

September Bicentennial Celebration Set

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
September has been set as the target date for Greenville's bicentennial celebration, Jaycee representatives reported Thursday night to the City Council.
Dick Kiernan of the Greenville chapter reported that the general feeling at a January meeting involving representatives of the Rogers

Co. of Fostoria, Ohio, members of the Council, and Jaycees was that a bicentennial affair should be held sometime this year.
Kiernan said that Rogers Co. officials, who specialize in celebrations of this nature, urged local representatives not to wait until 1976 and tie in local and national celebrations as proposed here earlier, but to plan the event in 1974.

A second meeting has been set for Feb. 20, Kiernan noted, and civic leaders, student leaders and other prominent citizens will be invited to discuss and make further plans for the celebration. Following the meeting, a bicentennial corporation would be formed here to run the celebration, the Jaycee reported. "That way the city would have no liabilities," he said, relating to the event.

The Council, acting on a request by the Jaycees, allocated $2,500 to the corporation as "seed money" to help initiate the program with specific funds going towards the purchase of commemorative coins and stationery.
Kiernan said that Rocky Mount, which also utilized the services of the Rogers Co., sold a variety of items, including coins, and were able to realize a profit from the celebration. The coins would sell for $2 and there would be a limited number of silver coins minted for sale as collector's items.

Tentative plans call for a historical pageant, which would be put on by the Rogers Co. with the help of local citizens, Kiernan added.
A third meeting would be held following the formation of the corporation, he continued, and at that time the Rogers Co. would discuss concrete plans for the celebration as well as costs. The meeting would be open to the public, Kiernan said, noting that one of the primary objectives of the event is to involve all citizens of Greenville in celebrating the city's birthday.

The Council voted to table until after a workshop session a request by the James L. Evans heirs for rezoning of property located south of Pitt Plaza and bounded on the east by N.C. 43 and on the north by the proposed Red Banks Road Extended from RA-20 to R-6 and Shopping Center.

The rezoning request has drawn heavy opposition from residents living near the proposed development area who have cited potential traffic hazards and drainage problems. At the special workshop session, the council will meet with the developers, as well as residents of nearby subdivisions, to discuss the matter.
City Manager Bill Carstarphen reported that the Regional Development Institute at East Carolina University has offered to

Felony Drug Charges For 8 In Roundup

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer
Eight persons were arrested on felony drug charges yesterday and early this morning following an undercover investigation carried out jointly by the Greenville Police Department and the State Bureau of Investigation.
Chief Glenn Cannon said the undercover operation began about two months ago.
The round-up was conducted by Greenville Police, agents of the SBI, members of the Pitt County Sheriff's Department and Beaufort County ABC officers, and began about 4 p.m. yesterday. The last arrest was made about 12:45 a.m. today.
Chief Cannon identified those taken into custody and the charges against them and their bonds as:

ECU Is Offered Bldg.

The Pitt County Board of Commissioners, in a letter addressed to ECU chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins today offered the current Pitt Memorial Hospital building to East Carolina University as a site for a degree-granting medical school.
The letter, signed by board chairman R. L. Martin, indicated that construction of a new 370-bed facility will be "vacated immediately upon occupancy of the new county hospital..." in mid-1976.
"The present county hospital is basically a sound and serviceable structure which we would like very much to continue to provide medical services for our area," Martin's letter continued.
"We feel that this hospital, as well as the approximately 30 acres of county-owned land surrounding it could be of great potential benefit to a degree-granting medical school operated by East Carolina University. We therefore wish to express our intention to make the aforementioned facility and its attendant land available to East Carolina University and the State of North Carolina if the decision is made to authorize the degree-granting medical school."
According to the letter, commissioners "will be pleased to negotiate with the proper university and state authorities... for your institution to acquire this property..."
"It will be helpful to us if you could respond to this proposed intention on the part of Pitt County as soon as possible. If our proposal is deemed non-feasible," Martin indicated, "we shall proceed immediately to continue with other plans for the use of this present hospital facility."
Commenting on the county's offer, ECU Vice-chancellor for Health Affairs Dr. Edwin Monroe said, "This expression on the part of the county authorities is welcome and exciting news."
According to Monroe, "The present hospital facilities offer great potential in the

Splashdown After 84-Day Flight Syklab Crew Is Home

ABOARD USS NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Skylab 3's astronauts came safely home from man's longest space voyage today, splashing down with pinpoint precision in the Pacific Ocean after 84 days in orbit.
The Apollo taxi ship carrying Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue, and Edward G. Gibson parachuted into thesea 3.4 miles from this recovery ship to climax a record flight which the space agency said proved "America can do anything in manned space flight that it so desires."
During nearly three months in space, the astronauts had circled the globe 1,214 times, traveled 34½ million miles and gathered a wealth of scientific and medical data on man, his earth and his solar system.
The astronauts hit gentle waters 176 miles southwest of San Diego, Calif., at 11:17 a.m. EDT after a journey of 84 days, 1 hour and 16 minutes, breaking the previous Skylab 2 record of 59½ days.
With visibility of 10 miles, hundreds of white-clad sailors on the deck of the New Orleans had a ringside view of the landing.
Helicopters were overhead almost immediately to drop frogmen into the ocean to secure

Med School Supporters Say Issue Far From Dead

RALEIGH—Legislative supporters of an expanded medical school at East Carolina University today said they feel committee action yesterday on a bill authorizing a referendum on whether the state should issue $50 million in bonds to finance a four-year medical school at the Greenville campus, will have little or no effect on the final outcome of the expansion question.
The House Finance Committee, by a vote of 24 to 29, failed to give the bill, introduced during last year's General Assembly Session by Rep. Larry Eagles, D-Edgecombe, a favorable report. The committee did not, on the other hand, vote to give the proposal an unfavorable report.
This means, according to lawmakers, that the bill was not

GM To Produce Own V-6 Engine

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. will produce its own V-6 engines again, says board chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg.
His announcement Thursday put an end to reports that the nation's No. 1 auto maker planned to purchase about 200,000 V-6 engines from American Motors Corp.
Arnold noted that a bill introduced in the General Assembly by Sen. Ralph Scott and Rep. Carl Stewart, calling for expansion at ECU, but not setting a time table "tends in the same direction as the study commission bill (which sets dates for expansion) is aimed in. That is encouraging to me...I see that as a plus," he said.
Arnold noted too, that "I would be most surprised if the Board of Governors did anything..." at a scheduled meeting today toward compromising their position as opposing any expansion at Greenville.
He said also that a meeting scheduled for Sunday between General Assembly members and officials of UNC and ECU, will probably have no effect on the expansion question.
He said the question will "get down to real fighting...and we'll

British Miners Reject Appeal

LONDON (AP) — Britain's coal miners today rejected a last-minute plea from Prime Minister Edward Heath to put off their strike until after the Feb. 28 national elections.
Union leaders decided instead to call out the nation's 280,000 miners on schedule from midnight Saturday, raising the specter of widespread electricity cuts during the three-week election campaign and paralysis of British industry by spring.
The miners' walkout is now expected to strengthen the election prospects of Heath's Conservatives who plan a campaign on the issue of who runs

Intruders Take Guns At Prison

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Two men, one with a sawed off shotgun and the other with a pistol, overpowered the two gunless guards on duty fenceless minimum security jail early today, locked them in a cell, and escaped with six hand guns.
Maj. William Ritchie, area prison administrator, said the intruders, who came on foot to the Charlotte Correctional Facility—formerly Camp Green Prison—escaped in the private truck of one of the guards.
Ritchie gave this account: The two surprised a guard as he was making his rounds at 1:30 a.m. and locked him in a cell, one of the few cells at the prison. The correctional facility is mostly a dormitory-type unit a majority of whose inmates are on work-release. The guards don't carry guns.
Then the intruders came into the office, where the sergeant of the guard was working on work-release accounts. They forced him to open a gun cabinet, from which they took six .38 caliber pistols, each of which contained about five bullets.
The safe was open, and from it the men took cash, only about $8, while disregarding work-release checks with prisoners' names on them.
Ritchie said he believed the men were after guns, not money.
They forced the sergeant to give them the keys to his truck, and put him in the cell with the guard.
A prisoner telephoned authorities.
The FBI was among agencies enlisted in the search.

Mizell Said No?

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Rep. Wilmer Mizell, R-N.C., has told key North Carolina Republicans he won't run for the Senate this fall, but will seek a fourth term in the House, the Charlotte Observer said today.
Mizell would not confirm this. He said, as he had done before, that he will announce his political plans in Winston-Salem on Monday.
If Mizell doesn't run, Republicans this Watergate year will have to find a party-unifying candidate at the last minute. The filing deadline is Feb. 25.
Gov. Jim Holshouser is among those who have said they would like to see Mizell run for the Senate.
The Senate spot opened with the announcement by Democrat Sen. Sam Ervin Jr. that he won't seek reelection.
Mizell, a former major league baseball pitcher known as "Vinegar Bend" from his birthplace in Alabama, represents the Fifth Congressional District.

Accommodating Blood Donors

The Red Cross Bloodmobile, to be here Tuesday, is changing its hours to 12 noon to 6 p.m. in order to accommodate working people who cannot attend until after 5 o'clock.
"Many, many people have told us they'd come if we stayed open after they got off work," Pitt County Red Cross Executive Secretary Mrs. Ruth Taylor said. "So we're going to give it a try."
This visit is sponsored by the Greenville Moose Lodge, which always supplies the place and facilities for the collection. It is a one-day affair, with a lofty goal—the county is already behind 266 pints and the quota for each visit is 116.

"We're really hoping to reach a lot of first-time donors," Mrs. Taylor said. "We've had to call on our regulars so much recently. The bus strike has hampered shipments of blood and plasma to Pitt Memorial from the Norfolk Blood Bank, so we've had 70 or so persons to go out to the hospital lab and give blood for special purposes in the last month.
"We're hoping it will be in our favor that the Bloodmobile has not been here for some time. Anyone who has not given in the past eight weeks is eligible to give again."

State Planning To 'Cache' Fuel

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina officials who are planning a 3.5 million gallon emergency state fuel cache for next winter say they are not hoarding supplies.
The denials came after it was reported Thursday that the state is refurbishing two storage tanks in Morehead City. The tanks are capable of holding a total of 4.5 million gallons of fuel but plans call for only 3.5 million gallons to be stored, officials said.
"We're not taking any oil away from any private citizen or industry," said Arthur W. Allers of the state's purchasing office. "We're not hoarding."
"We did not want to take steps that would look like we were trying to hoard oil," said Jimmy A. Morris of the Department of Administration. "I

Railroad Car Sowed Wheat

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — More than 191 miles of wheat stretches along a Seaboard Coastline railroad line and crews say that the row was all sowed by a train.

The railroadmen call the route from Birmingham, Ala., to Manchester, Ga., the greenest, most beautiful track in the world.

A spokesman for the railroad said apparently one or more cars carrying wheat sprung a leak and sowed the grain.

He said the planting was done by a nonstop train because the row is the same width along the track, except a little thicker where the train slowed down at crossings and towns.

Pediatric Nurse Practitioner On Job

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

Alison Armstrong is Eastern North Carolina's first pediatric nurse practitioner and she's working at the Pitt County

Community Health Department. An "Army brat" who calls Atlanta, Ga. home, she earned her B. S. in Nursing at the University of Maryland, and then served three years as an Army nurse, working pediatrics the entire time.

Her pediatric practitioner work was done at the University of Virginia at Charlottesville, and this is her first job since her school was completed.

"You can tell more about a child when he's well than you can when he's sick, which is usually when the pediatrician sees him," she said.

The thrust of public health is, of course, prevention, Miss Armstrong's main work is well-child care and anticipatory guidance of parents in keeping their children well. "Alison's has much mobility built in, "Personal Health Division director Mrs. Theresa Lawler said." She will work with practically every area of the health department's work that is concerned with children. She'll be doing everything from preliminary development evaluations of children to teaching good health practices in the school and kindergartens."

"Early detection of problems is our aim," Mrs. Lawler said. "Alison can tell a lot about a two-month-old baby as to how his motor control and his attention is developing. Often problems can be corrected before they're far along, saving all kinds of heartache for the parent and suffering for the child later on."

"Any child in the county is eligible for this service," she emphasized.

A new and innovative program that will be Alison's "baby" is that of following high risk infants, as identified by the Pitt Memorial Hospital, where most Pitt County babies are born. This is again a way of dealing with many problems while they're still new, and sometimes small, and preventing physical, emotional, and learning handicaps in the future. High risk includes premature and post-mature babies, ones that are small for their gestational age, and ones born to mothers with a history of previous infant loss or with medical problems such as diabetes or blood incompatibility.

Prisoners Exchanged By Saigon And Viet Cong

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer
SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The South Vietnamese government and the Viet Cong resumed exchange of civilian and military prisoners today after a six-month suspension.

The Saigon government handed over 199 civilians at Loc Ninh, the Viet Cong headquarters 75 miles north of the South Vietnamese capital. Saigon said it would turn over more on Monday.

The Viet Cong are scheduled to release their first group of prisoners Tuesday at sites in the central highlands and on the northern coast.

The four-nation International Commission of Control and Supervision said in a statement that resumption of the prisoner exchange was a significant step in the implementation of the Paris peace agreement.

The agreement called for the exchange of prisoners to be completed by last April, but it was delayed by continual disputes over procedure, how many prisoners were held and who should be freed.

Prior to the suspension in July, Saigon had freed 26,408 troops and 1,575 civilians, while the Viet Cong had delivered 5,018 military personnel and 413 civilians.

Saigon now is pledged to release 3,506 more civilians and 33 military personnel by March 1 in exchange for 224 civilians and 410 military men from the Viet Cong.

No other major provisions of the Paris agreement have been implemented, and fighting continues across South Vietnam.

American and Vietnamese personnel flew from Saigon to Hanoi for the first time in five weeks to continue discussion of arrangements for the return to the United States of American servicemen who died as prisoners of war. The weekly liaison flights to the North Vietnamese had been suspended since Jan. 11. The United States blamed the weather; the North Vietnamese said this was a "groundless" excuse.

In Phnom Penh, the Cambodian military command claimed its forces cleared the Khmer Rouge rebels from two miles of the east bank of the Bassac river five to seven miles southeast of the capital and killed 25 of the insurgents.

Rockefeller Donates Art

NEW YORK (AP) — John D. Rockefeller III is giving the Asua Society a collection of Asian art valued at $10 million to $15 million.

"After being involved in three land wars in Asia in one generation, we Americans must seek afresh to develop understanding and cooperation with the two-thirds of the human family who live in Asia," Rockefeller told a news conference Thursday.

Phillips Talbot, president of the cultural society based in New York, said the collection consists of several hundred pieces from mainly four Asian cultures — Indian, Chinese, Japanese and Khmer Cambodian. He said the collection includes paintings, pottery, ceramics and sculpture, in stone, bronze and wood.

Mrs. Alioto Campaigning

VALLEJO, Calif. (AP) — San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto has a new sidekick on the campaign trail — his wife.

Angelina Alioto was reunited with her husband this week after an 18-day disappearance, the purpose of which she said was to "punish" her husband for ignoring her. She disclosed later she had vanished on a pilgrimage of California missions.

"At an affair where my husband is honored, I just want to be introduced," Mrs. Alioto said during a question and answer session before the Junior Chamber of Commerce here Thursday. Alioto was to have given a speech, but instead discussed his marriage.

Campaign aides believe Mrs. Alioto's disappearance may prove a boon to the mayor's bid for governor.

"We've had calls from a great lot of women who are fantastically interested in Mrs. Alioto," said Charles O'Brien, campaign manager. "They want her to be part of the campaign. She is going to be part of the campaign."

Volunteer Work Leads To Career For This Housewife

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—A funny thing happened to suburban housewife Mary MacCracken on her way to check out volunteer job possibilities for her Junior League at a school for emotionally disturbed children. Although as placement chairman she was exempt from the "worthwhile work" required of other members, she took the job herself. And that decision eventually led to a career as teacher of learning-disabled children for the woman who had left college at 19 to marry. "When I walked in the door and saw the children it was one of those spooky experiences, as though I had been there before. I felt at home and knew that I had to work there," recalls the Wellesley dropout who now has a bachelor's degree in special education and a master's in learning disabilities. She started as a teacher's aide, learning how to deal with children who are not retarded but who function far below their age level and are out of touch with reality. "These are seriously emotionally disturbed children, autistic, schizophrenic children," explains Mrs. MacCracken, who adds that they fall into two broad categories. "The very withdrawn child turns away from people and is fascinated with things. The hyperactive child has a very short attention span, uncontrollable rages, is destructive and aggressive. "Unlike retarded children who are usually loving and welcoming, they are unable to give and take friendship and love," she continues. "Because they have such bizarre behavior and are hard to control they don't have the opportunity to mix with other children. They have eating problems, communication problems, all the kinds of problems of children reared in isolation without exposure to the social graces." When one of the teachers was injured in an automobile accident the director of the school asked Mrs. MacCracken to serve as a substitute. "This was the lowest functioning class in the school," notes Mrs. MacCracken, who has just written a book about her experiences there, "A Circle of Children." She was in charge of four boys, age 5 to 8, all nonverbal, all nonverbal, one still drinking from a bottle. "Although I'd had no formal training, I'd had my own children and I guess I knew instinctively that you had to work in very small steps," she says. "These children needed to feel success because they'd had so many failures." She went to work first on the "social things," such as motivating them to dress and to eat. "If they could do that then their parents would be able to take them out of the house and they wouldn't be so trapped. I've always believed in academics, but there's no point in teaching academic skills until the child can survive in society." The four children, including one who up till then had subsisted on only crackers and chocolate milk, learned to eat with implements. Two became fully toilet trained, and two learned to speak. "The untrained teacher thinks all things are possible. I didn't know they couldn't be taught so I went on and did it," she laughs. "It didn't seem to me that these children were so different. They were just more so. The immense rage they feel we all feel but to a lesser degree." After the regular teacher came back the director asked Mrs. MacCracken if she would like to teach fulltime. She agreed and began taking special education courses at night in college. Though she gained new insights, she thought the professors put too much emphasis on such formalities as lesson plans. "If you have four nonverbal children, what do you need a lesson plan for?" she asks. "You need as much knowledge and training as you can get, but you have to have more than just a degree. You need a strong back, a commitment, a sense of humor and a listening heart. You have to be able to listen to the child even if he doesn't talk. The only way to reach him is to turn up your own volume and cut through the veneer of isolation."

Children's Book Changes Proceed

By BETTY BOOKER LUCE
Times-Dispatch Writer
RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Sympathizers with the women's movement say a giant step will be taken when children's rhymes no longer present girls like frightened Miss Muffet, Lazy Mary and disorganized Bo-Peep. But the change toward non-sexist children's literature—in which girls think and act and boys care and feel—is proceeding by baby steps. "As a rule, books haven't changed very much," said Mrs. Betty Swyers, children's literature instructor at Virginia Commonwealth University. "Where the change is seen is in books that are being written by women authors, who are writing about girls. It is going to take six months to a year at least before the public becomes aware that there are alternatives to the good old faithfuls, and parents can choose books in which girls are doing their thing." A survey by one of her classes showed that certain readers "are definitely sexist, where mothers stay at home and fathers go to work, and biographies and social studies books deal primarily with men." This trend carries over into the books chosen for home reading. "People are afraid, I guess," Mrs. Swyers commented, "of the books that change the traditional roles. Our survey showed that if girls were called tomboys, their mothers said, 'It's just a phase.'" "But if boys were called sissies, the mothers became determined to teach them to be a man. They were very defensive about what they thought to be effeminate traits in boys." What the new "liberated" books deal with primarily are human feelings and situations, dealt with by both boys and girls, or genderless animals. "I don't believe anyone is deliberately setting out to change roles in books," Mrs. Swyers said. "But what is obvious to anyone who takes a good look at some of the children's books is that there are some real injustices—both to men and women."

Make Decision Concerning Son After Treatment

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am 21 and my husband is 36. We've been married for two years and have a 3-month-old boy. When the baby was only a month old I had trouble with my nerves, so Children's Service took him from us. They still have him, and I'm still being treated for my nerves.

I hate to say this, but I'm afraid if the baby comes back it is going to interfere with our life. Every time we want to go someplace we have to worry about getting a baby sitter, and baby sitters don't come cheap.

Besides, we just bought a new mobile home, and the expense of that plus caring for the baby just don't fit our budget.

Maybe I'm not ready to settle down yet. I feel terrible telling you all this, but you said, "If you have a problem, you'll feel better if you get it off your chest," so I did. Can you help me? FEELS BETTER

DEAR FEELS: Don't make any decisions now. When you have finished with your treatment, you may feel entirely different. God bless you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for 10 years and have two children. My life is my husband, home and family, but I know that my husband isn't as turned on sexually with me as he should be. [I have to make all the advances.]

Lately, he shocked me by telling me that when we make love, he has fantasies about Sylvia—the girl he went with all thru college. He says that's the only thing that turns him on. I feel hurt knowing he has to think of another girl to get something out of making love to me.

I've never had sex with anyone except my husband and I wouldn't want to have.

I feel somehow that he is being "disloyal" to me, if not in actuality, in his thoughts. I also feel if Sylvia were to become available, he would have an affair with her.

Sometimes I wish he weren't so honest. I am so confused, I need someone to explain this whole thing to me. PLEASE TRY. NOT SYLVIA

DEAR NOT: Almost everyone has fantasies. They are an important part of lovemaking. But it's unkind and unwise to disclose fantasies which are hurtful. Your husband may rate an "A" in honesty, but he flunks "common sense."

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago our daughter was married. We invited 150 guests to her wedding. After checking all the wedding gifts, we found that we did not receive a gift from one of the couples who attended the wedding.

How does one go about finding out whether a gift was given or not? We don't want to embarrass anyone. WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: I can't imagine anything more tasteless than asking someone if he brought a gift or not. Just assume that you got a pretty good return on your investment, and let it go at that.

Bill Poses Menacing Principal

A bill has passed the North Carolina Senate and is now headed for House action to prohibit the identification of rape victims by name in the news media.

More than a year ago The Daily Reflector adopted a policy of not identifying rape victims. Since that is now our policy we would probably not be affected by the Legislative bill. Still, we consider this a bad bill, or as William Lassiter, attorney for the N.C. Press Association puts it, "a terrible bill."

It puts government in the business of preventing by law the news media from using something that is included in a legally drawn warrant, and something that will be heard in open court. We feel this bill violates the Constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

If this law can be passed by the Legislature, then the same principle could be extended to other areas of news coverage of court proceedings.

The concept of public warrants and open proceedings in our courts comes to us through a long heritage. There have been times when our ancestors could be dragged out of their homes, tried and jailed without their family or friends even knowing what they were charged with. It still happens in some nations.

Even though there are valid arguments for not identifying victims in rape cases, we should pass no laws which compromise the principles of freedom of the information, public trial and full disclosure of court proceedings.

Groundbreaking Next For A New Hospital

It's official, now. Pitt County officials met in Raleigh this week to sign contracts for construction of a new Pitt Memorial Hospital and an agreement for a $2 million HEW loan.

Ground breaking for the $15.84 million structure will be held Feb. 14 and a major new medical facility will be under construction.

The uniquely designed hospital should be something that all of us can view with pride.

Sees Roots In Learning-Lack

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—There may be a pattern to kids who get into trouble, drop out of school, defy authority, and wind up in jail, Rep. E. Graham Bell, D-Gaston, believes.

The problem may lie in learning disabilities—mental, emotional or physical problems which are going unrecognized and unmet in the public schools, he feels.

Bell wants to run a controlled testing program at a youth center of the prisons to find out how many of the youngsters there may be suffering from any of the broad range of learning disabilities.

Then, Bell says, intensified training programs could be used in the youth camp to correct the problem for a control group and see what effect that has down the road on repeat criminal violations, and the ability of the individuals to overcome their problems.

"Ideally, of course, the long-range hope is to screen children coming into the schools at the kindergarten level—even sooner—to spot those problems and design programs to meet their needs.

"I'm convinced that the dropout rate, for one thing, is driven up by the problems these children have in school," Bell said.

Schools Fail
Bell is concerned over the failure of special education efforts in public schools today, pointing out that many kids with such handicaps as dyslexia, hyperkineticism, hearing or sight difficulties and other correctable conditions are being labeled retarded.

"Because of a lack of testing, lack of qualified personnel, and a lack of programs, many of these children are being put into mentally retarded classes.

"Now that's an emotional strain on them. They wear a tag, depression sets in. They aren't motivated or understood, and further decline sets in.

"Those children are destined to become mental cases—future social problems," Bell believes.

The Gaston representative is convinced, from contacts with his district and the mood of members of the General Assembly, that state efforts to meet the needs of exceptional children will become a major issue in the 1975 General Assembly.

Recent studies show that perhaps 46 per cent of the school kids in North Carolina have some form of learning disability—either mental, emotional, or physical. There is a growing public concern and acceptance of this, and growing willingness of parents to recognize such problems rather than attempting to hide them as was the practice in the past, those close to the situation agree.

Bell has taken a close look at an innovative program operated at St. Michael's private school in Gastonia. In a closely monitored reading program there, students showed net gains of an average 1.2 years in reading abilities in a few months. Some increased over three grade levels in that program.

Some Ideas
Bell feels the public schools are largely either ignoring the problems or are not equipped to meet them, and has some ideas on how to tackle that.

He is studying the situation with an eye to measures which would bring to North Carolina top experts to set up testing procedures and plan programs in the schools.

Teacher training of people equipped in special education must be beefed up, and parents and volunteers taught to help in one-on-one tutoring, he said.

The early screening and identification is essential, Bell said, and the programs resulting from the study should be implemented in the normal school routine, with exceptional children remaining in normal classrooms except for the special periods daily when the intensified training program is implemented.

But to make this work will require wholehearted backing of educators and state officials. To guarantee that, Bell has drafted a legislative proposal to set up an advisory council on educational services for exceptional children with members from the Senate, the House, appointed by the governor, and including parents of school-age children.

The object: hear citizen complaints, review problems, and monitor the actions and programs of the State Department of Public Instruction.

Politics Could Destroy Simon

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — A sure sign that the brief, frantic honeymoon is over for federal energy czar William Simon came last Friday when Ronald Ziegler, President Nixon's press secretary and most intimate adviser, telephoned Simon's office sizzling with anger.

Ziegler demanded a transcript of the press conference held that day by John Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office (FEO), warning that the country cannot "break the back of the energy crisis" this year—contradicting Mr. Nixon's State of the Union hyperbole two days earlier. To the White House praetorian guard, this symbolized an independence at FEO intolerable to their demands for team-effort conformity.

There are other signs the bloom is off Simon's rose: flagging morale at FEO reflected by the departure of two key aides; Simon's power struggle against both the White House and the Office of Management and Budget (OMB); and—most important—those long lines of angry motorists at gasoline stations.

Although no one claims anybody else could have done as well as the supercharged Simon, it is now clear he is only human—a czar, perhaps, but certainly no wizard. He is entangled in Byzantine mysteries of the oil industry and palace politics of the Nixon White House.

Even in the fallen, post-Watergate Nixon administration, the same animus that forced out competent but independent officials such as Secretary of Commerce Peter Peterson and White House aide Robert Ellsworth may be near the point of consuming Simon.

Actually, Simon's biggest problem is more substantive than political. He and his staff are baffled about how to shift gasoline supplies from parts of the South and Great Plains to the big cities, particularly in the Northeast, where long lines at service stations make for short tempers. Although Simon once vowed such lines would bring coupon rationing, that is now unlikely, thanks to grass roots anti-rationing sentiment.

The one easy corrective—switch refineries to more gasoline and less fuel oil—is under consideration. But even Simon's allies in Capitol Hill think he is being too cautious about possible cold weather and should have moved last week, since the lead time for the switch is around one month. Even if he had, the predictable rise in gasoline demand in April would still have left supplies short.

That sense of futility contributes to the declining esprit de corps at FEO which was so high Dec. 4 when Simon replaced slow-moving former Gov. John Love of Colorado. His exhausted aides have soured on seven-day weeks, 7 a.m. staff meetings and endless night-time conferences.

Since they now question whether all this work is accomplishing much, middle-level officials are starting to quit. So are some top officials, including assistant administrator John Hill, who has returned to OMB. Frank Zarb, head of FEO's allocations office, has returned to OMB as originally scheduled, but bureaucrats feel he would have stayed had all gone well.

Although Simon has been resourceful in whipping bureaucratic rivals, overall energy policy remains a three-cornered struggle between him, OMB and the White House. For example, Simon had to bow reluctantly to White House demands for political clearance of super grade FEO bureaucrats.

The system broke down recently, however, when Simon selected John Harper, a conservative Georgia Democrat with impressive credentials on Capitol Hill, as FEO's congressional lobbyist—without asking White House clearance. On Jan. 24, Harper resigned as lobbyist for the National Assn. of Electric Companies. But Republican leaders in Congress complained to the White House that they wanted a Republican. So, the White House is ready to veto Harper, blaming Simon for cutting corners.

Private grumbling at the White House about Simon is faintly reminiscent of complaints there in late 1972 that Pete Peterson was too big for his britches. Noting the comic strip "Doodlesbury" satirizing Simon as a despotic czar in the Russian imperial tradition, one presidential aide notes: "Whoever draws that must know Bill Simon."

But Simon still has important assets, including bipartisan congressional supporters who fear any alternative would be much worse. Moreover, the salad days of the Haldeman-Ehrlichman palace guard, when any outsider was susceptible to sudden decapitation, ended with Watergate.

Strength For Today

LOVE IN THE WORLD
If you have love in your life, you have everything. This statement may seem to be both trite and exaggerated, but there is a great deal of truth to it. Newspapers and the media bring to us every day all the things in the world which are anti-love—wars, assassinations, political turmoil, divorce. But love has by no means such a good press. We hear or read little about the thousands of men and women who love each other so deeply that they in effect live for the other. Some friendships have this quality about them, also the love which parents have for children in well-integrated families.

These people know by experience that when they have love they have everything. The person who derides the statement simply does not know what he is talking about because he has never experienced love in this fashion. Love is the only way one can understand God. As Christ said, "Love is of God, and everyone who loveth is born of God and knoweth God."

Watergate Is For Real

WASHINGTON—Is Watergate a hoax to take our minds off the energy crisis? Dr. Heinrich Applebaum, who keeps tabs on the Watergate industry, maintains it is not.
"The Watergate crisis is for real, in spite of what President Nixon says. In fact, it is so serious that I am advocating the only way to handle it is to appoint a Watergate czar whose functions would be similar to those of William Simon, the energy czar."

"What would he do?" I asked.
"He would make sure we would never run out of Watergate material. For example, the czar would have the power to allocate Watergate indictments so every state would get a piece of the action. At the moment, most barrels of indictments are being shipped to Washington, D. C., New York, Florida and California. The special prosecutor's office seems to be supplying only their favored customers, and this is causing extreme hardship in the Middle West where farmers and truck drivers were depending on Watergate to get them through the winter."

"You do need a czar to straighten that out," I conceded.

"One of the problems with the Watergate crisis is that nobody knows how many barrels of indictments the country has on hand. The only figures the Administration has seen are the ones printed in The Washington Post. The czar would have the authority to demand from the special prosecutor's office a daily report on the number of crude indictments it has stocked up, as against the refined indictments which are ready for trial.

"Dealing with the shortage of White House tapes would also be under the czar's direction," Dr. Applebaum said. "One of the reasons for the shortage is that the President's lawyers have put an embargo on the tapes until Congress goes back to the cease-fire lines of 1972."
"Another reason," said Applebaum, "is that the President thought he had more tapes than he really did. There was a shortfall of more than 100 tons of White House tapes, and this actually triggered the crisis. Because of new demands for the tapes from Congress and grand juries, many people believed Nixon was withholding the tapes so he could jack up the price on them."
"How would you solve that one?" I asked.

"The czar would have White House tape ration stamps printed. Each grand jury and congressional committee would be allotted 10 tapes a week. If they didn't use up their allotment, they could sell their stamps to another grand jury. This would be an equitable way of guaranteeing everyone would have enough tapes to get through the month."

Dr. Applebaum said, "The czar would also deal with the windfall profits that are being made by lawyers off the Watergate crisis. Some people have said that Watergate was created by the lawyers to double and triple their earnings in 1973 and 1974. But the lawyers have denied this and say that most of the money they have made on Watergate has been

Office Giving Traits

NEW YORK (AP) — You never really know what the human herd is like until you take up an office collection.

Suppose, for example, that Millicent, the plump little girl in the stenographic pool, has just had a baby and you have been drafted into trying to pry a buck apiece out of the other hired hands in the office to buy the kid a present.

Here is a typical sampling of the remarks that greet you:

- "See me payday."
- "Count me out on moral principles. I'm against the birth explosion. If we start rewarding babies for being born, we'll be up to our armpits in them."
- "I'll give the baby a buck when the father gives me a cigar — and not until then."
- "Nobody gave me money for being born. They just stole the pewter spoon out of my mouth."
- "See me payday after next."
- "When I first came here 40 years ago, the only thing they took up office collections for was the widow when one of the old-timers died. Today they take up a collection to buy flowers for a guy if he stays home from work two days because his sinuses are clogged."
- "Pass me on this one. I've got six children of my own at home to buy presents for every other Christmas if I can make it."
- "Here's my buck. Any kid crazy enough to be born in these times needs all the help he can get."
- "When are you going to take up a collection for me? I've been working for this sweat-

40 Years Ago Today

By SUSAN PRICE
February 8, 1934

Police today were seeking what they described as an "amateur" burglar who last night made an unsuccessful attempt to enter the safe at Blades Motor Company on Washington St.

Believed to have entered the building through a rear window, the thief battered off the hinges of the safe before giving up the job as a bad one.

The safe, N.C. Brooks, manager of the firm said, was damaged to the extent of $50 or more.

Work on the resurfacing of Dickinson Avenue and Fifth Streets is expected to get underway within the next several days, it was stated here today.

The State Highway and Public Works Department at Raleigh yesterday called for bids on several projects including the projects here.

Bids will be returned by February 15 and contracts will be awarded shortly afterward.

The Junior Woman's club will meet in the Woman's building Friday at 3:30 with Miss Agnes Fullilove, Mrs. Norman Winslow and Mrs. Thomas Clifton as hostesses.

Other Editors Say We Must Learn

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

There is no question that most of us learn from the hard knocks of life. But when it comes to making changes in the U. S. medical system, it is imperative that we make the effort to learn from the experience of others.

We have watched the physicians of nation after nation become bogged down under the bureaucratic red tape, paperwork and regimentation of state-run medicine. We have seen the deprofessionalization of the doctor-patient relationship which a government-controlled system demands.

Though some form of national health care in the U. S. is inevitable, degradation of medical quality and service is not. And for the best interests of society as a whole, the present high standards must be maintained.

The threat of socialism by whatever euphemism you may label it runs not only to the private practice of medicine but also to every facet of American life.

Still, there seems to be a growing segment of our people—not just the young—who, because they don't understand the full significance of the issue, feel private medicine and enterprise are evil.

These same people would understand what real evil is if they were to be saddled with socialized medicine, or with a state-controlled economy. One has only to note the problems facing Britain and understand that.

It has been noted that the quality of medical care has never been better despite the growing demands for such care throughout the country.
A drastic overhaul of the present U. S. health care system, at this point, would be totally illogical.
We should strive to improve U. S. medicine by building on its strengths and capacity for innovative change and problem-solving. That's the only way Americans can hope to receive the best there is in medical care in the years to come.

Nixon Revises Budgetary View

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — For President Nixon, campaign time is at hand. That may be one of the reasons for the shift in tone and emphasis in his new federal budget.

One year ago, the President was warning Congress against too much spending, saying that he spoke the expressed will of the people with his demand for federal austerity.

Now he is talking of flexibility, and of busting the budget himself if that is what it takes to prevent a serious economic downturn.

His campaign is one of persuasion, with Congress and the public, as he seeks to end the Watergate case and vows to fight impeachment if it comes to that. It has to do with an issue, rather than an election. That comes later, in congressional balloting next fall.

In the current situation, he can hardly afford to see the economy lag into recession. New economic woes could only make his situation more difficult. For, properly or not, the climate of national opinion about the President will be a factor as the House considers possible impeachment proceedings.

And Nixon has experienced more than once the impact of economic recession on political opinion.

In recommending a $304.4-billion budget to Congress, he said the administration is prepared "to take further action, if needed, to offset the effects of energy shortages" on the economy. For action, read spending.

A year ago, Nixon's budget message was a blunt lecture to Congress against spending increases and for a "change in direction demanded by the great majority of the American people."

He urged a rigid budget ceiling of $267.7 billion. Actually, spending is exceeding that figure by about $6 billion.

There is no such ceiling in the new federal budget. Nor is the White House threatening the impoundment of appropriations it does not want spent.

The withholding of past congressional appropriations is one of the areas under study by the House Judiciary Committee in its current impeachment inquiry.

Inflation was the prime economic problem early in 1973. Since then, it has worsened, the energy crisis has hit, and there is now a threat of recession.

Recession under a Republican administration was one of the problems he encountered when he first ran for president, and lost by a narrow margin, in 1960. Two years earlier, as vice president, he carried much of the campaign burden during a recession year, and saw GOP congressional candidates take a drubbing. After a 1970 economic downturn, he made clear his intention to go into the 1972 presidential campaign with economic growth restored and employment increasing.

Now, once again, there appears to be a meeting of two of the most inexact of sciences: economics and politics.

"While this may be true, the public is very suspicious of the law industry these days, and the czar would have to recommend an excess profits tax to make sure lawyers don't benefit from Watergate at the expense of the rest of the country."

Dr. Applebaum believes although the crisis is real there is still enough

Watergate evidence in the country to implicate everyone.

"When you add up the Democratic headquarters break-in, the ITT and milk fund scandals, mass perjury by Administration officials, the Howard Hughes donation, the erasure of White House tapes, the President's questionable tax returns and the impeachment proceedings, we have enough gallons of Watergate for every man, woman and child in the country, providing the czar bans all Sunday buggings."

Holshouser Urging ABC Warehouse

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser has urged North Carolina legislators to approve pending legislation which would authorize a new state Alcoholic Beverage Control (ABC) warehouse.

"Your support of the new warehouse proposal is urgently needed if we are to maintain the kind of control that I know you want for our alcoholic beverage control system," Holshouser said Thursday in a letter to members of the General Assembly.

The governor's plea followed a report that more than 20,000 bottles of liquor have been broken at the present state ABC warehouse and that hundreds of bottles are unaccounted for.

So, Wilbanks hung an alarm clock on one end of the sign and a thermometer on the other. Anyone who wants to climb a stepladder can get the time and temperature.

Psychiatrist Reminds 'Sin' Is Real Concept

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — One of America's greatest psychiatrists, Dr. Karl Menninger, says the old religious word, "sin," has almost disappeared from modern usage, but it remains a fact of the human condition that must be recognized to deal with it.

He says the realities of personal "guilt and sin" have been glossed over as only symptoms of emotional illness or environmental conditioning for which the individual isn't considered responsible, but he adds:

"There is 'sin' ... which cannot be subsumed under verbal artifacts such as 'disease,' 'delinquency,' 'deviancy.' There is immorality. There is unethical behavior. There is wrongdoing."

He calls for a reaffirmation of the concept of "sin" and of personal responsibility for it. In a new book published by Hawthorne called "Whatever Became of Sin?" he declares:

"If the concept of personal responsibility and answerability for ourselves and for others were to return to common acceptance, hope would return to the world with it."

Menninger, who pioneered psychiatry in this country and who founded the psychiatric center in Topeka, Kan., that bears his name, says the "sense of personal moral responsibility is faint and apparently growing fainter."

Challenging the views of such behavioral scientists as Harvard's B.F. Skinner that individual acts always are determined by environmental or physical conditions, Menninger cites experimental evidence to the contrary, and declares:

"There is always some environmental determination and always some individual determination and it is improper to exclude either."

But he adds that the present popular attitude appears to be that "in the courtroom, everyone is responsible. Elsewhere, almost no one seems to be."

He says recognizing the fact of voluntarily willed sin is "the only hopeful view," since it implies the possibility of repenting and correcting it. He adds:

"The logical, reasonable, effective solution for tension reduction in such circumstances is to make atonement, as the theologians call it, or as we say, by restitution, acknowledgment and revised tactics."

The result, he says, "would not be more depression, but less."

He says psychoanalysts don't use the word "sin" because of its "strong reproachful quality," but they believe that qualities of aggression and self-destruction are evil because they oppose the life principle.

He suggests the word "hate" as the composite term for "sin," and adds: "In terms of action, the long-term consequences of hate are self-destruction. Thus the wages of sin really are death."

Disappearance Is Unexplained

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One month ago today, comedian Sandy Baron checked out of the Essex House Hotel in New York. He walked out the door and hasn't been heard from since.

Baron's estranged wife and business associates are unable to explain his Jan. 8 disappearance but they believe he is hiding out somewhere.

Baron, 37, who costarred on television's "The Della Reese Show" and toured nationally as Lenny Bruce in the play "Lenny," reportedly had been depressed for more than six months because of the breakup of his marriage and other reasons.

Dentist Says Diet Is Culprit In Tooth Decay

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

"Tooth decay is not normal or natural. It does not 'just happen.' It is caused by our putting too much of the wrong fuel into our body and by our failure to put enough of the right fuel into our body."

This quote from a handout given to every one of his patients by Dr. Woody Mason of Wilson sums up the reasoning behind the theme of this year's "Children's Dental Health Week"—"Kick The Sweet Snack Habit."

Although there are many other minuses in the "typical American child's" diet, the No. 1 culprit, according to Pitt County Schools dentist Dr. Joseph Donahoe, is sucrose—refined sugar—and the hundred of items made from sugar or having it as an ingredient.

"I teach the school children that prevention of dental disease can be accomplished by two methods," Dr. Donahoe said. "Either they can floss and brush so as to clean all the surfaces of the teeth every day or else they can eliminate sweets from the diet. The ideal, of course, is to do both. Since very, very few people are going to absolutely eliminate sweets, the flossing and brushing is most desirable."

"Even if one does have sweets for dessert, though, it would be most advantageous to 'Kick the Sweet Snack Habit,' as the theme says."

He called the non-dietetic drink, "probably the worst snack of all." A six-ounce soft drink contains about four or five teaspoons of sugar plus water, phosphoric acid, and artificial coloring and coloring," he said. "The diet ones effect on the teeth probably is nil, he said, not too harmful, but certainly not helpful."

If one does have a sweet snack, though, Dr. Donahoe recommended rinsing out the mouth with water immediately afterward. "Most of the damage done by sugar takes place during the first 30 minutes after it is placed in the mouth," he said. "Digestion begins in the mouth, you know, so the breaking down of the sugar is done almost at once as the first step in the process."

"Knowing that it's all part of the digestive process also helps explain why sucrose is so harmful," he went on. "It's broken down much quicker than the fructose in fruit or the form of sugar that honey is. The reason is that the refined sugar molecule is so small, it can be used by the germ for good immediately. Natural sugars, in contrast, would have to be left in the mouth for days before the enzymes of the mouth could break them down to a size small enough for the germs to digest."

"Another reason for eliminating sweets is that the high caloric value of the items having sugar satisfying hunger that should be met with food providing vitamin and minerals, as well as energy.

"Another reason for eliminating sweets is that the high caloric value of items having sugar satisfies hunger that should be met with food providing vitamin and minerals, as well as energy. Sugar provides no nutrients whatsoever."

"And the thing about sugar providing quick energy is a fallacy," he said. "It takes at least four hours for it to be metabolized, so it could be used at all."

"Eating sweets is a matter of habit," he said. "Our society has fostered the 'Sweet is Good' idea, and our vending machines and our party menus have added to the problem. My mother made us believe that soft drinks were as bad as Demon Rum and that a dessert was something to be had only occasionally. My wife and I are following the same idea."

"I know parents are hampered by all the junk children are exposed to, but they should discourage sugar-laden foods at home. It's not just the child's dental health involved but his lifelong general health as well," he said.

Man or Statue?

Today we see Lincoln in heroic size. He appears almost more of a statue than a man—a great figure cast in bronze, with a furrowed brow and solemn countenance.

Yet Lincoln was a man. He walked the earth, and felt love and joy, but he knew tremendous frustration and almost insurmountable sorrow. He prayed, earnestly and effectively.

Throughout each crisis in his life, and there were many, he was sustained by faith. God seemed close to him, and he turned to Him often. He didn't pause to think about whether he'd go to church or not. He went.

Do you?

Panama Is Pledged A Real Marvel In Skylab 'Return' Of Canal

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
Associated Press Writer
PANAMA CITY (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has pledged that the United States will eventually return the Canal Zone to Panama and will launch a major new commitment to the Western Hemisphere.

He spent 10 hours flying from Washington to Panama and back Thursday to spend five hours here to sign an agreement on principles that would govern the negotiation of a new canal treaty. The treaty eventually would return complete control of the canal to Panama.

But his remarks after the signing ceremony, televised live in 15 Latin American countries, were aimed mainly at the meeting in Mexico City later this month of Western Hemisphere foreign ministers.

"I have come here to tell you on behalf of our President that we are now fully committed to a major effort to build a vital Western Hemisphere community," he said.

He used the agreement with Panama as an example of how such a community could work. "It can be the first step toward a new era which we believe will be given fresh hope and purpose when we meet again with the foreign ministers of all the hemisphere."

The agreement shows "that Panama's sovereignty and the vital interests of the United States in the Panama Canal can be made compatible," he said. The principles state that the new treaty, yet to be negotiated, will phase out rather than eliminate immediately U.S. jurisdiction over the 10-mile-wide Canal Zone that bisects this nation.

But otherwise, Kissinger laid out few details of the "new era" in his speech, which made no mention of the Organization of American States or the Al-

Underground Terrorist Group Says It's Holding Hearst Girl

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — An underground terrorist group says it is holding kidnaped Patricia Hearst as a prisoner and will execute the newspaper heiress if efforts are made to rescue her.

An anxious Hearst family awaited further word from the mysterious Symbionese Liberation Army, which claimed responsibility for the abduction in a communique Thursday. The group offered a gasoline credit card belonging to the girl's father as proof that it held the 19-year-old coed as a "prisoner of war."

The girl's father is Randolph A. Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner. The group's communique called him "a corporate enemy of the people."

Hearst said, "If this is a political problem it may become very, very difficult."

In the letter Thursday to Berkeley radio station KPFA, the radical group claimed the girl was alive and unharmed. But it added:

"Should any attempt be made by authorities to rescue the prisoner, or to arrest or harm any S.L.A. elements, the prisoner is to be executed."

Hearst said he believed his daughter was alive.

Miss Hearst, a University of California student, was kidnaped Monday night from her Berkeley townhouse in a flurry of gunfire.

The same group has said it was responsible for the cyanide-bullet assassination last November of the black superin-

Morehead City A Port Of Call

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Regular steamship service will soon be resumed for the first time since 1967 at the Morehead City port, officials announced Thursday.

Capt. Lindolfo Dos Santos of Lloyd Brasileiro Steamship Lines of Brazil told a Raleigh news conference that his company has decided to make Morehead City a port of call.

Santos had been in the state for several days, visiting the port and meeting with Jack Hawke, deputy secretary of transportation.

Santos later left for the company's New York City office, where final scheduling arrangements will be made. Santos said a schedule will be published in about two weeks.

Priority Given To New Bomber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force has given top budget priority to a program to develop the B1 strategic bomber.

Testifying Thursday before the Senate Armed Services Committee, Air Force Secretary John L. McLucas said the role of the bomber has acquired increasing importance to the United States as the Soviet Union continues to develop new and improved missiles.

He asked approval of $499 million for the B1 bomber next year. The expenditure would be part of an overall $27.4 billion Air Force budget.

and astronauts quickly devised ways for Skylab 1 astronauts to deploy the jammed wing.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz were launched on May 25.

The next day, working in temperatures approaching 125 degrees inside Skylab, they deployed a parasol-like sun shade. The temperatures gradually dropped to a livable 75, but Skylab still had a power shortage.

On June 7, in one of the most

Board Naming WCC Chancellor

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — The University of North Carolina Board of Governors was expected today to name Dr. Harold F. "Cotton" Robinson as the new chancellor of Western Carolina University.

Robinson, now the provost of Purdue University, will assume his new position on June 1. He succeeds Jack Carlton, who resigned last year.

A native of Mitchell County, Robinson is an N.C. State graduate. He served on the N.C. State faculty for 23 years until 1968. In that year, he became vice chancellor of the university system of Georgia.

He took his present position at Purdue in 1971.

His academic field is agricultural genetics.

daring space walks ever, Conrad and Kerwin used improvised hand holds and tools to cut away a strip of metal jamming the power wing.

Officials now say that at that point things began to look better.

"Needless to say, none of us really dreamed that this could be done," said Dr. James Fletcher, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. He called the men of Skylab 1 the "master tinkers of space" after they completed their 28-day mission.

But the space station wasn't through with its last struggle.

The sun shade deployed by the men of Skylab 1 began deteriorating. When Skylab 2 astronauts Alan L. Bean, Dr. Owen K. Garriott and Jack R. Lousma were launched July 28, they took along a new shade.

The astronauts removed the parasol installed on Skylab 1 and Garriott and Lousma deployed a new cloth shade during a difficult space walk.

On Aug. 2, 1973, the astronauts discovered a problem that William C. Schneider, Skylab program director, called "as scary as anything" in the program.

A leak developed suddenly in a control thruster aboard the Apollo command ship. Another thruster had developed a leak earlier, and officials now worried that all of the thrusters were faulty. Without those thrusters, the Skylab 2 astronauts could not come home alone.

Space officials immediately ordered preparation of a rescue rocket.

But experts studied the problem and decided that the remaining two thrusters were healthy. They devised a way for the astronauts to return to earth with just two thrusters. Bean, Lousma and Garriott landed safely after 59 days in space.

Skylab 3's major problem centered around three gyroscopes which control and maneuver the space station. One gyro failed early in the mission and a second one began showing symptoms of failure late in November.

Without two working gyros the space station must use jet thrusters. Officials worried that if the ailing gyro failed, there would not be enough thruster propellant to complete the mission. Astronauts Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson weren't in any danger, but they could have been forced home early.

Mission control carefully nursed the gyro, manually controlling its heating, cancelling maneuvers when it was distressed and avoiding any unusual strains. Every pound of thruster propellant was carefully guarded.

The gyro survived and the men of Skylab 3 finished their full 84-day mission.

By keeping the troubled Skylab flying and operating, space engineers gained a considerable degree of new confidence in themselves and in what man can do in space, said Schneider.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market drifted lower today in quiet trading as investors awaited the Arab oil producers' meeting next week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials at 11:30 a.m. was down 2.98 to 825.48, while advances and declines were about even on the New York Stock Exchange.

"The market will probably drift in the low to mid 800s until something definitive happens on the oil situation," said Ralph Acampora, analyst with Harris, Upham & Co.

In the news, the cut in the prime rate by several banks was offset by the rise in gold prices and weakness in the dollar, brokers said.

"It was a mixed bag of news," commented Acampora. On the NYSE, Pittsburg was up 1/4 to 28 1/2 after a 100,000-share block traded at 27 1/2, up 1/4.

Other movers included Home-stake Mining, up 2 1/4 to 94 1/4, and ASA, up 3/4 to 93 1/4, both benefiting from the rise in gold prices. Simplicity Pattern, which fell sharply Thursday on estimates of lower quarterly earnings, fell again today, losing 1/2 to 19 1/2.

City Council..

assist the city in preparing a public demand survey to determine the interest and demand for a public transportation system in Greenville.

Carstarphen asked for authorization from the Council to proceed with the study, noting that with the help of the ECU agency the city's cost for such a study would be greatly minimized. The Council voted to earmark $1,500 for the survey work.

City employees received good news last night when the Council approved a five percent cost of living pay raise, effective for the first pay period following March 1. Cost of the pay increase, Carstarphen reported, would be some $36,000 for the four months that would remain in the current fiscal year ending June 30. Adequate funds are included in the budget to cover the increase he said.

The city manager explained that the city's personnel ordinance provides for adjustments in employee salaries when the cost of living demands such an increase.

Mrs. John East was named to the Recreation Commission to fill the unexpired term of Mrs. Clay A. Burnette who has resigned. The term expires in June of 1974. Council members decided to wait until the February meeting to name a replacement on the Board of Adjustments for H. Lloyd Mills who has resigned.

A request by Hudson Brothers Radio and T.V. Inc. for rezoning of Lot No. 2 in the Adams Subdivision, located east of Greenville Boulevard, from R-9 to Highway Commercial was denied. The matter came up at the January meeting but was referred back to the Planning and Zoning Commission for clarification after Hudson indicated that he felt some of the commission members misunderstood the location of his property. The Planning board heard the matter again and recommended that the Council deny the request.

Chief of Police Glenn Cannon told the Council that the matter of escort service was intensified to the degree that "at times, just about all of our cars are tied up with escorts. If we were to get a call to investigate, we wouldn't have a car to send."

During a six-month period ending in November of 1973, it was noted, the department provided 1,236 individual escorts that involved 493 man-hours of police time. The escort time amounted to 61 eight-hour shifts.

The termination of police escort service does not include funeral escorts, it was explained, and they will be provided by the department.

Council members approved payment of a premium that will provide Police Professional Liability Insurance for the Greenville Police Department. Under the coverage, the insurance would pay all claims and fees resulting from a suit against members of the police force. The city would be obligated to pay only the premium.

Boyd Lee, director of the Greenville Recreation

Wilkins
Funeral services for Mr. John Earl Wilkins, who died in Burlington, N.J., will be conducted Sunday at 2 p.m. at Reddick Chapel Baptist Church, Bethel. Burial will follow in the Bethel Cemetery.

Mr. Wilkins was a native of Pitt County and spent most of his life in the Bethel Community. He had lived in Burlington, N.J., for the past two years.

Surviving are his mother, Mrs. Dora Wilkins Little of Greenville; his stepfather, Charlie Little of Greenville; one brother, John David Wilkins of Burlington, N.J.

The body will be at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home and family visitation will be held Saturday from 8 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Williams
SNOW HILL—Mr. George T. Williams died in Washington, D.C., last night. He was the brother of the Rev. Jesse W. Williams of Greenville.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete at Flanagan and Parker Funeral Home.

The Council approved a request by Larry Whitlow for rezoning property located on the Washington Highway, involving approximately 1,200 feet of frontage, from RA-20 to Highway Commercial.

Property owners across the street from the tract had voiced opposition to the rezoning and concern had also been expressed that the rezoning might be detrimental to residents living in a house that would be enclosed by the rezoning. Attorney Fred Mattox, representing Whitlow, produced letters from the property owners across the street indicating that they were withdrawing their opposition to the zoning change and also from the residents who concurred in the rezoning proposal.

A resolution was passed approving the sale of Disposal Parcel Five on the corner of First and Pitt Streets in the Shore Drive Redevelopment Project to John D. Grier for $13,775.

Joe Laney, executive director of the Redevelopment Commission, said that Grier proposes to build a 2,800 square foot office building on the lot that includes roughly 11,000 square feet. Grier Rental Agency would occupy half the building and the other section would be rented.

The Council voted to have a letter sent to agencies and firms that have been receiving escort service provided by the Police Department notifying them that the service will be discontinued after 60 days due to the shortage of personnel and the diversion of police officers from their normal duties.

The action followed a proposal by R. W. MacKenzie Jr. of MacKenzie Security Inc. to provide armed courier service for commercial and banking facilities in Greenville. He suggested that the firm could begin providing courier service following the termination of police escort service.

During a six-month period ending in November of 1973, it was noted, the department provided 1,236 individual escorts that involved 493 man-hours of police time. The escort time amounted to 61 eight-hour shifts.

The termination of police escort service does not include funeral escorts, it was explained, and they will be provided by the department.

Council members approved payment of a premium that will provide Police Professional Liability Insurance for the Greenville Police Department. Under the coverage, the insurance would pay all claims and fees resulting from a suit against members of the police force. The city would be obligated to pay only the premium.

Boyd Lee, director of the Greenville Recreation

Department discussed a brochure prepared and published by the department that explains the advantages of private property donations for open space purposes in the city.

Lee noted that the department realizes that with the growth of the city projecting greater needs for parks and open space, budgetary funds are not going to be adequate to purchase park property. The Gifts of Land program offers individual property owners a number of advantages as explained in the brochure, he said, and the brochures will be made available to citizens upon request.

Applications for renewal of mobile home permits were approved for Tarheel Toyota Inc. for a mobile structure located on the corner of Bismarck Street and Greenville Boulevard; for Mrs. Glennie Nobles Moseley for a mobile home located at 1804 Myrtle Avenue; and for a mobile home located at 1607 Garland Street occupied by Mrs. Samuel Brown.

The Council gave its approval to an ordinance designating and establishing specific fire limits within the city as approved by the board at the January meeting. The ordinance amends the boundaries of the fire district, it was noted.

Applications for taxicab operator's permits were approved for Mrs. Dorothy Marie Barnes, Milton Harrison, Ronald Earl Moore and Gregory Terence Sharpe at the recommendation of the Police Department. The Council, after hearing an explanation involving the application of Alex Bryan Hill by his attorney, Fred Mattox, voted to grant the permit.

Approval was also given for the execution of a contract between the city and Jake Green for the demolition of a structure at 311 S. Pitt Street, the clearing of the lot of all building materials, and the demolition of a garage building.

Prep Swimming Meet Saturday

Thirty-three high school swimming teams will join in the competition for the championship of the annual Atlantic Seaboard Invitational Swimming and Diving Championship, to be held Saturday in Minges Natatorium.

This represents a drop in the number of schools competing for the title, and East Carolina Swimming Coach Ray Scharf, the meet director, says that the energy crisis has caused some of the competitors to not show up this year.

"It (the energy crisis) has really hurt us this year in the number of competitors, Scharf said.

Teams, however, are coming from North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, Washington, D. C., Pennsylvania and Georgia to compete in the meet, one of the largest high school meets on the east coast.

"Calvert Hall High School of Maryland is the defending champion," Scharf said, "and they will probably be favored to win it again. St. Albans of Washington may give them their toughest challenge, with Greensboro Grimsley the dark horse from North Carolina. McDonough and Gaithersburg High School could also rank high in the finish.

The diving trials are scheduled to get underway at 10 a.m. with the swimming trials starting at noon. The finals of the meet start at 7 p.m.

Scharf listed some of the top competitors in each of the events.

In the medley relay, Calvert Hall has the best entered time at 1:44.1. St. Albans is next at 1:45.1, followed by Bishop Ireton at 1:46.2.

Steve Everett of McDonough is the top entry in the 200-yard freestyle. He's been clocked in 1:47.9. Scott Creighton of Calvert Hall had done 1:49.9, while Bruce Beckert of Gaithersburg has a 1:50.4.

In the 200-yard individual medley, Dick Greenstreet of Calvert Hall is the leader at 2:03.1. John McMahon of Gaithersburg has a 2:03.8, while Dave Crawford of Calvert Hall has a 2:05.7.

John McCauley of East Mecklenburg leads the 50-yard freestyle group with a :22.6. Bruce Mullinix of McDonough is next at :23.0, followed by Bill Reid of St. Albans with :23.1.

There are 29 entries in the 1-meter diving, and Scharf says that it is nearly impossible to list the favorites. "Stewart Mann of Myers Park finished third last year, and is the top returnee," he said.

In the 100-yard butterfly, Guy Babylon of Francis Scott Key High School is the top entry with a time of :55.3. He's followed by James Strudwick of St. Albans at :55.8, and Keith Wade of Greensboro Page at :56.0.

John Verdin of St. Albans is the leader in the 100-yard freestyle competition. He has a time of :49.5, while McCauley is second at :49.6, and Mike McGee of Calvert Hall is third at :50.3.

The swimmers will be in their longest event in the 500-yard freestyle event, but Scharf noted that this is a new distance, and entry times are for 400-yard distances. Creighton is the top man at 400 with a time of 3:52.0, while Beckert is next at 3:52.7. Everett is third at 3:54.9.

In the 100-yard backstroke, Greenstreet is tops with a :55.2 time. Tim McGough of Calvert Hall is second at :58.6, while Bob Webb of Gaithersburg is third at :59.1.

In the 100-yard breaststroke, McMahon leads with a time of 1:02.0. He's followed by Steve Murray of Bishop Ireton at 1:03.7, and Crawford at 1:04.2.

Calvert Hall also has the best time in the 400-yard medley relay, a 3:21.5. St. Albans is next at 3:26.5, followed by McDonough at 3:28.0.

The loss dropped the Paladins to 4-11 for the year. They close out the regular season on Monday, playing host to Wayne Community College.

Leaders Win In Church Loop

Immanuel and Presbyterian remained tied for the Church Basketball League lead as both picked up victories last night.

Immanuel gained an 38-39 victory over Trinity in the opening game. Immanuel got all it needed in the first half, running out to a 46-15 lead. They outhit Trinity, 37-24, in the second half to complete the rout.

L. G. Catlett led Immanuel with 27 points, while Drew Rumbley had 23, and Clifton McNeil had 14. For Trinity, Bobby Worthood had 16 points.

Presbyterian beat St. James, 57-48, in the second contest. St. James inched into a 26-25 lead at the half, but couldn't pull off the upset. Presbyterian rallied for a 32-22 advantage in the second half to get the win.

Larry Graham led Presbyterian with 16 points, while Paul Andrews had 15 and Mike Aldridge had 10. For St. James, Mike Board had 13 and Si Seymour had 10.

In the final game, third place Black Jack picked up a 78-61 win over Oakmont. Black Jack held only a 35-34 lead at the end of the half, but outhit Oakmont, 43-27, in the second.

Phil Page led Black Jack with 28, while Danny Edwards had 18, Bill Kittrell had 12 and P. Smith had 10. For Oakmont, Bobby Tungstall had 23, and Bobby Hall and Jay Collins each had 12.

Carter First NFLer To Jump To New Loop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Thursday was pen pal day in much of the National Football League but Virgil Carter used a poison pen and wrote a Dear John letter to the San Diego Chargers.

Four more first-round draft picks signed with the NFL — Colorado fullback Bo Matthews with San Diego, UCLA defensive tackle Bill Sandifer with San Francisco, Michigan defensive tackle Dave Gallagher with Chicago and Southern California offensive tackle Steve Riley with Minnesota.

But the NFL received a blow when Carter, a 28-year-old quarterback who once belonged to the Chicago Bears, Buffalo Bills and Cincinnati Bengals and was traded to San Diego following the 1973 season, became the first player to jump to the fledgling World Football League.

And two other big name NFL draftees — Tennessee State defensive tackle Ed "Too Tall" Jones, the No. 1 pick, and All-American quarterback David Jaynes of Kansas — refused to commit themselves to the established league.

Carter, who led the NFL in passing percentage with Cincinnati in 1971 but missed last season with an injury, was one of three players signed by the WFL's Chicago Fire. The others were Mark Kellar of Northern Illinois, the nation's leading rusher last fall, and wide receiver John Wright, who retired from the NFL's Detroit Lions in 1971.

The Pirates will be hosting William & Mary in a Southern Conference meet. Previously, the Bucs have met and defeated Appalachian State, their other top league rival. They also have wins over tough West Chester, and N. C. State University.

The match will be somewhat of a warmup for the Bucs, who will be defending their Southern Conference title on Feb. 23-24, at Boone, as they seek their third crown in a row.

East Carolina's Pirates open up their final plunge into the Southern Conference wars for this year, as they open a five-game swing through the league Saturday night at 8 p.m. in Minges Coliseum.

The Bucs will be playing host to William & Mary, currently tied with the Pirates for fourth place in the league. Both teams have 5-4 conference records.

The Bucs come into the game following an 89-61 victory over Buffalo State, their biggest margin of the season. William & Mary also comes in on the heels of a win, having beaten Virginia Military Institute by two points on Wednesday.

The two teams met earlier in the year with East Carolina taking a slim 70-67 victory over the Indians at Williamsburg.

Coach Tom Quinn was somewhat pleased with the play of the Pirates against Buffalo State on Wednesday night. "About 10 minutes of the first half and about 15 minutes of the second, we played the best defense we've played this year," he said. "We literally broke them with our defense. This is really the first team we've gotten to physically." Quinn noted that the Bengals had played in an overtime game the night before meeting the Bucs, and that it began to tell on them in the second half.

"This was an especially good game for us at this time, coming after three tough losses. It was quite timely," Quinn referred to a three-game losing streak the Bucs snapped with the win. They lost all three in the same week, two to Furman in the league, and one to nationally-ranked Old Dominion. Two of the games were two-point decisions.

"This game (with Buffalo) and I guess the Davidson game were the only ones where we've blown them out," Quinn added.

Turning to Saturday night's game, Quinn noted that the Indians have improved since they first met the Bucs. At the time, they were playing for the first time since Christmas holidays, exams, and the flu had forced a month-long layoff. In addition, one of their starters, Tom Pfingst, had quit the team, and the Indians were having to adjust to that.

"They've had plenty of time to work someone else into the lineup now," Quinn said, "so that is no longer a problem to them. True, they did have a lot of time to get ready for us the first time. In fact, their coach (Ed Ashnault) said afterwards that they had outplayed us in every facet of the game except the score. But I think we did outplay them in defense, and this made the difference."

Quinn looks for a tough game from the Indians. "They gave Davidson a real good game on the road, and they have played good games against two strong Eastern teams, Rutgers and Pitt, taking Pitt into overtime." The Indians present a problem in the high-scoring ability of Mike Arizin, in their depth, and in their superior height advantage. "They have two 6-10 people, although they have not played them together so far," Quinn said.

"They are talented, and they still have everyone that caused most people to pick them to finish third in the league," he added.

But the coach feels that the Pirates are playing well too. "We have confidence in our ability to win. We may have gotten a little overconfident in the early stages of the Buffalo game, but we realize the importance of the rest of our games. Two of the teams coming in here have beaten us. We still want to be in the top three, and we want to win each of the final games if we can."

Arizin is the leading scorer for the Indians, hitting at a 16.7 clip. He's followed by Ron Satterthwaite with an 11.2 mark, the only other man in double figures. The other starters are expected to be Ron Musselman, Mark

Ritter, and Matt Courage.

East Carolina is still led by Nicky White, averaging just under 15 points a game, and Reggie Lee, hitting just over 10. The Bucs will also start Robert Geter, Donnie Owens and Roger Atkinson.

A junior varsity game between the two schools is set to start at 5:45 p.m.

Following the Indian game, the Bucs are on the road for two final games, against Appalachian State and Davidson, then return home to close out the regular season against Richmond and The Citadel the following week.

Williamston Girls Get Win

WILLIAMSTON—The Williamston High School girls basketball team picked up its 17th victory in 19 games last night as they rolled to a 61-30 win over Kinston.

Williamston had little trouble in downing their guests, rushing out to a 21-10 lead after just one period of play. The Tigerettes pushed through 17 more points in the second period, while holding Kinston to just four. That ran the Williamston lead out to 38-14 at the half.

The Tigerettes kept it up in the third period, outshooting Kinston, 14-9. That upped the lead to 52-23. They finished Kinston off with a 9-7 advantage in the final frame.

Bet Brandon led Williamston with 20 points, while Fran Hardison added 19. Mary Carlyle led Kinston with 13, and Joann Small added 11.

Williamston will close out the regular season tonight as it meets Edenton.

The Tigerettes will be hosting two tournaments in the next two weeks. Next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, the Tigerettes host the Northeastern girls tournament, with Bertie, Plymouth, Edenton, Kinston and Northern Nash joining them. The top two teams from that tournament will participate in the district tournament the following week, which will include two each from the Northeastern, Albemarle, East Tidewater and Beaufort-Hyde-Martin conferences. The winner of that will advance to the girls' state tournament in High Point on Feb. 27-March 2.

Aching Wrist Plagues Elder

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Lee Elder has the putting woes, an aching wrist, a date with a hospital — and a share of the lead.

"As soon as this tournament is over, I'm going in a hospital in Los Angeles and have the wrist drained," Elder said Thursday after his hard-won 71 gave him a tie for the top spot with big Labron Harris after two rounds of the $160,000 Bob Hope Desert Classic.

"I think they call it a ganglia," said Elder, one of the few blacks on the pro tour. "I've got some fluid in the back of the left wrist. I've got to get it out. It hurts pretty bad sometimes, particularly when I break my wrists on the backswing."

Elder has missed a total of 25 putts from 15 feet or less in compiling his two-round total of 140, four under par.

He and Harris, who spiced his second consecutive 70 with an eagle three, shared a one-stroke lead over Johnny Miller, John Mahaffey, Hubert Green, Grier Jones, Mike Reasor and John Lister of New Zealand, all tied at 141.

Miller, Green, Jones and Reasor all had 69s in the bright, warm desert sunshine. Mahaffey had a 70 and Lister 71. First round leader Mark Hayes slipped to a 74-142.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer improved to a 70 for 146 and still had hopes of winning his sixth title in this event.

Rookie Ben Crenshaw improved 10 strokes to a 71, but the big comeback was by DeWitt Weaver. Weaver went from an opening 82 to a 64, a stroke a hole better.

Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Gary Player and Tom Weiskopf are not competing in this five-day, 90-hole marathon. The unique format has the pros playing one round on each of four courses — Indian Wells, Bermuda Dunes, Eldorado and La Quinta — with a different team of three amateurs each day. After 72 holes the field will be cut to the low 70 pros for the final day's play at Indian Wells.

Elder Seeking Bid To Masters

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — "I want to win. I want to get in the Masters."

Lee Elder, one of the few blacks on the pro golf tour, has a burning desire to break the color barrier at the old south stronghold of the Augusta National Golf Club in Augusta, Ga., site of the famed Masters tournament.

A black has never played in that event, one of the world's four major tests of golfing greatness.

"It's constantly on my mind," Elder said. "It would be a really great honor to be the first black to play there. Any black player on the tour would cherish the role of being the first to play in the Masters."

He needs to win to make it. Under the current rules governing invitation to the Masters, a player becomes eligible when he wins a regular tour event. It hasn't always been so. That rule was put in effect just a year ago. Blacks Charley Sifford and Pete Brown won regular tour titles, but their victories came before the rule was instituted.

"I think it's a fair rule," Elder said. "It gives everyone an equal chance."

But it puts extra pressure on him.

"The pressure of trying to win is one thing," he said. "It's always there. Then this, trying to get in the masters, puts even more pressure on you. It's always in your mind. It's always there, staring you in the face."

And it's the one thing that has eluded Elder, a soft-spoken 39-year-old who has been on the tour since 1968. He's come close. Twice last year he held first-round leads. For the last two seasons he's been the top black money winner with $70,401 and $84,730.

But he hasn't won since his decade of play on the black United Golf Association tour.

"All you can do is keep trying, keep on hacking away at it," he said. "If I don't win this week, there's always next week. If I don't get it now, I'll get it later."

BLACK DRIVER WINS

WINDSOR, Ont. (AP) — Lew Williams, 26-year-old black driver from Stubbenville, Ohio, captured Windsor Raceway's "Challenge of Champions" when he won three races during a special Sunday afternoon harness program of 10 races in December.

Williams also had two seconds and one third and beat out Herve Filion, leading driver for 1973, to win a $10,000 automobile.

SHOWS 61 WINS
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pitchers on the 1974 roster of the St. Louis Cardinals show a total of 61 major league victories for 1973. They are led by the 13 wins scored by John Curtis, obtained from Boston, and the 13 won by Alan Foster. Veteran Bob Gibson won 12 games for the Red Birds in 1973.

UP WITH THE BALL, DOWN WITH NOTHING—Willie Norwood (8) of the Detroit Pistons went up for what he thought was to be an easy layup only to be interrupted by a speeding Butch Beard (lower left) who knocked the ball away. Detroit was trying for its fifth straight and Golden State for its Ninth. Detroit won it, 110-86. (AP Wirephoto)

Squires Rip Cougars; Detroit Rolls Along

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Willie Norwood used to have a physical attachment to the Detroit bench — now it's emotional.

"The thing that really makes us stronger is our bench," said Norwood, a former benchwarmer whose 27 points in a starting role sparked the Detroit Pistons to a 110-86 victory over the Golden State Warriors in Thursday night's only National Basketball Association game.

In the American Basketball Association, a federal court awarded George Gervin to the San Antonio Spurs Wednesday for at least 10 days, but the Virginia Squires, Gervin's old team, still overpowered the Carolina Cougars 120-97, while the Spurs lost to the Utah Stars 86-83. The Denver Rockets trimmed the Memphis Tams 105-94.

Norwood used to get up for the pre-game National Anthem and then sit right down again. But since forward Don Adams has missed the last seven games with a pulled hamstring muscle, Norwood stays standing for the opening tip-off, then sits on the opposition.

In his last three games, all as a starter, Norwood has totaled 72 points — not bad for a fellow with a 6.9 average entering Thursday night's contest.

"Willie Norwood has just been fantastic," said Detroit Coach Ray Scott. "Right now he's our starting forward."

While Adams has been on the bench, the Pistons have compiled a 6-1 record, stretching their third-place marks in the NBA's Midwest Division to 38-19 — two games behind the Chicago Bulls and four games in back of the Milwaukee Bucks.

Norwood, making the most of his starting opportunity, popped for 16 points in the first quarter as the Pistons built a 14-point lead after 12 minutes, increased it to 17 at the half and pulled away to a 84-58 edge after three quarters.

Rick Barry, the Warriors' leading scorer this season, had just six points.

Stars 86, Spurs 83
On the Gervin issue, the court ruled in San Antonio's favor, but Utah had the final decision against the Spurs Thursday night.

"I was missing some plays. I know I was mixing everybody up out there," said Gervin, who has averaged 25 points a game. He had 12 points in his debut with San Antonio.

Ron Boone's 23 points led the Stars to their ninth straight victory — tying the New York Nets' earlier streak as the ABA's longest.

Squires 120, Cougars 97
The Gervin-less Squires didn't seem to miss the 21-year-old forward as Virginia's front line accounted for 78 points. Cincy Powell had 28 and Jim Eakins 18.

Rockets 105, Tams 94
Byron Beck, the game's leading scorer with 24 points, teamed with Ralph Simpson to score the last six points of the night and provide Denver's cushion over Memphis.

Tree Sparkles In Upset Win

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Louisville couldn't see the basket for the "Tree" Thursday night.

Roland "Tree" Grant was head and shoulders above everyone else, leading New Mexico State to an upset, 76-73 victory over the 15th-ranked Cardinals.

"He had to be the difference," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum after the Aggies' superb seven-footer scored 24 points and picked off a game-high 15 rebounds.

The big fellow was even more of an advantage for New Mexico State, since Louisville played without center Wesley Cox, grounded with the flu.

In other games involving the nation's ranked teams, No. 9 long Beach State trimmed San Diego State 64-48 and No. 18 Texas-El Paso was upset by Utah 73-72.

Louisville, down by 12 points with less than six minutes left, counter-attacked but fell short as Grant contributed clutch points and rebounds.

Louisville's 6-foot-5 forward, Allen Murphy, had 24 points to share game scoring honors with Grant. The loss was the first for Louisville after six victories in the Missouri Valley Conference. New Mexico State boosted its record in the MVC race to 4-3.

Luther "Ticky" Burden hit an 18-foot jump shot with one minute left to give Utah a pulsating, one-point victory over Texas-El Paso.

Leonard Gray scored 19 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead Long Beach's victory.

In other games, Manhattan trimmed St. Joseph's, Pa., 80-73 in double overtime and Rutgers stopped West Virginia 80-73 in a doubleheader at Madison Square Garden; West Texas State beat St. Louis University 58-53; New Hampshire nudged Rhode Island 60-57; Hardin-Simmons defeated Oklahoma City University 83-70; North Texas State walloped Drake 104-85; Memphis State nudged Wichita State 91-90; Jacksonville tripped Pan American 84-71 and Bradley turned back Tulsa 83-71.

North-South Contests Are Weekend Feature

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

The annual North-South basketball doubleheaders at the Charlotte Coliseum tonight and Saturday night featuring the Atlantic Coast Conference have a new look.

Nationally ranked North Carolina State and North Carolina, battling it out for the ACC lead, remain, along with down-trodden Georgia Tech, which joined the cast a few years ago after South Carolina bowed out.

Clemson withdrew from the games after last season, and the Tigers have been replaced by ambitious Furman, leader of the Southern Conference.

The schedule tonight sends N. C. State (16-1) against Georgia Tech (4-13) in the opener. North Carolina (15-2) goes against Furman (14-5) in the second game.

No other ACC teams play tonight and all were idle Thursday.

Saturday night the home state teams will swap opponents at Charlotte. N. C. State will meet Furman in the first game and North Carolina will follow against Georgia Tech.

Before they get together, two afternoon games will be played

Saturday. Duke, struggling through an 8-10 season and loser of its last three games, plays the third-ranked Irish at Notre Dame, and Virginia plays at Wake Forest in a regionally televised game. Duke still seeks victory No. 1,000 in 69 years of basketball against 515 losses.

Wake Forest has moved into fourth place in the ACC at 3-4 over 2-5 Virginia, which has lost eight straight.

Rounding out the slate, Maryland meets independent George Washington in the new Capital Centre at Largo, Md. The Maryland Terps are seventh nationally on a 14-4 record.

N. C. State, winner of 14 in a row since its December loss to UCLA, and North Carolina loser only to N. C. State, will be out to add to the ACC margin over outside teams. Conference clubs hold a 51-15 edge in such games this season.

North Carolina has won three straight since a three-point loss to N. C. State and will be up against a Furman team that has won its last four.

Georgia Tech has been idle since winning by 12 last Saturday over a Georgia State team that lost for the 17th time in 18 games.

Second Panch To Prove Self

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Richie Panch, a wide-eyed, dark-haired youngster of 19, says 1974 is the year he'll prove to himself—and quite a few others—that he can drive a race car.

"I have had a fair sampling of racing for 18 months, learning something of what it's all about. Now I want to get going and prove I can run with the regulars," the soft-spoken son of a racing father said Thursday.

Panch and four other first-year drivers checked in at Daytona International Speedway as registration opened for the annual February "Speed Weeks" racing program.

He and the others, including Jody Ridley of Dalton, Ga., L.D. Ottinger of Newport, Tenn., Randy Tissot of Hollywood, Fla., and Grant Adcox of Chattanooga, Tenn., plan to campaign this year for rookie of the year honors in the tough National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing.

The rookie candidates were the last drivers to clear the registration desks as almost 200 contestants readied for seven events that feature an energy-shortened, week-long program.

Grand National entrants from NASCAR and drivers aligned with the Auto Racing Club of America were to open practice on the 2.5-mile oval this morning. The ARCA drivers will compete in the Speed Weeks opener Sunday, a 200-mile race for late model stock cars. The Grand National contingent will vie the same day for two front row positions in the Feb. 17 Daytona 500, to be run at 450 miles because of the gasoline shortage. Panch plans to try his hand in those speed dashes.

Son of 1961 Daytona 500 winner Marvin Panch, the bright and talkative youngster admits he needs more seasoning but expresses no fear for the big Daytona oval.

"I grew up not more than a mile from it, and it is my home track," the husky sibling said. The older Panch owns "Panch's Rancho," a sumptuous spread near the speedway.

The younger Panch hopes to qualify a Ford Torino for the $202,000 Daytona 500. But there are obstacles. He must finish well in one of two 112.5-mile qualifying races next Thursday, because the order of finish determines starting positions in the big one. More than 70 drivers, all of them with far more experience than young Panch, are entered—and only 40 can start.

Panch plans to warm up for his 500-mile outing by running in a 270-mile race for sportsman cars next Saturday.

Chicod In Win

STOKES—Chicod and Stokes-Pactolus Junior High School split a pair of games yesterday.

Stokes-Pactolus won the girls' game, 35-29. Clemens led St-Pac with 17 points while Jacki Lilley had 14 to pace Chicod.

In the boys' game, Chicod gained a 45-31 win. Randy Edens led Chicod with 16, while Dale Bailey had 12 and Broderick Cannon had 12. For Stokes, Snead had 15.

Makes Wine In Urban District

By Larry Siddons
Associated Press Writer
RIDERWOOD, Md. (AP) — Just inside the Baltimore Beltway, amid the clutter of urban sprawls, lies a winery.

"It's perfectly quixotic for us to be producing wine here. This land's often been marked for a high-rise apartment building," chuckled Phillip Wagner, who with his wife, Jocelyn, has built Boordy Vineyards into an important part of the American wine industry.

From a small complex of white stuccoed buildings behind their home in the posh Green Spring Valley section of Baltimore County, the Wagners and a small team of assistants turn out about 6,000 cases of wine each year.

"We've deliberately kept it a rather small operation," Wagner, a political columnist, retired editor-in-chief of the Baltimore Sun and widely read wine authority, explained.

Wagner started making wine during Prohibition, but with the finished product intended solely for family consumption.

"It was all right as long as you kept it under 200 gallons or so," he explained. "The government had to allow it because of the Italians, Germans and other ethnic groups to whom wine was a part of the basic diet." When the nation went wet again in 1933, Wagner and other East Coast wine makers found it increasingly difficult to obtain good domestic grapes.

"The California wineries were beginning to boom, and nothing was coming east but the cats and dogs," Wagner recalled here, as a mechanical crush squeezed grapes into a scarlet puddle.

Because the classic French wine grapes can't stand the severe climate changes of the Middle Atlantic region, Wagner began work on crossing European vines with heartier domestic versions.

"We found that in France, these were the kinds of grapes that went into the wine that the people drank every day," the urban wine maker said. "And we also found that they stood up here in Maryland."

These "American hybrids," boasting heartiness and resistance to disease, became the basis for Wagner's nursery, opened in 1939.

Since then the vines have spread nationwide and, according to Wagner, "created a revolution in American wine making. There's now a rash of small wineries where once they were never thought possible."

Boordy Vineyards, opened in 1945, turns out white, red and rose and under an agreement with Seneca Foods, Inc., it recently opened two new cellars — in Penn Yan, N.Y., and the Yakima Valley in Washington State.

"But it's still a small, family thing, really," Wagner said while pouring a sample of Boordy's 1971 white. "We set out to prove that it was economically and physically possible to make wine in the Middle Atlantic region, and we have."

Meanwhile, he added, the operation has managed to turn a small profit.

"We gross about $72,000 a season, but with grapes costing $240 a ton that doesn't leave much," Wagner said. "Profit, however, wasn't our primary objective in running the vineyard."

One thing, though, has escaped Wagner, a protege of H. L. Mencken at the Sun.

"We've never been able to figure out exactly what 'Boordy' means," Wagner noted as he sat in his study, where a photograph of the Sage of Baltimore scowls from above the desk. "We just say it means a future thing in Maryland."

Being Casey's Daughter Didn't Affect Her Life

By GEORGE BUTLER
The Gadsden Times
(Written for Associated Press)
GADSDEN, Ala. (AP) — Being the daughter of Casey Jones, the most famous locomotive engineer who ever lived, "has not bothered me," says his daughter, Mrs. George McKenzie.

One reason is that few people have known of the connection.

Mrs. McKenzie lives in Gadsden with her son, Tom McKenzie, and his family.

"For I'm going to run till she leaves the rail—or make it on time with the southbound mail." That inscription is on the monument of John Luther "Casey" Jones in Calvary Cemetery, Jackson, Tenn.

Nearby is the Jones old homeplace which has been converted into a railroad museum. The Casey Jones family was living there April 30, 1900, when the famous wreck occurred at Vaughan, Miss., that cost Casey his life, and brought him enduring fame.

"Casey Jones. Orders in his hand. Casey Jones. Mounted to the cabin. Took his farewell journey to that promised land."

So rings the ballad which has immortalized Jones.

In January 1900, Casey took over engine No. 382 on the Illinois Central run from Memphis, Tenn., to Canton, Miss. The schedule for the mail-passenger train was so fast the train became known as the "Cannonball Express."

Casey was known through Tennessee and Mississippi for his long, moaning whistle. At that time, engineers were assigned to specific locomotives and Casey kept his engine clean and shining.

He was almost a fanatic about running "on the advertised," keeping his arrivals and departures precisely on schedule.

Casey had a special whistle, a sort of trademark, which he moved from engine to engine, a six-tone "Whipporwill." He "quilled" it and made himself known to hundreds of people along the tracks with his signature in sound.

The six-chime whistle was noted in the ballad: "The switchman knew by the engine's moans that the man at the throttle was Casey Jones."

Casey, with fireman Sim Webb pouring on the coal, had made up all but five minutes of a 95-minute schedule deficit when the train crashed into the boxcars on the track at Vaughan, Miss. Webb jumped out at Casey's insistence and was only slightly injured.

Casey rode it out, brakes on. When they took his body from under the coal and steel, the broken cord of his cherished whistle was in one hand. The other hand was on the airbrake lever.

The heart of the songs, the legends, and the facts, is that Casey could have jumped and saved his life but that he stayed in the cab and that the only life lost was his.

One of the persons most affected by the tragedy was Wallace Saunders, an engine wiper who worked with Casey. "He used to brag mightily about Mr. Jones even when Casey was only a freight engineer," said the widow before her death several years ago at the age of 92.

Saunders made up verses about his hero and sang them to a melody all its own. He had no idea of doing more than singing it as a tribute to his friend's memory.

But one day a songwriter passed through Jackson and heard the song and the details of Casey's death. He changed the words and retained the lilting refrain.

Mrs. McKenzie says the Jones family never got a cent from the song about Casey.

Casey's widow, who did not remarry, reared her three children. Charles Jones, now 85, lives in Jackson. Lloyd has been dead many years.

The only daughter, Mrs. McKenzie, formerly lived at Tuscaloosa and Mobile.

She recalls that her mother took part in radio and public appearances about the life of her husband. Charles Jones also has played roles in publicity but Mrs. McKenzie says she has remained in the background.

In fact, although she says she and her late husband lived much of their lives in Mobile, few people there knew she was Casey's daughter.

Mrs. McKenzie has four children—Tom and his twin, Bob, Decatur, Ala.; Dan McKenzie, Selma, Ala., and Mrs. Helen Bapor, Denver, Colo.

New Series Has A Careful Touch

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — There's a new half-hour comedy series that bears watching on CBS-TV tonight. It's called "Good Times" and has all the earmarks of a hit show, especially in pace and writing.

It's about a family of poor blacks in Chicago and, as Florida Evans, a main character, promptly notes at the start of the proceedings, "This family ain't Ozzie and Harriet."

No, indeed. There's a great deal more spark and life in this television version of a ghetto clan, even though their ghetto apartment is a great deal less weary-looking than the real McCoy.

The show stars Esther Rolle and John Amos as Florida and James Evans, a husband-and-wife combination that first appeared in the hit "Maude" series. In this series, they've got three kids.

Tonight's effort, like most of those in "Maude" and other series by the production company of Bud Yorkin and Norman Lear, treads the thin line between sorrow and laughter with a caring step.

It concerns a chance James Evans gets for a government-funded union apprentice program starting at $2.50 an hour with a potential top of $4.25 per.

Now Evans is a member of what some call the hard-core unemployed. He seeks work, but can find only short-term odd jobs. With only a sixth-grade education and zero coins in the bank, he's definitely down but a long way from out.

He never quits.

"The things that man has done to keep this family together," his wife sighs. "Dishwasher, night watchman, floorsweeper ... and all those jobs were last week."

He leaves for a job interview with enough confidence to tell the family to ready champagne blast paid for from the rent money.

His light-fingered oldest son, James Jr., 17, returns from the grocery store laughing: "It's fun being rich. I've been down to that store a dozen times, but it's the first time I've been involved in a cash transaction."

Pop comes home to a party serenading him with, "For He's a Jolly Good Dude." His wife is asking if they can buy a color TV set to replace their old black and white model.

"The tube's weak," she says of the latter. "The white ain't right and the black ain't beautiful."

But there'll be no new TV set or anything else. If you'd like to find out why, watch the show tonight.

You'll also see some deft comedy acting, particularly by Jimmie Walker, who plays the larcenous 17-year-old.

Patrol Of I-95 Is Stepped Up

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The North Carolina Highway Patrol today put more patrol cars on Interstate 95 in eastern North Carolina, a main link on the eastern seaboard, after three truck drivers reported they were fired upon Thursday.

The shootings—trucks were damaged but no one injured—were reported in a 50-mile stretch between Fayetteville and north of Smithfield.

Authorities said the reports came from Raymond Cripps of Clearwater, Fla.; James Jacob Daughtry, who was driving a load of hogs north; and from a driver, who said he had seen another truck fired on from a car.

Gov. Jim Holshouser met with eight independent truckers at the North Carolina capital of Raleigh Thursday. The truckers told their concern over the price and availability of fuel that led to the week-old strike.

Holshouser telephoned U.S. Secretary of Transportation Claude Brinegar and transmitted the truckers' questions to him.

The governor's news secretary, Jack S. Childs, said the truckers were looking for a reduction of up to 25 per cent in the state fuel tax. Childs said Holshouser told them a 25 per cent cut would bring "serious damage to the state roadbuilding program."

An Independent Medical School Argued In Tenn.

By BILL RAWLINS
Associated Press Writer
NASHVILLE (AP) — Gov. Winfield Dunn says he will follow today's recommendations by the state board of regents and Higher Education Commission on competing proposals for an East Tennessee medical school.

Both bodies have turned down proposals for an independent medical school at East Tennessee State University before.

Asked what he will do if the legislature passes the measure anyway, he replied, "That will have to depend on the recommendations of the two boards."

Dunn will attend the meeting of the 14-member board of regents as chairman, but is not scheduled to attend the subsequent meeting of the HEC.

The meetings come one day after the introduction of legislation calling for a cooperative medical school arrangement between ETSU and the University of Tennessee medical units at Memphis, a proposal Dunn made recently in Johnson City. It was rejected by backers of an independent medical school, most of the members of Dunn's own Republican party.

Rep. Palma Robinson, R-Jonesboro, and Sen. Marshall Nave, R-Elizabethton, both say they have enough votes to pass the measure designed to take advantage of federal construction funds.

But they concede a veto by the governor could stymie their plans to complete action on the proposal by March 1, the deadline set for applying for the funds under the Teague-Cranson Act.

The measure authorized eight new state medical schools across the nation in conjunction with Veterans Administration hospitals. A total of $20 million has been appropriated to start construction.

ETSU hopes to establish a school to train 68 family doctors a year in conjunction with Mountain Home Veterans Administration Center, which adjoins the ETSU campus in Johnson City.

Dunn, however, contends that the cooperative arrangement with UT also would be eligible for the VA funds—and would cost the state millions of dollars less to operate in the long COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio has become the 33rd state to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. Approval is needed from only five more states for the measure to become law.

The proposal passed the Ohio Senate 20-12 Thursday. The House approved it last March by a 56-40 margin.

The ERA provides that "equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the United States or by any state on account of sex."

that meeting.

The legislature, however, appropriated the 100,000 anyway—and the resulting three-volume plan went before the board and the HEC today—along with Dunn's compromise.

The HEC has contended for more than two years that the state cannot afford the ETSU medical school, on grounds that the UT medical units are not now adequately supported.

The Worry Clinic The Proof Is In The Results

"The proof of the pudding," runs an old adage, "is in the eating." But Dora shows that the proof is in the dieting! So heed her success, since it parallels that of thousands of wives who diet so they can serve more enticing boudoir cheesecake!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-547: Delighted Dora, aged 38, is the former worried wife whose husband threatened to leave her if she didn't lose weight.

"Dr. Crane," she reminded me, "he insisted I get back down to within 10 pounds of my weight on our wedding day."

"So I started on your famous dehydration, drugless diet."

"For I had gained up to 154 from by bridal weight of only 118."

"Well, that first day when limited to but one total glassful of liquids, my mouth felt cottony."

"And I was more interested in ice water than in food."

"But by the 3rd day, when I was entitled to 3 glasses of liquids, I was feeling fine."

"My stomach had shrunk and by use of cottage cheese, hot dogs, and similar high protein menu items, I felt fairly full. "Sure enough, I was down 10 pounds at the end for the first 10 days!"

"Then I shifted to your Diet No. 2, which let me move up from 800 calories per day to 1,200 though I found I could get along quite well on only 1,000 calories, due to my shrunken stomach."

"At present, therefore, I have lost 1 1/2 pounds per week for the last 8 weeks, making a total of 12 pounds plus the 10 I eliminated those first 10 days."

"That means I am now down 22 pounds, so I tip the scales at only 132."

"And for the past few weeks, I have noticed a romantic glint in my husband's eye."

"He no longer sits down to read the newspaper in the living room when he arrives."

"Formerly, he's just call 'Hi, Honey, I'm home' and then read or watch TV till dinner time."

"Now he comes out to the kitchen as soon as he arrives and gives me a thriller diller kiss."

"In fact, now he often stays at the kitchen table to read the paper instead of going back to the living room."

"And he has even taken me out to see a couple of movies in the past few weeks."

"Meanwhile, I have purchased a couple of diaphanous nighties and some new perfume, so I can serve more enticing boudoir cheesecake to him."

"And it works like a charm! He is almost as romantic as on our honeymoon, though we have been married 15 years!"

"And he doesn't growl about my buying new dresses, either, so tell your other stouy wives how to insure a revival of their honeymoon romancing."

"Phooey to your boudoir cheesecake!" some irate wives have protested.

But that's because they are too lazy to try it!

When wives regain their honeymoon figures and take a more active interest in boudoir cheesecake, they find that Dora's experience is typical.

"Dr. Crane," many two-timing husbands have confessed, "I'd much rather have an affair with my wife than with the paramour I now maintain in a secret love nest."

"But my wife is fat, stouy, and doesn't seem to understand what boudoir cheesecake refers to! "So I am driven into the arms of a seductive siren just to gain that extra erotic satisfaction that men are created to desire. "But if my wife would wake up and diet, I'd be delighted to stay home!"

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr. 19) Don't deviate from proven systems if you want to make headway now. Labor sensibly so that you don't undermine your health.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Try not to be so extravagant where pleasure is concerned. Being forceful with loved one could cause a rift. Be more idealistic.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Being reasonable with kin is best now since forcefulness could result in unfortunate arguments. Sidestep anything controversial.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Making changes where your job is concerned could be very bad now. Do something of a helpful nature for one in need.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't think you can buy your way into anything, but use more honorable methods and get good results. Show others you are practical.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't be too forceful where personal aims are concerned. Concentrate on whatever is most important to you. Avoid the social for now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Instead of engaging in some new outlet at this time, clear up all those accumulated tasks. Show generosity to those less fortunate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't expect any help from others now since they are busy with own affairs. Make plans to increase income. Postpone recreation.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Make sure you do nothing that could injure your fine reputation. Being above reproach is wise. Work on career matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Attend to duties that will build your faith in whatever you are doing. Find the information you need during spare time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you keep steady and do more than you are required to do, you will be rewarded. Show that you are an understanding person.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't blame partner because you don't understand the purpose of certain actions. Keep busy making changes that are important.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will learn early in life that a smile will turn away wrath and since there is something in the nature that antagonizes others, trouble could befall your progeny otherwise. Teach to overcome adversity. Give as much education as you can afford. The field of troubleshooting is fine here.

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♠
If you were traveling from New York to Chicago, you wouldn't normally choose to go via San Francisco. In Bridge, however, the roundabout way can be the surest.

Once North supported his suit, South's hand revalued to 17 points. Since his partner had bid voluntarily at the two-level, there was no question that the combined resources were sufficient to warrant venturing to four spades.

West led the deuce of hearts, East won the king and ace and continued with a third round of hearts, which declarer ruffed. There was no problem if trumps divided evenly, for declarer could then draw trumps and play on diamonds, and he would be assured of the contract no matter how the remaining cards lay. So declarer, a pessimist by nature, considered his chances if the trumps broke 3-1.

Even if he had to lose a trump trick, South saw that he still could make the contract if the diamonds were 3-

3. After cashing the ace-king of trumps, he could play three rounds of diamonds, discarding a low club. On the fourth diamond he would discard his remaining low club as the defender with the high trump ruffed, and the only losers would be two hearts and a trump.

But those odds were still not good enough for declarer. After some thought, he developed a line that would succeed against a 3-1 trump break and a 4-2 diamond division. The method involved conceding a trump trick after establishing dummy's diamonds.

After cashing the ace of spades, declarer took dummy's king and queen of diamonds. He led a low diamond from dummy and ruffed with the king of spades. West's discard was immaterial—dummy's diamond suit was now set up, and the ten-eight of trumps served as an entry to the table. Declarer led a low trump and the defenders were without recourse. West could win the queen, but declarer would win any return, enter dummy with the ten of trumps, in the process drawing West's remaining trump, and take two club discards on the ace and the low diamond.
