated. Any error in your solution will disqualify your entry. An entry once submitted cannot be changed. However, a contestant may send in more than one entry. See Rule 6.

4. The object of the game is to obtain the highest total score of the puzzle, obeying all the Rules. (See Rule 7 for ties.) This is a contest of skill. There are no "tricks" planned or allowed.

5. Anyone at least 18 years of age, in the U.S. or Canada (including military personnel abroad), may enter this contest except members and employees of the sponsors, their advertising agents and their immediate families. Each entry must be accompanied by a $3.00 entry fee. This fee is to cover costs and administrative expenses of conducting the contest.

6. A contestant may send in more than one entry, but each entry must be accompanied by the $3.00 entry fee. So if you see a chance to improve on an entry you have already sent in, you may send another entry with the $3.00 fee. While various members of a family may each enter the contest not more than one prize may be won by one household.

7. Ties are expected, in which case Tiebreaker No. 1 will be required. It will be sent only to those who may be tied for any of the prizes. The tiebreaker will be similar to this puzzle. It will be the same size, 11 squares each way, but will be more difficult, with fewer letters supplied, and more empty squares. The Official Word List, with more words and letter values, will also be supplied. Seven days will be allowed for solving this tiebreaker. Highest score wins highest prize for which there are ties, and so on.

If any ties still remain, additional tiebreakers up to 4 more may be sent to determine the winners. Each additional tiebreaker will be more difficult than the previous one, with fewer letters supplied and more empty squares (but still only 11 squares each way). Each tiebreaker has its own rules and may have slight changes. If any ties still remain after the 5 tiebreakers, then the full amount of the prize or prizes tied for will be awarded to each tied contestant. However, in all our previous contests, 2 tiebreakers or less (with one or two exceptions) were required to determine all winners. There is never any fee for tiebreakers, in OUR contests.

8. Contestants shall not receive from, nor furnish to, anyone outside their own household, all or part of any solution in this contest.

9. Cut out the entry blank along the dotted lines, enclose your $3.00 fee and mail to Town and Country, P. O. Box 1398, Tacoma, Wash. 98401. Original entries must be postmarked not later than March 14, 1974, and received by March 28, 1974.

10. Promptness Prize—$500.00 cash. If you send your entry and $3.00 fee on or before the date shown on the Official Entry Blank, you will qualify for the $500.00 Promptness Prize. This Promptness Prize will be ADDED TO THE FIRST PRIZE ONLY.

11. When we receive your entry and $3.00 entry fee we will send you:
   a. Acknowledgment of your entry (LET US KNOW IF NOT RECEIVED IN 30 DAYS).
   b. Notification of your standing at this point in the contest.
   c. Our latest bulletin of news about our contests.
   d. Prizes will be paid about June 30, 1974. At that time we will send you the list of prize winners and a copy of the highest scoring solution of each puzzle, of Contest 19.

12. By entering this contest, you agree to accept the judges' decisions as final. The sponsors reserve the right to OFFER INCREASED PRIZES (see below), extra work charts and positional word lists. WE CANNOT BE RESPONSIBLE FOR LOST OR DELAYED MAIL. Neither can we be responsible if you do not follow our instructions. The sponsors shall decide any questions that may arise concerning this contest. All entries become the property of the sponsors. This contest is subject to all Federal, State and Local regulations.

George Peppard, TV's "Banacek":

"My Temper Is Like the Onslaught Of the Ice Age"

Pictorial Parade

George Peppard: "I keep my business separate from my private life."

George Peppard arrived for breakfast looking like George Peppard is expected to look: his nearly white hair neatly cropped (he started graying at 30), wearing a white tennis outfit and a healthy tan that made his eyes look an even lighter blue. His attitude was one of studied serenity and patience. His voice: low and perfectly modulated. In short, he seemed totally in control of himself. Yet somehow it was like sitting next to a flawless bottle—with the cork ready to blow.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You have the reputation of being very self-confident and very self-sufficient. Do you consider yourself a loner?

PEPPARD: I probably am. But to say I'm a loner is like talking about the weather—what can you do about it? It exists. Period. And I don't consciously think of myself as that. It's only an exterior observation of myself.

FW: Do you feel this is a good attitude?

PEPPARD: Not especially. It certainly is a handicap in relating with other people.

FW: Does being an actor have anything to do with your feeling aloof?

PEPPARD: Being in this business—and famous—automatically isolates you. The work itself creates this because you spend 12 hours a day secluded on location or on a sound stage, and you're never in contact with anyone. Also, the hours prohibit socializing, so you don't meet new people. There's simply no opportunity.

FW: You were an only child. Do you think that caused you to be a loner?

PEPPARD: Probably, to some extent. But not wholly. It was also because of the way my parents were. They had a greater sense of privacy than most people. They kept things in the family. There were certain things they didn't talk about to others. I'm also a private person.

FW: How does it show?

PEPPARD: For instance, I don't allow any pictures to be taken in my home. Ever. And no pictures of the children—you know, the typical "at home with the kiddies" thing. [Editor's note: Peppard has two children—Bradford, 18, and Julie, 14—by his first wife, Helen Davies. He has another son—Christian, six—by his second wife, Elizabeth Ashley, from whom he is also divorced.] Naturally, the children are familiar with publicity, and I think nothing of taking them to tennis tournaments where flashbulbs pop off all the time. But that's different. I keep my business separate from my private life.

"Please understand, and let me make this clear: I have no complaints! In talking frankly and honestly, there is the danger that I sound grudging. I am not. I picked the profession, they pay me well, and by my own choice I want to stay in it!"

FW: You seem to have extraordinary self-control. Don't you ever get angry?

PEPPARD: I suppose I bottle it up to some extent. I don't often get angry. I don't want to, because when I do, I get very angry.

FW: How does it show?

PEPPARD: It's been described as "the sudden onslaught of the Ice Age."

FW: Then how do you let off steam?

PEPPARD: Tennis helps. I really enjoy it. And I feel good afterward, even though I'm tired.

FW: Do you have any other ways of getting rid of your anger?

PEPPARD: I can sublimate my anger by listening to music. I love classical music. My mother was a music teacher at UCLA. Besides, I don't get angry as much as I used to. I'm 44 now, and I've matured. I used to be neurotic about things that didn't really matter.

FW: Did you ever undergo analysis?

PEPPARD: Yes, several years ago.

FW: What made you do that?

PEPPARD: How shall I put it? I'll have to be more verbal than I want to be, I think, to try to explain. When you're unhappy, and there's no realistic reason for it, or when you find your desires are being frustrated, and you're the reason for it—then you realize you need help.

FW: So you believe in analysts.

PEPPARD: I don't believe in all analysts. You have to have a good one—one you can communicate with. I tried six analysts before I got one I could communicate with. In fact, I'd tried to undergo analysis twice before. I failed. A lot of so-called "analysts" just hand you all of their problems and inadvertently compound yours. That's what happened to me.

FW: If you work all day, then go directly home, isn't that tiring—and frustrating? And didn't frustrations cause you to become neurotic in the first place?

PEPPARD: Yes, yes, you're right. Frustrations do build up. For example, in relating to a woman: If you live with a woman, she alleviates some frustrations for you. Or rather, she can, if it's a good relationship. If not she only increases them and becomes a party to them.

FW: Would you want your children to become actors?

PEPPARD: I would not strongly oppose anything they wanted to do. But the two older youngsters are not that interested in acting, having witnessed the effects and consequences of the profession.

FW: If you feel this way about show business, why do you remain in it?

PEPPARD (quickly): Please understand, and let me make this clear: I have no complaints! In talking frankly and honestly, there is the danger that I sound grudging. I am not! I picked the profession, they pay me well, and by my own choice I want to stay in it! In fact, I have my own company, Long Rifle Production Company, and I am looking forward to directing before long.

FW: Let me change the subject a minute. What do you think of Women's Lib?

PEPPARD: It has some good points. I think women should have equal political, wage and job opportunities. I think we have to recognize women as "people."

FW: But what about women in your life? Wouldn't you like to get married again?

PEPPARD: Yes. . . .

FW: You don't sound convinced.

PEPPARD: Being married to an actor who works as hard and as long as I do is a difficult job. And that's what it has to be—a full-time job!

How your Horoscope can bring you wealth, love, success and happiness.

by Norman P. Kennedy

Did you know your horoscope could mean the difference between happiness or sorrow; between success or failure?

Picture a long room with doors at each end. In this room there are money, attractive persons of the opposite sex, books that tell you the secret of happiness and many other valuable articles. But, also in this room are bottomless pits, traps, hostile persons and dangerous beasts chained in various places around the room. You must walk through this room, but you may take out of it anything you can.

Now if you had a choice, would you choose to 1) go through the room blindfolded or 2) go through the room with your eyes open and with written instructions on which places and people to visit or avoid.

Of course, all of us would pick the second choice in a case such as this. Isn't it ridiculous, then, that we would choose to go through life, the same situation, blindfolded! Even when there is a means to go through life with a map and our eyes wide open! The means provided is Astrology. The map is our astrological horoscope.

How does it work? Nature's cosmos imprints each of us at the time of birth – when the umbilical cord is cut. We then become ourselves. Until the cord is cut, we are part of our mother. Why or how we presently do not know. The movement of the large solar bodies then times potentials for events in our lives. Astrology does not cause events but is timing of events. But, it's not fortune telling. It's a prediction of potentials which free will can override.

What does a natal horoscope analysis by a qualified astrologer contain? A natal horoscope analysis contains the best psychological analysis of yourself that you can get today. Because, in a controlled experiment in 1960, astrologers beat psychologists in predicting case histories.

In addition, a natal horoscope analysis includes discussions on the following: financial outlook; taxes and inheritances; early home environment; relationships with family, relatives and parents; lovelife and marriage; children; career and occupation; hopes; wishes and goals; and subconscious attitudes. In a major analysis, a one year forecast is also included.

Many people think that astrology only appeals to "way out" unscientific people. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact, studies show that astrology appeals most to intelligent and logical people. Famous scientists Galileo, Carl Jung, Johannes Kepler, Roger Bacon, Tycho Bache and Albert Einstein all believed in astrology.

Your horoscope can help you be in the right place at the right time.

Your horoscope can help you avoid disasters while guiding you to your beneficial opportunities.

Did you know that astrology helped the allies win World War II? The allies employed astrologers. The axis powers started out employing astrologers. But, this was ceased early when the famous astrologer, Karl Ernst Krafft, predicted the exact time and place of an attempt on Hitler's life in 1939. Hitler thought the astrologers were conspiring against him, so they were imprisoned.

Hitler turned back to astrology – too late. He read his horoscope in the last moments of the war as Berlin burned around him.

More on avoiding disaster, came these stories from a recent article in the Miami Herald newspaper. The article tells the story of Mary Kelly, a Miami computer programmer, who heeded the advice of her horoscope which warned her of a wrong medical diagnosis. She avoided an unnecessary operation that would have left her a cripple.

The Miami Herald also tells the story of astrologer Clifford McMullen, who is George McGovern's personal astrologer. He warned McGovern that if he ran for president, that he would win the Democratic nomination, but he would lose badly to President Nixon in the November election.

Your horoscope can bring you wealth. Famous business tycoon, J. P. Morgan, used astrology to acquire his fortune. Morgan did not make a financial move without checking his natal horoscope forecast.

From an article in the Miami Herald came this story:

"Stockbrokers on Wall Street are as likely to call an astrologer in this decade as Hollywood film stars would call a psychiatrist in the last. David Williams, a 75 year old retired financial expert who lives in Clearwater, has made $150,000 from the stock market in 13 years by using astrology as an investment guide."

Your horoscope can show you the way to success and happiness in love and marriage. Horoscopes of Grace Kelly and Jackie Kennedy predicted their current successful marriages, Grace Kelly to Prince Rainier and Jackie Kennedy to Aristotle Onassis.

Princess Grace and Prince Rainier have recently had their horoscopes done together by American astrologer, Keith Clayton. As with these famous people, your horoscope can help you find and keep a lasting and meaningful love relationship.

Now and through the ages a good natal horoscope analysis has meant success for many people. In other cases many men have missed their opportunity; some with tragic consequences, such as Adolf Hitler.

Will you miss your success opportunities? Will you stumble into pitfalls you could have avoided?

Today, right this moment, you can have your natal horoscope cast and analyzed. You can get it for only the cost to make your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process – FREE. The article below will tell you how. The means are available, but the choice is yours.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

The Weird Ways We React to the Time of Day

True or False: You are most susceptible to infection at a certain time of day. (See number 1)

Things are different at one time of the day than another. Just how different may surprise you. This True-or-False quiz goes into it.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. You are most susceptible to infection at a certain time of day.

2. There are two times in the day when most people's "mental clock" works almost as well as the one on the wall.

3. There's a best time of the day to take medicine.

4. If something of importance has temporarily slipped your mind – a name, where you've put something, or whatever–there's a best time of day to try to remember it.

5. There's even a best time of the day to get rid of household pests–such as flies and roaches.

ANSWERS

1. True–according to the recent findings of a team of specialists at the University of Southern California School of Medicine, which showed that susceptibility to infection–particularly colds and respiratory ailments–is appreciably greater in the late afternoon than at any other time of day. The study showed that a substance secreted by the body–secretory immunoglobulin-A (IgA)–exerts a major protective function against contagion and disease. The body produces this substance in the most generous amounts between midnight and 8 a.m., with production at the lowest ebb from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m.

2. True–according to research findings cited in a National Institute of Mental Health study. Investigators had asked hundreds of people to tell them what time it was without looking at a clock. When the results were evaluated, it was found that people's time sense "was most accurate between 8 and 10 a.m. and again around 4 p.m. During midday, people typically misjudged the time, thinking that it was earlier; while at the end of the day they assumed that the hour was later."

3. True. Research sponsored by the U.S. Public Heath Service reports that medications taken at one time of day can have far more beneficial results–with fewer side effects–than if taken at another time. Laboratory tests showed that drugs administered at one hour of the day produced undesirable effects in 78 percent of the cases. When dosage was administered at another hour, undesirable effects occurred only eight percent of the time. The best time of day to take a given medication depends both on the type of medicine and the person's individual response to the drug.

4. True. The best time is during a rest period, when you're stretched out on a lounge or easy chair. Studies show that your memory processes function most effectively when you're as relaxed as possible–mentally as well as physically.

5. True. Don't laugh, we're not kidding. There is a best time of day to rid your house of such pests. It's four o'clock in the afternoon. In studies conducted by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, scientists discovered that insecticides are much more effective on flies and roaches in the late afternoon than they are at any other time during the 24-hour period. How did the scientists find this out? They studied the insects' daily biological rhythms, sprayed them with insecticides under controlled conditions at various hours of the day and night, then collected mortality statistics. The time when the pests were found to be most susceptible to the insecticides was in the late afternoon.

Now, a blunt promise by an eminent dermatologist:

Every cell of your face has a "clock" in it! Here's how to wind those clocks backwards!

Revealed by an eminent dermatologist (see his word-by-word statement below): How, with the proper scientific instruction, you can literally stop the biological "clocks" in your skin . . . actually look ten to twenty years younger than your real age . . . erase wrinkles, blemishes and coarseness . . . and do it all using nothing more than such simple ingredients as water, soap, and (especially) salt!

This is, quite frankly, a vital message about what is perhaps the most revolutionary home-medical-guide ever published on facial care . . . facial beauty . . . renewed facial youth. Its results are so spectacular, its documentation is so overwhelming, and its methods are so vital to your future life that we must repeat, in full, two more quotes from its opening pages:

"As a matter of fact, we have only recently acquired the ability to really do something about the more serious changes in appearance that accompany aging . . .

"In the past, the average person stood very little chance of being able to look younger. Without wealth or the right genes, there was very little hope. The advent of modern skin care has changed all this. Now it is no longer necessary to pamper yourself or be born with good skin. The idle rich no longer have any advantage . . . the genes you inherit are no longer a limiting factor, because we can now compensate for even delicate, age-prone skin . . . Thanks to modern research, we now know what causes many of the unattractive problems that appear with age. With this kind of knowledge, we have been able to develop methods that are effective in combatting or solving these problems.

"The practical application of these methods can produce spectacular results. A person can easily look ten to twenty years younger than his or her actual age, and this can be achieved with a minimum of effort. My own interest in this subject was first stimulated by an eminent dermatologist who was one of my first teachers. He was not only an early advocate of these new methods, but he practiced them himself. The results were truly impressive. At almost eighty years of age, he appeared to be in his early fifties."

This, Then, Is The Startling New Promise That Lies Right At Your Fingertips! And Here Are The Discoveries That Are Going To Give It To You!

For example—

Age is no longer a barrier to a flawless complexion, because the outer layer of your skin never stops growing! And, if you learn the right way to utilize that growth, you may actually reverse the dreaded aging process, and grow younger-looking, not older.

The ultimate moisturizer! How it can eliminate moisture loss instantly, and actually repair the ravages caused by years of facial dryness.

The three insidious structural changes that create "old" skin, and how to stop each at its source.

For example, master this simple technique of protecting the all-important "inner layer" of skin from damage, and you will never need the services of a plastic surgeon.

How your kitchen stove can make you look old, old, old—unless you learn how to use it—like this.

How certain household aids (that you use every day) actually poison your skin. Get rid of them—now.

How to keep the sun from turning your face into a wrinkled prune.

How to protect your skin against air pollution. (Otherwise, if you live in a big city, be prepared to have people guess you're ten years older than you really are.)

How to banish blocked pores and blackheads—for good.

The Number One Rule for protecting your face against all the hazards of the environment. Follow it faithfully (see page 36), and when your friends look as old as Methuselah, you'll hardly have changed at all.

Indisputable Proof That It Would Take A Century For Your Face To Look Old, If You Didn't Abuse It Like This . . .

How to "quick-clean" your face, so thoroughly, and so fast, that you take years off it, rather than put them on.

Invisible sources of skin inflammations and allergies, that may be ruining your complexion right now. In other words, how to practice modern acne therapy, right in your own home.

Why you may never have to spend a cent on commercial face-care products again. For two reasons: Because most of them are actually harmful to your skin (see list on page 67). And because none of them could ever do as much for that skin as the almost-costless preparations given to you on page 71.

For example, the best daytime base in the world (and you should wear it every minute of every day, to keep the youth-force sealed in your skin) costs only 84¢ for a six-month supply. And the best night cream you can buy costs slightly more—about 91¢ for a six-month supply.

And the best skin freshener probably costs a penny a day.

And not one of them contains a single ingredient that will unknowingly age your face, or dry out your face, or irritate your face. All they do is pull the filth out of that face, at the same time they seal in the youth.

But What About The Old Skin That's Marring Your Face Right Now? What Do You Do About It? THIS—

Here, on page 72, is (in our opinion at least) the really startling breakthrough in facial care in this generation. It is called, "Skin Thinning". It takes about two minutes of your time a week, and it costs about 3¢ a treatment. It's basic ingredient is salt. Plain ordinary table salt. But used in such a way that it almost instantly cuts down wrinkles. Opens clogged pores. Helps prevent age spots and whiteheads. May actually have your husband cooing with delight the very first day you use it.

And there's still more—much more—like this:

How the wrong vitamins can poison your skin. And the right vitamin therapy cause spectacular changes overnight. (See page 108.)

How dry, scaly skin can often be eliminated by a simple change in your diet. (See page 107.)

The "Young-Face Style of Life". Or how to erase ten years from the look of your skin, simply by adjusting the way you work, play and sleep. (See page 112.)

How your skin can warn you of the insidious development of diseases of the heart, circulatory system, lungs, blood, thyroid, pancreas, sex glands, liver, kidneys and much more, all by simply knowing how to read the danger signals it sends out. (See page 105.)

Two easy solutions to hand and nail problems. (See page 140.)

How to save your hair. Why you must not overbrush it. The one overlooked cause of 99 per cent of all severe hair damage. A simple immediate test that tells you, for sure, the rate of hair loss. Why the wrong use of vitamins may be causing that loss. Medical methods (your husband will bless you when you show them to him) of really compensating for that ugly loss.

And Much Much More. At Last All You Need To Never Look Your Age Again! AND WE PROVE IT TO YOU WITHOUT YOUR RISKING A PENNY!

Remember! Good skin care is one of today's best bargains . . . nothing else gives you such a high return for such a small investment! But, YOU MUST BEGIN NOW! The effects of a long lifetime of neglect and abuse can NEVER BE COMPLETELY REVERSED! You owe it to yourself—and to that special man in your life—to return the No-Risk Coupon—TODAY!

MR. AND MS. ROBOT
It's so hard finding help...

The answer to a liberated woman's dreams is a robot—especially one that pours tea. The two robots shown here were invented by Viennese engineer Claus Scholz. They can answer telephones, open doors, vacuum floors, shake hands, introduce themselves and pour liquids from one container to another without spilling a drop. "But this is only the start," says Scholz. "What I eventually want to build is a machine that can virtually do any normal chore. I want to reproduce mechanically and electronically the thinking processes of the human brain to arrive at a machine that can think for itself." The drawback with these robots is that they are operated electrically and therefore must be plugged into the wall by a human being. One day Scholz hopes to invent robots that run on batteries. The question remains: Will they be able to turn themselves off—and on?

Are you shivering through the energy crisis? Doctors at the University of Iowa are questioning whether 66 to 68 degrees is as healthy for you as President Nixon and his doctors say. One study by Dr. G. Edgar Folk, Jr., a professor of physiology and biophysics, shows that people are only comfortable without covering at 81-82 degrees. This, according to Folk, is the lowest temperature at which the body maintains its basal metabolism rate, and is the only temperature at which a relaxed, naked person neither sweats nor shivers. What all this means is that the 66-68 degree temperature may be okay if you're fully clothed in a draft-free room without any humidity. But it's not necessarily the way Nature intended.

"Feeling low? Things could be worse. Take Abraham Lincoln: 1831—business failure; 1832—defeated for legislature; 1833—second failure in business; 1834—elected to legislature; 1835—fiancée died; 1836—mental breakdown; 1838—defeated for speaker; 1840—defeated for elector; 1843—defeated for Congress; 1846—elected to Congress; 1848—defeated for Congress; 1855—defeated for Senate; 1856—defeated for Vice President; 1858—defeated for Senate; 1860—elected President." From "Cheer Up: A First Aid Book For Survivors," by Peter Marshall (Hawthorn Books, $3.95). (Yes, it's the same Peter Marshall who hosts TV's "Hollywood Squares.")

DONNY OSMOND
With sister Marie, 14, and brother Jimmy, 10

It's the teenybopper idol's biggest problem: what to do when your voice begins to change. Donny Osmond, 15, is facing that problem now. Lloyd's of London may insure Betty Grable's legs or Van Cliburn's hands, but it won't insure a boy's voice—even when it's worth $1 million. Can a baritone find happiness in a tenor's world? Will girls still swoon? Will money keep rolling in? Who knows? But Donny's keeping a stiff upper tonsil. "I prefer my new voice to the old one," he said recently, as he and his family took off for six weeks' well-paid work in Las Vegas. "It's—I don't know—not as squeaky."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour

SMALL CHANGE

I haven't blushed for years and years,
It's been some time since I've shed tears.
And tantrums? I no longer throw them.
I've feelings, but I do not show them,

Except perhaps by sneer and frown
And lips that turn a little down
And eyebrows raised clear up to where
I now have scalp but once had hair.

I do not clench my fists the way
I did back in my youthful day,
But grit my teeth and bite my lips
When with the bad I come to grips.

I like to think I'm changed, superior—
But mostly it's just my exterior.

I bought my son a bicycle for his birthday and I hid it where he'll never find it—his bathtub. —Robert Orben

Recently we had company for dinner. While we were eating, our three-year-old daughter looked at them and said, "I love my mama. She can do everything. She's really smart." Her daddy said, "Well, what about me, Janis?" A puzzled look came over her face, then she replied, "Have you got a nickel?"

Our Story: THORVOLD BRINGS HIS FLEET INTO MARSEILLES TO SELL THE RESULTS OF THEIR RAIDS AGAINST THE CORSAIR TOWNS OF NORTH AFRICA. AND THEY COME IN PEACE, FOR THE MERCHANTS DO BUSINESS WITH ALL WHO COME TO BUY OR SELL AND NEVER ASK EMBARRASSING QUESTIONS.

SO THE SELLING OF THE CARGOES BEGINS. THE MERCHANTS ARE SHREWD, BUT THEIR CHEATING IS MODERATED BY FEAR OF THE NORTHMEN'S QUICK TEMPERS.

NOW THORVOLD IS FREE TO CARRY OUT LYDIA'S REQUEST TO SEARCH FOR PRINCE ARN. THE ONLY CLUE HE HAS IS THAT ARN HAD LEFT PARIS SIX MONTHS AGO RIDING SOUTH. HE RIDES NORTHWARD ON THE MAIN NORTH-SOUTH ROUTE HOPING TO MEET WITH HIS QUARRY ALONG THE WAY.

AND ABOUT THIS TIME TWO WEARY KNIGHTS RIDE INTO THE CITY OF LYONS. SIR GAWAIN AND ARN HAVE FOUGHT IN MANY TOURNAMENTS DURING THEIR JOURNEY ACROSS GAUL AND ARE BRUISED AND SCARRED AND IN NEED OF A REST.

THE PETTY TYRANT OF LYONS WELCOMES THEM. SUCH A FAMOUS KNIGHT AS GAWAIN WILL LEND GLAMOUR TO HIS COURT. THE KING IS NOT POPULAR, HAVING COME TO THE CROWN THROUGH THE SKILL OF HIS HIRED ASSASSINS AND THE JUDICIOUS USE OF POISON.

© King Features Syndicate, Inc., 1974. World rights reserved.

TO GAIN SOME POPULARITY HE IMMEDIATELY ORDERS A GRAND TOURNAMENT. THIS PLEASES HIS KNIGHTS, FOR TO WIN OVER SUCH A RENOWNED WARRIOR AS THE AGING GAWAIN WOULD MAKE THEM FAMOUS, WHILE TO BE UNHORSED WOULD NOT DAMAGE THEIR REPUTATIONS.
