Kissinger Seeks End Of Embargo

By WILBUR G. LANDREY
UPI Foreign Editor

AMMAN, Jordan (UPI) — ent with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to send top-level negotiators to Washington this month for indirect talks on troop withdrawals, a high U.S. official said Saturday.

But the official, travelling with Kissinger on a whirlwind flight from Syria to Saudi Arabia and Jordan, said the two sides were still as far apart as ever on the troop withdrawals. He called the differences "substantial."

The official said separate talks on pullbacks in the strategic Golan Heights, with Kissinger acting as intermediary, would begin later this month.

Kissinger got indirect Israeli-Syrian talks started during his trip, but as expected Syria rejected Israel's first proposls for disengagement.

Kissinger flew Saturday from Syria to Saudi Arabia, where he held an hour-long talk with King Faisal about the Arab oil embrgo against the United States and related matters.

A high American source said Faisal told Kissinger that the Arab oil ministers would probably meet this month to consider lifting the embargo, now in its fifth month.

Kissinger then flew to Jordan for talks with King Hussein before starting his homeward journey Sunday with two stops scheduled in Europe.

A settlement between Israel and Jordan would likely come after any disengagement between Israel and Syria.

Kissinger, referring to his meeting with King Faisal, said before leaving Saudi Arabia, "We are confident after these talks that we are proceeding long the right path and that relations between the two countries are strong and firm."

In two previous visits to Riyadh Nov. 8 and Dec. 14, Kissinger found the bearded king firmly opposed to lifting the embargo.

Arab press commentators said they believed progress toward obtaining an Israeli withdrawal from Arab territory still was not sufficient for the Arabs to lift the embargo.

Furthermore Saudi Arabia, the Arab world's largest oil producer and a prime mover in development of the Arab "oil weapon" during the 1973 Middle East war, is not alone able to decide on lifting the embargo, the commentators said.

This must be decided by the ministers of the 10-nation Organization of Arab Oil Exporting Countries (OAPEC), who are expected to meet later this month.

The senior American official said when Kissinger returned to Damascus with the Israeli ideas on military disengagement Friday, he feared there was a "50-50 chance" his attempt to get talks started might break down.

He said the meetings in Washington might last two or three weeks.

If a chance of agreement develops, he said, the two sides would have to meet face-to-face, probably in the military committee set up by the Geneva Middle East peace conference.

The procedure was basically the same principle that Kissinger used to win the Egyptian-Israeli disengagement agreement, due to be completed March 5.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has made Syrian-Israeli disengagement an essential condition for resuming the Geneva conference.

In Cairo, diplomatic sources said Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held talks with President Anwar Sadat on the latest Middle East developments.

No Threat

RALEIGH AP—Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt said Saturday a legislative committee decision to approve a two-year medical school at East Carolina University should not pose a threat to the medical education request of the University of North Carolina Board of Governors.

"The question before the General Assembly was not one of either approving the program recommended by the university's Board of Governors or expanding the ECU medical school," Hunt said. "It was a question of doing both."

In a talk prepared to the Youth Legislative Assembly of the Youth Councils of North Carolina, Hunt said the nine area health education centers requested in the governors' budget request are "key ingredients in the proposal to improve our medical care situation."

"The centers are necessary if we are to provide the clinical facilities necessary to train more residents and third and fourth year medical students," Hunt said.

"We might reasonablly expect that many of the students who complete their first two years of training at the ECU Medical School would receive a major part of their third and fourth-year training at these centers."

Tank Trouble

WRECKAGE AFTER JOYRIDE. . .U. S. soldiers inspect wrecked barriers at Checkpoint Charlie Saturday after a GI stole a 50-ton American tank in West Berlin and took it on a joyride past Communist border guards into East Germany. In the background is the east side of the Allied checkpoint. The soldier, Spec. 5 William A. Thompson Jr. of Columbus, Ga., drove the tank to Checkpoint Charlie inside Berlin, knocked down part of a border fence and then proceeded to a border crossing outside the city where he crossed into East German territory, stopping in front of a Russian-manned control booth. The Russians and East Germans kept their distance until the tank unit's commanding officer arrived and talked the soldier out of the vehicle. Another U. S. soldier later drove the tank back into West Berlin. (AP Wirephoto)

Heath Seeks Liberal Support

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) — Prime Minister Edward Heath, clinging precariously to power despite his failure to win Thursday's general election, sought support Saturday from Liberal party leader Jeremy Thorpe. But both said afterward no commitments were made by either side.

The Prime Minister and the leader of the third-ranking Liberals met for 80 minutes at Heath's No. 10 Downing St. office, as Heath appealed to the Liberal party for an alliance to keep the Labor party out.

A statement from Heath's office said "they exchanged views on the current situation and on the urgent need for an administration which could carry on the business of government."

It said each agreed to report the other's views to members of their respective Conservative and Liberal parties "to see whether a basis exists for further discussions."

"No commitment was entered into on either side," the statement added.

Thorpe said he agreed to discuss "the matters that have arisen this afternoon" with outher Liberal party leaders and the other 13 Liberal party members of parliament Monday.

"I repeat that there has been no agreement between us," Thorpe said. "Quite clearly it is in the interest of the country that some government should be formed. It should be one that will unite the nation on moderate policies. I represent 6 million people who voted for this kind of government."

Earlier, Heath held consultations with Lord Carrington and James Prior, chairman and deputy chairman of the Conservative party.

Final results for the 635 seats in the new House of Commons were 296 Conservatives, 301 seats for Labor, 14 for the Liberals.

The rest were divided among 7 Scottish Nationalists, 2 Welsh Nationalists, 11 Northern Ireland Protestant militants, one Northern Ireland Social Democratic and Labor Party, one Independent Labor, One Demoeratic Labor and the speaker who has no vote.

Even with Liberal support Heath still would fall short of an overall parliamentary majority. Political sources said he would have to seek some sort of deal with some of the smaller groups, too.

After a day of suspense and uncertainty, Heath drove to Buckingham Palace Friday evening and told Queen Elizabeth he had decided not to quit but would try to hang on with a minority government.

He reached the decision after the Labor Party, which has the largest number of seats, although not a majority in the new House of Commons, put in its bid to form a minority Labor government under party leader and former Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

But Conservative party officials said Heath acted constitutionally and within his rights in refusing to resign.

They argued that even if the Conservatives won fewer seats than Labor, they got nearly 250,000 more popular votes.

They argued that the combined Conservative and Liberal popular votes totalled about 18 million as against 11.6 million for Labor and that, therefore, there was no national mandate for a Labor government.

Watergate Cover-Up Underway Within Hours

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Within hours of the June 17, 1972 break-in at Democratic national headquarters, the Watergate cover-up was under way at the highest levels of President Nixon's White House staff, the Watergate grand jury has charged.

In the weeks and months that followed, the persons closest to Nixon destroyed evidence, paid $557,500 in "hush money" to the Watergate burglars to buy their silence, and thwarted efforts by the FBI, the Justice Department and later the courts to find out the truth, according to the 50-page indictment handed down Friday.

President Nixon has said that during this time he was ordering these same close aides to cooperate openly with the investigators because the "truth had to come out." But even on the dates Nixon said he gave the orders, the indictment shows the cover-up conspiracy going ahead.

The key figures in the coverup were the men who have guided Nixon's career for years:

—John N. Mitchell, Nixon's old friend, New York City law partner, chief political strategist, first attorney general, and director of his 1968 and 1972 presidential campaigns.

—H. R. "Bob" Haldeman, 20 years at Nison's side as his closest aide, chief of the White House staff from Nixon's inauguration in 1969 until he resigned over the Wagergate scandal last April 30, but still in regular contact with the President.

—John D. Ehrlichman, who with Haldeman formed the "Berlin Wall" that critics say closed the President off from the outside world, the chief White House adviser on domestic policy.

Streaking Ban

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — A Democratic state legislator says he is preparing legislation that would ban streaking, a fad sweeping the nation's college campuses where young men and women make wild runs in the nude.

State Sen. William W. Statton, D-Lee, said Friday the bill isn't written yet, "but I'm trying to get something together."

The idea of the bill to prohibit streaking started "sort of as a joke to be funny," the legislator said. But after further thought, he said, such legislation could have a serious purpose.

Statton said public reaction to streaking could have an adverse impact on legislation involving the state's university system.

Statton said, however, his proposal might be "such a foolish idea that I may not want to do it."

Good And Bad

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

First the good news: gasoline lines in North Carolina are shorter.

It's because of new March supplies and part of the emergency allocation left over from February.

Now, the bad news: prices have gone up as much as 10 cents a gallon.

The Federal Energy Office had allowed an increase of two cents beginning March 1 at stations owned or leased by dealers. But one station in Charlotte added to the two cents an additional eight cents to offset a price increase from its supplier. It was charging 53.4 cents a gallon for regular and 57.4 for premium, not of a major brand.

Dealers in Charlotte and in Greenville, S. C., plan to start on Monday a $3 minimum for regular-sized cars. But the Internal Revenue Service says this would violate federal price regulations.

Gov. Jim Holshouser said he was encouraged by the initial response to the odd-even voluntary system. He said that whether this supply system works would depend on the voluntary spirit of citizens.

He made the comment in Raleigh Friday as he told of another plan tied to the energy crisis. Blue and white bumper strips which say "50 DRIVE 55" are being made available by the North Carolina Jaycees at Highway Patrol stations and driver license examining stations. The governor said the message is to remind people in all 50 states to drive the legal limit of 55 miles per hour.

"We experienced a decrease in speeding violations when the new limits went into effect," he said. "But since the first of the year, violations have increased. This indicates that motorists have slipped into some bad habits."

The state House of Representatives has been asked to investigate reported restrictions against the purchase of gasoline at military installations by civilian employes. The resolution was introduced by Reps. Lura Tally and Henry Tyson, both of Cumberland County, in which Ft. Bragg is located. The resolution said gasoline stations in cities near military bases are not permitted to refuse to sell to military personnel.

Hope Of More Gasoline In March Is Welcomed By Businessmen

By CARL L. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

March and the hope of more gasoline will be welcomed not only by the average consumer, but by the local businessman.

A poll of 18 retail business concerns in Greenville this week showed February as a bad month over-all for retail sales.

Of the 18 concerns polled, 10 indicated their sales were down form 1973, five were above and four were even to 1973's figures.

Also polled were three industries, which indicated their production has not been affected by the energy crisis, but one indicated their answer applied "at this time."

Business concerns polled included motels, grocers, clothing stores, a jeweler, entertainment concerns, a building supply house and food service retailers.

Probably the hardest hit in February has been the food service business.

Of the five food service managers questioned, all indicated their overall business was down.

Donny Dail of the Beef Barn stated his "traveling customers", those coming in during the week, were off 25 per cent this month, while over-all business for January and Febraury was down down 10-15 per cent.

Dail indicated he had made no personnel reductions, but had cut down on hours worked by part-time workers.

Dail's personnel decisions followed most of those polled that indicated a decrease in sales. Only one business, the Three Steers restaurant on Memorial Drive, stated they had had any lay-offs of wokers within the past month.

The Three Steers manager stated his weekly volume was off approximately $2,000. The manager stated his business has been down both in January and February.

The local McDoanld's manager stated he had cut his part time worker's hours by 100 per week, now that his business was 10 per cent below normal.

The manager indicated his night-time traffic was especially low, while week end business fluctuated unevenly.

Also hard hit this month has been a local motel, the Econo-Travel, where the manager stated his weekly business was down 30-40 per cent for the first two months of 1974.

"Our regular salesmen are afraid to stay in Greenville," the manager stated.

He went on to explain that their regular traveling customers were not making Greenville their base as usual because of the tight gas situation.

The decrease in sales does not seem to have a particular locale as the focal point.

Business managers questioned both downtown and at Pitt Plaza indicated approximately the same figures when speaking of their reduced sales.

Grocers and the entertainment business (theaters) seem to have fared the best during the first two months of 1974.

Managers of Big Star Foods and Overton's Supermarket were questioned, with both indicating their sales were up form 1973.

The Big Star manager stated his rate of increase was down however, approximately 10 per cent form 1973.

The Overton manager stated January and February had been the best for the same time period he has had.

"Sales are up 40 per cent he stated, while wholesale food prices are up 25 per cent," he added.

Of four clothing stores questioned, only one, the manager of Bount-Harvey's, indicated his sales were down. His reduction was around 25 per cent in February he stated.

That loss of business was due to the fact that many of his regular customers travel from as far away as 40 miles regularly to shop.

Spokesmen for Belk-Tylers, Coffman's and Brody's indicated their clothing sales were either above or even to those for 1973.

Although, one of the managers remarked, "It's bad business to say business is bad."

The Blount-Harvey manager stated he had no plans to reduce his work force at present, but could make no predicitons if the present trend continued.

The manager of Wickes' building supply house stated his sales have been good, but he lost $10 to $15,000 in sales the third week in February due to long gas lines blocking the entrance to his business.

The one jeweler polled, Zales at Pitt Plaza, indicated his business good overall, but that his rate of increase was off 10 per cent in February.

Spending in general seems to be down in Greenville as indicated by a local bank loan officer.

Tom Allen, a loan officer with Wachovia stated, "New car loan applications are down 50 per cent...while applications for loans for recreation purposes are almost non-existant."

A tight money situation has developed greatly in February, Allen indicated. Of the many loan accounts he handels, a three per cent rise in late payments has developed this month alone.

"The man who has managed his money to the limit is finding himself running short," he said.

At the present cost of living and the way the economy is in general, the person in this situation may find himself going under any day, Allen feels.

All of the business concerns questioned expressed hope of the increased gasoline allocation changing the present wave of decreasing spending.

Energy Crisis Is Causing Fear, Hoarding, Violence

By SARA FRITZ
United Press International

The energy crisis has taken its toll on the American people—causing increased fear, frustration, violence, alcoholism, drug abuse, hoarding, escapism and sexual promiscuity.

Amid it all are some signs of growing cooperation among people and a new awareness of family.

But the substance of a UPI survey of leading psychiatrists and sociologists was that people are having trouble adjusting to energy-induced changes in the American lifestyle.

The changes have been obvious—a widespread shift from the automobile to public transportation, long lines at the gasoline pump, fewer long trips and vacations, more evenings at home in front of the television set, job layoffs and phony shortages like the East Coast toilet paper scare.

Federal energy officials have said that people are adjusting to these changes, but many of the experts disagreed.

"I think we're seeing more anger, bitterness and depression, especially in populous areas," said Dr. Gerald Meyer, director of mental health services in Wayne County, N.Y. "The more you cram people together and take away their options, the more you raise the frustration level and the resistance to authority levels."

Dr. Joel Fort, founder of Fort Help, a San Francisco treatment center for people with social problems, described the energy crisis as an "increasing source of frustration." He said the gasoline shortage is "the most prominent manifestation of that" because of long lines at the pump.

"Anger is being expressed—people getting out of line and trying to get ahead in line—and there are signs of increasing apathy," he said. "People are more and more resigned. They are more and more beaten down by the system."

As fear and frustration mount, behavior changes. Dr. Melvin Wessenow, assistant professor of psychiatry at State University College, Geneseo, N.Y., predicted there will be an increased dependence on drugs, alcohol and "other escape mechnisms."

In Los Angeles, Lloyd Workman, director of a telephone crisis center, said there has been a sizeable increase in callers in the past week, apparently because people are staying home and drinking more.

"There is limit to how long you can watch television," said Stubblefield, adding that mental health gencies in his area are receiving an increasing number of alcohol referrals.

Some of the most unusual behavior has been evidenced at the gasoline pump. In McLean, Va., for example, a gasoline station owner who declined to be identified said several women have offered sex in payment for gasoline.

Others said customers offered things like chocolate cake, whisky and beer.

Hoarding of everything from toilet paper to antifreeze was reported in many parts of the country. Dr. Hugh Hendir, acting director of the Lafayette Clinic in Detroit, said that hysteria prompts panic buying and "people believe anything."

Some experts said the frustration of the energy crisis has been compounded by a growing lack of trust in the nation's leaders, particularly those in Washington.

"There's a total lack of credibility at the national level of government and this depresses people," Meyer said, citing a national increase in the number of "depression" cases who seek help. "The energy crisis no doubt will add to this."

A few experts, including Dr. Alfred Messer, a research psychiatrist in Atlanta, said hardships may bring out the best in people.

"The rainbow in the whole dark cloud is that it can draw us back to more family and community orientation," he said. "This tends to make us more people-oriented and less things-oriented."

"There will be more spirit of 'we'll tough it out together'," Stubblefield said. "It won't be quite at the level of intensity of victory gardens during World War II, but in that general direction."

Tantalizing

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Watergate grand jury kept one tantalizing secret as it indicted seven associates of President Nixon: its findings about the President himself.

Those conclusions were contained in a large envelope handed to the judge as the grand jury indicted H. R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John N. Mitchell and four others for conspiring to derail the Watergate investigations.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica glanced at the report, ordered it sealed and kept in the court's custody "until further determination."

Aides said the judge had not decided whether to turn the report over to the House Judiciary Committee which is studying possible impeachment of the President.

A briefcase bulging with grand jury evidence also was given to Sirica and there were reports the jurors had asked that it go to the impeachment committee.

Sirica banned any statements by prosecutors, defendants and their lawyers and grand jurors. The jury, which had been hearing evidence for 20 months, was not discharged and was told its presence might be needed in court in two weeks.

The grand jury charged a total of 24 felony violations against the seven men. Each carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and fines ranging from $2,000 to $10,000.

Completes Singing Tour

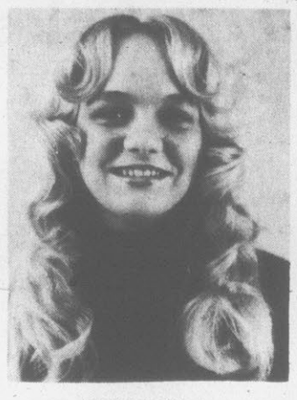
Patricia Buck, 16-year-old D. H. Conley sophomore, recently completed a singing tour with PLS Productions and country music star Billy "Crash" Craddock.

Miss Buck is scheduled to appear March 9 and 10 on the WITN-TV March of Dimes Telerama, March 15 on WNCT-TV's Carolina Today Program, and March 31 on WITN-TV as a guest of Kay Currie.

"I guess some people wonder why, with all the emphasis on pop music, I'm pursuing country," Miss Buck commented. "The main reason is that I've always been around country music."

She added, "Several members are in bands and one aunt is trying her hand at songwriting. Music has always been the 'sunshine' of my life."

The younger singer said that her "only goal is to go as far in the country music field as possible. As long as people want me to sing for them, I will."



Patricia Buck

Miss Buck revealed that her style is her own, noting that "I don't try to sing like anyone. I like to think that what I sing or at least the way is my own."

She explained that "Although I have no pattern that I've set after anyone, I do have favorites. Although everyone is good, I like Loretta Lynn and Conway Twitty. . ." Other favorites, she said, include Connie Smith, Lynn Anderson and Barbara Mandrell.

Miss Buck said that she has been playing the guitar since she was eight years old and has been singing since four. "My hobbies are playing the guitar and I enjoy babysitting."

She is accompanied in her singing appearances by The Cycle Sounds from Washington. The group includes Ward Sullivan, Fred Pollard, Dalton Ingalls, Bobby Haddock, and Larry Saddler.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Buck of Winterville.

Bicycle Larceny

Larry Darnell Suggs, 17 of Winterville was arrested by Greenville Police Friday morning on bicycle larceny charges.

Police Chief Glenn Cannon said officers found Suggs operating a bicycle reported stolen January 25 from 206 North Summit St. about 8:55 a.m. near the intersection of 14th and Evans Streets.

Suggs, the police official said, attempted to flee the scene on the bicycle and was chased by officers. He abandoned the bicycle at the intersection of Tenth and Cotanche Streets and fled on foot.

The youth was taken into custody under a house near the intersection of 12th and Forbes Street.

Eastern Star Banquet

Greenville's chapter of the Eastern Star held its Annual Matron's Council Banquet Friday night.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Mrs. Ollie P. Bond, librarian with the Bertie County Schools.

Mrs. Bond spoke on the topic, Nothing Beats Fellowship-Mixed Well With Love.

Special guests for the meeting were Mrs. Maggie L. Strong, Miss Mary Anchor, Mrs. Lillian Gullens and Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Evans, all of Norfolk, Va., and Peter Phillips an attorney from Chicago.

Illegal Posession Is Charged

John Bryant Venters, 58 of 603 Harris St. was arrested by Greenville Police Friday night on charges of possessing ABC liquor for the purpose of sale.

According to Chief Glenn Cannon, the charges against Venters came following a 9:15 p.m. search that uncovered 16 pints of liquor in a shed behind Venters' home and another six pints of whiskey in a car parked in his yard.

Assisting in the search were Pitt County Sheriff's Department deputies and State ABC officers, the police official said.

Saturday Collision

James Earl Johnson of 902 Norcott Cir. was charged with leaving the scene of an accident following investigation of a 1:55 a.m. mishap here Saturday.

Police said the Johnson car collided with a vehicle driven by Joseph Lee Joyner of 209 New St. at the intersection of Pitt and Howell Streets, causing an estimated $700 damage to the Joyner car and about $300 damage to the Johnson vehicle.

Joyner received minor injuries in the collision, investigators reported.

Gas Damage

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — A Duke University engineer warns motorists that using the wrong type of gasoline in their vehicles may cause engine damage.

Ernest Elsevier, who teaches an engineering course on the combustion engine, says an auto desinged to run on regular gasoline should not be driven on high test, or premium, gasoline for any length of time.

He says the use of high octane premium gas in engines built for regular fuel can cause the cynner exhaust valves to burn out prematurely. The timing of an engine can be adjusted to accept the higher grade gasoline, but if this is done only the higher grade should be used, he advises.

Some motorists who normally buy only one type of fuel have purchased other types of gasoline in recent weeks because of the fuel shortage.

Criminal Offense Only

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee, is quoted as agreeing with the White House contention that President Nixon can be impeached only for a criminal offense.

"I just don't think you can impeach a President for something that doesn't amount to at least a misdemeanor," he said in an interview with Don Hill published Friday in the Greensboro Record.

The Constitution says a President may be impeached for treason, bribery, and "other high crimes and misdemeanors."

Ervin, regarded as a constitutional expert, said he believed the framers of the Constitution considered only specific criminal charges when they referred to "high crimes and misdemeanors."

The senator cited Article 3, Section 2, which states: "The trial of all crimes except in cases of impeachment shall be by jury."

"I think that recognizes that there must be a crime," he said.

Ervin said he is satisfied that the testimony of former White House counsel John Dean that the President knew of, and approved, a Watergate coverup, has never been substantially contradicted."

Stringbean's Banjo

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)— The banjo used by Grand Ole Opry star David "Stringbean" Akeman will be given to the Country Music Hall of Fame, relatives of the murdered musician-comedian have decided.

But attorneys for the Akeman estate said his 140-acre farm and other personal property will be sold at auction becinning Saturday.

Among the items to be sold are some 400 record albums, a chest containing scripts of the old Prince Albert portion of the Opry shows dating back to the late 1940s; his 1974 Cadillac and his 16-foot fishing boat with 65-horsepower engine.

Akeman and his wife, Estelle, were shot to death the night of Nov. 12 as they returned home after an Opry performance.

Two men have been charged with murder in the slayings.

Lacks Leadership

BELHAVEN, N.C. (AP) — Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Robert Morgan says that "because the national administration in Washington lacks credibility, it also lacks the effective leadership needed to keep America moving."

Morgan, North Carolina's attorney general, told the Belhaven Chamber of Commerce Friday night that Congress needs to regain its leadership role in lawmaking.

"The surrender of legislative leadership to the presidency has tended to paralyze the Congress during times of great stress," he said.

"Over the past half century, the President has not only been the person who implements the laws, he has also become the person who proposes them," Morgan said. "The Congress more and more looks to the executive branch of government for legislative leadership.

Morgan also said that, "Watergate should not lead anybody to conclude that the system is bankrupt, for it was the system that brought the facts to life."

Honorary Citizenship?

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., quotes Alexander Solzhenitsyn's lawyer as saing the exiled Russian author would be pleased to accept honorary American citizenship if it is offered.

Helms is chief sponsor of a resolution directing Presoident Nixon to grant the honor. Twenty-four senators have joined him in sponsoring it.

Helms said he had talked Friday morning by telephone with Solzhenitsyn's lawyer, Dr. Fritz Heeb of Zurich.

The senator quoted the lawyer as saying Solzhenitsyn "thinks this action (the resolution) is right. He will be pleased to accept the honorary U.S. citizenship if it is extended to him."

Postal Rate Hike

WASHINGTON AP—Postal service costs you more today than Friday, but maybe not as much as a year from now.

Basic rates went up two cents at midnight Friday. First-class letters are a dime. Airmail is 13 cents and postcards are eight cents.

Rates for parcels and some classes of bulk mail went up slightly and will continue to rise for the next few years.

At a news conference Friday, Postmaster General E. T. Klasen said letter and postcard rates could continue to rise, too, if current strong economic pressures continue.

AT CONVENTION. . .The Right Rev. Hunley A. Elebash, left, discusses highlights of the 1974 convention of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina held Friday and Saturday with the Rev. Pat Houston, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and East Carolina University Chancellor Dr. Leo Jenkins.

Church Committment Asked By Bishop

The Right Rev. Hunley A. Elebash, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of East Carolina, Friday morning called for "a continuing committment on the part of the church in the area of parish involvement in the community."

Speaking at the Friday morning session of the 1974 convention of the Diocese held on the campus of East Carolina University, Bishop Elebash gave his address as a part of the service of the Holy Communion at which time he celebrated. Approximately 400 delegates and guests attended the session.

The Bishop described several areas of life in the church where there was some very definite progress. He particularly commended the churches on growth in the area of community involvement and an extension of programs in Christian Education and work with youth.

Commenting on the new liturgies that are in trial use in the churches, the Bishop stated that there was a growing acceptance of the new services.

He emphasized the importance of worship in these troubled days.

The convention which began Friday morning at 11 a.m. concluded Saturday noon. Most of the sessions of the convention dealt with the general business of the Diocese, including budget concerns and the election of officers of the various departments and commissions of the Diosese.

St. Paul's Epicopal Church of Greenville was the host parish. Workers on the planning committee included Ted Gartman, general chairman; Carl and Anne Wade, registration; Dr. Bob Irwin, chairman for worship and music; Bob Messner, physical arrangements; and Mrs. Joe Davis and Mrs. Billy Jones, banquet arrangements.

Two Are Executed By Garroting

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — Two men convicted of killing policemen were executed Saturday by garroting—strangling with an iron collar tightened by a screw. It was the first political execution in Spain in more than a decade.

Executed were Salvador Puig, 26, a member of the small left-wing anarchist Iberian Liberation Movement (MIL), and Heinz Chez, a stateless person of Polish birth convicted of killing a policeman last summer in a resort town near Barcelona.

Authorities said the crimes were unrelated.

Political sources said the executions indicated the government of new Prime Minister Carlos Arias, named in the wake of the December bomb assassination of Prime Minister Luis Carrero Blanco, was determined to maintain public order.

After the news of the execution was known there were two street demonstrations in downtown Barcelona involving several hundred people, police sources said. In one of them, demonstrators carried a banner saying "They have killed a comrade." The demonstrators disbanded without incident and there were no arrests.

Puig's case had attracted attention inside and outside Spain. There were several demonstrations on his behalf in France and Belgium, and in the past few days two Spanish archbishops and 300 prominent intellectuals and opposition leaders had petitioned Franco to spare his life.

The Vatican, through its official radio, condemned the executions, saying "There remains the bitterness that this time there was no clemency. There remains only the hope that next time the law of love may overcome, not that of retaliation."

Puig had been found guilty by a court martial of killing a policeman in a street fight in Barcelona in September and also been sentenced to 30 years for robbing a bank last spring.

An appeal to the Supreme Court of Militáry Justice had been rejected and the Spanish cabinet presided over by Chief of State Francisco Franco confirmed the death sentence Friday.

Franco Saturday did spare the life of a man condemned to death — policeman Antonio Franco, who had been sentenced to die for killing another policeman, an official statement said.

'Big' Difference

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors, in sharp contrasts to its "Big Three" competitors who have laid off more than 85,000 workers indefinitely, has just finished hiring 1,500 persons and will step up production of small cars Monday.

Altogether, more than 100,000 auto industry workers have been trimmed from payrolls as a result of the energy crisis-induced sales slump. Production in February was down 34.3 per cent from last year and the worst since 1970.

Besides those permanently idled, nearly 53,000 will be on a one-week furlough starting Monday at 12 General Motors and Ford assembly and four manufacturing plants. All produce the slow-selling big cars.

But AMC, with its heavy dependence on small cars, continues to buck the trend and, like its competitors, is boosting small car output. The new second shift operation that begins Monday at the Kenosha, Wis., lakefront body plant will allow AMC to increase output of compact Hornet and subcompact Gremlins from 850 to 1,100 a day.

State EMS Head Praises Volunteers

James Page, director of the state's Emergency Medical Services division spoke to members of the Greenville Rescue Squad and their wives Friday night as officers of the squad for the coming year were installed.

Page a former batalion chief with the Los Angeles County Fire Department and former operations chief of the Los Angeles County paramedic program, has been technical advisor and script writer for the Jack Webb television series "Emergency". He became director of the North Carolina EMS program in December. Praising the state's volunteer rescue men, Page said there has been "No greater impact on my life," than "the rescue squad people of North Carolina." and, he emphasised, "I consider the volunteer rescue squads the backbone of EMS in North Carolina."

Page said, however, that many members of volunteer squads across the state are unhappy with new state rules requiring them to complete an 81-hour training program in order for them to be certified as ambulance attendents. He said much of the controversy has resulted from a simple misunderstanding, however.

According to Page, squad members will receive "credit for prior training" and have until January 1, 1976 to complete the required instruction.

He noted that not all persons would be required to be certified as ambulance attendants. Drivers, extrication specialists and others, he indicated, are not covered under the current legislation.

Page indicated that rescue squads can operate, respond to calls and render aid to victims without being certified as ambulance attendents. But "the minute they put the patient in the truck" to be transported to the hospital; a certified ambulance attendent must be on board.

He noted that 200 to 250 persons die in North Carolina each year as the result of improper handling.

"In Greenville, we don't consider there's any problem," he explained, but indicated "we have to have minimum standards" for ambulance attendents in order to prevent such occurances.

He indicated the 81-hours of training set as a minimum, "is a matter of committment" on the part of rescue workers, "not a matter of possibility. It is possible," Page emphasised, noting that community colleges and technical institutes across the state have been instructed to make the training available to meet the needs and scheduling requirements of the rescue [illegible]

The state set the standards," Page explained, "and we will help the people achieve it."

Page noted that proposed legislation now before the General Assembly is vital to the EMS program. He noted that EMS budget bill, allocating $2.6 million to his agency, is scheduled to be acted on during this week. He also noted that another bill, setting the ground work for more extensive paramedical operations, such as those under way in Los Angeles is before the General Assembly.

According to Page, "people are saving lives by breaking the law" in some areas of North Carolina now. He said it is "in everybody's best interest" to make it legal.

Tommy Whichard

Installed as captain of the Greenville squad last night was Tommy Whichard, a Greenville native, Whichard has been a member of the squad here for several years.

Other officers include: 1st Lt. Wayne Ross, 2nd lieutenants Robert O'Neal and William J. Sawyer, secretary Bill Bevans and Treasurer Billy Tripp.

Board Can't Work In A Vacuum

There are those who cry that the UNC board of governors system is doomed because of the astounding Joint Appropriations Committee 49-28 vote in favor of the ECU medical school expansion last week.

That certainly doesn't have to be true, and we don't believe it will be the case.

The board of governors concept for administering all of the state's 16 universities was inaugurated by the Legislature in 1971 with considerable hope for the future.

It was recognized that the way the board was originally set up was not perfect, but through a series of compromises something that all could live with was reached and the reorganization plan won Legislative approval.

It is well to remember that 16 of the board members came from the Old Greater University board, while another 16 came from boards of various other institutions.

With nearly half of the membership from the Greater University, the board promptly retained the Greater University President William Friday and much of the old staff for the new administrative unit. The new board of governor's headquarters was made in Chapel Hill at the old Greater University office building.

While all that was not entirely bad, it nevertheless is not surprising that it would take the new administrative set up some time to fully adjust to the fact that it was now responsible for advancing all of the state's universities.

We don't think this new responsibility was completely grasped in the matter of the ECU medical school, and it appears that a vast majority of the legislators and the public feel the same way.

So, like a father helping a small child learn to walk, the Legislature has set the UNC board back on its feet, and with a word of encouragement put it on a proper course again. That certainly is a correct role for the Legislature to play in order that it might see its own creation grow and accept its responsibility for the statewide system of universities, as it was originally envisioned.

The UNC board of governors was created as a long range answer to administration and planning for the state's system of higher education. It can't work in a vacuum, however; it must be shaped and honed by public need and desires just as every other agency responsible for expending public money is.

The board of governors once again has the opportunity to show what it can do in bringing about cooperation among state institutions. We hope it is an opportunity that will not be missed.

Spanking Held A Part Of Life

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Spanking is just a part of American life, and everybody says it isn't serious, says Dr. David V. Martin, a member of the National Organization on Legal Problems of Education.

Martin gives a slim chance to any changes in the law permitting school spankings for a long time to come.

At least as long as the schools are more oriented to "custody" of children than to education, the Duke University professor believes.

Society has forced North Carolina schools into that custodial role because schools are expected to look after large numbers of kids while the parents work.

"At best, the pupil is a voluntary client—at worst, and often, an involuntary one," Martin said.

This sets up tensions, demands rules for movement in the building, creates an authority problem, and if the rules aren't followed, "the whole apparatus comes tumbling down." Until values shift from custody to education, schools will continue to decline, the professor believes.

"Signs point toward continued insistence on corporal punishment as a minor means of controlling students. Everybody says it isn't serious—it's done at home.

"But the big difference is that the balancing factors present in the home are not present at school—the hugs and kisses and love that make up for the spanking."

Exerting control is simply a "necessity given the numbers of students compared to teachers and the physical facilities," he said.

Perhaps some change will take place if parents were to attend school all day, one day each month to observe the "archaic conditions," Martin said.

Sandy Beach

If you tried to think up an appropriate name for a young lady to serve as a representative in keeping abreast of activity in the General Assembly on the Coastal Land Mangement Bill, it would be hard to beat the person picked by Secretary James E. Harrington, head of the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Her name is Sandy Beach. People invariably do a double-take when she introduces herself as the legislative liaison officer on coastal legislation and hands over a calling card with that name.

Filing Deadline

Is it possible that some of the lack of activity in the General Assembly so far was related to the filing deadline which past this week?

There are those who think so. With over six weeks gone by in this session, substantive issues still hang fire.

Most of the attention has been on the heated issues of medical school expansion at East Carolina University, tax cuts, and the rejected proposal for appointment of judges.

Some observers say the logjam will now break, that those who are running for reelection are signed up, and no new opposition can enter the fray for the May primary nomination.

One legislator candidly confessed that one of the reasons a showdown was delayed on the East Carolina question was the fear by some lawmakers that if they showed their hands, opposition might file for election.

The same could be true in some other controversial areas, that lawmaker said.

Hard Line Now Nixon Defense

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—When word leaked last weekend that the AFL-CIO Executive Council's midwinter meeting in Florida was considering a campaign to nationalize the oil industry, a senior White House official pressed this accusation on reporters for three national publications: George Meany is taking a "socialistic" line hostile to sentiments of the working man.

Oddly, none of the reporters wrote about this charge. But the harshness and speed of the response proves that the White House is reverting to its old campaign of driving a wedge between AFL-CIO rank-and-file and AFL-CIO president Meany. That political message, rather than genuine solicitude for big oil, was behind the White House accusation.

This in turn, reflects the hard line now firmly established in President Nixon's impeachment defense. The White House has resolved that big labor's hierachy and others demanding impeachment cannot fire at Mr. Nixon without risking conterattack and discouraging disclosure of impeachment evidence, are now in the saddle.

In the case of labor, this seems to suggest another 180-degree turn by the Nixon White House. After feuding bitterly through 1973, the President and Meany formed a temporary alliance out of mutual loathing for the McGovern wing of the Democratic party. That alliance was at least superficially thriving when it became a sudden victim of the Watergate scandals last spring.

In reality, however, Mr. Nixon has consistently followed a labor-political strategy charted by former political aide Charles Colson: split and anti-left working man from his more liberal union leaders. The short uncomfortable alliance with Meany in 1972 did not interrupt Colson's efforts to woo the rank-and-file—especially of unions with liberal leadership such as the United Auto Workers—from their officers.

Moreover, the principal adviser on labor politics at the White House today is Kenneth Clawson, deputy and protege of Colson during the 1972 election campaign who was recently promoted to become White House communications director. An undisputed leader of the hard-line faction, Clawson has been privately viewed by one top White House aide as the "inevitable" successor to Colson as Mr. Nixon's chief hatchet man.

The sharp, quick reaction to Meany's oil nationalization certainly bore the Colson-Clawson trademark. Perceiving working-men hostility to leftist dogma including "socialism," the White House moved quickly to transform an attack on the manifestly unpopular oil industry into a liability for AFL-CIO officialdom among its own membership.

That became obvious on Jan. 15 when Vice President Gerald Ford delivered his now notorious speech at Atlantic City, written in the White House, assaulting Meany and the AFL-CIO leadership for their impeachment campaign. Since then, White House operatives have propagandized and assaulted labor contributions to Democratic members of the House Judiciary Committee now considering impeachment.

Furthermore, this assault is becoming the prevailing White House line in counteracting Democratic gains in recent special congressional elections. When labor money and manpower played a major role in recent Democratic victories in Pennsylvania and Ford's old Michigan district, the decision was made to complain loudly about "labor outsiders" horning in on future contests in Ohio, California and Michigan.

There are no illusions among White House realists about the effectiveness of hoary charges that labor barons are intervening in local elections or about the prospects of rehabilitating Mr. Nixon's shattered standing with blue-collar workers. But, there is a new unanimity that a controlled counterattack strategy is the only sensible approach to Mr. Nixon's never-ending crisis. The soft-liners have either disappeared or fallen silent.

This marks a major change from early January when senior aides confined that one reason there were no presidential press conferences was the total lack of consensus on what approach Mr. Nixon should take and therefore how he should answer questions. That consensus now has been reached: no more explanations or apologies, but counterattack (which explains the sudden, unexpected White House assault this week on the Democratic Congress).

With some justification—but also some risk—Mr. Nixon's lieutenants feel the White House can mobilize itself in a campaign to save the President with a monomania his enemies (including congressional Democratic leaders) cannot match. Attempting to convince the working man that tough old George Meany is really a socialist is only one early sign of that singleminded resolve.

"It is characteristic of wisdom not to do desperate things."—Henry David Thoreau.

Strength For Today

ON BEING HAPPY

Goethe at the height of his fame remarked that he could recall less than half a dozen happy days in his life. Edward Gibbon, in his famous "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," quotes Caliph who, after recounting the glory of his reign, adds: "In this situation I have diligently numbered the days of pure and genuine happiness which have fallen to my lot. They amount to fourteen. O man, place not thy confidence in this present world."

These words are one more indication—if one were needed—that happiness does not automatically follow the acquisition of fame or power and that satisfaction of desires. There is of course no formula for happiness but the experience of some psychologists working with interpersonal groups indicates one fruitful way in which people can work towards happiness. First, they must see themselves as individual persons with a unique destiny in the world. Then they should work toward that destiny in a social context, striving in some way to make the world a better place in which to live.

Sunday Morning Notes

Tillie Knowles, editor of The Pamlico County News reports that the bottled gas supply for her apartment ran out recently.

She knew it was too soon, so she called the gas company and they came out to check.

Turned out that gas to another apartment was supposed to be turned off. They got Tillie's gas supply by mistake.

L. Ray Hardee of 105 S. Warren St., writes:

"Tonight my wife said that if we could put all the politicians in Washington, D. C. in a car with two small children for over two hours waiting for gas, then we would have plenty of gas.

"Amen."

Somehow I think that would get action.

ALVIN TAYLOR

And an observer who got in a gas line on Memorial Drive before daylight recently, said he noticed a courteousness among the motorists.

Each driver as he pulled up to the rear of the line turned on his blinker lights. When another car pulled in behind, the blinkers were turned on and the car ahead turned his off.

No one told the drivers to do it they just figured it out.

People aren't so dumb after all.

It was obvious from the early moments of the Joint Appropriations Committee hearings that it was to be ECU's day in Raleigh last week.

UNC-TV was televising the full committee proceedings.

About the time the committee got to the climactic vote one of the UNC-TV people rushed into the committee room saying in a loud whisper, "Someone knocked the power out."

One wag, standing nearby in the crowed room, commented, "He doesn't know how much truth he's spoken."

And on the program that night Moderator Dick Hatch commented that there wasn't too much else going on in the Legislative halls that day.

(Jacksonville Daily News)

One good thing can be said for the latest Mideast war and the subsequent Arab oil embargo: We as a nation have been disabused of a number of illusions or misconceptions, some of them rather dangerous.

Take the so-called Atlantic alliance. Had it not been for the war and the embargo, we would never have known that it is not worth the paper it is written on. The illusion that it was could have proved mighty embarrassing in the event of a showdown with the Soviet Union in Europe.

Our allies first denied landing rights to our supply planes bound for Israel, then fell all over each other in the scramble to secure special oil deals with the Arabs.

The United States, to be sure, still exercises enough leadership that it could call a conference of 13 oil consuming nations. But the foreign ministers gave the impression of coming to Washington only reluctantly while signalling frantically behind their backs to the Arabs not to pay any attention to anything that was said at the conference.

(It would be interesting to watch the scramble were our Western European allies to be left to work out special deals with the Soviet Union, which is hungry for Western technology—an automobile factory in return for the right to exist, perhaps.)

As for the Soviet Union, it has demonstrated that "detente" has about as much real existence as NATO. Only by forbidding Israel victory in October and declaring a worldwide military alert were we able to prevent Russia from intervening directly in the war in a way that could have had frightful consequences.

Or take King Faisal of Saudi Arabia. ("Please," as a certain comedian might say.) Faisal, we're told, is at heart basically pro-American. Only he can't show it for fear of compromising his position of leadership among the Arab states.

Thus at the height of the crisis, Faisal called in American oil company executives and forbade them to supply the U. S. Navy with any oil from his sandpile. It was later revealed that the oil companies had been given multi-million-dollar tax incentives in the 1950s to ensure that in an emergency, the United States would have a source of "friendly" Mideast oil.

It's nice to know that in the crunch, one can count on one's allies and friends—to look out for themselves.

Japan Digging Down

By STEVE WILSON

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — A waterfall cascades over a plastic nude resting in a huge underground shopping center here while trucks roar by far overhead and subway trains whiz silently below.

The plastic nude, apparently intended to create a serene atmosphere, sits placidly in the Niji No Machi, or Rainbow City.

It is one of the world's largest underground shopping centers and perhaps the best example of the Japanese skill in exploiting once wasted space under their streets, sidewalks and parks.

In major cities around the world there is a shortage of land. But Japanese cities are probably the most crowded and builders are increasingly looking downward to find more space.

In Tokyo, for instance, land in the central business area costs the equivalent of more than $1,000 a square meter, many times the price of land on New York City's Manhattan Island, according to Kazuo Ota, president of Tetsudokaikan Architects. His company built the underground center at Tokyo's main train station.

Many of Japan's underground projects are merely a few shops along passageways connecting the basements of two buildings. Others are sprawling complexes like Osaka's Rainbow City, which is built like a half-mile-long layer cake.

Subways make up the bottom layer. More than 150 shops occupy the next level. Cars and buses run along the 10-lane street on ground level, and an expressway on huge cement legs towers over it all.

More than 300,000 Japanese surge through the maze of tunnels each day, moving between the two railway and six subway lines linked to Rainbow City.

A sign for the guidance of aviators flying over this community will be erected atop the John Flanagan Buggy Company building at the corner of Fourth and Cotanche Streets, it was decided at the regular monthly meeting of the Board of Aldermen at City Hall last night.

The sign will be erected at the suggestion of the Civil Works Administration in keeping with their program of making flying safer in all parts of the nation.

The request of the CWA was reported by Mayor Flanagan after he stated that nothing definite had been accomplished in the proposed erection of an airport in the city. He stated that the committee is working on the proposal and will reach a decision in the near future.

A ten-year-old Springfield, Ill. youth who said he likes to see fire engines run, admitted that he set fire to the state arsenal in Springfield, causing a loss of $900,000.

Gold-Buying, Sign Of Distrust

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) To John Flynn, who does a booming business in precious metal coins here, there is something quite different about the latest gold rush.

Rather than greed, it seems to indicate great fear and distrust. And judging by the crowds that daily jam their way into his shop, the gold craze has affected a wider spectrum of society than might be realized.

One man explained it succinctly. "You're a bit young and you don't remember it but I do," he said to the salesman as he prepared to buy some gold coins. "I lived through the 1920s." That was the boom that led to the bust.

"People of not very great means are worrying about their bank savings," said Flynn. "They're worried about inflation. Many of them are withdrawing their savings and buying gold coins."

If this is so it hasn't yet made any impression in the statistics. Money continues to pour into savings accounts and the widely held view is that the savings rate will rise through much of the year.

But many thousands of Americans, some of whom would feel mortified if called speculators, are buying up gold coins and probably would be hoarding gold bullion too if they were permitted by law.

"Individuals who have been buying coins lately seem to be holding them for the longer term," Flynn said. 'They're just not cashing in. There is no question in my mind that they fear paper money and continued inflation."

At midweek the price of gold at the big London market was $169.50 a troy ounce, after having been more than $10 higher a few days earlier. But six years ago the price was only $35, and last year between $80 and $100.

At the Perera Fifth Avenue outlet, which Flynn operates as part of the international Deak-Perera Group of coin and foreign exchange dealers, customers were paying $365 for a U.S. $20 double eagle coin. A year ago the price was $185.

The big jump was, of course, based on the higher price of gold bullion. But why should a Double Eagle, containing 0.968 troy ounces of gold, sell at such a huge premium?

The situation is indeed a curious one. Silver coins, in contrast, sell for very close to the value of their silver content. But gold coins are sold at premiums of 25 per cent to 120 per cent over their gold content.

Dealers say the cost of minting adds 10 per cent to the price, and the mint's markup another 5 per cent. The remainder is said to be accounted for by transportation and broker markup.

But a good deal of that price results from the traffic. Some coins are "in," some hard to find, others quite beautiful, and many — for various reasons — are of limited availability. Demand, in other words, exceeds supply.

Observations From Editorial Columns

Raiding The Treasury

You should be sorry that you weren't born a Congressman. For then you could vote yourself a fat pay raise, courtesy of the taxpayers. Better yet, you could just twiddle your thumbs and the pay raise would automatically come your way.

That is what will happen, unless a majority of either the House of Representatives or the U. S. Senate votes to reject the pending pay raise.

Under a bit of legislative sleight-of-hand that Congress devised while looking the other way, a Federal commission makes recommendations to the President that are automatically enacted into law unless Congress rejects them.

The commission recommended a flat 25 per cent Congressional pay raise to the White House, which was a bit much for Mr. Nixon. He did not approve the figure, but instead is recommending a boost of 7.5 per cent in each of the next three years.

That means the current $42,500 salary of Representatives and Senators would be increased to $45,700 this year, to $49,100 in 1975 and to $52,800 in 1976.

The automatic pay raise will go into effect on March 6 unless Congress countermands it in the next three weeks. Congress has not had a pay raise in five years. However, the Honorables are jumpy about giving themselves an extra $10,000 just now, when the country is in a nasty temper. And they ought to be running scared.

Put it this way. Do you think Representative G. William Whitehurst is worth $42,500? Do you think Representative Robert W. Daniel Jr. will be worth $45,700 this year? Do you think Senator Harry F. Byrd Jr. will be worth $49,100 in 1975? Do you think Senator William L. Scott will be worth $52,800 in 1976? You have just three weeks in which to let your elected representatives in Washington know what you think. — Norfolk Virginia-Pilot

There's No Peanut Crunch

There may be another use for the lowly peanut that even George Washington Carver never thought of.

According to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, fireplace "logs" made of a mixture of peanut hulls and waxes may soon be doing their small bit to ease the energy, uh, crunch.

At the present time, the producers of peanuts and peanut products get rid of vast quantities of the hulls in incinerators.

"That seemed to us to be a terrible waste of potentially useful resources," says Bill Albrecht, of USDA's Russell Research Center at Athens, Ga. "So by way of experiment, we compared two brands of commercial wood chip logs with our peanut hull logs by burning them in a home fireplace."

The wood chip logs burned about four hours, while the peanut logs burned for three. But the latter, he reports, "seemed to burn more vigorously, with a warmer flame."

Also, the peanut logs were easier to ignite, odorless and produced little smoke. When salts were added to the mixture, the logs burned with pretty colors.

The researchers believe that peanut logs could be marketed for about the same cost per unit of warmth as wood chip logs. — Williamson (W.Va.) News

Shrinking Graveyards

For many years conservationists have deplored the unsightly automobile graveyards along the nation's highways. Now suddenly those graveyards of "dead" automobiles are disappearing.

Part of the reason for the cleanup seems to be the improved technology that makes it possible to tear the old hulks into shreds in about 15 seconds. But that technology has come into play in large part because of the demand for scrap metal needed to make new steel.

And the high demand for scrap has brought about a recent Cost of Living Council ruling that permits the steel industry to pay higher prices for the shredded junkers.

It is a demonstration of how the economic system can right itself if given a chance.

Europeans and Japanese long ago solved their junk problems because everything became valuable to them. Maybe we in the United States finally are learning that lesson, too. — Memphis

Federal Campaign Subsidies Need More Debate

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

Last week's disclosures in the Kalmback-Symington affair doubtless will provide one more log to feed the fires of federal campaign financing. Before these flames of enthusiasm get out of hand, some cool reflection is in order.

What we are led to understand is that Herbert Kalmback, the President's onetime personal lawyer and fund-raiser, made an outright deal in 1970 with J. Fife Symington, a wealthy Maryland politician and airline executive. Symington wanted to be named ambassador to Spain or Portugal; he had excellent credentials for such a post; Kalmback, so we are told, offered him such an appointment in exchange for a $100,000 campaign contribution.

Kalmback has pleaded guilty to the charge, a misdemeanor under federal law. Symington at this writing has made no comment. He never got the nomination.

The story is not pretty, but it ought not to be overblown. From time immemorial, no matter which party is in power, major diplomatic appointments have been closely tied to campaign contributions. Nothing new will be learned by laundering dirty linen. Had Symington actually been nominated, the first questions asked at his confirmation hearing would have exposed the gift. It would all have come out in the wash. Senators, having heard all this before, would have yawned and confirmed him anyhow.

The story, however, comes on top of 12 months of related disclosures, hearings, pleas of guilty, confessions, fines, and all the rest. At one time, in revulsion against this sordid business, federal financing struck me as perhaps the lesser of the evils. I have since reconsidered.

On February 6 the Senate Rules Committee approved a bill to subsidize presidential and congressional campaigns in 1976. The idea is to fix a limit of $24 million in public and private funds for each of the major party candidates for president, $90,000 for each such candidate for the House, and $175,000 for each candidate for the Senate. The purpose is to put an end to reliance upon the fat cats.

The bill also would establish a ceiling of $3,000 on the gift of any single donor. Other provisions deal with minority party candidates, and with the financing of presidential primaries. The bill is long, complex, not easily summarized. But this much is clear: If the Senate bill is enacted into law, or anything like it becomes law, we will have made a fundamental change in the whole American political process.

The various proposals demand far more thoughtful debate than they have received thus far. Under its power to make regulations prescribing the manner in which senators and representatives shall be elected, Congress may have authority to legislate as to them. The bill is on much shakier ground when it undertakes to deal with candidates for president. We do not vote for such candidates: We vote for electors in each state, and the electors are subject to state regulation.

Once we get into federal financing, we embark irreversibly on the way toward national primaries and direct popular election of our presidents. The people may want this—opinion polls say they do—but so drastic a change in our basic federalism ought to be approached with great care.

The Senate bill also raises large questions of First Amendment freedoms. Is a limit of $3,000 on any individual's contribution an abridgment of his freedom of expression? It would seem so. Would the bill undermine the two-party system? Many scholars fear it would. What advantage would the scheme give to incumbents seeking re-election? There is reason to believe it would give them a powerful advantage over unknown challengers.

The Kalmback-Symington affair is distasteful. The $189,000 given by the AFL-CIO to Democrats on the House Judiciary Committee is distasteful. The fat contribution of the milk producers to the Nixon campaign is distasteful. But the consequences of federal financing could be more distasteful still. On balance, it strikes me as better to bear the ills we have than to fly to others that we know not of.

Ominous Similarity In Policies That Lead To Status Of U.S. Crisis

By GEORGE BRYANT, JR.

There is an ominous parallel in national policies which led to the energy crisis and those which have created inflation, now admittedly on a crisis course.

There was nothing sneaky about the energy crisis. It didn't steal upon an unsuspecting nation in the dead of night. Its coming was widely proclaimed. Ways to avoid it were proposed and debated. But the seats of power, the White House and, more especially, the Congress did nothing about it, or little, at best.

Why? Any meaningful action would have risked political offense. The things that could have been done to assure the future would have brought higher prices for natural gas, petroleum and its products, coal and electricity.

Politically, this was unthinkable. Men who win elective office, especially legislative office promise good things. And then they try their best to hang onto the office by handing out goodies to constituents. Snatching goodies back takes a sort of courage we seldom see.

So, today, we have an energy crisis. True, the Arab embargo pulled the trigger. But it was not the Arabs who packed powder in the gun for years, ignoring warnings of what was bound to happen. A little austerity, starting a couple of decades ago, would have avoided the spectacle of cool homes, dim lights, gas lines, the auto production mess and actual unemployment due to energy.

It is the same story with inflation. It didn't sneak upon us in the dark. Its coming, too, has been widely heralded since the early post-World War II years. Eisenhower held a foot on the spending brake during his Administration. He feared the inflationary effect of deficits, and saw this as the road to national disaster.

But inflation has never been the fear of members of Congress. Their fear, the one uppermost in their minds, is that they might lose their jobs. And they look upon the handing out of money for digging ditches, building dams, housing, welfare in its many forms, subsidies and, well, you name it, as the surest way hanging in there, with the best pay and fringes most have ever had, or ever will have.

While the Vietnam war was building up during the Johnson years, Congress insisted on whooping through Great Society programs, even if this did mean continued deficits for years, even during the longest and biggest boom the nation has ever experienced.

The way the system works, financing a deficit means printing money. Operating through the banks, a dollar of deficit spending can become $5, $6 or even $7 in loanable funds—"invisible greenbacks."

It involved creation of money without creation of an equivalent amount of wealth—goods and services. This money searches for goods and drives prices up. This can play havoc when the supply of goods and services cannot be expanded immediately.

It needs recalling that President Nixon's troubles with the Democratic-run Congress did not start with Watergate. When Watergate broke, Congress was demanding a constitutional showdown with the White House on who controls the purse strings. Nixon had been refusing to spend all the money Congress had been voting. This was a key part of efforts to at least control inflation.

The budget which went to Congress this year was up a whopping $30 billion. No big new programs were included. Mostly, the increase was to cover what Congress has voted in the past, plus inflation and debt cost increases.

It was against this background that Federal Reserve Chairman Arthus Burns handed Congress a blunt warning of what's ahead. Burns warned of a Latin American-type spiral—"that is the way we seem to be going"—and talked of "double didgit" inflation, a European term to describe inflation at a higher than 10 per cent annual rate. And he talked of the need for a "little austerity," even if it means higher unemployment.

Perhaps it was a coincidence, but on that same day the government announced that the January rise in consumer prices was at an annual rate of 12 per cent. The market reaction may be significant. Interest rates, easing a bit, turned harder.

But if the past is any guide, Burns' warning will be largely ignored. This means putting action off until there is a crisis, as in energy. There will be a difference, though.

"The recent trend is to construct underground streets like this," says Kunikazu Onishi, the business manager for the underground shopping center.

He says this type of construction helps traffic, shoppers can easily reach subways and trains without long walks, and the complex itself is revitalizing a wide area in the city's southern part.

Osaka is Japan's second largest city with a population of just over three million. It is located roughly 300 miles west of Tokyo.

The city has long been known among the Japanese primarily as a business center where making money is considered the population's major preoccupation.

This traditional penchant for business has been combined in Rainbow City with relaxed and beautiful surroundings. It is easy to forget you are 30 feet underground with two levels of traffic above you.

The stores are filled with Japan's affluent young people, housewives picking up a few groceries or commuters stopping for a quick meal in one of its Western, Japanese or Chinese restaurants.

Wide underground avenues link the complex with large plazas, or rest areas. In the Plaza of Light, 1,600 bulbs brighten and dim and change the lighting pattern in concert with the background music.

In another plaza, a simulated jungle grove has been created with about 15 different kinds of living trees while birds flit and chirp in a living-room-sized clear plastic cage.

And the water, after tumbling over the plastic nude, eventually flows into another plaza where 2,000 tiny nozzles and special lights create a continuous rainbow.

The opportunity to build Rainbow City occurred as Osaka officials started planning the overhead expressway and subway lines that were needed to control traffic congestion.

Construction was completed in 1971 and the shopping center is half owned by the city and the rest by private interests, according the center's business manager.

First-Hand Lesson On Gas Crisis For Morgan

By JOHN KILGO

Attorney General Robert Morgan, running for the U. S. Senate, is learning first-hand about the energy crisis. He had a press conference in Charlotte Wednesday, but didn't have enough gas in his personal car to drive from his Raleigh office to the airport.

Reporters hammered at Morgan about whether he had the advantage on his opponents, in that he had access to a state car and maybe state galoline.

Morgan's answer was emphatic. "I haven't ridden in or driven a state car since I announced for the Senate," he said. "I wait in lines for gasoline like everybody else."

Morgan, in an off the cuff remark, said gas rationing would be better than what is happening in North Carolina now.

"At least then," he said, "People would know what to expect. They'd know they had a certain amount of gasoline and they wouldn't have to get up in the middle of the night to be the first in line at a service station the next day."

In announcing his plans to raise $400,000 for the Senate campaign, Morgan said he doubted his campaign would accept any contribution over $5,000. He said he would follow federal spending guidelines for the campaigns and warned: "I plan to keep an eye on the expenditures of my opponents."

If campaign spending violations are reported to the Attorney General's office, Morgan said the complaints would be handled by one of his assistants, Jim Bullock. Isn't this reason enough that he sould resign as attorney general before the Senate primary heats up?

"I see it as no conlfict," Morgan replied.

The glare of TV lights at the big-city press conference has posed a problem for Morgan.

"I have glasses that change colors," Morgan said, "and I can't read without them. When the TV lights hit the glasses, I look like I have two black eyes."

Morgan says he will divulge his 1973 income tax returns and also make public his personal assets. "I will do this as soon as possibile," he said.

The energy crisis might have a resounding effect on the campaigns of those seeking state-wide office. Gasoline in many parts of the state has been impossible to get in recent weeks. Lines in Charlotte are often half-a-mile long.

Candidates who hop around in their car will need to make sure gasoline is waiting for them somewhere along the line.

As Morgan put it: "It means we had better be well-organized."

Text Of Sen. Ralph Scott's Appeal For ECU Med School Bill

(Sen. Ralph H. Scott (D-Alamance), at the Joint Appropriations Committee meeting Tuesday, made a strong appeal for passage of the bill drafted by himself and Rep. Carl Stewart (D-Gaston). The bill provides for expansion of the ECU medical school and recieved a favorable recommendation by a vote of 49-28. Following is the text of Sen. Scott's remarks).

Ladies and gentlemen of the committee, you might say this is a case where we have "three coins in the fountain." And all of us are wondering "Which one will the fountain bless?"

I have some pretty definite ideas about which one the fountain ought to bless. With your indulgence, I will proceed to give you those ideas, as briefly as I know how.

Let's take a look at what we have.

Number One, we have a bill sponsored by Representative Huskins, Senator Garrison and others. For the sake of simplicity, lets call it the East Carolina University Bill. It calls for the building of a school of medicine at Greenville by a specified date.

Number Two, we have a bill sponsored by Representative Hyde and others. Let's call it the Board of Governors' Bill. It does not call for the building of a medical school at Greenville.

And number Three, we have a bill sponsored by Chairman Stewart and myself and others. Let's call this one the compromise bill. It calls for the building of a medical school at Greenville but it does not lock it into a definite time frame.

I realize it is not all that simple. All three bills contain several other provisions and specifications and whereases. But you know, and I know, that this is about the size of it. We need to get a handle on this thing. It's high time we did some plain talking and some plain thinkings.

Now, how did this all get started in the first place? The temptation is to say that it all started because ECU wanted a medical school and the Board of Governors didn't want them to have it, so ECU asked the General Assembly to make the Board of Governors give them one. But that's not exactly the situation.

This thing didn't start because ECU wanted a medical school. This thing started because the people of North Carolina wanted their health needs attended to. They were finding doctors as scarce as hen's teeth. They were not getting the proper health care. They were enduring misery. They were enormously disgusted, and they wanted something done about it.

What could be done about it? One idea that was advanced was to build a medical school in the medically-poor East, at Greenville. This made a lot of sense to them. And it makes a lot of sense to practically any thinking person, unless he is one of those so-called "experts" we have heard so much about.

This idea was taken through channels and wound up in the Board of Governors, which oversees East Carolina and the other 15 schools in the UNC system. The Board of Governors wouldn't go along with it.

So, what were the people to do? They did what they have been doing since Hector was a pup. They did the very natural thing of turning to their elected representatives in government. . .you and I . . .the members of this General Assembly.

Some profess to see this as giving the back of the hand to the Board of Governors, or as trying to put two left shoes on them. They are wrong. It was a case of the Board of Governors failing to respond to a public need, so the people turned to someone who would. It's interesting to note that most of those who are now defending the Board of Governors so strongly are the same ones who fought tooth and toenail against creation of the Board in the first place.

It is the course of wisdom to keep public services current with clearly demonstrated public needs. If we fail to do that, we do so at our own peril.

Whose responsibility is it to see that the wheels turn to show the way. . .to make the policy decisions that will bring about results? The Board of Governors? No. It is the responsibility of the elected representatives of the people.

As Representative Huskins said at our public hearing last week: "It is the people, not the medical establishment, who are paying for the doctor shortage in time and treasure."

There are some who say it can't be done because it would take a world of money to build another medical school. Funny thing. . .most of them seem to be people who don't want it built. The people aren't mentioning a price tag. They're only talking about action. The fellow who says it can't be done is liable to be interrupted by somebody doing it.

PLAN YOUR HOME

Brick veneer, flagstone terrace and functional design features provide comfortable living on a modest budget in the "Westport." The unique porch detail further adds to the beauty of the home.

A combined kitchen and dining area is separated by cabinets containing built-in range and oven, while the kitchen opens onto a utility area for washer, dryer, hot water heater and furnace. The U-shaped kitchen is ideally designed with a modern work pattern — minimal steps are needed, but a spacious counter area is simultaneously provided. The utility area also is a step-saver, as it is convenient to the kitchen, but an extended hallway wall hides unsightly laundry from the living areas of the home.

The flagstone terrace is reached via sliding glass doors from the dining area.

Entry is provided directly into the living area, which opens onto a hallway leading to the bedroom wing. The three bedrooms share a convenient bath, designed with two sinks for more functional use. A linen closet opens onto the hall.

Although no basement is planned for this streamlined home, storage is no problem. Storage areas are built off the dining area and at the rear of the garage. In addition, the large bedroom closets combine with the hall linen closet and a coat closet to provide ample storage room.

A study of the "Westport" plan indicates that the home pleasantly divides the sleeping area, the living area, and the kitchen-eating-utility area to provided relaxed living, privacy and simplified housekeeping chores. And while the function of the design may be its most attractive feature, the design concepts add beauty to the convenience.

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

The remodeling of old houses moves along at an increasing pace while the construction of new houses slows down.

It is not the first time that these two businesses have run contrary to each other. Many families contemplating the purchases of new houses have decided, because of various negative economic factors, to remodel instead.

Fortunate indeed is the family that can undertake most or all of the remodeling itself, labor costs being what they are. But what of the family that has neither the skills nor the time to make the necessary changes around the house? Is it really possible to hire a reputable contractor who will turn out a good job and not charge what he thinks he can get rather than what will enable him to make a reasonable profit?

Yes, you have a good chance of making a satisfactory arrangement if you remember the cautions that have been repeated and repeated about the [illegible] selection of a contractor. It would seem unnecessary to remind home owners not to do business with fly-by-night operators or marginal contractors, considering how many millions of words have been said and written about the subject. Yet year after year, without fail, thousands of people are "taken" in their dealings with remodeling contractors. Since the majority of contractors are reputable and want to satisfy you so that their business can expand by word-of-mouth, what causes the seeming gullibility of so many home owners?

The answer is "price." The public is in so great a rush to get a bargain — rightfully so, in most cases — that it can't [illegible] tractor whose price is a lot lower than others. And that's one of the keys to the whole situation. If you get estimates, let us say, from three contractors, which you should do, and two of them quote $2,000 for the job, while the third makes a bid of $600 — beware. Maybe, just maybe, he is perfectly honest and has found some way of doing a good job at less than half the price of other contractors. But the chances are that he will be cutting so many corners that you will wind up with inferior materials and inferior workmanship.

It's the old story that law enforcement agencies know so well. Most persons who are swindled were trying to get something for nothing or almost so. If somebody tried to sell you a mink coat for $50 or a new car for $500, you'd suspect that all wasn't well. Yet thousands of persons buy such things all the time and then find they bought coats that weren't worth $25 and autos that weren't worth $200.

To get a reliable contractor, remember the yardsticks — someone in business in the neighborhood for some time, someone who has a place of business and not just a phone number or a post office box, someone who can give a bank for a reference and someone whose customers can tell you how satisfied they were.

The Garden Clinic

N. C. State University Answers Timely Gardening Questions

Q. The only place that I have for vegetables is at the back of a city lot. The lot has a row of trees along one side. Would the trees impair garden production? (H. P., Greensboro)

A. Probably, but here is an idea that might help. Go out to the site one morning by sunrise and observe exactly where the sun comes up. Determine the place that gets the earliest, direct sun. Also observe the time that it is getting sun. Use this area for your warm season vegetables, such as tomatoes, peppers and cucumbers. Use the areas that have reduced sunlight for cool season vegetables, such as leafy greens, onions and cabbage. (George Hughs, extension horticulturist)

A. What type soil is needed to grow narcissus? (W. F., Dunn)

A. Any garden soil—providing it is deep, well drained, and fertile. Narcissus will not grow well in hot, barren soils, or where soil remains wet for long periods of time. (Henry J. Smith, extension landscape horticulturist)

A. I've heard of people planting "snow peas." What are they talking about? (Mrs. B. G., Lumber Bridge)

A. Snow peas ore a type of Garden (English) Pea with an edible pod. You snap them like you would young Southern Field Peas. They are used extensively in Chinese foods. Snow Peas will grow any place that Garden Peas will grow. The most prominent variety is Melting Sugar. (George Hughes, Extension horticulturist)

Q. Many pines near my house are shedding their current (green) needles. Some trees are almost completely defoliated. What could be the problem? (J. W., Butner)

A. The problem is believed to be linked to (1) the prolonged dry season last fall, which was followed by a period of amply, if not excessive, moisture; and (2) stagnant air conditions in January. More research will be necessary to verify the cause of the problem, which is showing up in many parts of the state. Trees examined are not dead. They will likely grow new leaves with the coming of warm weather. (Fred Whitfield, extension forester)

Know Inner-Workings Of House

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's more to a house than an attractive exterior, the family room you've always dreamed of and a great fireplace in the living room.

The new homeowner has a lot to learn about the inner workings of his house, and the best time to do it is before you move in.

If you're buying a new house, the builder's the man to talk to. If it's an older home, try to have the previous owner conduct you on a thorough inspection tour to make sure you know where everything is and how it works.

If you're already in your home, but not fully acquainted with it, the time to look into things is now —not some cold night when the furnace suddenly cuts out, or during the spring thaw when water starts seeping into the basement and the sump pump doesn't pump.

Take time to set up a simple file on your house. A loose leaf notebook and an inexpensive expansion file will do it. You should also have some sturdy oak tags, an indelible marker and adhesive labels or, if you have one, a plastic label maker is even better.

House Tour

Your tour of the house, with or without guide, should start in the basement or utility room. Learn the location of all water valves, circuit breakers or fuse boxes, gas valves and meters. Label each clearly.

Find out how to operate all equipment —furnace, air conditioner, humidifier or dehumidifier, water pump, hot water heater, water conditioning system, sump pump, fuel supply. Label each with information for routine operation and maintenance, any special precautions. Red labels, easily spotted in an emergency, are a good idea for master switches and the main water valve.

The kitchen should be your next stop. Find out how to operate all equipment. If the former owner is on hand, he will be able to tell you not only how equipment works, but any idiosyncrasies it may have —a dishwasher door, for instance, that sometimes needs a little extra pressure on the latch before it will start, or an oven that runs 25 degrees high or low.

Elsewhere in the house, ask about the fireplace, any special equipment such as zone thermostats, intercom system, burglar or fire alarms, auxiliary heating units, ventilating fans in bathrooms or attic. You might check on screens and storm windows.

Outdoors, determine the location of septic tank and fields, fuel storage tank or fuel inlet, well, any buried gas or power lines.

Check out carefully a swimming pool or any other recreational equipment that goes with the house. Find out what maintenance is required, what equipment —pumps, vacuums, filters —is included and how it works.

If the previous owner obviously was a gardener, inquire about trees and plantings. If there's an automatic sprinkling system, check its layout.

If a survey was made of the property, have the wooden bounday markers replaced with permanent metal ones. A coat of bright paint will make these easier to find in a few years. File your survey map. If a new survey was not made, ask for a survey map and have the previous owner walk the boundaries with you.

House Tour

Try to obtain, from the builder, previous owner or, if necessary, from the manufacturer, the instruction booklets for all equipment. Store them in your expansion file.

Try to obtain, also, all warranties and purchase slips applying to equipment in the home, and file these along with your instruction manuals. Some of these still may be in effect and can protect you. Others may apply only to the original owner, but they will indicate when the appliance was purchased and should give an idea of when it might have to be replaced.

Ask, also, for any blueprints, specifications and other paperwork pertaining to the construction of the house and subsequent changes. These aren't always available but when they are can be very helpful should you decide to remodel or add on.

Any maintenance records an owner kept may be helpful, too, but in any case you should set up your own schedule. If you don't have records, perform necessary maintenance as quickly as possible, using instruction books as a guide, or contacting manufacturers whose name appears on equipment.

Set up a page in your notebook for each item of equipment, with manufacturer, model or serial numbers, and as much information as you have. Keep a record of maintenance, repairs, etc. Be sure to add to your records and file the material for each new item of equipment you require —appliances, television, garden or workshop tools. Use this notebook, too, to record for future tax purposes any money spent for improvements.

Most owners are proud of their homes, even if they are selling them, and are only too glad to give an interested buyer information.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q. — I need a new roof on my house and the roofer is trying to sell me on the idea of getting what he calls "heavyweight" shingles. Could you tell me how they differ from the regular shingles and what advantages they offer?

A. — Heavyweight asphalt shingles range from 290 pounds to 380 pounds per square (or 100 square feet) of roof area, whereas the regular shingles are rated at about 240 pounds. Heavyweight shingles have a three-dimensional effect with wood grain texture and extra deep shadow lines. They are approved by Underwriters' Laboratories. Some have a fiberglass-based mat and are rated class A in fire resistance, the highest rating given by UL. Standard shingles are excellent for most roofs. Heavyweights are designed to last up to 25 years, about 10 years longer than the standards. Therefore, in deciding whether you want them, compare the prices and then divide them by their life expectancy. This will give you the approximate cost per year.

Q. — What's all this stuff about one-coat exterior paints? I painted my house about a year ago with a well-advertised one-coat paint. The surface was wood shingles that had never been painted or stained. The shingles were in good condition. Now, the wood part is starting to show through in several places. How can they advertise one-coat paint when one coat isn't enough?

A. — Your mistake was in assuming that a previously unpainted surface is the same as one with a paint already on it. Uncoated wood soaks up the first coat. If you still have one of the cans of the paint you used, look at the label and see if it doesn't recommend two coats for unpainted wood.

Entirely aside from that, there are other factors involved in the success of a so-called one-coat paint. One is that an oil paint of good quality generally covers better than a latex coat. Another is that a professional painter knows the exact technique of covering with a single coat. It involves getting on enough paint to cover sufficiently and yet not putting on so much paint that it later will wrinkle. And still another, although it doesn't apply in your case, is the condition and color of the previous coat. It's easier to cover in one coat if the old paint still adheres solidly, isn't soiled too much and is the same or lighter in color than the new paint.

Q. — I want to put loose fill insulation in one of the walls of our house. How can I tell where the pieces of horizontal wood are that fit between the studs?

A. — You've given yourself a real job. Usually it is best done by professionals. Since you seem committed to the task, the way to determine whether there are any obstructions between the studs is to drop a plumb line into each hole made as high as possible on the outside wall. You'll hear a clunking sound and won't be able to drop the line any farther when the bob hits something solid.

Real Estate

"EYEBALLING" IS NOT ENOUGH

When you consider buying a home in a new locality, you'll want to know as much about the town and neighborhood as possible. Much of this information you can get from "eyeballing" the area, but there are important factors which the eye cannot see.

For example, local property taxes, public services, public transportation, hospitals, churches, community facilities. What are the zoning restrictions? Are there any unusual deed restrictions common to the area on how you might use, alter, or expand your property? What are the future prospects for the neighborhood?

A good, local Realtor can be a quarry of such information. He should have a feeling born of the familiarity for the specific neighborhoods in his territory. Level with him at the outset about what you want and he'll" do his darndest to help you find it. That's what he's there for.

Handful Of Defenders Has Grown

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — A zealous staff working out of a crowded four-room office has waged a nearly half-million dollar publicity campaign defending President Nixon against Watergate scandals and other charges.

Seven months after its formation, the National Citizens Committee for Fairness to the Presidency has grown from 18 charter members to a network of about 200 chapters claiming more than 200,000 members.

"I truly want to see thousands, literally thousands of groups," defending the President, says Rabbi Baruch Korff, who heads the operation and who has donated his own vacation savings to form it.

Through newspaper advertisements, petitions, matchbook ads and public appearances, the rabbi and his committee are spreading their message: the news media and scheming politicians have found Nixon guilty on all charges and are dedicated to get him out of office.

By contrast, Korff describes Nixon as one of the greatest presidents in the nation's history. "What rattles the liberals and the radicals, are not his vices, but his virtues. He has accomplished everything that eluded his predecessors of the liberal vintage."

The committee's fans include the President himself and his family. After the rabbi appeared on a recent segment of NBC's "Today" show, he received a telegram from First Lady Pat Nixon and daughter Julie Nixon Eisenhower saying, "..m You were tremendous and have our great admiration."

Rabbi Korff says Nixon has sent him two notes of appreciation and met with him privately.

Rabbi Korff, who works without pay, presides over a staff of eight paid workers and 200 volunteers. The office's administrative assistant, Miss Elizabeth Mudge, took a leave of absence from a job in public relations to join the campaign on a volunteer basis. Like others on the committee she has contributed to the cause from her own money.

The committee reports spending nearly $450,000 in its campaign.

November Retail Sales Sharply Above 1972 Level

Gross retail sales in Greenville during November reflected a gain of 17.3 per cent over the same period in 1972, according to figures released by the State Department of Revenue Statistics.

Sales totaled $14,048,745 in November, the department reported, compared with $11,973,849 recorded in November of 1972.

For the January through November period, sales amounted to $140,874,496, up 17.3 per cent from $120,008,205 reported for the 11-month period in 1972.

Goldsboro led eastern cities in November increase as sales totaled $17,433,207 for the month, up 18.3 per cent from $14,746,424. An 11.9 per cent increase was reported for the 11-month period as sales jumped from $153,332,215 to $171,644,272 in 1972.

Other area cities and their 1972 and 1973 figures included: Kinston, $11,423,265 (Nov. 1972), $13,499,421 (Nov. 1973), 18.1 per cent, $119,752,763 (Jan.-Nov. 1972), $136,387,700 (Jan.-Nov. 1973), 13.8 per cent; Washington, $6,379,205, $7,165,542, 12.3 per cent, $65,278,907, $77,657,208, 18.9 per cent;

Burro Signs Disappeared

BEATTY, Nev. (UPI) — The highway department designed a sign to warn motorists of burros which sometimes stray onto the road and cause accidents.

The signs, showing shaggy black burro on a yellow background, got too much attention. A department spokesman said they all disappeared, probably because tourists regarded them as prized collector's items.

Inflation Takes Yugoslav Toll

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslavia's government proposed and the parliament agreed that bank notes of 1,000 dinars (about $66 U.S.) should be issued to facilitate money transaction in this country where check payments are not popular as yet and cash payments are appreciated. The biggest bank note now is of 500 dinars. Raging inflation of about 20 per cent annually in the past few years made it necessary to have bills of higher denomination.

Ranch Donated For Wildlife

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Fish and Wildlife Service has accepted the gift of a 220,000-acre ranch 65 miles south of Albuquerque, N.M., the largest tract ever donated as a wildlife refuge. The donor was the Campbell Family Foundation of Albuquerque.

Lying on both banks of the Rio Grande River and stretching into the desert highlands, the tract is said to be one of the last unspoiled desert grassland and brushland complexes in the valley.

Miss Vicky Ruth Tripp Is Bride

AYDEN—Miss Vicky Ruth Tripp and Curtis Lee Mills were united in marriage Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in the Ayden Free Will Baptist Church. The Rev. C.H. Overman officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Elmer H. Tripp and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Curtis N. Mills, both of Ayden.

Mrs. C.H.Overman directed the wedding. A program of wedding music was presented by organist, Kathy Gaskins, of Ayden. Randy McLawhorn of Ayden sang "More" and the benediction, "The Wedding Prayer."

The church was decorated with tree candelabras holding lighted tapers with bridal greenery as a background. Lighted tapers marked reserved seats. The couple knelt together on a white satin prie-dieu for the benediction, following which they lighted the symbolic taper signifying their union.

Escorted by her brother, Wilner Lee Tripp, the bride chose a white satin organza formal gown with a bib yoke of organza. The high neckline and yoke were trimmed with rows of cluny lace. The bodice featured an empire waistline accented with cluny lace. The sleeves ended in wide cuffs of cluny lace, with bands of the lace accenting the leg of mutton style. The tapered A-lined skirt ended in a chapel length train. The entire skirt hem was trimmed in lace.

The full length mantilla of illusion edged in cluny lace was attached to a lace Juliet cap. Her cascade bouquet of white carnations was interspersed with baby's breath and greenery, featuring white tulle and satin streamers.

Mrs. Stuart Duane Weir of Wilmington was the matron of honor. She wore a formal length gown of citron yellow. The linen A-Lined skirt fell from a belted empire waistline with a fitted polyester knit bodice, featuring a daisy motif and scoop neckline. The short puff sleeves were trimmed in lace. Her headpiece was a loop bow of matching citron yellow ribbons with streamers. She carried a colonial nosegay of yellow mums.

Miss Teresa Dare Mills, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Robbie Brooks of Grifton, served as bridesmaids. Their gowns, designed like that of the matron of honor, were of shamrock green linen and polyester knit. Their headpieces were shamrock green loop bows of ribbon. They also carried colonial nosegays of yellow mums.

The bridegroom's father served as best man. Ushers were Randy Mills, Cousin of the bridegroom, of Washington, and David Saloman, cousin of the bridegroom, of Portsmouth, Va.

The bride's mother chose a formal gown of eggshell blue polyester, with a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a full length yellow floral gown with a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore a full length yellow floral gown with a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Thelma Wood, Mrs. Vernice Trip and Mrs. Lulu Tripp, grandmothers of the bride and Mrs. Lizzie Mills, Mrs. Margaret Haddock and Mrs. Lela Haddock, grandmothers of the bridegroom were remembered with carnation corsages.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride chose a pants suit of pink polyester knit and the corsage lifted from her bouquet. The couple will reside at Rt. 2, Ayden.

The bride, a graduate of Ayden-Grifton High School, is employed with the Pitt County Board of Education.

The bridegroom graduated from D. H. Conley High School and is employed by the Post Office in Greenville.

Following the ceremony, the couple received in the vestibule of the church. Presiding at the guest register was Mrs. Linda Carmichael, cousin of the bride.

A cake cutting was held in the church annex immediately following the rehearsal.

WOTM Hold Business Meet

The Mid-Year Meeting and Chapter Rally Day were discussed at the business meeting of the Women of the Moose held Thursday night.

Senior Regent Dorothy Anderson announced that the rally day will be held in Goldsboro March 17 and is a district meeting of chapter will have an active part in the meeting. The Mid-Year session began Friday and will continue through today in Greensboro.

Members of the chapter voted to send a contribution to Operation Sunshine.

Junior Regent Peggy Jamieson reported that the clothing bank had been closed and that all articles have been distributed. She reported that 200 persons were aided including a few families, whose possessions were burned and several students in the Greenville City Schools.

The next meeting will be held March 14.

Carson-Sutton Vows Solemnized Saturday

BELL ARTHUR—Miss Deborah Sutton became the bride of Herbert Shelton Carson Saturday at 3:00 p.m. in the Bell Arthur Methodist Church.

Parents of the couple are Mrs. Mildred C. Sutton of Rt. 1, Greenville, and the late Mr. J. W. Sutton, and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Carson of Bethel.

The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Ralph Hill. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Barbara Hinson, pianist, and Miss Beverly Smith, soloist.

Given in marriage by her brother, Gene Mitchell Sutton, the bride chose a princess line gown of silk organza with rows of Venise lace down the front. The full length bishop sleeves were accented with lace on the wide cuffs and the train was attached at the shoulder and flowed chapel length.

Her headpiece was of organza roses and lace covered with sequins and pearls attached to a silk bouffant veil. The bride carried a cascade bouquet.

Miss Diane Sutton of New Bern, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Her A-line gown of baby blue crepe was fashined with a royal blue velvet bodice and long sleeves. She wore a white hat with matching streamers and carried a single yellow rose.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Cherry S. Turnage of Greenville and Mrs. Sue S. Hanson of Mt. Rainer, Md., both sisters of the bride, and Mrs. Cindy Gray of Washington. Their gowns were styled like that of the honor attendant in mint green with winter green velvet bodices.

Miss Mary Beth Carson of Bethel, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. She was attired in a green velvet dress with lace collar and cuffs.

Sammy T. Carson of Bethel, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Ushers were Taylor Carson of Bethel, brother of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Taylor Carson, nephew of the bridegroom, and Earl Worsley, cousin of the bridegroom, both of Bethel, Buddy Turnage of Greenville, brother-in-law of the bride, and Edwin Gray of Washington.

After a wedding rip to unannounced points, the couple will reside in Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is a sophomore at East Carolina University. The bridegroom is a graduate of Bethel High School and is employed by Burroughs Welcome.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

After the wedding cake was cut, Mrs. Carrie Ruth Worsley and Mrs. Raymon Whitehurst, aunts of the bridegroom, served guests.

Mrs. Charles F. Sutton, aunt of the bride, presided at the register.

Friends of the bridegroom entertained at an after-rehearsal buffet at the Holiday Inn for members of the wedding party and special guests Friday night.

Doctors' Night Caller Was Robber

FOREST HILL, England (WNS) — Wearing only a nightie, Dr. Anthea Hatfield walked into her living room to discover a masked gunman pointing a shotgun at her. But when the gunman looked briefly at her husband to order him to turn over her jewels, she grabbed the gun. The thief pulled the trigger, but the gun was not loaded. Then while her doctor-husband sat on the prisoner, the lady doctor ran for the police. "I don't know why I did all the things I did," she confided later. "I was too frightened to think, and each thing just seemed the right thing to do."

On The Local Scene

by Rosalie Trotman

A traditional June wedding is being planned by Teresa Elks and J. M. Boyd, who met three years ago on a blind date.

The couple will exchange wedding vows on June 16 at the Reedy Branch Free Will Baptist Church, located near Winterville.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is employed by The Daily Reflector. Her fiance is associated with his father in farming.

A summer wedding has been planned by Susan Harrell and Donald Jenkins Jr.

The bride-elect will graduate from Meredith College, Raleigh, in May. Donald graduated from North Carolina State University, Raleigh, with a degree in chemical engineering. He is employed with Phillips Fibers Co., Rocky Mount.

Two coeds from Pitt County, Brenda Kay Bullock and Jacqueline Welch, have been elected to membership in Phi Theta Kappa, academic honorary at Peace College, Raleigh.

Phi Theta Kappa is a national junior college academic honorary recognizing outstanding academic achievements of junior college students.

Brenda Kay's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Bullock of Rt. 1, Stokes, and Jacqueline is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Welch of Greenville.

Mrs. Clay Stroud Jr. of Ayden has accepted the appointment to serve as regional representative for District Three of the North Carolina Art Society. Mrs. Isaac Manly, president, made the appointment.

She will be responsible for bringing Art Society sponsored programs such as the Frances Speight film "Eye of the Artist," the Civilisation series and slide lectures on the Museum of Art.

In her role as society representative, Mrs. Stroud will promote membership in the society, which is the membership arm of the North Carolina Museum of Art.

Couple Exchanges Wedding Vows

Miss Juanita Faye Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter T. Gould Sr. of Rt. 2, Greenville, became the bride of John Steven Hudson Saturday at 3:00 p.m.

The Rev. Alvis Harris performed the double reing ceremony in the Maranatha Free Will Baptist Church.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. William Hudson of Rt. 4, Jacksonville.

A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Carolyn Garris of Greenville, organist, and Miss Linda Gould of Jacksonville, cousin of the bride, soloist, who sang "More" and "He."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown with a chantilly lace bodice embellished with iridescents and pearls. The gown was fashioned with a lace stand up collar and long lace bishop sleeves with covered buttons on the cuffs. The silk peau skirt featured appliques of chantilly lace embellished with iridescents and pearls.

Her tiered veil of silk illusion was attached to an original tiara of Venise lace medallions. The bride carried a covered Bible centered with a bridal bouquet. She also carried her grandmother's silk handkerchief, which she used as a bride.

Mrs. Vickie Gray of Greenville, aunt of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a pink polyester crep gown fashioned with a low round neckline and caplet sleeves. Matching satin ribbon at the raised waistline tied in a bow in front with long streamers. She wore a white nylon braid hat with ribbon bows and streamers which matched her dress. She carried a long-stemmed white mum with greenery and ribbon streamers.

Bridesmaids were Jane Hall of Winterville, Joan Gould, cousin of the bride, and Diane Hudson, sister of the bridegroom, both of Jacksonville. They were dressed in blue, green and yellow polyester crepe gowns styled like that of the honor attendant. They wore matching hats and carried a long-stemmed white mum with greenery and ribbon streamers to match their gowns.

The mother of the bride was dressed in a light blue knit dress, matching accessories and a corsage of carnations. The mother of the bridegroom selected a light pink knit dress with matching accessories. She wore a carnation corsage to match her dress.

Mrs. Connie Garris directed the wedding.

Stewart Simpson of Jacksonville was best man and ushers were Kenneth Hudson of Jacksonville, brother of the bridegroom, Walter Gould Jr. and Keith Gould, both of Greenville, brothers of the bride.

The bride is a graduate of D. H. Conley High School and is a student at the ECU School of Nursing. The bridegroom graduated from Jacksonville High School and is assistant manager of Simpson Variety Store.

The couple will reside at Rt. 3, Jacksonville.

A reception was held following the ceremony in the Sunday School building.

The table was covered with a white linen cloth with a lace border. Mrs. Linda Raynor, sister of the bridegroom, served the tiered wedding cake and Mrs. Inez Norris, aunt of the bridegroom, poured punch.

Delores Slominski, cousin of the bride, registered guests and Jeffrey Gould, brother of the bride, gave the ceremony bulletins.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Earl Garris entertained the Hudson-Gould wedding party at an after-rehearsal party at their home. Guests were greeted by the host and hostess.

A color scheme of green and white was used throughout the house.

The honoree was remembered with a mum corsage.

The mother of the bride poured punch and Mrs. Vickie Gray, aunt of the bride, served cake.

Miss Ellen Broaddrick and Miss Toni Westan entertained the bride-elect at a buffet dinner at the home of Miss Broaddrick.

Individual tables were decorated with white and red camellias and candles.

The bride-elect was remembered with an orchid corsage.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

My husband says a bargain is something you didn't know you needed until you thought you were getting something for half price from someone who couldn't get anything for it in the first place.

The trouble with my husband is he has no imagination. He cannot look beneath the thick veneer of ugly paint; the busy scrolls, and the dust and see the hidden treasures that lie underneath.

We used to hunt for antiques together. But, lately, he's been miserable. I've never seen anyone who could take away the romance and the mystery with just one well-aimed zap!

I was ogling a small trunk last week and said excitedly, "Would you look at this finish. Do you suppose this is a form of East Indian painting that craftsmen developed by using berries for stains and then hand-rubbed it until it became smooth?"

"It's Con-Tac," he said dryly. "I saw the same pattern in Mildred Stickles' bathroom."

"You ruin everything," I said. "Someday I am going to pick up a real bargain from one of these shows and you are going to spend the rest of your life begging my forgiveness."

"Like the antique bowling ball?" he asked.

I sat there chewing on the inside of my mouth. I could have predicted that sometime during his conversation he would bring up the antique bowling ball. Fianlly, I said, "Look, whether you believe it or not, $5 for an antique bowling ball was a real buy. How was I to know they didn't start putting holes in them until the next year."

"The trouble with you," he said, "is that you cannot discern a bargain from a put-on."

"What are you talking about?" I asked.

He leaned closer. "There isn't an antique in this entire place. It's true. We used to come to these shows and no one was more thrilled than I to see all those mementos from our parents' and grandparents' past. But nowadays, do you know what they're selling over there for $4? A lump of coal. Coal isn't old. I remember coal.

"And over with the glassware they have a set of baseball glasses that I can remember the gas stations used to give out when they were trying to lure you into their stations. And what about a Jack Armstrong code ring? They want $5 for it. What a rip-off. I got it for two Wheaties boxtops. And glass milk bottles. Old indeed. Why I'm as old as the things they call antiques."

I had a great answer for that, but I restrained myself. I didn't want to jeopardize our joint income tax return.

A Vegetarian Faces Some Hidden Dangers

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Food Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Vegetarianism can help you cope with high food prices. But it has hidden dangers.

Many new vegetarians are coming down with deficiency disease such as rickets, pellagra and scurvy. Irreversible physical and mental defects are showing up in the children of some vegeratian parents, medical records show.

Darla Erhard, a research nutritionist at San Francisco General Hospital, sees a lot of the problem at the Clinical Study Center there.

Most vegetarian diets contain plenty of protein, Mrs. Erhard reports in Nutrition Today, a journal for the health professions. The food-related illnesses caused by meatless diets can be treated without difficulty if patients cooperate.

Mrs. Erhard is not opposed to vegetarinism as such.

She praised many members of the counterculture for living quite normal lives and kicking drug habits. Some become so interested in what they eat that they're willing to calculate nutrient intake from food supplement tables supplied by the study center.

Their lack of overweight is also to their credit. So is their view of food preparation as a rewarding experience. They tend to eat simple foods without rich sauces and to cook in ways that conserve nutrients.

"Ill health occurs mainly in fanatics, those true believers who develop a psychological fixaton on the teachings of their chosen prophets and blindly follow them to a bitter end," Mrs. Erhard said.

Vegetarians who take their doctrine quite literally are the most danger-prone. They're more likely to reject members of the health professions who could show them how to avoid or cure deficiency diseases without violating the principles of their cult.

Mrs. Erhard suggested:

—Use dairy and poultry supplements, such as milk and eggs, to meet nutritional requirements for all age groups. A meatless diet that lacks even these protein foods can lead to vitamin B12 deficiency and irreversible degeneration of the spinal cord.

Mrs. Erhard said followers of the Vegan culture in particular danger because their diet contains adequate amounts of vitamin that masks B12 deficiency until the incurable stage.

—The main defect in most vegetarian diets is poor quality amino acid content. To improve it, Mrs. Erhard recommends plenty of cereal grains, beans and other legumes, nuts and nut-like seeds in meals.

—Meals should also include enough fats and carbohydrates so protein intake won't be burned up as a source of calories.

—A diet that excludes eggs as well as meat but allows dairy products poses only one serious problem: the risk of iron-deficiency anemia.

Children whose diets are low in Vitamin D are especially susceptible to rickets, a disfiguring bone deformity disease. If they're city-dwellers, the risk is still greater because they're usually not exposed to enough sunlight, which could help prevent the problem.

Some new vegetarians avoid problems with a typical dieter's dodge. They slip away to a hamburger stand occasionally.

Mrs. Erbard said more devout vegetarians tend to rationalize this as good homeopathic practice.

They think they're reintroducing a little poison into their system to tone up their body's defenses against disease.

Photographic Engineer Happy In Her Work

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — It's easy for Idalee Slovonsky to name some of the things that had absolutely no influence on her choice of chemical engineering as a career.

What's hard is explaining why she chose the job.

No one in her family influenced her.

"I'm an only child," she said, "and no one else even remotely connected with our family is an engineer."

High school didn't help because "I never thought about engineering," and college left her with doubts.

"There's this fallacy about college," Miss Slovonsky said. "You go to college and you make this profound decision to spend the remainder of your life doing something and you really don't know what you'll be doing — until you do it.

"I took one of those preference tests and the results were that I should be an insurance agent or maybe a banker."

Even in her senior year at college, after completing her chemical engineering course, she almost opted for another career.

"I applied to a graduate school in engineering, tried several business schools and interviewed quite a few companies for permanent jobs. It came down to the last day in April, and I had to make a decision and I made it on that day. I decided to work.

"Actually, I had almost decided to go to business school. But it wasn't really fair, I wasn't giving engineering a fair shake. If I had gone to business school, it would have precluded ever doing any engineering work. So I said, if you don't like it, you can quit."

That was three years ago. Now a photographic engineer with Eastman Kodak Co., Miss Slovonsky is happy with the decision. She works with photographic films, papers and chemicals. She is in the midst of environmental studies, concerned with pollution abatement and chemical recovery from photographic processes.

Most of her job involves counseling photofinishers and other chemical users about what they must do to conform with effluent standards in their localities.

Miss Slovonsky has done research with a reverse osmosis unit to study ability to concentrate effluents for easier recovery of chemicals and for water conservation through reuse of water. She has worked on design and study of a pilot flash evaporator to concentrate wastes for easier disposal.

Abby Advises 'No' To Couple

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am planning my wedding and my fiance and I agree that we don't want any children or even young teen-agers there. Would it be okay to put, "No children under 18 admitted" on the invitations?

PAT AND GLO

DEAR P AND G: No. It sounds like you're sending out invitations to an X-rated movie.

DEAR ABBY: My ex-husband and I are dating again. We may get married again, but not right away. [He has to make good a few promises first.]

We have two children, ages 8 and 11, who live with me. They know their father and I have been divorced for over a year and in all that time I have conducted myself like an unmarried woman. I have dated other men, but I have never allowed any man, [including my ex-husband] to spend the night here.

My ex has asked if he could stay overnight when he takes me out. It would save him driving about 20 miles because his place of work is near my home, and he lives on the other side of town. What do you think?

It makes sense with the gas shortage. DOTTY

DEAR DOTTY: It's okay—as long as you don't have a "bed shortage," too!

DEAR ABBY: I was all set to have a face-lift by a reputable plastic surgeon when he asked me if my husband knew about it. When I told him I had not discussed it with my husband because I didn't want any hassles over it, the doctor told me he wouldn't do it without my husband's approval!

Abby, it's MY face, and my money, and I am 49 years old, so why should I need my husband's approval?

Now, can you tell me why a doctor would take this ridiculous attitude? FLABBERGASTED IN PHOENIX

DEAR FLABBERGASTED: Your doctor probably has "survival" [for himself] in mind, and I don't blame him. You told the doctor you didn't even discuss it with your husband because you were afraid he'd object, so the doctor fears if he performs the surgery, your husband may come after him with a deadly weapon, shouting, "What have you done to my wife? I liked her face the way it was!"

DEAR ABBY: Earl and I have four wonderful children and a good marriage. Or we DID have, until a few months ago. Then a young woman [I'll call Vera] joined his organization, and started confiding her marital problems to him. [He repeats them to me.] All Vera's problems seem to be about her sex life with her husband. Earl says it's good for her to "unload" on someone.

Abby, it upsets me to have Earl tell me these things, and I am beginning to wonder why a woman should tell such intimate things to a man she hardly knows. Or do you think maybe they know each other better than Earl lets on?

Should I tell Earl I don't care to hear any more about Vera's sex life? I don't want to drive him away from me. We've always had such an honest and open relationship.

TROUBLED

DEAR TROUBLED: Vera should discuss her marital problems with a professional counselor, and Earl should get out. Unloading her problems may be good for Vera. But when Vera unloads on Earl, it's bad for your marriage.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L. A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abigail Van Buren, 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Cal. 90212, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions."

AFTERNOON TEA
Kentucky Pineapple Cake
Tea or Coffee

KENTUCKY PINEAPPLE CAKE

A reader kindly contributed the recipe for this fabulously good pound-type cake and we adapted it.

3 cups unsifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
Butter
2¾ cups granulated sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 large eggs
¼ cup milk
20-ounce can crushed pineapple in heavy syrup
1½ cups confectioners' sugar

Line bottoms of two 9 by 5 by 3 inch loaf pans with wax paper; butter paper. Thoroughly stir together flour and baking powder. Cream 1½ cups butter, granulated sugar and vanilla; thoroughly beat in eggs one at a time. Stir in flour mixture in 4 additions alternately with milk and ¾ cup undrained pineapple (spooned into measure just as it comes from the can) until batter is smooth (except for pineapple) each time. Turn into prepared pans. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 1 hour and 25 minutes. While cake is baking, thoroughly drain the remaining pineapple — there will be 1 cup; use leftover syrup some other way. Blend confectioners' sugar and ¼ cup soft butter; stir in drained pineapple; set aside. Turn baked cakes onto wire racks. remove wax paper; turn right side up; spoon confectioners' sugar mixture over tops of hot cakes. Cool completely. Makes 2 loaf cakes.

Miss Kathleen Taylor Weds Lt. Garland On Saturday

DENVER, Colo.—Lowry Air Force Base Chapel was the setting for the wedding ceremony of Miss Kathleen Marie Taylor and Lt. Gregory Keith Garland Saturday at 2:30 p.m.

Parents of the couple are Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Taylor of Greenville, N.C., and Mr. and Mrs. Riley L. Garland of Charlotte.

The bride wore a candlelight formal length knit gown featuring a lace empire bodice centered with covered buttons. The gown was designed with long fitted lace sleeves.

She wore a shoulder length ivory Spanish lace mantilla and carried a long-stemmed white rose.

Miss Beverly Croom of Fayetteville, N.C. was maid of honor. She was dressed in a full length gown of floral design on a pink background and carried a pink rose.

Lt. Raphael E. Aguirre-Sacasa of Washington, D. C., was best man.

The bride and bridegroom are both graduates of East Carolina University. She was a member of Sigma Sigma Sigma Sorority and he was a member and past president of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Following the ceremony, the couple left on a wedding trip to San Fancisco and Hawaii.

Assistant Program Director For ECU Union Lives 'Another Life'

By MIKE PARSONS
ECU News Bureau

Ken Hammond, a 1973 graduate of East Carolina University, works as assistant program director for the ECU Student Union for 40 hours each week.

Like most people, though, Hammond has another life away from his job. His other life is devotion to a special personality, the personality of youth which demands much concern. Aside from his job, Hammond devotes up to 20 hours a week to this demand.

Hammond feels that his generation is too wrapped up finding tangents to wander off on in an attempt to gain fulfillment. He feels that his way "sort of shows them that there's another side," as he puts it.

He didn't start doing this overnight. Three years ago he helped the junior varsity basketball team at Robinson High School, where he had graduated in 1969. The following year, he coached the Greenville Boys' Club to third place in an eight-team competition. And last year, he served as coach for the junior varsity at D. H. Conley High School.

"You have to take into consideration that anyone who participates in sports is a student first," says Hammond. One of his goals was to impress this as well as good citizenship on the boys he coached. "Know the capabilities and play them to a maximum," was his philosophy to the team. He used this knowledge to advantage and made practice fun.

"They were mature enough to realize that goofing off in practice would show up in the games," he said. Sometimes Hammond couldn't make it to practice because of work, but they still had a good session without supervision, he said Other times, he would join them on the floor and play ball with them. "This helped them to be looser," he said.

"It's especially satisfying to win," Hammond said, and win they did with a 20-3 record for the season. In addition, team members were recognized for outstanding performances on two occasions—his starting five made the first string of the all-tournament team, and three starters were selected for first string and the other two made second string for the all-Conference team. Hammond feels that his greatest reward for this experience will come if his five starters go into varsity competition and help post a respectable record.

In 1969, Hammond entered ECU. During his freshman year, he played basketball with the ECU Freshman team. His involvement with other activities, however, forced him to cease participation in sports.

During his last three years at ECU, Hammond was involved with the Student Government Association. For two years, he headed the SGA Office of External Affairs which coordinated efforts in Model United Nations among other things. He was also involved in campus minority affairs and was a member of Alpha Phi Gamma fraternity. During his senior year, Hammond served as senior class president.

Hammond graduated from ECU in 1973 with a major in history and a minor in political science.

Sponsor Local Olympics Events

The Greenville Jaycees are sponsoring the Greenville Special Olympics Competition Saturday, April 20.

The competition will be open to children with special handicaps from Pitt County. Winners here will have the opportunity to compete in the State Special Olympics in Raleigh May 17-19.

The Greenville Recreation Department and the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children, in cooperation with the Greenville City Schools, are seeking to start a Special Olympics Training Program.

The first Special Olympic Games were held in the summer of 1968 in Chicago. Many of the participants had taken part in a physical fitness training program developed by the Kennedy Foundation in cooperation with the American Association for Health, Physical Education, and Recreation.

Today Special Olympics has an organization in every state of the United States, every province of Canada and France, and to Puerto Rico. Last year more than 250,000 mentally retarded children took part in local and regional Games and more than 40,000 advanced to their state Games.

After physical examinations by a doctor, the children are involved in physical fitness training for the big event April 20. All parents of special children are invited to enroll their children at the Recreation Department. More information may be obtained by contacting Alice Keene at the Recreation Department, 758-4635; David Turnage of the Greenville Jaycees, 752-2715; or Carma Bagett of the Pitt County Association for Retarded Children, 758-6921.

Feels 'Just Normal' With A Pacemaker

By PAUL R. ALLERUP

NEW YORK (UPI) — Just about everybody has read about and knows that hundreds, perhaps thousands, of persons are being kept alive these days with the help of pacemakers—those remarkable little instruments inserted under the skin to regulate heartbeats.

With most of us, such wonders of science, when read about, bring an interested reaction but little else.

"Hey," you say to your wife, "you know what they're doing now? They've got this thing they call a pacemaker and..."

You accept the marvel and then tend to think no more about it.

Slow Pulse Beat

Well, a friend of mine was fitted with a pacemaker and a few days ago I had lunch with him. He'd been hospitalized several weeks, but now was up and about again, bragging about his pacemaker.

"Feel it," he said shortly after we'd seated ourselves. He guided my fingers to a spot on his chest a few inches below his right shoulder. Under his shirt I felt an object which to my fingers seemed perhaps an inch or so wide.

The impression was it was about two inches long and perhaps a quarter of an inch thick. The dimensions are not offered as being precise. That's how the thing felt.

"Don't press," my friend said. "It hurts if you do."

In this case, my friend had suffered what his doctors described as a heart block. One day late last fall, his pulse dropped from 72 beats per minute—in the normal range—to 35. He became dizzy, and weak. It was a Sunday and he could reach no doctor by telephone.

Takes Doctor's Advice

Wisely, he got himself a taxi and was driven to a hospital not too far distant that he knew had a good heart program.

He told the attendant about his terribly low pulse, and a doctor was quickly called. There was a swift examination and the doctor said, "We've got to get you a pacemaker, and fast."

My friend was about to start a new job, that week. Couldn't the doctor give him something, he asked, to restore his pulse and keep him going at least long enough for him to launch himself in his new position?

"Sir," said the doctor, "if we don't get a pacemaker into you today, your chances of walking out of here alive are about one in a hundred."

My friend, weak as he was, and frightened, argued no more. And he got his pacemaker.

Full of Wonder

Today, he is walking about, working and in his own words "feeling just about normal." His pacemaker would last him about two years, he was told, then would have to be renewed.

"A new pacemaker is being perfected that'll operate five, perhaps 10 years," he was told at the hospital. "Maybe when you're ready for a renewal, you'll get one of those."

Meantime, my friend —he is not a young man; in fact, several years beyond normal retirement age —is back to his usual routine. The one exception is he has been told to be careful of overexertion.

He is not to take too many stairs; he is not to run. He is a lecturer by profession. He has been told not to spend more than two hours at any one time on the lecture platform "at least for the next few months."

But my pacemaker friend is full of wonder at how he has been restored.

"I was nearly dead, you know," he said.

I, too, am filled with wonder.

Embassy In Sweden Waits

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — At first glance everything appears normal at the big gray and white building on Strandvagen 101. People come and go as expected, but the business is run without an official manager.

In this case the business is United States policy and the sterile-looking plate glass structure is the U.S. embassy in Stockholm which has been without an ambassador since September, 1972.

The reason the United States has not filled the post stems from a disagreement between President Nixon and Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme over the bombing of North Vietnam.

When Nixon authorized heavy bombing runs on Hanoi late in 1972, Palme complained, calling them "an outrage" and "a form of torture."

"What is being done is that people are being tormented, that a nation is being tormented to humiliate them, to force them to submit to the language of force," Palme charged.

Acting Ambassador

This did not, obviously, sit well with Washington.

The then Swedish ambassador, Hubert De Besche, was scheduled to leave Washington after a normal tour, and his replacement, Yngve Moller, had already been picked when De Besche was informed by the State Department it would "not be convenient" for Moller to show up in the U.S. capital.

Jerome H. Holland, the U.S. ambassador to Stockholm, had already resigned in August, 1972, and the number two man, John C. Guthrie, was enjoying Christmas holidays in the United States when the State Department informed Sweden Guthrie would not be coming back.

Suddenly, the burden of three jobs, that of "acting ambassador," chief of mission, and his own as political affairs councillor, fell on Arthur J. Olsen, a former journalist turned career diplomat.

For more than a year now, Olsen, the number three man in the U.S. embassy before the dispute started, has been occupying the office of the ambassador, but lacking some of the power.

Abnormal Situation

"It is an abnormal situation," Olsen said in an interview. "We are hurt most by not having any dialogue at the highest level. It is more work than before, It is like juggling balls when you try to catch up on chores of three people. In theory, relations between two countries such as our should have ambassadors."

But on day-to-day business, Olsen said, the embassy in Stockholm functions normally. "Bilateral negotiations between two countries do not require ambassadors and I would say that between 80 and 90 percent of the business has not changed a lot," he said.

As for embassy staff morale of not having an official "boss," Olsen said the current situation has had "no adverse effect on the staff. If we would not have an ambassador here for four years or so, then maybe it would, but not in such a short time."

Olsen said he hoped a new ambassador would be named soon, since his own three-year tour of duty is up this summer.

"We hear partial reports out of Washington and I am optimistic of a break," Olsen said.

CRUELTY COMPLAINTS

PITTSBURGH (UPI)—The Western Pennsylvania Humane Society received 2,835 complaints of cruelty to animals during 1973.

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY, MARCH 3, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Early a.m. can bring some upsetting conditions that discourage you if you permit them to, but by noon the planetary influences change, and you then can get influential persons to go along with a conventional plan.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Attend lectures early and enjoy pleasures at home later. Don't argue. Evening is best to go after fondest aims.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get those annoying duties behind you early and then see good friends tonight. Study. Avoid one who has some rather strange ideas.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't waste too much time on financial worries. Get ideas from one of real experience. Avoid one with a strange notion to discuss.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Handle personal affairs, then be off to the pleasures you really like. Entertain good friends. Be on time.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan the future so you get more of what means the most to you. Get into studies that give you greater understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get out to see those good pals who make you feel aces. Save more time for those you really like who really like you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Do nothing in a.m. to get you in trouble with others who are critical. Go to bigwigs with your finest talents.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Be courteous with all and make new friends in p.m. Communicating with those far away can bring fine results. Get data you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Morning is fine for enjoying mate, but don't get involved in any problems with associate who is busy with own problems.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) One who opposes you is not agreeable during day, but most understanding tonight. Find out what associates think.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan a better schedule in a.m., then go off to exercise, sports. Talk with an associate who is free on Sunday.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You want to have a good time, but it is important you get pressing duties out of the way first. Put creative ideas to work.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be emotional and will require more encouragement if the fine success in this chart is to come to fruition. Give your youngster many duties to perform, since the ability here is wonderful and the habit of working is formed early. This would be an excellent chart for the teacher, sports writer, etc. Give the finest education you can afford.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

FORECAST FOR MONDAY, MARCH 4, 1974

from the Carroll Righter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A new approach to a long-time problem is necessary if you want those close to you to go along with you. Take steps to build a better foundation in activities where family and home affairs are involved. Control your emotions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You know what your family wants but you have to use modern methods to please them. Don't neglect some good relatives. Think constructively.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to make plans now if you want to improve your surroundings. Obtain the information you need and become a successful person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Discuss financial affairs with a business expert. Go over your budget carefully. Get rid of any items that are no longer worthwhile.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Concentrate on own affairs now and get right results. Take treatments that will improve your appearance. Entertain good friends.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Plan your time so that you can accomplish more in the future. Try to assist others more and get good results. Make future plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Contacting congenials is wise now. You can have a happy time with them and get the assistance you need. Help one who is in trouble.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Gain the patronage of a bigwig now by using tact. Interest in a civic affair can help you advance. Avoid one who gossips too much.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Show that you appreciate those who can help you make new arrangements for the future. The evening is fine to attend the social.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Begin the new week properly by handling your obligations. Show more affection for mate and come to a much better understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Know just what your position is with others and go along with a plan that means much to you. Avoid one who has ulterior motives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) More up-to-date systems and ideas can facilitate your labors in the future, so put them to work now. Get your work done on time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) If you talk over with others how to have more interesting recreation in the future, you get good results. Show you are very creative.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have excellent judgment at an early age. Give as fine an education as you can and direct it along modern lines. Ideal chart for catering to the public. There can be a good deal of success in this chart, but be sure the health is improved. Give fine spiritual training early in life.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

History Made In The Blizzard Of '88

CHICAGO (AP) — By the time March 11 rolls around a few spring-like days usually infiltrate the season of winter. However, March 11 has made weather history not because of its spring-like qualities but because it's the date of the most famous snow job ever pulled on the United States by Mother Nature — the Great Blizzard of 1888.

According to historical reports, at least 200 persons died in the Northeastern states during the Great Blizzard. Eyewitnesses reported "a veritable rain of sparrows falling dead," and "cattle froze standing." Snow drifts in New York City's Herald Square reached 30 feet. Property damage exceeded $25 million.

But, while the Blizzard of '88 may be the most famous, there have been other violent winter storms that merit the adjective "great."

Extraordinary combinations of cold, wind and snow have occurred periodically throughout history, report researchers for World Book Encyclopedia. In 763 A.D., for example, a weird cold period froze both the Black Sea and the Straits of Dardanelles in Europe. In 1236, the Danube river was reported frozen to the very bottom.

In 1468, the winter in Flanders was so severe that soldiers' wine rations had to be cut with hatchets and distributed in frozen chunks. A winter storm in Vienna in 1691 forced wolfpacks, crazed by the lack of food, to invade the city in search of human meals.

These extreme winter storms have come to be called blizzards only relatively recently. The term is believed to be derived from the German word "blitz," meaning lightning. Until some time after the U.S. Civil War, the term had been used to describe anything involving a violent blow or force. Civil War soldiers used the word to describe a volley of musketry.

It is generally agreed that the first use of blizzard as we use it today came during the early spring of 1870. A pioneer village newspaper in Estherville, Iowa, the Northern Vindicator, used it to describe a severe local snow storm accompanied by high winds.

In a short time, the term was used all over the Midwest. With the winter of 1880-1881, which was plagued by severe storms, the term gained acceptance throughout the rest of the country.

The National Weather Service defines a blizzard as a storm with winds of at least 35 miles per hour and temperatures at 20 degrees or lower, combined with sufficient falling or blowing snow to reduce visibility to less than one quarter mile.

A blizzard is considered "severe" when winds reach 45 m.p.h., temperatures hit 10 degrees and visibility is reduced to near zero.

Such was the Blizzard of '88. While it started as innocently as any springtime flurry, in a matter of hours it became so intense that even the horse-drawn cabs were unable to make progress through its blinding wind and snow.

Fires raged out of control. Some had to be allowed to burn themselves out since fire-fighting equipment could not move through the streets.

With transportation crippled, a food panic threatened. Telegraph communications were cut and mail delivery in and out of New York slowed to a trickle. The railroads suspended operations because of mountainous drifts across the tracks.

For a while, the East River was frozen and hundreds of adventurous souls crossed between Brooklyn and Manhattan on foot.

In Baltimore, the World Book researchers report, a perverse wind actually blew the water out of the harbor, and steamers settled into the mud. It was also reported that the Delaware River was parted by a shattering blast of air near Camden, N.J.

Plant Pioneers In Atomic Fuel

By RICHARD S. BOGGS

CRESCENT, Okla. (UPI) — A tiny pellet, smaller than an aspirin tablet, can deliver more energy than a ton of coal. Or a pound, delivered with malice, could wipe out the population of the earth.

At Crescent, a town of 1,568 just 20 miles north of Oklahoma City, the Oklahoma-based Kerr-McGee Corp. is pioneering development of this atomic fuel that is capable of meeting America's energy needs virtually forever.

Plutonium, born in atomic reactors as a bi-product of fission, can replenish itself even as it unleashes its atomic charge. It is in widespread use in commercial power production in the Soviet Union and Europe, but has never been used commercially in the United States.

The Tennessee Valley Authority has license for America's first commercial breeder reactor, scheduled for operation in 1980 if public opinion and environmentalists don't slow it down. The word "breeder" refers to the ability of the reactor to produce its own plutonium, with little decay in supply.

Radiation Is Low

Kerr McGee's Nuclear Division has been the target of considerable criticism. Company officials contend it has come mostly from persons who have not taken time to learn about the strict precautions required by the AEC for handling of radioactive materials.

The company admits plutonium is dangerous, but suggests its hazards be put in perspective with potential benefits of unlimited power and relief from the fossil fuel energy crunch. Radiation from the man-made element, officials say, is lower than the radium once commonly used on watch dials.

Kerr-McGee's Bill Utnage, administrative assistant to Executive Vice President George Parks, has been a nuclear scientist since the nuclear age was born in World War II. He explained how the reproductive cycle works, beginning with uranium (U235).

"It gives off a neutron and uranium 238 is an absorber. You've made plutonium 239," he said. "Now, you can use the plutonium as a replacement for U235 and it is more active for its volume. It gives the neutron back off and it is again absorbed by the U238 to make more plutonium.

No Nuclear Deaths

"It replenishes itself every time it is used," he says. "It is virtually indefatigable."

Utnage maintains the atomic industry was "founded by scientists capable of foreseeing the risk and of protecting themselves and society from it." He said there has never been a major nuclear accident, although there remains a chance of one. And, there has never been a death caused by the peaceful use of nuclear energy.

Plutonium is not manufactured at the Kerr-McGee facility, which has no reactor.

Parents Should Acknowledge A Child's Perception

By DR. ALICE GINOTT

IT IS NEVER HELPFUL to argue with a child when he complains of aches and pains. It is best to adknowledge the condition. When we deny a child his perception or argue with his experience, he becomes more defensive and more insistent.

Colin, 10, was hit in the arm by a bat. He described his ordeal to his mother in great detain and then demanded that she put a sling on his arm. His demand irritated his mother. In her eyes, his injury was minor. The conversation turned into a bitter battle:

Colin: I need a sling for my arm.

Mother: Are you crazy?

Colin: You don't know how much it hurts.

Mother: You'll look like some kind of a nut. You are not going out of this house with a sling on your arm.

Sam laughed at his reflection, discarded the sling and went back out to the ball field.

Colin: All you care about is what it looks like. You don't care about me!

Mother: You seem to care enough for the two of us. Maybe you should try thinking about someone else for a while. Then your arm will feel better.

Colin: You don't care if I die! (Off he went to his room in tears.)

CHILDREN ARE entitled to sympathetic responses from parents. The outside world is not likely to empathize with a child's difficulties. On the contrary, it is critical and demanding. Therefore, home has to be a haven from attack. Here is an example, similar to Colin's experience but with a different outcome.

Sam, 9, fell, hurt his hand and asked for a sling.

Sam: I need a sling for my arm.

Mother: It must hurt a lot.

Sam: Yeah. What can I use to hold it up?

Mother: I wonder what you can use?

Sam: How about that old sheet?

Mother: That's an idea.

Sam made a sling from the ripped sheet and went to a mirror to admire himself. He laughed at the sight in the mirror.

Mother: I hope your arm heals fast. Your team needs you.

Sam: It'll be okay.

An hour later, Sam was back in the ball field—without the sling.

WHEN THEIR CONDITION is understood, and their feelings acknowledged with respect and dignity, teenagers often face their problems more realistically. Example:

Carey, 18, arrived for dinner to her aunt's home disgruntled and late. It was the last day of her college term, and she had been packing all afternoon. Her boyfriend had left for his home, and other friends who had promised to help her out had not shown up.

After dinner, Carey wanted to return to her dorm to finish packing. Her uncle tried to pressure her into staying overnight. He said:

"You are tired, and have a cold. I don't want you to drive late at night when you are exhausted. You must stay here." But Carey was adamant.

Her aunt walked over, put her arm around Carey and sympathetically acknowledge her predicament. She said: "It was such a disappointing day. Your boyfriend had to leave. Your friends fouled up your schedule. You are anxious to finish your packing today, even though you are tired.

"Yes," replied Carey, visibly softened. She remained silent for a few minutes, then said, "I am really to tired to drive. I'll sleep here tonight."

HOW CAN YOU help best when your child complains of a difficult school assignment? The following episode illustrates a way:

Jerry, 11, began to roar and thunder about a difficult crossword puzzle his teacher assigned for homework. Father said: "It must be a very difficult puzzle. I wonder if the teacher realizes how hard it is?" Without a word, Jerry retired to his room to work on the puzzle.

Father was helpful because he addressed himself to the reality of his son's situation. He did not belittle the difficulty, and refrained from offering advice. Instead, he understood and acknowledged.

Affirmation of a youngster's view is often the most effective assistance a parent can offer a child.

Litchfield

HUNTLEY™ FURNITURE by Thomasville

Here is a rugged, all wood suite based on the charming designs originating during the early days of our nation. Litchfield's design details include the bracket foot, colonial spice box motifs, doors with cross bracing and an authentic arch. These knotty oak solids and veneers are carefully selected for the naturalness of the knots and their grain character. Specially selected hardware designs feature attractive willow motifs, and dramatically set off the wood tone. Litchfield . . . exceptional value and craftsmanship for the most modest budget.

Furman Wins Crown By Slim Two

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

RICHMOND, Va.—It was just too much to ask.

Friday night, the University of Richmond's Spiders had pulled off an amazing comeback in the second half to upset the Davidson Wildcats and make the finals of the Southern Conference Tournament.

But after that super performance, they just couldn't quite put another one together against Furman's defending champ Paladins, playing in their fourth straight final.

Furman held off the Spiders in the final minutes of play for a 62-60 victory and their second straight title.

With the victory comes a bid to the NCAA regionals next Saturday against South Carolina in Philadelphia.

Richmond, down by as much as 11 points early in the final half, came back to finally tie the game on two occasions the last time with three minutes to play.

Fessor Leonard put Furman back on top seconds later, 60-58, but the Spiders couldn't hit when they needed it. Five times, they had the shot, but five times it fell off the rim.

Ed Kelley, who usually is an automaton on the foul line missed one chance to sew it up, but then came back with two in the final 18 seconds to do just that.

Furman completely dominated the backboards in the game, pulling down 45, as compared to 33. Mayes led that category with 18, while Stewart had 10 for Richmond.

Stewart, who scored 19 points in the game, was selected as the tournament's Most Valuable Player, over Mayes, who hit 21 points.

Furman grabbed the lead at the start and never lost it pushing out to as much as an eight point lead.

The Spiders couldn't hit with regularity, and seldom got second shots as the big Paladins dominated the boards.

Craig Lynch put the Paladins into the initial lead, 2-0, and Bruce Grimm added a free throw before Craig McCurty hit the first Richmond basket.

After almost five minutes, Clyde Mayes hit a turnaround jumper to extend the lead to five, 9-4. Then, after a pair of exchanges, Ed Kelley hit a jumper to up the lead to seven, 15-8.

Richmond came back with two baskets, one each by Eric Gray and Aron Stewart, but Furman countered that, moving back out by seven. Richmond again closed to three, 19-16 as Stewart and Gray connected, but Furman got baskets from Moose Leonard and Clyde Mayes to put it back to seven. With 1:57 left, Leonard hit a free throw for a 26-18 lead, and the Paladins held that margin the rest of the way, for a 28-10 halftime advantage.

Richmond got only 13 of 40 rebounds in the half, and shot just 32.3 per cent, and that led to most of the margin that Furman was able to build.

In the early minutes of the second half, the Paladins inched their lead out to as much as 11 points. That came when Bierly and Mayes hit for a 36-25 lead. But then, Richmond started to make a comeback on the Paladins. Carlton Mack, Kevin Eastman and McCurdy each hit. The two exchanged shots again until it reached 48-42.

Gray hit a free throw and Stewart tapped it a basket to cut it to 50-48. Mike Sanford hit a basket and Eastman made a free throw to trim it to 50-48. Mayes got a three point play, but again Richmond fought back, cutting it to two again on Stewart's jumper with 3:54 left to cut it to two, 56-54. Eastman then stole the ball as Furman headed back down court and fed Stewart for the tieing score, 56-56, with 3:41 left.

Furman went back out, but McCurdy tied it again. Leonard then hit from underneath to put Furman back up 60-58 with 2:47 left.

Richmond blew three straight chances for baskets, and then Kelley missed one-and-one with 1:04 left that could have sewn it up for the Paladins.

Richmond again, trying hard, couldn't buy a basket missing twice before Leonard fouled Gray with 23 seconds left. He missed both, however, and Furman got the rebound.

Kelley was again fouled, with 18 seconds to go, and this time he made both of them for a 62-58 lead.

Richmond again couldn't make one fall, and a last second basket by Mack did no good.

Besides Mayes' 21 points, Kelley hit 14 and Leonard added 11. Richmond led by Stewart's 19, while McCurdy had 15 and Gray pitched in 11.

State Rolls Beating Wake

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C. (AP)—Top-ranked North Carolina State's 7-foot-4 Tommy Burleson sparked a late surge that put down a Wake Forest threat and carried the Wolfpack to a 72-63 Atlantic Coast Conference basketball victory Saturday night.

Burleson scored six of his 17 points after 12-game loser Wake Forest cut the Wolfpack lead to 62-60 with four minutes left. He ingited a 10-point spree that iced N. C. State's 22nd victory in a row and 30th straight over ACC rivals.

The victory gave State a 24-1 record and completed a 12-0 ACC season, the first time a team has gone through the conference season unbeaten two years in a row.

N. C. State now goes into the ACC championship tournament opening Thursday at Greensboro, N.C., with a first round bye.

Wake Forest led by five early, but the Wolfpack was ahead at the half 45-35, led by David Thompson, who scored 13 of his 21 points. He fouled out in the game's final minute after playing almost 13 minutes with four personals.

Williamston Loses Finals

HIGH POINT—Williamston had four starters fouled out in the last quarter of the championship game of the state girls basketball tourney and it gave South Johnson an edge they used to win, 52-49.

S. Johnson took the first period lead, 15-9, but Williamston fought back and trailed, 29-25 at halftime.

The difference did not change in the third quarter as both teams scored eight points. Williamston caught up in the fourth period and tied it 49-49 but missed a free throw that would have put them ahead. Williamston fouled S. Johnson on the rebound and the break cost them the game.

Sissy Taylor and Nancy Williams each had 14 for the Lady Tigers while Bett Brandon had 12. Genia Beasley had 16 for SJ and Tonya Dupree had 10. The winners were led by Wanda Watkins with 20.

Williamston—F. Hardison 7, Taylor 14, Brandon 12, Sharpe 21, Williams 14, D. Hardison Brown, Cullipher, Bell.
S. Johnson—Beasley 16, Dupree 10, Watkins 20, Bledsoe, Wood 5, Smith, Adams 1.

Heard Builds Citrus Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Easy-going Jerry Heard whistled his way to a three-under-par 69 and stretched his lead to two strokes Saturday in the third round of the $150,000 Citrus Open Golf Tournament.

Heard, who has owned or shared the lead all the way, put together a 54-hole total of 204, a 12 under par on the warm and sunny 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course.

The husky young man, who has a habit of whistling softly to himself in his casual amble down the fairways, birdied the final hole to expand his lead over Homero Blancas, Bob Murphy and Leonard Thompson, tied for second at 206.

Thompson, who scored his first professional victory just last weekend, had a 69, Murphy posted 68 and Blancas charged into contention with a six-under-par 66.

Chi Chi Rodriguez, with a 68, was just one more stroke behind at 207.

The big group at 208, eight under par and only four shots behind going into the last round of this chase for a $30,000 first prize, was made up of Hale Irwin, Bert Yancey, Lanny Wadkins, Bob Unger, Australians Bruce Crampton and Bruce Devlin and South African Bobby Cole.

Wadkins, the only one of the leaders who failed to break 70 in the almost ideal playing conditions, had a 71. Unger posted a 69, Devlin and Irwin 68, Yancey and Cole 67 and Crampton a 66.

Lee Trevino had his first good round of the tournament, a 68 for 212. Arnold Palmer could do no better than match par 72 and appeared out of title contention at 213.

Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf, Johnny Miller and Billy Casper are not competing.

"I really want to win bad," said the 26-year-old Heard, who scored the last of his three professional victories in the spring of 1972. "It's been a while and I really want it.

"It's nice to be leading. I want to get off to a good start tomorrow, get off to a good run. I think I've got a good chance. I'm playing good right now. With a good start, maybe I can win it. But it'll probably take a good score to do it. There's a bunch of guys close and it's the kind of course somebody could shoot 65 on."

Heard birdied the first hole from eight feet and hooked a low, running shot from under the trees to within six feet of the cup on the seventh.

He birdied the 11th from a bunker, then holed a 20-foot birdie putt on the 12th. He wedged to 18 inches in the 15th, then took his second bogey of the day when he was distracted by some crowd noise on the 17th.

"It's my own fault for not just waiting and letting the crowd settle down," he said. "Some gal was yelling and it bothered me. But I'm not complaining. I should have just waited."

He got the stroke—and the two-shot margin—back with a 15-foot birdie putt on the final hole.

Chargers Are No. One

DURHAM—Ayden-Grifton's Chargers finally broke the jinx that has plagued them all the way through the state 3-A playoffs to take a 61-57 win over West Brunswick and claim the state championship.

The Chargers went to the playoffs for the fourth straight time. Last year they finished third. This year they survived some close games to pull out the crown.

The Chargers played one of their better games. They shot 52 per cent and yanked down 39 rebounds. WB hit 48 per cent and grabbed 26 rebounds.

Both teams hit equal numbers of field goals, 24, but the outcome was decided at the free throw line where A-G made 13 and WB nine.

The Chargers slipped in front 15-12 in the first period after the score had been contested heavily. West Brunswick took the lead midway through the second period but two free throws by Jessie Brown gave the Chargers the lead again, 29-27 at the half.

WB outshot A-G in the third period 20-14 as they went ahead. WB put through three buckets at the start of the game to go up by 33-29 but A-G rallied with three baskets also. At the end of the period WB led by 47-43.

Danny Garris hit a field goal to open the final quarter cutting the gap to 47-45 but the Chargers could not close further until Travis Woods put A-G in front, 58-57 with :49 left. Milton Brown added a free shot and Melvin Stewart two for the final margin.

Woods had 19 points and seven rebounds for A-G while Stewart had 13 points, Jessie Brown 12 and 11 rebounds and Garris had nine. Harold Johnson had 12 for WB while J. Bromel's 15 led the team.

26 and over: John Lutz defeated Jay Kirkman.

Pirates Streak To First Win

BUIES CREEK—East Carolina opened their baseball season yesterday with a resounding bang as they drummed Campbell College, 9-1.

The Pirates rapped out 11 hits while Campbell collected eight. Four of the Pirate connections were for home runs. Ron Staggs led that department with a pair driving in five runs. Russ Smith and Carl Summerell each had one.

East Carolina put men on in the first two frames but could not score. Staggs got a two-out single in the first but was picked off first base. In the second, Ron Leggett singled and stole second. He went to third on a fly out but failed to advance.

Then in the fourth, the Bucs opened it up. Smith led off with a right field homer and an out later, Summerell cracked out his for a 2-0 lead.

Campbell came back with a run in the bottom of the fourth. Frank Floyd singled and went to third an error on the play. He scored when Adorno reached on an error.

East Carolina put it away in the fifth. Bobby Harrison singled as did Leggett and Jeff Beaston. Smith singled to drive in two runs and Staggs followed with his first homer to clear the bases.

Beaston reached on an error in the seventh and came around on a second homer by Staggs.

Staggs led the Pirates' attack with three hits and Summerell and Smith and Beaston had two each. McMillan had two for the Camels.

The Pirates open their home slate Tuesday hosting Duke.

Stars Take Pair

Greenville's All-Stars beat the Williamston All-Stars yesterday, in two games, 33-31 and 58-50.

Greenville led, 17-7 at the half and had to hold off Williamston in the second half to get the win.

Junior Blunt led Greeville with 12.

In the second game, Greenville again jumped out to a big lead, 35-23. Williamston tried to rally in the second half but failed.

Calvin Page led Greenville with 21, Greg Gulfrey had 12 and Danny Carmon had 11. Danny Mobley had 23 for Williamston.

Peele Reelected

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The Southern Conference Sports Writers Association voted Saturday to change its name to the Southern Conference Media Association and elected new officers.

Will Parrish of the Charlotte, N. C., Observer was elected the new president for 1974-75.

Regional vice presidents chosen were Ed Richards of the Newport News Daily Press, Virginia; Lee Moore of WCTI-TV, New Bern, for North Carolina; and Charles Dayton, Furman University sports information director, for South Carolina.

Woody Peele of the Greenvile, N. C., Daily Reflector was re-elected secretary-treasurer.

Williams Can Now Rest Easy

RICHMOND, Va.—Joe Williams, with Furman's third title in four years in his hands, breathed a sigh of relief after the Paladins had held off the Richmond Spiders, 62-60, in the finals of the Southern Conference Tournament here last night.

"I'm real happy to win," he said. "Richmond did a very good job. We were tight at times, but I thought we did play well. I love the challenge of the tournament, and it's a tremendous feeling to play against a team like Richmond and win, especially with the crowd behind them."

Williams felt that the big men, Clyde Mayes and Fessor Leonard did well. "When Leonard was on the bench in foul trouble, we seemed to be in trouble. I felt that we were in better control when he was in there."

Williams obviously disappointed that Mayes didn't receive the Most Valuable Player Trophy, (that went to Aron Stewart of Richmond). "Mayes is a good team player. He dosen't try to do things on his own. Sterwart is great, but I feel that Clyde was more valuable since we won. He outscored and outrebounded Aron.

"But then, the same thing happened when East Carolina beat us two years ago, and our player, Roy Simpson, won the trophy."

The coach added that he thought his team's defense was the key in the final stages.

Richmond's Lew Mills said his team gave a great effort. "I'm proud of them. We certainly had the opportunity at the end, but we weren't able to pull it off. I never doubted that we would win it. This crew has stuck in there all year and tried to do the job.

"But I have to praise Furman," Mills said. "They are so big and strong. I felt that we were quicker. It could have gone either way just as easily."

McMillan Leads Maryland Win

By Gordon Beard
AP Sports Writer

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Tom McMillen, Maryland's all-time leading scorer, tallied 23 points in his final home appearance while leading the fifth-ranked Terps to a 110-75 basketball victory over Virginia Saturday.

McMillen has scored 1,746 points going into next week's Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament. The Terps, who won their ninth straight, posted a 9-3 ACC record, tying North Carolina for second place.

Maryland, 21-4 for the season, ran off strings of 12 and 14 consecutive points while racing to a 57-31 halftime lead.

The Terrapins were ahead 20-6 with 12:32 left in the first half, after each starter had scored four points. Starting guards John Lucas and Mo Howard accounted for 22 points before being benched with the Terps ahead 38-24.

Their replacements, Jap Trimble and Billy Hahn, then combined for eight more in a row.

Lucas finished with 22 points and Howard 14. Trimble and Len Elmore scored 12 apiece, and Elmore grabbed 11 rebounds while pushing his career total to 1,010.

Gus Gerard scored 25 to lead Virginia, which has a 10-15 record, including 4-8 in the ACC.

Heels Win In Overtime

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Freshman Walter Davis banked in a 35-foot jump shot at the end of regulation time to cap an incredible North Carolina comeback Saturday as the fourth-ranked Tar Heels nipped arch rival Duke, 96-92 in overtime.

Davis's long shot finished a rally that saw UNC wipe out an eight point Duke lead in the game's final 17 seconds. Davis then went on to score six of his team's ten points in the overtime period as UNC extended its record to 21-4.

Duke had apparently put the game out of UNC's reach when the Tar Heels' Bobby Jones was fouled with 17 seconds left and the score 86-78. Jones sank both free throws and the Tar Heels went into a full court press.

Freshman John Kuester stole the in-bounds pass and sank a layup to cut the lead to four points with 11 seconds left. Duke again lost the ball on the in-bounds play.

Davis who finished the game with 31 points, missed a shot, but Jones laid the rebound in to narrow the margin to two. This time, Duke got the ball in bounds.

UNC fouled Duke's Pete Kramer in the backcourt, and Kramer missed the first of a one-and-one free throw opportunity. Ed Stahl rebounded for UNC and the Tar Heels called time.

With three seconds left, Jones threw a long in-bounds pass to Davis at half court. He took two dribbles and banked the 35-footer off the boards and in.

"It was one of the most incredible finishes I've ever seen in basketball," said UNC coach Dean Smith afterwards.

It was the second time this season that North Carolina, taking advantage of Duke failures to get the ball into play, has beaten the Blue Devils in the final seconds. Duke finished the regular season with a 10-15 record and a 2-10 mark in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Blue Devils finished in the league cellar for the first time in ACC history.

Overpowering Bucs Claim Eighth

"All eighteen".

That's what the East Carolina Pirate swimming team said after it was all over. And that is just how many events the Pirates won. And that is just how many events there were, anyway.

The Pirates swept 18 events over three days of competition, the first time in conference history, in the Southern Conference Swimming and Diving championships held at ECU's Minges Natatorium. A total of nine records were broken during the three days. All by the Pirates.

Last night, ECU started the home stretch run with a victory in the massive 1650 yard freestyle as Larry Green, last year's champ, took the race in 17:19.99. Keith Kibiloski of Richmond was second and ECU's Ron Schnell grabbed a third for the Bucs. It was Green's second win.

Ross Bohlken won the next event, the 100 free, beating W&M's Dodge Havens by :01 second. He was a shade over a second past last year's mark. ECU took third and fifth. Bohlken also won the 200 free, Friday night.

Paul Schiffel became a double winner when he swam away with first place in the 200 backstroke. The Pirates finished one, two and three in the event as Greg Hinchman was second and Ron Hughes was third.

Charles Kemp's victory in the 200 breaststroke was his second win of the meet. He was the only swimmer from ECU in the finals of the event Kemp set a new record in it covering the eight laps in 2:18.19. The old record, set by W&M's Robert Ackerman last year, was 2:20.00.

Another double win came as Mike Bretting won the 200 butterfly. His other win was in the 100 butterfly, Friday. Bretting knocked 0:00.22 off the old record of 2:00.70.

ECU's Jack Morrow and Ken Morin finished 1-2 in the 1M diving Thursday but the pair were not as close last night as Morrow took first and Morin third in the 3M diving. Morrow won the event last year.

William and Mary was well out of it by the time the 400 free relay came around but they tried their best to break ECU's bid for a sweep. The Indians took a slim lead in the second leg of the race but the Pirates made up the distance and won it by .33 seconds.

The Pirates also won an unofficial 19th event as Richard LaValee won the manager's race, an individual medley type.

RICHMOND, Va.—When the number two team beats the number three team, it's supposed to be according to Hoyle. But Friday night when Richmond's second-ranked Spiders did it to Davidson, 86-68, it was billed an upset.

Most observers had picked Davidson and Furman to meet in the Saturday night finals. [illegible] Spider [illegible]

Furman made it, thanks to some second half heroics, 70-55 over William & Mary, but Aron Stewart proved his worth to Richmond in starring in the Spider victory.

William & Mary had played well in the first half but they blew a seven point lead late in the half, and Furman grabbed the momentum and kept it throughout the rest of the game.

Stewart, for Richmond, dumped in 38 points, including 27 in the second half, as he guided the Spiders back from seven points down minutes into the half. The aggressiveness of the tried to do a one-man job with 33 points, but it wasn't enough. Furman's rebounding and shooting in the second half, coupled with their defense, was too much for the Indians.

difference, as they swept the momentum away from Davidson and charged ahead.

Richmond shot 63 per cent from the floor in the second half, while holding Davidson to only 33 per cent with pressure defense. The Spiders also took advantage of the 27 fouls called against Davidson to hit 30 of 38 from the line, providing most of their winning margin there.

For most of the first half, William & Mary gave the Paladins all they could handle, but when they had a chance to really break it open in the final two minutes, they failed. Furman used that opportunity to rally and close the gap to only one point at intermission.

Furman, which led most of the half, never got more than five points in front, however. After a 2-0 and a 4-2 lead, they got a three point lead when Craig Lynch hit a jumper for a 6-3 margin. The two matched baskets until Ron Musselman struck with 11:49 left to a 9-8 Indian lead. Bruce Grimm put Furman back up just 16 seconds later, and they kept the lead for the next six minutes, moving out by as much as five points.

The Indians cut it to 14-13, but Grimm and Lynch both scored for an 18-13 margin. William & Mary hung on, however, and a free throw by Arizin pulled them into a tie. With 4:41 left he hit another for a 21-20 lead, the Indians' biggest. After an exchange of baskets, the Indians had a chance to run it to nine, but the Indians lost the ball as Grimm stole it and went all the way. Baskets by Ed Kelley and Lynch cut it to 29-28 at the half.

Furman quickly moved ahead as the second half started. Lynch put them on top after 37 seconds, and Moose Leonard and Mayes added baskets before the Indians hit. Mayes hit twice to run it to seven, then Leonard hit twice around one by Mayes. Kelley added a free throw for a 46-35 lead. But Musselman hit a jumper and Arizin canned seven straight points to trim the lead to 46-44 before the Paladins spurted again.

During the next six minutes plus, led by Mayes, Bud Bierly and Grimm, the Paladins outhit the Indians, 15-2, and that was it. W&M went over five minutes without a point during that period, and it killed them, 61-46.

After that, the Indians were too far down, with too little time to play.

Arizin, who dumped in 33 points, brought his total to 50 for the two he played. He was the only scorer in double figures for the Indians.

Grimm paced Furman with 18 while Mayes had 13, and Lynch and Leonard each had 10. Mayes also led the rebounding with 12, as the Paladins outrebounded the Indians, 34-29.

Davidson and Richmond started out by just swapping for much of the first part of the first half. Stewart put Richmond into the initial lead, but Larry Horowitz tied it up for Davidson, and Shelton Parker put the Wildcats ahead, 4-2. It was tied at 4-4, 6-6 and 8-8 before a jumper by Mike Sorrentino and two free throws by Jay Powell ran it out to 12-8. Richmond switched to a zone defense and came back to tie it again, 14-14. They tied it at 16-16 and 18-18 but Greg Dunn hit a turnaround jumper with 11:12 left to put Davidson ahead for good in the half. Horowitz and John Falconi stretched the lead to six before Carlton Mack's free throw stopped the string. But Sorrentino struck again for a 26-19 lead, a seven-point spread.

Richmond cut it back to three, but Davidson stretched it back to seven again before a free throw by Stewart cut it to 36-30 at halftime.

Richmond cut the lead again, back to two in the first minute of the second half, but Davidson again pushed it to seven, 42-35.

Then, Richmond came alive. They ran off 16 straight points, starting with a free throw by Eric Gray, a tap-in of his missed second shot by McCurty, and another free throw when he was fouled. Stewart made two free throws, then McCurty hit two with 14:34 showing to put the Spiders up, 43-42. Two more free throws by Gray, and two baskets by Stewart ran it to 49-42 before Davidson finally hit.

But the Spiders were too hot to cool off by then, and continued to pull away behind Stewart's torrid shooting. The Wildcats began to get desperate, despite a lot of time showing, but couldn't hit when they had to. Richmond upped the lead to 10 at 57-47 on a shot by Gray, and proceded to run it out to 14 before the 'Cats hit. Six in a row by Stewart helped to put it at 68-51, the biggest Richmond lead, before Davidson rallied to within 10. Richmond pulled away by 16 again late in the game, and the Wildcats were headed back to Charlotte. Then, two final free throws by Kevin Eastman made it 86-68, and 18-point final margin.

Besides Stewart's 38 points, on 13 of 21 field goals and 12 of 14 free throws, McCurty hit 15 and Gray had 11. Stewart also had 11 rebounds, while Gray had 10, as the Spiders outrebounded Davidson, 43-36.

Dunn had 18 for Davidson, while Horowitz hit 12 and Pelconi added 10.

Unser's Chances Good

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Speed king Bobby Unser had a good chance yesterday of landing a front row spot for the $300,000 California 500-mile auto race. But he's looking for bigger game.

"The monkey is on my back at this race track, and the only way I can get rid of it is to win the race," he said Friday during priactice at the 2.5-mile Ontario Motor Speedway.

"Given the same luck I have had here the last five years, most sensible drivers wouldn't even be here. They'd stay home in disgust. And, with good reason."

Unser, who clebrated his 40th birthday by finishing third in the recent International Race of Champions in Florida, was grouped with such speedsters as A.J. Foyt, Wally Dallenbach, Al Unser, Mario Andretti and Gary Bettenhausen as leading condidates for front row positions in the race, first of the season for the Indianapolis stars.

The three front line berths were the only ones at stake in today's first round of qualifying for the 33-car lineup. A pair of 100-mile speed dashes Sunday will provide the other 30 starters, with order of finish in the heats the deciding factor.

Foyt, who reportedly has promised his wife he will quit racing after the current season—he will be 40 next Jan. 16—had posted the fastest time in four days of practice, 190.904 miles per hour in a Coyote-Ford he designed in his Texas shop.

Unser's top speed in an Olsonite Eagle built by ex-driver Dan Gurney was 187.574 mph. Dallenbach and the others were clocked in excess of 185 mph and were considered to be in sight of the front row.

"I think we have as much speed as any one here," said the oldest of the Unser driving brothers. "Speed counts, and so does a good starting position. But this race is going to be won by the fastest guy who is around at the finish—and still has fuel enough to race the last 50 miles.

"What worries me is that I have had such foul luck at Ontario. I have never been involved in a driving finish at this race track, and I have never been able to produce a vistory at my car owner's home track."

Gurney, who builds Eagles for championship racing—there are 19 Eagles of various vintages in the Ontario entry list—maintains his shops at nearby Santa Ana.

Unser's Ontario frustrations date almost from the opening of the $25 million showcase racing facility.

He was the runaway leader in the last three races before fortune abandoned him.

An engine broke during his first qualifying run last year and he had to return for a second chance the next day, after all of the top spots were gone. He qualified for a 24th-place start, but was in the lead after only 62 laps of the race. However, gear box trouble cost him six laps in the pits and he finished seventh.

In the two preceding years, it was engine trouble.

"The monkey has got to go," Unser said grimly.

A home run in the bottom of the ninth by Tommy Henrich of the Yankees won the first World Series game during the 1949 classic. In that game Allie Reynolds pitched a two-hitter against Brooklyn.

Americans Demolished

MOSCOW (AP) — Mary Decker only lost her temper, but an outclassed U.S. track and field team lost the meet Saturday in a crushing defeat by a Soviet squad in near-peak form.

Not even a world-record performance by Lt. Tom Hill in the 60-meter hurdles, a record-tying sprint by Clifford Outlin, or a David-and-Goliath upset of Russia's highly-regarded decathlon man could alter the outcome.

The Russians won the third annual indoor meet by a score of 158-124, beating the men 89-72 and swamping Coach Bert Lyle's girls 74-54.

Head Coach Roy Chernock said with a sense of the obvious: "We just weren't strong enough."

When most of the U.S. champions begged off the trip to Moscow, Chernock was left with a selection of dedicated runners-up. "We brought fine people," he said after the meet, "but not our best, and you can't beat them unless you have your best."

Hill, a 24-year-old Arkansas State college graduate, shaved a tenth of a second off the world indoor mark for the 60-meter hurdles. He was timed in 7.3 seconds. Willie Davenport, of Baton Rouge, La., was a close second in 7.4.

Miss Decker, the best of the U.S. female runners, won the 800-meter as expected. Then, in the women's medley relay, she hurled two batons at her Russian opponent, in a fit of anger.

The 15-year-old schoolgirl from Garden Grove, Calif. was crowded on the last lap of the 800-meter anchor run in the relay by a muscular blonde Russian girl named Sarmite Shtula.

Miss Shtula cut in front of Miss Decker on the next-to-last turn, and seemed to elbow the American girl, driving her off the inside lane of the track. Miss Decker slowed to a trot. Her face reflected first bewilderment and then anger. She wound up with her baton and threw it at Miss Shtula's fleeing back but missed.

Then Mary retrived her weapon and jogged on to the finish where she tried again. Again, she missed.

In sobs at the finish line, the American youngster screeched, "She hit me with the baton in the stomach."

The judges disqualified the Russian relay team for Miss Shtula's interference and did the same to the Americans for "unsportsmanlike conduct."

Basket Came Too Late

LEXINGTON, N.C. (AP) Top-seeded Elon has been eliminated from the Carolinas Conference Basketball Tournament because officials ruled that a basket which would have tied its semifinals game with Lenoir Rhyme came after the buzzer.

Fourth-seeded Lenoir Rhyne, which upset Elon 73-71 Friday night, will play third-seeded Mars Hill for the championship tonight. Mars Hill won its semi-finals game 75-68 from Atlantic Christian.

There will be no consolation game.

Mars Hill got a 31-point performance from Neil Bridges.

Atlantic Christian, seventh-seeded, had eliminated second-seeded Guilford the night before.

Hal White with 27 points led Lenoir Rhyne to victory over Elon.

The Lenoir Rhyne Bears led 41-38 at halftime and built their margin to 13 points in the second half.

Elon, led by Diffy Ross, who scored 9 points in the game, pulled even at 57-5u with 8:05 remaining. The score was tied again at 61 with 6:33 left, but Harry Shelton's field goal at 6:14 put Lenoir Rhyne ahead to stay.

A jump ball was called under the Elon basket with one second remaining and the score 73-71. Ross got the ball and popped it in, but oficials ruled the buzzer had beat him.

Atlantic Christian and Mars Hill swapped streaks

With 13 minutes left to play and Mars Hill leading by 10 points,the Atlantic Christian Bulldogs scored nine straight points.

Then the Mars Hill Lions came badk with 10 straight points and eased home.

Wilt Is Back But Helps Little

By The Associated Press

Wilt Chamberlain is alive and coaching in the American Basketball Association.

Mysteriously missing for two games, the big fellow finally made an appearance Friday night — but the San Diego Conquistadors apparently weren't inspired by his return.

The Q's, who won two games during his controversial absence, absorbed a 123-119 beating from the New York Nets.

"I don't understand all this concern," said Chamberlain after the game. "We got enough problems to worry about in this country without everyone asking: 'Where's Wilt?' Wilt is where he's supposed to be."

Wilt wasn't where he was supposed to be before Friday night, though. Chamberlain missed games with Virginia and Carolina and there were reports that team officials were baffled by his absence.

Meeting with reporters after Friday night's game, Chamberlain insisted he was taking care of club business and team owner Dr. Leonard Bloom knew about it.

"Those who were supposed to know, knew," said Chamberlain succinctly.

In the other ABA games Friday night, the Memphis Tams smashed the Virginia Squires 108-95 and the Kentucky Colonels downed the San Antonio Spurs 108-93.

Billy Schaeffer came off the bench and scored 12 points in the second period to lead the Nets over Chamberlain's Q's. Schaeffer's scoring burst helped the Nets move from a 31-29 first-quarter lead to 71-60 at the end of the half. New York broke it open by scoring the first 10 points of the second half.

Tams 108, Squires 95

Wil Jones and Glen Combs scored 18 points each, leading Memphis over Virginia. The Tams broke it open with a hot third quarter that pulled them from a 53-49 lead at the half to 86-67.

Colonels 108, Spurs 93

Artis Gilmore grabbed 29 rebounds and scored 28 points to pace Kentucky over San Antonio.

National Basketball Association scores: Buffalo 110, Boston 94; Atlanta 105, Milwaukee 89; New York 112, Capital 103; Seattle 105, Detroit 103; Houston 117, Phoenix 111; Cleveland 110, Philadelphia 93; Portland 95, Chicago 91 and Los Angeles 107, Kansas City-Omaha 100.

Theismann With 'Skins'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joe Theismann, the former Notre Dame star who went north to Canada instead of the sunny climes of Miami, has come to nation's capital and apparently will be the Washington Redskins' quarterback of the future.

With special permission from both the Canadian and National Football Leagues, the Redskins have signed Theismann to a three-year contract for an undisclosed amount believed to be in the neighborhood of $100,000.

"I've missed playing in America," Theismann told a news conference Thursday. "That's not a knock on Canada or the Canadian way of life, but it's nice to go home."

Coach George Allen said the 24-year-old Theismann fits squarely into both the Redskins' present and future plans.

"He's the type of quarterback I've been looking for," Allen said. "He adds another dimension to our offense. He has a strong arm and can run and scramble."

A-G Wins On Woods Free Shot

DURHAM—Ayden-Grifton won its opening round game Wednesday night by two points. Friday night they beat Oxford-Webb by one, 45-44, to move into the finals.

The game was a close battle all the way. A-G inched in front in the first period. 8-7, but the score was tied several times in the second frame. O-W tried to press the Chargers all night and most of the time it worked as the Chargers had trouble getting the ball in to their big men. Oxford-Webb outshot the Chargers in the period to go into the dressing room with a 21-17 lead.

A-G bounced back in the third period and tied it up. The Chargers cut the gap to 21-19 in the opening basket of the period butO-W ran off three buckets to move out by eight. A-G caught up and a bucket bucket by Travis Woods tied it at 31-31 at the end of the period.

The lead flopped around in the first part of the fourth quarter and with 1:27 left O-W was up by one, 44-43. Jessie Brown fouled out of the A-G lineup with :55 to go and the substitute forgot to check in. The officials did not fault the Chargers for the error much to the dislike of O-W.

Both teams had chances at scores in the last 30 seconds,but missed. With :04 left Woods faked an apparent jump shot and passed off but was fouled in the process. He was awarded two shots and made both free throws to give A-G the win.

Woods led the Chargers with 18 and Brown had 17. Ryster led O-W with 15 andJohnson had 10.

Williamston Into Finals

Williamston's Lady Tigers blasted their way into the finals of the state girls Basketball tournament Friday night as they shelled Benhaven, 55-27.

Williamston jumped out to an 8-1 lead in the first period before Benhaven made a field goal. At the end of the period, Williamston led 12-7.

The Lady Tigers added 17 to their total in the second half to lead 29-17.

Williamston continued to roll in the third quarter 18-3 for a 47-20 lead. The fourth quarter was close, 8-7, but did not affect the outcome.

Sissy Taylor and Bet Brandon each had 14 to lead the Lady Tigers and Fran Hardison had 11. Lenora Mosley had 12 for the losers.

Williamston was to meet South Johnston last night in the finals.

U. S. CIVIL SERVICE TESTS!

Men-women age 18 and over. Prepare now for U. S. Civil Service exams for job openings during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay high starting salaries. They provide greater security than private employment and opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you frequently must pass a test. The competition is keen.

Lincoln Service has helped many people prepare for these tests every year since 1948. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

For FREE information on Government jobs, including list of positions and salaries, fill out coupon and mail at once TODAY.

You will also get full details on how you can prepare yourself for these tests.

Don't delay — ACT NOW!

LINCOLN SERVICE, Dept. 17-R

Pirates Continue To Drown Opposition

AND THEY'RE OFF—At the gun the swimmers prepare to hit the water for the 200 free style in the finals of the Southern Conference Swimming and Diving championships in Minges Friday night. In lane 4 is Ross Bohlken of ECU, Keith Havens in lane 5 of William & Mary and Tom Falk of East Carolina is in lane 6. Bohlken won the event for the Pirates. (Reflector photo by Chip Lambeth)

Greg Hinchman became the first double winner and the East Carolina Pirate tankmen added another six notches to their guns as they continued to run away with the Southern Conference Swimming and Diving championships.

The Pirates racked up 244 points in Friday's races to run their two day total to 417. Richmond is still running second but is pitifully behind. The Spiders have 205 after picking up 113 Friday.

Hinchman won the 100 backstroke setting a new record in the event. He won in a time of :57.94 bettering the old mark of :58.26.

Other winners in the day's activities were Paul Schiffel in the 400 IM setting a new record of 4:21.65, the old one was 4:23.00, Ross Bohlken in the 200 free also a new record, and Mike Bretting in the 100 butterfly; Charles Kemp set a new record in the 100 breast. The Pirate relay team won the 800 free relay, breaking still another record. There they knocked :02.02 off the old one of 7:21.0.

"The Pirates are shooting for their eighth conference crown having already won seven straight. The final events were to have been Saturday.

ECU also took a pair of seconds, a third and three fouths.

In 1973, the Pirates won 14 of the 18 events. With seven remaining, the Pirates would have had to put out a super effort. But Friday, none of the races were close with all the Pirates wins coming with at least a second's margin.

The record broken by Schiffel in the 400 IM ironically was set by him last year in the SC tournament. The Pirates also set the former record in the 800 relay. Kemp's record just did make it as he cut the previous mark by 0:00.09 seconds.

Saturday's final events were to include the 1650 freestyle, 100 free, 200 back, 200 breast, 200 butterfly, 3M diving, and 400 free relay.

The summary:

Late First Half Rally May Have Meant Difference

RICHMOND, Va.—William & Mary went into the second half with only a one-point lead after Furman had rushed back from seven points down, and Indian Coach George Palanis felt that was the key to Furman's 70-55 victory in Friday night's semi-final first game.

"It was the big key for us," Balanie said. "If we could have gone in seven or nine points ahead, we would have held it at the start of the second, spread it out and tried to get (Mike) Arizin going in one-on-one. But I'm proud of our guys."

Balanie felt Arisin, who hit 33 points, a total of 60 in his two tournament games, played a super game. "Furman has a great basketball team, though—that's why they are number one."

Joe Williams, Furman's mentor, thought that his team's defense did the job in the second half. "(Bruce) Crimm did an excellent job on (Ron) Satterthwaite (who got only two points). Holding him helped us a lot. (Bud) Bierly made some things happen for us in the second half, too." Bierly stole the ball several times after the Indians and closed the gap to two, and it lead to several baskets that helped to break it open.

"Our man-to-man defense began to work late in the first half (when the Paladins cut the lead from seven to one), and it kept up in the second half. Clyde Mayes and Moose Leonard loosened up in the second half, too, and that was one of the keys."

Williams felt that the Indians played well in the first half, when the Paladins were somewhat sluggish. "But in the second half, our defense improved, and our offense got going."

Terry Holland felt his Wildcats lost control of the game in the second half, in losing to Richmond. "I want to congratulate them on the win. They played a super game. At one stretch in the second half, they played the best they could and we didn't play well at all."

Holland admitted that Richmond's press bothered the Wildcats, especially at some crucial points in the game. "When we had to chase them to catch up, it spoiled our defense, (geared to double Aron Stewart) and it hurt. Late in the game we were still in it but hurried some of our shots and just missed."

Lewis Mills of Richmond was quite pleased to be standing in the winners' dressing room. "We played a super, super, super game in the second half, "he said. "I told them at halftime that we had to be aggressive in the second half. We had to play like their lives depended on it, and they did just that".

Mills singled out guard Kevin Eastman, a freshman "who played like a senior," for his work against the Davidson press, and for his work in the Richmond press.

And of course he singled out Stewart for his fine performance. "Aron is in heaven on a basketball court," Mills said.

But could he get that type of game out of the Spiders again Saturday night? "I think so. I'm certainly going to ask it of them," he said.

Spring Air Shook By Many Disputes

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The relaxed atmosphere at spring training was upset Friday by numerous player-management disputes — not all of them over salary.

Former Texas Rangers catcher Ken Suarez filed a formal grievance against his old club, alleging he was traded to the Cleveland Indians for disciplinary reasons and asking that the deal be declared void. The trade came one week after Suarez submitted his contract to arbitration.

Suarez has not reported to the Indians, and has indicated he will retire unless he plays for the Rangers.

"I didn't even know there was such a thing as a disciplinary trade," said Texas owner Bob Short. "We had tried to trade Suarez for almost five months and he knew it. He knew he didn't fit into our plans."

Elsewhere, Minnesota Twins President Calvin Griffith denied making a statement earlier in the week that he would trade pitcher Dick Woodson, outfielder Larry Hisle, and infielder Steve Braun because they had won arbitration cases.

Griffith had been quoted by the Minneapolis Star as saying the salary issues had cost him $15,000 and that he would get even with the players by trading them.

Twins players were in an uproar over a separate Griffith action: he took away their blue stirrup socks. "The players stretched them so much and pulled their pant legs down so far all you could see was white, anyway, so we went to the all-white socks," Griffith said.

One player reacted, "He can take away our socks, but not our individuality ... What's next? Our pants?" Some Twins players took marking pens and drew the stirrups back on their socks.

The Oakland A's received their World Championship rings from owner Charles O. Finley and expressed universal disappointment with them. During the World Series, Finley had promised rings that would make the 1972 rings "look like babies."

But, said relief pitcher Darold Knowles, "They've got to be the worst World Series rings in history."

Outspoken outfielder Reggie Jackson, the Most Valuable Player in the club's second consecutive world title said, "They're trash."

Last year's rings, with an estimated value of $1,500 each, featured a full carat diamond set in a green stone and the words "World Champions 72-73."

This year's were the same, but there is no diamond. Finley cited the rising cost of diamonds and said, "If the players don't like them, they can always send them back."

Most of the players felt their reactions and words against Finley last October, when the owner attempted to fire infielder Mike Andrews, was the main reason behind the cheaper rings.

TENNIS

BARCELONA, Spain — Top-seeded John Newcombe advanced to the finals of the $50,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Patricio Cornejo of Chile.

MIAMI — Second-seeded Tom Oker outlasted Mike Estep of Waco, Texas 7-6, 6-7, 7-6 in a two hour, 20-minute match and advanced to the semifinals in the Red Group of the $50,000 World Championship Tennis Tournament.

PARAMUS,N.J. — Second-seeded Sandy Mayer of Wayne, N.J. defeated Anand Amritraj of India 7-5, 6-2 to earn a bearth in the quarter-finals of the $20,000 Garcia Classic.

CHICAGO — Billie Jean King easily defeated Laura duPont 6-3, 6-2 to advance to the semi-finals of the $50,000 Women's Pro Tennis Circuit tournament.

Heard Takes One Stoke Lead

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Jerry Heard has abandoned a year-long search for perfection in professional golf and has made a decision to "go with what I've got."

And that was good enough to give the youngster from Visalia, Calif. a one-stroke lead over Jim Colbert Friday after two rounds of the $150,000 Citrus Open.

Heard had a second round 68 in the mild, sunny weather that bathed the 6,929-yard Rio Pinar Country Club course and his 135 total was nine-under-par.

Colbert, a former Kansas State football player despite his relatively small size, also had a 68, his second consecutive round at that score, and a 136 total.

Arnold Palmer, however, experienced trouble with his driver and dropped back. He hit only seven of 18 fairways, bogeyed the last hole for a 73 and went from one stroke off the pace to six behind at 141.

Leonard Thompson, a winner last week at Fort Lauderdale, and Lanny Wadkins were one stroke behind Colbert at 137. Thompson got to within one stroke of the lead at one time before he made a bogey on the last hole for 69, while Wadkins charged into contention with a 67.

GOLF

SINGAPORE — Defending champion Ben Arda of the Phillipines shot a second round three-under-par 68 in the $40,000 Singapore Open Golf Championship for a two round total of 137 and a one-stroke lead.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Laura Baugh shot a four-under-par 68 to take the first-round lead in the Ladies Professional Golf Association's $30,000 Orange Blossom Classic tournament.

BOWLING

MIAMI — Larry Laub of San Francisco totaled 9,564 pins for 42 games, including 30 bonus pins for each of 16 victories, to take first place in the final round of the $80,000 Professional Bowlers Association tournament.

BREMEN, Germany — America's Heather Greenwood set a world swimming record in the women's 800-meter freestyle with a time of 8:49.22 at the opening of an invitational swimming festival.

Atlanta's Tired, Bucks Are Not

By The Associated Press

The Atlanta Hawks were tired, so they bombed the Milwaukee Bucks 105-89. The Bucks aren't tired yet, according to their coach, but they will be.

"Every team gets tired of getting beat, and the Hawks have been getting beat a lot lately," said Cotton Fitzsimmons, coach of the Hawks.

So, behind Pete Maravich and Walt Bellamy, the Hawks went on a third-period rampage, scored 17 consecutive points and cruised to victory.

Elsewhere in the NBA, the Buffalo Braves stunned the Boston Celtics 110-94; the New York Knicks downed the Capital Bullets 112-103; the Seattle SuperSonics edged the Detroit Pistons 105-103; the Los Angeles Lakers clipped the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 107-100; Portland's Trail Blazers topped the Chicago Bulls 95-91; the Houston Rockets downed the Phoenix Suns 117-111, and the Cleveland Cavaliers bombed the Philadelphia 76ers 110-93.

When the smoke cleared after the period, the Hawks had outscored the Bucks 39-17 and Fitzsimmons was well on the way to his "most satisfying victory of the season."

Braves 110, Celtics 94

Bob McAdoo scored 31 points and hauled in 18 rebounds to pace Buffalo's second victory over the Celtics in three nights.

Knicks 112, Bullets 103

Dave DeBusschere scored 10 of his 28 points in the third quarter to carry the Knicks past the Bullets for the second time in four days.

"This was the kind of game you like to win because this is what it's going to be like in the playoffs...hard fought," he said.

SuperSonics 105, Pistons 103

A three-point play with 37 seconds remaining by Seattle's Spencer Haywood provided the Sonics with the victory and the Pistons with their fourth loss in a row.

Lakers 107, Kings 100

The Lakers, behind 26 points by Gail Goodrich, won their sixth game in a row and moved closer to idle Pacific Division leader Golden State.

Trail Blazers 95, Bulls 91

Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wicks combined for 60 points to help Portland end a nine-game losing streak.

The game was marred by a near-fight between Wicks and Chicago's Jerry Sloan in the second period. No punches were thrown, as Blazer Coach Jack McCloskey tackled Sloan before the going got heavy.

Rockets 117, Suns 111

Calvin Murphy scored 25 points and Mike Newlin had 23 in the Houston triumph.

Kevin Kunnert put the Rockets ahead for the last time, 101-99 with 5:12 remaining.

Cavaliers 110, 76ers 93

The Cavaliers, leading by one point, scored 10 in a row to put the 76ers away. Five players contributed to the surge, which gave Cleveland a 76-64 lead.

In the American Basketball Association, the Memphis Tams topped the Virginia Squires 106-95; the New York Nets crushed the San Diego Q's 138-119, and the Kentucky Colonels downed the San Antonio Spurs 108-93.

Coon Hunting Part American

By JOEL ARRINGTON

LAURINBURG—There is no sport more American than coon hunting. Winter nights from Maine to Washington and from Florida to Texas ring with sounds of pursuit. Men huddle beside rural roads, stamp against the cold, and listen intently to hounds in a swampy bottom. Every tone is a message and the chase is an unfurling story.

The raccoon has no significant enemy but man and his dog. The species has learned to cope with its chief adversary by developing elusiveness to a high art. When pursued by one or more keen-nosed hounds, it may attempt to throw off the dogs by running on felled timber, crossing streams, climbing from tree to tree on vines, backtracking and other devious maneuvers.

dogs. It is what has prompted man to develop strains and breeds of hounds which are a match for the coon in intelligence, guile, persistence and courage.

The United Kennel Club registers Redbone, Blueticks, Black and Tans and Treeing Walkers. But in North Carolina, and in all other states, the registered coon hound is the exception rather than the rule.

I had the privilege of hunting once with a dog pack that included none of the blue-blooded breeds. Instead, they were what Joe Carpenter, my host, called "pot likker"—a seedy Duke's mixture of street dogs and hound.

But coon dogs do not run with their looks.

Muddy Creek is a tributary of the Lumber river between Aberdeen and Laurinburg in Scotland County. We hunted its bottom near the Sandhills Game Land on the last day of the coon season.

The hunt was everything a southern coon hunt should be. The hunters like the dogs were a mixed lot. They included Carpenter, who trains bird dogs for a living, a forester, an insurance salesman, business men from Laurinburg and farmers. They wore jeans, bib overalls, army surplus, heavy duck pants, hard hats and flannel shirts. There was a six-cell flashlight among us and a pint, maybe two, or spirits.

One of the men released the dogs and sent them into the bay and briar growths of the creek bottom. We skirted the edge of the swamp along a path where deer hunters had taken stands months before.

In a few minutes, one of the dogs opened and was soon joined by the others. We stood and followed the chase by ear, everyone speculating where the coon would go.

"He's th'other side the beaver dam," one said.

"Now he's headed for the road," said another.

"Turned up the slough now," muttered still another.

But to a coon, home is a hollow tree. Ours soon found his in a pine that was too big to cut and too tall to climb.

In the next few hours, the dogs ran several coons, but treed none. It was nearly midnight. Then Brownie struck a trail and we wearily agreed it would be the last race of the night.

The ring-tail set a course away from the swamp, probably because the dogs were pushing it hard. The dogs lost, then regained the trail several times while the coon gained distance. Then they went quiet for a long time. Suddenly Brownie opened again several hundred yards from where the pack had last been heard. The other dogs joined her and shortly began to "bark treed."

We arrived at the spot where the dogs indicated the coon had gone up. It was a dense tangle of honeysuckle and greenbrier on the ground and grape vines and limbs in a tree. Within view of our lights were several leaf nests and thick clumps of twigs and leaves.

The dogs were barking vigorously under a low nest. Someone climbed up and shook it, tearing it to dusty bits. No coon.

We shook nests, shined lights, cursed, and got cricks in our necks for the next hour. Still no coon. But the dogs continued barking under the first dismembered nest.

Carpenter said the coon may have first gone into the nest, then climbed through the vines well off the ground and out of the dogs' scenting range, to another tree.

"He's sitting up there now," he said, "covering his eves with his paws."

Perhaps he was.

That remarkable coon lived up to its reputation, was a credit to its species. I wish it well.

MORE PUSH POWER NOW—The Gasoline shortage has brought on the need for more push power around the race tracks as evidenced here by the drivers and mechanics pushing driver Charlie Glotzbach, of Georgetown, Ind., who qualified for the third starting position in today's Carolina 500. (AP Wirephoto)

Yarborough Seems To Own The Motor Speedway

By DICK WATERS
Associated Press Writer

Cale Yarborough, the stocky county councilman from Timmonsville, S.C., has been driving around the North Carolina Motor Speedway this week like he owns it.

Yarborough, given another chance when NASCAR officials missed a lap, won the pole position Friday for Sunday's $98,075 Carolina 500 stock car race. He bumped Richard Petty from the pole to the other front-row starting spot.

Yarborough, who finished the first three races of the season one, two and three, was clocked at 134.868 miles per hour during the first day of qualifying. Driving a Chevrolet prepared by Junior Johnson, he beat Petty's qualifying speed by a sixteen-thousandth of a second. Petty's speed was 134.789 m.p.h.

Yarborough had turned in the best practice lap when he circled the 1.017-mile oval at 136.64 m.p.h. the day before.

He posted the fifth fastest qualifying lap on his first shot, but the timing clock malfunctioned, and he got another chance.

Petty, who drives a Dodge, said after dropping into second place, "It's really not that much to get excited about. I could say something, but I won't. It really doesn't mean that much. Now if there was a great deal of money involved, well, it would be a horse of a different color.

"It will be a drag race to the first turn Sunday."

Charlie Glotzbach wheeled his Chevrolet at the third fastest qualifying speed, 134.630 m.p.h., for the inside spot on the second row. He will be joined by defending Carolina 500 champion David Pearson, who posted 134.068 in his Mercury.

In the third row will be Bobby Allison, 133.349, and Hershel McGriff, 133.404.

Rounding out the top ten: Donnie Allison, 133.035 and Lennie Pond 132.166 in the fourth row. And Darrell Waltrip, 132.023 and Benny Parsons, 131.166 in the fifth row.

Twenty cars qualified Friday and 20 more will qualify today.

The race has been reduced to 450 miles in compliance with cutbacks requested by the Federal Energy Office.

Off The Water Boating Notes

By JACK WOLISTON

NEW YORK (UPI) — From the ditty bag:

—Alcort Division of AMF, Inc., has announced plans for a new 16-foot family sailboat which will be in production in June. Alcort is the originator of the Sunfish, Sailfish and other off-the-beach board boats and small sailboats. The company says the new boat "is designed to fill the sailing family's needs for a fast, comfortable, easily trailered and stable boat." The 16-footer has a 5-foot, 9-inch beam, will carry 140 square feet of sail, main and jib.

—Johnson Outboards is offering without charge a fully illustrated 16-page booklet entitled, "More Fun Per Gallon: A Guide to Fuel Conservation With An Outboard Powered Boat." Among suggestions offered in the booklet are boat pools (like car pools), water skiing doubles, efficient trailering and launching practices and periodic equipment and maintenance checks as a means of providing "more fun per gallon."

—The North American Yacht Racing Union, at its annual meeting at the recent National Boat Show, named George R. Hinman as recipient of the Nathanael G. Herreshoff Trophy "for outstanding contributions to the sport of yachting." Hinman, an intercollegiate skipper at Harvard, is now general manager of the Mariner Syndicate, one of the 12-meter groups vying for the honor of defending the America's Cup this summer.

—K Enterprises of Menlo Park, Calif., has introduced a folding boat, the Porta-Bote, that is nine feet long and opens up to a beamy 53 inches. The manufacturer says the craft is unsinkable, weighs only 45 pounds, will hold a family of four and floats in only four inches of water. Designed along conventional dory lines, it is offered in motor and sailboat versions.

— New highly reflective materials containing millions of tiny glass beads have been developed by the 3m Company specifically for use on maritime lifesaving equipment to aid nighttime search and rescue operations at sea. Similar to material now used on reflective license plates and traffic signs, the new product will not crack, blister or break, according to the company, and can expand and contract without losing its adhesiveness when used on inflatable equipment.

—The ninth annual Unlimited Hydroplane awards banquet will be held Feb. 22 at Miami's Marriott Hotel as part of the American Power Boat Association council's winter meeting there.

—The world championship for International 5.5-meter yachts, sailed recently off Sydney, Australia, was won by Norman Booth of Australia. In the deciding sixth race of the championship, the 57-year-old Booth defeated Crown Prince Harald of Norway by 2 minutes and 40 seconds. Bobby Symonette of Nassau, Bahmas, finished third, 11 seconds behind Prince Harald.

WINS BASS PRIZE

HEMPHILL, Tex. (AP) — Hulon Walker, a 37-year-old nursing home superintendent from Vidor, Tex., won the second annual invitational fish-off in the national Bass Buster Club sponsored by Evinrude Motors. Walker boated 30 pounds three and a half ounces of largemouth bass in the two-day event held on Toledo Bend Reservoir here.

Walker beat runnerup Howard Cotton of Charleston Heights, S.C.

Unit Donated By DuPont

Microscope Given

WASHINGTON, D.C.,—In a ceremony here recently, the Du Pont Company donated the Prototype "Stereoscan" Cambridge Scanning Electron Microscope to the Medical Museum of the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology. This instrument, based on research carried out at Cambridge University, was developed and commercialized by Cambridge Scientific Instruments, Ltd., in 1963. It was delivered to the Du Pont Fiber Surface Research Section, Kinston, N.C., in 1965, for use in textile fiber research.

The "Steroscan", which magnifies up to 30,000 times, was chosen for use because of its great depth of focus and ability to impart a lifelike realism to minute objects. It was used by Du Pont to develop a better understanding of the structural features of fibers and fabrics affecting character and performance, with resulting benefits to the textile industry and the consumer in improved quality and properties of textile products.

Two Du Pont scientists, Dr. Harry Billica, who was instrumental in obtaining the "Stereoscan", and Dr. Robert Van Veld, who applied it in fibers research, presented the instrument to Col. James L. Hansen, director of AFIP. Dr. Billica described the development of this microscope and its role in textile fiber research and problem solving studies.

The AFIP's Medical Museum has the world's largest collection of microscopes, along with exhibits in pathology, historical advancements and current events in medicin. Acccording to the museum's curator, Col. J. E. Henderson, the "Stereoscan" will be featured as the museum's "Display of the Month"

THE WAY WE WERE—Barbra Streisand, successful radio producer-writer, and Robert Redford, a drunken Navy officer, have an affair and decide to marry. She recalls that, in college in 1937, Redford was a popular athlete and she an unattractive defender of radical causes. They were attracted to each other despite their many differences. (PG) Sunday through Tuesday.

PLAZA CINEMA

ROBIN HOOD—This animated version of the Robin Hood legend has Robin Hood rescuing Friar Tuck and the local populace from jail as well as marrying Maid Marian in the end. Robin steals the tax money from the king and gives it to the poor. Voices of Brian Bedford, Peter Ustinov, Terry-Thomas, Phil Harris, Andy Devine and Roger Miller. (G) Sunday through Tuesday.

SERPICO—The true story of New York policeman Frank Serpico (played by Al Pacino) begins with his being shot in the face during a drug arrest. As he struggles to survive, his career is reviewed in flashback. MARCEL MARCEAU . . . the world renowned pantomimist, is appearing on stage at Wright Auditorium on Wednesday, March 6 at 8:15 p.m. This is another of the 1973-74 ECU Artists Series.

Famed Pantomimist At ECU Wednesday Night

Marcel Marceau . . . world's greatest living pantomimist, will perform in Wright Auditorium Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. This is part of the East Carolina University Artists Series.

Without the aid of props, scenery or the spoken word, Marceau is acknowledged to have the ability to hold audiences all over the world captivated for two and a half hours at a time. He claims that he first felt the urge to pursue pantomimic at the age of five, when his mother took him to see his first Charlie Chaplin movie.

Marceau has spent many hours studying the mime techniques of the greatest of the silent film era in the United State, Buster Keaton, Harry Langdon, Stan Laurel, Oliver Hardy, Danny Kaye and the Marx Brothers.

In 1947, Marceau created his alter-ego "Bip", with his white painted face, his striped pull-over, his tight trousers, and his battered hat topped with a trembling flower. Bip, according to Marceau is the silent witness of the lives of all men, stuggling against one handicap or another, with joys and sorrows as their daily companions.

Tickets for Marceau are available at the East Carolina University Central Ticket Office for $4.00. This special performance is expected to be a sell out, so in order to assure a seat, please purchase tickets early.

Valerie Harper In Broadway Opening

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Valerie Harper is temporarily changing from Rhoda Morgenstern, TV's all-American Jewish bachelor girl, to Sally Kramer, Jewish stage wife in domestic crisis.

The casting might suggest that the actress is succumbing to an ethnic role rut. Nonsense, comes the swift reply.

"They're not at all alike — Rhoda is from the Bronx, Sally from the lower East Side. And when I'm away from Rhoda, I don't do anything like Rhoda. My talk has a flavor of New York, but certainly not the Bronx."

Having settled that to her own satisfaction, the lady of dark tresses and green eyes recalls a public life that began with an appearance as a snowflake at age 5 in an interschool pageant and crested through four seasons as the breezy chum on Mary Tyler Moore's network serial.

Miss Harper vanishes in early March from that show, to resurface in mid-September in her own CBS situation-comedy, naturally entitled "Rhoda."

During the interim, she comes to Broadway as Sally Kramer in "Thieves," a marital caprice by Herb Gardner, best remembered for "A Thousand Clowns." Directed by Michael Bennett and costarring Richard Mulligan, the production opens March 21 at the Broadhurst.

"My manager set this up for a change of pace during the TV hiatus," Miss Harper explains. "Now I love the play so much I already worry about leaving in June." The TV cameras start taping in July.

Before becoming a video personality who draws a lot of fan mail but who doesn't "think a lot about my image," Miss Harper scored a string of stage credits.

"I don't expect any problems in terms of being heard," is her answer to the difference between performing in a mike-studded studio and projecting in a large auditorium.

After the usual apprentice tribulations of work as a telephone canvasser and hat-check girl, she progressed on the now-dimming Great White Way from three musicals, "Take Me Along," "Wildcat" and "Subways Are for Sleeping" into the improvisations of "Story Theater" and the dramatic rigors of "Something Different."

The Harper dream was originally of ballerina fame.

"I always used to dance around the house," Valerie recalls from the period of recurrent family travel. She was born in Suffern, N.Y., a suburb of the metropolis. Her father, Howard Harper, was a sales supervisor for an electrical supply firm.

The family was Catholic and Miss Harper went to parochial schools. She says she's no longer as enthusastic about religion.

By age 6 she was in dancing school. While still in high school in Jersey City, where her parents, older sister and younger brother finally settled, Valerie joined the corps de ballet at Radio City Music Hall.

"I don't want to say I'm moody, though I used to be," Miss Harper says. "I think everybody passes through moodiness. For me it was like a late adolescence. I danced through my teens. I never dated. No proms. Nothing."

On Friday nights at the movies with girl friends she tried cigarettes. She doesn't smoke now or drink.

During her first Broadway chorus job, a friend suggested drama lessons "and that opened up a whole area I realized I wanted to get into."

"The fun of being an actor is you can be someone else without being insane," she says.

"I'd like to do a lot of different things, but I really got lucky with Rhoda." The role that changed her life resulted from a routine audition call.

"It has meant working steadily instead of scrabbling around. Rejection is a usual part of this business. Steady work has got to do something to the psyche. I find myself growing in self-esteem and strength."

Her husband of nine years, actor-writer Dick Schaal, "says I'm happier, freer, calmer now than I've ever been in our life together. I thought it was advancing years at first, but it's being able to act."

Miss Harper doesn't claim to have yet attained the ninth circle of temperamental Nirvana, however — "The game is far from over." Questions about age stir instant edginess, and she's highly protective about the feminist cause.

"I'm not an activist — I'm sitting with you, aren't I?" she replies when women's lib comes up in the conversation. Asked about year of birth, she fends with: "You wouldn't ask me that if I was a man." Told that would probably be unnecessary because the date would already be on public record, she says: "I don't believe that." An educated guess, based on cross-reference fragments, puts her at about 36.

As for emancipation: "Sisterhood is getting more powerful. I hope brotherhood is, too. We should all get back to humanhood, that's the most important. No, no, that's not philosophy. You asked, I answered, that's all. If you want shorter answers, ask shorter questions."

A vast, undefined range of things bothers her, summed up with, "I don't like to be bored." She doesn't mind that "there are millions out there who never watch television. I never did until I was on it."

Getting back to Rhoda, Miss Harper feels that the role generated such wide audience responsiveness because "there are a lot of people, men, too, that live single and are happy. It's not like, 'I'm not married and I must die, my life is over.' That's the big message and you're not banged over the head with it."

As for any message of her own to fans, "I can't give anyone advice, they can write to Dear Abby. I know what works for me, and that is to get to like yourself."

Jazz Of Jelly Roll Re-Emerges

By MARY CAMPBELL
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Bob Greene, 50, is a happy man. He put together a band which sounds like Jelly Roll Morton's band of 1928 for the last Newport Jazz Festival. Lincoln Center's Great Performers Series just hired them for a concert, which was recorded for a live LP to be out in April. Greene feels like Morton's name is back where it should be — in big type.

Greene heard Morton's music first in 1946, five years after Morton was dead, and he put those records next to his piano and tried to see if he, too, could treat a piano like a whole jazz band. Greene wrote for all three TV networks and the Voice of America and taught writing at Columbia University. He went to New Orleans sometimes every month, where the musicians would let him sit in or even record with them. Now his hobby has taken over and he reckons he has gone from an amateur to a professional musician.

Jelly Roll Morton was always a controversial person. He had worshipping fans and also detractors who said his role in jazz was blown up too big and his claims weren't all true.

Greene is all on Morton's side. He says, "Jelly sold his tunes outright. He thought he would live forever and he would write a tune every day. He was a Paul Bunyan of music. He never got any royalties. He has two sisters; they never see a thing.

"Jelly wrote 'King Porter Stomp.' In 1937 the Goodman band had been flopping all over the place. Finally it plays in the Paladium in Los Angeles. Fletcher Henderson made an arrangement, probably from Jelly's record of it, using the same riffs, same everything. Goodman plays it and gets a hit; it becomes one of his killer dillers.

"In 1926, the 'Wolverine Blues' had just been published. Outside the store in Chicago was a sign, '"Wolverine Blues" sold here.' There was a guy playing piano. Jelly came by and said, 'Move over. Here's how it goes, folks.' The story is that traffic stopped.

"He said he invented jazz in 1902, with his riffs and breaks, as the man who took ragtime and made it hot. He was a great egotist. He was a sport. He hustled pool and used to carry thousands, he said, in case he ran into a gambler. He went with a gambling, sporting, show business crowd. He wasn't a drinker or a woman's man, particularly.

"Milt Hinton says he could back up everything he said. He is the only big-time New Orleans musician in Chicago who never had a steady gig. He wanted a piece of any place he was playing in. It was his Achilles heel. He lived in Chicago on immediate sales, things like 'Jelly Roll Blues.' Most critics say the finest New Orleans jazz ever put on records was his from 1926 to 1930 on Victor. I think it's wonderful that his old company, RCA, recorded this concert.

"He was born in 1885 in New Orleans. His name was Ferdinand Joseph La Menthe and his family was Catholic, Creole — French, Spanish, black. He began to play in the red light district, where he got his nickname, when he was 14 and his mother turned him out of the house. She didn't want him to associate with his sisters. He later went into vaudeville on the Keith circuit. He was so fair he had to use blackface.

International Chorus Festival Set In April

NEW YORK (AP) — Five hundred young singers from 12 university choruses will participate in the fourth Lincoln Center International Choral Festival beginning April 18.

The 11 foreign choruses, from 11 countries, will tour 100 colleges in 23 states before joining a special United States chorus for concerts in Avery Fisher Hall in New York and Kennedy Center in Washington.

The participating choruses include: Innsbruck University Choir, Austria; University of Paraiba Chorus, Joao Pessoa, Brazil; Chorus of the Industrial University of Santander, Bucaramanga, Colombia; Kodaly Choir of the Debrecen Music Academy, Hungary; Doshisha University Glee Club, Kyoto, Japan;

University of Liberia Choir, Monrovia, Liberia; Amboarampeo Choir of the University of Tananarive, Malagasy Republic; University of the Philippines Concert Chorus, Quezon City, Philippines; Academic Chorus of the Gdansk Medical Academy, Poland; Lund University Chorus, Sweden; Ivan Goran Kovacic Academic Chorus of Zagreb University, Yugoslavia. The U.S. chorus comes from 10 universities and is directed by Thomas Hilbish of the University of Michigan.

Previous festivals were held in 1965, 1969 and 1972.

Book News

By MARY N. HESS

Long before space travel was possible, people wondered about the mysterious moon. In the picture book anthology Moon Stories, William Wiesner retells three stories from different cultures that offer amusing and original answers to age-old questions about the moon. "Star Cookies", from India via Czechoslovakia, tells how the Sun was banished for stuffing himself with the North Wind's star-shaped cookies and the Moon rewarded for giving half of her share to adorn her mother, the Sky. "The Tidy King" is a Persian tale about a foolish monarch who climbs a tower of boxes in an attempt to wash the smudges off the moon. "The Elephant on the Moon" is an English tale about a conceited English astronomer, Doctor Pompus Bombastus, who proudly announces that he has indeed seen an "Elephant on the Moon". Amusingly, it turns out to be the astronomer's assistant's mouse trapped behind the telescope lens.

A delightful I Can Read Book for beginning readers is Piggle by Crosby Bonsall. Homer is a little boy who is looking for someone to play with. Finally, Pig agrees to play Piggle with him, a game which Pig says he knows how to play. "Wiggle, giggle, sniggle, and figgle," says Homer, playing Piggle, and the four girls join in by simply reciting their names: "Lolly, Molly, Polly, Dolly." Then it's "sunny, runny, funny, bunny" from Rabbit. But Pig, who started it all, breaks up the game with "I get it! Plump, clever, rosy, sweet, clean Pig."

For the older readers and animal lovers, Wild Horse Running by Sam Savitt is the story of a gray mustang, Cloud, and his battle for survival in a presentday world that is seemingly bent on his destruction. Snakebites, attacks by hungry predators, and even death for a foal who is unable to keep up with the herd are among the hazards of the mustang's free, wild life. Worst of all, however, is the danger of being captured by man. Ruthless men force Cloud to the rodeo, but when the chance to escape presents itself, Cloud takes it. Eventually Cloud's trail crosses that of an unhappy boy who has come West to live on his grandfather's ranch. Their meeting changes both their lives. This action-filled story is based on fact. It is set in the Pryor Mountains in Montana where there has been a struggle to keep the wild horses running free.

Book Reviews

GETTYSBURG: The Final Fury. By Bruce Catton. Doubleday. 114 Pages. $8.95.

"It had begun as an almost accidental collision between two armies, it had continued because sheer force of circumstances made it impossible to break it off, and it was actually fought for possession of control over the future of America."

The collision Bruce Catton is talking about was the violent battle which took place on the first three days of July 1863 at Gettysburg. A collision so great that when it was done the Confederates had lost more than 20,000 men and the Federal side some 23,000 in that now so long ago Civil War.

The forces which drove these two great armies into their terrible confrontation are carefully described and interestingly detailed by Catton, known for such Civil War books as "A Stillness at Appomattox" and "Terrible Swift Sword."

Catton writes in a terse, lucid prose that ably sets forth the facts behind those dreadful three days in July while avoiding the dry-as-dust treatment that dulls so many books dealing with history. In his writing, the men who fought at Gettysburg — Generals Lee and Meade among them — come vividly alive. What happened at Gettysburg took place a long time ago, and yet, with Catton telling the old story over again, it seems as if it happened only yesterday.

DE GAULLE. By Brian Crozier. Scribner's. 726 Pages. $12.50.

Charles de Gaulle was certainly one of the great men of the 20th century and one of the great Frenchmen within a considerably longer period. He found his spot in history when his country was crushed by a defeat for which his voice had given one of the few clear warnings, and he retired leaving France, largely through his efforts, an important though no longer a major power.

When De Gaulle welded the external — and later internal — Free French forces of resistance after the Nazis had beaten his country, France had become a pretty rusty sword which no strong hand had been able to grasp. Granting the necessity of Allied victory for the success of his seemingly impossible aims, his incredible will and daring intelligence also were indispensable. But despite his achievements, Frenchmen today still seem divided as to his greatness: they either idolize or condemn him, with little in between. Perhaps it is best that a massive study of him should be made by a foreigner, Brian Crozier, a Briton.

Crozier's De Gaulle may not be brilliantly written, but it is certainly thorough and informed, with penetrating observation of his French contemporaries, both friendly and hostile.

The qualities which served France best in its bleakest hour were De Gaulle's political acumen and, held within reality, invincible will. Leading from weakness, he did not find it easy to stand up to such as Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt; yet De Gaulle did it repeatedly and successfully. Present and future statesmen can learn much from Crozier's book.

Ready Exhibition Of Impressionists

A world "made of sunshine" is how one critic described the American Impressionist Exhibition due to open Sunday, March 10, at the North Carolina Museum of Art.

The exhibition is one of the most important presented by the museum.

Moussa M. Domit, museum acting director who organized the show, began work on it while a curator at the National Gallery in Washington before coming here. The exhibition opened at the National Gallery last summer and has been seen since at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York and the Cincinnati Art Museum.

The show includes about 70 works by 20 painters and will be on view through April 29.

A series of events are planned around the opening, including a preview reception for members of the General Assembly on March 7; a preview reception for members of the North Carolina Art Society on March 8; and a lecture by Domit on American Impressionism at 3 p.m. Friday, March 8. The exhibition will be open to the public from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday with a reception from 4 to 5 p.m.

One critic has written of how the exhibition "recalls the sensibility of refinement and gentility that dominated American culture at the turn of the century."

Still another has noted favorably Domit's intent in producting the show by writing, "Mr. Domit, with a rare flourish of old-fashioned American optimism, which seems appropriate to the cheerful appearance of the show, declares in the catalog introduction that the purpose of the exhibition is to 'demonstrate that the American Impressionists were first-rate painters; that, though their Impressionism obviously derived from the French style, it is not merely imitative; and that, though the style was new to the American scene, it still owed much to traditions of American painting and to the native environment.' "

The selection of works in the exhibition represents the most familiar American Impressionists—Mary Cassat, William Merritt Chase, Frank Weston Benson, John Singer Sargent and Charles Tarbell—as well as some of the lesser-known artists. In some cases the artists were not primarily Impressionists, but their work showed its influence.

The period covered is from the 1880s when the Americans studying in Paris were most affected by the style through its most vital periods in the 1890s and 1900s.

Summing up American Impressionist painting, Domit said in his catalog introduction, "At its best, it emphasized the enduring optimism and vision that sees things as bright and beautiful—characteristics of all Impressionist painting.

"The movement greatly reinforced and far-reaching impact of Impressionistic concerns on American art and artists and helped make these concerns part of the general artistic consciousness."

The catalog containing eight color plates and 73 black-and-white reproductions will be on sale in the Museum Store.

Tracing Your Civil War Ancestor

by Bertram H. Groene

A former East Carolina University professor has written a step-by-step guide that shows how to follow the military history of a Civil War soldier. Dr. Groene tells how the amateur can use the many existing war archives to turn family legends into facts. He shows how to establish histories for inscribed weapons, photos, and other war relics. A must for collectors, antique dealers, historians, genealogists — but most of all — for the layman. $5.95

Government Has Caused The Crisis

FUQUAY-VARINA, N.C. (AP) — The president of Carolina Power & Light Co. has warned against giving the federal government too much power to deal with the energy crisis.

Shearon Harris said the crisis was largely caused by uncoordinated action and inaction already by the federal government.

He told a Fuquay-Varina civic group Friday night that federal policies kept energy costs artifically low and thus discouraged conservation and development of domestic resources.

Harris' company, CP&L, currently has several rate increases pending before regulatory agencies in North Carolina and South Carolina.

He said the energy crisis can be overcome "if we are willing to pay the price."

Harris, chairman of the executive advisory committee of the Federal Power Commission's national power survey, suggested four steps toward developing domestic self retiance for energy:

—Continuation of conservation measures.

—Development of more domestic oil and natural gas resources.

—Increased use of electricity produced from nuclear or coal-burning plants, instead of continuing an over-reliance on petroleum.

—And, development of new sources of energy, such as solar power, although most of these are at least 20 years in the future.

Harris said it would be unwise ever again to relay too much on imported petroleum to meet the nation's energy needs.

Business Notes

NAMED LEADER

James A. Manning, Southwestern Life Insurance Co. representative in Bethel, was named Leader of the Month for January in his company's Rocky Mount territory.

Southwestern Life operates in 35 states plus the District of Columbia and has over $6 billion of insurance in force on the lives of its policyholders.

QUARTERLY DIVIDEND

The board of directors of Franklin Life Insurance Co., Springfield, Ill., declared a quarterly dividend of 15 cents per share, payable Feb. 1 to stockholders of record Feb. 1.

George H. Hatmaker, president, reported that sales of Franklin Life and its wholly-owned subsidiary, the Franklin United Life Insurance Co. of New York, totaled $1,781,699,105, an increase over the previous year of $268,196,167 or 17.7 per cent.

The company's insurance in force passed the $9 billion mark, totaling $9,074,918,140 at year end, an increase during the 12 months of $526,222,365.

SAW NEW LINE

Troy Riddle, president of Riddle Brothers of Greenville, was one of 600 southeastern air conditioning dealers who previewed a new Carrier line of residential air conditioners recently in Atlanta, Ga.

The meeting was one of nine Carrier is conducting around the nation to acquaint its 4,500 franchised dealers with new products and business developments within the industry.

EMPLOYEES HONORED

Mrs. LaRue J. Little and Miss Ethel G. Barnhill, local employees of Carolina Telephone and Telegraph Co., recently received emblems in recognition of 25 and 20 years service, respectively, with the company.

Carolina Telephone reported that the emblems are appropriately designed for men and women, with varying arrangements of rubies, emeralds and diamonds signifying the length of service.

OFFICE OPENED

Stuart Buchanan, who announced recently the opening of an independent insurance agency, reported that as of Monday morning, the new agency will have offices at 915 Dickinson Avenue. Buchanan said that the new office will have an entrance on Tenth Street next to Sherwin-Williams Co.

Buchanan served for seven years as Master of Crown Point Masonic Lodge. A past president of the Pitt County Shrine Club, he is currently secretary. The agent is a member of Hooker Memorial Christian Church.

NEW APPOINTMENTS

Merrill Lynch and Co., Inc. announced that it has proposed two new directors for its board and also nominated a new president for the holding company's principal operating subsidiary, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc.

New Board members named are former U. S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Roger E. Birk, who is currently vice president and director of operations for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith.

Birk has also been named to become president and chief administrative officer of the subsidiary on April 25.

ASSISTANT MANAGER

Carl Smith, a 1968 graduate of South Ayden High School and a 1972 graduate of North Carolina Central University in Durham, has accepted the position of assistant manager at the F. W. Woolworth Co. located in St. Thomas, Virgin Islands.

Before assuming his new position, Smith served as assistant manager for branches of the company in Brooklyn and New Bronx, N.Y. He is the son of Mrs. Irene Mewborn Smith of Grifton.

NEW FIRM

Two former Greenville residents, Anne Mauney and Olivia B. Rogers, have recently formed an interior design firm, Inter Design Group, Inc., located in Panama City, Fla.

Miss Mauney, NSID, is a graduate of East Carolina University and is the daughter of Mrs. Eva Mauney, of 920 E. 14th St. Mrs. Rogers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Bland, of 14th Street Extension.

ELECTED VICE PRESIDENTS

Bank of North Carolina N.A. announced that L. Arnold Taylor and Raymond F. Van De Weghe have been elected senior vice presidents in charge of system-wide personnel and finance, respectively.

Taylor joins the Jacksonville firm from Union Planters National Bank in Memphis where he served as senior vice president and manager of the Personnel Division.

Van De weghe most recently served as vice president at First National Bank of Chicago where he was responsible for accounting, corporate financial reports, mergers and acquisitions.

ON EXHIBITORS LIST

Fenner Allen and Sons of Winterville is included in the list of exhibitors who entered hogs in the 1974 Production Tested Barrow Contest of the National Barrow Show, scheduled for Sept. 9, 10, and 11 in Austin, Minn.

The Fenner Allen and Sons barrow will be consigned to the St. Ansgar, Iowa, test station, it was announced, and the local exhibitors will be responsible for transporting the barrow to the test station on May 9 and 10.

Barrows which complete the test and which qualify for the live show will be divided into weight classes within their breed. Following the live show, the barrows will be slaughtered and appraised in a production-related carcass contest.

GROUNDBREAKING SET

Carolina Steel Corp. announced that it will break ground early this month in Wilson for its seventh steel service center.

John Robinson, vice president—steel service centers, said that the 39,000 square-foot building will be on a 15-acre tract in Wilco Industrial Park. The new center will cover the area east of Raleigh including the cities of Greenville, Washington, Kinston, Goldsboro, Rocky Mount, Tarboro, Wilmington, and Elizabeth City.

GAINS REPORTED

Tandy Corp., parent of the Radio Shack consumer electronics chain, reported a 24 per cent gain in sales, 21 per cent gain in net income, and 24 per cent gain in earnings per share from continuing operations for the six months ended Dec. 31.

For the six months ended Dec. 31, Tandy reported net sales of $318,588,085 with a net of $15,383,223 or $1.43 per share on continuing operations. Net income was $13,043,223 after the loss resulting from the discontinuance of the Mitchells Inc. operation in North Texas.

During the same period last year net sales were $256,154,253 with a net of $12,701,229 or $1.15 per share on continuing operations. Net income was $12,588,847 after restatement for loss on discontinued operations, or $1.14 per share.

PROFIT REPORTED

Little Mint Inc., fast food restaurant chain, announced a $5,297 profit for the six-month period ending Dec. 31 of 1973. For the same period in 1972, the Greenville based company reported a loss of $38,171.

A company spokesman attributed the financial turnabout to better supervision of Little Mint stores and a closer control of labor and food costs.

Sales and operating revenue for the period was $1,652,107. Little Mint's 39 units are located in 32 cities in North Carolina and South Carolina.

Hoorah For Him

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — If [illegible] with a fund drive to open next month to raise the rest.

Compressed onto 14 acres, the New Orleans zoo will expand to 60 acres, with work beginning this spring.

At some zoos, a new facility will simply improve on one that already ranks high. The Memphis zoo, for instance. Why change? Director Joel Wallach said it's to keep people coming.

"Americans are a pretty sophisticated bunch of people now," said Wallach. "They expect more than an aquarium with a Gila monster, or an iron-barred cage with a lion in it."

animals could cheer, zookeeper John A. Moore would draw a big hoorah every time he walked through what used to rank as the worst zoo in the nation.

Two years ago, federal officials ranked it as a sort of beasts' purgatory, the worst of 370 major public and private zoos.

It's no dazzling exhibit now but it is cleaner, more spacious, the inmates look well fed and alert — and $5 million worth of expansion and improvement is on the boards.

The great zoo reform here is just one of a number of zoo improvements across the South to make them more attractive to people and less dreary for creatures in captivity.

Moore, the first professional zoo director here, eliminated his immediate overcrowding problem by selling 50 per cent of the creatures to other zoos.

He cracked down on cleaning and feeding practices.

"At this point, though we have old facilities, they are clean and our standards of animal husbandry are comparable with any other zoo in the country," he said.

City voters approved a new tax of one-fifth of one mill, earmarked for zoo capital improvements. Moore said $3 million is nailed down for the new

Planting A Garden Can Cut Food Cost

By EARL ARONSON

GARDENVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Would you plant and work a small garden this spring if someone assured you that with no great effort you could save at least $200 in food costs?

It can be done, with a reasonable amount of diligence. The garden would feed a family of four and if the four were able-bodied and willing, the work would be easy, healthful and rewarding.

This garden designed by experts at the National Garden Bureau headquartered in this aptly-named community is 12 feet wide by 25 feet deep. If you have extra-large feet or are especially awkward, make it a bit longer to provide more space between rows.

The garden features 18 varieties of vegetables capable of yielding a continuous supply of fresh vegetables from April to December in many areas. There will be enough left over for canning, freezing and storing in a cool, dry basement to provide food for nongardening months.

Here are the varieties:

Cucumbers, six plants on a trellis; tomatoes, nine plants staked; zucchini squash, five plants; bell peppers, nine plants; cabbage, two plantings; lettuce, two plantings; beans, two plantings; chard; beets, two plantings; carrots, two plantings; spinach, two plantings; radish, two plantings; parsley, green onions, leeks, broccoli followed by cauliflower; peas followed by brussels sprouts.

The cucmbers, tomatoes, zucchini squash, peppers, cabbage peas or brussels sprouts require two feet width each; lettuce, chard and carrots 1½ feet each, and the others one foot each.

First vegetables to be harvested in this garden are radish and spinach, which may be sown as soon as the ground can be worked in spring. Lettuce, beets, chard, peas and green onions follow.

Bush beans, broccoli, cucumbers, zucchini squash, cabbage, tomatoes, peppers, parsley and carrots continue the harvest through summer. Cauliflower, brussels sprouts, leeks and second plantings of cabbage, lettuce, beets, radish, spinach and carrots prolong the harvest through fall. Spinach, leeks and brussels sprouts may be harvested to wintertime.

Tomatoes and brussels sprouts represent the biggest savings. As a fall and winter crop, brussels sprouts mature at a time when store prices for fresh vegetables are high. They are frost hardy and produce into December in much of this country.

Now about that $200 saving: Total value produced by the garden, according to the National Garden Bureau's Director Derek Fell, is $240. It might vary a little where you live. From the $240 deduct $9.30, the cost of seeds.

"If the garden needs fertilizer, soil conditioner or pest controls these might add an additional $15 to the costs," Fell estimated. If you are an organic gardener it would be less since you wouldn't use chemicals.

"The garden can be dug and managed with a spade, rake and trowel, which most home owners already possess; and if a gardener prefers to have his plot rototilled ($5) or buy some of his vegetables as plants rather than seeds (about $10) you still save $200. Write off labor as healthy exercise," Fell encourages.

There are other benefits. These are better-flavored vegetables (your own handiwork always makes them taste better), and have higher nutritional value than anything you can buy in the market, because they are fresher.

And Fell says it's a great reason "to stay home during the energy crisis and keep productive."

Double cropping, of course, is the secret of a profitable garden. That means getting two plantings to each garden row, one to mature in summer, the other in fall. This requires planting as early as possible in spring so the crop matures before really hot weather sets in, and permits harvest and space for another planting to ripen before cold weather sets in.

Peas bear early and the space may be dug over and replanted with another row of broccoli, cauliflower or brussels sprouts to mature in fall.

Corn matures in mid-summer generally but takes a lot of space. Other vegetables require a long growing season to mature properly. These include pumpkins, winter squash, salsify and parsnips. So you can't double-crop readily.

Sen. Scott's Appeal

person, recalls hearing these same old dog-eared excuses before. At the public hearing last week, he pointed out that those who tried to build the medical schools at Duke, Bowman Gray and UNC caught the same flak. Dr. Baker said: "If we had listened to all the negative songs of it can't be done, we would have no medical schools today." I expect he's right.

Well, from all I have said up to this point, you would have thought that when I got to Raleigh last month I would have supported the Huskins-Garrison bill. I did. But the Board of Governors raised a red flag, saying it would dilute their authority and—heaven forbid—jeopardize the accreditation of the UNC med school. Things got awfully sticky. For the good of all, we needed to find some common ground if at all possible.

We had conferences. Several of them. You know, they say a conference is the confusion of one person multiplied by the number of persons present. I won't argue with that definition. In some of our discussions, we met ourselves coming back. And some of the people involved were about as uncompromising as a policeman's night stick. It became pretty obvious that expecting one side to come around to the other's view was like expecting apples from a sycamore tree.

What then? We couldn't take a chance of losing the whole ball game. We had to find some way to do what we are sent up here to do, and that is, meet the public need. We had to come up with something both sides could live with.

I think we did. Chairman Stewart introduced the compromise bill.

It will get the job done, maybe not as fast as some of us would want, but it will get the job done just the same. And it does not upset the plan of salvation so far as the Board of Governors is concerned.

This is a compromise bill, pure and simple. I ask that you support it, and that we send it out of here in the form of a committee substitute. It contains amendments which Mr. Huskins and Senator Garrison have agreed to. It is not Carl Stewart's bill or Ralph Scott's bill or anybody else's bill. It ought to be adopted as a committee substitute.

They say a compromise is a deal two people get that neither one wanted. I won't go into that except to say that most of the laws on the books of this State and this country got there as a result of compromise. I'd go one step further and say that the best and most important laws on our books are the result of compromise. As a matter of fact, the bill creating the Board of Governors was a compromise bill.

There are some who say that we had better hold the Board of Governors to a certain date for building the med school, because if we don't, they might never do anything. I don't think we need to worry about that. The handwriting is on the wall about as plain as you can make it. They're not going to pollute the well, because they may want to drink from it. I think they realize that it doesn't do any good to sit up and take notice if you just keep on sitting.

I'm satisfied the Board of Governors will enlarge their vision and find some "room in the inn." As somebody once said: "When there is room in the heart there is room in the house."

Nobody is arguing with the Board of Governors' plan which calls for creating a network of Area Health Education Centers, or AHEC's as they are called. This makes sense, just like a medical school of the East makes sense. No conflict there.

My friends, I am much afraid that if we don't get behind the compromise bill we could go away from here empty handed. If we do that everybody will be the loser—most of all, the people of North Carolina.

We can't allow that to happen. It is our clear duty to do something in the field of medical education. It's our job. As a matter of fact, the time may be approaching when helath services as such should be concentrated in a department of State government—the Department of Human Resources. For too long the department has been limited to such aspects of public health as sanitation inspections, figures on births and deaths, and what have you. We are now in a new ball game. The people want a more comprehensive program.

To quote from the recent report of the Council on State Goals and Policy: "State government should assume the responsibility, in conjunction with medical schools and professional societies, for determining where and how State tax dollars will be used to expand the number of medical residencies and internships offered and to insure that they are filled." Notice that the report says this should be the responsibility of "State government" in the everyday sense of the word, not agencies concerned strictly with education.

I hope both sides in the ECU question will see their way clear to support this compromise measure. I believe they can do it and still hold their heads high.

Knowing where you are going is more important than getting there fast. Some people mistake activity for achievement.

Horatio Alger Couldn't Improve On John Johnson

By JOHN LESAR

CHICAGO (UPI) — In 1933, teen-aged John H. Johnson came to Chicago from Arkansas City, Ark., with his widowed mother to see the Century of Progress World's Fair.

They never left. The trip marked the first of a series of decisions that would make Johnson one of the nation's wealthiest men.

His mother took a job as a maid and he attended high school on the city's South Side. For two years the family was on welfare, but they pulled through the rough depression years and Johnson went on to attend the University of Chicago and Northwestern University.

At the ge of 19, Johnson took a $25-a-week job as an office boy for Supreme Insurance Co., then the largest black owned company of its kind.

Today, Johnson, 55, still has a job with Supreme. He is the company's board chairman and its largest stockholder. But his primary occupation is directing the operations of Johnson Publications Inc., a publishing empire built upon an idea he had hoped would bring him "a little more money than I was making."

Black-Oriented Magazine

In 1943, while working as editor of a house organ for Supreme Insurance, Johnson prepared reports for the firm's president on news involving black people. Other persons expressed interest in the information and it was then that he decided black people needed a black-oriented magazine.

He obtained a $500 loan, secured by his mother's furniture, and began work on "Negro Digest".

Johnson used the $500 to send out 20,000 direct mail flyers seeking donations for the new magazine. He received 3,000 answers, each containing $2—enough to get the magazine, today called "Black World," started.

"I confess I never thought it would amount to a great deal," Johnson recalled in an interview. "I just wanted to make little more money than I was making."

At first, Johnson encountered difficulties in getting news stands to carry the new magazine.

Mrs. Roosevelt's article

He turned to his friends, sent them to the news stands to request the magazine, then made sure the friends went back and purchased them when they were stocked.

Johnson initially printed 5,000 copies of Negro Digest, then printed 5,000 more.

Business began to pick up and, within six to eight months, the circulation had climbed to about 50,000.

Eleanor Roosevelt turned the tide with an article written for Negro Digest entitled, "If I Were a Negro." In 30 days, the magazine's circulation skyrocketed to 150,000 copies.

"I think the key is that you can't cut off opportunities," Johnson said. "You have to respond when you see a need."

Biggest Success

In 1945, Johnson saw another need he could fill, and the end product was his biggest success —Ebony magazine.

Johnson decided that the world needed a black-oriented picture magazine, patterned after Life.

Today, Life is dead but Ebony's presses are still rolling, filling a circulation of 1.3 million copies.

Ebony is the flagship of Johnson Publications Inc.—a multimillion dollar corporation producing five major magazines.

National Ads Needed

But in 1946, Ebony was struggling for survival.

The publication was starved for national advertising and Johnson was backed into a corner.

He decided to handle the problem personally, sidestep advertising men and go directly to the top.

He selected Zenith Radio Corp., as his target, and wrote to the late Cmdr. Eugene F. McDonald, then president of Zenith, asking for an appointment. McDonald referred Johnson to the company's advertising department, then Johnson responded saying he did not want to talk about ads but about advertising policy.

The conditions were agreed to —McDonald would see Johnson and Johnson would not discuss advertising.

Autographed Article

Johnson could not have been better prepared for the confrontation.

McDonald, Johnson knew, had accompanied Adm. Robert E. Perry's North Pole expedition. Ebony had just carried an article on another member of the expedition—Mathew Henson, a black man McDonald admired.

Henson had written an autobiography, and Johnson acquired a copy and had Henson inscribe it for McDonald.

Early in the meeting with McDonald, the Commander brought up Henson's name and Johnson promptly presented the Ebony article on the black explorer.

McDonald then mentioned that he had heard Henson had written a book. Johnson presented the inscribed copy.

How-To Student

McDonald looked at the inscription, thumbed through the copy of Ebony and pronounced that he could see no reason why Zenith should not advertise in the publication. He also gave Johnson permission to use his name in talking to other advertisers.

Today, Johnson has 39 Zenith televisions in his company's plush headquarters building on South Michigan Avenue. And he has 10 in his swank, 24th floor condominium on North Michigan Avenue.

Earlier this year, Johnson was named to Zenith's board of directors.

In his early days as a student, Johnson submersed himself in "how-to" books.

"I must have read more than a dozen how-to books, trying to think my way out of poverty," he recalled. "From those books I learned that if one gives oneself completely, has a total commitment to a concept, success is possible."

Work Ethic Worked

The publisher is still looking for needs to respond to.

His latest enterprise was the acquisition of radio station WJPC in Chicago and now he confides a secret desire to own and operate a television station.

Johnson still attributes much of what he has accomplished to his mother, Mrs. Gertrude Williams, who, though in her 80s, remains active.

"She is a very determined lady, strong and positive," he said. "She believes in the work ethic and she instilled that in me. It worked for me, but I'm not foolish enough to believe it will work for everyone."

JOHN H. JOHNSON selects a book from his library in his office in Chicago. (UPI Telephoto)

Town Builds Around Rock

DOVER, Ohio (AP) — The city has planned to refurbish the city square, but no one seems to know what to do with the rock.

What rock? That's what Dover residents say. "What rock? Oh, THAT rock."

The square will have a fish pond, benches, the old city hall bell, the Ten Commandments monument, a public signboard and a new flagpole. And, one supposes, the rock.

It once reposed on the front lawn of the W. W. Scott house. Scott was a publisher here in the 19th century. The rock is ordinary sandstone common here, weathered and dark.

The local best guess as to its raison d'etre is that Scott had it brought from the battlefield at Chattanooga, Tenn., after the Civil War. There's a story he took cover behind it, and it saved his life. But the story is unconfirmed.

A wag suggests it be incorporated into the new square with an inscription: "Here lies Scott's Rock. We forget just why."

Detained Sheep Gets Its Share

LONDON (AP) — A fully grown sheep found wandering near London's Euston Station has created a host of woolly problems for police. Frank Pawlowski claims ownership of the animal and says he wants to sacrifice it to a sun god in a religious ritual. The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals says this is illegal.

While the dispute rages, the 3-year-old ewe has eaten all the roses around the police station where she is detained.

'Pueblo' Story Is Dramatized

"Pueblo," factual dramatization of seizure of the U.S. Intelligence ship, airs as "ABC Theatre" Special.

On January 23, 1968, the USS Pueblo, designated as intelligence ship, was seized by North Korean naval vessels in the Sea of Japan, and revealed to be a spy ship.

Hal Holbrook stars as Commander Lloyd Mark Bucher in a dramatic factual re-enactment of the situation surrounding the capture of the ship and the subsequent investigations in "Pueblo," a presentation on the "ABC Theatre," Thursday, March 7 (9-11p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

The opening of the screenplay states: "This story is true. It is based upon official records, eyewitness accounts and sworn testimony. All names are real. Every action is founded on fact." The special presentation, produced by Herbert Brodkin, directed by Anthony Page and written by Stanley Greenberg, uses the framework of the two Courts of Inquiry: one a Naval court, the other initiated by Congress, as the basis for the story. In the course of his testimony at these courts, Bucher describes the events of the seizure of his ship and the 11-month ordeal of the American prisoners in North Korea, which are vividly enacted by an impressive cast.

The cast of 57—in what author Greenberg describes as a "nightmare. . .Bucher sees himself in the middle of a nightmare,"—includes George Grizzard, Gary Merrill, Richard Mulligan, Ronny Cox, Mary Fickett, Andrew Duggan, James Hong, Larry Gates, Addison Powell and Barnard Hughes.

The question of whether Commander Bucher should have surrendered his ship, or should have fought until the last man died, is the problem before the courts. Naval law, of course, is very specific. . .don't give up the ship. Moral law is equally as specific. . .save human lives. Explained Greenberg, "Bucher acted in a way he felt was perfectly consistent with Naval law. He held out as long as he possibly could, under the circumstances, and then he surrendered in order to save the lives of his men. When he returned from North Korea he was shocked to discover he was considered a traitor. He will never understand what, if anything he did wrong."

The circumstances of the capture indicate that he was badly outnumbered, that he had only a few ineffective weapons with which to fight, and no indication of help on the way. In Bucher's words: "I will say that the Navy left us there, left us at sea and left us in captivity, for nearly a year. I will say that we did as well as anyone under the circumstances and better than most. . ."

HAL HOLBROOK'S electrifying performance as Commander Lloyd Mark Bucher in "Pueblo" airs again on "ABC Theatre" Thursday, March 7, 9:00 p.m. on Channels 3-W-5-12.

Tourney Fever In Carolina

Basketball fever is reaching its peak in the Carolinas and neighboring states as fans, players, and coaches await the excitement of the famed Atlantic coast Conference Basketball Tournament.

The tourney is a mystery to the rest of the nation because all the teams meet head-on for a single NCAA Regional Playoff berth. This rugged classic throws out all regular season records and statistics to pit the seven schools against each other in gladiator fashion with one winner taking all.

The ACC represents the toughest collegiate basketball league in the nation. Three of the nation's top basketball powers, North Carolina State, North Carolina, and Mary,and, will be vying against each other and four other unpredictable adversaries (Virginia, Duke, Clemson, and Wake Forest) for the coveted ACC title.

The tournament finals will be televised live from Greensboro, N.C. Saturday (March 9) at 8:30 p.m. on Channels 3N-6, 9-11.

Offer 'Heidi' For 3rd Time

A saddened, orphaned girl unexpectedly finds happiness when she visits her grandfather in the Swiss Alps during "Timex Presents: Heidi," to be colorcast for the third time Wednesday, March 6 (8-10 p.m.) Channel 6-7.

Maximilian Schell, Jean Simmons, Sir Michael Redgrave, Walter Slezak and young Jennifer Edwards (in the title role), star in the two-hour production, which was filmed on location in the Swiss Alps and in Lubeck, West Germany. Interior filming took place at Studio Hamburg in Hamburg.

Earl Hamner's adaptation of the world-famous story by Johanna Spyri focuses on all of the characters in the book, first published in Germany in 1880. Schell is Herr Sessemann, Heidi's lonely widower-uncle; Miss Simmons is Fraulein Rottenmeir, the kind housekeeper; Redgrave is Grandfather, whose embittered outlook on life is changed by Heidi's visit; Slezak portrays the understanding priest, Father Richter.

Other important roles are played by John Moulder Brown, as Peter, the enthusiastic goatherder who introduces Heidi to life on the mountains; Zuleika Robson, as Klara, the bedridden daughter of Herr Sessemann, who has refused to walk since the death of her mother; Peter van Eyck, as Dr. Reboux; Elisabeth Neumann- Viertel as Grandmother; Miriam Spoerri as Aunt Dete.

Delbert Mann (Academy Award winner for "Marty") directed the production, which took more than 18 months to complete.

IN THE ALPS — Jennifer Edwards, as Heidi, is carried up a road in the Swiss Alps by Maximilian Schell, as her uncle, in "Timex Presents: Heidi," the special based on the classic story by Johanna Spyri which will have its third colorcast on Wednesday, March 7 (8-10 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Camera Three Offers Mahler

"Camera Three" presents the compositions of the great composer Gustav Mahler in which he set to music the poems of the German romantic writer Friedrich Ruckert, in "Mahler: Songs From Ruckert" Sunday, March 3.

Three Ruckert poems, scored by Mahler, are performed by soprano Heather Harper with the CBS Chamber Orchestra conducted by Alfredo Antonini. Henry-Louis de la Grange, noted biographer of Mahler, and Faubion Bowers, author and music and literary critic, discuss the works of Ruckert and Mahler.

More Discoveries In 'Make A Wish'

The children's series, "Make a Wish," will take viewers to the open range in Oklahoma to discover how a herd of buffalo from the Bronx Zoo is faring in its natural environment, Sunday, March 3.

The Peabody Award-winning series also will go the world famous George Eastman House in Rochester, N.Y., for a graphic demonstration on the development of the camera from its conception by Leonardo da Vinci to its use by the astronauts on the moon. The wide-ranging journeys are part of the program's search into the many meanings and associations of two simple words, "train" and "shadow."

In the opening segment on "train," singer-guitarist Tom Chapin, the program host, inquires: "So why all this talk about air pollution - When we all know the train's the best solution?"

The first President of the United States to ride a train was Andrew Jackson in 1833, Chapin notes, but long before the railroad cut its way across the country, the buffalo roamed the plains in great herds.

The Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge in Cache, Okla., is a preserve for some 500 to 600 buffalo. Roger Johnson, range manager, discusses efforts being made to save the buffalo from extinction and explains how the herd came from the Bronx Zoo.

MAGIC PACT

Don't ask Bill Bixby how he does his magic tricks on "The Magician." Before the series went into production, Bill made a solemn vow to the nation's magicians that he would never divulge the secrets of the profession.

THE DIVERS of the Calypso venture beneath the Antarctic ice in search of almost unknown marine creatures on "Beneath the Frozen World", Sunday, March 3 (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on Chanels 3W-5-12. "Beneath the Frozen World" is a presentation in the award-winning series, "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau."

Cousteau In Antarctica

"There are things," Captain Jacques Cousteau notes, "which nobody has seen before!"

Captain Costeau's excitement reference is to the abundance of life discovered by him and his divers in "Beneath the Frozen World." The third of four Antarctic specials, the program will be presented on "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau," ABC News' action - adventure series to be seen on Sunday, March 3 (7:30-8:30 p.m.) on Channel 3-5-12.

Divers from the Calypso, decending to previously inaccessible sites beneath the ice of the frozen continent, with hundreds of thousands of other warm-blooded creatures which surface in order to breathe, and which can be trapped under the ice.

Such denizens of the deep include Sei whales, killer whales, elephant seals, leopard seals and crabeater sales.

The divers, hauling their equipment across ice shelves by sledge to steal holes, accomplish their descent to the previously unexplored ocean floor. Wearing cold-resistant Unisuits and utilizing self-contained underwater lights and homing transceivers, the divers are able to find their way back to the small escape hole in the ice.

Among the underwater creaters they encounter are the Weddel seal, which can dive for periods exceeding an hour, reaching incredible depths of 1,800 feet and matching or outperforming the sperm whale.

Underwater filming includes scenes of the almost unknown bottom fauna, a brilliant revelation of corals, sponges, marine worms, sea spiders, crabs and even octopi. The semi-transparent ice fish, with "antifreeze protein" instead of red blood cells or hemoglobin, is photographed for the first time underwater. Dives through icy cave-like catacombs are incredibly beautiful and extremely dangerous.

In the vast under-ice laboratory, Cousteau and his divers film and study krill, a tiny, red planktonic shrimp upon which most of the food chains of the Antarctic Ocean are based.

ONE-ROOM LIVING

Furnishing a one-room or studio apartment can be compared to making a cake. Every ingredient must be chosen and measured with care or the final product can be a dismal failure. One-room living necessitates an evaluation of basic needed furnishings and accessories and their arrangement. The owner of a larger home can always tuck a decorating error into an inconspicuous corner. The studio-dweller, must live with it, try to sell it, or give it away. Be sure that the furniture you select can serve a number of roles. Always be careful in selecting new carpet for your home or business. We have a fine selection from leading manufacturers. Game Show Adds Celebrity Feature

"Celebrity Sweepstakes," a fast-paced game show featuring six celebrity contestants, a fast-working computer, and the participation of an entire studio audience, will join the NBC Monday - Friday daytime program schedule Monday, April 1 (12:30-12:55 p.m., replacing "All Star Baffle").

Actor and TV personality Jim McKrell will be host-emcee for the new series.

"In "Celebrity Sweepstakes," all 250 members of the studio audience are provided with control panels containing six buttons, hooked into the Sweepstakes computer.

Six celebrity panelists are asked a series of general knowledge questions, and three on-stage contestants must decide which celebrity will have the correct answer.

The studio audience also "votes," and the cash payoffs to the on-stage contestants are determined by the Sweepstakes audience, through a computerized tally.

Celebrities who can't come up with correct answers must bluff their way through, usually with humorous results.

Straight betting in the early going is augmented by two variations near the end of each show — a "Home Stretch Round" and an "All or Nothing Round." Each celebrity appears on the show for one week, and the two on-stage contestants with the biggest winnings return for another day's play.

The new program has all the elements to make it a major daytime success. The game is easy to play and fun for the home viewer to follow.

In addition, the presence of celebrity panelists will add humor and entertainment value, making 'Celebrity Sweepstakes' doubly appealing to the young audience.

JOSE FERRER, famed for his stage and film portrayal of Cyrano de Bergerac, provides the voice of the swordsman-poet in "Cyrano", a new animated version of the classic tale on "ABC Afterschool Specials" Wednesday, March 6, (4:30 p.m.) on Channels 3W-5-12.

Cyrano On Mar. 6

Jose Ferrer, famed for his stage and screen portrayals of Cyrano de Bergerac, provides the voice for the title role in a new animated version of "Cyrano," the next presentation in the acclaimed series of "ABC Afterschool Specials" on Wednesday, March 6 (4:30-5:30 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

"We know that many young people are overly concerned with their physical appearance," Vane said, "and we think that "His inner beauty, his love of life and his full-bodied devotion to his own ideals and emotions made him widely admired, even though he was born physically unattractive.

"This presentation stresses those ideals and emotions; his commitment to love and politics and adventure and all the exciting involvements of life. 'Cyrano' has something important to say to them.

Bronson Stars As Half-Breed

Charles Bronson stars as an Apache half-breed who shoots a racist sheriff in self-defense and flees from a vicious posse in "Chato's Land," a western film making its television debut on "ABC Monday Night Movie," March 4 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Jack Palace, Richard Basehart, James Whitmore, Simon Oakland, Ralph Waite (now starring in "The Waltons") and Richard Jordan are also starred.

RETURN — Eleanor Parker, Sally Field and Jill Haworth (left to right) play three sisters who return to the father they loath in "Home for the Holidays," which will be rebroadcast as a "Wide World Mystery" on the "ABC Wide World of Entertainment" Monday, March 4 (11:30 p.m. - 1 a.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

Actress Hopes For Broadway

Actress Eleanor Parker has a new world to conquer — the Broadway musical.

The triple Academy Award nominee was telling her plans on the set of the film, "Home for the Holidays," a mystery shocker airing on "Wide World of Entertainment" Monday, March 4, 11:30 p.m. on Channel 3W-5-12.

"I've never been on the Broadway stage," the ever-beautiful star revealed. "I did get my feet wet in a musical this summer, touring in 'Applause,' the play Lauren Bacall did in New York."

Miss Parker broke in with the play in San Diego, then took it to Denver before a rousing one-month stand in Washington, D. C.

"It was absolutely marvelous, singing and dancing and socking a number home. It proved to me I could do it," Eleanor elaborated. "You know, Broadway has long been on my mind, but I had always thought in terms of a dramatic play. That could still be the case for my debut. But I hope the first good offer is a musical."

Miss Parker sings well and has always loved music. Her favorite starring film is "Interrupted Melody," in which she portrayed opera star Marjorie Lawrence and received one of her Oscar nominations. (The others were for "Cage" and "Detective Story.")

"I didn't actually sing in that one, of course. I don't have an opera voice and I don't speak all those foreign language — what a challenge. I secluded myself in a mountain cabin at Lake Arrowhead (Calif.) for 10 days and listened to records day and night, learning 22 arias. For good measure, I had six lessons from MGM's voice coach to help with my life synchronization."

Perhaps forgotten by some is Eleanor's portrayal of the Baroness in the most popular film musical of all times, "The Sound of Music." The non-singing role was secondary to that of the star, Julie Andrews.

"I simply had the feeling the movie was going to be something very special and I wanted to be a part of it. Besides, it was a picture I was proud all of my children could see."

Miss Parker is the mother of four-two girls and two boys. Three are grown and on their own; a 14-year-old son is still at home. She has managed to combine her roles of housewife and actress admirably. Eleanor never considered Broadway while her children were still young and with her.

Gregory Peck Plays Lawman Monday Night

Gregory Peck, Tuesday Weld and Estelle Parsons star in "I Walk the Line," a drama to be colorcast on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies" March 4 (9-11 p.m.) on Channel 6-7.

Sheriff Tawes (Peck), a rural Tennessee lawman trapped in a loveless marriage, devotes himself fully to his work to achieve satisfaction.

When he meets Alma McCain (Miss Weld), the daughter of Moonshiner Cal McCain (Ralph Meeker), he is immediatey attracted to her. Though there is a vast age difference, Alma begins an affair with Tawes after being encouraged by her father, who sees a chance to manipulate the sheriff while continuing to work unhindered at his illicit whiskey - making business.

Tawes's hopeless infatuation with the girl steadily leads him to compromise his professional duties thus jeopardizing his career. Estelle Parsons portrays Tawes's wife, Ellen.

Johnny Cash sings seven songs he composed for the 1970 Columbia Pictures release.

GOLD OLE OPUS

Minnie Pearl sings "Maple on the Hill" — the first song she ever sang at Nashville's Grand Ole Opry — during the "Burt Reynolds in Nashville" special on "The Burt Reynolds Late Show" March 10.

Another Drama For Elizabeth

After almost a decade as the star of a comedy series, most actresses would have some difficulty returning to dramatic thesping. But Elizabeth Montgomery was presented with challenges which would be taxing under any circumstances.

Miss Montgomery has a tour-de-force role as a young woman who is the target of an unknown killer in "The Victim," a suspense thriller airing on "Tuesday Movie of the Week" March 5 (8:30-10 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12.

"I felt easy coming back to drama after so many years, but there were special problems that made this the toughest story I have ever done," she said. "The technical work was the best I have seen, but it was so complex that the crew and I had to have absolute perfect timing to make everything work properly."

The reason for the complicated technical requirements was nature. Filmed entirely on location on the Monterey Peninsula in California, "The Victim" ran afoul of almost perfect weather when the script called for the entire story to take place during a violent storm. A week after production was completed, torrential rains hit the area.

"The lack of rain meant that we had to create our own deluge," she said. "Over 100,000 gallons of water were used on the location, and each time they set up the rain towers it was an expensive job. My major concern was the problems that would result if re-takes were necessary. My hair would have to be re-done, the wardrobe dried and the area re-dressed. I've always tried to be a one-take actress, but I knew that this part I'd have to work especially hard to do it."

Drama and Elizabeth Montgomery are no strangers. Prior to "Bewitched," she made over 250 dramatic appearances on both live and filmed shows. In 1960 she was honored with an Emmy nomination for her performance in an episode of "The Untouchables."

"I think television drama is as good or better than it was 10 years ago," she said. "The advances in the technical areas are almost staggering. I saw some of them on 'Bewitched,' but on this film I saw how the new cameras and lenses can be a tool of both the director and the actor.

"I used to be very aware of the camera, but now an extreme close-up can be shot and I'm not aware that it's being done thanks to the zoom lens. It's a very exciting time to work in this medium."

In "The Victim," wealthy Katherine Wainwright (Miss Montgomery) braves a violent storm to travel to her sister's secluded estate after the sister, Susan (Miss Walton), telephones to say that she is filing for a divorce. Katherine is unaware that after their conversation, Susan was murdered and her body hidden.

When Katherine arrives and can find no trace of Susan or her husband, Ben, she becomes worried. The housekeeper, Mrs. Hawks (Miss Heckart), can offer no help except to say that Ben is on a business trip.

Katherine's concern turns into fear as the storm intensifies and both the electricity and the phone are mysteriously cut off. Suddenly Ben (Maharis) returns home, hoping to reconcile with Susan.

'Geraldine' Had Special Start

Flip Wilson's Geraldine character was born when the star was doing a special with Jonathan Winters a few years ago.

In a skit, Flip portrayed an airline stewardess — Geraldine — and Winters did his Maudie Frickert Character.

The response to Geraldine was so great that Flip decided to retain the character.

Hawaii Five-O Has Convinced Viewers

"Hawaii Five-O" seems to have so convinced its viewing audience of the competence of its detective force that the task now at hand might well be unconvincing them.

When Jack Lord and James MacArthur, respectively as Steve McGarrett and Danny Williams, swing into action Tuesdays (8:30-9:30 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9-11, there is a convincing air of reality about them. In fact, the fictional "Hawaii Five-O" detective team has been mistaken sometimes for an authentic law enforcement agency.

Bob Sweeney, supervising producer of "Hawaii Five-O," reports thay many petty crimes such as thefts of cameras, wallets and automobile accessories are reported to the series' production office, which is listed in the Honolulu telephone directory under "Hawaii Five-O." The calls vary in number with the seasons, with the peak vacation months attracting the most calls.

One reason for the strong identification between the fictional television series and the actual Honolulu law-enforcement agencies may stem from their close cooperation. Off-duty Honolulu police officers are at times employed for crowd control and occasionally as extras.

During the filming of a recent episode, the Honolulu Fire Department, which was cooperating with the production company on a drama dealing with an arsonist, may have caused residents to suspect that their city was ablaze. Fire engines tore through Honolulu during frequent stretches of filming. Police Department switchboards had one of their busiest weeks during the filming of that episode.

Furthermore mail intended the the Honolulu office of the Federal Bureau of Investigation sometimes is misdirected and ends up at the Diamond Head studios of the 'Five-O' production company.

Wifely Role Is 'Acting'

In the American theater, Maureen Stapleton has long been recognized as a leading interpreter of Tennessee Williams heroines.

She has also starred in plays by such other noted playrights as S. N. Benrman, Arthur Miller, Arthur Laurents and Neil Simon, but still her image retains the Williams stamp.

While this reputation has labeled her as an interpreter of complex personalities, she says that she looks for universal characters to portray, in roles that are exciting for an actress.

Such a part, she notes, is that of the middle-aged housewife in "Tell Me Where It Hurts," a "Ge Theater" drama special on Tuesday, March 12 :9:30-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Miss Stapleton's role of the 46-year-old wife of a taxi driver, with three children and a brand new grandchild, is a far cry from her actual existence as a cosmopolitan New York City resident, but she has long been projecting the wifely image.

"I've finally grown into my roles," the actress remarks.

"I have always loved parties and people and going out socially. I despise housework and would like to have a home so uncluttered that it could be cleaned with a hose. I dislike kitchens and cooking. And little things being endlessly dusted make me nervous.

"But my family and I, and the world, are changing. My kids are nearly grown—I'm kidding myself, they are grown. The Broadway theater is virtually a thing of the past, and almost all of the work on the screen is in Hollywood. I may yet end up living in the San Fernando Valley, picking oranges off my own tree and driving myself to the supermarket."

Now, that isn't a Tennessee Williams plot.

STILL DOWNCAST— Despite the beauty of his surroundings, Robert Wells (guest star Brandon Cruz) is decidedly downcast, and Dr. Ben Elliot, (series star James Franciscus) approaches to find out why, in this scene from "A Time to Grow." on "Doc Elliot," Wednesday, March 6 (10-11 p.m.) on Channel 3W-5-12. The lad, suffering from asthma, has been brought to Colorado for the climate, but Dr. Elliot finds his condition may stem more from the over-protectiveness of his mother rather than from environmental factors.

Embarassed By Being Actor

Martin Sheen, who stars in the World Premiere film, "The Execution of Private Slovik," on March 13, says that at one time he was somewhat embarrassed about being an actor.

"It's funny, but in a lot of ways you're made to feel like a second class citizen," he explains.

"It's very hard for an actor to get a credit card, for instance, and yet actors have very high credit ratings. But I've lost that feeling. Right now, I'm very proud to be an actor."

Tumbleweed Is Product Of The Props Dept

Special guest star John Wayne wrinkled his brow and aimed a meaningful kick at one of TV's first man-made tumbleweeds.

Comparatively speaking, the device of chicken wire and random bits of straw responded every bit as well as the real thing and even old-time wranglers had to agree they could not tell the difference.

This bit of impartial testing by a recognized authority on the subject of kickin'-tumbleweeds took place behind-the-scenes as The Duke joined program star Glen Campbell for a salute to The Musical West on the special which airs Friday, March 8th, 10-11 PM, on Channel 7.

A sign of the times is the fact that today's propmen have one heckuva time getting their hands on tumbleweeds for studio use. As one veteran explained: "It takes us half a day just to send out a pickup truck and find a load of tumbleweeds. To top it off people think we're a little nuts!"

With no less an expert as Wayne testing the prototype and pronouncing it A-OK, it's highly possible that another frontier of the old West has been tamed by man...and chicken wire.

An Old Kind Of Christmas

There's a certain kind of Christmas we remember, or a Christmas we imagine we remember. It's one of serenity and thankfulness, of simplicity, beauty and warm feelings of family joy.

There are still such kinds of Christmas. In rural Minnesota. Art Christiansen and his family share their "Crow River Christmas" with you on "Religious America", Sunday, March 3 at 8:30 PM on UNC-TV, Channel 25.

Czech Film For Children On Saturday

A young boy must prove himself to his friends through an act of bravery, so he sets out to capture a legendary monster. in "The Giant El," a 1971 film from Czechoslovakia which will be rebroadcast on "The CBS Children's Film Festival" Saturday, March 9 (1-2 p.m.).

In the story, Tony, a city boy, visits his aunt in the country for the summer. Because he is little and unathletic, he finds that life there is rather unpleasant — the children, who have a local gang, are mean and don't take kindly to newcomers.

The gang spends most of its time in a deserted stone quarry which surrounds a quiet lagoon. Legend has it that a monster lives in the lagoon, and every year the bravest child tries to capture it. Tony decides that the only way to become accepted is to capture it himself.

Energy Crisis Report Slated

In the four months since the cease-fire in the Middle East and the imposition of the oil embargo by the Arab states, NBC News has presented more than 689 reports on the energy crisis.

With each report averaging 1½ minutes, the total time runs to 17½ hours.

These reports have been presented on "Today," "NBC Nightly News," and the NBC News Program Service which now reaches 139 TV stations throughout the country.

In addition, during this four-month period, five editions of "Meet the Press" have been devoted to consideration of the energy crisis.

'Grammy' Will Salute 'Oscar' On March 30

"Grammy Salutes Oscar," an hour-long special spotlighting the music of the movies since the inception of the annual awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, will be broadcast Saturday, March 30 (10-11 p.m.) on CBS-TV.

Hosting the special program will be Gene Kelly, who, in 1951, received a special Academy Award in appreciation of his contributions to motion pictures and especially of his "billiant achievements in the art of choreography on film."

Other entertainers of today and yesteryear who will participate in the broadcast are, in alphabetical order, Frankie Avalon, Janet Blair, Rosemary Clooney, Dick Haymes, Gordon MacRae, Henry Mancini, Dennis Morgan, Donald O'Connor, Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Dionne Warwicke and Jane Withers. Rogers starred in the first film to be honored by the Academy, "Wings," in 1929.

DRESS DESIGNS

Dee Wanbaugh, wife of Los Angeles Police Sgt. Joseph Wambaugh who created "Police Story," says of her husband: "He still can't stop buying those plainclothesman clothes. But one of these days I'll take him by surprise and get him to Brooks Brothers."

OLDTIME FRIEND—Parker Fennelly, remembered as the country cousin Titus Moody on the "Fred Allen Show" for many years in the thirties and forties, will be host and narrator of the "Go" show on Saturday, March 9 (12:30-1:00 p.m.) on Channels 2-3 when the program visits the Falling Waters children's horse show in the New York Berkshires.

'Women Of The Year' In April

"Women of the Year, 1974," a special program of the presentation of awards established by the magazine Ladies' Home Journal and honoring American women for achievement in eight categories, will be presented as a special live broadcast from Avery Fisher Hall of Lincoln Center in New York City, Monday, April 8.

Knicks, Celtics To Play

The New York Knickerbockers, defending 1972-73 world champions in the National Basketball Association, take on their perennial revivals, the Boston Celtics, in an Atlantic Division battle to be broadcast Sunday, March 3 (2:30-5 p.m.) on Channel 3N-9.

Pat Summerall, play by play; Elgin Baylor, analyst; and "Hot" Rod Hundley, pre-, half- and post-game programs, cover the action from the Boston (Mass.) Garden.

Boston and New York, both powerhouse teams in the Atlantic Division of the Eastern Conference of the NBA, have already met five times, with the Celtics taking four of the five. With the playoff games on the horizon, the rivalry between the two clubs is reaching fever pitch.

Statistically, through games played February 10, Boston ranks third in the NBC, offensively dunking 110.1 points per contest. New York is 15th in the league, scoring at 100.7 pace. However, the Knicks lead the league defensively, holding opponents to an average of 97.4 points per game. Havlicek of the Celtics is popping an average of 22.0 points per game, and Don Nelson is the leading field-goal getter, hitting at a .514 percentage. All-Star center Dave Cowens of the Celtics is second in rebounds in the NBA, pulling down an average 16.1 per game. Walt Frazier of the Knicks ranks third in the league among the assists leaders, averaging 7.1 per contest; is among the steals leaders, averaging 2.16 thefts per contest; and, popping 20.8 points per game, is leading the Knicks offensively.

The half-time feature will profile the Portland Trail Blazers, a young, inexperienced club that is plagued by injuries but has tremendous potential.

Pack Is Favored Again

The Wolfpack of North Carolina State have their eyes on the Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament Championship.

State fans can taste the sweetness of the title, because this year they are not on probation and will be able to advance into the NCAA Tournament.

Although State is favored to win their second ACC Championship in a row, Wolfpack players and coaches know only too well how tough it is to withstand the mystical ACC tournament. The ACC is the toughest collegiate league in the nation with many of the Countries premier players.

Noticeably getting stronger as the season progresses, the Wolfpack basketball team has placed a burden on the vocabulary of many writers who have covered it regularly the last two seasons and watched the 51-1 binge, currently the best mark in the nation.

But an observer outside of the news media may have come up with the best descritpion of the talented Pack yet when he remarked: "They've got a mile-high player (7-4 Tommy Burleson), one that you can't measure (6-4 David Thompson) and a little midget on roller skates (5-7 Monte Towe) who'll drive you whacky."

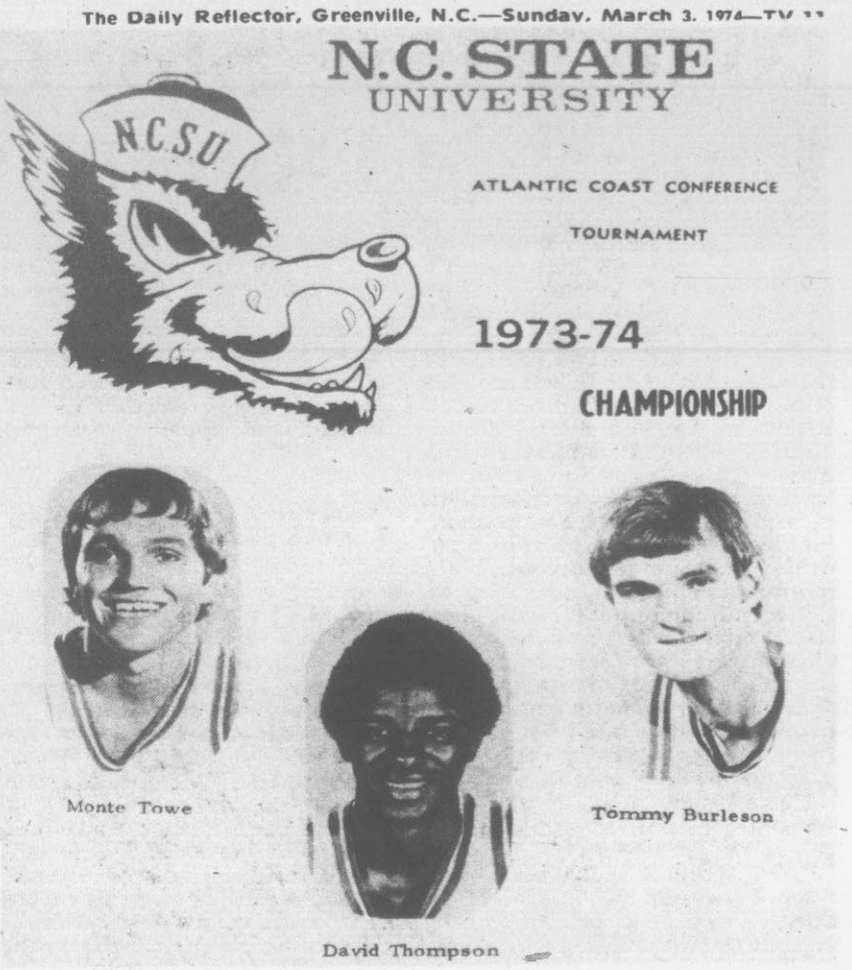
Harry Lloyd, veteran basketball writer of the Charlotte Observe, feels that three members of State's 20-1 quintet should make the all-conference team.

Televising 10th Major Tourney

For the first time, ABC Sports will televise the Doral - Eastern Open live from the Doral Country Club, Miami, Florida - the tenth major tournament in the 1974 PGA Tour - Saturday, March 9, and Sunday, March 10, on Channel 3W-5-12.

ABC Sports' special coverage of the Doral-Eastern Open on Saturday, March 9, will air 2:30-4 p.m. Coverage on Sunday, March 10, will air 2-4 p.m. On both dates, coverage of this fourth of ABC's 13 special golf telecasts during 1974 will begin with the 13th hold of the famed "Blue Monster" course.

The golf broadcasting team for the 1974 Doral-Eastern Open will be Chris Schenkel and Bud Palmer



EYES ON TITLE — The North Carolina State Wolfpack, last year's ACC Champion and this season favorite, have their eyes on the 1973-74 Atlantic Coast Conference Tournament Title. The Tourney will start on Friday, March 8, 7 p.m. on Chennel 3N-6-9-11.

New Time Slot Given Popular Disney Series

"The Wonderful World of Disney," network television's longest-running prime - time program — and one of the most popular in the history of the medium — will move to a new Sunday evening time period, 7-8 p.m. this fall, it was announced today by Lawrence R. White, Vice President, Programs, NBC-TV.

The series, currently in its 13th — and most successful — season, has been colorcast in the 7:30-8:30 p.m. time period since its premiere in 1961.

Recently announced changes in the Federal Communications Commission's Prime Time Access Rule, permitting greater flexibility in scheduling, have made it possible for NBC-TV to resume programming the 7-11 p.m. period on Sundays.

"The Disney series represents one of the great success stories in television," White said.

"For 13 seasons, the show has been a tradition on Sunday evenings, appealing to all-family audiences, particularly the young viewers to whom we have a special responsibility.

"In the coming season, our ability to use this fine program as a base will enable us to build a strong audience schedule which, we are confident, will enable us to maintain audience leadership on that important viewing evening."

National Neilsen estimates for the season to date show that "The Wonderful World of Disney" leads its time period, with an average share of audience of 40 percent.

The program regularly places among the top five programs on TV.

Early last year, NBC-TV and Walt Disney Productions announced plans that assure the series a place on the NBC-TV schedule at least through the 1975-76 season.

The Disney organization is marking its 20th anniversary on television this year.

The late Walt Disney first started to provide weekly family entertainment on television in 1954 when his Davy Crockett stories became world famous.

Structure Of Emmy Awards Is Revised

A new awards structure emphasizing "the best there is" in major categories has been announced by Joseph E. Bluth, Chairman, National Awards Committee, and will be put into effect at the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences' 26th Annual Emmy Awards Presentation Tuesday, May 28 (9-11 p.m., in color) on NBC-TV.

The new Emmy structure will follow the same pattern for the first-ever Emmy Daytime Awards, which will also be telecast on NBC-TV May 28 from 12 noon to 1:30 p.m. The structure and procedures regarding the News and Documentary Emmy Awards will be announced at a later date.

In categories where there are more than one nominee, each "best of category" winner will be given a distinguished award. Each category winner will then compete with other category winners within that area to receive an Emmy as the best in that field.

The category winners will be announced approximately 10 days prior to the telecast, but will receive their distinguished award on the program.

For example, in the directing field there are five categories: Best Directing in Drama, a single episode of a series; Best Directing in Drama, a single program; Best Directing in Comedy, a single episode of a series; Best Directing in Variety or Music, a single episode of a series; and Best Directing Comedy, Variety or Music, a special program. The five category winners, each after being specially honored, will then vie for the Emmy as Director of the Year.

FOR JOAN CRAWFORD

I've often wondered if a big star who is used to being lionized has trouble enjoying his or her own company. Do you enjoy your own company?—D. M., Colorado Springs, Colo.

● Yes, I do enjoy my own company, which obviously means that I take an inventory of myself quite regularly. I feel sorry for people who must be constantly entertained or be in the presence of groups or crowds. Being an indefatigable worker, moments alone are very precious to me—for reading books and improving my mind. That in itself is a great purge for my spirit.

FOR SEN. HUGH SCOTT (R-Pa.)

Why are you Republicans now beginning to support national health insurance?—A. Gaitely, Fernbank, Ohio

● America's health bill has doubled in eight years, more than tripled in 12 years and increased six-fold in 21 years. Without the benefit of some sort of national health-insurance program, health care will become an unbearable problem for Americans.

FOR CHUCK CONNORS, narrator of "The Thrill-Seekers"

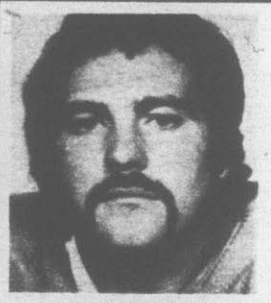
Who was the most exciting thrill-seeker you have met and what was it he did?—John Little, Lewiston, Idaho

● I would say John Harding from Milwaukee, Wis., who calls himself "The Human Bomb." John encloses himself in a wooden coffin, 6½ x 2½ x 2½, with two sticks of TNT, and sets off the TNT, which blasts him out of the coffin and knocks him out. He is immediately given oxygen to be revived.

FOR LUCILLE BALL

In your early TV shows, you used to make jokes about really being a brunette. Are you a natural brunette?—Jeannie See, River Vale, N.J.

● No. As a child I was blonde. Later my hair turned light brown, which is really my natural color.



FOR JIM KIICK, Miami Dolphins' football star

When and why did people start to call Larry Csonka and you "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid"?—Tony Belich, Green Bay, Wis.

● We used to tell Bill Braucher, a sportswriter for The Miami Herald, about the funny things we did. Right after we had a good game against the Denver Broncos, he put the nickname on us. It was perfect for us—two guys out to have a good time no matter what the situation.

FOR JAMES ARNESS

I noticed that you were limping in one of your "Gunsmoke" segments. Was this part of the act, or did you injure your foot?—Mrs. Peggy Garside, Clearwater, Fla.

● You're very observant. My limp is a memento of the war and the Third Infantry's visit to Anzio. I do try to hide it, however.

FOR MRS. BILLY GRAHAM

I notice your husband doesn't wear a wedding ring. Why?—F. L. Z., San Antonio, Texas

● Some men just don't like to wear rings, and I frankly never bought one for Bill.

FOR JULIET PROWSE

Every time we go to Las Vegas you seem to be playing there. Don't you get tired of living in hotels and not having a permanent home?—F. A. Lowry, Denver, Colo.

● I perform in Las Vegas about 12 weeks a year, and spend another three weeks in Reno. Yes, I did get tired of living in hotels; that's why I bought my first home—in Las Vegas. And the 40 weeks I'm away, I rent it to other entertainers—who are just as tired of hotel living as I was!

FOR JOAN BLONDELL

I read that you were in vaudeville as a child. What was it like?—Larry Kline, Atlanta, Ga.

● Hard! When I was born, it was already going downhill. My parents knew it was dying, but I didn't. I was young and eager and happy. I thought every child grew up in the theater. Doing four or five shows a day, being in the theater from ten in the morning until 11 at night, was great. I thought it was a fine childhood.

FOR ROD McKUEN

I understand you don't like organized religion, although you refer to God in much of your work. What do you have against churches?—J. B. Herman, Gillette, Wyo.

● I believe very strongly in God. However, much of so-called "organized religion" has let us down by not keeping up with man's changing spiritual and emotional needs. Few churches have taken realistic stands on birth control, women's rights, unfair sexual laws, the inequality of wealth in this country, and most particularly, man's need to be individual. We can't have it both ways—acknowledging the fatherhood of God without considering the brotherhood of man.

What It's Like to Pitch to Hank Aaron

By His "Pigeons" and His Conquerors

By Larry Bortstein
FAMILY WEEKLY Sports Editor

Sometime shortly after the start of the 1974 season, Hank Aaron of the Atlanta Braves will send a ball screaming out of sight for the 714th home run of his career. This will tie him with Babe Ruth for the highest lifetime total in baseball history.

There seems little doubt that Aaron, 40, will surpass Ruth. And the anticipation of this event has been the biggest story of the "Hot Stove League" between the close of last season and the opening of this one. Not the least anxious are the pitchers, past and present, who have faced Aaron over the last 20 years.

FAMILY WEEKLY spoke to eight major-league hurlers, including two who have retired, and asked them to discuss their experiences against Aaron. Their comments serve as a guide to the pitchers and pitches Hank Aaron has seen come down from the mound at him during his long career.

DON DRYSDALE

Now a broadcaster for the California Angels, Drysdale established a club victory record with 209 for the Dodgers in Brooklyn and Los Angeles, from 1956–69. Aaron's record against Drysdale: 17 homers.

"Ever since a Braves' official came up with the figure a few years ago that I had given up more homers to Hank than anyone else, people have kidded me about it. I don't think that I have anything to be embarrassed about. I pitched in the league for 14 years, hardly ever missing a turn, and Hank played almost every game for the Braves. I was a control pitcher, and Hank waited out very few walks. So it figured I'd give up a fair amount of homers to him.

Wide World

"The particular homer I remember best was one in Los Angeles that he hit so hard it curved around the foul pole into the fair part of the left-field stands before I could even look up to see where it had gone. He really belted that one! But when you face a hitter like that, you have to expect there'll be nights he'll hit everything you throw to him, including your glove."

GARY GENTRY

Gentry helped the New York Mets to the 1969 World Series title by winning 13 games as a major-league rookie. After four seasons with the Mets, Gentry, 27, was traded to Atlanta last season. Aaron's record against Gentry: four homers.

"It's better being Hank's teammate than having to pitch to him, believe me.

Most pitchers know the best way to keep Aaron from hitting the ball over the fence is to pitch him outside. There's no guarantee, of course. I mean, this guy has seen every pitch anyone could possibly throw, so you can't trick him. My strength is the fast ball inside, which I'll throw to everybody in a tight spot. I threw it to Hank, and I got him out with it sometimes, and he hit it some other times. But I figured I've got to go with the best pitch I've got. Any hitter can hit any pitch at any given time."

DON GULLETT

Only 23, lefty Don Gullett has been with the Cincinnati Reds for four years. In 1973 he helped his team win the National League's Western Division pennant with an 18–8 record. Aaron's record against Gullett: seven homers.

"Aaron has given me more trouble than any other power hitter. When we play Atlanta, the Braves tease Hank and say, 'Make sure you're ready to play — Gullett's pitching!' But I improved against him last year. He had three homers off me in 1971 and three in 1972. Last year he hit only one!

"Hank likes to hit against left-handers more than right-handers. [Only some left-handers, apparently. Not Curt Simmons, for instance – Ed.]. That's because he sees more balls inside against lefties. His philosophy seems to be that from the middle of the plate to the outside belongs to the pitcher, and from the middle to the inside is his.

"But, I'll tell you—he's hit every kind of pitch I can throw. The worst day I had against him was in 1971, when he had two homers and a double, and drove in all five runs the Braves scored. Guys have asked me why I don't just give him an intentional walk when he comes up. But I'm not afraid to throw him my best stuff. I throw him strikes. You can't just give up."

FERGUSON JENKINS

Jenkins will pitch for the Texas Rangers this year after eight years with the Chicago Cubs. The 6-5 right-hander won 20 or more games for six straight years, 1967-72. Aaron's homer record against Jenkins: three.

"I did better than average against Aaron. I think Hank didn't like to come up against me because of something I did to him a couple of years ago in Atlanta. We were leading 1-0 in the bottom of the seventh, and Hank led off for the Braves. In that kind of close game, there's only one thing on Hank's mind—to hit it out. I figured to myself, 'I've got to make him lose his concentration. I've got to throw him off stride.'

"Now Hank has this little ritual when he comes to bat—he holds the bat between his legs and puts on his batting helmet. Once he's in the batter's box, he doesn't like to step out. So I played a little game with him. Almost every time he got set to swing, I stepped off the mound. Once he tried to play along by stepping out of the box when I wanted to throw. But in the end he stayed in there and I struck him out on a curve. I think that teed him off. Whenever he faced me after that, he always looked to be in a hurry to get it over with."

Can your child read these words?

napkin	fuzzy	liquid	punch	camel
misty	chicken	velvet	whisper	zigzag

Your child will learn how to read these and more than 300 other words after working with the very first record of The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

Try out this Phonics Course FREE FOR TWO WEEKS with your child in your own home—without risking a penny. Mail the coupon below.

If your child is a poor reader, if he has not been able to keep up with his class in school—here is a way that you can help him. Many parents have seen their poor readers gain up to a full year's grade in reading skill in just six weeks with the Sound Way to Easy Reading.

As soon as your child starts playing the records and using the charts of The Sound Way to Easy Reading you will know why it works so well. It takes the mystery out of learning to read because it teaches your child by the phonics method (the method by which most parents learned to read years ago).

Teaches with records

With this course your child discovers that letters have sounds. When he starts sounding out the letters he hears himself saying the word. He's reading!

The records drill him in the sounds of the 26 letters of the alphabet and their blends. By the time he completes the first record (about two weeks for the average child) he can read 300 words. After finishing all four records he has been taught 123 basic phonics sounds.

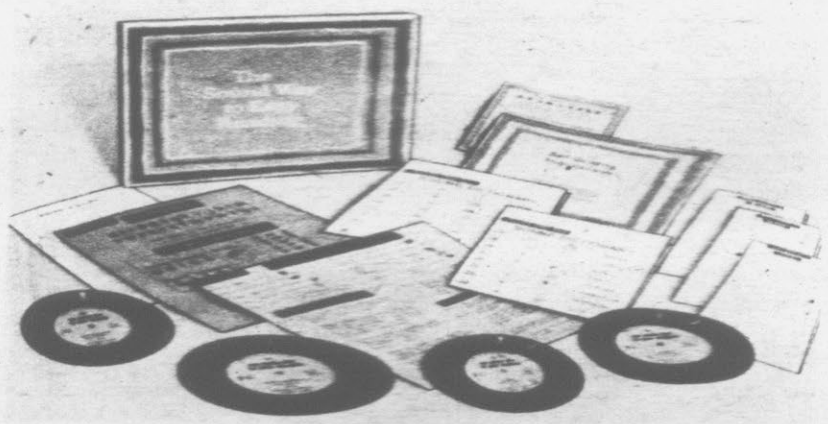
Once he knows these sounds he can read up to 85% of the words in the English language. It works for children of all ages—in the earliest grades and even in high school. Its records tell your child exactly what to do, so he can teach himself without any help from you.

Tested and Proved

In a pilot study by university psychologists, children gained up to a full year's grade in oral reading skill after only 30 lessons with The Sound Way to Easy Reading.

A semester-long study involving 214 pupils in four Chicago schools proved that the classes given The Sound Way to Easy Reading showed marked improvement in reading and spelling over the control groups.

Don't think it's all your child's fault if he hasn't learned to read. Many of our brightest children are not able to grasp some of the current methods taught in most schools today. Many educators insist that at least 40% of our children must have formal training in phonics—that they will never master reading without it!



These are the records and self-quizzing cards that can help your child gain as much as a full year's grade in reading in just a few weeks.

Help Your Child Now

So don't wait for your poor reader to reach high school before coming to his aid. By starting your child on The Sound Way to Easy Reading now, you can change his entire attitude toward school—turn his sense of failure into the joy of success. Try it free for two weeks. You send no money—just mail coupon.

USED BY 150,000 PARENTS who send many letters like these:

Advanced two grades—"Larry was having a really hard time in second grade until he took your phonics course. Then, in two months, his grades went from D's and F's to A's and B's. I cannot give your course enough praise."
Mrs. Muriel Rich, Fairfax, Va.

Better marks—"At the end of his first semester in fourth grade, Gerald's highest mark was a D-minus. After working 6 weeks with the records his lowest mark was C."
Mrs. William Leger, Buffalo, S. Dak.

Four sons—"In twelve weeks, two of our boys brought up their reading grades from D to B. And our other two came up from D to C. I'll never get more for my money than I already have with your course."

Hank Aaron

year-old left-hander, was traded to the Houston Astros over the winter. He has a career total of 180 victories. Aaron has hit 13 homers off Osteen.

"I've given up more homers to Hank than any other active pitcher. But Hank hasn't hit off me the last two seasons. That's because he's going more for home runs now, and against a pitcher like me, a man going for the fences is not likely to hit many.

"About the only time I remember Hank beating me in a game with a homer was in 1968, when he hit two off me in one game. One of them was with two men on, and that was the only one he's hit off me with more than one man on.

"Hank's probably hit more curve balls coming into him for homers than anything else I've thrown him. Some of those balls he's hit down the left-field line in Atlanta, one of the easier fences to reach in the league."

CURT SIMMONS

Simmons' major-league career spanned 21 seasons, 1947-67. The left-hander, who spent 12 years with the Philadelphia Phillies and six with the St. Louis Cardinals, won 193 games. Aaron calls Simmons "the toughest pitcher I've ever faced." Aaron's homer record against Simmons: seven.

"When Hank calls me the toughest pitcher he's ever faced, that's a pretty high honor. I did have pretty good success against him. I embarrassed him a few times, but he got me a few times too. He hit one homer off me that I'll never forget – a heck of a line drive smack into dead center field.

Wide World

"He says it was my slow curve that gave him trouble, but I think it was my motion. I had a herky-jerky motion with my legs and hips.

"Hank once thought he had found a way to pick up my motion. The Cardinals were playing a tie game against the Braves, and there was a man on first and two out in the eighth. Hank came up, and when the ball came in he took a step forward and a double hitch and hit the ball over the right-field fence. But the umpire didn't allow it. He said Hank had stepped out of the batter's box. There was a long argument, but of course Hank lost. I think he decided right then that there was no way he was going to solve hitting off my motion."

GEORGE STONE

Stone, a 27-year-old southpaw, helped the New York Mets to the National League pennant in 1973 with a 12-3 record, after five years with the Braves, where he won 43 games, many in relief. Aaron's record against Stone: two homers.

"Because I was Hank's teammate, people thought I might be able to tell the other Met pitchers something about how to pitch to him. But no way. After the one game I pitched against the Braves last year, everyone had to admit I didn't have any secrets.

Wide World

"It was a real hot and humid July day at Shea Stadium, and I felt myself getting pretty tired about the third inning. In the fourth, Hank came up with nobody on base and hit a change-up, low and outside. That was homer No. 1. Then in the sixth inning, with a man on, he hit a fast ball that was high and outside. That was homer No. 2. I don't think I gave up any other runs that day, but those were two of the hardest shots anyone has ever hit off me."

DON WILSON

A right-handed fast-ball specialist, Wilson, 29, has been with the Houston Astros since 1966. He has 93 major-league triumphs going into the 1974 season. Aaron's record against him: one homer.

"If I were as successful against everybody as I've been against Aaron, I'd be unbeatable. I guess Hank's only gotten about four hits off me in maybe 50 times at bat. His only homer was in 1971, and I was just coming off a sore arm when he hit it.

"What's my secret? Well, my fast ball moves a lot and takes off outside against right-handed hitters. Other guys on our club throw Aaron straight fast balls, and he eats them up. But he hasn't been able to handle my ball when it takes off on him.

"I faced Hank in his last time at bat in 1973, when he was trying to get one more homer to tie Babe Ruth. Dave Roberts started the game for us, and Hank got three straight singles off him. I came in late in the game, and Hank came up against me. He was really anxious to hit one out of the park. I figured he'd be looking for an outside fast ball, but I jammed him inside and he hit an easy pop-up.
He was really mad!"

When I cut out this snapshot of myself, I really felt like cutting away some of my weight—178 pounds.

Now I'm 118 pounds, my husband wants to be first on the dance floor, instead of getting lost in the crowd.

I cheated on weekends and lost 60 pounds.

By Diane Gabriele—as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

It was always on Sundays for me. Saturdays, too. I'm talking about the cheating I used to do when I finally decided to reduce. You see, no matter how strict I was with my diet Monday through Friday, I'd weaken on weekends. On Saturdays, visiting my folks, I would eat Pennsylvania Dutch goodies. And on Sundays with my husband's family, I would eat Italian-style. Homemade ravioli, spaghetti or maybe lasagna. Yet, believe it or not, I still went from 178 pounds down to 118 pounds. But I never could have done it just on my own. I had to have a plan for losing the weight—all 60 pounds of it.

I guess I should say here that I didn't have a weight problem until I began having children. My first three were born in just three years, so the pounds accumulated fast. And when I carried my fourth, my husband Jim was out of work five months, so I ate out of worry. Then when he went back on the job, I relaxed and stuffed myself because I was so happy.

The only person who thought I looked great was Jim's godfather. He believes in setting a table until it groans. So when we'd go over to his house, he'd say: "Eat. Eat. God bless you. You eat." Then he'd pat me and say: "You get nice and fat." It was a compliment he gave me with love, so I ate to show my thanks.

But there were others who sent darts right through me with their remarks. They all made me cry, yet each time I looked in a full-length mirror, I'd turn to my best side and refuse to see my bulges and heavy thighs.

Well, that's the way I kidded myself, until one day I borrowed one of Mom's dresses and couldn't fit into it. What a shock, since I always thought of her as bigger than I. But it was just the shaking up I needed to make me do something about losing.

Fortunately, I'd been reading the ads about people who had lost weight on the Ayds® plan, so I decided to try it. I bought a box of the vanilla carmel Ayds candies at the drug store. And since they contain vitamins and minerals, but no drugs, I wasn't afraid to eat them.

It was the month of June and two things made me want to take off weight by August. First, Jim's vacation. And second, a pair of hip huggers. He'd bought them for me in size 16, too small to fit. But I didn't want him to know, so each time Jim would ask me to try them on, I would just say, "Later...later," until he didn't ask me any more.

Well, once on the plan, I took one Ayds with a hot drink (tea for me) before each meal, and it actually helped stop my stomach growling. That doesn't sound nice, I know, but I had the kind of stomach that was always talking to me. But on the Ayds plan, I was able to cut down on what I ate and still feel satisfied.

For instance, at breakfast, I'd have one Ayds and tea, then a boiled egg and juice. At lunch, one Ayds, tea and maybe a tuna fish salad and fruit. Then at dinner, Ayds and tea followed by meat, a green vegetable, sometimes a potato and a salad. And in the evening, Ayds and tea, and perhaps a pretzel. There was no starving myself at all, and the weight came off—and off.

By August, when it was time for vacation, I'd lost 26 pounds on the Ayds plan and said to Jim: "See, my hip huggers fit!" When we got back home (to Norwood, Pa.) though, I learned the best thing of all. Thanks to the Ayds plan, I hadn't gained a pound. I'd controlled my weight even away from home.

That's when I decided to change the Ayds plan to suit my life. I stayed strict with myself on weekdays, but cheated a little on weekends. And it worked.

In the end, I lost 60 pounds on the Ayds plan and I'm the talk of every wedding and wake I go to. Not that I'm the one who brings up the subject. It's that everybody who sees me slim asks how I lost the weight and I have to tell them—the Ayds plan. And I'll tell you this: it's wonderful knowing that people notice just as much when you lose as when you gain.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Can a Person's Name Shape His Destiny?

True or False: If you can trace your family name to some famous man or woman, you are likely to possess similarities in physique, personality, character and general disposition. (See number 1)

The most important word in any language—to most people—is their name. In this True-or-False quiz we name a few facts about names.

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. If you can trace your family name to some famous man or woman, you are likely to possess similarities in physique, personality, character and general disposition.

2. There are exceptions, of course, but most parents, after racking their brains for a name for their child, settle the matter by flipping a coin or picking some name at random.

3. Whether a child's name is mother- or father-conferred provides an insight into the parents' relationship.

4. Women tend to be far more extreme than men in their likes and dislikes for people's names.

5. In most cases, a person's name has little influence on the formation of his character and general outlook.

ANSWERS

1. False—according to a study of human genetics, which has shown that a person's family name has no specific influence on his character or physical makeup. As one leading investigator observes in evaluating the results of the researchers: Although men do not usually change their names, their genes change in each generation, and do so at random. A grandson – although having the same name as his grandfather – could lose all genetic identity with his grandfather. Even a father-son relationship is linked by such complex lines that the son is genetically independent.

2. False—according to the findings of a recent study of the processes involved in the naming of children conducted by Dr. Mary V. Seeman, assistant professor of psychiatry at the University of Toronto. "Children," the specialist reports, "are named by parents who cherish a set of unconscious expectations for their newborn. These expectations find their symbolic expression in the form of a given name. The final choice, which may be a compromise between the current vogue, family tradition and the unconscious ideals and identifications of the parents, brands the child at birth with a tag that symbolizes what his culture and his family expect of him."

3. True. As one leading authority who has made a study of the subject observes, "Who chooses the name is always an interesting clue to decision-making within the family." It would expectably follow that children are seldom named by henpecked husbands or browbeaten wives. The best indication of a good relationship would be a mutual participation in the child-naming process.

4. True. In a study conducted at Ohio University, more than a thousand different personal names were rated by 1,380 men and women as to the degree they liked or disliked a name, considered it masculine or feminine, passive or active. Women were the most vehement in their opinions, the most extreme in their ratings—either giving a name a top rating on all points or registering extreme dislike.

5. False. A large-scale study of the psychological effect of personal names shows that "the name has a molding influence on the personality because the child learns to identify himself with the name." In effect, he is Robert, or Clifford, or Daniel, or Percy, or Elmer, or whatever. Other investigations have shown that, as early as 2000 B.C., the power of a proper name was such that it might determine the individual's destiny.

The Lazy Man's Way to Riches

'Most People Are Too Busy Earning a Living to Make Any Money'

I used to work hard. The 18-hour days. The 7-day weeks.

But I didn't start making big money until I did less—a lot less.

For example, this ad took about 2 hours to write. With a little luck, it should earn me 50, maybe a hundred thousand dollars.

What's more, I'm going to ask you to send me 10 dollars for something that'll cost me no more than 50 cents. And I'll try to make it so irresistible that you'd be a darned fool not to do it.

After all, why should you care if I make $9.50 profit if I can show you how to make a lot more.

What if I'm so sure that you will make money my Lazy Man's Way that I'll make you the world's most unusual guarantee?

And here it is: I won't even cash your check or money order for 31 days after I've sent you my material.

That'll give you plenty of time to get it, look it over, try it out.

If you don't agree that it's worth at least a hundred times what you invested, send it back. Your uncashed check or money order will be put in the return mail.

The only reason I won't send it to you and bill you or send it C.O.D. is because both these methods involve more time and money.

And I'm already going to give you the biggest bargain of your life.

Because I'm going to tell you what it took me 11 years to perfect: How to make money the Lazy Man's Way.

O.K.—now I have to brag a little. I don't mind it. And it's necessary—to prove that sending me the 10 dollars... which I'll keep "in escrow" until you're satisfied... is the smartest thing you ever did.

I live in a home that's worth $100,000. I know it is, because I turned down an offer for that much. My mortgage is less than half that, and the only reason I haven't paid if off is because my Tax Accountant says I'd be an idiot.

My "office," about a mile and a half from my home, is right on the beach. My view is so breathtaking that most people comment that they don't see how I get any work done. But I do enough. About 6 hours a day, 8 or 9 months a year.

The rest of the time we spend at our mountain "cabin." I paid $30,000 for it—cash.

I have 2 boats and a Cadillac. All paid for.

We have stocks, bonds, investments, cash in the bank. But the most important thing I have is priceless: time with my family.

And I'll show you just how I did it—the Lazy Man's Way—a secret that I've shared with just a few friends 'til now.

It doesn't require "education." I'm a high school graduate.

It doesn't require "capital." When I started out, I was so deep in debt that a lawyer friend advised bankruptcy as the only way out. He was wrong. We paid off our debts and, outside of the mortgage, don't owe a cent to any man.

It doesn't require "luck." I've had more than my share, but I'm not promising you that you'll make as much money as I have. And you may do better; I personally know one man who used these principles, worked hard, and made 11 million dollars in 8 years. But money isn't everything.

It doesn't require "talent." Just enough brains to know what to look for. And I'll tell you that.

It doesn't require "youth." One woman I worked with is over 70. She's travelled the world over, making all the money she needs, doing only what I taught her.

It doesn't require "experience." A widow in Chicago has been averaging $25,000 a year for the past 5 years, using my methods.

What does it require? Belief. Enough to take a chance. Enough to absorb what I'll send you. Enough to put the principles into action. If you do just that—nothing more, nothing less— the results will be hard to believe. Remember—I guarantee it.

You don't have to give up your job. But you may soon be making so much money that you'll be able to. Once again—I guarantee it.

The wisest man I ever knew told me something I never forgot: "Most people are too busy earning a living to make any money."

Don't take as long as I did to find out he was right.

I'll prove it to you, if you'll send in the coupon now. I'm not asking you to "believe" me. Just try it. If I'm wrong, all you've lost is a couple of minutes and an 8-cent stamp. But what if I'm right?

Why Models Stay Young Till Sixty!

This is 39-year-old Oleda Baker, author of this eye-opening new guide. Would you believe her age? Learn her youth-secrets, and those of dozens of other top models, entirely at our risk. Read the thrilling details on this page!

Revealed at last! By the world's most beautiful women—who make their living by being, and staying, young! What they really do to:

—add not a single pound to their figures, even though they add five, ten, twenty or thirty candles to their birthday cakes!

—rinse so much shine into their hair that it has to be powdered down so it doesn't glare into the TV cameras!

—smooth out ugly veins from their hands and feet, in exactly the same way that they smooth out ugly lines from their necks and faces!

—leave their double-chin in bed when they get up in the morning, because they know the right way to simply "sleep it away"!

—"pearlize" their skin, so you would never dream that they too suffered from blackheads, enlarged pores or acne!

These Beauty Secrets—And Dozens More Just Like Them—Earn These Women Up To $100 An Hour! Now They Are YOURS For Only A Few Pennies Apiece!

What we are offering you, in fact, is the world's first "inside" manual on how ordinary women (with perhaps a slightly better face and a slightly better figure than yours) are transformed overnight into stunning beauties! With pounds carved painlessly off their figures! Years smoothed effortlessly off their faces! Every good feature perfected, and every bad feature either corrected or disguised!

And then—when the absolute exquisite face-figure has been created out of the raw girl who first came into the studio—this dazzling physical beauty is then "frozen" against time and weight-gain-of-even-an-ounce for ten . . . twenty . . . even forty years!

For great models are not born; they are made! (On page 10 of this eye-opening volume, you are taken behind-the-scenes in the most glamorous "sorority" in the world, and you are shown that there is scarcely a model alive who did not need to have ten or twenty pounds whisked off her figure, and a major transformation made on her face, before a top model agency offered her a contract!)

But these women made themselves slim, and made themselves radiant far more cleverly and easily than you have ever dreamed. Let us prove that to you right now:

Take Slimming, For Example! How Would You Like To Eat What You Want, When You Want It—And Still Get And Stay Slim Forever!

Let us just quote one of the models whose "forever-young, forever-slim" secrets are revealed here! She says, quite frankly, "I positively adore food. And I never, but never, starve myself. Yet I weigh the same today as when I started modelling more than ten years ago." (Italics ours.)

Why? Because she uses the "Self-Maintaining Diet"! The diet that's fun, that's the happiest of adventures! That actually tames, overnight, those sudden wild urges that destroy your figure! That re-educates your taste buds and your metabolism, so that you find yourself able to eat what you want, when you want it, without gaining so much as an ounce—and (at least at the beginning) losing as much as a pound a day!

Using this diet strategy, food becomes an ally rather than an enemy! It fills you up, but never out! Using this strategy, one model went from 140 pounds to 123 pounds in well under a single month—and she still ate what she pleased on weekends!

Using this strategy, every other model (with the exception of one or two) who faithfully followed it for ten days lost ten big pounds—to start! Another (a perfectionist) went from 133 to 97 pounds! Another, who was bottom-heavy, not only shed ugly pounds all over her body—but spot-exercised the flab right off her bottom so perfectly that she now does bathing suit ads!

And This "Frozen Slenderness' Is Only The Beginning Of The Stunning New Beauty These Top Models Can Give You! Without Your Risking A Penny!

For example:

Of all women, a successful model must always be a healthy, sexually vibrant, powerhouse of energy! She must be able to "turn on the dazzle" at a moment's notice—despite the fact that she has been dashing all over the city, toting pounds of clothes, a make-up kit, and often a wig box! Here are the "glamour vitamins" that turn on such amazing stores of physical vitality—ready to go to work for you within seconds after you read page 42!

Nor can an $80-an-hour model afford the slightest trace of dandruff! After trying all the expensive treatments and preparations, here's how they simply rinse the ugly flakes away, at home, in seconds—for pennies! (Page 63.)

And glasses are out too! Weak eyes, aging eyes, dull eyes can cost a model her career! These top models believe that most women take to spectacles simply because of lazy eye muscles, just as most women take to girdles because of lazy body muscles! And if you want to escape the "eyeglass-prison"—perhaps far faster than you've ever dreamed—check page 68 the moment you get this book!

And how about strong, sexy teeth! Did you ever hear, for example, of the new sealants that can be applied to your teeth in seconds, to shield them from harmful bacteria! (See page 73.)

SPECIAL BONUS SECTION: Tips from top hand models that may solve your rough, red problem forever! They say bluntly that there is simply no excuse any longer for hands that are anything else but silken smooth—and nails that are as strong as steel! One glance at the "magic" hand exercises on page 81 may convince you, for good!

PLUS, of course, the same "million-dollar know-how" for your feet as well! Including a natural-fruit way to keep their skin exquisitely white and fine-pored! And a simple little action that builds a natural-shield against calluses right into them!

These Models Say Old-Fashioned Huff-And-Puff Exercises Are OUT! If You Want A 28-Inch Waist At Age Sixty—Do This Instead . . .

Just MOVE the way you're shown on pages 89 to 103 . . . and watch inches seem to evaporate into thin air—as though you could practically "smile" them away!

Here are special, super-effective slimmers for the stomach, legs, hips, calves, derriere, arms, bosom—and especially that embarrassing "below-stomach bulge" that otherwise grows larger and larger! Also two startling "firmer-uppers" for neck lines and for bags under your eyes that you must try at once if you suffer from either one!

Incidentally, if you want to smooth out lip wrinkles, also check page 101 at once!

And this is still just the beginning! We just don't have room enough here to mention all the professional beauty secrets revealed at last in this eye-opening book! For example:

How to eliminate muddy, bumpy-looking complexion with nothing but water . . .

How to get rid of "early morning wrinkles and bags," in minutes . . .

How to build a voice as seductive as your new body—a complete mini-course . . .

How to achieve the illusion of a near-perfect face (for example, if you have a receding chin, how to "add" to it in seconds) . . .

How to blend your own shampoos, skin creams and facials, that cost almost nothing, but far outperform the expensive kind . . .

And Much, Much More! But Read Them All—Prove Them All, From Cover To Cover—Without Risking A Penny!

This book is for people who want to get things done! You owe it to yourself to try it! We take all the risk! Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

Short of outfitting your home with slabs of covered foam or retreating to a cave, how can you win the costly furniture game? There's help on these pages.

Women's Editor

Dollar-Saving, Time-Saving, "You-Build-It" Furniture

(Take It Apart When You Move)

Why is this room smiling? It has the good sense to contain smart but inexpensive furniture assembled by its owner.

You Put It Together

A modest investment, a little elbow grease and, suddenly, a handsome room. The wall unit, tables and director's chair in this room, designed by Peggy Walker, are all from JS/Permaneer's new chrome-and-pecan ready-to-assemble furniture collection that provides an elegant, durable product, perfect for den or family room. The furniture, of pecan vinyl veneer laminated to a non-warpable particleboard base, is trimmed with chrome-finished metal frames for added strength and style. The furniture (wall unit, under $150; bunching tables, about $20 the pair; chair, about $25) is scratch, mar and moisture resistant, added assets in areas that get rough wear. Rug by Egetaepper. Blinds by Levolor.

An Oklahoma couple ordered a new dining set that the store said would be delivered in eight to ten weeks. A family in Florida decided to finish their basement and add a sofa and some chairs. Luckily, they were able to buy the furniture on sale—but it's been several weeks, and it still hasn't arrived.

What do these people have in common? You guessed it, the frustration of waiting for home furnishings—costly home furnishings—that never come!

Plant delays, trucking delays (greater now, due to the fuel shortage), all play a part. But consumers are clamoring for an end to excuses. Is there another answer?

There is, and it may shake the timbers of the whole industry. While covering the furniture market, we discovered there's a new look to "ready-to-assemble" furniture, the kind you take home and put together yourself!

The first practical furniture of this kind

Master Carpentry With a Screwdriver

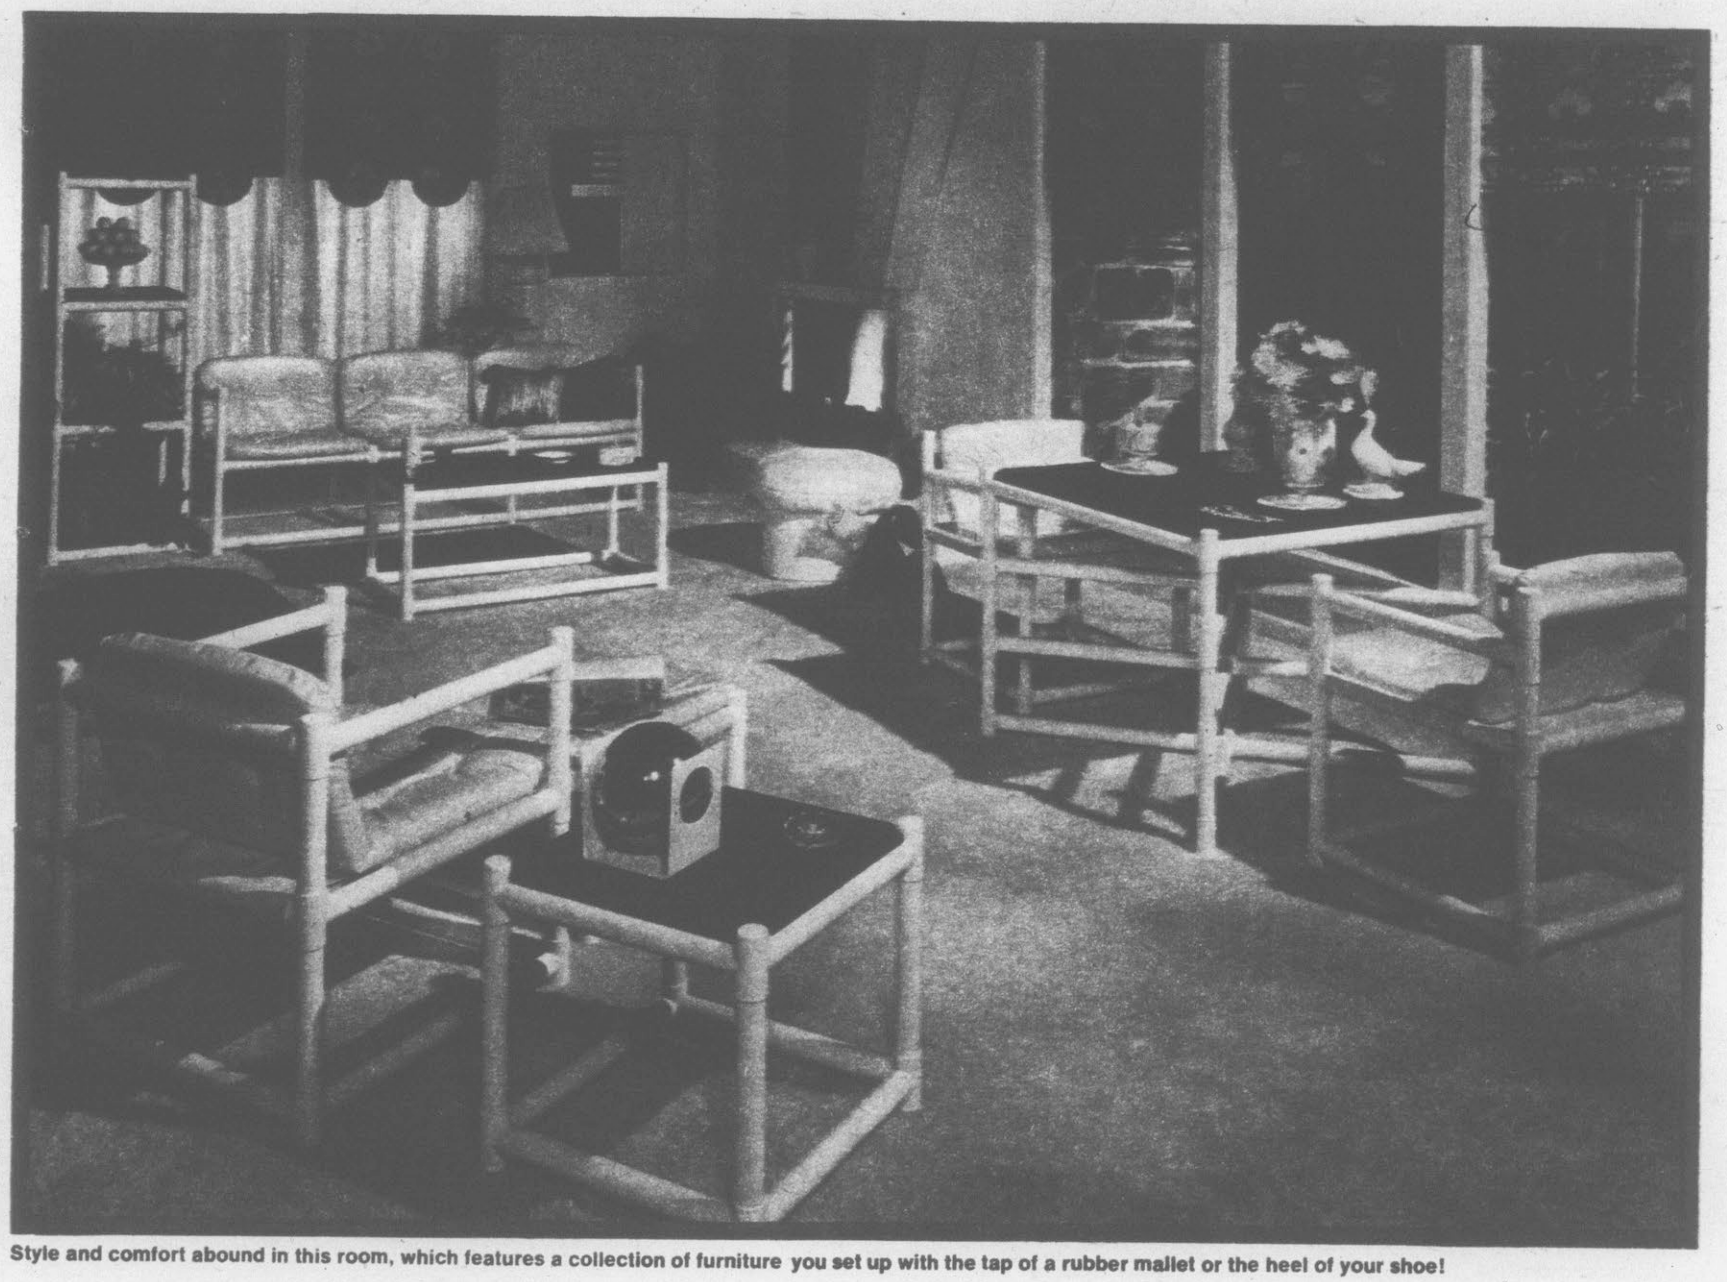
appeared in the early '60's. But the merchandise was poor in design and the construction was flimsy. Within the last few years, however, major companies have been turning out really fine designs—in wood, plastic or vinyl-covered particleboard.

When you buy these new products, you do not pay for the hidden costs of assembly, warehouse storage and shipping, as you do with conventional furniture. The savings, therefore, can be from 20 to 40 percent.

Currently, firms are turning out ready-to-assemble wall units, desks, étagères, tables and cushioned pieces. Shipped in cartons to the store, they are easily transportable to your home. You provide the labor needed to assemble them. In most cases, all that's required is a screwdriver. And when you're done, there's little to suggest that the furniture didn't come from the store that way.

Because you can see it, buy it and use it within hours, economical ready-to-assemble furniture is ideal for college or country living, or as a gift to a friend. People who would most benefit from "instant" furniture might include couples furnishing their first apartment (or a child's room or vacation home) and the one-fifth of the population that moves each year (taking the furniture apart and reassembling it at the new destination could save in moving costs).

Good design, savings and on-the-spot availability are what ready-to-assemble furniture is all about. Although you may not want to rush out and buy it for every room in the house—it's a nice option to have.



Style and comfort abound in this room, which features a collection of furniture you set up with the tap of a rubber mallet or the heel of your shoe!

"Instant" Furniture for the Family Room

if you join now and agree to buy 9 more selections (at regular Club prices) during the coming two years

NO MEMBERSHIP FEE! NO OBLIGATION TO BUY EVERY MONTH
...or even every other month!

†Available on records and cartridges only

Just look at the wide range of recorded entertainment you have to choose from—not only the best and latest from Columbia's huge catalog...but also new releases and old favorites from A&M, Bell, Dunhill, Epic, MCA, Mercury, MGM, Parrot, United Artists and many, many other labels! And with this exclusive offer from the Columbia Record & Tape Club you may have any 12 of these stereo tapes or records for only $1.97.

To order your 12 records or tapes just fill in and mail the handy postpaid application card. When you receive your 12 selections, you will also receive a bill for only $1.97 plus a processing and postage charge. That's all you pay for your first 12 selections—there are no additional membership dues or fees for joining. (Be sure to indicate whether you want your 12 selections on cartridges, cassettes, reel-to-reel tapes or records.) In exchange...

You agree to buy 9 more selections (at regular Club prices) in the coming two years. That's right—you'll have two full years in which to buy just nine selections...so you are not obligated to buy a record or tape every month, or even every other month! And you may cancel your membership at any time after you've purchased your nine selections.

Your own charge account will be opened upon enrollment. The selections you order as a member will be mailed and billed at the regular Club prices: cartridges and cassettes, $6.98; reel tapes, $7.98; records, $4.98 or $5.98—plus processing and postage. (Occasional special selections may be somewhat higher.)

You may accept or reject selections as follows: every four weeks (13 times a year) you will receive a new copy of the Club's music magazine, which describes the Selection of the Month for each musical interest...plus hundreds of alternate selections from every field of music. In addition, about six times a year we will offer some special selections (usually at a discount off regular Club prices). A response card will always be enclosed with each magazine.

...if you do not want any selection offered, just mail the response card provided by the date specified

...if you want only the Selection of the Month for your musical interest, you need do nothing—it will be shipped to you automatically

...if you want any of the other selections offered, just order them on the response card and mail it by the date specified.

You will always have at least 10 days in which to make a decision. If for any reason you do not have 10 days in which to decide, you may return the regular selection at our expense and receive full credit for it.

You'll be eligible for our bonus plan upon completing your enrollment agreement—a plan which enables you to save at least 33% on all your future purchases. Here, indeed, is the most convenient way possible to build a record or tape library—at the greatest savings possible! So act now—mail the postpaid application card today while you can still take advantage of this special introductory offer from the Columbia Record & Tape Club!

This handsome, easy-to-assemble unit can be your library nook.

If Traditional Is Your Style

Curved moldings, framing an interlocking-geometric-block motif on the doors, highlight this three-section library wall unit from JS/Permaneer. A rich reddish-brown-walnut vinyl-veneer finish gives an added look of luxury to this ready-to-assemble furniture. The unit, complete with two sliding-door bottom cabinets, slanted magazine rack and seven shelves for books and display, retails for approximately $99.95.

Butcher block style is durable, has a "now" look.

The Butcher Block Look

Can you guess which pieces are the ones you assemble? Not the sofas, but the coffee table and the étagère from Kroehler's new do-it-yourself collection, all framed in gleaming chrome. The shelf and table tops, which closely resemble actual chopping blocks, are made from high-pressure plastic laminate. The étagère, under $120; the coffee table, under $70.

Which Decorating Style Is Right for You?

(Take This Easy Quiz and Find Out!)

By Marian Matthews

Which home-decorating period or environment is right for you—Early American, Mediterranean or Modern? This quiz may give you the answer:

1. Do you have a "thing" for interesting furniture designs such as (a) canopied beds, (b) carved wood edges for sofa and chair trim, or (c) the oversize rounded sofa and chair shapes of the thirties?

2. Do you feel more comfortable in a room that (a) has few accessories and no curtains, (b) has walls draped with tapestries and windows heavily curtained, or (c) has glass walls and/or many windows?

3. If someone gave you an expensive Oriental rug, would you (a) use it in a room with pine furniture, (b) sell it and buy a Morrocan rug, or (c) use it with upholstered pieces inspired by the forties?

4. Would your plan for redecorating the family room include (a) lots of maple furnishings, (b) furnishing it with wrought iron accessories, or (c) giving it a latex-foam padded sofa and chairs and several ottomans?

5. Suppose you had a choice of an accent chair—not upholstered. Would you choose (a) a sewing rocker, (b) a campaign chair, or (c) a "butterfly" canvas chair?

6. As a collector, do you concentrate on such items as (a) Sandwich glass and pistol-handled silver, (b) ornamental tiles, or (c) old radio cabinets and carnival glass?

7. Are you a pillow lover who (a) makes needlepoint and embroidered pillow covers for sofas and chairs, (b) favors crushed-velvet and colorful damask coverings, or (c) sits on the floor a lot on large cushions covered with denim, ticking or fake-fur fabrics?

8. Has renewed interest in the Orient influenced your plans for redecorating to the extent that you (a) plan an important use of the family-heirloom metal tea chest, (b) want to show off that parquet wood flooring with brilliant fringed rugs, or (c) plan to install wall-to-wall carpeting and then place an Oriental area rug over it?

9. If you found an old house with original pine planking over the fireplace, would you (a) let it remain intact, (b) rip it out and replace it with marble, or (c) eliminate the mantel completely?

10. If you had a choice of a wall hanging, would you choose (a) a primitive portrait painting, (b) a romantic court scene, or (c) a Picasso-type portrait?

HOW TO SCORE YOUR TYPE:

6 or more a's—EARLY AMERICAN
6 or more b's—MEDITERRANEAN
6 or more c's—MODERN (Furniture of the thirties and forties "Modern"? You bet! That's the style the designers are copying these days.)

If you have a combination of at least three in each category, you can count yourself as "eclectic." In other words, you like variety and enjoy mixing different period furnishings and accessories.

(This quiz was prepared with the help of the home-furnishings group at B.F. Goodrich.)

Washed by GE's Potscrubber® Dishwasher. Witnessed by Good Housekeeping.

So when we asked them to witness a demonstration of our Potscrubber Dishwasher on September 18, 1973, we knew they'd be tough.

This was their only requirement:

Show that the Potscrubber cleans dirty pots normally found in the home.

First came the pots and pans. Aluminum, ceramic, porcelain enamel on iron, glass, stainless, even an old pot of questionable origin was used. Non-stick-coated items were rejected. They were too easy.

Then came the messy part. Our home economists outdid themselves with an assortment of tough cleaning problems. We had sticky beef stew, chicken in gravy, pea soup, chicken cacciatore, angel food cake (a real tough one), and a thing we called "spinach disaster." And as if these nightmares weren't hard enough to clean, we let them "age" 3 hours to simulate your "standing time" at home.

Then we washed them. Along with full loads of soiled dishes.

A lot of different kinds of pots and pans. A lot of different kinds of cooked foods.

And Good Housekeeping watched every move we made for three solid days. These are unretouched "before" and "after" photographs.

Proof of what the GE Potscrubber Dishwasher can do under some of the tough conditions you might have at home.

Maybe that's why so many people are really satisfied with their Potscrubber Dishwasher. We know Good Housekeeping feels that way.

That's how we earned their seal.

And we back up our performance with another dependable feature. Customer Care…Service Everywhere!™

This is our pledge that wherever you are, or go in the U.S.A., you'll find a qualified General Electric serviceman nearby should you ever need him.

The Potscrubber Dishwasher… another reason why General Electric is America's #1 major appliance value.

When You Tell Your Child No, Are You Really Saying Maybe?

How Children React to Parents' "Double Messages"

By Dr. Helen De Rosis

Elizabeth Gee

Saying no to children: "It's not mean mean. It's really only human. And that's all you are."

Recently, a parent described an incident in which she asked her teenage son, for the umpteenth time, "When are you going to take out the garbage?" She was angry with him before she asked because she anticipated his refusal. So her question really gave him two messages: 1) I want you to do this. 2) I don't expect you will. Her son heard the second message more loudly than the first, and willingly fulfilled her expectation by continuing to watch TV. He also found her anger irritating and insulting and felt no desire to please her.

What drives this parent to address her son so equivocally? Certainly, one's view of oneself is revealed in the way you relate to those most closely associated with you. In business or with her friends, this woman sees herself as a successful, adequate person. She has no difficulty telling those she supervises what to do. And they do it. With her own supervisor, she can also state her position, and she can accept criticism and suggestions as she sees fit.

But at home, she finds that she cannot assert herself. She finds herself apologetic when she makes requests of her family. In a sense, she fears her power. She feels that she can be loved by her children only if she remains a self-effacing, "permissive" parent. The rule book says that children should make their own decisions. She doesn't question which ones they may make and which ones are her responsibility. She thinks firmness is meanness, so she meekly says, "Why don't you go see the dentist?" when her teenage son's teeth are rotting in his head, knowing that he'll go only when she makes the appointment.

Should she let his teeth fall out of his mouth? Maybe she should. But how many of you could stand to see that happen? So speak up. Say what you want to say. You have that right. Your child is not so fragile that he'll break if you come on directly, honestly and without malice.

The classic example of the multi-message is the saccharine-sweet question: "Don't you want to go to bed now?" It really says: 1) It's time for bed now. 2) I hope you won't give me any trouble tonight. 3) I don't expect you to go without the usual hassle. 4) I wish I didn't have to go through this every night. 5) I hope I'm kidding you as well as myself by asking you, because we both know I'm not really asking, I'm telling. 6) I'm trying to tell you to go to bed, but I can't do it. 7) I want you to take the responsibility and say you'll do it.

Is Your No A Maybe?

Of course, the child in this kind of bind is not able to assume the responsibility. Hearing Mother's voice, seeing her face, sensing her equivocal attitude—all routines familiar to him—Junior goes through his familiar routines of not wanting to go and of not getting ready. When he's eventually in bed, the charade continues, with his getting out of bed for the dozens of reasons children find to do so, and to which some parents acquiesce.

Double messages are the mark of the person who cannot state a position clearly. Such persons often don't know what their position is because they are busy trying to please all the time. They try desperately to avoid offending. These people fear they will incur displeasure by being too "mean" or "pushy." Displeasure, they feel, can lead to anger, anger to vindictiveness, vindictiveness to hurtfulness.

But the truth is that you are entitled to say no, if a no is indicated. Noes should be based on the givens of the situation. You might decide to withhold a reasonable and unequivocal no if your child wants something deeply. While inconvenient or inconsistent with your general policy, you might permit it.

For example, say your five-year-old girl is sitting with older brothers or sisters watching "Peter Pan" on TV and it's past her bedtime. If getting to bed is of crucial importance on that night (which it probably isn't), then she gets an unequivocal no when she asks to stay up to see the rest of the movie, which will run till 10:30. But if you see she wants to be with the family and see the rest of the movie, then that no might be withheld that one time.

Don't worry that she'll nag you to stay up again and again. She may try, but you can briefly explain to her that that was a special time and a special program. If you add that there might be other programs she can watch in the future, she may be quite satisfied.

At any rate, your success will depend on your unequivocal attitude. You have to believe what you say. Your decision for the moment must be unequivocal even though in your heart you may be vacillating. This is not easy to do when you've been a frequent user of double messages and the equivocal no. But practice. Think about it. Plan for occasions when you can use it. And then go ahead and act.

As far as other factors are concerned, such as convenience or appropriateness, you are entitled to use them in making your decisions. If you have been traveling with your family and everyone is tired and cranky, and the children want to go to just one more place, consider the consequences. It may seem very easy to stop in because you are so near. But if it will take another two hours, and your spouse has a headache, and everyone is hungry, then a firm no is indicated, regardless of the dissenting voices. Mean? Possibly. But it's not mean mean. It's really only human. And that's all you are.

In order to be able to convey one message at a time, you have to recognize first that two or more messages are being given. If that's what you want to do, fine. But if you think double messages are single messages, you have to find out that they are not. Here the process of identification may take place. "What am I saying that my child always bucks me? What am I doing that creates such a gap? How am I feeling when I ask my child a question? Am I feeling afraid? If so, why? What do I think will happen anyway if I come out and say, 'No, your mother and I don't want you to do that, period'?"

Answering these questions helps to identify the problem. Then you can decide if you want to, are able to, have the courage to give your offspring one straight message—unequivocally yet not unkindly, seriously yet not grimly, responsibly yet not rigidly.

Pantyhose may cause your itching torment.

It's true.
Pantyhose may seal heat and moisture in... lock air out. So you itch. Sensitive vaginal and rectal areas need special care.
That's BiCOZENE Creme. (Say it "By-Co-Zeen.")
BiCOZENE helps relieve itching fast. Quiets your urge to scratch... even helps promote healing.
BiCOZENE means special care for sensitive vaginal and rectal membranes.

HOW TO MAKE MONEY WITH YOUR CREDIT CARDS

You may have more money in your pocket than you realize. A lot more. In fact, chances are that you have virtually thousands of dollars of "hidden money" in your wallet or purse right now.

Before you can spend this money you are going to have to do a little work. It will take you about 45 minutes. That is approximately how long it will take you to learn 31 legal ways to turn every credit card you have from an expense into a plastic gold mine.

This isn't exactly what the Credit Card Companies had in mind when they issued you your card. But please don't spend a lot of time feeling sorry for them. They have been making money from you from the first day you ever used any of your credit cards. Not only have they been making money from you, they have also been taking a healthy cut from the restaurants, stores, hotels, and other places where you use your cards. Credit card company profits over the years have amounted to millions, upon millions, upon millions of dollars.

So don't start feeling guilty just because you are about to learn how to use your credit cards to make yourself a few thousand extra dollars. Actually, you aren't going to be hurting the credit card companies anyway.

Just in case you are wondering, each of these money-making techniques is perfectly safe. They are also 100 per cent legal and they will not in any way endanger your credit or your standing with the Credit Card Companies. They are the result of a great deal of painstaking research. The results of this research have been nothing short of amazing. Here are some of the things you can do with your credit cards if you know how:

- You can earn interest (up to 7½ per cent) on money you have already spent.
- If you can memorize two short sentences you can flash your credit card and get sizeable discounts on even the things you pay cash for.
- You can use your credit cards to raise thousands of dollars in cash even if banks and finance companies refuse to give you a loan. And you can do this without anyone approving your credit or making a credit investigation.
- You can cut the interest rate you are paying on your credit card purchases by as much as 50 per cent.

© 1974 Good News Publishing Co.

- You can use your credit cards to keep your money at the same time you are spending it and earn interest on it all at the same time.
- You can use credit card company money for as long as 90 days without paying any interest at all.
- You can get up to 40 different credit cards and use each one of them for your own personal profit.

You can use your credit cards to do all this legally and safely. It's amazing but true! But here is something even more amazing. When you use these smart-money techniques you will actually be doing a favor for everyone involved including the Credit Card Companies themselves.

All of this is carefully explained in a brand new book titled, "How To Turn Plastic Into Gold." The book was written by Martin J. Meyer, one of the nation's foremost experts on making money and saving money for you—when you bank—when you buy—when you use your credit card. The book is easy to read, easy to understand, and inexpensive. You can get a copy if you hurry by sending your name and address and $6.95 in cash, check or money order payable to The Good News Publishing Co., 7576 Freedom Ave., N.W., Dept. 1076, North Canton, Ohio 44720. The book will be sent to you promptly by return mail.

If for any reason you should be dissatisfied, you can return the book and your $6.95 will be immediately refunded.

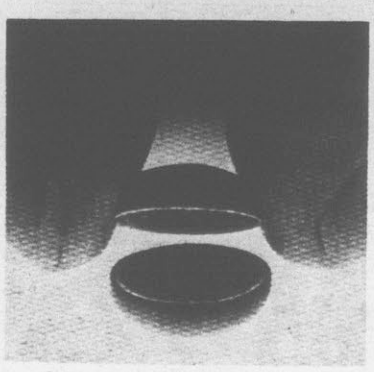
The "two-together" laxative!

(It's made with smaller doses of two laxatives.)



Some single ingredient laxatives work on the "Sunday punch" theory. One big dose of a strong laxative that can knock your system for a loop.

Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are made up of two separate laxatives that combine the surety of a strong laxative with the gentleness of a mild one.

Together they help ease you to regularity without sudden urgency upset.

And because the dosage is pre-measured, Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets are thorough and so predictable you can almost set your watch by them. Take two tablets at bedtime. Get a good night's sleep. And you can expect to be back on schedule in the morning.

Gentle Caroid & Bile Salts Tablets—the 'two-together' laxative—to help put your system back on schedule.

Plant of Life (OLIWA—KU—KAHAKAI)

Now, for those people who love and long for rare, unusual, exotic plants, The Plant of Life is an oddity of Nature, not only for its beauty but because of its ability to grow without soil or water in its early life.

Just imagine the thrill of growing a tropical plant in your home—a plant that grows and thrives on air—a plant that upon maturity can reach up to 6 feet and produce clustered cylindrical green and red flowers which dangle like jeweled lanterns.

A miracle of nature that grows forever. Each plant produces new plants. As many as 12 plants will root and grow and then produce new plants, over and over. An eternal process that is one of the oddities of nature.

Shipped directly to you from Hawaii by Air. Guaranteed to arrive in perfect condition. Only a limited supply. So order now. Money back guarantee.

What in the World!

BOBBY RIGGS
Should Billie Jean take up golf?

QUOTE: Shortly after World War II, Bobby Riggs took up golf and didn't touch a tennis racket for 16 years. Here's what he says about that period: "Since I took up golf so late, I never developed a really good, grooved swing. I was not a long driver—225 or 230 yards or so off the tee. But I did learn to play well around the greens. I had a 'touch' with a golf club, just as I had with a tennis racket. I was good at chipping—using a sand wedge that Sammy Snead gave me when I first started—and became a first-class putter. I was so good that sometimes tournament players such as Gary Player and Bruce Crampton asked me how I did it. My answer probably puzzled them: I just stare at the hole. I concentrate on getting the ball in the hole. . . . It just goes in.'" From "Court Hustler," an autobiography by Bobby Riggs with George McGann (J.B. Lippincott Company, $6.95). UNQUOTE.

If Humpty Dumpty had had one of these newfangled safety helmets maybe he could have been saved. Actually, these little ones are wearing a special type of helmet, designed by a German manufacturer, to prevent severe head injuries. The helmet is made of a plastic substance and is reasonably elastic so that it adjusts to any head size. Because of the way the headgear is designed, it protects the soft spots on a baby's head and still has open parts that don't inhibit hair growth. A word of caution, however: The helmet is not foolproof. You should still look after the baby

The U.S. is still No. 1 in the world in terms of oil production, but here's how the top oil centers and their leaders stack up in the Middle East. King Faisal of Saudi Arabia leads with 355 million tons a year. Next is the Shah of Iran with 289 million tons a year; Sheik Sabah al-Salem al-Sabah of Kuwait: 137 million tons; Colonel Qaddafi of Libya: 109 million tons; President Boumediene of Algeria: 51 million tons; Sheik Khalifa of Qatar: 28 million tons; Sultan Qabus of Oman: 14 million tons and Sheik Rashid of Dubai: 11 million tons. Washington has always maintained that the oil embargo couldn't last because these men are afraid of losing the U.S. market permanently.

CART WHEELS

I wonder when the supermarts
Will motorize their shopping carts.
Like golf carts, then, they can be ridden
And piloted where they are bidden.
The shopper need not push and shove—
The easy travel she will love,
As well as sudden bursts of speed
When there's an open stretch, and need.
Oh, shopping carts with built-in power
Will save the shopper hour on hour
And make the trip around such fun
She'll almost hate to have it done.
We only hope carts thus propelled
Will be well sirened, horned or belled
And also bumpered, for endurance . . .
The store, too, should have cart insurance.

The doctor assured me that he'd have me back on my feet in a week, and he was right. I had to sell my car to pay him. —Lucille J. Goodyear

As a safety precaution during nighttime jumps, skydiving club members wore flashing red and blue lights. One jumper parachuted to a lighted area he assumed to be his target, but which turned out to be a parking lot. Realizing his mistake, he walked up to a woman who'd witnessed his jump. His lights still flashing, he asked her where he was. The woman backed away as she replied shakily, "Earth!"

A weather forecaster, after a long series of wrong predictions, asked to be transferred to another city. "This climate," he explained, "doesn't agree with me." —Thomas LaMance

The telephone company is beginning to charge for directory service. I called up Information and said, "Don't you think ten cents is a lot of money just for answering a question?" She said, "Yes it is. That'll be ten cents!"

My four-year-old brother was going to pour tea for himself and me. He gathered glasses, sugar and spoons. When he went to get the pitcher of tea, he noticed that there was very little left. He poured that into one glass, barely filling one-fourth of it. Then he turned to me and remarked, "Is it okay if you don't want any?"

Parents registering their children at a kindergarten were asked pertinent questions about their children's background. In the blank marked "Language spoken in the home," one mother proudly wrote, "Nice."

I'M WORRIED ABOUT THE LITTLE RED HAIRED GIRL WHO WAS STAYING HERE ALONG WITH HER DOG!

I THINK YOU'D BETTER TELL ME ABOUT THIS LITTLE GIRL YOU SAW HERE YESTERDAY!.

SHE'S OUR PRIME SUSPECT FOR MRS. TEAKWOOD'S MURDER!

ALL I KNOW IS THAT HER NAME IS ANNIE AND THAT SHE HAS A CUTE DOG, OFFICER

SHE WAS HELPING POOR MRS. TEAKWOOD SELL ANTIQUES IN THE SHOP

DID ANNIE LIVE HERE IN TOWN?

I DON'T THINK SO- I NEVER SAW HER AROUND BEFORE

HMMM... FIRST THIS ANNIE STARTS WORKING HERE IN THE STORE AND THEN WE FIND MRS. TEAKWOOD DEAD!..

ALL THE CASH IS MISSING FROM THE REGISTER AND AT TEN-THIRTY IN THE MORNING, ANNIE STILL HASN'T REPORTED FOR WORK!

Mister, I'm lost. I'm looking for 1415 Essex Drive

Oh that's back this way.

Go around that curve and take the street to your left.

Mister, I've already been over there- twice!

There isn't any street that's on your left. I've looked.

I'll show you just where it is if you'll let me get in and ride with you.

Indeed I will not!!

Nobody gets in my car! I read the papers and I know better!!

On second thought, maybe it would be okay, just this once.

Here we are, 1415 Essex! Now may I drive you back to where you were?

Oh, no thanks!

I also read the papers. Guys like me need to be careful, too!

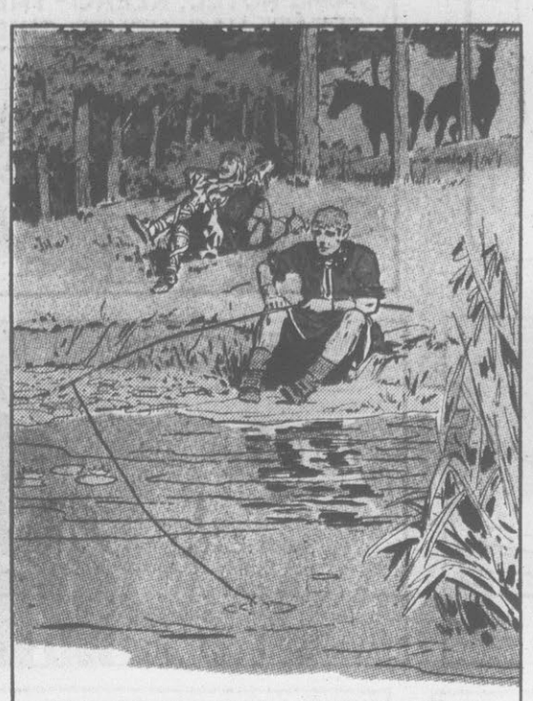
Prince Valiant®

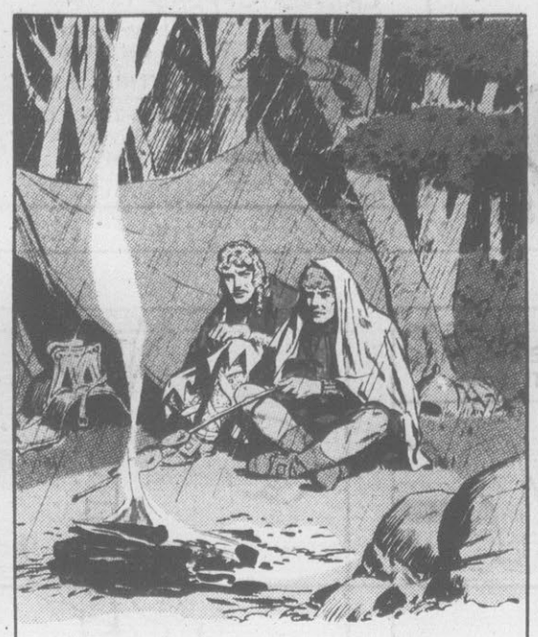
IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAL FOSTER

Our Story: THORVOLD LONGS TO FEEL HIS SHIP'S DECK UNDER HIS FEET. ONLY HIS PROMISE TO FIND PRINCE ARN KEEPS HIM ON HIS NORTHERLY COURSE.



ARN AND SIR GAWAIN WANDER SLOWLY SOUTHWARD WHILE GAWAIN'S SPRAINS AND BRUISES HEAL.



NOBLE KNIGHTS ARE WELCOMED IN EVERY CASTLE OR PALACE, BUT IN THIS DEVASTATED LAND THEY ARE FAR APART AND QUITE OFTEN TRAVELERS MUST DEVISE THEIR OWN SHELTER.

THEY ARE WELCOME VISITORS WHEREVER THEY STOP, FOR IT IS AN HONOR TO ENTERTAIN SO FAMOUS A KNIGHT AS SIR GAWAIN. WHILE THE YOUNG PRINCE ARN PRESENTS A PUZZLE, SO CHARMING AND WITTY AT TIMES AND AT OTHERS SAD.

HIS TROUBLE IS DIAGNOSED AS A TRAGIC LOVE AFFAIR AND THIS GIVES HIM A ROMANTIC IMAGE. SOON HE IS SURROUNDED BY TENDER-HEARTED YOUNG MAIDS ALL SEEKING TO EASE THE PAIN OF HIS BROKEN HEART. FOR A WHILE HE ALMOST FORGETS LYDIA, HIS LOST LOVE.

EVEN THE MARRIED LADIES BELIEVE IT THEIR DUTY TO CHEER UP THE HANDSOME YOUNG KNIGHT, AND DO SO WITH SUCH ENTHUSIASM THAT HUSBANDS ARE NEGLECTED.

SIR GAWAIN GRUMBLES: "IN HIS TRAVELS, YOUR HARE-BRAINED FATHER LEFT A BROKEN HEART OR TWO ALONG THE WAY, BUT YOU, YOU DO IT WHOLESALE!"

THEIR JOURNEY IS RESUMED TOWARD VALENCE WHERE THEY MUST PART; GAWAIN TO RETURN TO CAMELOT AND ARN TO WANDER ON IN SEARCH OF FORGETFULNESS.

HAND a random number of coins to a friend. Ask him to determine, without informing you of his count, if he holds an odd or an even number.

Now, hand him several additional coins, and announce that if his original total was odd, his new total will be even, and vice versa.

In other words, the new result will always be the opposite of what he had before.

Secret: When handing him the additional coins, always give him an odd number. The fact is, that whenever an odd number is added to an even number the result is always odd; similarly, an odd number plus an odd number is always even.

BULLETIN BOARD

● RIDDLE-ME-THIS! 1. Which dog goes quack, quack? 2. Which building holds the most corn? 3. Which animal's name is censored?

1. A duckshund. 2. A corn-dominium. 3. A hippopotamus.

● Cheryl Mesch of Buffalo, N.Y., sends us some more kooky name-words. Among those Cheryl suggests are: Al Phabet, Jack Et, Jim Nastics, Una Versity.

● Math Teaser: Five consecutive whole numbers add up to exactly 100. Quickly, which numbers?

Numbers 18, 19, 20, 21, 22.

● Tongue Tester! Say rapidly aloud, three times without tripping: Fat Frank fed five famished fleas. P.S.: If you can think of a Fat Frank flea foible, feel free to send it in.
