

Kissinger Assures Russia He'll Keep Continued Contact

By BARRY SCHWEID
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger has promised the Russians he will keep in close touch as he tries to work out an Israeli withdrawal in the Golan Heights.

Kissinger begins his talks with Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan today. He returned Thursday night from his trip to Moscow, which he said failed to accomplish a breakthrough that could lead to a new arms limitation agreement with the Soviets.

Kissinger reports to Nixon before meeting with Dayan.

The secretary clearly expects the Israelis to concede some pre-October War territory on the Golan Heights, possibly even the city of Quneitra, in addition to withdrawing from the ground gained after the joint Yom Kippur attack by Syria and Egypt.

A senior U.S. official said Kissinger hopes to work out outlines of a troop separation agreement separately with Israel and Syria within a month and then swing through the Middle East to nail it down.

Besides his frequent contacts with the Soviets through Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, he intends to enlist the aid of Egypt and Algeria in persuading the Syrians to limit their demands.

Kissinger receives Dayan at the State Department after a tough three-day round of negotiations with the Soviets in Moscow. He had left for the trip hoping to achieve a breakthrough that would lead to a new treaty limiting offensive nuclear weapons. Failing in that, however, he may have gained some ground on Jewish emigration and confirmed that President Nixon intends to go to a Moscow summit with Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Earlier in the day, Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger said that Nixon would not sacrifice U.S. interests in strategic arms talks merely to avoid impeachment problems.

Schlesinger told a news conference that "Anyone who knows President Nixon knows he would do nothing which would compromise national security in the long run irrespective of any political dispute in the United States."

Dayan is bringing his country's latest proposals for a pull-back in the Golan Heights.

Death Threat

HERMOSILLO, Mexico (AP) — The disappearance of American Vice Consul John Patterson was kept secret five days because the ransom note contained a death threat, another American diplomat reported Thursday night.

"That was the main reason we didn't want to break this, because they said if this was published they would carry out the threat," the source said.

Patterson, 31, disappeared last Friday after he left the United States Consulate in Hermosillo with an unidentified man for a livestock meeting. The U.S. Embassy in Mexico City announced Wednesday that he had been kidnaped, and sources in Washington reported a ransom note demanding $500,000 and signed by the People's Revolutionary Army of Mexico had been slipped under the consulate door.

American officials said the U.S. government would not modify its policy of refusing to pay ransom for its employees. But Consul-General Elmer E. Yelton said Patterson's 28-year-old wife "has made every possible effort to follow instructions contained in the ransom note."

"Mrs. Patterson has received no word from her husband or third parties," he said.

The Washington Star-News reported that Patterson's family in Philadelphia had raised $250,000 demanded by the kidnapers as the first part of the ransom. The paper said the first payment was to be made at Nogales, the border town south of Tucson, Ariz.

Will Restructure The Marketing Of Tobacco

RALEIGH (AP)—The Industrywide Flue-Cured Tobacco Marketing Committee has voted to adopt the basic concepts of a new plan calling for restructuring the entire tobacco auction marketing system.

John H. Cyrus, tobacco marketing specialist for the North Carolina Department of Agriculture, said the committee action was taken Thursday. The plan was drawn up by a technical committee earlier this year. Cyrus served on it. The plan reallocates buyers and graders so that all tobacco areas can open for sales when the crop is ready to be sold in the area.

"This will give growers an extra share of sales time when they need it," Cyrus said.

Frank Bryant, committee chairman, said the committee favors a new federal plan which ties leaf price supports to "grower designation."

Under the plan, growers would be guaranteed price supports only if they designate in which warehouse they intend to sell their tobacco.

Cyrus said the committee is awaiting publication of the "grower designation" proposals in the Federal Register.

After the plan is published, all parties wishing to comment on it will be given a few days to do so before Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz makes a final decision.

Cyrus said that under the new marketing plan, growers of each belt would be given equal opportunity to market their tobacco as it becomes ready for market.

He added the amount of tobacco sold in each warehouse at each market would be predetermined.

'Synthetic Tobacco' To Get Try-Out In Britain

LONDON (AP) — Two British cigarette manufacturers plan to buy "synthetic tobacco" from an American company and hope to market a "no-nicotine" cigarette.

The plans were announced Thursday under a five-year agreement between Celanese Corp. of the United States and the Carreras Rothmans and Gallaher groups of cigarette makers. Carreras makes Roth-mans, Piccadilly and Guard cigarettes and Gallaher makes Benson and Hedges and Senior Service.

The companies plan to buy from Celanese Corp. a supply of a synthetic tobacco called Cytrel, said to contain no nicotine and to have tar levels of one-third to one-seventh of the average tar level in leading cigarettes.

The companies also plan to launch immediately with Celanese a $5.9 million research program to determine if cigarettes containing Cytrel would meet government guidelines.

Cigarettes made wholly of Cytrel are unlikely but mixtures of tobacco with perhaps 20 per cent Cytrel are possible, the companies said, and could appear on the market by the end of 1975 or early 1976.

Time Is Running Out On Nixon Files Subpoena

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House lawyer James D. St. Clair and members of the Watergate special prosecutor's staff agreed to meet this afternoon as the deadline approached on the prosecutor's latest demand for presidential files.

No exact time was set. There was no hint from the White House how it will respond to a subpoena from special prosecutor Leon Jaworski for the material.

St. Clair and members of Jaworski's staff have negotiated daily since Monday, when the White House asked for a four-day extension of the deadline to respond to the subpoena.

All that is known about the subpoena is that it does not ask for evidence on the Watergate break-in and cover-up or the 1971 White House plumbers operation that resulted in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Indictments have been returned in those two matters.

It is likely the documents sought by the grand jury through Jaworski bear on the handling of campaign funds.

On another subject, White House spokesman Gerald L. Warren said Thursday it was a matter of court record that tapes do not exist of conversations sought by the House Judiciary Committee which occurred after a recorder ran out of tape.

Warren did not make any estimate of how many conversations might not have been taped as a result of the machine running out of tape, but an analysis of the court documents indicated that perhaps five conversations were not taped.

On Jaworski's demand for additional documents, Warren said the subpoena "is under review and under consideration in the counsel's office."

When pressed on whether the President would comply, he would only say "the President has an abiding interest and dedication to obeying the law."

Neither the White House nor the special prosecutor's office would say what documents or tapes were subpoenaed.

In other Watergate-related developments:

—House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona said he expects the White House and the Judiciary Committee to reach an agreement that will give the committee's impeachment inquiry the pertinent portions of 42 presidential conversations. Press Secretary Ronald

L. Ziegler said Wednesday that the President would not decide how to respond to the request for the 42 conversations until the committee had evaluated the material it already has and then made "more specific and detailed references to the need for any additional material."

—Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, criticized Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe after the Justice Department filed a friend-of-the-court brief opposing the committee's suit seeking five presidential tapes. The suit now is before the U.S. Court of Appeals after it was rejected by a district court judge.

Ervin also accused Saxbe of "violating his solemn agreement ... that he would leave all matters related to Watergate to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski." Saxbe replied through a spokesman that the brief "addressed itself to institutional issues and not to merits in the case."

—Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., revealed a White House memorandum to former presidential counsel John W. Dean III alluding to possible surreptitious entry into a Washington think tank.

Minimum Pay Hike Measure Awaits Nixon

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Backers of a bill to increase minimum wage rates set eight years ago predict President Nixon will sign it, even though it is much like one he vetoed last year.

The Senate and House in quick succession and by big margins Thursday passed the bill that would begin a series of increases May 1, eventually raising the minimum from the present $1.60 an hour for most workers to $2.30 for all.

Deputy White House Press Secretary Gerald L. Warren said Nixon will not decide whether to sign the measure until the Office of Management and Budget reviews it. But House Republican Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona offered to bet reporters $100 that Nixon will approve it. It is a compromise between earlier versions.

The bill extends minimum wage protection to an additional 7 million persons, for a total of 56 million covered. Those brought in include 5 million federal, state and local employees and 1 million domestics.

The bill provides that full time students may be employed at 85 per cent of the regular minimum, but for not more than 20 hours a week and under regulations intended to provide that they do not displace regular employees.

Beginning next Jan. 1, police and firemen for the first time would be made eligible for overtime, under special rules allowing hours worked to accumulate over four weeks. The number of hours worked before overtime applies would diminish year by year. Police and fire forces of less than five would be exempt.

Vote To Recodify Leaving Thailand

RALEIGH (AP) — The House voted 98-6 today to approve a bill that would rewrite and codify North Carolina law dealing with local school budget procedure and fiscal control. The bill was held for further action Tuesday.

Rep. Lane Brown, D-Stanly, sponsor of the measure, said it has been amended so that it would give the final say-so on local school spending to county commissioners. He said the county commissioners now favor the measure.

Brown said the "bill is absolutely necessary if we are going to have standard auditing of tax funds at the local school level."

The House passed and enacted a bill that would extend to July 1, 1975 a law which requires a permit from the state Board of Water and Air Resources before an oil refinery can be built in North Carolina.

Tornadoes Hit In Louisiana

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Tornadoes skipped across northern Louisiana Thursday night, injuring three persons and causing scattered damage.

A tornado dipped down about seven miles southeast of Ruston and injured three residents of the Choudrant area.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — The United States will begin withdrawing about 8,000 troops from Thailand in mid-May and will send home a number of warplanes, including B52 bombers, Thai and U.S. officials announced today.

The reduction of U.S. forces in Thailand by nearly a fourth will leave about 27,000 American troops in the country, the smallest number since 1966, U.S. spokesmen said.

No deadline was set for completion of the withdrawal.

A number of politically influential Thais have been demanding that the U.S. presence be cut drastically or eliminated to keep from endangering the improvement taking place in Thailand's relations with China. Some members of the U.S. Congress also have urged recently that the American force be reduced.

The U.S. force in Thailand includes about 35,000 servicemen stationed at six air bases and a port facility, about 300 fighters and fighter-bombers and about 50 B52 heavy bombers.

Since the American bombing in Cambodia stopped last Aug. 15, the planes have been flying reconnaissance and supply missions in Indochina. But high-ranking U.S. officials have said the principal reason for their presence is to deter North Vietnamese action in South Vietnam.

Response

NEW YORK (AP) — The Democratic response to President Nixon's radio speech on education will be broadcast Saturday on three radio networks.

ABC and NBC said the Democratic spokesman for their broadcasts would be Rep. John Brademas of Indiana, whose speech was to be aired at 12:07 p.m. EDT on ABC and 3:05 p.m. on NBC.

CBS said Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island would speak at 12:07 p.m.

Solzhenitsyn And His Family Reunited Today In Zurich, Switzerland

By ROGER LEDDINGTON
Associated Press Writer

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Alexander Solzhenitsyn and his family were joyously reunited in Zurich today 44 days after the Nobel Prize-winning author was banished from Russia.

Holding a small bouquet of red and white carnations, he boarded the Swissair jet that brought them from Moscow. His wife rushed into his arms, they embraced silently for 30 seconds, then he broke away and kissed his four children and mother-in-law.

Solzhenitsyn refused to speak to newsmen. But his wife, Natalya, said she thought her husband "is looking fine. Now all is well."

Carrying two sons, Ignat, 11 months, and Yermolai, 3, in his arms, the bearded, 55-year-old writer stepped down the ramp and marched past some 200 newsmen and photographers to waiting limousines.

He hurriedly walked back to the plane to help his wife bring her luggage and other children to the cars.

Solzhenitsyn appeared concerned about the massive load of old suitcases in the plane's hold, and as soon as his family was safely in the cars, he dashed back to the plane to get two large suitcases.

Chatting with an interpreter about the remaining luggage, the writer put the suitcases into the cars and flipped them open to check the books and papers jammed inside before leaving the airport for his rented home in Zurich. The remaining baggage was to follow later.

Before arriving, Mrs. Solzhenitsyn said she and her family would probably remain at home for three or four days until "newsmen leave."

The happy arrival was in marked contrast to the family's tearful departure from Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport four hours earlier.

Adjustments Boards OK 4 Requests

Four requests submitted before the City-County and Greenville Boards of Adjustments were granted Thursday night and two others were tabled until the April meeting.

The City-County Board approved a request by Marion M. Mills for a special use permit in order to place two mobile homes on property located approximately one-half mile west of Red Oak Christian Church.

No opposition to the request was voiced during a public hearing on the matter. The property is zoned for RA-20 usage.

A request by Mrs. Maggie Eason for a special use permit in order to place a mobile home on property located at Rt. 7, Greenville (Hooker Road) was granted by the City Board with the stipulation that the permit would remain in effect as long as Mrs. Eason's mother resides in the mobile home.

The Board approved a request for a variance by George J. MacMillan who proposed to place an addition on the west side of the structure located at 954 Shade Lane. A public hearing was held and no opposition was voiced.

A public hearing was also held on a request for a special use permit by Philippi Church of Christ in order to construct a church on property located on the north side of Farmville Boulevard, just east of the E. F. Craven Co. property. The Board granted the request.

Requests for special use permits by Tim Eisenman and Tommie L. Little & Associates were withdrawn prior to the meeting. The board tabled until the April meeting requests by Larry Whitlow for an administrative review and by Carolina Dairy Products for a variance.

Engagement Announced Avila College President Relates To The Contemporary Society

MISS LUCILLE HOWARD... is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lodreg Howard of Farmville, who announce her engagement to Harry C. Gibbs, son of Mrs. Inez Gibbs of Snow Hill, and the late Mr. Emanuel Gibbs. The wedding will take place May 11.

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
She is "not afraid of not having an endowment fund and not afraid of trends in education," but Sister Olive Louise, C.S.J., the pretty, serene president of Avila College in Kansas City, Mo., is afraid that a college will have trouble "if we lose contact with people in their needs."

Needs are experienced by mature members of a community as well as traditional students, she said.

"One concept exploded is that college is for youth. It is for the whole community," she insists. "We must provide education for the times, and we must keep asking ourselves questions so that we can move ahead with surety."

In New York to accept an award "for having turned a small secular school into a fine college with diversified faculty and a student body representing all faiths," she was one of 14 women honored by Germaine Monteil in a program that has singled out more than 300 women in the last four years for "volunteerism." Other women were honored for their participation in the fields of health, education, diplomacy, racial and religious understanding and politics.

During the 10 years Sister Olive Louise has headed the college she has guided the institution to wider horizons — older people and low income individuals can get college education through career opportunity programs in conjunction with federally funded programs — and she has expanded the facilities of the college from one to seven buildings. It has also grown steadily in enrollment as some other colleges have not.

"We have opened a fully-accredited testing center where students of all ages may test out courses. Classes need not be attended. They are given books to study and they may take tests. We offer as many hours as they can handle and the hours of education earned are applicable to a baccalaureate degree," she said.

Evening classes are often tailored to a student's time. Sometimes they are scheduled for one evening to help save fuel or baby sitting expenses.

"We must be flexible, cooperative, adaptable and mindful of a purpose," she said. "We always have been interested in service areas of nursing and teaching. In developing such programs in depth you are not taking a big risk in time or personnel. We are in special education since 1962 for children with learning disabilities."

"The difficulty is in trying to decide what is important. For example, shall we go into early childhood education? I am convinced the child's early years — from 3 on — are very important. We now have the only fully accredited Montessori teaching program in the United States."

They have also prepared a program whereby women in nursing with a three-year diploma can earn a college degree.

Young people's needs are important in a changing world, Sister Olive Louise added. A class in sex, love and marriage is incorporated in the religious studies program.

"It is more healthy for young people to discuss such things as they do in Europe. Here we have been sort of puritanical in that respect. Colleges must provide more than just a college degree — the individual wants more. Students are asking for personal and academic counseling."

As a religious — she entered the convent 35 years ago at 17 — she is concerned that although children want church, they do not want a structured one. But a campus ministry is part of student services where students help plan liturgy readings, rock 'n' roll masses and the like. Less than half the students in the Catholic college are Catholic.

We must try to get away from the superficial, she remarked. In that respect she chose modern dress which "has definite advantages." The nun's habit dragged on floors, got soaked in the rain, and caught in elevators, she recalled. Then, too, "it wasn't especially in place, either, when you were at a meeting of college presidents, particularly men."

"It was the dress of the particular times, a mystique with too much structure. It didn't relate meaningfully to contemporary society."

Don't Write Off Friendship Now

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: A lady friend of mine just got out of the hospital [nothing serious] so I stopped by her home at noon to see if there was anything I could do for her, and I must say I have never been so hurt in all my life!

She opened the door just a crack and when she saw me she said, "You've got a nerve to come over without phoning first—I'm still in my nightgown!" Then she slammed the door in my face!

Heck, I have seen her in her nightgown before. A friendship of many years has been broken.

Please answer soon and tell me what I should do.
VICTORIA, B. C.

DEAR VIC: The lady obviously overreacted. Having just come out of the hospital she could have been highly nervous and very touchy. Don't write off the friendship now. Give her a little more time to get back to normal.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are an average young couple, except for one thing. My husband sometimes likes to have me spank him. And I enjoy spanking him, too. It's like the good, old-fashioned spanking kids used to get. He lies across my lap and I spank him quite hard on his bare bottom. This is sort of a part of our sexual relations.

It seems harmless enough since we both enjoy these spankings, but I have begun to wonder does this mean that there is something wrong with us? Have you ever heard of this before?
NAMELESS IN OHIO

DEAR NAMELESS: Yes, but as long as it remains within harmless bounds and takes place by mutual consent, and in private, it doesn't necessarily constitute a problem. However, should it ever seem to be getting out of control, then you and your husband should seek psychiatric counseling without delay.

DEAR ABBY: Our cat, Don Gato, is our problem. You see, we have two dogs and they are rather mean. One of them licked Don Gato's head till he was bald, and the other played so rough with him that Don Gato nearly lost an eye and ended up ruptured.

It's really not the fault of the dogs. They are chained up outside and Don Gato teases them.

Don't tell me to keep Don Gato in the house. We can't because he won't use the litter box.
NERVOUS

DEAR NERVOUS: If Don Gato, presumably running free, can't stay away from two mean dogs, Don Gato is a dumb cat. If you've penned Don Gato in with the dogs, Don Gato has a dumb owner. In this case, it's the dogs, two to one, so unless Don Gato really has nine lives, keep him locked up—away from the dogs.

Saturday Will Be Doctors' Day

Saturday is Doctor's Day, and area physicians will be honored by the Pitt County Medical Society Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary annually presents a gift to the community in honor of physicians, both living and dead, of the community. This year's gift is books having to do with medicine and the medical profession for the Children's Room of Sheppard Memorial Library. The presentation was made to Mrs. Mary Hess, Children's Librarian, by Mrs. Ben Shappley and Mrs. Joseph Kopinski.

The Auxiliary also has placed notices of Doctor's Day throughout Pitt Memorial Hospital and the East Carolina University Medical School and will honor county doctors on an individual basis, Mrs. Shappley said.

The date March 30 on which Auxiliaries annually observe Doctor's Day is the anniversary of the day Georgia physician Dr. Crawford W. Long first used ether as an anesthetic in surgery, thus revolutionizing the use of surgery in the treatment of human ills.

Next Naval Chief May Usher In A New Phase

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon's selection of Adm. James L. Holloway III to become the Navy's new chief signals the end of a turbulent period of reform that split the Navy officer corps.

When Holloway takes the helm from Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt Jr. as chief of naval operations three months from today, he is expected to usher in a new phase, during which the pace of change will be slowed.

The new CNO is not likely to reverse course, but probably will move to strengthen command authority. Critics said authority of ship and base commanders was eroded under Zumwalt's pressure for greater consultation with lower ranks, relaxed restrictions on hair and dress, emphasis on minority recognition and other measures intended to improve Navy life.

Officers who have worked closely with Holloway say he has "a feel for the traditional." Secretary of the Navy John W. Warner felt it was time for a middle-of-the-road CNO, and Holloway was his choice. That choice was endorsed by Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger.

Navy sources said Holloway took no part in the factional infighting between pro- and anti-Zumwalt factions, and this probably helped win him the job.

Under the law, Zumwalt could not be reappointed to an additional four-year term. Associates say they have not heard what he plans to do after he retires, although there have been rumors Zumwalt might go into politics in his home state of California.

The 52-year-old Holloway, born in South Carolina and son of an admiral, brings a new dimension to the office of CNO. He is the first expert in nuclear ship propulsion to rise that high.

Warned Display 1974 Licenses

WINTERTVILLE—Police Chief Bill Whitehurst said today that local residents may face court action if they fail to display 1974 municipal registration plates on their cars and trucks and continue to let their dogs run at large.

According to Whitehurst, "the time has expired on 1973" Winterville registration plates. Continued display of the old tags and failure to purchase and display new 1974 license plates "will result in endictment," he said.

And according to the chief, residents who let their dogs run at large, in violation of the town's leash law, will also face endictment.

According to Whitehurst, dogs may run at large on their owners' property, but must be on a leash when they leave the owners' yard at any time.

Faces Trial After Cure

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A 6-6, 365-pound Gastonia, N.C., man will be charged with murder in Gastonia when he recovers from six bullet wounds allegedly inflicted by a companion, authorities said here Thursday.

The wounded man, Leon T. Revels, 33, remained in serious condition at the Atlantic City Medical Center, where he was admitted Tuesday evening.

Charles W. Goodson, 29, also of Gastonia, has been charged with atrocious assault and battery in the shooting. He told police he shot Revels while he was sleeping because Revels had threatened to kill him.

Revels feared Goodson would tell police that Revels fatally stabbed John Mize, 60, in Gastonia two weeks ago, Goodson told police.

Goodson and Revels were part of an interstate car theft ring and had fled here a week ago, he told police.

Testing Is Almost Done

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Federal and state officials say they're almost finished testing millions of Mississippi chickens suspected of containing excessive levels of a cancer-causing pesticide.

T. H. Etheridge, chairman of the National Broiler Council and a Mississippi poultryman, predicted eight million chickens would have to be destroyed.

"We estimate that the loss to the producer per bird will exceed $1 when you figure the value of the bird itself, the loss of production and the costs of destroying and burying the birds," he said.

The birds are killed with carbon monoxide gas, then buried. Dr. A. J. Clark, Mississippi supervisor of the federal meat and poultry inspection program, said Thursday all but seven broiler producer operations in the state have been found free of contamination.

Of the seven suspect farms, five are proceeding this week with the slaughter of thousands of chickens found to contain unsafe levels of dieldrin, which the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency says can cause cancer.

The other two farms have received a feed ingredient contaminated with the pesticide, Clark said. Poultry from these farms are being tested for the chemical before marketing.

Why Didn't Tar Heels Do It?

The development of many thousands of acres of eastern North Carolina land into foreign-owned crop-factories is a fact of life difficult to approve or disapprove.

Once it's drained and cleared, vast areas of idle land will be ready for agriculture suited to mass production. The rich soil is relatively flat and very adaptable to mechanized farming on an economical scale.

The multi-million dollar question is: Why didn't Tar Heels do it? Surely the idea has been floating around for a long time.

Was there a scarcity of investment capital? Are interest rates a prohibitive obstacle to the inherent gamble in any farming operation?

We wish we knew the answers. We do know that mechanization has required and brought about an agricultural trend to farming operations on a vast scale; Today's visionary farmer dreams in terms of thousands of acres cultivated and harvested by brigades of specialized machines.....a corporate entity, if you please.....an operation that dwarfs long-held concepts.

Rules Of Road Seeing Change

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—To some, highway safety is just a tired cliché, and "rules of the road" are burdensome complexities which punish people.

Not to Rep. George W. Miller Jr., D-Durham.

To him, highway safety is living, breathing people and the chance to keep some more alive, and keep them from getting hurt.

As chairman of the House Highway Safety Committee, Miller often finds himself in the middle of a battle—especially this year as he had led a major rewrite of the state's rules of the road to keep them more in tune with changing times and driving habits and has been pushing five major proposals dealing with highway safety in addition.

Miller is pleased at the declining accident and death rate in the state, and sees it as the result of a complex set of circumstances, including better roads, safer cars, better training for drivers, and better enforcement.

Some Erosion
"But I'm concerned that I also see some direction in this General Assembly to erode some of the measures—and some of the progress made in the past.

"I don't want to see us chipping away at what has been accomplished.

"If we do too much of that, it won't be very long before we begin to see the results of that showing up in some increase in highway accidents," Miller said.

He is concerned that the state will drop the mandatory requirement for re-examination and licensing for every driver every four years. That process, he feels, was a prime means of keeping drivers informed of change in the law.

"The very people who needed that the most are the ones who complained," Miller said, and noted that there is a direct link between failing the license procedure and the accident rate.

He is pleased with some other measures adopted: the requirement that a breathalyzer test be taken if driving drunk is suspected; the authority to give the test before an arrest is made.

A battle is still underway on the proposal that blowing .10 on the breathalyzer is tantamount to conviction of drunk driving.

Seize Car
Upcoming is a measure making loss of driving privileges mandatory on a drunk driving conviction, and one which would provide that the vehicle could be seized and sold by the state if a person were caught driving after a license revocation.

Miller is also engaged in an educational campaign on seat belt use, and is pondering future legislation making that mandatory.

"The main point is to reduce fatal accidents and serious injury—not to interfere with personal freedom," Miller said. He thinks enforcement would not be the main thrust of the legislation, but that the majority of the drivers would comply voluntarily.

Key points, Miller said, are a willingness of the people to accept such a measure and recognize that lives could be saved, and improvements in the design of belts by auto makers to provide more comfortable and easily used belts.

While he has won a few and lost a few, Miller thinks on balance it has been a pretty good year for highway safety.

"If we get just some of these things done, we will have at least focused the attention of the General Assembly and the public on the need for continuing examination of our laws—and that progress," he said.

He thinks the package of measures in the rewritten rules of the law will pass without too much difficulty.

That package includes provisions to keep speed its lowered to 55 miles per hour on state roads; 60 on interstate or limited access roads.

It would also make road construction vehicles subject to driving regulations; prohibit backing up on a highway; require stopping for any bus carrying school children even when the bus doesn't have a flashing signal; allow traffic to drive in all lanes of an interstate highway at all times, no keeping right except to pass; and require left turns before reaching the center of an intersection so meeting cars would pass in front of each other instead of behind when turning left.

True, the foreign-owned farm businesses are going to spend large sums of money in North Carolina; and many North Carolinians are going to be employed. But the products are intended for sale and consumption abroad.

North Carolina could use that kind of business, too.

Tobacco Will Continue A Big Economic Factor

Tobacco will continue to be a major economic factor in North Carolina for many years into the future.

This was indicated at the tobacco history symposium sponsored by the ECU Institute for Historical Research in Tobacco this week.

Bill Humphries, agriculture editor at N. C. State University, told the gathering that tobacco put about $1 billion into the national economy in 1973 and about $700,000,000 into the State economy.

We can expect tobacco to continue to be important to North Carolina and to our area in particular.

John Conally's Bleak Prospect

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
RALEIGH, N.C.—Moments after former Democrat John B. Conally delivered a brief, inspirational talk to Republicans packed into the governor's mansion here last week, a Republican candidate for office said:

"He's a pro all right, but he hasn't been in the stable long."

Coming almost one year after Conally switched to the Republican party as the first step toward a probable run for President in 1976, that remark underlines his continuing problems. He is simply not taken all that seriously, even here in a state ideal for Conally-style conservatism, as Republican presidential timber.

The only presidential prospects discussed in high party circles here are Vice President Gerald Ford, far in front, and Gov. Ronald Reagan of California. In fact, apart from his presidential ambitions, Conally's services as a campaigner for Republican candidates this year are considered only marginally useful in North Carolina.

"Conally would help me with money," said one such Republican candidate, "but he'd lose as many votes for me as he'd make."

The reason: Conally is a Republican to the Democrats—but he is still a Democrat to Republicans—in short, a man without a party. Moreover, his politically inept defense of President Nixon may not hurt him in the South, but it is not helping either.

In private, he tells intimates the President was incredibly naive to give his controversial tax returns to the House-Senate Internal Revenue Committee and incredibly stupid to have secretly taped all those Oval Office conversations. But in public he fully defends the President whenever asked, contending Mr. Nixon may be turning the tide with his new defense strategy and ex-coriating House Judiciary Committee demands for more White House documents.

A longtime political ally protests: "Conally thinks about Nixon and national politics like they think in Dallas and Dallas just ain't the U. S. A."

Ironically these Republican criticisms of the ruggedly handsome, 57-year-old Conally persist despite his phenomenally successful tour as a party fund-raiser, starting last September and due to end this spring. Conally has now sweetened party and candidate coffers by nearly $3 million when Watergate and rancid hostility toward President Nixon have locked many Republican purses.

Indeed, aside from Ford, Conally is the only national Republican kicking in 10 per cent of his gross fund-raising take (except for money raised in Texas) to the Republican National Committee. Nor do local party organizations have to finance his expenses, as they do the Vice President's and his vast traveling entourage.

Although some state and local Republican chairmen have complained about Conally's 10 per cent rule, it certainly has not cut the high demand for his services. When his current tour ends, he will have appeared in 38 states and Washington D.C. His drawing power is all the more remarkable considering that he holds no office.

When he arrived in Raleigh, for example, Republican Gov. James Holshouser gave a reception for which 206 contributors, Republicans and Democrats, paid $100 a head to shake hands and hear a five-minute talk. At a strictly nonpolitical annual dinner that evening given by the prestigious Citizens' Assn., Conally's appearance drew 1,250 guests—300 more than the dinner had ever drawn before.

Conally, in short is star quality. But the political dividends of his stardom appear to be going to the Republican party and individual candidates he has agreed to help, not to John Bowden Conally.

The tumultuous excitement that surrounded him last fall, when President Nixon seemed on the verge of naming him to succeed the fallen Spiro T. Agnew, has vanished. Ever since, he has been strictly on his own.

To intimates, Conally now seems less enthusiastic about the presidency than before, not because he doesn't want it but because the only way to get it is full commitment to the primaries, a treacherous path for one so briefly in the Republican party.

Conally is philosophical about his changed circumstance. Frequently reminding intimates how much he values his privacy, he knows a decision to run in the post-Watergate climate

Strength For Today

THINKING OF THE LITTLE FELLOW

The merchant prince, John Wanamaker, founder of the department store that bears his name, was a great figure in the religious life of his native Philadelphia. He presided over one of the largest Sunday schools in the world and it was said that he knew the name of every child in that school. One evening he was told that one of his pupils, suffering from a nervous malady, was refusing to eat and the doctors feared for his life.

After dinner on that same evening Mr. Wanamaker called for a cup of custard and two spoons and was driven to the boy's home in the slums of Philadelphia. The surprised parents took him to the room where the boy lay. "Billy," said Mr. Wanamaker cheerfully, "our cook made a cup of custard and I thought I would drive down here so that we could eat it together." The boy looked startled, then with a wan smile took the spoon. The obsession was broken and he and the great man who thought of the little fellow sat down and ate out of the same dish.

The Cuban Cigar Caper

WASHINGTON—I went to Canada the other day and was shocked to see that the Canadians were selling Cuban cigars.

"How can you sell Cuban cigars," I asked a friend in Toronto, "when the United States, your closest ally and friend, has an embargo on them?"

"What's wrong with selling Cuban cigars?" he asked.

"What's wrong with selling Cuban cigars?" I said angrily. "Don't you know that Cuba is a Communist country?"

"So is the Soviet Union," he replied. "That doesn't seem to bother you from selling Pepsi-Cola to them."

"That's different," I said.

"We're selling Pepsi to the Russians because of the detente. We don't have a detente with Cuba."

"But the Soviets have been shafting you on practically everything since the detente. Yet you're giving them wheat and pushing their vodka in the United States."

"You're trying to confuse the issues," I said. "The Soviet Union is a major power. If we didn't give them wheat and Pepsi-Cola, and didn't agree to sell their vodka, we might face a confrontation which nobody wants. Cuba is too small to give us any trouble, that's why we put an embargo on her cigars."

"Just out of curiosity, what good is the embargo on Cuban cigars?"

"It's our way of showing Cuba we will not stand for military dictatorships in the Western Hemisphere."

"What about the military dictatorships in Brazil, Chile and Paraguay?" he asked.

"They don't make Cuban cigars," I retorted. "It seems to me that Canada should be as concerned about communism as the United States."

"Well," said my friend, "if you're so concerned about communism, how come you keep sending Kissinger to China?"

"One-third of the people in the world live in China. We can't ignore them even though we don't agree with their system of government. Besides, China is a long way from the United States. Cuba is just around the corner."

My Canadian friend was not convinced.

He said, "Do you know who buys most of the Cuban cigars in Canada?"

"Who?"

"Americans. The Americans come up here and smuggle them back into the United States."

"I don't believe you," I said. "No American would smoke a Cuban cigar while the embargo was on."

"It's true. Cuban cigars are much too expensive for Canadian tastes. Besides we don't buy them here because they're too easy to get. But it's a big deal for an American to get a real Havana."

"If what you tell me is true, it's outrageous. I think Canada owes it to the United States to refuse to sell Cuban cigars to Americans."

Costly Aerial Flop

By ELIAS ANTAR
Associated Press Writer
PARIS (AP)—The new British government appears ready to write off the Concorde supersonic airliner as one of the costliest commercial flops in history.

The French government wants to expand the joint project and build more of the big, needle-nosed planes.

British Industry Minister Anthony Wedgwood Benn is meeting today in Paris with Aymar Achille-Fould, the French secretary of state for transport, to discuss the Concorde's future. French officials have said they plan to go through with the program despite the British hesitation and growing disaffection among the French public.

When conceived in the 1960s, the Concorde was enthusiastically backed by the French people. But a poll last week showed that 45 per cent of those asked favored abandonment of the plane to cut down government spending.

The two governments are spending an estimated $2.3 billion to develop a plane that by 1976 will be carrying only about 100 passengers from London to New York in 3½ hours.

The plane now costs about $60 million each to build, and the British Aircraft Corp. and Aerospatiale have 16 of them in the works. But only nine have been sold — to British Airways and Air France, which means that the British and French governments are selling them to themselves.

Commercial airlines have dropped more than 20 options to buy. A secret French government report is said to estimate that no more than 33 of the planes can be sold on the world market. The rising cost of jet fuel has added to the airlines' doubts that they can make a profit on Concorde travel.

40 Years Ago Today

Local baseball fans have been urged to attend a baseball meeting in the city hall at 7:30 p.m. tonight. The meeting is held to make plans for the coming season and to elect club officers.

Another meeting is planned to form a six town league and will be held here on April 11. Officers elected tonight will represent Greenville at the meeting.

The Civil Works Administration is over. With the closing down of each job this afternoon, the CWA program came to an end.

The workers will receive pay checks drawn on the United States Treasury and signed by the assistant disbursing agent of the Federal CWA for the last time on Saturday.

Approximately 300 workers were left to receive checks. A new plan, providing that only those people who are in actual want for the necessities of life will be employed.

The wages paid for work will be between 30 and 75 cents per hour instead of the 45 cent minimum and $1.10 maximum originally paid by the CWA.

Other Editors Say The First Stone?

(Chapel Hill Newspaper)
If the Congress follows what the Good Book tells us about letting him who is without sin cast the first stone, it is highly doubtful that the House will impeach President Nixon, the Senate convict, or that either chamber will be able to muster a quorum.

It turns out now that the milk industry, which everybody had always put right next to Mother Nature in probity and all-around goodness, not only bought off the Nixon administration, but senators, House members, and in one state, Iowa, the whole confounded Democratic Party.

Everyone so tainted is pretty much following the President's lead in pleading ignorance and therefore accepting the responsibility but not the blame. There will also soon be a nationwide Hallelujah chorus, no doubt, of "I am not a crook."

One remarkable aspect of the latest disclosures is that the milk industry's bagmen headed unerringly for presidential candidates: Senators Hubert Humphrey and Harold Hughes, Rep. Wilbur Mills, and, of course, Our Leader himself. From the office generally figured to be one that exalts, automatically puts a candidate on the take. There was also a little milk money for the campaigns of other less visible congressmen and at least a couple of governors, which might lead you to conclude that they were presidential hopefuls too, only keeping their ambitions well disguised.

What all of this says about politics and politicians is something many of the Great Unwashed out here had already begun to suspect rather strongly: that hogs at the public trough, those already slopping and those pushing and shoving to get to the front, are without conscience, largely without honor among themselves, as are other thieves, and generally have a child-like tendency to confuse right and wrong while sloughing off all suggestions of blame.

It also helps to explain the high cost of milk.

Is Small Business Oppressed?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP)—"We have condoned and inadvertently encouraged the manipulation of the national economy for the benefit of the big, and at the expense of the small," the writers of the document declared.

Fiery words recalled uprisings of the oppressed, with frequent references to vital decisions made by "a handful of faceless but powerful men," the "infiltration of government agencies," and "trading seats of management between big business and big government."

"What has been proposed," conceded the head of the group that prepared the document, "is revolutionary." His name: Ken Anderson, an Illinois businessman and president of the National Small Business Association.

The association, which promotes itself as "the voice of small business," doesn't as effectively spell out its interpretation of what makes a small business, but it does offer guidelines, such as:

—A small business usually has fewer than 500 employees, a big business more than 5,000.

—A small business usually is a proprietorship, partnership or closely held corporation; a big business is usually publicly owned, listed on a stock exchange or traded in the over-the-counter market.

According to the NSBA, small business is oppressed not only by government and labor, but by big business.

In a presentation this week to members of Congress, the group called for adoption of a national policy to restore to small business "the competitive balance lost to big business, big government and big labor."

"The small-and medium-size firms have been injured because the economic policies of our country have benefited the very special interest of three-tenths of 1 per cent of big business and 25 per cent of the labor force," the group insists.

In 1972, it maintains, "a handful of economically powerful giants—only 350-controlled 69 per cent of the assets in corporate manufacturing. These same companies, representing less than one-third of 1 per cent of the country's manufacturing firms received almost 73 per cent of the profits."

In numbers, the association concedes, small business is holding its own, with 10.5 million firms accounting for 98 per cent of the country's total business units, "but in market share, assets and profits, small business is losing ground disastrously."

To these small businessmen, such trends aren't the result of competition or the product of chance. Government policy, they claim, is too often guided by big business and sometimes big labor.

For example, the association claims that in 1969 the effective tax rate of the nation's largest 100 corporate giants was 26.9 per cent, but that smaller companies paid an average rate of about 44 per cent.

The association wants by 1976 the enactment of a national policy to help small and medium business "catch up," and by 1989 a doubling of its share of the market.

To advance these goals it seeks, among other things, a Cabinet-level department of small business, a lowering of capital gains taxes to spur investment and a progressive tax on mergers and acquisitions.

GOODBYE WOODPECKERS—This 11,000 pound utility pole, purchased by Greenville Utilities, will not make a very good home for woodpeckers. Made of concrete, two 75 foot poles were delivered from Cape Charles, Va., to the main VEPCO sub-station in Meadowbrook this week. The new poles will be used at the new sub-station near the Proctor and Gamble plant that will serve Meadowbrook area residents. The concrete poles were purchased because conventional wooden poles could not be delivered on time. According to Greenville Utilities, the concrete poles are the first of their type to be used in this area. Although their cost is slightly higher than conventional poles, they carry more weight, last longer and are not susceptible to woodpeckers. (Reflector photo by Carl Tyer)

Other Planning-Zoning Action

The Planning and Zoning Commission, meeting Wednesday night, voted to recommend to the City Council that two acres located near the intersection of W. Sixth Street and Memorial Drive and another 13,000 square feet at the intersection be rezoned from Medical Arts to Shopping Center.

The requests were submitted by Dr. Donald Tucker on behalf of Doctors Ed Clement, Robert Deyton, Edgar Douglas and William Fore, and by Dr. George Salle. Both requests originally sought rezoning from Medical Arts to Downtown Commercial Fringe but they were changed last night to stipulate Shopping Center after objections to CDF were voiced by the commission.

Clement told the board that no immediate plans for developing the land have been made by the owners but it was felt that the property could be utilized better under a zoning classification other than Medical Arts. He noted that a medical office cluster has already been developed utilizing the major portion of land owned by the doctors prior to the purchase of the land along Memorial Drive.

Clement said that the area would be very hard to develop under Medical Arts zoning since it is isolated along the highway. He said that it is felt that there is ample area presently zoned for Medical Arts to meet future needs.

Mrs. Ruth Trevathan asserted that rezoning of the land to a commercial or shopping center usage would put the board in a poor position when hearing other requests for commercial zoning from medical arts.

Clement pointed out that, "I feel that somewhere in medical arts property areas, there has to be some provisions for commercial development." He emphasized that the doctors have no plans at this time to develop the land.

The requests were approved with Mrs. Trevathan voting against the rezoning recommendation.

A request by Calvary Baptist Church of rezoning from Unoffensive Industry to Office and Institutional of church property located at 1412 Holbert Street was denied. City Planner John Schofield said that he and the city building inspector felt that the character of the surrounding areas as being principally industrial warranted the continuation of the unoffensive industry zoning.

The church had earlier received permission from the city to operate a book store at the church. The permit was granted since it was felt that the book store could be considered a related use.

A request by William Jones and Luke Best of City Cab Co. for rezoning of the lot at the corner of W. Fifth Street and Albemarle Avenue from R-6 to Downtown Commercial Fringe was approved and will be recommended to the City Council. Attorney Richard Powell said that Jones and Best planned to convert the abandoned service station at the location into a taxi office.

The board also approved a request by Amos Evans that approximately one-half acre on Lakeview Drive near Lakeview Terrace be rezoned from RA-20 to R-6. Evans told the board that he planned to use the land for construction of a duplex or a house.

A preliminary plat of Section II of Lake Ellsworth Subdivision, submitted by Phil Dickerson, was approved after a study of the checklist indicated that requirements had been met.

A request by Red Oak Christian Church and G. A. Case for rezoning a two-acre tract near the intersection of U. S. 264 Business and U. S. 264 Bypass from RA-20 to Neighborhood Commercial was approved and will be recommended to the City Council.

Bill Ipock, who noted that he proposes to buy the property said that he planned to build a convenience store there and asserted that he felt the site would be an ideal place to offer goods and services to the people of the area.

He said that the location of the property at the intersection would not make it a feasible location for a residential structure. Ipock noted that the current property owners complied with his intention to put a convenience store on the tract.

N.C. Hospital Costs Will See Rise In 1974

By The Associated Press
A hospital stay will cost seven to 10 per cent more in North Carolina this year, officials say.

The North Carolina Hospital Association says its latest figures, for 1972, showed the state was the 10th cheapest.

Then, the average per patient per day was $76.46 in North Carolina, compared with Alaska, $144.24, the highest, and Wyoming, $66.14, the lowest.

In surrounding states, the costs were: South Carolina, $72.50, Virginia, $86.61, and Tennessee, $86.67, according to Don Woodin, public information director of the association.

Blue Cross Blue Shield spokesman H. C. Cranford said, "We do expect costs to continue to rise. It would be unrealistic to assume they would not go up with all the inflation we've had." His estimate was 7.5 per cent.

Hospitals are consumers of goods and services, just like people, and are being hit by the same inflation plaguing the public, Woodin said.

He said the association's 163 member institutions are paying 50 per cent more for fuel over the same time a year ago and, "Food has gone completely out the top."

Harold C. Green, director of Charlotte Memorial Hospital, said food is costing his institution 29.5 per cent more than it was a year ago.

Green echoed Woodin's stand. "With or without controls, our costs will go up by about eight per cent this year."

Jere Witherspoon of the Duke Endowment estimated a "10 per cent or less" increase, and said that wasn't too bad, compared with recent years. "The increases are decreasing," he said.

In 1969-70, there was an increase of 17 per cent in the amount it cost a person to stay in the hospital for a day, compared to 10 per cent in 1971-72, Witherspoon said.

"Hospital administrators are trying to keep costs down," he said. "Now, health care has been slowed down to reflect the increases in the general economy." The endowment subsidizes hospitals for charity patients.

Treat 35 Children After Circus Trip

CHARLOTTE (AP)—Thirty-five Polk County schoolchildren were treated for stomach cramps and nausea after attending the circus Thursday. But doctors who treated and then released them at a Charlotte hospital stopped short of calling the illness food poisoning.

"A lot of it's probably hysteria," said Dr. William Zeller, a family practitioner and pediatrician. He was among six doctors called to assist the three already on duty in the emergency room.

The children became ill on buses taking them home after they had seen the 4:15 p.m. performance of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus in the Charlotte Coliseum. They were among 165 youngsters from six schools who traveled to the circus in three buses from Polk County 75 miles west of Charlotte.

About 5,000 persons attended the late-afternoon performance. Paul Buck, manager of the coliseum, said no one reported sick to the first-aid room of the coliseum, and he knew of no other illnesses among those attending the show.

Dr. Zeller said, "If it's food poisoning, some of it may not show up for six to eight hours."

A Mecklenburg County Health Department inspector went to the coliseum late Thursday to take samples of the food.

Discover Sycamore Fast Pulp Source

SAVANNAH, Ga. (AP) — Researchers say they have developed a process which could double the production of newsprint from American forests.

William L. Belvin, director of Herty Foundation Laboratories, said Thursday the process, called "silage sycamore," involves growing sycamore trees in rows like cotton and harvesting them every three to five years.

Evans-Novak.

(Continued from page 4) would destroy that privacy, including the privacy of farflung financial dealings which have made him a millionaire.

With no Connally political organization in sight and not the slightest Connally effort to build one, 1976 looks bleak today. And 1976 Connally himself says would be the last chance for him.

During the 30 years needed to produce a rotation of pine trees for pulpwood, this process would produce 350 to 400 tons of sycamore per acre, according to H.E. Ruark, director of the Georgia Forest Research Council.

Ruark said the annual yield using the sycamore process would be more than four cords per acre, roughly double the average yield of Southern pine. Unlike pine trees that must be replanted after harvest, the researchers said a cut sycamore stump will sprout again and several crops could be grown from the same stumps.

Besides increasing the yield, they said the short rotation concept would provide landowners with a more regular source of income.

The foundation plans to manufacture enough of the paper to print at least 20,000 copies of a tabloid newspaper to demonstrate the strength and printing qualities of the product.

"If you want to have a beef with Cuba," my friend said, "that's your business. But don't tell us who we can sell our cigars to."

"Someday when Castro is fighting on the beaches of Newfoundland, you'll remember what you said."

"By the way, do you want to smuggle back some Cuban cigars with you?"

"How much are they?" I asked.

"The cheapest Monte Cristos are a dollar apiece."

"All right, I'll take back one box with me just to show the people in Washington how fickle our friends in Canada really are."

Campaigning At State Expense

RALEIGH (AP)—At least one member of the North Carolina General Assembly, Rep. J.F. Mohn, D-Onslow, is campaigning for reelection at state expense.

Thursday that Mohn has been sending campaign letters to Onslow County constituents using state-paid stationery, secretarial help and postage.

Legislative rules stipulate that legislators can use state postage privileges only for legislative business.

Mohn, 62, is trying to switch from the House to the Senate. He faces incumbent Sen. William Mills, D-Onslow, in the May 7 primary.

His letter to constituents, dated March 21, started, "As you know, I am a candidate for the state Senate," and went on to praise his legislative record in the House.

Save Tot In Campus Lake

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP)—Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation apparently saved the life of 4-year-old Angela Moraney.

She was in her father's car when it slowly plunged into the campus lake at Furman University Thursday. The father, James Allen Moraney, 33, was found dead in the auto that submerged in nine feet of water.

Her three brothers, Lonnie, 10; Dennis and Keith, each 8, jumped from the slow-moving car before it hit the water.

Burton Cook, a campus police officer, and Richard Brakefile took turns at the resuscitation after Tucker Cook, a university maintenance man, had pulled the child from the water. She then was taken to a hospital in serious condition.

Congress Begins Work On A New Energy Bill

By JIM LUTHER Associated Press Writer WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress has begun work on a new energy bill that sponsors say should result in lower prices for gasoline.

The bill introduced Thursday by Sen. Henry M. Jackson and Rep. Harley O. Staggers replaces the energy-emergency measure vetoed by President Nixon on March 6.

Jackson's Senate Interior Committee will begin final work on the bill next week, bypassing the usual public hearings.

Jackson, of Washington State, and Staggers, of the West Virginia who heads the House Commerce Committee, said the new bill was offered because it was impossible to compromise differences with the Nixon administration over the vetoed measure.

The key element in the new bill would limit the ability of the large multinational oil companies to pass on to consumers the higher costs of imported oil.

Jackson said this provision should result in sharply lower prices for crude oil, perhaps as much as $3 a barrel below the current $10.50 price. He said this should bring lower gasoline prices.

The senator refused to speculate whether the new bill could be passed over the opposition of the Nixon administration and oil-state representatives who were against the original measure.

Selassie Trying Avert Another Major Crisis

By HOLGER JENSEN Associated Press Writer ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, trying to avert his second major crisis in a month, has appointed a military-civilian tribunal to investigate government corruption.

Some officials and foreign diplomats said the investigation might further hamper the efforts of Prime Minister Endalkachew Mekonnen to complete his month-old government and quell the string of mutinies and civil disorders convulsing the African kingdom.

A government broadcast announced the appointment of two army officers and five civilians to the tribunal. It was charged with "bringing to court those officials found lacking in integrity."

Meanwhile, unrest continued to spread, fueled by dissatisfaction with the small feudal upper class that runs the country and its failure to cope with the effects of severe drought and inflation.

University students in Addis Ababa resumed a strike after only three days back in classes. The airports at Addis Ababa and Asmara, the country's two chief cities, were closed to all foreign planes by a strike of ground personnel.

Big Outlay To Defeat Chavez

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Teamsters Union is spending as much as $100,000 a month in a new campaign to sign up farm laborers and wipe out Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers of America union, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

Teamsters officials, who formerly dealt almost exclusively with growers, are now meeting with the field workers themselves to try to convince them that the Teamsters have more to offer, the newspaper said.

Other representatives of the nation's largest union are fanning out across the country in an effort to counter the UFW's boycott against grape and lettuce growers who have Teamster contracts.

Public relations experts have been hired to try to improve the image of the union, which often has been pictured as a Goliath against Chavez' David in the longstanding dispute.

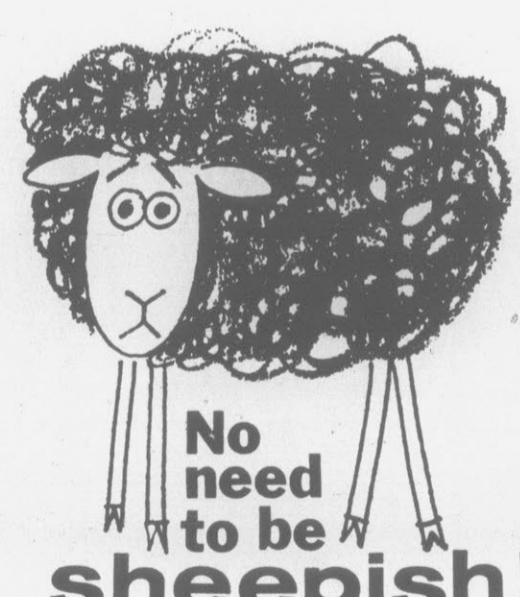

"Chavez is through," says

Cono Mecias, chief supervisor for the Teamsters' Agricultural Workers Organizing Committee. "The workers are through with him. His future looks bad."

Fellowship For Faculty Member Advises Action To Curb Thefts

Dr. Mary Jo Bratton, assistant professor of History at East Carolina University, has been awarded a 1974-75 Fellowship by the National Endowment for the Humanities.

Under terms of the fellowship, Dr. Bratton will obtain a leave of absence from teaching responsibilities during which she plans to complete a biography of John Esten Cooke, 19th Century Southern writer, which is to be published by the Louisiana State University Press. The fellowship will enable Dr. Bratton to pursue work begun in the summer of 1973 as a participant in the Humanities Summer Seminar at Northwestern University during which she did research in the field of history of Slavery and Race Relations.

Problems... Problems

People chuckle when they see a baby who seems to have the weight of the world on his shoulders. What can he possibly be thinking about that makes him seem so pensive?

His thoughts probably aren't very serious, for babies often strike delightful and comical poses that enliven the family photo album.

But babies grow up and become adults, with real problems and difficult decisions to make.

Don't forget, as your baby matures, to emphasize those things that will enable him to cope with his future. Don't forget love, discipline, understanding—and especially, don't forget the Church!

'Earth Tasks' Taken Up By Space Agency Engineers

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Building houses usually is not thought of as one of the chores of space agency engineers. But Marshall Space Flight Center technicians are assembling a residential dwelling in an industrial complex surrounded by space hardware and rocket test stands.

The structure doesn't mean that the agency is going out of the space business. It probably will be the only earth-type house the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will build, but it will demonstrate a practical application of a space-age spinoff.

When finished, the building will be a prototype for a home heated and cooled by the sun, using concepts and technology gleaned from the Skylab program.

Space center scientists and engineers say they are optimistic that the solar energy demonstration will be the forerunner of other research and development not connected directly to the space program.

Officials said it now is time to make space age expertise pay off in practical applications to finding solutions to some of earth's problems.

But energy research is only one of the many non-space assignments available. The director of the Marshall center, Rocco Petrone, has said he would like to see the center lend its talent and facilities to other federal agencies in improving ground transportation, environmental and pollution control, economic development and public safety.

Petrone, who soon will leave Huntsville for a new post as associate administrator of the space agency in Washington, said he saw no problem of compatibility with the center's mission definition of space flight research and development.

He said a recent reorganization of the center included provisions for applications of space technology to earth projects.

During the aerospace boom of the 1960s, when the Marshall center was headed by rocket expert Wernher von Braun, the center was involved in research and development of hardware for the Apollo program, as well as management responsibilities for other major projects, including Skylab. One of the largest pools of scientific talent in the nation was formed.

With the end of the Skylab and Apollo programs came a shift in priorities and the resulting huge budget cut for the Marshall center.

The work force peaked at more than 7,000 in 1965. It soon will be down to about 4,000 NASA people, with contractor ranks also considerably thinned.

But Marshall still is involved in some huge space projects and remains the largest NASA center.

Work now is being done on the Apollo-Soyuz joint U.S.-Soviet orbital flight, management responsibilities for the high energy observatory and the Space Shuttle program.

But nothing on the scale of the Apollo moon program is indicated for the next decade.

A handful of scientists began to talk about using space know-how to find solutions to domestic problems a few years ago, and energy research was in the discussion stage. Suggestions from NASA drew attention when the current energy crunch struck.

Lawmakers now are considering concepts proposed by space scientists to use solar energy—ideas that not long ago were thought to be a bit radical.

One example of the new thinking came recently when the House voted 253-2 to give NASA authority to award contracts for design and construction of solar heating and cooling equipment for homes and buildings.

The bill now is on the Senate side. Opposition appears to come from a group headed by Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., who is pushing for development responsibility to be assigned to the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The National Association of Home Builders is lobbying for the bill to be rewritten in favor of HUD.

As it now stands, the bill calls for NASA to manage construction of the solar units, with HUD having authority to decide where the equipment will be installed.

If the measure passes, a $50 million appropriation will go toward construction of 4,000 heating and cooling units. A Marshall spokesman said the center hoped to snag a big chunk of the work, since research already is underway there.

The simulated solar heated and cooled residence under construction is not as technically sophisticated or glamorous as the Apollo or Skylab programs. The only resemblance to a space project is the computer complex used to measure test data.

The prototype dwelling actually is three house trailers joined beneath a roof of standard rafters and decking. Thirty-one solar collector modules are being installed on the south side to gather three-fourths of the thermal energy needed for the simulated living quarters.

The design of the equipment in the experiment could be modified for larger houses and buildings.

The concept soon will be put to a practical test on the systems engineering building at the Langley Research Center at Hampton, Va.

The building is a one-story, office-type structure with 50,000 square feet of floor space.

The solar home demonstration will use control techniques for spacecraft environmental systems, developed at Marshall.

A Marshall scientist, Dr.

Georg von Tiesenhausen, who is involved in the solar project, said there was enormous potential for research and development of alternative energy sources.

He listed a high-energy, low-polluting auto engine using hydrogen as fuel, an electric-powered auto engine patterned after the motor used on the lunar roving vehicle and the same type engine to propel wheelchairs.

He said the center is studying a plan for a rapid transit system using small vehicles with programmed destinations.

Other Marshall scientists said the center's computer knowledge could be used in areas such as medical technology, water resources and education.

Some of the center's ideas already in use include medical monitoring equipment for hospitals and a portable audio monitor enabling blind people to detect changes in light intensity by sound.

Ordeal Of Indictment And Trial Leaves Scar

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — "The ordeal of indictment and trial taught me a lesson I'll never forget," says a former Chicago policeman found innocent of shaking down taverns for kickbacks.

James Psichalinos, 31, and two other former officers found innocent of the charges talked Thursday about what it was like to live on the outer edge of the law. If you ever charge a man with a crime, you've got to be very, very sure the charge is justified," Psichalinos said. "I enjoyed police work, but I have serious doubts that I'll try to go back on the force."

The other former officers cleared of the charges Tuesday were James Gartner, 36, and Eugene Manion, 45, the father of 11 children.

They were among 61 officers indicted in a scheme that involved an alleged $275,000 in kickbacks. The investigation has resulted so far in 47 convictions and a dozen acquittals.

Manion, an 18-year veteran of the force, would like to return and is to have a police board hearing in May. Since his indictment eight months ago, work has been scarce. He was fired from one good-paying job but was hired temporarily as a security officer of a supermarket.

"When that jury acquitted me, the first thing I did was phone my wife — she is hospitalized mainly with exhaustion from worry," said Manion. "I cried. She cried. And I called my daughter in the hospital where she is recovering from an eye injury. And she cried."

"Then I went home and my other 10 children cheered when I walked in. They said the cheers were pre-arranged and were ready because they knew I was innocent."

Manion said his friends stuck by him throughout the ordeal and his family drew closer together than ever before.

"After living a decent life, it was tough being on the other side of the fence. Right now I'm very tired. This has taken a lot out of me," he said.

Gartner said he didn't lose any friends after the indictment "but I couldn't find any good jobs and just did odds and ends.... Thank God my wife's teaching job was not affected."

Stolen Gasoline Said 'Received'

CHARLOTTE (AP) — The FBI has announced that Edward Brown of Carolina Beach has been charged with receiving 8,000 gallons of stolen gasoline.

The federal agency said he was released Thursday on $1,000 bond. It also said that Elias Bozeman Sr. of Wilmington, who was arrested March 12 and charged with stealing the gasoline on March 4, also is free on bond.

NEW YORK (AP) — Rising interest rates kept the stock market on a downward track today, but the declines were less widespread than they had been in Thursday's selloff.

The 11:30 a.m. Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 1.41 at 852.94. The average fell more than 16 points Thursday.

Declines outnumbered advances 2 to 1 in moderate trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts linked some of today's drop to a half-point increase in the prime lending rate posted after the close Thursday by Bankers Trust Co. of New York.

Delta Airlines, unchanged at 47%, was the Big Board's most active stock.

Twentieth Century-Fox, which decided against extending a tender offer for two million of its own shares, was off 1 at 7 3/4.

Full Coverage In Higher Premium

Congressman Walter B. Jones announced the approval by the Federal Crop Insurance Corp., U. S. Department of Agriculture, total coverage of machine-harvested tobacco acreage by the payment of a "slightly higher premium."

Jones said, "Many tobacco farmers have expressed concern to me over the previous restriction which required that, following adverse weather conditions when tobacco had been blown down, making it impossible to utilize harvest equipment, the farmer must make an effort to harvest his crop by hand."

"Due to the shortage of labor in many areas, this was not practical and often times portions of the crop were a total loss. The new coverage will eliminate this requirement."

Asks Restoring Of LINC Funds

RALEIGH (AP)—Gov. Jim Holshouser has appealed to the General Assembly to restore a $120,000 appropriation for the Learning Institute of North Carolina (LINC).

The appeal came after the Joint Appropriations Subcommittee had deleted the proposed appropriation for the education research agency. LINC has received $120,000 a year in state money for several years. However, the General Assembly cut off the state funds last year after LINC came under investigation for allowing some of its employees to "moonlight."

Holshouser said there had been problems with LINC in the past but "recent changes have established a sound program."

Announce Grant For Handicapped

CHAPEL HILL (AP)—The University of North Carolina announced today receipt of a $279,000 grant from the U.S. Office of Education for the education of handicapped children.

The university said the special education program in the UNC School of Education was awarded the major portion of the funds. Lesser amounts went to the UNC Division of Disorders in Development and Learning, the Institute of Speech and Hearing Sciences and UNC's Recreation Education Program.

To Increase Oil Output

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Saudi Arabia has authorized the Arabian American Oil Co. — Aramco — to increase production to 8.5 million barrels a day beginning April 1, oil industry sources reported Friday.

The added output was presumed to be for the United States.

Saudi Arabia produced 8.29 million barrels a day before Arab oil diplomacy began during the October Middle East war. Production dropped to 7.3 million before the oil embargo was lifted March 18.

A 15 per cent production cutback was imposed against West European nations and Japan to pressure the United States to move Israel toward a peace settlement.

The Saudi move was expected. After a meeting of Arab states in Vienna, Saudi Arabian oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani declared his country would raise production by more than a million barrels a day.

About 15 per cent of American oil imports, amounting to 1.2 million barrels a day, were lost during the five-month embargo.

Saudi Arabia was the biggest supplier with 625,000 barrels a day last September.

Duke Power To Impose Full Rate Increase

RALEIGH (AP)—Duke Power Company has notified the North Carolina Utilities Commission it will put a full 16.8 per cent rate increase into effect April 15th. The hike includes a 10.25 per cent temporary increase the commission allowed last October.

Duke applied for the rate increase last fall and asked that it be effective Oct. 15. The commission suspended the boost pending a public hearing, but allowed Duke the smaller temporary increase.

Under state law, a utility can put the full amount of an increase into effect in six months if no action is taken by the commission.

In notifying the commission it will put the full increase into effect, Duke promised to repay its customers any portion of the increase the commission finds excessive.

Candidate For Supreme Court Names 5 Aides

Judge R.A. (Fred) Hedrick, candidate for the North Carolina Supreme Court, announced the appointment of Jack Minges of Greenville to a five-member committee to head up his campaign in the First Judicial Division.

Named to the committee in addition to Minges, Pepsi-Cola bottler here, were Fred Jones of Asheville and Cameron S. Weeks of Tarboro.

Hedrick is one of the original nine members of the Court of Appeals, receiving his appointment to the post by Gov. Robert Scott in 1969. He was reelected to the Court of Appeals in 1970.

A native of Statesville, Hedrick earned his undergraduate and law degrees at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Will Publicize Fluctuations In Fuel Charges

Beginning the first of April, the Greenville Utilities Commission will publish a table reflecting monthly increases or decreases in Virginia Electric Power Co. fuel charges.

George Reel reported that the table will indicate regular GUCO charges plus the fuel charges as figured on typical electric bills involving kilowatt hour usages of 500, 1,000, 2,000, 3,000, and 5,000.

The regular utilities costs, he added, are based on the residential rate with customers using electric water heaters.

The March fuel charge was $0.00353 per kilowatt hour. Regular rates will remain the same unless GUCO rates change.

ROBERT A. HAISLIP III

JOSEPH J. PHILLIPS

LARRY M. MEWBORN

Three new officers have joined the Greenville Police Department and have been assigned to the Uniformed Division as patrolmen, Chief Glenn Cannon said today.

The three include Robert A. Haislip III, Joseph J. Phillips and Larry M. Mewborn.

Haislip, an Oak City native is a 1968 graduate of Oak Ridge Military Institute and attended East Carolina University, Pitt Technical Institute and Lenoir Community College in Kinston prior to working for a restaurant in Wilson, where he attended Wilson Technical Institute.

Haislip is married to the former Eileen May of Winterville.

Phillips, a Baton Rouge, La. native completed his high school education after joining the U. S. Marine Corps in 1965.

Married to the former Connie Yarborough of Jacksonville, Phillips served in Vietnam in 1969 and 1970 with the Third Marine Division at Quang Tri. His last duty station was at the Marine Corps Air Station, New River where he was discharged as a sergeant earlier this month.

The new officer attended Coastal Carolina Community College at Jacksonville where he studied police science.

Possum Meat Is Easy To Sell

FRANKLIN, Tenn. (AP) — Possum meat is good and the high price of beef and pork makes it taste even better, says Mrs. J. C. Harper.

She advertised six dressed opossums weighing four pounds each on a radio swap program Thursday. Within minutes, she had sold them for 50 cents each — about 13 cents a pound.

Mrs. Harper provided cooking instructions with the possums, advising customers to boil them with sweet potatoes, then add black pepper and vinegar and bake for a short time. They can also be barbecued, she said.

Rookie Madlock Is Worrying Opponents

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

For a rookie, Bill Madlock is as relaxed as they come. It's the pitchers who have to face him who are starting to tense up.

Madlock, who was acquired in a trade with the Texas Rangers and who is supposed to make the Chicago Cubs forget Ron Santo, has a 14-game hitting streak and an out-of-sight springtime batting average of .592. That's .592, folks — 49 at-bats, 29 hits.

Thursday, Madlock ripped two doubles and two singles and stole home in the ninth inning for the final run in the Cubs' 4-1 exhibition baseball victory over the California Angels.

The only trouble is that if Madlock's erratic glove work continues, he may also field .592.

Meanwhile, the rawest rookie of them all made his debut Thursday. While Madlock is good-hit-no-field, Oakland's Herb Washington is no-hit-no-field. All Washington does is run.

The A's inserted the world class sprinter from Michigan State to run for Joe Rudi at first base in the fifth inning. Cleveland pitcher Milt Wilcox promptly balked him to second and Washington breezed home on Reggie Jackson's single.

Unfortunately, Washington's run wasn't enough to prevent an 11-5 loss to the Cleveland Indians. Dave Duncan's three-run homer in the first inning was the Indians' big blow and loser Ken Holtzman also surrendered a two-run homer to Charlie Spikes.

Barber Is Not Unhappy In Tie

By BOB GREEN
NEW ORLEANS, (AP) — Miller Barber said he could have shot a 62 as easily as his 66 in the first round of the $150,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament, but he wasn't at all disturbed about missing.

"As long as you stay right there where he's shooting," he said, pointing to his share of the lead with Jack Nicklaus. "As long as you stay up with him, you know you're not going to be far from where it's at."

Nicklaus and Barber, who tied for the lead after the regulation 72 holes of this tournament a year ago — Nicklaus eventually won in a playoff — again matched six-under-par efforts on the 7,080-yard Lake-wood Country Club course.

They held a one-stroke advantage over a group of seven players — headed by Lee Trevino and Australian Bruce Crampton — tied at 67 as the

The injury bugaboo struck the Philadelphia camp when slugging left fielder Greg Luzinski tore the palm of his hand on a cyclone fence and may miss the Phillies' opener a week from Saturday.

The Phils didn't miss Luzinski Thursday, though. Bill Robinson, another outfielder, smashed a two-run homer to provide a 3-2 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Two more veterans bit the dust in roster moves. Pitcher Chuck Dobson, trying to come back from arm surgery two years ago, was placed on waivers by Oakland and the Cincinnati Reds did the same with outfielder Larry Stahl.

Outfielder Leron Lee, who hit .300 with the San Diego Padres in 1972, was sold to Cleveland and the California Angels shipped outfielder Ollie Brown to Houston.

The New York Yankees wish Texas would get rid of Jeff Burroughs. For the second time in a week, Burroughs delivered a grand slam to knock off the Yanks, this time by a 7-4 score. The hard-hitting outfielder has six spring homers and 22 runs batted in.

Jerry Reuss scattered 10 hits in pitching the Pittsburgh Pirates over the Chicago White Sox 6-1.

Fred Patek hit a grand slam and Buck Martinez cracked a solo shot as the Kansas City Royals raked Jim Palmer, Baltimore's 1973 Cy Young Award winner, for 11 runs in five innings and clobbered the Orioles 14-3.

The Cincinnati Reds rapped Detroit's Mickey Lolich and John Hiller for 12 hits, seven of warm, almost windless weather contributed to some extremely low scoring on the layout that was still wet and heavy from Tuesday's torrential rains.

Bucs...

"Davidson, ASU, William & Mary, Richmond," Williams mused, "will all come at us with the best they've got; ASU was the conference pre-season pick to win the title again and the other teams have fine personnel, too."

Williams concluded, from his standpoint, that there is only one thing to do when facing a schedule such as the one that confronts the Bucs, a schedule that would move lesser baseball veterans to tears:

"We'll just have to play 'em one at a time," said Williams. "We're not going to look past anyone... and next Saturday we'll know where we stand."

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

People throughout the east, and across the state for that matter, are all applauding the victory of N. C. State in the NCAA basketball championships, and we applaud them also.

Saturday afternoon in that championship game (I know, but it still was the championship game), the Wolfpack kept us on the edge of our seat as they simply refused to die and came back to win it.

One basketball coach said that year's probation for recruiting violations apparently was worth it to the Wolfpack. It's paid off in a lot of dividends. Which brings to mind a point to ponder.

A lot of people are wanting East Carolina to climb up to the level of the Atlantic Coast Conference. Seems simple enough. All you need to do it is recruit the right people.

But it's not really that simple. Football recruiting against the Atlantic Coast Conference is getting easier. The Pirates have struggled up by putting a lot more money into their program and are finally at the place where they can compete with the ACC for players.

In basketball, however, it's a different story. Recruiting is truly the name of the game in this sport. One player here and there can really make a difference. East Carolina needs that one big recruit to get them on the map. But getting him is tough.

The other schools have the recruiting budgets to do it and do it consistently. It's almost impossible for a Southern Conference school, any of them, to outrecruit the top ACC schools.

And it is getting no easier. For instance, this year, the Pirate Club of East Carolina raised somewhere in the neighborhood of $200,000 for the Bucs. The Wolfpack Club raised over $600,000.

East Carolina got a little share from the basketball games that were telecast. But that didn't compare to the amount N.C. State picked up from the ACC network.

State made, if memory serves correctly, two television appearances this past football season, plus their showing in the bowl game. In addition they picked up more money from television in the regionals and the national championship.

Overall, it makes quite a tidy package. No one is willing to talk about how much, but it's no little sum, and could run close to $500,000.

Those two figures, television plus Wolfpack club, add up over $1,000,000. And there are other sources, too—gate receipts, contracts, student fees, etc.

Catching up to that kind of figures is going to be hard, if not impossible, for some time. Even some of the other ACC schools can't touch State for that.

And although no one has asked it yet, I'm wondering what Norman Sloan of N. C. State would reply if he were asked how much affect he thought the ACC tournament had on State's NCAA successes.

If you think about it, N. C. State goes into the nationals with two "there's no tomorrow" games behind them. And that includes that gut-clutching one against Maryland. If any team in the world can survive such as that, they can survive anything, and not blow their cool.

Personally, I think that the experience of the ACC Tournament was a key factor in State's national crown.

Bill Foster Named New Duke Cage Coach

DURHAM, N. C. (AP)—Bill Foster, who took losing basketball teams at Rutgers and Utah and turned them into winners, has been named head basketball coach at Duke University, which needs a winner.

The Utah coach's appointment was announced Thursday night by Carl James, Duke athletic director who said the new coach was expected on campus this evening and would attend an 8 p.m. news conference.

Foster replaces Neill McGeachy, a Duke assistant who took over the reins when Bucky Waters resigned last September.

The Blue Devils had a poor season, finishing in the Atlantic Coast Conference cellar with two victories against 10 losses, and a 10-16 overall record.

Nevertheless, James had warm words for McGeachy and his assistants, saying, "Duke is very grateful to Neill McGeachy, Tony Barone and Jim Lewis for the job they did in providing leadership to the 1973-74 basketball team."

Looking to a rosier Blue Devil future, James said: "Duke University is fortunate to have Bill Foster as its basketball coach. In his 11 years of major college coaching — at Rutgers and Utah — he has been able to provide excellent leadership and instruction for the young men who played for him. He is highly regarded by his former players."

Foster this season led Utah to the finals of the National Invitation Tournament, where it bowed to Purdue, 87-81. His team attained a 22-8 mark and 15th ranking in the nation.

Foster was voted coach of the year in District 7 of the National Collegiate Athletic Association. He is regarded as one of the top collegiate coaches in the country, currently serving as first vice president of the National Basketball Coaches Association and scheduled to become president in 1976.

Foster is a native of Norwood, Pa., and played four years of basketball and soccer at Elizabethtown College in Pennsylvania. He was graduated in 1954 and earned an M.A. degree in business education at Temple University.

After coaching successful Chichester and Abington high school teams in Pennsylvania, Foster became head basketball coach at Rutgers. There he took a 5-17 team and the next season led it to a 17-7 record. He led Rutgers to two NIT berths and a school record in 1969 of 21-4.

In his first year at Utah in 1971, he became the school's first coach to post a winning record in his first season. However, in his second, his freshman dominated squad finished 8-19.

This season, with the same material, he moulded a team regarded as the second most improved squad in the nation, behind Kansas.

His squad, with four sophomore starters, played 13 games against opponents ranked in the nation's top 20. The team turned in impressive victories over Southern Cal, Ohio, Purdue, New Mexico and Arizona, and finished second to Arizona in the Western Athletic Conference regular season race.

The Los Angeles Lakers, last team to win a spot in the National Basketball Association playoffs, are hoping they won't be the first to lose one.

The Lakers open their best-of-7, quarter-final series against the mighty Milwaukee Bucks tonight in Milwaukee. The Bucks posted the league's best record during the regular campaign, 59-23, and Laker Coach Bill Sharman is worried.

"We feel Milwaukee is the best team in the league," says Sharman, "and to beat them we'll have to be very fortunate and play at our very best."

The defending champion New York Knicks host the Capital Bullets tonight as another quarter-final series begins.

Detroit visits Chicago Saturday afternoon and Buffalo is at Boston Saturday night in the other first-round action.

The Lakers, playing without the departed Wilt Chamberlain and the injured Jerry West, fell behind Golden State in the Pacific Division race early in the season and appeared a good bet to miss the playoffs. But big Elmore Smith, Chamberlain's replacement, and Jim Price, filling in for West, sparked the Lakers past the sagging Warriors down the stretch.

The Bucks will have to face the challenge without guard Lucius Allen, out for the duration due to a knee operation.

In New York, the Knicks will be hoping to eliminate the Bullets for the fifth time in the last six years.

"Man, we play each other so often, they know our plays better than we do," says New York guard Walt Frazier.

Knicks' center Willis Reed and Bullets' forward Wes Unseld, both of whom spent much of the season sidelined with knee problems, will be in action tonight, and their effectiveness, or lack of same, could hold the key to the series.

Special Interests Campaign Money Building Up

ONE-LEGGED SKIPPER — Barron Nelson, now a lieutenant commander, was a lieutenant in this 1973 photo aboard the tug Tawana which he commanded—the second amputee in U. S. naval

By DON McLEOD
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — While campaign reform struggles slowly through Congress, special interest money to be fed into 1974 races is building up at an unprecedented pace for a mid-term election.

While this year's war chests don't approach the record $60 million raised by President Nixon's campaign in 1972, money available for this fall's congressional races already has outstripped the 1972 level. Surveys of official reports show between $14 million and $15 million on hand at the myriad political interest committees that traditionally provide a substantial portion, if not the bulk, of the money that puts politicians in public office.

A study by Common Cause released Thursday says registered special interest groups and national level political party committees gave more than $14 million directly to congressional candidates in 1972 and another $2.2 million to presidential aspirants.

Interest groups including doctors, railroads, dairymen, labor unions, banks and manufacturers, provided $8.5 million. Political party groups provided the remaining $5 million, but $1.3 million of that had come to them first from the special interest organizations.

The study shows the Democratic House and Senate campaign committees took in $1.2 million from special interests in 1972, including party fund raising committees. Comparable Republican committees received $1.8 million from the same sources.

Common Cause estimates these interest committees had $14.2 million on hand at the end of February — as much or more than they spent in all of 1972. This does not include money they may already have given to candidates in this fall's elections.

"Anyone who thinks the Watergate scandals have put special interest givers out of business had better take a close look at these figures," Fred Wertheimer, director of the Common Cause Campaign Finance Monitoring Project, said at a Thursday news conference.

"The failure of this Congress to pass effective campaign finance reform legislation has meant that the 1974 congressional races are going to see far more giving by special interest groups than showed up in 1972," Wertheimer said.

Campaign Reform Sees Rocky Road In Senate

By JOHN CHADWICK
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate so far is standing fast against attempts to eliminate or modify the public financing provisions of a campaign reform bill.

But another attempt was planned for the start of today's session with an amendment by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who contends the answer to abuses is full disclosure of campaign financing.

Helms' amendment would strike out the entire bill and substitute new reporting requirements.

"Give the public all the facts and then let the people decide which candidate they will support, both at the polls and financially," Helms said.

He said that use of tax funds to finance general election and primary campaigns for federal office is "just plain no good."

"If a candidate does not have the local support to finance his own campaign, then why should the public pay for it?" he asked.

The Senate two days ago defeated, 61 to 33, an amendment by Sen. James B. Allen, D-Ala., to strike all of the public financing provisions out of the bill.

And Thursday, after that defeat, he tried other approaches but met with no success.

An amendment Allen offered to bar use of tax funds by Senate and House candidates in either their general or primary election campaigns was rejected 51 to 39.

Then, the Senate defeated 53 to 35 another Allen amendment to eliminate a provision for federal matching of private contributions to candidates for the presidential nomination.

Allen also lost, 51 to 36, when he proposed that present members of Congress, if they run for president in 1976, be ineligible for matching grants in their primary campaigns.

Despite all these defeats, however, the question still remains whether a two-thirds majority can be mustered to break a filibuster Allen has threatened to wage against the bill.

Midwest GOP Leaders Gather

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Republican leaders from 13 Midwestern states will look over their party's leading candidates for the 1976 presidential nomination at a miniconvention opening here today.

The showcase of candidates is expected to dominate the convention. But there also will be serious talk about improving morale among the party's rank-and-file. President Nixon's prospects of remaining in office and selection of delegates for the 1976 party convention.

Illinois Republicans hosting the gathering originally counted on only 500 persons attending the meetings and were forced to turn back many applications. Now more than 1,000 prominent Republicans are expected to attend.

One Republican enthusiastic about the size of the conference said, "A threatened organism will grow. That's why countries breed in war, and that's why Republicans are getting riled up."

Another official said, "Let's face it, we're perhaps at our lowest point since 1964. We have to start back up the ladder."

Sen. Charles H. Percy of Illinois, who already has announced his intention of seeking the nomination, will be the leadoff speaker tonight.

Vice President Gerald R. Ford, California Gov. Ronald Reagan and former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller are also in the spotlight.

Hugh Downs In Two New Fields

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh Downs has become a producer in a flying scarf. A broadcaster by vocation and pilot by avocation, he recently roared off into the movie and barnstorming business — simultaneously.

It's resulted in a documentary film called "Nothing by Chance," based on a wonderful 1969 book of the same name that pilot-author Richard Bach wrote before his best-selling "Jonathan Livingston Seagull." The movie, which Downs says will be released for theaters but not television late this spring, is sort of a pilot's answer to "The Endless Summer," a popular surfing documentary of a few years ago.

Bach, who co-produced the film, "assembled all the pilots and got a marvelous crew," Downs said. The aviators ranged from a genuine old-time barnstormer to a jetliner captain from California.

The movie was filmed last summer with a fleet of five biplanes built in the 1920s when barnstorming — taking adventurous citizens for a quick hop around the pea patch — was in full and glorious bloom.

The jet-age barnstormers did the same thing, starting in Weeping Water, Neb., and ending a month later in Rio, Wis. They were surprised to find then they'd even turned a small profit.

"The great thing about it was that we could avoid airports altogether if we wanted to," said Downs, who didn't take cash customers aloft and concentrated on producing and subsequent narrating chores.

"If you can find a level field that a farmer will let you land in — if it's not too far from a little town — then you fly the fleet over," he said of the modern recreation of flying's good old days.

Publicizing the flights was done as in the early days, he said. Parachutists tumbled from planes, mock dogfights raged and aerobatics ran rampant as curious crowds trooped to the landing field.

Those who would be among the eagles and had $3 in cash were taken aloft for a short ride, Downs said, "and the funny thing is that we were claiming to be the only anti-inflationary force in America."

"When Glenn Curtiss started barnstorming after World War I, he charged $15 and Charles Lindbergh, in the 1920s, charged $6."

The barnstormers, Bach among them, weren't on salary. "Bach felt that would have destroyed the spirit of it, so they all took one per cent of the movie," Downs said, referring to a percentage of the film's potential earnings.

Then they had to live off of what they made. The theory was that if you didn't get people up in the air, paying for rides, you couldn't buy your hamburgers. You went to bed hungry under your wing."

That didn't happen, he said, "so Bach really proved that he was right — that barnstorming, which died in the 1930s when the banks closed, could be revived."

Downs thinks the movie will make money. But he isn't putting all his eggs in one cockpit. He's hosting a one-hour ABC special Sunday that's based on "Variety," the show-biz bible, and hopes it'll become a regular weekly series next season.

He's also serving as executive producer on a new television talk-variety show, starring Lena Horne, that will be syndicated soon.

Fear Of Hunger, And Hunger Stirred Rioting

By LEON DANIEL
PATNA, India (UPI) — Even in the best of times life is grim in Bihar, the poorest state in a nation whose own world image is one of grinding poverty.

An average Bihari worker earns but the equivalent of $52 in an entire year and jobs are only for the most fortunate in this northeastern state bordering Nepal.

The politicians in New Delhi tell Biharis that soaring prices are a worldwide phenomenon; that the far-away Americans are in trouble too.

Eighty per cent of the Biharis are illiterate, but they know that rising food prices can kill them just as surely, if perhaps more slowly, than police bullets.

That is why hordes of them during the past week swarmed into the streets in an orgy of looting and arson, risking the armed might of the government of India, to protest alleged government corruption, soaring prices and massive unemployment.

There are, both here in the state capital on the banks of the Ganges River and 626 miles to the west in the national capital in New Delhi, complex political explanations for the Bihar upheaval.

But the essential reason is hunger, or the fear of it.

Ruling party politicians here and in New Delhi contend that the students, who spearheaded the week-old agitation that already has claimed, at the very least, 22 lives, were put up to it by extremists from the political right, which in turn blames the trouble on the political left.

Just about everyone blames most of the arson and looting on "hooligans," who in the Indian scheme of things are to be distinguished from students. Those who died, claim the authorities, were hooligans, not students.

Bihar Chief Minister Abdul Ghafoor claims he has the force, including the army which was called into the state last Monday, to put down further violence and keep his embattled government in power.

Some observers here say the trouble in Bihar is a battle between two groups of "haves" for more power.

They referred to the four castes which have dominated the politics of the state, regardless of the party in power, for the decades since British rule.

These castes make up only about one-sixth of the 56 million population of Bihar. The remaining five-sixths are members of non-elite castes such as the Harijans, the untouchables.

Some observers here say the trouble in Bihar is a battle between two groups of "haves" for more power.

Cattle Rustling Losses Mount

By STEVE MOORE
Associated Press Writer
HELENA, Mont. (AP) — Cattle rustlers, who seized more than 1,500 steers during last year's period of skyrocketing meat prices, are back in action in Montana. A special target is new-born calf herds on outlying ranches.

"We're having a helluva time with this baby-calf thing. The calves are vulnerable — the thieves just pick them up and they're gone," said William B. Cheney, chief of the state livestock department's brands and enforcement division.

Cheney said there have been about 30 separate reports of thefts so far this spring, even though the calving season is just under way, and expects the problem to get worse. He attributes the thefts to the continuing high cost of beef.

He said he thinks the calves, which are worth $100 to $130, are being sold to individuals, who then presumably feed and fatten them for sale or slaughter.

Cheney said highly mobile rustlers may have pilfered more than 1,500 head of Montana cattle last year, along with 2,000 to 3,000 sheep. He also said horse rustling was on the rise with about 100 known thefts. The latter, he said, is increasing throughout the western United States because the market is the best ever. Cheney said the department assisted in or was aware of at least 40 felony cases against rustlers last year and more are under investigation. A rustling conviction carries a prison sentence of up to 14 years.

The state estimates that cattle rustling losses last year may have exceeded $400,000, but officials say hundreds of suspected rustling cases go unreported because little evidence is left behind.

The Montana Stock Growers Association has a standing reward of $1,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of cattle rustlers.

The Worry Clinic Divorce Rates Attest To Fact

Flora wanted to win back her husband's love. And banish his infatuation for his former college sweetheart. So I gave her the 10-point recipe for "Boudoir Cheesecake" as outlined below. It beats Betty Crocker's cakes!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE X-589: Flora J., aged 40, is the wife whose husband confessed that he had recently started writing to his college sweetheart of 20 years ago.

"Dr. Crane," she wailed, "what can I do to break up this secret fascination that she holds for Howard?"

"I love him and don't want to lose him to his exsweetheart."

Boudoir Recipes

Maybe I should write a "Boudoir Cheesecake" recipe booklet, not only for you wives of men past 40, but also for new brides.

Women are usually superb mothers excellent cooks and very good bargain hunters regarding department store merchandise.

But most women wouldn't rate a "D" grade if I were to return to teaching marital psychology at Northwestern University.

And the tragedy is that many fat, stodgy suburban wives claim this column has no value to them, yet their won husbands are meanwhile straying!

And frequently writing to me for advice about their paramours!

The zooming divorce rate in America attests to the fact that most wives are ignoramuses about boudoir cheesecake!

Men, alas, often have a mistaken notion about the erotic verve of women, and thus imagine that the female is as wildly passionate as is the male.

That's malarky.

Women are naturally frigid, with just enough libido to get pregnant, after which they revert to their main function of nestbuilding and maternalism.

Nymphomaniacs do occur among women, if they suffer from a basic inferiority complex due to amputation of a breast or of the womb, or flat busts, crippled or withered arms or legs, etc.

Then they may goad themselves into promiscuous sexuality, not because of any localized pruritic desire but as a sop to their deflated ego.

Sex-mad women are not passionate but are merely

- (7) Snuggle against your mate and be romantically kittenish;
- (8) Take the initiative in kissing and erotic action if he still affects coolness toward you;
- (9) Remember, there is no Emily Post in the marital boudoir;
- (10) Also, vividly realize that a $25 "Call" girl could make your husband function within a few minutes, so beat the opposition at her own game!

Flora was already slender, so she followed out the items from No. 2 to No. 10, that same night. And her mate then completely forgot he ever had another sweetheart back in college days!

So send for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

whipping themselves into an erotic frenzy to banish their terror that they are NOT NORMAL.

Women want to join the herd, at all costs, so when they feel sexually below par, they prod themselves to prove their normalcy.

Or lapse into hypochondria, so they can constantly call on medics for solace, surgery and tranquilizers!

When I explained that Flora's mate was afraid of her, since he felt he couldn't function erotically in their boudoir, she agreed to use the following boudoir cheesecake recipe:

- (1) Diet till you have a sylphlike figure;
- (2) Use exotic perfume, especially at bedtime;
- (3) Disrobe seductively, like the burlesque queens of the stage;
- (4) Wear a diaphanous nightie;
- (5) Omit hair curlers and let your silky hair fall down;
- (6) Avoid halitosis, as of cigarettes, etc.;

Singles Club To Have Show

Truman Recommended Measure

By WALTER R. MEARS, Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The proposal is simple: create a high-level government agency to catalog and project America's resources and needs for fuel and raw materials so that policymakers can try to deal with increasing demands.

"No single organization is today discharging these overall functions," a presidential commission reported. "This lack must be made good ..."

The president was Harry S. Truman. The recommendation has been pending for 22 years.

Now, prodded by crisis, Congress is working on legislation to require that U.S. energy companies report their inventories, production, costs and reserves.

While the administration seeks mandatory reports on oil, it has not asked that such information be required of other industries. Economists and resource experts warn that there may be shortages, even crises, ahead in supplies of other raw materials as well.

And Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., is proposing creation of a Bureau of Resource Information, to keep track of the natural resources and food supplies the nation has and can expect.

Nelson wants one agency to put together all government data on raw materials and food, information now scattered through nearly 60 government offices.

He also proposes that the agency have the power to compel disclosure to the government of industrial information about resource inventories. Under his bill, competitive information could be kept confidential.

There is certain controversy in an effort to require the reporting by industry of information considered in some cases to be trade secrets. On the other hand, the government information gap became a major problem in the energy crisis. If the experts are right, it is a problem that could recur.

"... The era of generally cheap and exploitable materials seems to be at an end in the United States and the world," a Library of Congress study reports. "The developing two-thirds of the world will increasingly compete for, rather than merely supply, many of the materials that the United States will require."

The United States now is heavily dependent on imports for raw materials including aluminum, tin, chromium, nickel, rubber and zinc.

According to the Library of Congress account, U.S. materials consumption may double or triple by the year 2000, with similar trends in the rest of the world. That makes periodic shortages probable and increasing costs likely.

Problems of price and scarcity could be compounded should underdeveloped nations which need for political decisions to deal with raw materials problems in the years ahead. And that, the experts agree, will require more information.

Two Sharing Scholarship

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have a good deal to do and won't be able to rest until evening, so keep busy. Build health. Cut down on tensions.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Accept others as they are instead of trying to change them and don't let their moods annoy you. Evening can be very fine.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have many emotional problems in the early part of life if the right diet is not given and if not taught to use emotions only in the most intelligent way. Ideal chart for merchandising and putting ideas across to others. The field of public relations is just fine here. Give spiritual teachings early. Teach while young to think about the interests of others, to give a helping hand when needed.

South had no reason to suppose that he wanted a club lead should the opponents buy the hand, and in view of the fact that his partner had already passed, the chances were slight that the hand belonged to his side. North's jump raise over the double shut the opponents out of the auction and gave declarer a chance to demonstrate his playing skill.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

HA823R is a compact floor plan designed for a lot where the view is toward the rear and where the neighbors are close—hence no side-windows. The house is of masonry slab topped with a gently pitched saddle roof finished in tar and gravel. Inside are three bedrooms with floor-to-ceiling closets with bi-fold doors. The kitchen is handy to the carport and the breakfast nook. (The latter is separable from the living room by a folding partition.) The living-dining area is connected to the screen porch by two sets of sliding doors flanking a fireplace-barbecue combination. The floor area, minus carport, is 1,100 sq. feet. To obtain the cost of the blueprint, write to the architect, Jan Reiner, 1000 52nd St. N., St. Petersburg, Fla. 33710. Enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.

Two Martin Tech Students Honored

Two Martin Technical Institute students have been selected to appear in the 1974 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges.

The students are: David J. Williams of 311 Harvey Dr., Greenville, and Clark Bainbridge, Shady Knoll Trailer Park, Greenville.

The election of students who receive this high honor is based on their outstanding achievement in the areas of scholarship, citizenship, leadership and extracurricular activities.

Official award certificates in recognition of these achievements will be presented to these students during the graduation exercises scheduled for May, 1974.

Bainbridge, a second-year forest management student, is a graduate of San Pedro High School, San Pedro, Calif. He has been on the honor roll each quarter since enrolling at Martin

Tech. He is married to the former Christine Manning. After graduation in May, he plans to transfer to N. C. Wesleyan College, Rocky Mount, and pursue a four-year degree program in Environmental Science.

Williams, a graduate of Chicod High School, will receive the associate in applied science degree in fish and wildlife management in May. He is married to the former Jamie G. Williams and they are members of the Black Jack FWB Church.

In addition to serving as president of the Natural Resources Society at Martin Technical Institute, Williams is affiliated with the North Carolina Wildlife Federation, the Wildlife Society, the National and International Wildlife Federations and the National Audubon Society.

Williams plans to either seek employment with a state conservation agency or pursue a four-year degree.

Some Risks In Moldy Feeds

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI)—Moldy feeds are generally wholesome for farm animals but sometimes they can cause sickness, say researchers at the University of Minnesota.

"Cases of abortion and infertility in hogs have resulted from feeding moldy rations," a spokesman for the University Agricultural Extension Service said. "If a batch of moldy grain must be fed, the feeder should segregate a few animals from the herd, feed them the moldy ration for two weeks and monitor their condition and production."

DON'T CRISSCROSS RADIAL TIRES

AKRON, Ohio (AP)—Presumably, one of the reasons you bought those expensive radial tires was to save gas.

To get the most out of them, says Goodyear, rotate them every 6,000 to 8,000 miles—and unlike conventional tires, don't crisscross them. Radials stay on the same side of the car and are switched front to rear.
