

Med School Bill Shows Rise Of 'ECTC'

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP)—ECTC has come a long way. "Eecce teecce," it was called back when it was East Carolina Teachers College. Now it is East Carolina University. And it is on the verge of winning legislative approval for a real academic plum: a medical school.

The first and most important step in winning that approval came Tuesday when the legislature's Joint Appropriations Committee approved a bill adding money to the next state budget to expand the current one-year program at ECU to two years.

With that commitment, which is likely to be sustained by the full legislature, it seems inevitable that ECU will eventually grant medical degrees.

"Appropriations bills are not sacrosanct anymore," said Rep. Carl Stewart, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee Tuesday. Stewart referred to the tradition that once the budget bill comes out of the Appropriations Committee, it cannot be amended on the floor.

But even if the opponents of ECU expansion make good on their promise to try to pull the ECU funds out of the budget on the floor, they will not have the votes, if Tuesday's 49-28 tally is an indication.

The birth of the ECU medical school is a classic example of regional pride, institutional ambitions and jealousies, and political persistence.

It also demonstrates a basic political principle. A disciplined, well-organized minority can often work its will on a disorganized majority.

Former Gov. Bob Scott, commenting on the medical school issue a few months ago, had this to say about Eastern legislators. "They're the best politicians around. Politics is a way of life down there and they work at it all the time."

"The most important thing is that they stick together." Indeed they do, and the fact that they do gives the East a disproportionate influence in the legislature.

Legislators from the Piedmont and the western mountains are divided almost evenly between Democrats and Republicans, liberals and conservatives. With a handful of exceptions, eastern legislators are conservative Democrats.

They come to Raleigh in agreement on the major issues and very rarely does a factional dispute disturb their unity. They work persistently to get what they want.

As one anti-ECU legislator said at Tuesday's meeting, killing this year's ECU expansion bill would not have killed the issue. The easterners would have been back again and again.

There was little or no evidence that the ECU partisans had done any blatant log-rolling for their medical school, trading their support on other issues for the support of non-Eastern legislators on the medical school bill.

But they are a determined bloc, and several legislators apparently foresaw that opposition from the Easterners could kill a pet measure.

More than that, the Easterners are skilled lobbyists, and they were able to use their friendships to pick up a few more votes.

They also took advantage of the general shortage of physicians in the state; the fact that no other location seriously pursued a medical school, although several probably had a better site; and the last minute fissure in Republican ranks over the U.S. Senate campaign that caused several bitter Republicans to defy Gov. Jim Holshouser and back ECU.

The Easterners also tapped a wellspring of resentment against the medical profession, both in the medical schools and in practice. "If lawyers had a union like doctors..." more than one legislator muttered at times.

So it appears that East Carolina University will get its medical school. Only time can tell whether the fledgling university system Board of Governors, which opposed ECU, will survive its defeat and exercise the control over higher education it was meant to have.

Only time will tell as well whether the ECU school can actually deliver what its backers promise: More doctors and better medical care for the people in rural areas of the state.

Disappointed

RALEIGH (AP) — Gov. Jim Holshouser says he was "disappointed" by Tuesday's vote of the General Assembly's Joint Appropriations Committee to approve expansion of the East Carolina University medical school.

The Republican governor—a strong supporter of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors, which opposes immediate expansion of the ECU medical school—issued a written statement after Tuesday's vote.

"We are disappointed, of course, that the committee didn't vote to leave the basic decision to the board," he said.

Holshouser's statement came a day after he called Republican members of the Appropriations Committee to the governor's mansion in an attempt to rally them behind the UNC board's position.

'Knows' The Full Story

NEW YORK (AP) — Special prosecutor Leon Jaworski says he thinks his office now knows the full story of the Watergate affair. The New York Times said today.

Jaworski told The Times in a Washington interview that major indictments of persons involved in the cover-up of the Watergate break-in would come as early as Thursday or Friday.

The Times quoted Jaworski as saying that the indictments are being delayed until a jury is sequestered in the New York trial of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans. They are being tried on charges of conspiracy, perjury and obstructing justice.

Jaworski said in the interview that the full Watergate story would be revealed as indictments were handed down and trials begun. But the prosecutor added the case has not "peaked" and further disclosures are expected.

The Times said that Jaworski chose not to describe the motives of the participants in the Watergate affair but quoted the British historian Lord Acton, "Power tends to corrupt, and absolute power corrupts absolutely."

Jaworski did not discuss whether President Nixon might be indicted but said that, once indictments are handed down, it might be easier for the House Judiciary Committee to get information from the special prosecutor's office, The Times said.

ASK FARE HIKE

NEW YORK (AP)—In the first move by a major airline to pass jet-fuel price increases to customers, American Airlines has asked for a four per cent surcharge on all domestic passenger fares.

Farmville, with a population of 4,530, received $15,480 while Ayden collected $12,063 on the basis of a population of 3,530. Other Pitt towns and their population and receipts included: Grifton (Pitt share), 1,550, $5,296; Bethel, 1,510, $5,160; Winterville, 1,440, $4,920; Fountain, 430, $1,469;

A Vote Of Confidence Clear Message: Jenkins

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

"Yesterday's action in Raleigh shows that the people of North Carolina have spoken," East Carolina University chancellor Leo W. Jenkins said this morning in commenting on the favorable action taken by the joint House-Senate Appropriations Committee in approving a bill to expand the university's one-year medical education program.

The Joint Appropriations Committee voted 49 to 28 to approve the bill that directs the University of North Carolina Board of Governors to expand the ECU School of Medicine by increasing the class size and adding a second year to the present one year program. The bill, which will go to the floor of the House and Senate with the regular budget appropriations bill package, also directs the UNC board to construct a $15 million basic medical science building at the Greenville school.

"The message is clear," Jenkins said this morning. "The people want broader health education opportunity through the medical school here...to help meet their critical need. And I think the vote in the Joint Appropriations Committee shows that this message is being heeded."

Jenkins, who emphasized, "naturally we are gratified and encouraged by this vote of confidence placed in East Carolina University," let it be known, however, that the university will not be totally satisfied until it has a four-year degree granting medical school.

The chancellor said, "We are going to continue our efforts to provide first class and full fledged medical education in a degree-granting, four-year medical school on our campus. We believe this is the ultimate mission given us by the General Assembly over the past 10 years."

The university official said that yesterday's committee action "is greatly encouraging. It gives our dedicated and able faculty and staff the encouragement needed to go forward.

"The program they have begun affords an excellent opportunity to strengthen medical education in our state and thus, eventually, increase health care delivery."

Jenkins said, "This is our mission—that intended by the Legislature—that we afford this medical education opportunity to the people now deprived of adequate medical care, particularly in the small towns and rural areas, and especially in the practice of family medicine. This has been our stated goal from the beginning."

Jenkins, too, expressed his gratitude for the "dedicated supporters," of ECU, "who have remained steadfast and determined in the face of pressures, persuasion of all sorts, unfair criticism, and even ridicule."

"These are the so-called 'ECU Supporters' so often portrayed in the press as villains," he noted.

"I can only observe that the ranks of the 'ECU supporters' is growing as the true facts are made known and the people are heard from. For this I am grateful and proud."

Sen. Ralph Scott, D-Alamance—co-author of the compromise bill approved by the committee yesterday and co-chairman of the committee itself—said this morning "we had a few more votes than we thought we'd have," and he is "well pleased with it."

Asked if the bill might run into difficulty on the floor of the House or Senate, Scott noted, "we are not intending for it to," but emphasized, "the supporters of the bill need to be on the alert all the time."

Scott, uncle of former Gov. Robert W. Scott, said, "I don't think it's to the advantage of the Board of Governors to continue to fight the thing. We have many other things we are interested in...that we want to get done. And I think it's in the interest of all concerned that we move on and they (the Board of Governors) implement the bill as fast as possible."

The senator said, "It was a milestone."

UNC President William Friday, in commenting on the favorable report of the $200,000 Bond Issue Is Voted By Winterville

WINTERVILLE—A bond referendum in the amount of $200,000 to improve the Town of Winterville's water services won by an overwhelming majority yesterday when 122 votes were cast in favor of the project and only three opposing votes were cast.

Voting was light yesterday with only 125 persons voting out of a voter registration totaling 746.

The bonds will be used to finance the construction of a 500,000 gallon water storage tank and 1,000 gallon per minute deep well.

Mayor Walter Dail said he was very pleased with the results of the referendum.

"I think it is great...the biggest victory we have ever had here," Dail stated. "The people here understood our need for better water services and they showed their feeling by voting in favor of the issue."

Dail said the town will advertise for bids on March 15. There will be three contracts awarded: one for the well and pump, one for the extension of the water mains, and the third for the storage tank.

Official canvass of the voters will be conducted Thursday by the Pitt County Board of Elections.

Dail said the town will not issue the complete $220,000 approved in the referendum due to several grants the town is expected to receive. The total of the grants is not known at the present time.

Draft Lottery On March 20

William H. McCachren, director of Selective Service for North Carolina, announced that young men born in 1955 will have their Selective Service lottery numbers drawn on March 20.

McCachren said that even though there are no plans to resume call-ups for involuntary inductions, the annual lottery drawing for young men who become 19 years of age during 1974 will be held in Washington, D.C.

He pointed out that there are some 43,000 young men born in 1955 who are registered with North Carolina local boards, and who will have their lottery numbers established by the drawing.

Some of the men born in 1955, as a result of the drawing, will be placed in a class available for service by their local boards, he said. This group will form a standby pool of men during 1975 which will be available to supplement the volunteer armed forces in the event of a national requirement.

The Military Selective Service Act requires all young men to register with the System during the 60-day period beginning 30 days prior to their 18th birthday.

McCachren added that 18-year-old young men in Pitt County who have not yet registered may do so with Mrs. Mildred Brooks Bowers at North Pitt High School; Mrs. Joyce R. Lewis, Farmville Central High School; George S. McRorie, Pitt Technical Institute; Mrs. Elva H. Smith, Ayden-Grifton High School; Mrs. Lois J. Averette, D.H. Conley High School; or Mrs. Linda Brown June, J. H. Rose High School.

Mail Rates Up 2 Cents On Saturday

By G. DAVID WALLACE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of mailing a letter goes up two cents beginning Saturday.

The increase is part of a new postal rate schedule that will also gradually drive up the fees paid by book and record club members, as well as the charges to people who buy from mail order houses. Subscription prices for magazines and newspapers by mail are expected to rise.

The new stamps are available now and must be used on letters postmarked after Friday midnight. The Jefferson Memorial replaces former President Dwight D. Eisenhower on the nation's basic stamp.

First-class mail goes from 8 cents to 10 cents. Airmail goes from 11 cents to 13. Post cards, now 6 cents, will cost 8 cents.

The increases for books, records and publications will be gradual. The cost of a one-pound bundle of books and records will rise by 14 cents over five years to 30 cents.

The Postal Service estimates the mailing cost of Reader's Digest will go from the current 4 cents an issue to 8 cents an issue in three years.

The Magazine Publishers Association and other bulk mailers are fighting the increases before the Postal Rate Commission, which must approve all rate hikes. But the lengthy hearing processes are not likely to delay the increases set for Saturday.

"To the extent magazines can pass along the increases, they will," said a spokesman for the publishers' association. He noted, however, that some publishers may have to eat up the increases to maintain circulation. The publishers estimate their postal costs will have gone up by 220 per cent from 1971 to 1977.

NEW STAMPS—Here are two new postage stamps that must be used on letters postmarked after Friday midnight when the cost of mailing a letter goes up two cents. Consumers will, however, be able to use the old eight-and-ten cent stamps if they include two cent stamps to bring the total to either ten or thirteen cents. (AP Wirephoto)

The rate increase for first-class letters is the fourth since a four-cent stamp moved the mail in 1963. It's the second two-cent jump since the mail service was established.

Report Sighting Overdue Balloon

SANTA CRUZ DE TENERIFE, Canary Islands (AP) — The balloon of American adventurer Thomas Gatch Jr. was sighted today over the Canary Islands, the Spanish news agency Europa Press reported.

The agency said the pressurized gondola, in which Gatch was trying to make the first balloon crossing of the Atlantic, was spotted over the Valley of the Orotava in the south of Santa Cruz de Tenerife.

It said the gondola, which has been reported missing for five days, was moving without difficulty south of the Orotava village.

New Pullback By Israeli 'Soon'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Israeli military forces are expected to begin a further withdrawal in the Sinai peninsula in the next few weeks, the Los Angeles Times said today in a dispatch from Jerusalem.

Quoting "one of the most knowledgeable sources on troop disengagement," who was not identified, the newspaper said a pullback to a north-south line from El Arish to Sharm el-Sheikh still would leave Israel in control of about one-third of the 23,622-square-mile peninsula its troops captured in the 1967 war.

Heath Losing Ground

LONDON (AP) — With Britain's general election only one day away, three opinion polls published today trimmed some more off the lead of Prime Minister Edward Heath's Conservatives.

The government forces were below 40 per cent in all three polls. Their showings averaged 38.1 per cent, while Harold Wilson's Laborites averaged 35.5. Jeremy Thorpe's Liberals had 23.9 and minority parties accounted for the rest.

The Conservatives, who took 46.2 per cent of the popular vote in the 1970 election, had an average lead of six per cent over the Laborites in the same polls a week ago.

The samplings published today were taken during the weekend after a series of upsets for the Conservatives. They included government statistics showing food prices up 53 per cent since Heath ousted Wilson in 1970, the Pay Board's admission that the striking coal miners were entitled to more pay than they are asking for, and Conservative maverick Enoch Powell's attack on Heath's taking Britain into the European Common Market.

After the polls were taken, the Conservatives were hit by more blows.

The government had to announce that the nation's trade deficit hit a record $880.9 million in January, 12 times the size of a deficit that was considered a major factor in the defeat of Wilson's Labor government in 1970. The Conservatives argued that deficit proved their strong economic controls must be continued, but Laborites and Liberals charged the deficit showed Heath is unable to handle the economy.

Planning-Zoning Board Has 11 Items On Agenda

The Joint City-County and Greenville Planning and Zoning Commissions will consider a total of 11 items at tonight's 8 p.m. session at city hall.

The joint board will consider a request by Louis Clark for rezoning 99.82 acres located adjacent to the new Pitt Memorial Hospital site from Office and Institutional, Shopping Center, Medical Arts and RA-20 to Office and Institutional, Shopping Center and Medical Areas; and a request by Mrs. Rosa Bradley for rezoning from Highway Commercial to Medical Arts of property located at the intersection of N.C. 11 and Greenfield Boulevard.

The Greenville board will hear a request by Robert L. O'Neal to withdraw from dedication Cedar Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets and will consider a final plat of Greenbriar Subdivision.

Under new business, the board will consider: a final plat of Martinsborough Square located adjacent to Country Club Apartments and Greenville Golf and Country Club; a preliminary plat of Earl's Estates located east of the old Red Banks Road and opposite Cherry Oaks Subdivision;

A request by Calvary Baptist Church for rezoning of property located at 1412 Holbert Street from Unoffensive Industry to Office and Institutional; a request by Mrs. A.S. Peaden Johnson for rezoning of 2.3 acres located between Physician's Quadrangle and Memorial Drive from Medical Arts to Highway Commercial;

A request by David A. Evans Sr. for rezoning the intersection of 14th and U.S. 264 Bypass from RA-20, R-9, and Neighborhood Commercial to R-9, Highway Commercial, Shopping Center, and Office and Institutional; and a request by North Carolina National Bank for rezoning 14 acres located on Memorial Drive from R-15 to Office and Institutional.

Pitt Received $406,931 In Net Distributable Tax Proceeds

Pitt County received $406,931 in net distributable tax proceeds for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1973, according to the sales and use tax collection and distribution report issued by the Department of Revenue.

State Revenue Commissioner J. Howard Coble reported that net collections for Pitt totaled some $411,054, with the cost of collecting the service amounting to $4,122.

Figured on a per capita distribution basis relative to population, Greenville received $104,774 of the county's total amount, with the city's population listed as 30,660.

Farmville, with a population of 4,530, received $15,480 while Ayden collected $12,063 on the basis of a population of 3,530. Other Pitt towns and their population and receipts included: Grifton (Pitt share), 1,550, $5,296; Bethel, 1,510, $5,160; Winterville, 1,440, $4,920; Fountain, 430, $1,469;

Grimesland, 400, $1,366; and Falkland, 130, $444.

Total population for the county was listed as 74,900 and the county itself received $255,955 of the total amount. Distribution to the towns in Pitt, added to the county total, provided the $406,931 figure.

Greene County, figured on an ad valorem basis, received $24,799 with $22,727 allotted to the county and the balance allotted to Snow Hill, Hookerton and Walstonburg.

Snow Hill received $1,627 on the basis of an ad valorem levy of $50,399 while Hookerton, with a levy of $7,886, received $254 and Walstonburg, with a levy of $4,928, collected $159.

Lenoir County received $331,985 with $255,341 of the total going to the county and the balance going to four municipalities. Grifton received $223 as its Lenoir County share on the basis of a levy of $2,975.

Martin County's total amounted to $113,993 with $90,871 going to the county and the balance distributed among nine cities and towns.

Williamston received the largest share, $17,417 on the basis of a levy of $416,632. Beaufort County's total collections were $198,019 with the county receiving $144,931 and the balance going to seven municipalities.

Washington, based on a population of 8,770, received the greatest share, $35,405.

Coble reported that the total of all counties participating on an ad valorem basis amounted to $8,998,482, while the total of all counties participating on a population basis totaled $17,493,862.

A Bird's Eye View of Spring

What are you wearing to your spring conference?

In natural and rustic looking fabrics the silk and flax fibers again show on the surface of many fabrics. Textured, tweedy looks and bold weaves that reflect the handloomed fabrics, especially in the natural colors, are sure fire winners.

Knits are inspired by traditional woven fabrics and new dimensions are created by the combining of silk and linen yarns with synthetics to emulate a woven, natural feeling. Patterns and stripes are naturals for the matched sweaters.

Spring wouldn't be spring without the clean, crisp look of plaids and checks. Stripes are the most exciting design direction and abound in all variations. Dots also are on every surface in every size from pin dots to giant carnival size. Many dots are incorporated in other designs or in multiple size mixes.

Denim, chambray and other rugged work clothes fabrics inspire sportswear, as do the "down home" calico, bandanna and patchwork prints. These fabrics provide a rustic background for country and Western motifs as well.

Students will continue to love the people, places and things that are printed in amusing formations. New motifs are dice, cards, animals, birds, sporting equipment and souvenir and postcard prints.

Embroidery and decorative stitching makes news with young and old alike. The kids are still (and more so) decorating their jeans and t-shirts—with embroidery, sequins, nailheads, applique and glittery glue—with motifs that are chosen to take on new directions. Say "farewell" to peace symbols and "hello" to parrots and palm trees—reminders of far-away places with the strange sounding names.

Competition Sewing

Channel 5 in Raleigh is for its ninth year sponsoring a sewing competition for women, men, and high school students. The six categories include daytime clothes, evening clothes, children's clothes, and menswear. There are also categories for women who supplement the family income by sewing (non-professionals) and junior and senior high school girls. Call me at 758-1196 for more information.

Chinatown Residents Are Still Isolated

By JANET WU

BOSTON (UPI) — Mention Chinatown and most Bostonians will tell you where their favorite restaurant is. But they couldn't tell you much more.

Chinatown, established in Boston at the end of the 19th century, was described as the "oldest, but least known community" in a recent report by the city's Planning and Evaluation Department.

"It's pretty much isolated from the rest of the city," said Mrs. Carolyn Chang, director of Little City Hall in Chinatown.

"It's a funny thing about the Chinese, they never want to get involved," said Dick Byron, 41, a policeman who has walked the Chinatown beat for the past four years.

And Terry Kwan, 27, of Brookline, an elementary school supervisor, describes teacher-Chinese parent communications as "really bad for the most part" because "parents can't and don't want to get involved in public school problems."

There are approximately 12,000 Chinese in Metropolitan Boston, 2,500 residing within Chinatown's 12 blocks, but Mrs. Chang said "they all make minimal use of city facilities.

"The men of the families work such long hours and the mothers often work full-time also, leaving little leisure time," Mrs. Chang said. "The long working hours and language problem combined, make it difficult for us to help many of them."

Mrs. Chang said she has been involved with Chinatown's problems "all my life" since she was born and grew up in the community. She helped organize Chinatown's first health center after graduation from Boston University. Four years ago, she was appointed Little City Hall's director.

Mrs. Chang says the community's major problems are proper health care, housing for the elderly and developing programs for youths to help avert juvenile delinquency which has cropped up in San Francisco and New York's Chinese communities.

"There is a core group of about 20 people who are committed to helping the community. Our basic job, I guess, is helping them to adjust to living in America," said Mrs. Chang.

Finding employment for newly arrived immigrants is another obstacle she feels must be overcome. Jobs for men are confined to restaurant work and women are limited to stitching in garment industry shops.

"The population keeps growing and there just aren't any new job openings," Mrs. Chang says.

But the overriding difficulty Mrs. Chang faces is getting the community to ask for assistance.

"You deserve this help," she says.

Miss Kwan, who has worked in Boston-area school systems for the past five years and actively is involved with the Massachusetts Chinese Education Committee, said "free education is something they never have heard of. The schools over there were worse so the parents feel they have no right to complain."

Teenaged Hong Kong immigrants have the hardest time adjusting to American life, according to Miss Kwan.

"There's no support to pick up the English, truancy is not detected until it's very serious and already engrained. Parents don't encourage them to participate in school activities, particularly the girls," Miss Kwan said.

She feels the community, for the most part, denies there is even a juvenile problem.

"Admittedly the percentage of kids involved with delinquency type problems is not remarkably high but you definitely can't ignore the few knife incidents recently."

"It's pretty alarming considering how large Boston's Chinatown is," she added.

Byron, who says the Boston police department has a "good relationship with leaders and the young people," calls the knifings "minor and isolated incidents."

"We were shocked ourselves when we heard about them," he said.

Mrs. Chang, however labeled the juvenile situation "a lot more complicated than on the surface."

"A lot of young kids from Hong Kong with no motivating force have a hard time in school and they do form groups, maybe not specifically for crime purposes like in New York and San Francisco, but you can never tell."

"I try not to be too optimistic but with some good constructive programs for alternatives, you can prevent a wholesale gang from developing," Mrs. Chang said.

Green-Seieroe Vows Spoken In Ceremony Tuesday Evening

The marriage of Sharon Kay Seieroe and Michael Allen Green was solemnized Tuesday at 6:30 in the evening in the Red Oak Christian Church in a double ring ceremony.

The Rev. Ronald Nichols conducted the ceremony.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Seieroe of Nisland, S. D., the bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a full length gown of white organdy with pink rosebuds and carried a bouquet of cascading red roses.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Green Jr. of Greenville. He is the grandson of Mrs. Lucy J. Allen, also of Greenville.

After a wedding trip to unannounced points, the couple will make their home in Greenville. The bride is employed at Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., and the bridegroom is presently attending Pitt Technical Institute.

A dinner party honoring the couple was given by the bridegroom's parents immediately following the ceremony.

Miss Seieroe was honored Friday at a miscellaneous shower given by her co-workers at Carolina Telephone.

Ham Operator Corrects Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote that she heard strange voices coming from her turned-off radio and traced it to her neighbor—a ham radio operator. Your reply was an insult to more than 285,000 radio amateurs in the U.S.A.

She should first contact the ham, and if he is indeed a licensed ham operator, he has had to pass strict examinations which require him to know enough to keep a good, non-interfering signal on the air. If he's at fault, he would appreciate being told, so he can promptly remedy the situation.

There are thousands of nonlicensed law-breakers operating radios on another service who often cause interference, for which we hams are blamed. Our record for self-policing and helping in emergencies is too often overshadowed by annoying interference from someone who is not a licensed ham.

Any questions you or your readers have about amateur radio can be answered by writing to The American Radio Relay League, 255 Main St., Newington, Conn. 06111.

Actress Is Marriage 'Wary'

By JOE O'SULLIVAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — "I'm allergic to dust," confessed Jean Marsh, who plays Rose, head parlormaid in "Upstairs, Downstairs," the British television series currently featured on Public Broadcasting Service's Masterpiece Theater.

Miss Marsh is not worth a tuppence as seamstress either. "I staple hems," she confided.

The admissions were made in New York just before the actress, a co-creator of the show as well as cast member, began a brief U.S. tour.

"I'm 5 feet 6," she said. "My hair (long and bound by a chaste white ribbon) is chestnut, my eyes green...My age? My age is a movable feast—I'm 35."

How did English Miss Marsh come to be staying at Irish actress Geraldine Fitzgerald's apartment? "Geraldine Fitzgerald's son (director Michael Lindsay-Hogg, 31) is my boyfriend," she explained.

Wary of Wedding

Married early and divorced, she's "wary" of wedding.

"I don't believe in divorce," she said. "I don't believe in extramarital sex. I don't believe in premarital sex. I believe in fidelity and loyalty."

But Miss Marsh isn't too good to be true. There are the little vices. She carries an evil looking box of British-made "Oriental cigarettes" (she smoked one in a two-hour period). She's addicted to novels by the likes of Marcel Proust and Ford Madox Ford.

After work, she often dons a loose caftan, puts on a couple of Mozart cassettes and breaks out a little cold, cold French champagne.

The caftan-champagne bit is her "one extravagance" since the television series caught on. Part of her income goes to support her parents, old-age pensioners. Another bit of family loyalty: Jean Marsh is her real name. "How upsetting for my parents it would be not to be able to say, 'that's my daughter!'"

Although she doesn't sound like one, Miss Marsh is proud to be a genuine London cockney. Her mother was in domestic service when quite young and used to tell lots of stories about it. The stories remained in her daughter's mind until "Upstairs, Downstairs."

Ballet School
Suffering what doctors said was "mental paralysis" because of World War II bombings, Miss Marsh was sent to ballet school while a tot as a kind of therapy. Since then, she's always worked in the theater.

You may have seen her as the neurotic secretary in

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, February 27, 1974—3
Hitchcock's film "Frenzy" or heard her as the "voices" of "four French girls" in "La Dolce Vita." In the late 1950s, she was on Broadway in "Much Ado About Nothing."

Time Now To Work Together

Those who have worked so long for development of the East Carolina University School of Medicine should be humble and proud of the overwhelming vote that was accorded to expansion of the school at Tuesday's Joint Appropriations Committee "show-down" vote.

The committee voted 49-28 in favor of the Scott-Stewart bill which directs the UNC Board of Governors to expand the one-year medical program at ECU and to add a second-year of medical education at East Carolina.

As we understand it, the bill enjoyed support from throughout the state and across party lines. This is particularly pleasing to all who have maintained that development of the school can be of benefit to the entire state.

It is also important to the ECU cause that the committee voted 40 to 39 to incorporate the provisions of the bill in the regular budget appropriation bill package.

That move was important because otherwise the bill would have gone to the House and Senate floors separately to be fought over and possibly crippled with amendments. The legislators are normally extremely reluctant to break open the appropriations package since there is the danger that the committee work will be undone in many areas.

The committee also adopted amendments which require the ECU school to concentrate on training family care physicians and to recruit and encourage racial minorities—things that most supporters of the school would like to see anyway.

Two other amendments directed the board of governors to use an appropriated $15 million for erection of a basic medical science building at ECU and directing the UNC Medical School and the ECU School to cooperate in winning accreditation for the two-year medical school at ECU.

There could hardly have been a more decisive action by this powerful committee of the State Legislature. These elected representatives of the people took action after years of debate and intensive pressures of recent days. We are sure all of these committee members cast their votes after long study of the issue, and careful thought and prayer as to what their stands should be.

After such an overwhelming vote, we would hope that opposition to development of the ECU School of Medicine will end. All North Carolinians should put our talents to work toward building an outstanding School of Medicine at East Carolina University which will work in partnership with the UNC School, as well as Bowman Gray and Duke, in providing the physicians that our people need.

Reagan Forces Reverse Trend

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

SACRAMENTO, Calif.—Political fallout from Watergate is pushing the California Republican party leftward from Gov. Ronald Reagan's conservatism back toward a reincarnation of Earl Warren progressivism, a wholly unexpected event with potentially profound national consequences.

The central development of Republican politics here amounts to a stunning reversal of the party's long rightward trend. The Republican establishment, including Reagan's inner circle, has agreed upon a candidate for governor: state controller Houston I. Flournoy, a 44-year-old former college professor and longtime liberal critic of Reaganism. Thanks to that consensus, Flournoy is the favorite in the June 4 primary and could lead California's most liberal Republican ticket since the early 1950s.

What's more, some shrewd Democratic operatives long have seen Flournoy—Independent, progressive and scandal-free—as the one Republican who could buck the 1974 Democratic tide. If Flournoy could score an upset, he would instantly become an important new factor in national politics.

The immediate cause of these remarkable developments is not ideological conversion but, oddly, preoccupation by Reagan's financial backers with his last-ditch attempt for President. It was clear long ago that Reagan's ambitions conflicted with front-running Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke's becoming the nominee for governor.

Reinecke, Reagan's hand-picked lieutenant governor, is idolized by right-wing Reaganite precinct workers. But Reagan fatcats, headed by millionaire auto dealer Holmes Tuttle of Los Angeles, became convinced Reinecke could not win in November when he became tangentially involved in the ITT affair. What makes electing a Republican governor so important to the Tuttle group is their fear that a Democratic successor in Sacramento—particularly Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown, Jr.—might hurt Reagan nationally by slashing away at his record as governor.

The Tuttle group's long, unavailing search for an alternative nearly settled on state Atty Gen. Evelle Younger but turned away partly because of unsubstantiated rumors about Younger's financial background. Younger withdrew his name last month. So did Robert Finch, deciding his close association with Richard M. Nixon ruled him out.

That left only conservative Reinecke, darling of the party faithful, and Flournoy, with 4 per cent in last autumn's polls. San Francisco industrialist David Packard (former Deputy Secretary of Defense) sold Flournoy to the Tuttle group. In return, Flournoy gave this watery concession: as governor, he would retain Reagan's "good" programs.

Flournoy did not promise to support Reagan for President. On the contrary, he had to promise anti-Reagan money men, headed by industrialist Leonard Firestone, that he had not made any presidential

The Impact Of Report Cards

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—A local bill by three senators representing Gaston County may have wider impact than first thought.

On the surface, the proposal appears minor—a statutory requirement that schools in Gaston County issue report cards to every student.

Behind that is a whirlwind of debate in Gaston County over a decision not to send report cards home; to have conferences between teachers and parents instead.

Sen. Marshall A. Rauch, D-Gaston, said the purpose is not to ban conferences, but to insist on a written report for parents.

Conferences are fine, Rauch said, but many parents work and can't make it to a conference, and many are ill-equipped to take part in conferences and are embarrassed. Additionally, the conferences simply aren't being held in some cases, he said.

Jack L. Thyne, D-Gaston, said he had heard "lots of complaints from people who want to know how their children are doing in school. 'It's unfair to those parents to send their children to school and not know how they're doing,' Rhyme said.

A Written Report
The bill, if enacted into law, would require a written report card at least every nine weeks to be sent home by the student, signed by a parent, and returned. Some symbol-numerical, coded, or alphabetical—is required to show passing or failing work.

"The report card is to clearly define the academic or scholastic status or rating that the student has been assigned during the period," the bill states.

On introduction, Sen. Rhyme asked that the bill be assigned to a judiciary committee for handling.

Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., presiding, ruled instead the bill should go to the education committee.

Rhyme argued that the proposal is a local bill and should be handled routinely. Hunt, however, believed the bill to have wider implications and should be handled as an educational measure. While no specific information is available, state officials said some other school systems are experimenting with other methods than report cards, and some are planning to move in that direction.

If the Gaston measure passes, there may be other local legislators seeking to come under the statute requiring a report card.

The report card debate in Gaston is one of the issues involved in a community argument over administration of the schools.

Record Crops
Cash placed in Tar Heel farmers' pockets in 1973 set a new record as a result of increased production and prices in both crop and livestock activities.

Statistics gathered by the crop reporting service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture put the North Carolina increase at 37 per cent—up from $1.6 billion to $2.2 billion.

Yankee Governor?
David Flaherty, Republican head of the Department of Human Resources, continues to get a lot of kidding about his unconfirmed and unannounced interest in running for governor.

Flaherty's from Boston, Mass., and occasionally lapses into some Yankee talk. That prompted New Bern native David Jones, fellow Republican and cabinet member as head of rehabilitation and control, to make an offer the other day.

"I told him that for $500 I'd teach him to say Y'all."

"After about 10 lessons I could get him to where the people in eastern North Carolina could understand him," Jones said.

Public Forum

To the editor:

On behalf of the East Carolina University Artist Series Committee, I would like to offer an apology for our last concert when we presented the Warsaw Philharmonic Orchestra. Patrons of the Artist Series deserve an explanation for the delay and changes in the program.

To begin with, the principle conductor became ill and was unable to do the performance, but for some reason, still unknown to me, the substitute conductor was not prepared to conduct the program you were to hear. I found out about this trouble only upon arriving at the auditorium at 7:30 that night. The committee had a decision to make at this point whether to cancel the performance and refund all ticket money, or allow the orchestra to perform a completely different program. The majority decided upon the latter, and we then had to choose a new program. The delay in the performance came as a result of the extensive negotiations which had to occur with the management company in New York before the orchestra could be allowed on stage.

As a point in their favor, let me say that the orchestra did cancel a date in Alabama due to the energy crisis to be here for our performance.

Again, you have my apologies for the delay and changes, and I hope you enjoyed the substitute program.

Strength For Today

'LOT'S CHOICE'

There is a great lesson in that passage in Genesis which tells of Abram's generosity to Lot.

Lot had a good eye for pasture. He knew how to take care of himself. When the generous Abram said, "We'll divide the land between us; you take what you want and I will take what is left," Lot must have been amused at his uncle's foolish generosity. He chose the well-watered plain and pitched his tent toward Sodom. But that night God led Abraham up into the hills and said to him in substance: Look to the East and to the West, to the North and to the South. Lot thought he had the best of the bargain today, but as a matter of fact he got the worst of it. Lot got the well-watered plain of the Jordan, but he will also get the wickedness of Sodom, and he will suffer when the flames come down from heaven.

The Bible enjoins us to put right and generosity to others at the center of our lives—not ourselves.

The Good And Bad News

WASHINGTON—In his recent speech in Huntsville Ala., on "Honor America Day" President Nixon said, "In the nation's capital there is a tendency for partisanship to take over from statesmanship. In the nation's capital sometimes there is a tendency in the reporting of the news—I do not say this critically, it's simply a fact of life—that bad news is news and good news is not news."

I couldn't agree with the President more.

But in fairness to the people reporting the news, the problem is not one of reporting bad news or good news but of knowing what is good news as opposed to bad news. When you work in Washington it's difficult to distinguish the difference, and what may sound like bad news to President Nixon is actually good news to somebody else.

For example, there was a special election in Grand Rapids, Mich., for Vice President Gerry Ford's congressional seat and for the first time in 64 years a Democrat won. Now this was obviously bad news for the President, but it was good news for the Democrats. Had the press not reported this, they wouldn't know if they were suppressing good news or bad news.

Other Editors Say Runaway Fathers

(The Wilson Times)

The absentee fathers should be on the lookout, the fathers who neglect their family duties. Government policy is being tightened on welfare funds for indigent children with able-bodied fathers.

Women's groups are demanding stricter enforcement of child support orders in divorce cases. A bill passed by both Senate and House last year and now in conference, would require states and localities to force irresponsible fathers of children on public welfare to pay up.

Each state under this measure would establish a special unit responsible for searching for the missing parent, establishing paternity if the child was born out of wedlock and bringing action to obtain contributions from the father for child support.

A state not meeting federal standards for the collection process could lose part of its federal funds for "Aid to Families with Dependent Children" welfare programs. The father-hunting service would be available to nonwelfare mothers for a modest fee.

Women's rights groups believe the public does not appreciate the privations and injustices afflicting many mother-child families. There are 8 million children in fatherless homes and average family income is less than half that of two-parent families.

"Dependent child" is a term denoting a child having no means of support from a responsible adult. Until the depression of the '30's private charity assumed much of this burden. Even when tax funds were used to support institutions for the indigent children, private—usually church—agencies operated them.

Government became a primary source of support for indigent children, when Congress, in the Social Security Act of 1935 inaugurated the federal-state-local system of public assistance.

There now are approximately 11 million recipients, 8 million of whom are children. Payments to them in 1972 totaled $7 billion. Rising divorce and illegitimacy rates, greater awareness of welfare rights among the poor and a general decline of a sense of responsibility among the runaway fathers are among the reasons for the rise.

Single Residences May Suffer

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The question could have been asked by roughly two million others: "Because of the energy shortage, will I be forced to forego the pleasures of my second home?"

This time it was posed by Joseph Doherty, who travels 185 miles to his weekend retreat on a Vermont lake, and who has a fear of driving a small car "that equals the fear many people have of heights and elevators."

Doherty wonders if he will be able to obtain enough gasoline to maintain his life style. He searches for the answer but maintains that no conclusion is possible for another few months.

"The second home market is being watched very carefully and it could be one of the first areas to feel the effect of the energy shortage," he believes, but adds: "There is still too much confusion to reach a conclusion."

Doherty, 63, is president of the National Association of Realtors, whose membership numbers 118,000 of the 1.5 million licensed real estate practitioners in the United States.

Among the pressing questions to which, he insists, there are no answers at this time:

—Will we return to downtown, to mass transit and to the life we knew before the highway explosion?

—Will the older, intown location command a premium price? Will houses in suburbia become less desirable?

—Aside from the growing environmental factor, what is the future of shopping centers that depend upon the automobile for customer transportation?

"I do not have the answers," said Doherty.

About the nearest thing to a prediction is this:

"Row houses and their more sophisticated counterpart, town houses, and apartments and condominiums, may increase in popularity at the expense of single residences."

True, he explained, the older, intown location may command a premium and suburban sprawl may have peaked in value until we resolve the problem of travel by private car.

Simon Lacked Tact

By R. GREGORY NOKES

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Energy Chief William E. Simon may have hurt his chances of being named next secretary of the Treasury when he criticized statements by the Shah of Iran, well-placed sources say.

Simon, who also is deputy secretary of the Treasury, has been considered one of two leading candidates to succeed Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz, whose resignation could come anytime.

But Treasury sources who have been friendly to the idea of Simon becoming the next secretary say he made a major mistake on Monday when he denounced as "irresponsible and reckless" statements by the Shah of Iran. The remark by the Shah that aroused Simon's ire was that the United States is importing as much oil now as before the Arab oil boycott.

The criticism of the Shah had potential for considerable embarrassment for the United States, because the Shah has been a close friend and Iran has continued as a major supplier of U.S. oil during the oil embargo by the Arab countries.

Nixon felt obliged to contradict Simon at his news conference Monday night, saying "I would not say that the Shah was irresponsible and reckless." He said the Iranian leader probably was using different figures than Simon's office.

However, the prime minister of Iran said Tuesday the Shah's information came mainly from U.S. sources, including Simon himself.

Simon "must be talking through his hat," said Prime Minister Amir Abass Hoveida, in an interview.

A top Simon aide, Gerald Parsky, said Simon stands by his statement regarding the Shah's remarks. He said there was the suggestion in what the Shah had said that petroleum was being smuggled into the United States.

That idea, Parsky said, is (Continued on Page 5)

40 Years Ago Today

By SUSAN PRICE
February 27, 1934

A mad dog scare spread over the community today and police were armed with orders to shoot to kill dogs caught running at large.

Chief of police George Clark said this morning a rabid dog bit several other dogs in the western section of the city yesterday and that he has been ordered to kill all dogs caught on the streets.

Three other mad dogs were reported slain several days ago, but it is believed the one killed yesterday hit more animals than all others combined.

One man was almost bitten by the dog.

Orders calling for another drastic cut of CWA workers in the county were received this morning by K. T. Futrell, Pitt County administrator.

The new reduction will affect 282 men, making a total of 624 taken off the payroll here during the last two weeks. The new cut will become effective Thursday.

Only 501 men will be left on the payroll next week.

commitment to Reagan. There are additional costs for Flounoy in his rise from 4 per cent obscurity. He was intellectually opposed to Reagan's proposed state taxing limit but endorsed it anyway. Although Flounoy has been privately, often scathingly, critical of Reagan's governorship, he told a recent Lincoln Day dinner in San Jose: "He's been a darn good governor."

While Flounoy is publicly neutral, friends whisper he would prefer right-wing state Sen. John Harmer for lieutenant governor (over former HEW Undersecretary John G. Veneman, a longtime Flounoy comrade) to appease the right.

Such concessions have tarnished Flounoy's independence, essential for him to buck the Democratic tide. Indeed, Democratic leaders have started accusing him of selling out to Reagan.

The real wonderment, however, is how Reagan and friends can stomach Flounoy. He remains indicted forever in their memories as a member of the Nelson Rockefeller delegation, defeated by Barry Goldwater in the bloody 1964 California primary. Two other members of the Rockefeller delegation may be on the state ticket—former Speaker Robert T. Monagan (now a U. S. Assistant Secretary of Transportation) for state treasurer and Assemblyman William Bagley for state controller. A fourth Rockefeller delegate, Veneman, has an outside chance for lieutenant governor. These are not Ron Reagan's ideological acolytes.

Moreover, Reagan and Flounoy have not seen each other in many months. "The governor still hates Flounoy's guts," a Reagan adviser told us, "but he's a realist."

Beyond realism, the conservative fervor of the 1964 Goldwater and 1966 Reagan campaigns has diluted. Grass roots zealots have not recovered from the fall of Spiro T. Agnew after his professions of innocence in Los Angeles last summer.

Even so, surviving diehards are keeping Reinecke in the race against Flounoy despite his bizarre behavior (traveling to Washington to unsuccessfully plead for a clean bill of health from the special prosecutor) and loss of financial backing. If the scholarly Flounoy remains threatened by the more flamboyant Reinecke, Flounoy's aides might seek Reagan's personal endorsement. That this is remotely conceivable testifies to the havoc wrought by Watergate on pristine Republican conservatism.

(Continued from page 4) special prosecutor that was good news. But when he discovered that two of the nine did not exist, that was bad news. In this case the President had a right to be angry. Instead of talking about the seven he turned over to the special prosecutor, the press made an issue of the two that were missing. Then to complicate matters it was discovered that 18½ minutes of one tape had been erased. This was bad news. But what the media failed to report was the good news which was that except for the 18½-minute gap, the rest of the tape was clear as a bell.

Even Administration officials have a hard time sorting out good news from bad news. Recently Roy Ash, the head of the office of Management and Budget, said the energy crisis was only temporary and would soon be over.

This was good news, and for once the media revealed it. Then William Simon, the energy czar, spoke out and said Ash didn't know what the hell he was talking about and that the energy crisis would be with us for a long time to come. This was bad news, and it really hurt the press to reveal it so soon after Ash's good news.

I think what the President was talking about was the Washington press corps' reluctance to print good news about him. A perfect illustration is that recent polls revealed that the American people held Congress in lower esteem than the President of the United States by five percentage points. Unfortunately, though, the President at the time of the poll was held in high esteem by only 26 percent of the people. So you could either say this was good news for the President or bad news for the country.

It would be most helpful for people in Washington if the government could set up guidelines for us so we could know what good news is. The Kremlin does this for the press in the Soviet Union and it works like a dream.

(Continued from page 4) what Simon referred to as being reckless and irresponsible. "It was not meant to be a personal affront to the Shah," he said.

Nevertheless, Treasury sources said the Simon statement "showed a lack of tact and diplomacy."

"We don't have that many friends in the world that we can afford to insult a good friend like the Shah," one source said.

Upchurch Sees End To 'Gasoline Panic'

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The president of the North Carolina Service Station Association says increased gasoline allocations to the state could signal a return to less frantic conditions at the pumps.

Avery Upchurch's remarks came after the Federal Energy Office announced last Friday that North Carolina would get 13.78 million gallons in extra gasoline for the rest of February.

Some of the new allocation was reported on its way to North Carolina retail dealers Tuesday. Upchurch said he thinks the additional gasoline will swell Tar Heel supplies to the levels of Jan. 1, when lines at pumps were relatively uncommon in most of the state.

He said most stations in the state could now conceivably pump gasoline for eight to 10 hours a day if people would buy gas the way they used to.

"The panic to buy gas during a one or two-hour period every day is causing the whole problem," Upchurch said. "It's just a matter of slowing things down."

"All we need now is for people to stop all this panic and pressure buying," he added.

People who try to keep their tanks full by buying gas every time they see a station open and selling have forced operators to squeeze their hours. Upchurch said. As a result, monstrous lines stretch our daily because everyone must buy at the same time.

Expansion Of Long Distance Telephone Service Lies Ahead

ROCKY MOUNT—Improved and expanded long distance telephone service to a wide area of Eastern North Carolina is expected when a vast, computerized $15 million switching center becomes operational here in May, 1974.

Now nearing completion, the center is housed in the largest single building addition ever constructed by Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Company.

The installation will provide initially an additional 1,516 long distance circuits to points throughout the United States, including direct access to 35 additional principal cities.

A total of 2,565 circuits will be available in May, while the ultimate capacity will be about 16,000 more circuits than can be handled by present facilities.

The new Rocky Mount facility will serve switching centers in Ahoskie, Williamston, Wilson, Greenville, Henderson, Washington, Kinston, and New Bern by directing their calls to all points within the United States.

Long distance calls completed through these switching centers have grown from 15,039,454 in 1968 to 28,247,097 in 1973—an 87 percent increase in just five years.

Additional circuit routes and circuits from Rocky Mount and a new Greensboro switching center (also slated for May service) will relieve congestion at Charlotte, now the switching point for the entire state.

Coincident with conversion to the Rocky Mount switching, another new service will be introduced in Rocky Mount, Weldon, Wilson and 19 other locations.

This will be the provision of Automatic Number Identtification (A.N.I.) to all one-party subscribers at these locations.

A.N.I. means that the telephone number from which a direct dialed long distance call originates will be automatically identified for billing purposes without any operator assistance.

Russian Emigre Relates Govm't Culture Control

By JAMES L. OUTMAN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Henry Elinson hunches over a cup of black coffee with a long Russian cigarette dangling from his lower lip.

"In that country exists a constant and incomparable state of lying," he says. "In that country, exists an exact censorship of expressed thoughts."

Elinson, an artist, is talking about his native country—the Soviet Union. He emigrated last October, one of several thousand Jews permitted to leave each month, and since then has lived in New York trying to sell his paintings.

Elinson was never imprisoned, although he was questioned by the notorious KGB about a private art group he and some friends organized in Leningrad. Some of his friends were sentenced to 10 years in prison, but this was after Elinson had left the group so he escaped with an interrogation.

Prison of the Mind
For Elinson, the "Gulag Archipelago"—Alexander Solzhenitsyn's term for the organization of camps and prisons for political dissidents—existed in the mind. It was as effective as a prison in suppressing dissident sentiments.

"For example, I'm sitting at a professional union meeting (his job was speech therapist) and I am talking to a regular guy. He goes up to the podium. Before that, he had been talking to me completely normally. And he starts lying. He starts talking about the building of communism and the bright future."

The Soviet government, Elinson said, "exists in and of itself. What they call the working class is the same way—in and of itself. And these categories don't touch each other."

"The intelligentsia understands everything sufficiently well. The government knows that the intelligentsia understands everything."

"The working class is dissatisfied with the material side of their existence. And furthermore, they work badly, for the simple reason that if they worked any better, they wouldn't get any more money for it."

Autonomous Groups
"The intelligentsia occupies itself with that pure Russian occupation of drinking and talking. They drink, they talk, they complain about the government."

The result of this mixture of virtually autonomous groups which seldom speak to one another is a stable society based on limits which everyone knows, as Elinson explains it. Only a minority, such as Solzhenitsyn or physicist Andrei Sakharov, to name two, defy the unwritten rules and publicize their discontent.

And it is pervasive, Elinson said. He described how ideological purity applies to art:

"Officially, yes, under Stalin there existed only Soviet Realism (themes which related directly to the experiences of workers). But that's not quite exact now. Today, as a rule, you have to be a Socialist Realist painter to make a living as a painter. But there is another alternative."

"A painter—say, some Moscow painter—may sell his paintings to foreigners who come. People get to know him, they come as guests, he has a reputation."

Sales to Westerners
"There exists this system: there is an organization for the sale of paintings abroad, an official organization. It's not that 'even' non-Socialist Realists can sell their paintings abroad, but especially. So these paintings are sold in the Soviet Union to Westerners."

"And there exist in the Soviet Union a certain number of collectors, individuals, who buy and they don't care if its Socialist Realism or not Socialist Realism."

"They're well-to-do people, the highest layer of the intelligentsia, or it could be some professor or engineer, or it could be a very high bureaucrat in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs."

The complexity of the Soviet Union is a favorite theme of Elinson's. Questions based on the premise of a police state, in which secret police lurk everywhere ready to pounce, seem to annoy him.

Jumbled Realism
"Some artists, very good artists, who are not Socialist Realists can sell their paintings to the government also," he said. "Perhaps (their work) is similar to Socialist Realism, but in fact it could be similar to Salvador Dali (the Spanish surrealist). Where do you draw the line?"

"Nobody can answer the question, 'what is Socialist Realism?' That's a jumble. The definition of Socialist Realism gradually changes. For example, in the southern republics—Georgia, Armenia, Azerbaijan—they have the slogan: 'Art should be natural in form and socialist in content.' In these republics, this form could be similar to Matisse (the French impressionist)."

The government's control of art is exercised through the 'Khudfond' or Art Foundation, the institution that pays artists salaries in exchange for their work. The paintings, in turn, are hung in museums, on collective farms, or in the basement of the "Khudfond."

"There is a formal organization known as the Union of Artists," Elinson said. "All the artists who are not in this union—they are 'not artists.' To join the Union of Artists, you show your work. If, let's say, Hieronymus Bosch or Matisse were to show their work, they would not be taken."

Elinson's Abstracts
"A member of the Union of Artists has many advantages and rights. To get money, he signs a contract and gets paid in advance—sort of a salary."

"It's desirable that he paint such subjects as 'Lenin Among the Workers,' or Felix Edmondovich Dzerzhvinsky (first head of the Cheka, predecessor to the KGB) Among the ... I don't know ... Workers."

"In the Union of Artists there is a secretary of the (Communist) party organization, and he is informed of who they accept. He's known as the Head of the First Department. This is the way they make sure those accepted are 'politically straight.'"

BARBI is still Hugh Hefner's girl friend, but she has embarked on an entertainment career. (AP Wirephoto)

Hef's Girl Has Her Own Thing

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Her name is Barbi, and she looks doll-like with her petite face, upturned nose and long, perfectly coiffed brown hair.

But, as Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner has discovered, she doesn't always act as programmed when you wind her up.

Barbi Benton, as the jet set knows well, is Hef's girl. But no longer his roommate.

"I moved into my own apartment five months ago," she remarks. "Why? Because Hef was dating when he was in Chicago, so why shouldn't I be able to date, too?"

"Also he was getting so he never wanted to go outside the house. He was perfectly content to stay home every night, but I like to get out and see what's going on. I must say Hef has improved since I moved into my own apartment. We go out two or three times a week now."

Her world has its drawbacks, such as when the girl wants a career.

Barbi, 24, sings Western. Not well, according to critic Hefner. "He told me I was wasting my money paying for singing lessons," said Barbi. But she persisted, and broke in her act at a San Fernando Valley night club which features top country and Western stars.

She did well enough to get a booking at the Hacienda in Las Vegas, Nev. Hefner grudgingly gave her a warm-up engagement at the Playboy Club in Century City.

Does all this support the cries of feminists that Hefner is an arch-chauvinist of the male sex?

"Oh, he's a chauvinist, all right," said Barbi. "Like in backgammon. He'll play the game with me at the house, but not when there are men around for tournaments. Then women are barred. His theory is that it doesn't prove anything to beat a woman at backgammon."

Barbi Benton, a Sacramento doctor's daughter, is no Judy Holliday out of "Born Yesterday." An A pupil in high school, she came to UCLA and studied pre-med for three years. Her zeal to follow the family profession — her grandfather, grandmother and two aunts were doctors — began to diminish when she had to dissect animals.

Besides, she was starting to moonlight as a model and bit player. One of her assignments was to provide decoration for the "Playboy after Dark" television series. Hefner chose her to be the show's hostess.

"He used to pick me up for dates in his big, black limousine," she recalled. "All 13 floors of students would empty down to see who it was. Hef got very upset." The problem was solved when she moved in as hostess of Hefner's Bel-Air manse.

Ethiopian Navy Joins Revolt For Higher Pay

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The Ethiopian navy today joined a revolt for higher pay by soldiers in northern Ethiopia and took over the African nation's Red Sea naval base at Massawa, sources at the base reported.

The rebellion began Tuesday when army troops and a few air force men seized key points in Asmara, Ethiopia's second largest city and the capital of Eritrea province. It is 60 miles south of Massawa.

No violence was reported so far, and Emperor Haile Selassie ordered the army chief of staff to Asmara today to hear the rebels' complaints.

Sources said a noncommissioned officer appeared to be in charge of a committee representing the soldiers.

Ethiopia's army totals more than 40,000 men, and about a fourth of it is stationed in the Asmara area. The navy includes about 1,700 men, plus about 190 officers and 125 marines, nearly all at Massawa.

A government spokesman said there was no question of negotiating with the rebels in northern Ethiopia. He said the army chief, Lt. Gen. Asafa Ayene, would report back to the 82-year-old emperor and then relay the ruler's decision to the men.

The rebels proclaimed loyalty to the emperor in a broadcast Tuesday night from Asmara, the capital of Eritrea province. But they made 24 economic demands, including a 50 per cent pay raise, increases in pensions and injury benefits and higher field allowances.

A government spokesman denied that the rebellion had spread to troops elsewhere in the country. But he admitted that soldiers everywhere shared the rebels' grievances because of the rapidly rising cost of living.

"There is no question of a coup or anything like that," the spokesman said. "They were naughty, but they are very loyal boys. The only problem is that this country is not rich enough to pay out millions."

Second lieutenants and sergeants were reported leading the rebellious enlisted men of the 2nd Division in Asmara. They moved out through the city's palm-lined streets before dawn Tuesday and took over key points in the city of 200,000 without a shot being fired.

Some sources said the provincial governor, Debebe Hail-emariam, and the division commander, Gen. Seyoum Gedla-Giorgis, were detained with other high-ranking officers, but other accounts denied this.

Asmara was reported tense but quiet under heavy military patrols. Traffic was near normal, but the civilian airport was closed and roads from the city were blocked.

The 800 United States Navy personnel and dependents at Kagnaw, an American communications base outside Asmara, were reported in no danger.

American Tourists Released By Egypt

By JONATHAN D. BRODER
Associated Press Writer
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A group of American Jewish fund-raisers returned to their anxious wives and friends in Tel Aviv early today after being held for 10 hours behind Egyptian lines on the Suez front.

The 26 men were on a United Jewish Appeal visit to Israeli reservists in the Sinai desert when their bus strayed across the cease-fire line near Lake Timsah Tuesday.

Egyptian troops seized the bus, blindfolded the Americans and took them for interrogation to the their army headquarters in Ismailiya, on the western side of the Suez Canal.

"We came to a U.N. barrier, and a Peruvian officer let us through," explained Neil Gingoold, 27, an attorney from Syracuse, N.Y. "In a few minutes, Egyptians started to pour over the hills."

"Our Israeli army escort didn't speak Arabic, but the Egyptian officer spoke English," Gingoold said. "He announced he was driving us to United Nations headquarters."

Muhammad Has Changed Tune

CHICAGO (AP) — Black Muslim leader Elijah Muhammad has urged his followers to thank white people for the opportunity Muslims have received to expand their multi-million-dollar movement.

In the past, the 76-year-old Muhammad has preached hatred for "white devils" and separatism from white society.

He told some 25,000 Black Muslims gathered from around the nation for the sect's annual Savior's Day on Tuesday to honor and respect white people.

"Stop putting the blame on the slave owner," he said. "You have only yourselves to blame."

ters.... They blindfolded us with handkerchiefs, but I peeked. They took us to their headquarters instead. I recognized their flag."

The group was handed over to U.N. soldiers who brought them across the Israeli lines. Israeli officers questioned them, and they were flown back to Tel Aviv.

"The goodbye from Egypt was nice," Gerber said. "They passed out cigarettes and said, 'See you when there is peace,' but I was damned glad to get back into Israeli territory."

Hayakawa Loses Fight Against Election Code

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Dr. S. I. Hayakawa's bid for court approval to seek the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate in June has been rejected by the state Supreme Court.

The former president of San Francisco State University had sought a waiver in the state election code, which requires a candidate for partisan office to be a registered member of the party for at least 12 months prior to filing a declaration of candidacy.

Hayakawa dropped Democratic party membership and became a Republican last Aug. 31. His declaration of candidacy was rejected on Jan. 8 when he attempted to file as a candidate for the GOP nomination to the Senate seat now held by Democrat Alan Cranston.

His bid for a waiver was denied without comment in a 4-3 decision issued by the Supreme Court on Tuesday.

The University of Missouri is the first state university to train teachers professionally as part of a collegiate program.

Planned Crashing White House

By DON WATERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — More than a month before he fell dead in a bloody skyjacking attempt, Samuel Joseph Byck had made up his mind to crash an airliner into the White House, columnist Jack Anderson says.

Anderson disclosed Tuesday

Defense Will Be Expensive

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger says the U.S. defense budget will have to climb to $100 billion in three years just to stay even with this year's record $85.8 billion.

Schlesinger told the House defense appropriations subcommittee Tuesday the budget will have to increase $5 billion to $6 billion a year to stay still because of rising prices.

He contended U.S. defense programs can be shrunk no further if this country is to continue to bolster the western nuclear and non-nuclear deterrence to Soviet forces.

Schlesinger said the U.S. goal in the current round of U.S.-Soviet arms limitation talks is a nuclear balance — and hopefully reduction — to deter either side from risking a nuclear strike on the other.

"We are prepared to balance up," he said. "We hope they will balance down."

Schlesinger also agreed the Nixon administration may have increased this year's $85.8 billion defense budget up to $1.5 billion to stimulate the economy and reduce unemployment.

night that Byck, a one-time tire salesman from Philadelphia, mailed him an hour-long recording of his grievances and intentions shortly before the abortive hijacking at Baltimore-Washington International Airport last Friday.

Authorities said Byck, 44, fatally shot a security guard and the co-pilot of a Delta Airlines plane, then killed himself after being wounded twice by a policeman.

He also wounded the plane's pilot, Reese Loftin, who remains in critical condition at University Hospital in Baltimore.

Anderson said Byck, in a section of the tape dated Jan. 14, outlined his hijacking plan and called it "Operation Pandora Box."

"He said he wanted to combine two dramatic deeds — a kamikaze attack and a hijacking — to dramatize the outrage of one man over the Watergate mess," the columnist said in an interview.

Anderson said Byck described his intentions with these words:

"I will try to get the plane aloft and fly it towards the target area, which will be Washington, D.C., the capital of the most powerful, wealthiest nation of the world."

"By guise, threats or trickery, I hope to force the pilot to buzz the White House — I mean, sort of dive towards the White House. When the plane is in this position, I will shoot the pilot and then in the last few minutes try to steer the plane into the target, which is the White House."

President Nixon was at the White House last Friday, Anderson noted.

The columnist said the tape arrived at his home in suburban Bethesda, Md., Monday and he verified that the voice was that of Byck by playing portions to the man's wife and acquaintances.

Anderson said Byck told of his plans and history of mental problems in "a mild voice, a matter-of-fact way" and "even spelled his name."

Although the landing of a stolen Army helicopter on the White House lawn Feb. 17 created much publicity, Byck evidently had planned his own attack on the executive mansion long before that, Anderson said.

The tape was recorded in several segments over a month's time and the attack plan was in the first segment, according to Anderson.

Byck also expressed his distaste of the government in identical letters mailed Friday to three newspapers — The Philadelphia Daily News, The Philadelphia Inquirer and the Detroit Free Press.

U.S. Develops Robot Aircraft

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Spurred by Israel's heavy plane losses last fall, the U.S. Air Force is speeding development of robot aircraft to attack heavy anti-aircraft defenses without risking pilot lives.

Officials expect to have the first such pilotless strike aircraft within the next two or three years by pulling together components already being manufactured, including a 3,000-pound drone now used for photo reconnaissance.

Otherwise, it might take as long as seven or eight years if Air Force industry specialists designed an entirely new system from the drawing board up.

American air officers were jolted when the Israeli Air Force lost about 100 planes to masses of Soviet-built anti-aircraft missiles and guns fired by Syrians and Egyptians in the brief October war.

Although the Israelis finally neutralized the Arab batteries, questions remained concerning the possible high cost in U.S. pilots and planes if they ever had to penetrate thick Soviet air defenses.

As a result, Air Force chiefs have given a push to the program for developing remotely piloted vehicles (RPVs) for the air strikes. An RPV is a pilotless plane controlled from afar by technicians in specially equipped transport aircraft.

The Air Force is asking Congress for $15 million to develop what is described as a "multi-mission RPV" that could drop bombs or launch missiles at ground targets, jam enemy radar, and conduct reconnaissance.

The plan is to build 50 such robot systems at first. Officials say there has been no decision on how many such RPVs may eventually be built.

The robots would be launched either from an aircraft or from the ground.

Experts said they would go in at low level, under enemy radar, attack their targets, and then fly back out to be recovered.

BART Operates At A Constant Deficit

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Officials of the nation's most modern rapid transit system say they may have to close the line unless more tax money is provided to cover operating losses.

Two top officials of the San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit District (BART) told a state Senate committee Tuesday that they believe the 75-mile commuter train system will never pay its way at the fare box.

And unless the state gives them fresh financial aid, the entire $1.6 billion BART system may simply close this fall after less than two years of partial service, they added.

"I'm here to tell you BART needs help, and without help we're going to have to shut down the system," President Nello Bianco of the BART board of directors told the state Senate Public Utilities and Corporations Committee.

Bianco and BART General Manager B. R. Stokes told the panel the system's operating deficit will be at least $13 million next year and will grow to $28 million a year by 1977.

They said BART faces a future of perpetual deficits in operating budgets and needs a permanent source of tax support.

"The only solution we can see is an extension of the half-cent BART sales tax, for at least a short time," Stokes said.

BART is subsidized by a half-cent special sales tax in San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa counties. The tax is due to expire late next year.

Reagan Would Refuse To Free Killer Suspects

By MIKE SILVERMAN
Associated Press Writer
HILLSBOROUGH, Calif.
(AP) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan says he would refuse to release two prisoners whose freedom may be the ultimate ransom demand by Patricia Hearst's kidnapers.

"It would be the wrong thing to do," Reagan told newsmen Tuesday in Sacramento. "If you start doing anything of that kind, it would be like opening prison doors. It would make kidnapping a very common occurrence."

Reagan said there would be no legal way he could comply with any demand to free Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24. Under executive clemency, he can grant pardon to convicted criminals, but he has no authority under state law to free persons awaiting trial.

Remiro and Little are being held at San Quentin Prison on charges of murdering Oakland School Supt. Marcus Foster last November. Both men have pleaded innocent.

The Symbionese Liberation Army, a terrorist group that says it is holding Miss Hearst, claims responsibility for Foster's murder. The SLA also has referred to Little and Remiro as members.

Miss Hearst, 20, was abducted Feb. 4. Her father, Randolph A. Hearst, is editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp.

People in Need, the $2 million food distribution program that Hearst set up at the kidnapers' demand for free food for California needy as a precondition for negotiations for Miss Hearst's release, geared up to dole out more bags of groceries Thursday.

Violence and confusion that marked the opening of the food giveaway last Friday caused director A. Ludlow Kramer to cancel plans to resume distribution Tuesday.

Reagan criticized the thousands of persons who accepted the free food as "aiding and abetting lawlessness."

"I regret that the people are willing to take that food," he said. "I think it would be great if everyone would refuse."

In its last message Thursday, the SLA denounced Hearst for offering only $2 million and said if he didn't add another $4 million in 24 hours it would cut off all communication with the family.

Hearst said he couldn't afford the extra money, but the Hearst Corp. said it would provide the $4 million if Miss Hearst first were released unharmed.

The SLA also said if Hearst didn't meet the new demand, Miss Hearst would be held indefinitely as a prisoner of war for what it said were crimes her parents had committed in service of the corporate establishment.

Mishap Kills Four Sailors

PORTSMOUTH, Va. (AP) — The Navy has disclosed the deaths of four men in an accident aboard the aircraft carrier Independence, now at Norfolk Naval Shipyard for maintenance.

The Navy said Tuesday that the victims died late Monday when they drowned or were overcome by fumes in an aviation fuel tank on the carrier.

A spokesman said Tuesday one of the men fell after entering the 100,000-gallon tank to check the accuracy of tank gauges and the other three went to his rescue. All four died.

The victims were identified as Aviation Boatswain Mate James A. Rawlings, 26, and Airman Apprentice Kenneth R. Dudley, 19, both of Norfolk; Airman Richard E. Lawrence, 20, of Danville, Ill.; and Airman Appren. Wayne H. Short-sleeve, 19, of Mexico, N.Y.,

Nixon Plans Appearances

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon in coming months plans several public appearances outside Washington, including a question-and-answer session with broadcast executives.

It is understood that the hour-long session March 19 in Houston, Tex., at the convention of the National Association of Broadcasters will be carried live by major television and radio networks.

The session would be similar to one the President held Nov. 17 in Orlando, Fla., at the convention of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

There are reports that Nixon also plans an appearance in Chicago early next month, but the White House would not confirm this.

The day before Nixon flew south earlier this month for public speeches in Miami and Huntsville, Ala., his wife told reporters — without elaborating — that several trips were in the offing.

Few Complaints Says VA Chief

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Veterans Administration says the agency has pending just over 1,000 complaints from Vietnam-era veterans in school about late receipt of benefit checks. More than 1.4 million veterans are enrolled under the GI Bill.

Administrator Donald E. Johnson disclosed the figures Tuesday in responding to strident criticism voiced by a reporter at President Nixon's Monday night news conference.

CAP Hunting For Airplane

GREENSBORO (AP) — The Civil Air Patrol started a search Tuesday night for a plane that might be down.

It did so after pilots of private and commercial planes in the Greensboro area said they had heard an emergency locator signal of the type sent out by a downed plane.

No More Long-Driving Holidays

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Long-driving vacations are "a thing of the past," according to Roy Burson, director of the Tourist Division of Georgia.

Burson says tourism is down about 15 per cent, a significant figure in an industry generating about $1 billion in revenues annually and employing more than 123,000 workers.

Georgia and most other Southeastern states have revised their tourism programs, he said. They now attempt to appeal "to those individuals within a one-day drive to Georgia."

"We will also be developing a series of one-day or one-tank driving tours using the major metropolitan areas in the state as beginning and ending points," he added.

Burson commented to a session of the second annual Travel South U.S.A. Conference, sponsored by the Southern Travel Directors Council.

States in the council are Mississippi, Alabama, Florida, South Carolina, North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Virginia and Louisiana.

Burson said Georgia's welcome centers, located on the state's borders, registered a drop of 34 per cent in December, 1973, and a 14 per cent decline last month.

But bookings for major tourist attractions in Georgia have shown increases, he noted.

"Jekyll Island had already booked more room nights by the end of January than they booked the entire year last year," the director said.

"Savannah has already

Silver Beaver Award Received By Perry Garvin

Perry Garvin, Scoutmaster of Boy Scout Troop 398 sponsored by Red Oak Christian Church, was honored on Sunday with the Silver Beaver Award by the National Council of Boy Scouts of America.

The award, the highest honor awarded by BSA for service in scouting, was presented in recognition of Garvin's service in the Chehaw Council of Boy Scouts in Albany, Ga. He served with the council prior to moving here in August.

Garvin, a native of Greenville, S.C., is an electrical superintendent with Davis Electrical Constructors Inc.

The Garvin's son, Edward, is an Eagle Scout and is currently a Junior Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 398.

booked more bus-group tours by the end of January than they had the entire year last year."

William D. Toohey, president of the Discover America Travel Organizations, Inc., (DATO), told the conference there is no proof "that the Sunday ban in fact saves gasoline. And the no Sunday sales are extremely detrimental to the travel industry."

Toohey said the travel industry generates $61 billion and makes employment for four million people in the national level.

But states renewed for their attractiveness as winter resorts such as Florida, Arizona, and California have suffered declines of up to 40 per cent of their normal level of tourism, he said.

"And this increasingly disastrous effect is, I believe, a forerunner of what will come this summer (to other resort areas) if something is not done about the uncertainty" of the energy shortage.

Toohey contended that "there is enormous confusion in the United States surrounding this matter of energy, and it is increasingly clear that those who deal with the problem have no clear idea of that problem."

If the energy shortage continues and worsens, and if recreational automobile travel ceases, he said, "The tourism industry as we know it today will collapse."

Maintain Court Can't Force Nixon Testify

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawyers for President Nixon have defended his refusal to appear as a witness at a California state trial on the grounds that no court, state or federal, can order a President to testify in person.

If a President was forced to appear in court, his lawyers argued in a brief filed Tuesday in D.C. Superior Court "his inability to perform the duties as the chief executive would threaten the security of the entire nation."

The argument filed by James D. St. Clair, the President's chief Watergate lawyer, was directed as much to appearances in a federal as a state court.

Nixon disclosed Monday night that he had rejected a request from a Watergate grand jury to testify.

St. Clair's brief was issued in response to a California Superior Court judge's order directing Nixon to appear as "a material and necessary witness" at the trial of former White House aide John D. Ehrlichman.

The subpoena, issued by Judge Gordon Ringer in Los Angeles, was forwarded to the District of Columbia court for a decision on whether Nixon must comply.

"In the 187 years since our Constitution was adopted no court, federal or state, has held that the President of the United States can be compelled to testify in person in compliance with a summons," St. Clair wrote.

Attorneys for Ehrlichman have until March 8 to file their argument supporting their request for the President's appearance.

Ehrlichman is charged with conspiracy, burglary and perjury in connection with the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

In related developments, The Associated Press learned Tuesday that the special Watergate prosecutor's office has decided that any action on alleged presidential involvement in the Watergate scandal should be up to the House impeachment inquiry rather than a grand jury.

The House Judiciary committee disclosed that John Doar, chief counsel for the impeachment inquiry, has sent a letter to St. Clair requesting White House tapes and documents.

Details of the request were not disclosed but the letter was based on a summary given the committee by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski of material he has received from the White House.

House OKs Bank, Loan Changes

RALEIGH (AP)—The North Carolina House has approved two bills changing state regulations for banks and small loan companies, but whether the financial institutions would be helped or hurt by the measures is a matter of contention.

In votes Tuesday, the House approved by a 91-12 vote a bill which would change the tax system for banks and by a 74-12 vote a bill to increase loan limits and interest rates for small loan companies.

Final House approval of the banking bill was held over until today. The bill would remove some of the special excise taxes on bank assets and impose other corporate taxes from which they are now exempt.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, said the bill would actually result in banks paying a total of $26,000 more in taxes each year. More of the money would go to local governments, however.

But Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, said the banks would actually pay $9 million more than the bill envisions if they paid the same taxes as other corporations.

High said he would prepare amendments to make the banks pay that extra $9 million and objected to third reading of the bill, causing it to be held over.

The second bill, introduced by Rep. H.M. Michaux, D-Durham, would raise from $900 to $1,500 the maximum loan for a small loan company.

It would raise the interest rates the companies could charge to 3 per cent per month on the unpaid balance of a loan less than $300 and 1½ per cent per month on loans of more than $300.

Michaux said the bill protected borrowers because it prohibited loan companies from deducting the interest from the principal in advance, from charging extra delinquent fees, and from penalizing a borrower who paid back his loan ahead of time.

The House killed an amendment offered by Rep. John Stevens, D-Buncombe, that would have lowered the interest rate on the loans less than $300 from 3 to 2 per cent.

In committee action Tuesday, the House Judiciary I Committee killed a state version of the Equal Rights Amendment for women.

The bill would have given the state's voters a chance to decide whether to amend the state constitution to prohibit discrimination by sex.

But it was opposed by women's rights groups. They contended that its passage would hamper their chances of persuading the 1975 legislature to approve the federal Equal Rights Amendment.

They said that if the voters turned down the state amendment, it would convince the legislature that sexual equality was unpopular. If the voters passed it, legislators would be able to say they had done their duty to women and vote against the federal measure.

The sponsor of the state amendment was Sen. Michael Mullins, R-Mecklenburg, who played a key role in the defeat of the federal ERA in the Senate last year.

Oil From Shale Will Be A Long Time In Coming

By TOM SIEBERT
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — The figures show billions of barrels of oil locked in the rocks of three western states. But don't count on seeing much of the precious stuff anytime soon.

Enormous engineering problems are involved in squeezing the oil from the shale, and much of the oil may be too expensive to produce.

The government reports 16 million acres of deposits in Colorado, Utah and Wyoming, with a possible yield of more than a thousand billion barrels of oil.

Two-thirds of the vast tracts are considered of eventual commercial value, with yields of 25 gallons or more of oil per ton of shale. That could mean 600 billion barrels, the Interior Department says.

Proven world oil reserves — recoverable oil in liquid form known to exist in the ground — are currently estimated at 600 billion barrels, with about two-thirds of it in the Middle East.

The huge volumes of material that have to be handled mean that extracting shale oil has to be done cheaply, says a scientist who has made oil shale his life's study. The high expenses mean that eventual production will be measured in millions rather than billions.

"Even the most rosy predictions don't portray shale as a complete solution to the nation's energy troubles," said Dr. Charles H. Prien, head of the chemical division at the Denver Research Institute.

Over the past decade the institute, affiliated with Denver University, has spent close to $2.5 million investigating both the basic technology needed to extract the oil from the compound kerogen imbedded in the rock and the environmental problems associated with the whole process.

Prien sees the development of the industry this way:

First, prototype mines and processors that may produce a dribble of 40,000 or 50,000 barrels of oil a day about 1980. Next, an output of one million barrels a day in another few years. Finally, a tapering off of production by the end of the century.

The United States consumes more than 17 million barrels of oil a day right now. Demand has doubled in about two decades. That fact leads environmentalists to charge that shale development will permanently scar the West for the sake of "a drop in the bucket of oil."

"Shale may only give us five per cent of the U.S. oil in its heyday, but anywhere you get one million barrels is important," Prien said.

In addition to gasoline, diesel oil and jet fuels, byproducts would include coke, asphalt, ammonia, sulphur and paraffin wax.

There are two basic ways in which the shale deposits can be tapped. Each requires the rock to be crushed to small bits and heated to between 800 and 1,000 degrees Fahrenheit to release the oil in the form of vapor.

One method, called in situ, is to crush the shale and cook the oil out of it where it lies underground. The second is to mine it either in strips or via tunnels and bring the rock to the surface to be crushed and cooked in giant processors called retorts.

For the in situ method, the fracturing of the rock underground can be done with water pressure, with high-voltage electrical currents that form powerful arcs through the rock or with nuclear or chemical explosives.

Except for chemical explosives, in situ fracturing appears too expensive or too experimental to succeed, Prien said.

Once crushed, the shale would be cooked by an infusion of hot gases or superheated steam, and the oil driven out of the ground through collection wells.

Lucille Ball Kills Series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lucille Ball, television's queen of comedy for 23 years, is giving up her weekly series after this season.

The 62-year-old, red-haired star of "Here's Lucy" announced Tuesday she will be back next season only in specials.

Miss Ball was in New York to promote her new musical movie, "Mame," which opens at the Radio City Music Hall March 7.

Miss Ball has been on CBS continuously since 1951, when she and her husband at the time, Desi Arnaz, made television history with "I Love Lucy." That show almost singlehandedly established the situation comedy as a television form.

By 1958, when they went into a series of monthly specials, Miss Ball and Arnaz had built a television empire, Desi-Lu Productions. They owned RKO Studios and produced a number of other series. They were divorced in 1960, and she subsequently sold her interest in the studio.

"The Lucy Show" premiered in 1962, and Miss Ball carried on without Arnaz. She changed to "Here's Lucy" in 1968.

She and comedian Gary Morton were married in 1961.

That Extra Gasoline Supply Was Already In State

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

That extra gasoline that North Carolinians hope will find its way into their tanks this week has been in the state all along, oil industry spokesmen confirmed Tuesday. But it took an okay from the Federal Energy Office to allow it to be sold.

The oil companies said their trucks were making deliveries as fast as possible of supplies stored at large terminals in the state.

The fresh deliveries became possible last Friday when the FEO granted North Carolina an extra emergency allocation of 13.78 million gallons for the month of February.

An Exxon official said storage tanks normally have a reserve of eight to ten days supply, "depending on what's coming up the pipeline." But he said companies are not permitted to distribute gasoline above the designated federal allocation, even if they have the fuel on hand.

John Reidy of the Exxon office in Charlotte said that all of the extra gasoline being delivered to Exxon's stations in North Carolina was coming from supplies held in the state. He said if the supplies had had to be brought from elsewhere, it would have taken much longer for any gasoline to reach the stations.

Avery Upchurch, president of the North Carolina Service Station Association, agreed that for immediate deliveries to be made the gasoline would have had to be on hand.

"It takes quite a few days for gasoline to move in the pipeline," Upchurch said, "or for those tankers to sail around Florida."

Reidy said gasoline moved continuously through the pipeline into North Carolina terminals and reserves were available. He explained, however, that the gasoline could not be used to replenish dwindling supplies until the FEO agreed to increase the allocation of gasoline that could be sold.

Reidy and other oil company representatives said the sheer number of deliveries to be made in the state accounted for the continued delay of any real relief at the pumps.

"We only have so many carriers and we're trying to get some more outside carriers," Reidy said. He said Exxon's own trucks were all operating 20 hours a day. "But when you count the number of outlets across the state—it takes time."

The oil companies said their dealers were receiving their extra allocations through "normal distributing channels." In some cases delivery dates were moved up and in others scheduled deliveries were increased in size.

The state energy office directed oil companies to deliver gasoline to their retailers on an equal basis, depending on their usual supply. Under the latest increase dealers were to receive from their suppliers 7.8 per cent of their original February allotment.

Dealers who received their extra gasoline Tuesday were often disappointed that it had little effect on the long lines. They found the extra gasoline didn't go very far.

"I got 3,100 gallons and sold it in an hour and a half," said

Bill Sapp, manager of a Peoples self-service station in Charlotte. "The lines were as long as ever," he said.

Upchurch said he figured the latest allocation increase amounted to about 12-13 gallons per vehicle in North Carolina. "That might be enough to help the housewife through the week," he said.

Scout Earns Eagle Award

GRAY KEEL

Gray Keel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam G. Keel of Bethel, received the Eagle Scout Award recently during ceremonies at Bethel United Methodist Church.

Keel, who joined the Scouts in 1969, earned 21 merit badges to meet the requirements for earning the Eagle Award. For his service project, he constructed lodges for wildlife in the woods.

The Eagle Scout, a tenth grade student at North Pitt High School, is a member of the Natsih Chapter of the Croatan Lodge of the Order of the Arrow.

Keel is a member of Scout Troop 15, headed by Scoutmaster Cary Hammond.

Eyes Limit On Spanking

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Rep. Margaret Keese, R-Guilford, says she plans to draft a resolution calling on the state Board of Education to set some regulations limiting the use of corporal punishment in North Carolina schools.

Rep. Keese, a school teacher, lost round one Tuesday in her battle to outlaw spanking in the schools.

A subcommittee of the House Education Committee voted 3-2 to kill a weakened version of her bill that originally would have prohibited corporal punishment except in extreme cases.

Rep. Keese had prepared a milder substitute which would have required record keeping of punishment and allowed only teachers and principals to administer spankings.

The watered down version also would have put in a statement that spanking be used only as a last resort.

The same subcommittee rejected a slightly stronger version of the bill last week. That version would have forbidden spanking of children whose parents objected to corporal punishment.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets were unchanged Tuesday. Supplies adequate, demand fair. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 71.73, medium whites 63.72, small whites 54.43.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — Corn and soybean prices were weaker on the state's leading grain markets Tuesday. No. 2 yellow shelled corn was quoted at 3.00-3.29, mostly 3.20-3.29 per bushel. No. 1 yellow soybeans were mostly 6.31-6.37½ per bushel.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — North Carolina hogs today were steady to $2.00 lower, mostly 50 cents to $1.00 lower. Tops of 38.75-39.75 Kinston, Benson and Lumberton; 38.00-38.50 Rocky Mount, Tarboro and Bethel; 36.50-38.50 Wilson and High Falls; 39.25 Clinton, Fayetteville, Dunn, Elizabethtown, Pink Hill, Pine Level, Chadbourn, Ayden and Laurinburg; 39.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market tone firm today with supplies barely adequate and demand generally good. Weights desirable. Estimated slaughter today 1,184,000. Average live weight Feb. 25th 4.06 lbs.

North Carolina hens: Market steady today on heavy type. Offerings about adequate and demand good. Heavies, at farm, 16 cents lb.; f.o.b. plants 19 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market took another upward jump today, extending the rally it began more than a week ago.

The 10:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 5.67 at 865.38, and advancing issues more than doubled the number of declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the steady advance owed much of its force to optimism among some investors about the nation's energy outlook and to the bullish influence of declining interest rates. Since Feb. 11 the Dow has risen more than 60 points. "I don't believe this rally can extend indefinitely without some more hard news," particularly concerning the availability and price of energy supplies, cautioned Manown Kisor at Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis.

Chelsea Industries was the early Big Board volume leader, down 1/8 at 73 1/4.

Airline stocks, which generally have shown gains during the recent upsurge, rose again today. Western Airlines was up 1/4 at 12 1/2 in active trading, American Airlines rose 1/4 to 12 1/2, and UAL was up 1/2 at 28 1/2.

Farah Manufacturing, up 3/8 at 12, continued its climb from its close of 8 last Friday. The company and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers announced over the weekend they had settled a protracted labor dispute.

Among glamour stocks showing gains were Xerox, up 2 1/2 at 118; Avon products, ahead 1/4 at 49 1/2; and Syntex, up 1 at 54 1/2 on the American Stock Exchange.

The most-active issue on the Amex was Marindque Mining Class B, up 1/4 at 5 1/4.

ECU Reaction. (Continued on page 1) Appropriations Committee, this morning said simply "what ever action the General Assembly takes on this legislation, I will do my best to carry out."

Rep. Jay P. Huskins, D-Iredell, said this morning that "I feel pretty good, naturally..." about the committee action.

"The bill that the committee finally adopted has all of the principal provisions that were in my bill and it was written into the budget bill, which is a decided advantage."

(Huskins introduced a bill setting a time schedule for ECU expansion. The Scott-Stewart bill approved by the Appropriations Committee omitted the time factor.)

According to Huskins, "I agreed with..." the bill. "I thought it prudent to go that way. We were able to amend it and put into it everything that was in my bill except the time table and they (the Board of Governors) are required to produce a time table in the next budget bill (to be presented to the 1975 General Assembly)."

Huskins noted, "We had more votes than I realized we had."

Pitt Representative Sam Bundy said "those of us who were in support..." of the expansion legislation "were well pleased with the favorable response we got. It's encouraging to note that it had state-wide support...not just from Eastern North Carolina..."

Bundy said "one of our most staunch supporters was from Asheville."

"It all goes to show that it's a state-wide bill," Bundy explained.

He termed the ECU bill's approval "simply a response to the wishes and the needs of the people of this state...the people felt there was a definite need."

Pitt Sen. Vernon White said he was "highly elated" this morning over the committee's recommendations.

"I think that the development

Reconciliation In The Palace

MONTE CARLO (AP) — Prince Rainier and Princess Grace have sealed their reconciliation with Jacqueline and Aristotle Onassis with lunch in the prince's palace.

Court informants said Christina Onassis, the Greek shipowner's daughter, also attended the lunch on Tuesday. Onassis and his wife arrived in Monte Carlo Sunday.

Prince Rainier and Onassis had been at odds since the early 1960s when Onassis refused to participate in a development plan for the principality. At the time, he held the controlling interest in the Societe des Bains de Mer, which owns the Monte Carlo Casino and several hotels.

Onassis sold his share in 1967, but the feud continued. In the past several months, however, Onassis met twice with Rainier and much of the bitterness of their earlier differences dissipated.

Of such a school will go a long way in alleviating the doctor shortage in our area as well as in all rural areas of North Carolina. It's something we have worked for for many years. It now seems it may become a reality."

White expressed his appreciation "to all the people who have given their total support to this effort..."

Speaking of the possibility of a floor fight when the full appropriations bill reaches the floor of the House and Senate, White said "I think there will be an effort made...to open up the budget bill in order to bring the ECU medical school question before the floors of the Senate and House."

But, he emphasized, "I'm hoping that the opponents will be unsuccessful in their efforts," pointing to the margin by which the bill was approved by the Joint Appropriations body.

"I would like to give credit for that support," White noted, "to the people of North Carolina...for urging their elected representatives to support the establishment of another medical school."

"My feeling," he continued, "is that the people supported it because they feel the need for another medical school...the development of another four year medical school in North Carolina...and the fact that the Board of Governors did not recognize this need."

Dr. Edwin Monroe, vice-chancellor for health affairs at East Carolina said, "We deeply appreciate the confidence shown by the Joint Appropriations Committee in the faculty, and staff of East Carolina, and their obvious attention to the voices of the people all across the state who are crying for help."

According to Monroe, "The favorable report given to the legislative bill to expand the East Carolina School of Medicine represents a giant step forward in the development of a full-fledged medical school whose mission will be to work in partnership with the communities in Eastern North Carolina and elsewhere in the state to educate and train doctors to practice in North Carolina."

Plenty Of Foreign Gas

GASTONIA, N.C. (AP)—Other filling stations here have closed because of lack of gasoline, but the Dixie Vim station is open 24 hours a day pumping all the gas a motorist wants.

It costs 55.9 cents a gallon for regular.

John Frickee, vice president of its parent firm, Charter Oil Co. of Jacksonville, Fla., says Charter bought high priced foreign gasoline on the calculated risk that Congress might roll back the price of domestic gasoline, leaving Charter with prices above anyone else's.

Oil companies are allowed to pass on the higher cost of buying petroleum overseas, but American oil prices are under strict controls.

"We knew we were going to have the highest priced gas in the Southeast anyway," said Charter's chief purchasing officer, J.L. Thurmond. "But we were gambling on the other companies having to restrict their stations' allocations and not being able to sell customers but a few dollars' worth at a time."

Frickee said Charter bought 900,000 barrels of Iranian crude oil at $16 a barrel, or $6 a barrel more than the most expensive American oil. A barrel has 35 gallons.

He also said Charter managed to find 45 million gallons of finished gasoline in Europe for 45 to 50 cents a gallon.

CAL Trustees Commend Vote On Medical Care

RALEIGH—Trustees of the Christian Action League of North Carolina yesterday approved, with only one dissenting vote, a motion "commending the Joint Appropriations Committee for its action on medical care in N.C."

The resolution further urged the "legislature to approve this or a similar plan to educate more family doctors for N.C."

The action came at the end of an hour-long discussion during which spokesmen for the Board of Governors and East Carolina University Medical School were heard.

Speaking and answering questions for the Board of Governors were John Kennedy, Secretary of the Board of Governors; Dr. Glenn Wilson, assistant dean of the UNC Medical School; and Mrs. George Wilson of Fayetteville, a member of the Board of Governors.

Appearing in behalf of East Carolina was Dr. Edwin Monroe of the ECU Medical School and the Rev. Tommy J. Payne of Greenville, a trustee of the Christian Action League. The resolution also commended spokesmen from both groups. They were applauded at the end of the meeting.

In other action, CAL Trustees went on record as supporting more firmly Senate Bill 89, which makes registering .10 or above on the Breathalyzer a statutory offense for driving under the influence. Supporting positions were taken by the trustees on a movement to ban the advertising of alcoholic beverages originating in N.C. and also banning the Sunday sales of beer and wine. The group also voted to support House Bill 1422, an anti-obscenity bill introduced by Rep. Glenn Jernigan, D-Cumberland that would bring N. C. Law in line with Supreme Court decisions.

Commenting on the meeting, CAL President Coy C. Privette of Kannapolis said, "This was a wholesome and healthy meeting from beginning to end. It shows the breadth of concern that the Christian Action League has. With regard to the issue of better medical care, both sides were heard and those of us present deeply appreciated the spirit of the discussions."

He said CAL members would be meeting in Raleigh March 12 for a tour of Central Prison, the first of five visits to correctional institutions in N.C. This is to guide the League toward involvement in prison reform, he indicated.

Pirates Open Quest For Southern Title

White First All-SC Choice

By MARSHALL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Richmond's exciting Aron Stewart and Furman's awesome duo of Clyde Mayes and Fessor Leonard were named today for the second year in a row to the All-Southern Conference basketball team.

Joining Stewart, Mayes and Leonard on the team, selected by members of the Southern Conference Sports Writers Association and the eight league coaches, are Nicky White of East Carolina and Greg Dunn of Davidson.

Four underclassmen were named last year, but Davidson's John Falconi was hurt much of this season and did not win repeat honors. There are three juniors on this year's honor squad—Mayes, Leonard and Dunn.

Leonard barely held his spot, winning out by one vote over Stan Davis of Appalachian State and by three over Mike Sorrentino of Davidson.

The voting was led by Stewart and Mayes, each of whom received the maximum 130 points from 57 association members and eight coaches. White had 102 votes, Dunn 78 and Leonard 72. Davis barely missed with 71 and Sorrentino with 69.

Despite missing the first three games because he was on probation for playing in a post-season tournament last spring, the 6-5 Stewart led the league in scoring for the second year in a row with 582 points in 22 games for a 26.5-point average.

Stewart, the player of the year in the conference last season, also averaged 11.9

rebounds per game and finished second in that category. Last season, he was both the scoring and rebounding leader.

Succeeding Stewart as the top rebounder was the 6-9 Mayes, who averaged 13.2 retrieves per game. Mayes also was fourth in scoring with 438 points in 25 games for a 17.5 average.

White was the league's No. 3 rebounder with 9.4 per game and averaged 13.5 points per game, scoring 311 points in 23 encounters.

With Falconi out of action much of the time, Dunn was Davidson's scoring leader with 381 points in 25 games and a 15.2 average that ranked ninth in the conference.

Even though he sat out two games for disciplinary reasons and lost his starting spot, Leonard finished with 367 points in 23 games for a 16.8 average, sixth best in the league, and ranked fourth in rebounding with an 8.3 average.

Davis and Sorrentino head a second team that also includes freshman Rodney McKeever of The Citadel, sophomore Mike Arizin of William and Mary and junior Bob McCurdy of Richmond. Davis and Sorrentino are seniors.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The 1974 All-Southern Conference basketball team: Aaron Stewart, Richmond, 6-5, 200, Senior, Jersey City, N.J.; Clyde Mayes, Furman, 6-9, 225, Junior, Greenville, S.C.; Nicky White, East Carolina, 6-8, 210, Senior, Winston, N.C.; Greg Dunn, Davidson, 6-5, 200, Junior, Youngstown, Ohio; Fessor Leonard, Furman, 7-1, 235, Junior, Columbus, Ga.

SECOND TEAM
Stan Davis, Appalachian State; Mike Sorrentino, Davidson; Rodney McKeever, The Citadel; Mike Arizin, William & Mary; Bob McCurdy, Richmond.

HONORABLE MENTION
John Falconi and Larry Horowitz, Davidson; Eric Gray, Richmond; Bruce Grian, Furman; Reggie Lee, East Carolina; John Krovic, VMI.

ALL-CONFERENCE—East Carolina University's Nicky White was named today to the All-Southern Conference basketball team, the first Pirate in three years to be named to the first unit. White led the team in scoring and rebounding during the year, and was the third leading vote getter in the balloting, behind unanimous choices Clyde Mayes and Aron Stewart.

SC Tourney Begins Tonight

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The Southern Conference's basketball championship tournament gets under way tonight with the two highest-seeded teams in action—and Davidson's Wildcats aren't among them for the first time since 1962.

Davidson lost its first three league starts this season before coming back to win its last seven, but the Wildcats wound up third behind Furman's defending champion Paladins at 11-1 and Richmond's fast-finishing Spiders at 10-4.

With a change in format from previous years when the opening round consisted of afternoon and night doubleheaders the same day, the conference has split this year's first round into a pair of night twin bills.

Furman, 11-1 in the conference and 18-7 over-all, goes against Appalachian State's Mountaineers, 1-11 and 5-19, at 7 p.m. and Richmond, 10-4 and 14-11, takes on Virginia Military's Keydets, 3-9 and 6-17, two hours later.

Thursday's 7 p.m. opener has third-seeded Davidson, 7-3 and 17-8, meeting The Citadel's Bulldogs, 4-9 and 10-13, and East Carolina's fourth-ranked Pirates, 8-6 and 13-11, taking on William and Mary's Indians, 5-6 and 8-17, in the 9 p.m. encounter.

Which teams will play in which game Friday have not been determined, but the semifinal encounters are set for 7 and 9 p.m.

The two survivors meet at 8 p.m. Saturday for the conference title and the league's berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs.

Davidson's last dozen games included games with nationally ranked N.C. State, Notre Dame and South Carolina, and Coach Terry Holland says, "I like to think a schedule that ends like ours would get us ready for the tournament."

Both Furman and Richmond won two regular season games from tonight's opponents. Furman trounced Appalachian 111-71 and 89-72, while Richmond whipped VMI by 81-65 and 84-78.

Davidson played The Citadel just once and won by 73-69. East Carolina was a two-time winner over William and Mary, 73-70 and 93-63.

What happened during the regular season, however, means nothing once things get under way tonight.

All the marbles go into the circle tonight at the Richmond Coliseum as the annual Southern Conference Basketball Tournament gets underway.

And for the first time in years, there appears to be no clear favorite for the title and the NCAA berth that goes with it.

Furman, last year's defending champion, seems to be the heir-apparent, but winning the regular season championship this year, was not an easy task. The Paladins lost their second meeting with Davidson, the pre-season favorite, on their own home court, and that threw some shadow on Furman's ultimate first place seeding.

Richmond took second place in the standings behind the scoring power of their front line. Davidson, which finished third could be the team to watch, while East Carolina's Pirates, the fourth place finisher also could pull off the upsets needed to win their second crown in three years.

Tonight, Furman will be meeting last place Appalachian State, a team that has played tough tournament games the past two seasons. The Paladins cannot afford to take them for granted. In the other game, Richmond will face Virginia Military Institute, another team fully capable of pulling off an upset.

Davidson's Wildcats will square off against The Citadel in the first Thursday night game, and the 'Cats will remember that the Bulldogs nearly topped them in their last meeting. And winding up the first round action, the two middle teams, East Carolina and William & Mary meet in the game usually billed as the biggest tossup of the tournament.

Friday, semi-final action pits the ECU-W&M winner against the Furman-ASU survivor. The other semi-final will send the Richmond-VMI winner against the winner of the Davidson-Citadel game. The finals will be Saturday night.

East Carolina's opponent, William & Mary, lost twice to the Pirates during the regular season, by three in Williamsburg, and by 30 in Greenville, but Coach Tom Quinn notes that the Bucs can't take them for granted.

Since the Pirates played the Indians, some changes have occurred. Ed Ashnault, the coach of the team, resigned just a few days later, and one of his assistants, George Balanis, was named interim coach.

Since then, the Indians have played a little better, winning two and losing two. Their last game was a loss to Richmond on Saturday, but they didn't let the Spiders run away, making a fine comeback before losing.

"They may have a new outlook on life," Quinn said of the Indians. "But in watching their game on television Saturday, I saw no great change in them. Perhaps they play a little better team ball now, and they also used their two tall men (Matt Courage and Dennis Vail, both 6-10) at the same time. This makes them taller, but it also makes them slower."

Quinn feels that the Indians, who lost one of their starters, Tom Pfingst, during the middle of the season for personal reasons, have good personnel. "If we allow them to do what they want to do, we could be in trouble," he added.

Quinn, despite the fact that the Bucs lost two of their last three games to conference opponents, and had to hold off the Citadel rally in the last contest, is pleased with the defense the Bucs have played. "The 30-point victory came largely through our defense making them do what they didn't want to. That could be detrimental to us in the tournament, but I don't think it will. Our players remember that we had to struggle to get by them the first time. We'll be realistic."

And again, despite the losses to Davidson and Richmond, Quinn feels the Bucs have gained from their losses.

"We are finishing in high spirits. We have the best record since 1969-70 for an East Carolina team, and our players can project themselves as winners in every game they've played. I think it is tremendous that so many players can come into a system and put it all together as they have."

Quinn doesn't feel that there is a team in the conference that the Bucs can't beat. "This is because of our defense and rebounding. There are three good defensive teams in this conference, and we're one of them. And we know we are one of the best rebounding teams—we've been second in the statistics all year. And we've played better on the road this year than in the past."

"We've already surpassed what I thought this team could do before the season started. From here on in, it's gravy."

One-On-One Tourney Set

The Greenville Recreation Department will hold a "One-on-One Tournament" Saturday, starting at 9 a.m. in the Elm Street Gymnasium.

The tournament will be played similar to the NBA one-on-one games. Half court games will be played with regular basketball rules being enforced with the exception that with each change over in possession the ball must be carried behind the foul line.

Age groups and times for the tournament are: 9-10 year olds, 9 to 10 a.m.; 11-12 year olds, 9 to 10 a.m.; 13-15 year olds, 10-11 a.m.; 16-18 year olds, 10-11 a.m.; 19-25 year olds, 11-12 noon; 26 and older, 11-12 noon.

Trophies will be given to the winners in each age group.

Those interested must pre-register by calling the Recreation Department, 752-2355, or by coming by the Elm Street Gym by Friday. Verification of age must be presented either at registration or before playing on Saturday.

WOOW To Air Games

East Carolina University's games in the Southern Conference basketball tournament will be carried live over WOOW in Greenville, it was announced today.

The station will pick up the games as broadcast by WITN AM-FM with Dick Jones doing the play-by-play. East Carolina's opening game will be Thursday night in the Richmond Coliseum against William & Mary, with game time at 9 p.m.

No Rest For Superstars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
There are Superstars ... and then there are Superstars.

Take Boston's John Havlicek, for instance. And Buffalo's Jim McMillian.

Havlicek and McMillian both wound up competition in the Superstars event at Rotunda, Fla., Tuesday afternoon and hustled off to appear in National Basketball Association games at night.

Havlicek played his usual outstanding game, collected 26 points and led the Celtics past the Detroit Pistons 86-83.

McMillian, fresh from a bicycle collision with Miami footballer Dick Anderson, arrived with an assortment of scrapes and bruises 10 minutes before gametime, played just 24 minutes, made only two of nine shots from the floor and saw his Braves go down 119-112 to Los Angeles.

McMillian fared better in the Florida competition. He picked up $3,000 after tying for eighth place in the 12-man field. Havlicek collected half that much for finishing 11th.

Elsewhere in the NBA, New York trimmed Capital 85-71. Houston topped Kansas City-Omaha 118-101, Golden State whipped Phoenix 120-100 and Philadelphia beat Portland 118-110.

Havlicek scored 10 points in the third period as Boston built a 72-59 lead. The Pistons roared back in the final quarter behind Dave Bing, who wound up with 22 points, but couldn't catch up. It was the Celtics fourth straight victory and their eighth in the last 11 games.

Los Angeles, in beating Buffalo for the 11th straight time over a three-year period, got a big boost from reserve Pat Riley. The Lakers outscored the Braves 23-4 during a five-minute span of the fourth quarter with Riley doing most of the damage. The former Kentucky star came off the bench with about four minutes left in the third period and wound up with 21 points.

Knicks 85, Bullets 71
Dave DeBusschere, returning to action after being sidelined with a bad heel, scored 16 points and hauled down 15 rebounds as New York turned in its best defensive showing of the season. Walt Frazier scored 21 points and Earl Monroe 19 for the winners. Kevin Porter netted 17 points for Capital, which hit only 31 of 83 fieldgoal attempts.

Rockets 118, Kings 101
Rudy Tomjanovich collected 30 points for Houston. The Rockets hit 71.4 per cent of their shots in the third period to open up an 80-64 lead and then turned back a mild Kansas City-Omaha rally to win.

Warriors 120, Suns 100
Golden State outscored Phoenix 22-3 over the final six minutes of the third period to break it open.

76ers 118, Blazers 110
Tom Van Arsdale pumped in 29 points as Philadelphia snapped a five-game losing streak and extended Portland's losing string to eight games.

Tuesday's American Basketball Association results: San Diego 126, Virginia 119; Indiana 110, Utah 94.

Industrial Closes Season

Union Carbide, Prepshirt and State Highway each took wins in the Industrial basketball league last night as each team closed out its regular season.

Union Carbide came back in the second half to beat Pitt Mem. Hospital. The Hospital had led by 24-23 at halftime but UC bettered their opponents by seven in the last half to take a 49-43 win.

Tommy Roache led Union Carbide with 15 and Garland Warren had 13. Danny Edwards had 13 for Pitt Mem.

Prepshirt won its second game of the season edging past GUCo 57-54. Prepshirt overcame a 29-20 halftime deficit to get the win.

Frank Dixon and William Johnson led Prepshirt with 15 each and Alton Ellis had 12. Zeno

Smith added 11. Jimmy Sutton had 12 for GUCo and James Ward had 11. Melvin Reese and Ted Gray had 10.

St. Highway did not have to work as hard as the other winners did. They led all the way in getting their victory over season champ Fieldcrest, 64-59. The Highwaymen led 32-27 at the half and eased to the win.

St. Highway was led by Bobby Edwards with 29, Ray Elks with 12 and Preston Mills with 10. Charles Harrington had 26 for Fieldcrest while Louis Williams added 25.

Winners Advance

St. James and Black Jack moved up in the winners bracket of the Church league tournament last night.

In the opener, St. James bombed Trinity, 68-49. In the first half, St. James doubled Trinity's score, 36-18 and coasted to the win.

St. Seymore led St. James with 18, Jackie Vicks had 15, and Hyman Leggett 14. D. R. Daniels had 21 for Trinity and Harold Barnes had 12.

Black Jack rallied in the second half to beat Oakmont, 72-61. Black Jack trailed, 28-25, at halftime but dumped in 47 in the second half to get the win. Phil Page led the winners with 27, Tal Adams had 16, Danny Edmonds 13, and Randy Hudson 10. Bob Lamb had 26 for Oakmont, Mike Vinson had 17 and Jay Collins 14.

Officials, Rules To Be Discussed

By JOHN R. SKINNER

AP Sports Writer
MIAMI BEACH (AP) — National Football League game officials and game rules themselves were scheduled for hearings today before the 26 club owners at the NFL's annual winter meeting.

The NFL executives spent Tuesday hearing results of a study on artificial turfs which called for standardization of the turfs and banning of conventional football cleats because they increase the probability of serious knee or ankle injuries. They also reviewed plans for next month's contract talks with the Players Association.

No decisions are expected out of today's sessions. The owners are taking a preview look at proposed rules changes to increase game action and competitiveness.

The proposals include eliminating fair catches and moving kickoffs back five yards to improve runback chances. Suggestions to cut down on field goals include moving goal posts to the rear of end zones and to return the ball to the original line of scrimmage rather than the 20-yard stripe when a field goal is missed.

Game officials are scheduled to present arguments for improved pensions and salaries both today and Thursday. Outside of increases given officials with 10 years or more experience, there have been no pay increases for officials in a

Thompson, Burleson Lead State In Clincher

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The North Carolina State Wolfpack, top-ranked nationally, has won the the regular-season title in Atlantic Coast Conference basketball and now faces the second-season, the conference championship tournament.

By clinching the regular-season crown with an 83-72 victory Tuesday night over North Carolina, fourth-ranked nationally, the Wolfpack won a bye in the first round of the tournament. It begins Thursday, March 7, in the Greensboro, N.C., Coliseum. The winner will emerge the following Saturday and gain entry to the national championship eliminations.

The victory was N.C. State's 29th straight against ACC opponents, a new record. It broke the record of 28 set by Duke almost 10 years ago.

N.C. State has won 11 in the conference this season, and has a 23-1 all-games mark, losing only to UCLA early in the season.

North Carolina fell to 8-3 in the conference and 20-4 in all games. It has lost three times to N.C. State and once to fifth-ranked Maryland. One of the losses to the Wolfpack, in the North Carolina Big Four Tournament, did not count as a conference game.

There are regular season games remaining only tonight and next Saturday before the championship tournament.

Tonight, Wake Forest will be at Maryland, Duke at Clemson, and Virginia will be home to independent Virginia Tech. On Saturday, Duke will be at North Carolina at 1 p.m. and Virginia will be at Maryland at 3 p.m. in games to be televised regionally. That night, North Carolina State will be at Wake Forest and Clemson at Georgia Tech.

Tommy Burleson, 7-foot-4 N.C. State center, scored 19 points in the second half against North Carolina, after making only 3 in the first half. He received the game ball, the first ever given to a basketball player at the school.

Norman Sloan, the Wolfpack coach, said, "We didn't play well in the first half," which ended with the Tar Heels leading 34-32. "It was like hand-to-hand combat. They were laying all over Tommy."

Burleson said, "I couldn't have played any worse than in the first half. I thought about this as my last game in Reynolds Coliseum," home of the Wolfpack. "Receiving the game ball is unreal."

Early in the second half, North Carolina extended its margin to 40-34 before Burleson and David Thompson took charge with driving layups and jump shots. The Wolfpack took the lead for good on a layup by Burleson off a pass from Thompson.

Thompson had 21 points and Mo Rivers 19 for State.

For North Carolina, Walter Davis had 18, Darrell Elston 17 and Bobby Jones 10. Their coach, Dean Smith, praised the poise of Davis, a freshman, and said Jones did an excellent job on Thompson.

Smith said that if his team doesn't win the tournament, he hopes N.C. State does. "They have quickness and great height. Thompson plays like he's 6-foot-10." He is 6-foot-4.

North Carolina State, with guard Rivers doing most of the scoring, took a comfortable early lead. Rivers got open for six easy baskets in the first half because North Carolina's guards were sloughing off to help defend against Burleson and Thompson.

Top Ranked Teams Take Wins

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Sports Writer

North Carolina State awarded Tommy Burleson the game ball, but the 7-foot-4 Wolfpack center only accepted half of it.

"I couldn't have played any worse than in the first half," said Burleson, who might have received a deflated game ball had one been given at the half.

But Burleson improved his three-point total at the half by scoring 19 points in the second half and leading top-ranked North Carolina State to a 83-72 Atlantic Coast Conference college basketball victory over fourth-rated North Carolina Tuesday night.

It was first game ball ever given to a basketball player at N.C. State.

In other games involving Top 20 teams, No. 2 Notre Dame downed Ball State 93-69 and 15th-ranked Kansas beat Nebraska 51-46.

At the half, Wolfpack Coach Norm Sloan was worried about the game, not the game ball.

"We didn't play well in the first half," said Sloan, whose club now draws a bye in the first round of the ACC tournament, which determines the conference's representative in the NCAA tourney. "It was like hand-to-hand combat. They were laying all over Tommy."

Ball State, 14-11, played Notre Dame, 23-1, even for the game's first 10 minutes before John Shumate and Adrian Dantley went to work, leading the Fighting Irish on 13-2 spurt enroute to a 50-38 halftime lead.

Shumate, a 6-9 junior center, led the way with 31 points and 15 rebounds while Dantley, a freshman, chipped in with 26 points and seven rebounds. Kansas outscored Nebraska 16-2 midway in the second half, but the Cornhuskers came back with eight straight points to take a 40-39 lead with nine minutes to go.

Elsewhere in college basketball, Lon Kruger dropped in two free throws with nine seconds remaining to give Kansas State a 69-67 victory over Missouri; Texas remained in a tie with Texas Tech for the Southwest Conference basketball lead with a 99-82 victory over Arkansas behind Larry Robinson's 26 points, and Rick Bullock's 41 points helped Texas Tech keep pace with a 77-66 victory over Texas Christian.

Also, Bruce Parkinson's 18 points and a second-half surge carried Purdue past Bowling Green 99-83; sophomore guard Walter Luckett fired in 37 points to lead Ohio University to a 78-69 victory over Penn State, and Kentucky State, with freshman Gerald Cunningham's 28 points, rolled to its 17th straight victory, a 84-80 decision over Northern Kentucky.

And, Glen Williams scored 21 points and Ed Searcy added 18, leading St. John's to its 11th consecutive victory, a 98-72 triumph over Holy Cross; Keith Morris sank two foul shots with 26 seconds left, giving George Washington a 55-54 victory over Georgetown; Charlie Wise's three-point play keyed LaSalle's 78-69 victory over Delaware, and Pete LaCorte's 16 points helped Seton Hall beat Villanova 75-60 in a game called with 14 seconds left because Villanova fans reportedly were throwing balls of paper onto the court.

No Arbitrator For Minnesota

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

Arbitrators, phooey! When it comes to the Minnesota Twins, team President Calvin Griffith is judge, jury and executioner rolled into one.

Right now, Griffith is preparing to play hangman and lower the trading boom on pitcher Dick Woodson, infielder Steve Braun and outfielder Larry Hisle.

The three players recently utilized newly available arbitration provisions and won salary squabbles with Griffith. That cost him a pretty penny and some even prettier dollars and where Calvin is concerned, losing money is the root of all evil.

"I'm mad because I've lost three arbitration hearings," Griffith fumed. "It cost me about $15,000. But I'll find some way to get it back by trading them."

Woodson was the first major leaguer to win an arbitration hearing when his $28,500 request was approved over Griffith's $22,500 offer. The 29-year-old right hander, 10-8 with arm trouble last season, already has asked to be traded. Hisle hit .272 and Braun .283.

Elsewhere on the arbitration front, two members of the New York Yankees won their cases (utilityman Bill Sudakis, pitcher Wayne Granger) and two lost (shortstop Gene Michael, utilityman Duke Sims). That may prove a point for those who claim the Yanks are no better than a .500 club.

The best news for the New Yorkers, however, came when pitcher Mel Stottlemyre signed for a reported $87,500.

The National League gave a little ground in its opposition to the designated hitter rule and said its teams could use a DH in road exhibition games against American League clubs.

However, NL President Chub Feeney said neither club could use a DH if the National League team does not agree to it.

Spring training is the time of year when optimism runs rampant and this year is no exception.

General Manager Spec Richardson of the Houston Astros said off-injured pitcher Larry Dierker is "in the best shape he's ever been in at the start of camp."

Skipper Sparky Anderson of the Cincinnati Reds said he feels that this year "more than ever" his pitchers reported in good shape.

And Manager Ken Aspromonte of the Cleveland Indians raved about pitchers Brent Strom, Mike Kekich and Cecil Upshaw, who posted a combined 6-19 record a year ago.

"They all looked great," Aspromonte said. "Things are looking better and better. I have to hold back my enthusiasm. It's too early to get excited, but it would be very easy to do so."

Ayden-Grifton In State Finals

Group Plans Can Reduce Medical Bill

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK
UPI Family Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Step right up, sir and-or ma'am. Listen and you shall hear of a way to cut your medical bills — without neglecting yourself or children.

The seemingly magical feat, in this era of inflation and skyrocketing health bills, is being accomplished under 115 programs of prepaid group medical practice in the nation.

More than 200 additional programs are in the planning stage. The programs differ in benefits and in cost. Very simply these plans, called HMOs, provide medical care for a family — for a monthly premium. Or charge. In some places the family pays around $50 a month and that takes care of the medical bills—including immunizations, annual physicals, skinned knees and most everything else.

HMO stands for Health Maintenance Organizations. They have started up where community needs and consumer interests have asked for them.

Seminar Held
The HMOs are in operation in 25 states. In the Blue Cross System alone, 22 plans have 42 HMO programs today, with 280 projected for the system by 1980.

The status of the HMO phenomenon was reported at a seminar in New York on the status and future of the health care programs that appear to ease pain on the pocketbook.

HMOs, most of which are prepaid group practices, have been looked to more in recent years to solve some problems in availability, cost and quality of medical care.

Sponsored by Blue Cross Association, the coordinating agency for the nation's 75 Blue Cross Plans which now serve more than 100 million persons in the United States and Puerto Rico, the seminar brought together some of the nation's top authorities on HMOs.

HMO Supported
These included Rep. William R. Roy, D. Kan.; Dr. H. Frank Newman, president of the Group Health Association of America; and Walter J. McNerney, president of the Blue Cross Association.

"We are deeply involved in the HMO movement," said McNerney. "It gives us an opportunity to serve our subscribers better, to innovate in the way we provide all or part of the health care coverage. At the same time, it gives us another important means of influencing the cost and quality of the care given to people who look to us for help."

The authority on medical economics said that the Blue Cross Association supports the HMO concept as a promising alternative form for delivery of health care services.

Only Part of Program
Roy, who worked three years for the passage of the Health Maintenance Organization Act of 1973, signed into law by President Nixon in late December, said:

"By bringing competition into the present health care marketplace, HMOs are bound to result in many improvements in the U.S. health care system as a whole."

Roy, a physician and lawyer, views the new act as only one part of a five-pronged program of health care legislation he has been advocating. He sees also the need for legislation to help plan, develop and regulate health care institutions and services, including costs.

To help with the health manpower shortage in certain areas of the nation, he wants laws to make it mandatory for young doctors and others on the health team to serve a time in needy areas. This in return for rebates on the cost of their schooling. He also says "aye" to some form of national health insurance.

Multiple Choices
A highlight of the seminar was a panel discussion by five top Blue Cross Plan officials — centering on their plans' approaches to HMOs or prepaid group practice. The panel was moderated by Robert M. Cunningham, Jr., editor of Modern Hospital, a journal for hospital administrators.

The participants told of HMOs in Rochester, N.Y., Massachusetts, Michigan, Wisconsin, New York, and Washington.

McNerney said that HMO benefits should be made available on a dual or multiple choice basis together with coverage for the more traditional solo-practitioner, free-for-service type of care.

He also predicted that HMOs will grow and develop in the nation, thanks to the Health Maintenance Organization Act of 1973.

Interest in such programs is especially high among younger doctors. When they are in a group practice it means, as a rule, they can count on having time off and a reliable stand-in to take their place with even a pregnant patient who gets labor pains on the doctor's day or night off.

Poster Contest Is Sponsored By 4-H

A poster contest is being sponsored by the North Carolina 4-H Association in an effort to increase traffic safety consciousness among youth between the ages of nine and 12.

Any boy or girl in North Carolina between the ages of nine and 12 is eligible to make a poster about one of the following topics: bicycle safety, pedestrian safety, automotive safety, safety belt usage, motorcycle safety and school bus safety.

The posters should be on 8 1/2 x 11 inch paper. The child's name, address, parents' names and the county the student lives in should be printed on the back of the poster.

The completed poster should be sent to: 4-H Poster Contest,

North Carolina State University, Raleigh, N.C. 27607.

The deadline for receiving posters has been set as March 15.

Judging will be based on creativeness, attractiveness and educational value.

Each person entering the contest will receive a safety belt game. The county winner will receive a bicycle maintenance and safety kit while the state winner will be given a bicycle.

Icebreaker Has Rubber Coating

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — The hull of the U.S. Coast Guard icebreaker Yankton has been coated with a special rubber in an attempt to find material which will stick to an icebreaker but not to ice.

The thin layer the Boston-based vessel is wearing to protect the hull and make it easier for the hull to slide over ice.

Icebreakers actually don't ram through ice but rather slide up onto the ice and then crush their way down through it, a spokesman said. Regular paints wear off quickly, and the exposed metal of the hull then becomes a strong drag on the ship's passage.

The rubber, sprayed on the 110-foot vessel's hull at Boston's Munro Dry Dock, was developed by Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. here.

Dial-A-Story Is Too Popular

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Carnegie Library's dial-a-story project for children was so popular it had to be discontinued.

A spokesman said the library was receiving as many as 15,000 calls a day, and Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania said its basic service was being disrupted by the persistent young callers.

"We were getting complaints from as far as 60 miles away," a Bell spokesman said. "The library realized what was happening and agreed to stop the story service."

ELMS IN BRITAIN fell by the hundreds of thousands to Dutch Elm Disease in 1973. (UPI Telephoto)

Elms Died In Year Of Trees

By WILLIAM F. WRIGHT
RICHMOND, England (UPI) — In the fading days of 1973, three diseased elms crashed to the ground at Hampton Court Palace, felled by a woodsman's buzzsaw in a fitting epitaph to the "Year of the Tree."

"For a year that was to have been a good one for trees, 1973 turned out to be a sad one indeed," said a spokesman for the Countryside Commission, a government appointed body concerned with maintaining the beauty of rural England.

The Hampton Court trees were among hundreds of thousands of elms in Britain which fell victim to Dutch elm disease during 1973, designated by the government as the "Year of the Tree" in an effort to promote reforestation of denuded woodlands.

The Department of the Environment estimates that 17.5 per cent of all elms in England and Wales succumbed to the epidemic last year, bringing to several millions the number of trees which have had to be destroyed in the past five years.

Across the country, countless elms shed their yellowing leaves as early as July, a telltale sign of the disease borne by beetles that burrow into the bark.

Disease Spreads Quickly
So quickly does the disease spread that biologists say the only effective way to deal with it is to destroy elms as soon as they're affected.

"We've traced this particular epidemic to a virulent strain somehow imported from Canada or the United States," an Environment Department spokesman said.

At Hampton Court Palace, near Richmond, woodsmen in one week alone felled 330 diseased elms along a stretch of the River Thames where King Henry VIII strolled hand-in-hand with Anne Boleyn and his other unfortunate brides.

The Forestry Commission, whose task it was to destroy the elms, did manage to plant an estimated 1.5 million trees during the year. Queen Mother Elizabeth laid a plaque in the Scottish village of Aberfoyle to commemorate the one millionth acre of trees planted by the commission in Scotland since 1919.

Victims of Progress
Nearly $500,000 in public funds went to local government authorities to encourage tree planting. The midlands city of Peterborough planted 70,000 trees along a new superhighway to screen it from the surrounding countryside.

But other trees fell victim to "progress."

Under a spreading chestnut tree in the Wiltshire town of Broad Hinton, village postman Ned Downes, a staunch conservationist, stood guard for six days until finally surrendering the tree to bulldozers clearing land for a highway.

"A tree is a living and beautiful thing," Downes said in a letter to a local newspaper. "I even get upset when lovers carve their initials into them or people let their dogs piddle on them. But this kind of wanton destruction leaves me crushed."

Plan Transactional Workshop In March

A workshop in Transactional Analysis as a means of improving interpersonal relationships in business will be offered here by the Eastern North Carolina Chapter of the American Society for Training and Development (ASTD) and East Carolina University Wednesday, March 20.

Workshop Leader Don Michalak said Transactional Analysis, a relatively new concept, fosters good relationships among business associates and employees, by helping individuals think for themselves, make decisions and express their feelings more effectively.

Through a better understanding of the everyday interactions between people and the ability to determine whether or not an interaction is "healthy," Transactional Analysis promotes better understanding of behavior and improvement in leadership and communications.

All workshop sessions will be held at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Participants will include both ASTD members and others interested in learning more about Transactional Analysis and its usefulness in training and development.

The workshop will feature a session dealing with the application of Transactional Analysis programs in the participants' own business.

Workshop Leader Michalak, a co-founder of Counseling Associates, Inc., a Michigan-based consulting organization, has directed and consulted with many programs concerned with behavioral sciences concepts as applied to several phases of management.

Club mosses, whose miniature leaves twine around their stems in spirals and appear to be moss, are tiny descendants of gigantic extinct trees.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

AN EXTENSION at the rear of this smart ranch plan offers a fine family room plus breakfast extension for the kitchen. A dropped living room at the right has terrace privacy. Three bedrooms and two baths are featured as well as a centrally placed laundry. Plan HA785V has 1,630 square feet and is designed by architect Fenick Vogel, Room 704, 48 W. 48th St. New York, N.Y. 10036. Anyone interested in the price of the blueprint may write to him.

Roller Champion Flour makes biscuits so tall they make your glasses look short.

We know it's distressing. But that's what happens when you use Roller Champion Flour. You get a whiter, lighter, higher biscuit. And everything suffers by comparison. Oh, it's not just a coincidence. It happens every time. In fact, we actually guarantee it. If Roller Champion Flour doesn't make the whitest, lightest, highest biscuits you've ever baked, we'll give you your money back.

We make a good, honest deal. Because our flour makes a good, honest biscuit. Look for Roller Champion Flour the next time you go to the grocery store. If it's not on the shelf yet, ask your grocer to order it for you.

The Worry Clinic

A Happy Life With Diabetes

Don's failing eyesight was due to his undiagnosed diabetes. But others, who know they have diabetes, often ignore their proper insulin input and thus get hemorrhages of the retina or cataracts. You can live happy, athletic lives despite diabetes!

By GEORGE W. CRANE

Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-563: Don S., aged 51, is losing his sight.

"Dr. Crane," his worried wife began, "Don is a diabetic but didn't realize that fact till last year."

"Now he takes 40 units of insulin per day."

"But his vision has been declining and the doctor says that it is a result of his former untreated diabetic condition."

"Dr. Crane, can the eye of a healthy person who has just died, then be transplanted to restore the sight of a person like my husband?"

"And if so, might the new transplanted eye later develop the same blindness as the diabetic's original eye?"

Diabetic Blindness
A high school course on "Practical Medicine" would clarify such problems that worry millions of Americans!

This "Worry Clinic" was launched originally to help relieve unnecessary worry and anxiety. How?

By explaining in simple everyday language the causes and possible remedies of marital, psychological and medical ailments.

For example, an entire normal eye cannot be successfully transplanted into the socket of a blind person and then give him vision.

For the optic nerve cannot be successfully grafted to the blind man's optic nerve.

But there are 3 common types of eyeball blindness.

One is a milky scarring of the transparent membrane (cornea) at the front of the eye.

It may result from acid or fire burns or gonorrheal infection, as at the moment a baby is born to an infected mother.

Then the lens of the eye (back of the tiny hole called the pupil) may also grow milky.

The 3rd problem may be a scarring of the retina (film) at the back of the eyeball, due to hemorrhages.

Those first 2 causes of blindness can often be remedied by transplanting parts of a normal eyeball.

For example, a cataract operation removes the milky lens, after which eyeglasses can offer such a patient a glass lens that may permit the reading of even the fine print in this newspaper.

And that milky cornea may also be replaced by the clear cornea, cut from a normal eye.

This corneal transplant is comparable to cutting out a rectangular center section from a white (translucent) bathroom window and replacing it with a clear section of transparent glass.

Diabetics are usually middle aged when this ailment is first detected, though many kiddies have diabetes, too.

If dieting and oral medication don't keep them healthy, then don't delay in resorting to insulin, for it may save your eyesight!

For when you employ the proper units of insulin daily, you can live to a healthy, ripe old age.

In fact, many of our professional baseball and football stars are diabetics!

So never indulge in self-pity because of diabetes, but follow your physician's instructions and you can enjoy a happy, athletic life!

Meanwhile, send for my booklet, "How To Lose 10 Pounds in 10 Days," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

For it offers you advice on how to hold your weight at the proper level, and also contains a calorie chart.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Lengthy Zips At Manufacturers

WATERBURY, Conn. (AP) — A zipper for the most part opens and closes the shortest distance between two points, but at Scovill's Apparel Fasteners division they do some lengthy zipping.

The longest continuous zipper designed here was 900 inches, made for the covering on a new spacecraft. Other oversize zippers have been a 675-inch unit for a M-A-S-H-type Army mobile field tent, and radar dome covers that extend up to 300 inches.

The first commercially practical zippers are believed to have been used in rubber galoshes in 1923, and while they still have their greatest use in apparel, zippers are utilized in many unique applications. Concrete pilings, for example, are made by pouring concrete into zippered molds, waiting for it to set and then unzipping the molds.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL
MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Wisconsin's 3 per cent premium tax on business by out-of-state insurance companies has been declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you are likely to have very poor judgment, so avoid giving advice and start nothing new, or some real difficulties could follow. However, afternoon and p.m. are good for recreation.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't bring an adviser and a good friend together, or an unfortunate argument ensues. Plan time for getting work done and for social contacts.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) If you disagree with a higher-up, keep mum, or you lose support you now enjoy. Listen and you may find you are wrong.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Instead of fretting over present position, look into some new outlet that is more right for you. Combine hunches with fine judgment.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Listen to what a clever friend recommends instead of relying on that adviser who is not in fine fettle now.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Remain neutral during a possible altercation between a higher-up and an associate, or you lose the support of both. Postpone action.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study new outlets while keeping steadfast to the old so you can decide which to choose. A letter brings good news.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Responsibilities are more vital than you believe, so get them behind you quickly and forget fun. Show loyalty to mate for greater future happiness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Kin and associates are in a mood for dispute, so keep them apart now and do not start any controversial subjects. Don't confide in others.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be objective in judgment which is better than using your personal view right now. Schedule time wisely for duties.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Forget finances and anxieties now and relax with good friends. Evening is then fine for working on important matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do not disagree with those at home, or you get into unfortunate arguments best avoided. Early p.m. favors recreation.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You like to live in a quiet and sensible way, so do not get into situations that could bring real trouble to you.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very attractive, but will want just about everything he or she sees, so teach early to discriminate, know what can be afforded, or there could be much trouble instead of a steady course of success and happiness otherwise indicated. Bigwigs will assist your youngster easily, provided there is support of them and not roundabout criticism. A fine artist.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

The bidding:
South West North East
6 ♠ Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♥
South failed to appreciate that he had struck gold in dummy, and as a result he went down in a spade slam that should have been made.

The modern bidding scientist probably has a way, via asking bids, to determine whether or not his partner holds the king of diamonds—the only card that will give South good play for a grand slam. However, when this hand was played in a rubber bridge game in England, South was a practical man who bid what he thought he could make—twelve tricks in spades.

West led the king of hearts and declarer ruffed. He drew trumps in two rounds, and then used dummy's eight of spades as an entry to take the diamond finesse. This succeeded but the contract failed. When West showed out on the ace of diamonds, declarer had no way to avoid losing two tricks in that suit.

Declarer did not expect the worst, and so took no preventive measures. If the diamond suit divided 3-2, the slam was safe—declarer could lose no more than one diamond trick regardless of the location of the king of the suit. Thus, declarer's efforts should have been directed towards guarding against a possible 4-1 break.

After ruffing the heart opening and drawing two rounds of trumps, declarer should have played the ace and queen of diamonds. This line would have given declarer two additional chances: if either player held a singleton king of diamonds; or, if West held the singleton nine or ten.

As the cards lay, West would have dropped the nine of diamonds under the ace and would have shown out on the queen. But now the diamond position would be marked, and dummy's eight-seven in the suit would offer an opportunity for a finesse against East's ten.

East could capture the queen of diamonds with the king, but then declarer would win any return, enter dummy with the eight of spades and lead the eight of diamonds for a finesse. Whether East covers or not is immaterial—declarer cannot lose more than one diamond trick.

BORDEN

Campus 'Fine' To 80-Year-Old

By MAXINE YEE
CLAREMONT, Calif. (UPI) — Octogenarian Mary Routt doesn't like the criticisms aimed at today's young people. She says those who condemn the young don't know how they act and think.

Mary Routt does know. She's surrounded by some 5,000 of them.

Mrs. Routt lives in a single-room senior apartment at Scripps College, one of six Claremont Colleges.

A widow, she moved to the campus from her 20-room house in 1972 when her husband died. It isn't common practice to allow non-students to live in a dorm on campus, but in the case of Mrs. Routt, an exception was made. She was one of the original board of trustees for the college in 1926 and contributed most of the funds to build the dorm where she is living and which bears her name. Her only official capacity with the college is as an honorary member of the board.

Fresh Viewpoint

Mrs. Routt doesn't like to compare today's generation of young people with past generations, but she speaks up to defend them if they are criticized.

"We should realize that they are different than I was," she said of the way they speak and dress, "but they do think and analyze what they're trying to do."

"They have a fresh viewpoint that we sometimes can't reconcile ourselves with."

She pointed out that today's young people are living through more turbulent times, and that "we had a much easier time when I was in college. It was much easier to make solutions to our problems because the problems were easier."

Mrs. Routt, who doesn't affect today's slang and isn't quite used to seeing girls in blue jeans, suggested that those who criticize young people try living among them to get to know them.

No Age Gap

She is convinced the experience would change such critical opinions.

A generation gap doesn't exist in Mrs. Routt's life even though there is a span of some 60 years between her and the students. She says the gap people speak of frequently is not a matter of age gap but rather of communication.

For the students at Scripps College, Mrs. Routt is friend and confidante.

Mrs. Routt, a former journalist who once wrote a syndicated column in Washington, D.C., is often questioned by students who want to compare the present political scene with those of other years.

The discussions and friendships with the students have rejuvenated Mrs. Routt, who said:

Staying Young

"My prescription for staying young is association with youngsters. I don't know how young it's going to keep me, but it's made me feel a lot younger. I'd rather associate with kids anytime than with people my own age."

Mrs. Routt is active on and off campus. When she isn't auditing classes or attending seminars, she can be seen at art openings, concerts and anything else she finds to her liking.

liking.

Among other activities, she is writing a book on her experiences as a columnist. The book, sponsored by Scripps College, will include a collection of her columns and insights on the behind-the-scenes events that helped shape the nation's news.

But she still has time to lend a listening ear to anyone who wants to talk. The door to her single-room apartment in a downstairs wing of Mary Routt Residence Hall is always open.

One Step Ahead In Comedy Show

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — This is the week John Rich packs it in and leaves "All in the Family."

Unless you watch the credits, you may not be familiar with the name. But John, with his 18-hour days, is as responsible for the success of this top-rated CBS comedy series as anyone.

He's produced or directed every show since its debut in January 1970, most often doing both. In the beginning he directed 37 consecutive shows. He's also the host at the tapings, doing the audience warm-up.

Rich, 48, built like a retired pro football player — "This job turned my hair gray and put 20 pounds on me" — leaves Tandem Productions at the end of the week to set up his own production company.

One of his many functions on "All in the Family" was to keep its comedy topical — despite the fact that the shows are taped six weeks before airing.

"Topicality comes to you by reading the newspapers," he said. "It's not by any magic or manipulation. We're just careful of what's in the newspapers. We have our people talking about what America's talking about."

In a show taped last fall Archie Bunker got locked in the cellar when he went down to check his empty oil tank. Rich said, "The original concept was that Edith failed to call the oil people. His line was to be, 'Thank you, Edith.' In rehearsal I thought that was too much responsibility to put on Edith and changed it to 'Thank you, Arabs.'"

The next day the Yom Kippur War broke out in the Middle East and by the time the show was on the air six weeks later we had a full-fledged energy crisis.

Last summer, when the Watergate hearings were under way, some people thought "All in the Family" was reshooting the reruns to include Watergate jokes. "Things were being said the winter before and we had included them," Rich said. "By summer everything was up to date."

Earlier this year they taped a show in which Archie rushes to the hospital after eating some mushrooms he thinks are contaminated. The day of the taping stories began to break that the Food and Drug Administration was recalling cans of mushrooms. The story was still current when the show aired.

"It's like going over Niagara Falls without a net," Rich said. "It would be easy to repeat one strain every week — Archie's bigotry or his dishonesty. You could do it, but I think the public would get bored."

Abortion Clinic Files Big Suit

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The owner of the state's first abortion clinic has filed suit for $104 million as part of an effort to get the certification the clinic needs for continued operation.

The suit filed in U.S. District Court Monday by Dr. Harold R. Hoke of the Hallmark Clinic names as defendants Charlotte Memorial Hospital, the Charlotte and Mecklenburg County Hospital Authority, and several doctors and administrators.

It claims the defendants violated his constitutional rights by revoking his privileges to treat patients in the hospital, and refusing to grant the clinic a patient-transfer agreement. Such an agreement that clinic patients who need emergency treatment might be transferred to a hospital is needed for continued state certification of the clinic.

ROCKY LLAMA—A body like a rock, that's what this llama has, at least that's the way it seems. A windy day at Lion Country Safari in Grand Prairie, Tex., was too much for the llama who sought shelter behind a nearby pile of rocks and wound up creating this optical illusion. (AP Wirephoto)

Afghanistan Curbs The Entry Of 'Longhairs'

By BRIAN JEFFRIES

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Afghanistan is no place for "longhairs" anymore. A short back and sides, a business suit and adequate funds will almost certainly get you a visa into the country. But the hippies have had their day.

The man they have to thank for stringent new regulations severely curtailing the entry of anyone the authorities suspect of harboring an interest in drugs is the new president and prime minister, Mohammad Daoud.

Before he came to power in a military-backed coup last July, Daoud carefully observed the hippies and the sort of life they were leading among the doss houses and opium dens, on the dusty streets of Kabul and elsewhere in the country. He was appalled by what he saw.

Now that he is president he is determined that there will be no return to the bad old days when Afghanistan was besieged by long-haired, unkempt youngsters, sometimes desperately short of money, begging on the streets and selling their girlfriends for prostitution to buy drugs.

Daoud told the Associated Press in an exclusive interview: "I was watching what the hippies were doing very carefully. From a moral point of view I considered it necessary to do something against them."

"They were participating in a lot of illegal business and I curbed their entry."

The new government appreciates that long hair and casual clothes may not be the ideal criterion for judging a person's worth. But it considers its actions justifiable if it stems the flow of unwelcome guests whose presence resulted in a spate of adverse publicity for Afghanistan.

The drug problem in Afghanistan is not confined to foreigners. The country has a major internal problem. It is openly admitted here that whole villages are addicted to opium. Mothers, ignorant of the dangers, feed it to their children to make them sleep and so the dependence is formed.

Daoud said: "The government has definitely decided to fight against the illegal traffic in opium and hashish. We are deeply concerned because it not only affects people here but all over the world."

Afghanistan, Iran and Pakistan form a major opium producing region which feeds both East and West.

The government has just signed an agreement with the United Nations which will result in doubling the strength of the small narcotics squad from seven to 15 men. They will be equipped with vehicles, radio communications equipment and arms. Their job will be to catch the smugglers.

In the long term, as Daoud admits, the solution to the problem lies in finding substitute crops for poppies, from which opium is derived, that will satisfy the farmers and provide them with a comparable income.

Meanwhile, drugs are still available to those who know where to look. A young Frenchman paying a return visit to Kabul after two years said: "The price of hash has doubled from between 20 and 30 dollars a kilo then to between 50 and 60
