

WWII Holdout Gives Up Sadat Unable Begin Oil Embargo Parley

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Hiroo Onoda, a World War II Japanese army officer who hid in the Philippine jungles for 29 years, presented his sword in surrender to President Ferdinand E. Marcos today.

In a televised ceremony at the presidential palace, Marcos gave the 52-year-old Japanese a full presidential pardon "for any claims or responsibilities during the war" and in the years since. The president told Onoda he was welcome to stay in the country.

However, plans were being made to fly Onoda to Tokyo Tuesday for a medical checkup.

Marcos also returned the sword to Onoda, who wore his old Imperial Army uniform.

Marcos put his arms around the wiry Japanese and said he admired him for his bravery and courage.

Onoda, facing television cameras for the first time in his life, said: "From now on, I will try my best to contribute to the development of my country and the closer cooperation of the Philippines and Japan."

A helicopter brought the former Japanese intelligence officer to the presidential palace from Lubang island, 75 miles southwest of Manila, where he surrendered Sunday to his former commanding officer, Yoshimi Taniguchi, and the Philippine air force chief, Maj. Gen. Jose Rancudo, in the presence of Japanese Ambassador Toshio Urabe. The fugitive's older brother, Dr. Toshio Onoda of Tokyo, was also present.

Dr. Onoda and Philippine Air Force doctors examined Onoda and found him physically fit. Dr. Onoda said his brother apparently had been sick only twice, with the flu, in his years in the wilderness.

Onoda was one of four Japanese soldiers who refused to surrender on Lubang when Japan capitulated in 1945. Several searches were made for them over the years, and twice Onoda was declared dead. One of the four surrendered, and another was killed in a clash with the Philippine army.

Another search for Onoda was launched last year after he and the other holdout ambushed a Philippine patrol. Onoda escaped, but his companion was killed. In February, a Japanese student, Norio Suzuki, contacted Onoda on Lubang, and last week Taniguchi joined the search to help persuade him to give up.

Onoda told newsmen he did not surrender because he had no order to do so from his superior officers.

Onoda's parents, both in their 80s, burst into tears when told their son had been found. The Japanese government announced that he will draw a pension of $610 a year for 31 years and three months of military service.

ANOTHER HOLDOUT—In January of 1972, Japanese Army Sgt. Soichi Yokoi, left, was found in the jungles of Guam after hiding out for 28 years following World War II. Another Japanese Army straggler from World War II, Lt. Hiroo Onoda, right came out of the Philippine jungles Sunday, after holding out for nearly 30 years. Onoda is pictured at a news conference Sunday on Lubang Island in the Philippines. Onoda turned 52 Sunday. (AP Wirephoto)

President Anwar Sadat failed to get all the Arab oil ministers to a meeting in Cairo to consider his proposal to end their oil embargo against the United States.

Instead, Algeria and Libya, who want to continue the embargo, forced a delay in the meeting until Wednesday and insisted it be held in the Libyan capital of Tripoli.

Sadat's failure Sunday was considered a blow to his chances of getting the embargo lifted. The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar said the holdouts had agreed to discuss Sadat's proposal in Tripoli. But some observers doubted the oil ministers would raise the issue unless it had been resolved at a higher level.

After a week of conflicting announcements about the place and time for the meeting, six oil ministers — from Saudi Arabia, Kuwait, Abu Dhabi, Bahrain, Qatar and Egypt — were in Cairo Sunday. Algeria, Libya and Syria stayed away.

The six who came met for 90 minutes and announced they would go to Tripoli. An Egyptian spokesman said there had been no talk of the oil embargo.

A communique said Egypt had offered to host the meeting because of a shortage of accommodations in Tripoli due to an international fair. But it said Libya had managed to provide facilities for the meeting.

Sadat has championed an end to the ban in exchange for Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's assistance in getting Israeli troops to withdraw from the Suez Canal. But Algeria, Libya and Syria are holding out for the pullback of Israeli troops facing the Syrians on the Golan Heights.
Tension remains high on that front.

Syria claimed its gunners shot down an Israeli reconnaissance plane on Sunday and that it crashed near Hatem, in Jordan.

There was no confirmation from Israel. But the Israeli command said its bulldozers and demolition crews destroyed a section of the Quneitra-Damascus road on the Heights

Ponders Fate Of Grand Jury Report

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge is expected to decide this week whether a sealed grand jury report on the Watergate cover-up should go to the House impeachment inquiry.

U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica received innocent pleas Saturday from the seven men indicted March 1 by the grand jury. That left disposition of the report the next major development expected in the case.

At a hearing lasting six minutes, innocent pleas were entered by former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell; former White House aide H.R. Haldeman; John D. Ehrlichman, Charles W. Colson and Gordon C. Strachan; former assistant Atty. Gen. Robert C. Mardian, and Kenneth W. Parkinson, former Nixon campaign finance committee lawyer.

Ehrlichman and Colson also pleaded innocent to charges stemming from the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

When the grand jury returned the indictments in the Watergate cover-up case, it also handed Sirica a sealed report and satchel of evidence, which sources later said dealt with President Nixon's role in Watergate.

James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, told the hearing the White House would take no position on what Sirica should do with the report. However, in a letter filed with the court, St. Clair asked for permission to review the report if Sirica decides to send it to the House Judiciary Committee.

It was at Wednesday's hearing on the report that St. Clair also announced Nixon's decision to give the impeachment inquiry all the evidence he already had given special prosecutor Leon Jaworski and also to answer written questions and submit to an interview by ranking committee members.

Meanwhile, the senior Republican on the House committee, Rep. Robert McClory of Illinois, said he questions whether the committee is getting full cooperation from the White House.

He and committee member Rep. Robert Kastenmeier, D-Wis., were interviewed Sunday on ABC television's "Issues and Answers." Both predicted that if the White House does not give the committee six tape recordings it is seeking the committee will subpoena the tapes.

Says Legislators Respond To Pressure And 'Squeals'

An AP News Special

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — When money is on the line, the North Carolina legislature responds to "the people who squeal the loudest and lean on us the heaviest," according to Sen. Russell Kirby.

Kirby, a Democrat from Wilson, is hearing the squeals and feeling the pressure these days as chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

What the General Assembly, entering its final weeks now, decides to do about taxation is likely to affect the pocketbooks of every North Carolinian.

Kirby, in an interview, said that the General Assembly is prone to basing its financial decisions not on knowledge and research but on political expediency.

Right now there are several money decisions before the legislature. The House has acted favorably on several bills and it will be up to the Senate, starting with the Finance Committee, to dispose of them.

Among them are two which have been heavily lobbied by the banking industry.

One would change the basis on which banks are taxed. Currently they pay an excise tax of six per cent "in lieu of" the franchise, intangibles and corporate income taxes paid by all other North Carolina corporations.

This is so because for years the federal banking laws forbade the states to levy the normal taxes on banks. Those laws were changed several years ago.

The banking industry ever since has had two astute and influential lobbyists, John Jordan and Lindsay Warren, making its case in the legislative corridors. Both Warren and Jordan are former state senators and Warren is still very active in the state Democratic party.

Jordan, in an interview, said the banks are seeking the change not because they want to evade taxes, but because they want to avoid being singled out for tax increases in the future.

If it is passed by the Senate, the banks would be paying about $26,000 more in taxes than they pay now. But they would have insurance against a repetition of their 1969 experience in the legislature.

In that year, the legislature increased the excise tax from 4½ to 6 per cent. The banks found that because of their unique status they had an exposed position and were vulnerable to legislators seeking to balance a budget by raising just a little more revenue.

If the law goes through, anyone seeking to raise bank taxes will have to take on

Board Sworn

The Pitt County Board of Elections, which now has a Republican majority, was sworn in today at 12 noon at the board's new office on Second Street.

Thomas C. Herndon, a Republican, was appointed recently to replace Democrat Burney W. Baker and joins GOP member James C. Lanier Jr. and J. B. Spillman, a Democrat, who were reappointed to their board seats.

Following the swearing-in ceremonies, conducted by Clerk of Court H. L. Lewis, the board was having an organizational meeting to elect a new chairman from among their ranks and to appoint a new secretary.

Spillman currently serves as chairman while Miss Margaret Register is the board's executive secretary.

Poor Pay Proportionally More For Food They Buy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Figures released today by the Agriculture Department showed poor people last year paid poorer prices for food than middle-income and richer families.

The statistics, compiled by family economists in the Agricultural Research Service, showed a "low-cost" food plan in January cost a family of four $41.70 per week. That was up almost 14 per cent from $36.70 in April 1973.

A "moderate-cost" plan rose less than 12.5 per cent from April to January to $53.20 per week. Nine months earlier it cost $47.30 per week.

For a "liberal" plan, a four-member family — including two school children — the every corporation in North, saying that they need higher interest rates to make a profit in times of tight money.

Yet another House-passed money bill would phase out the inventory taxes paid to local governments by manufacturers and retailers over a five-year period by allowing them a credit on their state income taxes.

That bill would be a windfall to people like its sponsor, Rep. Art Thomas, D-Cabarrus. Thomas, an auto dealer, paid about $2,500 in inventory taxes in 1972.

The bill is tied to a package that would decrease taxes for senior citizens and the very poor.

In contrast, money bills backed by consumer lobbyists have made little progress.

Most consumer groups are backing a proposed tax package that would delete the state's three per cent sales tax on food and replace the lost revenue with increased taxes on high incomes and luxury cars and boats.

Some interest in that bill has been recently expressed by backers of the House-passed inventory tax package who have found resistance from Senators who feel that voting for their bill would not be a good way to start an election-year campaign.

But Kirby does not feel it will ever be passed by the current legislature.

"There's no significant pressure brought for a bill like that. Some people (in the legislature) feel that this (the food tax) is the only tax some people pay and they want to keep it on them."

Kirby, asked to define the group that is only paying the food tax, said the legislators who took that view were thinking of blacks.

In such a political situation, legislators are careful. One who knows the ropes is Sen. Gordon Allen, D-Person, the Senate majority leader.

Allen sits on the boards of Central Carolina Bank and the Home Savings and Loan Association. But he has also fought the banks, particularly in 1969 when he sponsored the increase in their excise tax.

Allen said he might not fight against the banks this year because to do so would be a major battle that he might not win. This year, he said, he is more interested in pushing several insurance bills, including no-fault and competitive rating.

"Taking on the banks would be a full time job," he said in an interview. "They have had clout for years. It goes back to the old boss system when a few business

Bulletin

WASHINGTON (AP) —

District Atty. Joseph Busch of Los Angeles County agreed today to seek dismissal of California burglary and conspiracy charges that had been placed in the Ellsberg case against John D. Ehrlichman, David R. Young and G. Gordon Liddy.

The perjury charge leveled against Ehrlichman would remain.

Busch agreed to drop the state charges as a result of the federal indictments.

'Fraud' Probe?

NEW YORK (AP) — Newsweek magazine says President Nixon's 1969 income tax return is the subject of a criminal fraud investigation by the Internal Revenue Service.

Quoting unnamed sources, the magazine said that "in recent weeks, the IRS special intelligence agents, who only do criminal investigations, have interviewed Edward L. Morgan, a one-time White House aide; Arthur Blech, Mr. Nixon's personal accountant, and Frank DeMarco, the President's former tax lawyer."

"The key question is whether a fraudulent deed to Mr. Nixon's vice presidential papers was drawn up in the spring of 1970 to make it appear he had actually given the papers to the archives one year earlier — before congressional legislation outlawed deductions for such gifts," Newsweek said.

The President claimed a $76,000 deduction for donating the papers to the national archives.

The magazine said DeMarco has testified "he had a new deed typed up and had Morgan sign it on the President's behalf in April 1970, but he insists that the new version was only a copy of an original he drew up the year before."

The 1969 document has not been produced, however, Newsweek said.

GOLDSBORO—William A. Dees Jr., chairman of the Board of Governors of the University of North Carolina said this morning that any decision on whether or not proposed legislation to expand the medical school at East Carolina University will be left up to legislators who support the board's position.

Dees indicated neither he, as chairman, nor other members of the board will lobby against the bill, approved February 26 by the Joint Appropriations Committee and scheduled to come to the floor of both the House and Senate as part of the overall budget bill late this month or in early April.

"I'm not going to the General Assembly," Dees said. "I'm expecting the people who support the board's position to make that decision."

"We will still push our program," the board chairman said, citing board recommendations to establish a series of area health education centers (AHEC), designed to provide clinical teaching facilities as well as primary health care across the state. "The recommendations we made we believe are the soundest to follow," he noted. (The board recommended establishment of several AHECs and against expanding the ECU medical school.)

Dees noted that "I have no idea" as to the length of time that will be required to expand the ECU program from one to two years, or increase the class size, if the expansion bill is approved by the General Assembly. "We have to present a plan in our 1975 budget request," Dees explained.

Speaking at the Board's meeting in Chapel Hill Friday, Dees told board members, "I affirm again today my personal conviction that the Board of Governors' plan for medical education charts the course which North Carolina should follow."

He emphasized, however, that both he and UNC President William Friday "made clear our intention to carry out as best we can the laws enacted by the General Assembly... if this action taken by the Joint Appropriation Committee on February 26 should be enacted into law, all of us on this board and the president will do our best to fulfill the requirements of such a law in good faith."

Dees noted, "I do not say this in response to threats of legislative reprisals. I say it because it is our sworn duty to do so. It is, in fact, utterly inconceivable to me that the people of this state or the majority of the members of the legislature, would want their university governed by men and women who are afraid to speak their minds or are too intimidated to offer their honest advice and recommendations. We are not that kind of board and we never shall be."

Dees told the board that there are two aspects which must be dealt with in complying with any legislation to expand the ECU program.

First, he noted, work must be done to "resolve the serious qualitative deficiencies in the present one-year program" at ECU as outlined by the April 1973 Liaison Committee on Medical Education survey team" and "comprehensive planning" will have to be done ... to integrate the expansion at ECU with expansion plans already approved ... for UNCH, and they would have to give particular attention to the provision of clinical training for the second year students at ECU."

The second aspect of the task, according to Dees, "is concerned with larger issues. Our plan for medical education is dependent upon a close working partnership between the university and the community hospitals. That cooperative relationship is the only alternative to the confinement of clinical medical education, both undergraduate and postgraduate, to the academic medical center.

"It is the alternative embodied

Economic Activity Saw January Gain

RALEIGH (AP) — An increase in checkbook spending by Tar Heels was the major factor in a gain in economic activity in North Carolina in January.

Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. reported this as it announced that its North Carolina Business Index advanced by 1.5 per cent to a preliminary level of 139.9 during the month.

A 11.5 per cent increase in bank debits indicated that North Carolina consumers spent increased amounts during January. In addition, the index of bank debits, which adjusts for the number of trading days and price increases, rose 6 per cent.

Two other major economic indicators, non-agricultural employment and manufacturing man-hours remained stable during the month.

The Wachovia economists reported a stable employment trend continued in January with slight employment increases in both durable good and non-durable goods.

But while employment was up, so was unemployment as the increase in the number employed did not offset the greater number of individuals available for work.

"Energy constraints and the cutbacks in production apparently have made it more difficult for newcomers to the North Carolina labor force to find jobs," The Wachovia economists said.

The unemployment rate increased from a recently revised and seasonally adjusted level of 3.7 per cent in December to 4.1 per cent in January, about the same levels as a year ago.

The volume of new car cars during January was 7.7 per cent higher than the volume a year ago. Truck sales, which were 7.1 per cent higher than a year ago, increased 0.4 per cent from December to January.

Her Dance Classes Help Women Achieve Goal

By LEW HEAD
Associated Press Writer
RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Take it from Tara, women who come in all giggles and timidity to learn belly dancing at her studio here "certainly don't go out that way."
"I've seen changes that are very good to see," said the instructor-performer. "I've seen a woman become confident, more aware of herself, with a new interest in her appearance, moving gracefully and at ease."
When she opened the studio two years ago she advertised as a teacher of "Oriental dancing." The public reaction was slow, though her rates were low. When she changed the name to "belly dancing," the studio filled up.
Now she has an enthusiastic clientele of 75 to 100, housewives and career women, studying the Middle East dance that does magnificently by the abdomen, though it is far more than a navel exercise.
"It is a sensuous and sensitive dance that does not lend itself to any vulgarity at all," she said.
She plays a record of soft haunting music in her bare-walled classroom, whose only fixtures are an exercise bar and a mirror, doing her thing in street clothes.

"See," she said, "I'm dancing not to stimulate you but to soothe you."
The soothed mind pulses back about 5,000 years to the temple dancer of Egypt. The thought occurs: those temple priests, with one eye on the stars and one on the dancers, had more going for them than the pharaohs.
And no surprise that belly dancer Salome of the Hebrew culture so easily obtained the head of John the Baptist.
"The dance evolved in the Middle East but had no true origin in one culture," said Tara. "The Arabs used it to tell stories. They used a minimum of footwork. The Turks brought it in fast and complex footwork.

"America has only been awakened to this folk dance since 1893 when 'Little Egypt' demonstrated it at the Chicago World's Fair."
Tara said her own awakening occurred when she discovered the Middle East dance after years of ballet and other dance instruction in New York City, where she was born and grew up as Tara O'Connell. She studied under Serena, a great artist, and became one of Serena's teachers.
"I knew it was the dance for me. I felt there was no chance to be an individual in ballet."
Tara's parents made one demand of their only child in indulging her fondness for the dance: she must also have a more practical calling. "I became a registered nurse."
She also married her childhood beau, Patrick J. Hoey. He's dean of students at a Newark high school and they have three children.
"Little Egypt's commercialism of the dance through successive years diluted it from beauty and grace to coarseness," said Tara.

When Tara interprets her art for the Rutgers Cultural Society, for Prudential Life Insurance employees, or for other groups, she wears a rich exotic costume of gold brocade and silver chiffon, glass beads and pearls, veils, and "only a bare midriff showing."
"One of the greatest things about a true performance, Tara said, is the give-and-take between the dancer and the three to five musicians who normally accompany her."
"It is handed-down folk music and the musicians and dancer improvise."
Instruments may include the oud, which is a sort of rudimentary guitar; the dumbek drum; a kanun, which is like a zither; a clarinet, and very often a violin.
The dancer herself plays zills, a small percussion instrument attached to her fingers that she clicks to the rhythm of the drum beat. In Greece and Turkey enthusiastic spectators may have their own zills and keep time with the performers.

One of Tara's students told her husband she wanted a veil and some zills. "He balked, but he'd been spending heavily on his own hobby, so she said to him, 'Just think about your motorcycle.' She got the veil and the zills."
A prospective student will telephone and say nervously "I just want some exercise," said Tara, "or that she wants to lose weight. I tell her, 'come on, it's less boring than doing pushups in a gym.'"
"The only women without any apprehensions are those of Greek, Armenian and Turkish background. An appreciation of the dance is passed down from mother to daughter in those countries."
"If a woman tells me she's fat, I say, 'Don't let that stop you: the more voluptuous you are the more beautifully you will dance. You'll lose weight anyway.'"
"In our culture everybody is supposed to look like a juvenile. In the Middle East there was never enough to eat. If you were heavy you were rich and beautiful. Middle Eastern men like a lot of hip."

A delighted Tara student is Mrs. Valerie Smith, 26, of Rutherford, who decided she had too much hip.
"Between dieting and dancing I've lost 70 to 75 pounds, four inches off the derriere," said Mrs. Smith.
Another is Mrs. Georgia Grammer, 34, of Maywood, who said she shyly took up the dance after being intrigued by what she saw of it on old films.
Belly dancing has changed her life, said Mrs. Grammer, who is married to a manufacturing executive and is the mother of three daughters.
The difference "is a woman plodding along the street and a woman who owns it, feeling womanly and feminine."

Avoid Hurt Feelings, Tell Hostess Why

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been invited to a house-warming party. The wife is a fanatic about people smoking in her home, and has stated on the invitation that guests who wish to smoke will have to go out on the patio!

Both my husband and I smoke, and neither of us wants to drive 35 miles to attend a party where we will have to go out on the patio to smoke. [It's cold this time of year where we live.]

I've been wrestling with my conscience for weeks, trying to decide whether we should make up some excuse and decline at the last minute to avoid hurting the hostess' feelings, or to simply decline now and tell her the truth. What do you say? HOOKED

DEAR HOOKED: Decline now, and tell her why.

DEAR ABBY: Joe is 33. I am 30. This is the second time around for both of us. We've been married for four months, which is when all our trouble started. We lived together for a year first, and it was heavenly. There was never a problem about his ability to satisfy me, but now that we're married, he has absolutely no interest in me sexually. Joe says when I was his girl friend lovemaking was exciting, but now that I'm his wife—nothing. [I can't understand that statement.]

I have suggested counseling, but he refuses. I think about him all day, and when he comes home I'm turned on by just the sight of him, but he doesn't respond. I am ready to climb the walls.

I am an attractive woman and I'm meticulous about my grooming, and I can't understand his total indifference. I was better off when we just lived together. What do you recommend? LEGAL IS LOUSY

DEAR LEGAL: I am NOT going to recommend that you divorce your husband in order to turn him on again. His inability to become aroused sexually now that you are legally wed indicates that for sex to be "exciting" to Joe, it must be forbidden. [There are men who can perform only with women they consider to be inferior or low-down; wives are "nice" women—like their mothers and sisters, and therefore not for sex.] Too bad Joe refuses counseling. He needs to change his attitudes about sex and love. And counseling is the answer.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I were the parents of three children—two girls and a boy. The boy died last year [at age four] following heart surgery. When we meet new people, they inevitably ask, "How many children have you?" Our son was a beautiful child, and we don't want to exclude him, so how do we reply? Your answer may help others in our situation. C.G.S. IN THE SOUTHEAST

DEAR C.G.S.: Tell them you have two lovely daughters and lost a beautiful four-year-old son last year following heart surgery.

Patricia Hearst Claims The FBI Wants Her Dead

By The Associated Press
Patricia Hearst says in the latest tape recording released by her kidnapers that "it's the FBI who wants to murder me." Her abductors charged the FBI with suppressing their communications.

The tape, received by a Berkeley, Calif., radio station Sunday night, was a duplicate of a recording received Saturday from Miss Hearst and the Symbionese Liberation Army, which claims it has held her since the newspaper heiress was kidnaped five weeks ago. But the tape was clearer and contained a new message from the SLA.

The tapes were the first communication from the kidnapers in 17 days.

Miss Hearst's mother, Catherine, said, "I know that while Patty is captive that she'll have to mutter all the words that are dictated by her captors." Miss Hearst, 20, is the daughter of Randolph A. Hearst, editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner.

Sunday's tape included the SLA charge that, "The FBI intercepted and suppressed" one of two tapes it put out Saturday. It said the FBI "thought the first one was the only one sent out," said a woman who described herself as being from an SLA information intelligence unit. She said the FBI was foiled by "a double-decoy system."

Sunday night's tape was addressed to KPFA-FM, Berkeley, where a woman telephoned that the new tape could be found in the fifth row of a San Francisco theater.

The FBI said it would not comment on the tape at least until Monday morning.

In the tapes, Miss Hearst says she had the feeling she had "been written off." She said "I don't believe you're doing everything you can, everything in your power. I don't believe you're doing anything at all."

In other kidnaping developments over the weekend:

—The wife of a Decatur, Ga., K-Mart store manager was released unharmed after her husband paid about $20,000 in ransom from the office safe. It was the fourth similar incident since Christmas involving K-Mart employees in three states.

—In Hackensack, N.J., authorities continued their search for additional suspects in the kidnaping of 8-year-old John Calzadilla and their attempts to locate the $50,000 ransom paid for his release. Five persons have been arrested. The boy was released unharmed early last Friday.

—In Los Angeles, the FBI said it will present an affidavit detailing a plot to free a convicted skyjacker and another jailed man by kidnaping a foreign consul general. One woman was arrested Saturday in connection with the reported plot. She and the two jailed men were to be arraigned today.

In the Hearst case, the latest recording by the coed included this request: "I really want to get out of here. I ask you not to aid the FBI."

In Sunday's recording, a woman said the SLA sent tapes to radio stations KDIS in Oakland and KSAN in San Francisco. KSAN released its tape, but KDIS said it did not receive a copy.

"Either KDIS, without telling the public or the Hearst family, turned it over to the FBI, who in turn suppressed it, keeping it from the Hearst family, or the FBI intercepted it before KDIS got it and suppressed it from getting to the Hearst family and the public," the woman said.

The latest tape was received by radio station KPFA in Berkeley.

Patricia Hearst called a $2 million food distribution plan for the poor and paid for by her father and the William Randolph Hearst Foundation "a real disaster." The SLA originally demanded $70 worth of food for every poor person in California.

Miss Hearst's father said "we were glad to hear her voice and to know that Patty's alive. But we'll be have to study it before we make any reply."

Preceding Miss Hearst's voice on the tape was one of an SLA member who identified herself as General Genina.

"The prayers of the police state agency are to see to it that Patricia Hearst is killed and then use her death to further rally middle America in support of the Nixon-represented corporate dictatorship and against all revolutionary forces," she said.

In New Jersey, the fifth arrest in the Calzadilla case was made late Saturday when FBI agents took into custody Maria Margaret Marida, 17, at her home at Jersey City. Four teen-aged youths are also being held in the case.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Jonathan L. Goldstein said the young woman would be arraigned today before U.S. Magistrate Bruce F. Banta, charged with conspiring to violate federal kidnaping statutes.

Goldstein said there were still other suspects in the kidnaping. In Decatur, Ga., authorities were searching for the kidnapers of Patricia Daniel, 30, who was abducted Saturday by three men who demanded and got about $20,000 from her husband, William. Mrs. Daniel was found unharmed.

The previous three such incidents involving K-Mart store employees occurred in different states, two in Michigan and one in Tennessee. In one, the kidnaped wife escaped, in another a man was arrested and in the third the kidnapers escaped with $91,000.

In Los Angeles, the three named in a federal warrant charging conspiracy to kidnap are Maria Theresa Alonzo, 22, a former follower of Charles Manson, who was convicted in the cult killing of actress Sharon Tate; Garrett Brock Trappnell, 36, the convicted skyjacker, who was already jailed; and Robert Bernard Hedberg Jr. 37, already jailed on charges of unlawful flight and assaulting a policeman.

Eight Died In Traffic

By The Associated Press
The North Carolina Highway Patrol said at least eight persons died in traffic accidents across the state last weekend, raising the toll for the year to 245 compared to 297 for the same period in 1973.

Nine-year-old Gray Hutchins of Yadkinville was killed when a car struck his bicycle on a rural Yadkin County road.

Danny L. Smith of Pikeville, 15, was a victim of a two-car collision on a rural road near Goldsboro in Wayne County. Three persons were injured.

Two Washington men, Glen Dewey Edwards, 27, and Allen Ray Hardison, 40, died when their car overturned on a rural road eight miles northwest of the Beaufort County town.

Doris Jarrett Garner of Burlington, 48, was fatally injured when she was struck by a car on N.C. 49 just outside Burlington.

Richard Lee Harris Jr. of Pantego died after he was hit by a car on a rural road near his home town.

The collision of a car and a motorcycle on N.C. 18, seven miles north of North Wilkesboro, was responsible for the death of McArthur Laws of McGrady, 26.

Thomas Redwine Wolfe of Albemarle, 44, was killed when his car struck a bridge abutment in Salisbury.

J. H. Brewer Is Stricken

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—James H. Brewer, professor of history and co-director of the black studies program at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, died at his home in Durham Saturday.

Brewer, 64, apparently suffered a heart attack. Funeral services were scheduled for this afternoon at the Duke Auditorium on the North Carolina Central University campus at Durham.

He joined the UNC faculty here last year after teaching at North Carolina Central, Duke University, the State of New York University System, Fayetteville State University and Virginia State in Petersburg.

The North Carolina Literary and Historical Society awarded him its Mayflower Cup in 1970 for outstanding contributions to black history. He was author of two books and numerous articles for scholarly magazines.

A native of Pittsburgh, Brewer earned his Ph.D. degree at the University of Pittsburgh.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters and a son.

Tuero, 17, are shown at their arraignment in Hackensack, N.J. Sunday, on charges of kidnaping 8-year-old John Calzadilla of Dix Hills, N.Y. The four men pleaded innocent. (AP Wirephoto)

Smoke Fatal To Two In Blaze

HENDERSON, N.C. (AP)—A mother and daughter died of smoke inhalation early today as a fire destroyed their two-story frame house in Henderson.

Fire Chief Ranger Wilkerson identified the victims as Mrs. Florence Teace Bullock, 64, and her daughter Florence Elizabeth Bullock, 33. Wilkerson said 66-year-old Willie Bullock, the husband and father to the two women, escaped from the house, but has been hospitalized.

Put Everybody In Lock-Step?

The University Board of Governors last week apparently ordered a policy study aimed at the freedom of its chancellors to speak out.

The board's governance committee is to produce recommendations for new guidelines controlling the "relationship between the board and its administrative officers, the president and employees of the board."

Some writers called the proposals a "muzzle" and saw it as aimed at Dr. Leo Jenkins, ECU chancellor.

Robert Jordan of Mt. Gilead, a member of the board called for the study. He said that Jenkins has been quoted as saying East Carolina will continue to seek a four-year degree granting medical school, despite the board of governors stand.

Chairman William Dees, Jr. of Goldsboro favored the study. He was quoted as saying it "seems to me it would be appropriate to give the president some guidelines" on dealing with chancellors.

It may be well to point that Dr. Jenkins was remarkably quiet on the medical school issue until after the Joint Appropriations Committee cast its decisive vote in favor of the school's expansion. Most observers viewed this as a decisive vote and it certainly was not illogical for Dr. Jenkins to comment after the Legislative committee had acted so decisively.

We live in a land where we like to think of ourselves as treasuring the freedom to express our ideas and thoughts. Certainly there is no where that this cherished freedom should be more protected and nurtured than in the academic world. Yet, here we are with the University Board of Governors attempting to come up with a way to stifle its own chancellors.

We sincerely hope that the UNC administration is not so fragile that it can not withstand the advancement of a fresh idea every now and then by the chancellors of its universities or anyone else. If it is, then we might as well forget about academic freedom in North Carolina and put everyone connected with higher education in lock step with the administration.

N.C. Farmers Plan For Boom

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Tar Heel farmers are breaking new ground this spring, ready for a boom year in crops.

A statewide survey covering all 100 counties shows more than a quarter of a million new cropland is being put back into production this year.

Of the total 257,453 acres that will be converted to row crops, some 200,484 acres fall in the category of formerly "set aside" acreage which had been diverted from production over the years. Some of that land was retired and has been idle since the 1950's when the national Soil Bank legislation took effect.

Of the total in new cropland opened up, about 31,949 acres will be converted from pasture and grasslands back into crop production; about 25,000 acres will be woodland cleared for farming.

The statewide survey has just been completed by the U. S. Soil Conservation Service on a county-by-county basis, drawing on local federal conservationists, local boards and farm agents.

Wetland Care
State Conservationist Jesse L. Hicks said the survey shows that about 104,000 acres of the new land to be planted is listed as wetlands, which can present difficulties in cultivation, and urged farmers to work through local soil and water conservation advisors to get help with problems from excessive water.

Hicks said North Carolina farmers have been careful in the past in practicing conservation methods in such areas, and is optimistic accepted conservation methods will be used.

"Such sensible things as grassed waterways, terraces, field borders and other conservation practices and plantings can do a lot to help curb erosion and reduce the threat of sedimentation in streams," Hicks said.

The opening of the new land for crop production reverses the historic trend downward in North Carolina, the figures show.

The steady decline in production shows 4.2 million acres of cropland harvested in 1971, down to 3.9 million acres in 1972. The new quarter of a million acres put back into production will push the 1974 total back past the four million acre mark.

North Carolina Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham is not all that enthusiastic about the increased cropland expected for the coming season.

He says Tar Heel farmers are being asked to plant from fence row to fence row without any guarantees that fuel and fertilizer and seed will be available to tend and harvest the crops.

Corn, Soybeans
The federal conservationists said they have no firm indications on what will be planted on the bulk of existing cropland and the new land being plowed, but expect corn and soybeans—which are climbing to record prices and sales in the world market—to make up the bulk of the crop.

Graham, who has predicted lines of housewives waiting for food in the grocery stores unless the fuel and farm supplies are made available, is pushing for some guarantees of those supplies and of some assurances of a profit.

Farmers work and grow things, he said, to make money "so their families can live a good life. I am hopeful the law of supply and demand will provide sufficient price levels to enable them to make a profit if they decide to take a chance on fertilizer and fuel and increase crops this year."

Another form of "new land" is being broken in North Carolina this year, in the face of rising food prices and predicted shortages.

Interest in home gardening is booming, and Dr. George Hyatt Jr. of the state's Agricultural Extension Service said the explosion of interest in home gardening... is probably the highest since World War II.

He said virtually any Tar Heel can produce some food, even city apartment dwellers with a window box, and that every county extension agent is ready to give advice and printed information on how to prepare the soil, what to plant, and how to care for it.

How The Public Sees Inflation

By GEORGE GALLUP
(Copyright 1974, Field Enterprises, Inc. All rights reserved. Republication in whole or part strictly prohibited, except with the written consent of the copyright holders.)

BRINCETON, N. J.—The history of inflation in America is dramatically revealed by a comparison of the public's current estimate of living costs with their estimate in 1937, the year the Gallup Poll started this periodic index.

The public's current estimate of the minimum amount a family of four needs per week to make ends meet is $152. This is five times the figure recorded in 1937, which was $30 per week.

These dollar estimates, based on samples of the U. S. nonfarm population, come in response to the survey question: "What is the smallest amount of money a family of four (husband, wife, and two children) needs each week to get along in this community?"

This cost of living index provides a realistic measurement of family needs since it is based on the respondent's own estimates of family expenditures. The federal government's cost of living statistics are based on retail prices and price changes.

As found in earlier surveys, living costs are considerably less in the South and Midwest than in the East or Far West. The East is again found to be the most expensive region of the country, as determined by the public's own estimates of family needs.

The following table shows the 37-year trend:

Year	Minimum Amount Needed By Family Of Four (Nonfarm Families)	Median Averages
1937	$30	$43
1947	$43	$72
1957	$72	$101
1967	$101	$152
LATEST	$152

The table above shows the rapid rate of growth of the public's cost-of-living estimates. In the decade 1937 to 1947, the amount increased by $13. In the next decade, 1947 to 1957, the figure went up by a greater amount, $29. In the 1957 to 1967 decade, the amount again increased by $29. And, in the seven years between 1967 and the latest (1974) survey, the amount has shot up $51, or 50 per cent over the 1967 figure.

In the last 12 months, the percentage of Americans who say the amount needed is "more than $150" per week has increased from 35 per cent to 47 per cent. The percentage saying "$150 or less" has decreased from 65 per cent in 1973 to 53 per cent in the current year.

A key item in family budgets is the cost of food. Thursday the Gallup Poll will report how much Americans are spending for food in the United States at this time.

For the latest survey, a total of 1,444 nonfarm respondents were interviewed in person in more than 300 localities across the nation during the periods Feb. 8-11 and Feb. 15-18. Farm families were excluded from the survey since many farmers raise their own food.

Strength For Today

THE DEMANDS OF FAITH
Michael Faraday, the great scientist, was a member of a strict Scottish sect known as Sandamanians. One of their requirements was that if a man could stand on his feet he must go to church on Sunday.

On a certain Sunday Faraday missed church because Queen Victoria had invited—that is to say commanded—him to lunch with her at Balmoral Castle. On the following week the Sandamanians excommunicated Faraday because he had obeyed the command of an earthly sovereign to take lunch rather than the command of God to attend church.

Faraday accepted his excommunication without a word of protest. He did ask, however, that he be reinstated after he had made amends in the form of "works meet for repentance." Only after doing this penance was the great scientist accepted back into the church.

Some successful men feel that they are entitled by high position to ignore earlier, simplicities of faith; but the truly great always stand reverently before their religion.

The Watergate Crimes

WASHINGTON—We have been warned by everyone that all the people indicted in the Watergate affair must be presumed innocent until proved guilty, and we concur.

But there are crimes they have committed for which they must be presumed guilty until proved innocent.

Here is a short list:

- PURCHASING CHEAP RECORDING EQUIPMENT FOR THE PRESIDENT
- This not only has caused Mr. Nixon embarrassment but could be responsible for his downfall. By trying to save a few bucks on tape machines, the former aides to the President must take the blame not only for tapes that do not exist but also for the erased ones that do.
- SLOPPY FILING METHODS
- No Administration has had such messy files since

Ulysses S. Grant. Every time the special prosecutor or the House Judiciary Committee lawyers ask for a relevant paper, no one seems to know where it is. This is even more tragic when you consider that everyone around the President looked so neat and clean you just assumed they would keep neat files.

BAD BOOKKEEPING

Before the Watergate scandal, everyone assumed that President Nixon was surrounded by bookkeepers. It now turns out that no one had any experience in finance, and large sums of money kept getting lost and being put in the wrong ledgers. Probably the biggest problem was that everyone was dealing in cash which is harder to keep track of than checks.

KEEPING SECRETS
This is one of the most serious charges. As far as we know everyone kept secrets from everybody else in the White House. No one knew what the other person was doing. President Nixon, if we are to believe him, knew nothing at all. By keeping secrets from each other, it was impossible for the staff to stick to the same story when Watergate was uncovered.

HAVING A FALSE SENSE OF SECURITY ABOUT THE FBI AND THE CIA
One of the Many crimes Administration officials are guilty of is believing that the FBI and CIA would follow orders of the White House without questioning them. This false faith in these two

Other Editors Say Dangerous Proviso

(Greensboro Daily News)
The fuel shortage has moved the White House to draft a bill that might indeed increase the country's energy supplies for a time but at the expense of the environment in the long run. It would authorize the Secretary of the Interior to tell states where to build power plants, refineries, supertanker ports and the like.

Its ostensible purpose is to encourage and stimulate the construction of energy producing plants and installations in those states that fall within the next five years to start such program on their own. Its effect could be to empower the federal government to override state laws placing restrictions on the siting and construction of energy-producing plants.

If the White House proposal, for example, it could result in the federal government's disregarding Delaware's 1971 law banning refineries and heavy industry along its coastal zone. Further, imposing this particular federal authority on a state would give industries, such as oil and power companies, a chance to by-pass and ignore local resistance to a proposed site.

Some of the disclosures about the 1971-72 operations of the Committee to Reelect the President make one wonder what might have happened if such a law had been in effect then and a consortium of oil companies had decided to build a tanker port and a string of refineries on the Delaware Coast. Hindsight compels us to bet the oil companies would have prevailed with the aid of a fat campaign contribution in laundered dollars.

Mr. Nixon's own two main environmental advisers, Russell Train, director of the Environmental Protection Agency, and Russell W. Peterson, chairman of the President's Council on Environmental Quality, both disagree with this provision of the proposed law. The bill should be rewritten, as Mr. Peterson has suggested, to help stimulate state planning on energy sources, but without dictating to the state governments.

The state legislatures may have been slow about enacting environmental protection laws, but they are generally moving in that direction now and, in many cases, faster than the federal government. Oregon, to name one, is ahead of the federal government in this field.

Blues Of A Traveling Salesman

By DIERDRE DONNELLY
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—The traveling salesman in the United States has seen his income crimped by shrinking commission rates, rising travel costs and shortages of products to sell.

Now there's the problem with gasoline. And whatever its future, it's forcing new changes on salesmen, and some say they could be driven off the road if it continues.

Nick Adams, a traveling sales representative for several auto parts makers, was stranded in Granville, Wash., for two days when service stations ran out of gas. Now he makes fewer trips and asks customers to guarantee him a tank of gas for the return trip.

Mike Gale, who sells for costume jewelry firms, has cut some working days in half to find enough gasoline on the Connecticut Turnpike for his return to New York City.

The National Council of Salesmen's Organizations represents some 70,000 of the nation's 250,000 independent traveling sales representatives—those who live entirely by commissions on whatever sales they can drum up. The gasoline shortage, it says, is the most critical, immediate problem ever to face such salesmen.

"It's a lot more than an inconvenience," says Gale. "It's an economic loss."

"If we don't see customers, we don't sell merchandise. If this continues through the summer when a lot more gas is used for vacations and weekend traveling, I think a lot of traveling salesmen will begin thinking about leaving the business."

Some independent salesmen already have lost their jobs as companies find that telephoning customers sometimes can accomplish almost as much as selling face to face. Costs as well as fuel problems are factors.

"It's about as efficient as traveling right now, and it cuts down overhead since we don't have commissions to pay," says a spokesman for American Gypsum Co., a small gypsum board maker in Albuquerque, N.M., which halved its sales force and doubled its phoning.

The national salesmen's group estimates the average cost of a salesman's visit was about $50 in 1971. It cost about $60 last year and has gone up eight to 10 per cent since last fall.

Commission rates, meanwhile, have drifted down. The American Management Association says that, on industrial goods, the rate slipped from 7.5 per cent in 1967 to 7.4 per cent last year. On consumer goods, it went from 6.9 per cent to 5.7 per cent.

The salesmen's group estimates the average salesman uses 4,000 gallons of gasoline a year, driving 40,000 miles and averaging 10 miles a gallon between city and country driving. At 20 cents more a gallon—less of a hike than some New York salesmen say they're paying—that's $800 more a year in gas bills.

Party's Tide Divides

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

Democratic prospects in many of the nation's largest states are being threatened by potentially divisive primary battles as candidates try to take advantage of seeming Republican vulnerability.

Party leaders are concerned that hopes to make major gains in the wake of Watergate, including capturing the New York and California governorships, may fall victim to factionalism.

Republican-held states in which Democratic primary fights for governor seem likely include New York, California, Connecticut, Michigan and Massachusetts.

As for Senate seats, Democratic hopes of swelling their current 58-42 majority could be hampered by primary battles in Florida, Ohio, Colorado, Utah and Pennsylvania.

In New York, Democrats have been counting on the alleged weakness of Gov. Malcolm Wilson, successor to Nelson A. Rockefeller, to recapture the state's government for the first time in 16 years.

But there are signs that Wilson may be stronger than expected, especially among organized labor, while the Democrats are headed for at least a three-way primary battle less than two months before the November election.

Though industrialist Howard J. Samuels is considered the Democratic front-runner, Reps. Ogden R. Reid, a former Republican with strong Jewish backing, and Hugh Carey, supported by some New York City organizations, believe Samuels is vulnerable.

In California, many Democrats still consider Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., the front-runner in the polls, a weak candidate running mainly on the name of his father, who was governor before the retiring Ronald Reagan.

As a result, the Democratic field still is large, including San Francisco Mayor Joseph Alioto, Assembly Speaker Bob Moretti, Rep. Jerome Waldie and businessman William Roth.

Among the Republicans, Comptroller Houston I. Flournoy, a moderate, has emerged as the favorite over conservative Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke.

In Connecticut, Democrats are heading for their first gubernatorial primary. Their leading contenders are Rep. Ella T. Grassano and Atty. Gen. Robert Killian.

In Massachusetts, a primary between former state Rep. Michael Dukakis and Atty. Gen. Robert Quinn could damage chances of defeating Gov. Francis W. Sargent.

In Michigan, a primary battle could hurt Democratic hopes to oust GOP Gov. William G. Milliken.

As for Senate races, the most notable case of Democratic over-eagerness appears to be in Florida, where a half-dozen Democrats are seeking the seat of Republican Edward J. Gurney, whose former top aide has accused him of involvement in a kickback scandal. Gurney has denied it.

In Ohio, a May 7 rerun of the bitter 1970 primary between Howard Metzenbaum, now the state's appointed U.S. senator, and former astronaut John Glenn could hurt Democratic chances. The Republican candidate is Cleveland Mayor Ralph Perk.

New Hearing Over Calley

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A federal judge here says he will schedule a hearing soon on a suit asking him to reconsider his decision to free Lt. William L. Calley Jr. on bond.

U.S. District Court Judge J. Robert Elliott refused Sunday to comment further on the lawsuit, filed here Friday by Asst. U.S. Atty. Charles T. Erion on behalf of U.S. Army officials.

On Feb. 27, Elliott freed Calley on $1,000 bond which Calley did not have to pay in cash. Calley had been under house arrest for nearly three years, since he was convicted by a military court in March, 1971, of killing Vietnamese civilians at My Lai.

Erion argued in the suit that Calley had little hope of winning his appeal to a civilian court for a reversal of the convictions. The U.S. attorney said in the suit that all of the points raised in Calley's appeal have been found lacking in merit by the Court of Military Review and the civilian Court of Military Appeals.

Erion also argued that Calley was "convicted of one of the most serious crimes in the history of military justice."

In granting bail, Elliott said that Calley had been a model prisoner and had not tried to escape while held in minimum security at his bachelor quarters at nearby Ft. Benning.

The suit was filed on behalf of U.S. Army Secretary Howard Callaway, Judge Advocate General Maj. Gen. George Prugh and Ft. Benning Commander Maj. Gen. Thomas M. Tarpley.

Streaking Frowned On, But A 'Hopeful' Outlet

By The Associated Press

The newest objects of interest for the spectator sportsman, streakers, generally leave a trail of strong if varied opinions on the merits of their performances in their wake.

A Medical University of South Carolina psychiatrist, Dr. Benjamin Riggs, views the craze as a hopeful sign among college students.

"The dominant feeling I get is the tremendous contrast between this kind of very funny performance and some of the previous kinds of outlets," he commented. "This gives a lot of hope for the future."

Dr. Riggs and a psychiatrist at North Carolina Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill agree that streaking is a fad, but Dr. Seymour Halleck attributes less psychological importance to it.

"I think it is a fad," Dr. Halleck said. "It will come and it will go. I don't think it has any great significance."

"Sure it's a fad," Dr. Riggs agreed. "But I think fads mean something. I would not take a phenomenon like that and give it all sorts of deep, juicy background. But I get the feeling that it is a very healthy form of mixed humor and rebellion which, unlike activist violence, goes in the exact opposite direction and, as a rule, stirs up everybody's smiles."

Most college and university professors in North and South Carolina have taken a tolerant attitude towards their unclothed undergraduates.

For instance, Sig Hewitt, the director of Information Services at the University of South Carolina said, "The administration and faculty here do not condone it. Exhibitionism should not be encouraged. We really feel like we have to face the facts of life. Every spring, as the weather turns warm, students come up with a way to blow off steam. This year, the vogue's been streaking."

On the other hand, Appalachian State University is one institution that has set a hard-line policy.

Dr. Braxton Harris, vice chancellor for student affairs, said further nocturnal nudity is unacceptable and warned that students identified as streakers will be "subject to immediate suspension by the chancellor pending a hearing."

The attorney general for the institution's Student Government Association, Douglas B. Little, echoed the policy. He announced that, "Individuals participating will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law."

One South Carolina legislator does not share the opinion that streaking fever will die a natural death in due course.

Rep. John Miles, D-Sumter, has introduced legislation in the General Assembly that would set a penalty of 90 days imprisonment and expulsion from public schools upon a conviction of streaking.

Dr. Riggs disagreed with setting so harsh a punishment for streakers.

"I'm sorry to hear there are some tight-lipped, narrow-minded characters who would like to pass some precipitate, punitive legislation on streaking as immoral," he said.

"I think it's no worse than panty raids," he added. "It's probably better because nothing gets stolen."

N.C. Sees End To Unseasonable Heat

By The Associated Press

The National Weather Service says North Carolina has seen an end to record-breaking temperatures for a while and some much-needed rain is expected to cross the state today.

Cooler temperatures will take over for the next few days. Rain will relieve the high danger of forest and brush fires. It will spread into the western counties today and over the state tonight. It should end from the west tomorrow.

State Forester Ralph C. Winkworth cancelled burning permits in all 100 counties across the state Sunday because of the danger from fires. The State Forest Service says fires are prohibited day and night except for within 100 feet of an occupied dwelling.

Meanwhile, flames continued to consume dry woodlands and brush in a major wildfire in the northeast section of Pender County. Winkworth said the fire was seven miles in circumference and was burning out of control in the remote Holly Shelter section.

It began Saturday as a "control burn" by the Wallace Hunt Club on land owned by the club. The Forest Service said by early Sunday, it had destroyed about 1,500 acres.

The fire has been listed as a project burn, that is, one which will take days to extinguish and will require more personnel to combat it than the Forest Service has in one area.

Winkworth said since March 1, about 13,600 acres of state forests have been burned by 955 wildfires.

Temperatures today will be noticeably cooler because of mostly cloudy skies and northeasterly winds. High readings will generally be in the 50s with 60s in a few places.

Seeks Form Singles Unit

FOUNTAIN—Miss Elsie Dunn, who lives here, is seeking to organize a chapter of BASIC International Inc.

"This is an organization of single persons who are interested in having Christian fellowship with others who have experienced the heartbreak of losing a loved one, either by death or divorce, or who are alone by choice or circumstance," she said.

"BASIC holds meetings, social gatherings, and educational adventures and is active in local Christian outreach program and three foreign mission projects. The name means 'Born Again Singles in Christ,' and as the name implies, members must be born again and single. Men and women of all ages and faiths are invited to join," she explained.

All that is needed to organize a chapter are seven single adult Christians, Miss Dunn said. She asks interested persons to write her in case of BASIC, Rt. 1, Box 161, Fountain, N.C. 27829.

institutions might have been the beginning of their undoing. The tragedy of Watergate is that the FBI and CIA could not be counted on to cover up goofs in the Administration.

BELIEF IN THE MANDATE

This is not a felony, but a misdemeanor. Everyone around the President believed the election results in 1972 would guarantee that no one would be interested in how he won his mandate. Had Nixon aides not been interested in winning a mandate, there might never have been a Watergate.

OVERACHIEVING AT FUND RAISING

The success of the Nixon fund-raising drive was one of the main reasons everything went wrong. Had the Committee for the Re-Election of the President been short of money, it never would have had the finances to get them in so much trouble. When you're broke you have no choice but to put funds into billboards and TV commercials. When you're flush you have a tendency to hire spies and private detectives to do dirty work for you.

PLAYING TENNIS WITH EACH OTHER

The Nixon people only played tennis with each other, which kept them from knowing what the rest of the country was thinking. Had they let outsiders into their game they might have realized that what they were plotting for the President was wrong.

No Injuries In Collisions

An estimated $1,200 property damage resulted yesterday from two collisions investigated by Greenville police.

Officers reported heaviest damage resulted from an 11 a.m. mishap at the intersection of Elm Street and North Overlook Drive involving cars driven by Herbert Raymond Carlton Jr. of 1735 Beaumont Dr. and Betty Corlette Pair of 102 Lord Ashley Dr.

Investigators, who estimate damage at $300 to the Carlton car and $450 to the Pair vehicle charged Carlton with failing to see his intended movement could be made in safety.

Cynthia Katham of 301 Library St. was charged with failing to see her intended movement could be made in safety following investigation of a 4:15 p.m. collision on Cotanch Street 51 feet South of the Fifth Street intersection.

Police reported the Latham car collided with a vehicle driven by Annie Belle Snuggs of 1703 South Greene St. causing an estimated $300 damage to the Latham car and about $200 damage to the Snuggs car.

No injuries were reported in either collision.

Alford Will Join Studies

CHAPEL HILL—Ott Alford, superintendent of Pitt County Schools, will attend a special study institute on the "Right to Education Mandate" at the University of North Carolina here beginning March 18.

The two-day institute will brief about 200 North Carolina local school officials on the possible effects of recent demands for full educational services for handicapped children.

Andrew Vance of the N. C. Attorney General's office will review the progress of a suit brought against the State by the N. C. Association for retarded children. The suit seeks to obtain free public education for all handicapped children.

Rep. Patricia Hunt will outline the "N.C. Legislative Outlook" in the area of special education. Other speakers will discuss probable impact of new laws requiring more special education services from local schools in North Carolina.

The Institute is sponsored by the Special Education Program of the UNC School of Education.

Like a car pool in the sky.

One of the obvious solutions to the energy crisis is mass transit. People are being requested to travel in buses, commuter trains or car pools. When you travel between cities, flying offers the same opportunity to "get together" and save fuel. Piedmont's wide-comfort 737 fanjets, for example, seat 90 passengers.

And because we offer regional service—to cities both large and small, Piedmont's schedules, more than ever before, can fit your travel plans.

To comply with the President's request for fuel conservation, some Piedmont flights have been rescheduled to assure continued service among all cities along our system.

We've got a place for you. See your travel agent or call Piedmont—seats are available on most flights. Just like a car pool in the sky.

New York Draft Evader Came 'Back From The Dead'

By DAVID COHEN

HAMILTON, Ont. (UPI) — You can't go home again—can you? Or do you want to?

Steven Wayne Trimm, 25, an anti-war draft evader from Chatham, N. Y., who found sanctuary in Canada, doesn't know for sure. He was officially dead from the time he "drowned" off Rhode Island in 1969 until he reemerged here last fall to register with Canadian immigration and apply for landed immigrant status. Trimm's fears that the United States will press for his extradition are somewhat abated, although FBI officials reportedly are studying his case. And while amnesty for draft evaders and conscientious objectors has been widely debated in the United States, there has been no official federal action establishing leniency. Deportation is still a possibility, but Trimm is now aware of appeal procedures that can delay it for years. In the meantime he is awaiting the Canadian government's decision on his application. "I don't have landed immigrant status yet—it's still up in the air," said the short, stocky, blue-eyed man at his rooming-house near downtown Hamilton. "Until I am landed I don't have enough of a future to plan. It's still day to day, week to week. I can't go beyond that now."

Four Year Sentence

Trimm's ordeal began in 1967 when, as a follower of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., and Mahatma Gandhi, he applied for conscientious objector status and was denied. After he refused to be drafted, he was sentenced to four years in prison for failure to comply with the Selective Service Law. An appeal failed on Oct. 10, 1969.

On the following day, Trimm fled to Montreal. On the day after that, a note signed by Trimm and some clothes were found on a Rhode Island beach, planted there by a friend. His apparent suicide was accepted by officials, his parents and brother. Trimm said the main reason for staging a suicide was that his parents had put up their home in lieu of $5,000 bail so he could remain free while awaiting outcome of his appeal.

"When I went underground, I knew the house could be seized," he said. "I thought, perhaps, that if the authorities did not know my status, whether I was alive or dead, they could not legally move against the house." (The house never was seized.)

"The second reason I went along with the suicide thing was that, as terrible as it would be for my parents to think I was dead, it would be much kinder actually. Having them live from day to day fearing for me would just eat them up alive. I just thought it would be better if they thought I was dead, and they'd get over the blow after awhile."

First Six Months

Trimm became Jim Bridger in Canada, found work and made friends, none of whom knew his true circumstances. He now teaches at a free school.

"I never got close to anybody, real tight, you know," he explained. "Because if I did, then inevitably I would confide in them, and that would start the old grapevine growing."

The first six months in Canada were his most difficult, Trimm said. Once a policeman appeared at his door and he thought the game was up, but the policeman only was inquiring about a parking violation. Later when he was in Ottawa on business, the capital was swarming with police due to FLQ terrorism and Trimm was informed his parents of his whereabouts and they were reunited in Hamilton last Christmas. He said his parents had been in touch with U.S. federal authorities who told them their son "probably" could serve whatever sentence he eventually gets, if he returns to the United States, by doing hospital work.

Reunion With Parents

After his registration, Trimm

informed his parents of his whereabouts and they were reunited in Hamilton last Christmas. He said his parents had been in touch with U.S. federal authorities who told them their son "probably" could serve whatever sentence he eventually gets, if he returns to the United States, by doing hospital work.

Trimm said his isolation in Canada was "very difficult to come through intact" but one good thing has come out of his conviction as a draft evader—"my family is a lot closer to each other than they were before."

"While in the States, I was under so much pressure—I couldn't rationalize or evaluate a hell of a lot that was going on around me," Trimm said. "Now I have had time to get a better understanding of what's going on in the States. It's just been healthier up here."

No Secrets, No Gimmicks In Kissinger's Supply Of Energy

By JOHN BARTON

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Any one hoping to make a fortune by discovering and marketing the source of the incredible energy of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger may as well forget it. There are no secrets and no gimmicks, according to the people who know him best. "There are no special foods or diets or exercises," said a high-ranking confidant of the Secretary. "The only physical exercise he does that I know of is coming to work."

"He is simply a man of extraordinary energy. He has the greatest built-in energy system I have ever seen. He's a dynamo." Kissinger never ceases to amaze his colleagues, whether he is hopscoching around the world seeking solutions to such complex problems as peace in the Mideast, detente with the Soviet Union and China, or simply receiving an endless stream of foreign and U.S. leaders at his White House or State Department office.

He works 18 to 20 hours a day, seven days a week. If anything, his pace speeds up on weekends, sometimes to the dismay of foreign service officers who complain they almost never see their families anymore, except perhaps for a quick meal before rushing back to the office.

Compulsive Need

One associate ascribes Kissinger's drive to a compulsive need to get things done. "You know, if you really want to get ahead in this world, you have to move faster and work longer than others," the associate said. "Henry moves faster and works longer than anyone else."

"He doesn't even suffer from jet lag. In fact, he doesn't seem to suffer from any kind of lag. He's more than just a self-starter. He just never seems to run down."

But occasionally even Kissinger gets the message that not everyone has as unlimited supply of energy as he does. A case in point was the recent visit to Washington of Egyptian Foreign Minister Ismail Fahmi and Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister Omar Sakkaf.

The weekend in question, Kissinger made a 24-hour roundtrip to Key Biscayne, Fla., to discuss the energy crisis with President Nixon before returning for the Fahmi-Sakkaf meetings. On impulse, he included a four-hour meeting with Chairman J. William Fulbright of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in Little Rock, Ark., hardly on a direct line between Washington and Florida.

Wears Out Arabs

On his return, the Secretary ordered the presidential jet he was using to land at nearby Dulles Airport instead of Andrews Air Force base, the usual practice, and rushed to meet the arriving Arab diplomats and inform them he had planned a working dinner within the hour.

Fahmi and Sakkaf thanked him for his hospitality but told him it was the equivalent of 2 a.m. EDT when they began their day. They said they were exhausted from their transatlantic flight and would see him the following morning.

Kissinger, who is not used to being stood up, took it well. Instead, he invited several senior State Department officials to join him at dinner, which was just being removed from the ovens in the department's kitchen. The result was an unceremonious exodus.

"I mean no disrespect, sir," said one of the departing foreign service officers, "but this is the first night in several months I will be able to spend at home with my wife and in time to see my children."

No Rancor

While Kissinger's seven-day work week has inconvenienced top aides, it has produced surprisingly little rancor.

"You can't criticize a man who is more demanding of himself than he is of others," one official said. "He is hard on us, but he is harder on himself."

Some critics contend Kissinger works so fast he is disorganized. "That simply is not true," a confidant said. "He is well organized and he knows how to tell people what to do."

Occasionally as he zips across the time zones trying to solve a rainbow of the world's problems on an itinerary that would be a travel agent's nightmare, Kissinger will catnap in the bed on his big jet.

"But only after instructing his staff what reports he wants when he awakens," the official said. "He might sleep then, but rarely. His staff never does. And he has instantaneous pickup. He will wake up and ask immediately for the reports, digest them and bound out of the plane ready for full-scale negotiations wherever he is."

Watches Weight

Kissinger does have to watch his weight. "When I get into difficult negotiations, I tend to overeat," the Secretary told reporters on a recent Middle East trip, patting a rotund stomach to underscore his remark. He said he also consumes a lot of soft drinks under such circumstances.

When he is not traveling, Kissinger's normal day begins with breakfast at the State Department, never later than 8 a.m. An official said it invariably is "a working breakfast, either with some visiting official or with some senior staff members."

Then he is off to the White House, where Kissinger says he has daily meetings with the President. Later he returns to the State Department where he either has lunch on a tray in his office or presides over a working lunch for visiting dignitaries. Dinner is held in late evening under similar circumstances.

"Most of us eat our meals in order to refuel our bodies and give us time to ponder over the events of the day and our lives," an aide said. "Not him. Henry doesn't need a diversionary meal."

Two Injured In Auto Accident

Two persons were reported injured and an estimated $1,800 property damage set in a 6:15 p.m. Saturday collision at the intersection of Fifth and Greene Streets.

Police reported Butch Chavis of Route 1, Bethel and James Ray Reid of 803A Ward St.—the drivers of the two cars involved—received minor injuries in the mishap that caused an estimated $600 damage to the Chavis car and about $1,200 damage to the Reid auto.

Both Chavis and Reid were charged by police with failing to stop for a stop light.

Charge Three In Conspiracy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three persons, including a former follower of the Charles Manson family and a convicted skyjacker, have been charged in an alleged plot to kidnap a former consul general.

The FBI said it planned to file a 22-page affidavit with a U.S. magistrate detailing an attempt to kidnap a consul general from one of eight foreign nations to bargain for the release of a convicted airline hijacker and another jailed man.

Jailed pending arraignment today on a federal warrant charging conspiracy to kidnap was Maria Theresa Alonzo, 22, a former follower of Manson. Alonzo was convicted in the cult killing of actress Sharon Tate.

Also charged in the conspiracy case were Garrett Brock Trapnell, 36, the convicted skyjacker, already jailed; and Robert Bernard Hedberg Jr., 37, already jailed on charges of unlawful flight and assaulting a policeman.

The FBI said it broke up the plot Saturday afternoon with the arrest of Miss Alonzo at a Hollywood apartment. Sheriff's officers said her forehead still bore an "X," the symbol used by followers of Manson who performed a vigil outside the

'Open To Suggestions' On Bikeway Plans For City

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer
City Planner John Schofield says his office is open to suggestions and recommendations from the general public concerning the city's proposed bikeway plan.

Schofield discussed the plan, prepared by his office, with the City Council at Thursday night's session.

The city planner noted that several months ago a request was made to the Council that the idea of establishing bike paths in the city be studied. A study showed that in 1973, there were some 2,250 registered bikes in the city and at the end of the 1972-73 school year, there were 1,700 bikes registered at East Carolina.

Schofield said that the proposed system of bikeways is being offered in an effort to provide the bike rider with an element of safety and to insure efficient movement of both bikes and automobiles. The bikeway system is roughly 31 miles in length, he reported, and would cost between $29,000 and $32,000 to put into effect.

In the design of a bikeway, Schofield told the Council, there are three possible alternatives available. A Class One bikeway, he contended, would be one that is completely separated from both motor vehicle and pedestrian travelways and would be reserved solely for the use of bicycles. Class Two bikeways utilize semi-exclusive rights of way for bikes and motor vehicular or pedestrian crossover traffic is permitted for access to adjoining systems. He said that Class Three systems, through the use of shared rights of way, allow all types of vehicular traffic to use the same facilities with the bike route designated only by signs.

Schofield said that with the major purpose of any bikeway being to provide the maximum amount of safety to the riders, Class One facilities are by far the safest and Class Three offers the least amount of security for cyclists.

The city planner reported that in 1971, there were 2,955 bicycle licenses issued. The figure, he said, represents the high mark for city registration because of the campus bicycle registration program which began in late 1971. He pointed out that the campus police department estimates that only 50 per cent of the campus operated bicycles are licensed.

Schofield said that it would not be unreasonable to assume that approximately half of the bicycles operated in Greenville are not licensed.

The official told the Council that an analysis of both city and campus bicycle registrations was performed in an attempt to estimate the location and potential demand of Greenville's bicycle riders. The newer residential subdivisions were the areas with the highest bicycle registration figures, he said.

During the January of 1972 through December of 1973 period, it was noted, there were 32 bicycle accidents, with nine of those occurring on Fifth Street, four in the downtown area, and six on 14th Street.

Schofield said that in proposing a system of bikeways for the city, all types of bikeway classes were incorporated due to the city's street pattern. The major difficulties in presenting a single unified system were variations in street widths, poor road conditions and on-street parking.

He pointed out that existing and anticipated land uses presented no real problems, although some residential areas were not included in the plan due to their "isolation" in terms of distance to safe facilities.

He said that it would be possible to have bike systems within a subdivision and not tied in with the city plan. A number of persons questioned why the proposed system did not include particular areas and Schofield said that he welcomes responses from citizens with suggestions in an effort to come up with the best possible plan.

The proposed plan, rather than being a single continuous system, is composed of four components totaling 31 miles. A major consideration was the connection of all major school and recreational areas.

There are several gaps, he noted within the system, including; no direct bicycle connection between Agnes Fullilove School and South Greenville School; only one connection point between West Greenville and the Central Business District; no provisions in the plan for Southwest Greenville; and no provisions for the neighborhoods north of the Tar River. Southwest Greenville was not included since it is not felt that any of the major streets in the area could provide for safe bicycle travel, Schofield said. The area north of the river was excluded since only 44 bicycles were registered from the area and since the only access to the main part of Greenville is by two bridges not suitable for bike traffic.

By breakdown, according to class, the bikeway would include .85 miles of Class One (bikepath) facilities; 2.18 miles of class Two (bike lanes-sidewalks); 15.95 miles of Class Two (bike lanes-painted lanes); and 11.97 miles of Class Three (bike routes).

The overall bikeway plan is broken down into four parts, Schofield said. They are the West Greenville Bikeway, the College View Bikeway, the South Eastern Bikeway, and the Central Greenville Bikeway.

Schofield said that East Carolina is currently investigating the use of bikeways as a means of improving intra-campus circulation. These bikeways would presumably become part of an overall transportation plan, he said, and would hopefully be coordinated with the city plan. He cautioned that two separate and distinct bikeways should not be developed since it would lead to more traffic problems than currently exist without bike facilities.

The city planner said that the uniqueness of a bikeway is that it can be used for a variety of purposes. "At an initial cost of over $1,000 per mile," he noted, "it may seem to be an expensive facility. However, when considered as a means of recreation and as a possible replacement for the automobiles, the initial cost seems to be reasonable."

Council members indicated their support for the development of a bike system and encouraged continued study of the proposal.

Tradition Seen Major Barrier

By ANDREW TORCHIA

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — A two-week upheaval has given the Ethiopians the tools to transform their feudal state into a modern democracy, if they want to.

But despite major gains by the reformers, many observers question whether Emperor Haile Selassie's kingdom is ready to shake off the traditions that have built up over 2,500 years.

"These reformist tendencies have a way of dying," one longtime Western resident said. "Ethiopians prefer gradual change, and that means slow."

About 120,000 workers were returning to their jobs today after a four-day general strike that demonstrated the strength of organized labor for the first time in the country.

The unions won from government negotiators promises of a minimum wage, the right to strike for public utility employees, nationwide price controls and abolition for poor children of $2.50-a-term school fees.

The 82-year-old emperor told officials of the Confederation of Ethiopian Labor Unions he was pleased with the peaceful settlement. International flights into Addis Ababa resumed, and a quick return to normal was expected in the ports, on the railroads and in basic industries.

Premier Endalkachew Makonnen's pledges of quick legislative action to accomplish the labor reform apparently closed out the crisis that also included a military mutiny for higher pay and a government cleanup.

The mutinous soldiers became an effective force for social change. A government that represented the interests of the aristocratic, land-owning clique was replaced by a cabinet of younger, skilled moderates. The military leadership also was purged. The emperor was pressured into promising constitutional amendments that could severely limit his own powers.

Speaking Of Shortages: Singapore Has Them All

By PETER O'LOUGHLIN
Associated Press Writer
SINGAPORE (AP) — Oil shortages? Inflation? Making do with ground beef instead of filet?

If you think you've got problems, spare a thought for the citizens of Singapore — they can't get housemaids.

The domestic crisis is so grave a local newspaper devoted a two-part series to the problem and headlined it: "Where have all the maids gone?"

To the factories that have sprung up as a result of Singapore's rapid industrialization seems to be the answer.

"The burgeoning industries have lured away thousands of women to do jobs which they find more rewarding and dignified," said the Nation, assessing the servant shortage. "Being a servant has become a social stigma."

The maid shortage has forced Chinese and European housewives in this hot and humid city, 77 miles from the equator, to bear the unbearable — washing, ironing, cooking and minding the children.

Some households which used to boast a cook, wash amah, baby amah, driver and two gardeners are down to one servant or worse, no servants at all.

There are still some hopefuls who advertise for help, like this one in the Straits Times:

"Wanted a couple, an amah or two amahs and a male domestic, must be fond of dogs, large family house." Those who know say ads like that are hopeless.

The more realistic advertise like this: "Cook amah live in small family. No washing (laundry). Attractive quarters."

The more appealing the employer can make the job sound, the better the chance of getting a maid.

British and Chinese bemoan the arrival of large numbers of American oil men and their families in Singapore. They say they've ruined the market.

"Americans pay $250 a month (US$100), give them a television set, nights off, provide a washing machine and pay them $10 (US$4) to mind the kids at night. The next thing they'll be supplying air conditioned quarters," said a maidless Australian naval officer.

Housewives who have advertised report that applicants reverse the interviewer's role.

"My dear, SHE interviewed ME!" said a distressed American woman who has been in Asia for 10 years. "She wanted to know how many children, how many rooms, did we have a washing machine, were there any pets? She inspected the house as if she was buying it."

Gone for good are the days of the loyal and faithful servants who mixed the master's pink gin, wiped the baby's nose, prepared dinner for 14 on two hours' notice.

The days of the stern mah chias, who ruled generations of households in Hong Kong and Singapore, are also numbered. These formidable ladies, the so-called "black and white" amahs, wore short white coats with Chinese collars, long black baggy trousers and wore their hair drawn severely back in a bun.

Abrupt, even downright rude, they worked with the efficiency of a computer and disciplined the kids like a boot camp sergeant.

Many wives admit they are terrified of their servants, particularly these old mah chias, whose English could have been learned from an old Charlie Chan movie.

Heavies, at farm, 17-18 cents, mostly 17 cents per pound; f.o.b. plants 21 cents.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market steadied today after an early wave of selling amid disappointment over a lack of progress toward an end to the Arab oil embargo. The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 3.91 at 874.14, recovering from a drop of more than 8 points in the first half-hour. Losers maintained an edge of close to 2 to 1 over gainers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said the market's weakness at the outset stemmed from investors' disappointment that three nations had sent no representatives to a meeting of Arab oil ministers Sunday to discuss the future of the embargo. Some analysts said they believed the market was performing well in the face of such negative news.

"I think the market is recognizing that the embargo is going to come off," said Jack Trachtman at Steiner, Rouse & Co. "It's just a question of when."

Stocks of companies with a direct stake in oil supplies were conspicuous among the early losers. Walt Disney Productions slipped 1 1/2 to 50 3/4, Ramada Inns was down 1/4 at 7 1/2, and Howard Johnson was off 3/8 at 11 1/2.

Simplicity Pattern, down 1/4 at 14 1/2, was the Big Board volume leader. Trading in the issue included a 119,900-share block at 14.

VCA Corp. rose 1 1/2 to 16 1/2. A Dutch company which previously had offered to buy some VCA stock said it would purchase all of the company's outstanding shares at $16.50 apiece if a minimum of 1,175,000 shares were tendered to it.

First Wisconsin Bankshares slumped 2 1/2 to 26 1/2. North American Mortgage Investors sued First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee, alleging negligence in dealings with Walter Kassuba, a Florida land developer who has filed a petition under the federal bankruptcy laws.

North American, a Boston-based real estate investment trust, was trading at 21 3/4, up 1/4.

At the American Stock Exchange, the volume leader was Financial General Bankshares, down 1/4 at 9. A 49,300-share block was traded at 9.

The Amex's 11 a.m. market-value index was down .18 at 99.06. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dropped .31 to 52.07.

Nowadays, Allen said, the banks have a well-oiled lobbying machine. Within eight hours, he said, they can have local bankers across contact legislators from their district and tell them how the banks would like them to vote.

"People like to maintain friendly relationships with their bankers," Allen said. "They never know when they might need a loan to expand their business or something like that."

Consumer groups, he said, are not as well organized or effective. They have never demonstrated that they can insure reprisal at the polls against a legislator.

"People in groups like that are very individualistic and defy organization because they don't have the profit motive," Allen said.

Checking Up On Thornsby . . . Miners' Plaint

By MARIA BRADEN
Associated Press Writer
EVARTS, Ky. (AP) — A citizens inquiry into the strike at Eastover Mining Co.'s Brookside mine was scheduled to start here today at the site of the 1931 Battle of Evarts.

The inquiry is patterned after the hearings held by author Theodore Dreiser and a group of writers on the bloody struggle to organize Harlan County some 40 years ago. The Battle of Evarts was a gun fight between coal company guards and union coal miners in which five men were killed and several wounded.

The citizens panel, chaired by Dan Pollitt, University of North Carolina law professor, planned to take testimony from miners, union organizers and company officials for two full days and then publish a report of its findings.

Among the topics will be the history of the nine-month-old effort to organize the Eastover mine—seen as a key to organizing the East Kentucky coal fields. Eastover is a subsidiary of the Duke Power Co., the nation's sixth-largest public utility, based in Charlotte, N.C.

The Brookside mine has been shut down since last July over the company's refusal to accept a contract with the United Mine Workers.

The panelists were scheduled to hear testimony on UMW contract issues, safety and health in the mine, charges of violence against strikers and the effect of the strike on the community.

"We want to examine as many of the problems as possible raised by the Brookside strike," Pollitt said. "We want to find out its causes, what's keeping the parties apart and the consequences for the workers and their children, the community and the nation when a major coal mine lies idle for over seven months at a time of national energy shortage."

The panelists were to include Kentucky author Harry Caudill of Whitesburg; former Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz; Harvard psychiatrist Robert Coles, author of "Children of Crisis"; former Sen. Fred Harris, D-Okla., and several university professors.

Candidate Will Speak At ECU

Leslie Turner of the American Friends Service Committee and Southeastern Coordinator of the B-1 Bomber Campaign will speak on this subject at the Methodist Student Center Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The B-1 Bomber has been proposed by the U.S. Air Force to take the place of the present B-52 manned bomber fleet. Miss Turner heads a campaign to oppose the construction of a new manned bomber fleet. Unmanned missiles and the present B-52 bomber fleet are more than adequate to meet defense needs, she believes.

The Methodist Student Center is located at 501 E. Fifth St. The talk is sponsored by the Greenville Peace Committee. The public is invited.

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—The men who shunted 7-foot-4 Tommy Burlison to a second team berth on the Atlantic Coast Conference All-Star basketball team announced by the Atlantic Coast Sports Writers Association three days before the start of the championship tournament last week unwittingly may have helped him and his North Carolina State teammates win the ACC title.

Burleson, the quiet man from the mountain country of western North Carolina, played against Maryland like a man who had something to prove.

He scored 38 points, equalling his career high output against Virginia two years ago as a sophomore, to lead the Wolfpack to a heart-pumping 103-100 overtime victory over Maryland.

The classic struggle between two fired-up, running teams produced the greatest number of points in 21 years of ACC tournament history.

It propelled N. C. State, the nation's No. 1 team, into the NCAA Eastern Regionals against Providence opening Thursday night at, of all places, State's home court in Raleigh, Reynolds Coliseum.

Furman and Pitt are the other Eastern teams. The two winners will meet for the regional title Saturday afternoon, then join three other regional champs in the last two rounds of the national event, March 23 and 25, back at the Greensboro Coliseum.

Burleson's regular season statistics were 17.3 points and 11.7 rebounds, each a fraction below his junior year figures. He played on the 1972 U. S.

Olympic team and on the 1973 victorious U.S. team in the 1973 World University Games in Russia.

But, somehow, he seemed to be low man on the totem pole, hard as that may be to visualize for a 7-foot-4 man. All-America super-star David Thompson and 5-foot-7 back-court peppercorn Monte Towe usually grabbed the headlines as N. C. State bounced back from its only loss, to UCLA, to claim the No. 1 spot in the national poll.

For example, in the heroic Super Sunday struggle at Raleigh last Jan. 13, Thompson contributed 41 points in a stirring 80-74 victory over Maryland. Burleson, hitting only three of 19 shots, was limited to 13. His opponent at center, Len Elmore, matched his 13 points and his defense contributed to Burleson's troubles.

"I'll remember this one a long time," Burleson said later. When the writers' all-star team was announced, his name was listed with the second team.

A week earlier, Burleson had played one of his finest games, scoring 22 points, grabbing 11 rebounds and blocking three shots, to lead an 83-72 victory over the archest of arch rivals, nationally ranked North Carolina.

Coach Norman Sloan, in a rare gesture, gave his big man the game ball in the dressing room. Sloan told newsmen, "I get darned tired of people saying the things they do about Tommy. He's the dominating center in the ACC and in any game he's in."

Maryland, ranked No. 4, raced to an early 13-point lead Saturday night and was on top at the half 55-50 with its third straight half of better than 60 per cent shooting and aggressive man-to-man defense.

Thompson's 21 points in the half kept State from being blown out and gave him 101 in 100 minutes against Maryland this season.

Burleson scored 22 points in the last half to lead the charge that produced a 97-all regulation tie and walked off with the outstanding tournament player award in a vote of coaches.

He matched Elmore's 13 rebounds and hit 18 of 25 shots as his hook shot was working.

Phil Spence dropped in a lay-up with 2:04 left in overtime to give the Wolfpack a one-point lead and Towe cemented it with two freethrows with six seconds left.

The victory gave State a 26-1 record and was the 24th in a row since a December loss to UCLA and the 32nd straight over ACC teams. Now the Wolfpack returns to its home court, where it has won 26 in a row.

Maryland, its 11-game winning streak shattered, finished 23-5. Coach Lefty Driesell and his Terrapins, bitterly disappointed at finishing in the runnerup spot for the third year in a row, had no taste for further competition. They turned down a bid to the National Invitation Tournament opening next Saturday in New York. Sixth-ranked North Carolina, 20-point victim of Maryland in the semifinals, accepted an NIT berth.

Maryland, three-time loser to N.C. State this year, has a 73-17 record for three years. The Terps are 43-2 against outside teams and 30-15 against conference rivals.

Maryland's 290 points in three games bettered the tournament record of 273 set in 1955 by N.C. State and matched by the 1965 Wolfpack. Four Maryland starters went all the way in the overtime sizzler. Mo Howard and Tom McMillen each scoring 22 points.

Last Decision By Terp Team; No NIT Play

By FRED FARRAR
Associated Press Writer
BALTIMORE (AP)—Maryland's fourth-ranked basketball team has made its last decision as a group. It has unanimously turned down a bid to play in the National Invitation Tournament.

With that out of the way, its time for individual thoughts.

Tom McMillen, the 6-11 forward who owns all of Maryland's career scoring records, has to decide whether to delay a pro basketball career while he accepts a Rhodes Scholarship.

And the team's defensive leader, 6-9 center Len Elmore, will probably have to decide between lucrative offers from the rival National and American Basketball Associations.

But the Terrapins, who finished 23-5, will spend some of their future moments thinking about 25 crucial seconds of playing time in the 67,500 seconds of this near-miss season.

In Saturday's 103-100 overtime loss to North Carolina State in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament finals, they were unable to get a decent shot off in the final nine seconds. The sequence was eerily reminiscent of their first game of the year, when trailing by one point, they lost the ball to UCLA in the game's dying moments.

"Just think where we would be now if we had just made those two shots," McMillen mused. "Victories over two number-one ranked teams in the same year—that would have been something."

The Terrapin losses all came to teams ranked in the top six. They dropped three games to NC State, one to sixth-rated

North Carolina, and one to then top-ranked UCLA.

Maryland officials say they put no pressure on the players to accept the bid, which would have let Maryland return to the site of its first major national prominence. It won the NIT with a rousing 100-69 victory over Niagara in 1972.

But the players apparently agreed with Elmore, the team's all-time leading rebounder.

"It's a second-rate tournament for runners-up," he said. "We've been playing with runners-up too long."

Coach Lefty Driesell said in a telephone interview that he knew the players wanted to reject the bid immediately after the loss to NC State. During a long and emotional stay in the locker room, he asked them to think about it over night.

"I told them I wanted them all to be able to say later on that they had made the right decision," Driesell said. "I said they probably wouldn't be getting much sleep that night anyway, so they could sit up and talk about it among themselves."

Sunday morning they told Driesell the decision remained.

"They said they had just lost to the nation's best team in overtime," Driesell said, "and had proved they had a great basketball team. They felt there was nothing else to prove."

"You go to the NIT to prove you have a good team," he added. "They felt they had proven they were a great team Saturday night."

But the emptiness the seniors all feel comes from knowing they will never be able to demonstrate it once and for all in the NCAA finals.

'Fed Up', So Mayes Cut Loose

NIT Field Completed

NEW YORK (AP)—North Carolina, Purdue and Memphis State have joined the National Invitation Tournament, completing the 16-team field for the nation's oldest postseason basketball tournament.

"We're delighted with the news," said Purdue Coach Fred Schaus after learning of the invitation from the NIT selection committee. "I've talked with some of the players and they're really excited."

"I hope our fans and student body will be backing us the way they have all year."

The three new entries were invited while another team—Maryland—snubbed the NIT. During the course of Sunday's activities, the Terps were invited but declined to play in the 37th NIT.

"They felt we had nothing to prove," said Maryland coach Lefty Driesell, "and to tell you the truth, I kind of agree with them."

Driesell referred to Maryland's tough, 103-100 overtime loss to North Carolina State in Saturday night's Atlantic Coast Conference playoffs.

This will be the fourth NIT appearance for North Carolina, an ACC colleague of Maryland's who lost earlier in the playoffs. The Tar Heels, 22-5, won the NIT in 1971 and finished third last year.

Purdue, of the Big Ten, will be making its second appearance in the New York tournament. The Boilermakers fashioned a 17-9 record this season.

Memphis State, which lost to UCLA in last year's NCAA championship game, will make its seventh NIT appearance. The Tigers, 18-10, are coached by Gene Bartow, who will be leaving after the season to become head coach at Illinois.

Bobby Jones leads North Carolina, Frank Kendrick and John Garrett are the stars at Purdue and Dexter Reed and Bill Cook lead Memphis State.

The pairings for the NIT, which starts next Saturday, March 16, and ends March 24, were to be announced today.

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Clyde Mayes says he got fed up in the second half of Furman's NCAA Eastern Regional playoff opener with cross-state rival South Carolina.

The 6-foot-9 senior scored seven points during a four-minute span of the second half Saturday night as the Southern Conference champion Paladins rallied from a 12-point deficit to upset 11th ranked South Carolina 75-67.

"I felt we were just as good as they were," said Mayes, who tallied 21 and grabbed 16 rebounds to pace Furman, 22-7. The Paladins advanced to next Thursday's second round against Pitt at Raleigh, N.C.

Freshman Bruce Grimm added another 19 points for Furman, but more importantly he harassed the Gamecocks' All-American guard Bruce Winters. Winters topped SC with 22 points, but was only 11 for 27 from the field and got few down the stretch.

"I practiced my defense in the summer in Indianapolis against Rick Mount," Grimm said. "He likes to take the 30-footers from the outside like Winters, so I picked up a few things."

Furman shored up its defense after falling behind 53-41 with 14:43 to play, following a 15-2 Gamecock blitz at the start of the half.

The Paladins roared back with a 15-4 rip, closing to a 57-56 deficit and Grimm and

Late Today?

An announcement concerning the naming of East Carolina University's new basketball coach will probably be made late this afternoon, the Daily Reflector learned this morning.

A reliable source told the Reflector that ECU assistant coach Dave Patton is expected to be the university's choice to succeed Tom Quinn, who was fired Friday.

Mayes were everywhere.

"You look at your defense to sustain you in the playoffs, but we weren't playing much for a while," said Furman Coach Joe Williams. "We were missing easy shots and the ball was falling out of our hands."

But after calling a second timeout, Williams said, "we started playing good D (defense). We stopped giving them the easy shots. Our game is to play strong inside. And that pulled the rest of our game together."

Craig Lynch's two foul shots gave the Paladins the lead for good, 60-59, at the 7:06 mark. Grimm sank two field goals from the right and the Gamecocks were headed for their fifth loss against 22 wins.

The closest they got after that was 66-63 with 3:55 remaining. Grimm and Mayes teamed to sniff out any further South Carolina threat.

"We couldn't buy a basket the last nine minutes," said Carolina Coach Frank McGuire. "We had made those shots all year."

"Nothing they did surprised me ... we just didn't play a good game," he continued. "If we'd play like that against Creighton, Marquette, Houston, we'd have won."

LIMOGES, France (AP)—The French Boxing Federation lifted a two-year ban on middleweight Max Cohen Saturday but ordered that he pay a $1,000 fine for statements he made last month after losing a fight to former French middleweight champion Fabio Bettini.

CHICAGO (AP)—The Chicago Bears said Saturday they have withdrawn an offer to Jack Ettinger, wide receiver from Arkansas, because he insisted on a no-cut contract.

The National Football League club said no-cut contracts are against its policy.

Ettinger, a seventh round draft choice of the Bears, also was drafted by Toronto of the World Football League. The Bears said their salary offer to Ettinger was the same he received from Toronto.

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP)—Detroit Tiger pitchers threw for 12 minutes Saturday on the second day of their conditioning drills at spring training camp.

While opening days' activities at the Detroit American League camp were limited to battery men, a couple of Tiger veterans—outfielder Willie Horton and utility man Ike Brown worked out on their own with the pitching machines.

Unser Affair: California 500

Carol Mann Hoped For 2nd Place

HOUSTON (AP) — Carol Mann failed in what she set out to accomplish Sunday even if she did win the $20,000 first prize in the $100,000 LPGA tournament.

"I'll admit I was just shooting for second place," the 6-foot-3 Miss Mann said after she shot a 4-under-par final round 69 to knock Kathy Whitworth out of the title by two shots.

"I didn't think anybody could catch Kathy the way she plays," Miss Mann said. Miss Whitworth had a one-shot lead going into the final round of the event but ballooned to a 76 and finished second.

Miss Mann also failed to fulfill a Saturday night vow she made with Sandra Post and Gail Denenberg—that the winner would streak through the press room.

"We all were talking about it last night," Miss Mann said. "We agreed if any of us won the tournament, they would streak through the press room. I thought about that today and I thought 'Oh, no, what if I win.'"

Miss Mann started the day five strokes off the pace but after a birdie on No. 10 she was in the lead and she never let up. Miss Mann had four birdies and no bogies.

Miss Whitworth had to scramble to get the second place finish and the $12,000 second prize that made her the lady tour's first $500,000 winner. A string of four straight bogies put Miss Whitworth out of the lead.

Miss Post held the lead briefly after the fifth hole but staggered home with a 76 and finished in a tie for third with Debbie Austin and Bonnie Bryant.

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Bobby Unser has a secret and he won't even tell his brother how he was fast enough to nip him by fifty-eight hundredths of a second in the closest 500-mile race climax in U.S. Auto Club history.

Bobby Unser, 40, and 34-year-old Al Unser made the fifth annual California 500 a family affair for the last 275 miles Sunday at Ontario Motor Speedway.

"He just played a cat-and-mouse game with me," said Al. "My car started popping at the end when I kicked up the turbocharger boost trying to catch him."

Bobby Unser, who earned $70,250 of the $300,000 purse, said he didn't have the same cockpit device that Al and some other drivers use to turn up turbocharger boost. He would only say:

"I did have a little trick that amounted to a little more speed ... but I really don't care to elaborate."

Bobby Unser, who averaged 157.017 miles per hour in a race slowed for 30 laps by seven yellow flags, won the closest Cal 500 since Jim McElreath's three-fourths of a second victory over the late Art Pollard in the inaugural 1970 race.

Bobby, 1968 Indianapolis 500 winner, tied two-time Indy winner Al for highest number of 500 milers won in a family. But they said they've run just as closely in the past in shorter races.

Al drives for Val's-Parnelli Jones' team while Bobby works for Dan Gurney's All-American Racers.

Al Unser, who changed leads with his brother nine times, earned $58,800, including $250 per lap for leading 106 laps.

Bobby led 66 laps and quipped, "I followed Al all day. He won all the lap money ..."

A.J. Foyt, the fastest qualifier by five miles per hour, led until a broken oil line forced him out after only 21 turns around the 2.5-mile course. A piece of debris from the car of David "Salt" Walther lodged in Foyt's suspension and broke the oil line.

Walther finished 22nd and earned $1,600 making his first start since a pile-up at Indianapolis almost took his life.

Joe Leonard, 1971 Cal 500 winner, was responsible for an 11-lap caution period Sunday when he suffered a compound fracture of his left ankle as his Parnelli-Offy hit the pit wall and careened down the track after 152 laps. It was the worst injury accident in Cal 500 history.

Sixteen of the 33-car field were running at the end but only the Unseers were moving on the final lap. Jerry Grant was a distant third in USAC's first race run under a 280-gallon limit per car of methanol fuel.

Gurney said his driver averaged 1.9 miles per gallon and Ozzie Olson, Bobby's sponsor, said there were 4.7 gallons left.

Al Unser said he didn't check how much he had left. Grant reported he had nearly 15 gallons remaining.

Although the race had an exciting finish, Bobby said fuel restrictions made it less of a competition and urged that more fuel be allotted in the future. Methanol fuel is not derived from petroleum, so the energy crisis isn't involved. USAC reduced fuel to cut speeds for safer racing.

Doral Victory Wasn't Expected By Bud Allin

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

MIAMI (AP) — "It was an unexpected pleasure," Buddy Allin said.

"I was just trying to hang in there and make a good check. I didn't think I had any chance of winning. There were just too many good players up there and I was just trying to hang on."

But, one by one, some of pro golf's great players fell victim to the waters, woods and woes that make up the 7,065-yard Blue Monster course at the Doral Country Club, and the tough little Allin emerged as the winner of the Doral-Eastern

Open Sunday.

Allin, who won numerous decorations as an artillery officer in Vietnam, had a final round 67 and his 272 total was 16-under-par and a record for the course that gobbled up the challenges of Tom Weiskopf, Jerry Heard, Australian Bruce Devlin and Bobby Nichols.

Heard, a winner a week ago, finished second with a 68-273. He lost his last chance for victory when he sliced his drive into the gallery on the 18th fairway, hit a woman spectator in the head and bogeyed the hole.

Devlin, tied for the lead a couple of times in the scramble down the stretch, fell back with a bogey from a bunker on the 17th, had a 71 and tied for third with countryman Bruce Crampton at 274. Crampton made a par-saving putt on the 18th hole for a 68.

Next came Bert Yancey, who closed with a 65, and Weiskopf tied at 275. Weiskopf, tied for the lead as late as the 16th hole of the final round, finished bogey-double bogey and had a 72. He drove into the woods on the 17th and put one in the water on the 18th.

Tom Kite, whose 29 on the front side marked the best nine holes of the year on the pro tour, had a 65 and tied Nichols at 276. Nichols had a 70 with a double bogey six on the 16th that killed his chances.

Lee Trevino, who scored his last victory in this tournament a year ago, closed with a 69 but was too far back to catch up. His 277 total was two strokes better than Jack Nicklaus, who had a 70.

The victory was Allin's third in his four years on the pro tour and was worth $30,000 from the total purse of $150,000.

$100,000 Offer For April Fight

BOSTON (AP) — Boxing promoter Sam Silverman has offered middleweight Benny Briscoe of Philadelphia $100,000 to fight unbeaten Tony Licata of New Orleans in April in Boston Garden.

Silverman said Tuesday he wired the offer after Briscoe knocked out Tony Mundine of Australia in Paris Monday night. Licata, who has a 40-0-3 pro record, claimed the U.S. middleweight title by out-pointing Emile Griffith early this month.

Former Michigan State football coach Duffy Daugherty received the Walter Camp Football Foundation Award in 1973.

Chemical soil treatment is considered a valuable method of control for several tobacco diseases, according to N. C. State University Extension Plant Pathologists. Fifteen materials are available including five multi-purpose treatments, seven fumigant nematocides, two contacts, and one that provides additional protection when used as a "piggy-back" treatment. ("Piggy-back" treatment is available for the first time in 1974. Tests show that the treatment could add $100 to $150 value per acre at a materials cost of about $5.)

A multi-purpose treatment might be defined as one that provides reduction of several diseases including root-knot, black shank, Granville wilt, Furarium wilt and black root rot. Available materials include Terr-O-Cide 15D, DD-PIC, Telone C, Terr-O-Cide 15, and Terr-O-Cide 30. Evaluation tests for these materials were located in black shank and root-knot, black root rot and Granville wilt problem fields.

Application Methods
Some chemical soil treatments are alike in method of kill and application while others are quite different and might be classified as fumigants, nonfumigants or contacts and transplant water ("piggy back") treatments.

Fumigants include all multi-purpose materials and certain nematocides. These materials are applied as liquids which change to a gas following application that rapidly moves through the soil. The kill is by vapor action. These materials can be applied as row or broadcast treatment. The row treatment involves application 8 inches below the soil level or 14 inches below the top of the high wide bed. For the broadcast method, the chemical is applied to a depth of 8 inches behind shank spaced 10 to no more than 12 inches apart and sealed immediately by heavy log or drag. A waiting period of 3 weeks should be allowed between time of application and transplanting for all fumigant materials.

Non-fumigants include certain nematocides that kill by contact rather than fumigant action. Best control is obtained when material is spread evenly over the soil surface, thoroughly mixed with top 3 or 4 inches of soil by disking followed by preparation (immediately) of a high wide bed. A waiting period of 5 days is suggested for these materials.

"Piggy-back" treatments are applied in transplant water. First, determine discharge of transplanter (amount of water per acre). Second, add correct amount of chemical to each barrel and stir. For example, the suggested rate of Vydate is 1 quart per acre. If the transplanter is discharging 100 gallons per acre, then 1/2 pint of Vydate should be added to each 50 gallon barrel.

For detailed information on tobacco disease control, ask for Tobacco Information "74. It is available at the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

New scientific advances are urgently needed to help farmers meet the almost insatiable demand for food and fiber, says the Dean of Agriculture and Life Sciences at North Carolina State University.

Dr. J. E. Legates said that both food reserves and the reserve of unused agricultural knowledge are dangerously low.

Legates described the following list of new circumstances which he said are pushing agricultural resources to the breaking point:

— The near full use of our productive acres. Millions of acres of cropland once held in reserve are now being put into production. In addition, over two million acres of rural land are being taken each year for urban-type development. Thus, farmers are being asked to produce more on less land.

— Dangerously low food reserves. Supplies of soybeans and corn at the beginning of the 1973 harvest season were sufficient for just a few weeks. Grain stocks are down in other major exporting countries. Reserves now on hand could be wiped out in just one year by a drought or early freeze.

— A dwindling reserve of unused scientific knowledge and technology. Farmers are aggressive. Effective work by agricultural extension has reduced the time lag between scientific discovery and farm application. At the same time, the scientific and technological problems in agriculture have become more complex. They require more time and effort to solve. Yet, support for agricultural research and extension has actually declined in terms of non-inflated dollars.

Dean Legates said these new circumstances are more than just temporary or short-run problems. The U. S. population and the world demand for food both continue to increase.

Increases in funds to support agricultural research and extension must be forthcoming if farmers are to meet these new circumstances, he continued.

Examples of needed scientific advances cited by Dr. Legates include:

— The urgent need for a significant breakthrough in per-acre soybean yields. The soaring demand for soybeans has been met mainly by increasing acres.

— The need to increase the reproductive rates of beef and swine herds as a means of adding to the nation's meat supply; and — The need to broaden the genetic base of major crops to make them less vulnerable to diseases, such as the

Vampire Bat A Threat To Mexico's Livestock

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican animal health authorities, now in full charge of the national vampire bat control program, are carrying on a campaign in five states to eliminate the flying pest as a threat to the livestock industry.

Dr. Pedro Solana Martagon, director general of the National Institute of Livestock Research (INIP) here, estimated that the tiny vampires, three inches in length and weighing less than two ounces, cause the death of 100,000 head of cattle a year in Mexico as carriers of bovine paralytic rabies.

"In addition," he declared, "they cause other deaths from loss of blood, malnutrition and myiasis, and animals which do not die often produce less meat and milk and are subject to infection by other diseases. They also are suspected of carrying Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis, which killed thousands of horses in Mexico and Central America in 1970-71 and spread across the border into southwestern United States."

Until late last year the anti-vampire bat campaign in Mexico was a cooperative program carried on by INIP, the Agency for International Development and the Department of the Interior of the United States.

Basic research was conducted at Interior's Fish and Wildlife Research Center at Denver, Colo., and field tests were carried on by Mexican and AID scientists in bat-infested areas of Mexico.

Approximately $800,000 has been spent since 1968 on an intensive study of the bats' colonizing habits, flight patterns, feeding behavior, reproductive period and anatomical and physiological characteristics.

The vampires range from central Mexico into northern Argentina and Chile and, according to estimates of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, cause the deaths of more than one million head of cattle a year throughout Latin America. Methods used in the past to destroy them have been complete failures, Dr. Solana said.

In addition, he added, attempts to reduce the vampire population caused severe harm to such beneficial species as fruit and insect-eating bats which roost in the same areas.

U.S. and Mexican scientists, after discarding such crude and ineffective control measures as dynamiting of roosts, screening of caves, use of flame-throwers and smoke, shooting, traps and nets, lights, poison sprays, and strychnine and arsenic salves smeared on livestock, hit on the use of a blood anticoagulant, diphenadione, which is employed in the treatment of human heart patients.

The control methods are ingeniously dovetailed with the peculiar and specialized physiological and behavioral characteristics of the vampire bats, which roost in tight clusters in caves and trees and like to pre-empt themselves and each other.

One procedure is to inject a solution of the drug into the stomachs of cows; bats drinking their blood will die of internal hemorrhaging within a few hours, Dr. Solana explained. The other method is to trap some of the vampires, smear their backs with a diphenadione salve and release them. Returning to their roosts, they lick themselves and contaminate their companions, he said, and within two weeks they will all die.

Dr. Solana said that anti-vampire campaigns are now being carried on by government and private veterinarians in the states of Oaxaca, Veracruz, Yucatan, Sinaloa and Colima under the direction of Dr. Luis Manriquez Mandujano.

Researchers Improve Shrimp

WASHINGTON (AP) — An unlikely exchange of skills between federal fishery biologists and University of Arizona researchers in greenhouse environments for desert areas may lead to improvements in the culture of shrimp.

Most efforts to raise shrimp under seminatural conditions have been only moderately successful. Now experts from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration feel that the new "greenhouse" techniques may eliminate predators, competitors and adverse weather.

Revere Enjoyed Many Talents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The names of more than 150 silversmiths were recorded in Boston before 1800. One of them, Paul Revere, was not only an accomplished craftsman but a good horseman. Revere's silver works are now collector's items. A teapot stand and creamer fashioned by the famous patriot recently sold for $70,000 at auction, according to the National Geographic Society.

Right now, the world demand for farm products is higher than ever. And this year more acres will be planted than any year since 1956.

But the results you get in yields and profits depend on how carefully you manage your farm. Particularly your fertilizer supply.

So it's more important now than ever to get back to the basics of sound farm management. And to consider some new techniques and alternatives if you can't get all the fertilizer you want. In quantity or grades.

We'll try every way we know to meet your requirements. Our plants are producing to capacity. But it's also our responsibility to help you get the most out of the money you spend on fertilizer. As a starting point, consider these suggestions.

Soil test every field. It will determine your actual plant nutrient needs. Soil testing is the way to make sure you apply only what's needed. Our complete soil test gives you requirements for calcium and magnesium as well as phosphate, potash and lime. The amounts you apply can be adjusted to the levels in your soil. This assures the right balance of plant nutrients.

Be sure you lime according to your needs. It increases the efficiency of available fertilizer.

Carefully plan every field you have. Think about past performance and which crops yield best in which fields. Use your best fields for your highest value crops.

In case you can't get all the fertilizer you want, you're better off to fertilize your best fields to optimum. Cut back on your less productive soils and consider banding rather than broadcasting.

If it's practical, plant crops that require less of the plant foods that are short. This usage chart gives you a general rating, with the highest use crops at the top and the lowest use crops at the bottom.

PLANT NUTRIENT UPTAKE
Nitrogen	Phosphate	Potash
Coastal Bermuda	Coastal Bermuda	Coastal Bermuda
Corn	Tobacco	Alfalfa
Tobacco	Cotton	Tobacco
Cotton	Corn	Cotton
Wheat	Wheat	Corn
Peanuts	Peanuts	Peanuts
Soybeans	Soybeans	Soybeans
Alfalfa	Alfalfa	Wheat

If you are double-cropping, lime and fertilize for the major crop. For instance, if you are growing soybeans and wheat, lime and fertilize with the soybeans in mind. Be sure to inoculate the soybeans.

Frequently, a crop following a high value crop that has been fertilized heavily will not require additional fertilization. You can get by on less fertilizer this year if your soil tests are high. But remember that the drain on your soil reserves will decrease future yield potential.

Be sure your crops get the micronutrients needed for proper growth and maturity. This table lists major crops and their response to micronutrients.

Crop	Micronutrient Response
	Boron	Copper	Iron	Manganese/Zinc
Alfalfa	High	Low	Low	Medium
Corn	High	Medium	Low	High
Cotton	High	Low	Low	Medium
Peanuts	High	Low	Low	Medium
Soybeans	Medium	Low	Low	High
Tobacco	High	Medium	Medium	Medium
Wheat	Low	Medium	Medium	Medium

Maybe there is a chance you'll have less fertilizer to work with this year. But it's our job to make sure you get all the help you want in using your fertilizer efficiently. The suggestions here are simply some principles of sound farm management. When you use them, your chances for optimum yields and profits in 1974 can only get better.

If the fertilizer shortage is telling us to get back down to earth, we've all got to listen.

Skunk Business

The usual reaction to skunks is to get out of range, fast. Not so John Anderson of Forestburg, Tex. In fact, it's his business and his pleasure to seek them out — raccoons and possums, too. He hunts, catches, breeds and de-scents the varmints, then sells them as pets and to zoos over much of the U.S., sometimes shipping them as far away as Europe.

John is 71, and lives with his wife, Dorothy, and his dogs in their isolated community in north central Texas. He doesn't use guns or traps to catch animals — just his hands, once the dogs have tracked them down and cornered them. He wouldn't trade what he's doing for any other work, and says he'll carry on his business as long as he's able to follow the dogs across the fields and through the woods.

The Worry Clinic Humor Helps Teach Lesson

Note how Hal "sold" his son on taking a foreign language! See how Sen. Randolph wins his audiences via the wholesome humor appearing in QUOTE magazine every week. Then imitate Dr. Horton's superb public speaking technique!

This weekly QUOTE magazine (Anderson, S. C.) contains 3 pages in each issue of rollicking jokes and anecdotes.

Moreover, they are clean, wholesome types of humor, quite appropriate for use by pastors in their sermons, as well as by other speakers.

For example, here's a dandy anecdote, that you can adapt to help illustrate the value of foresight and intelligent planning.

QUOTE magazine attributes it to Sen. Jennings Randolph, of West Virginia:

In the War Between the States, there was a general (I will not say in which Army) who massed his troops to repel the enemy.

He called his fellow officers about him, and said: "We cannot hold against the forces of the enemy; they are too strong, and I shall, in 15 minutes, ask the bugler to sound retreat."

"You all know I have a bad leg, so I shall start now."

In this urban age, all literate people should be able to make an interesting talk.

Florida's noted pastor, Dr. Paul Horton, of St. Petersburg, uses QUOTE magazine and mixes its humor, as well as current epigrams from famous people, into his superb sermon formula:

(1) Start out with a challenging text;
(2) Advance your theme via relevant stories (like Christ's parables);
(3) Make the audience laugh a few times;
(4) Work up their righteous indignation (anger);

(5) Make them cry, as you fade out in your peroration with a touching; relevant story or appropriate stanza of a suitable poem.

And if you beginners tremble, don't fret, for all speakers, even the professionals, are nervous at the start.

So hold your hands firmly behind your back or clasp the edges of the lectern till you relieve you tension via your vocal cords.

After a couple of minutes of talking, you become more poised and can then use your hands more gracefully in gesticulating.

Beware of early, stilted gestures. And to relieve tremors of the hands as you hold your notes or sheet music, seize them with both hands and gently pull in opposite directions.

This stops the rattling of the paper!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-572: Hal T., aged 36, is a popular radio announcer.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "I was very much impressed by your recent column in which you urged clergymen to use more humor."

"For I do a lot of speaking before luncheon clubs, P.T.A. etc."

"And I appreciate your recommendation of the weekly magazine called QUOTE."

"For I find more useful jokes therein than in any other medium."

"It helped me last week in a family argument, too."

"For my high school son was objecting to taking a foreign language, saying it had no practical value."

"So I recited the following little story from QUOTE magazine."

From QUOTE
A mother mouse and her little ones were suddenly confronted by a cat.

The mother mouse braced herself and said "Bow wow!" The cat turned tail and fled.

The mother mouse turned to her children and said: "Now you see how important it is to know a second language."

You language teachers in high school can employ that anecdote to good effect.

Martha Scott Is Again A Mother

By JERRY BUCK
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Amid the revival of interest in former President Harry S. Truman, ABC tonight offers a "Portrait" special that deals with an incident when he was a judge in Missouri.

The show is concerned with his integrity and the Missouri-mule stubbornness that brought him to the presidency 16 years later.

Robert Vaughan stars in "Portrait: The Man From Independence." Arthur Kennedy is Tom Pendergast, and Martha Scott is Mama Truman.

As Truman's mother, Miss Scott—herself a native of that area of Missouri—portrays a wise and witty woman who was a strong influence in his life.

"Because I was from that area, I read the script with a certain nostalgia. A pain in a way," said Miss Scott, a film and stage actress for 30 years.

"I recognized my own grandmother in the role of Mrs. Truman and my own father sounded like Truman. He had that twang."

The role of mother is a familiar one for Miss Scott: She was Charlton Heston's mother in "Ben Hur" and "The Ten Commandments." She's Bob Newhart's mother on his series. She played Julie Sommers' mother in a recent pilot film. Last week she was a housemother in an ABC late-night mystery, "Sorority-Kill." This Tuesday night she's Earl Holliman's mother on NBC's "Police Story."

"I don't mind playing mothers," she said, "not if the parts are good. I've been playing character parts since I was 27. I love a good character part. It's fine with me because it's meant a longer acting career. I'd hate to still be doing ingenuities."

Miss Scott does have some ties to the Trumans. In 1956 she appeared with Margaret Truman on an NBC talk show series.

Won Honors With Skills

Three Pitt County high schools were involved in the annual high school vocational Olympic Carpentry and Brick Contest, held by Farmville Central High School, host for the event.

The three were Rose High, Ayden-Grifton, and D. H. Conley.

For the area IB Olympic Skills Contest, Rose High students took first place in both carpentry and masonry (brick work).

Michael Stevenson was top winner in carpentry work and Gregory Moore took first place in masonry.

Other winners were: Carpentry, second through fourth places—Gray Hacker, Ayden-Grifton; Max Langley, J. H. Rose; and Linwood Bracket, D. H. Conley. Van Tucker of Ayden-Grifton and James Perkins of D. H. Conley tied for fifth place. In addition to first place in masonry, Robert Waldrop, placed sixth in that category.

First and second place winners will compete in Raleigh on March 30 in the statewide vocational olympics.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
© 1974 The Charles H. Goren Trust
BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS
Q. 1—Your partner, vulnerable, has opened the bidding with one spade and you hold:

♠2 ♥5 ♦KJ10543 ♣KJ8
What is your response?
A.—One no trump. With only 6 high-card points, the hand is not quite good enough to respond at the two-level. It is true that, at a diamond contract, your hand is worth 10 points, but it is wiser not to make a forcing bid at the two-level with fewer than 9 or 10 HCP.

Q. 2—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A43 ♥AK87 ♦AQ42 ♣92
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Three diamonds. Your hand is worth 18 points at hearts and 17 at no trump, so you should make one effort to get to game. Should partner merely return to three hearts, you pass. However, he might find a bid of four hearts or three no trump, either of which you should accept as the final contract.

Q. 3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠A873 ♥J10932 ♦1092 ♣J
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass Pass 1 ♣ 1 ♣
Pass 2 ♣ 3 ♣ Dblie.
Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Defensively, your hand is practically worthless. Your only feature is length in partner's suit, and that detracts from the defensive potential of his hand. It is most improbable that you can defeat three clubs, and we recommend a return to three spades in self-defense.

Q. 4—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠4 ♥A7 ♦KQ987 ♣AK754
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♣ 1 ♣ 2 ♥ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 3 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. Partner made a free bid at the two-level, so he must have a fair hand and a good heart suit. From the fact that you failed to raise him immediately, partner should be able to deduce that you are showing a doubleton honor, so you will be in a better position to judge the hand's potential after his next bid. Since you have already shown a strong hand, this bid is forcing.

Q. 5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q8 ♥AK854 ♦92 ♣AKJ4
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 1 ♣ Pass
2 ♣ Pass 2 ♥ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Three hearts. Partner's bidding has done nothing to indicate substantial values, but you have a fine hand that merits at least another move towards game.

Q. 6—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠A7 ♥KQJ10765 ♦3 ♣AJ2
East, your right-hand opponent, has opened the bidding with one diamond. What is your bid?
A.—Double. Some years ago, you would have described this hand with a jump overall of two hearts, but that bid is now used preemptively. Since a mere overall would grossly underestimate your values, you must first double and then bid an appropriate number of hearts at your next turn.

Q. 7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠5 ♥KJ1072 ♦AQ109 ♣QJ10
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ Pass 3 ♥ Pass
5 ♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Six hearts. Partner is worried about the quality of the trump suit—if he were only interested in control, he would have bid Blackwood or launched a cue-bidding sequence. You have a trump holding that will set partner's mind at rest.

Q. 8—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:

Hunt 3 Gunmen In Kidnaping Of Mother; $25,000 Ransom

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — The FBI and local police were searching today for three gunmen who abducted the wife of a department store manager in the latest in a series of similar incidents involving employees of the K-Mart chain of discount stores.

Mrs. Patricia Daniel, 30, was released unharmed early Sunday after her husband, William Daniel, paid a ransom of about $20,000 which he took from the vault of the K-Mart store he manages in nearby Atlanta.

The slim-dark-haired mother of three was abducted late Saturday and held only about three hours before her captors directed Daniel to a lonely "lovers lane" south of Atlanta where he found his wife bound and gagged in the back of her car.

It was the fourth time in less than three months that members of a K-Mart employee's family had been held hostage by armed men who demanded a ransom from the safe of a K-Mart store.

In Detroit, a spokesman for K-Mart said the company had held meetings about the kidnappings but did not "think this is an organized effort. We think this was a case of one person reading about what another person did and deciding to try it."

He said he knew of no plans to beef up security at the K-Mart stores, which generally are large discount stores.

E. C. Andrews, Atlanta regional manager for K-Mart, said Sunday that he had not circulated any plan telling store managers what to do in such circumstances.

Mrs. Daniel was safely home Sunday but her husband turned away inquiring reporters saying, "We're just glad that it's over, but that's all I can say."

The FBI would say only that the matter was under investigation. DeKalb County Police Sgt. James T. Miller said, "We have several leads we are checking out."

A DeKalb County officer estimated the ransom at $20,000. But authorities said the exact amount had not been determined immediately.

Miller provided this account of Mrs. Daniel's abduction: She answered the door at around 11 p.m. Saturday, while her husband still was at work, to find a young man who said he accidentally had knocked over the family mailbox and wanted to come in to pay for it.

She said he couldn't come in while her husband was out. But, as she was turning away, he broke the glass on the front door and forced his way in.

Mrs. Daniel was bound and tape placed over her eyes and mouth. One of her children told police two other men then entered the house wearing masks and carrying rifles and a pistol.

Minutes later, Daniel arrived home. As he walked in the front door he was hit on the head with a gun barrel and knocked to the floor.

"Someone pointed a pistol to his head and told him they had his wife and that he was going to go back to the store and get all the money from the safe," Miller said. "The kidnapers said they would call him there."

Daniel was allowed to take his three children with him and when he arrived at the store he found an assistant manager still working.

Daniel briefly explained the situation and took the day's receipts out of the safe. The abductors called and Daniel was told to go to a nearby phone booth. As he left the store, he yelled to his assistant, "Take care of my kids and call the police."

Miller said Daniel was called at the phone booth and told to go to another, a procedure which was repeated several times, before he finally was directed to a quiet road near Hartsfield International Airport in Clayton County, south of Atlanta.

There, Daniel handed over the money and was directed by the abductors to his wife's car which was 50 feet down the road. He found Mrs. Daniel still bound and taped in the back of her car. It was about 2 a.m., some three hours after the first contact.

Two of the previous abductions involving K-Mart employees took place in Michigan. The other was in Tennessee.

The first occurred last Christmas Day when Frank Meany, manager of a K-Mart in the Detroit suburb of Southfield, was held hostage at his home along with his wife and two sons by two armed men. One held the family at gunpoint, while the other took Meany's keys and the combination to the safe and stole $91,000 from Meany's store.

No arrests have been made. On Feb. 12, Jack Nuckols, manager of a K-Mart in Romeo, another Detroit suburb, was ordered to pay a ransom out of the K-Mart safe by a man who held Nuckols' 14-year-old daughter, Terri, as a hostage.

Mrs. Nuckols notified the police who arrested Raymond Wynyard, 36, of Warren and charged him with kidnaping, extortion and felonious assault. Terri was found handcuffed but unharmed in a car parked at a motel.

Ten days later, James D. Ezzell, 36, assistant manager of a K-Mart in Nashville, Tenn. was accosted by two gunmen in his home. They held 32-year-old Betty Ezzell while her husband went to the K-Mart store with orders to deliver $9,000 in ransom at a highway rendezvous point.

Ezzell tried unsuccessfully to make the payoff. Meanwhile, police found Mrs. Ezzell unharmed, locked in the trunk of her car. There have been no arrests.

The wife of another K-Mart manager in Tennessee was attacked Jan. 10 by a man who tried without success to pour dried cleaner down her throat. There was no ransom demand made in that case.

Example:

$285.60 for 30 Days

When an insured child is hospitalized
(See All-Family and One-Parent Family plans below)

INCREASED
CASH BENEFITS FOR CANCER OR HEART ATTACK

REGARDLESS OF YOUR AGE OR THE SIZE OF YOUR FAMILY, YOU CAN ENROLL NOW—RIGHT FROM THIS PAGE

No Salesman Will Call.

You can enroll yourself and all eligible members of your family simply by mailing the Application Form below with your first month's premium. There's nothing else to do—but accidents and sickness strike without warning... so act today.

Think of it. Now, with a stroke of your pen, you can have cash benefits paid direct to you (unless you tell us otherwise) when a sudden accident or unexpected illness hospitalizes you or an insured member of your family! And you may enroll now without having to see a company salesman. All you need do is mail the Application Form below together with your first month's premium. It's that easy!

Why You Need This Protection In Addition To Ordinary Hospital Insurance
Anyone who has been in the hospital recently knows ordinary hospital insurance—even Medicare—simply may not cover everything. You may have to pay many "extras" out of your own pocket—and it can add up to hundreds of dollars in a frighteningly short time.

But even if your ordinary hospital insurance covers most of your medical and hospital bills, what about the bills that keep piling up at home?
If you, as husband, father and breadwinner are suddenly hospitalized, your income stops, your expenses go up. Even if you have some kind of "salary insurance" it probably won't come close to replacing your full-time pay.

If your wife is suddenly hospitalized, who will look after the family, do the laundry, the marketing, the cleaning? You may have to take time off from your job—or hire full-time domestic help—to take care of things at home.

If one of your children is suddenly hospitalized, you will certainly spare no expense. You wouldn't even think of the cost.

If you're over 65 and are suddenly hospitalized, Medicare, fine as it is, won't pay all of your hospital expenses or any household expenses. Most Senior Citizens won't want to use up savings it may have taken a lifetime to accumulate... they want to retain their independence and not become a "burden" to their children or community.

Without enough protection, a hospital emergency may leave you with savings gone, debts you can't pay, peace of mind shattered—even your recovery can be seriously delayed by money worries!

How The Plan Helps Protect You And Your Family

Now, with the protection of The Doctors Hospital Plan you can avoid these worries because you can be assured of cash benefits when you or any insured member of your family are hospitalized. No matter how large your family, no matter what your age or occupation and without any qualifications whatsoever, you can choose any of the four low-cost plans shown at right to meet your family's special needs.

In addition to the hospital benefits, you get all these valuable "extra" features:

Your Maximum Cash Benefits Actually Grow Each Month
Here's a wonderful "plus" benefit you enjoy, no matter which plan you choose: When your policy is issued, your insurance provides from $6,666.66 to $13,333.33, depending upon the plan you select. This is known as the "Aggregate of Benefits" in insurance language—what we call your maximum cash benefits.

Then, every month your policy is in force, a sum equal to your regular monthly premium (including your first monthly premium) is actually added to your maximum—your maximum grows each month! Similarly, when you have claims, your benefits are subtracted from the maximum.

Enjoy Life-Long Security

Your policy is Guaranteed Renewable for as long as you live and pay your premiums when due. We cannot refuse to renew your policy simply because you're another year older, there's been a change in your health or you've had a number of claims. Furthermore, the premium for your policy cannot be changed unless we do the same on all policies of this type in your entire state.

You Get Valuable Cash Benefits That Are Yours To Use As You Wish

The cash benefits you receive from The Doctors Hospital Plan are in addition to any other company or government insurance benefits you receive—hospital, major medical, or even Medicare. Every cent is paid direct to you unless you tell us otherwise. Spend it, use it any way you please, without having to account for this cash to anyone. Of course, you may have only one like policy with Physicians Mutual.

You Can Enroll Now, Right From This Page

Regardless of your age, the size of your family, or the plan you select, you can enroll now, right from this page! If you choose the All-Family or the One-Parent Family plan, all your eligible children including future additions—are also covered. (See chart at right for low rates.)

How Can A Plan Offer So Much For So Little?

The answer is simple: We have lower total costs! The Doctors Hospital Plan is a mass application plan. All business is conducted directly between you and the company by mail. It all adds up to real savings we share with you by giving you high quality protection at low cost.

Your Policy Is Backed By Physicians Mutual

Your policy is backed by the resources, integrity and reputation of Physicians Mutual Insurance Company. From its inception in 1902 until 1962, the company specialized in health insurance for physicians, surgeons and dentists exclusively. (Its Board of Directors is still composed entirely of respected members of the medical and insurance professions.) Today the company's policies protect over 1,000,000 Americans from all walks of life direct-by-mail. In fact, last year alone the company paid policyholders of various plans some $44 million in benefits. ## 17 Important Questions Answered ABOUT THE DOCTORS HOSPITAL PLAN WITH INCREASED BENEFITS

1. Can I collect even if I carry other health insurance?
Yes. The Doctors Hospital Plan pays you in addition to any other company or government health insurance you carry—individual, group—even Medicare! Of course, you may have only one like policy with Physicians Mutual.

2. How do I qualify?
Your only qualification is to complete and mail your Enrollment Form with your first month's premium.

3. Which plan should I choose?
You may choose any of four low-cost plans—you can actually select the exact plan that suits you best!
If yours is a young, growing family, we recommend the ALL-FAMILY PLAN. Covers you, your wife and all your dependent children (including future additions) between 3 months and 21 years of age who are unmarried and live at home.

If you are the only parent living with your children, we suggest the ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN. Covers you and all your dependent children between 3 months and 21 years of age who are unmarried and live at home.
If you have no children as yet, or if you have children who are grown and no longer dependent on you, you will want the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN.
Or, if you are living by yourself, choose the INDIVIDUAL PLAN.

4. When does my policy go into force?
Your policy is issued immediately, just as soon as we receive your Application Form. From that day on, you are covered for accidents 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, anywhere in the world. Coverage for new sickness does not begin until your policy is 30 days old. This is a one-time-only waiting period. What's more, you collect for every day you spend in the hospital for a covered sickness or accident. We don't make you wait 3 or 4 days after you enter the hospital before you can begin getting benefits.

5. How much can I be paid?
Each plan has its own "Aggregate of Benefits," what we call the maximum.
For example, under the INDIVIDUAL PLAN, the maximum is $6,666.66—$19.04 daily when you are hospitalized.
Under the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN, the maximum is $10,000.00—$19.04 daily when you are hospitalized; $14.28 daily when your wife is hospitalized.

Under the ALL-FAMILY PLAN, the maximum is $13,333.33—$19.04 daily when you are hospitalized; $14.28 daily when your wife is hospitalized; $9.52 daily for each insured child hospitalized.

Under the ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN, the maximum is $10,000.00—$19.04 daily when you are hospitalized; $9.52 daily for each insured child hospitalized.

6. Are any additional benefits included in The Doctors Hospital Plan?
Yes. You receive a 50% increase in cash benefits if you or any insured family member is hospitalized for cancer (including Leukemia and Hodgkin's Disease), or heart attack (acute myocardial infarction, coronary thrombosis and coronary occlusion).

7. What are the "double" cash benefits?
If you and your wife are both injured and hospitalized at the same time and are covered by the ALL-FAMILY or HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN, you get double cash benefits. You get twice the amount—$66.64 daily!

8. Does this plan pay in any hospital?
You will collect cash benefits for confinement in any lawfully operated hospital of your own choice. Confinement in nursing homes, convalescent or extended-care or self-care units of hospitals, is not included in your coverage under this policy.

9. Do I collect even if I go to a Federal hospital?
Yes. You will receive one-half the applicable weekly benefits for up to 4 full weeks for any one sickness or accident that puts you in a Federal hospital. And, if the same condition puts you back in the hospital after you have resumed your normal activities for 6 months, you are eligible to collect again.

10. What if someone in my family has had a health problem that may occur again?
Even if one of your insured family members under 65 has suffered from chronic ailments in the past, pre-existing conditions are covered after the policy has been in force for one year.

11. Will I collect for job-related conditions even though I may receive Workmen's Compensation?
Yes. Even conditions for which you receive Workmen's Compensation or Employers Liability Law benefits are covered. You will receive one-half the applicable weekly benefits for up to 4 full weeks for any job-related condition that puts you in the hospital. And after you resume your normal activities for 6 months, you become eligible to collect again if the same condition puts you back in the hospital.

12. Will I collect benefits for mental disorder?
Yes. You will receive one-half the applicable weekly benefits for up to 4 full weeks for mental disorder that puts you or any insured family member in the hospital. And, after you return to your normal activities for 6 months, if the same condition puts you back in the hospital, you are eligible to collect again.

13. What conditions aren't covered?
Pregnancy or any consequence thereof (unless you have the ALL-FAMILY or the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN), alcoholism or drug addiction.

14. Can I drop out any time? Can you drop me?
We guarantee to renew your policy for as long as you live and pay your premiums... regardless of your age, your health or how many claims you have. What's more, we cannot change your monthly premium for this protection unless we do the same on all policies of this type in your entire state. You, of course, can drop your policy on any renewal date.

15. How do I claim my cash benefits?
With your policy, you will receive a simple, easy-to-use Claim Form, which you send directly to the company when you want to claim your cash benefits.

16. How much does my protection cost?
If you are under 65, you pay: $5.25 a month for the INDIVIDUAL PLAN; $8.95 a month for the HUSBAND-WIFE PLAN; $10.95 a month for the ALL-FAMILY PLAN; $7.95 a month for the ONE-PARENT FAMILY PLAN. (When you become 65, or if you are over 65 now, premiums increase. See rates in box above.)

17. Why should I enroll right now?
Because an unexpected sickness or accident could strike without warning—and you will not be covered until your policy is in force. Remember, if for any reason you change your mind, you may return your policy within 10 days and your money will be refunded immediately.
