Large Landfill Site Acquired By County

By STUART SAVAGE
Reflector Staff Writer

Pitt County has purchased more than 100 acres of land West of Greenville for use as a sanitary landfill and access to the site.

County attorney W. W. Speight said the purchase included 100.62 acres from J. H. Harrell (91.01 excluding property needed for right of way); and 1.7 acres from J. D. Hice and .65 acre from Lillian Allen Jenkins for access to the site.

Total purchase price for the 102.97 acres amounted to $141,700, according to Speight.

Commissioners have, for some time, been negotiating for the purchase of the property, located on the West side of the Allen Road, between U. S. 264 and the Stantonburg Road just West of Greenville.

In light of the purchase of the site, Commissioners this morning approved a resolution requesting the North Carolina Department of Transportation to construct and maintain an access road to the site.

Pitt County Fire Marshal Bobby Joyner told commissioners this morning that the Pactolus Fire Department has been upgraded and will now be able to serve a four-mile fire district instead of the three-mile district it has been limited to in the past.

According to Joyner, all fire departments in the county now, with the exception of the Fountain department, now have four-mile district ratings.

Pitt County Board of Education Chairman Mark Owens met with commissioners this morning to request the board's position with regard to funding a position as assistant superintendent of schools for the county for the coming fiscal year.

The position, now held by Jack Edwards, has been federally funded and the funds have now been discontinued. The state will only fund one assistant superintendent for the system.

Owens, saying the position is needed, asked: "First, will the county fund the full salary of the position now held by Edwards, and if not, will the county add $1,750 to the present supplement being paid" so Edwards can be moved to another position with no cut in salary.

Owens explained that Edwards, if no money is available to fund the assistant superintendent post, may be moved to a position as high school supervisor. He currently is involved with coordinating instruction in grades K through 12.

The county board delayed action on the matter until later today.

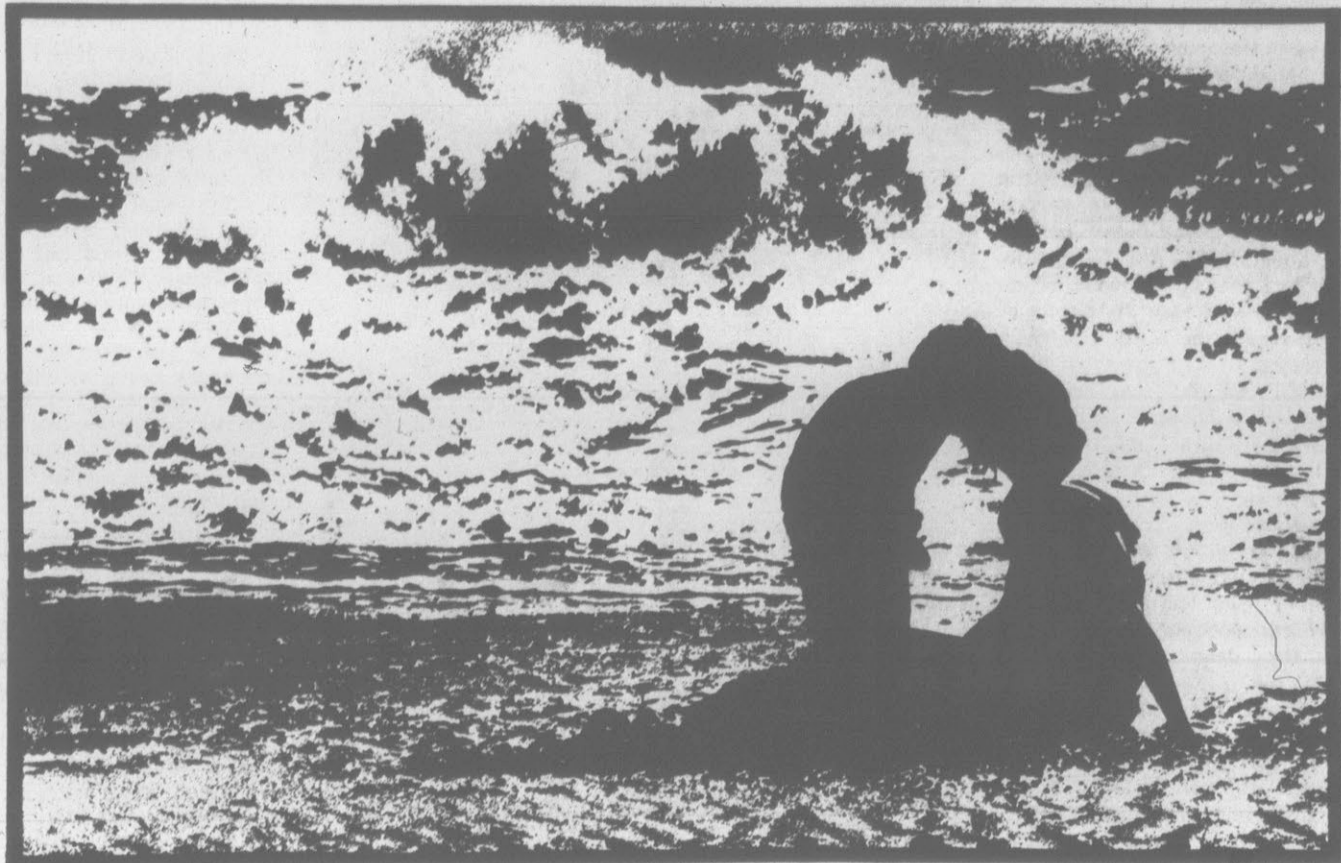

Selecting Jury

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jury selection began today for the trial of Dwight L. Chapin, charged with lying to a grand jury about the "dirty political tricks" activities of Donald H. Segretti.

U.S. District Court Judge Gerhard H. Gesell told a panel of 60 that the trial is expected to "not take more than a week or 10 days."

"I can assure you this is a firm estimate; it will not be a long trial," the judge said.

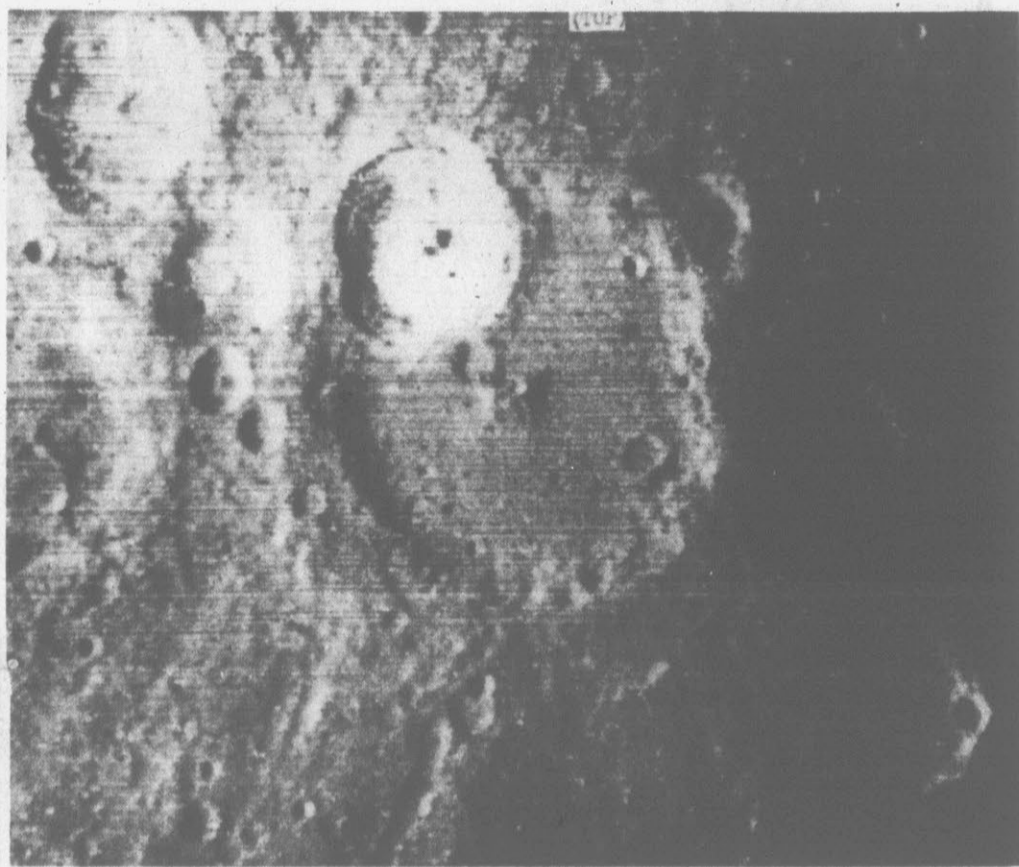

The jury of 12 and four alternates will be sequestered during the trial. In the courtroom were Chapin's wife, Susan, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Chapin.

SOURCE OF MERCURY'S 'BRIGHT SPOT'—Scientists at Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in releasing this picture of Mercury said they believe the "bright spot" seen in earlier pictures of Mercury taken by Mariner 10 is the crater (top center) on the rim of a larger older crater. The bright-crater is 25 miles in diameter, and could be seen as a bright area in pictures taken from more than two million miles away. This picture was taken Friday from a distance of 55,000 miles. Scientists propose the name "kuiper" for the spot in honor of the late astronomer Gerald Kuiper. (AP Wirephoto)

Nonstop Voyager

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Kenichi Horie, the first yachtsman to cross the Pacific alone, is nearing his goal of a nonstop solo voyage around the world.

Horie, 35, who set out from Osaka on board Mermaid II last Aug. 1, radioed on Sunday that he was about 1,420 miles south of Midway, leaving him about 3,300 miles to go to reach Japan, the Asahi Shimbun reported.

The newspaper said Horie told members of its amateur wireless club that he was about 10 days ahead of his target of circumnavigating the globe, a voyage of about 30,000 miles, in 280 days.

Horie, who crossed the Pacific solo in 1962, gave up a previous attempt to sail round the world in 1972 after a storm destroyed his yacht's four masts three days out of Japan.

He reported that severe storms partly crippled his yacht this time, but he managed to make the necessary repairs.

The first man to sail nonstop around the world singlehanded was Sir Francis Chichester of Britain in 1967. Several others have done it since.

Steel Industry And Union Set Deadline On Contract

By ROBERT A. DOBKIN
AP Labor Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Steel industry negotiators sat down at the bargaining table today in an atmosphere of hopefulness that they will agree on a new contract by a self-imposed April 15 deadline.

If they do not have an agreement by that time, they said they would submit all unresolved issues to binding arbitration.

The settlement between the Big 10 steel producers and the United Steelworkers of America is expected to be a costly one for the industry, resulting in higher prices for consumers.

It is expected to follow the pattern set earlier this year in USW contracts with the aluminum can industries.

USW President I.W. Abel has indicated he is seeking a wage increase above 10 per cent to "reflect at least increases in the cost of living plus productivity" for his 350,000 members employed by the 10 major steel-makers.

Barring unforeseen developments, all wage-price controls on the industry will be dropped by April 30, leaving producers free to pass on increased wages and benefits in the form of higher steel prices.

The bargaining is taking place under an historic "experimental negotiating agreement" signed a year ago which precludes strikes or lockouts and guarantees the workers a minimum wage increase of 3 per cent in each of the next three years. In addition, each worker will receive a one-time $150 bonus.

The no-strike agreement was reached in an effort to break the so-called "boom-bust" cycle that has characterized recent steel negotiations.

The current three-year contract, under which steel workers average $5.78 an hour in wages, expires Aug. 1.

If the aluminum and can settlements are extended to steel, wages in the industry would rise about about 12 per cent, or 65 cents an hour, over the next three years, in addition to the nine per cent increase already agreed upon.

An improvement in the wage cost-of-living formula that added nearly 40 cents an hour to paychecks under the current contract also is expected.

But the main emphasis is expected in the pension area, where the union is seeking to duplicate a landmark pension program negotiated with the aluminum companies and later with the can producers.

That plan provided for the first time in an industrial package a partial cost-of-living escalator for retirees. It also lowered the full-pension retirement age from 65 years to 62.

Big Savings In Home-Heating

BOSTON (AP) — The average oil-heated household in Massachusetts has consumed nearly 20 per cent less fuel this year, according to a Needham computer specialist. This represents a savings of some 400 gallons for a typical home that last year had used 2,000 gallons. Richard J. Carroll said. Carroll is a petroleum marketing consultant for Business Computer Services which contracts with more than 70 oil dealers in Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire.

Ate Red Ants

In Survival Test

FT. LEWIS, Wash. (AP) — Sgt. Charles Chapman ate 102 red ants during an ant-eating contest that highlighted a survival symposium. Contestants plucked the ants from a can. "They have a sour almond taste," said S. Sgt. David Bradshaw, who took third place among 15 insect eaters after munching 26 ants.

Bar Ads For Kids

OTTAWA (AP) — A Canadian government commission has banned as of next year all television advertising directed at children on the state-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corp. network.

The Canadian Radio-Television Commission also ordered on Sunday that the corporation eliminate commercials on radio, cut back other television advertising and show more Canadian programs.

The changes, which apply to both English and French programming, were ordered as conditions for renewal of all the broadcast licenses of the national radio and television network.

Though the corporation is owned by the state, its operations are independent of the government.

The United States group called Action for Children's Television has proposed to the Federal Communications Commission that all commercials be banned from children's programming on weekends. The FCC has taken no action.

Sight 'Moving Object' Going Around Mercury

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A tiny moving object which scientists say may be a moon circling Mercury has thus far eluded Mariner 10's powerful cameras, despite an intensive space search.

The cameras scanned the neighborhood of Mercury on Sunday, seeking the mysterious object which was detected by the probe's ultraviolet instruments.

"It is clear that there is a strong source of radiation detached from Mercury and in apparent motion relative to the planet," said Dr. M.E. McElroy of Harvard University.

Mariner, speeding away from Mercury and already more than a million miles from the planet, conducted the moon-hunt despite an electrical problem that threatened to silence the 1,100-pound probe.

"We've got a sick bird, and we're just taking one step at a time," said a spokesman for Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

The camera hunt was intended to produce the first visible evidence of the unidentified object. The ultraviolet radiation from it, which was first seen last Wednesday, is not visible to the human eye or to cameras.

If the object is a moon, it would be the first satellite discovered at Mercury and the 33rd known moon in the solar system of nine planets.

A sudden power drain and rising temperatures forced mission controllers to turn off Mariner experiments Saturday night. But the decision was made Sunday to turn all the instruments on, including the twin television cameras, and hope for the best.

Scientists reported Sunday on their first impression of Mercury gleaned from information sent back Friday, when Mariner sped past the planet about 450 miles above the surface — a distance comparable to that between Los Angeles and San Francisco.

Dr. Bruce Murray, head of the Mariner television team, said the cratered surface of Mercury is strikingly like the moon but the interior seems to be more like that of the earth.

Depart On New 'Monitor' Investigation

CAPE HATTERAS, N.C. (AP) — Duke University researchers planned to begin making a complete photographic composite today of the site where the historic Union-ironclad warship Monitor sank more than a century ago.

The team of scientists aboard a special sea probe vessel will use the photographs and videotapes to locate parts of the Civil War ship. They hope to raise some of those parts, such as the rudder and anchor, later this week.

The sea probe left Morehead City on Sunday to begin the weeklong project. The wreck site is about 15 miles south of Cape Hatteras.

John Newton, superintendent at Duke's Marine Laboratory at Beaufort, is leading the recovery effort. He led a mission last August on Duke's research vessel, Eastward, that located the Monitor wreck site.

Newton said the Monitor is resting on the bottom of the Atlantic in 220 feet of water. Because of the depth and currents in the area, he said it would be extremely dangerous to dive to the shipwreck.

There will be no effort this week to raise the main hull of the Civil War vessel, which sank in a raging gale Dec. 31, 1872, while in tow behind the U.S.S. Rhode Island.

Researchers hope instead to use the sea probe's television guided mechanical claws to raise pieces of the Monitor which apparently fell off the vessel as it rolled over on its way to the bottom.

A Duke University spokesman said the technology needed to raise the Monitor itself "without tearing it all to pieces" is 30 to 40 years away.

The sea probe, owned by Alcoa and on lease this week to the U.S. Navy, is capable of raising a 20-ton payload from 6,000 foot depths, a Duke spokesman said.

Two U.S. Army support vessels went to the site last week to make advance preparations for the sea probe. By using sophisticated electronic equipment, they stationed themselves with 15 feet of the site, the Duke spokesman said.

Trailway Drivers To Sign 3-Year Pact

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Carolina Trailways bus drivers, who walked off their jobs last Dec. 9 when contract negotiations collapsed, were to sign a new three-year contract here today.

H. Lester Creech, president of Carolina Trailways, said bus service would be restored to all major points on the franchise beginning with scheduled departures after midnight tonight.

Carolina Trailways serves points in North Carolina, Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and Delaware.

The strike by about 350 drivers disrupted north-south through service of the national Continental Trailways system on the East Coast.

Creech said service would be restored to all points on the line no later than Thursday.

Berkley Newbill, president of Local 1437 of the Amalgamated Transit Union, announced Saturday that the vote among the striking bus drivers was 244 to 60 for acceptance of the new contract.

"They're ready to go back now," Newbill said, referring to the striking drivers. The strike had completely shut down Carolina Trailways operations.

The full union negotiation committee accepted the contract March 21 in Washington, D.C., and recommended its ratification by the members. Newbill said the voting was conducted by mail. About 150 of the local union's members are stationed in North Carolina, he said.

Although the old contract expired Nov. 16, 1973, the drivers continued to work through Dec. 9. Under the old contract, they were paid $18.00 per 100 miles driven.

Newbill said the new contract provides for an immediate pay increase to $18.65 per 100 miles. He also said the contract provides for pay of $18.40 per 100 miles retroactive to last Nov. 16. That means the drivers will receive extra pay for the miles they drove without a contract.

Effective Nov. 16, 1974, the contract calls for pay of $19.10 per 100 miles, and this is increased to $19.55 effective Nov. 16, 1975, Newbill said.

Two additional holidays are added in the new contract, Newbill said, and regular drivers who work on their days off will be paid time and one-half. There also are improvements in sick pay and vacation benefits, he said.

Settlement of the strike will restore through Continental Trailways service from major cities such as New York, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia, to many central and eastern North Carolina cities.

Travelers from cities such as Philadelphia and Baltimore who wanted to go south beyond North Carolina had been unable to make connections because of the Carolina Trailways strike, a company spokesman said.

Pitt businessman Lynwood Noah Branch died Sunday morning in Pitt Memorial Hospital as a result of a gunshot wound suffered in a Friday night assault at his home on Rt. 9, Greenville.

Pitt County Coroner and Medical Examiner E. W. Harvey said this morning that an autopsy determined that Branch died from a bullet wound in the head. Harvey said that Branch died at 5:50 a.m. Sunday.

Sheriff Tyson said that officers are continuing to work on the case and he requested that persons with information concerning the incident call the Sheriff's Department at 752-3180.

Wake Up! Charles Is Not Your Prince Charming

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: How can I meet Prince Charles? I have always admired him, and it has been my dream to meet him one day, but I'm not having any luck.

I've written him several letters, and each time his secretary has answered, saying: "The Prince of Wales regrets that he is unable to meet you."

I am a normal, intelligent 20-year-old college girl. I'm told I am pretty and have a pleasing personality. I've read everything I could find about the royal family in general and Prince Charles in particular. I'll bet I know more about the royal family than most people living in England and the rest of the United Kingdom.

I hope you won't think I'm crazy, but I have even taken horseback riding lessons, and I plan to take flying lessons when I can afford it because I know those are Prince Charles' favorite sports. Also, if we ever meet I will have something to talk to him about.

Abby, you're supposed to have all the answers. Can you help my dream come true? CATHY IN BROOKLYN

DEAR CATHY: Sorry, but I don't have the answer to this one. Dreaming is all right, but we have to live in the real world. So, wake up, Cathy. Your "Prince Charming" could be someone you've already met—in a Brooks Brothers suit with a Brooklyn accent, yet!

DEAR ABBY: Please settle a family argument. My husband, who is 43, told our 17-year-old daughter that she was "filling out" nicely—then he asked her what her bra size was.

Our daughter became embarrassed, blushed, and said she didn't want to tell him. I came to her defense and said that the question was a personal matter, and I didn't think it was anything her father had to know.

He became angry and said that as her father he had a right to know! Our daughter was nearly in tears, and I ended the discussion by siding with her, and that is where we left it.

Now my husband is upset with both me and my daughter. Abby, do you think that was a proper question for a father to ask his 17-year-old daughter? OLD FASHIONED MOM

DEAR MOM: No! Your budding daughter's bra size is none of Dad's business. And while we're on the subject of measuring things, I wonder what your husband's I.Q. is?

DEAR ABBY: In your opinion, whose place is it to bake a birthday cake for a man? His wife's or his mother's?

I feel that when a boy becomes a man and takes a wife, that is where his mother's obligation should end and his wife should take over.

I have been trying to bake Steve's birthday cake for the last 10 years, but every year when I tell his mother I'd like to bake Steve's cake, she says: "After I'm gone you'll have the rest of your life to bake Steve his birthday cake, so while I'm here, please don't deprive me of that pleasure."

Now, what am I supposed to do? BUGGED

DEAR BUGGED: Where is it written that a man shall have only one birthday cake? You don't need his mother's permission to bake him a cake. [Some men have a cake at the office and one at dinner. And those who burn the candle at both ends can always work in an extra piece.]

after which the dedicatory prayer was given by Rev. Brown. The meeting was closed by the singing of "God Be With You 'Til We Meet Again" and the Mizpah Benediction repeated in unison.

Upon retirement of the new officers, guests were invited into the Sugg-Whichard dining room for a reception. Baskets of flowers adorned the room and refreshments were served by Mrs. Sadie Wrae Carrington, Mrs. Eula Mae Cannon, Mrs. Pauline Mooney, Mrs. Elizabeth Ewell, and Mrs. Eunice Tetterton from a table covered with a white lace cloth centered with an arrangement of spring flowers, flanked by silver candelabra with white candles.

Good-byes were said by Mrs. Ethel Allen, Mrs. Alma Paramore and Mrs. Lillian Hendrix.

Mrs. Tharp will be installed as Associate Matron at a later date.

Have A Joyful Easter Breakfast

By CECILY BROWNSTONE Associated Press Food Editor

If you're planning an Easter breakfast for six, we suggest making Baked Scrambled Eggs the main course.

BAKED SCRAMBLED EGGS
 1/4 cup butter
 12 large eggs
 3/4 cup milk
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
 Toppings, see below

Cut butter into pats and distribute over the bottom of a 13 by 9 by 2 inch baking pan. Pre-heat oven to 350 degrees and during the preheating place pan in oven just until butter melts; shake pan to distribute butter evenly.

Meanwhile, in a medium mixing bowl beat together the eggs, milk, salt and pepper just until whites and yolks are combined. Pour into baking pan.

Bake in the preheated 350-degree oven until eggs are thickened throughout but still moist — 12 to 15 minutes, depending on how done you want the eggs. As mixture begins to set, after about 7 minutes of baking, gently draw a wide metal spatula or pancake turner completely across the bottom of the pan; as eggs continue to set, repeat this process a few more times so large soft curds are formed.

Remove the eggs to a warm serving platter. Serve at once with the help-yourself Toppings. Makes 6 servings.

To Ask For Old Carrier

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP)—The Patriot's Point Development Authority planned to meet the deadline today for applying for the aircraft carrier USS Yorktown. The group wants the ship moved to Charleston as part of a naval museum.

Rear Adm. (ret.) Herman Kossler, the organization's executive director, said it would cost about $3 million to move the ship to Charleston even though there would be no cost in acquiring it from the Navy. The vessel is inactive and docked at Bayonne, N.J.

"It will have to be approved by the Navy and then by Congress," Kossler said, "and all that will take three or four months."

A bill has been introduced in the South Carolina legislature by which the state would back $3 million in bonds to finance the move.

The Yorktown was the subject of the World War II movie "The Fighting Lady." The ship was built in 1943 and served during the Second World War, the Korean conflict and off Vietnam.

Occupational Education Film Showing Planned

On Wednesday night at 7:15 p.m. in the library at Rose High School, interested persons may see a half hour occupational education film and to give their remarks, pro and con, on the subject.

Mrs. Audrey Whitehurst, Director of Secondary Education for the Greenville City Schools, said the 30 minute film will be shown from 7:30 to 8:00 p.m. Wednesday statewide over the PBS TV System, channel 25 locally. The film is titled "A Forum on Occupational Education."

"I know people, or at least those who can get channel 25, can see the film at home," Mrs. Whitehurst said. "But I feel by getting together at Rose to view it, this will be a chance for taxpayers to see the film, discuss their opinions on Occupational education work in schools, and have their own input, pro or con."

"The people at the State Department of Public Instruction are indeed anxious to hear what the public has to say. This helps them to know the effect of what they're doing and where they need to go with the program," Mrs. Whitehurst added.

To get the widest possible scope of on the spot public opinion, each person attending will be given a simplified form to use for recording his remarks following the film.

In addition to supervisory members of the city schools staff, a large number of representative business and industrial leaders—from Pitt Tech, the hospital, banks, businesses, and government agencies, are expected to be on hand.

"This is one occasion I sincerely urge the public to attend and take part in," Mrs. Whitehurst said. Interested persons attending are asked to assemble in the library at 7:15 to be ready for the 7:30 broadcast.

Only After A Crop Is Marketed

The public reads about the prosperity of the American farmer during 1973 and the idea grows that farmers now have it made.

That must be true, many consumers reason, as they pay the steadily rising prices for food at the grocery stores.

It is well to remember however, that the same rising prices are also threatening the farmers' prosperity. State Agriculture Commissioner Jim Graham says North Carolina farmers are facing an uncertain and unpredictable crop production year in 1974. Causing the uncertainty are the energy crisis and general increase in farming costs in general.

"Right now farmers are in a dilemma over what to plant and how much," Graham said.

"Nitrogen is expected to be in short supply, gasoline prices are up, along with labor costs and other production costs."

"They keep saying farmers never had it so good. That was true last year, but it's different this year. We'll have to wait until after the 1974 crops are produced to determine whether farmers made money, broke even or lost money."

The farm operator must be planning right now what crops and the size of the crops he will plant for the growing season. He is aware of the skyrocketing costs but he knows he must pay them.

Only after the crops are harvested and taken to market will he know whether or not the prices he will receive will be enough to cover his expenses. There are few businesses that have to operate that way.

Budget Action Signals Legislature Near End

A sure signal that the Legislature is nearing the end of this session comes with the Joint Appropriations subcommittee approval of a $3 billion budget.

The action means that the budget will soon move to full legislative action and the lawmakers won't be around long after that.

We don't expect that the budget will be opened once it reaches the floors of the two Houses, but undoubtedly efforts will be made. If the budget remains intact, though, we can expect the Legislature to end this session within the next two weeks.

Look Ahead On Land-Use Bills

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—Losing some skirmishes along the way is not going to mean the end of the "quiet revolution" in land management, leading proponents of revolutionary new controls over land use believe.

Accepting philosophically what now looks to be a losing battle in this session of the General Assembly, supporters of land use legislation are looking ahead to future battles.

Originally, 1974 was seen as the year history would be made in North Carolina by the passage of three major packages of legislation—the Coastal Land Use, Mountain Land Use, and Statewide Land Use Policy measures.

With every passing day, there is slimmer chance of the coastal's bill's passing. Most legislative leaders concede the mountain bill will not get action in this session.

The statewide policy proposal which would establish land use planning and regulation for each of the state's 100 counties with specific designation of areas for urban growth, future urban use, farm lands and for areas of environmental protection has been changed instead to a study outline calling for reports to the governor and General Assembly down the road, with the suggestion for some form of legislative action by 1979.

Stormed by critics from two sides—those who say they are pushing too far, too fast; those who say they abandoned ship and didn't look to future directions.

"It is very possible that 200 years from now our ancestors could look back at this time as one carrying almost as much significance as 1776," says James E. Harrington, secretary of the state's Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

"We are in the midst of a quiet revolution in this country and more particularly in this state," Harrington believes. He is, without much fanfare carrying this message to members of the General Assembly, fellow developers, and citizens across the state at every opportunity.

Harrington sees two sides to the situation, but insists the turning point is at hand. "The old saying that a man should be able to do anything he wants with his land really reads: a man should be able to do anything he wants with his land as long as it doesn't injure his neighbor," Harrington said in a recent talk on this subject at a land use seminar in Kinston.

Belongs To Society
Harrington thinks those who say land use legislation is nothing more than over-reaction to environmentalists are wrong. The environmentalists brought the revolution into focus, but the growing concern now has more to do with a public awareness that people "have certain rights to control the use or protection of natural resources which ultimately belong to all of society."

In Short, Harrington, sees abuse of the environment destroying fisheries, destroying land, pushing farm families off their property, damaging drinking water, costing people their jobs as raw materials run out.

As the state's chief developer, Harrington does not believe land use protection is "anti-development," but rather an effort to "look farther down the road (and) see that if we don't stretch out the use of our resources and develop a better system, those resources won't be available for economic development after awhile."

North Carolina can't afford to talk about "no-growth" policies on any scale. Some states have embraced, Harrington believes. Too many Tar Heels are making too little money for that kind of thinking, he said. "North Carolina needs development in the next 10 years to make last year's capital investment of $727 million look like peanuts.

"Yet, I don't want one dollar of that investment unless we are prepared for it. . . prepared to provide the water supply, the sewage treatment, transportation facilities, and housing. . . and prepared to direct the arrival of an industry away from lands being put to more important uses."

Probe Motives Stay Shrouded

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—Sen. Howard Baker's fruitless investigation of gossamer links between the Watergate scandal and the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) seems unlikely to help President Nixon but threatens serious damage to the nation's beleaguered foreign intelligence operation.

Despite accumulating newspaper leaks and Baker's hints of knowing more than he can tell, Watergate is not about to be blamed on the CIA, in part or in whole. Under close examination, the leaks turn out to be red herrings. Objective investigations are positive there was no CIA role in Watergate.

But conservative Republican Baker, ironically, sounds ever more like left-leaning critics of the CIA who complain that Senators linked too closely to the agency never do adequately probe its inner recesses. What's more, the flood of innuendo seemingly originated from Baker's investigation further erodes the CIA's tattered morale and prestige.

Baker's motives are as shrouded as his overall Watergate performance. As senior Republican on the Senate Watergate committee during last summer's televised hearings, he achieved instant fame. But he has since been made him a TV idol infuriated the White House and party regulars. Baker, a party man and a Nixon man, began hedging his bets in midsummer.

That was apparent Aug. 2 when Richard Helms, former CIA director, returned from his post as ambassador to Iran to testify before the Watergate committee. Many Senators believed the highly respected Helms had been bounced from the CIA for refusing to take the Watergate rap. But Baker was surprisingly hostile, his questions presaging his future investigation.

Baker has heatedly denied that this course was dictated by senior White House aides. Even so, his actions were obviously designed to help Mr. Nixon. In explaining his conduct immediately after the Watergate burglary, the President contended he feared investigation would uncover super-secret CIA operations. If Baker developed even tangential CIA connections with Watergate, Mr. Nixon would obviously look better.

Working toward that end, Baker last October noted a Harper's magazine article by Andrew St. George claiming that Helms had advanced knowledge of the Watergate burglary. Baker eagerly dispatched the article to Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, acting chairman of the CIA oversight subcommittee. St. George, a journalistic swashbuckler, was summoned to Washington for a closed-door session. The verdict: he knew nothing.

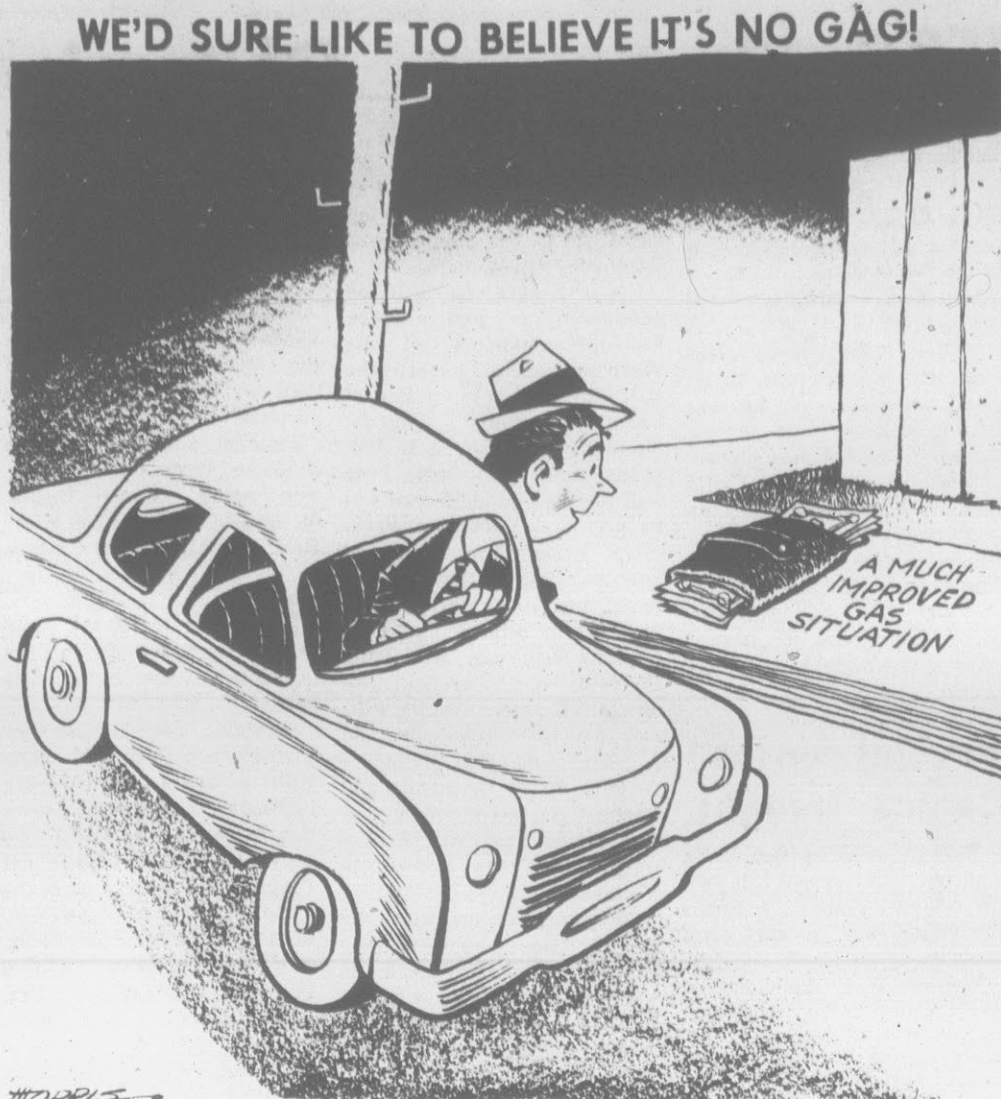

But Baker relied on more than flamboyant journalism. The Watergate committee's minority staff, concentrating on the CIA, has produced a classified report. Insinuating more than accusing, it is the mother lode for published reports suggesting some ominous CIA role in Watergate (though, publicly, Baker affirms Helms' innocence).

The Watergate committee majority staff regards the report as next to useless. Rep. Lucien Nedzi of Michigan, ranking CIA expert in Congress, believes there is no reason to change the Oct. 23 finding of his House subcommittee giving the CIA a clean bill of health. Federal prosecutors have found no CIA role in the conspiracy. Published charges of such a role have all turned into red herrings.

Thus, recent newspaper accounts of internal tapes destroyed by Helms in his last CIA days become hollow when it is learned they were unrelated to Watergate. Nor is there factual grounding for insinuations, fostered by Baker, that prize-winning Washington Post reporter Bob Woodward was given Watergate information in return for steering clear of the CIA. The most recent red herring: a Chicago Tribune story, reflecting the Baker report that a CIA agent was sent to Watergate burglar James McCord's house shortly after the burglary to destroy documents linking him with the CIA; in truth, McCord's wife burned his papers.

Baker has been subjected to puzzled scrutiny by Senate colleagues, not only for his

Tricks Of The 'Trade'

By F. RICHARD CICCONE
Associated Press Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — Burglary is one of the most rapidly growing occupations in the United States, says James C. Miller.

He heads a firm that manufactures burglary-alarm devices and hires convicted burglars, as consultants. The former convicts enlighten the firm on tricks of the burglary trade and how to thwart them.

Miller, president of Inter-matic, Inc., says there may be as many as three million burglaries in the country this year. He theorizes the energy crisis may be promoting an increase in the crime.

"When you have a reduction in lighting, you have an increase in burglaries," Miller said in an interview.

The FBI reported that in 1972, the last full year for which complete figures were available, there were 2.34 million burglaries in the country. The burglary rate jumped 38 per cent in the five-year period from 1967 to 1972.

Miller said his firm's burglar-consultants "have told us a lot about how burglars operate and are able to inform customers of the best ways to discourage a burglar."

"There are two kinds of burglars," he said. "One is the kind you see on television and then there are all the rest."

Miller's consultants say they don't know the kind of burglar who uses electromagnets and helicopters to make dazzling jewel thefts. "If they exist, they probably never get caught," Miller said.

"All the rest are either self-taught or learned the trade in prison from other thieves," he says. He also says that burglars don't spend time staking out houses. "They simply walk through a neighborhood and when they spot a home where they believe nobody is home, they break in. The crucial time is between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m."

Burglars usually knock on doors and if someone turns out to be home they pose as a salesman who has the wrong address.

"A sure tip-off to the burglar is to see the same light burning all the time. Another is a perfectly cleaned house. If women would leave the bed messed up, we'd never have burglaries," he said.

Burglars are frightened most by noise, he says. "If you leave a radio on, a burglar rarely will enter a house."

Daylight burglaries also have increased, Miller said. "After all, most burglars wear suits and look just like businessmen. They don't go around in masks with their collars turned up."

Strength For Today

NEVERTHELESS GOD
This combination of words occurs frequently in the Bible, often after reciting some trying situation. Despite what has happened, nevertheless God did some mighty work, or laid down some unyielding principle. The words mean that above life's difficulties, above its injustices, above the evil schemes of men, above the sin of the world stand the power and the might of God. In the end it is God and his unyielding principles with which we have to deal. Often it seems that we can never triumph over the difficulties which beset our paths—"Nevertheless God." The hearts of men seem suddenly to grow cold to the demands of justice—"Nevertheless God;" justice and righteousness are part of the moral order he has created. Our sinful natures seem more and more to be confirmed in their iniquity—"Nevertheless God;" we always have the opportunity to triumph in Christ Jesus. When the things of earth seem to overwhelming to be endured, remember the power above our own. "Nevertheless God."

Corporate Reports Overly Dull

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — This is the time of year when corporate annual reports fill the mails — and too often the wastebaskets of shareholders. The usual explanations for such indifference is that the reports are dull or overly complex or that they fail in other ways to communicate the message. But an investment advisory service maintains that just a few tips on what to look for in a report can provide valuable information even to those shareholders who have little or no specialized analytical training.

Standard & Poor's Corp. claims that the president's letter is as good a place as any to begin, since it usually provides a concise summary of the financial outcome in terms of revenues, net income and per-share results. It cautions readers, however, that "realistically, of course, you must realize that this text and related data tend to put the best possible face on management's performance." Saving the detailed financial data for last, the next step is to turn to the 5-year or 10-year summary that most annual reports now include. First, look at the trend of revenues. "If they are advancing at a fairly steady pace, so far so good. But if they rose five per cent last year, 10 per cent in the previous year and 20 per cent before that, you may have cause for concern." Have earnings been keeping pace? If revenues have been rising and net income has been flat or down, something has gone wrong. And if net income has risen but per-share earnings haven't, it may mean the stock has been diluted by an increase in shares outstanding. Stockholders are inclined to overlook the accountant's report, the letter in which the outside auditors certify the financial statements. But S&P suggests at least skimming it for exceptions or qualifications to the report. The statement of income, or profit and loss statement, never should be overlooked. It provides you with relatively detailed information on the latest two years' earnings, especially where the revenue dollar has been going. "If revenues have been rising but earnings have not, have costs gotten out of hand? If so, where does the problem lie?" If expenses seem high, "you will want to satisfy yourself that this is a temporary condition before concluding that your investment is worth holding."

East Carolina Takes Two Games Against Davidson

Geoff Beaston. The Pirates went on to win both ends of a doubleheader, 2-1 and 12-0. (Reflector photo by Chip Lambeth)

East Carolina took advantage of some Davidson mistakes to take a 2-1 victory over the Wildcats in the first game of a double header here yesterday. Then they came back and stomped the 'Cats, 12-0 in the nightcap.

The pair of wins boosted the Pirate Southern Conference record to 3-1 in the league, good enough for third place in the early standings.

Defending champion Appalachian State is in first place with a 1-0 mark, followed by The Citadel at 4-1. Following the Bucs are William & Mary, 1-1; Furman, 1-2; VMI, 1-3, and Davidson, 1-4. Richmond has yet to play a league game.

Bill Godwin tossed the victory in the opening game, scattering five hits. The Bucs got only three off losing hurler Joel Tew, but two of them came in the fateful fifth, when the Pirates pushed over both of their runs to claim the victory.

Wayne Bland came back with a four-hitter in his shutout in the second game, as the Bucs finally got their bats unlimbered, pounding out 13 hits in that game.

Davidson got off the first threat in the opener, putting a man on second in the second inning. Jim Nichols drew a one-out walk and moved up when Bill Todd reached on an error.

Godwin caught him off second, however, picking him off, but then got his own surprise as Todd stole second while Godwin was walking back to the mound.

In the third, the Wildcats threatened again. Mitch Stone singled and took second on a wild pitch with one down, but died there.

Davidson finally got a run over in the fourth. George Weicker led off with a single into center field. He stole second and moved to third when Nichols grounded out. Todd followed with a ringing single past third into left, scoring Weicker. But Todd was thrown out trying to stretch his hit into a double.

Davidson missed by fractions of an inch of getting another run in the fifth. David Mayberry started the frame with a single and was sacrificed to second. With two down, Dave Ingold ripped one down the left field line that hit just outside the line, raising dust and protests, but getting no results as the Bucs went on to retire the side.

The Bucs had their own initial threat in the second also. Carl Summerell led off with a single to center and moved up on an out. He took third on a passed ball, but died there.

Rick McMahon reached to open the third on an error, but after being sacrificed to second, courtesy runner Jack Elkins died there.

In the fifth, however, the Bucs got the breaks they needed. Bobby Harrison led off with a walk and moved up when Ron Leggett reached on an error. McMahon grounded to second, getting Leggett, but moving Harrison to third. Elkins returned to run for McMahon, and moved to second on an infield out, putting runners on second and third. Russ Smith dropped a hit into right field, scoring both Harrison and Elkins, giving the Bucs a 2-1 lead they held onto.

But where the first game was nip-and-tuck, the second was wide open, as the Bucs put together three big innings to run the Wildcats out of the park. Bland allowed the 'Cats few opportunities to score. Only two men reached as far as second, as two walked in the fifth, and a single and a walk put a man in scoring position in the seventh.

East Carolina pushed over one run in the first. Smith got a one-out single to left and Ron Staggs followed with a double down the left field line. With two down, Summerell was intentionally walked, and Harrison responded with a single, scoring Smith. But that rally was cut off with a strikeout.

In the second, the Bucs got three more. Elkins led off with a walk and McMahon singled, with Tommy Fleetwood replacing him as his runner.

Geoff Beaston cracked a double into the left field corner, scoring both Elkins and Fleetwood, and when the relay to the plate was misplayed, Beaston alertly moved onto third. He scored from there on a long foul fly by Smith, making it 4-0.

After threats in both the third and fourth went by the boards without damage, the Bucs exploded in the fifth for eight big runs to make it a runaway.

Summerell opened the fifth with a single and Harrison got the team's third double of the game, scoring Summerell. Leggett reached on an error and Elkins beat out a bunt down the third base line, loading the bases. McMahon walked, forcing over Harrison. Beaston's infield bouncer was played to the plate, but wasn't in time to get Leggett. Smith walked to score Elkins, and an infield hit by Staggs brought in Fleetwood, running for McMahon.

Mike Hogan kept things going with a double to right, scoring both Beaston and Smith, and Staggs came over when Summerell grounded out with the final run.

The Bucs continue into one of their busiest weeks this afternoon, playing host to the University of Richmond at 3 p.m. at Harrington Field. They will also entertain N. C. State University on Tuesday, then they travel Thursday to William & Mary. They are back home Saturday for a doubleheader against Appalachian State University.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

If last Saturday afternoon's scrimmage was anything to judge by, football practice at East Carolina University isn't going to be any picnic.

Coach Pat Dye believes in hard work, and he believes in long hours, too, apparently, Saturday's scrimmage was just over three hours long. Of course, personnel were not involved in all three hours, but only in portions.

Still, it was one of the longest, if not the longest, we've ever seen here. And Dye remarked afterwards that it will not be the last one of that length to be seen in Ficklen Stadium.

And if there was enthusiasm built around the Pirate football program under Sonny Randle, then the top is going to go right off if things continue. To see some of the hitting that went on Saturday afternoon, you would think it were closer to September than it really is.

There are some problems to be solved. But from what has been shown already, people around Greenville who have watched the first three practice days believe that these problems are going to be overcome.

The Pirate defense, if anything, should be much stronger than last year, simply because of experience. And this defense was one of the best ever seen by the Southern Conference.

Offensively, the Bucs will be using the wishbone following the pattern of Dye's former school Alabama. Saturday afternoon, the players moved the ball well. A little more passing attack to open it up, and it could be ready to move. Dye wanted six or seven backs, and it looks like he's got that many, and still has the incoming freshmen to look at.

Perhaps, by the time December rolls around, the Bucs may be finally able to claim that bowl bid they've been after—and have deserved for the past two years.

And watching the wishbone operate, some fans are wondering just what the Bucs would have looked like running it with Carl Summerell at quarterback, Les Strayhorn at fullback, and Kenny Strayhorn and Carlester Crumpler at the halfbacks. Man, oh, man!

We really don't know where the fault lies, but we'd like to apologize to our readers for not having some recent athletic events of East Carolina on our pages.

In particular we refer to some of the track events of the last few months. We have made every effort to get these from the university but apparently no one in charge seems to care.

It seems a shame when a fellow like Sammy Phillips can win the hurdles event in the Atlantic Coast Relays in record time and no one cares enough to report it.

Lee 'Needed' Sunday Win

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer
NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "The money I don't need," Lee Trevino said. "The win I do need."

Trevino, whose rags to riches career has won him more than a million dollars, was relaxing in the pleasant after-glow of his Sunday triumph in the Greater New Orleans Open, a victory that ended a 13-month famine for the man who has become an American folk hero.

He won it with what he called "about as near perfect a round of golf as I've ever played."

That was the seven-under-par 65 final round that completed an almost incredible performance. In four days of competition he didn't make a bogey, missed three greens and two fairways and finished with a 267 total, a distant 21 under par and the best 72-hole total on the pro golf tour this year.

His winning margin was a fantastic eight strokes, the biggest in more than 12 months.

"And you know, I'd never played this course—good before," he said of the lake-dotted, cypress-studded 7,080-yard course. "Always before this course had eaten my lunch."

Youthful South African Bobby Cole, who had started the final round in a tie with Trevino for the top spot, finished with a 73 and was tied for second with rookie Ben Crenshaw at 275. Crenshaw, who now has two second place finishes this season, closed with a 70.

Rod Curl and Larry Hinson followed at 276, Curl with a finishing 69 and Hinson 72.

Jack Nicklaus, the 1973 New Orleans champion, never really got into it. He had a last round 70 and was tied at 277 with Jerry McGee, 69, and Australian David Graham, 73.

Foreman Is Still 'Guest'

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Caracas may be a nice place to visit but world heavyweight champion George Foreman doesn't want to live there.

"The situation hasn't changed. We are still stuck here," said Foreman's trainer, Dick Sadler, Sunday. "The matter is no longer in our hands."

Foreman knocked out Ken Norton in the second round of their title fight last Tuesday and has been trying to leave the country ever since. Venezuelan authorities have detained the champ, however, insisting that he pay an 18 per cent tax on his earnings for the bout before going anywhere.

Foreman received a reported $700,000 purse as well as other earnings from the fight and the authorities have reportedly asked for $150,000 in cash and a $150,000 guarantee to cover the taxes.

Norton, who picked up a $200,000 purse for his efforts, settled his tax problems Saturday and was allowed to leave.

Defection Of 3 Dolphins Signals Football War

An AP Sports Analysis
By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
The effects of Sunday's "shot heard 'round the world'" of pro football may not be certain for as long as two years. But one thing was made clear by the signing to Toronto Northmen contracts of Larry Csonka, Jim Kiick and wide receiver Paul Warfield: an international war has begun, and the battles to follow may leave countless casualties behind.

The fighting was already under way in Canada over permission for the Northmen to play in Toronto. But the signings of the three National Football League stars has drawn the United States into the conflict.

At the center of the struggle is Northmen owner John Bassett, whose $3-million package offer lured a segment of the Miami Dolphins' potent offensive battalion to the World Football League.

The success of this maneuver will be gauged at the turnstiles when, and if, Toronto plays its first game with the mercenary troops.

If certain Canadian legislators have their way, the Northmen won't play in Toronto. The WFL franchise, some say, constitutes a threat to the Canadian Football League; it could divide fan interest and open the way for further incursions into other major Canadian markets such as Vancouver and Montreal.

The new league threatens the established NFL — a threat made even stronger Sunday when the first "big names" jumped leagues. The WFL, which many had hoped would shrivel up and disappear, for the first time has an all-important factor: respectability.

The signing of marginal players didn't make waves any more than it did in the early stages of the American Football League, American Basketball Association or World Hockey Association. But the acquisition of Csonka, Kiick and Warfield cannot be overlooked. The three were major contributors to two consecutive Super Bowl champions and now they've gone to the WFL.

And that could set off a chain reaction of "if it's good enough for them, it's good enough for me" thinking among NFL players.

Joe Robbie, Dolphins' managing general partner, had a chance to match the Toronto offer. He didn't. Financial security like that offered by Bassett comes only once in a career, so three very talented football players will play out the option year on their NFL contracts and join the Northmen in Toronto — or wherever — in 1975.

But the heavy fighting has not yet begun. Robbie may have been the first wounded in action. The Canadian casualty reports have not yet arrived, but they may be known by mid-week, by which time the parliament may have decided the fate of the World Football League in Canada.

There is one certainty: complacency has been shattered in NFL offices across the United States. The upstart league isn't kidding around.

Southern Cal Ends Indiana Swim Dynasty

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A second college dynasty has crumbled — by the narrowest of margins.

Six-time defending champion Indiana has lost the NCAA swimming title to Southern California, 339-338, little more than a week after North Carolina State topped UCLA's perennial defending basketball champions from the throne, 80-77.

"Well, somebody had to do it and it might as well be us," said a controlled Southern Cal swim coach Peter Daland afterwards. "I don't get nervous. I'm a professional. Of course I'm very happy for the kids."

Daland's team was a little more enthusiastic. It yelled and screamed and carried Daland around the Belmont Plaza pool after the meet ended Saturday.

"I'm glad we won. Now I can enjoy my record," said freshman John Naber, who had set an American record of 1:48.95 in the 200-yard backstroke. He chopped nearly a second off his own American mark in the event.

Freshman Joe Bottom was another hero for the Trojans, upsetting Tennessee senior John Trembley, the defending champion, to win the 100 freestyle. Then he swam 44.6, the fastest split, as the Trojans gained an indispensable second place in the 400 freestyle relay, the last event of the day.

"I was nervous because of all the big-time swimmers when I got here," said the gangling 6-foot-5 first year man. "But I do my best when I'm uptight."

Jack Tingley posted another first for the Trojans in the 1650 freestyle.

A Comeback By Sprinter

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — North Carolina Central sprinter Larry Black, who finished second in the 200 meters at the 1972 Olympics but missed the 1973 track season with a foot injury, may be making a comeback.

He won the 100-yard dash with a 9.3-second time Saturday in the second annual Atlantic Coast Relays at North Carolina State University here. And, he anchored winning N.C. Central teams in the 440-yard sprint medley relays.

Black's run in the 100-yards was a meet record, as were N.C. Central's winning times in the 440 and the spring medley relays.

In all, 15 of 19 meet records fell. Although team scoring was not kept, Maryland won five events and N.C. Central won four.

Two contestants in the long jump broke the 25-foot barrier, with James Godwin of Fayetteville State winning the event with a distance of 25 feet, 5 1/2 inches, a meet record. Maryland's Bill Goodman was second with a leap of 25-3.

Dave Phillips of Pembroke State became the first North Carolina collegian to high jump seven feet as he won the event and set a meet record with a jump of 7-0.

Laver And King Takes Victories

By The Associated Press
Rod Laver, who says he's finally got his adrenalin going again, and Billie Jean King have walked away with first-prize money in two seaport tennis tournaments.

Laver, with his first tournament victory this year, got by Arthur Ashe in three sets and then beat Roscoe Tanner Sunday in a tournament at Palm Desert, Calif. Billie Jean King came up with a tough victory over Chris Evert to win the Women's National Indoor Tennis championships Sunday in New York.

It took Laver two days to defeat Ashe. Laver, 35, lost the first set to Ashe 7-6 Saturday and was tied 3-3 in the second when wind forced them to postpone the final set and a half until Sunday.

Laver went on to take the second and third sets 7-6, 6-2, then squashed Tanner 6-4, 6-2.

"Playing that first match was good for me," Laver said. "It got my adrenalin going and I felt great in the second match."

Meanwhile, Ms. King was extended to three sets to defeat the 19-year-old Miss Evert who still holds a 6-5 lifetime edge over her. The score was 6-4, 3-6, 6-3.

Ms. King broke Miss Evert's service in the final set to take a 4-2 lead.

"That was the key game," Ms. King said. "I had blown my service earlier and had fallen behind and was ready to eat my racquet."

Dick Stockton captured his first championship in two years on the World Championship Tennis circuit Sunday by defeating Jiri Hrebec of Czechoslovakia 6-2, 6-0 at Atlanta. Stan Smith and Bob Lutz beat Stockton and Brian Gottfried for the doubles title in the same tournament.

Other Sunday winners were Jimmy Connors and Tom Okker.

Connors defeated unseeded Vijay Amritraj of India 6-1, 6-2 to take first in a $20,000 classic at Tempe, Ariz., and Okker beat third-seeded Tom Gorman 4-6, 7-6, 6-1 in the finals of a tournament at Rotterdam in The Netherlands.

The Worry Clinic Trial Marriage Is Poor Gamble

Ted wants to know how he should answer teen-agers who ask about trial marriage. So use the standard rules we teach in "Business Psychology" concerning trial orders and goods "on consignment." Girls are dupes who sell out for less than a wedding ring!

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-590: Ted H., aged 23, is a seminary student.

Dr. Crane, he began, "I handle a small church over the weekends.

"Last Sunday I taught the Bible Class of high school seniors.

"Several brought up the question about trial marriages.

"One of the girls read a newspaper item to the effect that marriages had dropped by 4 per cent in Nevada and divorces were down by 20 per cent, due to the fact more couples are living together without wedding ceremonies.

"So how would you psychologists and physicians answer that?"

Business Psychology

For many years I taught the various courses at Northwestern and George Washington Universities on "Business Psychology."

Therein we discussed such things as putting goods into a retail store "on consignment."

And the "trial order" was a kindred topic.

Merchants have proved to their sorrow that both of those sales gimmicks are unwise.

make your work easier and more precise. Take care of any health problem you may have now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will know how to make much progress, provided there is adequate education either given or acquired by own efforts.

Much generosity in this nature and one who will want to make own way early in life. A strong-willed person here. A good actor or actress in this chart, also.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

SOLUTION OF SATURDAY'S PUZZLE

Par time 24 min. AP Newsfeatures 4-1

For when such merchandise is not officially ordered and paid for, the merchants are likely to take a spectator attitude.

"Let's see if the items move off our counters," is their usual view.

Meanwhile, the merchants make no serious effort to see that the new items prove successful.

If, however, the merchant lays down money for such goods, he then diligently tries to make a success thereof.

Same vital law of psychology holds true of trial marriage, vs. the legal wedding in which both parties publicly pledge to "love, honor and cherish" each other till death parts them.

In trial marriage, therefore, the man and woman are less likely to be diligent partners but take the lackadaisical view that the marriage must prove itself, without active sacrifice, struggle and tears on their part.

Trial marriage also starts out on an illicit level; not a publicly acclaimed religious contract. It is thus a sub rosa or secretive thing, which the couple try to hide from respectable society.

Insurance Firms Object To Auto Rate Slash

By ROBERT H. REID, Associated Press Writer
CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—A decline in traffic accidents since the gasoline shortage has prompted the state of North Carolina to seek a reduction of some 13 per cent in auto liability insurance rates.

Objections by the insurance industry have sent the matter to the state Court of Appeals. Some $3 million a month are at stake.
A victory by the state could set a precedent for similar reductions elsewhere.
The state contends that the gasoline shortage has brought about lower highway speeds and less traffic, and in turn a sharp decline in accidents.

As of Sunday, 323 persons had been killed this year in traffic accidents in North Carolina, compared with 402 for the same period last year, the state Highway Patrol said.
Last month, North Carolina Insurance Commissioner John Ingram ordered an 11 per cent reduction in bodily injury rates and a 14 per cent cut in property damage premiums. However, the North Carolina Auto Rate Insurance Office, which represents the industry, objected.

Under state law, such objections are resolved by the appeals court.
The Rate Office claims the long-term effects of the gasoline shortage are unclear, and that a premium reduction is premature.
Also, it contends, inflation is offsetting any decline in accident rates, and it says the state used only accident figures compiled by the Department of Motor Vehicles rather than claims statistics.
"Really, it's dollars that count and not crashes," said

Paul Mize, general manager of the Rate Office. "If a ruling says that the energy crisis will be with us for a long time, then we ought to think in terms of inflation continuing for the indefinite future."
The industry also objects because the reduction would not only affect policies written after the effective date, but those scheduled to go into effect after that time.
Charles Lloyd of the state attorney general's office told The Associated Press that inflation and other factors were considered, but that the state still feels the reduction is justified.

"We did use insurance figures from the past," he said, "and with statistics we were able to establish a high correlation between motor vehicle figures and insurance figures."
Figures from the Department of Motor Vehicles show that during December and January, 272 persons were killed in traffic accidents in the state. During that same period a year ago, 314 persons lost their lives.
"I don't doubt that the gas shortage had some effect in reducing accidents," Mize said, "but other factors may have also had an effect." He cited mild weather last winter as an example.

Lloyd, who is handling the case for the state, concedes that an increase in gasoline supplies could bring back higher accident rates. However, he said the industry could petition for a rate adjustment of that happened.
"We don't know how long speed limits will remain at 55," he said. "It's possible that someday gas will be available for 30 cents a gallon. If that happens, all they've got to do is ask for a hearing."
No decision is expected from the appeals court for at least 45 days.

The Pitt County Chapter of the American Red Cross will sponsor a Senior Lifesaving Course at the Memorial Gym pool, beginning Wednesday at 4:30 p.m.

The rest of the course schedule will be discussed at the Wednesday organizational meeting. Participants should bring their swim suits and be prepared for initial course instruction.

Persons wishing to take the course must have passed their 15th birthday or have completed the ninth grade.

Participants must be able to Participants must also be able to tread water for one minute with the hands beneath the surface for use as auxiliary support.

Persons needing further information should call Mrs. Ruth Taylor at the Pitt Red Cross office, 752-4222.

What Value The Wife?

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. (AP)—Point Judith fishermen value their boats more than wives, according to a study by two social scientists from the University of Rhode Island.

In a study comparing fishermen and mill workers, the scientists asked, "What is the worst thing that could happen to you?"

The most frequent response for both groups was the individual's own death or serious illness. The second most frequent response was "loss of boat" among fishermen and "loss of wife" among mill workers. Fishermen put loss of wife third.

insinuations but for the way he conducts his investigation. When Helms was summoned from Teheran yet again last week, he faced intensely hostile closed-door questioning by Baker. The use of ex-White House aide Charles Colson, indicted in the Watergate conspiracy, as a major source of information in Baker's CIA investigation is subject to criticism.
Moreover, the investigation is beginning to echo old complaints from Senate super-doves such as Sen. J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas: the CIA is permitted to run wild by Symington and other Senate protectors. Adding conservative Baker to the Fulbright camp further endangers the future of this vital agency.

When Baker on CBS's "Face the Nation" last Sunday declared "There's a great wealth of information" coming from his investigation (though he could not say what), his real message to the House could be: don't push too hard about the CIA. Actually, Mr. Nixon's problems seem too acute for Baker's warning to matter much. However he may hurt the CIA, Howard Baker can scarcely help the President.

Count the ways carpooling could put you ahead.

The man in this car gets 13 passenger miles to the gallon.

The four people in this car get 52 passenger miles to the gallon.

Even though the oil embargo has been lifted, the need for conservation still exists.

If you're undecided about carpooling, these ideas may stimulate your interest and help you make your decision.

1. You can dramatically increase passenger miles-per-gallon.

If your carpool cars average, say, 13 miles to the gallon and you share costs with three others, you are paying for only one gallon in four, and you're getting 52 passenger miles-per-gallon.

Carpool mileage calculator
If pool cars average this many miles per gallon	And there are this many riders
	2	3	4	5
10	20	30	40	50
15	30	45	60	75
20	40	60	80	100

2. You would drive less. Therefore, use less gasoline.

In a work carpool of just three persons, according to national averages, you would drive 1,692 fewer miles per year, and consume 127 fewer gallons of gasoline. Tire, battery, and other maintenance costs would go down accordingly.

3. If you pay to park now, you would pay less.

Parking costs vary. But suppose you pay $1.00 per day. In a work-year, that's about $245.00. If you shared this expense with three others in your pool, your cost would be only $61.25, saving you $183.75 annually.

4. Tolls go down, too.

As with parking costs, if you pay tolls now, you'd pay less in a carpool. Special driving lanes and other plans favoring carpools are developing all over the country, too.

5. You might enjoy it.

According to the Federal Highway Administration, carpoolers say that when they are not at the wheel, tensions vanish and they come to work relaxed. They read, chat or just sit back and doze. Also: in a one-car household, the car is available to the rest of the family.

6. By riding together, you would help cut driving time.

If you had a four-member pool, you'd remove three cars from your route. Another 100 pools like yours would take away another 300 cars. Traffic tie-ups would be reduced, driving time shortened.

7. Nationally, the savings could be substantial.

The Citizen's Advisory Committee on Environmental Quality says that 82% of working Americans commute to their jobs in automobiles; more than half of them drive alone. If only a third of those people got together in three-member carpools, we would save over 3½ billion gallons of gasoline per year, nearly 5% of sales through retail gasoline outlets.

8. If you can't carpool to work.

Think of all the other ways to share rides: going shopping, to school, to meetings, to civic and social events, for recreation. The list is endless. The idea is to find people going your way and organize yourselves into an efficient team.

Identify your car.

If you're in a carpool now, or have plans to start one, Exxon would be pleased to send you an attractive, colorful window medallion (actual size—3½") for each car in your carpool, to recognize your gasoline conservation contributions.

Just send a card noting the number of cars in your pool, and your name and address to:
Exxon, P.O. Box 1298,
Trenton, New Jersey 08607.

A lot of carpools would make a big difference in buying the time this nation needs to help resolve our energy problems. Exxon believes that together we can help keep things moving.
