Expects To Advise N.C. Plan For Gas-Rationing

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The executive director of the Governor's Energy Panel, Fowler Martin, is quoted as saying that he probably will recommend this week a voluntary statewide gasoline rationing plan for North Carolina.

The Charlotte Observer quotes him as saying in Raleigh in a telephone interview that he was studying rationing plans adopted in other states and believed North Carolina must have a plan. "I'll have to clear it with Gen. Tolson first, but it's beginning to look to me like we should be thinking of a statewide plan," the Observer quoted him.

Gen. John T. Tolson III, the chairman of the energy panel, had said previously that local officials in North Carolina should develop their own gasoline plans rather than wait for a statewide one. Tolson made the statement

Monday as two cities, Burlington, population 36,000, and Havelock, population 6,000, started limited rationing. They are using the Oregon plan under which motorists can buy on alternate days, depending on whether their license-tag numbers are odd or even. Filling stations are open a couple of hours in the morning and a couple of hours in the afternoon.

Avery Upchurch, who operates a station in Raleigh and is president of the North Carolina Service Station Association, said rationing would do little good until supplies are increased. He said stations can sell their entire weekly quotas in seven or eight hours.

Upchurch predicted the situation would improve. He urged motorists to be patient. He pointed out that the federal allocation plan has only begun this month and has not had time to work.

"All of the rationing plans have some merit, but you're still going to have lines and inconvenience for maybe two months," he said.

Gasoline dealers in Winston-Salem planned to meet today to discuss a possible retail allocation system for Forsyth County.

Service station operators in the Charlotte area will meet Thursday night to consider starting a plan to stop what their president, Wayne Mullis calls panic buying. Mullis avoided the using the word rationing. He said he would like to see a $3 minimum on purchases. He said this would end the problem of motorists seeking small amounts of gas to top off their tanks and clogging service station driveways.

Mullis met Monday with Charlotte Mayor John Belk. The mayor told him he thought the city should not take any stand on rationing, but would cooperate with whatever the dealers decide.

Stations in some other cities around the state were open only three or four hours a day. And dealers urged motorists not to come in to top their tanks.

The energy chairman, Gen. Tolson, said, "local officials are more aware of the particular problems in their areas, and we think they should take the initiative for developing plans to meet their specific problem. It's not that we're passing the buck. It's just that the situation varies greatly across the state, and I don't know of any single plan that will work out for everyone on a statewide basis."

France And U.S. At Opposite Poles In Energy Parleys

By ENDRE MARTON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The conference of 13 major oil consuming countries ends today with the expectation that it will schedule another high-level meeting at which producers and consumers, including those from the developing countries, will participate.

But otherwise speeches by foreign and finance ministers Monday appeared to confirm the prediction that the problems of the energy shortage go far beyond what a two-day meeting could resolve.

A communique to be issued tonight will show agreement on the seriousness of the situation and on the need for more study and further consultations. But, it is likely to camouflage the gap between the United States, on one extreme, and France, on the other.

The United States, represented by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, is pleading for complete cooperation and promising assistance to its friends and allies who are far more dependent on Arab oil than this country.

Michel Jobert, France's foreign minister, does not want to hear of such close cooperation which, he contends, is impossible because the United States, a major oil producer, cannot be compared with other countries that have to import every drop of oil they need.

Jobert, in an uncompromising speech, said that Europe must be free to tackle the problem and that it was "not desirable to establish a system of preliminary consultations with the other big consuming entities," such as the United States.

He also argued with Kissinger's request for "agreed rules of conduct" in dealings with the producers. The consumers, Jobert said, should not try to define a "new code ... let us not seek to establish or to impose a new world energy order."

Kissinger suggested that the conference set up some follow-up mechanism — he called it a "coordinating group" — but Jobert did not like this idea either.

Kissinger, as many times before in speeches and press conferences, again was critical about bilateral deals such as Jobert concluded in two recent tours of the Middle East.

"The only result of unmanaged bilateralism will be to bid up prices perhaps even beyond present levels, and to stabilize them at levels that will ruin the countries making the bilateral arrangements before they ruin everyone else," Kissinger told the conference.

A few hours later, at a White House dinner for the ministers, President Nixon backed up Kissinger on this point. It might be good politics to make such deals over the short term, "but over the long term it is bad statesmanship," Nixon said in his toast.

Jobert in his conference speech said there was nothing wrong with such bilateral arrangements, and he was supported by Britain's Sir Alec Douglas Home.

But in his firm resistance against the U.S. position Jobert unexpectedly was left alone: many of his colleagues in the Common Market were far more sympathetic to the Kissinger concept and one of them, Germany's finance minister Helmut Schmidt, in effect sided with the U.S. position.

Pay Scale Set For Prisoners

RALEIGH (AP) — Inmates of North Carolina's prison system qualified for outside work will be paid $2.52 an hour to work on the state highway system, state officials said today.

David Jones, secretary of social rehabilitation and control, said the program was worked out jointly by his agency and the Department of Transportation.

"I think this is just an example of how effective rehabilitation can be with two agencies working together," Jones said in a prepared statement announcing the start of the program.

Jones said the program would allow prisoners to earn normal wages while also undergoing rehabilitative programs. North Carolina's General Assembly outlawed the use of unpaid prison labor last year. A bill is before the legislature which only authorize some use of the so-called prison road gangs.

Jones said today elimination of the road crews had left prisoners restless and bored by inactivity. He said the situation had led to some misconduct.

Jones and Lentz said the program would utilize about 950 prisoners qualified for the correctional system's work-release plan. They will work on secondary road projects and maintenance programs.

Jones said the inmates would be paid at the same rate non-prisoners would be hired, with some inmates receiving up to $3.16 per hour.

"Since these will be work-release inmates, they could work on some federally funded projects," Lentz said.

Lentz said highway department personnel would not be charged with custodial responsibilities for the prisoners, but supervisors would evaluate the "work performance just as with any other employee."

Lentz said the program would start in early March with 175 inmates, expanding to 575 in mid-March and reaching full capacity in October.

He said regular highway employees would not be dismissed as a result of the program. Inmates will be employed "only after a vacancy occurs due to normal attrition or due to expanded work loads," Lentz said.

Re-Election Bid By Court Clerk

Pitt County Superior Court Clerk H. L. Lewis Jr. filed yesterday as a candidate for re-election to the post he has held since April 1, 1968.

Lewis has had 28 years experience as assistant clerk and as Clerk of Superior Court in Pitt County.

He became assistant clerk of court in 1946 and served in that capacity until becoming Clerk of Superior Court in 1968.

Lewis is a deacon in the First Presbyterian Church and a member of the Elks Lodge and is a past president of the Association of Assistant and Deputy Clerks of the Superior Court of North Carolina.

Nixon Subpoena Is Lost In The Mail

By LINDA DEUTSCH

Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service is trying to trace a missing registered letter containing a Los Angeles judge's subpoena for the testimony of President Nixon.

The subpoena, mailed by Superior Court Judge Gordon Ringer's clerk on Feb. 4, had not arrived in Washington, D.C., Superior Court by late Monday.

The judge said, "I'm rendered speechless."

Los Angeles Postmaster James J. Symbol said such a long delay in delivery of registered mail "is not normal at all" and that he was ordering a trace on the letter.

Ringer issued the order for Nixon's testimony at the request of the President's former top domestic adviser, John D. Ehrlichman.

The document asks Nixon to testify at a hearing Feb. 25 and at the trial of Ehrlichman and two other former White House aides, G. Gordon Liddy and David Young on April 15.

Liddy's attorney, Charles Gessler, raised the possibility that the Feb. 25 hearing might have to be postponed if the subpoena is not found and delivered soon.

The White House has said

Nixon will resist the order to testify, but it is likely that the Los Angeles hearing would not proceed until the matter of his possible appearance is settled.

The Washington court, under the uniform code covering out-of-state witnesses, was to hold a hearing on the matter following receipt of the subpoena. The Washington court could either order the subpoena served or quashed.

Ehrlichman, Liddy and Young are charged with burglary and conspiracy in the 1971 break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Ehrlichman also is charged with perjury.

Civilian Toll By Barrage

By DENIS GRAY

Associated Press Writer

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — The Cambodian military command today reported 139 killed and 46 wounded in the artillery and rocket barrage that hit the southern part of Phnom Penh Monday.

Newsman counted at least 200 wounded in the city's hospitals, and the military command said the death toll might go higher. Some of the wounded lay bleeding on cots in hospital hallways. Doctors said they were running low on plasma and medical supplies.

Fires caused by the shelling reduced hundreds of homes to ashes. Police and rescue workers searched for more victims in the debris.

Almost all of the dead were civilians, and many of them were women or children. Some sources said as many as 10,000 persons may have been made homeless.

The Khmer Rouge gunners poured 73 rounds of high explosive shells and 122mm rockets into densely populated market and slum areas in the southern part of the city during the middle of the afternoon. It was the war's most devastating bombardment of the Cambodian capital.

Two rounds also landed in the presidential palace compound, killing eight persons and wounding a dozen more in the palace's housing the palace guards and their families. Another round fell within 100 yards of the United States Embassy.

The Khmer Rouge batteries were believed located just across the Prek Thnot River, six miles southwest of Phnom Penh. President Lon Nol ordered helicopter gunships and planes to attack the area.

Phnom Penh's worst previous bombardment occurred in March 1972, when 112 persons were killed and 248 were wounded. The city has been shelled almost daily since Dec. 23; the attack Monday raised the total casualties to more than 300 dead and at least 700 wounded.

In South Vietnam, the Saigon government released more Viet Cong civilian prisoners today and received 100 South Vietnamese military personnel from the Communists in the third day of a three-week exchange schedule.

The plan calls for more than 4,000 civilian and military prisoners to be exchanged by March 1.

By late this afternoon, the Saigon government had released 168 civilian prisoners to the Viet Cong. Eight others re-

Trees Set Aside For Future Role

CRANE, Ind. (AP) — Two large groves of white oak will be set aside at the Crane Naval Ammunition Depot in southern Indiana for use as planking for the hull of the U.S.S. Constitution.

There's no rush, though. Replanking of the ship's hull is scheduled in 2013 and again in 2053.

Harley Thomas Jr., the depot's forester who is in charge of the white oak groves, said the trees take about 150 years to mature. At present, the depot has about 27 million standing board feet of white oak, averaging 60 years of age.

Report More Parcels Acquired For CBD Project

By TOM BAINES

Reflector Staff Writer

Six more parcels were acquired in the Central Business District Project since the January meeting of the Redevelopment Commission, the staff real estate officer reported Monday night.

Kirby Boyd said that the six acquisitions in the N. C. R-66 project brought the status of projected acquisitions in CBD to roughly 57 per cent.

Boyd told commissioners that a structure on one of the parcels has been demolished and work has started toward the demolition of another structure.

In addition to the acquisitions, the real estate officer noted that options were obtained on two parcels on Dickinson Avenue.

Boyd reported that one parcel was acquired during January in the N.C. R-134 Southside Project and five structures were demolished in the project area.

Dennis Tripp, assistant CBD project manager said that seven relocations were handled in CBD since the January meeting. Six of the relocations were residential, he said, and the seventh involved a business.

The project manager for the Southside Project, Bruce Jackson, told the board that two families were relocated in the N.C. R-134 area during the month.

Commissioners, acting on a short business agenda, amended contracts with Jack Wallace for professional appraisal services in both CBD and Southside to bring the appraisals fees up to date.

Following the guideline of the city's recently adopted revised personnel policy, commissioners voted to increase the reimbursement for travel involving the use of employees' privately owned vehicles from ten cents to 12 cents per mile. The increase, which would cover both in and out of town travel when an employee uses his own car, was made retroactive to Feb. 1.

The attendance of two staff members at an upcoming meeting of the Carolinas Council of Housing, Redevelopment and Code Officials in High Point was approved.

Executive director Joe Laney, who will attend the land marketing workshop Feb. 27 through March 1 as an officer of the Carolinas Council, said that a number of experts on land marketing are expected to be on hand for the session.

DELICATE SURGERY—Cambodian Army doctors operating at a soccer field and wearing helmets and flak jackets remove an explosive chunk of a grenade from the cheek of a 21-year-old soldier. (AP Wirephoto)

Took Grenade From Jawbone

By CARL D. ROBINSON
Associated Press Writer
PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — For one week, the young Cambodian army soldier didn't dare speak.

In a hospital where other wounded slept two and three to a bed, he had a room all to himself.

Pvt. Pok Sarim was in danger of blowing up.

In a minor scrap northeast of Phnom Penh last week, a Khmer Rouge fired an M79 grenade at him from a distance of 15 yards. The round, the size of a tennis ball, smacked into Pok Sarim's right cheek and jammed into his jawbone. It didn't explode.

The same thing had happened half a dozen times before in the Vietnam war: Usually the round lodged in a fleshy area. But Pok Sarim's was tight in the jawbone, and the surgeons feared the slightest movement would blow up the patient — and themselves.

Three days after he was wounded, the 21-year-old soldier and his pregnant 18-year-old wife were brought by boat to a military hospital in Phnom Penh. Doctors scheduled surgery for noon on Monday on the soccer field when the sun would provide an overhead operating lamp.

More than 200 soldiers, military families and medical personnel gathered on the grass to watch. The operating team wore flak jackets under their smocks and steel helmets above their surgical masks.

Pok Sarim was brought onto the field on a stretcher, wearing a sarong. Military police blew whistles to move the crowd away.

The doctor slowly made his incision. Wind blew sand and dust across the operating area. A lone cow ambled about.

In less than five minutes, the operation was over. A collective sigh and a smattering of applause and cheers went up from the crowd as the doctor pulled the brass-colored round from Pok Sarim's jaw and gingerly rushed it to a nearby sandbag container.

The operation went so quickly that the army ordnance officer who was to take charge of the grenade showed up after the doctor had disposed of it.

Abuses Denied By Duke Power

RALEIGH (AP) — The president of Duke Power Co. has branded as "malicious charges and outright lies" charges brought against the big utility by a student funded consumers group.

The North Carolina Public Interest Research Group (PIRG) issued a 10-page report at a news conference Monday that asserted Duke was "guilty of a multitude of abuses stemming from its mismanagement and discrimination against the average citizen. It said Duke does not deserve the 17 per cent rate increase it has requested of the state Utilities Commission.

Duke President Carl Horn Jr. said in a prepared statement: "It is unfortunate that just any group can come along with no stake in the community and unanswerable to anyone and place malicious charges and outright lies before the public during a time of national crisis and when people are uncertain about the future."

In declining to reply to PIRG's specific charges, Horn said, "A rate case is just like a court case and we do not think it's ethical to get involved with these people at this time.

Big Decisions Facing Tobacco Growers

By CARL L. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Faced with the rising cost of fuel and fertilizer, tobacco growers are having to make decisions now concerning increasing their 1974 salable tobacco poundage.

Allowed a 10 per cent increase in their salable poundage again this year by the Secretary of Agriculture, growers must decide whether or not to try and produce their maximum poundage now, while preparing their tobacco plant beds.

If they are to produce their maximum poundage growers must insure they have an adequate supply of plants. In making their decisions, growers must consider the following facts: —Diesel fuel and gasoline needed to power farm machinery have risen drastically in price.

—Fertilizer has almost doubled in price from last year and may be in short supply.

—LP gas, used in curing tobacco has followed suit and jumped between 11 and 13 cents per gallon at present prices.

Diesel fuel, which last year sold for approximately 19.9 cents per gallon is selling today for between 35 and 38 cents.

Gasoline, used to power many mechanized tobacco harvesters has risen from 31.2 cents last year to a present price of 43.2 cents per gallon for agricultural use.

Fertilizer, which last year sold for around $60 per ton is bringing anywhere from $98 to $130 per ton and the price is changing regularly.

Farmers in the area questioned about their planting intentions stated they were planning to try and produce their maximum poundage.

Ralph Tucker, a local grower who last year grew 75 acres of tobacco feels the 10 per cent increase will be hard to break even on considering the present price structure.

Tucker stated he felt approximately 5-10 per cent of the growers in his area would not try to produce their maximum poundage.

Export tobacco companies are urging farmers to produce their maximum poundage because of the increased need of tobacco to fill export buyers needs.

Tucker stated he felt he "broke even" on last year's 10 per cent increase as prices did not rise proportionately compared with the increase in production cost.

Another local grower, Wayne Stokes, who last year planted 103 acres, feels this year's 10 per cent increase will not pay for itself unless prices are considerably higher.

Stokes stated many growers in his area will not produce their maximum poundage this year.

Last year's crop saw approximately a two cent increase in the average price per pound paid.

The 1973 crop averaged 89 cents per pound, and the average cost of growing an acre of tobacco was approximately $1,100.

Farmers who must increase their acreage will face the toughest battle in trying to break even on the increase in poundage, while farmers who try to increase their poundage per acre will stand more chance in making a profit on the increase.

According to the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Agents, the average grower produces between 2,100 to 2,200 pounds per acre while tobacco test plots have produced as much as 2,500 pounds maximum yield with proper management.

In producing more pounds on more acreage the farmer increases his cost by spending more for fuel, fertilizer and labor to work the extra acreage while the producer getting more pounds per acre is working the same land area for a smaller increase in production cost.

Chester Worthington Jr., a grower who last year harvested 245 acres, feels the 10 per cent increase will not cause a large increase in production cost for growers who last year over sold their poundage allotment.

Instead of having their salable poundage reduced by 10 percent this year, the over-seller this year can sell the same number of pounds as he did last year.

U.S. Oil Companies Are Nationalized By Libya

By HOLGER JENSEN
Associated Press Writer
TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — President Moammar Khadafy has retaliated against the Washington oil conference by completing the nationalization of the Libyan properties of three American oil companies.

The "fresh slap in America's face," as Radio Tripoli termed it, promised stormy weather later this week for Egypt's proposal to ease the Arab oil embargo against the United States. The proposal will be argued at a meeting of the Arab oil nations opening Thursday in the Libyan capital.

Khadafy last September took control of 51 per cent of all foreign oil holdings in Libya. A decree Monday issued by his Revolutionary Command Council ordered nationalization of the other 49 per cent of the California Asiatic Co., owned by (Standard Oil of Indiana), whose daily production of 6,000 barrels was suspended by the Arab oil embargo because it went to the United States.

The decree said the Revolutionary Command Council would set up a committee to determine compensation for the companies. It probably will be based on the net book value of the companies, which is usually considerably below the real value to reduce taxes.

Tripoli Radio said the nationalization was Col. Khadafy's "practical reply" to a message last week from President Nixon explaining the aims of the Washington parley that opened Monday.

The broadcast called the meeting of oil-consuming nations provocative and said:

"We will not be deceived by U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's smile and diplomacy. We will remain true to our Arabism and will continue to deal strong blows to the monopolistic American interests." State Department officials in Washington said that, if Libya had seized the oil companies' holdings for political purposes, they would encourage lawsuits against the Libyan government. Several companies whose assets were seized earlier by Khadafy have begun action in various courts.

Hearings On Fertilizer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate Agriculture subcommittee is preparing to investigate the anticipated shortage of fertilizer and its implications on the food supply.

Sen. George McGovern, chairman of the subcommittee on agricultural credit and rural electrification, will chair hearings Feb. 19 as the opening phase of the probe.

"Thirty per cent of our nation's total production of field crops is directly attributable to the availability and application of fertilizer," McGovern, D-S.D., said in a statement today.

"When one considers the fact that our reserves of wheat are at 27-year lows and expected carryovers of corn will be down to somewhere between 400 million and 600 million (bushels) this marketing year, the importance of reaching our production goals becomes all too obvious.

"Whether we are able to reach those goals will be determined not only by weather but also by the availability of essential fertilizer supplies," McGovern added.

He noted that, while planted acreage is expected to increase sharply this year, the Agriculture Department is predicting a seven per cent shortage of nitrogen fertilizer, while the Fertilizer Institute estimates the shortage at twice that figure.

No Pushing By The Passengers

HOUSTON (AP) — None of the 16 passengers got out and pushed when the vehicle in which they were riding ran out of gasoline Monday.

They were prisoners being driven from the downtown county jail to the Harris County Rehabilitation Center near Humble.

A sheriff's deputy was driving the vehicle. He radioed for help.

Vaughn Out Of Contest

RALEIGH (AP) — Appeals Court Judge Earl W. Vaughn has taken himself out of a race for the Democratic nomination for the state Supreme Court and Appeals Court Judge Robert A. (Fred) Hedrick said he is "seriously considering" getting in the race.

Vaughn cited time and money pressures Monday as he announced he was withdrawing.

Hedrick, who has long been considered a possible candidate, promised to have a formal statement within a few days.

Superior Court Judge James G. Exum of Greensboro will be Hedrick's primary opponent if the Appeals Court judge enters the race.

Republicans have promised to contest the seat, but no GOP candidate has announced yet.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

You know the trouble with some women? They have no imagination. A neighbor was telling me the other day that her little boy, Jody, wanted to bring a bull snake home from his vacation.

"What did you tell him?" I asked.

"I couldn't think of a reason why he couldn't," she said, helplessly shrugging her shoulders.

"Are you kidding?" I shrieked. "A few years ago, my son captured a small slimy specimen in a Coke bottle and I could think of ten reasons for leaving him behind. (The snake, not the boy.)"

1. Snakes do not know their own minds. They may jump up and down and think they want to leave their Mommys and Daddys for a fun trip, but after two days away from home, it's spit-up time.

2. You would get bored with one another. After all, what can a snake do? Can he chase a ball after you throw it? Can he walk to the shopping center with you on a leash? Can he walk into a crowded room and keep it that way?

3. Snakes are a minority group. Face it. Do you want him to feel the pains of discrimination? Wouldn't it break your heart to have his admission refused at Bible School? Or to leave him outside in a Mason jar while you were inside with friends?

4. Snakes are difficult to paper train.

5. Snakes adhere to a diet of living things. What happens when he runs out of mice and begins to eye our meter reader?

6. How would we know if he got a headache?

7. How would you explain it to him if someone accidentally hit him with a rake?

8. You would be forcing on him a monk's existence. How do you know he doesn't want to date and eventually have a family?

"Did he buy it?" asked my neighbor bright-eyed. "I mean did he realize that there were inherent differences between a boy and a snake?"

"Not until I hit him with reasons 9 and 10."

"Which were?"

9. If you put that snake in the car with your mother, she will have a heart attack and drop dead.

10. Ask yourself, do you want to be a motherless boy roaming through life with a sex-starved, militant, maladjusted snake in a Coke bottle?

"He chose you instead of the snake, right?" she asked.

"No, but he's still thinking about it," I said.

Mother Concerned About Son's Image

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I have a 2-year-old son, and whenever we are in public a stranger is sure to say, "My, what a cute little girl!" This happens even when he's wearing his football suit.

I never dress him like a girl. His hair is cut like most boys his age, but what really disturbs me is after I correct people, they go right on saying, "What a beautiful little girl he would make."

My son is learning the difference between boys and girls, and when people mistake his sex, they confuse him. I worry about what will happen to his development and self-image.

Abby, please tell people to keep such comments to themselves. There are other mothers who have the same problem, so please print and I'll get 10 copies to hand to thoughtless people. MOTHER OF AN ALL-BOY BOY

DEAR MOTHER: Consider it done. And equally damaging to a child's self-image is the little girl who is constantly mistaken for a boy!

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old boy—nearly 18, and I've always been big for my age. I live with my mother and a younger brother in a nice, friendly neighborhood. That's the trouble, it's too friendly.

One of my neighbors is my mother's friend. She's married to a great guy in his forties, and they have two nice kids. They're beautiful people, and "Mrs. Friendly" has always treated me like one of her kids—until lately. She's been petting me, kissing me and running her fingers thru my hair. This was okay when I was 9, but now she gets me all aroused. It's not like she doesn't know what she's doing either. She does it on purpose.

Now I find myself hanging around her place, and I know this is not going to get me anywhere but in trouble. Don't tell me to stay away from her. I know that's what I should do, but I keep finding reasons to hang around her. She's a good looking lady for her age, and half of me says, "Stay" and half of me says, "Run."

Have I got a problem or not? HALF AND HALF

DEAR HALF: You bet you have. But you're bright enough to see it coming, and wise enough to ask how to head it off. Listen to the half with the brains in it, and stay as far away from "Mrs. Friendly" as you can.

DEAR ABBY: An 18-year marriage has me bored stiff and dissatisfied. A moderate income provides adequate clothes, food and a small home with nothing left for my purse, vacation trips and those extra wants. People say, "Count your blessings," but I ask myself, "Am I supposed to be satisfied with so little as a home, three healthy, trouble-free kids, a vice-free husband who's home every night, who helps with the housework, embraces, and compliments me daily, and is good in bed [but his age is beginning to rob me of that]?"

Would anyone blame me if I left for a man who can show me some fun—even if only for a little while? BORED

DEAR BORED: I would be among those who would remind you to count your blessings. And yes, I would "blame you" for jeopardizing those blessings for "some fun," even if only "for a little while."

CONFIDENTIAL TO VIRGO: It is not true that people who threaten to commit suicide "never" do. Your friend needs help. I urge you to involve yourself and insist that she get it. Your Suicide Prevention Center offers free [and excellent] counseling in the Los Angeles area. Tell her to call 381-5111 for help.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 63700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

The event will be held Friday, Feb. 22, at 8 p.m. at the school. The price will be a donation of $1.25 per person.

Plans were begun for the St. Patrick's Day party to be held at the Moose Lodge Saturday, March 16. Mrs. Ann Butler and Mrs. Catherine Tronto are co-chairmen for the affair.

A committee was formed to nominate new officers for the coming year, including Miss Ada Jones, Mrs. Gert Cunningham and Mrs. Flo McCluskey.

Father Spillane opened the meeting, which was conducted by Mrs. Yvonne Kiernan. Reports were given by Mrs. Gert Cunningham and Mrs. Peggy Hill.

Cupids and a love centerpiece adorned the refreshment table, which was covered with a white lace cloth. Mrs. McCluskey and Mrs. Joe Berry were hostesses for the meeting.

A Feeling We're Shortchanged

Following the gas problems of late last week, area motorists must feel like drilling for their own oil, and service station operators might demand battle stars for their efforts.

It was that kind of weekend.

Long lines formed at the few stations that had gas for sale Thursday, Friday and Saturday. At the end of the lines they found higher prices for gas, limits on the amount sold and often that the available gas had run out.

Chapin Visited White House

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Dwight L. Chapin, President Nixon's indicted former appointments secretary who faces up to 20 years if convicted for perjury, recently visited inside the hallowed walls of the White House—pointing up the strangely enduring relationship between the President and his fallen aides.

Ordinary citizens are barred from the White House inner sanctum, but Chapin—indicted on four counts of perjury Nov. 29—had no such trouble while in Washington for a federal court appearance. On one occasion, he was closeted with present presidential aides in a senior aide's vacant office.

One aide told us Chapin was paying a courtesy call on old acquaintances. But, coincidental or not, his visit preceded new White House propaganda against deposed White House counsel John W. Dean III. In their campaign against the credibility of the chief accuser of the President and his former aides, Mr. Nixon's present lieutenants are pointing to a confrontation in court next Friday (Feb. 15) between Dean and Chapin.

A hearing is scheduled that day on a motion by Chapin's lawyers to prevent Dean from testifying against Chapin on grounds it would violate the lawyer-client relationship. The White House has confided to newsmen that devastating cross-examination during the hearing will destroy Dean as the special prosecutor's star witness against game much bigger than Chapin.

Whether Dean is demolished or even appears as a witness next Friday remains to be seen. Beyond dispute is the conscious interrelationship of two separate proceedings: the President's defense against impeachment and the defense of his ex-aides, ranging from H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman down to Dwight Chapin, in criminal proceedings.

Elliot's Toe

Former Atty. Gen. Elliot Richardson has been prosied a political turnout by the militantly conservative Mississippi Republican party when he makes his first political foray there later this month. He decided to stick his toe in Southern political waters to test reactions in hostile country to his possible presidential candidacy.

Richardson, the Boston Brahmin who fell in last October's Saturday night massacre, is regarded in the South as far left, though in fact he is close to the Republican center. Nevertheless, powerful Republicans have pledged to corral a large audience for him in Biloxi Feb. 25 for a "frankly political" speech. The chief guarantor: none other than the aggressively conservative Clarke Reed, Republican state chairman who heads the Southern Republican state chairmen.

Reed feels Richardson, as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), plotted a subtle course for school integration which reversed headlong desegregation and helped make President Nixon a hero throughout the South.

Richardson originally accepted a nonpolitical date at the University of Mississippi Feb. 24 but then asked Reed to help arrange a political speech as well.

A footnote: Mr. Nixon's animus against Richardson for refusing to help purge Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox continues unabated. In his list of 1976 presidential prospects last week, the President conspicuously ignored the suave Bostonian whom he named Undersecretary of State, Secretary of HEW, Secretary of Defense and Attorney General.

To Breakfast Or Not?

Two Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee, now beginning impeachment proceedings, reacted in opposite ways to the President's invitation to breakfast last Wednesday.

The Chowder and Marching Society, an exclusive ingroup of Republican House members, was invited by charter member Nixon to hold its weekly breakfast meeting in the White House. Two members of the society, Reps. Thomas Railsback of Illinois and Trent Lott of Mississippi, are also members of the House Judiciary Committee.

Railsback debated with himself, then decided not to attend, in keeping with informal agreement by committee Republicans to stay arm's length from the White House during impeachment proceedings. But freshman Congressman Lott decided to go.

"I don't think we should ostracize ourselves from every White House function," Lott told us, adding that impeachment was scarcely mentioned during breakfast. But considering the White House campaign suggesting that Judiciary Committee Democrats on record for impeachment should disqualify themselves as "jurors," the question of entertaining "jurors" over fried eggs becomes relevant. On the day of the breakfast, Lott was one of 70 House members who voted unsuccessfully to set a White House-desired April 30 deadline on the committee's proceedings.

The lines of cars formed at every station which had any gas to sell late last week, and, while there were reportedly some unpleasant incidents, most motorists seemed to be willing to wait their turn patiently in hopes of getting enough fuel to keep their autos running through the weekend.

And where was the gas that we should normally be getting? Well, there was a strong feeling that North Carolina, which historically has had little political clout in national politics, was as usual not getting its share. There was also a feeling that Eastern North Carolina was getting the least of what was available to the state.

There was some indication that maybe North Carolina was being short changed on gas, but that something would be done about it.

Federal Energy Director William E. Simon said changes would be made in the fuel allocation formula to shift some gas from well supplied areas to those which were running short. North Carolina was one of those which will receive increased supplies.

That, coupled with the fact that the government will soon allow refineries to shift from fuel oil production to gas production, may do something to alleviate the problem in our particular area.

Last weekend might have been the worse so far for this area insofar as gas supplies are concerned. We don't look for plentiful gas supplies anytime soon, but it is possible there will be some improvement in supplies.

Recommending Major Change

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Mental health services supervised and delivered at the community level instead of at state-run mental hospitals is at the heart of sweeping revision of the system to be outlined in a Mental Health Study Commission report later this month.

The thrust of an earlier fact-finding report delivered to the study commission chaired by Senator Kenneth C. Royall Jr., D-Durham, was that most (80 per cent) of current state efforts are directed at putting people with mental problems into institutions.

And those institutions, a team of consultants concluded, are largely colorless, unsafe, unhealthy, and appear more concerned with just "holding" a client, not treating and releasing.

That indictment of the present system, delivered last November, called for a shift away from institutional care—a shift toward community care with a system structured from the bottom up rather than designed and run from Raleigh.

New Directions

A second phase of the report from consultants—psychiatrists, psychologists, architects, auditors—is due in late February. It will contain specific suggestions for a new mental health system, and legislative proposals to bring such change about.

Study commission members are now poring over a draft of that report with an eye to making public what is called for in it by the end of the month.

In March, Senator Royall expects to have the legislative proposals ready for introduction.

Royall said he finds the recommendations "generally excellent," but expressed some reservations about willingness of local governments to become as deeply involved in mental health services will be in community organizations with full responsibility for prevention, detection, diagnosis, and treatment.

Area mental health programs, covering one or more counties depending on population, would be set up, with an area board established to supervise the program.

The board would consist of county commissioners, school superintendents, court, welfare, and health directors, one professional from each field in mental health, and a representative of the various associations involved in mental health.

Area Programs

An area director hired by the area board would administer the local program. Contracts would be entered in with any public or private "providers of service" including state mental hospitals. Clients would be processed and served by the area staffs. Present regional programs operated by the state would be abandoned.

The area program would be given wide and flexible authority to operate programs and to "purchase" them from any source. Admission to the system would be through the area office, not the state.

A pilot project setting up four such area operations in fiscal year 1975 is proposed, and the Mental Health Study Commission would remain functional to oversee the changes.

These key goals of the new mental health system are contained in the recommendations:

Raise public awareness of positive mental health and signs of unusual behavior; alter attitudes that retard seeking help; inform people of where help is available.

"The principal thrust for delivery of mental health care services... will be centered in community based organizations charged with full responsibility for prevention, detection, diagnosis and treatment (through) planned and coordinated use of owned facilities, other agency services, private providers, and state operated institutions," the report suggests.

The Odds Are On Nixon

NEW ORLEANS—I have been on the road lately, flying the rib-eye circuit across the South, and distill this impression from a hundred conversations: Inflation may be Concern No. 1 in this region, but Topic No. 1 is impeachment. In every gathering, the first questions have to do with Richard Nixon: Will the old pro hang on this time?

The sports metaphor has unusual application down here. For good or ill, the South in recent years has lost many of its regional distinctions, but it has retained this much: Southerners, as a breed, are still wild about sports. The tradition goes back to the first fun-loving Virginian Cavaliers, with their racehorses and game cocks; it is manifested here in New Orleans today in the awesome Superdome, which squats like some massive Buddha over the central city, a $130 million idol for the fans.

Given this obsession, it is not surprising to find that many Southerners look upon impeachment as a kind of novel spectator sport. It is Nixon in this corner and his collective opposition in the other. The Fight of the Century, folks, and how do you see the odds? After a few hours of such conversation, a political writer wants to yield to Howard Cosell.

The approach may sound both cynical and superficial, but it has its advantages. There is this to be said of any sports event, that it is played by rules, that it is subject to referees or umpires, and that it winds up with a decision or a final score. However wildly the fans may disagree with the officials, the outcome is accepted. And there is this above all: No matter how passionately the fans may view a particular event, they understand that a sports event is not the be-all and the end-all. If Tulane loses, the university survives.

It is no bad thing to look upon impeachment in this fashion. There has been entirely too much apocalyptic fulmination about the state of the President. If the House impeaches Nixon, and the Senate removes him from office, the Republic will survive. The old pro will have been toppled, but this is a familiar fate for old pros. Such an outcome would elate the Nixon haters and crush the Nixon rosters, but so long as the fans had seen a fair match, played by the rules, in time the event would fade into the record books like last year's Superbowl—or last year's vice president.

What are the rules of this contest? The House Judiciary Committee is attempting to reduce them to writing now. Because not even his worst enemy has imputed "treason" to the President, it is clear that under the Constitution he could be impeached only for "bribery, high crimes and misdemeanors." The terms come from the vocabulary of the criminal law. The Con-

Sketch Future In U.S.

By STAN BENJAMIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the United States to be energy-independent by 1980, the U.S. consumer will have to drive a more economical car and pay higher gasoline prices, the Federal Energy Office says. There's more.

Energy officials say independence also will mean higher parking fees, vehicle registration fees and fuel taxes, and maybe a tax on high energy-consuming appliances.

Industries must cut the energy they use in manufacturing, recycle more of their materials, and shift their schedules to spread their use of electricity more evenly over the calendar and the clock.

The electric power industry itself must shift more of its plants from burning oil to burning coal, the FEO says. As a result the nation must put off for five years the achievement of some of its clean-air standards. While all this is going on, coal production must increase 60 per cent, oil production 22 per cent, natural gas production 15 per cent, and atomic power — now only a small contributor — must multiply tenfold.

All this, it turns out, is what President Nixon meant by "Project Independence," his call last month for a drive to make the United States self-sufficient in energy by 1980.

The Federal Energy Office unveiled the details Monday in a background paper issued at the conference of major oil-consuming nations.

With the sudden tripling of foreign oil prices since last October, the FEO paper said, "it is clear that there has been a Committees from the Greenville Woman's Club will begin a drive to raise funds to wipe out or decrease the indebtedness on their club building in the city so the building will not have to be given up.

The distressing financial condition of the club was brought to the attention of a group of local businessmen here two weeks ago and at that time, $1,000 was pledged to aid in the drive to raise funds.

The indebtedness as set forth was $7,500 and if the entire amount is not raised, it is hoped that the drive will cut the debt down to a point that the ladies will be able to carry on and retire the unpaid balance out of the club's income.

North Carolina Republicans gathered in Greensboro today to observe Abraham Lincoln's birthday anniversary with their annual Lincoln Day Dinner. The principal speaker for tonight's dinner will be Harold McGurgin of Kansas, a representative from Congress and the Republican leader in the House.

The girls' basketball team of the Greenville high school will play the Wilson team Thursday evening at 7:30 p.m. in the school gymnasium.

Other Editors Say Who's Complaining?

(Dunn Daily Record)

Unable to attack him on any other score, one or two of the State's more liberal newspapers have complained about the Senatorial Candidate Robert Morgan isn't resigning his office as Attorney General until after the primary.

These same editors who now suggest that Bob Morgan ought to resign didn't suggest that Congressman Nick Galifianakis resign from congress last year when he ran for the United States Senate. Nick spent more than a year's time running while still drawing his $42,000 a year salary (and other thousands in fringe benefits) as a Congressman.

They didn't suggest that Rep. Jim Holshouser resign from the legislature while he was campaigning for the office of Governor.

They didn't suggest that Senator Hubert Humphrey, Senator Ed Muskie, or Senator George McGovern resign while they campaigned for the Democratic nomination for President. And they didn't suggest that McGovern resign from the Senate after he got the nomination.

They didn't suggest that Richard Nixon resign as vice president when he ran against Senator Jack Kennedy for the White House. Neither did they suggest that Mr. Kennedy resign from the Senate.

Neither do other local and State officials resign to seek reelection or to run for higher offices.

We could go one and one. The list is endless.

The people of North Carolina are smart enough to know that Bob Morgan is following the right course. He's doing exactly what they elected him to do.

It's our prediction that he will be nominated and elected as our next United States Senator by one of the biggest majorities ever given a candidate in the history of this State.

Love is skin-deep. Give Blood.

MISSING PRACTICE

A world famous pianist is said to have remarked on one occasion that if he neglected to practice for one day he noticed it; if for two days, his friends noticed it; if for three days, the world noticed it.

The same is true in the spiritual life. Prayer is either of infinite value or of no value at all. Some people never resort to prayer until they confront shipwreck. And then they wonder why it is so hard to pray. It takes as much application and persistence to become adept in prayer as in piano playing. One day's neglect of prayer and a man notices it; two days and his friends notice it; three days and perhaps by that time he will be so firmly oriented in another direction that he begins to wonder whether prayer isn't all a waste of time.

Spiritual life cannot be kept alive without the same kind of assiduous cultivation necessary to maintain physical skills.

Energy Crisis Spurring North Sea Oil Search

By WILLIAM F. WRIGHT
LONDON (UPI) — The mournful strains of a Scottish nationalist ballad mingle these days with the shattering sound of construction crews building giant oil rigs along the bonnie banks of Scotland.

"Scotland is waiting, North Sea waves breaking
"Oil rigs are taking the wealth from our shores."

The ballad, sung by conservationists and Scots protesting exploitation of the North Sea by American and British oil companies, laments the day when oil gushed forth from a lone wildcat well off Aberdeen on a stormy October day in 1970.

So unlikely was the location that more than three years later Britons and continental Europeans, long accustomed to drawing 80 per cent of their oil needs from the Middle East, are only now beginning to grasp the idea of an oil boom on their very doorstep.

The oil companies, urged on by the world energy crisis and the prospects of huge profits, are redoubling efforts to transform the North Sea and Scotland's bordering shores into what oil men say will be the "Texas of Europe."

Vast Oil Basin

Geologists estimate that beneath the North Sea lies a vast basin of oil with commercially recoverable reserves of at least 1 billion tons, and probably much more.

Peter Odell, professor of economic geography at the Netherlands School of Economics, estimates that by 1985 the North Sea will supply at least 44 per cent of western Europe's total energy needs, making Europe far less vulnerable to the dictates of Arab states prepared to use oil as a political weapon.

The British sector alone, according to government estimates, is expected to yield an annual 103 million tons by 1980, rendering Britain nearly self-sufficient.

The first piped oil from the British sector is expected to reach shore early next year at Cruden Bay, north of Aberdeen, from British Petroleum's Forties field, where the sector's first commercial deposits were discovered in 1970.

Smaller quantities of oil will probably start coming ashore by tanker later this year.

Foreign Dominance

The smaller Norwegian sector, where the first North Sea oil was discovered in 1968, is already providing Norway with more than 40,000 barrels a day.

By 1980, the Norwegian sector is expected to provide between 50 and 70 million tons annually, enough to supply Norway's needs and 42-62 million tons to other European countries.

American and other foreign-owned oil companies hold about 58 per cent of the exploration and production licenses granted by the British government since 1970, with the rest allocated to British companies.

Such foreign dominance, the relatively modest 12 1/2 per cent royalty the government says it will charge on production oil and liberal tax concessions for companies operating in the North Sea, have brought the government under fire from a parliamentary watchdog committee and Scottish nationalists.

Spurred by such incentives and potentially big profits, the oil companies and firms providing support facilities on shore are pumping about 300 million pounds ($700 million) annually into Scotland, one of Europe's poorest regions.

New Jobs

The oil boom is expected to create 100,000 new jobs in Scotland over the next 10 years. More than 10,000 men are already employed in North Sea jobs, including 2,000 on offshore rigs.

Much of the money is swallowed up by the high cost of building and operating giant rigs lashed frequently by 100 mile-an-hour winds and 70 foot waves.

"Weather conditions out here are rougher than anything I have ever seen," said Carter Hughes, a veteran oilman from Tulsa, Okla., supervising Occidental Petroleum's Ocean Victory exploration rig off the Scottish coast.

At least 20 persons have been killed so far in the search for North Sea oil. A Mobil rig operating off the Orkney Islands sank during a recent gale shortly after its 56-man crew was evacuated by helicopter.

On shore, the gladed glens and copper-green lochs of the Scottish Highlands and lowlands that once echoed to the wail of bagpipes now ring with the sound of construction crews building steel and concrete production rigs needed to get the oil flowing in commercial quantities.

Conservationists Worried

In the headlong rush for oil, conservationists fear the region's scenic beauty will be spoiled, sea birds will be driven from nesting grounds, oil spillage will blacken beaches.

On Scotland's west coast, conservationists are fighting plans to establish a huge rig-building yard on the banks of Loch Carron near the village of Drumbuie, where life among the handful of white-washed crofts has remained virtually unchanged down through the centuries.

The Chicago Bridge and Iron Co., abandoned plans to build a rig yard on the scenic shores of Dunnet Bay in the Highlands, although a government inquiry ruled against conservationists who opposed the project.

Plans to transform the Shetlands Islands, off Scotland's northern tip, into a major oil firm base have met with strong opposition from many of the 17,000 islanders.

"We prefer to remain uncivilized and remote," said Edward Bruce, a Shetland barber. "You canna buy peace. You canna buy quiet. We would be far better off without these oil people."

Reception Hostile

Molly Murray Threipland, a housewife from Yankton, S.D., who with her Scottish cattle-breeder husband helped lead the fight against the Dunnet Bay project, says:

"It will be monstrous if the government lets the oil companies spoil the beauty of Scotland."

In areas where rig-building firms have been allowed to operate, the reception from local residents has been generally hostile.

An American firm operating a yard at Nigg Bay, north of Aberdeen, has been forced to house its 700-man work force on board two old Greek liners anchored in Cromarty Firth because local authorities have refused permission for new housing in the area.

"There are no recreational facilities on board and the men spend a lot of their time drinking and brawling," a worker billeted on one of the ships said.

Prices Soaring

In Aberdeen, base for most firms operating in the North Sea, the oil boom has sent real estate and other prices soaring.

American oilmen sporting ten gallon hats and cowboy boots saunter along Aberdeen's sidewalks. A men's underwear shop catering to Americans flies the Stars and Stripes. The city's 1,000-strong American community has established its own school and country club, giving rise to civic criticism that the Americans should mix more with the local population.

Surveying the bustle of a rig yard from a heath-clad hillside near Inverness, Jock McTavish, a local game warden, shook his head sadly and said:

"Maybe it's a wee price to pay for progress, but I canna stop hoping things would stay as they were."

Varied Legislation Introduced

RALEIGH (AP) — Legislation to give union workers a new bargaining tool, to build heliports at hospitals in the state and to battle alcoholism have been introduced in the North Carolina General Assembly.

Rep. Thomas B. Sawyer, D-Guilford, introduced a bill in the House Monday night to amend North Carolina's "right to work" law to permit unions to bargain for an "agency shop."

Under the agency shop, workers have the right not to join the union, but they still may be required to pay special fees to support the cost of collective bargaining.

Sawyer told newsmen that

North Carolina "has denied labor the right to bargain collectively as set forth in the Wagner Act under the Roosevelt administration."

"It's my belief," he added, "that one of the reasons the Democratic party is withering on the vine is because of the antilabor legislation we've had in the past."

Meanwhile, 25 House members cosponsored a proposal that would appropriate $2.4 million for use by the North Carolina Alcoholism Research Authority.

The bill said the money would be used to begin "the total program necessary to eliminate alcoholism as a public health problem." It said approximately 500,000 North Carolina residents are alcoholics.

Rep. Daniel T. Lilley, D-Lenoir, introduced a bill to appropriate $250,000 to be used to build heliports at licensed hospitals in the state. The money stitution also speaks of "conviction" and of "trial." I take all this to mean that an impeachable offense must be a criminal offense.

If this is a reasonable construction, it follows that Nixon might fairly be impeached on such charges as obstruction of justice, evasion of taxes, acceptance of bribes in the guise of campaign contributions, or the misappropriation of public funds to his private benefit. He could not be impeached for such actions as the bombing of Cambodia or the impoundment of various funds.

Is there probable cause to believe the President has committed an impeachable offense? It seems to be highly doubtful. But if a majority of the House should vote to impeach, could proof of guilt be produced before the Senate? This strikes me as more unlikely still. As a defendant on trial, Nixon would be entitled to every protection of due process of law—to the presumption of innocence, to cross-examination of hostile witnesses, to the exclusion of hearsay testimony, to a final instruction on reasonable doubt.

Will the old pro hold his title? I am no Jimmy the Greek, but if you want to make book: Three to one the House will not impeach, fifty to one the Senate will not convict. When the lights go down in the congressional Superdome, Nixon will be the winner, and like it or not, still the champ.

Solzhenitsyn Fails Answer Summons

MOSCOW (AP) — Author Alexander Solzhenitsyn failed today to answer a summons to the prosecutor's office, but the police made no immediate attempt to bring him in.

Solzhenitsyn, winner of the 1970 Nobel Prize for Literature and an outspoken critic of the Soviet government, has been subjected to severe official criticism for his publication abroad of "The Gulag Archipelago," an expose of Soviet labor camps.

He had been ordered to appear at 10 a.m. at the investigative division of the prosecutor's office, the Soviet equivalent of the attorney general in the United States.

As the deadline passed, friends said the writer was at home and had had no further contact with the authorities since he informed them Monday he would not obey the summons.

"In a situation of general illegality which for many years has existed in our country — and the eight-year campaign of personal slander and harassment against me — I refuse to acknowledge the legality of your summons and will not come for an interrogation to any state organ," Solzhenitsyn said.

A number of plainclothes policemen were around his apartment building this morning. But they appeared to be there only to observe those going in and out of the building.

Inflatable Device For Heart Patients

By DAN HALL

Associated Press Writer

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — A pair of inflatable leggings soon may help some heart patients survive severe cardiac shocks, a sudden loss of blood to the heart muscles.

The rubberized leggings are a series of five connected, inflatable collars. They are synchronized to squeeze blood back toward the heart between heartbeats.

The device is the first designed to be applied completely outside the body, and it eliminates the present need for dangerous surgery on seriously weakened patients, according to Dr. Lawrence S. Cohen.

It will be used on the first cardiogenic shock patient within about six months, said Cohen. He is chief of cardiology at Yale-New Haven Hospital. He has supervised development of the leggings over the past six years.

Dr. Rene Langou, Cohen's assistant, presents a formal report on the project today to the American College of Cardiology in New York City.

Death comes to about 85 per cent of the persons stricken by cardiogenic shock, Cohen said. He said the weakened heart, failing to supply enough blood to vital organs, starts "a downhill spiral that eventually leads to death."

"We hope this device will tide the patient over the critical period of six to 12 hours."

The inflatable leggings not only ease the workload on damaged heart muscles but also increase the flow of blood to the cardiac arteries, which supply the heart muscles, and to other vital organs.

fundamental change in the economics of petroleum production.

In recent years, the report said, U.S. energy production has grown about 3 per cent per year. It must grow about 4.6 per cent per year to achieve energy independence by 1980.

U.S. energy demand has increased more than 5 per cent annually for the last three years, and the FEO said studies indicated a long-range growth of about 3.6 per cent per year, or more.

The growth of demand must, instead, be cut to 2 per cent a year, the FEO said.

Congress Is Low-Graded

NEW YORK (AP) — A recent Harris survey has given Congress the lowest marks for performance in more than 10 years of polling about the federal legislative branch.

The survey reported Monday that 69 per cent of those asked, "How do you rate the job Congress is doing?" said fair or poor. Twenty-one per cent said good or excellent, and 10 per cent were not sure.

On individual topics, Congress received an 88 per cent negative rating on controlling inflation, 83 per cent negative rating on keeping spending under control and 82 per cent negative in inspiring confidence in government.

Faring better was William E. Simon, the man in charge of the nation's energy policy. He received a 35 per cent negative rating and a 26 per cent positive rating. But 39 per cent were not sure how to rate his performance.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market retreated again today in the face of a long list of worries about the economic implications of the world's energy problems.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down 2.58 to 801.31, and declines outnumbered gainers by better than 2-to-1 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Technical analysts noted that the market seemed to firm after the Dow Jones industrial average slipped briefly under the 800 level in early trading. On Monday the widely watched index had fallen 16.50 points.

However, brokers said, concern about the availability and price of oil and a dark economic outlook for oil-consuming countries continued to dominate the market.

British Petroleum headed the Big Board's most-active list, down 1/4 at 11 1/2, in trading that included a 100,000-share block at that price.

Analysts said BP and other oil companies with extensive North Sea interests were under some selling pressure because of fears that British and Norwegian governments soon might move to claim larger shares of the profits from North Sea Oil.

Exxon was down 1 1/2 to 79 1/2, Phillips Petroleum lost 2 to 47 1/2, and Gulf Oil was down 3/4 at 21 1/4.

Chrysler climbed 1/4 to 16 1/2. Company officials announced plans for expanded small car production, and Chairman Lynn Townsend said he believed the current quarter would be "the lowest part of the valley" for the auto industry and the economy generally.

At the American Stock Exchange, Syntex was the volume leader, down 1/2 at 45 1/2. The Amex's 11 a.m. market value index was down .48 to 93.20.

The Big Board's composite index of all its listed common stocks declined .30 to 48.27.

Expressway Hit By Fuel Crisis

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The Atlantic City Expressway is feeling the pinch of the energy crisis and will curtail hours and sales at its one service area, a spokesman said.

Harry Ambrose, director of the expressway, said the service area at Folsom, halfway along the 44-mile toll road from Camden to Atlantic City, will close at 9 p.m.

The station has been open 24 hours a day, Ambrose said, adding a maximum limit on sales of $3 was imposed last weekend, after a limit of $5 had been in effect some time.

He said the station has sold 30,000 gallons of gasoline so far this month but has only 20,000 gallons in reserve for the rest of February.

Elmhurst PTA Meets Thursday

Elmhurst PTA will have entertainment directed by Physical Education teachers Charles Crumpler and Gary Hess Thursday at 8 p.m. The meeting will be held in the school auditorium.

Minnesota has an average annual rainfall of 25 inches.

Delay ECU Hearings

RALEIGH (AP) — Three legislative hearings on the East Carolina University medical school issue were postponed Monday night as the result of efforts to compromise the issue.

Rep. Carl Stewart, D-Gaston, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, told the House that the hearings set for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday before the Joint Appropriations Committee would be put off at least until next week.

The Gaston legislators said that as a result of a meeting held at Greensboro Sunday in search of an ECU compromise, "we had a request to delay the public hearings so we can see if some accommodation of differences can be reached."

Stewart said if no agreement is reached, the hearings will be held on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

The Appropriations Committee has before it three bills dealing with North Carolina's medical education facilities.

Truckers To Map Policy

KERNERSVILLE (AP) — The newly-formed Southeastern Independent Operators Association planned to hold a meeting in Kernersville today to discuss what action will be taken in their continuing trucking protest.

President Wilkie Cheek of Kernersville said the nationwide trucking strike has not brought about the results the truckers had hoped for.

"We've wasted two weeks of shutdown. We haven't accomplished a thing. All we've gotten is a six per cent surcharge which the little man is going to have to pay for."

"The reason we have been holding out," he said, "is we can't feel we would be justified in going back to the road with a six per cent surcharge. It won't cover the rising costs of the past year, plus we don't want to go back at the expense of our fellow men."

The trucking strike has largely broke up nationwide since federal officials agreed to freeze the price of diesel fuel and to allow truckers to add the six per cent surcharge to their costs.

Most Interest Was In MPG

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "How many miles to the gallon does it get?" was one of the most frequently asked question at the Northern California International Automobile Show this year.

Some 40,000 visitors over the weekend seemed almost to regard the gas-guzzling big cars as museum pieces, choosing instead to examine carefully the compacts and small foreign entries.

Two young men admiring a $13,000, 23-foot luxury camper were asked whether they were considering its purchase. "Are you kidding?" answered one. "The only place I'd be able to camp with this thing is in my own backyard."

California's wine industry accounts for more than 70 per cent of the U.S. market.

Fulford Summarizes Decade Of PTI Service

Dr. William E. Fulford, Jr., president of Pitt Technical Institute, summarized the first decade of PTI service for the Greenville Rotarians Monday night.

Fulford outlined how the institute had grown from 96 curriculum students in 1964 to over 1050 in 1974. "But our true contributions to Pitt County," he asserted "cannot be measured in terms of enrollments and graduates. We have trained local law enforcement, fire departments, rescue squad and other public service personnel. Over 10,500 Pitt County adults participated in our extension programs last year alone."

Additionally, Fulford cited the economic impact of the institution. "In fiscal year 1972-73," he stated, "Pitt County allocated $144,316 to PTI. During this same period, the school generated $3,199,853 back into the economy of the county. That is not a bad return on anyone's tax dollar."

During its first decade, Pitt Tech has experienced some growing pains. President Fulford listed inadequate facilities as the chief among these difficulties. "We have far outgrown our facilities," he said. "Currently, we cannot even get all our curriculum programs on campus. We have recently received some construction funds from the state and county, but we are still far from being able to meet present needs for facilities. This must be our priority for the next few years."

Fulford concluded his remarks by reiterating the point that PTI was the "peoples' institution. "We exist to provide those educational services which meet the needs and desires of the people of Pitt County. If these needs are academic, vocational, or industrial, we strive and shall continue to strive to provide the maximum degree of quality programs to fulfill them. Our plans shall continue to be predicated upon your personal interest and involvement in the planning and implementation of all our activities."

Big Orange In Opening Victory

DUDLEY—North Pitt's unbeaten girls moved into the second round of the Eastern Carolina Conference tournament last night with a 46-18 romp over Greene Central.

The loss closed out the year for Greene Central's girls, who pack it up again until next year. North Pitt will now meet the winner of the Charles B. Aycock-Ayden-Griffon game later this week.

In one of the junior varsity games, D. H. Conley took an 83-56 romp over Eastern Wayne. They will face North Lenoir, a winner over Southern Wayne in the other junior varsity game.

Conley's jv's placed five players in double figures in their victory. Robert Harris led the way with 18, while Joey Baggett and Calvin Hawkins each had 16, Charlie Keys had 13 and Melvin Williams had 12.

In the lone girls' game played, North Pitt had little trouble in rolling up the first victory. By the end of the first period, the Big Orange Machine had ground out a 13-4 lead. They held Greene Central to four points again in the second half, and dumped in 18 of their own, running the lead out to 31-8.

In the third period, North Pitt again outshot the Ewes, 11-6, and boosted their lead to 42-14. They finished it up with an even 4-4 final period.

Wanda Whichard led North Pitt with 14 points, while Kathi Manning added 13. Judith Tripp led Greene Central with 10 points.

Tonight's girls' action sends Ayden-Griffon against Aycock at 6 p.m., with Eastern Wayne and Farmville Central meeting at 9 p.m.

Wayne Defeats Pitt Technical

WINTERVILLE — Wayne Community College gained an 88-57 victory over Pitt Technical Institute last night. The game was the final regular season contest for the Paladins.

Pitt Tech inched out into a 4-0 lead in the first minute of the game, but Wayne came back over the next four minutes to hold a 10-1 scoring advantage, building up a 10-5 lead.

They steadily built this up to a 23-10 lead with 12 minutes to go, and continued to inch away after that. Pitt Tech fought back, however, cutting the lead to 50-42 at the half.

In the second half, however, the ball refused to drop for the Paladins, who went the first six minutes without a point, then got a couple of free throws to break the ice. Still, despite getting good shots, the ball wouldn't go for Pitt, and they were outlaid in the half, 38-15.

"We played well compared to how we did in the past," Coach Charles Coburn said. "We played good defense, and our offense was good too, but the ball just wouldn't go in the hoop. The score really didn't indicate what kind of game it was."

Murray led the Wayne scoring with 22 points, while Hill had 12, Coor had 11 and Best and Barbee each had 10. For Pitt Tech, Charles Jordan had 18, Danny Thomas had 14 and Robert Hardy had 13.

Pitt finished the regular season with a 4-12 record. They open tournament play in their conference on Monday, playing host to Martin Tech. The winner of that game meets regular season champ James Sprunt on the following Friday for the tournament title.

NFL Players Set To Bargain

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ed Garvey admits to having played only high school football — but he has become a burr under the saddle of National Football League owners and Commissioner Pete Rozelle, as well as the lightning rod for the professional players.

For the past three years as executive director of the NFL Players Association, the 33-year-old Garvey has challenged, taunted, cajoled, negotiated, lambasted and sued the NFL owners and Rozelle on behalf of the some 1,200 players who are members of the pro football union.

The biggest test in the history of the 18-year-old association — the Super Test in the jargon of the league — opens March 16 when the union and the owners begin negotiations on a new collective bargaining agreement.

Commissioner Rozelle and union boss Garvey have engaged in some bloody battles, but the negotiation of a new contract threatens to be a Super War.

In his plush offices in downtown Washington, Garvey tells an interviewer that a players' strike or an owners' lockout next summer would not benefit anyone; that the players want to play football, but they also want their freedom from the vise-tight grip he says the owners hold them in.

Though he makes such statements with apparent sincerity — along with a typically generous dose of offbeat humor — one gets the feeling that there will be a strike or a lockout unless the players win most, if not all of their demands.

Garvey spent each week of last year's football season meeting with the players on the NFL's 26 teams to learn what demands the union should make when it confronts the Management Council, bargaining agent for the owners. The players meet March 2-6 in Chicago to hammer out a final position.

The youthful-looking, bespectacled Garvey quickly says the primary battle in the negotiations will be what the players are calling the freedom issues, although they expect skirmishes over the old standbys of basic salaries, pension plans, and medical benefits.

"We know that if we can eliminate the standard player contract, that alone would increase salaries more than anything we could accomplish in collective bargaining because it would give the individual some freedom to negotiate on his own. So that becomes more important than raising the minimum."

Other items, such as the players' dissatisfaction with artificial turf, also will be on the agenda, according to Garvey. But the major issues center around the control of Rozelle, whom the union believes is a tool for management — despite Rozelle's contention that it's his job to represent both the owners and the players.

Jamesville Girls, Bear Grass Teams Are Ousted

WASHINGTON—Three of the four Martin County teams in the Beaufort-Hyde-Martin Tournament were ousted last night in the first three games of the event.

Bear Grass lost both their girls' and boys' games. The girls fell to Belhaven, 53-30, while the boys lost to Bath, 68-43. The Bath girls also won, eliminating Jamesville, 47-19.

Tonight's action puts Belhaven against Chocowinity and Aurora against Matamoras in boys action, while Pantego meets the Matamoras girls.

The lone Martin team left, Jamesville's boys, meets Pantego on Wednesday.

In the opening game, Bath had little trouble in rolling past the Jamesville girls. By the end of the first period, Bath had just about all it needed, rolling up an 18-0 lead. In the second frame, they outscored Jamesville, 11-6, and took a 29-6 lead into intermission.

Bath continued to pull away in the third period, hitting 16 while the Bulets got 13. That made it 45-19. Action was at a standstill in the final period, as Bath got two points and Jamesville again went scoreless.

Joan Leggett led Bath with 22 points, while April Ross had 11. In the second game, the Bath boys gained their victory over Bear Grass. Bath shot out to a 20-6 lead in the first period and was never behind. They outlaid the Bears again, 20-10, in the second frame, and led, 40-16 at halftime.

Bath continued to outlaid Bear Grass in the third quarter, 17-12, upping its lead to 57-28. Bear Grass outlaid them in the last period, 15-11, but it didn't matter.

Donald Gibbs led Bath with 19 points, while Ronald Parker had 14, Anthony Singleton had 12 and James Gibbs had 10. Hilton Armstrong led the Bears with 14 points.

In the final game of the night, Bear Grass' girls were eliminated by Belhaven. Belhaven inched out into a 9-5 lead after one period of play, then shot away. They outlaid the Bears, 14-6, and built up a 23-11 lead in the second quarter.

Robersonville Girls Get Win

ROCKY MOUNT—Robersonville's girls advanced to the semi-finals of the Eastern Plains Conference Tournament with a 49-22 romp over North Johnston last night.

Robersonville now will meet regular season champion West Edgecombe on Thursday at 7 p.m. at Atlantic Christian College.

Robersonville rushed away to a 16-5 lead in the first period of play. North Johnston came back in the second frame, outlaid the Eaglettes, 12-10, but Robersonville still led at the half, 26-17.

In the third frame, Robersonville held Johnston scoreless, as they popped in eight of their own. Than ran it out to 34-17. They finished off their foes, 15-5, in the final period.

Beatrice Forrest and Phyllis McNeil led Robersonville with 11 points each, while Elaine Forrest and Cindy Daniels each had 10.

Tonight, Robersonville's boys join in the action, meeting West Edgecombe at Elm City. The winner advances to another Thursday night game at Atlantic Christian.

North Johnston—Watson 2, Jones 5, Winham 3, Woodard 7, Askew 2, P. Watson 2, Simmons 1.

BOONE—East Carolina University's Pirates ran out to a 21-point lead midway through the second half, then held off Appalachian State University in the final 10 minutes to take a 76-68 victory over the Mountaineers.

The victory upped the East Carolina Southern Conference record to 7-4 and moved them back into third place in the conference standings ahead of Davidson. The Bucs have 11 more percentage points than do the Wildcats, who are 5-3.

The position of the Wildcats in the league standings will be largely settled on Saturday night, when they play host to the Pirates in a key conference game. Should the Pirates win the game, it would be likely that Davidson would finish in fourth place in the league standings.

The Pirates had little trouble with the Mountaineers, leading all the way. They broke open a tie game after the first couple of minutes and pushed into an eight point halftime lead. In the second half, they continued to pull away, moving out by 21 near the 10 minute mark, but eased off after that and were content to gain the victory without a large margin.

The Bucs shot a fine 53.3 percent from the floor, while Appalachian hit 45.5 per cent. The Bucs, who had a terrible night at the foul line against William & Mary, rebounded in this game to shoot 75 per cent. ASU had the poor night, making just 44.4 per cent of their free throws.

East Carolina and Appalachian were both credited with 39 rebounds, amazingly. It appeared to observers, however, that East Carolina held a definite edge in the rebounding, despite the official statistics. Nicky White led the Bucs, hauling down 10, while Robert Geter collected nine.

In turnovers, the Bucs held an edge, losing the ball 18 times as compared to 24 for the Mountaineers.

Geter put the Pirates on top with a quick jumper, but Al

Gentry hit on a backdoor shot to tie it up. Roger Atkinson hit again for the Bucs, but Gentry came through again, making it 4-4.

Atkinson tossed in a missed shot and Donnie Owens canned a jumper to up the score to 8-4 for the Bucs, but again ASU fought back, finally gaining a 10-10 tie on another easy shot by Gentry.

It was tied once more at 12-12, but White put the Bucs back in front with a jumper, and Buzzy Braman hit on a fast break on the next possession. White hit from underneath the next time down, giving the Bucs an 18-12 lead.

After Ed Kane hit for the Mountaineers, White and Braman both connected to run the lead out to eight, 22-14. Don Taylor got a three-point play to cut it back to five, but a free throw by Geter, and baskets by Reggie Lee and Geter ran it out to 31-21, the biggest Pirate lead of the half. Taylor hit in the final minute to cut it back to 31-23, however, and it stood that way at intermission.

White and Owens tossed in early baskets in the second half to run the Bucs to a 12-point lead, 35-23. The two teams then swapped baskets until Owens drove in to make it 43-31, again a 12-point lead.

Geter tapped in a shot and Larry Hunt scored from under the nets. Hunt then added a driving layup to run it out to 49-31, and 18-point bulge.

Kane broke the Pirate string, but Geter came back with a free throw and Lee got a basket. Gregg Ashorn hit two free throws and that made it 54-33, a 21-point lead.

At that point, ASU began to press, and caused a couple of turnovers before the Pirates adjusted. Mark Campbell and Taylor both hit jumpers and Davis got a free throw with 8:56 left to cut the lead to 54-38.

At that point, Davis, the second leading scorer in the conference, had only nine points, but he came on from there to hit 15 more and maintain his average.

The Bucs seemed to be content to roll along, scoring when they could, as they let their margin do the trick for them. Appalachian, which had been in a slow tempo for most of the game, still stayed with it to a certain extent, as they eased back. With 6:29 left, they had cut the lead to 13, at 60-47, but they were behind again by 15, 70-55, with less than five minutes to play.

With 2:05 showing, Lee hit two free throws to make it 74-57, a 17-point bulge, but the Mountaineers went on an 11-point binge in that period to cut it back to as little as six points, but still offered no real threat to win it. Davis hit nine of those 11 points in the final two minutes, five of them coming in the final 30 seconds.

Atkinson hit a pair of free throws with one second left for the final margin.

White led the Pirate scoring with 20, while Lee hit 14 and Geter dumped in 10. Davis' 24 led all scorers, while Dave Cook had 12 and Taylor had 10.

The Bucs are now idle until Saturday, when they travel to meet Davidson in their final road game of the regular season. They return home to close out the year against Richmond and The Citadel the following week.

Creighton Zooms Into Top 20 Furman Seeks To Wrap Up Top Tourney Berth

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

A week ago, Creighton University couldn't even be found in that basement category known as "Others receiving votes." Today, the Bluejays from Omaha, Neb., are living in the high-rent district known as The Associated Press College Basketball Poll.

They may not be up there with perennial powerhouse dweller UCLA or up on Nob Hill where North Carolina State, Notre Dame, North Carolina and the rest of those high-rollers reside.

Creighton is No. 17, one of three new members in the elite Top Twenty. But while the Bluejays bounded into the listing without so much as a stopover among the "others," 19th-ranked Utah and No. 20 Arizona came out of that alphabetical, non-numerical pack.

Creighton achieved its lofty perch — and knocked Marquette from the No. 6 rung to No. 9 — by upsetting the Warriors 75-69 last Saturday. The feat brought the Bluejays' record to 18-4 and brought them 40 points in the voting by The AP's nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

In the "so what else is new?" category, UCLA retained the No. 1 berth. The Bruins, who flattened Oregon's Ducks 84-66, then got shook by Oregon State's busy Beavers before prevailing 80-75 to raise their record to 18-1, garnered all but one of the 50 first-place votes for 998 points.

Notre Dame, also 18-1, got the other No. 1 vote. But the Fighting Irish, who squeezed past Michigan State 91-89, then romped over LaSalle 98-78 and Duke 87-68, wound up third again with 797 points.

North Carolina State's 17-1 Wolfpack on the strength of its stampeding of Georgia Tech and Furman, still got enough runner-up nods to gain the No. 2 spot once more ahead of Notre Dame with 893 points. North Carolina, 17-2, remained No. 4 with 642 points after whipping Furman and Georgia Tech, too.

A week ago, Vanderbilt squeezed out one first-place vote. But the Commodores, 18-1, had a shaky week, barely beating Alabama and Mississippi State 60-59. They lost that first-place vote but they still held on to fifth place with 576 points.

Maryland, 15-4, taking advantage of Marquette's woes and its own victories over Virginia and George Washington, moved up one rung to take over the Warriors' No. 6 ranking with 431 points. Pittsburgh, 19-1, 10th a week ago, bounced up to seventh with 386.

Alabama, 16-3, stayed eighth with 331, Marquette, 18-3, got 302 for ninth and Long Beach State, 18-2, dropped down one spot to round out the Top Ten with 299 points.

In the Second Ten are Providence 256, Indiana 215, Southern California 146, South Carolina 134, Michigan 76, Kansas 57, Creighton 41, Louisville 40, Utah 25 and Arizona 17. Texas-El Paso, Oral Roberts and Maryland-Eastern Shore fell out of the Top Twenty.

The Top Twenty, with first-place votes in parentheses, season records through games of Saturday, Feb. 9 and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

Furman's defending champion Paladins can move to within a victory tonight of the top seeded spot in the Southern Conference championship basketball tournament beginning Feb. 27.

The Paladins, 9-1 in league play and 14-7 over-all, play host to The Citadel's Bulldogs, 3-6 in the conference and 9-9 against all opposition, in the only circuit encounter scheduled.

A victory tonight and another Saturday night at home against Virginia Tech's Gobblers, 12-8, in a nonleague scrap. The Gobblers are fresh from a 72-54 triumph Monday night over William and Mary's Indians.

Who'll be seeded second became even more uncertain Monday night when East Carolina's Pirates outlasted Appalachian State's Mountaineers 76-68 in the only league game on the schedule.

The triumph boosted the Pirates to 7-4 in league play, just half a game behind Richmond at 7-3. East Carolina also moved up to third place, displacing idle Davidson, 5-3 against conference foes.

Nicky White and Donnie Owens kept the Pirates in front after intermission after the last-place Mountaineers, who have won only once in 10 league starts, remained close most of the first half.

White finished with 20 points and Reggie Lee added 14 for East Carolina, now 12-9 over-all. Owens had several key steals. Appalachian's Stan Davis, the league's No. 2 scorer, had a game-high 24 points as the Mountaineers fell to 4-16 against all opposition. Virginia Tech staged two scoring spurts to shake loose from William and Mary, most of whose scoring was provided by freshman Ron Satterthwaite with 21 points and sophomore Mike Arizin with 16.

Ahead by only 25-21, the Gobblers ran off the last 10 points of the first half for a 14-point margin, only to see the Indians cut the gap to four points with seven minutes left. After upping its lead to five, Tech ran off eight straight points to put it away.

Charlie Thomas had 16 points for Tech and Craig Lieder, coming off the injury list, finished with 13, nine from the foul line. Freshman Duke Thorpe had 12 points and 13 rebounds as the Gobblers out-rebounded the Indians by a 51-35 margin.

Donohue Wants To Get Behind A Wheel Again

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Mark Donohue has been officially retired as a driver for four months, but he admits: "I want to get behind the wheel of a race car again so bad it hurts."

Donohue, acknowledged to be among America's top five, and surely its best road course driver, quit racing last October after winning the 1973 Can-Am Challenge Cup sports car series.

"I have accomplished all I had hoped to do," he said at the time. "I want to quit while I'm on top. I'll soon be 37 years old and I don't want to start going downhill."

The Brown University graduate is in Daytona Beach to manage a car entered in the $200,000 Daytona 500 stock car race Feb. 17—and to take his own last fling behind the wheel.

He is one of six drivers who will race German-made Porsche Carreras Friday in the final heat of the inaugural International Race of Champions. He was committed to the series before he unexpectedly announced his retirement after the first three heats were completed at Riverside, Calif., in which he wound up with the most points among the original field of 12.

His last ride, if he sticks to his decision, will be against men who also rank somewhere in the top 10 among American drivers. They are David Pearson, A.J. Foyt, Bobby Unser, George Follmer and Peter Revson.

The top prize is $35,000 and Donohue admits he would like to win it.

"That's a tough bunch to work against," said the blond, tousel-haired engineer, who now lives in Reading, Pa., where he manages the racing enterprises of Roger Penske, his long-time friend and coach.

"But the urge is so great to compete again that I don't care if I crash, run off the course, or anything," he added, with a smile. "I can't wait to get going."

Donohue's main interest now, aside from doing well in his last outing as a driver, is an American Motors Matador—the only factory-backed machine in stock car racing—that will be driven in Sunday's 500-mile conclusion of "Speed Weeks" by Gary Bettenhausen.

Bettenhausen, son of a famous Indianapolis driver of the 1940 and 1950s, will take Donohue's place in the Penske operation, driving some 15 races on the Grand National circuit of the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing and all of the big car (Indianapolis-type) events for the U.S. Auto Club. Donohue will oversee the whole operation.

"Sure, I'll miss driving," he said with a smile. "But you have to face losing something before you realize how much it meant. I guess I took fame and acclaim for granted."

"I know there will be times when I'll think about the big money I was making. I'll miss the deference paid by fans and writers to a champion. But I feel quitting while you are at the top is the right thing to do."

Donohue is no stranger to the Daytona road course. He won the Daytona 24-hour race in 1969, and in 1970, he posted the all-time qualifying record for the 3.81-mile course, 139,919 miles per hour in a Penske-prepared Ferrari prototype.

He also has won three Trans-Am road racing titles, two national championships in the old U.S. Road Racing series, one Can-Am driving title, the 1972 Indianapolis 500, the first 500-mile championship race at Pocono, Pa., and a major Grand National stock car race—the Winston Western 500 at Riverside, Calif.

"It is going to be hard to leave it all," Donohue admitted. "And really, the only thing I haven't done that I wanted to do in my career was drive—and try to win—the world Formula One Grand Prix series."

Had he continued active as a driver, it is believed Donohue would have mounted a challenge in Formula One, which is the only major series the wealthy Pennsylvanian never tried.

But Donohue added, "Now that I have made my decision to retire—and it was mine without any outside pressures—my friends agree with me that I'm doing the right thing."

Seek To Get Coach

DAVIDSON, N.C. (AP)—Forty-eight of the 50 members of the Davidson football squad have signed a petition asking that assistant coach Dave Roberts be named head coach.

However, the athletic director, Dr. Thomas M. Cartmill, indicated Monday that the successor to Dave Fagg, who resigned last month to become an assistant at Georgia Tech, will be an outsider.

"First of all, Cartmill said, none of us were aware that coach Roberts was interested in the job, and we still haven't been advised whether that is the case. I've talked with him and told him that we definitely want him to stay. But his age and the fact that he's had no head coaching experience are the main things against him, I'd say. It's certainly nothing else. I think his popularity is evident from the petition."

"We've had about 50 applicants for the job and are still considering about 10. We hope to find the man within three weeks."

Roberts is a 27-year-old native of Bethesda, Md. He has been a Davidson line coach for the last two seasons.

Davidson decided last fall to grant football scholarships primarily on the basis of need.

Threat Sickens LSU Coach After Defeat

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

Any evaluation of the Vanderbilt crowd depends on which side of the court you're sitting ... And which side of the final score you're sitting on.

"This was the best crowd we've had all year," said Vanderbilt Coach Roy Skinner, whose fifth-ranked Commodores required some clutch foul shooting in the last 30 seconds to squeeze past Louisiana State 91-88 in a Southeast Conference college basketball battle Monday night.

But LSU Coach Dale Brown painted a much bleaker picture of the Nashville crowd.

"Tonight was just sickening," said Brown, who revealed that a man had called the Vandy field house at halftime and threatened to shoot LSU player Collis Temple and the LSU coach. "If this is freedom, we've really messed it up."

In other games involving Top 20 teams, eighth-rated Alabama remained one game behind Vanderbilt in the chase for the SEC title with a 76-74 victory over Mississippi State; 12th-ranked Indiana steamrolled Wisconsin 81-63, 15th-rated Michigan nipped Northwestern 50-48, and newcomer to the rankings, No. 17 Creighton, whipped St. John's of Minnesota 81-43.

The Vanderbilt-LSU game opened under heavy tension. Not only had the Tigers pinned a 84-81 loss on the Commodores Jan. 12 in Baton Rouge but an ugly fight broke out near the end of the earlier game, involving Commodore Captain Jan van Breda Kolff and LSU's Temple. Temple was later reprimanded by the SEC commissioner for his role in the incident.

There were no on-the-court incidents Monday night.

LSU, 5-7 in the SEC and 11-9 over-all, was led by the inside shooting of Glenn Hansen, who had 35 points, and Eddie Palubinskas' 27.

Van Breda Kolff had 16 points for the Commodores, who are in first place in the SEC with an 11-1 record, 19-1 over-all.

Charles Cleveland hit a long jumper with one second remaining for its victory over Mississippi State.

Sophomore Quinn Buckner's 17 points paced Indiana to the victory over Wisconsin, its eighth in a row.

The triumph raised the Hoosiers' marks in the Big Ten to 7-1, leaving them one-half game behind Michigan, and evened Wisconsin's record at 4-4 in the conference.

Northwestern's Bob Hildebrand missed two free throws with three seconds left, enabling Michigan to escape with the victory.

The Creighton Bluejays, upset winners over Marquette at Milwaukee Saturday night, connected on 58 per cent of their first-half shots as they moved to their 19 victory against four defeats.

Elsewhere in college basketball it was Michigan State 75, Ohio State 67; Iowa 112, Purdue 111 in triple overtime; Auburn 99, Kentucky 97 in overtime; Florida 87, Georgia 74; Tennessee 65, Mississippi 57; West Virginia 78, Syracuse 77; Austin Peay 94, Morehead 83, University of Tennessee-Chattanooga 98, Tennessee Wesleyan 66.

Union Carbide Holds Its Lead

Union Carbide continued to hold to the lead in the Division II of the Industrial Basketball League last night.

In the opening game of the evening, North Carolina National Bank downed Wachovia, 66-60, eliminating the losers from any shot at the title. NCNB built up a 26-21 lead after the first half, then held off Wachovia, 40-39, in the second half to win it.

Henry Wood led NCNB with 21 points, while Tony Whitehurst had 17 and Leon Johnson had 14. For Wachovia, Hal Daniel had 27, Randy Brooks had 16 and Terry Sparrow had 10.

In the second game, State Highway took a 60-45 win over Greenville Utilities. By halftime, the Highwaymen had struggled into a 29-27 lead. But they broke it open in the second half with a 31-18 advantage.

Bobby Edwards led the Highwaymen with 17 point, while Fred Mills had 14. Greenville Utilities was led by Melvin Reese and Jimmy Sutton, each with 12.

Union Carbide captured a 62-58 win over the Post Office in the final game. The Batterymen slipped into a 26-22 lead in the first half of play, then matched the Postmen the second half, as each team scored 36 points. Garland Warren led Union Carbide with 26 points, while Alphonza Mayo had 18 and Tommy Roach had 17. For the Post Office, Frank Ligon had 20, and Thomas Perkins had 12.

Ali Bows Out Of Quarry Bout

NEW YORK (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Muhammad Ali has reneged on a proposed fight with Jerry Quarry, who feels he's a victim of a conspiracy.

The fight seemingly was set for Madison Square Garden May 13 and a press conference supposedly was scheduled to be held today to announce the signings.

But Monday the Garden announced that the conference had been canceled because there was no fight to announce.

Ali, who could receive as much as $850,000, maybe much more, for meeting Quarry, who he had knocked out twice previously, decided he needs the rest more than the activity.

Matchmaker Teddy Brenner said Monday, "I was supposed to get together with Ali's representatives today to finalize the fight. Bob Arum and Herbert Muhammad were both in town, and about two o'clock I figured it was time I called them."

"What's up?" I asked Arum. "It's off," he said.

Arum, who called Ali's decision a "shock," said, "Ali was all for it, but he's a human being, too. He told me he wanted to rest until September. He didn't want to go back and put on the gloves so soon after (Joe) Frazier."

Ali outpointed Frazier in 12 rounds two weeks ago.

Ali's main objective is to meet champion George Foreman in September and apparently he thinks that Quarry is too great a risk to take at this time.

Quarry, who had flown in from California, was outraged by the cancellation.

"I'm being boycotted by black fighters," he charged.

He said that he had reached an agreement to fight Foreman but that fight had been canceled and also that the Garden had arranged a bout with Ken Norton but that also fell through.

Foreman, Norton and Ali are black. Quarry is white. "I'm am not trying to derogate any race or religion," Quarry said, "but I really think that there's a conspiracy."

Quarry's manager, Gil Clancy, concurred.

Arum, in answer to Clancy, said, "That's the most absurd thing I've heard. Ali just wants a vacation."

Philadelphia In Romp By Hawks

ATLANTA (AP) — "We lost our cool in the third quarter and we got completely out of the game," said a frustrated Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons after the Philadelphia 76ers routed his Atlanta Hawks 116-95 in the only National Basketball Association game played Monday night.

"It's very frustrating," said Fitzsimmons. "A team has to keep its poise."

The 76ers, who led 51-44 at halftime, fell behind 52-51 after eight straight Hawk points but exploded to a 90-72 margin after three periods when Atlanta was nailed with five technical fouls in the quarter.

It was the 76ers third straight triumph over the Hawks, who fell to 27-37. Philadelphia has won only 18 of 58 contests.

Tom Van Arsdale was the spark the 76ers needed in the third quarter, scoring 17 of his game-high 35 points, including a unique five-point play.

The blond forward converted a three-point play and when Atlanta's Jim Washington protested, Washington was assessed two technical fouls and thrown out of the game. Van Arsdale converted the fouls, putting the 76ers ahead 62-54 which soon became a rout.

Fred Carter added 26 points for the 76ers while Pete Maravich led the Hawks with 35.

There were no games in the American Basketball Association Monday night.

The Worry Clinic Psychology In A Warm Smile

Tony was so blue that he debated suicide. Then a girl at the restaurant saved his life! For restaurants are an excellent place for practicing psychology. And they also are an effective spot for Cupid's archery!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-550: Tony T., aged 63, lost his wife a year ago.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I remember your saying that a smiling waitress exerts a splendid psychological service to her patrons."

"Well, I can give you a personal example to prove it."

"My wife and I had been happily married for exactly 40 years when she succumbed to cancer."

"Our 3 children were grown and living clean across the continent."

"So I felt doubly alone and forsaken."

"My appetite was gone so I lost 25 pounds in weight."

"In fact, one day I was so blue and lonely that I considered taking my own life."

"But I happened to be walking past a little restaurant and decided to get a cup of coffee while I was debating suicide."

"A smiling young waitress came over and greeted me cordially."

"She asked me what I'd have to eat and I told her just a cup of coffee."

"But she said I ought to eat something more solid for she commented that I look thin."

"Well, during her spritely conversation, I finally did order a full lunch."

"And she stopped by my table several times to say a cheery word."

"Well, I perked up, partly due to the good food but probably more because of her sincere friendliness.

"And when she said goodbye, she invited me to come back for dinner, since they were having delicious beef stew."

"She must have changed my outlook entirely, for when I stepped out of the restaurant, the world looked like a friendly place."

"So I decided to postpone any rash act like swallowing a bottle of sleeping pills."

"And I returned that night for dinner, where she again was cheerful and even patted me on the back after my dinner was over."

"Dr. Crane, she literally gave me a new will to live and doubtless saved by life by her friendly smile and cordial conversation."

Bravo, Waitresses!

Waiters and waitresses literally can function as splendid psychologists, as this girl demonstrates.

For most of us associate eating with a friendly social group, since our first contact with a dinner table was when we were placed in our high chair, and dine with our parents and siblings.

All through life, therefore, one of the many facets called the "flavor" of food is this happy social environment at meal time.

That's why widows and widowers, who dine alone at home, lack appetite!

The aroma and 4 taste qualities are still present with their food.

But this vital social element is missing, so they lack their usual zest for dining.

A cheerful, sympathetic waitress or waiter thus can serve as a splendid "home missionary," at the same time they are serving food efficiently.

So learn to turn on a smile and offer a cheery greeting to ALL patrons, but especially to lonely oldsters like Tony!

Being a good waitress or waiter rates on a par with charitable work on the "Hope Ship" or other missionary activities, so you college youth should try such jobs.

They also are an ideal place to develop romances, for when a man has eaten a good meal, the waitress looks far more beautiful to him!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Long Form For Local TV News

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The TV news business is the subject of today's dissertation. First up: The recent decision by WNBC-TV here to start doing a two-hour local evening news show by mid-April or early May.

The step is considered radical for Fun City, but remember, this is a hamlet where attending old movies is considered avant garde.

The long form of local TV news is old hat for Los Angeles viewers. It began there in April 1968 at KNBC-TV, an NBC-owned station, with two hours of local, state, national and world news in the early evening each week night.

The first show ran from 5 to 6 p.m., followed by the national half-hour NBC news and then another hour-long local news show.

The format was changed in November 1970 to two separate, but consecutive, local evening news shows. They started at 5 p.m., ended at 7 p.m. and were followed by the "NBC Nightly News."

It still works that way and the long form concept there is starting to get competition from two other major TV stations.

Last week, rival KNXT, owned by CBS, went from an hour-long evening news show to 90 minutes, starting at 5:30 p.m. The new format features separate half-hour and hour-long news programs, each with its own anchorman, before the "CBS Evening News" at 7 p.m.

And this spring, another network-owned station in Los Angeles, KABC-TV, is moving to a two-hour local news format in the early evening, according to Al Primo, vice-president for news at ABC's five TV stations.

He said the same spring change will occur at KGO-TV, the network's San Francisco station.

ABC-TV's fine "Close-Up" investigative series plans to investigate — stand by, now — television. It'll be the September offering for the series, recently renewed for a second season.

Av Westin, ABC News' vice-president for documentaries, says the show won't involve the oft-criticized television news area.

Instead, it'll concentrate on the equally-criticized area of entertainment programming by all three major TV networks.

He says it will cover "the decision-making processes that bring certain kinds of programming to the air," and also touch on the controversial ratings that decide the fate of network TV shows.

CBS' "60 Minutes," which last month did an excellent study of junkies and other journalistic problems, now is toiling on a new piece about local TV news shows, using the colorful San Francisco market to illustrate what is happening in many regions.

Among other things, it'll inspect the role of "news consultants" hired to suggest ways local TV news efforts can draw more viewers.

However, Harry Moses, producer of the segment, says the advisors aren't the main thrust of the story, filmed at three stations—KRON, KGO and KPXX—now engaged in a hard scrap for ratings leadership.

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Morning favors developing a new course of action whereby you can impress those vital to your success. Later you find lack of support from officials which causes you to postpone putting such desirable plans in action.

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr 19) Accept assistance of friends in a.m., but later there is delay. Go after that personal aim in p.m. Use the direct approach.

TAURUS (Apr 20 to May 20) Get your actual work done early since later your associates are very demanding, but to a good purpose. Don't lose temper with mate tonight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A fine idea should be studied carefully early, then put to work in p.m. A pleasing letter arrives. Show care with opposite sex.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Take time to please loved one in a.m., but be careful a bigwig does not cut off backing on grounds you are indolent.

LEO (July 22 to Aug 21) Handle that family affair early and well since further procrastination could bring about dire results. Be helpful. Work quietly.

VIRGO (Aug 22 to Sept 22) Take care of important matters early, then compliment others and gain their favors. Reach better understanding with co-workers for efficiency.

LIBRA (Sept 23 to Oct 22) Monetary affairs can meet with big success in a.m., but take it easy after lunch or you could lose a good deal. Follow expert's advice.

SCORPIO (Oct 23 to Nov 21) Get busy early at whatever means the most to you and be kind toward allies for best results. Be well groomed for greater self-confidence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov 22 to Dec 21) Plan early how to gain aims, but don't act forcefully later. Assist those who are having rough sledding. Be on time.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 20) A fascinating friend can give you fine ideas and suggestions, but don't act on them just yet. Avoid group meetings, others are edgy.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21 to Feb 19) Good day for some career changes, but don't try to lord it over others or you get nowhere. Take no chances with reputation.

PISCES (Feb 20 to Mar 20) You can be highly inspired in a.m. and can make changes that are necessary, or put ideas across, but take it easy after lunch.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have much ability at educational work early in life and should have the advantage of a college education, so prepare for it now. Your child is likely to choose trouble-shooting vocations that require the ability to solve all kinds of problems intelligently. The physique is fine here and sports are a must. The religious fervor is great.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

While half a loaf might be better than none at all, being high right at the bridge table is generally no better than being completely off the track.

South correctly considered his hand too strong and his support for the minor suits too good to insist on his spades. Therefore, he made a takeout double, intending to bid spades at his next turn. When North showed a hand that was better than average with his jump response, South felt free to introduce his five-card suit and a good game was reached.

West led the ten of hearts and, to guard against the danger that it was a singleton, declarer won the ace. Since the opening bid marked East with every missing high card, declarer entered dummy with a club to the ten and led a low spade to his king, which held. He continued with a spade to the jack. East took the ace, cashed the king of hearts and continued with the queen. Declarer was a dead duck. If he ruffed low, West would overruff with the ten. If he ruffed with the queen, West's ten would be promoted to a trick. Since declarer still had to lose a diamond trick, that meant down one.

Declarer was on the right track when he crossed to dummy to lead a low trump toward his hand. However, that should have been only the first stage in his plan. After winning the king of spades, declarer should have re-entered dummy with the ace of diamonds and led a second spade toward the queen!

Note the difference that this play makes. East wins the ace of trumps and cashes the king of hearts. Now, when he leads another heart declarer can ruff with the queen to prevent an over-ruff. The jack of spades is still in dummy to draw West's ten of trumps, and declarer makes the contract, losing a trick in each suit except for clubs.

How N.C. Congressmen And Senators Voted

THE PILE GETS BIGGER AND BIGGER—Accumulated snow near a home in Calumet (Mich.) almost covers a yard light and icicles up to eight feet long hang from the roof. The area has long been known as the snow belt of the copper country where about 187 inches of snow fell in 1973. In January of this year 59 inches was recorded. (AP Wirephoto)

By ROLL CALL REPORT
WASHINGTON—Here's how area Members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes Jan. 31 through Feb. 6.

HOUSE
DEPOSIT INSURANCE
Rejected, 170 for and 202 against, an amendment that would have set a $50,000 insurance limit for municipal, state and federal government deposits in banks and savings-and-loans.

In rejecting the amendment, the House voted to insure such deposits for 100 per cent of their value. The overall bill was later passed and sent to the Senate.

If the bill becomes law, private deposits will be insured for up to $50,000 and public deposits will receive 100 per cent coverage. At present, both government and private deposits have a maximum of $20,000 in federal deposit insurance.

One effect of full coverage for government deposits is that public units probably will shift many deposits from banks to savings-and-loans, which pay higher interest rates.

Most municipal and state deposits now go to banks because only banks can issue the municipal and state bonds needed as collateral (insurance) for deposits in excess of $20,000.

Supporters argued that 100 per cent coverage will damage the municipal and state bond industry, and cause a loss of revenue for banks.

Opponents argued that shifting deposits to savings-and-loans will mean more income for governments and also will free up money for home mortgages.

Reps. Wilmer Mizell (R-8), Earl Ruth (R-8) and James Martin (R-9) voted "yea."

Reps. Walter Jones (D-1), L. H. Fountain (D-2), David Henderson (D-3), Ike Andrews (D-4), Richardson Preyer (D-6), Charles Rose (D-7), James Broyhill (R-10) and Roy Taylor (D-11) voted "nay."

IMPEACHMENT INQUIRY
Passed, 342 for and 70 against, a motion to block amendments to the House resolution granting subpoena powers to the House Judiciary Committee's investigation of the impeachment of the President.

The motion was to invoke the "previous question." Its approval closed debate and forced an immediate vote on the overall resolution.

Following the vote, the House overwhelmingly passed the resolution. As a House resolution it becomes effective without the need for concurrence by the Senate and the President.

Supporters argued that a thorough impeachment investigation can only be accomplished if the committee is granted broad powers to subpoena evidence and compel witnesses—including the President—to testify. Rep. John Rhodes (R-Ariz.), the House Minority Leader, expressed satisfaction that the committee would not abuse its powers.

Opponents argued that the powers are too broad. Most opponents wanted to attach amendments prohibiting the subpoenaing of evidence not directly related to impeachable offenses, and setting an April 30 cut-off date for the committee's inquiry.

Jones, Fountain, Henderson, Andrews, Preyer, Rose, Broyhill and Taylor voted "yea." Mizell, Ruth and Martin voted "nay."

SENATE
GENOCIDE DEBATE Failed, 55 for and 38 against, to end a filibuster against the genocide treaty resolution. The vote fell seven short of the two-thirds majority needed under Senate rules to end debate.

The genocide treaty was first sent to the Senate in 1949 by President Truman. It defines genocide as any systematic mass murder of mental torture of ethnic groups, such as Hitler applied to Jews in World War II, and calls for establishing an international tribunal for prosecuting persons accused of genocide.

All Presidents since Truman have endorsed the treaty, but the full Senate has never taken a vote on whether the U. S. should become a signatory.

Supporters of the treaty argued that the Senate should "vote its conscience" and have the U. S. join the 78 other nations that have signed the treaty.

Opponents argued against subjecting American citizens to the "whims and caprices" of an international tribunal which would not be bound to observe the Constitution's guarantees of due-process.

Sens. Sam Ervin (D) and Jesse Helms (R) voted "nay."

LEGAL SERVICES Passed, 69 for and 17 against, the legal services bill that establishes an independent, non-profit corporation to take over the legal programs for the poor which the Office of Economic Opportunity has run since 1964.

The bill, which now goes to the House, has the Administration's backing.

It calls for an eleven-member board, appointed by the President with Senate confirmation, to run the corporation. The program will cost $71.8 million in fiscal 1974, $80 million in fiscal 1975 and $100 million in fiscal 1976.

Supporters argued that all members of society should have access to competent legal advice, even if they can't afford to pay for it.

Opponents argued that the bill does not contain sufficient safeguards against "Naderesque" trouble-making by legal service lawyers.

Ervin and Helms voted "nay."

LEGAL SERVICES LOBBYING Rejected, 29 for and 59 against, an amendment to prevent legal services lawyers from giving advice to their clients on how to lobby for legislation or register to vote.

The rejected amendment also would have banned the lawyers from participating in any political activities, on the job or off.

Supporters of the amendment argued that legal services lawyers often get too zealous and that strict rules are needed to keep them out of the partisan politics.

Opponents argued that many political matters fall within a clients' constitutional rights, and that restricting lawyers in this area would give poor people "second class" counsel.

Ervin and Helms voted "yea."

LEGAL SERVICES INDEPENDENCE Rejected, 30 for and 58 against, an amendment to increase Congress' control of the proposed legal services corporation.

By rejecting the amendment, the Senate let stand a provision that prohibits any congressional or Administration interference in the policies of the corporation.

The Corporation, therefore, is free to decide how to spend its money and which types of services it will offer, except for explicit prohibitions against such activities as counseling draft dodgers and deserters.

Supporters of the amendment argued that Congress has a responsibility to the taxpayers to review federal programs.

Opponents argued that the corporation must be insulated from the political pressures that Congress and the President can exert.

Ervin and Helms voted "yea."

Recalls Airship Travel As Luxurious, Practical

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Soviet Union is reported planning to build a nuclear-powered dirigible capable of carrying 180 tons of freight and 1,800 passengers. In the following article, the son of a famed German dirigible commander discusses the past and future of commercial airships.

By KLAUS F. PRUSS
Associated Press Writer
FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—In rainy twilight of May 6, 1937, the German Zeppelin Hindenburg with 97 persons aboard approached a U.S. naval airbase after a nonstop flight across the North Atlantic. Without warning, the largest airship ever flown exploded and its shattered hull collapsed on the sandy field at Lakehurst, N.J., killing 36 persons.

My father, Capt. Max Pruss, was commander of the Hindenburg and one of the survivors of the crash. He and other airship enthusiasts were convinced that accounts of that crash caused the demise of transoceanic airship travel a decade before airplanes were to achieve the same goal. Airship construction in Germany was halted with the start of World War II.

Some aircraft designers now consider airships to be an answer to requirements of contemporary transportation, in which energy savings and environmental protection are important concerns.

The 1973-74 edition of Jane's Freight Containers, an authoritative reference on transportation, recently reported plans by Soviet designers for a nuclear-powered airship capable of carrying 180 tons of freight and 1,800 passengers at a cruising speed of 190 m.p.h.

The first of the Zeppelins, named after inventor Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin, flew in 1900 at Lake Constance in south Germany. The construction company, Zeppelin Metal-lwerke, still operates at Friedrichshafen, but it builds aluminum containers and radar equipment now instead of airships.

The first Zeppelin passenger service was inaugurated in 1930.

Campus To Host Diocesan Meet
The annual meeting of the Episcopal Diocese of North Carolina is scheduled to be held March 1-2 on the campus of East Carolina University. Sessions will be held in the dining hall of South Cafeteria. Between 400 and 600 delegates are expected, with Bishop Hunley Elebash of Wilmington presiding.

HEART PATIENTS RETIRE
ZAGREB, Yugoslavia (AP)—Of all Yugoslavs retiring early because of illness, 51.2 per cent do so because of heart ailments, "Vus" magazine said. It called for alarm since heart patients are mostly highly skilled people with great responsibilities.

1910, and airships served as long-distance German bombers in World War I. The first regular transoceanic schedule was set up in the 1920s, connecting Germany with the United States, a three-day flight, and with Brazil, a five-day flight.

I vividly recall the Hindenburg, which was truly a flying luxury hotel. This airship was 804 feet long, 147 feet high and was powered by four diesel engines at a cruising speed of 78 miles an hour.

As a 9-year-old, I was aboard the Hindenburg in 1936 on flights between Lake Constance and Frankfurt, the European airship terminal.

Passenger facilities were located within the rigid hull of the airship. There were promenade decks and lounges with large windows to view the scenery floating by, a dining room and bar, and staterooms with hot and cold running water.

MODERN WINDMILL—A workman inspects a Verticle Axis Windmill at the NASA's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va. (AP Wirephoto)

New Windmill To Give Energy

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) —
Shades of the Netherlands!
A federal agency is developing a windmill for placement atop homes to provide electricity that will help out in the energy shortage.

This windmill would not look like the ones scattered across the Dutch landscape. Instead, it would look something like a glorified egg-beater.
The National Aeronautics and Space Administration says the windmill, estimated to cost $500 to $1,000, would provide "inexpensive and non-polluting" electricity for home use.

The first full-scale experimental model already has been erected atop a two-story building at NASA's Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va., and initial tests are being planned, the agency said.

If tests pan out well, NASA says, such devices might someday be used initially as auxiliary power sources for average homes.

Eventually, says the agency, such housetop windmills, in conjunction with other envisioned developments, might furnish a complete power system for an individual home.

"If, for example, the windmill could produce hydrogen gas from river water, and the gas could be compressed and stored for use during windless periods, "an extremely efficient and economical power source could be provided for home use," NASA said.

Changes In AP Staff

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—Roger Jolley, 28, Associated Press Carolinas news editor for the last 2½ years, has been named to head the news agency's office in St. Louis.

He will take his new post as correspondent on March 3.

Before joining the AP in May of 1970, the native of Cliffside in Rutherford County, N.C., was with the Durham, N.C., Morning Herald.

He is being succeeded as news editor in the Charlotte office by Melvin Lang, 39, correspondent in the Raleigh office for the last three years. Lang joined the AP in Charlotte 11 years ago and has worked for the news agency in Miami, Albany, N.Y., and Tulsa.

Before joining the AP, he worked for the Roanoke, Va., Times; the Durham, N.C., Herald, and the Greenville, N.C., Reflector.

Robert B. Cullen, 25, a native of Newark, N.J., will succeed Lang in Raleigh. He joined the AP in Charlotte in June of 1971 from the Newark News, and was transferred to the Raleigh staff in 1972.

No Injuries In Car-Train Crash

No injuries were reported and only minor damage resulted when a car and train engine collided about 6 p.m. yesterday at the Seaboard Coast Line Railroad crossing on Airport Road.

Officers said a car driven by Gary Lee Hunnings of 1415 Broad St. collided with the SCL engine operated by Bernard Wingate Joyner of Kinston.

Damage to the car was set at $40 while no damage resulted to the train.

Neighborhood Meeting Set

A community meeting is scheduled for the residents of the Newtown area Wednesday at 7 p.m., according to Rick Cagan of the local VISTA office.

Cagan said that the purpose of the meeting, to be held in the Cornerstone Educational Building, is to "come together as a neighborhood action group to have a voice in planning what can be done to improve economic and social conditions."

Persons with questions concerning the meeting should call Cagan at 758-5703.

Chief Glenn Cannon said thieves broke a glass door to gain entrance to the store and took four bottles of wine.

Damage to the door was set at $50.

Investigation of the incident is continuing.

By WILLIAM HELTON
Associated Press Writer
BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — A FBI official predicts that the family of kidnaped newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst will hear from her abductors by tonight.

Charles Bates, special agent in charge of the FBI's San Francisco office, predicted about 9 p.m. Monday that word would be received within 24 hours. "But that's just a guess," he said.

"I'm just assuming that from the fact that they sent a letter last Thursday and if they are going to send another like they indicated they would, then it should be about time for it."

Bates made the comment after spending some two hours at the Hearst family home with the parents of the 19-year-old Miss Hearst.

"I just wanted to tell them we're doing everything we can," he said of the meeting with Mr. and Mrs. Randolph A. Hearst.

"We are not going to do anything at the moment that might cause anything serious to happen to Patty Hearst. We're not going to go in and hassle people because we want her back and we want her back safely."

Earlier, Bates told newsmen, "I don't think she is dead. I have no problem with that."

"I don't attach any significance yet to the delay (in hearing from the abductors), but if it goes on a few more days it might be a different ball game."

Hearst said, however, that the silence from the kidnapers has frightened the Hearst family, even though he said he has to believe that his daughter is still alive.

Two armed men broke into Miss Hearst's apartment Feb. 4, beat her fiancé with a wine bottle and then threw her screaming into the trunk of a car as they fired shots toward witnesses.

On Feb. 7 Berkeley radio sta-

ACTRESS DIES

AIKEN, S.C. (AP)—Baroness Fern Andra, a noted European stage and screen actress, died at an Aiken nursing home after a long illness. She was 80.

tion KPFA received a letter from a group called the Symphoniose Liberation Army, which claimed that it had kidnaped Miss Hearst and was holding her in "protective custody."

For authentication, the group enclosed a gasoline credit card belonging to Hearst, editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner and board chairman of the Hearst Corp.

No ransom demand was made. Since then there has been no further word from the abductors.

Hearst told newsmen Monday at the family's mansion in Hillsborough, 15 miles south of San Francisco, that he was frightened but believes his daughter is still alive.

"The only other possibility is an absolutely crazy person has taken her off and killed her, and I don't want to believe that," Hearst said.

Hearst denied that his daughter was captured by the radical left.

"The moves they (the radical left) make are against either individuals or institutions that they consider their enemies; this has been made against a child," he said.

The FBI and police have said it is logical that the SLA might demand in return for Miss Hearst's freedom the release of Russell Little, 24, and Joseph Remiro, 27.

The two alleged SLA members are being held without bail in San Quentin Prison on charges they murdered Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster last November, a slaying the SLA claimed it engineered.

The FBI and police said they were searching for seven persons — five alleged kidnapers and a couple that was seen parked outside Miss Hearst's apartment for more than an hour the night she was abducted.

Bates said the FBI had 100-125 agents working on the case over the weekend.

Board Is In New Offices

Miss Margaret Register, executive secretary of the Pitt Board of Elections, advised area residents that the board has completed its move to new offices at 201 E. Second Street.

Miss Register said that she understood a number of people had gone to the old Elections office at the courthouse thinking the office was still located there.

The new office, located in the recently completed addition to the building occupied by County ABC Store No. 1, is much more convenient for Pitt voters, she added.

The Board's telephone number remains the same (758-4683) at the new location, it was pointed out.

Miss Register reminded voters that the registration deadline is April 8 at 5 p.m. and candidates who wish to be on the ballots for the May primary have until Feb. 25 at 12 noon to file.
