

Four Deaths And Many Injuries In Spring Storms

By The Associated Press
Four deaths and numerous injuries were reported today as spring roared in grimly with a squall line that dumped severe thunderstorms and high winds across the Southeast.

The winds smashed and flattened mobile homes, lifted rooftops, felled radio station towers and toppled trees and power lines.

Public sightings of tornadoes were reported but the National Weather Service was unable to confirm that twisters rather than gusty winds were responsible for the widespread damages.

Winds were up to 100 miles per hour in Columbus, Ga., where a weather service meteorologist declared, "It's the strongest wind I've ever seen in the continental United States."

The line moved into the region from the west Wednesday night, and the weather service predicted it would continue to move eastward to the Atlantic Ocean, where it was expected to dissipate by the end of the day.

Rain behind the line was expected to continue today, but clear skies and colder weather was forecast for Friday.

A Natchitoches, La., man, Fred Cutrer, 69, suffered a heart attack as he sought shelter from the storms, authorities said.

A building collapsed in the Ebarb Community near Zwolle, La., killing a man identified only as Chubby McFerrin, in his 50s.

Banks County, Ga., sheriff's officers said Ed Brock Jr., about 36, of Commerce was hit by a car and killed in early morning darkness as he directed traffic around downed telephone lines.

A 21-year-old Montezuma, Ga., woman who was married four weeks ago today was apparently crushed to death when high winds blew her mobile home 20 feet off its foundation, officials said. She was identified as Mrs. Bertha Yoder Brennan.

Injuries, none reported as serious, ranged to 50 and upward.

Damage to mobile homes was reported as extensive. Power outages caused by felled trees downing power lines were widespread and a number of roads were blocked by trees and debris.

Houses were heavily damaged and rooftops were lifted by gusty winds in some areas.

Impact apparently was heaviest at the beginning of the line in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. Georgia and Tennessee were heavily hit, but relatively slight damages were reported in Florida and North and South Carolina.

Charge Gunman Tried To Kidnap Princess Anne

By PETER EBERT
Associated Press Writer
LONDON (AP) — Ian Ball, a 26-year-old unemployed Englishman, was brought into court today and charged with attempted murder during an attempt to kidnap Princess Anne from her car in the heart of London Wednesday night.

Ball, lean-faced and bearded, stood stiffly in the dock at the Bow Street Magistrate's court, handcuffed to two detectives. He spoke only once during his 60-second appearance, saying in a London accent: "I want to apply for legal aid."

The court ordered him held for another hearing on March 28 on the charge of attempting to murder Princess Anne's personal bodyguard, Inspector James Beaton.

Beaton was one of four persons wounded as the would-be kidnaper fired repeatedly at the royal limousine. The others were Anne's chauffeur and a policeman and a passing journalist who tried to intervene. Beaton and the policeman were reported in serious condition.

The 23-year-old princess and her husband of five months, Capt. Mark Phillips, were not hurt. But police experts said the holes left by one of the bullets fired into the car indicated it passed between them, missing them by inches.

A police informant said it was believed 11 shots were fired by the assailant. Experts were studying two revolvers found at the scene. They said five shots had been fired from one and six from the other. Authorities said earlier only six shots were fired.

Police also found in the white Ford that Ball rented for the evening a typewritten ransom demand addressed to Queen Elizabeth II, Anne's mother, along with three pairs of handcuffs, a driver's license and envelopes addressed to two companies.

Officials declined to disclose any further details of the discoveries. But the Daily Telegraph said the letter asked for a $2.3-million ransom, and the Daily Mail said it was full of ravings about alleged injustices.

Police said Ball had no fixed address. Following the attack, there was speculation that it was the work of Irish nationalists, but the police said they believed the motive was not political.

The gunman was overpowered by police from Buckingham Palace, 150 yards away from the royal limousine.

Witnesses said the gunman ran into St. James Park, then turned and leveled a pistol at the police. One officer, Peter Edwards, 21, brought him down with a flying tackle, and the other officers rushed in to help Edwards.

The attack was the first against any member of the British royal family since 1936 when a man threw a loaded revolver in front of King Edward VIII. The royal family occasionally has received death threats but is not normally surrounded by heavy security arrangements.

Police gave this account of the attack on the princess:

The queen's only daughter and the army officer she married last November were returning from a showing of a documentary film about 8 p.m. when a white Ford forced the limousine to a stop on the Mall, the ceremonial avenue leading to the palace.

A man got out of the Ford and began shooting, hitting Alex Callender, the royal chauffeur, and Inspector Beaton and shattering the front and rear windows of the limousine. Beaton tried to fire back, but his gun jammed.

The man also shot Constable Michael Hills, on foot patrol nearby, and journalist Brian McConnell when they tried to intervene. Hills managed to get off a warning on his walkie-talkie before he collapsed.

Anne, her lady-in-waiting, Rowena Brassey, and Capt. Phillips, stayed in the back of the limousine until more police arrived to rescue them. One eyewitness said the gunman shook the door in a vain attempt to get in.

The princess telephoned the news of her escape to her parents, who are on a state visit to Indonesia, and to her elder brother, Prince Charles, who is serving with the frigate Jupiter on the west coast of the United States. Anne is fourth in line of succession to the throne, after Charles and their two younger brothers, Prince Andrew, 14, and Prince Edward, 10.

worski all the material he needs to complete his investigation.

Nixon has said he has given the special prosecutor 19 tapes and some 700 documents.

The subpoena issued Friday was the first one directed at the President by the special prosecutor's office since last July when former special prosecutor Archibald Cox subpoenaed tapes of nine presidential conversations.

Nixon refused to comply with the Cox subpoena and the prosecutor initiated a court battle which ended only after Cox was fired under President Nixon's order.

Nixon subsequently voluntarily turned over the tapes to the court.

Watergate Prosecutor Has Subpoenaed More White House Records

WASHINGTON (AP) — The special Watergate prosecutor's office has subpoenaed additional documents from the White House, it was disclosed today.

A spokesman for special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said the subpoena directed to President Nixon was served on the White House last Friday. Deadline for compliance is Monday.

The spokesman declined to say what the subpoena demanded.

Earlier, James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, acknowledged in a television interview that a subpoena had been received from the special prosecutor.

St. Clair appeared on the

NBC "Today's show."

Jaworski disclosed on Feb. 14 in a letter to Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, that Nixon had refused to give him material he considered vital to his investigation.

Jaworski told Eastland that the material Nixon had refused to supply included 27 tapes sought for the investigation of the Watergate cover-up as well as evidence relating to investigations of contributions from the dairy industry and the activities of the so-called White House plumbers unit.

The President has contended in several recent public appearances that he has given Ja-

Food, Fuel Prices Raise Cost Index

WASHINGTON (AP) — The pace of inflation quickened in February with food and fuel prices pushing the cost of living up 1.3 per cent, the second biggest monthly jump since 1951, the government said today.

The Labor Department said last month's rise sent consumer prices 10 per cent higher than a year ago and marked the first time since 1948 that the United States experienced double figure inflation.

It was the highest 12-month increase in the cost of living since consumer prices rose by 10.2 per cent in the 12 months ending January 1948.

Nearly half the February increase was attributed to higher food prices with the price of beef rising 7.5 per cent, the sharpest jump since a 9.6 per cent increase in June 1947. Gasoline and other energy items were responsible for about a fifth of last month's increase in prices.

The Consumer Price Index climbed last month to 141.5 of its 1967 average, meaning that it cost consumers $141.50 to buy the same amount of retail goods and services that $100 bought in 1967.

While consumer prices continued their sharp rise, real spendable earnings of workers dropped another six-tenths of

Settlement

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — H. Lester Creech, president of Carolina Coach Co., announced Wednesday night that the bus company and the Amalgamated Transit Union had reached an agreement to settle a strike of more than three months.

Creech said the agreement would be submitted to the drivers within a few days. Service will be restored as fast as possible after ratification, he said.

He did not give any details of the agreement.

Wages were the main unsettled issue when negotiations bogged down on a new contract.

one per cent in February and were down 4.5 per cent from a year ago. This was the largest decline over a year since the government began keeping that statistic in 1964.

The February price report showed inflation holding a firm grip across the economy. Food prices rose 2.5 per cent; non-food commodities, 1 per cent, and services seven-tenths of 1 per cent.

The Nixon administration has said it expects inflation to continue its sharp pace throughout the first half of the year before beginning to ease during the final six months. Director John T. Dunlop of the Cost of Living Council said Wednesday that February's surge in food prices would be followed by more moderate increases in March, April and May.

"Our own estimate is that it will be the last month with a really poor record," Dunlop said.

Weather Delays Galifianakis

Bad weather forced a delay in the scheduled visit of Nick Galifianakis to Greenville today as a heavy fog cover held up his departure from the Raleigh-Durham Airport.

The U.S. Senate candidate was scheduled to arrive in Greenville for an 8 a.m. news conference and breakfast with local supporters but newsmen were notified that the Durham attorney would arrive here later today.

A campaign spokesman said the Galifianakis would hopefully make a stop in Greenville sometime this afternoon if weather permitted.

DERAILMENT

KINGS MOUNTAIN (AP) — Between 15 and 20 cars of a Southern Railway freight train derailed today near Kings Mountain. There were no injuries.

Most Stations Closing Sunday

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The Carolina Motor Club predicts most gasoline stations in the Carolinas will continue closed on Sunday, despite President Nixon's lifting of the voluntary ban.

Dick Pitts, public relations director for the club, says that's because supplies won't be available for seven-day sales.

One service station operator in Charlotte said of the President's action, "There's only one thing wrong with that. He didn't tell us where we're going to get the gasoline."

Pitts said that is probably the feeling of most operators in the Carolinas.

Ayden Board Votes Pass On Fuel Cost To The Customers

AYDEN—The Ayden Board of Commissioners, meeting in special session Tuesday afternoon, voted to pass on the additional fuel charges to the customers of the Ayden Utilities Department.

After discussing the increases in fuel charges over the past few months, the board agreed that the additional cost must be passed on to the utilities customers.

A total of $3.53 per 1000 kilowatts will be added to the March bills. The figure will probably change each month, depending on what the Ayden

Utilities Department will have to pay for fuel charges.

The board voted that the Ayden electrical customers will only be charged the exact amount of the fuel costs which are incurred by the town of Ayden.

The town has been absorbing the fuel costs since January, 1973, which was the date VEPCO was allowed by the Federal Power Commission to pass on such charges to municipalities. Due to the additional cost to the town, the board agreed that the cost must be passed on to its customers.

More Than Half Of All Tar Heels Over 14 Years Know Alcohol

RALEIGH (AP) — More than half of all North Carolinians above 14 years old drink alcoholic beverages and some 240,000 Tar Heels are heavy drinkers, according to a study conducted for the North Carolina Drug Authority.

The study also said that at least 143,000 people in the state have smoked marijuana in the last six months. Just over 100,000 have done so in the last month, the study said.

Alcohol is the most abused drug in the state and marijuana is the most abused illegal drug, the report said.

The four-month study, prepared by a Washington consulting firm and directed by Dr. Carl D. Chambers, cost $66,000 and was paid for with federal funds.

In addition to the findings on the extent of drinking and marijuana use, the study, outlined by Chambers at a news conference here Wednesday, made these other major points:

—Most marijuana users are between 18 and 24 years old and are fully employed. High school students using marijuana outnumber college users by 2-1.

—Neither race nor socioeconomic status was an indicator of marijuana use.

—There are about 20,000 current users of LSD and 20,000 users of methedrine (speed) in the state. White males under 25 are the major abusers.

—There are fewer than 8,000 current heroin users in the state. Most are employed and middle class.

—There are 16,000 current users of cocaine and 5,300 current users of solvents and inhalants.

—The use of amphetamine pep pills is on the decline, but over half the users obtain pep pills without a prescription.

"Smoking among adolescents is the greatest predictor of future illegal drug use," Chambers said in explanatory remarks before the presentation.

The study was drawn from 2,007 face-to-face interviews begun last November with persons 14 years old and above. In addition, 250 interviews were conducted with active drug users in nine major North Carolina cities, Chambers said.

He said the results were "weighted" against U.S. Census data to reflect the actual makeup of the state's population and then expanded proportionally to estimate total drug use among all the state's residents.

Fred Coon, planning director for the state Drug Authority, said the study will be used to identify problem areas and to develop state programs to combat drugs abuse in those areas.

Earphones Will Shut In Music

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: We are an elderly couple living in a three-room apartment on the second floor. Our greatest pleasure is listening to the radio and TV. My wife especially enjoys the Saturday afternoon Metropolitan Opera broadcasts.

Our problem is the tenant directly below us. When we have our radio or TV on, she starts knocking on her ceiling with a broom handle as a signal for us to turn down the sound. She knows my wife is hard of hearing because she wears a hearing aid, and we try to keep the sound down because we don't want trouble with the neighbors. My wife gets irritated when this knocking goes on while she's trying to listen to the TV.

We asked the lady downstairs to please quit harassing us in this manner. Her only answer was: "Don't talk to me about it. For years I have listened to you walking on my head!"

Do you think a complaint to the landlord—or the police—would be in order?
N. Y. POST READER

DEAR READER: This is a matter for the landlord—not the police. But since listening to the radio and TV is your greatest pleasure, why not consider getting earphone attachments for them? Apparently, the sound is more disturbing than you realize.

DEAR ABBY: I am a woman, 36 years old, 5 foot 9, and 260 pounds. I have three beautiful daughters from my first marriage and a 16-month-old son from my present marriage. My husband is a very handsome 26-year-old man who says he loves me just the way I am.

My problem is that I can't love myself the way I am. I have always had a weight problem. I love my husband very much and don't want to lose him—just the weight.

Can you tell me something about the operation where they remove part of your stomach to lose weight? I am serious about this and have heard it can be done. SERIOUS

DEAR SERIOUS: Ask your doctor and let him make such a recommendation—if he will. But remember, unless one removes the CAUSE, it will do no good to treat the symptoms.

DEAR ABBY: My 33-year-old son is an attractive, successful professional man who always has a girl on the string. He will date her exclusively for months, wining and dining her and giving her a big rush. He even ingratiates himself with her parents. And just when everyone expects him to slip a ring on her finger he decides she is not the girl for him.

The girl ends up with a broken heart, and my son the heartbreaker starts the same routine with another girl.

I can see it happening again, and I am terribly upset. What is wrong with a man who behaves this way?
DISTRESSED

DEAR DISTRESSED: That all depends on what goes on between your son and the girl. If he only dates her and makes no promises and she winds up with a broken heart, she has taken too much for granted. But if he leads her on with promises of marriage and then drops her, he's a heel. Don't be distressed. He's better off than the man who marries and has a couple of children and THEN decides the girl is not for him.

'Smooth Sailing' Aboard White Whale Miss Ballenger Speaks Vows

EDITOR'S NOTE — The U.S. Navy has broken the sex barrier at sea and is now welcoming women aboard as able-bodied sailors. The new crewpersons have found smooth sailing even when faced with the question: Should a gentleman open a hatch for a lady?

By ANN CURLEY
Associated Press Writer
SOMERVILLE, N.J. (AP) — Everything is shipshape on the USS Sanctuary, the first Navy vessel with women sailors as part of the seagoing crew.

That's the report from Seaman Kathleen Pachomski, who is among the 55 to 60 women sharing duties with the 450 male sailors on the 30-year-old hospital ship.

The Sanctuary's recent goodwill mission to Haiti and Colombia was a two-way success, said the petite blonde sailor during a shore leave at home here.

The trip of 2½ months was part of the past year's experiment that tested whether men and women could live well together on board ship.

"And we did it," declared the 20-year-old Miss Pachomski.

She recalled happily the captain's statement of pride of his crew as the Sanctuary headed toward its Florida port in mid-December. The mission also was important, she feels, because it gave medical attention and supplies to people who needed them.

"When we pulled in to Colombia, I could never tell you what it was like," she related. "There were hundreds of people on the pier waiting for us, clapping and yelling."

The Sanctuary docked at Port-au-Prince, Haiti, and Buenaventura, Colombia, as part of the Navy's Handclasp cruise.

Miss Pachomski said that equality and cooperation marked the trip aboard the "White Whale," as the floating hospital is nicknamed.

"There's nobody better than anybody else," she said. "We're treated the same. Everybody's rules are exactly alike."

There are a few regulations due to the women's presence. Their berthing area, with its feminine touch of bright blankets and stuffed animals, is off-limits to the men. The men's berthing area is off-limits to women, too.

Public displays of affection are not allowed, but there have been the inevitable romances. When two Sanctuary sailors tie the marriage knot, however, one of them must transfer from the ship.

Seaman Pachomski says that the few "old Navy" men who have trouble getting accustomed to women sailors aboard just make her more determined to do a good job. The young men welcome them for the most part as a change from all-male company.

"Most of the guys are nice," she said. "They still open doors and the 20-pound hatches for us. They give us their jackets if we're cold. They're still men."

The 5-foot-1 sailor says she pulls her own weight (112 pounds) when it comes to work assignments.

Which currently is handling yeoman duties, taking care of the paperwork that concerns about 60 crew members. But she has had her share of mess duty and paint details.

All the sailors stand watch periodically, which takes them to the bridge when the ship is under way.

"On the bridge, we're there to take care of each instrument," said the sailor. "It's on-the-job training."

She thinks the hardest adjustment is to the lack of privacy in the close quarters of the berthing area. "You have to be able to live with people," said Seaman Pachomski, who expresses no concern about changing her title to "seawoman."

"It's just a rate," she said. But it is one she is proud of after starting duty as a seaman apprentice.

A former student at Newark State and Somerset County colleges, she went to boot camp at Orlando, Fla. She was training for the medical corps at Great Lakes Naval Hospital and finding that was not her "line" when she heard about the Sanctuary's need for women sailors.

"We're getting our chance to see the world," says Seaman Pachomski.

Miss Kathryn Wilder Ballenger became the bride of Donald Eugene Anderson in a candlelight ceremony at the home of the bridegroom's parents Friday night at eight o'clock.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, James Stator Martin of Williamston, is the daughter of Mrs. Peggy M. Ballenger of Greenville, and the Rev. Wilbur A. Ballenger of

Mrs. Donald Eugene Anderson

Ayden. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper W. Anderson of Greenville.

The bride wore a formal length gown of white voile trimmed with crocheted lace jewelry was diamond earrings given her by the bridegroom.

Miss Barbara Ellen Ballenger, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of yellow linen and carried a nosegay of yellow mums. The bridegroom's best man was Richard A.

Stephenson Jr. of Greenville.

The Rev. Ballenger, father of the bride, performed the double ring ceremony.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party, family and close friends were entertained at a reception given by the bridegroom's parents.

Mrs. Johannesen Presents Slide Presentation At Opti-Mrs. Meet

A slide presentation on Japan and Okinawa was presented at the meeting of the Opti-Mrs. Club of Greenville Tuesday night held at the home of Mrs. Charles Ross.

Mrs. Bob Johannesen, a teacher at Wahl-Coates Elementary School, was guest speaker. A native of Iowa, she graduated from the University of Northern Iowa. After teaching in Denver, Colo., for two years, Mrs. Johannesen went to Okinawa in 1970 to teach on an Army base for the Department of Defense.

During her 10-month stay in Okinawa, she visited Taiwan, India, Nepal, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Japan and Hawaii. The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Ross.

Final plans were finalized for the club sponsored Tupperware party which will benefit Operation Sunshine.

The Tupperware party will be held Tuesday, April 16, at the home of Mrs. Gene Ward. Persons interested in placing orders are asked to telephone 758-2246 after 5 p.m.

During the business session conducted by Mrs. John Trotman, president, a nominating committee was appointed, including Mrs. Jim O'Brien, Mrs. Wade Trask and Mrs. C. P. Shaw.

Mrs. Ross gave a report on Operation Sunshine and told of a forthcoming luncheon which will feature Mrs. Nancy Covert Smith as guest speaker. The luncheon will be held at the Moose Lodge on Wednesday, May 22.

Exotic Materials Vary Design

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Take a handful of camels' teeth, a strip of tapa cloth, pheasant feathers, a few shells and maybe a quantity of bamboo beads in which rooster feathers have been stuck. Add a ceramic form and what do you have? Why, a lamp, of course. Or you might find the decorative touches in a wall hanging.

No matter, such materials and other exotic ones — African trading beads, wooden Bethlehem beads from Israel, and what not — are being used in the 40-or-so variations of lamps and other decorative objects designed by Asta Ingle. The collection is unique, much of it is hand done.

"People couldn't quite find the right lamps to go with all the natural things being used today. That's why I decided on this line," she explained, with an assurance to ecologists that camels' teeth are pulled out anyway because "they are vicious biters."

Her new perspective should appeal to naturalists — one lamp is covered with peacock feathers; turkey and pheasant feathers are on other lamps. A ceramic base is partially covered with tapa cloth (a plant pounded out) and decorated with wood beads and shells. Raffia is braided and glued to some lamps and is used as trim on some shades. Macrame is worked right on the lamp bases, and is also used in decorative hangings.

As for shells that come from Florida, Hawaii and the Philippines — she buys them by the ton — it is a whole new feeling in the shellomania trend that is gripping the decorating world. The new shell look is a far cry from the souvenir offerings of other eras.

Shells decorate lamp bases and wall sconces. They become hanging chandeliers and, combined with coral, they are frames for mirrors. Some shell designs such as planters are done on molds with real shells added for dimension. Abalone shells are used on a peacock mirror.

field. She also has a certificate in mechanical drafting from the Los Angeles Institute of Technical Engineering.

She began designing lamps in 1956 and has gone through all the phases from the gift shop harlequins to the bright glazed potteries and mod styles. In 1962 she became a designer with Sunset Lamps, a division of the Cosco Co. that recently made her a vice-president of the lamp company. Prehistoric designs were begun a few years ago, but now she is thinking about the bicentennial of the United States, she says.

"I'd like to do salt glaze, but it wouldn't be possible. We might do something of the type — pewter pounded on ceramic-like stone or quilted lamps in early American patterns."

Before coming to the United States as the wife of an American diplomat, Estonian-born Mrs. Ingle, who speaks six languages, directed an art study program for UNRRA, studied at the Hamburg Art Institute and was a journeyman potter. Earlier she had received a degree in pharmacy but had decided not to follow in the footsteps of her parents, who were pharmacists.

EXOTIC TRIM—Peacock feathers, bamboo beads or even camels' teeth may be used as decorative touches on lamps designed by Asta Ingle, above right. She also uses shells combined with coral as frames for mirrors.

Teen-age runaways are serious business. But the Huckleberry Finn crowd is something else.

I had this friend whose preschooler ran away from home so often she rented his room.

There was scarcely a morning that Itchy Feet didn't announce dramatically, "I am leaving home," and grabbing a couple of essentials (a truck and a shoebox of baseball cards) he would start for the door.

I was there having coffee one morning when he made his exodus. His mother was super cool. "Do you have everything?" she asked.

He checked his shoebox to make sure Pete Rose was there. "Yep."

"Will we hear from you?"

"Maybe. After I'm settled."

"Do you want to know what we're having for dinner tonight?" she asked.

"Nope," he said shaking his head stubbornly.

"We'll miss you," she said.

"I'll bet," he said.

"What do you want me to do with your gerbils?"

"Give them to charity."

"Well then, Jim, I guess this is good-bye," she said. "Here's a bag of snacks to tide you over until you get settled."

He took the bag and stomped out the door, leaving it ajar.

"That kid never could close a door," said his mother pouring herself another cup of coffee.

"He'll be home by noon," she said.

"How do you know that?" I asked.

"I packed a box of dried prunes for his snack."

My kids never had the imagination or inclination to run away from home despite the fact I used to pack road maps in their lunches. I packed a bag for myself a few times but could never hitch a ride any farther than the shopping center. (Sex perverts used to pass me up.

The Scandals Won't Go Away

President Nixon is making more public appearances these days, and apparently seeking to regain the approval of the nation.

The appearances are varied, ranging from the Grand Old Opry to a Houston stroll. Tuesday night he appeared before the National Association of Broadcasters for a televised press conference.

The president found a generally friendly audience among the broadcasters. Viewers could decide for themselves why the station owners and executives would be so tolerant of a president whose administration is wracked by scandal.

There was the significant announcement at the beginning of the conference of the lifting of the Sunday ban on sales of gasoline, welcome news to a nation which travels on weekends and to the industries which cater to travelers.

It was interesting that the president faced the press on the day that Conservative Senator James L. Buckley had called on him to resign from office and save the nation further anguish.

Nixon's answer to that was that the world "Needs a strong American president not a president who every time the polls go down says, 'Well maybe I better resign.'"

"...It perhaps would be an act of courage to resign. I should also point out, however, that while it might be an act of courage to run away from the job that you were elected to do, it also takes courage to stand and fight for what you think is right and that's what I intend to do."

He said, as he has previously, "dragging out Watergate drags down America, and I want to bring it to a conclusion."

Well, the president will decide on his own as to whether he should resign from office. He should recognize, however, that Watergate and related scandals will not go away during his term of office. While perhaps the matter has been too much discussed for purposes of fair trial of some of Nixon's closest associates, it is also clear that too much has gone on that is not in keeping with the way a democratic government elected to serve the people should operate.

Nixon will always be symbolic of the people and deeds which surrounded him and his every decision will be colored by the trickery which went on under his administration.

Sugg Has Eye On Primaries

By JOHN KILGO
RALEIGH—Democratic Party Chairman Jim Sugg has taken a get-tough policy on primary campaigns this year, in hopes of being able to unite the party in North Carolina for the November elections.

Sugg has sent a letter to all Democratic candidates for the U. S. Senate, and to all congressional candidates who will be in a primary.

"It was not a threatening letter in any way," Sugg told me. "I felt this had to be done for unity sake. We must forgive and forget and work for Democrats after the primaries are over."

Sugg told the candidates that he would be monitoring the primaries.

"I will be watching the primaries," Sugg said. "If they become too heated, if charges are made that serve no purpose but to divide us, if things are done that will not allow us to unite when the primaries are over, then I will not hesitate to call a press conference to talk about that candidate who did those things."

Sugg says all of the Democratic candidates for the U. S. Senate have written him saying they agree with his approach and support him in the effort. Sugg is taking the approach because he feels, though he doesn't talk about it publicly, that the Democrats must win this year.

"If we blow it this year, then there's not much... Well, strike that," he said. "This is a very important year for Democrats in North Carolina and we must be able to get together and work hard for all of our candidates in November."

Sugg says he's confident the Democrats will do well in the state this year, if they work hard. He warns them not to depend on Watergate to give them an automatic win.

"I'm telling everyone, everywhere that I go that we must work harder than ever," Sugg says. "Watergate by itself will not be enough for us to win."

Sugg says he doesn't think the fact that Republicans will control local boards of elections will hurt Democrats in the fall elections.

"I hope it doesn't have an appreciable effect and I don't think it will," Sugg says.

"Boards of elections should be run in an impartial way. It shouldn't make any difference who's in charge. I know the Republicans have said we did some things that weren't exactly right when we had control of all the local boards, but those charges are not true. They'll be called to account for their actions if they try to run the elections boards in a partial manner, in a way that would affect the elective process. But I really don't think there will be any problem in this area. I foresee none, anyhow."

Tar Heel Democrats just completed the Jefferson-Jackson Day festivities in Raleigh last weekend. National and state leaders gave party members a good pep talk. Before that, Alabama Gov. George Wallace was in Raleigh for a rally, one that was criticized by some elements of the party.

"The Wallace appearance was a good shot in the arm for the Democrats," Sugg said. "It was a real help. It said to the people who maybe had been overlooked, forgotten or neglected in 1972, that Democrats are concerned about them. We've received a lot of compliments on the rally."

"We have deep admiration for the firefighters of the Belvoir, Staton House, and Bell Arthur Fire Departments and the North Carolina Forestry Service. To each, we say than you. You did a tremendous job that day. The George W. Hawkins family Belvoir

Conflicts Not To Be Avoided

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Would it be possible to completely remove conflicts of interest from the legislative process?

"I don't think you can avoid them—it's next to impossible," said Dr. John J. Hunt, Cleveland County dentist, storeowner, and legislator.

"All of us, if you carried a question to the extreme, could figure out some conflict of interest on many questions that come up.

"You've got teachers and lawyers and farmers and businessmen down here—a cross-section of the population of the state.

"And as long as you have citizen legislators, you're gonna have conflicts," Hunt said.

The only solution and the only protection for the people is individual conscience, electing lawmakers who will vote their convictions, Hunt said.

On Ethics
The General Assembly is currently wrestling with several bills on ethics requiring disclosure of sources of income, and with campaign reform measures requiring reports on campaign contributions and spending.

Those measures are well and good. But, Hunt said in a relaxed talk about how he and fellow legislators cope with conflict problems, there's no substitute for conscience.

Here's how one man feels about the problem:
"We legislators are an extension of the people. If you ruled out from public service any person with any possible area of conflict—there wouldn't be anybody to serve.

There are a lot of bills to vote on where you can't even find a hard clear position—they're just gray in the middle.

"Those are the ones that cause mental anguish, for a man with a conscience. And all of us do have one. I've talked to a lot of legislators about this, and they all have the same problems from time to time.

"And the thing to be careful about is that you don't let your own conscience dictate any other man's conscience. I might have to make one decision, and the fellow next door make another—but we both have that right," Hunt said.

"Others may do it differently, but you can't say that is wrong. The main thing is not to take the attitude that you personally are setting the example for others—you are only satisfying your own conscience."

Wide Distrust
Hunt believes—despite polls which show widespread distrust of politicians—that there are "a lot of good, conscientious people down here," and that fellow lawmakers have been in agonizing decisions just as he has.

There are, for the man with a conscience, some sleepless nights, Hunt confesses.
"One such was last year's attempt to repeal the tax on soft drinks. Hunt owns stock in a bottling company, and the lobbyists and bottling officials turned on the heat. Hunt opposed the measure despite the potential for gain.

Hunt's biggest problem came early this session when he broke a deadlock over a tax cut package which included removing the taxes on inventory stocks. His suggestion was to couple that with an income tax cut for low-income people, and the amendment swung support to the package.

"My purpose was to get my income tax cut into the package. But it was obvious that the whole package, including the inventory tax, was the only thing that would get through the House.

"This was my dilemma. I am a retailer and do have an inventory, so with a conscience problem, my first feeling was to abstain.

"But Speaker Jim Ramsey felt that since my amendment was in, I should vote. So there I was. Up until a few hours before the vote, I couldn't decide what to do. After a sleepless night I made a commitment that if the proposal passed and I made a profit from this, I would give that money to a church-supported college back home. I got up and wrote a letter immediately making that commitment, and I was able to vote with a clear conscience," Hunt said.

"But remember this. I was not setting an example for anybody else, I was just satisfying my own conscience, and that's what is important."

Strength For Today

GOD LIVES
How do you suppose people can look out on the majestic beauties of nature and continue to maintain that there is no God? How can they observe the unfailing accuracy with which natural law operates and still hold that everything has come about solely by a fortuitous arrangement of circumstances? How can they see good in their fellow men and not surmise that this good must have some source above and beyond humanity? Surely, "the fool hath said in his heart, there is no God." Unbelief is the result of a narrow and constricted outlook on life. It holds that what you cannot see, feel, or taste does not exist, ignoring the fact that some of the most precious things in life are not experienced in these ways. The unbeliever lives in a world in which he denies that there is any reality beyond what he has personally experienced. He calls himself broadminded when he is in fact very narrow-minded. The more we broaden our outlook on life, the more unreal and unsatisfying does unbelief become.

Forget Genocide Treaty

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK
The Senate Foreign Relations Committee recently gave its approval to the long-pending Genocide Convention and the proposed treaty is now languishing on the Senate calendar. The Senate would do well to let this mushy mishmash languish a few more years longer.

Proponents of the treaty are hard-put to explain why the thing should be ratified at all. Either the agreement has meaning, or it has not meaning, and they cannot seem to decide which line of argument best suits their purpose. The committee report leans over backwards to emphasize that the convention is really harmless: It is no more than a modest attempt "to curb the excesses of mankind." Other observers, without defending the excesses of mankind, take a more skeptical view.

The Genocide Convention was adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations in December, 1948. Since then 76 nations, more or less, have ratified it, more or less. The Communist bloc nations ratified with so many reservations as virtually to nullify whatever meaning the treaty might have.

In recommending ratification by the Senate, the committee itself proposed three "understandings" and one "declaration." The committee also noted, in a further effort to disarm the treaty's critics, that the treaty is not self-executing. An instrument of U.S. ratification would not be deposited until implementing legislation had been enacted, and if such implementing legislation took as long as ratification has taken, it would be well into the next century before Americans had anything to worry about.

So, ho-hum, and why get aroused? As the proponents point out, in 25 years not a single action has been brought by anyone anywhere, pursuant to its terms. But some of us who have opposed this treaty since it first came half-baked from the U.N.'s ovens are not so easily mollified.

Other Editors Say Look At Me!

(Raleigh Times)
From the time Eve and Adam decided that running around in the raw was passe and fitted themselves with fig leaves, there has always been a segment of mankind that felt driven to call attention to itself by being different from the humdrum throng.

In particular, youth of the age group attempting to wrench itself from the parental nest and test its own abilities is the vanguard of the army conscripted by the overwhelming urge to be different.

As youth's fads become popular, they of course pull in new recruits from those still younger; while of the more mature, some fall in line with the new fashions and some just turn their heads and mumble to themselves.

Through history, a little of everything has been tried by those seeking attention—from the squalling infant in the crib to the boy who cried wolf.

From original nudity, more and flashier clothes and adornments were piled on in the battle to stand out in the crowd—from baredskin to bustles, to bird feathers in the hats, from five-inch heels to psychedelic blue jeans. And always, once those running out front paused to turn and look, a faithful crowd of humanity was falling in behind, and the problem of being different from one's fellows was the success engendered its own defeat.

Hair—to the ears, to the shoulders, to the waist and to the ground—was tried, and within ten years every head in the world that could still grow hair sported a bountiful crop.

Now comes streaking. Back to the basics with Eve and Adam. Away with the bustles, the five-inch shoes and the flashy jeans. Will this time things really be different?

It is barely possible that running through the streets adorned only in nature's own may be the fad that will sparate the bold from the timid. Here at last may be the Valhalla sought by those whose battle cry is, "Hey, man, look at me."

But let's not bet on it yet.
If the younger folks fall in line as usual, and the elders surrender or turn their heads and mumble this time, it is certainly going to be interesting at the beaches this summer, gas shortage or no.

A Banking Heresy Being Heard

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — In conservative banking circles the greatest heresy is to believe that inflation is in any way acceptable. You must deplore it. You must exorcise those you feel are responsible and try to stamp out their beliefs.

A conservative Boston bank committed heresy during the last few days and rather than shrinking in anticipation of being whipped and ostracized, it is circulating its beliefs throughout the land.

Being distributed with the annual report of the State Street Boston Financial Corp., which operates the State Street Bank and Trust Co., is a statement on "Inflation: The Need for a New Mentality."

"We in the United States... have an economic and financial system which assumes price stability when in fact such a condition no longer exists," the report proclaims. Therefore, it declares, let us learn to live with it.

How? By taking a tip from Brazil, says Francis Hassey, the bank's chief economist, who spent six weeks in that booming but highly inflated South American nation at the urging of George Rockwell, the bank's president.

In Brazil, where 10 years ago the inflation rate briefly touched 100 per cent and where it is still between 15 and 20 per cent, interest rates, prices and wages are adjusted automatically to negate changes in currency values.

If, for instance, a bond holder was promised a 4 per cent annual yield he would receive that, plus the amount of inflation. If inflation amounted to 15 per cent he would receive 4 per cent plus about 15 per cent.

"Brazil, with 15 to 20 per cent inflation, probably

Nixon's Speech Themes

By WALTER R. MEARS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Any political campaign has its set piece. The Speech a candidate delivers day after day to stress his major themes. President Nixon's campaign to rebuild public confidence and block impeachment is no exception.

Nixon's forum has been the nationally broadcast and televised question-and-answer session. He has held four of them in less than a month. Two were White House news conferences, two on the road. He says there are likely to be more.

Whatever the questions put to the President, his two key answers have been the same:
—He will not resign, contending that to do so would destroy the presidency itself.

—He will not agree to turn over additional White House tape recordings and documents sought by House impeachment investigators, on grounds this would break the confidentiality essential to any president.

He has, at the same time, repeated his demands for a swift end to Watergate investigations, declaring anew that one year is enough, that dragging it out drags down America.

The words have changed somewhat; the tone became tougher at his session with the National Association of Broadcasters in Houston Tuesday night.

Nixon suggested, for example, that the House Judiciary Committee may be going beyond the limits of the Constitution in seeking additional White House documents.

"... I am suggesting that the House follow the Constitution," he said. "If they do, I will."

Nixon did not answer directly the question of whether he would comply should the House committee issue a subpoena for specific items. But he implied

Although the term of the Greenville postmaster expires tomorrow, Representative Lindsay Warren has been informed by the Civil Service Commission that an eligible list will not be completed for several weeks.

The Commission is now holding several thousand examinations throughout the country and each applicant must be interviewed.

Eleven candidates have filed applications for the Greenville position. The Postmaster General will certify the first three high on the list and Warren will make appointments from those three.

The summer school of East Carolina Teachers College will be conducted this year along the same plan as followed in previous summers. Two six weeks terms will be held, beginning on June 12 and July 18.

The program will be under the direction of Dr. L. R. Meadows. Students may register for one or both terms and will receive full credit for summer courses.

that will give workers their raises in constant or comparable dollars.

The insurance industry, where the fixed-value dollar was dogma for a century, is gradually accepting the notion of variable return annuities and life policies.

Mortgage lenders are increasingly convinced they cannot continue to make 20- and 30-year mortgages at fixed rates so long as inflation persists, and are considering variable or adjustable rates.

Says State Street: "The prospects are that in the next few years the rate of inflation will continue to rise, and that a return to 1 per cent or 2 per cent is most unlikely even in the distant future."

The debate over how to face this likelihood, for several years the subject of academic and business committee discussions, is now thrust into the open. Too many Americans, it appears, are tired of living an illusion.

GM Drops Planned Shutdowns

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
DETROIT (AP) — General Motors has canceled plans for one-week shutdowns at seven plants, citing a "brightening" sales outlook following its second worst sales period of the year.

GM Chairman Richard C. Gerstenberg, announcing the change in plans Wednesday, affirmed the auto giant's optimism that car sales would pick up now that the Arab oil embargo has ended.

The action will keep 27,000 workers on the job. Some had been scheduled for one-week furloughs Monday, others for one-week layoffs starting April 1. Thousands of other GM workers are on indefinite layoff and thousands still face temporary layoffs in the next few weeks, the company said.

"We are beginning to see increasing evidence that our business is getting better," Gerstenberg said.

He said GM dealers are reporting increased interest in new cars and noted that used car wholesale prices had firmed. He called that "a first step to improved new car sales."

Gerstenberg offered no figures to indicate an end to the 37 per cent sales decline which has plagued GM this year. GM, with 39,500 workers now on one-week layoffs because of plant shutdowns, still will close eight plants and idle 30,200 workers next week. Five other plants employing 17,600 are due for week-long closures starting April 1.

Some 65,000 hourly employees representing 15 per cent of GM's total U.S. workforce of 420,000 are on indefinite layoff.

Gerstenberg said GM's current sales outlook indicates that virtually all workers temporarily idled this month will be back on the jobs by mid-April.

Ford and Chrysler, which together have more than 15,000 workers on temporary layoffs this week and plan to idle 16,200 more at six plants next week, had no immediate reaction to GM's announcement.

Industrywide, sales are down 27 per cent from 1973 levels.

GM, more dependent on large car sales than other domestic makers, has been hit particularly hard by the market swing to smaller automobiles.

GM facilities affected by the shutdown cancellations are at Tarrytown, N.Y.; Buick assembly and Fisher body plants in Framingham, Mass. All as-Flint, Mich.; Oldsmobile as-semble big cars. The Tarry-sembly and Fisher plants in town plant was to have closed Lansing, Mich.; and assembly next week. The others were set plants in Arlington, Tex., and for closure the following week.

Conduct Conference On Juvenile Justice Here

A day long conference on juvenile justice, "The North Carolina Child In Trouble," is being held in the Allied Health Auditorium on Charles Street today.

Sponsored by the North Carolina League of Women Voters, the Greenville conference is one of five being held statewide on the subject of juvenile justice. The other four are being held in Boone, Durham, Charlotte and Greensboro.

Coordinator of the Greenville conference is Mrs. Mary Alice Yarbrough, local LWV Criminal Justice Director. Mrs. Yarbrough reports the conference has been made possible through a grant received from the N.C. Committee for Continuing Education in the Humanities.

"Each of the conferences is directed toward the general public as well as professionals in the field," Mrs. Yarbrough notes.

Registration for the conference was followed by two morning session speakers

Mason Thomas of the N.C. Institute of Government speaking on "North Carolina Juvenile Programs and Their Effects;" and Dr. Donald Stewart, associate professor of Sociology, ECU, on "Possible Alternative Juvenile Programs and Their Effects."

In the afternoon session, Dr. Gregory Ross, assistant professor of Philosophy, ECU opened the program with a talk, "Who Owns the Child?"

Also in the afternoon session, a panel discussion began at 1:00 and continued until 3:00 p.m. Mason Thomas was moderator.

The five persons on the panel were: Dr. John Ball, chairman, Department of Social Work and Correctional Services, ECU; Dr. John R. Larkins, Commissioner, Office Youth Development, N.C. Department of Social Rehabilitation and Control; Mrs. Verdine McFall, Clerk, Third Judicial District, Pitt County; Mrs. Eve Rogers, Court Counselor, Third Judicial District, Pitt County; and Mrs. Dana Tingen, Youth Officer, Burlington Police Department, Burlington.

Time was devoted to a question and answer session from any person attending the conference.

Ex-Inlaws Adopt Four Children

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Mickey Rooney's four children by his fifth wife have been adopted by their mother's parents.

Their mother, Barbara Thomason, was shot to death by a Yugoslav actor and the children have lived with their grandparents since 1966.

Rooney, who had joint guardianship of the children, failed to obtain sole custody in a 1972 suit. The judge ruled that the children's best interests were served by the regularity, reliability and stability of living with the grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Don Thomason of Rolling Hills Estates.

The children, Kelly, 14; Kerry, 13; Kyle, 12, and Kimmie, 10, will take the name of Thomason.

Under the plain language of this agreement, genocide is defined to embrace certain acts committed with intent to destroy in whole "or in part" a national, ethnical, racial, or religious group. Among the prohibited acts is "causing serious mental harm to members of the group."

There is no way—no way—that the Foreign Relations Committee can expunge the words, "or in part." No reservations, understandings or declarations can alter the meaning that some international tribunal eventually may attach to "serious mental harm." Because the treaty provisions apply in war no less than in peace, a possibility is presented that the U.S. could be gravely embarrassed by trumped-up charges based upon the excesses of a few troops, as at My Lai.

Article III of the treaty gets into the foggy realms of "conspiracy to commit genocide." This same article undertakes to punish "direct and public incitement" to commit genocide. The Supreme Court several times has held that no provision of a treaty can override a provision of the Constitution itself, but the gauzy language of this article raises serious questions of free speech.

In trying to soft-sell this bill of goods to the Senate, the committee contends that ratification "would not alter the situation of American military forces in peace or war." In the committee's view, every potential prosecution would hinge on the word "intent," and it would be difficult to prove that anyone had an "intent" to commit genocide.

This observer is not much impressed by the sweet talk. If the treaty is as toothless as the committee suggests, why bother? Why take the risk that a symbol of international goodwill could be misunderstood and misapplied? If we want to show our good intentions, let us send the signatories a nice letter and a few baskets of flowers instead.

"We didn't lose money," Sugg said, "but we didn't make as much as we had hoped. We got clobbered by the gas shortage that weekend, and we had a ice storm the day of the event. We had about 2,500 people, but we could have had many more."

that he would not, contending that the principle of presidential confidentiality applies to impeachment as to any other investigation.

That is an argument he used earlier in his unsuccessful effort to withhold White House tape recordings from the Watergate grand jury on grounds of executive privilege.

The tone and substance of the questions varied, from those of business executives in Chicago to those put by newsmen in Houston and Washington. But they produced the same information.

On resignation, and on the question of yielding up additional documents, Nixon said repeatedly that he was defending his office, guarding the prerogatives of the White House for those who will succeed him.

Nixon said in Houston that he had paid too little personal attention to the re-election campaign that spawned Watergate, and added "I don't intend to be in another campaign, needless to say."

But he is in one now. This time it is not for votes in an election; it is for public support in the struggle over the scandals.

Coffee-Producing Nations Demanding Higher Prices

NEW YORK (AP) — American coffee roasters say the price of coffee is going up and there's nothing they can do about it except wait. The coffee producing nations are restricting exports while demanding higher prices. Droughts, frosts and commodity speculation have also contributed to the rise.

Within the past four months, wholesale coffee prices have risen from 10 to 20 per cent, with many companies passing along successive penny-announced increases.

"We are entirely in the hands of the producing nations, dependent on them for supply," said John Buckley, vice president of purchasing for Nestle Co. Inc., the largest maker of freeze-dried coffee. "The producers are making available slightly less coffee than the world could readily absorb in order to keep the upward momentum on prices."

Still, some observers see a trend developing that could stabilize prices, noting that market prices for future contracts have eased.

Brazil, which pulled out of an international pricing agreement last September, now says it's willing to consider a new agreement to keep its gains secure. Other countries also are seeking ways to keep their prices from falling.

Because of coffee rust disease, the early frost and a lack of interest by growers, Brazil, the world's largest producer, harvested 10 million fewer bags of coffee in the 1973-74 season than the year before.

There are 132 pounds of coffee beans per bag.

For the first three months of this year the Brazilian Coffee Institute—IBC—says the country will only export 5.1 million bags, four million less than the similar period in 1973.

Yet because of the higher prices, the outgoing president of the institute, Carlos Alberto de Andrade Pinto, predicted last week that Brazil would shatter all records with $1.6 billion in coffee revenues in 1974.

Pinto said the price of coffee had risen from 42 cents to 75 cents a pound on the international market during his 22-month tenure. He hailed this "emancipation of coffee."

"The consumer countries take it for granted that because coffee is produced in underdeveloped countries, it should bring low prices," Pinto told a group of coffee executives in Rio de Janeiro.

For 10 years the world's coffee market was governed by the International Coffee Agreement, which set export quotas and prices. However last September, 41 producing nations bolted the agreement after they failed to reach an accord on prices with the consuming nations. To stabilize prices, Brazil, Columbia, the Ivory Coast and later Portugal set up a multinational marketing firm called Cafe Mundial. Together the countries account for 56 per cent of the world's coffee production.

Hearst Pledges To Keep Trying

By NANCY DAY
Associated Press Writer
HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Newspaper magnate Randolph A. Hearst says he will keep trying to get two imprisoned Symbionese Liberation Army members on nationwide television.

And he has advised his kidnapped daughter: "Patty, again, just hang in there. We're doing everything we can."

The SLA, which claims responsibility for kidnaping the 20-year-old coed Feb. 4, has threatened to break off all communications unless Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24, appear on national television.

The men want to make a statement they claim could lead to Miss Hearst's freedom.

One judge rejected the proposal Tuesday and a second judge on Wednesday postponed a ruling until next Monday. Approval of both judges is required since Little and Remiro face charges in two counties.

They are charged in Alameda County with the Nov. 6 cyanide-bullet assassination of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster and in Contra Costa County with the attempted murder of a Concord policeman on Jan. 10.

"I'm going to keep asking the people that have the authority to let them do it," Hearst said

Wednesday. "If they say no, they say no. But I'm going to keep asking."

Attorneys for Little and Remiro also promised to press the request of their clients.

Hearst told newsmen at his Hillsborough mansion, "I'm trying to do everything I can to facilitate the demands of the SLA."

He announced that his $2 million People In Need food giveaway is being revamped to provide high quality food demanded by the SLA. He said he hopes to resume handouts Monday.

So far, 120,000 bags of groceries have been distributed. Hearst said the abduction of his daughter had made him more conscious of the injustices in American society. Chicano, black and Indian children "don't start out on an equal footing" with white middle class children.

The FBI has described the SLA as a terrorist organization with some 25 members.

Standby Draft Numbers Allotted in Drawing

By JERRY T. BAULCH
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — No. 1 in Wednesday's standby draft lottery, held for men turning 19 this year, was assigned to those with a Feb. 28 birthday and No. 2 to those with a Jan. 5 birthday.

Judge School Fair Winners

Jay Chapin of Berwick, Pa., Joseph Harwood of Albemarle, Darrel Vodopich of Sanford, Fla., and Wayne Gardner of Greenville, all graduate students in the East Carolina University Department of Biology, were judges at Bath High School Science Fair held Wednesday, March 13.

Eight of the entered projects were given awards. Student winners will attend the District High School Science Fair at ECU March 29.

year in an emergency, men in this year's lottery would be the first inducted, starting with No. 1.

However Selective Service is reclassifying only those with numbers 1 through 95 according to their civilian status to provide a "readily inductible" pool. And even those men will not be given physical or mental exams.

Those with numbers above 95 will probably not be contacted by their draft boards, barring an emergency, although all draft-eligible men are liable for the draft until age 26.

The prime group this year consists of men with numbers 1 through 95 in last year's lottery. They will drop into a less vulnerable classification next year.

The lottery began with John D. Dewhurst, deputy director of Selective Service, saying there is no intention to try to restore authority to induct men. That authority expired last June 30.

The purpose behind the lottery, he said, is "insurance — plain and simple."

"The great experiment of maintaining a military force in peacetime of 2.2 million by volunteer means alone shows signs of achieving success," he said.

Kidnap Victim Relates Conversation Ordeal

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. (AP) — Eunice Kronholm says her conversations with the kidnapers who held her captive for four days ranged from "mundane things like food" to her faith in God.

"They couldn't understand how I was able to be as calm ... well, not bitter, that's what they said," the 46-year-old woman told newsmen Wednesday. "They wanted to know how come I wasn't bitter."

Mrs. Kronholm was kidnaped from her suburban St. Paul home last Friday morning. She escaped Monday night by walking away from the Burnsville house where she was being held.

Her husband, Gunnar Kronholm, 61, president of Drovers State Bank of South St. Paul, had paid a ransom of $200,000.

Mrs. Kronholm said she designated her two abductors as

"Bill" and "Jerry" to establish a communication base with them.

She said that at one point during her captivity she heard an announcer on a religious radio station say the whole nation was praying for her.

She said that when she told "Bill" of the message, he replied, "They're praying for the wrong person."

She said the kidnapers "immediate concern" was to get the $200,000 ransom they demanded of her husband. She said they had no money with them at all and took the $6 she had.

She said that at 11 a.m. Monday "Bill" left the Burnsville house and four hours later there was a radio news report that one of her abductors had been arrested.

She said she told "Jerry" that if he let her go, she would call her husband's bank and get money. She said he rejected the plan.

She said "Jerry" finally agreed to let her go, but he wanted to go with her. She said she finally said, "Jerry, I'm going," and ran out the door and down the street.

She said he followed her, but she jumped in front of a car and a young man gave her a ride to a grocery store. She called her husband about 5 p.m.

The FBI said Wednesday that it had recovered $190,000 of the ransom money from the garage of the Burnsville home where Mrs. Kronholm was held.

The man arrested in the case, James W. Johnson, 35, a Lakeville, Minn., contractor, is being held on $100,000 bail on charges of extorting $200,000 from Kronholm's bank.

'Lobby' Group Points At Demos

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Common Cause, the self-styled citizens' lobby, said today that Democratic congressional candidates received more than $1 million from special interest groups in 1972 and accused the Democrats of stalling electoral reform.

The foot-dragging charge was contained in a full-page advertisement in today's editions of The Washington Post, appearing on the same day the party holds its annual fund-raising dinner.

The figures on 1972 Democratic receipts from special interest groups were contained in a report to be published by Common Cause next week on the role of special interest money during the presidential year campaigns.

Common Cause said various political committees gave Democratic House candidates a total of $667,226 while senatorial candidates received $550,947.

The largest single donor on the list was the National Committee for the Re-Election of a Democratic Congress, a quasi-official fund-raising committee headed by Robert Strauss, who later became chairman of the party.

The Strauss committee was listed as having raised $376,507 for House candidates and $260,802 for senatorial hopefuls under the party banner.

The largest giver among business and professional ranks was the Committee for Thorough Agricultural Political Education, the political wing of the Associated Milk Producers Inc. It gave $87,500 for Democratic House campaigners and $72,000 for senatorial candidates.

The biggest labor union gifts came from the national AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education, which gave over $43,000 to Democratic congressional candidates.

Common Cause has been active in electoral reform and is a chief advocate of public financing for federal elections.

It was a Common Cause lawsuit that forced President Nixon's re-election committee to disclose the sources of his early campaign receipts, including money that figured in the Watergate scandal.

However, Common Cause contends that it is Democratic leadership in Congress, particularly Chairman Wayne Hays of the House Administration Committee, which is holding up electoral reform.

Milk Price Bill Doomed

RALEIGH (AP) — A Republican senator says he fears that his bill to permit milk to be sold below cost in North Carolina stores is headed for the "graveyard."

Sen. Hamilton Horton of Forsyth County made the statement Wednesday after the Senate voted to send the measure to the Senate Agriculture Committee headed by Sen. Vernon White, D-Pitt.

Horton told the Senate the bill had been studied closely and approved by the Senate State Government Committee.

White offered a motion that the bill be referred to his committee for study.

"This does not affect the farmer," Horton argued. "The agriculture committee has traditionally been the graveyard for bills of this type."

White contended that if a provision is removed from the present law to permit milk to be sold below cost it would affect every dairyman in the state.

Horton told newsmen later, "I'm going to harass the committee until they give us a hearing on the bill."

"This," he added, "is a consumer-oriented bill. It has nothing to do with the price the farmer gets for milk."

Frinks, Gibson To Talk Issues

TARBORO, N.C. (AP) — One of North Carolina's leading civil rights activists and one of the state's most militant segregationists plan to meet in Jacksonville next week in an effort to find some common ground.

Golden Frinks, state field director for the activist Southern Christian Leadership Conference, said Wednesday he will meet March 27 with Leroy Gibson, leader of the Rights of White People Organization in North Carolina.

The two men have represented widely divergent political views in the past.

Gibson confirmed that he had agreed to meet with Frinks.

Frinks said he and Gibson agreed to discuss a variety of issues, including abolition of capital punishment and school desegregation.

Frinks said he and Gibson want to "find ways that the two organizations can work together to end the death penalty and bring about a return to some form of neighborhood schools to benefit both blacks and poor whites."

Gibson said the whites and blacks both want a return to neighborhood schools. "They want to go to their schools in their neighborhoods and we want to go to schools in our neighborhood," he said.

Gibson said the meeting with Frinks was "just the beginning" of an effort to show that both blacks and whites are opposed to "unnecessary busing to fill quotas in our schools."

Frinks announced plans for the meeting in Tarboro after talking with Gibson by telephone. Frinks has been in Tarboro organizing protest activities against North Carolina's death penalty.

Area Terrorized By A Strange Animal

By ALFRED ARAUJO
NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A monster, said to be a curious and frightening mixture of lion, tiger, leopard and dog, has been terrorizing the people of Bungoma District, 300 miles west of here in western Kenya, for the past four months.

And the reign of terror caused by the "Monster of Bungoma" has led to the mobilization of Game Department rangers and scouts in the area, a sleepy farming region.

According to local villagers, hundreds of goats, sheep, calves and dogs have fallen prey to the animal, or whatever it is, in an area of about 50 square miles between Mayanja-Kibabii and Sang'alo, near the route of the multimillion-dollar transcontinental super highway being built to link the Kenyan seaport, Mombasa, and Lagos, Nigeria.

The villagers say the animal is strange to the district. Leopard is uncommon in the area and the last lion was killed more than 20 years ago.

The animal has been described as having the claws and the ferocity of a lion, the teeth, neck and head of a tiger, the yellow and black spots of a leopard and the tracking instinct of a dog.

The local MP, Joseph Khaoya, who is also the country's deputy agriculture minister, said a team of game wardens had hunted the animal, but without success.

One night while the animal was chasing a jackal, the wardens fired several shots at it; they killed the prey instead of the monster, which escaped into the bush unscathed.

Families in the area have become so terrified that many have brought their livestock into their heavily shuttered homes. Few people are to be seen in the streets after dusk.

Some villagers believe that the animal was set free from a cage by Asians fleeing neighboring Uganda after President Idi Amin's expulsion order in 1972.

Others tell of legends that visits of strange creatures to the district at intervals signify calamities or unusual happenings.

Veterans Administration Tries To Rescue Addicts

By TOM UHLENBROCK
ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI) — The talking stopped as Herbert walked into the room, took his regular seat in the circle, and began slowly stroking his neat Afro.

Each of the other 16 men stared at the tall, muscular youth until one finally asked, "Well?"

Herbert grinned and began: "I saw the dude about work. Then went by to sign for school. Ran into Leon."

The others hooted and groaned, but Herbert continued, speaking softly with a slight slur.

"Leon was my main bag man, you know. He offered me a chip, but I thought, man, and I flew."

Unusual Group

Ralph Simmons, heroin addict for 18 years but now counselor for other addicts, interrupted. "Go on, Herbert, tell them what you asked me this morning when you picked up your pass."

"Aw man, I was just kidding," Herbert protested. "Well, I asked Ralph how they could tell if I came back dirty. He said I'd have to take golden flow test and if they found heroin in my urine I'd be kicked out of the ward. And, well, I know I'm not ready for the streets."

Herbert eased back as Ralph turned to another addict and began prodding. It was an unusual looking group assembled in the top floor of a ward at the Jefferson Barracks Veterans Administration Hospital. A middle-aged, white insurance salesman sat next to a black cab driver. Heroin, and an attempt to free themselves from the drug, had brought them together.

Most of the men going through the program are veterans of Vietnam.

"The final thing for me was when my Momma caught me stealing her watch and ring," said Ron, another of the group. "She was in the kitchen and she just turned and saw me as I was going through her pocketbook. She said, 'Ron, I love you so much I hate to see you coming.'"

Looked So Peaceful

Jonathan, a young black wearing blue military pajamas like most of the others, spoke up: "I remember my first time. I was watching these guys nodding out. They looked so peaceful. I asked one dude what was going on. He said junk. He took me down to this basement, there was tinfoil and matches all over the floor. He said it cost $4.

"I never did like taking shots but, when he shot me, it didn't hurt like a doctor. I said, 'Hey, man, you poisoning me.' I couldn't even keep my eyes open. I was back that night with another $4."

"The drug does something to you," said Oscar, who had been listening silently. "What else would make you get up in the morning when it's three below and seven inches of snow on the ground and they're closing schools and you go stand in a cold hall somewhere waiting for the man with a fix?"

Brad, a long-haired white youth with Mickey Mouse tattooed on his left forearm, leaned up from his chair and spoke loudly: "I gotta quit acting like a baby. I'm getting married and I hope my wife will mean more to me than dope. The first time I shoot I'm gonna blow it all. I don't have many friends who don't do dope. I'm gonna have to find some new ones."

Al, sitting in the circle, is 41 and has been on heroin for more than 20 years. "You sound like a storybook," he remarked to Brad. "You get married and live happily ever after. It's not like that."

Looking for a Fix

"I've been in the penitentiary five times. I know I'm tired of what I'm doing—waking up every morning looking for a fix. I have a nice income, own my own cab. But it's all going in my arm. I called my friend Ralph and said, 'help me.'"

The Veterans Administration has set up 44 drug programs, and mandated its 168 hospitals to accept drug-related cases. It recently sent two representatives to talk with Dr. Soujas C. Lahiri at the Jefferson Barracks Hospital and try to learn why his program is one of the nation's most successful in convincing addicts they can live without heroin.

The atmosphere in the ward is relaxed. Pajama-clad patients loiter in the halls, shoot pool in the recreation room, sit and smoke in the dormitory-like sleeping quarters. They greet Lahiri with "Hiya, doc" and he often stops to chat. A native of Calcutta, India, Lahiri must speak slowly so that his English is understood.

The activities of the men are scheduled with the regimen of a Boy Scout camp.

"The idea for this is that they have been without discipline as drug users," Lahiri said. "Anytime they have frustration or a bit of pain they immediately try to reduce it with the drug. We try to put in some routine because, if he's supposed to work, a man has to be in bed by some time. These things give them scheduling and show them life can be without thinking about drugs all the time."

Idle Time Not Good

"Idle time is not good for a man when he's an addict. If they are not given something to do, they spend their time talking about drugs they have used, how they got started, where to buy the best heroin. They do talk about drugs in the (group therapy) program, but in a negative way with the staff there to monitor it into a productive channel."

"Our treatment is not to keep a man off heroin for a long or short period. Our treatment is to take away the need for heroin."

"You cannot treat addiction if the patient doesn't want to be treated, that's No. 1. Our program is entirely voluntary."

If a man is sent to us by the courts, he must have asked to be sent here. We do have quite a few military personnel sent to us. They usually don't want to be in the program and just count the days until they can leave for their discharge. Our success with these types is not as good.

"But a man doesn't come here because he doesn't like heroin. He comes because he doesn't like the hassle of heroin. A heavy addict spends between $50 and $100 a day on his habit. To support the habit an addict has to push drugs, pimp, con. Can you imagine, $100 a day, $36,500 a year!"

Up to mid-February, 655 patients had gone through the program—589 for heroin abuse and 66 for other drug problems. Two thirds were blacks between the ages of 20 and 30, and 495 had been to Vietnam. Some have gone through the program, filed again on the outside and returned.

Successful Graduates

James H. Byars, a VA counselor, recently interviewed 145 former patients. He found 49.6 per cent said they were totally drug free (excluding alcohol), 26.7 per cent used drugs other than heroin and 24 per cent still used heroin.

Because addicts feel straight persons fail to understand their problem, Lahiri leans heavily on successful graduates of his program in dealing with the patients, men like Ralph Simmons.

"I saw the faces of my friends that had kicked drugs brighten up; they gained weight, held jobs, paid taxes. I wanted it," Simmons said.

After spending more than half of his 35 years on heroin, Simmons said, "I was tired, man. I spent eight flat years in prisons. Last time I went to the penitentiary I was at the point that, if I got just a little bit of help, I'd make it. But none of the prisons had any type of drug program. I heard about this one through the grapevine."

"All the tools are right here in the program for a guy who wants to stop. We could all lead ordinary lives with a little help."

Still on Methadone

Simmons wants to be drug free, but still relies on methadone. "I'm down to a low dose now," he said. "Each time I take a cut I can feel my body adjusting to it."

Simmons was one of the program's first graduates and stayed on as an ex-addict counselor. He knows all the excuses, the lies, the cons. He tells the group sessions, "When you come in here, leave the bull in the hall."

Simmons is proud, but also scared.

"What some of us do when we wake up—before we reach for that first cigarette—we say no matter what we do today we're not gonna shoot no dope. That's our prayer for today and it's gonna be a long day," he said.

Methadone Helped

Marvin Thomas, another counselor, was going down fast. How would he explain to a judge that he'd been caught stealing twice because he had to feed a $150-a-day heroin habit? He grabbed the only straw and the judge agreed to a three-year suspended sentence if Thomas entered Lahiri's drug program.

"I was strung out for six years," he said. "I was out on two bonds when the court date came up. I wasn't sure when I first started—I wasn't sure I wanted to leave drugs alone."

But methadone solved the physical hunger, and Lahiri's program convinced the 25-year-old that he could kick heroin.

"I think methadone is a good thing. It helps more than it hurts," Thomas said, sitting in a chair in an office of the outpatient drug clinic on the grounds of Cochran Veterans Hospital.

A steady procession goes on outside the office. Methadone is being handed out in six-ounce cups of unsweetened grapefruit juice. Each empty cup is collected to make sure no methadone leaves the building.

Psychological Hunger Remains

"We figure, if a guy is in good enough condition to hold a job, then he doesn't have to go into the ward at Jefferson Barracks," Thomas said. "We're treating about 150 a day with methadone, and about 75 are drug free and just come in for counseling. Methadone treats only the physical withdrawal symptoms; the psychological hunger for heroin is still there."

Tall and lanky with a stubby goatee and large eyes, Thomas thinks his status in the community as an ex-addict helps his work.

"The drug scene is a closed society," he said. "The grapevine always tells you who's shooting what. These people know me and accept me as someone who's truly concerned with the drug problem."

While programs such as Lahiri's fight the effects of heroin, the major task is solving the problems that lead a person to drugs.

Marvin Parkell, a social worker who has been with the program six months, will make one generalization about the root of the problem—there is no one answer.

English System

"It may be a combination of things—stress, peer pressure, even handed down from brother to brother, father to son."

What would happen if the United States adopted the English practice of giving heroin free to registered addicts?

"The immediate effect of giving heroin away free in clinics would be elimination of the pusher," Parkell said. "But if an addict is given free heroin every day, he soon reaches a new tolerance level and his dosage would have to be increased for him to remain comfortable."

"I don't see how a doctor could rationalize giving out free heroin to keep all his patients doped up."

Equality In Sweden Is For Dogs, Too

By EMIL SVEILIS
STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden likes to be known as a nation of equality for all—and that includes dogs.

In most of North America, only seeing eye dogs are allowed to ride with their masters on trains, subways, buses and trolleys. But in Sweden, dogs and other pets can be brought along on all public transportation—for a price.

Instead of paying per ride, Stockholm's human commuters are able to buy a "50 kronor card" (about $12) which carries their picture and signature and is valid for one month on all public transportation in the greater Stockholm area.

Beginning April 1, the same privilege will be extended to dogs, except the canines will not have to have their pictures or paw print on their 50 kronor cards. A master's signature will do it.

Currently, dogs or other pets small enough to be put in a bag and carried aboard public transportation ride for free. All larger species have to pay full human fare.

According to the latest figures, Stockholm has 26,492 dogs registered by the Dog Tax Expedition in Stockholm. Dog tax officials say the figure probably is much higher, because many owners try to escape the 80 kronor ($18) annual license fee.

With this abundance of pets, Stockholm commuter trains and buses sometimes look like kennel club charters.

"From April 1 anybody can buy a 50 kronor card for his dog," said Bengt Wirding, a spokesman for the Stockholm Transit System.

Wind Towers Fight Frost In Apple Orchards

HENDERSONVILLE, N.C. (AP)—Apple growers in Henderson County are building antifrost devices—30 to 40 feet towers with propeller-type fans on top.

The wind towers, adopted from the Florida citrus country, drive toward the ground the layer of warmer air that is usually 30 to 40 feet up.

Henderson County growers adopted the idea after five damaging frosts held their crop down to 3.6 million bushels last year instead of the 6 to 6½ million expected. Still, the crop brought growers 3.2 million, and made Henderson the seventh largest apple-producing county in the nation.

The chairman of the Farm Extension Service in the county, Grover Westmoreland, says the yield this fall could be 7 to 7½ million bushels if the weather is favorable.

Cow Produces Healthy Quads

BURLEY, Idaho (AP) — The odds were 748,855 to 1, says a veterinarian, but a cow on O.M. "Bud" Johnson's ranch gave birth to quadruplets.

The four young calves, all identical heifers, were reported in good health.

Dr. Marvin Chamberlain of Burley, a veterinarian with the Blue Cross Animal hospital, said the odds against all the calves being healthy are even higher than those for a quadruple birth.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — North Carolina egg markets were steady Wednesday. Supplies adequate, demand fair. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets: Grade A large whites 66.80, medium whites 62.76, small whites 45.84.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — Corn and soybeans were weaker on the state's leading grain markets Wednesday. No. 2 yellow shelled corn brought 2.80-3.10, mostly 2.90-3.00 per bushel. No. 1 yellow soybeans were mostly 6.20-6.23 1/2 per bushel.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — North Carolina hogs were irregular today. Tops of 32.50-33.50 at Kinston, Benson and Lumberton; 30.00-32.00 Wilson and High Falls; 31.00-31.50 Rocky Mount; 30.50-31.00 Tarboro and Bethel; 33.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) (NCDA) — North Carolina hens: Market unsettled for heavy types. Offerings fully adequate and demand only fair. Too sources reporting to release prices.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market gained strongly today, with some of the big-name blue-chip issues leading the way.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 80 industrials was up 9.00 at 881.34, while gainers led losers by slightly less than 3-to-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said a prime factor in the advance was General Motors' announcement that it was canceling 27,000 planned layoffs and that "business is getting better."

"This gives credibility to the administration's projection that the economic slowdown would be brief and would not reach recession proportions," said Robert Stovall at Reynolds Securities.

GM, up 1 1/2 at 53 3/4, was one of four issues which together accounted for about half of the Dow's gain.

General Electric climbed 1 1/2 to 55 after the company said it expected first-quarter profits to better last year's comparable figures. GE shares traded recently at a three-year low, with analysts blaming uncertainty among some institutional investors about the company's first quarter outlook.

Union Carbide, which raised its first quarter earnings estimate, rose 1 1/2 to 38 3/4.

And Eastman Kodak, which said in its annual report it had a "feasible" instant film in development, rose 2 1/2 to 111 1/2.

Polaroid, now the dominant company in the instant-film business, slumped 6 1/2 to 73 1/2 after a delayed opening.

Ridder Publications, mentioned favorably in a Wall Street Journal assessment of newspaper stocks, climbed 1 1/2 to 15 1/2.

At the American Stock Exchange, Texas International was the volume leader, unchanged at 11 1/2. The Amex's 11 a.m. market value index was up .04 to 99.90.

The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .29 to 52.51.

Patton Looking Forward To Challenge

Beaston Is Mr. Consistency

If it was possible to equate college baseball with Father Time, one could set his watch by the play of East Carolina second baseman Geoff Beaston.

The 5-foot-11 sophomore from High Point, N.C., has rolled up a .321 batting average in the Bucs' first seven games and has played flawless defense. During the seven-game stint, Beaston has handled 36 straight chances without an error defensively, and in what was his best offensive performance of the season to date, pounded out three singles in East Carolina's 6-4 win over Furman University Saturday in Greenville, S.C.

East Carolina dropped the first game of the doubleheader to the Paladins, 1-0, however, and the 6-4 decision upped the Pirates' seasonal mark to 3-4. "We really shouldn't be 3-4 now," Beaston thinks. "The team hit the ball well against N.C. State in the first game last week, but got beat, and two bad innings cost us the games against Furman and Duke."

"But everybody started hitting again in the second game against Furman, and that was a good sign. Our pitching staff has been doing a good job considering how early in the season it is. We just haven't given them enough support."

Beaston, a Pennsylvania native, lists his most memorable career performance to date as an American Legion game during the summer of 1972 when he "hit for the circuit."

Jabbar Is NBA's MVP

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar says his most consistent of five National Basketball Association seasons rewarded him with his third most valuable player honor.

"I thought I was doing a good job. I knew I would be considered," the Milwaukee Bucks' 7-foot-2 center said at a 15-minute news conference Wednesday. The Bucks were here to play the Los Angeles Lakers Wednesday night.

Jabbar, in the players' balloting, received 528 points to 451 for Buffalo's Bob McAdoo.

"I hit a single, double, triple and grand slam home run," Beaston recalls. "It came against a team from Liberty, N.C."

Beaston also made a comparison of baseball he played, from Little League to his present position with the Pirates. At times, Beaston felt that he would have problems, "excelling" rather than playing.

"I always wanted to play baseball," he says. "But I always was afraid everybody at the next level was so much better than me."

"I knew I could play. . . I just didn't know if I could excel." Beaston credits his older brother, David, with being a helpful influence to his baseball career.

"Dave pitched at Davidson last year," said Beaston. "But even when we were kids, he was playing ball all the time and I wanted something to do so I started playing baseball."

And through his career, Beaston said he has been and still is constantly thankful for the part his parents have played. "They didn't pressure me to play," said Beaston. "They set me on a straight road and let me judge what was best from there. That's probably why baseball has been more enjoyable through the years."

Beaston said that if he was not playing baseball, he would probably be "playing golf or tennis or something else" all the time, because he "just loves sports."

Beaston came to East Carolina on the advice of his high school coach, Roger Hedgecock, who played baseball for the Pirates and Beaston feels that Hedgecock's advice was very helpful.

"If I was a recruiter, I would emphasize the fact that a player gets a fair chance to play here," said Beaston. "This, to me, is the biggest asset of the program: you get an honest chance to play."

That may be the truth for Beaston, but it would not be good advice for other Pirates second base hopefuls. Because after all, Beaston should be around at second base for two more years. He's just that dependable.

Golf Winners At Greenville

A low gross and net tournament was held for Ladies Day at the Greenville Golf and Country Club.

Harriette White took first place in the gross division of the nine hole tournament with a 41. Second went to Louise Webb with a 43, while Joan Hooper was third with a 47.

Mary Rachel Winslow and Gay Waldrop tied for low net honors with 35's. Second place was a three-way tie between Jane Joyner, Edna Fisher and Putt Carter, each with 36, while Joan Warren and Christine Andresen were third with 37.

A ladies beginner clinic was held recently with emphasis put on rules and etiquette. Margaret Capwell took first place in a putting contest held afterwards, while Rae Daniel and Sara West tied for second. Jean Guy was third. Rae Daniel won a driving contest also held.

Two women won places in the East Carolina Ladies League meeting held recently at Tarboro. Harriette White won first low gross in the championship flight, while Betty Lou Howard won first low net in the third flight.

A Ladies Day will be held Friday, with a better ball of pair tournament. Ladies may make up their own pairs, or be paired at the course.

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

Dave Patton is a man who likes to meet a challenge head on and wrestle it to the ground.

The new head basketball coach at East Carolina University did just that two years ago when he took over the junior varsity program at East Carolina and took a small team to an 11-3 record against some tough opposition.

That team, with only six or seven people on it, and none taller than 6-4, won 11 games in 14 starts, and lost the three by only a handful of points in adverse conditions. They outbounded everyone and were noted for their hustle and quickness.

Patton looked for these same qualities during the off-season when he was the chief recruiter for the Pirates, bringing in most of the people who played key roles on this year's team.

Now, a year later, he's the new head coach, and still looking for people of this quality, but with a big man his chief preoccupation.

"I want to express my appreciation to the administration and the Coach Stas (athletic director Clarence Stasovich) for showing their confidence in me by giving me the chance to become a head coach here," Patton said yesterday, following the official announcement of his appointment.

Regardless of what some people may think, Coach Stas is for the betterment of all sports here at East Carolina, and he wants all of them to do well," he added.

"For me this is truly a great opportunity to begin my head coaching career. I feel very strongly that I can do the job."

Patton's basketball philosophy is what he terms "kiss" basketball. "That stands for 'Keep it simple, stupid!' And that stupid refers to the coaches, not the players. I think basketball should be an enjoyment to the players. Once it becomes like work it ceases to be as productive as it might be."

"Of course, we will work hard. I mean real hard, but we hope to make it enjoyable. I believe that the game should be a form of entertainment for the people who come to see us play. To accomplish this, we have to play an exciting brand of basketball which is basically the run-and-gun offense."

Patton added that this doesn't mean the Pirates won't be disciplined. They will. "But we're going to always be attacking our opponents."

On defense, the principle will be one of attack also. "I like to keep pressure on the other team at both ends of the floor. This means the fast break on offense and the pressing game on defense. We'll be using a lot of players, but we have enough to do this, and all of them have experience now. We're not going to let the other team have anything easy. They'll have to work for it."

The main task that lies ahead, however, is one of recruiting. And this is foremost in the new coach's mind.

"We feel we are in good shape with the players we have coming back. But everyone knows we need inside help, like most other teams. I have confidence in (rising sophomore) Larry Hunt. I think he's going to blossom into one of the best big men in the league. But he can't do it alone and we're looking for help." Patton's outlook in recruiting is to look for quickness first.

"This day and time you have to be quick to play the game. The second thing I look for is character. I'll be more interested in a player with a little less talent who wants to play than I will be in a talented player who only wants to play on occasion. You can obtain a lot of things with hard work."

Patton has ten returning players off last year's team, although one man isn't definite at this time. Chuck Mohn is a senior in academics but a junior in eligibility. He's unsure whether he'll take his extra year.

Also already on campus is a 6-6 forward Ken Kellstrom, who transferred in during the year, and will play as a sophomore next year. He counts as one of

Games Delayed

Three athletic events in Pitt County were rained out yesterday. Two were track meets and one was a baseball game.

The North Pitt-Greene Central track meet was rescheduled for April 24.

A track meet between Conley and Southern Wayne was also washed out, but no new date has been set. A baseball game between North Pitt and Conley was also postponed, with no new date set as yet.

Two events slated for today have also been postponed. East Carolina's home game with North Carolina was washed out because of wet grounds, with no new date set.

A tennis match between the Pirates and UNC-Wilmington was also postponed for the second time.

Sloan Says Wolfpack Better Than Earlier

GREENSBORO, N. C. (AP)—When coaches get to talking the conversation frequently turns to the other man's team — maybe to take the hex off their own team, or so they might think.

Take Wednesday, when four coaches got together on a telephone hookup to talk about their joint venture in the National Collegiate Athletic Association tournament, the one which will determine the nation's basketball champion next Monday night.

Of immediate interest was Saturday's semifinal round. The nation's third-ranked Marquette meets sixth-ranked Kansas in the 1 p.m. (EDT) opener. A couple of hours later, second-ranked UCLA follows against No. 1 North Carolina State, whose only loss this season was to the Bruins.

Marquette's Al McGuire, whose team doesn't have to meet them on an opener, said he would pick the UCLA Bruins by five or six points over N. C. State's Wolfpack.

"If Big Red plays, he's dynamite," added McGuire, whose reference was to UCLA's Bill Walton. His observation isn't likely to get any argument.

Coach John Wooden of UCLA calmly acknowledged that it was "very complimentary of Al," but professed that he did not know what McGuire was using as the basis of his prediction of a UCLA victory.

Wooden then observed that while he had not seen Kansas or Marquette play this season, he would have to give the edge to Marquette.

Eventually, of course, the coaches got around to their own teams.

Norm Sloan of N. C. State figures his Wolfpack is a much better team than it was when it was beaten by the Bruins by 18 points in St. Louis last December.

The Wolfpack hasn't been beaten since, which is a shade better than the Bruins can say as they match their 25-3 record against N. C. State's 28-1.

N. C. State's own 6-4 soaring, scoring bid of dynamite — David Thompson — appeared to be regaining his sharpness in practice after last Saturday's fall in the Eastern Regionals championship game with Pittsburgh. He suffered a slight concussion and a cut in his head that required 15 stitches.

Pacers Defeat Cougars By Two

By The Associated Press

The Indiana Pacers turned a laugher into a squeaker against Carolina Wednesday night but won it just the same.

"We didn't get excited under pressure," explained Indiana Coach Bobby Leonard after his club held off the Cougars 104-102. "We just got sluggish. And we missed some shots. If we had hit some of that stuff we would have killed them."

The Pacers roared to an 82-64 lead in the third period and appeared headed for a rout. But Carolina rallied to within one point, 94-93, in the final period before Bill Keller insured Indiana's victory with two free throws in the final five seconds.

In other ABA action, New York shaded Memphis 103-101; Kentucky got by San Antonio 102-98; Utah downed Denver

111-107; and San Diego outscored Virginia 125-122.

Guard Freddie Lewis, who spent much of the second half on the sidelines after a fall, led Indiana with 25 points and All-Star forward George McGinnis added 18.

Jim Chones topped the Cougars with 25 points. The victory moved Indiana a half-game ahead of San Antonio in the battle for second place in the West Division.

Nets 103, Tams 101

Julius Erving scored 29 points and collected 13 rebounds as New York remained one game ahead of Kentucky in the chase for the East Division crown.

Colonels 102, Spurs 98

A pair of free throws by Artis Gilmore and a basket by Ron Thomas in the final six seconds gave Kentucky the triumph.

Stars 111, Rockets 107

Johnny Neumann hit seven of nine shots in the final period as Utah rallied from a 14-point deficit.

Q's 125, Squires 122

Jim O'Brien fired in a three-point goal with one second left to give San Diego the victory, giving the Q's sole possession of fourth place in the West.

Wednesday's National Basketball Association results:

Atlanta 99, Boston 89; Chicago 87, Kansas City-Omaha 86; Detroit 103, Houston 99; Capital 101, Cleveland 91; Portland 113, Philadelphia 106; Los Angeles 120, Milwaukee 114; Seattle 110, Golden State 107; and New York 106, Phoenix 104 in overtime.

Lakers Back In The Lead

By The Associated Press

The Los Angeles Lakers are back on top in the National Basketball Association's Pacific Division and their confidence is showing.

"I don't think Golden State can win the rest of its games," said Jim Price after the Lakers' 120-114 victory over Milwaukee Wednesday night, "so it's up to us to win the rest of our games."

"I think our win against New York Sunday night picked us up after our two losses to Golden State. Then when Golden State lost to Milwaukee we all realized we were still in this."

Price and backcourt mate Gail Goodrich combined for 51 points as the Lakers rallied in the second half to beat the Bucks. The victory left Los Angeles one game ahead of Golden State, a 110-107 loser to Seattle in the battle for a playoff spot. The Lakers have three games remaining and the Warriors five games.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Atlanta dumped Boston 99-89; Chicago edged Kansas City-Omaha 87-86; Detroit topped Houston 103-99; Capital downed Cleveland 101-91; Portland defeated Philadelphia 113-106; and New York outlasted Phoenix 106-104 in overtime.

Los Angeles trailed by six points at the half, 61-55, but broke it open in the third period, outscoring Milwaukee 44-27. The Lakers shot a sizzling 59 per cent from the floor during the quarter.

Goodrich scored 27 points, Price 24, Connie Hawkins 21 and Elmore Smith 20 for the winners. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, named the league's Most Valuable Player earlier in the day, led the Bucks with 27 points.

Sonics 110, Warriors 107

Dick Snyder's jump shot with 14 seconds left and a layup by Stan Watts eight seconds later accounted for Seattle's victory.

Hawks 99, Celtics 89

Pete Maravich pumped in 38 points as Atlanta beat Boston for the first time in six meetings this season.

Bulls 87, Kings 86

Jimmy Ray's free throw in the closing minute proved decisive as Chicago held onto second place in the Midwest Division by one game over Detroit.

Pistons 103, Rockets 99

George Trapp scored 11 of his 17 points over the final 12 minutes as Detroit rallied from 10 points back.

Bullets 101, Cavaliers 91

Elvin Hayes scored 34 points and collected 16 rebounds as Capital overcame a 17-5 first-period deficit.

Blazers 113, 76ers 106

Geoff Petrie tossed in 30 points in the second half, including 12 straight midway through the fourth quarter, as Portland snapped a 21-game losing streak on the road.

Knicks 106, Suns 104, overtime

Bill Bradley hit a season-high 31 points to pace New York. Neal Walk led Phoenix with 18 points.

Softball For Girls

The Recreation Department is beginning a Girls Softball league for girls in the 4th, 5th, and 6th grades. This program begins Monday, and will be each Monday and Wednesday from 3:15 to 4:30 P.M. Girls can register for this program with the coach, at one of the following playgrounds:

Eastern, Elmhurst, Wahl Coates, South Greenville, and at West Greenville from 5:00 to 6:00 p.m. Softball techniques such as batting, fielding, and throwing will be taught and games will be played against the other playgrounds.

Pearson Worried He Won't Be Competitive

By BLOYS BRITT

AP Auto Racing Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — David Pearson, a $1 million superstar of stock car racing, is worried.

The 39-year-old veteran, 1973 national driver of the year, is a prime entry in Sunday's $113,000 Atlanta 500 and seeking his third straight victory at Atlanta International Raceway.

"But I feel like a hunter who went after elephants with an air rifle," he said Wednesday. "I have not the slightest idea whether I'll even be competitive."

The three-time stock car driving champion is worried about a new carburetor rule that becomes effective with the 15th running of one of the South's biggest sporting events.

The new rules require that all cars with engines larger than 366 cubic inches of displacement must use a single four-barrel carburetor with an opening of 1 1/16 of an inch. Cars equipped with smaller engines, 366 cubic inch and under, can use carburetors with 1 11-16 of an inch opening.

Pearson, who cleared the $1 million mark in career winnings last year, drives a Mercury owned by the Wood brothers of Stuart, Va. He was the scourge of the 1973 campaign, bagging a total of 11 victories, 10 of them on big speedways, and took home in excess of $250,000 in prize money.

Most of his triumphs were attributed directly to his canny driving and to the reliable 429 cubic inch engine that powered him to all sorts of records. But he said Wednesday the big engine has been discarded in favor of a smaller one that can take advantage of the larger carburetor.

His power in Sunday's race will come from a 351 inch job, two of which his car owners brought to Atlanta.

"We haven't even had the car on the track with the small engine," Pearson said. "So we don't know what we'll be able to do with it, speedwise, and we don't know how reliable it will be."

Pearson and most of the 60 other entries will get some answers about the new carburetor rules today, with the opening of the 1 1/2 mile oval for practice.

"Some of the other drivers have had a chance to try out their new engine-carburetor setups on other tracks," Pearson noted. "We haven't, so we don't know where we stand. All we know is that the 429 engines we had been using lost so much power with the small carburetors that we would be out of the ballpark. So we went to the smaller engine."

Pearson won both of last year's 500 mile races at AIR, en route to his best season. But the 1971 Mercury he drove no longer is eligible and the 1973 job that replaced it hasn't done as well as he expected. His best finish so far was third place in the season opener in January.

The raceway, 30 miles south of Atlanta, was to be opened for a full day of practice. Pearson planned to be on hand early.

CHARLOTTE (AP) — Max Marshall, former Asheville businessman, has been named U.S. marshal for the Western District of North Carolina, court officials report.

He succeeds Seibert Lockman, who retired Monday. He will supervise a staff of deputy marshals who transport prisoners, serve papers in civil and criminal cases, and open and close sessions of U.S. District Court.

the six recruits the Bucs can bring in this year.

"We're definitely looking for a big man to play inside," Patton said. "We feel we have a good group of players returning, and we're looking for help for them."

But how does Patton feel having to compete not only with the Southern Conference teams, but the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Carolinas Conference, and two major independents (Virginia Tech and South Carolina) in the immediate area?

"They can't get all of the players," he said. "But I don't think that the limit of six a year will really make a great deal of difference. Not many schools recruit that many every year anyway."

Patton also faces a tough christening. The Pirates open against top-ranked N. C. State next winter, then meets Duke, both on the road. "It will be tough, but I'm looking forward to it. We have everything to gain and nothing to lose. They're supposed to beat us, but if we go up there and slip on them, it'll be an accomplishment of major proportions. And I don't ever go into a game thinking we're going to lose."

Another key job will be to try and drum up more interest in Pirate basketball. People have been disappointed in the Buc schedule, but it is almost impossible to get the "top" teams off their own home courts. You've got to beat them there before you can get them to visit you. "We are after four more games for this coming year,"

Patton said, "and we're going to try and get as many of them in Greenville as possible. And we want the best that we can get to come in here."

Patton also wants to drum up business for the Bucs. "I hope that any gathering of two or more people who want someone to speak to them will consider giving me a chance to tell them about our program," Patton said. "Both Coach Estes (George Estes, the assistant coach) and I are going to be out this spring and next fall promoting season ticket sales."

"We want to get the student body involved in our program more too because they ARE the university and this is their team. It's not my team, not the players' team, but the university's, and we want every student to feel a part of our program."

"But we also want the people of eastern North Carolina to get involved with us too. We are the main state university in this part of the state and we want the people to look upon us as their university and their team too," Patton said.

"And I consider a good cheering section a sixth man," he added.

Give You A Healthy Advantage

It's only logical. The more a hybrid can resist stress and disease, the more you can count on it to give you a healthy advantage—in the field and over the scale. And you can count on single cross RX60, RX115, and special RX99A to do just that.

Here's why: It is prescription-bred to resist rust, lodging, Fusarium ear rots, stalk rots, root worms, and corn borer infestation... to resist Northern, Yellow, and Race "T" Southern leaf blights. And you can be sure that these lines have the genetic vigor to withstand these stress conditions and still yield with the best. They quickly develop into extremely uniform plants—healthy plants with massive root systems and sturdy stalks that insure excellent standability. What's more, large, girthy ears are placed at the ideal height for combining or picking.

They look great and yield even better. And this has been proved, on hundreds of farms right in this area. Talk with the farmers who grow these hybrids. Ask them about the ability of the RX Line to give you a healthy advantage. Then—talk with your Asgrow dealer. Ask him to reserve you a supply of Asgrow corn.

Aaron Keeps Cool Under HR Pressure

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Sports Writer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Every time Hank Aaron moves, he moves with an army.

Snub-nosed kids, eyes wide with admiration and small hands clutching dirty baseballs and scraps of paper, tug at his Atlanta Braves uniform.

"May I have an autograph, Mr. Aaron?"
"Please, Hank, just one for me."

The 40-year-old heir apparent to Babe Ruth's home run throne smiles and obliges. He never gives a youngster a shove. He never barks, "Hey kid, give me room, will ya." Patiently, he stands there until the queue has disappeared.

In the dressing room, newsmen crowd around his locker. There are radio men with their microphones and television people with their cameras and blinding lights.

The questions follow a singular vein:

"What do you think about Commissioner Bowie Kuhn ordering you to play in Cincinnati?"

"Are you feeling any pressure?"

"When do you think the tying and record-breaking home runs will come?"

The crowds never disappear. The questions never end. There is no place to hide. But Hank Aaron's cool facade never cracks. His temper never snaps.

In this period of part grandeur and part ordeal leading up to one of baseball's most notable achievements—the shattering of Ruth's record of 714 career home runs—Aaron has met the test with grace and dignity.

He has been terrific.

You only need to look around you at the other camps where lesser men pursue lesser deeds with lesser patience to appreciate the qualities of this black man who came out of the Jim Crow south to carve baseball history.

Over in Sarasota, Dick Allen of the Chicago White Sox, whose home run output is more than 400 short of Aaron's 713, trains in his own little isolation booth—apart from his teammates. He spurns team play and sometimes refuses interviews and insults interviewers.

Boston's catcher Carlton Fisk, asked about his feud with former teammate Reggie Smith, snaps: "I'll throw you out of this locker room."

Baseball has its good guys and bad guys—reporters keep their own private charts—and topping most of the lists of the good guys is Hank Aaron.

If anyone has an excuse to be snobbish and difficult, it is Aaron. He broke in when the black ballplayer—and the black man in general—was a second-class citizen.

For years, he was unappreciated, playing in the shadow of such men as Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays. He never received his just due.

Now, within reach of one of the game's greatest goals, he has been tossed into the middle of a controversy not of his making: Should he or should he not play in the opening series at Cincinnati?

Hank has remained loyal to his employers. He continues to play out his role with modesty and understanding. To those familiar with his early beginnings, it is not hard to understand.

"I told Hank when he got into baseball he always must be nice to people—the fans and the newspaper men," says Herbert Aaron, Hank's father from Mobile, Ala.

"To find himself the center of a swarming horde hasn't shaken Herbert's son."

Dodgers In High Gear This Year

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

The go-go Los Angeles Dodgers are in high gear this spring. But that's nothing new according to their manager Walter Alston.

"It's always been our forte — pitching, defense and base running."

The man who is helping keep the tradition alive is a past master of base stealing — Maury Wills, who while playing shortstop with the Dodgers set the all-time record with 104 steals.

Wills is coaching the Dodgers on base stealing and his prize pupil this spring has been Dave Lopes, who stole two bases Wednesday as the Dodgers won their fourth straight exhibition game with a 5-3 victory over Cincinnati.

In other exhibition baseball action, the Houston Astros downed the Montreal Expos 7-3.

the Philadelphia Phillies edged the New York Mets 10-9, the Texas Rangers trimmed the Minnesota Twins 10-9, the St. Louis Cardinals edged the New York Yankees 3-2, the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Kansas City Royals 4-3 and the Detroit Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox 6-3.

The California Angels' game with Milwaukee, Cleveland versus San Francisco and San Diego against Oakland were all postponed because of rain in Arizona.

Larry Dierker and Fred Scherman combined to hold Montreal hitless through eight innings before Larry Lentz broke the spell with a one-out ninth inning single off Houston reliever Jim York.

Jeff Burroughs did it all for Texas, hitting a triple, a home run, two singles and driving in three runs.

Greg Luzinski's power proved the winning margin for Philadelphia. Luzinski homered twice and drove in five runs as the Phillies rallied in the ninth inning to defeat the Mets.

Rookie Jim Fuller socked a two-run homer off Lindy McDaniel to provide the margin of victory for Baltimore, which got a strong pitching performance from Dave McNally, who allowed five hits in seven innings.

Detroit's Mickey Stanley hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning off Craig Skok after Juan Marichal had blanked the Tigers for five innings.

Reggie Smith doubled home the tie-breaking run in the seventh inning for St. Louis. Smith boosted his spring average to .333 with his three-for-three performance at the plate.

Sports Briefs

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association's board of directors will meet Wednesday, March 27, in Beverly Hills, Calif., to discuss the possibility of adding a 19th team to the league for the 1974-75 season.

The latest expansion came on March 7 with the granting of a New Orleans franchise, to begin play next season.

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Penn State will withdraw from the Eastern College Athletic Conference June 30, school officials have disclosed.

Penn State notified the ECAC last June that it planned to quit the league and establish itself as a major independent but said it would reserve final decisions pending further studies.

Criminal Behavior Little Affected By Methadone

By LUCIUS GANTT
Associated Press Writer
ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — After nearly two years of research, two college professors in Georgia say they have found that methadone does not significantly alter the criminal behavior of heroin addicts.

Methadone is a synthetic narcotic used in the treatment of addicts and many proponents of the drug claim that by eliminating the craving for heroin, an addict's desire to commit crimes to get money to buy the drug is also eliminated.

But West Georgia College professor William Kelly and Dr. William Collins of Georgia State University say the criminal behavior exhibited by addicts before they get on methadone programs and the criminal behavior after the programs is basically the same.

"The connection between heroin and crime is not cause and effect," said Collins, "and people who say that mislead the public. Heroin is associated with crime, but eliminating heroin will not necessarily eliminate crime."

An ex-addict, who is now a counselor at an Atlanta drug program, agreed with the professors and said when he was under methadone treatment (about a year ago) the centers were nothing but "gas stations."

"All the methadone centers were doing was giving people two 'Joneses' (habits)," he said. "They stopped the criminal behavior in some of the brothers by giving them enough methadone to kill an elephant. The guys taking between 100 and 200 milligrams of methadone couldn't do anything but try to find their way back to the center every day."

However, he did say that a few of the programs have improved their treatment modalities.

The professors drew their conclusions after studying clients in metro Atlanta methadone programs. They were also allowed access to the drug files of the state Department of Human Resources and the files of the Atlanta Police Department, the FBI and the Fulton County Juvenile authorities.

Massage Ruled No Healing Art

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina Court of Appeals, declaring that a massage is not an "art of healing," has overturned a lower court's order that had blocked enforcement of Fayetteville's massage parlor laws since last August.

"It is entirely proper for the city of Fayetteville to license massage parlors and to deny licenses to those applicants who...fail to meet any reasonable qualifications," said Judge James M. Baley Jr.

The opinion Wednesday reversed an injunction issued last August by Superior Court Judge Maurice Braswell. The injunction ordered Fayetteville Chief of Police Hervey Keator, Cumberland County Sheriff Otis F. Jones and Dist. Atty. Jack Thompson not to prosecute under the city's massage parlor regulations.

The ordinances require registration of massage parlor employees, regulate hours, forbid minors to patronize a parlor except under a doctor's orders and prohibit massages by members of the opposite sex. Attorneys for the massage parlors contended that the ordinance was invalid because parlors already were regulated by the state.

The state law, which requires "professionals" such as doctors and dentists to buy a privilege license, also applies to massage parlors, the attorneys argued.

"It seems clear that the legislature intended to use the word 'professional' as implying a specialized knowledge and skill beyond manual dexterity," Baley said.

Whittle Away At Governor's Powers

RALEIGH (AP) — The North Carolina House has passed and sent to the Senate a bill stripping the governor's power to appoint the state Textbook Commission. The measure would give that authority to the state Board of Education.

The proposal would terminate as of next June 30 the terms of the 12 member commission appointed last year by Gov. Jim Holshouser. The panel would be replaced by 25 new members named by the board of education on recommendation of the state superintendent of public instruction. Current commission members could be reappointed.

Ironically, the bill originally was introduced by a Republican, Rep. Jeter Haynes of Yadkin County, a retired school teacher. The bill was virtually rewritten, however, by an amendment offered earlier by Rep. Bobby Rogers, D-Vance.

The House rejected a compromise offered by Rep. Clyde Ayman, D Moore, which would have put off the effective date of the proposed new law for one year.

Kite Contest

The Kite Flying contest that was to be held last Saturday by the Greenville Recreation Department was postponed until this coming Saturday, because of the inclement weather.

Also rejected was an amendment by Rep. Jimmy Love, D-Lee, to include four members of the legislature—two senators and two representatives—on the commission.

Appointed To Commission

Mrs. Nelson Blount Crisp of Greenville has been appointed to the N.C. Commission for Correction.

An attorney, Mrs. Crisp receive her undergraduate training at Duke University and attended graduate school at East Carolina University and the University of California in San Diego. She has practiced here since 1967 when she received her Law degree from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Young Students Impress Senior Citizen Classmate

By JOHN J. SANKO
BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — loyal A. Harrison, a retired army major in his mid-70s, had "pretty negative impression" of today's college students—
until he joined them in class.

They are not, as he confesses he believed, all a bunch of trouble-makers hellbent on pulling down the establishment.

Harrison is one of nearly 100 senior citizens 60 years or older who took advantage of a new program at the University of Colorado this past semester which offered open classes free of charge to the elderly.

"I have found that the students on the campus re-hard-working," Harrison said.
"They're dedicated, they're there to get an education and,
by gum, they're going to get it.
I admire them so much for it."

"I suppose a lot of us went to classes with a negative impression in our minds as to the students. Some of us thought that CU had a four-year course going in disension. So I'm just awfully grateful to have the opportunity to discover that I was all wrong about the situation."

Stock Market Advice
Before the semester was out, some of Harrison's younger fellow students were even dropping by his fashionable one-bedroom apartment north of the university campus for some hints on stocks and bonds.

Harrison, a native of South-haven, Mich., who went to the University of Missouri for two years before making the military his career, said his
eyeopeners."

"I've had to change so many of my impressions (about the students)," he said. "I've just been amazed at the intelligent questions and the intelligent discussions that the students have carried on."

"It has just amazed me. And it also has given me an insight into their motives and their goals. I was just sold on them immediately. They really sold me a bill of goods without trying."

Harrison took courses in biblical literature, history and finance. He managed to do some teaching in the finance course because of a personal background in stocks and bonds.

Taught Thrift

"One of my duties in the military was to teach thrift to the GIs and, of course, I thought stocks and bonds would be a good opportunity," he explained.

"You can't imagine how rewarding this has been for me.
It has really rewarded me, and I feel like I'm not being a parasite."

Jean Ferris, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said the newly initiated program has benefited the school as well as the senior citizens who took part.

"In many classes the presence of an older person with a very different viewpoint has made a big difference in the depth of the discussion," she said. "The professors that I have talked to have mentioned more than once how valuable it has been to have this older attitude in the class."

Dean Ferris said courses with available space were opened to any state resident 60 years or older who was interested. They paid no fees and received no credit.

No Degrees Needed

Literature courses and history classes were among the favorites, but other courses included anthropology, the classics, computer science, economics, and one in engineering.

It made no difference whether the senior citizen had a high school or a college degree.
They were never asked.

Margie Koenig, an official in records office and a member of the senior citizen program, said:

"I didn't hear one problem—unkind. One gentleman said he didn't even notice the boys' long hair after awhile."

One Degree Not Enough Today

By Patricia McCormick
UPI Family Editor
NEW YORK (UPI) — If college freshmen have their way, the pursuit of knowledge will be a longtime thing.

A survey shows many of this year's freshmen want more than one degree.

Back in 1971 only 42.3 per cent of them wanted to do grad work or go to law or medical school. This year, around 56.9 per cent said they expect to be on the trail of a graduate degree after they get the bachelor's—the typical degree given after four years study.

The American Council on Education (ACE) and the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) jointly conducted the survey—an annual exercise since 1966.

Trend Reversed

The aspirations of the new freshmen to go on for more than one degree are at the highest level since the surveys commenced.

In computing national norms questionnaires from 189,000 students at 360 schools were used.

Watergate and other dramatic political events do not ppear to have had any pronounced effect on the students' political orientations. But a slight conservative trend observed among new freshmen of 1972 was reversed in 1973.

The percentage considering themselves either conservative or far right declined slightly from last year —16.6 to 14.5 per cent. The percentage picking liberal or far left remained about the same —35.4 versus 34.8 per cent.

Liberals Dominate

Liberals continued to outnumber conservatives by more than two to one, but for the first time in the history of the survey, those preferring "middle of the road" political positions account for more than half

—50.7 per cent.

Attitudes continue to show the effects of the women's movement. More than nine students in 10 (91.9 per cent in 1973, compared to 81.3 in 1970) agree that "women should receive the same salary and opportunities for advancement as men in comparable positions."

In response to the statement,
"activities of married women are best confined to the home and family" fewer than one in three (0.4 per cent) of the current freshmen agree (compared to 47.8 per cent three years ago).

Although men are much more likely to agree with this statement than are women (40.9 per cent versus 18.8 per cent), both sexes have shown similarly large changes in attitude since 1970.

Large-scale Program

Among the female freshmen,
the highest rate of agreement (30.2 per cent) is found among those entering predominantly black colleges, and the lowest rate 6.0 per cent) among women enrolling at highly selective private universities.

Previous surveys showed a trend away from conventional religious affiliations. But the 1973 freshmen showed a reversal of that trend. The percentage of freshmen selecting "none" as their religious preference rose from 6.9 per cent to 14.3 between 1966 and 1972. But it dropped back to 10.1 per cent in 1973.

From 1972 to 1973, the percentage selecting traditional religious preferences increased.
To wit: Jewish, .8 to 5.1 per cent; Romn Catholic, 30.1 to 34.3 per cent; Protestant, 38.2 to 44.9 per cent.

The survey, directed by UCLA Professor Alexander W.
Austin, is part of a large scale program of research on how students are affected by their college experiences. Each class of entering freshmen is tracked through its college years and beyond by means of periodic followups.

Grading Norms Eased

high school graduates who go on to college has continued to rise over the years, the high school grades have continued to rise.

"While it might be tempting to conclude from these trends that college students are getting brighter," said Dr. Austin, "recent evidence from the major college admissions tests suggests that this is not the case."

"The more likely explanation is that grading standards in the high schools have been relaxed somewhat during the past four years."

does not mean freshmen are like a flock of sheep. The new freshmen support the idea of student freedom and independence more strongly than did previous freshmen classes.

Fewer than one in three of this year's freshmen believe that student publications should be cleared by college officials.
That compares with 56.4 per cent in 1968. Even fewer feel colleges have a right to ban persons with extreme views from speaking on campus.

Wilbur Hobby Declares Public Interest Ignored

RALEIGH (AP)—The president of the North Carolina State AFL-CIO says the 1974 General Assembly has ignored the interests of the people.

Wilbur Hobby, in a scathing statement issued at a news conference here Wednesday, said the only good thing the people of the state can look forward to

from the legislature "is a speedy adjournment."

He said the lawmakers have served the "vested interests."

The state's chief labor leader said the legislature has passed, or is in the process of approving, legislation giving tax relief to banks and business, raising the interest rate on small loans and removing the interest rate ceiling on home mortgage loans.

At the same time, Hobby declared, "Every consumer protection bill has been killed or is in the process of being watered down to the point of ineffectiveness."

"The voice of the people has not been heard in Raleigh in the spring of 1974," he said.

Tax relief given to vested interests, he said, will have to be made up by average the North Carolina taxpayer and wage earner "who is already paying an unfair tax burden."

Hobby noted that bills have been introduced in the legislature to repeal the sales tax on food and raise the income tax in the upper brackets, "but this tax reform package for all North Carolina citizens may never see the light of day."

He pointed out the lawmakers have killed a landlord-tenant bill and a fair-trade law repeal bill "that would have meant considerable savings to the average consumer."

And, he said, "Important environmental bills such as the coastal and mountain management acts...are being watered down and stalled and they may well end up in defeat unless there is an outcry from the general public."

Hobby also criticized a pending campaign reform bill. He said it "fails to deal with the real problems of election reform such as reasonable limitations on spending and contributions and the use of dirty tricks."

Seeks To Avert Confrontation

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes is trying to head off a confrontation between the White House and Judiciary Committee over the impeachment inquiry.

Rhodes is urging both sides to soften their positions and seek a compromise settlement of their dispute over a committee request for tapes of 42 presidential conversations.

House lawyer James D. St. Clair and Republican members of the Judiciary Committee, Rhodes held a news conference Wednesday to urge that a third party be permitted to review the tapes and determine which would be relevant to the committee's impeachment inquiry.

The White House has indicated no interest in it and the chairman and ranking Republican on the committee have flatly rejected it.

In addition, the committee expects to get the secret grand jury report dealing with Nixon that is now held by Judge John Sirica. Sirica's order turning the material over to the committee will take effect at 4 p.m. today unless the Court of Appeals intervenes.

"The committee has a constitutional responsibility to conduct the inquiry," said Rep. Edward Hutchinson, R-Mich., the ranking GOP member. "And besides, I don't understand why someone else's judgment of relevancy should be any better than mine."

Doar, at a committee briefing Wednesday, said after all this evidence is analyzed the committee will be in a better position to focus on its demand for the 42 presidential conversations in dispute.

Although Nixon has given no sign of yielding on the issue and committee counsel John Doar pledged Wednesday that the committee was "unswerving in its determination to get the material," the prospect of an immediate confrontation appeared dim.

A new issue arose Wednesday to plague the committee, however. St. Clair requested permission to sit in on the impeachment panel proceedings, cross-examine witnesses, call his own witnesses and present evidence.

Nixon has turned over 700 documents and 19 tapes he had previously given to the Watergate grand jury and Doar wants time for the inquiry staff to examine the material.

The request immediately split the Republicans and Democrats on the committee, with the Republicans favoring it and the Democrats opposing it.

Historic Ship Will Be A Museum

MYSTIC, Conn. (AP) — A dying ship is being brought back to life at the Mystic Seaport maritime museum here by craftsmen whose trades are all but extinct.

The Charles W. Morgan, a 19th-century, wooden whaleship and only survivor of a worldwide whaling fleet, has been hauled from the water for the first time in half a century. She is undergoing complete restoration, and in early summer she will return to a new stone wharf to begin a new phase in her 133-year life, as a floating museum.

Freed from the sand berth where she spent 32 years, she was taken to the Henry B. duPont Preservation Shipyard for inspection and repairs.

Scuba divers found that the Morgan's hull was in remarkably good condition and that she leaked very little, although her bottom has not been repaired in more than 50 years.

Mystic Seaport's shipwrights are now recaulking the bottom and renewing the pine and copper sheathing that once protected her hull in tropical waters.

Morgan are men in their 60s and 70s who grew up around wooden ships, and the young men who are learning the ancient trades.

Maintained as a floating vessel, the ship's lower hull can be inspected and cared for. Afloat, she is also under less strain from New England's winter storms.

The ship was built in New Bedford, Mass., in 1841, served 80 years as a whaler, and has spent most of the remainder of her life as a museum ship.

When the Morgan arrived in Mystic in 1941, the United States had just entered World War II and there were few men or materials available to restore the aging whaler. The most basic preservation needs were met by piling sand around and under the vessel's hull, firmly embedding her until the recent refloating, a product of two years of planning, weeks of digging and much waiting for a high enough tide.

One of the visitors present for her short trip down the Mystic River to the preservation site knew her well when she was still in service.

Lawrence Lopes, 73, now of

New Bedford, Mass., was 17 years old when his family emigrated from St. Helena in the South Atlantic aboard the Morgan in 1917. His father was first mate at the time.

Later a whaler himself, Lopes' description of the miserable life aboard a whaler would discourage any romantic glorifying of the whaling days. When invited to go aboard the Morgan for her trip downstream, Lopes refused. "I've seen enough of whaleships," he said.

HIGH AND DRY—Whaling bark Charles W. Morgan, last of the wooden whalers, is on the lift dock at Mystic Seaport's Henry B. duPont Preservation Shipyard. Hauled out of the water for the first time in more than 50 years, she is being recaulked as part of an extensive restoration project. The galley, shown at right, is where meals were prepared for a crew of 30 officers and men during whale-seeking voyages lasting several years.

Free-Wheeling Press In Chile Is No More; Muzzle Is Invoked

By CHARLES PADILLA
SANTIAGO (UPI) — Six months ago, the Chilean press was among the most free-wheeling, imaginative, insulting and entertaining news media in Latin America.

Leftwing newspapers loyal to the late President Salvador Allende blasted the opposition press and political figures, sometimes with obscene headlines.

"The opposition press answered in the same terms, up to the point where many Chileans said liberty of the press had degenerated into 'libertinism of the press.' That is all finished now. Today's Chilean press, that which survived the Sept. 11, 1973, military overthrow of Allende's government, is muzzled.

Politics Are Banned

Leftwing newspapers that supported Allende no longer exist. In Santiago, five were closed outright, including Puro Chile which was gutted by fire during the bloody battles Sept. 11.

The rightwing La Tribuna committed journalistic hara-kiri last December by publishing a frontpage story that former Socialist Party secretary general Carlos Altamirano had been arrested.

Altamirano, now out of the country, was the No. One man on the military government's most-wanted list. The story was false and the newspaper was shut down.

In late February La Prensa—official organ of the Christian Democratic Party, largest political party in Chile—folded.

"There seems to be no point in publishing a political newspaper if all politics are banned," a spokesman for La Prensa said.

Five Still Publish

Of the dozen newspapers Santiago had before the coup, only five still publish, four morning newspapers and an evening edition.

The former La Nacion (The Nation), official voice of the Allende government, was allowed to continue but only after it changed its name to La Patria (The Fatherland).

Of those that still survive, three belong to the conservative El Mercurio chain—El Mercurio, La Segunda and Ultimas Noticias.

The other two are La Patria and La Tercera de la Hora, a tabloid with the largest circulation in Chile, about 400,000 copies daily.

From mid-January to mid-February, the surviving newspapers were under prior censorship. Copies of each issue had to be sent for review by military censors before going to press. But this was lifted and the newspapers are now under self-censorship.

Soccer and Racing

Prohibited are stories that criticize the ruling military junta, price increases not announced by the government and articles about former members of the Allende government unless the information is officially released.

Politics are taboo, simply because all political activity has been banned. Top figures such as former President Eduardo Frei have vanished from the newspapers.

"If it wasn't for soccer and horse racing, we would really be in trouble," director of one newspaper said.

Another said "our features editor is the busiest man on our staff now."

Magazines Also Censored

The closure of seven newspapers created serious economic problems for the several hundred persons who lost their jobs. Some found employment in other fields but at least nine Chilean newsmen were not so fortunate; they were imprisoned in desolate Chacabuco prison camp located in the Atacama desert, one of the driest spots on the face of the earth.

The censorship applies to magazines also. Ercilla, a Newsweek-style publication that is considered the best in Chile, is still under prior censorship. Copies of the weekly re sent to censors every Tuesday, one day before the magazine goes on sale.

"On Tuesdays we all sit biting our nails until the censors return it," an employee of Ercilla said.

Revival Will Begin Here

The Rev. C. L. Patrick of Walstonburg will be the guest speaker in the spring revival services of the Gum Swamp Free Will Baptist Church, Rt. 6, Greenville. The services will begin Monday evening.

REV. C. L. PATRICK

The Rev. Patrick has been the pastor of the Free Union Free Will Baptist Church near Walstonburg for nearly 20 years. He has served as president of the State Convention of Original Free Will Baptist and held a number of other offices in the convention and in the Central Conference.

The church membership invites the community to attend the services. Services will begin each evening at 7:45 p.m. and will continue through March 30. The church is located one and one-half mile east of the Belvoir community.

RESOLUTION 74-11 CREATING AND ESTABLISHING THE CONTENTNEA METROPOLITAN SEWERAGE DISTRICT OF PITT AND LENOIR COUNTIES PURSUANT TO AND UNDER THE AUTHORITY OF THE NORTH CAROLINA METROPOLITAN SEWERAGE DISTRICTS ACT, AS AMENDED

WHEREAS, pursuant to and under the authority of the North Carolina Metropolitan Sewerage Districts Act, as amended (Article 25 of Chapter 153 of the General Statutes of North Carolina), there has heretofore been filed with the Boards of Commissioners for the Counties of Pitt and Lenoir, and with the Board of Water and Air Resources, a certified copy of a resolution adopted by the respective governing body of each of the following political subdivisions: Town of Ayden, Town of Grifton, Town of Winterville each of which requests the necessity for and states the creation of a metropolitan sewerage district having the boundaries described in the resolutions of the Boards of Commissioners for the Counties of Pitt and Lenoir, and representatives of the Board of Water and Air Resources, upon the question of the creation of a proposed metropolitan sewerage district having the boundaries described in the resolutions of the said political subdivisions;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED BY THE BOARD OF WATER AND AIR RESOURCES: SECTION 1. The Board of Water and Air Resources and the Boards of Commissioners of Pitt and Lenoir Counties deem it advisable to comply with the request for the creation of a metropolitan sewerage district as set forth in the resolutions of the political subdivisions referred to in the first paragraph of the preamble hereof, and determine that the preservation and promotion of the public health and welfare within the areas of Pitt and Lenoir Counties, North Carolina, having the boundaries set forth as described in Exhibits A, B, and C attached hereto require that a metropolitan sewerage district be created and established. SECTION 2. Pursuant to and under the authority of the North Carolina Metropolitan Sewerage Districts Act, as amended, (Article 25 of Chapter 153 of the General Statutes of North Carolina), all of the territory in Pitt and Lenoir Counties, North Carolina, the boundaries of which territory embrace all of the territory within each of the political subdivisions named in the first preamble hereof, being the same lands as described in Exhibits marked A, B, and C, attached hereto, are hereby declared to be a metropolitan sewerage district under the name and style of "Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District of Pitt and Lenoir Counties."

SECTION 3. That the Secretary of the North Carolina Board of Water and Air Resources is hereby authorized and directed to send a certified copy of this resolution to the Board of Commissioners for the Counties of Pitt and Lenoir, North Carolina, and to the governing body of each of the political subdivisions named in the first preamble hereof. This the 14th day of February, 1974.

The foregoing resolution was passed by the Board of Water and Air Resources on the 14th day of February, 1974, and was first published on the 21st day of March, 1974.

Any action or proceedings questioning the validity of said resolution or the creation of the Contentnea Metropolitan Sewerage District therein described must be commenced within 30 days after the first publication of said resolution.

Midshipmen scuba divers prepare to study depths of Chesapeake Bay.

In 1845, 60 young men crowded into some old barracks on Fort Severn's 10 acres, as the new Naval School opened in Annapolis, Md. In 1851 the school was given the formal title of the United States Naval Academy. Today it's grown into a world famous institution where over 4,200 midshipmen through a 300-acre campus with a choice of more than 500 courses, including several black studies courses, languages and computer science.

During its 128 years the Academy has evolved its own traditions. June Week was introduced in the mid-1800s, Navy met Army in 1890 to win the first game of the annual football classic, and "Anchors Aweigh" was sung for the first time in 1906—it was immediately adopted as the Navy fight song. New buildings go up, but continuity is preserved. New plebes still come through the Academy gates in July and don't leave the yard again until September. Drum rolls still thunder through Bancroft Hall during meal formations. White-capped midshipmen in dress blue and brass buttons still march in the June Week parades. Laryngitis is still common after Army-Navy games.

The Worry Clinic We Must Rely On Conscience

Virginia's example shows the general breakdown in law and order. Do you readers think merchants or customers are more likely to be cheaters? Is coming crime due to infection in courtroom judges with Dr. Pooof's "permissive" doctrines of youth?

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.
CASE Z-581: Virginia M., aged 38, is a vivacious housewife. "But, Dr. Crane," she said "I also spend 3 afternoons each week with a social service organization."

"Therein we try to find jobs for people who are out of work." "One man came to my desk last week who said he had previously been employed at a meat counter of a chain store."

"And he very frankly admitted that the reason he was now out of a job was the fact he had been fired by the store manager."

"He talked like a sensible, honest type of person, so I inquired why he had been discharged."

"And he told me it was because he refused to put ice cubes in the hamburger when a customer would order several pounds."

"For he said the ice cubes helped add to the apparent weight of the meat, yet would have melted by the time the housewife got home with the hamburger."

"Dr. Crane, are merchants or the general public more guilty of cheating and fraud?"

Shoplifting
Shoplifting is now looting retail merchants of billions of dollars worth of goods.

And these petty thieves start even at kindergarten age stuffing candy, cigarettes and other small articles under their clothing.

Adult shoplifters will try on a dress or pair of trousers and then put their own clothes over the new merchandise, after which they walk out of the shop.

A recent ruse that came to my attention consisted of a husband and wife team.

The woman would enter a store and shoplift an item after which her husband would immediately go back into the same store.

"My wife decided she couldn't use this," the husband would explain, "so I'd like to get my money refunded."

This couple worked this stunt to obtain gasoline money, plus cash for food and lodging, as they toured the U. S. A. last summer.

Although an occasional instance of fraud or cheating may be laid at the door of merchants, most of the illegal behavior is due to the customers.

As the influence of the churches and the Ten Commandments grows less, there is a corresponding rise in illegal behavior by the general public.

It will never be possible to recruit enough able police officers to banish all crime.

If parents and other child educators fail to implant CONSCIENCE in the minds of oncoming crops of kiddies, crime will zoom even more.

Smart people can be taught morality, but if they don't obtain such tutelage early, even geniuses can delight in vandalism and robbery.

But, alas, we have millions of outright feeble-minded, herded into our inner cities, who can only be kept law-abiding by scaring them into proper behavior.

They keep their "sticky fingers" in their own pockets as long as policeman or store detectives are watching them

Cable-TV Issue Still In Air

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)

Should cable-TV operators pay broadcasters and others copyright fees for TV shows the operators pick off the air? It's a question that's been kicking around in Congress since 1971.

It's still there today, despite a Supreme Court decision this month that cable-TV companies don't have to pay such fees for TV shows they import from distant cities and provide subscribers in their own communities for a monthly charge.

The ruling was viewed in the cable-TV industry as a major victory. And you'd think the major industry group — the National Cable Television Association (NCTA) — would be more than happy to let the ruling answer the copyright question for good.

But NCTA president David Foster says otherwise. On the day the ruling came, he allowed himself a brief cheer, then insisted his group still wants Congress to make cable-TV operators pay copyright fees, even though it'll cost them hundreds of thousands of dollars annually. "We have always felt that as a matter of qualifying cable to become a first-class member of the communications fraternity, we should accept this responsibility," says Foster, whose group represents 1,300 of the nation's 3,000 cable-TV systems.

"This has been a difficult position for the cable industry to come to," he noted. "There are still many cable operators who don't feel they should pay copyright fees."

However, he added, "quite candidly, a whole lot of our regulatory problems, I think, will either go away or be minimized once we've got the copyright issue behind us."

In 1971, the National Association of Broadcasters, NCTA and copyright owners came to an agreement — sponsored by the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy — to jointly support legislation that would, among other things, make cable-TV liable for copyright fees.

"We still feel that's the way to do it," said NAB president Vincent Wasilewski, referring to the three-way effort.

But Wasilewski, whose group represents 531 commercial TV stations, was skeptical about how hard Foster's association would press Congress for copyright legislation in the wake of the Supreme Court ruling.

But he conceded the NAB's pursuit of the legislation wouldn't be all that vigorous, either, because "this would not be our top-priority legislation." The big push, he said, is for pending legislation to increase the number of years a broadcast license can be held.

The cable-TV legislation — contained in an omnibus bill to update the nation's 65-year-old copyright law — currently is being considered by a Senate Judiciary subcommittee

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1974

CARROLL RICHTER'S HOROSCOPE

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You have a day to quietly wrap up whatever was left incomplete. Accept early delays and obstacles appearing in the path of your desires. You have the time now to perfect your plans and make them workable.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You are able to help those who are in a difficult position. Talk with associates and make long-range plans for the future.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You want to be with good friends but they are busy now. Know what your personal desires are. Spend more time on your hobby.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have much work to do of a specified nature so don't get involved in anything that could interfere. Plan future wisely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Everything seems to be moving slowly because of the positions of the planets. Take it easy and don't become impatient.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Attend to those duties that are cluttering up your life and clear the slate for bigger and better things ahead. Try to cheer up mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A partner may not be in the mood to do what you want so get busy with other matters and accomplish a great deal. Be sure to keep promises.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get busy at the work ahead of you. It may not be inspiring but has to be done quickly and well. Show particular kindness to kin tonight.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Although an invitation is late in coming, don't become impatient. Have a delightful time with one you like very much. Be logical.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Ideal day to study your home and do those things that will make it a more comfortable and charming place. Attend the social tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Don't force a situation that does not work out as you want; it will resolve itself nicely if left alone. Don't become too difficult.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Although a project you have in mind needs more capital than you now have, don't give it up. Unexpected money could come at a later date.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Don't be impatient now because you are not operating as you feel you should. If you improve personal matters early all goes well later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will need much love and devotion early in life if the self-confidence here is to be built up sufficiently to make a successful life. The educational curriculum should be ideal. Teach early to complete whatever has once been started. A good family life is very important to your progeny.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.
A preemptive bid often disrupts the smooth flow of the opponents' auction. However, it can also backfire by driving the opponents into a makeable contract that they might not have reached under their own steam, and by locating key cards for them.

Left to their own devices, it is unlikely that North-South would have gotten beyond four hearts. East's preemptive jump overall of two spades propelled the auction into slam, for after North had raised South's suit, the latter felt that he was committed to make another move because of his wealth of controls and the fact that North's hand was not yet limited to a minimum. Cue-bids in spades and diamonds resulted in a heart slam that, considering only the North-South cards, was slightly optimistic.

Witchcraft Not Basis For Firing

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) The Kansas Civil Service Board has ruled that practicing witchcraft was not in itself sufficient reason to dismiss the chief psychologist of the state Industrial Reformatory.

The board reinstated psychologist Robert J. Williams, 45, Tuesday, saying that the state had not proven a charge that the practice of witchcraft had affected Williams' credibility with prisoners.

Williams was dismissed Jan. 18 after publication of a newspaper interview in which he said he was a practicing witch. The board's 3-2 vote also awarded Williams full back pay.
