

Group To Form Bicentennial Corporation

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
Preliminary planning for the city's bicentennial observance progressed Wednesday night as a group of civic leaders and citizens met with a representative of a professional celebration planning firm and voted to form a bicentennial corporation.

areas for the money to go towards." He said that the money should be designated at the start of the activities. Jack Bircher of Fieldcrest Mills asked Jaycee representatives if they had considered the timing of the event in view of the national celebration scheduled for 1976 and also the practical side of the event in light of the economy. Jaycee Mark Meltzer said that "we feel that Greenville needs its own celebration." Dick Kiernan, a Jaycee director, added that the Greenville celebration would help to "build toward a crescendo for the national event," with possibly smaller local observance in 1976 to tie in with the U. S. affair. Kiernan emphasized that "this will not be a Jaycee bicentennial." He said that the chapter will help to get it started and assist in any way but the total involvement of the whole community is the basic goal. The celebration would be held during September, Kiernan reported, although a definite week has not been set. The week will be scheduled when East Carolina University students are back from summer vacations to insure campus participation. The March 12 meeting, with the site to be named soon, will be open to the general public. Howard will present data at the meeting involving a program of events for the week and budget figures, including the Rogers Co. fee schedule. The actual forming of the corporation could take place sometime following the next meeting, it was explained. The community would select officers of the corporation. The Rogers Co. has handled celebrations in Rocky Mount, Apex, Hickory, and Pittsboro, Howard said, and is currently involved in the Maxton event. Rocky Mount realized a profit of some $8,000 from its birthday celebration.

The group, meeting at the invitation of the Jaycees and representing a variety of organizations and institutions here, invited Robert Howard of Rogers Co. back for a March meeting and a discussion of essential elements of the proposed event, including costs.

Expand Basis For Impeachment Step

By JOHN BECKLER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - The staff of the House Judiciary Committee has agreed on a definition of impeachable offenses that greatly expands the grounds for possible impeachment of President Nixon.

In other Watergate-related developments, a U.S. District Court judge cleared the way for ousted White House Counsel John W. Dean III to testify at the upcoming trial of Dwight L. Chapin, another former White House aide. Chapin, accused of lying four times under oath to the Watergate grand jury, is scheduled to go on trial April 1.

He lost his court battle to keep Dean from testifying against him when the judge ruled no confidential attorney-client privilege existed between the two, as Chapin had contended.

More Pros And Cons Over ECU Med School

RALEIGH (AP)—Interest in the public hearings on East Carolina University's bid for an expanded medical school appears to be dwindling in the North Carolina legislature. Wednesday's second session of the three-day hearing was attended by fewer than half the members of the Joint Appropriations Committee.

They heard a series of speakers give arguments for and against the medical school, but few new facts were disclosed. Among those appearing who favored ECU were state AFLCIO president Wilbur Hobby and former Secretary of Human Resources Dr. Lenox Baker.

Among those favoring the University of North Carolina Board of Governors' position against ECU expansion were Dr. Bryant Galusha of Charlotte and Victor Bryant of Durham, who is a member of the board.

Baker recalled the 44 years he has spent in the medical field in North Carolina and the opposition to establishment and expansion of the state's existing medical schools at Duke, Wake Forest and UNC Chapel Hill.

The definition, which includes noncriminal conduct, represents only the views of the committee's top staff lawyers. However, it is expected to have a strong influence on committee members.

And, U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica had before him again the issue of the 18½-minute gap in a White House Watergate tape and the findings of technical experts that the gap was created by at least five separate erasures of the tape. That finding was challenged twice by other technical experts, one of whom was a still unidentified expert consulted by President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer James D. St. Clair.

The latest developments in the case prompted Sirica to order both sides to halt further public discussion of the matter. At separate meetings Wednesday with the Democratic and Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee, Doar and Jenner described their conclusions about reaction in broad terms, leaving the details for a later briefing. Doar reportedly told the Democrats at their meeting that the brief's conclusion is blander than some of them may have preferred because of his desire to win Jenner's agreement.

They heard a resolution supporting the ECU expansion proposal which was passed by his state labor organization. The testimony of Dr. Galusha sparked the most Under questioning from Sen. Charles Deane, D-Richmond, Galusha is director of the Area Health Education Center affiliated with Charlotte Memorial Hospital and he spoke in favor of the Board of Governors' proposal to spend $29 million on nine new AHECs.

Galusha said the interns and residents who have graduated from the Charlotte AHEC have tended to remain in North Carolina when they started their own practices.

The committee will receive the definition today, in a legal brief prepared under the direction of John M. Doar, chief counsel, and Albert E. Jenner Jr., chief minority counsel. Meanwhile, the Senate Judiciary Committee said Wednesday it had no immediate plans to hold public hearings over the dispute between President Nixon and special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski. Jaworski has been stymied in his attempts to obtain access to White House files and has reported his problems to the committee.

Sources said Senate Judiciary members are concerned that such hearings could result in charges of unfair pretrial publicity because Watergate indictments are believed imminent.

Another Barrier Raised

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Rules Committee has erected a potentially fatal roadblock in the path of emergency energy legislation already threatened by a presidential veto.

Indicted

WASHINGTON (AP) - A federal grand jury today indicted a Texas lawyer on a charge of lying to a grand jury about dairy industry contributions to President Nixon's reelection campaign.

Several Speakers Urge Sales Tax On Food Be Removed

RALEIGH (AP) - Several speakers today urged passage of legislation that would remove North Carolina's sales tax on food and make up most of the revenue loss by upping the state income taxes on the well-to-do.

Agenda

Three items are scheduled for consideration at tonight's special call meeting of the City Council, set for 8 p.m. at city hall.

Says Superiors Ordered Spying

WASHINGTON (AP) - A Navy enlisted man has testified he was lavishly praised by his military superiors for pilfering top secret files from Henry A. Kissinger for delivery to the nation's top military leader.

In directly contradicting testimony from Secretary of State Kissinger and the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Adm. Thomas H. Moorer, Yeoman Charles E. Radford said Wednesday his superiors asked him to obtain any material "I could get my hands on."

Atlanta Editor Said An Abduction Victim

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) - Reg Murphy, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, has been abducted by a group calling itself the Revolutionary Army, the newspaper said today.

Murphy, 40, has been missing since about 7:30 p.m., Wednesday, when he left his home with a man who said he wanted to talk to him about a news story, his wife said.

The caller said the Constitution would hear further by other means. Channel 5 TV - WAGA - received a similar call at about 9:20 p.m. Shortly thereafter, Murphy's wife received a call from someone who said, "If you want to know about your husband, call Jim Minter."

There have been no demands, but there were indications that a followup telephone call was expected. William H. Fields, executive editor of Atlanta Newspapers, which publishes the Constitution and Atlanta Journal, said the newspaper received a telephone call about 9:15 p.m. Wednesday. He said similar calls were made to Atlanta television station WAGA and to Mrs. Murphy. The FBI in Atlanta and Washington declined comment. Fields issued a brief state-

Mrs. Murphy said the person who called her did not identify himself in any way. "I am not sure what to do," she said. "I have no other information. I am waiting now for some kind of contact." Security was tight at the Journal-Constitution's building. Guards were requiring all employees to show their building passes and to register, even though they were familiar with most of them. FBI agents searched Murphy's office for clues again today after having made a search Wednesday night, sources at the paper said.

If either of the points of order is sustained or if the House votes to delete the rationing section, the bill no longer would conform with the Senate-passed version and a new Senate-House conference would have to be convened.

The Senate passed the bill Tuesday despite a warning from federal energy chief William E. Simon that the President would veto it. Senate Interior chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., predicted the Senate could override a veto, but House Minority Leader John J. Rhodes, R-Ariz., said the House would sustain a veto.

The administration objects to a number of provisions in the bill, including the oil price rollback and the extension of unemployment benefits to workers laid off by fuel shortages.

Figures provided by the House Commerce Committee show that the rollback would reduce the pump price of gasoline by as much as four cents per gallon and would cut soaring propane prices in half. The White House, along with legislators from oil-producing states, claims that the rollback would discourage production of additional supplies of oil needed to meet the current shortages.

The Green Springs model, a six by four feet scale model, included contours and landscaping, a proposed lake area, cookout areas, picnic tables, nature paths, parking, bridges and rest room facilities. The model depicts the great potential for developing this area of Greenville at a reasonable cost. The Recreation Department will present the model to the City Council at a later date. Currently, the ASC-AIA is also working with the Greenville Recreation Department in obtaining data for recreational needs in other park areas. Boyd Lee, director of the Greenville Recreation Department, stated that the Green Springs Park Area was first proposed over 15 years ago. Since that time, only slight improvements have been made. The PTI architectural drafting students were commended by Lee for their outstanding work and their contribution to the City of Greenville. Lee said that he hoped this project would begin this year. Edwin F. Martin, Jr., chairman of the Pitt Tech Architectural Drafting Department, remarked that since the city now has the equipment to do the job, he hopes that every effort will be made to make this project a reality. He stated that the design and development of the model had been a tremendous learning experience for the students.

Tyner-Sutton Vows Spoken

The Meadowbrook Pentecostal Holiness Church was the setting for the Sunday afternoon, Feb. 10, wedding of Pamela Sutton and Thel Matthew Tyner Jr.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Heber Leo Sutton, Mrs. Sarah Tyner, all of Greenville, and the late Mr. Tyner.

The Rev. L.E. Peyton performed the double ring ceremony assisted by the Rev. G.S. Holliday. A program of wedding music was presented by Brenda Cox of Washington, pianist, and Mrs. Delois Shannon of Greenville, soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a formal gown of white silk organza over peau de soie fashioned with long sleeves trimmed in alencon lace with a fitted waistline.

Her headpiece was floor length white net trimmed with alencon lace. The bride carried a cascade of white carnations mixed with yellow daisies tied with a white bow with long streamers.

The honor attendant was Faye Rouse, sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Nancy Baker, Brenda Harris and Loretta Cherry, sister of the bride, all of Greenville.

Kimberley James, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. James of Greenville, was flower girl.

Jimmy Harris was best man and ushers were John R. James and Paul Street, brother-in-law of the bride, both of Greenville.

Mrs. L.E. Peyton of Greenville directed the wedding and Danny Sutton, brother of the bride, presided at the register.

For a wedding trip to the coast, the bride changed into a white polyester suit trimmed in red and wore the corsage lifted from her bouquet.

The couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is employed by King's Department Store, Greenville. The bridegroom graduated from Belvoir High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute. He is employed by Clark's Discount Store, Greenville.

A reception was held in the church recreation hall following the wedding, given by the bride's parents.

The wedding cake was served by Sue Street, sister of the bride, and Leola Cox, sister of the bride, poured punch.

Early Arrival Time Caused Retaliation

DEAR ABBY: I am a 28-year-old guy who came to New York with a buddy. We teamed up with another guy, and the three of us share a two-bedroom apartment. It's a great location for all of us, and we split the rent.

My buddy [the one I came to New York with] invited his girl friend from back home to come to New York and stay at his pad. She's still here and plans to stay indefinitely. [She and my buddy share one bedroom, and the other guy and I share one.]

I recently met Joan, who's the nicest gal I've ever known. She asked me where I lived, and I told her I lived with two other guys. Then I mentioned this girl who's staying with my buddy. Joan blew her stack and said she didn't like the idea of a girl living in the same apartment with me even though I have nothing to do with her. I'm serious about Joan. She's a very classy gal, but she insists that either that girl should move, or I should. What do you think?
MR. CLEAN

DEAR MR. CLEAN: If anybody should move, it should be your buddy who invited his girl friend to bunk with him. That's not the deal you made originally. Joan's objections are valid, so if the shacker-uppers won't budge, you'd be wise to move. It's easier to find another pad than another classy gal.

DEAR ABBY: Please reassure the wife who lamented that she had been smashing in bed, but short elsewhere during 27 years of marriage:

1. A lady's enthusiasm has everything to do with a man's virility [rhymes with ability];
2. Love and sex are not synonymous, but they can be mighty close kin;
3. Anybody can learn to cook, and I'll bet Whatshis-name whistles while he fixes breakfast every morning.

OLD HUSBAND

DEAR HUSBAND: And I'll bet you're right!

DEAR ABBY: My own tendency to be late was cured when someone said that tardiness is the subtlest form of self-love and conceal-counting your time and convenience more important than another's.

Perhaps that is why the tardiness of my inlaws rankles me so. They are consistently late, a half hour to an hour and a half, even for a dinner when others are involved.

Don't suggest that I give them an earlier arrival time. One family member did this, and when it was discovered, retaliation set in. How would you handle this? [Short of excluding these members from family gatherings.]
OFFENDED AND BAFFLED

DEAR O AND B: Don't sweat it. Invite them only on those occasions when their late arrival will not inconvenience YOU!

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DOING IT MY WAY": You'll never get away with it. The sins we do two by two, we pay for one by one.

Farewell To Perfect Mate

LONDON, England (WNS)—June Calvert, who had been married for 21 years, entered her husband Roy in the BBC's Ideal Husband Contest without even telling him. "I have found the nearest thing to perfection in a husband," she told the judges. "Roy must surely top the list." Dalvert, a 47-year-old college professor, did not win first prize but was runner-up. One month later his wife left him. She explained, "Just before the contest finals I had gone alone on holiday to Majorca because Roy couldn't get away from his classes. I met another man, and that was that."

Marriage Is Goal In Cairo

By SAMI RIZKALLAH
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A growing number of Egyptian women are quitting their jobs to get married, a sociological study shows. Women's libbers here are dismayed.

The study by the Social Research Institute said that 15,000 women out of a female working force of half a million left jobs in the last four years in offices and factories once they were certain they were getting married.

"The most serious thing is that the women do this freely despite the long and difficult struggle they have waged to win equality with men in the working force," said Abdel Halim El Kadi, head of the institute.

Some women's libbers said the survey was upsetting. "Perhaps some girls who clamor for equality only do it to make the chase hotter or to improve their chances of hooking a husband," said one advocate of women's rights.

El Kadi, who is married but whose wife doesn't work, said the oriental notion of marriage, which emphasizes submission to the husband in all things, was a factor in women leaving their jobs.

"The importance of marriage is repeatedly stressed as girls grow up in Egypt. Some become obsessed with it and are prepared to sacrifice a job to get termination pay and thereby get a future husband furnish their home," El Kadi said. The institute suggested one remedy was to have the government establish a fund from which women workers could draw marriage loans to help furnish their homes so they can continue their jobs.

The study said a fund was only part of the answer. It also recommended the difference in wages paid to women and men doing basically the same job be eliminated, and day care centers for children be established.

But the report conceded that the most overwhelming obstacle was insistence by many Egyptian men that their wives quit their jobs upon marriage because not doing so implies he is not a good provider.

Feminist Dr. Nawal El Sadawy, whose provocative book, "Women and Sex" caused her to lose a government job, feels that the real importance of work for women is not understood by Egyptian men.

"They reluctantly accept the working wife so she can help raise the economic standards of the family, but men don't understand that women need a job to feel independent and useful," she said. "Work is meaningful because it helps women realize themselves psychologically through a new role in life. Women want to contribute to society as employed workers, not only as wives and mothers in the home."

The cause of the working wife was not helped by another government study, written by a man, which labeled women "employment hazards," because they are often absent, have headaches and react emotionally to daily office problems.

Magda Ibrahim is a 30-year-old former clerk who quit her job when she got married but is now looking for another one since the couple has discovered the husband's income is not enough for their needs.

"When we decided to marry, my husband and I did not have enough to furnish a flat and pay key money at the same time," Mrs. Ibrahim said. "So I resigned to get termination pay to help my husband get us set up. But we still can't make ends meet. So he has swallowed his pride and reluctantly said I can work again."

When they leave their jobs Egyptian employees under government law receive half a month's pay for every year for the first five years of their employment, and then a month's salary for every additional year.

Women who were wage earners are often unhappy when they become housewives.

"When my husband comes home from work, he wants something to eat and then takes a nap," said Fathia Aly Saad, 28, a former telephone operator. "It doesn't matter how tired I am."

Opti-Mrs. Club Announces Project

Operational expenses of Operation Sunshine were discussed by members of the Opti-Mrs. Club of Greenville Tuesday night.

The club will hold a benefit Tupperware party for Operation Sunshine, which is its main project, in April at the home of Mrs. Gene Ward. The party will be spearheaded by Mrs. Stuart Buchanan, ways and means chairman for the club. Members will be accepting orders from interested persons.

A report on the yearly budget of Operation Sunshine was given by Mrs. John Trotman, president. Reports were also given by Mrs. Tracy Medlin, vice president, and Mrs. Buchanan.

It was announced that the March meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Ross. Mrs. Judy Johannsen, a teacher at Wahl-Coats Elementary School, will be the guest speaker.

A letter was read from Mrs. Joseph N. Le Conte, executive director of the Pitt County Mental Health Association, concerning a ladies dutch luncheon scheduled for May.

Mrs. Nancy Covert Smith will be the luncheon speaker. She is the author of "Journey Out of Nowhere."

Mrs. Curtis Howell was a guest for the meeting. Following the business session, Mrs. Medlin was entertained by club members.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

Women, by their very nature, do not understand the economy. There are probably only two of us in the country who have any idea what is happening to the U. S. Dollar.

You take the woman who received a statement from bank saying she was $17 overdrawn. Not understanding what it was all about, she promptly sat down and wrote the bank a check for her deficiency. Had she stopped to figure it out, she should have charged it to her gasoline credit card as that is the lowest credit card expenditure and her husband would never have known.

I won't bore you with the basics of our U. S. economy, only to say that during the past few years, never has so much bought so little for such a high price for so many.

The point is, what do President Nixon's recent changes in the economy mean to the average family? 1. My husband will still not get to see the alligators in the Everglades at summer prices. Every winter since the Everglades was invented, the alligators show themselves only to the rich, winter tourists. For a few weeks when the President froze summer accommodation prices, it seemed my husband might be able to afford the alligators. Then the band was lifted. It is not easy watching your husband cry.

2. I do not have to go through with our original plan to get a little spending money by having a baby in a Volkswagen. For the past several years, Volkswagen has offered $100 to women who delivered in one of their cars. At 44, this means a lot to me.

3. We have a new reason for not "going abroad" this season. In the past, it has been tough coming up with new excuses for not keeping up with our neighbors. Now we can simply say, "I cannot imagine anything more tacky than being stuck on the Riviera with a trunk full of useless American money."

4. The Domestic Peace Corps (housewives) will continue working at her present salary with no raise until after Nov. 1. Army enlistments among women are expected to soar as their salaries are exempt.

5. More good news. Those of you who need an attorney to figure out what is frozen and what is not under the new law

Gasoline Plan Shows Promise

The governor's plan for alleviating the long lines at gas stations shows promise of working. Gov. Holshouser in a talk last Sunday asked motorists to voluntarily abide by a plan which has cars with license plates ending in even numbers gassing up on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturdays. Those with odd numbers gas up on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. He also asked that motorists wait until the tanks are half full and that stations sell at least ten gallons to each customer. Service stations were also asked to split their daily hours and to divide their allocations six ways so that gas would be available the six selling days of the week. Green flags are to be authorized which stations should fly when they are selling gas. The plan should help and apparently it has helped to some extent in this area. The problem right now seems to be that area stations aren't getting enough allocation even to meet the ten gallon to each customer sales. There is a growing feeling that North Carolina, and particularly Eastern North Carolina is not getting its fair share of the total gas supply. This is difficult to confirm, but we do know that many stations have been closed down in recent months, so the gas they were selling is 100 percent lost. The stations that are operating are cut back severely from previous year's allocations. We think the governor's plan can make hunting for gasoline bearable—if we can get a reasonable percentage of the total supply that is available.

President Goes Against House

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—President Nixon's denial of White House documents to special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski is the first solid indication that the White House rule of concealing evidence from Congress and the American voters will soon be applied to the House Judiciary Committee, a strategy filled with grave portents. There have been several inklings from the White House that it never intended to treat the Judiciary Committee's impeachment proceedings much differently from its hard-line, back-of-the-hand treatment of the Senate Watergate committee, Jaworski and his ousted predecessor, Archibald Cox. But Mr. Nixon takes grave risks in applying his lock-up policy to the House Judiciary Committee. If he goes too far, he invites the committee—indeed the whole Congress—to convert his defiance into a visible, blatant impeachable offense.

Far more significant is the fact that White House lawyers are plotting not a cooperative effort to permit a serious committee investigation, but what one committee Republican calls a "blocking, stalling, delaying action" in the most blatant tradition of a smart lawyer's play for time. Thus, a White House brief on what constitutes an impeachable offense has been in the drafting stage for weeks. When the carefully-lawyered House committee brief on that vital question—defining impeachable offenses—is given the committee later this week, the competing White House brief will be unveiled with fanfare. The committee brief is expected to be a broad, classic impeachment definition, offered to committee members to help them make up their own minds. The competing White House brief is expected to be a narrow statement limiting impeachable offenses to indictable crimes. The purpose of this highly limited definition of impeachable offense is twofold: to give the embattled President and his political backers an adversary position, converting the House impeachment hearings into an adversary proceeding instead of an investigation; and, more important, to justify future White House refusals to give the committee the White House documents it needs for its investigation.

In short, say Congressmen aware of this White House strategy, the President's lawyers will deny the committee all material not "relevant" to the narrowly based definition of impeachment spelled out in the White House brief. "When we deadlock on stuff we're trying to get from the White House," one committee expert told us, "they'll say we can't have it because it isn't relevant under their definition of impeachment. They'll say, let the courts decide."

Down that road lies potential disaster for Richard M. Nixon. Yet, beleaguered in his White House redoubt and surrounded by fanatic loyalists, the President obviously hopes that during the long delays, obfuscations and possible court battles ahead, he can recover his political power by brilliant successes in Moscow, the Middle East and other exotic climes and ride out the impeachment storm. If the President's repeatedly aborted dreams of recovery from the ravages of Watergate hold any lesson, Mr. Nixon once again is playing the worst kind of politics.

The Price Of Dissent In Russia Is Expulsion

The price of dissent in the Soviet Union for author Alexander Solzhenitsyn was expulsion. It is shameful that a man can be driven out of his homeland for what he writes or says. Solzhenitsyn paid a large price for his beliefs, but he came out of Russia with his head held high.

Would Retain Lower Speeds

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Do lower highway speeds forced by the gasoline shortage make for safer driving? Members of the Highway Safety Committee of the State House of Representatives think so, and would like to see the speeds remain down, even when the crunch is over.

The committee has approved a rewrite of motor vehicle law which calls for keeping the 55 mile per hour limit on all primary and secondary state roads, but permitting speeds up to 65 miles per hour on interstate highways, or limited access roads of interstate design.

Before Gov. Jim Holshouser rolled speeds back to 55 miles per hour on all state highways, the upper limit on interstates had been 70 miles per hour. On many state and U.S. highways, a 60 mile per hour limit had been in effect.

Deaths Decline
Introducing the idea at the committee meeting, Rep. C. Kitchen Josey, D-Halifax, noted statistics showing a drop in highway deaths since the lower speed went into effect.

"Speed has its due effect, and cutting it would definitely cut down on deaths. . . and it would not interfere with commerce."

"We have all seen that it takes only a few more minutes on a trip driving at 55 instead of 60," Josey said.

Former highway patrol commander Charles Speed concurred, and speaking from a highway safety viewpoint, Speed said numerous studies show that when a man gets over 60 miles per hour in a car, he is on the borderline of control, and the faster the car goes, the more dangerous it becomes as reflex actions fail to keep up.

Rep. W. Craig Lawing, D-Mecklenburg, argued against the speed limitation.

"We can stop all deaths on the highways if we stop all traffic. Lowering the speeds may help some, but I believe some of the reduction in the death rate is not due to slower speeds, but to the presence of fewer vehicles on the road. . . if they can't get gas, they can't drive and there's less traffic now than before," Lawing said.

He felt the slower speeds would interfere with travel and with delivery of merchandise.

The proposed change in speed laws, if approved by the General Assembly, will have more widespread impact on non-interstate highways since many two-lane roads on the state primary road system, and most four-lane highways had a 60 mile limit before.

Faster and Faster
The state has, over the past few years, gradually increased speed limits to match those in surrounding states, and under pressure from citizens, members of the committee felt.

But Dr. John J. Hunt, D-Cleveland, seemed to sum up the attitude of legislators when he noted that statistics do show a 26 per cent decline in the death rate.

We have had a tendency to get a little faster and a little faster. Maybe now is the time to be thinking about a pause. Besides, I find it's a little more fun to drive, I'm a little more relaxed and comfortable. . . I just feel safer when everybody is going a little slower," Hunt said.

The speed reduction proposal is contained in a major rewrite of motor vehicle laws being carried out by the committee.

A report from the Highway Safety Research Center at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was delivered to the committee recently.

A poll was taken among all North Carolinians taking driver license examinations during a one-week period. The results show drivers are concerned over a need for more control over drunk drivers, want more enforcement of speed and reckless driving rules, and believe badly designed and poorly marked roads contribute to wrecks.

Protection Of Privacy

In a time of encompassing statism, when government expands at every level, it is seldom that one hears good news about private people in their private lives. But cautiously, tentatively, and with all the hedgehog reservations of an old editorial writer, I venture this thought: When it comes to the protection of our privacy, the news is betting better.

This wasn't true six or eight years ago. Then the credit reporting bureaus were running their secret empires with all the arrogance and power of Carolingian kings. There was much talk of a federal "data Bank." The computer salesmen, proud of their marvelous new toys, were promoting information retrieval systems of fantastic efficiency. Educators, police, army intelligence agents, and civil service examiners were accumulating dossiers on everyone above the age of five.

The picture is far different today. The credit bureaus are operating under legislative restrictions that give the customer a fair shake. Army surveillance, we are assured, has been halted. The most outrageous "personality inventories" have been dropped from federal employment examinations. Awareness is growing everywhere of the Orwellian capability of the computer.

In the current issue of Intellectual Digest, Diane Divoky reports on the situation in our schools. As far back as 1925, the National Education Association was recommending that health, guidance, and psychological records be maintained on every pupil. In 1941, the influential American Council on Education developed record forms for evaluating a child's behavior. By 1970, files were bulging with subjective entries: A fifth-grader was "unnaturally interested in girls," a 12-year-old had "peculiar political ideas." And the maddening thing was that while parents were denied access to these dossiers, any government agent could get at them.

The situation today is far from perfect, but it improves. The Des Moines school board, for one example, has adopted regulations to guarantee parental access. Oregon and New Mexico have instituted

Gov. James Hoshouser's call for voluntary action in North Carolina to ease the chaotic traffic jams at the gas pumps is commendable. We hope North Carolinians will cooperate.

Every measure the Governor calls for, from the Oregon style voluntary rationing system to the flying of green flags by gas stations when they are selling, seems sensible to us.

It is a pity however that effective counter-measures must be taken on a spotty, state-by-state basis. The Federal Energy Office, for a certainty, has seen the gas shortage coming for at least two months. But both White House and Congress have been unaccountably slow to make a necessary decision about gas rationing. And by trying to avoid or postpone an unpleasant preventive dose, they may have assured us something worse—chaos.

A national gas-rationing system, however irritating, might at least bring some equity and order to the distribution of motoring fuel. It would at least see that an increasingly scarce commodity was distributed so that those who drive for a living—traveling salesmen, for instance—could plan ahead and not have to stop dozens of times for a trickle of gas. It would see, too, that those who continue to burn large amounts of gas for pleasure would take their place in the back of the line at the gas pump. It would also make it possible to plan long-distance travel.

Instead, the buck has been passed to state officials. A pattern is emerging in the gasoline shortage not unlike the pattern that emerged during the Great Depression of the 1930s, when the national administration feared to use federal powers for uniform unemployment relief and left states to shift for themselves. But there was more excuse, almost half a century ago, for the chaos in unemployment relief than there is today for the far more preventable mess in gas allocation and selling.

Watch Voter Impact

WASHINGTON (AP)
Political storm warnings are up for Republicans, and while President Nixon says special elections don't necessarily foretell November trends, they are likely to influence campaign strategy.

In a campaign year that will bring major changes in Congress, Democrats have captured the first two House seats at stake in special elections.

The major shock to the GOP came when Michigan Democrat Richard VanderVeen won what had been the safely Republican seat vacated by Vice President Gerald R. Ford.

There are three more special elections on the schedule, in Ohio, Michigan and California all for seats that had been held by Republicans.

Candidates and managers in both parties will be watching. The tactics that work in or election are likely to be applied in others.

What they have seen so far adds up to this: Watergate works as an issue.

In Pennsylvania, Democrat John Murtha won a narrow still disputed victory after a campaign in which he put little emphasis on the scandals in Washington.

VanderVeen won comfortably after stressing Watergate and more broadly, the question of Nixon's leadership. He took his cue from national and district polls showing dissatisfaction with the President's performance in office.

"We could not have won with Watergate," said John Martilla, a Boston political consultant who worked in the VanderVeen campaign. "But we could not have won if we had

Strength For Today

GREAT MEN OF HISTORY
Throughout the course of history thoughtful individuals have had differing theories about what provides the motivepower for the historical process. One group maintained that the constant striving for personal power and influence determined the direction and the pace of history. Such a theory would be considered oversimplified today, but it does seem that often when God wants to bring about some great change in human affairs He picks out a man who is willing to be lonely, who will endure a barren and solitary life if need be, in order that he may speak the God-given message. Among the many examples of this type of man are Elijah, Nathan, John the Baptist, and Paul. Anything that takes a stand on the world must often take it alone. God works with the individual human heart. When a cause needs to be defended, it cries out for you and me to defend it. When there is a duty of mankind to be met. God points to your soul and mine. —Elisha Douglass

Letters To The Daily Reflector

To the editor:
In June of 1973, I went with a party from Norfolk, Va. on a five-day cruise on a Greek ship to Bermuda. On January of 1974 I left from the same dock for an eight-day cruise on an Italian ship. Parallel to both of these ships was docked the famous ship, "The United States." I took notice of the fact that foreign ships are coming into our ports and taking this American cruise business while our own great ship lay anchored in idleness, with a tremendous dock expense building up each month. Who is responsible for this poor business judgment?

I have observed how our great American automobile business has been taken over by the foreign markets while we were basking in the sunshine of being the presumed greatest. This same situation exists today in the American Medical Association—the American Medical Doctor shortage and the great influx of foreign doctors practicing in the United States. The number being 68,000 or one in every five, while 15,000 qualified American-born students have been denied their rightful admissions in American medical schools. Every member of the North Carolina Legislature should be required to look at these facts before they let the Board of Governors make a farce of the East Carolina University Medical School Program, so blatantly exploited by this leadership. The question is obvious. Who are our leaders working for and why?

question to give further consideration to the ECU Medical School.
We want to furnish some pertinent information to those who want the four-year medical school before they give in.
When James B. Duke endowed Duke University in 1925, Watts Hospital was one of the largest, best hospitals in the state for white people and Lincoln Hospital in Durham, the same for Negroes. Yet Duke Hospital was included as an integral part of the Duke Medical School, and has frequently been enlarged since.

generally serve the needs of the local population. They carry on programs of research and experimentation and attract outstanding specialists in varied fields of medicine.
The costs of setting up a four-year medical school at Greenville have been set at $40 million. This must include a hospital and its equipment. The City of Durham is now building a hospital much larger than the ECU School would need in the next 20 years, and it is not expected to cost anything like half the $40 million called necessary for the Greenville project.

Ralph Shell Kinston

It certainly is more sensible to put the money into the ECU four-year medical school than into these centers scattered about the state, which will not even have doctors to find out what is wrong with the patients and so nurses and others can carry out treatment.

statewide safeguards. New Hampshire now prohibits school records that "reflect the political activities or beliefs of students." State and federal courts, strengthening First Amendment "rights of privacy," regularly are issuing protective decrees.

Ms. Divoky's report makes clear, the war goes on between the individual's privacy and the state's curiosity. California's record-keeping system for juveniles holds ominous possibilities for abuse. Florida's centralized computer bands are fearfully efficient on pupils from the ninth grade up. Iowa and Hawaii reportedly are installing similar systems. Generally speaking, however, an awareness is growing of the need for safeguards.

Meanwhile, here in Washington, the Justice Department last week proposed rules that would impose strict limitations upon access to criminal information collected by state and local police and the FBI. Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., has introduced legislation that would go beyond these rules in providing criminal penalties for misuse of police records. The senator's bill has bipartisan support and probably will be approved.

A word on the other side: While protection of individual privacy is enormously important, it would be foolish needlessly to handicap police in national law enforcement efforts. The police are sufficiently handicapped as it is. In an increasingly mobile society, it makes sense for both lenders and borrowers to have convenient access to reasonable credit records.  MOSCOW (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn's wife says she and her family have been promised quick approval of their application for exit visas to join the exiled writer in Western Europe.

Natalya Solzhenitsyn said Soviet authorities also told her that "in principle" her husband's books and papers could be taken to the West.

Solzhenitsyn said in an interview earlier this week that unless he could get the research materials he assembled for the "historical novel of revolutionary times" he began with "August 1914," he would have to abandon the multivolume project. He said in that case he would write about the Soviet present.

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said she conferred Wednesday with Col. Sergei Fadeyev, chief of the Moscow passport office, and other officials there. They gave her the visa applications to fill out, but she said she had not started work on them yet.

One reason is that the forms ask where the emigrant wishes to go. Solzhenitsyn, who has been staying in Zurich, Switzerland, with his Swiss lawyer, Fritz Heeb, has not decided where he will make his home.

Soviet statements when he was expelled Feb. 13 said his family would be allowed to join him "when they deem it necessary."

Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said she was assured the family could keep its Soviet citizenship after leaving Russia, even though Solzhenitsyn was stripped of his before he was expelled.

 focused only on Watergate."

He said unemployment, the economy, the energy crisis and other problems all were campaign factors. VanderVeen sought to weave them together with Watergate in a general challenge to Nixon and the administration.

If that kind of campaign works for Democrats elsewhere, Republicans who will face the voters later this year may seek to disassociate themselves from the GOP administration. And that could cost the President allies in Congress.

The President sought to reassure Republicans Wednesday, telling congressional leaders that special elections "often are not harbingers of what might happen."

Such elections, often influenced by local issues and personalities, offer at best an uncertain barometer of November sentiment. And a lot can happen between February and November.

But if Democrats keep winning, the message will not be lost on either party.

'America Is Always Better Than You Remember'

By SUSAN PRICE
Reflector Staff Writer
"I don't care how well you remember it, America is always better than you remembered it. If you're an American, that's home, especially if you're from North Carolina."

So say Dave and Margaret Sencindiver, who are in Greenville through the first of March while they are on leave from the Voice of America station in Rhodes, Greece.

The couple will probably be stationed in Greece for two or three more years and hopes to retire to Greenville.

As the Sencindivers talk about their temporary residence in one of the oldest civilized countries in the world, the blue skied, rocky country seems to appear before your eyes.

According to the couple, the sun is shining nearly 365 days a year. "It rarely rains at all between April and October," noted Margaret Sencindiver.

The waters surrounding their island home is crystal clear, yet strangely has little marine life. Any fish that are caught in the seas surrounding Greece are quite small. However, scarce though seafood may be, squid is one of the favorites of the Greeks and the Sencindivers.

Eating seems to be the Greek national pastime. "There isn't any entertainment in Greece as such, but after supper wine or coffee is served and the young people dance."

The big meal of the day in Greece is served at lunchtime, and the whole town has a siesta in the afternoon.

"The Greeks don't have stoves with ovens like we do in America. In fact, our only neighbor who does have an oven is the baker who lives across the street. In the mornings, when all the women are cooking their noon meals, there's practically a line over to the baker's house, with women who pay a few pennies each to use the oven.

"And during holidays... it's a regular traffic jam!"

The homes in Greece are rarely heated. It seems the Greeks anticipated the energy crisis... when it gets cold over there, they simply wear more and heavier clothing.

"The weather over there is almost the same as in Greenville... too cold in the winter and too hot in the summer."

If one word was used to describe Greece's landscape, it would have to be "rocky." According to the Sencindivers, "Greece is a hard country. Conveniences are scarce. One works and lives with stone. If you can survive in Greece, you can truly say you've worked."

Even getting food is a daily struggle in the country, and the Sencindivers can rarely get milk at all. There just isn't that much in Greece, and restaurants have the first go at it.

But despite the difficulties of living in Greece and living with exorbitant prices, there are wonderful things there that make it an experience long to be cherished.

"The beauty of the place and the Greek salad cannot be duplicated anywhere else in the world," noted Margaret Sencindiver. "Everybody talks about Paris and Rome, but there's no place any more exciting than Greece... The sign of the Parthenon stuns you every time you see it... I never tire of seeing it."

The people in Greece are of a special breed, according to the Sencindivers. The turbulent background of Greece makes the Greeks independent and self contained.

"They are hard workers but fun loving and spontaneous. They are very clean and orderly and are strongly nationalistic. Those traveling around the world all eventually retire to Greece."

"It's funny though... the Greeks are famous here for their restaurants, but the best and most restaurants in Greece are Turkish. Mrs. Sencindiver finds Greek women as kindred spirits. "I was taught to be quiet and was therefore, always a disgrace to my family because I'm so loud. But in Greece, I can talk and laugh as loud as I like, just like the Greeks."

Dave Sencindiver will have his work cut out for him when he returns to Greece in a few weeks. He's an amateur horologist, which is someone skilled or interested in clock-making.

He went to look at the huge old clock in the Rhodes Cathedral one day before leaving Rhodes. The bishop was surprised that anyone was interested in the clock and wondered if it could be fixed.

One thing led to another, and soon Sencindiver was talked into fixing the clocks in every Greek Orthodox Church in Rhodes... with a special request from the bishop and the mayor.

Sencindiver has been busy fixing clocks ever since he returned to Greenville... and some people have even mailed clocks to him for repairs. A cheerful and congenial man, he always has time to help his many friends in the area and around the world.

"The people in Greenville overwhelm us. It's like the whole town was our family." The Sencindivers have traveled extensively in the world, but find that Greenville suits them the best. "People travel all around the world to find little goodies at this country or that, but I find most everything I want or need right here in Greenville," Mrs. Sencindiver noted.

On the energy shortages, the couple noted that in Greece, gasoline is easily available... but it costs about $2.15 per gallon. All the prices in the country are high, with cigarettes costing around $1.50 per pack.

But despite the high prices, the cost of a one or two week vacation in Greece isn't much more than a high class vacation somewhere in the United States. So the couple spends their evenings down by the harbor welcoming Americans into port. "We've even had three or four people from Greenville to come to Rhodes since we've been there."

And one can easily see why. Once you meet the Sencindivers, you feel you're being welcomed into the family.

Kiwanians Hear Fulford Speak

Dr. William E. Fulford Jr., president of Pitt Technical Institute, told the Greenville Kiwanis Club Wednesday night that "the progress and achievements of Pitt Tech are the products of your commitments to the improvement of the lives of all the people of Pitt County. We have broadened the base of educational opportunity for our citizens because you have taken an active interest in our endeavors."

"It has been the people of Pitt County," he continued, "who led the early efforts to establish our institution and you have guided our progress as members of advisory groups, the Board of Trustees, and as a concerned public."

Fulford outlined some of the institution's service data. He reported that the school had grown from 96 curriculum students in 1964 to over 1,050 in 1974. Additionally, PTT served over 10,500 Pitt County adults in its evening and extension programs last year alone.

"Further," Fulford revealed, "we have prepared thousands of Pitt Countians to assume positions as productive members of our labor force."

"Yet, our work is far from being fully accomplished," he said. "There are still thousands of people in this county who cannot read and write, scores of others lie far short of reaching their human potential. Too many of our people remain unemployed and underemployed."

"Thus, the challenge still is great. Our commitments are yet to be fully actualized. We badly need expanded facilities to meet this challenge. Our county commissioners and state legislators have begun to address this problem, and I am confident that with your continued guidance and support, we will continue to expand our services and our facilities."

"Our challenge is great," Fulford summarized, "our resources are relatively sufficient, and our energies shall be inexhaustible until every citizen of Pitt is extended the opportunity of becoming all that he is capable of and desires to be."

Thirteen At State Meet

Thirteen members of the East Carolina University faculty were in Raleigh last week for the spring meeting of the North Carolina Conference of the American Association of University Professors.

Representing ECU were Dr. Patricia Daugherty and Dr. James McDaniel, biology; Dr. Henry Ferrell and Dr. Fred Ragan, history; Dr. D. D. Gross, philosophy; Tennala Gross and Robert Woodside, mathematics; Dr. Susan McDaniel, assistant provost; Dr. Richard Stephenson, geography; and Anne Briley, Sallie Mann, Dr. Ralph Russell and Vernie Wilder, library services.

Featured events at the meeting, held on the campus of St. Mary's College, were a banquet with members of the N. C. General Assembly and an address by Prof. Martha Friedman of the University of Illinois, chairman of the AAUP Association of State Conferences.

Founders' Day Observed Here

Iota Kappa Omega and Theta Alpha (ECU) chapters of the Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority, Inc. held Founders' Day observances Sunday, beginning with worship services at York Memorial A. M. E. Zion Church. The dinner-rededication was held at the Ramada Inn at 3 p.m. Joining the Greenville Alumni Chapter and the ECU undergraduate chapter were Sorors from Chi Omega Chapter, Rocky Mount; Epsilon Phi Omega, Goldsboro; Zeta Kappa Omega, Elizabeth City, and Zeta Omicron Omega Chapter of Kinston.

Joyce Dixon, Basileus of Iota Kappa Omega, presided. Willie Mae Gibbs was speaker of the occasion. Soror Gracie Mebane served as program chairman.

Alpha Kappa Alpha, a national and international Greek-letter organization, was founded on the campus of Howard University, Washington, D. C., in January, 1908.

Retirement Takes Two Pitt County Midwives

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer
Friday was a sad day for two Pitt County women—Beatrice Harper and Queenie Gardner, both of Ayden, were retired as midwives for the Pitt County Community Health Department.

Mrs. Gardner had been a part of the Department's midwife program since it was organized in 1951; Mrs. Harper since 1957. The program was organized by Mrs. Addie P. Griffith, public health nurse who supervised the program until its ending Friday.

Mrs. Gardner estimated she has delivered between 500 and 600 babies; Mrs. Harper at least 200.

The ladies were a far cry from the old grannies who used to come when their neighbors called years ago. Mrs. Griffith said. Mrs. Harper and Mrs. Gardner were certified by the Health Department for each new year and never went out without the Health Department orders. They were called on only after a doctor had given his okay for the home delivery of a woman who had received her prenatal care at the Health Department. They were trained in delivery procedure and well-versed in when to call a doctor and when to send a mother to the hospital if all did not go well during or after her delivery. Both women claim they have never lost a mother, and that nearly all of "their" babies were born alive and seemingly healthy.

A reception was held at the Health Department for the ladies. Also attending was Mrs. Bessie Harris of Rt. 5, Greenville, one of the few living Pitt midwives, of which there were 22 in 1951.

Each of the honorees told of feeling that as midwives, she was filling the one place in life meant for her. Mrs. Gardner said she often dreamed in advance of how to handle a certain delivery.

County Commissioner Charles Gaskins was present for the retirement program. The midwives sang "We Are Climbing Jacob's Ladder" and Mrs. Griffith read parts of the 23rd Psalm.

Mrs. Griffith, who developed the supervised midwives' program here from her experience working under Mrs. Laura Blackburn, a pioneer in midwifery in North and South Carolina, said, "We've been phasing out the program for several years now. It has served a good purpose in Pitt County, but now we feel that Pitt Memorial Hospital medical services should be available to every mother and baby delivered in Pitt County. All health department mothers will be sent there from now on."

Both Mrs. Gardner and Mrs. Harper work as private-duty sitters. Mrs. Gardner will retain her midwife's license in Greene and Craven Counties, and Mrs. Harper will keep hers for Craven County.

Looking For Alteration

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The FBI is investigating the possible alteration of documents received by special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski from the White House, the Los Angeles Times said today.

The Times quoted unidentified but "knowledgeable" sources as saying at least one memorandum on White House stationery had two paragraphs cut out from the second page.

The Times quoted its sources as saying that some White House officials had initially blocked the FBI probe by refusing to provide White House logs.

The Times said, however, that it had been told by an unidentified administration aide that since then the FBI had been given all the logs it requested.

"The White House has been and continues to cooperate fully with the FBI on any investigation that they're undertaking," the Times quoted Presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler as saying in commenting on the paper's report. The Times said Ziegler refused to answer further questions.

The newspaper said the FBI reportedly is checking White House logs going back several months to pinpoint who had access to the documents submitted to Jaworski.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina egg markets were weaker Wednesday. Supplies were adequate and demand was fair.

Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs delivered in cartons to nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 73.73; medium whites 65.72; small whites 59.43.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Corn and soybeans were stronger on the state's leading grain markets Wednesday. Number 2 yellow shelled corn brought 3.00-3.18, mostly 3.05 to 3.16 per bushel. Number 1 yellow soybeans were mostly 6.37-6.45 per bushel.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—Overall trends steady to $1.00 lower. $39.50-$40.00 Rocky Mount. $37.25-$39.25 Wilson and High Falls. $38.50-$39.00 Tarboro. Bethel. $40.00 Salisbury. Hens

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers. Market unsettled to weaker. Supplies adequate. Demand fairly good. Weights mostly desirable. F.o.b. dock price unsettled. Estimated slaughter of broilers and broiler fryers in North Carolina today totaled 1,122,000.

North Carolina hens market steady. Supplies adequate. Demand good. Heavy hens at farm 16 cents.

NEW YORK (AP)—Stocks today continued the rally begun Wednesday as some investors predicted an end to the Arab oil embargo soon, brokers said. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrial was up 5.95 to 836.98. The Dow blue-chip indicator gained more than 11 points Wednesday. Advancing Big Board issues had a 783-to-307 lead over losers today.

The brokers also said that economists' predictions that short-term interest rates would decline progressively this year also was helping the market.

Institutional investors with large cash positions are "itchy to get back into the market," said Eldon Grimm of Birr, Wilson & Co. He attributed most of today's buying to the institution.

Levitz Furniture, down 1/4 to 4, was the Big Board volume leader as a block of 151,600 shares was sold at 4, down 1/4. Other volume leaders included VCA Corp., up 1% to 12%; First National City Corp., up 1/2 to 39%; and American Telephone warrants, unchanged at 4%.

Gold-mining stocks were strong as gold prices continued to rise to record levels on foreign markets.

Dome Mines was up 2 to 17%; Rosario Resources, up 1 1/4 to 52%; Campbell Redlake, up 1% to 80%; and ASA, Ltd., up 1% to 92 1/2.

On the American Stock Exchange, Capitol Industries, up 4% to 14%, was the volume leader.

Probe Housing Office Break-In
Greenville today are pressing their investigation of a break-in at the Moyewood office of the Greenville Housing Authority at 301 Roundtree Dr.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the break-in was discovered at 1:20 a.m. today. He noted that the law-breakers damaged the handle and combination dial on a large safe and ransacked desk drawers.

Entrance was gained by breaking a glass window in a door.

Art Student's Work Displayed
Art prints by Jeanne Jarrett Scronce, senior student in the East Carolina University School of Art, are on display this week in the gallery of third floor Rawl Building.

The exhibition includes examples of various print-making media: woodcut, intaglio, lithography, collagraphy and silk-screening.

Charter Talked By Ayden Board
AYDEN—The Ayden Board of Commissioners held a special meeting Monday night to discuss amending the town charter to allow street and sidewalk improvements without petitions.

The amendment must be introduced into the North Carolina General Assembly for approval. Town Manager Don Russell and Robert Booth, town attorney, were instructed to prepare an amendment to be presented to the General Assembly. If approved, the town charter will be amended to allow the town to pave streets where they now are unable to do so with a signed petition, then assess the property owners with their share of the costs.

Registering For Kindergarten
PACTOLUS—Kindergarten registration is now being conducted at Pactolus Elementary School.

Parents are asked to go by the school during the regular school hours from now until March 22 to register their children in the program.

Parents must bring their child's birth certificate and immunization record when registering their children.

To be eligible for kindergarten, the child must be five years old on or before Oct. 16, 1974.

But Radford testified that on four trips he made from December 1970 to December 1971, he was asked to acquire documents on some of those same subjects for delivery to the Pentagon.

On three of the trips, the yeoman accompanied Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., now the White House chief of staff, on sensitive diplomatic missions to Indochina.

Two successive admirals in a Joint Chiefs liaison office in the White House carefully prepared Radford to find out all he could about plans for U.S. troop withdrawals, the imminent peace settlement and delicate negotiations with the Cambodian government, Radford said.

The admirals were Rembrandt C. Robinson, later killed in Vietnam, and Welander. Radford quoted Welander as saying "information on these items would be of great interest to the chairman, Admiral Moorer."

WANT TO CONSERVE HOME HEATING OIL? . . . And Save Money?

Look at these figures and decide for yourself if Insulation is the answer!

* INSULATION IN HOME	GALS. OF OIL NEEDED PER YEAR	COST TO HEAT HOME @ 28c PER GAL.	HEAT LOSS OF HOME BTU'S PER HR.
(A) NONE	1915	$536	125,730
(B) R-19 IN CEILING (4" wood fiber or 6" fiber glass)	1166	$326	76,582
(C) SAME AS (B) + 3 1/2" in Walls	930	$260	61,567

(E) SAME AS (D) + STORM WINDOWS + DOORS	514	$144	33,781

From the above figures it is apparent that heating costs can be reduced significantly with proper insulation. Savings up to 70 percent are possible when walls, ceilings and floors are insulated, combined with storm doors and windows.

Richmond Rallies To Stop Pirates

The University of Richmond's Spiders finally warmed up superstar Aron Stewart in the final 10 minutes of the second half, and he went to town for them, sparking a 12-0 spurt that finally beat East Carolina, 76-68.

The score of the game actually was much closer. Richmond got two baskets in the final seconds on cheap baskets when the Bucs were trying desperation shots and trapping defenses.

None of it seemed to work however, as the Pirates saw their chances for a third place finish in the Southern disappear.

East Carolina, now 7-6, can finish fourth at best, and might drop into fifth, should they lose to The Citadel on Saturday and William & Mary best Richmond.

At any rate, the Pirates and Indians are destined to meet each other in the first round of the Southern Conference tournament next Thursday.

Stewart, held to just three baskets in 15 attempts in the first half of play, came back with six of eight in the final half to spark the Spiders from as much as seven points down with just under nine minutes left in the game.

The real hero for them, however, was Bob McCurdy, who hit 27 points, one more than Stewart, to keep the Spiders alive when the Pirates were on the beam. He hit nine of the Spiders' first 11 points in the second half, and six of their last eight in the first when they had been down as much as 12, only to struggle back to within four at the horn.

East Carolina, shut off on the inside by the tough tall Richmond zone defense, had to rely on the outside shooting, especially in the second half, but when they desperately needed a basket, they couldn't get anyone hot. The Bucs hit only 12 of 41 shots in the half, a poor 29.3 per cent, and got only 36.3 per cent of their shots in the game.

Richmond, shooting a hot 51.6 per cent in the second half, used that to offset their 31.0 per cent in the first half.

The real difference came at the line, however, where Richmond made 18 of 24 shots. East Carolina got only 10 of 15, although they fouled only four more times than did Richmond. Both teams hit 29 field goals.

The rebounding too came out even, as both teams grabbed off 53 loose balls. Stewart led all rebounders with 13, while McCurdy got 10. For East Carolina, Robert Geter pulled down 12 and Nicky White had 11.

Donnie Owens put the Pirates ahead to start with a pair of free throws, but Eric Gray tied it up with his only basket of the night (15 point average). The Bucs went back up on a hook by Reggie Lee, but McCurdy hit to tie it once more, 4-4.

White tapped in a shot for a 6-4 lead and Lee followed with a basket after a goal-tending call. The Bucs inched the lead out to six on two free throws by Roger Atkinson, 12-6, then extended it to eight when Geter hit a jumper with 14:37 left to make it 16-8.

Lee later made it nine points at 20-11, but Richmond inched back to within four on a three-point play by Stewart, 20-16. Tom Marsh came right back with a three-pointer play by Stewart, 20-16. Tom Marsh came right back with a three-pointer for the Bucs upping it to eight, and Larry Hunt hit from underneath to run it out to 10, 27-17, with 7:44 to go.

The Spiders put on another spurt, cutting the lead back to two this time. Dave Williams started it with a pair of free throws, and Stewart hit. McCurdy and Carlton Mack each got baskets to trim the lead to 27-25, but the Bucs held them off and shot away again. This time, they slowly built it out to 12 points, that coming when Chuck Mohn drove in for a layup with 3:02 to go making it 41-29.

But the Bucs couldn't hold the Spiders down, and lost their own touch, failing to score again in the half. McCurdy got the comeback started with two in a row, and Mack hit another. McCurdy's two free throws with 16 seconds left cut the margin to 41-37 at the half.

In the second half, he hit early to cut the lead to one as he was fouled and completed the three-pointer 41-40, but the Bucs inched away again, with Geter providing a three-pointer for a 50-44 lead.

But the Bucs could not break it open, thanks to the outside shooting of McCurdy, who stayed hot.

Finally, with 8:57 left, Geter hit on a tap to make it 63-57, and that was the last Pirate points for five minutes—a fatal five minutes.

McCurdy got the bandwagon rolling, as he had all night, hitting a jumper. Stewart tossed in a rebound after that, then hit from the baseline to trim the lead to one, 63-62.

He threw in another missed shot with 5:53 left to put Richmond ahead, 64-63, and came down with key rebounds three times under the Pirate boards. McCurdy came back with two more baskets for the Spiders, the last with 4:01 left to push the Spiders into a five-point spread, 68-63.

East Carolina finally broke the string as Donnie Owens hit two long jumpers, but Richmond matched one of them. White hit on the first of two shots at the line to cut the lead to 70-68, but two shots from the line by Mack with 48 seconds left padded it to 72-68. Gus Collier and Mack each scored in the final 12 seconds of play after desperation shots by the Bucs missed, and easy baskets resulted.

Besides the 27 for McCurdy and the 26 for Stewart, Mack added 10 points for Richmond. Owens led the Pirate scoring with 18 points, while Lee had 13 and Geter had 11.

The Bucs will close out the 1973-74 regular season Saturday night, playing host to The Citadel in another Southern Conference game.

All eight Southern teams will be in Richmond next week for the tournament, starting Wednesday. In Wednesday's game, first place Furman will meet Appalachian, while the second place team, likely Richmond, will meet Virginia Military. Thursday's games will send the Pirates against William & Mary, while the third place team, apparently Davidson, will meet The Citadel.

Champs In Tourney Win

The Happy Store and Carolina Dairy advanced into the semifinals of the City Basketball League's post season tournament with victories. Happy Store downed the Bucks, 71-18, while Carolina Dairy took a 58-54 win over Edwards.

Friday, Kentucky Fried Chicken and the Eagles meet in the first game, with Coca-Cola and the Book Exchange clashing in the second.

In the opener, the Happy Store, the regular season champs, ripped out to a 50-18 lead in the first half of play. In the second, they had outthit the Bucks, 21-0, when the Bucks called it quits, forfeiting the game to the champions. Nearly 15 minutes still remained to play.

Lonnie Payton led the Happy Store with 17 points, while Robert Pettis had 16 and Charlie Harris had 14.

In the second game, Carolina Dairy found itself down by one at the half, 26-25. But they came back with a 33-28 margin in the final half, slipping to the victory.

Mike Ward led the Dairymen with 16 points, while Worth Heath and Delye Evans had 10 each. Wayne Brown paced Edwards with 21, while Robert Johnson had 12 and Cleveland Johnson had 10.

Buc Wrestlers Seek Third Straight Title

If East Carolina University's undefeated wrestlers pull off the same feat in this weekend's Southern Conference Wrestling Tournament that they did earlier this season in the North Carolina Collegiate Championships, John Welborn will be the happiest man in America—at least until the NCAA Championships Mar. 14-16 in Ames, Iowa.

But Welborn is a realist. Despite the overwhelming manner in which his team disposed of its two chief conference challengers in a pair of recent dual matches, he readily admits there's virtually no chance the Pirates can sweep all ten weight classes as they did in the state championship meet.

"No team will ever repeat that performance again," assures the phenomenally successful coach. "We wrestled at our best and everything went right for us."

Welborn hopes his team will again be at its best Friday and Saturday in Boone, the home of tournament host Appalachian State. But he says he will gladly settle for "the same number of individual titles we won last year." In the 1973 conference meet, seven Pirate wrestlers qualified for the nationals by placing first in their respective weight divisions.

Five of those champions will be seeking to repeat, three in different weight classes, as East Carolina tries to nail down its third consecutive conference crown.

Bill Hill (177), already four times N. C. Collegiate champ, will be gunning for his fourth straight conference title. Other defending champs are Glenn Baker (126), winner at 118 in 1973, Mill Sherman (134), titlist at 142 a year ago, Tom Marriott (142), champ at 150 last season, and Bruce Hall (158).

Among other East Carolina matmen expected to make strong bids for individual honors are Jim Blair (118), Paul Ketchum (126), Jack Stortz (150), Steve Satterthwaite (150), Ron Whitcomb (167), Jim Cox (177), Mike Radford (190), and heavyweight Willard Bryant.

The Pirates, who manhandled conference rivals William & Mary (28-10) and Appalachian State (36-4) en route to their 5-0 dual meet record, go into the tournament as heavy favorites. An impressive showing could boost them higher in the national rankings. The Pirates are currently rated among the top 25 teams in the nation by "Amateur Wrestling News."

Area Matmen In State Tourney

Thirteen wrestlers from Greenville and Pitt County will travel to Winston-Salem this weekend to participate in the State High School Wrestling Tournament, which starts Friday.

D.H. Conley High School and Rose High School will each send four wrestlers to the tournament, while Farmville Central has three attending, and North Pitt had two.

The wrestlers gained the state tournament by winning or finishing second in the sectional tournament held at Rose High School last weekend.

They will join other sectional winners from across the state to form the 16-man field for each weight class. From Conley will come Eric Moore, 98-pound class; Kyle Edwards, 126-pounds; Jimmy Swinson, 145; and Eddie McGowan, heavyweight. Jeff Hagans, 195; Ron Hunt, 185; James Radford, 167, and Mike Alexander, 98, qualified from Rose High.

The Farmville Central entrants are James Gorham at 138, Ronald House at 112, and Gary Locust at 155.

Joe Murchison at 155 and Wesley Manning at 119 make up the North Pitt delegation to the tournament.

North Lenoir, Greene Central Advance

By CHIP LAMBETH
Reflector Sports Writer

LITTLEFIELD—Greene Central mounted a herculean rally last night to come up from 15 points down to pull out a victory over Southern Nash, 55-41, and the Rams were probably inspired by North Lenoir's action in the first game of a pair.

In the opening game of the second half of the District 3-A tournament being held at Ayden-Grifton High School, North Lenoir bit, scrapped and clawed to a 60-45 win over North Pitt. Greene Central, may have taken a hint and came back in the afterpiece to down the Firebirds as both winners moved into tonight's semi-final round. Like Tuesday night, the scores are poor indicators of the action.

This evening, Ayden-Grifton, winner over C. B. Aycock, 69-44, Monday, will meet North Lenoir in the first contest with regular season champ, Conley taking on Greene Central.

Neither game was decided until the last quarter of each. In the first game North Lenoir capitalized on a North Pitt cold spell to take the final frame, 22-8, enabling them to win and Southern Nash was held to only six in the last period as the Rams struck for 21.

North Pitt had held a shaky lead throughout the first three periods. The Hawks only took the lead for good on the last basket of the third period, 38-37.

Neither team shot that well from the floor. The Panthers hit 31 per cent in the first half and did a little better in the second for a game average of 35. The Hawks hit 26 of 64 for 40 per cent on the game.

A big difference was in rebounding as North Lenoir had a distinct advantage, 36-20, with Mike Miller's 14 leading the way. David Brown pulled down seven for the Panthers.

North Lenoir took the opening bucket by Craig Walton but a three-point play by Brown put the Panthers ahead. The lead could not make up its mind who it wanted to stay with as the game was tied three times. The Hawks got it back at 10-9 on a basket by David Hardy but a pair of field goals by Brown and one by Craig McLawhorn ran up a 15-10 margin for the Panthers. Miller hit in the last ten seconds for NL to close to 15-12 at the end of the frame.

North Pitt remained in control through the second quarter, but not by much. The biggest Panther lead came at 27-20 with just under three minutes left in the half. But Miller canned two from the Hawk corner and Anthony Suggs scored at 1:14 to pull the Hawks within one, 27-26. It remained that way at halftime.

Again the lead bounced around but this time it was the Hawks that finally controlled it as they went into the last quarter, 38-37. The Panthers froze in the fourth period hitting only three times from the floor as North Lenoir bombed in 22 with Miller and Walton leading the way with eight each.

Brown led the Panthers with 16 and Donnie Perkins added 12 along with 10 by Jessie Harris. Miller scored 12 times from the floor for 24 points and Walton and Joseph Pearsill both added 10.

The second game was almost a repeat of the first but it was a little rougher. A total of 44 fouls were called and three players fouled out. Three others were carrying four as the game ended.

Greene Central was a shade more effective hitting 40 per cent of their field goal attempts to 32 per cent for the Firebirds. The rebounding was quite close; 33 for the Rams and 31 for Southern.

The first three minutes were nearly a carbon copy of the NP-NL affair as neither team got hold of the lead. Then with 4:57 to go in the first quarter, Tim Butts sank a pair of jumpers to give the Rams an 8-4 advantage. Southern caught up and with just over three minutes to go, the Firebirds slipped ahead, 11-10, and added baskets by Donald Strickland and Ray Wiggins to make it 15-10 at the end of the period.

One thing that no doubt had Greene Central coach Jerry Fulghum worried was the inability of his team to hit their free throw chances. Through the third period, the Rams made only two of 12.

Free throws were not the question of the second period, it was just that the Rams could not score, period. The Rams had difficulty keeping the ball for more than one shot and while they were trying to uncork their basket, Southern scorched theirs with ten points to run out to 25-10.

Finally, with 2:33 left in the half, the Rams scored as Jerry Jones sank a field goal. The score was increased to 27-16 at halftime.

In the third period, it was SN's turn to cool off. The Firebirds dropped only four field goals in the period as Greene Central took it 18-8. Butts scored from the Ram corner with :05 left in the quarter to cut the previously large gap to 35-34.

Jerry Carraway blasted in a long outside jumper as the deciding period opened, 36-35, but a free shot by Strickland tied it at 36-all. The lead went back to the Rams for good on a pair of free throws, only the third and fourth of the game, by Albert Barron, 38-36.

Butts added a field goal and three free throws, one from a technical foul ran the gap to 43-36 with 6:47 left.

The lead went to 11, 47-36 at 4:20. After that, the fouls began to increase. Strickland fouled out with 3:03 left, Moses Barron, of Greene Central left with 1:50 to go and Tommy Minga left the 'Bird's lineup with 22 seconds on the clock.

Butts led the winners with 12 and Moses Barron had 11. Minga had 10 for Southern Nash.

The winners of tonight's game advance to the championship game tomorrow night beginning at 8 p.m. There will be no consolation game.

Baby Pirates Down Spiders

East Carolina's junior varsity, which recently snapped its losing streak, came up with a 74-69 victory over the Baby Spiders of Richmond last night.

It was sweet revenge for the Baby Bucs, who lost at the horn to Richmond earlier in the year after leading most of the way. The game was a tight one all the way, with the leading hands 16 times during the 40 minutes of play. Neither team could build much of a lead, with the Spiders moving out by as much as six points in the first half, while the Bucs held as much as a seven point lead in the first half, too.

By halftime, the Pirates had slipped into a 38-34 lead, although they had seen a seven point margin slip away to only two just a minute before that.

In the second half, the game continued close, with the lead bouncing back and forth. The Bucs led by as much as six early in the half, but couldn't hold onto it. Richmond managed to take the lead late in the game for the last time and build up a five-point edge, 65-60 with 5:35 to go, but the Bucs again held on.

Al Edwards, who scored 32 points in the game, sparked the Bucs all the way, and hit the basket that put them ahead, 68-67, for the last time with 1:52 left. He followed that with two free throws to pad the lead, then Al McCrimmons and Tommy Williams each hit in the final seconds to give the final five-point margin.

Williams finished with 15 points, while McCrimmons had 14. Richmond was led by Nate Sherman with 16, Steve McCurdy with 13 and Tom Woytowicz with 12.

The game was the final one for the Baby Bucs this year.

Richmond—Schoonmaker 8, Caulfield 2, Sherman 16, McCurdy 13, Woytowicz 12, Burman 7, Wright 2, Hembree 2, Welsh 7, Veasey, Davis.

East Carolina—Flye, Durham 2, Pugh, To, Williams 15, Brogan 6, Ty, Williams 2, McCrimmons 14, Carraway 2, Harris, Modlin 1, Miller, Edwards 32.

Chowan Downs Oak City Five

CHOCOWINITY—Chowan High School rolled to a 58-38 victory over Oak City, knocking the Trojans out of the District 1-A Tournament last night.

Chowan will not meet Belhaven in tonight's first game, while Bath, an 84-61 winner last night over Manteo, meets Columbia in the other semi-final game. The finals will be Friday night, with the winner moving on to the state tournament next week in Garner.

The two teams swapped points through the first period, with it ending in a 13-13 tie.

But Chohan began to take the advantage in the second period, building a 16-10 scoring advantage. That gave them a 28-23 lead at the half.

Oak City couldn't find the range in the third frame, scoring only four points, while Chohan pushed through 16 more. That ran the lead out to 45-27. Chohan outhit Oak City, 13-11, in the final period to wrap it up.

Miles Rountree led Chohan with 15 points, while Melvin Leary had 11 and Melvin Roberts had 10. For Oak City, Paul Jones was high with 16 points.

The loss closed out the year for the Trojans.

James Sprunt Nips Paladins

WINTERVILLE—James Sprunt Technical Institute got a basket at the horn to nip Pitt Technical Institute last night, 68-66 and claim both the regular season and tournament championship of their league.

During the first few minutes of the game, the two teams swapped points, but Pitt pulled away and built up a 17-12 lead halfway through the period. James Sprunt fought back and tied it at 28-28, then dumped in six straight to move ahead, 34-28. Pitt scored once, then Fred Watson hit a 30-footer at the horn to cut the lead to 34-32 at the half.

In the second half, the Paladins regained the lead then pulled away to build up a 52-38 lead with nine and a half minutes left in the game. But Sprunt went to a press, and that shook the Pitt offense and Sprunt climbed back to within three, 54-51. Pitt went back out by five, 58-53, but with two minutes left in the game, it was finally tied after Pitt Tech missed two foul shot opportunities, 66-66. Robert Newkirk then hit a 35-footer at the buzzer to let Sprunt win it.

Newkirk led the Sprunt scoring with 27 points, while Gelbhaar had 25 and Sutton had 10. For the Paladins, Charles Jordan had 29 points, while Danny Thomas hit 16.

"We played a good game, other than letting their pressure defense get to us," Coach Charles Coburn said. Pitt finished with a 5-13 overall mark and a 5-5 league record.

Three members of the Pitt team were named to the All-Conference team, Danny Thomas, Charles Jordan and Robert Hardy.

Williamston In District Finals

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston's girls battled their way into the finals of the District One Girls Basketball Tournament last night with a 46-29 romp over Manteo.

Belhaven nipped Chohan, 47-43, in the first game of the evening, and will meet Williamston in tonight's 8 p.m. finals.

The winner of the tournament will represent the district in the State Tournament, to be held next week in High Point.

Williamston jumped into an early lead and never lost it. They moved to a 12-5 lead by the end of the first period. Manteo came back in the second frame to outhit the Tigerettes, 9-8, but still was behind, 20-14, at the half.

Manteo again kept rallying in the third period, outhitting Williamston, 14-11, to trim the lead to only 31-28. But they ran out of gas there, scoring only one more point the rest of the way, while Williamston chugged away, adding 15 more in the final period to win going away.

Sissy Taylor led Williamston with 14 points, while Fran Hardison had 12. Vanessa Barry led Manteo with 13 points.

East Carolina In Track Meet

East Carolina and the rest of the Southern Conference continued their seemingly eternal chase of William & Mary this weekend, as Virginia Military Institute plays host Friday and Saturday to the Southern Conference Indoor Track Meet.

"We won't win," ECU Coach Bill Carson admits, "but we'll do well. We'll be battling with Furman for second place in the standings, as usual.

"Furman appears to have the better team on paper, but we always seem to do better in the meet. I hope that this continues," Carson said.

One thing in favor of Furman this year is that William & Mary has improved in some areas where the Pirates made a lot of their points last year, thus having the potential to cut into the Pirate points while not cutting into those of Furman.

"I figure William & Mary will win with about 95 points, while Furman gets 63 and we'll have 63, but that's giving them the edge everywhere," Carson said.

"Our athletes are in good shape and they're ready to go," He added. "A lot of people are looking forward to next year, but that's nothing right now. Now is everything to us," Carson said.

Carson feels the Bucs have a chance to go one-two in the 60-yard dash with Arah Johnson and Maurice Huntley. They could also do well in the 60-yard hurdles with Sammy Phillips.

In the 440, Johnson, Huntley and Charlie Lovelace could all place here. "We've got good strength in this event," the coach said.

Gerald Klas is a threat in any one of three events, the mile, the 880 and the 1,000, depending on where Carson runs him. "We may double him in two events," Carson said.

In the long jump, the Bucs have the hopes of going one-two again with Larry Malone and Willie Harvey. Malone also should do well in the triple-jump.

Tom Watson should place high in the shot put, while a number of people could do well in the high jump. "Roy Quick, Glenn Russell, John Pitts, Al McCrimmons and Curt Dowdy all have gone 6-4 or better, as have a few others in the conference. This may be the best event in the entire meet because of the closeness of the competition."

Carson admits that the Bucs have little chance in the middle distance events and in some of the relays—that is to win. "We'll have to try and pick up points here, for sure, but William & Mary and Furman have the horses here. We'll challenge, but we can't win unless something completely unforeseen happens."

Food Being Stockpiled For Hearst Payoff Gesture

By BILL STALL
Associated Press Writer
HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — More than $100,000 worth of food is stockpiled for distribution to California's needy in an effort to bring the eventual release of kidnapped heiress Patricia Hearst.

But as the foodstuffs piled higher in a $2 million feed-the-poor program by newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, there was only silence from the Symbionese Liberation Army, abductors of his 20-year-old daughter.

The terrorist group claims to be holding Miss Hearst as a "prisoner of war." She was pulled screaming from her apartment near the University of California at Berkeley on Feb. 4 by two young black men and a white woman.

Miss Hearst turned 20 on Wednesday. Her parents had appealed to the abductors to release her on her birthday as a gesture of good faith.

The FBI agent in charge of the case, Charles A. Bates, had said he had a "seat-in-the-pants feeling" that Wednesday might be freedom day for the pretty coed.

No one outside of the SLA knew whether the food distribution, which starts Friday, would bring about her release or if more demands would be made.

The SLA had demanded originally that Hearst distribute $70 worth of free food to each of California's poor and needy as a condition for negotiations for the girl's release. Hearst said he could not possibly meet that demand, which state officials estimated would cost some $400 million. He went ahead instead with the $2 million "Peoples in Need" program. The SLA said it would accept a "good will gesture" from Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp. The first free food is expected to be distributed in the San Francisco Bay area Friday, said A. Ludlow Kramer, who is administering the program for the Hearst family. Kramer is Washington's secretary of state. "We think we have met, and the public has met, the commitment to the SLA," Kramer said.

He said the food assembled in the first 22 hours would feed 20,000 persons. The growing stores included 4,000 loaves of bread, 5,000 quarts of fresh milk, a truckload of turkey and 40,000 pounds of walnuts.

Hearst's "Peoples in Need" is patterned after a food distribution plan launched in Washington state in 1970 after heavy cutbacks in the aerospace industry caused widespread unemployment in the Seattle and Puget Sound area. With Kramer's assistance, the program, "Neighbors in Need" is now operating statewide in Washington.

Hearst's food distribution plan will be financed by $500, 000 from the newspaper magazine's personal funds and $1.5 million from a Hearst foundation.

But those funds were barely touched in the first full day of "Peoples in Need" operations, as donations flowed in.

Will Rule On Clinic Law

RALEIGH (AP)—A three-judge federal court will be empaneled to rule on the constitutionality of a state law requiring abortion clinics to obtain agreement with an area hospital to accept the clinic's patients.

U. S. Dist. Judge Franklin T. Dupree Jr. called for the panel Wednesday while continuing an order that bars the state from closing Hallmark Clinic in Charlotte.

Hallmark Clinic, first such facility set up in North Carolina, has been unable to obtain an agreement with a Charlotte hospital. Its temporary permit, conditioned upon such an agreement, expired Feb. 10 and the state attempted to close it.

Its operator, Dr. Harold R. Hoke, challenged the state requirement on the basis that it violated the due process and equal protection clauses of the 14th Amendment.

"It appears that the plaintiffs are in full compliance with all of the regulations except the one requiring a transfer agreement and they should be permitted to continue operation of the clinic during the pendency of this action so long as it continues in compliance with the remaining regulations," Dupree said.

No date was set for the panel to convene.

Had Substitute For Gasoline

AIKEN, S.C. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Roger Payne were 30 miles from their home in Aiken on a trip from their weekend house in Lone Mountain, Tenn., when the needle on their gasoline gauge showed empty.

All the service stations in the vicinity were either closed or out of gas.

Payne remembered a trick he had used once during World War II rationing days. He got three gallons of kerosene at one service station.

"Smoke was pouring out the back and you've never heard such knocking in all your life, but we made it," Mrs. Payne said.

At home, Payne left the car running to burn out all the kerosene, and it's purring again.

FEO Admits Gasoline Allocation Plan A Shambles

Poll Shows Faith In Fairness Of Fuel Allocation Is Eroding

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A weekly poll used by the government to sample opinion about the energy crisis shows that belief in the fairness of fuel allocation is high, but eroding.

The poll also indicated that more people are having trouble getting gasoline, their confidence in Washington is ebbing and rationing is staging a comeback in popularity.

In the week ended Feb. 7, a majority of the 172 persons, which the pollsters say represents a national cross section, reported trouble in obtaining gasoline. The current figure of 51.5 per cent has shown a persistent rise since it hovered at 13 to 16 per cent just before Christmas.

And although a whopping share of the people — 92 per cent — said they felt they are getting their fair share of fuel for home and transportation, the figure represents a decline from 98 per cent in just two weeks.

John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office, said recently, "To give the American people a sense of fairness with our allocation program, to the extent that we can do this, I think we can avoid rationing."

Asked whether they consider rationing necessary, 63 per cent of the people said no. That figure, too, has dropped in two weeks from a high of 72 per cent.

A similar poll was conducted in World War II. At the start of rationing then, only 36 per cent of the nation favored the measure.

The poll is conducted for the Department of Transportation by the National Opinion Research Center of the University of Chicago. The results also are furnished to the Federal Energy Office and Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., who made them public.

Percy said the poll shows people are prepared to make sacrifices — 63 per cent have turned down their thermostats, 39 per cent are using appliances less and 87 per cent have cut down on driving.

"But they feel that neither political gimmickry nor games-manship is called for," said Percy. "Answers are. Solutions are."

The primary blame for the shortage is a neck-and-neck race between the government in Washington and the oil companies, according to the poll.

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal energy officials ruefully admit their first month of gasoline allocation is a shambles, the victim of bad data, inexperience, over-reliance on oil company cooperation, and a dash of politics.

"We had envisioned that the oil companies would pick up our allocation method ... but they didn't," John Adger, a Federal Energy Office aide, said in an interview. "They just sat back and watched the show."

Officials say some lessons were learned and the system should work better in March.

That may be its last chance. A decision whether to switch to rationing may be required by mid-April as summer demand approaches.

Meanwhile, the February allocation program was floundering.

The gasoline allocation regulation published Jan. 15 appeared short and simple, taking up only one-third of a page.

It required suppliers to distribute available gasoline to the wholesale and bulk purchasers they had served in 1972.

Gasoline suppliers themselves had to report available supplies, to seek adjustments, and to make proper allocations.

At first, it seemed to work.

On Feb. 16, the FEO issued a detailed listing of each state's reported gasoline availability. It showed wide differences among the states, with Maine apparently destined for a 26 per cent shortage while Minnesota seemed only 3 per cent short.

Although the federal regulations contain no requirement for equal distribution among states, the low-supply states quickly began demanding it, and the FEO accepted the principle.

Within three days, Simon ordered shifts of gasoline from 10 good-supply states to 12 others and the District of Columbia.

Unfortunately, the FEO's 55-page state-by-state estimate was wildly wrong. Simon then sent teams into 20 states and only last Tuesday issued revised estimates for them.

All of the revisions showed available gasoline supplies far higher than previously reported. Sixteen were off by more than 30 per cent; two of them showed errors greater than 60 per cent. The smallest error was 16 per cent.

For the remaining 30 states and four jurisdictions, the FEO still had no revised estimates.

Even the 20 updated estimates represent only reasonable guesses, not hard data. "We have no reliable figures to base it on," said George E. Hall Jr., FEO fuels manager supervising the gasoline program. "It's been a judgment call all the way."

Hall said the February method required reports only from refiners and importers who often had to guess at the distribution of gasoline after it left their hands.

Simon sent FEO teams into all 50 states this week and the estimates were to be revised.

Policeman Shot In Goldsboro

GOLDSBORO (AP)—Officers were looking for an armed man who shot and slightly wounded a policeman early today.

Police Chief C.M. Gilstrap said officer Ronald Melvin received a slight wound in the leg as he answered a call from a woman who said her two brothers were fighting.

The man fled into nearby woods after wounding the officer. Gilstrap said warrants have been drawn up charging him with assault with a deadly weapon with intent to kill.

Converted V8 Engine To V4

By PETE YOST
Associated Press Writer
EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — John Gerrish's "souped-down" big car doesn't run too well uphill and leaves something to be desired in city traffic.

But he thinks it's the wave of the future in these days of short gasoline supplies.

His Chevrolet is being operated on only four of its eight cylinders in an amateur fuel economy test.

Gerrish and three colleagues at Michigan State University's agricultural engineering department figure if several million Americans turn their over-powered V8 engines into V4s, the savings would be considerable.

To test their theory, the educators converted Gerrish's 1968 Chevy Bel Air by pulling out half the engine's push rods, an adjustment a garage mechanic can perform in about 20 minutes.

With the push rods gone, the intake valves were left closed so no gasoline can get into the four "dead" cylinders.

The result is a V4.

Gerrish reports that fuel economy is good but performance is poor going up hills and through city streets. On open roads, though, it's worth its weight in gas, he says.

Gerrish has been test-driving his V4 for several weeks. He says that, depending on his speed, his car gets up to 28.3 m.p.g. — a 21 per cent saving.

"This isn't for the drag racer, for the hill climber or for the city driver. It's like owning a 3,600-pound Volkswagen," the 35-year-old father of four said.

He envisions eventually the installation of a cutout switch that would permit a driver to use all cylinders of his engine on hills and city streets and half the cylinders for flat freeway driving.

A spokesman for General Motors had a warning about the "souped-down" plan, however.

He said damage will undoubtedly occur if engines operate on only half their cylinders be-

Russians Test Big Missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says the Soviet Union has test-fired a big new SSX18 missile with multiple warheads into the Pacific.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim said Wednesday it was unclear whether the current Soviet missile tests were timed to coincide with the opening in Geneva of a second round of the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks.

"I don't think we are in a position" to reach any judgment on that question with certainty, Friedheim told newsmen.

Friedheim said the Soviet SSX18 was fired more than 5,000 miles Tuesday from Tyuratam in central Russia to a point about 400 miles north of Midway Island.

He said "several re-entry vehicles" were spotted by U.S. observers, indicating that the missile carried multiple independently targetable warheads.

The firing came during the second round of new missile tests from within the Soviet Union in less than a month. The Soviets said earlier this week that a series of such tests would be conducted until March 10.

In previous tests, the Russians have fired as many as five separate warheads with an SSX18, a huge missile apparently being developed as successor to the Soviet Union's largest operational missile, the SS9.

The 'Ecumaniacs' Study Contemporary Religions

By PATRICK O'KEEFE
Greensboro Record Writer
Written for the AP
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Mary Beth Baker, a tall, blonde, age 22, was reared a Baptist, almost became a Roman Catholic, and now thinks of Judaism as "the father of my faith." Her friends call her "an ecumaniac."

The Greensboro College senior from Eden, N.C. is a startling, but not unusual, product of a charismatic course called "Contemporary Religions." The course, in its fourth year at the Methodist-affiliated school, plunks students right into the living, breathing midst of Jewish, Protestant and Roman Catholic beliefs and rituals.

The students have learned to make and eat gefilte fish, Southern Methodist poundcake and a curious concoction by student Walur Arnot, "ecumenical bread." The bread turned out "hard as a brick." What made it ecumenical?

"We all broke our teeth on it," quipped Dr. James Hull, the chairman of Greensboro College's religion department and founder of the innovative course.

Hull recruited the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Hugh Dolan, a native of Ireland and pastor of St. Pius Roman Catholic Church, and Rabbi Arnold Task, a Chicagoan who presides over a congregation at Temple Emmanuel here, for the course Hull calls "a dialogue."

In its brief life the course has sent warm vibrations through the leafy colonial-style campus on West Market Street. Students come in to sit on radiators and windowsills to audit the course. Chapel services blending Hebrew folk songs, a Protestant candlelight atmosphere and explanations of the Catholic Mass are always packed.

Predominantly, the students are Protestant, many of them Methodists, but a handful of Jewish and Roman Catholic students also are taking the course.

For any self-respecting college divinity school nowadays faculty representation of all major faiths is de rigueur. But Greensboro's course is different: it's pitched at undergraduates oriented toward the ministry but toward a vast variety of lay careers.

Hull feels strongly about this. He envisions his students trekking from place to place in the country, teaching school, practicing law, getting active in church groups and passing on the message of interfaith dialogue and understanding.

All three professors agree that the backbone of the course is no-holds-barred discussions of the teachings of the three major faiths, and the conflicts among them. Rather than dividing the professors and students along sectarian lines, however, such candid dialogue actually brings them closer together.

"We all worship the same God," says Miss Baker. "And it's all part of a sense of community. I think the details you kind of have to work around. But I don't think there's that much of a hassle."

"I've been working at Grace Methodist Church, teaching kids about Judaism and Catholicism. They ask questions and it's great for me to be able to say, 'Okay, now this is the Jewish understanding of Jesus.'" Jay Fine, 21, of Greensboro, points to just such an issue as the kind of touchy question Dr. Hull, Rabbi Task and Msgr. Dolan never shy away from. The "Jewish understanding" is that Christ was a good Jewish boy, observing all the traditional customs.

Barbara Gorski, 20 of Cherry Hill, N.J., who comes from a conservative Catholic family, was astonished about her own reactions to Judaism and Protestantism, then rocked by what she learned about her own faith.

"The Judaism part really fascinated me," she said. "I said, 'Wow, this really has basis.' Then I got to Protestantism and I said, 'Wow, this is really interesting too.' And I said to myself, 'Hey, what's going on here?'"

"Then in the Catholicism part I learned a lot about my own religion too. Where I live in New Jersey, the diocese is really kind of strict. I guess Msgr. Dolan is more liberal. It was kind of shocking."

"Receiving communion in the hands instead of in the mouth, for example. I always turned away from that kind of stuff. It's just not me, you know? I was real reverent, couldn't even chew on a host. And putting it in my hand seemed sacrilegious. But when you come down to thinking about it, I guess it isn't."

Suzon Franke, 22, of Vero Beach, Fla., said students keep diaries about their experiences in the course. "This diary is something," she remarked. "You can see yourself growing. I was looking it over last night, and it was hard to believe I was so narrow minded and closed at the beginning. I'd been to Methodist schools all my life and I didn't even know what religion was."

"It's just a whole new ballgame after you've had contemporary religions."

Besides keeping diaries, making religious foods and joining in interfaith chapel services, students also make banners with quotes from different religious traditions, compose hymns and paint. "Each person has to do one project with his hands," Hull said. "It's part of the course requirement to translate religious ideas into a reality in the students' own lives."

Stereotypes get torpedoed on almost a daily basis. "Every one of our students when he or she comes into class thinks of Protestantism as a 'protest against' or something negative," Hull said. "But really, 'protestare' is the Latin word for protest or witness FOR. The popular concept is wrong."

Miss Franke says her Methodist parents never tried to "make me prejudiced," but she added: "They said things like, 'Oh, that's a Jewish store, and we just don't do business there. And then I ran into Rabbi Task, and when I went home and it was, 'Rabbi Task says that.' And then when I mentioned the Monsignor, my parents didn't know what to think."

Amy Orr, 20, of Greensboro, who was among students auditing the course, said the joy and love among students and professors was hopelessly contagious. "I really honestly believe that all the kids in there enjoy what they're doing," she said. "And you don't find that often, even in a stimulating course. Their comfort and their happiness with the whole situation made me feel comfortable. It's something this school had needed for a long time."

What about beyond Greensboro College? Isn't this sort of warm sharing of religious traditions, this spirit of accommodation through a dialogue but without compromising any dogmas, something others might welcome?

Msgr. Dolan, Dr. Hull and Rabbi Task all think so. Moreover, says Hull, if there were enough interest in the community, he'd be happy to consider setting up an evening edition of the course for adults next fall.

North Pitt School News

By JACQUINELSON
Joe Murchinson, a senior at North Pitt High School, was first place winner in the 155 lbs. weight class at the East Carolina Sectional Tournament held last weekend at Rose High School.

Wesley Manning, also a North Pitt senior, placed second in the 119 lbs. class. Both students will travel to the State Tournament which will be held in Winston-Salem Feb. 22 and 23 at Parkland High School soon.

Coach Roger Ingalls is a patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital. He is having surgery performed on his leg. It is hoped he will be back to school soon.

Seniors at North Pitt ordered their caps and gowns Tuesday. Graduation is scheduled for June 6.

Junior class members are now making plans for the Junior-Senior prom. Class Advisors are Mrs. Jack Wall and Mrs. Dare Lucas.

Wanda Whichard and Joy

James, two of North Pitt's "Big Orange Machine" members were named first team all conference and all tournament. Linda Gayle James and Kathi Manning, girls' basketball team members also, were named to the second string all conference.

Geneva Holder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Holder of Rt. 4, Greenville, was second runner-up for the Hugh O'Brian Award for North Carolina. The award is presented to outstanding sophomores.

Miss Holder will be a guest on "Carolina Today" on Feb. 27 at 7:30 a.m.

School Begins Registration

FALKLAND—Pupils for the first grade and kindergarten at Falkland Elementary School for the coming year are now being registered.

All kindergarten pupils must be five years old on or before midnight Oct. 16. All first graders must be six years old on or before midnight Oct. 16.

Parents or guardians of prospective students may call the school for additional information.

Will Headline Ass'n Board Meet Mar. 1

PINEHURST — Nicholas H. Smith, director of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Energy Crisis Activities, will headline an opening-day program March 1, of the Tobacco Association of United States board of governors midwinter sessions here.

Smith, who maintains a 1,700-acre dairy-crop farm in Southern Michigan, also is assistant deputy administrator for all USDA State and County ASCS programs.

Also on the program are William A. O'Flaherty, president of the nationwide Tobacco Tax Council of Richmond, Va.; Horace R. Korney, president and executive director of the Tobacco Institute, Inc. of Washington; and Joe R. Williams, Tobacco Associates president, also of Washington.

Paper Drive By Scouts Planned

Members of Boy Scout Troop 124 of Greenville request that all Greenville citizens start saving their newspapers now for a drive they will conduct the first Saturday in April.

The Boy Scouts will set up collection points, to be announced later, and also will pick house-to-house in some areas.

The paper will be sold to a Wilson dealer who will see that it is recycled. Profits will be used to buy camping equipment for themselves, their leader, Ed Dixon said.

Rev. Lee To Be Guest Speaker

The Rev. J. Donner Lee will be the guest speaker Sunday at 11 a.m. at the St. Paul Pentecostal Holiness Church, located on Highway 264.

The Rev. Lee is superintendent of the North Carolina Conference of The Pentecostal Holiness Church.

A nursery will be provided for babies and junior church graduated through age 12.

The public is invited to attend. Pastor of St. Paul Church is F. L. Daniels.

The Worry Clinic The Victim Is Not 'Coddled'

Horace raises a legal problem that infuriates millions of honest citizens. Why should the property owner in today's case be held in $75,000 bail for shooting the invading criminal, while the latter was required to furnish only $1,500 (2 per cent) as much?

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-558: Horace B., aged 39, is a college sophomore. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I am taking pre-law courses, for I expect to enter Law School."

"But I am confused about the differential way our courts are treating home owners versus criminal intruders."

"For example, you may have noticed the recent Chicago case where thieves were breaking into a garage."

"The owner resolved to sleep in the loft of the family garage to see if he couldn't apprehend the culprits next time."

"On about the 8th night, he woke up to hear them apparently trying to loot his garage."

"The time was about 2 a.m., and two couples were reported as involved."

"He finally shot as they fled and found that he had killed a young woman about 20 and wounded another married girl, aged 18."

"The men got away, but one of them was a repeater criminal, who may have instigated the robbery."

"But what puzzles me is the fact that the owner, who shot the culprits, was arraigned with a bail of $75,000, while the girl he shot in the arm, was only booked with a bail of $1,500."

"Yet she was one of the guilty parties, while the owner of the bike was defending his own private property!"

"How can the courts justify such playing footsie with criminals, yet penalizing honest property owners who try to protect their hard earned possessions?"

Court Cavilling
Maybe it is high time modern Applied Psychology became an ally of the courts!

Maybe

For our pioneer psychologist, Dr. William James, of Harvard, said that a man's possessions are an extension of his own personality.

If you thus mutilate or destroy a person's nose or hand or eye, that is deemed a very serious offense and is called mayhem.

But if you likewise damage his auto or steal his bicycle, that would thus be termed at least a cousin of mayhem, as per Dr. James!

Furthermore, if you worked for 6 months and saved all your pay to buy a $4,000 automobile, that auto then represents half a year of your lifespan!

Anybody who thus steals or destroys that auto, has figuratively killed you six months ahead of time, via destroying half a year of your productive life!

The American public is murmuring angrily, not just at the Watergate bungling lawyers, but also at what they consider the miscarriage of justice in our courts by coddling criminals and penalizing honest defenders of property.

And it isn't the faithful policemen who are at fault, for they find that when they risk their lives in defense of us citizens, the criminals they arrest are often turned loose with a figurative slap on the wrist or are paroled to commit additional rapes, thefts and arson.

One ranking police official recently told me that policemen are thus discouraged at this wanton coddling of law breakers.

"We endanger our lives to apprehend the guilty, only to see them laugh at us as they stroll out of the courtroom, paroled or freed on technicalities!"

Viewers Polled By Public TV

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — A poll is being taken by the Pennsylvania Public Television Network to let viewers say what kinds of programs they want to see on public TV.

The Pennsylvania survey is the first of its kind in the nation, says the Public Broadcasting Service, which says it is both encouraging the study and suggesting the same approach be tried in other states.

Network officials say about 90,000 questionnaires are being mailed to Pennsylvania's public TV subscribers in the seven areas served by the seven stations that comprise PPTN.

In addition, the network is seeking the general public's opinion by buying space for the questionnaires in those areas' newspapers and in Pennsylvania issues of TV Guide magazine, officials say.

They say the survey basically seeks to determine the kinds of state or local programs viewers think PPTN should carry in coming years when and if its now-limited statewide programming increases.

But they say the survey also hopes to give program executives at each station a better idea of what viewers in each area want in both local and national public TV programming.

"The way we've phrased the questionnaire is to ask viewers which programs do they feel 'are the most important,'" said David Leonard, general manager of PPTN. He said the questionnaire doesn't specify by name any local or national shows, but instead lists 19 general categories ranging from sports to drama to coverage of the state legislature.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Thursday, February 21, 1974—17

"The poll, Leonard added, is part of a three-step public TV study that includes both public hearings by the seven PPTN stations and detailed interviews by them of community leaders in their areas."

"Looking at what data we have so far, my guess is we'll go to about 10, 15, maybe 20 general categories of need people have pointed out to us," he said.

"For instance, we feel there's a strong need expressed for more coverage of what goes on in the (Pennsylvania) General Assembly, more information about what bills are being considered and what the issues are. That sort of thing."

Leonard, who said he expects the project to be finished by late March, said it'll include the estimated cost of producing those programs most desired by the viewing public and community leaders.

A final report, to be made public, then will be sent Pennsylvania's governor and the state legislature "and hopefully through that process encourage more financial support and all the other kinds of support needed to get these kinds of programs on the network," he said.

Doubts Raised By Mrs. Smith

PHOENIX (AP) — Benjamin Smith, 22, was in U.S. District Court on an auto theft charge.

Asked by U.S. District Court Judge Walter Craig when he found out the 1972 model truck he purchased for $50 had been stolen, Smith hesitated.

"I guess it was when my wife asked me where the papers on it were," Smith said.

"Well, Mr. Smith, didn't you think something was wrong? Didn't something light up when you were offered a 1972 truck for $50?" the judge asked.

"Yeah, I thought I was getting a good deal," Smith said. Craig accepted his guilty plea.

Booklet For The Blind Traveler

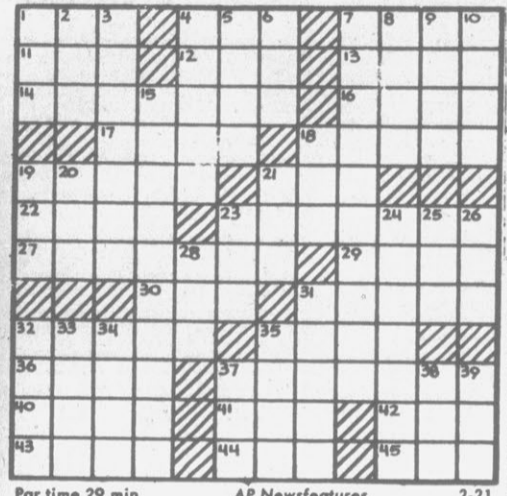

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For blind travelers going abroad, the U.S. Customs Service has published a Braille edition of its "Customs Hints for Returning U.S. Residents." The booklet offers guidance to travelers on exemptions, duty allowances and other important regulations. The Braille edition is available at all Customs regional offices and at more than 50 regional libraries for the Blind and Handicapped that cooperate with the Library of Congress, the agency said.

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until midafternoon very annoying conditions could be present. Later you find aspects take a turn for the better and you are able to start a whole new upswing towards the success that means a great deal to you. Be astute.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You may meet with stumbling blocks in the morning but later you find that all rights itself. Evening can be especially happy with mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have a personal aim that should not be pushed during the day since you will attain it by evening. Show more devotion to a friend.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Although you have many problems in the world of business, you can easily handle them successfully. Be sure to improve your credit.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A new plan you have needs more study before you put it in operation. Avoid one who wants to come between you and your mate.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Get busy handling your responsibilities well and become more successful. The social side of life could bring many delights in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Steer clear of an irate associate during day and get busy at whatever is most important to you. You can reconcile with partner tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Attend only to work that is necessary and then go out and have a good time. Deepen your artistic sense and gain more satisfaction.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Evening is best for amusement, but any early attempt at doing so could meet with disappointment. Creative work can soothe your nerves.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't tease kin today or you could easily disrupt the harmony there. Attend the social tonight and make big headway.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Everything seems to go just the opposite to what you expect during day but then you get back on the beam tonight. Be logical.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A new budget will permit you to save more money. Discuss with an expert how to have more success in the future. Don't waste time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You want to cement better relations with a partner but this can be done better in the evening. Improve your surroundings during the day.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those young people who will be quick to display temper, but having patience with your child, you find this habit will soon be broken and energies will be used constructively. Then self-confidence builds up and your progeny can become a most successful person. Politics is a fine outlet here. Give spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

The bidding:
South West North East
1 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♣.

It is generally advantageous to have the lead—you can decide what suit to play and probe for the opposition's weak spot. However, South demonstrated ably that this is not always the case when he brought home an ambitious contract on today's hand.

Even tho he held five trumps, North would have been wiser to content himself with a simple raise to two spades. The two queens in his short suits tended to decrease the value of his hand, which was not quite distributional enough to merit a jump to game.

West appeared to get his side off to a fine start by attacking the heart suit. Declarer did not think much of his chances, for if left to his own devices he would have to lose at least one trick in each suit. His only hope was to enlist the services of his opponents to bail him out of his predicament.

Accordingly, declarer played low from dummy at trick one and won the ace in his hand. He cashed the ace of spades—a vital move in his plan — and then led a heart to the queen and East's king. East did not relish the prospect of being on lead. A heart would allow declarer to ruff in his hand while discarding dummy's club loser, and a club would be up to dummy's queen. He decided therefore to lead a low diamond. Declarer played low, and West did well to insert the nine. Dummy's ten won, and declarer continued with his plan by leading a spade. This time West was on the lead, and he had no safe exit.

Whatever he led, declarer would make the contract if he could guess the location of the cards. Suppose West led a diamond—declarer would let that ride round to his queen, and so would lose no diamond tricks. A club would be no better, for declarer could play low from dummy and so avoid a loser in that suit.

Note that best defense for East was to return a heart at trick four. To make the contract, declarer would have to ruff in his hand and discard a club from dummy. After cashing the ace of clubs and ruffing a club, declarer throws West in with a trump. He ruffs the club return and then plays a diamond, covering any card East plays to endplay West once more.

Singles Club To Hold Costume Party Saturday

A western hoe-down costume party is being held by the Greenville Singles Club at the Pitt County Wildlife Club near Falkland Saturday from 7 to midnight.

It's to be a cookout and various members are asked to bring the makings of hot dogs and baked beans. The cost is $1.50 for members and $2 for guests. Entertainment will be provided by the Flatland Family Band and the Green Grass Cloggers. Club president Ed Sturgeon said costumes are not required, that those who don't wish to wear them can come and laugh at those who do. Any single person over 21 is invited.

A Bargain in Buying By Ton

PITTSBURGH (AP) — If you had to buy water by the ton, you'd be getting a pretty good bargain, according to Rockwell International Corp., largest producer of domestic water meters in the U.S.

Municipal water sells for about 20 cents a ton. If you bought soda pop the same way, it would cost you $210 per ton. Beer by the ton sells for $405 per ton, while 100 proof whisky sells for the equivalent of $6,144 ton.

Who said you can't get a better picture?

Our challenge... Let us demonstrate how you can get a much better picture on your TV. No Cost or Obligation.

Sardine Being Squeezed Out

NEW YORK (AP) — The sardine sandwich may become a thing of the past, says Audubon magazine, if overfishing persists.

Britain's east coast sardine fishery is dead already and schools of the fish off Maine, Canada and California are dwindling. There are only 17 sardine canneries in Maine now compared to 51 in 1950.

One remedy, says the magazine, would be to close spawning areas, since it is at spawning time that the fish congregate in largest numbers, but no government seems much interested.

Firehouse Pole Slide Is Dying

NEW YORK (AP) — The slide down the brass pole in the firehouse isn't easy on firemen, so one city official has won approval of a site for the city's first permanent single-level firehouse.

Donald Manes, president of the borough of Queens, admits, "I know this is counter to the children's storybook image depicting firemen hurriedly sliding down the fire poles to their waiting fire trucks."

But Manes said, "This new concept will provide greater safety for firemen."

He said Fire Department statistics for 1972 indicate 1,733 days of work were lost due to 69 injuries to firemen hurrying from upstairs.

New River Has 'Scenic' Label From Legislature

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The North Carolina legislature has enacted into law a bill aimed at blocking the controversial Blue Ridge power project in southwestern Virginia.

The bill designates the New River as a scenic river and empowers North Carolina Gov. Jim Holshouser to ask the federal Department of the Interior to include it in the national scenic river system.

The New River rises in the mountains of North Carolina and flows through Ashe and Alleghany counties in the northwestern part of the state.

It then turns northward and flows through southwestern Virginia into West Virginia.

The Appalachian Power Co. has been seeking permission to build the Blue Ridge project for almost ten years. The dam would be in Virginia, but two reservoirs would be created by the flooding of 12,000 acres of land in Ashe and Alleghany counties.

Holshouser has indicated that he will use the new law's authority and ask Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton to include the New in the federal scenic river system.

If Holshouser's request is granted, the river would fall under federal protection and the power project would be prohibited.

The bill was passed by the Senate Wednesday on a voice vote; the House had given its approval several weeks ago.

Its sponsors, Rep. Lawrence Davis, D-Forsyth and Sen. Fred Folger, D-Surry, said they doubted that the Federal Power Commission would grant a license for the project while the request for inclusion in the federal scenic river system is pending.

The bill had clear sailing through the legislature after a public hearing revealed that the county commissioners in Ashe and Alleghany counties favored it and that the power generated by the Blue Ridge project would not directly benefit North Carolinians.

Annual Banquet For Troop 362 Scouts

Boy Scout Troop 362 held its 11th annual banquet Tuesday night at the Greenville Moose Lodge.

Invocation was by Eagle Scout Ben McLawhorn and the opening ceremony by Thomas Butts with the introduction of the troop's 23 Eagle Scouts, starting with John H. Banks, Jr., who was the first member of Troop 362 to receive the Eagle Award in June, 1968.

Efforts by North Carolina Congressmen in Washington to stall the project have been blocked by Virginia Congressmen who favor it.

Skill awards, merit badges and year pins were awarded by Scoutmaster William Hopkins and Assistant Scoutmaster William Shaw.

A special award was given to J. Fred Hamblin as the "outstanding committeeman". Mrs. Audrey James was accorded an "outstanding service" award.

The awards were made and announced by Thomas Butts.

Hamblin introduced Assistant Governor Jack Morgan, of the Moose Lodge, who addressed the gathering.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to Morgan (representing the Moose), Jim Hernan, Jesse Jones, Wayne Ross (Assistant Scoutmasters) and to Scoutmaster Hopkins.
