Credit Union Qualifies To Bid On Tract

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

The State Employees Credit Union, with a branch office in Greenville, qualified as a bidder Monday night for Parcel 2 in Shore Drive located on the northwest corner of First and Greene Streets.

Ed Greer, general manager of the operation which serves employees of the state, appeared before the Redevelopment Commission and pointed out that the Credit Union proposes to construct an office building on the 2.25 acre tract.

Greer said that the Credit Union, which is not a state operated business although it has some 75,000 state employed members, would build a structure containing from 8,000 to 12,000 square feet with an estimated building cost of some 300,000.

He said that 4,000 square feet of the new office building would be utilized for immediate Credit Union purposes and the remainder of the office space would be rented until needed by the firm.

Greer reported that the Credit Union would have an architect draw up plans for a building that would blend in with the location and he said that although the firm is under no pressure to build, the facility would be under construction within a year.

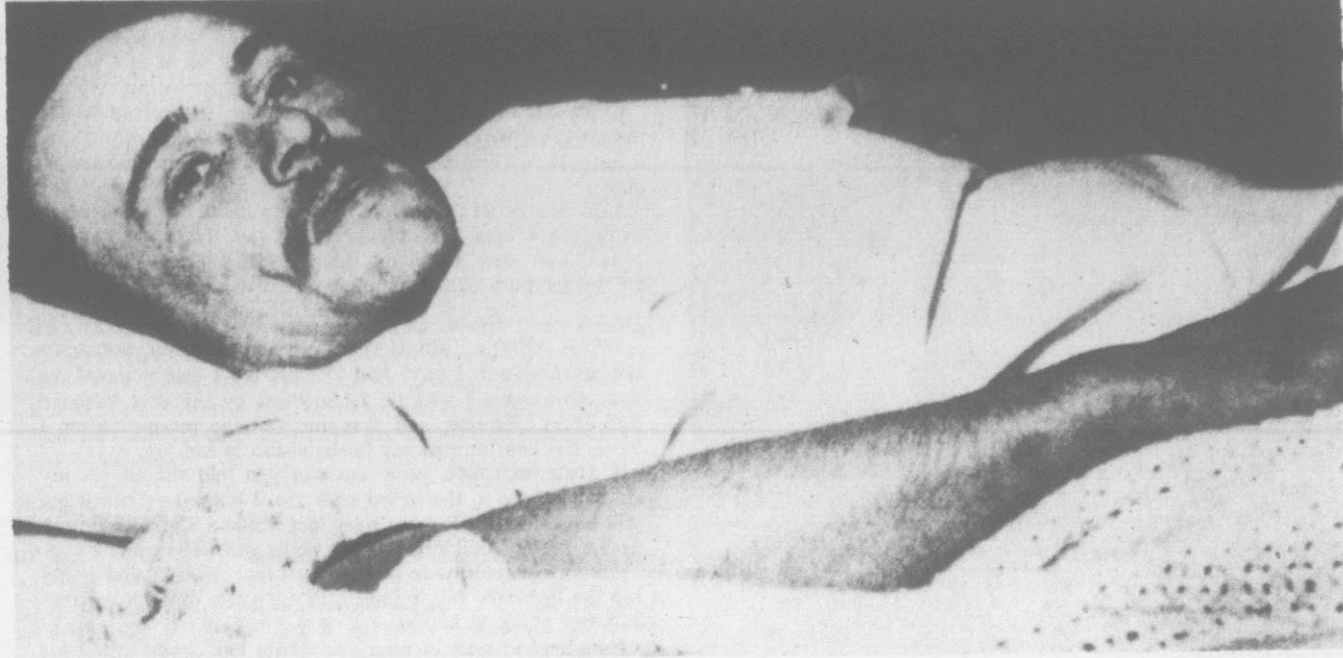

Assuring commissioners that the firm does not wish to purchase the tract, which contains over 104,000 square feet, for speculation purposes, Greer said that the property around the new building would be well landscaped and cared for.

The business, which has nine branches in North Carolina, has had an office in Greenville for over two years, it was pointed, with an employee staff of four.

Commissioners approved the firm as a bidder for the parcel, subject to submitting plat plans and meeting other qualifications.

Executive director Joe Laney was authorized to proceed with preparing an amendment to the Central Business District Project that would extend the project boundary westward to include Pitt Street from Fifth Street south to Bonners Lane.

Laney explained that the city has scheduled a public hearing on the proposed Thoroughfare Plan for April 18. He said that the plan provides for a Pitt-

Parachutist Falls 7,200 Feet And Survives Impact

STERLING, Ill. (AP) — "I was wondering, if I wake up, I know I'm alive; if I don't, I know I'm dead," says a skydiver who survived after his parachute failed to open fully in a jump from 7,200 feet.

"I still can't believe it," Jeff Wetzell of Rock Falls, Ill., said Monday.

Wetzell suffered two broken ankles and a broken vertebra when he landed in a wet, newly plowed field — which helped to cushion the impact.

Wetzell and two fellow members of the Rock River

Valley Sky Diving Club were attempting to build a star — by joining hands — and free fall for 30 seconds when trouble intervened Sunday.

"There were only two of us that got together — myself and Larry Lyons," the 26-year-old construction laborer said. "At 4,000 feet, I looked down, saw we were off our spot, and I shook loose to start tracking over."

"At about 2,500 (feet), I pulled (the ripcord) and nothing came out. I waited and still nothing happened."

Wetzell, a veteran of more than 150 jumps, said he then tried to free his main parachute so he could open the safety chute without entangling it.

"There was a malfunction and I couldn't release it," he said. "I said, 'Good God.' I was wondering how much time do I have, what could I do? Everything was fouled up, I couldn't get loose. I just waited and prayed that something would work out."

"It did. I got a partial chute."

Bob Brandt, pilot of the chutists' plane, estimated that Wetzell's parachute blossomed about one-third at an altitude of about 400 to 700 feet.

Mike Truffer, of the U.S. Parachute Association in Monterey, Calif., calculated that impact speed under those conditions would be about 45 or 50 miles per hour.

Truffer said that at that speed "you could conceivably survive with very severe injuries."

Wetzell said, "In training, they tell you to keep your feet together and roll. As I saw the ground coming up on me, that's just what I did. I don't remember much else."

Two boys from a nearby farm were the first to reach Wetzell.

"I looked up and couldn't believe it. I was still alive," he recalled.

Wetzell's wife, Linda, was watching the jump.

"He had a dream the night before that I was killed," she said.

"When I saw he was in trouble, all I could think of was that stupid dream."

Wetzell says he expects to be laid up from three to six months. Will he jump again? "That's in the future," he said.

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's coastal zoning bill has weathered another gauntlet in the General Assembly and appears headed for enactment.

The bill won tentative House approval 67-38 Monday night after opponents tried to weaken it with a series of amendments.

Calling on a coalition of Republicans and urban Democrats, Rep. Willis Whichard, D-Durham, was able to defeat all of the amendments which would have seriously changed the bill.

If it wins final House approval today, the bill will go back to the Senate for concurrence in the House's amendments. It could become law late this week.

The House debated the bill until well after its normal Monday night adjournment time. It accepted several "clarifying" amendments.

Two of them would specify that the definition of coastal counties excludes Martin and Pitt counties.

Another gave aggrieved land owners the right to a jury trial to determine whether the state has unreasonably deprived them of use of their land and should be forced to buy it.

But Whichard successfully moved to table amendments which would have removed all but the easternmost counties in the state from the bill and removed the state's power to disapprove land use plans adopted by local governments.

That left the basic mechanics of the bill, which is supposed to stop runaway coastal development, intact.

It would require local governments in the coastal counties to begin developing land use plans for approval by the state.

It would also establish a coastal resources commission to be appointed by the governor from nominees selected by local governments.

The commission would designate "areas of environmental concern" on the coast. Within those areas, no major developments could take place without commission approval.

During its legislative history, the bill has been the subject of numerous hearings and debates. It has been amended so much that many environmentalists have begun to doubt its value.

But Whichard and Sen. William Staton, D-Lee, its sponsors, say that it can provide the state with the tools necessary to preserve the natural resources of the coastal area.

Much will depend, Staton said, on who is appointed to the commission and the attitude of the Holshouser administration and its successors.

Delay On N.C. Tax Package Is Strongly Urged

By NOEL YANCEY
Associated Press Writer

RALEIGH (AP) — North Carolina Commissioner of Revenue J. Howard Coble told the Senate Finance Committee today that enactment of a tax package the committee is considering "might smack of fiscal irresponsibility."

Coble made the comment in pointing out the general fund tax collections are now running slightly below estimates. He urged the committee to delay action on the tax package, favored by Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt, until next year.

Several other spokesmen, however, strongly endorsed the tax packages that would include (1) removal of the 3 per cent state sales tax on food, (2) provide inventory tax relief for businesses, and (3) increase income tax rates on the well-to-do.

The tax package would result in an estimated $13.1 million revenue loss to the state in 1975-76, the year the tax package would go into effect. That would include a $11.5 million windfall the first year the increased income tax rates would go into effect.

Grocery store spokesmen also warned the committee that eliminating the 3 per cent state income tax on food while leaving a 1 per cent local sales tax in effect in many counties would present a tremendous accounting problem.

J. T. Boone, representing Colonial Stores, said his firm now has no cash registers that would handle the tax calculation with the 3 per cent state tax removed and the 1 per cent local tax still in effect. He said it would cost his firm over $5 million to buy new type cash registers. Boone said this would be reflected in higher food costs that would largely offset the tax relief the elimination of the food tax would provide.

Those strongly supporting the tax package included Rep. Art Thomas, D-Cabarrus, sponsor of the original inventory tax relief measure which the tax package replaced, Russell Emerson of Salisbury, president of the North Carolina Merchants Association; and Clarence Whitcomb of Tarboro, former president of the North Carolina Auto Dealers Association.

Wilbur Hobby of Durham, president of the state AFL-CIO, told the senators that removal of the state sales tax on food would "bring some justice and fairness" to North Carolina's tax system.

Coy Privette, president of the North Carolina Christian Action League, said the tax package would benefit 97 per cent of the people of the state and would "do much to restore the confidence of the people of North Carolina in their government."

Sum For Bridge

RALEIGH—The N.C. Board of Transportation allocated $400 thousand for construction on a project which will replace the existing bridge over Contentnea Creek at Gritton in Lenoir and Pitt Counties.

The Board approved the allocation at its regular monthly meeting held in the Highway Building in Raleigh on Thursday.

Highway spokesmen said that the project, which had previously been approved by the Board, will replace the narrow, poor condition bridge to a modern 40-foot wide structure.

The project was included in the Seven Year Road Program which the Board approved in October, 1973, and which spells out major construction priorities through 1980.

At present, the project is in the right-of-way acquisition and structure design stage.

Poor Profit For Penny Hoarders

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hoarding pennies doesn't pay.

Angelo Carella, vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco, says he's concerned that people might hoard pennies on speculation they may soon be worth more than one cent because of the copper they contain. But it's not so, he says.

"Even if the price of copper increased from its present domestic price of 65 cents a pound to $1.50 a pound, near the present free world market price, a copper hoarder would have to acquire nearly 240,000 pennies to eke out a $100 profit," Carella said.

U.S. Livestock, Meat Is Barred

OTTAWA (AP) — Canada is refusing to allow imports of livestock and meat from the United States in a dispute over the use of the controversial growth hormone DES. Use of DES was banned in Canada after tests showed it may cause cancer. The dispute arose when the U.S. Department of Agriculture said it would not certify whether meat headed for Canada has DES, and Canada refused to go by producers' certification. DES was also banned in the United States, but an appeals court has suspended the ban pending public hearings.

To Hear Boyle

MEDIA, Pa. (AP) — The defense takes over today in the murder trial of former United Mine Workers President W.A. "Tony" Boyle, accused of ordering the slaying of union rival Joseph "Jock" Yablonski.

Boyle is scheduled as the defense's first witness.

The prosecution rested Monday night after its chief witness, a confessed participant in the murder of Yablonski, his wife and daughter, rose from the witness chair and pointed his finger at the scowling defendant.

William Turnblazer, 52, a Middlesboro, Ky., lawyer who was president of the UMW's District 19, said he was present June 23, 1969 when the order was given to kill Yablonski.

Yablonski was then challenging Boyle for the presidency of the 200,000-member union.

"Who gave the order?" asked Special Prosecutor Richard A. Sprague.

"Mr. Boyle," Turnblazer replied.

Turnblazer said the incident occurred in a hallway in the UMW building in Washington, D.C., and that Albert Pass, then secretary-treasurer of District 19, also was present.

Hunting Gunmen

Greenville Police today are looking for two men in connection with two robberies that occurred here before dawn this morning.

Chief Glenn Cannon said the two allegedly broke into a River Road apartment about 4 a.m.

Steve Bazemore was struck allegedly by a pistol carried by one of the robbers. The two intruders, both carrying pistols, took $10 in cash from Charlie Allen Jr., another occupant of the apartment and $75 in cash and a watch from Norman Stokes Jr.

The two gunmen also removed a turntable and amplifier owned by Mickey Siminowich, from the dwelling.

Cannon noted that the two gunmen then allegedly entered 501A Church St. about 4:40 a.m. and took $20 from Darwin Powell at gunpoint.

Investigation of the cases is continuing.

Senate Candidate Runs A Low-Budget Campaign

By STUART SAVAGE

James T. Johnson, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U. S. Senate campaigned here yesterday as he began a two-day tour of several Northeastern North Carolina counties.

A Bladen county native reared in Wilmington, Johnson is a veteran of 27 years in the U. S. Air Force and holds the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Legion of Merit and three Purple Hearts.

Johnson, emphasizing his campaign is a low budget campaign said, "I'm hitting the political money situation hard. I consider it the root of a lot of our problems... and big money in political campaigns smells worse this year."

The candidate said "I'm not accepting any monetary contributions during the primary... I'm campaigning on my own merits and about $5,000 of my own money."

Johnson noted that he was Found Use For Seized Bicycles

WASHINGTON (AP) — When U.S. Customs officers in Wilmington, N.C., seized an undeclared shipment of 10-speed bicycles, their bosses immediately saw a way to conserve energy.

The 28 bikes were sent to Customs offices in the Southeast, where inspectors now are pedaling on official business. They are supplementing automobiles, said Commissioner Vernon D. Acres.

One concern that Johnson expressed is that "the economy is progressively getting worse, in the form of inflation, the lessening value of the dollar..."

Miss Bettie Sue Avery Is Bride Children Help Mother Recall Memories

Miss Bettie Sue Avery became the bride of Edward Earl Joyner Friday evening at eight o'clock in a ceremony in the Hancock's Primitive Baptist Church.

Elder Joe Sawyer conducted the double ring ceremony. A program of wedding music was presented by Mrs. Louise Wainwright, pianist.

The chancel of the church was centered with a fifteen branch candelabra and on each side, tree candelabra were filled with white and gladioli, chrysanthemums and daisies with standards of jade greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Avery of Rt. 1, Winterville. She wore a formal length gown of white organza designed with a high neckline encircled with chantilly lace jeweled with sequins. The empire bodice and princess silhouette skirt featured panels of scalloped lace with sequins extending to the attached watteau chapel train.

She wore a fingertip illusion veil edged in scalloped chantilly lace attached to a Camelot headpiece featuring matching lace. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white miniature carnations and baby's breath centered with a white orchid.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. I. A. Joyner of Rt. 1, Greenville, and the late Mr. Joyner.

Mrs. Janice Adams of Ayden was the honor attendant. She was dressed in a formal length gown of apricot knit featuring a high neckline trimmed in apricot Venise lace. Matching lace banded the cuffs of the long sheer chiffon sleeves. The Venise lace also accentuated the empire bodice.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Doris Sawyer, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Judy Manning, niece of the bride, both of Greenville. They wore gowns of blue and pink designed identical to that of the honor attendant. The attendants carried colonial nosegays of white daisies and baby's breath tied with satin streamers.

The mothers wore corsages of white carnations.

Ray Manning of Greenville was best man and ushers were Pete Sawyer of Ayden, and Billy Sawyer of Greenville, nephews of the bride.

For a wedding trip to the coast, the bride changed into a light blue and white checked knit suit with matching accessories. She wore an orchid lifted from her bridal bouquet.

The couple will reside at Rt. 1, Greenville.

The bride is a graduate of Winterville High School and Pitt Technical Institute. She is employed by Stroud Wholesale, Inc., Ayden. The bridegroom is a graduate of Bell Arthur High School and attended East Carolina University. He is employed by Yeargin Construction Co., Wilson.

The wedding party, families and guests were entertained at an after-rehearsal party Thursday night held at the home of the bride's parents.

DEAR ABBY: A widow wrote you about not receiving any wedding anniversary cards after her husband had died. I lost my husband before our 24th anniversary and would like to tell you what happened on my silver anniversary. I received red roses from my three children [all college age] plus they had reservations for the four of us at one of our better restaurants. This was a total surprise to me.

From our best man and maid-of-honor, I received lovely notes saying their thoughts were with me on that day. Sure, it revived memories—but what pleasant and lovely ones!

I do not believe anniversary cards should be sent after one's mate dies, but please don't say the anniversaries cease. You may not count them aloud, but you can't turn off the memory of the happiest day of your life.

"ALONE BUT NOT LONELY"

DEAR ABBY: I am 44 years old and pregnant, but that's not my problem. I have had 27 children. I was married the first time when I was 14. I had three by my first husband and 24 by this one, and it seems that the more children I have, the less interest my husband has in me.

I wrote to you a year ago and you told me to get my husband to go to the priest with me. I knew he'd never go, and I was right. He hasn't set foot inside a Catholic church except for our children's christenings and weddings.

The priest told me to pray to God that my husband would see the light and fall in love with me again, but I know that is never going to happen.

He's a good man in many ways. He has never raised his hand against me. He has worked steady and doesn't owe anybody a dime, but he is not nearly as loving as he used to be. And I miss that.

Can you help me? Could it be because he was born and raised in Mexico, and I was born and raised in Texas?

TEXARKANA

DEAR TEXARKANA: Maybe. Most Mexican-born men have the old world Spanish attitude about women—they should be seen and not heard, should always have a baby in their arms and another on the way, stay home, and never complain.

DEAR ABBY: I am being held prisoner against my will in the Oklahoma State Penitentiary in McAlester, Okla. Please send hacksaw blades, files, jeweler's string, and instructions on how to saw through 1/4 inch steel bars, making the least possible noise. I'm serious.

NUMBER 87226

DEAR NUMBER 87226: Sorry, but if I help you get OUT, I'll end up IN!

Center of Style

Mendola of Rome has been making daytime and long evening dresses in uncrushable jerseys and silk with full skirts and simple long-sleeved shirt tops for years. Suddenly they are in the center of style.

They come in silk or, at less than a third of the price, in a new light banlon with almost the exact feel of silk. This season there is a cheerful new pattern of a cat peering through a Rousseau jungle and a'so new chenille knit battlejackets or long cardigan coats.

But the man who practically started it all, Count Emilio Pucci, seems to have taken himself out of the running this season.

Pucci, whose silk jersey print dresses were the uniform of fashionable woman in the 1950s and 60s, showed nothing but little tank suits with removable wraparound skirts for sports.

Italian Designers Show Longer Skirts

By PEGGY POLK

FLORENCE, Italy (UPI) — The fashionable look next winter, if Italian ready-to-wear designers have their way, will take skirts to midcalf.

With a few notable exceptions, among them Valentino, most of the top Italian designers went along with the lower hemlines that swept the Paris collections for this summer. Few, however, went as far as the ankle-length street dress.

Designers showing their lines under the crystal chandeliers of the Hall of Mirrors in Florence's Renaissance Pitti Palace last week were unanimous on one subject—costs.

After last year's big price rises because of jumps in the cost of wool, silk and labor, there was a big effort to hold the line on prices and in some cases costs dictated styles.

Fendi, the Roman furriers, won the only ovation of the three-day Florence shows with a collection of squirrel. Why squirrel? Because opossum, beaver and other furs that used to be the backbone of boutique collections were too expensive for boutique price tags this year.

No Buttons
Laura Aponte of Rome did away with buttons and kept her knitwear slim to save on labor and materials costs. One happy result was a woven-in border on her cardigan jackets.

But almost everyone else indulged in enough material for bias-cut skirts. They looked newest and nicest at mid-calf covering the top of bulky boots, low-heeled or with medium stacked heels.

In what might have been delayed reaction to the energy crisis, the designers offered extra warmth in the form of long, fringed scarves and deep silk or woolen shawls, also fringed.

The Squirrel Look
Fendi showed those able to afford it how to really keep warm by piling on two and three layers of fur. The Fendi squirrel, trimmed with narrow bands of hare and dyed wonderful shades of clay, terracotta, earth or mud brown, rock, sand and copper ore, lacked the usual canvas linen interlining.

They were so light that a cape or pyramid jacket could go over a belted coat and a weskit without making the wearer look like the abominable snowman.

More in line with a boutique-shopper's budget, Fendi matched fur coats to their blousy trenchcoat in rainproof tan poplin. They could be worn separately or together like a fur-lined raincoat.

Valentino, showing separately in his Roman palazzo, kept his hemlines at about two inches below the knee, slimmed down his pant legs and revived the blouse. His blouses were very full with a yoke in the back and sometimes worn over the skirt, belted with a matching fringed scarf.

Black Velvet

For evening he showed a black velvet suit, the narrow skirt buttoned up the front with rhinestones, the long quilted cardigan jacket trimmed with rhinestones. A black velvet trenchcoat went over matching pants and silk blouse with a rhinestone belt.

Younger looking and just as stylish was a silk dress by Charade of Genoa. The bias-cut, ankle-length short-sleeved print of black flowers scattered on beige background was worn over a long-sleeved black bodystocking and with low-heeled bulky black boots. The effect was vaguely reminiscent of a Russian peasant outfit.

Then there were those individualists who have found a formula that works and stick to it.

Roberta di Camerino of Venice specializes in trompe l'oeil prints on simple dresses of wool jersey, velvet or synthetics and plasticized cotton raincoats and umbrellas. This season it's what she calls the "blazer look."

She did an outfit of raincoat, bias-cut skirt and blazer, umbrella and stockings all in the same pattern of green chain links on brilliant red. A long dress was printed to look like a blazer over a plaid skirt.

At Wit's End

By Erma Bombeck

A reader who signs herself "Ann," has threatened to send me her 2 1/2-year-old son and 1 1/2-year-old daughter because, "You seem to be able to laugh at children."

She goes on to report that they are a "handful" having put a loaf of bread in a pitcher of Kool-Aid, smeared mayonnaise all over themselves, dumped baby powder in their ears and (Devilish Danny) emptied his potty down the floor furnace all in one morning.

I don't know how to tell you, Ann, but March and April are not the months to test a woman's humor. Let me spell it out for you.

I've been on a diet for two weeks and have gained three pounds. I broke my bottom getting to a White Sale only to discover that all that was left were double top sheets, single contour bottoms, and King pillowcases. My checkbook balanced. (I was hoping I was not $63 overdrawn.)

My best friend (whom I always trusted) just learned how to bake bread. The school called and said they are suspicious my son posted a sign in the restroom that read, "Flush twice. It's a long way to the cafeteria." (He not only signed his work, but misspelled cafeteria.) Some wise guy wrote "HELP" in the dust on my draperies.

My world is falling apart, Ann. Lucy is leaving TV, Miss Kitty quit at the Long Branch, Rhoda is leaving Mary Tyler Moore, and a magazine in the supermarket had a blaring headline, "Jackie Onassis spending Habits Suggest Mental Disorder." (I've had the same disorder for years and my husband says the only cure is the penitentiary.)

The cheerleader on my high school cheer squad just became a grandmother. The supermarket just discontinued my silverware pattern and I had five place settings to go. I just found my Christmas cards and a roll of eight-cent stamps. My daughter is 20 and doesn't know how to turn on the stove and I spent 40 minutes ironing a linen dress and then discovered it doesn't fit me anymore. The other day I drove into a drive-in bank and the car ahead of me got a flat.

I like you, Ann, and I want to assure you that you are doing a splendid job with those children and that psychologists recommend a child belongs with his mother. Besides, if I laugh anymore I will surely hurt myself.

(What do you want bet? With my luck, the kids will arrive with postage due.)

Wreckage Study Ends

DURHAM, N.C. (AP)—Duke University researchers have ended their inspection of the sunken Civil War battleship Monitor after bad weather hampered the expedition.

A university spokesman said Monday the research ship Sea Probe, loaned by the Navy for the project, has returned to Norfolk, Va., after docking at Morehead City, N.C. Sunday morning.

The researchers were unable to recover any artifacts, such as the anchor or rudder, but did dredge up some coal and clinkers believed to have come from the craft, he said.

He said the expedition also photographed the wreckage, located 15 miles off Cape Hatteras, using television cameras. The photographs show the vessel is upside down in about 200 feet of water, he added.

Minimum Wage Boosted To Two Dollars An Hour

By ROBERT A. DOBGIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon has signed into law legislation boosting the minimum wage to $2 an hour May 1, calling it "a matter of justice that can no longer be fairly delayed."

The increase — the first in the federal pay floor since 1967 — extends coverage to 7.4 million additional workers and will bring the total under the act to 56 million. Under the bill, the minimum wage for most workers will go to $2.30 Jan. 1, 1975.

Nixon, who six months ago vetoed as inflationary a nearly identical bill, said he still had reservations about the measure.

"On the whole, (the bill) contains more good than bad, and I have concluded that the best interests of the American people will be served by signing it into law," Nixon said in a written statement.

"Although I have some reservations about portions of this legislation, its basic purpose — to increase the minimum wage for working men and women of this country — deserves the support of all Americans," Nixon said in his statement.

The AFL-CIO, which lobbied hard for the minimum wage increase, noted Nixon's veto last year and said it was regrettable that it took the President "six months to decide American employers should treat their worst-paid workers with some measure of decency."

The law raises the present minimum wage from $1.60 to $2 an hour May 1, to $2.10 on Jan. 1, 1975 and $2.30 on Jan. 1, 1976.

The minimum wage for farm workers, now with a $1.30 floor, will increase to $1.60 on May 1 and reach $2.30 Jan. 1, 1978.

About one million domestic workers who work more than eight hours a week will be covered under the minimum wage law for the first time, along with about six million federal, state and local government employees.

Nixon said the new wage schedule fits his criteria for "reasonable increases..."

But he added that Congress did not go as far as he wanted in protecting the training and work opportunities for youth.

Under the measure, full-time students may be employed for no more than 20 hours a week at 85 per cent of the regular wage floor.

Door Prize For Pet Cat

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Eighteen-year-old Debra Cranford accepted a $750 check on behalf of her sick cat Kurt after a county judge ruled the feline qualified as a door prize winner.

Following a plea-in-abatement hearing before County Court Judge Denzil Bevers, Debra, clutching Kurt in both arms, accepted the check from a representative of John's Jeans clothing store here.

The presentation, which occurred on the court house lawn, came nearly two months after Debra and her father, William Cranford, filed a civil suit against the clothing store.

The Cranfords claimed their pet won a $750 cash prize in a drawing conducted in connection with the grand opening of the store in 1972.

Debra said the money probably will go for medical bills for Kurt, who is suffering from a "serious cat disease."

Last Of Lenten Services To Be Wednesday

Safety Center Gets Bike Program Grant

The Traffic Safety Center at East Carolina University has been awarded a contract by the Research Triangle Institute of Raleigh to develop guidelines for a school safety program.

The program will involve pedestrian and bicycle safety procedures which can be integrated in the North Carolina public school curriculum, grades K-9.

In cooperation with Pitt County Schools Superintendent Arthur Alford and Greenville City Schools Glenn Cox, the program will be piloted at Chicod School, D. H. Conley High School, Sadie Sautler Elementary School, Eastern Elementary School and Aycock Junior High School.

Volunteer teachers from the schools will help to determine the approach to take for teaching the program and the kinds of teaching materials to be used.

Dr. Alfred S. King, Coordinator of Driver and Traffic Safety at ECU, said work sessions will take place on the ECU campus May 10-11 and June 17-28 this year.

Pool Bids Underline A Trend

The City Council has accepted a reduced bid of $144,150 for construction of a new swimming pool. The bids were accepted last week and the contract was awarded to Gatlinburg Construction Co. for the pool construction.

Bids for the new pool were far over the original estimates and some modifications were accepted in order to get below the original low base bid of $165,000.

Bids for a bathhouse were rejected as being too high and city officials and the architect are presently attempting to come up with new bathhouse plans which will be more in line with the funds available.

In this time of rapidly rising construction costs public agencies are frequently disappointed in the bids which they receive for various projects. The public pool bids were well above the funds available, but fortunately modifications could be made which have allowed the city to award the contracts.

This means that Greenville is assured of its first public swimming pool since the early 1950s.

Highway Maintenance Costs Might Be Lower

A byproduct of the energy shortage is a deficit for the N. C. Department of Transportation. Secretary Bruce Lentz reported the threat of a deficit of $11.67 million. It is due to the fact that the public is buying less gas.

Lentz says the department is making cost saving efforts to make up the deficit.

It is possible that the state might find its maintenance bill for highways a little lower because of reduced traffic. It is also possible that some projects might be postponed due to a slowing in the traffic count increase.

GOP Inviting Another Defeat

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON—The mind-boggling blunders leading to President Nixon's prospective Michigan campaign trip may cost the Republicans another congressional seat and deepen their gloom, but far more important is this revelation: national Republican leaders have yet to come to terms with the grim realities of Watergate politics.

"This is absolutely lunatic," one astute Michigan Republican told us in describing plans to send Mr. Nixon to northern Michigan's sprawling 8th Congressional District which elects a new Congressman April 16. That is because the toting public controversy over Mr. Nixon's visit has riveted him as the central issue of the race—a burden no Republican candidate can welcome.

The blame rests mainly with James Sparling, Republican nominee to succeed James Harvey (who resigned from Congress to become a federal judge.) Sparling, Harvey's former administrative assistant, is making his first try for public office.

But the implications extend beyond Michigan. They reveal a party leadership not only insensitive to Mr. Nixon's drag on Republican candidates but apparently more interested in saving the President than saving congressional seats. These leaders seem oblivious to lessons of earlier special elections: it is decidedly to the advantage of Democratic candidates to make confidence in Mr. Nixon the central issue. Ironically, in Michigan's 8th District, the Republican campaign had brilliantly distracted attention from the President—until March 22, that is.

Until then, Sparling was disproving the old Washington maxim that administrative assistants make poor congressional candidates. He had state Sen. Robert Traxler, the Democratic nominee, on the defensive for his support of school busing and legislative absenteeism.

But rumors spread of secret Democratic polls showing a huge Traxler lead. Sparling panicked. On March 22, he proposed to Republican state chairman William McLaughlin a desperate gamble: invite Mr. Nixon to campaign in the district's heavily Republican rural counties. Although McLaughlin pointed out obvious dangers, he agreed to support the candidate's decision.

That same day, Sparling and McLaughlin telephoned Republican national chairman George Bush to request the President's visit. Word was also relayed to Rep. Bob Michel of Illinois, congressional campaign committee chairman. Astute politicians of wide experience, both Bush and Michel should have immediately warned Sparling of his folly. They did not.

Instead, they seemed delighted to tell the President March 25 that at least one candidate wanted his help. Some Republican critics have felt Bush places defense of the President above welfare of the party. As for Michel, his steadfast loyalty to Mr. Nixon is admired, but critics feel he reflects a deep-seated Republican failing: overemphasizing the 25 per cent of the voters true to Mr. Nixon.

If Bush and Michel were delighted to bear good tidings to the Oval Office, the President was equally delighted to learn he was not Typhoid Mary after all. When it was suggested he defer a decision until a forthcoming Republican poll was available, Mr. Nixon demurred, saying: polls are important, but they're not controlling.

A few days later, that poll, commissioned by the Michigan Republican party, revealed to Sparling three salient truths: (1) he was less than 8 percentage points behind Traxler, closer than anybody imagined; (2) Mr. Nixon was unbelievably unpopular in the District; (3) Watergate had subsided as a key issue, thanks partly to Sparling's own shrewd campaign. The conclusion: needing no desperate gamble, Sparling should concentrate on Traxler and forget about Mr. Nixon.

But what is obvious is not always easy in the Republican party. The poll results were revealed to Bush and presidential counselor Dean Burch at last weekend's Midwestern Republican conference. In Chicago, nobody flatly asked that Mr. Nixon stay home. Thus began a classic case of Republican noncommunication.

Sparling broadly hinted to newsmen Monday that he neither needed nor wanted the President but could not bring himself to disinvite him. Nor could Bush or the White House take the obvious hint. The Michigan Republicans referred to the visit as disastrous in conversations with newsmen but said not a word to Bush. Michel, trying to learn whether the candidate did or did not want the President, could not even get Sparling on the telephone.

The incident outraged George Bush, not because a chance to reverse the anti-Republican tide has been undercut but because some news accounts incorrectly accused the White House of promoting the invitation. Bush told us the visit was a case of nothing to lose and (Continued on page 5)

BUILDING HIS CONFIDENCE!

Patty And The Future

The melancholy news, as this is written, is that Patricia Hearst has joined her fanatic kidnappers, taken an underground name and denounced her parents. If true, it is one more wretched chapter in a story without a redeeming feature.

I suspect the purported conversion is not true. To my own untutored ear, her recorded voice was flat and lifeless; it had none of the verve and passion one would expect from a born-again revolutionary. This was the voice, or so it seemed to me, of a drugged child reciting lines. She was almost surely coerced.

But sons and daughters sometimes are born to break hearts. One of the conspirators in the Symbionese Liberation Army is 26-year-old Nancy Ling. There must have been pride and happiness in her household when she went to Whittier College, then transferred to the University of California at Berkeley, won her bachelor's degree in English literature, and went on to graduate school.

According to a report from the House Internal Security Committee, Nancy Ling then married a black musician, Gilbert Scott Perry, separated from him, became a topless blackjack dealer in a San Francisco night club, and finally identified herself heart and soul with long-term inmates of the Vacaville prison. She is now thought to be totally committed to violent revolution. We may suppose Nancy Ling broke some hearts also.

One searches this dismal story for some meritorious aspect, but one searches in vain.

The abductors are a vicious and arrogant gang, lacking even a shred of that honor which is supposed to obtain among thieves. These are no ordinary thugs or hoodlums. As Dr. S.I. Hayakawa has observed, their letters are articulate; their spelling and grammar are flawless. From what little is known of the SLA, experts have deduced that this "army" includes men and women with keen minds and skilled hands. These abductors are dedicated and ruthless; and they must be captured and disarmed.

If one views the SLA with a certain respect—the kind of respect one accords a rattlesnake in ambush—one views the beneficiaries of the "free food" with contempt. Nothing in this whole affair has been more disgraceful, or more degrading, than the willingness of thousands of persons to take the food packages prepared as ransom. If one purpose of the kidnappers was to demonstrate the malleability of proletarian clay, they succeeded beyond their wildest dreams.

Set No Oil Tax Boost

By CARL C. CRAFT
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee has refused to drain an extra $2.1 billion from the petroleum industry's profits for 1974 and 1975.

Committee Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., cast the deciding ballot Monday as the tax-writing panel voted 13-12 against an amendment aimed at boosting the oil industry's taxes.

Oil-state forces on the committee thus scored a significant victory. They have been fighting to allow oil companies to plow back into exploration and development money which the federal government otherwise would be collecting as a proposed new windfall profits tax.

Besides the windfall profits levy, the oil tax reform bill being written by the panel also would eventually phase out the petroleum depletion allowance and would revamp the tax treatment of American oil company income earned abroad. Petroleum firms use the depletion allowance to save some $2 billion to $3 billion a year in federal taxes.

According to new figures from the committee's expert tax staff Monday, the bill would gain $16.8 billion in additional federal revenue from the petroleum industry through 1979. The amendment proposed by Rep. Joseph E. Karth, D-Minn., would have added $2.1 billion to this amount for this year and next year.

The Karth amendment would have let the government collect 100 per cent of the revenue generated through this new windfall profits tax this year. For next year, the government would have collected half the revenue raised by the new tax — with the other half going toward plowback. For the three remaining years that this tax would be on the books, the industry could have 100 per cent plowback.

No Politics In Computer Room

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH — Politics don't mean a thing to General Assembly employees who spend their days working in the computer room where bills are printed, amended and re-written, and the journals and session laws prepared for the printers.

"We treat them all alike. Occasionally, a member of the General Assembly will come down to ask about some particular bills, but they quickly found out they can't get any information from here," says Annette Perkinson, supervisor of the computer bill drafting section.

Sometimes the computer room takes the appearance of a Central Intelligence Agency operation. When a lawmaker has a particularly sensitive or secret bill to be written up, workers destroy any drafts or extra copies, remove any evidence, and "treat Democrats and Republicans just alike."

"If the author checks with us on something, we will tell him. If anybody else wants to know something, or asks for a copy, we simply refer him to the man who wrote the bill," Mrs. Perkinson said.

Adds Speed
The computer operation has greatly speeded up the legislative process. Now, corrections, amendments, or committee substitute bills can be fed into the computers and the finished product ready in minutes.

A high-speed printer pounds the new material directly onto a paper master which can be used for printing, and the bill is ready. It used to take several days to retype the entire bill and send it to the prison print shop.

But still, the 12 employees in bill preparation can't work miracles, Mrs. Perkinson said.

Some lawmakers, hearing that the whole operation is computerized will walk in with a rough draft and expect to get a finished product while they wait.

And the equipment is not foolproof, she added. Operators occasionally make mistakes, and even weather can interfere.

On one occasion some slipup meant that all information being fed into the computers was not being recorded. An entire day's work was lost. But the original material was still on hand, and the error corrected. Another time, lightning struck nearby and put the computer out of business for a day and a half.

After the present sessions end, computerized material will continue to save time, Mrs. Perkinson said.

Books Printed
Three major books must be printed, covering the actions of the General Assembly—the journals of the Senate and of the House; and the General Sessions Laws.

In the past, material for those books had to be gathered, indexed, typed, and sent to the printers with the books coming back months later.

This year, with the material corrected and proofread and constantly updated in storage, tapes are being sent to the printers each week, and within four weeks after the session, most of the work will be out of the way.

Another little-known advantage of the computer system is the ability to crank out perfectly written bills on routine subjects which occasionally come up.

The language of some local legislation such as town charters, sales and use tax revisions, local penny sales taxes can be kept the same, with only the name of the town or county changed.

A simple procedure makes writing the bill a matter of minutes rather than hours. After the session, other state agencies move in and use the computer room and terminals.

Love is skin-deep. Give Blood.

Strength For Today

TWO BOOKS

In many hotel rooms in this country we find two books—the telephone book and the Bible. The telephone book enables us to get in touch with our fellows; the Bible instructs us how to get into communication with God.

We need scarcely be reminded that the telephone book is more frequently used than the Bible. We are inclined to pay more attention to the relationships with our fellows than we are to our relationship to God. There is a fatal fascination about the things of this present world which makes us oblivious to the surpassing importance of those things which are eternal. We live our lives day by day as if this were the beginning and the end of it all. We only knew the greater reality and appreciate its significance when we get in touch with it. It is not something we can see with our eyes; we must apprehend it spiritually by faith. The Bible is that revelation of the will and purpose of God which makes our hearts glad when we understand it.

There's A Survey In Any Field

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — It is unlikely that a survey ever will be needed to determine that surveys retain their popularity.

Scores of them are under way at any given time in the business community. Some executives wouldn't dare make a move without consulting the latest survey data. Others commission them and then ignore the results.

One survey result that investors will find interesting, if not profitable, is that the nation's bank trust managers, one of the largest of that group called institutional investors, are changing their strategy somewhat.

Over the past year or more, these fund managers exhibited a tendency to concentrate on a highly selective list of stocks that included some of the best known and most glamorous names in American industry.

As a result, the favored stocks were able to command relatively high prices while the vast majority of stocks fell to some of the lowest price-earnings ratios seen in decades. While some of the glamor stocks sold at more than 20 times earnings, for example, shares of the major automotive companies dipped into the single numbers.

A survey of fund managers of major banks in New York, Chicago, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Boston, Houston, Dallas and other cities now suggests the favorite list will be broadened in 1974.

The bankers, it is claimed by the Institute of Investor Opinion, expect the capital goods industry to perform better than any other industry group. Basic industry and natural resource stocks are expected to be favorites. Fast food companies and financial services are also expected to attract more than usual interest.

A study by the Bureau of National Affairs, a non-governmental organization, indicates that median negotiated wage increases in 1973 were larger than in 1972 by about 3.6 cents an hour.

The 1973 wage gain for all industries combined, with the exception of construction, was 24.8 cents an hour compared to 21.2 cents in 1972. But in comparable money—that is with inflation excluded—the figures turn out to be almost the same.

A survey by the Midwest Research Institute suggests that American business executives aren't very optimistic about making money on trade with the People's Republic of China or the Soviet Union.

The survey was conducted with the cooperation of 185 medium and large corporations. Only 4 per cent felt China offered much opportunity for business growth in 1974, and 59 per cent could see no business at all in the future.

The same corporate respondents were a bit more optimistic about trade with the Soviet Union. Nine per cent said the Soviets offered an opportunity for business growth in 1974, and 53 per cent were optimistic about doing business sometime in the future.

A fourth survey is probably more familiar to most Americans because it concerns them and their economic mood. The University of Michigan's latest survey shows consumers are more pessimistic than any time in its 25-year history.

Many people feel the economy is in the midst of a recession—or was at the time the survey was conducted in February. Moreover, the survey indicates, many Americans have lost faith in their government.

UN Turns To Raw Materials Question

NewFace Among Senate-Seekers

By BETTY ANNE WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer
DURHAM (AP) — John McVay Ferrell II asserts that his running for the U.S. Senate is like a shot in the arm for voters who want a change in their representatives as well as in their government.

"I feel that the people would like a transfusion of new blood, of fresh leadership at the state and federal levels in government. It is my belief that they are looking for candidates who are untainted by previous state and federal service," he said.

Although the Durham County timber grower has served on the Democratic party's state executive committee and is a long-time member of the county's Democratic executive committee, he stressed his aloofness from what he called "the political machine."

Ferrell, 57, said a major concern is Congress' relinquishing much of its authority.

"The legislative branch of government abdicated its constitutional position by shifting many of its responsibilities to the executive branch," Ferrell said.

"More importantly, it has shifted these responsibilities to bureaucrats who are, in essence, now our government. They are the master planners who write the guidelines which control the lives of all the people."

Ferrell said voters should be mindful of "which candidate would serve as a statesman rather than a politician" in selecting a new U.S. senator.

"The greatest issue of all is which candidate has stability of position, which candidate would serve as a senator rather than use the office to seek another office such as president," he said.

At this point, I agree with what Sen. Weicker is trying to do," said the Baptist minister.

"I think he's just trying to prove a point, that in several administrations the White House has been involved in sensitive cases, and that this shouldn't be."

"I don't think the IRS should ever be involved in politics," he said.

Investigating Store-Break-In

The Pitt Sheriff's Department is investigating a break-in at Tucker's Store in Grimesland that resulted in the theft of items worth some $169.

Sheriff Ralph Tyson reported that the break-in occurred sometime between 9 p.m. Sunday and 7 a.m. Monday. Entrance was apparently gained through a back room of the store.

The owner, R. L. Tucker, reported that a lawn mower and four 12-volt batteries were stolen from a storage room.

He is half right. Mr. Nixon would get the credit for a Sparring win and could scarcely sink lower than he is now if Sparring loses. That the party's national leaders do not understand this is more important than the fate of one congressional seat.

The Security Council vote on the Middle East peace force had been postponed for a week by a U.S.-Soviet deadlock over Israel's refusal to permit troops from countries not recognizing Israel behind the Israeli lines in the Sinai desert.

Israel did not back down, but the council in a compromise resolution "noted with satisfaction" that Waldheim regarded the problem of equal access for peacekeeping troops as an urgent one and was trying to solve it.

Soviet Ambassador Jacob Malik accused Israel of "reducing the effectiveness" of the peacekeeping force by barring troops from Indonesia, Senegal, Poland and Ghana. Malik warned against the force exceeding its $5 million monthly budget or its authority and suggested if the cost is exceeded because of an Israeli ban on some troops, Israel should pick up the tab.

The force on April 1 had 6,788 soldiers from 12 countries: Austria, Canada, Finland, Ghana, Indonesia, Ireland, Nepal, Panama, Peru, Poland, Senegal and Sweden.

Graham Denies Income Tax Aid

By VAN VANUCH
Associated Press Writer
MONTREAT, N.C. (AP)—North Carolina-born evangelist Billy Graham has denied asking for or receiving White House help in federal income tax matters.

"I have never requested any help from the White House on my tax audit," Graham said Monday night in a telephone interview from his home in Monteat.

"Secondly, I have never received any help."

Graham, a staunch supporter of President Nixon in his presidential campaigns, was responding to a weekend statement by Sen. Lowell P. Weicker, R-Conn.

Weicker said Graham, actor John Wayne and other "White House friends" had been protected after the Internal Revenue Service had begun audits on them.

Testifying Monday before a joint session of three Senate subcommittees investigating the extent of covert government intelligence operations, Weicker produced documents he said indicated the White House had a strong interest in tax problems encountered by Graham and Wayne.

"I never needed any help," said Graham. "Everything my wife and I have is in a trust in a bank. They pay all my bills and make out my tax returns." He said he has asked the IRS to perform routine audits of his books every year, but has had no reply.

"At this point, I agree with what Sen. Weicker is trying to do," said the Baptist minister.

"I think he's just trying to prove a point, that in several administrations the White House has been involved in sensitive cases, and that this shouldn't be."

"I don't think the IRS should ever be involved in politics," he said.

Set Summer Workshops

Five week-long workshops will be held this summer for rising high school juniors and seniors.

The purpose of the workshops is to spark interests as well as to create a desire to pursue careers in the field, and to develop intelligent understandings of oceans and their potential.

The dates for the workshops are: June 23-29; June 30-July 6; July 14-20; July 28-Aug. 3; and Aug. 4-10.

The programs include lectures, films, discussions and field trips to coastal areas and marine science laboratories.

Each workshop is limited to 25 students. The cost, including meals, lodging and field trips, is $100, with each student providing his own transportation.

The deadline for application is June 3.

Additional information and applications may be obtained by writing Michael Davis, P. O. Box 1427, Greenville, or calling 758-1196.

Set Bid-Whist Nights For Every Tuesday

Tuesday nights have been designated as bid-whist nights at the West Greenville Recreation Center. If you are a bid-whist player, make plans to be at the Recreation Center at 8:00 p.m., tonight. Promptness is a necessity since no team will be permitted to participate after drawing.

The bid-whist club originated last summer and was operable for six months. Play was suspended during the winter months.

Summer programs and activities are now being planned. If you have an activity you would like to see started, come by the Center or call 752-7540.

(Continued from page 4) something pleasant to report if the civilizing forces of society—the family, the press, the agencies of justice—had exhibited the same fortitude and toughness exhibited by the abductors. Throughout the ordeal one felt compassion and sympathy for the Hearsts. None of us can say how he would have acted in the same desperate situation. But the image of the family was an image of weakness, almost of fawning. The SLA's Field Marshal Cinque must have clutched his sides in cruel laughter.

For a time, at least, the press and radio-TV stations permitted themselves to be dominated and used by the criminals. They took orders. It was not their most glorious hour.

Attorney General Saxbe, in his first time on the national field, fumbled lamentably. The FBI, which distinguished itself in the Atlanta kidnapping of Reg Murphy, has yet to prove itself here.

Is it possible to profit in any way from this bleak experience? Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina has introduced a bill, aimed at banks and bankers, that might be effective in preventing the preparation of ransom sums. The senator also has proposed to tighten existing laws which if enforced, could mean fines and imprisonment for those who accept "free food" as part of a ransom deal. The tragedy may serve as an education for bleeding-heart liberals who tend to apologize for revolutionaries. Maybe the country gains from the Hearsts' loss; but thinking back to the food mobs, I'm afraid we don't gain much.

A Lot To Do When President Is Guest

BAD AXE, Mich. (AP) — It isn't easy for a small town to get ready for the President.

There's a lot to do, such as teaching 300 high school musicians the music to "Hail to the Chief." Especially when they're on a spring break from classrooms.

And President Nixon's visit caused a run on toilet and facial tissue. Residents are using the paper to build a 36-by-12 foot display reading, "Huron County Welcomes the President."

"Rounding up the bands was just the start of the problems," says Edward F. Draves, a beer and wine distributor and ex-mayor who is helping organize the GOP reception.

"Then we found out that none of the kids knew how to play 'Hail to the Chief.' There was never any cause for it before up here.

"We told one of the White House men, and he said not to worry. Saturday, about 400 copies of the music were flown in."

The idea of six bands blaring "Hail to the Chief" was too much for the Nixon advance men, and they suggested each of the units get their own musical way.

Bad Axe, population 2,999, is the first stop Wednesday for Nixon in a nine-community motorcade to "meet the people," on invitation from GOP congressional candidate James Sparling Jr.

Candidate...

"aside from things like high interest rates, is the deficit spending program of the Federal government. This goes back even beyond the Republican administration, but has been even worse in the last five years.

"It's easy to make a case that shows Congress has not been paying attention," Johnson said. "They have continuously appropriated more money than the tax payers can afford, and the administration has been scheduling spending.

"I'm calling for a shakedown of all the old programs, which have grown to be too expensive, beyond their period of real effectiveness and those that are obsolete.

Johnson noted that "this can be done without appropriating any extra money... if committees of Congress will function properly and the administrative and judicial branches will take a serious look at their functions..."

Johnson emphasized, "it disturbs me to see, in addition to the outright crooks on the national level, politicians that seem to stay barely on the right side of the questions of legality and ethics. And saying 'I didn't know where the money was coming from' is no excuse."

Another thing of concern to Johnson, the candidate said, "is politicians who after the election, continue to politic instead of going to work."

Grainger, who was suspended from the Atlantic Beach Police Department by Chief Bill Moore following the shooting, was placed on five years' probation by Superior Court Judge Dewey M. Wells and ordered to pay Bosley's medical bills and court costs. He was also ordered to refrain from working as a law enforcement officer during the period of his probation.

Aaron Belts Historic 715th HR

By ED SHEARER
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA (AP) — Henry Aaron, refusing to yield to the pressure that had to be gnawing at him, erased baseball's unreachable standard Monday night when he smashed the 715th home run of his career.

"I feel I can relax," said the 40-year-old Atlanta Braves' slugger after leaving behind the ghost of the great Babe Ruth with his two-run, fourth-inning blast off left-hander Al Downing of the Los Angeles Dodgers. "I feel my teammates can relax and I think I can have a great season," he said.

The icy-nerved veteran of 20 major league campaigns became the game's all-time home run king the same way he had ended his chase of the legendary Ruth with his record-tying 714th homer on opening day—by hitting out the first pitch he swung at in the game.

The historic shot triggered 11 minutes of bedlam in Atlanta Stadium as a standing room only crowd of 53,775 cheered the soft-spoken Alabama native who claimed baseball's most cherished record.

A call of congratulations came from President Nixon while the famous No. 44 was still in the game. Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn, who ordered the Braves to play Aaron in Cincinnati Sunday, called him "one of the greatest we have ever seen."

Kuhn's order renewed a controversy. Aaron's 34-ounce bat probably ended it, at least temporarily. It undoubtedly will be remembered for years.

"If God didn't see fit for me to hit the home run here, then I would have hit it somewhere else," Aaron said at a post-game news conference.

Did he feel a big weight had been lifted from his back? "Oh, you don't know," he replied.

"This would have to be my top thrill in baseball," said the man who holds more than a dozen major league records.

"It wasn't one of my better ones, but the wind helped to carry it," he said. "I hit it fairly good. It was a fast ball. It was inside, but I think he wanted it further inside. He just hung it a little."

Downing, a 13-year-veteran who had yielded only two other homers to Aaron, left the game after walking the next two hitters following Hammerin' Hank's blast that drew the Braves even at 3-3. Atlanta went on to win the game, 7-4.

The Dodger hurler vanished from the ball park, leaving behind only a tape-recorded message in which he said, "Like a great hitter, when he picks his pitch, he's pretty certain that's the pitch he's looking for and chances are he's going to hit it pretty good."

The flamboyant Ruth, whose memory likely will live forever in baseball lore, hit his final three home runs for the Boston Braves against Pittsburgh on May 25, 1935. He died of cancer in New York in 1948.

The Babe's widow, Clare, had not watched her husband's record tumble even though the game was televised nationally.

However, she heard about it almost immediately and dispatched a telegram of congratulations to Aaron at the stadium.

"The Babe loved baseball so very much," she said. "I know he was pulling for Hank Aaron to break his record. I sent Henry a wire that covers everything. I'm just wishing him very good luck."

The historic home run left the jam-packed stadium just to the right of the 385-foot sign in left field. It came after Darrell Evans had reached first on an error.

Aaron rounded the bases in his normal manner, although two young spectators charged out of the stands and ran beside him between second and third base. He said he never saw them.

When Aaron reached the plate, his teammates had poured out of the dugout and sprinted in from the left field bullpen to offer their congratulations. They drank champagne toasts to the new homer king in the dressing room after the game.

Aaron broke away from his mates and rushed to a special box adjacent to the Atlanta dugout, where his family watched the dramatic event.

He embraced his wife, Billye, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Aaron of Mobile, Ala.

"I never knew she could hug so tight," Aaron said of his mother.

Herbert Aaron, a retired shipyard worker, had thrown

Kentucky Ends Year For Cougs

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Artis Gilmore, the tallest player on the floor, stood above the crowd in the statistics, too.

The 7-foot-2 Gilmore racked up 33 points Monday night, boosting Kentucky to a 128-119 victory over the Carolina Cougars and a shot at the New York Nets in the American Basketball Association's playoff semifinals.

Monday's game completed the Colonels' 4-0 blitz of their first round, best-of-seven series against Carolina. The final game with the Cougars wasn't exactly a snap, however.

The Colonels trailed most of the first half, before pushing ahead at the end of the second period and taking a 20-point lead midway in the fourth quarter.

Dan Issel helped Kentucky with 22 points—16 of them in the first half—and teammate Chuck Williams scored 17. Mac Calvin led the Cougars with 31, and Ted McClain added 23.

"We played tough, really tough," said Kentucky Coach Babe McCarthy after the game. "The Cougars were hungry, but when they get behind they tend to press a bit and that helped us. The main thing now, of course, is that we'll have to stop Dr. J. (Julius Erving of the Nets.)"

Cougars Coach Larry Brown had high praise for Gilmore. "He dominated the game inside. He completely crushed us."

Gilmore has averaged 18.7 points per game in 85 games. In the first four playoffs he averaged 29.7 points per game.

"This is where it counts the most, man," he said. He finished the final game with 20 rebounds as well.

Kentucky hit 49 of 86 shots from the field, for better than 56 per cent, while Carolina cashed 48 of 97 for 49 per cent.

Roche led a Kentucky push from a 47-47 tie and the Colonels extended their lead to 63-56 at halftime.

Bucs End First Half

East Carolina University's football team went through their next-to-last practice session prior to the Easter holidays Monday afternoon on a damp afternoon.

Most of the time was spent on teaching and learning as the Bucs continued to augment their offense.

The pre-Easter drills will wind up tonight with a 7:30 p.m. scrimmage at Ficklen Stadium.

Richmond Wins Two; Takes Aim On Pirates

By The Associated Press
A double victory over Virginia Military's last-place Keydets has boosted Richmond's Spiders back into a position to challenge East Carolina's Pirates for the Southern Conference baseball title.

The Spiders whipped the Keydets twice Monday, 2-0 and 5-4, to move to within 1½ games of the front-running Pirates. Richmond is now 4-1 in the conference, East Carolina 7-1.

Richmond's only defeat was administered last week at East Carolina, but the Spiders still have a home engagement with the Pirates.

Another scheduled Monday game which had Furman's Paladins at Appalachian State to meet the defending champion Mountaineers was postponed because of rain.

The two teams—Furman is 1-3 in the league and 10-5 overall, the Mountaineers 2-2 and 9-9—were scheduled to try again today, but the forecast didn't hold out a lot of hope the game would be played.

In Monday's only other action involving a conference team, William and Mary's Indians dropped to 3-8 over-all when they were handed an 8-2 licking by Virginia Tech's Gobblers. Davidson's scheduled home game with Charleston Baptist was rained out.

William and Mary, in third place in the conference with a 3-2 mark, was scheduled to play today at VMI, which dropped to 1-6 in the conference and 1-9 over-all in Monday's double defeat at Richmond.

Two nonconference games were on the schedule with Davidson, 3-9, listed to go to Catawba and The Citadel's Bulldogs, 11-4, at home tonight against Old Dominion, 6-12.

Both Richmond starting pitchers, Jeff Boteler and Bob Pace, had no-hitters going for 5

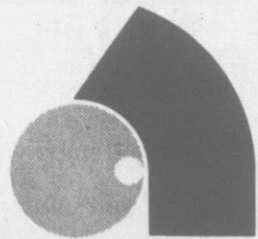

1-3 innings. Boteler finished with a three-hit shutout in the opener, but Pace wasn't around in the nightcap as VMI rallied for four runs with two out and none on in the seventh.

Back-to-back doubles by Bill Daly and Marshall Owen and a single by Ken Francisco gave Richmond, now 14-7 over-all, its two runs in the first game in the second inning.

The Spiders built a 5-0 lead in the second game as Daly tripled in two runs in the first inning and Owen tripled in two more as Richmond scored three times in the third.

But the Keydets chased Pace with two out in the seventh on three singles and a walk. Richmond's ace relief pitcher, Mike Walton, was greeted by Harry Barksdale with a two-run double before he got the final out on a fly ball.

Robersonville Handed Defeat

ROBERSONVILLE—South Edgecombe High School pulled off a 7-2 upset victory over Robersonville last night, vaulting past the Golden Eagles into the lead of the Eastern Plains Conference's Northern Division.

The loss left Robersonville with a 3-1 record in the loop, while South Edgecombe is now 4-1. The Eagles are 3-3 overall, while South Edgecombe is 5-1.

The big inning for South Edgecombe came in the first, when they pushed over five runs. Don Webb led off with a walk and Junior Webb followed with a single. Doug Walters doubled, driving in Don Webb. Ritchie Pridgen walked, and that brought on Doyle Farmer for Jimmy Stalls on the mound for Robersonville.

He got the next batter to ground out, but Junior Webb scored on the play. Johnny Webb then doubled, driving in Walters and Pridgen. Dino Ellis doubled off that, driving in Johnny Webb for the 5-0 lead.

Robersonville finally got on the scoreboard in the sixth, scoring a pair of runs. Doug Warren singled and took second on a fielder's choice. Larry Jackson reached on a fielder's choice and Reid Bullock came on to run for him. Kim Knox walked, loading the bases and Mike Matthews doubled, scoring both Warren and Bullock.

South Edgecombe came back with two more in the seventh. Pridgen singled and moved up on a balk. Johnny Webb reached on an error, and Ellis doubled in Pridgen. Steve Fuller singled to score Webb with the final run.

Robersonville will travel to North Johnston on Wednesday. South Edgecombe 500 000 2-7 12 1 Rob'ville 000 002 0-2 6 2 Braxton and D. Webb; Stalls; Farmer (1) and Jackson.

Woody's Ramblin's

By WOODY PEELE

It could hardly have been more fitting. Hank Aaron finally hit that 715th home run—and it came in Atlanta, just where he wanted to do it.

For him, it must have been an awfully long winter. Hitting his 713th just prior to the end of last season left him one short of Babe Ruth's 714.

Then, came the long wait, accompanied by the taunts and jeers of many who felt that a black man should not break a white man's record.

But, in his first game, Aaron tied the record. The first wait was over. And just a few days later, he broke the mark. He is now the all-time home run hitter of major league history.

And he did it all with humility.

And what of Ruth? Has he suddenly disappeared, never to be heard of again? Certainly not. Ruth in his day was a master with a bat. He was one of the greats, and will always continue to be so. Just as in all sports when men of two different ages are compared, there will be argument after argument. The two can never really be brought together. They stand alone. They are immortals of the sport.

Who's better—Aaron or Ruth? Does it really make any difference?

Finally, we must disagree with the action of Bowie Kuhn in ordering the Braves to play Aaron on Sunday.

True, a record hung in the balance. But it is beyond the duties of the commission to decide for a manager whom he shall play. There is too much at stake here in a situation like this.

Regardless of what hangs in the balance, it still is up to the manager of a club to play whom he wants where he wants when he wants.

The commissioner of baseball has no business interfering with the internal affairs of a team. It would not be a "great blow" to baseball had Aaron not played, and it certainly would not have affected the outcome of the game.

Perhaps, in the sake of setting a new record, the commissioner can ask or rather order Alvin Dark to pitch Jim "Catfish" Hunter every day, in an effort to win 60 baseball games this year. That's a good record to shoot for, and would be marvelous for baseball.

Aaron's Home Run...

out the ceremonial first ball almost an hour earlier. He jumped out of the box to join his famous son on the field during the 11-minute interruption.

A massive fireworks display was ignited, sending brightly colored sparks high into the rain-chilled air amid cannon-like explosions.

Aaron returned to the field after the brief meeting with his family, holding high the home-run ball that had been caught and presented to him by teammate Tommy House, a relief pitcher.

Then came the only boos of the celebration.

Monte Irvin, an aide to Kuhn and a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, said into a field microphone, "The Commissioner's office..." He got no further.

Aaron smiled, saying later, "I was smiling because of the boos."

The fans were irked over the commissioner's order that Aaron had to play in Sunday's series finale at Cincinnati.

Team officials and Aaron took the position that Cincinnati had seen the record-tying 714th off right-hander Jack Billingham last Thursday and that the slugger's hometown fans deserved No. 715.

The commissioner was attending a dinner in Cleveland when he expressed pride at Aaron's accomplishment, but said he had "no second thoughts" about the order that Aaron play Sunday or Manager Eddie Mathews would face "serious consequences."

Irvin, who missed a special 30-minute pregame program in tribute to Aaron because of travel problems, still carried out his mission. He presented from Kuhn to Aaron a $3,000 diamond-studded wristwatch upon which was imprinted in gold the figure 715.

"I played in Cincinnati the two out of three games I was supposed to play," Aaron said. He went hitless in three trips, fanning twice, in Sunday's game.

Aaron opened his post-conference news conference by criticizing some writers he refused to name for questioning his performance in Cincinnati.

"I have never went out on a ball field and not given my level best," he said. "Contrary to some of the reports I have read that I was a disgrace to the ball club, I did my level best."

Aaron said the furor in Cincinnati "put Mathews in a peculiar position. He should be permitted to fill up his own starting lineup. I hit No. 714 in Cincinnati, and it seems that they might have given me the courtesy of not playing the Sunday game there if everybody had thought it best."

Hank's wife, by his side during the news conference, was asked if she agreed.

"One hundred per cent," she replied.

Aaron was asked if he thought he now might be considered the greatest baseball player who ever lived.

"I think I may be one of the best," he said. "But Joe DiMaggio was one of the greatest, and so were Willie Mays and Jackie Robinson. But I don't think Henry Aaron is fourth. He may be second or third. I would be in there some place."

Lost in the excitement of the home run mark was another surpassed Babe Ruth record—extra bases on long hits. Ruth stood at 2920 bases. Aaron now has 2921.

The Hammer also set a National League record in the second inning when he was walked on five pitches.

The run was the 2063rd of his career, moving him one ahead of Willie Mays and trailing only American Leaguers Ty Cobb (2244) and Ruth (2174) on the all-time list.

Asked if he had any major goals remaining, Aaron said, "I would like to break Stan Musial's record and become the all-time National League leader in hits."

Aaron currently stands in fourth place with 3511. Musial had 3630 during a sparkling career with the St. Louis Cardinals. Cobb's all-time mark of 4191 is out of reach, but Aaron soon will move into third place all-time ahead of Tris Speaker, who had 3515.

Asked what he would do if he had the opportunity to become a manager, Aaron said that if there had not been a black manager named at that time "I would take the job, but I don't want to be a manager. I feel I can do more working the farm system in some respect."

Asgrow RX Hybrid Corn Lines Give You A Healthy Advantage

It's only logical. The more a hybrid can resist stress and disease, the more you can count on it to give you a healthy advantage—in the field and over the scale. And you can count on single cross RX60, RX115, and special RX99A to do just that.

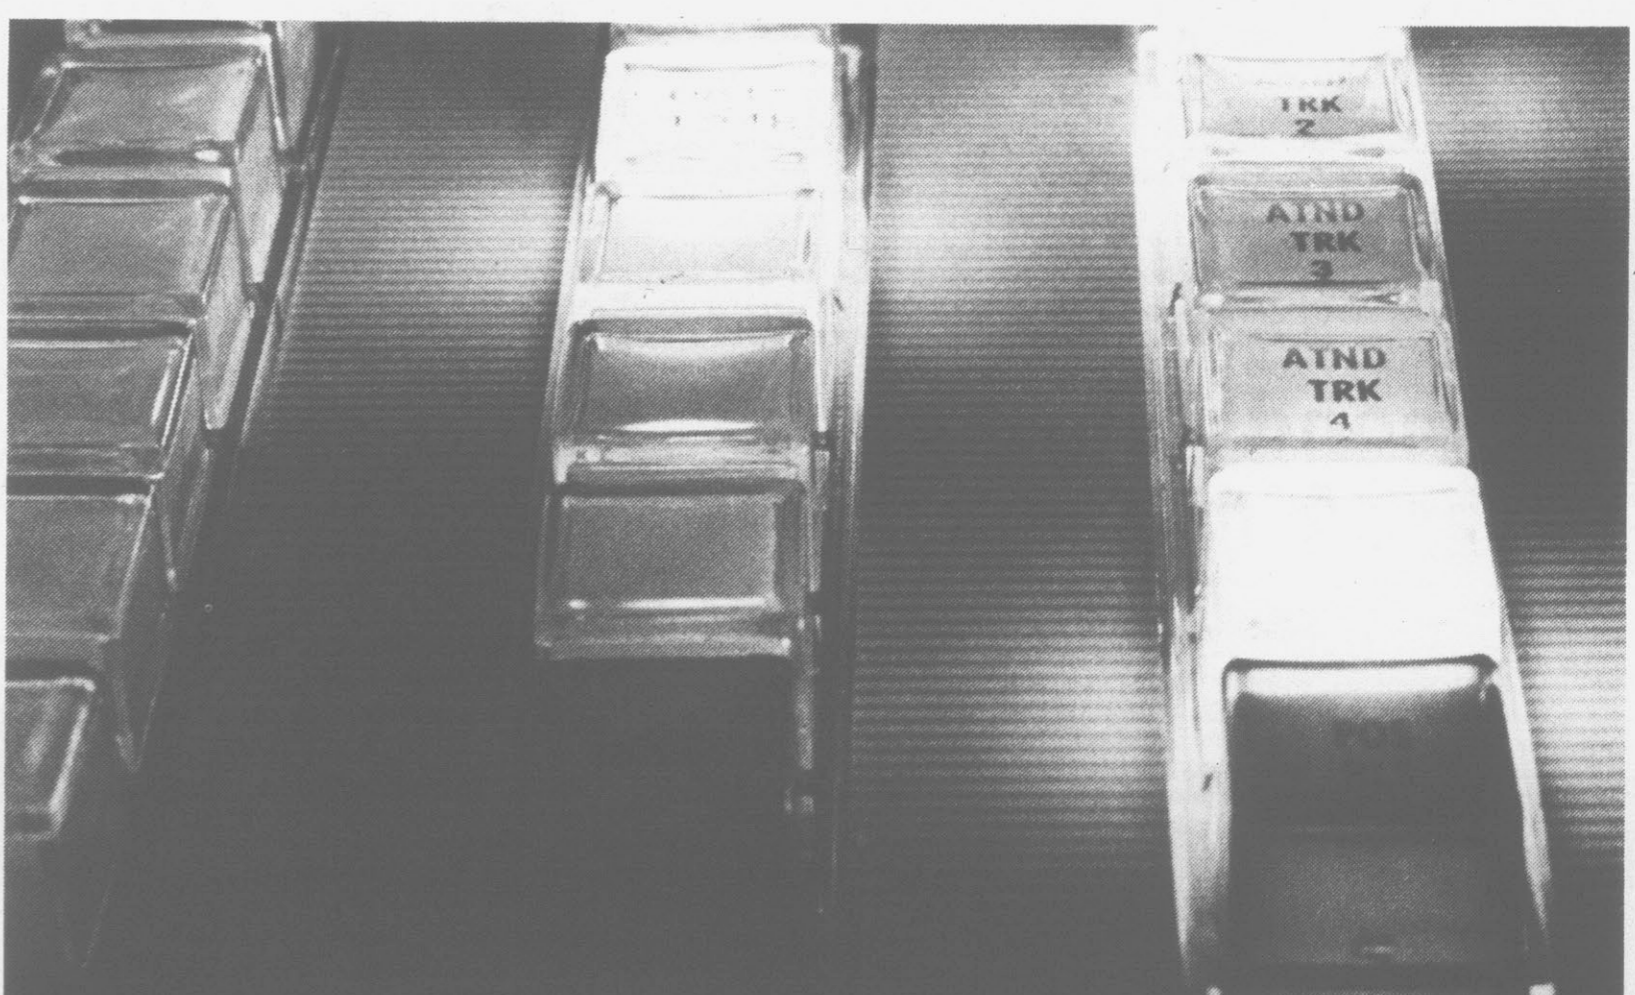

Here's why: It is prescription-bred to resist rust, lodging, Fusarium ear rots, stalk rots, root worms, and corn borer infestation. . . to resist Northern, Yellow, and Race "T" Southern leaf blights. And you can be sure that these lines have the genetic vigor to withstand these stress conditions and still yield with the best. They quickly develop into extremely-uniform plants—healthy plants with massive root systems and sturdy stalks that insure excellent standability. What's more, large, girthy ears are placed at the ideal height for combining or picking.

They look great and yield even better. And this has been proved, on hundreds of farms right in this area. Talk with the farmers who grow these hybrids. Ask them about the ability of the RX Line to give you a healthy advantage. Then—talk with your Asgrow dealer. Ask him to reserve you a supply of Asgrow corn.

The Worry Clinic Surgery Is Not Always Needed

Lois is worried about possible cancer. So study this case with extreme care. Surgery is a superb form of treatment WHEN INDICATED. But millions of operations are unwarranted. Note the reports of the pathologists cited today! Mix "Horse Sense" with medicine!
By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M.D.
CASE A-602: Lois L., aged 28, is a Chicago biology teacher. "Dr. Crane," she began, "I understand that you and Dr. Ted Van Dellen (medical columnist) were classmates in Medical School.

"So I wish you'd explain all his recent statement that ALL cancers of the gall bladder are associated with gall stones. "For my mother had a routine physical examination recently and learned that she had some gall stones. "Although the physician admitted she didn't have any symptoms of other trouble with her gall bladder, he recommended that she have it removed by surgery. "What is your personal opinion?" "Horse Sense" Book doctors routinely urge surgery in such cases. But experienced medics who have a lot of "Horse Sense" are not so scalp-happy. Indeed, when Dr. Van Dellen and I were interning together at Chicago's Wealey Memorial Hospital, its pathologist came to ask my advice on an ethical question. "Dr. Crane," he began, "I am on the spot. "For many an excised appendix shows no inflammation at all! "Yet the doctors who remove such a normal appendix then want me to report that the appendix showed at least some inflammation. "But as a true pathologist, I can't honestly camouflage their mistaken diagnosis, yet they are pressuring me to cover up for them." Lest some of you readers think this is an unusual occurrence, just go to your public library and borrow a copy of the 1974 edition of our college textbook, "Psychology Applied," authored by my sons Daniel, David and myself. On Page 712 therein you will find the report by astute Dr. Walter Alvarez, who studied 385 patients who had undergone appendectomies. Yet in 58 per cent of all those cases the surgery was unwarranted as per the findings of the hospital pathologists! And Dr. James C. Doyle, (U. of Calif.) surveyed 6,248 cases of major surgery, involving partial or complete hysterectomies (womb removal). How many do you suppose were also totally unnecessary and unwarranted by pathologists' reports? Alas, it was 40 per cent (2 out of every 5). So don't rush into quick surgery until you have had at least 2 or 3 independent diagnoses. And don't tell the 2nd doctor that you had previously consulted another, for medics naturally tend to stick together! Why am I boldly exposing such expensive and needless surgery? Because the Kennedy Bill wants to foist on you taxpayers a National Health Insurance Program which government financial experts admit would put an extra $77 BILLION tax on your backs the very first year! Beware, for it isn't merely Eisenhower's prediction that the Military-Industrial complex would ruin our country. It is the Hospital and School complex that is already breaking your backs, even before this Kennedy monstrosity hits you. For politicians find it easier to "sell" health insurance than oppose the Military-Industrial tax bite. Remember, too, that gall stones may form because of a chemical imbalance in the blood stream, so send for my booklet, "The Ocean's 44 Trace Chemicals," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents.

Editorial Cartoon 'Feasible' For TV

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Though most persons are used to seeing editorial cartoons only in newspapers, this form of journalism also is feasible for local TV news shows, says an artist who's tried it. All you need are a good cartoonist and strong backing from the station, says William Sanderson, whose "Acid Test" cartoon appeared on KGW-TV here for more than three years before it was canceled. "Find the best cartoonist available ... give him free rein and suffer the consequences," he says. "Sooner or later, if he's good, he's going to nail somebody to the wall." It wasn't that which caused his cartoon's demise on TV. The station, pinched by economic considerations, said the public wasn't reacting to the feature as it once did. Forest Amsden, general manager of KGW and a Sanderson fan, said he was surprised by the lack of positive or negative reaction to the "Acid Test" feature the last year it was on the air. "That doesn't mean people didn't react, but it wasn't measurable," he said, adding "it was a fairly expensive piece of information ... it got to the point where we put money into that or something else." Sanderson's theory is that public reaction to his artwork with a message fell off as irate critics realized their complaints were to no avail and the cartoon had become an established fixture. Amsden, a former newspaper editor, observed that an editorial cartoon on TV has a big drawback its newspaper versions don't have: "A (newspaper) cartoon is something you sit and look at, think about, turn back and look at again later. "On television, it was there, and 18 seconds later it was gone." Sanderson agrees, but says brevity is one of those things that viewers and TV cartoonists alike have to live with. "You have to assume that it will go over some people's heads or move too fast," he says. "A television political cartoon is exposed to the same hazard as the newspaper cartoon." And Sanderson, whose feature appeared weekly in the Portland Oregonian newspaper before KGW bought the idea, says there's no way in print or TV to avoid the problem of cartoon ideas that flop, particularly if one artist does the cartoon five days a week. But it may be more of a headache for TV, he concedes. "Because it is on television, people expect it to be super every day," he said. "Mediocre newspaper cartoons are expected."

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10, 1974

CARROLL RIGHTER'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very disturbing and distracting day in which most everyone will be in a mood to upset usual conditions and will be inclined to start out with poor judgment in a.m. If this is allowed to occur, feelings will be depressed later. Keep cheerful, calm. ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) First complete what you have started since later you have to contend with new situations. Study a new plan well and then put in action tomorrow. TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have many responsibilities to take care of and are tempted to cast them off, but this would not be wise. Be serious with mate. GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Although you do not understand the position a partner takes, do not try to change him or her, or you get into trouble. MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Cooperate with a fellow worker. Although you think you are sick, a good rest will help and you soon feel well again. LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You want to go out for amusement, but do pick up the tab this time and don't let your friends pay it so often. Add creativity to work. VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Although conditions at home do not suit you, don't be belligerent, or you could start a real fracas. Be more cooperative. LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Shop, but stay within the budget. Don't take any chances with driving, walking, and you avoid accidents. Take care of eyesight. SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Save more for future wealth. Consult one with much monetary know-how. Get work done so you are better satisfied with it. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't argue with one who means much to you, or you lose this person very quickly. Improving your appearance is important now. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Carefully study what has to be done, then get at it vigorously. Smile to ward off opposition. Help a friend in trouble. AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be with good friends in p.m., since they are busy during day. Solve personal affairs in a.m. Don't take chances with one who is hot-tempered. PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Although you do not approve of what a higher-up is doing, keep busy at own affairs and all works out just fine for you. IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY he or she will be born with a sort of divine discontent, but must be taught early to control the temper, or there could be much wasted time here and the success otherwise possible would not be realized. There is a fine mind here and many bigwigs will be interested in your child, so give as much education as you can. Working in foreign countries is very good, with imports, exports, etc. Foreign languages a must. "The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU! Declarer paid attention to the auction, drew the necessary conclusions and found a winning line that is not easy to spot. South had a difficult hand to bid, but he acquitted himself well. North's response of one no trump to the takeout double showed values, so South's first duty was to describe a strong hand, and not merely a balancing double, by cue-bidding diamonds at his second turn. After both black suits were bid, North raised to four spades. Had the defense been unimaginative, declarer would have had an easy ride. He would concede two hearts and a diamond, and ruff a heart in dummy. However, West led the king of diamonds and shifted to a trump, and declarer realized that he would not have time to ruff a heart. He would have to surrender the lead twice, and by playing trumps each time they gained the lead, the defenders would remove dummy's trumps before declarer could ruff a heart. It seemed that declarer would have to rely on East holding the ace of hearts, but that was an improbability in view of West's opening bid. Declarer found a neat way out of this impasse. He drew three rounds of trumps, and then cashed the ace, king and queen of clubs, ending in dummy. Now, he led the queen of diamonds, and when East followed with a low diamond, declarer discarded a heart from his hand. West won the trick with the ace of diamonds, but did not relish the prospect of being on lead. He was down to nothing but red cards, and he had no way to avoid presenting declarer with a trick. If he led a heart, declarer would score his king of hearts. If he led a diamond, declarer would ruff out East's jack, enter dummy with the jack of clubs and discard a heart on the ten of diamonds. Either way, declarer would lose only two diamonds and a heart.

Council Going Out Of Business Classified Ads

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The first 250 employees at the Cost of Living Council have been notified to start looking for new jobs, as the administration's wage and price control agency begins the process of going out of business.

John T. Dunlop to continue the council as a special anti-inflation agency after April 30 have met with rejection in Congress, which has made clear it feels the 2½-year-old controls program should come to a complete halt.

A small nucleus of the council's total personnel of 1,000 may be retained, but most of its staff will be seeking other jobs. They include attorneys, economists, administrators and clerical workers.

Dunlop and Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz told an assembly of council personnel Monday that every effort will be made to find comparable jobs for them in other federal agencies.

About 60 per cent of the council personnel have worked with emergency-indefinite status, meaning they were hired for a specific job and without guarantee of future jobs. They have not had civil service status.

However, council members have been told that President Nixon may soon issue an order giving them civil service status to make them eligible for permanent federal employment.

The notices to council employees that they must start finding new work gives them two months in which to find jobs. The first 250 already have received notices.

Although the council's authority expires April 30, it has funds to meet its payroll through June 30.

One high-ranking staff member noted that he paid his own way for his family to move to Washington from Chicago two years ago, and said his experience was not uncommon.
