

House Appears Unable Override Energy Bill Veto

By DAVID C. MARTIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress appears unlikely to override President Nixon's promised veto of emergency energy legislation.

The House sent the bill to the White House Wednesday, but the 259-to-151 margin of final passage was short of the two-thirds majority needed to override a presidential veto. House Republican leaders predicted the expected veto would stand, although Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said he was confident the Senate would vote to override. A two-thirds majority in both houses is required to overturn a presidential veto.

The bill's most controversial provision is an oil price rollback.

This would reduce the price of gasoline at the pump by up to four cents a gallon and cut soaring propane prices in half, according to figures produced by the House Commerce Committee.

But Nixon said at his Monday night press conference that the rollback would lead to additional fuel shortages "which would require, without question, rationing all over the country."

The bill would give Nixon the power to order mandatory gasoline rationing — a step he now says there is better than an even chance of avoiding.

Wednesday's passage capped a day of parliamentary maneuvering in which the House reversed its Rules Committee and voted down a parliamentary rule that would have left the measure open to procedural challenge by any member of the House.

The House voted instead to adopt a rule requiring roll call votes on some of the bill's more controversial provisions, including the price rollback and rationing authority.

A motion to strike the rationing authority from the bill failed by only 12 votes while a similar motion against the rollback provision went down 173 to 238.

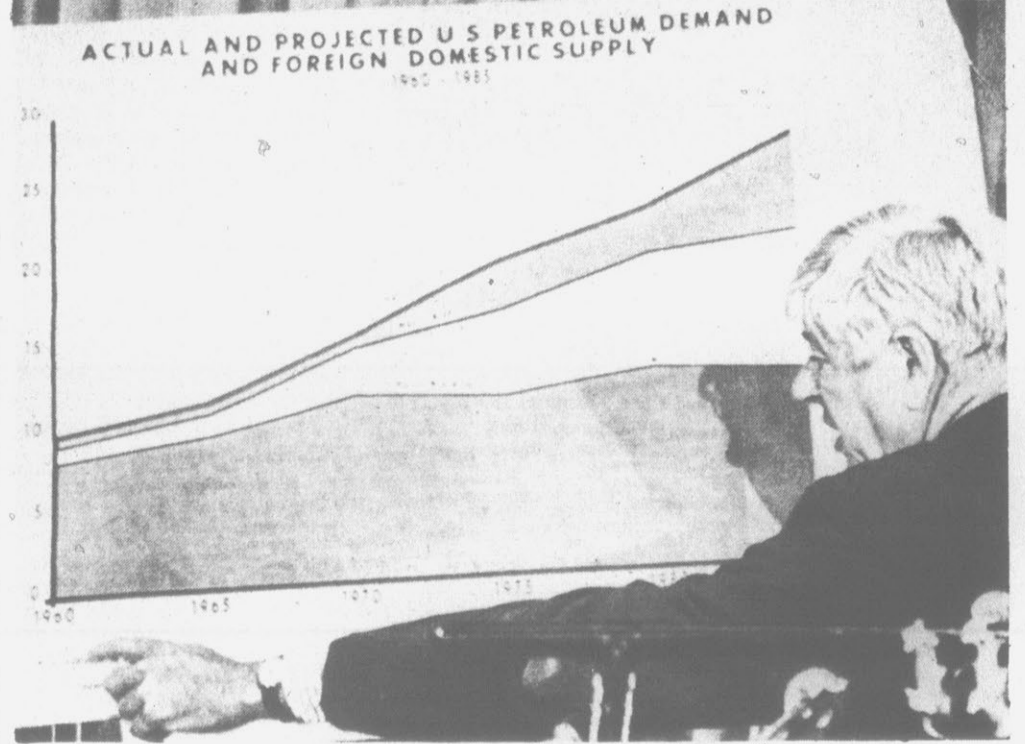

The rollback would fix the price of all oil produced in the U.S. at $5.25 per barrel with a price ceiling of $7.09 per barrel. Roughly three quarters of domestic crude oil already sells at the $5.25 level under Phase 4 price controls.

The remaining one quarter has been freed from controls in an effort to stimulate production and is selling at approximately $10 per barrel.

The bill also would permit temporary relaxation of clean air standards in order to allow power plants to burn coal in place of scarce stocks of low-sulfur natural gas and petroleum. Auto makers would be allowed a one- and possibly two-year delay in meeting exhaust standards.

Another provision in the bill would provide an additional $500 million in unemployment benefits to workers laid off as a result of fuel shortages.

The Fuel Import Gap

Better Sharing Of Gasoline Stressed

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Energy Office predicts the gasoline shortage will be as tight at midyear as it is now, but service station lines should be shorter.

John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the FEO, told senators Wednesday that he expects the shortage to become more evenly distributed across the country.

Sawhill noted that it was only this month that FEO began trying to get state-by-state compilations of gasoline supplies and to re-allocate gasoline from well-off states to harder-hit ones.

The FEO official also announced rules changes aimed at giving oil companies greater incentives to import crude oil.

The regulation FEO is taking steps to change says refiners who have more crude oil than the national average have to share it with those who have less.

Sawhill said this has produced lower incentives for importers and refiners and has contributed to gasoline changes on the East Coast.

Sawhill said that if the Arab oil embargo continues, the gasoline shortage in the next quarter will be about the same as the current 15 to 20 per cent. If Arab oil starts flowing again, the U.S. shortage within 90 days would be 4 to 8 per cent, he added.

Sawhill said the shorter gasoline lines he expects will make rationing unnecessary.

Meanwhile, the House passed and sent to the White House emergency energy legislation authorizing President Nixon to impose rationing.

However, Nixon has said he will veto the bill because of a provision for a fuel price rollback.

State GOP Chairman Pleased By ECU Vote

MOREHEAD CITY—State Republican chairman Thomas S. Bennett expressed pleasure in the joint House-Senate Appropriations Committee action Tuesday in approving a bill to expand the East Carolina University medical school.

"I was glad to see the committee accept the Scott-Stewart compromise measure," Bennett said. "I think it was a good solution to the problem in planning for expansion in development of a four-year school of medicine at East Carolina University."

The GOP official said, "I approve of what they did... glad it passed."

"I feel right now the measure will pass in the House and Senate..." when the proposed legislation comes to the floor of the Legislature with the main budget bill package, possible in late March.

Bennett indicated he had no idea whether Republican Gov. Jim Holshouser will continue to oppose the measure when it reaches the floor as he has in the past.

"That I don't know," he said. "I have not been involved in any strategy sessions through the governor's office with regard to this matter. The Governor has known my position on the ECU medical school proposition for some time, just as I have known his position, and I have not been involved on that side."

Bennett emphasized his support for an expanded medical education program at ECU. "I've supported it from the very beginning," he said. "Whenever I have been asked about it, I've supported it."

The Republican chairman noted, "I've done everything I could to keep the matter out of partisan politics as much as possible, because there are representatives in both parties who have differing views. I have been fearful if it became a partisan matter, it could be harmful..."

Bennett said "I don't have any idea..." how the Governor personally feels about expanding the medical school at ECU.

He said in his opinion, "the governor's position is strictly one of responsibility as chief executive of the State in supporting the recommendations of the Board of Governors."

"The Governor was very instrumental in setting up the higher education system that created the Board of Governors," Bennett explained.

"Had the Board of Governors made a recommendation favorable to East Carolina University," according to Bennett, "the Governor would have supported those recommendations."

"I think everyone must remember too, that in 1972 when the Governor was campaigning, he said in Greenville that, with regard to the medical school issue, he would support the recommendation of the Board of Governors.

"That's what he has done," Bennett noted.

Britons At Polls

LONDON (AP) — Britons voted for a new government today as snow fell in several parts of the country and the sun shone in southeast England.

Some cities reported long lines at the polling booths and there were indications of a massive turnout, usually a good sign for the Laborites. Polls still gave the Conservatives a slight edge, however.

In England, the election is being fought largely over bread-and-butter issues, and observers say that no matter who wins, Britons face another round of belt-tightening.

In Northern Ireland, the election for members to Parliament is being fought over the determination of the Protestant majority to stay apart from the neighboring Irish republic, while the minority Catholics seek union.

Major Provisions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the major provisions of the emergency energy bill passed Wednesday by the House:

- Roll back the price of uncontrolled domestic crude oil to the control price level of $5.25 per barrel;
- Establish a ceiling of $7.09 beyond which the price of oil would not be allowed to rise;
- Give President Nixon the authority to order rationing of gasoline and other scarce fuels;
- Give the President power to order mandatory energy conservation programs into effect;
- Provide an additional $500 million in unemployment benefits for workers laid off by fuel shortages;
- Authorize low interest loans to homeowners and small businessmen to install new insulation, storm windows and other energy-saving devices;

- Create a Federal Energy Emergency Administration;
- Give the President authority to order power plants to burn coal in place of scarce natural gas or petroleum;
- Permit temporary suspension of clean air standards to allow power plants to burn high sulfur coal;
- Grant car manufacturers a one-year delay in achieving auto exhaust standards;
- And require oil companies to divulge data on production and inventories to government agencies, Congress and the public.

All provisions would remain in effect until May 15, 1975.

Commission To Advise Rezoning Of Area Near Site On New Hospital

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The Joint City-County Planning and Zoning Commission will recommend to the City Council that some 99.82 acres located adjacent to the new hospital site be rezoned.

Appearing before the board Wednesday night, Louis Clark explained that his original request several months ago involved the rezoning of 78 acres from RA-20 to Medical Arts, Office and Institutional, and Shopping Center. That request was approved by the City Council.

Clark told commission members that since the rezoning occurred, an additional 21 acres became available and the purchase was made with the idea of expanding the overall project. The project would include the development of medical offices an complexes as well as multi-family dwellings, drug store facilities and convenience shops. The new services, he added, would be needed to complement the development of the hospital.

The developer said that in requesting rezoning of the entire tract, including the 21 acres, from Office and Institutional, Shopping Center, Medical Arts, and RA-20 to Office and Institutional, Shopping Center and Medical Arts, the project would actually be shifted further to the west. The RA-20 involved the 21 acre addition.

The shifting of the project westward would mean a realignment in the proposed route of Arlington Boulevard in the hospital area, it was pointed out, and City Engineer Charles Holliday asserted that the change should improve the Arlington route.

Clark told the commissioners that the addition of the 21 acres would result in more of the project being used for Medical Arts and Office and institutional zoning purposes than the original plan called for. The change in the project plans would move the shopping area further away from the hospital, he said.

He added that he hopes to initiate engineering and designing of streets in the area soon so that project construction can begin within the next year.

The joint body also gave its approval to a request by Mrs. Rosa Bradley for rezoning from Highway Commercial to Medical Arts of property located at the intersection of N. C. 11 and Greenfield Boulevard and will recommend to the City Council that the request be approved.

Mrs. Bradley requested in November that two lots at the intersection be rezoned to Medical Arts in order to construct a nursing home for the elderly. She requested last night that a third lot, located outside of the corporate limits, be rezoned to Medical Arts so that the nursing home project could be expanded.

She said that construction is expected to start soon on the nursing facility.

A request by Robert L. O'Neal to withdraw from dedication a portion of Cedar Street between Fourth and Fifth Streets was denied by the Greenville Planning and Zoning Commission. O'Neal reported that he planned to build apartments in the area, with one facing Cedar and a second facing Fourth Street.

Holliday said that Cedar Street, although dedicated for possible opening for public use, has never been opened. He added that the project would be expensive, involving a filling in of the low area near Fifth Street and requiring participation by property owners on Cedar.

Father Maurice Spillane, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church on Fourth Street, said that he felt the street should either be opened to help alleviate traffic near the Catholic School or left in dedication. Half of the property on Cedar is owned by the church.

Father Spillane said he was aware that if the street was removed from dedication, owners on both sides would receive the property, but he added that "we are interested in the safety of the children and in the traffic situation."

Commissioners also denied a request by David A. Evans Sr. for rezoning the intersection of 14th Street and U. S. 264 from RA-20, R-9, and Neighborhood Commercial to R-9, Highway Commercial, Shopping Center and Office and Institutional. Evans indicated that plans called for an office complex, a motel with convention facilities and a department store to be constructed in the area.

Several home owners in the proposed rezoning area attended the meeting and expressed their opposition to the request. Clark said that the developers were aware of problems relating to the request and asked that home owners in the area meet with the developers and discuss with them their objections.

Tom Reese, who lives on Nichols Drive, said that the general sentiment is that the property owners do not want the area developed commercially. Other property owners said that the area is in the middle of residential zoning and Joy Hayes of 204 Adams Boulevard said that rezoning of the tract would be a "gross example of strip zoning."

Following the show of opposition, Evans indicated that the request would be withdrawn. Commission chairman Earl Howell pointed out that since the matter was before the board, voting action would be necessary. The commission voted unanimously to deny the request.

The final plat of Marinsborough Square located adjacent to Country Club Apartments and Greenville Golf and Country Club was approved. (Continued on page 10)

Not Working

RALEIGH (AP) — A veteran legislator says the 1974 General Assembly is the most unproductive session he has seen and he blames it on annual legislative sessions.

"It's not working," said Rep. Dwight Quinn, D-Cabarrus, in an interview.

"We've been in session now nearly a month and a half and haven't settled any real issues so far," said Quinn. "In fact, we're getting further behind."

Quinn noted that 884 bills have been introduced in the House and Senate since the session began Jan. 16, but only 74 have been ratified.

"At the rate we're going annual sessions would amount to an almost continuous legislature," he said. "I don't regret that we tried annual sessions, but I think it would be a mistake to continue it."

Quinn who has served in the House since 1951, said he believes the legislature will adjourn by April 15, "but a lot of good legislation will be killed in the drive to adjournment. The present system simply is not working. We're not coming to grips with issues and keep putting them off. This is one of the weaknesses of annual sessions."

New Building To House Offices

The Eastern Regional Office of the N.C. State Department of Human Resources will be housed in a new building to be leased from a local realtor.

D. G. Nichols Real Estate presently is erecting a 13,760-squarefoot building at 404 St. Andrews Drive here next to the Beef Barn. When completed, hopefully within four months, the building will be regional headquarters for seven divisions of Human Resources—Health Services, Mental Health, Social Services, Vocational Rehabilitation, Developmental Disabilities, Blind Services, and Manpower. According to Assistant Secretary of Human Resources Ben Aiken, about 85 people will work here.

"The Department of Human Resources was divided into regional offices several months ago in response to concern that we should move services and the management of services closer to the recipients," Aiken said. "Most of the people working out of Greenville will be coming out of Raleigh. The ones that are already there have been scattered all over town and will be coming together in the new office. We'll be happy when it's ready."

William Friend of Greenville is architect for the building and J. Leo Hawkins is its general contractor. City of Greenville Building Permit records indicate the building will cost approximately $180,000.

Aiken said a five-year lease has been signed.

Legislators Turn To Banks, Loan Companies, Tax Returns

RALEIGH (AP)—With the East Carolina University medical school issue disposed of, at least temporarily, North Carolina legislators were able to turn their attention to other matters Wednesday.

Among those acted on were laws regulating banks, small loan companies, and joint tax returns.

The House, in a long afternoon session, gave final approval to a bill its sponsors said would tax the state's banks as other corporations are taxed.

The bill removes from banks the special state excise tax and replaces it with a corporate income tax, corporate franchise tax, intangibles tax, and other state taxes.

Whether the banks would pay their fair share depended on who was talking.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, said banks would be paying about $26,000 more in total taxes, although some revenue which now goes to the state would be directed toward local governments.

But Rep. Sneed High, D-Cumberland, said the bill gave banks an advantage over most corporations. This is because, he said, it would not place the intangibles tax on bank loans and on deposits banks maintain in other banks.

High said this would mean banks would pay $9 million less per year than would a corporation with similar assets.

High moved to amend the bill to impose those taxes on banks, but his amendment was defeated 75-21.

An hour later, the House amended and then sent to the Senate a bill to change the laws regulating small loan companies.

The amendment reduced the bill's interest ceiling on loans of less than $300 from three per cent to 2½ per cent per month. It is now 1½ per cent.

The bill's sponsor, Rep. H.M. Michaux, D-Durham, said the bill had benefits for both the loan companies and the consumers. In addition to interest rates, it raised the maximum principal on a small loan from $900 to $1,500.

Consumers would benefit, Michaux said, because of the bill's provisions prohibiting several practices which Michaux said have been used to victimize small borrowers.

The Senate, meanwhile, passed several House bills into law.

One, sponsored by Rep. Frank Redding, R-Randolph, implements one of the recommendations which the Governor's Efficiency Study Commission said would save the state $500,000 per year. It allows husbands and wives to file their tax returns on a single form, thus saving postage and handling costs. It does not affect tax returns on 1973 income, which North Carolinians are filling out now.

It also does not remove the state prohibition on joint tax returns.

The Senate also enacted into law a bill which makes it a crime for a prisoner on community leave to escape.

Previously, community leave programs were not recognized by state law, and a court had ruled in the case of one prisoner that he could not be ruled an escapee if he failed to return from a community leave.

In committee activity Wednesday, the Senate's environmental committee moved toward final action on the proposed coastal zoning bill.

The committee, in a two-hour meeting, caught up with its companion committee in the House by passing a series of House-approved amendments which environmentalists say would weaken the bill. Among them was an exemption for the state's utilities.

The Senate committee chairman, Sen. William Stator, D-Lee, scheduled a special meeting this afternoon at which he said he hoped to finish work on the bill.

The final major issue remaining to the committee is the composition of the proposed coastal resources commission, which would administer the authority the bill creates over coastal land development. (Continued on page 8)

Tell People Same Reasons

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: For reasons too numerous to mention I never learned how to drive a car and I don't care to. I have always provided my own transportation and have never imposed upon my friends to drive me places.

My problem is having to defend myself against people who first ask me how come I never learned how to drive, and then give me a long lecture on how "foolish" I am for not learning.

I feel it's really none of their business as long as I don't ask them to chauffeur me around. DOESN'T DRIVE

DEAR DOESN'T: Tell them—exactly the way you told me.

DEAR ABBY: I have some advice for Rosemary whose husband had "Helen" tattooed on his chest:

Don't worry. For the last three years I've been resting my head on my husband's chest every night, and I see "Patsy" staring me in the face. [My name is Marie.]

It was nothing serious—just a kid romance. He was 16, and she was 14 at the time. He says he wishes he could remove that tattoo now but it's too expensive and too painful, so I just keep reminding myself that I had three kids by a previous marriage when he married me so he must have loved me a lot.

He has been a wonderful husband to me, and a terrific father to my kids, so I'm not going to let a little thing like "Patsy" on his chest bother me. Sign me . . .

LUCKIER THAN PATSY

DEAR LUCKIER: You're luckier than you thought. I'm informed that Dr. Gary Manchester of San Diego came up with a new technique for removing unwanted tattoos. It's called "salabrasion," and it's supposedly the cheapest and easiest method, and leaves no scars. Briefly, it's done by rubbing table salt into the tattoo. [Don't try to do it yourself—consult a doctor!] It's approved by the California Medical Association. Now if your husband wants to salt Patsy away permanently, he can rub salt in the wound.

Local Alumni Support Campaign

GREENSBORO—Pitt County alumni are continuing their support of the 1973-74 Alumni Annual Giving Program of the University of North Carolina at Greensboro, according to the latest report by Mrs. Larry W. McAdams, 207 Cherrywood Dr., Greenville, county chairman.

The first phase of the campaign has now been completed, and Pitt County alumni have pledged or contributed $613 through Feb. 15, the report reveals. The alumni annual giving year will continue through June 30, and additional contributions may be made up through that date.

The Alumni Annual Giving Program is now in its 12th year at UNC-G, and the 1973-74 goal is to raise $175,000. Last year, the alumni contributed a record amount of $153,013. During the past 11 years, UNC-G alumni have given the institution more than $1,150,000.

Money contributed by alumni is used to support University programs not provided for by the state appropriations. These include Alumni Scholarships, and Alumni Professorship, Alumni Teaching Excellence Awards, campus beautification and other educational programs.

The Pitt County who helped conduct the first phase of the 1973-74 campaign are: Mrs. Lawrie Ellis, Winterville; Mrs. Charles Woodall, 1911 E. Eighth St., Mrs. Alton Ward, 104 Trade St., Mrs. J.D. Joyner, 409 Aztec Lane, Mrs. Stephen Gibson, 2700 Jefferson Dr., Mrs. Henry Johnston, 207 N. Harding St., Mrs. Tylon Kermon Jr., 202 York Rd., Mrs. Sidney Beacham, Carriage House Apt. 39, all of Greenville; and Mrs. E.E. Grubbs, County Club Acres, Ayden.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A long time ago someone figured out that if cows gave more milk when music was piped into the barn, think what it could do for a group of girls at their IBM Selectric.

Today, I defy you to find a corner of this world void of music. The question is, does music indeed soothe the savage beast? Or does it drive a person to a corner wall into a fetal position with his hands over his ears rocking back and forth.

Some of my friends who work in offices tell me something happens to a person who listens to Lester Lanin for 8½ hours. It's nothing personal about Lester, it's just that when you keep pace with 8½ hours of "Ebb Tide" played in a military march tempo, you are exhausted before lunch.

I had one friend, Wanda, who was awakened every morning by her clock radio and a disk jockey whose theme was a bouncy, "Everything's coming Up Roses." Her car pool had a radio nut who turned the volume up so loud he would sit through three lights before he realized his motor had died.

At work she was ushered in by violins strumming, "Begin the Beguine." On her lunch hour she shopped in a funky place where the decibels were so loud she had to read the salesperson's lips. She couldn't seem to escape it. Her dentist hung over her mouth while his drill kept time to a bossa nova. She ate her dinner at her favorite restaurant all the while buttering her roll in time with a Viennese waltz.

Her entire life was dominated by music. . . at the pool, in elevators, in restrooms, in planes, theater lobbies, and in churches.

She came to my house one afternoon and knocked desperately on the door. She looked terrible and I summoned her in. She hesitated. "Do you have your radio on?"

"No," I said. "Do you have stereo playing?"

"No," I repeated.

"Do you hum?" she asked, her eyes narrowing suspiciously.

I shook my head. "Then, maybe, just for a minute."

"Wanda," I said, "you've got to get hold of yourself. Music is supposed to calm a person. Why they even play soft music to get plants to grow."

"Did you ever see a plant with ears, Dummy?" she asked.

"Wait a minute! What's that?" she asked, her eyes shifting from one side to the other. "YOU DIDN'T TELL ME YOU HAD A BIRD!"

Poor Wanda. I didn't have the heart to tell her I didn't.

When buying eggs, if there is less than a 7 cent price spread between one size and the next smaller size in the same grade, you're probably getting a better bargain by picking the larger size.

Children's Home Society Is Resource For A Problem Pregnancy

A woman with a problem pregnancy has three alternatives. Deciding whether to keep the child, place him for adoption, or terminate the pregnancy by abortion will be one of the most important decisions she will face in her lifetime.

For instance, abortion— with all its philosophical, medical and legal aspects— has proved to be a public issue. It has consumed a great deal of time and energy on the part of legislators, news media and of both pro and anti-abortion citizens' groups.

The welfare of out-of-wedlock children is a public concern. Tax-paying citizens often bear, ultimately, the financial cost of taking care of a dependent child, whether through public foster care or AFDC (aid to families with dependent children). Even more important than the dollars and cents is the emotional need of every child for stability in his home life.

Many unwed pregnant women are unsure as to the choice they want to make. Even some who are married have mixed feelings about their pregnancies. Taking stock of her individual situation, sorting out her emotions to gain an objective perspective on her problem are obvious first steps toward a sound decision. But frequently, those first steps are traumatic.

They may seem insurmountable to a scared 15-year-old girl. Or to one whose college graduation is suddenly threatened. Or to the working woman whose career plans might have to be drastically changed. Or to women from countless other life situations.

If she needs help in considering all the options, it is important that a pregnant woman obtain that help as early in her pregnancy as possible.

A statewide resource of this kind of assistance is Children's Home Society of North Carolina. In its decades of working with thousands of women with a problem pregnancy, this volunteer-supported agency has developed professional experience in assisting clients from ages 12 to 46. During 1973, the Society provided services to 493 women from all walks of life. Skilled counseling on the three alternatives is available, without charge, anywhere in the state through the agency.

The Society's trained counselors do not make a woman's decision for her. They assist her in determining which is the best solution for her and in practical planning for whatever choice she makes.

The initial decision confronting her is whether to continue or terminate the pregnancy. The 1971 liberalization of the North Carolina abortion law and the 1973 Supreme Court ruling have eliminated legal concerns for the woman who might not want to give birth to the baby. Nonetheless, medical, financial and emotional factors weigh in her considerations. Quite often she needs objective, skilled help in assessing her own feelings, before she can reach a decision that will prove emotionally sound for her.

For the woman who continues her pregnancy, there are yet other concerns to resolve. Living arrangement until after the baby's birth. Continuing her education. Staying on the job. Good prenatal care, for the sake of her own health and that of the baby.

Does she want to keep her child? Does she have what it takes—financially and from the standpoint of maturity—to provide the kind of home and parenting she wants for her baby? What happens if she keeps the baby and things don't turn out as she had planned? Is there any prospect of a better future for her child, for herself?

What are the chances for her baby if she doesn't keep him? Newspapers are full of stories about the vast number of available adoptive homes for normal, white infants. Will her baby have a chance for an adoptive family if he's black or mixed race, if he has a physical handicap? Or if he's no longer a baby when she decides adoption would be best for him?

These are weight matters for that scared 15-year-old girl, and for many other pregnant women, to ponder alone.

Children's Home Society, a United Fund agency, works closely with school guidance counselors, physicians, public health nurses, local department of social services and other appropriate groups throughout the state to make counseling and related services readily available in all communities. In September 1972, the Society co-sponsored with six other public and private agencies a 2-day problem pregnancy seminar in Chapel Hill, featuring nationally-recognized authorities in this area of service. The seminar was attended by 550 North Carolina professional workers.

The Society's counselors offer skilled help and resources to the pregnant woman, at every step of the way. Counselors are on call at each of the agency's seven office locations—Asheville, Chapel Hill, Charlotte, Fayetteville, Greensboro, Greenville and Wilmington—and will travel to any point in the state for appointments. Appointments may be made by the client herself or through referral of a physician, minister or other appropriate professional.

In recent years the Society has been instrumental in setting up coordinated service for problem pregnancies in Charlotte, Greensboro and High Point. These cooperative efforts facilitate prompt availability of relevant services for pregnant women and aid in avoiding duplication and overlap of community resources.

At the March meeting, members will vote on the Pilot of the Year.

Group Program Held At Meet

Mrs. Paula Hodge directed the program at the meeting of the Greenville Chapter of the National Secretaries Association held Monday evening at the Ramada Inn.

She led the membership in a group discussion on the progress of the Greenville Chapter, goals which should be set and how to obtain the most from NSA.

Vice President Mary Quiggins conducted the business session. Plans have been started for activities to take place during National Secretaries Week April 21-27.

Mrs. Betty Andrews was welcomed as a guest for the meeting.

For a touch of elegance in the foyer or at a fireside, a finely carved stone pedestal and planter in classic Grecian design will make you the talk of the neighborhood. But if the 200-pound weight and price to match are a bit much, how about a version of same made of molded plastic? The copycat, cheaper version of the pedestal is a mere $14.40. The copycat, cheaper version of the urn is a mere $11.95.

Scars Before Nominees Chosen

Some unexpected turns took place in the political picture on the final day for filing, Monday.

In virtually the last hour before the noon deadline Nick Galifianakis became a candidate for the Democratic nomination, joining a field of candidates which includes Attny. Gen. Robert Morgan, Henry Hall Wilson. Others in the race include: Fred D. Chandley, John M. Ferrell II, Robert L. Hannon, William H. Hare, Mildred Keene, Charles B. Riddle.

Galifianakis who served as a U. S. representative, ran against the defeated B. Everett Jordan for the U. S. Senate Democratic nomination in 1972. However, he was defeated by Republican Jesse Helms for the U. S. Senate seat in the general election.

There had been speculation for some time as to whether Galifianakis would try to make a run for the seat which Ervin will vacate. The guessing game went on until Monday, when the word came that he was in.

That same day saw State Rep. William Stevens become a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Senate seat and this apparently set off another fight in the Republican party. Rep. Hamilton Horton had filed earlier feeling, that the governor would support him or remain neutral. When Stevens, came out, many believe with the governor's blessings, Horton withdrew in the interest of party harmony. It was not believed, though, that the withdrawal took place without hard feelings. Others in the Republican race are Lowery Carter, B. E. Sweatt and W. Hall Young.

So, while there might not be a bitter primary fight on the Republican side for the Senate nomination, there is very likely bitterness before the campaign even starts.

On the Democratic side there could be a bitter fight with Morgan and Galifianakis and Henry Hall Wilson in the race.

Thus both parties could have scars once their nominees are chosen. With a two-party system now firmly entrenched in North Carolina politics, it is considered essential that a united front be presented once the primaries are over and the campaigning begins for the general election. On this score, there may be trouble ahead for both parties.

Rescue Squads Not So Happy

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Some members of volunteer rescue units across the state are unhappy with new state rules requiring them to attend classes.

They are telling their legislators about that, and the head of the state's fledgling Emergency Medical Services division says the reaction is "killing the whole program."

At the heart of the controversy is a state requirement that ambulance attendants take up to 81 hours of formal instruction in patient handling.

A licensing test will also be used, and Emergency Services Chief Jim Page argues that, "You can get all the ambulances in the world, and if you don't have trained people to operate them, it's no good."

Misunderstanding

Page is high in praise of the volunteer units in North Carolina and said much of the flap is a simple misunderstanding.

The training requirements affect only the man riding in the passenger compartment, and prior training can be used for credit. The men also have two years in which to complete the requirements.

Misunderstanding or not, the reaction is serious.

Already, a bill has been introduced in the Senate which would exempt members of volunteer rescue squads in Cleveland, Gaston, Lincoln, and Rutherford counties from the state regulations.

Pressure is being put on lawmakers in some other counties to join in the exemption move.

Rescue squad members argue that they are volunteers; that they must work for a living and have neither the time nor the educational background to take the training courses and to pass the written tests.

Page admitted there is also an element of resistance

Demos Fear A Blood-Letting

By JOHN KILGO

The Democrats were hoping it wouldn't come down to this—and the Republicans feel they might have a chance after all.

We're talking about the race for the U.S. Senate from North Carolina. The Democrats have a full stable set to run, while the Republicans will hand the nomination to State Rep. William Stevens of Lenoir.

When Nick Galifianakis got into the Senate race just before the filing deadline Monday, it all but assured the Democrats of a hotly-contested primary, with a runoff almost certain to come.

Attorney General Robert Morgan told a friend recently that he hoped Galifianakis wouldn't make the Senate race.

"I think I can beat him," Morgan said, "but it'll make the campaign more expensive."

Galifianakis has a burning desire to serve in the U.S. Senate. He had to figure that if he couldn't make it this time, he wouldn't ever make it. His problem will be raising enough money to put on a good campaign, and going back to the voters so soon after his defeat in 1972 at the hands of Jesse Helms.

Although Bill Hare and Mildred T. Keene are also in the Senate race, the real battle should be among Morgan, Galifianakis and Henry Hall Wilson. It could get mean before it's over.

Some Galifianakis supporters are angry with

To the editor:

The Public Affairs Department of the Tarboro Womens Club put a motion on the floor of the February 19 meeting that the Tarboro Womens Club support the proposed Four Year Medical School at East Carolina University. With 45 members in attendance this was unanimously approved.

We feel that there is a need in Eastern Carolina for a continuation of the One Year Medical School and there is certainly a need in the state for more doctors and health services. The opportunity for better medical services should not be overlooked. The idea that there are communities or towns in North Carolina without a doctor or health services is very distressing.

Adequate medical care for all North Carolina citizens should not or ever be a political debate or a prestige symbol. It is our feeling that the Four Year Medical School at East Carolina University would help in alleviating some problems that face our state.

Strength For Today

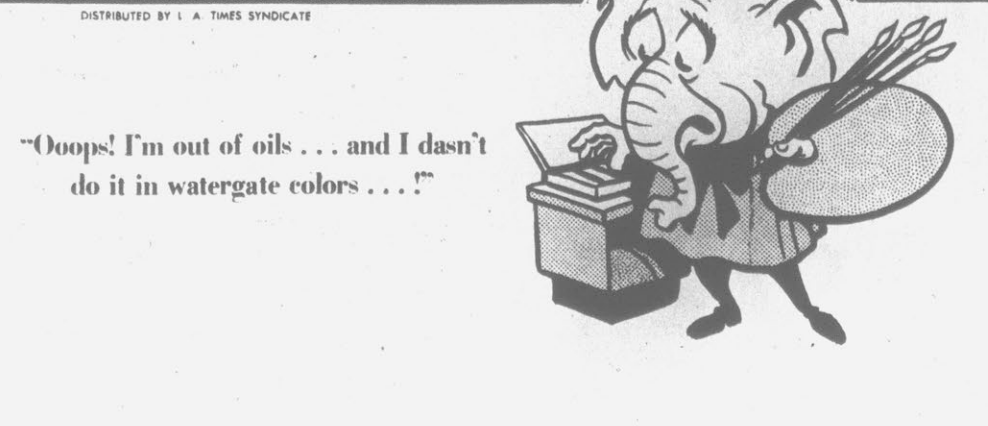

PRAYER FOR THE ENEMY

"And pray for those who despitefully use you..."—for the man who takes mean advantage of you; for the person who wilfully inconveniences you, for the woman who talks behind your back telling malicious lies in the hope of damaging your reputation, for the bank official who will not renew your loan, for the boss in the office or mill who has it in for you and rides you without mercy.

Certainly praying for people of this type seems to be an almost impossible task; but then, few of Jesus's injunctions are easy. Christ did not come to make life easy, but to make it rich. But hard as it is, prayer of this type might have two very beneficial results. It might change the attitude of the other person. Perhaps he has secretly regarded us as the enemy. The change in our attitude, resulting from prayer, might lead him to see us as a friend. And even if this does not happen, Christ will be with us in prayer and enable us to rise above the spite and malice of hateful and bitter souls.

To the editor:

The North Carolina Department of Human Resources has recently launched a program to identify those low-income households which are probably eligible for the federal food assistance program. "Find and Feed" is the Division of Social Services' codename for the project which will hopefully go a long way towards reaching those who are not involved in the food stamp program at this time. According to a U.S. Senate report in 1973, 70 per cent of the eligible families in North Carolina were not involved in the program.

The Pitt County League of Women Voters has recently become involved in implementing this all-volunteer program, which seeks as part of its goal to make information about the food stamp program available, where it is needed, and in general to create a greater public awareness concerning this opportunity. In addition, the goal includes a concerted effort to canvass households in low-income areas throughout the county to identify as many of the 70 per cent as possible.

This letter is aimed at informing community people and government representatives who are in a position to facilitate or to be of some assistance in this volunteer effort. We see it as one vehicle to achieve this greater public awareness as well as soliciting volunteers who are willing to go out and spend some time canvassing door-to-door. As volunteer coordinators we will be most happy to speak with anyone about this project and to discuss ways in which you or your organization might become involved in either publicity or canvassing. For your interest and information we have enclosed a copy of one of our pamphlets.

In closing, we urge you or your group to be in touch so that we might make this "Find and Feed" program the successful effort which it needs to be, so that the low-income families of this county are made aware of a great opportunity to supplement their present food budgets.

Sincerely,
Rick Cagan

President Nixon proposed the pay raise, 7.5 per cent a year, to boost congressional pay to $52,800 in 1976. The package includes similar 22.5 per cent, three-year raises for the judiciary and for executive branch appointees, some 10,000 people in all.

It is all part of a system created in 1967. Under that law, a nine-member advisory commission examines the congressional, executive and judicial pay structure every four years, and recommends any changes it deems warranted.

In turn, the President makes his recommendation, effective in 30 days unless either branch of Congress votes to reject it. In this case, the deadline is March 6 of a congressional election year, and a rejection vote appears likely.

When the commission plan was enacted, everybody seemed insulated, Congress by the presidential judgment as to what its salary level should be, and the President by the guidance of the salary commission recommendations.

Actually, the current commission voted 7 to 2 for an immediate 25 per cent pay raise, emphasizing the need for higher pay to attract and keep federal judges and top civil servants. Nixon recommended somewhat less and spread it over three years, noting that the government has been asking private industry employees to forego big increases.

All Congress had to do was nothing, and the raise would have taken effect. But there was pressure for a vote, particularly among senators who are going to be candidates in November. The result could be rejection of the whole package, although a formula awaiting Senate action would drop only the congressional raise.

Statistically, if not politically, there are strong arguments for the increase. The officials involved have not had a raise since 1969. In that period, as one House member noted, civil service employees have had raises totaling 36.5 per cent, average wages in comparable private employment have gone up 28 per cent, and the cost of living has increased 28.4 per cent. Having offered those figures, the congressman announced his opposition to any pay raise.

The package pay plan has created another problem since, by law, the top civil service salary cannot exceed the bottom pay rung for appointed officials. That has stalled salaries for career government executives at $36,000 a year, and has some bosses and subordinates at the same pay level.

Kennedy Papers Opened

By DICK BRAUDE
Associated Press Writer
WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Russian diplomats bypassed the State Department and made their first contact with President-elect John F. Kennedy in 1960 through his brother, Robert, according to newly opened documents.

Most of the 10,000 documents in Robert F. Kennedy's files at the Federal Records Center which were opened to public inspection Wednesday dealt with the 1960 campaign and its immediate aftermath.

Some also focused on civil rights issues during Robert Kennedy's tenure as attorney general.

The Russian liaison dates from Dec. 12, 1960, when Robert Kennedy lunched with Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov, at the Russian's invitation.

Kennedy summarized the meeting, the first of many between the President's brother and the Russians, in a Dec. 18 memorandum to Dean Rusk, who was to become secretary of state.

Kennedy told Rusk in the memo that Menshikov wanted the President-elect to know that Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev "admired Sen. Kennedy's intelligence and vigor and believed that it was now possible to have a clear and friendly understanding between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S."

The memo also quoted the Soviet ambassador as saying that the Soviet Union "had no objection to Berlin remaining free under the United Nations."

Robert Kennedy said he was asked by the Russian diplomat to arrange a personal meeting between the President-elect and Khrushchev, but Kennedy said he told Menshikov his brother would not consent to a summit meeting "until there were agreements at a lower level."

Majority Of Public Still Opposed To Gas Rationing

By GEORGE GALLUP
(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

PRINCETON, N.J.—By the margin of 53 to 37 per cent, the American people vote against gas rationing, with current views virtually the same as those recorded in an early January survey.

The chief reason for opposing such a law is the belief on the part of some that the fuel shortage is not serious enough to warrant the rationing of gasoline. Others worry that rationing would involve too much red tape, or that such a law would not work in an equitable manner. Still others fear that rationing might encourage black marketeering.

Those in favor of a gas-rationing law maintain that this would be the only fair way of distributing gas. Others feel that such a law would eliminate the present long lines of motorists waiting for gas and would bring order out of chaos. Still others express the hope that rationing might reduce the price of gas.

Following is the question asked:

"Do you favor or oppose a law requiring gas rationing?"

Here are the latest results:

Gas Rationing Law (February)

Favor 37%
Oppose 53
No Opinion 10

By way of comparison, here are earlier findings based on the January survey:

How Standby Plan Would Work

A standby gas rationing plan was announced by the Federal Energy Office earlier this year. Under that plan, an average of 32 to 35 gallons per month would be allowed for each driver 18 years old or older—the distribution formula depending on gas supplies, where the driver lives, the availability of public transportation, and other factors. Each licensed driver, 18 or over, would be mailed a card that can be used to pick up coupons. A charge of $1 for each monthly packet of coupons would be imposed, to help cover the estimated $1.4 billion annual cost of running the rationing system.

Simon Opposes Gas Rationing

Although some energy and economic advisers feel that gas rationing is the best quick solution, federal energy chief William E. Simon does not hold this view.

Last Sunday Simon said he was certain the government's new gasoline allocation program would shorten lines at service stations and that fuel rationing would not be needed. Simon also expressed the view that rationing would not work and that, if Congress passed a bill requiring rationing, he would ask President Nixon to veto it. Simon's opposition to rationing stems from the belief that it would "put a great many rigidities in a very complex economy."

Energy Crisis Chief Worry In All Regions of Nation

Current views on gas rationing are recorded at a time when the energy crisis and fuel shortages are the chief worries of the American people, not only nationwide but in each of the four major regions of the nation.

Rt. Rev. Elebash Will Preside At Convention

BISHOP ELEBASH

The Right Rev. Hunley A. Elebash, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina, will preside at the 1974 convention of the Diocese in Greenville Friday and Saturday.

The convention will be held on the campus of East Carolina University with St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Greenville as host parish.

All the business meetings and meals will be held in South Cafeteria at ECU, as well as the opening communion service Friday at 11 a.m. Bishop Elebash will be the celebrant and will give his annual address to the convention.

Ted Gartman, general chairman of local arrangements, said, "We chose to have the session in the cafeteria building because it will seat the 400 delegates and visitors. Since school is in recess, there will be adequate parking.

Business included reports from departments and commissions, resolutions, and election of officers. There will be a service of Holy Communion at St. Paul's Church Saturday morning.

There will be a special youth session Saturday evening, according to the Rev. Jess Gaither, Diocesan Youth Director.

St. Paul's pastor, the Rev. Pat Houston said, "We have an aggressive and capable committee of St. Paul's members working on the arrangements. It looks like it will be an exceedingly enjoyable time in fellowship, as well as a profitable one for the business of the church."

Workers on the planning committee include Ted Gartman, general chairman; Carl and Anne Wade, registration; Dr. Bob Irwin, chairman for worship and music; Bob Messner, physical arrangements; and Mrs. Joe Davis and Mrs. Billy Jones, banquet arrangements.

Police Revolt

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP) — Argentina's second largest city was all but paralyzed today as some 800 rebel police officials held the leftist provincial governor and vice governor captive in a police communications center.

Right-wing groups apparently supporting the police rebellion were seen carrying out armed searches of leftists' homes. Two powerful bombs exploded, partially destroying a newspaper printing press and a judge's home, police sources said.

Scattered gunfire was heard in various parts of Cordoba as leaders of a moderate Peronist group threatened a citywide strike in support of the police.

Rush Is On To Buy Gold Coins

By MALCOLM N. CARTER

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — With most of her life savings in her pocketbook, a 42-year-old waitress joined the growing number of Americans who are lining up at coin dealers to convert the dollar into gold as a hedge against inflation.

"I wish I had done this three weeks ago," the woman said, confessing she was hardly a hoarder. "But I'm learning."

With inflation continuing and gold prices soaring, the city's biggest coin dealers report that Americans are buying gold frantically, wildly and voluminously. By law, Americans can own gold only as collectors.

"We can't even handle the volume any more," said Luis Vigdor, coin manager at Manfra, Tordella & Brookes Inc. at Rockefeller Center. "I've never seen a situation like this."

Benjamin Stack, a partner at Stacks Coin Co., the nation's oldest and biggest, termed the situation "madness." "Every now and then you get a traditional collector," he said, adding that new consumers of gold coins were mainly professional persons, "who are aware of what is taking place."

Wednesday, U.S. $20 pieces were going for $360. Two days earlier, the price was $330. And just two weeks earlier, it was $260.

"It's not only here," he said. "I speak to dealers all over, and it's nationwide."

"Who wants paper?" he asked. "What the hell are you going to do with it?"

Legislators...

Sen. Kenneth Royall, D-Durham said Wednesday he has prepared an amendment which would give coastal local governments the right to nominate 10 of the commission's proposed 15 members. The governor would then appoint members from the list of nominees.

Coastal legislators who oppose the bill, however, said Wednesday that Royall's amendment still leaves too much discretion to the governor, who would appoint all 15 members as the bill is now written.

They indicated that while the committee might accept Royall's amendment, they will fight it on the floor of the Senate, where several environmental bills have been killed in the 1973-74 session.

In the Joint Insurance Committee, Insurance Commissioner John Ingram clashed with insurance companies over a proposal for "file and use" insurance rating in the state.

The bill would allow insurance companies to set their own rates for insurance policies, subject to regulation only if they are excessively high or low.

Under the current system, Ingram must approve all rate changes. Ingram said the proposal would raise insurance costs in the state, while the companies said the effect of competition would lower them if the bill is enacted.

Killer Walked Out Unnoticed

RALEIGH (AP)—State mental health officials say an error in judgment permitted a mental patient convicted of killing two women to walk unnoticed from North Carolina Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill.

The director of forensic services at Dorothea Dix Hospital, Dr. Robert Rollins, said Wednesday that hospital employees made an incorrect assessment in sending Thomas Edgerton to Memorial Hospital with no security guard.

Edgerton had been sentenced in Pamlico County to life in a mental institution for the murder of his wife and mother-in-law.

OUT OF HOSPITAL
MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Singer Sammy Davis Jr. has been released from Mt. Sinai Hospital after hospitalization for what was diagnosed as a gastrointestinal disorder.

Ethiopia's Rebellious Military Win Most Demands

By ANDREW TORCHIA
Associated Press Writer
ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia
(AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie named a new prime minister and granted broad military pay raises today in a move to end an enlisted men's revolt that has swept Ethiopia. The emperor, broadcasting to the nation, said he asked Endalkachew Makonnen to form a new government. Makonnen is a popular figure and was minister of telecommunications.

It appeared that Ethiopia's 40,000-man military forces got most of what they wanted following three days of nonviolent rebellion against the government of Akiilu Haptewold which resigned Wednesday after four generals failed to negotiate an end to the mutiny.

Instead, the rebels in Asmara, in northern Ethiopia, took three of the generals hostage and sent the fourth one back to Addis Ababa with new demands.

The emperor said the base pay for privates would be raised to $56 a month, from $50. The ceiling for privates would be raised to $75, and other ranks would receive proportionate increases. The dissidents had asked a base pay of $75 a month.

The 82-year-old emperor said no reprisals would be taken against the rebels, and appealed for calm.

The government accused Somalia, Ethiopia's neighbor to the east and southeast, of massing troops along the border to inflame the situation. Military units from near Addis Ababa headed south and east, and official sources reported skirmishes between Ethiopian soldiers and Somalis who crossed into Ethiopia's oil-bearing Ogaden desert.

Somalia has long claimed more than a quarter of eastern Ethiopia, much of it desert inhabited by nomads of Somali tribes.

The army mutiny broke out on Tuesday in Asmara, the nation's second largest city, among the 10,000-man 2nd Division, who constitute nearly a fourth of the army. It spread Wednesday to the navy in Massawa, north of Asmara, and then to other army units in eastern Ethiopia and the air force.

The rebels seized key buildings in Asmara and military installations elsewhere, but only one incident of violence was reported so far. Some fighting was reported when the rebels took over the air force headquarters at Debre Zeit, 20 miles from Addis Ababa.

The mutineers' chief initial demand was for a 50 per cent pay boost, to $75 a month for enlisted men. They vowed that they were loyal to the emperor, but informed sources said their program gradually took the shape of an assault on the government's handling of inflation and the famine that killed an estimated 100,000 persons in the wake of a severe drought.

Addis Ababa, torn by street disorders and strikes a week ago, was quiet despite rumors of an imminent rebel take-over in the capital. Isolated stone-throwing incidents were reported, one involving a United States Embassy car. The embassy advised Americans to stay in their homes.

Says Movie A Disservice

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Former Astronaut James A. Lovell, commander of the near-tragic Apollo 13 space flight, says a TV movie based on the 1970 mission is "fictitious and in poor taste."

Lovell aired his complaints about the ABC-TV movie, "Houston, We've Got a Problem," in a letter to Dr. James C. Fletcher, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

"NASA did a disservice to the flight crew and ground personnel connected with Apollo 13 by cooperating fully with this film," Lovell said. "I resent the mixing of fact and fiction. If NASA wanted exposure of this nature, the story should have been based on a fictitious space flight."

The movie, to be shown Saturday, is billed as a tribute to the men of Mission Control who helped get Lovell and fellow astronauts Fred W. Haise Jr. and John L. Swigert Jr. back to earth.

The mission was launched April 11, 1970. After an explosion in the service module, a planned moon landing was canceled and the crippled spacecraft limped back to earth.

"The safe return of Apollo 13 was one of NASA's finest hours. The people who made that feat possible deserve a more accurate recounting of the story."

Herman Saunders, executive producer of the film for Universal Studios, Hollywood, said he made it clear from the beginning that the story would be fictitious. He said disclaimers were added to the film to emphasize the fictitious nature of the movie.

Holding Juvenile Justice Talks

A conference "The North Carolina Child in Trouble" designed to generate new insights about changing juvenile justice in the state will be held Thursday, March 21, at 9:30 a.m. at the Allied Health Building here.

This is one of five such conferences being held throughout the state—in Durham, Greensboro, Charlotte, Boone, and Greenville.

This series is being sponsored by the N.C. League of Women Voters and is supported by a grant from the N.C. Committee for Continuing Education in the Humanities. For more information, one should contact the local chairman, Mary Alice Yarborough, 756-7642.

His Transmitter Was Turned On

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—A man woke just before dawn Wednesday and wondered why there were airplanes and a helicopter overhead, and searchers trampling through the woods near his home outside Greensboro.

Authorities told him—an emergency transmitter such as used by a downed airplane had been traced to his home.

They said the embarrassed man gave this account: He had ordered the transmitter, intending to install it in his plane to comply with the law. "He got it in the mail, opened it up and looked at it, and put it away without realizing he had turned it on," said Sheriff Paul Gibson.

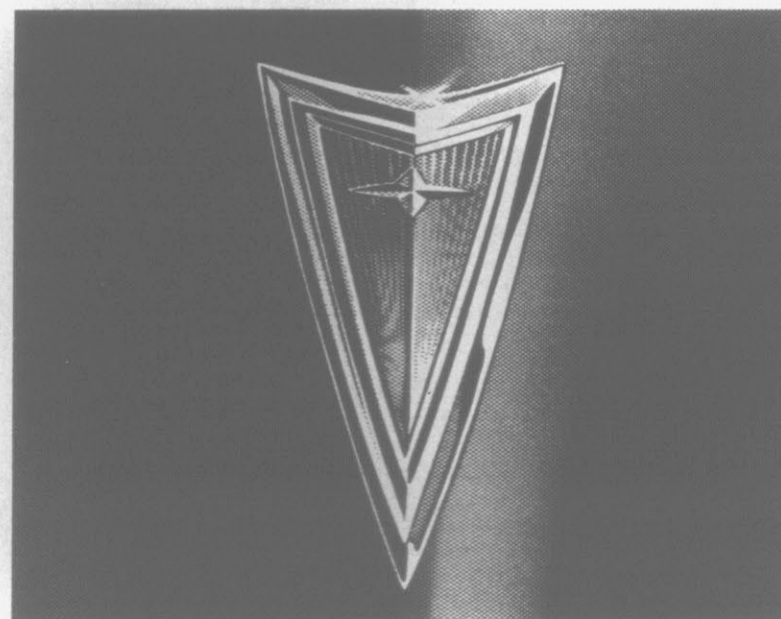

Driver Charged In Collision

Catherine Hogan Potter of 207 Harmony St. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of an 8:20 a.m. mishap yesterday at the intersection of Greenville Boulevard and Hooker Road.

Officers said the Potter car collided with a vehicle driven by Charles Randy Collier of Route 8, Greenville causing an estimated $150 damage to the Collier car and about $200 damage to the Potter vehicle. No injuries were reported.

When Pontiac says it's time to buy, it's time to listen.

Pontiac has always been dedicated to doing our best to provide our customers with fine automobiles possessing the best possible combination of style, performance, comfort, economy and value. An example of that dedication is the result of our fuel economy testing. At 55 miles per hour, the Catalina Sedan averaged 18.1 miles per gallon.* We sincerely believe there's never been a better time to buy a new full-size Pontiac.

Take a few minutes to consider all the good reasons for buying a Catalina, Bonneville or Grand Ville now!

Pontiac means comfort, not just space.

Even the lowest priced car sold in America has space. But does it have enough space for your family? Is the space comfortable? Is there enough space for the things you and your family want to take along?

Pontiac full-sized cars offer you space for your family. And makes it comfortable. The seat construction, the padding, the upholstery fabrics are superb. Our attention to detail is evident in even the smallest appointment.

Pontiac means innovative engineering

And innovative engineering means a lot to Pontiac owners.

It means being first to offer features like disappearing windshield wipers, hidden radio antenna and the new adjustable brake and accelerator pedals.

But they all add up to what happens when you get behind the wheel of a Pontiac.

We are confident that if you stack a new Pontiac against any other car on the road, you'll take the Pontiac.

Pontiac means quality.

Pontiac believes in building a car that's more than just adequate. That's why we put in insulation that helps insulate against not only noise, but also against moisture, leaks, dirt, heat, cold and corrosion.

That's why we also go to the trouble of building in wear indicators for lower ball joints and disc brake linings. And use high-quality acrylic lacquer finishes. And hand-fit our upholstery.

That's why we have full foam seats with integral spring construction. And inner liners on all fenders to help guard against abrasion and corrosion.

Pontiac means a feeling of security.

Pontiac incorporates a number of safety-related features.

For instance, improved front and new rear energy-absorbing bumper systems. A new combined lap and shoulder belt restraint system to provide increased occupant protection. An energy-absorbing steering column. And Side-Guard door beams.

Pontiac thinks you, your passengers and your automobile are worth protecting. And we're trying to do the best job we know how of giving you that protection.

Pontiac means a dealer you can depend on.

You depend on your dealer for a lot of important things. Like giving you a fair deal. And making sure your car is properly serviced.

At Pontiac we're proud of our dealers, their facilities and their service. And we think you'll be very pleased with the kind of treatment your Pontiac dealer gives you.

Pontiac says it's time to buy.

You may be concerned about buying a full-sized car right now. And you don't want to be crowded into a car you can't live with.

You're also concerned with the energy situation. So is Pontiac.

But we know that with proper maintenance and sensible driving you can own the Pontiac you want to own.

*Results of recent Pontiac fuel economy tests show an average of 18.1 miles per gallon for the Catalina Sedan at a steady speed of 55 miles per hour (maximum Federal limit).

Engineers conducted the tests at our Proving Ground. Cars were equipped with popular options but air conditioning was turned off. In all tests, cars carried the weight of two passengers. Of course the mileage you will get depends upon how and where you drive.

Your Pontiac dealer has also felt the effects of the energy situation. This obviously puts him in a position to offer you a deal he may never be able to offer again.

So if it takes a full-sized car to meet your needs, it makes good sense to see your Pontiac dealer now.

There has never been a better time to buy a new Pontiac.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices slipped back steadily today under the pressure of profit taking after a two-week rally. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 6.49 at 856.93, and losers outnumbered gainers by about 3-to-2 in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said a downward adjustment in prices had been almost overdue since the sharp runup that carried the Dow from a Feb. 11 close of 803.90 to above the 860 level. "Any time you get such a rapid advance, some retracing is normal," said William Nelson at Moody's Investors Service. "I thought it might have pulled back a little even before this."

Walter Kilde was the Big Board's most-active stock, down 3/4 at 15 3/4. A block of 120,000 shares of the stock changed hands at 15 1/4.

Among today's largest percentage losers were numerous stocks hit by profit taking in the wake of substantial recent gains. Farah Manufacturing, a sharp gainer during the last three days after the company had settled a labor dispute, dipped 7/8 to 10 3/4.

Holly Sugar was dv7 1 at 17 1/2. Copper Range slid 1 1/2 to 29 3/4, and Kennecott dropped 1 1/2 to 42 1/2. Stocks of companies with commodities holdings had been among the best performers during the rally.

L.E. Myers dipped 1 to 8 on top of a 2 1/2-point slide Wednesday. The company reported lower 1973 operating earnings and reduced its dividend. Precious metals issues continued to slip back. International Mining was down 1 1/2 at 17 1/2. Callahan Mining dropped 1 to 17, and Giant Yellowknife, on the American Stock Exchange, lost 1 to 20.

The Amex volume leader was Reserve Oil & Gas, down 1/2 at 7 3/4, in trading that included an 87,600-share block at 7 1/4. The Amex's 11 a.m. market value index was down .05 at 97.32. The NYSE composite index of all its listed common stocks fell .21 to 51.43.

Warns Against Tax Cut Bill

RALEIGH (AP) — The General Assembly's fiscal research expert has cautioned the Senate Finance Committee against a House-passed tax cut package. "I think the general fund needs its current revenue," said Frank Justice as he told the legislators the tax cut package would cost the state more than $100 million a year after five years.

That's as much as the "combined current annual yield from the cigarette, soft drink, license and insurance taxes," Justice said. He added that it's as much as "the combined annual operating appropriations of our five largest universities—the University of North Carolina, North Carolina State University, East Carolina University, University of North Carolina at Greensboro and Appalachian University."

The tax cut package would phase out the inventory tax over five years by allowing manufacturers, retailers and wholesalers to credit their inventory tax payments to cities and counties against their state income taxes. The bill also would give persons with gross incomes of $4,000 or less an additional $2,000 income tax exemption and would give a $3,000 exemption to persons over 65 with a gross income of $10,000 or less. Also cautioning over approval of the tax package was J. Howard Coble, state commissioner of revenue. He said he feared the state's Rezoning...

The commission had requested the developer, Pat Thomas of Thomas Realty Co., to provide some type of traffic circulation plan for Club Way drive since the street came to a dead-end adjoining the condominium project site.

The final plan included a cul-de-sac for turning around and one entrance to the project near the cul-de-sac. Holliday reported that the plans met subdivision guidelines with open space requirements exceeded and parking provisions almost twice the amount called for in the regulations.

A request by Calvary Baptist Church for rezoning from Unoffensive Industry to Office and Institutional of church property at 1412 Holbert Street was tabled. City Planner John Schofield said that the church requested the rezoning in order that a bookstore be opened within the church for the purpose of selling religious material to members of the congregation.

Schofield recommended that the commission look at the general area with the idea of possibly changing some or all of the Unoffensive Industry zoning. Land use in the area is mixed, he said.

The commission denied a request by North Carolina National Bank as trustee for James H. Ward and W. S. Moye Jr. for rezoning 14 acres located on Memorial Drive and bordered by Sedgefield Drive and Dexter Street. Rezoning was requested from R-15 to Office and Institutional.

James Cheatham, attorney representing the NCNB Trust Department, said that the property owners have no immediate plans for development of the land but he noted that the feeling of the owners was that Office and Institutional zoning would be desirable and would act as a buffer zone between residential development along Sedgefield and the nearby commercial zone.

Cheatham asserted that the property is not compatible for residential usage because of the close proximity of the area to commercial development. Property owners in the area voiced their opposition to the rezoning last night and several pointed out that they were assured when they purchased sites for homes on Sedgefield that the area would be restricted to residential usage.

A revised final plat of Greenbriar Subdivision received the approval of the commission when David Evans Sr., appearing in the absence of his son, informed the board that 30 feet would be dedicated to the city for the development of Arlington Boulevard as an 80-foot section. Evans said that eight lots owned along the proposed street would be revamped to allow for the 30-foot dedication.

The developers had hoped to give 15 feet on the one side of the street and property owners on the other side give 15 feet but this arrangement was not satisfactory, Evans said, so the 30 feet will be dedicated on the Greenbriar Subdivision side.

North Korea Is Charged With Act Of Piracy
PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP) — The United Nations Command accused North Korea today of a "clear act of piracy" in the sinking of a South Korean fishing boat and the capture of another in the Yellow Sea Feb. 15.

United States Maj. Gen. William E. McLeod, speaking for the command, strongly denied North Korea's charges that the boats were spying in its territorial waters at the instigation of "American imperialist aggressors."

The general also demanded that North Korea admit its mistake and return the 12 crewmen now detained in the North.

But the North Korean delegate, Maj. Gen. Kim Poongsup, repeated Pyongyang's position that the skipper of the captured boat and two other crewmen had confessed they had been spying under instructions from South Korea's Central Intelligence Agency.

Rule Gunshot Self-Inflicted

Braxton of Pineview Trailer Park was found dead in his car in a wooded area off the Port Terminal Road near his home about 3:30 p.m. Monday. He had been shot in the head with a .12 gauge shot gun. Harvey, who said Braxton had been dead four to five hours when found, reported that Braxton had purchased the shot gun from a local hardware store Monday morning.

Milk Co-Op's Attorney Tells Of Illegal 'Gift'

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A milk co-operative lawyer says a $100,000 Nixon campaign contribution in 1969 illegally came from corporate funds. The money previously had been described as an intended payoff for "sympathetic understanding of the dairy industry problems."

Milk Producers, Inc., says AMPI made an illegal $100,000 contribution to the Committee to Re-elect the President.

A Jan. 21, 1974, letter from Heinger to lawyer Kenneth Parkinson of Washington, D.C., discloses an intricate series of transactions about the contribution, which predated President Nixon's controversial decision in 1971 to increase milk price supports.

District Demo Hearing Slated

Pitt County Democratic Executive Committee Chairman Henry Oglesby today urged all county Democrats to attend and participate in public hearings Saturday on the plan of organization for the party.

All Democrats, Oglesby said, are urged to attend the hearing and voice their opinions. "It is an excellent opportunity for all Democrats to contribute to the party," he noted.

Counties composing the First Congressional District in addition to Pitt are: Beaufort, Bertie, Camden, Carteret, Chowan, Craven, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Greene, Hertford, Hyde, Jones, Lenoir, Martin, Pamlico, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Tyrrell and Washington.

The hearings for the First Congressional District will be held at the Pitt County Court House at 10 a.m. According to Oglesby, the Plan of Organization Study Committee has devised a rough draft of proposals which will form the basis for discussion at the hearings.

Drowned Out By Natives

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — Several hundred aborigines drowned out the national anthem as Queen Elizabeth II arrived at Parliament House today. And later as she was opening Parliament, another aborigine held two officials at gunpoint four miles away.

Parliament House, an armed aborigine entered the office of the Department of Aboriginal Affairs, pulled a gun on two officials there, and demanded that Charles Perkins, a senior officer in the department, be brought to him.

The Mitchell reference was to former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell.

Perkins, who is part aborigine, was suspended from his post on Monday for calling the opposition Liberal and Country parties racist. Police brought him to the office, and he persuaded the gunman to surrender to the police. They took him away for questioning. The Queen interrupted her tour today and left for England to receive the results of the general election being held today and to designate a new prime minister.

The Queen and her husband, Prince Philip, displayed no displeasure when the aborigines' chanting of "land rights now" drowned out "God Save the Queen" as the royal couple walked up the steps of Parliament House.

The Queen, in her speech written by Australia's Labor government, said the government would eliminate legislation discriminating against the aborigines and would pass legislation to grant land rights to aborigines in the Northern Territory. The aborigines want to be able to get title to land rather than being settled on reserves or in settlements where the government owns the land.

Furman, Richmond Take Wins In Unimpressive Tourney Games

By WOODY PEELE
 Reflector Sports Editor
 RICHMOND, Va.—What it was supposed to be was basketball. But any similarity was purely coincidental.

In the opening round of the Southern Conference Tournament here last night, top-seeded Furman downed Appalachian, 71-50, and Richmond bested VMI 69-59.

Neither game was an outstanding one. Appalachian State tried to slow the ball down and did, but only at their end of the court. And in the second half, Furman couldn't take advantage of a good thing.

VMI outplayed Richmond on defense, but couldn't hit the basket with a broom, shooting only 34.5 per cent for the game. Richmond, struggling with VMI's defense, couldn't break the backs of the Keydets, however, and the slim crowd of 2,292 who attended suffered along with them.

Richmond, with the greater height, wasn't able to control the boards, either, as VMI got 45, and the Spiders had 44.

Despite the poor pace of the first game, both Furman and ASU hit 50 per cent of their shots. And Appalachian, surprisingly outbounded Furman, too, 43-35.

Appalachian State came out in a stall to open the first half, and it turned the game into a dull. When the Mountaineers had the ball, they wouldn't shoot, and when they did, big Moose Leonard blocked their first two. They went through the first ten minutes with only a free throw by Al Gentry, and didn't make a field goal until 9:10 showed in the half. They made only six more in the half, the next coming with 5:09 left.

In the meantime, Furman was using the outside shooting of Ed Kelly to get on the boards. Kelly hit eight of the first 14 Paladins points, including the first two. Bruce Grimm got one out of the corner and Leonard followed with a couple from underneath.

Kelley hit two more to run it out to 14-1 before the first ASU basket.

Furman continued to pull away, easily building up as much as a 22-point lead in the half. It reached that when Mike Hall hit with 1:58 left for a 30-10 lead.

Mark Campbell and Kit Boone scored the final six points of the half for the Mountaineers cutting the lead to 30-16 as some of the sloppiness began to rub off on the Paladins.

The biggest mystery of the second half was not who would win, nor what the score would be, but where was Leonard. He didn't come out of the dressing room for the warmup, and was still absent when play began. But after a few minutes of play, he did come out and went back into the game. (Coach Joe Williams later said Leonard was suffering from stomach cramps.)

Meanwhile, things got no better for the Mountaineers, who fell back by as much as 21 points in the game, but struggled back to the final 11-point margin as Williams cleaned his bench, playing every member of the Paladin squad except the water boy, who didn't have a uniform.

Leonard led Furman with 16 points, while Kelley and Clyde Mayes each had 12. Larry Dudas paced Appalachian with 12 and Campbell added 10.

VMI managed the initial lead against second-seeded Richmond but that was all. For the rest of the half, they couldn't get the ball in the hoop when they needed it. Richmond, not playing much better, did manage to inch up, but not by more than four until near the mid-half mark when a basket by Aron Stewart and another by Eric Cray upped it to 12-5.

Richmond slowly built their lead out to as much as 13 when Bob McCurdy hit a pair of shots to make it 20-7.

VMI fought back, however, cutting the lead to seven, 20-13, and then to six at 22-16 before Richmond edged back out to a 29-18 lead on a shot by Steve Catlett with 3:03 left in the period. It fell back to seven, but Richmond held a 31-22 lead at the half.

Neither team shot well in that period, VMI hitting just 34.5 per cent while Richmond made 42.8. Richmond failed to break the game open in the first part of the second half, but only because they, too, failed to hit the basket.

VMI, which cut the lead to six, had chances to cut it to four, but just couldn't buy a basket. Near the midpoint of the half, Carlton Mack hit from the floor and Stewart made the free throws to up it to 12, but VMI still wouldn't let them make a run-away, and still couldn't hit when it tried to really make a game of it.

The margin reached 13 at 55-42, but even then, Richmond couldn't make a rout of it. That was the most it ever got to.

Stewart, who hit nine of 17 from the floor, including four of six in the second half, finished with 24 points, high for the night. McCurdy added 17. VMI was led by John Krovic with 16, while George Borojevich had 10, mostly in the first half when he helped keep VMI in the game.

Tonight, in the final quarter final games, Davidson will meet The Citadel at 7 p.m., while East Carolina takes on William & Mary in the 9 p.m. nightcap. The semi-finals will be Friday night, and the finals Saturday.

Maravich Lecture Does Little Good, Apps Lose

RICHMOND, Va. — What do you say when, as expected, you're the first team out of the Southern Conference Tournament?

When you're Appalachian State's Press Maravich, you diagram the play that didn't work. Maravich gave the assembled press a lesson in his Automatic Computer Controlled Option Opportunity Systems Equalizer (ACCOOSE), including diagrams. But it did about as much for the press as it did for the Mountaineers.

"We opened thinking we could control the ball," Press said. "We wanted to spread them out and keep the big boys away from the basket. But we've been mistake prone all season, and when you have 14 turnovers in the first half against a team like Furman, you're in trouble."

But Maravich admitted that it worked better than trying to run with the Paladins, a trick that beat them by 40 points earlier in the year.

Williams, who felt his Paladins played early in the game, really didn't feel they were pressured. In fact, because of exams, the team didn't even bother to come up until the day of the game, and didn't work out at all in the Richmond Coliseum.

"We did a good job on defense, and when we found they were leaving (Ed) Kelley alone, we went to him for some early key points."

While admitting that the game was not a picture book one for Furman, Williams added that, "we won, we played everyone and we got loosened up for the rest of the tournament."

The Furman coach felt Moose Leonard, his 7-1 center had a good game, despite having stomach cramps during half-time and missing part of the second half. "But he came out and said he was ready, so we played him, and he did a good job."

Victorious coach Lewis Mills of Richmond had praise for VMI's Keydets after his Spiders had eased past them. "They hustled well on defense," Mills said.

"It was not a real good game as far as basketball playing was concerned," he said. "We couldn't do anything offensively. We never really got into our offense, and that was due in a large measure to their defense."

Mills felt his team didn't execute well, but he was pleased with the victory. "We didn't feel at ease, but it was great for them to win. We just never were in a position to break the game open."

The coach added that this Spiders came down to the Coliseum from their cross-town campus to win, and they did. "We'll rest tomorrow (Thursday), and then hope to come back Friday ready to play basketball."

Loser Bill Blair of VMI said, "I don't want to talk about it," then did.

"If you can't shoot, you can't win," he complained over VMI's poor 34 per cent outing. "I thought we played excellent defense, and if we could have shot the ball we could have won."

He did admit that the Richmond defense was a factor in that.

If moving the first two quarter final games to Wednesday night instead of Thursday afternoon was an experiment, it apparently failed. Only a little under 2,300 turned out, with Richmond playing. Wonder where the tourney will be next year?

 WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Wake Forest won only one of 11 football games and tied one, but one of the Deacons' bright spots last fall was Chuck Ramsey of Knoxville, Tenn. On 87 punts he averaged 44.8 yards and was chosen on the All-Atlantic Coast Conference team.

Milton Brown Lifts Chargers To 43-41 Win

DURHAM—Two free throws with two seconds to play by number 22 Milton Brown gave the Ayden-Grifton Chargers a 43-41, two point win over Graham in the opening round of the State playoffs last night.

The Chargers blew an 11-point lead in the third quarter and fell behind by as much as eight at one point but Brown made both opportunities to give the Chargers the win.

A-G shot a hot 52 per cent in the first half as Graham could only hit 32 per cent. The Chargers went cold in the second half, 25 per cent to finish with 39 overall. Graham hit 40 per cent for the game.

A-G took the edge in rebounding, 32-28.

Graham took the opening lead on a basket by Don Moses but A-G came back to tie it on a bucket by Travis Woods. Jessie Brown put the Chargers on top, 4-2 but it was tied again by Phil Hughes. The Chargers ran off four buckets to move out by 12-5 with 1:02 left in the period.

A-G opened the second quarter with three straight lay-ups, one by Melvin Stewart and two by Jessie Brown to get an 18-7 lead, their biggest.

Graham did not stay down long and a Chip Pennix lay-up cut the lead to 22-19 with 2:31 left in the half. A-G added a bucket to give them a 26-21 lead at intermission.

A-G got the first bucket of the second half but Graham outscored the Chargers in the third period 16-6 to move in front 37-31.

A-G battled back in the fourth quarter and after a hard uphill climb, Stewart tied it at 41-41 with 2:59 left in the game. That was the way it stayed until the last two seconds.

The Chargers, like Graham had several opportunities to take the lead as a bundle of charging fouls were called and both teams turned the ball over a few times. But neither could take advantage of the chances until with :02 left, Moses fouled Milton Brown and Brown made both shots. Graham did not have a chance after that.

Brown led the Chargers with 12 and Woods had 10. Pennix led Graham with 18.

The Chargers are off tonight but go at it again Friday night as they will face Oxford Webb which blasted East Surry, 75-46, last night.

ACC Teams Off Until Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Atlantic Coast Conference basketball teams are resting until Saturday, when games ending the regular season will determine pairings for the conference championship tournament.

North Carolina State, ranked No. 1 nationally, has clinched first place in the regular season with victories in all 11 league games. It will have a bye in the first round of the tournament.

First-round pairings for the tournament which begins next Thursday in the Greensboro, N.C., Coliseum will be No. 2 against No. 7, 3 vs. 6 and 4 vs. 5.

The order of the teams and their conference record is North Carolina and Maryland each 8-3, Virginia 4-7, Wake Forest 3-8, Clemson 3-9 and Duke 2-9.

Duke will be at North Carolina at 1 p.m. and Virginia at Maryland at 3 p.m. in regionally televised games Saturday. That night, North Carolina State will be at Wake Forest and Clemson at Georgia Tech.

ACC teams were involved in three games Wednesday night. Maryland tied for second by winning 77-68 at home over Wake Forest. Clemson exchanged the cellar with Duke by beating the Blue Devils at home 74-68. Virginia brought its record to 10-14 by winning at home over Virginia Tech as Gus Gerard scored 27 points, 17 of them in the second half.

Maryland's triumph over pesky Wake Forest gave Coach Left Driesell his third 20-victory season in a row. It was the Terps' eighth victory in a row since a Jan. 30 loss to N.C. State, and gave them a 20-4 record.

Tom McMillen and Mo Howard, each sidelined with four fouls, came off the bench to lead a late Maryland rally, scoring 12 of the team's last 20 points. McMillen had 22 points in the game, Len Elmore 19 and a school-record 26 rebounds, and Howard 18 points.

For Wake Forest, now 13-11 in all games, Skip Brown scored 24 points and his running mate at guard, Tony Byers, had 23.

If Maryland and North Carolina finish tied for second Saturday, a draw the next day at ACC headquarters in Greensboro will break the deadlock. They split their season series.

Marty Patterson came off the bench to score 23 points and lead Clemson to victory over Duke. Patterson came in for 7-1 center Wayne "Tree" Rollins after Rollins and Kevin Billerman of Duke were charged with technical fouls and ejected following a scuffle over a rebound.

North Pitt Knocked Out

HIGH POINT—North Pitt's girls' basketball team was shot down in their quest for another state championship last night as the Big Orange machine fell to East Lincoln, 43-36.

The game was tight all the way and only in the fourth quarter was anyone able to get control. The teams battled to an 8-8 tie in the first quarter and the second period did not help things much as both added an additional eight to their totals, 16-16.

Buzz Ridl scouted South Carolina early this year and liked what he saw.

His Pittsburgh team played the Gamecocks Wednesday night ... and he didn't like what he saw.

"There shouldn't have been a gap like the final score," said Ridl after his 11th-ranked basketball team was soundly beaten 67-50 by 14th-ranked South Carolina.

It was the same type of tough South Carolina team he had seen play against Duquesne several weeks ago.

"I was impressed with South Carolina," said Ridl, "and my impressions certainly were accurate. They play a good zone and battle you tough."

"With a guy like Brian Winters hitting from far out, they can spread you out defensively."

Winters and the zone were the death of Pitt. The Gamecock star zeroed in for 23 points and the zone defense took care of the rest.

Incidentally, the loss was the second straight for Pitt after a 22-game winning streak.

"None of our players hit in the first half," lamented Ridl. "We did a much better job in the second half."

Two other ranked teams were in action Wednesday night as No. 5 Maryland defeated Wake Forest 77-68 and No. 8 Marquette nudged Toledo 61-58.

With Winters scoring 12 points, South Carolina built a 30-16 lead at the half. Later in the game, the Panthers pulled within six points but the Gamecocks used a barrage of free throws to stay comfortably in front. Bill Knight was Pitt's high scorer with 14 points.

Len Elmore scored 19 points and collected a school-record 26 rebounds to lead Maryland over Wake Forest in an Atlantic Coast Conference game. Tom McMillen and Mo Howard came off the bench to spark a late Terp rally.

Maurice Lucas tossed in 27 points to pace Marquette over Toledo. Lucas hit 12 of 17 shots from the field and scored the Warriors' final two points to clinch the triumph over the Rockets.

In the opening round of the Southern Conference playoffs, Furman beat Appalachian State 71-60 and Richmond tripped Virginia Military Institute 69-59.

Two Weeks Can Mean Quite A Difference

Braves Finally Bounces Boston's Celtics, 122-104

By FRED ROTHENBERG

AP Sports Writer
All bad things must come to an end.

The Buffalo Braves have been bouncing basketballs in the National Basketball Association for four seasons and for four seasons they've been bounced around by the Boston Celtics.

After losing every one of the 22 regular season games previously played between the clubs, the Braves finally bounced back Wednesday night and stung the Celtics 122-104.

"I didn't know if we'd ever beat the Celtics," said Bob McAdoo, who had every right to wonder. Last Friday night, McAdoo scored the NBA's season-high of 52 points, but the Celtics still chalked up No. 22 in a row, 116-109.

"I was beginning to feel we were snakebit playing this team," added McAdoo, who tossed in 37 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Kansas City-Omaha Kings trimmed the Atlanta Hawks 85-76; the Capital Bullets downed the Seattle SuperSonics 104-100; the Los Angeles Lakers beat the Milwaukee Bucks 110-108, and the Chicago Bulls defeated the Phoenix Suns 107-95.

With the victory, Buffalo moved seven games ahead of the Atlanta Hawks in the battle for the fourth playoff spot in the Eastern Conference.

Ernie DiGregorio helped the Buffalo cause with 20 points and 15 rebounds while McAdoo contributed 15 rebounds.

Dave Cowens had 23 points and 23 rebounds for the Celtics. Kings 85, Hawks 76

John Block's five points powered KC-Omaha on a nine-point tear in the fourth quarter that enabled the Kings to beat Atlanta, dealing the Hawks' playoff chances another blow.

Lakers 110, Bucks 108

Bill Bridges' 22-footer with 50 seconds remaining gave Los Angeles the lead for good in a come-from-behind victory over Milwaukee.

Bullets 104, SuperSonics 100
Coach K.C. Jones' patience and Phil Chenier's persistence both paid off when Chenier's 20-footer with 1:22 to play snapped a tie and helped Capital past Seattle.

Bulls 107, Suns 95
Chicago held Phoenix to 12 points in the first period and Howard Porter came off the bench to fire in 18 points in the second quarter, enabling the Bulls to build a 28-point half-time lead.

The scores in the American Basketball Association: Kentucky Colonels 104, Virginia Squires 83; San Antonio Spurs 107, New York Nets 103; Denver Rockets 118, Indiana Pacers 114, and San Diego Conquistadors 119, Carolina Cougars 117.

Gymnast Dies Of Neck Injuries

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Gary Morava, a National Collegiate Athletic Association champion gymnast, died early today at Firmin Desloge Hospital, apparently as a result of a severe neck injury he suffered Tuesday.

A spokesman at the hospital said the 21-year-old senior at Southern Illinois University-Carbondale died about 1 a.m. in the hospital's surgical intensive care unit, where he had been since being flown to St. Louis from Carbondale two days ago.

According to a spokesman at the university, Morava, of Wheeling, Ill., had dislocated and fractured two vertebrae in his neck during warmup exercises at the school.

"He failed to execute correctly," the spokesman said. "It was something he'd done hundreds of times. He landed on his neck."

Doctors at the hospital said the damage to Morava's spinal cord had caused paralysis of both arms and legs.

Morava suffered the injury while practicing to compete with a U.S. team next month in the Soviet Union. He was a three-time member of the U.S. National All-Star team and the 1972 NCAA Long Horse champion.

KFC Wins Crown

Al Faber led KFC with 43 points, while Gene Rackley had 15, Bruce Tucker 12 and Joe Gaddis 10.

For the Happy Store, Lonnie Payton had 40, Charlie Harris 30 and Robert Pettis 10.

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — Seven Villanova sports figures, including Jumbo Elliott and Ron Delany, were inducted into the university's Hall of Fame at halftime of the Wildcats' basketball game with Seton Hall Tuesday night.

Also inducted were Alex G. Severance and Paul Arizin, representing basketball; Edward Michaels Sr. and Anthony Sala, football; John "Jake" Nevin, head athletic trainer for 24 years.

Elliott, head track coach for the past 38 years, has coached more Olympic team members than any other American. Delany, rated one of the world's all-time great distance runners, won the Olympic 1,500-meter crown in 1956.

Buffalo defeated Boston 122-104, while in other National Basketball Association games Kansas City-Omaha beat Atlanta 85-76, Capital edged Seattle 104-100, Los Angeles nipped Milwaukee 110-108 and Chicago downed Phoenix 107-95.

Colonels 104, Squires 83
Kentucky took advantage of the Nets' loss to move within a game of the first place in the ABA East. The Colonels had six men in double figures led by Artis Gilmore who had 17 points and 15 rebounds.

Gervin Feels Given Raw Deal

By ANDY LIPPMAN

AP Sports Writer
George Gervin says he never wants any other American Basketball Association player to be treated the way he was when he was dealt from Virginia to San Antonio.

"I felt like a piece of meat that had been bought and left in the freezer until the purchaser came to pick it up," said Gervin Wednesday, reviewing his feelings on learning he had been traded from the Virginia Squires to the San Antonio Spurs nearly a month after the deal had reportedly been made.

Gervin said the ABA Players' Association is working to make sure there is never a repetition of the situation.

While the trade is unsettled and is still being contested in court, Gervin says he's happy to be with San Antonio. And the Spurs must have been happy to have him around when he sank two free throws with 52 seconds remaining to help the Spurs gain a 107-103 victory over the New York Nets.

In other ABA games, Kentucky trounced Virginia 104-83, San Diego edged Carolina 119-117, and Denver beat Indiana 118-114.

Buffalo defeated Boston 122-104, while in other National Basketball Association games Kansas City-Omaha beat Atlanta 85-76, Capital edged Seattle 104-100, Los Angeles nipped Milwaukee 110-108 and Chicago downed Phoenix 107-95.

Invitations Extended For NCAA Berths

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Telephone invitations were to be extended today to nine at-large teams to play in the National Collegiate Athletic Association's post-season basketball tournament.

The calls were to be made at 9:30 a.m., local time. Second-ranked Notre Dame and five other nationally-rated clubs were expected to be among those invited. Others were No. 8 Marquette, No. 11 Pittsburgh, No. 12 Providence, No. 14 South Carolina and No. 16 Creighton.

Other strong candidates were Boston College, St. John's of New York, Syracuse, Cincinnati, Dayton, Detroit, Southern Illinois University, Houston and Oral Roberts.

The schools each had 30 minutes to accept after the invitation was extended. Four years ago, Marquette declined.

Winners of 16 major conferences will join the nine at-large teams in the NCAA tournament. Among them will be the champion of the Pacific-8 of which third-ranked UCLA, winner of the national title seven consecutive years, is a member. UCLA currently is tied with Southern California for the top spot in the Pacific-8.

North Carolina State, the nation's top-ranked team, has clinched the Atlantic Coast Conference regular season championship but must win the ACC's postseason tournament to gain a berth in the NCAA championships.

Notre Dame ended UCLA's 88-game winning streak with a 71-70 upset Jan. 19 in South Bend, Ind., and has competed in 10 previous NCAA tournaments. However, the Irish have never advanced past the regionals.

First-round games will be played March 9 at various sites. The second round will be March 14 and regional finals March 16. The four regional champions will move into the national semifinals March 23 at Greensboro, N.C., where the championship game will be played March 25.

Sites of the regional finals are East at North Carolina State, Mideast at Alabama, Midwest at Oral Roberts and West at Arizona.

Rozell Receives New Contract

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — If only agreeing on a contract with the players were as easy as writing a new one for the commissioner.

National Football League owners, who'll be facing one of their toughest financial battles in years when they start negotiating with the Players' Association next month, sprung a bit of a surprise Wednesday as their annual winter meetings began grinding to a close.

The major subjects of Super Bowls, expansion and rule changes out of the way, the talk was turning toward more trivial matters when Lamar Hunt, owner of the Kansas City Chiefs and president of the American Conference, interrupted the news briefing and announced that the owners had torn up Commissioner Pete Rozelle's contract and given him a new one.

It's a 10-year pact "at a substantial increase in salary," which extends through 1982. Rozelle had been working under a 10-year contract which was to expire in 1978. The new pact is sort of a pre-birthday present. Rozelle will be 48 on Friday.

He has been commissioner of the NFL since Jan. 26, 1960, when he succeeded the late Bert Bell. It was a 13-team league then, growing to 16 by 1969, then ballooning to the current 26 the next year with the merger with the old American Football League. Rozelle figures the NFL eventually will grow to 32 teams.

It's likely to become 28 for the 1975 season. The prime subject here — beyond keeping Super Bowl IX in New Orleans — was expansion. Although the owners put off, at least until late April, the awarding of franchises, they did cut the field of candidate cities from 24 to five — Seattle, Honolulu, Memphis, Phoenix and Tampa, Fla.

By Wednesday, though, the talk was down to the light housekeeping — tossing around ideas on rule changes, committee reports, television ratings and the like. The meetings are expected to end this afternoon.

Rozelle, after sitting in on Competition Committee presentations to the coaches in the morning and to owners in the afternoon, said it figures the owners will be more susceptible to changes in the playing rules — probably affecting the general offense and defense more than the oft-assailed kicking game — but that nothing drastic should be expected to come out of the spring meetings in May and June in New York.

"Let's face it," Rozelle said, "the coaches have done too good a job with their defenses. I'd like to see some kinds of changes that will really open up the offense."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national team of top-ranked high school senior basketball players will meet a group representing the metropolitan Washington area in the first Capital Classic March 28 it was announced Wednesday.

The game, similar to the Dapper Dan Classic held annually in Pittsburgh, will be played at the Capital Center in suburban Landover, Md.

SEATTLE (AP) — The president of the Western Hockey League has delayed his decision in the case of Denver Spur player Connie Forey, who slugged a referee.

Forey broke referee Malcom Ashford's nose during a game with the Seattle Totems Feb. 13. And McFarland had said he would announce his decision on disciplinary action against Forey Wednesday.

But McFarland said Wednesday, "I'm going to look at a film of the incident ... I'm also pursuing the background of Forey a little further ... before making a decision."

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The New Orleans Saints of the National Football League have signed their fourth-round draft pick, Rod McNeil, a running back from the University of Southern California.

McNeil, 6-foot-2 and 215 pounds, was actually the third man drafted since the Saints had no third-round selection. The terms of the contract were not disclosed Wednesday.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The San Diego Chargers say they have signed their 10th-round draft choice, middle linebacker John Ketchoyan of Santa Clara.

Despite his low rank in the draft, the 6-foot-3, 230-pounder is given a good chance to make the National Football League team at its weakest position.

The Chargers also announced Wednesday the signing of another Santa Clara player, 260-pound defensive tackle Ken Allen, as a free agent.

North Pitt School News

By JACQUI NELSON

Mrs. Sherry Garris, a student at East Carolina University, is now student teaching at North Pitt High School.

Mrs. Garris is majoring in home economics. She will graduate from ECU in the spring.

Mrs. Garris has three children, Tracy, eight, Richard, ten, and Tensley, seven. They keep her busy after school hours.

Mrs. Garris is a member of Phi U Sorority. Her favorite hobby is sewing.

She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph S. Bowers of Kingston. Mrs. Garris would like to settle in eastern North Carolina after she graduates from school.

Ott Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, visited North Pitt Monday to have lunch and talk with members of the "Big Orange Machine." The girls are participating in the state championship playoffs for the third year in a row. The games are being played in High Point.

Coach Roger Ingalls has returned to school after being a patient in Pitt Memorial Hospital. He had a knee operation.

Joe Murchison and Wesley Manning, seniors at North Pitt, attended the wrestling tournament in Winston-Salem last week.

The juniors have set April 26 as the date for North Pitt's Junior-Senior Prom. The band has been decided upon but will not be announced until later.

North Pitt's guidance interns completed their work at North Pitt Monday. They were Mrs. Terry Wolverton and Allen Thornquest. The counselors, Mrs. Percy Nixon and Mrs. Betty Speir, commended the two interns on an outstanding job.

Representatives from Pitt Technical Institute visited North Pitt Monday to review new courses now offered at Pitt Tech.

Appeals For Tag-Buying

RALEIGH—Motor Vehicles Commissioner Boyd C. Miller, Jr. issued a plea to North Carolina motorists who have not obtained their 1974 license plates not to wait until the March 15th deadline.

Miller pointed out that the issuance of license plates is running behind that of last year's. This, he said, means people are waiting until the last minute to purchase their tags. The lines will get longer and the inconvenience will increase during the next two weeks.

North Carolina motorists were granted an extension of 30 days for displaying their 1974 license plates. The original deadline of February 15 was extended as a result of emergency legislation passed by the General Assembly in order to aid some trucking firms whose vehicles were blocked out of state. The act allowed Governor Jim Holshouser and the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles to set the extension deadline this year only.

West German police may exact on-the-spot cash fines of up to 40 marks for minor traffic offenses, according to the Ministry of Justice.

Lewis Aiding Morgan Bid

Attorney General Robert Morgan has named Farmville attorney John B. (Jack) Lewis Jr. as an Area Key to coordinate his campaign for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate.

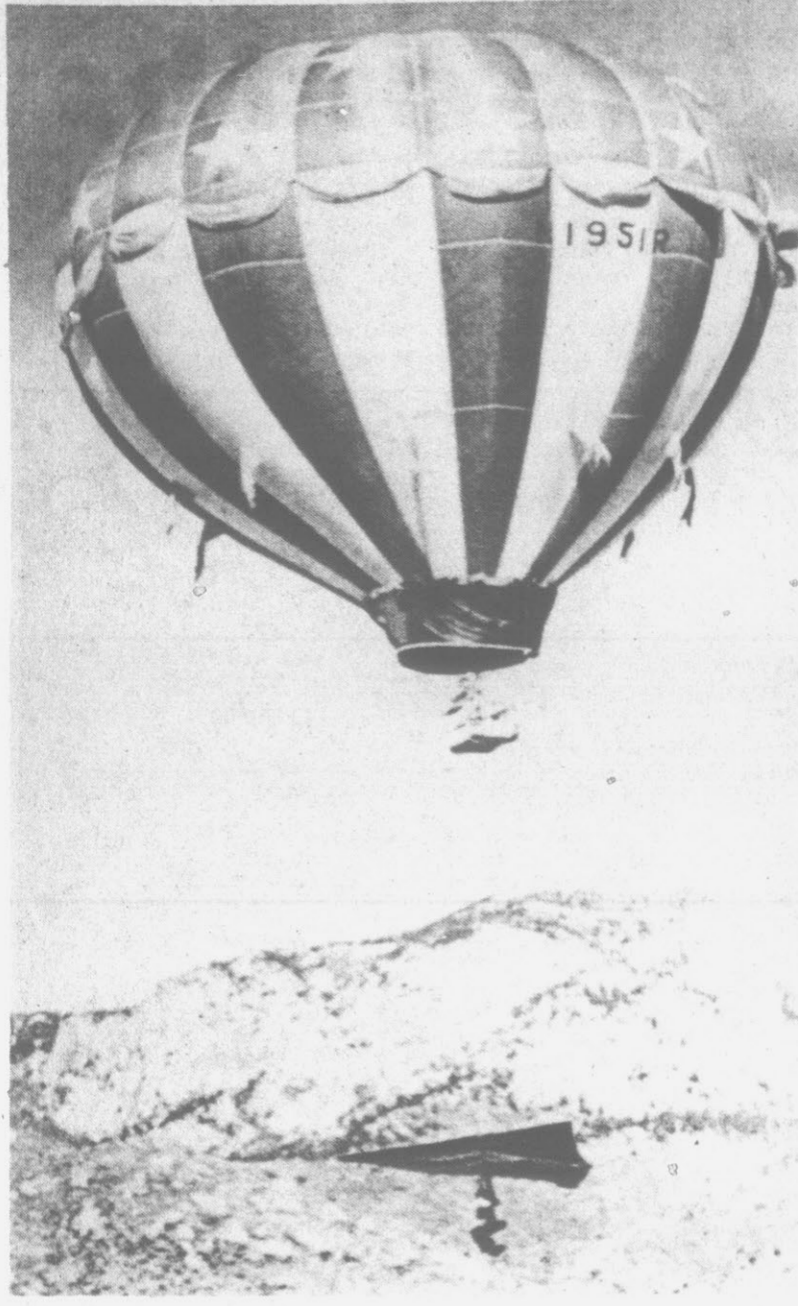

Morgan said that Lewis will direct his campaign in Pitt, Greene, Beaufort, Hyde, and Lenoir Counties.

The candidate commented, "We are delighted Jack will be on our team. We feel we are fortunate to have a man of his caliber with us."

Repair Job On Sally's Scripts

By JERRY BUCK

Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — The premise of CBS' "Dirty Sally" does not sound like your average television Western. Or your average anything else.

Sally Fergus is a toothless crone, who takes an occasional nip and travels the West in a junk wagon like a vinegary good fairy. Her hair looks like she stuck her finger in an electric socket. She's accompanied on her travels by a mule named Worthless and a reformed gunfighter named Pike.

Jeanette Nolan mugs her way to hammy perfection in the role. If only the stories were as good. "Dirty Sally," a spinoff from "Gunsmoke," shut down production a few weeks ago for a repair job on its scripts.

Miss Nolan is a master at this kind of role, having done many in her long stage, film and television career.

The fact is, it was a character she did on the Richard Boone anthology show about 10 years ago that was the inspiration for Sally.

She said, "Jack Miller saw the role I did, an alcoholic, frowsy old bag. He thought she could be worked into a great Western show."

Miller, a writer, tried for years to interest "Gunsmoke" in the idea but was unsuccessful.

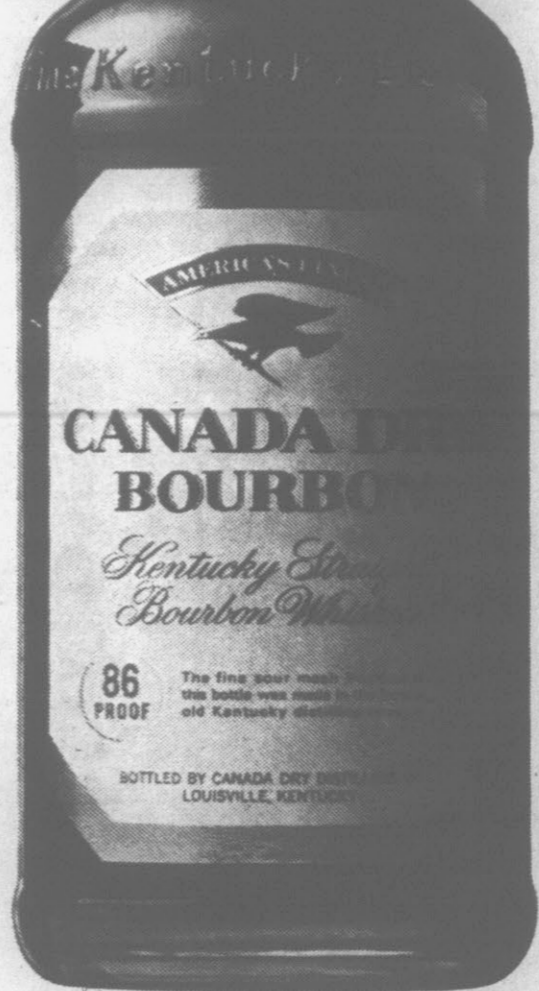

ful until he pitched the idea to executive producer John Mantley. Mantley told him to write a one-hour script.

In production, Mantley looked at the first dailies and told Miller to expand it to two hours.

The two-part show, "Pike," which ran in early 1971 drew the most mail in the history of "Gunsmoke" and won the Cowboy Hall of Fame Award. Miller is now executive story consultant for both "Gunsmoke" and "Dirty Sally."

Sensors Check Oxygen Supply

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — A professor at the University of California here has initiated the use of contact lenses in a new method of monitoring patient's oxygen supply during surgery.

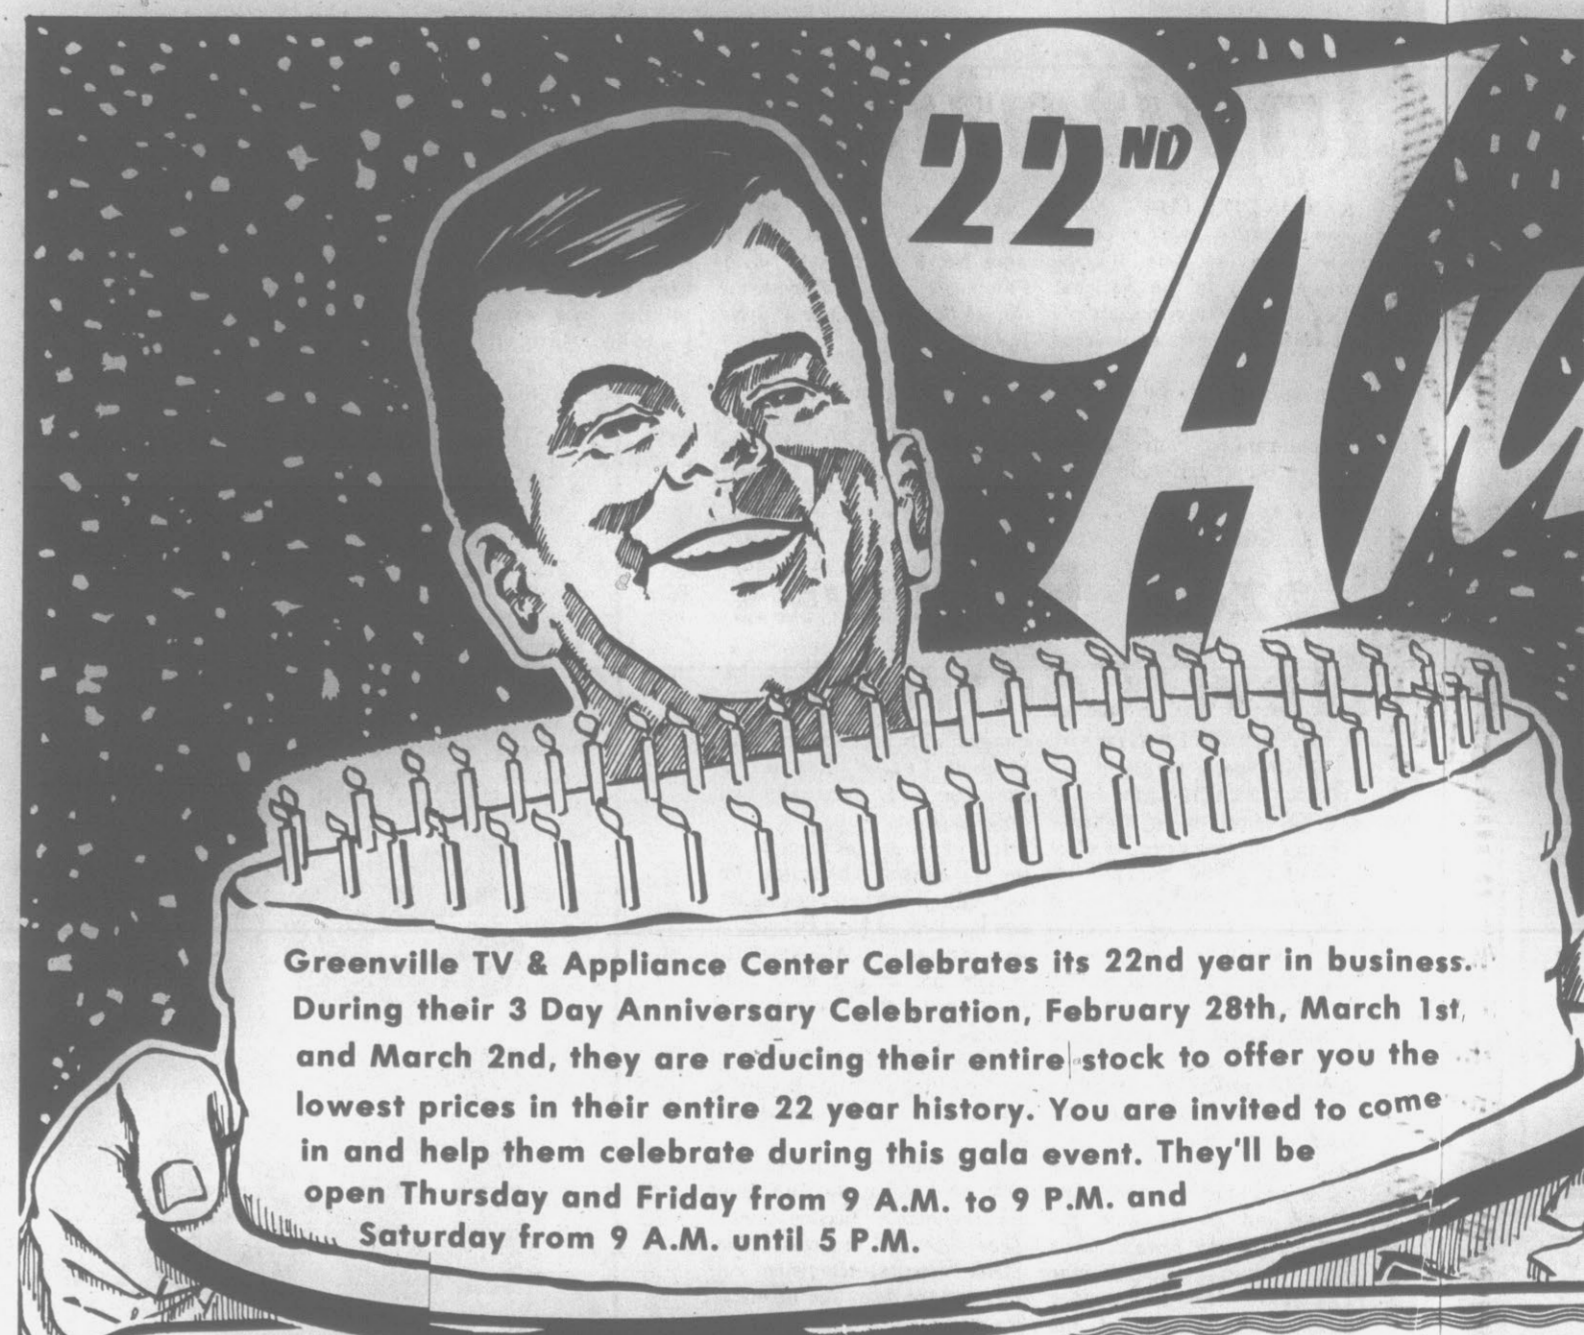

The lens is fitted with two tiny electrode wires protruding from its outer edge. The wires are attached to a small oxygen sensor that picks up a reading from tiny vessels supplying blood to the cornea.

Lt. Calley Free On Bond

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — For the first time in nearly three years, Lt. William L. Calley Jr. is free to come and go as he pleases and to choose from thousands of civilian job offers.

"I feel I could be useful to society," the 30-year-old officer told U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott on Wednesday before Elliott ordered Calley freed on $1,000 bond.

But the slight, sandy-haired lieutenant was not required to post bond. He was released on his own recognizance. The Army said it had not yet decided whether to appeal Elliott's order.

In admitting Calley to bond, Elliott said he would hear at a later date Calley's challenge of a court-martial verdict which found him guilty of murdering at least 22 civilians at My Lai in March 1968 during an Army sweep through the Vietnamese village.

Calley was sentenced to life in prison, but the term was subsequently reduced to 20 years.

The judge said Calley should be freed from house arrest at his apartment at nearby Ft. Benning because he presented no danger to himself or to society.

Calley left immediately under military escort for the small red brick apartment where he has been confined for 35 months.

A court source said Calley chose the military escort because he had received a threat. The source declined to elaborate, however.

Military guards were removed from Calley's apartment shortly after he arrived, but military police continued to circle the block in a jeep.

Calley's girlfriend, Anne Moore, met him at the apartment, where his first act of freedom was to chase his dog, "Joe," in the yard.

"Calley has had literally thousands of job offers, finding employment won't be any problem," said Capt. J. Houston Gordon, Calley's Army counsel, after the hearing.

"Immediately I've got to go back to school and I'm going to try to be self-employed," Calley told the court when his attorney asked him to describe his plans for his future.

Calley told Elliott that if bail were granted he would live in the Columbus area, although Kenneth Hanson, Calley's local civilian attorney, said the young officer could leave the city if he wanted even though he is still a military prisoner pending appeal.

In Washington, an Army spokesman said Calley is now free to come and go as he wishes and that there is no requirement that he report to his superiors for assignment.

Calley declined to talk with newsmen after the hearing. "I can't comment, I'm under a restraining order," said Calley, smiling and appearing relaxed after the 2 1/2-hour hearing.

Miss Moore, in her late 20s, told the court that Calley is not hostile or bitter despite his long confinement.

Asked by newsmen if she had discussed marriage plans with

Calley, she replied with a smile, "I'm not going to tell you."

Army Secretary Howard H. Callaway now has Calley's sentence under review, and President Nixon has said that he will make a final review of Calley's case.

Ratification Of ERA Expected

By PEGGY SIMPSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment are optimistic of approval at least by 1975. But they expect additional setbacks before ratification by the needed 38 states.

"The three states that are key now are Illinois, Florida and Louisiana," said Pat Keefe, coordinator of the Common Cause lobby for the ERA.

"If we won the battles in these three states, that would bring us up to 36 and then it might be possible for other borderline states, such as Oklahoma, to ratify this year also," she said.

But some temporary setbacks are expected in other states and supporters have set a goal of January 1975 for ratification, she said.

Five more states must ratify the constitutional amendment banning sex discrimination before it becomes law.

With an assist from organized labor and the White House, ERA proponents have won ratification this year in Maine, Ohio and Montana.

Georgia's House defeated the proposed constitutional amendment in January.

There were two contradictory actions this week.

In Virginia, the House Privileges and Elections Committee defeated the ERA 12-8, a predicted turnaround.

In Missouri, the Senate Rules Committee reported out the ERA by a 5-2 vote.

The proponents' optimism stems partly from a recently repeated endorsement of the ERA by President Nixon and the turnout of the AFL-CIO to favor the measure.

They are sure of approval by the 1979 deadline, partly because of precedents that a state cannot undo its ratification, as Nebraska has voted to do and other states indicate they may try to do.

Proponents do not plan to challenge Nebraska's vote to rescind unless the 1979 deadline nears and its vote is needed for ratification.

Among the groups devoting full-time efforts to the ERA are the National Organization for Women, the League of Women Voters and the citizens lobby, Common Cause.

Psychosurgery Not Planned At Butner

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Martin G. Groder, who will become warden when a prison research center is opened at Butner, N.C., this year, denies that psychosurgery will be used.

He told a House subcommittee Wednesday that the programs at the Federal Center for Correctional Research would be "humanistic, cooperative ventures."

Prison reform and inmate groups have charged that the Bureau of Prisons' controversial "behavior modification" program at Springfield, Mo., was a prelude to more radical methods of dealing with uncooperative prisoners.

The bureau has been accused of building the center at Butner near Durham to experiment with psychotherapy, electroshock and tranquilizers to control inmates.

Norman A. Carlson, director of the bureau, said it never uses such methods "or any other form of aversive treatment to change behavior."

Groder said the Butner center will have two programs, one for mentally disturbed inmates and other for prisoners who consent to participate in behavior modification therapy.

He said inmates unhappy with the program will be allowed to transfer out of Butner.

The programs, he said, will be "humanistic, cooperative ventures which will stand or fall on their results and outcome, though they can be seen assuredly as, at least, doing no harm."

"I state unequivocally that the primary purpose of these mental health units is not experimentation, and that in general only accepted treatments that are used in civilian settings will be employed."

Paying For Job Losses

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Labor Department says 9 per cent of some 2.6 million Americans receiving unemployment benefits have lost their jobs because of the energy crisis.

The department reported Wednesday that for the week ending Feb. 9, a total of 232,800 persons receiving benefits attributed their job loss to energy-related cutbacks.

The latest figures represent an increase over the previous week of 44,900 claimants out of work because of the energy squeeze.

According to the department, a large portion of those attributing their unemployment to the energy crisis were workers laid off in auto and related manufacturing industries.

The report said one million more Americans are receiving unemployment benefits than on Dec. 1, because of the energy crisis as well as with seasonal unemployment and a general economic downturn.

The unemployment benefit rolls could swell dramatically if Congress approves legislation backed by the Nixon administration to extend unemployment benefits by an additional 26 weeks.

Kissinger Peacemaking Try Goes Back To Sadat

Ramsey Says Oil Firms Slow In Gas Deliveries

WASHINGTON (AP)—North Carolina House Speaker Jim Ramsey has accused some of the big oil companies in his state of "dragging their feet" in the delivery of an additional 13.78 million gallon emergency allocation for February.

The Federal Energy Office ordered the gasoline delivered last Friday but Ramsey said Wednesday it appears unlikely that all of the gas will reach service stations before Friday, March 1.

Ramsey said the order required that any portion of the emergency allocation not used would revert to stockpiles.

However, the Person County Democrat, who met Wednesday with FEO Administrator William Simon, said Simon will allow the undelivered gasoline to be added on to the state's March allocation.

Ramsey said he tried to impress upon Simon that the oil companies should be forced to deliver their allocations.

"I think there's gasoline to be had if the companies can be forced to redistribute it," he said.

Ramsey, and his probable successor, Rep. James Green, D-Bladen, met with Simon for 30 minutes in the office of Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr.

At a brief news conference afterwards, Ramsey said Simon promised to probe deeper into the state's gasoline shortage.

Ramsey and Green said earlier this week they would try to convince Simon that North Carolina deserves an additional gasoline allocation for the rest of the year.

However, they won no promises of that at the Wednesday meeting.

Ramsey said he and Green sought to explain the gasoline problem to Simon.

Ramsey said the problem is that the state's gasoline allocation is based on 1972 figures, and since then seven oil companies have pulled out of the state.

He said the state should be entitled to an additional 9 per cent allocation for the rest of this year.

Ramsey also noted that, "We have a situation where our economy is growing at a much faster rate than the national average and this was not taken into account in the 1972 allotment figures."

"So, these figures would be readjusted, hopefully, to give us an additional allocation in the state of North Carolina."

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The United States and Egypt agreed to formally resume diplomatic relations today for the first time since 1967.

Sources in Washington and officials in Cairo with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said the announcement will be made later today in the capitals of both nations.

In addition to a general upgrading of contacts, the move means the Spanish Embassy in Cairo will no longer house the American diplomatic delegation to Egypt, headed by Ambassador Hermann Eilts. Similarly, an Egyptian delegation headed by Ambassador Ashraf Ghorbal will move into facilities of its own in Washington, where it has been working under the Indian flag.

The two ambassadors have been in place since Kissinger and Egypt's President Anwar Sadat agreed in principle to restore diplomatic relations in November during a visit to Cairo by the American secretary.

Relations had been severed since the six-day Middle East war of June 1967, when Egypt broke them off because of the American role in favor of Israel.

Robert E. Stewart, principal, and Miss Linda Harrill, ESAA teacher, will be on hand to answer questions relative to the ESAA instructional program.

Members of the committee are: Mrs. Earnestine Haselrig, Rev. O. J. Rooks, Dr. Ed Hooks, Don McGlohon, Walter C. Fields, Tom Reese, George Garrett, Elizabeth Quinn, William Gibbs, Charles Vincent, Judy Little, Lynn Cargile, Mrs. Charlotte Smith, Mrs. Myra Caldwell and Ray Alexander.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee approved Wednesday a bill Sen. Sam Ervin has been trying to get passed for eight years. It would prevent government interference with the privacy of federal employees.

The measure sponsored by the North Carolina Democrat has repeatedly died in the House after being passed by the Senate.

He said in reoffering it, "The need to protect the private lives of federal employees from unwarranted government intrusion" is even more critical now than when he first introduced it in 1966.

Kissinger returned to Cairo today for talks with Sadat at a rest house overlooking the Great Pyramids. The Egyptian leader greeted him warmly with a traditional Arab embrace and suggested they both pose for photographs with the pyramids as a backdrop before their discussions began.

Kissinger and Sadat were concentrating on the next stage of an Israeli troop withdrawal in the occupied Sinai Desert and continuation of the United Nations buffer role between Egyptian and Israeli forces there. The United Nations mandate expires April 24.

Also high on their agenda were Kissinger's mediation proposals for Syrian-Israeli troop disengagement on the occupied Golan Heights.

American officials in the Kissinger party stressed that Syria "holds the key" to the second round of Sinai negotiations.

They said the Golan Heights disengagement agreement must be arranged before any new pullouts in the Sinai. Sadat also has said Egypt will not return to the Geneva peace talks until Israel and Syria agree on the Golan pullout.

Kissinger came here from Israel, where he brought from Damascus a list of 65 Israeli war prisoners held by Syria. His delivery of the list marked a major diplomatic breakthrough, since the Israelis had refused to negotiate an disengagement until the Syrians turned it over.

The Israeli premier, Gola Meir, saluted his efforts Wednesday night. But Kissinger's aides said the secretary felt "in his bones" that the Arab oil embargo against the United States will last at least another few days despite their progress.

Before he left Israel, Mrs. Meir told Kissinger she and her government would ready disengagement proposals for the Golan Heights so he could take them on a return trip to Damascus Friday for more media-tion talks with the Syrians.

Bishop Will Preach Here

Bishop Robert M. Blackburn of the Raleigh Area of the United Methodist Church will preach Sunday at 11 a.m. at the Farmville United Methodist Church.

Also participating in the worship service will be the Rev. H. M. McLamb, district superintendent.

Bishop Blackburn is a Florida native, a former Army chaplain, and a veteran of several pastorates in Boca Grande, Mount Dora, Orlando, DeLand, and Jacksonville, Fla. He was elected a Bishop in 1972.

The public is invited to hear Bishop Blackburn, according to the pastor, the Rev. Kermit Wheeler.

DETROIT (AP) — A gunman robbed a West Side drugstore of $200 worth of drugs but left $100 to pay for them.

Carl Leibowitz, 49, manager of the drugstore, told police Wednesday the gunman demanded all the drugs he had. The man then tried to give him $100 but Leibowitz said he refused to take it.

MAN IN A MILLION—Vera Irwin Carswell, 89, was born Feb. 29, 1884. Carswell says he probably will celebrate his 90th birthday this year "somewhere in-between". The Worry Clinic Fit Messages To The Reader

Dr. Bundesen was the Dr. Spock of the 1930s. Yet he found he was often talking over the heads of readers. Note the practical yardstick he then employed to make sure his medical column was understood by average Chicagoans. Comic strip artists need to imitate him!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-564: Dr. Herman Bundesen authored the most famous book on child rearing in the 1930s.

Millions of Chicago and Midwestern mothers followed his words of wisdom regarding baby care.

He was the Dr. Spock of that generation.

And he wrote a splendid daily medical column for American newspapers.

"Dr. Crane," he informed me at our Northwestern University Medical luncheon, "do you know how I test my daily column?"

When I shook my head, he continued:

"Well, I soon learned that our medical terms are X-Y-Z or 'Greek' to the usual newspaper reader.

"So I decided I'd employ the layman's yardstick.

"When I had completed my column each afternoon, it was about time for two scrub women of our building to start emptying the wastepaper baskets and mopping the floors.

"We were on friendly terms, for I had given them medical attention, so they liked me.

"As a result, I'd let them sit down in my office and listen, while I read my column.

"Then I'd ask them to tell me, in their own words, what I had written.

"If they could repeat the general ideas, I let the column stand.

"But if they didn't comprehend, I'd sit down and rewrite it to make it more simple."

Consumer Survey
This was, in a sense, a form of "consumer survey," for those women represented the reading skill of the average Chicagoan.

It would be wise for current university professors and even newspaper cartoonists to use Dr.

Bundesen's practical yardstick. For the reading comprehension of Americans is much lower than most people imagine.

Recently, an official of HEW stated that 26,000,000 American adults and school children of supposed reading age, are still illiterate!

Here in Chicago, for example, the illiteracy is so bad that even the blurb or "balloons" in the strip comics are over the heads of half our grammar and high school students, not to mention their parents!

"Dennis, The Menace" is not funny to such illiterates, for they don't even understand the etiquette violations being depicted.

And any attempt at wit, as indicated by a "pun" or by innuendo, falls flat on probably half our total Chicago population!

"Dennis, The Menace" though sold as a "child comic," is over the heads of most people who haven't gone to college or at least have an I. Q. of 115.

Yet our most educated groups, such as physicians, lawyers, bankers and similar professional experts, are so steeped in their own technical jargon that they can't believe what I am saying!

Zip codes were added to out post office addresses in part because so many postal employees can't even read!

But they do recognize Arabic numbers, having gambled daily on the policy games and numbers rackets!

Newspaper advertisements would also fall flat as regards a large segment of our population, if prices were omitted, for those Arabic numerals (plus the pictures) are about the only intelligible symbols in the ads!

The average high school teacher in Chicago wouldn't dare have her pupils try to stand up and even read aloud Christ's "Sermon on the Mount," for they'd stumble, even on its monosyllables!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

The bidding:
1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♥ Pass 4 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of ♠ Simple addition led West to the winning defense on this deal. But he could have saved himself a lot of time had he chosen a different opening lead.

Though South had the point count for an opening bid of one no trump, his weak doubleton and surfeit of points in the major suits suggested that a suit contract might be more viable. When North raised his suit, South showed his extra values with a game try of three hearts. Even though he had five trumps, North might have been wiser to bid a mere three spades, for three queens generally are not the material that partner looks for in a game contract.

West got off to a reason-ably good start with the king of diamonds. When that held, it seemed obvious to continue the suit, but West looked rather deeper into the matter. He could see 17 points, and South's bidding marked him with 16-18 points. The play to the first trick put the ace of diamonds with East, and that left at best a couple of points unaccounted for. Since West controlled the trump suit, there was time to score a diamond ruff later. But if declarer held only two diamonds, the setting trick would have to be found elsewhere.

If East's missing points were the king of hearts, there was little hope, for declarer would pick it up with a finesse. The only chance was to presume East held the queen of clubs. Thus, at trick two East shifted to a low club, and declarer was a dead duck. Try as he might, he had to lose a trump, two diamonds and a club.

Note that, had East continued with a diamond at trick two, declarer would make his contract. He would ruff the third diamond with the ten of trumps. West could over-ruff or not as he pleased. Declarer would draw trumps and discard dummy's club loser on the fourth round of hearts. The defenders would be held to two diamond tricks and the king of spades.

And to think this all could have been avoided had West led a club at trick one!

As nearly 200 trumpeter swans and 46 other bird species begin arriving at the bay this year they will find themselves in a newly created 80-acre sanctuary set up by MacMillan Bloedel, Canada's largest forest products company.

The company plans to establish public parking and observation sites at the refuge so residents of Port Alberni and vicinity can watch the swans during the winter.

Shocked By 'Exorcist'

By GORDON F. JOSELOFF MOSCOW (UPI) — In the view of one Soviet reviewer, the latest American film hit, "The Exorcist," is a scandalous mixture of pornography and sadism which taxes human endurance.

Sergei Kondrashov, a Washington correspondent for the government newspaper Izvestia, reviewed the film about the exorcism of the devil from a young girl under the headline "The Hollywood Devil."

Vividly describing some of the film's more violent scenes, Kondrashov said they leave spectators shuddering and often ill.

"The culmination of the film is an extremely naturalistic mixture of pornography and sadism," he said. "It not only stuns and horrifies the spectator, it taxes the human resistance, evoking extreme physical and psychological reactions."

"It is reported from New York that there were cases when people felt dizzy and fainted in the theater. People felt nauseous and even vomited."

Kondrashov said he viewed the film at a Washington theater and there were long lines every day.

"Having spent a few hours in line, people cannot stand even the first shocking moments of the film. Some, not having watched it to the end nor finished looking into the white eyes of the devil, rush out of the theater for a breath of fresh air," he said.

Kondrashov said the "scandalous" film had not been banned by the courts because "conquerors are never tried." And the film's distributor, Warner Bros. "is rejoicing at the money which the box offices are taking in and predicts more gigantic profits."

New Sanctuary For Trumpeters

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (UPI) — Trumpeter swans, a rare species once facing extinction, have migrated from the southern Alaskan coast to Shoemaker Bay, a refuge across the Albemni Inlet on Canada's West Coast, for the past 40 years.

See High-Rise Shopper

CHICAGO (UPI) — High-rise shopping centers with supermarkets or other large retail centers on the street level eventually may replace the sprawling shopping complex.

Esmark, Inc., a diversified company with interests in foods, chemicals and energy as well as business services, says the dwindling supply of land in and around major cities combined with the energy shortage may force developers to build medium and high-rise shopping centers.

"Shoppers could easily reach the stores without having to walk long distances, as is the case in many of today's widespread, single-level malls," Esmark notes.

Receive Grant For Health Care

DAVIS, Calif. (UPI) — A two-year grant of $89,000 has been received by the University of California to further develop a rural health care demonstration project.

The project is designed to bring quality health care services to rural areas in which medical and dental care have been inadequate or inaccessible. The grant came from the Henry J. Kaiser Family Foundation.

Detailed Maps Are Gas-Savers

NEW YORK (AP) — Mileage charts and detailed area maps are turning out to be the best friend of the "gasless-Sunday" driver, according to veteran road atlas publisher Rand McNally. The company's 1974 road atlas includes point-to-point mileage charts for the United States, Mexico and Canada. It also details historic, educational and recreational sites to help careful drivers plan their trips and pick their gasless Sunday destinations in advance.
