ACCUSED—Ian Ball, 26, is escorted by heavy police guard from Bow Street Magistrate's Court in London Thursday where he was charged and held without bond in the attempted kidnaping of Princess Anne and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips. (AP Wirephoto)

Bullet-Proof Cage Not For Royal Family

LONDON (AP) — Princess Anne and her husband made their first public appearance today since the bloody kidnap attempt against her.

Police uncovered a possible hideout where she might have been held captive about 11 miles from Anne's home.

Security measures were tightened as Anne and her husband, Capt. Mark Phillips, were driven 75 miles from Sandhurst Military Academy outside London to Great Somerford, his home town, keeping a long-standing date to receive wedding presents. They were married Nov. 14.

The couple escaped injury Wednesday when a gunman forced their limousine to a halt 150 yards from Buckingham Palace and pumped bullets into it. Her bodyguard and three other persons were wounded.

Police raided a house in Fleet and asked neighbors about a young man who rented it a week ago. The Evening Standard newspaper said detectives believe Anne might have been taken there if the kidnap attempt had been successful.

The Sun newspaper reported that Anne told a friend the gunman threatened to shoot Phillips. The Sun said the gunman tried to pull Anne from the car, grabbing her by one arm while Phillips held on to her by the other arm.

"I thought we were dead," the Sun quoted Anne as saying.

Official reports said the assailant couldn't open the locked car doors, and a policeman's tackle brought him down.

Three pairs of handcuffs and a rambling letter demanding ransom of $4.6 million for the princess were found in the assailant's rented car.

A 26-year-old unemployed laborer, Ian Ball, appeared in court Thursday on a charge of attempting to murder the royal bodyguard. He was ordered held in jail for a week while Scotland Yard continued its investigation of the first attack on a member of the royal family since 1939.

Police would give no information about Ball, but informed sources said they were trying to discover how he got nearly $700 worth of 10-pound notes that were found on him. They said the car had been rented in the name of John Williams, a name used by Ball in correspondence he received at a mail-reception agency in London.

Police said the motive for the attack was not political, and Home Secretary Roy Jenkins told the House of Commons "there is no present indication that this was other than an isolated act by an individual."

Anne and her husband traveled back to Sandhurst Military Academy, where he is stationed, by separate cars late Wednesday, and the army put a massive guard on their house there. But both resumed normal life Thursday, with Anne exercising her horses and her husband instructing cadets on the rifle range.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL

Reimbursement Grant To Greenville Approved

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced that a reimbursement grant in the amount of $127,700 has been approved under Section 206 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act to the city of Greenville.

Jones said that the grant provides increased federal assistance to towns and cities which started their sewage treatment work between the dates of June 30, 1966 and July 1, 1972.

CONFER ON TRIP

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Henry Kissinger conferred with President Nixon today on his upcoming trip to Moscow, where he says he will seek a breakthrough that could produce a concrete treaty to limit nuclear weapons by the end of 1974.

The grant will raise federal assistance up to some 55 per cent of the project costs, the congressman pointed out.

Jones said that since the total amount of applications exceeded the amount allocated under public law, each project will receive between 65 and 75 per cent of the amount requested.

Each city, he explained, will receive 50 per cent of what they will be eligible for in the first payment. After the initial payment is made to all projects, the Environmental Protection Agency will divide the remainder of the funds proportionally.

Jones reported that the $127,700 grant is Greenville's first payment under the assistance guidelines. He said that Charles Horne Jr., director of the Greenville Utilities Commission, would be notified

House Enacts Bill Using Projections For Utility Rates

RALEIGH (AP)—Despite a last minute blast of opposition from a student based consumers group, the House today passed and enacted into law a bill that will permit the North Carolina Utilities Commission to use projected figures in setting utility rates.

After a brief debate, in which opponents mainly sought to get the bill sent back to committee for a public hearing, the House voted 67-32 to pass it on third reading.

As the House debated the measure, the North Carolina Public Interest Research Group, a student backed consumer interest organization, protested that it "gives an unjustified gift of millions of dollars to the major utility companies like Duke Power and Carolina Power and Light Co."

The group also charged that John Hicks, which it identified as a Duke Power Co. vice president, had lobbied for the bill without being registered with Secretary of State Thad Eure as a lobbyist.

The bill would permit the utilities commission to use a period projected several months into the future in setting the value of a public utilities property for rate making purposes.

During House consideration of the measure today, Rep. H. M. Michaux, D-Durham, said the bill had been pushed so fast that "no one has had an opportunity except here on the floor of the House to debate this matter."

However, Michaux' motion to send the bill to committee for a public hearing was overwhelmingly killed.

In other action today, the House: Voted 77-12 to reduce privilege license taxes of the soft drink industry by $390,000 a year. The bill now goes back to the Senate for approval of a House amendment.

Passed and sent to the Senate a bill that would make it legal for an individual to use wine making kits to make wine for "the use of his family and bona fide guests."

The bill, which the House tentatively approved 81-26 Thursday, would permit the North Carolina Utilities Commission to use as a test period in computing the value of a utility's plant the 12-months beginning a month after the company filed its rate request.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Eddie Knox, D-Mecklenburg, and Rep. Sam Johnson, D-Wake, has already passed the Senate.

Johnson told the House Thursday that the Federal Power Commission uses projected figures in fixing utility rates. Johnson said that under present practice of using only past figures, the evidence in a rate case "is always hindsight" and is "obsolete at the time of the hearing."

Johnson said the measure would reduce the number of rate increase applications, would "bring about stability in rate making and it is definitely in the public interest that this be done."

Those opposing the bill included Rep. Herbert Hyde, D-Buncombe, who told the House that his firm represents a power company and two telephone companies.

Hyde said that the present North Carolina law on rate making "is as advantageous to a utility as any law in the land."

Rep. Foyle Hightower, D-Anson, told the House people in his district feel the bill will "give utilities another tool with which to raise rates."

"Rates are high enough as they are now," he asserted.

"The bill puts the consumer at the mercy of the Utilities Commission," Rep. Joy Johnson, D-Robeson, told the House.

Rep. Chris Barker, D-Craven, supported the bill. He told the House if utilities are not given fair rates "one of these days they will not be able to sell stock to build plants."

He said that without additional plant, "you will reach up to turn on your lights and they will not turn on, the food in your freezer will melt and you will be in a heck of a mess."

The House also gave tentative approval by an 80-10 vote to a bill that would reduce the privilege license taxes paid by the soft drink industry by $390,000 a year.

Rep. Dan Lilley, D-Lenoir, sponsor of the bill, told the House it would equalize taxes paid by the soft drink industry with other similar industries.

The Senate State Government Committee approved a bill that would require that a new state art museum be located in downtown Raleigh. The measure stands little chance since a similar measure has been killed in a House committee. The building commission for the museum wants it located on a 160-acre site west of Raleigh.

The House State Government Committee approved a bill that would prevent state officials except the governor and lieutenant governor from using the state's two helicopters stationed in Raleigh. The measure would give emergencies and law enforcement work priority over the governor and lieutenant governor.

The bill apparently resulted from Transportation Secretary Bruce Lentz's use of state helicopter to travel to a Republican political rally in Nash county and to state officials' use of a helicopter to travel

$17 Million Is Said Spent On Nixon's Homes

By JIM ADAMS

Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee report passed over strong Republican objections says President Nixon's homes have cost taxpayers $17 million — some of it for loosely authorized items "far in excess of security needs."

The White House called the report a deliberate deception. Chairman Jack Brooks, D-Tex., disclosed brief highlights of the report Thursday before his House government activities subcommittee approved it on a straight 6-4 party line vote.

Brooks told newsmen he does not consider the report a shocker, but rather a delineation of facts that came out during his subcommittee's public hearings in October.

The report makes no accusations against Nixon, according to the subcommittee's senior Republican, Rep. John Buchanan of Alabama.

But Republicans strongly objected before the vote to subcommittee action on the report, challenging its findings and contending they didn't know it existed until Monday.

Brooks said in a prepared statement the report's findings concern:

—"The loose arrangements by which the General Services Administration paid for items not requested by the Secret Service.

—"The manner in which the Secret Service submitted after-the-fact requests.

—"The procurement of items far in excess of security needs.

—"The obligation of federal funds by non-government personnel. —"And other such practices as were adequately demonstrated during the hearings."

Brooks gave no details except to say the $17 million figure was reached by adding $7 million in salaries and costs for all federal employees at, or associated with the homes to the $10 million cost previously estimated by the administration.

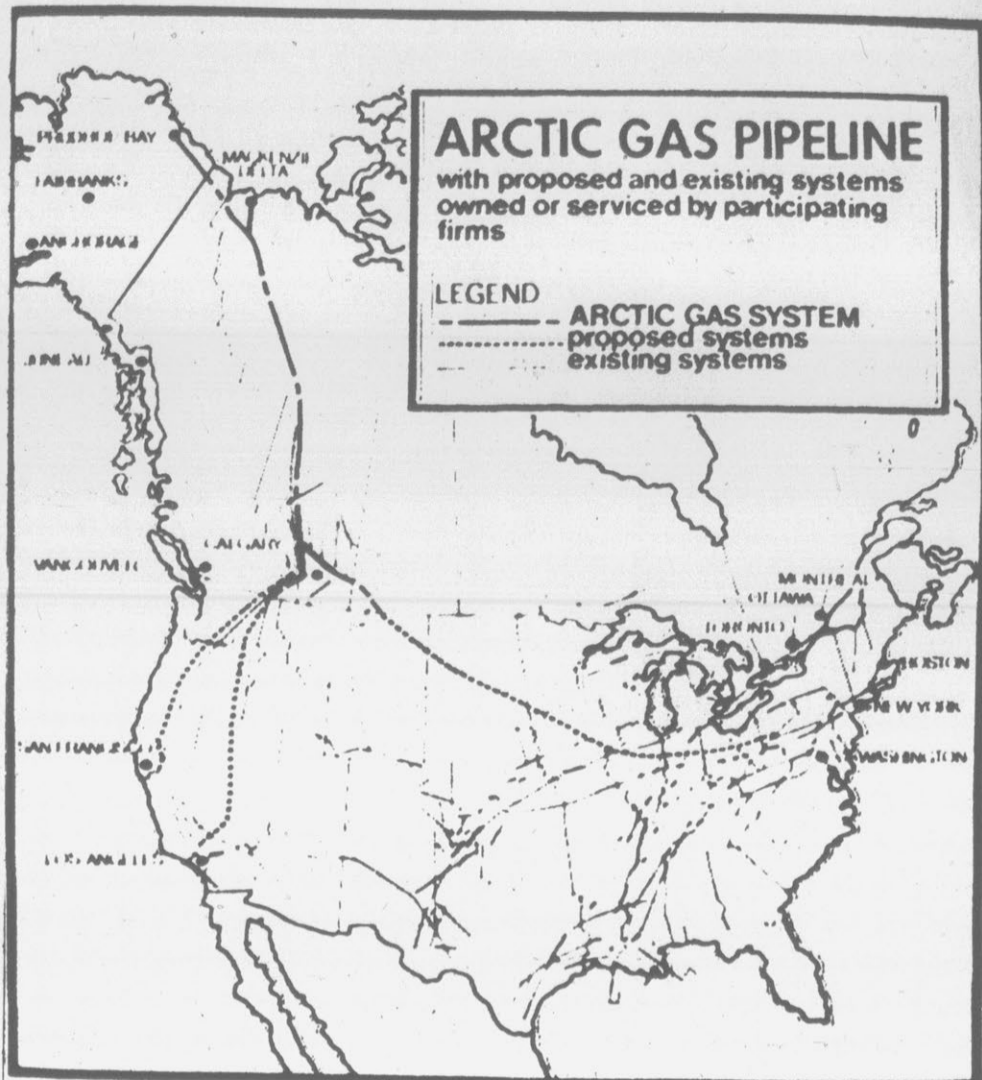

Ken W. Clawson, White House communications director, issued this statement:

"Congressman Brooks is trying to deceive the American people by deliberately creating a report based on runaway partisanship and not facts.

"The Brooks report, constructed to unjustly malign the President, flies in the face of a December 1973 General Accounting Office study which revealed that less than 10 per cent of the amount mentioned by Brooks was ... expended on the President's homes and properties. The GAO, professional watchdogs for Congress, also concluded that at least 97 per cent of the government's spending on the properties was appropriate.

"Either deliberately or unwittingly, Brooks has become a member of an unprincipled gang of Democratic congressmen bent on destroying the President without regard to the national interest."

Buchanan objected before the report was approved that it includes some findings and conclusions "with which I totally disagree and for which I know of no foundation of fact from the hearings."

PIPELINE ROUTE—This map released by the Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Co. depicts the route of a proposed 2600 mile system intended to carry natural gas from the Far North to southern markets. (AP Wirephoto)

Gas Pipeline From Arctic Petitioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of U.S. and Canadian companies is seeking government permission to build a 2,600-mile, $5.7-billion pipeline to carry natural gas from Arctic Alaska and Canada to other points in North America.

Alaskan Arctic Gas Pipeline Co., representing U.S. interests in the 27-firm consortium, filed applications Thursday with the Federal Power Commission and the Interior Department. The Canadian organization, known as Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd., petitioned authorities in Canada at the same time.

In other energy developments Thursday, the Federal Energy Office announced that March gasoline allocations were being increased for five more states — North Carolina, Louisiana, Indiana, New Jersey and Kansas. Nine other states had been granted higher supplies Wednesday.

Strike Accord For Trailways

WASHINGTON (AP)—Officials of Carolina Trailways reportedly have reached a tentative agreement to end a three month old strike by drivers. Lester Greech, president of the line which serves the Delmarva Peninsula of Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, said the settlement reached here must be approved by the union drivers.

An official at the headquarters for the Amalgamated Transit Union Local 1437 in Raleigh, N.C., said Thursday the vote would be conducted by mail and is expected to take about a week.

No details of the contract have been released.

And, in New York City, Texaco Inc. announced it was lowering the wholesale price of its gasoline by one cent per gallon nationwide, effective today. Service-station operators will have the option of passing along the decrease to their customers, the company said.

The U.S.-Canadian consortium was the first bidder in what is expected to be a contest for government permits to build the pipeline.

The Texas-based El Paso Natural Gas Co. is expected to file a rival proposal within the next few months to construct a pipeline paralleling the projected trans-Alaska oil pipeline to Valdez on the Gulf of Alaska. There the gas would be liquefied for shipment to West Coast ports by tanker.

Under the proposal filed Thursday, natural gas would be gathered at Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's North Slope and at the MacKenzie River Delta in northern Canada.

The gas would be transported to southern Alberta, where branch lines would distribute it to the U.S. West Coast and the Midwestern and Eastern United States and Canada.

Demos Hope To Be Veto-Proof

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although the Democrats hold majorities of 246 to 187 in the House and 58 to 42 in the Senate they have been able only once in ten tries to muster the two-thirds vote needed to override vetoes by President Nixon.

In an apparent reference to the possibility the House may impeach Nixon, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield predicted "the months ahead will be difficult, more difficult than those we have just gone through" as the courts and Congress deal with the impact of Watergate.

Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas, chairman of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, offered a toast to the White House, saying "in these days of blatant nudity, it is reassuring to hear there are some people who still believe in covering up."

Comedian Mort Sahl delivered most of the attempts at anti-Nixon humor, including a crack that the President will resign "and become a tax consultant," a reference to his much-publicized tax troubles.

Four-Year School Board Appointments Sought

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

The City Council and the Greenville City School Board last night requested a resolution which will provide for four-year appointments to the school board.

The two groups in a joint meeting asked City Attorney David Ried to draw up a resolution to be acted on at the next City Council meeting. It will provide that any school board member now serving in a fifth year will continue to serve until the expiration of five years, but future appointments or reappointments will be made for four year terms.

Agreement on the resolution came after it was discovered that a "one-year gap" discrepancy existed between regulation and practice in the appointment terms of school board members.

On the books, a four year term is prescribed. In effect, for many years appointments to the city school board by the City Council have been on a five-year basis.

City Attorney David Ried asserted there is no question of illegality in relation to any action passed by members of the school board during any additional one-year periods of service. The law provides that an appointed official is authorized to continue to serve in an appointed status past a normal expiration date when no successor is named.

Ried's research revealed

some historic facts about the city school system.

He related that the original charter for a "Greenville Graded School" system was passed in 1903; amended in 1905 to establish a school board with members to serve a term of seven years; and in 1911 was again amended to reduce school board members terms of office to four years. (The figure still applicable for appointments).

In 1927 another amendment was passed embodying corporate powers and establishing school districts. The most recent amendment, passed by the City Council 1969, adds two additional members to the school board to bring the total to nine.

Once this issue was concluded, members of both bodies spent about an hour's time touching on a number of issues. Principal among the issues were those of an appointed versus an elective school board; the possibility of a merger of the Greenville and Pitt County school systems; the merger of city and county fire and recreation departments; and the eventual merger of the city and county governments.

While the discussions never settled down to concrete ideas or proposals, the fact they have emerged into public expressions by officials can very well be a barometer of changes that could face the public in the future.

New Service Offers Escort Girls In Japan

By MITSUO KIMURA
TOKYO (AP) — A foreign-run female escort service in this land known traditionally for its appealing, demure women, its geisha and its thousands of club hostesses?

Yes, is the answer of a young American woman who has started one.

The aim said Miss Mary Adele Rees, a tall, honey blonde from Fayetteville, Tenn., is to provide bilingual escort girls for both Japanese and foreign businessmen.

Part of her advertising pitch for Executive Service Ltd., says: "If you find that night after night of entertainment is beginning to wear you down...we can provide beautiful, charming and entertaining escorts of all nationalities."

A lot of business in Japan long has been conducted in bars, night clubs, restaurants and on golf courses. Miss Rees said she thinks that many businessmen are trying to find a "way out of boredom" and that a professional escort service can help them.

"Many foreigners complain to me that it takes a week in Tokyo to sign a contract, while it only takes a few days in other countries," she said in an interview.

More than 150 girls have applied for jobs with the service since it opened recently. About 50 have been accepted, she said, including two Germans and one American. The reason for turning down most of the others, she added, was because of their lack of foreign language fluency.

Miss Rees said there is no age limit, but those who have been hired range from 18 to 35. They speak either English, Spanish, French or Italian, and some still attend college.

"I was surprised at their intellectual level," Miss Rees said. "It seems to me that many of them are interested in using languages as they meet foreigners, rather than in money alone. This could hardly happen in America."

She said escorts should be "witty, attractive, charming and intelligent, for a client may want a quiet conversation or he may want an evening of dinner and dancing at a club."

The rules prohibit going to private rooms, hotel or otherwise, but there is no time limit set for the escort service.

"Unfortunately," Miss Rees said, "I've had to turn down many good Japanese girls because of their home curfews. I cannot expect an escort girl to say when she's with her client, 'Well, I have to go now, bye and leave him alone.'"

Miss Rees declined to disclose how business has been, but she indicated that most of the calls to her office in downtown Tokyo have been from foreign businessmen.

"It's just started, but I'm sure we're on the right track," she said.

NEED A DATE?—Mary Adele Rees claims she's too young to own her own business but has managed to set up a bilingual escort service in Tokyo which caters to businessmen.

New Bread Book Includes Recipes

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Now that there's a revival of home bread-baking in this country, cooks who want to learn the art or garner new recipes would do well to look into the recently published "Beard on Bread" by James Beard (Knopf). Introductions to the recipes add interesting and informative details as do Jim Beard's observations on the various kinds of flours, meals and additives, and on leavening, utensils and storage. How to choose appropriate breads in planning menus is a rundown I've never seen in any other book. The 100 or so recipes have stimulating variety: besides the basic yeast breads, sweet breads and coffee cakes they include flat breads such as pita, filled breads such as pizsaladiere, fried cakes such as doughnuts and griddle breads such as crumpets. There are recipes, too, for baking powder and soda breads.

For a sampling, we've chosen to offer you Rich Sour-Cream Coffee Cake from "Beard on Bread" because Jim says: "It's my favorite of all sweet breads. The apricot glaze gives it a superb color and sheen, and the flavor makes it a rich, delicious accompaniment to coffee or tea."

Jack Derrick, who has recently returned from a four-year tour of military service in Europe, was the guest speaker for the Seira Book Club Tuesday.

Mrs. Steve R. Barlett introduced the speaker and stated that he excelled at Rose High School as a swimmer and a National Merit Finalist. Derrick attended the Georgia Institute of Technology on a full ROTC scholarship.

Upon graduation he received a lieutenant commission in the U.S. Army. In service he attained the rank of captain and served as commanding officer of an Air Defense Artillery Unit attached to the Royal Netherlands Air Force.

Derrick explained that he had used all of his leave time for extensive travel. He spoke of his personal experiences and illustrated his talk by showing pictures taken in Greece and Turkey.

President Mrs. Fred Bowman conducted the business session and installed new officers for the coming year: Mrs. Gretchen Goodwin, president; Mrs. W. A. Heyman, vice president; Mrs. E. A. Holstius, secretary; Mrs. J. O. Derrick, treasurer; and Mrs. J. H. Hasting, librarian.

Mrs. Bowman welcomed the following guests, Mrs. Jeanne Seinton of London Ontario, Canada, and Mrs. James F. Davenport.

Mrs. John Lang and Mrs. David Stevens assisted the hostess, Mrs. Derrick.

A note from our own testing. This recipe makes two coffee cakes and calls for baking them in 9-inch tube pans. A friend of mine and I each made a batch and successfully used four different kinds of tube utensils — an angelcake pan, a kugelhof mold, a plain bundt pan and a teflon-lined one. And a note about eating. These coffee cakes have a delightful, porous texture and taste particularly delicious, after glazing and cooling, fresh from the oven. So serve one the day you bake it and save the other for later feasting.

RICH SOUR-CREAM COFFEECAKE

For the Dough:
4 packages active dry yeast
½ cup granulated sugar
½ cup warm water (100 to 115 degrees, approximately)
1 teaspoon salt
½ cup cold milk
1 cup sour cream
2 teaspoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
3 egg yolks
3 sticks (1½ cups) softened sweet butter
5 to 6 cups all-purpose flour
For the Filling:
2 tablespoons melted sweet butter
½ cup brown or white sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ to ½ cup currants, pre-soaked, preferably in brandy, for 1 hour
¼ cup finely chopped nuts
For the Glaze:
1 one-pound jar apricot jam or preserves
1 tablespoon brandy, cointreau, or Grand Marnier

Dissolve the yeast and ¼ cup of the sugar in the lukewarm water in a large bowl. Stir in the remaining ¼ cup of sugar, salt, milk, sour cream, lemon juice, and vanilla and mix well. Add the egg yolks and blend. With your fingertips, rapidly work the butter into 5 cups of the flour as you would for pie dough, to produce a dry, meal-like consistency. Add this to the yeast mixture and begin to knead in the bowl, adding more flour if necessary, to make a smooth, elastic dough. Turn out on a lightly floured board and knead 5 to 6 minutes. Shape into a ball and place in a lightly buttered bowl, turning to coat the surface with butter.

Unless you use leftovers conscientiously, it is probably economical to buy the container that best fits your needs for a meal (or more meals, if planned), whether or not it is the best buy per serving.

SOUR-CREAM COFFEE CAKE—Made with yeast and glazed with apricot jam or preserves, this superb recipe comes from a new cookbook, "Beard on Bread" by James Beard.

Cover tightly and refrigerate to let rise for at least 4 hours or until doubled in bulk. Remove from the refrigerator, punch down, and turn out on a lightly floured board. (The dough can be kept in the refrigerator for as long as 3 days, in which case it should be punched down twice a day, until ready to roll out.)

Divide the dough in half, and roll out each piece into a rectangle about 10 by 14 inches. Brush each rectangle with melted butter, and sprinkle with the brown or white sugar and cinnamon. Over this sprinkle the drained currants and then the finely chopped nuts. Gently press the filling into the dough with the rolling pin. Roll up from the wide end, jelly-roll fashion. Heavily butter two 9-inch tube pans. Carefully fit the rolls into the pans so that the ends of the dough join. Cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven 45 to 55 minutes, until they are golden brown and give off a hollow sound when rapped with the knuckles. Let cool for 15 minutes in the pans, then invert on a rack. Meanwhile, melt the apricot jam over low heat. Add the brandy, Cointreau, or Grand Marnier, and blend. Strain, and coat the sides and top of the cakes with the glaze while the cakes are still warm. Cool them thoroughly before slicing.

Husband Calling For Help Because Of Her Telephonitis

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a woman who talked on the phone from 3 p. m. until 9 p. m. without stopping? That's Molly.

When I got up this morning at 7:30, Molly was talking on the phone again. She didn't have time to speak to me or even get my breakfast. When I left for work at 8:30, she was still on the phone.

When I came home for supper the beds weren't made. She was on the phone again, and I had to beg her to get off and fix supper. She didn't say one word to me until after supper and then only five words: "Do you have any money?"

We've been married for 18 years and have two kids who, believe it or not, are good kids, good students and never gave us any trouble.

Do you think my wife is going through her change? Or do I need one?

DEAR NEGLECTED: Your wife sounds like a compulsive talker—but only on the telephone. [This is known as "telephonitis." ] She must have done something right, or your kids wouldn't have turned out so well. Maybe she is going through a change. Have her call up her doctor and make an appointment. [On second thought, tell her to write him a letter.]

DEAR ABBY: You always stress that a husband and wife are "on the same team." I agree. But how do you feel about their right to privacy when it comes to mail? Please print your views. I would appreciate seeing this in your column.

DEAR READER: The laws of this country governing the privacy of the mails exist for a good reason, and every citizen is obliged to obey those laws, even—and especially—when the legal recipient is a member of one's own family. Reading a spouse's mail is in the same class with reading a child's diary or listening in on the extension telephone. It's verboten.

DEAR ABBY: Tell that girl who paid Motorhead's bills to write him a letter asking him for the $1,000 he owes her. If Motorhead is dumb enough to write her back and tell her that he didn't owe her any $1,000—it was only $500—she'll have all the evidence she needs. She can then take the letter to a lawyer, and he will take it from there.

DEAR CLYDE: It's an old trick, but it could work.

Productive Dairy Cows Live In Milking Factories

By PAUL O'NEILL
 SEDRO WOOLLEY, Wash. AP) — If you've wondered why cowbells and milk cans have been relegated to roadside antique stores — or think long kine still wend their homeward way from distant leas — you don't know much about that carton of milk in your refrigerator.

Milk is now a factory product. The cows which manufacture it are parked, increasingly, in paved lots, are monitored by computers, fed by automated devices, and — thanks to artificial insemination — are remodeled generation by generation to increase their yield and their fitness for work on the assembly line.

which to rest and sleep and constant access to a small, individual pasture which looks out upon the green Skagit Valley and the foothills of the Cascade Mountains.

All Holsteins are large but Hattie — a big-boned, broad-faced black beast with four white stockings and a white-splashed rump — is ponderous. She stands five-feet-one at the shoulders and weighs — when with calf — one ton.

Hattie is now 10 years old and her udder is no longer chic. She looks, in fact — to indulge in well-worn dairy humor — "as though you'd have to jack her up to put a milking machine on her." She is still making history for all that, more than tripling the average U.S. cow's yield for a third year in a row by producing 35,483 pounds of milk in 1973. Hattie is an "eating fool", as indeed she must be, since a cow's production is directly tied to the tonnage of raw material she ingests.

Most dairy animals spend eight hours of the 24 resting

(with perhaps four hours of sleep), eight eating and eight chewing their cud (although not, naturally, in consecutive eight-hour stretches).

But Hattie sends so much cellulose fiber down to her four stomachs (she consumes more than 60 pounds of alfalfa hay and up to 45 pounds of grain every 24 hours) that to get the job of rumination done she has to keep regurgitating and chewing away even when lying down.

Hattie's own personal milking machine is affixed to her at precise twelve-hour intervals (at 6:30 a.m. and 6:30 p.m.) and it puffs and clicks away for a full eight minutes, double average milking time, extracting her flood of fluid product. When the cups are removed, Hattie lurches obediently through the gate of her stall, goes back to her feed rack and starts grinding more hay. Hattie is known as a "hard worker."

It is a trait she shares, in varying degrees, with the rest of the bovine sisterhood. Grazing, though it still goes on, is a vanishing practice. More and more cows are kept in paved corrals which can be cleaned by a tractor blade, are nourished at feed racks which can be filled by a mobile hay and silage dispenser and are sheltered in adjacent open sheds equipped with rubber mats for resting and sometimes with slotted floors to conduct waste into an underground flushing system.

They are paraded to a central milking parlor every 12 hours to take part in what might be described as community lactation: to be connected in groups by way of multiple milking machines to maze of sterile, vacuum-actuated, stainless steel plumbing and thence to one of the refrigerated storage tanks which every dairyman must install for a Grade A rating.

The cow who is too nervous, excited, shy or contrary to enter unhesitatingly into such a routine gets a quick trip to the slaughterhouse. So does the cow who cannot be completely milked in four or five minutes.

But factory cows do not live long, anyhow. All are converted to hamburger as soon as their milk production begins to fall off — usually by the time they are six years old.

Insistence on high productivity is an old American farm tradition. Black and white Holstein-Friesians like Hattie were imported from the Netherlands in the first place because they gave more milk than Jerseys, Brown Swiss, Guernseys and Ayrshires, and U.S. dairymen have spent 100 years — in which the breed has come to comprise 85 per cent of the national dairy herd — making improvements on the European original. It took 27 million cows to satisfy the country's need for milk in 1947: it takes only 12.2 million of the new models to do the job today.

An all-time bovine superstar like Skagvale Graceful Hattie stands at the epicenter of the dairy business.

It takes time, measured in decades, and money measured in six figures to succeed in the tricky and expensive business of producing championship dairy animals. Hattie's background, measured on these scales, is as astonishing as her performance.

The Tenneson brothers — John, 37, Glen, 36, and Dale, 31 — needed only 20 years to create her, starting with nothing but a mortgage on the family farm in 1953. In 10 more years they have established an international reputation as breeders of an unusual Holstein line. They have done so, moreover, in a day of increasingly scientific methods, by native shrewdness, a stubborn faith in inbreeding and a kind of catch-as-catch-can instinct for discerning greatness in animals others disregard.

Hattie astonished them when she began milking in January, 1965; she gave 70 pounds a day, a tremendous performance for a young animal. She kept surprising them.

There is no breeder of dairy cattle anywhere in the world who is not now aware of the new superstar; it is the American Holstein rather than the Dutch original which the Japanese, the Yugoslavs, the Israelis and even Holland's European neighbors now seek in upgrading their herds.

Taxes Take A Minute Longer

As if Americans didn't have enough to worry about with Watergate, the energy crisis, inflation and what-all, the Tax Foundation has come up with another little item.

This year, the research group says, the average American will spend 2 hours 38 minutes of each eight-hour working day earning enough money to pay his federal, state and local taxes.

That's one minute longer in each working day than it took last year.

Or, the Foundation says, for those who want to take the whole bit at once, it will take the average American's full-time wages through May 1 to pay his tax bill this year.

In a breakdown of where the day's pay goes, taxes take twice as much as any other item. Second is housing, third is food and so on down the list.

That extra one minute a day isn't really too bad. It is the other 2 hours 37 minutes that really bothers us.

Democrats Wise In Forgetting The Quota

North Carolina Democrats dropped the quota system of 1972, although it was not done without a fight from party liberals.

The quotas were dropped with a promise of a campaign to attract women, blacks, youth and other groups into the party organization.

Even though it had liberal support, there was much dissatisfaction with the quota system in 1972. We think it is best that it has been dropped.

Nixon Strategy May Backfire

By ROWLANE EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—Contrary to contentions by President Nixon and his senior aides that the House Judiciary Committee has gone far beyond the special prosecutor's office in requesting evidence, both are seeking—and have been denied—the same presidential conversations directly related to the Watergate cover-up.

One such conversation is Mr. Nixon's talk last April 16 with his then top aides, H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman. The White House refused to give that tape to John Doar, counsel for the Judiciary Committee's impeachment proceedings, follows a similar denial to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

This, then, is the latest White House strategy, enunciated to newsmen by senior aides last week and reiterated by the President in Chicago Friday: accuse Doar and his staff of making reckless demands for evidence far beyond Jaworski's in their passion against the President. That shifts the question of whether Mr. Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up to a confused and endless precedential debate over raiding the White House files.

But the strategy is so far removed from truth that it threatens to backfire. Republicans on the Judiciary Committee who had been steadfast Nixon supporters are infuriated over what they consider attempted sabotage of the impeachment proceedings.

The core of the present White House strategy is its contention that Jaworski has in hand, as Mr. Nixon told the Chicago Executives Club Friday, the "full story of Watergate," and needs no more information. Senior aides had been spreading the identical word for ten days. Thus, as so often is the case, Mr. Nixon was repeating a well-orchestrated theme.

The theme stems from Jaworski's strange luncheon with members of the New York Times Washington bureau Feb. 26. The Times men claimed it was on the record and published a story; Jaworski, claiming it was off the record, was furious. Asked at lunch whether the Watergate conspiracy would ever be solved, Jaworski replied his prosecutors had pretty well solved it. In the Times, that came out as Jaworski saying his office "knew the full story" of Watergate.

The White House has gleefully seized on that Times story as proof that the House Judiciary Committee needed only the very same documents given Jaworski. In fact, however, as of Feb. 14, Jaworski had been denied 27 additional tape recordings, and the number is still larger today. Confrontation in the courts between Jaworski and the President was avoided only because the prosecution did not want to delay the Watergate indictments.

To show that Congress and the special prosecutor are being denied the same information, Jaworski sent Doar a letter last Wednesday containing information withheld from the public: a list of evidence denied the prosecutors by the White House. That list is strikingly familiar to Doar, containing many of the 42 tapes the White House also has denied him.

Nor does Doar's rejected list of evidence fit the President's charge in Chicago Friday that the House committee is seeking evidence "without regard to relevance." Like Jaworski's, Doar's denied requests go to the heart of whether Mr. Nixon was involved in the Watergate cover-up.

The Oval Office tapes of April 16 could be particularly important. On April 15, Assistant Atty. Gen. Henry Petersen urged the President not to fire John W. Dean III as White House counsel because he was cooperating with the prosecutors. Nevertheless, on April 16, the President asked for Dean's resignation. As Dean waited to see Mr. Nixon, he later testified, Haldeman and Ehrlichman recommended that he fire them immediately while retaining Dean? Did he that day direct Haldeman to review the recording of the famous March 21 meeting with Dean during which hush money for Watergate defendants was discussed? Did he talk about the break-in of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist's office, which only one day earlier he had ordered Petersen not to investigate? Were Dean's interviews with Watergate prosecutors discussed? Or was none of this mentioned?

Although the White House says the Oval Office surreptitious tape recorder ran out of tape on Sunday April 15, tape was presumably replenished on Monday morning, April 16. If so, it could go far either to implicate or exculpate the President.

Save Europe By Insult

WASHINGTON—People may deny it, but there is nothing a country enjoys more than being insulted and threatened by another country. It brings the natives out of their lethargy, it gets the juices flowing in the parliament and the press and it gives leaders an opportunity to distract their countrymen from their problems at home.

It is in this context that we must look at the recent attacks Henry Kissinger and President Nixon have made on the Western European countries. I can now reveal exclusively what was behind the attacks and why they were made.

Six weeks ago the foreign ministers of Europe demanded to meet with Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. The announced purpose of the meeting was to discuss what to do about the oil situation. But the real purpose of the gathering was to discuss ways of getting Europeans excited again about their role in world affairs.

At the meeting Kissinger led off by saying how happy he was that things were going so well between the United States and Europe, and that President Nixon was looking forward to his trip there in April. He predicted that with the detente, the ties between the Common Market countries and the United States could be closer than ever.

The French foreign minister said, "That is what we came to talk to you about. We don't want closer ties, we want worse ones."

Kissinger looked shocked. "I don't understand."

"Speaking for my own government, the French are sick and tired of having good relations with the United States. It was all right when we had bad relations with the Soviets and the Chinese. But now that we can't attack them any more, you're the only superpower left that the French can get angry at."

"Why tell me?" Kissinger said in a huff. "Why don't you just get mad at us?"

"We can't do it alone. We have to be provoked into taking a hard line against you. The provocation can only come from you and the President."

"You're asking us to attack you so the French people can get mad at us?"

"You owe it to us," the French foreign minister said, "after all France has done for you."

Kissinger looked at the other foreign ministers. "Do you feel that way, also?"

"I'm afraid so, Henry," the West German foreign minister said. "It would be a big help to Willy Brandt's government if we could accuse you of bad faith. The German people have had it so good for so long that they're miserable. If we could drive a wedge between the United States and Germany it would seem like old times."

The Italian foreign minister said, "My government will fall unless the people have something else to worry about other than the corruption of their own politicians."

The Danish foreign minister added, "We're a small country, but if you would just insult us by name you can't imagine what it would do for Danish morale."

Kissinger said he would discuss it with the President. The next day when he relayed the request to Mr. Nixon, the President was horrified. "But what about NATO and the defense of the Free World?"

"No problem," Kissinger said. "No one takes NATO seriously anyway. Actually I don't think it's a bad idea. If we could get a good feud going with Europe, it would

Famine Is 'Up To Allah'

By ANDREW TORCHIA

Associated Press Writer HARRAR, Ethiopia (AP) — Ethiopia's Harrarge Province, a mountainous, semidesert region as big as Italy, has six weeks to live, its officials say.

Without huge grain handouts and without rain, the remaining cattle herds will die. Tens of thousands of peasant farmers and nomad herders will starve. The eastern fifth of Ethiopia will turn into a dust bowl.

Drought is affecting seven of the country's 14 provinces, where nearly two-thirds of the 26 million Ethiopians live. Some qualified observers say 200,000 or more have starved to death, double the estimated toll less than a year ago and more than in the six-nation West African drought.

The rain is up to Allah, Harrarge's devout Moslems say. The grain is up to National Relief Commissioner Shimelis Adugna, a 38-year-old social worker named by Ethiopia's new government this month to boss a slack and stumbling drought relief bureaucracy.

"The government has given me a free hand, and I intend to act swiftly," Shimelis said in an interview in Addis Ababa. "Even if there is no rain, I think we will be able to avert further major loss of life."

Aid personnel say the 264,000 tons of relief grain needed for 1974 is assured, including 50,000 tons from the United States. But foreign relief experts and many Ethiopians think the odds are stacked against Shimelis — and against the estimated 3 million Ethiopians that are going hungry.

It has been raining in Wollo and in the south, promising some crops by midyear. But nobody knows how many may be starving or sick in vast, unmaped sections where a four-wheel-drive vehicle can make only six miles an hour over the rocks, and where even missionaries rarely penetrate.

A Western relief expert who has traveled widely in Ethiopia says another wave of starvation that would dwarf the 1973 crisis could develop within two months.

"To say things have improved is to compare Ethiopia to a man standing on a railroad track with a freight train coming around the bend," he commented. "He's all right until it hits him."

Shimelis hurries to do something in a hurry about Harrarge province. From 70 to 90 per cent of the cattle have died, and most of the 2 million farmers and 1.2 million nomads are down to their last handfuls of grain. Haile Mariam, an assistant (Continued on Page 5)

Public Forum

To the editor:

Many times we find time and words to complain, but when we should say thank you, this seems to be a different story.

Pitt Memorial Hospital's administration made a money-saving decision by reducing some hospital employees' work hours from 40 hours a week to 37½ hours. This was an unpopular decision. Our voice was heard in our complaints; morale was at its lowest. The decision affected nursing care of hospital patients and also caused a financial burden to the employees.

Action was sought to change the administrative decision. Meetings with Mr. Richardson brought about no change, although he did try to make us understand the need for such action. Because of the meetings, good communication has been established between the administration and employees. For this we must give thanks.

We feel a special "thank you" to Mrs. Tyer, your reporter, for her unbiased reporting of meetings which she covered. To you, the news media, to radio and television, we owe our gratitude. You assisted us in making the public aware. And to them, also, we must say thank you for your concern.

To Vickie Kenzie, R. N. and doctors and nurses who supported our desire for good nursing care and adequate working time, we owe a special "thank you."

But the final decision to reinstate the 40-hour work week was made by the hospital Board of Trustees. We must acknowledge this group of people for their attention and concern. They helped to boost morale of employees and give new incentive by their action. Thank you, Mr. Ed Warren and other Board members.

May we be worthy of each of your help and it is our desire that we may be able to show our gratitude by returning good nursing care to you and your families at Pitt Memorial Hospital.

Many Adapted To Fuel-Saving

By JOSH FITZHUGH

AP Business Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The Arab oil embargo may be over but don't expect the place you work to return to the way it was.

Companies which turned down thermostats and turned off lights as emergency measures have grown used to the savings. Their employees have adapted, the firms say.

Large office buildings in the Northeast and Midwest report total energy savings up to 20 per cent, helped along by a mild winter. In some cases lighting consumption, if not the bills, have been cut in half.

Major industrial corporations say they have set out in earnest to eliminate energy waste. They say the economics makes sense: The cost of waste has grown too high. DuPont Co.'s energy consulting division reports a 300 per cent increase in business this year.

"With proper conservation, industry could save a million and a half barrels of oil a day," says George Tunis, head of DuPont's applied technology division.

The nation consumes about 19 million barrels of oil a day.

"We figure we've cut our electrical consumption by 25 per cent since November and our steam consumption between 40 and 45 per cent," says Donald Odell, vice president of New York's Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., whose offices hold 12,000 people each day.

Metropolitan's conservation steps included turning down thermostats to 68 degrees, taking out every other light bulb in corridors, cutting down their number of elevators in service, and "just making sure people turn off the lights when they leave," says Odell. "From a company point of view the people have accepted it."

"I doubt we'll ever go back the way we were. You learn that you can get along."

Frank Ward, who helps manage First Chicago Corp.'s massive center in the Loop, says the building has saved about 30 per cent in electricity compared with a year ago. The building, in which 11,000 persons work is all-electric.

"If the employees get used to the lighting they have now, then there's no need to go back," Ward says. Presently the building's lighting load is off 50 per cent.

The energy cutbacks were not taken initially to save money. As one government official says in Washington: "We're trying to save energy, not dollars." Most companies have found their savings washed out in higher utility and fuel oil bills.

But some have profited, and all agree they would lose by going back to former levels.

"We estimate that our cutbacks are saving us nearly $25,000 a month," says one building manager who asked to remain anonymous.

Finger Pointed At The Drivers

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH — Halfway through a 40-year career in law enforcement and highway safety work, Col. Charles A. Speed came to a firm conclusion: within the driver population there is a group who have more than their share of accidents.

"They're violation-accident prone," the retired highway patrol commander said.

"But that doesn't mean this goes on all through a driver's life. Generally, there's a three, four, or five year period when a person is using alcohol excessively, speeding, or driving recklessly.

"Some get killed. Some wise up in time," he said. And some kill or maim others.

At that time, 20 years ago, Speed was in charge of the licensing and safety division of motor vehicles. He started a campaign, gathering statistics, talking with physicians and psychologists, studying wreck patterns.

A New Way That work has resulted in a totally new approach to traffic accidents which is the foundation of the National Driving Center, soon to occupy a new building with a track and laboratory in the Research Triangle Park.

Speed is a consultant to the new agency, funded by a $1.9 million appropriation by the 1973 General Assembly. The National Driving Center is a direct result of Speed's talks with leaders of the N. C. Medical Society.

Other supporters include the Independent Insurance Agents of N. C. which has put up over $200,000 and the Bar Association which is helping with legal advice and pledges future support with legislation which will be required as a result of the work.

The agency is a North Carolina venture, despite its name. Speed said that name was picked because this is the only such program directed at studying drivers.

"You're just beating a dead horse when you keep talking about improving the vehicle and improving the roadways to get at the problem.

"After 40 years in the field of highway safety, I finally came to the realization that we have been going about it all backwards, spending millions of dollars in vehicle and roadway research," Speed said.

"And all the time a small percentage of drivers are causing the trouble. They make life intolerable for the rest of us."

Speed noted that failure of 90 per cent of the drivers to use seat belt restraints is an example of the failure of vehicle safety measures to make an impact.

Find The Risk

What the National Driving Center, headed by Dr. Verne Roberts, focuses on is initial study of wreck reports in North Carolina to find profiles of medical, social, mental emotional, physical, or addiction problems which make for bad drivers and bad wrecks.

Study to date proves the point, Speed said. Computerized data shows relationships. "We can put our finger on them just like a credit bureau can spot a poor risk," Speed said.

Dr. Roberts came to North Carolina from the University of Michigan where he was involved in research on vehicle and road safety. He, too, was convinced the vital link—the driver—was being overlooked.

There is a link between driving and living, Speed said. The car reflects a man's true nature. "Watch a man who will drink and drive, or speed, and drive recklessly, or throw trash out the window. He probably does poorly in a lot of things as well—at his job, at home, in his community," Speed said.

Pure research is not the final aim of the National Driving Center. Down the road, the agency plans laboratory and driving track installations across the state where people pinpointed by their driving records, test results in license application, or performance in driving schools can be referred for study and corrective rehabilitation.

"The object," Speed said, "is not to take them off the roads, but to threaten them, physically, mentally, emotionally, educationally, or attitudinally—and try to apply a cure."

A computerized study of driving records just completed seems to back up the basic goal of the National Driving Center.

The survey shows that 92 per cent of drivers in the state have never had a personal injury accident; 72 per cent have not had a property damage accident.

During the past three years, 75 per cent of the drivers have not been arrested in any traffic violations. While alcohol figures in more than half the fatalities in the state, 94 per cent of Tar Heel drivers have never been convicted of driving drunk.

What this means, the researchers say, is that most drivers go along smoothly without wrecks or violations. A small group is causing a lot of trouble.

Strength For Today

TO WALK IN LOVE

The Bible is full of speaking figures of speech. Sometimes truth is put in such a way that we must ponder it a long while before we understand it. But at other times it comes to us graphically phrased in a little turn of speech that makes us always remember it.

Paul tells his followers that they are to walk in love—not only to cherish it and practice it, but to walk in it. He means that wherever they go they are to take love with them. As they walk in the streets and greet their friends they are to have love in their hearts so that men will be encouraged by their mere passing. We may walk miles every day, to and from work, about the house, through the mill, among our customers. As we walk we are to take love with us, to know that God wants to see it used out in the world as well as in the home, among business associates as well as among brothers. This is the meaning of walking in love. It is something dynamic, not static, and constantly to be used and not hoarded.

Bloodmobile In Pitt Two Days

The Red Cross bloodmobile will be in Pitt County Tuesday between 11:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. at the Greenville Moose lodge.

On the following day (Wednesday) the bloodmobile will be at the Ayden-Grifton High School between the hours of 10:00 a.m. and 3:00 p.m.

On each day a quota of 116 pints is necessary to maintain the demands for blood by Pitt Memorial Hospital and goals required by the blood bank headquarters in Norfolk.

"Actually," says Mrs. Ruth Taylor executive secretary of the Pitt County Red Cross, "we must do considerably better than that on each day in the County. We are now approximately 150 pints behind in our blood-giving for the current year, and Pitt County must catch up. Blood-usage by Pitt Memorial Hospital continues to rise, and the county is going to see an ever-increasing assigned quota of blood units to meet that demand."

Tuesday's visit of the bloodmobile in Greenville is being sponsored by the Bachelor Benedicts.

Spokesman for the club, Thomas Foreman, says "We have appealed to civic clubs and church organizations to help provide donors for the visit. Club members are soliciting and obtaining pledges from donors at every opportunity for the occasion.

"Our organization is fully aware of the necessity for the blood bank, and we are not going to be satisfied unless we can go well over the day's quota of blood units. We want very much to reduce the county's deficit in the blood bank."

To help in meeting that goal, Foreman said the Bachelor Benedicts will provide transportation for donors to and from the Moose lodge.

"Telephone us 756-4375, and we will make arrangements to provide transportation," said Foreman.

Mrs. Taylor disclosed the blood bank collections throughout the Norfolk-Tidewater region had been "slack" during the past three weeks, and the blood bank had been unable to fill all the needs at Pitt Memorial Hospital. "We have had to telephone a number of local donors to give blood at the hospital this month", she said.

"Because of that, it is important we more than meet our quota Tuesday in Greenville and on Wednesday at the Ayden-Grifton High School.

"Our school visits have not been very fruitful in the past; and to be successful it is necessary that families living in the area served by the school participate as donors. The visits are not for faculty members and older students, but are intended as an opportunity for the community."

Under recent revisions of Red Cross regulations for giving blood, former malaria patients who have had no recurrence for three years are accepted as blood donors.

Warns Against Early Planting

"Don't plant tobacco too early", cautions Ed Yancey, Pitt County extension chairman. "It would be better to pull up plants and throw them away than to put them in the field now", he added.

According to Yancey, a situation has developed where some farmers have tobacco plants ready for transplanting. (Normally transplanting doesn't begin before April 10 to 15 in the Pitt County area.)

"This is a result of the change from cotton to plastic covers by many farmers and the unseasonably warm weather experienced in February and March. The plastic plant bed covers usually produce plants in about sixty days from seeding whereas cotton covers take about 90 days," he stated.

Yancey commented that Extension Tobacco Specialists at North Carolina State University fear that tobacco transplanted now is very likely to suffer heavy field loss and result in the expensive chore of doing the job a second time.

"Mutual aberration," he replied. "There is no other way to explain it. There are times when you do things that defy logic and reason. This was one of them."

He explained at least one of the things that restored his reason:

"I couldn't read. I have the habit of waking up at 2:30 or 3 in the morning and not being able to go back to sleep. Oddly enough, that's when I do my most serious reading — Gibbon, Milton, that sort of thing. Always I would wake up, reach over for the assurance of that febrile body next to me, then start to read.

"But then, when I reached over and that body wasn't there, it upset me terribly. No other body would help. I would stare at the pages and read nothing.

"The reconciliation was cessive ground suckers.

"Even if the first plants have to be thrown away, most beds will still produce enough to set the crop," said Yancey. "With the plant situation generally looking good for the county, there is every reason to believe that we will have enough plants to transplant during the normal time."

Bicyclists Need Lights

Local bicycle riders are being cited by Greenville police for failing to display lights on their bicycles as required by law, if they ride their two-wheeled vehicles at night.

In the past six days, local officers have charged 21 night-riders with failing to have proper lighting on their vehicles, according to Chief Glenn Cannon.

Cannon urged bicycle riders—for their own safety, not to mention the possible legal consequences—to have proper lighting equipment and reflectors on their vehicles when riding at night.

The chief pointed to an incident last week in which a bike rider was injured when struck by a truck. He said had the bicycle been equipped with lights and reflectors, the collision—which demolished the new $147 bicycle and caused $300 damage to the truck—might have been avoided.

Both city code and state law require bicycle lights at night. The lights, Cannon explained, on the front of the bicycle, should be visible, under normal conditions, for 300 feet in front of the vehicle.

A red reflector is required for the rear of the bicycle.

Will Confer On Penalty

RALEIGH (AP) — A new set of conferees will attempt to resolve differences between the House and Senate on legislation to limit the death penalty in North Carolina.

The Senate voted 31-16 Thursday, to appoint new Senate conferees. Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, presiding officer, of the Senate, appointed Sens. Eddie Knox-D-Mecklenburg, Bobby L. Barker, D-Wake, and Fred Folger, D-Surry.

House Sepaker Jim Ramsey named Reps. Horton Rountree, D-Pitt, Sam Johnson, D-Wake, and Lane Brown, D-Stanley, as the House conferees.

After some 10 months of work, the original Senate-House conferees reported Tuesday they were unable to reconcile differences on House-Senate bills.

The bill passed by the House would limit the death penalty to first degree murder. First degree murder also was in a bill approved by the Senate. However, the Senate wrote into its measure a two-degree conviction on rape. First degree rape conviction would carry a death penalty.

Burtons Draw Crowds To Movie-Making Site

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
OROVILLE, Calif. (AP) — This pleasant mid-California town, founded by gold seekers in 1849, is undergoing another invasion — by film makers headed by Richard Burton and his reconciled wife, Elizabeth Taylor.

Oroville is doubling for a Southern hamlet in "The Klansman," a $4.5-million movie based on William Bradford Huie's novel of bigotry in the South. It's all being staged here — rape, riot, castration, lust — which may explain why producers Bill Shiffryn and William Alexander chose not to film below the Mason-Dixon line.

There hasn't been so much excitement here since the Oroville Dam was built. Citizens can visit the town square and find a race riot being staged. They can catch glimpses of such celebrities as Lee Marvin, Cameron Mitchell, Lola Falana, Luciana Paluzzi and pro football running back O.J. Simpson. The football star, playing a dramatic role, almost draws the most attention of anyone in the film company.

But the football superstar can't outshine the legendary Burtons. Since Burton is appearing in the film and playing a Southern aristocrat, he is more visible. His wife has spent most of the time at their rented house, but she occasionally visits the location.

She was there one day when Terence Young, director of the James Bond films, was shooting scenes at the abandoned Western Pacific passenger station, doubling for a bus stop. Deeply tanned from a vacation at Puerto Vallarta, the actress seemed fully recovered from her abdominal surgery of last November.

"All right, Henry, it's worth a try. Why don't you insult the NATO countries at a briefing you're giving to the American diplomatic wives in Washington, and I'll threaten to take the troops out of Europe when I go to Chicago."

Kissinger went back and reported the President's decision to the foreign ministers. They were elated at the news.

He shrugged off their gratitude with a smile and said, "After all, what are allies for?"

happily. But upon questioning, she admitted, "Well, I'm retired until something worth doing comes along. So far it hasn't."

While Burton did a television interview with Merv Griffin, Miss Taylor sat in a dressing room trailer with Lee Marvin and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Cameron Mitchell and a visitor from Hollywood. Miss Taylor displayed her husband's 10th wedding anniversary gift — a necklace medallion of a 1907 $20 gold piece, surrounded by tiny rubies.

"Yes, it has been 10 years," she remarked. "Of course we've been together 13 years."

After a lifetime in public view, Miss Taylor displayed an annoyance with the press, particularly the gossip purveyors. She said she was not talking to a longtime columnist friend — "Why does he have to be so bitchy?"

The dressing room session broke up when filming ended for the day, and the Burtons disappeared inside his trailer with two or three others. A half-hundred Orovilleans waited outside for an hour, hoping for a view of the famous pair. At last they emerged, smiling and signing autographs and exchanging small remarks with the fans.

The Burtons were ushered to a waiting limousine which returned them to the motel.

Miss Taylor retired to prepare for a reception for the local townspeople. Burton went to the dining room and ordered a vodka martini. He was repeatedly interrupted by fans, both young and old, who wanted autographs and words with the famous star. He was cordial to all of them.

Between interruptions, Burton, who is one of the film world's best conversationalists, reflected on many matters including the five-month rift in his marriage last year. What caused it?

"Mutual aberration," he replied. "There is no other way to explain it. There are times when you do things that defy logic and reason. This was one of them."

He explained at least one of the things that restored his reason:

Some 12,000 more tons arrived in Djibouti, the nearby French port on the Gulf of Aden, early in February. The grain is still waiting to be loaded on the five-car trains that can shuttle only 125 tons a day to Harrarge.

Funds From Poverty Churches

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Normally it has been the American churches that send financial help to missions in poorer lands. But in this case, the reverse happened. Some Southeast Asian churches sent funds to some hard-up American congregations.

The Rev. Dr. Howard Brinton, of the United Methodist Board of Global Ministries, says it's believed to be the first time in the denomination for overseas churches to send money to U.S. churches.

He adds that the action symbolizes the international partnership that has developed between churches, replacing the once dominating paternal role of U.S. denominations and leading to a "two-way street" pattern of mutual efforts.

While the shift has resulted in a growing number of Asian and African missionaries coming to work in this country, the receipt of financial help here from abroad marks a rarer wrinkle in the process.

The modest sum—$1,000—was dispatched by the Singapore district of the Chinese Methodist Conference to a low-income, Spanish-speaking congregation at Grand Prairie, Tex., the Mid-Cities United Methodist Church, and to an Indian congregation near Schuler, Okla., Little Cusseta Church.

Both are working to raise money for new church buildings, and the Chinese Christians chipped in $500 for each group as part of Methodism's global "second mile" missions giving program.

Despite the trend toward more even-handed relationship between American-European churches and those in poorer regions, the number of American Protestant missionaries again is rising slightly, after a brief downturn.

According to the latest statistical roundup, the total now exceeds 35,000 American Protestants, maintained overseas at a cost of $393 million annually, compared to a 33,289 total of 1969 and annual expenditures of $345 million.

About 7,469 American Roman Catholics now are serving overseas, down from the 9,655 serving in foreign missions five years ago.

The decline for Roman Catholicism parallels that for most of the mainline Protestant denominations. The counter-balancing increase of Protestant missionaries has occurred mostly among conservative, evangelical groups.

However, the largest number of missionaries maintained abroad by any single group is the 2,500 supported by Southern Baptists, the country's biggest Protestant denomination. For other large denominations, the count of missionaries has fallen steeply in recent years.

Inflation, and deflation, of the dollar have been depressing factors on the U.S. missionary operation. There also has been a growing trend to turn over increasing amounts of the task to national churches, a change they have sought.

Atomic Plant Site Said On 'Zone Of Weakness'

LOUISA, Va. (AP)—A geologist has told an Atomic Energy Commission panel that there is little chance that a geological fault under the North Anna nuclear power station would move, but added he was "concerned because a fault means a zone of weakness."

Dr. John Funkhouser, who first identified the North Anna fault in 1970, expressed grave doubts in a written statement received by the Atomic Energy Commission Safety and Licensing Board hearing Thursday.

Only three of the 25 speakers testifying at Thursday's hearing in Louisa favored the North Anna station being constructed by Virginia Electric & Power Co.

The hearing is being held in an effort to determine if the North Anna site is still acceptable to the AEC now that a geologic fault has been found under the site.

Funkhouser said when he first visited the reactor site Feb. 23, 1970, "my responses were a series of surprises. I could not believe that Veeco was knowingly siting a nuclear reactor astride a fault."

The geologist, a professor at Petersburg's John Tyler Community College, said the site had been "poorly planned, researched and supervised."

"There have been times I have wondered if conclusions had not been furnished to (Veeco's) geologic consultants with the expectation they would find corroborating data," he said.

Many of the opponents not only were against the siting of the $1 billion North Anna station atop a geological fault, but also nuclear energy in general.

But John B. Farmakides, board chairman, said the panel's function was "to settle disputes on whether this plant is being built and operated in conformity with Atomic Energy Commission regulations," not to debate the good or evil of nuclear power.

Those favoring the power station all were Louisa County officials.

Arrest Another In Kidnap Case

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Authorities have arrested a second man in connection with the kidnaping of a banker's wife and have recovered all but $100 of the $200,000 ransom paid.

The FBI identified the second man as Frederick Henry Helberg, 43, a South St. Paul welder and carpenter. They arrested him Thursday in Minneapolis.

Authorities said Helberg would be arraigned today before U.S. Magistrate J. Earl Cudd on charges of violating the Hobbs Act, which involves extortion.

Helberg was arrested for the abduction of Eunice Kronholm, 46, Lino Lakes. Her husband, Gunnar, had paid $200,000 ransom. He is president of the Drivers State Bank of South St. Paul.

James William Johnson, 35, Lakeville, was arrested Monday and was charged with violation of the Hobbs Act. He was being held on $100,000 bail.

PROFITS ROSE
WASHINGTON (AP)—Profits of American corporations rose slightly in the last quarter last year, but were up by 27 per cent for 1973 as a whole, the Commerce Department says.

on the radio that Johnson had been arrested.

The FBI said another $9,900 of the $200,000 ransom was recovered Thursday. The federal agency had announced Wednesday the recovery of $190,000. It was found in the garage of the Burnsville, Minn., home where Mrs. Kronholm was held.

The FBI said it was "continuing an extensive investigation to identify and apprehend any other individuals that may have been involved in the matter."

Another Chance?

Was "Try Again" really the name of the boat? Or did some joker point those words on the old hull after the wreck? Either way the irony wasn't wasted.

Lots of people used to sail through life confidently and contentedly. Today they aren't so sure they're on the right course.

There are some who think it's only a matter of time before our whole civilization runs aground.

Christianity has often been called "the religion of another chance." Yes, for Christ teaches that we can rise out of our failures through God's forgiveness and power.

Millions today are rediscovering Christian precepts. It is a new generation which will soon be sailing toward a Christian destiny.

Microradio Is Size Of Two Aspirins

HANOVER, N.H. (UPI) — Place two aspirin tablets side by side and you have the size of J. Monroe Bourne's smallest microradio. It monitors body heat in mice.

Then there is his big unit. It's four by six by eight inches and it measures how bright a firefly is.

In between comes a horde of gadgets he dreams up to meet the needs of Dartmouth College doctors who tell him, "I need to measure something, what can you do?"

The something might be brain waves, hearts, stomach acidity or body temperature as it relates to fertility studies.

Bourne is director of Dartmouth Medical School's instrumentation laboratory. Anything needed in electronics or optical work, he makes. If it's something as small as the aspirin-sized radio, he has to work under a 10 to 15 power microscope to see what he's doing.

His smallest microradio was half the size of the devices used to monitor body functions of astronauts.

He put it together for a student studying the wakefulness-sleepfulness cycle in mice, to see how it is affected by artificial "days" of other than 24 hours duration.

"He was monitoring this by the fact you cool off little as you sleep. He needed a monitor whereby you could tell what was going on without disturbing the mice. So I made a bunch of these transmitters that pick up temperature and give out a little radio signal. You can tell the temperature by counting the time between beeps. You actually can hear the beeps on a standard broadcast radio at 700 kilocycles," Bourne said.

The radio has two coils of ultra-fine wire wound together, two transistors, two condensers and two resistors, one of them temperature sensitive. All that was the size of one aspirin. A commercially available mercury battery similar to those in a electric watches was the size of another aspirin.

The radios have a short range, usually 10 feet, but can broadcast from the body of a mouse —or human—to monitoring device. With the astronauts, the monitoring device then broadcasts the signals back to earth.

The firefly gadget tests for the presence of life in an unknown substance. All life as we know it on earth contains a chemical known by its initials, ATP. That chemical is what makes a firefly's tail glow.

"You take a freeze-dried firefly, extract the tail with salt water and drop the unknown substance in. If there's any form of life, it will make this firefly extract light up," Bourne said. A major use is in monitoring sewage plants to see if they are working properly.

Another device the size of his firefly box measures the pressure in the chest, how much air you breathe in and out, "and it will tell you how much work you're doing."

Bourne is working with the White River Junction, Vt., Veterans' Administration hospital in an effort to adapt the device to measure lung capacity in persons suffering from emphysema.

Bourne, 43, was working as television serviceman in the late 1940s when he took a few courses at Virginia Mechanics Institute, then started studying at home at night. In effect, he said he is practicing biomedical electronics engineer, but he has no degree.

He taught himself his trade.

The Medical College of Virginia hired him in 1957 and he moved to Dartmouth in 1963.

Bourne said in one way his life was easier than those of many youths today. "I knew what I wanted to do when I was about eight years old. I wanted to know what made a radio work."

The first time he heard a radio, his sister brought one home from college. She plugged it into their newly electrified house and the first thing the family heard was the Saturday opera broadcast.

"They were applauding and I thought it was raining on that box. From that point on I knew what I wanted to do—I wanted to know how that radio worked," Bourne said.

Not Alarmed Over Silence

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — It has been 12 days since the last communication from the terrorist kidnapers of Patricia Hearst, but the FBI says it is not alarmed.

Charles Bates, agent in charge of the case, said Thursday he was not particularly concerned about the silence, the second longest since Miss Hearst was abducted from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4.

In its last communique March 10, the Symbionese Liberation Army, which says it is holding the 20-year-old coed, said it would suspend communications unless two purported SLA members were allowed to make a statement on nationwide television.

The two, Joseph Remiro, 27, and Russell Little, 24, are being held on charges of slaying Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster last November.

When questioned about the latest silence, Bates said, "The SLA's last demand was that Remiro and Little be given a television interview, and Mr. Hearst has been working on that."

Miss Hearst's father, Randolph A. Hearst, has vowed to try and persuade the courts to grant the appearance, but one judge already has refused. Hearst is editor and president of the San Francisco Examiner and chairman of the Hearst Corp.

The longest silence from the kidnapers was 17 days.

The FBI has described the SLA as a terrorist organization with some 25 members.

Probe Break-In At Residence

Greenville police are continuing a probe into a break-in reported at a West Fourth Street residence reported early yesterday afternoon.

Chief Glenn Cannon said a dwelling at 422 West Fourth St. was entered and a rifle and fishing rod taken. The break-in occurred between 10:20 a.m. and 12:20 p.m., the chief noted.

According to Cannon, the thieves took an ax from the basement of the home and used it to knock out a window in the rear door to gain entrance.

The house was ransacked, the police official noted.

Data Kept On Booze, Not Oil

By BILL NEIKIRK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — If oil were liquor, the government would know where to find virtually every drop of it.

The national debate over whether the energy crisis is real or contrived would disappear as fast as a flask of whiskey at a college football game.

The Treasury Department's Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division keeps such close tabs on liquor and beer inventories of distilleries and breweries that it can tell almost instantly how much is stocked.

Energy officials agree that if they had such legal controls over oil inventories there would be no trouble convincing the public the fuel shortage is real.

The division's monitoring of liquor inventories is so extensive that federal employees are stationed in many distilleries and bonded warehouses, keeping the premises under lock and key so that no liquor is illegally removed.

All this is done for tax purposes, to collect the federal levy on beer and alcoholic beverages.

The controls on inventories are more than 100 years old, but have been altered over the years.

In addition to domestically produced liquor and beer, the Customs Bureau keeps accurate records on alcoholic beverages shipped from other countries.

The Treasury's liquor and beer watchers number about 800 nationally. They conduct spot inspections, check records required by law, and handle "work-back" audits to make sure distilleries and breweries aren't misleading the government.

Treasury officials in charge of the program didn't know whether the same kind of inventory controls could be put on the oil industry.

But one thing is for sure. If the nation ever had a liquor shortage, there'd be no question about whether it was real.

Doubts Over Plant Plans

RALEIGH (AP) — A member of the state Board of Air and Water Resources has expressed some concern about Duke Power Co.'s plans for a nuclear powered electric generating station on the Yadkin River in Davie County southwest of Winston-Salem.

Dr. James Wallace, board member, said that under certain conditions, the three-unit plant would withdraw over one-fourth of the river's capacity for cooling and other uses.

The comments came after Duke Power outlined its plans at the March meeting of the board Thursday in Raleigh.

Mary A. Davis, one of four Davie County residents at the meeting, said she shared Wallace's concern over the plant's effects on the river.

Davie County Atty. John T. Brock said, however, that most of the county's residents were not opposed to the nuclear facility.

Duke Power plans to begin construction on the plant next year, with the first unit scheduled to be in operation in 1981.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices fell into a slow but steady decline today in the face of the continued rise in interest rates.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.96 at 873.51, and losers led gainers by close to 2-to-1 in quiet trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said stock prices were yielding to the steady pressure of recent interest-rate increases in the absence of any fresh news to stimulate the market strongly one way or the other.

"Rising interest rates, particularly at these high levels, are a competitive factor to common stocks," said Robert Colin at Faulkner, Dawkins & Sullivan.

Colin also noted concern with "the continued drain represented by inflation."

Federal National Mortgage, down ¾ at 16¾, was the Big Board's most active stock.

Polaroid was off 2½ to 67½ on top of a 10½-point plunge Thursday. Eastman Kodak reported progress toward an instant film to compete in a market now dominated by Polaroid.

Kodak was off ½ at 110¾ after a 2½-point gain Thursday.

General Electric, which recently projected an earnings gain for the current quarter, rose 1½ to 55¾ in active trading.

Dome Petroleum, the American Stock Exchange's most-active issue, was down 2½ to 40¾, and Aquitane Co. of Canada slipped 1½ to 29 after a delayed opening. A Wall Street Journal analysis said Canadian energy issues' reported earnings might suffer from some planned accounting changes.

U.S. Industries, which reported lower yearly earnings Thursday, was down ½ at 7¼.

Airlines and most autos were lower, while steels held steady, and golds gained.

The Amex's 11 a.m. market-value index was off .46 at 99.18. The NYSE composite index of some 1,500 common stocks stood at 51.94, down .16.

Bishop Retires After Verdict

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Roman Catholic Bishop Robert E. Tracy has retired as head of the Diocese of Baton Rouge a week after being fined on drunk driving charges.

Bishop Tracy, 64, was not present Thursday at the announcement of his retirement. Church officials refused to say whether the bishop's recent arrest and fine of $150 had anything to do with his departure.

Bishop Tracy was arrested by state police Feb. 20 and booked on charges of resisting arrest and driving while intoxicated. He refused to take a breath test — which could cost him his driver's license.

Curbing Noise Of Lawnmowers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is starting a program aimed at cutting down the Saturday afternoon roar of lawnmowers in the suburbs.

The General Services Administration, which does the government's shopping, asked for bids on 10,000 new power lawnmowers, requiring that their noise level be reduced by at least 50 per cent compared to current models.

"It is estimated that the innovations stimulated by the experiment could move into the private market within three years after the first bulk purchase by the government," Tuesday's announcement said.

Join Higher Candidate Critical Of Rate Trend Position By Allsbrook

NEW YORK (AP) — New York's First National City Bank, the nation's second largest commercial bank, joined the two-day-old upward move to a 9 per cent prime lending rate today.

The prime rate is the interest banks charge their most credit-worthy corporate customers. It sometimes can signal movements in other bank interest rates, though it is not directly tied to them.

Money market analysts said the new prime was spurred by heavier business demand.

The most recent advance, sparked by increased business loans and higher interest rates in the short-term market, was initiated Wednesday by Bankers Trust of New York, the country's seventh largest bank. Thursday Chase Manhattan Bank and Chemical Bank, two other large New York institutions, joined the move.

In addition to Citibank, the Bank of New York, the Philadelphia National Bank, Central Penn National Bank, Pittsburgh National Bank and Boatmen's National Bank of St. Louis announced a quarter-point increase to their previous 8¾ per cent prime.

GRIMESLAND—Robert M. Brown, a candidate for the North Carolina Senate from the four-county district including Pitt, Martin, Edgecombe and Halifax Counties, took issue today with a stand taken on a proposed coastal planning bill now before the General Assembly taken by Sen. Julian Allsbrook of Roanoke Rapids, a candidate for re-election to the senate from this district.

According to Brown, "Allsbrook has come out against the coastal bill."

"To my knowledge," Brown continued, "he is not speaking for the coastal residents. These are the people who live on the banks and have weathered hurricanes and high water. He is evidently speaking for people from the other type of bands... who seem to want uncontrolled development."

"They do not live on the coast and would be the first to leave in the event of high water."

The candidate continued, "the public interest is not represented just now," by Allsbrook's stand. "For example, about one-third of the shell fish grounds are closed due to pollution. This is a case where private interests damage the public's interest in the bays."

According to Brown, "We are stewards of the land and evidently people like Mr. Allsbrook are in favor of selling the East and Coast to the highest bidder for a few pieces of silver. This type of attitude will kill the goose that laid the golden egg."

Allsbrook's stand against the measure, was voiced in Raleigh Tuesday when he termed the Coastal Management Bill an attack on the American system of private property.

Allsbrook said "The American system of private property is under attack by forces here in Raleigh. You can give away the property rights of these people (coastal residents) by the votes of must 26 people here in this Senate. This land was won with blood, sweat and tears... these people fought and died for it, weathered storms and hurricanes.

"We're giving away something here we can't recapture," Allsbrook said.

The coastal management bill would control real estate development in areas along the coast to protect those fragile areas from being overrun.

The tour is hosted by the Elanco Products Co., makers of Treflan soybean herbicide.

Daniel Edwin Whitford of Route 1, Ernul, was charged yesterday with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident following investigation of a 12:01 p.m. mishap on Arlington Boulevard north of the U. S. 264 intersection.

Officers reported the Whitford car collided with a vehicle driven by Julia Ruth Shaw of 2623 Jefferson Dr. causing an estimated $200 damage to each of the two cars.

No injuries were reported.

Noisy Show For Birds

GRACEHAM, Md. (AP) — Ten million pesky birds will be guests of honor for the biggest sound and light show in Western Maryland since Civil War battles at nearby Gettysburg and Sharpsburg.

Millions of blackbirds, grackles and starlings are roosting in a 60-acre pine grove and sometimes blot out the sun when they swoop down into the trees. Officials hope to scare them away.

They postponed the opening of the show from Thursday to Friday because of rain. Tonight they hope to be able to blast away with fireworks, machines generating high-frequency noises and devices to explode propane gas.

Dr. Kenneth L. Crawford, chief veterinarian for the state health department, told a community meeting Wednesday night that the show might scare some birds into flying as far as 600 miles or only a few hundred yards. The meeting still voted 224 to 4 to try the plan.

Lower Rate Of Delinquencies

CHARLOTTE (AP)—The Mortgage Bankers Association of America says North Carolina homeowners are doing considerably better than the national average in making their mortgage payments on time.

The MBA said South Carolina had 7.96 per cent of its loans past due last Dec. 31, the highest delinquency rate in the Southeast.

Norton Is Not Awed By Foreman

By ED SCHUYLER JR.
AP Sports Writer

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Ken Norton is well aware of the strength of heavyweight champion George Foreman, but he's not awed.

"I respect his strength," Norton said Thursday after finishing serious training for his title bid against Foreman Tuesday night. "But I'm no 98-pound weakling myself."

"Strength is his game," added Norton. "He doesn't try to outthink an opponent. He tries to run over him."

The challenger said he felt that he and trainer Bill Slayton have mapped a strategy to combat the savage punching power of Foreman. Norton also said he has the answer to Foreman's tactic of pushing an opponent with both hands.

"If I get pushed down," said Norton, "I'll tell him, 'You do that again and I'll hit you in the cup (a foul blow).' One good turn deserves another."

"I'm very high for this one," said Norton. "This is for all the marbles."

"He's no friend of mine—he's trying to take the title away," said Foreman, who has virtually ignored Norton any time the two have been together in public.

"He's trying to get that Sonny Liston look," said Norton of Foreman's dead-pan stare. "I think it's very childish. I guess he's trying to psych me in his way. But he isn't. Remember, I fought the champion psycher, Muhammad Ali."

Both fighters resumed public workouts Thursday at the Poliedro, the new indoor arena in which the fight will be held.

Norton had worked out the previous two days in private at the gym of a military school. Foreman had not trained on three of the four previous days.

It was not certain how the champion planned to spend the remaining days before his second title defense.

It appeared the 13,500-seat Poliedro would be sold out, with a live gate of about $700,000, which is what Foreman is guaranteed. The champion also has an option of 40 per cent of all income from the bout, which will be seen on closed-circuit television in the United States and also will be beamed to about 70 other countries.

Norton is guaranteed $200,000 against 20 per cent.

State Has Best Scoring Average

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP)—Notes compiled during the NCAA Basketball tournament, now down to semifinals Saturday afternoon at the Greensboro Coliseum:

Marquette, which meets Kansas in the opener, hit its season high score in its opening game, routing St. John's of Minnesota 91-45.

Kansas opened with a 103-71 rout of Murray State, then didn't crack the century mark until beating Missouri in its regular season finale 112-76.

UCLA hit the century mark five times, with 111 the high.

The 110-100 victory over Dayton in the Western Regional semifinals went three overtimes, however.

North Carolina State, highest regular season scorer of the four, averaged 92 points to 81.6 for UCLA, 76.3 for Kansas and 70.7 for Marquette. The State Wolfpack hit 100 or more eight times, with a high of 113. The team went over 100 in four straight games, against Furman, Davidson, Wake Forest and Duke.

For some of the visitors the Greensboro trip is somewhat of a homecoming.

Al McGuire, Marquette coach, was head coach for seven years at Belmont Abbey College, near Charlotte. He had a 109-64 record there, although his last two teams were 12-37. His first two teams were 45-5. He went from Belmont Abbey to Marquette 10 years ago.

One of his players at Marquette is reserve guard Barry Brennan of Charlotte. He's the son of Tom Brennan, long-time talent scout for McGuire.

Kansas athletic director since last July is Clyde Walker, a North Carolina native. He coached high school football for 16 years in North Carolina before joining the University of North Carolina athletic department staff.

Even UCLA has a Tar Heel touch. Coach John Wooden's mother was born in Winston-Salem and John has been conducting a summer basketball school for several years at Campbell College.

Illinois finished last in the Big 10 and was 5-18 overall.

Meanwhile, nine of 14 Kansas players come from Illinois and five of 14 Marquette players are from Illinois. Nine of 14 UCLA players are from California.

Indiana leads with five contributions to North Carolina State, not surprising since Wolfpack Coach Norman Sloan is an Indiana native. North Carolina and Ohio each supplied three.

There are two Waltons in the tournament.

You've heard of the red-haired one who does his thing for UCLA.

But are you aware that Marquette has a 6-foot sophomore guard named Lloyd Walton?

He's averaged 9.6 points and leads the club with 129 assists.

Coach Al McGuire says, "Lloyd plays very, very hard, but he has to be a little less serious about basketball."

Sports Briefs

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The Denver Broncos and New England Patriots of the National Football League will clash in an exhibition game here this summer, Spokane Professional Sports said Thursday.

A spokesman said the Aug. 31 game would be an Expo '74 World's Fair attraction. The promoters also organized a 1971 game between the Broncos and the San Francisco 49ers which drew a near-capacity crowd of 35,000 at Albi Stadium, where this year's game will be played.

BOSTON (AP) — Hugh Foley, crew coach at Boston University since 1971, will assist in the selection and training of the U.S. National Rowing Team that will compete in the World Championships at Lucerne, Switzerland, late this summer.

Foley, 30, was a gold medal winner in eight-oar crew in the 1964 Olympics at Tokyo.

DALLAS (AP) — Mel Renfro says "it is public knowledge that I am unhappy at the corner position with the Dallas Cowboys," and has announced he will consider a non-playing job with the Portland Storm of the new World Football League.

Renfro told Dallas radio station WFAA Thursday, "If the Portland franchise does come to Portland, I will talk to them about a coaching or administrative type job."

Portland owner Bruce Gelker said he would contact Renfro and planned a statement about the veteran next Monday. Renfro lives in Portland during the off-season.

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Robert J. Allen has been signed as coach of the Philadelphia Wings in the new National Lacrosse League.

Last year, the 39-year-old Allan coached the Peterboro Lakes to the Mann Cup Championship in the Canadian Lacrosse Association finals.

Aaron Continues To Warm For The Chase

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—It wasn't a typical catch for Hank Aaron, but still it brought a little good-natured verbal applause from the Texas Rangers bullpen and prompted the 40-year-old Atlanta Braves staff to doff his cap with a big smile.

Aaron, slowly working his way into shape to continue his assault on Babe Ruth's home run record, got a late jump on a routine fly to left field Thursday and made it look like a spectacular catch with a knee-high swipe of his glove.

A sparse non-paying crowd of old-timers and young children had drifted into Municipal Stadium on a sun-splashed afternoon to watch a "B" team game between the Braves and Rangers.

Aaron, who has appeared in only five of Atlanta's 12 pre-season games, remained at the club's training headquarters while the regulars went to Cocoa Beach to face the Houston Astros. Aaron decided to play in the "B" team game.

The Rangers had a few ringers of their own, including Fergie Jenkins, the hard-throwing righthander who had been a perennial 20-game winner with the Chicago Cubs before being dealt to Texas during the winter.

Jenkins, throwing mostly to the outside corner, got Aaron on an infield popup in the first inning and the Braves slugger pulled an outside slider into left for a single in the third. Aaron fouled out behind the plate in the fifth inning and called it a day.

Aaron, who needs only two home runs to break Ruth's lifetime standard of 714, isn't in condition now but is about where he expected to be.

Atlanta manager Eddie Mathews said before the start of spring training he would let the slugger set his own timetable of conditioning, as he has done in recent years.

"I'm coming along about like I expected," Aaron said. "I'm getting there slowly but surely."

After a winter filled with personal appearances on the banquet circuit, Hank looks as if he's carrying a few extra pounds. He has never had a problem with weight during his career and isn't overly concerned about it at this time.

He was five or six pounds over his normal winter weight when he reported a year ago and had a pretty fair season—belting 40 home runs, driving in 96 and hitting .301, the club's high for regulars.

"I haven't played much," he said, "but I'll start playing almost every day after we get these trips over."

That should begin this weekend after the Braves return from a Saturday night game against Baltimore in Miami.

Miller's Rest Proving Helpful

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

HILTON HEAD ISLAND S.C. (AP) — "The rest was good for me," Johnny Miller said.

"Right now my game is very similar to the way it was after I took that time off in December then came back at the Crosby," Miller continued.

The U.S. Open champion won a record three tournaments in a row after a December lay-off and, after a three-week rest, returned to action here with a four-under-par 67 that gave him the first round lead Thursday in the $200,000 Sea Pines Heritage Golf Classic.

"I don't have any weaknesses in my game now," said Miller, who had a one-stroke advantage over Allen Miller, no relation.

Allen slogged and sloshed through whipping winds and intermittent rains to a 68, three under par on the 6,655 yards of marsh, reclaimed swamp and moss-bearded cypress groves that make up the Harbour Town Golf Links.

John Mahaffey, twice a runner-up this season, rookie Ben Crenshaw and Larry Ziegler followed with 69s on the picturesque layout that ranks as one of the most demanding and exacting the touring pros encounter all year.

Lanny Wadkins headed a group at 70, Australian Bruce Crampton was in another bunch at par 71 and the rest of the game's big guns were strung out further back.

British Open champion Tom Weiskopf had a 72, Arnold Palmer 73, defending title-holder Hale Irwin 74 and South African Gary Player a disappointing 75.

UCLA Not Just Facing State, But All Of ACC

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — When UCLA, now two victories away from its eighth straight national basketball championship, takes the Greensboro Coliseum court Saturday afternoon against North Carolina State, the Bruins will find they are playing the entire Atlantic Coast Conference.

There's a fierce pride among ACC followers in the basketball achievements of its members.

When UCLA dropped two games in a weekend Oregon tour last month, N.C. State usurped the No. 1 national ranking the Bruins had regained in trimming Notre Dame.

State has held the No. 1 spot ever since and two other ACC teams remain in the top 10 nationally. Maryland, overtime loser to N.C. State in the ACC championship game at Greensboro two weeks ago, is No. 4 and North Carolina is No. 10.

This status symbol has caused ACC chests to swell in pride over what followers consider the toughest basketball conference in the land.

When UCLA and N.C. State meet at 3 p.m., EDT, two hours after Marquette and Kansas open Saturday's semifinals, ACC fans in the sellout crowd of 15,761 will forget their season-long differences and join in vocal support of Coach Norman Sloan's team against what they regard as the common enemy.

When N.C. State concluded its season with a 27-0 record last March, the Wolfpack was unable to compete for the NCAA crown due to a one-year probation for recruiting violations.

Again the 'Pack has stormed through to an unprecedented second straight unbeaten conference campaign. The national title is two victories away, but the immediate obstacle is UCLA, the only team to beat State in 56 games over two seasons. That was in December in S. Louis, when UCLA, trailing by one point at the half, buried the Wolfpack in the second half and won easily 84-66.

Three-time All-American Bill Walton, who sat out 21 minutes of that game because of foul trouble, came back with 10 minutes left to spark the Bruins to victory.

Since then the Wolfpack has won 26 in a row and is 28-1 over-all. UCLA, ranked No. 2, has won its last seven and is 25-3.

UCLA carries a string of 38 straight NCAA tournament victories into the game.

Rain Hits Area Games

Rain and wet grounds wiped out most of the sports activity in the area yesterday.

Among the postponed games was a baseball game between the University of North Carolina and East Carolina. No new date has been set for the game as yet.

The Pirates will be home Saturday and Sunday against Shippensburg State of Pennsylvania. Saturday's game will be at 12:30 p.m., while Sunday's will be held at 3 p.m., both at Harrington Field.

Tennis matches delayed included one at Robersonville with Plymouth, and one at East Carolina with UNC-Wilmington. No new dates were set for either.

Three track meets were washed out. Rose's host meet with Wilson was rescheduled for this afternoon. A meet at Eastern Wayne with Conley has not been reset, while an Ayden-Grifton trip to Southern Nash will be made up on April 1.

Jaguars Take Win

PIKEVILLE—Farmville Central took a 5-0 victory over Charles B. Aycock High School in an abbreviated tennis match yesterday.

The Jaguars swept the first four singles matches and were leading in two others when the rains came. Farmville Central had also captured one of the doubles events, to insure the victory.

The win boosted the Jaguar record to 4-2 for the year. They will travel to meet the Rose High School netters on Tuesday.

Summary:

Bill Johnston (FC) defeated G. Nichols, 6-0, 6-3.

Mike Corbett (FC) defeated E. Potter, 6-1, 6-1.

George Perkins (FC) defeated T. Sauls, 6-0, 6-3.

Bill Skinner (FC) defeated A. Smith, 6-0, 6-0.

Johnston-Corbett (FC) defeated Potter-Nichols, 8-2.

Petty's Mark In Jeopardy

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — Richard Petty's Atlanta International Raceway lap speed record was in jeopardy today as qualifying began for the 15th running of the Atlanta 500 Grand National stock car race.

And, strangely, the redoubtable Petty, sedan racing's all-time money and events winner, appeared to be in no position to defend his laurels.

"It looks like I'm going to have to leave the top starting positions to somebody else," the lanky, sardonic Petty said Thursday after watching several drivers outdo him in practice.

Petty was looking mainly at archrival David Pearson, former roadracing star George Follmer, Indianapolis contender Garry Bettenhausen, stock car regular Cale Yarborough, and dashing Darrell Waltrip.

Pearson, winding up the under-sized engine in his Mercury, had recorded a practice lap Thursday at 158.358 miles per hour—a speed considerably better than Petty's old AIR lap mark of 157.163 mph set last July.

Follmer in a Ford, Bettenhausen in a Matador, and Yarborough and Waltrip in Chevrolets also practiced at or above Petty's standard.

"They apparently have found the secret to the new carburetors, and I haven't," said Petty, who already has banked a career $1.4 million in prize money.

Effective with Sunday's $113,000 race, the big stock cars have been grouped in two carburetor categories—small ones for the big engines, and larger ones for the small engines.

The idea is to bring the several types of cars and engines closer together in the matter of speed and reliability.

Petty remains in the big engine class by choice. Pearson and several other top contenders switched to small engines.

Pearson, last year's big winner and national driver of the year, was considered the top pole position candidate as time trials got under way to select the first 20 starters in Sunday's 36-driver lineup. The graying Pearson won both 500-mile races at AIR last year.

"I'm not normally a pole position contender," Petty said as his crew tinkered with his bright red and blue Dodge. "I have always figured it is best to qualify as high as you can without expending the car and then prepare to have something left to fall back on late in the race."

"But I'd like to win the pole position for this race, just to prove that the big engines still have their place despite the new handicaps placed on them," he added.

The race track, valued at more than $4 million, was damaged heavily early Thursday by tornadic winds that struck the Atlanta area. Track officials said most of the $250,000 damage would be repaired by race day.

Gridders Run 50-50 Hurt Risk

By JOHN STOWELL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Your son, the high school football player, runs a 50-50 risk of being hurt at least once during four years of play.

It most likely will be his knee, ankle, head or neck. The culprit probably will be a helmet, shoe or shoulder pad. And the place will be a September practice session, or the second quarter of a game.

The boy will be at the greatest risk if he's an experienced senior in a small school, and the coach is young and never played college ball.

Those are the conclusions reached in a 250-page report on football injuries prepared for the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission by two University of North Carolina researchers.

They followed 8,776 players in 43 North Carolina high schools through four seasons and found that 4,287 of them, slightly less than half, were injured.

Carl S. Blyth and Frederick O. Mueller, both of whom hold doctorates in physical education, said there is no reason to suspect their findings could not apply to the 1.2 million boys playing football at 30,000 public and private secondary schools, another 200,000 playing in community and social clubs and, to some extent, to another 70,000 young men on college and university teams.

The researchers conceded that "football is a hard, body-contact sport in which injuries and fatalities will never be eliminated, regardless of what is attempted to make the game safer."

But injuries and deaths can be sharply reduced by well-trained coaches, good equipment, better supervision and instruction and safety-minded game officials, they said.

They zero in on equipment, which they found to be a frequent contributor to the three out of ten injuries caused by "a blow from an object."

"The data clearly indict helmets as the one piece of equipment most often responsible for the injuries in this category," they said.

Next most dangerous were shoes and shoulder pads.

Freshman's Shot Lets Boston College Live; Utah Advances

By ANDY LIPPMAN
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Freshman Paul Berwanger was the last person that Boston College's Jere Nolan wanted to pass to with the final seconds ticking off on the Madison Square Garden clock and the Eagles one point behind. But there was no time to be choosy and Berwanger came through, scoring with two seconds remaining to give Boston College a 76-75 victory over Connecticut Thursday night and a semifinal berth in the National Invitation Tournament.

Boston College will play Utah, which downed Memphis State 92-78. "I have nothing against Paul," said Nolan after the game, "but he's just not the guy you want to take a shot like that. Even in practice, I don't pass to him unless he's right under the basket."

"But I saw that he had a small guy guarding him and I knew he'd be able to get off the shot."

The Eagles had to come back from a 17-point deficit, the result of a 25 per cent shooting performance from the field in the first half.

The Boston College offense in the first half was mostly at the free throw line. Only Bob Carrington, who scored four of the Eagles' eight field goals, provided much offensive punch.

But in the second half, Carrington was joined by Mark Raterink and the Eagles, helped by Connecticut's sudden chill at the foul line, came roaring back to tie the game with three minutes remaining on a basket by Will Morrison.

A basket by Jim Foster with 12 seconds remaining put Connecticut ahead 75-74 and set the stage for the game-winner by Berwanger, a nephew of the first winner of the Heisman College Football Trophy, Jay Berwanger.

Utah Coach Bill Foster almost ran into the same problem against Memphis State. Up 17 points in the first half and 10 at halftime, the Utes saw their lead dwindle and then disappear when they ran up against a zone defense which shut off Mike Sojourner, who had scored 16 points and grabbed 10 rebounds in the first half.

"The zone slowed us down," said Utah Coach Bill Foster. "We're a club that likes to run the whole game."

"Actually we didn't see that much of the zone this season."

Utah star Ticky Burden finished with 29 points while Tyrone Medley had 26 and Sojourner finished with 19.

Memphis State, which caught the Utes at 65-65 before falling back, was led by Bill Cook who finished with 23 points and Dexter Reed who had 22.

Purdue and Jacksonville will face each other in the other end of the Saturday afternoon semifinals. Purdue ousted Hawaii 85-72 while Jacksonville slid by Maryland-Eastern Shore 85-83 Tuesday night.

Blue Showing Form That Won His Award

By JOHN NELSON
AP Sports Writer

Vida Blue, an American League Cy Young Award winner who has been trying since 1971 to prove it wasn't a fluke, is picking up where he left off last year in search of his rookie form.

Blue went to the mound in the sixth inning and retired 12 straight batters to lead the world champion Oakland A's to a 7-4 exhibition baseball victory over Milwaukee Thursday.

Blue, who had an off season in 1972 after a long hold out over his contract, fanned three batters in his last four innings on the hill. Tim Hosley and Bill North gave the A's the runs they needed with a two-run homer each.

In other exhibition games, Pittsburgh split its squad to take a 7-4 victory over the New York Yankees and drop a 10-9 decision to Kansas City, Houston edged Atlanta 6-5 in 12 innings, Boston got by Montreal 7-6 in 10 innings, St. Louis shut out Detroit 2-0, Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 5-3, Minnesota eked out a 7-6 victory over the Chicago White Sox, San Francisco blanked Cleveland 5-0, the Chicago Cubs beat San Diego 9-8, and Los Angeles defeated Baltimore 3-2.

Dave Parker, an outfielder who's playing first base for the injured Bob Robertson, hit two solo home runs and a triple to pace the Pirates by the Yankees. Ken Brett, who gave up one run in the second and three in the third, was credited with the victory for seven innings on the mound.

In the other half of the Pirates' twin bill, Kansas City's rookie outfielder, Al Cowens, singled in a run in the ninth inning to give the Royals a one-run victory.

Milt May singled with two outs to give Houston a 12-inning decision over Atlanta in another cliff hanger.

Craig Caskey's wild pitch in the 10th inning allowed Dick McAuliffe to score from third, lifting the Red Sox over Montreal.

Mike Anderson accounted for three of Philadelphia's runs with a homer in the fourth inning.

Minnesota got a clutch homer from Tony Oliva in the seventh inning, breaking open a tie game, and then held on to beat the White Sox. Tom Bradley and Jim Willoughby allowed seven hits between them for the shutout and Cleveland gave up the two winning runs — both unearned — in the second inning on an error by Dwain Anderson.

John Grubb and Willie McCovey both committed eighth-inning errors that led to four Chicago runs.

No Sympathy For The Weary

By The Associated Press

The Golden State Warriors have an excuse; they're tired.

"Everyone's tired when they're losing," Buffalo Coach Jack Ramsay said with a marked lack of sympathy Thursday night after his Braves' 115-102 victory — which seriously damaged the Warriors' chances of reaching the National Basketball Association playoffs.

"The schedule has gotten to us. You could see that. They just 'outkicked' us," losing Coach Al Attles said after the only NBA game of the night.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky defeated Memphis 121-103 and San Antonio beat Virginia 95-81.

Attles' team, seemingly in command of the Pacific Division race four days ago, has dropped three straight decisions to fall 1½ games behind Los Angeles. The schedule has assigned the Warriors 14 games so far this month, including six in the last eight nights.

The Lakers can clinch the only open playoff berth by winning their last three games, starting with the one tonight against Chicago.

Garfield Heard made two free throws and a field goal in the final minutes, giving him 21 points for the game, after the Warriors had chopped the Buffalo lead from 23 points to six.

Warriors' Cazzie Russell and Butch Beard had 19 points each in the second half and shared game scoring honors with 27 apiece.

Randy Smith scored 23 points to lead the playoff-bound Braves, and Jim McMillian followed with 22. The team shot 54 per cent from the field, including 75 per cent in the opening period.

Colonels 121, Tams 103

The coaches wouldn't stay out of the stands and the fans wouldn't stay in them during Thursday night's wild American Basketball Association game in Memphis.

Memphis lost, as usual, but at least Coach Bill van Breda Kolff, suffering through a woe-filled season with his Tams, found out that the fans are on his side ... some of them, anyway.

One of them, unnerved by watching the Tams lose to Kentucky for the 23rd straight time, dashed out of the stands during the third quarter and slugged referee George Conley.

Conley was able to continue but the fan was escorted off the floor. Van Breda Kolff missed seeing the punch; he was thrown out of the game in the first quarter.

Spurs 95, Squires 81
James Silas scored 24 points and Swen Nater added 18 for San Antonio while George Irvine netted 18 for Virginia. The win lifted the Spurs into a tie with Indiana for second place in the West.

A 4-cyl. CAPRI 32.4 mpg

A 6-cyl. Mercury COMET 26.6 mpg

In a 379-mile highway test through Arizona and California, supervised by General Environments Corporation, a Comet and a Capri with standard engines and transmissions delivered the kind of gas mileage you'd like to get. Each car was taken at the equivalent of 6,000 miles and driven by non-professional drivers, never exceeding 50 mph. You yourself might actually average less, or for that matter, more! Because mileage varies according to maintenance, equipment, total weight, driving habits and road conditions. And no two drivers, or even cars, are ever exactly the same. Stop in at your Lincoln-Mercury dealer's Mileage Headquarters. Catch yourself a gas-slingy small car!

The Worry Clinic The Slave To Habit Is Loser

Clara faces a "love Saboteur," as do thousands of other very attractive girls. But she, alone, must resolve to break her slavery to the villain and marry the Prince Charming. Husbands are far more exciting than Clara's villain!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-583: Clara J., aged 22, graduated from Nursing School. "Dr. Crane," her boy friend protested, "Clara is a gay conversationalist."

"She makes friends readily with everybody, young and old, male and female."

"Besides, she is a beautiful girl, too, and with the most spontaneous sense of humor I have ever seen in a woman."

"She is almost a female Bob Hope, for she can concoct revolting jokes out of ordinary events."

"But she is a cigarette addict. And though she has promised me several times she would quit, she sneaks cigarettes behind my back."

"Then she vigorously denies ever having taken a puff."

"But like most smokers, she doesn't realize how she reeks of tobacco."

"I can smell it on her breath 24 hours after her last cigarette."

"Now I've told her I will never marry a girl who smokes, and have given her one more month before our engagement is off."

"Dr. Crane, do you think she will really quit her cigarettes?"

Love Saboteurs

Clara's boy friend is a handsome young doctor, athletic, popular and fond of children.

He and Clara should have made a very happy couple and been a jolly team for the next 50 years.

But Clara developed the nuisance habit of smoking, due to the advertising pressure on modern youth.

It foists the habit on teenagers in the early years of high school, for that is when young people are like sheep and easily stampeded into joining the "herd."

"Wall Street Journal" ran an ad for new subscribers, pointing out that it was appealing to the discriminating Americans.

"Eagles don't flock" was the headline.

Alas most young people and probably 80 per cent of adults haven't the courage, plus logic, to resist stampede tactics.

Which is why Brutus and Cassius sold the city mob on their assassination of Caesar, until Marc Antony reversed their stampede psychology.

And why the crowded courtroom of Pontius Pilate voted 100 per cent to crucify Jesus.

Fads constantly produce stampedes of youth in every generation.

For youth are basically afraid of being spotlighted, so they rush to meld with the herd, hoping they will thus attain anonymity.

When I was stationed at Smith College in 1927, the fad of having women smoke cigarettes was first being launched on a nationwide campaign.

It was economically a smart move by the tobacco advertisers, for previously only 50 per cent of the public was a potential market for cigarettes, though all 100 per cent saw or heard the ads.

And the college girls at Smith were ridiculous in their attempt to smoke.

They felt it was the "mod" thing to do at that time.

Clara is a 2-legged "sheep" in the continuing stampede of youth.

Women's Libbers may say "Amen" to her refusal to quit tobacco at her boy friend's insistence.

But her best chance for happiness on this planet Earth will literally go up in smoke if she doesn't put first things first.

Anybody can quit liquor, tobacco, drugs, overeating and homosexuality IF.

And that big "IF" means if they resolve 100 per cent to stop being slaves!

So send for my booklet "How to Break the Tobacco and Liquor Habits," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

PBS Is Trying Satellite Relay

By JAY SHARBUTT, AP Television Writer, NEW YORK (AP) — The Public Broadcasting Service is running a unique television experiment that's literally out of this world. And it could radically change the way PBS stations get national programs.

The agency is using a Canadian satellite to relay TV shows from Canada to selected PSB stations hooked up to a mobile ground terminal. The stations, 18 in all, are in the Northeast and Midwest.

None of the programs are rebroadcast. The experiment, which began at WETA in Washington, D.C., Feb. 19 and will end May 3 at KDIN in Des Moines, Iowa, only aims at checking the quality of the satellite signal at the various locations.

The test was ordered in January as part of a study on the use of a satellite as a possible alternative method of linking ing PBS' 244 stations. The stations, like their commercial network counterparts, now get most of their national programs over costly land lines.

The Canadian satellite transmission system, in operation since early 1973, is being used because the first U.S. domestic satellite won't go into operation until this summer, PBS officials say.

The ground terminal, a 25-foot dish-shaped antenna mounted on a van, is being shifted from station to station for the test. Today it's scheduled to be at WEDH in Hartford, Conn.

But if the satellite system is adopted, PBS officials say they'd probably try to get a ground terminal installed at each public TV station or at the headquarters of state public TV networks.

How's the quality of the satellite signal so far?

"Very good, bearing in mind the satellite is beamed toward Canada and not the U.S.," says John Ball, a PBS engineering executive who is overseeing the satellite study.

If PBS adopted the system, how long would it be before public TV stations get their shows by satellite?

"It's conceivable that we could be on a satellite in three or four years, depending on how fast the PBS board wanted to go and whether it was economically attractive or not," Ball said.

Windmill To Power Car

SPRINGDALE, Ark. (AP) — Rex Curtis of Springdale and four Oklahoma men have developed a car they say could help solve the fuel shortage. Their slogan is: "We go when the wind blows."

The electric car, which the men said will be ready for trial runs in about 45 days, will use a windmill to charge batteries.

They gave these details: When the driver parks for any length of time while the wind is blowing, he will pull a lever and a windmill will pop up on top of the car. It will operate a generator to charge the batteries. A small electric motor will retract the windmill when not in use.

A small, lightweight gasoline engine will charge batteries while the car is being driven or when the wind is not blowing.

The car should be able to go about 50 miles without a recharge at speeds of 30 to 50 miles per hour, Curtis and his code-signers said.

Curtis said he and his colleagues plan to manufacture the pop-up windmills to be sold with motors and all other accessories required to convert any small compact car to an electric car.

The Oklahoma men involved in the venture are Everett Wellman of Oklahoma City, a mechanical engineer; William R. Avey of Oklahoma City, owner of a tool and grinding service; Rex Carmichael of Yukon, an automobile dealer and body shop owner; and Marvin McInnis of Oklahoma City, head of an engineering firm.

Nuns Managing Bar In Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A community of nuns is managing Ireland's newest bar. It's also the country's first bar in a hospital.

"Medically, I think it is a good thing to have a bar in the house," said Sister Theophane Collins, the spiritual director of the new 150-bed hospital near Newmarket-on-Fergus, in County Clare.

The auction was straightforward. North's hand was worth just one move toward game, and since South could have held less and had a fit in partner's suit as additional incentive, he was fully justified in going on to game.

West led the jack of hearts, and since there was no point to holding up, declarer won the ace. The lure of the spade finesse proved irresistible.

Rep. Speros Old Tobacco-Chewer

By REESE HART
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — Rep. Gus Speros, D-Robeson, is such a versatile legislator he can chew tobacco and bubble gum at the same time.

Rose Mary Fails Avoid A Subpoena

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rose Mary Woods, President Nixon's private secretary, has failed in her efforts to avoid a subpoena to testify under oath before the Senate Watergate committee.

She appears today before the committee, which has just completed two long days of interrogating C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a close friend of the President.

Rebozo was asked by reporters Thursday night whether a discrepancy exists between his story and that of Miss Woods.

"I don't think there is any discrepancy, but when you are asked to relate details of matters that occurred years ago there are bound to be — quote — discrepancies — unquote," he replied.

Rebozo, a Florida banker, has said he told Miss Woods to instruct his lawyer in the Nixon administration he had received a $100,000 contribution for the President's 1972 campaign from Howard Hughes, one of the world's wealthiest men.

Rebozo has said he told Miss Woods to instruct his lawyer in the event of his death to turn the money over to the re-election committee.

There have been reports Miss Woods has said Rebozo did not tell her the money was from Hughes or totaled $100,000.

Rebozo was questioned by the committee for more than 12 hours Wednesday and Thursday.

Many of the questions were said to have centered on allegations that the $100,000 Hughes payment was linked with efforts to resolve possible federal antitrust actions against the billionaire's Las Vegas gambling and hotel interests.

French mutton production is lagging and France imported 52,000 tons during 1973 to meet demand, officials said.

Speros, 50, serving his third term, has been chewing tobacco since he was seven. "I like it better than ice cream—or anything," he confided in an interview.

Better than sex? "At times, yes."

Years ago when the North Carolina General Assembly met in the state Capitol, tobacco chewing was an art. Every legislator had his own cuspidor beside his desk.

Except for one belonging to Speros, there are no cuspidors in the House and Senate chambers of the ultramodern State Legislative Building.

Speros, a husky, likeable Greek, has about 25 cuspidors, including three in his legislative office. One is so small it will hold only about three squirts. He had a medium size in his top desk drawer which he frequently uses. If he is in social company and doesn't want to spit, he can swallow the juice with no ill effects.

Speros said he wanted his constituents back home to know he does more as a legislator than simply chew tobacco and bubble gum. He has sponsored many bills and is chairman of the House Conservation and Development Committee. He has the ability to round up votes on a bill when needed and is vice chairman of the important

Ayden School Inspection Set

AYDEN—An inspection tour of the Ayden Grammar School Building will be held Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., it was announced by Frank Adkins, spokesman of the Concerned Parents Group.

The purpose of the tour is to give Ayden area parents and citizens an opportunity to visit the building in an effort to bring public awareness of its state of condition," Adkins said.

House Calendar and House Rules committees.

Speros carried a pocketful of bubble gum all the time and hands it out to other lawmakers, legislative secretaries and pages.

During a recent House committee session Speros threatened to cut off free bubble gum to one House member if he voted against a Speros bill being debated.

Speros, a native of Maxton, grew up in a restaurant and considers himself an expert cook. His father, now 82, immigrated to America from Greece and operated a restaurant for many years.

At one time Speros was a heavy cigarette smoker, consuming four packs a day. Smoking was such an obsession that he would go to bed, often with a freshly opened pack of cigarettes, and find several cigarettes gone when he awoke the next morning. He was subconsciously smoking in his sleep.

When he quit smoking in 1958, he wrapped a rubber band around a crush pack box cigarettes and placed it on the head of his bed. During the night he woke up trying to get the rubber band off the cigarettes.

He recalled that his dad gave him his first beating at the age of seven for lying about smoking.

"I've never told him a lie since," Speros said.

Pays A Price For Jaws Wired Shut

GIBRALTAR, Mich. (AP) — Mrs. Debi Horn, the 229-pound woman who had her mouth wired shut to lose weight three months ago, says she also has lost some privacy and the right to visit her mother-in-law.

A case of jangled nerves from a constantly ringing telephone even put her in the hospital for a few days last week.

But Mrs. Horn, who is down to a slim 184 pounds, vows she will wear the wires for another two months to reach 140.

"My mother-in-law said she thought this was stupid," Mrs. Horn said. "She didn't want me to ever come over to her house with my braces on."

But that isn't the worst part. "Women were calling me all the time," she said. "I had to take the telephone off the hook to go to sleep. There were calls up to one o'clock in the morning."

"I was real upset by last Friday, so my doctor put me right in the hospital and wouldn't let me have any calls or visitors."

She also said she has been bombarded with requests to appear on local and national television talk shows.

"I'd start to say I really didn't feel like it, but they'd talk nice to me and I'd always end up saying yes. I have no spine," she said.

Even the American Dental

Society has gotten into the act by taking a stand on the wiring issue. The society said in a recent statement that a patient's physician, not a dentist, should decide whether the method should be used. Mrs. Horn's mouth was wired shut by her oral surgeon.

Mrs. Horn says: "The people I love — my husband, my parents — they're proud of me, and that's all that matters. I don't care what anybody else thinks."

Approve Branch

The State Banking Commission has approved the application of Branch Banking & Trust Co. of Wilson to establish a branch at West End Circle on Memorial Drive here.

BB&T reported that operations will begin in an existing bank-equipped building at West End after approval has been obtained from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

The bank opened its first Greenville office at 301 Arlington Boulevard on Feb. 20.

BB&T operates 66 offices in 38 cities and towns throughout the state.

Cutworms Found In Tobacco Plant Beds

Cutworms are appearing in Pitt County tobacco plant beds for the first time in the memory of County Agent Ed Yancey.

"I've never known them to get to the plants in the beds before, but we've had some reports from throughout the county, and the Extension Service in Raleigh says they're showing up in other counties as well," Yancey said. "Farmers should be observing their beds closely, or they may be destroyed."

According to Dr. Robert Robertson, an entomologist with the State Agricultural Extension Service, this is the prescribed treatment:

Use Trichlorfon (Dylox), five per cent commercial or homemade bait—four to five pounds. Scatter it evenly around the margins of the bed, in the walkway and in open space. Do not put bait on leaves, because it will burn them. Dovers will probably have to be pulled back to do the job effectively.

Homemade bait may be prepared by mixing together in a drum three and three-fourths pounds of wheat bran and one-fourth pound of Dylox 80 SP, he said.

Persons having questions may call the Pitt County Agricultural Extension Office, 758-1196.
