Truckers Strike Fading Away; Some 'Holdouts'

By CRAIG AMMERMAN
Associated Press Writer

The often-violent strike by dozens of groups of disorganized independent truck drivers appeared all but over today.

There were several thousand holdouts who continued to insist they would not climb back in their rigs until diesel fuel prices are rolled back. But their numbers did not appear to be nearly enough to cause the economic hardships which resulted in a quick settlement proposal last Thursday in Washington, D.C.

Key federal officials said it looked to them like the strike was over.

Truck traffic climbed to near prestrike levels Sunday and early today, and violence was down sharply.

However, police in Beaumont, Tex., said a driver was showered with glass early today when a bullet slammed through the window of his moving truck. State police in Kentucky said four trucks were hit by bullets Sunday night, causing minor damage.

Earlier in the strike, violence took the lives of two drivers and several were injured.

At least 15,000 of the 100,000 persons laid off at the height of the 11-day shutdown were due back on the job today as many big rigs headed for markets loaded with meat, produce and industrial parts.

There was little doubt that the strike's effects would linger. Spot shortages of some foods were certain to keep meat and produce prices at high levels until supplies can be replenished.

Another certain effect is the six per cent surcharge independent drivers will now be getting for their cargoes. Those increases will eventually be picked up by consumers.

Most of the major organizations involved in the strike that won guaranteed supplies of diesel fuel and higher freight rates for the independent drivers urged their men to be back on the job today.

Reports received Sunday from several areas where the strike had its biggest effects indicated many of them were already there.

Pennsylvania Gov. Milton J. Shapp, the man who got the settlement talks started, said truck traffic had increased in his state by 60 to 75 per cent. The Perlis Truck Stop, located in Cordele, Ga., on the main north-south route along the Eastern seaboard, said Sunday night its business was 70 per cent of normal.

Truck traffic was reported up in Ohio. In West Virginia, officials said it looked as if truck traffic was nearly normal. Similar reports were received from several Midwest states.

With violence sharply down, the Pennsylvania National Guard was withdrawing its patrols Sunday night. There was to be an end to Guard patrols on highways in the state which suffered what appeared to be the worst violence during the strike, although a 3,000-man Guard contingent was placed on special alert status.

In Pittsburgh, the chairman of the Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers told his membership Sunday night to resume driving today. William J. Hill, who heads what was believed to be the largest group involved in the shutdown, said the vast majority of steel haulers' locals had overwhelming approved the proposed settlement.

No Hard Stand By Energy Conferees

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger turns his negotiating arts to today's opening of a 13-nation energy conference in an effort to forge a common approach to the worldwide fuel problems.

Kissinger was due to call for cooperation, not confrontation with the oil producing countries when Foreign ministers, finance chiefs and energy experts from the nine-nation European Common Market Norway, Canada and Japan formally convene.

However, European and Japanese leaders remain reluctant to agree on any approach that would arouse anger among the oil producing countries that could lead to a cut-off of vital fuel supplies.

Foreign Minister Walter Scheel of Germany, the president of the European community, was selected to explain the cautious position of the common market countries — France, Germany, Britain, the Netherlands, Italy, Denmark, Luxembourg and Belgium.

The most outspoken foe of the U.S. plan of unified approach was French Foreign Minister Michel Jobert who conferred late Sunday with Scheel and Kissinger.

Jobert is an ardent advocate of separate deals by individual countries with the Arab oil sheiks.

He flew to the United States on the heels of a 3-billion agreement by France with Iran. It includes nuclear power plants valued at $1.2 billion, a liquefied natural gas project costing $1 billion and special steel mill projects that will cost $750 million.

In exchange, France will have increased access to Iran's gas and oil. Previous arrangements were made with Saudi Arabia and Kuwait.

Kissinger and President Nixon, who initiated the conference, have been working hard to head off individual country solutions that the United States considers an invitation to economic blackmail.

President Nixon arranged a black tie, stag working dinner with the foreign ministers at the White House Monday night. Kissinger invited them to a State Department working lunch amid an intensive effort to start a diplomatic momentum that eventually would lead to more fuel at lower prices and adequate returns to the producing countries.

At a 4½-hour preparatory meeting Sunday, senior officials agreed that the agenda would include only four points — opening remarks in which each nation states its position; a discussion of the energy situation and its implications; initiatives for international cooperation and an examination of new proposals, and finally a communique to be issued Tuesday night.

The Arab oil producing countries are following the Washington conference with one of their own Thursday. The Arabs warned in advance that European countries would jeopardize their interest if they submitted to what was termed by Arab newspapers as "the American aggressive plan aimed at dominating energy sources."

Another Meeting Seeks Compromise

GREENSBORO (AP)—Eight legislators and four members of the Board of Governors met for seven hours Sunday in another effort to reach a compromise on East Carolina University's bid for a four-year medical school.

The meeting was closed but state Sen. Gordon P. Allen, D-Person, said the chance for a resolution of the controversy appeared to be improved as a result of the discussion.

"We didn't try to tie things down. We talked about a wide range of medical education proposals — a one-year school, a two-year program, a four-year school and other alternatives," Allen said.

The group scheduled another meeting in Raleigh Wednesday night.

It was the third such compromise session in recent weeks. Earlier, a 35-member committee met twice in Raleigh without finding an acceptable answer.

The Board of Governors has rejected ECU's bid for expansion of its medical program. Legislators favoring the ECU bid have threatened, however, to enact legislation to expand the one-year program now in operation at ECU or to put the matter before the people in a referendum.

In addition to Allen legislators attending Sunday's meeting were Sens. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham, Thomas Strickland, D-Wayne, and Edward Knox, D-Mecklenburg, and Reps. George Miller, D-Durham, Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg, J. P. Huskins, D-Iredell and John Gamble, D-Lincoln.

Members of the Board of Governors present were David J. Whichard II of Greenville, Reginald McCoy of Lenoir, Robert B. Jordan III of Mount Gilead, and William A. Johnson of Lillington.

Gas Situation In Greenville Is Worsening

By CARLL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

As most drivers can tell by looking at the long lines and the closed stations, the gas situation in Greenville has worsened since January.

A telephone survey of six service stations this morning showed all but one station had their gasoline quotas cut from January's supply.

Prices are varying from a low of 45.2 cents for regular to a high of 56 and a low of 49.2 to a high of around 60 cents for premium. Jack Harris of College Exxon was the only station manager contacted that stated his supply was up from last month.

Harris stated he would receive, 16,000 gallons this month.

A spokesman for Rigg's Gulf stated his station was already out of gas for February, having received 12,884 gallons and selling that in the first three days of February.

Probably the hardest hit station in town is Doug's Spur on Dickinson Avenue, which has been cut to 14,000 gallons this month after having received 76,000 gallons last month.

Doug Edmundson, the manager stated he was having to limit sales to 400 to 450 gallons per day in order to keep his supply.

A spokesman for the J. C. Penney Co., which experienced a massive line of some 60 cars late last week had no comment on their service station's gas situation.

Carr Allen, manager of a Phillips 66 station stated his supply was cut to 10,000 gallons for February and was limiting sales to 400 gallons per day.

Allen stated his price was dropped 1.8 cents per gallon to 48.1 for regular and 52.1 for premium.

A spokesman for Pugh's Tire and Service Center, which sells Shell gasoline stated his supply was cut 30 per cent from January to 24,000 gallons.

The spokesman stated he was limiting large sales to regular customers while strangers could receive only a purchase of around $1.

None of the managers contacted had any idea what effect the recent announcement that North Carolina would receive more gasoline would have on their supplies.

Person County Senator Says Another Medical School Meet Planned

By STUART SAVAGE

Sen. Gordon Allen, D-Person, the spokesman for the group, said legislators and representatives of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors who met in Greensboro yesterday in an effort to reach some compromise on the question of expanding the one-year East Carolina University medical school, said this morning that "we agreed to meet again."

Sen. Allen, who had no other comment on yesterday's session, indicated the second meeting of those attending yesterday's private session will be in Raleigh on Wednesday.

Yesterday's meeting was attended by four Senators, four members of the House of Representatives and four members of the Board of Governors — half of each group supporting expansion of the ECU medical school and half in opposition.

Those present at the meeting, called by House Speaker James Ramsey and Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, included Senators Allen; Kenneth Royall, D-Durham; Thomas Strickland, D-Wayne and Eddie Knox, D-Mecklenburg and House members John Gamble, D-Lincoln; J. P. Huskins, D-Iredell; George Miller, D-Durham and Larry Cobb, R-Mecklenburg.

Members of the Board of Governors at the session included pro-ECU members David Whichard of Greenville and Reginald McCoy of Lenoir and anti-expansion supporters Robert Jordan and William Johnson.

Public hearings on several bills now before the General Assembly regarding ECU medical school expansion will be held later this week in Raleigh.

The hearings have been set for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 4 p.m. until 6 o'clock in room 1027 of the Legislative Building.

Persons wishing to appear at the hearings may contact Sen. Ralph Scott's office. Those not wishing to appear in person may express their position through letter or telegram.

State Democrat Party chairman Jim Suggs of New Bern said this morning that support for expansion of the medical school at East Carolina University should not be a partisan matter.

Sugg said, "I believe that with just a little help from the Republicans, this needed school could become a reality."

Emphasizing that he was not speaking officially for the Democrat Party, but rather personally, Sugg said "I think there is a crying need for additional medical doctors in North Carolina. A medical school at East Carolina appears to be an answer to the problem."

Asked to predict the outcome of the medical school expansion question Sugg said, "I don't know what the legislature will do..."

But the Democrat said, "It depends on how much arm twisting Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser does to carry his opposition to the medical school."

According to the party chief, "I would like to see this issue resolved without a head-on confrontation," and suggested some compromise could be worked out. "I hope the matter will be resolved soon," he said.

More doctors are needed in Eastern and Western North Carolina, Suggs noted. "With just a little help from Republicans," the Democrat theorized, "the progress that has been made toward resolving the issue to achieve better medical care..." could become a reality.

According to Suggs, the three medical schools now in operation in the state—at UNC-Chapel Hill, at Duke University in Durham and at Wake Forest University in Winston-Salem—"Seem to compliment each other."

He questioned "why can't a medical school at East Carolina" work in conjunction with the other schools to better meet the need for more physicians in the state?"

Transportation Bill Is Readied

WASHINGTON (AP) — A series of transportation measures covering highways, mass transit and railroads is being sent to Congress this week by President Nixon.

The President outlined his plans in a radio speech Saturday in which he also called upon striking independent truckers to go back to work.

And there were indications that the truckers' work stoppage is easing with fewer incidents of violence and the Pennsylvania National Guard preparing to deactivate.

More Rockets, Shells Takes Phnom Penh Toll

By DENIS GRAY
Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Rockets and shells hit southern sections of Phnom Penh today, killing at least a dozen civilians in a crowded market area and falling within 100 yards of the United States Embassy.

There were at least 15 rounds in the barrage. It was the first shelling of the Cambodian capital in 10 days. Prior to that respite, almost daily attacks since Dec. 23 killed nearly 200 persons and wounded at least 500.

Preliminary police reports said the insurgents fired both high-explosive 105mm artillery shells and 122mm rockets.

Three rounds, reportedly 106mm shells, fell near the American Embassy. One exploded on the pavement almost diagonally across from the embassy building, and two others landed in the grounds of the presidential palace.

The embassy suffered no damage, but it was not immediately known what the explosions inside the palace grounds did.

Most of the shells and rockets landed in the area of the Sa Deoum Ko market in the southwestern corner of the city. It was jammed with midafternoon shoppers and vendors.

The dead, dying and wounded sprawled on the sidewalks and under the market stalls. Many of the victims were young children and women.

Several buildings were engulfed in flames, and heavy smoke blackened the sky.

Simon Asks Refineries Boost Gasoline Output

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal energy chief William E. Simon has asked refiners with adequate distillate and residual fuel supplies to increase their gasoline production to alleviate some of the shortages.

Simon, in a statement Sunday, said some refiners already have shifted to more gasoline production.

Warm weather plus energy conservation practices by the public have been the main reasons for the build-up in distillate stocks, said Simon.

Distillates include home heating oil and diesel fuel. Residual fuel oil is used in power plants, ships and some building heating.

Meanwhile, five states today joined the growing number of areas across the nation implementing a voluntary staggered day gasoline servicing program. Starting the so-called Oregon plan today are New Jersey, the District of Columbia, Washington state, New York and Massachusetts. Maryland was to begin the plan Tuesday.

Although much of the consumer focus is on energy problems, the U.S. Congress has not been able to come up with any quick relief measures.

The so-called "emergency" bill was first introduced by Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., on Oct. 18 but still was awaiting final legislative action when Congress adjourned last week for the traditional Lincoln Day recess.

The Senate has scheduled a vote on the bill for Tuesday, Feb. 19, but first it must survive an attempt by Republicans and oil-state senators to recommit it once again to a conference with the House.

Border Battle Ignores Summons

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syrian gunners dealt "devastating blows" to eight paramilitary Israeli settlements today and wiped out three missile bases in the Golan Heights, the Damascus command reported.

It claimed an Israeli tank concentration received direct hits during the three-hour artillery engagement that flared along the northern and central sectors of the 40-mile truce line.

"Fifteen enemy artillery batteries also were silenced by Syrian fire," the command said.

It said the clash, which broke out at 7:15 a.m. on the northern sector and later spread to cover the entire central sector, ended at 10:15 a.m.

It was the second straight day of reported artillery clashes on the Golan front after a four-day lull. The Tel Aviv military command had no immediate report on today's action but said four of its soldiers were wounded in Sunday's clashes.

The Golan shelling came as Israeli forces on the Suez front far to the south were to complete their withdrawal from another 200 square miles west of the Suez Canal, carrying out the Israeli-Egyptian disengagement accord engineered by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet prosecutor's office issued a second summons to Alexander Solzhenitsyn today, but the author said he would not appear and refused to acknowledge the legality of the summons.

Solzhenitsyn has been the target of an official attack branding him a traitor since publication of his book on Stalinist labor camps, "Gulag Archipelago," and the action by the prosecutor was seen as a possible first step toward legally silencing the author.

The first summons was delivered to the apartment of Solzhenitsyn's wife on Friday but she refused to accept it because it did not state reason and did not have a registration number on the document.

The second summons was delivered to the apartment today and Solzhenitsyn immediately issued a statement saying, "In a situation of general illegality which for many years has existed in our country (and the personal eight-year campaign of slander and harassment of me) I refuse to acknowledge the legality of your summons and will not come for an interrogation to any state organ."

Navy Awaits A Successor To Zumwalt

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Adm. James L. Holloway III, who steers a middle course on Navy reform, is reported the front runner among candidates to become the next Chief of Naval Operations.

Pentagon sources said they expect President Nixon to act within the next few weeks on nominating a successor to Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr., whose four-year term ends in July.

Meanwhile, there are reports Navy Secretary John W. Warner will resign soon to head the National Bicentennial Administration, preparing for the country's 200th birthday celebration. If so, the Navy would get new civilian and military leadership this year.

The Navy officer corps, split over reform instituted by Zumwalt, is especially concerned about the selection of Zumwalt's successor.

Warner refuses to say whom he is proposing, but he has indicated he believes it is time to slow the pace of reform. Warner has had several conferences with Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, whose recommendation to President Nixon probably will be decisive.

Pentagon sources said Holloway now leads at least four other admirals under consideration.

The south Carolina-born Holloway, currently vice chief of Naval Operations, is described by those who have known him for years as "an enlightened traditionalist."

"Holloway would be a middle of the road CNO," said one source. "He would not go to either extreme of pushing forward with any revolutionary new changes or coming back all the way. He's smart enough to see the benefits of some of the things Zumwalt did."

Many of Zumwalt's changes designed to improve Navy life, particularly for enlisted men, won considerable support.

But many older officers charged that some of Zumwalt's innovations smacked of permissiveness and led to a breakdown of discipline. A House Armed Services subcommittee echoed those accusations last year after investigating a serious racial outbreak aboard the carrier Kitty Hawk.

Holloway is not identified with pro or anti-Zumwalt factions.

"He's nobody's man," said a senior officer.

A combat veteran of three wars, Holloway is an aviator and an expert in nuclear ship propulsion. He commanded the U.S. 7th Fleet during the late stages of the Vietnam War.

Trying Determine Impeachment Chances

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for that woman in Boston whose husband wets his pants. My husband did, too, but he refused to see a urologist. After two and a half years, ruined furniture and mattresses, I told him if he didn't see a doctor I was going to put him in diapers and rubber bloomers to protect the furniture. [They have them for adults, you know.] To my surprise, he agreed, and now I realize that part of his problem was the desire to be "babied." So I "baby" him, but it's saving my furniture and my sanity.

For the record, Abby, there are 16 million bed-wetters in the United States, and 4 million chronic ones. These figures are from Time magazine. R. P. D.

DEAR R: Thanks for the statistics. It will be a great comfort to those who are swimming against the tide.

DEAR ABBY: Our son [22] recently married a nice 21-year-old girl. They invited Dad and me to dinner, and she served a meal of Chinese food. It was terrible, but we ate it anyway so as not to hurt anyone's feelings.

The next time they invited us, she made a Hawaiian dinner. Abby, this was worse than the Chinese dinner. My poor husband was up all night with heartburn.

They invited us again, and I called my son and asked him what she was making this time. He said: "Mexican food." Well, maybe I shouldn't have said it, but I asked him when his wife was going to learn how to make American food. He got mad and said when people are invited to dinner they eat whatever is served, and don't complain about it.

Was I wrong? How can I make up for that remark? My husband and I are both Italian, and we can eat anything, but this girl's cooking is murder. Maybe I need mother in law lessons. MOTHER IN LAW

DEAR MOTHER IN LAW: You don't need mother in law lessons—your daughter in law needs cooking lessons. Invite her over and offer to give her a few. But never criticize her cooking, no matter what she serves. [At least she invites you, which is more than some brides do.]

DEAR ABBY: Apropos the letter from "Bereaved": Years ago when I was "bereaved" I had the following experience:

My husband [a physician] had died after a long illness. I started writing my letters of thanks for condolences almost immediately after the memorial services.

When I was about midway thru my letters I had a telephone call from a woman I hardly knew who had sent flowers. She had been a patient of my husband's. Her side of the conversation went like this: "How are you getting along? . . . Did you get my flowers? . . . Exactly what did the doctor die of?"

I'm sure her flowers were an expression of sincere sympathy, but what of the telephone interview? Honestly, now! What is this notion that it is perfectly all right to inquire into the nature of a person's illness, terminal or otherwise? APPALLED

DEAR APPALLED: People with tact, sensitivity and good manners do not have this notion. But unfortunately those qualities are not taught—they're "caught."

By CARL C. LEUBSDORF
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Both supporters and critics of President Nixon are quietly trying to determine the chances of Senate conviction in this presidential impeachment trial.

With the timing and nature of House impeachment action still several months away, most informed persons around the Senate say it is impossible at this point to predict the eventual vote.

Even advocates of presidential resignation or impeachment doubt that current support for Senate ouster of Nixon is anywhere close to the necessary two-thirds majority—67 if all 100 senators vote.

One informed guess puts it under 50.

One factor complicating any accurate judgment at this point is the refusal of most senators to commit themselves. Most, including many who either publicly or privately favor the President's resignation, hope they'll never have to vote on the issue.

Many of the uncommitted are Republicans who fear a GOP disaster at the polls next November if Nixon still is in office.

These other factors complicate any current assessment.

The House Judiciary Committee has yet to define what constitutes an impeachable offense and to attempt to draw up an impeachment resolution on which the House and ultimately the Senate would be asked to vote.

Pending judicial action is expected to result in large numbers of indictments of former top Nixon aides before the issue comes before the House. One key factor is whether the indictments will touch the President directly.

Possible confrontations loom between the White House and both special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski and the House Judiciary Committee over efforts to get evidence for their investigations. A battle with the House panel could seriously imperil the President in the view of many congressional observers.

Continuing investigations, including the congressional probe of Nixon's taxes, could produce more information damaging to the President or help clear him from some charges.

Outside developments, especially in the foreign field, are counted on heavily by Nixon to reinforce his image as an active, functioning President.

Unlike the House, where Democrats have a majority sufficient to withstand some defections and still produce a majority for impeachment, the outcome in the Senate depends more on Republicans.

The Senate has 58 Democrats and 42 Republicans. Thus, even a solid Democratic front against Nixon, which is unlikely, still would require an additional nine Republicans to total the 67 votes need for conviction.

But because of Southern Democratic support for Nixon, as many as 20 Republicans might be needed to assure conviction.

Allowed Eleven Cents A Day To Feed A Soldier

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —

Scrimping on food? Gen. George Washington, although a high-living fellow himself, was allowed 11 cents a day to feed a soldier in 1776.

The Agriculture Department, in figures released today, says "a liberal-cost" diet for a civilian male 20 to 34 years old in December averaged $2.64 per day. And the Defense Department says the modern Army marches on food costing $2.28 per day for each soldier.

According to the American Medical Association, the 11-cent ration contained much more meat. Experts estimate the same quantity of food now would cost as much as $3 per day.

Moreover, according to an AMA newsletter, the 1776 soldier's diet was terrible. The USDA diet, on the other hand, is said by experts to be well balanced.

Modern Army chow also is supposed to have its merits, according to Pentagon officials.

Food experts say soldiers in 1776 as well as now got larger portions of some foods, particularly meat. Also, they point out, even the Continental Army bought in wholesale when it could.

An analysis of the 1776 Army diet made recently in the newsletter "AMA Update" included this daily description:

One pound of fresh beef or one pound of salt fish; three-fourths of a pound of pork or 20 ounces of salt beef; one pound of bread and one pint of milk.

The AMA said that in contrast to 11 cents per day for enlisted soldiers, officers in the Continental Army were allowed 33 cents and Washington himself $5.28 daily.

"And just think, people in 1776 complained about high prices," the newsletter said. "General Washington, we hasten to add, was noted through-

Investigating Break-In Case

Investigation into a break-in at Smith's Arco Service Station at 2900 East Tenth St., reported Saturday at 10 a.m. is continuing, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

The police official said thieves gained entrance to the building by removing tape from an already-broken window, then forced open five coin-operated machines and took an estimated $20 in change.

Audience Sang For Leontyne

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock singer Roberta Flack and opera singer Marian Anderson led an audience of 2,800 in singing "Happy Birthday" to opera star Leontyne Price.

Miss Price celebrated her 47th birthday Sunday night by giving a recital of music by Mozart, Handel and Schubert at Carnegie Hall.

Nun's Record Is A Fast-Seller

NEW YORK (AP) — A record by Janet Mead, a 36-year-old Australian nun, has sold half a million copies in the United States since it was released a month ago. And it hasn't even been played on the radio in all U.S. cities.

The record, Sister Janet's first, has a rock beat and some well-known lyrics.

Record stores report that the record—"The Lord's Prayer"—is selling faster than it can be stocked.

Birthday Party For Greenville

Greenville is 200 years old, give or take a year or so, and the Jaycees are spearheading a movement to properly observe the city's founding. The Jaycees received the blessings of the City Council at their meeting last Thursday night and $2,500 was allocated as "seed money" to get the project underway.

Dick Kiernan, representing the local club, told the council that club representatives had met with representatives of the Rogers Co. and it was the club's feeling that the celebration should be held this year rather than waiting until 1976 and the national celebration.

Keirnan mapped out plans for a meeting Feb. 20 after which a bicentennial corporation would be formed. He said plans for the sale of a variety of items should pay for the costs of the celebration. In Rocky Mount this plan resulted in an overall profit.

The 200th anniversary observance can be enjoyable and informative to the citizens of our city and the area. Greenville does not have a great deal remaining in the way of historical sites; yet our history is surprisingly rich and our beginnings supercede those of the nation.

We have much to be proud of in Greenville and the bicentennial celebration can help us appreciate our heritage.

A Most Logical Use For Hospital Building

Pitt County has offered to sell the old Pitt Memorial Hospital building to the state for use in conjunction with the ECU Medical School, if it will fit in with plans for the school's development.

We think this is an entirely logical use for this facility. It could expedite the development of the medical school and the structure, which is modern, could be in close proximity to the new Pitt Memorial which will soon be under construction.

The building was designed for medical use and this is a good opportunity for it to be put to best use.

The Shadowy Confrontation

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—The probability that special prosecutor Leon Jaworski will not subpoena the latest tapes and documents denied him by President Nixon's lawyers may be hailed at the White House as a major victory, but in fact the new confrontation has ominous overtones for the President.

Even with the new material, Jaworski's prosecutors are confident they have evidence enough to indict and convict Mr. Nixon's former top aides. Meanwhile, relations between the White House and Jaworski, handpicked by the President last October to replace Archibald Cox, are lower than ever. Furthermore, the latest non-cooperation has hurt the President with the all-important fence-straddlers in Congress.

when eyeball-to-eyeball with the President, flinched.

At this writing, Jaworski's probable course is to consult the Senate Judiciary Committee, which in turn may summon Atty. Gen. William Saxbe for help. But all this seems mostly going through the motions to make a record. In all probability, the documents will be neither surrendered nor subpoenaed. The White House can claim Jaworski flinched.

But in fact, the prosecutors believe in their existing evidence. They believe Dean's testimony will stand up against the tapes. Consequently, as in so much of Watergate, all paths converge on John Dean's credibility.

If Dean is sustained in court, the President's strategy will have served him badly by further souring relations with Jaworski.

Schools To Aid Problem Kids?

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Children with special needs are already in the public schools, and their needs can be met if the state is willing to provide the resources, Dr. Craig Phillips believes.

The superintendent of public instruction told members of a joint legislative committee on Exceptional Children that while he is not pushing the idea of merging under the Department of Education programs designed for exceptional children, "we are ready to say yes, we are willing to accept that responsibility."

At stake are a variety of programs—some 22 state agencies under various administrative umbrellas with a total budget of more than $200 million—which serve exceptional children.

the deaf and blind across the state, and the mental retardation centers.

From the Department of Social Rehabilitation and Control, to the Department of Public Instruction, the Office of Youth Development, including all juvenile training schools.

From courts to Human Resources, juvenile probation and aftercare.

Opposition Heated

David Jones, secretary of Social Rehabilitation and Control is actively opposing the measure, arguing that he is on top of major change in the juvenile corrections systems and should be given time to make reorganization work. Jones also contends that giving the training schools to the school system will turn them into a "dumping ground" for misfits in the schools.

David Flaherty, secretary of Human Resources, also argues for more time to make reorganization of his agency work and doesn't like the idea of losing the schools for deaf and blind.

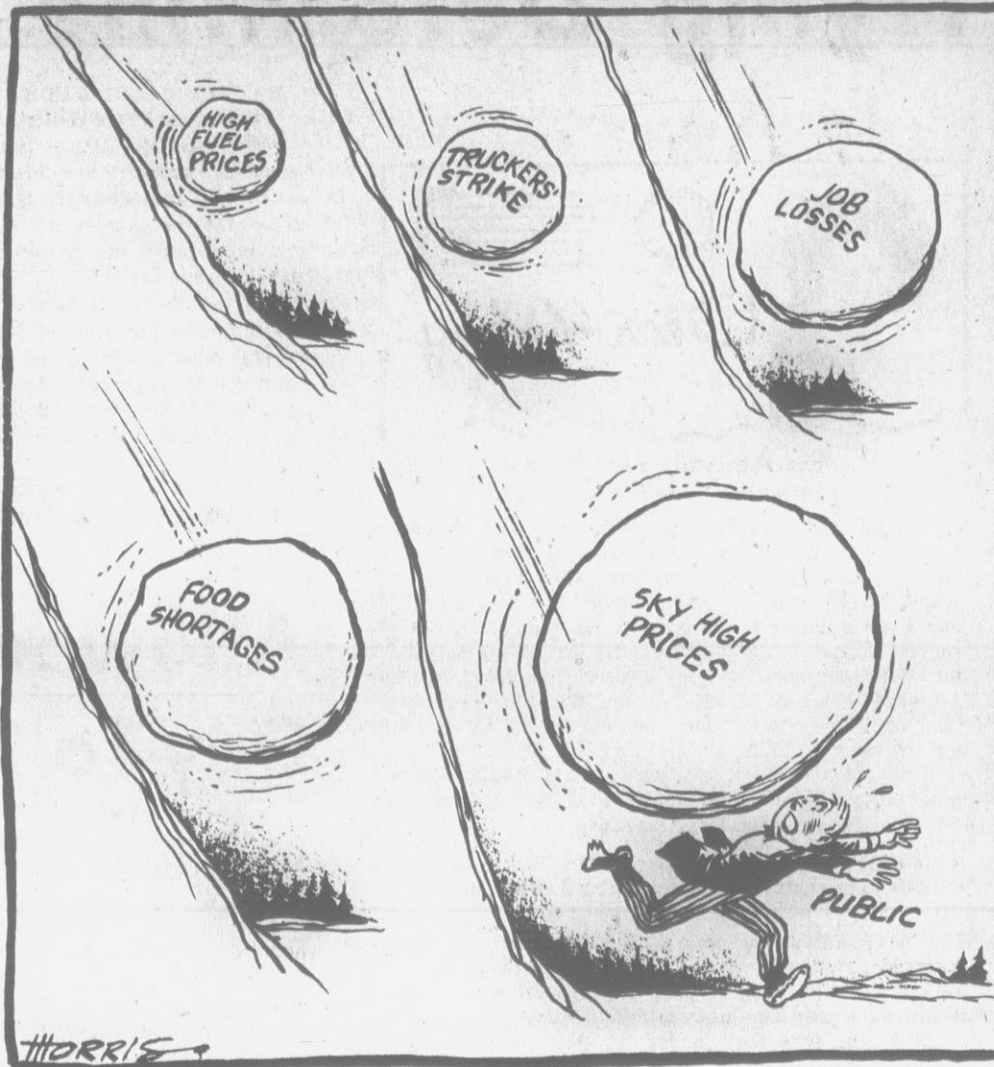

The committee proposal would set up two divisions in the Department of Public Instruction, with assistant superintendents in charge—one for Youth Development, and one for Children with Special Needs.

The bill spells out that "children with special needs shall be educated along with children who do not have special needs and shall attend regular classes" except for special periods, and that removal from regular school will take place only when the school cannot meet the child's needs.

Special evaluation of children's needs by a team of experts is required, and the bill stipulates that "no child... shall be admitted to or confined in any (institution) or special education class... until... evaluated... to the end that no child shall be placed inappropriately."

The committee proposal also calls for a strong and independent advocacy program to protect children's rights, and both local and state-level councils—with membership guaranteed for parents of exceptional children—which would monitor and advise on programs.

When You're A Loser

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP)—You're a loser if —

When you're in the hospital, all people send you are used get-well cards.

The members of your country club would rather go out in a threesome than let you make it a foursome.

Your wife earns more money by taking in washing than you get paid on your job.

When you go to a cocktail party, the other guests form a circle around you, point to your shirt and chant "ring around the collar!"

Any cigarettes you smoke you have to snatch from your dear old mother's pack.

Your favorite card game is solitaire because you don't have to know anyone else to play it.

Three-fourths of all the crabs on your block grow on your front lawn.

All the hippies in the neighborhood think you are giving the street a bad name.

There is nobody in the world you can disinherit because you don't have anything that anyone else in the world would accept as a gift anyway.

In your Dale Carnegie class, you were unanimously voted the one least likely to succeed.

You don't owe money to anyone you know, because anyone who knows you wouldn't lend you any.

If you ask a stranger what time it is, he takes a firm grip on his wristwatch before telling you.

Yep, you're such a loser you should consider hanging yourself. You would, too, except for the fact that when you were a Boy Scout you failed to win a merit badge because you couldn't learn how to tie a knot properly.

Just Listening To God

WASHINGTON—At a prayer breakfast, here last week President Nixon urged Americans to join in silent prayer to determine God's will for the country.

"Too often we are a little too arrogant," he said. "We try to talk and tell Him what we want. What all of us need to do and what this nation needs to do is to pray in silence and listen to God to find out what He wants us to do."

Well I tried it. The other morning I was standing with my head bowed and God said, "You're awfully quiet this morning, Arthur."

"I'm waiting for you to tell me what to do."

"That's strange, Arthur. You usually have a long list of things that you ask of me."

"President Nixon said we should stop talking and we should listen to you and find out what you want from us."

"I don't want anything from you. I'm doing fine."

"I don't mean that, Lord. What should we, as Americans, do that would please you?"

"Well, for a start, you could clean up your air and your water."

"Oh, we're doing that. Didn't you hear President Nixon's State of the Union speech?"

ART BUCHWALD

"I was at a church meeting that night. It still looks pretty bad from up here."

"That's because of the energy crisis. You see, we've had to burn a lot of gook to get through the winter, and we've had to lower our environmental standards. But as soon as the crisis is over I'm sure we'll do something about the air and water. What else can we do?"

"You seem to be having some problems down there with inflation, Arthur."

"I thought so, too. But President Nixon says everything is just great and we're in terrific shape economically, and people have more buying power than they've ever had before."

"Hmmm, it must have escaped me. I've been getting a lot of prayers from unemployed people lately."

"That's just because of the energy crisis. Nobody wants to buy big cars."

"Then why don't they build small cars?"

"God only knows. Is there anything else you'd like to say?"

"I wouldn't have mentioned it unless you asked, but Americans seem to be violating the Ten Commandments left and right."

"Which one did you have in mind?"

"The specific one is 'Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor.'"

"Imagine you're referring to Watergate now."

"You have to admit, Arthur, that someone is lying."

"It seems that way, God, but then again we don't know"

Other Editors Say Wrong Approach

(Rocky Mount Telegram)

It may be that government at the state and federal levels might be able to meet some of the demands now being made by truckers who are protesting the price of diesel fuel.

One recognizes the importance of keeping the trucks rolling, for many segments of our society depend upon their continued operations.

But it may be that in order to meet the demands of the striking truckers, the impact could damage the economy and the fuel situation in other ways.

For example, the truckers are demanding a rollback of diesel fuel prices. Should the government agree to do this, it is quite possible that the supply of diesel fuel might disappear altogether, much in the manner that beef vanished when price controls were imposed on that product.

As things stand now, the truckers are inflicting serious harm to the economy and to the public. Violence, food shortages and more job losses are being reported in the spreading shutdown of independent truckers.

Shootings, tire slashings and other violence were reported in more than a dozen areas. Schools in several states closed down because they couldn't get gasoline to run the buses or didn't have heating oil.

Meat packing plants have sent their employees home, and produce markets are running out of fresh fruits and vegetables.

So the action of the truckers is having a domino effect all across the economy and society in general. One can sympathize with the truckers; they make their living hauling produce and other items to markets at distant points.

As diesel fuel prices have soared, so have the costs of operating the big tractor-trailer rigs. In a sense, the truckers are in the same predicament as the farmer and the livestock operator: Costs of operation have reached the point of no return.

But we have to believe a solution—at least a compromise—can be arrived at without the tactics being employed by some truckers to show their displeasure over the energy situation. They are, after all, not the only ones suffering from a fuel shortage.

Violence does not, as this nation has so painfully discovered, solve basic problems.

Violence and the breaking of laws solve none of these.

Strength For Today

SWALLOW QUICKLY
"I never chew my pills."

It is with this declaration that a man who has suffered a good deal of misfortune explains how he has been able to rise above it. When he has had to swallow a particularly bitter pill, he has not added to the discomfort of the pilltaking by chewing his pills.

Some people everlastingly chew their pills—the man who has lost money and never stops agonizing over it; the fellow who deepens his grudge year after year against the employer who fired him without cause; the candidate for public office who stood for right things and was defeated by an unprincipled opportunist.

When we have a bitter pill to swallow, the best thing is to swallow it down quickly. On the label of a certain brand of aspirin are the following directions: "Put the pill far back on the tongue and swallow it quickly with a mouthful of water." And the directions might fittingly have added, "...and don't chew it."

Four Industries To Be Watching

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—Four industries — automotive, airline, steel and rails — are worth watching during the next few months because of the role they play as bellwethers, although reluctant ones.

If they can successfully adjust to the brave new world of shortages, rising prices and changing demand, then there is hope for other, less critically involved industries. Nobody knows if they can do so.

Will automotive industry that persisted in turning out big cars for big profits be able to work down to a world of minicars and still maintain its profits? The attempt is under way.

General Motors, for example, is said to be considering an economy Cadillac, and to be weighing the merits of turning out small cars at Buick, Pontiac and Oldsmobile plants.

Small cars are expected to take more than 60 per cent of the market this year. Despite rising prices, these cars sell at much lower figures than their big mates — and consequently, at less profit to the maker.

The airlines industry is facing an equally uncertain year, also because of the energy shortage. Can they reduce their number of flights and pay higher prices for fuel, and still turn a profit?

Some airline executives believe it cannot be done and they forecast serious disruptions. One company, Pan American World Airways, lost nearly $30 million in the final three months of the year, partly because of high fuel costs.

That kind of loss can be sustained by a company as large as Pan Am if it doesn't happen too often. But Pan Am and some other airlines had financial difficulties long before the oil crisis.

For the past five years this carrier has been in the red, for a total of $165 million. Now, with the future of travel uncertain, and with prices of fuel rising, the fortunes of Pan Am and other lines carry a critical signal for other companies.

The steel industry also is confronted by a situation that will put management to the test, and again because of fuel shortages and rising prices.

Steel is a basic product, even in this plastic age, so whatever happens to steel prices and supply will have ramifications throughout industry.

Bethlehem Steel, the second-largest producer, has just announced a cut in output of 8 per cent because of a shortage of metallurgical coal. Because of reduced oil supplies, some utilities now are competing for the same coal.

If other companies suffer Bethlehem's plight, and there are reasons to believe they will, it could add to the economic woes the country must undergo, and lessen prospects for a return to normalcy.

The situation for the railroads is different. In their case a shortage could work to their advantage, enabling them to pick up passengers who deserted other forms of transportation, especially the car.

For years the railroads argued that they couldn't compete with the conveniences and sometimes even the luxuries of travel by car, plane and bus. Now, each of their competitors is to some degree weakened by costs and shortages.

If the railroads are able to capitalize on their unique opportunity it could mean a big change in the American way of life. If they fail they will fall back into the past, to be sustained only by subsidies.

Attacks On Morgan Increasing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
North Carolina Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan's dual role as the state's top law enforcement officer and a candidate for the U.S. Senate has come under bitter attack.

Twice Saturday Morgan was urged to resign as attorney general if he intends to continue as a candidate. The call came from one partisan source and from one Democrat who says he was a Morgan supporter.

State Republican chairman Thomas S. Bennett told a Young Republican convention in Durham that Morgan was denying the state's voters the right to nominate the next attorney general.

Bennett noted that Morgan must resign his post by Friday if the job is to be up for grabs in the May primary.

He said it was the people's right to have their candidates nominated by the ballot rather than by politicians in smoke-filled rooms.

If Morgan does not resign until after Friday, candidates for his job would be nominated by the state executive committees of both parties.

In Chapel Hill, service station owner John W. Hamilton said Morgan has proven he "cannot be trusted to do both (run for the Senate and be attorney general) at the same time." Hamilton, a member of the Orange County Democratic executive committee, is the owner of a service station slapped by Morgan with a restraining order last week.

In a statement Saturday, he said Morgan's suit was the unfounded result of a "sloppy, overeager, politically motivated investigation."

Morgan last week announced to a news conference that he had obtained restraining orders against Hamilton's Village Sunoco and four other Chapel Hill service stations for alleged "tie-in" deals on the sale of gasoline.

Morgan said the service stations were requiring customers to purchase car washes, groceries and other items before they could purchase gas.

Hamilton said he has been limiting gasoline sales to regular customers. He denied Morgan's charge that he had offered gas to new customers in return for their purchase of tires, batteries and other accessories.

Hamilton said Morgan's charges were based on two faulty affidavits. One, he said, was based on second-hand testimony from one of Hamilton's business competitors; the other was not properly signed.

He said Morgan had violated the state Bar Association's code of ethics by calling a news conference to discuss the substance of the case against the service station owners.

Canon 20 of that code says lawyers or prosecutors cannot ethically discuss with the press anything but the bare, recorded facts of pending litigation.

He said he would ask the Bar Association to reprimand Morgan.

"This is a classic example of the lesson we all should have learned from the Watergate mess: that politics and the administration of justice do not mix," Hamilton said.

Morgan, when asked about staff from a housecleaning by his intentions, has said he will the appointee Gov. Jim Holnot resign until after the pri- shouser, a Republican, would mary in order to protect his put in his place.

Tries Migraine Machine 'Cure'

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP)

Once a week, Angela Green attaches her right index finger to an electrode and thinks warm thoughts for a desk-sized instrument studded with dials and knobs.

It's her way of fighting migraine headaches.

Angela, 22, began having severe headaches five years ago. She tried various drugs but said nothing was really satisfactory.

"Then one day, while experiencing the excruciating throbbing best described as something between having a darned needle sticking in my temples and having a vise clamped over the head, something caught my eye," she recalled.

It was an advertisement last summer in the Marshall University student newspaper that said the psychology department was seeking migraine sufferers willing to try bio-feedback, a method of training a person to control parts of the body.

Now, Angela is one of about 20 persons who make regular visits to be linked to the department's dynagraph—a cousin of a lie detector—that records biological responses.

Hooked to the machine, Angela murmurs phrases designed to soothe and relax: "I am quiet, relaxed.... My hands and arms are heavy and warm ... I feel very quiet ... My whole body is relaxed and my hands are warm, relaxed and warm ..."

The electrode senses the heat of Angela's finger and the machine displays the temperature on a graph that she can see.

Donald Chezik, director of clinical training for the psychology department, said the idea is to train a subject to raise the heat of the hands by watching the graph's display of skin temperature.

"The theory is that migraine headaches are caused by the expansion of arteries in the brain and that, by warming up the hands, you channel the blood flow there and relieve the pressure in the head," Chezik said.

He estimated 10 per cent of the population, especially women, is tormented by migraines.

"We don't have a lot of evidence yet, but most of the people we've treated have been very pleased," he said.

"I used to have three or four headaches a week, including a couple each month that would completely debilitate me," Angela said. "The figure's down to about one a month now, and it's been since last fall that one stopped me cold."

all the facts, do we?"

"I do."

"I forgot that. You probably do. Listen, what are the chances of impeachment?"

"Is this a prayer or a question?"

"I was just curious. It would be fun to be the first one in the country to know."

"I'd rather not comment on impeachment while the matter is now in the courts."

"What else do you want for America, God?"

"Peace, good health care, protection of the individual and an excess profits tax on the oil industry. I would also like to see the Arab oil embargo lifted before Americans really start getting mean to each other."

"You'll have to speak to Henry Kissinger about that."

"I have a call into him now, but he's out of the country."

"Is there anything else?"

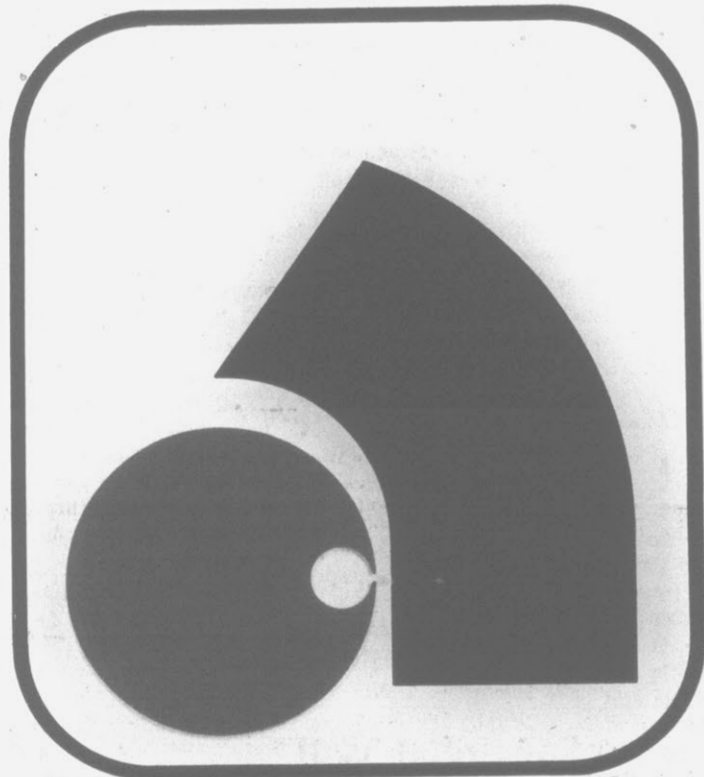

"There is a lot more, but I can't talk to you now. I've got Billy Graham on the other line."

Iraq Claims A Border Threat

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—The government-controlled Iraqi press charged today that Iran was massing troops and armor along the border between the two countries.

Baghdad newspapers said military spokesmen told them the Iranian buildup was accelerated after heavy border clashes Sunday.

Iraq claimed 70 Iranian casualties in the fighting, which it said occurred in the Badra area, 100 miles east of Baghdad and about five miles from the frontier. A broadcast Sunday said 23 Iraqis were killed, but today the report was one officer killed and 22 men wounded.

There was no account of the clash from Iran.

An Iraqi army communiqué claimed both sides used heavy artillery.

Assisted In Emergency

Greenville police, Pitt County Sheriff's officers and the Highway Patrol teamed up yesterday to aid a local family take their four-year-old daughter to Duke University medical center in Durham for emergency care.

Spokesmen at Pitt Memorial Hospital said the child, Donna Leigh Wells, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alton Wells of 104F Lakeview Terrace, was brought to the hospital's emergency room about 9 p.m. Following an examination, the parents were advised to take the child to Duke University hospital where she had received treatment in the past.

But the parents did not have enough gas to make the trip.

Greenville Police Lieutenant Clifton Warren made arrangements with his brother who operates a service station to supply the gas for the trip to Durham. The Highway Patrol, after being contacted by the Pitt County Sheriff's Department, agreed to help the Wells' secure enough fuel for their return trip to Greenville.

In 1972, a research grant of $9,800 was awarded him by the North Carolina Board of Science and Technology for further investigation on the same subject.

Drexel Police Chief Bill Lipard quoted Childers as saying Knighton came to his home in Drexel with two companions late Saturday afternoon. Lipard said Childers told officers he got out his shotgun when the three refused to leave. When Knighton tried to take the gun away, Childers reportedly said, it discharged.

No Vote On Endorsement

Dallas McPherson, a Greenville attorney and member of the local Young Republican Club said the platform committee at the Young Republican state convention, meeting in Durham Saturday, endorsed a four-year medical school at East Carolina University.

McPherson emphasized, however, that the platform was tabled and never brought before the entire convention for action.

The local Young Republican said the platform committee endorsed the four-year medical school platform plank by a vote of four to two.

Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser has made known his opposition to an expanded medical education program at ECU, although Republican Senator Jesse Helms, has expressed support for expansion of the ECU program.

"It's always tough to oppose the governor," McPherson said, "but I'm encouraged that the platform committee endorsed the four-year medical school."

McPherson said the medical school plank was brought before the Platform Committee by Pitt Young Republican Club.

A Taste For Wine Grows On Japanese

TOKYO (AP)—Wine is no longer a snob appeal item in Japan, where people often try and adopt a more Western life style.

Local wine industry spokesmen say it is going to be a top money making item. Prospects are for more imports and more domestic production of wine. A splash of advertisements on trains, subways and streets of Tokyo urges Japanese to try it and enjoy.

Introduced to Japan in the 16th century by Portuguese and Spanish missionaries, wine was first considered a blend of human blood by the Japanese. As years went on it became a prestige drink for leading government officials and wealthy merchants. Japanese artists cherished wine as a special treat of the West, especially Paris—their spiritual capital.

But now when even farmers travel overseas, the snob appeal business about wine appears over.

"Like beef, wine will become a most popular item at the Japanese table," said officials of one Tokyo department store where about 5,000 bottles of imported wine are kept in stock.

Although average Japanese consumption of wine is far less than that of the French and Italians, statistics for last year show imports and domestic production are moving up, retailers say.

It appears the Japanese might have to settle one problem: proper form—a factor this nation attaches to almost every new introduction of Western goods.

When one wine fair opened recently, wine counselors lectured audiences on manners for drinking wine. Newspapers and magazines carry articles telling what they call authentic ways to enjoy wine.

Bottles of imported and local wines are lined up in department stores and smaller shops with price tags of 500 yen to 100,000 yen, or 1.76 to 357 U.S. dollars, a bottle. Imported wines come from about 20 countries, including France, Italy, Spain, Portugal, West Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria.

The Japanese have their own version of rice wine called sake. But many, especially women, argue that sake is a liquor, not wine, saying it is too strong a drink for the ladies.

how to SAVE MONEY this winter on your HEATING BILL...

1. Turn the thermostat down. Please do it now.
2. Turn the heating thermostat down an extra 5 degrees at night. When away from home for 24 hours or more, turn your thermostat down to its lowest setting, ideally 52 degrees.
3. Turn off heat in unused rooms.
4. Insulate exterior walls, ceilings and floors.
5. Have heating equipment checked annually to make sure it is operating efficiently.
6. Change heating filters as soon as they get dirty.
7. Wear sweaters and warm clothing while indoors.
8. Turn off unused lights, particularly in unheated rooms.
9. Install storm windows and doors, or put in weather stripping. Double-pane glass will keep heat inside your home.
10. Seal all cracks. Weather stripping and caulking windows and doors will keep the cold out, and the heat in.
11. Let the sunshine in. Keeping shades up and draperies open during the day helps heat your home. At night, close them for added insulation. Draperies should fit snugly around window and across window sill or floor when closed to prevent cool air from entering.
12. Keep chimney dampers closed or block off fireplaces when they're not in use. A lot of heat is wasted up the flue.
13. Open vents in attics and crawl spaces to prevent condensation.
14. Maintain humidity levels of 45 to 50 per cent, so the heat level can be comfortably lowered even more. This makes a humidifier a good investment during winter months.

Yogi's Son Has Colt Contract

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — With the tape recorders turned on and the film cameras ready to roll, Joe Thomas was given his cue:

"Gentlemen," said the general manager of the Baltimore Colts, "the press conference, as you know, is to announce the signing of Tim Berra, wide receiver."

When the unusual Sunday conference was opened to questions, however, most were directed toward Berra's famous father—baseball immortal Yogi Berra, who now manages the New York Mets.

"Tim doesn't say much," Yogi had said earlier. "His coach at Massachusetts told me that. And, the trainer said he never saw him. He plays hurt."

"That's the kind of player we like," Thomas said. "We don't want those who are too familiar with the trainers."

Later, at the conference, Thomas gave young Berra extremely high marks for his raw talent and dedication, while conceding his size didn't meet normal National Football League standards.

"Tim runs excellent pass routes and has great hands," Thomas said. "He'll catch anything near him. But the main thing is his dedication to the game, and his willingness to learn."

At the University of Massachusetts, the 5-foot-11, 184-pound Berra caught 62 passes last season for 930 yards and 13 touchdowns, and also returned kicks. After the regular season, he played in the North-South and American Bowl games.

Coach Dick MacPherson of Massachusetts said recently that Berra's size and speed didn't merit his being chosen any higher than the 17th round where he was picked by the Colts.

"If you put Tim Berra in one of those computers," MacPherson said, "he'd be a washout. But this kid is something special. Whatever he has, he uses. He's just a super achiever."

Two recent 17th-round picks, running back Don Nottingham in 1971 and linebacker Stan White in 1972, stuck with the Colts and Thomas noted that two free agents made the squad last season.

Tim, 22, played baseball in high school and prep school, but concentrated on football when he reached college.

Yogi, on the other hand, said he had played touch football in the streets and tackle on the sandlots while growing up in "The Hill" section of St. Louis.

"I played center on offense," Yogi said. "But I liked it when the other team had the ball, so I could tackle."

Former Star Is Hockey Coach

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Dick Toomey, 27, a former Boston University star, is the new head coach of Brown's varsity hockey team.

Toomey, the Brown freshman coach for two years, was awarded the varsity job on a permanent basis Sunday. He had been named "interim" coach last Thursday when J. Allan Soares was fired for alleged failure to control the conduct of Brown players on the ice.

East Carolina University's Pirates, after two blow-'em-out victories last week, take their Whiz Kids show on the road again this week, playing two important Southern Conference games. Tonight, the Pirates are in Boone, meeting the last place Mountaineers of Appalachian State, But Coach Tom Quinn doesn't regard the last place standing of the Mounties as anything but a challenge to his Pirates. Appalachian has little to gain with a victory, since their chances of leaving the cellar of the league are nil, but they have nothing to lose with a loss either, so they should be quite loose. And the Pirates have always had trouble with Appalachian State on their home court.

Even in Greenville this year, the Pirates were hard pressed by the Mounties to win, getting a victory only by two points in the final minute of the game after trailing the entire contest.

East Carolina currently is 6-4 in the league, resting in fourth place, but they could move to within half-a-game of third with a win, and just about sew up a seeded position in the tournament; less than two weeks away.

Appalachian is 1-8, a full game behind Virginia Military Institute, but the Mounties must play them later this week, and that game may occupy their minds a little more than this one tonight will.

East Carolina, playing like it wanted to, had little trouble in rolling to victory over Buffalo State on Wednesday of last week, then taking a 93-63 win over William & Mary Saturday night. The Pirate offense operated at a good clip, and the defense was superb in that game. The Bucs held William & Mary to only a 25 per cent shooting accuracy in the second half, so well did they cover them.

But where William & Mary presented a problem of height to the Bucs, Appalachian State will present a different problem. The Mountaineers depend on their hot-shooting guards to do the damage for them. Currently, ASU's top scorer, Stan Davis, senior guard, is locked in a scoring battle with Aron Stewart of Richmond for the league's scoring title. Davis, going into last week's games, was averaging 24.6 points per game. He's joined in the backcourt by Charlie Barnes, their other top scorer, and the two will challenge the Bucs with long-range bombs.

East Carolina, which has placed five men in double figures in three of the last four games, has a move balanced attack, and has been able to go to its bench without loss of ability. For instance, one of those in double figures twice during those last few games has been Larry Hunt, freshman back up man for Nicky White.

The outside scoring of Reggie Lee and Donnie Owens has helped the Bucs open up the inside for Hunt and Nicky White, the team's leading scorer. While Robert Geter is bombing away from both the outside and inside.

After tonight's game, the Bucs will be idle until Saturday, when they play another key game, traveling west again, this time to meet on-charging Davidson. The Wildcats, after being stunned in their first three conference games, including a romp by East Carolina, have come back to win their last five in a row, and are currently in third place in the league. They have only one other game left in the loop, a trip to Appalachian next week. East Carolina must beat them if they are to finish above the Wildcats in the standings.

But that's something the Bucs have never done in cramped Johnston gym, in fact, only twice in the last five or six years, have the 'Cats been beaten on their home court within the league. After that game, the Bucs come home to meet Richmond and The Citadel during the final week of the regular season.

Other conference games this week find The Citadel at Furman on Tuesday, Appalachian State at VMI on Wednesday, and Richmond at Furman on Wednesday. Saturday night, besides the ECU-Davidson game, Richmond is at The Citadel, and VMI is at Furman.

Non-league games send Virginia Tech to William & Mary tonight, then to Richmond on Tuesday. Davidson visits State on Wednesday, and Iona is at William & Mary on Thursday. Saturday, Lenoir Rhyne visits ASU, and William & Mary meets peninsula rival Old Dominion in Norfolk.

Whips The Best In Her 1st Victory

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (AP) — The first victory of her career as a pro was a big one for Gail Denenberg, who whipped 15 of the best women golfers in the country for a $15,000 payoff.

"I knew if the putts dropped, I'd be all set," said the University of Miami graduate after picking up the winner's check in the Sears Women's Classic Golf Tournament Sunday.

Miss Denenberg, from Middletown, N. Y., fired a two-under par 71 in the 18-hole medal play final to win by two strokes over Jane Blalock of Highland Beach, Fla. Miss Blalock collected $10,000.

The field had been reduced to 16 after two days of match play among 64 members of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour. The match-play losers staged a one-round medalist playoff of their own, won by Donna Caponi Young.

There was a five-way tie for third in the main tourney. Shooting 74 and winning $4,570 each were 1972 champion Betsy Cullen, Tulsa, Okla.; Susie Berning, Pasadena, Calif.; JoAnn Prentice, Birmingham, Ala.; Sandra Palmer, Fort Worth, Tex.; and Murle Breeer, Nashville, Tenn.

Miss Blalock lost an opportunity to tie and force a playoff by taking successive bogeys on the 11th and 12th holes. On 18, she had a putt of about 100 feet, which she placed about two feet from the hole. She dropped that for a birdie, giving her sole possession of second place.

"It just feels good to be near the top again," she said.

"I had nothing to lose and everything to gain today," said Miss Denenberg, who is LPGA treasurer.

Her biggest single paycheck prior to this tournament was $2,356 which she received by tying for second in Sacramento last year.

Judy Rankin, who was the hottest player in the tournament the first two days, broke into tears coming off the ninth green because of pain in her back.

Tournament Action Opens On 5 Fronts

Tournament action opens tonight and later this week on five fronts involving teams in the Pitt-Martin-Greene area in all four classes of basketball.

The 4-A schools of Division I will wind up their regular season play on Tuesday night, completing the pairings at that time. It is still uncertain how the standings will come out at this time, and only speculation can be made on who meets who.

The first two teams in the standings, Rocky Mount and Bertie, will receive byes in the first round, which will be played Thursday night. The number three team, probably Wilson, will meet the number six team, probably Northern Nash, at three's home court. Four, probably Northeastern of Elizabeth City, will host five, probably Rose, again at the site of four.

The Thursday night winners will travel to meet Bertie and Rocky Mount, with the 3-6 winner taking on 2, probably Bertie, and the 4-5 winner meeting the regular season champ.

The finals will be held next Tuesday night, with the winner meeting the number two team in Division II prior to Saturday, Feb. 23, in the first round of the State tournament. The winner advances into the eight-team finals in Greensboro.

Two 3-A tournaments for girls will involve area teams. Members of the Eastern Carolina Conference will hold their girls and junior varsity tournament at Southern Wayne High School starting tonight.

In tonight's only girls' game, regular season champ North Pitt meets Greene Central. That game starts at approximately 7:30 p.m.

Tuesday's 6 p.m. game sends Ayden-Grifton against Charles B. Aycock, while at 9 p.m., Eastern Wayne meets Farmville Central.

Wednesday at 6 p.m., Southern Nash takes on Southern Wayne, while the North Pitt-Greene Central winner takes on the survivor of the A-G, CBA game at 9 p.m.

Thursday at 7:30 p.m., the other semi-final game will be held, with the finals Friday night at 8:30 p.m.

North Pitt has already been awarded a berth in the district tournament the following week, but they will be the only team from the area to qualify unless another team gains an upset in the tournament.

Williamston will play host to the Northeastern girls area tournament, a preliminary to the District One girls tournament.

Wednesday night, Plymouth will meet Kinston at 7 p.m., while Northern Nash and Bertie collide at 8:30 p.m.

Then, on Thursday, the Plymouth-Kinston winner takes on Williamston at 7 p.m., while Northern Nash-Bertie's winner meets Edenton at 8:30 p.m. The finals will be at 7:30 p.m. on Friday.

The top two teams from the conference will move into the girls district tournament the following week, also to be held at Williamston.

In the 2-A play, Robersonville's boys and girls will be involved in tournament play in the Eastern Plains Conference tournament.

The girls open play on Monday with four games at two different sites. Robersonville's girls play at 7 p.m. at West Edgecombe High School against North Johnston. The winner of that game will meet the West Edgecombe-North Edgecombe winner at 7 p.m. Thursday at Atlantic Christian College in Wilson. The finals will be held Saturday night at 7 p.m.

The Robersonville boys open action Tuesday at 7 p.m. in Elm City, meeting West Edgecombe. The winner of that game will meet the Elm City-Rock Ridge winner at 8:30 p.m. Thursday at ACC. The finals will also be held Saturday night at ACC, at 8:30 p.m.

Robersonville's boys have already qualified for the district tournament, to be played at West Craven. They meet the top teams from the Coastal Plains Conference on Tuesday, Feb. 19.

The Robersonville girls still have an outside chance of qualifying for a district berth at Louisburg next week, but would have to advance far in the tournament to do so.

In the 1-A ranks, Bear Grass and Gamesville will play in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin tournament to be held in Washington. Tonight at 6 p.m., Bath's girls take on Jamesville, while the Bath boys' meet Bear Grass in the second game. The third game pits the Belhaven girls against Bear Grass.

Tuesday, Belhaven and Chocowinity meet in one boys' game, while Aurora and Matamuskeet collide in another. Pantego's girls meet Matamuskeet in the other game.

Wednesday, Chocowinity and Aurora's girls meet at 7 p.m., while the Jamesville boys and Pantego collide in the second game.

Thursday and Friday, semi-final games will be held, with the championships on Saturday. The two top girls teams move into the Williamston district tournament, while the boys top five teams move into their district field.

Saturday night, two boys basketball games will be held as preliminaries to the District 3-A tournament for the Eastern Carolina Conference. Charles B. Aycock will host Farmville Central in one game, while Southern Wayne meets Eastern Wayne in the other. The winners advance into the following week's full tournament schedule.

State tournaments in all levels will be played the last week in February.

Katona Ignores Years On Track

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Step aside George Blanda, Sam Snead and Hank Aaron. Iggy Katona wants to move to the head of the class in the sports world's "Over the Hill Gang."

And David Pearson will soon be eligible for membership, though it's the last thing he wants to think about.

Katona and Pearson may even want a special niche in the oldest's club. They are race drivers, and good ones, in what is considered the most dangerous of all bit-time sports.

Katona, who admits to 58 summers, drove a Dodge to victory Sunday in the first event of Daytona's 16th "Speed Weeks" festival, a 200-mile race for short track drivers aligned with the Midwest-based Auto Racing Club of America.

Pearson, who will be 40 before another Christmas arrives, powered a Mercury to a speed of 185.017 miles per hour to capture the front row pole position for next Sunday's $200,000 Daytona 500 stock car race for Grand National drivers of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing.

Richard Petty, who like Pearson is a $1 million career prize money winner, mailed the other front row spot with a speed of 183.176 mph. At 36, Petty is a few years away from membership in the extremely wealthy.

Katona, who started racing in 1935, posted an average speed of 145.044 m.p.h. in nipping Ron Hutcherson 31, of Keokuk, Iowa, by five car lengths.

It was his third victory at Daytona Beach and, he figures, his 321st triumph in competition.

Third place went to Earl Ross of Ailsa Craig, Ont., in a Chevrolet; fourth to Paul Feldner of Richfield, Wis., in a Dodge; and fifth to Jim Tobin of Hudson, Ill., also in a Dodge.

Hutcherson, who drove a Mercury, and Katona and Ross were the big leaders. But it was Katona who ripped by his two chief rivals going down Daytona International Speedway's 3,010-foot backstretch and gained the lead for good with four laps remaining.

Pearson and Petty, who together have won seven NASCAR Grand National riving titles, now have exclusive rights to the front row for the Daytona 500, which because of the energy crisis will be run at 450 miles this year.

Thirty-six other Grand National entries made qualifying runs Sunday, and their speeds will be used for lineup purposes in two 112.5-mile elimination races Thursday. Drivers will be awarded one of the 38 remaining positions in the 40-car Daytona 500 field according to the way they finish in their heat race.

Campaign Is Ready For ACC Playoff Positions

Golfing 'Unknown' Wins Desert Classic Honors

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — "My name," Hubert Green said, "is not exactly a household word."
"I don't suppose it is now."
Green made the comment Sunday after his seven-under-par 65 had propelled him from three strokes off the pace to a victory in the Bob Hope Desert Golf Classic. His 341 total, 19 under par, was two strokes ahead of Bert Yancey, who had a final round 70.

The last of the five rounds of this 90-hole tournament was spread over four desert courses.
Green collected $32,048 from the purse of $160,000 and vaulted past idle Jack Nicklaus into second place on the season's money-winning list with $47,386 for the year.

John Mahaffey came on to take third in the bright, warm sunshine of the final round, shooting a 67 and a 347 total.

Johnny Miller, winner of the first three tournaments of the year, made one early run at the leaders but faltered down the stretch and finished in a four-way tie for fourth at 349.

He had a final round 70—the 20th consecutive time this season he's matched or broken par—but won $100,000 for the season faster than it'd ever been done before.

He won $6,249 and has $100,932 for the year.

Miller was tied with Bob Murphy, Mark Hayes and Mike McCullough. Murphy had a closing 66, McCullough 67 and Hayes 68.

Arnold Palmer, the 44-year-old defending champion, never got in contention. He finished with a 73-362, far, far back in the field.

Green, 27, an Alabama native and a Florida State product, started the day's play three strokes behind Yancey, the veteran who had led since his 11 under-par 61 in Friday's third round.

Green caught him on the front nine, running off one string of three consecutive birdies, then pulled ahead with another birdie burst down the stretch. He reached the par five 14th in two and two-putted, threw an iron about four feet from the flag on the next hole and made it from only two feet on the next.

That staked him to a solid lead and a birdie on the final hole—he chipped to six feet and dropped the putt—put it out of reach.

Dartmouth Wins 3-Day Ski Meet

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — Dartmouth College is the champion of its annual Winter Carnival ski meet for the 36th time.

The host Big Green piled up 146 points during the three-day, four event meet which concluded Saturday. Middlebury was second followed by 1973 champion Vermont.

Ladies' Bowling Tournament Set

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Women's International Bowling Congress has scheduled its 1975 championships at the 64-lane Meadows Bowl on the northeast side of Indianapolis.

The tournament will open April 3 next year and run through May, 1975. About 30,000 women are expected to take part in the event.

With three weeks left in the Atlantic Coast Conference basketball season, North Carolina and Maryland will be struggling for good position for the league playoffs.

The Tar Heels, who play at Maryland Wednesday, must beat the Terps and North Carolina State on each of their home territories to get a shot at the coveted first-round bye.

Even if the Tar Heels are winners in both contests, they must also win a coin toss for the right to sit out the opening round.

Meanwhile, second-ranked North Carolina State, fresh from a pair of whopping victories over the weekend, remains on top with a 7-0 league record.

The North Carolina-Maryland contest, featuring the conference's second and third-ranked clubs, highlights the week's schedule. In other games Wednesday, Virginia is at Duke, Clemson hosts Wake Forest, and Davidson of the Southern Conference is at N.C. State.

Saturday's schedule finds Maryland at Clemson, Wake Forest at N.C. State, Georgia Tech at Duke, Navy at Virginia and North Carolina vs. Florida State in Greensboro.

During the weekend, North Carolina and N.C. State each rolled up easy wins against hopelessly outclassed teams in the North-South doubleheader in Charlotte.

The Wolfpack, who knocked off Georgia Tech 98-64 Friday, trounced Furman 111-91 Saturday night. After a 95-69 win over Furman Friday, the fourth-ranked Tar Heels humiliated Georgia Tech 112-70 Saturday.

N.C. State's David Thompson sank 26 points for the Wolfpack, whom Tar Heel Coach Dean Smith labelled the best team in the nation today.

Tar Heel Darrell Elston sank 20 points against Georgia Tech, and teammate Bobby Jones added 18.

Smith, who couldn't be too upset after a 42-point victory, said his team "did have some sloppy ball handling and will have to play much better against Maryland Wednesday night."

The Virginia Cavaliers, tied for third in the league with five conference losses, rallied from a 19-point deficit to trim Wake Forest 86-83.

Scoring 20 points, Gus Gerard piloted the Virginia comeback and sank the tying bucket with 16 seconds left. The Cavaliers used nine free throws and a field goal to take the victory in overtime. Tony Byers and Dan Moody had 17 points each for Wake Forest.

Seventh-ranked Maryland whalloped George Washington 92-71 behind a 24-point performance by Tom McMillen. John Lucas added 20.

Duke lost to third-ranked Notre Dame 87-68 in South Bend, Ind. The Irish outshot the Blue Devils 21-4 during a second half spree. Edgar Burch led the Blue Devils with 12 points, and Notre Dame's Adrian Dantley poured in 27.

Clemson was idle.

Going into the final three weeks, N. C. State leads the league with a 7-0 mark in the ACC and an 18-1 record overall.

Star Runners For Pro Tour

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Having corraled Ben Jipcho of Kenya, the 31-year-old Nairobi prison guard, the International Track Association now will likely try and track down Mirus Yifter, the diminutive tech sergeant in the Ethiopian Air Force, for the 1974 pro tour beginning Friday night at the Nassau Coliseum in Uniondale, N.Y.

The 25-year-old, 5-foot-6, 115-pound Yifter became a prime target for the pros Saturday night when he clipped more than 11 seconds off the world indoor record for the 5,000-meter run with a time of 13 minutes, 34.1 seconds at the Mason-Dixon Games in Louisville, Ky.

In his first try at the distance indoors, the little father of two put on a brilliant finishing kick in shattering the record of 13:45.2, set in 1969 by Vyacheslav Alanov of the Soviet Union.

The scintillating effort by Yifter, one of Africa's world class performers, preceded Sunday's announcement by the ITA that Jipcho, another of Africa's long line of long distance runners, had turned pro and likely would compete Friday night.

Jipcho is the world record holder in the 3,000-meter steeplechase with a time of 8:14, and has run the second fastest mile in history (3:52.0), the third fastest two-mile (8:16.4) and the fourth fastest 1,500-meter (3:33.2).

Walked Into Chair; Chris To The Bank

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
When Kerry Melville walked into a chair, Chris Evert walked into the bank—$10,000 richer. And Althea Gibson walked into the picture.

"I got up in the middle of the night and just walked into the leg of a chair," said Miss Melville, who suffered a fractured toe in the accident and had to withdraw from Sunday's finals against Miss Evert in the $50,000 Women's Tennis Classic in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

"I feel really bad about it," said the Australian Miss Melville, seeded No. 2 behind Miss Evert, the hometown favorite. "I played really well yesterday (trouncing Nancy Gunter 6-1, 6-1) and was really looking forward to the match."

With Miss Melville bowing out, Miss Evert, who had whipped Rosemary Casals 6-0, 6-1 in their semifinal, took home the $10,000 top prize—and took on Miss Gibson in a hastily arranged substitute match.

"It was a fun match for me because I was relaxed," Chrissie said after waltzing to a 6-1, 6-2 victory over Miss Gibson, an almost unbeatable champion two decades ago.

And Althea, enjoying her role as the underdog against the young Miss Evert, said she "enjoyed playing against Chris, who was certainly very tough." Then she quipped: "But wait until I get her on my courts."

A bit further north, in North Little Rock, Ark., Jimmy Connors, Chris' fiance, made out equally well on the courts but came out second best financially.

The top-seeded 21-year-old from Belleville, Ill., defeated West Germany's Karl Meiler 62, 6-2 to win the Arkansas International Tournament, a silver cup and $4,000.

On the World Championship Tennis tour, top-seeded John Newcombe of Australia grabbed the $10,000 winner's prize with a 6-0, 7-6 victory over Russia's Alex Metreveli in the $50,000 Raymond James Classic in St. Petersburg, Fla. Newcombe breezed through the 20-minute first set, then had to struggle the rest of the way, including a 7-3 tie-breaker.

"I lost my timing at 4-0 in the first set," said Newcombe. "For the rest of the match I couldn't get my first serve in, and that's a problem against a player like Metreveli, who has such a good service return."

Newcombe teamed with countryman Owen Davidson in the doubles final and the top-seeded Aussies rallied to defeat Clark Graebner of New York and Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

In Torquay, England, British men swept the United States 5-0 and English women topped the Americans 3-2 in the under-21 International Tennis Cup.

The Worry Clinic Use Trips For Learning, Too

Notice the annual trek that Judy makes with her 3 older children, now aged 12, 13 and 14. They relish these summer jaunts and live on a rigid budget for their trip, which adds zest.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.
CASE Z-546: Judy R., aged 39, is our only daughter.

She married a sales executive and they have 4 children.

Each summer, however, she takes the youngsters on a 2-weeks' auto trip to visit one of our 50 states.

In advance, they study all about its history and peruse the data thereon that is listed in the encyclopedia.

"We started alphabetically," she informed us, "so we have already covered Alabama, (Alaska was omitted by order of her husband who didn't think she should try to drive up there), then Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado and last summer it was Connecticut.

Although they cover maybe a dozen intervening states en route to their destination, they focus on their target destination.

"Daddy," she said when they got back to our summer home in Indiana, where we had kept the youngest, a boy aged 2, "I have a question for you.

"Do you know how the command originated that a person must clean his plate before he can have any dessert?"

Well, I guessed that it was a frugal desire to avoid wasting food back in pioneer days when victuals were scarce.

"No, that's not it," she replied. "One of our guides in Connecticut told us that when the early settlers came to New England, they could bring only one chest aboard ship.

"So they included a skillet and other kitchen utensils, plus bedding, but were short of dishes.

"When they arrived over here, they made wooden plates with a raised rim under each.

"Unless they cleaned their plates, they couldn't be served pie or cake.

"Because they had to turn their plates over and use the bottom for their dessert.

"Thus, they were forced to wipe their plate dry to avoid messing up the table!"

Judy and the children also told me of the splendid old homes they had visited, with walk-in fireplaces.

But in one large mansion, they were told that the early inhabitants smoked their meat on the 3rd floor.

Puzzled, they climbed the stairs to find the answer.

And there on one side of the room was the chimney but with a door that could be opened.

Inside were iron hooks on which the family could thus hang their meat and let it become smoked from the fire downstairs in the fireplace.

"Daddy," Judy also informed me, "you would have enjoyed the 'Horse Sense' used by Paul Revere and his comrades.

"His lantern had no glass chimney but instead of glass, there was a metal cylinder, punched full of hundreds of small holes.

"Thus, at a distance, the candle therein shone brightly.

"But the holes were punched from inside outward, why?

"To prevent the wind from blowing inward and extinguishing the candle.

"Besides, the rain also dropped off the many metal cone-shaped projections that resembled an enlarged nutmeg grater. Pretty clever."

And I agreed. Those pioneers had a lot of "Horse Sense" or gumption!

Moreover, I used the same by letting my children travel so they can bring home the interesting data without my having to leave my typewriter, ha!

New High In Gold Prices

LONDON (AP) — Gold soared to record levels on European markets today. Dealers blamed fears for the values of paper money amid mounting indications that central banks may soon increase the official price of gold.

Gold traded at $146 an ounce in London and $147 an ounce in Zurich. The price at Friday's close in London was $143.50.

Opening prices on the Zurich bullion market, the world's biggest, were $145 bid and $147 offered, up from $142-$144 Friday.

The previous record price in Zurich was $143 on Jan. 25.

The bullish weekend trend was touched off by reports from Johannesburg, the mining center for the West's gold, that a consortium of West European countries, including France, Italy and perhaps West Germany, might begin buying at a price related to the free market price.

The trend picked up because of an interview published today in which French Finance Minister Valery Giscard d'Estaing said he expected an increase in the official price of gold this year.

Child Trapped In Hole, Dies

MIAMI (AP) — Little Glen Greenstein was with his parents in a tomato field when he suddenly cried "Mother!" and slipped feet first into a narrow irrigation well.

A witness at the scene, a field south of Miami open to the public where a person pays to the tomatoes he picks, said the boy had been running toward his father when he "just disappeared. It was like the ground had swallowed him up."

The 2½-year-old boy became wedged Sunday about 6 feet down with water up to his knees. Sand and debris immediately began sifting in the hole, only 12 inches across at the top and narrowing to 10 inches in diameter where Glen was trapped.

As the boy's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Melvin Greenstein, and others attempted to pull him from the well, earth around the opening began to cave in.

Another picker, Bill Bauers of Miami, said: "We lowered an older kid head first into the hole, but all she could reach was a stuffed animal the little boy must have had with him."

The frantic father, a Miami-area dentist, drove to nearby Tamiami Airport and asked for rescue units to be sent out. Mark Treble, who had just landed his light plane at the airport, headed for the scene with three friends.

Treble, 22, tied a rope around his feet, and his friends lowered him head first down the hole.

He said he could see the top of the boy's head but the youngster didn't respond to his calls.

"I tried with what tools we had to dig down to the child," said Treble. "We managed to dig within several inches."

But "the more we dug, the more dirt kept piling in," said Treble, a tree surgeon. "The problem was that the hole was so narrow. It made it extremely difficult for us to dig."

Finally, a Florida Power & Light Co. truck used a pole-digging drill to bore a hole parallel to the well. Rescue unit personnel then tunneled across and pulled the child free.

But it was too late.

Little Glen had suffocated. Efforts to revive him were unsuccessful.

Q. 1 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♠ 1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣
Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—This is a somewhat better hand than partner might expect on the basis of a mere one-level overall. He has cooperated freely, and some further move is indicated. The least you can do is bid three spades, but a bid of three clubs would be more descriptive.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable and 60 on, as South you hold:
♠KJ954 ♥AK843 ♣1092

The bidding has proceeded:
East South

What do you bid?
A.—This hand is going to develop into a fight for the part score, so you should plan to bid both your suits. The proper way to go about this is to start with an overall of one spade. Something is bound to happen around the table on the first round, and you should be able to show your hearts at a reasonably safe level.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

What do you bid now?
A.—Your hand is too unbalanced to consider playing a no trump contract. The proper bid is four spades, describing a five-card suit and by inference showing six diamonds—with suits of equal length, you would have bid spades first. Partner must take a preference to one of your suits.

Farm Scene

By EDWIN L. YANCEY.

Will you market your farm products in 1974? Most farmers sell their farm produce but only a few market them, and there's a big difference according to Dr. T. E. Nichols. The N. C. State University Extension Marketing Economist says the farmer who sells his products just takes them to the market place and accepts what the buyer is willing to pay. Marketing, on the other hand, involves the producer in selecting where, when and how the sale will occur. The marketer can usually select from a range of prices.

How do you move from selling to marketing. According to Nichols, decisions must be made even before production begins. For example how much of a crop are you willing to produce for the expected future price? (To make this decision you need a lot of outlook data plus some knowledge of the history of production and price relationship.) You might need to decide if you want to tailor your crop to a specific market. (Producing white corn for the meal market is an example.) Other production decisions also affect marketing plans. For example, using herbicides to produce clean, weed-free soybeans, or the selection of a tobacco variety for quality characteristics. At harvest time the marketer decides whether to store for later sale (and a better expected price) or to move the product on to market because that looks to be the most profitable time to sell.

Two other marketing tools being used more by farmers, according to Dr. Nichols, are cash contracts and commodity futures. Both offer an additional opportunity to the marketer, he states. The cash contract is usually executed between a farmer and local markets. It usually specifies the amount and quality of product, time of delivery and the price to be paid.

Futures contracts can be sold by a producer to "hedge" the marketing risks. The futures contract also specifies the amount and quality of product, time of delivery, and the price to be paid. Futures must be sold in minimum lots (for example a single futures contract for soybeans must be for 5,000 bushels). The futures market is government regulated with carefully defined rules for operation. An interesting point about using futures as a "hedge" is that you don't deliver the product. Instead you buy back your contract and sell the product to a local buyer.

Of course, there are advantages and disadvantages to each. A major disadvantage of futures contracts is the volume requirement (it takes almost 200 acres to produce enough soybeans for one contract). A disadvantage of the cash contract is the lack of flexibility when the delivery date arrives. (Many buyers are not in a position to let a farmer buy back the contract. Therefore they may insist on delivery.) If you want to become a marketer instead of a seller, let us know. Agents in the Pitt County Extension Office have had specialized training in marketing. Individual counsel as well as group workshops may be used to help you decide what is best for your farm business.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Two engineers at North Carolina State University have developed a high-speed, extremely accurate machine that sorts fruit according to maturity.

As a result of the machine, consumers may eventually be able to purchase more uniformly mature fruit with more predictable keeping qualities.

Developers of the machine are Drs. Fred McClure and Roger Rohrbach, Biological and Agricultural engineers with N. C. State University's agricultural experiment station.

McClure and Rohrbach initially developed their "Berry-Matic" to sort blueberries into five categories of maturity from green to overripe. They have since used the machine to sort grapes and say the principle can be used to measure the maturity of any fruit.

The Berry-Matic sorts fruit in a two-step operation. First, it measures the maturity of a fruit by measuring the intensity of light that passes through the fruit pigment at two different wave lengths. Pigment density is a good indicator of sugar, acids, solids and other conditions of ripeness within a fruit.

After the Berry-Matic "reads the ripeness" of a fruit, it then sorts the fruit according to the degree of ripeness. The sorting is done by a quick blast of air as the fruit moves past the appropriate station.

The machine is capable of taking 1,000 fruit readings per second, and it can be built to sort fruit into an almost endless number of ripeness categories.

The scientists have actually built two models of the machine. The Berry-Matic is the laboratory model on which the operational principles were developed. Later a production line model was developed.

The production line model will sort about a pint of blueberries per second, placing them into one of the three ripeness categories. The capacity of the machine can be increased by widening the belt which picks up the fruit.

Not only is the machine fast, but it can measure differences in pigment concentrations that the human eye cannot detect.

Once a blueberry turns dark, for example, it is practically impossible for a person to look at the outside of the berry and determine if it is underripe or overripe. The machine can make this distinction instantaneously and sort the berries accordingly.

"We feel that the machine can help growers to determine the best time to harvest their fruit, and it can be used by processors to insure quality control," Rohrbach stated.

The N. C. State University machine, which is being patented, is considered a big improvement over an earlier but similar machine developed by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The USDA machine can measure the maturity of fruit as long as the fruit remains stationary. The N. C. State machine has the advantage of measuring the maturity of fruit while it is moving, which makes commercial use practical.

Concert In Jazz Slated Thursday

The annual "Concert in Jazz" of the Rose High School Stage Band will take place this year on Thursday, February 14 beginning at 8:00 p.m. in the Rose High Gymnasium.

James Rodgers will lead the high school musicians playing in the award winning band.

Two guest musicians will be featured in this year's concert. Roger Pemberton, saxophonist and woodwind specialist, has played with many nationally known bands—Woody Herman, Ralph Marterie, Ray Anthony, Buddy Morrow, Don Jacoby, Maynard Ferguson and the Al Cohn-Willis Connover New York Band.

He has also played in appearances with Peggy Lee, Sammy Davis, Jr., Pearl Bailey and Caterina Valente, and on television has been on the Merv Griffin Show as arranger and artist.

The other guest, Dick Gable, is a veteran trumpet player who will display his virtuosity in a performance of "I Love You Porgy" for Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess."

The Stage Band will play a wide range of styles in popular music, including Isaac Hayes' "Theme From The Men;" Thad Jones' "A Child is Born (which will feature Jimmy Rodgers on the flugel horn); a medley of tunes from Bernstein's "West Side Story;" and some big band classics, i.e. "String of Pearls," "In The Mood."

Tickets for the annual Rose High Stage Band concert are priced at $1.00 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Hear Sermon On Moral Courage

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon attended church services near the White House and heard a sermon calling for moral courage to face current problems.

The Rev. George M. Docherty, whose sermon was titled "What Happened to Courage," said man should have the courage to face failure.

"We just can't tolerate the idea we might lose. We must win in all our endeavors," he said Sunday.

Nixon drove three blocks to the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church with his wife Pat, daughter and son-in-law Julie and David Eisenhower, and Mamie Eisenhower, David's grandmother.

Ex-Aide Had Minor Stroke

BRONXVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — James Hagerty, press secretary to the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower, is listed in satisfactory condition at Lawrence Hospital after a minor stroke before being hospitalized two weeks ago, his son Bruce said Sunday.

Hagerty, 64, is vice president for corporate relations of the American Broadcasting Companies, Inc.

France Lists Cheaper Cafes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Air France has issued a new edition of its free guide to "Inexpensive Paris Restaurants Near Famous Monuments."

The guide lists 64 restaurants in 12 areas of Paris most often visited by tourists.

FBI Seeks 7 Persons In Hearst Girl Kidnaping

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — The FBI says it now seeks seven persons in the kidnaping of newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst and is "running out any number of leads" outside the state.

But the weekend passed without further word from the Symbionese Liberation Army (SLA), which said in a letter Thursday it was holding 19-year-old Miss Hearst.

At the Hearst mansion in Hillsborough, a family spokesman said Sunday was "a day of nothingness" for the victim's distraught parents, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph A. Hearst. The father is president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner.

"Everybody is clinging to the hope that Monday's mail will bring something," said Jack Cooke, a vice president of Hearst Corp.

The SLA letter said Miss Hearst would "be maintained in adequate physical and mental condition and unharmed" if the kidnapers' conditions are met.

"Should any attempt be made by authorities to rescue the prisoner or to arrest or harm any SLA elements, the prisoner is to be executed," the letter said. It promised that "Further communications will follow."

FBI Agent Thomas Druken said Sunday that in addition to five persons previously sought, authorities are looking for a white couple in their 20s. The two were parked in a dark, late model Volkswagen sedan near the Berkeley apartment from which Miss Hearst was carried last Monday night, screaming for help.

Druken said persons in the area saw the couple waiting in the car for "well over an hour in the immediate area where the apartment would be visible" but did not see them immediately after the kidnaping.

"Right now we're only seeking them as potential witnesses," said Druken. But he added that "if and when we find them" it's possible they could be linked to the abduction.

Composite drawings of the white woman and two black men who broke into the apartment and carried Miss Hearst off in the trunk of their car were released by the FBI Friday. A white man and a white woman who waited outside also are sought as participants.

Publication of the drawings brought calls from Chicago, Seattle, Washington, D.C., New York and some Southern states and expanded the investigation beyond California, Druken said.

The SLA, which says it has branches in other cities, has only about 25 persons in its multiracial group in this area, police say.

Steven Weed, 26, who was beaten by his fiancée's kidnapers, said of the composite drawings: "It is very hard—even when you know what someone looks like—to put together a drawing of them," he said.

Weed was released from a hospital Saturday and moved from Berkeley to the Hearst mansion 15 miles south of San Francisco. He repeated a pledge to newsmen not to testify against the kidnapers "if Patty is unharmed."

There has been speculation that instead of asking money to finance what they describe as their revolutionary work against the establishment, the group would seek release of two of its members held in San Quentin Prison.

Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24, are charged with the ambush shooting death of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster last Nov. 6.

Little's father, O. Jack Little of Pensacola, Fla., offered on Sunday to take Miss Hearst's place, though he admitted the group likely would not agree to the exchange.

"If you insist upon practicing the art of execution, then why not accept the exchange of myself, father of Russell Little," the elder Little asked the Symbionese Army in a letter he dictated over the telephone to the San Francisco Chronicle for publication today.

"If Russ Little and Joe Remiro are innocent in the Foster murder and are in fact victims of a police state, then how in heaven's name can the kidnaping and threatened execution of Patricia Hearst have any significance to Russ and Joe but to sustain their indictment?" he asked.

"Seeing as Russ is the only son I have, at least you could have the satisfaction of knowing that—you had been instrumental in the destruction of not only Russell but of his whole family.

"I beg you to think about it, and please agree to release that child unharmed."

What kind of gas mileage will you get with a small car?

United States Auto Club has some answers.

The United States Auto Club conducted mileage tests to determine what kind of mileage you can expect to get by driving a small car sensibly under normal driving conditions.

They tested four 6-cylinder cars, including the Dodge Dart Sport and Plymouth Duster (equipped with our 225 6-cylinder engine and new standard 2.76 rear axle), a Chevrolet Nova, a Ford Maverick and a four-cylinder Mustang II, all with manual transmissions. Using non-professional drivers, they took these 1974 cars over a 972-mile two-day trip through cities and towns and over the highway, doing their best to average 55 m.p.h. while on the open road.

The drivers stopped to rest, to eat and stay overnight, just as you would do on such a trip. Then the drivers put the cars through 108 miles of city traffic which included 229 traffic lights and 30 stop signs. A thorough test, thoroughly supervised by USAC.

TESTS SANCTIONED AND RESULTS CERTIFIED BY USAC, JANUARY, 1974.

Here are the certified results.

CERTIFIED: Dodge Dart Sport and Plymouth Duster—with 6-cylinder engines—delivered more miles per gallon in city traffic than Mustang II with 4-cylinders. And they delivered comparable mileage on the highway.

CERTIFIED: Plymouth Duster and Dodge Dart Sport delivered over 7 more miles per gallon than Maverick in city traffic.

CERTIFIED: Dodge Dart Sport and Plymouth Duster delivered over 8 more miles per gallon than Nova in city traffic.

CERTIFIED: Plymouth Duster and Dodge Dart Sport also delivered more miles per gallon than Nova or Maverick on the highway.

So if good gas mileage is important to you in a small car, we have the small cars you're looking for...plus a whole lot more...

- ...more trunk space than 3 Pintos
- ...20" more total hiproom than Maverick
- ...standard electronic ignition
- ...and a sticker price lower than VW's most popular model*

*Price comparison based on manufacturers' suggested retail price, excluding destination charges, dealer preparation, state and local taxes. Optional whitewall tires and wheel covers shown, $53.20 extra. Optional vinyl roof as shown on Plymouth Duster, $63.20 extra.
