STANDING INSPECTION. . . Highway Patrolmen assigned to Troop A's District 5, (Pitt and Martin Counties) faced the discerning eyes of Troop officers yesterday as the Troopers and their cars gathered in Greenville for their semi-annual formal inspection. Troop A executive officer, Lt. Carl Gilchrist, who checked the men, their weapons, cars and other equipment issued to them, said the semi-annual inspections are designed to insure that the equipment issued to the men is kept in top condition and can be pressed into service when needed in an emergency situation at moments notice. (Reflector Photo by Stuart Savage)

Mich. District Vote Casts Cloud On GOP

By GENE C. SCHROEDER
Associated Press Writer

SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Democrat Bob Traxler has ended the Republicans' 42-year hold on Michigan's 8th Congressional District with a victory that Vice President Gerald R. Ford called a bad omen for the nation.

"One party control is not good for America," Ford said after Traxler took slightly more than 51 per cent of the vote Tuesday in special election that pitted him against Republican James Sparling Jr.

"And the trend in congressional elections now is for the Democrats to end up with an overwhelming majority in the House. This will mean a legislative dictatorship."

Ford said the election would have no bearing on how Congress treats the President in regard to the impeachment inquiry now being conducted by the House Judiciary Committee.

Sparling said he did not blame his defeat on Nixon, who made a personal appearance in the district last week.

But Traller, who campaigned as much against the President as against his GOP opponent, disagreed, and added that Nixon is the problem of Republicans, not Democrats.

His victory gave the 8th District seat to Democrats for the first time since 1932.

It marked the fourth time in five special elections this year that normally GOP areas have fallen to the Democrats.

But it was the first time Nixon on took an active role in trying to stem the tide.

With all of the 296 precincts in the district unaccounted for in unofficial returns, Traxler had 59,918 votes, Sparling 56,575.

The results gave Traxler 51.4 per cent of the vote.

Traxler said after his victory that voters knew that perhaps a new moral force was needed in the White House.

"And while we didn't dwell on Watergate...there are a lot of people who felt it very important that a message and communication be sent that degency, honesty and integrity are absolutely essential in the White House."

In his comments, in a statement given to newsmen at Palm Springs, Calif., Ford said he had talked with Sparling "and he informed me that Watergate was not the principal factor in his defeat. The unions simply did a better job than the Republican organization in getting out the vote."

Sparling said he would decide later whether to challenge Traxler in November, when the seat opens up again in a regular election.

He insisted Nixon was not invited to Michigan to campaign for him, but rather to "get out of the White House where he is now isolated and face the people."

In his three-hour tour in the district last week, Nixon avoided heavily Democratic big city areas, where unemployment hovers around 10 per cent. He concentrated instead on the small communities where the district's GOP strength lies.

He drew a generally warm welcome from thousands, although there were some protesters.

New Subpoena For Tapes Shaping Up

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sweeping new prosecution demand for President Nixon's Watergate tapes could mean another confrontation between the White House and the special Watergate prosecutor.

There was no immediate comment from the White House on how it will respond to Tuesday's bid by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski for court permission to issue a subpoena for 63 conversations.

Jaworski's predecessor, Archibald Cox, went to court last summer and won backing from district and appeals courts for a subpoena issued on behalf of the grand jury. Jaworski also subpoenaed the White House last March for materials believed to relate to the barter of ambassadorships and got substantially what he requested.

Jaworski asked U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to make the subpoena returnable at 10 a.m. April 23. That would be two days before a subpoena issued for the House Judiciary Committee for material it wants for its impeachment investigation.

The special prosecutor said he needs the tapes and supporting documents to prepare for the Watergate cover-up trial of H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman, John N. Mitchell and four others scheduled to begin in Sirica's court Sept. 9.

His request to the court and the Judiciary Committee's subpoena for 42 conversations differ in time and scope although 23 of the conversations are duplicated.

Jaworski concentrated on talks Nixon had with Haldeman and Ehrlichman, formerly the President's principal aides, and asked for a few that included Charles W. Colson and John W. Dean III.

The Judiciary Committee subpoena also asks for Haldeman-Ehrlichman-Dean conversations, and also those Nixon had with former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst and Asst. Atty. Gen. Henry E. Petersen.

The special prosecutor's request embraces specific conversations ranging over most of one year—from June 20, 1972, through June 4, 1973. The House subpoena spans two months, from Feb. 20, 1973, through April 18, when the Watergate cover-up was crumbling.

In his latest action, Jaworski followed the practice of asking the court for permission to subpoena since the material is sought for trial evidence.

The special prosecutor said he felt "obligated to seek these materials by subpoena," because he has received "no definitive response" to requests by letter. He enclosed a letter he wrote to White House lawyer James D. St. Clair, written April 11, advising him a subpoena would be sought in five days.

Haldeman, Ehrlichman, Mitchell and Colson, along with Gordon Strachan, Kenneth W. Parkinson and Robert C. Mar-dian are charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice.

Battle Wage Boost On The Heights At Hospital

By CAROL TYER
Reflector Staff Writer

It was announced during the Pitt Memorial Hospital Board of Trustees meeting last night that all hospital employees' wages will be raised 10 cents as of the pay period which begins April 26.

The raise is in line with minimum wage requirements, which raise the lowest paid workers in the hospital to $1.90 an hour. The raise, which was unforeseen and not budgeted for this year, will cost an additional $2,000 per week and will increase patient day costs $1.78, Administrator Jack Richardson said.

By Jan. 1, 1975, the minimum wage must be $2 per hour.

It was announced that, with hiring no extra personnel and raising no salaries, the administrative department of the hospital is being reorganized. Craig Quick is to be personnel manager and a materials manager's position is to be started, with Bob Barnes filling this position. Administrator Richardson's office will be moved to the Education Building and Assistant Administrator Rick Gilstrap will use the office presently occupied by him. All these changes will be in effect by June 1.

It was announced that liability insurance has been obtained for the trustees in the amount of a half million dollars. This is to give these unpaid public servants some protection from suits connected with the hospital operation.

Trustee Mack Edwards was thanked for his gifts of candy to hospital employees on Valentine's Day.

A letter of appreciation for the Tidewater Blood Center was read. The hospital and the county provided some gasoline for a courier to bring blood to the hospital during the height of the gasoline shortage and the bus strike.

Dr. David White was given provisional staff privileges in ophthalmology; Dr. Sumiko Tsukamura Hamilton, courtesy privileges in dentistry.

Medical staff bylaw changes were submitted. The only discussion was about the definition of courtesy privileges. Dr. Donald Tucker, a medical staff member and a trustee, expressed concern that courtesy staff members are "intimidated" into not using the hospital all they need to because of fear of resentment from other staff members that they do not have some of the staff responsibilities. Dr. Tucker said he feels county doctors from outside Greenville should be given "some consideration" because of the distances they have to travel. The matter was turned back to the medical staff for further consideration.

Committees not appointed at the annual meeting in March were announced. They are as follows:—ambulance—W.R. Duke and Delton Perry; parliamentary—Eugene Perry; personnel—Leroy James and Glenn Strickland; retirement—M.E. Gilstrap, W.R. Johnson, J.H. Moye, Miss Jean Owens, and J.W. Richardson; and buildings and grounds—Edward F. Switzer, Roscoe Bell, Leroy James, Otis Stokes, Dr. Donald Tucker, Ephraim Smith, Glenn Strickland, and Delton.

Not Reluctant?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. William B. Saxbe said today he is convinced that Patricia Hearst "was not a reluctant participant" in a San Francisco bank robbery and that he considers her a common criminal.

Saxbe told reporters at his weekly news conference that he was expressing his personal views about the 26-year-old newspaper heiress reported kidnapped by the Symbionese Liberation Army more than two months ago.

Saxbe said he believes the FBI would be justified in breaking into a dwelling to capture Miss Hearst and SLA members.

"The entire group we're talking about are common criminals," Saxbe said. Asked if he was including Miss Hearst in that description, he replied, "Miss Hearst is part of it."

Flood Of Returns

RALEIGH (AP)—North Carolina's Department of Revenue received a record flood of state income tax returns Tuesday—285 bags.

Asst. Commissioner of Revenue James P. Senter said the department did not have room enough for the flood of mail and rented space in a nearby building. He said 225 employees were busy opening and processing the returns.

The normal deadline for filing state and federal income tax returns is April 15, but since Easter Monday was a state holiday, the deadline was extended to midnight Tuesday.

Senter pointed out many people were not aware of the extension and mailed their returns over the weekend, or Monday.

Senter expected another big load of mail Wednesday.

B.W. Brown, director of the individual income tax division, said the state has mailed 966,238 refund checks totaling $56.8 million, or an average of $58.88 per check. This compares with 872,650 refund checks totaling $45.9 million for the same period of last year. The average refund last year was $52.64.

Party Leaders Ignoring Him, Asserts Candidate

Wood Hall Young, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senate, is campaigning in Pitt County today.

The Avery County man says he is "as indignant as a mountain log-roller generally gets" at the way his candidacy is being ignored by the state party leaders. He has not heard a word from Tom Bennett, state party chairman, he said.

"So I've decided to take my primary campaign directly to the people of North Carolina," he said. "The reason they ignore me is that they can't control me."

Young has previously been nominated by the Republican Party for the N.C. Senate in 1960 and 1962 and for Congress from the 10th District in 1964 and 1966. He said he has been a logger, farmer, construction worker, and teacher. He buys and sells hardwood timber for furniture. He and his wife, the former Frances Buchanan of Minneapolis, N. C., the community in which the Youngs still live, have three children, all in college.

Young says he has been a Republican since the time when it was very unpopular to be one. He maintains he is the only candidate on the national level with whom the working people can identify.

"For too long, politics has been dominated by the Jet Set and the Ivy League Lawyers (They're the ones that got Nixon in trouble)," he said. "It is now time to elect some honest working people to high offices."

His opponents for the May Primary are B. E. Sweate of Boone and Bill Stevens of Lenoir.

Await Waters Recede

BEAUMONT, Miss. (AP) — An estimated 10,000 south Mississippi flood victims are waiting for high water to move downstream so they can return to their homes.

The floods, which followed up to 16 inches of rain last weekend, had claimed eight lives and caused an estimated $60 million in nonagricultural property damage.

At Hattiesburg, where the Leaf and Bowie rivers converge, and at Columbia, where the Pearl River is over its banks, water was receding. But flood waters still remained in many homes and businesses.

The Leaf River crest was expected to move downstream toward the communities of Beaumont and McLain today before heading southward to the Pascagoula River and the Gulf of Mexico.

The crest of the Pearl River, which runs a roughly parallel course to the west, was also moving toward the Gulf. Much of the lower Pearl basin is sparsely populated.

"With all the tragedy these people have gone through they're in a pretty good frame of mind," said Clark Wakefield, who is helping care for an estimated 1,250 refugees at the National Guard's Camp Shelby, near Hattiesburg. "We've had a lot of young folks volunteer to help."

Some homes in the Hattiesburg area have been covered to the roofs with swirling, muddy water.

Mothers Day Is Proclaimed

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon, in his annual Mothers Day proclamation, says "there is no undertaking more challenging, no responsibility more awesome" than being a mother.

Nixon designated May 12 as Mothers Day and wrote: "Mothers are today, as never before, moving into highly skilled jobs and careers. Barriers against equal opportunity for women have been disappearing rapidly, but we must remain diligent in our efforts to remove them."

Award Nabakov Literary Medal

NEW YORK (AP) — Vladimir Nabakov, the Russian-born author of "Invitation to a Beheading," has been awarded the National Book Awards' National Medal For Literature.

Nabakov was described in award ceremonies here Tuesday by former New York Times correspondent in Russia, Harrison Salisbury, as part of the "the Russian genius...this magnificent panorama, this profusion of talent not equalled, I think, by any other literature..."

Wilson Continues Focus On Morgan, Believing A Run-Off Lies Ahead

By TOM BAINES
Reflector Staff Writer

U. S. Senate candidate Henry Hall Wilson today continued to focus much of his campaign attention on one of his chief opponents, Robert Morgan, and noted that he expects to meet Morgan in a second primary.

Wilson told newsmen here this morning that "Eastern North Carolina and all of North Carolina for that matter... badly needs more doctors and better medical facilities."

He continued, "I think we need a first rate four-year medical school at East Carolina and a first rate training hospital and for years we have seen squabbling over a fairly limited pie consisting of state funds. I say make the pie bigger. I say we ought to have a sizable amount of federal funds in here."

Wilson noted, "Now there's an HEW budget of $111 billion and we aren't getting our piece of it. And it's interesting to me that Robert Morgan, chairman for some years of ECU, apparently never even made any serious effort to get this done."

The candidate discussing his qualifications, asserted that "no one has ever entered the Senate having sat weekly with the president and the leaders of both Houses of Congress and no one has ever entered the Senate with a background of having for six years served as president and chief executive officer of what is now the major financial institution in the world..."

He contended, "... put that against the background of having served as Attorney General of North Carolina so far as qualifications to move in Washington are concerned and so far as qualifications to cope with national and international issues."

Wilson again attacked his campaign opponents for refusing to engage in debates with him, saying that, "I think that it's time that the public be made more aware of the fact that I am the only one of the three candidates willing to enter into a debate. Mr. Morgan said in an interview in Fayetteville... that, yes, he would debate and that if he were not willing to enter into a debate on the issues, he would not be fit to serve in the United States Senate."

HENRY HALL WILSON

He continued, "I agree with him and I proposed three hour-long debates among Morgan, (Nick) Galifianakis and me in prime time on radio and television and to be handled by both the spoken and the written press and that in order to get around the federal requirement that all candidates have to be involved in free time" from television and radio and to make the thing viable instead of having ten candidates there, I proposed that the candidates split up equally the cost of it." "The next day," Wilson continued, "Galifianakis came out with a statement that he would be willing to enter a three-way debate but he would not enter a debate with me alone. He did not mention a debate with Morgan alone. He knows he is perfectly safe because there would be no three-way debate because Morgan is not going to do it..."

He noted, "I think that's some indication of the evaluation of both of these candidates as to my qualifications."

The candidate said that he has been unable to discuss issues with his opponents "because they have taken very few stands on issues. I've taken stands on every issue which could come before the Congress now for nearly 11 months..."

Wilson, asked to comment on Morgan's decision to remain as attorney general while running for the Senate, said that Morgan "ought to know what the law is. I have not attacked him on this. I think he has to make up his own mind about it. I was asked on the day that he announced what I thought of his decision to retain his position until after the primary and my reaction was that he would be wise to retain it because he is going to need it."

He said that he agreed with statements made by one of his opponents calling for the impeachment of President Nixon unless subpoenaed White House tapes are furnished immediately. Wilson said that he has indicated all along that "we have been waiting for evidence, direct evidence of presidential impeachable offenses. I would consider this to be one of them." Young Wife Tells Of Living Better On Less

By SIDNEY MARGOLIUS
NEW YORK (WNS) — Kay Hutchins and her husband have moved 30 times in 13 years of marriage, mainly because of their university studies and his teaching jobs. So she considers herself especially experienced in small-town living costs, but she also knows city expenses. She doesn't believe the Bureau of Labor. Statistics estimate that a family with two school children needs as much as $850 a month, not including taxes, for a moderate standard of living, and even more in some big cities.

The Hutchinses have one baby. He has take-home pay of a little over $1,000 a month. Last month they were able to put away $350 even after extra expenses related to their latest move, such as restocking the pantry. Kay expects they will be able to put away $500 a month from now on and live on about $500 a month.

Now that's a reasonable expectation with a baby under a year. Costs for a family that size and age are about 62 per cent of those for a family with two school children. So the same standard of living would cost only about $530.

But even with just one child, as the child grows, costs jump surprisingly. With one school-age child, the same budget costs 82 per cent of the expenses for the four-person family, or about $700 a month.

Too, living expenses in a small town typically are about 10 per cent less than in the average city.

Even so, Kay is a thoughtful money manager with a clear sense of her own values. Her money attitudes and handling methods are revealing and instructive.

THEY KNOW THEIR VALUES. "I know it is possible to spend much more than we do but it is not absolutely necessary for a satisfying life," Kay writes. "Often the quality of the standard of living goes down as the amount spent goes up. Obviously we could live in a grander style. I don't feel I need a dishwasher. I have always used a wringer washer after I found that an automatic washer was just as time consuming and wasteful of water and soap.

Even with seven dozen diapers a week, I still need spend only one morning a week doing the washing. The exercise I get hanging the wash is far less costly than that I might get at a health club."

THEY TAKE CARE OF THEIR POSSESSIONS. They have a 1963 Chevy Impala which they bought new: "It is in mint condition thanks to my husband's tender loving care."

THEY AVOID FINANCE CHARGES. "In 13 years of marriage we have bought just two things on the installment plan: the car, and a stereo," Kay confides. They had the cash for the stereo, but felt it was a good idea to establish some sort of credit reference. (It's not really necessary to do it that way.)

While they have used a bank credit card for almost four years, they have paid out only $1.50 in finance charges although at times they have had monthly statements for as much as $350.

They avoid credit fees by paying the statements right away. The $1.50 in charges was for cash "advances" of $50 requested twice when they were away from home and incurred unforeseen expenses.

THEY OFTEN BUY USED GOODS. Secure in their own self-esteem, the Hutchinses are not afraid to buy second-hand appliances when they can find good ones, and used furniture too. They have many antique pieces picked up at auctions for a total of about $400-$500 and refinished themselves.

THEY KEEP FOOD BILLS DOWN. While everybody's food costs have leaped alarmingly, Kay certainly keeps hers well below typical levels. She says: "We seldom eat steak or roast beef at present.

We could afford them, but we don't tell ourselves 'we deserve it, we earned it,' as the ads try to convince people.

If we pay these ridiculous prices they will remain high and thus hurt people on fixed incomes, like the elderly."

They seldom buy snack items, and never buy heat-and-eat dinners; "as a bride I learned that convenience foods are too costly in terms of price, nutrition and flavor." But they do eat "lots of meat, even often having sausage or hamburger patties for breakfast," and they have regular "sit down" meals three times a day.

Kay manages to spend only $80-$90 a month on food, even with a 110-pound dog, compared to the $125 to $160 you might expect a family of that size and age to spend (without a dog) assuming all meals at home.

Their housing expense also is relatively low even though they have a $30,000 house, which Kay describes as one of the nicer ones in their town. The house payments run $193 a month.

Well, housing costs have become the big problem for young families. Many, except in small towns not near large cities, and possibly in the South, now find it increasingly hard to get even adequate apartments for under $200.

Summer Hats For All Occasions

BE BEAUTIFULLY CROWNED—With the nostalgic mood of yesteryear's feminine softness has come the full bloom for this summer's look of enchantment in color coordinated hats for all occasions. White chiffon is deftly overlaid on the brim of this white panama, top left, with entwining yellow flowers at the crown. The right look for that important summer party occasion is captured, top right, in a giant natural panama, with an open crocheted crown. Summer soft green is the tone used by the straw snap brim fedora, center. Sleek sophistication abounds in a jaunty white straw, bottom left, accented with white violets, set perkily at the front. A new mood in summer headwear is the ultra light and soft felt, bottom right, a hat fashioned for daytime. It is a pull down cloche of pale brown, with a darker feather accented at the crown. Photographer Has Reached Goal

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer
Now that she has reached her goal — a successful exhibit of her photographs and the sale of nine at $300 each at a well-known art gallery — Swiss-born Marina Schinz, 33, cannot afford to go on with the unusual techniques she has devised, she said sadly, unless her work is financed by commissions.

The photographs, ranging from deep medieval bronzes to abstract and surrealistic images, provide a relationship to paintings by means of double exposure, filters, combinations of textures, split images and the like, but they are very expensive to produce. "There are no tricks, no retouching. It is all done by optical means — lenses, and so on.

They are unique," she insists. "People gasp when you tell them the price of a photograph," she continued. "In the public mind, it should cost, maybe 35 cents. But it would cost $40 even in a commercial lab to have a 16 by 20 print made, and in my studio I must make a great many prints until I get the right one. Paper is expensive and every package somehow is different, making it difficult to get a true reprint without hard work. It drives me berserk."

In addition to the expense of the materials, creative photography is time consuming. Her editions are limited to five, but she often works four days to get just one print, and she must be meticulous in gathering props. Unseasonal things are difficult to line up, although she keeps some props on hand — grasshoppers, sea shells and grasses, but short-lived berries and some flowers are something else.

Arrangements take time. It took weeks to assemble a series of white-to-blue colored jars. Some tasks depend on the cooperation of insects, such as a closeup of a live ant on half a cherry. The most delicate photograph in the exhibition — a half-peeled egg and an egg in shell on a white plate with a glass of milk and a jar of milk on white ground — appealed to sophisticated types, she says. Ditto a split image of green apples. People without any art background gravitated to her multicolored floral on a dark ground and another one of a box of strawberries.

Her break came when the owner of the Galeria Bonino saw some of her murals in the offices of Houbigant, for whom she does some perfume photography, and invited her to exhibit. She hit on the photography-painting technique because she had heard that people like only what they can associate with that form of art.

She has never made a decent picture in her native Switzerland. It is either very clear or rainy and dull, she says. She prefers England's ghost-like images, fog and mist, and the desert's no-dimension air and color.

Bridge Expert Says Game Can Ruin Marriage

By MARGE FREANEY
News-Times Writer
DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — To Peggy Hanna, bridge is a "wonderful, wholesome sport." But she says it has ruined marriages, caused ulcers and left couples childless, and "there are some married couples who should never play — not together, anyway."

Mrs. Hanna is a new life master, the highest rank a bridge player can get. Although she and her husband Richard, another life master, don't view the bridge table as a marital battleground, they tell some stories that might prompt some card players to stick to solitaire.

"I've seen husbands scream at their wives; some people can be very rude and insulting. At tournaments, the room sometimes sounds like a disturbed ward," said Mrs. Hanna, who notes that bridge etiquette requires partners to be silent during bidding.

"I've never been to a national tournament where they didn't have to call the doctor," she said. "The tension is incredible."

To a serious player like Mrs. Hanna, the rank of life master represents the culmination of years of study and hundreds of bridge hands — "each of them different."

Life master is to bridge what the Hall of Fame is to baseball.

Players must accumulate 300 master points, 50 of them from regional and national contests.

Mrs. Hanna began playing less than 10 years ago when a Welcome Wagon Club in South Bend, Ind., offered lessons in "social bridge," a less demanding game than duplicate bridge.

"To tell the truth, I don't even remember how to play party bridge any more," said Mrs. Hanna. "Really, it's just an excuse for women to get together and have fun. You can't socialize when you're playing duplicate."

She can't name a single friend who doesn't play bridge and she thinks nothing of driving 50 miles on a wintry night to keep a bridge appointment. Most vacations are combined with bridge, and the Hannas spent their honeymoon playing bridge with hundreds of others in a 10-day national tournament in Pennsylvania.

When she moved to Danbury, Mrs. Hanna studied three or four nights a week, joined two bridge clubs and subscribed to four monthly bridge magazines. Her bookcases are full of trophies and books on bridge.

"We go to three or four national tournaments a year, enter most of the regionals and sectionals, and we play three or four nights a week with friends or at our local bridge club," Mrs. Hanna said.

DINNER FOR FOUR
Glazed Curry Chicken
Rice GreenPeas

Artichoke Salad
Strawberry Cream Cake
GLAZED CURRY CHICKEN
No fat is called for.
2½-pound broiler-fryer, quartered
1-3rd cup prepared yellow mustard with onion, from a 9-ounce jar
¼ cup honey
3 teaspoons curry powder
Wash and dry chicken. Stir together mustard, honey and curry. Spread underside of chicken with mixture and place skin side up in one"layer in an 11¾ by 7½ by 1¾ inch glass baking dish or similar utensil. Generously spread skin side with mixture, reserving remainder. Bake uncovered in a preheated 350-degree oven for ½ hour; spread skin side of chicken with remaining mixture and continue baking until tender — 30 minutes longer. The glaze is hot and spicy; decrease curry for milder flavor. Makes 4 servings.

SUNDAY SUPPER
Vegetable Soup
Apple Bacon Open Sandwiches
Pound Cake Beverage
APPLE BACON OPEN SANDWICHES
Inspired by Danish cuisine.
6 slices bacon
1 large golden Delicious apple, unpared and diced (1 and 2-3rds cups)
4 slices dark bread, preferably Danish style
Butter

In a 10-inch skillet over low heat cook the bacon, turning as necessary, until as done as desired; drain on brown paper and keep warm. Pour off all the bacon fat except about 1 tablespoon; or pour off all fat and then wipe skillet clean with paper toweling and add 1 tablespoon butter or margarine. Add apple to skillet; cook over moderate heat, stirring often, until apple is transparent — about 10 minutes. Butter bread and arrange hot apple over each slice; top with bacon. Serve at once. Increase quantities as needed. May be garnished with watercress or tiny lettuce cups filled with grated fresh horseradish. Makes 2 servings — 2 slices per portion.

Long-Time Worker Wants Shower

Poppy Seed Cake Keeps Flavors

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: For years I have contributed to office collections for coworkers on the occasion of their engagements, marriages, anniversaries, births, deaths in the family, new homes, etc.

My wife and I separated a year ago, and I've been rooming with another man since then. Now I'm getting my own apartment, and I need all the things a couple needs to set up housekeeping—sheets, towels, dishes, appliances, etc. [My wife took everything when we split up.] Since I can't afford to buy all these things at once, I have proposed a "divorce" shower at work. It might even be appropriate for the gifts to be used items, since it's a second start for me.

The general reaction in the office was favorable, but some were on the fence. We agreed to abide by your advice as to whether this idea was too outrageous or actually a sensible way to help me out with a problem. POTLESS

DEAR POTLESS: The idea makes a lot of sense to me. But you shouldn't "propose" the shower yourself, anymore than a bride should "propose" her own shower. [P. S. Yours is not actually a "divorce shower," it's a miscellaneous shower for a man who's setting up housekeeping and doesn't have a pot.]

DEAR ABBY: I work in an office building. There's a woman down the hall who smokes about a pack of cigarettes a day, and she burns every one of them!

She knows there are several smokers in this office, so she runs in just about every 30 minutes and asks if "anybody" has a cigarette.

I asked her why she didn't buy some, and she said: "I'm not supposed to be smoking at all, and if I buy them I'll only smoke them." [I wonder what she thinks she is doing with the cigarettes she burns off us?]

Is there some real sharp answer we can give her when she comes in here to bum a cigarette? SUCKER

DEAR SUCKER: Don't look for a "sharp" answer. Tell her if she's going to smoke she'll have to buy her own. That's sharp enough.

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating Henry for six months. He says he does not have a telephone at home. I do not have the phone number of the night or day jobs where he works. He says they allow only emergency calls, so he does all the calling.

One day I asked him where he lived and he said: "I can't give you the address because I'm moving right now." When I asked him where to send his Christmas card, he said: "Just hand it to me."

I have never been introduced to any of his friends, and he says he doesn't have any family.

Once I came right out and asked him if he was married, and he said no. He is always telling me I ask too many questions. I have a feeling he is not being honest with me. There are things I would like to know about him because I am falling in love with him. Why do you think he's so secretive? IN THE DARK

DEAR IN: It's just a wild guess, but I'd say he's either married or living with someone. Unless he's willing to let you know where he lives and where he works, you'd be wise to forget him and look for a man who's not afraid to answer a few simple questions.

Devotees of poppy seed cake may be interested in this recipe that has sugar and cinnamon interlaced with the batter. The cake has an old-fashioned compact texture, needs no frosting and keeps well.

POPPY SEED CAKE

- 1-3rd cup poppy seed
- 1 cup buttermilk
- 2 cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup butter or margarine
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 4 eggs
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- Grated rind of 1 orange
- 2 tablespoons sugar mixed with 1 teaspoon cinnamon
- Grease and flour a 10-inch angelfood, kugelhof or bundt pan.

Stir together the poppy seed and buttermilk; cover and refrigerate overnight.
Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt.
Cream butter and sugar; beat in eggs one at a time; beat in vanilla and grated orange rind. Stir in flour mixture in 4 additions, alternately with poppy seed mixture, until just smooth each time.

Turn half the batter into pre-

Runs First Adoption Agency Solely For Black Infants

By MARY TOBIN
NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Jane Edwards modestly says she guesses she was "blessed with a great deal of energy."

She needs it. Executive director of Spence-Chapin Adoption Service since 1967, Mrs. Edwards oversees and approves every case in the files of one of the country's largest adoption agencies.

Then there are meetings with government agencies, boards of directors, professional groups and work with the Community Council of New York and the Child Welfare League, who cooperated with her in pioneering the Indian Adoption Project in our southwestern states.

The accomplishment that gives this attractive, dynamic black woman the most satisfaction however, is the Harlem-Dowling Children's Service, established by her in 1969 through Spence-Chapin to serve New York's black Harlem community.

"Spence-Chapin has always accepted a great number of black babies," Mrs. Edwards said. "But the more I got into this thing, the more I became convinced that we were only making a dent in the problem; large numbers of healthy black babies were being left in hospitals to await homes or shelters and their unweaned mothers were going without counseling or care."

Unwanted "White" Agency
Through friends in the black community, Mrs. Edwards interviewed young pregnant women and found they were reluctant to come "downtown to the white man's agency."

"They would say to me 'how do you know how I feel, how can you understand my problems?'" Mrs. Edwards said. "Well I did understand their problems, and I was ashamed that I was unable to reach them. I investigated and found that although there are Catholic agencies, Jewish agencies and white Protestant agencies, all of whom care for black babies, there was no agency devoted solely to them."

Mrs. Edwards envisioned that the only way to reach these neglected mothers and babies was to come to them. With the approval of the Spence-Chapin board of directors under its president Mrs. Alice Hall Dowling, Mrs. Edwards went into Harlem and Bedford-Stuyvesant to begin spadework for her project.

"We had to convince black leaders that this was truly a black project for their community," Mrs. Edwards said. "They have become very cynical about white agencies coming in with lots of money and schemes that bring very little concrete benefit to them. We told them that although initial funding would come from Spence-Chapin and from Foundations, the agency would become an independent community center as soon as possible." (Harlem-Dowling will become completely independent by the end of 1974).

Drugs a Problem
One of the problems confronting counselors at Harlem-Dowling is drugs. A large percentage of the unwed mothers who come to the center are drug addicts. "If a mother is trying to rehabilitate herself and wants to keep her baby, we try to help her do so," Mrs. Edwards said.

"We keep the baby at the home or in foster care indefinitely. There are cases where the mother is only 13 or 14 years old and wants to finish school or take training to enable her to support her child. We help counsel her through all of this."

To help drug addicted mothers, the clinic employs two para-professionals who are former drug addicts and who do counseling.

Now that Harlem-Dowling is on its own under its competent black director, Joseph P. Smith, Mrs. Edwards has undertaken the establishment of an early childhood development school, for children with organic or emotional problems that can cause developmental lags and learning disabilities. The school will operate under Spence-Chapin and will be for children from 2 to 6 years.

Texas Opera Theater Formed In Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Grand Opera has formed a resident artist ensemble, to be called Texas Opera Theater.

The troupe, conceived as a mobile troupe of young artists, will offer three operas plus an in-school opera workshop. The first season will cover 20 weeks and started Jan. 7. The repertoire is a full-length opera, Mozart's "Così fan tutte;" a church opera, Pasatieri's "Calvary," and a cabaret opera, Brecht-Weill's "Little Mahagonny."

The Texas Opera Theater combines four Houston Grand Opera programs — Affiliate Artists, Opera Previews, Opera Galveston County and Opera in the Schools. Its goal is to provide quality music-theater experiences to East Texas groups who ordinarily would not have them.

Singers will be two sopranos, a tenor, a baritone and a bass-baritone.

Democratic Dinner Planned

The three wives of North Carolina's Democratic U. S. Senatorial candidates will speak to Pitt County Democrats Thursday at 7 p.m.

Mrs. Nick Galifianakis, Mrs. Robert Morgan and Mrs. Henry Wilson will address area Democrats and interested people at a special dinner meeting at the Ramada Inn.

A cost of $4.25 will be charged, to cover the price of dinner.

A special invitation is being extended to interested persons. Candidates in attendance at the meeting will be recognized. Following the program, a question and answer period will be held.

Mixed Views Over Experiment

The North Carolina General Assembly has completed its first experiment with annual sessions and so far the results are mixed.

Reaction Again Miscalculated

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK
WASHINGTON — The most ominous aspect of the historic events that sent a congressional subpoena to the White House last week was the surprise genuinely felt by President Nixon and his lieutenants over Republican outrage within the House Judiciary Committee.

What makes it ominous is that Nixon lawyer James St. Clair's insulting letter was dispatched to the committee despite warnings from the most important Republicans in Capitol Hill—a clear signal which the White House failed to understand. All evidence indicates the White House was not trying to provoke a subpoena and certainly wanted no open break with its Republican allies. Thus, nearing the climax of his presidential crisis, Mr. Nixon is lethally miscalculating the mood of congressional Republicans.

The Nixon-St. Clair strategy, aimed at denying the Judiciary Committee key evidence it demands while retaining Republican support, collapsed disastrously because of that miscalculation. Not only did nearly all Republican committee members vote for the subpoena but serious new doubts were planted with congressional Republicans serving as the President's jurors.

In that sense, Mr. Nixon is paying dearly for keeping key White House tape recordings from Congress. House members suspect more than ever that he has much to hide. "I really haven't gotten into the details of Watergate," says one senior Republican Congressman, never publicly critical of Mr. Nixon, "but the President is whittling away at the presumption of his innocence."

The White House desire to prevent such conclusions is obvious from activities of newly arrived presidential counselor Dean Burch, now Mr. Nixon's chief Watergate emissary to the Republicans, on April 9—the deadline set by the House Judiciary Committee for a White House reply to its demands for evidence. Burch worked hard that day to secure Mr. Nixon's Republican flank in advance of his refusal to supply all the evidence requested.

Early that afternoon, Burch telephoned Rep. John Rhodes of Arizona, House minority leader, in Phoenix and read him a draft of St. Clair's letter. Rhodes had no time for a long discussion but thought he made this clear: the letter as written would cause trouble. So, Rhodes suggested, why not propose that St. Clair and John Doar, the committee's impeachment counsel, determine jointly the relevance of material requested by Doar?

But a few hours later when Burch went to Capitol Hill to meet Senate Republican leaders (at his request), he carried with him essentially the same draft letter he had read to Rhodes. Certainly, it did not incorporate Rhodes's conciliatory suggestion.

Not surprisingly, the Senate Republican leaders liked it not at all, and Burch hurried back downtown to the White House to report their complaints. A new draft was then read over the telephone to the Senate leaders. General verdict: better but not good enough. So staunch a Nixonite as Sen. John Tower of Texas felt the White House had ignored "our input."

Nevertheless, that second draft was the one sent to the committee anyway. For one reason, it was now early evening of the April 9 deadline. But more important, the White House was trapped in another massive failure of communications so endemic in President Nixon's relations with Congress. Based on his conversation with Burch, Rhodes was actually believed at the White House to have fully approved the letter. Even more incomprehensible, Senate Republican leaders were reported in accord with the revised version. Thus, on the evening of April 9, the White House believed Republican Judiciary Committee members would oppose a subpoena and that the Democratic majority consequently would not seek a vote. That meant the President had successfully withheld information from the committee without losing support.

Therefore, Mr. Nixon was no more prepared for the angry, spontaneous outburst from Republican members than he had been for the reaction to the Oct. 20 Saturday night massacre. The Republicans were offended not only by St. Clair's stalling but by his offensive, condescending language. With their outburst, the warning message at last got through to the White House. Despite St. Clair's eleventh-hour attempt at compromise the next morning, it was obvious that Republicans would support a subpoena.

Typically, there is little self-criticism at the White House. Presidential lieutenants are furious at "leaderless" Republicans in Congress, castigating them for meekly following "the bell cows"—counsel Doar and Rep. Peter Rodino of New Jersey, the Democratic committee chairman. At the Nixon White House, Congress is always wrong.

Nobody believes the President will obey the subpoena in full. Some Democrats on the Judiciary Committee are demanding a contempt of Congress resolution. The more thoughtful bipartisan majority, however, is wisely intent on avoiding such a detour and concentrating on the impeachment proceedings, even without all the evidence but—thanks to White House miscalculations—with less Republican support in Congress for President Nixon than ever before.

Actually, the 1974 session was a continuation of the 1973 session and the General Assembly finally adjourned the double session last week. Now the lawmakers go out to campaign for re-election—those who decided they wanted to come back—and a new General Assembly will gather in Raleigh next January.

There were many complaints raised. Many law makers reported they did not have time to go to Raleigh each year and also attend study commission meetings during the off months. There was a contention that annual sessions would force many people to give up the idea of serving in the General Assembly. There was also the theory that annual sessions would lead to full time and full salaried law makers and thus make the representatives even less accessible to the people.

A step in that direction might have come in the closing hours of this session when the legislators voted that their salaries be doubled.

The General Assembly moved through a number of complicated problems during this off year, not always solving them. But from the stand point of what was taken up, the off year session hardly differed from the regular sessions.

There have been opinions offered that if the annual sessions are to continue it might be best to limit the off year one to budget considerations. That might be a wise move.

With the rate of inflation and rapidly changing times, it might be best if North Carolina budgets were made up annually. That will require that the General Assembly meet annually, but the lawmakers don't necessarily have to take up a variety of items during the off year meeting.

A Poorer Prospect Of Nuclear Limitations

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger says there will not be a permanent agreement this year on nuclear arms limitation with the Soviet Union.

It is regrettable that this seems to be the picture at this time. Hopefully talks will continue and some agreement can be reached between the two nuclear powers by next year. It could reduce the financial strain for both nations.

Effort At Tax Cut Not Ended

By BILL NOBLITT
RALEIGH—The 1974 session of the General Assembly beat down several efforts to cut taxes.

But the battle is not over, the chairman of the House Finance Committee is vowing. "We will be back down here in 1975, and you will have another $100 million surplus in the state's income."

"And, another drive to reduce taxes," says Liston B. Ramsey, D-Madison, chairman of the powerful committee made up of half the members of the assembly and charged with raising money. The other half serve on Appropriations—where the spending decisions are made.

Ramsey blamed "some members of the Senate—not all of them" for blocking tax-cut measures in this session.

He predicted that a new drive will take place and the bill will be introduced early next year. "If no one else does it—I shall," Ramsey said.

Another Short
He said the measure will probably be aimed at the inventory tax on manufacturers and retailers, coupled with a reduction in state income taxes for people earning less than $12,000 per year.

The House of Representatives this year passed a measure removing the inventory tax, and eliminating income taxes on extremely low incomes. The Senate did not go along.

A last gasp effort to remove the sales tax on food also met stubborn opposition on both sides of the legislature.

The problem boils down to efforts by the House to cut taxes defeated in a Senate which has a "majority much more generous with the taxpayer's money than the House... and the 1975 session should find the assembly being much more conservative with the taxpayer's money than this session was," Ramsey said.

That loose hand with the money is creating "alarm among people throughout the state at the pace at which the state government is growing. "We are adding layer after layer of bureaucrats to state government."

"The general fund budget has more than doubled in three years, and of course the bulk of that is attributable to growth of the bureaucracy," Ramsey maintains.

He noted that in 1973 the state appropriated money to add 8,600 new employees to the state payroll; another 5,000 were funded in 1974.

"And less than one-third of the 13,500 new employees in two years are connected with public education—so it isn't true that the expansion was created by need for more teachers," Ramsey said.

Big Spenders
The present administration of Gov. James E. Holshouser is "the most free-spending administration I have ever served with—he is the fourth governor I've worked with, and the most free-spending," Ramsey said.

Ramsey is a retired retailer who specialized in building supplies. He faces opposition in the elections in November, but said if he wins, he hopes to continue serving as chairman of the Finance Committee—but has no guarantees of that.

Between now and the 1975 session, he is serving as chairman of a study group looking into three finance areas: licensing fees for trucks, income from whiskey sales, and special licenses.

He thinks this kind of study between sessions is helpful, (Continued on page 5)

Adieu To Energy Crisis

WASHINGTON—Three moving men walked into the office of the Energy Crisis and started taking down the pictures and the graphs.

"What are you guys doing?" The Energy Crisis asked.

"We have orders to move all your stuff out. They're moving another Crisis into this office."

"But I just got here," the Energy Crisis protested. "Don't talk to us. We just do what they tell us."

"The Energy Crisis ran across the street to the White House."

"I'm the Energy Crisis," he told the guard at the gate, "and I have to see the President right away."

The guard telephoned the President's office: "Rose

Mary, I have some nut out here who says he's the Energy Crisis and he has to see the President. That's what I thought."

The guard said, "The President can't see you, and his secretary says if you have any problems to take them up with his Counselor for National Crises in the Executive Office Building. Here's a pass. Give it back to me when you come out."

The Energy Crisis went to the office written on the pass. He was kept waiting for two hours. Finally the secretary said he could go in.

The counselor hardly looked up. "Sit down and make it short," he said.

"Why am I being moved out of my office?" the Energy Crisis demanded.

"You want it straight? We don't need you any more. You're washed up. Get lost."

"But only a few months ago the President said I was the most important issue of the decade. He said I would be here through the '80s. I moved my family to Washington. I gave up a good job with Consolidated Edison and a pension. How can you suddenly decide I'm not needed any more?"

ART BUCHWALD

The counselor said, "You served a purpose. You took people's minds off other crises. But we can't keep you around forever. The American people don't like you, and you're going to have to be sacrificed for political expediency."

"But don't you understand? Nothing's changed. We're going to run out of oil and fossil fuels if we don't have a strong conservation program. Look I've worked out a plan..."

"We're not interested in your plans. If we run out of gas, we run out of gas, but there is no sense worrying everybody about it. Why don't you just admit you don't have what it takes to be a good crisis and leave quietly?"

"What about the Arabs? Suppose they put their boycott on again? Then where are you?"

The counselor yawned. "You really are a bore. Can't you get it through your head this country will not stand for an Energy Crisis? When people had to wait in line for gasoline we almost had a revolution on our hands. We have a tough election coming up this fall in Congress, and if you were still around in November we could lose everything. You're nothing but bad news."

"But don't you see what you're doing to me? A lot of..." (Continued on page 5)

Other Editors Say Pained By Budget

(Goldsboro News-Argus)

President Richard Nixon has few supporters as loyal as Senator Jesse Helms of North Carolina.

Senator Helms has defended the President at times and in places where it has not been popular to do so.

But the junior senator from North Carolina parts ways with the President on the administration's $304-billion budget.

Helms has struggled in his first year in office to restrain federal spending, to force the government to balance its budget. He came closer to succeeding than many expected. But in the end, his efforts were defeated.

Helms knows that we cannot economize by simply reducing spending in other states and in some one else's congressional district.

He has stood up for reducing spending on pork barrel projects in his own state. It was unpopular at home to do so. "There are times when you have to bite the bullet and do it," explained Helms.

The President's $304-billion budget will require a lot of "bullet-biting" if members of congress are going to bring it down to manageable limits.

An election year which has almost every incumbent trembling over his own prospects at the polls is an unlikely time to expect congressmen to be cutting down on programs that would pump more money into their own districts.

But it must be done.

Senator Barry Goldwater, another of the President's loyalists, used some of his strongest language the other day in denouncing the administration's massive budget proposal.

"It grieves me that the stern fiscal discipline which characterized last year's budget has become this year's dead horse. It discourages me to see a Republican administration suggesting enlargement of a federal bureaucracy already so bloated it feeds on itself and threatens to destroy the nation," said Goldwater.

Losing Faith In Profit Ethics

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The outcry against those big oil company profits illustrates the public doubts about the established ethics and goals of business and the slow, frustrating search for something new.

Isn't it the goal of business to make money? Every last nickel it can earn within the law? Until the game rules are changed it can be argued that to do so is the responsibility of corporate officers to shareholders.

But off and on for the past few decades the country has showed little faith in that philosophy. During the past weekend Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent said:

"If everyone rushes to grab every fast nickel, the inflation fires will be ignited anew and there will be a certain and volatile reaction from Congress and the people."

Dent was referring to the removal of Phase 4 price restraints April 30, but neither he nor anyone else has declared what should be the new criterion of corporate performance. If not profits, what?

One of the problems, it seems, is bigness itself. Another is shortages.

Bigness has long been feared in the United States because of the dangers of monopoly. But is it possible for small companies to compete intentionally with the European and Japanese giants? Unlikely.

Is it fair for a company to profit from shortages? The old supply-demand law is that prices rise when demand exceeds supply. But can it apply in an age of pervasive and critical shortages?

A curious, shortage-related problem involves the dichotomy of thought that must be assumed by some corporate officers, such as in oil companies and utilities, in telling customers not to buy their product.

If it isn't the duty of a company to sell as much as it can and make as much profit as it can, then what is its duty? The need for an answer is pressing; forthcoming, it would relieve much confusion.

Sadat Fears Soviet

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

AP Special Correspondent
The Russians act as if they suspect they've been had by President Anwar Sadat of Egypt, and that can make them tougher to deal with in the search for an over-all Middle East settlement.

Moscow was never very happy in its relationship with Sadat's predecessor, Gamal Abdel Nasser. But it is even more irked with the man who assumed Nasser's mantle in 1970.

This irritation has been increasing ever since the October war. Now, if Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger seems to run into mounting difficulties trying to bring about a military disengagement on the Syrian-Israeli front, it's a good bet Soviet pique has something to do with it.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko has been trying to counter Kissinger's shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East, and Syria is the obvious route. The Kremlin wants badly to shift attention away from Kissinger's activities to an unwieldy Geneva conference where the Russians can be more visible.

Sadat irked Moscow by failing to go along with that idea. But he had annoyed the Russians ever since October, when he failed to consult them on his war plans. He also:

—Neglected to confide in his Russian allies before agreeing to Kissinger's disengagement proposals.

—Ignored a Soviet proposal that Russian and American officers sit in on the disengagement talks between Egypt and Israel;

—Won majority backing for his policy from an Arab summit in Algiers.

—Ignored Soviet advice and successfully campaigned for suspension of the Arab oil embargo against the United States.

—In a telecast this month retorted testily to Soviet complaints and accused Moscow of having opposed the October war and having been niggardly with arms help. At the same (Continued on page 5)

Strength For Today

CHRISTIANITY BY EXAMPLE

During the late nineteenth century the mission board of one of our churches sent a husband and wife to Persia (today Iran), as its missionary representatives. Moreover, it was very difficult to teach Christianity privately because the government would not even allow them to make their home into a school.

Under these circumstances the mission board instructed the couple in Persia merely to live a simple, Christian life, among the people. They were to demonstrate the value of the Christian life among the people. They were to demonstrate the value of the Christian life not by the Bible or by Theology, but simply by the way they lived. They were to teach by what they did.

They were so successful in this unusual type of ministry that today the Christian church is well established in Iran and on good terms with the Muslim government. Emerson was right when he said that what we speak louder than what we say.

U.S. Warned Petroleum Shortages Will Re-Occur

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Petroleum shortages will recur despite the end of the Arab oil embargo unless the public continues to save fuel, top government energy officials say. John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office, said in an interview Tuesday that gasoline shortages, at their worst, would not get as bad as last February when some motorists waited in service station lines for hours. But Sawhill said that "some people probably will forget about conservation and some spot shortages of gasoline will develop."

And conservation of fuel oil will be necessary again next winter, said Eric Zausner, FEO assistant administrator for data analysis and planning. Sawhill and Zausner have estimated that lingering petroleum shortages of 4 to 6 per cent this year can be cut to zero. Here's how: —This summer, they say, the public should feel free to drive to vacation areas, but should make up for it by saving gas-line in other ways: observing 55-mile-an-hour speed limits, cutting out unnecessary trips and using car pools and public transportation. —Furthermore, residual or "heavy" fuel oil remains in tight supply, putting the squeeze on electric power generation. Sawhill advises: "Use less air conditioning, and less lights. Save electricity." —The FEO anti-shortage strategy also calls for continued year-round daylight saving time and the switching of some power plants from burning oil to coal, a move that may delay the achievement of clean-air standards in some areas. Most of the fuel-saving measures will be voluntary, but Sawhill figures they will be encouraged by the steep petroleum price increases. The American Automobile Association reported Tuesday that regular gasoline already averages 54 cents a gallon and premium 58 cents a gallon. FEO administrator William E. Simon has frequently remarked that his toughest job, when the Arab embargo ended, would be to convince the public that the nation's energy problems have not ended with it. That job got no easier when President Nixon declared on nationwide television Feb. 26, "we have now passed through that crisis." Nixon went on to say that "The problem remains," but much of the public apparently got the impression that the crisis was over. For the next few years at least, the United States cannot increase its own petroleum production much. Continued demand increases could be met only with foreign oil, and that means Arab oil. In a speech Tuesday, Sawhill warned, "the threat of another embargo will be a continuing possibility. If it happened again it could have even more devastating effect."

ment energy officials say. John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office, said in an interview Tuesday that gasoline shortages, at their worst, would not get as bad as last February when some motorists waited in service station lines for hours. As a matter of fact, we need your office for the lawyers who will be working on the President's impeachment." "I still think you're making a mistake," the Energy Crisis said. The counselor replied coldly, "We know what we're doing or we wouldn't be in the White House. Oh, by the way, the President asked me to give you this set of cuff links with his seal on it to show his gratitude for all you did for him. I guess that's all. Now if I could just have your key to the men's room."

(Continued from page 4) time a Cairo newspaper accused Moscow of systematically sabotaging Syria-Israeli disengagement efforts and of begrudging Egypt better relations with the Americans. The Russians have had lots of time to get used to the idea that Sadat trusted them even less than Nasser did. Sadat is a devout Moslem who fears the Soviet brand of atheistic communism. He gave a detailed account a few years ago of a bruising experience he had with Kremlin hard-sell when he visited Moscow at the head of an Egyptian delegation in May 1961. At that meeting, Nikita Khrushchev exploded when Sadat suggested Egypt's international affairs were none of his business. Relations between Cairo and Moscow have always been on-again, off-again. They were severely strained in mid-1971 when Communists in the Sudan, Egypt's neighbor, tried to seize power and failed; and again in 1972 when Sadat suggested the Russians were primarily interested in a no-war-no-peace situation in the Middle East because it would be advantageous to the communist cause. A few months after that Sadat abruptly told 15,000 Russian military advisers to pack up and go home, and the Kremlin had to grin and bear it.

from the Carroll Richter Institute

GENERAL TENDENCIES: In the midst of some difficult aspects you have the chance to overcome obstacles and replace them with better conditions by words of encouragement to all with whom you come in contact. Remove any adverse thoughts you may have.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Think over more satisfying monetary arrangements with other persons and be sure to gain their cooperation. Don't impose on others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You are magnetic and charming today and win over others by kindness. Try to come to the aid of a good friend who needs help now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get out of the doldrums and into the work ahead of you. Make sure you pay that bill instead of making others angry. Show wisdom.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) It is important to make some changes today that are to your benefit, so don't delay in doing so. Don't waste time foolishly.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You have responsibilities that need to be handled right away so don't run off on any tangents. Mate is not receptive now so use tact.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Use tact in finding out how you stand with associates and then do something to improve the situation. Don't let others fool you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Although you have much to do, take the time to make your home more charming and comfortable. Sidestep one who makes trouble at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Take a good friend with you and have fun at hobbies that will be mutually enjoyed. Don't be forceful with mate at this time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't use that blunt approach at home or there can be much tension and trouble resulting. Use tact and get things smoothed out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You could be so busy handling unimportant matters that you lose out on something profitable or pleasurable. Think kindly of others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Do whatever makes your home and other possessions more charming. Talk over with a clever business person how to be more prosperous.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Show kindness to others instead of hostility and you get along much better now. Avoid one who wants to get you into further debt.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be one of those individuals who will readily understand others and will do well in any field that is allied with psychology. Be alert to the forte here and direct the education along such lines. Teach to be more objective since there is a tendency here toward self-pity. Give finest education possible.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to YOU!

A Modern City Out Of Rubble

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH AGADIR, Morocco (AP) — Grass covers the rubble and no one will ever know how many dead lie buried in the ruins of the ancient Kasbah of Agadir, destroyed 14 years ago in one of the great killer earthquakes of the century.

Foreign tourists, often unaware they are standing on a vast graveyard, look out from the hilltop Kasbah over the sprawling modern city that has risen from the ruins. Agadir, almost totally destroyed on Leap Year Day, Feb. 29, 1960, is on the way to becoming one of Africa's biggest vacation spots, a Moroccan version of Miami Beach.

Gleaming white hotels have sprung up along the sandy beach stretching 25 miles in both directions. Foreign investors are jostling for space to build more and more tourist accommodations. Elegant stores and modernistic public buildings have grown from the heart of the stricken city.

A concrete monument beside the brand-new city hall proclaims that Agadir was rebuilt "by the will of Allah." But nowhere is there a memorial to the victims of the earthquake. They were originally estimated at 12,000 but are now known to exceed 20,000 dead, plus 2,000 injured. More than half the population died in a few seconds. Others came to a slow, agonizing end, far beyond the reach of help.

The Kasbah (fortified city) is one of the few areas not rebuilt. It was the epicenter of the quake. The ancient stone buildings collapsed on the 2,000 inhabitants and hardly anyone survived. Very few bodies were recovered. Only the 18th-century battlements, built by the Dutch to protect their route to the Cape, are still standing.

"The Kasbah is a taboo subject in Agadir," said a shopkeeper who was among the rare survivors. "No one talks about it. Nearly everyone has a friend or a relative buried up there. Only the tourists go there, for the view, and most of them don't even know there ever was an earthquake."

There is no official list of the persons killed in the quake, or of the thousands who simply disappeared without trace.

"We are no longer interested in how many persons died," said Mohamed Larbi El Kaysi, the young governor of Agadir Province appointed by King Hassan II to supervise the city's multimillion-dollar tourist boom. "We want to look to the future and not lament over what happened."

When the earthquake struck, Agadir had an estimated population of 37,000 inhabitants plus several hundred tourists. Some 16,000 persons are known to have survived. Now, 14 years later, the city has grown to a population of 75,000 and El Kaysi predicts it will have 400,000 within ten years.

Of Agadir's 3,650 buildings in 1960, only 250 remained standing and the government decreed that no one would ever be allowed to build anything more than three stories high. Now, 20-story palaces are going up and no one worries about the fault in the earth's crust that runs deep underground out into the Atlantic.

"After all," said Roger Vinay, the city's chief engineer, "Tokyo and San Francisco are also built on unstable ground, and look at the height of the buildings there."

APPLE PRODUCER OLYMPIA, Wash. (UPI)—Washington was the nation's leading apple-producing state in 1973 with a record crop of 42.8 million boxes. New York ranked second.

Niger Suffering 6-Year Drought

Editor's Note — This dispatch was written by an Associated Press correspondent during a visit last week to Niger, where the army took over the government on Monday with promises to bring drought relief to the starving population.

By LARRY HEINZERLING
 Associated Press Writer
 NIAMEY, Niger (AP) — In this vast sub-Saharan land where the ground is often so hot that precious rain evaporates before it hits, the sun-bleached bones of dead cattle litter the countryside from the desert outpost of Agadez to this riverside capital in the south.

Sprawling refugee camps — squalid clusters of hundreds of waist-high hovels of grass matting — house tens of thousands of nomads fleeing the sun-baked sandy wastes of the Sahara Desert to the north.

Niger, a semi-desert nation of 4.2 million nomads and subsistence farmers landlocked in the heart of Africa, is struggling to survive an ecological disaster. West Africa's savage six-year drought has had a crippling impact on the rural economy of this former French colony, one of the poorest nations in the world. Senegal, Mauritania, Mali, Upper Volta and Chad also have been hit hard by the drought, but Niger is considered one of the worst off.

United Nations relief officials estimate half of the population has been affected by the lingering dry spell and relief officials estimate thousands of nomads have died from starvation or disease.

According to one estimate, about 800,000 persons in Niger are now receiving some of the food grain arriving from the United States and Europe. But only a third that number are getting the 1,800 calories a day Red Cross officials consider a minimum daily ration.

Besides the plight of its own people, Niger is beset by 75,000 refugees that have streamed into the country in recent months from Mali.

They are full of grim stories of death in the desert for stragglers fleeing the drought as they struggle to reach Niamey by foot or on camels and mules.

In the Department of Agadez, which embraces the northern half of Niger, some 70,000 people out of a total population of 100,000 are reported totally dependent on food from abroad for survival, relief officials say. From 40 to 60 per cent of Niger's 4 million cattle have been lost, according to an American survey of the economy.

Farmers, too, have also been struck a harsh blow.

For example, the annual harvest of peanuts, which once accounted for 65 per cent of Niger's export earnings, plunged from 105,000 tons last year to 20,000 tons in February.

Niger was forced to import peanuts this year so farmers would have seed to plant this summer.

"There's no cattle, no food left and no more money," said one American relief worker. "There's just no buffer — that's what makes the situation tough."

Encouraged By Oregon's Eagles

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — While the bald eagle, our national bird, is in danger of extinction, there is an encouraging report on the bald eagle population in Oregon this spring.

The state's 47 active eagle aeries have produced 42 young. That is encouraging because the estimate for the 48 contiguous states is but a total of 1,000 nesting pairs.

Alaska, on the other hand, has a healthy eagle population and may be the last frontier for the bird. There, the population is between 30,000 and 40,000 birds.

56-Year Business Career Ends Galifianakis For Impeaching Of President

J. B. BEDDARD . . . stands in front of the store in Winterville he operated for a long number of years. Beddard recently sold his business, but friends still visit him occasionally at the site. (Reflector Staff Photo by Carl Tyer)

By CARL L. TYLER
Reflector Staff Writer
WINTERVILLE—J. B. Beddard has retired from the retail grocery and hardware business after 56 years in sales. The 68 year-old Winterville native has worked in sales in this rural town all his life and has only worked at three establishments within a block of each other. Beddard operated his own business for the past 29 years in Winterville selling grocery and hardware items, although he concentrated in the grocery line. He received his start in retail sales working in his father's store which was located two doors down from his present store, when he was 12 years old. At 18 he changed jobs for a year, "because my brothers were working with my father" he says, then went with the W.A. Ange Co. in Winterville where he worked for 18 years and three months.

After working with the Ange Co. he opened his own business the J.B. Beddard Groceries, Feed and Seed Co.

He has worked almost continuously for the past 29 years. "I took a week off about 15 years ago," he says, when he visited a relative in Illinois.

Even then his store didn't close, "I had a friend that worked in the store for me," he adds.

Beddard's store was open six days a week for the past 29 years, except for holidays like Christmas and New Years.

"I might have gotten a long weekend if a holiday fell on a Monday," the businessman says.

Born near Bell's Crossroads, Beddard says he moved to Winterville when he was six months old, "according to my parents."

Beddard's Groceries, Feed and Seed market is empty now, except for the shelves, weighing scales and an ice box that weren't sold in his going out of business sale.

Some of his old customers still drop in when they see him in the store, just to speak.

He feels his old market would make a good location for someone wanting to go into the business.

"It would have to be remodeled of course," he says, "and you'd have to get a good meat man."

Beddard feels a good meat cutter is an important item in running a grocery market.

"You'd have to pay the meat man about as much as you would make," he adds.

A few things stand out in his memory regarding his 56 years of selling in downtown Winterville.

The depression is most prominent, along with a tornado that struck across the street from his father's store in the 1920's.

"It was the opening day of the tobacco market and a tornado hit Mr. Forrest's building right across the street there," he recalls.

"We called the tobacco market to tell Mr. Forrest that his store had been hit by a tornado. The word was that tobacco was selling for nothing almost and things looked bad."

Beddard recalls that Forrest went out of business after that because he had extended a lot of credit to farmers and they couldn't pay because of the poor tobacco prices.

For the past five years he has had a helper in the store, while earlier his wife might work with him or he had part time help in the afternoons and on Saturdays.

His advice to young businessmen today is to "try to satisfy your customer and be nice and cooperate with them."

He says he is looking forward to retirement, but that he might get tired of "doing nothing."

By ROBERT B. CULLEN
Associated Press Writer
RALEIGH (AP)—Democratic Senate candidate Nick Galifianakis, trying to distinguish himself from his opponents in the May 7 primary, has blasted President Nixon.

Galifianakis, at an airport press conference Tuesday, said the U.S. House of Representatives should impeach Nixon unless he promptly turns over the White House tapes to the Judiciary Committee.

He accused his principal opponents, Robert Morgan and Henry Hall Wilson, of sidestepping the impeachment issue.

But when pressed on how he would vote in a Senate trial of Nixon, Galifianakis said he would not commit himself until all the evidence was in. Wilson and Morgan have said the same thing.

Under the Constitution, the House of Representatives votes to impeach a president. The action is roughly similar to a grand jury handing down a bill of indictment in a criminal case.

If the House voted for impeachment, a trial would be held with the Senate acting as the jury.

Galifianakis said he felt there was enough probable cause "in the whole Watergate affair" for impeachment by the House.

He said he felt John Dean, the former White House counsel, was telling the truth when he linked Nixon to the Watergate coverup during the Senate hearings last year.

The former Congressman from Durham said the House ought to act quickly on the impeachment issue so that the nation can turn its attention to the economy, the fuel shortage, and other problems.

Nixon, he said, is trying to prolong the proceedings by denying the House Judiciary Committee the tapes of conversations held with White House aides.

The House could get into a long legal battle over the tapes, delaying resolution of the impeachment question for years, he said. To avoid that delay, he said, the House should impeach Nixon if he refuses to hand the tapes over.

Nixon, he said, has been counting on Southern support in his battle to stay in office. He noted that he had been warned that Nixon was too popular to attack in North Carolina.

But North Carolinians, he said, "are sick and tired of a man who relies on the South's patriotism and genuine respect for the office of the Presidency to try to fool us Southerners all the time."

Galifianakis said the strident attack on Nixon was his own idea, reached after talking with voters across the state.

The consulting agency which handles his campaign used similar attacks on Nixon in guiding Michigan Democrat Richard Vander Veem to an upset victory in a special election to fill the House seat vacated by Vice President Gerald Ford earlier this year.

Galifianakis said the agency, which is also putting out advertising about his anti-Nixon stand, "helped with the phraseology" but did not make the basic decision on the issue.

BRIDGE CLOSED
VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP)—Authorities say the North Landing River Bridge is expected to be closed to automobile traffic for two to three months, after it was rammed by an empty oil barge Tuesday.

Bids Opened On Utilities

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—High bids totaling $36.3 million dollars were opened Tuesday for the sale of four utilities owned by the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

John T. Church, chairman of the state Utilities Study Commission, said the bids will be analyzed for submission to the full commission in 20 to 30 days. Any sale must be approved by the governor, council of state and the state utilities commission.

The utilities up for sale are the electric and telephone systems and water and sewer systems. Duke Power Co. submitted a high bid of $12,931,000 for the electric company. Consumers Utility Corp. of Orange County offered $2,817,684 for the water system.

Central Telephone and Utilities Corporation submitted an offer of $20,394,850 for the telephone company. Chapel Hill was the only bidder for the sewer plant and system, offering $157,952. The town owns half of this utility.

Atty. Gen. To Address Meet

North Carolina Attorney General Robert Morgan will be the guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Mid-East Commission scheduled to be held here Thursday night.

The 7:30 p.m. dinner session at which Morgan, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, will speak, will be preceded by a 2 p.m. business session and a 6:30 p.m. social hour.

The business session will be held in the council room at the Greenville City Hall, while the social hour and dinner will be held at the Moose Lodge.

Scholarship For David Duckett

David Duckett, a senior at Washington High School and a former junior high student here, has been awarded a corporate-sponsored four-year National Merit Scholarship in the 1974 Merit Scholarship competition.

The recipient is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Paul Duckett Sr. who formerly resided in Greenville. While living here, Duckett's father served as minister of the University Church of Christ.

Currently chief scholastic marshal for the class of 1974 at Washington High School, he is editor of the school yearbook, the "Packromak." Duckett has attended both the Governor's School of North Carolina and the North Carolina Leadership School and is active as an Explorer Scout.

Duckett's scholarship is sponsored by Field Enterprises Inc. and is designated as a Marshall Field-World Book Year Book Merit Scholarship. The award is renewable each year for four years.

Duckett plans to use the award to study at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Officers Named By Greenville BPW

On Thursday evening at its regular meeting at the Ramda Inn, the Greenville Business and Professional Women's Club elected new officers for the coming year.

Names were Mary Daugherty, president; Lucile Moore, first vice president; Betty leRoux, second vice president; Arlene Mallison, corresponding secretary; Colleen Patton, recording secretary; and Mary Harper, treasurer.

Following the business session and the electing of delegates to the district meeting in Jacksonville on April 28, the president, Miss Nancy Smith, turned the meeting over to Miss Ruth Scott, chairman of the Civic Affairs Committee, who had prepared the program. Miss Scott introduced the speakers for the evening, Naomi Edwards, Natalie Grady, Kaye Lotterhos, and Mary Harper. The general subject of the program was "How Can All Live Together On One Planet?"

Mrs. Edwards expressed the idea that people could better live together by growing toward God by showing each other brotherly love, and by teaching children values other than seeking their own comfort.

Mrs. Grady emphasized the importance of cleaning up the environment which would take much forceful action and cooperation.

It was brought out by Mrs. Lotterhos, that to live together peacefully, people need to cooperate rather than to compete and thus change their attitude toward their fellowman.

It was cited by Mrs. Harper that there is a need for a better image of America abroad and that it can be shown that Americans are cultured and understanding, by a friendly and hospitable attitude toward foreigners at home and abroad.

McMullan Will Speak At Meet

Harry McMullan, Republican nominee for North Carolina's First Congressional District will speak to the Pitt County Young Republican Club Thursday night at 8 p.m. at the Tar River Estates Party Hut.

The meeting will begin at 7 p.m. with a cover dish supper. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Officers Named By Young GOP

Pitt County's Young Republican Club recently elected the following new officers.

Bill Grantmyre, membership chairman, Ricki Grantmyre, program chairman and Joann Lansche, publicity chairman.

Greenville Native Named Tells Processes Of Impeachment

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—J. Robert Starkey, a Greenville, N.C. native, has been appointed District Director of the Nashville U. S. Internal Revenue Service District.

J. ROBERT STARKEY
A career government official, Starkey began his IRS employment in 1961 as an Internal Revenue Officer in Raleigh and worked in the Greenville IRS office from March 1962 until January 1967.

After holding a series of increasingly responsible positions, including chief of the Collection and Taxpayer Service Division of the IRS District in Wilmington, Delaware, Starkey was selected in 1973 for the IRS Executive Selection and Development Program.
This program is one in which officials who demonstrate executive potential receive specialized training in preparation for higher level appointments.
Starkey, 37, graduated from Greenville High School and received a B. S. degree from East Carolina University in 1959 and his M. A. degree from ECU in 1961. He is married to the former Polly Brady of Greenville and they have two children.

Starkey's mother, Mrs. Mildred Starkey Beddard lives in Winterville.
The Nashville District, which Starkey now serves as director, serves all of Tennessee. In the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1973, the district's individual and corporate taxpayers filed 1,537,000 returns representing $2.8 billion in Federal taxes.

Dr. T. Eugene Yarbrough, Associate Professor of Political Science, East Carolina University, spoke on the impeachment process at the annual meeting of the Greenville Pitt County League of Women Voters.

Dr. Yarbrough outlined the impeachment process as it appears in the Constitution. A vote by simple majority in the House of Representatives for impeachment is comparable to an indictment by a grand jury. Such an indictment would be based on the finding of probable cause that some impeachable offense had been committed. The impeachment case would then go to the Senate for trial.

Dr. Yarbrough spoke of the differences between an impeachment trial and a regular trial, of the punishment upon conviction as outlined in the constitution, and of the past history of impeachments in our country. He discussed some of the major questions involved in the present impeachment inquiry.

members whose terms of office have expired. It was announced that Marion Moeller, the outgoing second vice president in charge of finance, has been appointed to the N.C. LWV State Board as finance director.
The election of new officers included the following: first vice president, Barbara Caspar; second vice president, Anne Frost; treasurer, Frieda Scharf; Board of Directors, Peggy Blanchard, Rose Richards, and Shirley Taylor; nominating committee, Mildred Indorf, Erica Grantmyre, and Eileen Waugh.
The meeting ended with a brief address by Rhea Resnik, the LWV President, on long and short range goals for the League.

Vets For Morgan Committee Formed

Attorney General Robert Morgan announced today the establishment of a Veterans for Morgan steering committee in support of his senatorial campaign.

Ernest L. Avery of Greenville is one of 23 persons named by Morgan to the committee.

Morgan, a veteran of World War II and the Korean War, is a retired naval line officer and an Air Force reserve officer, has long been active in veterans' affairs.

A candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U. S. Senate, Morgan said "those who have been willing to sacrifice their lives for their country and have defended its honor deserve fair treatment from the Government."

"I will support continued benefits for our veterans, including assistance for those who fought honorably in the Vietnam War." Vietnam veterans, he said, "should receive treatment and attention at least equal in scope to the veterans of former wars."

The Veterans for Morgan committee will be headed by former North Carolina American Legion Commander Charles B. Hudson, an Orange County attorney.

LATIN PARLEYS
WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Henry Kissinger opens four days of consultations with Latin American foreign ministers today, hoping to make progress toward his goal of a revitalized U. S. policy in the hemisphere.

Seven Hurt

Seven persons were reported injured by police who investigated an 8:05 p.m. collision here Monday at the intersection of Hudson and Fleming Streets.

Officers identified the drivers involved as Laverne Frank of Route 6, Greenville and Robert Earl Wooten of 1505 West 14th St.

Both drivers and five passengers in the Frank car were listed by police as injured.

Wooten was charged with driving under the influence and operating left of center following investigation of the collision.

One Killed On Artillery Range

FT. BRAGG, N.C. (AP)—One soldier was killed and three were injured by shrapnel Tuesday at an artillery impact area during infantry field training exercises at Ft. Bragg. Army authorities reported.

They said two of the injured men were treated and released and the third was admitted for treatment and observation.
Names will be released after it has been made certain that relatives have been notified, authorities said.

NOTICE

TO ALL HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS

Are you aware of the Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program?

The Basic Educational Opportunity Grant Program is a Federal aid program designed to provide financial assistance to those who need it to attend post-high school educational institutions. Basic Grants are intended to be the "floor" of a financial aid package and may be combined with other forms of aid in order to meet the full costs of education. The amount of your Basic Grant is determined on the basis of your own and your family's financial resources.

For further information contact your high school counselor or the financial aid office at the school you plan to attend.

Stock And Market Reports

RALEIGH (AP) — (CDA)
— North Carolina egg markets sharply weaker Tuesday on large and mediums, and slightly weaker on smalls. Supplies fully adequate, demand slow. Weighted average prices for small lot sales of consumer grade eggs in cartons delivered nearby outlets:
Grade A large whites 55.73, medium whites 48.72, small whites 38.84.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)
— Corn and soybean prices were stronger on North Carolina's leading grain markets Tuesday. No. 2 shelled corn was quoted at 2.48-2.70, most 2.65-2.70 per bushel in the east and 2.65-2.75 in the Piedmont. No. 1 yellow soybeans were 5.40-5.48 per bushel.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)
— North Carolina hogs were steady to mostly $1.00 higher today. Tops at 31.75-32.75 at Kinston and Lumberton; 29.25-31.25 Wilson and High Falls; 30.50-31.00 Rocky Mount; 31.00 Salisbury.

RALEIGH (AP) — (NCDA)
— North Carolina f.o.b. dock broilers: Market steady at 37.43 cents per pound. Supplies adequate and demand fairly good. Weights irregular but mostly desirable. Estimated slaughter 1,168,000.

North Carolina hens: Market stronger on heavy types. Offerings limited and demand good. Heavies, at farm, 14 cents per pound.

NEW YORK (AP) — A new increase in the prime lending rate derailed a rally attempt in the stock market today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which had been up more than two points in early trading, was off .39 at 860.84 at 11:30 a.m. shortly after Atlanta's Citizens & Southern National Bank raised its prime to 10 1/4 per cent on existing loans and 10 1/2 on new ones.

Advancing issues, however, maintained a 3-2 lead over declines on the New York Stock Exchange.

The market gained sharply Tuesday in an advance widely attributed to hopes that the recent surge of short term money rates was near an end.

Citizens & Southern became the third bank to lift its prime rate as high as 10 1/4 percent, following Monday's move by North Carolina National Bank and the Bank of California's Tuesday hike.

High interest rates have been cited as a major factor in the market's weakness over the past month.

Cadence Industries was the Big Board's most active stock, unchanged at 3. A 100,800-share block was traded at that price.

Polaroid, which reported lower first quarter earnings, fell 4 1/4 to 61.

Itek was down 1 1/4 to 13 1/4. Late Tuesday the company reported a first quarter loss.

Earnings gains in the first three months boosted Plessey Ltd. 1 1/4 to 17 1/2 and E.F. Hutton, the large brokerage house, 5 1/4 to 8.

Consolidated Oil & Gas, the American Stock Exchange volume leader, was up 1/4 to 8 1/4. The company reported a gas find in Webb County, Texas.

The Amex's 11 a.m. market-value index was up .28 at 94.28. The NYSE's composite index of all its listed common stocks stood at 49.99, up .11.

Rites Thursday For Prof. Earl E. Beach

Professor Earl E. Beach, 64, nationally known music educator and former Dean of the East Carolina University School of Music, died in Pitt Memorial Hospital Tuesday afternoon. He resided at 1603 Beaumont Rd.

EARL E. BEACH

In higher education, he served on the faculties of Mt. Union College, Ohio Wesleyan University, and the University of Georgia. He was named Dean of the East Carolina Univ. School of Music in 1958 and served in that capacity until 1969. When he retired as Dean he continued to teach on the Music Education Faculty, and was to retire at the end of the current school year.

Professor Beach had served as visiting professor at Southern Mississippi University, University of West Virginia, University of Alabama, and University of Michigan. He had served in many capacities in the Music Educators National Conference, having been president of the Southern Division of MENC, president of the North Carolina MEC, had recently been awarded an honorary life membership in the North Carolina Music Educators Conference, and at the time of his death was Executive Secretary of the NCMEC.

The author of numerous articles in musicians' journals, Professor Beach had served on several national evaluation and advisory councils. He was cited in recent editions of 2000 Men of Achievement, 'Dictionary of International Biography, Who's Who in Music, Who's Who in the South and Southwest, National Register of Prominent Americans, Personalities of the South, and Outstanding Educators of America.

Professor Beach was a member of Phi Mu Alpha, Pi Kappa Lambda, Phi Delta Kappa, Phi Beta Mu, American Association of University Professors and Beta Theta Pi.

He was an active member of St. James United Methodist Church.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Vivian Stout Beach; a son, Dr. Theodore Wayne Beach of McLean, Va.; a daughter, Mrs. David Albrecht of Vero Beach, Fla.; and one grandson.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 o'clock Thursday morning at St. James United Methodist Church by the pastor, the Rev. Christian White, and the associate minister, the Rev. Gerald Peterson. Burial will be in Pinewood Memorial Park. The body will be taken from the Wilkerson Funeral Home to the Church at the funeral hour.

Professor Beach was born in Crestline, Ohio, and attended public schools there. He received his BSM degree from Capital University, Columbus, Ohio, and his M. A. degree from Western Reserve University. He also received further study at Ohio State University, the University of Pittsburgh, the University of Michigan, and the University of Georgia.

His teaching experience included positions in the public schools of Bellaire, Ohio, Alliance, Ohio, Charlevoix, Michigan, and Cleveland, Ohio.

Obituaries

Hinson
Mrs. Earline Briley Hinson, 50, died at her home at McGowan's Trailer Park near Greenville Tuesday night at seven o'clock.

Charlie Chaplin Is Serenaded

CORSIER-SUR-VEVEY, Switzerland (AP) — Silent movie king Charles Chaplin was serenaded by local school children and given four bottles of wine by Corsier's mayor Tuesday on his 85th birthday.

"I am intensely happy to be alive," Chaplin said in an interview.

The comedian spent his birthday with his wife Oona and their three youngest children at Chaplin's 37-acre estate overlooking Lake Geneva.

The gift of wine is a tradition here for honoring octogenarians.

Arrest Pair On Kidnap Charge

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (AP) — A teen-aged girl and her boyfriend accused of kidnaping a coed have been arrested.

The boyfriend also is accused of raping the coed, Karen McDonald, 18, of Grand Island near Buffalo, N.Y., a freshman at the University of North Carolina at Asheville.

Police said that Louise Mona Bray, 17, an unemployed waitress at whose apartment Miss McDonald allegedly was held captive from last Friday until she escaped Monday, turned herself in Tuesday. Her boyfriend, Walter Smith, 25, had been arrested Monday night.

Police quoted coed as saying she accompanied Miss Bray to the apartment on the pretext that she would be interviewed for an article on teen-agers that Miss Bray was writing.

18th Victim

By LINDA KRAMER Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A young man was gunned down in the street Tuesday night in what police said appeared to be the 18th random attack on whites by one or more black assailants. The latest victim in the so-called "Zebra" shootings was Nelson T. Shields IV, 23, who was fatally wounded by a gunman who shot him in the back at point-blank range.

"It looks like another Zebra case," said Police Inspector Gus Coreris, referring to the police code name for the case. A total of 12 persons have been killed and six wounded since last November. In each case, the victims were white and the assailant was black.

Other similarities to previous shootings were the weapon used, a .32-caliber pistol, and the apparent lack of motivation. Shields, the son of Du Pont Co., executive in Wilmington, Del., was shot three times outside a home in a quiet residential street where he had come with a friend to pick up a rug.

The shooting in the Ingleside District was several miles from the Western Addition area where most of the previous shootings took place.

A neighbor who heard the shots told police she saw a black man running up the street. Police said the gunman apparently approached Shields on foot and shot him in the back as he bent over the tailgate of the car.

Taking another shot at Morgan, he told newsmen that "In Greensboro last week, Mr. Morgan either had a lapse of memory or was deliberately trying to misrepresent his participation in the 1960 presidential campaign. In a speech at UNC-Greensboro, he claimed that he was 'co-manager for the John F. Kennedy presidential campaign in the fall of 1960.'"

"I was statewide manager of the Kennedy campaign," Wilson said. "Robert Morgan certainly was not co-manager on the state level, which is the implication he is trying to leave. Now if he was co-manager in Harnett County, he should say so. But I don't recall even that much participation. One thing is certain, for someone claiming to be co-manager, he sure was never around the headquarters doing any work."

Find Body Of Unknown Girl

ROCKY MOUNT, N.C. (AP) — A boy walking through a wooded area saw part of a leg and of a torso sticking out of the ground.

He notified authorities, who unearthed from a shallow grave Tuesday the partially clad body of a girl they said appeared to be in her teens.

Police said her wrists were tied, and called it an apparent murder.

They said they had no record of any missing person who might fit the description of the body found off a residential street on the outskirts of Rocky Mount.

They summoned the FBI and the State Bureau of Investigation to help in the investigation. The body was sent to Chapel Hill for an autopsy.

Rose High School rode some timely hits and some untimely wild pitches to a 5-2 victory over Rocky Mount yesterday in a Division I baseball game.

The loss was only the second suffered this year by the defending state champ Gryphons. They had lost previously to Wilson, in another conference game, and it dropped their record to 4-2 in the league.

Rose, with the win, climbed to 3-2 in the conference, and can tie Rocky Mount for second place with a victory over Northern Nash this afternoon at Guy Smith Stadium.

Kelly Heath tossed the victory, winning his second straight game. He allowed only three hits by the Gryphons, two of them cheap ones, and both of the runs scored against him were unearned.

Greg Proctor, who had gone 4-0 so far this year, was tagged with the loss. He gave up six hits, but his wildness was a great contribution to his defeat. Going into the game, he had an earned run average of 0.34. All five of the Rose runs, however, were earned.

The Gryphons pushed into the lead in the top of the first, getting one run across. Marvin Dancy led off with a walk and Tommy Warrick got a slow roller just past the glove of Gil Whitford for a single. After a fly-out, Tommy Crocker singled off the glove of Keith Jones at third, loading the bases. A passed ball let Dancy score, but the Rampants got the rest of the side out without more damage.

Rocky Mount threatened in the second when Hilton Sykes and Dancy both walked, but it ended there. In the third, however, they came up with another run.

Phil Ford singled sharply to third, then stole second. Tommy Crocker reached on an error, moving Ford to third. Crocker then stole second, and the throw to get him was errored, allowing Ford to race home for the 2-0 lead.

After that, Rocky Mount fared less well. Proctor reached third in the fourth, leading off with a walk, then moving around on a bunt, but he was the last baserunner until one was out in the seventh. Warrick reached on an error then, and with two down, Crocker walked, but a fly out ended the game.

Rose, meanwhile, had threatened in the first two innings before finally coming up with two runs in the third and to tie it up. With two down in the first, Griff Garner has walked and Robert Brinkley reached on an error. Macon Moye walked to load them up, but a ground out ended the threat.

In the second, Jerry Griffin walked, and his courtesy runner, Dickie Johnson, took second on a wild pitch, then got to third on a passed ball, but died there.

Garner led off the third with a single into center, the first hit for the Rampants. Brinkley promptly cracked another into right center, and Moye laid down a perfect punt between the mound and third, reaching safely to load the bases. With one down, Ron Hunt lined a shot into center, scoring both Garner and Brinkley to tie the game at 2-2. A double play then got Rocky Mount out of the inning.

In the fourth, Griffin led off with a single, and was sacrificed up. Johnson, running for him, took third on a wild pitch, but was doubled off when Gil Whitford hit a line drive to short.

Finally, in the sixth, the Rampants struck for the winning runs. Al Heath led off with a single to left and stole second. With one down, Kelly Heath walked and Johnson ran for him. Griffin also walked and Ronnie Rasberry took his place at first to run.

Proctor unloaded a wild pitch, and Al Heath raced home to put the Rampants into a 3-2 lead. With two down, Whitford walked, reloading the bases. Proctor again unleashed a wild throw. This time, the ball caromed around the backstop, ending up in front of the Rocky Mount dugout. While Sykes tried to find it, Johnson streaked home, and Rasberry came all the way from second, just scoring as the throw by Proctor, who finally chased down the ball, threw just off target to home.

Sykes, upset in the collision with Rasberry, again lost the ball, but finally recovered it in time to get Whitford, who had come all the way from first base. But by then, it was too late, as the Rampants had charged into a 5-2 lead, one they held.

Boston, Bucks Claim Victories Bucs Schedule Day For Youth

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn gambled and won.

New York Coach Red Holzman took a chance and lost.

And because of those two decisions, the Celtics beat the Knicks 111-99 Tuesday night and took a commanding 2-0 lead in their National Basketball Association Eastern Conference best-of-seven final series, which continues in Boston Friday night.

In the only other pro basketball action Tuesday night the Milwaukee Bucks whipped the Chicago Bulls 101-85 in game one of the NBA Western Conference finals.

The moves by Heinsohn and Holzman both came in the decisive third period, when the Celtics turned a 60-53 halftime deficit into an 86-74 lead, outscoring New York 33-14.

Heinsohn took his calculated risk with 3:10 remaining in the quarter when his superstar and captain, John Havlicek, incurred his fifth personal foul. The Celtics, spurred by a 19-4 Lewis Morris, lineman, 6-0, 240, Macon, Southwest; Richard Reeves, lineman, 6-0, 218, Macon, Southwest.

The others are Vinco Kolanko, back, 5-10, 185, Weirton, W. Va., and Ronnie Ragland, the usually vital fourth quarter, Va., Nelson County. Heinsohn left him in the game.

"I kept him in because that's where the game was going to be won or lost," explained Heinsohn. "If I take him out, it's like he committed his sixth personal."

The decision paid off. Havlicek, who had fired in a remarkable 19 points in the first period—only three short of the NBA playoff record of 22—hitting his last seven shots for Boston's final 14 points of the quarter, didn't draw another foul. He played the rest of the way and wound up as the game's high scorer with 27 points.

Holzman's decision came earlier in the third quarter. After the first minute, he took out his defensive bulwark, Dave DeBusschere, who was limping. But less than a minute later, he decided to reinsert the veteran forward.

The East Carolina University football team resumes practice this afternoon, and will work twice more, with Saturday being Parents and Youth Day for the Pirates.

The Bucs will entertain members of the community at the affair, which Coach Pat Dye hopes will become an annual one.

"This football team belongs to the student body of the university and the whole community," Dye said. "This Youth and Parents Day is something we can do for the community. We want everyone to have a chance to visit with the players on a personal basis on the field because that is where they are working. This special day gives young people a chance to get out on the field where the action takes place and meet the players they admire most. We hope everyone will come out."

The afternoon will begin at 2 p.m. with playing tips and an autograph session for the youth of the community. A game-type scrimmage will be held at 3 p.m.

In addition to all the players, the entire coaching staff will be on hand to meet people.

Following the three days of work this week, Dye plans to put the Pirates through workouts on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday of next week, leaving three days for the final week, including the Purple-Gold game on Saturday, May 4.

"We are just going to try and get better, primarily by repetition," the coach said. "We're going to work on some other formations, putting in the rest of our offense."

Cubs Top Bears, 1-0

WILLIAMSTON—Williamston High School's "B" team gained a 1-0 victory over Bear Grass yesterday, despite a one-hit effort by Mark Gardner.

Gardner faced his cousin, Tommy Gardner in the effort, but his teammates couldn't put anything on the boards for him. He struck out five and walked none, although he hit two batters, in going the distance.

Tommy Gardner, who got the win, hurled for the first five innings, walking four and striking out four. Arty Rogers pitched the last two innings.

The lone run in the game came in the fifth inning. Greg Roberson got the lone hit for the Tiger Cubs, then stole second. He moved to third when Herby Rogers reached on an error, then came in when Eddie Odom hit into a fielder's choice.

Bear Grass loaded the bases three times in the game, but still failed to push a run across.

The loss dropped Bear Grass to 3-4 for the year, while Williamston is now 4-0.

The two teams meet again in Bear Grass next Tuesday.

It's a pretty tough life when a baseball player can go one-for-two and drop his average.

That's what happened to Rose High School's Griff Garner yesterday in the Rampant victory over Rocky Mount yesterday. Garner had an eight-hit streak stopped last Friday when he finally fanned against Kinston High School. Over the last five games however, he's been 10 for 12.

Nevertheless, yesterday's .500 performance hurt his average. He went into the game with 15 hits in 25 trips, a .600 average. He's now 16 for 27, a .593 average.

Maybe he can pick it up in today's game with Northern Nash.

The new World Football League continues its raids into the National Football League, picking up now a total of 25 players. That might not sound like much, but many of the players who have signed are the top ones around.

Oakland, for instance, is now in the market for a quarterback. Both Daryle Lamonica and Kenny Stabler have both signed for future WFL contracts. That leaves only George Blanda, the old pro, still in the stable for two years from now.

The American Basketball Association is going after NBA regulars now. They figure that if the WFL can do it to the NFL, they can do it to their rivals too.

That might speed up the proposed merger of the two groups, but we doubt it. Probably it will only widen the gap.

And waiting right in the wings is a baseball league that's wanting to get going. And they'll probably take the same tact, raiding the American and National Leagues for their players.

It all adds up to open warfare between the leagues, with the money flying around like nobody's business.

Lamonica made the statement yesterday, following his signing by the WFL that, "I have great respect for the Oakland Raiders and Al Davis (who brought Lamonica to Oakland and made him a star) for giving me the chance to be a starting quarterback."

What he didn't say was that all that didn't mean much any more since he was no longer that starting quarterback and that somebody else was going to give him more money.

Already, the Carolina Cougars are in a money squeeze. They have to average over 8,000 people per game just to pay the salaries and other expenses of their team.

The fantastic salaries being paid professional athletes today are out of sight. Some are making more a minute than many people will make in their entire lives.

And the end is not yet in sight.

HOLLYWOOD—Two runs came over in the seventh inning as a result of an error on Randy Adam's single to left to give the D. H. Conley Vikings a 7-6 win over Eastern Carolina Conference foe, Southern Wayne, yesterday.

Ayden-Grifton Nips Falcons

PIKEVILLE—Ayden-Grifton High School held onto a share of first place in the Eastern Carolina Conference with a 2-1 victory over Charles B. Aycock High School yesterday.

Eddie McCullen went all the way to record the victory for the Chargers, allowing four hits. He struck out three and walked three. The loser, Parker Davis, allowed the Chargers only one hit, but it was enough. He struck out 10 and walked four in the heartbreaking loss.

The game was a scoreless deadlock until the sixth inning when Ayden-Grifton used its lone hit to push over a run. Ronnie Salmon walked and Tom Craft was hit by a pitch. Don Phillips then came up with the Charger hit, driving in Salmon

The game was a close battle all the way with each team using two pitchers. Neal Bartlett started for the Saints but was knocked out in the fifth when Conley rallied for a 5-1 lead. Viking hurler Bobby Bryan was lifted in the sixth after the Saints had rallied to tie the game, 5-5. Bryan started off strong, striking out the first four men he faced. He ended up with eight strike outs, two walks and gave up four hits. Jack Jones relieved him and got the win although his performance was shaky.

Bartlett fanned seven Vikings, walked two and gave up five hits before bowing out. Branny Vickory was credited with the loss.

The Vikings had taken a slim, 1-2, lead in the first but the Saints tied it in the third. Conley forged back on top in the fifth with four tallied but again Southern Wayne tied it with a four-run spurt of their own in the top of the sixth. The Saints pushed over a single score in the seventh but Conley won it on a freak play on the hit by Adams.

Bryan struck out the side to open the game and his teammates responded by getting him a run. Vic Corey slapped a one-out single to center and stole second. Donnie Cox moved Corey to third with a base hit and a single by Bryan scored Corey. Greg Gardner singled for the first Saint hit in the second and moved around when an infield hit by Bartlett and a walk by James Garnett loaded the bases. Bryan fanned the next batter getting out of the spot.

The Saints picked up in the third where they left off and tagged Bryan for a run. Ron Pelletier singled and moved to third when the ball got away from the Vikings' second baseman when Pelletier tried to steal. Vickory singled off the third baseman scoring Pelletier.

The score did not change until the fifth. Conley had gotten a man to third in the fourth as Adams singled, stole second and took another base on a wild pitch but he could not score.

Then in the fifth, the Vikings batted around to get four runs. Clennel Streeter walked with one out and stole second and third. An error on the second steal let Streeter score. Corey was hit by a pitch and after he stole second, Cox reached on an outfield error letting Corey score. Cox stole second.

Bryan kept it going with a single to drive in Cox and on the throw in, Bryan went to second. A wild pitch moved him to third and Adams banged out his second hit to bring in Bryan.

But the Saints had not given up. Bartlett led off the sixth with a walk and Garnett reached on an error. Nelson Smith hit a pinch-hit single scoring Bartlett and moving Garnett to third. An error on the play put Smith on second.

Bucs Fall To Bulldogs

WILSON—Atlantic Christian College rolled to an 8-1 victory over the East Carolina University tennis team yesterday.

The Bucs managed to win only the final doubles event of the afternoon, after the Bulldogs had wrapped up the victory. East Carolina did press the 'Dogs, however, going to three sets in four of the nine matches, and twice more going into tie-breakers.

The loss dropped the Pirates 3-9 overall, while Atlantic Christian is now 13-2. The Pirates play host to Davidson on Friday.

Summary:

Pat Taylor (AC) defeated Chris Davis, 6-3, 2-6, 6-0.

Home Run Is Special To Him

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer
Houston's Tom Griffin has the hitting power of a moose and the memory of an elephant when it comes to recalling his home runs.

But pitchers are supposed to remember things like shutouts and earned run average and innings pitched...aren't they?

"You know how it is with pitchers," said Griffin after his 4-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants Tuesday night. "Home runs are something special to a pitcher when he hits one."

And Griffin unloaded the fifth of his career—a two-run shot—in the fifth inning of his three-hit triumph over the Giants.

Elsewhere in the National League, the Philadelphia Phillies bombed the St. Louis Cardinals 10-3; the Pittsburgh Pirates defeated the Chicago Cubs 8-5 in 12 innings; the Montreal Expos tripped the New York Mets 4-1; the Atlanta Braves nipped the San Diego Padres 4-2, and the Los Angeles Dodgers topped the Cincinnati Reds 5-3 in 11 innings.

Ask the 26-year-old right-hander how many shutouts he has, and you'll get a blank stare. Griffin didn't know Tuesday's whitewash was the sixth of his career.

Griffin used only 93 pitches in dispatching the Giants. He retired the last 18 batters consecutively and threw only seven non-strikes in the last five innings.

Griffin had an infield single in the third inning before the home run raised his batting average to .429.

The triumph, meanwhile, lowered Griffin's earned run average to 1.22 and raised his record to 2-1.

Phillies 10, Cardinals 3
Steve Carlton pitched the Phillies to their fifth straight victory while Mike Anderson hit a two-run double and Dave Cash drove in three runs to defeat St. Louis.

Carlton surrendered nine hits but won his first game this season. He comes off a 20-loss season in 1973.

The Phils scored five times in the sixth inning and added three in the seventh—one of them on an RBI single by Carlton.

Pirates 8, Cubs 5
Frank Taveras drove in Willie Stargell with the winning run

In the past 10 years, five World Series games have gone extra innings.

and Manny Sanguillen added two more in the 12th inning to spark the Pirates to their second victory in nine games.

Pittsburgh's Richie Hebner went three-for-four in the contest, including a home run and a fifth-inning single which put his team in front 5-4. Al Oliver had a three-run homer for Pittsburgh.

The Cubs had tied it in the sixth on a sacrifice fly by Dave Rosello. Chicago had scored four times in the bottom of the first, including Jose Cardenal's two-run shot.

Expos 4, Mets 1
Montreal got three runs in the eighth inning on Ron Fairly's single and a two-run error by New York shortstop Ted Martinez.

Rusty Staub's first-inning home run was matched in the seventh by the Expos' Bob Bailey.

Steve Renko and Chuck Taylor combined to hold New York to four hits and hand 1973 Cy Young award winner Tom Seaver his first loss of the season.

Braves 4, Padres 2
Darrell Evans clubbed a two-run homer, Dusty Baker extended his hitting streak to 10 games with a single to center, and Ron Reed pitched eight innings of seven-hit ball to carry Atlanta past San Diego.

Reed left the game in favor of Jack Aker in the ninth inning, and the game nearly got away from the Braves. Aker loaded the bases and Danny Frisella relieved Aker, only to give up a two-run single to Dave Winfield. But Frisella got out of the jam later.

Dodger 5, Reds 3
Los Angeles caught Cincinnati with a two-run ninth inning, then Bill Russell doubled home two runs in the 11th for the victory.

Jimmy Wynn hit his fifth home run of the season and pinch runner Rick Auerbach scored another to tie the game in the ninth.

Russell's double came with the bases loaded after Auerbach singled and was sacrificed to second; then Joe Ferguson was walked intentionally and Steve Garvey singled to load the bases and set the scene for Russell.

Six-Ton Rock For Geology Students

By JERRY RAYNOR
Reflector Staff Writer

Porphyroblastic gneiss is the scientific name for the big rock. Just before lunchtime Tuesday, an orange truck unloaded the six ton hard rock at one of the Geology Building on a strip of grass in front of glossy leafed shrubbery.

Students and faculty members watched as the dark gray squarish shaped fragment left the truck bed and settled in place on top of a cushioning pile of coarse sand.

"The round blotches and strings you see in this rock," Edward (Ned) Slagle explained, "gives the rock its name. This rock has particularly large areas of this type formation."

Ned, a native of Webster in the mountains of North Carolina, is a graduate student majoring in geology. To show those gathered around how the beauty of the rock is highlighted when it's wet, he poured water over the surface. The ends, one side and the top have colors of shades of dark blue gray, filagreed with veins of tiny white threadlike deposits. One side glowed under the water in a rich, brown-orange color.

"We first discovered this rock," Ned said, "when a group of us went on a field trip to the Princeton Quarry of the Nello L. Teer Company of Durham."

The Princeton Quarry (on U. S. 70 between Goldsboro and Smithfield) Ned said, "was due to be closed down as the company was going to move to a new location a mile or two away."

Saying the group had been pleased to find this excellent specimen of porphyroblastic gneiss, they began to think in terms of trying to acquire it. "It was on March 16 we discovered it," Ned said, "so we had to work quickly. Once a pit is abandoned, rain quickly fills it and this rock would have soon been under water where it could not be retrieved."

Action was taken immediately, with letters sent to the Nello L. Teer Company of Durham, operators of the Princeton Quarry, and to administrative officials at East Carolina University.

With university clearance and "really fine cooperation" from the Nello Teer Company, "we now have this rock. It's not only good to look at," Ned said, "but will be a good specimen for students to study."

Ned said that in appreciation of the Teer company, he hopes that a plaque can be made to be affixed to the rock to show that the company contributed it to

ECU.

According to Ned, the presence of a porphyroblastic gneiss type rock is unusual in the area in which it was found. "This is a hard rock. Most rocks in this area are soft rocks. In fact, sand and fossils are usually what's found in this area. Hard rocks usually occur only much farther west."

Chances are that students, who will hardly be able to resist the temptation to sit on the rock for sunning and-or studying, will find a shorter name to give the rock. After all, even the most dedicated geology student might not want to ask his girl to "sit with me on the porphyroblastic gneiss."

Cole Porter Show Slated

Cole Porter, one of America's all time great composer-lyricist who immortalized the spirit of his age through music, was the inspiration for the new musical, RSVP—The Cole Porters, which will be performed on Monday in McGinnis Auditorium at 8:15 p.m.

The musical, starring Jack and Sally Jenkins, is touring for three months and is being presented on major theatre series in the east and midwest.

Porter composed 670 songs plus approximately 50 Broadway musicals including Kiss Me Kate, Can-Can and Silk Stockings.

Tickets may be purchased at the East Carolina University Central Ticket Office, Box 2731, East Carolina University, Greenville, N. C. 27834. Tickets are $3.00.

Abbie Hoffman Again Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — Abbie Hoffman, a radical youth leader in the 1960s, has failed to appear in court to face a narcotics charge and a warrant for his arrest has been issued.

State Supreme Court Justice Mary Johnson signed a bench warrant Tuesday after Hoffman's attorney was unable to produce his client. Prosecutors said Hoffman was last seen here Feb. 5 when he taped a television show.

Hoffman faces a 15-year to life prison term if convicted on charges of selling three pounds of cocaine for $36,000 to an undercover agent last Aug. 29. He had been free on bond of $10,000.

No Job For Teacher, So Now Miner

By HARRY ATKINS
Associated Press Writer
WHITE PINE, Mich. (AP) — Gene Boggetto graduated from Northern Michigan University in June 1972 and looked forward to finding a teaching job in his native Upper Peninsula.

Last July, he gave up the search in despair and became the third generation of his family to "go underground" as a miner at the only mine left in this once ore-rich country.

Boggetto's plight is symbolic of the malaise faced by every young man and woman growing up in the incredibly beautiful western end of the U.P., where deserted shafts stand as a haunting reminder of the area's sagging economy.

"Oh, there are jobs for people who want to work," Boggetto insisted recently. "But what are they? They're working in the plywood plant or logging or going underground."

Boggetto, 23, still dreams of finding a teaching job, and so does his wife, Pat. But they have a 19-month-old baby now and they admit it will become increasingly difficult to leave the copper mine as the weeks turn into months. His job pays about $4.25 an hour to start.

"It pays good. That's the rub," Pat said. "It pays so much better than a surface job. You get used to the money and you buy so much stuff on time. Then you can't afford to leave the mine any more."

The giant mine carved out of a wilderness 20 years ago by Copper Range Co. employs nearly 3,000 men, making it easily the area's largest employer. But even the old-timers cling stubbornly to the hope that other things will open up.

As a result, few live here in this modern company town. Most prefer instead to ride as much as 200 miles a day round-trip in dismal buses from Calumet, Houghton, Bessemer and Ironwood.

Gene and Pat have a modern three-bedroom apartment in Bessemer, about 50 miles from White Pine. They pay $95 a month rent, a rate city dwellers would consider a bargain.

But, since Bessemer is on Central time and White Pine is on Eastern, he has to get up at 4 a.m. in order to make the long bus ride through the woods and report for work on the 7 a.m. shift.

His father, Charlie, 49, makes the same trip. Charlie is a division foreman and has been in the mines for 30 years. He complains of the new breed of worker, too, just as a line foreman on a Detroit auto assembly line might.

"The wives of the older men who've been down just don't seem to mind it," Pat said. "But the younger ones, they don't fight with their husbands before they go to work. Never make your last words angry, you never know..."

A friend of theirs was killed in a cave-in shortly before Gene went into the mine. He was crushed when the roof broke in a new part of the mine.

"That didn't set too well," Pat understated. "I don't like him going underground. I'm afraid he'll get his head knocked off with one of those rocks."

Early Skiing By Gold Miners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The lost Sierra is an isolated corner of northeastern California that the '49ers penetrated for gold. In the beginning, most of them abandoned their diggings with the first heavy snowfall and retreated to the protection of the lowlands and valleys.

The Scandinavians jumping ship in San Francisco to join the gold rush taught them to make skis, and the miners conquered a region that was snow-bound for seven months of the year, with drifts as high as 40 feet.

Sheepskins Cut Bedsore Rate

MELBOURNE (UPI) — The Austin Hospital here has decided that sometimes old ways of doing things are better than new. After trying various new materials and methods it has gone back to using sheepskins to reduce the incidence of bedsores in patients.

Book Angers Yugoslavia

GEN. MIHAILOVIC, who was executed in 1946 for collaborating with the Germans—which, according to Walter Roberts, Tito was prepared to do himself. (UPI Telephoto)

By BARRY WATERS
BELGRADE (UPI) — A new book by an American diplomat has angered the Yugoslav Communist Party hierarchy for contradicting the official version of the Partisan struggle against the German occupiers during World War II.

Yugoslav newspapers have attacked Walter Roberts' "Tito, Mihailovic and the Allies, 1941-45" as a "slandering pamphlet" which has "falsified history."

The book, which is banned in Yugoslavia, seeks to restore the reputation of the discredited General Dragoljub-Draza Mihailovic, leader of the Chetnik remnants of the Yugoslav royalist forces, and says that President Tito was prepared to collaborate with the occupying Nazi forces in the last years of the war.

Roberts, an assistant director of the United States Information Agency, based his work on hitherto unpublished U.S. diplomatic archive material which recorded that in 1943 Tito sent a three-man delegation to negotiate an exchange of prisoners with the Germans and discuss calling a truce.

Roberts backed this up quoting from a telegram written by the German minister in Zagreb during the war, Siegfried Kasche, to German foreign minister Joachim von Ribbentrop.

Referring to the German-Partisan talks Kasche said it was possible "that Tito and his supporters will cease to fight Germany, Italy and Croatia and retire to the Sandzak in order to settle matters with Mihailovic's Chetniks..."

Roberts, who was U.S. embassy counsellor in Belgrade from 1960-66, said no such agreement was made because Ribbentrop vetoed it. But Roberts' evidence that Tito tried to call it quits has seriously contradicted the official Yugoslav version of those years which pictures Tito and his Partisans as never wavering in their struggle against the Fascist occupiers.

It also adds irony to the fact that in 1946 Tito had Mihailovic executed for collaborating with the Germans—which, according to Roberts, Tito was prepared to do himself.

Military sources here, who are veterans of the war years, confirm that delegations were sent to hold talks with the Germans on exchanging prisoners, on securing recognition of the Partisan army in order that prisoners would be treated under the Geneva Convention, and to learn what kind of terms would be acceptable for a truce.

These sources maintain, however, that the Partisan delegations went tongue-in-cheek to such talks and did not take the discussions seriously. Their purpose was also partly to gather information, in the Yugoslav version.

In general, Roberts' book pays tribute to the achievements of Tito and his Partisans even though the Yugoslavs complain, as one reviewer wrote, that he has used "proofs that do not correspond to the historical truth."

Writer-Lawyer Is Juggling 2 Careers

By PHIL THOMAS
AP Books Editor
NEW YORK (AP) — There are times when attorney Louis Auchincloss will sit at the desk in his Wall Street law firm office and write a short story or work on a novel. And there are times when writer Auchincloss will be sitting in the privacy of his New York home practicing law.

Auchincloss is one of those rare people who has managed to combine two distinct careers successfully, although he admits the combining was a "long, tortured procedure that took a great deal of stress and misery" to bring off.

The 56-year-old Auchincloss, wearing a conservatively-cut dark suit enlivened by green suspenders, leaned back from his desk and said, "My time is pretty much my own. If I want to write in the office and practice law at home I can. Of course, there are certain things which I have to produce for the firm (in which he is a partner handling mostly estates and trusts) and I do them. But I find that if my writing goes well my law practice seems to go well also."

24 books, the latest a novel called "The Partners," says, "None of my family ever wrote, but I always wanted to be a writer. I didn't get any encouragement, so I gave up the idea and went to law school."

"You see, I grew up with the idea that writing was not a man's game. The law, business, medicine were the proper fields for men in the bourgeois New York world I grew up in. But not writing."

After four years of World War II naval service, Auchincloss practiced law until 1952, when he dropped out to try his hand at being a fulltime writer.

"I didn't have much money," he says with a smile, "and if my father hadn't helped me out I don't think I could have swung it from the writing alone."

He published a couple of novels during this period but decided to return to law practice in 1954 because "I found I was writing less as a fulltime writer than I had been as a lawyer-writer."

"I wanted to see if I could make it as a writer and found that at the time there was no economic future in it."

Japan Puts New Stress On Research

By STEVE WILSON MACHIDA, Japan (AP) — Dr. Hiroshi Kawamura is back in Japan again studying how the brain works, after spending 10 years of research at medical centers in the United States and Italy.

His return home to Japan is symbolic of the rising status of scientists in Japan, although the country still relies heavily on technology imported from overseas.

Western and Japanese sources believe there are increasing signs that Japan's scientific establishment is coming up to par with other major nations, particularly in some areas of the computer, chemical and electronic industries.

Also, engineers for Japan's Honda and Mazda car makers have developed some of the world's most pollution-free auto engines which are getting wide attention in the United States.

But Dr. Kawamura, 46, isn't trying for some new commercial breakthrough. He spends his time surrounded by electrodes, sophisticated electronic test equipment and a small computer, studying the brains of house cats. He thinks they also indicate how the largely unknown human brain functions.

"I couldn't expect to join this type of institute 10 years ago when I left Japan," Kawamura explains. He says he has three times as much laboratory equipment available to him now as he had in the United States.

And his return to Japan meant a "little but not much" of a cut in his $18,000 annual salary.

He was on the payroll of the University of California while working at the Lafayette Clinic in Detroit. He also did research at the University of California in Los Angeles and at the University of Pisa in Italy before going to Michigan.

Kawamura's laboratories are in the Mitsubishi Chemical Co.'s nonprofit Institute of Life Sciences which it set up in 1971 at a cost of $6.6 million.

The institute has about 100 staff members and is on a high hill overlooking Machida, a quiet town about 25 miles southwest of Tokyo.

Few of Japan's scientists are as lucky as Dr. Kawamura. But more and more time and money is being spent in Japan on research and development, according to various sources.

Total expenditures by government and business for scientific and technological studies in Japan in fiscal 1972 were $5.9 billion, according to the prime minister's office. That was an increase of 17 per cent over the previous year.

Evidence of this increased spending in Japan is easy to see. University laboratories are better equipped than ever before, although many of the buildings are still rat traps by U.S. standards.

Japan does not have large-scale military and space research programs like the United States. Only about 25 per cent of Japan's R and D spending is paid for by government. Business pays the rest.

Various independent research institutes have been set up by businesses. For instance, Keidanren, the big business organization, has set up an Oceanographic Research Institute at Yokosuka, south of Tokyo.

It hopes to develop the technology for underwater habitats which could be built in Japan and exported to other countries. Such living areas would be used by offshore oil workers, bridge builders and others utilizing the seas.

The single largest government project to promote research is the creation of "Science City" at Tsukuba, about 35 miles northeast of Tokyo.

It will cost about $1.6 billion and will create a community of 100,000 or so scientists and their families. At least 43 governmental research and training institutes and also some university labs will be moved to the site during the next several years.

Swedish Spies Anger Finland

By PHILIP M. STONE HELSINKI (UPI) — Finland, in a unique location as the only neutral country bordering the Soviet Union, has long been aware that it is a popular base for spies of the East and West.

But the revelation a few weeks ago that her Nordic neighbor and friend, Sweden, was among the most vigorous in espionage resulted in a verbal protest and an eventual meeting of the two government leaders. The issue is now officially dead but few Finns will forget.

Finnish newspapers for several months reported detailed information of alleged spying by Swedish intelligence (IB) agents. The government remained silent but, as it developed later, was conducting its own investigation.

The newspapers said the Swedes for several years had been overflying Finnish military installations on photo missions, that they had buried large amounts of radio equipment in Lapland, that a spyboat took on supplies in a Finnish harbor, and that IB agents set up a radio listening post in a hotel on the Finnish-Russian border.

Ambassador Protests
The parliamentary Committee on Foreign Policy accepted a government report on the matter March 13, voted not to investigate further and to keep the findings secret despite demands by the Communists for a fuller investigation and report.

Hours later, the government apparently changed its mind, and announced that its ambassador to Stockholm, Max Jakobson, had on Feb. 18 protested to Swedish Foreign Minister Sven Andersson about the spying.

"Ambassador Jakobson submitted that the government of Finland regards such activity as highly deplorable and cannot sanction it," the foreign ministry said.

After the Finns publicized Jakobson's protest, Andersson publicly admitted that one spyboat did take on supplies in a Finnish harbor and it was a mistake, but he denied all other charges.

Kekkonen Angered
That denial reportedly angered Finnish President Urho K. Kekkonen who decided not to let the matter stop there. Kekkonen was due to fly to Sweden the following weekend for a private fishing trip and he announced he would lunch on the last day of his visit with Swedish Premier Olof Palme and Andersson.

During that Stockholm lunch March 17, Palme reiterated that the ship incident was a mistake, but said he had no evidence that photos had been taken while Swedish planes overflew Finnish territory. Kekkonen reportedly replied the evidence was very strong that illegal action had taken place.

Officials said Palme pledged Sweden would honor the Finnish position that spying was unacceptable and a communique said later: "The discussions were fruitful and the matter is concluded between the countries."

Later Palme told the press, "It is good that the relationship between Finland and Sweden is so good that these type of matters can be discussed at the top level."

Questions Unanswered
One source at the meeting said, however, that Palme did not answer all of Kekkonen's questions and he invoked the rule of secrecy several times. He explained a small country like Sweden must keep secrecy in such matters to protect its neutrality.

Few Swedes had ever heard much about their intelligence service until three journalists last year wrote about IB activities. They were arrested and sentenced to one year imprisonment each for espionage, but an appeal court lowered one of the sentences to 10 months.

Swedish author Jan Myrdal, 47, known for his descriptive books on India and China, took up the journalists' case with appeals to the Finnish press to print the full IB story.

The Worry Clinic

Happy Wife Is Home-Oriented

Clark's wife is a classical case of a sex oriented female who places her own pleasures ahead of her children. Do you think she is just a scared menopausal wife? Or is she an intensely psychopathic personality? Can preachers change such people?

By GEORGE W. CRANE, Ph.D., M.D.
CASE Z-584: Clark K., aged 42, came to see me recently.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "my wife has moved out of our home. She says she wants her private apartment, so she can lead her own life, as she pleases. She has left me with 4 teenage daughters, who are very much devoted to me.

"I was reared in a good church home and took our daughters to Sunday School for the first few years.

"But my wife seemed somewhat hostile to church-going and in recent years, she has joined a women's bowling team, as well as a bridge club. A year ago, she insisted on getting a job, though I make enough to finance the family and felt she ought to be at home with our children.

"Early in our marriage, she began smoking and drinking. And recently I found out that she had had an affair with her employer.

"Dr. Crane, what is wrong with a woman who turns her back on religion and even her own children?"

Psychopathic
In Early childhood everybody has a "Fork-in-the-road" choice.

Should we focus on our own selfish pleasures or on some altruistic goals, such as helping make the world a better place for others?

That first option is expressed in the Hedonistic philosophy of: Eat, drink and be merry, for tomorrow we die."

That second choice is evidenced by church people and those who become active in the Red Cross, United Fund Drives, PTA, Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and missionary societies.

Ordinarily, you might think Clark's wife was merely in a menopausal panic, since she is 41, and scared lest she soon be "on the shelf."

But that dread can easily be dispelled if she realized that the womb (uterus) is relatively excess baggage, much like the vermiform appendix.

Thus, the womb can be removed by surgery (hysterectomy) or cease its monthly function at age 45, yet such a wife is not reduced in her romantic charm.

The appendix can also be excised yet such a patient doesn't lose her delight in dining room calories.

Remember, the removal or cessation of uterine activity, does NOT kill a wife's delight in boudoir calories, unless she us under an age-old misconception as to the function of the womb!

But Clark's wife showed many earlier symptoms of a selfish outlook on life, soon after they were married.

For she was not vitally interested in the moral nurture of her 4 little girls.

Her adoption of cigarettes, liquor and a night out with her bowling divorcee comrades, also is typical of women who are looking for some outside sexual affairs.

Most happy wives are home-oriented and enjoy all-family recreation, or at least mixed bowling teams where husband and wife stay together.

Maybe a Billy Graham can make a radical "conversion" of such a wife as Clark's, but we psychiatrists are dubious about any change for the better, at least before their scared death-bed repentance.

For chronically selfish people, who disregard their own mates and children, fit into the psychopathic category.

Hell is populated with such psychopaths!

Clergymen need not waste much time on them either!

"If your son insists on 'streaking', why does he have to stay in my neighborhood?"

A special program designed for families interested in building, buying or remodeling a home is scheduled for Tuesday at 8 p.m.

The Daily Reflector, Greenville, N.C.—Wednesday, April 17, 1974—21 sources of plans, desirable floor plan features, and basic principles involved in remodeling. Services related to housing that can be provided by extension agents will be reviewed.

Follow up sessions will be tailored to the needs of the group. Possible topics would include lot development, building materials, heating and cooling, color in the home and selection of mobile home. The program is being arranged by Mrs. Sue B. May and Leroy James, local extension agents. Interested persons are urged to pre-register by calling 758-1196 this week.

Ingram Raps Opposition To His 'Bill Of Rights'

RALEIGH (AP)—Insurance Commissioner John Ingram says a court suit undertaken by Allstate Insurance Co. to block Ingram's "Bill of Rights for Motorists" is "another example of the insurance companies opposing needed consumer reform."

Ingram made this comment in a statement Tuesday after Allstate filed an action in Wake Superior Court Friday asking the court to void new rules and regulations that would strictly govern insurance adjusters and appraisers. These rules and regulations ordered by Ingram were due to become effective June 1.

No hearing date on the case has been set.

After holding five hearings this year, Ingram issued the so-called Motorists Bill of Rights that would have the force of law. The regulations spell out what a driver can expect from an insurance company after an auto accident.

They allow the owner of a car to use the repair shop of his choice, set forth time tables and procedures for negotiating claims payments and establish a code of conduct for adjusters and appraisers.

The rules would forbid the use of "blue book" or other guides in determining the market value of an auto destroyed in a wreck. Independent estimates from auto dealers would be used instead.

Ingram has asserted his rules would "prevent collusion, trafficking in salvage vehicles and unethical practices at the expense of the motorists."

In its suit, Allstate contended that the rules were "unsupported by competent, material and substantive evidence."

The insurance company also contended that Ingram had overstepped his authority in ordering the rules into effect.

"The commissioner of insurance should regulate the insurance business, not attempt to run it," Allstate said.

The firm insures nearly 9 percent of all vehicles registered in North Carolina.

It said it would be unable to reorganize its branch offices and retrain its employees to meet the new guidelines by June 1. It called Ingram's rules "very disruptive."

Four Injured In Accidents

Four persons were reported injured and an estimated $2,300 property damage caused in two collisions investigated here yesterday.

Police said heaviest damage resulted from a 12:40 p.m. collision at the intersection of Memorial Drive and Chestnut Street involving a car driven by Pearlle Carmon Spell of Route 1 Greenville and a truck operated by Kenneth Harold Randolph of Greenville.

Officers, who reported Mrs. Spell and one passenger in her car were injured, estimated damage at $300 to the Spell car and $1,500 to the Randolph truck.

Randolph was charged with failing to reduce his speed enough to avoid an accident.

Hazel Lewis Rumbley of 120 North Eastern St. and Edith Michelle Hershey of New Bern were reported injured when their cars collided about 8:40 p.m. at the intersection of Tenth and Charles Streets.

Investigators, who charged Mrs. Hershey with failing to stop for a red light, estimated damage at $200 to the Hershey car and $300 to the Rumbley auto.

Church Selling Chicken Dinners

Barbecued chicken plates will be on sale at the Church of God of Prophecy Church Saturday from 11:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Revival services will be held all the following week, beginning Sunday night. The public is invited, according to the pastor, the Rev. Bob Dickerson.
