The Redevelopment Commission has officially transferred ownership of the Town Common in Shore Drive to the City of Greenville.

Billy B. Laughinghouse, Commission chairman, delivered the deed for the property, which covers some 18 acres along the Tar River, to Mayor S. Eugene West this morning at city hall.

Laughinghouse reported that the deed conveyance represents one of the "final steps to restore the historic Town Common, a major objective of the Shore Drive Urban Renewal Plan."

The chairman pointed out that the Redevelopment Commission work in the Town Common, which consisted of grading and construction of the Tar River bulkhead, is completed. The city is currently in the process of carrying out some $130,000 in improvements including landscaping, walk ways and lighting.

Laughinghouse explained that the Shore Drive Project involved a 67-acre slum area including 236 dilapidated structures and resulted in clearance of "the worst slum area in our city." This area, he said, produced $3,000 tax revenue annually prior to renewal and upon completion of the program next year, will produce an estimated $25,000 annually for the city.

He said that $1.5 million of new private construction has been completed in the Shore Drive area, another $675,000 of new development is under construction, and an additional $1.5 million is in the planning stage.

Laughinghouse said that West "should be congratulated for his long devotion to the urban renewal effort in Greenville." He said that this action illustrates the success of the program, and alone, would justify the city's commitment.

West said that the Town Common would be used as a park-type recreation area by Greenville citizens and the students of East Carolina University and he expressed his appreciation to the Redevelopment Commission for its efforts in conveying the deed to the city.

Thais Salute Green Berets

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The Thai army today honored the U.S. Army Special Forces at an airport ceremony as the last 300 Green Berets left the country.

The ceremony marked the end of 14 years of Special Forces activity in Thailand. Based at Lopburi, 100 miles north of Bangkok, Green Berets trained Thai soldiers in special warfare techniques.

About 35,000 U.S. servicemen are still stationed in Thailand.

Blood donations are badly needed to bring up Pitt County's quota.

The Bloodmobile hours are from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. tomorrow at the Greenville Moose Lodge and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Wednesday at Ayden-Grifton High School. The goal is at least 116 pints per day, according to Red Cross Executive Secretary Mrs. Ruth Taylor.

Brezhnev Optimistic For Nuclear Arms Limitation

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
MOSCOW (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today opened talks with Leonid I. Brezhnev, and the Communist party chief said he was optimistic about prospects for another Soviet-American agreement to limit nuclear arms.

Asked by newsmen if he expected to reach another arms agreement with Nixon then, Brezhnev replied: "I take an optimistic view of that. We have made a very good beginning on that process."

He said relations between the two superpowers "are good" but "there is much work to do at this time."

Asked to characterize the situation with regard to East-West detente, he said the European security conference in Geneva is "dragging its feet a little" because "the opponents of detente are introducing petty matters that have no bearing on detente."

Nixon Given More Time On Subpoena

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — At the request of the White House, special Watergate prosecutor Leon Jaworski today gave President Nixon four more days to respond to a subpoena demanding additional Watergate evidence.

The subpoena, issued March 15, called for a response today. But, over the weekend James D. St. Clair, President Nixon's chief Watergate lawyer, asked Jaworski for more time and the prosecutor extended the return date to Friday.

In a brief statement, Jaworski's office said, "In agreeing to the White House request, Mr. Jaworski emphasized the grand jury's need for the material covered under this subpoena."

The prosecutor's office refused to give details about the material subpoenaed. And, in a related matter, lawyers for two former White House aides said they will not go to the Supreme Court to try to block transmission of the secret grand jury report on President Nixon's Watergate role to the House impeachment inquiry.

Budget Session Slated Tonight By School Board

The Greenville City Board of Education will meet tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the first of three workshop sessions on the 1974-75 school budget. The meeting will be held in the board room at the Central Administrative Offices on Fifth Street.

Two other workshop sessions on the budget have been scheduled by the Greenville City Board of Education. The Apr. 1 session will focus on instructional services, transportation and auxiliary services, and current expense income. Apr. 8 board will consider local capital outlay expenditures and income.

Formal adoption of the 1974-75 school budget, which will be presented to the Pitt County Commissioners for funding, will take place at the regular monthly board meeting scheduled for Wednesday, Apr. 17.

Topics to be considered at this evening's meeting will be under the general control, operation of plant, maintenance of plant, and fixed charges sections of the current expense budget.

Time at the beginning of the meeting will be allotted for any public expressions on the budget items under consideration. The work session will follow the public input.

Deputy presidential Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren refused last week to say whether the President planned to comply with the prosecutor's subpoena. He said it was being handled routinely by White House lawyers.

A spokesman for Jaworski said the subpoena did not involve the Watergate cover-up or White House plumbers cases, in which indictments recently were returned.

That means the material sought probably relates to investigations of the ITT antitrust settlement, dairy industry political contributions or the 18.5-minute erasure found on one subpoenaed tape.

If the President refuses to comply with the subpoena, Jaworski could go to court to ask for an order directing the President to turn over the subpoenaed material.

The White House, meanwhile, has denied a published report that it would give to the House impeachment inquiry tapes of 42 presidential conversations the committee has been trying to obtain.

Other subjects to be discussed are the East-West talks in Vienna on a mutual reduction of military forces in Central Europe and the security conference in Geneva in which the Soviets are seeking Western recognition of their hegemony in Eastern Europe.

Plan Tuesday Decision Over Bicentennial

A final decision on whether or not to have a bicentennial celebration in Greenville is expected to be made Tuesday night at a 7:30 public meeting at city hall.

Dick Kiernan, temporary chairman of the bicentennial committee, said that a representative of the Rogers Co. will be on hand again to discuss another company proposal for the event. The gathering will

Sleet, Freezing Rain Greeted Area Residents

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Greenville area residents awoke this morning to find some very un-Spring like weather—primarily in the form of sleet and freezing rain.

Spring officially arrived last week. But from the weather this morning people were hard-pressed to believe it.

The icy precipitation began well before dawn and bits of ice were still falling late this morning, although the temperature prevented it from accumulating on streets and highways.

City and county school officials said the sleet and freezing rain had caused no problems for buses or other school operations. And Mayo Allen director of Public Works for the City of Greenville said his department had not faced any problems because of the precipitation. He noted, however, that a crew will be placed on call status late today if the icy conditions continue.

Spokesmen for the State Highway Commission reported no problems with roads in the county, with the exception of a few bridges in the Northern part of the county. They said a few bridges in the Bethel area were developing a "little ice" and noted that sand was being spread on them.

The Greenville Utilities Commission weather station this morning reported .29 inches of precipitation—including sleet and rain—fell in Greenville during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today.

The high temperature for the same 24-hour period was 75 degrees recorded yesterday, while the low temperature was recorded at 34 degrees. At 8 a.m., the temperature stood at 37 degrees.

The Tar River level stood at six feet, some three feet above the normal 3 feet average.

She wore a formal length bouffant ivory illusion veil attached to a Camelot cap trimmed in ruffled cluny lace and pink satin ribbon. The bride carried a cascade of pink baby's breath, white carnations and pom poms tied with pink and white streamers.

Mrs. Shelby Briley, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a floor length gown of baby blue polyester crepe, gathered at the empire waist. The bodice featured a band open throat neckline enhanced with re-embroidered chantilly lace. Her headpiece was a bow of white satin ribbon with floor length streamers. She carried a white long-stemmed mum tinted pink, accented with blue and white streamers.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Judy Manning of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Linda Sawyer of Ayden, sister-in-law of the bridegroom. Their gowns were shades of darker blue and their headpieces were identical to that of the honor attendant. Their long-stemmed white mum featured blue and white streamers.

Miss Beverly Dawn Farmer, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She wore a full length dress of baby blue polyester crepe with a gathered waist, puffed sleeves and a high neckline enhanced with white lace. Her headpiece was identical to the bridesmaids' and carried a white basket of blue and white pom poms with streamers of blue and white.

The bridegroom's brother, Joseph Lee Sawyer Jr., of Ayden, was best man. Ushers were Robert Dail Briley, brother of the bride, and Ray Manning, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. The ring bearer was Tony Lynn Brannon, who carried a white satin pillow encircled in lace.

Mrs. Briley selected a formal gown of rose crepe with an empire waist and lace sleeves. She wore matching accessories and a corsage of white pom poms with pink ribbon. Mrs. Nancy Taylor of Ayden directed the wedding and Mrs. Jeanette Leary presided at the register.

For a wedding trip to Williamsburg, Va., the bride changed into a light blue and white two-piece suit and navy accessories. She wore the corsage lifted from her bouquet.

The couple will reside near Greenville.

He Enjoys Christmas The Entire Year

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: For the last two years, my husband and I and our little son have been spending the Christmas holidays with my family (parents, sisters, brothers, etc.).

On Christmas morning everyone gathers in the living room and we all open our Christmas gifts under the tree. Everyone, except my husband. He refuses to open his presents at that time. He takes them home—still gift-wrapped, and opens one or two a week. It takes months before they're all opened. He says if he spreads the excitement over a long period of time he enjoys it more than opening 15 or 20 gifts in a half hour and then experiencing a big letdown. He prefers to prolong the joys of Christmas as long as possible.

I think it's rude to make people wait months to be thanked for a Christmas gift. [As of today, he still hasn't opened mine!] He says they are his gifts and he can open them whenever he feels like it. What do you think of this weirdo!

NEW MEXICO WIFE

DEAR WIFE: His behavior is somewhat strange, but he's right, they're his gifts to open whenever he feels like it. By now your family must be accustomed to this peculiarity. But it might comfort you to know that there's at least one more "weirdo" who likes to prolong the joys of Christmas. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: There is a nut who lives across the street from us who still has his Christmas ornaments up! People come from all over just to drive by his house and laugh! It's not just a decorated tree out in front either. He's got Santa and the reindeers on the roof, and his whole front porch and lawn are decorated with every kind of Christmas ornament you can imagine.

Wouldn't you think by this time he'd take that silly looking stuff down? When the neighbors see him, they say, "Merry Christmas" [in March!] and he responds with, "And a happy New Year!"

Print this, he might take the hint.

Steel Cans Are Being Recycled

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 3 billion steel cans annually are recovered magnetically for recycling from municipal solid waste in 22 cities.

Salvaged steel cans are recycled in four markets. Steel mills use them to produce new steel. The cans are used in a chemical process to recover copper from low grade ore. Dettinning plants separate the steel and tin so that both metals can be recycled. Scrap cans are also used in the production of ferroalloys which are specialty metals.

Premier Is Shaken Up

PERTH, Australia (AP)—Prime Minister Gough Whitlam was pelted with debris, punched and kicked during a wild election rally here today. He was shaken up, but not seriously hurt.

A half-full soft drink can hit him on the back of the head, and Whitlam, redfaced and visibly shaken, called back at the crowd, "Cowards! Cowards!"

Whitlam described the rally as "vicious and ugly," the worst in his career.

A crowd of about 7,000, mostly farmers who had driven hundreds of miles, booed, jeered and repeatedly hurled missiles at Whitlam as he tried to address them.

Whitlam was in Perth to support the Labor party candidates in the state election March 30.

The farmers arrived about noon to tell Whitlam they were tired of his policies which they claimed were not aimed at helping them. The Whitlam government recently removed a $12 per ton subsidy on phosphates.

"Within minutes they can switch East Europe's power supply to provide, for example, Poland with electricity from Bulgaria," said Stefan Mishev, Bulgarian-born Director of the Central Dispatching Office (CDO) Management Board.

From their office overlooking one of Prague's busiest shopping centers, Mishev and his technicians control an electricity network stretching from East Germany to beyond the Russian Urals.

Founded in 1962 to assure sufficient electricity supply for the Communist countries of East Europe, it links the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Last year, mutual exchange of electricity to compensate brief power shortages in East Europe's energy block totalled 23 billion kilowatt hours.

"Besides the possibility of mutual energy supply, the system enables the member countries to reduce their electricity reserves to a minimum level," Mishev said.

Most important source of energy in Europe's East is still coal. But the number of nuclear power plants and hydro-electric plants in Eastern Europe is growing.

"Electricity consumption, which is now about 300 billion kilowatt hours per annum, will increase by seven to eight per cent annually during the next years," Mishev said.

In Czechoslovakia, two nuclear power plants equipped with Soviet water reactors fueled by moderately enriched uranium are to be built by 1980. New power plants are also under construction in other East European countries.

Up to now, the Central Dispatching Office is cooperating only with two non-member states, Yugoslavia and Austria, "but we do not exclude the possibility of enlarging power exchange with West European states," Mishev said.

OXNARD, Calif. (AP)—Actor Walter Brennan is recuperating at his cattle ranch after spending five days in a hospital here for a series of tests for emphysema.

Doctors said the 79-year-old actor's condition improved enough that he was sent home Saturday to his ranch at Moorpark, 40 miles northeast of Los Angeles.

Brennan starred as Grandpa McCoy in the television series "The Real McCoys" and won Academy awards as best supporting actor in three films from 1936 to 1940.

He and his wife, Mary, have been married 53 years.

Coastal Planning Is Necessary

Sen Julian A. Allsbrook lashed at the coastal planning bill in the State Legislature last week as an attack on "the American system of private property."

The senator, who represents Pitt County along with Edgecombe, Martin and Halifax told the Senate, "The American system of private property is under attack by forces here in Raleigh. You can give away the property rights of these people by just 26 people here in this Senate. This land was won with blood, sweat and tears. . . these people fought and died for it, weathered storms and hurricanes."

"We're giving away something here we can't recapture."

We frankly cannot understand what the senator is talking about. The bill would control real estate development in coastal areas through a 15-member commission made up primarily of coastal residents. They would approve, disapprove and modify permits for developments in so-called fragile areas of the coastline.

That is just what municipalities and counties have been doing in North Carolina for many years.

Greenville, Pitt County and practically all other cities and counties would be in sad shape if they had not had planning and zoning laws.

We have all seen what bad development can do to North Carolina's beaches, since there are already enough examples up and down our coast. What North Carolina must do now is develop planning regulations which are firm enough to bring about orderly development of our coastal areas, development which will do as little harm to the environment as possible.

The coastal planning bill had already been watered down by amendments to suit every special interest group that might want an way around good planning. Frankly it is our hope that the Senate will not pay any attention to Sen. Allsbrook's emotional and short sighted appeal of last week. If we are to save our fragile coastline, the Legislature must get started now on coastal planning. If this bill is killed during this session, it could be a number of years before anything is done on this matter—probably when it is too late.

The Earmarks Of 'Old South'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

The uncertainty of coping politically with Watergate in the South was behind the evasion by State Atty. Gen. Robert Morgan at a recent press conference here when asked about President Nixon's continuing troubles.

Democrat Morgan, the most likely successor to retiring Sen. Sam Ervin in this year's election, experienced no such trouble reacting to Mr. Nixon in 1972 when Morgan was reelected attorney general and the President carried North Carolina in a landslide. Morgan then did not hide his admiration for Mr. Nixon's successful Vietnam policy. But at the press conference here, he bailed out, lamely contending he could not talk about the President because—someday, maybe—he would serve in the Senate as a juror in an impeachment trial.

Morgan bailed out because neither he nor anybody else is sure of the 1974 Nixon impact in North Carolina or any Southern state. While the President's popularity has not reached the depths in this region that it has elsewhere, his stigma still might help reverse a growing trend toward a two-party North Carolina.

More than any other Southern state except Virginia, North Carolina had followed the classic formula for Republican victory in Dixie: liberals winning Democratic primaries and then losing to conservative Republicans in November. But that formula, which helped elect a Republican Governor and Senator in 1972, is now threatened by Watergate—and Bobby Morgan.

Morgan, 48, is a throwback to shrewd courthouse Democratic politicians of the old one-party South—canny, nonideological and supremely flexible. He broke into statewide politics in 1960 managing the unsuccessful campaign for Governor against racial moderate Terry Sanford by Dr. I. Beverley Lake, now a state supreme court justice and then a major segregationist voice for the South. Later, Morgan defended the notorious law banning Communists and fellow-travelers from speaking at state universities here.

"We can't forgive Morgan," one North Carolina liberal told us, "but I expect most everybody else has forgotten."

Indeed, with segregation a dead issue, Morgan has concentrated on cultivating a neo-populist image as a consumer advocate. As for old feuds, Morgan supported Sanford (now president of Duke University) against George Wallace in the 1972 North Carolina presidential primary.

But Morgan is keeping far away from the liberal label that destroyed former Democratic Rep. Nick Galifianakis (now opposing Morgan in the May 7 Democratic primary) in his losing 1972 Senate race against Republican super-conservative Jesse Helms. Morgan declined to campaign for Galifianakis against Helms because he supported end-the-Vietnam-war resolutions in Congress. In contrast, Morgan wrote the President in 1972 commending his Vietnam policy.

That attitude is not so hopelessly out of date in the South today as elsewhere. Uncle Sam Ervin may have made himself a folk hero on the West Side of Manhattan because of the Watergate hearings. But, politicians here generally agree, he hurt himself back home. When Ervin found that Morgan was spending so much money that he clearly intended to run for the Senate, Ervin pulled out rather than undergo a grueling primary race at age 77.

Since Ervin's withdrawal, Morgan has finessed the Nixon question. He has systematically thrown out anti-Nixon speech drafts from one liberal-leaning research assistant. Nevertheless, he hopes the President's decline will undercut Republican morale here.

It has eliminated the potentially strongest candidate, Rep. Wilmer (Vinegar Bend) Mizell. After consulting both his Bible and some gloomy polls, ex-baseball pitcher Mizell decided to stick to his safe House seat. The Republican nominee will be political neophyte William Stevens, a Broyhill Industries (furniture) executive and brother-in-law of Rep. James Broyhill.

All this has the earmarks of Democratic politics in one-party days: an ideological neutral winning the Democratic primary without trouble and then going on to vanquish an unknown Republican challenger.

But the past has by no means returned intact. Galifianakis's late, unexpected entry into the primary makes life more difficult for Morgan. Whatever President Nixon's slump in the state, Republican Gov. James Holshouser is well-respected, well-liked and intent on (Continued on page 5)

Prison Reform First Concern

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—Retiring State Senator Edward Knox has a vision.

He hopes to see the day come when North Carolina deals with criminal first offenders in such a fashion that he, as a parent, "would not be embarrassed to send one of my children to the state for help, should the need arise."

Knox, D-Mecklenburg, is ending his stay in the Senate. But before going out, he hopes to see established a prison reform commission.

North Carolina is still in the Dark Ages, he insists, and he vows to commit his political savvy and legal knowhow to prison reform if the commission is set up. "That's where I'd like to spend the next year or two—perhaps I can head up that commission," he said.

Knox is upset that North Carolina has well over 11,000 prison inmates—ranking fifth among the 50 states in total prison population; fourth in the nation in terms of numbers of felons in prison.

Worried Situation But his main concern is the first offender, and as a trial lawyer back home, he has seen some horrendous cases which cause his troubled mind over prisons.

"We place sinful characteristics on going to prison. There's the big institution, with bars and guards and green uniforms. Once committed, a person can never overcome that stigma."

But, if we had rehabilitation facilities in an atmosphere of learning on a mini-campus setting, then we might avoid so many of our people committed to prison for the first time becoming hardened criminals."

Knox is convinced that when a "tender" first offender winds up rubbing shoulders with the hardened criminals, the resulting education of a criminal is inevitable.

His ideas do not embrace "coddling" the already hardened criminal. "Take that hard man, and put him under the dogs. That's perhaps necessary. But we take the young man and make him hard. You cage up a friendly dog long enough, and he'll get mean."

"But if we can turn this system around and take that young first offender early enough and remove the stigmas, then we can solve some problems," Knox believes.

He scored the dozen or so studies already made on prison reforms, characterizing them as piecemeal; and added that any changes have been slow to come and in little bits.

"I want to study the whole thing, with a totally new look at handling prisoners. This doesn't mean you can't be tough with those who need toughness."

Why So Many "But there is obviously great concern over the large prison population. Why do we have so many locked up?"

"And secondly, there are new and innovative ways to handle the problems. And before we build a bunch of new, expensive, high-rise buildings with more cells to hold more prisoners, we need to adopt some plan for the next two to three decades."

The present system in North Carolina, he argued, is "economically the worst system in the world, locking people up and keeping them sitting around all day under guard."

"And there's no doubt, we have bitterly failed for the past 150 years."

The heart of the problem lies in a classification system for people sentenced to prison, Knox said. Basically, there should be three classifications of people: the hardened criminal; the person who can be rehabilitated; and the "sicks," those with mental problems, alcoholics, sex deviations.

Knox sees the need for a special atmosphere for what he terms the "sicks," strong methods to deal with the hardened, and sweeping new approaches to rehabilitation.

At the end of the battle, Knox hopes to see a reform system in which a person in trouble can get help—not a bad reputation.

He knows this is no glamorous role; that most citizens would rather not think about prisons and prisoners.

"But I challenge any Tar Heel to walk through Central Prison and come out the other side with his head held high. That's something to be ashamed of."

THEN THERE'S THE GUY WE DIDN'T GET RID OF-

By ART BUCHWALD

Rely On Arab Know-How

WASHINGTON—By the 1980s, if the predictions come true, the Arab oil countries will have all the money in the world. They will have to invest this money, and it is not inconceivable that they could own most of the large corporations in the United States.

Like any businessmen, they will demand a good return on their money, and I can imagine a meeting of the president of the Abu Dhabi General Motors Corp. of America (ADGMCA), a subsidiary of the Abu Dhabi General Motors Corp. International, and the sheik.

The president, a citizen of the United States, has been called back to Abu Dhabi to explain why profits have been off.

The sheik is in an angry mood.

"I have just seen the figures for 1982. They're disgraceful. I am the laughingstock of the Middle East Stock Exchange. The Libyan Bell Telephone Co. of America shows a 10 per cent increase in profits. The Saudi Arabian Coca-Cola Co. of the United States is up 15 per cent and the sheik's Sears-Roebuck Corp. is predicting record earnings. What have you been doing over there?"

The president of ADGMCA is on his knees bowed in front of the sheik. "Forgive me, sire. We thought we'd have a good year, but then you people imposed your 1,896th oil embargo and auto sales dropped."

"That wasn't my fault," the sheik says. "The Standard Oil Co. of Saudi Arabia has been putting the squeeze on gasoline. They think if they can cut down production they can get $25 a gallon for their gas. But if they don't watch it they're going into a price war."

"I've ordered my Abu Dhabi Royal Shell Co. to hold the line at $23 a gallon. There is no sense driving people away from the pumps. But to get back to your problem. When I bought General Motors two years ago as a present for my wife, I said I wouldn't tinker with management as long as I could get a decent return on my investment. There were some people here who thought I should send over Abu Dhabi tribesmen to run the show. But I said we should

Other Editors Say Impeachment Rules

(Greensboro Daily News)

Disgruntled Tar Heels sometimes accuse the General Assembly of always being at least one generation behind the times. State Sen. C. B. Deane Jr., D-Richmond, introduced a bill the other day that tends to refute that blanket charge. His bill would rewrite the North Carolina law enumerating the causes for impeachment.

The existing law says that state officials are subject to impeachment for corruption, mental or physical inability to do the job, and for conviction of any criminal offense that "would tend to bring his office into public contempt." But the law bears down hardest, and in considerable detail, on state officers who embrace the Demon Rum. It provides for impeachment for habitual drunkenness, intoxication while engaged in the exercise of one's office, and drunkenness in any public place.

Sen. Deane would change that to a more laconic version: "Every officer in this state shall be liable for impeachment for malfeasance in office, corruption, neglect of duty, or other crime or misdemeanor."

Apparently, the new version would broaden the grounds for impeachment through the use of language open to various interpretations. At the same time, it would take some of the theoretical heat off the hard-drinking state official. It also seems to soft-pedal the question of mental competence—a standard qualification for holding office that if applied to the legislative branch might generate a series of incestuous impeachment proceedings that could tie up the state government for the rest of the century.

Altogether, the effect of the proposed revision is not immediately clear. In any case, if it is carried out and if it ever becomes necessary to invoke it, we hope the legislature will not apply to itself the federal interpretation the then House Minority Leader Gerald Ford set forth in a speech in 1970 when he put into motion the impeachment proceeding against Associate Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas. If applied to state government, Mr. Ford's interpretation would mean the governor, lieutenant governor, and any civil officer of the state could be removed from office at the pleasure of a majority in the House and two-thirds of the Senate for anything the legislators considered offensive from verbosity to halitosis. We doubt that North Carolinians are yet ready to grant their legislators such broad powers.

Arabs Review Effort

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH Associated Press Writer

TUNIS, Tunisia (AP) — Arab foreign ministers begin meetings in Tunis today to review efforts by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and President Anwar Sadat of Egypt to stop the Arab-Israeli shooting on the Golan Heights.

Tunisian Foreign Minister Habib Chatti, chairman of the Arab League meeting, said the ministers would also discuss a wide range of economic issues. They will discuss the conference between the Arab states and the European Common Market planned for the end of the year, and the special United Nations Assembly on raw material problems opening in New York April 8.

Several Arab governments, notably Libya and Iraq, were expected to be represented by their ambassadors to Tunisia instead of their foreign ministers, demonstrating their disapproval of Sadat's efforts to achieve a political settlement with Israel.

But the Egyptian president continued to encourage Syrian President Hafez Assad to accept a disengagement agreement with Israel.

The semi-official Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram said Sadat and Kissinger were continuing secret contacts on this subject during the American's visit to Moscow this week. Arab sources said they expected Kissinger to ask the Soviet leader to join in pressing Assad for a disengagement agreement.

The sources said Assad personally favors such a move but has run into vigorous objections from radical members of his government. Egyptian Defense Minister Ahmed Ismail Ali will visit Damascus later this week to strengthen Assad's hand, the sources added.

The original purpose of the Tunis meeting was to prepare for an Arab summit conference some time next month to endorse the various peace moves.

King Hassan II of Morocco invited the summit to meet in Rabat, his capital, and Sadat quickly endorsed the invitation. His endorsement was generally viewed as an affront to President Moammar Khadafi of Libya, who has been a bitter enemy of the Moroccan monarch since 1971 and is not likely to go to Rabat. The atmosphere for a summit became even less favorable earlier this month when Libya and Syria refused to endorse the lifting of the oil embargo against the United States.

Morocco and Egypt have now proposed postponing the summit until September, apparently in the hope that Syria will have negotiated a disengagement agreement with Israel by that time. Arab League sources in Cairo said Egypt urged the delay because of continuing Libyan opposition and because Sadat is anxious to avoid widening the split in the Arab ranks.

Insurers Know Disaster Costs

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Even before ecology became paramount, insurers knew that civilization and nature often mixed poorly, especially when drainage areas were paved for parking and factories were built on flood plains.

When available, flood insurance sold at forbidding prices, and most agents and homeowners and businessmen didn't even consider such protection. Insurers claimed it was a losing matter.

That notion persisted among businessmen and homeowners, even though in recent years a federally subsidized program makes low-cost flood insurance available to communities that take certain precautions against inundation.

And so, when nature and civilization clashed two years ago few homeowners or businessmen had any insurance at all. More than $1.7 billion of damage was done by floods in the East, and only a small fraction was insured.

The destruction in Rapid City, S.D., from another flood provides stark details:

In that Black Hills community about 700 homes, 150 business structures and 500 mobile homes were destroyed. Hundreds of other homes were damaged.

After the rains ceased it was learned that only 27 homes and 2 businesses had flood insurance. The total loss was about $100 million, but only $166,451 was covered by flood insurance.

It became clear that few people in Rapid City knew that their community was eligible for low cost flood insurance, subsidized by the government and sold through company agents in the same manner as any other insurance.

Since the disasters of two years ago flood insurance has caught on. In November 1970, only 42,900 policies existed, providing $673 million of coverage. As of Jan. 31, 316,000 policies provided $5.5 billion of coverage.

The 1972 floods spurred many flood-prone communities to qualify for the National Flood Insurance Program. From May 31, 1972 to May 31, 1973, the number of qualified communities jumped to 2,275 from 1,331. It now exceeds 3,000.

To become eligible, communities must agree to zoning and land use restrictions — to restrain civilization from encroaching on the water's rights, so to speak. Requirements met, almost any agent can provide the coverage. As a result of legislation signed Dec. 31, 1973, the limits of coverage have been greatly enlarged.

Single-family homes may be insured for up to $35,000, double the earlier limit. Two-family to four-family structures and small businesses may be insured for up to $100,000, compared with $30,000 previously.

The residential policy costs 25 cents for each $100 of insurance, with the minimum premium pegged at $25. For the maximum coverage of $35,000 a homeowner would pay $87.50. The nonresidential rate is 40 cents a $100.

Contents also may be insured, in residential buildings for a maximum of $10,000 at 35 cents for each $100, and in non-residential structures for up to $100,000 at a 75 cents per $100 rate.

Perhaps most important, the new legislation requires the Department of Housing and Urban Development to identify flood-prone areas by July 1. Previously the initiative was left to the communities, and many didn't exercise it.

Moreover, communities so identified will be required to participate in the flood insurance program and to adopt and enforce adequate flood ordinances.

Strength For Today

"THY SERVANT WAS BUSY"

There is an interesting story told in the twentieth chapter of First Kings of a man who was set to guard a prisoner, and through neglect allowed him to escape. Instead of watching the prisoner the guard busied himself with a number of matters important to himself. When reproved for his conduct, the guard replied in an off-hand manner, "While thy servant was busy here and there, lo, the prisoner was gone."

Here was a man who failed to see the difference between matters of primary and secondary importance—who allowed the incidentals of life to distract him from a thing of much greater significance.

The applications of this story are legion. "Here and there" type of things so often take up our time that the real issues of life are forgotten and the excuse we offer is the same as that offered by the heedless guard, "While thy servant was busy here and there, lo, the prisoner was gone."

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mariner 10 scientists are waiting for images of Mercury to grow larger in pictures sent back to earth by the space probe which is hurtling ever closer to the tiny planet.

Another 36 photographs were clicked off by the spacecraft's powerful television cameras Sunday and relayed to the control center at Jet Propulsion Laboratories here.

However, the photographic images were still too small to answer any questions about the nature of this innermost planet of the solar system. Mercury has remained a mystery because it is obscured by the sun and thus difficult to observe from earth.

A JPL spokesman said investigators had been looking at markings, in particular a bright spot, which appeared in the photos and seemed to be associated with features on the surface of the tiny planet.

But he added that none of the scientists was willing to speculate what the markings indicated.

Another 36 photos were to be transmitted by Mariner today as it hurtled to within 2.2 million miles of Mercury. It is scheduled to skim past the planet Friday less than 600 miles above the surface, giving man his first close-up look.

Last month Mariner made a fly-by of Venus and took more than 3,500 pictures of the cloud-covered planet.

Stern Steps After Revolt

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — President Idi Amin, Uganda's military strongman, says he will deal severely with soldiers who tried to overthrow him during the weekend.

The aborted coup, which the government radio said was led by the army chief of staff, was broken by loyal forces in bloody fighting Saturday night and early Sunday at several military camps in the Kampala area.

The death toll was not immediately known, but the government said a number of soldiers and civilians were killed.

Radio Uganda said the uprising was led by Brig. Gen. Charles Arube and that he killed himself when his attempt failed at dawn Sunday. The radio said Arube spread a false report that an invading force was trying to kill Amin, and this touched off the fighting.

The broadcast said Amin told loyal troops a special commission will investigate the rebellion and those implicated will be dealt with severely.

Reports said the Makindye military police headquarters and prison, about four miles from central Kampala, were destroyed in heavy fighting in which tanks took part. Troops from the loyal Mulire Battalion were sent there.

Some sources speculated that the Mulire Battalion had put down an uprising by the military police, but this could not be confirmed.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist

It's time to plan your 1974 vegetable garden if you haven't already. You will be better satisfied with your garden if it is planned before the first seeds are put into the ground.

George Hughes, North Carolina State University Extension horticulture specialist, emphasizes that the plan may not be very meaningful unless it is written down.

He suggests that you show the location of each crop and the amount to be planted. On an average, about one-tenth acre per person should be sufficient. However, take into consideration your intentions to freeze or can, and plant accordingly.

If possible, the garden site should be rotated from year to year to help prevent buildups of insect and disease pests. If a rotation of the site isn't possible, then rotate your vegetables within the garden. And here's another planting tip: plant perennial crops such as asparagus, rhubarb and berries along one side of the garden. They will be out of the way when you plow and prepare for the annual spring planting.

Another good idea to assure a steady contribution from the garden is to make successive plantings. Follow early vegetables such as peas, beets, kale, mustard and lettuce with crops such as tomatoes, corn, beans and okra.

Grape vines, rose bushes and other plants that will be sprayed with materials not labeled for vegetables should be planted at a safe distance from the garden.

When you're ready to go to the seed store, buy vegetables by their variety names. There is as much difference between varieties of tomatoes and sweet corn as between breeds of dogs and horses. Some varieties of tomatoes, for instance, are resistant to wilt while others are not. It will pay you to get the wilt resistant type if there is any evidence at all that wilt is present in your garden.

It is best to buy seed or plants from a reputable firm and stick to those varieties recommended for your area. Try new varieties on a limited scale until they prove to be better than the old ones.

There is information available free from your County Agricultural Extension Service office on approved varieties, best planting dates, plant spacing, fertilizer needs and other helpful details.

POOR HOG-CORN PRICE RATIO IS NOT ALL BAD. The Hog-Corn Price ratio, which is frequently used as an indicator of hog profits, currently suggests a bleaker profit picture than probably actually exists.

The U.S. hog-corn ratio currently is a dismal 12.8 compared with 25.5 a year ago. This ratio refers to the bushels of corn that can be bought with a hundred pounds of live hog. Currently this ratio is the lowest since the summer of 1971. However, the price of corn has changed from $1.40 per bushel to $2.85.

This corn price difference explains why producers are probably in a better profit situation now. The hog-corn ratio reflects only the hog-corn relationship, not the relationship between hog prices and all cost of hog production.

For example, figure a hog-corn ratio of 13 and $2.85 per bushel corn. A producer would have $37 to cover all production costs per hundredweight of hogs (13 x $2.85). With the same price ratio but $1.40 corn, we would have $18.20 per hundredweight.

A 40-pound pig requires 10 bushels of corn to reach 220 pounds. Corn cost would be $28.50 and 14.00 at the two price levels.

In the first case the $37 gross return minus $24.50 corn cost leaves $12.50 to cover all other costs. With the $18.20 gross return and $14.00 corn cost only $4.20 remains to cover other costs. While non-feed costs have gone up they have not increased enough to drastically change the present cost from what it has been.

At present prices for feed, total cost of hog production for many producers are probably in the $30 to $32 per hundredweight range. As a result, current and expected hog prices provide a moderate return for most hog producers.

More Irregularities Turn Up In Milk-Fund Story

By BROOKS JACKSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The unfolding story of the milk-fund affair has turned up new irregularities in the 1972 campaign finances of several Democrats, including Rep. Wilbur D. Mills and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey.

Associated Milk Producers Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative, paid $137,000 in corporation funds to help buy costly computer-mail lists for Humphrey, Sen. James Abourezk of South Dakota, Gov. Robert Docking of Kansas, Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma, and the Iowa Democratic party of Sen. Harold Hughes.

announced himself as an active presidential candidate. The payments are outlined in a report commissioned by the cooperative's board, which was obtained from court records.

According to officials of the Minneapolis computer-mail firm of Valentine, Sherman and Associates, the milk producers paid:

- $50,000 for a list of rural Iowans. The Iowa Democratic party, which requested the list, paid $10,000. Sen. Hughes said he and state party officials didn't know the money was from company funds.

He said the cooperative offered to help pay for the list after he declined an offer of a contribution to his unannounced presidential campaign.

- $7,000 for a list for Abourezk, who was then running for the Senate seat he holds now. Abourezk paid $13,000. He said he hadn't been told the milk producers used corporate money, and would have refused it if he had known.
- $30,000 for a list requested by Gov. Docking of Kansas. The state party failed to pay its half, and the list wasn't completed. Docking's Press Secretary James C. Shaffer said Sunday night the governor would have no comment.

- $25,000 for a list sought by Gov. Hall of Oklahoma. This project also was abandoned after the state party failed to pay its share. Hall could not be reached immediately for comment.
- $25,000 for lists for Humphrey's 1972 presidential primary campaigns in Maryland and Florida. The Minnesota Democrat said through a spokesman he could shed no light on the payment. Humphrey referred newsmen to his former campaign manager, Minneapolis lawyer Jack Chestnut, who also said he didn't know about the $25,000.

Associated Milk Producers is the same group under investigation, with two other dairy cooperatives, for allegedly trying to pay $300,000 to a Nixon fund raiser to have an antitrust suit killed.

After the milk producers paid for all the lists, the Valentine, Sherman firm falsified correspondence and invoices covering the transactions. The firm says the forgery was the coop's idea, but the milk producers blame the computer-mail outfit.

Coop officials originally claimed they wanted to share costs of the lists so they could have access to them for possible future use in case they entered the insurance business, according to a report to the board by lawyer Edward L. Wright, a former American Bar Association president. This might have established a legiti-mate business purpose for the corporate payments.

But the coop never dealt in insurance and never used the computer lists, Wright reported.

The Wright report also says the cooperative paid the $750 monthly salary of Mrs. Betty Clement Bullock, who worked at the Mills headquarters in Little Rock, helped promote a Mills appearance at an Iowa farm rally, and later worked at the Mills headquarters in Washington, D.C.

Also paid by the milk producers was Joe P. Johnson, who was an advance man for Mills. His salary wasn't specified.

The report didn't estimate the total salaries paid for Mills' work. But it said the coop paid a total of $5,411 in rent on the Washington apartments for Johnson and Mrs. Bullock, for their leased furniture, and for a lump sum settlement to end the rental arrangement at the end of January 1972. Mills announced his active candidacy Feb. 11, 1972, after months of saying that he was merely available for a draft.

A Watergate grand jury has heard testimony about the payments. Federal law prohibits use of corporation funds to assist campaigns.

And the giant dairy cooperative reportedly used company funds to pay salaries and expenses, including apartment and furniture rent, for two key workers in the draft-Mills campaign in the last months of 1971 and the early weeks of 1972, before the Arkansas Democrat

War Against Bird Plague Is Continuing

GRACEHAM, Md. (AP) — Maryland health officials are considering using infra-red equipment to detect how many birds remain in a pine grove here after a weekend blitz to scare them off.

Shotguns, fireworks and amplified noise exploded around the site in an attempt to roost the millions of starlings and grackles from the 60-acre nesting place they've inhabited since last fall. Their droppings are several inches thick in places and officials fear a health hazard.

Dr. Kenneth L. Crawford, Maryland veterinarian who heads the bird chasing project, claimed 90 per cent success after the weekend campaign. "Each night fewer birds return," he said Sunday.

But some Graceham residents claim the birds wait until after dark, when the noise has stopped, to return to their roosts.

"The birds are getting in there late at night," said Lester Sovocool, the ambulance chief in the tiny western Maryland town. "I know because I see 'em coming out in the morning."

Health department spokesman John McAvinue said efforts are being made to get infra-red equipment to search out the pines at night and get an accurate count of the number of birds remaining. The procedure, used in Vietnam to search out enemy snipers, finds targets by zeroing in on their body heat.

Meanwhile, fresh explosive attacks were planned for Monday and Tuesday nights.

Police said the alleged hit and run vehicle was located about 12:30 a.m. today parked at 1608 South Green St. with about $300 damage done to it.

The vehicle was registered to a Washington, D. C. area resident.

Investigation of the collision is continuing.

Extra care in engineering... it makes a big difference in small cars.

Have you ever wondered why most gas mileage claims never mention the small cars from Chrysler Corporation?

Only Chrysler Corporation reports its own small-car gas mileage against competition!

It's one thing to test your cars, by themselves, under ideal conditions—it's quite another thing to ask an independent testing organization to test your cars under normal driving conditions, with non-professional drivers, through traffic and on the highway—and include your competition.

That's what the United States Auto Club did for Chrysler Corporation; and the results really mean something.

First, while some may get more and some less, these results give you some idea of the kind of mileage you can expect to get while driving sensibly either in the city or on the highway. Second, they tell you how the small cars from Chrysler Corporation—Dodge Dart and Plymouth Duster—measure up against the competition.

Read these results: The more you know about Chrysler Corporation's engineering features, the more intelligent choice you'll be able to make when buying a small car.

Results:

Raleigh's Victory Celebration Turned Into Frenzy

RAUCOUS CELEBRATION—This was part of the scene late Saturday night near the N. C. State campus after State basketball team beat UCLA in NCAA semifinal game earlier in the day. Police finally used tear gas to disperse crowd. (AP Wirephoto)

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina State's double-overtime basketball win over UCLA in the NCAA semifinals touched off a victory celebration in Raleigh that lasted into early Sunday morning and ended with police using tear gas to disperse a frenzied crowd.

Officers said 31 persons, including nine university students, were arrested in the area surrounding the N.C. State campus here. One streaker was arrested and charged with indecent exposure. Several other streakers were not apprehended, police said.

Various charges were filed against those arrested, including unlawful assembly, public intoxication, disorderly conduct and assault on an officer. One person was charged with simple possession of marijuana, police said.

Police said those arrested ranged in age from 17 to 33 and were released on bonds of from $25 to $300 or to the custody of their parents.

Minor injuries were reported among the crowd that police estimated at between 1,000 and 3,000.

Raleigh Police Chief Robert E. Goodwin said at least seven city policemen were injured. Three required medical attention, including one officer who was struck in the head by a flying beer bottle. No policemen were hospitalized.

The students began the victory celebration with fireworks, shouting and automobile horn honking on Hillsborough Street near the school's Bell Tower soon after State beat UCLA, 80-77, at Greensboro, N.C., Saturday afternoon.

State students who watched the basketball game on TV in the student union building started hugging each other. Others yelled while some wept openly, worn out from the strain of the overtime contest.

At the campus, and all over Raleigh, automobile caravans started forming. As they drove, the occupants held out their hands with one finger pointed up, shouting, "We're No. 1."

All over the city there were reports of fireworks, horns blowing and intersections blocked. Buses, police cars and ambulances joined in.

The main victory march was the traditional one from the State campus to the capitol, several blocks away. Several state students said it was the biggest ever.

Most of the arrests came after midnight when police blocked off the area near the Bell Tower to clear clogged traffic, then to disperse the celebrants with riot sticks and tear gas.

No estimates of property damage were available late Sunday, but most of the damage appeared to be to police cars—smashed blue lights, missing antennas and slashed tires.

Police units in riot gear arrived in the campus area for the first time about 10 p.m., Goodwin said. The merrymakers shouted at police to clear out and let them have their fun.

N.C. State Chancellor John T. Caldwell arrived on the scene shortly after 10 p.m. and urged the crowd to go home or move onto the campus from the street. Students in the crowd implored Caldwell to persuade the police to leave, newsmen at the scene reported.

The police left a short time later but returned about 12:45 a.m.

Goodwin said police entered the situation only when it appeared to be getting out of hand. He said there were numerous complaints of the crowd beating on cars, blocking traffic and disturbing neighborhood property owners. One complaint was from a couple dragged from their car, he said.

"People were being harassed as well as police officers," Goodwin said. "People's lives were in danger from time to time as well as property."

"There were fights going on from time to time with bottles involved. People were squaring off with broken bottles at one another. The situation was getting out of hand," he said.

When police arrived for the second and final time, they blocked off traffic in the area, rerouting it onto other streets. Then they used a bullhorn to warn the celebrants they were engaged in an unlawful assembly. Police told the gathering to clear out or they would be arrested.

At about 1:20 a.m., with about 90 officers in the area, police formed a line and made a sweep with a tear gas machine.

The officers had to dodge beer bottles and other debris which was thrown at them, the police chief said. Several people were arrested as police made their sweep.

By about 2:30 a.m., except for scattered passersby, the streets were clear and the crowd was gone.

Goodwin said the confrontation marked the first time in about 10 or 15 years that police had to use crowd control measures as strong as tear gas in the campus area.

Refineries Shut Down

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Oil refineries shut down in Belgium today as the war between oil companies and the government over price hikes was reaching its peak.

Gas stations also started to close down, either empty or in protest against the government, but also against oil companies which refuse to raise their income.

Only the Texaco refinery in Ghent was still operating, because it has to supply the Scandinavian market. Other companies stopped their imports and shut down their refineries.

In some areas, nine out of 10 gas stations closed. Priority users like hospitals and doctors were served but some schools and even hospitals were said to have their tanks nearly empty.

A special government meeting was called after a meeting with oil companies and trade unions failed to grant companies their requested $50 a ton hike for refined products.

Powerful trade unions are either refusing the hike or asking for state control on oil companies in return for a smaller hike. Some unions also want the state to set up a state-owned oil refinery.

TWUA Calling For Major Wage Boost

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Declaring that it is time for the southern textile industry to share its profits with its workers, the Textile Workers Union of America has called for a 15 per cent wage hike in southern plants.

Sol Stetin, general president of the union, said workers need the raise to restore their buying power, which has been cut by inflation, and "to enable them to share in the good life that millions of other Americans are enjoying."

"The industry has gone through a very good year," he said. It has taken full advantage of the shortages in fibers and the huge demand for textile products to jack up its prices and boost profit margins.

Stetin issued his statement as some 150 delegates from 50 union plants in the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee met Sunday in the union's annual southern wage conference.

The delegates voted to instruct union locals to reopen contracts with their companies as soon as possible.

Most TWUA contracts in the South permit either party to call for a reopening after the agreements have been in effect for six months.

Stetin said, "The latest available figures show that for the year ending in September 1973, the industry racked up profits of $841 million—a gain of 32 per cent over the preceding year—after paying taxes."

He said inflation had eaten away the seven per cent wage hike negotiated for workers last fall.

The union held its southern wage conference in March this year instead of July as usual because, "We cannot wait four more months until the annual date," said Stetin. "The time to start the ball rolling is now."

The TWUA represents about 50,000 southern textile workers.

N.C. Counts 7 Highway Deaths

By The Associated Press North Carolina's highway death toll continues to run well below last year's figure, according to the state Highway Patrol.

During the past weekend, seven persons were killed in traffic accidents, the patrol said, bringing the year's total to 297. This time last year, 350 persons had lost their lives in traffic accidents in North Carolina.

All seven victims were killed before midnight Saturday, the patrol said, and no reports of fatal accidents Sunday had been received by late night.

Patrol officials previously attributed the decline in highway deaths to slower speeds and less driving due to the gasoline shortage.

The victims included two Rockingham women who were killed in a head-on collision Saturday night four miles north of Ellerbe. They were Rena Gause, 35, and Sarah Taylor, 31. Officers said the car in which the women were riding skidded across the center line and struck another vehicle.

Stanley Alpin, 45, of La-Grange died when his car ran off a rural road in Lenoir County and overturned.

Ernest Howard, 7, of Rt. 2, Aulander, died when his go-cart was run over by a car in Her-ford County. David Gentry, 20, of near Elkin was killed Saturday when his motorcycle collided with an oncoming car on Elkin's main street.

Milton Williams, 28, of Goldsboro, was killed when his car overturned 1.1 miles west of Goldsboro.

Bobby Collins, 23, of Maysville, died when his car struck a tree on a road in Onslow County.

The Associated Press weekend traffic death count runs from 6 p.m. Friday until midnight Sunday.

Claim Inflicting Heavy Losses On Khmer Rouge Auto Maker Plans Hikes

BY MATT FRANJOLA Associated Press Writer PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Government troops closing on Oudong killed 173 Khmer Rouge insurgents in two days and nights of heavy fighting a mile from the provincial capital lost a week ago, Cambodian army officers in the field reported today.

The battle around the Chet Déi Thmei temple east of Oudong was the most significant government advance in the drive to recapture the town 23 miles north of Phnom Penh.

Government forces from Phnom Penh who had been landed on the banks of the Tonle Sap river pushed out of their beachhead with 20 armored vehicles and ran into an insurgent bunker complex near the temple Friday night.

As government artillery pounded the Khmer Rouge, the government column split into two arms, one going north and the other south to attack the flanks of the rebels in a pincer movement.

After overrunning the rebel positions, the armored vehicles began moving toward the encircled remnants of the Oudong garrison holed up in the Tep Pranam pagoda half a mile closer to the town.

Another government force landed by helicopter a mile north of Oudong six days ago has been unable to cross a river heavily defended by the insurgents, field reports said.

A third government column has fought its way from Phnom Penh's northern defense line 10 miles south of Oudong to an area five miles south of the town, field reports said.

Oudong has little strategic value but is important to the Cambodians because it was the royal capital in the 17th century. The Khmer Rouge controls sizeable stretches of territory north and south of the town including the highway from Phnom Penh to the rice fields in northwest Cambodia.

In other war action, government troops at coastal Kampot, 85 miles southwest of Phnom Penh, advanced a mile north of their defense line and killed 30 rebels, the Cambodian command reported.

In South Vietnam, government and Communist troops engaged in heavy fighting in parts of the Mekong Delta during the weekend, the Saigon command reported. A commune claimed 53 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed in three battles. Government losses were put at three dead, 37 wounded and eight missing.

Auto Maker Plans Hikes

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors says it will increase retail car and truck prices an average $28 in the next several days.

The giant auto maker cited higher delivery and production costs for the price hike, its third since the 1974 model year began last September.

The GM announcement Sunday came after the Federal Cost of Living Council approved a $50-per-car increase for American Motors. The council indicated in its ruling Friday that it would not challenge a Chrysler increase of $28, effective today.

The council also said that a commitment made by three of the makers last December to limit price hikes for 1974-model vehicles did not cover adjustments for destination charges.

General Motors said Sunday that $15 of the new $28 retail increase will go for destination charges.

Ford said recently it has no plans to seek a further price increase on 1974-model cars. The firm increased destination charges $25 per vehicle on March 12.

All four U.S. automakers are expected to raise prices again when 1975 models debut in September.

Charge Driver In Car Wreck

Judy McRoy McKeel, 22, of Shady Knoll Trailer Park was charged by police early Sunday with driving under the influence and operating left of center following investigation of a 1:03 a.m. collision at the intersection of Ninth and Cotanche Streets.

Police reported the McKeel car collided with a vehicle driven by Danny Robinson Haddock of Route 1, Winterville, causing an estimated $950 damage to the Haddock car and about $850 damage to the McKeel vehicle.

No injuries were reported in the mishap.

Ivy Pledge Club Sponsors Event

The Ivy Pledge Club of Alpha Kappa Alpha, Inc., at East Carolina University is sponsoring an "odds and ends project."

The event is being held at St. Gabriel's Catholic School for grades one through six.

The project, which began on March 13 and will end on March 28, is designed to develop creativity.

IN THE RUNNING—Dr. Donald Coggan, left, archbishop of York, and Dr. Trevor Huddleston, right, suffragan bishop of Stepney in London, are among the churchmen most likely to replace Dr. Michael Ramsey, the archbishop of Canterbury, as head of the Church of England when Ramsey retires next November. Stock And Market Reports RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina hogs were steady today with only a few markets reporting. Tops of 33.50-34.50 at Kinston and Lumberton; 32.50-33.00 Rocky Mount; 33.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP)—(NCDA)—North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market steady at 36.71 cents per pound. Supplies fully adequate, demand fairly good and weights desirable. Estimated slaughter today 1,134,000.

North Carolina hens: Market weak, supplies about in balance with a fair demand. Heavies, at farm, 13 cents per pound; a few previous commitments higher.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market faltered today, weighted down by Wall Street's worries over rising interest rates.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was off 6.88 at 871.25, while losers out-paced gainers by 2-to-1 in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said the market appeared to be unable to marshal any upward force because of the recent climb in interest rates and the apparent inflationary expectations reflected by the higher rates.

"Higher interest rates are scaring people, and obviously they represent competition for money that might otherwise go into equities," said John Doherty at Blyth Eastman Dillon.

Bucyrus-Erie, down 1/2 at 32 1/2, was the most-active issue on the Big Board.

General Motors slumped 1/4 to 51 1/2. Barron's Magazine said this morning some analysts had lowered their first-quarter earnings estimates for the huge automaker.

Among other autos, Ford was down 1/4 at 50 1/2, and Chrysler lost 1/8 to 18 1/2.

American Cyanamid, which projected a first-quarter earnings gain of at least 15 percent, rose 1/4 to 23 1/2. Rucker, Co., which makes equipment for the petroleum industry, was down 1/2 at 9 1/2. The company filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission for the sale of 700,000 shares.

At the American Stock Exchange, Sanitas Service, up 1-16 at 15-16, headed the most-active list, trading for the first time since last Wednesday. Late last week the company said it had a one-month extension on a loan agreement.

The Amex's 11 a.m. market-value index was off .38 at 98.66. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks dipped .30 to 51.73.

By The Associated Press
Winter returned to North Carolina today like an unwelcome guest, as a spring storm pelted snow, sleet and freezing rain across the state, creating hazardous travel conditions that claimed at least one life.

Officials blamed an icy bridge in Surry County for the death of Mrs. Margie White Drawn, 62, of Rt. 2, Jonesville. She was killed around daybreak today when her car crashed into a bridge on Interstate 77 near Elkin.

State trooper Buck Edwards said the car went out of control when it ran into ice on the bridge.

Heavy snow warnings were issued for the northern sections of the state today and tonight and travelers advisories were in effect for the rest of North Carolina, except the Outer Banks and southern coastal area.

The weather service predicted snow accumulations of four inches or more in the northern area before ending tonight.

The largest officially reported accumulation by mid-morning was four inches at Barnardsville in the mountains.

The letter listed four points to be included in a peace agreement:

1. Both sides would remove "all danger of direct armed conflict" and the United States would pledge not to "instigate the South Korean authorities to the war provocation maneuvers and fascist repression of the South Korean people or patronize them." America would also promise not to obstruct unification efforts by the North and South.
2. Both sides would "discontinue arms reinforcement and the arms race and stop introducing any weapons, combat equipment and war supplies into Korea."
3. "The berets of the 'United Nations Forces' shall be taken off the foreign troops stationed in South Korea and they will all be withdrawn at the earliest possible date with all their weapons."
4. No foreign country will be allowed military bases in Korea.

Committee Appointed

FARMVILLE—A committee to work with the State Division of Highways on improvement of the downtown area here has been appointed by the Farmville Board of Commissioners.

With Commissioner W. R. Duke as chairman, the committee is composed of Tom Thompson, T. Eli Joyner Jr., John B. Lewis Jr., Jack McDavid, Don Johnson, and Louis Williams.

A letter from the Division of Highways has indicated that the Division is not in a position to participate in any improvement projects now, but that proposals may be made to the Planning and Programming Committee of the Board of Transportation when it holds public hearings in May concerning the updating of its seven-year program.

Highways N. C. 121 and U. S. 264 are part of Farmville's central business district.

Wears Yarmulke In Unity Display

NEW YORK (AP) — Gov. Malcolm Wilson donned a gold satin yarmulke and ate bagels and lox at a fund-raising breakfast for orthodox Jews.

A yarmulke is a skullcap worn by Jews in the synagogue. Wilson, a Roman Catholic, stressed the harmony between the two faiths in a brief address to about 600 persons attending the breakfast for the youth organization of the Lubavitch Movement, a worldwide Jewish sect.

"There is more that unites us than divides us," Wilson said. "Any walls that separate us do not reach as high as heaven."

By The Associated Press
The weather service predicted a mixture of sleet, freezing rain and snow would continue over the southern sections of the state, changing to snow or sleet over the interior sections by evening.

The storm slipped into the state in the predawn hours and dumped snow on North Carolina towns from Asheville to Elizabeth City. Greensboro reported between three and four inches accumulation. Two to three inches were reported at Roxboro, Hickory, Reidsville, Asheboro and Taylorsville. An inch of snow was on the ground at Asheville, Raleigh, Durham and North Wilkesboro and just over an inch was reported at Rocky Mount and Morganton.

Guilford County and Greensboro city schools were closed and highways in the area were reported very hazardous. Alamance County schools were also closed, but Burlington city schools remained open. Charlotte and Mecklenburg County schools were also open, as were schools in the Raleigh-Durham area.

Other counties that closed schools included: Randolph, Iredell, Cleveland, Cabarrus, Gaston, Buncombe, Catawba, Alexander, Lincoln, Caldwell and Burke.

City schools were closed in Elizabeth City, Newton-Conover, Taylorsville, Lenoir and Lincoln.

In Murphy, in the western mountains, a police spokesman said accumulation was slight.

"We've had a good bit fall here and pretty hard, but it all melts away," he said.

Reports from Asheville indicated the snow there was melting and running off.

Temperatures dropped dramatically in the early morning hours as the storm moved across the state and continued to fall throughout the morning. By late morning readings were mostly in the upper 20s and lower 30s in the northern sections of the state. Temperatures in the 40s were reported in the coastal areas, where rain was falling. In southern sections late morning temperatures were mostly in the low to mid 30s.

The National Weather Service predicted clearing weather Tuesday and warmer temperatures, with highs from the 40s in the west to the 50s in the east.

More Hope Of 94 'Hippies'

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Authorities today rounded up 94 persons they described as hippies and ordered them deported. At least 17 were Americans.

They said 45 already have left Malaysia and the rest, now in prison in northwestern Penang, will leave within the next day or two.

Immigration officials said Penang residents were complaining about scantily dressed or even naked hippies on the beaches.

Home Affairs Minister Ghazali Shafie said deportation of the 94 was part of the government effort to keep this Moslem country free of bad influences.

this is a way to safely assist them."

He said that although the United States still doesn't have enough gasoline to meet the demand, April allocations would be "significantly larger" than the March allotments.

Simon, who was interviewed on ABC's "Issues and Answers," said specific allotments would be announced later this week. But he added that the states probably would get about 90 per cent of the amount they received in 1972 — up 5 per cent from this month.

Tourist officials expressed hope that business would improve.

Bucs Take Twin Bill In Nearly 7 Hours Of Play

By WOODY PEELE
Reflector Sports Editor

It was billed as a doubleheader, each game of seven innings, but by the time the curtain finally came down on the afternoon, East Carolina and Shippensburg State had played 21 innings and nearly seven hours before the Bucs ended up with both games.

The first game took 14 innings to decide, with East Carolina gaining a 2-1 decision. Then, true to form, the second game bore no relationship to the first as the Pirates came back to gain the sweep with a 6-0 win on three-hit pitching by Bill Godwin.

The first game turned out to be double frustrating for the Bucs because they had gained a 4-1 lead over Shippensburg in the first attempt to get the game underway on Saturday, only to see it washed out after three frames. Then, they nearly didn't get the second game when rain began falling immediately after the end of the first game Sunday.

Dave LaRussa pitched 10 fine innings before finally leaving the game. He allowed only three hits during his long stay on the mound, walking four and striking out eight. The lone run off him was unearned. Wayne Bland came on to work the final four and get the decision.

Shippensburg got its lone run of the day in the fifth inning, but East Carolina came back on a Mike Hogan homer in the sixth to tie it up.

The Raiders first threatened in the first when Bob Bamberger slapped a two-out double. They threatened again in the third when Marlin Ulrich walked, stole second and went to third on an infield out.

They finally scored in the fifth. Frank Garritano led off with a walk and was sacrificed to second. He took third on another out, then scored when Stan McCallum's grounder was booted for a 1-0 lead.

East Carolina got out of another jam in the sixth. Randy Cockley walked and went to third when Randy Shade's grounder was error'd. In the 11th they had another chance when Frank Kerch singled and was sacrificed to second. Frank Mastrangelo doubled with one down in the second, but was thrown out later trying to go to third.

East Carolina's first opportunity came in the third. Rick McMahon walked and Jack Elkins came on to run for him. He stole second and went to third when Russ Smith reached on an error. In the fourth, Carl Summerrell singled and stole second.

The Bucs tied it up in the sixth when Hogan connected with a 340-foot blast to right with one down in the sixth. And that one out was fateful in the game since it was a diving catch that erased Ron Staggs. Had Garritano not made that catch, Hogan's smash would have ended it.

But it wasn't to be. The Bucs went on to keep the threat alive, however, as Summerrell walked and John Narron singled.

In the seventh, Geoff Beaton singled and stole second. Summerrell did the same in the 11th, and Beaton duplicated the feat in the 12th. Elkins walked in the 13th and moved to second on Bobby Harrison's hit, but was cut down when Ron Leggett reached on a fielder's choice. McMahon walked, loading them up, but a ground out ended that threat.

Then, in the 14th, the Bucs finally got the winning run. Russ Smith led off with a walk and Staggs was safe on an error, moving Smith to third. Hogan followed with a single through the middle, scoring Smith with the game-ending run.

Following the brief shower, the second game got underway with Godwin hurling his three-hitter. He walked two and fanned four in his seven innings on the mound.

Shippensburg, however, did give the hurler some problems. In the first, McCollum singled and Tom Lease walked before the side was retired. In the fourth, Garritano walked and Don Ivill singled. In the fifth, Steve Helman reached on a two-base error, but Godwin calmly picked him off second, and didn't allow another baserunner the rest of the way.

East Carolina scored in the first, getting one run. Beaton led off with a walk and stole second. Smith lined a double into left, scoring Beaton. Staggs and Narron later walked to load them up, but the Bucs did no damage.

Their second run came in the second. McMahon walked and Elkins came on as a courtesy runner. Beaton beat out a drag bunt single and when the ball was thrown wide of the base, Elkins moved on to third. A long foul fly ball brought by Smith brought in Elkins.

A threat in the third, however, didn't pay off. Hogan walked, went to second on a wild pitch and stole third. Narron walked, but it was halted there. In the fourth, Beaton walked and moved to second on an out but died there.

In the fifth, however, the Bucs got four more. Hogan led off, beating out a roller to third. Summerrell followed with a double scoring Hogan, who had moved to second on a wild pitch. Summerrell stole third and scored when the attempt to get him sailed into left field.

Elkins walked and stole second, but was thrown out trying to steal third as Leggett walked. McMahon walked and Tommy Fleetwood ran for him. Beaton slammed a triple up the alley in left center, scoring both Leggett and Fleetwood for the 6-0 lead.

Summerrell singled in the sixth, stole second, but died there for the final Buc threat.

Beaton and Summerrell each had four hits during the afternoon, while Summerrell stole four bases, and Beaton swiped three.

The Pirates, now 6-4 overall, will take most of the rest of the week off, returning to action Saturday when they entertain Davidson College in a Southern Conference doubleheader.

SAFE AT THIRD—Carl Summerrell, East Carolina shortstop, looks up at Shippensburg State third baseman Frank Kerch (17) after safely sliding into third base in the sixth inning of the first game of a doubleheader Sunday. Summerrell, who walked, moved to third on John Narron's single to right. Narron, in the left background, moved on to second on the relay to third. East Carolina swept the two games, winning the first, 2-1, in 14 innings, and the other, 6-0. (Reflector Photo by Tommy Forrest)

Baseball Is 'Next Step'

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A local feminist, whose daughter successfully challenged a ban on girls competing in the Soap Box Derby, says she's now seeking taking on the Little League.

"The Little League is just the next step," Carol Forbes told an interviewer. "The girls are entitled to their day in the field."

Ms. Forbes argues that according to medical studies, girls mature and develop coordination earlier than boys. She says this makes them competitive for so-called male sports.

"Little boys are taught to exclude little girls from their play," she said. "When you see that, then you understand why adult males lead a double life, why they exclude females from important roles in society."

Rep. Martha Griffiths, D-Mich., has introduced legislation to amend the league's charter and allow girls to compete.

"We'll get some opposition from males who think athletics stand as the last bastion of masculinity," Ms. Forbes said, "but we have to show that sports are not immutable. They are an integral part of our national consciousness."

Ms. Forbes said her daughter Debbie, who became the first girl to compete in the Soap Box Derby in 1971, is now too old at age 14 for the Little League.

STATE FARM

Cale Yarborough Had Pearson In Sights; Wins

LET'S HAVE A DRINK—Chevrolet driver Cale Yarborough grabs for the champion's champagne in victory lane at the Atlanta 500 Sunday after winning $26,950 in the event. (AP Wirephoto)

By BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer
ATLANTA (AP) — "About the only thing I could do," said Cale Yarborough, "was draw a bead on him and keep him in my sights."

Yarborough was speaking Sunday of the masterful job he did in chasing down front-running David Pearson to win the 15th Atlanta 500 Stock Car Race and a check for $15,950.

The stocky, blond Yarborough hunts coons in the winter, quail on his farm in South Carolina in the spring and frequently displays his shooting talents in outdoor films.

He also is a determined, aggressive race driver, and he had Pearson in his sights from the start of the 450 miles, $113,000 race and never let up. His persistence finally paid off.

With 84 circuits of the 1½-mile Atlanta International Raceway remaining, the Chevrolet-driving winner zipped by as Pearson sat in his pit and went unchallenged the rest of the way.

"It was simply a case of hanging in against a driver you know has the fastest car," Yarborough said. "There's an old saying that the race is never won until the last lap is completed. That's the way we played it."

Pearson, who had started his mini-engined Mercury in the front row pole position, had led the race five times for a total of 172 laps before he made what he planned to be his key, late-race stop.

Holding a narrow lead of less than five seconds over the dogged Yarborough, Pearson dashed into his pit for a change of all four tires, using 30.6 seconds. After that, there was to be only a brief stop for fuel in the final 50 miles.

Yarborough went by him at high speed, and as expected, put Pearson a full lap down. That deficit, of course, would be made up when Yarborough had to make his final major stop later.

But luck broke for Yarborough. Five laps after Pearson's stop, a spinning car brought out the day's third and final yellow flag situation and Yarborough was able to make his pit stop. Under the rules, Pearson could not improve his position during the slowdown and though he got back in the same lap he never could close on Yarborough.

The final margin was 21.6 seconds and Yarborough admitted he needed every bit of it.

"I really didn't outrun anybody," he said. "I just got the breaks. Had I been forced to pit under the green flag, I'd still be chasing him."

Yarborough's car, owned by ex-driver Junior Johnson, was equipped with a massive 427-cubic inch engine. Pearson's car mounted one that rated only 351 cubic inch displacement.

Yarborough posted a race speed of 136.510 miles per hour, completing the nationally-telvised feature in 3 hours, 17 minutes and 26 seconds. It was his second triumph in a row and his third of the season.

Car Failure Killed Racer

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — American race driver Peter Revson died as the result of a mechanical failure rather than a driving error, according to UOP Shadow team manager Tony Southgate.

Southgate said Sunday that the exact cause of the accident had not been determined but error on Revson's part has been ruled out. The 35-year-old driver was killed Friday when the front end suspension of his racer apparently failed and the car slammed into a steel barrier during practice for the March 30 South African Grand Prix.

Revson was pulled from the burning wreckage but efforts to save him failed. An autopsy Saturday revealed that Revson died as the result of extensive chest injuries and damage to kidneys and brain.

His body is expected to be flown back to New York Tuesday and burial is scheduled for Friday.

Southgate was quoted in the Sunday Express here as saying the UOP Shadow team has pulled out of the Grand Prix.

"The team's mechanics have already left Johannesburg for the United States," Southgate said, "but I will be staying on in South Africa until the circumstances surrounding the crash have been thoroughly clarified."

Tommy Burleson Is Playing Like Man Possessed

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Tommy Burleson, a 7-foot-4 lonesome pine from the mountains of western North Carolina, is the center on the North Carolina State basketball team that is ranked No. 1 nationally and tonight meets third-ranked Marquette for the NCAA championship. He comes from the town of Newland and has earned the nickname of "Newland Needle," inspired by the fact that, although he is the tallest man playing major collage basketball, he carries only 235 pounds on his frame. At times he has been maigned for awkward, sub-par performances, such as a game early this season against rugged Maryland in which he went 3-for-19 from the floor. He plays with great intensity and on occasion turnovers and other errors have led to still more mistakes. But in his last five games, all under tournament pressure, the Needle has been threading his way through opponents in a manner that at times has been awesome.

Over the 25-game regular season of the Wolfpack he averaged 17.3 points; 11.7 rebounds 67.4 per cent from the foul line, and .512 from the floor. Rebuffed by sports writers who relegated him to a second team berth on the All-Atlantic Coast Conference team announced three weeks ago, a few days before the start of the ACC tournament, Burleson has been playing like a man possessed. Like a man grimly determined to prove a point and show up the selectors.

The last five games were against Virginia and Maryland in the ACC tournament; Providence and Pittsburgh in the NCAA Eastern Regionals, and UCLA in the national semifinals Saturday.

Over the five-game span, Burleson has averaged 23 points, 14.8 rebounds and shot .516 from the floor, all better than his 25-game regular season effort. And consider some of the people arrayed against him in those games—All-American types such as Len Elmore of Maryland, Marvin Barnes of Providence and UCLA's Bill Walton. Burleson averaged 34 minutes playing time in the five tournament games, with a high of 42 in the 50-minute double overtime victory over UCLA. Against Maryland, and old tormentor Elmore the rampaging giant scored 38 points, equalling his career high, and grabbed 13 rebounds. Against Providence, whose Barnes led the nation in rebounding, Burleson banged the boards for 24 rebounds. After superstar David Thompson was knocked out of action in the 10th minute of the Pitt game with a head injury, Burleson turned a close game into a rout. He scored 12 points in the next 10 minutes, grimly determined to lead the "Pack through without its wounded All-American. He finished with 26 points and 12 rebounds. Last time out, against Walton and UCLA, Burleson scored 20 points and grabbed 14 rebounds. "He'll make somebody a

Sloan And McGuire Believe The Factor Of Love Makes Victories

By KEN ALYTA
AP Sports Writer
GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Norman Sloan of North Carolina State and Al McGuire of Marquette, two basketball coaches who believe strongly in love, were down to the final game of the season tonight as their teams met for the NCAA championship. "This team is made up of men who truly love one another — that's why it has been a winner," said Sloan, 47-year-old Indiana native who played in the backcourt at N.C. State 25 years ago under legendary Everett Case. Sloan said the family feeling generated by his players toward each other and their coaches has made them a team. David Thompson, Monte Towe, Tim Stoddard and Mark Moeller were key sophomores last year and are in their second year of play with current seniors Tom Burleson and Steve Nuce. Sloan conceded it took a while before junior college transfers Moe Rivers and Phil Spence, new to the squad this season, fit in comfortably as members of the family. McGuire said before Marquette began its season, "It's definitely going to depend upon if the players really love each other or just make believe and have their love affairs with the semi agents who will tout them and blow their heads out of proportion." The N.C. State Wolfpack, No. 1 in the nation and 29-1 on the season with a 27-game winning streak, is averaging 92 points a game. Marquette, ranked No. 3 on a 26-4 record, traditionally has been a defensive leader under McGuire, who regards his swarming defense as part of his offense. His warriors are 104-11 for their last four seasons. In those 115 games they have yielded more than 75 points only 11 times, twice in overtime games. The Wolfpack recovered from an 11-point deficit to end UCLA's bid for an eighth straight NCAA title with an 80-77 double overtime victory over the Bruins as Thompson led the way with 28 points. Incredibly, State wiped out a seven-point UCLA lead in the second extra period. Marquette, trailing 24-23 at halftime, rallied to clip Big Eight champion Kansas 64-51 as Maurice Lucas scored 18 points. The N.C. State-Marquette game, set for 9:10 p.m., EDT, will be televised nationally by NBC. It will follow a 6:35 p.m. third place game between Kansas and UCLA.

Foreman-Norton Bout Has Pre-Fight Hassle

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — A hassle over the referee threw the George Foreman-Ken Norton heavyweight title fight into a boiling stew of Latin tempers, threats and mad confusion today. Nobody doubted, however, that the 15-round bout would go on as scheduled in the new Poldiro here Tuesday at 10:30 p.m., EDT.

then we will strike out the word "world" and fight for the championship of Caracas." The squabble arose over wording of the contract and proper jurisdiction, but it centered principally on the identity of the judges and the referee. Sadler is reported anxious to have an American, Jimmy Rondeau of Seattle, as the third man in the ring. The Venezuelan Boxing Commission insists that this is its private prerogative. It wants to designate a set of purely Venezuelan officials. "We will set the rules and name the officials," said Alberto Marquez, the national commissioner. Sadler argued that this was against his agreement which he said specified that jurisdiction would be in the hands of the Venezuelans but all rules would have to be approved by the two world governing bodies, WBA and WBC. The WBA, through Dr. Elias Cordova of Panama, backed the Venezuelan commission, which is a WBA affiliate. But

Raymond Velasquez, head of the rival WBC, balked. "Each of the three bodies — the WBA, WBC and the commission — should pick one official," he said, supporting the Foreman camp. The WBA and the Venezuelans ganged up in opposition. The dispute spilled over into the various hotel lobbies, canceling a scheduled workout by Foreman, and nothing was immediately settled. But most observers expected some sort of a compromise prior to today's official weigh-in at noon. Meanwhile, Foreman relaxed around the swimming pool of his hotel, built on one of Caracas' many hills, and the challenger Norton went to the mountains to meditate. He stopped hard workouts the middle of last week. Norton, who broke Muhammad Ali's jaw in winning a first fight before dropping a second, is steamed over reports that Foreman and Ali already have agreed to a September bout. Henry Schwartz, executive vice president of Video Techniques, said he is ready to stage the multi-million dollar spectacular in Kinshasa, Zaire — formerly Leopoldville in the Belgian Congo — with each participant guaranteed $5 million.

Fourth Victory By Johnny Miller

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — Johnny Miller's now won four golf tournaments this year and $149,105 — a record for this stage of the season. But the 26-year-old U.S. Open champion isn't ready to challenge Jack Nicklaus as the games' premier performer. "Maybe," he said in the wake of his victory Sunday in the Sea Pines Heritage Classic, "maybe when I've won 10 more major titles and he's 45, maybe then I'll say I'm better than he is." Miller, the leader all the way in this tournament, closed with a cozy, front running one-under-par 70 and won the $40,000 first prize by a comfortable three strokes on the 6,655-yard Harbour Town Golf Links. Gibby Gilbert was second with a final round 69 for 279 but really didn't have a shot at the title after Miller tossed a little sand wedge shot up to within two feet for a clinching birdie on the 15th hole. Richard Crawford followed at 70—280, Tom Kite had 69—281, Leonard Thompson 70—282, with Tom Weiskopf, Homero Blancas and Ray Floyd bunched at 283. Weiskopf slipped to a 73 in the warm, sunny weather, Blancas had a 67 and Floyd had a sparkling 65, matching the course record on the subtly demanding layout that was hacked out of a South Carolina swamp. Arnold Palmer and South African Gary Player never really got in the title chase. They tied at 287, Palmer with a last round 73, Player with 70. Miller, who earlier this year scored a record sweep of the first three titles of the year — the Bing Crosby, Phoenix and Tucson opens — led all the way in the Heritage and once had a 10-shot advantage. That dwindled to four strokes at the end of the third round and, when Johnny bogeyed the 13th from a bunker, diminished to two strokes late in the last round. But he flipped that sand wedge shot to the 15th and made the two-foot birdie putt. Even golf's first exposure to streakers couldn't shake him after that. A nude man and woman streaked through a sand trap on the 16th while Johnny was striding down the fairway. He gave them only a glance as the laughing pair disappeared into a grove of moss-bearded cypress trees, and went about his business. The pair was within range of the national television cameras, but they modestly refrained from airing the episode.

Second Half Of Iron Duke Golf Classic Today

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—The second half of the inaugural 36-hole Iron Duke Invitational Golf Classic was scheduled today with Maryland holding a one-stroke lead over Wake Forest in team play and duke's Lee Keesler holding the same margin in the individual competition. Keesler fired a one-under-par 71 Sunday over the 6,828-yard Duke University layout to go ahead of Michigan State's Gary Domagalski and Maryland's Buddy Marucci, who both shot 72s. In third place were Curtis Strange and Jay Hass of Wake Forest with 74s. Trailing Maryland's 377 team total were Wake Forest, 376; the Duke blue team, 381; Miami of Ohio, 385; Bowling Green, 386; Ohio University, 388; Michigan State, 389; the Duke white team, 394; and Colgate, 435.

The Worry Clinic Hunt Bargain' In Your College

Andrea faces an acute problem that worries millions of teenagers. The "Rah-Rah-Rah" emotionalism should not becloud "Horse Sense." For the true purpose of college is to offer students a "merchandisable skill." Be college bargain hunters!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-585: Andrea M., aged 18 wants to go to college.

"Dr. Crane," she began, "I have $4,000 and could attend our big State University for about $2,000 per year.

"However, I think I'd rather attend a smaller private college, but the one I prefer would cost me my entire $4,000 just for my freshmen year.

"So what should I do?"

"What are the advantages, as well as disadvantages of a big university in contrast to a smaller school?"

Use "Horse Sense"

Your college curriculum is much like a drug store's array of merchandise.

So why travel 1,000 miles to buy the same tube of toothpaste you can get at the corner pharmacy?

College English or Math or History are about the same, everywhere!

The "halo" around various colleges may still appeal to their alumni, but nowadays it's not the "Rah-Rah-Rah" that counts.

Employers are so disgusted with the "quota" demands for college entrance, that they tend to downgrade diplomas from ALL colleges.

Which is why they usually administer their own employment tests before they hire any college graduate!

The diploma formerly was superb leverage for landing a job.

Now its value has been so watered down by the admission of students on other grounds of merit, that you graduates must show your ability on the job.

You need to obtain a "merchandisable skill," not merely a fancy looking sheepskin.

The Business Colleges offer you the quickest and best "merchandisable skill" for your money if you can afford only one or two years of higher education.

Next, come the smaller private Liberal Arts colleges which offer closer supervision of students, plus campus jobs by which the pupils can help earn their own way.

For example, President Jess Johnson informs me that you can finish 4 years at his accredited Milligan College (Tenn.) on less than $2,000 per year.

Berry College in Georgia apparently can match that same efficient cost.

Hillsdale College in Michigan, plus Rockford College in Illinois, and numerous other splendid private or church-oriented Liberal Arts Colleges can also approximate that $2,000 per year cost.

Moreover, they inculcate patriotism, religious idealism and the splendid doctrine of "Free Enterprise."

Students don't riot or become draft dodgers or flag burners on such campuses.

Football prowess may excite student enthusiasm but employers don't hire you, after you graduate, on the basis of your college's athletic standing!

Although I attended Northwestern University and Yale, I have lectured widely at smaller colleges and have come to the conclusion that in this hectic modern age, the smaller schools maintain better discipline, closer personal ties between faculty and students, as well as more lasting lifelong friendships among alumni, than do the huge universities.

So I urge students like Andrea to use their bargaining sense and get their schooling where the cost is less.

Send for my "Vocational Guidance" booklet, enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents, and use it to help pick your career!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Actors Guild Suspects Jobs Due 'Familiarity'

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Is there a new kind of blacklist that robs actors of jobs because they aren't familiar enough to the television public?

The Screen Actors Guild thinks that such a situation may exist, and it called a meeting this week with other guilds to discuss means to combat it.

At issue is a polling service called TvQ, which lists performers according to their popularity. On a recent listing, Lucille Ball was first with 98 per cent familiarity, Johnny Cash and Bill Cosby tied for second with 96, and Doris Day, Fred MacMurray and Dick Van Dyke had 95.

The Screen Actors Guild has heard reports that performers who place far down the list or not at all have been turned down for roles in TV movies and series pilots.

"The guild frowns on this," said president Dennis Weaver. "Such a system doesn't make sense, and to my way of thinking it's unworkable. Some of the top actors around aren't even on the list; a performer has to be put on it by the clients of tv."

Weaver said that guild members believe use of TvQ to be widespread in the industry. The networks deny this. A CBS programming executive said he was scarcely aware of TvQ's existence "and I doubt that it is an element in casting." CBS does not subscribe to TvQ, ABC and NBC do.

Barry Diller, ABC's vice president in charge of prime time television, commented: "I'm amazed at how these things get blown up. To utilize TvQ to cast individual actors on a negative basis would be foolish. We don't do it."

"TvQ does have a positive value. If you see someone in a subsidiary role on a series whose popularity is larger than it normally would be, you might say, 'Let's find something for him next season.' But I don't think anyone rejects an actor because of a rating."

Larry White, vice president of programming for NBC, commented: "TvQ, along with many other sources of information, is very useful in making decisions, but it is not a determining factor. We try to cast by using the best possible actor."

TvQ is a service of a New York firm, Marketing Evaluations, Inc., which has been surveying popularity of TV programs and performers since 1958. Once a year two panels of 1,000 families are asked whom they recognize from 250 names and how well they like the performers.

Said company President Herbert Altman: "We start with a basic list of 100 names of people like Bob Hope who have been around for a long time. Each client can add a designated number of names until we have a total of about 500."

Altman defended the use of TvQ: "The economics of television and movies are obvious; millions of dollars are invested in projects which must please the public. The name of the game is pleasing the public, and an important ingredient is the performer."

"TvQ provides the executive with certain tools to help him make his decision. That decision must also be combined with his intuition, experience, etc. We're in the business of offering information; we're not making decisions."

The Screen Actors Guild first became concerned with TvQ when actor Nico Minardos reported that he had been turned down for a role in a TV drama

Business Notes

SALE AUTHORIZED
The Board of directors of Virginia Electric and Power Co. has authorized the sale of approximately $125 million in first and refunding mortgage bonds through a public offering in June.

Veppo reported that proceeds from the sale will be used to help finance the construction of new facilities to meet the increasing demand for energy. The company's construction program in 1974 totals $579 million, of which some $500 million must be raised from the sale of securities.

DEFERRED ANNUITY
E. F. Hutton & Co. has introduced deferred annuity or variable annuity that offers the investor an opportunity to enter into either a "fixed" or "variable" account and defer any taxes on the earnings thereon until a date decided by the investor.

The New York Stock Exchange member reported that the fixed account portion of the deferred annuity offers a 100 per cent principal guarantee on demand and pays 7.25 per cent interest guaranteed for five years. All interest accumulates tax free.

The variable account portion, E. F. Hutton noted, offers a possible inflation hedge by investing the funds into a diversified, professionally managed portfolio of common stocks.

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ1063 ♥KQ76 ♦Q54 ♣K

The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
Pass Pass 1 ♠ Pass
2 NT Pass ?

What is your rebid?
A.—Three hearts. Despite the fact that you are aceless and partner is a passed hand, there is no reason why you should not complete the description of your holding. Game in a major could be a fair proposition. Our second choice would be three no trump — we would not even consider passing.

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠7 ♥A92 ♦10985432 ♣73

The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
3 ♠ Pass 4 ♠ Dble.
Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—North's double is not purely for takeout—he has available four no trump for that purpose. The double shows cards, and North expects to defeat four spades. Nevertheless, your length in diamonds suggests that partner's high cards in that suit might not take tricks. Five diamonds is a sound two-way action—you could make the contract while the opponents have four spades, and if you go down, the loss should not be great.

Q. 3—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠8 ♥543 ♦J82 ♣AQ10943

The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♠ 2 ♥

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. You are a passed hand, don't even consider three clubs, which might force partner to three spades. If partner rebids his suit and that gets passed to you, you can then mention your suit.

Q. 4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQJ54 ♥1082 ♦943 ♣76

The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 ♠ Dble. 4 ♦ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Four spades. This action involves an element of risk, but you cannot afford to be shut out of the auction, for partner might not be able to act again at this high level. The auction

Rodino, Out Of Obscurity To Making Of History

EDITOR'S NOTE: John J. Sica, Archibald Cox, Sam Ervin, Leon Jaworski. Now comes, from obscurity, Peter W. Rodino to address the high bench of history. Under monumental pressures from all sides, he hopes to satisfy posterity that "there was no other way" to deal with the question of impeaching the 37th President of the United States.

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent
WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite founded rumors that he loves opera and writes poetry secretly, his credentials as a middle American remain impeccable. He is as American as apple strudel in Milwaukee, kielbasa sausage in Gary, corn pone in Kentucky, lasagna in the North Ward of Newark. He is a graduate of the Depression, a product of a city political machine, a native of the East as far from the effete East as the light years that separated the rough democracy of Barringer High, Newark, from the elitism of the prep school at Groton.

Until life became "so serious," he used to do Jimmy Durante imitations at family parties and sing "Way Marie," "O Sole Mio" and other golden oldies of the Italian persuasion. His singing and speaking voice remains less than Olympian despite the fact that as a boy he used to practice orating with stones or marbles in his mouth, hurling Shakespearean monologues at two tall poplars in Branch Brook Park, Newark. An Italo-American Demos-thenes growing up in New Jersey.

A quarter century ago, he came to Congress from the East, worrying about Communism. That was two years after another young man came to Congress from the West, worrying about Communism.

The two parallel lines now meet.

One, of course, is Richard M. Nixon. The other is Peter W. Rodino, Democrat, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee inquiring into the possible impeachment of the President of the United States. One man reached his pinnacle by drive; the other, by endurance.

And now at 64, Peter Rodino, a little man in stature and, until recent months, in reputation, becomes living proof that a cat can not only look at a king; he may even help dethrone him. This awes and depresses Rodino. His father, an Italian immigrant, brought him up to respect the institutions of America, especially the presidency.

The largest photograph on the wall of Rodino's office is one of him and a smiling Richard Nixon shaking hands the last time they met. The occasion was the signing of the renewed Law Enforcement Assistance Act, of which Rodino was a sponsor.

The date was Aug. 6, 1973, when "impeachment" was still only a whisper, although Rodino already was researching its problems unofficially.

He also keeps in his office, in a richly bound leather book of testimonials, a "Dear Pete" letter in which the President congratulated him for his "deserving recognition" in receiving the Man of the Year award from the Justian Society of Lawyers. The President praised him for his "dedication to the best interests of the country."

The letter was dated Oct. 17, 1973. Three days later Nixon fired the first special Watergate prosecutor and brought on the resignations of the two top men in the Justice Department. Three days after that, in the ensuing uproar, five impeachment resolutions were introduced in the House and Speaker Carl Albert, D-Okla., officially assigned the matter to the Judiciary Committee.

Overnight, Pete Rodino, who had needed 24 years, an upset election and the seniority system to move to the top of the committee's totem pole, overnight he was jerked from obscurity to a high chair of history.

"Can this really be happening?" he recalls thinking. "Will I really be the guy? If fate had been looking for one of the powerhouses of Congress, it wouldn't have picked me."

Though awed and saddened, he was not immobilized. He set the machinery in motion. And on Feb. 4, a man not renowned for his eloquence rose on the floor of the House in support of a resolution giving his committee full authority and complete subpoena powers for an inquiry of impeachment. It is thought he grew taller as he spoke:

"It has been said that our country, troubled by too many crises in recent years, is too tired to consider this one. In the first year of the Republic, Thomas Paine wrote, 'Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must, like men, undergo the fatigue of supporting it.'"

"Now it is our turn. ...When we have completed our inquiry, whatever the result, we will make recommendations to the House. We will do so as soon as we can, consistent with principles of fairness and completeness."

"Whatever the result, whatever we learn or conclude, let us now proceed, with such care and decency and thoroughness and honor that the vast majority of the American people, and their children after them, will say: That was the right course. There was no other way."

The resolution passed, 410 to 4.

Peter Wallace Rodino is 5-foot-7. (How "Wallace" infiltrated a nice Italian family deponent claims not to know. But his wife, Marianna, exposes his secret with a mischievous chuckle: as a young man he just dreamed up the middle name to "add distinction" to his own.)

Hair: gray-white, wavy, senatorial. Eyes: dark, warm. Voice: soft, thin, apparently the result of diphtheria as a boy. Clothes: mostly dark pinstripes, the slightly wide tie and heavy sideburns being his only concessions to mod. Personality: amiable, hard-working, warm, earnest, cautious, thorough, uncolorful. Speech habits: ordinary, unringing, no quotable quotes from the saints, muses or folks back home. Eyebrows: stable. In short: an unlikely TV replacement for Sam Ervin.

This man, all of him, is now in an historic pressure cooker unmatched in 100 years. He runs the inquiry with few precedents to guide him. If his committee votes articles of impeachment, he will have to floor-manage them through the House. Yea or nay, he will have to explain.

"One false move," John Pierson noted in the Wall Street Journal, "and Pete Rodino's in trouble; two, and the country's in trouble. Like bungled surgery, a botched impeachment could maim, not heal."

It is generally agreed that an unconvincing impeachment indictment suspect for political motives or an unconvincing non-indictment suspect of timidity could tear the country apart. People are that polarized, judging by the committee's mail.

Meanwhile, Rodino must steer a middle course toward "the truth," as he says, and, as he doesn't say, somewhere between Republican fire-eaters ready to accuse him of partisan delay and young Democratic "bomb-throwers" ready to charge him with spineless slowness.

He runs one of the most important committees of Congress. Judiciary normally processes about a third of the bills passed by the House, its broad mandate including problems of civil rights, immigration, bus- ing, abortion, amnesty, capital punishment, constitutional amendments, crime and anti-trust matters.

Clearly, the subject he takes most seriously now is impeachment, not only because it involves the fate of a president but also "the far larger question of re-establishing and reinforcing the legitimacy of government."

Rodino recalls a recent encounter with a dentist of Italian ancestry at an opera in New-

BUSINESS SYMPOSIUM—Leaders of the annual Phi Beta Lambda business-economics symposium at East Carolina look over the program which brought school of business students together with leaders in manufacturing, banking and other fields to discuss career opportunities. ark. The dentist said his father admired the Congressman. The son evidently didn't. He said the impeachment inquiry was "nonsense;" that Nixon should not be removed because he "hasn't done anything other presidents haven't done."

"I haven't prejudged this," Rodino said, "but I do feel strongly that certain questions need to be answered."

The dentist looked unimpressed.

Rodino told him of his heavy mail, particularly one letter from the parents of two children, 7 and 11. They said Rodino's committee could help answer the questions their kids were asking: "What's wrong with our country? Is the President a liar and a crook or isn't he?" The letter continued:

"We're asking these questions for other children as well, who will one day inherit this land, a land they'll either be proud of or still be asking questions about."

"That's a lot of cliches," the dentist said.

Rodino concludes: "I guess I couldn't dent his cynicism."

Before his current celebrity, the Congressman from New Jersey's 10th District used to get about 2,000 letters in a four-month period. In the last four months, he says, he has received more than 400,000, the sentiment running about 4 to 1 for impeachment.

It was last spring that Rodino decided he'd better start boning up on the uncharted shoals of impeachment after listening to the President's statements about Watergate.

"I was hoping he would say it all, that perhaps others had acted irresponsibly without his knowledge or that he had made a mistake. At any rate, that he would explain it fully to the country."

He has not, he says, lost sleep over published rumors that the White House is sifting his background for any material that could discredit him.

In New Jersey, the Essex County Democratic organization, which produced Peter Rodino, also gave the world such luminaries as Hugh Addonizio, now in jail for extortion. Addonizio and Rodino were roommates in Washington when both were young Congressmen. Addonizio's trouble came years later as mayor of Newark.

Early in the 1960s the FBI tapped the phone of the late Angelo (Gyp) DeCarlo, a convicted extortionist, and heard DeCarlo claim Addonizio and Rodino had done "favors" for the Mob.

Rodino has repeatedly denied any connection with DeCarlo or the Mob. Herbert Stern, the U.S. attorney who obtained indictment of some 70 New Jersey public officials, has said DeCarlo also was known to claim non-existent political connections. Stern, now a federal judge, said:

"There has never been an inquiry about Rodino, never the slightest anything. In my opinion, he is an honest man and a fine public servant."

The Congressman was born in a crime-ridden area of Newark on Factory Street, where he recalls seeing "shootouts and people killed right in front of our own tenement." His father, a toolmaker and artisan who had come from Italy with no English and "just a tag on him," brought the boy up "to live with respect and honor."

Crime in the streets still haunts Pete Rodino, although he has lived the last 20 years on the white middle-class edge of the North Ward. His wife has been mugged twice in the last three years, once in front of their home, without damage to her sense of humor.

Then or now, it was not a life calculated to inspire poetry. But as a boy he acquired the works of Coleridge, Poe, Byron and Shelley from a neighborhood doctor. As an adolescent, he wrote romantic poetry. As a busy aging congressman, he still writes poetry, now more philosophical than romantic, but shows it to no one, not even Mrs. Rodino.

The Depression sent Rodino to work early and between jobs and night classes he managed a degree from Newark Law School, taking 10 years for five years of schooling. Then came marriage — the Rodinos now have two grown children and a granddaughter — and the War. It was in 1941 that his country first reposed the burden of leadership on Pete Rodino. As an army enlistee, he was put in charge of the bus tokens that would take him and a group of draftees from Newark to Fort Dix.

He was decorated for combat in Italy, where he saw the dangers of Communism and came home worrying about it. His speeches against the spread of Communism caught the attention of local pols in the 10th district. In 1946, he ran for Congress against Rep. Fred Hartley, co-author of the Taft-Hartley Labor Relations Act, and lost by 5,000 votes.

Two years later, with Hartley retired, he won and has been winning ever since, largely as a result of personalized attention to his Italian constituents. He was home every weekend, says an associate, "going to every wedding, wake and parade."

In 1972, he was redistricted, his constituents going suddenly from 7 to 43 per cent black. But he managed because of his civil rights record, to prevail in the Democratic primary, which is tantamount to election, over three Black rivals.

This year, however, promises to be tougher. He already has a white rightist opponent opposing him for the primary and on the other side there's talk the blacks may unite behind one black candidate. He still thinks he can win if only the impeachment inquiry leaves him enough time to campaign this spring.

The impeachment job also helps. It has brought him more attention than all his 25 years in Congress.

"I get goose pimples," says Mrs. Vincent Palumbo, chairwoman of the Peter W. Rodino Ladies, Auxiliary in Newark. "every time I hear his name on TV. Now he belongs to the country."

Clubhouse Is Given Paint

More than 24 Jaycees, Boys' Club staff and members of the Boys' Club braved chill and rain Saturday to paint the Greenville clubhouse.

John Skipper headed up the Jaycee contingent who joined the club staff and the boys in painting the building in a coat of colonial blue.

After the painting was finished, all participants joined in for a hotdog feast.

In other Boys' Club activities, the basketball teams of the Boys' Club of Pitt County took part in the recently concluded Sectional Basketball Tournament held in Goldsboro. The JV team was overpowered by the E. A. House Boys' Club representing Wayne County. The Pitt County Varsity team was pitted against the Community Boys' Club from Wilmington, with the Wilmington team squeezing by to win at 51-50.

Also, members of the Pitt County Clubs are making final preparations to attend the Sectional Gamesroom Tournament to be held in Durham later this year. This will include competitions in pool, ping-pong, checkers and chess.

'Lucy' Wants Another Movie

EDITOR'S NOTE — Lucille Ball, now in her 60s, has stopped making weekly TV shows. But she's just completed one Hollywood film and she wants to do another. Family scrips are what she wants, not "The Last Tango" variety.

By EVE SHARBUTT
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — What can be added to stories about television's favorite red-haired millionaire businesswoman and mother of two?

Lucille Ball keeps making additions. She has much to say for herself these days as star of the film musical "Mame."
During a week's promotion tour here she averaged 40 interviews a day. Some of those were due, she said, to her decision to end her weekly television series, "Here's Lucy," the most recent of her shows. They began in 1951 with Desi Arnez and she's been on TV every week since then.

"Of course, after 47 interviews, I found I was talking to myself at the end of the day," Miss Ball added, between bites of scrambled eggs. She had returned to her sunny Waldorf Towers suite after a morning television interview.

She took out a compact to refresh her makeup, took out a pair of false eyelashes and attached them to a lamp. "Won't that give the maid a turn," said the strawberry-redhead, whose age is given as anywhere from 61 to 65, depending on the source.

"I always played the working girl, the housewife," Miss Ball said of her television roles. "I thought it was fun to get dressed up once in a while, but not all the time. My own clothes are made to my design in my own workrooms."

She admits it took a lot of talking at first to get her into "Mame."
The actress appeared on television for more than 20 years and did a Broadway play in 1960. Her last film was "Yours, Mine and Ours" with Henry Fonda in 1968.

"Family scripts are hard to find and they're what I look for. Some people should be ashamed of the things they're doing today. Look at Marlon Brando. That someone of his stature should appear in "Last Tango" is disgusting.

"People know better than to send me scripts like some of the stuff that is out-and-out ridiculous," she added.
"Where are the values? I remember when I was doing 'Wildcat' in New York I was sent two movie scripts in the same week: 'Manchurian Candidate,' and 'Oh, Dad, Poor Dad.' I was numb!"

What she does want to do is a film based on Diamond Jim Brady and Lillian Russell, with Jackie Gleason as Diamond Jim.
"But he's not fat enough now. He doesn't look jolly any more. We'll have to wait until he puts on more weight," she said.

Lucy has six years to go on her contract with CBS and may do some specials for the network. She isn't saying what the future holds.
But she will talk about the kind of series she pioneered for TV.

"We filmed in four days and had the most routine, easy schedule anyone ever had in television. I lean very heavily on nepotism. My children work for me. My writers have been with the show 20 years. It's a business I know and it's simple to me now. I hate to call a halt to it.

"But I want very much to help sell 'Mame' and that will take time. You can't just run off and do it in a weekend. It takes a month or so at a time," she added.

Trips to Tokyo and London are planned as part of the film's promotion. Then she will return to husband Gary Morton, now appearing in the film "Lenny," and one of their three homes — Beverly Hills, Palm Springs or the condominium at Snomass near Aspen, Colo.

She is proud that her children are working. Desi Jr., 21, is appearing in films, and Lucie, 24, will do a road tour of the musical "Seesaw."

The woman who started her career in a chorus line, did radio serials, posed for cigarette ads and appeared in leggy films of the '40s won't admit to being a business genius.

"All I ever did was the 'Lucy' show and happily it was a success, a good stepping stone. We pioneered with that and our idiosyncrasy about putting the show on film. Now everybody does it, but we thought of it as a kind of home movie we'd have forever."

She and first husband Desi Arnez also got 100 per cent residuals on the show. It made them rich. They were among the first to insist their show should be filmed in Los Angeles.

"We wanted to stay home. We'd been married 10 years, were about to have a baby and we didn't want to come to New York. People think of my first husband as a Cuban bongio player. He was a very, very good businessman as well and it nearly put him away. I inherited a lot of benefits from his work."

German television is on the telephone asking for an interview, and another reporter is knocking at the suite door. A trim, sophisticated Lucille Ball, tirelessly "up," pats her red curls.

Returns are golden, she says, and there's plenty yet to do.

Secret Payoff To Witnesses Claimed

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—The U.S. Justice Department secretly paid two prosecution witnesses $4,000 each and granted them immunity from prosecution for their testimony in the Lazy B stable burning trial and a related trial, according to a copyrighted story in the Charlotte Observer.

In its Sunday editions, the Observer quotes a well placed Justice Department source as saying the money had been paid to Theodore Alfred Hood, 26, and Walter David Washington, 27.

The newspaper said both men were granted immunity in the stable burning, in which both had admitted taking part, and from federal charges of illegal possession of guns and dynamite bombs and bond jumping. James Earl Grant, 33, T.J. Reddy, 28, and Charles Parker, 25, were convicted in the Lazy B case, where 15 horses perished in a fire in 1972. Grant is serving 25 years, Reddy 20 years and Parker 10.

A fourth man, Clarence Harrison, 27, pleaded guilty and was given a suspended sentence.

In a federal trial three months prior the Lazy B trial, which ended July 15, 1972, Hood and Washington were key witnesses against Grant and civil rights activist Ben Chavis, who were accused of helping Hood

Selecting A Jury For Tony Boyle Is Launched

By LEE LINDER
Associated Press Writer
MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — Jury selection begins today in the trial of the 72-year-old Boyle arrived here Sunday from the Springfield, Mo., federal prison hospital where he is serving three years for illegal use of union funds.

Yablonski, his wife, Margaret, and daughter, Charlotte, were shot by hired killers before dawn on Dec. 31, 1969, as they slept in their secluded southwestern Pennsylvania home in Clarksville.

Boyle's lawyers attempted to delay the trial, claiming the indictment charging conspiracy and murder was defective. They carried their fight to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, which quashed the appeal on Friday after 43 minutes of oral argument. It is expected it will take Special Procutor Richard A. Sprague and chief defense lawyer Charles F. Moses a week to select a jury, and then another three weeks to enter testimony in the courtroom of Common Pleas Judge Francis J. Catania.

More than 100 prosecution witnesses are ready to testify against the ailing Boyle who is still suffering the effects of a sleeping pill suicide attempt last September, three weeks after he was formally charged with the Yablonski murders.

During the trial Boyle will be confined, under guard, at the nearby Riddle Memorial Hospital.

The government alleges the murder conspiracy was hatched in Boyle's fancy Washington, D.C., office on June 23, 1969, when he was battling Yablonski for the presidency, that the killers were paid out of $20,000 embezzled from the union treasury, and that it eventually involved a total of nine persons — eight of whom already have confessed or been convicted. Boyle's union victory was overturned by a federal judge in May 1972 on grounds it was achieved by fraud. Then Boyle was convicted of illegally contributing $49,250 in UMW funds to political candidates. Finally, he lost the presidency to an examiner running on the Yablonski platform.

The trial was shifted to Media from Washington County after Boyle's lawyers said their client couldn't get a fair trial in the coal region where Yablonski lived and worked.
