

1974 Assembly Impact To Take Years

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP) — It will probably take several years to assess the performance of the 1974 North Carolina General Assembly.

Most of the major legislation passed this year — apart from the budget items — will have to be proven in practice before its impact is apparent.

What the legislature failed to do is already known. It could not agree on tax reform, and instead established an interim commission to study the issue.

It killed no-fault insurance legislation, due primarily to resistance by attorneys in the House.

And it killed a bill that would have imposed on newspapers a requirement that they print letters to the editor from persons "attacked" in their articles and editorials.

Lobbyists for major industries were able to persuade the legislators to pass the major bills on their agenda.

The banking industry won approval of a new law that will "tax banks like other corporations."

The law, according to state revenue experts, will not save banks any money right away. They will be paying about the same amount of taxes they paid under the previous special state excise tax.

But in the future, it will mean that anyone seeking to raise the banks' taxes will have to take on the entire business establishment of the state, because banks are now paying the corporate income tax.

Savings and loan associations won approval for a one-year removal of the state's 8 per cent ceiling on first mortgage interest rates. The lending institutions said they were unable to make loans at 8 per cent because of high interest rates in national money markets.

Interest rates, since the bill's enactment, have risen to 9 per cent in most markets.

The utilities industry won approval for a bill which will allow the State Utilities Commission to consider projected expense figures in setting rates rather than past performance.

How much this bill will contribute to the accelerating cost of power remains to be seen.

The same could be said of other major decisions of the legislature. Whether new laws like the coastal management act, the campaign spending reform, the revived housing program, and the drunk driving statute will do what they are intended to do can only be determined by time.

A new housing program for low income citizens was enacted, but the budget contains only half the funds housing experts said they would need to make the program work better than the ineffective 1969 act.

The coastal land bill was amended heavily between its introduction and its enactment.

Its sponsors say it can still provide the means to control runaway development on the coast and protect the dunes, marshes and other disappearing natural resources there.

Its success will depend, they say, on the makeup of the Coastal Resources Commission. Gov. Jim Holshouser will appoint three members within the next few months. He will choose 12 others from a list of 118 nominees submitted by local governments on the coast.

If Holshouser, who strongly supported the bill, can find enough nominees who support his philosophy to make a majority on the commission, the program can work.

With the shadow of Watergate looming in the background, a major campaign spending reform act was passed for the first time since the ineffective 1931 Corrupt Practices Act was enacted and ignored.

The new law appears to have more teeth than its predecessor. It also sets limits on individual contributions and spending by candidates, in addition to requiring disclosure of contributors.

But the legislators shied away from closing all the potential loopholes, and probably left a few that a determined candidate could use to mask his spending and contributors.

One major test for the new law will come the first time someone breaks it. The state Board of Elections and the Wake County prosecutor's office, charged with enforcement of the act, have been reluctant in the past to prosecute violators of similar laws, particularly if those violators have been elected to high office.

In the field of criminal law, the impact of the legislature's work is more clear.

Late in the session, a long stalemate over the death penalty was broken. In a compromise, the penalty was restricted to first-degree murder and a new crime, first degree rape.

First degree burglary, arson, and some rapes were taken out of the capital crime category. First degree rape is defined as rape in which a deadly weapon is used or serious bodily injury inflicted on the victim.

But since most of the state's Death Row prisoners are there for murder, the number of condemned prisoners will probably continue to get larger, barring new court rulings on the issue.

There may also be more convictions for drunken driving under a new statute that will take effect next year. It redefines the offense.

Rather than proving that a driver was under the influence, the state will have to prove, via a breathalyzer test, that he had more than .10 per cent alcohol in his blood.

Accomplishments Of Congress Cited By House Speaker

By EDMOND LeBRETON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Carl Albert observed the start of Congress' Easter break by issuing a statement of accomplishments and plans with national health insurance placed first on the list.

The statement was compiled after a joint meeting of the House and Senate Democratic leadership. It added to other indications that the congressional chiefs are trimming their overgrown agenda and aiming at enactment of a choice package of voter-appealing measures.

With impeachment matters likely to pre-empt much of its time between now and the November election, Congress is beginning to feel squeezed.

One of the items that could fall to the cutting-room floor is across-the-board tax reform. Only last year a concerted drive to close loopholes was being trumpeted by many as Congress' prime concern and assurances were given that the House Ways and Means Committee, which made a start early in 1973, would turn to it again early this year.

General tax reform does not even appear on Albert's list.

The Ways and Means Committee set tax reform aside last year at President Nixon's request to take up his foreign trade bill.

Ways and Means — the tax, trade and Social Security committee — did not go back promptly to the loophole-closing job. It sent a Social Security benefit increase on to enactment and then worked out a massive pension reform bill, which is now in conference for reconciliation with a Senate-passed measure.

Next the tax writers took up a limited tax bill with high topical appeal — a levy on crisis-swollen windfall profits of oil companies.

Ready to be sent to the House when Congress returns, the bill sets stiff taxes on windfall profits, but allows oil companies to avoid payment of much of these by plowing the funds back into exploration and development of additional energy supplies. It also provides for a gradual phaseout of the controversial oil depletion allowance.

Meanwhile, there was a breakthrough in the years-long effort to form a winning coalition behind a plan for national health insurance at a price U.S. families could afford.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Ways and Means Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., proponents of opposing views, agreed on and introduced a compromise bill with less government participation than Kennedy previously had insisted on and more than Mills had favored.

Mills has announced plans for consideration of this legislation one day a week, with the rest of the time going to tax reform.

Albert, acknowledging that the timing is tight, has said "we want a health insurance bill this year."

she said. "But for example, I've learned not to say what my husband's profession is. If I say he's a social worker, I'm excused right away. I learned very quickly to say he is a director for a family service agency. That's OK."

For another, the jurors aren't notified when a case is dismissed or settled out of court. "You might have to come in and sit all day only to be told to go home. And you never knew why," she said.

But Mrs. Mueller said the capper was the day she telephoned the emergency number to tell the court she couldn't show up because of a medical problem. She said she got a recorded message that told her what time to be on duty.

Proxmire Would End 16 Agencies Complacency In Energy Problem Said Returning

By JIM LUTHER
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire today called for abolition of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Selective Service and 14 other agencies on grounds they are useless and wasteful.

Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economic subcommittee on priorities and economy in government, said that if any of the 16 are serving a useful purpose their functions can be moved to an existing agency.

"Virtually every bill passed by the Congress and signed by the president establishes new agency, commission, board or advisory council," Proxmire said in a statement. "Once started, they take on a life of their own. They are never abolished."

For example, Proxmire said, Selective Service is asking $41 million this year to keep in operation even though under the law no one can be drafted.

Here are other agencies he proposes to abolish, and his reasons:

Renegotiation Board — He said this agency, which reviews profits of companies doing business with the government, allowed Grumman Aircraft to keep a 76 per cent return on net worth and Dow Chemical Co. to keep a 48 per cent profit.

Civil Defense — "The shelter programs, the evacuation program, and the contribution programs are sterling examples of make-work" because "in the nuclear world there is no place to hide."

A spokesman for the New England Power Pool said the federal allocation system and ending of the oil embargo have stabilized the supply of fuel to the region's electric generating plants.

Jury Justice Concept Is Wrecked By Experience

DETROIT (AP) — Helen Mueller is a shy, 102-pound housewife who said she "really felt sort of proud" when she was called for federal jury duty.

But that was before she found out what jury duty was like.

After 20 days' service over three months, she stomped into U.S. District Court here to give Judge Fred W. Kaess a good bawling out.

"If I ever get in trouble, I'll never ask for a jury trial," she told the startled judge. "I don't want to be judged by a group of angry, frustrated people."

"We were herded around like animals, from one pen to another. Nobody says welcome, or tells you what the rules are, or what your rights are or what's going on around you. Most of the time you just sit, not knowing what it is you're waiting for."

"People become very resentful," Mrs. Mueller told the judge last week. "You'd be surprised how many jurors say they'll never vote again, because jurors names are drawn from the registered voters. I think that's terrible!"

Judge Kaess agreed and said a judicial committee was working on jury system reform.

The Drayton Plains woman said that the required 20 days of jury duty can stretch into six months if a juror is never chosen for a trial. So jurors stretch the truth a little during their examination just to get on a case and get the whole thing over with, she said.

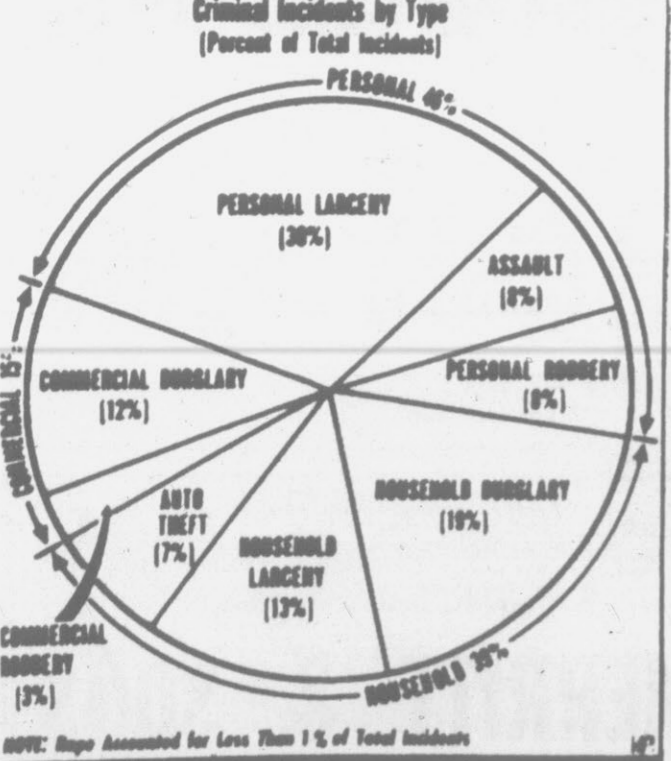

"I don't mean the jurors lie,"

she said. "But for example, I've learned not to say what my husband's profession is. If I say he's a social worker, I'm excused right away. I learned very quickly to say he is a director for a family service agency. That's OK."

For another, the jurors aren't notified when a case is dismissed or settled out of court. "You might have to come in and sit all day only to be told to go home. And you never knew why," she said.

Near-Contempt For Institutions Of Justice

WASHINGTON AP—As many as half of the crimes in the nation's five biggest cities are not being reported, according to a new government survey.

And Donald E. Santarelli, administrator of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, says the disclosure carries "a strong message of public apathy toward...criminal justice institutions bordering on contempt."

According to the survey, released Sunday, the crime rate is five times as high as police records show in Philadelphia, nearly three times as high in Chicago, Detroit and Los Angeles, and a little more than twice as high in New York.

"The crime survey results demonstrate that in an astounding number of instances Americans simply do not think it is worthwhile to report to public authorities that they have been the victim of criminal acts," said Santarelli.

The survey was conducted by the LEAA and the Census Bureau as part of a $10 million-a-year project to measure crime. An earlier study indicated that crime is twice as high as reported in Atlanta, Baltimore, Cleveland, Dallas, Newark, St. Louis, Denver and Portland, Ore.

The latest study involved the questioning of persons in about 25,000 households and 10,000 businesses in five cities during 1973. Those questioned were asked whether they had been raped, robbed, burglarized or assaulted during 1972 and if so, whether they had reported the crime to police.

Of those who did not report crimes 34 percent said it was because of lack of proof or they felt nothing could be done. Twenty-eight per cent did not consider the crime important enough to report and others said they did not want to be bothered, it was a personal matter, it was too inconvenient or they were afraid of reprisal.

For all five cities, the report said, there was a total of 3.1 million crimes committed in 1972.

By comparison FBI statistics, compiled from local police agencies listed 1.1 million crimes in the cities.

According to the study, 68 of every 1,000 Detroit residents are likely to be victims of serious crime.

It said the rates were 63 per 1,000 for Philadelphia, 56 per 1,000 for Chicago, 53 per 1,000 for Los Angeles and 36 per 1,000 for New York.

Four mornings a week Ida Mae Smith and Ida Mae Williams make the rounds of Kearney Park Subdivision and "pick up" 21 or so children to take them to their playschool at South Greenville Recreation Center. Around 11:30 a.m., they start delivering the children home.

The playschool, which uses the facilities of the City Recreation Department is run by Mrs. Smith and Ms. Williams, who are VISTA workers. Mrs. Lydia Carmon, mother of one of the children, is also assisting.

The playschool, which operates from 9 to 11:30 a.m. each day, is free of charge to the parents. "We just want these pre-kindergarten-aged children to get out and play and learn with other children," Mrs. Smith said. "Ms. Williams and I had to choose a main project as VISTA workers and we thought these young children were the most important ones we could devote our time to."

Books used by the children are contributed by Sheppard Memorial Library, and supplies and refreshments are "scrapped up" any way the women can get them. "We'd be glad to get more books, paper, crayons, or any other things we could use in teaching the children, and contributions for refreshments would be nice. Now the Recreation Center director, Luke Hamby and we two are doing the buying," she said. "Anyone can call me here at the Recreation center or bring things by during the mornings."

Mrs. Smith also appealed for any parents of children no longer in diapers but not old enough to be enrolled in kindergarten to contact her. "We wouldn't mind at all having more children," she said.

Old Sacramento Is Seeing Restoration

By RODNEY ANGOVE Associated Press Writer SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A sign on the western terminus of the Pony Express says "Beds 15 to 20 cents," but that's going to change.

Across the street the Pioneer Telegraph Building, where the first transcontinental message was received in 1861, has already been restored.

And the arrival point for the first transcontinental railway train, in 1869, is scheduled to become a comprehensive railway museum.

Old Sacramento, a Gold Rush river port when San Francisco was still known as Yerba Buena, is rising from its ruins.

The first eastbound Pony Express rider saddled up in front of the B. F. Hastings Building on April 14, 1860, according to a historical marker. In those days, this patch of land on the Sacramento River was booming.

But as urban planners now know, historic areas sometimes go downhill. By the 1930s, Old Sacramento was the largest market center west of Chicago for migrant day laborers. It had turned into a dreary slum long before restoration was considered in the 1950s.

At one point it was going to be bulldozed down for a freeway. But the restorers forced the highway builders to make a jog around it.

Thus Old Sacramento stands today, 28 acres of river bank cut off from the rest of the city by a freeway. There are about six blocks of buildings, of which

According to a poll by Prairie Farmer, a leading rural magazine, farm women in Illinois and Indiana are two to one in favor of women taking any job they can handle. The ratio is three to one among women under 40 with some college training.

Better than three-quarters of the farm women polled felt their husbands should help out in the house at least occasionally. However, slightly less than three-quarters of the men actually did. Age was not a factor here. Young and old alike thought their husbands should pitch in.

In a separate poll, about one-third of the women questioned answer "no" when asked whether they would vote for a qualified female presidential candidate. Among farm women with some college, about one-quarter voted "no."

Couple Speaks Vows In Easter Sunday Ceremony

In a double ring ceremony Sunday at 3:00 p.m., Miss Sandra Kaye Bullock became the bride of Dalton Wayne Bailey in the Grace Free Will Baptist Church.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Chester Phillips. Mrs. Becky Overton, organist, presented a program of nuptial music. Richard Kennedy sang "April Love" and Mrs. Jane Randlett sang "Love Story."

The church altar was centered with a fifteen branch brass candelabra holding white chase candles. An arrangement of white and yellow gladioli, chrysanthemums and pom poms with a blue dutch iris attached. On either side were candelabra holding arrangements matching the center flowers. Either side was enhanced by nine branch spiral candelabra holding white candles. Palms of emerald greenery were used throughout the wedding scene. A three branch brass candelabra was used for the candle ceremony. For the benediction, the bridal couple knelt on a white prie-dieu.

Parents of the bride are Mrs. Charles Hagan of Greenville, and Mrs. Howard Clifton Bullock of Rt. 4, Greenville. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Wayne Bailey of Greenville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an Alfred Angelo gown fashioned of candlelight sata peau and re-embroidered lace with a high neckline and Renaissance sleeves. The empire bodice was of pearled re-embroidered alencon medallions. The full circular skirt was edged with a floral ruffle.

The bride carried a colonial nosegay of yellow daisies, miniature carnations and baby's breath with candlelight demask ribbon streamers.

Miss Barbara Lynn Bullock of Greenville, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She was dressed in a formal gown of pale blue flirtation flocks designed with an empire waistline, Renaissance sleeves, full gathered skirt with a ruffle. The gown was accented with green satin at the waist and sleeves. She carried a matching parasol with a spray of daisies.

Bridesmaids were Wanda Bailey of Greenville, sister of the bridegroom, and Ann Spain of Rt. 4, Greenville, stepsister of the bride. Their yellow gowns were identical to that of the honor attendant.

Junior bridesmaids were Jeri Bullock of Greenville, sister of the bride, who was dressed in a yellow gown, and Denise Bullock of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was dressed in blue. Their gowns were like those of the attendants. The attendants carried ruffled parasols matching their dresses with sprays of white daisies and green ribbon streamers.

The bride's cousin, Jennifer Bullock of Greenville, was flower girl. She wore a blue gown styled like that of the bridal attendants and carried a white basket with a spray of white daisies and filled with rose petals. Neal Bullock of Greenville, cousin of the bride, was ring bearer and carried a white satin heart shaped pillow.

The father of the bridegroom was best man. Ushers were Sidney Hardee, Jeff Bailey, brother of the bridegroom, Warren Cade and Dwayne Little, all of Greenville.

The mother of the bride chose a seablue formal gown fashioned with a beaded waistline and cuffs of the long sheer sleeves. The mother of the bridegroom selected an empire formal with an aqua skirt and white ruffled bodice. The mothers wore corsages of yellow cymbidium orchids.

The bride's stepmother wore a corsage of carnations and the grandmothers were remembered with carnation corsages. Miss Jimmy Sue Spain presided at the guest register.

For a wedding trip to Myrtle Beach, S. C., the bride changed into a red pants suit.

The couple will reside at Rt. 4, Greenville.

The bride and bridegroom are graduates of Rose High School and attended Pitt Technical Institute. She is employed by Dr. Dan Warren and he is employed by Union Carbide.

After the rehearsal Saturday night, an after-rehearsal party was given by Annas Bullock, Joan Bullock and Mary Jo Bullock honoring the wedding party and guests.

The refreshment table was centered with an arrangement of yellow and white snapdragons, daisy pom poms and carnations.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an A-line empire gown in silk organza and chantilly lace. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline, chantilly lace bodice, accented with pearls, and long lace sleeves with blue satin ribbon at the waistline. The skirt was enhanced with lace appliques and a detachable train flowing to chapel length.

She wore a matching headpiece attached to a short illusion veil. She wore a cameo brooch which belonged to her grandmother. The bride carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations, daisies, and baby's breath. White ribbon streamers with touches of blue completed the bouquet.

Miss Mary Lou Rollins of Bethel was the maid of honor. She wore a formal length gown of royal blue with an empire waistline. The gown had long sleeves with white cuffs trimmed with white lace. The neckline had a v-collar trimmed with white lace. She wore a royal blue loop bow with streamers and carried a basket filled with spring flowers.

Bridesmaids were Miss Melody James of Greenville and Miss Alice Brown cousin of the bride, of Bethel. They wore blue gowns similar to that of the maid of honor. They wore blue loop bows with streamers and carried a basket filled with spring flowers. Mrs. Alexander wore a street length dress and matching coat of raspberry red polyester. The bridegroom's mother wore a street length dress and matching coat of light blue polyester. Both mothers wore a white mum corsage.

The father of the bridegroom was best man and ushers were Wilbert Futrell, brother of the bridegroom, and Tommy Rollins, both of Rt. 1, Bethel.

Miss Martha Alexander of Columbia, S.C., cousin of the bride, presided at the bridal register. Mrs. Tommy Rollins directed the wedding. After the ceremony, the wedding party received guests in the church vestibule.

For a wedding trip to unannounced points, the bride changed into a light blue polyester dress trimmed in white lace and wore her mother's corsage.

The couple will reside at Rt. 1, Bethel.

The bride attends North Pitt High School. The bridegroom graduated from Stokes-Pactolus High School and Pitt Technical Institute. He is employed at International Harvester.

After the rehearsal, a cake cutting was held at the home of the bride. Guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. David Tripp.

The refreshment table was decorated with spring flowers and lighted candles. After the traditional first slice of wedding cake was cut by the bridal couple, Mrs. Clarence Tripp served cake and Miss Becky Harris poured punch.

Teacher Lists Benefits Of Books

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: As a teacher of 11th grade English, may I respond to the irate parent who objected to the "trashy" books his child was required to read in school? That letter could have been directed at me personally because I have recommended such widely accepted literary classics as "The Grapes of Wrath," "Brave New World," and the ever-controversial "Catcher In The Rye."

First of all, I respect the wishes of any parent who does not want his child to read certain books, and if the parent has the courage to let me know directly (and not through an anonymous phone call to my principal), I will gladly suggest some alternatives.

Second, I, like you, Abby, am also "turned off" by certain vulgar four-letter words, mainly because of my own straight-laced upbringing. However, I suggest that no one can judge a book by selecting isolated passages from it. For instance, both "Grapes of Wrath" and "Catcher In The Rye" deal with the importance of feeling a sense of concern and responsibility for one's fellowman.

I realize that this letter is probably much too long for your column, but I feel so strongly about the value of presenting modern, readable and relevant books to our teenagers that I wish to air my views. As a teen-ager I never was nearly as excited about books as I am today, and I attribute my lack of enthusiasm to the dull, "safe," un-controversial books which were the typical fare for high school English classes back in the '50s.

I want more than anything else to create in my students a genuine desire to read, and that can be accomplished only by exposing them to thought-provoking books that speak directly to them in modern language which, unfortunately, often includes a few words which happen to be offensive to me.

A TEACHER [I HOPE]

DEAR TEACHER: Well put. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: What do you say to a mother-in-law who insists on naming our unborn SON? [If it's a daughter—no problem.]

Doesn't she know that the baby's name should be chosen by the baby's mother and father?

This is our first child and we are hoping for a boy, but this situation is making me secretly want a girl! Hurry your answer. I hope it gets here before the baby does.

MOM-IN-WAITING

DEAR MOM: No one can name your baby without your consent. When the baby arrives, don't "say" anything, do your own naming, and don't apologize.

Reflect Devotion To Freedoms

The North Carolina State Legislature has killed a bill which would have required mandatory replies in newspapers and the lawmakers have won the praise of the president of the N. C. Press Association.

Sam Regan, editor of the Southern Pines Pilot, said, "the press and the public are beneficiaries." Regan said newspapers "already practice the principle of right to reply."

"I know of no newspaper in this state which doesn't provide space for anyone, public official or private citizen, to reply to statements made in the press," Regan said in his statement. He called on NCPA members "to be mindful of their pledge to the statement of principles adopted in 1955 to be accurate, to be fair and to be honest in reporting of public events."

We are glad that the death of the right-to-reply bill did not pass without some praise for the General Assembly. Historically, North Carolina legislators have resisted efforts to put laws on the books which hamper and harass the press, even when such laws have been passed in other states.

We think there is strong devotion to the freedoms guaranteed in the Constitution in our state and this is reflected when the legislators go to Raleigh for sessions of the General Assembly.

As a practical matter, the right-to-reply law as it was originally drawn could have made for some dull reading in newspapers. It would have also put a restraint on public debate as carried on through the newspapers which would have been bad for our state.

The lawmakers come in for plenty of criticism by newspapers, because that is the journalists' job. At the same time they deserve accolades when they reject a bill such as the one requiring the right to reply.

Hunt Defends Gen. Assembly

By BILL NOBLITT

RALEIGH—The leadership of the General Assembly is unhappy with the appearance of widespread discontent across the state regarding performance of this session of the General Assembly.

"This Legislature has done some good things. The impression is that it has not... and that is wrong," argues Lt. Gov. James B. Hunt Jr., who places part of the blame for the problem on newspapers.

"Polls show Americans have so little confidence in their public leaders and their institutions. Part of this is justified.

"But part of it comes because people get the wrong information. If not factually wrong, at least somewhat slanted or biased—perhaps unintentionally."

Hunt said people across the state are confronting him and other members of the General Assembly asking, "What in the world are you all doing down there. The general impression is that the General Assembly has not done anything.

No Cause

"Now, conceding that a lot of things that ought to have been done has not, there is still no cause for a series of newspaper articles which have been printed implying a lack of any action, or implying action that ignores the average citizen and favors only special interest groups," Hunt said.

Hunt said his principal concern is that people "get the true facts, so they will react in the right ways based on facts rather than distortions or incomplete information.

A number of newspaper accounts of General Assembly activities, including wire service reports, articles written by regular members of the Capitol Press Corps, and editorials have been critical of failure of the General Assembly to approve a variety of consumer measures including the landlord-tenant relationship proposal, broader land management legislation, etc.

Criticism has also been leveled at action allowing public utilities to use advance economic forecasts in seeking rate hikes, at efforts to remove the inventory taxes on manufacturers and retailers, at removal of the interest rate ceilings, and at a change in bank-taxing methods.

Many members of the General Assembly have themselves been critical of this session, and a number have said so-called people programs would hopefully fare better in 1975 than this year.

Hunt insists that "this General Assembly has done a number of good things—and others are in progress."

Items Listed

Here is a rundown of the major items which Hunt lists in supporting the record:

Health Care—"A great step in helping improve the system... we will look back on this as a landmark year in committing ourselves to improving delivery of medical care," he said. He listed some $66 million in new items, including a commitment to a new medical school at East Carolina University, nine Area Health Center hospitals to train physicians, new directions in mental health programs.

Housing Finance Agency—Setting up $4 million this year, another $4 million next year, to back some $100 million in bonds to provide loans to some $5,000 low to middle-income working families for homes.

Land Use—Major strides in a "tremendously complicated and difficult area" involving land rights, despite failure of the assembly to move ahead with the mountain land use bill. Hunt sees the Statewide Land Use Policy measure as significant in coming years.

Campaign Finance Reform—Controls over amounts and rules for reporting make this "one of the finest in America... it has to do with who comes down here to the assembly, and who sits in the governor's office," Hunt said.

Death Penalty—It is kept on first-degree murder and rape; removed from arson and burglary. Hunt's opinion: "It comes about as close to reflecting the will of North Carolina residents as you could come."

Highway Safety—"We got the drunk drivers off the road," Hunt said, through the measure which makes a .10 drunkometer reading equivalent to being guilty.

Parks—A measure set up to relieve governmental red tape on land purchases, and $5.5 million appropriated for land.

"This is a right impressive and significant list of legislative accomplishments," Hunt said.

Preaching The 'Real America'

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON—At a moment when the Democratic party is threatened more by rampant euphoria than Republicans, a manuscript has started circulating in Washington to begin an internal Democratic struggle whose results could profoundly influence the 1976 presidential election.

The manuscript, to be published as "The Real America" by Doubleday in September, is written by centrist Democratic tactician Ben F. Wattenberg. "The Real Majority," co-authored by Wattenberg and Richard Scammon, was remarkably effective in pushing Democratic candidates toward the center in 1970 and thereby blunting Republican attacks. Wattenberg, a founder of the centrist Coalition for a Democratic Majority (CDM) and an adviser to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, clearly hopes his new book will play a similar role in 1974.

But 1974 is not 1970. With benefits from Watergate blotting out memories of the 1972 McGovern debacle, even those Democratic politicians who agree with the Wattenberg manuscript's political lessons doubt they will be heeded.

A single book has seldom been so politically influential as "The Real Majority," published Sept. 4, 1970. Fearful of the Republican law-and-order onslaught, Democratic candidates heeded Wattenberg-Scammon advice to show genuine concern about crime, drugs and violent disruptions while maintaining the party's traditional bread-and-butter liberalism.

Wattenberg's new lesson exactly four years later, more sophisticated and less overtly political, boils down to this: census statistics "show there was great and healthy change in the United States since 1960" with social and economic improvement for everybody. Modish scares such as the population explosion and environmental disaster are belittled. Public opinion surveys are cited to back up this contention: "Americans don't regard themselves as unhappy or as dissatisfied, despite all the rhetoric to the contrary." In sum, Americans have never had it so good.

His data flatly contradicts what Wattenberg calls the Failure and Guilt Complex preached by liberals and culminating in Sen. George McGovern's disastrous campaign for President. Moreover, he argues that traditional liberalism, even Lyndon B. Johnson's Great Society, is no failure but has built a better country.

Wattenberg is therefore suggesting a novel approach by Democratic candidates: burn those speeches about malaise and decline and brag about how good things are, thanks to liberal Democratic government. What makes this politically realistic are vast numbers of Americans hungering for good news and words of hope.

But Wattenberg's optimism may carry him too far: Noting widespread acceptance of many new ideas (particularly women's rights) while new politics leaders may be toning down demands, he sees possible ideological unity within the Democratic party. Indeed, no serious Democrat today would deliver Sen. Edmund Muskie's October 1971 address to the New York Liberal party proclaiming "failure of American liberalism."

Nevertheless, the Failure and Guilt Complex explicit in the Muskie speech remains implicit in current declarations by such leaders as Sens. Edward M. Kennedy and Walter Mondale. Kennedy probably sticks to his 1972 statement (quoted and contradicted by Wattenberg) that "whenever I travel, I find that the average citizens... have a profound dissatisfaction with the way they live."

Beyond this, a whole shelf of Democratic literature is building the argument that the only thing wrong with 1972 was George McGovern and that a better candidate—say, Ted Kennedy or Fritz Mondale—could win on the very same issues in 1976. In short, McGovernism without McGovern.

Wattenberg attacks this point with vigor. American voters felt McGovern "was fronting for almost everything they had come to hate in the previous half a decade." Further: "McGovern did not lose because he was an inept candidate" but "because he became a symbol of a cause whose time had not come." So, Wattenberg's warning: "If some Democrats, feeling their oats from Watergate, think that Americans are now ready for what they rejected in 1972, there will again be a risk of a sundered party and Republican victory in 1976."

In 1970, frightened Democratic candidates read Scammon and Wattenberg and eagerly took their advice, putting American Flags in coat lapels and talking law-and-order. They may feel so secure this year because of Mr. Nixon's agony that they will shun Wattenberg's advice to shred their Failure and Guilt Complex.

But Wattenberg and other sensible Democrats know Watergate surely cannot last through 1976 as an effective campaign issue and may dissolve much sooner if Mr.

Farewell To Streaking

WASHINGTON—No one will admit it publicly but next to Kohoutek the biggest flop of 1974 is streaking. It was a media happening for two weeks and then fizzled out to nothing.

To find out what went wrong I went to see Stanley Streaker, a university sophomore, who started the whole thing.

"Stanley, I know you had high hopes for streaking when it first started. You predicted it would be as big as the hula hoop rage. Obviously you bombed out. What went wrong?"

"I miscalculated," he said fully clothed. "The one thing I overlooked is that Americans can't be shocked by anything any more. They're so punch-drunk they accept everything without a peep."

"I'm not sure I understand."

"Well, in order for streaking to catch on we had to convince students they were doing something against the Establishment. The fun of it for them was to horrify their parents, their professors, the alumni and of course the board of trustees. When we started streaking we expected howls of protest from the press and a tremendous counterreaction from the police. But no one got sore. Everyone just said 'Look at those nice kids running around with no clothes on.'"

"It's true," I admitted. "I said it myself."

"I guess I can't blame the parents. The older generation has been through a lot. They've seen students march on Washington protesting the war, fighting for civil rights, screaming against pollution. Hell, after the Sixties, streaking looked as innocent as Maypole dancing, and the Establishment not only refused to get sore at streakers, they welcomed us with open arms."

"You are victims of a permissive age," I said sympathetically.

"I think the thing that hurt us the most was Walter Cronkite," Stanley said.

"Why Walter Cronkite?"

"Well, when the craze first started, Cronkite got on television and said streaking was in. Now as far as college students are concerned when Walter says something is in, that means it's out. I can date our demise to the night Walter told America about

Other Editors Say Rethinking Israel

(Christian Science Monitor)

We join all of Israel's friends in regretting that Golda Meir's splendid political career has come to an end with her "irrevocable" decision to resign. We wish her many years of rest and recuperation from a strenuous span of devoted service to her people.

We can also note that her departure from high command in Israel is part of a painful but necessary and we trust constructive process of rethinking going on in Israel about the nature of the State of Israel and its future. Thoughts which would have been heretical six months ago are now uttered freely. There is a general questioning of old assumptions and former attitudes.

The October war of last year was a watershed in Israeli thinking. In pre-October thinking Israel's security lay in its invincible armed forces. In post-October thinking more and more Israelis are wondering whether peace with Arab neighbors might bring more, not less, security. Certain facts stand out. No guns are firing on the Sinai front. There is a disengagement of Israeli and Egyptian armed forces. But that disengagement could have been had—before 3,000 Israeli lives were spent in the October fighting. On the Syrian front the guns are still firing. And the Israeli Government is still committed to holding all the Syrian territory captured during the 1967 war. New thinking has stopped the fighting on the Egyptian front. Old thinking goes with continuing war on the Syrian front. A recent public opinion poll shows that 20 per cent of fighting age Israeli young people are thinking of emigrating.

It takes time for the yeast of new thought to change the mental chemistry of a whole people. Israel should not be rushed. Its people must think this through for themselves. It is well that Henry Kissinger went off on a well-earned holiday over the last fortnight. Those who watch from the outside can be patient and understanding. Israel has come a long way, already.

Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim, in a statement to the opening of the special General Assembly on raw materials, sees an enormous global emergency in the making unless nations can find ways of cooperating effectively to head it off.

"Stark, pervasive poverty," he says, afflicts two-thirds of the world, while never in recent decades have world food reserves been so frighteningly low. Other delegates warned of a growing threat of widespread famine in many world areas.

The Club of Rome, an international study group of concerned experts, issued a report last month noting a deadly geometric progression in prospect.

"World society is torn asunder by growing and intolerable disparities in living standards and opportunities," it said. "Hundreds of millions of men and women live marginal lives... Nature is pillaged and poisoned for the benefit of a few, to the detriment of many and of the yet unborn."

"The present crisis is much deeper than an oil or energy crisis or a food crisis. Its negative effects will have many and diverse repercussions throughout the entire world..."

This assembly session was called on the initiative of Algeria, to discuss raw materials. Poor nations have seen the lesson of a raw material, oil, used as a political weapon and even now the beginnings of new cartels are visible in such important areas as copper and bauxite, the raw material for aluminum.

In the background is a growing recognition that desperation in food-short areas can generate massive political explosions.

One of the architects of the U.S. Food for Peace program of the 1950s says now that even if it means becoming accustomed to such things as hamburgers made entirely of soybeans, Americans once again must face the need to share their riches, especially in food. "Because if we don't we are likely to pay the price in political upheavals and stability in much of the world."

Opening Remote Isles?

By JORGE RIBADENEIRA QUITO, Ecuador (UPI)

Naturalist Charles Darwin found some of the beginnings of life on them, marine biologist Jacques Cousteau has explored the sea around them. Princess Anne of Britain has marveled at their stark beauty.

Now, many Ecuadorians fear that success—namely tourism—will spoil the remote and strange Galapagos Islands.

"Uncontrolled tourism has endangered the rare species and the ecology of the islands," says Ecuadorian city planner Milton Barragan.

The Galapagos, a cluster of 14 main islands and numerous smaller ones covering about 23,000 square miles of the equatorial Pacific, lie roughly 600 miles off the coast of Ecuador. They are considered unique in the world in terms of the plant and animal life—giant tortoises, iguanas, flightless cormorants, penguins and seals.

The "Bewitched" Isles Discovered in 1535 by the Bishop of Panama, Fray Tomas de Berlanga who called them "the bewitched islands," the Galapagos were used mainly as pirate hideouts until they were claimed and renamed in 1832 by Ecuador which used them first for a penal colony. The most frequent visitors to the island during the last century were whaling ships, like author Herman Melville's in 1841 which took on fresh water and a supply of turtle meat.

The tortoises—Galapagos means giant turtles—were found by Darwin to weigh up to 500 pounds. Darwin arrived in September, 1835, with the British ship Beagle. As the ship's naturalist, he was fascinated with the Galapagos which he described as "infinitely strange, unlike any other islands in the world."

Darwin found the species differed from island to island. He counted 26 species of land birds, who were practically tame.

Not only scientists are drawn to the islands. Actor Gregory Peck made a film there recently and Princess Anne and Capt. Mark Phillips included a stop in the Galapagos on their honeymoon last year.

Controlled Tourism?

The Ecuadorian government hopes to attract more visitors to the Galapagos and asked Spain to provide technical advice on increasing the tourist trade.

"Tourism—along the lines of the Spanish model—would be the end of the enchantment of the Galapagos," Barragan objects.

Some Ecuadorians recommend that there should be a "quota" of tourists for the Galapagos. Too many people would overwhelm the tame penguins and seals.

Currently, 4,000 persons reside on the islands, but certain areas are wildlife preserves and colonization is not allowed.

"Bluntly, man is persona non grata in these islands whose principal value is their natural inhabitants—the birds, animals, and plants," Barragan argues. He has many supporters.

Most observers believe some kind of controlled tourism will be put into effect. Ecuador wants the tourist dollars but it also knows that longterm an overflooding of tourists would destroy the very uniqueness that makes the Galapagos Islands an attraction to travelers.

Strength For Today

BOOK LEARNING The philosopher Thomas Hobbes once said that if he read as many books as some people did he would be as stupid as they were.

In spite of all the manifest advantages of wide reading, books are certainly not the only source of knowledge. Some people come to rely so much upon books for their ideas that they miss entirely the wealth of educational experience that comes from other sources.

The British Dean Inge once said, "The absence of books compels thought to take the form of self-examination." Many people have never taken a really good look at themselves. They have never reflected on their life and its relation to the world. What they need to do is to face up frankly to the issues of life; to examine their failures in connection with their weaknesses. The wisest men have not necessarily been those who have read much, but those who have pondered what they read, whether it was much or little.

Development Commission Hearing Set April 23

By CAROL B. TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

A committee appointed by Pitt County Development Commission chairman Corey Stokes of Ayden will hold a public meeting Tuesday, Apr. 23 at the Ayden Town Hall to hear comments on charges that the commission has not devoted its energies to the county as a whole, but almost entirely to Greenville.

The committee is composed of Dr. Joe Pou of Greenville, chairman; R. P. Michaels of Bethel, Norman Wooten of Ballard's Crossroads, Jack Warren of Stokes, and R. E. Boyd of Winterville. It was appointed by Stokes, at the request of the County Commissioners.

The committee has already held one hearing, in Farmville Wednesday, Apr. 3. It was not publicized in advance.

During this meeting, Ed Davenport, a director and former president of the Farmville Economic Council, said he pointed out that Farmville had an Economic Council that had already had "some successes" when the referendum on whether to have a development commission was held in 1957. "We supported the plan, thinking it would be best for the whole area, though it was in effect bringing about double taxation for the people of Farmville since we would continue the local council. Farmville has never received a single bonafide prospect through the County Development Commission."

"This is not necessarily criticism of the present director but of the three directors and the Commission's policy," he explained.

Ed Warren, a candidate for County Commissioner, said, "I was present as an observer, because I have the interests of the whole county at heart."

Doug Moore, chairman of the Fountain Development Committee, said of the present director, "I have found Jim Horne very cooperative and willing to give whatever assistance is requested."

Farmville Economic Council President Jack Lewis who is also secretary of the County

Development Commission, pointed out that formation of the Commission was passed by a narrow margin of voters in 1957. "A tax of up to three cents per $100 assessed value was devoted to the project 'for the purpose of promoting the business and industrial development and general economic welfare of Pitt County.'"

"It is the unanimous consensus of the citizens here who have had any dealings with the Commission that the Pitt County Commission has been ineffectual in accomplishing the goals set forth in the act creating it, in Farmville. Visits from the three executive directors have been infrequent and entirely without beneficial results. The present director has visited this commission more than the other two combined, but with no known results," Lewis said.

He noted the accomplishments of the local Council and alluded to those of the Ayden Economic Council.

"Citizens of Farmville and this township have continued to pay their Development Commission tax, but have received no return whatever," he said.

He said the philosophy of the directors, past and present, has appeared to be that their business is not to prepare communities to receive prospects, but only to direct them to the one industrial park already laid out.

He quoted U.S. Industries representatives as saying the Pitt County Development Commission has nothing to do with its decisions to located in Pitt County.

The State and industry offices tell the town economic council directors, he said, that Horne has asked that all prospects for Pitt County be routed through him. "Until recently, we had, in effect, 100 per cent screening done for us. The one or two 'prospects' brought to our attention by the present director have been undesirable and not located anywhere," he said.

"The result of the procedures prior to Nov. 20, 1973, has been that not one single shred of industrial development has been accomplished outside the environs of the county seat by the Pitt Development Commission."

Lewis made recommendations for the Commission: "The Commission should adopt a radical change of position and direct that all efforts be made to visit, not just by social calls, but to develop sites, assist in acquiring water, sewer, roads and utility services for all areas in the county and particularly those without a sufficiency of job opportunities. The budget for the year of $35,000 plus, including $2,200 for entertainment and $2,000 for travel should allow ample opportunity for assistance to be rendered to all parts of the county.

"The second question facing this committee is: Has there been discrimination in the recruitment of industry to the county? If there has not been discrimination on an active program, then there has been either a callous neglect or a failure in ability. If there is to be no change in the position of the board, then the $35,000 in special taxes should be distributed to the citizens or its collections should be ceased."

Chairman Pou said his committee has made no decisions. "We will make none until the people of Ayden, Grifton, Grimesland and anyone else who wishes to speak are heard in Ayden," he said.

Development Commission director James R. Horne Jr. could not be reached for comment. His secretary said he is on vacation until next Wednesday.

See Big Growth In Food Stamps

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional staff study says rising food prices over the next two years may result in making one out of every four Americans eligible for government food stamps.

This would push program costs from the current $3 billion annually to a possible $10 billion, according to a staff study prepared for the Senate-House Economic Committee.

The study was released Sunday by Rep. Martha W. Griffiths, D-Mich., chairman of the joint committee's fiscal policy subcommittee.

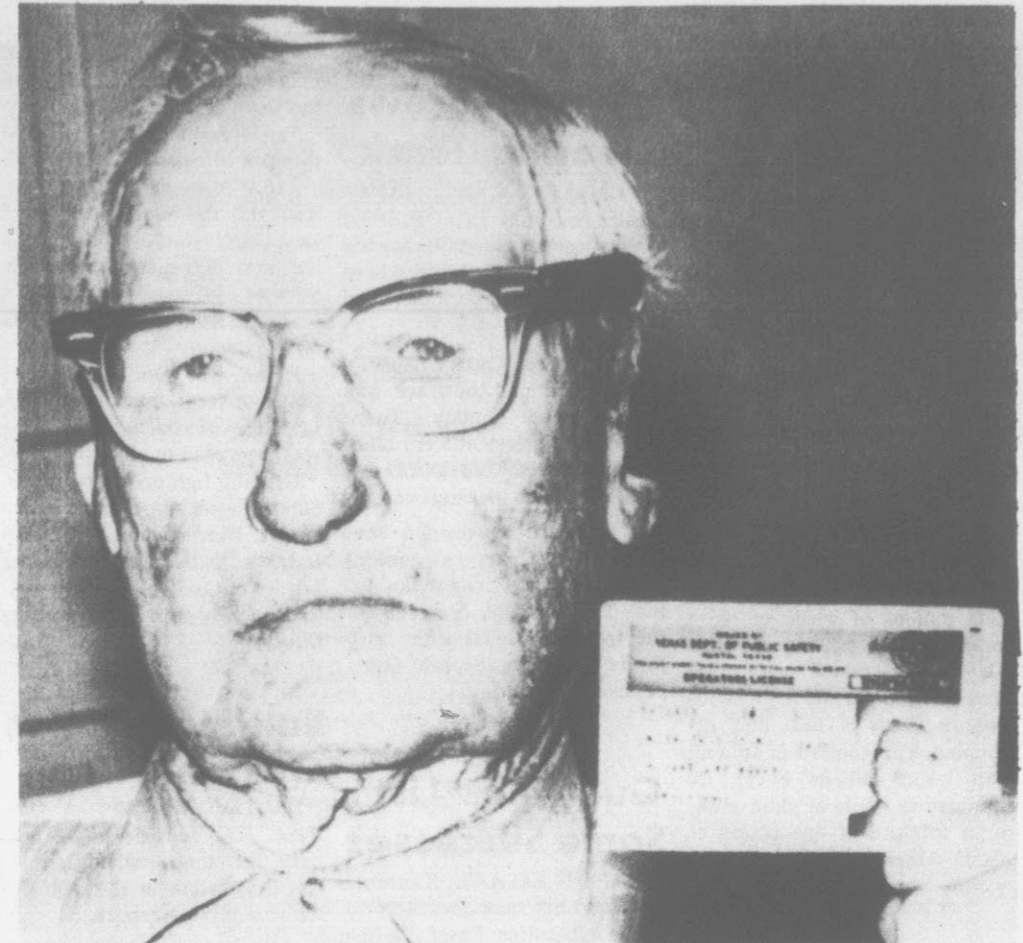

"Unless food prices stabilize before July 4, 1976, an estimated 60 million Americans — more than one in four — might be eligible for food stamps at some time during the nation's bicentennial year," Mrs. Griffiths said in a statement.

The food stamp program, which in recent years has been transformed into the country's only universal income supplement, in January 1974 served 13 million persons, one in every 16 million Americans.

However, the study noted, "its costs and caseload are expected to continue to rise dramatically, since the food stamp allotment and income eligibility levels will be adjusted upward semiannually for food price increases."

Food stamp costs to recipients are adjusted down according to income. Currently, a male-headed family of four without any income can receive an allotment of $142 a month in food stamps for free.

Flying Saucer On 'Imperfect Stamp'

BELLEFONTAINE, Ohio (AP) — A flying saucer hovers over the U.S. Capitol and Mayor William S. Meyer of Bellefontaine owns it.

It's a commemorative 8-cent stamp honoring the late President Lyndon B. Johnson, one of a sheet of 32 Meyer bought from a friend.

One stamp has a flaw that appears to be a flying saucer hovering over the Capitol in the lower corner. It shows above the right shoulder of the late president.

Postmaster C. H. Hertenstein believes it could be the only one like it of the 150 million Johnson commemoratives printed. Meyer said he checked persons who bought similar sheets and could find none with the same defect.

Hertenstein, also, did some checking among a packet of 4,000 similar stamps and found none with the defective marking.

Meyer, a former stamp collector, said he bought the sheet of stamps from Donald Griest, an associate in the local American Red Cross chapter. Meyer noticed the imperfection almost immediately and offered to return the stamps. Griest, he said, didn't want them back.

"I felt bad about taking it," said the mayor.

Meyer has taken the stamp to several stamp shows and he said collectors seemed interested. The mayor himself stopped collecting about 15 years ago, but keeps an eye out for imperfects.

"I still check stamps for ones like these," he said. "I have about a dozen defective ones."

He has no idea what caused the imperfection. Some collectors have theorized the unidentified flying object marking probably came during the color processing. Meyer wonders if something fell on the printing presses.

"I may sell it someday," said Meyer. "But I'm in no hurry. I kind of like it."

streaking."

"You haven't mentioned this," I said, "but is it possible that one of the reasons streaking failed was that no one was turned on by seeing a mass of flesh in the streets?"

"I've thought about that a lot," Stanley said.

"It's true that when you've seen one streaker you've seen them all. Perhaps I could have kept the thing going a lot longer if I had programmed it better. Each week we could have streaked with one less piece of clothing, like a striptease. At the end the boys would have been in their shorts and the girls in bras and panties. Then the final week we would have had the big unveiling that would have given Cronkite something to talk about. Our mistake was showing the landing on the moon before the takeoff from Cape Canaveral."

"So it's all over Stanley?"

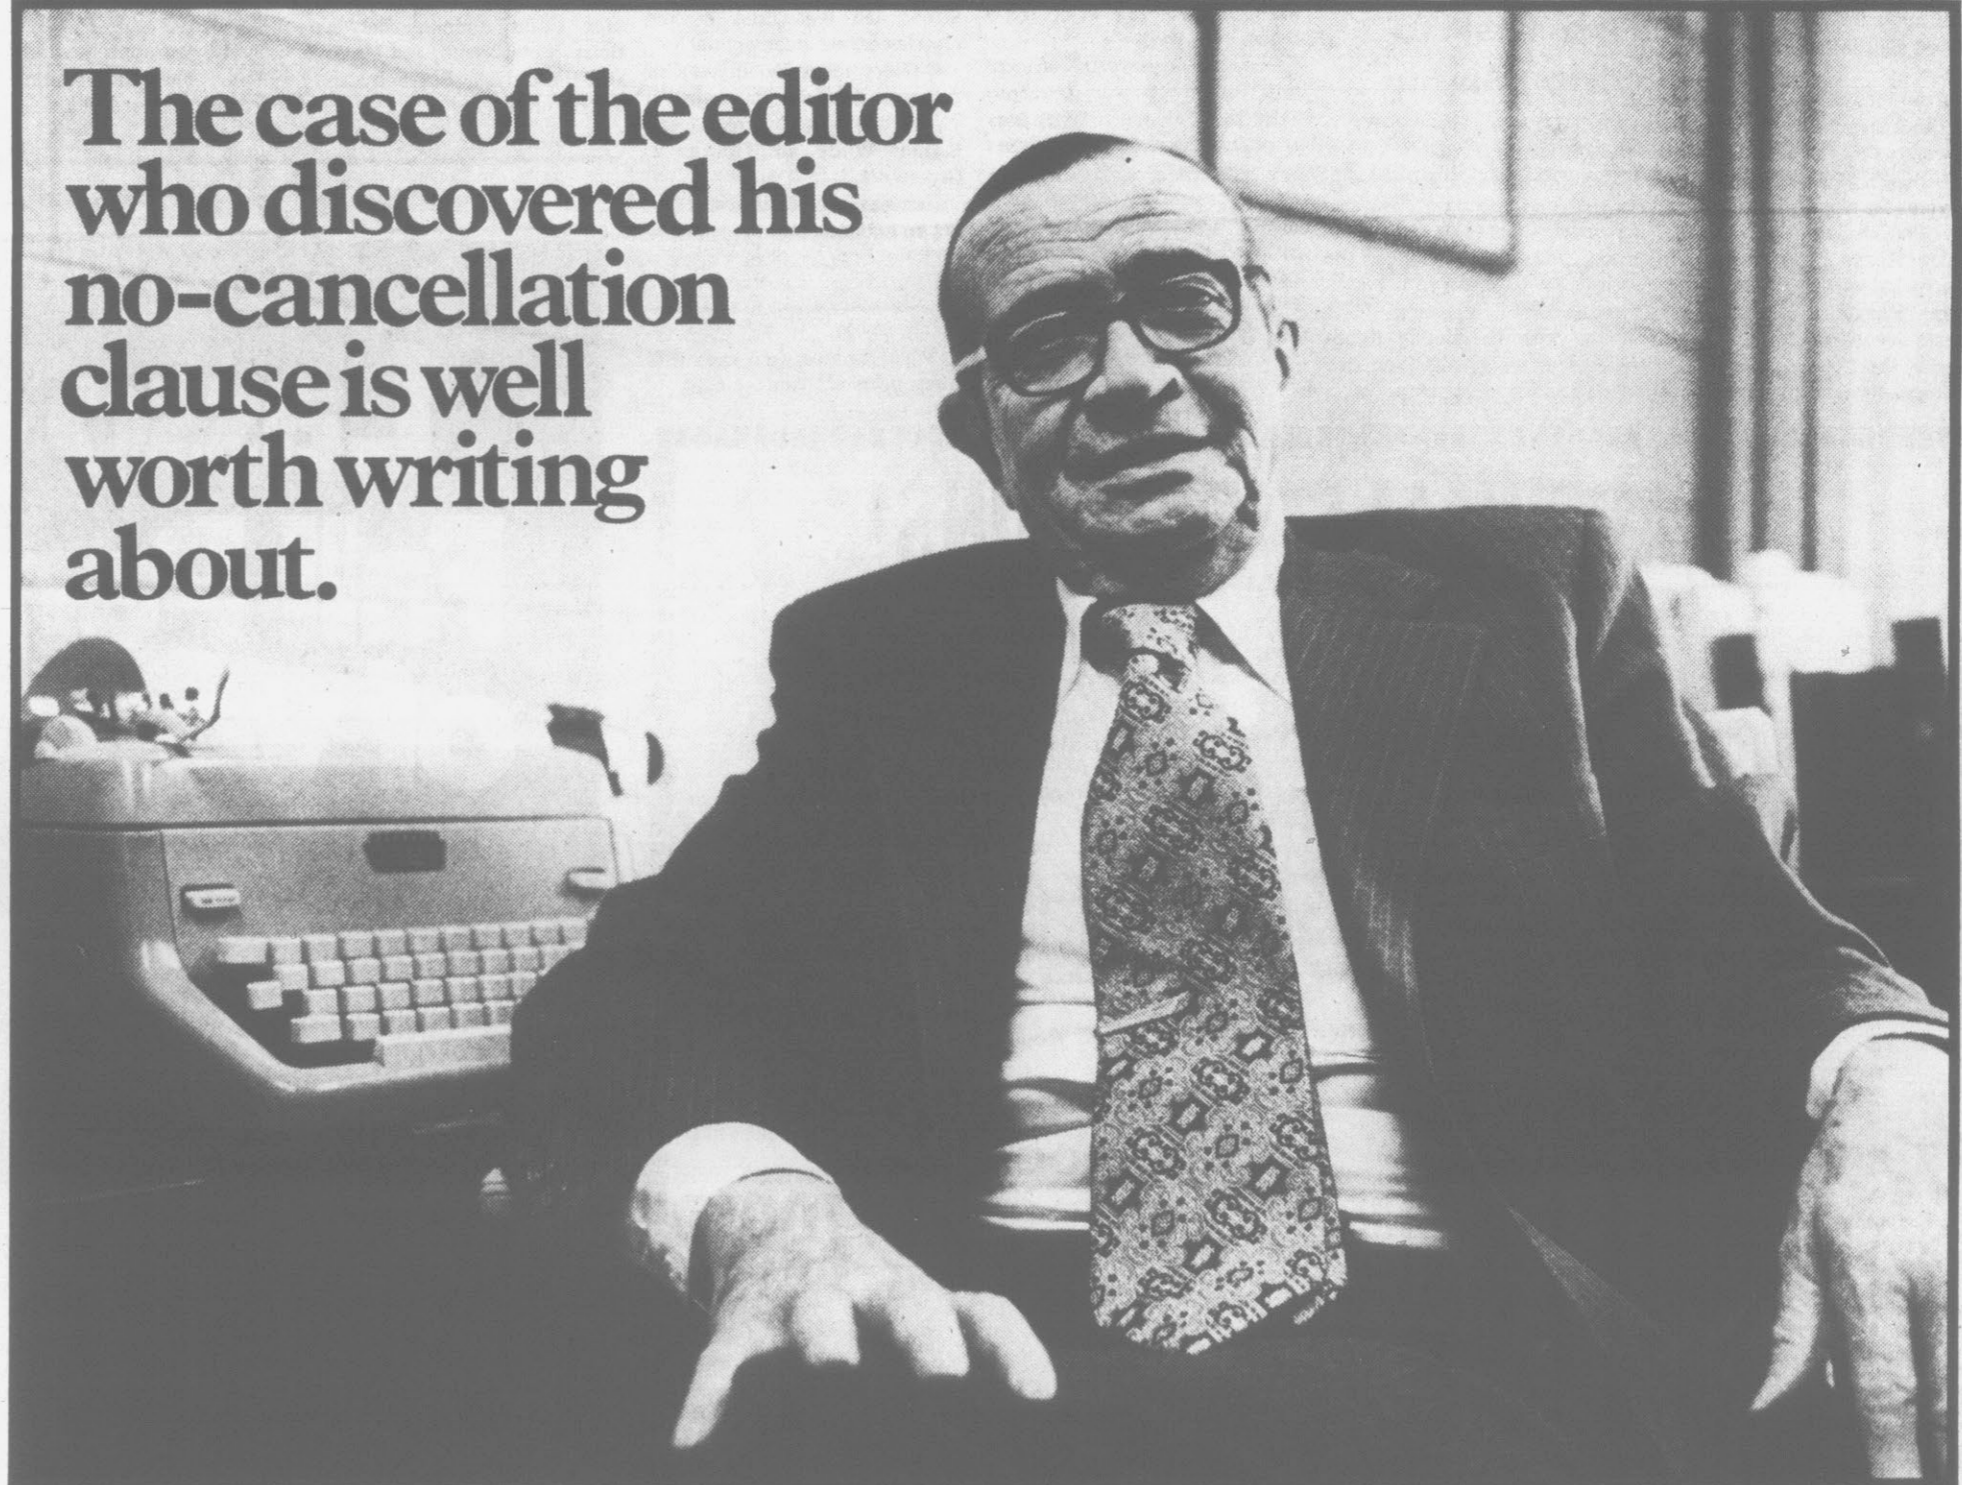

"Yup. We tried to revive it by having someone streak on television at the Academy Awards, but it was a big nothing. Sixty million people just sat there and yawned. When I saw that, I decided to hang up my socks. A man has to know when he's through."

The case of the editor who discovered his no-cancellation clause is well worth writing about.

W. Stanley Moore, editor of the News Herald in Morganton, used to think major illness only happened to "other people." When he had his appendix out in 1939, he thought that would be about the most serious thing ever to happen to him.

Last year his luck changed. On March 25 he went into the hospital to have a tumor of the colon removed—and ended up staying for 97 days. It took five separate operations.

Finally, he recovered, returned to work—and three months later was back again. With acute hepatitis! That visit lasted 48 days.

The one good thing about it all was that Stanley Moore had Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage. And, like all Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans, his is not cancellable for illness. So even after the huge claim for his five operations, he had no worries when he got hepatitis. No financial worries, that is.

The Editor of the Morganton News Herald is back on the job now. And he's been writing some articles in his paper about his hospital stays. They're articles that everyone should read, especially those who think illness happens only to "other people."

Stanley Moore was prudent when he bought his Blue Cross and Blue Shield plan over 20 years ago. His claim for the surgical stay alone was over $27,000. But just as important as the amounts we pay, is the fact that Blue Cross and Blue Shield coverage can't be cancelled for illness.

Whether your plan is on a group or non-group basis, whether it covers one person or a whole family, your protection is always there when you need it. Blue Cross and Blue Shield of North Carolina—a good influence on everybody's health.

No cancellation for illness. Another strong case for Blue Cross and Blue Shield security.

Farm Tips

By Dr. J. W. Pou
Agricultural Specialist
Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., N.A.

Prices of soybeans, corn and other grains may find them below harvest prices of a year ago.

This is the general picture for the crops that provided much of the farm market pyrotechnics last year—a year that saw soybean, corn and wheat prices reach levels that had never before been imagined.

Prices could drop substantially in some cases and still be strong compared to any year except the last one.

Indications point to a smaller U.S. soybean crop in 1974, with Midwest farmers planting more acreage to corn and delta growers shifting some bean acreage back to cotton.

North Carolina State University extension economists suggest that this should result in a total output about equal to consumption. They add that prices for the 1974 soybean crop are expected to average slightly below those in 1973, due to an increase in world supplies of oilseeds and fish meal.

The average harvest price for '73 beans in North Carolina was around $5 per bushel—60 to 70 percent above the previous year. The weakness in prices that could come later in the year is tied closely to how world supplies of oil and protein shape up.

The corn outlook has some similar features. Like soybeans, the crop last year was a record as were prices. Total utilization is expected to exceed production, leaving a carryover of 15 percent below a year ago. Supply is the tightest in history.

The N. C. State University economists say the demand for corn is expected to stay "very strong" through the remainder of the 1973-74 crop year.

Planting may increase 5 to 10 percent as a result of changes in the feed grain program. With favorable weather, a record crop of well over 6 billion bushels could result. This could result in lower prices at harvest time.

Wheat supplies are short, at least until mid-year harvest begins. There is virtually zero carryover of the type of wheat grown in North Carolina—soft red winter. Stocks of all wheat by June probably will be the lowest since World War II.

Very strong prices are expected through the first half of the year. They may average more than twice those of the same period a year ago. The price pattern will depend largely upon the size of the world grain crops and the new wheat crop. Prices may be below record levels of the last six months in the second half of 1974.

Older Folks Stay Away From Event

UNION GROVE, N.C. (AP)—It was billed as an Old Time Fiddlers Convention. But the Hell's Angels, vegetarian banquet and marijuana smoking gave the four-day event the flavor of a 1960s rock festival.

Some 90,000 persons, most under 30, turned out Saturday for the final day of the event, held each Easter for the last 51 years. A Stuart, Va., postal worker, Buddy Pendleton, was named world champion fiddler.

Some 250 groups with names like Henry and the Street Fiddlers provided the music. The top 50 competed Saturday night for prizes.

"Older folks aren't here because this is outdoors, it's four days long and old people just can't cut the mustard on a lay-out like this," said promoter J. P. VanHoy, 56. The convention was held on VanHoy's 300 acre farm.

Although the music was that of mountain people of generations past, the crowd was strictly modern. Outside the tent, members of the Hare Krishna sect distributed incense sticks and held a free vegetarian banquet.

Hell's Angels strutted about in a roped off area, and college students camped in tents and trailers.

VanHoy, whose father organized the first convention to raise money for the local school, said the turnout showed that country and blue grass music have captured the youth.

"We've been on cloud nine too long," VanHoy said. "We're going back to basic realities and this music is part of that movement."

The Iredell County Sheriff's Department said nearly 200 persons were arrested during the four days, mostly for drug violations. Earlier in the week, officials cleared out the county jail in anticipation. The overflow was sent to jails in nearby counties.

Officers said several persons were treated for drug overdoses.

Despite the arrests, officers said the group was peaceful. "The most violent activity was a couple of frisbee games," one observer said.

Officers sealed off the area briefly Saturday after the crowd swelled to more than 70,000 and rain drenched the field. However after the skies cleared, authorities allowed more visitors to enter the grounds and number grew to

Farm Scene

By HENRY C. RIDDICK

It is important that farmers start out with a good healthy plant in their tobacco crop. In order to begin with a good plant, farmers will need to control diseases from the very beginning, especially tobacco mosaic.

Tobacco mosaic is one of our oldest known diseases. It is caused by a highly contagious virus. The virus is spread by contact and has been known to live in cured and stored tobacco for 50 years. Mosaic often originates in the plant bed and is caused by the mosaic virus in manufactured tobacco coming in contact with the young tobacco seedlings. Once the infested plant is transplanted in the field, it is easy to spread the disease to other plants by contact. Losses caused by this disease vary to some extent between seasons, but little progress has been made in reducing losses during the past 25 years.

Considerable research has been done on the use of plain, ordinary milk for the control of mosaic of tobacco. It has been found that the use of milk in any form at transplanting time will greatly reduce losses. Two types of treatment have been used: (1) spraying—this consists of spraying the plant bed 24 hours before pulling the plants with five gallons of whole or skim milk, or five pounds of dried skim milk mixed with five gallons of water, applied to 100 square yards of bed; and (2) dipping. This consists of dipping the hands about every 20 minutes in whole or skim milk, or a mixture of one pound of dried skim milk to one gallon of water. The hands are dripping during pulling and transplanting in the field. If mosaic has been a serious problem on your farm in the past, it would probably be a good idea for you to try the milk treatment on your farm this year to help prevent the losses caused by mosaic.

Growers are also urged to be careful about fertilizer placement in the tobacco field during this transplanting period. Fertilizer should be placed at least five inches from the transplant roots to avoid fertilizer injury.

Railroad Crews Clearing Track

LUMBERTON, N.C. (AP)—Seaboard Coast Line Railroad crews worked Sunday clearing the tracks near here where some 20 freight cars derailed Saturday.

The Robeson County Sheriff's Department said the track was still blocked Sunday. There were no injuries, officers said, and the cause of the derailment was still under investigation.

A Seaboard spokesman said the train was spiking general cargo to Acme near Wilmington. The accident occurred as the train was leaving the city limits traveling about 20 miles per hour, he said.

Guerrillas List Some Successes

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanzania (AP)—Frelimo, the Mozambique Liberation Front, claims that it killed more than 25 Portuguese soldiers and derailed several trains in central Mozambique during January and February. A communique said Frelimo guerrillas attacked four military centers in Manica Sofala province and several trains running between Beira, on the coast, and Malawi and the Cabora Bassa hydroelectric project.

Damage was set at $300 to the Bryan auto and $500 to the Wade vehicle.

No Charges In Sunday Accident

No charges were reported following investigation of a 2:50 p.m. Sunday mishap on 14th Street 150 feet East of the Charles Street intersection.

Officers identified drivers of the cars involved as Benjamin Wayne Bryan of Stokes and Ralph Wade of Route 2, Greenville.

Damage was set at $300 to the Bryan auto and $500 to the Wade vehicle.

Takes Over Defense Role

By The Associated Press Israeli and Syrian gunners traded artillery and tank fire on the Golan Heights war front today after a weekend of the hardest fighting since the October war.

The Israeli military command said shelling resumed this morning along the northern sector of the 300-square-mile bulge captured by Israel during the October fighting.

The announcement made no mention of casualties. The command also announced the appointment of Brig. Gen. Rafael Eytan, who led Israel's thrust into Syria in October, to command Israel's northern front with both Syria and Lebanon.

Eytan, who was promoted to major general, takes over from Lt. Gen. Mordechai Gur, who was promoted to chief of staff.

Israeli fighter-bombers on Sunday attacked Syrian forces on Mt. Hermon and the Golan Heights while below them the armies of the two countries battled fiercely with tanks and artillery.

Baltimore Holds Gastonia Man

BALTIMORE (AP)—A Gastonia, N.C. man is being held here pending extradition to North Carolina in the death of his wife, police report.

According to police, Howard William Davis, 53, was arrested here Friday after he allegedly telephoned lawmen in Gastonia and told them he had shot his wife.

Gastonia officers went to the Davis home and discovered his wife's body.

Davis was apprehended after North Carolina authorities alerted Baltimore police.

bionese Liberation Army are trying to prove they are not FBI informers and have gone underground to avoid being "shot on sight."

SLA "death warrants" for Colston Westbrook, Chris Thompson and Robyn Steiner were included in the last communique from the group that claimed responsibility for kidnapping newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4.

SLA Field Marshal General Cinque issued the execution orders in the April 3 message, which also included Miss Hearst's declaration that she had joined her terrorist kidnappers and renounced her family.

The most frequent communication from the three targets has been from Westbrook, 35, a teaching assistant at University of California at Berkeley, whose greetings are played by automatic equipment for those who telephone his Berkeley home. The messages change frequently.

"Thanks for the telephone calls and support," said Westbrook's latest message Sunday. "I hope you have an enjoyable Easter."

Westbrook, who said he earlier had gone East but was back in the San Francisco Bay area, warned he would arm himself if the SLA did not listen to reason. He asked for a lie detector test or a trial with state prison inmates as jurors to clear his name.

Westbrook apparently came in contact with SLA members at Vacaville Medical Facility where he helped found a black cultural association for inmates.

Miss Steiner, 20, identified as a former girl friend of alleged SLA member Russell Little, has been in hiding since the communique, her attorney Philip Carlton said over the weekend. Carlton said he has pleaded with the terrorists to communicate with him.

Little is imprisoned on murder charges in the slaying of Oakland Schools superintendent Marcus Foster last fall.

Thompson, 35, former manager of a Berkeley food stand, has moved out of his apartment but is still in the area, his lawyer, Gordon Reynolds, said.

Lasso gets the Fall Panicum out of your peanuts.

Lasso controls fall panicum, a grass problem that seems to be getting out of hand on a lot of southern farms. In fact, there are very few herbicides that do get fall panicum, and that's one reason why it has been spreading so rapidly.

But fall panicum isn't the only problem Lasso gets out of your peanuts. Lasso controls crabgrass, a close second in importance. Also pigweed. Lasso even reduces competitution from yellow nutsedge, when used at the higher recommended rate.

You can spray Lasso liquid, or put down Lasso granules behind your planting rig. It's up to you.

And if you happen to grow corn or soybeans in addition to peanuts, Lasso is the only herbicide around that'll work on all three crops.

Carryover? With Lasso there just isn't any. You can use Lasso and never have to worry about carryover damage.

So plan now to go with Lasso in your peanuts. You'll get the fall panicum out and more peanuts in.

Lasso. It works hard for peanuts.

Ancient Skeletons Tell Much Of Long-Ago Living

BY ROBERT MUSEL.
LONDON (UPI) — Dr. Calvin Webb says that some of the fun began going out of sex about 12,000 years ago.

Webb is a paleopathologist—an expert on ancient bones—and the saying that dead men tell no tales does not apply in his case. Skeletons of the Stone Age or of the Saxons of medieval Britain practically blabber all they know to him.

And one of the things he has read in the record of long ago burials is that syphilis (and tuberculosis) make an ever increasing appearance from 10,000 B.C. on.

A paleopathologist is a sort of detective, and where Dr. Webb is concerned there is more than a passing resemblance to the instant deduction of Sherlock Holmes. In a recent Yorkshire television program he gave an example of what he could learn from a 12th century skeleton found at Ipswich.

How Ancient Warrior Died
The skeleton, he said firmly, was that of a cavalryman cut down from his horse and hacked to death by a foot soldier.

By the time he got through reading the clues in the bones millions of Britons were ready to repeat Sherlock Holmes immortal phrase, "Elementary, my dear Watson."

"He was a horseman," said Dr. Webb showing a leg bone with a characteristic bone change often seen in people who ride a lot. The foot soldier hacked him across the thigh with a heavy cutlass—the wound is visible—then rammed the sword through his pelvis.

"He fell from the horse," Webb said, "and raised his arm over his head to protect himself."

UNDERGROUND SUNRISE
STANTON, Mo. (AP) — Easter Sunrise Services have been held at Meramec Caverns on U.S. 66 here for 20 years. The admission is free. Expenses are paid by cave owner Lester B. Dill.

Pointing to the appropriate bones Webb went on: "Another slash went through his wrist. The next blow on the head smashed him to the ground. And as he lay there he received the coup de grace through the ribs."

Saxon Slavery
Webb has been examining a 12th century burial ground in the city of York where there may be as many as 1,900 bodies. Among them he found the skull of a small Negro female — confirmation that Saxon merchants traveled to Africa and brought back such as "this poor little slave girl." In a flintstone mine shaft used by early man 3,900 years ago at Grimes Graves in Norfolk Webb displayed part of a spine with a flint arrowhead still stuck in it.

"It penetrated the belly, the peritoneal cavity and the sacrum," he said, to emphasize his point that weapons of war were very deadly even then.

Paleopathologists can build up a picture of what people were like, what they ate, the clothes they wore, how they treated their teeth—some people used them as tools—the weapons they used and the medicine they practiced.

He admires the skull operations performed by neolithic man with pieces of flint as scrapers and no anesthetics. He displayed skulls with holes cut in them—to let evil spirits out—showing the operations were clean and not infected.

For a man familiar with all strata of human life as it has survived in skeletons Dr. Webb says if he had his choice he would have lived in the Stone Age, the age of the breakthrough into civilization and "a most exciting time to live."

More than 15 million Model T. Fords were sold between 1908 and 1927.

Birdie On 17 Lifts Player To Masters Win

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Gary

Player was striding down the 17th fairway at the Augusta National Golf Club, a white cap pulled low over his eyes, and was pondering his second shot to a hard, fast green that had been his nemesis for nearly two decades. "I haven't hit this green six times in the 18 years I've been playing here," he said to his caddie, Eddie McCoy. "But it won for me in 1961 and it's going to win for us again."

The little South African, dressed in black from neck to shoes took a deliberate stance and let fly with a nine-iron.

The ball described a beautiful arc and plopped to within six inches of the pin—a virtual tapin for a birdie three.

That one dramatic shot broke the logjam among four leaders Sunday and decided the 38th Masters Tournament, Player winning it at 10 under par-two strokes ahead of Dave Stockton and Tom Weiskopf.

Player, 37, from far off Johannesburg, repeated a victory he first scored in 1961—a record 13-year gap—and fixed his sights on new horizons.

"This gives me the first leg on the 'Grand Slam,'" Player said, referring to the four major championships—U.S. and British Opens, the PGA and Masters—which no man has ever won in a single year.

"At least, I am the only man with a chance this year to win it."

It is the last major goal also of Jack Nicklaus, holder of a record 14 major championships who made a spectacular comeback behind a stab at a fifth Masters' crown with an eagle at the par-five 13th, only to falter with bogeys at the 14th and 16th.

At one stage in the exciting Easter Sunday showdown, Big Jack, Player and Weiskopf were tied for the lead with Stockton only a stroke behind and pressure building from such sources as Bobby Nichols, Frank Beard, Jim Colbert, Phil Rodgers and Dave Hill.

Player finished with a 278, the first prize of $35,000 and the traditional green Masters jacket, which was a couple of sizes too big.

Weiskopf and Stockton tied at 280. Nicklaus tied for third at 281 with Irwin and Colbert. Nichols and Rodgers were at 282 and a happy Englishman, Maurice Bembridge, shot a record-tying 64 to finish at 283 with Hubert Green.

Arnold Palmer, a four-time winner seeking to recapture some of his old glories, shot his best round in the Masters since 1962 with a 67 but finished at 284.

Player planned to fly out immediately with his wife, Vivienne, and five of their six children, for the Spanish Open, starting Wednesday.

But his main sights will be on the U.S. Open in June at Winged Foot in Mamaroneck, N.Y.

Player already has two British Opens 1959, 1968, two America PGAs 1962, 1972, two Masters 1961, 1974 and one U.S. Open 1965. Nicklaus' 14 major crowns include at least three of everything except the British Open.

"I have won more major championships than any other foreign player who ever lived," Player said. "I think I have moved ahead of James Braid, who won six British Opens."

Player forgot Harry Vardon, who won six British Opens besides the U.S. Open in 1900. "I have traveled more, practiced more and made more sacrifices than any golfer I know," the little South African insisted. "I am gratified that this has been another of my rewards."

Player works by the hours on the practice tee, refining his skills. The game has not produced a more deliberate workman.

"They always have said that it takes a long hitter to win here at Augusta," he said. "I disagree. I think placement of the iron shots is more important. You don't have to brutalize this course to win. You can win by good management."

Player is a mighty mite by most standards, standing only 5 feet, 8 inches and weighing 150 pounds. He has powerful forearms and his arms are exceptionally long, falling almost to his knees.

At 15, he once broke his neck jumping into a compost pit in Johannesburg. He turned pro at 17 and was an almost immediate sensation. He made his American debut in the U.S. Open at Tulsa, Okla., in 1958.

He always has had a fetish for physical conditioning and health foods. Once he was on a banana kick and had bananas by the stalks flown to every tournament. Then he shifted to raisins. When he lost his raisin sponsorship, he said, "Raisins rot your teeth."

Once in the World Cup matches in Madrid, he hurt himself doing hand stands in the bath tub. Because of his country's apartheid policies, he was attacked by racial demonstrators in the PGA in 1969 at Dayton, Ohio, where he finished second to Ray Floyd.

Player has constantly sought to better relations with blacks in this country. He invited Lee Elder to play in South Africa. He tipped his caddie here this week $3,500 and also gave the club bag-toter a new set of golf clubs and a complete wardrobe.

Deeply religious, a convert of evangelist Billy Graham, Player said once after he beat Nicklaus twice in the World Match Play Tournament in London, Graham had told him: "Remember you can do anything through Jesus Christ, who strengtheneth me."

"I wrote that on my scorecard before I went for the final round Sunday," Player said.

In January 1973, Player underwent serious operations for bladder trouble and for removal of a cyst on his left leg.

"I could hardly walk afterward," he said. "I was out of action for four months and it took me a long time to regain my strength. I no longer do the exercises I once did, but I feel fine."

Player wears black because he says it gives him a feeling of strength.

While NL Gets Bees, AL, Horton Get Bird

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Major league baseball found out about the birds and the bees Sunday.

The American League got the bird while the National League got the bees.

A swarm of bees in San Diego took over the home plate area in San Diego, briefly delaying the Padres' game against San Francisco—but that's another story.

The bird was a victim of a "fowl" ball hit by Detroit's Willie Horton. And the Tigers were the victims of a couple of balls hit very fair... and very far... by Boston's Carl Yastrzemski, carrying the Red Sox to a 7-5 triumph.

In other American League games, Minnesota mauled Kansas City 8-0 and California trimmed Chicago 6-3 and, in a pair of doubleheaders, Oakland topped Texas 4-2, then the Rangers rebounded 10-2 in the nightcap, and the New York Yankees whipped Cleveland 9-5 before the Indians took the second game 9-6. Baltimore's game at Milwaukee was rained out.

Red Sox 7, Tigers 5

The ball, hit by Horton struck and killed a pigeon passing over old Fenway Park, landed only a few feet in front of home plate.

The pop by Horton in the ninth inning hit the pigeon, which fell dead immediately in front of home plate.

"It scared the hell outa me," said Boston catcher Bob Mon-gomery. "I jumped a foot in the air—and Willie jumped even higher."

What killed the Tigers was Yaz' bat. He drove in two runs in the first inning with a booming double and later scored on Dwight Evans' home run.

Then Yaz crashed a homer of his own, a third-inning shot that proved to be the winning run. Ed Brinkman drove in three of Detroit's runs.

Twins 8, Royals 0
Bob Darwin continued his torrid hitting with a grand-slam homer, a triple and two singles to lead Minnesota's assault against Kansas City—but the Twins were more concerned about pitcher Bert Blyleven.

The right-hander held the Royals to six hits before leaving the game in the eighth inning with a slight muscle strain.

"Without Bert we're in trouble," Darwin said. And Manager Frank Quilici added: "He's the gun, baby."

But Blyleven downplayed his arm problem. "It's just a knot. It feels good now," he said after the game.

Angels 6, White Sox 3

Frank Robinson drove in a pair of runs with a homer—the 555th of his career—and a single and Dick Selma slammed the door on Chicago to lead the Angels, leaders in the West, to their sixth victory in eight games and keep the White Sox in the cellar with their sixth loss in seven.

Selma replaced Frank Tanana on in the seventh inning with the bases loaded and none out, got pinch-hitter Carlos May to hit into a force play at the plate and then got Dick Allen to ground into a doubleplay.

A's 4-2, Rangers 2-10

Reggie Jackson cracked two home runs, the second one a three-run eighth-inning job, to boost Oakland past the Rangers. He's hit five homers this year, all against Texas.

In the second game, though, it was Dave Nelson who feasted. He drove in six runs with a three-run homer, a two-run single and a sacrifice fly, to bring the Ferguson Jenkins and the Rangers a twinbill split.

Yanks 9-6, Indians 5-9

The Yankees, making like the Bronx Bombers of old, won the opener on six homers, including two by Graig Nettles and one each by Thurman Munson, Ron Blomberg, Bobby Murcer and Mike Hegan.

'You Better Believe, There's More'-Weiskopf

By JACK SIMMS
AP Sports Writer

AUGUSTA, Ga. AP—Tom Weiskopf left town today, disappointed over not winning his first Masters Golf Tournament, but with a message for all to hear: The tall, young bomber has regained his form. The 31-year-old, 6-foot-3 British Open champion and winner of six other events last year, came into the Masters as a huge question mark.

His performance here, however, erased it and established him again as one of the top contenders for the throne held by Jack Nicklaus.

This goliath of golf in 1973 still is winless in 1974, perhaps because of a mysterious ailment that plagued him for months. "My game was not where I wanted it when I came into the Masters because of my hand injury," he said. "But I hadn't had any pain in three weeks and was confident I again could play well."

"I went to so many doctors it confused me, but the problem was inflamed ligaments in the left wrist. It was painful and it was difficult to play."

"It didn't bother me at all in the four rounds here. If I had been putting I would have won. I only made one putt of over ten feet in four days."

Although he played 72 holes in eight strokes under par, he finished in a tie for second with Dave Stockton, two strokes behind the winner, diminutive Gary Player of South Africa.

"I never had a great putting tournament at Augusta and I'm a very good putter," he said. "I didn't have a round in under 32 putts. The reason I didn't win was the way I played the back nine on the last round."

Weiskopf's putts for the four rounds were 35-34-33-32.

He moved into a tie with Player for the lead with three holes remaining but met his Waterloo on the par-three 16th. "I just hit a bad shot," he said,

"and that's where I lost the tournament."

Weiskopf went into the water on that hole, dropped out and wound up with a tough double-bogey five.

The Massillon, Ohio, native won four tournaments on the regular United States tour, the World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio, the British Open and the South America PGA Championship and amassed $245,463 in earnings during 1973. With the $21,250 he received at Augusta, he has won $44,139 this year.

But as he says, "You better believe, there's more to come."

NOT EVEN CLOSE—New York Mets catcher Ron Hodges is all set to tag out Philadelphia's Mike Schmidt (20) as he begins to slide into home during the 10th inning of the first game of a twinbill at New York's Shea Stadium Sunday. Home plate umpire

Terry Tata, far right, is ready to call the play. Schmidt failed to score, but his Phillies won the opener in the next inning, 2-1. The Mets also lost the second game of the doubleheader, 5-3. (AP Wirephoto)

New York Is Hoping For Playoff Repeat

By DAVE O'HARA
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON AP—The New York Knicks are hoping that history repeats, but with captain John Havlicek healthy and in top form, the Boston Celtics figure to be even tougher this year in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference playoff final.

The Celtics got off to a quick start in the best-of-seven series, whipping the Knicks 113-88 Sunday with a tough defense and hot shooting. The teams will play Game 2 in New York Tuesday night.

The series opener was virtually a replay of the first game between the same clubs last year, the Celtics drubbing the Knicks 134-108. However, the Knicks rebounded in New York 129-96 in the second game and went on to win the series and the NBA championship.

Havlicek, a superstar, suffered a shoulder injury in the third game last year and the Celtics were unable to compensate. The shoulder mended during the off-season and the 12-year pro from Ohio State is flying.

Dividing his time between a forward position and the back court, Havlicek scored 25 points, collected 12 assists and grabbed four rebounds before being removed with 9:15 left and the Celtics in command with a 93-64 lead.

"Havlicek did it all," said New York star Walt Frazier.

"He's always moving, and can make shots on the run. You can get the best position on him and he still gets the ball off. You can't relax on him. We're going to have to stop the Celtics from running. We didn't today."

The winner of the Boston-New York series will face the winner of the Milwaukee-Chicago Western Conference series for the NBA title. The Bucks and Bulls play the first game of their best-of-seven set Tuesday night at Milwaukee.

The American Basketball Association also is into its league semifinals. In the East Division, the New York Nets, leading Kentucky 1-0, meet the Colonels tonight in Game 2 at Uniondale, N.Y., and in the West, the Utah Stars, with a 1-0 advantage over Indiana, face the Pacers again tonight at Salt Lake City.

The Celtics hit 44 of 85 shots for a lopsided victory before a crowd of 14,101 and a national television audience. New York hit on only 34 of 103 field goal attempts, a poor 33 per cent.

Havlicek broke a 23-23 tie early in the second period and the Celtics went on to continually break through New York's defense, outscoring the Knicks 18-4 in a six-minute stretch to pull away for good.

In the NBA West, Chicago, which never had advanced past the opening round of the playoffs in six previous attempts, barely made it this time, holding off the Detroit Pistons 96-94 Saturday in the final game of their brawling, best-of-seven series. The Bulls built an early 19-point lead, then withstood a furious Detroit rally.

Chet Walker paced the Bulls with 26 points.

Meanwhile, Milwaukee has been resting since eliminating Los Angeles in five games on Apr. 7.

In the ABA, the Nets opened the East Division final Saturday night with a 119-106 thrashing of Kentucky. Julius Erving paced the Nets with 35 points and rookie Larry Kenon added 20 points and a game-high 15 rebounds, but it was the strong defensive job by New York's Billy Paulz on the Colonels' 7-foot-2 Artis Gilmore that proved vital.

The New York Yankees lead in World Series victories with 20. They have lost nine times.

Padres Have New Look- Designated Exterminator

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

The San Diego Padres can wait until the National League approves the designated hitter rule, but they'll keep a designated exterminator on hand—just in case bees decide they like the surroundings in San Diego Stadium.

The bees put up a tenacious struggle to keep baseball from being played Sunday.

They swarmed around the home plate area before the game started, preventing the Padres and San Francisco Giants from taking batting practice and delaying the start of the game for 26 minutes until the exterminator made his appearance.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Pittsburgh Pirates topped the St. Louis Cardinals 8-4 in the first game of a twin-bill but lost the second game 6-5; the Philadelphia Phillies swept the New York Mets 2-1 and 5-3 in a doubleheader; and the Los Angeles Dodgers drubbed the Houston Astros 7-2.

The Cincinnati at Atlanta and Montreal at Chicago games were postponed by rain, with no makeup dates announced.

"I don't know what attracted them. I've never seen anything like this in baseball before," said John McNamara, manager of the embarrassed Padres.

Some of the buzzing bees just wouldn't leave and the spray can made an appearance after nearly every half-inning.

The Padres won the game, by the way. Bobby Tolan's double scored Clarence Gaston to cap a five-run San Diego eighth inning and bring about a 6-5 victory.

Gary Matthews had put San Francisco in front 5-1 with a three-run homer in the seventh inning. But San Diego, with its new mascots, rallied to win.

Pirates 8-5, Cards 4-6
Rennie Stennett doubled for two runs in a five-run fourth inning which carried the Pirates to victory in the first game, but made a throwing error that resulted in two third-inning runs and a loss in the nightcap.

It was the first victory after six losses for the Pirates.

Willie Stargell hit a two-run homer for Pittsburgh in the first game and Stennett homered in the second. Bake McBride hit a home run for the Cardinals in the nightcap.

Phillies 2-5, Mets 1-3
The Phillies wrapped up both games in the late innings, taking the opener on a successful suicide squeeze bunt by Bill Robinson in the 11th and winning the second on a two-run double by Mike Anderson in the ninth.

The Mets managed only one run—Rusty Staub's first homer of the season—in the first game, despite 15 hits. Larry Bowa opened the Philadelphia 11th with a double off New York reliever Tug McGraw. Bowa moved to third on Mike Anderson's infield hit, then charged the plate with Robinson at bat.

The Phils were checked on two hits through seven innings of the second game, but broke through for two in the eighth and three in the ninth.

Dodgers 7, Astros 2
Ron Cey collected three singles and Jimmy Wynn added two—including his fourth home run of the season and a triple—to spark a 15-hit Los Angeles attack and swamp the Astros.

Tommy John gave up seven hits in winning his third game. Steve Garvey also homered for the Dodgers.

American League scores Sunday: New York Yankees 9-6, Cleveland 5-9; Boston Red Sox 7, Detroit Tigers 5; Minnesota Twins 8, Kansas City Royals 0; Oakland A's 4-2, Texas Rangers 2-10, and California Angels 6, Chicago White Sox 3.

The Baltimore at Milwaukee game was rained out.

Hunt Cites Assembly Benefits

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Lt. Gov. Jim Hunt has praised the 1974 General Assembly for enacting "landmark legislation" that he says will benefit the people of North Carolina for generations to come.

Hunt particularly praised the lawmakers' work in education and campaign reform. He said the legislature, which first convened in 1973, did more last year "for public education than ever before in the history of our state." And, he pointed to the kindergarten program, a $300 million school bond issue and a limit on class size.

This year, Hunt said, funds were provided for occupational education, for additional teachers for exceptional children and for an education program.

Hunt noted substantial appropriations were made to the Community College system and to the University of North Carolina system. Hunt said the General Assembly had enacted "one of the toughest campaign financing disclosure acts in the United States." He said this "will make our elections more open and honest and help restore the people's confidence in our government itself."

Hunt also noted that $17 million was provided to purchase more land for state parks, that $28 million was marked for new and expanded programs in mental health, and that more than $70 million was appropriated "to improve the medical care of the people of North Carolina."

He listed the passage of the state Land Policy Act and the Coastal Area Management Act in asserting that "the people's interest have been well served by this General Assembly." Hunt's remarks apparently were intended to counter criticism that the General Assembly this year favored special interest legislation, such as a measure removing the interest rate ceiling on home loans. That bill was backed by the building and lending industries.

Wilbur Hobby, president of the state AFL-CIO, charged recently that the best thing the 1974 legislature could do for the people of the state was to adjourn as quickly as possible. He contended the lawmakers had done little for North Carolina's regular citizens.

USIS Chief Will Recover

CORDOBA, Argentina (AP)—Doctors declared U.S. Information Service chief Alfred Laun III "out of danger" today more than 72 hours after Marxist guerrillas shot him in the stomach, kidnapped him and abandoned him.

Doctors said they will decide in the next 48 hours whether it is convenient to transfer Laun to Buenos Aires.

The 36-year-old American was shot as he struggled with guerrillas of the People's Revolutionary Army who kidnapped him Friday from his home 20 miles north of Cordoba. He was found abandoned 15 hours later on a street in Cordoba and rushed to a hospital for emergency surgery. A communique issued by the guerrilla group said Laun was to have been tried by a "people's court" for alleged links with the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency and for giving communications assistance to the right-wing military leaders who overthrew the late President Salvador Allende in Chile last September.

'Contented' After His 21-Year Ordeal

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—John Downey, who was released about a year ago after 21 years in a Communist Chinese prison, is enrolled in law school here and says he's "really content" with his life now.

Downey was shot down over Manchuria Nov. 29, 1952, during the Korean War. He was sentenced to life imprisonment on espionage charges by the People's Republic of China. He was released March 12, 1973, after President Nixon acknowledged that Downey had worked for the Central Intelligence Agency.

Now, at age 43, Downey is a first year student at Harvard Law School. He says all he wants is the tranquil life of a small town lawyer — the goal he would have sought had there been no war.

He continues to refuse to talk about the purpose of his mission at the time he was shot down and describes his prison years as "a pretty boring time."

But he adds: "In my heart, I always — well, nearly always — knew I'd get out. I just had a hunch I'd return."

Now he wears wire-rimmed glasses and long hair and fills his leisure time by playing football on the law school team. "I'm really content with my life now," Downey said in an interview published Sunday in the Boston Globe. "Gosh, when I think of some of the business problems or troubles supporting a family that men my age have, I feel as free as a bird."

LWV To Hold Annual Dinner

The Greenville-Pitt County League of Women Voters will hold its fifth annual dinner meeting Tuesday, at 7 p.m. in the South Cafeteria at East Carolina University.

Following the buffet dinner, Mary Faye Shires, former Representative to the North Carolina General Assembly, will speak about her experiences in the General Assembly and her views on annual versus biennial sessions of the legislature.

Tuesday evening's program also includes the election of officers, adoption of a local budget, and changing local by-laws.

Prison Gambling Is Considered

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—Donald Bordenkircher, warden of the West Virginia Penitentiary, says he is considering instituting gambling under controlled conditions at the maximum security prison. Money from the gambling would go into the inmate benefit fund for use in purchasing items for the entire prison population.

"It takes men out of the corridors in the evenings when they have nothing to do and gives them enjoyable entertainment," the warden said in an interview Sunday.

Two Shot At Close Range

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two hitchhiking teen-agers were critically wounded in what police say was the latest in a series of senseless shootings. Eleven persons have been killed in random attacks since November.

Homicide Inspector Frank Falzon said the shootings Sunday night were "most definitely" linked to the so-called Operation Zebra shootings.

Zebra is the police code for 15 shootings which caused the 11 deaths over the five-month period and set off the largest manhunt in the city's history. In each case, a black assailant shot a white victim at nearly pointblank range. Police have been unable to determine a motive for the shootings.

Ward Anderson, 18, and Terry White, 15, were approached by "at least one black man who opened fire at a distance of about five feet and fired several times," Falzon said.

The youths were reported in serious but stable condition after undergoing surgery at Mission Emergency Hospital.

Falzon said casings from a .32-caliber automatic weapon — the same type used in the other Zebra shootings — were found at the scene.

About 20 minutes after the double shooting, a man told police a gunman fired a sawed-off shotgun at him from a passing car about a mile and a half from where the two youths were gunned down.

But police said they were unable to find any evidence of the blast, and doubted the shooting took place.

Authors Assert Agnew Was Urged To Resign

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new book on Spiro T. Agnew's tax case says that while President Nixon kept voicing support for Agnew in public, White House aides eventually met privately with Agnew to demand his resignation.

Nixon was particularly worried about Agnew taking the "impeachment track" by aiming his case toward the House of Representatives, according to the book, "A Heartbeat Away," being published today by Viking Press.

Agnew finally made a deal with the Justice Department, resigned Oct. 10 and pleaded no contest to a single charge of income tax evasion.

Military Take Over Reported

BAMAKO, Mali (AP)—Radio reports heard here today said that military forces had taken over the government in Niger.

The reports from Niamey radio said Lt. Col. Seyni Kountie, chief of staff of the Niger armed forces, had taken power.

Niger has been one of the most stable of the former French colonies in Africa. Since its accession to independence in 1960, President Hamani Diori has been the only chief of state.

Niger is a landlocked nation of 490,000 square miles and a population of less than five million persons in north-central Africa.

The northern part of the country is in the southern reaches of the Sahara. The country has been hit hard by the severe drought that has afflicted the sub-Saharan in recent years.

The Niamey radio announcement said, "After 15 years of reign, marked by injustice, corruption, selfishness and indifference with regard to the people whose happiness it pretended to assure, the army can no longer tolerate the permanence of this oligarchy."

The constitution was suspended, the National Assembly dissolved and all political organizations were suppressed.

The radio said that all international engagements taken by the previous regime would be respected "on condition that they take into account the interests and dignity of our people."

Four Injured In Sunday Accident

Four persons were reported injured in a 5:20 p.m. Saturday collision at the intersection of Charles Street and Greenville Boulevard.

Police identified the drivers of the two cars involved as Renee Fleure Masgray of 1201 East 14th St. and Wilbur Ruffin of Route 1, Winterville.

Officers, who reported both drivers and one passenger in each of the cars were injured, estimated damage to the vehicles at $600 each.

Miss Masgray was charged by investigators with failing to stop for a red light following investigation of the collision.

50,000 MILES 3 YEARS.

MAZDA INTRODUCES A LONGER ENGINE WARRANTY.

After 14 years of development and almost three-quarter of a million cars on the road, the rotary engine has proven to be so dependable, we now warrant the engine for 50,000 miles or 3 years.

Mazda also offers a unique driving experience. The rotary engine is smooth, quiet, responsive and economical. Recent mileage tests by Motor Trend showed on the cars tested that the Mazda RX-4 Hardtop, with standard transmission, gets about the same fuel economy as the Gremlin with automatic, better than the Chevy Nova with automatic or the Mustang II V-6 stick shift, and far better than the Dodge Dart automatic.

This warranty is free with all new rotary-engine Mazdas—sold on or after March 26, 1974.

Mazda now offers a non-transferable warranty that the basic engine block and internal parts will be free of defects, with normal use and prescribed maintenance, for 50,000 miles or 3 years, whichever occurs first, or Mazda will fix it free.

The Worry Clinic Symptom That Afflicts Males

Horace is a victim of the male climacteric. His problem can easily be solved by boudoir chesecake! For when men reach 40, they often develop one or more of the 10 classical symptoms of what might be termed the male menopause. Scrapbook this case!

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph.D., M.D.

CASE Z-807: Horace G., aged 42, has a camouflage sex problem.

"Dr. Crane," his worried wife began, "Horace has undergone a marked change in his personality."

"It began about 2 years ago. Prior to that time, he was a jolly person and quite generous with his money."

"But now he has begun to act like Silas Marner and hoard every penny."

"I must coax and plead and cajole him, even to get cash for groceries and other household expenses."

"His business is successful, though, so he isn't in any financial trouble, so why should he change into such a miser?"

Male Menopause
The climacteric hits men after the age of 40.

And it is a twin for the female menopause that formerly disturbed millions of wives.

In early marriage, Horace was a virile husband and thus liberal with his money.

For there is an old maxim, still quite true, that states:

"Generous with love; then generous with money."

The corollary of that reads:

"Stingy with love; then miserly with money."

When Horace was first married, his erotic verve exceeded that of his wife by 3 or 4 to 1, and he thus gave her a liberal check each month to run their household.

But by the time Horace reached 40, his ardor had dropped to the point where the ratio was no longer 4 to 1, but was 1 to 1.

This marked reduction throws the usual husband into a panic.

So he begins to worry lest he become totally platonic. And his very anxiety then produces what he dreads, for his erotic ratio now becomes 0:1 and he then develops classical symptoms of the male climacteric.

These may include a sudden addiction to liquor, or gambling, or poker playing and bowling, reckless driving, a "Worry Wart" fretting about imaginary ailments, plus caustic criticism of his wife and even the "Silas Marner" syndrome.

For when a man is terrified about his inability to dominate his wife's affection in their boudoir, he tightens the purse strings.

"At least," he thinks, "I can retain her interest if I make her beg for money."

"Thus, I can still be the ruler of my household."

The solution to this type of problem is for the wife to restore her husband's virility.

Most cases of impotence are above the eyes, being due to fear and inner worry.

For worry is an act of the brain and you can't celebrate without reducing your emotional behavior!

Since love and eroticism are emotional, a man's anxiety about impotence actually can throw him into a totally platonic state in one night!

So I showed Horace's wife how to serve him more exciting boudoir chesecake and also explained to him that his impotence was temporary.

Send for my booklet "How to Prevent Platonic Marriage," enclosing along stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents. (Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets)

BRIDGE QUIZ ANSWERS

Q. 1 — East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠54 ♥AK2 ♦AJ73 ♣882
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass 1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣
Pass 1 ♣ Pass 3 ♣
Pass ?

What is your response?
A.—One diamond. Even the you are passed hard and have 12 points in high cards, no more drastic action should be contemplated. You are wide open in spades, and unless partner can bid again you are not missing anything.

Q. 2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AQJ7 ♥K98652 ♦Q ♣443
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
Pass 1 ♣ Pass 2 ♣
Pass 2 ♣ Pass 3 ♣
Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three spades. Whenever possible, you should avoid bidding three trumps on unbalanced hands. The mere fact that all four suits are protected is not the only criterion for placing the contract in no trump—your need communication between the hands and a source of tricks. Only if partner converts to three no trump himself would we find this contract acceptable.

Q. 3—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠7 ♥AQ5 ♦K10987652 ♣J
The bidding has proceeded:
West North East South
1 NT 2 ♣ Pass ?

What action do you take?
A.—Pass. Partner has expressed no desire to have you enter the auction. Unless North is highly indiscreet, he has a reliable spade suit, and this position is strengthened by the fact that East could not double. A bid of three diamonds has no real future and could let the cat loose among the canaries.

Q. 4 — Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J8 ♥532 ♦9743 ♣982
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
2 ♣ Pass 2 NT Pass 3 ♣ Pass ?

What do you bid now?
A.—Three spades. Partner's bid is absolutely forcing, and we are faced with a choice of unpleasant alternatives. Three no trump can be ruled out, so we are left with raising partner's second suit with three low trumps or giving a false preference with a doubleton honor. The latter is the lesser evil.

Q. 5—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:

North East South West
1 ♣ 1 NT ?

What action do you take?
A.—You should double for penalties. Partner need not stand for the double if his hand is unsuited defensively. However, even if partner has a mediocre 13 points, your 9 brings your side's assets to 22, more than your opponents can muster. In addition, your three tens enhance the value of your hand.

Q. 6—Partner opens with two diamonds and you hold:
♠10954 ♥KJ76 ♦K92 ♣A2
What do you respond?
A.—Three diamonds. Obviously, you intend playing the hand in slam. In order to lay the foundation for the bidding campaign, you should first set the trump suit. Hearts can be bid at a later stage. Who knows, partner might even be able to introduce hearts at his next turn.

Q. 7—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠Q103 ♥K1092 ♦K763 ♣65
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♥ 3 ♣ ?

What action do you take?
A.—Three hearts. It is true that you are rather weak for a free bid at this level, but partner should realize that you are bidding under pressure and make allowances. If you pass now, your side might be frozen out of the auction on a hand that belongs to you.

Q. 8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ93 ♥KQJ972 ♦92 ♣66
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♥ Pass 2 ♥ Pass
2 ♥ Pass 2 ♣ Pass
3 ♣ Pass 4 ♣ Pass

What do you bid now?
A.—Four hearts. This is preferable to returning to four spades. You have already informed partner that you hold four spades, and you should allow for the possibility that he might not have a genuine spade suit and simply made a convenient forcing bid. If partner's spades were on the level and he cannot stand hearts, he can revert to four spades.

Families Of 56 Miners Bring Suit

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Almost $12 billion damages are sought in a suit filed by the families of 56 miners killed in the Sunshine Mine disaster.

The underground fire in the Kellogg, Idaho, mine May 2, 1972, killed 91 miners.

Agnes House filed the suit for herself and 220 others in U.S. District Court, charging 21 companies and the federal government with complicity in the deaths of the miners.

The suit claims the defendants provided false or inaccurate information about the hazards of products used in the mine and were willfully negligent by providing or installing inadequate equipment and materials for use in the mine.

Each of the families of the 56 miners claims $1 million in general damages from each of the defendants and $10 million punitive damages from all but three of the defendants, for a total of $11.87 billion. In addition, the survivors seek medical, funeral and legal expenses.

The amended complaint filed Friday is the third version of a suit first brought before the U.S. District Court for Central California in December 1972, and transferred to Idaho four months later.

The original complaint listed 12 plaintiffs and three defendants.

Friday's suit is similar to one for $352 million filed last week against several of the same defendants by survivors of four other miners killed in the fire.

The companies named as defendants are Mine Safety Appliances Co.; Westinghouse Electric Corp.; Joy Manufacturing Co.; Olin Corp.; Owens-Corning Fiberglass; American Society for Testing and Materials; The Society of the Plastics Industry Inc.; Union Carbide Chemical Co.; The United States Underwriters Laboratories; Wyandotte Chemical Corp.; Mobay Chemical Co.; Pacific Vegetable Oil Corp.; E.I. duPont de Nemours and Co.; Allied Chemical Corp.; PPG Industries, Inc.; Dow Chemical Co.; Dow Corning Corp.; Upjohn Polymer Division, Atlas Chemical Industries, Inc.; Carwin Co.; and Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Sales, Inc.

In Contact By Satellite

RICHARDS ISLAND, Canada (AP) — A space age communications system is helping men searching for oil in this remote section of Canada's northland keep in touch with civilization.

Three oil companies are using a transportable satellite communications earth station equipped with a 10-foot dish antenna at this exploration site above the Arctic Circle to send and receive voice, data and teletype communications via the Anik Satellites. Both Anik and the portable station were developed and built by Hughes Aircraft Co., El Segundo, Calif.

Instead of depending on shortwave to attempt calls back and forth to the populated areas of southern Canada, some 2,000 miles away, the oil exploration teams communicate through the station, up 22,300 miles to the satellite, back down to an earth terminal near Toronto, then via landline to their home offices in Calgary. By reversing the procedure the home offices can contact the men working in the isolated outposts.

Cooperative Program Offered By Kissinger

By KENNETH J. FREED

Associated Press Writer UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger today outlined a six-point program aimed at a more cooperative development of the world's natural resources.

In a speech prepared for a special session of the United Nations' General Assembly, the secretary said, "We meet here at a moment when the world economy is under severe stress."

Pointing to the oil crisis, shortage of food grains and increasing global inflation, Kissinger said the solution can come only through a realistic, international effort.

"The great issues of development can no longer be realistically perceived in terms of confrontation between the haves and have nots," he said.

Any effort by the less developed nations to artificially control raw materials "will sooner or later produce the organization of the potential victims into a counterbloc," Kissinger said in a not too subtle warning.

In introducing his six points, the secretary also underlined his belief that the United Nations should avoid grandiose declarations of principles and aim for hard work instead.

"Our goal," he said, "cannot be reached by resolutions alone or prescribed by rhetoric. It must remain the subject of constant, unremitting efforts over the years and decades ahead."

The six points: —Action must be taken to insure a more equitable supply of oil and other energy products while keeping an inflationary price spiral from occurring.

For its part the United States is willing to help oil-producing nations broaden their economic base as well as sharing technology and aiding in industrialization.

—There must be an end to the cycle of raw material surplus and shortage. But a cartel of raw material producers aimed at forcing up prices "would have serious consequences for all countries," Kissinger said.

The United States proposes a cooperative effort to include "urgent international consideration of restrictions on incentives for the trade in commodities."

This means, the secretary said, that there must be equitable access to supplies of resources as well as access to markets by the producers.

To support this there should be a body of international experts working with the U.N. Divisions of Resources to determine the future supply of natural resources, he said.

—There must be a better balance between food production and population growth.

The United States will share its agricultural technology, including a raise from $258 million to $675 million this year to aid in boosting farming technology.

Kissinger also renewed his call for a World Food Conference.

A major objective, he went on, will be the rebuilding of food surpluses so the world can alleviate famines and other emergency shortages.

Then, the American secretary pledged his government to the establishment of an "International Fertilizer Institute" to help overcome the shortages of fertilizers.

—Steps must be taken to keep the poorer nations from being destroyed by dramatic shifts in the supplies and prices of such raw materials as oil.
